County Leaders Balk At Proposed Tax Cuts

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Kelly Barnhill, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, said today that commissioners locally and statewide are opposed to any cuts in their sources of revenue unless the state compensates the counties for the revenue they stand to lose.

Several members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners are scheduled to attend a conference sponsored by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners Jan. 16-17 in High Point, to help establish a program of legislative goals to be supported when the General Assembly convenes next month.

County Manager Reginald Gray said a list of nine proposed goals have been developed by a special committee of county commissioners and approved by the association's board of directors for consideration at the conference.

The goals, Gray said, include: the authority for an additional half-cent optional sales tax for local government; legislation authorizing a refund of sales tax paid by public schools or community colleges (sales taxes paid by all other local government agencies are now refunded); legislation clearly defining the respective responsibilities of the state and counties for financing public school needs, with counties being primarily responsible for providing funds for facilities and the state being responsible for funding operational costs; development of a statewide standard course of study to be provided every child regardless of where that child resides; and legislation requiring payment of property taxes on motor vehicles at the time license plates are purchased.

Other goals to be considered at the conference, according to Gray, include: opposition to the repeal of the inventory tax (which would cost counties and cities $225 million in 1984-85) but support a state income tax credit for local taxes paid on inventory; opposition to the repeal of the intangibles tax, unless the tax is replaced with revenues having a growth factor equal to the present intangibles tax (repeal would cost counties and cities $66.3 million in 1984-85); support for appropriation of sufficient state funds to pay the total non-federal cost of Medicaid patients in state-owned institutions and community residential facilities, and support for state funding to provide at least 50 percent of the non-federal share of the administrative costs for social services.

Gray suggested that any move to cut revenue sources to counties — such as the inventory and intangibles taxes — unless the state provides compensation for the losses will "serve to place an even heavier burden on local property taxes, which are the prime sources of revenue for county and city governments."

"The big thing," according to Barnhill, "which the Pitt County Board of Commissioners has acted on, is emphasizing, through our association, that if the state is going to cut any revenues, they make some arrangements to offset these cuts with additional sources of revenue."

"That money," from such things as the intangibles and inventory taxes, "comes directly back to the county," Barnhill said. "If they cut it out, it will represent (a loss of) $500,000 to $600,000 to Pitt County. The only way we have to offset that loss is the ad valorem tax. The only way we have of raising revenue" is property taxes, he said.

"We're hoping that, if they do in fact repeal the intangibles tax and inventory tax, they come up with an offsetting increase in revenue," Barnhill emphasized.

He also expressed the hope that the General Assembly will provide some "statewide revenue" to help counties with "capital improvements to schools. That would help the counties," Barnhill said, contending that statewide, counties face more than $2 billion in school facility needs.

Hunt Under Way For Eastern Jet Lost Over Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — U.S. and Bolivian planes searched the snowcapped Andes today for an Eastern Airlines jet that disappeared 10 minutes before its planned landing at La Paz airport. Authorities said at least seven Americans were among the 33 people aboard.

A U.S. government plane returned to La Paz airport this morning after its crew scanned the crevices and passes of the Andes but found no trace of the Boeing 727, said the U.S. consul in La Paz, Royce Fichte, who was aboard the search craft. He said the Beech 200 aircraft had searched for two hours and 15 minutes and would search again today, probably in the afternoon, when visibility was expected to be better.

Fichte said heavy clouds hampered the searchers, who thought they spotted some wreckage but after circling for a closer look decided that it wasn't wreckage. He said the search plane flew over the flight route that the Eastern jet had planned to follow.

The Federal Aviation Administration said in Washington that wreckage believed to be that of the Eastern jet had been spotted about 50 miles from the airport in "the general area" of the plane's last known location as established by radio contact.

But Fichte said "the FAA reports about finding the plane are false." He said he believed the FAA report was based on the radio conversation in which crew aboard the U.S. search plane said they had spotted something that looked like wreckage and were going to take a second look.

An Eastern spokesman, Bob Hunter, said in Miami after the U.S. flight returned from its first search run that "our information is simply that we have no wreckage found."

The last contact with the crew of the Eastern flight was a radio conversation with the pilot 11 minutes before the jet's scheduled landing Tuesday evening, said Richard McGraw, an Eastern senior vice president in Miami. The pilot said in that transmission that he planned to land a minute early.

The pilot was told to lower his plane's altitude, then at 35,000 feet, to 25,000 and make radio contact when he did so, but the pilot was never heard from again, airport officials said.

Airport officials said fog at an elevation as high as 30,000 feet blanketed the region. The hunt was concentrated in the Bacon region of Cochabamba state, about 60 miles south of the Bolivian capital. Several search planes were returning to the airport because of the heavy clouds, they said.

FIRST BABY OF NEW YEAR — Jose Juan Guerra Jr. is held by his mother, Carmen Campos Guerra, after being born Tuesday at 5:47 a.m. as the first baby to be born in 1985 at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The child weighed in at 8 pounds, 6 ounces. The baby's father, Jose

Hijack Raises Concern

NEW YORK (AP) — A prisoner being taken from the Virgin-Islands to New York feigned illness, went into a jetliner's restroom, emerged with a gun and hijacked the plane to Cuba, authorities said.

The FBI said Tuesday it was investigating how convicted mass murderer Ishmael Ali LaBeet got the gun aboard the American Airlines flight, and the Federal Aviation Administration said it was investigating whether he was being transported properly and whether additional regulations on transporting prisoners were needed.

La Beet, 37, convicted with four others in the 1972 murders of eight people on a St. Croix golf course, was not wearing handcuffs during Monday night's flight. American Airlines said prisoners do not wear shackles during flights because of safety considerations.

La Beet was taken into custody by Cuban officials after the hijacking of Flight 626, en route from St. Croix to New York. After three hours in Havana, the DC-10 jet flew to Kennedy International Airport without incident. None of the 198 people on board was injured.

LaBeet, under a prison sentence of eight consecutive life terms, had been in the Virgin Islands in connection with a civil suit.

"It was unclear whether the gun had been concealed on his person or on the plane or precisely why the handcuffs had been removed," said Edwin Potter, director of corrections for the Virgin Islands territorial government.

The U.S. special interest section at the Swiss Embassy in Havana communicated with Cuban authorities about the case Tuesday, according to Anita Stockman, a State Department spokeswoman. The United States and Cuba do not have diplomatic relations.

"We will be presenting a note asking the return of the prisoner or his punishment," she said. "We would like for him to face his punishment in this country."

Lane Bonner, an FBI spokesman in Washington, said an investigation had been launched into the hijacking and how LaBeet got his weapon.

The incident began about an hour before the plane was to arrive in New York. After LaBeet returned from the lavatory, he disarmed his three guards.

British Papers Show U.S. Pushed For Nuclear Strike

LONDON (AP) — Military leaders from the United States, Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand considered the possibility of using nuclear weapons against China in 1954, according to newly disclosed British government papers.

The previously secret papers, released by law from the Public Records Office on Tuesday after 30 years, show strong U.S. pressure on Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government in 1954 to join a coalition to rescue the French facing a humiliating colonial defeat at Dien Bien Phu in Vietnam.

A military conference of the five allied powers was held in Washington to discuss the matter and plan a response to China's expected intervention on the side of the Vietnamese Communist insurgents led by Ho Chi Minh.

The British chiefs of staff said in a secret report, to the Churchill Cabinet's defense committee that the conference had resolved that: "Should war with China be precipitated by Chinese Communist aggression in Southeast Asia, air attack should be launched immediately, aimed at military targets. To achieve a maximum and lasting effect, nuclear as well as conventional weapons should be used from the outset.

But the British chiefs of staff added in a memorandum to the Cabinet on June 17, 1954: "Although the use of nuclear weapons in war against China would, from the military point of view, obviously be more effective than the use of conventional weapons, their employment would have a serious effect on Asian opinion generally."

Churchill, who was 80 on Nov. 30, 1954, and died in 1965, wrote in his private papers: "The British people would not be easily influenced by what happened in the distant jungles of Southeast Asia; but they did know that there was a powerful American base in East Anglia (in eastern England) and that war with China, who would invoke the Sino-Russian Pact, might mean an assault by hydrogen bombs on these islands."

Power Usage Falls

Warm October and November weather accounted for a decline in average kilowatt usage by Greenville Utilities customers, according to GUC Public Information Officer Susan Bizzaro.

Mrs. Bizzaro reported an 8.5 percent decrease in average kilowatt hours used per customer from October-November 1983 over the same period in 1984, but added that customers should not equate decrease in usage with lower bills. Several very cold days, she said, could possibly double a customer's bill because of recent rate increases. peak demand costs and varied billing periods.

Approximately 47,000 GUC customers consumed 36,835,251 kilowatt hours in October and November of 1983. In the same period of 1984, approximately 50,000 GUC customers consumed 35,391,974 kilowatt hours.

Similarly, consumption of gas by GUC customers declined 14.5 percent from October-November 1983 to 1984.

Approximately 6,900 GUC customers consumed 234,390 hundred cubic feet of gas in 1983, while 7,169 1984 customers consumed 208,045 hundred cubic feet of gas.

Amy Heckerling Takes Charge National Lampoon Of Film

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When producer Matty Simmons first sought a director for "National Lampoon's European Vacation," he rejected the name of Amy Heckerling.

"I'm not a sexist," claimed the boss of the National Lampoon empire. "It's just that so much of our humor is male-oriented, and I didn't think a woman would be the right choice as director. But then Amy's agent persuaded me to see 'Fast Times at Ridgmont High.' I hired her."

The other day Amy Heckerling was directing the final scenes of "European Vacation," depicting how Chevy Chase, Beverly D'Angelo and children win a Continental tour on a quiz show called "Pig in a Poke."

John Astin played the master of ceremonies in a devastating takeoff of Richard Dawson of "Family Feud."

Amy Heckerling seemed miscast as director of the $17-million comedy, also filmed on locations in London, Paris, Rome and the Italian Alps. She is slender to the point of being slight, and she seemed lost amid the cluster of technicians around the camera. But when she commanded "Action!" and "Cut!" there was no doubt who was in charge.

"I don't think Matty is sexist," she said. "After all, he has hired Martha Coolidge and Penny Marshall to direct his films. I think he just needed to see what I could do. 'Fast Times' showed him, even though it was not a comedy."

Miss Heckerling was in a kind of good news-bad news situation. She was completing "European Vacation" $1 million under budget, despite the complicated locations and rainy weather. Her second film, "Johnny Dangerously," was being released by 20th Century-Fox amid dismal early reviews.

The Michael Keaton-Joe Piscopo gangster spoof was filmed in the summer of 1983, underwent retakes and finally is reaching theaters.

"We added some scenes with Michael," Miss Heckerling explained. "He was always the star, but the film was made before his success with 'Mr. Mom.' After the picture was finished, they wanted more of Keaton."

Amy Heckerling has been in love with movies for most of her 31 years. It started in Queens, N.Y., where she watched movies on television and adapted them to neighborhood plays. Her bent toward comedy began then: "I watched a lot of the Three Stooges and the Marx Brothers, also 'Saturday Night Live,' 'Laugh-In' and Burns and Allen."

At Manhattan's Art and Design High School she studied art and photography but realized she really wanted to become a film director, not an easy ambition in the 1970s. She made films at New York University, and in 1975 won a fellowship as director at the American Film Institute.

"I made a short film that started everything for me," she said. "I got an agent and was offered development deals. My entire world changed."

"I wrote a script, 'My Kind of Guy,' at Warner Bros, but it went into turnaround (meaning the studio dropped it). Universal picked it up, but again it ended in turnaround. Finally MGM decided to make it. I was in pre-production, the costumes were made, the cast selected. Then the actors went on strike. I had worked for three years with nothing to show for it."

Soon afterward she drew "Fast Times at Ridgmont High," and she's been directing ever since.

Last July Amy married Neal Israel, writer of "Police Academy" and director of "Bachelor Party."

Couple Weds On Saturday

In a candlelight, double ring ceremony, Connie Lynn Evans and Kenneth Malcolm Sermons were united in marriage Saturday at 6 p.m. in the Cherry Court Clubhouse.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray Evans of Winterville and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Earl Sermons of Farmville.

The Rev. Delbert Garrison performed the ceremony. The "Wedding Prayer" was sung by Lois Garrison.

Lisa Evans of Winterville, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Michael Sermons, son of the bridegroom, was ring bearer and the father of the bridegroom was best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding dress of silk and chantilly lace.

A pig picking and reception were held at the clubhouse after the ceremony. The clubhouse was decorated with greenery and candles.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and the bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is currently employed by the Greenville Postal Service.

The couple will live in Greenville.

Consumers sometimes expect miracles from laundry or dry cleaning products. There is no one key to spot removal. Most spots can be removed if you have knowledge of the characteristics of fibers, yarns, and finishes as well as the techniques of treating fabrics. You might think this is only for the expert on stain removal. Not so!

Effective stain removal involves not rubbing the stained area, but patting the area with the spot remover. If liquid is dropped on a textile product, absorb the moisture with a blotter of paper towel immediately. A fabric made of silk may water spot or show marks of rubbing. Remove stains from silk within a day of the spotting if possible. In most cases it is better to take the garment to the dry cleaners rather than attempting to remove the spot.

Other fibers, generally, can have cool water applied to the stain to dilute the stain, and then absorb the moisture as quickly as possible. When the fabric is dry cleanable only, take it to a dry cleaner as soon as possible.

Removing a stain from washable fabric involves working from behind the stain or on the back of the fabric. Place the stain over absorbant material and then pat the stained area with a cosmetic cotton ball to push the stain out of the fabric.

What you use to remove the stain depends on the stain. You can use a dry cleaning solvent on oil, or a laundry product designed for oily stains or a liquid detergent. After applying stain removal techniques and the stain still remains, then use a bleach. There are nonchlorine bleaches on the market that are safe to use on washable fabrics and colors. Keep in mind that chlorine bleaches, while effective, remain in the fabric after washing and can have a long range deteriorating effect on fabrics that will be preserved for future use.

Garments or home furnishings made with polyester or blends with polyester will hold oily stains more than other fabrics. Polyester is oleophilic or oil absorbing. In order to eliminate that oil, pre-spotting before washing is necessary because the oily stain requires a heavy concentration of a cleaning agent to remove the oil. The laundry detergent in a washing machine is often too diluted to remove oily stains from polyester.

Cotton, linen, or rayon fabrics that have a wrinkle resistant finish may also have a tendency to absorb oily stains because of the chemistry of the finish. Oily stains need to be pre-treated on fabrics with resin finishes, the same way as polyester or polyester/blend fabrics. Keep in mind, never rub a fabric as this can distort the surface of the fabric and remove some of the color.

Old Age Doesn't Have To Be An Affliction

DEAR ABBY: My dear departed mother, who had a wonderful sense of humor, gave this to me:

A SENIOR CITIZEN'S LAMENT
Thought I'd let my doctor check me
"Cause I didn't feel quite right.
All those aches and pains annoyed me,

And I couldn't sleep at night.
He could find no real disorder,
but he wouldn't let it rest.
What with Medicare and Blue Cross

it wouldn't hurt to do some tests.
To the hospital he sent me,
though I didn't feel that bad.
He arranged for them to give me every test that could be had.

I was fluoroscoped and cystoscoped,
my aging frame displayed,
Stripped upon an ice-cold table
while my gizzards were X-rayed.

I was checked for worms and parasites
for fungus and the crud,
While they pierced me with long needles taking samples of my blood.

Doctors came to check me over,
probed and pushed and poked around,
And to make sure I was living,
they wired me for sound.

They have finally concluded;
(their results have filled a page)
What I have will someday kill me, my affliction is old age.

(Author unknown)
I REMEMBER MAMA

DEAR REMEMBER: What an amusing poem, but old age never "killed" anybody. Unfortunately, some doctors still equate aging with inevitable mental and physical decline.

Dr. Robert N. Butler, former director of the National Institute of Aging, tells the story of a 101-year-old man who complained to his physician about a pain in his left leg.

"Well," said the doctor, "what do you expect at your age?"
The man replied, "But doctor, my right leg is also 101, and it doesn't hurt a bit."

