Leading Indicators Saw Unexpected Decline

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main gauge of future economic activity edged down in December, turning in a disappointing performance despite a variety of positive signals throughout most of the economy.

The Commerce Department reported today that its Index of Leading Economic Indicators dropped 0.2 percent last month.

In addition, the department revised the November gain to just 0.6 percent. It had originally reported that the index had risen more than twice that amount — 1.3 percent — in November.

The December decline had not been expected by most analysts, many of whom were predicting an increase of about 0.5 percent. Private economists were basing this expectation on a variety of business barometers all pointing to an economy that rebounded sharply late last year from a four-month slump.

The decline in the index came despite the fact that the government last week boosted its estimate of overall growth. The increase in the gross national product — the total output of goods and services — was put at a rate of 3.9 percent for the final three months of the year.

This represented a sharp increase from the original estimate and was also more than twice the rate of growth during the July-September period, when the economy grew at a sluggish 1.6 percent.

The GNP was not the only economic indicator pointing to a sharp rebound in the economy in the final months of the year. Factory production registered its sharpest gain in five months in December and Americans' personal income rose a strong 0.5 percent in December.

But the Commerce Department said that the elements that go into making up its Leading Economic Index turned in a weak performance. The index is made up of a dozen measurements selected because of their ability to signal future trends in economic activity.

A single month's decline is not taken as significant. But a decline for three straight months has often signaled an impending recession. The index did decline in three consecutive months in 1984, dropping in June, July and August.

However, after strong gains in September and November, most analysts said that fears of a recession in 1985 were unwarranted. This optimism was backed up by a host of other signals showing strong gains in consumer and business spending in the final months of last year.

The department said that five of the 11 indicators available for December contributed to the decline. The biggest negative factor was contributed by a slump in new contracts and orders for plant and equipment followed by a decline in net business formation.

Other negative factors were the rate at which companies receive products from their suppliers, a drop in stock prices in December and a decline in building permits.

Six of the 11 indicators showed gains but the strength was not enough to offset the declines. The biggest positive factors were contributed by an increase in the money supply during December and growth in the average workweek.

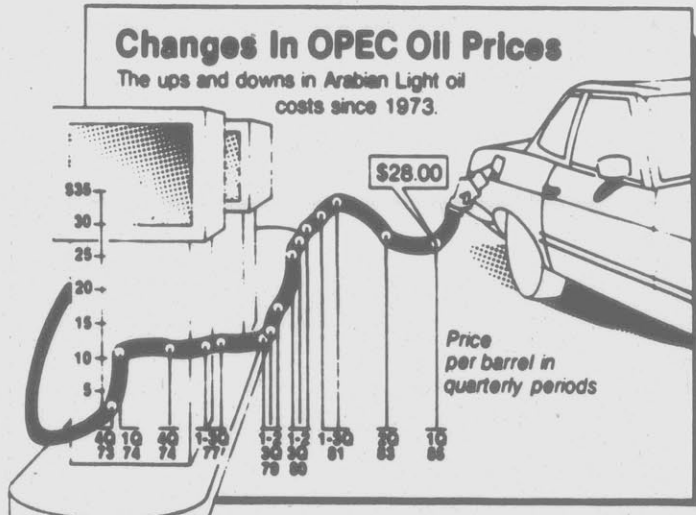

Other positive factors were a drop in average weekly initial unemployment claims, an increase in orders for manufactured consumer goods, growth in credit and a change in prices for sensitive materials.

The total effect left the index at 164.9 percent of its 1967 base in December. In November, the index stood at 165.2 percent of its 1967 base.

With the various positive signals, most talk of a recession this year has evaporated. However, economists have expressed concern about one big cloud on the horizon — the country's worsening foreign trade problems.

The government reported Wednesday that the trade deficit for all of 1984 totaled a record $123.3 billion with imports rising 26 percent above the 1983 level.

Without the flood of American dollars going overseas, economic growth in this country would be even stronger, analysts said. However, the trade deficit has kept the inflation rate down as American manufacturers are forced to hold the line on price hikes in an effort to keep from losing even more ground to cheaper-priced foreign goods.

Analysts See No Gas Savings Now From OPEC's Price Cuts

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers are unlikely to reap any immediate savings at the gas pump as a result of OPEC's latest price cuts, but the odds favor further price relief in the years ahead, analysts said.

The analysts also said the trend to lower oil prices will continue to hold down inflation while stimulating economic growth. And a drop in prices for imported oil will help reduce the nation's foreign trade deficit, which soared to a record $123.3 billion last year.

The United States counts on OPEC for about 13 percent of all its oil needs and about 40 percent of all imports.

After an acrimonious three-day meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, ministers of nine of the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed Wednesday to cut some prices and raise others. Four other ministers said their countries would go their own way.

Shiek Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, estimated the net effect would be a 29-cent drop in the average OPEC price, to $27.96 a barrel of the participating producers.

"The whole thing is still a house of cards," said Stephen Smith, an oil specialist at the private consulting firm of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass. "There is at least a 50 percent chance of a controlled erosion of prices over the next two to three years."

But for the time being, analysts said consumers, who have enjoyed savings from earlier price cuts by such OPEC competitors as Britain, Norway, Canada and U.S. oil companies, should not expect OPEC's action to send prices even lower.

"OPEC was responding to conditions on the open market, rather than leading the way," said Philip Verleger Jr., an oil industry analyst in Washington for the private consulting firm of Charles River Associates.

The average price of a gallon of gasoline has fallen 5.3 cents in the past three months as world oil prices have slumped, according to a recent nationwide survey conducted by Dan Lundberg, a Los Angeles gasoline price consultant.

He said despite the reductions, OPEC's official prices were still higher than terms available on the open market and that he doubted OPEC's cuts would solve the cartel's problems. "Nobody's going to buy at these prices, just as no one's bought at the official prices for a long time," he said.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

LET US KNOW NIGHT BEFORE

I appreciate the Hotline item published Wednesday about why the Pitt County Schools don't do a better job of letting people know whether there will be school or not the next day during icy or snowy weather. And I'd add a request: My wife leaves for work at 6:15 every morning and I soon afterward. We really need to know the night before whether our child is going to school or whether we have to make other arrangements. I request that the county school system change its policy of sending people out at 4 a.m. to check the roads. Send them out the night before and let people know before a reasonable bedtime what the schedule is going to be the next day. There may be times when a storm blows in in the middle of the night and the first announcement in the morning might be necessary. But most of the time I think the Pitt County superintendent can make the decision the night before just like the officials of many of the other school systems in the region do. T.F.

HOUND HIT

The Pitt County Humane Society has asked Hotline to appeal to whoever lost an 8-10-month-old hound in the Grimesland area call Bobbie Parsons, Humane Society president, 756-1268. The dog has been hit by a car, has two legs broken and needs surgery. If the owner is not found, the Humane Society would appreciate donations for this dog's veterinary care. Contact Bobbie Parsons, Route 9, Box 495, Greenville.

Board Delays School Bill

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners postponed action Wednesday on proposed legislation to create a single school system in the county after a group of about 35 citizens voiced concerns over the measure.

In delaying action on the proposed bill, which has been approved by the Pitt and Greenville schools consolidation committee, commissioners said they may hold a public hearing before taking further action.

The proposed bill, which would create a single school system in the county, outlines the steps needed to consolidate the Pitt County and Greenville city school systems, and the makeup, terms of office and election of a board of education to govern the new system.

The board of commissioners and both the city and county boards of education must give their approval before it can be introduced in the General Assembly.

One spokesman for the citizens, Bobby Hazelton of Cherry Oaks, told commissioners "we are here today to request of you ... ask that the citizens of Pitt County be allowed to vote" on the question of school merger.

Hazelton, who said he has "in excess of 3,000 signatures" on petitions requesting a referendum on the question of merger said "My request to you is please let the people vote on it."

"Given a fair amount of time," Hazelton said, "we can get you any number of signatures you want."

"We're not willing to sacrifice a good system for who knows what," he added.

Willie Wallace, chairman of the Belvoir school advisory committee said "so many people are in the dark about this merger ... the only fair way is to let the people vote." He suggested that if commissioners don't call for a referendum on the question "you won't get my vote again. Put this before the people for a vote."

Officials Tour Local Facilities

Several elected city officials and members of the Greenville Utilities Commission toured municipal facilities with city manager Gail Meeks Wednesday.

While on the tour, Mrs. Meeks pointed out a number of the city's ongoing and future projects to GUC board members Bill Taft Jr., Fred Robbins and Andy Warren, and council members Louis Clark, Stuart Shinn, and Mayor Pro Tem Ed Carter.

Top city projects, Mrs. Meeks said, include installation of a traffic light at the intersection of Red Banks Road and Arlington Boulevard and relocation of the Gardner Fire/Rescue Station from Brownlea Drive (off 14th Street) to land recently purchased by the city located at the corner of N.C. 43 and Redbanks Road.

Traffic light installation at the "dangerous intersection" should be complete within the next 45 to 60 days, Mrs. Meeks said, and relocation of the fire/rescue station is slated for fiscal year 1986-87.

Plans are also in the works to construct new fire/rescue headquarters on West Fifth Street within the next five to 10 years to house rapidly expanding fire/rescue operations, the city manager reported. A training facility will also be constructed at the West Fifth Street site which is located next to the downtown Carolina Telephone building.

Inadequate space is also beginning to pose problems at City Hall, Mrs. Meeks said. However, it will be another 10 years before before the city is in a position to address construction of a new municipal building, she said. City Hall currently houses some city and all police personnel and was built in 1936.

Building improvements scheduled for the current and upcoming year include renovations to make all city facilities meet state handicapped accessibility standards. These improvements, projected to cost approximately $300,000, have to be done, Mrs. Meeks said, by October 1986.

Recreation is also one of the city's major concerns, Mrs. Meeks told those on the tour. She said funds are included in the city's 1984-85 fiscal budget for construction of five to six pods (small octagonal buildings) at River Park North to house science and nature exhibits. One of the buildings, she added, will serve as a planetarium and will be equipped

Proper Ways Of Asking Strange Women To Dance

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were sitting at a small table at this public nightclub when a strange man asked her three times to dance. She refused, but the fourth time he asked, she accepted. (He didn't acknowledge me at all.)

My wife danced maybe three steps with him when he asked her if she would dance with his friend. Before she had a chance to answer, he motioned to his friend who had been watching from the sidelines. He came out on the floor and my wife was handed over to dance with this second stranger.

They danced the entire set (about 15 minutes), after which my wife was left standing in the middle of the floor while the man walked off the floor alone.

I was very angry, and told my wife that she showed a lack of respect for herself and for me. She didn't see anything wrong with it.

Abby, please explain to my wife how she was rude to me, and how these two men were rude to both of us. My wife doesn't understand how she and both these strangers should have behaved if any of them had any manners. Thank you.

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: Stranger No. 1 should have approached your table, introduced himself and asked your permission to dance with your wife. Then you should have asked your wife if she wanted to dance with him. If she did, fine. He should not have handed the lady over to his friend without first asking the lady's permission. After the dance was finished, Stranger No. 2 should have escorted your wife to her table, thanked you and then departed.

DEAR ABBY: I'm so upset I can't sleep nights. I'm a 50-year-old woman, divorced for eight years, living alone and supporting myself. A year ago I met the man of my dreams. He really made my life worth living and is the kind of lover every woman dreams about.

Well, I made two mistakes. The first was telling my best friend that the new man in my life was the kind of lover every woman dreams about. And the second mistake was introducing her to him.

You guessed it. My best friend fell for him, and now she has him. I had to get this off my chest. It might help somebody.

LOST HIM

DEAR LOST: If you lost him, you never really had him. Consider yourself lucky to have discovered the superficiality of your best friend's loyalty. Write them both off; you can do better on both counts.

***

DEAR ABBY: Please put in a good word for the people who have "No Soliciting" signs posted on their front doors.

We have one on our front door, but almost every day someone ignores it and tries to say something. After pointing out the sign that clearly reads "No Soliciting," you should hear some of the excuses we get!

Two missionaries said, "We're not selling anything—we just want a donation."

A college girl selling magazine subscriptions said, "I saw the sign, but didn't think it meant me."

Several people said they didn't see it. (It's big as life, posted at eye level right in the middle of the front door.)

The best one yet was the man who said, "I thought it said 'No Smoking!'"

Thanks, Abby. If this makes your column, I am going to frame it to hang on my front door!

SICK OF SOLICITORS

DEAR SICK: Save your money. Solicitors who ignore your "No Soliciting" sign will also ignore this—framed or not.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Back in the 1950s, when cakes made with oil began to gain popularity, an excellent cook developed a recipe for an oil cake that was studded with prunes and nuts and flavored with spice. She served the dessert two ways. Sometimes she offered it with lemon sauce. And, on occasion, she gave the cake a caramel glaze.

Recently another good cook developed a recipe for a similar prune cake. But she treated her cake in a new way by splitting it horizontally and sandwiching the layers together with a sweet and creamy filling. For a garnish she nestled pitted prunes on dollops of the Filling. If this topping interests you, you might like to steep the prunes in sherry, tea liqueur, brandy or bourbon before using.

PRUNE SPICE CAKE

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
  - 1 teaspoon baking soda
  - 3 teaspoons ground allspice
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 1/2 cups firmly packed light brown sugar
  - 1 cup buttermilk
  - 1 cup vegetable oil
  - 3 large eggs
  - 1 cup pitted prunes (about 6 ounces), coarsely chopped
  - 1 cup walnuts (about 4 ounces), coarsely chopped
- Filling, recipe follows
Confectioners' sugar
6 whole pitted prunes

Grease and flour a 10-inch tube pan.

In a large bowl stir together flour, soda, allspice and salt. Thoroughly stir in brown sugar. Add buttermilk, oil and eggs. Beat until blended. Fold in prunes and walnuts.

Pour into prepared tube pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 60 to 70 minutes. Cool in pan on rack for 15 minutes.

With a small metal spatula loosen edges and around tube. Turn out onto a wire rack; cool completely.

With a long sharp knife, cut cake in half horizontally. Place bottom half on a serving plate; spread evenly with Filling, reserving about 1/4 cup. Top with remaining cake half; dust with confectioners' sugar.

Arrange 6 dollops of the reserved Filling at even intervals on top of cake. Insert a whole pitted prune in each dollop.

Filling: Beat together one 8-ounce package cream cheese (softened), 1 1/4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Something has got to be done about homework in this country. Parents just can't handle it anymore. Most of them have tried to keep up with technology, but things are moving too fast. A woman I know who is a secretary in an insurance office said, "I have a limited knowledge of computers, but in another year, I'll be left behind." Her son is 12.

This is a major blow to parenting. It has always been one of our more powerful weapons of respect. You show me a mother who knew how to conjugate verbs and I'll show you a mother who could get her garbage taken out for the next ten years. In our neighborhood, homework was a status thing among parents. I would say to my neighbor, "What did you get on your essay on Thoreau?"

"B plus, and you?"
"I got a B, BUT there was also a note in the margin, 'Shows creativity and depth.'"

"What about the math homework?" she asked.

"Not as well, HOWEVER, my science project was displayed at Open House. I used lace doilies for the volcano."

"I saw it," she said. "Too bad the dry ice melted."

Homework was one of the few areas where we could show off in front of our children. We needed all the esteem we could get.

As the years went by, it got tougher and tougher. I sensed I had peaked one day when I volunteered to test 5th-graders on their reading ability. I had no idea how to thread the tape into the machine. (My ironing board has been up for 13 years because I didn't know how to get it down.) I assigned the job to a student as a "learning experience."

I was to click the button when everyone had read a paragraph.

When I noticed students engaging in conversation, tying their shoes and asking permission to go to the bathroom, I realized I was the last one to finish. THEY WERE WAITING FOR ME.

Eventually, my children informed me if I didn't stop helping them with their homework, they wouldn't graduate until they were 35. That hurt, but it was a reality.

I feel sorry for today's parents. Their time for homework is limited. Fingers as a counting tool have become obsolete. Technology has catapulted their children into the 21st century.

Imagine the poor father who said to his five-year-old the other day, "Wanta see Daddy blow out the the traffic light and make it turn green?"

