Reagan Switches Advisory Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, making a surprising clean sweep of his "Big Three" advisers, announced today that his chief of staff, James A. Baker III, and his treasury secretary, Donald T. Regan, are switching jobs.

Reagan praised both and said they had asked for new assignments. The two men flanked Reagan as he read the announcement before television cameras in the White House briefing room.

Many reporters had expected a presidential statement on developments in the arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland, with Soviet leaders.

Reagan, who will hold his first prime-time news conference in six months on Wednesday night, brushed aside questions. "Tomorrow night," he said.

The president said Regan and Baker had "served loyally and admirably at considerable personal sacrifice."

He also said that "after four grueling years in their positions, their desire for change is understandable" and that each "is extremely well suited for his new assignment."

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III already has been renominated to be attorney general, succeeding William French Smith, who wants to return to private life in California. Deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver announced last week he would resign to take a job outside government. His position will not be filled.

The switch was engineered by Regan, who came to Baker "several days ago" and proposed that they change jobs, said White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes. The Treasury secretary stipulated that he did not want the chief of staff post if Deaver were interested in it.

Once Deaver took himself out of the running, Regan and Baker went ahead with planning for their switch, Speakes said.

Reagan had no idea that they were even contemplating such a move until Monday morning, when Deaver presented the plan to the president on behalf of Baker and Regan, the spokesman added.

Today's announcement caught Treasury Department employees by surprise. Secretaries and top-ranking officials alike huddled around televisions listening to the announced switch.

Housing Panel OKs Loan Costs

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Housing Authority approved a resolution Monday authorizing the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to pay off mortgage costs on its Hopkins Park Development.

Constructed in 1978, Hopkins Park consists of 111 units and cost approximately $3 million. The development is located off Evans Street.

In other business, authority Director Joe Laney delivered a report on Housing Authority operations for calendar year 1984.

According to Laney, the authority realized a 9 percent increase in rental income in 1984, which will be reflected in an 84 percent increase in GHA's annual payment-in-lieu of taxes submitted to the city. The authority, though not its residents, is exempt from local, state and federal taxes because it is a non-profit corporation.

Other factors Laney cited as contributing to the increase in GHA's payment to the city include relatively low utility costs in 1984 due to mild weather and the first evidence of reduced utility costs resulting from recent comprehensive energy conservation improvements.

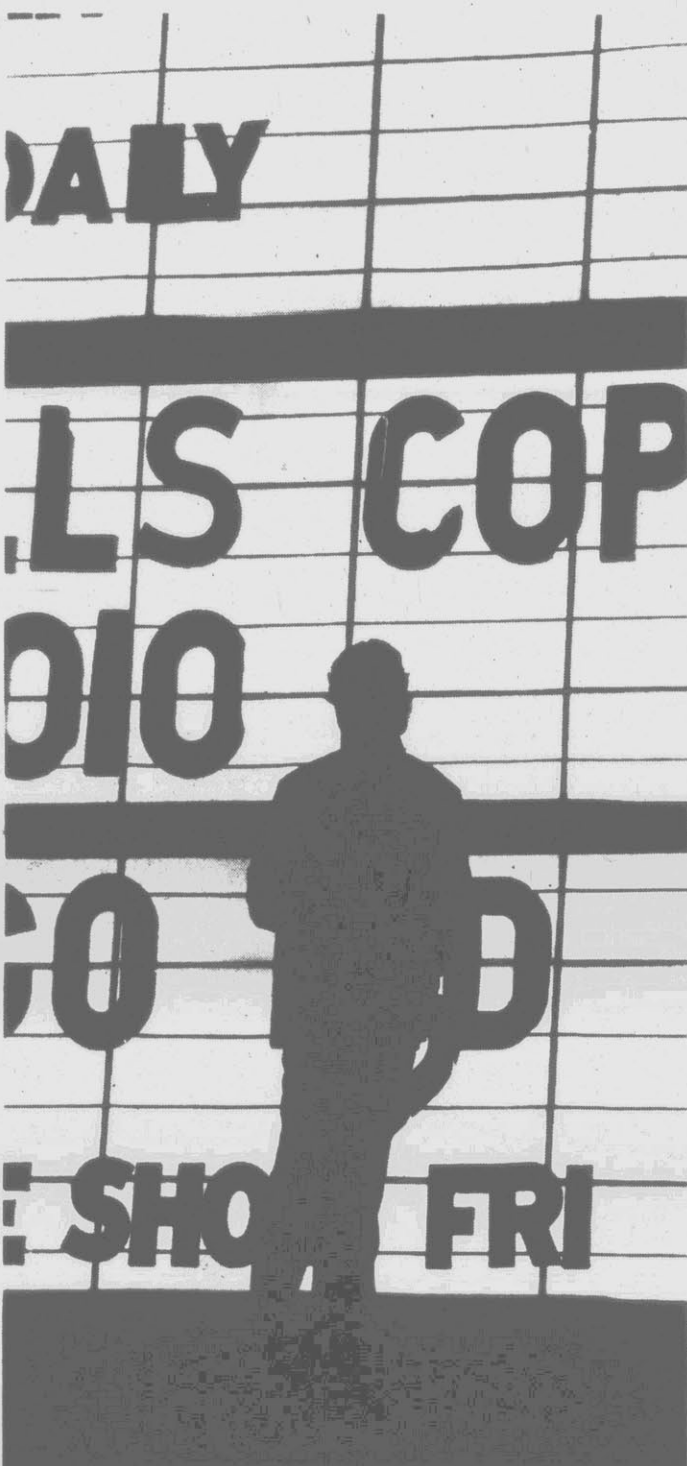

Laney also reported that GHA saw 80 new units completed in 1984 — 40 units of conventional public housing in the West Meadowbrook area (slated for occupancy later this month) and 40 units of private assisted housing in Greentree Village. The authority now operates 702 housing units and provides standard housing for over 2,000 residents, over 50 percent of whom are widowed elderly or disabled, 28 percent low-income working families who receive no public assistance, and 22 percent, residents receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

The main thrust of GHS in the new year, Laney told Authority members, will be to continue modernization of older projects with emphasis on energy conservation. He said Phase I of the comprehensive modernization program at Kearney Park including installation of storm doors and windows, energy efficient furnaces and water heaters, and weather stripping, was completed in early 1984 and that Phase II modernization efforts have been started. Upon completion of Phase II, Laney said Kearney Park units will be completely refinished interior and exterior and will be up to modern energy efficient standards.

Laney reported that GHA committed $800,000 of its own operating funds in the past five years to renovation, energy improvements, and installation of a computerized business system at the Authority's Broad Street office. Expenditure of remaining operating funds, Laney said, will permit the Housing Authority to complete modernization of 65 units in Meadowbrook, bringing the project to a level comparable to Kearney Park without assistance from HUD.

In final business, Assistant GHA Director Ken Nolan and Laney reported full occupancy of all Authority units except four units of private housing leased by the authority for rental to income eligible families (Section 8). Laney said 116 of 120 existing Section 8 units were occupied and 107 of 108 moderate rehabilitation Section 8 units were occupied.

Shoffner Named Public Defender

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville attorney Robert (Bob) L. Shoffner Jr. has been appointed public defender for the 3rd Judicial District, which covers Pitt and Carteret counties.

Shoffner was appointed to a four-year term Friday by Gov. Jim Hunt on his last day in office, and was sworn in Saturday morning in a brief ceremony in Greenville by Judge David Reid Jr.

A resident of Greenville since the summer of 1971, Shoffner has been the assistant public defender since the office opened here in January of 1981. He succeeds outgoing public defender Don Hix.

A native of Burlington, Shoffner received his undergraduate and law degrees at UNC-Chapel Hill. For three years he taught at Lenoir Community College in Kinston before he opened a law practice in July 1970, first in Kinston and then for a short time in Grifton before coming to Greenville in 1971.

His wife is the former Linda Baldwin of Siler City, and the couple has two children, Robert L. Shoffner, III, 5, and Elizabeth, 2. He is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

"It is my hope that the office of the public defender will be able to adequately represent persons entitled to such service, that as public defender I can be an asset to the court system," Shoffner said.

Shoffner also expressed "appreciation for this opportunity to serve people in this district, and gratitude to all who have supported me for this position."

Pitt Board Gives Final Approval To Phone Change

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday gave final approval for the purchase of new telephone equipment for the courthouse and the health and mental health departments, and an up-date of the present system at the county office building, at a total cost of $176,450, or a net monthly cost increase for equipment over a 7-year lease-purchase plan of $1,285.

The purchase of the equipment, from Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. the low bidder, was based on recommendations made by Telephone Consultants of Virginia, following a study of the county's present telephone system and projected needs.

Telephone Consultants' president, Henry Holloway, said the new systems, which will allow county offices to use the North Carolina State Telephone Network (STN), could save more than $12,400 a year on long distance calls and trunk line charges. He noted that the county is presently paying about 27.7 cents a minute to place direct distance dialing calls, while the cost for long distance service using the STN would be 12 cents a minute.

The new telephone system to be installed at the courthouse includes the equipment needed to provide 911 emergency phone service to all county residents.

At an earlier meeting, Holloway explained that with 911 service, any resident in Pitt County could reach an emergency center capable of handling all types of emergency calls by dialing the three digits "9-1-1" on any phone in the county. The total cost of the 911 service to the county, Holloway said, would amount to about $118,800 a year, or $14,300 more than the cost of the present system, which now uses regular seven-digit and operator-assisted "Zenith" service (for persons living in areas where calls to the emergency communications center are "long-distance").

Monday, Holloway cited several alternatives to a full 911 system, but recommended a full, county-wide 911

Waters To Head Parole Division

RALEIGH — C. Monroe Waters of Winterville has been named to the position of Director of the Division of Adult Probation and Parole in the North Carolina Department of Corrections. Announcement of the appointment was made late Monday by Secretary of Corrections Aaron Johnson.

In this position, Waters will be responsible for the overall operation of the probation and parole division. He will set, with Johnson's approval, policies and procedures for the division and recommend personnel changes.

Waters will also work closely with other department officials on legislative proposals presented to the General Assembly.

"Monroe's training and practical experience in probation and parole through vocational rehabilitation will be a great asset to my department," Johnson said.

Waters is a veteran of 11 years in work counseling prisoners and parolees and has received training in counseling and instruction from Central Piedmont Community College.

He replaces W. Charles Cohoon, who was told Friday by the new Republican administration that he would not be retained in the post.

Waters is married to the former Lorraine Buck of Winterville. They are the parents of three daughters, Sherrie, Michelle and Lorie Anne. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Waters of Winterville.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

Hotline is being used as a last resort to try to locate a 13-year-old female golden retriever named Tanna. Television and newspaper notices have already been tried. She was lost New Year's Day in the Englewood area of Greenville. She's long been the constant companion of a 68-year-old man. Together they took four-mile walks every day. Whoever has her or information about Tanna's whereabouts is asked to call R.N. Merritt, 752-3736 or 756-3564. He is offering a reward.

Kennedy Warns Apartheid Must Be Abolished

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy warned South African business leaders today that they must work for "concrete actions" to end apartheid or risk increasing world isolation that could destroy their nation's powerful economy.

He said statements of goodwill were no substitute. Kennedy said in an address to 600 prominent businessmen that the limited racial reform in recent years, "which only slightly corrects a staggering iniquity, has been accompanied by continuing repression and retrogression. "In too many areas, too many blacks have fallen too far behind."

The Massachusetts Democrat, on the fourth day of a nine-day tour of South Africa, said he would withhold comment on the debate on withdrawing U.S. investments from South Africa until after his trip.

But he added, "In fairness, I feel I should caution you that neither the American people nor the Congress will be satisfied with the repetition of generalities without real movement toward a new reality in South Africa ... We cannot accept statements of goodwill as a substitute for concrete actions to achieve fundamental rights."

Apartheid is the South African white-minority government's system of racial separation, which black leaders complain works to discriminate against the nation's 22 million black majority in jobs, housing and the like.

Kennedy said South Africa can resist mounting pressure from outside and from its own people "and function for a while as an isolated minority within a nation largely isolated in the world." But he said this makes no sense politically.

After noting that South Africa has a powerful economy, with huge gold, vanadium and platinum deposits, he asked, "But is this a reason to be complacent about conditions which could soon endanger all your prosperity, and which already limit your growth at home and your commerce abroad? You have mastered the world of technology and trade, but what if the failure of your politics one day destroys the stability of your enterprise?"

Kennedy said the right to organize trade unions freely would be a major test of businessmen's commitment to change.

He called laws requiring blacks to carry passes outside tribal homelands a barrier to freedom and free enterprise.

Kennedy suggested that recent changes creating separate chambers of the all-white Parliament for Asian and mixed-race minorities "only avoids the decisive issue, which is full and equal citizenship."

He welcomed a statement Monday night by the six South African business federations calling for removing major apartheid laws, saying, "It could be an important milestone — if it not only reflects a sentiment, but signals genuine change. The heart of the matter is to translate the words into deeds, the paper into policy."

Business, Kennedy said, must encourage the government to permit dissent.

The senator quoted his late brother, President John F. Kennedy, as saying in 1962: "Those who make peaceful revolution impossible will make violent revolution inevitable."

The statement by the business federations, which employ 80 percent of the nation's workers, was the strongest yet by businessmen against South Africa's apartheid policies. The federations said they were committed to giving the voteless black majority "meaningful political participation," and common citizenship for all South Africans.

They also opposed "the forceful removal of people," a reference to the government's policy of moving black villages to 10 tribal homelands from areas declared white, which Kennedy criticized earlier in the day.

Nixon Ailing

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon is in "excruciating pain" at his New Jersey home with a case of the shingles which has plagued him for the last month, the New York Daily News reported today.

A friend of the former president told the News that Nixon's physician, Dr. Harvey Klein, called it "the worst case of shingles he has ever seen. It has affected the president's upper back and his shoulders and he is experiencing excruciating pain."

The disease is caused by the chicken pox virus and affects the nerve endings, often resulting in blisters and sores.

Nixon, who turns 72 on Wednesday, finished work on his latest book — "No More Vietnams" — despite coming down with the ailment in December, the report said. Nixon has not been hospitalized with the condition but has remained in his Saddle River, N.J., home.

Search Suspended For Jet Victims

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The U.S. Embassy says efforts to recover the bodies of the 29 people killed in the crash of an Eastern Airlines jet have been suspended to avoid endangering the lives of search crews.

Press attache Steve Seche said Monday a U.S. Air Force helicopter would continue trying to reach the wreckage on Illimani Mountain, but its objective would be to retrieve the "black box" flight recorder from the Boeing 727 that crashed a week ago. Eight Americans were among the 29 people on board.

Seche said base camps set up at the foot of the 21,000-foot mountain were being dismantled and the climbers have been instructed to return.

Bernardo Guarachi, a Bolivian mountaineer who reached the crash site on Saturday after a three-day climb, told reporters in La Paz he believed it would take four men six days to retrieve just one body. He said he recommended that recovery efforts by land be suspended until May, when there is less precipitation.

Guarachi said the plane had exploded on impact and there were no survivors.

Eastern flight 980 was en route to La Paz from Asuncion, Paraguay, when it crashed 25 miles southeast of La Paz.

Three feet of snow have fallen on the mountain slopes since the crash, and only small pieces of the plane's wing section and fuselage were visible from the air.

The U.S. Embassy, Eastern Airlines and the Bolivian air force had arranged for Guarachi to lead a three-man search team to determine if there were any survivors.

