

Viet Forces Stage Major Attack In Cambodia

BAN SANGAE, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese forces drove their way into the headquarters of a Cambodian resistance group today, pounding the camp with artillery and breaching its defenses with tanks and infantrymen, resistance officers said.

Hand-to-hand combat was reported continuing inside Ampil camp as the Vietnamese sought to overrun the base of the non-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front. Front officers interviewed in the Thai village of Ban Sangae, directly across the border from the battlefield, said about half the camp has been seized.

The assault coincided with sixth anniversary celebrations of the Vietnamese invasion force's entry into Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, to install a pro-Hanoi government and end the brutal reign of the communist Khmer Rouge.

Thai army troops, tanks and armored personnel carriers were dispatched to the frontier opposite Ampil, and 4,800 residents of five Thai border villages were evacuated as some shells from the battle landed inside Thai territory.

The sounds of battle could be clearly heard from Ban Sangae and columns of smoke rose into the sky.

The International Committee of the Red Cross reported that 22 wounded Cambodians from Ampil had been evacuated into Thailand and rushed to the Red Cross border hospital at Khao-i-Dang.

Ampil is close to the Thai border and about 175 miles east of Bangkok. Until today, it had been the only major Khmer Liberation Front camp spared attack thus far in Vietnam's current dry season offensive.

Guerrillas officers and Thai military at the frontier said the Vietnamese first raked Ampil's front line defenses with intense howitzer and tank fire, starting at 5 a.m. Next came multi-pronged ground assaults along the five-mile defense arc.

Vietnamese forces were in sections of the camp by 8:30 a.m., according to guerrilla radio communications overheard by journalists. Close-range combat was reported as Ampil's estimated 5,000 defenders tried to prevent complete Vietnamese victory.

Thai officers also reported shelling attacks against two other Front camps near the Thai-Cambodian border — Nong Chan and Rithisen — and speculated the Vietnamese were trying to prevent the guerrillas from sending reinforcements from these camps to Ampil.

Some guerrillas said the Vietnamese used eight Soviet-supplied T-54 tanks in the attack on Ampil and claimed that three were crippled by the defenders. Military sources in Bangkok said as many as 20 tanks may have been involved.

A meeting was held in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, where President Heng Samrin claimed major setbacks had been inflicted on the Cambodian resistance.

On Jan. 7, 1979, Vietnamese forces entered Phnom Penh to end the rule of the Khmer Rouge, whose ruthless collectivization drive killed an estimated 3 million people. The Khmer Rouge now fight in a loose resistance coalition with the Khmer Liberation Front and a second non-communist faction loyal to former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Thai Army spokesman Maj. Gen. Naruedol Dejrpradiyuth told The Associated Press the Vietnamese overran the Khmer Rouge camp of Chong Bok on Sunday and penetrated about 1.2 miles into Thailand while pursuing the defenders.

Chong Bok is in the area where the Thai, Cambodian and Laotian borders meet.

The army spokesman said that Thai troops were sent to the area to repulse the Vietnamese.

Ampil's 23,500 civilians evacuated the camp more than a week ago to a U.N.-prepared evacuation site about 2.5 miles inside Thailand.

Surgeons Remove Portion Of Margaret's Left Lung

LONDON (AP) — Doctors removed a small portion of the left lung of Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth II's younger sister, but it proved "innocent," the princess' office announced today.

At Buckingham Palace, a spokesman said other members of the royal family "will be very relieved at the news." No one would say specifically what was meant by the word "innocent."

"Her condition is satisfactory, and it's expected she will leave hospital within the week," the statement said without elaboration.

The princess was admitted to Brompton Hospital in West London on Saturday and doctors had said she was undergoing tests. A statement said the surgery was performed there on Sunday.

The spokeswoman who read the statement to The Associated Press refused to say what prompted the surgery or whether the tests on the removed lung section were made because of a growth.

Published reports said Margaret, 54, a heavy smoker, had been suffering from chest pains and difficulty in breathing.

The British monarch's sister was last reported hospitalized in 1978 suffering from hepatitis and gastroenteritis. She also has had repeated bouts of bronchitis and at least one known case of pneumonia.

Newspapers on Sunday linked the tests at Brompton Hospital — which specializes in heart and lung complaints — to the princess' smoking habit, reportedly of more than 40 cigarettes a day. She is often photographed at parties with a tortoise-shell cigarette holder in her right hand.

Several newspapers reported that she was taken Saturday afternoon by limousine from her home at Kensington Palace in London the short distance to the hospital, where she entered through a tradesman's entrance.

After the surgery, the hospital and Kensington Palace issued a statement, signed by Dr. John Batten, the queen's physician, and senior hospital surgeon Dr. Matthias Paneth, which read:

"Princess Margaret underwent an operation at the Brompton Hospital yesterday for the removal of a small area of her left lung which proved to be innocent. Her condition is satisfactory and it's expected that she will leave hospital within the week."

The princess married photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, now Lord Snowdon, in 1960. They had two children and were divorced in 1978.

Snowdon, speaking from his London home, said: "I am very relieved that everything went all right and that it was not something serious. I hope the princess will be back home very soon."

Princess Margaret's two children, Viscount Linley and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, were both in Venice, Italy, on an educational trip with fellow students. They were due to return to London tonight as planned.

Investigator Killed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte's special investigator for government corruption was assassinated and three bystanders killed by a gunman identified as a member of a far-right opposition party.

The assailant opened fire on Pedro Rene Yanes, one of Duarte's top political troubleshooters, as Yanes stepped into a street in a northeastern village late Saturday night to buy a soft drink, according to an official of Duarte's Christian Democrat Party who was with Yanes.

The official, Amilcar Velasquez, said the gunman then was shot by one of Yanes' bodyguards. Velasquez said he recognized the gunman as Francisco Alfaro and identified him as a member of the Republican Nationalist Alliance, known as ARENA.

ARENA's leader, cashiered army major Roberto d'Aubuisson, lost to Duarte in the presidential runoff election in May 1984.

Israel Will Complete Airlift

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres today vowed that Israel will complete the evacuation of Jews from drought-stricken Ethiopia, where an estimated 10,000 Jews remain after emergency airlifts were halted over the weekend.

On Sunday, a spokesman for the Jewish Agency, Shater Stollman, said the Ethiopian government, which is Marxist and which broke relations with Israel after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, was upset over publicity about the airlift and ordered the flights halted.

The independent Jewish Agency had been helping the Israeli government resettle the Ethiopian Jews.

Peres, speaking at a foreign policy seminar at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, said of the interrupted rescue mission: "I can say clearly that we shall not rest until all our brothers and sisters from Ethiopia will come safely back home."

He did not say how Israel would complete the evacuation.

Today's comments were Peres' first public statement on the airlift, which operation received heavy media coverage last week.

Sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said both Ethiopia and Sudan, through which the Jewish refugees were escaping, were breaking off their tacit cooperation in the operation, leaving an estimated 4,000 Jews in Sudanese refugee camps and 10,000 in Ethiopia.

Peres said immigration from both Ethiopia and the Soviet Union "will be continued and renewed." He added: "The purpose of this country to make our people reunited," including "this great, forlorn and old community" in Ethiopia.

On Sunday, another Jewish Agency spokesman, Zvi Eyal, said European airline companies, which he declined to name, offered to help bring the remaining Ethiopian Jews to Israel.

The Times of London today reported diplomatic speculation in Israel that "some military style operation" may be mounted to rescue at least those Jews stuck in refugee camps in the Sudan.

London's Daily Mirror reported that Israel had begun to fly transport planes to makeshift dirt airstrips in northern Ethiopia to take out the remaining Jews.

Secret Documents Support Sharon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Secret papers contain no evidence to show former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon discussed the need for revenge with Christian Phalangists who were blamed for the 1982 massacre of Palestinians in Beirut, an Israeli ex-chief justice said in material released today.

A Justice Ministry statement distributed by the government press office said a secret annex and other documents were reviewed by Yitzhak Kahan, the former Supreme Court president who headed an inquiry commission into the massacre, and by Sharon's lawyer, Dov Weisglass, and Chaim Zadok, an attorney for Time Magazine.

The secret documents are expected to play a role in determining the outcome of Sharon's $50-million libel suit against Time Magazine.

Time reported that in a conversation with the family of Lebanese Christian President Amin Gemayel on Sept. 15, 1982, Sharon reportedly discussed the need to avenge the killing of former Lebanese President Bashir Gemayel, who was Amin's brother.

According to Time, the conversation took place the day before Israeli-allied Christian Phalange militiamen carried out the massacre in the Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps, and it said information on the conversation was in the secret parts of the report issued by the Kahan Commission.

Sharon, who is trade and industry minister in Prime Minister Shimon Peres' Cabinet, left for New York today after a two-week visit to Israel during the court's Christmas break. He told reporters that he hoped the secret protocols "will help me prove, as I've always claimed, that Time lied. I hope this will teach them never again to dare libel me, the state of Israel or the Jewish people."

Kahan's testimony has been forwarded to the New York federal court hearing the case.

The government allowed Kahan to give limited answers to three questions submitted by the court pertaining to the appendix and to four other related documents, after cautioning him and the two lawyers not to divulge the contents of the papers out of concern for national security.

Train Derails

CALPULALPAN, Mexico (AP) — Seven people were killed and 182 injured when a passenger train derailed on a curve near here, authorities said.

Two U.S. citizens and one Briton were among the injured, the U.S. Embassy reported. It did not identify them, but said none was seriously hurt.

Three of the six passenger cars on the 10-car Mexican National Railways train, southbound from Mexico City to Oaxaca, went off the tracks on a curve and crashed on their side, police commander Abraham Aguilar Carrasco said. The crash occurred seven miles south of Calpulalpan and 50 miles east of Mexico City.

In The Area

Eagle Killed

Kay J. Dunn, a Wildlife Resources Commission enforcement officer, said today that officers are investigating the shooting of a Bald eagle found New Year's day in a field 5 miles northwest of Greenville, near the All-Pines Hunt Club.

Dunn, who said the bird was seen alive in the area two weeks before its body was found, said the eagle "looked like it had been killed about Christmas" with a rifle.

According to Dunn, there was "an illegally killed doe deer in the field" and the eagle "had apparently been feeding" on the deer's carcass.

Dunn said the Bald eagle was the second eagle known to have been killed in the county in the past 10 to 12 years. He said a Golden eagle was killed in the Falkland area in the early 1970s.

The Bald eagle is an endangered species and it is illegal to kill them.

Dunn said anyone having information about the shooting of the eagle should call 1-800-662-7137. He said any information about the incident will be handled "in a confidential manner."

MORNING BLAZE — A two-story house at 1309 Forbes St. was heavily damaged by a fire reported at 6:05 a.m. today. Fire-Rescue Department officers, who said the total interior of the vacant house was burned, said the fire may have been caused by an electrical short-circuit on the second floor. Break-Ins Reported Greenville police are continuing their investigation of five break-ins reported to the department over the weekend.

Officer T.E. Nevelle said a quantity of rings, watches, bracelets and $61 in cash was reported taken from Lady J's at 115 Grand Ave. in a break-in reported at 12:50 a.m. Saturday, while a television set, valued at $400, was reported taken from 1806B W. Conley St. in a break-in reported at 1:12 a.m. Sunday.

Officer B.D. Dobbs said a tire, valued at $50, was taken from 402 N. Greene St. in a break-in reported at 7:58 p.m. Saturday, while Officer W.A. Moore said a microwave oven, a refrigerator and other items were taken from the law offices of Mattox and Davis at 315 W. Second St. in a break-in reported at 8:35 a.m. Sunday.

According to Officer K.R. Evans, more than $200 in cash was taken from Hargett's Drugs at 2500 S. Charles St. in a break-in reported at 8:51 a.m. Sunday.

No Fatalities

For the first time since the State Highway Patrol began keeping records in 1952, Martin County chalked up a no-fatalities year in 1984.

That record is in stark contrast to the year 1973, when 19 people died in traffic accidents in Martin County. The previous low year was 1952, when one person died due to a highway fatality.

In the 33 years that records have been maintained, a total of 243 people have been killed on the highways of Martin County.

Tools Taken

Police are continuing their investigation of two break-ins reported to the department Friday.

Officer J.E. Fleming said a sander, drill and a tool box containing assorted tools were taken from 118 W. Ninth St., in a break-in reported at 9:58 a.m.

According to Officer E.M. Hadcock, a number of items were taken from 407 Biltmore St. in a break-in reported at noon.

Humane Society

The Humane Society's regular business meeting and election of officers will be Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church on the corner of Elm and 14th streets.

Parents Session

The Greenville ASPO/Lamaze will hold its monthly parents meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Jarvis United Methodist Church. Carolyn Mayo, assistant vice president and branch manager of Wachovia Bank at Meadowbrook, will speak on money management.

Any area parent may attend, and a nursery will be provided.

First Herring

A Williamston man, James Bunch, is the first person in Martin County to record catching a herring as fish lovers await the coming of the 1985 herring season.