Appropos aging, I have just come upon a wonderful handbook titled "Help Yourself to Good Health," compiled by the National Institute on Aging—a part of the Department of Health and Human Services, whose secretary is Margaret M. Heckler.

This excellent handbook will be a godsend for people 60 years old and older.

Some chapter titles: Accidents and the Elderly; Aging and Your Eyes; Arthritis Advice; Cancer Facts for People Over 50; Constipation; Dealing With Diabetes; Hearing and the Elderly; Urinary Incontinence; What to Do About the Flu; Prostate Problems; High Blood Pressure; The Safe Use of Medicine by Older People; Senility, Myth or Madness?; A Healthy Diet; How to Find Good Medical Care; Protection Against Crime; Sexuality in Later Life; and more.

It is written in large type in simple language that everyone can understand. It contains a wealth of information for everyone over 50 who wants to live a long, healthy and independent life.

It is absolutely free—including postage!

For your book, write to: Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, P.O. Box 3852-DA, Grand Central Station, N.Y. 10163. Ask for the book Dear Abby mentioned for older people. (A postcard will do.) Please print your name and address clearly. And don't thank me, thank the National Institute on Aging and Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, which funded this fine project.

P.S. This offer includes our Canadian neighbors.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Everything's coming up stripes in the '85 knit scene, so kick off the new year by knitting a classic V-neck, raglan cardigan with zingy stripes in a soft, fluffy yarn.

This one's a great choice for all of you who love to knit but hate to set in sleeves and do the other seaming necessary for most sweaters. It is started at the neck and worked down in one piece on circular needles. The only seam needed is on the sleeves from wrist to underarm.

It's worked with a five-stitch-per-inch gauge using a brushed acrylic yarn or knitting worsted-weight yarn. Unabbreviated directions are written for sizes 10 through 18.

To obtain directions for making the Striped Cardigan, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-1230 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29587.

Or you may order Kit No. K-1230 by sending a check or money order for $17.50 for sizes 10 through 14, or $20 for the larger sizes to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit Price includes shipping charges, brushed acrylic yarn in four colors plus the instruction leaflet. Please specify your choice of pastel spring garden stripes, beige/brown/rust stripes or shaded grays with a touch of blue.

If you are not one of the knitters absolutely hooked on knitting sweaters from the neck down, let me share with you the reasons for the popularity of this styling.

First, there is so little finishing to do. How often have you seen a beautifully knitted garment spoiled by amateurish finishing techniques, such as bulky shoulder seams and puckers around the sleeve cap?

When you start a raglan sweater at the neckline on circular needles, you are working on the back, sleeves and fronts simultaneously, gradually increasing before and after markers that are peed on the needles at the beginning of each raglan "seam" line. Actually, there are no seams here because of the working method, but an illusion of a seam is created by the way you make the increases.

When you have knitted down to the end of the yoke section, your work is then divided, with the sleeve stitches put onto a strand of contrast yarn while you continue to work on the body stitches.

There is another big advantage that even some avid raglan fans may not be aware of. After you have worked a couple of rows below the armhole, thread a tapestry needle with a long strand of contrast yarn and slip the body stitches from the knitting needle onto the yarn strand.

This allows you to have a fitting session. You can now slip on the sweater and see if it is the right size for you. You may have been slightly off gauge, or the designer may have a different idea than you do about the right size for your particular measurements.

If you are satisfied with the fit, knit merrily on. But if the sweater seems too large or too small, just rip back to the point where you separated the body and sleeve stitches and put all of the stitches back on the needle. If the sweater was too large, rip back a few more rows and make this your dividing point. If it was too small, knit more rows before dividing.

If you have someone to help you, you can do your fitting before you divide your work. At the point where you are told to divide your work, slip all the stitches onto the contrast yarn and try it on. You will need someone else to hold the back and front together at the underarm as this is difficult to do on your own.

When trying the sweater on at this point, do read ahead in your pattern to see if you will be adding some stitches at the underarm. If you are, you will have to make some allowances for these extra stitches to determine whether or not the sweater is the right size at this point.

As an example, if your stitch gauge is four stitches per inch and you are told to cast on six stitches at each underarm, you will be adding 1 1/2 inches at each side or a total of 3 inches to the overall chest measurement. Therefore, you should have a very snug fit at the underarm before adding the extra stitches.

Again, you can adjust the size by working more rows, increasing as before, or by ripping back. I would recommend that you use the first fitting method given if you have never done this type of fitting. After you have made two or three garments with this type of shaping, you will better understand the fitting above the underarm.

Knowledge

Moves toward expanding and improving Voice of America operations are bound to pay dividends above and beyond the New York Times's reported $1.5 billion outlay.

For that kind of money a layman might visualize building and manning a major naval component, or an important addition to U.S. airpower. We're sure either of those services would welcome such a prospect, but memory and Soviet reaction to VOA broadcasts strongly indicate we're on the right track.

In the long run, today's international strife is about ideas ... ideas that are based by factual news and the reporting of stories from around the world. It helps shape concepts and impressions.

The impact of truth is so great that the Soviet Union feels jamming VOA radio reports is very important as a matter of internal security. There is quite literally no telling what impact truth and knowledge might have on the course of events inside and outside the Kremlin-controlled countries of the world.

During the dark days of World War II it was the British Broadcasting Corporation's overseas news reports that encouraged subjected peoples and kept the concept of resistance alive. It was a frail link to sanity for secret listeners.

Over the long haul, knowledge and ideas are the strongest forces in the lives of people and societies. On that basis, Americans should be in a position to challenge the world. We don't always like what we read and hear, but neither should we be afraid of it.

Security

It's a too familiar story.

A U.S.-made high-tech system of major military value is shipped to another country (an ally) by the manufacturer; is reshipped to another ally on the other side of the world and then is redirected to the Soviet Union. This time, thanks to an alert, the export was prevented.

The equipment consisted of a submarine tracking system (the latest model sonar described as capable of surveying as deep as 39,600 feet).

There are reasonable explanations for circumstances leading up to a near-breach of security involving the sophisticated gadgetry. What this country needs is fewer explanations and more security for its secrets.

News reports say the precious cargo was shipped to a firm in Norway where it "disappeared." Customs officers in friendly countries were alerted. We are told the shipment reached a trading company in Japan who resold it to another Japanese firm who prepared it for transfer to the U.S.S.R. It was stopped in time.

We are left wondering how much critical equipment and how many critical secrets affecting national security have been betrayed to a most unfriendly power. Sometimes we think those leaks more closely resemble a deluge.

Diplomatic 'Rotation' Raises Concern

WASHINGTON AP — A proposal by Secretary of State George Shultz to reassign or replace a number of American ambassadors has touched off a virulent debate over whether the nation is best served by career diplomats or by outsiders known for their loyalty to the president.

The State Department is portraying the shakeup as a "rotation" that routinely occurs at the start of a second presidential term. Conservative allies of the White House see Shultz's recommendations as a "purge" in which Reagan loyalists are being replaced by "pragmatists" from the career service who are politically unreliable.

Both sides recognize that a number of political appointees have performed distinguished service as ambassadors. In this category are appointees such as Arthur Burns, the ambassador to West Germany, and Mike Mansfield, the ambassador to Japan.

But career diplomats generally believe these examples represent the exception rather than the rule. There are few pastimes foreign service officers relish more than exchanging anecdotes about political appointees who commit diplomatic gaffes or offend local sensitivities in other ways, such as engaging in indiscreet sexual liaisons.

William Macomber, a former foreign service officer, wrote recently that a number of "American diplomatic establishments, not to mention long-suffering host governments, have continued to be burdened by ambassadorial leadership that is inadequate and occasionally worse.

"And this goes on even though America has developed one of the finest career diplomatic corps in the world, well stocked with seasoned but frustrated and under-used professionals."

But can career diplomats be counted on to carry out a president's policy with the same zeal as an appointee who has long been identified with that president's viewpoint?

Former President Richard Nixon apparently did not think so. His distrust for the State Department was such that his secretary of state, William P. Rogers, was kept in the dark on many key issues, such as Nixon's bid to open a new relationship with China.

The current debate centers on, but is not limited to, the changes that Shultz is contemplating at several Latin American posts. Political appointees who are on the way out and who apparently will not be reassigned include Curtin Winsor in Costa Rica, Lewis Tams in Colombia and James Theberge in Chile.

Conservatives insist the views of all three are in harmony with Reagan's policies and they should be allowed to remain on or at least be sent to key posts elsewhere. All are distinguished Latin Americanists, the conservatives say.

A State Department political appointee known for his loyalty to Reagan said he believes con-blame for the story getting the play it did. When you're in the business of launching a top-secret payload from a NASA shuttle you don't call a televised press conference a month before flight time to announce that you're not going to talk about what you're doing, and the media better not look any further into the story.

This is particularly true during the holiday season. Up until the Air Force alerted the world to its mission, most newspaper and television reporters were sucking their thumbs in Washington, putting out stories about who the next Democratic Party chairman would be, what Nancy Reagan was giving Ronnie for Christmas, and how much voltage it took to light the national Christmas tree on the mall.

NASA officials couldn't sell a story in December on the next shuttle flight if their lives depended on it. As far as the public is concerned, the program has become old hat, and when you've seen one shuttle flight you've seen them all.

I am not against the Air Force secretly launching military hardware into space. I just think there are better ways of doing it than alerting the media to their plans, and then warning them not to "speculate" what the military is up to.

This is how the Defense Department should have handled it.

It has already been announced that an American schoolteacher would be the first "non-astronaut," "non-scientist" to take a ride on the shuttle.

Instead of the Air Force calling a press conference, NASA should have announced they has selected a teacher for the next shuttle mission. Let's say it was Miss Gottlieb of Public School 35, in Hollis, N.Y. Miss Gottlieb would be flown to Washington with her entire class.

For a month the media would follow every waking moment of Miss Gottlieb's training. On January 23 the entire world would be tuned in on this historic flight. Every TV camera would follow the teacher from her dressing room to the launch pad to liftoff.

Houston Control would provide us with hourly reports from Miss Gottlieb on how she was enjoying her trip. Now, unbeknownst to anyone, except the captain of the shuttle, the Air Force would have placed its top-secret package in the hatch. When the shuttle passed over the Soviet Union, and with all cameras focused on Miss Gottlieb bouncing up and down in the cabin in a weightless condition, the captain would sneak back to the cargo bay and kick out the satellite into the sky.

After the flight, while Miss Gottlieb rode in a ticker-tape parade down Fifth Avenue, the Air Force's $300 million gizmo would be safely in stationary orbit, listening to Chernenko snoring in Moscow, measuring heat from Siberian outhouses, and photographing Russian generals drinking vodka with their mistresses on the Black Sea. Not one person inside or outside the media would be any the wiser as to what Discovery's real mission was.

That's how you conduct a secret shuttle operation. If the people in the Pentagon don't know how to do it, let's find somebody in this country who does.

Republicans Look To Austerity

WASHINGTON — The usually cheerful Rep. Richard Cheney was playing Scrooge as Christmas neared, a sign of deep trouble for the Republican Party stemming from the administration's post-election estimates of massive budget deficits.

Those estimates, churned out by David Stockman's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and approved by the White House, base long-range pessimism on short-term decline (in 1984's last two quarters). The OMB forecasting model, remarkably accurate in the past, precludes serious deficit reduction resulting from economic growth. Therein lies a forboding future that ruined the holiday season for Cheney and other traditional Republicans.

Cheney, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, was displaying the same long face in secret strategy sessions with administration officials that he showed to reporters. He argued that not making deeper cuts in the defense budget, President Reagan had threatened his entire second term.

What's more, Cheney wants to hold down Social Security payments and warns that insufficient budget cuts could lead to higher taxes — both acts breaking Ronald Reagan's campaign pledges. That spells austerity. Coupled with abandonment of the Reagan defense buildup, it vindicates Walter F. Mondale.

Cheney is not alone. He represents the overwhelming consensus among Republicans in Congress. Another GOP House leader, Rep. Jack Kemp, is a voice in the wilderness arguing that only economic growth can reduce the deficit.

Thus, just as the Republicans are poised to achieve majority status, they are in danger of resuming the austerity posture from which they futilely battled the New Deal. Only the president in his Inaugural and State of the Union speeches next month can change the mood. What has produced such long faces for Dick Cheney and other Republican stalwarts is Stockman's post-election surprise: an estimated $30 billion bulge in the deficit. That prompted another of Stockman's familiar autumnal budget offensives, and the current Republican imitation of Scrooge: trying to cut civil servants today and limit Social Security beneficiaries tomorrow, while pressing unilateral defense cuts on the eve of the Geneva talks.

Such politically self-destructive austerity is the byproduct of the OMB model. It projects little decline in unemployment — a direct cause of high federal spending — resulting from economic growth. Nor does it anticipate reduced expenditures because of lower inflation. OMB long has erred on the pessimistic side. Unemployment has dropped to 7.3 percent two full years earlier than Stockman's forecast.

OMB has overestimated its critically important prediction of future Treasury's bill rates.

In contrast, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) model, while predicting an even gloomier economy, does concede a closer link between growth and budget deficits. Using the CBO model, Kemp's office reports that a single percentage point in economic growth would yield a $105 billion deficit reduction within three years.

Strength For Today

Many years ago a two-volume work was published under the title "History of the Warfare of Science with Theology."

Today most of us are quite certain that there is no basic conflict between science and religion. Religion deals with the unseen, spiritual world; science deals with the material world.

Some of the outstanding scientists of the world are deeply religious and feel that their faith in no way conflicts with their scientific assumptions. They accept the fact that faith and science operate in different spheres.

If you have come to feel that you cannot be religious because religion and science conflict with each other, get that idea out of your mind. Each makes its contribution, and the two do not conflict unless you allow them to do so.

We should all try to be broadminded in the sense that we consider ideas dealing with every aspect of life, both here and beyond.

Bureaucrats Face Loss Of Drivers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top federal bureaucrats who have been driven to work by government chauffeurs may be hailing taxis, catching the bus or driving their own cars when Congress convenes on Thursday.

The General Accounting Office announced in 1983 that when the 99th Congress convenes it would begin holding federal officials accountable to a 1940s law limiting chauffeur service.

Under the law, only the president and a few other officials, including certain diplomatic personnel, are granted the privilege of chauffeur service. The law does not include the vice president on the list of officials entitled to be driven to work at government expense.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Tuesday that the law should be changed to include the vice president and maybe several other officials. But he said the current law should be observed until it is changed.

Proxmire said that his office determined there were 190 "pampered officials... receiving such coddling" in 1982, up from 160 in 1977.

"At an annual cost of $32,000 for each chauffeured official, this taxi meter rang up a bill of $3.4 million for the taxpayers in 1982 alone," he said.

"A bevy of agency officials" have asked Budget Director David Stockman to be exempted from the GAO ruling, Proxmire said. These officials also want the administration to seek legislation that would preserve their limousine service.

Stockman, director of the White House Office of Management and Budget, could lose the chauffeur service under a strict interpretation of the 1940s law, according to aides to Proxmire.

The senator said he will send letters on Wednesday and Thursday to the heads of every federal agency on their plans for complying with the GAO's 1983 ruling.

The 1982 survey showed that officials at the Defense Department were the most inclined to provide themselves with limousines. Of the 190 people throughout the government with door-to-door chauffeur service, 60 were at the Pentagon, though 36 of them said they use the service only occasionally.

The Transportation and State departments ranked second and third in the 1982 survey.

Proxmire, who has conducted three such surveys since 1977, said he plans to do another one later this year.

Hunt Says He Will Join Raleigh Law Firm Monday

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today he will begin work on Monday as a senior member of a Raleigh law firm that includes former state Supreme Court Associate Justice and Hunt ally Phil Carlton.

After delivering a parting message to the State Board of Education, Hunt told reporters that he is joining the firm of Spruill, Lane, Carlton, McCotter and Jolly. Hunt praised the firm, which was established in 1883, for its public spirit and active role in community and state affairs.

Hunt said he expects to work with large corporate clients, but said he has no specific clients yet.