The kid said, "If your breathing apparatus is in sync with the timer connected to the lighting system that operates from the central computer downtown, you can do it, but it's no big deal!"

Car keys. It's all we got left for leverage.

Artist's Unusual Works Produced To Help Others

By SANDY BROWN
Brainerd Daily Dispatch
NISSWA, Minn. (AP) — Ellen Mueller, a Nisswa painter, sculptor, poet, fabric artist, photographer, instrumentalist, singer and dancer, doesn't use her gifts for her own profit.

Her only goal is making people happy, she says.

"My art is minor," she said in a recent interview at her home overlooking Gull Lake. "The greatest art is the art of loving people."

Right now, she's sending most of the proceeds from her art work to a country pastor who lives in the mountains of Haiti in the Caribbean. Ms. Mueller lived in that oppressed country for nearly two years herself, helping Nobel Peace Prize winner Mother Teresa care for starving families.

A therapist on a medical leave from her job, Ms. Mueller spends most of her waking hours painting outdoor scenes on antique farm implements — especially saws, gaining the nickname "Sawladay."

She also does her acrylic paint designs on such unlikely items as skis, shoes, frypans, washboards, bedpans, canoe paddles and bowling balls. On commission, of course.

Her fees are nominal. "I don't believe in charging much for my work," she said. "I like to help the people who ordinarily wouldn't be able to buy expensive art."

The most unusual item she's ever painted, Ms. Mueller said, was a radiator frame from a 1929 Buick. That now hangs in an auto dealership in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

"I enjoy doing antiques, things you see at rummage sales or lying around in the weeds," she said.

"I find fantastic beauty in a junkyard. I say to myself, 'this stuff has got to be preserved — there's artistic value in this.' Then after I paint it, it's preserved for another 100 years."

"People say I have hungry eyes. It's a gift of the Lord. I see things a lot of people don't see — and I try to help people see beyond the surface. There's beauty in everything, if you only look for it. Especially in people."

Born and reared in Little Falls, Ms. Mueller traveled a long way before returning to the area.

In 1973, she moved to what she describes as a "Civil War cabin in Arkansas, in the Ozark Mountains." She was hired to tend goats at a ranch, through the Arkansas Tourism Department.

"I was known as the Goat Girl there," Ms. Mueller said. "Now I'm the Sawladay."

At night, she performed as a folk dancer and ballad singer at the Ozark Folk Center, along with several favorites from the musical television series "Hee Haw."

She noted that she fit right in and was accepted by the local folk, whom she calls hill people.

"They couldn't believe that I knew all their songs," she said. "I learned them first from my mother's little songbook right here in Minnesota. I was little — about 3 years old. She would sing, and I would follow along in the book with my finger.

"I love folk — 40-year-old folk songs and stories of folk. They tell history. Nothing has really changed. We're just the latest folk."

Ms. Mueller lived in Haiti from 1981 to 1982. Since art materials were scarce there, she relied on her camera for creative fulfillment.

She has volumes of photographs which are not only striking in their technical excellence, but are poignant as well. Faces of bitterly hungry people, young and old, are captured in intense expressions.

Ms. Mueller also wrote a book of poetry from her Haitian experience, entitled "Ba Meve" (Give Me) in that country's language.

In 1983, she moved to a log cabin in Garrison, where she lived for a time, moving to her Nisswa home last year.

School Reforms Will Come Early

Coincidence

It was a rare coincidence two stories on the activities of Vernon White were prominently featured Jan. 27 in The Daily Reflector.

One had to do with White's varied roles of serving his community, his state and his country. At age 78 he has much to look back upon with satisfaction and much to look forward to accomplishing.

Over the years he has been a farmer, teacher, agriculturist, worked for the Farm Security Administration, an involved churchman, a recreation commission member in Winterville, a county commissioner, eight terms in the N.C. Senate and a trustee of Pitt Community College since its conception.

During his service in the Legislature his interests in education, agriculture and mental health reflected the fields which to him were plainly big priorities for the future.

Vernon White will continue to farm. He said he would; and we are reminded that "once a farmer, always a farmer." He will also remain involved in community work.

There is still another continuing interest. In Sunday's second story, the Grimes Plantation (which took shape in the 18th century) and lore of the Grimes family appear more than a hobby to White. Over the years he has been involved in restoration of the Grimes Plantation House.

When complete, the restoration will be a valued historic and cultural link to eastern North Carolina's past.

The broad fields of interest manifest in White's past and present are in themselves worthy of special note. So, too, are his varied roles of serving a multitude of friends, neighbors and thousands who know of the man only by name and repute.

Loophole

This country probably has some of the most conscientious guardians of the president that are to be found anywhere, but somehow their expertise at times acquires a bit of tarnish. The unexpected does that to the best.

Take for instance the story of Robert Latta, a meter reader for the Denver (Colo.) Water Board.

Latta, a vacationer, simply trailed along with a Marine band as it entered the White House for the inauguration ceremony. He was eventually found seated in the dining room of the Reagans' second-floor family quarters.

You can count on it, nobody will ever again win entry to the White House by following the Marine Band ... or any other invited organization. That door is closed to Mr. Latta, as well as any stray evil-doers.

Maybe the Secret Service should add a note of appreciation to the unwelcome guest along with the reprimands or whatever he is dealt by a District of Columbia court. After all, he did show them a loophole in their security; and the loophole (hopefully) no longer exists.

—Michael Putzel—

Rules Allow Dangerous Exemptions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service has gone to extraordinary lengths in recent years to tighten its security net around the president.

Given the near tragedy four years ago in which President Reagan and three men with him were shot and seriously wounded by a would-be assassin, and recognizing the rising toll of international terrorists, the inclination of Congress and the public has been to approve whatever new security measures might help.

But rank still has its privileges, and not all citizens are subjected to the same standard of search. That was demonstrated, fortunately without exacting a painful price, by the startling breach of White House security disclosed this week.

The meticulously landscaped and proudly manicured lawns surrounding the executive mansion now are ringed by ugly gray concrete slabs to bar would-be suicide bombers from crashing through iron fences or reinforced steel gates that keep the public — respectful or otherwise — at a safe distance.

Computer-linked sensors developed with the latest electronic technology feel, smell and probe the darkness for any hint of intrusion.

Snipers in arctic fur or tropical fatigues brave the coldest winds of winter and steaming, stagnant heat of Washington's notorious summer to peer from the rooftop for any sign of danger.

Reporters who have spent their careers in the company of presidents now must submit their persons and even their brown-bag lunches to being searched before they may enter the White House grounds or even travel on an aircraft that accompanies — but doesn't carry — the president.

New reporters are allowed in once, then aren't permitted back for weeks or months until their names finally are recorded in some mysterious "card file," for which the entry requirements remain obscure.

During last year's campaign, placards on sticks carried by protesters were confiscated to prevent their owners from using the sticks as weapons to attack the president.

Yet, on Jan. 20, when security in the capital was at its tightest ever, a 45-year-old Denver man with no appointment, pass or permission slipped through the security screen. He walked past several guard posts inside the mansion. Finally he was spotted by an usher and whisked away by uniformed guards. A briefcase he was carrying was never put through an X-ray machine or metal detector.

It was sheer luck that his only apparent intention was to see Ronald Reagan sworn to a second term rather than to prevent the president from ever taking that oath.

The Secret Service, with un concealed embarrassment, admitted the latest slip — but only after reports of the incident reached newspapers more than a week after the incident.

It was apparent from the explanations offered that for all the attention to the perceived dangers of nearly new and veteran journalists, to demonstrators carrying signs with only safe but also "effective" if they are to be marketed in interstate commerce. No one reasonably could object to the government's requirement of safety, there isn't any conservative position that defends cyanide in cough syrup. But conservatives for years have objected to this business of letting the government decree "effectiveness" also.

Mind you, I am not writing a brief for any particular aphrodisiac or cure for baldness. To the best of my knowledge, the FDA's expert panels were exactly right in saying that all these things are junk. The experts on baldness said flatly that "nothing done to the hair shaft once it emerges from the surface of the scalp will influence the hair growth." The experts on sex said that sexual arousal can't be bottled or put into pills, True, all true.

But a small, still voice says — but. The small, still voice says that experts are not infallible, that the history of medicine is in part the history of medical blunders, and that much of the healing art is in the mind. The small, still voice says that experts should be humble, that they should allow for the likely possibility that they may be wrong, and that even the best experts cannot know the infinite forms and conditions of mankind.

In brief, I raise again the same arguments I raised with such eloquence and futility when Laetrile was much in the news. The probabilities are a million-to-1 that Laetrile is no more effective than gumdrops in treating cancer, but unless Laetrile is consumed by the carload, it is no more dangerous than sarsaparilla. The principal court case, tried in Oklahoma, produced abundant anecdotal evidence that for some victims, at least, the stuff had worked. The FDA regally banned it anyhow.

We have the same story here. For hundreds, perhaps for thousands of years, men have tried either to prevent baldness or to make hair grow again on their scalps. In recent years, according to the FDA, hopeful customers have tried over-the-counter concoctions of B-vitamins, various minerals, sulfanilamide, lanolin, ascorbic acid, paraffin, wheat germ and jojoba oil. The FDA council's proposals. The lobbying groups have come to remarkable agreement in a number of areas and had their input into the council.

Still, there is considerable concern that the number of proposals could bog down the Legislature in confusion. As John Dornan, executive director of the N.C. Association of Educators, says, "This session could range anywhere from utter chaos to something smoother than any of us could imagine."

Hoping for the smoother option, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey are taking some special steps. "We're going to have a discussion of all the proposals probably within the first seven legislative days," Jordan said. Included in that discussion, he said, would be all the legislators who'll sit on Education Policy and Appropriations committees.

"We've got to have some way of getting all that stuff in one pile and have somebody decide what is best and what we can pay for," Ramsey said.

Speculation around Raleigh is that the reform package being offered by the Education Policy Council, a legislative creation comprised of legislators, education specialists and public members, will get center stage. The council had 17 legislative members and was assigned specific tasks by the full body in 1983 and 1984. With the council's overall plan as the focus of attention, the education committees might then pick and choose specific ideas from the other sources.

But there are some reservations about even that scenario.

Half of the council's legislators weren't reelected so assembly support for its plan may have been seriously weakened. In addition, some of the returning legislative members are expected to oppose an individual aspect of the plan and therefore eliminate the needed "united front."

Martin's plan is unknown and will not be known until he gives his State of the State address in mid-February, says Jack Hawke, Martin's policy adviser.

Bureaucratic Power At Work

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration reached out with its long arm the other day and formally set up two whole classes of non-prescription products for early obliteration. If the FDA has its way — and be assured the FDA will have its way — it soon will be unlawful to sell any products that claim either to affect hair growth or to improve sexual performance.

The decrees provide fresh manifestations of bureaucratic power at work. Under amendments adopted by Congress in 1962, the FDA must find that drug products are not only safe but also "effective" if they are to be marketed in interstate commerce. No one reasonably could object to the government's requirement of safety, there isn't any conservative position that defends cyanide in cough syrup. But conservatives for years have objected to this business of letting the government decree "effectiveness" also.

Mind you, I am not writing a brief for any particular aphrodisiac or cure for baldness. To the best of my knowledge, the FDA's expert panels were exactly right in saying that all these things are junk. The experts on baldness said flatly that "nothing done to the hair shaft once it emerges from the surface of the scalp will influence the hair growth." The experts on sex said that sexual arousal can't be bottled or put into pills, True, all true.

But a small, still voice says — but. The small, still voice says that experts are not infallible, that the history of medicine is in part the history of medical blunders, and that much of the healing art is in the mind. The small, still voice says that experts should be humble, that they should allow for the likely possibility that they may be wrong, and that even the best experts cannot know the infinite forms and conditions of mankind.

In brief, I raise again the same arguments I raised with such eloquence and futility when Laetrile was much in the news. The probabilities are a million-to-1 that Laetrile is no more effective than gumdrops in treating cancer, but unless Laetrile is consumed by the carload, it is no more dangerous than sarsaparilla. The principal court case, tried in Oklahoma, produced abundant anecdotal evidence that for some victims, at least, the stuff had worked. The FDA regally banned it anyhow.

We have the same story here. For hundreds, perhaps for thousands of years, men have tried either to prevent baldness or to make hair grow again on their scalps. In recent years, according to the FDA, hopeful customers have tried over-the-counter concoctions of B-vitamins, various minerals, sulfanilamide, lanolin, ascorbic acid, paraffin, wheat germ and jojoba oil. The FDA scorns them all. Nothing demonstrably works. So henceforth, after a 120-day waiting period, all will be banned.

In my view, it should make no difference if a manufacturer marketed a compound of applejack and axle grease. The bald-headed fellow would know soon enough if the product worked for him: if it didn't work he would be out of pocket only nickels and dimes. This is not what you would call a billion-dollar market.

Well, then, am I on the side of the con artist? You bet. In a free society a free people ought generally to be free to spend their money as they damn well please. Let the government prove fraud, contamination or deliberate deception if the government can.

The FDA will have no truck with any such libertarianism. In a formal statement the FDA says that the people voluntarily have surrendered their freedom to choose an ineffective drug "in exchange for the freedom from the danger to each person's health and well-being from the sale and use of worthless drugs."

Phooey! The Congress, in thus protecting us from ourselves, had no right to impose such paternalism by law. It ought to be up to freeborn men and women to decide for themselves, individually, whether they want to try goose grease for their hair and licorice for their libido. In banning harmless products because experts say the products are "ineffective," the FDA is saying benignly but firmly, Big Daddy knows best. It ain't necessarily so.

Strength For Today

In Revelations, the writer John declares that he saw "a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and earth were passed away ... And I saw the Holy City, New Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God."

God's disclosure of Himself ends with the assurance that the greatest of earthly glories is far surpassed by heavenly glories destined to transform this imperfect order of ours.

In these days of threatened nuclear destruction let us try to look beyond that to the ultimate joining of earth and heaven which the Bible declares will surely come. And let us remember that the Christians' unflinching mood should be hope.

Contractors Want Less Regulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two major defense contractors say the way to improve the defense industry's performance is with less — not more — government regulation and auditing.

Lockheed Corp. Chairman Roy A. Anderson and Martin Marietta Corp. Chairman Thomas G. Pownall told a Senate defense panel Wednesday that reports of weapon over-pricing are exaggerated and spurring oppressive government control that could weaken the country's armed forces.

"For every diode procured at $110, over 100,000 were procured for 4 cents; for every hammer bought at $365, over 3,000 were bought at less than $7," said Pownall, whose company has worked on such projects as the Titan Missile and the space shuttle.

"Excessive concern and disproportionate criticism discredits the excellent work being performed and weakens the very institutions of our nation that we are trying to preserve," he said.

The contractors testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee's Task Force on Selected Defense Procurement Matters chaired by Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind. The panel, created last year, is conducting hearings on how to reduce defense costs without cutting weapon quality.

Anderson said Congress, the Defense Department and defense contractors should work together in a "cooperative triad" rather than as adversaries who stall — and often raise the cost of — defense projects with oversight committee hearings and investigations.

"I would hope that we could substantially lessen or eliminate the frequent and duplicative — and sometimes trivial — probes, audits and reviews which tend to impede program progress," said Anderson.

But one panel member, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., disagreed, saying Congress and each government agency with a stake in a military project has a responsibility to check a supplier's work.

Another Canadian Cold Wave On The Move

By STEVE ELLWANGER
Associated Press Writer

A "potentially dangerous" arctic cold front dipped into the nation's midsection today, unleashing a blast of frigid air that made it feel like 46 below in Iowa and spread snow from the Great Lakes to Texas.

The latest Canadian cold wave and snow closed scores of public schools and some colleges today in parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico, Texas, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. The storm has been blamed for the deaths of at least five people.

In Arizona today, helicopter crews prepared for a second day of distributing crucial supplies of food, fuel, medicine and livestock feed to hundreds of people stranded on isolated northern Indian reservations.

Two babies, believed suffering from pneumonia, an elderly man with heart problems and a diabetic man stranded without insulin were airlifted Wednesday from the hardest-hit areas north of Keams Canyon, Ariz., where members of the Hopi and Navajo tribes live.

Travelers' advisories were posted today from eastern New Mexico across northern Texas and Oklahoma and from southeastern Missouri to Pennsylvania. The storm dumped up to 5 inches of snow by early today in Lebanon and Rolla, Mo., the weather service said.

