New Herpes Drug Being Produced Here

By CAROL BLACKLEY TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville manufacturing plant of the Burroughs Wellcome Corp. played an important part in the development and clinical evaluation of Zovirax, the capsule oral medication form of which has been approved this week by the Food and Drug Administration for the prevention or reduction of recurrent outbreaks of genital herpes.

Burroughs Wellcome here has been and is currently producing acyclovir capsules under the brand name Zovirax. Packaging is getting under way now that the FDA has approved the drug form, and shipping will begin within the next few days, a plant spokesman said.

The drug will be used to suppress outbreaks in people who have frequent recurrences of genital herpes. It is said to be the first antiviral drug of broad utility in treating human herpes simplex infections. The compound was synthesized in 1974 by Burroughs Wellcome at its Research Triangle Park facility and was introduced in ointment form in March 1982, and was then made available in intravenous form in October 1982. Much of the formulation and processing of the original chemical and of its various forms was done in Greenville.

According to Dr. Sandra Lehrman, a senior research scientist with the company, the drug is said to attack the herpes simplex virus selectively, leaving uninfected cells virtually untouched. It becomes biologically active in virus-infected cells, where it is converted to its active form by a virus enzyme. In this form, it inhibits the virus from replicating and spreading to other cells. By stopping the virus replication, it halts the infection to speed healing and reduce pain. When given continuously to suppress outbreaks, it is said to "stand by" in the cells and be triggered to action as the virus reactivates, thus inhibiting the disease process.

Its selective mode of action, its non-toxicity to normal cells, and its capacity for not rapidly degrading in the body are said to be what sets Zovirax apart from other antivirals. The capsules can be used as daily therapy up to six months for managing recurrent cases, on a short-term basis to give episodic treatment, and for 10 days to treat first infections.

Zovirax does not eradicate the latent virus from the body, but stops replication, so it is a management tool rather than a cure. In its intravenous form, it can also be used to treat cold sores in people who have problems with their immune systems.

Almost everyone in the Greenville plant has been and will continue to be involved in one way or another in getting this drug to the public, a plant spokesman said. He said the company can meet virtually any marketing demand. It has what is believed to be an adequate stock for six months and the ability to produce and ship more on very short notice.

Shipment to wholesalers will begin within the next few

The company originally spent more than $2 million on equipment to manufacture acyclovir and has spent another $400,000 for the capsule manufacturing equipment. No renovation of the plant has been required and no additional employees have been hired.

The marketing demand is expected to be large. It is estimated that 5 million to 20 million Americans have genital herpes and that 300,000-500,000 persons a year have initial outbreaks of venereal disease, much of it herpes. William L. Whittington and Dr. Willard J. Catres Jr. of the Center for Diseases Control in Atlanta wrote in the April 1984 edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association, "Assuming just one in five persons elect oral prophylaxis, a projected one million persons with a history of recurrent herpes infection would be taking acyclovir daily. This would make acyclovir the second most commonly prescribed daily prophylactic medication, next to oral contraceptives."

Burroughs Wellcome Says Drug May Be Best Seller

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — Acyclovir capsules given federal approval for treating genital herpes may be Burroughs Wellcome Co.'s biggest seller once production and distribution are geared up, officials say.

"Two or three years down the road it could bring in $50 million plus in annual revenue to Burroughs Wellcome," said Glenn Moser, assistant product manager for the company, in a Tuesday press conference to announce the drug's approval.

Asked if that would make Zovirax capsules the company's biggest source of revenue, Moser said, "It will, unless something else comes along."

Dr. Samuel W. Singleton, vice president of the Burroughs Wellcome medical division, said it costs an average of $80 million to develop a new drug. But he said this one, which reduces recurrent outbreaks of genital herpes, promises a big return on the company's investment. He said the company has more than a dozen years left on its initial patent for acyclovir.

Burroughs Wellcome already takes in $30 million a year from acyclovir-containing ointment and intravenous solutions.

The capsules will give sufferers — estimated at between 5 million and 20 million in the U.S. alone — control over the disease but won't cure it, said Richard H. Clemons, senior clinical research scientist at Burroughs Wellcome's virology section.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved the anti-viral drug in capsule form after studies by Burroughs Wellcome showed regular treatment "completely prevented recurrences in 65 percent of treated patients." The study, to appear in the April 27 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said the remaining 35 percent of the patients had outbreaks that were less severe and much less frequent than without the drug.

Dr. Sandra Lehrman, senior research scientist in the Burroughs Wellcome department of virology, said acyclovir "provides no guarantee that the virus will not be (sexually) transmitted to a partner." But she added, "It may do that to some extent. The shedding of the virus is decreased, but it's very hard for the patient to know when he or she has stopped shedding the virus."

Moser said the capsules should be available for prescription the week of Feb. 11. Patients suffering their first outbreaks would take five capsules a day for 10 days at a cost of about $30 to $34, he said. Treatments for recurrent outbreaks would range from a 25-capsule regimen costing $15 to $17 to three capsules a day spread over six months at a cost of about $55 a month.

Side effects, including nausea, vomiting, dizziness and headaches have been "not very frequent and certainly not profound enough that anyone has had to stop taking the drug," Singleton said.

Clemons said 2.7 percent of patients experienced nausea and vomiting early in treatment while 0.6 percent complained of headaches. Among long-term users of acyclovir, 13 percent had headaches and 8 percent had nausea and vomiting, he added.

Singleton said acyclovir works by preventing the active virus from reproducing and may get FDA approval soon for use with related viruses. He also said a study is being considered to study giving acyclovir to pregnant women whose babies risk severe birth defects if exposed to genital herpes.

HIGHWAY HEARING — More than 200 people attended a discussion session on highway construction in northeastern North Carolina held Tuesday at Martin Community College near Williamston. Legislators, town and county officials, and representatives from industrial, transportation and tourist organizations provided input into the discussion, coordinated by state Sen.-elect Marc Basnight of Manteo.

Northeast's Highway Needs Featured At Martin Meeting

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSTON — At a public discussion on the immediate and long-range future of highway construction in northeastern North Carolina, held at Martin Community College Tuesday in Williamston, the primary focus was on forging a coalition of groups and individuals to keep the highway issue before the public and officials.

Marc Basnight of Manteo, state senator-elect of the 1st Senate District, presided over the discussion, which marked the first public appearance in eastern North Carolina of the new secretary of transportation, Jim Harrington.

Noting the public meeting "is part of a continuing series of hearings and discussions," Basnight said "the area of North Carolina east of 95 is a two-lane area in a four-lane state. The keys to our discussions today, to our planning, are U.S. 64, 17, 158 and 264."

Other officials present for the discussion included Deputy Secretary of Transportation Billy Rose and Board of Transportation members Kenneth Roberson of Robersonville and Jack Bishop of Rocky Mount. Also on hand among about 200 attending the meeting were a number of county and municipal officials, representatives of industrial, transportation and historic organizations, and several state legislators and legislators-elect, including Pitt's Bob Martin, Vernon James of Pasquotank, Charles Evans of Dare, and Howard Chapin of Beaufort.

A cross-section of area officials and other interested persons were on hand to hear Basnight touch on past developments in highway programming and construction in the northeastern area of the state, principally north of Albemarle Sound and immediately south along U.S. 64 from Rocky Mount to the Outer Banks.

According to Basnight, "The official 1985-1994 Transportation Improvement Program has basically eliminated northeastern North Carolina for road construction projects of all kinds. The only funded four-lane project in this 10-year plan for U.S. 64 is the Rocky Mount-to-Tarboro, 13.5-mile project scheduled for completion in 1992.

"The only four-lane project on U.S. 17 is the 5.7-mile, Hertford-to-Woodville bypass due for construction in 1987."

Basnight said that in the past, an active coalition "representing larger cities such as Wilmington, Fayetteville and Greenville has been able to skew the highway programs." He added that original plans carried an agreement that U.S. 64 and U.S. 264 improvements "would be a companion package. This has never happened," he said. "The 264 program has been accelerated. We (the U.S. 64 program) are back to where we were 10, 12, even 14 years ago."

Estimated costs of the improvement areas focused on in Tuesday's discussion, according to Basnight, would amount to a total construction cost of "approximately $200 million for a total road program of 122 miles for the northeastern part of the state." He called on Harrington "to study these facts, to try to realistically fit them into your budget for the remaining (northeastern North Carolina) part of the state."

Various spokesmen expressed dismay, frustration, and in a couple (Please turn to page 16)

ANNOUNCEMENTS LATE

Many other school systems in eastern North Carolina announced on Monday night's 11 o'clock television news what their schedules would be Tuesday. Not the Pitt County schools. I only heard the announcement of the two-hour delay in opening the schools at 7 a.m. and my son would have been due to get on the bus at 7:10. This is the third time this winter that Pitt County has been slower than just about everybody else letting parents know what their children's schedules for the school day would be. This seems inconsiderate to me, something that could be better handled. T.M.

Barry Gaskins, Pitt County Schools public information officer, said radio and television stations were notified Tuesday between 5:30 and 6 a.m. that the school opening would be delayed two hours. He said he personally heard the delay announced on WNCT-TV's "Carolina Today" shortly after 6 a.m. Notification was given also prior to 6 a.m., he (Please turn to page 11)

New Building

Burroughs Wellcome Co. is in the process of building a new 10,000 square foot facility here to manufacture and package liquids and ointments, a company spokesman said today.

Pat Grebe said construction of the $3 million building began recently and completion of the one-story structure is expected in July.

The new building will be located on the northwest edge of the company's site on N.C. 11 north of Greenville.

Trade Deficit Nearly Doubles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States suffered a record foreign trade deficit of $123.3 billion last year as a flood of imports swamped a modest increase in exports, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the new deficit total came close to doubling the old record of $69.4 billion set in 1983 and was almost three times higher than the 1982 figure of $42.7 billion.

Analysts have blamed the strong dollar for the imbalance. Since 1980, the value of the dollar has risen by 41 percent against other major currencies, making foreign goods cheaper in this country and U.S. wares more expensive and thus more difficult to sell overseas.

The skyrocketing deficits have led to growing pressure for further import restraints among industries suffering the most from foreign competition, such as steel, autos and textiles. By one estimate, the trade deficit has cost 2.5 million

U.S. jobs.

The merchandise trade deficit is a result of an imbalance between what Americans buy from overseas and what U.S. businesses sell as exports. Last year, imports soared 26.4 percent above the 1983 level while exports were rising just 8.7 percent.

In December, the deficit shrank to its lowest level for the year, $8.2 billion, compared to a November deficit of $9.9 billion. It was the lowest monthly total since a $6.7 billion deficit in December 1983.

For the year, the surge in imports was led by huge increases in shipments of iron and steel products, new cars, electrical machinery and telephones and other communications equipment.

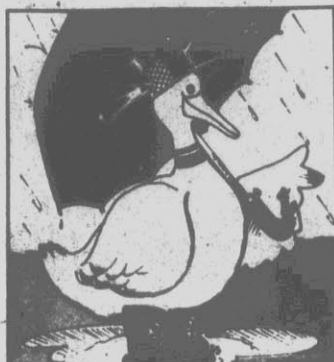

Iron and steel imports jumped 61.1 percent last year while foreign car shipments were up 27.2 percent. Imports of electrical machinery rose by 46.5 percent and shipments of telecommunications equipment were up 41.3 percent.

In the overall category of manufactured equipment, the United States ran a deficit of $88.5 billion, more than double last year's $38.2 billion deficit in manufactured goods. This category showed a surplus as recently as 1981.

The country's foreign oil bill climbed to $59.2 billion in 1984, a 7 percent increase over 1983. But this was still below the 1982 total of $62.7 billion, primarily because of price weakness. In 1984, the average price per barrel of crude dropped to $29.24, down from $29.68 in 1983.

U.S. farmers sold $38.2 billion worth of agricultural commodities overseas last year, a 4.8 percent increase over 1983. However, foreign agricultural shipments rose 19.1 percent last year, narrowing the trade surplus in agriculture to $16.7 billion, a 9.2 percent decline from 1983.

Couple Speaks Vows In Grifton Church Saturday

Wendy Carol Boyd and John William Pope III were united in marriage Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the Grifton Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Van Mitchell and the Rev. Dennis Keen performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Boyd of Route 2, Grifton, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pope of Route 1, Kinston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of chiffon and Wedgewood lace. The high Victorian neckline and bodice were trimmed with schiffli embroidery. The full skirt and cathedral train were trimmed with rows of Wedgewood and Venise lace accented with satin bows. Her two tiered fingertip veil was trimmed in Wedgewood lace and was attached to a Venise lace headpiece accented with satin ribbon and pearls.

The maid of honor was Lisa Boyd of New Bern. Bridesmaids included Lisa Collie and Penny Cole, both of Kinston.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Dennis Pope of Kinston, brother of the bridegroom, and Jeffery Boyd of Grifton, brother of the bride.

Kay Davis of Grifton was organist for the ceremony and Mike Cunningham of Grifton was vocalist. Dot Griffen of Route 1, Dover, directed the wedding, and Sue Tingle of Grifton presided at the register.

The bride is a graduate of North Lenoir High School and Wayne Community College in dental assisting. She is employed by Family Dentistry Association of Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Lenoir High School and is employed by Roy's Datsun of Kinston.

MRS. POPE

The couple will live on Route 6, Kinston, after a wedding trip to Virginia Beach, Va.

The bride was honored at two showers prior to the ceremony and a shower and bridal luncheon.

Fight Against Birth Defects Marches On For Half-Century

DEAR READERS: This is not a question from Trivial Pursuit, but perhaps it should be: Who originated "The March of Dimes"?

Give up? Well, back in 1934, when Franklin Delano Roosevelt was president, Eddie Cantor, of vaudeville, movie and radio fame (no TV in those days), asked his millions of radio listeners to send President Roosevelt a dime for his birthday on Jan. 30. Those dimes went to benefit the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. (As a young man, Roosevelt had been stricken by polio, leaving him partially paralyzed for the duration of his life.)

Dimes poured in from all over the country, so the campaign to collect money for research to conquer polio was aptly named "The March of Dimes."

In 1955, the Salk vaccine virtually wiped out polio, so The March of Dimes turned its efforts toward researching hereditary birth defects as well as surgically correcting them in newborn babies.

There are 650 March of Dimes chapters nationwide that desperately need funds, so, inflation being what it is, be a sport and send President Reagan $1 for his birthday on Feb. 6 to help this worthy cause.

Write your check to The March of Dimes and send it to President Reagan in care of the White House, Washington, D.C. 20500. He will bless you for it, and so will millions of children who will benefit from your birthday gift to our president.

10 years old.

The problem is that every time we have Dick's children over, which is once a month, he lets his kids get away with murder. They do anything they please and he never disciplines them. If I try to discipline them to keep them in line, he gets mad at me.

Dick is very strict with the other kids—always correcting and punishing them. I think this is unfair to the other kids. They resent it, and are starting to develop a real hate for Dick's kids, and I can't blame them.

I have tried telling him how unfair he is, and he always gives me the same excuse: "I only get to see them once a month."

What should I do? This is the only thing Dick and I ever fight about, and I can't handle it.

STEPPED-ON STEPMOTHER

DEAR STEPPED ON: Dick is being lenient with his "first family" because he wants to win their favor, and I suspect there's also some guilt involved.

Dick is not only alienating the other kids, he's cheating himself out of a normal, healthy relationship with the older children.

Urge him to get some family counseling. He needs to know why he's behaving this way. Once he understands it, I hope he'll change his tactics.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to thank a few anonymous people I hope I never meet. I'm talking about adults who buy liquor for minors while the minors wait outside the store. Thanks, fellas.

When I was 14, I knew a kid who used to stand outside a liquor store and approach people as they walked inside and ask them to buy a bottle for him.

When he was 16, he was averaging a fifth of cheap vodka a day. He'd go to school and to his after-school job drunk, and drive so loaded he couldn't see straight. It's a miracle he was never picked up by the police or had a wreck.

Now the kid attends Alcoholics Anonymous regularly and is staying sober one day at a time.

So, next time some kid asks you to buy liquor for him because he's not old enough to buy it himself, please, turn him down.

I know this is a real letter from a real person because that person is ... ME

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

According to Webster, Swiss Steak is "a slice of round steak into which flour is pounded on both sides and which is then browned in fat and smothered in tomatoes and other vegetables and seasonings." The other vegetables are, as a rule, onion and celery.

Why Swiss Steak is called "Swiss" is anyone's guess. Culinary history buffs have not yet, to my knowledge, tracked down the origin of its name.

Recipes for Swiss Steak started cropping up in the last half of the 1920s. It was considered economical because the round steak called for offered little waste and it became a favorite family dish. In one well-circulated cookbook of that period, bacon drippings were used for browning the steak and green peas were added. Nowadays cooks are still devising variations. In the following recipe, recently developed by a California cook, mushrooms are used.

Seasonings, too, have changed. In early recipes only salt, pepper and garlic might have been added. In the following recipe basil, oregano and thyme are called for.

- SWISS STEAK
- 1 1/2 pounds round steak, about 1 inch thick
 - 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
 - Salt and pepper to taste
 - 3 tablespoons (about) vegetable oil
 - 1 large (6 ounces) onion, sliced
 - 1 large rib celery, sliced
 - 1/4 pound (generous) mushrooms, sliced
 - 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
 - 8-ounce can stewed tomatoes
 - 1/4 teaspoon dried crushed basil
 - 1/4 teaspoon dried crushed oregano
 - 1/4 teaspoon dried crushed thyme
- Trim excess fat from around

DEAR ABBY: This is a second marriage for both of us. (Both divorced.) Dick (not his real name) had three children with his first wife, and I had two by a previous marriage. Dick and I have one together. All the children are under steak. With the edge of a heavy saucer or a meat mallet pound flour into both sides of steak. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

In a large skillet heat oil; add steak and over medium-high heat brown well on both sides. Place steak in a baking dish (about 12 by 8 by 2 inches).

In the drippings in the skillet lightly cook onion, celery, mushrooms and garlic. Stir in tomatoes, basil, oregano and thyme. Pour over steak. Cover tightly with foil.

Bake in a 300-degree oven (no need to preheat) until steak is tender — 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours. Place steak on a hot platter, keeping vegetables on meat; if necessary, skim excess fat from juices and pour around steak. Serve at once.

Makes 4 servings.

Furniture Care
That's simple enough... just spray and wipe, right? Well, maybe. But it depends on the furniture. More specifically, it depends upon the type of finish.

Routine care of any finish means frequent dusting! When you dust, use a clean, lint-free, absorbent cloth. The best cloth is cotton knit. Very slightly dampening it with water allows it to pick up dust rather than pushing it around. Remember that you should always wipe with the grain.

When dusting doesn't seem to renew the original shine, it's probably time to wax. You'll be happy to know that it doesn't have to be done very often. Once a month should be enough for areas that are used often and seldom-used surfaces only need waxing two or three times a year. Since most of the finishes used today prevent the polish from penetrating to the wood, the routine care you do simply protects the finish. The amount of shine and the ease of use are guides to follow in choosing the best products for your finish.

High gloss finishes are used on most wood furniture today. This means that they have a durable lacquered finish that preserves the wood. Dusting waxes which come in either aerosol cans or liquids are most often used on these finishes. They remove dust and dirt and leave a long lasting gloss. Paste wax can also be used, but it requires a little more elbow grease. It provides long lasting protection for furniture that gets heavy wear. The natural woodlike color helps to conceal marks.

Low gloss and satin finishes require a low luster polish or cleaning wax that will not leave a high gloss. Be sure to read the label of the product you select carefully because about 80% of the furniture care products available contain silicone which produces a high gloss. Of course, if you want to increase the gloss, an aerosol or liquid wax can be used.

Oil finishes have no gloss at all. Repeated applications of boiled linseed oil and turpentine provide the actual finish. When it needs care, treat it with a new application of boiled linseed oil and rub thoroughly. When most of the oil has been absorbed, wipe clean. This creates a hard finish that does not require wax. If wax has been used, clean with mineral spirits before applying a new coat of linseed oil.

Painted finishes are easy to care for. Use a cleaning wax or a dusting wax for the shine you prefer. Paste wax should not be used on white or very light colored surfaces, because its natural woodlike color may stain the finish.

When your finish becomes dulled, you will want to do a thorough cleaning. Remove any wax and soil build-up with either a cleaning wax or a household solvent such as naphtha or mineral spirits. Use a fresh cloth which has been saturated with cleaner. Covering about a square foot at a time, use a circular motion making sure the final wipe is with the grain. Dry the area at once with a second clean cloth while the cleaner is still moist and the previous coat of wax and soil are loosened and soft. After cleaning, reapply wax. Note: Cleaning solvents are flammable. Be sure to follow labeled directions and use with caution. Next week: Tips for special care and problems.

Counties Concerned About Funding

Good News

Confirmation that 1984 was a good year for Americans came within scant hours of President Reagan's inauguration for four more years in the White House.

The Commerce Department says the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, grew 6.8 percent for all of 1984. That was the best showing since 1961.

There was more good news. Inflation was held to 4 percent in 1984. That is a truly remarkable figure, giving the country its best three-year inflation rate since the late 1960s.

At year's end we were told total employment for men, women, adults and teen-agers had risen during '84 by 3.3 million. Business and industrial activity in terms of sales and profits hit new all-time highs; and even interest rates have shown a continuing gradual decline ... holding promise for the year ahead.

Would anyone really want to change that kind of trend?

Memories of gloom and doom linger for several years. They're very much alive in the minds of many; but the overall picture has changed, and for the better.

Despite the good news many can see there are dangers and potential threats. The huge and expanding national debt with the accompanying price we pay, the plague of budget deficits, a deep awareness that many Americans do not share in the expanding economy, the imbalance of foreign trade — all weigh heavily on our perception of the future.

The Utopian dream is manifestly impossible; but as of today we've seldom had it so good.

RALEIGH — Look at the legislative agenda of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners and it's obvious that money is on the minds of the folks in the courthouse. Look at the fiscal squeeze the commissioners see themselves in and it becomes obvious why they're looking for money.

The association endorsed a seven-page list of legislative proposals for the 1985 General Assembly session which begins on Feb. 5. Nine of the top 10 priorities on that list involve money, either new taxing authority, funding responsibilities or more state aid to the counties. "I know it looks like all we're interested in is money," says Jim Blackburn, association staff counsel. "And that's a perception I'm worried about because it is not accurate." Non-financial matters will probably absorb the bulk of the association's lobbying efforts, Blackburn said, but those matters will arise only as the Legislature works through its session.

But Blackburn is quick to note that the counties face proposals which might reduce their revenues significantly while at the same time demands for new spending are being made. Gov. Jim Martin is proposing elimination of the state sales tax on food, and both the inventory and intangibles taxes. Much of that revenue loss would come at the expense of the counties. Martin says he wants local governments compensated for any loss in revenues. But because of sentiments in the assembly, it is almost certain that any compensation would be distributed back to the counties according to a formula that would not match current collections. Some counties would gain but others would lose — and some might lose significant amounts of money. Counties also face the loss of federal revenue sharing money. That program feeds $70 million to counties. Blackburn said some counties depend on this program for 15 to 18 percent of their entire budgets.

On the demand side, there are the public schools, local hospitals, water and sewer lines, and the many programs mandated by the state and federal governments. It is estimated that the capital needs of North Carolina public schools are $2.2 billion and that is a local responsibility. Many local hospitals are going under and if the legislature doesn't come to their aid, it will be a local responsibility to save them or close them down.

The commissioners, therefore, voted to oppose the repeal of the inventory and intangibles taxes unless they are "replaced with revenue having a growth factor equal to the present taxes." In 1984-85, it is estimated that the two taxes will bring more than $290 million to local governments.