"Compatibility with people is always a factor," Hunt said, explaining why he chose that particular firm. "But you look at all things together. There is a tremendous potential for growth here."

Hunt told the board of education that 1984 was a good year for education, but he asked board members to renew their efforts to continue that progress.

"This state will not keep its current momentum... unless we stay with that program (which the board helped design), remain faithful to it and carry out the remaining two years of the program," Hunt said in one of his last official appearances before he leaves office Saturday.

Hunt presented each of the board members with a certificate for their service.

He told reporters that he will maintain his interest in education and as a private citizen may make a few telephone calls to legislative leaders about special concerns.

Hunt said the most important steps remaining for the Legislature are to lower the class size in grades 7, 8 and 9, and fully implement the career growth plan for teachers.

"If we care about jobs in the years ahead, we will stay committed to education," Hunt told reporters.

School Fire

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A fire Monday gutted a mobile classroom at Hartsell Middle School in Cabarrus County, in what officials say is the fourth suspicious school fire since Dec. 19.

The blaze caused between $18,000 and $20,000 in damages, Hartsell Principal Jerry Robinson said.

Egypt To Seek Increase In Aid

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt is seeking a 40 percent increase in U.S. economic and military aid, a state-controlled newspaper reported today.

The daily Gomhuria said the increase in U.S. assistance was to be discussed in a series of meetings between American and Egyptian officials due to begin in Washington in the next few weeks.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Cairo, who asked not to be identified, said he had no information on the reported development.

President Hosni Mubarak is tentatively scheduled to visit Washington in March, although Egyptian officials say no date has been set.

The United States gives Egypt about $2.2 billion annually in economic and military assistance. Egyptian officials have said they expect the Reagan administration to increase the levels if the United States grants a request by Israel for a $1.5 billion aid boost to help the Jewish state overcome its economic crisis.

Following the 1978 Camp David agreements, which paved the way for the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, the administration of former President Jimmy Carter agreed to keep aid to the two Middle Eastern countries roughly equal.

Israel currently receives about $2.6 billion annually in American assistance.

Larceny Charge

Greenville police have arrested Darnell Leon Jarman, 27, of 702 E. Gum Road, on a larceny charge in connection with the theft of several cartons of cigarettes from the Farm Fresh store off Greenville Boulevard about 11:11 p.m. Tuesday.

Officer C.A. Sharp said Jarman was taken into custody near the intersection of Pitt and Deck streets. Sharp said three cartons of cigarettes were recovered.

Officer B.D. Dobbs said Jarman was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon after officers found a steak knife in his pocket after he was taken into custody.

Seven Thefts

Greenville police are investigating seven thefts reported to the department Tuesday.

Officer J.M. Jones said a bicycle was taken from 103 W. 13th St. in a break-in reported at 7:53 a.m., while a bicycle was taken from a storage building, and a citizens band radio taken from a car parked at 2709 Webb St. in an incident reported at 10:12 a.m.

Officer J.E. Fleming said a radio-cassette player and equalizer were taken from a car parked at 203 N. Oak St. in an incident reported at 8:11 a.m. A cassette player was taken from a car parked at 209 N. Oak St. in an incident reported at 10:33 a.m. Fleming also said an 11:10 a.m. complaint reported a radio-cassette player was taken from a second car parked at 209 N. Oak St.

According to Officer K.R. Evans, a cassette player was taken from the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity house at 803 Hooker Road in a break-in reported at 10:31, while Officer D.W. Nichols said a stereo system was taken from an apartment at 113 Ridge Place in a break-in reported at 4:30 p.m.

New Restaurants

Workers in the complex of medical facilities on the city's western edge — Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the East Carolina University School of Medicine and the numerous doctors' offices — will have three fast-food restaurants to choose from shortly.

McDonald's Restaurant, which has been in operation for several years at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Stantonsburg Road, was joined by Wendy's Hamburgers, nearby on Memorial Drive, which opened in early December.

A new Burger King Restaurant will join Wendy's and McDonalds when construction of the new facility on a site adjacent to McDonald's is completed in several weeks.

Building permits issued by the city estimate the cost of the new Wendy's at $169,000, while the new Burger King is expected to cost $175,000.

Mended Hearts

The Mended Hearts meeting scheduled for Thursday has been postponed until 7:30 p.m. Jan. 10 at the Gaskins-Leslie Center.

The meeting is open to members and those interested in heart problems, heart surgery candidates and recipients.

Checks Scheduled

East Carolina University medical students will conduct free blood pressure evaluations Friday from 2-8 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Kerr Drugs, Carolina East Mall.

Burkart To Speak

Dr. T.E. Burkart, local physician and medical director of the Greenville Dialysis Center, will speak at Thursday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Eastern Carolina chapter of the N.C. Kidney Foundation. The meeting will be at the Leslie-Gaskins Building adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

A graduate of the Medical University of South Carolina, Burkart served his internship and residency at the University of Alabama Medical Center in Birmingham. He is on the staff at PCMH and is a chief assistant professor of medicine with the school of medicine at East Carolina University.

Board To Meet

The Pitt County Board of Education will hold its monthly meeting at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the third floor conference room of the Pitt County Office Building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Agenda items include personnel recommendations, honor roll and principal list procedure policies, and several information items.

For further information contact the office of the superintendent at 752-6106, extension 200.

Committee Session

The consolidation committee of the Pitt County and Greenville boards of education will meet at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the first floor county commissioners' board room, Pitt County Office Building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Language Classes

Second semester foreign language classes, to be offered by Greenville schools after regular school hours, will begin the week of Jan. 21.

Enrollment is open to interested students. The fee is $40 for the semester. For more information, contact Mrs. Laurie Weston at 752-1192.

CAC Meeting

The Greenville Community Appearance Commission will meet at noon Thursday at the public works department on Beatty Street.

Gathering At Selvia

A membership meeting will be held at Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Thursday starting at 7:30 p.m.

ALA Campaign

The American Lung Association has announced a new campaign to bring public attention to the dangers of marijuana smoking to the lungs.

The association said users of marijuana inhale deeply and retain smoke in the lungs for as long as possible or use paraphernalia for high levels of smoke inhalation, compounding the potential for harm to the lungs.

The ALA has produced a poster featuring members of the cast of the television show, "Fame," telling why achievers avoid drugs. It is available from the association, along with a parents' news magazine which tells how to discuss marijuana use with children without evoking hostility.

Graduates To Meet

Graduates of Rose High School who are now college freshmen or sophomores will meet in the Rose High foyer between 11:10 a.m. and 12:35 p.m. Friday to discuss the schools they are attending and to answer questions for current Rose students.

All 1983 and 1984 graduates who have not been contacted should call Mrs. Jean Creech at 758-4411 if they plan to participate.

DWI Arrests

Greenville police reported the arrest of seven persons on driving while impaired charges early New Year's Day.

Officers, who were out in force to locate drinking drivers, reported that the first DWI arrest for 1985 occurred at 12:07 a.m. Tuesday, followed by arrests at 12:20 a.m., 12:30 a.m., 12:50 a.m., 1:20 a.m., 1:50 a.m. and 2:30 a.m.

Police said two persons were charged with driving while impaired late Monday night, in the closing minutes of 1984 — one at 11:35 p.m. and one at 11:45 p.m.

Chief Ted Holmes earlier had warned local area drivers that additional policemen would be on duty New Year's Eve and early New Year's Day looking for drinking drivers.

Recent reports show American education may be improving. Average scores on college admissions tests improved in 32 states last year. Nationwide, 74 percent of students graduate from high school. In Louisiana, however, almost 43 percent of students drop out of school. Roman emperor Vespasian established state-supported education in 75 A.D. In about 2500 B.C., Sumerian priests set up the first elementary schools to train scribes to do palace bookkeeping.

Caller Claims His 'Army Of God' Set Bomb At Clinic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A caller claiming to represent the "Army of God East Coast Division" telephoned the Washington Times and claimed responsibility for the New Year's Day bombing of an abortion clinic.

The bomb exploded at the Hillcrest Women's Surgi-Center here at 12:10 a.m. Tuesday, collapsing a ceiling, cracking brick walls and twisting iron bars over the windows. Police said the clinic was empty and there were no injuries.

The caller told the newspaper Tuesday afternoon he wanted to express "solidarity" with Matthew J. Goldsby, 21, of Cantonment, Fla., who has been charged in the bombing of four Pensacola abortion clinics, according to Jack Killorin, spokesman for the federal Bureau for Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Killorin said the caller referred to the Pensacola man as "Brother John Goldsby" and described himself as belonging to the "Army of God East Coast Division."

The Army of God has claimed responsibility for the bombings of abortion clinics and family planning agencies in the East and Midwest and was involved two years ago in the abduction of an Illinois doctor who performed abortions, FBI agent Ron Hoverson said. The doctor was later released.

The type of bomb used in the New Year's attack and a damage estimate were not released.

"It takes time to reconstruct the type of device that was used," Tom Hill, another ATF spokesman, said.

"The explosion did extensive damage to the interior of the building, causing the ceiling to collapse and the wall to fall also," District of Columbia Police Lt. William White III said.

Goldsby was arrested Monday in connection with the Pensacola bombings, three of them on Christmas Day and the other in June.

Suspect Surrenders To Florida Police

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A second man charged in the bombings of four abortion clinics acted in conjunction with another suspect who confessed to the attacks but claimed he acted alone, authorities said.

Matthew J. Goldsby was charged in the bombings over the weekend, and police said he told them he opposed abortion on religious grounds. On Tuesday, James Thomas Simmons, a 21-year-old glazer's apprentice, surrendered because he knew he was being sought, authorities said.

Simmons was to appear before a federal magistrate at a bond hearing today.

Goldsby, 21, was arrested Sunday and was being held without bond after agents of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms testified he had admitted planting three bombs on Christmas morning and one on June 25.

Both men lived in Cantonment, a rural community 10 miles north of this northwestern Florida city, and both attended the First Assembly of God Church, but officials said neither was active in anti-abortion protests.

Simmons got his job at the Pensacola Glass Co. on the recommendation of Goldsby, whose brother works there, said Jack Sherrill, former assistant manager.

Simmons was charged with 16 counts of violating federal firearms and explosives laws, said Jack Killorin, an ATF spokesman in Washington.

"He turned himself in to the sheriff's office," said Dewitt Fin-cannon, an ATF agent in Pensacola. "He heard we were looking for him."

Goldsby, who works for Norton-Del Gallo Construction Co., faces similar charges. The maximum penalty for each violation is 10 years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both.

White House Says Clark Plans To Leave Interior Post

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's trusted friend and troubleshooter William P. Clark is planning to resign as interior secretary in two or three months and hit the trail for his California ranch, the White House says.

Clark told Reagan of his plans to resign in the next two or three months at a meeting Monday in Palm Springs, Calif., where the president is winding up his New Year's vacation, said Marlin Fitzwater, a White House spokesman.

Clark, who took the job after the resignation of James Watt in August 1983, "told the president that his tasks were essentially complete at the Interior Department and (he) felt it was time to return to his home in California," Fitzwater said Tuesday night.

Asked if Clark's departure was the result of a policy dispute, Fitzwater said, "I think he just felt it was time to get back to his ranch."

In an interview published in today's editions of The Washington Post, Clark said: "My task at Interior is substantially complete so it's time to go home to California."

Clark, who has been an aide and close political associate of Reagan since the president's days as California governor, sought to leave the administration in 1983 when he was national security adviser.

But Reagan prevailed on Clark to stay on in Washington and replace Watt, who resigned under pressure in August 1983 after he made a joke about minorities and handicapped people.

Although he shared many of Watt's views, Clark abandoned his predecessor's confrontational style that had riled many environmental groups. Clark adopted a more conciliatory role in an attempt to defuse the controversy that surrounded Watt's tenure.

Several Interior Department officials, speaking on condition they not be identified by name, expressed dismay Tuesday night that Clark will become a lame duck secretary just as the administration finalizes its budget proposal for the agency and tries to sell it to Congress.

Possible successors to Clark include Energy Secretary Donald Hodel, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Reps. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., and Manuel Lujan Jr., R-N.M., and Interior Under Secretary Ann Dore McLaughlin.

Clark's announced departure comes at a time when the Interior Department must formulate a new five-year plan for the sale of offshore oil leases by February. The plan, mandated by Congress, must spell out the administration's schedule for the sale of oil drilling rights.

Like his predecessor, Clark favors offshore oil drilling. But he has been unable to persuade Congress to lift a drilling ban on the most promising areas off the coasts of California and New England.

While Watt favored the sale of thousands of square miles of under-water drilling tracts, Clark has bowed to the pressure of some states to exempt certain areas for environmental reasons.

Most recently, he used his influence with Reagan to quash a plan by Budget Director David Stockman to merge the Army Corps of Engineers with the Bureau of Reclamation, which builds dams and irrigation projects in 17 Western states.

The plan was opposed by Clark and two other influential Californians in the administration, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Presidential Counselor Edwin Meese III.

In 1967, Clark was picked by Reagan to be the executive secretary of his gubernatorial office in California. An attorney, Clark was named by Reagan to the California Supreme Court in 1973. He remained on the bench until 1981 when he came to Washington as deputy secretary of state. In 1982, he became national security adviser and played a role in the resignation of Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who was later replaced by George Shultz.

Clark is the second Cabinet member to announce his resignation since Reagan's landslide re-election victory last November. Education Secretary T.H. Bell stepped down last month to return to teaching.

'Vigilante' Charges Are Filed In N.Y.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The man who confessed to shooting four teenagers in a New York City subway has been named in an arrest warrant charging him with attempted murder, but he says he'll fight his return to New York, authorities said.

Bernhard Hugo Goetz, 38, dubbed the "subway vigilante," was to be arraigned today in Concord District Court on charges of being a fugitive from justice. He is being held on $300,000 bail in Merrimack County Jail.

An arrest warrant issued Tuesday in New York City charges him with four counts of attempted murder and one of criminal possession of a dangerous weapon, said New York police spokesman Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell.

But Goetz' return to the New York could be delayed "weeks or months" if he fights extradition, said New Hampshire Assistant Attorney General Brian Tucker.

Correction Officer Thomas Barton described Goetz as near tears during processing Tuesday at the Merrimack County Jail, according to the New York Daily News.

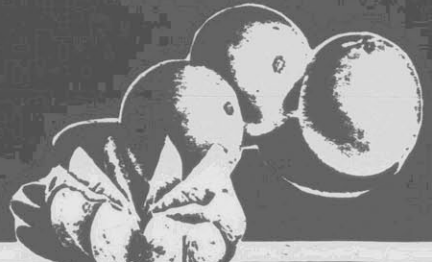

"He said, 'I'm sorry for what happened, but it had to be done,'" the News quoted Barton as saying.

The News also quoted a well-placed New York City police source as saying Goetz was "adamant about not needing a lawyer" and was "seriously considering defending himself."

Goetz told a New York City prosecutor he would fight extradition, said New York police Officer Morris Holloman. New Hampshire authorities said he could change back to his original plan to waive extradition at his arraignment.

Northeast Draws Brunt Of Storm

By The Associated Press

The season's worst storm, already blamed for 10 deaths, lashed the Northeast today with gale force winds, snow and freezing rain after dumping nearly two feet of snow on the Midwest, where 319,000 customers were left powerless when ice-laden lines snapped.

A winter storm warning was in effect for northern New Hampshire and Maine, while travelers advisories for freezing rain were posted today along northern and central New England and gale warnings for coastal areas.

"This sort of storm has a history of leaving at least 8 to 10 inches of snow in Maine and New Hampshire," said Harry Gordon of the Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

By 1 a.m. three inches of snow had fallen at Caribou, Me., and an inch at Houlton. The National Weather Service predicted that up to a foot of snow could cover Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont by Wednesday.

In Texas, raked by thunderstorms, flooding and eight tornadoes earlier this week, storm warnings for heavy snow were in effect. Two inches of snow were reported on the ground in the Dallas-Fort Worth area just after midnight Tuesday.

Officials in Michigan said it would take until Friday to restore power to the 319,000 homes and businesses affected by downed power lines at the peak of Tuesday's storm. About 200,000 customers — most of them in Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Jackson — were without power early today and another 58,000 in suburban Detroit.

