Burroughs Wellcome Wins OK For New Herpes Drug

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — The first oral medication to prevent or reduce recurrent outbreaks of genital herpes has been approved for marketing by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the drug's manufacturer announced today.

Zovirax capsules will be used to suppress outbreaks in people who have frequent recurrences of genital herpes, said a statement from Burroughs Wellcome Co., which has manufacturing facilities in Greenville.

The drug can be prescribed as daily extended treatment, for up to six months, to prevent further episodes.

Genital herpes is a disease caused by one of five human herpes viruses that can result in a variety of infections in man including cold sores, chicken pox and shingles.

The drug was discovered and developed by Burroughs Wellcome and will be available by prescription in about six weeks, the company said.

Zovirax has undergone extensive testing in patients with initial and recurrent herpes infections, the company said. More than 1,000 patients at 100 major U.S. medical centers have taken part in studies of the drug.

In Washington FDA spokesman Bill Griff said genital herpes is now the No.2 sexually transmitted disease in the nation, second only to gonorrhea.

Former Pitt Teacher Drops Suit Against School Board

BY MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

A former Pitt teacher who filed a lawsuit in federal court against the Pitt County Board of Education after she was dismissed for inadequate performance has dropped charges of civil rights violations against the board.

Christine Jettters, a teacher in the county schools from 1963 to 1983, agreed to drop the lawsuit Tuesday and members of the Pitt board voted in a call meeting to accept the voluntary dismissal.

Ms. Jettters, a teacher at A.G. Cox School in Winterville, was discharged by the county Board of Education in 1983 after her teaching performance was declared inadequate. In May 1984, she filed a suit in U.S. District Court in New Bern seeking reinstatement and back pay from the board.

In the complaint she charged that her civil rights were violated when she was "required to teach a food preparation course" at A.G. Cox "in an ancient classroom in a wooden outbuilding which had no screen which was in violation of accepted health practice and standards."

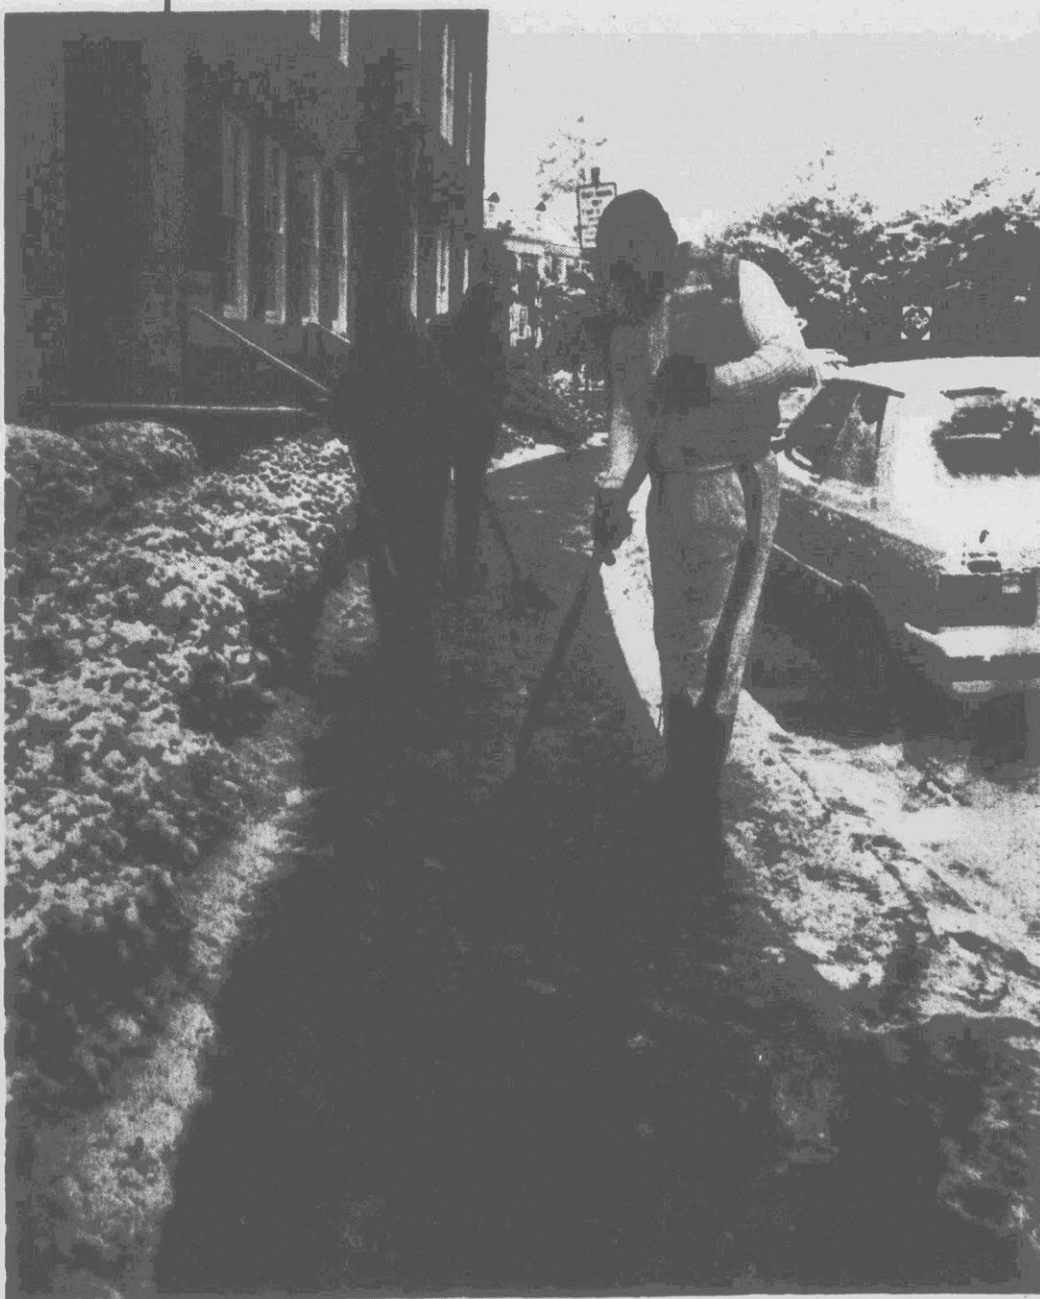

The complaint also charged that the room had a hole in the floor, did not have proper lighting and did not have air conditioning.

The complaint, which said Ms. Jettters "has been damaged because of the unlawful action of the defendants," asked that the employment practices complained of be declared unlawful, that she be reinstated as an employee and that she receive back pay and reimbursement for lost pension and other benefits.

After she was dismissed in 1983, Ms. Jettters had a six-hour hearing before the board to protest the move. She was not reinstated and filed the suit a year later.

Pitt Solons Wary Of Taxes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County legislators, indicating they generally favor a repeal of the inventory and intangibles taxes, stopped short of telling a Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce breakfast today that they would support proposals to do away with the taxes.

Instead, the lawmakers — asked to comment on Gov. Jim Martin's proposal to repeal the inventory and intangibles taxes as well as the sales tax on food and patent medicines — told chamber members that they would first have to study the proposals submitted to the General Assembly and be sure local governments are compensated for the loss in revenue a repeal of the taxes would cause.

Rep. Walter Jones Jr., saying 1985 "should be a very interesting session," told the gathering that "the two (taxes) that have the best chance of being repealed" are the inventory and intangibles taxes.

But he cautioned that lawmakers need to consider what effect the repeal of the taxes will have on county and municipal governments. "I am for repealing all the taxes we possibly can without hurting local governments," Jones said.

Rep. Ed Warren, "anticipating a very challenging year," said "I feel like we will have about a $330 million surplus" which, he said, "will be good for the state and good" for Martin to work with.

"I feel like we can phase out the intangibles and inventory taxes over the next two to three years," he said. But he suggested that the $180 million the inventory tax raises for counties and cities, and the $89 million raised by the intangibles tax, should be offset.

He noted that the sales tax on food brings in another $165 million a year while $21 million is raised through taxes on non-prescription drugs.

"I can take either side of the argument," Sen.-elect Bob Martin said. But "to tell you my position on these," Martin said "I'm inclined to go along ... however, there must be restitution to the counties."

Sen.-elect Tom Taft, saying "I think we are going to have the strongest legislative delegation that we've ever had," expressed the hope that the General Assembly can "do away with" the inventory and intangibles taxes. But he emphasized, "we need to see the proposals."

Taft also told chamber members, "please communicate with us," saying "that's the only way we have to know how you feel" on proposed legislation.

Pat's Pointers

If you're dreaming of spring even though the calendar still says mid-winter, make your dreams come true by crocheting this quietly elegant top with a handsome shell stitch front panel and shoulder insert. Wear it now as a vest over your favorite sweaters or blouses. Later, let it come into its own by wearing it solo.

Unabbreviated directions are written to fit body bust sizes of 32 through 40 inches using sports-weight yarn. This is another exciting design from the Craft Yarn Council of America.

To obtain directions for making the Shell Trimmed Crochet Top, send your request for Leaflet No. CL-0127 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. C-0127 by sending a check or money order for $9.25 for sizes 32 and 34, or $10.75 for the larger sizes to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and Wintuk sports-weight yarn in your choice of the following colors: Fisherman White, Palis Apricot, Light Blue or Coral. Please specify your color preference.

Dear Pat: I am so confused about crochet hook sizes. Some pattern instructions have letter size designations while others call for numbered hooks. Among the numbered hooks, there doesn't seem to be any consistency, either. Can you write a column on this subject? — Molly R., Janesville, Wis.

You're not alone, Molly. This is a very common complaint. I am not particularly a supporter of conversion to the metric system, but a general adoption of the metric sizing of crochet hooks would be a great help — except, of course, for those old favorite patterns we all like to hang onto.

The following chart, which you could clip and save, will be helpful to you and the thousands of others who have the same problem. Column I lists the lettered hook sizes, column II the numbered sizes for plastic or aluminum hooks, column III the metric sizes, and column IV the numbered sizes for steel hooks. Steel hooks with numbers larger than 1 are much finer and usually cannot be substituted for hooks currently made with other materials. The final column, V, lists the English equivalents.

I	II	III	IV	V
B	1	2.00	1	12
C	2	2.50	0	11
D	3	3.00	00	10
E	4	3.50	—	9
F	5	4.00	—	8
G	6	4.50	—	7
H	8	5.00	—	5
I	9	5.50	—	4
J	10	6.00	—	3
K	10 1/4	7.00	—	2
P	—	10.00	—	—

If you think you notice some inconsistencies in this chart, you are not imagining things. In columns II and V, a number is skipped at one point. Also, all manufacturers of hooks do not agree exactly on letter-sized hooks. Two size H hooks, for example, may not be exactly the same size, so this chart is intended only as a general guide. There are also metric hooks numbered 8.00mm and 9.00mm that fall in between the K and P sizes.

Take heart, though! Hook sizes given in any pattern directions are simply suggested sizes. The final choice of the correct hook size depends upon your gauge or tension in crocheting. Use any size hook that will give you the gauge listed in your pattern and you will be safe.

Former Greenville Educator, Mrs. Marshmond Honored

Mrs. C.K. Marshmond was honored recently on her birthday and for contributions she has made in the church, school and community. She was an educator with Greenville city schools for 44 years.

Mable Godette and Lucille Sledge cited her church work. Tributes were paid by former co-workers Lena Brown, Olga Meyers and Betty Boyd. Charles Davis and the Rev. Farney Moore told of her community work.

Philip Evancho, visiting artist at Pitt Community College, and Johnny Wooten, band director with Greenville city schools, were masters of ceremonies. They sang birthday songs and spirituals.

The Rev. and Mrs. Luther Brown, pastor of York Memorial AME Zion Church were special guests. He gave special recognition to Mrs. Marshmond by singing "How Great Thou Art." Lucy Barnhill of Ayden and the Rev. Ernest Wooten of Maysville also paid tributes to the honoree.

Special guests included Mary and Warren Outterbridge, daughter and son-in-law of the honoree, Anthony, Denise and Veronica, grandchildren, sisters of Mrs. Marshmond, Maebelle Jarvis and Margaret Staton, Ida Mae Spicer, niece of the honoree, Estella and Ernestine Dudley and the Rev. Ernest Wooten.

Mrs. Outterbridge presented flowers to her mother and aunts. A special tribute was sent by the honoree's son, Herbert A. Chase of St. Louis, Mo.

The approximately 100 guests were register by Louise Mayo and Clara Scott. Gifts were registered by Rosa Barnes and refreshments were served by Addie Gore and Thelma Tyson.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Basically, there are three groups of people in this country.

There are the Do-ers. These are the disciplined people who have order to their lives, make goals and live by their commitments.

There are the Do-nothings, who are disorganized and stumble through life putting everything off until next week.

And then there are the Do-wah-do's. The Do-wah-do's have motivation right up there with Lee Iacocca. They have the goals of Mother Theresa. They have the fire and enthusiasm of a Sunday morning electronic minister. But they conduct their lives like a maestro with a rip in his pants and a zipper that is stuck. He doesn't know which way to turn.

The Do-wah-do dieter is a classic. He or she will order a large pizza with everything and swill it down with a 2-liter bottle of Tab. He will park illegally in a handicapped parking spot while he is buying jogging clothes. He will eat a glazed doughnut with a cup of black coffee with three tablespoons of Nutra-Sweet.

When a Do-wah-do person stops smoking, it's never cold turkey. His first words to everyone he meets is, "I've stopped smoking. Feel just great. You should try it. I can taste food now and don't wake up with that bad taste in my mouth. By the way, could I bum a cigarette? I just like to have something in my hand."

I've met a million Do-wah-do housewives in my time. They have fresh flowers on the table, guest towels lined neatly in a row in the bath room and their countertops are straight from the model home.

But the oven looks like a smoking volcano, there is dirty underwear under the bed and don't even think of opening a drawer or you'll never get it shut again.

With them, hope always springs eternal. By their bedside there will always be a copy of something written by John LeCarre. On top of it will be a copy of "Hollywood Wives" by Jackie Collins.

You are probably wondering how I know so much about the Do-wah-do's. There is one in our family. I have no intention of telling you which one it is. I will only say that I bought one of those handbags that has 36 compartments for bringing order to my life. There was a hook for my car keys, a slot for a flashlight, a pocket for all my credit cards, a place for loose change, a clip for folding money, an inset to hold my checkbook, plus marked areas for my lipstick, nail clip, glasses, comb, nose tissue and road maps.

One day I rested my gum on the holder for the pen and it stuck the top of the handbag together.

The best thing you can say about us is we try.

Cowboy And His Hat Are Inseparable Companions

DEAR ABBY: I was taught that a gentleman always removes his hat when he is indoors. (The exception is the kind of hat worn for religious reasons.) However, I see the 10-gallon cowboy hat worn in restaurants and even in private homes here in Mesa, Ariz.

Have the rules of etiquette changed? Or is it still considered ill-mannered for a gentleman to wear his hat indoors? And are wearers of the cowboy hat exempt from that rule?

ROADRUNNER

DEAR ROADRUNNER: The rules haven't changed; gentlemen still remove their hats when they are indoors.

When I so stated some years ago, I heard from all of Texas, most of Arizona, and parts of New Mexico, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado advising me that the 10-gallon cowboy hat was not just an ordinary hat, it was part of the western man's uniform—to be worn with pride and honor, remaining on his head as long as he had his boots on.

DEAR ABBY: My sister (22) has a 4-month-old baby boy, but she is not married. The baby's father is 24, is supporting the baby, but wants nothing to do with my sister. They have no plans to marry and have nothing to do with each other.

The parents of the young father have no idea they have this grandson. Don't you think they have a right to know? As an aunt to this child, don't you think it's my duty to tell them?

CURIOUS AUNT

DEAR CURIOUS: As an aunt, you have a "right" to be curious, but a duty to mind your own business. It appears that the young parents have worked their problem out to their satisfaction. Do not tell anybody because you think they have a right to know—that right belongs only to the parties concerned.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old female soldier doing a 12-month tour in the Republic of South Korea.

Sound Base

Once again the Pitt County government got high praise from auditor Lloyd Moody, head of the firm which conducted the 1984 audit.