The commissioners also want authority to levy an additional half-cent sales tax. In 1983, the legislature approved a one-half cent local option increase with much of the money earmarked for local school, water and sewer needs. That's not proved enough, Blackburn said, so the commissioners want another half-cent. Since 1983, 96 of the 100 counties have voted to add the half-cent tax.

The Apache

Announcement that the N.C. Army National Guard is the first NG unit in the nation to be assigned the Apache combat helicopter tells us something about the high regard accorded our National Guard. The Apache's price tag, armament and capabilities are dazzling.

A $7.8 million armory and helicopter hangar will be built by the government near Raleigh-Durham Airport to serve the new equipment.

Adjutant-General Hubert Leonard has observed "there are a lot of jealous adjutant-generals across the nation" over selection of North Carolina to receive the aircraft. He noted that the NCNG air units recently were cited for outstanding performance, a recognition that is presumed largely responsible for the signal honor.

North Carolinians have a tradition of many men (and now women, too) volunteering to meet requirements of national defense. It appears that not only are those needs continuing to be met in terms of numbers, but also in quality.

Public Viewing Of A Job Hunt

WASHINGTON AP — Not since the wall posters of China's cultural revolution has a government official's future been the subject of the kind of quasi-public campaign focusing on Jeane Kirkpatrick.

What sort of job would be "worthy of her," to use President Reagan's phrase?

Mrs. Kirkpatrick's supporters and detractors have been trying to answer that question with Washington's version of the wall posters that appeared in Peking in the mid-1960s to denounce public officials who didn't meet the exacting standards of the Red Guards.

During the weeks leading up to today's meeting between the president and his U.N. ambassador, the capital's ubiquitous anonymous sources have had a field day trying to determine Mrs. Kirkpatrick's future. In her case, the job hunt is played out on the front pages instead of back in the help-wanted ads.

At work is what Mrs. Kirkpatrick once called the "paper triangle," which she described as the symbiotic relationship between journalists, anonymous sources and the public.

A tough-talking conservative Democrat, Mrs. Kirkpatrick is leaving her United Nations post. If she remains in government, she'd like to move on to something more interesting — like secretary of state or White House national security adviser.

She has powerful support among hard-line conservatives in the Republican Party, but they don't have the upper hand at the moment among Reagan advisers, particularly on foreign policy.

The president obviously likes Mrs. Kirkpatrick's uncompromising anti-communism and wants her to spend another four years in his administration. But his admiration stops short of willingness to dump Secretary of State George Shultz or security adviser Robert McFarlane to make room for her.

When allies of Mrs. Kirkpatrick pressed her case for one of the top foreign policy jobs, a White House aide described her, anonymously, of course, as "too temperamental to hold higher office."

She needed no anonymity to handle that sort of charge. "It was really a classical Victorian reproach against a woman," the U.N. ambassador told an audience of women in New York. "I think sexism is alive — it's alive in the United Nations, it's alive in the U.S. government, it's alive in American politics."

So much for that anonymous official.

But that was just an early salvo. If not one of the top foreign policy jobs, then what?

Publicly, Mrs. Kirkpatrick has made it clear she'd just as soon return to the faculty of Georgetown University.

"I both enjoy and miss the pleasures of private life," she told a news conference shortly after the November election.

A statement or a negotiating position? That was never clear. Certainly, it could be both, her way of telling the president, "make me an offer that I can't refuse."

Then came the president's remark in an interview that he was having trouble finding a job opening "that was worthy of her."

They met early in December and Mrs. Kirkpatrick told reporters that "we talked a bit about the future and agreed to talk again after the inauguration... And that's all I'm going to have to say."

From there, the negotiations moved to the media.

An anonymous administration source said the president would offer her the choice of heading the Agency for International Development or the U.S. Information Agency.

It was one of those times when anyone following the strange ways of Washington had to yearn to have been a fly on the wall to see USIA director Charles Z. Wick and AID administration M. Peter McPherson open the morning newspaper. Neither official had any plans to leave government.

Wick, an old friend of the president, called Reagan and later told reporters, "It's not going to happen here."

Meanwhile, there was a telling silence from the Kirkpatrick camp.

Building A Corporate Image

From a Newsweek story on Yuppies: "When American Express found that women were not responding to their overwhelmingly male 'Do You Know Me?' series, it launched its 'Interesting Lives' campaign, which features up-to-date activities such as (a woman) taking a man out to dinner to break in her card."

I've seen the ads on TV and I've been impressed with them. But I've always wondered what happens after the girl shows her charge card to the good-looking guy in the lobby of the skyscraper, and they go off to a very expensive restaurant.

The maitre d'hotel presents the menus.

Woman with credit card to male guest: What is your pleasure?

He: Why don't you order for the both of us?

She: Pasta verdi with pesto sauce, steak Diane, soufflé potatoes, endive salad with the house dressing, and a bottle of the nouveau Beaujolais, slightly chilled. Kiwi soufflé for dessert.

He: You certainly know your food. She: You have to if you're on the fast track.

He: I usually don't go to dinner with married women.

She: Come on, loosen up. We're out to have a fun evening.

He: I just didn't want you to get any ideas because you're buying me a meal that it will lead to something later on.

She: What kind of upwardly mobile person do you think I am? Have some more wine. Let's drink to having it all and having it now.

He: Having what now?

She: Did anyone ever tell you that you have beautiful eyes? Talk to me a little about yourself.

He: It's nothing exciting. I was raised in Iowa and came to the Big Apple to make a name in advertising.

She: I have some influential friends on Madison Avenue that might help you. They all owe me favors. Here's my card.

He: Please don't do that.

She: Do what?

He: Hold my hand. I'm not that kind of guy.

She: What kind is that?

He: You know... Someone who sleeps around with any woman who has a gold credit card.

She: Let me refill your glass.

He: You're trying to get me drunk, so I won't know what I'm doing.

She: How can you say that? I wouldn't be a vice president of marketing if people didn't trust me.

He: Let's talk about your husband. What kind of person is he?

She: Let's just say he doesn't understand me. He's boring. All he wants to talk about is having children.

He: And you don't want children?

She: They don't issue gold credit cards to women who buy Pampers.

He: Please take your hand off my knee.

She: I was trying to find my napkin. Here, have another glass of wine with your steak Diane. Do you find me attractive?

He: Very much. But can't we just have a nice dinner and be friends?

She: We are friends. I genuinely like you for your mind. What health club do you go to?

He: I'm starting to feel tipsy. Maybe you better take me home.

She: If that's what you want. We could have a nightcap at your place.

He: No way. I told you not to get any ideas about the evening.

She: But we're the "Me" generation, and we have the whole night ahead of us.

He: I vowed never to get involved with a married woman.

She: Why on earth not?

He: Because I don't want to be the "other man," waiting for the phone to ring while you're buying your husband dinner with your gold credit card.

Strength For Today

St. Paul, in writing to the Philippians declares, "I count myself not yet to have attained, but this one thing I do..." He forgets the things which are behind. He reaches forward to the things which are before him. He presses toward the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Life's greatest successes are often made by men and women who say, "this one thing I do." Lincoln, Edison, Carnegie, Ford — here are men who made great accomplishments during the 19th and early 20th centuries. They were men of one object who pressed onward toward a mark.

Young people are well advised to make themselves specialists of some variety. Success in any one line may not bring great fame, but as Ralph Waldo Emerson pointed out, even if it is only the making of a better mousetrap, the world will make a path to your door.

"One thing I do... I press toward the mark for the prize."

OPEC Sets New Price For Crudes

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A majority of OPEC oil ministers agreed today to cut their oil prices, ending three days of emergency talks, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said.

"Yes, we have an agreement," Yamani told reporters as he and several other oil ministers emerged from a 2½-hour final session. He said the deal was not unanimous, but added that the group would not need to meet again until its regular summer session.

Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, said Libya, Algeria, Iran and Gabon were not part of the agreement.

Yamani said the agreement was to leave the price of OPEC's cheapest crudes at $26.50 a barrel, while the highest-priced crudes would be $2.40 above that.

That would mean the top-priced oils would fall in price from $30.50 a barrel to $28.90, based on the figures mentioned by Yamani.

The Saudi minister declined to provide more details.

Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, Venezuela's oil minister, confirmed that Iran and the three African members were not part of the deal. But he said the deal would be implemented and would strengthen the oil market.

"This is a majority decision, and it is a valid decision," he said. "In the past we have had decisions that have not been unanimous decisions, but history has shown that we have been able to reach unanimity as time passes."

Grisanti also said that as part of the deal, Nigeria had agreed to restore 65 cents of the $2 a barrel price cut it made last October. That would leave its price at $28.65 a barrel.

New prices for other grades of oil were not immediately disclosed, aside from the $26.50 a barrel quote for Saudi Arabian heavy oil. That is unchanged from December, when the ministers agreed to raise it from $26 a barrel.

"I am sure that OPEC will continue to battle for the stabilization of the market," Grisanti said.

Unions Say No To Sale Of Conrail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attempts by Conrail management to force a sale of the freight railroad through a public stock offering have received a sharp setback after the proposal failed to win support from 19 unions representing Conrail workers.

The Railway Labor Executives Association announced Tuesday it was throwing its support behind a $1.2 billion bid by the Allegheny Corp., a New York holding company and one of three potential buyers being considered by Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole.

L. Stanley Crane, chairman of Conrail, had hoped to get support from labor for his proposal or at least have the 19 unions split with some of the larger ones supporting the public stock offering, which he has championed for months.

But at a news conference after seven hours of close-door meetings, the labor group, whose unions represent 35,000 Conrail workers, said it had unanimously agreed to support the Allegheny offer and would no longer consider any of the other proposals.

Ole Berge, the labor group's chairman, acknowledged the union leaders at the start of their meeting were sharply divided on which of the proposals to endorse. By the end of the day Allegheny remained the only one on which a majority of the union representatives could agree, he said. He declined to give any details on the voting, saying a final endorsement was made unanimously.

Richard Kilroy, president of the largest union representing Conrail workers, the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, told reporters he shifted his support from a public offering to the Allegheny proposal because it was "the only one that everybody could agree on."

After the announcement, Mrs. Dole said in a statement that she welcomed the labor representatives having "clearly endorsed a private sale" of Conrail and would take their endorsement "into consideration" when selecting one of the three bidders she is still considering.

In addition to Allegheny, the remaining bidders are an investment group headed by hotel executive J. Willard Marriott, and the Norfolk Southern Corp., the eastern railroad holding company that has been widely speculated to be the likely choice of Mrs. Dole.

Mrs. Dole, in speaking privately to the labor leaders early Tuesday, gave no hint as to which of the three bidders she will choose but reiterated her opposition to a public stock offering, according to several of the union leaders present.

Conrail was created by Congress after the bankruptcy of the Penn Central Railroad and began operating in 1976 to assure continued rail service in the Northeast. In all, the government poured $7 billion into the railroad during its early years, although the railroad has been making a profit since 1981.

White House Security Is Tightened Following Escapade By Intruder

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says it has tightened security but is still trying to find out how an unescorted civilian made his way into a ceremonial area of the White House by mingling with uniformed Marine Corps musicians on their way to play for President Reagan's inauguration.

"I think all parties agree that there was a mistake made," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Tuesday after confirming a report that Robert Latta of Denver, who said he came to Washington to see the inauguration, penetrated the State Floor of the executive mansion on Jan. 20.

"I just walked in with the band," the uninvited water meter reader told The Associated Press.

Speakes said the Secret Service began an internal investigation immediately after the incident and is continuing it, looking for human or procedural error.

"Some steps which I will not specify have already been taken as a corrective procedure," he said. "Others may be taken once the internal investigation is over. If procedural adjustments are necessary, they will be made. If there is human error determined, appropriate action will be taken."

Speakes said Secretary of the Treasury Donald T. Regan, whose department oversees the Secret Service, gave the president a detailed briefing on Latta's escapade after it was disclosed Tuesday.

The spokesman said Reagan had

been told about the incident earlier, but he did not know when. The president and his wife were attending a special inaugural church service at the time Latta was arrested. Less than two hours later, he took the oath of office for his second term in a small invitation-only ceremony just a few paces from the spot where the arrest occurred.

Speakes spent nearly an hour fielding reporters' questions about how Latta could have just walked into the White House despite elaborate security precautions that include metal detectors. Security had even been intensified for the inaugural weekend.

Speakes pointed out that the area in which Latta was arrested "is exactly the same area tourists go through six days a week." Latta, in fact, said he had gone through the White House four days earlier on the guided tour.

Escorted tourists, however, go through metal detectors and other security clearance at the gate.

Latta, 45, was never stopped. Wearing an overcoat and carrying a bag, he fell in with 33 members of a Marine Corps orchestra wearing uniform coats and carrying instrument cases. The Secret Service said Latta was unarmed when he entered the White House grounds at 9:37 a.m.

Speakes said the commanding officer of the band presented guards at the East Gate of the White House with a list of the people accompanying him. He said the musicians all had top secret clearances, a higher clearance than most of the White House staff have.

"It has been standard military office and Secret Service procedure that the officer in charge can vouch for his men — or women — as they enter the White House complex simply by stating that they are his men and they are present," Speakes said. "Obviously, there was no head count."

He said "the word of the commander" was accepted in such cases.

"The mistake was not on the part of the Marine Corps," Speakes said. "It is a mistake on the part of the Secret Service and our mistake, not the Marines."

"It definitely is a breach of security," he said.

The musicians set down their instrument cases at the foot of a staircase going up to the second floor, where they were to play. Latta put his bag down, too, and followed the musicians upstairs.

A White House usher noticed Latta and at 10:05 a.m. pointed him out to the head usher, Rex Scouten.

Scouten asked the Marine officer in charge of the orchestra who the man was.

"He indicated he was not a member of the Marine orchestra, but he assumed he was a staff member who had entered with them," Speakes said.

"For six minutes the man was not approached while a decision was made" about how to proceed,"

Speakes said.

Block Leads White House Briefing On Farm Crisis

WASHINGTON AP — Despite a presidential "soft spot" for agriculture, the Reagan administration has not yet decided whether to rescue the farm belt from its credit crisis. Agriculture Secretary John Block said after a briefing.

"The president had a very complete briefing. He's very well versed on it," Block said Tuesday after a Cabinet meeting at the White House.

He said the meeting was called to update Cabinet members on the severity of the crisis and no options for dealing with it were discussed.

"The answers are not easy," Block told a reporter afterward.

He said Reagan asked questions about the "intensity of the problem, how widespread it is, and so forth."

"He knows it is severe," he said it was," Block said. "If there's anyone that has a soft spot in his heart for agriculture, it's the president of the United States. He's a farmer-rancher in his own mind."

Farmers — particularly those in the Central grain belt — are being squeezed between high interest rates on loans they use to buy land and equipment and to plant crops, and dropping values of the land and crops which are the basis for the loans.

Economists and bankers say the crunch could drive thousands of farmers out of business if some of the most seriously ailing producers cannot get loans to plant crops this spring. Some say as many as one in ten farmers could be driven out over the next three or four years if conditions do not improve.

During the presidential election campaign last fall, the administration advanced a plan to restructure some government-held farm debt and offered $650 million in loan guarantees for those with commercial loans. But only $25 million of the loan guarantees has been used because banks say they cannot live with the rules under which they are offered.

Administration officials, including Block, have so far resisted efforts by independent banks and farm-state lawmakers to liberalize the program's rules and to expand it to $3 billion.

Credit problems were also on the minds of representatives of five farm organizations in Washington this week to lobby Congress for a balanced federal budget as the best cure for rural woes.

The group — including the Farm Bureau, the Grange, the National Farmers Organization and soybean and corn groups — noted that high federal deficits drive up interest rates, which in turn puts the squeeze on heavily leveraged farmers. Deficits also add to the dollar's strength, making U.S. farm exports less attractive in world markets.

Union Leader Wants New National Licensing Exam For Entry Teachers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teacher union chief Albert Shanker, calling current teacher licensing tests "a joke," is urging education leaders to join him in an effort to create a tough, new national exam for entry to the profession.

Teachers should have to pass licensing exams, just as doctors and lawyers do, the president of the 600,000-member American Federation of Teachers said Tuesday.

There should be a uniform, nationwide passing score, and it should be a crime for school administrators to hire someone who flunked the test, said Shanker, who added that provision would have to be phased in "or the jails would be full."

Shanker, once known for his militant union leadership in New York City, has been an outspoken advocate of restoring rigor to the schools and holding new teachers up to exacting standards, including tests.

But he said this was the first time any major organization has called for a national teacher examination.

In a speech at the National Press Club, Shanker warned that the nation soon will face a shortage of teachers, due to low pay, poor morale and other conditions that have discouraged people from entering the field. He predicted many states, to meet the shortage, will simply hire less qualified people.

"In the midst of all the talk about excellence, we're actually about to lower standards," he warned.

Shanker said his union would eventually ban new teachers from membership unless they passed such an exam. He challenged the rival National Education Association to join him in supporting it.

Most current teacher licensing exams "would be considered a joke by any other profession" because they usually are minimum competency tests that seek to weed out only the worst candidates. In Florida, he said, prospective math teachers are tested at the sixth-grade math level.

"This would be the equivalent of licensing doctors on the basis of an exam in elementary biology," he said.

Teachers have long complained that they are not treated like professionals. Asked if the test was really a way to help his members get higher pay and status, Shanker said: "I confess (it is). And you might also get the same quality and standards that go with (professionalism)."

Shanker said he would ask education leaders, college presidents and leaders of other professions to join him within six months to create a national board, possibly called the American Board of Professional Education, to decide what teachers need to know and how it can be measured.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the 1.7 million-member National Education Association, said in a statement: "NEA believes that it is the basic right of the states to determine who's qualified to teach.

Successful classroom performance should be determined by a number of criteria. The score of a test might be one aspect of a comprehensive state teacher evaluation program."

Shanker said the federal government should not have anything to do with licensing teachers. States that did not require new teachers to pass the test would face public pressure to do so.

New teachers would be required to

Joseph's

Less parts breakage and less service calls—a proven record for those with Joseph's Maintenance Contracts for IBM typewriters. Call 355-2723 cut and place on typewriter serve an internship of one to three years and pass muster by standards set by the national board, he said. He said within three years of creation of the test, the AFT would close its doors to new teachers who had not passed it. Shanker said he had discussed the proposal with his executive council and said it was consistent with past AFT policies. "This is not just a personal idea," he said.

Land Swap By Federal Agencies Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan Administration is proposing a massive exchange of land in the West between the government's largest landlords.

The swap between the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management will involve up to 35 million acres of land in 13 Western states, BLM spokeswoman Elizabeth Harris said Tuesday.

It will also require congressional approval, she said.

Details of the plan were to be unveiled today at a news conference. The Forest Service is primarily responsible for managing forests while the principal BLM task is leasing tracts for livestock grazing. But the bureau also manages some forests, while the Forest Service is also in the grazing business.

The two agencies say their swap will save money and improve efficiency. They estimated three years ago that such swaps could save $30 million a year — a figure that does not take into account initial one-shot expenses.

Together, the Forest Service and the bureau spend about $1.6 billion a year managing 365 million acres in the 48 contiguous states — 174 million acres for the bureau concentrated in the West, 191 million acres for the Forest Service across the country.

The proposed swap is likely to affect land users throughout the West, since each agency has different rules and regulations.

For instance, miners on Forest Service land must win approval of an operations plan while miners on BLM land need not. And ranchers may sublease their grazing permits if they run cattle on bureau land — but not on Forest Service land.

However, Ms. Morris said some transferred tracts could be managed by the new controlling agency according to the laws governing the former manager.

Environmentalists generally saw no benefit in upsetting the established order.

"The only rationale I can see is that it will make the budget look less imbalanced," said Debbie Sease of the Sierra Club's Washington office.

"We don't think the BLM is as capable of doing a good job as the Forest Service, and we don't want to see any more of those rangelands go down the drain," said Johanna Wald of the Public Lands Institute, an affiliate of the Natural Resources Defence Council.

Road Funds Clear Hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billions of dollars in federal highway funds, frozen by a dispute over so-called pork barrel projects, have made it through a Senate committee. But the money faces more obstacles before it becomes available to states.

A measure releasing the $7.25 billion in frozen interstate funds won approval Tuesday from the Environment and Public Works Committee.

However, it is expected to run into trouble in the House because the Senate panel deleted all the projects it considered to be pork barrel — the same projects deeply prized by many House members.

Unless a highway bill is enacted early this year, interstate projects in as many as 45 states could be brought to a stand-still for lack of funds.

The Senate bill would release money that was withheld from the states last year because of a dispute between the House and Senate over whether to include a number of special projects — called demonstration projects — outside the interstate system.

By eliminating all of the demonstration projects Tuesday, the Senate committee appeared to prolong the dispute.

But Sen. James Abner, R-S.D., said that stripping the special projects "should lead to more expeditious approval" of the highway funding bill.

The bill approved by the committee would also lower the ceiling for federal highway spending in fiscal 1986 to $12.75 billion, down from a proposed $14.45 billion.

Woman Heads Cattlemen

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — From the day her first grade teacher taped her mouth shut for talking too much, Jo Ann Smith has had something to say — but now she speaks for 230,000 American cattlemen.

For the past year, as president-elect of the National Cattlemen's Association, Mrs. Smith has been preparing herself to lead the Denver-based agriculture organization which has members in all 50 states.

"It's obvious you aren't sending the 'little woman' to do a big man's job. You're sending a cattlemaster to do a cattlemaster's job," she said in remarks prepared for delivery to the organization's national convention when she assumes the top job today.

Referring to the convention theme of "facing the challenge of change," she added: "I guess it means that I get the challenge. And you get the change."

A fifth-generation Florida rancher who married another fifth-generation rancher on a nearby spread, she can mend fences, round up strays and brand calves. But Mrs. Smith, 45, is the first association president who's also a wife and mother.

Her style is silk suits, not Stetsons, and she demurs at feminist labels. She says she's proud, though, to be a role model.

Married straight out of high school, Mrs. Smith worked long hours beside her husband, Cedrick, on their 5,000-acre ranch that sprawls around Micanopy, Fla., a post office stop near Gainesville. She kept the books, tended her vegetable and flower gardens, joined the Junior League, served on the local hospital board, and became active in the CowBelles, the association's women's auxiliary.

Her son Marty, 25, is now a lawyer in Ocala, Fla., and daughter Terri, 23, is an accountant in Nashville, Tenn.

Senators Challenge Ruling On Meese's Ethics Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — After forcing public release of a report critical of Edwin Meese III, senators are asking why a government official rejected the internal report concluding the attorney general-designate violated ethics rules.

Meese told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday the findings by the two lawyers in the Office of Government Ethics were based on factual errors and misinterpretations.

The presidential counselor, who was returning for questioning today, acknowledged under oath that he asked his lawyers to take up the matter with David H. Martin, director of the federal Office of Government Ethics. But Meese said he saw nothing wrong with that.

"At my request, counsel for me contacted the Office of Government Ethics and asked to be heard," Meese said. "I do feel what they did was proper."

Martin, who was appointed by President Reagan, reversed the initial findings. He was summoned to testify, along with the two staff attorneys, F. Gary Davis and Nancy Feathers.

Martin, however, reiterated a Jan. 24 conclusion that Meese "was in compliance with applicable laws and regulations regarding conflicts of interest."

"That was, and is, accurate," Martin said in a letter to the committee, which had insisted that the internal working paper by the staff lawyers be made public.

Meese, 53, is facing confirmation hearings for the second time; his nomination was tabled last year as a court-appointed independent counsel investigated allegations that he had a role in obtaining federal jobs for people who had helped him out of financial problems.