"The particular nature of this storm makes it difficult to restore power because it's so widespread," said Dan Bishop, a spokesman for Consumers Power Co., which had 200,000 customers without power early today.

The storm headed east out of Illinois early Tuesday after dumping 19 inches of snow on Antioch, near the Illinois-Wisconsin border; 14.5 inches at nearby Lake Villa; 12 inches at Barrington; 10 inches at Rockford; 8 inches at Moline; and 7.5 inches at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Despite hazardous road conditions in much of the state, no weather-related traffic fatalities were reported. "It's too slow out there to cause damage. Even the drunk drivers can't cause much damage," said state police Sgt. James Bentley at Oak Brook, Ill.

Lines were long at O'Hare, the world's busiest airport, where operations were suspended for about 30 minutes Monday night. Scores of flights were canceled earlier Tuesday and others were delayed up to an hour.

Winds gusting to 40 mph drifted snow up to 4 feet deep in southeastern Wisconsin and northeastern Illinois on Tuesday.

Five people died Tuesday in Wisconsin, four of them shoveling snow and another who was clearing snow away from his car.

A 21-year-old St. Louis, Mo., man was killed Monday night when his car collided with another vehicle on a snow-packed road about 35 miles northeast of Kansas City, authorities said.

In Goodells, Mich., a 17-year-old man was killed Monday in an automobile accident on an icy road, police said.

Eight tornadoes that ripped through suburban Houston on Monday injured 38 people, officials said.

In Pasadena, police Chief David Mullican estimated the cost of damage to hundreds of homes and businesses at $5 million. More than 40 people spent the night at a Red Cross shelter.

In central Texas, floodwaters that claimed the lives of at least three people receded in the Hill Country on Tuesday.

Workers on Tuesday recovered the bodies of two people and continued searching for a third who disappeared Monday when their car was engulfed by high waters near Center Point, authorities said.

Kids' Photos To Be Used

CHICAGO (AP) — The faces of two children missing for nearly three years will appear on millions of milk cartons this week as a dairy helps police in the search for some of the thousands of children who disappear each year.

Tricia Kellee was 9 when she was last seen playing near her Northwest Side home in May 1982. Gary Antonio Feltman was 2 1/2 when he disappeared in August 1982, shortly after a judge awarded custody of him to his father.

"Their faces will be there at the breakfast table," Joe Mayo, commander of the police department's youth division, said Tuesday. "People will have to think about it. Their children will ask them questions. If it helps us find one child, it will be worth it."

The pictures, to be shown on Hawthorn Melody Farm Dairy milk cartons beginning Thursday, will appear for several weeks before being replaced by other missing children, Mayo said.

Four criteria will determine if a child appears on a carton: suspected foul play; if the child has been missing for more than two months; if the child is under 13; and if the abduction is believed to be family-related.

The plan was devised by Walter Woodbury, vice president and general manager of Hawthorn Melody, who was inspired by an Iowa dairy that published the photographs of two missing Des Moines-area newspaper boys.

City Leaders Expect More Hard Times

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the nation's cities enjoyed good economic health in 1984, but nearly three-fourths of the urban leaders responding to a recent survey foresee more hard times unless the federal budget deficit is reduced.

Just over half the 150 city officials who responded to the National League of Cities survey released today said they expect a recession unless the deficit is cut and nearly 75 percent said unemployment and interest rates will rise.

Only 8 percent said the economy can prosper without deficit reduction.

"Austerity and budget restraint have been the order of business during four hard years for cities, but local economic recovery finally seems to be broadly under way," said Alan Beals, executive director of the league.

"Now, after two years of recovery and low inflation, increased public demands are apparent for services and for restoration of recession-related budget cuts," Beals said.

He based his assessment on the survey of cities ranging in size from New York and Los Angeles down to towns of less than 10,000 residents. It was conducted in September and October.

Two-thirds of our group supported a mix of tax increases and spending cuts to attack the deficit, with a slight tilt in that group towards spending cuts," said Beals. The rate of our defense build-up headed the list for budget savings with 74 percent saying they thought it could absorb cuts.

"On the tax side, there was a strong sentiment to reduce the complexity and to curb some of the deductions now allowed, such as oil and gas shelters."

Eighty-one percent of the survey group said overall economic conditions improved in their cities in 1984 and 76 percent said unemployment improved.

Two-thirds said expanding local economies allowed revenues to increase faster than inflation and most said the increases were larger than they anticipated in preparing budgets a year ago.

Despite the general fiscal health, however, two-thirds said there was no improvement in such conditions as homelessness and poverty.

"Most of these problems involve federal assistance programs that have already been cut or restricted substantially and which are now targeted for further cuts or elimination in 1985," said Beals.

"Those proposals would seem to have little justification on the basis of conditions or needs."

Holiday Brings Annual Plunge

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of hearty souls greeted the New Year by hurling their warm flesh into frigid waters from coast to chilly coast in an annual rite popularized by the Polar Bear Club — where no one has cold feet when it comes to a January swim.

In Milwaukee, about 70 Polar Bears clad in bathing suits and other stinky garb shivered and splashed in Lake Michigan on Tuesday as several hundred people in beach chairs watched. The air temperature was 27 degrees, and the water wasn't much warmer.

"We're thrill seekers, I guess, or just plain stupid," said Kevin Honke, 20.

In Vancouver, British Columbia, an estimated 1,700 people raced down a snow-covered beach to plunge into the frigid waters of English Bay in the 64th annual Polar Bear Swim.

This year's swimmers were a little braver than in previous years: The air temperature was 32 degrees, which matched a record set on New Year's in 1929 and 1983. The water was 37 degrees.

The chilling affair was created by Greek immigrant Peter Pantages, who swam the bay daily for 40 years. He founded the Polar Bear Club in 1921 for hearty swimmers who thrived on cold water and began the New Year's Day dip to popularize the health benefits of winter ocean swimming.

Others made winter waves amid the fanfare.

In Williamsburg, Ky., 73-year-old Gant said he was ending his 10-year streak of winter holiday swims in 40-degree water, but not for lack of zeal.

"There's no place to go," he said of his final holiday swim in a private fish pond. "The rivers are polluted. Pollution is going to get us."

In Pittsburgh, about 40 people dove into the Monongahela River in what has become a New Year's Day ritual.

The unusually warm weather gave the mercury up to 57 degrees, but the water was a chilly 44 degrees.

"It's a good way to start a new year," said Karen Charles, a two-year Divers Club veteran of the annual Mon River dip. "The water is nice and not like last year when there was ice floating around."

Reagan Set To Meet Nakasone Today

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, concluding his West Coast visit, is appealing to Japan to take urgent action to open its markets to U.S. goods in an effort to cut America's "staggering" trade deficit.

Winding up his vacation in this desert resort, the president was flying to Los Angeles today for a working luncheon with Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone at the Century Plaza Hotel.

After the three-hour meeting, the president was returning to Washington.

Reagan, meanwhile, in a conference with his top foreign policy advisers, gave final instructions to Secretary of State George Shultz for his meeting next week in Geneva with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

"The president finalized instructions on how Shultz should represent the United States' position ... at the arms control meeting, assistant White House press secretary Mark Weinberg said.

That was the only characterization from the White House of the hour and 45 minute meeting also attended by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and national security adviser Robert McFarlane. Earlier, a senior White House official had said that U.S. strategy for the Geneva meeting was all but set and the conference would focus on possible "Soviet gambits."

Shultz had been reported earlier to be carrying a plan to Reagan under which he would propose to Gromyko two sets of arms control talks, one on offensive weapons and the other on defensive weapons.

Looking ahead to Reagan's talk with Nakasone, a U.S. official said the meeting was occurring "at a time of mounting frustration over our continued inability to gain full access to Japan's market."

telecommunications, electronic equipment, medical supplies and forest products industries - all areas where the United States is competitive with Japanese products.

"We can in those sectors put some ballpark figures," the official said. "They could add up as much as $10 billion of additional exports that should be competitive in the Japanese market."

Nakasone has said he opposes setting specific targets for U.S. imports, calling it managed trade.

But the prime minister said Tuesday that he'll propose that Japanese officials get together with their U.S. counterparts for high-level talks on how to tackle the trade problem.

NAKASONE ARRIVES — Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone salutes an honor guard on his arrival Tuesday at the Los Angeles International Airport. ## Diet Affects Cancer Frequency

NEW YORK (AP) — Cutting food intake by more than half sharply reduced the frequency of cancer in rats exposed to high doses of X-rays, according to the first study of the effect of diet on radiation-induced tumors, researchers say.

The incidence of tumors in the rats exposed to X-rays dropped from 100 percent — in rats who ate their fill — to 31 percent for female rats and 6.7 percent for males when the diet was restricted, Dr. Ludwik Gross writes in the current issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

"This is something completely new," Gross, of the Veterans Administration Medical Center, said in a telephone interview Monday. "I was excited when I saw it. I didn't expect that in such a dramatic way."

Gross and his collaborator, Yolande Dreyfuss, reported that rats allowed to eat at will consumed five or six pellets of rat food a day. Rats on the restricted diet were limited to two pellets a day, they said.

The weight of the rats on the reduced diet fell by about half, but they remained healthy and outlived their counterparts who died of cancer, the researchers said.

The researchers also found that the restricted diet reduced the occurrence of benign tumors, but there is no evidence that restriction of food intake will slow the growth of tumors that have already formed in animals, he said.

Earlier studies, beginning in the 1930s, had demonstrated that restriction of diet in mice would lower cancer risk, but those studies were done with mice that developed tumors on their own, said Gross, an emeritus professor of research medicine at Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York and an expert on cancer viruses.

The new study extends that research to a different species, rats, and to different types of tumors.

"When you show that something happens in more than one species and more than one model, then we have to pay more attention to it," said Dr. Peter Greenwald, director of the division of cancer prevention and control at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md. "The real question is what does that mean for people?"

Besides the trade problem, the leaders were expected to discuss the Shultz-Gromyko talks on Jan. 7-8, which Nakasone supports.

In advance of meeting with the Japanese leader, Reagan said he wouldn't get tough "with a very good friend" on the trade problem. But the U.S. official said the president will nevertheless tell Nakasone that "there's an urgent need for effective action."

"You don't go into a meeting with a friend like that, treating him as an enemy or an adversary, setting up the kind of confrontation in which, frankly, you may satisfy some people's emotional longings, but you don't make progress," said the official.

While Reagan "will be very candid about the problems," the official said, "there's a difference between being candid ... and being threatening, or being abusive, or being confrontational, or making threats that, in fact, amount to shooting yourself in the foot."

The president was unlikely to ask Nakasone to try to reduce the $34 billion trade deficit by a specific amount, but rather planned to encourage the prime minister to increase U.S. imports in specific areas.

In particular, the official said, the administration wanted fewer barriers to U.S. products in the

Suspects Caught
GREENSBORO (AP) — Guilford County sheriff's deputies nabbed two suspects only 11 minutes after a bank robbery in Pleasant Garden, authorities said.

The alarm was sounded at 3:54 p.m. Monday at an NCNB Bank branch. At 4:05 p.m., two men were arrested near the Randolph County line after their car was spotted on Interstate 85. The suspects' names were not released and they were questioned at the Guilford County Jail. Deputies said weapons and money were taken from the men.

Youths Shun TV For Year, Get Their Own Computer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two children who shunned television for a year survived the experience and won a home computer in a wager with their father, but their parents said the bet caused problems because they lost their electronic "babysitter."

"It was as much a transition for us as parents as it was for them as children," said Peggy Penning, 33, whose children missed "Where's the Beef?" and other televised gems but earned better report cards for their year of abstinence.

Her husband Bruce, 29, first proposed the idea to the children as a combination wager and 1984 New Year's resolution.

"I thought it would only last about two or three weeks. But they showed me I was wrong," Penning said, Tuesday, the first day the children were allowed to watch television.

Jerry, 11, and Wendy, 10, said the loss of television gave them more time to read books, do homework and play with friends. It also meant a change in routine for their mother.

"As a mother, you get used to using TV as a babysitter. When kids are bored, you say 'Why don't you go watch TV.' We couldn't say that any more," she said.

The payoff was to be $200 for each child who completed the bet. Penning said his children originally wanted to buy a television set for each of their rooms if they won. "But that didn't make sense to me," he said.

So he upped the ante with the pledge that he would buy them a personal computer if they held out until Dec. 31. The first thing they viewed was Tuesday's Cotton Bowl parade.

"It wasn't that tough," said Jerry. "You just have to have confidence in yourself for the first week. And by the second week, you're so used to it that you can just do it."

The Pennings said they trusted their children not to cheat by watching television at a friend's house or sneaking a peak when they were out of the house.

Jerry's ignorance of Wendy's restaurant's "Where's the Beef?" commercial should serve as proof that the children stuck to the bargain, Penning said.

"Everybody in school was saying 'Where's the beef? Where's the beef?' And I didn't know what they were talking about," Jerry said.

The suburban Mount Lebanon family decided on the wager after Penning felt his children were watching too much television.

"It wasn't uncommon for them to get up in the morning watching it and when I'd get home from work they'd be watching it. And suddenly your life begins to revolve around this box," he said.

Wendy said she used the three to four hours she usually spent watching television doing her homework, playing with her friends and reading books.

"I read some books — like the 'The Wind in the Willows' and 'Charlotte's Web.' I had them for a while, but I never had time to read them because I was watching TV," she said.

"And my grades were better. It's the best report card I ever had," she added. "Last year, I got one 'difficulty' and no 'commendables.' This year I got several 'commendables' and only one 'difficulty.'"

Jerry and Wendy are now on their own to watch what they like in 1985, but Penning said he may have to start "another incentive program" offering computer software as the payoff if the children "start to abuse the box" again.

Thais To Take Protest To U.N. Over Raids By Vietnamese

NONG SAMET, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam shelled Cambodian positions today in two embattled resistance camps along the Thai-Cambodian border, and Thailand said it planned protests at the United Nations of alleged Vietnamese incursions into Thai territory.

The Vietnamese fired for 40 minutes with artillery and mortars on sectors of the Rithisen camp still held by the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, said front commander Lia Ne. He said his men responded with mortar fire and rocket-propelled grenades.

Resistance units defending their foothold at Rithisen suffered nine wounded in the predawn clash, Lia Ne said.

There was no estimate of Vietnamese casualties and no independent verification of the reports.

In the Thai capital, Bangkok, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Thailand plans to protest the latest Vietnamese incursions from Cambodia into its territory to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Senior government officials were awaiting a full report from military field headquarters at the border about the ambush on Thai territory Monday which left six Thai rangers wounded, said the official, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

Details were expected from Maj. Gen. Aroon Srivuthai, deputy commander of the Second Army region, who Tuesday confirmed details of the clash. Some of the wounded rangers were pinned down 24 hours before reinforcements arrived at the scene, in Buriram province about 500 miles northeast of Bangkok.

Another incident Monday involved a Vietnamese unit discovered about a half-mile inside Thailand, according to military sources. The Foreign Ministry official said he had no details on the second incident, in which no Thais were wounded.

Today was the ninth day of combat in and around resistance camps inside Cambodia. Hundreds of Cambodians and Vietnamese have been reported killed or wounded in the new dry season offensive, although no precise figures are available.

The non-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front is allied with the communist Khmer Rouge against the Vietnamese, who invaded Cambodia in late 1978 and set up a pro-Hanoi government. A third resistance group is loyal to former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The International Red Cross said 41 front guerrillas from Rithisen were treated on Monday and Tuesday, with 25 hospitalized and 16 treated and released. This compared with 100 on Sunday, one of the bloodiest single days of combat since the war began five years ago.

Thai intelligence sources at the border town of Aranyaprathet said the Vietnamese also dropped five artillery rounds on the perimeter of Ampil camp, the front's headquarters 12 miles north of Rithisen along the central Thai-Cambodian border.

A Red Cross official said the organization had treated 261 Cambodians from Rithisen since the fighting began.

under siege from March 13, 1954, fell to the Communist Vietnam on May 7 that year, leading to the partition of Vietnam.