Moody told the County Commissioners last week that the government was operating at the best level of the past five years. Moody cited the fact that reserves and investments have continued to climb over the five-year period.

He said it was his personal opinion that "this county has got a lot of valuable resources. I think things are going very well. You are to be commended."

It is reassuring to hear from the auditing firm that the county government is in sound financial condition. There are many needs to be taken care of in Pitt County. At the same time the County Commissioners face the possibility of declining revenues from state and federal sources, coupled with strong grassroots feelings against any new taxes. It will take superb financial management to cope with all that, but based on the auditor's report, we are starting from a sound base.

Why The Fall?

The decline of the British Pound intrigues some spectators if only because of the unanswered questions the situation poses. For instance, how much of it (if any) could be attributable to a managed decline.

Economists generally agree a large part of the fall can be attributed to depressed oil prices (which represent a big share of economic resources). But there is also an undeniable benefit resulting in the field of British export trade and a lift to Britain's very poor level of employment.

A horde of American visitors (and shoppers) visited England in 1984 and left behind well over a billion dollars. That had to be economically helpful.

Recently the Thatcher government made a gesture to shore up the falling pound by raising interest rates. The critical opposition said it was "too little and too late." They had a field day.

Too late for what? Could it not also be a deliberately token step by the government to display an awareness of the situation as well as a signal they were ready to take other steps if they are needed? Britain's inflation rate is a relatively modest 5 percent, and does not pose an immediate menace.

So we're not fully convinced the decline of the pound is uncontrolled nor uncontrollable. If need be, there are remedial measures that have not been touched.

The British have a tradition as being a "nation of shopkeepers," not to say shrewd bankers; and the thought those qualities have somehow gone by the board just does not ring true. There's reason to think more is going on today than meets the eye.

Movement Of Missiles Raises Threat

WASHINGTON — Fear of surveillance by Soviet satellites and attacks by terrorists may lead to more serious accidents than that which recently killed three U.S. servicemen while they were unloading a Pershing II missile in West Germany.

Frequent movements of the mobile, intermediate-range missile, while made in the name of security, raise the odds of an accident in which a nuclear warhead might be involved.

So far, it doesn't appear that the recent accident, at a U.S. Army camp near Heilbronn, occurred during an effort to transport the Pershing to a hiding place. Pentagon spokesmen say that as far as they know solid-fuel propellant was detonated during the missile's removal from a packing crate.

Yet last fall, a vehicle carrying an unarmed Pershing overturned on a main thoroughfare in Germany, underscoring the danger implicit in more frequent movements.

Mobile nuclear missiles aren't new to Europe, of course, and, over time, the Army has developed extensive measures for ensuring their safety.

"They're painfully elaborate," says Col. Craig MacNab of the step-by-step instructions that have accompanied each of the 45 Pershing IIs

RALEIGH — The backlog of cases in the state's trial courts may be at least partially attributed to the parole terms of life imprisonment given defendants convicted of second degree murder.

That's the opinion of Franklin Freeman, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, and several members of the N.C. Courts Commission.

Records released in late 1984 show that the average age of court cases awaiting trial — as determined by both mean and median tabulations — has been rising again after dropping for several years immediately following implementation in 1979 of the Speedy Trials Act.

For example, the mean age of the felony cases awaiting trial at the end of 1978 was almost 209 days. After the speedy trials act went into effect, cases began coming to trial much more quickly. By fiscal year 1980-81, the 209-day figure had dropped to 144. Since then, however, that indicator has risen again to 157 days. Another measure also shows the growing backlog. In 1978, the mean age of a felony case at the time of its disposition was 128 days. That figure fell to 100 in 1980-81, and is now back to 121 days.

When using the median ages of felony cases on the docket at year's end and of felony cases disposed of during a year, the problem is more apparent. Both medians are now considerably higher than at their fiscal 1979 low points.

Freeman, in trying to explain the trial delays to the commission, said he was also struck by the increase in capital murder cases being tried in North Carolina courts. He used as a measure of this increase the number of capital cases tried with state-paid defense lawyers. In fiscal 1980, for example, there were 315 such cases. In the current fiscal year, it appears there will be 408. That's an increase of 33 percent in just six years.

A capital case — a case in which the defendant is being tried for first degree murder — takes a lot of court time and backs up the rest of the docket. A jury has to be picked, there is usually a lot of evidence and then, if the defendant is convicted, there has to be a second hearing and jury deliberation to decide if the death penalty will be meted out.

Several lawyers on the commission asked Freeman if prosecutors were trying more capital cases because conviction on second degree murder charges carries such a weak life imprisonment sentence. If convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to life, a defendant can be out of prison in eight years. If convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to life, a defendant usually must spend 20 years in prison before being paroled.

Freeman said that when he was prosecutor he kept that difference in parole dates in mind when he decided how to charge defendants.

"It aided me in dealing with the community's attitude of protecting the community from this defendant," he said. The family of a murdered person has a great deal of trouble accepting the fact that the murderer will go free in eight years, he said.

Other prosecutors are also aware of the difference, he said. Many will "try a case for first degree murder even though they know they couldn't get the death penalty," he said. In fact, the prosecutors are seeking only the more stringent parole regulations of a first degree life imprisonment.

He could eliminate a lot of wasted court time by making life imprisonment for second degree murder mean the same as life for first degree murder," he said. Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Bumcombe, who raised the question, said he planned to introduce legislation next month to do just that.

Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — If House and Senate leaders had prevailed, last week's inauguration would have taken place as scheduled on the icy steps of the Capitol. Only President Reagan's personal intervention brought the ceremonies in from the cold, according to congressional aides.

The congressional panel overseeing the oath-taking ceremonies flatly rejected the Presidential Inaugural Committee's recommendation the evening before to move the event inside because of high winds and brutally cold weather, said one official who spoke only on the condition that he not be identified.

"We told them (inaugural officials) we had discussed the matter, and had come to the exact opposite conclusion. We didn't care about whether the parade was canceled, but we thought the swearing-in ceremony should proceed as planned," the congressional official said.

Congress had the final say on the location of the swearing-in ceremony.

The official said that a poll was taken of members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies and that everyone contacted wanted to keep the ceremony outside.

Members of the committee are Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, the chairman; Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.; House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass.; House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas; House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., and Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky.

"We couldn't find anyone who wanted to move it into the Rotunda," the official said.

Finally, it took a direct plea from Reagan to Mathias to move the inaugural ceremonial to the warm but cramped quarters of the Rotunda, where 1,000 witnessed the nationally televised ceremony instead of the 140,000 who had held outside tickets.

Mathias yielded to Reagan's direct request, confirmed Mathias aide Ann Pincus. "The president asked Senator Mathias to hold it indoors. The senator was hoping to have it outside but he understood the president's concerns. There was never any friction between them."

She said that it was her understanding that the poll of members was not completed and was suspended with Mathias' decision — after reaching about half the membership.

The following day, with temperatures hovering just above zero and a wind-chill factor of 11 degrees below, most congressional leaders publicly praised the decision to move the ceremonies inside.

Meanwhile, it will be another three weeks at least before the unused stands are completely dismantled, said Tom Ward of the Capitol Architect's Office.

The contract with Congress calls for nearly everything to be disposed of by the contractor. The only thing being saved for the next inauguration is red, white and blue bunting draped on the Capitol.

"But that isn't of the most expensive material and it's questionable whether it will last four years," Ward said.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., spares no one from his biting humor — not even his own wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, or President Reagan.

In a recent speech on deficit-reduction efforts, Dole declared: "Even the Transportation budget is not sacred. Elizabeth wakes up at night and says, 'Amtrak, Amtrak, Amtrak.' Later, it's been 'Conrail,' 'Conrail,' 'Conrail.' I think things are coming to a head."

And on President Reagan's low-level of activity in behalf of budget-cutting, Dole reflected on a White House meeting the other day "where we had jelly beans and all that stuff."

Trial Delays Increasing Again

Boost For Bush?

WASHINGTON — Confidants of Vice President George Bush claim that he is the real winner of the White House staff upheaval and now becomes President Reagan's last intimate adviser close at hand.

The shift of James Baker and Edwin Meese to the Cabinet and the departure of Michael K. Deaver from the administration means the vice president stands alone. Bush, who has grown close to the Reagans, is the last person in the White House with whom the president can talk freely and informally.

A footnote: Jennifer Fitzgerald, Bush's longtime executive secretary whose prickly ways irritated many politicians, is leaving for a post in an overseas embassy. With chief of staff Dan Murphy and press secretary Pete Teeley also going, Bush is looking for a new team.

New Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole lost important friends in the conservative camp of his Republican Party when he failed to deliver on an implicit pledge to put Sen. Malcolm Wallop on the Intelligence Committee.

The pledge was given to Wallop, the committee's most serious and hard-working Republican, during the closed-door Republican Senate Conference as the 99th Congress convened. Because of it, Wallop decided against a frontal assault on the system that governs membership in the Intelligence Committee.

But nothing happened and Dole later apologized to Wallop for being unable to deliver. Blocking Dole was Sen. David Durenberger, the committee's new chairman, who rejected Dole's appeal to make room for Wallop. The incident poisoned the Republican well in the Senate, badly smudging Dole's reputation with his conservative colleagues.

California Gov. George Deukmejian's men were steaming after his State of the State speech was pre-empted by President Reagan's post-Geneva press conference.

Deukmejian's speech was to be the first such statewide telecast in prime time. Consequently, his aides were stunned when the presidential press conference was scheduled at the same time. Telephone appeals were made to Washington (including one to presidential counselor Edwin Meese), but they got nowhere.

So Deukmejian's speech was hurriedly pushed up one day. The irritation in Sacramento was all the greater when Reagan's press conference turned out to be a routine question-and-answer affair with no great revelations about Geneva.

When President Reagan telephoned former President Richard Nixon to say happy birthday, an ebullient 72-year-old Nixon congratulated Reagan for his Geneva coup and then got in a nifty dig at his old antagonists in the press corps.

The Geneva breakthrough was great, Nixon said, but the very best thing of all was the way "Dan Rather and those other TV hotshots had to stand around in sub-zero temperatures."

Nixon's kick from watching the TV anchors freeze in the record-breaking cold spell that struck Central Europe last week was not all that unique. Many politicians here seemed delighted at the climatical discomfiture of the media stars.

Strength For Today

God commissioned Moses to carry out the great task of freeing the Jewish people from their Egyptian masters. "How can I assume such a responsibility," cried Moses in despair. And the Lord's answer was what it is to many of our questions, namely, another question. "What hast thou in thy hand," God asked. And Moses replied, "A rod."

With that rod Moses went forth to carry out a task so mighty that even today it is reflected in the lives of the Jewish and Christian people.

The lesson is so simple that we cannot escape it. Do faithfully what you are now entrusted to do, and God will give you greater and more significant tasks in the days ahead. Moses could not have known the significance his life would have for humanity as he led his sheep from one grazing plot to another. But God was watching the man. He had higher work for the shepherd who used his rod well.

Union Carbide Has Profit Despite Leak

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Union Carbide Corp. has set aside $18 million to help cover costs associated with the toxic gas leak at its plant in Bhopal, India, and still managed to post a profit in the fourth quarter. But financial analysts expressed disappointment with the results.

The Danbury-based multinational corporation said its fourth-quarter profit was $13 million, or 19 cents per share after the $18 million charge to cover operating, distribution and administrative costs that have been incurred or are anticipated in connection with the leak.

It did not include anything for any amounts that may become payable for liabilities arising from the accident, the company said.

More than 2,000 people died when methyl isocyanate leaked from the Union Carbide plant.

In 1983, the company had reported a loss of $111 million in the fourth quarter, which included non-recurring charges of $139.3 million related to the closing of facilities.

For the year, Union Carbide reported its profit rose more than four times to $323 million, or $4.59 a share, from $79 million, or $1.13 a share, in 1983. Sales rose 6 percent to $9.5 billion from $9 billion.

Some financial analysts contacted Monday said the quarter's earnings were weaker than expected.

The per-share earnings was "a little lower than I expected and substantially lower than others were expecting," said Paul C. Christopherson, a chemical analyst with Bear, Stearns Inc.

"It certainly wasn't a great quarter from an operating standpoint," said William R. Young, senior vice president at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Of the extraordinary charge Union Carbide took related to the Bhopal accident, Christopherson said, "I think the real issue is how much more they'll have write off or pay someone before this whole thing is over — it could be quite a bit more than 25 cents a share."

Study Cites Costs Of 'Star Wars' Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A limited effort to find weak links in strategic defense systems would of more value than investing huge sums in research for the Strategic Defense Initiative proposed by President Reagan, a new study says.

"For SDI, both the risk and the cost appear imprudently high," said the report issued Monday by the Council on Economic Priorities. "The hasty infusion of very substantial funding raises knotty questions."

The research for the defense proposed by the president — popularly known as Star Wars — would cost more than the entire proposed budget for such programs as the MX missile and the B-1 bomber, the report said.

It suggested that a more modest program to find holes in strategic defense systems "would provide a hedge against Soviet breakthrough without unleashing a crash program of questionable value and astounding cost."

The Council on Economic Priorities, which publishes three to six studies a year, identifies itself as "a non-profit organization established to disseminate unbiased and detailed information on the practices of U.S. corporations."

William Hartung, one of the authors of the report, said the New York-based public policy research group specializes in studying the economic impact of military spending. It is financed by donations, foundation grants and memberships, said.

The report recommended that the Defense Department reduce emphasis on developing prototype systems and that Congress slow down spending for SDI "until the technological uncertainties of deploying an effective overall defense have been clarified."

It warned against "political momentum" driving the nation to develop defensive systems and recommended that the administration "vigorously pursue" verifiable arms control agreements.

OPEC Moves Nearer To Cut

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The president of OPEC said today that the cartel was moving toward agreement to lower some oil prices.

Egypt's oil minister, attending the emergency session as an observer, left the meeting and criticized OPEC for inability to make decisions.

President Subroto, the Indonesian oil minister, told reporters after the 13 ministers adjourned a 2½-hour midday session. "We made progress in the sense that we narrowed" the differences in views among OPEC factions.

Subroto announced a meeting for later in the day of a committee of oil ministers from Libya, Nigeria, Qatar and Kuwait to decide a new price spread between OPEC's most expensive crudes and the cheapest ones. He declined to say if that would mean a drop in the cartel's base price of $29 a barrel.

He said today, the second day of emergency OPEC talks in Geneva, that discussing a possible drop in the base price would be a "logical consequence" of the continuing negotiations on a broader price package.

"We will come to exact figures" later, he added.

OPEC's prices now range from $30.50 a barrel for the highest-quality oils to $26.50 for the cheapest. A continuing world oil glut has put pressure on OPEC to reduce its prices.

Any cut in prices would be only the second in the 25-year history of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The first, to $29 from $34, was in March 1983. Unanimous agreement is required for a price reduction.

Today's proceedings were marked by confusion about which crude prices would be reduced.

Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, said when asked if he expected a cut in the $29 base price, "It seems we'll keep it as it is." He did not elaborate.

Earlier, Egypt's oil minister, Abdul-Hadi Kandil, withdrew as an official observer of the OPEC negotiations and said he would not come to future meetings.

"I saw some way which is different from my way. That's it," he said, adding that OPEC's inability to make key decisions was hurting the oil market.

Egypt is not an OPEC member, but its daily oil production of about 870,000 barrels is nearly as large as the major OPEC producers. Kandil earlier had said that what he called the ministers' confusing deliberations were pushing prices down.

Kandil walked into the OPEC conference room this morning and then left a few minutes later. "I just went in to salute them, and I told them I'm leaving and please don't invite me anymore to the meetings," he told reporters.

The ministers opened their conference Monday on a rocky note, with one Arab minister storming out of the meeting and denouncing the Nigerian representative for breaking OPEC rules.

The rift between Mana Saeed Oteiba, oil chief of the United Arab Emirates, and Nigerian Oil Minister Tam David-West forced an early recess of Monday's session.

The lower-quality oils now are set at $26.50 a barrel, while the top grades are at $30.50.

Building Permits Up

A total of 66 units, valued at $1.59 million, were authorized to be built in Greenville during the month of November, according to a report by the N.C. Department of Labor, which said building activity authorized in the state's largest cities increased 28 percent overall in November over the level of November 1983.

The report showed that the increases included an 85.3 percent jump in multifamily dwelling units.

