Merger Panel Sets 1986 Target

By MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

In a historic move for public education in Pitt County, the consolidation committee of the Pitt and Greenville boards of education voted today to consolidate the two school systems effective July 1, 1986.

The 12-member committee approved a resolution that proposed a merger subject to the following conditions:

- Ratification by the N.C. General Assembly of the proposed legislation which will create a consolidated board of education and school system. The legislation got a tentative nod of approval by the consolidation committee today and is now scheduled for consideration by the Pitt County and Greenville boards of education and the Pitt County Commissioners.

- Formal consolidation of school food services, maintenance, staff development and personnel services will take place by July 1, 1985, with financial operations and instruction consolidation occurring by July 1, 1986.

- Greenville's school offices will be moved to the Pitt County Office Building when the consolidated school system's organization is established and operational.

- Until July 1, 1986, the consolidated board of education, Pitt County and Greenville school boards will concur on capital reserve expenditures.

- Until July 1, 1986, the current superintendent of Pitt

County will also serve as superintendent of the Greenville system and superintendent for the consolidated board of education, then become superintendent of the consolidated school system at that time.

The consolidation committee was formed in June 1984, when the Pitt County Board of Education announced it supported conditional consolidation of the two school systems. The conditions included a 14-item capital outlay project list, a 12-member consolidated board of education elected from townships by the county at large and a gradual, phased-in merger of the two systems as capital improvements are completed. In September 1984, the County Commissioners created a School Capital Reserve Fund designated for the specified capital outlay projects.

The Pitt school board's announcement followed endorsement of merger by the Greenville Board of Education in late 1983. The consolidation committee has met monthly since September 1984 to develop a plan of consolidation.

The proposed legislation, which was reviewed and tentatively approved by the consolidation committee today, will now be scrutinized by the Pitt County and Greenville boards of education and the County Commissioners. If it is accepted by the three boards, it will

Cold Holds Grip On Area

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Despite cold temperatures, Greenville and Pitt County residents are resuming to their normal activities. Streets were clear, students returned to school and no power outages were reported as of today, but the area remained in the grip of bitterly cold weather.

According to figures provided by Greenville Utilities Commission, the highest temperature reached in the Greenville area Monday was 16 degrees, while the low temperature was recorded at minus 4 degrees. This morning's lowest temperature was 14 degrees at 4 a.m., and at 8 a.m. today, the temperature was a brisk 15 degrees.

The highest electrical use ever recorded in Greenville was reported Sunday and Monday, Superintendent

Malcolm Green of the GUC electrical department said, but there were no outages reported Monday and the department had received no calls this morning.

"Our guys got an unexpected break," Green said. "Loads were high and meters were flying and usage was still way up, but we didn't have a single outage anywhere on the system yesterday. Out of 28,000 customers, we didn't have a single outage."

"The previous all-time winter peak was 140 megawatts and we hit that right before the Superbowl," he added. "Electrical usage stayed at 180 megawatts, the new all-time high, for some 30 hours. We didn't go below that peak until this morning early."

Green said this morning's electrical usage was recorded at 160

megawatts.

Problems with water pipes were widespread in Greenville, however, and may get worse as a thaw sets in.

"Today, we have had minimal problems with the water mains," said Wadie Lewis, director of Water and Sewer systems for GUC. "We are having a reasonable amount of problems with meter services and customer services."

Lewis said most of the calls have involved cutting off water when the pipes have burst.

"Our biggest problems will occur probably when the thaw sets in," Lewis added. "Pipes are probably frozen but they will thaw naturally when the temperature rises and will burst. The pipes either didn't freeze enough to burst or they froze and burst but the ice clogged the opening. When the thaw sets in, the pipe will start to leak water.

"Mains normally break when the thaw comes," Lewis related. "If it warms up in a hurry, we will have problems with the mains on the street because the main problems we have are due to the expansion and contraction in the pipe. The problem is one of temperature changes."

"We had problems last night with vandalism, too," he said. "There was unauthorized opening of hydrants on the system last night, and with the temperature being what it was, there was ice on the roads. The crews had to spread sand and cut off the water."

Travel has become safer as road crews have been spreading sand on the roads to combat the ice. City and county roads are mostly clear,

Help Available To Needy

By CAROL BLACKLEY TYER

People in need as a result of the extremely cold weather have a variety of sources of assistance and some have been using it.

Hooker Memorial Christian Church opened its fellowship hall Monday night to anyone who needed a warm place to stay.

Only one person accepted the offer, but the Rev. Van Knight, pastor of the church, said it's believed that more people might use it tonight once the word gets out that it's available. "We don't know what the need in the community is," he said. "We just want to be responsive to whatever it is."

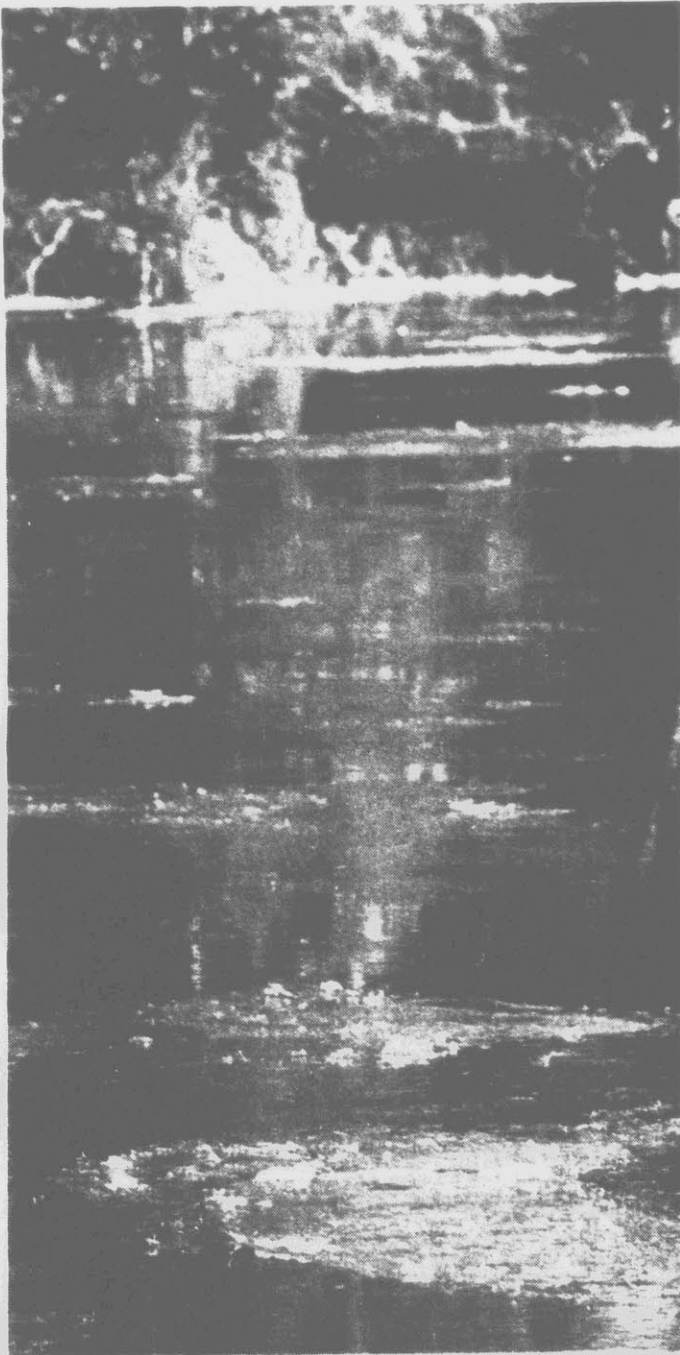

Hooker Church began late Monday afternoon getting the word out on television and to social workers, emergency room staff, police — anyone they thought might have direct contact with people who'd be cold in their own homes or on the street. The shelter will remain open as long as the extreme cold weather lasts. "We'll just decide on a daily basis whether to open for the night," Knight said.

The Pitt County Department of Social Services reported its volume of people applying for assistance in paying fuel and utility bills was greater than usual. The Salvation Army said more people came to the Citadel applying for assistance with food, rent and fuel and utility bills. Two families had utilities completely cut off, Mrs. Ronald Davis, Salvation Army captain, said. She said she expects an even greater volume as people start getting the fuel and utilities bills created during this weather and start paying for burst pipe repairs and the like.

Church Ministries United and WBZQ Christian Radio, also sources of assistance for the needy, both had busy telephone lines this morning and were not reached for comment.

Ed Garrison, director of the Social Services Department, said he expects funds set aside for energy assistance to be exhausted sooner than had been anticipated as a result of this weather. He said a saving grace is that Low Income Energy Assistance checks, already applied for through Social Services by many Pitt County residents, will be mailed in early February.

Dr. Jack Allison, Pitt County Memorial Hospital Emergency Department director, said he has been amazed at how few persons with cold-related injuries and illnesses have come for emergency care. "We have to believe that public education about taking extra precautions during extreme cold and icy weather is working," he said. "We had one man, a construction worker, come in with frostbitten hands and a few people with broken limbs sustained falling on ice. Overall, though, there have been fewer injuries than one would expect and we're glad. We're here to serve but we're glad when we don't have to."

ICE ON TAR RIVER — Patches of ice floated on the Tar River early this morning as temperatures left most Pitt County residents shivering, with thermometers dipping once again into the teens. Greenville Utilities recorded a reading of 14 degrees early today. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

RESTITUTION PROGRAM VOLUNTEERS ASKED

The Pitt County Juvenile Services Restitution Program is in need of volunteers to serve as on-site supervisors for persons aged 9 to 15. Volunteers are needed to spend two to four hours a week supervising and interacting with young people as they perform various work activities. The program is designed to provide a positive learning experience for juvenile offenders and hopefully give them a sense of responsibility for their behavior and knowledge that they can contribute to the community and refrain from future involvement in delinquency. For more information about the program and its volunteer opportunities, call Lena McLamb, 758-4223.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday awarded contracts for the construction of a new animal shelter and approved the purchase of radio equipment for the sheriff's department and county rescue squads.

Eastern Construction Co. was the low bidder on the animal shelter at $87,450, and before awarding the bid, commissioners were told that negotiations had resulted in $1,000 being cut from the bid, resulting in a contract price of $86,370 for the project.

The new animal shelter, to be located behind the solid waste container site on the County Home Road near Bells Fork, will replace both the present county and city of Greenville shelters. When completed, the city will operate the new shelter.

The cost of the site preparation work by E.R. Lewis Construction Co. is $6,150.

Motorola was awarded a contract for the purchase of seven mobile radios and sirens for sheriff's department cars, as well as three portables and two pagers for the sheriff's department, at a cost of $24,557. The company was also awarded a contract for the purchase of a portable ultra-high frequency radio to be used as a spare for rescue squads providing advanced life support services. Price of the portable unit totaled $6,315.

In other business Monday, commissioners approved changes in the county's health insurance program to include: a preadmission certification requirement for elective surgery; limited coverage ($3,000 in any two-month period, $6,000 in two-years and $12,000 lifetime) for drug addiction treatment; and coverage (up to the policy's maximum $25,000) for heart, lung and liver transplants (which had not previously been covered under the policy).

Garrett Says Party Role Will Be 'Fair And Just'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

D.D. Garrett, elected interim chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party's Executive Committee last week, pledged today to be "absolutely fair and just" in making decisions while heading the party.

Garrett is the first black to head the party in Pitt County — the majority party with 33,600 white registered voters and 12,220 blacks.

"I realize that I'm in somewhat of an unusual situation," Garrett said. But he emphasized "my aim, my position is to be absolutely fair and just, and I am saying right from the beginning I pledge and I promise not to permit race or religion or sex — any of those things — to interfere with my decisions. I'm going to try to the best of my ability not to permit wealth nor poverty to interfere with what is right for the party."

Garrett was elected interim chairman at a called meeting Saturday to replace former chairman Kathryn Lewis, who resigned earlier this year because of health problems.

Garrett noted that the regular election of officers for Pitt and other county party organizations will be in April. Garrett, who served two years as second vice chairman and "better than one year" as first vice chairman, said one thing he would do as head of the party is "try to get the Democratic Party to look at the good that it stands for and accentuate those good points. I hope not to dwell in the past on the negative."

Citing victories by Republican candidates for president and governor last November, Garrett said, "I think, if anything, members of the Democratic Party have come to the

By GINGER BISHOP

ROBERSONVILLE — Mort Hurst, 1984 champion of the Ayden Collard Festival eating contest, has announced his retirement from collard eating.

"I hold the world record — 7½ pounds in 30 minutes plus three bottles of ketchup," said Hurst, 34. "I am not going back because there is nothing left to prove."

"When you set the world record and you are the world champion, what do you beat?"

Hurst, a Robersonville businessman, announced his retirement as he donated a copy of the book "Crossroads" by Dennis Rogers to Marjorie Nelson at the Robersonville Public Library.

Rogers features the Collard King and his notorious eating binges in the book, Rogers' third. But Rogers only skims the surface in his short account of how Hurst finished second to D.A. Rogers in 1983.

"I can't wait until his next book is published," Hurst says. "This one has me losing. The next one will have me as champion."

But being champion takes its toll, says Hurst, who hardly looks like the man who ate 54 fried eggs cooked by Pete Clark at Bart's Greene Grill, or 500 shrimp at Riverside Oyster Bar in Greenville, or 52 deviled crabs or 21 hotdogs.

"Why gamble and take a chance with your health when you are the champ," Hurst said. "If you go through the right training it doesn't hurt, but you spend three weeks training for eating contests and three weeks to get over it."

"I would advise all young people who read this or Rogers' book not to do what I've done. If they do, it will hurt them. I don't want any kid to choke on something and then say they wanted to be like Mort Hurst."

"Or worse yet," he added, "be denied access to some of the finer eating establishments in the area."

"Mr. Parker at Parker's Barbecue in Greenville will not let me eat family style," Hurst explained. "If I do, he tells the waitress to give me only two pieces of chicken. I ate five or six chickens one time and he got upset."

"I went to Little Washington and ate 43 pairs of frog legs. That was all they had. The man came and apologized because they didn't have any more. I went back the next week and he'd taken frog legs off the menu."

But Hurst has quit eating at restaurants that offer all-you-can-eat specials.

"I would eat $70-$80 worth of food," said Hurst, who owns Robersonville Ice and Coal Co. "As a businessman, I know how it is. We need all the restaurant business we can get. I don't need to go and put them out of business."

Quantity isn't the only fundamental of eating. Speed has its merits, too.

Hurst has put away a chocolate pie in 32 seconds and a pound of collards in 44 seconds.

"When I was training I was eating six meals a day. I was stretching my stomach and working on my speed."

"You have to stay cool when you are eating a lot. You can't get hot. I keep a cool towel with me and my feet moving. And don't lie down. That is the worst thing you can do."

To top it off, Hurst doesn't even like collards, or eggs. But ... "If someone breaks my record, I might have to go back," he said.

RETIRING — Mort Hurst of Robersonville, the 1984 Ayden Collard Festival collard-eating champion, says he will retire from competition. "There is nothing left to prove," Hurst says. (AP Laserphoto)

Thefts Probed

Greenville police are investigating two thefts reported to the department Monday.

Officer H.D. Hines said a bicycle was taken from 43 Quail Ridge in an incident reported at 2:40 p.m. Officer D.W. Nichols said a purse, containing two rings valued at $300 and a small amount of cash, was taken from a car parked at the intersection of 12th and Forbes streets in an incident reported at 8:33 p.m.

Students Arrested

Police arrested three 20-year-old East Carolina University students early today on damage to personal property charges following an incident at the Kappa Alpha fraternity house at 500 E. 11th St.

Officer J.W. McNeill said a call at 2:10 a.m. reported that three beer taps, valued at $1,100, had been taken from the fraternity house and that a composite photo of 1982 fraternity members, valued at $800, as well as a picture of a Confederate flag, valued at $75, had been taken outside and damaged.