The papers indicate that Churchill, despite his friendship with President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was suspicious of the Americans and especially of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

They show Churchill was so alarmed by the U.S. thermonuclear bomb tests at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific 30 years ago that he pressed for talks with the Soviets to try to prevent a nuclear arms race.

Churchill asked if the Americans were seeking a "showdown," said the risk of total war was extreme and added: "Of all the nations involved, the United States would suffer least."

He added in the letter: "I am sure you will not overlook the fact that by having the Anglo-U.S. base in East Anglia, we've made ourselves the nearest and perhaps the only bullseye on the target."

Britain at the time had the less powerful atomic bomb and the

Washington Knocks Off Oklahoma

By The Associated Press
Five teams won bowl games on New Year's Day, but the biggest winner may have been a club that didn't even suit up.

Top-ranked Brigham Young, which finished a 13-0 season with a 24-17 victory over Michigan in the Holiday Bowl Dec. 21, may have locked up college football's national championship when No. 2 Oklahoma was beaten 28-17 by fourth-ranked Washington in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Hugh Millen threw a 12-yard scoring pass to Mark Pattison and Rick Fenney ran six yards for the clinching score as Washington overcame a 17-14 deficit to stake its own claim for No. 1.

"I think anybody who beats a team as strong as Oklahoma deserves to be No. 1," said Coach Don

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, JANUARY 2, 1985

James, whose Huskies finished 11-1.

After the Holiday Bowl, BYU Coach Lavell Edwards said he thought his unbeaten legions should remain No. 1. But Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer impugned BYU's Western Athletic Conference schedule and lobbied heavily for his Sooners to be the national champion. But the Orange Bowl victory Switzer needed didn't materialize.

Things got so bad, in fact, that

Oklahoma was penalized 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct when its pony-drawn covered wagon, the "Sooner Schooner," raced onto the field during a field goal attempt.

"Washington is the best team we played and they deserve to be No. 1," said Switzer. "They're a better football team than Brigham Young. I guarantee you."

Edwards, in Los Angeles for the East-West all-star game, pronounced himself doubly pleased. Not only did Oklahoma's loss appear to solidify the status of BYU, but it also made a winner of James, "my golfing buddy."

Although much of the day's attention was devoted to the Orange Bowl, the other four games were not lacking in importance.

At Dallas, Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie said goodbye to college football by directing eighth-ranked Boston College to a 45-28 thumping of unranked Houston in the Cotton Bowl. Despite a sub-par passing performance — only 13 completions in 37 attempts — Flutie threw for three touchdowns as the Eagles capped a 10-2 season.

Fifth-ranked Nebraska, Switzer's previous choice as the best team in the nation, overcame a 10-0 deficit and wore down No. 11 Louisiana

State 28-10 in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. Craig Sundberg, the game's most valuable player, overcame a bout with intestinal flu to throw for three touchdowns and run for a fourth as Nebraska won for the 10th time in 12 games.

Tim Green threw a pair of touchdown passes and a rampaging Southern California defense reined in the nation's leading rusher as the 18th-ranked Trojans surprised No. 6 Ohio State 20-17 in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. The Buckeyes' Keith Byars ripped off a 50-yard run on his first carry, but thereafter was limited to 59 yards in 22 carries as the Pac-10 beat the Big Ten for the 14th time in 16 Rose Bowls.

No. 13 Miami, Fla., last year's national champion, saw its run of hard luck continue when No. 14 UCLA rallied from a 12-point deficit for a 39-37 triumph in the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz. John Lee's third field goal, a 22-yarder with 51 seconds to play, capped the Bruins' comeback and doomed Miami, 8-5, to a third straight heartbreaking loss. Miami came into the Fiesta off a 42-40 loss to Maryland and a 47-45 setback to Boston College.

The New Year's Day bowls have traditionally answered the question, "Who's No. 1?" but Edwards didn't buy that this season. His Cougars were prevented from taking part in the Jan. 1 festivities because the Western Athletic Conference champion is locked in as host of the Holiday Bowl.

"The point that I tried to make all along was that we were No. 1 going into the bowl game, and we won the

Struggle Remains For First On Final College Grid Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — There is no shortage of candidates for college football's national championship but second-ranked Oklahoma, leader of the campaign to unseat No. 1-ranked Brigham Young, is no longer one of them.

Brigham Young, third-ranked Florida and Washington all did their final campaigning Tuesday night after the fourth-ranked Huskies upset Oklahoma 28-17 in the Orange Bowl.

In fact, the picture may be more unsettled than ever after a month of steady controversy, most of it involving BYU, 13-0, and Oklahoma, now 9-2-1.

When The Associated Press announces the 1984 national champion at 6:30 p.m., EST, today, it remains to be seen whether BYU's 24-17 Holiday Bowl victory over unranked Michigan on Dec. 21 was enough to keep the Cougars in the No. 1 spot they held for the final three weeks of the regular season.

The national champion is determined by total points in balloting by 60 sports writers and sportscasters, with a first-place vote worth 20 points, 19 points for second, etc.

As soon as the Orange Bowl ended, Washington Coach Don James replaced Oklahoma's Barry Switzer as leader of the opposition party.

"We're No. 1. We have my vote," he said. "I think anybody who beats a team as strong as Oklahoma deserves to be No. 1. But we have to respect the poll people."

Indications in surveys taken by the Dallas Morning News, the Miami Herald and NBC-TV in the last few weeks were that the Huskies, who finished 11-1, had virtually no chance to overtake Brigham Young. BYU Coach LaVell Edwards reiterated that he felt his team deserved to stay No. 1 regardless of the Orange Bowl outcome.

"The point I tried to make all along was that we were No. 1 going into the (Holiday) bowl game and we won the bowl game so we should remain No. 1," Edwards told The AP from Palo Alto, Calif., where he will coach in Saturday's East-West Shrine Game. "That's why I didn't put that much stock in this game (the Orange Bowl)."

Jim Herrmann, a BYU defensive tackle who will play in Saturday's East-West game, said: "We're going to get what we deserve. Hopefully, we'll get No. 1. I'm really happy. To tell you the truth, I felt they (Washington) had a real good chance of winning, but I didn't know their offense was that good."

Coach Galen Hall of third-ranked Florida put in a plug for his Gators.

"I still think at the end of the season we were the best team in the nation," he said from his home in

Gainesville, Fla. "We just didn't get a chance to prove it in the bowls."

Florida, 9-1-1 and winner of its last nine games, was banned from postseason play by the Southeastern Conference because of an NCAA investigation into its program.

"It looks like BYU is going to get the vote," Hall told The AP. "We've been out of the focus of people for a month. I just hope they will remember us when they vote."

Switzer, while claiming Oklahoma should have been voted No. 1 if the Sooners had beaten Washington, had said he considered fifth-ranked Nebraska the best team around. But he changed his tune Tuesday night despite the Cornhuskers' 28-10 Sugar Bowl triumph over LSU.

"Washington is the best team we played and they deserve to be No. 1," he said. "They're a better football team than Brigham Young. I guarantee you."

James' Proud Of Huskies

MIAMI (AP) — A jubilant Don James, usually a man who keeps his emotions to himself, uncharacteristically informed his Washington football players he loved them after their Orange Bowl victory over Oklahoma.

Also, with his voice dripping with emotion, he told them they deserved to be national champions.

"We're No. 1," the sweat-streaked James claimed to reporters after his Huskies knocked off the favored Big Eight Conference powerhouse Sooners 28-17. "We have my vote."

After scoring a pair of late fourth-quarter touchdowns to pull out their win over Oklahoma, they walked off the field with their index fingers thrust proudly into the air.

Their fans in the stands steadily chanted, "We're No. 1."

Lonzell Hill, a sophomore reserve split end and son of former National Football League wide receiver J.D.

Hill, held his jersey aloft so the fans could see it. His number is 1.

"I think," James remarked, "anybody who beats a team as strong as Oklahoma deserves to be No. 1. Our kids did a tremendous job

... But he emphasized he will not buy his players national championship rings if 13-0 Brigham Young retains its top ranking in the 1984 college football season's final poll.

"We have to respect the poll people," he stressed. "We have to be judged No. 1 by the polls."

The Huskies went into the Orange Bowl ranked fourth while Oklahoma was rated second.

Washington's offense, which had struggled all season, and its opportunistic defense, which led the nation with 51 regular-season takeaways, were there when it counted.

Trailing 17-14 after Tim Lashar kicked a 35-yard field goal with 8:45 left in the game, the Huskies scored a pair of touchdowns in less than a minute. That allowed Washington to finish with an 11-1 record, its best ever.

With junior Hugh Millen replacing junior Paul Sicuro at quarterback, the Huskies drove 74 yards in seven plays in 3:03 to score a go-ahead touchdown with 5:42 to go. Millen hit Mark Pattison, his former high school teammate and current college roommate, in the left edge of the end zone with a 12-yard pass as Washington took a 21-17 lead. It was the only pass Pattison caught in the game.

Millen said he first thought about attempting to pass to Danny Greene, who had a 29-yard TD reception from Sicuro just 3:08 into the game.

"I looked over at Danny," he said.

"but then I decided it was a shorter pass to Mark and I had a hunch I was better off throwing to him."

After Buster Rhymes of Oklahoma muffed Jeff Jaeger's ensuing kickoff and the ball went out of bounds on the 2-yard line, Huskies' defensive tackle Ron Holmes tipped a pass by Sooners' quarterback Danny Bradley and it was intercepted by linebacker Joe Kelly of Washington at the 10-yard line. Kelly returned it to the 3.

Following a penalty, Washington fullback Rick Fenney scored on a 6-yard burst over left tackle.

Tailback Jacques Robinson ran for 135 yards on 28 carries against the nation's No. 1 rushing defense that surrendered only an average of 68.8 yards per game during the regular season. Robinson scored on a 1-yard run in the opening quarter.

"I feel like we ought to be No. 1," said a happy Robinson.

In a bizarre sidelight, Oklahoma lost a 22-yard field goal by Lashar on the third play of the fourth quarter on an illegal procedure penalty. A horse-drawn covered wagon, a mascot of the Sooners, came onto the field after the three-pointer and officials added 15 more yards for a non-contact foul. Lashar then missed a 42-yard field goal attempt.

"The football field is for football players," James said. "It's not for horses. I felt sorry for the Oklahoma kids but I figured that would cost them 15 yards."

He noted a major key to Washington's success was the blocking by its offensive line. Tony Casillas, Oklahoma's 272-pound junior first-team All-America nose guard, had only two tackles.

Sooners Miss Opportunity

MIAMI (AP) — Oklahoma quarterback Danny Bradley says Coach Barry Switzer told the squad before the 51st annual Orange Bowl that only two percent of the nation's college football players ever get to play on a national championship team.

"When you get a chance, you want to take advantage of it," Bradley said Tuesday night after the second-ranked Sooners dropped out of the race for No. 1 with a 28-17 loss to No. 4 Washington.

"You dream about it and hope everything will turn out well," he added. "But things don't always turn out like you hope."

When pressed, the Sooners' quarterback acknowledged that he and his teammates may have been thinking more about the possibility of winning the title than beating a Washington team which now looms as the only potential threat to Brigham Young's claim to No. 1.

"You'd have to be crazy not to want to play on a national championship team," Bradley said.

"Anything can happen in football. It showed when Kansas beat us (28-11, Oct. 27)," he added. "When you don't take people seriously and don't take care of your business, you get beat."

Washington shattered the Sooners dreams with a 14-point fourth quarter keyed by a ball-hawking defense and an offense that drove 74 yards to erase a 17-14 deficit.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said he felt the game shifted on a crucial play in that drive — a 29-yard completion from Washington quarterback Hugh Millen to wide receiver Danny Greene.

"It was third-and-long (9 yards to go). It was stopped then, it didn't have been different right now," Switzer said.

Still, he said the 9-2-1 Sooners had nothing to be ashamed of.

"We obviously didn't play well. We had too many mistakes, too many turnovers," Switzer said, referring to two lost fumbles and an interception that set up Washington's last touchdown. "The ball game was really closer than the final score, more like 21-17."

Washington pounded Oklahoma's proud defense — ranked first against the run nationally and second overall — for 311 yards, 192 of that on the ground.

"We were prepared for this game but we didn't play as consistently as we have," All-American nose guard Tony Casillas said. "So much was at stake. It's sad when you lose."

"By far Washington is the best team we played this year," he added. "It's kind of hard to swallow. We have a lot of pride, but give them a lot of credit. They did things against us that nobody else could."

Switzer also said he believes Washington is the best team his squad faced.

"They deserve to be No. 1," he said. "They are a better football team than Brigham Young, I guarantee you."

The complexion of the game shifted after a 5-yard illegal procedure penalty nullified a 22-yard field goal that would have given Oklahoma a 17-14 lead less than a minute into the fourth quarter.

An unsportsmanlike conduct penalty was also assessed on the play — costing the Sooners 15 more yards — because the school's pony-drawn "Sooner Schooner" covered wagon headed onto the field after officials indicated Oklahoma had scored.

Tim Lashar's re-kick from 42 yards out was blocked, but Switzer said the unusual chain of events didn't affect the outcome of the game.

He did blast the officiating, however, saying the illegal procedure penalty was called because the Sooners had a player with an ineligible number lined up as an interior lineman. He said it was ruled that the player didn't report to officials when he entered the game.

"They came in before the game and said they weren't going to be strict about that. We've been doing that all year," Switzer said. "Then they call it twice tonight. We've been reporting by waving their arm all year."

"If they are going to strict about it," he added, "then come in and say you're going to be strict."

He also criticized the call on the covered wagon, but emphasized that mistakes and poor field position in the second half — not that penalty — cost the Sooners the game.

"Why don't they tell us before the game not to let the wagon on the field," Switzer said. "That's tradition. We've always done that."

"They (wagon drivers) didn't see a penalty. They saw them signal a field goal and out they went," the Oklahoma coach added.

Edwards Confident Of BYU's Ranking

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — LaVell Edwards, coach of top-ranked Brigham Young University, said he felt certain Washington's 28-17 Orange Bowl victory over No. 2 Oklahoma will ensure BYU wins the national crown.

The final Associated Press poll of the season, the one that picks the AP's national champion, will be released at 6:30 p.m. EST today.

Edwards, whose 13-0 Cougars have had their detractors since rising to the top of the poll, said he would have felt BYU deserved the No. 1 recognition regardless of the outcome of the Huskies-Sooners clash.

"The point that I tried to make all along was that we were No. 1 going into the (Holiday) bowl game and we won the bowl game so we should remain No. 1," he said.

"That's why I didn't put that much stock in this game," said Edwards, who was in California to coach the West team in the East-West Shrine Game Saturday.

He said he was happy for Washington Coach Don James, whose Huskies had been ranked No. 1 early in the season. They entered the New Year's Day clash in Miami as No. 4.

"I've been rooting for them, oh yes," Edwards said. "Don James is my golfing buddy. It's been great. They played super all night long."

Also, "we play Washington in Provo next Sept. 14. This should create that much more attention for our game and, hopefully, get it on national TV," he said.

The BYU coach acknowledged an Oklahoma victory could have threatened the Cougars' grip on No. 1 — at least in the minds of pollsters.

"It would have been tougher, but it wouldn't have changed what my thoughts were," Edwards said.

Blazers Learn From Loss To Philadelphia

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Moral victories don't count in the National Basketball Association.

Otherwise, the Portland Trail Blazers would have one in the win column after Tuesday's 111-106 loss to the Philadelphia 76ers.

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said the 76ers escaped the Blazers in a game he labeled "the start of something big for Portland."

The 76ers led by as many as 17 points in the first half, which ended at 40-51, but the Blazers stormed back behind Kiki Vandeweghe and Jim Paxson in the second half.

Indiana beat Utah 119-117 in the only other NBA game Tuesday.

"The shots by Moses Malone down the stretch were real critical," Cunningham said. "I haven't seen Portland play in a while, but the way they played tonight I can't imagine why they have been losing so much."

The Blazers lost their tenth game in 11 outings, but both Cunningham and Blazer Coach Jack Ramsay predicted things are going to turn around for Portland soon.

