Israel Schedules Withdrawal From Lebanon

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres said today that all Israeli troops will be out of Lebanon this summer. But his deputy premier and chief rival in the bipartisan government said the plan failed to protect northern Israel against guerrilla attacks.

The Cabinet abandoned hopes of a negotiated settlement with the Lebanese government and approved a three-stage unilateral withdrawal by a 16-6 vote Monday. Deputy Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who also is foreign minister, led the unsuccessful opposition.

Peres' defense minister, Yitzhak

Rabin, said: "I believe that after more than 2½ years in Lebanon we have learned the hard way that Israel should not attempt to be the policemen in settling the wars between various groups in Lebanon."

The first stage of the withdrawal is to begin in five weeks, and Peres said succeeding stages would be "played by ear." Asked on Israel radio if the troops would be out of Lebanon this summer, Peres replied: "Yes, that is the basic plan."

Shamir told the radio the plan did "not make minimal security provisions for the northern settlements," and he vowed to do all he could before the pullout "to make sure that all that is possible will be rectified and the safety of the northern settlements ensured as much as is possible."

Rabin told reporters that the first phase would see Israeli troops retreat 17 miles from their current positions along the Awali River. The new line will parallel the Litani River from the Mediterranean coast inland to the Shiite Moslem town of Nabatiyeh.

Israeli troops, currently estimated to number 20,000, would leave the port city of Sidon and a large number of Shiite village.

Shiite militants have inflicted almost daily casualties in guerrilla attacks on the Israelis in southern Lebanon. The Israelis have lost 606 men since the June 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

The second phase of withdrawal was expected to come in the eastern sector where Israel now faces the Syrian army in the Bekaa valley. The final stage would see Israeli forces return to the international boundary.

The plan envisions three means of securing the border against attack: deployment of U.N. troops in the areas of south Lebanon Israel vacates, patrols of the Israeli-allied South Lebanon Army militia along the border area and a back-up of Israeli troops who will move into Lebanon if new guerrilla groups organize to attack.

The Cabinet decision was a political victory for Peres, leader of the leftist Labor Party who had made campaign pledges to bring home Israeli troops.

Shamir heads the Likud bloc, which was in power at the time of the invasion. Despite his reservations about the plan, three Likud Cabinet ministers crossed party lines to vote with the majority.

Israel Radio reported that Peres rejected a telephoned appeal from Ariel Sharon, the minister of commerce and industry, that he be allowed to vote in absentia against the proposed Lebanon withdrawal plan.

Sharon is in New York awaiting the verdict in his libel suit against Time magazine. As defense minister in 1982, Sharon was the primary architect of the Lebanon invasion.

Peres and Rabin made clear the decision was taken to forge ahead with a pullout after hopes faded for a breakthrough in the talks with Lebanon that began Nov. 8.

Ayden Seeking Satellite Clinic

By MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — The Town Board of Commissioners announced that it will support establishing an Ayden Mental Health Satellite Clinic in the counseling offices of the old Ayden Middle School.

Page Adkins, chairman of a group of citizens currently seeking to be recognized as an advisory group for the proposed center, asked Ayden Commissioners at their monthly meeting Monday for "support as we begin a request for space for a mental health center in the old Ayden Middle School."

Currently, Ayden receives mental health services at the schools by a representative of the Pitt County Mental Health Center. According to Mrs. Adkins, adult mental health services are limited, because there is no permanent or private counseling offices available. "There is a need for adult counseling," she said. "And there is a concrete possibility of funding from the county mental health center."

Mrs. Adkins said the group's request to become an official advisor

ENVELOPE STUFFING — BEWARE

Recently I requested and received The Beer Report, information about a way to make extra money at home. Like most people, I can use some additional moneey and this sounds like an easy way to make some. Please look at the information I have enclosed and see is this business is legitimate before I send the money that is required to get started. It's supposed to cost only $28.95 to get the information to get started stuffing envelopes at home and you make $1 per envelope. They guarantee that, if you don't stuff over 2,500 envelopes and have not made over $2,500 in 30 days, you can return the listing for a full refund, no questions asked. M.C.

Jean Ann Wolhair in the North Carolina Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division says The Beer Report has now been prevented from operating by the U.S. postal inspector and that it's illegal for the company to advertise or in any way operate in North Carolina. Any operation which asked you to send money up front for information about how to make money is illegal in this state and has been since 1979. Often what these so-called companies will do is ask you to place advertisements in your local paper and get other people to send in their $28.95 — or whatever amount. Don't send any money, she said, and don't get involved placing ads yourself or you'll be in violation of the law.

The chief postal inspector in the fall, 1984 "Law Enforcement Report," issued a warning against envelope-stuffing schemes. If you have information about one, you may send it to Chief Postal Inspector, Washington, D.C. 20260-2100. This office is seeking to obtain mail fraud convictions and false representation mail-stop orders against all of them. They also encourage publications to refuse to run "the type of advertisements which appeal to the unsuspecting or those seeking to supplement their income."

King Birthday Events Set

The designation of Martin Luther King's birthday as a state and national holiday has prompted some North Carolina towns and counties to give employees a day off and the Ku Klux Klan a reason, a Klan official said, to protest.

Glenn Miller, leader of the Confederate Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, reported Monday that Klan members in North Carolina would march around the Capitol Building in Raleigh Jan. 27 to protest the creation of a day honoring King.

Miller said the Klan has also proposed that King's birthday be set aside to honor Gen. Robert E. Lee, the military leader of the Confederate states during the Civil War. Lee's birthday is Jan. 19. King's Jan. 15 birthday does not become a legal national holiday until 1986, but at least three North Carolina towns and two counties, including Charlotte, Chapel Hill, Durham, and Mecklenburg and Durham counties, will celebrate King's birthday this year by giving employees a day off. A Greenville city official said today the question of holiday leave for employees on King's birthday has not been addressed yet.

Local leaders of the black community said, however, that they will celebrate King's life as they have since the first anniversary of his

Betty Speir Gets Democratic Post

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

BETHEL — Betty Speir, active since her teen years in Democratic political circles, was elected as one of four national committeepersons at a meeting last weekend of the state Democratic Executive Committee held in Raleigh.

"At the end of this month, on Jan. 30 and 31, the committee members will be attending the national meeting in Washington, D.C.," Mrs. Speir commented. "All of us expect to be very active between now and then and also at the national conference to support former Governor Terry Sanford. He has announced he is aggressively seeking nomination as national Democratic chairman."

The three other North Carolina committee members selected Saturday are Karen Gottobi of Wilmington, a county commissioner in New Hanover County; David Price, the outgoing party chairman who will return to Duke University to teach political science, and Harvey Gantt, mayor of Charlotte.

Raleigh attorney Wade Smith, the choice of Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, was elected as the party chairman.

Mrs. Speir said Linda Aschendorf of Charlotte was elected vice chairman and Nurham Warwick of Clinton was elected secretary. "He was formerly a teacher of agriculture in the Pitt County schools," Mrs. Speir added.

Mrs. Speir was the first woman in Pitt County ever elected to the Democratic committee. She served for 13 years in the Pitt Teen-Dem organization, and has served in several other positions at both local and state levels.

A counselor at North Pitt High School, she is also a member of the North Carolina State Board of Education.

At Saturday's meeting, Mrs. Speir and Don Ensley, a faculty member at East Carolina University and retiring minorities officer of the committee, were cited for their contributions to the North Carolina Democratic Party.

UNC Board Names Whichard To Presidential Search Panel

CHAPEL HILL — David J. Whichard II of Greenville, editor and co-publisher of The Daily Reflector, is one of 10 members of the UNC Board of Governors named to a search committee to seek a successor for University of North Carolina President William Friday, who will retire on or before July 1, 1986.

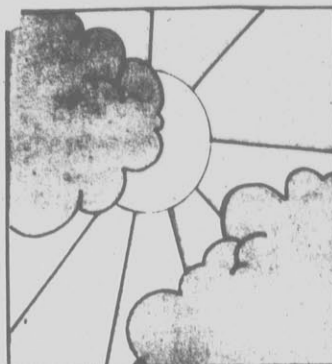

The announcement of the search committee was made this morning by Phillip G. Carson, chairman of the board, who said the committee will hold its first meeting on Friday.

Members of the committee, in addition to Whichard, who has served on the Board of Governors since 1972, include: Carson, of Asheville, who will serve as chairman and spokesman; Wayne Corpening of Winston-Salem; Walter Davis of Kitty Hawk and Midland, Texas; William A. Dees Jr. of Goldsboro; William Johnson of Lillington; former Gov. James Holshouser of Southern Pines; John Jordan of Raleigh; Julia Taylor Morton of Linville and Louis Randolph of Washington.

Carson said that, in addition to the search committee, a 16-member advisory committee representing chancellors, faculty, students, alumni and trustees from the 16 UNC-member schools will be appointed to aid in the selection of a new president.

A series of public hearings across the state will also be held in connection with the selection process, he said.

Block Grant Project Is Nearly Over

WINTERVILLE — Representatives of Talbert, Cox and Associates told the Winterville Town Board Monday night the Community Development Block Grant of 1982 will be completed by March 30. This would include the demolition and renovation of homes. Approximately 12 homes remain to be finished.

Town Clerk Elwood Nobles said the 1982 grant also included water, curb and guttering streets in the renovation area.

The board was also told the deadline for a new grant application would be April 18.

Nobles said the board approved a motion to repay the landowners of eight tracts of property on Cooper Street after the owners were assessed for the Pitt County Drainage District No. 3. The group was charged before it was discovered they were inside the city limits of Winterville and not outside. The charge amounted to $40 per household and this would be paid by the town and if the assessment had already been paid by the landowner, it would be reimbursed.

The board also approved the purchase of a police car, pickup truck, and a garbage truck on state contract for a total of $30,879. The board also approved the purchase of a used dump truck for $5,514.

Nobles also reported Mayor E.C. Hines would attend a program Jan. 31 in Greenville concerning the 911 emergency phone number. The meeting is sponsored by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

Teacher education students at East Carolina University scored well above the minimum standard on a three-part examination given to prospective teachers, according to Dr. Charles Coble, dean of the ECU School of Education.

The students, all undergraduates, took part of the National Teacher

Examination in late October. All students taking Core Battery II passed, while 98 percent of the students taking Core Battery I passed.

ECU students taking Core Battery III, which measures professional knowledge about teaching and learning, also scored well above the cutoff point, with about 93 percent passing.

Students taking Core Batteries I and II compiled mean scores of 654 and 656 respectively. A score of 644 or better is required to achieve teacher certification in North Carolina.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

does not move in and out easily, she puts petroleum jelly on the hook and that solves the problem.

She got some clear plastic bags from the meat cutting department of our grocery store and made beautiful handbags and hats from them. She made place mats, doilies, tote bags, rugs and many other practical items. She even made Easter baskets one year.

A lot of friends saved bags for her, and she often sold the items. I just tie my strips together, but she sewed the ends together — said it made much nicer things. — Betty K., Reading, Pa.

I don't have any specific directions for items to make using this plastic "yarn," just some ideas. Perhaps you would like to make some round place mats or a round bath mat — both are very practical ideas as the plastic wipes clean easily.

I would recommend using a fairly large crochet hook for this, usually a size J or K. Experiment to see the effects with different hook sizes.

To start a circle, work a chain of 6 stitches and join with a slip stitch to form a ring. Chain 1 and work 8 single crochets in a ring for Round 1. At the end of this and all other rounds, join with a slip stitch in the first stitch of the previous round chain 1.

For Round 2, work 2 single crochets in each stitch of the previous round, giving you 16 stitches. Increases are always made by making 2 stitches in a single stitch.

On Round 3, increase in every other stitch, ending with a total of 24 stitches. Round 4 is worked in the same way, giving you 36 stitches.

From this point on, work the odd-numbered rounds without increasing, and work 12 evenly spaced increases on all even-numbered rounds until you have 108 stitches.

After this, you will need to make 18 increases per round for a while. Continue in this manner, gradually increasing the number of stitches increased as your circle grows larger.

I am sure that there are many of my readers who have knitted or crocheted with this type of material.

