Exile Claims Korean Police Used Force

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Police violently separated returning dissident leader Kim Dae-jung and his wife from a group of American supporters, shoved them into an airport elevator and later put them under house arrest, Kim and his U.S. backers said today.

"Police used violence against me. They pushed me. I felt as if I was beaten," Kim, 59, said at a news conference at his home following his return from two years of self-exile in the United States.

The police denied that any violence was used. A White House spokesman said the U.S. government had not received any reports of violence against Kim, but an embassy spokesman said further details were requested.

A group of 60 to 70 foreign reporters, including Jim Abrams of The Associated Press, and many of Kim's American supporters, were held on the plane for about 20 minutes by six policemen. They were unable to see what happened.

Kim was returning to support a newly formed opposition party vying for seats in the National Assembly elections Tuesday.

President Chun Doo-hwan's government said it would not return Kim to prison to finish the remaining 17½ years of a 20-year sentence on a sedition conviction, but it said he would be banned from participating in politics.

Kim told reporters that upon his return home a local police official "told me that I couldn't go out. ... I asked him if this was house arrest and he didn't deny it."

Kim and his wife, Lee Hee-ho, left their airplane at Gimpo International Airport outside Seoul with five American supporters — U.S. Reps.

Edward Feighan, D-Ohio and Thomas Foglietta, D-Pa.; former U.S. Ambassador to El Salvador Robert White; William Butler, president of the International Commission of Jurists; and Patricia Derian, a former assistant secretary of state for human rights in the Carter administration.

The Americans said they were forcibly separated from Kim and his wife after they got off the plane, and that they were roughed up by security forces.

Ms. Derian said earlier that Kim was "battered and beaten up. It was thuggery at its height." He was "shoved into the elevator and getting punched the whole time," she said. However, Kim's wife said in a telephone interview that "there was no beating." She said the couple was "shoved" into the elevator and later into a bus, and taken on a "strange route" home.

"The conduct of officials of the South Korean government today was inexcusable and unnecessary," said Feighan. He said he and Foglietta were "demanding that the U.S. Embassy in Seoul lodge a formal complaint against the South Korean government." In Washington, White House spokesman Mark Weinberg said: "We have reports, which although they indicate heavy security, do not indicate any violence."

U.S. Embassy spokesman David Fitzgerald said in a statement: "If the allegations are true it is a matter of serious concern. ... We have sent a stern note to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs requesting a full explanation."

Police barricaded the entrance to the road leading to Kim's home and pushed back several people.

School Officials Endorse Toughened Athletic Rules

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Several Pitt County school officials said this morning that they agree with action taken by the State Board of Education to toughen eligibility requirements for high school athletes.

The state board Wednesday adopted eligibility requirements which require athletes to attend at least 75 percent of their classes instead of the 60 percent required now, and to pass four classes instead of the present requirement of three.

The changes in eligibility rules will take effect next school year.

Dr. Eddie West, superintendent of the Pitt County school system, said "I'm very supportive" of the changes. "I hope this will have a positive effect on student performance in school and result in athletes taking their academic subjects more seriously."

West also expressed the hope "that this is a transition step by the state board" that will result "in further strengthening of academic requirements over a period of years for all students involved in extracurricular activities," such as "band, chorus, student government."

D.H. Conley High School Principal Ike Baldree, an ex-coach, said "I don't have any problem with raising the eligibility standards."

"The only concern I have," he said, "is that if you are going to do it for one phase of extra-curricular activities, you need to look at all phases ... any other club activity. And I'm in favor of making cheerleading a sport, too."

"It's a step in the right direction," Baldree noted that "we're in a position right now that we need to get the word out to all high school students," because the new eligibil-

Flu Bug Strikes But Pitt's Situation Isn't 'Alarming'

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The wave of viruses and respiratory infections that has been hitting people, young and old, throughout Pitt County and North Carolina "is a sporadic situation, nothing to be alarmed about at this time," according to Dr. Robert Ehinger, Health Director of the Pitt County Health Department.

Dr. Ehinger said today "that, as of yesterday, in our check of city and county schools and at East Carolina University, we were told that the absentee rate is now running about 10 percent. This is about double the normal ... rate of absentees that usually occurs this time of year."

He added that, from checks the health office has made, "indications are that absenteeism from work is also running about 10 percent in the area."

One of the developments pointed out by Ehinger is "that children who get these infections tend to get sicker than adults, but they recover much faster. With some older people it takes considerable time to shake the virus."

Ehinger noted it is not generally known whether the current bout of infections is a form of flu, or other type or types of viruses. "The situation that exists here is about the same as it is all across the state."

"One thing we have discovered," he commented, "is that just now it's difficult to find chicken soup on grocery store shelves."

Charles Ross and Tom Craft, spokesmen for the Greenville and Pitt County schools, respectively, confirmed that attendance reports from schools have not indicated any alarming degree of absenteeism. Both said that the number of absentees is higher than normal, but at this time not of a proportion to create problems or serious concern.

In Atlanta, federal health officials said 10 states were hit by widespread flu outbreaks last week.

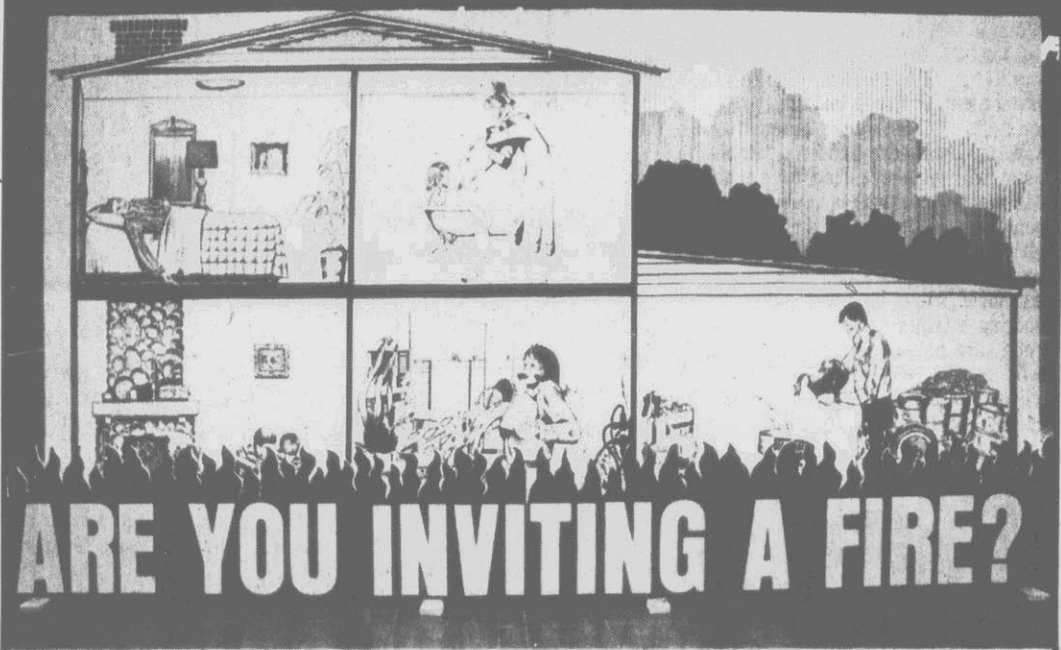

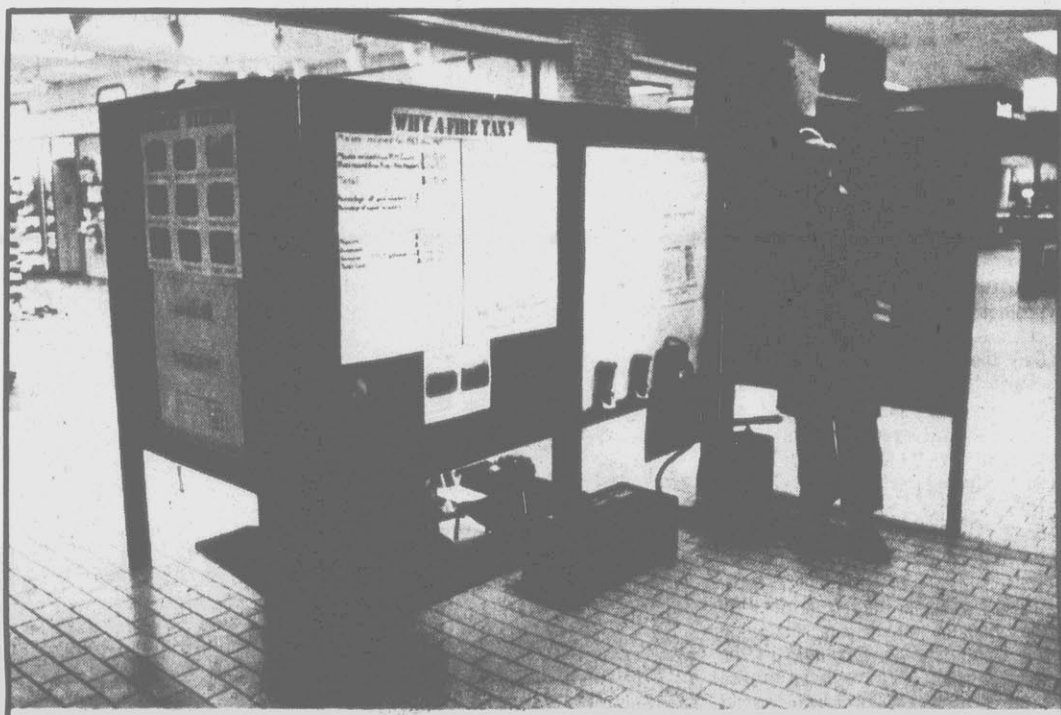

The national Centers for Disease Control said 39 states have now reported the flu strain which researchers call A-H3N2, or the Philippines flu. Ten states — New Hampshire, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Wyoming, Nebraska and South Dakota — reported outbreaks of "flu-like illness" in areas involving more than half the state's population last week.