The independent counsel, Jacob A. Stein, also investigated Meese's promotion in the Army Reserve, his acceptance of $10,000 from a presidential transition organization and other matters.

At Tuesday's hearings, the senators asked about many of the same topics that they initially raised at Meese's first set of hearings. The difference Tuesday was that senators interrogated Meese on his attitude toward government ethics rules, rather than focusing on the factual details of the incidents that prompted Stein's investigation.

In a report released last Sept. 20, Stein concluded that there was "no basis" to prosecute Meese on any violations of federal criminal laws.

But he noted that his role was not to issue any conclusions on whether Meese ran afoul of conflict-of-interest regulations governing the ethics of government officials.

In the newly released ethics office internal working paper, Davis and Ms. Feather concluded: "There are two situations in which Mr. Meese violated the standards of conduct."

One of those situations involved Meese's role in the initial nomination of John R. McKean to the U.S. Postal Board of Governors. The report noted that in a meeting of a White House personnel committee, Meese never mentioned that McKean had arranged for $60,000 in loans to the financially-strapped presidential counselor. The report said Meese should have abstained because he had "a financial interest in the matter."

Ms. Feather and Davis said Meese also should have abstained in a subsequent meeting when McKean's renomination was considered.

And they concluded that Meese "violated the agency gift standards ... when he accepted McKean's 'forbearance on the interest due' on $40,000."

The report also said that Meese has "an appearance problem" in his relationship with Thomas Barrack, a California real estate developer who used at least $70,000 of his own money to arrange the sale of Meese's LaMesa, Calif., home that had been on the market for a year and a half.

Baker Wins Confirmation As Secretary Of Treasury

WASHINGTON (AP) — James A. Baker III, whose only Senate critic called him skillful and effective, has won confirmation to give up his top White House staff job and take over as secretary of the treasury.

Baker, 54, a Texas lawyer, was approved 95-0 Tuesday in the first vote cast by the Senate this year. On Monday, he will leave the White House office, where he has toiled as chief of staff for four years, and walk across the street to take the top job at treasury.

The current secretary, Donald T. Regan, will take Baker's old job.

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee cleared the way for Senate votes on the nominations of two men who will help Baker in his role as chief Reagan administration spokesman on economics and taxes.

Richard G. Darman, who has been Baker's top deputy at the White House, won the recommendation of the committee to be deputy secretary, the No. 2 job at Treasury. Ronald A. Pearlman was endorsed as assistant secretary for tax policy.

Baker, who worked closely with Congress during President Reagan's first term, was roundly praised during a brief Senate debate on the nomination.

Senate Republican Leader Robert J. Dole hailed Baker's integrity and willingness to compromise.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Finance Committee, noted that one of Baker's toughest jobs will be to sell Congress on the administration's plan for rewriting the income tax. That task cries, Packwood said, for Baker's attributes: "honest, integrity, competence, fairness and openness."

Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, a Finance Committee, said he was impressed that Baker "openly stated he did not buy the entire (tax) package as proposed by his predecessor." Regan. "He is guided by his sense of fairness."

Rash Of Thefts

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of six thefts reported to the department Tuesday. Officer D.R. Best said a quantity of shoes was taken from a discount shoe store at 201 W. Ninth St. in a break-in reported at 9:10 a.m., while Officer E.C. Moore said $40 in cash and other items were taken from the King and Queen North on North Greene Street by thieves who gained entrance to the building by cutting a hole in the roof. The break-in was reported at 9:55 a.m., he said. Officer B.D. Dobbs said $35 in cash was taken from 1311 N. Washington St. in a break-in reported at 7:41 p.m., while Officer C.M. Credle said about $400 in cash and $150 in checks were taken from under a counter at Ellen's Hallmark Shop at The Plaza in an incident reported at 7:55 p.m. According to Officer W.A. Moore, $35 to $40 in cash and a quantity of tools were taken from a Catawba Road dwelling in a break-in reported at 8:22 p.m., while Officer C.R. Anderson said about $105 in change was taken from four vending machines at the West End Laundry in a break-in reported at 8:50 p.m.

ART COMPLETED — An environmental work of art designed and created by Jeff Schiff and placed in the rear portion of Gray Gallery on the ECU campus has now been completed. Schiff, of Boston, teaches at Clark University, Worcester, Mass. The work, of twigs, branches and bark covered with a platform surfaced with plaster, contains a viewing seat and an observation hole cut into the structure. Silvia Hile of Jacksonville and a number of ECU art students assisted Schiff in the construction of the piece. Viewing hours at Gray Gallery are 10-5 weekdays, and 1-4 Sundays. Wreck-Fire

A Monday morning traffic accident on Secondary Road 1757 (old N.C. 11) two-tenths of a mile south of Grifton heavily damaged a car and apparently resulted in a fire that heavily damaged a house. Highway Patrolman Johnny Letchworth of Kinston said Andrew Cobb Jr. of Kinston apparently went to sleep at the wheel of his car, resulting in the vehicle going out of control and striking a utility pole. Letchworth, who said the collision occurred about 8:10 a.m., charged Cobb with driving left of center and estimated damage to the car at $3,500.

A spokesman for the Grifton Police Department said fire units were called to a nearby house at 8:15 a.m. The officer quoted fire department officers as saying an apparent surge of electricity when the pole snapped caused an electric short circuit in the dwelling which ignited a gas line in the home. "Quite a bit of damage" resulted to the dwelling, occupied by Gene Westbrook, the officer reported.

Refresher Course

A 32-hour emergency medical technician refresher course will begin at 7 p.m. Feb. 11 at Pitt Community College. The class will meet for 10 sessions from 7-10 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. Kathleen Jackson, certified EMT, will be the instructor. For additional information contact the PCC Continuing Education Department at 756-3130, extension 238 or 266.

Management Session

Janie E. Manning, principal of Bethel Elementary School, is among a group of public school principals from across the state participating in the Principals' Executive Program, a professional-level management course for principals.

The program is offered by the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The current course is the second one offered and is being taught at Chapel Hill during eight three-day sessions from through March. Participants were nominated by their superintendent, then approved by the program.

Group Meeting

The Northeast B division conference will have a group meeting Saturday at 11 a.m. at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church.

Semester In London

Mabel Olivia Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson Jr., formerly of Greenville, has completed a semester of study in London and plans to graduate from the University of Virginia in May. She was one of 17 students from the University of Virginia to engage in the study of architecture in England. During the semester the students traveled to France, Italy, and Switzerland.

TOM DALY

Coordinator Named

Tom Daly has been selected math and science coordinator for Pitt County. School officials announced today. Daly will supervise and direct the math and science programs in the county schools, a task which includes keeping curriculums equivalent and current. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees and certification in administration and supervision in biology from East Carolina University. For the past 10 years he has taught biology, chemistry and math in Kinston. A native of Hillsborough, he and his wife Kathy have two children, Jennifer, 8, and Tommy, 4. "I am looking forward to getting out in the schools and meeting the teachers and students," Daly said. "Pitt County's education system has a good reputation and I'm looking forward to meeting the people who give it that reputation."

Proclamation

Mayor Janice B. Buck has proclaimed February as Afro-American (Black) History Month in Greenville.

In her proclamation, Mrs. Buck cited black American contributions to education, science, medicine, the arts and politics.

Mrs. Buck pointed to local "contributions made by black citizens who clearly had in mind and demonstrated the laudable purpose of making our city a better place in which each person can live and develop."

Degree Awarded

Cynthia A. Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bury of Greenville, recently was awarded a bachelor of

"You may be suffering from the effects of whiplash and not even know it!"

"Whiplash" can occur when you are involved in an automobile accident, sustain a fall or just step off a curb the wrong way. Your neck and head is thrown forward or backward in a "whiplike" action. Whiplash is serious business. The worst part is that you may not know anything is seriously wrong until days or weeks later. Some symptoms of whiplash are:

- Neck Pain
- Headaches
- Arm Pain
- Dizziness
- Nausea
- Numbness in Hands
- Muscle Spasms
- Ringing in Ears

You should be examined by a Chiropractor immediately if you are experiencing any discomfort in your neck. For an appointment, at your convenience, call:

Award Semifinalists Named

Fifty-three high school seniors from across the state and nation have been nominated as semifinalists for selection as the first five University Scholars awards at East Carolina University.

University Scholars is a privately financed scholarship program designed to attract academically gifted students with demonstrated leadership potential to ECU. Eventually the program will support at least 20 $3,000 University Scholars awards each year. The first five recipients will be chosen this spring and enter the university in the fall semester.

ECU officials announced that regional screening committees will choose no more than 24 candidates from the list of semifinalists for interviews which are scheduled Feb. 16 in Greenville, Raleigh and Greensboro. Each committee will nominate two top choices and an alternate, according to ECU director of admissions Charles F. Seeley.

Area semifinalists include:
FARMVILLE: Vivian M. Roebuck.
GREENVILLE: Mary Helen Allen, Josie Ruth Wilem, William C. Deahardt, Monica A. Avery, Rocky Ziehr.
GRIFTON: Kimberly L. Harper.
ROBERSONVILLE: Sara Ann Harris.
WASHINGTON: April J. Weatherington.
WINDSOR: Robin J. Spruill.

New Stamps To Be Issued Friday

According to Postmaster General Paul N. Carlin, the U.S. Postal Service will issue "D" stamps Friday to assure adequate supplies of first-class stamps when new postage rates become effective February 17.

The "D" stamps will be used, Carlin said, because the postal service expects stamp inventories in post offices Feb. 17 to fall short of public demand.

14-cent rate for First-Class postal cards, also effective Feb. 17.

The new stamps, cards and envelopes may be used for domestic (U.S.) mail, but may not be used on international mail because they do not bear numerical indication of value.

The postal service will also issue several stamps and other items in February to meet new international mailing rates, which also increase February 17. Among these will be a stamp bearing the new 44-cent basic international airmail rate for a half-ounce letter.

Commemorative stamps, beginning with the Jerome Kern Stamps on Jan. 23, and other 22-cent stamps, are expected to replace the "D" stamps by the end of March, the Postal Service said.

The stamps, bearing the letter "D" instead of postage values, will have a green background and will be issued in sheet, coil and booklet formats. An embossed envelope bearing the "D" postage designation will also be issued. All of these items will represent the new 22-cent rate for first-class letters.

The requirement for first-class postal cards will be met by non-denominated cards bearing a likeness of U.S. patriot Charles Carroll. Cards will be marked with the words "U.S. Domestic Rate" and will be equivalent in value to the new

Turner Vow

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Rock singer Tina Turner has promised she'll never perform in racially segregated South Africa, says the U.N. Center Against Apartheid.

In her written pledge, the 43-year-old black singer said she had turned down several lucrative offers to perform in South Africa.

The center maintains a register of entertainers who have performed in South Africa as part of a U.N. campaign for a cultural boycott of that country. The latest list, published in December, contains the names of 388 performers, including 103 Americans.

 said to WITN-TV, WCTI-TV, and radio stations WRQR, WITN-FM, WNCT-AM, WOOW, WBZQ, and WRNS. This is the list he notifies each time there is a question about school opening because of inclement weather, he said, and it's usually done on the morning of the day in question, usually prior to 6 a.m.

He said the current plan calls for school transportation department employees to check the roads in various parts of the county about 4 a.m. and report conditions to transportation officer Rodney Bullock, who then reports to Superintendent Eddie West. West makes the decision and notifies Gaskins who calls the radio and television stations. If the weather conditions are very extreme and, therefore, very obvious the night before, the decision may be announced earlier, he said.

Reagan, Kirkpatrick Talk Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of mystery about her future, U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick is conferring with President Reagan at a White House meeting associates believed would result in her leaving the administration.

At her request, today's session in the Oval Office was to include just the president and Mrs. Kirkpatrick. A self-described "welfare-state liberal" on domestic policy, Mrs. Kirkpatrick has been a favorite of conservative ideologues because of her hard-line views on foreign policy.

An administration official, speaking only on condition he not be identified, said preparations for today's talk were "very closely held, (with) no hints" about what job Reagan might offer to entice her to remain in the administration.

In recent weeks, administration sources were quoted as saying the president would suggest a number of positions, including the top post at the Agency for International Development or the United States Information Agency. Another rumor was she might be offered the job of revitalizing the International Development Cooperation Agency, which has been moribund since Reagan took office.

While declining to specify in advance what he had in mind for Mrs. Kirkpatrick, Reagan said last Saturday that "those press stories that I've been reading are driving me right up the wall because they're not based on fact or anything."

"I haven't said anything to her or anyone else about that particular subject," Reagan added. "So I'm amazed at the stories that are appearing as I can be."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick's supporters, who had lobbied for her appointment to a top-level post, said it was likely she would leave the administration after four wearying years in New York.

"If the president offers her what we've been reading in the papers, I'll bet she declines," said Richard Viguere, publisher of the "Conservative Digest," who said he talked with Mrs. Kirkpatrick during inaugural festivities earlier this month. "I did get the feeling she's not going to take just anything."

Other friends and associates, speaking on condition they not be named, said it was unlikely she would accept any job of the type that has been mentioned.

An administration official, speaking privately, said, "She seems to be interested in returning to civilian life."

Joel Blocker, a spokesman for Mrs. Kirkpatrick, declined to comment on the matter, saying the ambassador and the president agreed at their last meeting Dec. 11 to keep their deliberations private.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick announced last year she wanted to leave the United Nations and return to teaching government at Georgetown University. However, she indicated she would stay if Reagan offered a job she found attractive.

Conservatives waged a campaign to place her in a high-level job, such as national security adviser or secretary of state, but those jobs already were filled and the president said he wanted the incumbents to stay.

Reagan said in November he wanted her to remain in the administration but did not have a job "that would be worthy of her."

Broad Tax Reform Proposals Ready For Study By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three proposals for some of the most sweeping changes in the 72-year history of federal income taxes are ready for introduction in Congress amid doubts any action will be taken before 1986.

A fourth plan, written by the Treasury Department, is likely to face major surgery in the White House before it is sent to Capitol Hill, says a key Reagan aide. Otherwise, Richard G. Darman, deputy chief of staff at the White House, told the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday, "it won't go anywhere."

Leaders of the House and Senate have emphasized repeatedly that there is little chance for tax overhaul until a deficit-reduction plan is approved, and that schedule could block any tax action this year.

Nevertheless, three major tax proposals were to be offered today for consideration by Congress. All are refined versions of proposals made last year. Here are major changes affecting individuals:

A plan sponsored by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., would compress the present tax-rate structure (15 rates for single people, 14 for joint returns) into three.

While current rates range from 11 percent to 50 percent, the Bradley-Gephardt plan would have only three — 14 percent, 26 percent and 30 percent. Three-quarters of taxpayers would pay only the 14 percent rate.

Numerous deductions would be eliminated; those that remained would be applied only against the 14 percent rate. Personal exemptions and standard deductions would be increased. The first $11,200 earned by a four-member family would be tax-free. Automatic annual tax cuts to offset inflation would be repealed.

The proposal sponsored by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wisc., would have a single 25 percent tax rate. The first 20 percent of wages subject to Social Security tax — $39,600 this year — would be exempt from income taxes, in effect, giving the plan two tax rates. Exemptions and standard deductions would be raised. A four-member family's first $12,540 would be exempt. Automatic annual tax reductions would be retained.

The "flat tax," sponsored by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., would apply a single 19 percent tax rate to all taxable income. All deductions would be repealed. The first $12,600 earned by a family of four would be tax free.

The fourth major plan on the table was proposed last November by Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan. It, too, would delete many deductions and restrict others; in exchange, tax rates would be compressed and reduced to three: 15 percent, 25 percent and 35 percent. A four-member family's first $11,800 would be exempt from tax.

Meanwhile, the Senate on Tuesday confirmed James A. Baker III as treasury secretary, a job that will make him the chief spear-carrier for whatever tax overhaul plan President Reagan recommends. Baker was approved by the Senate on a unanimous vote.

Two other key players in the tax fight were recommended for confirmation by the Finance Committee. They are Darman, who would become deputy secretary, the No. 2 post in the Treasury Department, and Ronald A. Pearlman, who was nominated as assistant secretary for tax policy.

Testifying before the Finance Committee, Darman, who for the past four years has been deputy chief of staff at the White House, said Reagan was correct in not jumping too quickly endorse the Treasury's tax plan because he had not studied it.

Darman told the panel three times that the proposal will be changed before it goes to Congress.

"I hope the next time the administration is seen on this subject, it is with a proposal that enjoys widespread support," Darman said.

Sponsors of the other proposals are looking for the same consensus. Kemp has suggested the time is ripe for his side to start negotiating with Bradley and Gephardt.

That is not about to happen anytime soon, Gephardt told reporters Tuesday. There is no need for any such talks until Reagan has thrown his weight behind a specific plan, Gephardt said.

City Official Asks Record For Fetuses

CINCINNATI (AP) — A city councilman has proposed a law that would require death certificates and burial or cremation for aborted fetuses.

The proposed ordinance by J. Kenneth Blackwell has been filed with the clerk of the City Council and could go before the council as early as today.

Blackwell said Tuesday that his proposal would require that "aborted human fetuses be buried, cremated or interred in a dignified and sanitary manner, and further that the death of a fetus whose life has been terminated as the result of a surgically induced abortion be subject to the same death certificate requirement as stillbirths."

Blackwell said his proposal would focus public attention on the abortion issue without interfering with the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 decision to legalize abortion.

Ann Michelini, board member of the Ohio chapter of the National Abortion Rights Action League, criticized the proposal, saying she had never heard of anyone requiring that an aborted fetus be treated as a stillborn infant.

"One of the obvious points is that large numbers of pregnancies, as many as 25 percent, end in natural abortions called miscarriages in the first three months," Ms. Michelini said.

Study Says TV Cuts Down Bites

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The best way to foil blood-thirsty mosquitoes carrying encephalitis is to stay cool and watch television, a study says.

Encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, has declined greatly in California during the past 30 years because more people are staying inside during prime mosquito-biting hours — 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., researchers said.

The study was done by Paul M. Gahlinger, assistant professor at San Jose State University, and William C. Reeves, professor of epidemiology in the School of Public

RJR Rejects Leaf Proposal

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.'s rejection of a proposed lower flavored tobacco price support, negotiations continue over a plan to have cigarette makers buy 812 million pounds of surplus leaf, officials say.

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., chairman of the House Tobacco and Peanuts Subcommittee, said Tuesday the industry wanted an even lower price than the $1.45 per pound figure. But he said talks were stalled between manufacturers and the Federal Commodity Credit Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

"The negotiations are continuing," he said. "No agreement has been reached; no contract has been signed."

Spokesmen for Winston-Salem-based R.J. Reynolds also said the talks were proceeding.

"These negotiations are multifaceted; there may well have been some points the two sides didn't agree on," said John Cousart, a Reynolds spokesman.

A proposal revealed earlier this month calls for cigarette manufacturers to agree to buy at discount prices over five years all 812 million pounds of surplus leaf held by stabilization. The federal Commodity Credit Corp., which lends money for the acquiring of tobacco at support levels, would lose hundreds of millions of dollars under the plan.

In return, the U.S. Department of Agriculture would slash the average price support for the 1985 crop by about 25 cents per pound — from last year's level of $1.699 per pound to $1.45. Most of that reduction would come in the form of a rebate of 20 cents per pound, which is paid by each farmer to finance the federal No Net Cost tobacco program.

Rose said he urged a caucus of about 30 tobacco-state congressmen Tuesday to push the manufacturers to accept the proposal.

Cigarette manufacturer lobbyists are asking members of Congress to sign a letter opposing a bill to keep the cigarette excise tax at 16 cents per pack, instead of letting it drop to 8 cents after Oct. 1 as is now scheduled.

Rose asked his tobacco colleagues not to sign the letter until the manufacturers "make it real clear" that they will help resolve the problem of mounting surplus tobacco.

"Tobacco Road is a two-way street," he said. "They (the manufacturers) have got to get their pencils sharpened and help out (the growers)."

GOP Gets 50th Legislative Seat

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Larry E. Etheridge's upset victory over Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, gives Republicans 50 seats in the General Assembly, matching the GOP's best showing of the century.

Etheridge, a Republican businessman, unseated Mrs. Fenner Tuesday in the only contested race of a four-district election delayed by a lengthy redistricting dispute with the federal government.

According to unofficial returns in the 71st House District race, Etheridge received 2,723 votes or 63 percent to 1,581 votes or 37 percent for Mrs. Fenner. Turnout was light, as 33,707 people were eligible to vote.

Etheridge got 2,640 votes in Wilson County, to 1,498 for Mrs. Fenner. Both candidates received 83 votes from the only Nash County precinct.

Three Democrats won House seats in uncontested races: incumbents Joe Mavretic in the 8th District and Allen Barbee in the 72nd District and newcomer Milton Fitch in the 70th District.

Etheridge's victory gave Republicans 38 seats in the 120-member House. Twelve Republicans won Senate seats.

Helms Groups Sue

RALEIGH (AP) — The Federal Election Commission has dismissed its power to sue the National Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing, two groups linked to Sen. Jesse Helms, charged with a lawsuit.

Members of the U.S. House of Representatives late Tuesday authorized its move to sue the groups.

Marketing, said FEC spokeswoman Sharon Snyder.

Papers filed Tuesday by the Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing revealed for the first time that the FEC had voted Oct. 30 to find "probable cause" that the Helms groups had violated federal election law.

However, Ms. Snyder would not say when the FEC would file its suit and refused to divulge its contents.

More Snow Expected Across State

By The Associated Press
The state's second winter storm in nine days showed little sign of ending as up to 3 inches of additional snow was expected in the mountains, foothills and southern and northwest Piedmont today.
Up to 8 inches of snow, sleet and freezing rain were reported Tuesday, forcing school and business closings and causing hundreds of fender-benders.
At least three traffic deaths this week have been blamed on hazardous driving conditions.

"It's just horrendous on the back roads," Sgt. L.J. Wilds, of the Asheville office of the state Highway Patrol, said Tuesday. "But the main roads are in pretty good shape except that they are icy on bridges, underpasses and shady areas."
The Blue Ridge Parkway was closed except for a commuter section that circles Asheville. Rangers said the commuter section was extremely hazardous, but sportsmen were taking advantage of the snow for sledding and cross-country skiing.

"When we feel like there's going to be quite a few people up there we do keep extra men patrolling the area," Ranger Ken Davis said. "We try to get everybody out before evening comes in."
Travelers advisories were issued today for the mountains, foothills and southern and northwest Piedmont.
Snow began to fall in the southern mountains just after midnight and continued to spread east across the southern foothills into the southern Piedmont before daybreak today. The snow was accumulating in some areas and roads were becoming slippery.

Snow mixed with some sleet and possibly freezing rain was expected to spread from the west into mid sections of the state before changing to rain over all but northwest sections this afternoon. Rain will spread over the east by late today.
Rain will continue over the state tonight and Thursday, but mixed snow, sleet and rain will continue over the northwest tonight and over the northern mountains Thursday.

Afternoon highs will range from around freezing in the northern mountains to the mid to upper 40s elsewhere. Coastal and southeast high temperatures will be in the 50s

Thursday. Tonights lows will range from the upper 20s over northern mountains to near 40 at the coast.
Accumulations of 3 to 4 inches were reported Tuesday across parts of central North Carolina, with freezing rain and sleet creating hazardous driving in the southeast and coastal sections.

EPA Prepares For 'Worst' In Effort To Clear Waste Of Chemical Agent

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Residents living near a Buncombe County landfill probably won't be evacuated when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency removes waste from a chemical warfare agent that causes hallucinations, an EPA official says.
Jon Bornholm, the environmental engineer in charge of the agency's investigation into the site, said the chemical, known as BZ, is insoluble in water and will not vaporize.
"But he said workers removing the material from the site of a Chemtronics Inc. plant in Swannanoa, about 10 miles east of Asheville and 100 miles west of Charlotte, probably would wear respirators and carry their own air supply.
"We are preparing for the worst as far as safety is concerned," he said Tuesday in a telephone interview from EPA regional headquarters in Atlanta. "That means there could be active BZ on the site. Personnel going onto the site will be protected from active BZ."

