City Adopts Revitalization Loan Plan

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

In two separate actions, the City Council Thursday designated the heart of the city as a rehabilitation, conservation and reconditioning area and approved low-interest loan programs through which funds will be made available for revitalization of properties located within the designated area.

The 382-acre area defined by the council's action is bounded by the Tar River on the north, Elizabeth Street and Dickinson Avenue on the west, 14th Street on the south, and Charles Boulevard and Reade Circle on the east.

According to Councilman Louis Clark, the loan programs will make funds available for renovation and remodeling of existing commercial and residential rental properties located in the designated area. In coming months, Clark added, loans will be made available for renovation of owner-occupied properties. Clark has been instrumental in developing the revitalization loan project.

Through the program, qualifying applicants will be awarded loans with interest rates below the current prime rate. The project, a joint public-private enterprise involving the city, a non-profit organization called Evergreen and four local lending institutions, will be funded with monies provided by Branch Banking and Trust Company, NCNB, Planters National Bank and Wachovia Bank. Each of the lending institutions has pledged a minimum of $500,000, for a total loan pool of $2 million. Participating banks can lend money to the city at a below market rate because the interest they receive from the city is tax exempt. The city, in turn, passes this interest rate savings on to "end borrowers" on the condition that loans be used only for revitalizing structures within in the redevelopment area. The city, however, is only a vehicle through which banks' loan funds will pass and will primarily be involved in the process from an approval standpoint.

General information on the loan programs is available through the Greenville City Clerk's office, first floor City Hall. Detailed information may be obtained by contacting the city attorney's office, third floor City Hall, or the city finance department. City Hall is located at the corner of Fifth and Washington Street; the telephone number is 752-4137.

In other business, the council approved an amendment to the city zoning ordinance creating a R-6N (Neighborhood Revitalization District) classification.

The new zoning designation, the first of its kind in North Carolina, was designed by Planning Department personnel for the primary purpose of limiting duplex and multi-family development in single-family neighborhoods. Zoning an area R-6N would limit development of duplex and multi-family structures on a percentage basis.

Responding to concerns voiced by Greenville Board of Adjustments Chairman George Alvan, who said he was speaking only as a private citizen, the council elected to continue consideration of a proposed ordinance

New Program

The University North Carolina Board of Governors today approved a new bachelor of science degree program in communications for East Carolina University.

The program is designed to provide education in journalism, advanced writing, speech and broadcasting and will be an inter-departmental concern, combining the resources of the ECU departments of English and Theater Arts.

Doub Appointed To Roads Board

By STUART SAVAGE
and JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writers

Randy Doub of Greenville was one of 21 persons named to the Board of Transportation Thursday by Gov. Jim Martin.

In addition to Doub, who will represent Pitt, Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Greene, Lenoir, Jones, and Pamlico counties (Division 2), Martin named Kenneth H. Roberson of Robersonville to represent Bertie, Hertford, Hyde, Martin, Northampton, Gates, Washington, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Tyrrell, Pasquotank and Perquimans counties (Division 1).

Doub, an attorney, was Martin's campaign manager in Pitt County. Roberson, a farmer, served on the DOT board and the secondary roads council from 1973 to 1977, during the administration of James Holshouser, and was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for state commissioner of agriculture in 1972 and 1976.

In making the appointments, Martin said transportation board members "not only formulate policies and priorities for the Department of Transportation, they are the vital link between the citizens of North Carolina and their transportation system."

Saying the board of transportation, possibly more than any other board, directly affects the

City Checks Disaster Response

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Minutes before 8 p.m. Thursday, officials called the city's first practice disaster alert to test the effectiveness of its recently adopted Emergency Management Plan despite poor weather conditions.

"We had been waiting for a night like this," Mayo Allen, emergency management coordinator, said. "We wanted the weather to be a little rough so the drill wouldn't be too easy."

Although predictions called for snow or freezing rain, precipitation slowed to an intermittent drizzle shortly before word was passed to City Manager Gail Meeks in the middle of the City Council's monthly meeting that the mock disaster had been implemented.

"The (mock) emergency situation," Mrs. Meeks announced to surprised public attending the meeting, "is tornados in the area and damages have been reported at several locations." She then excused city department heads not needed for the remainder of the council meeting to report to their command posts.

Within 45 minutes of Mrs. Meeks' announcement, approximately 338 people or 85 percent of the city's 398 employees had reported in and were awaiting orders. A final count indicated that 370 or 92 percent of city employees turned out to participate in the alleged surprise drill without pay.

"Although we didn't tell anyone that the drill would be held tonight (Thursday)," she said, "I think our employees had kind of figured out that we might call it since weather conditions were right."

Mrs. Meeks and Allen, as well as Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner who was invited to critique the city's efforts, said the drill went extremely well. Joyner will submit his written critique in coming weeks.

"The attitude and morale of employees I dealt with was unbelievable," Mrs. Meeks said.

"I had no idea they'd be so excited about this and I'm satisfied now that we're better prepared for a disaster today than we were a year ago," Allen said.

Joyner commented that city employees had done a "real good job," jokingly adding he believed the drill must have been "rehearsed, it went so well."

"It is commendable, though, that this many employees turned out in this length of time," he said.

Employees responded to 60 simulated disaster situations including fires, a chemical spill, wrecks, equipment breakdowns, electricity outages, robberies, bridge collapses, vandalism, flooding, traffic light burn outs, evacuations, injuries and one fatality.

Some of the more elaborate scenarios included a power outage at the Pitt-Greenville Airport necessitating that a ring of lights be made with police cars so an imaginary helicopter carrying Gov. Jim Martin could land, and a situation where six make-believe victims, one dead, were trapped under two diseased trees which had been felled on Pitt Street earlier Thursday.

"We tried to think of every possible occurrence and include it in the drill," Mrs. Meeks explained.

City office staff, public works employees, Greenville Utilities employees, fire-rescue and police

Thursday Thefts

Police are investigating two break-ins reported to the department Thursday.

Cpl. M.C. Jernigan said a quantity of stereo equipment was taken from 1505B Chestnut St. in a break-in reported at 1:32 a.m. Officer J.E. Fleming said several pieces of luggage and a quantity of clothing were taken from an apartment at 709 Johnson St. in a break-in reported at 3 p.m.

Swimming Lessons

The Eastern Carolina Vocational Center is offering adult swimming lessons for beginners. Classes, which will begin Monday, will meet for four weeks on Mondays and Thursdays from 7-8 p.m.

Fees for the use of the pool and a lifeguard is $35 per person. Classes will be taught by Red Cross-certified instructors and Red Cross cards will be issued at the end of the class.

For information contact the aquatics staff at 758-4188, ext. 237.

Workshop At Rose

A stress management workshop for high school students will begin Jan. 30, with classes meeting every Wednesday from 2:40 to 3:40 p.m. for a period of ten weeks. The workshop will conclude April 3.

Fee for the workshop is $20 for the entire course and the class will be limited to 15 people. Registration and advance payment is required. The workshop will be coordinated by Dr. Hal May in cooperation with the Rose High guidance department.

Bethel Fire Station Is Discussed

BETHEL — A delegation from Bethel's Fire Department met this week with the town board to discuss the possibility of building a new fire station on the north side of the railroad tracks.

No action was taken on the proposal, but the board will meet again Jan. 24 to discuss the option of a station on the north side of the tracks or the possibility of building one central fire station instead.

In other matters, the board renewed a contract with the League of Municipalities to continue to perform the implementation of the code of ordinances; and adopted a resolution to add death benefits of a year's pay not to exceed $21,000 to the retirement system for city workers.

A bid of $4,000 was received for a lot on Smith Street belonging to the town. The board will first advertise the lot according to routine legal practices prior to making a final acceptance of the bid. Additionally, the city will advertise for sale a lot and building on Main Street.

The police chief discussed the need for a rollover telephone system pending a new senior citizen call-in program.

Court Protest

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Supreme Court guards used clubs to break up a protest by relatives of people who disappeared after being arrested by security agents. Witnesses and church sources said two protesters were injured and 19 arrested.

The incident occurred after members of an organization for relatives of missing detainees delivered a letter to the court protesting its refusal to investigate a security agent's claim that some of the missing prisoners were killed.

"We expect the justices to be on the side of the crime victims, not to favor criminals," the letter said.

Be aware of what's going on in your City's government! Attend the City Council meeting! Regular Council meetings are held on the second Thursday of each month, at 7:30 p.m., in the City Council Chamber.

will meet at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at the home of Claude Porter, 1015 Colonial Ave.

Reading Rally Set

The Pitt-Greenville Chapter of the International Reading Association (IRA) will sponsor a reading rally from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Jan. 26 at Carolina East Mall.

Participants will include members of the local IRA from Pitt County and Greenville schools and East Carolina University. For further information contact Jo Ellen French at W.H. Robinson School, 756-3707.

Court Of Colanthe

Forbes Court of Colanthe No. 386 will meet Saturday at 2 p.m. at Liberty Street Recreation Center.

Series Begins

A series on "Ethics, Politics, Economics and Morality in the Professions" will begin Sunday at 11 a.m. at 499 S. Oak St.

The first program will explore tobacco. Agricultural leader Kenneth Dews and cancer specialist Spencer Raab will speak. Dr. John Moskop of the humanities faculty of the East Carolina University School of Medicine will serve as moderator at the meeting.

The series will be sponsored by the local Unitarian Universalist Fellowship.

CP Fund Drive

All proceeds are channeled through the "Weekend with the Stars" telethon for cerebral palsy.

The telethon will be broadcast on WRAL-TV Saturday and Sunday with remote broadcasts originating at Carolina East Mall at noon Sunday.

Dixon Elected

Phillip R. Dixon, attorney for the Greenville Board of Education for seven years, has been elected president of the North Carolina Council of School Attorneys for 1985.

Dixon, a partner in the law firm of Dixon, Duffus & Doub, also serves as a special education hearing officer for the state Department of Public Instruction.

The Council of School Attorneys sponsors a regular program of continuing legal education and related programs of work.

Animals Studied

Carolina Country Day kindergarten students recently completed a week-long unit on the behavior of and proper care of animals.

The children brought their own pets to class for demonstration and observation purposes.

Found Dead

WINTERVILLE — David Hayes Wall, 22, of 406 W. Church St. was found dead in his locked apartment Thursday, apparently the victim of a self-inflicted knife wound to the chest.

Dr. Stan Harris, regional medical examiner, who ruled the death a suicide, said Wall, a senior at East Carolina University, probably died Wednesday morning. He was from Whiteville.

Drug Raises Hope Of Halting Paralysis From Spinal Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Within five years, paramedics and doctors may inject a drug, used successfully in experiments on cats, to prevent paralysis in thousands of accident victims with spinal cord injuries, a scientist said.

The drug prevents paralysis if injected up to 24 hours after the spinal cord is crushed or damaged, Dr. Alan I. Faden, vice chairman of neurology at the University of California at San Francisco, said in an interview Thursday.

But the drug will not work if the cord is severed, and will not cure people or animals who already are paralyzed.

The findings were released Thursday as the university announced the opening of its Center for Neural Injury, directed by Faden and located at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in San Francisco. A university statement said the center "will focus on research, prevention and treatment of paralysis associated with spinal cord injury, head injury and stroke."

"If clinical trials in humans prove to be as successful as our animal studies suggest, we hope to be able to keep many people out of wheelchairs," Faden said in the statement.

"The recovery of full function ... in our animal studies has been dramatic" after use of the drug, a synthetic version of a hormone named thyrotropin-releasing hormone, or TRH, he said.

A study of the drug's effectiveness in preventing paralysis of anesthetized cats whose necks were intentionally injured has been accepted for publication in the journal Neurology. It was conducted by Faden and UCSF researcher Thomas P. Jacobs.

Faden and Jacobs found the injured cats suffered only minimal weakness in their legs six weeks after injury if they received synthetic TRH. "The control animals (who didn't receive the hormone) showed severe paralysis of all four legs," Faden said.

In cases where the spinal cord is crushed but not severed, paralysis occurs because of the body's chemical reaction to the injury, not the injury itself, Faden explained. The hormone blocks the body's chemical changes that kill nerve cells in the spinal cord and cause paralysis. The hormone cannot regenerate dead nerve cells, he said.

Faden said spinal cord injuries force about 20,000 Americans into wheelchairs each year. Another 600,000 suffer significant head injuries, but are not necessarily paralyzed, and 2.5 million other Americans suffer partial or full paralysis from strokes.

He predicted that if tests prove the injectable drug also works in humans, then within five years "it should be carried by every ambulance driver and paramedic who works in the field and undoubtedly would be stocked by every emergency room."

Accidents Cause $5,550 In Damage

An estimated $5,550 damage resulted from three wrecks investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 3:40 p.m. collision on Charles Street, 300 feet south of the 14th Street intersection, involving vehicles driven by Stanley Thomas Whaley of Route 2, Ayden, Sallie Hume Baxter of New Bern, and Victoria Laci Tichenor of Branch's Estates.

Police, who charged Ms. Tichenor with following too close, estimated damage at $200 to the Whaley truck, $2,000 to the Baxter car and $300 to the Tichenor vehicle.

Joseph Ray Joyner of 2905 Rose St. was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of a 4:16 p.m. collision of Tenth Street and Rocksprings Road.

Officers said the Joyner car collided with a vehicle driven by Mary Jones Rhodes of 2117 Southview Drive, causing $1,000 damage to the Joyner car and $850 damage to the Rhodes vehicle.

A 4:34 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Washington streets, involved cars driven by Deborah Hardison Johnson of 108 Knights Court and Debra M. Chamlee of 311 Lewis St.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $300 to the Johnson car and $700 to the Chamlee auto by investigators, who charged Ms. Johnson with failing to stop for a stop light.

Couple Has One Too Many Faiths To Fit Inside A Church

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for people who want to marry outside their religion, because that is our situation and we don't know which way to turn.

We are both 21 and in college. I was raised a Roman Catholic and the girl I want to marry was raised a Jew. We love each other and never once have argued about religion. However, her parents aren't too happy about her marrying a Catholic, and my parents aren't exactly thrilled with my marrying a Jew.

I have no desire to turn Jewish, and my fiancée doesn't want to turn Catholic. We want to be married in either a church or a synagogue, but no priest will marry us, and neither will a rabbi. Who will, then?

If we have children, we plan to expose them to both religions and let them decide what they want to be.

Any ideas?
IN LOVE IN BOSTON

DEAR IN LOVE: If there's a rabbi or a Roman Catholic priest who will perform a mixed marriage in a synagogue or church, I don't know where he (or she) is.

You may have to settle for a civil ceremony, but if you want a religious ceremony, try the Unitarian Church.

***

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Bernie Saber in Scottsdale": When we were traveling in Israel (in 1970), our tour guide pointed out a cattle farm and said, "These cows are called 'Goldsteins' instead of 'Holsteins'—they say 'Noo' instead of 'Moo.'"