Perhaps they will share some other patterns and ideas with us. In the meantime, start saving and cutting plastic bags so you will be ready to make use of them.

Bring year-round warmth and cheer into your home with this afghan, embroidered with nostalgic reminders of years gone by. It is worked in a simple afghan stitch; the designs are worked in cross stitch in a contrast color. The various panels are then joined with a lacy pattern stitch. This handsome afghan was designed by Mable Fiedler of Janesville, Wis. It is made with four-ply, knitting worsted-weight yarn.

To obtain directions for making the Nostalgia Afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. CL 0113 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 409, Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. C 0113 by sending a check or money order for $39.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, superior quality acrylic yarns in off-white for the background and your choice of one of the following contrast colors: Dark Blue, China Rose, Walnut or Scarlet. Please specify your color preference.

Several years ago, it was all the rage to crochet with strips of plastic cut from bread wrappers. Just before Christmas, I was going through an old file of letters from readers and came across the following, which brought this to mind. With so many different types of plastic bags being used, this seemed an excellent time to revive interest in recycling these materials in a useful way.

The trick is to cut 1 1/2 inch to 1 inch strips from a plastic bag in a spiral fashion, such as you would peel an apple. As you cut, tie the ends together to form longer strips and roll them into ball. Save all sorts of printed bags and you will have a fascinating multicolored "yarn" to use.

Dear Pat: My husband's 82-year-old mother made all kinds of things from bread wrappers and here is one of her hints. When the crochet hook Ramona Norman, business office manager for Carolina Telephone, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Grass Roots Garden Club held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. John A. Hecker.

She told of changes in the telephone industry and answered questions. She explained recent technological changes. "Competition," she said, "is good, but to be fair, the Federal Communications Commission had to adopt rules tying local charges to costs. Only with this approach can long distance rates come down and true competition exist. Without these changes, we cannot continue the universal affordable service our customers have come to expect." She was introduced by Mrs. Carl Crawford, program chairman.

Journey To Sobriety Begins With Slow Steps

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for printing the letter from "Optimistic," the female college student who said she felt as though she had really accomplished something that day even though all she did was go to the mailbox. She said, "I didn't have the guts to go to a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous, so I wrote and asked for some literature. I just read it, and I feel better already."

Abby, please print this message for "Optimistic": I, too, am a female. I'm now 43 and was in your shoes for eight long, wet, miserable years. I also sent for the Alcoholics Anonymous literature and prayed a lot. I even found the guts to attend a meeting about once a year, but I always arrived late, hid in a corner and left early, afraid of being recognized—then complained (to myself) that it was an "unfriendly" organization.

Last year I became so depressed that it was either treatment or suicide. Even in that state of mind I knew that treatment offered me more of a future.

I contacted the Jefferson Alcohol and Drug Abuse Center here in Louisville, and went into its 35-day treatment program last February. It's been slow. Twenty-five years of drinking takes its toll, mentally and physically, but today I know I am a survivor. Eleven months of sobriety is nothing to brag about, but I feel better now than I have felt in years.

Contact A.A. again and tell them you don't have the guts to attend a meeting yet, and they'll send someone to take you, or have someone meet you outside the meeting place. (It's always easier to walk into a large group of people with someone else.) Go early and hang around the coffee pot and just smile. You'll meet a lot of nice friendly people who have been in your shoes. Once you make the commitment to try to work the program, your life will improve.

I know this can be said better, but never more from the heart. I'm still not strong enough to go public, so if you print this, sign me ...

RECOVERING IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR RECOVERING: No one could have said it better. Bravo to you, my friend.

DEAR ABBY: College son dating pushy, possessive girl with a lot of hang-ups. What's best way to discourage this relationship?
CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Keep mouth shut until college son feels sufficiently pushed and possessed to discourage relationship himself. Given enough rope, pushy girl's hang-ups will become apparent.

DEAR ABBY: After 12 years of marriage, my husband and I realized that our sex life was practically dead, so we went to a marriage counselor.

The counselor (a woman) told us that a good way to put a little pep in our marriage would be to tell each other about our sexual fantasies.

Should I tell him about mine? He's not in any of them.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Sharing an occasional fantasy can be stimulating. But if you can't give your husband star billing, you'd better not mention the cast.

Finding A Way To Efficiency

The Cake, Too

Just how serious is the tobacco situation? If it weren't so serious, it would be funny. As it is, it's almost pathetic.

Growers have been going out of business in droves as production costs rise, marketing fees soar and importation of foreign-grown tobacco mushrooms. Now, while the industry is awaiting word on proposed limits on imports, R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. — a firm that once made the phrase "pride in tobacco" a household word — again is adding insult to injury.

For the last two years, Reynolds has stored imported leaf — more than a half-billion dollars worth — in warehouses in Forsyth and Durham counties that are bonded by U.S. Customs.

Reynolds contends it should be allowed a tax exemption on that foreign tobacco because Congress meant the warehouses to offer duty-free havens to stimulate activity by importers. The counties and cities involved say no, that Reynolds is seeking an unfair advantage over companies that buy domestically produced tobacco at a price higher than that paid for the foreign leaf.

It's not a piddling matter. Nearly $7 million in annual property taxes is at stake for three towns and the two counties. Reynolds has paid the tax under protest pending an appeal that has now reached the state Court of Appeals.

The argument is similar, at least ethically and practically, to that over tobacco imports per se. Members of North Carolina's congressional delegation and the American Farm Bureau recently went before the U.S. International Trade Commission seeking curbs on leaf imports. One after another, they cited statistics showing that foreign tobacco amounted to only 5 percent of the tobacco used in this country in 1975 but had climbed to 20 percent by 1984 and was still climbing.

Meanwhile, as the imports increase, U.S. companies are reducing their purchases of domestic leaf, throwing more and more expense on the price-support program designed to keep tobacco growers operating. That realization makes one do a slow burn when it considers the Reynolds case. Not only does it want to import foreign leaf at the expense of U.S. growers, but Reynolds also is asking that it be subsidized by local taxpayers.

That's a two-way avenue to destruction for everyone except Reynolds.

Solution

If you're not miffed over the story of goats on San Clemente Island, you will be.

There are an estimated 1,500 of the beasts at large on the island's limited grazing area. They are wild. If the herd is left alone it will extinguish itself by overgrazing and starvation.

If the herd is merely thinned out it will soon again reach a point of self-endangering population and require more thinning ... ad infinitum. They represent a no-win proposition.

There is an animal welfare group that goes forth to find a problem suited to its interests, then insists someone else solve the problem. Their way. Any thing else is heartless and inhuman, we're assured.

The membership's enthusiasm would be cooled if each goat on San Clemente were individually delivered to individual members and the feeding and care thereof were their responsibility. The goat dispersal and separation would solve everything. There would be no multiplication. The herd would all be mercifully (and thankfully) dead in one generation. It is a permanent solution.

Why didn't they think of that, too?

Reagan Points To His Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — A week before President Reagan delivers his inaugural address from the steps of the Capitol, the outlines of his second term are emerging and it may require a scorecard to identify the players and keep track of the shifting administration game plan.

Wholesale changes in the White House staff and three new Cabinet secretaries have been announced and more are certain to follow. All this coming only two months after the president said he'd be pleased to keep the same team through his second four years.

More tantalizing than the personnel shifts are the hints of how the president will try to deal with the two major issues of the day — the economy and East-West relations.

Consider the gamesmanship going on between the White House and Congress over who will bite the politically loaded Social Security bullet.

During his first presidential debate with Democrat Walter F. Mondale last October, Reagan said, "A president should never say never, but I'm going to violate that rule and say never. I will never stand for a reduction of the Social Security benefits to the people that are now getting them."

At his news conference last week, Reagan's recollection was of a position a shade less firm.

He recalled saying he would "re-sit" any reduction in benefits, a position somewhat short of "will never stand for a reduction."

And if Congress bit the bullet and adopted by "an overwhelming majority" a one-year freeze on Social Security cost of living increases, Reagan said he would have to look at it. Just to make certain Congress understood where the onus would be for such a step, the White House said the next day that the president was thinking in terms of a majority of at least two-thirds, the margin needed to override a veto.

Senate Republicans are leading the move to freeze the cost of living adjustment, often referred to by the acronym, COLA.

Freshman Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a strong supporter of RALEIGH — The founding fathers didn't have efficiency in mind when they conceived the idea for a legislature. If they'd been so concerned, they'd have never thrown in checks and balances to slow down the process.

But in recent legislative sessions the political merits of inefficiency have paled in contrast to the lunacy of how the system has bogged down. Even the Legislature's leaders recognize that they have to do something to put the Legislature's time to better use.

One idea has already been initiated. Instead of opening the 1985 session in early January, the Legislature won't come to town until early February.

Behind this idea is the feeling that the Legislature will always adjourn shortly after it passes a budget. Because of its revenue forecasting methods and the fact that the old budget runs out on June 30, there is a feeling that a budget will always be passed by July 1. Therefore, you can shorten the session by cutting time off its front end.

There are problems with that logic. First, in 1983, there wasn't a budget by July 1. Second, in 1983 and 1984, legislators did hang around fighting about other stuff after they'd passed a budget.

But there are other ideas too for cutting down on the time the Legislature flails around accomplishing nothing. Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says he wants time limits put on the introduction of bills.

Under rules for previous sessions there are cut-off dates only for the introduction of local bills and bills coming out of the executive departments. The Legislature being the undisciplined body that it is, however, usually suspends the rules every time somebody has to get a bill introduced. So there really wasn't a cut-off date.

Jordan says, "We want to pick a date, say mid-May, and after that you would not be able to introduce a bill of any kind." He also wants to tighten the rules for suspending that cut-off date so bills could be filed only in emergencies.

But even if Jordan gets the tougher rules, there'll be an easy way out. A legislator can file a dummy bill before the deadline and then if he needs to file a bill after deadline he simply does so in the form of an amendment to his dummy bill. The effect is the same. In the closing days of a session, the Legislature is still grappling with the price of city tags in 100 different hamlets.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, incoming House Rules Committee chairman, says he wants the cut-off date for another reason. "Sometimes you look at a bill and wonder why, when we've been down here all session, this has got to come in in the last eight days. Well, sometimes they plan it that way."

Lilley's talking about major bills introduced in the final days of a session. The strategy is to dump the bill on bogged down legislators who won't have a chance to read it before voting. It happened in 1984 with the massive proposed Administrative Procedures Act which did not pass.

Jordan says that with or without a cut-off date, major pieces of legislation will still end up being voted on during the last few days. Major bills tend to bog down in committee, he said. But, if the sponsors are forced to file it early, at least legislators will have time to read it before it comes to the floor.

Jordan and Lilley may have the best intentions with their ideas about cut-off dates. But when push comes to shove and a legislator needs to get a bill in after deadline, he'll have 169 colleagues all knowing that they someday might need the same kind of favor. Therefore, a grain of skepticism should accompany all talk of a more efficient Legislature.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I was so pleased I could read the letter from Michael Clendenen in the Sunday, Jan. 6, edition of The Daily Reflector. However, my pleasure was not derived from the contents of his letter. I read his letter in the Reflector during my Sunday morning ritual — the most enjoyable routine of my week.

I am a student at East Carolina University and I work as a retail salesperson. I am very busy with school and work six days a week. Sunday is the one day of the week I can sleep late — and I do.

On Sundays I wake at my leisure, relax over my Daily Reflector, and watch an old movie on television. These are four of the most relaxing enjoyable hours of my entire week. If Mr. Clendenen has his way, I will be going to work on Sunday so he can shop. I am grateful to have a job and would work on Sunday if required. Presently the company where I work is opened 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Isn't that sufficient time for your shopping, Mr. Clendenen?

My sentiments are shared by many Greenville residents. This was proven when a recent attempt to repeal Greenville's Blue Law failed. Also, the Supreme Court has already ruled on Clendenen's accusation that the Blue Law is a violation of the First Amendment. The Supreme Court decided that a uniform day of rest is constitutional. Due to popular religious beliefs, Sunday has historically been the day of rest; therefore, it is the logical choice.