"I felt we found a lot of people tonight," Ramsay said, referring to the big team's effort. Portland, in its losing streak, has suffered from a stalled offense. The usually high-scoring Vandeweghe was held to a season-low four points in his last outing at Houston.

Vandeweghe scored 27 points off the bench Tuesday, while Paxson, who only had nine points against Houston, added 21.

But it was Malone, with 30 points, including 12 in the final quarter, who helped the Sixers claim their fifth straight victory and escape Portland's charge.

"We had to have those shots by Malone and he was shooting under real pressure, trying to get the ball over Sam Bowie, who was playing in real tight," Cunningham said.

"On three of those jump shots, Mo had to change the trajectory. He doesn't usually have to do that on his fallaway jumper, but that's a credit to Bowie and a bigger credit to Moses because those shots went in."

Malone was kept at bay under the basket by the Blazer defense as he snared only eight rebounds, the second-lowest total he has had this year. But he went to the corner in the last quarter and hit six jump shots over the guard of the 7-foot-1 Bowie.

"He was incredible," said Portland forward Clyde Drexler.

"He made the money plays; you can't even describe him," said Paxson.

"He's a great player and that's an understatement," Bowie added.

Bowie finished with 12 points and a team-high 11 rebounds. Another rookie, Philadelphia's Charles Barkley, led the Sixers on the boards with 11 to go with his nine points.

Julius Erving scored 27 points, hauled in five rebounds and gave five assists for Philadelphia.

Ramsay called the game a step forward for Portland.

"If they (Philadelphia) didn't have a good game, they wouldn't have beaten us," he said.

Philadelphia, 25-6, is a half-game behind Boston in the Atlantic Division.

The Blazers, 14-18, are eight games behind the Los Angeles Lakers in the Pacific Division.

Pacers 119, Jazz 117

Steve Stipanovich's 14 fourth-quarter points and a pair of free throws by Clark Kellogg with 18 seconds remaining gave visiting Indiana the triumph.

Kellogg and Herb Williams scored 24 points each for Indiana. Stipanovich added 22 for the Pacers.

Utah's Adrian Dantley was the top scorer on the floor with 34 points.

"We can't expect to win when we play only half of a game," said Jazz Coach Frank Layden. "The Pacers deserved the victory. They got the good shots going down to the wire."

Walsh Looking For Early Playoff Lead

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh doesn't plan anything fancy for Sunday's NFC championship game against the Chicago Bears. He'd settle for an old-fashioned early lead.

"If you have an early lead on their offense, it's an advantage," he said. "But to get it is tough because they don't give up many points."

San Francisco opened practice New Year's Day, while Chicago headed for training camp at Santa Rosa after arriving in California Tuesday. Bears Coach Mike Ditka said his troops are "looking forward to getting back to work."

Walsh said he expects to come up with a conservative game plan.

"We probably won't try a lot of different things because you have to deal with their pass rush and charge," he said.

Sophisticated plays may not be in order, he said, figuring the "best attack may be just to go one-on-one."

Chicago's defense is plenty tough, Walsh said, mainly because "their scheme is dramatically different than everyone else."

Other teams don't practice against it much until "they get to the game," he said.

"We can isolate what may hold up against it and, hopefully, we'll be correct."

San Francisco is favored to win and Ditka doesn't mind the underdog role.

"Everyone picks us as the underdog and that seems to get our team fired up," he said in Chicago before leaving for California.

"I like our chances. No one else does, but I do. I love it. I think it's great. We're 9½-point underdogs, aren't we? The German Army couldn't have beaten us with 9½ points."

The Bears wouldn't need a punter against the German Army. Whether Chicago punter Dave Finser will play against the 49ers was undecided Tuesday. Finser had blood drained from his kicking leg, which was injured during the Bears' 23-19 divisional playoff win over the Washington Redskins.

Finser, who also kicks off, hurt his knee making a tackle on the opening kickoff.

bowl game, so we should remain No. 1," he said. "That's why I didn't put that much stock in this (Orange Bowl) game."

While Switzer campaigned against BYU, Edwards' golfing buddy kept a low profile. James did say beforehand that he felt the Orange Bowl winner and BYU should share all of the first-place votes cast by the 60 sports writers and broadcasters on The Associated Press panel. But after the Huskies' strong finish against Oklahoma, James lobbied for the lion's share of those ballots.

"We're No. 1. We have my vote," James said, but added: "We have to respect the poll people. We have to be judged No. 1 by the polls."

Washington started the Orange Bowl as if it meant to blow out Oklahoma. Paul Securo threw a 29-yard TD pass to Danny Greene and Jacques Robinson bolted one yard for another score as the Huskies took a 14-0 first-period lead.

Oklahoma, 9-2-1, got on the board in the second period on Danny Bradley's 1-yard run, then tied the game in dramatic fashion when Bradley and Derrick Shepard combined on a 61-yard scoring pass play only eight seconds before intermission.

An apparent 22-yard field goal by Tim Lasher was wiped out by an illegal procedure penalty and the "Sooner Schooner" call, but Lasher later connected from 35 yards to give Oklahoma its first — and only — lead with 8:45 left in the game.

Millen, benched in favor of Securo after the eighth game of the season, came in to quarterback Washington's fourth-period comeback. He guided the Huskies 74 yards in seven plays after Lasher's field goal, using his 30-yard pass to Danny Greene and Feeney's 27-yard run to set the stage for the scoring toss to Pattison.

Buster Rhymes fumbled the ensuing kickoff out of bounds at the Oklahoma 2-yard line, and more disaster struck on the next play when Bradley's pass from the end zone was tipped by Washington tackle Ron Holmes and intercepted by linebacker Joe Kelly. Feeney scored two plays later to make it 28-17.

Flutie tied the Cotton Bowl record for touchdown passes by throwing for three scores as Boston College took a 31-7 lead in the first half, but the Eagles' running corps saved the day after Houston rallied within 31-28 after three periods. Game MVP Steve Strachan finished with 93 yards and scored two touchdowns, and sidekick Troy Stradford ran for a career-high 198 yards and one score and caught an 8-yard pass from Flutie for another.

"You have to hand it to the offensive line and our running backs," said Flutie. "We had two key drives (in the fourth period) and ate up the clock. The defense held them down until the offense got its act together."

Flutie threw scoring passes of 63 yards to Kelvin Martin, eight yards to Stradford and 13 yards to Gerard Phelan as BC made mince meat of Houston's defense in the early going.

The Cougars, who finished 7-5 as the first unranked team to represent the Southwest Conference in this game in 18 years, were limited to Earl Allen's Cotton Bowl-record 98-yard kickoff return until only 22 seconds remained in the first half. That's when quarterback Gerald Landry passed 15 yards to Larry Shepherd to cut BC's halftime margin to 31-14.

Raymond Tate's 2-yard run and Audrey McMillian's 25-yard interception return brought Houston within three points before BC finally settled the outcome. Strachan scored from four yards out with 5:45 to play and Stradford added insurance with an 18-yard run only 1:08 from the end.

LSU, 8-3-1, blew several opportunities to pad its early 10-0 lead over Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl, and Sundberg admitted that the Huskers "were lucky to be in the game the first half."

Dalton Hilliard's 2-yard run gave the Tigers the 10-point cushion, but Nebraska cut the deficit to 10-7 at halftime when Doug DuBose converted a screen pass from Sundberg into a 31-yard score.

Sundberg's 9-yard scamper gave Nebraska the lead for good at 14-10 and he applied the killing blows with scoring passes of 24 and 17 yards to Todd Frain in the fourth period.

"When we got close, we scored," said Sundberg. "We just have to have more points," said LSU Coach Bill Arnsparger. "One touchdown and field goal is not enough to beat a good football team."

USC Coach Ted Tollner said what his Trojans did best in the Rose Bowl battle with Ohio State "was keep them out of the end zone."

Green gave USC a 17-3 second-period lead with scoring passes of 3 yards to Joe Cormier and 19 yards to Timmie Ware.

Ohio State trailed 20-9 in the fourth period when quarterback Mike Tomczak threw 18 yards to Cris Carter for a touchdown and then ran for the two-point conversion that cut USC's lead to three points.

But Ohio State hopes of pulling out the game ended at the USC 38-yard line when Tomczak's fourth-down pass fell incomplete in the final minute.

"You've got to give their defense credit," said Byars, who wasn't much of a factor after his 50-yard game-opening romp. "They played a fine game. They played 11 guys as

Supporters Set Up Fund

RICHMOND (AP) — Approximately $400,000 has been contributed to a fund to benefit Virginia football coach George Welsh and the school's athletic director, Dick Schultz, says a report in Tuesday's Richmond Times-Dispatch.

According to the newspaper, the money was contributed by prominent members of the Virginia Student Aid Foundation, the school's athletic fund-raising arm.

The money will be placed in an annuity, and the two school officials will have to remain at Virginia for the next five years to receive any of it, the Times-Dispatch said.

one." A 22-yard field goal is usually a routine matter for Lee, the strong-legged UCLA kicking star who booted 29 field goals this season. But he had to give himself a lecture before stroking the Fiesta Bowl game-winner.

"I just told myself, 'Don't be pressured. Don't be afraid to hit the ball hard, just like in practice,'" said Lee, who did just that in capping a 10-play, 63-yard Bruin drive.

UCLA, 9-3, trailed 21-7 in the second period, but took a 22-21 lead at the half on Gaston Green's 72-yard run, two Lee field goals and a safety.

The Bruins built a 36-24 advantage on two scoring passes by quarterback Scott Bono before Miami rallied in the fourth period. The passing of sophomore quarterback Bernie Kosar set up Melvin Bratton's 19-yard run, and that duo clicked from three yards out with 2:58 remaining to give the Hurricanes a short-lived 37-36 lead.

"You have to play defense to be a championship team, and we didn't do that," Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson said after a repeat of the defensive collapses against Maryland and Boston College.

"I think some of our players lost confidence in the second half of the Maryland game and never really recovered."

Fox Deserves Hall Vote

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer

Here's one Hall of Fame vote for Nellie Fox. It would be two, except Joe Morgan doesn't have a ballot. The voting privilege is reserved for veteran members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, whose balloting ends Saturday. Results will be announced next Tuesday.

For Fox, it's the last time around, his 15th and final year of eligibility in the writers' election. If it were up to Morgan, he'd have been in Cooperstown long ago.

"He was one of my idols," Morgan said. "When I came up with Houston, he was a player-coach. I was a 19-year-old kid trying to take his job and he helped me every day."

"In the middle of my rookie year, he called me over and said, 'You know, if you continue to work, you can be great. You have twice the ability I had.' Coming from a guy I cared about so much, that meant a lot to me. I was in awe of him then and I'm still in awe of him now. Every day I put a uniform on, I think of Nellie Fox and the things he taught me."

"The Hall of Fame is for special people who contributed to baseball and made it a better game. A lot of the guys who hit home runs didn't do that. Nellie Fox made it a better game than it was before he came along."

Fox and Morgan were similar types, a couple of little guys who had to scramble for recognition and success because of their size.

"He'd talk to me every day, point out little things on the field, ways I could help the team," Morgan recalled. "He made sure I realized the team was more important than the individual. He'd say, 'If you're not hitting, concentrate on your fielding. Don't let one suffer because of the other. You can always help the team one way or another, always do something to contribute.' He taught me how to be a big leaguer."

Fox was a firebrand, a wisp of a man who played his position with a passion, a wad of chewing tobacco always bulging out of his cheek. He assembled some impressive statistics — 2,663 hits in 19 seasons, a major league record of 796 consecutive games played at second base, a career .288 batting average.

In 1959, when his Chicago White Sox won the pennant, he was the most valuable player.

Do his numbers qualify for election? Well, 67 of the 100 non-pitchers in Cooperstown had fewer hits and 20 had lower batting averages.

A year ago Fox flirted with the Hall of Fame, earning 246 votes, 57 short. If he makes it this time, he will be only the ninth second baseman to win election. Cooperstown has been reserved, it seems, for the glamour guys — sluggers and pitchers. Middle infielders take a back seat, a situation that irritates Morgan.

"If you don't have a lot of home runs, people overlook you," he said. "That's the problem. Sluggers are one dimensional. I see outfielders standing out there, practicing their swings. Middle infielders are leaders, always involved in the game."

Morgan, who won't have to worry about his Hall of Fame credentials, has taken care of the long ball detail with 268 career homers. He also won consecutive MVP awards, the first one in 1975, the year Nellie Fox died at the age of 47 from skin cancer.

Contact Lens Are Changing

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The contact lens industry is changing almost as rapidly as the eye blinks that used to — but no more — mark the contact wearer, say North Carolina optometrists, opticians and manufacturers.

"If I walked away from the industry for three months and came back, I wouldn't recognize it," said Dr. Charles Leighton, a Charlotte optometrist.

The simple hard plastic lenses that used to make wearers squint, stare and blink have given way to comfortable soft lenses that can be worn 30 days without removal, hard but permeable lenses that allow the eye to breathe, bifocal lenses and lenses for astigmatism, he said.

"The next big step is the extended-wear bifocal," said Leighton. "That's the next big money market."

Figures were unavailable on the number of contact lenses sold annually in North Carolina. But with an estimated 1.2 million residents wearing contacts at prices ranging up to $300 for buying and fitting some types, it's big business in the state.

"It's looking good," said Chuck Bedingfield, owner of The Lens Inc. in Charlotte, one of the top three lens makers in the state. "I think the American public is becoming more appearance-conscious. Many people are interested in contacts for their appearance just like they're interested in new high-fashion clothes."

Bedingfield, who began his business in 1962, said his sales of a new type of oxygen-permeable hard lens have risen 200 percent in the last two years.

"Some doctors had major problems with their soft-lens patients who couldn't see as well as with the hard lenses," he said. So the doctors, no longer worried about the tendency of the old hard lenses to distort the eye, have begun prescribing the oxygen-permeable hard lenses, he said.

Bedingfield said the soft lenses are more comfortable at first, but the new hard lenses provide better vision and are comfortable after about five or 10 days.

The new hard lenses not only allow the eye to breathe for more comfort, they also allow the wearer to return to regular eyeglasses without the blurriness caused by the old hard lenses, he said.

Bedingfield declined to give sales or volume figures for his company, but he said he has accounts with about 400 doctors in North Carolina and South Carolina.

He showed how each candy-shaped plastic blank is shaped on a lathe to fit the shape of the eye and the doctor's prescription, then polished and edged in several steps to within a tolerance of four hundredths of a millimeter.

Some soft lenses are ground similarly before water is added to make them pliable, while others are molded, he said.

Eventually, contact wearers may be able to go into a drug store and buy a sixpack of disposable soft lenses at $30 a pack, said Charlie Burt, executive director of the North Carolina Opticians Association.

Burt said he expects a federal ruling after hearings next spring will allow contact wearers to get their prescription from their optometrist or ophthalmologist and bring it to an optician for replacement lenses.

"Our people are just as capable of making those judgments," he said.

"I think it would be a benefit to consumers, particularly if it does become over-the-counter. Lenses would be more accessible at a lower price."

But Leighton said optometrists can better provide the long-term care needed to make sure the lenses fit perfectly.

Wilson Couple Has First Baby

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A Wilson couple are the parents of North Carolina's first 1985 baby, a boy delivered just 44 seconds into the new year.

Joyce Harris delivered her first child at Wilson Memorial Hospital early Tuesday morning. She said Tuesday she had not yet picked a name for the boy.

Mrs. Harris said she and her husband, Shelton, never thought about the baby arriving on New Year's Day because doctors had predicted it would be delivered a few days earlier.

Oath-Taking

RALEIGH (AP) — Judge Earl Vaughn was to be sworn in to the North Carolina Supreme Court today in the Supreme Court chambers in the Justice Building.

Vaughn, who was appointed to the court by Gov. Jim Hunt, replaces retiring Judge J. William Copeland. The swearing-in was to be conducted by Chief Justice Joseph Branch.

State Sees Relatively Calm Period

Down This Year
By The Associated Press

Asheville restaurants encouraged designated drivers, while a Raleigh cab company gave free rides home and hotels in Greensboro offered package deals, including overnight stays, as North Carolina celebrated what police say was one of the quietest New Year's ever.