McNeill said officers took Thomas Stratton Smith and Richard W. Wells, both of 310A Scott Dorm, and Kevin Michael Hidalgo of 404D Scott Dorm into custody about 3:30 a.m. in connection with the incident.

Vehicles Damaged

An estimated $3,700 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:44 p.m. collision on Oakmont Drive, 150 feet west of the N.C. 43 intersection, involving cars driven by William Eatman Zadeits of 202 Ravenwood Drive and Ronnie Lee Duncan of 101 David Drive.

Damage from the collision was set at $1,500 to the Duncan car and $700 to the Zadeits auto.

Vehicles driven by Dawn Obliss Henderson of Route 1, Bath, and Jammie Earl James of 2103 Southview Drive collided about 6:26 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Lewis streets, resulting in an estimated $1,500 damage to the Henderson car. No damage resulted to the truck driven by James, officers said.

Doctor Leaves MGH

Dr. Richard Hancock, a general surgeon who joined Martin General Hospital in Williamston earlier this month, has left after being there just a little over a week to accept a similar position in Dunn.

"I got a better deal (in Dunn)," Hancock explained his decision to leave. Hancock, who went to Williamston from Hickory, notified hospital administrator Gary Bishop of his decision to leave.

"I am very disappointed," said Bishop. "He told me it was just a change in family circumstances. It all happened after he came to Williamston."

The hospital has been without a general surgeon since August. Bishop said action is being taken to recruit a replacement for Hancock.

SAT Study Sessions

Four Scholastic Aptitude Test preparation sessions will be held for Pitt County high school students in February and March at A.G. Cox School.

Sessions are scheduled from 9 a.m. until noon on Feb. 16, March 2, 8 and 16 and will be taught by East Carolina University professors.

To preregister or for further information call the guidance departments at the four county high schools.

Micro-1 To Meet

An organizational meeting for Micro-1, a microcomputer user's group especially for educators in region I, will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 19 at the northeast regional center in Williamston.

Region I includes Pitt, Martin and Beaufort counties. The meeting will feature demonstrations of microcomputer applications and an evaluation of hardware and software. Officers will also be elected.

Memberships are $7 each and dues will support publications and correspondence of the group. Snow date for the meeting is Feb. 26.

4-H Officers Elected

The A.G. Cox Thrillers 4-H Club recently elected Angela Evenhuis club president for 1985.

Other officers include Amy Woolard, vice president; Felicia Clemons, reporter, and Jennifer Panichelli, reporter.

Ribbon Cutting

A ribbon cutting was held recently for the Curtain Factory, a business located in the Red Oak Shopping Center, Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce officials have announced.

The store is owned and operated by Janice Everette and Debra Trevathan and offers custom-made curtains and bedspreads and handmade crafts. Hours of operation are from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Wellcome Visitor

Wade Johnson Jr., drug educator for the Pitt County school system, is visiting Wellcome Middle School during January to educate students about drug abuse.

Johnson is a former teacher in Wilson and Pitt counties. He is currently the alcohol, drug, health and physical education coordinator for the county schools.

By now, most people know about the tax advantages of an IRA.

But you may not know about the big difference it can make when you're making all your IRA deposits as early in the year as possible.

For example, if you deposit $2000 in an IRA in early January instead of waiting until you file your tax return the next year, and keep doing that for the next 20 years, you'll come out with over $16,000* more interest.

For all the details, come see us. The time to start is now. The place is right in your neighborhood. NCNB

*Assuming a fixed interest rate of 11%, the additional interest earned over 20 years on a $2000 IRA invested on January 1 each year compared to a $2000 IRA investment made just prior to filing your tax return a year later.

Some Full-Figured Gals Are Not What They Seem

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Flat-Chested in Ill." who felt inadequate because she didn't have more.

I have had "too much" (38D) since eighth grade, and I was miserable. All through high school I was teased, humiliated and sexually harassed.

I even had to quit cross-country running because it was too painful and embarrassing.

"Flat-Chested" doesn't need a fuller figure; she needs a higher self-esteem.

If I had an extra $2,000 lying around, I would treat myself to breast-reduction surgery.

TOO MUCH IN TEXAS

DEAR TOO MUCH: My mail this week would bring joy to the "Have Nots" who assume that all gentlemen prefer big-breasted women. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You told "Flat-Chested," who felt inadequate, to wear a padded bra.

Well, here is one man who would consider it unfortunate were she to take your advice. Why?

Because the flatter the chest, the more passionate the woman. I'm in my 50s now, and it's not just my opinion. I've talked to a lot of men, and they all said flat-chested women make better lovers.

Please tell flat-chested women not to envy their big-bosomed sisters. Nature has a way of compensating.

LIKES 'EM SMALL IN IOWA

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Flat-Chested in Moline, Ill.": In the days before they had padded bras, I was flat-chested, so I wore "falsies." Then one day my bra came undone and one of my "breasts" fell off!

I hated being flat-chested and longed for larger breasts, then lo and behold, I discovered I had added several inches to my chest. The only trouble was, I had doubled my inches everywhere else! I was no longer flat—I was fat! At last I had the bust I had always wanted, but I wasn't nearly as attractive as I was before I doubled my 110 pounds.

I thought about how I used to hate my flat chest, then I noticed how fashionable and smart-looking the fashion models were. They were all flat-chested—every one of them!

So, dearie, don't waste any more time longing for what you don't have. You may get it some day, and wish you didn't.

If you have two, healthy, cancer-free breasts, thank God, no matter what size.

FORMER FLATTIE IN AUGUSTA, GA.

DEAR ABBY: I totally disagree with your advice to "Flat-Chested." Wearing a padded bra might make her look better, but what happens when she takes it off in the company of a man who was expecting more?

I was as flat-chested as they come, so all through high school my mother had me wearing padded bras. I didn't fool anybody. The girls in my gym class soon found out that the 36B's I was showing off weren't really me, and it wasn't long before all the boys knew, too. (Girls talk and so do boys.)

I finally decided it wasn't worth the teasing, so I threw away my padded bras. I figured honesty is the best policy, so why put on a false front?

I'VE GOTTA BE ME

DEAR ABBY: I'm surprised you didn't recommend silicone implants to "Flat-Chested."

I spent 39 years hating my body, then I decided to have breast-augmentation surgery. I'm only sorry I waited so long.

LOOKING GREAT

Child's Activities Restricted By Her Brittle Bone Condition

By DIANE M. BALK

Associated Press Writer

QUINCY, Ohio (AP) — Karen Cavinder's daughter is like other toddlers — except that her bones may break at any time, even from a jolt as slight as a sneeze.

Jessica May Cavinder, born Feb. 4, 1983, has osteogenesis imperfecta, also known as "brittle bone disease," which causes the fractures.

"She's perfectly normal in everything but the bones," said Mrs. Cavinder. "Every bone in her body she can break at one time or another. She can sneeze or just cough and pop a rib or something like this. They haven't found a cure for it and don't know what causes it."

The Osteogenesis Imperfecta Foundation, made up of people who either have the problem or are related to those who do, is keeping records of patients in hopes of learning more about them, said Nelda Roehm, foundation president who has the condition herself.

"This can be hereditary and it can be a mutation," Mrs. Cavinder said. "It's never been in our family on either side as far as we can check back."

Mrs. Cavinder said her daughter had 13 fractures before she was born. "She won't fracture as often when she becomes a young lady and starts her menstrual cycle. When she gets older and gets menopause, she'll fracture all the time," her mother said. "They've told us she more than likely won't walk."

The condition is not very well known, and in some cases has been mistaken for child abuse, Mrs. Roehm said.

One of the indicators of osteogenesis imperfecta is blue sclera, "where the whites of the eyes are real blue," she said. The eyes take on a bluish tinge particularly when going through a fracture cycle, she said.

Mrs. Cavinder said Jessica hadn't fractured since last spring.

"It's just she's lucky this way. They can't tell why she doesn't fracture so often," M3 Cavinder said.

Otherwise, Jessica is healthy and has had all of her baby shots. One characteristic of the condition is that some children lose their hearing later in life, Mrs. Cavinder added. They are sensitive to heat and can develop pneumonias, she said.

Because Jessica is so frail, only four people have picked her up, her mother said.

"She's in her playpen quite a bit. When she gets tired of that, I make a pile of blankets and sheets. She loves to watch television. She plays with her toys. She's very happy and a very bright baby."

Mrs. Roehm says she already has 15,000 cases listed in a registry she has compiled for more than 10 years, but expects there are at least 30,000 people who have the condition.

"This is not as rare as once thought," she added. The foundation was formed in 1971 as a support group for families and those with the condition, which is believed to be a defect in the matrix of bone and tissue. Treatment of frequent fractures can be expensive, and emotionally wearing on patients and families.

"You're living on a time bomb, never knowing when a child will go into a fracture cycle," Mrs. Roehm said.

Goals of the foundation include moral support for victims, research, and circulating information about the condition so it can be spotted. Mrs. Roehm says Gemma Geisman of Manchester, N.H., is executive director of the group.

Mrs. Roehm said the condition could become apparent at birth, as a child, or, in rare cases, in adults.

The severity varies in children from four to eight fractures to very severe cases in which children may die of respiratory problems because they can't take deep breaths without breaking ribs, she said. Children may bruise easily and bleed readily.

"At first it's a trying time," Mrs. Cavinder said. "We've gotten past the being handicapped. All the adults we have seen are very bright people. We just look past being handicapped and look for what this child can do later in life."

"I wish to God she could walk and I could see her run around with other kids. With the love these kids give, I wouldn't give it up for two kids that could walk," she said.

Pocahontas Officers Installed On Thursday

Irene Williams has been installed as Pocahontas of SilverStream Council No. 48, Degree of Pocahontas in Winterville.

Others installed are: Mary Jo Rivenbark, Wenonah; Loria Vainright, Prophetess; Elizabeth Smart, Powhatan; Pennie Dunn, keeper of records; Doris Harris, keeper of wampum; Gaynelle Cayton, collector of wampus; and Pauline Ross, trustee, term expiring in 1988.

Appointed officers serving this term are: Sallie Vainright, first scout; Marga Ross, second scout; Marie Stocks, guard of the forest; Almeta Harris, guard of the tepee; Juanita McGowan, first warrior; Clara Dell Hines, second warrior; Pearl Ross, fourth warrior;

Annie Bruce Hines, first aide; Gail Evans, second aide; Louise Cox, first runner; Martha Lee Buck, second runner; Sandra Brown, first counselor; DeLois Wingate, second counselor; Beatrice Poe, trustee, term expiring in 1986; and Bessie Nobles, trustee, term expiring in 1987.

The 50-year anniversary will be celebrated in April. Plans will be announced in the near future by the 50-Year Committee members Doris Harris, Marga Ross, Elizabeth Smart, Loria Vainright and Minnie Hines.

Mrs. Williams presented a Past Pocahontas certificate to Loria Vainright for her service to the council.

Sallie Vainright, chairman of the audit committee, gave a report. Marie Stocks and Marga Ross served on the committee with Doris Harris and Gaynelle Cayton.

Dorothy Braxton, Odell Moore and Victoria Hart were enrolled as transfer members from Oneida Council No. 47 in Ayden.

The state ways and means project was given by Mrs. Ross and tickets are available until the Great Council Session May 19-21 in Burlington.

Sallie Vainright will give the good of the order program at the meeting Feb. 7 with Louise Cox and Helen Bullock as hostesses.

Exit Polls

Those premature election result reports have never pleased us, and that displeasure has intensified with the passage of time and the accruing resentment. It's as though something of tangible value had been taken away.

True, the 1984 presidential election was virtually decided by the time polls had closed and a trend established east of the Mississippi; but the voting procedure was still under way in the rest of the country and elements of uncertainty and suspense remained very much alive.

Exit polls removed that. The end result was that in later time zones American voters were going through the motions but the importance of their dutiful voting was stolen from them.

There's nothing illegal about exit polls. No law is involved; but there's something of a cloud over the process. Every county in every state of the country has devoted money, thought and time to assuring the secret ballot is secret. We are witnessing a kind of infringement thereof.

Privately we've wondered at the willingness of some voters to discard the privacy they are provided in the polling booth. It's almost a case of inviting Big Brother to peer over their shoulders. How they collectively voted was intended to be made known by their election officials after the polls were closed and tabulated.

Last week the major television networks agreed to pledge no use of their exit polls until after the voting booths closed in any given state; but that is no concession to the interests of voters in those states wherein the polls were still operating.

There really is no satisfactory alternative to maintaining the element of equal value to a vote cast in Vermont and a vote cast in California other than barring exit polls. Even that is a bitter pill ... and possibly illegal to the extent of being unconstitutional.

Maybe it's all in the hands of the voters. If they lie and lie and lie in their exit polls the experience could be so shattering no anchorman would dare to ever again declare outcomes before confirmation by election officials. We don't like that extreme measure, either.

Symbol

One of America's proudest birds — our national symbol, the eagle — has been shot down in Pitt County and the nation is poorer for it.

It is not simply the loss of one of millions of birds which fly the nation's airways. It is the loss of one of an endangered species that concerns so many.

The body of the bald eagle was found five miles northwest of Greenville on New Year's Day. The event brought an investigation by the N.C. Division of Wildlife Management and the offer of a reward of $2,500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who killed the eagle.

There are many laws protecting the eagle and, fortunately, there are now more eagles in North Carolina than there have been in many years. Unfortunately, that gives those who want to illegally shoot them more opportunities to do so.

Eagles were plentiful and unique when this country was founded. That is why the eagle was chosen as our national symbol. Gradually they have been hunted and pushed out by man almost to the point of extinction. Now they are making a comeback of sorts and certainly they should be protected.

Fast-Food Advice On The Airways

WASHINGTON — During the rush hour one day last week, a psychologist on one of the local radio stations resolved three major crises before a break for news. It was a feat that would have impressed the likes of Henry Kissinger.

In the first, a caller wanted to know how she could make her relationship more than merely a sexual affair. The caller was advised to frolic before dinner. That way, she and her boyfriend would have more time to talk later in the evening.

The second advise seeker was a self-described male yuppie who'd been pursuing affairs with a male and a female, unbeknownst to either partner, for the last three years. Mr. Confused said he preferred sex with his male pal but contended that his girlfriend was his real friend. He was told to see a therapist before either partner killed him.

The last soul-searcher was a 21-year old Catholic who said he was in love with his younger stepister but couldn't bring himself to tell his parents. He was told to see his family priest right away.

What's bubbling here is a neverending game of America on the couch. It's practiced every day and night in cities throughout the land. According to Dr. Jacqueline Bouhoutsos, president of the Association for Media Psychology, there are close to 100 "media psychology" programs aired nationally.

Once there was a time when people sought advice from family doctors, ministers and friends. Now they turn on the radio for help. "Choose Me," a new film involving a pop psychologist, illustrates the strength of the phenomenon.

But how healthy is the fast-food advice these instant diagnosticians dish out? Do they cheapen psychology and harm the public? Do these talk shows help listeners who wouldn't otherwise make contact with the psychologist community?

Four years ago, it was rare to find licensed psychologists spouting advice on radio talk shows. The American Psychological Association warned its members against diagnosing personal problems outside the traditional therapist-patient relationship. The group said that it was unethical, unscientific and unprofessional for psychotherapists to offer snap advice over the airwaves.

But after psycho radio shows proved resistant to such pressure, the psychological association altered its position in 1981, granting members the right to provide advice on the radio but not to diagnose problems.

Since then, the line between advice and actual therapy has become almost too fine for the profession to navigate. The psychologists' group is now preparing new guidelines to assist the media psychologist; for example, it wants stations to hire another doctor to screen calls before putting them on the air.

While there is insufficient research on whether pop-psycho talk shows help or confuse people, the indications are that they transgress the norm of professional practice. By their very nature, these programs do more to exploit personal intimacy for commercial entertainment and voyeuristic pleasure than cure hangups. Critics contend that radio psychologists can't possibly diagnose a caller's problem without direct contact and a series of follow-up encounters. Moreover, the frenetic nature of radio broadcasting conflicts with the calmer pace of standard counseling.