The first herring of the season, traditionally known as "the smoke-house key," was netted by Bunch at about 10 a.m. on New Year's Day. The fish was caught on the Roanoke River 4.5 miles downstream from the bridge at Williamston.

Another fisherman, Denny Williams of Farm Life, was not far behind Bunch in netting one of the bony fish. He pulled in two at about 11:30 on New Year's morning. Williams fishes commercially when the herring season gets into full swing around the end of February.

Bird Fight

An all-out fight is planned against a large colony of roosting birds in a wooded area off Prison Camp Road in Martin County. The roosting site near a trailer park is the nightly congregation place for thousands of starlings, grackles and red-wing blackbirds.

"We've been asked to do a hazard-reduction burn in the wooded roosting site," said N. C. Forest Ranger Leon Hughes. "We hope this will stop the birds from roosting there."

Wildlife biologist Rod McClanahan said the roosting birds may also create health hazards. "With all the bird droppings, mold, fungus and a lot of nasty things can get in there," he said. "It can be very serious."

One of the molds produces spores easily inhaled by humans. These spores, according to McClanahan, will develop in human lungs and could cause serious lung damage. Another danger is ornithosis, a bacterial agent which McClanahan said "can be lethal."

Tornado Relief

All arrangements have been completed for the Tornado Relief Project, according to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners. The project, funded by HUD through the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, is aimed at providing grant assistance for victims of the March 28, 1984, tornadoes. The assistance is for residential rehabilitation, relocation and debris clearance.

Citizens of Pitt County who believe they may be eligible for such assistance should call Besty Bundy at 752-2934, ext. 322. An interview will be scheduled with Robert Streeter of the Mid-East Commission and eligible recipients will be assisted with the required paperwork for submitting a claim. Eligibility must be established by Feb. 28, 1985.

Young Democrats

At a recent meeting of the Pitt County Young Democrats Club, officers for 1985 were elected. Serving as president will be Joe Nelson and vice president is Vickie Tedder. The secretary is Jann Calhoun.

State Reps. Walter B. Jones Jr. and Ed Warren and County Commissioner Eugene James were present at the meeting and offered comments on the future of the Democratic Party in North Carolina.

Anyone interested in further information about the Pitt County YDC may contact any of the officers.

Reagan Schedules News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will hold his first formal news conference in nearly six months Wednesday evening. Much of the half-hour session is likely to focus on the outcome of U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes announced today that Reagan's news conference, which will be broadcast live by the major television and radio networks, will take place in the East Room of the White House at 8 p.m. EST.

It will be Reagan's first such session since last July 24, when he held his 26th question-and-answer session.

Although Reagan has held far fewer news conferences during his first term than any of his recent predecessors, Speakes said recently the president probably will hold one about every six weeks during his second term.

Although there is no set agenda for a press conference, Wednesday's session is expected to focus on the results of Secretary of State George

P. Shultz's talks today and Tuesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

ABC News reported Sunday that first lady Nancy Reagan has persuaded the president to hold monthly news conferences. Citing unidentified White House sources, the network said Mrs. Reagan convinced him to do so because she believes regular news conferences are in his interest.

A White House spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, declined to comment on the ABC report.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A ♠74 ♦KQJ1065 ♣J843
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1♦ 2♦ 2♦
2 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Sometimes discretion is, indeed, the better part of valor. You are surely going to get a spade lead, which will knock out the only entry to your long suit. If partner does not have the ace of diamonds, your long suit may wither on the vine. Bid three diamonds. This does not preclude partner from continuing on to three no trump, but it does warn him that you need help to set up your suit.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK6 ♥K8 ♦A9 ♣AKJ983
What is your opening bid?
A.—A very awkward hand. You are not quite strong enough to open two clubs. However, there is a distinct danger that a one club bid might get passed out. The solution is to open two no trump. Despite your six-card suit, your hand is really balanced, and the king of hearts should be protected from a lead through.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♥QJ98762 ♦A8752 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ 1♦
Dble Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—We are as keen as anyone to punish the opponents at this vulnerability, but your hand hardly qualifies to play for penalties. You have one defensive trick and do not even possess a trump to lead through declarer. On offense, however, your hand has great potential. Even though partner's double of one spade usually denies a heart fit, a singleton in his hand could be enough. We opt for four hearts.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J54 ♥K93 ♦K2 ♣A7654
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 2♣ Pass
3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You have a useful hand, but you have already told partner that when you responded two clubs. Now you need do no more than bid four spades. If your fit improves partner's hand, he can make a move toward slam.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠95 ♥1065 ♦AQ83 ♣K1054
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
3♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has a powerhouse and you have a maximum no trump response. Nevertheless, some of your values are wasted. For the moment we would bid three no trump, to tell partner that we have the minor suits well stopped. Let's see what he does next—if he passes, you are probably in the right spot.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

A.—It is a close decision. Our defensive prospects are somewhat dimmed by the fact that our kings are in front of the opening bidder, and the auction has marked partner with a singleton heart so, at this vulnerability, we are inclined to bid four spades—as a sacrifice. Pioneers of Flight

Two hundred years ago today, Dr. John Jeffries and Jean-Pierre Blanchard crossed the English Channel in a hot-air balloon. Thus began modern hot-air ballooning. Coincidentally, Jacques Etienne Montgolfier was born January 7, 1745. His experiments in the 1780s led to the invention of the hot air balloon. The dream of crossing an ocean in a balloon was not realized until 1978. That summer, three Americans travelled from Maine to France in a balloon called Double Eagle II.

DO YOU KNOW — Who became the first person to cross the Atlantic Ocean alone in a hot-air balloon?

Fire Leaves 75 People Homeless

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — About 75 people — most of them elderly — were left homeless after a weekend fire destroyed 31 apartments and damaged five others near Lumberton, authorities said.

Authorities had still not determined by Sunday night what caused the fire, which required three visits by firefighters before it was finally put out about 3 a.m. Sunday — some 17 hours after it was reported.

No one was reported injured in the blaze, authorities said.

"I didn't see any reason why they couldn't have stopped it before it did this much damage," said Lonnie Hammond, who co-owns the 10-year-old Saddletree Apartments with his wife, Sylvie.

Saddletree Fire Department Chief Harold Bell could not be reached Sunday for comment, but firefighter Eugene Canady said fire kept reappearing after firefighters thought it was out.

"I lost everything I had except what I had on," said James Harvin, 66, one of those left homeless by the fire.

Harvin, an unemployed construction worker, and his wife, Delores, were among those who lived in the small, two-bedroom apartments, which are spread out over two buildings.

The Hammonds said when the fire started several people ran door-to-door getting people out.

All of the units had smoke detectors, Hammond said.

Inequities

North Carolina's Constitution guarantees one educational system for its people and the implication is one of uniformity and fairness. In practice it hasn't worked out quite that way.

Public attention is being called to the inequities that exist.

A Garner High School teacher, Philip R. Dail, has been visiting N.C. schools and is a frequent speaker at luncheons and workshops. His views, as North Carolina's 1984 Teacher of the Year, are being heard.

Some counties are richer than others, he reminds, and thus are able to supplement state funds with sums from their own coffers. This means that schools in poorer counties could not keep pace in terms of inducing better-qualified teachers, trimming class sizes, providing special teaching aids and any number of other resources.

We would count Pitt as being one of those counties better able than many to supplement education funds allocated by the state. In that we are blessed.

There are potential problems should the state decide that in fairness to all its children there must be equality in the funding of schools. It might be achieved by barring local supplements (attaining the lowest common level); it might be achieved by disproportionately larger sums allocated to poorer counties and bringing them up to par with wealthier local systems.

And finally, local supplements might be barred with allocations to meet needs of each system throughout the state. This last would pose a small nightmare of "fine tuning" as well as problems in finding resources to accomplish that goal.

Because of the extremely large sums involved it is doubtful we are going to witness solving the problems of inequities anytime soon. Education already takes a very large share of the state's budget. Setting new priorities for available money is never easy. There is always competition for increased shares of the budget from all services and agencies supported by the state.

Someday the problem of unequal education opportunity is going to have to be addressed. It is inevitable. Few of the contending forces are going to like the decided-upon prescription. We hope Raleigh and the state at large opt for quality at the highest possible plateau. We have a lot of catching up to do. Eventually North Carolinians are going to have to pay to banish overcrowded classrooms, to acquire the best of teachers, to assure newly essential equipment, perhaps even to lengthen the school year. Anything less is simply putting off the day. It will be expensive.

On the other hand, we are reminded that if you think education is costly, rethink the premise. Ignorance is even costlier.

Holidays

With the end of the Christmas holidays so, too, end the mid-year vacations for students and staff.

Inevitably it has happened here. Greenville and Pitt County schools and Pitt Community College returned to the classrooms last week. Some East Carolina students and faculty were on campus late last week. Most ECU students began classes for the spring semester today.

It all means a return to something called normalcy for this area. Some 12,500 students and hundreds of faculty members are back after having been gone over the holidays. Christmas shopping kept the economy going during their absence, but now their return means an economic boost for area merchants and restaurants.

Of course the elementary and high school kids who had their days free for the holidays are now leaving for school in the early morning hours. Thus home patterns are changed.

The Christmas and New Year's holidays demand our attention throughout December, but when classes resume the holidays are officially over.

Legislators Stay Around

RALEIGH — Several former legislators who lost their bids for re-election last year get to play legislator for another month.

The former legislators went out of office on Jan. 1. But, because they are members of study commissions which have not yet finished their final reports, they'll continue to play a role in the legislative process. They'll suggest legislation and even vote on the final reports of the committees issue.

A number of important study committees were savaged by the elections with the Medical Cost Containment Study losing both its co-chairmen, former Sen. Craig Lawing and former Rep. Jim Black, both D-Mecklenburg. The Criminal Code Committee lost three legislators including a co-chairman. The committee looking at the Administrative Procedures Act lost four representatives and two senators, one a co-chairman. The committee studying credit insurance and interest rates lost four of its eight legislators.

Jim Johnson, a legislative staffer for 11 years, says he's never seen anything like it. "I've never lost a chairman before," he said as he planned the next meeting of a committee that may or may not have a chairman.

The election results and the unusually late reporting dates for several of the committees combined to create a good bit of confusion about the committee memberships. "That's all we've got up here: confusion," another legislative staffer said. "No one knows when terms (on committees) begin and when they end because there's no clean break this year."

Study committees usually report before the terms of their members expire. But in 1985 the General Assembly is convening four weeks later than usual. Correspondingly, reporting dates for some committees were pushed back and that's how the month of former legislators was created.

No one appears to have given much thought to the problem. Asked if he planned to replace the defeated legislators, House Speaker Liston Ramsey said he didn't have time. There is no president pro tem of the Senate to replace defeated senators.

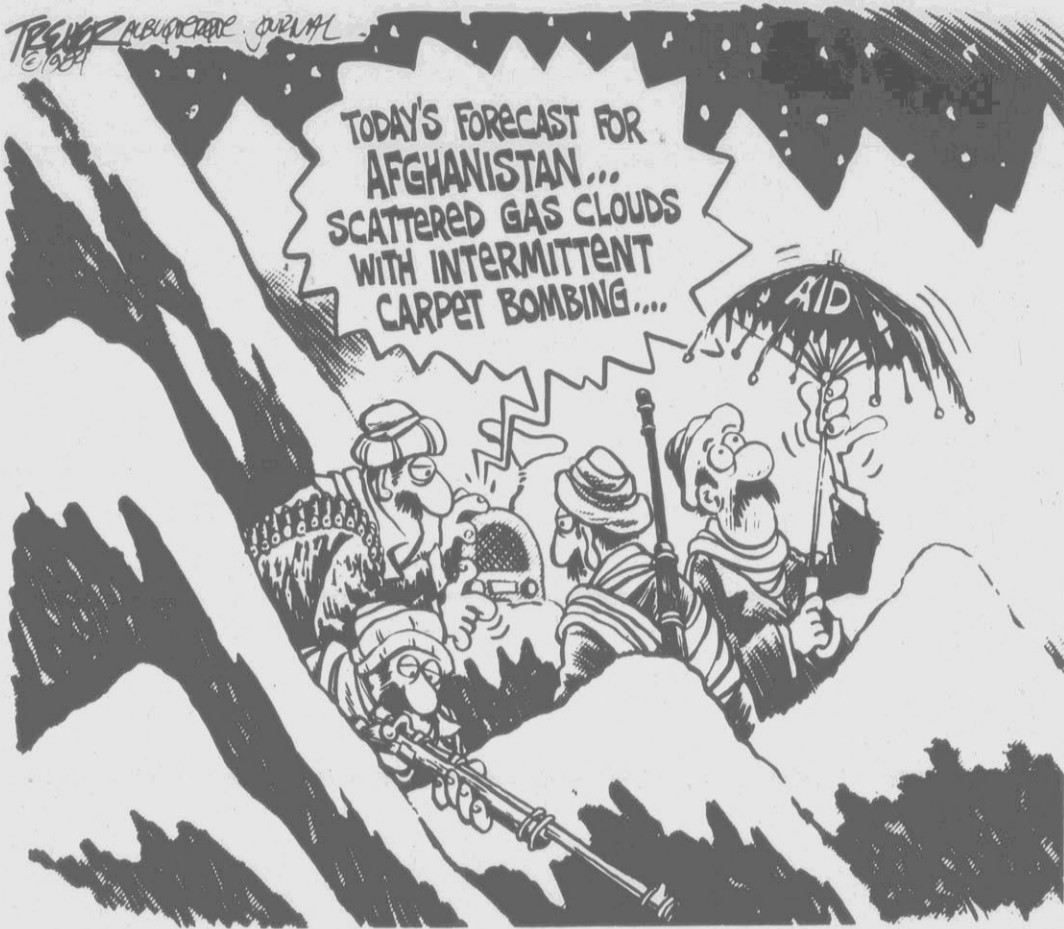

The election upsets and the quirk of the schedule created two options. The House and Senate leadership could have decided, prior to January, to replace defeated members of the committees. In that case, the expertise these people have developed from studying the particular problem at hand would have been lost and new legislators would have had to join the committees and voted on a final report almost immediately.

Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, surviving chairman of the Criminal Code Committee, said the three members of that committee who were defeated would continue to serve until February. "They're valuable members who understand the thrust of what the committee is trying to do," he said.

The other option is the one which apparently is being followed. The defeated legislators are just remaining on the committees until they can be replaced in February.

But that creates legal questions which several legislative leaders and Terry Sullivan, director of the legislature's General Research Division, were unable to answer. The statutes which created several of these committees specifically state that a certain portion of the membership must be comprised of legislators. But when someone loses his seat in the Legislature, can he continue to serve on that committee? When ex-legislators serve in spots reserved for real legislators are the meetings legal?

The current leadership has apparently decided not to worry about such questions. Maybe in two years, they'll have the committees report a bit earlier.

Women's Caucus Gets A Query

Until recently, we thought the women's movement had received a thorough emotional beating this year. But then we came upon a letter that probably made Ronald Reagan's re-election and the failure of many women candidates seem incidental.

The letter was from a publicist for Whitman's Chocolates of Philadelphia and addressed to a top official of the National Women's Political Caucus in Washington. The Whitman's account executive wanted to know, as part of a national survey, what the caucus leadership thought about giving and receiving chocolates packaged in heart-shaped boxes. The nominally bipartisan caucus was chosen to participate in this inquiry, the publicist said, "because we believe its members typify 'today's American women.'"

In light of last November's exit polls, that characterization might have been reassuring, but the query itself surely underscored the grim reality for the women's movement. Comparable worth, ERA and electing women candidates aren't the only issues of importance to its claimed constituency.

We've learned that the caucus may not respond to the three-page questionnaire, which is due today — maybe in time to influence sales strategies for 1986.

But the survey is undoubtedly of extreme importance to Whitman's. After years as a successful confectioner, the candymaker doesn't want to blow the biggest sales day of the year for want of market sensitivity. Meanwhile, somewhere inside the company, a production manager has probably warned of the additional cost of any change in packaging style.

By its participation, the caucus could show that the women's movement isn't out of touch with its constituency. At the same time, it could make some social and political points on its own.

Herewith are some potentially fruitful queries:

"What does Valentine's Day mean to you?"

This question could be the first and last, not only for feminists. For every insufferable romantic there is at least one person who finds Valentine's Day to be a nuisance. Who knows how many relationships began and ended on Feb. 14? We haven't the foggiest, but the caucus could give its estimate, along with any comments about holidays and commercial, if not sexual, exploitation.

"Do you think Valentine's Day is a day for men to show their feelings for women, or do you think the holiday is more unisex in nature? Please explain your opinion."

Women who believe the former have no place pushing for equal rights, nor, probably, would they be interested in doing so. Even if the women's movement speaks for less than half the women in America, it could argue that a large number don't mind a little equity.

"Chocolate has long been a popular Valentine's Day gift. Has it been a gift you received? Was this gift packaged in a heart-shaped box? What is your opinion of Valentine's hearts as a gift?"

Chocolate has long been popular, partly because it's cheaper than diamonds. But it's hardly appropriate in an era given to high-fiber and folic acid. The caucus has a responsibility to advise Whitman's about diversifying its product base. How about heart-shaped yogurt?

"Do you consider giving your boyfriend or husband a Valentine's Day gift? If no, why not? Would you consider buying them chocolates in a pin-striped heart-shaped box? If not, why not?"

This question assumes (1) that there can be only one recipient for each person; (2) that valentines are always for the opposite sex, and (3) that all working men wear pin-striped suits. The caucus would probably have an easy time showing those assumptions to be wrong.

"Do you think that since chocolate has been a traditional Valentine's Day gift for years that there is a historical or genuine link between love and chocolate — that chocolate is the gift of love?"

Anthropologists have been asking the same question for years. Nonetheless, their research isn't conclusive. So far, however, they've proved links between love and, among other things, adultery, attempted assassination and the arms race. Chocolate would be a positive addition to the list — at least it's only fattening.

Kitchen Cabinet Dwindles

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Membership in President Reagan's kitchen cabinet, a group of wealthy California friends that helped convince him to seek public office two decades ago, is dwindling.

The annual New Year's Eve party at the 200-acre estate of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg was the one occasion each year when the kitchen cabinet and other old Reagan friends would gather to renew old ties.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, and about 85 other guests celebrated the arrival of the new year at the black-tie Annenberg extravaganza for about the 18th year in a row this week.

While the White House would not release the entire guest list, the press office did announce that among the invited were several people who have been close Reagan friends for decades.

They included several men now serving the Reagan administration, such as Ambassador to the Vatican William Wilson, Attorney General William French-Smith, Interior Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

The names of two controversial members of the Reagan administration who also are long-time presidential friends, CIA Director William Casey and USIA Director Charles Wick, were not among those made public by the press office, but that doesn't mean they weren't at the party.

The public list also included such other old friends as Armand Deutsch and Earle Jorgensen, who presided over a steel and aluminum distribution company.

In fact, the Wilsons, Smiths and Deusches were houseguests of the Annenbergs, as were the Reagans.

But as is the case with any group of old "old" friends, where the average age was probably in the 70s, several of the most influential members of Reagan's kitchen cabinet have died during the past four years.

Jack Wrather, chairman of an oil, entertainment and real estate business, died of cancer two months ago at the age of 66.

Multimillionaire industrialist Justin Dart, founder of the Dart Industries conglomerate, died a year ago at the age of 76.

Alfred Bloomingdale, a millionaire who was sued for "palimony" by a 29-year-old woman, died of cancer in 1982 at the age of 66. His wife, Betsy, is perhaps Mrs. Reagan's closest friend.

And Theodore E. Cummings, founder of a supermarket chain who became ambassador to Austria after Reagan's election, died several years ago. Actor William Holden, a close Reagan friend, also died several years ago. And Holmes P. Tuttle, an automotive dealer and industrialist, reportedly is in ill health.

There is little evidence that the kitchen cabinet remains an influential force on presidential decision-making, although some of the members are invited to White House parties from time to time.

For a while early in the administration, the group used space in the Old Executive Office Building across from the White House and waged a campaign for public support of Reagan's economic policies.

But the Committee for a New Beginning was disbanded abruptly, at the request of the White House, amid charges that it was using pressure tactics to line up corporate contributions.

After that episode in 1981, Dart announced that "the kitchen cabinet has served its useful purpose and unless the president calls on some of us, the cabinet is finished. It hasn't any reason to survive."

Strength For Today

Leaven is a mysterious element. A little leaven put into a lump of dough changes the whole consistency of the dough and turns it into the substance from which bread is created.

Jesus declared that the kingdom of God is like leaven which a woman puts into a lump of dough which starts its transformation into bread. The kingdom is a mysterious ferment which starts making changes in one's life as soon as one comes in contact with it.

We live in the kingdom of the world. Jesus Christ proposes that into this lump of our earthly lives we inject a heavenly leaven. It is trust in God and commitment to his will. When the kingdom of God comes in and takes over our lives, the whole quality of our lives becomes changed. The earthly dough becomes transformed into the bread of life which symbolically means living in companionship with God and Christ.

Study Shows Marijuana Losing Favor, But Cocaine Use Holds At Same Levels

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The percentage of high school seniors using cocaine has not changed since 1979, despite a growing aversion to marijuana, alcohol and cigarettes, according to a government-sponsored study released today.

"We observed a sharp increase in cocaine use between 1976 and 1979, but since, the rates of use in this age group have been relatively stable," said Lloyd D. Johnson, one of three University of Michigan social psychologists who conducted the nationwide study of 17,000 high school seniors for the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

"Still, usage levels are troublesomely high," Johnson said. Sixteen percent of the seniors surveyed last spring had used cocaine at least once, 12 percent had used it some time in the previous year and 6 percent were monthly users, he said.

Johnson, of the university's Institute of Social Research, said more seniors view cocaine as dangerous and disapprove of its use, but there is an indication of increasing use, especially in the Northeast.

Meanwhile, 85 percent of the seniors disapproved of regular marijuana use in 1984, compared with 65 percent in 1977, the study said.

"Concern about both the psychological and physical effects of regular marijuana use has shifted dramatically over the last seven years," resulting in "an increasing number of young people terminating or reducing their use after some initial period of involvement," Johnson said.

"While most seniors do not view experimental or occasional use of marijuana as particularly risky, between one-half and two-thirds of all seniors personally disapprove of these behaviors," he said.

Five percent of the seniors had used marijuana at least 20 times in the previous month, down from 5.5 percent in 1983 and from the peak of 11 percent in 1978. Twenty-five percent said they used marijuana occasionally, vs. 37 percent in 1978.

"This substantial downturn in use of marijuana in the face of continuing widespread availability illustrates the critically important fact that drug abuse can be dealt with effectively through reducing the demand for drugs, not just the supply," Johnson said.

"Young people must be convinced that using abusive substances is not in their best interest, and they must be given the social skills and social support necessary to act accordingly."

"In fact, in the long run, this may be the only battle in the war on drugs which society can really win."

The study also showed that 67 percent of seniors had used alcohol in the previous month, with 5 percent drinking daily. In 1979, those figures were 72 percent and 7 percent, respectively.

Reports of occasional heavy drinking fell to 39 percent in 1984 from 41 percent the previous year — the first decline since the study began 10 years ago.

Cigarette smoking, which had fallen by nearly one-third between 1977 and 1980 and leveled off for several years, dropped from 41 percent in 1983 to 39 percent last year, Johnson said.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse, part of the Department of Health and Human Resources, annually surveys 17,000 seniors in about 140 public and private high schools nationwide.

Violence Often Follows Burglar

WASHINGTON (AP) — A substantial proportion of violent crimes occurring in the nation's homes take place during a burglary, the Justice Department says.

Only about 2.8 million of the roughly 73 million burglaries committed from 1973 through 1982 involved violent crimes, the Bureau of Justice Statistics said in a study released Sunday.

But it also said that in 30 percent of the incidents where a burglar was confronted by a household member, a violent crime was committed.

"Three-fifths of all rapes, three-fifths of all robberies and about one-third of all aggravated and simple assaults are committed by burglars," the report said.

Bureau director Steven R. Schlesinger said that "household burglary ranks among the more serious felony crimes, not only because it involves the illegal entry of one's home, but also because a substantial proportion of the violent crimes that occur in the home take place during a burglary."

"Thus, burglary is potentially a far more serious crime than its classification as a property offense indicates," he said. "For many victims, including those who avoid the trauma of personal confrontation, the invasion of one's home produces permanent emotional scars."

The survey also found that in 42 percent of some 7 million household burglaries, the perpetrator was a relative, acquaintance or someone recognizable to the victim.

In 7 percent of the cases, the offender was a victim's spouse or former spouse; 4 percent of the crimes were committed by another relative, and in 25 percent of the incidents, it was carried out by an acquaintance, the report said.

And in 6 percent of the some 7 million burglaries for which information was known about the offender, the intruder was someone known only by sight — but nonetheless recognizable — by the person whose household was burglarized. In the remainder of the cases, the burglary was carried out by a stranger or an offender unknown to the victim.

Although the study covered approximately 73 million burglaries committed over the 10-year period, conclusions about the familiarity of the offender to the victim was based on some 7 million incidents in which authorities had information on the offender, representing about 9 percent of the cases.

Actor Reads Jailed Pastor's Sermon At Guarded Church

CLAIRTON, Pa. (AP) — A jailed Lutheran minister whose supporters were arrested during the occupation of his embattled church says "evil is working harder than ever" in the unemployment-plagued Monongahela Valley.

About 100 supporters of the Rev. D. Douglas Roth gathered Sunday outside Trinity Lutheran Church for weekly services after sheriff's deputies inside the church denied them entrance.

"The state is physically in control of this church ... But God has strange and powerful ways to reveal the corruption of our power structure, our bishop, the judge and sheriff who suppress our American constitutional rights," actor David Soul said in a sermon written by Roth.