The department listed Greenville as authorizing 17 single-family units ($777,100), 9 non-residential units ($458,212), and 40 additions or alterations ($360,447) during November.

Pitt County, according to the report, authorized 35 single-family units ($1.46 million), 11 non-residential units ($577,401), and 47 additions and alterations ($384,951) for a total of 93 units valued at $2.24 million.

The report said there were no multifamily units authorized by either Greenville or Pitt County during November.

For the seventh time in 1984, Raleigh led the 44 reporting cities in value of construction authorized, with $37.22 million, followed by Charlotte ($25.16 million), Chapel Hill ($18.05 million), Durham ($17.54 million), Wilmington ($16.08 million) and Winston-Salem ($14.76 million).

New Bern reported more than $4 million, Rocky Mount $2.14 million, Wilson $826,298, and Kinston $441,000.

Nash County reported $5.29 million, Beaufort County $1.09 million, Wilson County $826,298, Lenoir County $768,000, Martin $89,972, and Greene $31,000.

Three Wrecks Investigated

An estimated $8,550 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers said cars driven by Carol Hilger Maxon of 111 Jamestown Road and Curtis Rudolph Eakes of Winterville collided about 3:11 p.m. at the intersection of 14th Street and Red Banks Road, causing $3,000 damage to the Maxon car and $2,500 damage to the Eakes vehicle.

Eakes was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of the mishap.

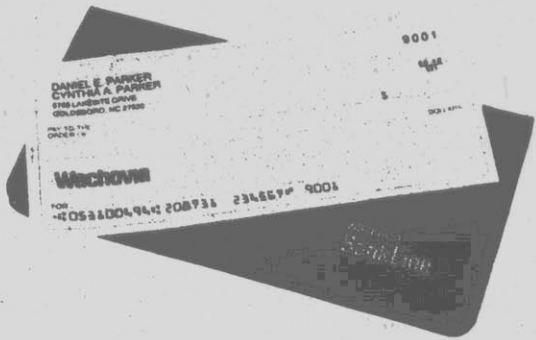

Police said a car driven by William Zenas Morton Jr. of E16 Twin Oaks collided with a parked car owned by Debsel Norlynn Matthews of Route 1, Angier, about 8:05 p.m. on David Drive, 70 feet east of the Greenville Boulevard intersection.

Investigators, who charged Morton with exceeding a safe speed, set damage at $200 to the Matthews car and $1,800 to the Morton vehicle.

Cars driven by James Thomas Dixon of 600A-2 Kings Row Apartments and Gregory Allen Stokes of Route 3, Greenville, collided about 5:34 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Streets, causing $800 damage to the Dixon car and $250 damage to the Stokes auto.

Wachovia BankLineSM

The prime-based line of credit up to $50,000 or more that's as easy to use as writing a check.

There's no easier way to borrow in North Carolina than Wachovia BankLine, a prearranged line of credit up to $50,000. Simply write a check — at any time, for any amount up to your credit limit.

BankLine is inexpensive, too. The interest you pay is tied to Wachovia's Prime Rate.* And unlike most banks, Wachovia bases your interest rate on your credit line, not the amount you borrow.

Wachovia also offers Equity BankLine, a line of credit of $10,000 or more based on the equity you have in your home. There are no loan origination fees, although the normal mortgage loan closing expenses apply when the line is established and at every 10-year anniversary.

BankLine	Your credit line:	Your interest rate:	APR for January is:
(unsecured or secured with liquid assets)	$10,000 or more	Prime + 1%	11.75%
	$ 5,000 to $9,999	Prime + 1½%	12.25%
	$ 2,500 to $4,999	Prime + 2½%	13.25%
Equity BankLine	$10,000 or more	Prime + 2%	12.75%
(secured by real estate)

Your rate may vary monthly. If the Prime Rate goes down, so does your interest rate. But no matter how high the Prime Rate should go, under present North Carolina law the maximum Annual Percentage Rate (APR) you will be charged on unsecured lines is 18%; on secured lines, 15%. The minimum rate is 8% APR.

*"Prime Rate" refers to that interest rate set by the Bank from time to time as an interest rate basis for commercial and consumer borrowings. The Prime Rate is one of several interest rate bases used by the Bank. The Bank lends at interest rates above and below the Prime Rate.

Senators Holding Hearing On Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee, opening hearings on Edwin Meese III's controversial nomination as attorney general, wants to know why a report concluding Meese violated ethics rules was rejected after being shown to his lawyer and the White House.

Two government ethics officers who wrote the report were called to appear today before the Senate Judiciary Committee as it resumed hearings on Meese's nomination for the second time in a year.

The conclusion of the two Office of Government Ethics officials, whose names were not released, was kept secret by their boss — office director David H. Martin.

Without mentioning the staff findings, Martin overruled his staffers and wrote committee chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. last week that Meese complied with ethics rules.

Meese's chief attorney, Leonard Garment, on Monday confirmed the report's existence and also defended his role in persuading Martin to reverse his staffers. The report was reportedly first shown to White House counsel Fred Fielding.

Thurmond summoned all three ethics office officials to testify about the still-secret report.

The committee's confirmation hearings are expected to concentrate on Meese's ethical conduct, especially any role he played in helping those who aided him financially in obtaining federal jobs.

The hearings will also mark the first ideological clash of President Reagan's second term between the chief executive's conservative philosophy and moderate-to-liberal senators.

Reagan's philosophy is epitomized by the 53-year-old Meese, a strong law-and-order advocate who has called the American Civil Liberties Union a "criminal's lobby."

The panel first took up Meese's nomination last March, but postponed action after an independent counsel was appointed to investigate allegations of financial misconduct and conflict of interest. Independent counsel Jacob A. Stein concluded last Sept. 20 there was "no basis" to prosecute Meese on criminal charges.

IRS To Offer Quick Check On Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks to automation, your chances of cheating the Internal Revenue Service are worsening but you'll find it easier to determine if a refund check is in the mail.

For the first time, the tax collecting agency this year expects to be able to match nearly 100 percent of all income-earned statements with names, Social Security numbers and addresses on tax returns. That should make it more difficult to avoid taxes by not reporting interest, dividends, state tax refunds and other non-wage income.

And if 10 weeks pass and you still haven't received your tax refund, you will be able to dial a telephone number on a push-button phone, punch in your Social Security number and a computer will tell you about the check. The news might not be good — the "digitized voice" on the other end of the line might tell you the return has been lost and you should file again. But at least you will know.

The refund information system and improvements in the returns-matching program were outlined Monday by IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. His briefing for reporters was aimed at reminding taxpayers to file as long before the April 15 deadline as they can and to make sure their returns are free of errors.

As has been the rule in recent years, about 75 percent of all returns will qualify for tax refunds.

The refund information system will begin taking calls March 15. The service will be available in every state but you'll have to pay a long-distance charge if the number you dial is outside your local calling area.

Border Cleared

BERLIN (AP) — The East Germans dynamited a church tower 10 yards from the Berlin Wall, a week after demolishing the main church building to give communist border guards a clearer field of fire.

Witnesses said some stones flew into the Western sector of the city when the red brick tower crumbled. A small group of East Berliners looked on, but no incidents were reported.

The tower, attached to the Church of Reconciliation blown down last week, was built in 1894. The landmark Lutheran church had been sealed since the concrete barrier was built 24 years ago.

The church had suffered heavy damage during World War II, but was restored in the postwar years.

Soviets Propose Anti-Military Pledge

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Soviet Union opened this year's session of the 35-nation European security conference today by proposing a treaty that would commit nations not to be the first to use military force.

President Reagan has said previously he would be willing to consider the concept of such a pledge, but Western officials made no comment on today's Soviet proposal.

Soviet Ambassador Oleg A. Grinevsky, Moscow's delegate, outlined the proposed treaty to the conference, which includes the United States and Canada, the Soviet Union, and all European countries except Albania.

The conference convened with increased hopes for progress following the U.S.-Soviet agreement to resume nuclear arms negotiations. But no quick results were anticipated.

The treaty outlined by Grinevsky would impose on all Soviet-led Warsaw Pact and U.S.-led NATO forces "an obligation not to be the first to use either nuclear or conventional arms against each other, and hence, not to use military force against each other at all." Other nations taking part in the conference are welcome to sign, he said.

The draft treaty said it "would not limit the inalienable right of it parties to individual and collective defense" in accordance with the United Nation's charter.

The proposal said "in the event of the emergence of a risk of war and the use of military force the parties to the treaty would hold urgent consultations, make enquiries and provide necessary information to one another."

Up to now, the United States and its NATO allies have balked at a pledge of non-use of nuclear weapons, but say they will only use them in defense of their territory. Since the Soviet bloc possesses a conventional arms superiority, the West feels a nuclear non-use commitment would invite a conventional attack.

The Stockholm conference is an outgrowth of the so-called Helsinki Final Act, a document signed in 1975 laying down a code of conduct for the 35 nations, including some military confidence-building measures and human rights provisions.

The 35-nation conference, which began Jan. 17, 1984, devoted its first four sessions primarily to exchanges of rhetoric during a period of strained relations between Moscow and Washington.

But in mid-December, participants decided on a program that assigns a series of proposals to working groups whose goal is to draft a mutually acceptable code of military conduct.

That step was followed by the Jan. 7-8 meeting in Geneva between U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union, who agreed to conduct a new round of nuclear missile talks. The new negotiations, including discussion of space weapons, will begin in Geneva on March 12.

The Stockholm meeting is formally known as the Conference on Confidence and Security Building Measures and Disarmament in Europe. The first stage, dealing with all but disarmament subjects, is scheduled to run until November 1986, when its progress will be assessed and a decision made on whether to deal with disarmament.

U.S. Ambassador James Goodby, head of the American delegation in Stockholm, said the new conference session "begins in much better circumstances ... thanks largely to the excellent results" of the Shultz-Gromyko meeting.

Principal attention will be focused on the U.S. proposals, backed by its 15 NATO allies, and those of the Soviet Union, supported by its allies.

The Western side wants an exchange of military information among the conference participants, annual forecasts of military activities, notification of maneuvers, the presence of observers, compliance and verification procedures and improvement of communication facilities among the countries.

The Soviet bloc wants a pledge of no first use of nuclear weapons, a treaty on non-use of military force, the freezing and reduction of military spending, a ban on chemical weapons in Europe, nuclear free zones in Europe, and a series of military confidence-building measures, some of them similar to Western proposals.

NEW MIDDLE SCHOOL OPENS — Students in Victoria Westbrook's sixth grade hold class for the first time Monday at the new Ayden Middle School. School Principal Gaston Monk said everything went well on the first day in the new building except for one area without heat. Those students were moved into the library until the problem was corrected. The new facility houses about 430 students and replaces the old school on South Lee Street which was built in 1929. The new school cost $2.6 million. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Firing Squads Kill Officers Involved In 'Crime Club'

QUILLOTA, Chile (AP) — Firing squads executed two policemen before dawn today for 10 murders that one claimed were ordered by a right-wing "crime club" that targeted opponents of President Augusto Pinochet's military rule.

Lawyers for the murder victims' families had joined defense attorneys in fruitless appeals of the death sentences, arguing evidence against members of a higher-ranking death squad would die with the two policemen.

But on Monday, Pinochet closed the case by refusing to grant clemency appeals by the condemned men.

Two teams of eight prison guards each fired Israeli-made Uzi rifles at the prisoners. Jorge Sagredo, 29, and Carlos Topp, 35, who were blindfolded with black cloth and seated 15 yards away in the lighted courtyard of a former women's jail.

Their hands were tied behind their chairs, and they had circular red paper targets over their hearts.

The simultaneous executions took place at 5:53 a.m., and two doctors took four minutes to pronounce them dead. Twenty-six journalists watched the executions.

The two policemen were convicted two years ago in the "lovers lane" murders that terrorized the coastal resort city of Vina del Mar between August 1980 and November 1981.

What first appeared to be the work of sex-crazed psychopaths took on political overtones as the toll of victims mounted. Most of the victims turned out to be leftists opposed to Pinochet's military regime, which seized power in a 1973 coup.

Topp maintained his innocence, but Sagredo testified that he and Topp took part in some of the killings after being given drugs and promised payment by a "crime club" that included a leading building contractor and five other "executives" — all unidentified — who wanted to rid Chile of political troublemakers.

The judge ruled that Sagredo and Topp acted alone in the 10 murders and sentenced them to death in January 1983.

The Supreme Court upheld the verdict earlier this month after rejecting a complaint by the victims' lawyers about procedural irregularities that ruled out key ballistics evidence and eyewitness testimony indicting involvement by other killers.

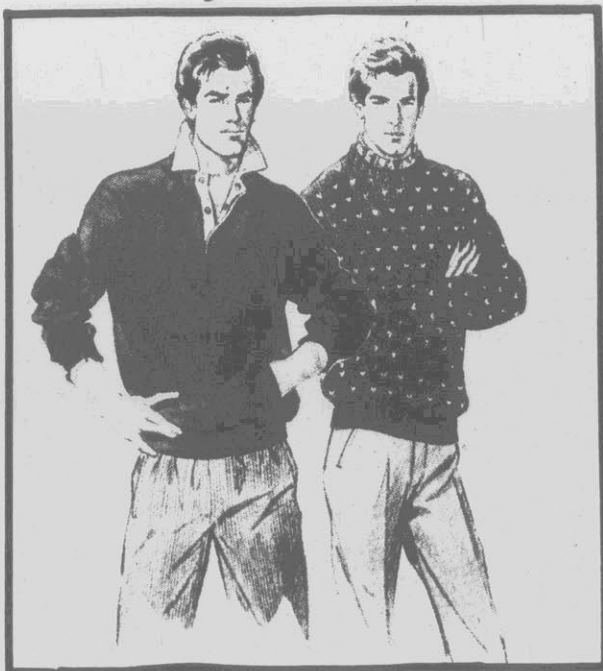

"People in Vina del Mar are afraid the killers will strike again," said Laura Soto, a lawyer for two of the victims' families. She said the two policemen's deaths would make it more difficult for the courts to reopen the case under a future government.

The Rev. Eliseo Ordenes, a blind Jesuit priest who said he converted the men to Christianity on death row, gave them the last sacrament of the Roman Catholic Church before their scheduled executions in the courtyard of an abandoned women's prison.

The priest also performed a church wedding of Topp and his wife, who had been married only by civil law, during her last visit Monday to his cell.

Pope Wraps Up Venezuelan Tour

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Pope John Paul II urged 45,000 cheering Venezuelan high school and college students to resist the temptation to seek refuge from reality in drugs, sex and "alien ideologies."

The pope — making his 25th trip abroad and sixth to Latin America — winds up the Venezuelan portion of his four-nation tour today with a brief trip to the southern industrial town of Ciudad Guayana. He then returns briefly to Caracas before flying to Quito, Ecuador.

Late Monday, the pope addressed about 45,000 youths in a packed stadium in Caracas.

Speaking in Spanish, the pope told the audience not to "succumb to the easy temptation of escape, of evasion, closing oneself in an attitude of egoistic isolation, seeking refuge in alcohol, drugs, sex, in alien ideologies or those who preach hate and violence."

The youths sang, cheered and waved flags in the lighted stadium, decorated with banners and flowers.

China Says No To Soviet Ties

PEKING (AP) — Despite a sharp increase in Sino-Soviet trade and other friendly exchanges, China today ruled out an early restoration of Communist Party relations with the Soviet Union.

"The question of the relations between our two parties is not under consideration now," a Chinese party official, Wu Xingtang, told a news conference.

When asked if China would like to re-establish party relations with Moscow, Wu said: "We do have the willingness to establish, restore and develop party-to-party relations with any Communist party in the world, on the basis of the four principles."

He identified those principles as "independence, complete equality, mutual respect and non-interference in each others' internal affairs."

The Chinese party retains Mao's view that the Soviets seek "hegemony," or world domination.

A strategic rivalry between Peking and Moscow is now focused on Cambodia, Afghanistan and the Soviet troop buildup along China's border.

One of the last angry exchanges between the rival Communist parties was in early 1966, when the Soviets invited China to attend their 23rd party congress in Moscow.

Peking refused and accused the Kremlin of "whipping up hysteria against China" and betraying Marx and Lenin.