I can remember when no grocery stores were opened on Sunday. Now, there is a variety of grocery stores, conveniences stores, and restaurants opened. I don't believe our Blue Law is an "unreasonable restriction." I am sure Blue Laws will not lead the way to communism.

I hope the majority of Greenville's citizens continue to support our existing Blue Laws. I am looking forward to this coming Sunday — no work for me! Mr. Clendenen, if you must buy a lawnmower or clothes on Sunday, I understand there are no Blue Laws in New Bern. Do your Sunday shopping there!

Pre-Talks Become A No-Story

WASHINGTON — So they marched to Geneva and they marched back again, Shultz and Gromyko and 400 troops from the American press, and what did it all amount to? The whole overblown business was what city editors know as a "no-story." It was a no-story to begin with.

The lords of our press knew better than to cultivate the bogus notion that Shultz and Gromyko would come down from the Swiss mountains bearing tablets on which we would find writ large: Salt III. When the meeting first was announced, the White House did its best to emphasize that these were to be only "talks about talks." Nothing could quiet the media hype. Now comes the quiet.

I have a modest proposal to advance; it may impress some observers as dovishness gone mad. But I have a few observations also, based on a good many years of Soviet-watching, and these will sound pretty hawkish. The observations first.

As a people we seem to learn nothing — virtually nothing at all — from the history of the Soviet Union over the past 50 or 60 years. I am not thinking for the moment of the history of purges and repression, of the denial of those civil and political rights that we regard as elementary.

I am not thinking of the cruelty, the boorishness, the depressing nature of the Russian society. I am not thinking even of the Soviets' savage invasion of Afghanistan. It is the history of treaties that ought to concern us now.

Two French observers, writing in The Wall Street Journal, recently boiled that history down to a paragraph: "Between 1925 and 1941, the U.S.S.R. signed 15 non-aggression or neutrality treaties. It broke, denounced or violated 11. Between 1950 and 1980, Moscow signed 18 alliances; it violated 15, among them the Helsinki agreements."

Is there anything in that bleak record to give us confidence that some elaborately detailed treaty on arms control would be honored? I see nothing at all. Any such treaty could emerge only after months or years of tedious haggling over the number, the size, the power and the deployment of both tactical and strategic nuclear arms. If so complex a treaty subsequently could win the votes of two-thirds of the U.S. Senate, we would then face a long period in which Russian and U.S. experts, like medieval theologians, argued interminably over the nature and the degree of supposed violations.

What is the object of all this palaver? What purpose are we trying finally to serve? The object is to reduce the fearful danger of a nuclear war that might well destroy civilized life on this planet. The purpose is to preserve a peaceful relationship between the superpowers.

Toward that end, a modest proposal. Suppose, to be supposing, that an agreement could be reached simply on existing numbers. As of Jan. 1, for example, suppose we could agree that the Soviets have 6,300 land-based missile warheads; we have 2,100.

They have 1,400 land-based missiles for delivery; we have 1,050. They are far behind us in submarine-launched warheads: They have 2,000 to our 5,600. But their total ballistic missile throw-weight is 11.8 million pounds to our 4.4 million pounds.

Proposal: Let us cut all these numbers in half, or by some other dramatic percentage. Let us create some international body, drawn from small and unaligned nations, to supervise the disarming and dismantling of their warheads and missiles, and ours. Drop the infernal junk to the bottom of the sea!

When the job were finished, the ratios would remain the same. Each superpower would retain sufficient destructive capacity to destroy its enemy absolutely, but at least the potential magnitude of worldwide fallout would have been reduced. And after a first cut of 50 percent had been absorbed, perhaps the remaining 50 percent could again be cut by half, and that half by half until we arrived at last at some irreducible minimum that a terrified world could live with.

Because of their enormous advantage in throw-weight and in warheads, the Soviet Union now holds nuclear superiority. proportionate reductions would leave that advantage intact, but so what? So long as each side retained sufficient destructive capacity to obliterate the other, the madness would continue — but it would not be quite as large a madness as before.

already had cut back its request.

If the president's first term is any guide to his second, a way might be found for some "revenue enhancement" which the administration will insist is not a tax increase and the Congress will take the initiative to cut back on the request for defense.

The recent movement toward resumption of arms negotiations created a far different mood than the days when Reagan was referring to the Soviet Union as an "evil empire."

But perhaps the most interesting hint of a change in Reagan's view was his comment that in any arms control agreement "absolute verification is impossible." In the past, conservative opposition to arms control agreements such as the SALT II treaty was based in part on lack of ironclad verification.

Was this an indication that in his second term, his chance to establish his place in history, Reagan is willing to soften that stand?

Belgians Delay OK Of Nuclear Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first test of allied unity following U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva, President Reagan has failed to win a commitment from a hesitant West European ally on moving forward this spring with the deployment of a new generation of nuclear missiles.

Following two hours of talks with President Reagan on Monday, Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens said his coalition government will wait until March to decide whether it will accept its share of the NATO missiles on Belgian soil.

Although the actual deployment was scheduled to begin in March, Martens told reporters "We will make a decision in March after consultation with our NATO allies."

The prime minister denied reports he had told President Reagan that he would delay the basing of the missiles until after the U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations are begun. "We never declared that," Martens said.

The first of Belgium's share of the 572 NATO medium-range missiles were scheduled to be deployed by mid-March. A delay of Belgium's decision to base the missiles signals a possible erosion in allied solidarity that the United States had not counted upon.

"You can deploy in two days if that's the problem. But that's not the problem. The problem is what the timetable will be," Martens told reporters at a briefing Monday night.

Martens said that it was a misunderstanding to think that Belgium is committed to begin deployment in March. "There is no automatism," he said, adding that he had made the situation plain to Reagan.

Martens would not say if Reagan had shared the "misunderstanding."

"I explained it very clearly - in English," he said.

Reagan reportedly told Martens a united NATO is needed to strengthen America's hand in the upcoming U.S.-Soviet arms talks and that the United States expects Belgium will keep its promise to uphold the 1979 NATO agreement to put a new generation of missiles in Western Europe.

The new weapons are part of an arsenal being deployed in five NATO countries to counter Soviet medium-range SS-20s aimed at Western Europe. The alliance de-cidied to go ahead with basing the weapons unless the superpowers reached an arms control settlement.

Earlier this month, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to resume arms talks.

The issue has become a political hot potato in Belgium with some arguing that the deployment should be delayed to await the outcome of the talks. Because Martens faces new elections by December, he has been urged to delay the basing decision until then in order to help his re-election chances.

When asked whether Belgium's failure to deploy on schedule would hurt U.S. negotiations with Soviets, a senior Reagan administration official replied: "Of course it would."

Wilfried Nartus, the political counselor of the Belgian Embassy in Washington, said the Belgian government had made "no decision to delay deployment."

He said Belgian officials were looking at "different timetables" and that their share of the missiles might be deployed after March. That position was laid out in Martens' session with Reagan, Nartus said.

The Belgians intend to hold to their agreement to complete the basing by 1987, Nartus said.

In his public departure statement, Martens sidestepped the question of whether his country would go ahead with the March deployment or whether it would accept the advice of his own political party and delay a final decision on basing the new weapons.

"I confirmed our attachment to the (NATO) dual-track decision, which is an expression of firmness in defense and of openness for dialogue," Martens said.

Reagan, meanwhile, noted in his statement that the United States recognizes "the progress that we're now enjoying in arms control discussions is linked to the alliance's commitment to modernize our defenses and the steps we've taken to maintain a balance of nuclear forces in Europe."

Despite the lack of a firm Belgian commitment, the senior U.S. official, speaking on condition he not be identified by name, said the United States was "very reassured" after the talks and confident Belgium will meet its NATO responsibilities.

"The president very clearly stated that alliance solidarity is essential as the United States returns to the negotiating table with the Soviet Union," the official said.

The prime minister himself, as well as his foreign minister and the Belgian government, has supported NATO decision, the official said. But elements within his own Flemish Social Christian Party as well as opposition parties have made it a formidable issue for Martens to resolve.

Soviet Bloc Leaders Postpone Meeting

MOSCOW (AP) — A meeting of Soviet bloc leaders scheduled for this week in Bulgaria has been postponed, fueling speculation about the health of Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko.

The 73-year-old Chernenko, who is believed to suffer from emphysema, was to have presided over the Warsaw Pact meeting in Sofia. The visit to the Bulgarian capital would have been his first trip abroad since becoming Soviet leader in February 1984.

The surprise announcement of the postponement was made by the official Soviet news agency Tass and carried in Moscow newspapers today. It said: "By mutual agreement, the regular meeting of the political consultative committee of Warsaw Treaty member states, scheduled for mid-January 1985, has been postponed till a later date which is to be agreed."

No further explanation was given. Western diplomats in Moscow had expected the Warsaw Pact leaders to review last week's U.S.-Soviet meeting in Geneva and discuss the Soviet stand in planned arms control talks with the United States. Chernenko, who during recent speeches has appeared to have breathing difficulties, was last seen in public Dec. 27 in a television broadcast showing him presenting awards to Soviet writers. On Dec. 22, he appeared to have difficulty walking while viewing the body of Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov.

Chernenko did not attend Ustinov's funeral in Red Square on Dec. 24, a day of bitter sub-zero cold.

U.S. General Tours China

PEKING (AP) — U.S. Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., the first chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to visit Communist China, began a tour of People's Liberation Army bases today after three days of talks in Peking.

After Vessey's delegation left for the northeast city and regional army command of Shenyang, a U.S. Embassy statement said his Peking negotiations with military leaders and Premier Zhao Ziyang "were conducted in a friendly atmosphere of mutual respect and were informative and productive."

It added: "The visit laid a solid foundation for friendly relations and cooperation between the armed forces of the two countries, including future exchanges of visits."

Vessey spent more than three hours with his Chinese counterpart, Chief of General Staff Yang Dezhi. Details of their talks were not disclosed and Vessey's aides canceled a news briefing without explanation.

The delegation was apparently embarrassed by weekend leaks from the Pentagon which said tentative agreement was reached on the sale of anti-submarine equipment to the Chinese navy. If confirmed, it would be the first sale of U.S. weapons to China.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said Monday that China and the United States have held talks on the equipment but no contracts have been signed. Kalb said Assistant Secretary of the Navy Melvyn Paisley will lead a U.S. delegation to China later this month to continue the negotiations.

In a banquet toast Monday, Vessey noted: "As Premier Zhao said today, it is important that our military contacts be integrated with our military technology cooperation."

Officials with Vessey said his talks were likely to cover plans for courtesy visits by three U.S. Navy warships to Shanghai this spring, the first such visits in 36 years.

Vessey will see army, air force and naval units of the People's Liberation Army in Shenyang, Hangzhou, Shanghai and Canton before leaving for home on Saturday.

Rebel Leader Blames French

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (AP) — The leader of the pro-independence movement in this French island territory today accused French authorities of involvement in the slaying of his military chief.

Jean-Marie Tjibaou, head of the Kanak Socialist National Liberation Front, said the group's defense chief, Eloi Machoro, was "murdered with the agreement of" French government envoy Edgard Pisani and gendarmerie commander Gen. Jean Deibero.

Machoro was killed along with his aide Marcel Nonnaro in what police described as a shootout last Saturday. He was the security chief of the provisional government declared by the Kanak front late last year after it boycotted territorial elections in the Pacific island chain.

The native Kanak, or Melanesian, population is about 40 percent of New Caledonia's population of about 140,000, and the rest are European, Polynesian and Asian immigrants. The settlers generally oppose the Kanak demand for independence from France.

Tjibaou issued a seven-page statement demanding a parliamentary inquiry and judicial proceedings against "those who gave the order to fire, and those who carry the responsibility."

On Monday, French territorial authorities charged 37 Melanesians with rebellion. They were arrested in the confrontation in which Machoro was killed.

Conviction on the charge of involvement in a "rebellion committed by more than 20 armed people" could lead to a sentence of 10 to 20 years in prison.

Machoro was buried today near the town of Thio in a ceremony attended by about 600 people and an armed honor guard.