Just one state reported such a widespread outbreak three weeks ago, and just seven two weeks ago.

The CDC, in its weekly report Thursday, said six states have now reported type B influenza, or the Russian flu.

Only four states — Alaska, Kansas, Arkansas and Louisiana — reported no flu at all last week.

The flu season in this country usually runs in the cold-weather months. The 1984-85 flu season has been characterized by a wide variety of outbreaks, involving patients of all ages.

Life Expectancy Hits Record Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Life expectancy in America has reached its highest level ever, with newborn children likely to live nearly a dozen more years than their grandparents. The National Center for Health Statistics reported that life expectancy at birth has climbed to a new high of 74.6 years as of 1982, the most current complete statistics available.

By contrast, people born in 1940 could anticipate 62.9 years of life. When President Reagan — who celebrated his 74th birthday on Wednesday — was born in 1911, the life expectancy that year was 52.6 years.

The increase in life expectancy, from 74.2 years in 1981, came as U.S. death rates fell to the lowest level ever, the center disclosed in statistics made public this week.

"The death-rate decreased to a record low in 1982, falling to 852 deaths per 100,000 population compared to 862.4 in 1981," the report

Reservations Are Being Taken For 'Bedtime Enterprises'

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

Bedtime Enterprises started its second year last Monday night at East Carolina University with reservations. The services start this Monday night and will continue through Valentine's Day and evening.

"Bedtime Enterprises is a fund raiser being carried out by Scott Hall residents for two reasons — it promotes residence hall living on campus and it raises funds for the hall treasury which are used for charitable donations and to fund residence hall socials. For instance last year we gave contributions to tornado victims, Cystic Fibrosis and Muscular Dystrophy," said Robert Smith, vice president of the Scott Hall Residency Council. He is serving as the director again this year.

Smith is one of the four creators of the endeavor which was started at the University of Maryland in the spring of 1981. "We created it for the same reasons. When I transferred here and joined the Scott Hall Residency Council, I suggested the idea which they accepted," he said.

Teams will include two Scott Hall residents with nine to 12 teams working. The teams accept assignments to read a bed time story to girls. Last year over 160 appointments were handled. "Each team will include a lead man who will announce who he is and what he represents. He will give the girl her choice of books to be read which will include children's story books such as Snow White or Bambi. Representing a father figure dressed in a robe and pajamas, the story man will come in, read the story, tuck the client into bed and kiss her on her cheek," said Smith.

A GOOD NIGHT KISS...is given to the client. Lead man Doug Hildenbrand is also the chaperone.

"Each appointment is chaperoned and usually the doorway is filled with friends who made the appointment. The surprise element is enjoyed by all. The team then leaves for its next appointment," Smith added.

"In conducting Bedtime Enterprises, we follow all university regulations and escort policies," Smith said. The residency council has prior approval of the resident hall director, area director and the dean of student housing.

"The service gained credibility through being televised on Real People in the spring of 1981 and it is also listed in The Student's Entrepreneur's Guide," Smith continued.

Strawberry Passion Draws Patrons To Grove Hill

By GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

GROVE HILL, Ala. (AP) — Scott Wilson is putting Grove Hill on the map with a spatula.

The 28-year-old gourmet cook opened Magnolia Inn in October 1981, serving carefully prepared plates of lasagna, veal, steaks and seafood to deer hunters and a country crowd.

Weight watchers beware. The vegetables are heaped on plates. A dessert called Strawberry Passion — strawberry custard over pound cake with Amaretto, strawberries and whipped cream — may woo the most steadfast dieter to commit a gastronomical indiscretion.

"I can't keep eating lunch here. I'll weigh 300 pounds," groaned a departing customer on a recent visit.

The hefty, black-bearded Wilson apparently enjoys his own fare, as evidenced by the mid-section contour of his candy-striped apron.

His inn on Clarke County Route 29 in southwest Alabama timber country isn't an inn at all. It's a restaurant in a pineboard house, surrounded by pastures.

Across the fence, his father may be found loading cows into a trailer. Inside, Wilson may be found concocting rural recipes.

"I'm going to make green tomato pie next week," said Wilson, fulfilling a promise to a client in Mobile. Although Mobile is about 1 1/2 hours to the south, Wilson says some customers drive up on Sundays or stop in on their way to football games at Tuscaloosa in the fall.

His orders for food come from all over, Wilson said. After adding a 500-square-foot kitchen to the magnolia-shaded, 100-year-old farmhouse, he began catering for parties.

Preparing for parties in a county that prohibits the sale of liquor can be difficult, but Wilson said he tried to make up with catering for what's lost on the lack of liquor sales. Weddings have been held outside under the pear trees in the spring with the receptions inside.

Wilson said he had given up hopes for a medical career after dropping out of Birmingham-Southern College. A trip to Europe and a round of cooking classes from Mobile to San Francisco led to his new career.

"I moved over here after managing the LaSalle Restaurant in Monroeville. They turned it into a library," Wilson said.

He and his father purchased the house in Grove Hill for the restaurant, which seats 50. The interior walls are decorated with his grandmother's quilts, menus and other reminders of home.

His wife, Jennifer, helps with the restaurant, as do other relatives. And it's not far to work. They live in a huge double-width house trailer at the rear of the restaurant.

"We hope to build a house over in those woods," said Wilson, pointing beyond an aging pecan tree and giant crepe myrtles.

"You know everybody, having grown up here," he said. "I knew one day I'd come back to Grove Hill."

JINGLE HAS BEEN PAYING THE RENT FOR 25 YEARS

NEW YORK (AP) — Songwriter Bernie Wayne has been appearing in concert around the country, playing and singing some of the songs he has written. Among them: "There She Is, Miss America," "Laughing on the Outside, Crying on the Inside" and "Deep Purple."

He finishes the performance by singing a jingle he wrote 25 years ago, which "has been paying my rent ever since." It is the coffee jingle for Chock Full O' Nuts, popularized on radio and TV by Page Morton Black. "It gets a tremendous ovation," Wayne says, adding, "People don't know that I wrote it."

Common Sense And Compromise Are Two Secrets Of Marriage

By COSMOPOLITAN A Hearst Magazine
There's more than hearts and flowers involved in making marriage work. Common sense and compromise are among the secrets of a happy marriage, according to an article in the February issue of Cosmopolitan that offers guidelines for making marriage work. The first rule: focus on the positive, not the negative. "If people would only focus on what they like rather than what they don't like about a partner, the issues would fall into place differently from the beginning," said New York psychotherapist Anne Tully Ruderman. It is a matter of emphasis, according to Donald S. Williamson, director of the Houston Family Institute.

Church, Va., Family Relations Institute. "That may sound almost too basic, but the ability to confide intense feelings — of whatever kind — is necessary to emotional closeness." The experts advise couples to build on what is unique in their marriage and not worry about whether what is different in other people's marriages is better. Reports that marriage is a dying institution are premature, according to Cosmopolitan, which cited a recent study indicating that 90 percent of all young Americans expect to marry. They apparently agree with W.H. Auden, who said, "Any marriage, happy or unhappy, is infinitely more interesting and significant than any romance, however passionate."

"It's not a matter of what's true or false," he said. "Choosing the positive side is simply choosing a more effective way to live. There are always ambivalent feelings inside each of us about our most intimate relationships. From the beginning, one set dominates — but the other doesn't go away; it just recedes."

Dividing the work of a family fairly, efficiently and with consideration is another key to happy marriage. "The keynote word is efficiency," therapist Ruderman said. "A certain number of things have to be done in a certain amount of time. Who can do what best? Deciding that way is better than labeling a job his or hers."

Marilyn Singleton Raji, founder of the Institute for Marriage and Human Relations in New York City, believes such decisions should be made early. "In most new marriages, the wife is so interested in pleasing that she'll take on far more than her fair share of the work," the therapist warned. "So it's best to get down to the nitty-gritty of who does what before you're married."

Be aware that people do change and don't let it throw you. "The common notion is that marriage is a one-time decision," Williamson said. "Not true. It's a constant choosing and rechoosing. You can neither force change nor stop it in your partner." Raji advises marriage partners not to waste time blaming each other for changing, but rather find "new options that are harmonious." "Marriage is like riding a bike or sailing," Ruderman said. "When one person moves and shifts, the other will move and shift in a complementary way. That's how we get our forward motion — and that's what gives a relationship life." "For a marriage to stay healthy," Raji said, "two people can't dig their heels in. If they can look for solutions without thinking they're giving up a part of their private selves, they move into a new dimension of adulthood." Conflict is as much a part of marriage as compromise, according to the experts, and successful spouses accept the need for it. "They have to learn to trust each other," said Lori Gordon of the Falls

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Parents Raise A Stink Over Boy's Foul Mouth

DEAR ABBY: Several of us mothers have a common problem. It concerns a boy (I'll call him Billy) who is a bad influence on our children. They are all in the third grade, but this Billy is wise beyond his years. He gets his information (about sex) from hanging around his older brother, then spreads around what he has heard to the boys in his class. He tells them things about sex that most adults have never experienced, and his language is pure filth! Our sons want to invite Billy to stay overnight, but we're afraid of what Billy might teach them. Besides, most of us have younger children at home, and we don't want Billy here talking about Lord knows what. I understand Billy's parents are very liberal-minded, so don't suggest we talk to them. Maybe if they read this, they will understand why their son is shunned by his peers.
STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: If your son and his classmates want Billy to stay overnight, then obviously Billy isn't "shunned by his peers"—it's their parents who don't want him around. Liberal-minded parents love their children as much as you love yours, so please share your concerns with Billy's parents. It's not unusual for a child to entertain his peers with X-rated information in a bid for popularity. Don't panic; it's neither contagious nor fatal.