A U.S. Air Force helicopter has been brought in and will try to retrieve the flight recorder this week, according to Eastern Airlines spokesman Feliz Forespieri. He said it is hoped the recorder will reveal why the plane was 13 miles off course when it crashed into the mountain.

Probe Launched

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's space agency today launched a satellite designed to conduct a fly-by probe of Halley's Comet. It will be the first Japanese spacecraft to leave the Earth's field of gravity.

The solar orbiter was launched at 4:26 a.m. from the Kagoshima Space Center on the southern tip of Kyushu, Japan's southern main island, according to a space center official, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The 286-pound satellite is to leave Earth's gravitational field sometime Friday to be put in orbit around the sun.

Halley's Comet, named after the English astronomer Edmund Halley, swings around the sun every 76 years, last appeared in 1910 and is due again in about November of 1985.

Harrell-Whitley Vows Solemnized Dec. 29

Wendy Marie Whitley and Mark Andrew Harrell were married at 2 p.m. Dec. 29 in the Webbs Chapel Baptist Church. The Rev. George Burdette and the Rev. Jerry Holcomb officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Donald Whitley of Route 1, Macclesfield. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Millard Harrell of Macclesfield.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her uncle, Ronald Murphy of Snow Hill. She wore a floor length gown styled with a chapel train of traditional bridal satin with re-embroidered alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured a Victorian neckline with a deep V-illusion yoke outlined with alencon lace motifs and alencon lace leg o'mutton sleeves accented with satin rosettes and fastened with bridal buttons. Alencon lace motifs encrusted with seed pearls applied the bodice. Alencon lace motifs accented the satin skirt and scalloped garlands of alencon lace bordered the hemline of the gown. She wore a chapel mantilla of bridal illusion bordered with scalloped and alencon lace motifs flowing from a lace designed caplet etched with seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white miniature carnations, ivy, baby's breath and American beauty sweetheart roses with flowing streamers of wine and white satin ribbons.

Pam Forehand, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Ginger Crisp of Macclesfield, Angie Hinnant of Snow Hill, Denise Proctor of Raleigh, Melanie Spencer of Swan Quarter and Cheryl Felton of Sumter, S.C.

Junior bridesmaids were Leslie Whitley of Macclesfield and Amy Harrell of Pinetops. Tracy Gray of Snow Hill was flower girl.

Justin Stott of Wilson was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Jason Harrell of Macclesfield, Kenneth Harrell of New York, brothers of the bridegroom, Jay Harrell and Ralph Webb of Macclesfield and Jet Webb of Chapel Hill.

Wedding music was presented by Alice Cobb of Pinetops, pianist, Brenda Stallings of Macclesfield, organist, and Emerson Hobgood of Farmville, soloist.

After the ceremony the bride's family entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. An after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall.

Nita Harrell and Brinkley Harrell of Macclesfield directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Southwest Edgecombe High School and will be graduating from the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy in May. The bridegroom is a graduate of South Edgecombe High School and Durham Technical Institute in respiratory therapy. He is medical equipment manager with H.P.I. in Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Treasure Cay in the Bahamas the couple will live near Macclesfield.

The bride was entertained with several showers prior to the ceremony. The bridegroom was honored at a luncheon at the Carlton House in Rocky Mount.

Industry Searching For Homemakers

A national search for four "new traditional homemakers" is being conducted by America's frozen food industry.

The homemakers place high value on nutrition and provide appetizing meals for themselves and their families.

The winners will become spokespeople for the frozen food industry and will make media appearances around the country describing how they live, work, entertain, spend leisure time and provide meals for themselves, families and friends. They will also talk about frozen foods they eat.

Each winner will receive a cash prize. Following professional media training, the homemakers will be introduced at a press conference and will tour three cities on behalf of the frozen food industry. The winners will appear on television and radio shows, meet with magazine and newspaper editors and talk with other "new traditional homemakers."

Interested persons should call the Agricultural Extension Service at 752-2934 for an application. The deadline is Jan. 15.

Bright Kids Who Are Pushed Ahead May Be Pushed Too Far

DEAR ABBY: I must comment on pushing bright students through school too fast. I speak from experience.

As a boy I attended an excellent elementary school in the Midwest and was pushed ahead by my parents and teachers. I graduated from high school at barely 16, with a year of college credits.

It's no fun being the only kid in the showers with no pubic hair, the only kid in the class whose voice hasn't changed, and one of the last to be chosen for a team. I hated gym. I couldn't hack it in sports, so I made it big in debate, drama, the school paper, etc.

After I married, my kids were also good students, but I made sure they stayed in classes with kids their own age.

You say bright kids get bored if they're held back. I say good teachers know how to give extra-bright students additional projects to keep learning a challenge.

TOM IN BERKELEY

DEAR TOM: Well said. I heard from many readers who share your view, but not one parent, teacher or former student wrote to defend the practice of allowing super smart kids to skip grades.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old man scheduled for elective surgery in a few months.

My wife and I happen to know several women (socially) who are registered nurses, and my wife's younger sister is also an R.N.

My wife wants me to engage one or more of these women as my private-duty nurses during my hospitalization. I told her I prefer nurses who are strangers to me. She says if I engage strangers, her sister and our friends will feel insulted.

Knowing the intimate care nurses must give their patients, I'd feel more comfortable having nurses I'll never see socially. I would hate to sit across a dinner table from a woman who had given me a bath, etc.

If you understand how I feel, please explain it to my wife. She simply doesn't get my point.

SHY GUY

DEAR SHY: I understand how you feel. Your feelings in this matter outrank those of your wife's sister and the nurses you know socially. As a matter of fact, they also outrank your wife's. Select your own nurses and don't apologize.

DEAR ABBY: Some weeks ago you published a letter from "Nameless," who was hurt when she discovered that a gift she had given to her next-door neighbor had been put out to sell in the neighbor's yard sale. "Nameless" asked if she was "wrong" to feel hurt. Your reply: "Feelings are neither right nor wrong. In this instance, I think they were appropriate."

I disagree with you, and submit this charming poem by Jane Merchant:

Whatever gift I give to you is yours. Give it away, or keep it, as you will. The special books, the china miniatures, The little birds carved with beguiling

Only the thighs of turkey are used to make turkey ham.

DEAR ABBY: I am the secretary of a very successful business executive. For several years now, my boss has been giving me a Christmas present "for another year of faithful service." He takes me to lunch—just the two of us.

My boss is a fine man and we get along well in the office, but whatever gave him the idea that lunching with him is some sort of "gift" is beyond me. Rather than a gift, it is actually a tense hour during which I must pretend to be totally engrossed in what he has to say (always about himself) and thank him yet for the privilege of being a one-woman audience for his boring monologue.

I make a good salary, and lunching out is no big deal for me. (I do it every day.) His company is nothing special either. I see him eight hours a day, five days a week.

I can think of no way to decline his invitation without causing hard feelings. Perhaps a word in your column would wise up my egomaniacal boss—and others like him.

NOT HUNGRY (SKIP THE CITY)

DEAR NOT HUNGRY: An egomaniacal boss would never see himself in this letter, but it may be worth a shot.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

I was talking with a mother who annually gathers together all the dust balls in the house and lets the kids jump in them, when lo and behold, what to her wondering eyes should appear — under the bed, no less — but a Cabbage Patch doll.

The doll was half-clothed, stain-ridden, and had a wet towel draped over it. My friend couldn't believe her eyes.

Was this the doll she had put 15,000 miles on her Toyota to track down? Was this the doll she had baptized and for which she put a codicil in the will? was this the doll for which she had marched in protest in the streets because the manufacturer was late with her birthday card?

Tell her it wasn't the doll she had to produce or sit by and watch her daughter hold her breath until she passed out!

"I don't understand it," she said. "This baby was the most important thing in my daughter's life. For the first couple of weeks you couldn't pry it out of her arms. Why, the entire family was planning their vacation around it just as soon as her diaper rash cleared up. What happened?"

What happened is the "Lust-to-dust" syndrome. It's things your children cannot live without — until they get them.

I remember the puppy that came to live at our house whose four little paws never touched the floor for two solid weeks. Then the kids discovered a disgusting thing about the puppy. Its plumbing was not hooked up to the sewer system. They dropped him like a hot bowling ball.

When we got a pony, it was mi casa, su casa. They petted him, fed him carrots, brushed him and pranced him around. Then they discovered a gross thing about him. He walked in manure and it had to be picked from his shoes. This was compounded by the fact that he drank 50 gallons of water in the wintertime through his face. When the water was frozen over, the ice had to be broken. The pony lost it the first winter.

It's naive to think children have loyalties to games, bicycles, trains, erector sets or books. Occasionally, one will become adamant about a stuffed animal or blanket, but I suspect that's only because it's one of the few times they can champion dirt and get away with it.

The interest span of a child is contingent on how long it takes to get the bell out of the ball. When the challenge is no longer there, it's all over.

How have I lasted so long? I don't kid myself. If I had come with batteries, I'd have been slung under the bed years ago.

Women's Forum To Give Award

The Women's Forum of North Carolina will present its first Gail Bradley Memorial Award for Outstanding Service to Women in 1985.

The forum is accepting nominations for the award which will be granted at its May 11 meeting in Greensboro. The citation will honor a woman resident of North Carolina whose achievement during the past five years has made the greatest potential impact on improving the lives of N.C. women and/or for the quality of her leadership to achieve such an impact.

The area from which achievement will be considered will include potential improvement in the fields of law, education, employment, medicine and social services (i.e. health, penal, rape, battering, displacement, child care and welfare).

Organized in 1976, the Women's Forum brings together more than 75 women leaders from across the state to enable them to speak on critical issues and, in concert, to provide the influence and impact on the N.C. community.

Forum meeting are bi-monthly alternating between Greensboro and Raleigh. Members of the forum from Pitt County are Betty Speir of Bethel and Anne McGaughey of Farmville.

Nomination forms for the award may be obtained from Nancy Cashwell at the Women's Forum office, 3525 Eden Croft Drive, Raleigh, 27612.

Remedies

One of these days Chief Justice Warren Burger is going to be heard and the Supreme Court's work load will be lightened.

Rarely does a year pass when Burger does not complain the justices simply are faced with so many cases they cannot do justice to them (pardon the play on words).

In a year-end article he proposed a 10th justice who would not sit on questions put to the court, but would take some of the load off the chief justice by handling the court's administrative tasks.

Burger says they, coupled with his other responsibilities, push him into an 80-hour work week. He also reminded that while the number of federal trial judges in the United States has risen from 13 in the 18th century to 689 today, the number of Supreme Court judges has grown only from five to nine justices in the same period.

We agree that (a) the number of constitutional cases confronting the court have grown astronomically with each decade and there is no prospect of shrinkage, and (b) an 80-hour week should have been abolished along with slavery.

The next four years of the Reagan presidency should offer opportunity for remedial measures. It's not asking too much.

Staying Home

To those who have called North Carolina "home" it comes as no surprise that in-migration of our favorite state leads all others in a survey made by the Mayflower Transit Co.

Of the moves handled by that firm from January to September of last year, 62.7 percent of those involving North Carolina were inbound.

It might be hard to believe, but Florida ranked third with 59.7 percent and the California was fifth with 58.2 percent.

Yes, we know; one company's traffic data is not the best and most accurate statistic in the world, but it is indicative of how people react to the climactic, scenic and social qualities, as well as the varied geographic attractions.

Features that so many of us take for granted are eye-opening experiences for visitors who sample blessings of Tar Heel life.

We, the natives as well as adopted families, have something better than good going for us.

New Congress In Town

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Congress is in town. So, what's new? Not much. The 99th Congress offers a lot of the same old faces and rhetoric, reruns of the 98th and the 97th Congresses before it.

It's time to tackle the economy, say Democrats and Republicans alike. This time, no more fooling around. Deal with those deficits and reform the tax code, get tough with the president.

It's the midwinter bluster that hits the Capitol every two years, then fades in the spring and melts away in summer. It contributes as much as anything to the impression in the land that Congress is too much talk and too little effective action.

Meanwhile, President Reagan waits in the wings, his second term certain to begin with a new round of proposed cuts in domestic programs and increases in the Pentagon budget.

Budget Director David Stockman paved the way with his biennial horror show, a closed-door session for GOP members of Congress from which they emerged saying, "It was worse than I thought," and "It was a sobering presentation."

Senate Republicans have new leadership and Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, on his first day as majority leader, pledged action on deficits.

"We want to do it," he said. "We want to get out front. We want to tell the president not to pull us, we want to go."

"These deficits will not take care of themselves," said Democratic House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts. "It is up to the president and to Congress to take them on."

This Congress appears ready to follow the pattern set two years ago when Senate Republicans took the lead in formulating an alternative to the president's budget and cutting back on his military spending plans.

There are signs the new Congress is willing to look at budget cuts in areas — Social Security most prominent among them — that Reagan feels politically committed to avoid.

Four years ago, change was in the air throughout the capital. Reagan was ready to take office and Republicans had assumed control of the Senate. There was talk of a political realignment and a conservative revolution.

"The big job is to get the economy back on its feet," said Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., in those heady days.

Republicans were talking about government spending as a percentage of the gross national product, which is the total value of goods and RALEIGH — Jeff Woods, the new Raleigh bureau chief for United Press International, was playing devil's advocate. While several Raleigh reporters ate pizza at a local bar, Woods accused the local press corps of having cozied up to the politicians.

"It's the same thing that happens with the defense contractors," Woods said, referring to the Washington practice of Defense Department bureaucrats taking jobs with firms they had just been regulating.

Woods' concern was prompted by the speculation from Election Day forward about who Gov. Jim Martin would hire as his press secretary and what other reporters he'd hire to speak for his cabinet secretaries.

Shortly after Woods' pizza diatribe, Jim Sughrue, a veteran Capitol reporter for WTVD in Durham, was named press spokesman for the Department of Transportation.

David Guth, another experienced Capitol reporter, went to work for Martin's inaugural committee.

Martin's transition team is known to have spoken with at least two other Capitol reporters about jobs and a source within the administration revealed that several reporters had applied for positions.

Gov. Jim Hunt had a number of former reporters working for him, including Gary Pearce, Stephanie Bass, Brent Hackney, Russ Edmonston, Chancy Kapp and Kathy Neal. Last year, UPI's Gene Wang went to work for Hunt's Senate campaign and Dan Hoover left the Raleigh News & Observer to work for Rufus Edmisten's gubernatorial campaign.

"Tell me it doesn't affect your reporting to have in the back of your mind that, 'I'd like to go to work for the state someday,'" Woods said in a later interview.

Another Raleigh editor, who asked not to be named, reflected that general opinion. "In theory, I find it to be a concern. When a reporter goes over, it raises a question as to how impartial his reporting has been and it raises a question about the credibility of the news organization for which he worked."

But several of the former reporters said they didn't let the prospects of working for a candidate change their reporting one bit. Nor had they seen any other reporters pulling punches, either.

Hackney was reporting for the Greensboro Daily News for two weeks while he considered Hunt's offer. He wrote only one story about Hunt during that time and remembers it as critical of Hunt. "I didn't want to go away from the newspaper doing anything that could be construed as going easy on the administration," he said.

Guth and Sughrue said the interest in a state job did not color their reporting. Both likened it to covering a political story about which they might have had an opinion. "Anybody who reports has his own biases and opinions," Sughrue said, "I don't think they ever got into my reporting."

Two recent stories would appear to support that point. Sughrue was being considered for a job with the Martin administration when he appeared on the UNC-TV show "Stateline" and criticized the new governor's media policies. Hoover wrote a story on the Martin campaign the day before Edmisten announced his hiring, and Martin has stated publicly that he felt the story was quite fair.