Bornholm said the site posed no danger to area residents, despite interviews last week with seven former employees indicating there still may be some active BZ.
"We have different stories, and we don't know who to believe," he said.
The chemical, which was designed to cause LSD-like hallucinations to disorient enemy soldiers, is "not that dangerous," he said.
"My feeling is ... you might get a dose of BZ, you might get high for a day or seven days," he said. "But you'll have a second chance."
Bornholm said a memo from Northrop Corp. indicated the site may also contain cyanide, a deadly chemical used in metal-plating. But the former employees did not confirm this, he said.
"The purpose of the interviews was to try to get a handle on what was buried and where," he said. "But some people are in their upper 60s, and their mental faculties are not that clear."
About 150,000 pounds of BZ — which stands for 3-quinuclidinyl benzilate — were manufactured on the site.

The BZ was made between 1963 and 1966 for Army stockpiles during the Vietnam war, and some was put into bombs that were never used. Amcel Propulsion Co. owned the site from 1960 to 1965 and Northrop owned it from 1965 to 1971.
Between 300 and 500 drums of BZ were buried on the 1,027-acre tract, but Bornholm said interviews with former plant employees brought contradictory reports on whether it was properly neutralized first.
"Some people said there was no BZ agent buried, but said there was BZ-contaminated materials, such as ... clothing that was treated with kill solution ... a caustic solution that neutralizes BZ," he said.
"Other people stated that there was off-spec BZ — BZ that did not meet Army specifications," said Bornholm. "One or two people said if there was any off-spec material, they believed it was reworked to meet specifications. One or two others said the off-spec material was buried on the site with the kill solution."
U.S. Rep. Bill Hendon, whose 11th District includes the area, said the Army was considering his request to remove two 55-gallon drums of waste that surfaced from the ground at the site. But he said Army officials told him the EPA would have to give the go-ahead first.

Hendon also said the EPA told him it would begin inspecting the site next Monday. But Bornholm said the EPA is still deciding what to do.
There are two possible plans, Bornholm said: neutralizing the BZ and taking it to another landfill, or taking it to an Army incinerator. The plan should be ready by spring and removal should be completed in about a year and a half, he said.

FAA Checking Near Miss By Planes At Charlotte

CHARLOTTE (AP) — An error made in directing a Delta Airlines passenger jet to cross the same runway as a jumbo cargo jet led to a near collision between the two aircraft at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport, an FAA spokesman said.
"We know that an error did occur," said Joe Carter, deputy chief of the Federal Aviation Administration in Charlotte. "We have the matter under investigation and the people that were involved in the error have been put on administrative duties until we complete the investigation."

A Flying Tiger 747 cargo plane was taking off when it nearly hit the Delta Airlines 727 that was taxiing across the airport to another runway on Monday, authorities and eyewitnesses say. The Delta jet, carrying 93 people, was on a flight from Charlotte to Atlanta.

The pilot of the Delta jet slammed on his brakes and reversed the thrust of his three engines to stop the plane, witnesses and officials said.

The incident occurred under snowy and foggy weather conditions.
A Delta spokesman in Atlanta said the pilot "was told by the tower that he operated under right instructions."

"It looks like it could have been a very serious incident," he said.
Carter said it would take at least a couple of days to complete the investigation.

Bob Inman, anchorman for WBTV in Charlotte, was among the passengers on the Delta flight.

"The first thing I knew was that the pilot jammed on the brakes hard and the brakes squealed and we came to a stop," he said. "He reversed thrust on the engines and backed it up."

Democrats Prepare Own Tax Cut Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic leaders in the North Carolina Legislature are working on a tax cut proposal of their own to challenge the plan proposed by Republican Gov. Jim Martin, including a possible cut in state income taxes.
"I think we can cut taxes $75 million to $100 million and be safe," said House Speaker Liston Ramsey.
Martin has proposed eliminating inventory and intangibles taxes and the sales tax on food and over-the-counter drugs, estimated to total about $443 million a year.
Lt. Gov. Robert Jordan, Democratic president of the state Senate, said he hadn't seen Ramsey's proposal and had not taken a position on cutting income taxes.

Jordan also said he probably would back only a portion of Martin's tax proposal. Jordan said any food tax cuts should be targeted to help the poor and the intangibles tax should be repealed only for bank accounts and certificates of deposit this session.
Ramsey said he would support only partial phase-outs of the sales tax on food and medicine and the intangibles and inventory taxes.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices staged a broad advance today, riding the wave of buying that carried the market to record highs on Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 5.97 to 1,298.59 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 3 to 1 in the early count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Going into today's session, advancing issues had outnumbered declines on the Big Board for 17 consecutive sessions, a modern record.

From Jan. 4 through Tuesday's close, the Dow Jones industrial average soared more than 107 points.

Analysts acknowledged that no market move continues indefinitely, and that prices were bound to reach the point sooner or later where a majority of traders would want to cash in some of their profits.

But they also said the rise in stock prices lately has created an appetite for stocks that might not yet be satisfied.

Accompanying the market's upsurge this month has been a spreading belief that the economy will continue growing in 1985 without a revival of inflation.

Among today's early volume leaders, CSX rose 3/8 to 27 3/8; Halliburton 3/8 to 29 3/8; Westinghouse Electric 1/8 to 30 3/4, and Rockwell International 3/8 to 36.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 14.79 to 1,292.62. The previous closing peak was 1,287.20 on Nov. 29, 1983.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 115.73 million shares, against 128.41 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .90 to 103.43, surpassing the record close it reached Monday. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.14 at 223.36.

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP) — The clandestine Corsican National Liberation Front says its followers carried out 468 attacks in 1984 as part of its struggle to win the island's independence from France.

A statement called "Balance Sheet 1983-84" that was sent to news organizations said the total was down from 510 in 1983, but there were 55 attacks in continental France compared with 30 the previous year.

The group has carried out hundreds of bombings since the mid-1970s in both Corsica and in France, 125 miles away, in its effort to end two centuries of French rule.

Rabin Visits Fort Bragg

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan assured Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin today he would request about $1.8 billion in military aid to the economically hard-pressed country for next year.

"It will be not exactly what we wanted, but around $1.8 billion," Rabin told reporters after the meeting. The figure represents a compromise between the $1.4 billion Israel is receiving this year and the $2.2 billion it sought for 1986.

At the same time, Rabin said the administration apparently would take no decision on economic aid. Israel asked for an $800 million emergency appropriation as well as $1.9 billion for next year.

"I believe that at present there is no decision about the size of economic aid to Israel," Rabin said. But he said he was optimistic about what the U.S. government would do to support Israeli efforts to turn its economy around.

The former prime minister and military chief of staff said the austerity measures, to his "great sorrow," include cuts in defense spending. "Israel is going to take security risks and real ones," he said.

On the diplomatic front, Rabin said he had registered Israel's objections to any attempt to give the Soviet Union a prominent role in efforts to resolve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

U.S. officials said reforms adopted in Jerusalem to combat inflation are still under study within the administration.

The military aid, which Congress could reduce or increase, represents a $400 million boost over this year's figure. Israel contends it needs the American help to compete with Arab adversaries and to help offset inflation.

On Tuesday, at the Pentagon, Rabin said Israel intends to pursue terrorists with the same intensity after Israeli troops are withdrawn from Lebanon.

of instances, anger that so much time has gone by since approval of the three projects and any indication of the progress. The three most often mentioned were the Rocky Mount to Williamston sector; the Williamston to the Albemarle Bridge sector; and the U.S. 17 area from Elizabeth City to Williamston, of which only the Hertford to Woodville bypass is an approved project.

Several spokespersons commented on what they termed "ridiculous" or "preposterous" piece-meal work — i.e., the four-lane bypasses at Williamston, narrowing down to two-lane bridges on U.S. 17 north over the Roanoke and on U.S. 64 east over Sweet Water Creek.

In rebuttal to comments about poor piece-meal planning, Rose explained that earlier decisions had been made, as in the Rocky Mount-to-Tarboro four-lane project, to get rights of way for four-laning even though funds were only available at the time to construct two of the four lanes.

Only one spokesperson voiced dissent to the plans. A man who said he lived along U.S. 64 between Williamston and Plymouth asked why it was that 53 families were being asked to give up land along a five-mile stretch for more highway. "That's not progress," he commented.

Remarks from a number of spokespersons touched on issues they claim are directly affected by highway plans — future plans for industry, education, tourism, for keeping young people at home.

Harrington, speaking at the conclusion of more than an hour and a half input from spokespersons, commented, "I'm interested in all that you say, I'm listening carefully."

Rose Hangs On For 55-52 Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILSON — Rose High School barreled out to a 20-1 lead in the first five and a half minutes of play then had to hang on to win a foul-filled Big East basketball contest over hosting Wilson Hunt last night, 55-52.

Hunt's girls took a 42-32 victory in a game that was closer than the final score indicates.

The boys game was decided at the foul line, as Rose just 27 of 39 attempts after hitting just 14 field goals. Hunt scored 14 more points than the Rampants did from the floor, but could make only 10 of 18 tries at the stripe and therein was the difference.

Rose, after dominating play in most of the first quarter, seemed to come almost to a halt offensively after that. The Rampants made but one field goal in the second period and hit on two of just three tries in the final frame.

That, along with a sudden claim of the backboards — and a defense that forced Rose into a number of turnovers — almost pulled it out for the Warriors, who are still seeking their first conference win.

For a while there, it looked like Rose might make a total rout of it, as the Rampants stormed out to their 20-1 lead. Tyrone Smith led the spurt at the beginning that moved Rose from a 2-1 lead to a 19-point bulge with 2:34 left in the period.

But Hunt scored two straight baskets with Rose countering with only a free throw in the final 2:30 to make it 21-5 after one period.

With Rose making only one of eight shots from the floor in the second quarter, Hunt began to gain control of the game. After committing nine first period turnovers, the Warriors cut that back to five while forcing Rose into eight. Rose had to be content with nine of 11 at the four line during the period, while Hunt was scoring 19 points, led by Charles Jones, who had seven in the period.

That brought Hunt back to within eight, 32-24.

Rose scored the first two baskets of the second half to move back out by 12, 36-24, but after several matched shots, Hunt warmed to its task and scored three straight baskets to trim the lead to 40-33. Again it was Jones leading the way with eight points in the period. Rose managed to inch back out, however, and take a 43-35 lead into the final period.

Jones, with 11 final period points, continued to pace the Warriors in their comeback, cutting it to five at 45-40, and then to just two at 50-48 on a rebounding shot by Willie Hopkins with 3:01 left to play.

The Warriors had the chance to tie it up, but Smith came up with a steal and Dwight Smith was fouled, making the first of a one-and-one for a 51-48 lead.

Hunt got another basket from Jones to trim the lead to one, 51-50 with 1:48 to go, but Carlton Wilson hit a jumper from the lane to push the lead back out to three.

Jones again cut the lead to one, 53-52 with 1:16 to go, and after a turnover by Rose, missed on a shot that would have given the Warriors the lead. Tyrone Smith was fouled on the rebound, making the first shot.

Hunt then missed again on a chance to tie it, and Wilson was fouled with eight seconds to go, making the first for a three-point edge that held when Hunt threw the ball away on the pass downcourt.

"It wasn't a good game, but we won and that makes it good for us," Coach Jim Brewington said. "It seems we play according to the team we play. But I thought Hunt played good ball in the second half. We didn't play that well, but we kept our cool when it got close."

"We got in foul trouble and we got tired. Hunt had a better defense in the second half and that kept us from getting too many shots. It's good to have a lead to work with, rather than having to come back from behind," Brewington said. "This win should put us in the right frame of mind to really make a move on Friday (against Northern Nash)."

Smith led the Rose scoring with 14 points while Wilson and Lenny Langley each had 11. Jones led Hunt with 26 points.

changes, Hunt's girls took the lead for good at 5-4 on a basket from the lane by Jackie Davis. They pushed that out to a ten-point margin before the quarter ended with Hunt leading, 16-6.

Hunt then stretched it to 14 points by scoring the first four points of a slow second period, 20-6. But Rose came back to score the last four to cut it back to ten at the end of the half, 20-10.

In the third period, Rose scored three straight to cut the lead back to six, 22-16, and then hit four more later in the period to trim the margin back to five, 27-22, but Hunt got the final point for a 28-22 edge at the horn.

Rose cut the lead to five on a couple of occasions in the final period and have a few opportunities to cut it to three, but could never find the range as Hunt pulled back away in the closing minutes to take the final ten-point victory.

"I thought we played the best defense we've played all year," Coach Bill Kuykendall said. "We played with good intensity. (Hunt's) an awfully good club, and we went after them and had a chance to pull within three a couple of times."

"Their quickness was a big factor in the game. Talent-wise I think we're pretty even, but they're so much quicker," he added.

Jamie Mills led Hunt with 14 points while Gloria Cox added 10. Rose was led by Chris Holec with ten.

The Rose boys climb to 3-4 in Big East play and 8-7 overall. Hunt drops to 0-7, 1-12. The Rose girls are now 2-5, 6-10, while Hunt's girls are

Rose plays host to Northern Nash on Friday as the second round of play begins.

Emory Bid Seen Headed For Court

From Local and Wire Reports

Ed Emory, fired in December as East Carolina's head football coach, deserves more than he's been offered by the school, and attorney Marvin Blount Jr. says that he will be filing a lawsuit in the next two weeks for Emory to get what he is due.

"The figure was such that the only way I can read it is that they are suggesting we file a lawsuit, and that's what we're going to do," attorney Marvin Blount Jr. said Tuesday.

Blount said the lawsuit could be filed in Pitt County Superior Court as early as this week, but would likely take longer.

"I didn't want to do that," he said, "but they left me no alternative. Ed Emory is a human being, but he hasn't been treated that way by the university."

Neither Blount nor Andrew Vanore Jr., senior deputy attorney general, would reveal the amount of the offer, said given during a telephone conversation Monday.

Emory was fired December 10 with more than three years left on his $50,000-a-year contract. Blount has said that Emory would have received more than $431,000 in salary and benefits if he had remained head coach at East Carolina until his contract expired January 1988.

That figure was compiled at the request of East Carolina officials and should not be considered a demand figure, Blount said.

Blount said he has not made a counter claim to ECU, although asked for "a fair figure". That, apparently, will become public when the suit is filed.

Emory, who is working as a volunteer coach with the Memphis Showboats of the USFL, could not be reached for comment. He is currently in Florida with the Showboats training camp, but will be in Charlotte on Saturday for a Memphis exhibition game.

The state attorney general's office is representing East Carolina in the case because it is a state institution.

Lady Pirates To Host Wilmington

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, riding atop the ECAC-South standings, return home to play host to UNC-Wilmington on Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

East Carolina enters the game, the first of three home stands, with a 5-0 conference mark and a 10-8 overall record. They are currently riding an eight-game winning streak, and would like nothing more than to extend it over the Seahawks. Following the Wilmington game, the Lady Pirates take two games off from the conference wars for two non-league encounters, with South Florida and Hampton Institute. They then complete the season with six straight conference games, three of them at home, before heading to the league's second post-season tournament, to be held this year in Richmond.

East Carolina is the defending tournament champion.

The Lady Seahawks come into the game with a 4-1 league record and a 10-6 overall mark.

Leading UNC-W is 6-2 senior center Gwen Austin with a 19.7 scoring average. She is also pulling a team high 12.6 rebounds per game.

Also in double figures is 6-0 freshman forward Elizabeth Bell with a 15.3 scoring mark and a 7.2 rebound average. Phyllis Edwards, a 5-10 freshman forward, is scoring at 14.0 per game, with an 8.0 rebound mark. Sonya Pickard, a 5-7 senior guard, has a 12.2 average. Rounding out the starters is Jenny Owen, a 5-9 junior guard, averaging 8.8 per game.

Wilmington's only conference defeat came at the hands of Richmond.

SouthWest Sweeps Jaguars

PINETOPS — SouthWest Edgecombe came away with a pair of Eastern Carolina Conference basketball victories at the expense of Farmville Central last night. The boys won their game, 66-52, while the girls rolled up a 64-40 victory.

Farmville made moves like it might be headed for the victory in the boys' game early on, however. The Jaguars rolled out to a 16-8 lead in the first period of the game. But SouthWest rallied in the second frame, 20-11, and claimed a 28-27 lead at the half.

In the third period, SouthWest extended its lead to 44-37, then outscored the Jaguars, 22-15, in the final frame to clinch the win.

Billy Gray led SouthWest with 18 points while Tim Walker added 17, Earl Wooten had 11 and Columbus Sharpe had 10. Bernard Taylor led Farmville with 16 with Bobby Evans adding 13.

SouthWest's girls took a 12-7 lead in the first period and were never headed. They expanded their lead to 29-11 by the half and held a 52-19 edge going into the final period.

Pam Gorham led the way for the Lady Cougars with 21 points, while Tammy Conderly added 14. Debra Joyner led Farmville with 13.

The loss dropped Farmville's boys to 3-4 in league play and 7-10 overall. The Lady Jaguars are now 3-4, 14-4.

Farmville returns to action on Saturday at Southern Nash.

Washington Rallies Past Plymouth For 75-66 Win

PLYMOUTH — Washington High School outscored Plymouth in the final period to gain a 75-66 North-eastern Conference basketball victory last night.

In the girls' game, Plymouth held onto a share of first place in the standings with a 34-29 victory.

Washington inched out into a two-point lead after one period but couldn't shake the Vikings who rallied to take a 31-30 halftime lead. In the third period, Washington eased back into the lead, 47-45. Then, in the last period, the Pam Pack outscored the Vikes, 28-21, to claim the win.

Earl Randolph led Washington with 22 points while Adrian Dudley had 17, Steve Austin had 15 and Alton Ore added 14. Sidney Franklin led Plymouth with 19, while Jeffrey Simpson had 17 and Kevin Kornegay added 10.

Washington held a 40-23 rebounding edge in the game.

Plymouth's girls eased into an 8-2 lead in the first period, only to see Washington rally to cut the margin to 15-14 at the half. Both teams scored six points in the third period, but a 13-8 margin for Plymouth in the final period decided it.

Sarah Gray led Washington with ten points and was the game's only scorer in double figures.

Washington travels to Ahsokie on Friday.

Burrus, McCloud Lift Belhaven Over Tribe

BELHAVEN — Ed Burrus scored 14 points and Wendell McCloud added 12 as Belhaven trimmed Chocowinity 44-43 in Tobacco Belt I-A high school basketball Tuesday.

Roy Hooker paced the Indians with 14 points, while Daryl Moore added 10.

The Tribe trailed 23-17 at halftime but took the lead with a 13-6 scoring edge in the third quarter. Belhaven needed 15 points in the final period to pull out the win.

The loss drops Chocowinity to 6-6 in the Tobacco Belt while 7-10 overall. The Tribe hosts Cape Hatteras Friday.

In the girls game, Tellie Cox fired in 24 points to lead Belhaven to a 56-46 win over the Lady Tribe. Tawanda Gerald had 13 points and Sheila Harvey 12 to lead Chocowinity.

The Lady Tribe held a 24-23 halftime edge, but Belhaven took advantage of a three-minute scoring slump to take a 40-33 lead into the final period.

Chocowinity's girls dropped to 8-4 on the season in the league and 11-4 overall.

JAYVEE SCORE: Belhaven 60, Chocowinity 40

Tisdale, Sooners Top Colorado

By The Associated Press

Colorado had enthusiasm but seventh-ranked Oklahoma had Wayman Tisdale, and the big All-American proved once again to be the difference.

Tisdale scored 27 points and collected 12 rebounds, Darryl Kennedy scored 19 points and Tim McCalister 18 as Oklahoma ripped Colorado 90-71 to extend its record to 16-4 and remain unbeaten in the Big Eight Conference at 5-0.

In other games involving ranked teams, Dallas Comegys came off the bench to ignite a pair of 14-0 runs that lifted No. 13 DePaul to a 56-42 victory over pesky Princeton, and Dwight Wilbur scored 19 points in No. 18 Villanova's 70-63 Big East Conference triumph over Pittsburgh.

"They have so many weapons, and then there's Wayman," said Colorado Coach Tom Apke. "I thought early in the game we were too pumped up and excited. It showed in our defense, where we started out with so much intensity and so much excitement. We were a little out of control."

Oklahoma used a 17-7 run late in the first half to take control of the game and built a 47-31 advantage by halftime.

"Wayman had a good night and until the last 10 minutes I thought we played well defensively as well," said Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs. "There were not many secrets behind our win. We had our shots going in for us and they weren't going in for Colorado."

DePaul Coach Joey Meyer said that Comegys has "been practicing harder and what he held over him is the starting position. He's got the talent. Pretty soon, he is going to step into the starting lineup. It's just a matter of him getting the right mental attitude."

Comegys finished with 11 points, including five as DePaul turned an 8-6 deficit into a 20-8 first-half bulge. Comegys added four during the second 14-0 spurt, which gave the Blue Demons a 47-29 advantage on the way to a 14-4 record.

"This is the role the coach has found for me," Comegys said of his reserve status. "I'm playing an equal amount of minutes compared with the starters. I'll just have to continue to work and earn a starting spot."

Princeton, which fell to 5-9, held DePaul scoreless over the first 5½ minutes of the game and led until center Howard Levy picked up his third foul.

"This team doesn't have a backup center," said Princeton Coach Pete Carril, "so when we had to go without Levy that was the turning point of the game."

Villanova improved its overall mark to 14-4 and kept pace with No. 2 Georgetown in the Big East, two games back of top-ranked St. John's.

"Let's face it," said Pittsburgh Coach Roy Chipman, "they're one of the best teams in the league, one of the best in the country."

Villanova made its task easier by connecting on 64 percent of its shots.

"They shot the lights out," said Chipman. "Wilbur was making everything."

In fact, Wilbur hit seven of 10 from the field.

"I have to get some confidence in myself and shoot over people," said Wilbur.

Villanova took a 29-17 first-half lead, held a 36-26 margin at intermission and didn't allow Pitt to get closer than seven points in the final 20 minutes.

Rory Grimes scored 16 points and the Iona defense held Fordham scoreless for nine minutes as the Gaels, 17-1, won their 10th straight game with a 53-47 decision over the Rams.

Ralph Lewis and Steve Black each struck for 23 points as LaSalle held off Pennsylvania 77-74, the 10th straight loss by Penn to a Philadelphia school.

Yale topped Manhattan 60-57 as freshman guard Pete White hit a 12-foot jumper with two seconds left. He added a free throw for the final margin when Manhattan was assessed a technical foul for calling a timeout when it had none left.

Eddie Hicks' basket with 37 seconds to play gave Ohio University a 60-58 victory over Ball State. The winners limited Dan Palombizio, the nation's leading scorer, to 17 points, 11 below his average.

Dennis Nutt scored 17 points and Carven Holcombe contributed 13, including the go-ahead points with 4:25 to play, as Texas Christian shaded Texas Tech 48-47 in the Southwest Conference.

Two tiny Philadelphia-area colleges, Cabrini and Eastern Pennsylvania, battled for 70 minutes Tuesday night before a winner was decided. Guard John Walden, whose basket and free throw forced the first overtime, scored 10 points in the sixth extra period as Cabrini prevailed 97-89.

Conley Rallies On Cox Drive, 64-61

HAVELOCK — Joel Cox drove the length of the floor for a layup with four seconds left in overtime to give the D.H. Conley Vikings a 64-61 victory over Havelock in Coastal 3-A Conference basketball action Tuesday.