Dixie may be in for a surprise as winter storm watches have been posted for tonight and Friday from eastern Texas to northern Alabama and western Tennessee.

At least two cities saw cold temperature records fall Wednesday. A reading of 26 below in Casper, Wyo., broke a 34-year-old mark, while in Cheyenne it was minus 14, shattering a 67-year-old record. And in Denver, the 10 degrees below zero tied a 113-year-old record.

Early today it was 33 below at Laramie, Wyo., while in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a 7 below reading and winds of 18 mph combined for a wind chill factor of 46 below.

The weather service issued a special statement for Texas warning of a "strong and potentially dangerous arctic front" that raked San Antonio late Wednesday and prompted stockmen's advisories in the eastern part of the state. Ranchers in New Mexico also were advised to keep their animals indoors, along with any pets.

"There's a huge trough of low pressure through the center of the country, and lots of cold air is being drawn down from Canada," Scott Tansey of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today. "It looks like that will continue at least through Saturday."

Today's snowfall was heaviest in the Great Lakes area, with Cincinnati receiving 3 inches by early morning. "It's not really heavy snow. The problem is more the blowing and drifting because of the winds," Tansey said.

More than 2 inches of snow fell overnight in Wichita Falls, Texas, with drifts up to a foot reported. As much as 6 inches was forecast for parts of the panhandle, including Amarillo, where drifts today piled up 18 inches high.

In Maryland, where schools were closed in 15 counties today, up to 6 inches of snow was forecast.

During a snowstorm in Edgewood, Ky., on Wednesday night, a twin-engine, private plane crashed in a subdivision while trying to make an emergency landing. Three people aboard the plane were killed and two on the ground were injured, authorities said.

Police in Enid, Okla., say the death of a man found behind his home Wednesday was caused by the cold. Sgt. Clarence Glaze said Fritz Sigafus, 45, died of a blood clot caused by hypothermia, or lower-than-normal body temperature.

In Missouri, a Troy man was killed in a three-vehicle collision when his pickup truck collided with another truck, police said. A Labadie woman was killed when her car slid on a patch of ice and collided with another car on Missouri 100 near Washington.

In Kansas City, the body of a 64-year-old man was found in his home Wednesday after he died of smoke inhalation from a fire apparently caused by space heaters, fire officials said.

And police blamed the weather for a fatal accident near Perryton, Texas, in which an Oklahoma man died.

One Fireman Dead As Brush Fires Sweep Across Portions Of Florida

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Three major fires and dozens of smaller ones, many of them set by arsonists, rampaged across Florida today after killing a rookie firefighter and devouring about 50,000 acres of woodland dried by cold weather.

One man was arrested on arson charges in connection with one of the fires, and was a suspect in the blaze that killed 26-year-old firefighter Marco A. Miranda on Wednesday as he operated a tractor, authorities said.

"The fire just rolled over the top of him," said Larry Amison, a Division of Forestry spokesman. "It was moving fast, not because of natural winds ... but the fire itself was generating additional winds."

About 50,000 acres of woodland have burned since Jan. 23, said Division of Forestry spokeswoman Jodi Chase. A combination of seasonally dry weather, last week's vegetation-drying freezes, illegal trash fires and arson have been responsible for the fires, authorities said.

Gov. Bob Graham was expected to declare a state of emergency so the National Guard and the state Department of Transportation could join the battle against the fires with water-dumping helicopters, said Paul Wills, another spokesman for the Division of Forestry.

"We got at least twice as many fires now as we had this time last year," Wills said.

Forty fires, set by an unknown arsonist Wednesday night in a 1,200- to 1,500-acre area south of Lakeland in central Florida, were brought under control today, he said.

Two major fires in the Naples area raged uncontrolled today, Wills said, including one that Ms. Chase said burned six homes near Golden Gate near Naples. They were burning toward the north and were about two miles apart. About 75 people were evacuated Wednesday, Ms. Chase said.

"When I left, the flames were across the street from my house," Kurt Blomberg said of his Golden Gate neighborhood. "I watered my roof and my grass and then they (firefighters) threw me out."

Blomberg escaped with his dog, a television set, clothing, farming tools and a cooler of beer.

Golden Gate is an area near Alligator Alley, a road that runs through the Everglades from Fort Lauderdale on the Atlantic Ocean to Naples on the Gulf.

A third major fire that started Tuesday in the Everglades in northwestern Broward County had grown to 30,000 by today, Will said.

The Everglades fire did not threaten any people or developments, Wills said firefighters were "back burning," setting fires in the path of the blaze, to deprive it of fuel.

Another fire, involving about 2,000 acres and of suspicious origin, was under control near North Port Charlotte, midway between Tampa and Naples on the west coast, authorities said. It had jumped a 40-foot canal.

Two other firefighters were injured in the latest spate of fires.

In Osceola County in central Florida, rangers Wednesday fought a stubborn 25-acre fire in a mucky, swampy area that could continue flaming "anywhere from a few weeks to a few months," Ms. Chase said.

"It's burning in muck," she said. "In order to suppress it, they have to flood the entire area. And 25 acres is a lot of territory to flood."

"A muck fire acts much like a charcoal fire in a grill. It digs in underground," Wills said.

Dozens of smaller fires were reported throughout southern Florida.

Weather forecasts called for scattered showers over the state, but even the half inch of rain in dry, southwestern sections of the state Tuesday was blown off by high winds.

Eddie Richardson, 34, of Naples, was arrested on charges of arson, aggravated assault and destruction of county property stemming from a Naples-area blaze near Interstate 75, said Collier County Sheriff's Cpl. Kevin Nelson.

Richardson also is a suspect in the fire that killed Miranda, Nelson said.

Two unidentified Florida Power & Light Co. employees and a Collier County deputy chased Richardson down after a motorist reported seeing the suspect setting some fires near I-75, said Mike Koors, a sheriff's investigator.

Richardson had been free on bond after being charged with manslaughter in another case, according to police records.

Mental Health Council Honors Martin, Chapin

Senator-elect Robert L. Martin of Bethel and Rep. Howard B. Chapin of Washington were honored for their contributions to community mental health by the Eastern Chapter of the North Carolina Council of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Tuesday.

During a legislative dinner in Greenville, Martin, a former member of the Pitt Area Mental Health Board, was cited for his work for community mental health in Pitt County and statewide and Chapin for his years as a supporter of the Tideland Area Mental Health Program in Washington, N.C.

Robert O. Klepfer Jr., president of the state council, discussed the organization's 1985 legislative program which he said "emphasizes the critical need for new local services for the chronically mentally ill." He illustrated his remarks with an award-winning slide presentation produced by the Roanoke-Chowan area program.

Dr. Melvin Clayton, eastern chapter chairman and a Roanoke-

Chowan Area Board member, discussed the issues and needs facing area programs in the east, particularly those of the chronically mentally ill.

Ruby Hooper, deputy secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, and Allan D. Spader, executive director of the North Carolina Council, also made presentations which emphasized the

Inmates Escape Turney Center

ONLY, Tenn. (AP) — Two minimum security inmates overpowered two guards early today and fled the Turney Center in a prison truck while armed with two .38 caliber handguns, authorities said.

State Correction Department spokesman John Taylor said Richard Allen Robnett, 24, and Glen Patrick Thompson, 28, overpowered guards Kenneth Lynn and Larry Liscure in the prison kennel around 2:30 a.m. Thompson had been working in the prison's kennel and Robnett was working at a nearby horse farm, Taylor said.

Both inmates are from Nashville and were serving 25-year sentences for aggravated rape.

They fled in a white, 1984 prison truck after taking the handguns from the guards, who were not hurt, Taylor said. The guards were tied up and gagged.

The two inmates lived in a dorm outside the prison perimeter, Taylor said.

They were last seen headed east on Interstate 40.

Changed Times For 1960 Beatnik Candidate

By LINDSEY TANNER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — In 1960, Bill Smith was the beatnik candidate for president, running on a platform calling for government dismantlement. After 25 years, four heart attacks and the loss of his life savings, he's fighting for his health and home with the help of some friends.

Last year the 61-year-old Smith suffered complications from congestive heart failure, was forced to quit his job, and lost $8,000 when burglars broke into his home. Now he can barely afford to pay the rent and heating bills for his North Side apartment.

But about 150 of his artist friends, many wearing the black beret that many beatniks sported, held a fund-raiser and roast for him Wednesday night at a North Side bar.

"I would only do it for a really exceptional personality," said Walter Foran, who volunteered his Red Poppy Cafe. "There's not very many people around like that anymore."

Foran, 43, said that after the beatnik years, Smith used to come in to drink coffee and talk politics.

"That's exactly what I want here," he said. "I was a beatnik myself."

In the '50s, Smith owned an all-night Chicago bookstore next to the old beatnik bar College of Complexes. His store carried the works of such beat heroes as Jack Kerouac, Allen Ginsberg and Lawrence Ferlinghetti.

Kerouac's view that "all politics was a disaster" may have influenced Smith, who one night in 1959 stood up in the bar and made an impromptu speech "on the usual things that we all believed in in the '50s — civil rights, pacifism and anarchy."

The speech was a hit, and "I found myself nominated," Smith said.

Smith and Joffre Stewart, his vice presidential candidate, used the slogan: "Don't vote, but if you must, vote for yourself, and if you don't have enough ego to do that, vote for us."

"We said if we were elected, we would dismantle the government ... peacefully take the whole thing apart," said Stewart, 59.

Their unofficial campaign took Smith and Stewart to college campuses and beatnik hangouts across the country. Political action committees, fund-raisers and even campaign funds were unheard of.

"Who had money?" Smith said with a laugh. "We hoboed it, we'd ride in freight trains, did whatever we had to to get our message across."

Smith said he didn't keep track of how many votes he received, but he kept his sense of humor, even in defeat. John F. Kennedy won the election; Richard M. Nixon also lost.

After the campaign, because "many of us were taught if you don't like the system, get into it and change it," Smith got a job with the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security, hoping to find jobs for the needy as director of the Comprehensive Employment and Training program.

"By 1960, I was so worn out trying to make the program work and entrenched in bureaucracy I had a heart attack," he said.

Defense Lawyer Pleads For His Client's Life

TORUN, Poland (AP) — The lawyer for a secret police captain accused of carrying out the slaying of a pro-Solidarity priest said today his client was innocent of premeditated murder and pleaded that his life be spared.

The lawyer, Janusz Ilasz, citing favorable assessments of Capt. Grzegorz Piotrowski by his co-workers in the Interior Ministry, said the captain should not be "a candidate for annihilation."

The chief government prosecutor has demanded the death penalty for Piotrowski, whom he said was guilty of kidnapping and murdering Popieluszko with "ruthlessness and cruelty."

Authorities issued 10 passes to Western correspondents to attend the trial but denied access to The Associated Press. Reporters in the courtroom provided the AP with their notes and the AP has protested its exclusion from the trial.

Ilasz argued that the prosecution had failed to prove that Piotrowski intended to murder Popieluszko Oct. 19 when the 37-year-old priest was kidnapped by the captain and two of his lieutenants on a highway near Torun.

"Piotrowski had a pistol in his pocket," said Ilasz. "If he had intended to kill Popieluszko at any point he could have done it easily with the pistol."

The death of Popieluszko, an outspoken defender of the outlawed Solidarity free trade union, touched off protests across Poland, and led authorities to take the unusual step of trying members of the secret police for the killing of a dissident.

Piotrowski, 33, and Lts. Waldemar Chmielewski, 29, and Leszek Pekala, 32, are charged with kidnapping and murdering Popieluszko. Col. Adam Pietruszka, 47, is charged with aiding and abetting his three subordinates.

As defense attorneys gave their closing arguments today in the 24-day-old trial, Ilasz also denied suggestions that Piotrowski and three other secret police officers on trial were acting in the interest of a foreign power.

Training in Chicago, where he worked until he suffered another heart attack last January.

Smith spent several months in and out of hospitals and finally decided to buy another bookstore. But burglars stole the money he had taken out of the bank for the purchase.

The one-time candidate sees some comparisons between the '50s and '80s. "The 1950s was called the silent generation," Smith said. "People had nothing to say. Kids today are afraid to even look at a book of philosophy. I think they're afraid they won't get a job. We've come full circle."

Smith's troubles may have slowed his pace, but they haven't dulled his activist spirit. For his next effort, he said, "I think I'm gonna have to organize the old people."

Seeking A Fair Wage

On January 31, 1885, C.D. Wright was appointed the first federal Commissioner of Labor. Thus the U.S. government recognized the rise of organized labor. The Knights of Labor welcomed women and blacks at a time when neither had many rights. Susan B. Anthony attended the Knights of Labor convention in 1886. The American Federation of Labor, organized in 1881, sought such radical goals as prohibiting labor by children under age 14, and adequate safety in factories.

IRS To Apologize For Notice Errors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says human error is to blame for a computer glitch that had 10,000 companies in three states threatened with liens for taxes they had already paid.

IRS officials said Wednesday the agency would apologize to the businesses in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, many of which were threatened with seizure of assets or had their bank accounts frozen.

The error, which made it appear that $300 million in withholding taxes had not been paid to the federal government, was initially blamed on a computer foulup but later determined by the IRS to have resulted from human error, officials said.

The problem began when third-quarter records of 28,000 tax payments by an estimated 10,000 companies were not transmitted from the Philadelphia computer center to the IRS national records center in Martinsburg, W. Va.

The delay caused violation notices to be automatically sent to accounts that seemed short after companies filed their quarterly returns and another computer compared them with its records of receipts.

The mistake caused special problems for many banks which collect and transmit payroll withholding tax payments for corporate clients.

Mellon Bank in Pennsylvania was asked to seize an average of 40 corporate accounts daily within the past two weeks, more than five times the normal volume, a Mellon representative said.

"We are obligated to follow the IRS instructions even though we know, or may have evidence, that the customer has done the right thing," said Anne Buchanan, a spokeswoman for the bank.

"Everyone has been getting threats of liens and everything else," said Gerald Pacella, a senior vice president in the operations department of Fidelity Bank of Philadelphia. "Of course, the place that they want to ventilate their anger is the bank."

A series of errors consisted of inordinate delays in correcting a faulty computer tape and poor judgment as to the extent of the problem, said Daniel Seklecki, spokesman for the IRS's Philadelphia district office.

Seklecki said the IRS did not lose the payment records, but there was a delay in crediting many accounts because of "a number of things that went wrong at the same time."

He declined to comment further on specific errors and said he did not know if any action would be taken against individuals responsible.

All taxpayers affected by the mistake will receive letters of apology and reassurances that the tax bills have been corrected, the IRS said.

Companies which received the notices set out to produce records to prove they'd paid. Industrial-Valley Bank & Trust Co. received so many corporate requests to reconcile their accounts with the IRS — about 450 — that it had to assign a member of its accounting staff to work full-time on the problem, a bank official said.

The IRS said it was reviewing all bills being issued by the Philadelphia service center to ensure no additional erroneous notices were sent out to taxpayers.

Republicans Seek Ruling On Redistricting Conflict

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans have asked the Supreme Court to help convert an Indiana Democratic Party court victory into a GOP triumph in California, where Republicans claim they have been cheated out of congressional seats.

"California Democrats not only schemed to destroy the Republican Party in that state, but more important, they attempted to silence the power of the people to choose their representatives in fair elections," said Republican Party chairman Frank J. Fahrenkopf.

"Hopefully, the Supreme Court will enter the picture and improve the conditions under which election lines are drawn," he said Wednesday after the GOP asked the court to consider the California case.

The problem is gerrymandering — politically motivated redistricting in which a party tries to keep or grab power in newly drawn election districts.

Democrats won an Indiana decision in December when a three-judge panel ruled the Republican-drawn state legislative district boundaries used in the state's 1982 elections were unconstitutional because they did not balance the state's political makeup. Democratic candidates won 43 of 100 seats that year, while winning 49 percent of the vote.

Republicans in Indiana have filed a notice of appeal to the Supreme Court, and the GOP is hoping its California lawsuit, which has been bogged down, will be considered at the same time.

"We see our case as substantially the same as the one in Indiana, which, strangely, was brought by the Democrats," said Rep. Robert E. Badham, R-Calif., although it deals with congressional instead of state offices.