DEAR ABBY: I am the owner of a profitable retail hardware store with a good number of employees. There's one woman who has been with me for 22 years. I have to admit she's loyal, honest and efficient. She started as a bookkeeper, but now she's a self-appointed "office manager." She used to call me "Mr." but now she calls me by my first name. She's very bossy, acts like she owns the place and, to tell you the truth, she's beginning to get on my nerves.

We don't have a retirement age around here, but I wish she'd retire (she's old enough) so I could replace her with a younger woman who isn't so bossy. They say a new broom sweeps clean. What do you say?
THE BOSS

DEAR BOSS: A new broom may sweep clean, but the old broom knows where the dirt is.

DEAR ABBY: Last June, I lent my girlfriend my jacket, and she lost it at the restaurant where she was working. In September she gave me $50 to replace the jacket, but I spent the $50 on something else. Well, just before Christmas there was a fire at that restaurant, and

In large urban areas, one of the complications of alcohol abuse, cirrhosis of the liver, is now the second most common cause of all deaths among 25- to 44-year-olds, reports the Health Insurance Association of America. An analysis of data from New York City's Department of Health also found that cirrhosis of the liver is the third most common cause of all deaths among 45- to 64-year-olds.

while they were cleaning up, my jacket was found in the basement. My girlfriend had it cleaned and monogrammed with my initials and gave it to me as a surprise Christmas present. The problem: My girlfriend says now that I got the jacket back, I should return her $50. I feel that she was irresponsible in the first place, and it shouldn't matter that the jacket was found six months later. A friend of mine suggested I give her the jacket back instead of the money, but now that it's monogrammed, I want to keep it. I told my girlfriend that I will do anything Abigail Van Buren thinks is right.
JACKET BACK

DEAR JACKET BACK: She lost your jacket, and you accepted $50 restitution. Fair enough. Six months later, she gave you the jacket, monogrammed as a gift; she didn't sell it to you. You are not obligated to pay for a gift.

DEAR ABBY: I am sending you an article I clipped from an American Legion magazine. If you print it, our trade balance might improve, which would be a great service for our country. Thank you.

Revolt?

North Carolina Rep. Charlie Rose sees American tobacco growers "near revolt" over undercutting of their crop coupled with hardships and uncertainties about the future. That anger has grown to a point where the N.C. Farm Bureau has passed a resolution saying flue-cured tobacco states should consider raising excise taxes on tobacco products and using part of the money to pay for the tobacco price-support program.

It could be done. It might be done.

Much of the frustrations and anger stem from our prospering tobacco companies and the rising tide of imported tobacco which N.C. companies are buying. Our farmers sense betrayal.

In Brazil, a major source of imported leaf, we are told U.S. tobacco companies provide indirect subsidies that cost the companies about 30 percent of the price actually paid for the leaf. Source of that report? The Foreign Agriculture Service of the U.S. Agriculture Department.

A spokesman for R.J. Reynolds disavows providing subsidies for Brazilian tobacco; but an FAS officer in Brazil says Reynolds does provide assistance. Whom do you think North Carolina growers would believe?

Added to whatever assistance is provided by tobacco companies, foreign growers usually benefit from subsidies provided by their government. Taken all together, it's an unfair competition for our growers.

We recall too vividly the role subsidies by foreign governments have played in undermining American producers.

Steel is one.

The U.S. steel industry is providing but a fraction of the supply needed by American fabricators. A number of large mills have closed over the years and ranks of unemployed steelworkers have been a national disaster.

Textiles is a similar case in point. Scores of mills have closed under the flood of imported textiles and apparel. The resulting number of jobless is another disaster.

Auto manufacturers are familiar with the blight. They are generally faring well today, but who's to say how long they can resist unremitting pressures from abroad who subsidize their product?

Tobacco could be next in line.

Advice

Some advice from an expert on visiting the North Carolina Zoo.

Take your time, says zoologist and oceanographer Dr. Ted Walker. He says every time he comes back to view a certain animal he finds some new detail he overlooked before.

Dr. Walker rates the N.C. Zoo as among the best in the world (and he's seen many of them). The African Pavilion and the Aviary earned special acclaim from the visitor; another tip.

February, especially the kind of February we've been enjoying in North Carolina is probably not the best time of the year for zoo-going. But come spring, summer and early fall, remember his advice: take your time. Focus on one animal or set of animals and watch their habits. The visiting authority says you'll get much more out of it than those passing glances which earn oohhs and aaahhs.

How Far Does Advising Go?

RALEIGH — The N.C. Center for Public Policy Research just doesn't give up.

For several years now, the center has been arguing that the Advisory Budget Commission is unconstitutional. Included in its recent report on unnecessary boards and commissions, the center is again going after the ABC, saying that the combination of a 1982 N.C. Supreme Court ruling and some ABC meeting minutes proves their case.

The ABC may be the most powerful body in state government. It holds budget hearings and then helps the governor formulate the budget he presents to the Legislature. Since the 15-member ABC always includes at least 10 of the most powerful legislators, the budget the ABC and governor send to the Legislature is a pretty sacred document. To change the ABC's budget, a legislator knows he has to buck the legislative leadership and that isn't done very often.

The ABC also has some executive duties, and it is these duties which lead the center to say the ABC is unconstitutional.

In 1982, in the case of Wallace v. Bone, the Supreme Court said legislators could not sit on the Environmental Management Commission because it performed executive duties. Such an arrangement would be contrary to the separation of powers clause in the state Constitution. That legal reasoning is considered to apply to all other executive commissions, including the ABC.

The General Assembly took away most of the executive powers of the ABC in 1983 and said that in the future the ABC should simply "advise" the governor on the budget.

In its report, "Boards, Commissions and Councils in the Executive Branch," the center says the ABC is operating just as it did before 1983, that it is operating contrary to the Supreme Court's ruling. First, the center notes that even with the 1983 changes, the ABC still has some executive duties such as the preparation and administration of budgets for the offices of state auditor, treasurer and administrative officer of the courts.

Secondly, the ABC, even if it was simply providing legislative oversight to an executive function, would still be acting unconstitutionally. The center argues that legislators cannot sit on executive boards and simply give advice. "It should be recognized that ... giving advice ... should be effected from afar. The Separation of Powers provision requires this. The General Assembly has the inherent power to advise the executive but not from within the executive branch," the report says.

The center also cites ABC meeting minutes in which ABC legislators indicate that they see themselves as more than advisers. For example, the ABC regularly "recommends approval" of agency requests and the records show that Gov. Jim Hunt didn't see these actions as merely advice. He never contradicted the ABC on one of these votes. Therefore, the center argues that the ABC is still approving and disapproving requests, a job which belongs in the executive. "Questions remain as to whether the commission has actually relinquished its hold on implementation of the state's budget," the center says.

Meeting minutes also show that the ABC is making executive decisions regarding the operations of the treasurer's and auditor's offices.

The ABC is reviled by many legislators. It's seen as a special club which gives all the power to a select few. It is just that and until it is disbanded only a handful of legislators will have any real influence over the state budget.

Weatherman Brings Out The Worst

Talk about messengers of bad news — nothing beats the TV weather people. They chuckle in front of their maps of the United States, while all of us gaze at them with fear and loathing.

The trouble with the TV weather report is that it brings out the worst in all of us.

The other evening I was watching my weatherman on the late-night news and he said, "A cold arctic blast is coming down from Canada and will sweep across the Great Plains carrying freezing temperatures, snow, ice and wind."

"What are you smiling at?" my wife wanted to know.

"Better than us," I said.

"But the people in the Great Plains are Americans, too."

"They're used to it," I replied.

"Great Plains residents all come from hardy Scandinavian stock, and a minus-42-degree wind chill factor to them is a grand soft day."

The weatherman was waving his hands all over the map.

"A storm now over the Pacific will produce six inches of rain in Southern California and Arizona."

"Serves them right," I said.

"They're always bragging how great their weather is, and it's time they got a taste of the elements. If they can't play tennis in Southern California they close the schools."

"You're being awfully cruel," my wife said.

"When it comes to weather, it's every man for himself."

The weatherman continued. "A Yukon express jet stream will bring record low temperatures to the state of Texas."

"It's about time," I said.

"What have you got against Texas?"

"Remember during the petroleum crisis when they put bumper stickers on their cars telling the Northeast to freeze to death?"

"They didn't mean it," my wife said. "That's just the way Texans talk. I feel for anyone who is cold."

"Don't cry for Texas," I told her.

"All they have to do if they start shivering is go out in the back yard and fill up a pail with oil and throw it in their burners."

The weatherman was now pointing at New York state.

"The hardest hit part of the country was Buffalo, which had 30 inches of snow this morning, and is still digging out tonight."

"How do you feel about Buffalo?" my wife wanted to know.

"Anyone who stays in Buffalo during the winter knows what they're in for. Besides, I can't remember one weather report in the last six months that didn't show people digging out in Buffalo. You have to be pretty dumb to live next to Lake Erie."

"Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia can expect freezing rain because of this high-pressure system coming up from Mexico," the weatherman continued.

"So what," I spoke back to the TV screen. "We never promised them a rose garden."

My wife was becoming annoyed. "You're no fun to watch the weather with."

"Look, the only reason they tell what the weather is like in other parts of the country is so people who aren't affected by it can enjoy it. Bad news is good news if it doesn't happen to you."

The weatherman continued. "This freezing rain will be pushed north by the high, and we can expect two inches of snow in the Washington area by tomorrow's rush hour."

I couldn't believe what I had just heard, and looked up to heaven. "Why us?"

A LITTLE TROUBLE TYING IT UP!

—Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer—

Help On The Way

WASHINGTON — In wars past, contingents of American troops were often named for the states from which the soldiers came. While home-state appellations were mostly a practical measure, they were useful for raising morale in the provinces as well as on the field.