The Vikings played the overtime without leading scorer Jeff Wright, who fouled out in the fourth quarter, and Ricky Farrow was ejected with 16 seconds left in OT for a flagrant foul.

At the time of Farrow's ejection, the Vikings led by two, and Kenny Roberts made one of two free throw attempts. The Rams worked the ball around and took a shot with eight seconds left, but Conley grabbed the rebound to set up the winning drive by Cox.

Havelock called timeout to set up a final play, but the Rams drove down and missed the field goal attempt.

Havelock trailed 46-36 going into the fourth quarter, but Conley missed nine free throw attempts while the Rams applied full court pressure to force turnovers and outscored the Vikes 21-11 to knot the score.

Steve Mills led the Vikings with 15 points, while Cox added 14 and Fred Bryant 13. Wright and Farrow chipped in eight points each for Conley.

Roberts and Tony Moore had 13 points each to lead Havelock.

The game marked the first meeting between the schools since Coach Shelly Marsh switched from Conley to Havelock last summer.

The Vikings improved their record to 2-2 in the Coastal Conference and 3-13 overall.

In the girls game, Shannon Stobel posted 14 points and Laura Maxwell added 12 as the Lady Rams thumped the Valkyries 40-25.

Trellaney Boyd led Conley with nine points, while Lisa Mills added eight.

The Valkyries held an 18-14 halftime advantage, but Havelock outscored Conley 26-7 in the second half to insure the win.

The Valkyries slipped to 3-1 with their first Coastal Conference loss and 8-9 overall.

D.H. Conley hosts North Lenoir tonight in another Coastal matchup.

Area Sports Event Delays

Weather conditions forced the postponement of several basketball games in the area last night.

Delayed until tonight are the following: Bear Grass at Columbia, Charles B. Aycock at Ayden-Grifton, and Southern Nash at North Pitt.

The game between Ahsokie and Roanoke, to be played at Robersonville, has been moved to Saturday, Feb. 9.

Ange Leads Bullets Past Aurora 72-69

AURORA — Richie Ange led Jamesville through overtime to a 72-69 victory over Aurora in the Tobacco Belt Conference last night.

Aurora's girls pulled out a 35-32 victory in double overtime over Jamesville.

Aurora eased out into an 18-16 lead in the first period of the boys' game, then stretched it to 29-24 by the end of the half.

Jamesville turned on a rally in the second half, outscoring Aurora, 20-10, in the third period to take a 44-39 lead with eight minutes to play — or so it seemed. Aurora rallied and knotted it at 61-61 with three seconds left when Jeff Johnson scored.

In the overtime, Ange pushed through five of 11 points scored by Jamesville, all at the foul line. Tracy Peele added a basket and two more free throws as the Bullets pulled out the three-point win.

Peele led the Jamesville scoring with 21, while Robbie Harris had 18, Horacie Stotesbury had 16 and Ange had 10.

Steve Minor led Aurora with 17, with Smith hitting 16 and John Davis, 15.

Aurora's girls zoomed out to a 10-3 lead in the first period of their game, but Jamesville rallied to cut it to 16-14 by halftime. In the third period, Aurora built the lead back to 26-20, but Jamesville rallied to knot it at the end of regulation, 29-29.

In the first overtime, both teams scored two points to send in to another extra period. But in that, Aurora outhit Jamesville, 4-2, to claim the win.

Ceila Scott led Aurora with 12 points, while Robin Gardner had 12 and Tammy Crisp had 11 for the Lady Bullets.

Jamesville boys climb to 6-3 in league play and 6-5 overall. The Lady Bullets are now 2-7, 2-9.

The Bullets entertain Creswell on Thursday.

Lefty Works On 500 Countdown

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
Maryland coach Lefty Driesell is four victories away from capturing his 500th coaching triumph, and he hopes to continue the countdown tonight against Virginia in Atlantic Coast Conference action.

The ACC gets into intraconference skirmishes tonight. Aside from the 17th-ranked Terrapins, No. 6 Duke goes to Wake Forest, eighth-ranked Georgia Tech hosts North Carolina State, and No. 11 North Carolina is at Clemson.

Driesell spoke Tuesday not of the 500th victory, but of getting past the Cavaliers. While Maryland is atop the ACC with a 3-1 league mark, Virginia is 1-6 after beating Wake Forest Saturday for its first conference victory.

"All I want to do is beat Virginia," Driesell said. "I want one more win. It might be my last one."

Maryland has won 15 straight games at Cole Field House, the last two with the help of forward Len Bias. In beating Notre Dame last Saturday, Bias scored 16 points in the second half. In leading the Terps past No. 18 Villanova on Sunday, Bias scored 30 points, including nine points in the closing minutes to blunt a Wildcat rally and end their four-game winning streak.

"All that is history now," Driesell noted. "We've got to get our act back together."

Virginia has posted consecutive victories over Wake Forest and Arkansas without Coach Terry Holland, who is recuperating from an intestinal ailment. Sports Information Director Rich Murray said Holland, 42, will miss the Maryland contest and added that doctors still don't know what is causing the coach's discomfort.

Duke has lacked consistency in its last five games. After an overtime loss to Maryland, Wake Forest rushed into Cameron Indoor Stadium and knocked off the Blue Devils, also in overtime. Coach Mike Krzyzewski's team came back to blast North Carolina in Chapel Hill before N.C. State crunched Duke 89-71.

Last Saturday, Duke pulled away from Clemson for a 100-83 triumph.

"We have been a very consistent team all year long and I hope we will not become inconsistent now — playing one good game then one poor game," Krzyzewski said.

Wake Forest has captured nine of the last 10 meetings with the Blue Devils, including a 99-67 triumph in Greensboro last year. Coach Carl Tacy will be relying on forward Kenny Green, who solves most defenses by jumping over them, and 5-foot-3 guard Tyrone Bogues, who has taken over as floor leader.

Georgia Tech's victory over North Carolina marked the first time in 20 tries that the Yellow Jackets were able to beat the Tar Heels. It also helped gain ACC player of the week honors for John Salley, who scored 36 points and grabbed 15 rebounds in three victories last week.

"Everybody's really excited,"

Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said. "But all I can think about is N.C. State, Maryland and Duke — our next three games."

Salley starts this week as the ACC's top field goal shooter at .671 and is the league's 10th best scorer at 15.1 points per game.

N.C. State is another league team that can't get any consistency. After drumming the Blue Devils, the offense and defense failed to produce in an 84-78 loss to Louisville.

In addition, Coach Jim Valvano has been the subject of controversy in local circles because he left Louisville to join NBC Sports as a color analyst for the Illinois-Indiana contest. Valvano also is the college basketball expert for the CBS Morning News, activities that have ruffled the fur of Wolfpack supporters.

"I hate to lose as much as anyone, and the Louisville loss hurt," Valvano said. "But I think it did me much more good to get back out in the public, to get back out in the tremendous atmosphere of college basketball. And it helped my basketball — to see Bobby Knight's defensive schemes, to observe the Illinois offense. You can pick up little things that can help your own team."

North Carolina has lost two straight games in Carmichael Auditorium for the first time in four years and guard Steve Hale says the Tar Heels will have to start relying on each other instead of hoping one player can pick up the entire team.

"Michael (Jordan) and Sam (Perkins) aren't going to come back and win any games for us," Hale said. "We have to play with what we've got."

Clemson will be trying to avoid a three-game losing streak against the Tar Heels. The Tigers have lost their last 11 meetings with North Carolina and trail in the series 78-10.

Terps Expecting A Tough Contest

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) - Even if ailing Virginia Coach Terry Holland doesn't show up for tonight's game, Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell expects a tough game from the Cavaliers.

Without Holland, hospitalized as doctors try to diagnose his intestinal illness, Virginia has posted two straight two-point victories over Wake Forest and Arkansas while being handled by assistants Dave Odom and Jim Larranaga.

Driesell, who coached Holland at Davidson, said when he telephoned his former player to check on his physical condition, "I told him Virginia might do better if he stayed home."

At another point, Driesell said he jokingly suggested that he and Holland "open an antique shop in Ocean City (Md.) and forget about basketball."

"I was hoping they would come in here with a little losing streak," Driesell said at a news conference Tuesday. "But they're coming in on a roll. We'll have to play well to beat them."

Although Virginia is last in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 1-6 record and are just 10-9 over-all, Driesell contended the Cavaliers were a solid ballclub, and added: "I have a lot of respect for them."

Six of Virginia's losses have been by margins of six points or less while 17th-ranked Maryland, 16-5, has suffered all of its losses by a total of 10 points.

The Terps lead the ACC with a 3-1 record, but Driesell said the position means little this early in the season, and pointed out that Maryland had lost its only league road outing to date.

"If we want to stay in first," he said, "we've got to win on the road. Georgia Tech is in the best position... they've won three road games."

Tech, 4-2 and tied for second with North Carolina going into tonight's full schedule of league games, visits Maryland on Saturday afternoon.

After noting that the Terps lost to Georgia Tech by one point in a holiday tournament that did not count in the ACC standings, Driesell added, "so we're anxious to get another crack at them."

"If they best, they've got to be good," he said.

Both home games this week will be sellouts of 14,500, as will two later ACC contests. The Terps are assured of at least 10 capacity crowds in Cole Field House this season, double last season's total.

With four sellouts in their five previous home games, the Terps are averaging better than 12,000 per outing.

Jr. High Basketball

Kevin Cobb and Stacey Best posted 13 points each as E.B. Aycock defeated Wilson Hunt 88-55 Tuesday in junior high basketball action.

Dallas Fornville chipped in 11 points for Aycock. Jay Lamm paced Hunt with 18 points.

E.B. Aycock, now 5-2, travels to Nash Central Friday.

CHOCOWINITY — Chocowinity Junior High School's basketball teams won a pair of games from Greenville Christian Academy last night.

In the girls' game, Chocowinity took a 39-11 victory. China Grice led Chocowinity with 18 points, while Jennifer Boseman had nine for GCA.

Chocowinity's boys won their game, 49-40. Somehas Howard led Chocowinity with 12, while Franklin Huggins had 14 to lead GCA.

GCA returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Wilson Christian.

Celtics Use 'Mystery Play' To Beat Pistons, 131-130

By The Associated Press
The play was simply indescribable, as Larry Bird himself said. "I don't want to describe the play," Bird said, "... we might have to use it again."

On Tuesday night, the Boston Celtics used the mystery play to beat the Detroit Pistons, 131-130, on Bird's basket at the buzzer. The loss snapped an eight-game Detroit winning streak, one short of the team record set in 1970.

The winning maneuver began with four seconds left as Bird took a short inbound pass from Dennis Johnson at halfcourt. Bird drove along the side, cut toward the basket, fended off Detroit center Kent Benson near the lane and threw the ball toward the hoop from about five feet away.

"As you could tell... I got the ball, we won," Bird said. "I was hoping I was going to get it. It's just like we know all Detroit's plays. Still, we've got to stop them."

In the rest of the National Basketball Association, Cleveland defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 110-94, Chicago beat the Kansas City 103-97, San Antonio downed New Jersey 130-127, Atlanta defeated Indiana 115-106, Denver clobbered Phoenix 128-100, Milwaukee beat Golden State 108-101 and the Los Angeles Lakers defeated Portland 122-106.

"It is a tough way to lose, especially when you have the chance to win," Detroit guard Isiah Thomas said. "You never know until the game is over. I said to Bird, 'Nice shot.' And he smiled back."

Bird finished with 32 points, and Thomas topped Detroit with 33, including a 20-foot jumper that had given the Pistons a 130-129 lead with four seconds to play. Thomas also had 19 assists, 13 in the second half as Detroit made up a 78-64 halftime deficit.

"Tonight, I felt we had an opportunity to win the game even though there were only a few seconds on the clock," Bird said. "As long as you have the ball and a chance to score, you can still win the game."

Cavaliers 116, Clippers 94
Cleveland had not beat any team by more than eight points this season until defeating the Clippers by 16. Los Angeles has lost five in a row.

World B. Free scored 26 points to lead the Cavaliers, who had five others in double figures. Junior Bridgeman led the Clippers with 30 points.

The Cavaliers broke away from a 16-16 tie in the first quarter with 12 straight points and led comfortably the rest of the way. On three occasions, the Clippers got within 11, but that was the closest they could come.

Bulls 103, Kings 97
Chicago won its fourth in a row for a 24-21 record, its best mark at this stage of the season in seven years. Michael Jordan scored 26 points for the Bulls, whose third-quarter surge put them ahead 83-77 going into the final period.

The Kings, who pulled within 101-97 with 58 seconds left, now have lost 18 times in 22 road games. Eddie Johnson topped the Kings with 26 points.

Spurs 130, Nets 127
George Gervin scored 47 points and Mike Mitchell had 28 as San Antonio held off several New Jersey scoring bursts.

The Spurs led by as many as 13 points in the third quarter and eight in the fourth. Albert King scored all of New Jersey's points in a 7-2 spurt that cut the lead to 106-103 with 7:30 to play.

The Nets held their ground until Johnny Moore and Gervin each hit two free throws to give the Spurs a 130-124 lead with two seconds left.

Micheal Ray Richardson led the Nets with 26 points and King had 24.

Hawks 115, Pacers 106
Atlanta beat Indiana for the fourth straight time this season, getting 40 points from Dominique Wilkins and 24 more from Glenn Rivers.

With the game tied 68-68 and five minutes left in the first half, Rivers hit a pair of free throws that put the Hawks ahead for good. The lead went back and forth for most of the first half, and Indiana led 54-53 in the third quarter.

Clark Kellogg had 24 points and Vern Fleming 23 for the Pacers. The game was the seventh of 12 that Atlanta will play in New Orleans this season.

Nuggets 128, Suns 100
Wayne Cooper touched off an 18-6 tear with a baseline jumper as the Nuggets pull away from a 70-70 tie en route to their rout of Phoenix. Alex English led all scorers with 27 points for Denver, which has won seven straight games.

Denver led 56-53 at halftime but pushed the margin to as many as 30 points in the second half.

Larry Nance paced Phoenix with 22 points. Calvin Natt added 25 points and Cooper had 19 for Denver.

Bucks 108, Warriors 101
Sidney Moncrief scored 30 points as Milwaukee won for the ninth straight time and Golden State lost its 15th in a row.

With Paul Pressey scoring 14 points and Moncrief eight, the Bucks outscored Golden State 33-16 in the third quarter. Golden State pulled within 96-93 with 5:17 left, but Milwaukee scored the next eight points to cool the Warriors' rally.

Mickey Johnson had 22 points for the Warriors.

Lakers 122, Trail Blazers 106
Los Angeles outscored Portland 13-6 in a four-minute stretch, starting with 55 seconds left in the third quarter, to turn a lead of three points into a 96-86 advantage. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 29 points and Jamaal Wilkes had 24 for the Lakers.

Portland led 66-59 after a 39-point second quarter, but Los Angeles outscored the Blazers 28-14 in the third quarter. Mychal Thompson led the Trail Blazers with 24 points.

Crosby 'Clambake' Event Features Bigger Purse

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The 44th Crosby Clambake, more formally known as the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, features an increased purse, questionable weather and a brand-new pro.

The tournament begins Thursday on three Monterey Peninsula courses with a purse boosted to $500,000, an increase of $100,000 over the previously announced figures.

The weather, so often a vital part of this old gathering, is suspect. Rain, wind, sleet, cold and snow heavy enough to obscure the migrating whales all have their place in Crosby history. Cold temperatures are in the forecast this year. There's the possibility of rain for Friday.

"Our forecast is for rain. And then, after that, it gets bad," said one PGA Tour official.

"We defy the elements," said Nathaniel Crosby, son of the founder and now the host.

He's also the new pro.

Nathaniel, 22, a former national amateur champion, turned pro late last year, but failed to gain his approved players' card at the PGA Tour qualifying school. In competition in Spain, however, he did qualify as a member of the European tour and will join that circuit in the spring.

Crosby said he also plans to play on the Asian circuit next month before going to Europe.

"I'm not going to be the tourist in Europe, seeing the sights and visiting museums," he said.

"I'm going over there to learn my business, to learn to play professional tournament golf. I'll be working on my game and playing golf, not sight-seeing," he said.

"I hope to gain the knowledge and experience I need to play here in the United States," Crosby said.

In view of his new status, Nathaniel divested himself of some of his duties as host and he has been working on his golf game. Those duties have been taken over by brother Harry and mother Kathryn this year.

"This is the first time I've given myself the chance to really prepare for the tournament," said Nathaniel, who, in previous years, has competed as an amateur.

Now he's listed among the 168 pros chasing a $90,000 first prize. The rookie, however, has little hope of success against a field that includes Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Masters champion Ben Crenshaw, PGA champ Lee Trevino, defending Crosby titleholder Hale Irwin and Lanny Wadkins, winner of two of the first three events this season.

Among the other leading contenders are Phoenix Open winner Cal Peete, Hal Sutton, Mark O'Meara, Johnny Miller, Larry Nelson, Australian Greg Norman, Craig Stadler, Tom Kite and John Mahaffey.

The format calls for the pros and their amateur partners to play one round on each of the three courses, Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill, before the field is cut for Sunday's final round at Pebble Beach.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Valenzuela Accepts 1985 Contract Terms

By The Associated Press

Pitcher Fernando Valenzuela, who came away with a million-dollar contract two years ago when he first took the Los Angeles Dodgers to salary arbitration, agreed to terms for 1985 before matters got that far.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed when the Dodgers made the announcement of Valenzuela's signing on Tuesday, although the pitcher had submitted a bid of $1.3 million for arbitration while the National League club filed a $1.1 million offer, the salary Valenzuela earned last season.

In 1984, Valenzuela pitched 261 innings, second in the league, and compiled a 12-17 record with an earned run average of 3.03 and 240 strikeouts. His $1 million contract in 1983 is still a record for a salary decided by arbitration.

The arbitration figures submitted by Valenzuela and the Dodgers before Tuesday's agreement were one of three cases in which teams proposed salaries of $1 million a year or more for players who filed for arbitration.

Of the 98 players who filed for arbitration, seven are seeking settlements in excess of $1 million annually, according to a report in Tuesday's New York Times. Besides Valenzuela, St. Louis Cardinals right-hander Joaquin Andujar has agreed in principle to a new three-year contract that will pay him nearly $1.5 million a year, Manager Whitey Herzog said Tuesday night at the annual St. Louis baseball writers' dinner.

Andujar, 32, posted a 20-14 record in 1984 while earning a reported $300,000.

The Montreal Expos reportedly submitted a salary of $1 million for their arbitration proceeding with outfielder Tim Lincecum, who is seeking $1.2 million.

Four other players are seeking more than $1 million annually, topped by the $1.3 million asked by relief pitcher Bill Caudill, who was traded last month from Oakland to Toronto.

First basemen Leon Durham of the Chicago Cubs and Kent Hrbek of the Minnesota Twins want $1.1 million each and third baseman Wade Boggs of the Boston Red Sox asked for $1 million. Toronto offered Caudill $850,000, the Cubs bid $800,000 for Durham and Minnesota's offer for Hrbek was $650,000. Boston's bid for Boggs wasn't disclosed.

Meanwhile, slugger Kirk Gibson, one of two Detroit players who had filed for arbitration, signed a one-year contract Tuesday for an estimated $650,000. Gibson had been seeking a long-term contract but negotiations hit a snag over the issue of deferred payments, a policy in which the Tigers don't believe.

Veteran first baseman Pat Putnam, who finished out the 1984 season with Minnesota, and right-hander Renie Martin, who was with the Philadelphia Phillies, signed with the Kansas City Royals and will be invited to spring training as non-roster players.

Reliever Steve Crawford, who had filed for arbitration, has agreed to a one-year contract with the Boston Red Sox. Crawford was 5-0 with one save and a 3.34 ERA for Boston last season.

David Graham of Australia, one of the stars of the PGA Tour, plays righthanded now but hit his shots lefthanded in his first two years of playing golf.

New York Medical Examiner Fighting To Keep His Job

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's chief medical examiner has gone on leave to fight published reports about his official conduct amid new allegations that his office is so badly run that many lawyers and pathologists doubt its findings.

Dr. Elliot M. Gross is turning his daily duties over to a deputy so he can make himself available to answer questions about the administration of his office and prepare his refutation of the charges, his lawyer, Howard Squadron, said Tuesday.

"Dr. Gross will continue to be available for any testimony or other duties arising out of autopsies previously conducted by his office," Squadron said.

Mayor Edward I. Koch hailed the medical examiner's action as "sensible."

In the fourth and final article of a series that has triggered three city and state investigations of the Medical Examiner's office, The New York Times today quoted workers in the medical examiner's laboratories as saying they are so under-equipped and overworked that they no longer trust their own laboratory results.

"The machines we have are getting old. They break down often," said Dr. Krishna Singh, a senior chemist.

The Times said medical examiners rush through six or seven autopsies a day, compared to the standard in the profession of two daily, and are making serious mistakes.

Police are quoted as saying an autopsy last year failed to find a balloon filled with $30,000 worth of narcotics in the digestive tract of a young drug addict. It was later discovered by an embalmer, the Times said.

Although the law requires the presence of two medical examiners at homicide autopsies, many are done illegally by a single examiner and Gross has allowed the practice to continue despite warning letters from two assistants, the Times said.

Dr. Milton Bastos, who retired as Gross' director of toxicology and returned to his native Brazil, told the Times that Gross ordered him to put samples of the brain, liver, blood and bile of playwright Tennessee Williams in a container marked with the name of a 27-year-old man who died in a fall from a roof.

Bastos said Gross told him "he did not want anyone to know that they were working with this material (tissues from Williams' body)."

In an interview, Gross told the Times, "There are many things that occur in the course of running an office that may not always adhere strictly to what we would like." He added that his problems resulted from being "entangled within a bureaucracy."

Gross has denied any impropriety, promised "a detailed refutation ... in the proper forum," and said he would be exonerated by investigations initiated by Koch and Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Florida Executes Inmate For Policeman's Murder

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — James David Raulerson died in Florida's electric chair today for killing a policeman in a 1975 gun battle, his execution witnessed by the victim's father, who had longed for years "to see the day they pull the switch."

Raulerson, 33, was convicted of shooting to death policeman Michael Stewart, 23, during a robbery at a Jacksonville restaurant.

Raulerson was the 11th inmate to die in Florida since 1979 and the 37th put to death in the nation since the high court reinstated capital punishment in 1976. He was the fifth person executed in the nation this year.

He entered the death chamber at 6:58 a.m. and was pronounced dead at 7:11, according to Sgt. Don Gladish of the corrections staff.

In his last statement, Raulerson blamed a police officer for Stewart's death.

"I am sorry you are made a murderer through the state Mr. Dugger," Raulerson said, referring to Richard Dugger, state prison superintendent. "James English killed Michael Stewart and used Stewart's gun to murder my cousin. I am sorry for you for taking life. My family knows I love them and I love you."

James English is a police officer who was wounded in the shootout in which Stewart and Raulerson's cousin, Jerry Tant, were killed.

A nervous-looking Raulerson entered the chamber with a wink to his attorney, Stephen Bright. When the 2,000 volts were applied, he jerked upward in the oak chair, his hands clenching into fists and turning purple.

The victim's father, Jack Stewart, sat in the second of four rows of chairs for witnesses. Afterward, he expressed satisfaction.

"It's over. Justice has finally been served and thank God for that," the father told reporters.

He had been on the witness list twice before when executions for Raulerson were scheduled and then stayed. "I've been disappointed so many times," Stewart said last week.