ESTHER IN MANHATTAN BEACH

DEAR ESTHER: I think we've milked this item dry—and that's no bull.

DEAR ABBY: As a horticulturist, may I add my opinion on whether a tomato is a fruit or a vegetable?

Botanically speaking, a fruit is considered to be a mature ovary of a flower, which is what a tomato is. It contains seeds just as all fruits do (except parthenocarpic fruits, which are bred to be seedless). There are many types of fruit. For example, an apple is a pome fruit and a peach is a drupe fruit. A tomato is actually a berry!

However, commonly speaking, a tomato is treated as a vegetable because people do not eat them like other fruits. Many other vegetables that are botanically classified as fruits are actually vegetables.

Cucumber, squash, pumpkin, pepper and eggplant are also fruits, but are treated as vegetables. On the other hand, there are some vegetables that are not considered fruits. For example: Brussels sprouts are buds, lettuce and cabbage are leaves, and broccoli and cauliflower are flowers! It matters little what you call them as long as you're happy when you eat them.

F. PARIVAR, DEPARTMENT OF HORTICULTURE, UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

DEAR F. PARIVAR: I give up. Pass the crow.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Dog-Tired in Pennsylvania": I also had the problem of dogs coming on my property to do their dirty business. Then I heard about a solution that really works.

Sprinkle mothballs (or crystals) around the shrubbery and bushes the dogs frequent. Do this every three or four weeks and you'll have no problem. Dogs hate this odor. It will also discourage rabbits and chipmunks.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Baked Apples & Tea
RANGETOP BRISKET

- 3-pound thin cut fresh brisket
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- Vegetable oil
- 1 large (6 ounces) onion, sliced 1/4-inch thick and separated into rings (1 cup)

- 3 medium (each 2 ounces) carrots, sliced 1/4-inch thick (1 1/2 cups)

- 1 large (7 ounces) green pepper, seeded and sliced 1/4-inch thick (2 cups)
- 2 large cloves garlic, finely chopped

Rub surface of brisket with a mixture of the salt, pepper and paprika. In a large wide heavy saucepot heat oil and brown meat in it. Remove brisket and pour off fat.

Layer onion, carrot, green pepper and garlic in saucepot; add meat.

Cover tightly and cook gently, turning meat several times, until tender — about 2 1/2 hours. If necessary, add water (1/2 cup at a time) during cooking. Skim fat from the thin gravy and serve with the thinly sliced meat. Makes 8 servings.

Crayfish Being Studied By University Professor

Thousands of Americans have been sentenced to life in a wheelchair because nerves damaged during automobile and other accidents deteriorated before the victim could reach a hospital. An N.C. State University professor is studying crayfish to perhaps pave the way to preventing this degeneration.

"When the nerve fibers that control muscle function in humans are injured, their deterioration begins immediately," Dr. Robert M. Grossfeld, a North Carolina State University zoologist, said. Grossfeld believes that, if this degeneration of the nerves can be slowed, the severity and incidence of paralysis might be reduced.

To learn more about nerve degeneration, Grossfeld is studying the crayfish, an invertebrate which possesses one of the simplest nervous systems known. According to Grossfeld, injured sensory and motor nerve fibers in the crayfish deteriorate at different rates, which makes the crayfish an interesting subject for nerve degeneration research.

"Sensory nerve fibers responsible for sensation (to and) from the claw, when severed, deteriorate as rapidly as those found in the nervous system of man," he said. "But when the motor nerve fibers which control the muscles of that same claw are cut, they degenerate quite slowly. They may remain functionally and structurally sound for months.

"If we can gain an understanding of the mechanism by which these particular motor nerve fibers in the crayfish manage to survive, we'll be in a better position to look for ways to apply this knowledge to the vertebrate," he said.

Grossfeld has collaborated on some of this work with Dr. George Bittner of the University of Texas at Austin.

Grossfeld said both he and Bittner believe that the life-prolonging mechanism might be found in the glial cells, a protective sleeves of cells which surround the nerve fibers.

Although glial cells make up more than 70 percent of the cells in the human central nervous system, surprisingly little is known about their function, Grossfeld said. "My suspicion is that glial cells provide nutrients to the severed motor fibers in the crayfish and, by doing so, retard nerve deterioration," he said.

"We want to learn whether these glial cells provide molecules to the injured fibers, and if so, what kinds of molecules."

One molecule which may be transferred between these cells is GAD (glutamic acid decarboxylase). This enzyme manufactures a substance called GABA (gamma-aminobutyric acid) which motor nerve cells release to control muscle function.

"If we can demonstrate that the glial cells can supply GAD to the nerve cells, it will offer a model system for further experimentation," Grossfeld said.

By studying this system of exchange, the researcher hope to be able to understand how glial cells may preserve function in injured nerve fibers, he said.

"It could take many more years of basic research," he said. "But when this understanding is reached, if the information can be applied to vertebrates, medical science may then be in a position to slow nerve degeneration in humans...for example, at the scene of an accident."

SLEEP PROBLEMS OR ADULTS

NEW YORK (AP) — About 75 percent of American adults have problems sleeping, according to Internal Medicine News.

Reporting on a recent symposium on sleep disorders at Tulane University School of Medicine, the publication noted these findings:

— Young adults appear to have the perfect cycle of deep sleep at night and optimal daytime alertness. They fall asleep quickly, sleep almost 10 hours, and have a sleep-efficiency rating of 95 percent.

— However, during college, they become almost pathologically sleepy, despite almost eight hours of sleep daily.

— The elderly are even more physiologically sleepy in the daytime than the younger adults, and this may be the result of fragmented sleep. Studies show that if they spend 10 hours a night in bed, they will sleep a total of about 7 1/2 hours.

Fairness

Well before most of today's United States population was born, the Japanese recognized their small island nation had to export or die. Lacking in natural resources, they "found" their resources on the Asian mainland and turned to manufacturing.

Japan's early needs for raw materials and markets involved it in the use of force to achieve its goals and it was well on its way to establishing an Asian colonial system. It led Japan into war with the United States. That much is history.

Japanese productivity and technology zoomed from zero to enviable highs in the post-war years. Trade was the name of the game; and the USA was a rich market for Japan's goods.

In time, Americans realized trading with Japan had some elements of a one-way street. Imbalances in our foreign trade mounted.

Negotiations were held but our exports continued to trail imports by a big margin. North Carolinians are watching the latest round of trade talks ... we have a stake in them, too.

A trade specialist with the N.C. Dept of Commerce's Office of Textiles and Apparel observes, "Exporting to Japan has always been very difficult. They've systematically made it as difficult ... as they can." We recall reading the same complaint by others. Tactics are said to include quality standards and cumbersome paperwork.

On the whole, Americans value Japan as a friend, as an ally and as a trading partner. On that basis the trade negotiations have been conducted on a level of dealing with friends and partners. It has not greatly helped our balance of trade figures.

As a practical matter of dealing with friends it seems to us that Japan could hardly object to the U.S. adopting identical Japanese import barriers. Its businessmen and officials would be quick to see the light. It's simply a matter of what's fair for one is fair for all.

History

A 50-year study by a retired British geographer adds one more predecessor to Christopher Columbus in discovering the New World. There obviously were a lot of them.

John Lloyd (aka "John the Skilful") was a Welshman said to have discovered North America in 1475 and kept his find a secret from possible rivals. The present day geographer says ancient maps confirm Lloyd's discovery.

There's pretty much a general agreement there were a number of poorly recorded or unrecorded European visitors before Columbus. There were the Norsemen; the Irish have long claimed one of their early seafarers reached our shores, and there is every reason to think nomads crossed into what is now North America by a Far North landbridge.

Others point to reason for belief voyagers from Southeast Asia and the Pacific islands found their way to the western hemisphere's mainland.

It's just as well Columbus (and Queen Isabella) didn't know about all that; or he might not have tried locating China by sailing westward. He would have remained just another sea captain and we would have no Columbus Day to mark.

Those Who Make It Rain

Well, everyone seems to be back in town, not only the winners, but the losers in last November's election. The victors have taken their seats in the House and Senate, and the losers have taken theirs in one of Washington's 100,000 prestigious law firms.

Ex-Congressman Turtleback is one of the losers, if you call making $350,000 a year with Tort & Tort a losing proposition.

"I thought you'd go back to Wistful County after you lost your seat." I said.

"You ever been in Wistful County?" Turtleback asked me.

"Can't say that I have," I admitted. "All I know about it is what you said on the floor of the House — that it was America's biblical Garden of Eden."

"I'm not on the floor anymore, and Wistful County is the pits. I'm not just saying that because I lost the election after serving the people there for 20 years. It was the pits when I first came to Congress, and it's the pits now."

"Did you ever practice law before you got elected to public office?"

"No, and I don't intend to practice it now. I'm going to be the rainmaker at Tort & Tort."

"What's a rainmaker?"

"The fellow that makes it rain new business on the firm because of the people he knows. I may be out of office but I still have friends who owe me a few favors."

"Then you're going to be an influence peddler."

"Never. My job is to provide advice and consent to the private sector which can't operate under the oppressive laws passed by a vindictive anti-business Congress," he said. "Clients will come to me, not because of the influence I still wield, but because of my expertise in getting around the overbearing rules and regulations I demanded when I served the people."

"I can see where Tort & Tort would want you to be a partner in their firm," I said. "Will you also provide lobbying services?"

"You can't be a rainmaker in Washington if you are not willing to stand up for the things you client believe in. The reason ex-congressmen and ex-senators are in demand in Washington law firms is that we have access to our former colleagues on the floor, not to mention the use of the congressional dining rooms and the gym. It's amazing how much law you can practice when you're doing Jane Fonda exercises ago after signing the SALT II agreement in Vienna have Moscow and Washington had a week quite as good as this one.

How long the good feelings will last is another question. Henry Kissinger has spent much of his adult life cautioning Americans against becoming too euphoric about periods of relative calm between the two powers, contending that conflict has been and probably always will be a dominant feature of the relationship.

The wisdom of that advice was borne out six months after the 1979 Carter-Brezhnev summit, when the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan prompted the United States to shelve SALT II and to cut off grain exports to the Soviets in addition to a number of other sanctions.

This week, the administration has been pointing out, the Shultz-Gromyko talks in Geneva touched only on procedure, not substance. The hard part will come when the actual arms reduction negotiations get under way in a few weeks.

The challenges are daunting. It took seven years for Moscow and Washington to negotiate SALT II even though the talks dealt solely with intercontinental missiles. The agreement in Geneva calls for three sets of negotiations: on long- and medium-range missiles and on "preventing an arms race in space."

Still, Shultz has a right to feel in a cheery mood. His dealings with Gromyko, until this week, seldom had been productive. A September 1983 meeting took place under the cloud of the Soviets' having shot down a South Korean jetliner just a few days earlier.

The atmosphere also was strained when Shultz and Gromyko met in Stockholm in January 1984. It followed a Soviet walkout of two sets of arms control talks and the American-led ouster of Grenada's pro-Soviet government. It also followed a speech by Gromyko in which he denounced U.S. policy by using such terms as "maniacal plan," "pathological obsession," "war hysteria" and "arrogant demands."

And, when he met with Shultz and President Reagan here last September, Gromyko set the tone for that encounter by blaming the United States in a U.N. speech for conflicts in virtually every area of the world.

In contrast, before and during the talks in Geneva, there was a notable absence of polemics on both sides, contributing to a favorable negotiating atmosphere.

As he departed Geneva on Wednesday, Gromyko said, "A certain step has been made in establishing a dialogue between our two countries. ... The Soviet Union is prepared to go its part of the road. I should like to express the hope that the United States will do the same."

In other areas of superpower conflict, however, there were some disquieting developments this week. As an example, Vietnamese forces used what the State Department described as a heaviest concentration of artillery fire to date in their attacks on Cambodian encampments along the Thai-Cambodian border.

Of particular concern to the administration were Vietnamese incursions into Thailand, a U.S. treaty ally. In an unusually strong statement on Wednesday, the State Department "categorically condemned" the incursions, calling them "unprovoked" and "deplorable." The Soviets are Vietnam's principal backer.

And in Europe today, the first of 18,700 U.S. troops were to arrive for an annual test of American readiness to reinforce NATO in the event of an attack by the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact. They will take part in the first winter maneuvers in five years.

Still, the prospect of renewed arms control talks seemed to delight Europeans, who are more sensitive than most to each up and down in superpower ties. Italy's La Stampa newspaper spoke for many Europeans when it said, "The nightmare of non-communications is ending. The disquieting year 1984 has been put into storage."

Twisting The Tongue That Speaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — During his regular morning briefing for reporters at the White House one day this week, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes had aides distribute a single typewritten sheet of paper with no letterhead or other indication of its source.

It began simply. "SENIOR ADMINISTRATION OFFICIAL," and went on to quote excerpts from remarks the unidentified official had made the day before to a selected group of reporters. The official hinted President Reagan might go along if Congress insists on freezing cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security beneficiaries.

Asked if the quote marked a shift away from President Reagan's campaign promise never to cut

Social Security benefits for current or future recipients, Speakes said, "I don't know whether you could interpret that as a shift, once you look at this in its full context."

But the spokesman didn't provide the full context. He offered only three short paragraphs from a lengthy transcript which his deputies — and, of course, the reporters who had attended the meeting — had for themselves.

Indeed, some of the quotes that weren't included on the sheet said flatly Reagan would continue to fight any change in Social Security.

Asked if the paper represented the position of the administration, Speakes said, "Yes, I think you could say it reflects the thinking of the administration."

Who was the senior administration official?

Speakes refused to identify him publicly, but said, "I would be glad to tell you off the record, so you can give weight to these comments."

He then named the source on condition those who heard him not identify the official.

Others who had been present at the luncheon, however, didn't hesitate to identify the official as White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III.

It was the latest twist in the administration's use of an increasingly convoluted "background rule" to spread its views while hiding behind the curtain of anonymity.

But try as they might, the officials sometimes trip over their own conditions.

Recently, Speakes welcomed reporters to what he called a briefing in two parts to set the scene for the upcoming arms control talks in Geneva.

"The first part will be an on-the-record statement by the president's foreign policy adviser, Robert C. McFarlane, and the second will be a background briefing by a senior administration official," the spokesman said.

Anyone who had read the New York Times that morning could deduce that McFarlane and the "senior administration official" were one and the same.

Asked if he was aware of that, Speakes said he was, "but I don't know whether that constitutes a license for anyone else ... You have to make your own moral judgments on this."

Strength For Today

"Practicing the presence of God."

We believe — because our religion encourages us to believe — that God is everywhere: in heaven, throughout the universe, in the world, right in the center of our hearts. But simply to believe this is not enough. If this belief is going to do us any good, we must get it operating in our lives. We do this through many of the practices of religion, but particularly by taking the thought that God is everywhere and holding it in our minds for at least some period every day. With the passing of time we begin to experience a sense of God's presence.