Late Monday, four fishing boats were dynamited at a nearby port. The boats were owned by Thio's European, rightwing mayor and had been "requisitioned" by the independence movement since last November.

A small boat was seen leaving the harbor shortly before the explosions, police sources said.

Bomb Damages U.S. Building

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — An extreme leftist group claimed responsibility for a car bomb explosion today that heavily damaged a U.S. Army support building less than a mile from NATO headquarters.

Police said two U.S. military police guards were slightly injured by flying glass from the bombing, the eighth in Belgium in four months.

In a communique received by the Brussels daily Le Soir, the Cellules Communistes Combattantes (Fighting Communist Cells) linked itself a West Germany terrorist group and warned of further actions that could "wound or kill Yankee military and their accomplices."

The 3,300-word French-language statement said: "We dedicate our attack to the fighters of the (West German terrorist group) Red Army Faction who struggle today, by means of a collective hunger strike, against the detention-extermination conditions in special jails" in West Germany.

In recent months, the two groups have claimed responsibility for a series of bomb attacks against NATO-related targets in Belgium and West Germany. These attacks caused significant property damage but no serious injuries.

Police said today's car bomb exploded at 3:30 a.m. inside a small passenger car parked in front of the three-story building, on the eastern edge of Brussels. The blast blew out all the windows in the building, wrecked its entrance hall and shattered windows in a 300-foot radius.

British Move To Restore Sagging Pound

LONDON (AP) — The sagging British pound rose slightly today following Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's decision to raise interest rates, but friends and foes of her government said the move was "too little, too late."

Alarmed when the pound hit an all-time low of $1.10 in Hong Kong on Monday, Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative government decided to reactivate the minimum lending rate it had suspended in August 1981 as part of its free market doctrine.

The British currency briefly rebounded to $1.13, then dropped to $1.125 in New York on Monday afternoon.

This morning, it opened in Hong Kong at $1.1187, up slightly from Monday's close of $1.1135. When trading opened in London, the pound advanced to about $1.12.

"We are gaining ground gradually, not only against the dollar but against other currencies as well," said Brian Mitchell, chief currency trader at London's National Westminster Bank.

Said another trader, "So far today, sterling is looking fairly comfortable."

But traders in Hong Kong said the British action appeared to have had little impact.

"The general feeling here is that the British action was too little, and too late," said Michael Phua, a vice president of the Bank of America in Hong Kong.

A year ago, the pound was quoted at $1.4165. Five years ago it was $2.40.

Reactivating the minimum lending rate allows the Bank of England to override the money markets' interest rate structure and hike the cost of borrowing.

Higher British interest rates make sterling holdings more attractive to investors but harm industrial activity by making it more costly to borrow. The move sent prices on the London stock market tumbling.

Mrs. Thatcher's government has blamed the crisis on falling oil prices, high U.S. interest rates and lack of confidence brought on by critics demanding heavier expenditures to create jobs.

But British newspapers harshly criticized her government for the crisis, with pro-government newspapers aiming their ire at her chancellor of the exchequer, or treasury secretary, Nigel Lawson.

The Daily Mail, normally one of Mrs. Thatcher's keenest supporters, condemned the move under a front page headline reading: "Pathetic — The Case Against Lawson: Too Little, Too Late And Too Lackluster."

The Daily Express, another tabloid that normally supports the Conservatives, wrote: "Nigel Lawson has suffered a nasty and embarrassing fall."

The independent London Times said: "The government is wholly to blame ... and ... the Prime Minister and the Chancellor (of the Exchequer, Nigel Lawson) must take the lion's share. The foundation stone of a strong currency — any currency — is confidence. It is a basic, gut confidence in this government which is lacking and has been lacking fundamentally since the 1983 election and in particular since last year's budget."

The pound has fallen 15 percent against the powerful dollar in just four months. Reactivation of minimum lending rate pushed the basic interest rate to 12 percent, which translates into about 13 percent for preferred borrowers and 14 percent or more for others. The rate had already risen 1 percent on Friday.

The Daily Mirror, which supports the opposition Labor Party, wrote: "Mrs. Thatcher and Mr. Lawson are the culprits. Both repeatedly boast of their firmness. Yet, in this crisis, both have been weak and indecisive."

Mrs. Thatcher's government came to power in 1979 pledged to make the fight against inflation its top priority and has lowered it from over 80 percent four years ago to 4.9 percent now.

But her tight-money policies have helped push unemployment to 3.2 million or 13.4 percent and, since her re-election in 1983, she has faced growing demands to relax the fight on inflation and increase government spending to ease unemployment.

The new interest rate signaled a probable hike in mortgage rates at a time when the government is encouraging more citizens to buy homes.

Lawson indicated to the House of Commons on Monday that tax cuts expected in the government's annual budget on March 19 could be at risk because of the sterling crisis. Press reports before the crisis said the tax cuts might total 1.5 billion pounds.

Lawson was lambasted by Labor members in Commons. Said Labor's economics spokesman, Roy Hattersley: "Government policy is now a shambles ... Its inadequacies have been emphasized by incompetence and vacillation over the past week."

Inaugural Items Await Spectators

WASHINGTON (AP) — They will be there from red seats or be seen from the sky when Ronald Reagan's second White House inauguration is held on Jan. 21. But they will not be there for more than $2 million on items from the 50th anniversary of the inaugural ceremony.

The 50th anniversary commemorative is sponsored by the Presidential Inaugural Committee, ranging from a $100,000 "soaring eagle" to a $1,000 "bisque elephant" to a $5 commemorative.

"Some things are very nice," says Douglas Blaser, director of the Presidential Inaugural Committee.

"The commemorative will be sold in Washington area department stores, but it will be bought from a dealer that will be needed out

There are a lot of collectors out there who don't care who is being inaugurated, but they know these items have historical value and will only be available for a short time," Ms. Collins said.

"The significance of the 50th inaugural has been an asset," said Doug Blaser, the inaugural committee's director of marketing.

"There's a certain magic in that." The commemorative are expected to bring in up to $2.5 million of the $10 million budgeted for the inaugural. There is a standard 50 percent markup on the items, says Blaser, who has also applied standard marketing techniques to the job he took shortly after the election.

Before he decided on the products, Blaser said, he had to define his buyers. There are basically six. The "collector," Blaser said, is expected to buy the most expensive items — a Boehm Studios "soaring eagle" at $950, the "Nancy Reagan rose" at $495 and a "bisque elephant" for $475.

Only 500 eagles and elephants will be produced. There will be 1,200 roses. All the Boehm porcelains are expected to sell out.

Collectors are also expected to go for inaugural dinner plates at $65 each, a platter for $35, and numbered medallions ranging in price from a half-ounce gold at $550 to a bronze for $25.

The plates and medallions are also expected to appeal to another category of buyer, the "historian," Blaser said.

Historians are the target of commemorative stamps cancelled with the inauguration date for $29, and the $50 two-volume set of books. "A New Beginning" contains photographs from Reagan's first four years in office. Another volume containing photographs from the inaugural week won't be out until March.

Catholic Bishops Set Visit To Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops, concerned about the health of their church in Communist Cuba, will visit that nation next week for the first time since Fidel Castro came to power in 1959.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops estimates that about 4 million of Cuba's 10 million people are Catholics. But officials of the U.S. bishops' group say much is unknown about religious freedom in Cuba.

Cuban Catholic leaders are making arrangements for the trip, and there is no indication at this point whether the American bishops will meet with Castro or other government officials in addition to meeting with Catholics, William Ryan, a spokesman for the U.S. bishops' group, said Monday.

Leading the Jan. 21-25 trip will be Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, president of the conference, and Archbishops Patrick F. Flores of San Antonio and Bernard F. Law of Boston. Also attending will be Monsignor Daniel F. Hoye, the general secretary of the conference, and the Rev. David Gallivan of the group's Latin America secretariat.

U.S. bishops, becoming more active in investigating and speaking out on international affairs, made official visits last year to Ireland, Mexico, Nicaragua and South Africa after making five visits in 1983 to Central American countries.

The bishops' group has occasionally criticized U.S. involvement in Latin American affairs. However, Malone said last month that U.S. church leaders must also "stand with the bishops of Nicaragua" who have aimed their own criticism at the Sandinista Nicaraguan government opposed by the U.S. government.

Malone did not retract the bishops' earlier comments on U.S. involvement, but he said his visit to Managua's Archbishop Miguel Obando y Bravo left him sympathetic to the Nicaraguan church leaders' complaints of Sandinista harassment.

The U.S. conference's announcement said the American bishops were invited by Cuban church leaders including Archbishop Jaime Ortega of Havana and the president of Cuba's bishops conference, Bishop Adolfo Rodriguez.

"The bishops of Cuba have long expressed their interest in such a visit and are determining the NCCB delegation's agenda," said the announcement.

Cuba, after 26 years of Castro's rule, has seven Roman Catholic bishops, about 200 priests and about 300 women in religious orders, the U.S. conference estimates.

The Reagan administration has tried to discourage American tourists from traveling to Cuba. However, the government has not questioned such official visits as the bishops would be making.

Discovery Of Starspots Could Help Sun Studies

PAUL RAEBURN Science Editor

The discovery that certain quiet stars have huge "starspots" could help scientists understand the origin of sunspots, which can affect communications on Earth, a study says.

The starspots are regions of intense magnetic field, much larger than surrounding areas. The discovery could help astronomers determine how the sun's magnetic field leads to solar flares and other disturbances, said Mark Giampapa, who made the new discovery.

The study suggests that the origin of those magnetic fields is important, because this magnetic field related activity has a direct effect on us on Earth," Giampapa said.

There are believed to be climate effects, there are communications effects, and there are effects on spacecraft," he said.

He was scheduled to present his findings today at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society. Giampapa is an astronomer with the National Solar Observatory at Kitt Peak National Observatory near Tucson.

Giampapa and astronomers have believed for more than a decade that some of the class of stars called M dwarfs have intense bursts of gases that erupt from their surfaces.

It was not until 1984, however, that the existence of starspots associated with those flares became widely accepted, he said.

M dwarfs are by far the most common kind of star in the Milky Way, making up 90 percent of the galaxy's population, Giampapa said.

In his new study, Giampapa observed five quiet M dwarfs and found that even though they did not produce frequent flares their starspot activity was 10 to 30 times that of sunspots.

At the peak of sunspot activity, which occurs every 22 years, about 1 percent of the sun is covered with sunspots, Giampapa said. The sun is a Type G star.

The quiet M dwarfs had starspots over between 10 percent and 30 percent of their surfaces.

"It wasn't expected, because these stars are quiet. They don't flare, and they rotate slowly," Giampapa said.

The intense magnetic fields in sunspots and starspots are thought to be caused, in part, by the rotation of the sun or star, Giampapa said.

The new observations show that the intensity of the fields obviously depends on many other factors.

The explanation for sunspots, starspots and areas of intermediate magnetic field called plage is referred to as dynamo theory, Giampapa said.

Giampapa determined the extent of the starspots by measuring a dip in energy of a certain frequency. He calculated that the greater the dip, the more of the star would be covered by starspots.

"You can't see the surface of a star," he said. "It's not like the sun where you can count up the spots."

Sixteen Leaders of Arizona Sanctuary Movement Indicted As Alien Smugglers

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer
The indictment of 16 sanctuary movement leaders reflects the government's refusal to acknowledge the "human tragedy" of bloodshed in Central America and will probably attract more people to the effort to shelter refugees, activists said.

The indictments, returned Thursday but kept secret until Monday so search warrants could be issued, stemmed from a 10-month investigation of the sanctuary movement, or "underground railroad," said U.S. Attorney A. Melvin McDonald.

McDonald said 43 illegal aliens were arrested in Arizona. Seven others were arrested in Seattle, three in Philadelphia and two in Rochester, N.Y., officials in those cities said. They were all released, officials said.

The nationwide church-sponsored sanctuary movement, which began in Tucson, Ariz., has worked to bring refugees, mainly from El Salvador and Guatemala, into this country.

Congressman Says Penalties Possible In Tax Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The thousands of senior citizens could be hit with penalties on top of the income taxes they must pay on their Social Security benefits for the first time, a congressman says.