Nonetheless, the radio psychologists are here to stay. They evidently calm some listeners' anxieties, if not cure the fundamental problems. More importantly, they bring in good ratings.

At this point, the traditional psychologist may feel his world collapsing around him. But as long as the psychological community imposes some sort of restraint on its broadcasting brethren, we aren't going to worry about it. When was the last time you met a shrink who didn't have enough work?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Perhaps the second time around always is better, as President Reagan said. But the optimism of renewal is shaded by the limits and the lessons of four years in the White House.

The promises of an administration's first Inauguration Day often are greater for the fact that a new team is in power, new people with different ways of tackling old and intractable problems.

At the start of a second term, the challenge is to complete, to renew, to rededicate, to continue. It is the second act, usually played with much the same cast.

That applies to the second Reagan administration, even though the president's White House chief of staff is swapping jobs with his secretary of the treasury, and two of his top first-term aides are quitting the government. Former aides never are far away when the president needs advice.

Reagan's second inaugural address sounded the themes of his first, predictably. "Four years ago, I spoke to you of a new beginning and we have accomplished that," he told the leaders of government in the Capitol Rotunda, where they took haven against the cold that forced cancellation of the traditional outdoor inauguration.

"We believed then and now: there are no limits to growth and human progress when men and women are free to follow their dreams. And we were right to believe. Tax rates have been reduced, inflation cut dramatically, and more people are employed."

He urged that the American economy be "freed from government's grip." It was a passage that recalled a theme of his first inauguration: "Government is not the solution; it is the problem."

That case becomes more difficult to argue after four years at the helm of American government. After all, the people at the top of government are Reagan's own people.

But Reagan isn't budging in his determination to curb "the spiraling demands of a bloated federal establishment," no matter who runs it.

He said Reaganomics has been vindicated by more than two years of economic growth and there'll be no changing course now. "We have begun to increase rewards for work, savings and investment, reduce the increase in the cost and size of government and its interference in people's lives," the president said.

Reagan built in his one new economic proposal, an overhaul of the federal tax code to simplify the system, by saying he wants to "make it more fair and bring tax rates down for all who work and earn."

It's not a brand new idea. Jimmy Carter made total tax reform a major theme of the campaign that carried him to the White House in 1976. He never got anywhere on it during his one term as president.

Nor were brand-new ideas offered on the federal deficit that has swollen to record levels under Reagan, the conservative who came to office denouncing Carter deficits and promising to balance the budget

Can't Help Looking Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Could Gary Hart or Jack Kemp listen to President Reagan's inaugural address without musing what they would say four years from now? Could George Bush swear to faithfully execute the office of vice president of the United States without wondering how it would feel to take that oath without the word "vice?"

More than any other American ritual, Inauguration Day belonged to the president.

The dancers at the balls, the protesters — all the activity revolves around the president, whether entering the office or beginning a second term.

But Inauguration Day also is an event that makes the hearts of politicians beat a little faster while dreaming of a starring role four years hence.

For the president's political allies or opponents, there may be moments during the ceremonies when their eyes glaze over, giving a hint that their minds are racing four years ahead.

Because Reagan cannot run again, all restrictions are off Republicans who had to spend the last four years as loyal followers.

But raging ambition is considered unseemly, so most politicians driven by a lust for the presidency deflect questions about 1988 as "premature" and talk about the need to deal with the pressing problems confronting the nation.

In his heart of hearts, Bush may know he's virtually certain to be a candidate for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination.

He admits he's "doing some thinking with a handful of friends to figure out what it is I need to do ... to make a prudent decision a couple of years from now." The vice president insists he isn't "leaning one way or the other."

Kemp's political advisers call his heavy speaking schedule "positioning." His friends made sure there were plenty of "Kemp '88" signs being waved when the New York congressman spoke to the 1984 Republican Convention last summer.

"It was awesome to look out over the sea of faces and see all of the signs," said Kemp. But when the question turns to whether he's ready to run in 1988, his reply is "it's too soon to say."

Howard H. Baker served three terms in the Senate, his last four years as majority leader. Then he quit and settled in to semiprivate life and a big-money law practice in Washington. But that isn't the end of campaigning for the Tennessee Republican.

"I would like to run for president, that is my commitment," he says, then adding the obligatory postscript that he's made no firm decision yet.

Strength For Today

It is interesting to note the eras through which humanity has passed. Today we are in the midst of the most astounding era humanity has known; it seems we can do almost anything. To be sure, we have no writers, artists, and musicians to compare with those of the past. But we have discovered the mystery of atomic structure, we have orbited the earth and have placed men on the moon.

Then what next? Will it be the opening up of a spiritual era? May we establish contacts with other planets and perhaps begin upon them a whole interplanetary or interstellar era? Our grandchildren —

Commuter Trains Collide In Indiana, Hurting 129

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Two commuter trains that collided head-on, injuring 129 people, had been sent onto the same track during evening rush hour because sub-zero temperatures had damaged overhead electrical lines, a spokesman for the rail line said.

Rescue crews had to use crowbars to free some of the people from the wreckage Monday evening, said Fire Chief Bobby Joiner. Only 12 of the injuries were serious enough to require hospitalization.

The trains "should have been switched around each other.... One should have waited for the other," said Richard Bunton, a spokesman for the South Shore Line.

Investigators were attempting to determine which train was at fault.

The trains, part of the last electric inter-urban railroad in the United States, were both traveling on east-bound track because the overhead lines on the westbound track had been damaged by the extreme cold and were under repair, said Bunton.

The eastbound train "full of passengers" from Chicago struck the westbound train between stops in Gary, said Bunton.

Patricia Shadwick, 30, an insurance broker riding from Chicago to her hometown of Gary, said, "I was fortunate that my injuries were not serious. There were four people on my car who were taken out on splinter stretchers."

"Everyone on the train pitched in, in fact, I went around to help people before I thought, I better sit down."

Two investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board's Chicago office headed to Gary immediately after news of the crash, and two more investigators will be sent from Washington, said board spokesman Ira Furman in a telephone interview from Washington.

Ninety-eight people were taken to Gary's Methodist Hospital, said spokesman Chuck Green.

"To be honest, we're inundated," said hospital spokeswoman Pam Roth.

At St. Mary Medical Center in Gary, 28 people were being treated, said spokesman Mike Adler.

Three people were taken to St. Catherine Hospital in East Chicago, said spokeswoman Rosemary Moore.

Hospital officials at all three facilities said none of the injured was critically hurt. Only a dozen injuries were serious enough to warrant the patients being admitted to the hospitals.

The eastbound train with four cars left Chicago at 5:58 p.m. and was scheduled to terminate in Michigan City, Bunton said.

The westbound train, with two cars, from Gary was heading to Chicago, Bunton said.

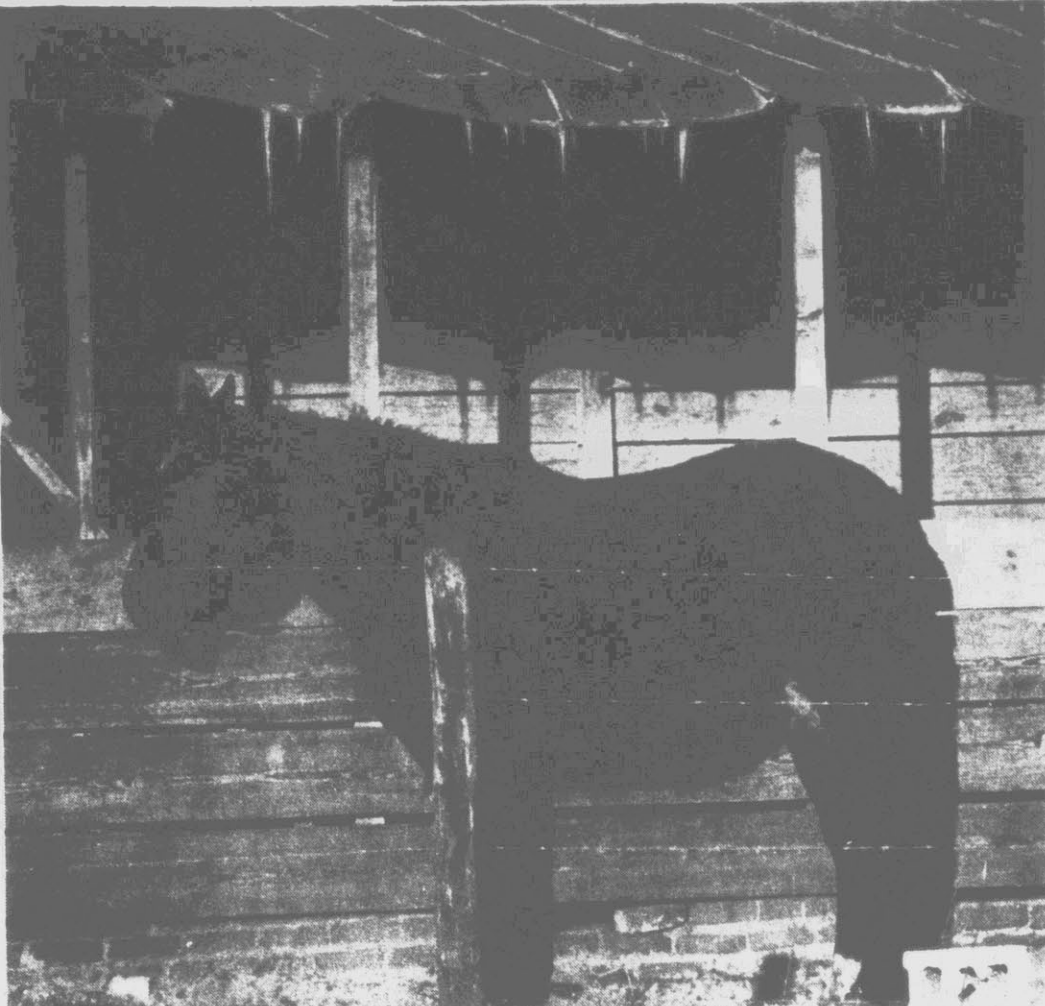

"One car derailed, and the leading cars of each train were severely damaged," Bunton said, but he could not confirm a report that both trains were moving at the time of the crash.

"These are electrically propelled trains with an overhead system. The extreme cold gets into wire or any metal contacts. I assume that happened with the weather we had Saturday," said Bunton.

Temperatures fell to as low as 27 degrees below zero in Chicago early Sunday.

"The wires got torn down, both east and westbound, but we repaired the eastbound wires, and were working on the westbound when the accident occurred. We were single-tracking in the area," he said.

A diesel will pull the trains over the westbound tracks today where the overhead lines are still down, said Bunton.

12 Years Later, Abortion Debate Runs Full Steam

By DELORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

Twelve years after the U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortion the issue remains surrounded by controversy, and activists on both sides are using today's anniversary of the ruling to make their point through protest and prayer.

In Cleveland, supporters of legalized abortion planned a potluck supper at Cleveland State University, where they will listen to music and write letters to elected officials thanking them for their continued support.

A few blocks away, the Greater Cleveland Right-to-Life chapter will hold its annual "Respect of Life" memorial service at the Masonic Temple auditorium.

While the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights in Kansas holds a prayer breakfast, members of Kansans for Life plan to picket outside. The anti-abortion group also will be at the statehouse tonight handing out red roses to legislators and talking to them about right-to-life positions.

In Washington, demonstrators were to gather before noon today on the Ellipse a quarter of a mile from the White House before beginning their annual March for Life to the steps of the Supreme Court on Capitol Hill. Before the march, President Reagan was to address them on a loudspeaker hookup from the Oval Office.

Security at the U.S. Supreme Court building was tightened today, and wooden barricades were placed overnight at walkways leading from city sidewalks onto court property.

Three court police officers stood by as Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who wrote the abortion decision, ate breakfast in the courthouse cafeteria.

Activists on both sides said that in commemorating the anniversary they wanted to avoid the violence that has haunted the abortion issue with increasing regularity in recent months.

In North Dakota on Monday, abortion rights supporters ended a vigil that had lasted more than 60 hours at the Fargo Women's Health Organization, but clinic staff said a security guard would remain on duty to ward off any vandalism.

Engine Failure May Have Caused Plane Crash

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Pieces of propeller blades and other debris found a half mile from the crash site of a chartered turboprop led a federal official to say engine failure was a possible cause of the accident that killed 64 people returning from a gambling weekend.

"It's no secret we're finding all kinds of pieces scattered around," said Carl Borchers, a Federal Aviation Administration accident prevention specialist. "It's always possible there was engine failure."

But Borchers said it will take experts to determine if the pieces dropped off the plane or were blown away from it by the explosions that followed Monday's crash of Galaxy Airlines Flight 203, which was carrying people to Minneapolis after a weekend junket. Three passengers survived, but two of them were hospitalized in critical condition early today.

Officials of the National Transportation Safety Board, investigating the crash, met here Monday night behind closed doors but made no statement afterward.

Flight 203, a four-engine Lockheed Electra 188, crashed in clear weather early Monday.

point they feel too sure of themselves.

"We used to say when I was playing football ... one of the charges the coach would make ... was 'you can't go on this field cocky.' This is one of the things the Democratic Party has done. We've got to the point we feel too sure of ourselves. We've got to realize that everybody who's in the game is out there to win."

"We must play like we're the underdogs," Garrett suggested. "Being over confident, over cocky, is one of the reasons for the loss in November."

The National Democratic Party "has been accused of catering to blacks, women, to labor groups" and other "special interests," Garrett said.

"I think the accusation is correct. But there's nothing wrong with that. It's just a matter of putting your interest where it ought to be."

Garrett said "the Democratic Party lends itself to poor and distressed people. We just have to glorify that and make it sound the way it's intended."

"You could say the other party caters to big business and the rich. You could say everybody caters to somebody or some group. That's not necessarily wrong."

Reagan Adopts Conciliatory Stance

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Launching his final four years as president with an appeal for "new boldness," Ronald Reagan has won promises from some members of Congress to help stop the arms race and reduce the huge federal deficits.

But congressional Democrats are warning that the president's initiatives on both the budget and defense could face a reception on Capitol Hill as chilly as the winds that forced Monday's inaugural ceremonies indoors.

Democratic leaders praised Reagan for striking a conciliatory, bipartisan note in his second inaugural address. But they criticized the president's mention of his proposed anti-missile defense and his call for a balanced federal budget in the face of $200 billion federal deficits.

"It was nice rhetoric, but if he had to comply with his own call for a balanced budget, the government would have to shut down today," said Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

A chill of another kind — frigid air and strong winds — forced cancellation of the traditional inaugural parade down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House and moved the swearing-in ceremonies indoors. It was the first time since 1833 that brutally cold weather had forced cancellation of the festivities.

"Let history say of us, these were golden years — when the American Revolution was reborn, when freedom gained new life and America reached for her best," Reagan told a crowd of about 1,000 VIPs crammed into the Capitol Rotunda — only a fraction of the 140,000 who had held tickets to the planned ceremony on the West Terrace of the Capitol.

Speaking later in the day in a suburban sports arena to thousands of disappointed band members, Reagan said: "You would have been the greatest show on Earth."

A round of nine inaugural balls and scores of private parties culminated four days of inaugural festivities in the nation's capital.

Matching the jubilant mood of Washington, the New York stock market closed 34 points higher on Monday.

Reagan delivered his inaugural address without benefit of a Teleprompter — unusual for a major presidential address — and bad acoustics in the 95-foot-diameter circular room under the Capitol dome prevented many of those in attendance from hearing his remarks.

However, the address was broadcast nationally, as was Reagan's official oath-taking at a White House ceremony attended by only a small group of government officials and invited guests the day before.

Reagan's speech was solemn and, at times, poetic. "We live in a world lit by lightning. So much is changing and will change, but so much endures and transcends time," Reagan said.

"We must think anew and move with new boldness, so every American who seeks work can find work; so the least among us have an equal chance to achieve the greatest things — to be heroes who heal our sick, feed the hungry, protect peace among nations and leave this world a better place," Reagan said, citing the "brotherhood of man."