Six years after Mao Tse-tung's death in 1976, his pragmatic successor Deng Xiaoping started political normalization talks with Moscow. Since 1982, bilateral trade has tripled with a 36 percent increase planned this year to a volume of $1.38 billion.

Soviet Deputy Premier Ivan V. Arkhipov, the highest-ranking visitor to China in 15 years, signed three economic agreements in Peking last Dec. 28, under which the Soviets are expected to renovate and equip factories for the first time since they withdrew all advisers in 1960.

Educational, cultural and tourism exchanges have increased as the Communist powers seek an improved bilateral atmosphere.

Wu declined to define the issues on which Peking differs with Moscow. They were very complicated and would "take days" to describe, he said.

Wu called the news conference to announce that the Chinese party will send a delegation to Paris to attend the French Communist Party's 25th congress Feb. 6-10.

Births Lead List For Hospital Stays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hospital stays tend to be longest in the Northeast and shortest in the Western states, while childbirth is the most common reason for a hospital visit nationwide, the National Center for Health Statistics reports.

The new report on hospital stays in 1982, the most recent figures available, listed 2.8 million routine childbirths across the country, by far the most common reason for a hospital stay.

Among persons under age 65, back problems were a distant second, accounting for 790,000 hospital visits. For the elderly, eye problems topped the list with 429,000 admissions, the report showed.

Americans averaged 7.1 days per hospital visit, with those under 65 averaging 5.9 days while the 65 and over group spent 10.1 days per visit, the study said.

The Northeast recorded the longest stays, averaging 6.5 days for those under 65 and 12.3 days for older people. The North Central states were second with average stays of 6.3 days for people under age 65 and 10.3 days for those over age 65.

Those areas were followed by the South, recording stays of 5.6 days and 9.4 days for younger and older people respectively; while in the West the averages were 5.0 days and 8.2 days.

But while Northeasterners remained longer once in the hospital, their admission rate trailed all but the West.

The health statistics center reported that people in the North Central states were most likely to be hospitalized with a rate of 186.1 per 1,000 population. Second was the South at 173.9 per 1,000, followed by the Northeast, 159.0, and the West, 143.3.

Nationwide, women tended to remain in the hospital for slightly less time than men, likely the result of the relatively short average stay for routine childbirths, at 2.9 days.

Overall the average length of stay for patients in hospitals has been declining for more than a decade, the report noted. For example, the 10.1-day average for those 65 and over is down from 12.2 days recorded in 1965.

In addition to regional variations the study also found that lengths of stays tended to be longer in larger hospitals.

For example, persons under 65 averaged 6.8 days if in a hospital of 500 or more beds but only 4.5 days in facilities with under 100 beds. Comparable figures for those 65 and over were 11.5 days in the largest hospitals and 8.1 days in the smallest.

The longest hospital stays averaged 19.5 days and involved hip and leg bone problems among persons aged 69 and over. For the under-65 age group, the longest average stay was for psychoses, at 16.5 days.

Georgia, Florida, Alaska Report Higher Incomes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgia, Alaska and Florida led the nation in income gains from July through September while residents of West Virginia lagged far behind the national average, the government reports.

Overall, personal incomes rose 2 percent during the third quarter of the year, more than double the inflation rate during the same time period, the Commerce Department said Monday.

The gain, while considered healthy, was down from advances of 2.4 percent from January through March and 2.5 percent from April through June. The smaller increase reflected generally slower economic growth in the summer and early fall.

Prices from July through September, as measured by an index tied to personal consumption spending, rose 1 percent during the same period. That meant that on the average, Americans were able to keep half of their increased earnings.

Residents of Georgia posted the biggest income gain, a 2.9 percent rise. Government analysts attributed the good showing to an 8.2 percent jump in payrolls in the construction industry, the biggest increase in the country, and strong gains in various high-technology industries.

Alaska and Florida followed closely behind Georgia with income gains of 2.8 percent, followed by New Hampshire at 2.7 percent and Arizona at 2.6 percent.

All five states had healthy payroll increases in manufacturing, construction and private service industries, the department said.

The state with the smallest income gain was West Virginia, where a 0.5 percent increase was not enough to keep up with inflation. Other states with small gains were Montana, 1 percent; Delaware, 1 percent, and Idaho and North Carolina, both with 1.2 percent gains.

In these states, payrolls in a variety of industries either declined or posted only small increases.

Nationally, the biggest payroll increases came in construction and the private service industries, which both registered a 1.7 percent gain. The private service group includes wholesale and retail trade, financial institutions and services.

Government payrolls rose 1.5 percent during the third quarter while manufacturing payrolls were up the least of the main categories — 0.9 percent.

The report showed little difference in income gains across regions of the country. The West posted the biggest increase — a 2.3 percent gain — but that was only slightly ahead of the 1.6 percent increase in the Rocky Mountain states, the smallest for any region.

Following are the percentage changes in non-farm personal income for each of the 50 states, grouped by region of the country:

NEW ENGLAND: region up 2 percent; New Hampshire, 2.7 percent; Maine, 2.3 percent; Massachusetts, 2 percent; Connecticut, 2 percent; Vermont, 1.8 percent; Rhode Island, 1.5 percent.

MIDWEST: region up 1.8 percent; New Jersey, 2.1 percent; New York, 1.9 percent; Pennsylvania, 1.7 percent; Maryland, 1.6 percent; District of Columbia, 1.5 percent; Delaware, 1 percent.

GREAT LAKES: region up 1.8 percent; Michigan, 2.5 percent; Indiana, 1.6 percent; Wisconsin, 1.6 percent; Illinois, 1.5 percent; Ohio, 1.5 percent.

PLAINS: region up 2 percent; Nebraska, 2.4 percent; Minnesota, 2.4 percent; North Dakota, 2 percent; Kansas, 2 percent; Iowa, 2 percent; Missouri, 1.7 percent; South Dakota, 1.4 percent.

Visitor Follows Band Into White House

DENVER (AP) — A man who followed the Marine Band into the White House on Jan. 20 because he wanted to see President Reagan's inauguration was arrested after he was found sitting in the First Family's private dining room, published reports said today.

Robert Latta told aides to Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., on Monday that he had just been released on $1,000 bond after spending eight days in jail, the Rocky Mountain News and The Denver Post reported.

Latta, 45, wandered freely through the White House until he was discovered sitting at the dining room table in the Reagans' second-floor family quarters.

The New York Times identified Latta as a water meter reader, and a dispatcher for the Denver Water Board, who would not give his name, said today that Latta is employed by the board.

In Washington, D.C., Secret Service spokesman Mike Tarr confirmed today that Latta is facing misdemeanor proceedings on a charge of unlawful entry, but refused to elaborate on the incident. A call to Latta's house early this morning was not answered.

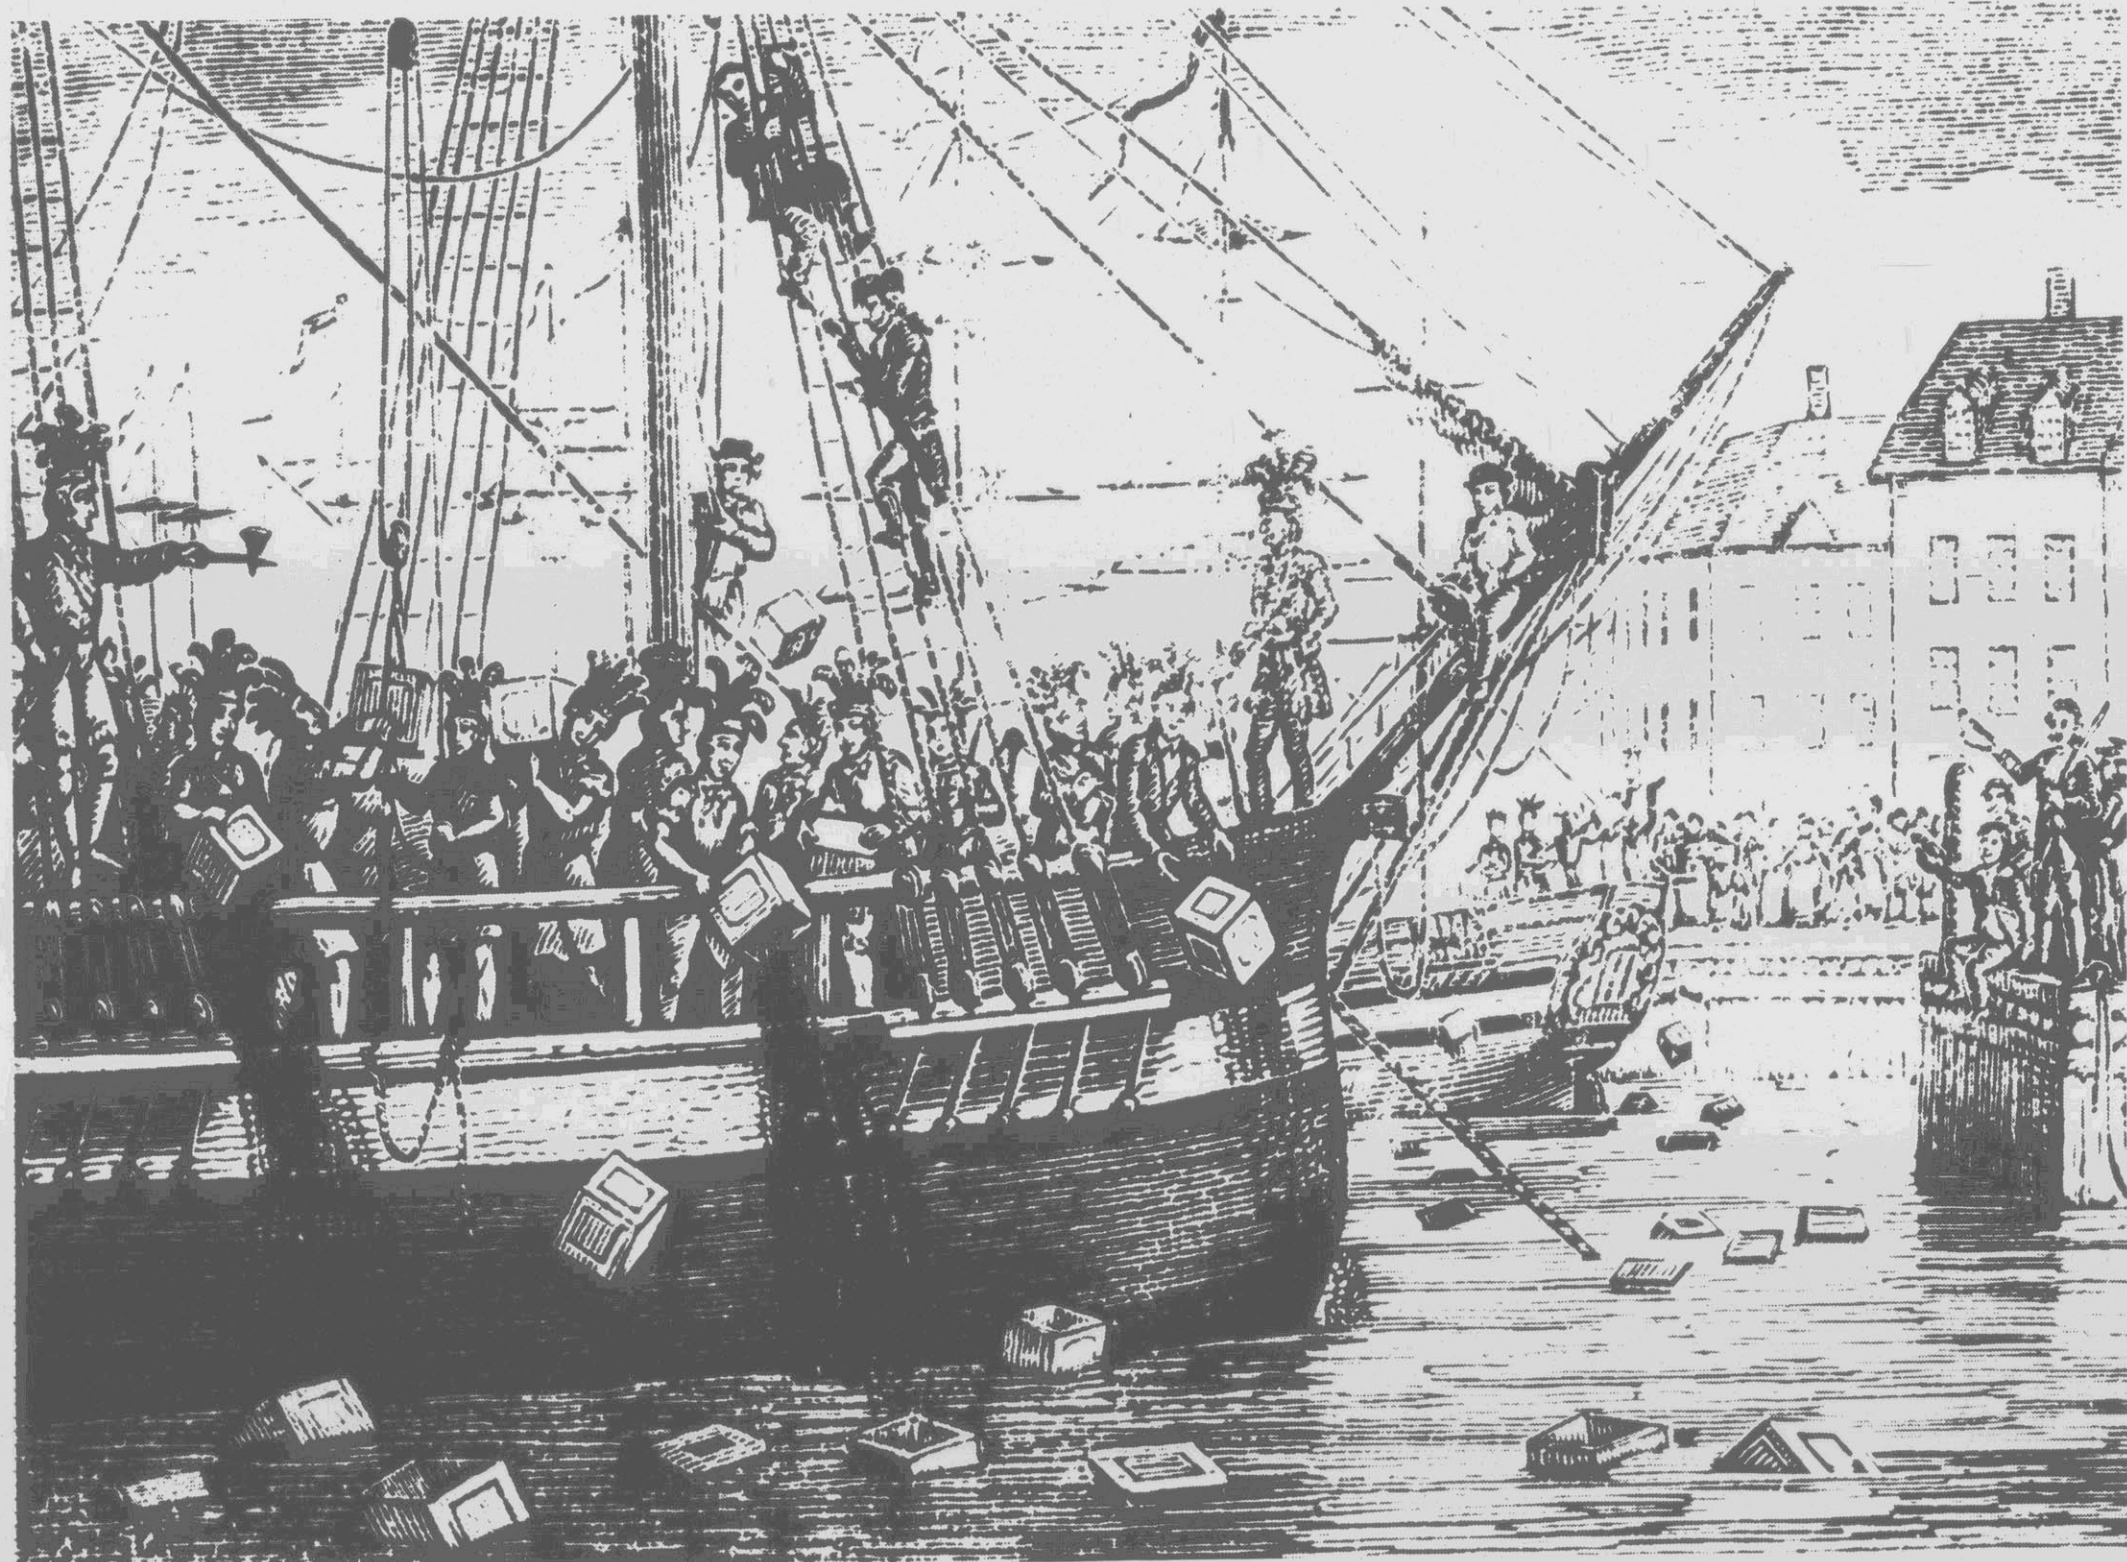

Neither the White House nor the Secret Service announced Latta's intrusion when it occurred.