Many retirees who no longer have taxes withheld on the job make quarterly payments to the IRS of their estimated tax bill. If at year's end it turns out they paid less than 90 percent of the taxes they wind up owing, the IRS demands a penalty payment on the difference, IRS spokesman Ernie Acosta said Monday.

The penalty rate was 11 percent for amounts owed in 1984 and it rose to 13 percent on the first of the year, he added.

These actions are a reflection of the administration's unwillingness to acknowledge and address the human tragedies of the bloodshed in Central America, which is compounded by the U.S. involvement there," said Douglas Brian, president and staff executive for Sanctuary Issues in New York.

Terrapins Stun Duke

By The Associated Press
Previously unbeaten and second-ranked Duke fell to Maryland in overtime while Georgia Tech got back on the winning track with a victory over North Carolina-Charlotte in Atlantic Coast Conference college basketball.

Jeff Adkins was the key in the Terrapins victory and the Blue Devils first defeat of the season. Adkins, who has started in just one of Maryland's last 10 games, came off the bench firing and stayed around for 39 minutes to key a 78-76 overtime victory for the Terps Monday night. Duke's defeat leaves North Carolina as the only unbeaten ACC team in league play.

In Charlotte Monday, Georgia Tech defeated UNC-C 86-68. No ACC teams play tonight. "Adkins did a great job," said Maryland coach Lefty Driesell after the senior guard scored 16 points and handed off eight assists. "He played himself into the starting line-up again. His experience showed."

Shooting 5-for-7 from the floor in the first half while his teammates were going 7-for-24, Adkins kept the Terps from total disaster as the Blue Devils took a 40-26 lead in the game played before a sellout of 14,500.

After a chewing out at halftime, the Terps rallied behind Len Bias and Adrian Branch to overcome a 15-point second half deficit.

Branch and Bias, the top two scorers in the ACC, combined for 23 points in the second half and then added four apiece in overtime.

Bias led with 24, but it was a baseline jumper by Branch which tied the regulation game at 68-68 with three seconds left and his two free throws with eight seconds remaining in overtime clinched the triumph.

"At the half," Driesell confessed, "I screamed that they weren't playing well, not like Maryland players can. I broke two clipboards, kicked the wall and sent them back out on the court early."

Johnny Dawkins led Duke with 30 points, including the final basket with about two seconds left.

"It will really improve our confidence by beating the No. 2 team in the country when they were undefeated," said Driesell.

But Krzyzewski tried to downplay the loss, saying: "We've never made a big thing about rankings or being undefeated. We're still trying to develop as a team. We have a lot of development to go."

Duke is 12-1 and Maryland, which has lost four games by margins of four points or less, is 12-4. Both are 2-1 in ACC play.

Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets hoped their victory over UNC-C was a turning point, but it was a lesson in patience for the 49ers.

John Salley and Mark Price each scored 23 points to break a two-game losing streak and raise 17th-ranked Georgia Tech's record to 11-3.

"We needed to win," said Yellow Jackets coach Bobby Cremins. "We've been struggling. UNC-Charlotte fought hard and they hung in there."

"Now's a good time to catch us," Cremins said, however, noting that 6-foot-11 senior center Yvon Joseph would be out until at least Jan. 17 to visit his seriously ill mother in Haiti.

UNC-C Coach Hal Wissel said Tech's greater experience and height were major factors in the 49ers' loss.

"I just think we lost our patience," he added. "In contrast, they were very patient and they worked the ball inside to Salley. They did a good job against our press."

After trailing 44-37 at the intermission, the 49ers, 4-11, cut the gap to 53-48 with 15:23 left on a steal and layup by Keith Williams. Three times after that the 49ers went downcourt with a chance to get closer, only to commit turnovers each time.

The Yellow Jackets then outscored the 49ers 24-11 over an 11-minute span to take an 18-point lead at 79-61 with 3:53 left. The 49ers never came closer than 13 points after that.

Clinton Hinton led the 49ers with 22 points and Leroy Smith added 16 and grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds. Williams had 12 and Scott Fitzgibbons added 10.

VCU Tops J. Madison

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Judging from the comments of Virginia Commonwealth Coach J.D. Barnett, it might be difficult to tell that his 16th-ranked Rams had actually won the game.

"You have to play hard and execute to win. We struggled against a team that didn't have nearly as good a record that we did," Barnett said Monday night after the Rams registered a 65-52 non-conference win over James Madison's Dukes.

"We were at home, we had the experience, but those are all excuses," Barnett added. "They out-rebounded us, which showed they played with more intensity."

The Rams, behind Rolando Lamb and Calvin Duncan, put together key scoring spurts in each half en route to their eleventh win in 12 outings.

VCU scored 12 straight points over a 5:13 period of the first half, going from a 16-10 deficit to a 22-16 lead. Duncan scored 4 points in the run.

The 6-point Madison lead was its largest of the game and the Dukes never led after VCU took an 18-16 lead on Duncan's bucket with 6:58 left before intermission.

In the second half, the Dukes, 6-7, closed the gap to 44-42 with 10:02 remaining on George Kingland's 10-foot jumper. The Rams then ran off 14 unanswered points over the next 6 minutes, with Lamb scoring eight, and took a 58-42 with 4:31 left.

The lead was never less than 12 from that point on.

"If I had to single out one player who played hard it would be Calvin Duncan," said Barnett. "He played about as well as one player can. He came to play. I wish he had brought

Tulsa Makes First Show In AP's Top 20 Rankings

By OWEN CANFIELD
Associated Press Writer

University of Tulsa basketball coach Nolan Richardson says he has believed for some time that his club belongs in the Top Twenty. And having to wait a while before seeing it happen is something he has come to expect.

"Last year I think we were 14-0 before we got into the Top Twenty," said Richardson. "I like to say our team is like Avis — we try harder, but the Hertz's are always there ahead of us. There are other teams there that are always in the Top 20."

Tulsa is ranked No. 20 this week in the Associated Press' college basketball poll which was announced Monday. And, like last year, the Golden Hurricane had to wait a while — they played their 14th game Monday night, a 71-61 victory over Oral Roberts University. Tulsa is now 12-2.

Georgetown, a 52-50 winner in overtime Saturday against Villanova, remained the solid choice for the top spot in the poll. The Hoyas, 15-0, received 61 of 62 first-place votes and 1,239 points in the balloting of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

"I was disappointed," Barnett said. "We were complacent. We worked hard to get into the polls and we should work hard to stay there."

Duncan echoed some of the concerns of his coach about the team's ranking.

"It's important we stay up in there," said the senior guard. "We can't afford to sit down."

Duncan led the Rams with 19 points, 15 in the first half in which he hit 7 of 8 field goal attempts. Duncan also had 5 assists and 3 steals. Lamb added 14 points, 10 in the second half, and dished out 9 assists and had 3 steals.

Kingland led the Dukes with 13 points and Robert Griffin added 10, all in the second half.

"They beat us with the 20-footers," said James Madison Coach Lou Campanelli. "They hit the shots when they had to."

Duke received the other first-place vote and 1,174 points to remain in second place. A few hours after the poll was announced, the Blue Devils were knocked from the unbeaten ranks, a 78-76 loser to Maryland in overtime, leaving Georgetown as the only ranked club with an unblemished record. Southern Methodist, which defeated North Carolina 84-82 on Sunday, moved from fourth to third with 1,075 points. St. John's dropped to fourth with 1,062, and Memphis State was fifth with 950.

Rounding out the Top Ten were North Carolina, which was fifth last week, followed by Syracuse, Indiana, Kansas and DePaul.

Illinois was 15th last week but jumped to 11th after victories over Michigan and Michigan State. Louisiana Tech was 12th, followed by Oklahoma, Oregon State, Boston College, Virginia Commonwealth, Georgia Tech, Villanova, Michigan State and Tulsa.

Oregon State made the biggest jump in the poll, improving six places from last week after victories over Oregon and Kansas State.

"I think we're a Top 20 team and a Top 20 program," Richardson said of his Tulsa team, which finished No. 12 in the final poll last season. "But year in and year out we've got to prove ourselves."

Richardson is in his fifth season at Tulsa, and in the four previous years he has directed the Golden Hurricane to postseason tournaments. This year he had to rebuild after losing two of his top players — Bruce Vanley and Ricky Ross — from last year's 27-4 club, but Tulsa has hardly missed a beat.

"Sometimes you get good athletes and sometimes you get good players," he said. "We go for the good athletes, and hope to make them into good players that fit our system."

He's got one in guard Steve Harris, a 6-5 senior who is averaging 22.3 points per game. He scored 31 against Oral Roberts, and had 35 last week in a victory over then-No. 8 Oklahoma.

Foster Paces ECU Women By Spiders

RICHMOND, Va. — Loraine Foster, who sat out the 1983-84 season with a knee injury, scored a career-high 29 points in leading East Carolina's Lady Pirates to a 77-61 ECAC-South victory over Richmond last night.

The victory was the second straight in the conference for the Lady Pirates, now atop the league with a 2-0 record. They downed William & Mary on Saturday night, also on the road.

This is the first year that the league is playing a full double-round robin schedule for the women. Last year, the Lady Pirates won the league's first post-season tournament.

East Carolina pressed the Lady Spiders early, and moved into the lead during the opening stages of the game, never to trail again. After establishing a lead, the Pirates dropped back into a 3-2 zone and stayed with it the rest of the way.

During the first half, the Lady Pirates shot the eyes out of the basket, hitting 63 percent of their shots. They finished with a 51 percentage on the evening.

By halftime, the Lady Pirates had worked up a 45-36 lead, and they coasted home through the final quarter. East Carolina outrebounded the Lady Spiders, 39-34, led by Monique Pompili and Lisa Squirewell, each with nine. Karen Elsner led Richmond with 11.

Elsner, the league's leading scorer, was held to 19 points on five of eight field goals and nine of 11 free throws. Jackie Holle added 14 while Laurie Governer had 11.

East Carolina's scoring also saw Sylvia Bragg score 15 and Anita Anderson hit 12.

The win boosts the Lady Pirates to 6-8 overall, and gives them their fourth straight victory.

The Pirates continue ECAC-South play on Saturday, opening their home campaign against George Mason. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Offense Key To Super Bowl

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Coach Bill Walsh of San Francisco believes that, with offenses like his own 49ers' and Miami's, it'll take about four touchdowns to win the Super Bowl.

Don Shula, his counterpart with the Dolphins, doesn't go in for such numbers games. And Walsh's own defense thinks more of itself than to surrender even one point to Miami quarterback Dan Marino before Sunday's kickoff.

"We're not conceding anything," linebacker Keena Turner said Monday as the weeklong blitz of national Super Bowl attention began mushrooming in and around San Francisco.

Walsh's 49ers, behind the quarterbacking of Joe Montana, posted a 15-1 National Conference record during the season. They're a four-point favorite over the Dolphins, 14-2 in the AFC under the record-setting passing of Marino.

"It could be a game in which 24 to 28 points will win it. I think that many points would be needed to win it," Walsh said.

When the Dolphins' flight from Miami arrived Monday night, Shula told a news conference in neighboring Oakland. "I don't get into those kinds of assessments. I'm not the kind of coach that goes out and tells my football team, 'OK, if we score three touchdowns and hold them to two touchdowns and a field goal, we're gonna win.'"

Walsh said he believes San Francisco is capable of playing as good a defense as the Dolphins have seen this season, "but I certainly don't think we can shut anybody out."

"The guys on our defense feel differently," safety Dwight Hicks said. Then he hedged a bit. "I don't say we can shut 'em down completely. They've got a very good offense — very sophisticated, much like our own."

"So we're just going to try and keep the gains to a minimum, try and keep the big plays to a minimum, and hopefully we'll keep the score to a minimum."

Walsh said he wasn't conceding points so much as yards "because they throw the ball so much. The hope is that as they get toward the goal line, they'll be forced into field goals." Then, with a shrug of resignation, the San Francisco coach added: "That's pretty hollow talk because generally every time they get near the goal line, Marino throws a touchdown pass."