"Our goal must be to bring those wonderful words to life by reducing the threat of nuclear war and by ensuring justice and opportunity for all our people," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., Reagan's chief congressional critic in his first term.

"I will do everything I can to work with President Reagan in making the 'brotherhood of man' a reality," the speaker said.

"He touched all the bases," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan. "He wasn't going after anyone. He was talking about healing and union."

But while the tone of Reagan's speech was applauded, congressional Democrats expressed skepticism over its contents.

In particular, Reagan's advocacy for a defense against space-borne weapons — his so-called "Star Wars" plan — drew criticism from Democrats.

"I have approved a research program to see if a security shield can be developed that will destroy nuclear missiles before they reach their target. Such a shield would not kill people but destroy weapons; it would not militarize space, but help demilitarize the arsenals of earth," Reagan said.

"Obviously this issue will raise controversies. There is not unanimous support for Reagan's view," said assistant House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash. However, Foley pledged "to work with the president to find whatever common ground we can."

Reagan said he would "shortly submit a budget to the Congress aimed at freezing government program spending for the next year." In addition, he reiterated his support for a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget, saying "Let us make it unconstitutional for the federal government to spend more than it takes in."

Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., said: "President Reagan gave a lukewarm inaugural address — warmer than the 10-degree Washington weather, but chilling — since his remarks were out of touch with the reality of an endangered economy."

GNP Posts Strongest Gain In More Than 3 Decades

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy, as a proud President Reagan proclaimed prematurely, grew at the fastest rate in more than three decades last year, the Commerce Department confirmed today.

The department said the gross national product — the broadest measure of economic health — grew 6.8 percent for all of 1984. That was the best showing since an 8.3 percent rise in 1951.

Despite the rapid growth, inflation remained low. A price index tied to the GNP showed an inflation rate of 3.7 percent last year, the best performance since a 3 percent rise in 1967.

The president, who got an advance look at the statistics, tantalized Republican supporters at several inaugural balls Monday night by hinting that the 1984 growth was the best in three decades while inflation had remained under control.

"I'm not at liberty to tell you what they'll say," Reagan said of the statistics. "but one will be the best since 1951 and the other will be the best since 1967."

The double-barreled good news further fueled economists' optimistic predictions that 1985 will turn in a better performance than many had expected just a short time ago.

That optimism was fueled by evidence that the economy has rebounded from a sharp slowdown in the late summer and early fall.

Today's report put GNP growth in the final three months of 1984 at an annual rate of 3.9 percent. This was a strong upward revision from last month's preliminary estimate of a 2.8 percent growth rate.

The 3.9 percent growth more than doubled the weak 1.6 percent rate turned in from July through September.

'Star Wars' Research Under Way While Debate Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's renewed yearning in his inaugural speech for a "far better way" to protect the United States against nuclear weapons reflects an age-old goal: the perfect defense against attack.

Reagan's 1983 proposal for research into a "Star Wars" defensive shield touched off a global debate among defense experts and scientists about whether such a system is technologically feasible and if it is, whether it would make the world safer or more dangerous.

In his inaugural speech Monday, Reagan said such a shield would be "a far better way" to protect the nation against Soviet nuclear weapons than relying on the current doctrine of mutual destruction that says attack is avoided by the threat of massive retaliatory destruction.

"Such a shield would not kill people, but destroy weapons," Reagan said. "It would not militarize space, but would help demilitarize the arsenals of Earth."

The one thing that supporters and critics agree on is that any feasible system is a long way off.

"We don't even yet have any real idea what a system would look like," says presidential science adviser George Keyworth, one of Star Wars' key backers.

Congress' science arm, the Office of Technology Assessment, was even more blunt last year, saying the prospect that a workable system could be developed is "so remote that it should not serve as the basis of public expectation or national policy."

Reagan said the goal of any such defense would be to render "nuclear weapons impotent and obsolete" and thus end the current reliance on the threat of massive destruction to keep the peace.

The Star Wars plan, known officially as the Strategic Defense Initiative, has become part of the arms control negotiations between the two superpowers, with the United States and the Soviet Union agreeing to talk about ways to limit the militarization of outer space. The Soviets have criticized the Star Wars concept.

Meanwhile, the hunt goes on in research labs around the country, watched closely by the Pentagon's SDI office.

That office is headed by Air Force Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, who had headed the U.S. space shuttle project.

The Pentagon plans to spend $26 billion over the next five years on Star Wars research, including $1.4 billion in the current fiscal year. Since Abrahamson's office has less than 100 employees, little will be spent on salaries.

Instead, most of the money will be doled out to finance research by private companies or other federal offices, such as the two national research laboratories operated in California and New Mexico for the Defense Department.

Abrahamson says the Pentagon wants to develop a "layered defense" which would attack enemy missiles during all four phases of their flight.

Those four include the "boost phase," the four- to six-minute initial stage when the missile's engines are firing and all the warheads are attached. It is during that stage that the weapon is most vulnerable, according to scientists.

Countdown Continues

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Freezing temperatures affected some launch pad operations today but did not slow the countdown for the liftoff of space shuttle Discovery with five military astronauts and a spy satellite at an unannounced time Wednesday afternoon.

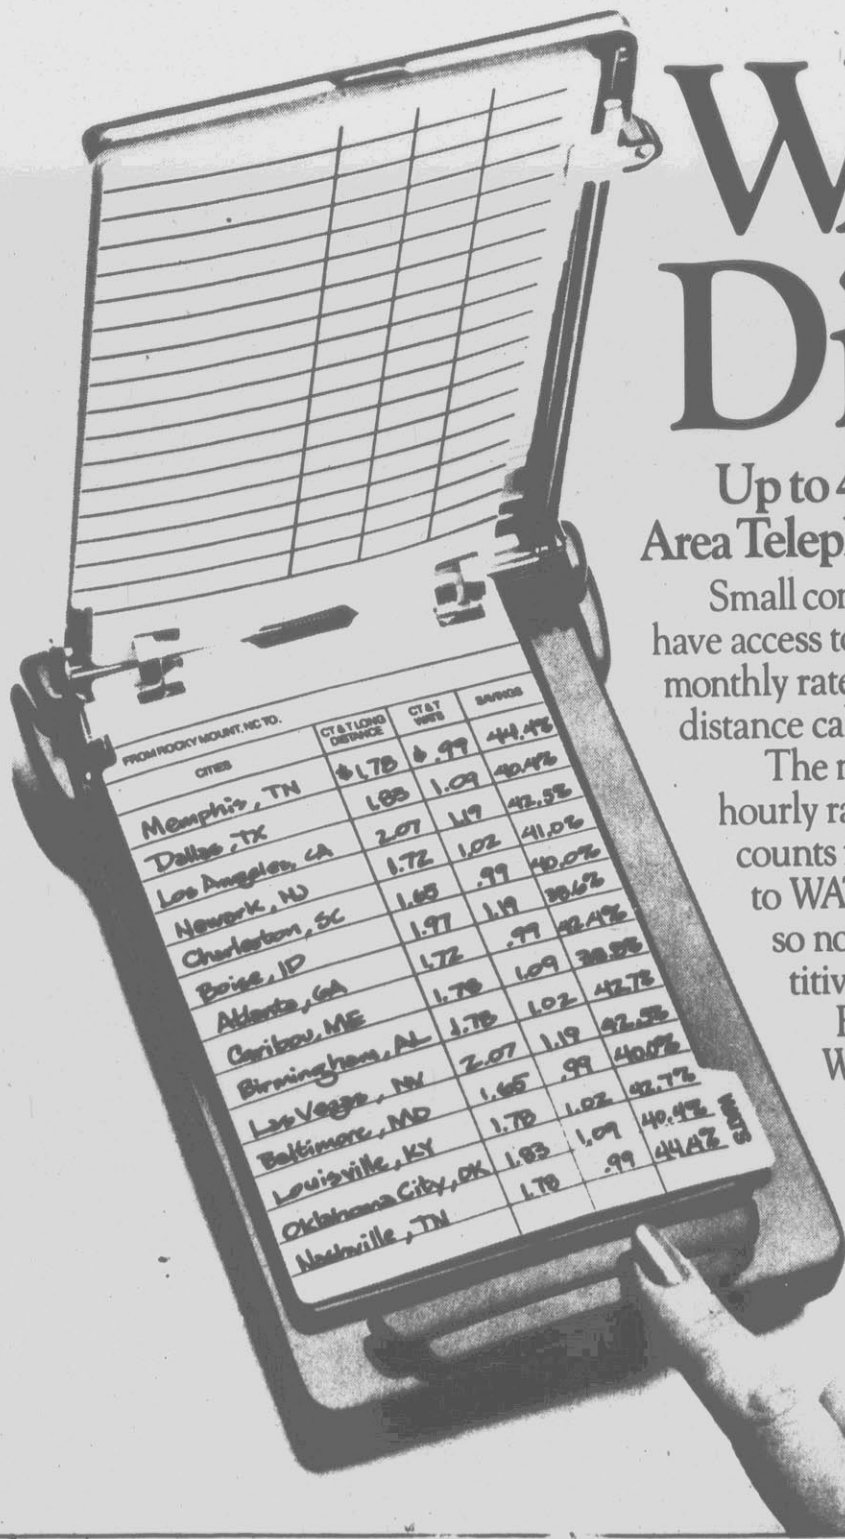

For the second straight night, frozen water supplies curtailed some outside work and forced the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to station a fire department pumper truck at the base of the pad in case a fire broke out during the loading of volatile liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen into the shuttle's power-producing fuel cells Monday.

The fire truck hooked into a 3-inch pipe extending to the pad's 155-foot level, where the fuel loading was done.

NASA said Monday that "other operational impacts are anticipated" because of the weather, but none that could hold up the launch.

The forecast was for improving weather, with above-freezing temperatures in the 30s early Wednesday, rising to about 55 degrees by launch time. The prediction also calls for light winds and 7-mile visibility.

The 15th space shuttle mission and the first to carry a secret Defense Department satellite is set for liftoff sometime between 1:15 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. Wednesday.

WATS The Difference?

Up to 44% savings on long distance with Wide Area Telephone Service from Carolina Telephone.

Small companies take notice — talk really is cheap when you have access to the WATS network. You pay a surprisingly low monthly rate and then you can save 40-44% on every long distance call you make.

The more hours your WATS line is in use, the lower the hourly rate becomes. And all the Carolina Telephone discounts for evening, night and weekend calling also apply to WATS. There is no minimum usage requirements, so now almost any size business can obtain the competitive advantage of WATS.

Killing Cold Clutches East

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer

A massive block of arctic cold already blamed for at least 101 deaths boxed in the eastern third of the nation today after freezing Florida oranges as hard as baseballs, pushing the mercury to records lows and playing a role in the collision of two commuter trains in Indiana.

Snow emergencies were declared in several Ohio counties and in the Buffalo, N.Y., area. Gusting winds made many roads impassable. In Buffalo, 27 inches of snow was on the ground or blowing around today.

"It's all upside down," said Harry Gordon at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., noting the temperature at International Falls, Minn., often the nation's coldest spot, was 3 degrees warmer than the 9 recorded early today in Nashville, Tenn.

Farmers in Florida, Georgia, Texas and Louisiana feared for their crops. Officials in Florida said they expected "significant" losses from the bitter cold that has chilled the East since the weekend.

In Philadelphia, Mayor Wilson Goode ordered police to take any homeless people on the streets past 4 p.m. to shelters. Paterson, N.J. Mayor Frank Graves ordered people found on the streets to be housed and fed in the city's new detention center, nearly empty because "in this bitter cold weather, crime is at its lowest."

Many utilities strained under an increased load and tens of thousands of people lost power temporarily on Monday in at least 10 states from Michigan to Alabama.

And the festivities for President Reagan's inauguration moved indoors on Monday after Reagan said he feared the cold would hurt people working outside. "The eastern third of the nation will be slow to recover," said

Gordon. "Temperatures are still freezing as far south as West Palm Beach, Fla."

Schools in parts of at least five states from North Carolina to Pennsylvania were closed today for a second day in a row.

More than 80 records were set Monday in the Southeast and East for the coldest temperature for the date. Twenty of those were also the coldest temperatures ever recorded, including 4 below zero in Athens, Ga., and 16 below zero in Asheville, N.C. Another two cities equalled their coldest reading ever.

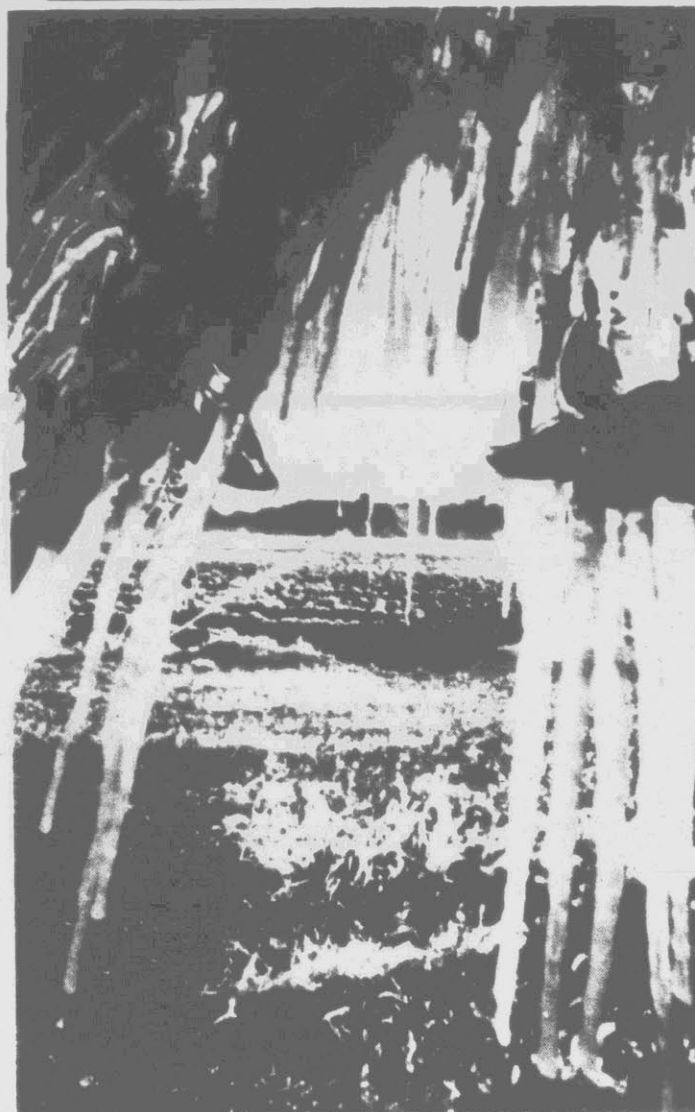

The temperature plunged to 22 degrees below zero early Monday in Beckley, W.Va. New Orleans, where it chilled to 14, was just one degree warmer than Fairbanks, Alaska.

The 30 degrees below zero recorded at Mountain Lake was "the all-time low temperature recorded in Virginia any time, any place," said climatologist Patrick Michaels of the University of Virginia.

Weather-related deaths — including those from traffic accidents on icy roads, exposure and fires blamed on makeshift heaters — were reported in 20 states since Friday, when the storms began.

The cold was blamed for the crash of two commuter trains in Gary, Ind., Monday evening, injuring 129 people, none seriously. The Chicago-area trains had been routed onto the same track after subzero temperatures damaged overhead electrical lines, said Richard Bunton, spokesman for the South Shore Lines.

Police and emergency workers in Kentucky and Alabama patrolled the streets, bringing the homeless to already-crowded shelters. In New York City, officials said more than 19,000 homeless crowded shelters.