For the average type of folk which most of us are, the experience may be occasional and fleeting. But practice in this as in all things brings results — and results bring peace and a sense of inner power.

Acid Leak Sends Cloud Over Town

KARLSKOGA, Sweden (AP) — Schools, offices and factories were closed in this central Swedish town today as a cloud of sulphuric acid that leaked from a chemical plant settled over the town center.

A cloud of gas drifted from the plant Thursday night and, pushed slowly by light winds, settled over 1.2 miles in the middle of the city of 35,000 people by this morning.

Official buildings were closed, buses weren't running and road blocks were set up around the city center by police in gas masks. "You can't be without one for more than a minute, or your throat and chest start hurting," one policeman told a television reporter.

About 300 people were evacuated from their homes in the southern part of town near the Nobel plant early this morning after the fumes formed a cloud and settled over a housing center.

They were allowed to return to their homes today after spending the night in school buildings. But 20 who live next to the plant chose to stay on in hotels at the expense of the authorities, said Deputy Fire Chief Lars Ekberg.

Eighteen people who breathed fumes of the acid, called oleum, were treated for minor membrane irritations at the local hospital in Karlskoga, 124 miles west of Stockholm. "No one is badly hurt and it is unlikely that anybody will have to stay overnight," hospital director Bror Edman said today.

The leaking tank had emptied itself by 4 a.m. after firemen and employees at the Nobel plant tried all night to locate the source of the leak and stop the release of the gaseous sulphuric acid, known as oleum.

Officials said at a news conference that working conditions had been difficult for firemen and factory personnel trying to locate the leak. It was hard to see because of the gas, and protective suits proved inadequate. The acid ate through the material.

Children were kept home from school, and employees at the Nobel plant and offices in the town were told not to report for work. Swedish television interrupted its normal broadcast Thursday night to report the leak at 7:30 p.m. and warn residents to stay inside and close their windows.

The head of security at the Nobel plant, Alf Rosberg, told The Associated Press by telephone that the oleum had been leaking for several hours from a pipe that burst from frost earlier in the evening.

He said he did not know how much of the acid had escaped.

The plant manufactures explosives, medicines and chemical products.

Police Stage Long Siege For Nothing

BAY SHORE, N.Y. (AP) — Police surrounded an empty house for 13 hours in a siege that began when the 300-pound driver of a silver Mercedes-Benz shot three men who thought he had stopped to ask for directions.

Suffolk County police spokesman William McKean said the gunman, identified because of the description as Angel Torres, 24, tricked police into surrounding his house by calling to say he was holding a woman hostage there.

Meanwhile, the men who were shot, all of Bay Shore, remained in Southside Hospital today. Angelo Smith, 23, was in critical condition and Paul Jones, 20, and Tyrone Evans, 21, were listed in stable condition.

Sgt. George Hayes said the incident began at 1 a.m. Thursday when three men walked up to a 1974 silver Mercedes-Benz parked near a gas station, assuming the driver had stopped to ask directions.

The driver, who was alone, fired at them, then drove off, McKean said.

Meanwhile, two police officers who heard about the shooting went to the home where they knew of such a car. As they copied the license plate, they were told over the radio that a man believed to be Torres had called police.

"He called us and said he had a woman inside the house and said if we didn't get the police cars off the street he would blow her away," Hayes said.

The officers backed off, a hostage negotiating team moved in, and the siege was on. Police said they planned simply to wait for the man to give up.

There was no communication after the man's call to police headquarters, although police phoned the home and used bullhorns in an attempt to talk to him and even sounded sirens to wake him in case he had fallen asleep.

McKean said the police shut off the electricity to the house and blocked the chimneytop with cinder blocks so if a fire were started in the fireplace the smoke would back up into the house.

Ex-Altar Boy Dies In S.C. Chair For Double Murder

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Joseph Carl Shaw, a former altar boy and military policeman convicted of killing two teen-agers, went to South Carolina's electric chair today in the state's first execution in nearly 23 years.

Central Correctional Institution officials began preparing Shaw about 3 a.m. and strapped the 29-year-old man into the electric chair before dawn. He was jolted with 2,400 volts of electricity and was pronounced dead at 5:16 a.m., said Deputy Corrections Commissioner Doug Cate.

"First I want to say I'm sorry to all three families, the Swanks, the Taylors and the Hartnesses for the grief and loss they have suffered," Shaw said in a last statement. "I realize their grief will continue, but I hope they have some peace once all the publicity about me ends."

Cate said that while Shaw was being strapped into the chair, "there was a last minute call to the governor's office just to check to see if there was a last-minute granting of clemency," but there was none.

Shaw pleaded guilty to killing Tommy Taylor, 17, and Carlotta Hartness, 14, in October 1977. He also admitted raping and shooting to death 21-year-old Betty Swank 12 days earlier, but received a life sentence for that crime.

When the generator powering the electric chair was turned off, applause rang out from a crowd of about 40 death penalty advocates who shivered in the cold across the street from the prison.

One man paced Thursday night outside the state Supreme Court with a sign saying, "The electric chair is too good for scum." Earlier this week, a group of businessmen gave merchants bumper stickers showing an electric chair and the phrase "Use It!"

About 150 death penalty opponents staged a brief candlelight vigil at the Statehouse steps in a cold drizzle Thursday night, while 20 people demonstrated outside the governor's mansion. An ecumenical church service for Shaw was attended by about 300 people.

Shaw on Thursday told his attorneys to make no more appeals for him and said he was ready to accept his fate after Gov. Dick Riley denied two clemency requests.

South Carolina, the last Southern state to reinstate the death penalty since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled it constitutional in 1976, became the 12th state to execute a criminal since then.

The other 11 are Utah, Florida, Nevada, Indiana, Virginia, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia and North Carolina.

Shaw was the 34th person executed nationwide since 1976 and the first in South Carolina since April 1962.

House Leader Says Congress May Delay MX Missile Vote

WASHINGTON, AP — The Reagan administration's success in re-opening arms talks with the Soviet Union may cause Congress to delay a showdown vote on the embattled MX missile, a key House leader says.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said Secretary of State George Shultz made "very persuasive" points Thursday when he appealed privately to members of Congress not to undermine the arms talks by voting to kill the MX or by crimping military spending.

Fascell said "it's entirely possible" that votes on continuing MX procurement may now be delayed even though he emphasized that House leaders have yet to discuss the issue and no decisions have been made.

Under a compromise struck between President Reagan and Congress late in September, four separate votes will be held in April on whether to permit the MX program to go forward or to kill it.

A loss on any one of the four tallies on Senate and House authorization and spending bills would end the administration's hopes of deploying at least 15 of the modern strategic missiles, each equipped with 10 warheads.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said when the compromise was arranged that it meant the MX "will never be deployed."

Sentiment continues to run strong that the system is not needed and that killing it would save money at a time when maximum efforts are being made to trim the federal budget deficit.

Shultz told senators and House members that the MX is essential to national security, that it "simply must go ahead," and that killing it would have an adverse impact on the U.S. negotiating position.

While refusing to describe the MX or any other proposed military system as an arms control bargaining chip, Shultz told reporters: "I think it's obviously the case that if they (the Soviets) can get what they want out of us without giving up anything in return, that they would love that."

There are other indications that the short-term future of the MX program may have improved recently, and the success of the administration in getting arms talks back on track is a chief factor.

Aides to Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., a leading MX opponent, say he is likely to be sensitive to arguments that killing the weapons system could send the wrong signal to Moscow, especially as the new talks get under way.

The surprise election last week of Rep. Les Aspin, a military expert, as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, could also help the administration on this issue.

Aspin, D-Wis., supported the MX compromise last year, mainly on the ground that killing the program could disrupt efforts to get arms control talks under way again.

Shultz was rewarded with a round of applause that could be heard through the closed doors of the House Armed Services Committee as he concluded his remarks.

Farm Income Hits 12-Year Low

WASHINGTON, AP — Net farm income dropped to a 12-year low of $6,793 per farm in 1984, a year when government acreage curbs and drought cut crop yields and depleted inventories, says a new report by the Agriculture Department.

The 1984 figures, issued Thursday by the department's Economic Research Service, showed that average income plummeted 27 percent from $9,306 per farm in 1982. It was 47 percent below the 1981 average of $12,729 per farm.

For North Carolina, the department said net income in 1984 was $9,667, down from $11,775 in 1982.

According to agency records, the 1983 average was the lowest since farmers noted $5,134 in 1971. The record high was $13,259 per farm in 1979.

In eight states, farmers showed an average loss in 1984. Those were: Illinois, minus $7,845 per farm; Indiana, minus $1,545; Iowa, minus $1,891; Maine, minus $3,405; Missouri, minus $599; South Carolina, minus $629; West Virginia, minus $800; and Wyoming, minus $1,765.

The bookkeeping method used by the agency includes the value of inventory changes from year to year. In 1983, when net farm income was $10.1 billion, compared with $22.7 billion in 1982, most of the decrease was due to smaller farm inventories.

Although 1984 figures are not final, department economists have indicated a sharp increase in net farm income as crop production returned to more normal levels and inventories were rebuilt. Overall, farm income last year is expected to be in the range of $29 billion to $33 billion.

In 1985, the outlook is for decline as production costs increase and government payments are reduced. Department economists say net farm income could be in the range of $19 billion to $24 billion.

The top states in 1983 net farm income were: California, $2.99 billion; Florida, $1.49 billion; Texas, $994 million; Washington, $987 million; and Wisconsin, $972 million.

Three Cabinet Posts Filled

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, shifting three veterans of his administration into new Cabinet-level jobs, is asking them to study a proposed merger of two of their departments and elimination of the third.

But White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that does not necessarily mean the president will try again to get Congress to abolish the Energy and Education departments, as he pledged to do in his 1980 campaign. That proposal died after congressional critics objected that it would produce no savings.

Reagan announced Thursday he will nominate Donald P. Hodel, secretary of energy since 1982, to be secretary of the interior, replacing William P. Clark, who is resigning to return to California. To replace Hodel, Reagan picked John S. Herrington, chief of the White House personnel office since 1983.

The president named William J. Bennett, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities since 1981, to succeed T.H. Bell as secretary of education. Bell has resigned.

Rounding out the latest in a series of personnel shuffles, Reagan decided to nominate Richard G. Darman, deputy to White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, to be Baker's deputy secretary if the staff chief is confirmed as secretary of the treasury. Baker and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan are proposing to swap jobs.

Speakes said the president had instructed Hodel and Herrington, if confirmed by the Senate, "to conduct a study of their respective departments and to propose reorganizational options to the president."

"These options should be designed to recognize the interrelationship of energy, natural resources and defense policies," Speakes said. "The president is committed to maximizing effective management and efficiency in the natural resource area."

The spokesman said Bennett had been directed to study the Education Department "to determine the proper organizational structure and role of the federal government in education."

"Although the president has often stated his belief that the Education and Energy departments could be eliminated, he feels any such reorganization should be fully studied and considered before any final decisions are made to reorganize," said Speakes.

"Asking for the studies does not necessarily constitute a decision to eliminate or reorganize these departments," he added.

Speakes said the president set no timetable for the studies, and that they would probably take "a matter of months."

Administration sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Herrington was picked to oversee the merger of various Energy Department functions into the Interior Department.

Congress Slow To Move On Social Security Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — So far, Democrats and Republicans alike say there is no stampede toward eliminating next year's Social Security cost-of-living increase.

President Reagan is insisting on such a groundswell of congressional support before he will go along with such politically risky action.

Some of the president's Republican allies in the Senate have told him a one-year freeze on increases in Social Security benefits should be part of an overall package aimed at reducing bulging federal budget deficits.

Reagan made a blanket promise during the presidential campaign that he would not cut benefits from the government's retirement and disability program.

At a nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday night, the president said that he "never specifically mentioned" cost-of-living adjustments.

"I did say, however, that I would resist anything that would reduce the payments and the benefits," Reagan said.

He added that if he was faced "with an overwhelming bipartisan majority in both houses" of Congress favoring such a move, "I would have to look at that situation and what I was faced with with regard to a possible congressional mandate."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes replied "I think so" when asked Thursday if the president means he wants to see if a benefit freeze could pass Congress by a two-thirds majority, a sufficient majority to override a veto.

Although there is some support in Congress for the action, there may not be as much as Reagan wants to see before he will give his blessing.

The president "seems to be under some strange illusion" that such a call will arise in Congress, said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.

"I can't speak for the Senate, but I can assure him that the House will be no party to any such as that," Wright said Thursday on NBC's "Today" show. "We're going to help him keep his promise to the retirees of the United States."

Meanwhile, House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said through a spokesman that Social Security is "off the table" when it comes to possible spending cuts.

Nevertheless, Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., is leading an effort by Senate Republicans to write their own budget that would generally hold the line on government spending, including a freeze of the Social Security cost-of-living adjustment. The president will submit his own budget to Congress on Feb. 4.

Social Security and the size of the administration's military buildup have become the most controversial items so far in discussions over how to shrink the government's red ink, projected to be more than $200 billion a year without action.

About a dozen GOP senators and senior presidential aides met at the White House Thursday to discuss the budget situation. At a separate meeting, Dole and Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the Budget Committee chairman, met with budget director David A. Stockman.

United Way OKs Extra Allocations

Three Pitt County United Way agencies have received supplemental allocations to provide services to the Pitt County community.

The requests were approved during a meeting of the Pitt County United Way Executive Committee following review by an allocations committee comprised of community volunteers.

Pitt County's Home Delivered Meals for the Elderly program received $6,200 for 91 additional hot lunches to homebound elderly persons in Greenville and county areas, bringing the program's daily number of meals to 245. The supplemental allocation also assists with administering the program.

Home Delivered Meals for the Elderly, operated through the Pitt County Council on Aging, has received Pitt County United Way support since July 1983. Approximately 350 community volunteers pick up lunches at nutrition sites for delivery in Greenville, Farmville, Falkland, Fountain, Ayden, Grifton and Bethel. Beginning in early 1985, Winterville residents will receive meals through the program.

In another action, the Executive Committee awarded Real Crisis Intervention Center $5,842.20 to continue Dial-A-Teen, an employment placement and counseling service for teenagers. During the past 11 months, Dial-A-Teen placed teenagers in 547 job requests. Dial-A-Teen job requests range from yardwork, painting and babysitting to work at ECU concessions and the Pitt County fair.

The Dial-A-Teen program also is available for counseling teens with their job problems, in addition to school, family and peer problems. Since July, 22 teenagers have been counseled.

The Farmville Child Developmental Center, a developmental day care center for moderate to severely retarded or developmentally delayed children, received $11,312.