North Carolina has seen little of a problem that is more prevalent on the national scene. That is, the return of reporters to journalism after a stint with a political job. If the state's press begins to experience that problem, several editors said, then the public's confidence could be severely shaken.

Former Helms Aide Gets Reprieve

WASHINGTON — Caught in a conservative firestorm against his move to purge Reaganites from the State Department, Secretary of State George Shultz backtracked a little by asking a key victim of his Christmas Massacre — Assistant Secretary Richard McCormack — to stay on.

McCormack was a top aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, leader of the Republican right wing, before taking the State Department post in charge of economic affairs. As such, he was a prime target for Shultz's housecleaning. But the firestorm of criticism reached the Oval Office and President Reagan with such force that Shultz took a quiet step back.

McCormack has not decided whether to accept Shultz's offer, and it is uncertain whether the secretary wants to keep him in his present job or move him elsewhere. The offer, however, is solid evidence that Shultz knows he overplayed his hand in attempting to purge with surreptitious speed over the Christmas holidays.

President Reagan is being warned by the State Department that unless he reverses Budget Director David Stockman's decision to reduce U.S. famine relief funds for starving Africans to a mere $100 million, he will face "a runaway Congress" that will make him look heartless.

That became a certainty when members of Congress, capped by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, got dramatic media attention with their visits to refugee centers where thousands of Ethiopians and other Africans die daily.

The administration's half-billion-dollar "minimum" food program was cut 80 percent by Stockman. Consequently, the State Department informed the White House that unless a more realistic proposal were drafted, Congress would reject such a trifling amount out of hand and probably vote a billion-dollar aid program.

While Sen. Robert Dole was campaigning successfully for Senate majority leader by projecting an independence from the White House, he was assuring grass-roots Republicans of his support for "Ronald Reagan's philosophy of government."

On Nov. 23, he sent a personalized letter to every delegate and alternate to the 1984 Republican National Convention that sounded much more Reaganite and populist than the Washington Dole. He argued "we can make good" on the people's mandate "even if the professional interpreters of public opinion fail to understand the public they're supposed to interpret ... As the president himself said on election night, this is the end of nothing and the beginning of everything."

Dole five days later was elected majority leader by senatorial colleagues who expect him to steer a course relatively independent of Reagan. The letter to alternates and delegates showed Dole assuming a different posture in keeping his foot in the 1988 presidential water.

The mystery about how long Michael K. Deaver, White House deputy chief of staff, will stay on with President Reagan was deepened by his December telephone conversations with Washington real estate men about buying a house.

In one such talk, Deaver was talking about looking at houses in the $500,000 to $700,000 range. Since such a home is well beyond his means as a federal employee whose income disclosure statements show he has no personal fortune, colleagues concluded he is about to take a well-paying job in the private sector.

Strength For Today

The prophet Joel, who lived about 2,500 years ago, rebuked his generation for many sins and shortcomings. It was customary among Jews in that day to rend their garments when a sense of wrongdoing overcame them and they became conscious of the enormity of their sins.

Joel brushed all this aside. Rend your hearts, he cried and not your garments "and turn unto the Lord your God, for he is gracious and merciful, and repenteth him of evil."

We have many people among us today who do the equivalent of rending their garments. They wring their hands; they weep. But in most cases they let everything end with this demonstration. They go back to their sin again.

As Joel said, rend your hearts and not your garments. Change your habits and stop deploring the evil in them. Do something about them. Change them. Don't weep and wail and regret.

For Stars Wars, The Sky's The Limit

The beauty of the Star Wars defense system is that everyone can discuss it with authority, because no one, including the people in charge, have any idea of what it is.

I realized this when I attended one of those Washington cocktail parties where the power elite gather to exchange gossip and information that only decision makers are privy to.

"Is it true," I asked a source, who has one of the largest offices in the Pentagon, "that Star Wars will become a bargaining chip in the Soviet-American arms talks?"

"Nuts," he said defiantly. "If we ever decide what it is, we will never give it up."

"Isn't it easier to give something up in arms talks that we don't have, than something that we do?"

"Not if they have it, and we don't."

"Do the Soviets have a Star Wars defense?"

"They must have or they wouldn't want us to give up ours."

"Maybe they don't have it, but hope we'll go ahead with it anyway," I suggested. "Did it ever occur to you that the reason the Soviets are making such a big thing of it is because they want us to spend all our money to develop it, so we don't have any left to make the weapons they don't want us to build?"

"Of course, it's occurred to us," he said. "But our answer to them is there's no price you can put on national security. Once we figure it out, all our other weapons will be obsolete."

"How can you say that when you have no idea what it is?" I asked.

"We may not have any idea what it is, but we do know what we want it to do — and that is blow up every Soviet missile before it hits its target."

"That's a tall order. Will Star Wars be able to do that?"

"We may never know, but neither will they. Once we install it in the sky no one will have the slightest idea if it can do the job. But it will keep the other side guessing. And that's the best deterrent there is."

A man who has one of the largest offices in the White House joined our group. "The president wants Star Wars because he believes once we develop it we will no longer have to depend on mutual terror to avoid nuclear war."

"But the president says he doesn't know what Star Wars is either," I pointed out.

"He's not a scientist and doesn't claim to be one. But he believes in it more than anything he has ever advocated. Besides, since he's proposed it he has to go ahead with it, or he would be sending another wrong message to the Soviets."

An assistant secretary, who has one of the largest offices in the State Department, said, "Even if Star Wars doesn't pan out the way we envision, it will still be worth the cost just to show our NATO allies that we have no intention of leaving them in the lurch. If nothing else, it will strengthen the West's commitment to repelling the Soviet military threat."

"Then our allies are for it?"

"They are as long as it doesn't cost them any money."

A labor secretary said, "When you're talking about Star Wars, you're talking about the hundreds of thousands of jobs it will provide for the next 20 years. It's not just a dream, but a shot in the arm for every defense contractor in the nation."

"I take it then," I said, "that everyone in the government is sold on it?"

"They better be if they want to keep their jobs in this administration."

"But how much will it really cost?"

The Pentagon man tittered, "When it comes to funding Star Wars, the sky's the limit."

American Priest Kidnapped In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An American priest working with a Roman Catholic relief organization was pulled from his car and kidnapped today by eight men armed with automatic rifles, police said.

The abductors intercepted the Rev. Lawrence Jenco's chauffeur-driven car on a street in a residential neighborhood of mostly Moslem west Beirut, hauled him out at gunpoint and sped off in two cars, police said. No shooting was reported.

Jenco, 50, from Chicago, works at the Catholic Relief Services office in west Beirut. Police said he was heading to work from his home at about 7:30 a.m. when he was abducted.

His Lebanese driver, Khaled Krunfol, said he tried to resist the kidnappers. They beat him and locked him up in the trunk of the car before they escaped, but he managed to free himself and report the abduction to authorities, police said.

Jenco is the fifth American kidnapped or reported missing in west Beirut since February 1984, when Moslem and Druse militias seized control of the area from the Lebanese army.

The militias still dominate west Beirut, although the Lebanese army and police are nominally in charge.

The kidnapping came less than 12 hours after the main Shiite Moslem militia, Amal, secured the release of a Swiss diplomat who had been held for four days by his abductors.

The charge d'affaires, Eric Wehrli, 45, was freed unharmed

Monday night when Amal security officers discovered the hideout where he was being held, stormed it and freed him.

Wehrli, who along with Swiss officials refused to talk with reporters today, was abducted Thursday as he was driving to his home in the west Beirut neighborhood of Verdun from the Swiss Embassy in the nearby Hamra neighborhood.

Amal leader Nabih Berri said Wehrli's kidnappers were the relatives of a man detained in Switzerland in connection with an alleged plot to blow up the U.S. Embassy in Rome.

The other Americans kidnapped or missing from west Beirut are:

—Jeremy Levin, the Beirut bureau chief of Cable News Network, who was reported missing when he failed to report for work on March 7, 1984.

—William Buckley, a U.S. Embassy political officer who was taken by gunmen as he was driving from his west Beirut apartment to the nearby embassy on March 16.

—The Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister, who was taken at gunpoint as he walked along a street near his west Beirut office last May 8.

—Peter Kilburn, a librarian at American University of Beirut, reported missing when he failed to show up for work on Dec. 3.

The shadowy Islamic Jihad organization, which says it is waging a holy war on opponents of Islamic fundamentalism, claimed responsibility for first three kidnappings.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, the American civil rights leader and former Democratic presidential candidate, says he is considering a trip to the Middle East to try to obtain the release of the kidnapped Americans. Jackson currently is visiting Britain.

Vietnamese Raid Overruns Camp Manned By Cambodian Guerrillas

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Outgunned Cambodian guerrillas gave up the last portion of their headquarters camp today after battling for two days against an overwhelming Vietnamese assault.

Fighters of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front were ordered at 11 a.m. to withdraw "to keep the KPNLF troops intact for further struggle," a statement from the resistance command said.

The command ordered the tactical withdrawal from the overrun camp near the Thai border to an undisclosed location for the purpose of "carrying out a more successful guerrilla struggle," the statement said.

The non-communist resistance fighters at Ampil had fought through Monday night and half the day today to hang on to one-quarter of the sprawling area that the Vietnamese troops had driven through Monday in one of the most intense battles in the six-year conflict.

Senior Thai generals said earlier the guerrillas group had little hope of turning the tide against the Vietnamese, whose artillery kept pounding as the guerrillas fighters tried to regroup.

"Ampil has fallen. It fell yesterday," the Thai armed forces commander, Gen. Arthit Kamlang-ek, told reporters today.

Rebel fighters said Vietnamese units attempted a pincer from the north and south today and were met with strong resistance from the remaining defenders today before the pullout was ordered. Many of the estimated 5,000 non-communist guerrillas at Ampil fled across the Thai border Monday as tanks spearheaded the multi-pronged Vietnamese attack on positions already softened up by artillery bombardment.

Arthit told reporters in Bangkok that an A-37 fighter-bomber was scrambled today to attack Vietnamese intruders near Obok in Buriram province, but was shot down. Arthit gave no other details of the incursion.

Associated Press photographer Pichai Nippittavit, who was in Ampil when the Soviet-supplied T-54 tanks broke through Monday, said hundreds of the guerrillas fled across the nearby Thai border and took refuge in an anti-tank ditch.

Lt. Gen. Pichitr Kullavanijaya, commander of Thailand's 1st Army Region, said the defenders destroyed seven armored vehicles as they pulled back.

The assault coincided with Jan. 7 celebrations of the sixth anniversary of the Vietnamese capture of Phnom Penh and the installation of the pro-Hanoi Heng Samrin regime in Cambodia.

In Bangkok, Khmer Liberation Front spokesman Abdul Gaffar said about 7,000 Vietnamese and Cambodian government troops were attacking Ampil, equipped with 27 tanks, other armored vehicles, and 18 artillery pieces.

The guerrilla forces have no tanks or artillery. The largest weapons in their arsenal are 82mm recoilless rifles. The defenders also relied on mortars, machine guns and B-40 rocket-propelled grenades. Individual guerrillas were armed mostly with AK-47 assault rifles.

According to a Thai army intelligence source, at least 20 guerrillas were killed. One guerrilla leader claimed 100 Vietnamese were killed or wounded. These figures could not be independently verified.

Israel Gets Parentless Refugees

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Rachel Reta, a teen-ager who arrived in Israel on a secret late-night airlift, prays every day that her parents, brothers and sisters will somehow escape from famine-stricken Ethiopia to join her.

Moshe Abraham is an exuberant 17-year-old, but he speaks quietly when he talks about his family, including a sister he hasn't seen in seven years when she was sent from Ethiopia to a refugee camp where her parents believed she would get better care.

"If only they could be here," he said Monday.

Moshe and 16-year-old Rachel are among the hundreds of Ethiopian Jewish youngsters who have arrived in Israel on their own, and who face special problems adjusting to new lives without the support of a family.

The Jewish Agency, an independent organization that aided the government airlifts known as Operation Moses, said about 10 percent of the Ethiopian children who were brought to Israel left parents behind.

Officials fear the parents may not be able to join their children because the rescue mission apparently was brought to a halt over the weekend after news of it was made public.

"The children feel very guilty. One day I saw a 17-year-old boy sit on the ground and start crying," said Abraham Weingood, director of the orphanage here where Moshe, Rachel and about 40 other Ethiopian Jewish children now live.

"When I asked him what the matter was, he said he was crying for his parents," Weingood said.

"Some of them will be reunited with their families some day, and some of them won't," he said. "I take them to pray about it. And I pray myself. Beyond that, what can I do?"

Ganet Balai, 7, clung to the hand of an Israeli director of an absorption center in Kiryat Arba, a Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank about 45 miles southeast of Tel Aviv.

"Her mother is still on the way," said the director, Elchanan Yanai. "These people are in terrible shock now" over all the publicity about the rescue operation "and they are worried about whether they will get to see their relatives."

Israel's story of helping Ethiopian children integrate in a new society is largely one of success.

In the six months since the children came to Weingood's orphanage, they have learned to use the bathroom, eat new foods and speak Hebrew.

"At first they would only eat bread. And then I ate bread with cheese, and they followed my example. Slowly, slowly, they learned to eat very strange things, like apples and cucumbers," Weingood said.

Now the children are learning to use computers. Weingood believes they must be better educated than the average Israeli to avoid the stigma of being black in a largely white society.

In the seaside town of Nahariya on the border with Lebanon, some 200 Ethiopian youngsters who were separated from the parents enroute to Israel have settled in bungalows once used as a home for mentally retarded children.

A Couple Of Ideas For People On The Way Up.

When you're on the way up, one of the quickest ways to go is with Piedmont Airlines and the American Express Card.

Piedmont flies nonstop each day to Charlotte, where you can change planes and connect to more than 45 destinations. And whichever destination you choose, you'll be able to charge your tickets quickly with the American Express Card.

Piedmont's hub facility in Charlotte is smaller and less crowded than the hubs of other major airlines. So connections don't take nearly as long. And you won't have to fight crowds to get from one flight to the next.

As a result, flying Piedmont and using the American Express Card is both faster and easier. Which, when it comes to flying, is the whole idea to begin with.

Fly Piedmont With The American Express Card.

The more places that you travel to on Piedmont, the more you're going to need the American Express Card.

Zaccaro Pleads Guilty 'To Spare Family'

NEW YORK (AP) — John Zaccaro, the husband of Democratic vice-presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, pleaded guilty to participating in a fraudulent real estate scheme to spare his family the publicity and "anguish" of a trial, his lawyer said.

Zaccaro was accused of inflating the value of five apartment buildings he was helping a client purchase, altering a property appraisal in attempting to secure financing for the deal and overstating his net worth by nearly $18 million.

Ms. Ferraro was not involved in the transaction in question, but questions about her husband's financial dealings haunted her vice presidential campaign. Campaign financial disclosure documents filed in August said Zaccaro was worth about $3 million, while Ms. Ferraro was said to be worth $760,000.

If the deal had been consummated, Zaccaro would have received a $333,000 commission plus more than 8 percent ownership in the buildings, authorities said. The buildings were to have been converted into condominiums, but the deal never went through.

"I believe he had a defensible case," Arthur Liman, Zaccaro's lawyer, said Monday. "But he wanted to spare his family the publicity, anguish and legal proceedings that would have ensued, so he entered this plea today."

Judge George Roberts said that under an agreement between Zaccaro and the district attorney, he would not impose a jail sentence unless Zaccaro committed another crime before sentencing on Feb. 20.

The charge against Zaccaro, a misdemeanor, is punishable by up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. Liman said the most Zaccaro faces is the fine and probation Zaccaro was released without bail.