Soul, of television's "Starsky and Hutch," also played a tape from Roth, who said "evil is working harder than ever" to keep them from serving God and the economically troubled Monongahela Valley's unemployed workers.

"To silence the gospel is a scandal," Roth said. "This is heresy on the theological level and unconstitutional on the state level."

Soul, the brother of a Pittsburgh-area Lutheran minister who supports Roth, said Allegheny County Common Pleas Judge Emil Narick "selectively" applied the law last week when deputies ousted and arrested the occupiers.

Deputies broke into the stone church Friday and arrested seven people, including Roth's wife, Nadine, and another Lutheran pastor, the Rev. William Rex, who were barricaded inside for several weeks in defiance of a court order.

Three of the protesters, in addition to Wayne Cochran, the church council's president who turned himself in, were sentenced to 60 days in jail for civil contempt of court. The other four were to be sentenced today.

Narick also sentenced Roth to another 30 days in jail, to be served concurrently with the 38 days remaining on his original sentence, for encouraging the others to defy the court order.

Roth, 33, was jailed Nov. 13 after refusing to obey western Pennsylvania Lutheran Bishop Kenneth May's orders to relinquish the Trinity pulpit.

The church will remain closed and under observation indefinitely, May said late last week. "It is hoped that this will enable all concerned with unemployment to get on with the issues at hand to help people."

The Rev. Beth Siefert, like Roth a member of the Denominational Ministry Strategy, conducted the hour-long service from behind a draped card table on the church's front sidewalk. The DMS is a pro-labor group of clergy who have supported the confrontational tactics of the Network to Save the Mon-Ohio Valley, a group composed mainly of out-of-work steelworkers.

One of the worshippers, Helen Becker, broke into tears when Roth and his eight jailed supporters were mentioned in prayer. Her son, Darrell Becker, president of Shipbuilders Local 61, was among those arrested inside the church.

"I'm extremely proud of him, not because he's my son but because he's a human being who has principles and believes in humanity," she said.

The Network to Save the Mon-Ohio Valley has used controversial tactics such as spraying synthetic skunk oil at local banks and protesting at various churches to draw attention to the struggle of the unemployed.

U.S. Pot Crop Reaches Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. marijuana growers, for the first time filling more than half the nation's demand, harvested a record $16.6 billion worth of pot in 1984, according to the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

The estimated domestic harvest was worth 20 percent more than the 1983 crop and continued to make marijuana America's second most valuable agricultural product, NORML said in its annual cultivation report.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that the nation's corn crop last year was worth $19.5 billion, followed by hay at $11.3 billion and soybeans at $11.3 billion. Last year, the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control estimated marijuana could be worth from $10 billion to $50 billion a year in the United States.

Illegal domestic pot farmers raised about 11 million pounds in 1984, or 55 percent of the 20-million-pound total amount available to the 30 million or more Americans using marijuana on a regular basis, according to NORML.

Shuttle Completes Practice Liftoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A practice countdown was completed successfully today for America's first classified man-in-space mission, a Jan. 23 deployment of an advanced spy satellite within listening range of the Soviet Union.

The rehearsal, which began at 1:40 p.m. Sunday, was concluded at 8:03 a.m. with a simulated liftoff. The five-man astronaut crew was in the cockpit of the shuttle Discovery for the final 2½ hours of the test. Discovery was moved to the launch pad Saturday.

"It appears the countdown demonstration test has been completed successfully with only a few minor problems," reported Hugh Harris, spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The purpose of the practice is to make certain all spacecraft and rocket systems are ready for flight and to familiarize the astronauts with the final hours of the countdown.

The Defense Department labeled much of the mission secret, including the nature of the payload. For security reasons, the Pentagon will say only that the launch will occur some time between 1:15 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. on Jan. 23.

Reporters will be allowed to observe the launch from a Kennedy Space Center press site, but will be given no countdown details. They also will not be allowed to listen in on live conversations from Discovery during flight, as has been the custom on 45 earlier U.S. man-in-space missions.

Instead, written progress statements will be issued every eight hours.

After the countdown test before each of the previous 14 shuttle flights the astronauts held a news conference. The Pentagon said the crew would only pose for pictures at the pad today, but would not answer questions.

Sources familiar with the project have told The Associated Press the satellite is an advanced model of earlier satellites that intercept radio, telephone and satellite communications and relay them to American intelligence agency receivers.

The sources, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, said the satellite is capable of gathering radio data from Soviet missile tests. They said the payload, named SigInt, for signal intelligence, will be positioned in stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator, south of the Soviet Union.

The commander of the all-military crew is Navy Capt. Thomas Mattingly. The others are Air Force Maj. Loren Shriver, Elison Onizuka and Gary Payton and Marine Maj. James Buchli.

Martin Inauguration Draws Out The Crowds

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Some were officeholders, others partisan Republicans, and still others curious bystanders or history buffs. But regardless of motive, Tar Heels from far and near came to watch and celebrate Gov. Jim Martin's inauguration.

A crowd estimated at 10,000 braved near-freezing temperatures and stinging winds to watch Martin, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and the Council of State members take their oaths of office and hear Martin deliver his inaugural address.

Anyone peddling coffee and hot chocolate "could make a fortune. I guarantee you," said Gene Woodsby of Lexington.

Shivering in overcoats, scarves, hats and — in some cases — blankets, the crowd cheered lustily as Martin firmly promised to uphold the state's Constitution, "so help me God." Red, white and blue balloons soared into the blue sky, military helicopters and transport planes thundered overhead, and the East Carolina University marching band played a regal march.

"A lot of these people have never seen a (Republican) governor inaugurated," said J.A. Dalpiaz of Gastonia, 10th Congressional District GOP chairman. "This is only the second time this century. I think we'll do it more often."

Margaret Pittman traveled to Raleigh from Polk County for the first time to see Martin inaugurated. "I figured it's an important enough occasion I'd come at least once," she said.

Many spectators traveled to Raleigh in groups. Sisters-in-law Martha Goodwin of Lilesville and Sybil Dennis of Wadesboro took a bus with about 30 other Anson County Republicans — "about all the Republicans we have there," Ms. Goodwin said.

"I wouldn't have missed this," added Ms. Goodwin, well-protected from the cold under a heavy blanket.

Some Democrats also were unaccustomed to seeing ceremonies like the one Saturday.

"Normally when you go to a statewide function you see a lot of Democratic leaders. A lot of these people I've never seen before," said state Rep. David Diamont, D-Surry.

Allen and Jane Burris of Raleigh said they were Democrats. "But you just have to come out for this," said Mrs. Burris. "It's an event ... North Carolina history being made."

Her husband said North Carolina needed "a little unity after that divisive campaign. I even bought a button from one of those Young Republicans."

After Martin's 16-minute inaugural address, the crowd's attention shifted to the parade, for which people lined Wilmington Street for blocks. Most people remained for the entire 2½-hour, 120-unit parade past a reviewing stand where Martin, former Gov. Jim Hunt and other dignitaries sat drinking coffee and munching basket snacks.

All 100 counties were represented in the parade. Dozens of bands marched, along with military units from Fort Bragg, Camp Lejeune, and Seymour Johnson Air Force Base. Each time military units passed, Martin rose and returned their salutes.

There also were floats bearing cloggers, third-graders with pictures of the state bird, reptile, fish and flower draped over their shoulders, hillbilly bands, Shriners, beauty queens, and Vietnam veterans. The crowd burst into laughter as about a dozen tiny fire engines putt-putted past.

As the parade ended, Martin and his wife toured the route in an open car, beaming and waving to the crowd. Later, as Martin entered a Highway Patrol car that drove him away, supporters sang, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Later, the Martins watched a downtown fireworks display and attended a huge bash at the Raleigh Civic Center. The building was divided into sections that offered beach, country, jazz and big-band music — with matching decorations ranging from hay bales to split-rail fences. People who paid the $2 admission fee wore everything from tuxedos to blue jeans.

IN THE STATE

Seat Belts

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Fort Bragg officials are giving out helpful reminders — sometimes in the form of tickets — to both soldiers and civilians to let them know seat belts save lives.

"Most people want to use them. All we want to do is give them a nudge in the right direction," said Theodore Dexter, safety director of the Fort Bragg Army base.

A mandatory seat-belt rule at Fort Bragg will take effect Feb. 1. Unbelted soldiers will receive citations, while civilians will get warnings, according to base officials.

Dexter said "willful" offenders could lose their driving privileges on the base.

"We are interested in a safe place for our people to work, and seat belts save lives — it's that simple," Dexter said.

Stock Collector

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A retired electrical engineer who's interested in worthless stock certificates says he's curious enough about stock from former textile conglomerate Washington Group Inc. to advertise for it.

Andrew Mickle, who says he is more interested in the stock as a curiosity item than as an investment, took out a free classified ad in a weekly Winston-Salem Journal supplement.

"I never would have been interested in this enough to buy an ad," Mickle said. "Three people called in about it, and I haven't gotten any of them to come to any decision on what they want to ask for it."

Mickle said some people collect stocks like other people collect tobacco cans or snuff cans.

"I have a little Confederate money and some defunct helicopter company's stock that came down through the family," he added. "If I get some of this Washington Group Inc., instead of having one worthless stock, I'll have two."

The Washington Group recently ended a complex journey through a U.S. Bankruptcy Court reorganization. A settlement has been proposed in a class action lawsuit brought by shareholders who claimed the company manipulated its stock prices.

A brokerage firm in New York that deals in obscure securities, has offered a bid of $10 for "Washington Group new," the stock issued after the company declared a reverse split. Another firm offered a bid of 2 cents for each share of original Washington Group stock.

Mickle said he is willing to pay 10 cents a share, and even considered offering one man a dollar for three shares, just to see what they looked like.

Flying Service

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Donnie Simpson says he just wanted to volunteer some flying time and help people when he founded Mission Air, a Monroe-based service that transports sick people for free.

Since founding the organization in January 1983, Simpson has flown 165 missions, carrying sick people into and out of North Carolina and South Carolina for treatment.

The non-profit organization operates on private donations and does not ask for payment from those it helps. Many people just give what they can, Simpson said.

"The emphasis is on people that need the service and really cannot afford it, although we do not discriminate in any way," Simpson said.

A $25,000 grant awarded by the Kate B. Reynolds Foundation in December enabled the organization to meet its operating expenses.

Tree Deaths

RALEIGH (AP) — Many scientists think acid rain or other effects of man-made air pollution are at least partially to blame for the deaths of trees in the North Carolina mountains, but one professor says the tree problem appears too complicated for fast, easy answers.

"We're not at the point right now of answering questions," North Carolina State University professor Robert I. Bruck said. "We're at the point of trying to ask the right questions."

In 1983, Bruck found signs of severe needle loss in red spruce growing at elevations of 6,350 feet or higher on Mount Mitchell.

The spruce also were declining regardless of their ages. Those in the 45-10-85-year-old range were averaging 75 percent to 90 percent defoliation.

Bruck said he recently found that what is happening on Mount Mitchell also is happening on high peaks such as Grandfather Mountain and Roan Mountain and Clingman's Dome on the North Carolina-Tennessee line.

He said the effects also can be seen at the highest point on the Blue Ridge Parkway, Richland Balsam southwest of Asheville.

Acid rain, more properly called acid deposition, is the term for the extra acidity scientists have measured in precipitation during recent years in large parts of Europe and eastern and central North America.

Hunt Says Most Goals Achieved

RALEIGH (AP) — Jim Hunt, who begins today his first job outside state government in 12 years, says his two terms in office were enough to accomplish most of his goals.

"I really think having a limit on terms is a good idea and you ought to do your job and move on," Hunt said. "I really look forward to the challenge of being in private life again."

Today, Hunt does just that as he begins his new job in the Raleigh office of the law firm of Spruill and Spruill, which is based in Rocky Mount.

Hunt occupied the governor's office for eight years, longer than any elected governor in the state's history. He led the push for a state constitutional amendment to allow the governor to serve two consecutive terms, and in 1980, became the first governor in modern times to succeed himself. In 1972, he became the state's first full-time lieutenant governor.

He buckled himself into a tan-and-rust-colored van Saturday, leaving behind his usual State Bureau of Investigation body guard and state Highway Patrol troopers who had been his chauffeurs, for a trip back to Rock Ridge.

Hunt had hoped to move on to the U.S. Senate, but lost his challenge to incumbent Sen. Jesse Helms two months ago after a bitter campaign.

After hosting a continental breakfast for political dignitaries at the Governor's Mansion, Hunt stood on the front porch of the Victorian residence and received military honors. National Guard units from Mooresville, Raleigh, Asheville and Charlotte stood at attention while the 440th Army Band from Raleigh played "The Old North State."

Hunt, escorting his wife, Carolyn, then joined the procession of state officials walking one block from the mansion to the site of the swearing-in at the state Archives Library Building. As Hunt emerged from the mansion for the last time, the crowd applauded.