Recently, the center has experienced a shortfall in reimbursements due to an increased number of preschool-aged children enrolled at the center.

A Pitt County United Way agency since July 1982, the Farmville Child Care Developmental Center serves children from six weeks to 16 years old. Children from across Pitt County attend the center throughout the year and receive a wide range of services to meet their needs.

The Pitt County United Way provides support to nearly 30 health and human service agencies in Pitt County.

Handicapped Can Use Eyes To Type

PITTSBURGH (AP) — By typing with their eyes on a special keyboard, the physically handicapped can perform meaningful jobs involving word processing almost as easily as they watch television, an engineer says.

The EyeTyper, a camera-equipped keyboard controlled with stares, can be connected to computers that store such data as accounting figures, make airline reservations or list stock quotations.

"This lets you work independently at roughly the same speed as a non-physically handicapped person in jobs that require word processing," said Mark Friedman, a Carnegie-Mellon University research engineer who helped create the EyeTyper.

"Anything with a keyboard can be controlled by eye movement alone," Friedman said in a recent interview. "The utility of it is basic, independent communication for the severely handicapped. It's also a way for someone who can't earn a living to find paid, productive employment."

The EyeTyper, commercially available since late December, retails for $8,000. Its maker, Sentient Systems Technology Inc. of Pittsburgh, calls it "the bridge to productivity for the physically disabled."

The 15-pound keyboard is 11 inches high and 23 inches wide and has an infrared television camera that focuses on the user's eye the way measurements are taken for contact lenses.

After the basic calibration is made, microprocessors determine which character the user is watching. When the eye has viewed a character for about a third of a second, a beep signals that the character has been stored in the computer memory, and the user can go on to the next letter. A screen lists the string of letters and words. A voice synthesizer can be attached to sound the words, or a printer can be used to make a copy. It also can be attached to home or business computers.

"You let your eyes flow over the letters. It's almost as easy as watching television," said Friedman, typing with a gaze with his hands on his lap.

With practice, a user can type 10 words a minute for a sustained

Suspects Arrested

MEDELLIN, Colombia (AP) — Police have arrested two people suspected of planning the murder of Justice Minister Rodrigo Lara Bonilla last year, authorities say.

Carlos Arturo Casadiego, police chief of this northern city, identified the men as Oscar Tulio Arce and Omar Humberto Cortes. He said Cortes also was wanted in connection with 17 other killings.

Lara Bonilla was killed April 30 by two gunmen on a motorcycle. One assailant was slain by Lara Bonilla's bodyguards and the other was arrested and is awaiting trial.

St. Joseph Will Label Its Aspirin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The manufacturer of St. Joseph aspirin says it will cooperate with a government request to label its product with a warning of a possible link with Reye's Syndrome, but other aspirin companies are putting off a decision while they review the evidence.

Plough Inc., a Memphis, Tenn., drug company, said Thursday it will abide by the request from Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler for labels warning against the use of aspirin to treat children or teen-agers with influenza or chickenpox, except with a physician's approval.

The company said it would take "all reasonable steps" to comply although it still believes there is no evidence that aspirin contributes to the rare and often-fatal childhood illness known as Reye's Syndrome.

Despite that belief, the company said, it "shares the secretary's concern for the health and safety of children. We intend to cooperate with the secretary's request for label changes pending further studies."

But the manufacturers of Bayer, Bufferin, Excedrin and Anacin said they do not intend at present to change the labeling of their aspirin products, because they have seen no conclusive evidence of the link cited by Mrs. Heckler.

Sterling Drug Inc., which produces the Bayer line, said it was "inappropriate to expand labeling of aspirin products in a way that warns of an association that has not been established."

In making the request Wednesday, the health secretary said a new study by the national Centers for Disease Control, while not conclusive, does "strengthen the fund of scientific evidence suggesting an association" between the pain reliever and the illness.

The study suggests that children who take aspirin for influenza or chickenpox may run a 25 times greater risk of contracting Reye's than children who let the illness run its course without taking aspirin.

Reye's Syndrome is a rare but extremely serious disease that develops in children and teen-agers following a viral infection such as flu or chickenpox. Only 190 cases were reported in the year ending last November, but one of every four children who caught it died.

It is characterized by a sudden onset of vomiting, often with fever. Other symptoms include lethargy, severe headaches and sudden changes in behavior. The illness can progress rapidly to convulsions, delirium, coma and possibly death.

The results of the study, which were published today in the CDC's weekly bulletin, prompted Mrs. Heckler's call for a warning label on all aspirin products, and for the removal of current language on some children's aspirin promoting use for children with influenza.

Plough's statement did not define the extent to which it would comply with Mrs. Heckler's request, particularly whether any attempt would be made to recall aspirin bottles without warnings.

Full compliance with the secretary's request would involve two changes for the St. Joseph line — the general warning label, and the change on the children's aspirin.

Peace Corps Is Seeking Volunteers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The work is tough and the pay is bad, but the Peace Corps is confident that the spirit that moved Americans to send millions of dollars to Ethiopia will spur U.S. farm experts to consider becoming volunteers in a war on African famine.

In the most specialized recruiting drive since President Kennedy founded the agency in 1961, the Peace Corps is looking for agriculture specialists to keep two dozen African countries from suffering Ethiopia's fate.

The most urgent need is for 600 recruits to fill vacancies opening as early as this spring and summer. The other successful applicants will be sent later, as the Peace Corps gears up for a 10-year program to help African agriculture build its own foundation.

Peace Corps Director Loret Miller Ruppe told a news conference on Thursday that to build a talent pool, she needs 10,000 applicants to choose from. And she's confident she will get them.

Among college students, she said, "I see a tremendous willingness to share. I see the same stars in their eyes that were there in the '60s. They will respond. I know they will."

Mrs. Ruppe began her appeal on breakfast-time television Thursday morning and by the end of the day about 400 queries from prospective applicants had been phoned to the agency's toll free number, 800-424-8580. That's roughly double the normal number of calls, said spokeswoman Patti Raine.

Special recruiting efforts also will be made at agriculture colleges and attempts will be made to convince workers in major agribusiness centers to sign up for the two-year stint.

To be eligible for the African agriculture jobs — and any other Peace Corps tour of duty — applicants must be American citizens with no dependent children and must be willing to leave their spouses behind. Once they pass the tests and get into the agency, they will be paid a subsistence wage and be sent to some of the most remote parts of the African continent — the parts where their help is most needed.

In sum, Mrs. Ruppe said, "it's the toughest job you'll ever love."

"Only the best are going to be picked; it's a very tough process," said Peace Corps spokesman Ron De Fore, noting that 15,000 people applied for 3,000 jobs in the Peace Corps last year.

The agency has had recruiting drives in the past, including a re-enlistment plea in 1983 for 3,000 Peace Corps veterans, but has never asked for so many applicants at once with a particular set of skills, De Fore said.

None of the new applicants will be sent to Ethiopia, which kicked the Peace Corps out in 1977 when a Marxist government took over. Besides, with immediate relief for Ethiopia's 7 million famine victims coming from other agencies, the Peace Corps is concentrating on programs that help build agriculture from the bottom up.

If there had been Peace Corps workers in Ethiopia, she said, "I think there would have been more food there; greater reforestation."

"To alleviate the African food shortage, long term solutions to all aspects of food production must be solved, and Peace Corps is — always has been — working in the total agricultural arena," Mrs. Ruppe said.

Pope Statement Explores 'Mystery Of Sin' As Basic To Human Nature

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Truth often comes wrapped in paradoxes, with what's real depending on its apparent opposite, the philosophers say. This oddity is noted particularly in that old streak in humanity called "sin."

It would seem to be strictly a drawback, a failure of character, but strangely, as theologians see it, not to recognize it in oneself is to deny even being human.

That peculiarity of the "mystery of sin" is explored extensively by

Pope John Paul II in his recent 25,000-word "apostolic exhortation" about it, contending that the modern world has largely lost a "sense of sin."

But "sin is a product of man's freedom," he points out, and for people to deny sin and responsibility for it is to deny free will, which "would be to deny the person's dignity and freedom."

"The restoration of a proper sense of sin is the first way of facing the grave spiritual crisis looming over man today," he says.

While most of the news reports and discussions of the document issued last month have focused on its call for rejuvenating the use of individual penance, the pope also deals at length with the puzzling nature of sin.

He says it is at the root of powerful conflicts that make this "a world shattered to its very foundations" — the trampling of basic rights, violence, terrorism, the arms race and yawning gap between rich and poor.

Yet paradoxically, he says, there also is a "fundamental, driving force in society" that seeks to "mend the divisions, to heal the wounds and build "essential unity and peace" — a reconciliation that can only come by recognizing the "wound at the root of all other wounds: namely sin."

Basically, he says the prime mortal sin — a rejection of God as the "supreme end of man" — also implicitly rejects the "divine seed" in human beings, thereby downgrading human life itself.

In one way, he says, "every sin is personal," but in a paradoxical way, "every sin is social" since it has social effects.

It is "always a personal act" no matter how much an individual may be "conditioned, incited and influenced" by powerful external factors, he says, and blame for it can't be put on such things as systems and institutions.

This "would be to deny the person's dignity and freedom, which are manifested — even though in a negative and disastrous way — also in responsibility for sins committed," he says.

Always, however, "each individual's sin in some way affects others," he adds. "There is no sin, not even the most intimate and secret one, that exclusively concerns the person committing it."

"With greater or lesser violence, with greater or lesser harm, every sin has repercussions on... the whole human family."

Nevertheless, he says the ambiguous meaning sometimes given "social sin" leads to "watering down and almost the abolition of personal sin, with recognition only of social guilt and responsibility."

He says this "weakening of the sense of sin in the modern world" has stemmed from a "numbing" or "deadening" of people's "moral conscience," planted in them and linked to their inherent "sense of God."

"Just as it is impossible to eradicate completely the sense of God, or to silence the conscience completely, so the sense of sin is never completely eliminated," he says.

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock week price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 71 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 49.87 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate to occasionally light for a good demand. Average weights mostly desirable to heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,709,000, compared to 1,776,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 14 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn mostly unchanged at mostly 2.77-2.97 in East and mostly 3.00-3.10 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 4 to 10 cents higher at mostly 5.81-5.97 in the East and mostly 5.67-5.77 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.30-3.55; new crop corn 2.51-2.56, new crop soybeans 5.65-5.85, new crop wheat 2.92-3.12.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, leveling off after its sharp rise Thursday.

The 10:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials stood at 1,233.50, unchanged from Thursday's close.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After disappointing investors by falling steadily through the first three sessions of the new year, the market has staged a dramatic reversal this week.

The rally got its start as interest rates dropped in the credit markets, resuming their decline in the second half of 1984.

In the past couple of days, interest rates have stopped falling. They moved up today in response to the Federal Reserve's report late Thursday of a smaller-than-expected decline of $500 million in the basic measure of the money supply for the week ended Dec. 31.

But stock-market analysts did not read much significance into the latest money-supply data. They focussed instead on optimistic comments Thursday by Paul Volcker, the Fed's chairman, about the inflation outlook.

Volcker noted that the inflation rate today remains about the same as it was in the 1981-82 recession, even after two years of a brisk recovery.

Wall Streeters saw his remarks as a possible signal of his willingness to continue easing the Fed's credit policy.

Among today's early volume leaders, McDonald's rose 1/2 to 54 1/2; UAL gained 1/4 to 46; Holiday Inns added 1/4 to 46 1/4, and American Telephone & Telegraph was unchanged at 20 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 20.76 points, bringing its gain for the past four sessions to 38.54 points.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 3 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 124.68 million shares, against 99.23 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index jumped 1.69 to 97.13. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.09 at 205.08.

Indian Arrests

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 1,900 people have been arrested in New Delhi this month in connection with anti-Sikh riots that broke out after the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, according to police.

The arrests were the result of a crackdown ordered by the new government of Mrs. Gandhi's son and successor, Rajiv Gandhi. Mrs. Gandhi was assassinated Oct. 31.

Card of Thanks

My husband and I would like to thank all the people, rescue squad, emergency room and intensive care before and after surgery; all personnel on first, second and third floor North. Everyone was so good to Mr. Pierce and very nice to me. We also thank everyone for their love, support and prayers. Last, but not least, thanks to Dr. Flickinger and his helpers; with God's help they brought him through. Again, thank you and God bless you all.

Mr. & Mrs. Raleigh T. Pierce

regulating placement of satellite dish antennae until further study could be done. Alvan said allowing placement of dishes in side yards would "make Greenville a less desirable place to live."

The Planning and Zoning Commission at its Nov. 20 meeting, recommended that the council approve an ordinance permitting installation of satellite dish antenna not exceeding 15 feet in height and 15 feet in width in rear and side yards of residential property and on the roofs of houses in cases where dishes are four-feet or less in diameter. The proposed regulation would require that antennae placed in side yards be adequately buffered from adjoining property and street right-of-ways and be set back a prescribed distance from property lines. Present regulations permit installation of any size dish antennae in rear yards and on roofs, but prohibit installation in side or front yards.

In further business, the council approved acceptance of an audit report on the city for fiscal 1983-84.

The audit indicated, city officials said, that the city's financial condition substantially improved during the fiscal year. The fund balance was reported to have increased by $1 million to a $2.4 million balance, and the city's group benefit trust fund (hospital fund) also, auditor's reported, also showed substantial financial improvement.

According to City Manager Gail Meeks, the audit report represents the first year the city has used one auditor to review the entire city, and, also for the first time, the audit includes the city's liability for vacation pay for city employees, she said.

Additional information on the audit report may be obtained from the City Manager's office.

In final business, the council approved the following items.

• A request to annex approximately seven acres located in the southern portion of Executive Park Subdivision on Stantonsburg Highway.

• A request by Robby Jones to rezone approximately 2.18 acres from shopping center to high density residential. The property is located on the northern side of East Fifth Street, approximately 500 feet west of 10th Street and adjacent to Kentucky Fried Chicken. Jones plans to build a multi-family development on the property. Rezoning the property to R-6 was consistent with the Greenville's comprehensive growth plan, city officials said.

• A request of the North Carolina Association of Free Will Baptist organization to rezone approximately 7.5 acres from residential-agricultural to office and institutional. The property is located to the east of SR 1704, along a portion of Quail Ridge Road. An association spokesman at a previous city meeting said the organization plans to build a regional office building, book store and a rest home and retirement village of small scale on the property over a 10-12 year period. Although the city's comprehensive plan does not recommend office and institutional (O&I) development of the acreage, planning officials said O&I development would not be inconsistent with growth patterns in the area and would prevent strip commercial development along the highway.

• A request to annex, bring into the extraterritorial limits of the city and zone Rowntree Woods subdivision high density residential. The subdivision is located at the southwest corner of N.C. 43 West and SR 1204.