FRUIT SPRAYED — Ice hangs from an orange tree near Plant City, Fla., Monday as water freezes after being sprayed from an underground irrigation system being used to protect the trees and strawberries in the background. Growers use the water to form an ice layer to protect fruit and berries from freezing weather. Temperatures dropped to record lows Sunday night across northern Floridas, nearing zero on the northern Gulf coast. (AP Laserphoto)

Teen Held In School Shooting Spree

GODDARD, Kan. (AP) — Schools were closed today in what one resident called "the safest place in America" after a junior high school principal was fatally shot, three people wounded, and a 14-year-old boy booked as the gunman.

James Alan Kearbey, 14, was arrested about 90 minutes after the shootings at Goddard Junior High School. Officers confiscated an M-1 rifle, a .357-caliber Magnum pistol and dozens of rounds of ammunition.

Kearbey, known to his teachers and classmates as Alan, was a student at the school. Investigators refused to discuss a motive for the attack.

Classes were canceled today at all Goddard schools, officials said.

Classmates described Kearbey as an unpopular student who was sometimes hard to be around. They said he had a fascination with military weapons and talked frequently about war. Classmates said he was a C-plus student who was capable of straight A's if he tried.

"He seemed kind of lonesome," said Mike German, a teen-age neighbor of Kearbey's. "He was a 'by-himself' kind of guy."

Kearbey was expected to appear in juvenile court this afternoon. Because of his age, he can't be charged or tried as an adult. If convicted in juvenile court, he can't be jailed beyond his 21st birthday.

James McGee, 35, principal of Goddard Junior High School, died about three hours after he was shot in the chest.

Teachers Dawn Swearingen, 32, and Donald Harris, 39, and student Daniel Williams, 14, all were in good condition in Wichita hospitals Monday night, officials said.

Mrs. Swearingen suffered head and neck wounds from bullet fragments. Harris had a gunshot wound to the left hip and Williams was shot in the left thigh.

"All I saw was the rifle," said Matthew Wert, a 12-year-old student who said he saw Kearbey shortly after he entered the school.

"I asked if he was doing a report on it. He started to say 'No,' but then he said 'Yes,' and walked on. Five minutes later I heard gunshots."

Goddard Police Chief Jim Nelson said Mrs. Swearingen and McGee were shot outside the principal's office.

Nelson said after the first shots were fired, Kearbey walked about 100 feet and was confronted by Harris, a history and driver education teacher.

Harris and Williams were then shot, the chief said, and Kearbey ran from the building.

About 90 minutes later, Wichita police officer Terry Morrow found the boy in a field just south of town. He got out of his car with a shotgun and confronted the teen-ager.

"He removed the rifle from his shoulder and held it to his side along with a .357. I told him to drop them and lay them away from him."

News of the shooting rocked the ordinarily quiet village of tree-lined streets, picket fences and 1,400 people on U.S. 54, just outside Wichita.

Darlene Criss, a Goddard English teacher, described it as "the safest place in America."

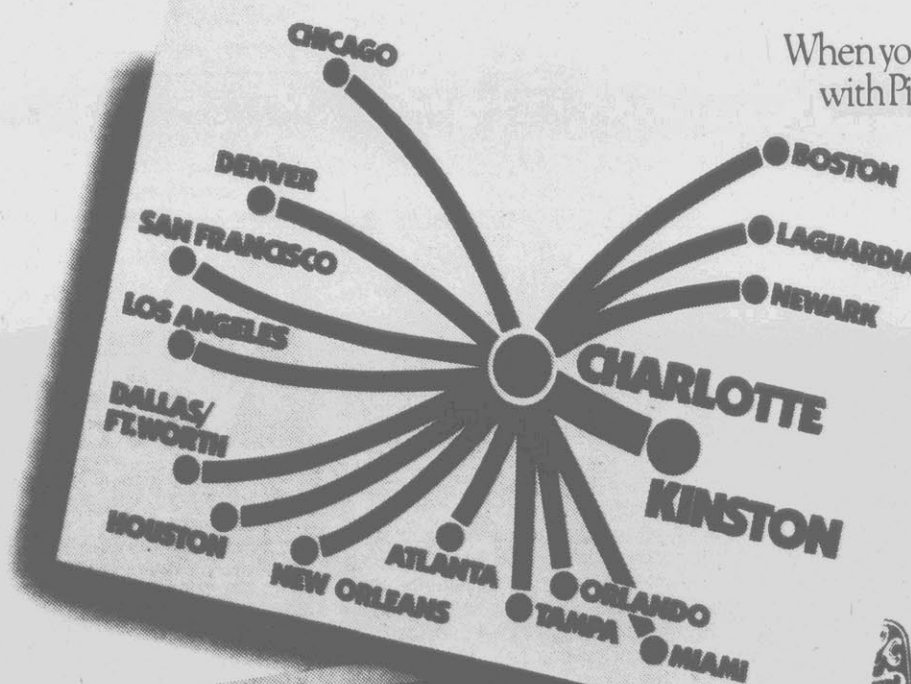

Kearbey, a Boy Scout working on his Eagle Scout badge, lived a few blocks from the school with his parents, Wayne and Mary Kearbey, and a younger brother.

Wayne and Mary Kearbey declined to be interviewed Monday.

A Couple Of Ideas For People On The Way Up.

When you're on the way up, one of the quickest ways to go is with Piedmont Airlines and the American Express Card.

Piedmont flies nonstop each day to Charlotte, where you can change planes and connect to more than 45 destinations. And whichever destination you choose, you'll be able to charge your tickets quickly with the American Express Card.

Piedmont's hub facility in Charlotte is smaller and less crowded than the hubs of other major airlines. So connections don't take nearly as long. And you won't have to fight crowds to get from one flight to the next.

As a result, flying Piedmont and using the American Express Card is both faster and easier. Which, when it comes to flying, is the whole idea to begin with.

Fly Piedmont With The American Express Card.

The more places that you travel to on Piedmont, the more you're going to need the American Express Card.

Other Connections Through Charlotte
Asheville	Greenville/	Nashville
Charlottesville	Spartanburg	Philadelphia
Cincinnati	Jacksonville, FL	Pittsburgh
Cleveland	Louisville	Roanoke
Daytona Beach	Memphis	Tri-Cities
Detroit	Myrtle Beach	Washington

It's the one Card that's a good idea in every city Piedmont flies to. Use it for almost anything that makes traveling a pleasure. Hotels and restaurants. Shopping and entertainment. Use it from the moment you call for your Piedmont reservations, till the time you return your rental car. For details, call your travel agent or Piedmont toll-free at 1-800-251-5720.

And always use the American Express Card. After all, one good idea deserves another.

Oak City Woman Dies As Bus, Car Collide At Intersection

OAK CITY — A 33-year-old Oak City woman, Judy Mae Staten Smith, was killed Monday afternoon when her car and a bus collided at the intersection of N.C. 11 and N.C. 125.

Three other people in the car were injured — the driver, Jerry Jerome Staten, 25, Catherine Bethea, 9, and Albert Jr. Staten, 11, all of Oak City. According to a spokesman at Martin General Hospital, Jerry Staten suffered multiple lacerations of the face and was transferred to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for evaluation of the injuries. The two children were treated for minor injuries and released.

According to law enforcement reports, a charter bus driven by Henderson Collins, 48, of Jacksonville, traveling south toward Bethel on N.C. 11, failed to stop for a stop sign and flashing red light and struck the car, which was traveling east on N.C. 125. Investigating officers listed the estimated speed of the bus as 55 mph, with the impact speed estimated at 50 mph. The speed limit at the intersection is 45 mph.

A third vehicle, owned by Francis Shirley Harrington of Bethel, parked at a store adjacent to the intersection was also struck by the bus. Damages to the bus were estimated at $20,000; to the Staten vehicle, a 1974 model, at $800, and to the parked car, $1,000.

Trooper Reid Roberts said the two children were thrown from the car by the force of the collision. Miss Bethea and Jerry Staten suffered cuts, while the younger Staten had a bruised leg.

Roberts said the accident wasn't weather-related. His investigation was continuing.

"It sounded like two sticks of dynamite went off," said Francis

Harrington, who was pumping gas at his store nearby when the collision occurred. "I just stood there and froze. I put too much gas in the women's car."

"It was just 'boom,'" said David Williams, who was getting gas at the store when the wreck occurred. The bus "spun around and looked like it was coming into the building but (it) hit a parked car."

Williams and Harrington were among the witnesses who rushed to help the injured.

Williams said the girl ended up on the road while the boy "was pulled out of the windshield" by witnesses.

Harrington said Jerry Staten appeared shaken but not seriously hurt.

"He got out of the car and was kneeling on the (traffic) island," said Harrington. "We couldn't do anything with him. People gathered around him with their coats to keep him warm."

be presented to the N.C. General Assembly for ratification. The proposed legislation includes the following provisions:

•An interim board of education will be responsible for supervision, coordination, purchase and construction for all new school buildings and to prepare capital outlay, debt service and current expense budgets. The board will exist in addition to the current Pitt and Greenville boards of education and will consist of four existing city board members and all eight county board members.

•On July 1, 1986, the date the proposed consolidation takes effect, the interim board will become the Pitt County Board of Education.

•The continuation of the school capital reserve fund established by the County Commissioners in September 1984 will be, according to the legislation, "subject to any dramatic change in the economic conditions in Pitt County as the County Commissioners, in their discretion, shall deem advisable if the said continuation should become unduly burdensome on the taxpayers of Pitt County."

•Pitt County will consist of the following nine residence districts for election to the Pitt County Board of Education: District I includes the Bethel and Belvoir townships and will elect one member; District II includes the Arthur, Falkland and Fountain townships and will elect one member; District III includes the Carolina and Pactolus townships and will elect one member; District IV includes the Chicod, Grimesland and Swift Creek townships and will elect one member; District V is the Farmville township and will elect one member; District VI is the Winterville township and will elect one member; District VII is the Grifton township and will elect one member; District VIII is the Ayden township and will elect one member; District nine is the Greenville township and will elect four members.

•All members of the interim board that become members of the consolidated Pitt County Board of Education will finish their current terms. Afterwards, all members elected to the consolidated board of education will serve six-year terms.

•Candidates for election to the board will be placed on the ballot by district but voted on by all voters in the county.

•The interim board will have authority between ratification of the legislation and July 1, 1986, to prepare and submit to the County Commissioners all consolidated school budgets.

•Funding to the merged school system by the State Board of Education must not be less than the allotments to the two separate systems for a period of two years.

Consolidation of Pitt County and Greenville schools, always a red-hot topic, was brought into the spotlight in November 1982 when the County Commissioners contracted with Research Triangle Institute to conduct a merger feasibility study in the county.

When the $40,000 study was completed, it recommended consolidation as the "best way to solve serious problems facing the two school districts." The problems, said the study, included a declining enrollment and a lopsided black-white student population in the Greenville schools and overcrowding and old, outdated facilities in Pitt schools.

The proposed consolidation is not without opposition, however. Petitions requiring the County Commissioners to hold a referendum on the issue are currently being circulated by a group of county Parent Advisory Council members. The group must get signatures from 25 percent of the registered voters in the county to require a vote.

The consolidation committee's next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 12.

according to reports.

"The city streets are in pretty good shape," said Public Works Director Mayo Allen, "but they are still bad enough that everyone ought to drive carefully. There will still be an icy spot here and there."

"The crews used sand spreaders to spread load after load of sand Sunday night and they have been making sure the streets aren't icy Monday and today. Everything is pretty well back to normal. But as soon as we get a call, we check on the spot," Allen said.

He said the crews were on regular duty today and the problems were almost all cleared up.

"If waterpipes should freeze and burst, and one burst last night, it will pour lots of water on the street," Allen said. "Most of our streets do have waterlines under them. If a pipe freezes, water pours onto the street and causes an icy spot, so people should drive extra careful in case there is an icy spot."

C.L. Haislip, assistant division engineer with the Department of Transportation, said the county's roads were almost completely clear of icy spots.

"We have been out working on the roads and as far as we know, there are no problems except a few shady spots on some of the secondary paved roads," Haislip said. "We are working on those spots today."

Haislip said the area roads were 95 percent clear and all primary roads were in good shape.

Because the roads were clear today, Pitt County schools opened at their regular time; Monday's snow day will be made up on Thursday, which was to be a teacher's work-day.

Burst pipes in at least two county schools caused problems early today but were fixed by mid-morning according to Thomas L. Craft, associate superintendent of the Pitt school system.

Belvoir Elementary had no water and no heat in parts of the building when students arrived today but Principal Pat James said all classrooms and the heating plant were operative by 8:30 a.m. The school did have heat in the lunchroom, gym and eight trailers so "we put children two classes each in these areas," Mrs. James said. By 11 a.m. "the school didn't have problems anymore," she said. "We are toasty warm in here now."

A number of parents picked up their children shortly after school opened today, Mrs. James said, because of the problems. Many parents complained because the school opening was not delayed a few hours because of the problems but county officials pointed out the difficulties occurred after most children were on their way to school.

Howard Rallies Past Sluggish Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Fred Hill hit a short baseline jumper with seven seconds left in the game to allow Howard University to pull out a 48-46 come-from-behind victory over East Carolina University last night.

The Pirates, up by as much as 12 points, fell apart in the final 16 minutes of the game, scoring a dozen points as Howard put on a furious comeback to take as much as a three-point lead in the game before sinking the final basket of the game to break a 46-46 tie.

The loss, ECU's ninth in 14 starts, was the fifth straight for the sliding Pirates, and left Coach Charlie Harrison anything but happy since it was a game the Pirates easily could have won.

Throughout the first half, the Pirates got the ball inside, dominated the boards, and played outstanding defense.

But when the second half was four minutes old, things suddenly began to come unglued. Up 34-22 with 16:10 showing, it appeared the Pirates might be headed for a rout. But from there on in, they hit only four field goals, and Howard came running back to outscore ECU 26-12 the rest of the way.

"Scotty (Hardy) got tired, and our big guys (Leon Bass and Roy Smith) got tired. So we made some substitutions and they didn't make the plays. Their trap bothered us, but we missed some easy shots, too," Harrison said. "Then, we missed the front end of several one-and-ones when we needed them."

Harrison said that even after the starters got back into the game, things would no longer go right. "I think they stopped trying to win and tried not to lose. We told them to keep attacking, but they seemed to get awfully scared. We got the ball inside and got things going in the first half, but in the last 15 minutes, when we'd get it in, we'd turn it over."

The coach said that Howard really did not do anything differently than they did do in the first half. "We just didn't play as strong in the second."

"It was a combination of everything. You just can't pick any one thing. They've just got to take the bull by the horns and say we're not going to get beat."

Leading by six at the half, the Pirates quickly stretched it to nine in the first 1:06 of the second period at 28-20. Then after another Bison basket, Bass hit on a hook and William Grady scored from the baseline for a 32-22 lead. Howard twice missed at the free throw line, and Curt Vanderhurst hit a jumper that ran it to 34-22.

That's when the bottom fell out. Over the next eight minutes, Howard outscored the Pirates, 13-4, led by four points by Robert Jones, to draw within three at 39-35. Grady broke a five-minute drought at the baseline, but a basket by Hill, followed by his two free throws cut the margin to one, 40-39 with 6:54 to go.

The Pirates twice missed at the line before Jones scored at the line to give Howard a 41-40 edge with 6:25 left. Hill hit a jumper after that to put Howard up by three, but Grady made one free throw and Vanderhurst added two to knot it at 43-43.

Howard regained the lead on a Jones' free throw, 44-43, but Smith scored on a three-point play to put ECU back up, 46-44 with 3:45 left.

The Pirates would not score again. After Smith missed another free throw, Robert McIlwaine made two at the line to tie it at 46. The Pirates were forced into a turnover with just over two minutes left and the Bison played keepaway for the two minutes, calling a time out with 15 seconds left to set up the final play.

On that, Hill got the ball and drove around the top of the key, and while he failed to pick up a pick, he put the ball up in the face of a Pirate defender to score with seven seconds left.

The Pirates got a time out with five seconds left, but under full-court pressure, got only a 25-foot hurried shot from Grady that bounced off the front of the rim at the horn.