State pride may not have been a critical factor in the recent creation of the Vermont Service Corps, a private organization that hopes to send volunteer technicians to aid drought-stricken countries in Africa.

But it might prove useful in encouraging citizens of other states to follow the Vermonters' example.

Originally founded to meet state needs, the Vermont Service Corps is hoping to recruit 50 to 100 volunteers this year to serve for as long as six months with humanitarian organizations already working in Africa. The organization has set a $100,000 budget, which Vermont state Sen. Edgar May, one of the group's four board members, said will be funded entirely through private contributions.

So far, the Brattleboro-based organization has raised only $15,000. But May, formerly a special assistant to the first Peace Corps director, Sargent Shriver, remains optimistic. Vermonters, he said, have given more than $200,000 to various famine relief programs in Africa.

Vermont's effort, if successful, will only slightly increase the U.S. contingent of volunteers already in Africa. As many as 2,500 Peace Corps workers now live in 26 African nations.

But, as a Corps official conceded, "One of the things about the Peace Corps is that we can send only so many volunteers overseas. Any concurrent effort by the states is more than welcome."

To date, Save the Children is the only humanitarian group that has agreed to accept Vermont Service Corps volunteers. Among the other organizations with which May and his fellow board members have spoken are CARE and Catholic Relief Services.

One hopes that those humanitarian groups and others will jump at the offer of new blood, and that legislators and academics in other states will see the good in having a volunteer service corps of their own.

Where does one go after a career in the U.S. intelligence community?

Former CIA director William Colby can suggest one route. Colby has started a firm to provide American corporations with information on overseas investment opportunities.

During the brief reign of Yuri Andropov, the late Soviet leader's son was a diplomat in Greece. Now that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko seems to enjoy more power than ever, it appears that at least one member of his family has, like the younger Andropov, assumed a more public role.

In Sweden last week, son Anatoly Gromyko, a university professor, gave a speech on arms control. The "experience of recent decades," Gromyko said, "shows that more weapons does not mean greater security. Genuine security can only be achieved and strengthened on a basis of equality and equal security."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher placed short-term needs before principle during the Falklands War, suggests a report in the London-based weekly, New Statesman.

According to the magazine, Mrs. Thatcher won the right to use Chilean intelligence reports and military bases in exchange for a promise to supply Chile with aircraft and to oppose United Nations investigations of human rights abuses by the regime of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

Researchers at Colorado State University have issued a study that should please teachers and students alike. According to their report, a four-day school week has no effect on test scores.

Moreover, a four-day week, which at least 100 school districts have already adopted, reduces energy costs and absentee rates and gives teachers more time to prepare for classes.

Congressional jocks apparently don't want to make cuts on their own physical programs. The House of Representatives' gymnasium committee recently ordered 12 Nautilus body-building machines, at a cost of $25,000, for the members' gym.

Strength

For

Today

Mercy is a blessing which comes into the life of the world directly from the heart of God himself.

The natural tendency of man is to be vengeful. If someone injures us, our first impulse is to injure him in return. We humans, defiant little creatures who disobey the will of God, would really be getting our desserts if we experienced divine retaliation. But instead, we receive loving treatment.

The essence of God's life is mercy:

"Though waves and storms go o'er my head,

"Though strength, and health, and friends be gone,

"Though joys be withered and all dead,

"Though every comfort be withdrawn,

"On this my steadfast soul relies,

"Father, thy mercy never dies!"

In The Area

Wrecks Investigated

An estimated $4,450 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:36 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, one-tenth of a mile east of the 14th Street intersection, involving cars driven by William Charles Overton of 1606 Greenville Blvd. and Carolyn Ambrose Chesson of 407C Eastbrook Apartments.

Police, who charged Ms. Chesson with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, set damage at $750 to the Overton car and $2,000 to the Chesson vehicle.

Cars driven by Lalurie Ann Tippet of 300 Belk Dorm and Mary Lou Creal of 115 E. Ninth St. collided about 10:21 p.m. at the intersection of Charles and Tenth streets, causing $900 damage to the Tippet car and $1,200 damage to the Creal auto.

Chapter Speaker

Dr. Henry Lewis Suggs, a Winterville native and an assistant professor of history at Clemson University in Clemson, S.C., will address the Greenville Alumnae chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc. at 4 p.m. Sunday at York Memorial Church, corner of Tyson and Third streets.

DR. HENRY LEWIS SUGGS

The sorority will hold its annual community recognition day and will highlight "Persons in the News."

Suggs will speak on the theme of this year's celebration of Afro-American (Black) History Month, "The Afro-American Family: Historical Strengths for the New Century."

Suggs will appear on "Carolina Today" on WNCT-TV Monday at 6:40 a.m.

Larceny Charge

Ray Rogers Bradley, 25, of Route 6, Greenville, was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of a radio-cassette player Thursday from Southern Pawn Shop, according to Officer H.D. Hines. The incident was reported at 11 a.m.

Officer K.R. Evans said $12 in cash was taken from Elmhurst School in a break-in reported at 7:59 a.m., while Hines said $80 in cash, several items of clothing and a kerosene heater were taken from 509 E. Gum Road in a break-in reported at 9:44 a.m.

Orbach Appointed

Michael Orbach of Greenville has been appointed to the state Marine Fisheries Commission.

Orbach, 37, is a member of the faculty of the department of sociology, anthropology and economics at East Carolina University.

He was appointed to the commission Thursday by Gov. Jim Martin to fill a vacancy created by an expired term.

Welton To Speak

Melinda Welton, project coordinator for the North Carolina Wildlife Commission's division of non-game and endangered species, will speak at Monday's 8 p.m. meeting of the Sierra Club.

Ms. Welton will discuss bald eagle and sea turtle projects and other North Carolina wildlife restoration and protection programs.

The club meets at First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm streets.

Series Continues

The Unitarian Universalist winter series, "Ethics, Economics, Politics, and Morality in the Professions," continues with another public forum at 11 a.m. Sunday in the Fellowship Hall at 499 South Oak St.

Speakers will be Drs. Sydney Barnwell and Charla Davis. Their topic will be "Problems of the Black Family." Barnwell is assistant dean for minority affairs in the East Carolina University School of Medicine and practices medicine in New Bern. Davis is a faculty member in psychology at ECU.

Scholarship Finalists

Four area high school students are among 26 finalists for the first five University Scholars scholarships at East Carolina University.

Area finalists are Rocky Ziehr, William C. Deanhardt and Josie Ruth Wilem, all of Greenville, and April J. Weatherington of Washington.

Students are being selected by nomination on the basis of scholastic achievement and leadership potential. The five winners of the $3,000-a-year ECU scholarships will be chosen next month.

Regional committee interviews will be held in Greenville, Raleigh and Greensboro on Feb. 16.

Simpson Tags

Village of Simpson officials reminded residents that they are required to purchase and display 1985 town license tags by Feb. 15 in order to avoid a penalty. The tags are available at the Town Hall for $1 per tag.

4-H Club Program

The Eastern Carolina 4-H Club will present a program in recognition of black history month at Friendship Holiness Church at noon Sunday. Local children will pay tribute to notable black leaders. Guest speakers will include Willie Carney, Earnest Brown and Ed Carter. Sunday school is at 10 a.m.

Medical Lecture

The ethical responsibility of physicians and other health care professionals to report medical negligence among their peers will be the topic of a public lecture Monday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

"On Reporting Medical Negligence" will be presented by Dr. Charles Culver in a one-hour lecture beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Culver is professor of psychiatry at Dartmouth Medical School and adjunct professor of philosophy at Dartmouth College. He earned both a medical degree and a doctorate in psychology at Duke University.

The lecture, which will be held in the hospital cafeteria's upper conference room, is sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Medicine's Department of Medical Humanities as part of its Perspectives Series. Contact the department at 757-2618 for more information.

Recruiter Aide

Terrance D. Richardson, son of Anna Richardson of Winterville and a 1984 graduate of D.H. Conley High School, has been assigned as an aide for the Army Recruiting Station in Greenville.

TERRANCE RICHARDSON

As a recruiter aide, Richardson will talk with high school seniors and graduates about Army opportunities, and tell them about his experiences in the Army.

Richardson entered the Army's delayed entry program in last July and reported for active duty in September. He is scheduled for eventual assignment to Korea.

TV Appearance

A psychology graduate of East Carolina University who has developed an expertise in hostage negotiations will be featured on the CBS Network program "60 Minutes" Sunday at 7:00 p.m.

David Swink, a psychologist in the psychodrama section at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Washington, DC, will appear in a story about how police agencies are trained to deal with attacks by terrorists and others who take hostages.

For the story, Swink said the network "filmed a simulation that we did with one of the police agencies. The simulation involves a mentally ill person taking hostages at a chemical company where he was once employed."

Swink said he was interviewed by reporter Diane Sawyer and played the part of the mentally ill attacker in the simulated exercise.

A native of Concord, Swink was awarded a bachelor's degree from ECU in 1973. He received his master's degree in 1975.

Celebration Set

The Pitt County chapter of the NAACP will have a celebration Sunday at 7 p.m. at Triumph Missionary Baptist Church on U.S. 264 east of Greenville. The program will feature Dr. C.B. Gray, pastor of Triumph Missionary Baptist Church.

Life ...

said. In fact, the number of Americans who died in 1982 was actually lower than in 1981, despite the increase in the size of the population, the center said. The total deaths in 1982 was 1,974,797, down 3,184 from 1981.

There was some good news for men in the life expectancy data. Men improved their prospects for a longer life slightly more than women, although women are still expected to outlive men. In 1982, females could expect to live an average of 78.2 years, compared to 70.9 for men.

That represents an increase of six months in male life expectancy over the 1981 figure. The life expectancy of women increased four months.

"The difference in life expectancy between the sexes, which was widening for many years, now appears to be decreasing," said the report.