The 1984 New Year's Eve was the second celebrated in North Carolina with the driving-while-impaired law in effect.

"It was quiet as a mouse. I think everybody was scared to get out on the road," Sgt. H.T. Hollowell of the state Highway Patrol in Greensboro said Tuesday. "That's why I think sometimes the holiday's actually safer than other holidays."

Hollowell said his officers only made one DWI arrest overnight. The only accident occurred when a car struck a cow near Climax early Tuesday.

Many Guilford County revelers decided to stay off the roads by staying in area hotels that offered package deals that included special banquets, dancing and a night's lodging. The Radisson in High Point and Greensboro's Holiday Inn-Four Seasons and Marriott at Regional Airport all reported full occupancy Monday night, and the guests included many Triad residents.

"It was a nice night to work, even though it was New Year's Eve, I've never seen," said Sonny Ishmael, general manager of Bennigan's restaurant in Greensboro.

Only 11 DWI arrests were recorded in Guilford County from 4 p.m. Monday through Tuesday night, said county Magistrate Jim Jobe. "A bad weekend's worse than this," he said. "People were more conscious of drinking and driving on New Year's than they are on a regular weekend."

Restaurant and bar managers in Asheville said they tried to encourage "designated drivers" and that most patrons took the initiative in avoiding drunken driving arrests.

"There was definitely more moderation in drinking, and in particular, champagne sales were down," said Steve Waldron of McGutty's restaurant. "Total liquor sales were definitely down from last year, and I think the DWI law had a lot to do with it."

Asheville Police Chief Fred Hensley said Monday was one of the quietest New Year's Eves he remembered in his 27 years on the force. "We did not make a single DWI arrest," he said.

"I certainly think the law has had an effect, but I also think people are changing their attitudes," Hensley said. "It used to be the 'in thing' to get real drunk on New Year's Eve, but it isn't anymore and people are much more responsible today."

Hensley and other law officers agreed that media coverage of the dangers of driving while drinking and the penalties involved in the Safe Roads Act also contributed to a reduction in drinking drivers.

"Whatever's doing it, thank goodness for it," he said.

In Wake County, the magistrate's office reported that 22 people were charged with DWI during New Year's Eve, compared with 47 for the night a year earlier when the Safe Roads Act had been in effect three months.

Ebony Cab Co. of Raleigh took about 50 to 75 people home in the early morning as part of a free-ride program.

Lt. H.L. Rigsbee of the Durham County Sheriff's Department said six people were charged with DWI in the county.

"It was pretty quiet for a New Year's Eve," he said. "All these tips in the news media — everyone took that to heart."

In the eastern part of the state, Wilmington police reported that five people were charged with DWI there, while no one was charged with drunken driving in Carteret County. Dare County officials reported one DWI arrest during the night.

Two Youths Die In Sand Tunnel

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — The bodies of two Manteo youths were found Tuesday under about 3 feet of sand, which apparently caved in on them as they dug tunnels into sand banks along the Roanoke Sound, officials said.

Woody Gaskill, 13, and Keith Jones, 14, had been playing on the beach on Roanoke Island since about noon Tuesday and were missed by their parents at dinner time, said Manteo Fire Chief Tommy Daniels.

A search along the beach found the boys' shovel and a foot protruding from the sand, Daniels said. The Roanoke Island Rescue Squad found the bodies about 3 feet into a small cave which the boys had been digging into a 20-foot-high sand bank.

Boston TV Station Gobbles Up Competitors' Discards

By BART ZIEGLER
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Boston fans of the soap operas "Search for Tomorrow" and "Another World" don't turn to the area's NBC station for the latest installments of wrecked marriages and lost love. They tune instead to Channel 68, a 7-month-old upstart.

Likewise, viewers who aren't offered "Ripley's Believe It Or Not!" on their ABC station can find it on Channel 68. And when the CBS affiliate pre-empts the Wednesday night network movie, it is usually available on 68.

"To our knowledge we are the only (independent) station — certainly in the top 10 markets — to have affiliations with all three networks," said Cliff Curley, general manager of WQTV, also known as Channel 68.

"This network strategy has not only brought us notoriety and visibility, but credibility," he said. "People are talking about it."

John Reidy, an analyst who follows the television industry for the investment firm of Drexel Burnham Lambert, said the station is breaking some ground.

"I would agree that's a good way to differentiate yourself. It seems like they may have a niche," Reidy said.

He said that as the fourth independent in Boston's highly competitive market, Channel 68 needs a way to stand out. In the October Arbitron ratings, Channel 68 ran last among Boston's independent stations.

The station's strategy should also be beneficial financially, Reidy said, because Channel 68 receives compensation from the networks for each of the shows it airs, and it also can sell commercial spots to local advertisers.

Curley said the fledgling station's programming is made possible by the large number of network shows that Boston's affiliated stations choose not to air.

For example, WBZ, the NBC affiliate, will show about 20 Boston Celtics basketball games in prime time this season and pre-empt much of the network programming scheduled for those hours.

Other programs, such as the soap opera "Another World," run all year on 68 because they are pre-empted on the network affiliate by local talk shows.

In all, Channel 68 picks up about 42 regularly scheduled, 30-minute network programs each week, Curley said. In addition, the station will show about nine network movies in one quarter this year.

NBC spokesman Curt Block said it was not uncommon for the networks to offer independent stations any network programs that affiliates chose not to show.

But Reidy said it was rare for an independent to be affiliated with even one network. He said most independents relied primarily on reruns to fill their schedules and that pre-empted network shows were more plentiful in Boston than in other markets.

Curley certainly was aware of the availability of network shows — he was vice president of programming for WCVB, the ABC affiliate, before jumping to Channel 68 Sept. 1.

He said he thought Channel 68's network agreements would benefit the station because "network programming is usually higher-rated" than the reruns that are the staple of most independents. However, Channel 68 runs its share of syndicated reruns between the network programs.

WBZ program director Barry Schulman is not as impressed with Channel 68's strategy.

"They're not really getting the best of the bunch," Schulman said. "We try to program the Celtics games around the best of the network schedule. We also try to offer the network a delayed broadcast of those programs that have a great deal of viewer interest."

"I don't know how you build an audience for an independent station when you get an episode of 'Miami Vice' one week and an episode of

'Hunter' another. There's no consistency."

Schulman also questioned the network's policy of offering pre-empted shows to unaffiliated stations. "I don't know what's to be gained by NBC shows showing up on these independents," he said.

Curley conceded his programming "doesn't benefit the networks' stations at all. They are all not very happy we are doing it."

But he said ABC, CBS and NBC benefit by being able to charge national advertisers for a portion of Boston's viewers whether a show is broadcast on an affiliate or on an independent. And he noted local advertisers are receptive to his programming because they are familiar with the network offerings.

Songwriter Leo Robin Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leo Robin, who won an Academy Award for Bob Hope's trademark song "Thanks for the Memories," died of heart failure, a family spokeswoman said. He was 84.

Robin, who won his Oscar for Hope's 1938 movie, "The Big Broadcast of 1938," had entered the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital in Calabasas for heart problems, spokeswoman Harriet Smith said Tuesday.

He died there Saturday.

Robin collaborated with such songwriters as Ralph Rainger, Jerome Kern, Jule Styne, Richard Whiting and Vincent Youmans on some of the nation's most popular songs.

Among them were "Louise," made memorable by Maurice

Chevalier; "Love in Bloom," Jack Benny's theme; "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend" from "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes"; and "Beyond the Blue Horizon."

For 10 years, Robin and Rainger were mainstays at Paramount Pictures in the 1930s and 1940s. For Paramount and other studios, Robin did the scores for more than 30 movies, including "Little Miss Marker," "The Big Broadcast" series of 1935, 1937 and 1938, "Waikiki Wedding," "Casbah," "Tales of Manhattan" and "My Sister Eileen."

Traffic Accidents Leave 15 Dead For New Year Period

By The Associated Press

Three people have died on North Carolina roads in 1985, and that's three more than had been killed in traffic accidents on this same date last year, the state Highway Patrol said.

No traffic fatalities were reported on the first two days of 1984, the patrol said Wednesday.

Fifteen people were victims of traffic accidents during the long New Year's weekend, the patrol said. The 1984 total for the year is 1,407, 165 more than in 1983.

The 15 deaths are five more than the North Carolina State Motor Club had predicted for the holiday weekend, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Tuesday.

The New Year's Day victims included William Earl Purvis, 39, of Hassell, who died at 1:50 p.m. in Martin County on a state road north of Robersonville. Troopers said Purvis was driving at high speed when his car hit a culvert and overturned twice, throwing him from the vehicle.

Herbert Louis Hales, 55, of Kenly, was walking in the road when he was hit by a car and killed at 2 a.m. Tuesday in Wilson County at the intersection of U.S. 301 and N.C. 581.

Also Tuesday, Donna C. Nipko, 38, of Clayton, died at 2 p.m. in Johnston County on a state road two miles west of her hometown after she jumped from the running board of a truck and was run over by the rear wheels.

Adolf Hank, 54, of Hartford, Conn., was killed at 6:46 p.m. Sunday on Interstate 95 in Lumberton when a vehicle struck his car from behind, troopers said. Hank's car then hit a guardrail and rolled down an embankment, throwing Hank from the car. The accident was investigated by the Lumberton Police Department.

Also killed was a 16-year-old who died when the car he was driving on the wrong side of the road without lights hit another car head-on, troopers said. James Allen Hair of Linden died at 11:55 p.m. Saturday about nine miles north of Fayetteville, troopers said.

Willie Webb, 57, of Hope Mills, was killed at 7:50 p.m. Monday on N.C. 59 in Cumberland County when he walked into the path of a car, troopers said.

Benjamin Martin Keith III, 39, of Fayetteville died Sunday when his car turned into the path of another vehicle on a rural road three miles west of Fayetteville.

John Kenneth Wright, 28, of Cornelius died Sunday when his car hit a stop sign and struck a tree on N.C. 115 nine miles of Charlotte.

Raymond Leroy Bryant, 22, of Vanceboro, was killed when his car went through a bridge railing SR 1478 and overturned in a creek. The accident occurred five miles west of Vanceboro Saturday about 4:40 p.m.

Drexel James Grant, 31, of Glen Alpine, died at 9:40 a.m. Sunday when his car ran off the road and struck a utility pole and a tree on N.C. 181 two miles north of Morganton.

Rance Dean Richey, 19, and Gregory Scott Lomax, 18, both of Henderson, died about 11:30 p.m. Friday when the car they were driving ran off SR 1326 five miles north of Henderson and struck a tree.

Christopher Dean Russell, 18, of West End, died about 11:56 p.m. Friday when he ran a stop sign in Southern Pines and struck another vehicle.

Stephanie Janelle Griffin, 8, of Louisburg, ran into the path of a vehicle on U.S. 401 four miles south of Louisburg around 2:15 p.m. Saturday.

Vennie Brown Davis, 43, of Millers Creek, was struck by a car that was passing a second vehicle as she walked on N.C. 18 about 5.5 miles south of Wilkesboro about 7:20 p.m. Friday.

FIRST — Carl R. Fox, 31, takes the oath of office as district attorney for Orange and Chatham counties in a ceremony at the Chatham County Courthouse this week. Fox became the state's first black district attorney. An assistant district attorney since 1978, he succeeds Wade Barber Jr., who resigned to enter private law practice. (AP Laserphoto)

Publisher, Wife Are Found Dead

TUXEDO, N.C. (AP) — Sheriff's officials are calling the deaths of a newspaper publisher, who was found in a hotel room with his wrists slit, and his wife, whose body was found stuffed in a trash can, a murder-suicide.

"It appears we have a homicide-suicide," Henderson County Sheriff's Captain George Irwin said of the deaths of Newton Jerue Babb, 49, and his wife, Christine Cogburn Babb, 31.

Mrs. Babb's body was found about 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Lake Summit cottage she shared with her husband in Tuxedo near the North Carolina-South Carolina border, said Randy Case, an investigator with the Henderson County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff's officials said the couple's address was listed as Flat Rock in Henderson County.

Spartanburg County, S.C., Coroner Steve Lanford said Babb's body was found in a room at the Holiday Inn at interstates 85 and 26 in Spartanburg about 11 a.m. Monday. He said when Babb failed to check out, the manager used a master key to open the locked room door.

Lanford said Babb checked into the hotel at 3 a.m. Monday.

The coroner said he apparently cut his wrists twice and the inside of his left arm at the elbow once about 4:30 a.m.

He died from hypovolemic shock occurring from a massive blood loss and severed arteries and veins, Lanford said.

Sheriff's officials said they began searching for Mrs. Babb early Tuesday after her father, Max Cogburn, of Asheville, reported his daughter had not visited her parents New Year's Eve as she had done in the past.

Caretakers searching the lake cottage found Mrs. Babb's body in a trash can. An autopsy was performed at Margaret Pardee Hospital in Hendersonville, but the pathologist there declined to release the results until Wednesday morning.

Babb was co-founder and chairman of Community Newspapers Inc., a company which operates 41 non-daily newspapers in North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Georgia and Tennessee. He was former national advertising manager of the Spartanburg Herald-Journal.

Babb's North Carolina holdings included weekly newspapers in Spruce Pine, Black Mountain, Highlands, Franklin, Bryson City, Andrews, Cashiers, Hayesville, Robbinsville and Murphy.

In May 1984, Mrs. Babb was elected president of Community Newspapers. She began working for the newspaper chain in 1980 as corporate controller and assistant corporate secretary.

County Boards Say Tax Cuts Will Hurt

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Association of County Commissioners plans to fight some of Gov.-elect Jim Martin's tax-cut proposals unless the state provides millions of dollars to compensate counties for the revenues they stand to lose from the cuts.

Martin, who was a Mecklenburg County commissioner in the late 1960s, has called for repealing taxes on business inventories and intangible assets such as stocks and bonds. Proceeds from those taxes go to counties and cities and will total about $291 million in 1984-85, the commissioners' group says.

The group's board of directors has urged the full organization to oppose the inventory tax cut but to support a state income tax credit for local taxes paid on business inventories. The directors also want the association to oppose repeal of the intangibles tax "unless the tax is replaced with (state) revenues having a growth factor equal to the present intangibles tax (growth rate)."

The two proposals would require the state, not the counties and cities, to absorb the revenue losses that would result from Martin's proposed tax cuts.

The association's full membership will vote on the proposals at a Legislative Goals Conference in High Point Jan. 16-17. The proposals have been adopted by a study committee as well as the board of directors.

Martin, who was president of the commissioners' group in 1970-71, has agreed that the state should compensate counties and cities for any revenue losses stemming from the tax cuts. But he has not endorsed some of the association's specific proposals for providing that compensation.

Association President James A. Weathers, a Franklin County commissioner, said the state's 100 counties face more than $2 billion in school facility needs.

"How we are going to accomplish that, and (have) our state Legislature and our governor reduce our revenues substantially, is beyond me," Weathers said.

"We are absolutely not anti-Mr. Martin," Weathers said. But he said that the association's leaders want to be on record as advocating specific means of passing the tax-cut burden to the state rather than to counties.

Scientific Research, Development May Lack For 1985 Funds

An AP News Analysis
By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Science may not find the federal government, which funds almost half of the research and development in the United States each year, as generous in the coming years as in the past.
 The nation's science and technology enterprises, which fuel future hopes and advances in everything from medicine to business, are expected to face both new budgetary and organizational challenges in 1985.
 There are proposals afoot to reorganize federal scientific efforts, perhaps going as far as creating a new Cabinet position that would consolidate a number of well-known agencies and departments.

 During the Reagan administration's last term, support for research — non-military as well as military — generally increased while other domestic programs were either pared or chopped in attempts to hold down federal spending.
 But with pressure mounting for spending cuts and budget freezes to reduce the huge federal deficit, insiders say the administration's past generosity to research may be curtailed somewhat.
 Dr. George A. Keyworth, II, President Reagan's science adviser, says the administration will continue to give priority to research, more applied technology and cooperation with private industry as a key to revitalizing American competitiveness with the rest of the world.