Latta, who is from Denver, reportedly told Schroeder's aides that he was unable to obtain a ticket to tour the White House where the private swearing in ceremony took place, so despite the heavy security in place for the inauguration he walked in the company of the Marine honor band. He was not wearing a band uniform and carried no musical instrument.

Anthony Tansimore, a staff member in Mrs. Schroeder's Washington office, described Latta as a soft-spoken, middle-aged man who visited the office the Thursday before the inaugural weekend, drank coffee and chatted with staffers for at least two hours until told the office was closing.

"He said he was here on vacation," Tansimore told the News.

We've Come All The Way From Resisting Unjust Taxes To Ignoring One Of The Greatest Tax Breaks Ever Offered.

At one time, we Americans would sooner go on the warpath than pay a tax that didn't seem right.

Whereas today, millions of us are failing to take advantage of a tax break the federal government actually encourages us to take.

It's known as the Individual Retirement Account.

If you're one of the people who's ignored it, you'll be glad to know that with as little as $100, you can open an IRA at Planters Bank.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 3.98 points to 1,273.85 in the first half-hour of trading.

Some consolidating may be needed before the stock market's best-known indicator tries to reach a new high, analysts say. Investors may take their profits from the market's broad, three-week advance.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average edged up 1.77 to 1,277.83, a little less than 10 points below its record closing high of 1,287.20 set on Nov. 29, 1983.

Losers this morning took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

If advances outpace declines on the Big Board today, it will be a record 17th consecutive session in which gainers hold the edge.

On Monday, advances out-paced declines — by about 3 to 2 — for the 16th straight session. In the last 23 years, said Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co., the market has had streaks of 16 consecutive "positive breadth" days only three times — in July-August 1965, January 1967 and January 1971.

In today's economic news, the Labor Department reported that non-farm business productivity rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.7 per cent in the fourth quarter.

And in Geneva, Switzerland, the president of OPEC said that the cartel was moving toward agreement to lower some oil prices.

President Subroto, the Indonesian oil minister, told reporters after the 13 ministers adjourned a 2½-hour midday session. "We made progress in the sense that we narrowed" the differences in views among OPEC factions.

But Egypt's oil minister, attending the cartel's emergency session as an observer, left the meeting and criticized OPEC for inability to make decisions.

This morning's early volume leader was American Telephone & Telegraph, down ¼ at 21½. The company reported on Monday that earnings for its first year of operation after the breakup of the Bell System came to $1.25 a share.

Big Board volume on Monday totaled 128.41 million shares, against 122.44 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained .11 to a new high of 102.53. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.70 at 222.22.

Listing Deadline

Thursday is the deadline to list property in the county for tax purposes and Pitt Tax Supervisor Jimmy Hardee this morning urged local property owners to list their property as soon as possible to avoid a penalty.

"We still have a lot of mail listings that have not been returned," Hardee said, as well as listings that have to be done at one of the 15 tax listing sites throughout the county.

Hardee said that mail listings must be postmarked before midnight Thursday in order to avoid a late-listing penalty, while property listed at one of the regular listing places must be declared before the end of the workday Thursday.

"Lines are beginning to form and we're getting busy," Hardee said this morning, because of the number of people who are going in to list before the deadline.

Court Rejects Bias Claim In Demotion Of Policeman

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The demotion of a Charlotte, N.C., police officer for interfering with a trial was a legitimate discipline not tainted by racial bias, a federal appeals court ruled today.

Because the evidence "dispels any suggestion of racial animus in the challenged police decisions and because the plaintiff offered no other evidence ... that even hinted at an improper motive ... we must reject the inference of racial discrimination ...," the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said.

The decision reversed U.S. District Judge James McMillan's ruling that Jack K. Moore's demotion from sergeant to patrolman was a result of racial discrimination. Moore is black.

An investigation by the Charlotte Police Department found that Moore got two other officers to dissuade witnesses from testifying against a defendant charged with drunken driving in 1977.

The criminal case against Moore was dropped by the prosecution when a key witness recanted his allegations that he gave Moore $450 to get the drunken driving charge dismissed.

Police Chief J.C. Goodman, who could have levied some sanctions against Moore on his own, instead referred the case to the Charlotte Civil Service Commission.

The commission dismissed the allegation of conspiracy to take a bribe but found that Moore had violated three other civil service regulations — influencing a government official for personal advantage, conduct unbecoming an officer and interference with the proceedings of a trial. It suspended Moore for 85 days and demoted him to patrolman.

Moore then brought his racial discrimination case to federal court, where McMillan found in his favor and ordered the city to reinstate Moore as a sergeant and repay lost wages.

But the appeals court ruled that Moore did not meet the initial requirement of proving "an inference that city officials acted with discriminatory intent."

"...we can only conclude that Moore failed to prove a prima facie case of racial discrimination," the court said.

The police officer "offered no direct evidence of racially based intent in the disciplinary decisions and he offered no evidence of a general pattern of racial bias in police department actions."

Moore failed in his attempts to show that white officers facing similar allegations received easier punishments, the court said.

"The evidence demonstrates by an overwhelming preponderance that the violations for which Goodman disciplined Moore were violations for which Goodman consistently cited white officers to the Civil Service Commission," it said.

The lower court erred because it tried to compare the department's disciplinary actions for minor and serious violations, the appeals court said.

It also noted that no comparison of actions taken by the Civil Service Commission could be made because "the record simply reveals no comparable white offenders."

Even the closest comparisons with Moore "do not indicate that the board disposition of his conflicted with its disposition of cases involving white officers," the court said.

"Given this fact that Moore's violations were as singular as his punishment, in light of the consistent disciplinary administration with respect to the rules classifications and in light of the reasonable proportionality of this sanction to the offenses admitted, an inference of racial intent based solely on the uniqueness of Moore's demotion is clearly erroneous."

East Reportedly Short Of Doctors

By The Associated Press

At least 14 eastern North Carolina counties have fewer doctors per capita than 14 years ago although a medical school was established to help abate the shortage, authorities say.

"The cities and the bright lights have more attraction," said John Dees, a family doctor in Burgaw, a town of about 2,000 in Pender County.

Dees, like many family physicians in rural North Carolina, is looking for some help and is not having much luck. Pender and the 30 other rural counties in eastern North Carolina always have been short of doctors.

The East Carolina University School of Medicine, established in 1972, was intended to provide young doctors for rural eastern North Carolina.

ECU officials say it's too soon to expect many of its medical school graduates to be in practice. The university graduated its first four-year medical students in 1981, and only 12 of those students have begun

Weinberger Says Can't Take Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, gridirg for a long fight with Congress, said today the Pentagon cannot sustain additional budget cuts if the United States is to successfully negotiate a nuclear arms agreement with the Soviet Union.

In a wide-ranging interview with wire service reporters, Weinberger defended the Reagan administration's emphasis on conducting military exercises in Central America; said that military aid to U.S. allies is an essential way of "protecting ourselves" and said he had no regrets about his harsh criticism of the press for disclosing details of the space shuttle's military cargo or second thoughts about an ongoing investigation of leaks.

Weinberger declined to predict how Congress would treat the Pentagon's $277.5 billion fiscal 1986 spending plan. He said he has stepped up his public defense of the plan because "there does seem to be a substantial misunderstanding with respect to whether or not the defense budget has been cut enough or at all, or whether we've made any contribution to the deficit reduction program."

The new pill does not kill the virus that causes genital herpes, but it provides relief to long-term sufferers by keeping the virus from growing, researchers say.

Since 1982, an ointment form of acyclovir has been on the market for herpes victims and an intravenous form has been available for hospital patients.

The FDA and the manufacturer are recommending that the new oral form of the drug be used for no more than six months at a time until more long-term safety data are available.

Dr. Stephen Straus, a herpes researcher at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said he is "enthusiastic" about the use of the drug "in selected individuals."

Straus, quoted in today's editions of The Washington Post, said he does not think the drug is for all genital herpes sufferers and cautioned that long-term use should be monitored for negative effects. Nevertheless, he said, the pill has been "well tolerated" by thousands of people in studies over the past few years.

According to the National Weather Service, tonight will be partly cloudy with lows in the mid 20s and light northeast winds. Wednesday will be cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain and highs in the low 40s. Rain is expected to spread over the east Wednesday.

Official Fearful For Job Kills Self

CLEVELAND (AP) — A school superintendent who reportedly feared he would lose his $80,000-a-year job left a note saying his life's purpose "seems to be lost" because of politics before shooting himself to death in a high school stairwell, police said.

The body of Frederick D. Holliday, 58, superintendent of Ohio's largest school system, was found Monday inside Aviation High School, a magnet school of 325 students where he kept his private plane.

Of his love for flying, Holliday told an interviewer in 1983, "I forget everything about Cleveland when I'm up there. I just look at it and the problems seem to diminish. It's a different story when I'm on the ground."

That story, according to Holliday's suicide note, was one of "petty politics, racial politics, greed, hate and corruption."

Although Holliday was reportedly worried about his job, he had been assured by City Council President George Forbes that he would be rehired, according to Forbes.

"I told Fred he had another year, and he seemed pleased," Forbes said Monday. Forbes said he had met last week with a school board member who agreed to be the swing vote for a one-year extension of Holliday's contract, which expired in July.

A graduate of Harvard and Temple universities, Holliday had just given a mostly upbeat interview to a radio station before he went to the high school on Saturday and shot himself.

Holliday talked in the interview about a "great deal of success in terms of the educational side" but not nearly as much success "on the business side."

Attendance and scholastic performance had improved, he said in the interview.

Dukes Drive ECU Into Cellar

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Will the real East Carolina basketball team please stand up?

Saturday night, the Pirates played well despite losing to ECAC-South league leader Navy. It boded better things against less-regarded James Madison, struggling with a 2-3 league mark.

But when game time rolled around last night, the Pirates were back on their elevator, headed down this time as they fell 74-65 in a poorly played effort. The loss, combined with American's 64-62 upset of William & Mary, drove that elevator right into the basement of the conference, now occupied only by the Pirates.

Once again, it was the foul line that proved fatal for the Pirates. After outscoring the Dukes by 10 points from the floor, ECU saw Madison trek to the line 42 times, hitting 28 as compared to only nine of 16 for the Pirates. A total of 32 fouls were whistled against the Bucs as compared to 16 against the Dukes.

Ironically, seven of those 16 fouls against the Dukes came in the final 2:30 after the game was decided.

It all served to leave Coach Charlie Harrison very unhappy. "I'm disappointed in the whole team," he said. "I'm disappointed by the lack of concentration and the lack of aggressiveness with a purpose."

"I'm completely bewildered by that," he continued. "It seems like they play like they practice. It's like they are waiting for someone to tap them on the head and make a miracle happen."

Harrison then corrected himself: there were those who did play well, he said. "Herb (Dixon) and Jack (Turnbill) did come out and play well. Jack's play wasn't all that great, but he's practiced well and he's a competitor. Dixon is playing with the assertiveness that he can play with. At times he was playing like he is capable of playing all the time."

"But we had four starters who weren't mentally ready and that killed us," he said.

After scoring the first four points of the game, the Pirates fell behind at 10-8 on a jumper by Eric Brent. They moved back ahead at 15-14 as Turnbill got a three-point play, but quickly fell behind again on a shot from the circle by Eric Esch.

The Dukes built up as much as a six-point lead, the last time at 25-19, before the Pirates rallied to pull within two on several occasions, trailing 29-27 at the half.

Leon Bass tied it up early in the second half and Dixon put the Pirates back on top, 31-29, 40 seconds into the period.

After a 31-31 tie, ECU held one last lead at 33-31 before John Newman hit two straight for the Dukes to push them ahead 35-33.

Robert Griffin and Newman both hit to up the lead to six. From then until the final three minutes, JMU slowly built on its lead, running out to as much as an 18-point spread at 62-44.

In the final six minutes of the game, Madison made only one field goal, that on a dunk by Esch in the final seconds of play. Except for that, their final 16 points came at the foul line.

Esch led Madison with 19 points, while Griffin added 16, Newman had 13 and Brent had 10.

East Carolina was led by William Grady with 18, while Dixon had 14 and Curt Vanderhorst 10.

East Carolina held the rebounding edge, 37-33, led by Peter Dam with eight, Turnbill with seven and Leon Bass — who spent much of the game on the bench in foul trouble — with six. Newman had eight to lead Madison.

"The game was one we very well could have won," Harrison said, "but they looked for someone else to win it for them. If not for the play of our bench, it would have been a blowout in the first half."

"I just don't understand why, when the ball doesn't go in for you right at the start, you get your head down and don't play at either end of the court. What they (JMU) did didn't bother us nearly as much as what we did ourselves."

"Right now, it's time for our young men to grow up. They've got to quit looking to receive and start giving themselves."

The loss left East Carolina with an 0-5 ECAC-South record and a 5-11 overall mark. The defeat was their seventh straight. James Madison, meanwhile, boosted its mark to 3-3 in the league and 9-9 overall.

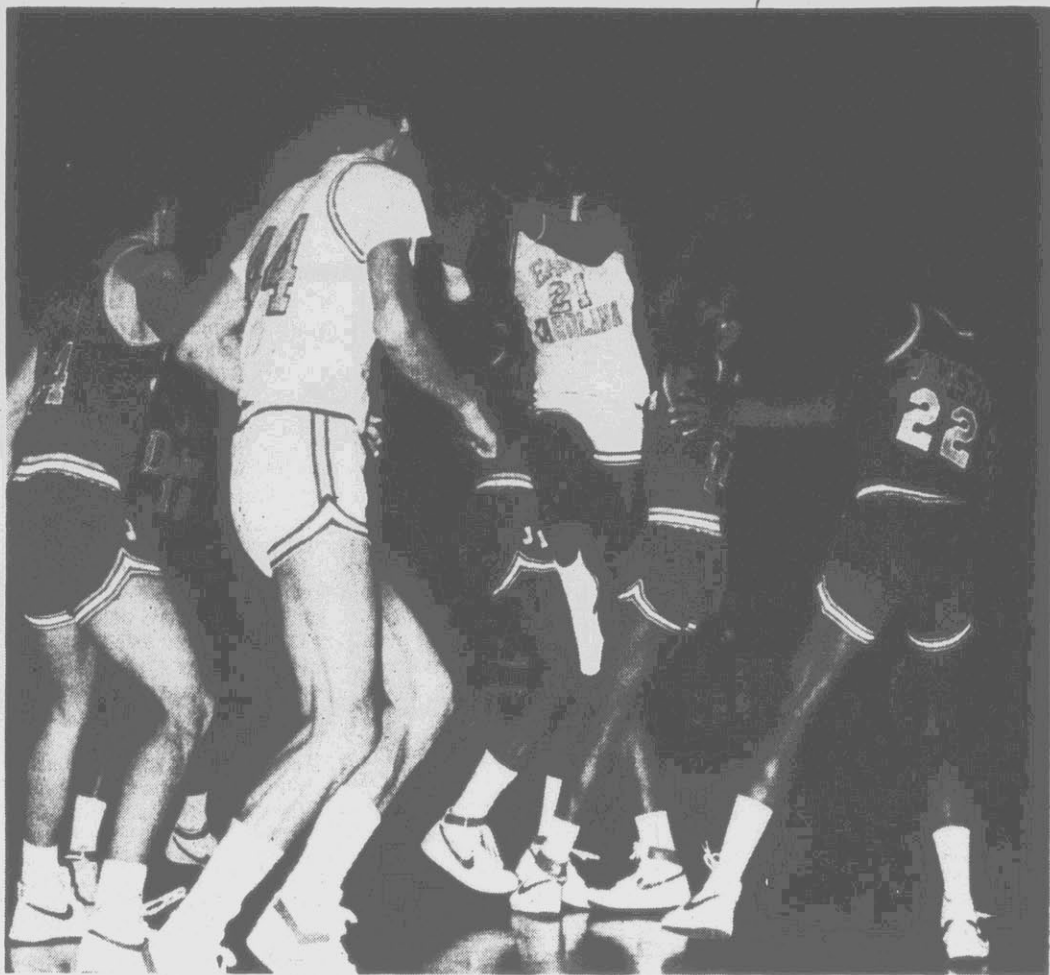

East Carolina will take to the road again Saturday, traveling to George Mason, in the first of three straight away contests. From there, it's on to UNC-Wilmington and William & Mary before returning home on February 11 to host American.