The game was close throughout the first half of play before the Pirates opened up a six-point spread just before intermission. ECU scored first on a turnaround jumper by Bass, but Howard came back to take a 4-2 lead on a basket by McIlwaine and two free throws by Hill.

Grady hit two straight to put the Pirates back in the lead, 6-4, and after Howard twice tied it, at 8-8 and 10-10, Derrick Battle made a free

Hoyas No. 1, Devils Slide

By The Associated Press
For the fourth time in six weeks, Georgetown is the unanimous No. 1 choice in The Associated Press' Top Twenty college basketball poll released today.

The Hoyas, who have won 17 games this season and a national-best 28 straight overall, received 60 first-place votes and 1,200 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters in easily outdistancing Southern Methodist, which received 1,108 points in improving its third-place ranking of last week.

St. John's, Georgetown's opponent this Saturday, is third with 1,080, while Memphis State is fourth with 1,012 and Duke, ranked second for the past five weeks and the only team other than Georgetown to receive first-place votes in the past six weeks, dropped to fifth with 958 points.

The Blue Devils, 13-2, suffered two two-point, overtime losses last week before rallying with a 93-77 road victory Saturday over then-No. 6 North Carolina.

Illinois, 15-4 and 11th last week, jumped to sixth with 729 points, while DePaul moved three places to seventh with 682 points, two more than North Carolina. Oklahoma and Oregon State, 13th and 14th last week, respectively, jumped to ninth and 10th this week with 651 and 605 points. Oklahoma, 13-4, beat then-No. 9 Kansas Saturday despite All-American Wayman Tisdale being held to a career-low six points, while Oregon State improved to 14-1 and 4-0 in the Pac-10 with a 73-57 victory over Washington State.

Syracuse, which was upset by Connecticut at home last weekend, fell from seventh to 11th to lead the Second Ten. The Orangemen are followed by Louisiana Tech, Indiana, Villanova, Kansas, Georgia Tech, Tulsa, Michigan, Virginia Commonwealth and Nevada-Las Vegas.

Last week's Second Ten was Illinois, Louisiana Tech, Oklahoma, Oregon State, Boston College, Virginia Commonwealth, Georgia

Tech, Villanova, Michigan State and Tulsa.

Boston College, 11-5, which lost to three Big East Conference foes, two of whom were ranked, Villanova and St. John's, fell from the Top Twenty as did Michigan State, 12-4, which lost two Big Ten Conference games to unranked teams, Iowa and Minnesota.

Michigan, 12-2, and Nevada-Las Vegas, 13-2, rejoined the Top Twenty.

The Wolverines fell from the Top Twenty three weeks ago, while the Runnin' Rebels, who beat Maryland in a nationally televised game Saturday, are returning to the ranked list for the first time in seven weeks.

Flutie Meets Generals' Owner

NEW YORK (AP) — Watching San Francisco 49ers quarterback Joe Montana frustrate the Miami Dolphins in the Super Bowl by scrambling and throwing bull's-eye passes has reassured Doug Flutie that he is worth every penny the New Jersey Generals are offering.

Flutie, his attorney Bob Woolf, and Boston College teammate Gerard Phelan had a get-acquainted lunch in New York on Monday with Donald Trump, the owner of the Generals of the United States Football League.

And Woolf said that Flutie, a Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback, might sign a contract by the end of the week.

The meeting came just one day after the 49ers captured the National Football League's most coveted prize by thrashing the Dolphins 38-16 as Montana passed for three touchdowns, ran for another and carried the ball five times for 59 yards en route to winning his second Super Bowl MVP award.

Flutie said he has never doubted he could play professional football, despite some criticism that he is too small at 5-foot-9. And he said watching nimble Montana has added to his confidence.

"It was reassurance to me, and I hope to other people that that is the style of quarterback that can make it," said Flutie. "Dan Marino has been an outstanding quarterback, the No. 1 quarterback all season long. No doubt about it."

"But both styles can be successful," he added. "Joe Montana proved that the other day and Joe Theismann has been proving it for a few years."

Flutie also will be out to prove it, but apparently not in the NFL.

"My aim is to bring the negotiations to a head as quickly as possible," said Woolf, who represents both Flutie and Phelan. "If negotiations go well, it's conceivable we might have something by the end of the week."

Woolf pointed out he was not negotiating a package deal with the Generals for the two players.

"They want Gerard very much," Woolf said. "They have always wanted Gerard and invited him down here."

The Generals reportedly have offered Flutie a non-deferred deal that would pay him $5 million over four years. Such a contract would make him one of the highest paid rookies ever.

The Buffalo Bills of the NFL have the top selection in the league's April 30 draft, but Woolf said they have not talked contract with Flutie. Last week, the Bills announced they had not made a decision on who they would pick first.

Woolf said the delay has Flutie "leaning very strongly" to signing with the Generals. He added he would continue talks with Generals President Jay Seltzer on Tuesday, and would meet again with Trump later this week if necessary.

"All I know is that we have not heard from them yet and on the other hand we have someone who has made us an incredible offer and given us an unbelievable presentation. Why shouldn't we be leaning in that direction?" Woolf asked.

Flutie said he would prefer to get an offer from an NFL team before signing any contract, and he said he understood why the Bills or any NFL team that had a top draft pick would want time to study who was available.

"It's not easy for them," he said. "They are taking their time. When they make their decision, I will make mine. If the NFL does not make a decision, then mine will be easy."

Balanced Lady Bucs Take Fourth ECAC-South Win

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
East Carolina had four players in double figures on offense and held American to 25 percent from the floor as the Lady Pirates cruised to a 70-55 victory Monday at Minges Coliseum to run their ECAC-South record to 4-0.

Lorraine Foster paced the Lady Pirates with 13 points, while Lisa Squirewell, Anita Anderson and Sylvia Bragg added 10 each. Bragg led ECU with nine rebounds and assists, with Anderson and Annette Phillips grabbing eight boards.

ECU, which held a 52-39 rebounding edge, held American to four field goals in the second half. But the Lady Eagles improved on their 2-8 first-half free throw effort with 19 out of 22 in the final half to keep the margin reasonable.

The Lady Pirates, meanwhile, struggled at the free throw line in the second half, hitting on 10 of 19 tries to wind up 20-32 for 62.5 percent on the night.

"I didn't think the intensity was there for either ballclub," ECU Coach Emily Manwaring said after her team improved its overall record to 8-8. "We just played good enough to win. If there's a negative factor right now, it's that we have to learn to play as well as we can."

"We got some good (fast) breaks; we scored on 10 out of 18. More teams know we throw that outlet pass to Foster. How many times can we keep relying on that?"

"I was happy for the win. We've fought back to .500 now; we deserve to be there."

Kathy Hughes opened the scoring for the Lady Eagles with a three-point play, and Dana Diller added a field goal to put American ahead 5-2 with just 3:05 elapsed in the game. After American increased the lead to 7-3, Foster scored twice on fast breaks and added a free throw to regain the lead 8-7 with 14:29 left.

Beth Shearer connected on a 12-footer to put American ahead for the final time at 13-12 with 13:31 remaining, but the Lady Pirates responded with 15 unanswered points to take control as Monique Pompili posted five points in the spurt.

Squirewell led the Lady Pirates with six points through the end of the half, as East Carolina held a 40-28 advantage at halftime.

Hughes scored twice inside to help the Lady Eagles trim the margin to 42-32 with 16:44 left, but American went without a field goal for over 10 minutes as Jody Thornton broke the string with a drive inside with six minutes left to trim the margin to 57-50.

During the field goal drought, American connected on 16 consecutive free throws after Thornton missed a pair with 14 minutes left. Shearer sank eight, Thornton six and Kia Cooper added a pair from the line for the Lady Eagles as they cut the margin to seven.

But Foster hit a follow-shot, Alma Bethea added a three-point play and Bragg sank a free throw to build the Lady Pirates' lead to 63-50 with 4:16 left. Phillips connected on three of four attempts from the line in the final 27 seconds to set the ECU victory margin.

"Annette Phillips had a good defensive game, and she came through with the free throws at the end," Manwaring said. "She really played harder on defense than anyone else."

"I think our (man-to-man defense) came through for us. Our zone defense gives us more rebounds, but when they started hitting wing shots in the first half we needed to change."

Shearer led the Lady Eagles with 15 points and 12 rebounds, while Cooper added 11 points and Thornton 10.

The Lady Pirates return to action Saturday in a non-conference matchup at Radford University.

Lewis Picked Top Rookie, Bogues Top ACC Players

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland freshman Derrick Lewis, who scored 31 points in three games last week, has been chosen the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball rookie of the week.

Lewis, a 6-foot-7 forward, scored 17 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the Terrapins' ACC victories over Duke and Clemson. Against Nevada-Las Vegas Saturday, the Temple Hills, Md., native scored a 14 points, snared six rebounds and had an assist against the Runnin' Rebels.

Lewis is ranked seventh in the ACC in rebounding, averaging 6.7 per game.

Earlier, Wake Forest guard Tyrone Bogues, whose foul shots in overtime sealed the Demon Deacons' 91-89 victory over No. 2 Duke, was named ACC player of the week.

Bogues, the smallest player on any major college roster at 5-3, scored a career-high 12 points while dishing out seven assists and grabbing two rebounds.

Bogues also was instrumental in holding Duke guard Johnny Dawkins to just eight points — breaking a streak of 51 games in which Dawkins had scored in double figures.

The selections were made by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Conference Sportswriters Association.

Tar Heels Hold Off Jacksonville 74-68

By The Associated Press

A new approach North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith unleashed against Jacksonville nearly backfired, but the 8th-ranked Tar Heels managed a 74-68 victory over the Dolphins.

"We decided not to chase and they milked the clock," Smith said of his strategy change after the Monday victory. "They are very quick. Brad Daugherty played a smart game tonight also," he added.

Daugherty, a 6-foot-11 center scored a career-high 28 points.

In other action involving Atlantic Coast Conference teams Monday, Maryland outscored scrappy Holy Cross 35-19 down the stretch and pulled away for a 99-75 victory, while 16th-ranked Georgia Tech edged Virginia 49-46 in a conference match.

North Carolina's numbers, cut by injuries to Joe Wolf, Curtis Hunter and a transfer by Matt Brust, were dealt another blow when Wolf reinjured his ankle late in the second half.

"We were happy to have Joe Wolf back but I hope he didn't have a reinjury to his ankle," Smith said.

"The trainer doesn't think its too bad."

Jacksonville coach Bob Wenzel thought his team played well, but said the Tar Heels, 14-3, had too much firepower.

North Carolina, which never trailed, started the first half by hitting 11 of its first 12 shots to build a 26-10 lead with 7:25 left.

Jacksonville, 8-8, hit 12 of 15 shots in a 27-12 run to cut the Tar Heels lead to 38-37, before UNC upped the margin to 42-39 at halftime.

The Dolphins stayed close in the second half, cutting the lead to 62-60 with 4:57 left, and 64-62 with 3:26 remaining. But, Daugherty hit a bucket and the Tar Heels made four of four free throws in the final 13 seconds to seal the victory.

Tom "Speedy" Jones scored 13 of his career-high 19 points in the final eight minutes as Maryland defeated Holy Cross 99-75.

"We didn't break out until Lenny (Bias) and Adrian (Branch) were on the bench," said Terrapin Coach Lefty Driesell. "Sometimes, I think, the other players depend on them too much."

"Speedy kind of took over,"

Driesell said, "but we've got to get something out of him when they're (Bias and Branch) are in the ballgame."

Bias and Branch were benched midway through the second half after picking up their fourth fouls. Bias never returned, and Branch came back just long enough to pick up his fifth personal.

Maryland, 14-5, opened up a 56-42 advantage after the half, only to have the Crusaders battle back again to with 58-52.

Leading only 64-56 with less than 10 minutes left, the Terps launched their closing spurt. Branch scored two of his 26 points during that stretch, and Bias had long before reached his 18.

"It was a win and it's good to win," Georgia Tech junior Mark Price said Monday night after tallying only six points in the 16th-ranked Yellow Jackets' 49-46 ACC triumph over Virginia.

"I think the players who guarded Mark Price did a nice job," said Virginia assistant coach Jim Larranger, who assumed control of the team Monday night for Coach Terry Holland. The Virginia coach had been hospitalized in Atlanta Sunday with an intestinal problem and returned home earlier Monday.

"A player of that caliber has to be limited because he's capable of getting 20 to 25 points each night," Larranger said. Price entered the game with a 16.5 average.

Tech, 13-3 overall and 2-2 in the ACC, took a three-point lead with 4:13 remaining on Bruce Dalrymple's running six-footer and Virginia, 8-9 and 0-6, never got closer than one rest of the way.

On Wednesday night, Tech is at Clemson, while North Carolina State hosts No. 5 Duke. In a non-conference game, Wake Forest hosts Rider.

Smith's Strategy Holds Out As Dolphins Miss Chance

By The Associated Press

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith likes to use a lot of players, shuffling lineups and keeping up the pressure. It doesn't work too well, though, when he doesn't have a lot of players.

So, Monday night, Smith found himself fighting a war of attrition, and it nearly cost him as his eighth-ranked Tar Heels held on to beat Jacksonville 74-68 in a non-conference basketball game.

The Tar Heels, 14-3, led 26-10 before Jacksonville cut the margin to 38-37 and trailed only 42-39 at halftime.

"We were smart to open the game the way we did because of our numbers situation," Smith said, alluding to injuries which had cut his ranks. "We decided not to chase, and they milked the clock. They are very quick."

The Dolphins trailed only 64-62 with 3:26 left, but Brad Daugherty hit a basket and North Carolina made four-of-four from the foul line in the final 13 seconds to nail down the victory.

Daugherty, a junior center, finished with a career-high 28 points, 18 in the first half, while Warren Martin scored 13 for the Tar Heels. Cleveland Williams led Jacksonville with 15 points.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 7 DePaul defeated Eastern Washington 72-50, 14th-ranked Villanova beat Drexel 63-55, No. 16 Georgia Tech defeated Virginia 49-46 and 20th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas beat Fullerton State 83-69.

Top Ten

Tyrone Corbin scored 17 points, and Kevin Holmes had 14 for DePaul, which outscored Eastern Washington 11-2 to take a 50-32 lead midway in the second half. The Blue Demons, 13-3, scored 10 straight points to take a 10-2 lead at the game's outset, but Eastern closed to 12-10 and kept the game within reach until DePaul's second-half burst.

Tony Chrisman led all scorers with 18 points for Eastern Washington. The victory was DePaul's 36th straight at home.

Second Ten

Ed Pinckney scored 20 points, and Villanova overcame an early Drexel lead to win the non-conference game. Harold Pressley added 18 points for the Wildcats, 12-3, of the Big East Conference. Drexel outscored Villanova 21-8 to take a 21-12 lead with 8:27 left in the first half. The Wildcats still trailed, 31-28, at halftime, but Villanova ran off six straight points to lead 45-43 with 11:20 left.

John Salley and Yvon Joseph hit two free throws apiece in the final 11 seconds to help Georgia Tech over Virginia in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Bruce Dalrymple led Tech with 14 points. Salley's two free throws gave the Yellowjackets a 47-44 lead. Olden Polynice pulled Virginia within 47-46 with a basket,

Newman Lifts Spiders 74-58

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Forward John Newman scored 14 of his game-high 26 points in the second half to lead Richmond to a 74-58 basketball victory over American Monday night.

The Spiders, who led 29-19 at the half, steadily increased their lead throughout the second half aided by Kelvin Johnson's 20 points and John Davis' 13 rebounds.

The win is the fourth ECAC South conference victory for the Spiders, who improved their record to 8-5 overall and 4-1 in conference play.

The Eagles, plagued by 24 turnovers, including 11 Richmond steals, were led by forward Jim Lutz with 16 points.

Teammate Pat Witting, the only other Eagle in double figures, scored 12 points.

American, in its first year as a member of the ECAC South, is 0-5 in the conference and 4-11 overall.

and Joseph then hit his two foul shots. Georgia Tech is 13-3 and 2-2 in the ACC.