At least two dozen police officers, some in uniform, drove from nearby Jacksonville to Florida State Prison near Starke and far outnumbered the handful of death penalty opponents who also staged a vigil at a pasture across the street from the prison.

"This is to show we haven't forgotten," said one uniformed officer. None of the policemen would give their names, saying they wished to be described simply as friends of Michael Stewart. "Ten years is a long time. It's been too long coming. They are making a mockery of justice."

The U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday turned down Raulerson's appeal in a 6-2 vote, clearing the way for his execution at 7 a.m. today.

In a 1981 interview, Jack Stewart said, "I hope we'll be able to live to see the day they pull the switch."

In 1979, some Jacksonville police officers were criticized for electric T-shirts with a picture of the electric chair and the slogan, "Raulerson. You're Next." The shirts were sold after John Spinkelink became the first inmate executed in Florida since the 1976 reinstatement of the death penalty.

Raulerson spent his final evening visiting with his mother, Virginia Hamlin, and his stepfather, Nelson Hamlin. Other family members, a girlfriend, a minister and his attorney, Stephen Bright of Atlanta, also visited him.

Iwo Jima Vets Set Reunion

BRANDON, Miss. (AP) — Hundreds of Marines who fought at Iwo Jima in 1945, winning the high ground at Mt. Suribachi for a historic flag-raising, will rendezvous next month to recall their time of "blood, guts and grenades."

The reunion, set for an old Civil War battleground in Vicksburg, Miss., is an affordable alternative for vets who can't pay to return to the island for ceremonies on Feb. 19, the 40th anniversary of the American invasion of the Japanese island.

"I thought it would be good to get together on the 40th anniversary because we might not have too many living on the 50th," said Vernon Hammons, a retired Marine gunnery sergeant who proposed the reunion.

Maj. Donald Kappel, a Marine Corps spokesman in Washington, said 225 veterans have signed up for the privately sponsored trip to Iwo Jima from Tokyo. They and 70 Japanese veterans of the campaign will tour the island and dedicate a 1,000-pound marble monument on the site of the flag raising.

A memorial service will be held for the 6,891 Marines who died on the eight-square-mile island, said Hammons.

Even though it's almost a half century since the 25-day battle for the strategic island, Hammons said it's not difficult to recall the bitter fighting as Marines poured ashore in waves, fighting Japanese entrenched in concrete bunkers.

Iwo Jima "was the most heavily fortified place we had ever hit," he said. "They were dug in. Their bunkers of reinforced concrete could withstand anything but a direct hit with a big bomb of a 16-inch shell from one of our ships."

"The determining thing boiled down to foxhole-to-foxhole fighting — blood, guts and grenades."

Hannons thought about inviting some Japanese veterans, but didn't.

CBS Wins Prime-Time Ratings In Squeaker

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was an unusual ratings week, both for the tight three-way competition and for No. 1 CBS' special programming that contributed to some atypical nightly performances.

CBS, with "Dallas" and "60 Minutes" the top-rated programs, edged ABC by one-tenth of a point, but the three networks were separated by just four-tenths of a point — the narrowest regular-season ratings differential in more than seven years.

For the week ending Jan. 27, CBS had a 17.2 rating, ABC, with No. 3 "Dynasty" and No. 7 "Webster" (the child-abuse episode) as its top shows, averaged a 17.1, while NBC, led by No. 4 "The A-Team" and No. 5 "The Cosby Show," had a 16.8.

Figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed ABC and NBC performing higher than their seasonal averages, with CBS doing normally. After 18 weeks of the 30-week prime-time season, CBS has a 17.2 rating, NBC a 16.2 and ABC a 15.5. (A rating point equals one percent of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes.)

The last time a regular-season, prime-time week was as close was in December 1977. The three networks also were separated by four-tenths of a point last June, but that was during off-peak viewing when prime-time programming was dominated by the Democratic National Convention and reruns.

CBS, ABC and NBC were so tightly bunched last week that they all had the same audience share — a 26. (A share measures the average percentage of viewers with their sets tuned to a network.)

CBS, which usually has movies on Tuesday and Wednesday and popular series the other nights, had a three-hour movie about Errol Flynn on Monday, the "Miss Teen USA" pageant on Tuesday and the first installment of the miniseries "Robert Kennedy and His Times" on Sunday.

Part one of "Robert Kennedy and His Times" ranked 17th, a respectable showing, and its 29 share of the audience Sunday night was about what CBS expected. "But that was still below-average for us on a Sunday night," said Michael Eisenberg, CBS' director of audience measurement.

NBC's two-hour movie introducing its new series, "Code Name: Foxfire," was the top-rated program Sunday night, finishing 14th. The series, about an undercover team specializing in jobs that "even a man can't handle," now moves to Friday at 8 o'clock EST, hoping to attract women eagerly waiting for "Dallas" on CBS at 9. "Dallas" and "Dynasty" are the season's top series, each averaging a 25.4 rating.

On Monday night, ABC's movie about a gossipy tabloid, "Scandal Sheet," starring Burt Lancaster, ranked 12th, beating CBS' "My Wicked, Wicked Ways," which finished 40th. The pre-emption of "Scarecrow & Mrs. King" helped the newly moved "Hardcastle & McCormick" achieve its highest rating of the season.

NBC's "Sara," starring Geena Davis as a single attorney in San Francisco, ranked 32nd in its debut, posting a better rating than its predecessor, "It's Your Move," ever did in the 9:30 EST timeslot on Wednesday. That improvement also boosted NBC's "St. Elsewhere" to its highest rating of the season and 35th place in the rankings.

ABC's "MacGruder & Loud," the series introduced after the Super Bowl, held up in its first outing in its regular Tuesday timeslot, finishing 24th.

CBS' science fiction series, "Otherworld," had lukewarm acceptance in its debut, ranking 47th.

Peggy Lee Recovering

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Peggy Lee is resting at home in exclusive Bel-Air following surgery to open constricted arteries but is "champing at the bit" to get back to work, her publicist says.

The 63-year-old pop and jazz artist underwent the surgery Jan. 23 at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica and went home Saturday, publicist Gino Empry said Tuesday.

The coronary angioplasty operation, in which inflatable catheters were used to open narrowed arteries, made heart bypass surgery unnecessary, he said by telephone from Toronto.

The singer suffered chest pains Jan. 21 and checked into the hospital the next day, Empry said.

"She's resting at home, but she's champing at the bit because she wants to get back to work," he said.

Miss Lee is scheduled to resume her engagements Feb. 5 in Dallas. Canceled appearances in Atlantic City and St. Louis will be rescheduled soon, said Empry.

ECU Faculty Pianist Joined Orchestra For Inauguration

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Few pianists in the world can say that they have played for the president of the United States and other noted dignitaries. Paul Tardif of Greenville, a professor at East Carolina University, is one of those rare pianists. He was a member of the orchestra that performed at President Ronald Reagan's inaugural gala earlier this month.

For the past six years, Tardif has been pianist in the orchestras for "The Kennedy Center Honors" and the "Christmas in Washington" television programs, in addition to performing for heads of state visiting the nation's capital.

At the recent presidential inaugural gala, Tardif accompanied singers Frank Sinatra, Donna Summer and Mac Davis, among other entertainers who participated in the program.

"The rehearsals were long, from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m.," Tardif said in an interview. "We performed two shows, one for the vice president on Friday and one for the president Saturday; Saturday's show was televised."

Tardif said the music on the television program was partially live and partially prerecorded. "For instance, Donna Summer sang live, but the orchestra was prerecorded. She sang along with about 150 members of the Navy Chorus, and they would not have been able to hear the orchestra if it wasn't prerecorded," Tardif related.

"The music is recorded for balance so all singers can hear. Each instrument is recorded separately and mixed so the sound of each instrument can be brought up or down. The sound on television sets needs to be improved, because the musical product produced by television is as good as a recording."

Sometimes a singer will lip-synch along with the prerecorded singing, or the orchestra will "side-line" to the prerecorded orchestral music, pretending that they are playing the instruments, Tardif said.

Following the gala, Tardif was hired to play for a party hosted by Sinatra. Attending the party were such notables as Dean Martin, Elizabeth Taylor and Zsa Zsa Gabor, impressionist Rich Little, actor Robert Wagner and Mr. T.

"I tend not to recognize a lot of people, especially the politicians," Tardif related. "I might be standing next to someone important and not even recognize him." He said he talked to choreographer Twyla Tharp at the party, and saw actress Jill St. John at the party.

Since he is a member of the Washington, D.C., musicians union, Tardif said he is contacted when an orchestra is being put together to perform in the capital city. "A member of the orchestra must be able to sight-read well," he said, "because you may practice the piece one or two times and then record it. You also must be able to play all different styles of music, including opera, jazz, pop music, country music, classical music, because you play all different kinds in the show."

Tardif will play an all-George Gershwin program with the North Carolina Symphony in Raleigh Feb. 7-8, and the all-Chopin concert he presented in Raleigh in October was ranked one of the 10 best performances of the year by a regional newspaper.

He and clarinetist David Wright recently released an album and will conduct a tour of Midwestern cities in support of the recording in February.

Tardif said he does not get nervous when he knows the president of the United States is in the audience listening to him play. "There are many people in the orchestra playing their own parts," Tardif said. "It isn't as nerve-racking as doing a solo. I have never played a solo for the president — that would be great."

INAUGURAL PIANIST — Pianist Paul Tardif, a professor at East Carolina University, was a member of the orchestra that played at a gala for President Reagan and Vice President Bush. Tardif is a member of a musicians' union in the Washington area. He also played at a party hosted by singer Frank Sinatra.

Lawyers Turning From The Stress Of Torts To Tooting Their Horns

By KAREN WEST

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California lawyers suffering the stress of marathon hours of research, court arguments and scolding judges are turning to music to blow a little steam — not listening to it, playing it.

Several lawyer bands, playing everything from country to rock to folk music, have cropped up the past year in Los Angeles County. Three-piece suits and attaches are dropped in favor of jeans and T-shirts.

Lawyer Barry Fisher, whose clients include the Rev. Sun Myung

Moon, said his "Ellis Island Band" offers much-needed diversity.

"It's something that is mostly non-verbal. It's an alternative to the lawyer activity. It's energetic," said Fisher, 41.

Fisher's group, which has been featured on the television show "Fame," was among nine attorney bands to perform at a benefit for the San Fernando Valley Community Legal Foundation.

Among the groups performing at the benefit were: "Advocats," "Law in Motion," "Just-Us," "Use a Guitar, Go to Prison," "The Deputies" (a group of deputy attorneys general) and "Moving Violation."

For some of the lawyer bands, the concert was a chance to gain some exposure. But the majority of the groups have been performing for years.

Fisher's group, which plays mostly ethnic and folk music, performs at Los Angeles nightclubs about once a week.

"One night we played in Beverly Hills and there were a lot of lawyer-types there. Here I am with my instruments when I probably should have been at the lawyer function," Fisher said.

Although he studied music at UCLA and dabbled in television, Fisher said he preferred the legal profession.

Los Angeles criminal lawyer Richard Diamond, 33, whose "Torts R Us" band plays mostly blues and jazz, said he looks forward to performing at the end of each week.

Diamond said he was once a professional musician and recently joined the band because he missed the music.

"I always wanted to play, but when I was going through law school and establishing my practice it was difficult," he said. "It's good to get away after a hectic week at the law office."

Opry House Takes New Name, Style

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

After six years of providing live entertainment, the Carolina Opry House is changing. Bands will still perform at the nightclub's location on N.C. 264 bypass. But gone will be the rustic wooden decor and the country-music inspired name.

T.W.'s Nitelife will open Friday in the old Carolina Opry House building, and with the name change will come a change in the entertainment, dress code and atmosphere of the nightclub.

"We (at the Carolina Opry House) have fought a stigma for the past 18 months," said Buzz Ledford, entertainment consultant for the nightclub. "Since the 'Urban Cowboy' scene died out, it wasn't cool to be country anymore and people decided not to frequent the Carolina Opry House. The club got a stigma of only doing country music, even though we had various styles of music there."

"Times change, trends change, and clubs have to change with the times and trends. Clubs go by the wayside if they don't change, and it was time for the Opry House to change," Ledford added.

The nightclub, which has a capacity of 1,000 persons, is transforming its image. Linen tablecloths, carpeting, awnings and brass fixtures are a part of the new intimate look of the club.

Live entertainment will still be the club's focal point. In addition to the country and oldies rock 'n' roll music the Carolina Opry House has been known for, T.W.'s Nitelife will present beach music groups, funk groups, big bands, comedians, even magicians.

The variety of talent the nightclub will present will appeal to all musical and entertainment tastes, Ledford said. "We are not trying to alienate the people who like country music, because we are still going to have country bands," he said. "We are also going to have other types of entertainment. There will be something for everyone. We hope to have national and regional acts of all kinds, and we hope people will suggest bands and entertainment they want to see."

Because of the extensive renovation being done to the building, the nightclub will be "classier," Ledford said, so patrons should "dress to impress." A dress code will be enforced; designer jeans are allowed, but patrons wearing T-shirts, hats or tennis shoes will not be admitted.

A snack food menu will include nachos, popcorn and pizza. Van service will still be provided for patrons who do not want to drive after drinking.

T.W.'s Nitelife will be open to members and their guests. People with current Carolina Opry House membership cards can trade their card in for a T.W.'s Nitelife card at no charge.

Composers To Head Eastern Band Clinic

Two widely known composers, John Kinyon and Claude Smith, will be clinicians at the two-day clinic of the Eastern Division of the N. C. Band Division to be held in Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus on Friday and Saturday.

Approximately 380 music students from high school bands from eastern North Carolina will attend the two-day affair. They were selected from more than 1,000 students auditioning for an invitation to take part in the clinic for the All-District Band.

At the conclusion of the clinic, a concert by students will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday in Wright Auditorium. The concert is free and open to the public.

Kinyon, of Tuckasegee in western North Carolina, has been a music educator for more than 40 years.

During his career he has been a teacher of instrumental music at all levels from elementary schools through college. He is best known for his contribution to the development of music literature for young bands, through numerous compositions and books on the subject.

Smith, currently a staff composer for Jensen Publications Inc. and director of music for the Blue Ridge Presbyterian Church, lives in Kansas City, Mo. He has composed extensively in the areas of instrumental and choral music, with his music performed throughout the U.S. and abroad. Among his more than 90 published works are solos for a number of public performing artists. Among commissions he has received was one for special music for the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.

A Reflector Review

'Beverly Hills' Is 'Cute' Movie

I will admit that I didn't want to see "Beverly Hills Cop," but after several people whose taste I trust told me it was "cute" and "funny" I went. They're right, it was "cute" and "funny" and not at all what I had expected. (I don't quite know what I had expected, but this wasn't it.)

This is Eddie Murphy's movie. Murphy plays Axel Foley, a streetwise Detroit cop on the outs with his own department for insubordination. He's trying to track down the goons who murdered his friend, and when his boss kicks him off the case, he takes a vacation in Beverly Hills, the last place his late friend had worked. The movie is a caper movie in reverse, with the cops pulling the capers.

Foley is slick, cool, a chameleon in rags. He becomes the bane of the Beverly Hills Police Department, polite cops who do everything by the books and won't believe him when he gets into trouble while snooping around after Victor Maitlin (Steven Berkoff), one of the richest art importers in town. Sgt. Taggart (John Ashton) and Detective Rosewood (Judge Reinhold) are assigned to tail him, to keep him out of trouble, to get him out of town. They fail miserably, but they end up saving his life and cracking the case.

Murphy is wonderful as a fast-talking, quick-thinking undercover cop who can take on new personalities in the blink of an eye. The cops assigned to tail him are nice-guy/dumb-cop stereotypes, played a little too broadly, while Maitlin's character has no redeeming qualities. There are some good gags, gorgeous shots of Southern California urban landscapes, and an interesting chase scene opens the movie with a fish-tailing double-trailer truck out-dancing lines of police cars.

This movie has been breaking box-office records. It's worth seeing, but I'm not sure it's worth all the raves it's been getting. It is funny and cute, the story makes sense, and there were even a few scenes with momentary suspense. It is entertaining, and since that's all it really tries to be, I guess that makes "Beverly Hills Cop" a successful movie on its own terms. (Rated R for heavy profanity and some shoot-out violence.)

Thatcher Denied Degree

LONDON (AP) — Oxford University professors, miffed by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's cuts in research funding, have voted not to give her an honorary degree from the 740-year-old bastion of classical learning.

Her office had a clipped reply to the snub on Tuesday by Oxford's faculty, administrators and fellows: "If they don't wish to confer the honor, she is the last person to wish to receive it."

The 738-319 vote against granting the honor makes Mrs. Thatcher the first Oxford-educated prime minister since World War II to be refused such recognition.

Mrs. Thatcher, 59, earned bachelor's degree in science and a master's degree from Oxford's Somerville College.

Oxford first gave women degrees in 1920 but did not grant them full university status until 1959.

The vote on honorary degrees usually draws a handful of dons — members of the teaching staff. But Mrs. Thatcher's case attracted almost half the eligible voters.

Peter Pulzer, a professor of government who led the anti-Thatcher campaign, told reporters after the vote in Sheldonian Theater: "We have been polite for 5½ years and nobody has taken any notice of us. I think if talking gets you nowhere there are times when you have to shout, and that's what we've done today."

But Dr. Nicholas Shrimpton, a pro-Thatcher don, said the rejection was "a futile, painless and self-congratulatory gesture."

The British domestic news agency Press Association said students opposed to the budget cuts planned rallies and marches today in Finchley, Mrs. Thatcher's House of Commons seat in north London, and in northeast Leeds, the Commons district of her education secretary, Sir Keith Joseph.

Criticism over cuts for aid to research and educational programs is only one area where Mrs. Thatcher has drawn fire. Her steadfast stance on the 10-month-old miners' strike, her Conservative government's hard-line defense posture and her tight hold on fiscal policies have the country deeply divided.

Some of the fiercest shouting matches in the House of Commons in memory have been between her supporters and opponents.

University officials say research funds have declined by about 20 percent since 1977. Last year, Joseph sought to cut spending by reducing grants for research.

Lord Blake, provost of Queen's College, Oxford, contending that "cuts were inevitable in all walks of public expenditure," called those who voted down the degree "parochial, spiteful and rather vindictive."

A petition signed by 275 dons contended her government had done "deep and systematic damage to the whole public education system in Britain, from the provision for the youngest child up to the most advanced research programs."

Mrs. Thatcher's unpopularity among some educators goes back to 1972 when, as education minister under Prime Minister Edward Heath, she abolished free milk for primary school children and earned the epithet "Thatcher — milk snatcher."

Every prime minister who attended Oxford has received an honorary degree in civil law since World War II, usually in the first year in office. Mrs. Thatcher is in her sixth year in office and was the first prime minister whose candidacy for the honor was challenged.

Historians at the university said that Mrs. Thatcher is only the second person in memory turned down for an honorary degree.

The last was President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan in 1975 because of his alleged involvement in massacres in East Pakistan before it became Bangladesh. Bhutto was hanged in 1979 after he was overthrown by the armed forces.

Elections

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress Party won a parliamentary seat in Bhopal, where more than 2,000 people were killed last month by a gas leak, but lost three of four other elections held this week.

The elections originally were scheduled for December, as part of nationwide voting, but were postponed in Bhopal because of the gas disaster and in the other four districts because of the death of candidates.

Before this week's elections, Congress Party had a record, near three-fourths majority in Parliament. The latest wins increased its strength to 402 seats in Parliament.

The City of Greenville has a radio program, "City Hall News," which airs each Tuesday and Thursday at 10:25 A.M. on WOOW Radio. The public is invited to listen to this program each week and learn more about Greenville City Government.

DOE Pays Little Attention To Use Of Robots In Schools

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer

TALENT, Ore. (AP) — In the center of a circle of 24 sixth-graders at Talent Elementary School stood a squat little domed cylinder.

Pam Sessions, the school librarian, plugged a computer chip into a panel. Red and green lights flashed under the clear plastic dome. Motors whirred, and the cylinder rolled forward and back, turned and spun.

"I am going to test your math skills," a synthesized voice said. "Please press the bumper for the number of players. Please press the desired skill level."

The children squealed with nervousness and excitement. "The kids want to talk to it, hug it and kiss it," said Ms. Sessions.

Kids notice them, but as yet robots in the classroom haven't drawn much attention from the federal Department of Education, said Arthur S. Melmed, director of the department's education technology staff.

"To some extent we take our cues from the inputs we get from the schools, and I have not detected any landslide in this direction," he said.

Nevertheless, robots like the one at Talent Elementary School — an RB5X made by RB Robot of Golden, Colo. — are finding their way into classrooms.

Sharon Smith, a spokeswoman for RB Robot, said about 800 robots had been sold, with about 80 percent of them going to some educational purpose.

Other robots used in classrooms include Topo by Androbot Inc., Hero I and Hero Jr. by The Heath Co., and Hubot of Hubotics Inc.

The RB5X can play music or a game of "Simon Says," in which it instructs children to perform feats such as somersaults. In one game, "Hop To It," it tells children to stand a specified distance away and then measures the distance with a sonar sensor.

The robot, programmed with a computer, sells for a basic $2,295. The price can rise above $4,000 with options like a robotic arm, battery pack and sensor kit.

People in the robot industry are predicting robots will become household appliances by 1990. But they won't become substitute teachers, said Gregory A. Jackson, co-director of the Educational Technology Center at Harvard University.

"We don't understand enough about why good teachers are good teachers to be able to build a robot that is a good teacher," he said.

Human teachers can react to the unexpected, said Dick Ricketts of the International Council for Computers and Education at the University of Oregon.

"A robot can only react to the unpredictable basically by shutting down or doing something inane," Ricketts said. "A teacher can bring in fresh stuff from outside. There is no way a robot can do that."

"A lot of people in this country (feel) that learning should be fun," said Robert D. Hess, the Lee L. Jacks professor of child education at Stanford University. "But it's not quite clear where the dividing line is between games and education."

"If learning is seen as a pill that has to be sugar-coated and they don't later come to value learning and intellectual activity for its own sake, then we may be in fact fooling ourselves."

Harvard's Jackson sees value in students learning to program a robot to perform prescribed functions, like moving around the floor and picking up objects.

"One of the things about robots is you have to give them instructions so they will do things," he said. "They have to do with teaching kids the logic of exploring an environment."

Jim Carvalho has been using a "turtle" robot called Topo to teach the Logo computer language in his kindergarten class at Norwood Creek Elementary School in San Jose, Calif.

Seeing a robot move around the floor in response to their computer commands makes it easier for some kids to learn the computer language than working with an image on a computer screen, he said.

"Kindergartners are making a transition from only being able to see things from their own point of view to being able to see things from other points of view," Carvalho said.

"To be able to program a robot, they have to be able to put themselves in that robot's place," he added. "It's kind of like the Copernican revolution. No longer is the self the center of the world. They are dealing with the possibility of other centers."

Just being able to see, touch and become at ease with robots is valuable in a world where they are becoming common, performing functions ranging from adjusting the fuel mixture in cars to welding car bodies, Jackson said.

"I don't think we need to train many kids how to build robots and fix them," said Arnold Abrams, assistant professor of education at Southern Oregon State College. "But I do think we need to teach them how to understand robotic issues and concerns and how to use programmable machines."

Carvalho said the price will have to come down before robots start spreading very far in classrooms.

"We are trying to keep in touch with robot manufacturers to find out when they come out with something teachers can afford that is sophisticated enough to do some good," he said. "From what I've seen here, there's a lot of interest among teachers if the right thing comes along."

Old X-Rays Can Become Child's Toy

HONOLULU (AP) — Old chest X-rays don't necessarily just fade away. A dozen or so photographs of lungs and vertebrae have been recycled into Javanese shadow puppets by students at Aina Haina Elementary School.