He threw 48 of them during the season, 12 more than the previous National Football League record, and seven in the playoffs including a record four (three of them bombs of 40, 41 and 36 yards) in the AFC title game against Pittsburgh.

"He's going to have to work for everything he gets," Turner said. "You can't go into a game conceding anything as a defense. You do and you're defeating your whole purpose."

"For a defense, you'd much rather have an offense working for 75 yards — working, working, working for everything they get, and looking for

Paris 'Trims Down' To Lead 49ers Linemen

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Bubba Paris, by his own admission, came into the National Football League overweight and naive.

"I didn't give myself a chance to be as good as I should be because I weighed too much, between 310 and 316 pounds. I'll never make that mistake again," the weight-conscious, 295-pound offensive tackle of the San Francisco 49ers said Monday.

"I haven't gained an ounce this season," he said Monday.

"But I haven't lost an ounce, either. The time to lose weight is in the off-season," added the lineman whose 1985 off-season has been shortened by the 49ers' success, the 17 victories which have carried them to the Super Bowl XIX showdown with the Miami Dolphins on Sunday at Stanford Stadium.

Paris is coming off an excellent performance, against the Chicago Bears' defensive end Richard Dent in the National Conference title game. Dent led the NFC in sacks this season, but he was shut out in his efforts to reach quarterback Joe Montana and the Bears were shut out 23-0 by the 49ers.

"My goal is to be the best left tackle there is. Slowly and surely, I think I'm accomplishing the goals I've set for myself," Paris said.

But, he added, the opposition's sack statistics don't always reflect the caliber of 49er blocking.

"Joe can move out and get away when we miss blocks. He can make us look good even we haven't done so good," Paris said.

Paris, who played on a Rose Bowl champion team at Michigan, was the top draft choice of the 49ers, who had just won their first Super Bowl title, in 1982. He was named the starting left tackle in training camp, displacing journeyman Dan Audick.

Then Paris' NFL education began.

"I was never in awe of anybody as a rookie, but that put me in a position of making veteran players want to intimidate me. I'll never forget what Lyle Alzado did to me in an exhibition game," he said. "He grabbed me when there was no need to."

"I learned a lesson — that there really are some guys in this game that are dirty. He's a great guy off the field, but he plays dirty."

"I told him, 'Lyle Alzado, I've been watching you play since I was a little boy, and now I find out what you're really like. I think that got to him, because he didn't do anything like that the rest of the game.'"

The confrontation with Alzado, defensive end with the Los Angeles Raiders, came in the first pre-season game of 1982. Paris never reached the 1982 regular season, going down with a knee injury.

His off-season schedule included some successful dieting, dropping him to 285, as well as rehabilitation for the knee. He again earned a starting job and kept it throughout the 1983 season.

The 49ers' other starting offensive linemen all have been starters at least seven years including the Super Bowl season of 1981.

"They had set a championship pace and that made it easier for me to fit in and follow," Paris said.

No Butterflies For The Dolphins

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Aboard a charter flight for Oakland six days before Super Bowl XIX there were no signs of the butterflies the Miami Dolphins are certain to feel by week's end.

"It's still early," cornerback William Judson said. "Those come later."

To say the AFC champions were "loose" during a 5½-hour trip Monday to San Francisco would be an understatement.

Players dined on steak and lobster and roamed about a spacious, slightly more than one-quarter full 400-seat 747 jetliner, joking with one another, playing cards and listening to music.

Others relaxed and watched an in-flight movie while some talked about Sunday's Super Bowl matchup with the NFC champion San Francisco 49ers.

"I think everybody is relaxed and looking forward to this week," Judson said. "It's not that we're taking San Francisco lightly because they're the best team that we're going to play all season."

"We're so much more confident than we were two years ago, though," Judson said. "We've prepared well and believe we can win."

Two years ago, the Dolphins lost to the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XVII in Pasadena, Calif. The team has been driven by the desire to return to the National Football League's championship game ever since.

"This is what it's all about," Coach Don Shula said. "This is what you work so hard for all year long."

About 1,000 well-wishers gave the team a rousing send-off from Miami International Airport, stopping players for autographs and shouting words of encouragement.

Shula, nearing the boarding gate, was greeted by a burst of applause rivaled only by that extended to quarterback Dan Marino moments later.

"What a fantastic sendoff we got at the airport," said Shula, preparing for a record sixth Super Bowl and his fifth with the Dolphins. "I thought there would only be a sprinkling of people out there."

Several hundred fans also were on hand when the team arrived at the Hyatt Regency Oakland Monday night. The club will work out at the nearby Oakland Coliseum in preparation for Sunday's game at Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto.

Bethel Pounds Wellcome Five

The Bethel boys team pounded Wellcome Middle School 53-29, while the Wellcome girls took a 32-17 victory Monday in junior high basketball action.

Marcus Hines led the Bethel boys with 14 points, while Billy Hardison added 12 and William Morning 10. Jeff Bradley paced Wellcome with 10.

Gwen Pilgreen led the Bethel girls with 12 points, and Kiesha Pilgreen chipped in 11.

The Bethel boys are now 2-0, while the girls are 1-1. Wellcome's girls are 2-0, with the boys team 1-1.

Shula sent the squad through an 1-hour, 40-minute workout in Miami before leaving Monday.

Two years ago, the Dolphins had only six days to prepare for their Super Bowl date with the Redskins because the players strike of 1982 forced the NFL to eliminate the extra week between the AFC and NFC championship games and the Super Bowl.

This time, the club practiced five days at home before coming to California where the players will have to deal with media and fan distractions.

Shula, who owns a 2-3 Super Bowl record, feels the extra week helped the team.

"It's just important in a game as big as this to have enough time to prepare and do all the things that you have to do," Shula said after Monday's workout.

"The extra time gives you a chance to get your (game) plan set," he added. "Then when you get out there (Super Bowl site) you've got time to finalize it. There's no sense of urgency like there was (two years ago)."

Judson agreed. "It (Super Bowl) was a new experience to almost all of us two years ago," he said. "Now we know what to expect and I think we can handle it."

EBA Matmen Down Conley

E.B. Aycock rallied to win the last seven matches and defeated D.H. Conley 38-28 Monday in junior high wrestling action.

Conley, now 4-3, hosts Rocky Mount Thursday.

NCAA To Decide Age Issue

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Even before it won the national championship, the Brigham Young football team nettled people for having players who were 24 or older.

And so BYU and other Western schools find themselves fighting at today's NCAA convention to keep the rule that permits athletes to go on two-year church missions without sacrificing eligibility.

More than 1,200 delegates began voting today on 145 legislative proposals, including one that says youngsters who spend time in the armed forces or on official church missions will no longer be exempt from the five-year rule.

Also expected to draw heated debate was a measure to ban performance-enhancing drugs and test players for their use.

The three-day meeting will wind up on Wednesday.

Most delegates believed a measure to grant increased autonomy to Division I-A, the major football powers, would pass easily.

The general eligibility rule of NCAA schools is that an athlete has five years after high school to complete four years of varsity competition.

However, many Mormon players at Western universities serve two-year church missionary programs that spread the competition over seven years. Fifty-two members of the BYU team which went 13-0 and finished No. 1 in the nation had served missions and then resumed their athletic careers, including all-conference linebacker Marv Allen, 24.

Proponents of waiving the exemption feel schools can gain an unfair advantage when 19- and 20-year-olds compete against athletes four or five years their senior.

The rule is sponsored by the powerful NCAA Council and many believe it will win approval.

The measure probably will reach the floor on Wednesday. "This could have devastating consequences for us," said Brigham Young Athletic Director Glenn Tuckett. "I hate to even think about it."

The drug proposal appeared to be in great jeopardy. One objection of many schools is that it deals only with performance-enhancing substances and not street drugs.

"We believe very much that the problem must be dealt with, but we just feel like this is poorly drawn legislation," Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said. "There are many flaws."

John Davis, faculty representative from Oregon State and an unopposed candidate for NCAA president, said action may be delayed until the 1986 convention.

"I sense that the membership is going to be faced with a tough choice," Davis said. "People were agonizing about it because we do want to get a message out that we're committed to doing something about the problem."

Davis said one option would be to adopt the measure "in hopes the

Usher Said Up For USFL Post

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Usher, one of the men behind the financial success of the Summer Olympics, is in town to talk about succeeding Chet Simmons as USFL commissioner.

Simmons quit Monday as commissioner of the 2-year-old United States Football League. Simmons took the post one month after the league was formed in 1982. Prior to that he had been president and chief executive officer of ESPN, the predominantly sports cable television network.

Usher, a Los Angeles attorney, was executive vice president and general manager of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee. He worked for LAOOC President Peter V. Ueberroth, now the commissioner of baseball.

Usher said he would consider the USFL job "under the proper set of circumstances."

"I have talked periodically with various owners . . . concerning it," he said. "Hopefully I can continue the dialogue positively."

"I'm flattered that I'm prominently mentioned (as a candidate for the job). I've certainly enjoyed meeting the owners who I've met."

A. Alfred Taubman, chairman of the USFL's special committee for the commissioner's office, announced that Simmons had resigned. He praised Simmons for "providing the energy and leadership to transform an idea into reality. Chet can take great satisfaction in his accomplishments. He built a first-rate organization overnight, and in less than three years formed an exciting, respected professional sports league."

Taubman, who heads the search for a new commissioner, said the league is "looking for an individual who can build upon Chet's solid foundation and maximize the opportunities that lay ahead."

The USFL, which will begin its third and final season of spring play next month, signed a two-year television contract with ABC before Simmons became commissioner. After Simmons joined the USFL, the league signed a two-year contract with ESPN, and that was renewed for three years, beginning next month.

In November, NBC said it was not interested in televising the league's games. ABC had two one-year options in its contract and picked up the option for the 1985 season. But it informed the league that it was not interested in televising USFL games when the league moves to a fall schedule in 1986, in direct competition with the National Football League.

Some owners have expressed dissatisfaction with Simmons' failure to negotiate a new, larger network TV contract.

Simmons began his career at ABC where he played a key role in the television package that launched the American Football League, which later merged with the NFL. He also was president of NBC Sports from 1977 to 1979 before joining ESPN.

Usher, 45, is a specialist in entertainment law. He and a partner formed the Beverly Hills law firm of Litz and Usher in 1974. He received his law degree from Stanford in 1964. He was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate from Brown in 1961, where he played football and baseball.

measure helping their situation. They have eight fewer schools to satisfy."

Calvin Duncan scored 15 of his 19 points in the first half to boost No. 16 Virginia Commonwealth to a 65-52 verdict over James Madison; John Salley and Mark Price scored 23 points apiece in No. 17 Georgia Tech's 86-68 romp over North Carolina-Charlotte; and Steve Harris shook off some early foul trouble to score 31 points and pace No. 20 Tulsa to a 71-61 victory over cross-town rival Oral Roberts.

St. John's, victimized at Pitt the last two seasons, never gave the usually vocal home crowd a chance to play a role this time. The Redmen, 12-1, opened up a 38-25 halftime advantage, then blew the game open with a 14-4 romp opening the second half.

The architects of Tulane's comeback, John Williams and Clyde Eads, each finished with 14 points.

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins didn't much care how his team looked, as long as it won. "We needed to win," Cremins said of the club that had lost its two previous starts. "We've been struggling."

ACC Commissioner Bob James announced Monday his eight-team league had signed a two-year agreement with CBS. An industry source said the contract guarantees the ACC 14 appearances for $3.5 million.

James said all eight conference schools will continue as active members of the CFA and that he did not believe the CFA's bargaining strength would necessarily be harmed by the ACC's defection.

Duke's status as an unbeaten appeared safe after the Blue Devils rolled to a 15-point lead early in the second half. But there was no stopping the Maryland comeback.

St. John's, which connected on 65 percent of its field goal attempts in what Coach Lou Carnesecca called "our best performance."

DePaul, 11-3, never could breathe easy against Old Dominion, although it controlled matters after Tyrone Corbin scored seven straight points for a 46-44 lead. Dallas Comegys, who came off the bench to lead the Blue Demons with 14 points, kept things going with a dunk and Tony Jackson scored the next six points to finally silence the Monarchs, 9-5.