Last November, Republican congressional candidates outpolled Democrats in California, 49.3 percent to 48.4 percent. However, because of the state congressional district boundaries, Democrats won 60 percent of the state's 45 seats, the GOP officials said.

Badham and other GOP officials said a high court ruling against gerrymandering would be more beneficial to Republicans than Democrats in most states.

Nationwide, Republican congressional candidates drew more than 49 percent of the popular vote. But Democrats held a majority in the House, with 251 members compared to 182 Republicans. There are two vacancies.

A Democratic Party spokesman, asked about the Republican case, declined to comment on the record.

Norman Ornstein of the American Enterprise Institute, a Washington non-partisan think tank, said taking some of the party politics out of drawing electoral boundaries might benefit Republicans to "a small degree."

"One thing it would do is bring chaos to incumbents," who often seek to protect their districts when political lines are redrawn, he said.

Bishop Calls For U.S. Participation

MEKELLE, Ethiopia (AP) — Despite their political differences, the U.S. and Ethiopian governments should work together to make the people of this famine-stricken country self-sufficient in food production, says Archbishop John J. O'Connor of New York.

O'Connor, who commented Wednesday while touring feeding centers for refugees, didn't offer specific proposals for U.S.-Ethiopian cooperation.

But he said, "Regardless of political, ethnic and religious differences, it would appear to me that the U.S. and Ethiopian governments together could really accomplish miracles."

"The United States has the agricultural and technological expertise," he said. "You cannot just continue feeding people forever, which is short-sighted. But what is needed in an investment to make people self-sufficient."

Disputes between the two countries include the Marxist regime's confiscation of $30 million in private property of U.S. citizens in the 1977 coup which overthrew Emperor Haile Selassie, and the Ethiopian government's demand for a return of $14 million that Selassie's government paid for arms, which are now embargoed to Ethiopia.

While the U.S. government is sending 500,000 metric tons of food in humanitarian aid to Ethiopia this year, it is prevented by law from giving development assistance to countries that expropriate private property without compensation, said Milicent Fenwick, the U.S. envoy to the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome.

She confirmed Wednesday that an FAO crash program to rebuild Ethiopia's drought-ravaged agriculture had been discussed. But she said the United States could not participate in the $126 million project to help Ethiopia grow its own food.

Agriculture is the mainstay of the Ethiopian economy, as in most other African countries, accounting for about 50 percent of the gross domestic product, 90 percent of export earnings and 85 percent of employment.

Even before the present drought and famine, a vast proportion of Ethiopia's approximately 42 million people lived "below the absolute poverty level," according to an FAO survey released at the conference.

Officials estimate 7 million Ethiopians are now facing starvation and that 300,000 to 900,000 died last year of starvation or famine-related diseases.

"The most fearful thing is that people could lose their dignity through being fed by others," said O'Connor. "They are so good-natured and gentle. But how long before their spirit will be broken?"

Farrah Has Son

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Farrah Fawcett and her first child, a 7-pound, 2½-ounce son, were doing well following a natural birth attended by the father, actor Ryan O'Neal, her publicist says.

"We don't even know the (child's) name yet, because they're all still asleep," spokeswoman Andrea Jaffe said following the birth Wednesday morning at an undisclosed hospital.

"Ryan O'Neal, 43, was with Miss Fawcett through the entire natural birth of their son," said Ms. Jaffe. The couple is not married.

O'Neal, whose most recent movie was "Irreconcilable Differences," is also the father of actress Tatum O'Neal, who co-starred with him in the film "Paper Moon."

Infected Cows Quarantined

GREENSBORO (AP) — State officials are tracing cattle sold in the last five years from a Rockingham County herd infected with bovine tuberculosis.

Dr. George Edwards, state veterinarian, said Tuesday that six to eight herds in North Carolina and outside the state had been quarantined because of suspected links with the herd of Angus-Charolais beef cattle owned by Dr. H. M. Hunsucker.

"The minute we find out it's possible it went into the herd, we quarantine," Edwards said. "It's a slow and meticulous process."

Edwards said 67 beef cattle known to have the disease will be slaughtered, and 140 other cows in the herd also will be killed.

Lesions caused by the disease were found in meat from a slaughtered animal sold from the farm in November. It is the first reported infection of a herd since 1977.

Edwards said it was not known how Hunsucker's cattle got the disease.

He said there have been documented cases of the disease being transmitted to humans, but they occurred in people who handled infected milk cows in a closed environment or drank unpasteurized milk from infected cows.

He said, at best, the meat from the 67 infected animals would be approved for use in canned foods after cooking at high temperatures.

Meese Faces Harsh Questioning

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The ranking Democrat on the Senate Judiciary Committee says Edwin Meese III is lawful and ethical, but unwilling to rise to the "higher standard" expected of an attorney general.

In an emotional expression of doubt about Meese's nomination, Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. said that if the White House counselor were genuinely contrite about past questionable practices, he would give up his commission as an Army Reserve colonel and renounce some of his other actions.

Biden told Meese his concern "relates to a higher standard that you have demonstrated to me in your responses you are not willing to step up to, even though you're ethical, and even though you have not violated any law — inadvertently or advertently."

The harsh questioning of Meese's fitness to serve came as the committee prepared to hear testimony today from David H. Martin, director of the Office of Government Ethics. Martin has acknowledged that while Meese violated no ethics rules, he "created the appearances" of conflict of interest.

Meese, confronted with Biden's doubts toward the end of a second day of grueling confirmation hearings Wednesday, responded that if confirmed, he would devote "every ounce of my energy and every moment of my time" to setting a high ethical standard in the Cabinet post.

But that assertion failed to convince Biden, D-Del., or Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who accused the presidential counselor of having "a chronic recall" problem concerning many questions about past events.

"I don't know if it would have changed my vote, but it would have made me think a lot more," if Meese had shown a greater willingness to admit past mistakes, Metzenbaum said.

Meese said he had encountered

"hundreds of people" each week in his White House job and said "... I think, by and large, the ability to recall has been pretty good."

Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., jumping to Meese's defense, said, "If you were not a man of the right character, you'd be a millionaire. You can hardly make the payments on your house."

Both Biden and Metzenbaum maintained that in his answers to questions about his business and other dealings, Meese has too often raised technical points to explain his behavior.

"It's an attitude," Biden told Meese. "Why is it so difficult for you to go back and say in hindsight, it was wrong to do such and such? Why do you stick to technicalities?"

"If I haven't answered that, I don't know what I've said here," replied Meese. "I would hope ... that you would find, on further reflection, that I meet the high standards that you expect."

Meese had said on several occasions that in retrospect, he would have handled some things differently. At the same time, he has steadfastly refused to flatly admit any wrongdoing, pointing repeatedly to an independent counsel's conclusion that there was "no basis" to bring any charges against him for any violations of criminal laws.

"I've not been able to conclude that you are an unethical man," Biden told Meese. The senator said his concern "probably relates less to you than to the office of attorney general. I think it should be occupied by a person of extraordinary character."

Biden, who stopped short of stating flatly that he would vote against confirmation, cited Meese's 1983 promotion from lieutenant colonel to colonel in the Army Reserve. He and other senators were upset because Meese accepted the promotion even though normal military educational requirements were waived.

Senator, French Astronaut Plan Ride On February Shuttle Mission

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Sen. Jake Garn and French astronaut Patrick Baudry, a pair of space hitchhikers, will seek possible causes of space sickness when they journey aboard the shuttle Challenger next month.

Garn said Wednesday he will serve as a "medical guinea pig" and will deliberately get sick if necessary, all in the interest of medicine. Baudry said he will operate French experiments to study both space sickness and the affect of weightlessness on the human cardiovascular system.

Neither Garn nor Baudry was originally assigned to the crew, which is commanded by astronaut Karol Bobko and includes pilot Don Williams and mission specialists Dr. Rhea Seddon, David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman.

The original five-person crew was to have flown last August on Discovery, but it lost that assignment when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration combined two Discovery missions into one.

The five were handed the upcoming mission, whose main goal is to launch a NASA tracking and data relay satellite and a Canadian communications satellite. Baudry was added in October and Garn, a 52-year-old Utah Republican, just two weeks ago.

The space agency had been trying to find slots for both after President Reagan and French President Francois Mitterand agreed last year to fly a French astronaut on a shuttle and after Garn made it known he would like to go aboard as a congressional observer. Garn, a former Navy pilot, is chairman of a subcommittee that oversees NASA's expenses.

When Garn's selection was announced, he said he would like to contribute in other ways to the mission. He said Wednesday the NASA medical team was delighted and developed a series of tests he will perform on himself in an effort to shed some light on the space sickness that has affected many shuttle astronauts, but only for brief periods early in flight.

Garn and the other six crew members discussed the mission Wednesday at a news conference and in interviews with reporters. They are scheduled to be launched Feb. 20 for a four-day trip aboard Challenger.

The senator said that on launching he will wear a battery of sensors to measure various body responses to liftoff forces and the sudden entry into weightless space.

"One will measure if the gut or bowel shuts down," the senator said. "Several shuttle astronauts have vomited, but few of them have suffered nausea or perspiration. So we're checking to see if the vomiting might be caused by a bowel shut-down."

He said he also will wear devices to measure blood pressure, body fluid transfer and brain waves.

Garn said as part of the experiment he might move his head violently to induce sickness.

"Maybe I can supply some pieces to the puzzle of motion sickness," Garn said.

Baudry said his experiment will have three subjects — himself, Garn and Ms. Seddon, who is a surgeon.

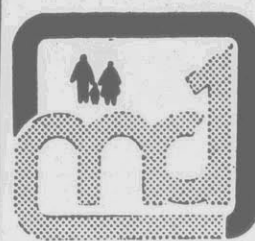

Garn said his experiences, both the training and flight, should give him a better insight into how NASA spends its $7.5 billion budget. He said he has been recording his activities daily on tape, but has not decided just how he will report what he has learned.

Production To End On Bary Barriers

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Accordion-style baby gates, sold by the millions to parents trying to protect toddlers, go out of production today under an agreement sought by a federal safety agency that says they are dangerous to children.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, citing eight toddler deaths since 1975, convinced U.S. manufacturers to stop making the gates.

But the action is not a formal recall, so gates already in the hands of retailers can still be sold.

That situation has drawn the ire of one commission member, Stuart M. Statler, who complained of foot-dragging in getting the production stopped.

And in addition to gates still being sold, an estimated 10 million more remain in the hands of families across the nation, prompting safety experts to urge parents to stop using the product.

The gates are commonly used to block children from stairways or to keep them from entering particular rooms in a home, generally in order to protect the toddler from some hazard.

But the safety commission says the V-shaped openings at the top of the gates, and the diamond-shaped openings below the top, can trap the head of an unsuspecting child.

This is what happened in the eight strangulation deaths and 23 other non-fatal incidents which have been reported, the commission said.

Makers of the products have been working on modifications to improve the gates, which usually consist of wooden slats connected to one another at angles so they can expand, accordion style, to fill a doorway or other opening.

Meantime, however, they have agreed to stop making that particular style. Replacement models have plastic grids, vertical slats, or a straight top edge with a rigid mesh screen.

Camera Fate Should Be Majority Opinion, Justice Suggests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court proceedings might not make the most exciting television, but one justice suggests there may be reason to broadcast some of them — and a majority of the court should determine whether to do so.

Most viewers "would exhibit a rather decided preference for soap operas, grade B movies or even sumo wrestling," Justice John Paul Stevens said in a speech Saturday at Florida State University's law school.

Nevertheless, Stevens said, there may be justification for live television coverage or videotaping of Supreme Court argument sessions and of the installations of new justices.

"Conceivably the reasons for rejecting live coverage on a regular basis might be outweighed by the public interest in witnessing the argument in the rare case of exceptional importance," Stevens said in a text of the speech released here.

"There may be no valid reason for refusing to allow coverage of a ceremonial occasion such as the swearing-in of a new justice or a memorial service for a deceased justice," he added.

In an apparent difference of opinion with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Stevens said the practice of denying television cameras access to the courtroom "may be changed when a majority of the court decides to do so."

Two months ago at a news conference in Tampa, Fla., Burger told reporters that "there will be no cameras in the Supreme Court of the United States while I sit there." He called television coverage of court proceedings "the most destructive thing in the world."

"This is a subject that will surely be discussed further," Stevens said in his speech, without indicating whether he or any other justice favors even limited camera coverage.

Stevens did say that there have been "perhaps a dozen" cases during his 10 terms when "I have thought that it is indeed unfortunate that the argument was not being televised because there was a genuine public interest in seeing and hearing" it.

But he added: "I have no doubt about where the responsibility for providing the answer resides — not with the news media, the average citizen or even the students or the members of the profession who have a special knowledge of our court. The decision must be made by the court itself."

Although most states allow some broadcast coverage of court proceedings, federal court rules bar television, radio and still-photography coverage.

The bidding:
East Pass South 1♥ West 2♦ North 4NT

Dble Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♥.

How would you feel if, after your partner opened the bidding and jumped to game, the opponents bid to the five-level in a suit in which you held A-10-x-x? You could change your mind after reading this article.

This hand is from the recent Fall North American Championships in San Diego. South's double of two hearts was responsive, i.e., describing a hand with a modicum of values and support for the unbid suits. North's four no trump showed at least six diamonds and four clubs, and South chose the 4-4 fit. East indicated that he heartily approved of the idea, but we are not sure that we would have sat for five clubs doubled with the West hand once we had received heart support from partner.

West led the king of hearts, taken by the ace. Declarer shot back a diamond and West jumped in with the ace to shift to a spade. A trump to the king revealed the break and the declarer, Ted Horning of Toronto, entered dummy with a diamond. Now winning diamonds were led through East. He ruffed and declarer overruffed.

The ten of hearts was covered by the queen and ruffed in dummy. Back came another diamond winner, again ruffed and overruffed. Declarer cashed the nine of hearts and crossed to the table with a spade ruff to lead another diamond. East was down to two trumps and, no matter what he did, declarer would make his contract.

Note that, after a club lead, five hearts can't be beaten. Declarer discards a diamond on the ace of clubs and leads a trump to the queen. Now he leads a spade, and that's that.

Publication Says Letters Were Written By Henry Liu

HONG KONG (AP) — A Hong Kong magazine has published seven letters purportedly written by a slain Chinese-American journalist to a Taiwanese intelligence agency, providing information on China and on Taiwanese dissidents in the United States.

The Chinese-language Nineties Magazine, in an issue appearing today, said the letters were written by Henry Liu, 52, between Feb. 6 and Oct. 1 last year and were mailed to a post office box in Taipei, Taiwan, to an individual identified as Lee Han-wen.

The magazine said the post office box was a mail drop for an unidentified Taiwanese intelligence agency.

Liu, who was considered a critic of the Taiwanese government, was shot dead in the garage of his home in Daly City, Calif., last Oct. 15.

Two reputed Taiwanese underworld figures — Chen Chi-li and Wu Tun — were arrested in Taiwan last November in an anti-crime sweep. Official sources in Taiwan say they have confessed to the Liu killing.

The sources said Chen and Wu also have implicated three officials in the Defense Ministry's intelligence bureau, but the extent of their involvement is still unclear.

Daly City police officer Tom Reese, who spent last week in Taipei interviewing Chen and Wu, said in Daly City Tuesday he had obtained a tape recording in which Chen discussing the Liu killing. Reese declined to disclose contents of the tape.

There have been unconfirmed reports that Liu sold information to Taiwan intelligence, to the rival mainland Chinese regime and to the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Shane, who said five stitches were required to close the wound in Mrs. Hamill's head, said the robber fled the area on foot.

The purse contained only $1 in change, according to Shane.

Supreme Court Vacates Death Penalty

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Supreme Court vacated a Watauga County man's death sentence and ruled there was no error in the case of an Onslow County man convicted of murder partially because of testimony refreshed through hypnosis.

In decisions returned Wednesday, the court reduced Phillip Lee Young's death sentence to life in prison after weighing aggravating and mitigating circumstances.

Young was convicted of first-degree murder, first-degree burglary and robbery with a dangerous weapon in May 1983 in the stabbing death of John Oscar Cooke.