On of the spectators was Jake Rudisill of Badin. Rudisill, Democratic Party chairman of the 8th Congressional District, was a Democrat among Republicans Saturday. But Rudisill said he came to the inaugural ceremony out of respect for Hunt.

GOP Freshmen Wary Of Reagan Budget

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — They intoned the name and hailed the policies of Ronald Reagan during their successful campaigns, but North Carolina's four new Republican congressmen are withholding judgement on the president's controversial spending proposals.

Bill Cobey of the 4th District, Howard Coble of the 6th District, Alex McMillan of the 9th District and Bill Hendon of the 11th District took office last week as the 99th Congress convened. All four said in interviews that they would continue to support Reagan enthusiastically, but were wary when asked about his 1985 budget.

None wanted to discuss specific items, but it was plain that at least some of them share the views of congressional leaders that the Reagan plan — which would reduce the $200 billion-plus federal deficit by less than half — may need substantial revision.

Perhaps most striking was the new congressmen's readiness to question Reagan's request for only superficial reductions in defense spending while making far deeper cuts in outlays for domestic programs. "Double-digit increases at the Pentagon, in my opinion, are out of the question," said Hendon, of Asheville, who in November regained the seat he lost to Democrat James M. Clarke in 1982. "I support the president, always have, but that doesn't mean we have to agree on everything."

"I regard myself as pro-defense, but ... I don't think the defense budget should be sacred," said Coble, of Greensboro, who left the state House to run for Congress and knocked off freshman Democrat Robin Britt.

McMillan, of Charlotte, who narrowly defeated Democrat D.G. Martin to win the seat vacated by newly elected Republican Gov. Jim Martin, said he was "ready to look at defense and all areas of the budget to economize." Cobey, a Chapel Hill resident who unseated six-term Democrat Ike Andrews, said he wanted a balanced budget but wouldn't comment on defense or other spending categories.

The state's other Republican U.S. representative, Jim Broyhill, is known as a loyal party man who nevertheless doesn't hesitate to buck Reagan when he thinks it necessary.

U.S., Soviets Open Pre-Arms Talk Session

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today ended an extended first session of their talks aimed at reviving nuclear arms negotiations.

A spokesman at the U.S. mission said the first Shultz-Gromyko session, in the Soviet mission, ran from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., an hour longer than scheduled. A second meeting, this time in the U.S. mission, began in mid-afternoon.

The American spokesman said he could give no details of the first meeting.

Both sides have made it clear that the two-day meeting is likely to set the foreign policy tone for President Reagan's second term, and the outcome of the talks could affect the entire range of U.S.-Soviet relations.

The morning meeting took place around a dark wooden table, with six chairs on each side and three bottles of mineral water in the center. "How do you feel? Are you tired?" Gromyko asked Shultz. "No, I got some sleep on the plane," Shultz replied.

In their statements Sunday, on arriving in Geneva, both Shultz and Gromyko appeared to go out of their way to avoid pressuring the other in public.

"We will meet the Soviet delegation with a constructive and positive attitude," Shultz said.

Similarly, Gromyko said his government was prepared to start down "the path of radical reductions of nuclear arms and in the long run the complete elimination of nuclear weapons."

Yet they ventured no predictions of success. At best, Shultz hopes to reach agreement with Gromyko on a schedule for the two sides to negotiate after their discussions end Tuesday.

"These are not talks to negotiate substantive agreements," Shultz told reporters on his flight from Washington.

Gromyko, meanwhile, hinted at a potential roadblock. He said one goal should be to prevent "an arms race in outer space."

The reference clearly was to blunting U.S. anti-satellite and anti-missile programs, which Shultz is bound to resist.

Gromko reminded his American bargaining partner that they had to deal with a "complex of interrelated questions."

Senior U.S. officials have declared the space weapons research program is not a bargaining chip.

For his part, Shultz wants to put the emphasis on reducing U.S. and Soviet offensive weapons. Negotiations on both medium-range and long-range missiles broke down in Geneva in late 1983 when the United States went ahead with its scheduled deployment of new nuclear missiles for NATO in Western Europe.

Top Soviet officials, including Mikhail S. Gorbachev, a potential successor to President Konstantin U. Chernenko, have said there was little hope for an agreement unless space was put off limits to the arms competition.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, today called U.S. research into space weaponry the "most dangerous" American military program in the post-war period. Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party daily, said the United States holds a "shortsighted course toward nuclear confrontation in space."

But Gromyko, while linking offensive and defensive weapon curbs, carefully avoided setting pre-conditions for progress in his meeting with Shultz.

"We would like to hope that the United States, too, will take a responsible and constructive approach toward questions to be discussed at the meeting," Gromyko said.

The 75-year-old foreign minister, who began dealing with American leaders four decades ago, spoke in English. He was bundled against the chill in a heavy overcoat and wore a dark hat.

"The Soviet Union is in favor of working out basic guidelines to orient the negotiations toward reaching mutually acceptable accords," Gromyko said.

These should include preventing an arms race in outer space and sharply reducing nuclear arms, he said.

Shultz, speaking to reporters aboard his flight to Geneva, called his Soviet counterpart "a key decision-maker."

Assisting Gromyko at the talks are Victor P. Karpov, the senior Soviet arms control negotiator; Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the ambassador to Washington; and Georgi Kornienko, the first deputy foreign minister.

Shultz had with him Paul H. Nitze, a chief U.S. negotiator whose own career exceeds four decades; Arthur A. Hartman, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow; and Jack Matlock, a Russian-speaking member of the National Security Council staff.

"We are prepared to react, to discuss anything that comes along," Shultz said.

But Shultz all but ruled out extending his Geneva visit or stopping elsewhere in Europe before flying home Wednesday to report to Reagan.

Security at the airport and at hotels was tight. Guests were required to submit to electronic searches.

Zaccaro Faces Indictment For Alleged Loan Scheme

NEW YORK (AP) — John Zaccaro, husband of Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, has been indicted on a charge of scheming to defraud in connection with the purchase and financing of five apartment buildings, prosecutors announced today.

Manhattan District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau alleged that fraud occurred when Zaccaro tried to obtain financing for the purchase of the five Queens buildings for John DeLorenzo, a Manhattan real estate investor.

Zaccaro submitted a falsely inflated contract of sale for the apartment buildings to a New Jersey mortgage broker, altered a copy of an appraisal of the buildings which was submitted to a securities firm and issued a false financial statement which overstated his net worth by more than $17 million, Morgenthau said.

Zaccaro, 51, was booked this morning on the one count and was expected to be arraigned on the indictment later in the day.

The charge is a misdemeanor, punishable by up to a year in prison.

Questions about Zaccaro's finances had dogged his wife's campaign. She complained that her own campaign themes did not reach the people because of the attention paid to her husband's alleged improprieties and to what part she had in the family finances.

Indicted along with Zaccaro was Harold Farrell, 63, of Queens, on a charge of scheming to defraud and practice of law by an attorney who has been disbarred.

Farrell was accused of participating in the allegedly fraudulent financing scheme for DeLorenzo in connection with the purchase of a building in Manhattan as well as for the Queens buildings.

The indictment said that in September 1983, Farrell paid Thomas J. Albanese, then a director of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey's credit union, $25,000 in exchange for Albanese's assistance in getting a $550,000 loan for DeLorenzo's purchase of the Manhattan building.

The loan was improper because DeLorenzo was not a member of the credit union, as required by federal regulations, officials said.

DeLorenzo has not been charged, according to Morgenthau.

Democrats Cite Hunt's Record

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Eastern North Carolinians lost a "great friend" Saturday when Jim Hunt officially handed leadership of the Tar Heel State over to James G. Martin, according to local Democrat George Saleeby.

Hunt, the first two-term governor this century, will be missed not only for what he has done for eastern North Carolina but will be missed for what he accomplished statewide in the areas of education, industry and economics, Saleeby, a former Pitt County Democratic Party chairman and now a member of the party's state executive committee, said this morning.

"He was the best communicator we ever had as far as reaching the people. And besides that, he was just a great friend," he said.

Crediting Hunt for achieving more for education than any other state leader, Saleeby praised the former governor's efforts to help establish the East Carolina University School of Medicine. "From the outset," he explained, "Hunt provided the leadership and support necessary to obtain funding to get the school started. Then he provided continuing support to help the school grow."

Hunt was also the driving force behind a move to decrease the size of elementary school classes and increase funding for the state's schools, he said.

Two Pitt Bands Perform At Inauguration

Members of the two high school bands from Pitt County that performed in Gov. Jim Martin's inaugural parade Saturday said today the trip was an experience they won't forget quickly.

The county was represented in the parade by the D.H. Conley and Farmville Central bands.

"We were very happy to be there," Farmville Central Band Director Craig Everett said. "It was a very long day — we stood in line from 11:30 a.m.-4 p.m. — but it was good for the students. They were very excited."

The Farmville band rehearsed over a month for the parade, Everett said. The 65 members performed a patriotic medley of "This Is My Country," "America the Beautiful" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The Farmville band has undergone a rebuilding process this year, Everett said, and participating in the inaugural parade helped strengthen the group. "It was good exposure for the kids," he said. "They had an opportunity to see other bands from across the state and I think it was a learning experience."

Everett said a "large number of supporters" from Farmville "followed the band to Raleigh" for the parade. "Throughout our rebuilding, the community support has been tremendous and this trip really showed that off," he said.

"We were happy to make the trip and pleased we could represent the Pitt County school system," Everett added.

Although a little chilly, the parade "turned out to be one of our best band trips," according to band director James Fleming of D.H. Conley High School. "It (the parade) was well-organized and ran very smoothly," he said. "The trip was fun — we enjoyed it very much. It was a little cold, but we had a good time." Ninety-two members of the band made the trip to Raleigh, Fleming said. The group performed the march "Mirada" for parade onlookers. The Conley band also participated in the Mardi Gras in 1982, he noted.

United Methodist Women Install New Officers

Mrs. William H. Taft Jr., originally from Thomasville, has been named president of the United Methodist Women of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. She succeeds Mrs. Edgar S. Douglas Jr., president from 1982-84.

Pat's Pointers By Pat Trexler

Even beginners can create fashion magic by knitting this quick and easy pullover vest. Wear it now over sweaters or blouses, and let it stand on its own when summer arrives.

While the model is made with designer yarns — a flecked silk-and-acrylic blend for the main color and pure cotton for the Mondrian blocks — you can use this versatile pattern with any leftover yarns that will work to a 5-stitch-per-inch gauge. Easy-to-follow directions are written for small, medium and large sizes.

To obtain directions for making the Beginner's Delight vest, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-106 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. K-106 by sending a check or money order for $23.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, and elegant designer yarns in your choice of Earth Tones or Spring Violet Tones. Be sure to specify your color choice. (The contrast color block, which shows as black in the photograph, will actually be a much lighter color in either color choice offered.)

Dear Pat: I really prefer to make crocheted edgings on knit cardigans rather than the knitted ribbing, but I need your advice on a couple of matters. When my pattern calls for a knitted ribbing, I am, of course, left on my own to decide the correct hook size. How do I decide?

Also, is there an easy way to determine how many single crochet stitches to place along the knitted edge? — Sally C., Eau Claire, Wis.

I have worked up a chart that can be used as a general guide in selecting the hook size. This chart is designed to meet average needs. You may find some patterns listing a different size hook than those shown here.

When this is the case, use the hook size specified in the pattern. The designer had a certain effect in mind when suggesting needle and hook sizes. The exception would be when you use a needle size other than the one specified in order to achieve the correct gauge in your knitting. If you use a larger knitting needle, you will probably need to use a larger crochet hook, too. The reverse would be true if you use a smaller hook.

Needle Size	Suggested Hook Size
1	Size 5 steel
2	Size 3 steel
3	Size 1 steel or B aluminum
4 & 5	Size 0 steel or C aluminum
6	Size 00 steel or D aluminum
7 & 8	Size E aluminum
9 & 10	Size F aluminum
10 1/2 & 11	Size G aluminum
13	Size H aluminum
15	Size J aluminum
17 & 19	Size K aluminum

There are several schools of thought on the best way to space crochet stitches along a knitted edge. Some instructors will simply tell you to work a crochet in each of the first two edge stitches, then skip one edge stitch, repeating in this manner along the entire edge. Personally, I find this works well with some designs, but it is not a sure-fire method.

Another choice is to first make a sample swatch of single crochet stitches to find your crocheted gauge. Let's assume that your gauge in crochet is 5 stitches to the inch and that your knitted gauge was 7 rows to the inch.

Remember that you will be working the crochet stitches in the end stitches of the knitted rows. That is why you will consider the knitted row gauge rather than the stitch gauge. This is where many people go wrong.

You don't want your front edges to sag, so, in this example, I would suggest that you work 5 single crochets to each 7 rows of knitting or to every inch, whichever is easier for you to figure.

Before you start to knit the garment, you should always make a sample swatch of at least 4 square inches. You can use this sample to test your crocheted edging, too. Just work the crochet along one edge of the swatch following one of the suggestions above.