• A resolution authorizing purchase and exchange of city property for land owned by Bill Clark. Several months ago, the City Council authorized a similar exchange involving West Fifth Street property owned by Clark and land to be acquired by the city near Winterville. The exchange did not occur, city officials said, because complications regarding utility services to the Winterville site arose. The new arrangement involves an exchange of property located on Red Banks Road which the city will purchase and exchange for Clark's Fifth Street property. The value of the exchange is $160,000.

Pirates Host Indians Saturday

East Carolina University's Pirates return to the ECAC-South war Saturday night, playing host to William & Mary's Indians. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

For the Indians, it will be their first league action of the year, while the Pirates will be playing for the second time. East Carolina opened league play on Monday with an 81-69 loss at the hands of George Mason in a game that saw the Patriots outshoot the Pirates 29-3 at the foul line.

Wednesday night, the Pirates lost their second straight game, bowing in a non-conference meeting with #2 ranked Duke University, 87-63. The Indians have been idle since January 2 when they lost to Wake Forest, 64-47. In contrast, East Carolina also bowed to the Deacons, falling 83-57.

The two teams have played three other common opponents. William & Mary opened the season with a 92-60 loss to Duke, beat Drexel, 81-65, and topped Christopher Newport, 77-64.

East Carolina fell to Drexel, 80-73, in a game acknowledged to be the worst played by the Pirates this year, and they routed Christopher Newport, 104-47.

The Indians have never been easy pickings for the Pirates, however, who trail in the series, 26-18. East Carolina hasn't beaten the Tribe since the 1981-82 season, when the Pirates took a 61-58 victory in their only meeting in regular season that year. East Carolina has lost seven straight to the Indians since then.

The Indians are led by their two-time all-ECAC-South player Keith Cieplicki, a 6-4 senior guard. Cieplicki is scoring at a 15.6 clip. Only one other starter is scoring in double figures, 6-6 senior forward Kevin Richardson, hitting 11.6 per game. He's also the leading rebounder with 7.3 per game.

The Indians are perhaps the most veteran team in the league, returning 11 lettermen and four starters this year. Joining Cieplicki and Richardson in the starting lineup will be 6-1 junior guard Scott Coval (6.6 ppg); 6-7 senior center Herb Harris (6.9), and 6-8 senior forward Matt Brooks (6.1). The top reserve is 6-2 senior Tony Traver, scoring 7.7 points a game.

"It's a real important game for us," Coach Charlie Harrison said. "but I wouldn't call it a must win game. I never term any game a must win unless you're playing in a tournament. We've played 11 games and we have 16 to go. It's too long a season to pin it all on one game."

"Everyone in the league is playing to get better and to get into the tournament and win it, so you can't finger one game. If we had a must win game this year, it was the Campbell game down there, when we hadn't won on the road in so long."

Harrison added that it's obvious to anyone who's watched the Pirates that they are getting better. "What the kids have got to realize is that they can beat teams like George Mason and William & Mary. Right now it's the little things that are costing us dearly. You can't finger one thing, it's just a combination, and we have to eliminate those little mistakes. William & Mary is a tough team to play against; they are patient and smart. The clock really hasn't changed them. Forty-five seconds is a long time. They're a veteran team and the first six have been together forever. They're all good shooters and they play within a system that's been working for them for eight or nine years now."

Following the game, the Pirates will be off until the following Saturday when the travel to Richmond to meet the defending ECAC-South champions, the Richmond Spiders.

Wolfpack Captures 71-68 Victory Over Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano says he expected Clemson would be another tough Atlantic Coast Conference opponent and his prediction came true.

The Wolfpack took a 71-68 victory over Clemson Thursday night in a game that was saved by some good shots at key moments.

"Lorenzo Charles had a great game," Valvano said. "I think Nate McMillan had his best effort of the season, especially on the boards, and Spud Webb hit some big shots. You need to have some things like that happen for you to win the tough ones."

Valvano added that the Wolfpack has had four tough ACC games, losing to Georgia Tech and Maryland at the buzzer and winning a close one against Virginia.

"We knew (Clemson) would be sky-high. They were terrific at Georgia Tech. We wanted to play our speed instead of theirs and we did at first and we got off to a 17-4 lead. But they proved that they can come back in a hurry with (Vince) Hamilton and (Chris) Michaels hitting those jump shots," Valvano said.

Charles scored 29 points and McMillan made some crucial plays to lead the Wolfpack to the victory that pushed their record to 9-4 and 2-2 in the conference. The loss ended a seven-game winning streak for the Tigers and left them with a 9-3 record, and 1-1 in the ACC.

The Wolfpack jumped out to a 17-4 lead behind eight points by Charles. The Tigers rallied to take the lead at 22:21 on a 12-footer by Hamilton with 8:40 left in the first half.

The lead changed hands four times before Webb gave State a halftime lead, 36-35, on a driving layup.

N.C. State built its lead to nine points twice in the second period, but Clemson cut the lead to one, 56-55, with 6:44 to play.

State rebuilt its lead to 63-57 on two free throws by Charles with 3:21 to play.

The Tigers cut the lead to one again with 23 seconds to play on a basket by Harvey Grant, but Charles scored two free throws with 10 seconds left. McMillan then converted two free throws when he intercepted a Clemson inbound pass and was fouled with eight seconds left to seal the victory.

Clemson coach Cliff Ellis said the Wolfpack defense and Clemson's lack of offense the first five minutes were the keys to the Tigers' first ACC defeat.

"We had chances to score but we did not take advantage of the opportunities," Ellis said. "Tonight we shot 44 percent. It is difficult to win in this league shooting like that."

"I don't think there is any question that the key to tonight's game was the first five minutes and Spud Webb."

Simpson Moves Into Hope Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A week ago Tim Simpson was bedded with the flu at home in Atlanta.

His doctor told him not to even bother going to the Bob Hope Classic golf tournament.

His father-in-law, who Simpson said is dying of cancer, told him to go out and win it.

He came to the California desert, still suffering from a heavy chest cold, and, after 36 holes of the inaugural event on the 10-month PGA Tour, moved himself in front of the field with a 36-hole total of 133, 11 shots under par.

"Whatever I do, if I can hang on and win, I dedicate to my father-in-law," he said after a 6-under-par 66 at Tamarisk Thursday in the second round of the five-day, 90-hole tournament that offers $500,000 in prizes.

"We're very close," Simpson said. "He's a great fan, a great sports fan. I think if I could win, it might add a few days to his life. That means more to me than all the money in the world. It's a great incentive for me."

Simpson, who has yet to win in eight full years of Tour activity, said he felt he could "keep up the pace. I started playing well last summer and played well through the fall."

With 54 holes to go, 18 players were within three shots of his lead.

Lady Pirates Open Loop Quest At William & Mary

East Carolina's Lady Pirates face their first ECAC-South opponent Saturday night, traveling to William & Mary for a 7:30 p.m. game against the Lady Tribe.

This marks the first full year of ECAC-South play for the women's teams. East Carolina hosted — and won — the first ECAC-South women's tournament, played last year in Minges Coliseum, but the league did not have a full slate of games between the teams. This year, with seven teams competing, there is a double round-robin schedule.

So far, it has been a lean year for the Lady Indians, who come into the game with only a 1-8 record, prior to meeting Lafayette Thursday night. They are 0-2 in league play.

However, in their only meeting last year, the Tribe pulled off a 64-58 victory over East Carolina during the regular season.

Karen Jordan, a 5-11 sophomore forward is the leading scorer for the Tribe, hitting at a 12.3 rate. She also leads rebounding with a 9.1 average. Also in double figures is 5-9 senior forward Bridget Kealey, hitting 10.3 per game.

Other starters include 5-4 sophomore guard Lisa Koehl (3.6 ppg), 6-1 sophomore center Susan Koester (5.8) and 5-6 guard Debbie Taylor (5.5).

The Lady Pirates are led in scoring by Anita Anderson, hitting 14.2 points per game, while Sylvia Bragg holds down an 11.2 mark. She, however, has not scored in double figures the last two games.

Perhaps the hottest player at the time is freshman guard Monique Pompili, who has hit in double figures in the last three games, including a team high 16 against Campbell Wednesday night. She's upped her average to 7.6 per game and earned a starting berth. She's also rebounding well, having pulled nine each in the last two games.

The Lady Pirates remain on the road Monday, traveling to meet Richmond's Lady Spiders. Richmond, in the latest standings available was 1-0 in the league and 4-4 overall. The Spiders are led by last year's ECAC-South tourney MVP, Karen Elsnor. She's leading the league in scoring with a 22.0 average and also is third in rebounding with a 10.0 average.

Following that game, the Lady Pirates return home on Saturday, January 19, to host George Mason.

USOC To Watch Drug Use Closer

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The outgoing executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee says he will recommend closer monitoring of amateur athletes in the wake of the USOC's own report that 86 Americans failed drug tests before the 1984 Summer Olympics.

Meanwhile, a top medical official of the USOC said Thursday that several American cyclists were being investigated for taking special transfusions of their own blood to build up red blood cell counts.

F. Don Miller, who retires next month as the USOC's executive director, said Thursday he will recommend periodic drug tests for athletes during the next four years rather than just before and just after Olympic trials.

"This means that the testing will be done with the knowledge by the athlete that positive tests will result in penalties," Miller said. "Our athletes have had over a year of education and information in this process and an awareness of our firm position against the use of drugs."

Tests eliminated the 86 athletes before the 1984 Olympics when evidence of stimulants, anabolic steroids or testosterone were found in their bloodstreams, the USOC said.

Ten of the athletes who failed were screened during the Olympic Trials. Two of them already had landed berths on the American team when their drug tests came back positive, USOC officials reported.

The test results had been kept confidential until this week, when they were released by the USOC in Colorado Springs.

A total of 2,254 U.S. athletes were tested by the task force before final

U.S. team selections were made, and 86 tested positive. The USOC said 33 athletes tested positive for use of stimulants and another 53 for use of anabolic steroids or testosterone, another type of steroid.

The USOC established the task force in 1983 to look for illegal drug use because two U.S. athletes were disqualified after testing positive for improper use of steroids at the 1983 Pan American Games.

Miller said Dr. Manfred Donike of Cologne, West Germany, helped the USOC start the drug-testing program, and later, a laboratory at UCLA became the headquarters.

The task force held more than 100 screening sessions between November 1983 and July 1984, according to the USOC.

Some of the tests were done informally, meaning the athletes did not face penalties if evidence of drug use was found.

Dr. Irving Dardik, head of the USOC's panel investigating the cyclists accused of "blood packing" or "blood doping," said the cyclists "also were looking at caffeine to improve their performance."

Another doctor, who says he witnessed U.S. cyclists undergoing blood-doping transfusions in a motel room, claimed the procedure had no effect on how many medals the Olympians won.

Miller told a news conference in Indianapolis the USOC has confirmed blood doping took place.

Miller said Dardik and three other physicians were investigating the incident, and soon would make a report to USOC President William Simon.

Dardik, who practices in Basking Ridge, N.J., said the International Olympic Committee has set limits on how much caffeine is allowable in an athlete's bloodstream.

The limits were set to allow for the consumption of coffee, tea and soft drinks, but some members of the cycling team "were involved to see how much caffeine could be used, but not illegally."

Dardik said the caffeine experiments — involving "a handful" of athletes, their coaches and doctors — also were under investigation by the U.S. Cycling Federation.

"Some of the same individuals stated that they felt this was an appropriate approach to see if they could improve performance, but not illegally," said Dardik.

"But this, in the view of the Olympic Committee, is to come as close to cheating as you can and not get caught. That's not the intent of the Olympic program."

"The Olympic Committee emphatically does not condone that view," Dardik added.

David Prouty, the executive director of the USCF, has said the results of the investigation will be presented to the 25-member USCF board of directors during its regular meeting Jan. 18-20 in Colorado Springs.

No details of the probe will be released until then, he said.

Blood doping does not violate International Olympic Committee rules. It involves the transfusion of red blood cells into an athlete's body, supposedly to help the athlete's performance by allowing the bloodstream to carry more oxygen.

Dr. Thomas B. Dickson Jr., an Allentown, Pa., orthopedic surgeon, reported several months after the Olympics that he had witnessed such transfusions.

"What was done, in my opinion, was second rate and you don't treat your athletes that way," Dickson said.

Dickson said he witnessed the transfusions in a motel room, but didn't report it immediately because "there's no question that it would have become public knowledge and embarrassed the team, and probably would have sent the team home from the Olympics, and that was my decision to make at that time, and that's what I did."

Dickson said the blood doping made no difference in the medals won by the U.S. cyclists.

Dickson told The New York Times that those who had received transfusions included five medal winners — Steve Hegg, Leonard Nitz, Brent Emery, Rebecca Twigg and Pat McDonough.

Rolling Stone magazine, in its Feb. 14 edition, quotes Dickson as naming four medalists as blood dopers: Hegg, Nitz, Emery and Twigg. McDonough's name is not mentioned.

Rich Grimes of Beverly Hills, Calif., Hegg's personal manager, said Thursday:

"We are not confirming or denying the published stories. We will be issuing a prepared statement after the U.S. Cycling Federation completes its investigation and responds. The issue and the responsibility of such allegations should be directed toward the U.S. Cycling Federation, its coaches, staff and medical staff."

Danny Van Haute, a U.S. Olympic cyclist, said he was unfamiliar with the hotel room situation Dickson spoke of, but he did admit to blood doping for the Olympic trials.

"I didn't think it was wrong at the time, because you can't detect it, it's not like taking steroids or anything like that; so I didn't think it was wrong at the time," Van Haute said. Dardik said his investigative team had concluded that the "unethical procedure" of blood doping had been banned by USOC directives and instructions, and that those responsible should be held accountable.

Dardik said the blood doping and caffeine experiments bring up the issue of the appropriate use of science and medicine in sports.

Dardik said blood boosting carries a small risk, "but it's a risk. You can't check if anyone had done it. We have the direct admission of the people involved."

Wilson Christian Defeats Knights

WILSON — Wilson Christian Academy swept an evening of basketball from Greenville Christian last night. The boys gained a 63-59 win over the Knights, while Wilson's girls took a 63-49 decision.

Greenville jumped out into an 18-16 lead in the first period of the boys' game, but couldn't hold off Wilson. The host team came back with a 15-9 margin in the second quarter to take a 31-27 lead at intermission.

In the third period, Wilson padded its lead to 46-38, then held off a Greenville rally, 21-17, to take the win.

David Spahr led Wilson with 24 points while Joel Attee had 15 and Jeff Attee had 14. Greenville was led by Maury Harris and Robin House with 11 each, while Kary House added 10.

"We started coming on at the end, but it was a little too late," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "It still seems like we're beating ourselves more than our opponents beating us."

The girls' game began evenly with both teams pushing in 12 points in the first quarter. But in the second period, Wilson outscored Greenville, 21-11, to take a 33-23 halftime lead.