"It does not rise to the level of those murders in which we have approved a death sentence upon proportionality review," the court said.

The state's high court also ruled there was no error in the murder trial of William B. Payne of Onslow County.

Restating its stand, the court said, "a person who has been hypnotized may testify as to the facts which he related before the hypnotic session."

The justices ruled that was the case in Naomi Kelly's testimony in Payne's trial. Payne was sentenced to life in prison for killing Jacksonville Police Detective William T. Whitehead.

Meanwhile, the court upheld equitable distribution for Lawrence Anderson White and Jean Malcolm White despite Mrs. White's claims that her non-financial contributions to their 24-year marriage were not given sufficient consideration.

"The statute is a legislative enactment of public policy so strongly favoring the equal distribution of marital property that an equal division is made mandatory unless the court determines that an equal division is not equitable," the court said, noting that the burden of proof should fall on the party seeking non-equitable distribution.

The justices said the lower court took into account White's early contributions to the family finances and the fact that his wife's salary was $3,000 more than his at the time of their divorce.

A Forsyth County woman was entitled to continue her wrongful injury case against a doctor she claimed gave her a hysterectomy when he could have avoided the operation, the Supreme Court ruled.

Sharon Benson Black's case against Dr. T.W. Littlejohn Sr. was dropped when the lower court ruled she waited too long before deciding a drug could have been used instead of a hysterectomy.

The appeals court agreed, but the Supreme Court said the injury should fall under a four-year statute of limitations instead of a one-year discovery clause applied by the lower court.

Sheriff Gets Prison Term

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — Five people, including suspended Dawson County Sheriff John David Davis and former Elbert County Sheriff Charles Starrett, have received prison terms for participating in a north Georgia drug smuggling ring.

The stiffest penalties were given to Davis, who was sentenced to 30 years in prison, five years on parole and $150,000 in fines. Authorities are taking steps to permanently remove him from office.

Davis was convicted of conspiring to import marijuana, methaqualone and cocaine, conspiring to possess drugs with intent to distribute, aiding and abetting drug importation and possession with intent to distribute.

The 8-year sheriff, who defeated three opponents in the Democratic primary last August, also was convicted of two violations of the Hobbs Act, which makes it a federal offense to use a public office in the commission of a crime.

Starrett, who resigned his office last August after being named along with 57 others as an unindicted co-conspirator in the drug case, pleaded guilty to two income tax evasion counts and testified against Davis and three others tried in Augusta late last year.

He received a prison term of four years and nine months in a minimum security institution and a $10,000 fine, plus five years on probation after serving the sentence.

Trial testimony indicated that Davis recruited Starrett to arrange safe landing areas for drug-smuggling airplanes. Starrett, who was elected to a third term last August, admitted he took payoffs to cover up drug-smuggling operations in Elbert County beginning in 1979.

Also sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Anthony Alaimo was Ronnie Berg Mills of Elberton, a former state revenue agent who was convicted on counts of conspiring to import drugs and conspiring to possess drugs with intent to distribute. Mills received a sentence of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Opry Felton Lowe, a Tignal farmer, was sentenced to 10 years in prison, five years of special parole and a $50,000 fine. Trial testimony indicated he was paid for preparing and maintaining an airstrip where drug-laden planes landed.

Robert Lee Anderson of Dawsonville, convicted on four drug counts, was sentenced to 25 years in prison, five years of parole and fined $100,000.

New Zealand Balks On Ship

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Prime Minister David Lange indicated today he will refuse a U.S. request to send a warship to New Zealand in March unless Washington breaks policy and gives an "absolute assurance" that the vessel is not carrying nuclear weapons.

"If the ship is nuclear-capable, then it won't come — unless we can be assured that it does not carry nuclear armaments," Lange told a news conference. He said he would send a formal reply Friday to the U.S. Embassy.

Lange acknowledged there was little chance that Washington would break its policy of refusing to confirm or deny if any specific ship is carrying nuclear arms. But he said his government will not back down on its own policy against visits by nuclear-powered or nuclear-armed ships.

Lange said the ban means that about 80 percent of the U.S. Navy could not visit New Zealand. Both the United States and Australia say that situation threatens the existence of the ANZUS treaty, which binds the three nations in a mutual defense pact.

Lange's government, elected last

July, says it wants to remain in the ANZUS (Australia-New Zealand-United States) alliance, but it won't allow visits by nuclear vessels because that might make New Zealand a target for nuclear attack in the event of war.

The United States has been pressuring New Zealand to reverse the nuclear ship ban. Last December, the United States submitted a request for a U.S. warship to pay a port call in New Zealand in March after the end of Sea Eagle naval exercises among the ANZUS treaty members.

"We are not in an anti-ANZUS posture and we have engaged in land and air exercises under ANZUS and have already committed the navy to the Sea Eagle exercises," Lange said.

New Zealand and Australian newspapers have reported that the ship the United States wants to send is a guided missile destroyer capable of carrying nuclear anti-submarine depth charges.

Most ships in the U.S. Navy are capable of carrying nuclear weapons because many missile, cannon and anti-submarine systems can be fitted with nuclear or conventional explosives.

Foreign Policy Review Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, under a new chairman, is launching a six-week review of U.S. foreign policy that could provide clues on whether President Reagan plans major shifts in his second term.

The leadoff witnesses are two of Reagan's principal advisers, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger. Policy conflicts between the two sometimes marked Reagan's first term.

On tap, as well, for future testimony were former Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, former secretaries of state Alexander Haig and Cyrus Vance, and Richard Allen, a former White House national security adviser.

Together, they will provide a cross-section of the views of the past three administrations, Republican and Democratic.

The incoming chairman, Sen. Richard Lugar, an Indiana Republican with a moderate-to-conservative outlook, said last week he hoped to re-establish unity among Americans in dealing with world problems.

"The foreign policy consensus that we seek is not simply one of a few dedicated senators but a coming together of the American people at the grass roots," Lugar said.

The chairman's own approach — and how independent or supportive he may be of the White House — may surface during the hearings.

Lugar's predecessor, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who lost a re-election bid last year, was inclined to back Reagan on most fronts.

Some past chairmen, such as former Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., challenged the direction taken by the White House. An early opponent of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War, Fulbright wanted the United States to lower its profile abroad.

Most chairmen, however, have tended to cooperate with presidents and support their policies.

Lugar said last week one of the issues he intended to review during the hearings was the use of American force. He indicated he favored it under certain circumstances.

Reagan, who began his first four years accusing the Soviets of reserving the right "to commit any crime, to lie, to cheat," has begun his second term exploring the prospects for a treaty to reduce nuclear weapons on both sides.

He has reduced his rhetoric about the Soviet Union and authorized a dialogue with Moscow on the troubled Middle East.

Lugar suggested last week the administration should be alert to "the emergence of the Soviet Union as a major military power." He said the Soviets seemed to be more interested in pursuing "adventurous ambitions" than in reaching agreements to curb nuclear weapons.

The committee is likely to explore prospects for a successful superpower accommodation and whether the administration intends to maintain pressure on Cuba and Nicaragua, two Marxist governments in this hemisphere.

Former Nazi Guilty

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — A former Nazi SS elite guard sergeant has been convicted of being an accessory in the murders of 15,000 Jews in wartime Poland and sentenced to three years in prison.

The trial of Helmut Georg Krizons, 68, lasted more than 5½ years and was the longest Nazi war crimes trial ever in West Germany, court officials said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today as some traders took profits at the end of a month of impressive gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 7.18 to 1,280.69 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 7-6 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

From the end of December through Wednesday's close, an index compiled by Wilshire Associates of the market value of 5,000 stocks climbed $141.56 billion. After an advance of that magnitude, analysts said, it was logical to expect investors to want to cash in some of their gains.

That temptation was apparently heightened this morning by the news that the government's index of leading economic indicators dropped 0.2 percent in December.

The report was not taken as any drastic disappointment. But most analysts had been looking for the index, which is designed to detect future economic trends, to show a moderate gain for the month.

Another source of caution was the Federal Reserve's weekly report on the money supply, due out after the stock market close in New York.

Among today's early volume leaders, International Business Machines dropped 1/2 to 136 3/4. Mobil lost 1/4 to 27 3/8. Southern California Edison was unchanged at 22 3/8, and Toys R Us gained 1/8 to 30.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.74 to 1,287.88.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 170.02 million shares, the seventh largest total on record, up from 115.73 million Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .22 to a new high of 103.65. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.04 at 224.40.

Bill ...

 "I think that the time has come ... let the people make the decision. Let the people vote on it," Wallace emphasized.

Ernest Brown of Greenville, said he is "for merger," but suggested to commissioners that blacks in the city "have some concerns" with the proposed "at-large election of school board members" and outlined in the proposed bill.

"As black people, we've never been able to elect anybody to county office," Brown said, suggesting that a ward system for the election of members to the consolidated board of education would be more equitable.

Brown also said blacks are "concerned with affirmative action," pointing out that the city system now "has a plan."

"Will the same thing be implemented in the new system?" Brown asked.

Mary P. Williams of Greenville, speaking for the Pitt County chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, also said "blacks can't get elected in at-large elections in the county. We're concerned that the entire community is represented."

Donovan Phillips, a former member of the city education board, expressed concern about "affirmative action ... at-large voting ... (and) the new districts. I'm worried about minority representation," he said. "I'd like to see something done about it."

"Make sure you have representation across the board," Phillips urged.

Andy Andrews, chairman of the Republican party in Pitt County said "first as a citizen ... I don't want your hands in my pockets anymore," and "I don't like the way the county board of education has kept the people in the county in the dark," over the merger question.

"Now, for the Pitt County Republican Party," Andrews said, the proposed legislation "is not fair to all segments of voters in this county. I agree ... black people will not have an equal voice."

The Republican and Democratic parties "will join hands" to fight any proposal "that does not allow equal representation," Andrews told the commissioners.

Review Delays New Mideast Arms Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has suspended all new arms sales to the Middle East pending a comprehensive review of defense needs of Israel and moderate Arab nations, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today.

Speakes said the review, which is expected to be completed in four to six weeks, won't halt shipments of spare parts and weapons already destined for the region.

Although Speakes declined to call the action a suspension of sales, he said the administration would not send any arms sales requests to Congress while the review is underway.

The action came as the administration announced that Reagan had promised visiting Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin the president would ask Congress to approve $1.8 billion in military aid for the coming fiscal year. This is an increase of $400 million over the 1985 grant level.

The administration's action coincides with the start of a sweeping six-week review of U.S. foreign policy by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Speakes said the study was aimed at providing Congress with a comprehensive "justification and rationale" for administration proposals in the Middle East.

He denied that there was any connection between the temporary halt in arms sales and the mid-February visit of Saudi Arabia's King Fahd.

Duke, Clemson, State, Terps Win

By The Associated Press
Sixth-ranked Duke jumped into second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a victory over Wake Forest, while Clemson edged North Carolina, North Carolina State nipped Georgia Tech and Maryland defeated Virginia.

David Henderson hit four free throws in the final minute of overtime as the Blue Devils avenged an earlier loss to Wake Forest and defeated the Demon Deacons 76-70 Wednesday.

Henderson redeemed himself after missing free throws that allowed Wake Forest to beat Duke on Jan. 17 in Durham.

"It's amazing how things come back to you," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski. "I told David after the game in Durham not to worry — that as long as he worked hard, good things would happen. It was really good it was him a the line when we needed to have the points. His will to win is unbelievable. He wanted the ball in that situation."

Duke, now 5-3 in the ACC and 15-3 overall, led at 62-58 with 1:33 in regulation when Mark Alarie hit a short jumper. But Wake Forest, 3-3, 12-6, converted on two straight Duke turnovers to tie it at 62-62 with 29 seconds left.

jumper with four seconds left in regulation that was tipped in by Alarie after the buzzer.

Unranked Clemson upset No. 11 North Carolina 52-50, but Clemson Coach Cliff Ellis says his Tigers could have played better.

"We weren't at full strength and we didn't shoot well but you have to keep playing and can't quit," Ellis said after the victory Wednesday night. "We really feel good about (the victory)."

Junior forward Chris Michael hit an 18-foot jumper with three seconds left to seal the Clemson victory.

Michael, who finished with only nine points, hit the crucial shot after freshman point guard Grayson Marshall had capped a Clemson rally to tie the score at 50-50 with a pair of free throws at the 54-second mark.

North Carolina's final chance ended when Steve Hale, who led all scorers with 16 points, barely missed a 20-footer at the buzzer.

The Tar Heels dropped to 14-5 overall and 4-3 in the ACC. Clemson improved its overall record to 11-7 and is now 3-5 in the ACC.

N.C. State's Lorenzo Charles figures winning in the Atlantic Coast Conference is a matter of desire.

"It's just who comes out and wants it the most," he said. "Whoever plays the hardest can win on any given night."

Charles scored six points late in the game to boost the Wolfpack from a second-half deficit to a 61-53 victory over No. 8 Georgia Tech, 4-3 and 15-4.

The Wolfpack, 4-3 in the conference and 12-6 overall, had cruised to a 48-36 lead with 13:10 remaining before the Yellow Jackets scored 14 unanswered points to go ahead 50-48 almost 8½ minutes later.

"Our frontcourt was the key," said N.C. State coach Jim Valvano. "It had to come through, and defensively we had to stop (Mark) Price. When he gets revved up, it's a lot of trouble."

Adrian Branch scored a career-high 30 points and led 17th-ranked Maryland to a 71-57 victory over Virginia, handing the Cavaliers their seventh ACC loss in eight contests.

Len Bias, who scored a career-high 30 in a triumph over Villanova on Sunday, contributed 19 points and teamed with Branch to break the game open in the second half.

Maryland, 17-5 overall, upped its ACC record to 4-1 and lead Duke by 1½ games.

Virginia, 10-10 overall and last in the ACC, trailed only 36-32 with 13:25 remaining before being blown out by Branch and Bias.

Before going to the bench, Maryland's 1-2 punch combined for 27 of the team's 29 points before subs accounted for the final six.

Hart Is Promoted

In a reorganization move in East Carolina's athletic department, Dave Hart Jr. has been promoted to the position of associate athletic director. Dr. Ken Karr, Director of Athletics, announced this morning.

Hart, currently assistant athletic director for marketing, a title he has held the past two years, will retain his responsibility in the areas of marketing and promotions, but will also have added responsibilities in the area of external relations.

Hart joins Bob Helmick at the associate athletic director's level with Helmick's duties centered on internal operations. Helmick has held his title since July of 1983.

"We have restructured our administration so as to keep pace with the growing needs of the athletic department," Dr. Karr said. "This move will help us as we continue to face the expanded need of marketing our product."

Panthers Roll Past 'Birds

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — North Pitt rolled up a 12-4 scoring spree to open the third quarter, then cruised to a 69-48 victory in the lengthy battle against Southern Nash Wednesday in Eastern Carolina 3-A high school basketball.

In the girls game, Regina Cox fired in 24 points as North Pitt trounced the Lady Firebirds 50-25.

The boys game was delayed late in the first quarter when referee Bill Joiner slipped on a wet spot on the floor and injured his right leg. Joiner finished out the first half but could not continue. Halftime lingered for over 30 minutes while waiting for a replacement.

But when play resumed, Clifton Williams posted six of his game-high 14 points to lead the spurt that gave North Pitt a 42-19 lead with 4:46 left in the third period. Levon Shaw and Gentry Sneed, who finished with 12 points each, added field goals for the Panthers in that attack.

"I wondered about how that layoff (at halftime) would affect us," North Pitt Coach Cobby Deans said. "We were able to push the ball up the floor, speed up the tempo, and that was to our advantage."

"Sneed and Shaw had good games on offense, and Link Little and Clifton Williams played good defense. We also got our best efforts so far out of Greg Whitaker and Ashley Sheppard."

Whitaker, a junior, and Sheppard, a freshman, both finished with six points each. Alfred Braxton chipped in eight points for the balanced Panther offensive attack.

"That's been one of our strong points," said Deans, whose team improved its ECC-leading record to 8-0 while 17-1 overall. "We have seven or eight players who can carry the bulk of the scoring."

The Panthers never trailed, and Southern Nash managed to even the score only at 2-2 with 5:40 left in the opening period. Shaw posted eight points in the final 2:52 of the first quarter to lead North Pitt to a 14-6 advantage.