In a statement issued by Liman, Zaccaro said, "My plea hopefully puts an end to the inquiries and the microscopic attention given to my personal and business affairs."

Ms. Ferraro issued a statement saying that her husband "has freely admitted his mistake and for this I am proud of him. John is a decent, honorable man and today's events do nothing to change him in the eyes of his family and friends. We love him very much."

District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said the charges would have been filed even if Ms. Ferraro had not been a candidate. But Liman said, "We may have a disagreement on that. ... With women running for office, we hold their spouses to the highest standards."

The real estate investor who was Zaccaro's client, John DeLorenzo, cooperated with authorities and was not charged, according to Morgenthau.

Liman said Zaccaro did not know the real estate contract was inflated and that incorrect parts were submitted by mistake. He also said Zaccaro only changed two things on the appraisal document — the date and the addressee — so a new appraisal would not have to be carried out. The actual appraisal of the buildings was correct, he said.

A co-defendant, Harold Farrell, also pleaded guilty to "scheming to defraud" in connection with the same case.

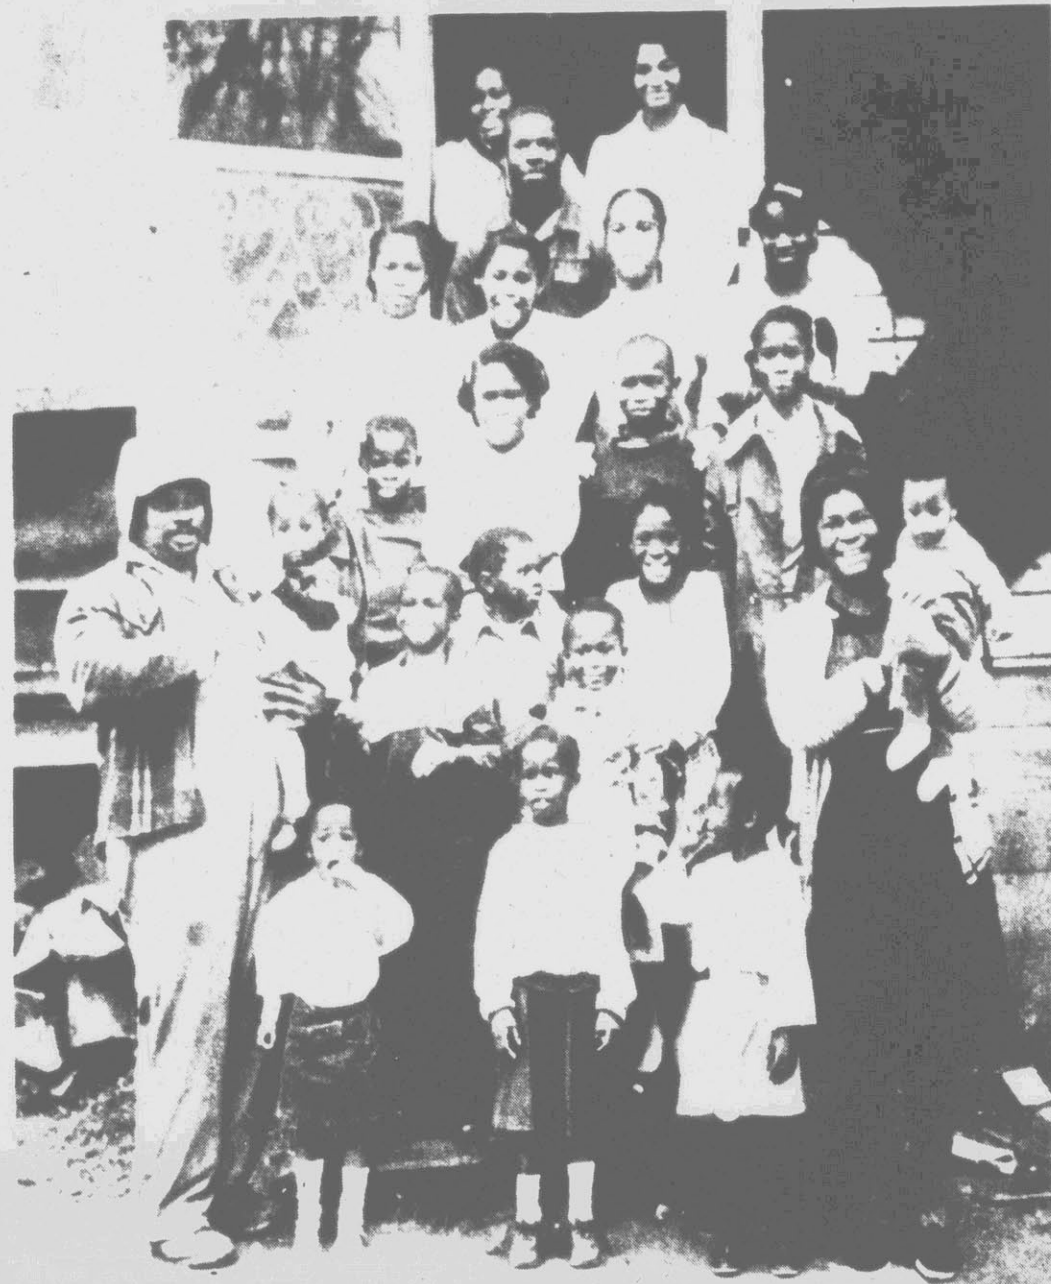

State officials said Zaccaro will not automatically lose his real estate license as is the case with felony charges, but the conviction would be part of an investigation into Zaccaro's business dealings that could ultimately result in such a penalty.

The investigation began in late February or early March of 1984 when federal authorities audited the records of the credit union of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey and noticed a discrepancy in a deal involving DeLorenzo.

The investigation continued, and in early September, Morgenthau's office was notified Zaccaro's name had surfaced in it. Morgenthau said he then launched his own investigation. Liman said Zaccaro retained him in October.

FAMILY PORTRAIT — Samuel and Betty Jo Hardy of their 22 children. The oldest child is 24, the youngest is 8 Lineville, Ala., pose in front of their home with 20 of months. (AP Laserphoto)

Family With 22 Children Literally Bulges At Seams

LINEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — When Samuel and Betty Jo Hardy marked their 25th wedding anniversary last summer, "We didn't really do any celebrating — we just let it pass on by," Mrs. Hardy said. But then, having 20 children at home does require some sacrifices.

The entire Hardy clan numbers 22 — 15 girls and seven boys — but only 20 live with mom and dad in an eight-room house on the outskirts of town, across the street from an industrial park and just up the way from a sign warning, "Caution: Children Playing."

The house fairly bulges at the seams. The children swarm through the tar-papered structure, laughing and screaming and yelling and falling and fighting and crying, usually all at once.

"We used to have to baby-sit with my littlest sister — she was a lot younger than the rest of us," Mrs. Hardy recalled of her days growing up in Clay County. "We had to take care of her all the time, and I was always complaining about it. I used to tell my mama and all my sisters that I wasn't ever going to have any children of my own."

That statement was made long ago and, as far as Mrs. Hardy is concerned, in a different life.

For the record, the children are: Rita, 24; Roger, 22; Samma, 21; Andrew, 20; Veronica, 19; Emma, 18; Loretta, 17; Betty Jean, 16; Nancy, 15; Anita, 14; Greg, 13; Felicia, 12; Jeff, 11; Regina, 9; Tad, 8; Tony, 7; Jill, 6; Tina Jo, 5; Kim, 4; Jan, 3; Windy, 2; and Kris, 8 months.

The two out-of-nesters are Roger, who works at a funeral home in New Jersey, and Veronica, who is married to a serviceman stationed in Germany.

The Hardys receive a monthly allotment of food stamps, but the bulk of the family income is earned by Hardy at his second-shift job at an Ashland cabinet shop.

Hardy, 46, estimates he spends about $150 per week for groceries. As for clothes, "they get worn again and again and again, right on down the line."

"I've had a baby about every 11 months since we've been married," said Mrs. Hardy, 41. "Except I thought I was through after I had Windy, but then Kris came along, and now I know I'm through for sure."

"It's a sight," said her husband. "But everybody gets along real well. We really are one big, happy family."

"God has blessed this family," observed Rosedell Lyles, great-aunt and neighbor to the Hardy children. "They don't have much, but they've got more love and caring and kindness than anyone in the world."

Money isn't everything. You may be rich in silver and gold but you may not be happy. These are happy people ... This is God's work."

Thousands Seek Chrysler Jobs, But None Available

DETROIT (AP) — About 6,000 people seeking 700 jobs at a Chrysler Corp. plant crowded state employment offices, but state and Chrysler officials say none of them is likely to get hired.

The 700 jobs were to become available Feb. 25, when Chrysler adds a second shift at its Sterling Heights assembly plant, company spokesman Douglas Nicoll said.

In addition to the 4,000 people at the Sterling Heights office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission on Monday, 2,000 people sought job applications at the MESCC office in Pontiac, officials said.

But the job-seekers' efforts probably were in vain, because MESCC officials decided earlier that applicants would be screened from lists of those who had applied for the positions earlier through the agency's job placement service, Nicoll said.

That apparently didn't discourage job hunters.

"There were roughly 4,000 people who showed up for applications," Sterling Heights police Lt. George Belkowski said. "The MESCC wasn't quite fully prepared to handle all those people at once. We had to get some guys in there to help control the crowd."

"We got to the point where we were handing out applications from the tops of our scout cars," Belkowski said.

Crowds were orderly at both offices, and no injuries were reported, police said.

"People just won't believe that we have no jobs for them," said Garth Barley, manager of the Pontiac office, where a crowd of about 2,000 people began gathering two hours before the office opened.

Chrysler said Dec. 26 that it would hire 1,700 people for the second shift at the Sterling Heights plant, which builds Dodge Lancer and Chrysler LeBaron GTS models, Nicoll said. One thousand positions would go to laid-off Chrysler workers, with the MESCC aiding in the hiring of the remaining 700, he said.

"Shortly after the release went out, MESCC decided they had so many people who'd applied through the job service that they'd cull applicants from that list," Nicoll said.

Farmers See Debt Levels Drop For 2nd Year In Row

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's farm debt, which soared to record levels in the 1970s and early '80s, has dropped for the second consecutive year — the first time that has happened since World War II, says the Agriculture Department.

Moreover, the level of farm debt is expected to edge lower again in 1985, simply because thousands of farmers have exhausted their credit and are unable to add to their heavy debt load.

"Bankers report that they are requiring more collateral for farm loans," the department's Economic Research Service said Monday. "These higher requirements, higher interest rates, and the deterioration in cash flow make it more difficult for farmers to qualify for new loans."

The agency said in a new report on agricultural finance that the demand for farmland — and thus its price — has been weakened severely by "the depressed returns on the money invested in agriculture and the expectations that returns will not increase in the near future."

Meanwhile, there are indications that the supply of farmland on the market is increasing "because more farmers are liquidating part of their assets to repay loans or improve their cash flow."

"At the same time, few buyers are willing to buy, most are waiting until the expected return on farmland equals or exceeds returns that can be earned on other investments," the report said.

Total farm debt peaked at $216.3 billion on Jan. 1, 1983, and then declined to $214.7 billion on Jan. 1, 1984, and to an estimated $212.1 billion at the start of this year.

Projections indicate that the debt load will shrink again to about $211.8 billion by Jan. 1, 1986.

The declines are minute compared with the huge surge in farm debt during the 1970s, which included one of the most dynamic periods in U.S. history for land values. As land prices boomed, farm assets increased — and gave producers a growing collateral for borrowing money.

"Total farm debt increased at a compound annual rate of 13.2 percent during 1971-80, but this slowed to 3.9 percent yearly for 1981-85," the report said.

Vagrant Dies With Small Fortune Clutched In Arms

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP) — Milton Naruta was a loner who just "quit the world," a quiet man whose rag-clothed body was found frozen in a fetal position in a desolate field. Clutched in his lifeless arms was a bag containing $75,000 in uncashed checks and investments.

Nobody can really explain why Naruta ended up the way he did. One friend says maybe the 65-year-old vagrant just saw too many people die young and "couldn't cope."

For police in this suburban northern New Jersey town, the discovery of Naruta's body on Nov. 18 was the beginning of a search for relatives.

"It is intriguing to me why he would disassociate with other family members and why he wouldn't maintain normal responsibilities like updating insurance policies and cashing paychecks and keeping up with his union dues," said police Detective Daniel Ramm.

Next to Naruta's body, authorities found a small prayer book, a pocket notebook, an old Christmas card, uncashed paychecks, $183 in cash, U.S. savings bonds and a bank book for a money market account estimated to be worth $25,000. There were also life insurance policies, papers with addresses written on them and soiled photographs. Police learned Naruta never applied for his Social Security benefits or his pension, which could be collected by heirs.

"He admitted he couldn't cope," said Michael Beerson of San Leandro, Calif., an old friend of Naruta.

"We had a lot of friends who died young, and I guess he never learned to handle it. I guess you could say he quit the world," said Beerson, who said he last talked to Naruta in the mid-1970s at a funeral of a mutual friend.

Pats Use Free Throws To Do It

Mason Downs Pirates, 81-69

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University won only one ECAC-South basketball game all season long last year, beating George Mason in Minges Coliseum. Coach Joe Harrington and his GMU players have believed every since then that the loss cost them a bid to the National Invitational Tournament despite a 21-7 record, best ever for the Patriots.

So Monday night, they had that as a big reason for wanting to top East Carolina — coupled with their first ECAC-South loss of the year on Saturday night at the hands of new member UNC-Wilmington.

And when it was over, the Patriots had done what they intended, taking an 81-69 win over the Pirates in a game that saw the visiting team make a home for itself on the foul line.

East Carolina outscored Mason by 14 points from the floor but saw action at the stripe. When it was over, East Carolina had gone to the line eight times in the game, hitting three of those. The Pirates shot only one one-and-one opportunity in the game.

In contrast, Mason went to the line 35 times, canning 29 of those to easily make up the difference the Pirates held from the floor. Carlos Yates made 10 of 11 from the line while Ricky Wilson pushed in eight of 10 to account for most of those.

A total of 24 fouls were called on the Pirates as compared to 14 against Mason.

East Carolina Coach Charlie Harrison commented on the officiating in response to a question. "I don't want to harp on the officiating, but I don't think we got a very good whistle tonight. That's obvious by the number of free throws attempted by both teams. There's no way to guard a free throw.

"I don't think that we were hacking; our defense wasn't that poor. And there were several crucial situations where we got fouled and there were no calls."

Harrington, conversely, said he thought the officiating was "quite consistant" throughout the game, which led Harrison to respond, "Consistency in officiating is not 35 to eight. If he had shot eight to our 35, I wonder what Joe would have had to say?"

Navy Drubs Seahawks

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Center David Robinson scored 28 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead Navy past the University of North Carolina-Wilmington 83-68 Monday night in an ECAC-South basketball game.

The difference in the contest was an 18-2 scoring surge that ended with Navy ahead 40-22 with three minutes to go in the first half.

UNCW was led by Paul Newman, who contributed 20 points and eight rebounds.

Vernon Butler led Navy with 26 points.

The victory moved Navy to 6-2 overall and 2-0 in the conference. The Seahawks fell to 6-4 overall and 1-1.

Harrison did praise the GMU effort. "They played well tonight. They came ready to play and I expected that. But I didn't think we played that poorly. We didn't execute well in a few crucial situations, and we didn't get the big basket when we needed it. We got the ball inside adequately, but we didn't get anything out of it."