"Of course, in Java, they use buffalo hide, scraped so thin that it becomes translucent," explained the director, John Marks.

There being very little traffic in buffalo hides in Aina Haina, Marks, a master of fine arts candidate at the University of Hawaii, thought of using those big X-ray sheets.

The effect, as seen in a recent show, is quite impressive. Marks directed the puppet play, using 15 fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders in the gifted and talented program of the school. The kids wrote the play, based on the Javanese legend, "The Ramayama." It will never make it to Broadway, but it had some fine moments.

The shadow puppets are mounted on sticks that hold them rigid, and are jointed at the shoulders and elbows so that the arms can be moved.

"The evil characters have big, thick arms and make broad, sweeping gestures. The good characters have long, thin arms and make smooth, slow gestures close to the body. This is from 11th-century tradition and ritual," Marks explained.

Ether Can Help Dissolve Stones

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Thousands of people might someday be spared gallbladder surgery by a form of ether that quickly dissolves painful gallstones lodged inside the body, according to a study released today.

About 500,000 people now undergo operations each year to have their gallbladders removed because of the stones.

The new technique uses a catheter to squirt ether directly into the gallbladder, where it breaks down the stones. The therapy has been tried on only six people and researchers stress that they will need far more experience before they can judge its long-term safety and effectiveness.

However, Dr. Johnson L. Thistle, who is in charge of the study at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., said, "I am optimistic that we'll be able to dissolve most gallstones completely with this technique."

Another doctor familiar with the work said he is concerned about the potentially damaging effect the ether may have on the gallbladder.

"It's exciting," said Dr. Martin C. Carey of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. "But it has to be viewed with a great deal of caution. I'm skeptical."

The treatment uses a laboratory solvent called methyl tert-butyl ether, which is similar to the kind of ether that was long given for anesthesia, but remains liquid at body temperatures rather than turning into a gas.

In the new technique, described in a preliminary report in the New England Journal of Medicine, doctors insert a catheter through the skin into the patient's gallbladder. Then they release the ether, and in a few hours, the stones are obliterated.

It's done under local anesthesia and requires three or four days of hospitalization. Thistle said patients can go back to work as soon as they are released. Surgical removal of the gallbladder requires general anesthesia, about a week in the hospital and six weeks or so of recuperation.

The gallbladder is a sac-shaped organ that stores and releases digestive juices. Often, cholesterol stones form in the gallbladder and its ducts, causing pain and other symptoms.

Ether works by dissolving cholesterol, and Carey said he is concerned about what else it dissolves at the same time.

"We have absolutely no idea what it does to the lining of the gallbladder itself," he said. "My guess is a lot of that has been dissolved away, too."

So far, the treatment has been successful in five of the six patients treated, and Thistle said, "With each patient, we refine the technique a bit more. I think we have a good chance of making a useful technique for a number of patients."

What's still not clear, however, is how often the patients' stones will reform after they are dissolved.

AIDS Takes On Some New Looks

By DELTHIA RICKS
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The deadly disease AIDS may be developing in some homosexual men in the form of lymphatic cancers never before associated with the AIDS virus, a new study has revealed.

Dr. Alexandra M. Levine, a blood and cancer specialist at the University of Southern California, found AIDS victims may develop rare lymphomas — cancers of the lymph system — that proliferate throughout the body.

"The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta has a very specific definition for AIDS," Levine explained. "This is basically showing signs of certain infections or development of Kaposi's sarcoma, a soft-tissue cancer."

USC researchers found AIDS victims who suffered rare cancers such as Burkitt's lymphoma and immunoblastic sarcoma. The victims showed a prevalence of the cancers at a rate several times that seen in the general population.

Burkitt's lymphoma appears as a mass on the jaw or in the abdomen. Immunoblastic sarcoma is a cancer of white blood cells forming part of the immune system.

"Lymphoma implies 10 to 15 different kinds of disease and in the general population these cancers occur most frequently among older people, primarily in their sixties," Levine said, although Burkitt's lymphoma strikes children.

"We have found that among homosexual men, the cancers are occurring in people who are much younger, primarily in their 20's and 30's," she said. "That has led us to believe the lymphomas are associated with the HTLV-3 virus — the same virus that (scientists believe) causes AIDS."

The USC study has also shown, that even though lymphomas tend to develop in the lymph nodes and glands of non-homosexuals, the cancers manifested in different sites in homosexual and bisexual men, such as in the rectum, brain and kidney.

The cancers retained the cellular and structural characteristics of lymphomas, Levine said.

Levine and her team of researchers have also studied 40 homosexual men with enlarged lymph nodes suffering a syndrome known as persistent generalized lymphadenopathy or PGL.

"About 30 percent of the homosexual men who come to USC for treatment have enlarged lymph nodes," Levine said. "I believe the condition is quite common for homosexual men who have probably been exposed to the HTLV-3 virus."

"The data is consistent that PGL may be the usual illness caused by the virus, creating fever, sweats, weight loss, fatigue and big lymph nodes and these symptoms may go on for years," Levine said.

For many patients, antibodies may be developed against the AIDS virus but because the virus is live, it can be passed onto others who have no defenses against it, Levine said.

Medical Uses For Laser Still Growing

By DENNY HAMILTON
GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — David Easter was struck by a car in Jacksonville in 1981 and a brain stem injury left him hospitalized in a coma and unable to breathe on his own.

At the time, David's parents never imagined that a needle-thin beam of high-intensity light — a laser — would help their son's recovery and allow him to breathe normally and to speak.

David, then 13, awoke from his coma after a month as the brain stem injury gradually healed. Dr. Nicholas Cassisi, chief of ear, nose and throat medicine at the University of Florida Medical Center for Health Sciences, was given the task of helping David regain his breathing and speech.

Cassisi determined that the injury had caused the formation of scar tissue that fused David's vocal cords so he could not breathe without the use of a tracheostomy tube.

Cassisi decided traditional surgical procedures would be inappropriate for David's treatment, so he traded his scalpel for a carbon dioxide surgical laser, which would vaporize the unwanted tissue in a matter of seconds with little damage to surrounding tissue.

"David was among a small percentage of patients that rejuvenate scar tissue, making it difficult to eradicate," Cassisi said. "Using the laser, the scar tissue was removed as it grew back — something not feasible using conventional surgery. Two days after the laser operation, David was able to speak his first words since the accident."

Cassisi said that without the laser surgery, David would have had to live the rest of his life wearing the tracheostomy tube through a hole in his throat.

Though greatly evolved from the physicists' fancy it was when it was first built by Theodore H. Maiman in 1960, the main components of the first functioning laser — light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation — still appear in every one made since then.

An active medium, usually gas or crystal, is exposed to a light source which excites the atomic particles of the medium. The excited light bounces back and forth in a mirrored tube until it gains enough intensity to exit as a beam of pure light. The result: a light powerful enough to cut through steel, yet delicate enough to cauterize a capillary on the retina of the human eye.

"The first medical laser was developed for use in treating eye problems," Dr. Melvin Rubin, chairman of Florida's ophthalmology department. "Its pinpoint accuracy made it ideal in treating delicate eye tissues."

Ophthalmologists use a small helium-neon laser to help diagnose the condition of the retina for patients who are candidates for cataract removal.

Also, doctors at the Florida facility were the first to use a moving laser light to tackle the problems associated with peripheral color vision, which is helpful in detecting early indications of eye disease.

The laser technology also has a limited use in the field of dermatology, said Dr. Frank Flowers, chief of the university's dermatology department. Flowers said laser treatments carry a lower risk of infection and usually produce good cosmetic results.

"Probably the most common use of lasers in treating afflictions of the skin is in the treatment of port wine stains," Flowers said. "But we also want to know what types of skin cancers respond best to laser therapy."

Over 1,000 doctors have come to the university's Department of Neurosurgery to learn new techniques in microscopic neurosurgery under the tutelage of Dr. Albert Rhoton, an internationally known specialist in micro-neurosurgery.

"The laser's main advantage in neurosurgery is its use for vaporizing brain tumors without having to manipulate surrounding tissues," Rhoton said. "Although it is not a cure for cancer, of course, it is good for removing any kind of brain tumor tissue, benign or malignant."

Researchers also are using lasers experimentally to "weld" scalp arteries with arteries in the brain to increase blood flow to the brain.

"Sutures have always been used to attach the arteries, but now we are applying laser technology to the operation," Rhoton said. "We are taking arteries almost too small to be seen with the naked eye and using the laser to weld them together."

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration recently approved the university's use of lasers for clinical trials to clear plaque from arteries in human patients.

"The laser vaporizes the blockage in a matter of 6 to 10 seconds," said Dr. George Albel, assistant professor of cardiology. "Hopefully, someday we will be able to use lasers to clear blockages from heart and brain arteries as well. This would almost do away with conventional heart bypass surgery."

If tests on 30 patients scheduled for bypass surgery succeed, Albel said, surgeons may be able to use laser beams to dissolve the artery-blocking fat that is one of the main causes of heart attacks.

Doctors said that conditions for which no therapy previously existed can now be treated with laser technology. In many cases, laser therapy has replaced conventional treatments because of its precision and speed, and because it causes less tissue damage, bleeding and scarring.

"At some point in time, lasers may make the scalpel almost obsolete," Arline Dishong, a Florida medical school spokeswoman said. "The trend is to try to get away from open surgery whenever possible."

Arthritis Problems Go By Many Names

ATLANTA (AP) — If you have "clergyman's knee," "tailor's seat," "tennis elbow" or "trigger finger," what you really have is a form of bursitis or tendinitis, the Arthritis Foundation points out.

These and other slang expressions are often used to describe certain types of bursitis or tendinitis which affect structures around different joints.

Sudden stress, from a sports injury, for example, or from repeated use of a joint, as on certain jobs, may bring on this condition. However, the exact cause is often unknown.

— Clergyman's knee, an inflammation of the bursa (a cushion in front of the kneecap) just below the knee, is actually bursitis.

— Tailor's seat or weaver's bottom describes inflammation over the bone in a person's "seat," caused by remaining seated for long periods at a time.

— Tennis elbow is an inflammation of the ligaments below the elbow, which can affect anyone who uses the muscles in the hand and forearm frequently.

— Trigger finger is due to an inflammation of the tendons used in bending the fingers.

With proper treatment, these forms of inflammation usually last only a short time and do not usually cause permanent damage, the Arthritis Foundation reports.

Israelis Restoring Bomb Shelters In Border Areas

By JONATHAN IMMANUEL
Associated Press Writer

KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — After nearly three years of quiet, townspeople here are restoring old bomb shelters for protection against guerrilla rocket attacks they fear will resume when Israeli soldiers pull out of Lebanon.

Israel invaded southern Lebanon in June 1982, saying it needed to protect frontier towns like Kiryat Shmona from terrorist attacks by the Palestine Liberation Organization. Recently, it announced plans for a phased withdrawal of Israeli troops, reviving fears of renewed shelling in Kiryat Shmona.

Deputy Mayor Shmuel Ohana recalls the exodus of townspeople between 1980 and 1982 when Kiryat Shmona was the target of rocket fire from guerrillas in southern Lebanon. Three people were killed and more than 20 wounded in those sporadic attacks.

Between 1980 and 1982, Kiryat Shmona's population dropped from 15,000 to 13,500 after growing steadily since the town's founding in 1949, one year after the creation of the state of Israel. Ohana estimated that as many as 70 percent of the residents left during a two week-period in July 1981, during escalated conflict between Israel and the PLO.

After the 1982 invasion, the population rose to 16,000, with newcomers attracted by Kiryat Shmona's tree-lined streets, temperate climate and spectacular views of the Galilean hills and snow-capped Mount Hermon.

People are less willing to accept life in bomb shelters after enjoying nearly three years of quiet, Ohana said.

In the past four months, as the likelihood of withdrawal became evident, the town stepped up the restoration of underground shelters.

Kiryat Shmona's public works director, Chaim Biton, said he found 140 public shelters in the town with a total maximum capacity of 8,400 beds — barely half the population. He said his department immediately began building 25 new shelters and improving the old ones.

One 60-square-yard shelter held 60 bunk beds, toilets, showers, electrical outlets and wiring for television.

"If bombs fall and I cannot sleep in my home, I must have a shelter with decent conditions or I will have no choice but to leave no matter how much I want to stay," said Ohana, who added he had stayed throughout the pre-invasion shelling.

Some residents, recalling the rocket attacks, said the most fearsome aspect was the uncertainty of when the next barrage would be.

"I used to listen to the radio and if I heard that one of our planes attacked a guerrilla base, I wouldn't leave the house for a week" for fear of a counterattack by the Palestinians, said Suzie Biton, a clerical worker who is not related to the public works director.

Ohana, a member of the Labor Party headed by Prime Minister Shimon Peres, said the situation was in some ways more delicate than when the government of then-Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud government launched the 1982 invasion to push the PLO out of southern Lebanon.

The problem of security in Kiryat Shmona has been compounded by unemployment which at 12 percent is twice the national average. The town's main industries are a textile plant, metal workshops, construction and catering to soldiers passing through on their way to and from Lebanon.

"I am happy we are leaving even though there is a danger," said Sgt. David Elhanna, as he dragged his heavy kit bag and M-16 rifle towards the bus station. He had just returned to Israel from what he hoped would be his last tour of reserve duty in Lebanon.

Dozens of other soldiers like him climbed into an express bus bound for Tel Aviv.

Many of the townspeople seem to have taken a wait-and-see attitude about the withdrawal. The first stage is to be completed by Feb. 18, but no date has been announced for the withdrawal of the last soldiers.

Last week, a demonstration to protest the pullout drew only 200 people to the town square. Organizers had expected more than 1,000.

UNC Center Joins Study To Help Premature Babies

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Researchers at the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center are participating in a project to help reduce the number of premature infants who suffer from learning, behavioral and health problems.

"The percentage of low birthweight infants in North Carolina is about 8 percent, and that is considered a significantly higher percentage than the less than 7 percent throughout the United States," said Dr. Ernest Kraybill, professor of pediatrics at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and head of North Carolina Memorial Hospital's neonatal unit.

"Furthermore," he added, "this is a very strong contributing factor to North Carolina's infant mortality rate (deaths within the first year), which is approximately 14 deaths per 1,000 live births, contrasted to the national average of 11.5 deaths" per 1,000 live births.

Nationwide, some 240,000 babies weighing 5.3 pounds or less — about 7 percent of all births — are delivered each year and kept alive by new medical technology, researchers said in a news release Wednesday.

Researchers are hoping the $20 million project involving eight medical centers will determine whether extended educational services and medical care can help alleviate such problems.

Infants in the project will be monitored for medical problems until they are 3 years old, researchers said.

Research already conducted at the center, which is affiliated with UNC-Chapel Hill, indicates non-medical problems may be prevented or reduced by support groups for parents, home visits by specialists and educational day care.

"We are gratified that our experience has resulted in an opportunity to adapt our procedures for this important national research program," said Dr. Craig T. Ramey, the center's director of research.

Ramey said he and Dr. Donna Bryant, assistant research director, are in charge of designing the educational program.

"Physicians are saving more and more tiny and premature infants, but society needs to ensure that we are not only saving them biologically but also psychologically and socially. This is what we are hoping to achieve," Ramey said.

The study will involve more than 1,000 babies.

CLIP-N-SAVE RECIPE

Tangy Pork Kabobs

1 Table Trim Pork Tenderloin, cut horizontally into 8, 1" pieces
Large, whole fresh mushrooms
Green pepper squares
Red sweet pepper squares or Whole tomatoes quartered

Par-boiled onions, quartered
1/2 c. chili sauce
1/4 c. sugar
2 T. lemon juice
2 T. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 to 1 t. chili powder
Hot cooked rice

Thread pork pieces onto 2 skewers, leaving space between each so they will cook evenly. Thread alternating pieces of green pepper, red pepper, mushrooms and onions onto 2 separate skewers. Blend together remaining ingredients except rice. Spread on meat and vegetables. Place pork kabobs on broiler rack in pan and broil 3 to 4" from heat for 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Baste meat frequently with sauce, turning several times. During the last 10 minutes, place vegetable kabobs on broiler rack. Turn once and baste with sauce. Serve pork and vegetable kabobs over hot cooked rice. Serves 3-4.

Some Pentagon Spending Is Beyond Recall

By DENIS G. GULINO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's longest and largest military buildup in peacetime history may already have too much built-in momentum for Congress to stop it. Policy choices for the late 1980s are irretrievably locked in, contrary to White House explanations of Pentagon budget needs.

Forty-three percent of the Pentagon's 1989 budget will already have been committed, most of it for arms purchases. More than one-third of the current budget is already out of the reach of Congress.

Those figures are from a rare study of Pentagon spending by another executive branch agency — the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis. It offers no conclusions, just a road map of numbers that lead to some consequences still largely unrealized on Capitol Hill.

The study is recommended reading for every member of Congress who has ever considered a "freeze" of Pentagon spending — as if such a thing could still be accomplished.

Defense spending has been growing rapidly since 1976 — faster than the American economy during this decade — and appears to have launched Pentagon policy into a future of seemingly impossible choices.

Analysts say the figures reinforce two conclusions: — Congress — and future defense secretaries — will be forced to face the fact that long-range spending imposed in the early 1980s allows for only limited mid-course corrections. Large-scale tampering, like a sweeping spending freeze, would have disabling repercussions.

—On the other hand, doing nothing means allowing the Pentagon to lock itself, and the nation, into spending more on hardware and less on the manpower, maintenance and operations that the new weapon systems — as well as the old ones — will inevitably require.

That $4 of every $10 in the 1989 defense budget committed in advance, and most of it for military hardware, is "a hideous percentage," according to one budget analyst for a Congressional committee that reviews defense spending. He asked that his name not be used.

Exactly how that $4 will be distributed is classified information. But it will pay for M-1 tanks, Trident and Pershing 2 missiles, Nimitz-class nuclear aircraft carriers and much more already on order.

The B-1 bomber, for example, accounts for about $7.7 billion in defense spending requested by the administration for 1985, the fourth year in a five-year spending plan.

The other $6 does not appear to be enough to meet projected pay raises or necessary maintenance of the new systems, the analyst said.

The reality of defense spending commitments bears little resemblance to what President Reagan described as recently as his broadcast news conference Jan. 9. As he outlined it, the Pentagon resisted budget cuts in the so-called "out years" beyond 1986 only to preserve its options, not because it had already exercised them.

"The Defense Department has come in on its own voluntarily with a bigger cut than had been asked of it for the first year, for 1986," Reagan told reporters and the television cameras. "They point out, and I support them in this very logically, that it is impossible to make a projection over three or five years as to what you will spend in those out years."

As Reagan explained it, the result is a Pentagon poised to meet the uncertainties of the future.

"What if some development on the other side of the ocean absolutely makes it necessary for us to do something that we can't even contemplate now with regard to national security?" Reagan asked, "So all Defense has asked is, do not pin them down to the out years."

If the numbers are to be believed, however, the "out years" beyond 1986 are actually set in concrete in a way unique to the Department of Defense.

To begin with, the Commerce study focuses on actual defense spending, cutting through the often bewildering statistical minefield of appropriations, obligations and outlays Capitol Hill tries to thread every year.

Just as the imposing presence of a recommissioned battleship can be awesome, even for someone who knows nothing about the Navy or 16-inch guns, the size of Pentagon spending increases are impressive, just as numbers.

Double-digit figures that inspire serious consideration include, for example, military equipment spending — up 15.1 percent in 1982 and another 15.3 percent in 1983.

"Those back-to-back growth rates are extraordinary," one of the economists who did the study told United Press International.

A Pentagon spokesman responded: "It's a reflection of a modernization program that this administration has instituted to make up for a decade of neglect." In fact, he said, "It doesn't surprise me that you would find numbers of that magnitude."

The Pentagon "green eye-shade boys" do not challenge the Commerce Department's independently calculated figures, the spokesman said, although they are generally for calendar years rather than the fiscal years used internally.

The study shows that the steep acceleration of defense spending actually began at the end of the Ford administration and that Congress in 1979 and 1980 instigated big increases despite a then-reluctant Carter White House.

On a chart the line representing Pentagon purchasing soars nearly straight up, tracing the silhouette of a mountainside with the foothills anchored in 1976.

Once the Pentagon saw Congress add $28 billion to Carter administration defense appropriations in 1979 and 1980 the military needed no further coaxing, the study indicates.

Congress since 1980 has tried to trim defense spending — if not with a surgeon's skill, at least with less imprecision than used to be typical, trying to dictate in some cases what should be spent and where.

But Congress has still been satisfied to accomplish short-term concessions and has completely ignored the momentum of long-term spending.

The new leadership of the House Armed Services committee and the House Budget Committee could change that.

Significantly Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., the new budget committee chairman, has already chided Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger for claiming to chop defense requests for 1986 when in fact his new "reduced" total threatens to be $20 billion more than Congress granted for 1985.

In 1983, 32 percent of defense outlays were fulfillments of contracts signed years earlier. The study estimates this advance commitment will make up 43 per cent — the Pentagon says 41 percent — of defense spending in fiscal 1989, beginning in October 1988.

David Stockman, the budget director, has been way ahead of Congress so far.

His own computers had already pinpointed the way Defense commitments are piling up several years in the future, the trend the Commerce Department highlighted.

The way Weinberger reacted to Stockman's budget offensive may be repeated with Congress when it finally does catch up.

While Weinberger agreed to cut $8.7 billion, more than Stockman asked for, from the 1986 proposal, Stockman's real target of more than 10 times that amount in 1988 emerged virtually untouched.

The wags said Weinberger must have used a budgetary neutron bomb, designed to kill pay raises but not procurement.

In those rare instances when the Pentagon is forced to accept less money for hardware it does so most often through "stretchouts and slowdowns" in production and delivery, rather than real reductions.

In the real world, when you buy fewer planes, each one gets to be a lot more expensive. The study implies it would be better to choose entire systems to excise and leave the survivors untouched.

As defense spending charts its course for the statistical heavens there is another line forming the other leg of a big "X." It is heading down, with a few abrupt bounces. That line is the economy, measured by its gross national product. The latest bounce represents the current economic expansion.

The lines going in different directions not only show defense spending has been growing faster than the economy in the past four years — no trick during the 1980 and 1981-82 recessions — but suggest it will keep outrunning the economy in the foreseeable future, even if optimistic growth forecasts turn out to be true.

The average year-to-year growth in spending on military equipment since 1976 has been 7.9 percent — including one year, 1978, when spending actually declined. Overall military spending has been averaging a 3.9 percent increase a year.

As spending on hardware has grown, the proportion spent on personnel has had to drop. In 1976 pay for the military was 50 percent of all spending. But pay in 1983 was only 41 percent of the total.

"Unlike other appropriations that are spent in a single year, procurement funds are spent over a much longer time — generally five years, with the highest spending in the middle three years," the report said.

TOO LATE — Emmajan Happoldt of Morganton looks as though was trying to stop the snow with her sign, but in reality she is a school crossing guard and was just doing her job. Schools in western North Carolina have been opening late and dismissing early all week because of snow and ice. (AP Laserphoto)

Crews Restoring Cathedral's Roof As Debate Rages

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

YORK, England (AP) — Nothing can bring back the medieval vaulted roof that crashed in a mass of charred timbers last summer after a lightning bolt set fire to York Minster and set some Anglicans to speculating that the Lord had sent a message to a controversial new bishop.

The controversy over the bishop still rages within the Church of England but, with a mixture of modern skills and ancient crafts, workmen are restoring the ravaged arm of the largest Gothic cathedral in northern Europe, confident that their work too will stand for centuries.