Braxton swished a shot from the corner while Sneed added a field goal and two free throws as the Panthers increased the margin to 20-6 at the 5:17 mark of the second quarter.

Southern Nash responded with five unanswered points by Wilbert Powell, but North Pitt inched further out with six straight for a 26-11 lead with 2:06 remaining in the half. The Panthers maintained a 32-17 edge going into the long halftime.

After the Panthers' early scoring binge in the third quarter, Braxton connected on a fast break shot at the buzzer to give North Pitt its biggest lead at 52-27.

Southern Nash jumped out to a 9-2 scoring edge to cut the gap to 54-36 with 6:20 remaining, then settled for a 21-17 advantage in the final period to trim the margin of defeat to 21.

"We played right much better than we did at their place," Deans said. "We were better on the boards tonight. Defensively, we did about what we did last time; our offense was the biggest difference."

"I've been real pleased; they work hard in practice and it shows. Everybody out there is doing his job. They know what each other is supposed to do. They know when they screw up; I don't really have to tell them."

"This is probably the best practice team I've had at North Pitt, and that's one of the biggest reasons for our success."

The Panthers travel to Greene Central Friday for another Eastern Carolina Conference battle.

Pant-HERS, Lady Firebirds
North Pitt made it a footrace with a 17-4 first quarter scoring spurt led by Cox, and the Lady Firebirds never got back in the game. Southern Nash held even at 10-10 in the second quarter, but North Pitt Coach Randy Avery substituted freely through the final half.

"This game came at a good time for us," Avery said. "We needed a chance to play everybody."

"Defensively, we didn't do well at all. But offensively, I thought we did a good job of getting the ball up the floor. It was just a case of being able to outrun them."

"(Southern Nash) is a little like our team; they don't have the ammunition to play with the big teams in the conference."

Bernice Teen Wilkins added seven points for the Pant-HERS, while Climmie Harris chipped in six. Crystal Murray paced Southern Nash with 13 points.

Conley Captures Second In Row As N. Lenoir Bows

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Vikings won their second straight Coastal Conference game last night, 79-63, over North Lenoir, while the Valkyries got back on the winning track with a 41-36 win.

The victory boosted the Viking record to 3-2 in league play. They are 4-13 overall. The Conley girls climb to 4-1 in league play, 9-9 overall.

The Vikings eased out into a 14-13 lead after one period of the boys' game, and managed to stretch that to 33-28 by halftime. Conley continued to pull away in the third period, extending the lead to 53-45.

Wadkins Hits At The Slow

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, long noted as one of golf's fastest players, took a shot at his opposite number — the slow player.

"I don't know what they're doing," the exasperated Wadkins said before teeing off today as the man to beat in the 44th Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

"They're walking around, lining up a putt they've lined up 12 times before. Nobody wants to see a player walking around the green for 20 minutes, and that's what we're getting."

"They're tossing grass in the air and they're looking over the shot. I don't know what they're looking for. It's something I've never seen."

"And it's not the good players that are doing it. You take Tom Watson and Craig Stadler and Fuzzy Zoeller and put them in a group and they'll play in three hours," Wadkins said.

"Last Sunday, I waited on every shot. The group in front of us, they played at their pace. Didn't have to wait on a single shot. But they finished two holes behind the group in front of them and we had to wait on every shot. That's not very courteous."

"It's a problem. It's something we on the Tour need to deal with. I don't know what the solution is. It's not for me to say. But something definitely needs to be done to speed up play."

"Maybe," he said, and grinned broadly, "last week I should have just played through. Wouldn't that have looked great on TV?"

"Hey, guys, you're playing slow and we've got a fast group at we're playing through." And then we get on the green, hole out and start celebrating while they're still back in the fairway. Wouldn't that look great?"

"Maybe I shouldn't be talking about this, but if somebody doesn't talk about it, nothing will be done."

Wadkins, waiting not-so-patiently between shots, won the Los Angeles Open by seven shots last Sunday. It was his second victory of the young season, boosted his money-winnings to $172,350, reduced his scoring average to 67.2 and sent him to Pebble Beach, where he won the 1977 PGA, with the hottest hand in the game.

"It happens to good players," he said, and mentioned Watson, Hubert Green, Johnny Miller among the men who have put their games at a peak for several weeks in a row.

"More than anything else," he said of the hot streak, "you feel confidence. You stand on the tee and you don't see trouble. You see fairways and greens and pins."

"It's extremely positive. You don't think about what happens if you hit a bad shot. You think about what happens if you hit a good shot."

"I know I'm capable of a very hot streak. But I don't know if it will continue. Nobody knows. We'll find out starting Thursday."

Among his principal opponents in the chase for a $90,000 first prize are Watson, Jack Nicklaus, PGA champion Lee Trevino, Masters titleholder Ben Crenshaw and defending Crosby champion Hale Irwin.

Other major figures in the 168-man field are Stadler, Green and Miller, along with Hal Sutton, Cal Peete, Larry Nelson, Tom Kite, Mark O'Meara and Greg Norman.

CBS will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Conley then ran away with the final period, 26-18.

Jeff Wright paced the victory with 21 points, while Steve Mills added 15 and Fred Bryant had 11. John Johnson led the Hawks with 19 points, with Larry Johnson and Jesse Sutton each adding 12.

In the girls' contest, Conley held a slim 15-13 lead after one period, and pushed that on out to a 27-24 margin at the half.

But in the third period, North Lenoir put on a rally, outscoring the Valkyries, 12-2, to take a 36-29 lead. But Conley regained its composure in the final period, outshooting North Lenoir by the same 12-2 margin, to regain the lead and take the win.

Trellaney Boyd led the way in the final period, scoring five points, all at the free throw line. She finished with a game-high 13, while Lisa Mills added 12 and Angela Smith had 10 for Conley. Heather Doucette led North Lenoir with 11.

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton High School got 26 points from Marvin Smith on the way to a 79-64 victory over C.B. Aycock last night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

Aycock's girls took a 49-40 win in their game against the Lady Chargers.

Ayden-Grifton ran out to a 19-12 lead in the first quarter of the boys' game and were never headed. They stretched their margin to 38-26 by halftime and ran it to 56-39 after three periods. Aycock was allowed a small 25-23 rally in the final quarter.

In addition to Smith's 26, Mike Dixon hit 15, Doug Anderson had 11 and Danny West added 10 for the Chargers. Aycock was led by Ray Spruill and Tim Fuller, each with 17, while Terry Fuller had 16 and Trey Aycock added 10.

Aycock's girls held only a 9-8 lead after one period, but outlit the Chargers, 11-4, in the second quarter to take a 20-12 halftime lead. The upped that to 29-19 in the third quarter and coasted home, allowing A-G a 21-20 margin in the final period.

Kelly Malpass and Dawn Whitley each had 16 points for Aycock. Ayden-Grifton was led by Karen Edmonds with 18.

Roanoke Teams Hold To First

EDENTON — Roanoke High School held off Edenton, 64-61, last night to hold onto first place in the Northeastern Conference standings. Roanoke's girls also held onto first in their standings with a 55-34 romp over the Lady Aces.

Roanoke slipped into a 19-16 lead in the first period and was able to build on that only slightly the rest of the way. By halftime, the Redskins held a 29-24 lead.

They stretched that out to 47-41 in the third period, but then had to fight off an Edenton rally, 20-17, in the final quarter to pull out the win.

James Duggins led Roanoke with 22 points, while John Bennett and Shawn Chance each contributed 13. Lawrence Holley led Edenton with 15, with Rodney Leigh adding 14 and Ronald Taylor and Darrell Overton, 10 each.

The win boosted the Redskin record to 9-2 in the league and 11-5 overall.

Roanoke's girls held only an 8-6 lead after one quarter, but stretched that to 21-14 by the end of the first half. After both teams pushed in eight points in the third period, Roanoke outscored Edenton, 26-12 in the last quarter.

Gloria Duggins again led Roanoke with 24 points while Sheila Carlisle added 12. Karen Liverman led Edenton with 10 points.

Proposal Exchange Is Set To Begin

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators have set up a schedule to begin exchanging proposals for a new Basic Agreement for major league baseball.

The two sides resumed labor negotiations Wednesday, at which time they discussed a variety of issues and agreed to meet again next Monday and Friday.

At those meetings, the players are expected to bring up the topics of free-agency, minimum salary and the owners' contribution to the pension plan. Owners are expected to ask for some modification of the salary arbitration procedure. Actual proposals could be traded at that time.

The pension plan could be a major issue in negotiations. The Major League Players Association, which represents players, wants the contribution tied to a percentage of television revenue.

Topics discussed Wednesday included free agency, the individual nature of rights of clubs and players, expansion, the benefit plan, licensing, international post-season play, salary arbitration and waiver rules.

St. John's Has An Easier Time

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The last time St. John's University was No. 1 in the country, the Redmen took a trip to Kentucky that ended in disaster.

Frank McGuire was coach of St. John's that December in 1951, and he took his team to Lexington, Ky., with its first top national ranking. The Wildcats won 81-40, although St. John's later avenged the loss in the NCAA tournament.

This time, the trip was a little shorter, and the result was vastly different. St. John's, ranked No. 1 after a 66-65 victory over Georgetown last Saturday, went to Providence, where the Redmen won 77-60.

Lou Carnesecca, the St. John's coach 33 years later, was relieved after watching the Redmen trail 22-20 midway through a lackadaisical first half.

"We were lethargic," Carnesecca said. "I think it's a natural thing when you've been on an emotional high. The body can't sustain the level, so the body tries to recoup."

St. John's forward Walter Berry, who scored 15 points, also was relieved that the Redmen's first No.

1 test was over. "You don't know what could happen," he said. "It could be an upset, coming off a game like Georgetown. Being No. 1 is a lot of pressure on us. Everyone's gunning for us."

Bill Wennington had 18 points and Chris Mullin added 16 as St. John's won its 11th straight for a 16-1 record, 8-0 in the Big East Conference. Harold Stark had 16 for Providence, 9-12 and 2-6 in the conference.

Two Top Ten teams — No. 5 Illinois and No. 8 Georgia Tech — were upset and another, sixth-ranked Duke, had to go to overtime before winning. Purdue clobbered Illinois 54-34, North Carolina State defeated Georgia Tech 61-53 and Duke got by Wake Forest 76-70.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 4 Southern Methodist beat Houston 85-78, Clemson upended No. 11 North Carolina 52-50, No. 12 Tulsa edged Drake 67-66, No. 17 Maryland defeated Virginia 71-58 and No. 19 Kansas clobbered Kansas State 75-57.

Top Ten
Illinois scored only 16 points in the second half, five in the final six minutes, as Purdue beat the Big Ten Conference leader. The Boilermakers, led by Jim Bullock's 18 points, led 27-19 at the half and 45-29 with 5:10 to play. The loss dropped Illinois to 17-5 and 6-3 in the Big Ten. Purdue is 14-5, 5-4 in the league. The Illini did not have a player in double figures.

N.C. State, which led by 12 points in the second half, held on to beat Georgia Tech as Lorenzo Charles score six points down the stretch. Charles finished with 23 points and gave the Tar Heels a 51-50 lead with two free throws with 3:35 to play. N.C. State now is 12-6 and 4-3 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, while Georgia Tech is 15-4 and 4-3.

David Henderson hit four foul shots in the final minute of overtime as Duke scored an ACC victory over Wake Forest. After a 62-62 tie at the end of regulation, Duke outscored the Demon Deacons 7-2 to start overtime. Wake Forest had pulled within 69-68 when Henderson hit three of four chances at the foul line. Duke is 15-3 and 5-3 in the ACC.

Center Jon Koncak had 27 points and 21 rebounds as SMU cruised by Houston in the Southwest Conference. SMU, 17-2 and 7-2 in the SWC, never trailed, leading 43-36 at halftime. The victory broke a six-game losing streak to Houston, which was led by Eric Dickens' 16 points.

Second Ten
Chris Michael's 18-foot jumper with three seconds left boosted Clemson over North Carolina. Grayson Marshall had given Clemson a 50-50 tie with two free throws with 54 seconds left. Steve Hale missed a 20-footer at the buzzer for North Carolina. 14-5 and 4-3 in the ACC. Clemson is 11-7 and 3-5 in the league.

Steve Harris scored 15 of Tulsa's final 21 points as a Drake rally fell short at the buzzer when Stephon Butler missed a desperation 35-footer. Butler's errant shot came after Tulsa's Herbert Johnson missed the front end of a one-and-one free-throw opportunity with 13 seconds to play. The victory gave Tulsa a 17-2 record and 14 straight victories. The Golden Hurricane now is 8-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference. Harris had 32 points.

Adrian Branch scored a career-high 30 points as Maryland expanded a 36-32 lead with 13:25 left to 13 points at the final buzzer. Len Bias added 19 for the Terrapins, 17-5 and 4-1 to lead the ACC.

Kansas outscored Kansas State 12-1 over an eight-minute stretch midway through the first half to coast to an easy Big Eight Conference victory. Freshman forward Danny Manning led three Jayhawks in double figures with 20 points. Kansas is 16-4 and 4-1 in the conference.

Malone's 38 Paces Sixers To Rout Over The Celtics

By The Associated Press

With Moses Malone at his best, not even the Boston Celtics were a match for the Philadelphia 76ers.

Malone scored 38 points and grabbed 24 rebounds Wednesday night to lead the 76ers to a 122-104 rout of the Celtics, cutting Boston's lead in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division to a half-game. The NBA's two best teams have split four meetings this season, with the home team winning in each game.

"He's a wrecking crew type of player, always pumping out there, not a guy who looks pretty out there," the Sixers' Julius Erving said of Malone, the powerhouse center. "He's got a deceptive demeanor, rambles around and gets opposing players to fall into his trap."

Elsewhere, it was Houston 116, the Los Angeles Lakers 113; Washington 106, Chicago 95; Indiana 120, Cleveland 115; Detroit 120, Kansas City 116, and Phoenix 110, New York 93.

Philadelphia won at the foul line, converting 31 of 32 free throws, while Boston had only 11 of 19. Malone was a perfect 16 at the line.

"It's always tough to win down here," said Boston's Larry Bird, who was held to 16 points. "They played well from the foul line. That and the fact they got second shots were the biggest factors."

"They doubled on me and I just couldn't get into position. They had control in the second half and stayed ahead. We couldn't overtake them."

Malone also got Boston center Robert Parish into foul trouble and Parish played a total of 26 minutes, only seven in the final period when the 76ers turned the game into a rout.

"In Boston, we fell apart at the end," said Erving, who had 15 points. "Tonight they fell apart at the end."

Boston scored seven straight points early in the fourth period to close within four. But Philadelphia then outscored Boston 21-5.

What did the victory mean? "It means we're 2-2 for the series and that's all," said Cunningham.

"It keeps us from falling 2 1/2 games behind," added Erving.

Rockets 116, Lakers 113

Akeem Olajuwon scored 24 points and the Houston Rockets overcame Los Angeles' two-pronged attack of Kareem Abdul Jabbar (34 points) and Earvin "Magic" Johnson (33). Houston built a 101-91 edge but the Lakers battled back to within 112-110 with 58 seconds left. The Lakers got a chance to tie after a Rockets' miss but Abdul-Jabbar missed an off-balance shot that Houston turned into a fast-break basket by Ralph Sampson.

Sampson added 22 points and 10 rebounds and Rodney McCray scored 18 points for the Rockets. Los Angeles also got 21 points from James Worthy.

Bullets 106, Bulls 95

The host Bullets snapped Chicago's four-game winning string despite 38 points by Michael Jordan, including 24 in the first half. The Bulls led by six entering the final period but Jeff Malone and Greg Ballard each had six points in a 12-2 run by Washington that proved decisive.

Gus Williams led the Bullets with 29 points as they upped their home mark to 19-5. Chicago has lost seven straight road games.

Pacers 120, Cavaliers 115

Indiana was down by 11 points with 10 1/2 minutes remaining but scored 12 straight to take the lead 104-103. After Mel Turpin gave the visiting Cavaliers a 105-104 margin, Terence Stansbury's jumper put Indiana on top to stay.

Herb Williams had 25 points for the Pacers and Vern Fleming added 23. World B. Free led Cleveland with 39.