That was certainly a factor for the Pirates. Of their 69 points, only 15 came from the people inside. The Pirates got the ball inside for shots, but they combined for just seven of 16 from the floor.

In addition, the Patriots controlled the boards, giving East Carolina few second shots. GMU held a 36-27 rebound margin, although Pirate reserve Keith Sledge was the game's leading rebounder with seven.

"You can't fast break if you can't get the ball off the defensive boards or if you're just getting it out of the basket on free throws. We need to run and it seemed like when we did run, we'd have a mistake or get a bad whistle," Harrison said.

Blue Devils Need Work On Boards

DURHAM (AP) — Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski continues to downplay his basketball team's number two ranking and says the Blue Devils need to improve their rebounding as they prepare for two non-conference opponents this week.

"I don't know if it is accurate," Krzyzewski said of the ranking at his weekly press conference Monday. "I feel good about it because good things are being said about Duke."

"The team I know best in the country is us, and the team I know second best is the next team we're going to play. To ask if we are as good as some other teams, I don't know," he said. "We are good, and if people want to put us up there, that's fine. But there's not any extra pressure on us."

The Blue Devils, 10-0, host East Carolina Wednesday night and challenge Washington Saturday afternoon in a nationally televised game. The Huskies eliminated Duke last year in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Top-ranked Georgetown and Duke are the only two major college basketball teams still undefeated this season.

"I find it difficult to understand why we would not be up right now," Krzyzewski said. "I mean for practice, meetings and for everything."

"If someone has ever played some level of sports, there has got to be a time when you are out in the

Sledge came off the bench to spark the Pirates on a couple of occasions, hitting seven of seven, mostly from long range, although he did fly in on rebounds a couple of times for tap-backs. "He answered the role we asked of him," Harrison said, "but you don't keep a shooter in the game just because he has a hot hand. He played either the same position that Curt (Vanderhorst) or William (Grady) plays. Now which of those are you going to leave out of the game?"

Vanderhorst, who had averaged 22 points a game over the past few weeks, scored only 12, hitting six of 11, while Grady had a game high of 24, making 11 of 19, 20 of his points coming in the second half. Vanderhorst was handicapped by fouls early, however, and played less of a role.

East Carolina never led although they did tie it on a couple of occasions. Ricky Wilson put GMU ahead but Scott Hardy tied it at 2-2. Vincent McQueen returned the lead to the Patriots and Yates followed with a layup for a 6-2 edge.

The Pirates fought back and finally tied it up at 24-24 on a long jumper by Sledge. Madison went back out, however, as Yates hit two free throws and then added a 20-footer. The Patriots built their lead back out to five at 34-29 at the end of the half.

The Pirates slowly chipped away at the lead in the early going of the second half, finally cutting it to two, 43-41 on a 15-footer by Grady with 13:29 left. Wilson hit a layup, but missed a three-point opportunity to up it to four again.

Grady then hit again on a jumper to pull it to two once more, 45-43 with 12:51 to go, but that was as close as the Pirates could come.

Rose again hit a layup — but missed on a second three-point opportunity, with Yates following on a one-and-one to raise it to 51-45 with 11:59 to go. From there on out it was a slow pull away for the Patriots, who used the shot clock to their advantage the rest of the way, taking their time in getting a shot or going to the foul line and cashing in. GMU made 12 of 13 shots at the line in the final seven minutes of play to hold off any hopes of an ECU rally.

Wilson led the Patriot scoring with 20 points, while Yates and freshman Brian Miller each had 18. Rob Rose added 12.

While Grady led ECU with 24, Sledge added 14 and Vanderhorst had 12.

The loss dropped the Pirates to 5-5 overall and 0-1 in league play. Mason climbs to 2-1 in the league, 6-5 overall.

East Carolina play a non-conference game in Durham on Wednesday night, visiting second-ranked Duke University.

Georgetown Still #1, But Hoyas Lose Some Support

By The Associated Press

Georgetown, which was taken into overtime by Boston College, remained the No. 1 team in the Associated Press' college basketball poll today, but for the first time in a month, the Hoyas were not the unanimous choice.

Georgetown, 13-0, was forced into the extra session by Boston College before prevailing 82-80 Saturday and the defending national champions received 63 of the 64 first-place votes and 1,279 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

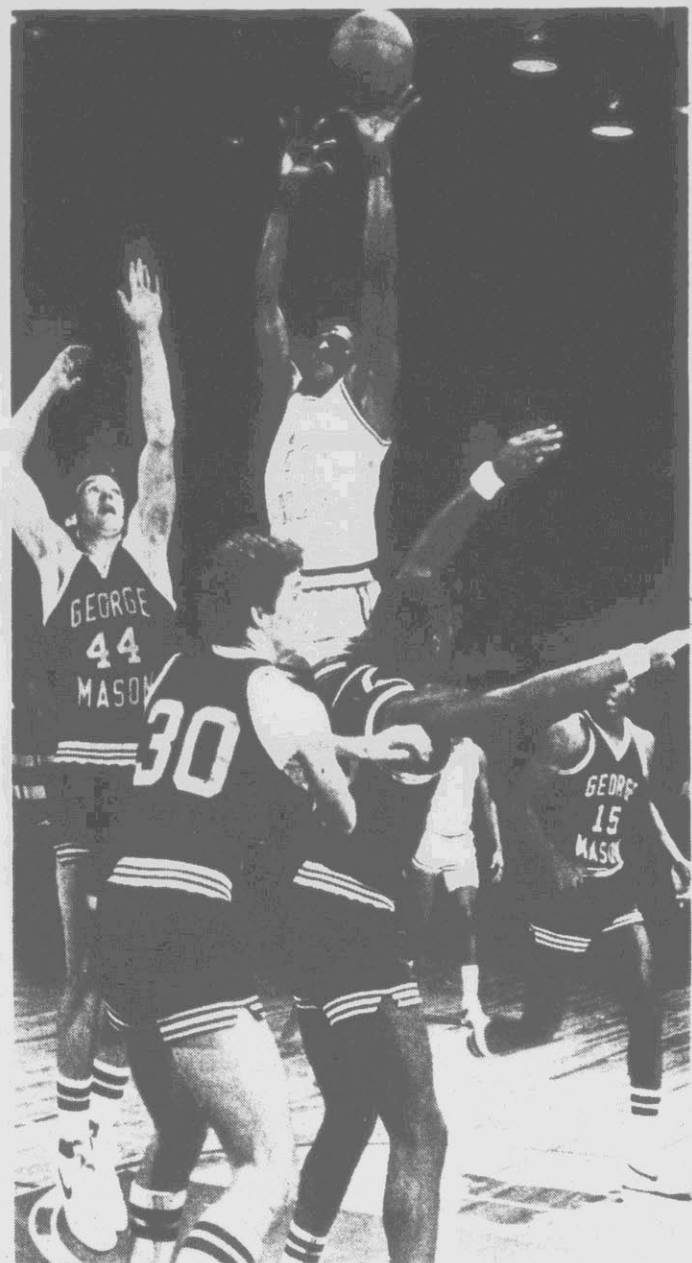

Duke, which held second place for the fourth consecutive week as it improved its record to 10-0, had the other first-place vote and 1,214 points.

St. John's improved one place from last week as the Redmen were third with 1,101 points, followed by Southern Methodist, 1,049, and North Carolina, 987. Southern Methodist, 11-1, improved from seventh last week, while the Tar Heels, 10-1, jumped from ninth place.

Memphis State, which lost for the first time in 10 games last week when South Carolina edged it 60-58, was sixth with 937 points. The Tigers had been third in the balloting for the past three polls. Syracuse was seventh with 740 points, while Oklahoma, 632; Georgia Tech, 625; and Kansas, 613, round out the Top Ten.

Syracuse, which was fifth last week, also lost for the first time this season, 82-70 to Villanova. Oklahoma jumped from 13th last week, while Georgia Tech fell one place and Kansas improved one spot, despite losing one of its three games last week — 92-89 to Kentucky.

The Second Ten welcomed five new teams to the Top Twenty, two each from the Big East and Big Ten conferences and one from the

Lady Pirates Host Campbell

East Carolina's Lady Pirates try to make it two in a row in the victory column Wednesday night when they entertain Campbell University at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Lady Pirates go into the game with a 3-8 overall record after winning their last outing against Iona College, 69-57, Saturday night.

The game with Campbell, too, is their last warm-up before they open ECAC-South play on Saturday, traveling to William & Mary.

Campbell comes into the game with a 6-1 record on the season, suffering their only loss to Pembroke State, 70-66, in their final game prior to the holiday break. Since then, they've beaten High Point College.

The two teams have not — to this point — played any common opponent although the game will be the second for the Lady Camels against an ECAC-South team. Earlier in the year they beat UNC-Wilmington, 76-60.

East Carolina's Monique Pompili goes into the game carrying ECAC-South Rookie of the Week honors. She was named for her play last week. In her first start as a Lady Pirates, Pompili hit 13 points and nine rebounds in the only game the Lady Pirates played that week.

Campbell is led by 6-0 junior forward Antionette Matthews with a 16.4 average and 10.6 rebounds. Deborah Evans, a 5-9 senior forward, is hitting 11.4 points and pulling 5.0 rebounds, to round out those in double figure scoring.

The other starter include 5-7 senior guard Mary Weiss (3.1), 5-7 senior guard Sandy Martin (7.0), and 6-2 junior center Penny Dickens (9.7 ppg, 6.7 reb.).

East Carolina's scoring is now led by Anita Anderson at 14.1 points, while Sylva Bragg is scoring a 11.6. The leading rebounder is Lisa Squirewell at 8.7, followed by Anderson at 7.2.

Indiana leads the way in the Second Ten, followed by Boston College, DePaul, Louisiana Tech, Illinois, Villanova, Michigan State, Virginia Commonwealth, Iowa and Oregon State.

Last week the Second Ten was Kansas, Indiana, Oklahoma, Louisiana State, Washington, Michigan, North Carolina State, Louisiana Tech, Maryland and Virginia Commonwealth.

Boston College, 10-1, ignored by the voters in the first seven polls, caught the nation's eye with the overtime tussle with Georgetown. Like Boston College, Villanova, also a member of the Big East which has

Retton AP's Top Female Athlete

HOUSTON (AP) — Gymnastics gold medalist Mary Lou Retton, whose perky smile and courage under pressure made her the sweetheart for millions of Americans during the 1984 Olympics, was named today as The Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year.

Retton became the first American woman to win a gymnastics gold medal in the Olympic all-around competition, including a pressure-packed perfect 10 on her final vault.

She also earned silver medals in the vault and team competition and bronze medals in the uneven bars and floor exercise at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles.

Retton's most crucial moment in the Olympics came when she needed a near-perfect score in the vault to win the all-around title. She responded with a perfect 10 for a narrow .05 victory over Romania's Ecaterina Szabo.

"I knew in the air that I was going to do it," Retton said, flashing her famous smile. "That was the most exciting moment for me."

Retton beat out professional tennis player Martina Navratilova, who lost only two of 80 matches in 1984, including a record 74 consecutive match victories. Navratilova earned $2,173,556 and her victories included Wimbledon, and the French and U.S. opens.

Retton had 55 votes to Navratilova's 49 in balloting by sports writers and broadcasters.

Olympic marathon gold medal winner Joan Benoit was third with 12.

Although she's become one of the easiest to recognize of the U.S. Olympians, Retton shuns the title of "America's Sweetheart."

"I don't consider myself that," she said. "I don't put on a fake face, I just try to be myself."

Retton's real face usually includes that winning smile and she's used it to continue reaping rewards in the form of product endorsements since the Olympics. She is the first woman to appear in commercials for Wheaties and also sells hamburgers and perfume.

Retton has changed her gymnastics routine for a business schedule of advertisements and interviews.

"Now, I kind of have a business schedule that I have to go through, but at the beginning of the year it's starting to slack off and I'm going to go into more intense training and when I'm ready to compete, I'll compete," she said.

She's not turning down offers for endorsements, but Retton says that has not been her life-long motivation.

"Before, gymnastics was my life and now I can see that there is life after gymnastics but I still love the sport," she said. "I didn't go to the Olympics and win a gold medal just to get these opportunities."

"I went in because that was my life-long dream, just to win the medal. This is just kind of an after-effect."

Retton started her daily workouts at age seven but doesn't regret the long hours of work.

"I think, I'm very fortunate for my situation," she said. "I've traveled around the world and seen people that people twice my age never will so I think it's a better tradeoff."

Retton's coach, Bela Karolyi, says his prize pupil has adjusted well to the rigors of suddenly becoming a star.

"Her personality is helping her through a pretty hard time right now," Karolyi said. "Sometimes you don't know who you really are. Are you a real star or just an overnight somebody?"

"There are so many questions going through the minds of these kids after the major events. But she's a little artist and she likes it. That's very important."

Retton definitely notices a difference in her lifestyle.

"It's really different because before the Games, only people in the gymnastics game knew Mary Lou Retton," she said. "But now every-day people know me. I'll be driving in my car and people will honk and wave and when I go to the grocery store, people do the same."

She's met President Reagan and appeared in the Bob Hope Christmas Special and for the month of January alone, she'll appear on the covers of 17 national magazines.

And there is even more excitement awaiting Retton.

"I turn 17 the 24th of this month," she jokes, "and I'll be able to get into an R-rated movie by myself."

Mullin Paces Redmen Victory

By The Associated Press
Welcome back, Chris Mullin. Welcome aboard, Kenny Walker.

Mullin, St. John's All-American guard, showed signs of coming out of a minor slump when he struck for 20 points Monday night in pacing third-ranked St. John's to a 76-71 victory over No. 16 Villanova.

Down South, meanwhile, one of college basketball's rising stars was on display. Junior forward Kenny Walker scored 22 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to pace resurgent Kentucky to a 75-58 thumping of Vanderbilt. The Wildcats, at one time saddled with a 1-4 record that was the school's worst since 1926-27, now have won six in a row.

"I was glad to see Mullin break out of it. I knew he would," St. John's Coach Lou Carnesecca said after the rugged Big East test against Villanova, which lost for only the second time in 11 games.

"I've been practicing, working my way out," said Mullin, who managed only a combined 22 points in his last two outings and hit only 39 percent from the field in the last six. Like his coach, Mullin said he "knew I would do it."

Mullin's slump coincided with the emergence of Walker, whose scoring and rebounding have almost singlehandedly given Kentucky renewed hope of basketball success. Walker has scored 110 points in the last four games and Kentucky has beaten the likes of No. 10 Kansas and then-No. 17 North Carolina State.

But Walker is anxious to avoid the label of "star."

"I'm already the marked man on this team," he said.

In other games Monday involving ranked clubs, Kansas used a 28-12 spurt opening the second half to subdue Western Carolina 79-62, and No. 14 Louisiana Tech got 18 points apiece from Willie Bland and Karl Malone in an 83-65 romp over Centenary.

Even with a rejuvenated Mullin, St. John's was hard-pressed to run its record to 11-1 and its Big East Conference worksheet to 3-0. The Redmen trailed 37-31 at the half and faced a 51-47 deficit midway of the second half. But center Bill Wennington scored seven of his 17 points during a 13-0 run that put St. John's in charge.

"They got the momentum during that 13-0 spurt," Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino said. "We lost concentration and (6-9 center) Ed Pinckney picked up his third and fourth fouls and sat out."

Dwayne McClain made nine of 11 shots from the field to lead Villanova with 20 points. Pinckney added 15, but hit only two of nine shots.

Kentucky led 38-27 at the half and Vanderbilt never got closer than 52-43 in the second half in losing its third game in 11 outings. The Commodores are 1-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

"There are some things that impress me about this team," Vandy Coach C.M. Newton said of Kentucky. "They're well-conditioned, they're well-coached, they play big."