Dowhower Is New Colt Coach

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mark Herrmann, the only Indianapolis player who has had experience with Rod Dowhower, is optimistic that the new head coach of the Colts can improve what last season was the worst passing offense in the National Football League.

Colts' owner Robert Irsay announced Monday that the former St. Louis offensive coordinator would succeed Frank Kush, who resigned the week before the final game of the regular season to become coach of the Arizona Outlaws of the United States Football League.

"He worked with me quite a bit in Denver," said Herrmann, one of three quarterbacks competing for the starting job next season. "He certainly has an excellent background as far as working for people that know how to throw the ball and how to teach quarterbacks."

"He's had quite a bit of experience teaching quarterbacks himself. I feel very excited about being able to work with him."

Art Schlichter and Mike Pagel, the other two signal callers during the 4-12 campaign of the Colts in 1984, also expressed optimism.

"I can only look from where he's been," Schlichter said. "And when you look at St. Louis, they've got one of the better offenses in the league. He groomed a young quarterback, Neil Lomax."

Schlichter, who started five games for Indianapolis after missing the 1983 season because of a league suspension for gambling, was hopeful Dowhower would go to training camp with an open mind.

"I'm working hard during the off-season and expect to be ready when the time comes. I'm glad we're getting someone who wants to throw the ball. All of us had problems with the offense last season."

Pagel, who started the club's first seven games, was uncertain about his future.

"From what I understand, he's definitely a player's coach in that his whole philosophy revolves around the quarterback. It could be a good situation for all of us, but I'm not certain if I have a future with this club. I've asked to be traded, but if I'm not I'll give it my best. I guess it comes down to what he (Dowhower) thinks," Pagel said.

"I know the Colts used three quarterbacks last season," said Dowhower, 41, who received a five-year contract. The terms were not disclosed.

"I want them to know that all three have a shot at the job and that there is no number one at this point. It all depends on how hard they want to work, how their adapt to my plans and how they take directions," Dowhower said.

"The only one I'm really familiar with is Mark," he said. "But I won't comment about him because it wouldn't be fair to anyone."

Dowhower's first NFL coaching experience was with St. Louis as a member of Don Coryell's staff in 1973. He then moved to UCLA where he served as offensive coordinator under Dick Vermeil, helping the 1975 Bruins defeat Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. Following a year as offensive coordinator at Boise State, he was named quarterback coach at Stanford under current San Francisco 49er coach Bill Walsh.

In 1979 he coached Stanford to a 5-5-1 record. He joined the Denver Broncos as offensive coordinator under Dan Reeves in 1981, where he coached Herrmann as a rookie. Dowhower rejoined the Cardinals, under Jim Hanifan, in 1982.

"I've been with systems where we throw the ball a lot and that's the type of offense I want here," he said. "I'm prone to the forward pass. I've been brought up that way."

"We want to develop pride and the only thing I ask is that everybody give it their best shot. That's what I'm looking for," he said, adding that the selection of a coaching staff is his top priority. Most of Kush's assistants have either been released or moved elsewhere.

"I plan to meet with the remaining coaches," he said, adding that he had the option of keeping any or none, including Hal Hunter who was one of the finalists for his job.

"My immediate decision is to interview each individual in as much depth as possible and try to get a feeling for them and then I will make a decision," Dowhower said.

Lady Pirates Top JMU In Overtime By 70-67

HARRISONBURG, Va. — East Carolina's Lady Pirates, trailing by seven points at the half, battled back to take a 70-67 overtime victory over James Madison last night.

The win kept the Lady Pirates atop the ECAC-South standings with a perfect 5-0 record. It was also their eighth straight victory and brought them to 10-8 overall.

For Madison it was only their first loss in the conference after three opening victories. The Lady Dukes are now 13-4 overall.

The two teams battled back and forth throughout much of the game, before Loraine Foster tied it up, scoring off a rebound at 1:12 for a 61-61 deadlock.

Over the remaining time, both teams had chances to break the tie, but failed, sending the game into overtime.

After an exchange of baskets, East Carolina scored five unanswered points to take a 68-63 lead. Madison cut it back to three, but Sylvia Bragg broke their press with a long downtown pass to Foster, who hit the snowbird to shut the door on Madison. The basket made it 70-65 with only 23 seconds left.

Madison scored in the time remaining, but was unable to come any closer.

Although Madison was able to outscore the Lady Pirates, 50-43, the Pirate defense was again the key to the win. East Carolina's pressure forced Madison into bad shots, as they hit only 27 of 74 shots — an icy 36.5 percent. Meanwhile the Lady Pirates hit on 30 of 64, 46.9 percent.

East Carolina's rebounding was led by Lisa Squirewell with ten, while Anita Anderson and Monique Pompili each had seven. Julie Franken had 16 and Alisa Harris pulled 14 for the Lady Dukes.

Foster led the Pirate scoring with 24 points, while Squirewell added 19 and Anderson had 12. Harris paced Madison with 15, while Floretta Jackson had 14, Michele James had 12 and Franken hit 11.

"What did it for us was our defense in the second half," Coach Emily Manwaring said. "Also they made 12 free throws in the first half and got only one in the second. They were ready for us and shut us down in the first half, but we got the ball inside to Lisa in the second half and she did the job."

"We had to change our zone a little bit to stop them and we were able to get more pressure on them."

East Carolina took an early lead in the game, 24-16, but fell behind by ten before the half ended. Then, in the second half, the Lady Dukes led by nine before the Pirates came back behind Squirewell.

"This was a big win for us, especially on the road. I just think the team came back and really showed the killer instinct after JMU had all the momentum. They (JMU) were really crushed by losing."

The Lady Pirates return to action on Thursday, hosting UNC-Wilmington in another tough league game, then go outside the lead for two more home games against South Florida and Hampton Institute.

Syracuse Hands Hoyas 2nd Loss

By The Associated Press

There was nothing mysterious about Georgetown's second consecutive college basketball loss.

No. 9 Syracuse matched the second-ranked Hoyas blow for crushing blow, outbounded the defending national champions 41-32 and, with the game on the line, got a 15-foot basket from Dwayne "Pearl" Washington with eight seconds left to pull out a 65-63 decision Monday night.

"It was a tough shot that Pearl made," Georgetown Coach John Thompson said after his Hoyas slid to 18-2. "Michael (Jackson) was right in his face, but there was nothing he could do."

Washington, the flashy star for the Orangemen all season, had scored only nine points and was guilty of seven turnovers before his deciding basket.

"Basically what I tried to do was get up as high as I can on the jump shot and jump right over him and shoot," Washington said.

In the only other game involving a ranked team, No. 3 Memphis State got 21 points and nine rebounds from 6-foot-10 forward Keith Lee and thumped Cincinnati 81-61.

All-American center Pat Ewing, who scored 21 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, was fouled on a rebound basket that brought the Hoyas even with Syracuse. His free throw made it 61-60 with 3:07 to play.

Rafael Addison, who led Syracuse with 26 points, gave the Orangemen the lead again 18 seconds later with a pair of free throws.

But Ewing responded with two of his own for the last Hoya advantage, 63-62 with 1:54 left.

Georgetown had a chance to put the game away, but turned the ball over inside the final minute. Syracuse used that break to set up Washington's game-winner.

"I thought our team had a lot of heart, a lot of courage," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boheim, whose club improved to 5-3 in the rugged Big East Conference, one-half game back of 18th-ranked Villanova, 5-2. Georgetown is 7-2 in the league while top-ranked St. John's is 7-0.

For the second time in three days, Memphis State faced a Metro Conference foe with first place at stake. The Tigers beat Virginia Tech 89-79 on Saturday before waltzing over Cincinnati on Monday. The Tigers now stand 6-1 in the league to Tech's 4-1 and the 5-2 mark of Cincinnati.

"I'm happy for the win, but I'm not as concerned about the conference standings as I am at getting enough wins for the NCAA Tournament," Memphis State Coach Dana Kirk said. "What matters is how many wins you have in the left-hand column."

Thanks to the scoring of Lee and center William Bedford, who added 19 points and 14 rebounds, the Tigers have 16 in that left-hand column after 17 games.

"We started off strong at first, getting a 13-point lead," Kirk said. "This enabled me to give our starters a break. Unfortunately, we let them get back into the ball game in the first half."

The Bearcats slipped within 25-20 before Memphis State rebuilt a 31-22 margin at the half and then stretched it in the final 20 minutes.

"Lee plays like a seven-footer with those long arms," Cincinnati Coach Tony Yates said. "He's a tremendous shooter and can score from both inside and outside. He hit three or four early and they built a quick lead just like that."

Boston College, victimized recently by the Big Four of the Big East, got back on the winning track Monday night with a 94-77 blitz of non-conference foe Hartford. Junior forward Roger McCready led the Eagles, 13-5, with 21 points and Skip Barry added 19.

Connecticut, another of the not-so-big members of the Big East, won its seventh game against nine defeats with a 90-65 non-league romp over U.S. International. Earl Kelly scored 19 points and handed out eight assists while Ray Broxton scored 16 points for Connecticut.

Damon Godwin scored 26 points to lead Dayton to a 63-54 victory over Miami of Ohio, Dayton's 14th win in 18 starts this season and its 55th over Miami in the 99 games of the series.

Notre Dame improved its record to 10-5 with a 70-63 victory over Providence. Ken Barlow had 19 points for the Irish, including seven during an 11-0 second-half run that overcame a four-point halftime deficit. Providence of the Big East slipped to 9-11.

John Williams scored 20 points and Clyde Eads 17 as Tulane edged Florida State 64-61 in the Metro Conference. Tulane, 10-8 overall, is 3-4 in Metro play while Florida State is winless in six starts in the league and 7-10 in all games.

South Carolina ran its Metro record to 3-3 with a 90-72 romp over Southern Mississippi, which dropped to 2-4 in the conference and 6-13 overall. Linwood Moya scored 18 points and Jimmy Hawthorne pitched in with 15 as South Carolina ran its season mark to 10-6.

Gerry Henry scored 10 of his 23 points in overtime to spark Niagara to an 85-80 victory over Northeastern. Niagara, the only team to beat No. 1 St. John's, is 10-8 overall.

In other games, it was American 64, William & Mary 62; James Madison 74, East Carolina 65; South Florida 86, North Carolina-Charlotte 54; Drake 69, Indiana State 67;

Ange Arrested In Scalping Crackdown

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A Martin County teacher and three University of North Carolina students have been arrested on charges of scalping tickets to Sunday's Georgia Tech-North Carolina basketball game to an undercover police officer.

Jerry Leon Ange, 26, a teacher and coach at Jamesville High School, and students William Edward Barksdale, Sheldon Davis Bradshaw and Stephen David Daskal, were charged Sunday and released under $200 bond.

Chapel Hill Police Capt. Ralph V. Pendergraph said the four were arrested after they allegedly tried to resell tickets, it is illegal to resell the tickets for more than $1 above the printed price.

Under state law, a ticket can be resold for $1 more than the original value if the additional dollar is defined as a service charge on the face of the ticket.

Pendergraph said an investigation into scalping began after the department received complaints from people looking for tickets to Tar Heels' home games.

Eagles Upset Indians 64-62

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Senior Steve Nesmith and freshman Mike Samson each scored 16 points as American University downed William & Mary 64-62 in a come-from-behind victory Monday Night in Ft. Myer Gym.

The Indians, who fell to 8-7 and 3-3 in the ECAC South, led by as many as 9 points in the second half.

But a streak of poor shooting enabled American to grab the lead with 2:23 remaining on Samson's 2 free throws. The Eagles were never behind again.

The victory was the Eagles first over an ECAC South opponent since Feb. 1982 when they defeated Navy, 93-78. This is American's first season as an ECAC South team, but the Eagles have played teams from that division in past years.

American is now 6-12 overall and 1-5 in the conference.

The Indians, who have not beaten the Eagles since 1946, were led by Kevin Richardson with 14 points. Keith Cieplicki added 13 for William and Mary.

The loss was William and Mary's second in a row, while the Eagles won their second consecutive game.

Detroit 77, Oklahoma City 74; Loyola of Illinois 97, Oral Roberts 92; Stanford 60, Southern California 54; Washington 74, Nevada-Reno 62, and Utah State 93, Pacific 67.

At Albuquerque, N.M., reserve guard Niles Dockery canned a 22-foot jumper with one second left to give New Mexico a 44-42 Western Athletic Conference basketball victory over Colorado State. The victory pulled UNM to 13-6 overall and into a three-way tie with San Diego State and Brigham Young for second place in the WAC. Those three are 6-2, one game back of league-leading Texas-El Paso. San Diego State, 15-4, kept pace with a 74-64 triumph over Air Force that featured a 19-point performance by forward Mike Kennedy.

And at Portales, N.M., East Texas State nipped Eastern New Mexico 108-107 in an overtime game capped by a brawl.

East Texas State's Jerry Thomas, who scored 36 points, stole a pass inside the final minute and was heading for an easy layup when he was grabbed by the Greyhounds' Ken Butts. The two players grappled, both benches cleared, and officials assessed technical fouls against each club. Tony Coger hit two free throws and Thomas added three out of four for a 105-99 East Texas lead. ENMU's Wallace Williams hit all four to complete a 33-point night and cut the deficit to 105-103, but the Greyhounds got no closer.

In December 1951, St. John's was the No. 1 basketball team in the nation and Lou Carnesecca was in his second year of coaching at St. Ann's Academy.

In January 1985, St. John's is the No. 1 basketball team in the nation and Lou Carnesecca is in his 17th year as coach at St. John's.

There were 905 games between top rankings and about the only thing that didn't change was Carnesecca's aversion to the No. 1 tag.

"It's hoopla," the coach of the Redmen, 15-1, said Monday about St. John's going to the top of the Associated Press poll. "It's good for the school, good for the kids. We have to keep our feet on the ground."

St. John's had to be walking on air last weekend after ending Georgetown's 29-game winning streak at a time when the Hoyas' were No. 1. The Redmen beat Georgetown 66-65 Saturday at the Capital Centre.

It is the first time since December 1951 that the Redmen, who were ranked third last week, have held the top spot, according to the school's sports information office. They held the No. 1 position for just one week then, before losing to Kentucky by 41 points. St. John's lost to Kansas in the national championship game that season — just two years after Carnesecca graduated.

St. John's received 52 of 63 first-place votes and 1,249 points from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. Georgetown received 10 first-place votes and 1,202 points in easily outdistancing Memphis State, which received the

Hall Of Fame Says No To Rounding Off

NEW YORK (AP) — Batting averages and earned run averages are routinely rounded off to the highest number. But the Baseball Hall of Fame's board of directors has refused to change its rules and admit the late Nellie Fox, who wound up just four-tenths of a percentage point short of election.

The Hall of Fame rules requires candidates to be named on 75 percent of the ballots cast. Fox got 295 of the 395 votes cast — 74.6 percent — in balloting by baseball writers announced Jan. 8.

He came within two votes of being elected, the closest any person has come to making it to Cooperstown without getting in. Hoyt Wilhelm and Lou Brock were elected in the voting.

Ed Stack, president of the Hall of Fame, said its board of directors on Monday reconsidered the voting at the request of Chicago Tribune sports writer Jerome Holtzman, who had advocated the election of Fox.

Holtzman has pointed out that many numbers in baseball are rounded off, and suggested the same should be done for Fox.

Stack said the board considered the matter at its annual meeting, but let the voting stand.