Virginia played without Coach Terry Holland, who flew home earlier in the day after being hospitalized in Atlanta with an intestinal problem.

Nevada-Las Vegas, which moved into the No. 20 spot in the poll this week, got 20 points and 12 rebounds from Richie Adams to beat Fullerton State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The victory was the 12th straight for the Runnin' Rebels, 13-2 and 6-0 on the PCAA. The Rebels scored the game's first seven points and led all the way. Fullerton State could get no closer than 12 points in the second half.

Unranked

Boston College, which dropped from the poll after being ranked 15th last week, lost its third straight Big East Conference game, bowing 61-55 to Pitt. Charles Smith scored 26 points for the Panthers. Pitt trailed 42-28, then scored 20 of the next 26 points to tie the score 48-48 with 5:34 left.

A bench-clearing brawl marred Marshall's 83-69 Southern Conference victory over Western Carolina.

Bullets Hang On Despite Loss Of Ruland, Robinson

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets, faced with what forward Greg Ballard called "an enormous challenge," proved they are capable of winning without two of their best players.

Despite the absence of starters Jeff Ruland and Cliff Robinson, the Bullets dominated Cleveland Monday night and recorded an easy 128-115 National Basketball Association victory.

In the only other NBA game scheduled Monday, Indiana edged Golden State 129-127 in double overtime.

Ruland missed his third straight game with a strained right shoulder and Robinson sat out his fifth consecutive contest with a strained right leg and sprained right knee. Yet, working without two of their top three scorers and rebounders, the Bullets never trailed after allowing Cleveland the opening basket of the game.

"Since Ruland and Robinson went out (three games ago), we've slowed the pace down," said Washington guard Gus Williams, who scored 19 points and handed out a season-high 18 assists. "We're not in a position to play our usual wide-open game without those guys."

Ballard, who scored a season-high 31 points, said the absence of his front-line mates has forced the Bullets to get nearly everyone in on the rebounding chores.

"It's an enormous challenge on the backboards," Ballard said. "Everyone's been crashing the boards, trying to get a piece of the ball."

After the victory, Williams wondered aloud what might happen once the Bullets are at full strength.

"Everyone's foaming at the mouth thinking of what we can do when we get our big men back," Williams said.

After taking a 64-55 halftime lead, Washington never allowed the advantage to shrink below five points the rest of the way in snapping a two-game losing streak. The Cavaliers opened the final period with a 9-4 scoring streak to pull to within 98-92, but consecutive baskets by Ballard ignited a 6-0 Bullet spree that gave Washington a safe 12-point lead with eight minutes remaining.

Cleveland lost its third straight game and fell deeper into the league's Central Division cellar. The Cavaliers were led by World B. Free, who scored 31 points before being ejected from the game after getting slapped with consecutive technical fouls with 6:34 left in the contest.

Pacers 129, Warriors 127

Herb Williams scored four of his season-high 33 points in the second overtime as Indiana nipped Golden State.

Williams also grabbed a key rebound and passed off to Jim Thomas for the go-ahead basket as the Pacers handed Golden State its 11th straight loss. Thomas was fouled on the play and sank the free throw to give Indiana a 126-124 lead with 1:01 remaining in the game.

Golden State twice scored to send the game into extra sessions. Purvis Short, who led all scorers with 38 points, tied it up with one second to go in regulation, while Mickey Johnson knotted the score with four seconds remaining in the first overtime.

La. Tech Gains Respect

By The Associated Press

Louisiana Tech is known for being Terry Bradshaw's alma mater and for its outstanding women's basketball teams which won national titles in 1981 and 1982 and finished second to Southern California last season.

"We never minded that they got recognition," says men's coach Andy Russo, although he has admitted on occasion that "the men's basketball team is the best-kept secret in Ruston."

Which is pretty tough to do in a city of 22,000.

The men's team is doing the best to make a name of its own, although the Lady Techsters are still going strong with a No. 6 ranking and 15-0 record.

The Bulldogs are rated No. 12 in the nation with a 15-1 record and at 2-0 are the only undefeated team in the Southland Conference, which also consists of Lamar, Northeast Louisiana, Arkansas State, McNeese State, Texas-Arlington and North Texas State.

Their home attendance is running about 1,500 ahead of the women, which is a turnaround.

The Louisiana Tech men made the NCAA playoffs for the first time last season before losing to Houston, the eventual runner-up to champion

Georgetown, in the second round. They have lost only to Oklahoma in the All-College tournament final this season.

The Bulldogs' big gun is Karl Malone, a 6-foot-9, 250-pound junior nicknamed "The Mailman" because of his knack for delivering.

"But like Oklahoma we're not a one-man team," says Russo, 37, in his sixth year as the Bulldogs' coach. "We held (Wayman) Tisdale to 12 points but still lost (84-72) after being down by 19."

Malone, of Summerfield, La., about 30 miles from Ruston, is Tech's leading scorer (15.8) and rebounder (8.5) but he often gets in foul trouble and has been inconsistent.

"That's kind of his history," Russo says. "He gets in foul trouble because he's like a bull in a china shop. He's a good defensive player, quick and fast, but he could play smarter offensively. But I can't downplay his importance. People expect a lot from Karl because we don't usually get players that size."

Tech has returned four starters from a team which posted a 26-7 record and a third-place finish in the Southland last season.

Kings' Owner Contemplates Move West

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Kings, struggling on the court and at the gate and feuding with the city, say it's time again to pull up stakes and move on, heading further west.

Joe Axelson, the Kings' president and general manager, announced Monday that the club would move to Sacramento, Calif., next season, if the National Basketball Association approves.

The Kings, who moved here from Cincinnati in 1973, blamed poor attendance, season ticket sales of only 3,200 and "generally weak support over the years."

The announcement confirmed rumors that began the day in June 1983 that an ownership group headed by Sacramento resident Gregg Lukenbill purchased the team from a Kansas City ownership group.

Lukenbill called it a "joyous day"

for Sacramento.

"Members of the Sacramento business and political community individually and collectively are extremely excited about the opportunity to be a part of bringing the first major league franchise to our vibrant city," Lukenbill said. "Sacramento is a beautiful community that is growing so quickly it has become the 20th largest television market in the nation."

Axelson said the Kings are sure to be profitable in Sacramento, although they will initially play in a warehouse-turned-arena for which they do not yet have a county use permit. A sports complex and industrial park planned for agricultural land near downtown Sacramento has yet to receive county approval.

"In Sacramento, the club will operate parking and food concessions and will sell season tickets at a higher price than we did here," he said.

The Kings' application to move will be referred to a committee of NBA owners, which will have four months to study Sacramento. A recommendation will be forwarded to the Board of Governors, which probably will take a vote in a special meeting at the end of the year. Twelve of 23 owners would have to approve the move.

"My personal feeling is that Sacramento being the market that it is, I think the NBA's going to do what's in its best interest," Lukenbill said.

Lukenbill and Axelson declined to say what the Kings would do if their transfer application was rejected.

Axelson said the Kings lost $1 million last year, and Lukenbill has said the Kings will lose $1.8 million this year.

The Kings had worked hard, but failed to get the support of the business community, Axelson said.

"Certainly, that is their right not to buy our tickets, just as we have the right to interpret their lack of interest as a clear and very costly indication that this professional basketball team is not going to break even or become profitable in Kansas City," Axelson said.

When asked what reasons business leaders gave for not supporting the Kings, Axelson said, "(ticket prices) too high, no interest, my employees don't care. You know, the same things I'd say if somebody wanted me to buy tickets to the Philharmonic."

The Kings, who have the second-lowest attendance in the league this year, have a solid core of 5,000 to 5,500 fans, Axelson said.

"We've not been able to crack that next tier and there's been a tremendous effort," he said.

Frank Palermo, chairman of the Sports Liaison Committee of the City Council of Kansas City, said the city "will, of course, oppose the application."

Palermo did not rule out legal action against the move, but said that would be "a last resort."

The Kings have been embroiled in a lengthy dispute with Kansas City over their lease at Kemper Arena, which expires June 30.

Palermo said a delegation from the city would go to New York on Friday to show the NBA a new lease which would rent Kemper for $1 a year. It also reportedly would give an NBA team a greater share of concessions, parking revenue and make other concessions.

Axelson and Lukenbill said they would support an application from Kansas City for an expansion team.

Palermo said "two or three" people had expressed an interest in owning an NBA expansion club in Kansas City, including David Schoenstadt, the owner of the Kansas City Comets of the Major Indoor Soccer League.

Alex Sachare, an NBA spokesman in New York, said there were no plans for expansion at this time.

"We're not seeking expansion offers or bids," Sachare said.

Mancini Ready For Fight

By The Associated Press

Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini just wants to talk about the fight, not about whether his rematch against Livingston Bramble for the World Boxing Association lightweight title Feb. 16 at Reno, Nev., will close his career.

Yes, Mancini took a battering when he was stopped by Bramble in the 14th round in losing the title last June 1 at Buffalo, N.Y., but he's been physically okayed . . . and he's a fighter.

After the title loss, some members of the media suggested Mancini retire, although he is only 23 years old. That was only his second loss compared to 29 wins, but critics felt his aggressive style was getting him punished too much. Besides, he had made several million dollars in the ring. Shouldn't that be enough?

Now the retirement question, which must seem more bothersome to Mancini than an opponent's jab, is again being asked.

"I'll answer that that night . . . maybe," said Mancini.

"He gives no indication of not being able to continue," said Dave Wolf, Mancini's manager.

"It's ridiculous to lock ourselves in if we lose. It's not the outcome, it's how he fights."

"If we win, our alternatives are so obvious and so lucrative there's no reason to dwell on this."

A Mancini win could set up a fight for the undisputed lightweight title against Jose Luis Ramirez, the World Boxing Council champion, or one against unbeaten Aaron Pryor, or maybe one against Harry Arroyo, the International Boxing Federation champion who, like Mancini, is from Youngstown, Ohio.

Another option would be for Mancini to quit on top. That's a challenge that many fighters are unable to meet.

"This is the fight that Ray Mancini wanted," said Wolf of the rematch against Bramble. "Ray Mancini's accomplishments have earned him the right to make that choice."

Critics of boxing often forget that fighters fight by choice. Of course, the sport should be strictly supervised in the areas of safety and competence, and boxers failing to meet certain standards should not be licensed. Neither should promoters, managers, trainers and seconds.

Mancini will go into the rematch without having had a fight since his title loss. He was supposed to have fought last Kenny Bogner last Sept. 8 at New Orleans, but it was called off when cut Mancini suffered over his left eye in sparring didn't heal in time.

But while they might be some ring rust, there is not question in the minds of Mancini and Wolfe about the fighter's fitness. Wolf maintains the question of when Mancini will retire would already have been answered if the boxer was not in top shape.

ECU Pirates Fall...

throw and Vanderhorst followed with a basket from the corner that put ECU up for the rest of the half, making it 13-10.

The two teams matched baskets over the next eight minutes before Battle hit a turnaround jumper with 1:03 left for a 23-19 edge. After a rebound, the Pirates held the ball until Grady hit a 15-footer with two seconds left for a 25-19 edge at the horn.

Hill led Howard with 17 points, while Jones had 10.

East Carolina was led by Bass with 12, while Grady had 11. Vanderhorst, with eight, failed to make double figures for the first time in 16 games.

Bass and Vanderhorst led ECU's rebounding with eight each, but Howard held a 34-31 edge in that department.

Harrison was pleased — for the most part — with Bass' play. "Tree's (pre-season) injury (stress fracture of the foot) has really cut his stamina. He can play in spurts, but when he tires he reverts to playing without strength. It's cost him his edge; he's never really regained his pre-season condition. But he can score."

Smith also got some praises for his defensive play. "Roy played aggressively and that's a stride in the right direction. He made some mistakes, but everyone out there made mistakes," Harrison said.

"I'm really disappointed for the kids. I just hope they'll start believing and get out there and get it done."

East Carolina returns to action on Saturday, hosting ECAC-South leader Navy on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Holland Out Of Action

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia basketball Coach Terry Holland is to undergo further tests for stomach pains he suffered while his team was in Atlanta, a school official says.

Holland, 42, left Emory University Hospital in Atlanta on Monday after being treated for an "intestinal upset" and flew back to Charlottesville, said Rich Murray, Virginia's sports information director. Holland was admitted to the hospital early Sunday.

Murray said Holland's ailment was initially described as "an intestinal upset, and I think that still is the case."

Murray said he did not know when or where the tests would be conducted on Holland, who underwent surgery last year to relieve intestinal blockage.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 23, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning brings you the greatest amount of opportunities to forge ahead toward the aims which most intrigue you, but then the afternoon and evening find changes necessary.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to good pals in the morning for ideas that will help you to advance in your career, then later complete dull routines.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get outside ventures built up even if it means investing a little more money. Not a good day to try to gain personal goals.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Morning is best time to extend your enterprises and later avoid anything that can spoil your good name.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Seek for a clever way to improve your interests and tonight steer clear of one who is unpredictable.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A partner may comprehend some point you come up with and will help you to put it across to a bigwig.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put those new ideas to work and you can handle a co-worker much better, then later be charming.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is fine for working on your finest talent, and be certain to handle any work ahead of you conscientiously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get your abode running smoothly in the morning, but later don't take on any more expense than you can easily afford.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It is wise to get important matters attended to in the morning, and then give more attention to home and family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) In the morning, you know how to make better use of assets and thereby gain more, but later use tact with everyone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be on the alert to gain some cherished wish but don't make changes where money affairs are concerned or you get into trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find a better method of gaining your personal aims and latter don't use forceful methods with others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be capable of expressing self very well, and should be encouraged in this since this will be the secret to the success in life. Send to good schools and upon reaching adulthood your progeny will deal very effectively with others and be very popular though not quite so loquacious and will accomplish a great deal.

Jody Powell Becomes Lecturer

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — President Jimmy Carter's former press secretary Jody Powell lectured Boston College students for two hours on "Politics and the Media."

Powell began his tenure Monday as the third Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. Professor of American Politics under a $1.3 million endowment created six years ago for the longtime U.S. House Speaker, a 1936 Boston College graduate.

Since Carter's 1980 defeat by President Reagan, Powell has written a syndicated newspaper column and worked as a correspondent for the American Broadcasting Co.

A resident of Washington, Powell plans to commute for his once-a-week teaching chores.

An unheralded Polish team upset defending champions France to win the recent World Team Olympiad in Seattle. The Poles took the lead from the start and romped to the title by a lopsided score. This hand, early in the match, forewarned the French of their fate.

In one room the Poles lost 500 points in five hearts doubled. It seemed that it was a phantom sacrifice, for with accurate defense against four spades East-West should collect their three aces and a club ruff.

The Open Room Piotr Gawrys of Poland reached four spades on the auction shown. The French West elected to double and got his side off to a good start when he led the jack of clubs. It seemed that they would defeat four spades easily for a 12 International Match Point gain. Even if East wins the ace of clubs, as long as he returns a club West can still maneuver a ruff. When he is in with the ace of trumps he can reach his partner by underleading the ace of hearts to collect a club ruff.

East did indeed choose to go up with the ace of clubs, but declarer came up with a brilliant falsecard — he dropped the queen. From East's point of view it was quite likely that his partner had led a club from a sequence headed by the J-10-9. After considerable thought, East elected to shift to the king of hearts. Now his entry to give his partner a club ruff had vanished, and the spade game could no longer be defeated. A 12 IMP loss had been turned into a 7 IMP gain.

Poland gained steadily throughout the first half of the final. A brief third-quarter rally by the French was too little, too late, and the Poles had won their second world title — the previous one was in New Orleans in 1978.

Glider Solo

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The first American woman to walk in space has taken her first solo powerless flight by glider.

Kathryn Sullivan, 33, who circled Earth in the open cargo bay of the space shuttle 140 miles into space for more than three hours on Oct. 11, made the sailplane solo on Jan. 18 at the Estrella Sailport 30 miles south of Phoenix.