"The rap has been that they're not a very good shooting team," added Newton, who played with Kentucky's 1951 national champions. "They disproved that tonight."

Kansas, 11-2, led only 37-34 at the half before surging to a 19-point lead with six minutes in the game. Calvin Thompson led Kansas with 19 points.

"We got a lot out of this game," Jayhawks' Coach Larry Brown said. "They gave us a lot of different looks on defense."

Louisiana Tech, 12-1, scored the first eight points of the game and never allowed Centenary a chance to come back. Tech led 39-27 at the half and 74-51 with 5½ minutes to play.

"When you get an early lead, it just picks everybody up," Tech Coach Andy Russo said. "We played with a lot of confidence and played aggressively."

In other games, it was St. Bonaventure 56, Widener 55; Florida State 88, St. Joseph's, Maine 72; Missouri 88, Southwest Texas 54; Creighton 87, Southern 82; Oral Roberts 90, Evansville 75; Rice 73, Notre Dame 70; St. Louis 73, Oklahoma City 60; Texas-El Paso 66, Baptist 47; Cal-Santa Barbara 84, Long Beach State 73; and Fresno State 58, San Jose State 49.

Smith Is All-State

CHARLOTTE — Wide receiver Tyrone Smith of Rose High School has been named to the WBT Radio 1984 North Carolina All-State team, as selected by a 20-man board of coaches.

Each all-state selection received a certificate suitable for framing from WBT Radio.

Smith led the Rampants with 31 receptions for 516 yards and three touchdowns, returned 10 punts for 172 yards and a TD. On defense, Smith intercepted five passes and added an 82-yard fumble return for a touchdown.

By virtue of receiving the most votes, quarterback Todd Ellis of Greensboro Page was named the team captain. Tackle Charles Gowan of Marion McDowell and receiver Stafford Moses of Page were named co-captains.

Many of the players chosen were selected to play in the recent Shrine Bowl Game, which was won by South Carolina 34-28.

Brock, Wilhelm Join Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Base-stealing king Lou Brock and knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm have joined the immortals in Baseball's Hall of Fame, but the late Nellie Fox was denied the honor in the closest of calls.

Bing Devine, who was the St. Louis general manager in 1964 when Brock came to the Cardinals in a controversial trade with the Chicago Cubs, said he was not surprised Brock won election Monday night in his first year of eligibility.

"It would come as more of a surprise if he didn't than if he did," Devine said of Brock, whose 938 career stolen bases is a record.

"The Hall of Fame is getting kind of classy now that they have added Hoyt Wilhelm," said Bill Rigney, who managed the New York Giants and California Angels when the pitcher was on those clubs, and also was his teammate on the Giants.

"He was a solid guy and he was ready to pitch at any time . . . He was a manager's pitcher because of the way he went about his business," said Rigney.

Brock, the 15th player to win election in his first year of eligibility, "deserved it for everything he did," Devine said. "He was a hard worker. He worked very hard to become the expert base-stealer he was. The base-stealing is the dramatic thing about him, but he was an all-around ballplayer."

Devine remembered Brock's ability to come through in the clutch, particularly the outstanding performances in three World Series with the Cardinals.

"He was as good as I've ever seen rising to the occasion," Devine said. When he heard that Wilhelm had won election, Rigney, at his home in Walnut Grove, Calif., recalled the pitcher's first shot at the majors.

"The first year he came to us, which was '52, he almost didn't make the ballclub. I don't think Leo (Manager Leo Durocher) really thought that a knuckleballer could get the job done."

"He pitched that day against the Cubs in Mesa, Ariz., in an exhibition game," Rigney continued. "The butterfly was going all over the place, every which way. They couldn't hit it and we couldn't catch it. The only guy who could catch him really good was Wes Westrum."

Brock was named on 315 of the 395 ballots cast — 79.5 percent, while Wilhelm, who pitched in the major leagues for 21 years and is the first reliever to be elected to the Hall, was named on 331 ballots — 83.7 percent. Seventy-five percent of the total vote is required for election.

But Fox, a slick-fielding second baseman who died in 1975, failed to make it into the baseball shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y., by just two votes — the closest call in the history of the balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Even an unprecedented appeal by officials of the BBWAA to the director of the Hall of Fame failed to get Fox through the doors in Cooperstown.

Fox, in his last opportunity to be voted into the Hall in the regular phase of the voting, received 295 of the needed 297 votes, a percentage of 74.6. BBWAA officials checked with Edward Stack, director of the Hall of Fame, to see if that percentage could be rounded off to 75 percent, but Stack said a "pure" 75 percent is required.

The infielder, who had a 19-season

fielding average of .984, was the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1959 for the Chicago White Sox and had a lifetime batting average of .288.

In five years, Fox will be eligible for voting by the Hall of Fame Veterans Committee.

Induction for Brock and Wilhelm will be July 28 at Cooperstown.

Devine, who is now an official with the St. Louis entry in the National Football League, engineered the trade for Brock. He said the Cardinals had discussed acquiring Brock from the Chicago Cubs for a year before the trade occurred.

"We needed an outfielder and Brock had been in our conversations with the Cubs for a year," Devine said. "As it came to the trading deadline (during the 1964 season), the Cubs thought Brock was expendable and they needed pitching."

Devine worked out a six-player swap, sending pitchers Ernie Broglio and Bobby Shantz and outfielder Doug Clemens to Chicago for Brock and pitchers Paul Toth and Jack Spring. Broglio, the key man for the Cubs in the trade, won 18 games in 1963, but suffered an arm injury and won only seven games for Chicago before retiring following the 1966 season.

"(The late Cardinal manager Johnny) Keane was a very big force in it because he liked Brock and kept pressing me about it," Devine said. "When he heard it came down to a Broglio-for-Brock thing, he said, 'What are we waiting for?'"

Brock played in the majors from 1961 through 1979. In addition to the career record for stolen bases, he holds the National League record of 118 stolen bases in one season (1974), and his World Series batting average of .391 in 21 games is the highest ever. He had a career batting average of .295.

In addition to Brock, Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Bob Feller, Jackie Robinson, Sandy Koufax, Ernie Banks, Willie Mays, Warren Spahn, Mickey Mantle, Al Kaline, Bob Gibson, Hank Aaron, Frank Robinson and Brooks Robinson, who since the first year of the voting, made it into the Hall of Fame in their first time on the ballot.

Wilhelm started his career in 1952 with the Giants and went on to play with the Cardinals, Cleveland Indians, Baltimore Orioles, Chicago White Sox, California Angels, Atlanta Braves, Chicago Cubs and Los Angeles Dodgers.

He had a career record of 143-122 with an earned run average of 2.52. The right-hander spent much of his career specializing in relief. But that was before saves were recorded in the statistics.

Outfielder Billy Williams was next after Fox on the 41-man ballot with 252 votes, followed by pitcher Jim Bunning, 214, and Catfish Hunter, 212. No one else drew more than 200 votes.

Eighteen of the 41 players in this year's voting will be dropped from the ballot next year after failing to draw the required 5 percent — 20 votes — for continuation.

Vada Pinson came closest with 19, followed by Wilbur Wood, 16, and Harvey Haddix, 15. Others failing off the ballot were Dave McNally, Ken Holman, Ron Fairly, Jim Lonborg, Andy Messersmith, Don Kessinger, Denny McLain, Jesus Alou, Rico Carty and Dock Ellis, all of whom drew at least one vote.

There were no votes recorded for Clay Carroll, Ed Kranepool, George Scott, Bobby Tolan, Roy White.

Others receiving more than the minimum to stay on the ballot were Roger Maris, Harvey Kuenn, Orlando Cepeda, Tony Oliva, Maury Wills, Bill Mazeroski, Lew Burdette, Mickey Lolich, Ken Boyer, Elroy Face, Elston Howard, Ron Santo, Joe Torre, Don Larsen, Thurman Munson, Dick Allen and Curt Flood.

76ers Take Eighth, Suns Slow Tempo

By The Associated Press

The Phoenix Suns knew they couldn't outrun the Philadelphia 76ers, so they slowed the game down and tried to outshoot them.

The strategy almost worked well enough to keep the 76ers from winning their eighth straight game.

"It was the only answer," Suns Coach John MacLeod said after his team's 100-99 loss in a National Basketball Association game Monday night. "We came in here last year and tried to run up and down with Philadelphia and fell behind by 30 points. We did not want them to start flying up and down the court."

The Suns hit 58.6 percent of their shots and held the 76ers to just 66 field-goal attempts, 20 under their average. But Philadelphia won by making 57.6 percent of its shots and outscoring the Suns 24-15 at the free throw line.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 108, New York 97; Dallas 102, Seattle 84; Kansas City 110, Golden State 101 and Los Angeles Clippers 116, Utah 106.

Phoenix often waited until only 10 seconds showed on the 24-second clock to start its offense. Time after time, the Suns scored just before the shot clock expired.

"What made it so effective was the way they shot the basketball," 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham said. "With the shot clock running down they continued to make the big baskets. Their decision to slow it down was a gamble. I'm sure John knew that if they were not hitting their shots they were going to be in trouble."

So few shots were taken in the game that Moses Malone had a season-low five rebounds to go with his 19 points. However, Charles Barkley, the 76ers' first-round draft choice, had 13 rebounds and 15 points, six of them down the stretch. After the game was tied 90-90 with 2:21 remaining, Barkley hit two free throws and moments later stole a pass and dunked to give Philadelphia a 96-90 lead with 57 seconds left.

Washburn In Court Hearing

RALEIGH (AP) — Wake County District Attorney Randolph Riley says he will not drop a burglary charge against North Carolina State basketball player Chris Washburn despite reports the alleged victim will not press charges.

Washburn is scheduled for a 9 a.m. hearing today in Wake County District Court.

Washburn was charged Dec. 21 with second-degree burglary after a warrant alleged that the Hickory native tried to steal a stereo from another athlete's room in the College Inn, the school's athletic dormitory.

The Washington Post reported in Tuesday's editions that the student would drop the charge.

Asked about the story and whether he had pressed charges, N.C. State football player William R. West said, "There are no charges. I'm only a witness."

The hearing is scheduled to determine whether the evidence shows probable cause to proceed with the charge, which was brought by the state. If probable cause is found, Washburn will be tried unless he pleads guilty.

Riley, who is prosecuting the case, said he would not drop the charge against Washburn. He added, however, that "the judge could (drop the charge) if that was his assessment of the evidence."

Riley said he had no knowledge of any of the witnesses being reluctant to testify or to see the charge pressed.

Rep. Daniel T. Blue Jr., Washburn's attorney, wouldn't comment on what kind of evidence there might be against Washburn.

Phoenix, which led 62-54 in the third quarter before the 76ers rallied with 12 straight points, cut the deficit to 96-94 with 20 seconds remaining, but Barkley made a pair of free throws to boost the lead back to four.

Larry Nance, who led Phoenix with 21 points, made it 98-96 with eight seconds left, and Andrew Toney's basket five seconds later offset Rod Foster's desperation three-point goal at the buzzer that made the final margin one point. Toney finished with 21 points to lead the 76ers.

Celtics 108, Knicks 97
Boston, whose 29-6 record is a half-game better than Philadelphia's, got 26 second-half points from Larry Bird and 17 first-quarter points from Robert Parish to outlast New York.

Parish, who finished with 21 points, paced the Celtics to a 37-25 lead after the opening period, but Boston scored only 13 points in the second quarter as New York cut the deficit to 50-48 and kept Bird scoreless in the first half.

Bird, who finished with 10 rebounds and 10 assists, then hit nine of 11 shots in the second half to keep New York, which tied the score three times but never took the lead in the final two quarters, at bay.

Bernard King led the Knicks with 22 points, 11 under his league-leading average.

Mavericks 102, Sonics 84
Dallas, despite playing without top rebounder and second-leading scorer Jay Vincent, beat Seattle in the Kingdom for the first time in 10 tries.

The Mavericks, who got 19 points each from Brad Davis and Rolando Blackman, scored the first 11 points of the game and the SuperSonics never caught up.

Seattle got a game-high 24 points from Tom Chambers, but Dallas was charged with only eight fouls. The Sonics, who average nearly 30 free throws a game, shot only four.

Kings 110, Warriors 101
Kansas City scored the last 13 points of the game to overtake Golden State and hand the Warriors their fourth straight loss.

Eric Floyd's field goal gave Golden State a 101-97 edge with 2:2 minutes left, but a pair of free throws by Mike Woodson, who led the Kings with 24 points, and two baskets by Eddie Johnson gave Kansas City the lead for good.

Purvis Short had 38 points for the Warriors to lead all scorers, while LaSalle Thompson had 17 points and 15 rebounds for the Kings.

Clippers 116, Jazz 106
Los Angeles got 20 points from Marques Johnson and 19 from Derek Smith in its wire-to-wire victory over Utah.

The Clippers took a 33-19 lead after one quarter and the Jazz never caught up. Utah was hampered with foul trouble by its center, NBA shot-blocking leader Mark Eaton, who played only 13 minutes before fouling out.

Adrian Dantley led the Jazz with 22 points.

N.C. State, Virginia Share ACC Cellar

By The Associated Press

North Carolina State and Virginia, both in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball cellar after opening with two league losses, will battle to emerge from that spot tonight, while Clemson opens its league schedule at Georgia Tech.

In non-conference action, Wake Forest goes to Furman.

The Wolfpack knocked out Rutgers in the first round of the ECAC Holiday Festival, then dropped a decision to St. John's in the tournament championship. N.C. State then lost to Maryland on Jan. 2 and fell to Kentucky last Saturday.

N.C. State is also on an eight-game conference losing streak that dates back to February of last season. Georgia Tech was the last Wolfpack victim, but the Yellow Jackets returned that favor in December by taking a 66-64 victory in Reynolds Coliseum.

In addition to trying to break the losing streak, the Wolfpack may find out today if freshman Chris Washburn will return to action. The 6-foot-11 Washburn faced a court hearing today on charges of second-degree burglary. Valvano has said that the outcome of the hearing would determine whether he would reinstate Washburn.

Virginia has finished its season series with Duke and has two losses to show for it. While holding the Blue Devil front line below its normal output, the Cavaliers were stung by sixth man David Henderson, whose 21 points paced Duke to a 63-58 triumph in Charlottesville last weekend.

Both the Wolfpack and the Cavaliers have won seven games, but N.C. State has four losses and

Today's Cryptquip clue: N equals M

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Faithful Celebrate Elvis' 50th Birthday

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Hundreds of Elvis Presley fans have gathered to mark the birth 50 years ago today of the king of rock 'n' roll with birthday cake, memories and a look at his mansion.

"I imagine we'll have a couple of thousand" today, "Elvis Presley Day" in Memphis, said Twyla Dixon, a spokeswoman for Graceland Enterprises Inc., which manages Graceland mansion.

About 1,500 Elvis fans visited Graceland, a two-story house, on Monday. Those delivering flowers, many in bouquets shaped like guitars and teddy bears, were granted special entrance to the "meditation gardens," where the singer's mother and father are buried.

Presley, who was born in Tupelo, Miss., on Jan. 8, 1935, died of heart disease in Memphis more than seven years ago.

But fans still celebrate his birthday and mark the anniversary of his death. Their activities are centered around Graceland, where Presley lived for most of his career.

Attendance for Graceland tours has been running below the capacity of more than 3,000 per day because it is winter. But Presley's birthday has drawn more people than normal this month despite a weekend snowstorm that was Memphis' worst since 1968, Graceland managers said.