"The Hall of Fame board of directors expressed its sympathy in the Nellie Fox situation, but did not feel that it was proper to change the rules for election to admit any candidate named on less than 75 percent of the ballots cast," Stack said.

Fox, who died in 1975, finished with a .288 career batting average. He had 2,663 hits and also set several fielding records at second base.

The January election was in Fox's 15th and final year of eligibility on the writer's ballot. Hall of Fame rules stipulate that Fox's name must wait three years before it can be considered in voting by the Hall of Fame's veterans committee.

Georgia Court To Study Case

ATLANTA (AP) — The Georgia Supreme Court wants to study a suit which seeks to force the University of Georgia to release all documents pertaining to the NCAA investigation of the school's football and women's basketball programs.

The court stayed until Thursday an order by Superior Court Judge James Barrow, who had ordered the documents released by 9 a.m. today.

Documents filed in court showed the NCAA accused Georgia of 34 violations of its rules. Two of the violations related to the women's basketball program and five others concerned football. The remaining 27 involved the Georgia men's basketball program.

Barrow first ordered that the papers be released Jan. 23, but the state attorney general's office appealed.

The Supreme Court order Monday will give the high court more time to look at the suit filed by Morris Communications Corp., the parent company of the Athens Banner-Herald and Athens Daily News, and Cox Enterprises Inc., publisher of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution.

Warriors Lead Toward Record Skid

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — In 10 years, the Golden State Warriors have gone from National Basketball Association champion to a woeful loser.

They have the momentum, 14 straight losses, which makes them a threat to break the NBA single-season record of 20 consecutive losses set by the Philadelphia 76ers of 1973. The Milwaukee Bucks, a division leader, will face the Warriors tonight at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

"Unfortunately, when you're losing, you can't wish your way out of it. You have to play your way out of it. The team just got home. I've talked to (Coach) John Bach and he believes they're playing hard, which is all we can ask," says General Manager Al Attles, who coached the 1975 championship team.

The Warriors' 10-33 record is worst in the NBA, they're the worst shooting team with a .455 mark from the field, and their home attendance average of 7,453 is 800 under last season's. In the 14-game losing streak, they've suffered two 45-point losses, to Dallas and San Antonio.

Last year, Bach's first as head coach, the Warriors finished 37-45 and just missed making the playoffs. Unless there's a dramatic turnaround soon, the team will fail for an eighth straight year to reach the playoffs.

The bright side is that they would have a shot at drafting Georgetown's All-American center Patrick Ewing this summer. The seven non-playoff teams will participate in a lottery, unless they've traded away their rights, to determine the first seven spots in the drafting order.

"We're not giving up our number one pick. That's written in granite," Attles said Monday.

"Of course, it's possible to dynamite granite," he added.

In other words, if players such as Michael Jordan or Ralph Sampson are offered in pre-draft deals, Attles might listen. Otherwise, he'll be saying, as he did to the Philadelphia 76ers early this season, "It's been nice talking to you."

The Warriors' starting lineup now consists of the league's second highest scorer, forward Purvis Short, and four players who probably would be reserves on any of the NBA's top teams. Veteran forward Mickey Johnson has been the only consistent scorer coming off the bench.

Joe Barry Carroll, the starting center and a 20-point scorer over the last four seasons, is missing. He became a free agent after last season, presented no offer sheet from another NBA team, rejected Golden State's offer, and signed with a pro team in Italy.

Over the last 10 seasons, the team has lost a lot more good players than it has acquired. Many, including Rick Barry, Jamaal Wilkes, Gus Williams, Bernard King and Carroll, left after declaring for free agency.

High draft picks have included NBA flops such as Wesley Cox (1977), Rickey Brown (1980) and Russell Cross (1983), and players like Rickey Green (1977) and Derek Smith (1982) who have done well elsewhere after the Warrior gave up on them.

"If there's one area, collectively, where we've made a mistake, it's been with young kids, not being as patient with them as we could be," Attles said.

The Warriors, who play Portland on Thursday night and the New York Knicks on Saturday, could match a club record this week by stretching their losing streak to 17 games.

"I was on the team that lost 17 straight 20 years ago," Attles admitted. "So was Wilt Chamberlain. But he was only in on 11 of those games, then got traded. I've got to make that clear. I wouldn't want to upset Wilt."

Knight Responds To Criticism

everybody all the time."

Unhappy with the recent play of most of his regulars — including 1984 U.S. Olympian Steve Alford — Knight started four freshmen along with 7-foot-2 senior center Uwe Blab in Sunday's nationally televised game against Illinois. Indiana scored just 12 points in the first half and lost 52-41. The Hoosiers lost at Purdue 62-52 last Thursday.

In the radio program, Knight dealt with questions concerning the status of forwards Winston Morgan and Mike Gioni and his decision to play Blab and six freshmen at Illinois.

He said Morgan and Gioni did not return from a loss at Ohio State with the team 10 days ago because Knight had "got on them pretty good" for their play and didn't want him "to keep pounding on them" all the way home. Knight said he had Morgan and Gioni fly back with Athletic Director Ralph Floyd so he and his staff could get on with their planning.

Morgan and Gioni did not play at Purdue and didn't make the Illinois trip, a third straight loss that dropped Indiana to 11-5 overall, 3-4 in the Big Ten.

"I think there comes a time that somebody needs to be jolted a little, and if jolting them doesn't get them playing to what their potential is, then they've got to think about dropping out of it or playing somewhere else," Knight said.

"Consequently, I didn't even take Gioni and Morgan on the travel roster to Illinois simply because they didn't show Friday and Saturday in practice that they played any better. It's such a simple thing for me; if you play well in practice, then you'll play in games. I've never operated any way else."

"I've always felt that the greatest motivator of all is the bench. If a kid isn't playing well, he's got to sit down and another kid's got to have a chance."

Knight said there were players he would like to have used at Illinois but he was determined to stick to his guns even if they turned on him. The move was precipitated by Knight's dissatisfaction with his team's lack of aggressiveness and its play on defense and the boards.

"(Dan) Dakich should have played," Knight went on. "But I'd made a commitment to myself and to the freshmen that this was going to be their ballgame, this was going to be their chance. They were going to get the opportunity to play. They worked like the dickens, and they deserved the chance to play in view of how our older players had been playing."

Knight said his greatest regret was benching sophomore guard Alford.

"When I called my Mom last night to see how she was doing, the first thing she said was, 'How come you didn't play Alford?' She wasn't particularly happy that Alford didn't play."

"Nor was I. I didn't enjoy sitting through a ball game without playing Steve and one or two other guys."

Knight talked about how Alford's assists have fallen off and his leadership and defense have been lacking.

"I want to see Steve Alford be more than a great scorer," he said. "I want Steve Alford to be a great player. A great player makes everybody else a little better."

"I felt Steve could sit out an entire game, watch kids who I know are going to play awful hard and by Steve's own admission today, play a lot harder than we had all year."

Joe DiMaggio, holder of the major league record for hitting in consecutive games with 56 in 1941, set one in the minors also when he batted safely in 61 straight games for the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League in 1933.

Legislators Cautious On Tax Proposals

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A wary attitude will pervade the predominantly Democratic Legislature as it deals with a Republican governor for only the second time this century, responses to an Associated Press survey of legislators indicate.

"I can't speak for the entire Legislature, but I will support (Gov. Jim Martin) if I think he's right and I'll oppose him if I think he's wrong," said House Speaker Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, an outspoken critic of Martin's tax proposals.

The survey also indicates there will be significant support for giving voters a chance to repeal gubernatorial succession when the General Assembly convenes Feb. 5. Other issues receiving support as the 1985 session approaches are retaining the death penalty, banning use of phosphates in laundry detergents and continuing to elect judges.

Unclear is the degree of support for a career-ladder plan for teachers and a basic education program suggested by the State Board of Education. Significant numbers of lawmakers also are unsure about a comparable-worth system for state employees and government funding of abortions.

The Associated Press mailed questionnaires to the 120 representatives and 50 senators elected Nov. 6. Ninety-seven legislators, or 57 percent, responded. They included 65 representatives, or 54 percent, and 32 senators, or 64 percent. Some lawmakers were interviewed by telephone.

Some legislators said they were too unsure of their positions to respond. Many who did respond asked that their names not be used, saying they might change their minds as the Legislature debates the issues.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, the state's ranking Democrat, said he expected Martin to win some form of tax-relief package and that Martin deserved a fair chance.

"I'll do everything in my power to see that we respond to it in an open and fair manner," Jordan said.

The survey asked whether legislators favored repeal of taxes on intangible assets such as stocks and savings and on business inventories and the sales tax on food and non-prescription medicines. Eliminating those taxes was the focal point of Martin's campaign platform.

Forty-nine legislators, or roughly 50 percent of those responding, favored repealing the intangibles tax. Another 30 lawmakers, or 31 percent, favored partial repeal. Seven lawmakers opposed any change and 11 were undecided.

The same number — 49 — favored doing away with the inventory tax, while 23 favored partial repeal. Eleven opposed any change and 14 were undecided.

Martin's plan to cut the food and medicine tax appeared least popular. Thirty-one favored it and 15 supported partial repeal, but 33 wanted to keep the tax. Eighteen were undecided.

On other issues in the survey:

— Thirty-three legislators, 19 in the House and 14 in the Senate, favored retaining the state's abortion fund. Twenty-eight, 21 in the House and seven senators, opposed it. Nineteen were undecided and 17 said the state should pay only for abortions in cases of rape or incest or when a mother's life is threatened.

— Martin's decision to make Interstate 40 the state's top highway priority was favored by 53 legislators, while 29 opposed it. Fifteen were undecided.

— Seventy-five lawmakers, including 51 representatives and 24 senators, favored letting voters decide whether the governor and lieutenant governor may seek second terms. Only 15 were opposed and seven were undecided.

Twenty-six representatives and 10 senators favored returning to the pre-1977 system of one four-year term for the state's two top officeholders. Twenty lawmakers favor keeping the present system of two four-year terms, and 26 want to compromise with a single six-year term.

— A proposal to implement a "comparable worth" system in state governments, designed to make jobs traditionally held by women higher paying, was opposed by 40 legislators — 25 in the House and 15 senators. Twenty-five representatives and 15 senators favored it, while 17 lawmakers were undecided.

— Only 13 representatives and seven senators favored exploring alternatives to the death penalty, such as life imprisonment with no parole. Sixty-eight lawmakers supported the death penalty. Nine were undecided.

— A basic education program proposed by the State Board of Education was supported by 53 lawmakers, while seven opposed it and 37 were undecided. A career-ladder program for teachers was supported by 38 and opposed by 23, with another 36 undecided.

— A proposal by the Education Policy Council to enlarge the education board, allowing the Legislature to appoint some members, and to have the superintendent of public instruction appointed instead of elected was supported by 48 legislators and opposed by 28, with 22 undecided.

— Twenty-eight representatives favored banning the sale of laundry detergents containing phosphates, while 20 opposed it and 17 were undecided. In the Senate, 14 favored the ban, seven opposed it and 11 were undecided.

— Seventy-five legislators favored requiring employers to label containers of hazardous substances, while three opposed it and 19 were undecided. Proposed "strict liability" legislation, holding hazardous waste transporters responsible for accidents even if they're not negligent, was supported by 47 lawmakers, with 23 opposed and 27 undecided.

— Fifty-nine legislators — 40 in the House and 19 in the Senate — favored repeal of the so-called "Hardison amendment," named for Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, which bars the state from enacting hazardous waste regulations tougher than federal regulations. Seventeen lawmakers wanted to keep the amendment and 21 had no opinion.

Graham Says Leaf Fight Just Starting

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham vowed Monday to fight the Reagan administration if it tries to phase out tobacco price support and quota controls.

"I know him well," Graham said of U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block. "But he doesn't know a dad-dilly thing about tobacco."

Speaking at the annual "Eggs and Issues" breakfast at Louisburg College, Graham said he had contacted the state's congressional delegation to voice his opposition.

He said it was critical that the tobacco program be considered separately from the Reagan administration's 1985 farm bill.

"We are going to have to watch the 1985 farm bill," Graham said. "The biggest mistake that can be made is lumping tobacco in with everything else."

Agriculture commissioners from across the nation will meet in Washington on March 11 to protest the elimination of price supports for tobacco and other crops, he said.

Graham urged tobacco farmers not to give up on their crop just yet.

"Before you jump from (growing tobacco) to some other crop, remember this isn't the end of tobacco," Graham said. "We are going to have it grown in some way."

"How many of you have ever eaten microelectronics chip cookies or had a nice software salad?"

IN THE STATE

Helms Says Leaf Program Is Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse Helms promises to use his clout to halt any move by the Reagan administration to phase out the tobacco allotment system.

"Nothing will come of it," Helms said Monday of a proposal revealed by U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block. "The secretary was talking when he should have been listening."

Helms said he talked with Block by telephone Friday night, but he declined to elaborate.

Last week Block told reporters the administration would ask Congress to phase out marketing allotments, which limit tobacco production, and to greatly reduce price supports.

Tobacco would be included in an effort to create a uniform farm program for all crops and to cut program costs by making them "market-oriented." It would be carried out over five years, leaving only some form of cut loan support program, well below market prices.

Helms has endorsed the "market-oriented" approach in general terms. But his agriculture aides have said that the North Carolina Republican supports only reduced price supports for tobacco.

The success of the administration's 1985 farm bill could depend on whether the administration pursued the tobacco allotment proposal, Helms told reporters Monday.

Asked whether he thought administration officials would stop short of pushing the tobacco proposal in the Congress, Helms said they would "if they want a farm bill approved. I'm still chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. I'll put it that way."

Study Calls For Abolition Of 98 Appointive Boards

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina governors and legislatures are partly to blame for an influx of state boards, councils, task forces and commissions, a researcher and legislator say.

"Several governors have used these things as just a pat on the back to reward some supporters or big contributors," said state House Speaker Liston Ramsey. "They give (the board members) a letter and a certificate ... to frame and put on the wall. That's a waste of taxpayer money."

But Ran Coble, director of the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research Inc., said the General Assembly contributes to the problem, too, creating an average of 14 boards per session. In the 1983-84 session, it established 21.

The center, a non-partisan think tank, issued a report Monday, concluding that 98 such panels should be abolished because they do little that's worthwhile and meet seldom if ever.

"The number of boards keeps growing like kudzu," Coble said, warning that unless changes are made, "this kudzu will choke off useful citizen participation" in government.

Ramsey and Art Pope, Gov. Jim Martin's counsel on boards and commissions, said they hadn't had time to read the center's 618-page report. But both agreed some boards should be combined and others eliminated.

The center's report, based on a three-year study, identified 320 state boards, commissions and councils. They advise the Legislature or governor on topics ranging from domestic violence and housing for Indians to plant conservation and car pooling.

The report says many of the groups perform useful but duplicate functions and should be consolidated, which would save about $1.4 million.

For example:

— There are 11 different groups under the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development that deal with water supplies and quality. They include separate councils for such water bodies as the Chowan and Neuse rivers, Lake Phelps and Kerr Lake.

— There are six different boards or commissions on libraries, and nine concerned with subjects taught in school — though none deals with the three R's or science.

— Despite the presence of the Commission for Health Services and the State Health Coordinating Council, there's an array of boards on such ailments as arthritis, sickle cell anemia, and sudden infant death syndrome.

— Veterans' affairs fall under the jurisdiction of four groups: the Veterans Affairs Commission, the Veterans' Affairs Advisory Committee, the Governor's Jobs for Veterans Committee in the Department of Administration and the Governor's Advisory Commission of Military Affairs in the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Other groups, the report says, should be abolished or consolidated because they are outdated or seldom meet.

They include the N.C. Council on Interstate Cooperation, which has not met in five years; the N.C. Indian Housing Authority, which has never made a rule because no federal housing funds have been available; the North Carolina Land Conservancy Corp. Board of Trustees, which hasn't met since the late 1970s; and the North Carolina Water Safety Council, which doesn't meet.

Study Panel Sets Final Review Of Proposed Code

RALEIGH (AP) — Avoiding such sensitive issues as sexual assault and abortion, the Legislature's Criminal Code Revision Study Committee has wrapped up its 225-page crime bill that rewrites hundreds of North Carolina laws.

After two years of work, the committee will meet Monday for a final review of its proposed changes in criminal laws ranging from murder to the statute of limitations.