"It will look exactly the same, and be just as beautiful, but nothing like as burnable," says the Dean of York, the Very Rev. John Southgate. "We are determined it will not happen again."

It will take five years and cost the equivalent of $3.9 million to $5.6 million, at current pound-dollar exchange rates, to restore the cathedral. Its construction began in 1220 and finished in 1470, and for 500 years the York Minster has graced the skyline of this historic north England city.

Last July 9, lightning struck. Flames from the south transept licked the 200-foot central tower. The entire cathedral, along with Europe's greatest concentration of medieval stained glass, came within minutes of total devastation.

Three days earlier, the controversial new bishop of Durham, the Rt. Rev. David Jenkins, had been consecrated at York Minster, and the fire caused some conservative members of the Church of England to interpret the thunderbolt as an act of God.

They saw it as divine revenge for the consecration of a bishop who argued that New Testament miracles, including the Resurrection, never happened but are symbols.

The church hierarchy dismissed the act-of-God notion. "I still get an occasional letter saying it was an act of God," says the minister's ebullient dean.

"But then the English are like that. When they don't know whom to blame for something, they blame God — especially the ones who don't believe in him."

The controversy Jenkins aroused rages on within the Anglican Church and its ruling synod has scheduled a debate in February on his pronouncements.

Along with the fire and some bishops' criticism of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government's policies as divisive, it has meant a new high profile for religion from which the Church of England has benefited, some observers feel.

"In a highly secularized, God-indifferent society, all publicity is good publicity." The Times of London's religious affairs correspondent, Clifford Longley, commented recently. In terms of interest aroused, "even the fire was profitable," he said.

A record 2 million tourists visited York Minster in 1983, and Southgate says that since the fire, the numbers have soared. Before Christmas, donations from visitors had outstripped the record $320,000 for the year ending last March.

The south transept, with a temporary plastic sheeting roof, stands encased in miles of scaffolding as craftsmen set to work.

It takes skill and money to restore what one newspaper correspondent, Patrick Heron, called "the greatest, most monumental, yet most delicate masterpiece our forefathers have left us in the entire land."

Insurance will cover virtually all the cost, says the minister's bursar, Col. Ken Johnson, and donations have totalled more than $400,000, about one-third sent by Americans.

There's no lack of loving care either as the minister's 53-member permanent staff tackles what foreman Bob Littlewood calls their greatest challenge.

Littlewood, 53, is the fourth generation of his family to serve as a carpenter at the minster, and the fire was a deep shock to him.

"I wept," he recalled. "The flames were in the main tower and another five minutes (before the south transept roof collapsed) and the whole cathedral would have gone."

Now, vacuum cleaners operated from an hydraulic platform are cleaning up the last of the fire grime.

The minister's 12 carvers are cutting and shaping tons of replacement stonework. Like the wood carvings, the stonework is done by hand using techniques that have not changed in centuries.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - RUDE TRICKSTER RUNS ROLLER COASTER, PREFERS TO TAKE PATRONS FOR A RIDE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Imperiled Pandas

The federal government recently added 46 more domestic and foreign species of animals and plants to the List of Endangered Species. The chief addition was the Giant Panda, found primarily in China. Giant pandas eat mostly bamboo and can weigh as much as 300 pounds. But at birth, a panda is smaller than a mouse and weighs about four ounces. A panda's forepaw has an elongated, padded wristbone which acts as a sixth digit. Pandas use their real "thumbs" as fingers. DO YOU KNOW - What animal does the red, or "lesser," panda resemble?

Underground Leader Says 'No Alternative But To Keep Fighting'

By DANIELA IACONO
GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — Bogdan Lis walks his boxer dog in the woods near his home every day. His quiet reflection is shattered by the crackle of police walkie-talkies.

"He's coming your way," blasts the radio of one of the 20-odd secret policemen who constantly trail Lis. "You take over now."

Lis, a handsome 32-year-old with bright blue eyes, is one of the outlawed Solidarity labor union's top activists.

Once a technician in the Gdansk shipyard, the birthplace of Solidarity, Lis slipped into hiding Dec. 13, 1981, the day Poland's Communist authorities imposed martial law on the country and banned the independent union.

He lived underground for 2½ years, changing apartments every month, working tirelessly for Solidarity's revival. Then police, probably acting on an informer's tip, captured him last June at a summer cottage in northern Poland.

"I was tense when I was in the underground," Lis said at his home in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk, where Solidarity founder Lech Walesa worked with Lis at the shipyard during the rise of Solidarity in the heady summer of 1980.

Walesa returned to his electrician's job after his release from detention under martial law and still works at the yard.

"I was always aware that the secret police could catch me at any time," Lis recalled. "But I feel worse now."

"At least then I could work. Now, to do any work, I have to lose them," Lis said, gesturing with his eyes towards a police car parked outside.

"My house is bugged. My phone is tapped. Nine or 10 police cars follow me everywhere," he said, hunching his shoulders in a resigned shrug.

Lis spent six months in jail after his capture. He was released Dec. 8 in a gesture aimed at persuading the United States to lift sanctions imposed on Poland to protest the martial law clampdown. The Reagan administration removed its objection to Poland's membership in the International Monetary Fund soon after his release.

Lis was the last major Solidarity figure released under the government's general amnesty for political opponents. More than 600 activists were set free under the amnesty, but Solidarity insists some 40 people are still in jail.

When friends first warned Lis of an impending calamity the day martial law was imposed, he said he didn't believe them.

"I was asleep. I hadn't slept for two days and I was exhausted. I told them to go away and leave me alone."

"But they came back. They said there were police everywhere. Suddenly I realized how bad it was."

"I grabbed all the pictures of myself around the house so the police wouldn't be able to identify me. I told my mother what to destroy and I left," he said.

Lis risked visiting his elderly mother only once during his 30 months in hiding. He saw his brother on the street one day, but the two just walked past each other, afraid to attract attention.

Lis said some 40 Solidarity activists are still in the underground, which he described as "very active." He said about 200,000 people, most of whom hold regular jobs and lead normal lives, take part in clandestine operations in their spare time.

"These people work in the underground under pseudonyms so they can't be traced by police," Lis said.

Underground Solidarity publishes some 400 newsletters throughout Poland. Lis said anywhere from a dozen to hundreds of people work on each paper, with work divided into writing, printing, providing supplies and distribution.

The underground also has an extensive communications network that links Polish factories, keeping workers abreast of developments around the country, and maintains ties with trade union organizations outside Poland, Lis said.

A separate security department was established to help activists see their loved ones and to provide security for top-level meetings.

"We have people trailing the police, just like they trail us," Lis said, grinning. Despite tight surveillance of their homes, he said activists managed visits.

"Lots of wives have gotten pregnant while their husbands were in hiding," Lis said with another smile.

"Walesa is a perfect example of how you can get away," he said. "He's the most-trailed man in the movement, but he still makes it to important meetings."

Speaking of his underground days, Lis said "my sphere of activity was communications. I would, for example, establish contact with a group of people with access to a printing press. I had to verify all contacts. I had to check everyone. It was very time-consuming."

In early June, Lis was spending a few days at a summer cottage in northern Poland. He was planning to rest and do a bit of fishing.

"I was in the kitchen when I saw the police running out of the woods," he said. "For a split second, I thought it was a robbery. They were in plain clothes and had guns in their hands, bayonets in their belts and they were wearing bullet-proof vests."

"They burst into the house and yelled 'freeze.' They threw me on the floor and stripped me. They told me to surrender my arms. Of course, I wasn't armed."

He was then hauled off to jail. "They handcuffed my arms behind me to the back of a chair for 20 hours while they interrogated me," Lis said.

He was thrown into a cell in Gdansk with a man serving 13 years for armed assault. Transferred to Warsaw, he shared a cell with two men, one jailed for illegal currency dealings and the other for a bribery charge.

"Political prisoners should be separated from common criminals," Lis said emphatically. "Many of the activists who were jailed were quite young. Their characters weren't formed yet. The exposure to criminals affects them negatively."

Lis said he thought he was released primarily because of Poland's desire for the lifting of U.S. economic sanctions.

"The government thinks the key to the situation in Poland is the lifting of sanctions," Lis said. "But that's just not going to change the situation."

Lis said the Solidarity underground was still fighting for independent trade unionism in Poland.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JAN. 31, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is an extraordinarily good time for you to do anything of a public relations nature, where sales and purchases are concerned, in communicating with other persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get out early and handle your affairs constructively since much can be accomplished today. Handle emergencies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Whatever your aims may be about gaining a greater abundance, you are able to progress at such easily now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You find many ways of gaining personal aims that mean a good deal to you now. Take time to improve health and appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get together with experts and decide upon a new course that can bring you greater success.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Contact your most brilliant friends and together go after the pursuits that most activate you. Be sociable during spare time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Making a good impression on higher-ups with your ability is wise today. Get your credit and public image improved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact those who can further your ambitions and ideas and get fine results. Intuitive capabilities do not work well tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can be very ingenious at business affairs today so handle them as they arise. Take time to please your loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Fast-thinking persons are about today who can give you right answers to any enigmas you may have.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are very good at organization and this is a particularly fine day for such. Handle important business matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go out for the pleasure that is very much on your mind today and dress nicely so you feel more sure of yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get all those duties, both big and small, well-handled at your home today so that everything will function properly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very good at times of emergency and will act very quickly on them. Much logic in this mind that should have the benefit of a fine education. Public speaking should also be taught.

Gas Horror In India Shocks West Virginians

By PAM RAMSEY

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — The repercussions of the world's worst chemical disaster in Bhopal, India, are rumbling through "Chemical Valley," a narrow stretch of Appalachia cradling the Kanawha River and home to more than 20 chemical plants.

Government and health officials were jolted by the knowledge that company and government emergency evacuation plans would be inadequate in the event of a disaster on the scale of the one at Bhopal, where a leak of deadly methyl isocyanate killed more than 2,500 people and injured thousands more.

State Health Director Clark Hansbarger said he doesn't think anyone "is dumb enough now to think there couldn't be a serious accident here."

"All of us now know that 2,000 or 3,000 people can die if you're not prepared. That's the most sobering fact of all," he said.

Union Carbide has shut down the methyl isocyanate unit at its plant in Institute, pending the outcome of its investigation of the Bhopal tragedy. Union Carbide spokesman Dick Henderson said the unit's fate is still "up in the air."

Civic officials are working with the industry to develop a better emergency plan. State legislators are also proposing stricter regulation of the chemical industry, including a "right-to-know" law that would require plants to disclose what materials are being produced and what effects they would have on people.

The chemical industry plays a large role in the economy of the Kanawha Valley, employing 10,000 workers and pumping in an average annual payroll of $312,395,200.

The average worker's salary is $600.76 a week, or $31,239.52 annually, according to the state Department of Employment Security.

While spokesmen for four major chemical companies in the valley believe their plants have good safety records, they say the Bhopal tragedy has made them re-evaluate their emergency procedures.

"We believe we have very good safety procedures in effect," said Scarlet Foster, spokeswoman for Monsanto Co.'s Nitro plant. "However, in light of the Union Carbide incident, we are conducting two reviews."

On Dec. 13, Monsanto named a task force of top corporate officials out of St. Louis to review safety policies in the company's plants worldwide. Foster said the Nitro plant also appointed a senior engineer to review emergency procedures "to see if anything is missing."

FMC Corp. is "definitely" reviewing all existing safety programs, said Victor Carroll, materials manager for the South Charleston plant. FMC also operates a plant in Nitro.

Bob Porter, plant manager for Du Pont's Belle plant, said the company is involved in a continuing review of its procedures to see how things can be done better.

In a poll conducted by the Charleston Gazette, 77.9 percent of the 497 respondents said they did not believe they were adequately informed about what to do in the event of a serious gas leak. More than 60 percent said they believed there could be a disaster in Kanawha County on the same scale as Bhopal.

But for those who work in or live near the plants, it is still business as usual.

"It's just a part of life," said Shirley Rutledge of Belle. "I don't worry about it. I'm used to it."

"It's bad when something like that happens," she said of Bhopal. "But when you've lived here a long time, it (the possibility of a leak) just becomes a way of life."

Du Pont's plant means work for many of the town's 1,621 residents. "You have to work. You can't just lay off hundreds of people. You're going to die of something, eventually," said Stella Jarvis, another Belle resident.

Union Carbide's employees are optimistic about the future.

"There is a good safety record at Institute," said Dick James, business representative of Local 656, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, which represents about 900 Union Carbide workers at the Institute plant.

James said the workers at first could not understand why Union Carbide would shut down its MIC unit at Institute.

"We all felt confident with the equipment and the process. But after hearing (Union Carbide Chairman Warren) Anderson's explanation, it seemed reasonable and we didn't offer any objections," James said.

Two West Virginia state senators are working on a "right-to-know" law that would require the chemical industry to disclose the types of materials it produces, their effects on people, and the routes and containers used to transport the materials.

There is some dispute about how cooperative the industry has been in previous efforts to establish such laws and to police plant safety.

The process of re-evaluation began throughout the chemical industry "almost immediately" after Bhopal, said Geraldine Cox, vice president and technical director for the Chemical Manufacturers Association.

"I know of one company that sent out telegrams right after it happened telling its people to go back and look at the safety procedures. It said it didn't care how good they thought the procedures were," Cox said.

Cox said the industry believes there now will be a push for more regulation. What concerns her, she said, "is that it will be a lot of rules which don't really address specific problems."

The industry does not oppose "right-to-know," education or training laws, she said. "But we do want conformity throughout the country."

However, Perry Bryant of the West Virginia Citizens Action Group disputed Cox's assertion concerning "right-to-know" legislation or required posting of hazardous chemicals used in the work place.

"The Chemical Manufacturers Association consistently fought both issues tooth and nail," Bryant said, adding that he still hopes his group and the industry can work together.

A variety of chemicals are produced in the valley. A spokesman for the West Virginia Manufacturers Association listed hydrogen peroxide, chlorine, caustic soda, chlorine dry bleach, vinyl resins, organic chemicals, muriatic acid and methyl chloride as examples. The chemicals are used to make a variety of products, including abrasives, fertilizer, insecticides, plastics and synthetic fibers.

"You can't ignore what happened in Bhopal. We have some responsibility to ensure that it doesn't happen here," said Senate Majority Leader Si Boettner. He and Sen. Tod Kaufman are working on the "right-to-know" legislation.

"People do have a right to know what they are being exposed to in their environment," Boettner said.

"We definitely have to realize the tremendous contribution of the chemical industry to West Virginia," he said. "We don't want to create an unnecessary burden on them. But there are 250,000 to 300,000 people living here in the valley who would be exposed to a leak."

While concern over the possibility of a sudden, dangerous gas cloud has taken center stage, the chemical plants release tons of pollutants into the air each year.

State figures for 1981, for instance, show Union Carbide's Institute plant emitted about 2,000 tons of pollutants and about 9,077 tons of combustion products.

Latest available figures show the Kanawha Valley has a cancer death rate of 217.9 per 100,000 population, compared with a state average of 204.2 and a national average of 188.6.

But even Bryant is reluctant to tie the cancer death rate to the chemical industry. He said there are too many other factors to consider, including lifestyles.

Still, some chemical workers themselves have blamed their employers for ill health. Monsanto Co. is being sued for millions of dollars by former workers who claim they suffer illnesses from working with 2,4,5-T — once used to make the chemical defoliant Agent Orange.

Residents of the valley are used to living with the odors and haze that accompany some of the chemical plants, and they are not strangers to chemical accidents. Many complain about residues that eat the paint on their cars and cause their pets to become ill.

Mannie Griffith, director of the state Office of Emergency Services, said Bhopal has given state officials "a rude awakening" that existing emergency plans were inadequate.

For instance, there are no arrangements for notifying and evacuating the elderly and the handicapped. Kanawha County Emergency Services Director Bill White said his office is working on the problem, which he admits is "a nightmare."

"Our job is to warn, after that you're on your own. We can't be everywhere at once and it takes us time to get there once we know there is a problem," he said.

Although emergency evacuation plans do exist, many residents near the plants were unaware of them.

"We are now looking at improving our emergency systems and our outreach programs for the public, such as having town meetings to tell the people what to do in case of an emergency," Griffith said.

But, like other officials, Griffith worries about losing jobs:

"We don't want to create situations where we would deter industry from coming into the state. I'd hate to see the Legislature come up with laws so stringent a company would choose, say, Colorado over us."

Global Issues Do Touch Home

By DONALD H. MAY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — At first glance, there is little connection between the 41,000 citizens of Hattiesburg, Miss. — which could be almost any small American city — and the struggling billions of the developing world.

But the two vastly different worlds are, in fact, highly dependent on each other — and the multibillion-dollar U.S. trade losses of the past few years boil down to real products and people when applied to Hattiesburg.

The Third World connections of this one town in the southern Mississippi pine belt were documented in a series of stories published in the Hattiesburg American (daily circulation 25,000) last November.

The project was the brainchild of John Hamilton, North American media adviser at the World Bank, whose job includes traveling around the country and Canada talking to reporters and local groups about this continent's stake in global economic development.

Hamilton sees it, economic independence has received only sporadic coverage by American news organizations. Journalists, in turn, often say readers aren't interested in the Third World.

Columnist James Reston once said, "Americans will do anything for Latin America except read about it."

To disprove that adage, Hamilton, once a reporter for the Milwaukee Journal, proposed an experiment. He would take a month's leave from the bank, find a smallish newspaper somewhere in the country and working with the paper's reporters, do a series of articles on the Third World ties of one community.

Frank Sutherland, editor of the American, accepted the offer, telling Hamilton, "Well, I'd be glad to take a risk trying to do this experiment. But I'm not sure that there are very many stories here."

It turned out there were more stories than either of them expected. Among them:

— Soybean farmer Joe Morgan had never tasted soy sauce, but shipped virtually all of his crop to the Pascagoula waterfront for export to Asia, Africa and Latin America. This export market has declined 20 percent in the last two years.

— The town's biggest business, the University of Southern Mississippi, last year had 280 foreign students, almost all from the Third World.

— A recently opened local plant expected to export 60 percent of its wood pulp production, one-third of that to developing countries.

— The U.S. Agency for International Development awarded a local company a $60,000 contract to make firefighting equipment for use in Thailand.

— Local churches were raising money for famine relief in Africa.

"I thought it worked out far better than I ever expected," Sutherland said. "What it did demonstrate very forcefully was that there are a lot more connections between an area such as Hattiesburg and the Third World than anyone would ever think of."

"We don't live in just the state of Mississippi. The fortunes of South Mississippi are closely tied to what goes on in the rest of the world."

When you have the guarded queen of trumps in one hand and jack-third in the other, it is not too much to expect to take a trick. But watch what happened on this hand from the Fall North American Championships in San Diego.

North's third-hand opening bid of one club does not meet with our unalloyed approval. However, chances are that North-South would have ended in exactly the same spot had North passed originally.

Against two spades West, Adam Wildansky, led the two of diamonds. East, Mike Massimilla, won the ace and returned the queen to declarer's king. Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and entered dummy with a diamond ruff to run the queen of hearts, discarding a club from hand.

West won the king of hearts and shifted to the jack of clubs. Declarer rose with the table's ace, cashed the jack of hearts for another club ruff and ruffed a heart in hand. He ruffed a diamond in dummy to reduce the hand to this ending:

No matter how declarer proceeds, he must lose the rest of the tricks! He chose to lead a club, won by the king. East continued with his remaining club, and it made no difference how high declarer ruffed. West would overruff the last two trump tricks. Try it—we didn't believe it either!

Campbell Plans Pharmacy School

RALEIGH (AP) — Campbell University has announced plans to establish a school of pharmacy, which school officials say they hope will help abate the shortage of professional pharmacists in North Carolina.

University President Norman A. Wiggins said the pharmacy school will offer the Doctor of Pharmacy degree and admit its charter class in August 1986.

Citing other reasons for Campbell's creation of a pharmacy school, Wiggins said North Carolina — which has four medical schools — has just one pharmacy school.

"Our intention is to build a program of high quality and unique purpose which is compatible with Campbell's Christian liberal arts tradition and the church's role in evangelism, missions, education and worship," Wiggins said.

The announcement was made to the Council on Christian Higher Education of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina in Raleigh.

Strike Violence

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Soldiers and riot police broke up scattered disturbances during a 24-hour strike protesting sharp price increases for food and fuel.

Dozens of arrests were reported as bands of young demonstrators burned piles of used tires and blocked streets in poor sections of the capital city. Protests were reported in at least three other cities, but police Col. Norbo Antonio Perez said security forces were in control of the situation.

Toll Rises
 BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The Civil Defense Bureau says the death toll has risen to 122 in three southeastern states ravaged by rain and floods for a month, and more than 45,000 people have been left homeless.
 Torrential downpours and overflowing rivers have buried vast areas of farmland and inundated 193 towns and villages in an area of about 35,000 square miles, roughly the size of the state of Maine, bureau official Alfredo Oliveira said.

LOWE'S GOES THE EXTRA YARD...

Just For You!

10% PRICE GUARANTEE

Lowe's guarantees that our prices are the lowest in town. If you find an identical item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price. PLUS give you an additional 10% off the difference between the two prices. The item must be identical. Close-out, discontinued, and clearance items are excluded from this offer.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEE

Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

RAINCHECKS

If an advertised item is temporarily out of stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued or close-out). When we restock, you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items, but every item shown can be ordered for you.

CREDIT CARDS

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT

Just present your Visa, American Express, or MasterCard, and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's Card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with minimum delay.) Ask a Lowe's salesperson for complete details.

10% Price Guarantee Policy:

Lowe's guarantees that our prices are the lowest in town. If you find an identical item at any retail competitor currently priced lower than ours, simply bring us written proof of that price. We'll match that price PLUS give you an additional 10% of the difference between the two prices. The item must be identical. Closeout, discontinued and other clearance type sale items are excluded from this offer.

Satisfaction Guaranteed Policy: Lowe's guarantees that you will be satisfied with your purchase. If you are not completely happy with your purchase, simply return it along with your original sales receipt to any Lowe's store. We'll repair it, replace it, or refund your money.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If an advertised item is temporarily out-of-stock, we will gladly issue a raincheck (except for items marked limited quantities, discontinued, or closeout). When we restock, you will be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price. Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items; however, every item shown can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this catalog are accompanied by a reference retail price. The reference is intended as a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area, and may be useful in identifying different items from the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail value based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that the reference retail prices described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a better informed buying decision. We suggest you also do comparative shopping. Prices in this catalog do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.

What do WINN-DIXIE's 10,000 low prices mean to you?

When WINN-DIXIE reduces food prices, we don't do it small scale. Now, we've got 10,000 everyday low shelf prices in each store. Unbeatable prices that are reflected in lower food bills for you. And that means everyday, WINN-DIXIE helps keep your food bills low. As low as Food Lion. Or Lower.

PLUS WEEKLY SPECIALS. WINN-DIXIE still gives you super weekly specials. Specials that trim even more off your weekly grocery bill. Add to that our W-D Brand U.S. Choice beef, Harvest Fresh produce, and carry-out service, and you'll find we're unbeatable!

WINN-DIXIE's taken the plunge. We've lowered our prices so even the ex-low price leaders can't beat them. Not now. Not tomorrow. Not ever. It's guaranteed. And the W-D Price Printout in every WINN-DIXIE confirms it. The bottom line is WINN-DIXIE helps you get the lowest food bill possible.

PICK UP YOUR FREE W-D PRICE PRINTOUT. The W-D Price Printout is a computer-generated list of over 10,000 of WINN-DIXIE's everyday low shelf prices. Copies of printouts are available at every store. Come by and get one. Take it to Food Lion and compare it. If you find a regular shelf price that is lower, tell our Store Manager. Once it's verified, we'll match it! Or beat it!