"We're running about 25 percent ahead of this time in January," said Ms. Dixon. "We're swelled by the fan clubs that have come in. They've really made a special effort."

Visitors today were being given a piece of cake.

Television crews from Norway, Germany, Japan, Switzerland, Australia and England, as well as the major U.S. networks, have come to Graceland to record the 50th birthday observance, said Graceland marketing director Ken Bixey.

At a motel near Graceland on Monday, Fred Whobrey, 44, of Mt. Zion, Ill., set up a display of Elvis memorabilia and waited for other fans to drop by for coffee, soft drinks and gossip.

"When I was growing up, I spent a lot of hours listening to Elvis music," Whobrey said. "If there was a bad time I was going through with my girlfriend or folks or a basketball game or whatever, I could get my head together with Elvis."

Phyllis Ingling, a retired waitress from Hyattsville, Md., said she came to Memphis with 44 other people by bus from Washington.

"I care about Elvis," she said. "Elvis was different. He sang gospels in Las Vegas. We love him and we love his mother and father."

'Golden Globe' Nominees Picked

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The Hollywood Foreign Press Association has nominated "The Killing Fields," a study of two friends in war-torn Cambodia, and "Amadeus," the drama of Mozart's life, for six Golden Globe awards each.

"A Passage to India," David Lean's film of the E.M. Forster novel, was nominated for five awards, which often are harbingers of the Oscars.

Nominations for the 42nd Golden Globe awards include:

Motion Picture, Drama — "Amadeus," "The Cotton Club," "The Killing Fields," "Places in the Heart," "A Soldier's Story."

Motion Picture, Musical Comedy — "Beverly Hills Cop," "Ghostbusters," "Micki and Maud," "Romancing the Stone," "Splash."

Actor, Drama — F. Murray Abraham, "Amadeus"; Jeff Bridges, "Starman"; Albert Finney, "Under the Volcano"; Tom Hulce, "Amadeus"; Sam Waterston, "The Killing Fields."

Actress, Drama — Sally Field, "Places in the Heart"; Diane Keaton, "Mrs. Soffel"; Jessica Lange, "Country"; Vanessa Redgrave, "The Bostonians"; Sissy Spacek, "The River."

Actor, Comedy — Steve Martin, "All of Me"; Dudley Moore, "Micki and Maud"; Eddie Murphy, "Beverly Hills Cop"; Bill Murray,

"Ghostbusters"; Robin Williams, "Moscow on the Hudson."

Actress, Comedymusical — Anne Bancroft, "Garbo Talks"; Mia Farrow, "Broadway Danny Rose"; Shelley Long, "Irreconcilable Differences"; Lily Tomlin, "All of Me"; Kathleen Turner, "Romancing the Stone."

Supporting Actor — Adolph Caesar, "A Soldier's Story"; Richard Crenna, "The Flamingo Kid"; Jeffrey Jones, "Amadeus"; Pat Morita, "The Karate Kid"; Haing S. Ngor, "The Killing Fields."

Supporting Actress — Peggy Ashcroft, "A Passage to India"; Drew Barrymore, "Irreconcilable Differences"; Kim Basinger, "The Natural"; Jacqueline Bisset, "Under the Volcano"; Melanie Griffith, "Body Double"; Christine Lahti, "Swing Shift"; Lesley Ann Warren, "Songwriter."

Director — Francis Coppola, "The Cotton Club"; Milos Forman, "Amadeus"; Roland Joffe, "The Killing Fields"; David Lean, "A Passage to India"; Sergio Leone, "Once upon a Time in America."

Screenplay — Robert Benton, "Places in the Heart"; Charles Fuller, "A Soldier's Story"; David Lean, "A Passage to India"; Bruce Robinson, "The Killing Fields"; Peter Shaffer, "Amadeus."

Foreign Film — "Bizet's Carmen" (France); "Dangerous Moves" (Switzerland); "Paris, Texas" (Germany-France); "A Passage to India" (England); "A Sunday in the Country" (France).

As always, the Golden Globes offer something for everybody. The foreign press even managed to work in all three of the farmland wives: Misses Field, Lange and Spacek.

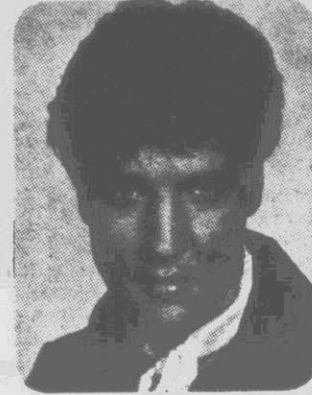

The only surprise might be Sergio Leone's direction of "Once upon a Time in America." The gangster saga drew bad reviews and little business in its first release. But Leone's own, longer version has been drawing critical raves.

The Golden Globes, which also reward television achievement, will be bestowed Jan. 26 at the Beverly Hilton. Dick Clark Productions will syndicate the show by satellite.

FOCUS

Long Live the King

Today marks the 50th birthday of "The King" of rock 'n' roll — Elvis Presley. Elvis first appeared on television in the spring of 1956. Twenty-one of his record albums sold more than one million copies each. Bo Diddley — not Elvis — was the first singer to swivel his hips on television. When Chuck Berry recorded his number one hit, "Mabelline," he was studying to be a hairdresser. Chubby Checker worked as a chicken plucker before he recorded "The Twist."

DO YOU KNOW — What is the name of Elvis Presley's mansion in Memphis, Tennessee?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Joe Kittinger was the first person to cross the Atlantic alone in a hot-air balloon.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Delays and limitations are in effect until the evening and you would be wise to make a special point to keep cheerful and avoid any feelings that you are being put upon and used by others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your responsibilities objectively and you get good results. Enjoy the company of new acquaintances.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may find it difficult to communicate with a partner today who is feeling out of sorts. Get busy with any public work you have to do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may find it hard to get work done today, but take it easy and tonight be with partners who are stimulating.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get busy at keeping any promises made and forget recreation for the time being. Be particularly kind to your mate.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Nothing seems to be going as you desire but persevere and in the evening you gain benefits you expect.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Although you may have private worries don't let them upset and damage your health during the daytime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't expect any help from friends during the day since they are busy at own affairs and rely more on yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Steer clear of a bigwig who could be irate today and get your work done conscientiously. Use care in handling credit matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep rooted to whatever agreements you have made and avoid a newcomer who seeks your favor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't try to wiggle out of some responsibility today or it could boomerang on you later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A partner wants to change some contract or clause, but you don't approve, so be patient.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to change your environment somewhat so that you can be happier in it. Do some gadding about town tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will appear to be slow in learning during early childhood but is actually soaking knowledge in sufficiently to retain it throughout the lifetime. Upon reaching adulthood your progeny will suddenly bloom and be able to make quite a name.

Phil Donahue Show Makes N.Y. Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — The audience is one of the stars on the "Donahue" show, and it's Marilyn O'Reilly's job to fill the house with interested, informative people who aren't afraid to speak their minds on national television.

Ms. O'Reilly said it was "wonderful" to wake up to sunny skies Monday, the first day Phil Donahue's live discussion show was broadcast from New York City. Snow is the worst enemy for someone who provides tickets months in advance to the 200 or so people who make the program lively.

After eight years in Dayton, Ohio, and nine in Chicago, "Donahue" will be broadcast live from New York, just down the hall from "Saturday Night Live" in the RCA Building in Rockefeller Center.

"I was worried about snow," said Ms. O'Reilly, who's in charge of audience services for the popular syndicated program. "After one Chicago snowstorm, we had only 35 people on the show. So we just played it up — look at these 35 hearty souls."

The show's heart and soul is the studio crowd getting emotional about the day's issue.

"Applause is real important, even if you moan or groan," executive producer Patricia McMillen said in her warm-up Monday.

During the commercial breaks, Donahue exhorted participation from everybody.

"How about the cheap seats?" he asked. "Are you gonna get into this thing? I need you." At the end, the white-haired host said he loved New York. "I felt a real energy in the room today."

Ms. O'Reilly says she sees no difference between New Yorkers and Chicagoans, but she was so unfamiliar with New York that she spent time on the subways to learn the names of sections of the city.

Opening lead: Eight of ♦.

The most critical opening lead of the recent World Team Olympiad in Seattle occurred in the match between Iceland and Australia. West's choice made a difference of five tricks for his side.

North's opening bid of two hearts showed a hand that contained four spades and five hearts. After East's overcall, South blasted into Blackwood and contracted for a spade slam when his partner showed two aces. When East made a Lightner double, it was obvious to South that a heart ruff would defeat six spades, so he opted for six no trump.

In view of his partner's Lightner double and subsequent failure to double six no trump, West might have tried the effect of a club lead rather than a diamond. That would have netted his side the first six tricks.

After a diamond lead, declarer showed enviable technique. He won in dummy and ran his five spade tricks, sluffing a diamond from the board. He cashed the king of hearts, ran the jack and the overtook the nine with the ten. That reduced the hand to this position:

When the table's ace of hearts was cashed, East was forced to succumb. He could not discard a diamond without promoting a long card for declarer, so he was forced to sluff the queen of clubs. Declarer discarded his low diamond, then exited with the king of clubs from dummy. East got his ace, but declarer scored the last two tricks with the king of diamonds and jack of clubs.

Key Projects

PEKING (AP) — China will concentrate its capital budget on 169 key projects in 1985, with a strong emphasis on energy, the State Planning Commission announced.

The official Xinhua news agency, which reported the announcement, gave no expenditure figures. China's capital construction budget for 1984 was equivalent to $15.7 billion.

Hijack Foiled

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — On-board security men foiled an attempt by three hijackers to seize an Iranian airliner on a domestic flight, according to Iran's official news agency.

One of the three men who were arrested had smuggled a revolver aboard the plane by hiding it inside a case on his leg, the Islamic Republic News Agency said.

New Bishops

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II consecrated seven new bishops from Africa, Europe and Latin America during a special Mass to mark the Roman Catholic feast day of the Epiphany.

More than 10,000 people weathered heavy snow to watch the pope ordain the bishops, one of whom was from John Paul's native Poland.

The City has revised its noise control laws. For details on noise regulations and permits, call the Police Department at 752-3442.

Collapse Of Oil Firms' Merger May Bring Losses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sudden collapse of a proposed $3.3 billion merger between Occidental Petroleum Corp. and Diamond Shamrock Corp. exposes speculators and shareholders to huge potential losses and leaves Shamrock vulnerable to a hostile takeover attempt, analysts say.

The abrupt termination of the deal probably stemmed from a personality clash between Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental, and Shamrock chairman William H. Bricker, and Hammer's intention not to keep Bricker with the newly formed company, the analysts said.

"It didn't make a bit of sense to begin with," said Anantha Raman, a chemical industry analyst. "Bricker and Hammer would have never gotten along."

Monday's announcement that the merger had failed came just hours after Dallas-based Shamrock, the nation's 26th-largest oil company, and Los Angeles-based Occidental, the 10th-largest, said they had tentatively agreed to form the nation's seventh-largest oil company, based on sales.

The news that the proposed merger collapsed, coming after the close of trading on the New York Stock Exchange, sent shock waves through both companies and the investment community.

"This is incredible. Diamond Shamrock walking away from this," Bruce E. Lazier of the Wall Street investment house Prescott, Ball & Turben told The New York Times. "Their shareholders are going to have a tough time matching what they would have gotten out of this."

"I don't see that anyone would have come along and offered them more," said Dave Ullom, an oil-industry analyst with Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards in Los Angeles.

Shamrock, which had been expected to rise to about $25 per share in the merger, fell from $21 per share to $20 as Monday's most active issue on the NYSE, a development some analysts attributed to investor concern about the value of the merger. It had jumped $3.25 per share on Friday when both companies said they were considering merging.

After Monday's announcement, it dropped as low as $17.125 per share in the so-called third market on the West Coast, where large brokerage firms continue trading after exchanges close.

'John The Skilful' Was First To See America, Prof Says

LONDON (AP) — A Welsh navigator landed in the New World 17 years before Christopher Columbus, but kept his discovery secret because he didn't want rivals to move in, says a British expert who has made a 50-year study of the travels of "John the Skilful."

The Welshman, whose real name was John Lloyd, also was trading with Greenlanders, which was forbidden by royal decree at the time, retired geography professor Arthur Davies said Monday after his paper was published in the Royal Geographical Society journal.

When Columbus arrived in America in 1492, on Watling Island in the Bahamas, he was armed with a charter from Queen Isabella of Spain, allowing him to claim possession under the Spanish crown of all the lands he found in the west.

"Earlier discoverers of North America, with no such charter, gained nothing save by preserving secrecy from rivals who would otherwise move in," Davies wrote.

He said John Lloyd reached North America in 1475, and to prove his point, cites early maps and the foreknowledge that North American explorers such as John Cabot must have had before they sailed for the northwest.

Davies said in his paper that Lloyd reached Hudson Bay in 1477 to rescue a hunting colony of Greenlanders he had taken there in 1475 aboard Welsh ships trading illegally with the declining Viking colony on Greenland.

"He took a hunting colony across from the old Viking settlement in Greenland, which was dying out through lack of trade with Europe, into Hudson Strait, because there was fresh water, land and plenty of animals," Davies said in a radio interview.

"In 1477, when he went to rescue them, he found them all frozen to death." Of course the place wasn't Hudson Bay yet, because English explorer Henry Hudson wouldn't arrive for another 133 years.

"There is a map which goes back to 1499 which clearly shows the Hudson Strait and the American coast down as far as New England," Davies said. "And yet the first man, according to documents, to go through the strait was Henry Hudson ... in 1610. We can see from maps that it was done 110 years earlier."

Davies said a globe compiled in 1536 marked a point on the north coast of the Hudson Strait, the southern tip of Baffinland, which said "John Scolvus" reached it "about 1476."

Many records refer to Scolvus as a Dane. But Davies said Lloyd, or Liwyd in the old Welsh tongue, was the navigator known as "Scolvus," an old German word meaning The Scholar. He was referred to in contemporary documents as "the greatest mariner in all England."

Davies said records in 1480 note that Lloyd, some years earlier, had made a nine-month voyage to the west.

Davis claimed Lloyd later passed the secrets of his voyages to famed navigator John Cabot.

Davis said, "Only when the Gulf of St. Lawrence proved a dead end (to the fabled route to Cathay) in 1497" did Lloyd pass on his secret to Cabot, who concealed the Welshman's identity as "John the Skilful, which ... remained a mystery until now."

Cabot died in 1498 while trying to find the fabled Northwest Passage to China, in what is now northeast Canada, under the patronage of King Henry VII of England.

Davies said that when Cabot sailed from Bristol, England, in 1497, five years after Columbus, he was taken in a Welsh ship on a secret route to the mouth of the St. Lawrence River in Canada.

"The conclusion is inescapable," Davies wrote. "Before Cabot set out, the Atlantic seaboard of North America was already known from Baffinland to well south of what is now the U.S.A."

It is widely accepted that Vikings reached what are now Canada's maritime provinces and the New England coast in the early Middle Ages.

English fishermen are believed to have fished off Newfoundland as early as 1482. But there is no firm evidence they made it to any New World shore.

Davies was professor of geography at Exeter University in southwest England from 1948 to 1971 and is an honorary fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

He said in his paper that his theory resulted from a lifetime curiosity about persistent legends in his native Wales that Madoc, a Welsh prince, voyaged to the Americas in the 12th century.

Soviets Ban Smoking

MOSCOW (AP) — The city council has banned smoking in Red Square and the area around the tomb of the unknown soldier, beginning Thursday, the Evening Moscow newspaper reported.