Women born in 1982 can expect to outlive their male counterparts by 7.3 years. In 1981, the difference was 7.5 years. By comparison, women born in 1940 could expect to outlive males by 4.4 years.

Life expectancy among blacks improved by about eight months to 69.3 years in 1982. That was twice the improvement recorded by whites, but whites still can expect to live nearly six years more than blacks, 75.1 years.

Overall, white females have the greatest life expectancy at birth, 78.8 years, followed by black females, 73.5 years; white males, 71.5 years, and black males, 64.9 years.

Besides the record low crude death rate, the age-adjusted death rate was also the lowest ever recorded in the United States.

That rate was 553.8 deaths per 100,000 persons, down from 568.2 in 1981. The age-adjusted death rate in 1940 was 1,076.1 deaths per 100,000 persons.

The age-adjusted death rate shows what the level of deaths would have been if the population had not aged from one year to the next, and thus statisticians consider it a better indicator of changes in the risk of death than is the crude rate.

Heart disease, cancer, stroke and accidents continued to account for nearly three-quarters of all deaths in the United States in 1982.

Of the four, only cancer had a higher age-adjusted death rate than in 1981, increasing from 131.6 deaths per 100,000 Americans to a rate of 132.5 deaths in 1982.

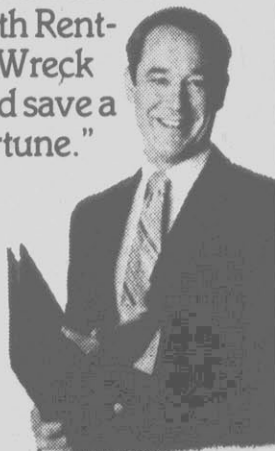

And of the 15 causes that account for nearly 90 percent of deaths in the United States only two others also increased their age-adjusted rates from 1981 to 1982 — suicide and blood poisoning.

Suicides increased 0.9 percent to a rate of 11.6 deaths per 100,000 and climbed from No. 10 to No. 8 among leading causes of death. Blood poisoning remained 15th, but increased 3.4 percent to 3 deaths per 100,000. That continued a growth that has been under way for 30 years.

Chronic liver disease dropped from 7th to 9th on the list with a 7.9 percent decline to 10.5 deaths per 100,000, and hardening of the arteries fell from 8th to 10th, declining 7.7 percent to 4.8 deaths per 100,000.

VA Chief Opposes Suggested Increase In Home Loan Fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans Administration chief Harry N. Walters said he can't support the Reagan administration's proposed increases in origination fees on VA home loans because the proposal could take some veterans out of the housing market.

Walters said Thursday he privately had opposed the home loan provisions contained in President Reagan's fiscal 1986 budget, and now he won't testify in support of the proposal before Congress. Walters proposed further studies of the fee structure.

Budget director David Stockman agreed to speak for the proposal in the VA budget, as well as similar fee increases in loan programs of other agencies, before Congress.

"My agreement with David Stockman is he'll carry the water on this. I'll testify neither for or against," Walters said.

The loan origination fee would rise from 1 percent to 5 percent of the loan amount to be paid by the borrower of a VA home mortgage, under the administration's proposal. It was proposed as one of many user fees designed to put some government programs on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Each percentage point, called loan "points," would be paid directly to the VA to cover the costs of selling a home and paying off a loan when a veteran defaults on a VA-guaranteed loan.

The head of the Mortgage Bankers Association said Wednesday that lenders may stop offering VA home loans if the fee is approved by Congress. Robert J. Spiller said some of his group's members said they would limit their VA lending under such a change "because they don't want to be a part of" the higher charges.

"I have concerns about the future of the VA program based upon this proposal," Walters said. "On the other hand, we've got a serious problem with funding of the VA loan program. Hopefully we can find some solutions...."

Walters said the agency itself won't submit legislation to make the change but would provide any information asked for by Congress.

Viet Vets Support Stockman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget director David Stockman, called a "draft dodger" by the Veterans of Foreign Wars because of his statements on military pensions, has found support from another veterans group that says the pension system needs an overhaul.

"Except for the forum and the context David Stockman couched his remarks in, we're in agreement military pensions need reform," Mike Leaveck, spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans of America, said Thursday, adding that "a pension system which costs six times what a civilian pension system costs should be re-evaluated."

Leaveck said the organization would rather see some of the money put into readjustment programs, health care and disability compensation for veterans, as well as increased incentives for people to stay in the military longer than 20 years.

Stockman caused a firestorm of criticism on Tuesday when he deplored military resistance to modifying the pension system.

"The institutional forces in the military are more concerned about protecting their retirement benefits than they are about protecting the security of the American people," Stockman told a Congressional hearing on President Reagan's proposal fiscal 1986 budget. "When push comes to shove, they'll give up on security before they give up on retirement."

But Leaveck said Stockman's lack of military service calls into question his "right to that moral indignation" the budget director voiced before Congress.

VFW Commander Billy Ray Cameron sent a telegram to President Reagan calling Stockman a "draft dodger" and labeling his remarks a slap to the military.

Stockman had a 4-D draft deferment as a divinity student during the Vietnam War.

The American Legion also called Stockman's comments "abhorrent."

Correction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Associated Press, in a story explaining the military pension system, erroneously reported Thursday that the benefits increase automatically after retirement along with active duty pay.

Actually, the benefits are not tied to active duty pay. Instead, according to the Pentagon, they are tied to the Consumer Price Index, increasing as the inflation rate goes up in a manner similar to increases in Social Security payments.

Woman Carried Fetus 60 Years

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — An 86-year-old woman hospitalized for a digestive complaint was found to be carrying a full-term, mummified fetus in her abdomen for more than 60 years, doctors said.

Dr. Daniel Garcia Saldana, head of the surgery department at the Juarez Seguro Social Hospital, said Margarita Valenzuela told them she had symptoms of pregnancy when she was 27, but that a child was never born and she never suffered a miscarriage. Garcia said her menstrual periods stopped at that time.

When Margarita Valenzuela entered the hospital this week with digestive complaints, doctors took routine X-rays.

They say the woman has a mummified, two-pound fetus in her abdomen. Although she suspected she might have something in her uterus, Garcia said the woman told them she never went to a doctor because she never felt ill.

"Fortunately, it never seemed to have affected her health," Garcia told the El Paso Times.

The digestive complaint that brought Mrs. Valenzuela to the hospital was unrelated to the presence of the petrified fetus in her womb, Garcia said.

Dr. Richard Thompson, an El Paso gynecologist, said the case was unusual, particularly because of the size of the fetus.

"It's not one of those things that's real common," he said. Garcia said it was likely doctors would release Mrs. Valenzuela from the hospital in a few days, without trying to remove the mummified fetus.

He said her age, and the fact that she's carried the fetus for more than 60 years apparently without ill effect were reasons for doctors to avoid surgery.

"It seems the most prudent to not impose the added risk of surgery on the patient," he said.

Cyprus Turns Down Hijackers' Request

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The government said today it had rejected a demand by gunmen who seized an airliner at Beirut airport for release of two of their fellow Shiite Moslems imprisoned in Cyprus.

The gunmen released their 12 hostages unharmed Thursday after receiving negotiators' assurances that Cypriot authorities had promised to consider "favorably" their demand for freeing the prisoners.

The gunmen had held their hostages nearly six hours aboard a Cyprus Airways jetliner at Beirut airport.

"The government did not accept any of the terms or preconditions for the freeing of the two prisoners in return for the release of the plane," said government spokesman Andreas Christofides at a press briefing.

In Beirut, meanwhile, a telephoned bomb threat today delayed for about an hour a Middle East Airlines flight bound for Paris. All 80 passengers and 10 crew members were evacuated from the Boeing 707 while explosives experts searched the plane, police said. No bomb was found.

Christofides said the government had been in touch with the Lebanese authorities in its efforts to secure the release of the plane.

But, he said, "we did not accept any of the demands of the hijackers and did not have any direct negotiations with them."

Still, he said the government would consider the possibility of the prisoners' release "within the usual procedures for reviewing the sentences of foreigners imprisoned in Cyprus."

Foreign prisoners are generally released before they serve their full terms.

The two prisoners were sentenced to seven years in jail in June 1983 for hijacking an airplane on a flight from Athens, Greece, to Tripoli, Libya. They surrendered peacefully at Larnaca airport in Cyprus, after holding the 32 people aboard hostage for 21 hours.

They took over the plane to press demands for the release of Imam Moussa Sadr, the religious leader of the dominant Shiite sect in Lebanon, who disappeared while on a visit to Libya in 1978.

Libya denies holding Sadr, saying he left the country on a flight to Rome on Aug. 31, 1978.

Admiral 'Cautioned,' Others Get Prison

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is investigating why the admiral who commanded the invasion of Grenada was merely "cautioned" after bringing Soviet-made weapons back to the United States, while five soldiers and two Marines were court-martialed and sentenced to jail for doing the same thing.

Officials of the U.S. Customs Service and at the Pentagon confirmed Thursday that Vice Adm. Joseph Metcalf III and several aides had been prevented from unloading 24 captured, Soviet AK-47 automatic rifles on Nov. 3, 1983, as they returned from the Grenadian operation. According to Cliff Stallings, the Customs Service spokesman for the Southeast region, the weapons were seized by agents at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, Va., who then turned the case over to the Naval Investigative Service.

Navy Secretary John Lehman said Thursday he talked to Metcalf and told the admiral he should "see that his staff more carefully researches the regulations to see that they are in full compliance of the handling of war souvenirs."

Capt. Brent Baker, a Navy spokesman, echoed Lehman's remarks and added that Metcalf, "is now in compliance with those regulations. The Navy considers the matter closed."

Spokesmen for the Army and Marines confirmed, however, that seven men had already been court-martialed for bringing rifles back from Grenada — two of them were also accused of trying to sell rifles — and that at least one other Marine is still facing a court-martial.