Pistons 120, Kings 116

Seven Pistons hit for double figures at Pontiac, Mich., led by John Long with 17. Eddie Johnson and Reggie Theus each had 22 points for Kansas City.

Suns 110, Knicks 93

At Phoenix, Larry Nance scored 21 points and Michael Holton added 18 as the Suns snapped their six-game losing streak. The Suns grabbed the lead in the first period and coasted. The Knicks, who were led by Pat Cummings with a career-high 34 points, saw their four-game winning streak stopped. New York is now 2-20 on the road this season, with a club-record 13 straight losses.

Ball Handed To Charlotte

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The United States Football League has handed the ball off to Charlotte and is waiting to see whether the city fumbles or scores in its bid to land a franchise.

Former National Football League quarterback Roman Gabriel, who's spearheading the drive to get a USFL team in North Carolina, said the city is "fertile ground" for a franchise.

Just how fertile isn't known yet, but Gabriel said the USFL should have a better idea after two exhibition games scheduled in February for Memorial Stadium in Charlotte.

The New Jersey Generals will face the Memphis Showboats on Saturday while the Baltimore Stars battle the Tampa Bay Bandits on Feb. 16 at the 25,000-seat stadium.

Gabriel is hoping the state's football fans will turn out to see Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie, who is expected to be on the sidelines when the Generals play the Showboats.

"We've been told he probably won't play, but there's 90 percent chance he will be here with the team," Gabriel said Wednesday during a news conference at Raleigh-Durham Airport to promote the two exhibition games.

While Flutie has not signed, Gabriel said New Jersey team officials told him "technicalities" were all that stand in the way of the Boston College quarterback joining the Generals.

Flutie is expected to sign for a reported $7 million over five years, said Gabriel, who has joined Charlotte businessman George Shinn in trying to land a USFL franchise in Charlotte.

Gabriel, a Wilmington native who played football at North Carolina State, said the two preseason games will be used to determine whether there is enough interest to justify getting a USFL franchise in Charlotte.

"The league is testing the city to see if we can fill the stadium," said Gabriel, who played for the Los Angeles Rams and the Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL. "Realistically, we should be able to. It's time for the fans to come to the front. It's time for the people who really want the team to come out to the games."

He said some 12,000 tickets have been sold in about a month for the New Jersey-Memphis game.

Refuge For Wounded Eagles In Tampa's Dark Continent Zoo

Tampa's Dark Continent Establishes Refuge For Injured American Eagles

EXPLORING HIS NEW HOME — A stately bald eagle, foreground, scans his environs in the new Eagle Canyon display at Busch Gardens, The Dark Continent, in Tampa, Florida. The display houses two bald eagles, both male, and a mated pair of golden eagles, in a setting constructed of weathered wood, including a stand of cypress knees, a rippling moat and Southeastern mesa-like rock abutments. The eagles are ones that have been injured to the extent that they could not have survived if returned to the wild.

Britain To Issue Insect Stamps

By Margaret MacDonagh

British Post Office

LONDON — The ability of insects to thrive and survive in all conditions — on trees, flowers, ponds and animals — and in all climates, have made them hugely successful as a lifeform.

To coincide with the centenary of the Royal Entomological Society of London's Royal Charter, the British Post Office is issuing a special set of stamps featuring insects which will be available from British post offices from March 12.

The stamp designs are the work of artist and naturalist Gordon Beningfield. Subjects are the buff-tailed bumble bee on the 17 pence; the seven-spotted ladybird, 22 pence; the wart-biter bush cricket, 29 pence; the stag beetle, 31 pence; and the emperor dragonfly, 34 pence.

The five insects are intended to portray the fascinating habits and life histories of most insects and prove that not all are ugly creatures that sting and bite.

The buff-tailed bumble is one of Britain's commonest bees. The large queens emerge from hibernation in early spring and after visiting flowers and catkins for pollen and nectar, start building nests usually just underground and often in abandoned mouse tunnels.

By mid to late summer, the queen and the small band of workers she has raised are exhausted. A bee's life is a hard one and they to cope with intruders to their nest — cuckoo bumble bees will live in a bumble bee's nest without doing any work.

In late summer a new generation of queens will have developed and seek holes in shady banks to overwinter whilst the rest of the colony — having come to the end of a useful existence — die as the nights get colder. Only the British form of this bee has a buff tail.

Another popular British insect is the little beetle, the seven-spotted ladybird. There are over 40 species of ladybird in Britain and the seven-spotted is the most common. It is a great friend of the gardener, sucking sap from aphids that kill plants.

Ladybirds often hibernate under bark, in sheds, attics and other sheltered places and occasionally fly over the continent in large numbers giving rise to stories about ladybird "plagues" on beaches. Like other red and black insects, the ladybird's distinctive coloring is a warning to birds that it is unpleasant to eat.

The large and handsome wart-biter cricket is now very rare in Britain and is a protected species usually found in grassland near the South Coast. The wart-biter is widespread on the continent and the reason for its scarcity in Britain is the very warm summer weather needed by adults for courtship. The chirping sound made by the male to attract the female is only produced in hot sunshine.

The name wart-biter derives from a Scandinavian folk belief that the insect could cure a wart.

Britain's largest beetle is the stag beetle. The ferocious looking antlers are in fact jaws although males do use them against each other when battling for a mate. The principal function of the jaws seems to be to frighten off would-be predators. The species — confined to the southeast — it much less common that it used to be as its habitat is being destroyed . . . in the last forty years almost half of Britain's ancient woodlands have been destroyed.

The grubs are found in tree stumps and other dead wood; the adults are seen in summer and fly strongly at night and are often attracted to light.

Also confined to the south of England is the large and brightly colored hawk Emperor dragonfly usually on the wing in June and July. It is called a hawk because it cruises up and down while hunting. The male butterfly is bright blue while the female is grass green.

The Emperor loves to fly in sunshine and it swoops and dives around ponds or lakes or anywhere that provides enough insects which it eats on the wing. Its strength allows it to tackle quite large prey such as butterflies and moths. Despite their old country name of horse-stingers, dragonflies are harmless to animals but they feed rapaciously on their fellow insects.

Britain has made an enormous contribution to the study of entomology and one of its pioneering conservation societies, the Selbourne Society, celebrates its centenary this year.

The Designer

Gordon Beningfield, 48, is a world-famous naturalist who also designed the British butterfly stamps of 1981. He hopes to prove with his designs that insects can have a distinctive beauty, are attractive in their own right, and should not be overlooked by conservationists.

"Insects play an enormous role in the life of the countryside and I would like to see them more popular," he says. "Protecting endangered species helps protect our environment."

Keen on conservation, he has recorded the delights of Dorset in his book, "Beningfield's Hardy Country".

TAMPA, FLA. — A new natural habitat display housing four injured and flightless American eagles has been added to the animal collection at Busch Gardens, The Dark Continent, according to Joseph C. Fincher, general manager of the Tampa zoo and African-themed family entertainment park.

"Eagle Canyon" is home to a pair of bald eagles and a pair of golden eagles, Fincher said.

Bald eagles are endangered in 44 states and both the bald and golden eagles are protected under the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act of 1940, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1981 and the Bird of Prey Act of 1973.

The eagles on display were discovered injured in the wild and removed to captivity to allow them to live out their lives in a safe, protected environment. Federal laws mandate that eagles cannot be removed from the wild unless they are considered "non-releasable" or unable to fend for themselves.

"Anheuser-Busch has maintained a commitment to the eagle for many years," Fincher said. "These birds," he added, "permanently injured as they are, could not survive in the wild. We are pleased to offer them a new home which can ensure their survival in the coming years."

Collected In Various Areas

Both of the bald eagles in the new display were acquired from the Raptor Rehabilitation and Propagation Project, Inc., located in Eureka, Missouri.

According to Walter C. Crawford, Jr., executive director of the project, the eagles were collected in 1984 in Alaska, with injuries to their wings. One of the birds had also sustained a foot injury.

The circumstances of their injuries and their exact ages are unknown, although Crawford says both birds were mature when captured. Eagles generally live eight to 15 years in the wild, but can double their longevity in captivity.

The female golden eagle on display in Eagle Canyon was acquired from a Wyoming rehabilitation project which found the bird suffering from a broken wing on July 4, 1984, in the Big Horn Mountains of Northern Wyoming.

The male golden eagle came to Busch Gardens from the Denver Zoo, where it has been housed since the Colorado Division of Wildlife discovered it in 1979 with a badly wounded wing, which was later amputated.

It is not known whether the birds' injuries will preclude any possible breeding.

Rabbit Boxes Again Prevalent

By JERRY RAYNOR
Feature Editor

In numerous winter tramps in forests throughout a wide area of eastern North Carolina in recent years, this winter has been the first that I've come across more than an occasional "rabbit box," a simple device for trapping live rabbits much used in the Great Depression years.

Old-timers my age (and older) who lived on farms and in small villages will distinctly recall the art of building boxes and getting them in readiness for "setting," the term commonly used to describe the placement of boxes in locations most promising for netting the winter-fat delectable creatures.

Boys in the age range of 10 to 18 were generally family members most active in trapping rabbits. Rabbit box construction is a simple matter. They are about two-foot long rectangular boxes, open at one end, with an inner space of about eight inches in height and width. The entrance is framed to permit a suspended door to fall into place when a rabbit enters the box. Two holes are cut into the top of the box — the front hole supports a Y-shaped upright which in turns supports a stick to which is attached the door at front, and at back, a drop-stick suspended into the box's interior, the stick the rabbit trips when going for the food bait at the back of the box.

Some baited the box with a chunk of onion, others used a piece of apple.

Along about Thanksgiving, a boy, often accompanied by a buddy, would scout forest and pasture areas to find the narrow paths rabbits made in their travels. The paths were particularly noticeable in areas where broomstraw abounded. Most boys were content to have two or three rabbit boxes — a few had more.

A sturdy burlap bag (tow bag) was carried on the early morning rounds. Gloves to pull a trapped rabbit out of a box was an essential to prevent bites or scratches — as well as a needed item in the cold pre-sunrise hour when boxes were normally visited. The bag served as a repository for the rabbit or rabbits.

By honored tradition, boys were supposed to be miniature he-men. The truth was that many, like myself, carried the rabbits home, alive and protesting, to be killed by a big brother or father.

In those long ago Depression days, a plump fresh rabbit, cooked to tender perfection, was a welcome addition to the prevalent protein diet of salt herring and cured pork. And the greatest joy of all was the 15 cents one received for a rabbit skin — a financial boon that would purchase a hefty Zane Gray or Tarzan dime book plus a sizeable bag of stick candy.

A RABBIT BOX . . . photographed in a Pitt County woods. Most are made of rough wood, but a few innovative rabbit box craftsmen use a portion of hollow tree to fashion a naturalistic type of box.

Helms Pooh-Poohs Block's Proposal To Make Federal Leaf Program Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block won't determine the success of the Reagan administration's proposal to phase out the federal tobacco program, says Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

"It doesn't matter anyhow, because we'll decide what the legislation is going to be," Helms said before a meeting Wednesday with Block. "He won't decide that."

Block told reporters last week that he wanted to eliminate the production control system of leaf allotments and reduce the level of tobacco price supports.

Shown a copy of the plan to eliminate the 50-year-old allotment system next year, Helms responded, "It may or may not be worth the paper it is written on."

Helms has vowed to use his clout as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee to block any move to eliminate the allotment program, which grants farmers the right to grow tobacco.

Asked whether he remained committed to his proposal after meeting Helms, Block said, "We're not talking about details on the (1985 farm) bill yet, not until the president announces it."

Block said he and Helms "would be able to work together" on the farm legislation the administration is expected to present to Congress next month.

Helms could not be reached for comment after the meeting.

Block later met with Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., an advocate for burley tobacco farmers. Block told reporters most of the talk about the administration's proposals for tobacco was "conjecture" until Reagan approves them.

The proposal goes far beyond Helms' intention to keep the tobacco program intact while agreeing to sharply lower price support levels in the administration's attempt to make all farm programs "market oriented."

Details of the administration's plan have been leaking for a week. They are primarily the work of budget officials in the Office of Management and Budget and U.S. Department of Agriculture economists.

Agencies Team Up To Determine USS Monitor Options

By LARRY ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Twelve years after the wreck of the USS Monitor was found off the North Carolina coast, a national preservation group and federal agency are teaming up to determine whether the Civil War ironclad ship can be raised from the "graveyard of the Atlantic."

Dozens of questions must be answered before such an ambitious project could be taken — including whether the public is interested enough in the ship's place in history to contribute to such an expensive undertaking, a government official said.

The joint project by the private, nonprofit National Trust for Historic Preservation, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which has responsibility for the ship, was announced Wednesday at the U.S. Naval Academy.

"We will not raise the ship unless we know we can conserve it, display it and, of course, pay for it," said Nancy Foster, chief of NOAA's sanctuary program, at a ceremony marking the agency's 10th year of stewardship over the Monitor site.

The National Trust will provide NOAA with a way to raise private funds for the project, as well as technical expertise, said Ms. Foster.

The Monitor, famous for its duel at Hampton Roads with the Confederate ironclad Virginia — formerly the Union's Merrimac — sank in 200 feet of water 16 miles off Cape Hatteras, N.C., during a storm Dec. 31, 1862, less than a year after it was launched.

The "first battle of the ironclads" came to symbolize the end of wooden gunboats and the beginning of the era of the modern fighting ship.

In the first phase of the Monitor project, underwater archeologists will survey the area this summer to produce the first large-scale map of the site. Plans will also be developed for conservation of the Monitor's hull and superstructure, for display of the vessel and for obtaining funds to carry out the project.

The second phase would include archeological excavation and documentation, and the final phase would involve the raising of major structures, or even the entire vessel.

Ms. Foster said it would probably be at least four or five years before any major structure from the Monitor could be recovered, or the ship raised, if such work is found to be feasible.

A better time estimate will be available late this year, after NOAA and the National Trust develop a comprehensive master plan for the vessel, she said.

"A lot of this depends on funding," Ms. Foster said in an interview after the academy ceremony. "You can't expect the government to come up with the kind of money you're talking about in this project."

More than 100 artifacts have been recovered from the ship, following three expeditions to the site, including a lantern that went on public display Wednesday for the first time. The lantern was the last thing spotted by crew members aboard the Rhode Island, which had been towing the slower-moving Monitor, before the ship sank and 16 men lost their lives.

The Monitor, because of its precarious position and exposure to corrosive currents, is a "structural timebomb," and efforts must be undertaken soon if it is to be saved, said Phillip Lundeberg, retired curator of the Smithsonian Institution's naval history division.

"Simply stated, time is running out on the Monitor," Lundeberg told an audience that included descendants of the ship's builders and officers.

The ship is resting upside down on its turret, which gave the Monitor its "cheesebox on a raft" name, Ms. Foster said. Because it is sitting on a sandy bottom and is not embedded in mud, she said, the ship has been subject to a high degree of corrosion.

The 173-foot Monitor, which was armed with two 11-inch muzzle-loading cannons protected by eight inches of armor, is also believed to have been damaged by depth charges dropped during World War II by American ships that may have mistaken it for an enemy vessel, Ms. Foster said.

Problems In Tower Are Noted In Report

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A preliminary report from the Federal Aviation Administration says a communications breakdown at Charlotte-Douglas International Airport's tower was responsible for a near collision.

FAA Deputy Chief Joe Carter in Charlotte said a final report on Monday's incident involving a Flying Tigers cargo jet and a Delta Airlines 727 carrying 90 people is still at least a month away.

The pilot of the cargo jet didn't know he nearly collided with the Delta jet, Flying Tigers officials said Wednesday.

"He didn't say anything to our chief pilot in New York or file anything on it," a Flying Tigers official in Charlotte said.

The near-collision took place in snow and fog as the Flying Tigers 747 was landing at 5:12 p.m. and the Delta jet was taxiing away from the airport terminal to take off.

Carter said he didn't know how close the two planes came to colliding.

Bill Jackson, a Delta spokesman, said the Delta airliner was bound for Atlanta and had been instructed to cross a runway by the FAA control tower.

He said the Delta pilot checked the intersecting runway and saw through the snow what appeared to be the landing lights of another plane.