Cigarette butts discarded by thousands of daily visitors to Red Square are swept up regularly by the squadrons of broom-carrying old women who clean public areas.

But the newspaper said the ban on smoking around the Kremlin's front door was imposed after officials received many letters from Muscovites and tourists.

Red Square links many of Moscow's most visited sights: St. Basil's Cathedral, the Lenin mausoleum, Spassky Tower, the Kremlin wall, the Lenin Museum and the GUM department store.

Letters urging the city government to outlaw smoking in the two main squares came from Soviets of all descriptions, "veterans of war and labor, old Bolsheviks and quite young people," the newspaper said Monday.

Smoking already is prohibited in theaters, museums, subway stations and other public places in Moscow.

Vote-Buying Charges

ASHEVILLE (AP) — U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer said he will ask a federal grand jury Wednesday to indict "one or more" Cherokee County residents for vote buying.

"We received testimony all day today," Brewer said Monday. "It will probably be Wednesday before we present the indictment."

About a dozen witnesses appeared before the grand jury as it convened Monday, giving evidence related to vote buying in Cherokee County during the 1982 election, Brewer said.

"We plan to present to this grand jury an indictment naming one or more individuals for vote buying," Brewer said. "Whether an indictment is returned is for the grand jury to determine."

Besides witnesses called this week, Brewer said the indictment will also be based on evidence gathered by a grand jury last year and the ongoing FBI investigation, Project Westvote. He said the previous grand jury spent about six months investigating vote buying.

Brewer said he hoped the indictment will stop speculation that the investigation of vote buying in Cherokee County is over.

Helms Backed Import Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., voiced reservations about a 1981 federal investigation of tobacco imports, a top Helms aide says the senator supported the 1981 probe by the U.S. International Trade Commission.

George S. Dunlop, Helms' top agriculture aide, rebutted an allegation that Helms opposed the probe made Friday in testimony to the commission, which has begun a new investigation of tobacco imports.

On Friday, the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and the Tobacco Association of the United States, groups that represent the bulk of the nation's leaf dealers, opened testimony by saying both the 1981 and the present investigations were politically motivated.

The groups, which are opposed to import quotas, have alleged that the latest ITC investigation was politically motivated to help Helms in his re-election campaign last year. On Thursday, Helms testified in favor of import quotas.

The 1981 investigation produced no recommendation for quotas.

Body Tentatively Identified

BREVARD, N.C. (AP) — Police in Smyrna, Ga., say they believe they know the identity of a headless and handless body found Dec. 26 in Transylvania County, but say a positive identification still needs to be made by the medical examiner.

Authorities say they believe the decapitated body is that of Steven Boyer, 27, who was reported missing Dec. 23 by his roommate.

"It appears to be (Boyer). It probably is him. Of course, only the medical examiner can say for sure," said Sgt. Edwin Clack of the Smyrna, Ga., police department.

Boyer's family, now living in Ohio, has been notified of the possibility of his death, Clack said. The head and hands have not been located. "There is a chance that it could be somebody else, but I doubt it," Clack said.

Boyer, described as 5-foot-9, 160 pounds with brown hair and eyes, fits the general description of the body two hunters discovered off the shoulder of U.S. 276 in Transylvania County about 14 miles north of Brevard near the Blue Ridge Parkway.

Double Suicide Discovered

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A man and wife cleaned the house, mailed a letter to police, put their two pet dogs in the car, then attached a hose to the exhaust pipe before climbing in themselves and turning on the ignition, authorities said.

Police found them Monday afternoon, dead of carbon monoxide poisoning. Mary Elizabeth and Robert E. Sisco were found seated in the front seat of their Pontiac Phoenix in their garage, said Dr. Steven L. Tracy, Orange County medical examiner.

Orange County sheriff's deputies found a vacuum cleaner hose attached to the exhaust pipe of the car and leading through a car window, Tracy said. The family dogs were in the back seat.

"Everything about it is consistent with double-suicide," Tracy said. "It appears to be carbon-monoxide death."

Mrs. Sisco was 66 and her husband was in his 60s, he said.

Geography Scores Low

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Today's college students appear to know less geography than their parents did at the same age, a University of North Carolina geography professor says.

A test designed by the New York Times 35 years ago showed an "appalling" lack of geographical knowledge among students then, the newspaper wrote at the time. But on a similar test recently administered to almost 1,900 students at University of North Carolina campuses, current students performed significantly worse.

More than 90 percent of the North Carolina students who took the test of national and world geography failed, Richard J. Kopec, chairman of the geography department at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, called the results "unbelievable."

"Truly these are depressing statistics," he said.

Credit Card Gas Pumps

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Customers of a Gastonia convenience store will no longer have to deal with a sales clerk to buy their gasoline. All they'll need is a credit card.

At the Handy Pantry on Bessemer City Road, customers can stick their Visa or MasterCard credit cards into a machine at a gasoline pump that allows them to charge a purchase to their accounts without the intervention of a cashier.

Officials of Handy Pantry and the company that makes the Autocard machines say they believe the arrangement is the first of its kind in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Gas costs 4 cents more per gallon in a credit card transaction, Fortenberry said, but some customers will pay for the convenience.

Protocol Could Be A Key

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Protocol could play a key role in how North Carolina fares in efforts to recruit Japanese firms to the state, says a Department of Commerce official.

Walter Johnson said when he visits Japanese firms, he carries plenty of business cards and resumes printed in Japanese.

"It's simple, but important," said Johnson. "When you're doing business in Japan, you're in a different environment and market. You've got to adjust to the market accordingly."

Duke To Seek Increase

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Duke Power Co. said Monday it plans to ask for an estimated 15 percent to 20 percent rate hike in about a month to fully pay for Unit 1 of the Catawba nuclear plant in South Carolina.

The proposed increase would mean the monthly bill of a Duke customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per month would rise $10 to $13, said Joe Maher, media project director for the utility. Such customers now pay $68.05 per month.

Duke Power informed the N.C. Utility Commission of its intentions by letter.

"Covering the full cost of Catawba Unit 1 would account for about 75 percent of the proposed rate increase, Maher said. He attributed most of the rest of the proposed hike to rising fuel costs and ensuring the continued financial health of the company.

Catawba Unit 1, located south of Charlotte in Rock Hill, S.C., is expected to start generating energy for commercial use around midyear.

N.C. Utilities Commission officials said they expected the request to cause controversy. The commission must approve the increase for it to go into effect.

Abortion Providers See Harassment, But No Violence

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina abortion providers say that while they and their patients have been harassed by abortion foes, they have not suffered any violence approaching the Christmas bombings of abortion clinics in Florida.

Meanwhile, a leading abortion opponent in North Carolina says the bombings could hurt the pro-life cause, and that legal and peaceful anti-abortion protesters themselves have been harassed by staffers at clinics around the state.

Two 21-year-old men are charged with bombing three abortion clinics in Pensacola, Fla., on Christmas morning. Nationwide, federal authorities say there have been 30 fires and bombings of abortion clinics since May 1982.

"I think we've been lucky," said Charlotte Brody of Planned Parenthood in Charlotte, which offers abortions and birth control. "As far as destruction of personal property and harassment of patients, we haven't suffered the worst of it in North Carolina. ... I think the groups that are determined to outlaw legal abortion haven't felt a public mandate that would allow them to get more and more pointed in their attacks."

"No organized right-to-life group has ever condoned bombings or any act of violence," said Apex attorney Paul Stam Jr., past director of North Carolina Right to Life. Stam said he didn't think the bombings "require any special act of condemnation," but he called them "unwise."

"You're dealing with ... some of the most evil, money-hungry people in the world," he said. "You could never match them for potentiality. It's unwise for a group fighting for life to subject themselves to retaliation. ... The biggest problem is that it (bombing) subjects the innocent bystander to injury as does any terrorist act."

Ms. Brody said that while there has been no violence, there has been picketing at many of the 15 clinics in North Carolina that do more than 500 abortions each a year. And she said staffers and patients in Jacksonville, Greensboro and Raleigh have been harassed.

Dr. Takey Crist of Crist Clinic in Jacksonville said he has received threatening phone calls and has had office windows shot with BBs, bushes dug up, garbage cans overturned and signs vandalized. Every week, he said, protesters stand outside the clinic and shout. "Don't go in the clinic, they will kill your baby" and "This clinic is a Nazi concentration camp."

Crist said his clinic had 2,100 abortion patients last year out of a total of 38,600, many of whom came for obstetric care and fertility counseling. He said the protesters harass patients indiscriminately, including teen-aged girls who come in for counseling after being sexually abused.

"I believe in First Amendment rights," Crist said. "But there's got to be some right of that woman and her husband to walk into the clinic unimpeded by the emotional manipulation of others."

Ms. Brody said abortion patients at a Raleigh clinic have been offered "sidewalk counseling" by abortion opponents outside. She said the clinic had to enlist volunteers to escort patients through the line of protesters.

"I think it's violent to accost a young, frightened woman, push a baby doll in her face and say, 'Mommy, don't kill me.' That's the essence of sidewalk counseling," she said.

Stam said the vast majority of abortion protesters peacefully carry signs and bother no one, but that many have been bothered.

"We've been picketing clinics in Raleigh for a couple of years, and the owners of the buildings regularly have employees out there cutting the grass and aiming the grass at little old ladies," he said. "Sometimes they turn the sprinklers on them. That's never reported."

He said other clinic staffers try to intimidate protesters by taking their pictures, and that one clinic owner reportedly drove his car very close to a line of picketers.

Crist, who three years ago lost a lawsuit aimed at getting the picketers away from his clinic, said the protests have had the unintended effect of providing free advertising for him.

"Every time they invite the local radio and TV, what do you think happens to our appointment books the next day?" he said.

Stam said pro-life activists would continue their peaceful protests, despite being ignored by many news organizations. He said up to 100,000 are expected at a demonstration in Washington this month.

"I'm more optimistic than I have been in 10 years," he said, noting that most of the U.S. Supreme Court justices who support abortion are over 75 years old and soon may be off the bench.

New Cabinet Takes Office

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The changing of the guard continued in the state capital as Gov. Jim Martin swore in eight members of his cabinet and reaffirmed his vow to cut state taxes while balancing the budget.

Martin administered the oath of office Monday to all cabinet members but Revenue Secretary Helen Powers in a ceremony in the old Capitol House chamber as perhaps 300 relatives, friends and colleagues applauded.

Ms. Powers and Budget Director C.C. Cameron, who isn't officially a cabinet member but is a cabinet-level adviser, will take their oaths in about a month after completing personal business, Martin said. Both attended Monday's ceremony.

Cameron said in an interview that his retirement as First Union Corp. chairman won't become effective until Jan. 31. But he said he would work full-time at his new job this month. Marvin Dorman, who will remain as deputy budget director, will oversee day-to-day operations until Cameron takes over.

Martin said he hoped to decide in the next few weeks on ways to balance the budget while eliminating some $400 million in taxes.

"I hope in a few weeks we will be reaching those (spending) decisions that I know you all are most anxious to see ...," Martin said in an interview.

Cameron said his office would "come up with all kinds of alternatives" for raising about $400 million — the amount needed to balance the budget if Martin persuades the Legislature to accept his proposals for repealing the sales taxes on food and medicine and the intangibles and inventory taxes.

Among the possible money-raising methods being considered are spending cuts and deferrals, along with a possible revision of the economic outlook on which the fiscal 1985-87 budget submitted by former Gov. Jim Hunt was based, Cameron said. That outlook foresaw a decline in the state's economy over the next two years.

"He's got to feel comfortable with ... the budget he presents, and also feel that it's something that the Legislature will be receptive to," said Cameron of Martin. "He was elected by the people running on a tax-reduction program."

Martin has said he wants to cut the sales tax on food and medicines by July 1, 1986, and will try to eliminate the other taxes later. Thus, there's no need to raise all the extra $400 million in time for the fiscal 1985-87 budget, which the Legislature will compile this year, Cameron said.

He added that no date had been set for completing Martin's proposed revisions to Hunt's proposed budget.

Cameron said he expected it would take the Legislature, which convenes Feb. 5, "a month or so to digest" the Hunt budget.

On other matters, Martin said he didn't plan to have his main office in the Capitol as Hunt did, but instead would set up shop in the modern Administration Building after "a few weeks." The Capitol will be used for ceremonial purposes, he said.

"The Administration will be closer to the other cabinet offices and the administration of our new government," said Martin. "But we'll be using both. This (the Capitol) is a grand building (but) there's just not the same kind of easy access ... here as we have there."

Martin also said that although he used the gubernatorial limousine during his inaugural ceremonies last weekend, he didn't plan to use it regularly.

Smith Gets Democratic Backing

RALEIGH (AP) — Wade Smith, who was nominated by Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan as his choice to become chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party, has received the backing of some of the state's top Democrats.

"He's one of the brightest faces in the Democratic Party," former Gov. Jim Hunt said. "I think he will encourage a lot of new people who aren't necessarily highly partisan to be involved in the Democratic Party."

Smith also received the support of the man he will succeed if elected to the post.

The current state party chairman, David Price, said he thought Smith was "an excellent choice."

"He understands politics and understands what the party needs to lead effectively," Price said. "Also, he'll be an outstanding spokesman. He's got broad experience in government and is very articulate."

The party's Executive Committee will formally select the successor to Price when it meets Jan. 12. But the committee traditionally abides by the recommendation of the highest elected Democrat, in this case Jordan.

Price is returning to Duke University to teach political science.

Sanford Is Seeking Job

RALEIGH (AP) — Duke University President Terry Sanford is now actively seeking the chairmanship of the national Democratic Party and is expected to announce his candidacy this week, according to a letter his supporters have mailed.

Sanford supporters mailed a letter to national Democratic leaders Monday stating that Sanford, who retires as Duke's president this year, would announce his candidacy for the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee this week.

"I think he has a good chance," state Democratic Party chairman David Price said. But, Price said, "it is by no means certain."

Sanford, who is out of the state until Wednesday, could not be reached for comment Monday.

The State Democratic Party's Executive Committee is meeting Saturday in Raleigh, however. The 400-member committee will select new officers, including the state chairman and four representatives to the DNC. Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan has announced that he will nominate former state Rep. Wade Smith, a Raleigh attorney, as party chairman.

In entering the race, Sanford becomes the seventh candidate for the post, which is to be filled Feb. 1 by the 377-member Democratic National Committee when it meets in Washington.

This Wednesday Jan. 9, 1985

Clip the Manufacturer's cents off Coupons from Your Mail, Newspapers and Magazines... Then Bring Them to Kroger Sav-on

FOR EVERY $10.00 PURCHASE WE WILL DOUBLE 5 MFG'S COUPONS - EXAMPLE
$10 Purchase - 5 Coupons
$20 Purchase - 10 Coupons
$100 Purchase - 50 Coupons

This Wednesday, Jan. 9, we will redeem all national manufacturer's cents-off coupons up to 50¢ for double their value. Offer good on national manufacturer's coupons only. (Food retailer coupons not accepted.) Customer must purchase coupon product in specified size. Expired coupons will not be honored. Coupons for free merchandise excluded from this offer. Offer does not apply to Kroger or other store coupons whether manufacturer is mentioned or not. When the value of the coupon exceeds 50¢ this offer is limited to $1.00. If double the value of a coupon exceeds the retail of the item, this offer is limited to the retail price. Limit one cigarette and coffee coupon per customer. Limit one coupon for any particular item. If you, for example, have two coupons for 15¢ off on Miracle Whip and intend to purchase two jars of Miracle Whip - only one of these coupons will be doubled. You may use the second coupon but it's face value remains at face value.