Inquiries about the disparate treatment of Metcalf and the servicemen eventually prompted the Pentagon's public affairs office to release a brief statement Thursday, saying: "This matter involves allegations of offenses under the primary jurisdiction of the Navy and Army. The circumstances are being investigated. Further comment is inappropriate."

ADM. JOSEPH METCALF III

The National Firearms Act as well as military regulations prohibit the importation of automatic weapons into the United States. In the case of the military, regulations specifically prohibit the importation of any automatic weapon such as the AK-47, specifying that all such arms become the property of the U.S. government.

Metcalf, 56, was the commander of the Navy's 2nd Fleet when U.S. forces invaded Grenada in October 1983. On Sept. 30, 1984, he was promoted to the post of deputy chief of operations for surface warfare at the Pentagon, receiving the Defense Superior Service Medal at the end of his tour.

Efforts to contact Metcalf Thursday were unsuccessful. Lt. Cmdr. Bill Harlow, another Navy spokesman, said he was traveling and unavailable for comment.

The fact that Metcalf has changed jobs, and the Navy's refusal to discuss details of the incident, suggests the disciplinary action taken against the admiral was "non-punitive" and thus that there is no permanent strike against him in his service record.

The armed services provide information to reporters when asked about punitive sanctions, such as a court-martial, but routinely refuse to discuss such matters if the action is "non-punitive."

Baker and other officials refused to discuss the standard used in judging Metcalf versus the soldiers.

The Army said, though, it had court-martialed five men — all members of the 82nd Airborne — for bringing captured weapons home and in one case, trying to sell a rifle.

All five were found guilty, received prison sentences and were ordered discharged. Two of the five have already served their time in prison; two are still in prison, and one has yet to serve any time because he is appealing, said Lt. Col. Craig MacNab, a spokesman.

The Army identified the five as Capt. John E. Dorsz and Staff Sgt. Allen Cassatt, who have already been released; Sgt. Bruce Willard, who is appealing his case; and Spec. 4 Shaun Hayes and Spec. 4 Monty Crumrine, who are currently in prison.

MacNab identified Willard as the soldier who allegedly tried to sell an automatic rifle to an agent of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Service of the Treasury Department.

A Marine spokesman, Maj. Fred C. Lash, identified one of the Marines who was court-martialed as Cpl. Christopher P. Kalman of the 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit, attached to Camp LeJeune, N.C.

Kalman was found guilty of bringing an AK-47 and a Soviet PK-150 submachine gun back and selling them. He was sentenced to a dishonorable discharge, reduced to private, and sentenced to three years in prison and forfeiture of all pay, Lash said.

Capt. Mark Hough, another Marine spokesman, said late Thursday a second Marine had been court-martialed, convicted, sentenced to 45 days in prison and reduced one grade. Hough was unable to immediately identify the man. Both Hough and Lash added the Marine Corps has at least one other similar case pending.

Westmoreland Defense Changing Tactics

NEW YORK (AP) — The defense has abruptly changed course in retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland's $120 million libel suit against CBS, putting aside military witnesses to return network producer George Crile to the stand.

Crile's latest testimony has focused on his "state of mind" when he prepared the 1982 documentary "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception."

The broadcast accused Westmoreland of suppressing vital information about enemy strength at the height of the ground war, a charge Westmoreland called a false and malicious attack on his reputation.

To win the suit, Westmoreland's lawyers must prove the documentary was false and that CBS broadcast it either knowing it was false or with reckless disregard for the truth.

For most of the past month, CBS lawyer David Boies has concentrated on former military or CIA officers who said they were part of a 1967 tug-of-war between Westmoreland's Saigon staff and the CIA.

The documentary said the now-retired Westmoreland, who commanded American forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968, forced his staff in 1967 to reject enemy strength estimates higher than 300,000 troops despite CIA insistence that the best evidence put the figure at more than 500,000 troops.

The CBS witnesses, mostly middle-rank military or intelligence officers, testified Westmoreland put an arbitrary ceiling on the estimate because he feared a higher figure would contradict his pronouncements that America was winning the war.

Westmoreland's witnesses, mostly higher-ranking officers — himself included — and former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, testified earlier that President Lyndon B. Johnson and other leaders were fully informed on enemy strength.

The network's witnesses were supposed to convince the jury the broadcast was accurate. But Crile's testimony Thursday tried to show that whatever the truth of the broadcast, CBS had good reason to believe what it was saying when the show was aired.

Crile testified he disbelieved

Westmoreland's explanation of the enemy strength controversy — that it was "absurd" and brief — because the general's story "flew in the face" of what his former subordinates were saying.

"I felt that Gen. Westmoreland was not being candid," Crile said.

Fat Trooper Gets Another Chance

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A 5-foot-9 Florida Highway Patrolman fired for being overweight at 320 pounds has been reinstated to a desk job and can go back on patrol if he slims down to 187 pounds.

Kevin Killoran, who was fired last spring for being overweight, won't lose seniority or time toward retirement. In return, he has agreed to drop claims for damages, back pay, attorney fees and other legal costs, according to the settlement.

If the 10-year-veteran manages to slim down to the required 187 pounds by April 30, 1986, he can return to street duty — the job he held before he was fired last spring.

So far he's trimmed about 100 pounds from his 320-pound frame.

Killoran was fired while he was in the hospital having his stomach stapled. It's a surgical procedure designed to reduce food intake and force a patient to shed unwanted pounds.

"I can't comment on anything," said Killoran after the case was settled this week and signed by U.S.

District Judge William Castagna in Tampa.

"We basically made them one offer and this was it," said Assistant Attorney General Harry Chiles.

Republican Senators May Endorse Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders are inching toward endorsement of a one-year freeze on Social Security benefits, a politically dicey proposal they say would only come with $50 billion worth of cuts in domestic and defense programs.

"We have agreed to put the change ... in our package" on the condition that support for the other spending cuts can be found, Senate GOP Leader Robert Dole of Kansas told a meeting of bankers Thursday.

He said President Reagan could be persuaded to go along with the move, even though it is not in his budget, "if we have a bipartisan group (in Congress) willing to make the change."

At the same time they discussed a possible Social Security freeze, Dole and other Republicans turned up the heat on the president to accept less than the $30 billion defense spending increase in his 1986 fiscal year budget.

Addressing Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger at a Budget Committee hearing, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said the nation's security needs can be met at a spending level "smaller in the next three years than the level requested by the president."

Weinberger, who insists the president's $277.5 billion defense request should not be trimmed, said freezing military spending with an adjustment for inflation — as many senators have suggested — would "decimate" major weapons systems and jeopardize national security. Domenici, who chairs the budget panel, challenged the list of cuts that Weinberger said would result from a freeze, and other Republicans said there is increasing support among GOP lawmakers for holding Pentagon spending increases to 3 percent a year for each of the next three years.

The increased pressure on the administration to compromise on its defense budget and the talk of a Social Security freeze are part of a major effort by Dole, Domenici and other Senate Republicans to come up with a program to reduce federal deficits by $54 billion or more next year and roughly $230 billion over three years.

That would exceed the targets set in Reagan's own budget. By including Social Security and defense on the list of cuts, lawmakers could finance such politically popular programs as revenue sharing that the president wants to cut deeply or eliminate.

Bank Will Pay Fine Of $500,000

BOSTON (AP) — Individuals within the First National Bank of Boston could face criminal charges if an investigation turns up evidence, federal officials said after the bank was fined $500,000 for failing to file currency reports.

U.S. District Judge David Mazzone said he was concerned by the "absence of individual defendants" Thursday when lawyers for the bank pleaded guilty to the charge stemming from $1.2 billion in cash transactions with foreign banks.

Special prosecutor Patrick M. Walsh assured Mazzone that the investigation was continuing and that his office decided to file charges against the company "for tactical and other reasons" before moving on to individuals.

However the government will "proceed against individuals or the bank itself" if evidence warrants it, U.S. Attorney William Weld said at a news conference.

Authorities said most of the $1.2 billion was in denominations of less than $20 when it was shipped overseas and back between 1980 and 1984. The bank is New England's largest.

The Internal Revenue Service requires documentation of foreign interbank transactions in excess of $10,000. Authorities say that helps track investments by organized crime, drug operations and public corruption.

"We're making no allegations in this case as to the source or destination of the money," Weld said.

The bank admitted failing to file the reports of cash transactions on more than 993 deposits totalling $528 million and on 170 withdrawals totalling $690 million. Walsh said the transactions involved nine banks, primarily in Switzerland, and included two in New York and one in Canada.

The bank said the charge arose from the bank's routine international correspondent banking business, in which major foreign banks keep accounts at Bank of Boston. Into those accounts, those banks deposit U.S. currency received by them overseas.

Chinese Society Says Legendary 'Wild Man' Found

PEKING (AP) — A legendary Chinese "wild man," a little over three feet tall and covered with hair, has been captured in the mountains of Hunan province, according to a Chinese newspaper. But others suspect it's a short-tailed monkey.

The creature is being kept in a heated apartment in the city of Wuhan and "drinks water with a dipper, eats food like a man and produces sounds like an old man," according to the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone Daily.

The paper quoted the Chinese Society of Wild Man Research in Wuhan, which has been wrong before in claiming to have found the Chinese version of the Abominable Snowman.

The society's last find was in October but that turned out to be a short-tailed monkey, the official China Daily said in Peking today, casting doubt on the latest report's credibility.

China Daily, an English-language newspaper, quoted leading anthropologists as saying they had been informed of the "discovery" but won't believe it until they examine the creature.

A spokesman for the Paleanthropology Institute in Peking said it was informed of Wuhan's claim but added: "It's not worth going. We believe it's a monkey, not a wild man."

The official Xinhua news agency said it had obtained a picture of the beast but a photo editor told The Associated Press, "we suspect it's a short-tailed monkey so we're not going to release it unless it's verified as a wild man by scientists."