Greenville cut that to 46-38 in the third period, but was outscored in the final period, 17-11 by Wilson.

Melinda Deans led Wilson with 27 points while Kari Wasealowski added 10. Patti Carr led Greenville with 23.

"We played a pretty good game," Thatcher said, "but Wilson is one of the better girls' teams we play."

The Knights are now 5-7, while the Lady Knights are 8-3. Greenville plays host to Wilmington Christian on Saturday at 2 p.m.

Vincent's Quick Act Lets Spartans Defeat Purdue

By The Associated Press
For Michigan State's Sam Vincent, practice made perfect.

The No. 17 Spartans trailed Purdue 63-57 with just a minute left in regulation Thursday night before Vincent went into his act. He scored seven quick points, including the tying basket with 12 seconds left, to force the game into overtime. Then he scored eight of Michigan State's first 11 points in the extra session during an 81-72 Big Ten conference victory.

Vincent, a guard who had only six points at halftime, wound up with 39 — and some praise from his coach, Jud Heathcote.

"They were playing a triangle and two, doubling up on Vincent most of the time. So we had him go to the outside so they couldn't double-team him."

"He took over. He does that a lot in practice, but this is the first time in a game," Heathcote said.

Only three other ranked teams played Thursday night, and they all won. No. 11 Indiana downed Northwestern 77-50; No. 15 Illinois stopped Michigan 64-58 in overtime; and No. 18 Virginia Commonwealth beat Western Kentucky 72-58.

Purdue led 27-25 at halftime and expanded the margin to 38-30 early in the second half. The Boilermakers still led by six with a minute to go before collapsing in front of their home fans in West Lafayette, Ind.

Vincent's seven-point burst offset a foul shot by Purdue's Robert Littlejohn to send the game into overtime.

"We played a helluva game for 39 minutes. We just couldn't contain their guards, especially Vincent," Purdue Coach Gene Keady said.

Once into overtime, Michigan State ran roughshod over the Boilermakers as Ken Johnson connected on a three-point play and Vincent made a basket and added six straight foul shots to give the Spartans a 75-64 lead.

"I'm not sure we won this one or stole it," Heathcote said.

Michigan State raised its record to 12-1 overall and 3-0 in the Big Ten. Steve Reid scored 26 points for Purdue, 10-3 and 1-2.

Top Twenty
Mike Gioni sank all eight of his field-goal attempts and Steve Alford made six of eight as hot-shooting Indiana cruised past Northwestern in Big Ten play.

The host Hoosiers connected on 14 of their first 15 shots from the floor to start the second half. That enabled Indiana to expand a 29-24 halftime lead into a 57-33 bulge.

Gioni, a forward, finished with 16 points while Alford, a sophomore guard, wound up with 14.

Alford, who was averaging 20 points and was the only Indiana player to have started every game this season, came off the bench as Coach Bobby Knight used his 10th different starting combination while the Hoosiers raised their record to 10-3. Andre Goode led Northwestern with 12 points.

Anthony Welch made three baskets in the final two minutes of overtime to spark Illinois over Michigan.

Welch tied the game 58-58, and then made a 15-foot jump shot in the last minute to put the Illini ahead. He added a slam dunk off a steal with two seconds remaining and finished with 16 points.

Illinois, 12-4, broke a three-game losing streak and won its first Big Ten game in three tries this season.

Roy Tarpley scored 20 points for visiting Michigan. Garde Thompson of the Wolverines sent the game into overtime at 54-54 when he made a jump shot with 16 seconds to go.

Guard Rolando Lamb scored 25 points, including 18 in the second half, to pace Virginia Commonwealth over Western Kentucky in a Sun Belt matchup. He scored eight points in the final 1:14 to preserve the Rams' victory in Bowling Green, Ky.

Virginia Commonwealth, 10-1, shot 53.3 percent from the floor. It was the best shooting performance of the season against Western Kentucky, which went into the game leading the nation in field-goal percentage defense.

Smith, Duggins Take Early Lead In Area Prep Stats

Ayden-Grifton's Marvin Smith is the top male scorer among area high school basketball players, while Roanoke's Gloria Duggins paces the girls through games of Wednesday night.

Smith is currently averaging 20.8 points per game, over a full point ahead of Trinity Christian's Jimmy Powers, second with a 19.4 average.

They are followed by Washington's Earl Randolph, third at 18.9, Greenville Christian's Dan Andrews, fourth at 17.9 and Williamston's Tony Doughty, fifth at 17.2.

Washington's Pam Pack scores the most points per game in the area scoring an average of 65.8 points a game, well ahead of Greenville Christian's second place 61.5 average.

North Pitt leads the area in defense, giving up 46.6 points an outing, while Trinity is second at 50.0.

North Pitt also holds the top winning margin, outscoring its opponents by 10.1 points a game. Trinity is second with a 9.6 winning margin.

Duggins holds down a 22.1 point per game average for the Lady Redskins, almost two points ahead of Greene Central's Cyndi Hicks, who is second at 20.4. Farmville Central's Lisa Lang comes in third at 18.3, followed by Trinity's Renee Deans at 16.8. North Pitt's Regina Cox rounds out the top five with a 16.3 average.

Greene Central is the top girls' team in offense, scoring 56.7 points a game. Farmville is second with a 54.8 average.

Greenville Christian tops the area in defense, allowing only 33.8 points a game. Bear Grass is next with a 34.2 point allowance.

Greene Central is being its opponents by an average of 16.7 points a game, well ahead of Farmville Central's second place figure of 11.0 points per game.

Jamesville Blows By Aurora Cagers 61-41

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School exploded in the final period and blew Aurora away last night, 61-41. Jamesville's girls also came away with a victory, downing Aurora, 40-17.

In the boys' game, Aurora held a slim 12-11 lead in the first period, but Jamesville took over in the second period, claiming a 27-25 lead at intermission. In the third period, Jamesville managed to add one more point to its lead, 35-32. But then in the final quarter, the Bullets shot past Aurora, 26-9, to win going away.

Richie Ange and Horacie Stotesbury each had 16 points to lead Jamesville, while Tracy Peele had 15. Jeff Johnson hit 17 to lead Aurora.

Aurora couldn't find the mark in the opening quarter of the girls' game, as Jamesville scored 12 points. Aurora did get on the boards in the second period, but trailed, 20-5 at halftime.

Jamesville continued to pull away in the third quarter, taking a 33-14 lead. They finished off Aurora, 7-3, in the last period.

Tammy Crisp led Jamesville with 20 points, while no one scored in double figures for Aurora.

Jamesville travels to Creswell tonight.

NCAA Suit Bill Upped $1 Million

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The NCAA spent $1.2 million losing a court fight over its exclusive right to market college football to television, but now the federal judge in the case has upped the legal bill almost another $1 million.

U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga told the National Collegiate Athletic Association on Thursday it must pay the plaintiffs' legal bills and court costs totaling $975,702.34.

A spokesman for the association said the order might be appealed.

The Universities of Oklahoma and Georgia sued the NCAA in 1981 claiming its sole right to bargain for college football game broadcast rights violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Burciaga's ruling, after a seven-day trial in 1982, sided with the plaintiffs and sent schools and their associations scrambling into the marketplace.

The NCAA's contracts before they were broken were worth $281.1 million.

As the law allows in awarding costs for antitrust cases, Burciaga doubled the fees of the two principal attorneys, Clyde Muchmore and Andy Coats, both of Oklahoma City. Coats is the Oklahoma City mayor and a former district attorney.

Coach Of The Year Trio Favors College Playoffs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The three coaches whose teams won NCAA playoffs in 1984 say they would favor a national championship playoff for major-college football if an acceptable plan can be devised.

Dave Arnold of Montana State, Chan Gailey of Troy State and Bob Reade of Augustana (Ill.), all of whom won Coach of the Year honors Thursday from the American Football Coaches Association, said last month's playoffs were exciting for their players.

LaVell Edwards of national champion Brigham Young, who was voted major-college Coach of the Year, has expressed his opposition to a playoff several times.

The Coach of the Year voting was done by more than 2,400 coaches who attended the convention. The winners were honored Thursday night at the annual Kodak Coach of the Year awards banquet.

Arnold led the Bobcats to a 12-2 record and the NCAA Division I-AA national championship, capping the biggest turnaround in college football history in his second year as head coach. They were 1-10 in 1983.

Gailey won Coach of the Year honors in the AFCA's College Division I, which includes Division II of the NCAA and Division I of the NAIA. Troy State nipped North Dakota State 18-17 to win the NCAA Division II playoffs and finished 12-1.

Augustana's Reade won for the second year in a row in the NCAA and Division II of the NAIA. He led Augustana to its second consecutive NCAA Division III championship — and second straight 12-0 season. The Vikings defeated Central (Iowa) 21-12 in the title game.

Arnold said a major-college playoff "would not hurt the players and would add some excitement. It certainly added a lot of excitement for us. It was a great experience for our players. It would take care of a lot of the controversy over who's No. 1, but you'd have to devise a proper way of doing it."

"We were in final exams the week we prepared for the final game but our kids did a great job of budgeting their time. Physically, we were no worse off after 14 games than we were after 11. We even got back two kids who were injured most of the season."

"If I had to vote just yes or no (for a playoff) without any other to-do, I'd vote yes if it can be worked out in a feasible manner."

Gailey said a playoff "would have people talking about college football — and it's definitely worth talking about."

But he also said that "the voting and controversy over

No. 1 is good for college football. It's good to argue and talk into January and February. It gives people something to argue about until the summer publications come out. This year, the controversy surrounding Brigham Young and (No. 2) Washington may have worked (in a one-game post-bowl playoff)."

Reade said his players "love them (the playoffs). It's a very exciting time. A (major-college) national championship playoff wouldn't hurt. It would be exciting. I'd love to go and see it."

The top honor went to Edwards, who led BYU to its first national championship. He called it "the single greatest honor that's ever happened to me in my profession."

Edwards called the national championship that capped BYU's 13-0 season "the most improbable thing I could have imagined since we haven't been on national network TV since 1979 and aren't a household word. But it seemed that when someone got ahead of us (in The Associated Press poll), they got zapped."

Looking back at his 13-year head coaching career, in which he turned BYU's program around by installing a sophisticated passing attack, Edwards noted that his first 18 seasons as a coach — eight at Granite High School in Salt Lake City and 10 as a BYU assistant — he only experienced four winning seasons.

"How that qualifies you for a head job, I don't know," he said. "Someone probably had some confidence in me that I didn't even have in myself. Either that, or it was a process of elimination (when he succeeded Tommy Hudspeeth in 1972)."

Although the actual vote count was not disclosed, Edwards won out over Joe Morrison of South Carolina, Jerry Claiborne of Kentucky, Leon Burnett of Purdue and Jim Wacker of Texas Christian, the other regional winners.

In University Division I-AA, Montana State's Arnold was the first write-in winner. The regional winners were Bob Griffin, Rhode Island; Dal Shealy, Richmond; Boots Donnelly, Middle Tennessee State; Dennis Ratzel, Indiana State, and A.L. Williams, Louisiana Tech.

The regional winners besides Gailey in College Division I were Jeff Petrucci, California (Pa.); Phil Albert, Towson State; Don Morton, North Dakota State, and Don Read, Portland State.

Regional winners in College Division II in addition to Reade were Jim Butterfield, Ithaca; Jim Blackburn, Randolph-Macon; Ron Schipper, Central (Iowa), and Ad Rutschman, Linfield.

Tar Heels Face Virginia In Fight For Early ACC Lead

By RICK SCOPPE

Associated Press Writer

Second-ranked Duke and North Carolina venture outside the Atlantic Coast Conference this weekend, but not before the No. 5 Tar Heels try to take sole possession of first place in the league.

North Carolina is tied with Duke at 2-0 in the conference and faces Virginia, 7-6 and 0-3, Saturday in Charlottesville. Duke, 11-0 overall, plays host to Washington on Saturday in a non-conference game.

The Tar Heels return to the court Sunday when they take on fourth-ranked Southern Methodist Sunday at Greensboro Coliseum.

Also Saturday, Clemson, 9-3 and 1-1, is at Wake Forest, 9-4 and 1-1. Clemson had a chance to move into a three-way tie with the Tar Heels and Blue Devils, but N.C. State edged the Tigers 71-68 Thursday.

There are no games involving ACC teams scheduled for tonight.

The Demon Deacons have defeated Clemson six straight times and are led by forward Kenny Green, who is averaging 17.4 points and 8.2 rebounds a contest. Guard Delaney Rudd is averaging 15.4 points and forward Mark Cline is scoring at a 11.5-point clip for Wake Forest.

Clemson is led by guard Vince Hamilton, who was averaging 14.7 points per game before Thursday night's game. Glenn Corbitt is averaging 13.3 points and Horace Grant 12.0 points for the Tigers.

Washington, a member of the Pacific 10 Conference, will meet Duke in only the third meeting between the two schools.

Guard Johnny Dawkins leads the Blue Devils in scoring with a 17.1 average, while Mark Alarie is averaging 16.1 points.

Washington, 10-3 after defeating Southern California 66-50 Thursday night, is led by two West Germany natives — 6-foot-9 senior forward Detlef Schrempf and 7-foot sophomore center Christian Velp. Schrempf is averaging 16.7 points per game and Velp 14.6 for the Huskies.

Washington defeated Duke 80-78 in last year's NCAA tournament.

North Carolina, fresh off a one-point victory over Maryland, takes on an SMU team that has lost just one game in 13 outings going into tonight's game against Texas A&M.

Smith said he laid some surprising words on his team midway through the second half of Wednesday night's game against the Terrapins. "I said: 'If we win, we win ... if we lose, we lose. Just go out there and execute.' I don't think I've ever said that before."

Smith said he isn't impressed with the national ranking and that it's too early to be looking at the league standings. "We're not as good as our so-called rank," he said. "That is based on past years. And we've only played one road game and one home game (in the ACC). We can still finish last."

Center Brad Daugherty is averaging 18.7 points and 9.5 rebounds — tops in the ACC — to lead the Tar Heels.

Three other North Carolina players are also averaging in double figures. They are Kenny Smith (13.0), Steve Hale (11.3) and Joe Wolf (10.3), who isn't expected to return for at least two more weeks after hurting his ankle against Stetson.

SMU, which has beaten both Oklahoma and Kentucky, is led by guard Carl Wright, who is averaging 18 points a game. Jon Koncak, a 7-foot senior center, is averaging 16 points and 11 rebounds for the Mustangs. Koncak is also SMU's leading all-time shot blocker.

USTA Set To Tighten Tennis Conduct Rules

NEW YORK (AP) — Tantrums or other displays of anger by American tennis players in Davis Cup competition will draw heavier penalties in the future, according to Arthur Ashe, captain of the United States team.