Georgia Tech, now 11-3, led 44-37 at intermission and, after a slow start in the second half, gradually built an 18-point bulge.

The 63-member CFA will thus begin negotiations with ABC this month without being able to offer one of its five conferences. CBS had already signed a two-year, $18.5-million deal with the Big Ten and Pac 10 conferences.

"We are talking with some independents about the possibility of buying some extra games," said Pilson. He declined to identify the schools but reports persist that Miami, another CFA member, has been in contact with CBS. The Pac 10 and Big Ten are the only major-college football powers not aligned with the 63-member CFA.

Maryland trailed 45-30, but used a 21-6 spurt to take a brief lead with about two minutes left in regulation. The clubs traded the lead until Branch canned a 10-foot jumper with three seconds to go to force the overtime.

"We didn't play very well defensively," said Pitt Coach Roy Chipman. "We were tired, playing our second game in three days while St. John's had a week off."

Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson had been content to watch Steve Harris fill up the basket. But he saw something that pleased him even more.

James said all eight conference schools will continue as active members of the CFA and that he did not believe the CFA's bargaining strength would necessarily be harmed by the ACC's defection.

"I don't see how losing that small number of appearances could hurt them," he said, adding that no decision was made on the CBS offer until after the CFA meeting in Nashville on Sunday prior to the NCAA convention.

Len Bias, who led Maryland with 24 points, hit a pair of free-throws to give the Terps, 12-4, a 76-72 edge with 25 seconds to go. But Duke's Johnny Dawkins, who had 30 points, hit a jumper with 12 seconds remaining to set the stage for Branch's telling free throw.

The Panthers, 9-4, got 15 points from Charles Smith, Pitt's only double-figure scorer.

Despite the final margin, Virginia

With Harris on the bench with foul trouble, Tulsa reserves overcame an Oral Roberts lead and protected the margin until Harris returned.

"There is just not enough opportunities for 63 schools to appear," he said. "I'm not sure that what we're doing is not really in some

But Detective Ray Celeste said no one knows how many tickets were printed, leaving the number of tickets still existing up in the air.

NFL officials called the scam the biggest ticket counterfeiting scheme in Super Bowl history.

With Harris firing away from outside, Tulsa built a 46-35 second-half lead, then rebuilt the margin again after Oral Roberts came within 50-48.

Bogus Super Bowl Ticket Ring Broken

MILLBRAE, Calif. (AP) — Authorities say they have broken the alleged Honolulu-based counterfeiting ring that printed about 1,200 phony Super Bowl tickets, but cautioned fans that 200 to 300 fakes still may remain at large.

But Detective Ray Celeste said no one knows how many tickets were printed, leaving the number of tickets still existing up in the air.

With Harris firing away from outside, Tulsa built a 46-35 second-half lead, then rebuilt the margin again after Oral Roberts came within 50-48.

Millbrae Chief John Dineen said Dean Scott Foes, 26, of Honolulu, was arraigned Monday in Municipal Court on charges of grand theft, forgery and conspiracy.

Foes was arrested Friday after Stuart Kesselman, 23, of Mill Valley, bought 20 of the fakes and became suspicious enough to contact police.

With Harris firing away from outside, Tulsa built a 46-35 second-half lead, then rebuilt the margin again after Oral Roberts came within 50-48.

A second man, Harry Fishel Jr., 46, was en route to California after surrendering to Honolulu authorities on Sunday and allegedly telling them about 849 counterfeit tickets stashed in a San Bruno drainpipe, Dineen said.

The fakes are printed on an inferior quality paper, generally darker in color and have slightly larger seat and section numbers than genuine tickets, officials said.

With Harris firing away from outside, Tulsa built a 46-35 second-half lead, then rebuilt the margin again after Oral Roberts came within 50-48.

The recovered tickets were among 1,200 phonies printed in the scam, leaving unaccounted an estimated 300, Dineen said.

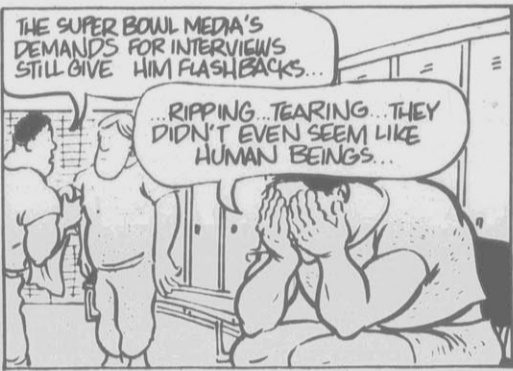

Don Weiss, executive director of the National Football League, said, "Based on the facts as we know them, we feel that virtually all of the tickets have been accounted for."

Military rule in Brazil ends today, as a 686-member electoral college chooses that country's next president. Brazil was named after a kind of red dyewood that Portuguese explorers found there in the early 1500s. Marajo Island, at the mouth of the Amazon River, is almost as large as New Hampshire and Vermont combined. "Brazil nuts" are the seeds of an evergreen tree that grows in the Amazon basin. Many people in northern Brazil sleep in hammocks instead of beds.

Two Wilson Men Await Sentences

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Two Wilson County men pleaded guilty Monday to illegal sex charges stemming from an alleged child pornography ring operated from a Lucama farmhouse.

James W. Ward, 59, and Doral Ray Mason, 49, both of Lucama, entered guilty pleas in Wilson County Superior Court to charges of crime against nature and taking indecent liberties with minors.

Judge Charles B. Winberry Jr. of Rocky Mount accepted the pleas and postponed sentencing until Friday because witnesses scheduled by defense attorneys could not be present in court. Winberry ordered that both men remain in custody.

Ward pleaded guilty to five counts of crime against nature and five counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor, while Mason pleaded guilty to six charges of crime against nature and five charges of taking indecent liberties with a minor.

Each charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison. Defense attorneys told the judge that both men had been taking medication for high blood pressure and other ailments.

Ward was scheduled to appear in U.S. District Court in Raleigh Tuesday to enter a plea to three federal charges of illegally using the U.S. mail to distribute obscene material.

Ward, Mason and Harold Robert Hoover, 55, of Wilson, were arrested last August after investigators seized thousands of allegedly obscene photographs at Ward's home. The photos depicted men participating in sex acts with young boys aged 9 to 16.

Hoover is scheduled to be tried Feb. 4.

Woodpeckers Cause Utility To Relocate

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — North Carolina Power said Monday it is dropping a Bertie County, N.C., site from consideration for a coal-fired generating station because the area is a nesting ground for the endangered red-cockaded woodpecker.

The location of the nesting sites we have identified virtually precludes any timely development of a large generating facility in the immediate study area," said J.T. Earwood Jr., a vice president of the utility.

North Carolina Power biologists and consultants in Bertie County have identified five and possibly six red-cockaded woodpeckers, which are protected under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

There are an estimated 2,500 to 10,000 of the birds in scattered locations throughout the southeastern United States, the utility said. The birds are slightly larger than bluebirds and carry black and white ladder-back markings and white cheeks.

The male has a tiny red cockade above the white cheek, but the marking is difficult to see with the naked eye.

The 8,000-acre Bertie County site was one of four being considered by the Virginia Power and Electric Co. for construction of the coal-fired facility. The other locations are in the Virginia counties of Buckingham, Greensville and Mecklenburg.

Car Indictments

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Three people were indicted and a fourth person pleaded guilty in connection with the theft of four Lincoln Continental Town cars worth about $100,000, the FBI said Monday.

Robert Pence, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina, said the indictments followed an extensive joint investigation by the FBI in Fayetteville and Detroit, the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department and the North Carolina Inter-Agency Auto Theft Unit.

Dorothy Rose Gibson, 38, and Dennis Rueben Robinson, 31, both of Fayetteville, were arrested Monday, Pence said in a news release. Ms. Gibson, Robinson and Donald Prentiss Hunter of Detroit were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy, aiding and abetting and multiple counts of interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle.

Register Indicted

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A Cleveland County Grand Jury has indicted Register of Deeds Marjorie Rogers on seven counts of embezzlement of county funds by a public official.

If convicted on the felony charges, Ms. Rogers, 56, could face up to 70 years in prison.

The indictments handed down Monday charge Ms. Rogers with illegally converting cash from the deeds office to her own use on seven dates between Dec. 14 and Jan. 9. The amounts cited range from $12 to $27 and total $142.

Potential For Home Music Videos Spurs Aggressive Marketing Policy

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that the audio capabilities of the video cassette recorder have finally caught up with the picture quality, can music video cassettes be far behind?

The record companies and studios are closing in fast, and none seems to be pursuing the field more aggressively than RCA-Columbia Pictures Home Video. RCA-Columbia has just launched MusicVision, which offers 36 titles, including two half-hour tapes of Lionel Richie and the Go-Go's that sell for $14.95 each.

Just 18 months ago the company set a ceiling of $29.95 for video products running 60 to 80 minutes, said Robert Blattner, president of RCA-Columbia Home Video. He said competitive videos were selling at $10 to $20 higher.

Last summer Blattner set a price of $19.95 for half-hour videos.

"Now that both VHS and Beta video cassette recorders have hi fi and stereo capabilities, you can get a better sound out of it than you can from many stereo LPs," said Blattner. "So the consumer has something now that he can not only enjoy watching but listen to. Now that audio quality has caught up to video quality, music lovers aren't going to just watch a pretty picture with bad sound."

Why would someone go out and buy a music video when the airwaves are filled with them? MTV operates two music channels on cable. There are a number of music video shows on commercial television.

"What we offer is something totally different from pay or free television," Blattner said. "Let's take the Lionel Richie program. It consists of four music videos: 'All Night Long,' 'Running with the Night,' 'Hello' and 'Penny Lover.' Those are four very big songs for him. Those music videos have at one time or another played on the music video programs."

"But they have never played all at the same time, and additionally the cassette includes some concert footage of 'All Night Long' and 'Running with the Night.' So what we have is a 35-minute program that does not exist anywhere else in any other format."

Blattner believes there is an audience that wants to become collectors of home music videos, not just renters. He is hoping that the same sort of fever will sweep over them as did the buyers of record albums and singles.

The company has also taken steps to set its new MusicVision line apart from its other products. A silver, red and blue color scheme predominates. Each package is designed with the collector in mind.

The Lionel Richie cassette has a picture of Richie that's as good as an album cover. So do the cassettes for the Go-Go's, Rick Springfield, Diana Ross, Krokus, the Eurythmics and others in the collection.

The entire VCR explosion has all the earmarks of revolution in home entertainment. With all the expanding technology and with VCR penetration now reaching 20 percent of the nation's TV homes, and growing faster, the VCR seems to be taking up where the faltering cable industry left off.

Families now rent movies and other programs before they show up on cable. Nielsen ratings may no longer reflect the true number of viewers for a program because "time-shifting" has become a way of life for VCR owners.

For example, a family can tape "Hill Street Blues" Thursday night and watch it any other time in the week. Recent research by the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed that NBC's "Hill Street Blues" and the most popular afternoon soap operas were the programs most likely to be taped.

By taping programs, renting or buying movies, and now buying music videos, viewers are aggressively taking control of their TV sets. Viewers can watch what they want, whenever they want. No longer do they have to accept the scheduling dictates of TV programmers.

Inaugural Panel Relents, Will Pay All Performers

NEW YORK (AP) — The 200 "clean-cut all-American types" who will sing and dance during inaugural ceremonies for President Reagan will receive triple the union minimum wage, officials said in dropping a controversial plan not to pay the amateur performers.

Each entertainer will be paid $375 plus expenses for the four days of festivities under an agreement signed Monday by the inaugural committee and a group representing four entertainment unions, said Sanford Wolff, executive director of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

The committee's original plan not to pay the performers, citing limitations of its $12 million budget, met a buzz saw of protest from entertainment unions. Some planned to picket the ceremonies Jan. 18-21.

"I think they saw the error of their ways," Wolff said Monday. "Perhaps they realized that it was an insulting thing to many Americans, and that this problem couldn't just be dusted off and wished away."