The Shenzhen paper quoted Li Guangyu of the Wild Man society as saying "the captured male wild man is 1.1 meters (3-feet, 3½-inches) tall, weighs 25 kilograms (58 pounds), has hair all over its body and a face that looks a lot like a modern man."

Attempts to reach the society by telephone from Peking were unsuccessful. The operator said the society apparently has no telephone.

Apemen stories abound in Chinese history, including poet Chu Yuan's third century B.C. description of "mountain ogres," and a 7th-century historian's tales of a tribe of "hairy men" in central China. Later accounts say the monkey-like creatures may be an evolutionary link between apes and humans.

Like Scotland's Loch Ness monster and America's "big foot," no evidence of a "wild man" — the Chinese call it "ye ren" — has been verified.

The Wild Man Institute in Wuhan called a national conference last August and announced a $3,570 reward to anyone who captures the beast alive — half of that for a wild man's corpse.

The China Daily said reported eyewitness accounts paint a picture of a creature that walks upright, is covered with brown or gray hair, is omnivorous but reeks of garlic and is "liable to fend off attackers with a volley of well-aimed stones."

Youth's Fortune Goes Unclaimed

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — No one has claimed the $19,012 a 14-year-old boy had buried near his home and passed out to friends at school, but police say they aren't looking too hard for the owner because no crime has been reported.

"We don't plan to go out and solicit people to claim this money," said Escambia County Sheriff's Lt. Joel Mooneyham.

Deputies recovered $2,462 from students Wednesday after Ransom Middle School authorities found out the kids were carrying wads of $20, $50 and $100 bills. The youth who passed out the money said he had taken it from a "family member" and showed officers where he had buried another $16,450 in a yellow plastic pitcher, Mooneyham said Thursday.

Deputies haven't talked to the family member and don't plan to "at this time" because no crime has been reported, he said. He refused to identify the person or his relationship to the youth, but indicated it wasn't either parent. Mooneyham said if the money isn't claimed it would go to the sheriff's department under the state's "finders-keepers" law.

The youngster wouldn't be able to get it back because he had admitted it wasn't his, he said. "He voluntarily turned the money over to us."

The boy had passed out the cash to seven other students "because they were his friends," said Deputy Bill Lewis, a narcotics officer.

"He hasn't violated any law as far as we know," Mooneyham said. But, he added, "He may be in trouble with his parents."

Anyone claiming the money would be questioned by the Internal Revenue Service as well as lawmen, said Lt. Donn Parker, a spokesman for the sheriff's department.

Former Addict To Help Run Nancy's Drug Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan has enlisted a former addict who was involved with drugs "as deep as you can get" to help expand her campaign against drug abuse.

Kenneth Barun, 36, says it is "absolutely inconceivable" that he is in the White House. "If you had told me back then that I'd be sitting here today, well ...," his voice trailed off.

With a wave of his hand, the soft-spoken Barun indicates the sense of wonder that comes with his new and unfamiliar territory — the antique-furnished, East Wing offices used by the first lady's staff.

Barun, with his gentlemanly manners, elegant double-breasted pin stripes and glistening Rolex watch, doesn't appear to be the least bit out of place.

Yet he is the first to admit that he has come a long, long way.

Barun was appointed this week to the $60,000-a-year position as Mrs. Reagan's director of projects, which will allow him to help showcase her fight against drug abuse.

Part of the job will be helping with an international "summit" designed to bring together the wives of world leaders to discuss the problem. The meeting is planned for the spring.

"It's a universal problem. Languages are different by emotions are not," Barun said in an interview Thursday. "Mrs. Reagan has a way of touching those emotions."

Barun said it is "not a secret" that he was involved in drugs. They became the center of his life while at Long Island University in Brooklyn, N.Y., he said.

"How deeply was I involved? As deep as you can get," he said. The drugs ran the gamut from marijuana and cocaine to heroin.

U.S. Grain Sales To Soviets Expand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new round of sales has pushed U.S. grain exports to the Soviet Union close to a seven-year-old record level, and there are still more than seven months to go in the year.

The Agriculture Department announced Thursday that the Soviets have bought an additional 950,000 metric tons of corn — about 37.4 million bushels — for delivery through Sept. 30. Including wheat, that raised total grain sales to the Soviet Union since Oct. 1 to more than 15.3 million tons.

According to the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, that would be the most U.S. grain shipped to Moscow since a record 15.5 million tons in 1978-79.

Shipments dropped to below 10 million tons each in 1979-80 and 1980-81 in the wake of then-President Carter's partial grain embargo in retaliation for the Soviet action in Afghanistan.

Wheat and corn exports jumped to 13.9 million tons in 1981-82 but slumped again to 6.2 million tons in 1982-83.

After a new long-term grain agreement was signed, shipments rebounded to 14.5 million tons in 1983-84.

The latest sale was reported to the department by private exporters, as required by law. No prices or other details were disclosed in the announcement.

However, the department says the latest estimated farm price of corn is $2.62 per bushel. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

Thus, the latest sales would have an estimated U.S. farm value of about $98 million.

Credit Official Says U.S. Farm Crisis May Worsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rural bankers and Agriculture Secretary John Block agree that farmers haven't seen the worst of their financial problems, but they part company over who should be responsible for helping growers through their hard times.

"The situation is continuing to worsen," said Donald E. Wilkinson, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, whose member institutions hold the largest single share of the nation's $216 billion farm debt.

Wilkinson, speaking Thursday at a hearing before the House Agriculture credit subcommittee, urged establishment of a new government corporation that could buy, at a discount, the problem loans of Farm Credit System banks to relieve them of that burden.

The system lost $368 million last year in bad loans, but Wilkinson said overall, its 37 banks have sufficient reserves "to meet the present challenge."

He said a new $650 million loan guarantee program announced by the Reagan administration is unworkable because it requires banks to write down interest rates to farm borrowers enough to make monthly payments more affordable.

"I have a feeling, sir, that the administration does not view the agricultural credit situation as seriously as those of us who are deeply involved," he told the hearing, called by subcommittee chairman Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn.

Addressing a session of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Block concurred that the credit crisis has not yet bottomed out, but said farmers must look to state governments and to their own banks — not to Washington — for further help.

"We expect that we will see increasing proportions of farmers with financial problems, continued declines in farm asset values, increasing proportions of debt in trouble and increasing problems of lender distress," Block told the panel.

He said the credit rescue plan he announced Wednesday would help keep some farmers from sliding into insolvency and shore them up enough to plant crops this spring.

But "even with these initiatives, I would contend that the government cannot stop the direction of the adjustments that are taking place in the agricultural sector, but can minimize the pain of the adjustments that are taking place," he said.

Block noted that since 1981, the value of farm assets — land, buildings and machinery that are the collateral for much of the problem debt — has plummeted by $100 billion. Government cannot erase that deficit, he said.

Frank Naylor, Block's under secretary for credit programs, predicted there would be a brisk flow of applications under the program in the next two to three weeks. But some members of the House panel were skeptical.

Rep. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., called it "a warmed-over version of the crumbs we got last fall" when the administration made its first credit relief offer. The earlier offer was largely ignored by lenders because of what they called onerous preconditions.

"I don't think it's any more practical. I don't think bankers are going to be any more willing to use it," Daschle said.

Meanwhile, more than a dozen bills promising additional, liberalized relief for farmers were pending in the House and Senate, and Jones said he planned to move ahead on such legislation soon after Congress returns from a recess Feb. 19.

Shuttle's Flight Set For March 7

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The next flight of the space shuttle, originally scheduled for Feb. 20, will be launched 11 days late, NASA officials announced.

"The reason for the delay is additional work to be done with the heat rejection tiles," National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Steve Nesbitt said Thursday.

The planned four-day mission of the shuttle Challenger, which includes Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, among the seven-member crew, would be launched no earlier than March 3 from Cape Kennedy at 7:31 a.m. EST, Nesbitt said.

The shuttle would return to Florida on March 7 at about 8:32 a.m.

The Challenger, attached to its launch rocket, is slated to begin moving from its processing facility to the Vehicle Assembly Building at the Kennedy Space Center at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Nesbitt said the delay would not affect the planned March 19 launch of the next mission, which uses the shuttle Discovery.

Increase Reported In Adoption Ads

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — The classified ads are usually from well-off couples in the metropolitan New York or Boston area. The ads say the couple will offer "love, security, all material advantages."

Wanted: a "white newborn."

The price: $8,000 to $12,000.

A recent increase in such advertisements in Vermont newspapers has state adoption officials wondering how widespread the practice is and concerned about a lack of safeguards.

"This is a new phenomena," said Jeffery Johnson, director of Vermont Children's Aid Society, the largest non-profit child welfare program in the state. "I have never seen this many ads before here in the state."

"We have become aware of them within the last two years," said Maureen Thompson, head of the state's adoption services. "But there have been a whole lot of them lately."

Fifteen personal ads for adoptions were placed in Sunday editions of the Burlington Free Press and the Sunday Rutland Herald-Times Argus.

The increase is a result of difficulty in adopting children in metropolitan areas, Ms. Thompson said. "Since there are so very few healthy infants available, they have to search farther away. They have to advertise as far away as Vermont."

In Vermont, where private adoptions are legal, social workers call the process the "gray market" because the money paid to a mother who places her child for adoption is much less than in other states.

In those areas, the high cost has created a "black market."

Adoption officials and a New York woman seeking to adopt a child through a classified advertisement say that the price of private adoption in Vermont is between $8,000 to $12,000. In New York or New Jersey, where it is illegal, it can cost $20,000.

In 1984, there were about 300 adoptions in Vermont. Johnson believes about 100 of those adoptions were private, including many who used newspaper ads.

A Hicksville, N.Y., woman, who would not give her name in a telephone interview Wednesday, said she and her husband have placed a classified ad in Vermont newspapers for the last two months.