BEGINNER'S VEST...in versatile pattern will accommodate designer yarns as well as leftovers.

If the work puckers, you need to either use another formula or choose the next larger size hook. If the crocheted edge is even slightly longer than the knitted piece, use a smaller hook or pick up fewer stitches per inch.

TOOTH-COLORED FILLINGS

If you need a filling in one of your front teeth, you'll want it to be natural-colored, like your other teeth. In some cultures, people like to have gold or silver teeth showing when they flash a smile. But most Americans prefer the natural look.

Among the materials used today are acrylic, silicate, and composite resin. The silicate filling has the advantage of containing fluoride, which is slowly released to help prevent decay. The composite resin, however, is stronger than acrylic or silicate.

Choice of filling often depends on the size of the cavity and the location of the tooth. Any area where heavy chewing and grinding takes place needs a very durable material to protect it for as long as possible.

Fortunately, the teeth "up front" in your mouth are not as subject to wear as your back teeth are. Materials that can still protect against wear but have the advantage of being natural-colored like your other teeth can often be used there. Discuss this with your dentist the next time you need tooth repair "up front."

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a volunteer firefighter. He is on call 24 hours a day, answering emergency alarms that range from a broken toe to a house going up in flames. My husband, and all the other volunteer firefighters, put their lives on the line every time they go out on a call. And they get no pay.

What do they get? Complaints from an ungrateful community. Just the other day in the supermarket I heard a woman complaining about the loud sirens and flashing lights of the fire trucks that go "tearing around town at all hours of the night and day." If it was her child or her house, maybe she'd feel differently.

Abby, I have a message for her and others who feel the way she does: Lady, I'm sorry about the noise and fast driving. Next time my husband has an alarm I'll tell him not to make any noise and to take his time.

FIREFIGHTER'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked you how much room and board per week should parents expect of grown children who are employed and living at home. Your reply: "There is no flat fee; much would depend upon the parents' finances."

Abby, I think it stinks that any parents would expect their children to pay room and board for living at home. Children don't ask to be born—their parents brought them into the world, and those parents are responsible for feeding, clothing and housing their children until they decide to leave home.

If parents are really that hard up,

I can see asking their children to help out once in a while, but as for charging them room and board, like I say, Abby, I think that stinks.

FURIOUS IN DALLAS

DEAR FURIOUS: Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Concerning how much grown, employed children should pay for living at home: Regardless of whether the parents need the money or not, their children need to learn responsibility. Furthermore, parents who allow their children to live at home for free are teaching their children to be irresponsible.

I've seen grown children live at home for years, spending their earned money only on things to pamper themselves. Consequently they never learn how to deal with responsibility in the real world.

How can parents not see this?
CONCERNED IN ARIZONA

DEAR CONCERNED: Many parents (consciously or unconsciously) provide their grown children with all the comforts of home indefinitely for free as a way to keep them from trying their wings and leaving the nest. So what may appear to be generosity is in reality a holding action.

Mental Health Perspectives
Stress, Good or Bad?
By Lorraine Shinn

Stress is the way an individual reacts to things going on within and around them. Stress is essential to life and health. It makes us alert, enables us to learn and grow, and to experience life with depth. Without some stress, we would have no motivation, no purpose and would eventually die.

There is a normal range for stress within each individual. We all have built in mechanisms to keep us within this range. Sometimes we have too many things creating stress for us, our built in mechanisms fail us and we no longer have "healthy" stress; instead we have "distress" which is simply stress out of control! Prolonged distress can create a variety of problems for us! For example:

- High Blood Pressure
- Ulcers
- Heart Attack
- Headaches

Family Problems
Problems with Fellow Workers
Problems on the Job
Alcohol and Drug Abuse
And Many Others

One of the key factors in dealing with stress before it becomes distress, is to recognize that we are over stressed and start using some stress management techniques. There are many ways in which we can learn to control stress. Physical exercise is always good (walking, swimming, sports, running, etc.). Relaxation and meditation works well. Proper rest and diet contribute to better coping with stress.

If you use any or all of these techniques and still have problems, remember a counselor can help you to isolate some of the causes of your distress and then help you work through them.

Four People Are Injured In Accidents

Four people were injured and an estimated $12,500 damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police over the weekend.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 10:46 a.m. collision Sunday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and the Belvoir Road, involving cars driven by William H. Teel of Route 4, Greenville, and Margaret B. Taylor of 1506 Halifax St.

Police, who said Ms. Taylor was injured in the collision, set damage to the Teel car at $3,000, damage to the Taylor car at $3,500, and damage to highway signs at the intersection at $200.

Sherry Wooten Jones of 2735 E. 10th St. was charged with driving while impaired and failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 3:35 a.m. mishap Saturday on 10th Street, 50 feet west of the Cedar Lane intersection.

Investigators, who said Ms. Jones was injured in the mishap, reported that her car collided with a vehicle driven by Van Calvin Fleming of 311 Stanwood Drive, causing $3,000 damage to the Jones car and $600 damage to the Fleming vehicle.

Cars driven by Doris Walston Price of Route 2, Farmville, and Margaret Elizabeth Bibb of Charlotte, collided about 5:31 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Fifth and Jarvis streets, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to each of the two cars.

Police, who said a passenger in the Price car was injured, charged Ms. Bibb with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Officers said pedestrian Mark Douglas Gaylor of Ayden received minor injuries when struck by a car operated by Penny Michelle Daniels of Route 8, Greenville, on Cotanche Street, 20 feet north of the Fourth Street intersection about 11:15 p.m. Saturday.

Investigators, who set damage to the Daniels car at $200, said Gaylor ran into the path of the car.

Violence Renewed

LONDON (AP) — Animal rights activists hurled a fire bomb at the home of a Nobel Prize-winning pharmacologist who directs a medical research laboratory where experiments on animals are conducted.

They also stoned or painted slogans on the houses of five other current or retired staffers of the Wellcome Foundation laboratory, the foundation said Sunday.

The Animal Liberation Front, in a communique to the British domestic news agency Press Association, claimed responsibility for the attacks early Sunday, including one on the home of Sir John Vane, who won the 1982 Nobel Prize for medicine.

Reproductive efficiency is an area of swine production that producers should give highest priority. The "open sow" syndrome continues to be a problem in sow herds.

One method of helping reduce the incidence of open sows is utilization of ultrasonic detectors to help diagnose pregnancy. While these detectors are no substitute for good management, they can pay for themselves quickly by helping producers detect sows that fail to settle. With ultrasonic detectors, a producer can find out with a 90-95 percent accuracy how many females have settled. These machines are most accurate when they are used between 30-45 days after breeding.

The ultrasonic detector works by using ultrasonic waves to detect fluids in the sow's uterus. Pregnancy detectors are simple to use — all it takes is proper placement of the sensor under the sow's belly. A tone usually indicates if the sow or gilt is pregnant. Cost of these instruments range from about $385 for smaller, hand-held detectors, to over $1,400 for larger machines that also detect back fat and loin measurements.

For more information on pregnancy testers, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 752-2934.

Court To Consider Bank Takeovers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether states may play favorites in choosing which out-of-state bank holding companies will be allowed to take over in-state banks.

The justices said they will study Massachusetts and Connecticut laws that allow such takeovers only if the out-of-state holding companies are based in New England.

The Federal Reserve System, while defending the two state laws, acknowledged that they and similar agreements in other regions "might well lead to a significant restructuring of the banking industry" if upheld. Federal banking law generally prohibits a bank holding company based in one state from acquiring a bank located in another. But state legislatures may allow exceptions and specifically authorize bank acquisitions by out-of-state holding companies.

That's what the Massachusetts Legislature did in 1982, and what the Connecticut Legislature did in 1983.

Both state laws, however, authorize such interstate takeovers only if the acquiring holding company is located in another England state.

Terms Extended

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Supreme Court has increased the prison sentences of two Jews convicted of involvement in terror attacks against Palestinians, Israel Radio said. The high court ruling followed government appeals against what prosecutors said were overly lenient sentences given by Jerusalem District Court. Levy Hazan, 23, of Los Angeles, was sentenced to three years in prison instead of the previous 21-month term. He was convicted of participating in a March 1984 shooting attack on an Arab bus in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, Israel radio said. Six Palestinians were injured in the attack.

The high court reportedly added 10 months to the 18-month term ordered in June for 18-year-old Israeli paratrooper Noam Yinon for illegal possession of explosives. Yinon, charged with being one of 25 members of a West Bank group that allegedly planned to blow up a Moslem shrine, was tried separately from the others.

Marino Steals Show

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

When Art Rooney, George Halas and their pals invented the National Football League, they never could have imagined a quarterback quite like Miami's Dan Marino.

Blitz him and he burns you. Flood the secondary with defenders and he'll sit back there in the pocket, coolly waiting for the opening to develop.

He is like the creation of some super computer, programmed to produce the perfect quarterback, the quintessential offensive weapon.

Consider the surgical job he did on the Pittsburgh Steelers as the Dolphins nailed down the American Football Conference championship.

He threw for 421 yards and four touchdowns, completing 21 of 32 attempts. The yardage and the TDs were both AFC playoff records and he came within 12 slim yards, a screen pass away, of the all-time NFL postseason passing record.

Now it's not as if Marino was pitching for that mark and just came up short. He never threw a pass in the final 11 minutes of the game, obviously under orders from Coach Don Shula, who insists he didn't know of the record, but implies that he wasn't as interested in running up the score as he was in just running out the clock on the Steelers and his old friend Chuck Noll. It was a decent, classy decision by a decent, classy coach.

The single game postseason passing record is 433 yards set by Dan Fouts in the memorable 41-38 shootout between San Diego and Miami a couple of seasons back. But that playoff game stretched into overtime, giving Fouts five periods in which to churn out the yards.

With Shula putting him under wraps after he had built a 24-point lead, Marino's yardage was assembled in barely over three periods.

That's remarkable or, as Noll chose to express it in his postgame handshake with Shula, "Wow!"

Perhaps the best example of Marino's magic came with just under three minutes left in the first half. The Steelers had moved into a 14-10 lead on a 65-yard Mark Malone-John Stallworth pass play and things weren't looking half-bad for Noll's team.

Marino struck right back in a drive that consumed just 82 seconds and was climaxed with a 41-yard pass to Mark Duper, making it 17-14.

Instead of taking a low profile until halftime, Malone tried a pass. Lyle Blackwood picked it off at the Steeler 39 and 33 seconds later — after a TD pass had been wiped out by a penalty — Marino had the Dolphins in the end zone again.

From 14-10 Pittsburgh with 2:38 to play in the half, the score had gone to 24-14 Miami. And the Dolphins weren't done. They took the second half kickoff and needed just four plays to travel 78 yards for another TD, the last 36 coming on a Marino-Duper pass. That drive took 1:48.

Count the 2:09 Marino needed for Miami's first TD and he used a total of 5 minutes, 42 seconds to score four touchdowns.

Wow, indeed.

Marino's fireworks were in stark contrast to the sputtering air game Chicago presented against San Francisco in the National Conference title game. In the first half Neve, on Saturday, will attempt to defend his crown on the Garden's indoor carpet, his favorite surface.

The winner of Sunday's final will pocket $100,000. Saturday's semifinals and the title match will be nationally televised by NBC.

Sundstrom was the only player in 1984 to post victories over McEnroe, Lendl and Wilander. But he lost in the semifinals of an exhibition last week in Birmingham, England, complaining of a bad shoulder that hampered his serving.

Wilander also used the British tournament to "warm up" for the Volvo Masters. But he was upset in the second round by Sammy Giammalva.

McEnroe said the Las Vegas exhibition, which also included Connors and Lendl, was a prime opportunity to get back into top condition for the Volvo Masters.

"I feel it gave me a good warmup," the New York left-hander said. "I'm certainly more confident than before. I feel like I got progressively better as the week went on."

The Sundstrom-Jarryd winner will take on McEnroe in the second round Thursday, while the Krickstein-Krick survivor will take on Wilander.

49ers Hope To Continue 11-Game Win Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Montana of the San Francisco 49ers said the Super Bowl clash with Miami's high-scoring Dolphins in two weeks "seems a long way off."

And, he added, a loss suffered by the 49ers one year ago finally seems in the distant past.

"The loss left a bitter taste, because of the way it happened. Right now, we feel great," the 49ers' quarterback said after Sunday's 23-0 shutout of the Chicago Bears in the NFC Championship game. "We thought we should have been in the Super Bowl last year. Penalties cost us the game in Washington."

"We've played with a lot of desire and pride all this season."

In last year's NFC title game, the 49ers trailed 21-0 after three quarters, rallied to tie the score, but fell 24-21 to the Redskins. Washington's drive for a winning field goal was helped along by penalties, disputed by the 49ers, against defensive backs Eric Wright and Ronnie Lott.

"In last year's game, we turned it on too late. It was a motivating factor for us this time. We turned it on from the first snap of the ball today," cornerback Wright said Sunday.

The 49ers, Super Bowl winners over Cincinnati three years ago, will take an 11-game winning streak and a 17-1 overall record to Super Bowl XIX.