"So he put the engines in reverse and backed the plane up about 30 to 35 feet just as the other airplane landed onto the runway," said Jackson.

Jackson said the flight was delayed about 20 minutes but proceeded to Atlanta without incident.

"There evidently was a controller error that occurred," said Jack Barker public affairs officer for the FAA's Atlanta-based Southern Region. "It had to do with ground control and local control. I can't get into the details."

Commission Approves Location Regulations

RALEIGH (AP) — Newly approved rules for locating hazardous-waste treatment plants in North Carolina don't give the public enough say about where the facilities are built, environmentalists contend.

"We got whipped," Bill Holman, lobbyist for the Sierra Club and the North Carolina Conservation Council, said Wednesday after the North Carolina Health Services Commission approved the regulations.

But Eugene Hill Jr., director of governmental affairs for North Carolina Citizens for Business and Industry, applauded the new rules.

"We think you've done an excellent job with a very difficult issue," Hill told commission Chairman Jesse Meredith.

Bill Meyer, director of the state's Solid and Hazardous Waste Management Branch, said the package was "as close as we can come to compromise and still make a good faith effort to address the issues the Legislature directed us to address."

He added that "this is not the last time we will look at the siting standards, not by a long shot."

The rules were approved a day before a deadline set by the Legislature last year.

Beginning April 1, facilities that treat or store hazardous wastes must be at least a quarter-mile from such institutions as schools and hospitals. The wastes must be treated at least 50 feet from the facility's property line. Environmentalists say those distances should be doubled.

The regulations were revised several times after coming under sharp attack from environmentalists and industry lobbyists. Three changes were made after a meeting last week at which action was deferred:

— "Community acceptability" requirements were limited to new facilities, meaning that the approximately 97 facilities now in use will not be affected.

— Expanded the definition of people who can participate in deciding on a location from "in the vicinity of" a proposed facility to anyone living in the affected county and contiguous counties.

— Requiring notification of public meetings not only through a newspaper legal notice, but also through a letter to the county commissioners and a news release to local newspapers.

More Bad News For Tobacco Industry As FTC Issues Annual Health Ratings

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The tobacco industry and smokers are getting doses of bad news with publication of the government's latest health ratings for cigarettes coupled with an order to manufacturers to begin work on new warnings labels.

Cambridge, Carlton and Now were the brands with the least tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide of the more than 200 kinds of cigarettes tested, the Federal Trade Commission reported on Wednesday.

But overall, the commission said, the number of brands with relatively low amounts of those chemicals changed little from last year.

Announced at the same time as the ratings was an order to manufacturers that they have until May 6 to submit plans to include a series of four new health warnings on their labels and advertising.

Scheduled to replace the current hazard warning starting in October, the four new statements will be rotated one after another.

Unlike the current warning that says cigarettes are dangerous to your health the new statements will specify hazards such as lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and complications in pregnancy.

The commission said its testing found 152 brands with less than 15 milligrams of tar, which is the cutoff for cigarettes considered to be low in tar. That total is a slight drop, however, from 158 in that category last year.

Five brands recorded less than 0.5 milligrams of tar, the lowest amount the FTC testing apparatus can measure. Those are Cambridge king size, Carlton kings and Carlton 100 menthol, and Now kings and 100s. All are filter cigarettes sold in hard pack.

Turning to nicotine content, the commission found 159 brands with one milligram or less per cigarette, the same number as last year.

Four brands fell into the lowest category with less than one-tenth of one milligram of nicotine — Cambridge kings, Carlton kings and 100 menthols and Now kings. Again, all were filtered and sold in hard packs.

Carbon monoxide content was the final category, with 80 brands rated as having under 10 milligrams per cigarette, nine fewer than last year.

The six with less than one milligram are Cambridge kings, Carlton, Carlton 100s and Carlton 100s with menthol; Now kings and Now 100s; all filtered, all hard pack.

The commission tested two packages of each brand, purchasing the total of more than 400 packs at 50 locations across the country between October, 1983 and January, 1984.

Barclay cigarettes produced by the Brown & Williamson Co., were not included in the ratings because the commission said its test methods were not accurate for this type of cigarette. Also, the commission said it has questions as to the accuracy of its ratings of Kool Ultra and Kool Ultra 100s.

Bull Durham filter kings and English Oval kings, non-filter, cigarettes both had the most tar, scoring some 28 milligrams per smoke.

Turning to nicotine, English Ovals again finished last with 2.1 milligrams. Close behind were Players regular non-filters with 1.9 and English Oval regulars and Bull Durham kings with 1.8 milligrams each.

Finally, in the carbon monoxide category, Bull Durham filter kings finished had the most, at 23 milligrams. Three others recorded 20 milligrams each, Old Gold filter 100s, Newport filter 100 menthols and More 120 filters.

The new rotating warnings which will begin appearing on cigarette packages in the fall are:

— Surgeon General's Warning: Smoking causes lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and may complicate pregnancy.

— Surgeon General's Warning: Quitting smoking now greatly reduces serious risks to your health.

— Surgeon General's Warning: Smoking by pregnant women may result in fetal injury, premature birth and low birth weight.

— Surgeon General's Warning: Cigarette smoke contains carbon monoxide.

Lyme Disease Watched Closely

By The Associated Press
Cases of tick-borne Lyme disease in North Carolina, which has one of the nation's highest incidences of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, warrant special attention, says an insect specialist.

"We do have all the ingredients for outbreaks of Lyme disease in North Carolina," said Charles Apperson, an insect specialist with the state Agricultural Extension Service.

"We have confirmed human cases, we have plenty of deer which can act as hosts and we have the vector (a disease-carrying organism), ticks that carry the disease," he said.

Five cases of Lyme disease have been documented in North Carolina, said Dr. Sam Pegram, an associate professor of immunology and infectious disease at Bowman Gray Medical School in Winston-Salem. But because the symptoms are similar, Lyme disease could be mistaken for spotted fever.

"Sure, a patient comes in with a rash and fever, mentions a tick bite, and — boom — a doctor in North Carolina knows to diagnose Rocky Mountain spotted fever and hit that patient with tetracycline," Pegram said.

While each disease is caused by a different species of bacterium, both can produce a rash, headache, fever, chills, fatigue and nausea. Recommended treatment for both are high doses of antibiotics like tetracycline or penicillin.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever is an acute illness that can be deadly without the treatment. Lyme disease is associated with long-term illnesses including recurring arthritis, heart problems and neurological difficulties.

Lyme disease was first identified in the United States in Lyme, Conn., in 1976, and New York State officials say there were 434 cases there last year compared with 168 in 1983.

At first, health officials believed Lyme disease was regional because the tick involved in the Northeast was not found in North Carolina, but that may not be the case.

Producer Knows About Undercover Work

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The sun never rises beneath the CBS late-night series "Night Heat." That's because it's about a pair of undercover detectives who work the other 9-to-5, the after-hours shift that the drug dealers work.

"These guys go to sleep when the drug pushers go to sleep," said Sonny Grosso, the show's executive producer. Grosso should know. He worked 22 years on the New York police force, and is best known as Eddie Egan's partner on the famous French Connection drug case.

Grosso thinks late-night TV viewers have a special affinity for police and action shows since they've been watching reruns such as "Kojak," "Police Story" and "Magnum, P.I." for years. Now, Grosso is giving that audience CBS' first original late-night drama.

Based on tonight's first episode, Grosso and co-executive producer Larry Jacobson have succeeded by doing what other cop shows don't do: making it realistic.

What about "Hill Street Blues," you might ask?

Well, "Hill Street" is terrific television, but it also is highly theatrical and personal. It has an authentic quality about the emotions and the grit, but it's too offbeat to be considered really real.

"Miami Vice" also is terrific, but as Grosso says, "I don't know too many detectives who dress like they do."

In "Night Heat," the two detectives, played by Scott Hylands and Jeff Wincott, wear sports jackets and trenchcoats. The program pays less attention to the fashion and dramatics and stresses the police legwork, while capturing the mood and rhythms of the nocturnal city.

It has the feel of an updated "Dragnet," right down to the narration. However, the Jack Webb isn't from the detective (Jack Webb was the point of view in "Dragnet"), but the crime reporter (Allan Royal) who writes about the crime cases in his newspaper column "Night Heat."

Royal's character, Tom Kirkwood, serves as the conscience of the city. "What's the logic when cops are dying?" he asks in the narration.

Kirkwood's character could give journalism a good name, after the numerous TV depictions treating newsmen like irresponsible vagabonds.

"The integrity of the investigative reporter has been maintained, and that was very important to me," said Grosso, who added that the pilot for "Night Heat" was written by Don Flynn, a reporter for the New York Daily News.

The integrity of the policework also was essential, and the six programs, which will run on Thursday nights from 11:30 to 12:30 EST, were based on some of Grosso's cases. Grosso said he constantly fights the network to keep the stories credible. Another recurring battle is how graphic they can be.

His position is that late-night audiences expect and accept more visual reality.

"There's no set standard since there's never been an original drama for late-night," Grosso said. "I'm making up the rules as I go along, but everybody knows that CBS is the most prudish of the three networks. Did you know that CBS won't permit any violence until the director's credit comes on the screen?"

"In the future, I want this to be more explicit than prime time, but it can't be 'Midnight Blue' (a pornographic cable-TV show)."

The future of "Night Heat" depends on its ratings against NBC's leading "Tonight" show. Grosso knows this is a financial risk since reruns of "Magnum" and the others cost about $50,000 an episode, he said.

By filming at night in Toronto, where production rules and expenses are softer than the United States, and by striking a prime-time deal with Canadian TV, Grosso was able to produce the pilot for significantly less than typical prime-time fare of more than $1 million.

Grosso turned in his badge a decade ago, when an injury on the job hastened his departure from the force. He wound up serving as consultant on "Kojak" and "Baretta." He also worked on "The French Connection," in which Roy Scheider played him and Gene Hackman played Egan, who is now an actor. Grosso has cast Egan in his TV-movie on the woman-killer known as the Son of Sam.

These days, it seems everybody's an actor or has an opinion on acting. When Grosso was working on "The French Connection," one of the men Grosso had locked up from the case had just been released from jail. He came to the set.

"He heard I was doing a movie about The French Connection," said Grosso, "and he wanted to be assured that Burt Lancaster would play his part."

'Still Life' Acclaimed By French Critics

By MARILYN AUGUST
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — In a trembling, high-pitched voice verging on hysteria, Mark confesses to the pleasures of cold-blooded killing in a faraway Vietnamese jungle.

His pregnant wife, Cheryl, rubs her belly as she describes their faltering marriage. Nadine, Mark's mistress, smooths imaginary wrinkles in her designer suit as she tells a breathless audience why Mark is crazy.

Mark, Cheryl and Nadine are characters in "Still Life," a gripping drama by American playwright Emily Mann currently being performed in French at the Theatre de la Bastille.

They are three, working-class Midwesterners struggling to forget the horrors of the Vietnam War.

The play, which Miss Mann says renders the emotional and psychological havoc wreaked on the war's "unspoken victims," has been acclaimed unanimously by French critics who see the 32-year-old New Yorker as "the voice of the 1980s."

Le Monde's Colette Godard called the play "a vital, particularly biting show that breaks through all traditions."

Le Figaro described Miss Mann's characters as "authentic and familiar, with their secret wounds that are like the wounds of an entire country. The audience was so engaged, you could have heard a pin drop."

Gilles Costaz of Le Matin called Miss Mann "an exciting young writer who is the voice of a new American theater. The form is original, the text is crammed with accurate, funny and terrifying truths."

Costaz also applauded Miss Mann's translator, Pierre Laville, who is a successful playwright in his own right, for his "brilliant adaptation" of the difficult work.

Laville said he spent seven months trying to find the right tone and rhythm for the three characters who address the audience in three overlapping monologues.

Overcome by their own anger, they cannot communicate with each other. The opening night crowd laughed nervously as talk of murder, spaghetti dinners and Caesarian sections was juxtaposed with details of wife beating, grenade throwing, sex and adultery.

"Translating this play was one of the hardest tasks I have ever undertaken," said Laville, the editor of "Acteurs" magazine and a leading figure in French drama circles, in a joint interview with Miss Mann. "I sat at the piano to get the right staccato rhythm."

"Which is the way I wrote it in English," added Miss Mann.

"I wanted it to be like jazz — fast and funky to express the violence in all of it. The play is about Vietnam, but it's much more. It's about the violence between men, between men and women and between women in their affirmation of themselves as women."

Miss Mann and Laville have enjoyed a close professional relationship since they met at Chicago's

Artists Cut Record To Help Relief Work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A song recorded by 45 American rock and movie stars to aid the starving in Africa will not be released until March, but those involved are already estimating it may help raise as much as $200 million for relief efforts.

After the single, "We Are The World," is released, a recording featuring previously unreleased songs by many of the artists who participated will follow, said Ken Kragen, personal manager for Lionel Richie and Kenny Rogers, two of the artists involved in the project.

Kragen, who organized the session with Richie and Harry Belafonte, said a video of the 10-hour recording session will also be marketed.

The total effort could raise $200 million to combat starvation in Ethiopia and elsewhere in Africa, Kragen estimated.

Quincy Jones produced the single by the 45 stars.

The song was written by Richie and Michael Jackson, who recorded it along with Bruce Springsteen, Stevie Wonder, Cyndi Lauper, Tina Turner and Bob Dylan.

The session began Monday night after the American Music Award show. The group was called United Support of Artists for Africa — or USA for Africa.

Also participating was Irishman

Bob Geldof of the Boomtown Rats, one of the organizers of another Ethiopia-aid record, "Do They Know It's Christmas?" by a collection of British rock stars known as Band Aid.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: FANCY MANICURIST REFERRED TO HER HANDY FILES FOR ALL CUSTOMERS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals R

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Terrorists Wage War On NATO

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Four left-wing terrorist groups have declared war on NATO in a campaign which security authorities fear signals a new wave of political bloodshed in Western Europe.

U.S. embassies have been on "the highest state of alert" for several weeks, according to the State Department, as the terrorists stepped up strikes against governments of the 16-member North Atlantic Treaty Organization as well as NATO facilities.

France's leftist Direct Action, West Germany's Red Army Faction, Belgium's Fighting Communist Cells and Portugal's Popular Forces of April 25 have claimed roles in the wave of attacks.

They have asserted responsibility for more than 20 attacks in recent weeks, the most sustained assault on the alliance since its creation 35 years ago.

A French general was assassinated and vital NATO pipelines and installations were bombed. The Portuguese leftists, striking back after a round of arrests, directed mortar fire on NATO frigates, anchored in Lisbon harbor on Monday, but none of the vessels was hit.

Direct Action claimed responsibility for the shooting in Paris on Friday of Gen. Rene Audran, 55, head of the French Defense Ministry's arms sales division. It said he was killed by the "Elysaabeth von Dick Commando," named after a Red Army Faction member killed by police in Nuremberg in 1978.

Two weeks ago, a communique signed by Direct Action and the Red Army Faction declared they were forming a "political-military front" with NATO as their main target.

"Attacks against the multinational structures of NATO, its bases and its strategies, its plans and its propaganda, constitute the first large mobilization," the communique said.

NATO, alerted by intelligence reports of possible terrorist attacks, several months ago began tightening security at nuclear missile bases, particularly sites in West Germany where U.S.-built Pershing 2 rockets are deployed. NATO missile bases also are considered primary targets for Soviet special forces in the event of a Warsaw Pact offensive.

The security measures include a range of classified electronic sensors designed to slow down terrorists reaching nuclear bunkers and give security forces time to block attackers before they can reach key installations.

West German authorities say the Red Army Faction, believed to have a hard core of 15-20 experienced terrorists, has carried out a string of bombings in recent weeks. The Red Army grew out of the notorious Baader-Meinhof group which was largely smashed several years ago.

In Belgium, the Fighting Communist Cells sprang into violent life last October. The group has claimed at least 13 bomb attacks on NATO installations, political parties and multinationals that supply the alliance.

The attacks included six bombings on Dec. 11 that ruptured NATO fuel pipelines and a car bomb that exploded outside Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe on Jan. 15.

The group declared after the pipeline attacks: "War against NATO has become the principal aim of the movement."

There are fears of possible attacks by Middle Eastern groups and signs of a resurgence by other European guerrillas.