 "If you've followed the development and implementation of science and technology policy during the Reagan administration, they you already know what the main themes of science policy would be in a second Reagan administration," Keyworth said recently.
 These themes include, he said, continued growth in supporting basic research; more cooperative research between the government or universities and private industry; less involvement of the government in programs to develop existing technology; and more research on issues of national security, including the administration's "Star Wars" antimissile defense proposal.

 But even with these goals, Keyworth has not said if the government will be able to continue to invest more than $50 billion a year into all kinds of research and development at a time when budget-cutters are trying to whittle billion of dollars from the projected deficit.

Aside from money, Congress and scientists also may be debating some major organizational changes in federal research, including a proposal from a presidential commission to create a Department of Science and Technology.
 The Commission on Industrial Competitiveness recently decided to make establishing the new department one of its chief recommendations when it reports to Reagan in January.
 The group, mostly made up of chief executives of major corporations, suggests including almost all civilian research agencies and programs, except for the Agriculture Department, under one department with an annual budget of about $15 billion.
 The proposed department would include the National Science Foundation, the National Institutes of Health, the National Bureau of Standards, the U.S. Geological Survey, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and much of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Energy Department.

 Success of the proposal, which has the support of Keyworth and some White House aides, would largely depend upon getting the enthusiastic backing of the president and key congressional committees which oversee scientific agencies.
 The White House Office of Management and Budget is said to be reluctant to create another Cabinet department and some heads of the agencies involved are also known to be cool to the idea.
 Proponents say having all research under one department would assure better coordination of programs and improved responsiveness to policy directives. Opponents say such a move would diminish the importance of certain agencies and decrease the influence of outside supporters of others, such as the lobby groups who constantly get budget increases for the National Institutes of Health.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Warren E. Leary covers science and technology issues for The Associated Press.

'Star Of Wonder' Origin Debated

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — That "star of wonder" that guided the wise men nearly two thousand years ago continues to burn brightly in human thought and memory, despite disagreement over the actual source of the unearthly light.
 A nova, comet, conjunction of stars and other possibilities have been suggested by scientists as explanations for the star.
 And many people think the light is simply one of divine origin.
 The Bible is direct in its approach, set forth in Matthew's gospel: "Behold, there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying, 'Where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the East, and are come to worship him.'"
 But no further description of the star is offered, an omission which has led scientists to spend countless time and energy discussing what natural phenomenon could have accounted for the light seen in the sky that night.

Astrology was very popular at the time of the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem, and astrologers often sought explanations for earthly events in the movements of the stars.
 The actual birth of Jesus is believed to have occurred between 3 B.C. and 7 B.C., so celestial events during that period have been studied for something that might have seemed special.
 LeRoy Doggett of the U.S. Naval Observatory reports that the bright planets Venus and Jupiter appeared close together in 3 B.C. and another conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn occurred in 7 B.C.

Also in 3 B.C., Jupiter appeared close to the star Regulus, Doggett noted, an event which might have spurred speculation by astrologers since Jupiter was known then as the King Planet.
 Regulus was also associated with Kings, and it was the brightest star in the constellation Leo, which was the astrological sign for the ancient tribe of Judah in Israel.

Thus, this combination could have been interpreted as meaning a king was to be born among the Jews.
 The same conjunction has occurred at other times, however, Doggett noted, without stimulating the same sort of interest.
 A nova, or exploding star, has been suggested by other scientists as a possible explanation for the star of Bethlehem.
 Chinese records indicate a nova occurred in 5 B.C., and perhaps that was the light which guided the Magi.

 A painting found in a catacomb in Rome shows the constellation Aquila with what appears to be an extra star. A nova, flaring up and disappearing, could account for that.

 Comets have also been suggested. Halley's comet made an appearance in 12 B.C., and other comet sightings were reported in both 4 B.C. and 5 B.C.

At any rate, no major astronomical sights are scheduled for this Christmas. The planets Mercury and Uranus will be close together on Dec. 26, but neither is unusually bright.

Program Aimed At Drunken Driving

By JENNIFER JONES
Associated Press Writer
 OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Motorists convicted of drunken driving in Midwest City can choose jail and a fine or the chance to announce the arrest to anyone who can read.
 For a first offense, drivers can clear their records by plastering a bumper sticker on their cars that reads: "I am a convicted DWI-DUI driver in Midwest City Municipal Court. Any erratic driving should be reported to the Midwest City Police Department."
 The alternative is up to 90 days in jail and a $300 fine, said Midwest City police Capt. Don Ferguson. He said the program, which began Saturday in the Oklahoma City suburb, will hold up to court challenges because it is an agreement between the defendant and the judge.
 "We know other programs and approaches don't work," Ferguson said. "We wanted to try something new and different to try and reduce the number of drunk and drinking drivers, and hopefully even save some lives. That's what it's all about."
 Drivers who choose the bumper sticker must keep it on the car for six months. It is affixed at the police station, where the mileage is checked at the start and end of the period to ensure drivers don't just keep the car in a garage, Ferguson said.
 "They must drive their car as they would normally," he said.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JAN. 3, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you can carry through with the down-to-earth decisions made the past two days while during the afternoon you can get some interesting new ideas in operation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The morning and afternoon are best for handling practical affairs and gaining a new perspective where your job is concerned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Go after your personal aims in the morning, then steer clear of an argumentative person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some thoughtful activity where someone you love is concerned is fine during the day, but steer clear of an irate higher-up tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Gain good advice from a friend during the day hours and follow it for good results, later steer clear of a demanding person.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get out in the business world early and accomplish a good deal, but be sure to pay bills in the evening. A bigwig could do you favors.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Pursue whatever will bring greater happiness to the one you love during the daytime, and forget boring tasks in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do whatever will bring greater happiness to the one you love during daytime, and forget boring tasks in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go to those persons who are of a practical turn of mind and get backing for some worthwhile plan you have.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to go ahead with that work you began and gain the benefits you need now. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day to get into amusements that you like and relieve tensions and gain happiness. Get wardrobe in better order.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Complete that work around your home that will make it more functional and attractive during the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan now for the days ahead by garnering the information you need in order to ameliorate conditions around you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have every chance to make quite a fortune provided the right kind of education is accorded early in life. Teach not to take many risks that could jeopardize the good Fate in this chart, and then later years will be abundant and much good done with the fortune acquired.

Diplomat Dies In Alberta

OTTAWA (AP) — Chester Ronning, a veteran Canadian diplomat and Far East expert who led a mission to Vietnam in 1966 aimed at initiating peace talks, died Monday at a Camrose, Alberta, nursing home. He was 90.

Ronning served as first secretary to the Canadian Embassy in Chungking, one of many assignments in the Orient; as minister to Iceland and ambassador to Norway; as high commissioner to India between 1957 and 1964; and as a delegate to the United Nations. He retired in 1965, but a year later was called to head a mission to Hanoi and Saigon. His proposals for opening peace talks were not accepted by President Lyndon Johnson's administration.

Hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS newsman Mike Wallace is under observation in a hospital, suffering from the exhaustion of "an extensive work and travel schedule," the network said. Wallace, 66, was admitted to Lenox Hill Hospital on Sunday morning.

Criticism Aimed At UVA Honor Code

By MICHAEL BASS
 Associated Press Writer
 CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The University of Virginia's 142-year-old honor system, criticized in recent years for its harshness, now is under fire for being too lenient.

It's the latest in a series of attacks on the school's student-run honor code. Despite lawsuits, protests and referendums, the code survives as one of the country's strongest school honor systems.

"No one looks for controversy," said Mark Baughan, a university senior and chairman of the honor committee. "But every four or five years, when we get a new student generation we're going to get something that blows up."

The most recent uproar is over sophomore Olden Polynice, a 6-foot-11 center on the school's basketball team. Polynice was acquitted last month of violating the honor code even though he reportedly admitted plagiarizing another student's paper.

Critics contended that Polynice was acquitted because of his value to the basketball team, which last year made it as far as the semi-finals of the NCAA playoffs. The uproar prompted him to take a 10-day leave from the team.

A few months earlier, former Student Council officer Rudy Beverly was convicted in criminal court of embezzling more than $3,000 in council funds. Nevertheless, he was acquitted of an honor code violation of stealing.

 "I think it's no secret that I have been concerned about the health of the honor system for several years," said university President Frank Hereford. "Frankly, I think this parallels what's happening in our whole society with regard to the willingness of people in this country ... to be more lenient."

One potential donor to a $132 million university fund-raising campaign backed out, citing his disappointment with the Polynice case. University officials are concerned that others may follow.

"It's lucky this campaign is over already, because I think that's exactly what's going to happen, and it's going to hurt the student aid foundation," said T. Braxton Woody, a retired dean who for many years gave the speech introducing incoming freshmen to the honor system.

The Honor Committee is composed of two students elected from the College of Arts & Sciences and one elected from each of the university's nine other schools. Only students can bring accusations, only students sit on trial panels, only students act as attorneys during honor trials.

Trial panels consist either of Honor Committee members or a mixture of Honor Committee members and student jurors chosen at random. The jury option, instituted in 1980, is one of the system's newest features.

"If you've got a good working honor system, it depends upon the willingness of every student to accuse anyone he considers guilty," said Woody, who was a U.Va. freshman in 1919.

"I understand now that students just won't accuse anybody. Hell, that used to be an honor offense in itself, in my day," he added.

"The alumni are incensed at what they have heard," Baughan said. "They don't realize how much the system has evolved."

Academic dishonesty is still vigorously prosecuted, but social indiscretions such as cheating at cards or lying about one's age at a liquor store generally go unpunished.

In the 1970s, the Honor Committee added a "reprehensibility" clause — lying, cheating or stealing would be considered honor offenses only if the act were reprehensible enough to warrant permanent dismissal.

Last year, the committee allowed such mitigating circumstances as illness or stress to be considered in determining reprehensibility. Both Beverly and Polynice used mitigating circumstances in their defense.

The committee eliminated reprehensibility in the fall after Polynice was accused but before his trial. President Hereford said he is glad they did.

Coca-Cola Challenges Name Change

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (AP) — Coke-Is-It, who changed his name from Frederick Koch because his name kept mispronouncing it, says he's not sure his new name is worth a fight with the Coca-Cola Co., which went to court over its company slogan.

"When you buck a big corporation, you can find yourself in the middle of a big financial commitment. I want to make sure I am ready to do this before I get caught in the middle without the finances to complete it," Coke-Is-It, 54, said Monday.

The Atlanta-based soft drink giant filed an appeal Dec. 21 in Windham County Superior Court to prevent Coke-Is-It from continuing to use its slogan as his legal name.

The company is seeking a stay to prevent the Guilford man from using the name until the appeal is heard, said Coca-Cola lawyer Robert McKearin. A hearing on the appeal could be up to a year away, said a court spokesman.

Coke-Is-It is the father of Bill Koch, a U.S. Olympic Nordic skier whose name was often mispronounced during telecasts of the 1980 and 1984 Winter Olympics.

"If you had a name like mine, you'd know how many times it gets mispronounced," Coke-Is-It said. "There is now no question over how you pronounce my name."

In the early 1970s, Australia was a major force in international competition. Now they have a new young team, and if their performance in the recent World Team Olympiad is any guide, they will have to be reckoned with in the future.

One of the Australian pairs, Paul Marston and Steve Burgess, play an artificial system that includes an opening bid of one heart to show a hand of 0-7 points, regardless of distribution. That accounts for what might otherwise appear to be a misprint in this column. Thereafter the auction was normal. The opening bid was ignored so, in effect, South opened with a strong no trump and ended in four spades after a Stayman sequence.

West led the five of diamonds—almost surely a singleton. Declarer was faced with the problem of two trump losers and perhaps two heart losers. He played the jack of diamonds from dummy, which was allowed to hold. After long thought, he continued with a diamond to the queen. Now it was West's turn to go into the tank.

He found the best defense—ruff the diamond and exit with a trump. Declarer won the ace, came to hand with the ace of clubs and sluffed a heart on the king of clubs. Then he exited with a spade.

When the missing spade honors crashed, the contract was home. Dummy's diamond suit would be set up after the ace was cashed, and club ruffs would serve as entries to the board.

U.S. To Ease Sales Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controls on personal computer exports to Soviet-bloc nations will be eased but rules on the sales of more sophisticated equipment may be tightened, according to Commerce Department officials.

The new rules will allow such companies as Apple Computers and International Business Machines Corp. to sell personal computers to the Soviet Union and other communist countries.

Lionel H. Olmer, Commerce under secretary for international trade, said in a telephone interview Monday that the new rules would probably be published later this week.

"It is simply a paperwork process now," he said. "All of the relevant agencies have signed off on them."

Olmer said the changes would involve "millions and millions of dollars of volume per month" for U.S. firms and computer companies in Japan and Western Europe as well.

The change allowing sales of less sophisticated personal computers to communist countries reflected agreements by the 15-nation Coordinating Committee on Strategic Exports, known as Cocom, Olmer said.

Cocom, whose members include the NATO allies and Japan, makes sure that member countries have a single policy on which technologies should be withheld from the Soviet bloc and China.

The liberalized rules governing such personal computers as the Commodore 64, the Apple IIe and the Radio Shack Model 100 represent a recognition that such machines would not pose a military threat should they fall into Soviet hands, officials said.

The tougher requirements for more sophisticated equipment will restrict the sales of such high-level computers as Apple's Macintosh and the IBM PC-AT.

Majority Endorse School Prayer

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Six of 10 Americans in a Media General-Associated Press poll said they would favor a constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools, but less than half said they went to church often.

The nationwide telephone survey of 1,476 Americans also said nearly seven of 10 Americans had no doubts about the existence of God. In addition, half of those surveyed said they would oppose a constitutional amendment to further restrict legal abortions.

The respondents were asked, "Do you support or oppose a constitutional amendment to allow organized prayer in public schools?" and 61 percent said they would support it, 31 percent said they would oppose it and 8 percent had no opinion.

Asked the same question about a constitutional amendment to further restrict legal abortions, 50 percent said they would oppose it, 35 percent said they would support it and 15 percent had no opinion.

When asked how often they attended the church of their choice, 46 percent said often, 22 percent said sometimes, 26 percent said hardly ever and 5 percent said they had no church of choice. One percent didn't answer.

The U.S. Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether state laws allowing public schools to set aside daily moments of silence for students may mention "prayer" as one possible activity during the silence.

At least 23 states have moment of silence laws, but not all of them mention prayer. Numerous political candidates last year, including President Reagan, called for a return of organized prayer in public schools. The court, which will announce its decision by July, was sharply divided in arguments last month.

The respondents in the Media General-AP poll also were asked which of several statements came closest to their beliefs about God. Sixty-nine percent chose "I know God really exists and I have no doubts about it." Only 3 percent chose "I don't know whether there is a God, and I don't believe there is any way to find out."

Twelve percent chose "While I have my doubts, I feel that I do believe in God"; 8 percent chose "I don't believe in a personal God, but I do believe in a higher power of some kind"; and 5 percent chose "I find myself believing in God some of the time, but not at other times." Three percent didn't answer or had no opinion.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,476 adults across the country Nov. 12-19. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for several additional reasons. Differences in exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Media General Inc., a communications company with headquarters in Richmond, Va., publishes the Richmond Times-Dispatch, the Richmond News Leader, the Tampa Tribune, the Winston-Salem Journal and the Winston-Salem Sentinel. The company's television stations are WXFL in Tampa, Fla., WCBD in Charleston, S.C., and WJKS in Jacksonville, Fla.

A New Reporter

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Jennings Randolph will go back 60 years to his roots when he retires this month and returns to write for a weekly newspaper where he worked at the age of 22.

"I didn't realize it's been that long," the 82-year-old Randolph said Monday of his new job on The New West Virginia Review, which was revived last fall after a 36-year publishing hiatus.

Randolph will contribute feature stories to the newspaper after his retirement on Jan. 14, he said from Houston where he went to watch West Virginia University play in Monday night's Bluebonnet Bowl.

During his one year at the Review 60 years ago, he said, he "wrote two or three articles for each issue. I wrote articles on all the colleges in the state. I sold advertising and took subscriptions, too."

The Review closed in the late 1920s because of a newsprint shortage, said Jim Comstock, the paper's publisher.