"We have 17 wins, but you need 18," Coach Bill Walsh said.

Chicago moved the ball 54 yards, including 31 on runs by Walter Payton, on its first offensive possession. But Bob Thomas missed a 41-yard field goal attempt.

"That was most of their offensive production," Wright said. "Our defensive production? We shut them out."

"Payton is the kind of running back who likes to dish out punishment, and there wasn't a lot of that today. We were gang-tackling him too much."

Payton, the National Football League's all-time rushing leader, had 92 yards on 22 carries, one of them a pass attempt on which he was sacked. Quarterback Steve Fuller went down eight times on sacks, and the 49ers finished with a 387-186 yardage edge.

"I'm not going to say we've got the best defense in the NFL. That's not my job. My job is to rush the quarterback," said Gary "Big Hands" Johnson, the veteran defensive lineman who sacked Fuller twice for 19 yards in losses.

On Jan. 20 at nearby Stanford Stadium, Johnson will be rushing at Dan Marino, averaging more than three touchdown passes a game.

"Our defense can play great against Miami. We just have to play the kind of football we know we can play," Johnson said. "Our defense can do anything it wants, and that's the truth."

Miami Celebrates Win

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins planned to revel in their American Football Conference championship for less than 24 hours before beginning two more weeks of work in quest of a really "Super" celebration.

"It's the greatest feeling in the world," said defensive back William Judson said Sunday after Miami thrashed the Pittsburgh Steelers 45-28. "But tomorrow it's back to work."

The Dolphins were in a hurry to get home to watch the end of the National Football Conference championship game, which San Francisco won 23-0 over Chicago to earn the other Super Bowl berth. Then, they said they were looking forward to basking briefly in their own success.

"I know I don't look too happy now," said offensive tackle Jon Giesler, whose exhausted face was devoid of emotion, "but my insides are happy. It probably won't come out until I get home. I'll be bouncing off the walls later tonight."

Earlier in the day, Giesler was banging into pass rushers intent on smothering Dolphin quarterback Dan Marino. Giesler and the rest of the Miami offensive line did their jobs — preventing the Steelers from recording a single sack — and Marino did his part — passing for 421 yards and four touchdowns.

Marino hit just two of six passes in the first quarter, but one was a 40-yard touchdown toss to Mark Clayton. Then, the National Football League's MVP caught fire in the final two minutes before intermission, connecting on six of eight, including a 41-yard touchdown to Mark Duper and a 28-yarder to Joe Rose to set up a 2-yard Tony Nathan touchdown run.

That put the Dolphins up 24-14, and a 36-yard scoring pass to Duper early in the third period turned the game into a rout.

of that contest, the Bears' Steve Fuller threw 11 times, managing zero yards.

What's more, inventive 49er Coach Bill Walsh had come up with a running formation that utilized 271-pound rookie guard Guy McIntyre as a blocking back. Imagine Bear safety Gary Fencik's surprise when he found McIntyre leading Wendell Tyler.

For another wrinkle, Walsh offered a set that turned flanker Freddie Solomon into a quarterback. Joe Montana's job, however, seems safe.

For all of that razzmatazz, the 49ers could manage only a 6-0 halftime lead. Eventually, Montana wore the Bears down and assembled a 23-0 victory, joining Miami in the Super Bowl. It lacked the panache of the Dolphins' triumph, but Shula was pleased.

"After all this time," he said, "the two best teams with the two best records go after each other."

He sounded like he could hardly wait.

Rampant Swimmers Take Second Place

Rose High School's boys' swimming team finished second among four squads in a meet held Saturday. The Rampettes took third place in their version of the four-way encounter.

In the boys' meet, Durham Jordan took top honors with 140 points, while Rose compiled 105. Goldsboro was third with 64, while Chapel Hill had 45.

Jordan's girls also came out ahead, with 127 points, while Chapel Hill took second with 110. Rose had 88 and Goldsboro, 17.

Rose had three first place finishes among individuals in the boys' meet and also captured the medley relay in 1:47.05. Kelly Barnhill won the 50 freestyle in 22.70 and the 100 freestyle in 50.75. Paul Mark Kelly took the 100 breaststroke in 1:05.64.

Rose did not record a win in the girls' meet.

Warren Gives Pack Win Over Conley

HOLLYWOOD — Frankie Warren connected on a field goal and added a free throw to give the Washington Pam Pack a 65-63 overtime victory against D.H. Conley in 3-A non-conference high school basketball action Saturday.

Sophomore Trellaney Boyd pumped in 18 points and Angela Smith chipped in 13 to lead the Valkyries to a 45-36 win over Washington in the girls game. Lisa Mills added 11 points for Conley, now 4-8 overall. Sarah Gray paced the Lady Pam Pack with 17 points, and Gloria Sherrod added 15.

Earl Randolph led Washington with 17 points, while Steve Austin added 16 and Adrian Dudley 14. Ricky Farrow fired in 24 points for Conley, with Jeff Wright adding 11 and Steve Mills 10.

Three Conley starters — Mills, Joel Cox and Fred Bryant — fouled out in the fourth quarter, and Wright was tagged with his fifth foul in the overtime. Farrow and Dudley were ejected in the overtime period for fighting.

After trailing most of the game, the Pam Pack tied the score with 3:19 left in the fourth quarter on an Austin field goal. Washington went on to take the lead, but Farrow sank a jumper from the corner with 49 seconds left to even the score at 59-59.

Both teams had a chance to score before time ran out in the fourth quarter but failed on outside shots.

Ken Hadnott drove in for a layup with 51 seconds left in overtime to give Conley a 63-62 lead, but Warren put the Pack ahead to stay and Alton Ore added a free throw for the final margin.

The loss drops Conley to 1-10 on the season, while the Pam Pack improved its mark to 7-2. Conley opens its Coastal 3-A Conference slate hosting West Carteret Tuesday, while Washington entertains Tarboro in Northeastern Conference action.

Swedes Dominate Final Volvo Masters Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — It is only fitting that Swedes dominate the final edition of the $400,000 Volvo Masters.

The Swedish automobile company will no longer be the primary sponsor of the world-wide men's professional tennis tour following the season-ending event that begins Tuesday at Madison Square Garden. Beginning next week, Nabisco will take over as sponsor of the Grand Prix.

Two members of Sweden's victorious Davis Cup squad will kick off the Volvo Masters, a select 12-man field that contains four Swedes, as Henrik Sundstrom meets Anders Jarryd. Tuesday's second match will send young Aaron Krickstein against Johan Kriek in a battle of Americans.

On Wednesday, Sweden's Joakim Nystrom will take on American Vitas Gerulaitis, followed by another American, Eliot Teltscher, against Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia.

The top four seeds — No. 1 John McEnroe, No. 2 Jimmy Connors, No. 3 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and No. 4 Mats Wilander of Sweden — all received first-round byes. McEnroe, the reigning Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion who won an eight-man exhibition in Las Vegas,

Dolphins, 49ers Set For Super Bowl

Marino Guides Miami Past Steeler Strategy

MIAMI (AP) — It was one of those once-in-a-lifetime games — which Dan Marino seems to have every week. Now there's only one team left which can try to stop him.

"Keep it away from our offense" has been the philosophy of every team we've played this year. "Keep the ball away from Marino." And I don't see San Francisco doing anything different." Lyle Blackwood, Miami's free safety, said Sunday after his interception helped trigger the Dolphins to a record-breaking 45-28 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Conference championship game.

If the 49ers, the National Football League's best team during the season at 15-1 (to Miami's 14-2), don't do anything different — or do it better — on Jan. 20 in Super Bowl XIX, they may well be the last team of the 1984 season to fall victim to Marino, just as the Steelers and the NFL record book have.

Marino, who broke the NFL's regular-season records for yardage and touchdown passes, shattered the same AFC title-game marks, rolling up 421 yards and four scoring strikes against the Steelers. Tony Nathan and Woody Bennett also ran for short-yardage scores and Uwe Von Schamann kicked a 26-yard field goal.

They helped set a Miami record for postseason points in one game and contributed to breaking the league's two-team AFC championship mark of 61 by San Diego-Boston in 1963 and San Diego-Oakland in 1980.

"I think any team wants to control the ball against us," Blackwood said, "and you start that by a running game. So our main concern from the start would be to stop the run and then to stop Joe Montana," the 49ers' quarterback.

"San Francisco's got a very well-balanced offense — great passing but also tremendous running with Wendell Tyler and Roger Craig," Blackwood said. "I think that would be something we're most concerned about from the get-go, their running attack, because we didn't start out playing Pittsburgh's running attack very well and San Francisco would probably try to take advantage of that."

"You hear a lot about Montana," Miami linebacker Jay Brophy added, "but when you watch film, you find out they can run the ball, too. I'll have to watch a lot of film this week."

Marino completed 21 of 32 passes and didn't throw the ball in the final 11 minutes after hitting eight of nine earlier in the second half. He threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to Mark Clayton in the first quarter, 41-and-36-yarders to Mark Duper in the second and third and finished off the Steelers with a 6-yard flip to Nat Moore in the fourth.

That just about obliterated any notice of Mark Malone's afternoon. The Pittsburgh quarterback hit 20 of 36 passes for 312 yards and touchdowns covering 65 and 19 yards to John Stallworth in the second and third quarters and 29 yards to Wayne Capers with 25 seconds to play.

Even before Marino cranked up the Miami offense, its defense — and some ill-timed Steeler mistakes — took Pittsburgh out of the game.

Pittsburgh, staying almost exclusively on the ground, controlled the ball for the first five minutes and was approaching the Miami end zone when offensive pass interference by Stallworth wiped out his catch at the 11. On the next play, Malone was intercepted in the end zone by William Judson — and four plays after that, Marino and Clayton had Miami on the scoreboard.

Pittsburgh tied it on Rich Erenberg's 7-yard run later in the first period and was driving again early in the second when Walter Abercrombie's 23-yard run to the Dolphins' 9 was called back by a holding penalty. Eventually, Gary Anderson missed a 53-yard field-goal attempt.

Montana, Niners End Bears Dream

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers are flourishing in a new dimension.

Coached by an offensive innovator and having built their reputation and the best regular-season record in the National Football League on their skills with the ball, the new NFC champions head to the Super Bowl as a defensive juggernaut.

The 49ers' defense has yet to yield a touchdown in the postseason playoffs.

San Francisco captured the National Conference title Sunday by smothering the Chicago Bears 23-0, and will play the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XIX on Jan. 20 in their backyard.

They did it by registering nine sacks for a total of 50 yards lost; yielding only 186 total yards — just 37 through the air, and allowing the Bears, who were supposed to be the defensive powerhouse in this game, no closer than their 21-yard line.

"Their defense reminded me of ours," said Chicago guard Mark Bortz. "They were coming from all different angles and they have so many defensive linemen. Wherever we looked, they were right on top of us. We lost our composure a couple of times."

The San Francisco victory set up two marvelous confrontations for the Super Bowl, matching what are indisputably pro football's two best teams — the 49ers are 17-1, matching the 1972 Miami team's record for wins; the Dolphins are 16-2. San Francisco has been installed as an early 2½-point favorite, just about what oddsmakers give for the home-field edge that the 49ers should have.

The game will be played in Stanford Stadium, just 30 miles down Route 101 from the 49ers' Candlestick Park.

The first and most obvious is the quarterback matchup of Miami's record-breaking Dan Marino and the man considered one of his few peers, Joe Montana of the 49ers.

But more important may be the one between Marino and the 49er defense that has now gone 11 quarters without allowing a touchdown — indeed, the only score against San Francisco in the playoffs came on an interception return by Harry Carson of the New York Giants in San Francisco's 21-10 victory a week ago.

Sunday, it was primarily a case of San Francisco doing to Chicago what Chicago had been doing to others all year long — the Bears' 72 regular-season sacks were an NFL record and they registered seven more in terrorizing Joe Theismann and eliminating the defending National Conference champion Washington Redskins a week ago.

"It's hard to ask your guys to protect you against an excellent pass rush play after play," Chicago quarterback Steve Fuller said. "This was the most pressure I've faced this season. They just kept coming and coming."

Chicago moved the ball consistently only twice — See MONTANA page 11

Pirates Open ECAC-South Slate

Last year, East Carolina's young basketball team recorded only one victory in an ECAC-South game — against George Mason in Minges Coliseum.

Tonight at 7:30 p.m., the Pirates will be trying to open their 1985 league schedule with a victory over that same Mason team, which features one of the nation's top scorers in Carlos Yates.

The Patriots come into the contest with a 1-1 league record and a 5-5 overall mark after having lost to UNC-Wilmington Saturday night, 66-64. The win was the first in the league for the Seahawks, playing as a member for the first time this season. Brian Rowsom hit the winning basket for the Seahawks and scored 21 points in the game.

Yates, who was averaging 23.9 points a game going into the UNCW contest, scored 29 in that game. Yates, a 6-5 senior forward, was the league's co-Player of the Year with Richmond's John Newman.