In Washington, a spokesman for the Presidential Inaugural Committee declined to say why it had suddenly changed its hiring policy.

The committee incurred the unions' wrath last week by publishing an audition call saying only non-union "clean-cut all-American types" need apply for the unpaid jobs singing and dancing at inaugural celebrations.

The agreement was signed Monday in Washington by Robert F.

Jani, the inaugural committee's producer, and the Association of Actors and Artistes of America, an umbrella group of four entertainment unions.

It requires that the committee pay a total of $75,000, all travel and living expenses and make a "substantial" contribution into the pension and welfare fund of the American Guild of Variety Artists, said Wolff.

Union officials said a minimum contract with AGVA would only have required one-third as much salary for each performer during the four days of celebrations. Last week, committee officials said their $12 million budget was insufficient to pay the 200 non-union performers the federal minimum wage of $3.35 an hour.

"We are just happy that from what Mr. Jani tells us everything has been resolved," said inaugural committee spokesman John Buckley. "Part of his contract was to make certain everything came off smoothly."

The committee already had agreed to pay $619 each for televised appearances by Frank Sinatra, James Stewart and Elizabeth Taylor, as their contracts with entertainment unions require. Diana Ross, who had been scheduled to sing at the nationally broadcast Inaugural Gala, canceled last week without explanation.

Spokesmen for Miss Ross refused to say whether her decision had anything to do with the committee's refusal to pay the non-union performers.

The four entertainment unions represent more than 100,000 performers — with at least 85,000 unemployed at any one time.

Ironically, AGVA was the only one of the four that refrained from publishing individual protests against the committee's hiring policy.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals M

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 16, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon consider a new plan of action whereby you can have a practical campaign to gain your ambitions. Later it is good to look into a new and mental course by which to get ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get bills and accounts cleared up before you tackle anything else of a practical nature. Safeguard your wallet.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can conclude pending agreements with others and then adopt the right attitude that you can carry through with them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can get that work plan started early and then arrange for more public outlets. Be active and happy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Early get appointments set up for recreation later and then plunge into that work load ahead of you and polish it off.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Give that situation at home more thought in the morning, and then you can go out for the recreation you like.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Early handle all that desk work that needs your attention and later be with kin at activities that are mutually liked.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Financial affairs are easily handled in the morning, and later you can talk over problems with associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Early handle personal affairs that have been neglected and then make big headway in practical affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Early busy yourself figuring out how to gain your greatest objectives and then follow through with your ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A friend can give you fine advice today which should be followed in order to gain some cherished aim.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle the duties that are important early in the day and they are soon behind you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study into different methods of operating and then confer with a higher up to gain the backing you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can be an excellent student for the love of knowledge is great here, and should have as fine an academic education as possible, so plan for it now. Upon reaching adulthood your progeny can then express self very well and be more extroverted. Don't neglect religious training.

Marine Pleads Guilty To Sex Charges

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A Marine sergeant has been sentenced to two years confinement and a dishonorable discharge on charges of sodomy and indecent acts involving an 11-year-old girl.

Sgt. Lescoe G. Furrow, 30, pleaded guilty to a single charge of sodomy and one charge of committing various indecent acts with the girl in his home between January 1983 and April 1984, when he left for Okinawa.

The girl involved told the court under questioning that the indecent acts occurred "between 10 and 20 times."

She testified she hadn't mentioned the incidents until just before Furrow returned from Okinawa because Furrow "said he would spank me if I told."

Furrow could have received a maximum of 27 years confinement. A pretrial agreement called for nine years confinement.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

The U.S. team — Betty Ann Kennedy, Shreveport, La.; Jacqui Mitchell, Gail Moss, Judi Radin, Kathie Wei, all New York City; and Carol Sanders, Nashville, Tenn. — won the World Women's Team Olympiad, held recently in Seattle. In an exciting and close final, they held off a rally by Britain.

This deal is from a preliminary round match against Mexico. Judi Radin, South, opened a 13-15 no trump, and her partner's sequence was invitational and showed a five-card heart suit. South elected to play three no trump rather than four hearts.

East won the opening club lead with the ace of clubs and returned the six. Declarer's jack lost to the queen and West knocked out declarer's stopper. On this trick East made the delicate error of sluffing a spade.

Declarer led a spade to the jack and ace and East made the good shift to a diamond in an attempt to knock out dummy's ace. Declarer inserted the queen and captured West's king with the ace. Since West could not be allowed to gain the lead, declarer had to tackle hearts in such a way that East would have to win a heart trick.

A spade to the queen provided the entry for a low heart lead. Had West produced the five, declarer would have covered with the six and been safe on any 3-2 heart division. But when West produced an honor, declarer had to hope that she held only two hearts. Declarer rose with dummy's ace, cashed the king of hearts and king of spades, then exited with a heart.

Fortunately, this trick was won by East, who was down to nothing but diamonds. Her lead away from the ten was run to the nine, and dummy suddenly had an entry to the good hearts.

In the other room the Mexicans reached four hearts. They lost a trick in each suit, so the U.S. gained 10 International Match Points.

Transplants Authorized

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Doctors at N.C. Memorial Hospital will be allowed to perform heart transplants, and the operations could begin as early as late summer, hospital officials said.

The hospital's board of directors voted unanimously Monday to allow transplants of the heart and lungs if the operation is covered by insurance or if the patient puts down a deposit.

The hospital will have ways of financing the operation for people who cannot afford to pay for it, said George F. Sheldon, chairman of the Department of Surgery at the School of Medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

At least 26 hospitals in the country and about 40 around the world perform heart transplants, Sheldon said. No heart transplants have been done in North Carolina.

Duke University has assembled a group to do heart transplants, but none have been attempted.

Sheldon said he hopes doctors with the UNC School of Medicine will be able to perform about one transplant a month once the program gets started.

The number of transplants is limited by the availability of donors, not would-be recipients, he said. Patients will be matched with donors through the area's computer-donor search program. The medical school already uses a computer network for kidney transplants.

The first successful heart transplant was performed in 1967 and was followed by a rash of largely unsuccessful transplants.

Since that time, more than 1,000 transplants have been performed worldwide. The survival rate has increased to about 80 percent, Sheldon said, and the hospital stay has fallen from 100 to 60 days, making a transplant "worthwhile" for the patient, he said.

Phillips Says Big Tax Cuts Would Hurt School Plans

GREENSBORO (AP) — Demand for expensive educational reforms, such as the basic education plan and the career ladder pay plan "make significant tax cuts inappropriate," state school Superintendent Craig Phillips said.

Phillips' comments about improvements proposed for public schools and tax cuts proposed by Gov. Jim Martin came Monday at a conference sponsored by the North Carolina School Boards Association and the state Department of Public Instruction. School board chairmen, superintendents and other school officials attended the three-day annual conference.

Martin used the conference to outline his views on major educational issues from teacher pay to financing the proposed $690 million basic education plan. He also reiterated his campaign pledge to cut the property and intangibles taxes and eliminate the 2 cent state sales tax.

He urged that testing of a proposed career ladder pay plan for teachers be extended beyond the one year mandated in 1984 by the N.C. General Assembly.

"It would be a serious mistake to pass on ourselves a schedule that would put a plan in place before we could know that it would work," the superintendent said.

Phillips said he was pleased with Martin's speech and would cooperate with him.

Phillips, a Democrat, criticized Martin's tax cut plans and complained that the speech implied that administrators' work is less important than teachers'.

"Take care of the classroom and the hell with all the rest" was the implication in one portion of Martin's speech, Phillips told about 135 superintendents.

Although Martin did not spell out how he would replace the revenue lost from tax cuts, he said he would use surplus revenues and trim proposals to expand some existing state programs. He said city and county governments would not be forced to raise property taxes to make up for lost revenues from intangibles and inventory taxes.

Phillips said he worried about those tax cut plans partly because of the tremendous cost of the career ladder pay plan, which the General Assembly mandated in 1984.

The pay plan, which would base salaries on performance and progress through five pay levels, will add $89 million to the cost of teacher salaries in 1986-87 and $260.6 million by 1988-89. It will be tested in 16 school systems in 1985-86 at a cost of $12.3 million.

The state school board and the legislature's Educational Policy Council have endorsed extending the pilot program at least two years. The General Assembly probably will go along with the extension, said Gene Causby, executive director of the N.C. School Board Association.

Martin said the extension was needed because "the pilot probably will raise as many questions as it will answer."

But he said he favored using some kind of evaluation of teachers in all systems.

IN THE STATE

College Leaders Say Support Poor

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — University of North Carolina President William Friday said he agreed with a survey that shows the heads of the nation's public colleges and universities give the Reagan administration failing grades for its higher educational programs.

"I think that the universities of this country are doing a good job under a rather severe handicap in that federal involvement has decreased markedly," said Friday, who is included in the survey by the State University of New York and is ranked in it as one of the five most influential leaders of American public higher education.

Sixty-eight percent of the 216 public college and university presidents who answered the survey rated the administration's support for higher education as disappointing or poor.

Only 6 percent said that the administration is doing a very good job of supporting higher education.

At the same time, the presidents gave themselves high marks — 65 percent said public colleges and universities are doing a very good or excellent job.

The survey was mailed last spring to 507 presidents of four-year, public colleges and universities in the United States. It was sent to the members of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The 42 percent who responded addressed questions about the quality of American higher education, the Reagan administration's support for higher education and the most pressing problems facing public colleges and universities.

Concern about money — or the lack of it — dominated their responses.

Asked to identify the most pressing problem facing higher education, half of the 216 presidents said inadequate funding. Most of their other major concerns were money-related such as low faculty salaries and the need to replace old equipment.

The presidents are worried, Friday said, because they detect that the Reagan administration is backing away from the commitment made to higher education in the late 1950s.

Nearly 65 percent of the presidents rated the Reagan administration's financial-aid policies as disappointing or poor. Twenty-nine percent said that federal aid for students is adequate, and 7 percent said that the program is very good.

MacDonald Not Goes Judge

GREENSBORO (AP) — Jeffrey MacDonald and his attorneys say he will have a new trial because two women admitted killing his pregnant wife and two children, but a prosecutor says the women's confessions are beyond dispute.

MacDonald is "very hopeful," said his attorney in an interview with a Greenville television station Monday after a five-hour hearing on MacDonald's motion to set aside his 1979 convictions. "The judge asked important questions and answered them very carefully. I think that's a very good sign in the case."

Brian O'Neill, a Los Angeles attorney, said U.S. District Judge Robert H. Bell will issue his ruling later.

MacDonald would commit such unspeakable horrors except people who have such unspeakable problems, O'Neill argued in support of MacDonald's claim that he was a hippie beatnik and a drug addict in 1970.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Brian M. Murphy countered that the confessions clearly disprove the evidence that would lead a jury convicted MacDonald. "Our case remains intact," he said. "Murphy, who denied the confessions, the defense said they have impeached the former Green Beret."

MacDonald is serving three life terms in federal prison in Bastrop, La., after killing his pregnant wife, Mary Jo, and his daughters, Melissa, 4, and Kristen, 2. The U.S. District Court reinstated MacDonald's conviction in March 1979 when it was overturned by the state's highest court of Appeals.

Woman Named Provost At FSU

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greenville state University official Monday became the first black woman provost in the University of North Carolina system.

William J. Fleming was approved as provost and vice chancellor of academic affairs at FSU by the UNC Board of Governors Friday. Ms. Fleming, who has filled the post on an interim basis since last July, was nominated for the position by the FSU Board of Trustees Dec. 13.

Ms. Fleming becomes only the second woman to serve as chief academic officer at a UNC constituent institution.

A native of Cleveland, N.C., Ms. Fleming came to FSU in 1960 as a biology instructor. She has also served as an assistant to the dean of students, director of the general studies program, assistant to the provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs, and head of the division of physical and life sciences.

Man Charged

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Wilson police Monday released the name of a Henderson man charged with murder in the beating death of a Wilson woman during a weekend domestic dispute.

Gloria Teresa Eason, 24, died early Saturday after she was repeatedly struck on the head with a heavy metal object. Police said Monday they arrested Phillip Gill, 31, at the scene.