Ashe said Thursday that changes are being made in rules governing the conduct of American players in the Davis Cup. The changes follow the displays of poor conduct by John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors during the Cup final last month in Sweden. Connors was fined $2,500 for three incidents during the final. McEnroe complained about the indoor clay surface for the matches, in which Sweden defeated the U.S. for the championship. McEnroe also complained about the time of the year in which the finals were scheduled.

The United States Tennis Association, which governs the American team in Davis Cup play, "is stiffening some of the rules. We felt that quite a few things needed tightening," Ashe said.

Singer Cyndi Lauper Tops Grammy List

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Cyndi Lauper, the wild-haired reigning princess of pop, scored a rare sweep of the Big Four categories — album, record and song of the year and best new artist — in the 27th annual Grammy Awards nominations.

The last artist to be nominated in all four categories was Christopher Cross, who won all of them and an arranging award in 1980. Bobbie Gentry was the last woman to achieve the Big Four nomination sweep, in 1968. She didn't win any of those categories, but did take three other awards that year.

Miss Lauper was nominated in the album category for her debut LP, "She's So Unusual." The merry single "Girls Just Want to Have Fun" earned the record of the year nomination, and the songwriting nomination was for "Time After Time," which she co-wrote with Rob Hyman.

A female pop vocal nomination for "Girls Just Want to Have Fun" brought Miss Lauper's total to five, a figure she shared with rock star Prince and Tina Turner, whose nominations cap one of the biggest comebacks in pop music history.

However, the person who walked off with the most nominations for the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences awards was not a superstar but a respected producer, composer and arranger.

Two-time Grammy winner David Foster had six nominations, including producer of the year and three nominations for arranging and producing the Chicago hit "Hard Habit to Break."

He also earned an arranging nomination for the Kim Carnes-

James Ingram-Kenny Rogers trio "What About Me?" and a film score nomination for co-writing "I Can Wait Forever," Air Supply's contribution to the "Ghostbusters" soundtrack.

"I knew there was a few but I didn't know how many. I had no idea that I was at the top of the heap," said Foster, who has accumulated nine nominations over the years, including the two he won for co-writing the 1979 Earth, Wind & Fire hit "After the Love Has Gone" and for producing the cast album to "Dreamgirls" three years ago.

Last year's top nominee, Michael Jackson, had 12 nominations and won a record eight awards last year, including seven for the multimillion-selling "Thriller."

Jackson, who has not released a solo album since "Thriller," got two nominations this time: best group rhythm and blues vocal for his contribution to brother Jermaine's "Tell Me I'm Not Dreamin'" and best video album for "Making Michael Jackson's Thriller."

Prince's nominations include four with his group the Revolution — including album of the year — for their soundtrack to "Purple Rain," a rock musical film that was one of the summer's top moneymakers. The 26-year-old superstar from Minneapolis picked up his fifth nomination for writing Chaka Khan's hit "I Feel For You."

Miss Turner scored in three female vocal categories — pop, rock and rhythm and blues — with three different cuts from "Private Dancer," another album of the year nominee that sparked her return to the big time more than a decade after she and husband Ike Turner won a Grammy for their version of "Proud Mary." The single, "What's Love Got To Do With It," also earned her a record of the year nomination.

Bruce Springsteen was nominated for album of the year ("Born in the USA") and record of the year ("Dancing in the Dark"). "The Heart of Rock & Roll" by Huey Lewis and the News was the fifth record of the year nominee, while Lionel Richie's "Can't Slow Down" wrapped up the album list.

Besides Miss Lauper, best new artist candidates are Prince protegee Sheila E., the British dance-rock group Frankie Goes to Hollywood, pop singer Corey Hart, and The Judds, a country group.

Winners, determined by balloting among more than 5,000 record academy members, will be announced Feb. 26 during a CBS telecast to be hosted by Kenny Rogers from the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles.

FCC Rejects CIA Attack On ABC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA has struck out in its attempt to get another federal agency to punish ABC-TV for running a news story the intelligence agency claimed was "outlandish."

The Federal Communications Commission staff on Thursday rejected a Central Intelligence Agency complaint of "intentional news distortion" against ABC News, saying "The CIA's complaint provides no basis for commission action."

The commission's mass media bureau was so unimpressed with the CIA's arguments that it never asked the network to respond.

In November, the CIA filed a formal action with the commission complaining about a report on ABC's "World News Tonight" that the CIA plotted to kill Ronald Reagan, a Honolulu investment counselor.

The CIA asked the FCC to consider "the total disregard that the network has for the truth and the incompetent manner in which it prepares its investigative news broadcasts" the next time ABC's valuable radio and TV licenses are up for renewal.

In its 22-page complaint, the CIA said ABC aired the reports without any attempt to verify the accuracy of allegations made by jail guard Scott Barnes. ABC quoted Barnes as saying he was asked by the CIA to kill Rewald, who had revealed CIA involvement in his company.

ABC News later acknowledged on the air that it could not confirm the allegations by Barnes, but the network rejected the CIA's request for a broader retraction.

James C. McKinney, chief of the FCC's mass media bureau, said the commission "does not burden the broadcaster" with responding in Fairness Doctrine cases such as this unless the person who complains presents a convincing case.

ABC News President Rooney Arledge hailed the decision in a written statement that said: "We are pleased by the ruling of the FCC staff dismissing the CIA complaint against ABC on all counts and are particularly gratified that the ruling recognizes the importance of the First Amendment and free and robust news coverage."

CIA spokeswoman Katherine Pherson said the agency's lawyers were "reading the ruling carefully" and there was no word on whether they would appeal the ruling to the full commission. The agency has 30 days to do that.

Jane Pauley Shows New TV Style

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Pauley is the other one, the one who isn't joining the "CBS Morning News" as co-anchor bright and early this Monday.

With all the promotional attention being given Phyllis George's arrival on the new set of the zillionth incarnation of the "Morning News," one tends to forget about Ms. Pauley, at 34 the "grande dame" of morning TV.

Since 1976, Ms. Pauley has been at her job, sitting alongside, although a tad lower than, Tom Brokaw and now Bryant Gumbel. She took time off in late 1983-early '84 to have twins, and since returning last February, her renewed vigor has helped revitalize NBC's "Today" show and move it within striking distance of ABC's top-rated "Good Morning America."

Joan Lunden, David Hartman's underling on "Good Morning America," began sitting at her coffee table in 1980.

No less authorities than CBS News President Ed Joyce and his predecessor, Van Gordon Sauter, now executive vice president of the CBS Broadcast Group, pinpoint the slide of the "Morning News" and the commensurate surge of "Today" to Ms. Pauley's comeback.

Sauter said Ms. Pauley "surprised us and returned as a different persona."

Nobody feels that change more than Gumbel, who calls his sidekick "clearly the best woman on the air in the morning. She's bright, cheerful and she understands her role. Our relationship is better than it's ever been."

When Gumbel replaced Brokaw on "Today" three years ago, Ms. Pauley was disappointed that she wasn't considered for the broadcast's lead position.

"It's tough when you're the co-host but clearly not the person in charge," said Gumbel. "It's a difficult position. You must establish your importance and dignity, but not at the expense of the person you're sitting next to."

Helms Says His CBS Letter 'Hit A Nerve'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An undistributed letter from Sen. Jesse Helms proposing that conservatives buy CBS stock and end what it calls biased news reporting has "hit a nerve," the North Carolina Republican says.

In an interview Thursday on ABC's "Nightline," Helms said his office had reported a number of calls on the letter.

"If people are interested in it, that's fine," Helms said.

Helms and supporters told the Securities and Exchange Commission in documents filed Thursday that they were not seeking proxies from CBS stockholders in an attempt to take over CBS, but held open the possibility of making such an attempt later.

concerning their proposal that the company end ... its liberal bias in news reporting and editorial policies," the documents said.

Edward J. Atorino, a stock analyst specializing in media companies for Smith Barney in New York, said it would be virtually impossible for such a takeover move to succeed.

"He just wants to call attention (to his causes)," Atorino said. "And it's a great way to do it. ... But he knows he's not going to influence CBS very much."

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported Thursday that it had obtained a copy of a five-page letter, dated Jan. 21, 1985, calling on conservatives to buy CBS stock so they could, "if necessary, take control of that network" and "become Dan Rather's boss." It calls on recipients to help end what the letter calls biased news reporting.

Copies of the letter were being printed in Raleigh, but none has been mailed, the newspaper said.

In New York, CBS spokeswoman Mary Boies said CBS would not comment until it "has studied the documents filed with the SEC."

Network spokesman George Schweitzer said there were about 29.7 million shares of CBS stock, held by about 24,000 registered stockholders. At their meetings, stockholders have one vote for each share of stock, he said.

It would cost more than $1 billion to buy half of CBS' stock at current prices, said William Suter, a New York-based researcher for Merrill Lynch who specializes in television networks.

The price of a share of CBS stock closed Thursday at $73.87 on the New York Stock Exchange, up slightly from Wednesday's close of $72.50, but Atorino said that had "nothing to do with Jesse Helms."

WELCOME HOME — Randy and Tracy Sasser hold their their 2-month-old daughter, Christina, after taking her home for the first time this week. The child was born prematurely on Nov. 1 and weighed only 1 pound, 10 ounces. She has been hospitalized in Raleigh since birth until this week. (AP Laserphoto)

Fayetteville Couple Takes Infant Home For First Time

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Christina Sasser is 2 months old and weighs only 5 pounds, but her mother says the infant is "huge now to what she used to be."

When she was born Nov. 1, about two months premature, Christina weighed only 1 pound, 10 ounces. Although her family was told to prepare for the worst, they never gave up hope. On Wednesday, the Sassers dressed their tiny infant daughter in Cabbage Patch doll clothes and brought her home.

"This has been the longest two months of my life," said Randy Sasser, the child's father. "It's been only two months, but it's seemed eternal."

It was a happy trip to Fayetteville for Christina Sasser and her family.

"The doctors told me not to have any big hopes," Sasser said. "But, we never gave up hope."

Tracy Sasser, Christina's mother, did not see her child until a week after the birth, and the sight of a tiny infant hooked to life support systems was a shock. The child was immediately taken from Cape Fear Valley Hospital to Wake County Medical Center, where more sophisticated life support equipment for infants is available.

"We tried to warn her that she was really tiny," said Martha Hardin, Tracy's mother. "But even with the warnings, the sight was not something Tracy was prepared for. Tracy didn't understand how small she really was."

"The first time I got to see her, I was really shaken up," said the 20-year-old Mrs. Sasser.

Christina remained on life support systems for 20 days, receiving constant care and supervision.

Even at her current size, Christina cannot wear normal baby clothes. Mrs. Hardin and her husband, Monroe, gave their new grandchild a Cabbage Patch doll, also named Christina, and an extra set of clothes which the human Christina wears. The family says the outfit fits her perfectly.

RJR Seeks Court OK To Exempt Stored Leaf Imports From Tax

RALEIGH (AP) — Giving R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. a tax exemption on stored imported tobacco would give the company an unfair advantage over tobacco companies who buy mostly homegrown leaf, an attorney for Forsyth County told the state Court of Appeals.

Attorney P. Eugene Price and lawyers for Durham County and the town of Kernersville asked the three-judge panel Wednesday to deny the company's request for an exemption on more than a half-billion dollars worth of stored tobacco. The stripped leaf is kept for curing in 88 U.S. Customs-bonded warehouses in Forsyth and Durham counties.

Reynolds appealed to the court after the North Carolina Property Tax Commission denied the exemption in December 1983.

Reynolds bases its case on a U.S. Supreme Court decision in 1982 that exempted Xerox Corp. from paying property taxes on copying machines stored in Customs-bonded warehouses in Houston and Harris County, Texas.

In that case, the copier parts were manufactured in the United States, shipped to Mexico for assembly and returned to Houston for storage until they could be exported to Latin America.

"The Xerox ruling drew a black line outside the warehouse door," argued John Cocklereece, a Reynolds attorney. "That which was outside the door was subject to taxation; that which was inside was not."

"The appellant is seeking an exemption under the cloak of a protective policy that does not exist," he said.

In the Xerox case, Price said that all of the copiers were destined for export.

New Rates Fixed On Auto Surcharges

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Reinsurance Facility has established a new annual loss recoupment surcharge of 20.7 percent to help reimburse state insurance companies for losses in insuring high risk drivers.

The Reinsurance Facility also imposed Thursday a separate 6.3 percent "clean risk" recoupment surcharge for state auto liability policies.

The combined total of 27 percent is two-tenths of a percentage point less than the surcharge that has been in effect since March. Lamar Gunter, manager of the North Carolina Insurance News Service, said the drop would average about 20 cents for every $100 in premiums.

Because North Carolina requires drivers to carry liability insurance, the Reinsurance Facility helps state insurance companies recover losses incurred from insuring drivers they might ordinarily consider bad risks.

Black DA Says Woman Is Next

RALEIGH (AP) — Carl R. Fox, who recently became North Carolina's first black district attorney, says it won't be long before more minorities and perhaps the first female DA attain the office.

Fox, 31, who replaced Wade Barber Jr. in Orange and Chatham counties earlier this month, said in a telephone interview that "career district attorneys" have been part of the reason deserving minorities have not become DAs sooner.

"I think what the problem has been for a while is that a lot of people who have been district attorneys have been career district attorneys," he said. "A lot have assistants who are black or who are other minorities, but they are not in the position to move on.

"It's sort of a shame that there hasn't been someone (black) previously and there hasn't been a woman previously," he said. "But I would be surprised if that doesn't happen real soon."

Fox said the fact that he represents a minority is not as important as the opportunity to do the job.

"I, of course, knew the impact of that," he said. "It does have its effect on the future, I think, as far as other people who are interested in doing the work. But I wanted the job because I enjoyed the work."

Fox, an assistant district attorney since 1978, said he was surprised at the publicity surrounding his selection.

"I've been contacted by numerous papers," he said "I heard about it from friends of mine as far west as Asheville and it was in my home paper in Mount Olive. Even more surprising has been the number of people who have taken the time to congratulate me. It's an experience that I think everyone should have, to have that kind of warmth displayed to you."

However, Fox said, he isn't likely to become a career district attorney.

"I would say at this point it's quite probable that I will run for the full term in 1986," he said. "But I don't consider myself a career district attorney right now."

Martin Meetings

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin, resurrecting a policy he used as a U.S. representative, said Thursday he would attend periodic town meetings to hear his constituents' opinions.

Martin said in a prepared statement that the first meeting would be Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Howard Chapel on the campus of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson.

"The purpose of the town meetings will be to give Governor Martin direct and frequent contact with the people of the state, so that he can address their specific concerns," said Jack Hawke, Martin's policy adviser.

"Jim Martin wants to be a governor who listens to the people of North Carolina," added Hawke. He said that during Martin's six terms in Congress, he frequently held "Jim Martin Listens" meetings throughout his 9th District.