Rep. Daniel Blue, D-Wake, committee chairman, says the panel has made minor changes, consolidated common law and removed obsolete statutes, but the proposals have sparked criticism from those who say the committee did too much and those who say it didn't do enough.

The study committee has backed away from a number of issues, including a proposal to eliminate the offense of crime against nature.

Last October, the committee struggled over what to do about private sexual acts between consenting adults, which the state still views as a felony crime. But after hearing arguments from religious fundamentalists and civil libertarians, who are sharply divided on the issue, the committee took no action.

One proposal discussed last August but still unsettled deals with the statute of limitations. There is no limit for felony prosecution; if police make an arrest in an armed robbery case eight years after the incident, a suspect can still be brought to trial.

The committee is expected to review Monday a proposal setting a six-year statute of limitations on all felonies except murder.

Included in the proposed changes, an intoxicated husband who shoots and kills his wife in a jealous rage could be convicted of the new crime of diminished second-degree murder. The charge, which is based on emotional instability at the time of the crime, carries a maximum 18-year sentence.

Bennett Faces Challenges To Stance On Civil Rights

CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — William J. Bennett today assured a Senate panel that as secretary of education he would seek "full enforcement" of all civil rights laws and regulations, but without letting the Education Department become "needlessly meddlesome or intrusive."

In a statement prepared for his confirmation hearing, Bennett made no reference to the controversy over his refusal at the National Endowment for the Humanities to set affirmative action hiring goals.

Members of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee were expected to press him on that issue, as well as a brewing controversy over President Reagan's fiscal 1986 budget, which The Associated Press has learned will include a proposal to deny Guaranteed Student Loans to all students from families with incomes above $32,500.

In his prepared statement, Bennett, 41, a former philosophy professor and director of the National Humanities Center at Research Triangle Park in North Carolina, said, "As one who has devoted his entire professional life to American education, I can imagine no higher honor, or greater challenge, than the opportunity to serve our nation in this capacity Education is at the heart of the American dream."

He promised to provide "vigorous leadership" for school reform, but stressed that most of the changes in the past two years — including stiffer graduation requirements and more rigorous training of teachers — have come from the state and local level, not from Washington.

Bennett said he recognized that "all children are not equally advantaged, nor are their communities." He promised to "seek the full enforcement of all laws and regulations" against discrimination, but said he would also "make every effort to prevent the department from being needlessly meddlesome or intrusive."

The panel scheduled a single afternoon session at which Bennett and a critic, Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., were the sole witnesses.

Committee chairman Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, encouraged other interested witnesses to submit their testimony in writing because "we'd like to make it go quickly," committee spokesman Ed Darrell said Sunday.

Reagan nominated Bennett, a conservative Democrat who promotes a "back to basics" philosophy, for the Cabinet post Jan. 10. Darrell said a formal vote on the nomination is not expected before Friday at the earliest.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the ranking Democrat, and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., planned to press Bennett on how he views the future of the Education Department and anticipated Reagan cuts in its $17.9 billion budget.

Reagan's 1986 budget will seek to bar all students from families with incomes above $32,500 from the Guaranteed Student Loan program, an administration source told The Associated Press.

The Reagan budget will also cut off Pell Grants at $25,000 and put a $4,000 lid on the total package of federal aid and grants any student — no matter how poor — could draw, said the source, who insisted on anonymity.

Hatch, in his opening statement for the confirmation hearing, said Bennett "is eminently qualified to be the federal government's foremost education spokesman.... During his tenure at NEH, Dr. Bennett has been a champion of the educational excellence movement that has swept America."

Hatch said he believes Bennett shares his view that "there is a proper role for the federal government in education." But Hatch added that the government should play a modest role and not be an "800-pound gorilla."

The White House earlier this month said Reagan had asked Bennett to undertake a study of what the proper federal role in education should be. Reagan took office in 1981 vowing to abolish the then one-year-old agency.

Bennett, a former philosophy teacher with a Harvard law degree, has shown no reluctance in the past to defend Reagan's largely futile attempts to cut the NEH's $140 million budget by as much as a third.

His stewardship of NEH, with its emphasis on a return to basic skills and the classics, has delighted conservatives while annoying some liberals.

The number of NEH grants for black studies dropped from 73 to 20 between 1981 and 1983, while grants for women's studies fell from 69 to 15, according to figures gathered by congressional investigators at Ms. Collins' request.

At Bennett's order, NEH last year became one of only three federal agencies out of 110 to refuse to comply with a "management directive" to set goals and timetables for hiring women and minorities. The other two holdouts are the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission.

At a contentious hearing last July 25 before Ms. Collins' House Government Operations subcommittee, Bennett said he was not breaking any law. He said his agency tried to recruit minorities, but would not give them preferential treatment.

Bennett co-authored a 1979 book, "Counting By Race," that lays out a historical argument against using quotas for hiring or college admissions.

CONFIRMATION HEARING — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., passes by William J. Bennett, President Reagan's nominee for the post of education secretary, Monday after introducing him to members of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. The committee began confirmation hearings today on Bennett's appointment. Bennett has been director of the National Humanities Center in the Research Triangle Park. (AP Laserphoto)

Delayed Election Being Held Today

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A five-year veteran of the N.C. House of Representatives and a political novice will face off today in a delayed election that will complete the slate of state legislators for a three-county area.

Voters in Wilson County and part of Nash County will decide whether Democratic Rep. Jeanne Fenner, a homemaker who has served in the House since 1980, or Larry E. Etheridge, a Republican businessman, will represent House District 71. About 32,404 voters in Wilson County and 1,303 in Nash County will be eligible to vote.

Three other seats in the counties also will be decided by voting today, but the Democratic nominees face no Republican opponents.

The election was postponed from November 1984 as a result of a lawsuit about reapportionment in Wilson, Nash and Edgecombe counties, which had been represented by four members elected at-large.

FCC Blocks Plan To Let Parents Delete TV Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has rejected a proposal that would let parents install electronic boxes on their TV sets to delete commercials aimed at children.

The FCC denied a request from two activist groups to require TV stations to broadcast special signals before and after the commercials that would trigger the electronic boxes. The device would decode the electronic signal and make the TV screen go blank while the ad is running.

The FCC decided to leave the ads alone because "advertising supports children's programming," Freda Lippert Thyden, a commission attorney who worked on the case, said Monday after the decision was announced.

Deleting TV ads aimed at children would prompt sponsors to spend their money elsewhere in an effort to reach the young consumers of toys, cereals and hamburgers. And if the shows didn't have sponsors, they wouldn't last long, a commission statement said.

Peggy Charren, founder and president of Action for Children's Television, said the ruling did not surprise her "since we lost on every other bright idea we've brought before the commission in the last three or four years."

But Ms. Thyden said the decision did not necessarily reflect the FCC's current philosophy that favors deregulation. "This is the kind of thing we never would have done even in the liberal heyday when they were making a lot of regulations," she said.

Ms. Charren said the decision proves that "neither the industry nor the FCC means it when they say the option should be in the hands of the parent."

Nevertheless, Ms. Charren said she had no plans to appeal the commission's decision in federal court.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals R

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Pleas Entered

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Three dissidents have pleaded innocent to charges of spreading hostile propaganda, their first response to a modified indictment reducing charges against them.

Miodrag Milic, Dragomir Oluic and Milan Nikolic originally were charged with engaging in anti-state conspiracy and counterrevolution, which carries a possible sentence of 5-15 years. They now are on trial for spreading hostile propaganda, punishable by up to 10 years.

Little Fills In For Keach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When actor Stacy Keach couldn't narrate the season's last two episodes of "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer" because he was in a British prison, the CBS detective show's producers hired a ringer — impressionist Rich Little.

Keach, 43, who plays the hard-boiled detective, was unable to do the voice-over narration for the two otherwise-completed shows before being sentenced in London last month to nine months in prison for smuggling cocaine.

So the producers turned to Little, who is famous for his impressions of hundreds of celebrities, Monroe, Friedman, the 46-year-old comedian's publicist, said Monday. Keach's voice was not part of Little's repertoire at the time, Friedman said.

The two episodes were broadcast Jan. 5 and 12, said CBS spokesman Roy Guiver. "We got a few calls" from viewers who detected that the narrator wasn't Keach, but most didn't recognize the impersonation because "overall, it was pretty good," Guiver said.

Tarkenton Hosts Cable TV Series

ATLANTA (AP) — Former National Football League quarterback Fran Tarkenton is tackling personal finances as the host of a new cable television series.

"Smart Money," an hour-long program seen twice nightly Monday through Friday, debuted Monday on the Lifeline cable TV channel.

"What we're trying to do is have a show that will interest the person that's got everyday business to do," said Tarkenton, 44. "It won't be just for the big businessman. It's going to be a far-ranging show on how you invest and spend your money and how you buy and sell things."

Richie Tops Music Awards

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mellow crossover sounds of Lionel Richie outpolled Prince's ragged rock edge at the 12th annual American Music Awards, with a surprised Richie winning six awards and Prince, accompanied by a tattooed bodyguard, taking three.

Kenny Rogers won three trophies on the nationally broadcast show, making him the all-time American Music Awards champion with a total of 16. The awards Monday night honored winners of a nationwide public opinion poll.

Tina Turner, Anne Murray, Cyndi Lauper and the Pointer Sisters picked up two awards apiece during the three-hour ABC telecast at the Shrine Auditorium.

Offstage, Richie and producer Quincy Jones announced that several top recording artists including Richie, Bob Dylan and Bruce Springsteen were joining together Monday night to record a song, with the proceeds donated to relieve starving Ethiopians.

Prince and Richie were nominated in eight of the same categories, and Prince had 10 nominations overall, giving him a shot at breaking the record set last year by Michael Jackson, who won seven regular awards and also was the year's Award of Merit recipient for career achievement.

Richie, who was host of the show, was honored as favorite male vocalist and favorite male video artist in both black and pop-rock categories. His video clip, "Hello," was named favorite pop-rock video single and black video single.

"I cannot believe it. I was concentrating so much on making sure the show was going properly that when they kept calling my name I said 'Wait a minute — this is not in the program, this is not in the script,'" said Richie, who had previously won seven of the awards.

Prince, the 26-year-old sensation from Minneapolis, won for favorite black single with "When Doves Cry," as well as top black album and pop-rock for the soundtrack album to his hit film, "Purple Rain." He electrified the audience into a swaying mass with a live performance of the title song.

"For all of us, life is death without adventure," Prince said after his third trip to the podium. "Adventure only comes to those willing to be daring and take chances."

But the slim, androgynous Prince apparently preferred to take no chances at the awards, with a hulking, tattooed bodyguard accompanying him even to the stage to accept his trophies.

Rogers' awards included one he shared with Dolly Parton for favorite country single for their duet, "Island in the Stream." Rogers' LP, "Eyes That See in the Dark" was voted favorite country album, and he also was named favorite male country vocalist for the fifth time.

Miss Lauper was named favorite female vocalist and video artist in pop-rock, while Miss Turner picked up the same awards in the black artist category. Miss Murray won favorite female country video artist, and her hit, "A Little Good News," was voted favorite country video single.

Miss Turner, whose first hit was 1960's rhythm and blues smash "A Fool in Love" with former husband Ike, said her latest album, "Private Dancer," was the result of a desire "to see what I could do on my own. It just really shows I can do it."

The favorite pop video group award went to Huey Lewis and the News, who hit it big last year with an album called "Sports."

Springsteen won favorite pop single for "Dancing in the Dark," but was not present to collect it. Daryl Hall and John Oates made it three years in a row as favorite pop-rock group, and Alabama also checked in as favorite country group for a third straight year.

The Pointer Sisters were named favorite black group, their first American Music Award, and also won as favorite black video group.

Barbara Mandrell won her fifth consecutive country vocal award, accepting via satellite from Nashville, and Willie Nelson was named favorite male country video artist.

"The Good Doctor"

Today is the 125th anniversary of the birth of Russian author Anton Chekhov. Chekhov studied medicine in Moscow, intending to be a physician. Early in his medical practice, he wrote skits for newspapers to help support his family. By 1886 he decided to concentrate on literature — first short stories and then plays. Neil Simon based one of his plays on Chekhov's work. At one time, Simon had four plays running simultaneously on Broadway.

DO YOU KNOW — What popular television show had a supporting character named Chekhov?

'Cotton Club' Is 'Not For Everyone'

A Reflector Review

One of the most audacious and ambitious of recent movies is "Cotton Club," produced by Richard Evans and directed by Francis Coppola. This movie (now playing at the Buccaneer Movies) took a long time to make it to theaters; it ran overbudget and ate up directors. It's been panned by many critics, approved by others.

Was it worth it? I think so, but it's not for everyone. "Cotton Club" stars Richard Gere and Diane Lane in lead roles, but the movie is really an ensemble movie. It's set in Harlem's fabled Cotton Club in the late '20s and early '30s, when blacks entertained but couldn't see the shows because it was a whites-only club visited by the well-to-do and famous, and owned and operated by The Mob.

This would have been just another gangster movie without the singers and dancers, especially Gregory Hines and his real-life brother Maurice who play dancing brothers in the film. But all the supporting roles, male and female — mother, gang bosses, lovers, brothers gone wrong, everyone — are played well.

"Cotton Club" is not merely a gangster movie, the way "The Godfather" wasn't just another gangster move. It is about dreams, about good and evil, greed and prejudice, a tragedy with a show-biz ending.

It's also about love and caring, and about lust and power. There's enough blood and gore from shoot-outs to show us that crime doesn't pay except in more crime.

That's a lot of baggage for one movie to carry around, but "Cotton Club" doesn't often stagger under the weight. The movie's makers have taken risks in this movie, and in general they have worked out. The editing is superb, and use of jazz ties the whole movie together.

"Cotton Club" is rated R for sex and violence, profanity and adult subject matter. It's a grown-up movie about a part of the world that no longer exists and which may never have existed quite this way, but which is nevertheless part of the American mythology.

The movie left town and is back for a limited showing for only a few more days. So if you haven't already gone, go see it.

Stars To Make Ethiopian Song

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson, Bruce Springsteen, Cyndi Lauper, Lionel Richie and other top stars are banding together to record a song to raise money for starving Ethiopians, several of the musicians say.

"It's just being a human being, wanting to help," said Tina Turner, who with the rock group Hall and Oates and the others were to record the new song "We Are the World" following the American Music Awards on Monday night.

The tune was written by Jackson and Richie.

The American rockers were following the lead of Culture Club, Duran Duran and other top British performers who formed the super-group Band Aid last year to record "Feed the World." That hit song raised millions for Ethiopian relief.

The artists said they did not know when the single will be released.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JAN. 30, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The day can be unusually beneficial and filled with action in whatever you have any line of interest that is of a practical or monetary nature. Seek advice of businessmen.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be certain to handle financial affairs that are important and show you are sensible, then later you can socialize.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) First do something to improve your health and then go after the personal and business aims that mean much to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Set pace with a new campaign you have worked out that will take you straight to your goals and you attain them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Confide your aims in a good friend and gain cooperation so they are easier to attain. Weigh a decision carefully.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get your outside business affairs handled in such a way that you can get ahead very quickly during daytime.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You gain fine new ideas that should be improved with the advice of bigwigs, so be sure to see to them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get your obligations nicely met during the day and then off to new sites in the evening. Meet interesting personalities then.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The spirit of compromise is best with that person who is as stubborn as you. Come to a fine agreement quickly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into your work duties enthusiastically early and they are soon behind you. Socialize in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can enjoy recreation during the day, and then can do your work in the evening for a change.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into all those fundamental affairs that can improve your way of life during the day. Relax tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can gad about and get much done during the day, as well as get into new interests. Spend time at home this evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will easily understand whatever has to do with money and other practical matters and it would be best to give courses in business administration. Add psychology to the curriculum also so that others can be understood.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Using authorization, my husband and I both obtained insurance through the Gold Cross Burial Association. The service provided was excellent and premiums remained low. At the time of my husband's death, the amount of service was exactly what we needed and I had friends to help with the funeral.

*I realized my coverage was no longer adequate and should be updated. At my age, premiums were so high. But, through the Gold Cross Burial Association I was able to buy insurance at affordable rates.
And, I didn't even have to have a physical examination. The simple enrollment guaranteed rates and low premium have provided security for me!*