In its only other league game, George Mason rolled up a 104-78 win over American, the league's other new member for 1984-85.

Mason returns four of five starters from last season's team that set a school record in recording 21 wins in 28 games. Joining Yates in returning roles are 6-3 junior guard Ricky

Wilson, 6-7 forward Vincent McQueen and 6-5 sophomore forward Rob Rose. McQueen, by the way, is the brother of N.C. State center Cozell McQueen.

The other starter is 6-4 freshman Brian Miller.

All but McQueen are averaging in double figures. Rose is scoring 14.8, Wilson, 14.7, and Miller, 11.2. Against Wilmington, however, only Rose added double figure scoring to Yates' total with 12.

East Carolina is currently led by Curt Vanderhorst, hitting 17.4 points a game, while William Grady is scoring at a 16.6 clip.

The series between the two teams has been an exciting one. Mason leads its, four wins to three, but only two of the seven games has been decided by more than three points. One of those was the second game between the two, at Fairfax, last year, when Mason took a 70-57 win. ECU won the first matchup, 66-64. ECU's other wins were by 70-68 and 68-65, while GMU has recorded an 83-66 win to go with a 69-68 and a 59-58 win.

The Pirates will be trying to win a conference game for the first time in six outings, having lost the five games that followed that last win over Mason.

East Carolina comes into the game on a two-game winning streak, and a victory would equal the longest streak they've had since way back in 1974-75, when they last won as many as four in a row.

It would also mark the first time ECU has been 6-4 since that same season.

The game is one of six league clashes this week, and one of two involving the Pirates. ECU hosts William & Mary on Saturday night after meeting #2 ranked Duke in a non-conference affair in Durham on Wednesday. Other conference matchups have UNC-Wilmington at Navy on Monday, Navy at Richmond on Thursday, and James Madison at Navy and Richmond at UNC-Wilmington on Saturday.

Abdul-Jabbar Sinks Winning Shot

By The Associated Press
 Earvin Johnson was out with a sprained finger, so Kareem Abdul-Jabbar put on a magic show of his own.

Abdul-Jabbar hit a 12-foot jumper as time expired Sunday night to lift the Los Angeles Lakers to a 99-98 National Basketball Association victory over the San Antonio Spurs, who had taken a one-point lead with three seconds left on two free throws by Artis Gilmore.

"Tonight we had to make our own breaks," said Abdul-Jabbar, who led all scorers in the game with 28 points and all rebounders with 11. "It seems that things were going against us. It was a nice game to win, and not having Magic in there caused things not to flow smoothly, but we played hard like we always do and things worked out for the best."

The Spurs were expecting Abdul-Jabbar, the NBA's all-time leading scorer, to take the final shot, but Michael Cooper, who 13 points and 14 assists for the Lakers, managed to get the ball in to him. He decided against taking his famous sky hook in favor of a jump shot from the baseline.

"There were four guys surrounding me waiting for the hook, but I used my baseline jumper," Abdul-Jabbar said. "We practiced that over the last week and the only time I use it is when I don't have the hook."

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday night, Portland swamped Indiana 118-101 and Utah mauled Houston 121-92.

Lakers Coach Pat Riley said the key to the game-winning basket was getting the ball to Cooper on the throw-in after a timeout.

"As soon as the ball went into Kareem, we were going to have a shot and we just had to wait and see if it would drop," Riley said.

"We played some good defense down the stretch and we made things happen," Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "But give the Lakers credit for getting down inside to Kareem. He is a great player. I have no complaints on the last play. You can't determine if it's going to go in or not. We did all we wanted to do. He made a fabulous shot."

Principals Balk At Plan To Drop Tenure Policy

By The Associated Press
Those who oppose a tenure law for principals say it most benefits the people whom society least wants to see in public schools — incompetent principals — but some state principals' organizations disagree.

Under the Fair Employment and Dismissal Act, adopted by the state legislature in 1972, teachers and principals are granted tenure after working three years in a position.

"Every employee is entitled to reasonable job security, but that needs to be balanced against what we believe is some reasonable security for taxpayers and students that competent educators are working in our schools," said Gene Causby, executive director of the North Carolina School Boards Association, which has proposed that principals be removed from the state tenure law.

"We frankly feel that under the current conditions, it is out of balance in favor of the employee," he said.

The association represents the 142 school boards in North Carolina, but it does not reflect the position of any individual board.

But some state principals' organizations say that while many educators nationwide are trying to broaden the responsibilities of school principals, "the North Carolina principal is not being identified as the education leader and decision-maker in the school."

A position paper issued recently by a group representing the state's three principals' associations cites the school boards association's current attempt to have principals removed from the state tenure law as an example that would require them to negotiate contracts as superintendents do.

The fair employment law gives school employees job security and protects them from being fired capriciously, its supporters say.

The school boards association plans to ask the state legislature to remove principals from the tenure system and to have the principals negotiate five-year contracts, with the last year of the contract being a probationary year, Causby said.

Officials say the issue may be addressed by the Legislature as early as next month and some of the state's 3,000 principals are starting to worry.

Jerry Peoples, the principal at West Forsyth High School and president of the N.C. Principals-Assistant Principals Association, said that the Legislature would create far more problems than it would solve by taking tenure away from principals.

Peoples said that many of the state's school systems have experienced instability in the position of superintendent in recent years. At the same time, he said, "the one administrative position that has remained stable is the principal's."

"If the principals' contracts are not tied to the superintendents' we would lose that stability," he said.

Less than half of the superintendents in North Carolina in 1973 held the same position today, according to a spokesman for the N.C. Association of School Administrators.

According to Causby, the association's position does not mean that it believes that many principals are incompetent. The vast majority are good people and quality educators, he said.

There are a few who don't belong in their jobs, however, and it is those principals whom the association wants to reach by tying them to service contracts, Causby said.

"Under the terms of the current tenure law, you can deal with blatant employee incompetence," Causby said. "We don't believe it is adequate in dealing with marginal employees."

A Craig Phillips, the state superintendent of public instruction, and C.D. Spangler, the chairman of the State Board of Education, also support removing principals from the tenure law — but they favor the idea for a different reason.

Phillips and Spangler say they think that schools are run most effectively by an "administrative team," led by superintendents and principals. Having a cohesive team is difficult when superintendents are under contract and principals are employed under the tenure system, they say.

"It does not appear to me that the best organizational structure is one where management is protected by tenure," Spangler said.

Spangler said he intends to raise the question of principals' tenure at the State Board of Education meeting next month. Any changes in the tenure law would have to be made by the General Assembly.

Deputy Shot In Cleveland

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A Cleveland County sheriff's deputy is in serious but stable condition after being shot three times at a Shelby drug store by a man allegedly trying to forge a prescription, authorities say.

Donald E. Barkley Jr., 26, was being moved from the recovery room to the intensive care unit early this morning after undergoing surgery Sunday night, said Janice Mobley, night supervisor at the Charlotte facility.

Barkley killed the suspect, whose name has not been released, authorities said.

The incident began about 5 p.m. when a man and woman entered the Revco Discount Drug Center at a shopping center on U.S. 74 east of Shelby, according to Dan Crawford, assistant district supervisor for the State Bureau of Investigation.

A pharmacist became suspicious of a prescription the couple presented and called the sheriff's department, Crawford said.

The couple left the store when Barkley arrived. A confrontation followed in the parking lot, Crawford said.

The man pulled a handgun and shot Barkley three times, he said. Barkley returned the fire, killing the man.

Barkley was transported to Cleveland Memorial Hospital in Shelby about 6:30 p.m. A Cleveland Memorial spokeswoman said Barkley was shot in the chest, neck and hand.

Because his injuries were serious and would require surgery, he was taken to Mercy Hospital where he arrived about 8:30. He was undergoing about 9 p.m. the spokeswoman said.

'Toughness' Follows Female TV Anchor

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Sandi Freeman wasn't all that eager to confront Cable News Network chief

Ted Turner on her interview show. Let it be somebody else's fantasy to embarrass the boss on national television.

"I said on the air that I felt like I was between a rock and a hard place," said Ms. Freeman, anchor of CNN's live interview show, "The Freeman Report." "I said a little part of me wants to work here tomorrow."

Ms. Freeman did the interview with Turner, and he still signs her paycheck. "Ted's very forthcoming. He speaks his mind," she said. "He was great about it — he said, 'I don't expect you to be soft on me.'"

Throughout her career, the subject of toughness has shadowed Ms. Freeman, as it has almost every female TV broadcaster, in part because of the limited roles women have been permitted to play in the medium and because of the rigid mind-set of many male executives.

There are corporate types at CBS, for example, who say that Diane Sawyer was too tough on the "CBS Morning News" and didn't appeal to female viewers. So when she left for "60 Minutes," CBS replaced her with Phyllis George, who is supposed to attract women with her wholesomeness and family snapshots. There was a time when a smiling presence was all TV executives wanted from Ms. Freeman. In the early 1970s, she worked as a "co-host" on the morning show at WLS-TV in Chicago. Her job was to look cheerful and pleasant.

But not so beautiful as to make the women at home uncomfortable, the almighty researchers said. That's when she was handed a wig to cover her long blond hair. The wig looked like a hard hat with curls and felt worse; its elastic cut into her scalp. "After a while, my head couldn't breathe," she said.

In her stint at WLS, a half dozen male hosts came and went, but she says she was never considered for anything more than window dressing.

"Their research said that the typical audience was a 33-year-old housewife, and all they wanted to see was a macho man, an authority figure," said Ms. Freeman. "So they would hire somebody with no experience. What the station didn't see was that women were ready to identify with another woman."

Today, Ms. Freeman has more time on national TV in prime time than any other TV journalist, male or female. Five nights a week, at 9 p.m. EST, her New York-based "Freeman Report" on CNN explores an issue, newsmaker or personality in detail. CNN is in 31 million TV homes, and "The Freeman Report" averaged 314,000 households a night last November.

Last summer, she traveled to the Middle East, where, within 11 days, she interviewed Jordan's King Hussein, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, President Amin Gemayal of Lebanon, Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and the PLO's Yassir Arafat.

"It took four years to put together that Middle East series," said Ms. Freeman.

She's just returned from a trip to the Soviet Union, and she'll use some of the interviews on a Jan. 15 "Freeman Report" about arms control, which will run in conjunction with the broadcast of the nuclear aftermath film "Threads" on Turner's SuperStation WTBS.

Sting Gets Film Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Sting, the rock singer turned movie actor, will star as Dr. Charles von Frankenstein in "The Bride," the latest film version of the classic monster story, says People magazine.

"Dr. Frankenstein makes the wrong decisions in the end, goes mad and is pure evil. He's like us all, a victim of circumstances, but the architect of his own doom." Sting, the 35-year-old member of the rock band Police, said in an interview in this week's issue of People.

Sting, who won favorable reviews for his first movie role as a villain in the science-fiction epic "Dune," also has a part in "Plenty," which stars Meryl Streep and Sir John Gielgud.

Sting said he enjoys acting because "you get to express all those pent-up emotions. You can kill, run over people, shoot, behave like a monster and work them all out of your system."

Broderick Crawford Stricken By Stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar-winning actor Broderick Crawford, who starred in the 1950s television series "Highway Patrol," was in UCLA Medical Center this weekend after reportedly suffering a mild stroke.

Crawford's family is "requesting that we not discuss his condition," staffing coordinator Victor Mitry said Sunday night.

An unidentified spokesman for the 73-year-old actor was quoted in Saturday's Los Angeles Herald Examiner as saying Crawford suffered the stroke and was admitted to the hospital New Year's Eve.

Crawford won an Academy Award for his portrayal of an increasingly corrupt Southern politician in the 1949 film "All the King's Men."

Striking Musicians To Seek New Talks

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Striking San Antonio Symphony musicians say they will ask a federal mediator to push for new talks in an attempt to end the 2-day-old strike that threatens performances by big-name guest stars.

The 83-member orchestra walked off the job Saturday night, less than an hour before a near-sellout performance. The strike could force the cancellation of performances tonight and Tuesday.

The strikers say they are seeking salary parity with other major orchestras in the United States. Symphony officials say the orchestra is just coming out of a financial crisis and can't afford a more generous contract.

Union spokeswoman Ellen McGlone said late Sunday the musicians would ask a federal mediator today to arrange talks.

Nevertheless, symphony Managing Director Carlos Wilson expressed little hope tonight's concert, featuring flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal, could go on as scheduled.

"It's doubtful we can resolve it in one day," Wilson said. "Everything happening Monday and Tuesday and in the immediate future is in jeopardy."

Musicians continued to walk picket lines Sunday at the Lila Cockrell Theater, where concerts are held, and at the symphony office a few blocks away. A special concert Tuesday featuring violinist Itzhak Perlman also is threatened by the strike.

Musicians union president Johnny Estrada said the artists are planning several small concerts throughout the city as a public relations effort and to raise money because they don't have a strike fund.

The musicians, Estrada said, are ready to negotiate "any time day or night. We're just waiting on them."