"She was able to solo on her eighth flight, after only four hours of instruction," said Les Horvath, who operates the sailport. "When you're good, you're good."

Ms. Sullivan said she prefers sailplaning to piloting a powered aircraft because it involves "an extra level of refinement, skill and challenge."

Family Killed

WOERDEN, Netherlands (AP) — A Moroccan family of four was killed in a gas explosion that destroyed six houses and shook this central Dutch town, officials said.

At least 13 families lost their homes, and damage from the explosion was estimated at about $400,000, said Mayor Jacob Bos. The blast scattered wreckage over a 200-yard-wide area, he said.

Goldsboro Native's Work Depends On The Weather

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If it's raining, actress Anne Jeffreys is probably working, but will it be in her day part or her prime-time role?

Miss Jeffreys stars in the ABC series "Finder of Lost Loves" as Tony Franciosa's friend and office manager. But she also stars in the ABC daytime soap opera "General Hospital" as Amanda Barrington, a wealthy society widow who serves on the hospital board.

"I call myself a cover shot because all my scenes are interiors," she said. "Whenever it rains they do the interiors so I know I'll have to work. The last thing I do every night is check the next day's weather. If it's fair I'll stay up until my usual 4 a.m. because I'm a night person."

It can be hectic when both shows call at the same time.

"That happened a few days ago," said Miss Jeffreys. "They can get a little upset at each show when there's a conflict. I'm caught in the middle and I get squeezed from both ends. They always make me feel guilty. So the other day I worked on 'Finder' until 3:30 in the afternoon, then rushed over to 'General Hospital' and worked until 12:30 in the morning."

She rarely works more than two days on each episode of "Finder of Lost Loves" and her work on "General Hospital" depends upon how much she's involved in the storylines. "Some weeks I'll work on 'General Hospital' four days straight. Some weeks not at all," she said.

On "Finders of Lost Loves," Miss Jeffreys plays a rich lady who helps Franciosa's character in his goal of reuniting old flames.

"I seem to be typecast as wealthy society ladies," she said. "That's fine with me. People always think of me as being terribly sophisticated. I'm not at all. Robert always says I'm a baggy-pants comedian."

Robert is Robert Sterling, her husband of 33 years. He's a former actor — they starred together in the old "Topper" and "Love That Jill" series — who now manufactures golf clubs. They have three grown children.

She joined the cast of "General Hospital" a year ago for what was supposed to be just 10 shows. So far she's appeared in 70 episodes.

"What Amanda's like really depends on who's writing a particular script," she said. "Sometimes she's a little dingy. She was involved with a young masseur. That generated a lot of fan mail, but there wasn't one letter chastising me for going out with a younger man. I think maybe something is going to be started up with him again."

Miss Jeffreys, who grew up in Goldsboro, N.C., has spent the last 40 years on the stage, in movies or in television. She was in the movies "I Married an Angel," "Step Lively," "Dillinger" and "Sing Your Way Home."

An operatically trained soprano, she was in the musicals "Street Scene," "Kiss Me Kate," "Romance" and "Three Wishes for Jamie."

Her description of how she met her husband sounds like the plot from one of her musicals.

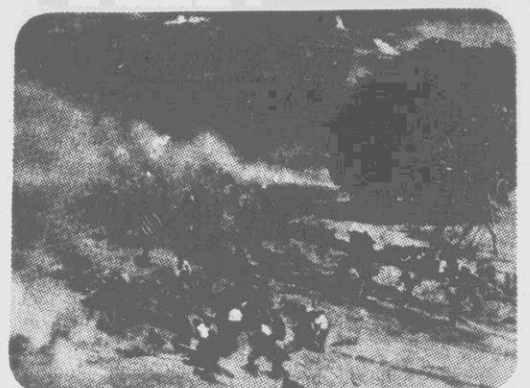

After starring in the Broadway hit "Street Scene," she returned to RKO Pictures expecting to become a featured performer. Instead, they offered her a role as one of five women in a Western with Sterling playing the main male role. Miss Jeffreys opted to buy herself out of her contract and returned to New York to star in another Broadway show.

"A year later Robert came backstage to see me after a show and we went out for a sandwich," she said. "We double-dated, then I didn't see him for another year. By that time I was in 'Kiss Me Kate' and he was starring in another Broadway show. He asked me to supper one night."

"I had a devoted beau back in California who called me every night and flew in once a month. Robert kept coming by my dressing room and finally one night we went to the Stork Club. I got home at 6 a.m. At the door he kissed me and said, 'From now on I'm taking over.'"

Campaign Begins For Oscar Votes

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "For your consideration — Best Actor, Tom Selleck, 'Runaway.'"

"For your consideration — Best Actress, JoBeth Williams, 'American Dreamer.'"

"For your consideration — Best Actor, Clint Eastwood, 'Tightrope.'"

These are the messages in full-page trade paper ads paid for by film companies — sometimes by agents — in the fond hope that voters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences might be swayed to consider bestowing such nominations.

But the odds are long that Selleck, Miss Williams and Eastwood will be nominated for the coveted prizes.

All this is part of the annual rite of late winter and early spring, when hopes are high and anything seems possible. Reality sets in when the Academy announces the nominations, which will happen this year on Feb. 6.

Logic dictates that only a handful of film achievements actually draw consideration by the Academy voters, who generally reward the earnest and consciously dramatic efforts rather than the more frivolous entertainments.

Hence the two huge hits of 1984, "Ghostbusters" and "Beverly Hills Cop," will doubtless be neglected in favor of films that have drawn more critical praise and less box office.

Here is an estimate of what the nominations will be in the major races:

Best picture: The so-called prestige films seem safe: "A Passage to India," "Amadeus," "The Killing Fields," "Places in the Heart," "A Soldier's Story." Another possibility is "The Cotton Club," though voters might be turned off by its bloated budget and negative reviews.

Best actor: F. Murray Abraham and Tom Hulse, "Amadeus"; Albert Finney, "Under the Volcano"; Howard E. Rollins Jr., "A Soldier's Story." Steve Martin, who starred in "All of Me," has become a surprise contender following his awards from the New York Critics Circle and the National Society of Film Critics.

Other possibles for best actor include, Sam Waterston, "The Killing Fields"; Eddie Murphy, "Beverly Hills Cop"; Jack Lemmon, "Mass Appeal"; Bill Murray, "Ghostbusters"; Harry Dean Stanton, "Paris, Texas."

Best actress: Sally Field, "Places in the Heart"; Judy Davis, "A Passage to India"; Anne Bancroft, "Garbo Talks"; Diane Keaton, "Mrs. Soffel"; Sissy Spacek, "The River"; Lily Tomlin, "All of Me"; Jessica Lange, "Country."

Best supporting actor: The most competitive race of all. The contenders include, Haing S. Ngor, "The Killing Fields"; Adolph Caesar, "A Soldier's Story"; John Malkovich and Danny Glover, "Places in the Heart"; Jeffrey Jones, "Amadeus"; Pat Morita, "The Karate Kid"; Richard Crenna, "The Flamingo Kid"; Victor Banerjee, "A Passage to India."

The voters might also bestow final salutes to a distinguished pair: Ralph Richardson of "Greystoke" and Richard Burton, "Nineteen Eighty-four."

Best supporting actress: Peggy Ashcroft, "A Passage to India"; Glenn Close and Kim Basinger, "The Natural"; Jacqueline Bisset, "Under the Volcano"; Elizabeth Berridge, "Amadeus"; Lonette McKee, "The Cotton Club."

Best director: Since direction usually parallels best picture, the probabilities are David Lean, "A Passage to India"; Milos Forman, "Amadeus"; Charles Joffe, "The Killing Fields"; Robert Benton, "Places in the Heart"; Norman Jewison, "A Soldier's Story."

Singer Kate Smith Still Ailing, But Spirit's There

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Kate Smith, known the world over for her stirring rendition of "God Bless America," cannot sing any more and talks only sporadically. But the woman who Franklin D. Roosevelt said captured the essence of America still is a "darling" person and is making progress in learning to walk again, her sister says.

"She has a long way to go, but we are deeply encouraged," said Helena Smith Steene.

Ms. Smith, a longtime diabetic who suffered from high blood pressure, lapsed into a coma for four months in 1976 and has been ailing since.

"She takes in everything that goes on" at her Raleigh home, "but there's something there that just doesn't function right now," Mrs. Steene said. "But she does answer questions, and she is very much aware."

Ms. Smith, 77, who in 1982 was awarded the Medal of Freedom, the highest citation American can bestow on a civilian, was "like a kid at Coney Island, just stary-eyed with excitement" when she sang, and she hasn't lost that vitality, her sister said.

"She always had a great deal of the child in her — she was delightful, and wonderfully mischievous. And you can still see that, if you look carefully," Mrs. Steene said.

When her companion plays videotapes of her television performances for Ms. Smith, "you can see that puckishness and that beautiful, fresh, young smile," Mrs. Steene said. "It's definitely there."

Ms. Smith's decline in health came in 1976, when thousands of groups asked her to sing in commemoration of the Bicentennial. Mrs. Steene said she thinks her sister's determination to honor as many of the invitations she could hastened her collapse.

"Her name had become synonymous with 'God Bless America,' so everybody wanted her," Mrs. Steene said. "She became overtired, and couldn't follow her diet very well."

"I have seen my sister get up on the stage and sing when she should have been home in bed ... sometimes, she sang over laryngitis. She felt that she owed people this once she was committed," Mrs. Steene said.

Ms. Smith, who never had a singing lesson, began to sing in stage shows when she was 19. She launched her radio career five years later, introducing the tune that was to become her theme song, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," on her first show. It was the only song she wrote.

"There wasn't any type of music that she couldn't sing. She'd do ballads, operas, and symphony," said Mrs. Steene. Ms. Smith's older sister by three years. "She always wanted to sing ... And when she sang, she stretched her arms out, and her audience would just come right into them."

It wasn't until 1938 that Irving Berlin dusted off "God Bless America" and gave it to Ms. Smith. He had written the song almost 20 years before and then set aside because it was "too saccharine."

"Hitler was running rampant then, and the Germans were getting close to England. So when Katherine sang 'God Bless America,' she had a tremendous audience," Mrs. Steene said. "It was very important for Americans to hear something like that."

"It became associated with her not particularly just because she sang it, but because she was asking God to bless America at a time when we all knew we needed him to bless us," Mrs. Steene said.

Ms. Smith raised $600 million in war bonds by singing the song on radio marathons and traveling 90,000 miles to entertain troops in World War II. She and her manager, Ted Collins, arranged for royalties from the song to benefit the Boy Scouts of America.

"Every time she sang it, it was the same thing all over again — all the emotion. It never changed," Mrs. Steene said. "She just lifted people right out of their seats ... you could feel the love."

Morgan Takes SBI, Rules Out '86 Race

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Praised as "the father of our modern-day SBI," former U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan took the oath of office as director of the State Bureau of Investigation, vowing to keep politics out of the agency.

"There will be no personal or partisan political roles in the SBI as long as I am associated with it," Morgan said Monday.

Morgan, a Lillington attorney, has said privately that he thought the SBI became too politicized in the 10-year administration of former Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

Until recent weeks, Morgan, 59, had indicated he wanted to run next year for his old Senate seat held by Republican John East, who narrowly defeated Morgan in 1980.

"I'll not be a candidate for any public office in 1986 and that includes the United States Senate," Morgan said in a news conference at SBI headquarters southeast of Raleigh following his swearing in.

His decision apparently forestalls a clash between Morgan and former Gov. Jim Hunt, who was defeated by Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in November and is widely expected to seek the Democratic nomination in next year's Senate race.

"I ... want to lay to rest at this time any idea that I may try to use this position as a stepping stone to any further political advancement," said Morgan. "I come to this assignment, to this opportunity, with but one thought in mind and that is to give the people of North Carolina the most effective law enforcement possible."

Morgan wouldn't speculate on whether he thought Hunt would challenge East in 1986.

Hunt said in a telephone interview that he had "really given no thought to that. ... It ought to be a year before I make a decision on that. I do think Robert Morgan will be an absolutely superb director of the State Bureau of Investigation."

State Court of Appeals Judge Gerald Arnold administered the oath of office to Morgan in the SBI auditorium before several hundred applauding SBI personnel and law enforcement officers.

Schools OK Rule On Controversies

ASHEVILLE (AP) — A new rule prompted by parents' complaints over a sex education class at Enka High School may prevent future rows over controversial academic subjects, a school official says.

"I think it will help all of our professional folks It spells it out very clearly for them," Director of Pupil Personnel Tommy Koontz said Monday.

Buncombe County school officials adopted the administrative rule Dec. 19 and was presented to the county school board Thursday.

An administrative rule — unlike a policy — does not require school board approval, Koontz said. The rule was presented to board members "to keep them up to date as to what was going on," he added.

Under the rule, all subjects — specifically those units dealing with sex education and religious education — must have the principal's approval before they are taught. Teachers also must send a letter to parents explaining the nature and content of the course.

The letter will include a place for parents to sign if they want their child to be excused from any class activity dealing with sex education or religious education, and those students will be given an assignment of "equal academic value."

"If (teachers) follow this and use a certain amount of reasonableness, we should keep down some of the controversy over these subjects," Koontz said.

Biology teachers at Enka High School were asked to stop teaching a unit on human sexuality last fall until school officials could review parents' concerns.

Principal Arthur Taylor said Monday students in that class may study the unit in the spring after it undergoes some changes.

"... What we've done is to sort of put our heads together with some folks in the health department and Doug Jones (Enka's health education coordinator), and we're close to having a curriculum for our school completed."

Taylor said the curriculum will be presented to the school's advisory council within the next few weeks for its input.

"We hope to be able to have a program that will be satisfactory for everyone," he said.

CBS Stock Going Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite an increase in trading and the price of CBS Inc.'s stock since Sen. Jesse Helms urged conservatives to buy the shares, industry analysts doubt Helms and his supporters can gain control of the network.

"It (the stock price) has been going up on increased volume," said Fred Anschel, an analyst with Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "The assumption was that he (Helms) really got some people to buy stock."

But, he said, "The problem is the market has been very strong, so whether it's attributable to one thing or another is difficult to say."

"I think this thing too will go away because I do not see logically how this thing can go anywhere," Anschel said.

He said the stock had risen $3.62½ a share since Jan. 10, when it was reported that Helms was planning to mail letters encouraging conservatives to purchase CBS stock and try to fight the network's "liberal bias." The letters, signed by the North Carolina Republican, were mailed last week.

Just over 1.2 million CBS shares traded hands last week, against 628,700 the week before, Anschel said. The network has 29.7 million shares outstanding.

CBS stock closed Monday on the New York Stock Exchange at $77.50, unchanged from Friday.

Park Reports Higher Profit

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Park Communications Inc., a media company with newspapers and broadcast operations in 18 states, said its fourth quarter profit rose 25 percent from a year earlier.

The company said Monday it had net earnings of $5.1 million, or 55 cents a share, in the final three months of 1984, compared with a profit of $4.1 million, or 46 cents a share, in the same period of 1983. Revenues rose 15 percent from $26.1 million to $30 million.

For all of last year, Park reported a profit of $74.1 million, or $1.53 a share, which was up 15 percent from earnings of $11.2 million, or $1.31 a share, in 1983. Revenues totaled $106.4 million, up 13 percent from $93.8 million.

The company began trading publicly on the over-the-counter market on Oct. 26, 1983. The stock, which is now around $27 a share, will be listed on the National Market System run by the National Association of Securities Dealers beginning Tuesday.

Park owns and operates 26 daily newspapers, 49 other publications, seven television stations, seven AM radio stations and seven FM radio stations in 18 states. The stations include the WNCT units in Greenville, N.C.

Carter Lecture

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter will be at Wake Forest University next month to deliver the Irving E. Carlyle Lecture, according to school officials. Carter will speak Feb. 19 at Wait Chapel and will answer questions after the lecture.

The speech, which will be on international human rights, will be open to the public, according to Russell H. Brantley Jr., assistant to the university president and director of communications.