Drug Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — Drug use at Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant has not affected plant safety because safety inspectors identified any faulty construction, regardless of its cause, officials said.

Their statements followed a two-month police undercover investigation that resulted in the arrest of six Harris employees on drug charges Thursday.

"If any work has been done by any of these people that had not met our standards, that work would have been caught" under the monitoring program, William J. Hindman, the plant's administration manager, said in an interview Thursday.

Hindman said he had no evidence that any safety inspectors at the plant were using drugs.

Hindman said he did not know the specific jobs that had been performed by the arrested employees.

Major T.W. Lanier of the Wake County Sheriff's Department said drug use at the plant was "widespread," mainly involving cocaine. He said about 100 of the 6,000 workers at the plant used drugs on the construction site in southwestern Wake County. The plant is scheduled for commercial operation in 1986.

Motel Evacuation

CHARLOTTE (AP) — About 31 employees working in the kitchen area of a Charlotte motel were evacuated when they were overcome by fumes from a polyurethane paint that was being applied to the motel floors.

Charlotte Memorial Hospital spokesman Al Pruitt said 31 people from the Woodlawn Holiday Inn were brought to the emergency room by 1:15 p.m. Thursday, but codes used by emergency vehicles to transport the patients indicated none of them was seriously injured.

Work was being done on floors near the kitchen area, and some of the housekeeping staff began coughing and vomiting as fumes drifted into the kitchen area, according to reports from WBTV. The television station reported that one employee fainted, and at least three others were taken from the area on a stretcher to waiting ambulances.

Carol Sprinkle, a dispatcher with the Charlotte Fire Department, said "the polyurethane should be applied in an area that is well ventilated and apparently it wasn't."

Knox Brother

RALEIGH (AP) — Charles Knox, who endorsed Republican Jim Martin's gubernatorial bid after his brother lost the Democratic nomination, said Martin did not promise him a government job in exchange for his support.

Knox, whose brother Eddie lost the Democratic nomination to former Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, was appointed chairman of the state's Alcoholic Board of Control Wednesday by Martin, who defeated Edmisten.

Knox said Thursday he hadn't discussed working in the administration until after the election.

The 58-year-old Knox, who practices law in the same Charlotte firm as his brother, had been chairman of the Mecklenburg County ABC for the past 15 years.

Knox succeeds Martin Speight, who had been ABC chairman under former Gov. Jim Hunt since 1977. Speight's salary, recommended by the governor and set by the Legislature, was about $54,000 a year, said ABC Administrator Bill Hester.

Telephone Service

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company

will continue to sell American Telephone and Telegraph long-distance services to business customers under a new agreement reached by the two companies.

Based on the new sales agreement, Carolina Telephone will serve as a distributor of the businesses services offered by AT&T Communications, the AT&T unit that provides long-distance and international services.

Carolina Telephone serves more than 600,000 customers in central and eastern North Carolina.

Trash Search

RALEIGH (AP) — Eleven state officials searched through a pile of trash and found hundreds of original records from the North Carolina Department of Insurance and several uncashed checks, a Raleigh newspaper has quoted sources as saying.

Thursday's search on the floor of Fort Arena at the N.C. State Fairgrounds was conducted by eight insurance department officials and three agents from the State Bureau of Investigation.

The trash, which came from a city of Raleigh compactor that serves the building housing the department, is the subject of an SBI probe into the handling of records for former Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

Officials of the insurance department and the SBI declined to comment on what the compactor contained, saying the ongoing investigation is confidential.

Church Fire

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A man charged with setting a church fire that caused an estimated $100,000 in damage is receiving psychiatric evaluation after slashing his wrists in the Cabarrus County jail last weekend.

Kenny Ray Sechler, 22, of Concord has been charged with arson in connection with the blaze that gutted the choir room at the Byales Memorial Presbyterian Church Jan. 3. He was treated and released from Cabarrus Hospital after the Sunday incident, Chief Deputy Jerry Troutman said. Troutman said he was told that Sechler's wounds, inflicted by a razor blade, were superficial.

Sechler was taken to Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh for psychiatric examination Monday on an order from Cabarrus District Judge Adam Grant, said Wayne Pickett, Sechler's court-appointed attorney.

Sechler is also charged with breaking and entering and larceny at Bayless Memorial. A tape recorder and other electronic equipment were missing from the church.

Judge Named

RALEIGH (AP) — District Court Judge David LaBarre of Durham has been appointed as Chief District Judge of the 14th Judicial District which includes Durham County.

LaBarre replaced former Chief District Judge Milton Read, who was appointed Resident Superior Court Judge of the 14th Judicial District by former Gov. Jim Hunt.

Castro Looks On As Ortego Takes Oath

By REID G. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — With Cuban leader Fidel Castro and 4,000 other guests looking on, former guerrilla Daniel Ortega was sworn in as Nicaragua's president and gave an inaugural address assailing the United States.

Castro, who like Ortega wore a military uniform, was believed to be the only foreign head of government on hand Thursday for the inauguration of Ortega, the 39-year-old coordinator of the leftist Sandinista junta that took power in 1979 after overthrowing the pro-American Somoza dynasty.

The Cuban president, whose arrival was not announced in advance, was embraced warmly by Ortega at the airport. Castro, 58, overthrew the pro-American Battista regime and established leftist rule in Cuba 26 years ago, and Cuba was a supporter of the Sandinista revolution.

Carlos Nunez, president of Nicaragua's new National Assembly, draped the blue and white sash of office over Ortega and swore in the new president for a six-year term. The ceremony took place in the outdoor Plaza of the Revolution alongside Lake Managua.

An estimated 40 nations were represented at the ceremony, but most delegations were relatively low level.

"We are not warlike nor militaristic," Ortega said in his address. "The war is forced on us by the United States and we can only end this aggression if we can convince the American government that this revolution cannot be defeated."

"If they engage in a direct invasion, we will confront and destroy that invasion," he added, referring as he does frequently to an alleged threat of direct intervention by the United States.

For the Sandinistas, Ortega's election on Nov. 4 with 63 percent of the vote and his inauguration were seen as crucial to gaining international acceptance and badly needed economic aid from West European democracies that have grown uneasy with the Sandinistas' authoritarian rule.

In his speech, Ortega said the United States had sent "nightmares" to Nicaragua to spoil the dreams born with the revolution.

The Sandinista government estimates more than 8,000 U.S.-backed rebels roam the jungles and hills of northern Nicaragua, waging hit-and-run warfare almost daily.

Ortega's speech was largely a repeat of standard accusations, but he also said he would welcome normalization of relations with the United States and called for ratification of the so-called Contadora peace plan for Central America.

Western diplomatic sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified, said Castro was expected to confer privately today with the foreign ministers of the Contadora group — Mexico, Panama, Colombia and Panama.

The Contadora group has been trying for the past two years to come up with a regional peace plan for Central America. They met this week in Panama and are slated to meet again Feb. 14-15 at a session to which the ministers of the Central American nations have been invited.

Castro last visited Nicaragua in July 1980, the first anniversary of the revolution that brought the Sandinistas to power. At the airport, he said he was here to "send a fraternal and warm greeting to the Nicaraguan people."

The official Cuban news agency, Prensa Latina, reported Castro also planned to quick tour of the major cities in Nicaragua, including the Atlantic port of Bluefields.

After being sworn in, Ortega embraced the other eight "commandantes" of the Sandinista National Liberation Front and his vice president, Sergio Ramirez. Ramirez was a member of the three-man junta that governed the country until Thursday but is not a member of the nine-member Sandinista directorate.

The commandantes, who call their ruling body the directorate, have wielded authority in Nicaragua for more than five years, and Ortega's inauguration is not likely to change that.

The Sandinistas say Ortega's election was the first time in almost half a century Nicaraguans had freely chosen a president.

But the chief opposition coalition, the Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinate, refused to participate, accusing the Sandinistas of not ensuring a fair and open campaign. President Reagan called the election a "Soviet-style sham."

Nicaragua's last elected president was Anastasio Somoza Debayle, who was elected in September 1974 to a term that was to expire in 1981.

ORTEGA WELCOME — Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, left, gave a warm embrace Thursday to Cuban President Fidel Castro after the Cuban leader arrived at the airport in Managua. Castro later attended a ceremony in which Ortega was sworn as Nicaragua's chief executive. (AP Laserphoto)

London Blast Toll Climbs To Eight

LONDON (AP) — Experts said today they fear the intensely cold weather could lead to more deadly gas leaks such as one that caused an explosion in a luxury London apartment building, killing eight people and injuring nine.

Officials said 300 people were evacuated from their homes in the Swinnow area of the northern city of Leeds after a gas leak was reported there Thursday night, a few hours after the London apartment blast.

The Swinnow evacuees spent the night in a local church hall and a school as gas board officials checked beneath the streets for ruptured gas mains. But there was no explosion.

The blast Thursday at Newnham House, part of the luxury Manor Fields apartment complex on Putney Hill in southwest London, collapsed the central section of a three-story block of 12 apartments, burying victims under tons of rubble.

Firemen and municipal employees using shovels and bare hands worked through the night in freezing cold in the search for more victims buried under the tons of rubble.

They were aided by sound sensors, sniffer dogs and infra-red thermal imagers, which can locate bodies by their heat.

Dr. Philip King, head of chemical engineering at Manchester University's Science and Technology Institute, said, "Twice as many gas explosions occur in winter as in summer ... Ground movement because of weather conditions can crack pipes."

He led an inquiry into a string of gas explosions that killed 10 people in 1977, and said he believes Thursday's explosion could have been caused by a fractured pipe main near the bottom of the Newnham House block.

Bomb At Beirut Bank Kills Two Pedestrians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A bomb exploded outside a Druse-owned bank in a busy west Beirut shopping district today, killing two pedestrians, wounding 15 and setting cars ablaze, rescue workers said. It was the fifth bombing of a Druse target in six weeks.

The bomb, which police said contained more than 50 pounds of explosives, went off outside the Corniche Mazraa entrance of the nine-story building housing the Bank of Beirut and the Arab Countries, which is owned mainly by members of Lebanon's minority Druse sect.

The Druse are feuding with Lebanon's Christians and with the Lebanese army. Until today, a total of 14 people had been killed and 56 wounded in the bombings aimed at Druse targets.

Security forces and Druse militiamen tried to seal off the area around the bank, and relatives screamed to be allowed to find out the fate of their kin. The wail of ambulance sirens echoed through the city shortly after the explosion at 11 a.m.

Earlier today, an anonymous telephone caller claimed the Jihad Islami organization had carried out gunpoint abduction of the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, an American priest, and said a medical check-up showed he was "in good shape."

Jenco, who heads the Catholic Relief Services organization in Lebanon, was kidnapped by at least six gunmen in Beirut's Moslem sector on Tuesday.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 12, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There can be a considerable amount of confusion in your relations with other persons today and tonight unless you make a point to study just what they desire.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you want to have a better relationship with those you want as partners, it is best not to be so self-opinionated.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put more effort into your work and get rid of some flaw in it so that you can get right benefits.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Any small risks you take today could turn out successfully provided you express yourself well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Ideal day to get your home in fine shape, your marketing done and family feeling happy.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Check and recheck any statements or reports and make sure they are correct. Make certain to telephone before dropping in on others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go over your accounts and get them in order so that you can collect or pay, as the case may be, very soon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study what you most desire in the days ahead and how best to gain your aims. Get out later and visit with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you do something really nice for the one you love you can get excellent response. Apply yourself seriously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contacting your closest friends and discussing your ambitions with them can bring fine results today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good will means much to you now so expand your efforts in such direction and have fine credit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Missives from afar can be a little confusing to you but can assist you to advance if you study them well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your intuition is basically sound but couple it with good judgement. Your mate's strange behavior becomes clarified tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she is a born peacemaker and can bring harmony among warring factions, so be sure to give a fine education. One who will be most popular for the reason that your son or daughter will love people. However, love of home and family will come first.

Opening lead: King of ♦.

Canada's performance in the recent World Team Olympiad in Seattle was a disappointment to them and to their many supporters. They never quite challenged for a place in the quarterfinals. However, their quest for points in the late rounds did produce this spectacular hand.

Mark Molson, North, and Boris Baran, South bid to a slam on a hand where some might think they barely had enough assets for game. West led the king of diamonds and, when East produced the seven, declarer decided that East was short in diamonds. Therefore, he was more likely to be long in hearts. Declarer decided to back his judgment to the nth degree.

He ruffed the opening lead in dummy and led the six of hearts, overtaking with the seven when East played low. When the finesse won, he continued with the jack of diamonds. West played low and declarer discarded a spade from the table.

When the jack held the trick, it was all over but the shouting. Declarer continued with the nine of diamonds and, when West again did not cover, declarer ruffed with dummy's queen of trumps!

Whether or not East overruffed was immaterial. If he did not, declarer would simply continue with a trump from dummy. If he did, the king of hearts would pick up the jack. In both cases, dummy's ace of spades would take care of declarer's remaining diamond loser.

Not surprisingly, in the other room a slam was neither bid nor made. Canada gained 13 International Match Points from the deal.

Heaters Are Safer Now

WASHINGTON (AP) - Americans who use kerosene heaters for extra warmth may be able to breathe a bit easier because new technology has dramatically improved the safety of the devices, the Consumer Product Safety Commission says.

"It seems that they have made a dramatic breakthrough ... in introducing this new technology," Sandra Eberle of the commission's chemical hazards program said Thursday.

She said new multistage heaters now coming onto the market reduce hazardous nitrogen dioxide and carbon monoxide by 50 percent to 90 percent compared to older models.

While the commission did not identify particular brands of heater as safer than others, it singled out the new multistage models that have been sold only in recent months.

But the report also disclosed that catalytic converter devices have also been developed that can be added to existing heaters making them much safer than in the past.

Government officials and consumer advocates have been vocal in their concern in recent years over the emissions from unvented kerosene space heaters, and the commission has warned that the heaters should not be used without partly opening a door or window for ventilation.

But commission staffer Warren Porter said at Thursday's meeting that some of the new heaters produce so little pollution they could even be used in a closed room, although practice that is still not recommended.

Nitrogen dioxide gas has been a primary hazard associated with these heaters in the past. It can cause breathing problems and has been associated with cancer-causing chemicals called nitrosamines.

Gas Leak

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - More than 100 people were treated for eye and throat irritation after non-lethal gas leaked from a warehouse in central India, United News of India reported.

Hundreds of people fled their homes in panic after sodium hydrosulphate gas, used as a bleaching agent, escaped from four drums at a transport company warehouse in Jabalpur, 385 miles southeast of New Delhi, the news agency said.

The site is 135 miles east of Bhopal, where more than 2,000 people died after methyl isocyanate gas leaked from a Union Carbide pesticide plant Dec. 3.