"I would say it is impossible to go through an agency," she said. "You have to wait years."

She said she and her husband successfully adopted a girl two years ago through a newspaper ad. She would not say where her adopted daughter was from.

Her ad is typical: "Happily married couple with much love and security to give desires to adopt white newborn. Confidential. Call collect."

Other ads report of the "advantages of warm, loving, secure home," or "all material advantages available."

Ms. Thompson said she is not opposed to the newspaper advertisements because "I am not aware of any horrible situations ... but many people do have problems."

Johnson, on the other hand, said, "It raises some issues. We're talking about children. I am concerned about the processes involved, the risk involved for children and the families. The controls are not very strong."

Under state law, if a child is adopted by a family outside Vermont, the case must be reported to the state.

'Prophet' Kills Priest, Two Others

ONALASKA, Wis. (AP) — A church leader called for forgiveness after a man identifying himself as a Biblical prophet who fought the worship of false gods went into a church and killed three men, including a priest who allowed girls to read scripture during Mass.

"This is a day I'll never forget, to have somebody walk into a church like that and shoot randomly at innocent people," said Sister Rose Frances Phalin, principal of St. Patrick's School, after the Rev. John Rossiter, lay minister Ferdinand L. Roth Sr. and custodian William G. Hammes were felled.

The bodies of Rossiter, 64, and Roth, 55, were found in the St. Patrick's Catholic Church sanctuary shortly after a morning Mass attended by children from the parish school next door.

Police said a man who called himself Elijah and objected to girls reading scripture during Mass blasted the three with a shotgun.

Rossiter was shot just after he had hugged some of the children and they had returned to the school. Sister Phalin said that after Rossiter and Roth were shot, the gunman went to the church basement where Hammes, 66, was slain.

Funeral services are scheduled Monday for Rossiter, Roth and Hammes. A morning Mass was scheduled today at the parish school. Because a violent death occurred in the church, it must be reconsecrated next week before religious functions can be held there, officials said.

In coming weeks, Sister Phalin said, the school will have to turn its attention to emotional effects the slaying had on the children and try to make sure they leave no permanent scars.

"How do you deal with such a tragedy?" asked the Rev. Bernard McGarty, diocese communications director. "I think we deal with it with faith, with forgiveness, with hope."

"It's awful," said Loren Kannenber, a teacher at the school. "Who knows why? People trigger off for the weirdest reasons."

The gunman identified himself as Elijah after he was arrested a few blocks away carrying a shotgun, said police Chief John Dlouhy and La Crosse District Attorney Scott Horne.

He was identified as Bryan Stanley, 29, who moved to this Mississippi River town of 10,000 two days earlier from La Crosse, Horne said.

Stanley will be charged Monday with three counts of first-degree murder, Horne said. Authorities had not been able to determine a motive, he said.

Martin Says He'll Wait On Legislature

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says his State of the State address will be ready Feb. 19, but he'll delay it if the General Assembly isn't ready to listen.

"If they don't want to hear it until the 28th, they'll hear it on the 28th," said Martin in a news conference Thursday. "They'll have to hear it sometime."

Tension heightened between Martin and Democratic legislative leaders as the Republican governor rejected a Senate request to submit his 1985-87 budget and deliver his speech Feb. 28. Martin sent letters to Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey asking to be heard Feb. 19, and said he would send his budget "soon" afterward.

"He needs to get his act together and bring (his proposals) to us," said Jordan, complaining that the Legislature can't begin a detailed review of the budget without Martin's requests.

The Senate approved Tuesday a resolution setting the later date. The House Rules Committee is scheduled to debate it Wednesday, and Ramsey said it will pass unless the Senate amends it. Jordan said the Senate "has spoken."

"Governor Martin has had a ... budget staff over there working for him since Dec. 15," said Jordan. "I don't think we ought to have to tack days onto the end of this Legislature at $45,000 a day just to accommodate his unwillingness to go ahead and make those decisions."

Martin said legislative leaders were portraying him as stubborn.

"I'm not being recalcitrant," said Martin. "And I hope the General Assembly understands that. I'm trying to open up the process, make (it) more public, and not surprise them at the end."

Martin said he was ahead of the pace set by his predecessors as they prepared their first budgets, but later acknowledged that former Gov. Jim Holshouser submitted his State of the State speech and budget simultaneously in January 1973.

Martin defended the time it's taking to complete his revisions to the $16.8 billion budget prepared by former Gov. Jim Hunt and his Advisory Budget Commission. Martin is expected to propose significant cuts and other changes to leave room for his $443.5 million tax-cut package.

He said he's had to organize an administration and select a cabinet since his election Nov. 6.

"We have been working diligently on this (the budget)," said Martin, "and doing it in a way that I hope will permit me to ... defend all my proposals, not just to throw out a bunch of proposals that I haven't thoroughly considered."

Ramsey said Martin's budget officer, C.C. Cameron, helped write Hunt's budget as a member of the ABC.

"They're familiar with it," said Ramsey. "We've got work to do and the longer they stall us, the longer we'll be here."

Jordan said he and Ramsey first suggested to Martin that he deliver his speech the first Monday after the Legislature convened — Feb. 11 — but that Martin requested more time.

The speech then was scheduled for Feb. 19, but when lawmakers learned that Martin had said he hoped to submit the budget around 10 days thereafter, they decided to suggest a postponement, Jordan said.

Jordan said he heard that Martin's administration had decided only Wednesday night how much the tax-cut package would cost. Jack Hawke, Martin's policy assistant, disagreed.

"We made the decision on the cost of tax program in August or September, during the campaign," said Hawke. Martin and his staff made some spending decisions Wednesday night, but "they weren't the first or the last," said Hawke.

IN THE STATE

Kirk Says Hospitals Will Stay

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Human Resources Secretary Phil Kirk says he has no plans to close any state hospitals, training centers or other facilities administered by his department.

But Kirk told legislators that if they want to talk about large cuts in spending, they'll have to talk about closing institutions.

"But any time you go after big savings in tax dollars, you face the unpopular decisions about closing institutions," Kirk said. "I'm saying if you want to save big money, that's where the big money is."

Kirk said he was not sure how the budget proposed by President Reagan would affect his department, which gets two-thirds of its $2 billion budget from the federal government. But he said he would not seek more federal funding.

"In view of the $180 billion federal deficit, the Martin administration will not be lobbying Congress for any additional money," Kirk said. "I have met with several congressmen and asked them to keep the block grants coming, but without any strings attached. They asked us not to seek any new money in view of the deficit problem."

Kirk brought a roar of laughter from the legislators when he said his department was facing several "non-controversial" issues like abortion and day-care regulations this year.

"The Martin administration is going to seek the removal of $1.3 million in the state budget for abortions (for poor women)," Kirk said. "We do intend to have an abortion fund for cases of rape, incest or where the mother's life is threatened."

Kirk said afterward the administration is not debating the issue of abortion.

"We are not talking about abortion as a moral issue," Kirk said. "Obviously, it has been ruled to be legal. What we're addressing is the use of state money for abortions."

Kirk said the administration doesn't yet have a position on some recommended changes in day-care regulations.

"I agree that consolidation is needed (of agencies dealing with day-care rules), but I'm not sure yet whether we need to create a new division for day care or consolidate under an existing agency.

"I definitely feel we need training regulations for day-care employees," he said. "I am concerned about staff ratios, but I don't want to put day-care services out of the reach of people."

On other issues, Kirk said his department:

— Has applied for a private foundation grant to study "single portal of entry" methods for government aid. The program would allow people seeking aid to go to one office and fill out one form to be considered for a variety of government help.

— Will put a high priority on workforce programs that are now being operated in eight counties.

— Will continue moving his department's offices from leased space to state-owned space, with a goal of putting the entire department in vacant buildings at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh.

In other legislative action: The Senate narrowly rejected a motion by Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, to suspend the rules so he could introduce a bill to create a state Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, one of those opposing suspending the rules told Hipps he agreed with the bill, but did not want to suspend the rules for non-urgent matters.

The bill asks the governor to immediately establish by executive order a Carolina Missing Children's Information Center, and establish safety houses in each county. It also calls for call-back programs in each school to check on absent children.

The bill also would establish the North Carolina Center for Missing and Exploited Children to coordinate and publicize reports of missing children and help law enforcement agencies responding to missing children reports.

Governor Stands Firm On Tax Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin has praised Democratic lawmakers for their cooperation in putting forth tax-reduction proposals, but said he won't back down from his own package for a piecemeal approach.

"If I start backing off, I think we'll end up where we ended up last year, and the year before that (when tax repeal was rejected)," Martin said Thursday at a news conference. "I think we have to have a coherent, clearly understood goal."

Since the 1985 General Assembly convened Tuesday, Democrats have proposed phasing out the inventory and intangibles taxes, lowering the state income tax rate for the poor, and granting an income tax credit for payments of the sales tax on food.

None of the bills embodies Martin's proposal to repeal the tax on food and non-prescription medicines by Jan. 1, 1986; the tax on business inventories by July 1, 1986; and the tax on inventories between July 1, 1986, and July 1, 1988. Legislative analysts have put a $443.5 million price tag on Martin's package.

Intangibles tax phaseouts advocated by Sens. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, and Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, would affect only bank accounts, not stocks and bonds as Martin wants. Also, Martin opposes lowering the income tax rate as suggested by House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

Martin said he opposed letting each county decide for itself whether to levy the inventory tax, as Winner's bill would do, because that way counties would get no replacement money from the state.

"While it gives them an option, (the option is) to raise property taxes," Martin said.

He said the intangibles tax should be repealed completely, not partially.

"It is harmful to investment in North Carolina. ... While we're experiencing growth, we're also losing jobs in existing industry. We need to repeal that tax, get rid of it."

Martin acknowledged that some observers interpreted the Democratic bills as an attempt to reap any political benefits stemming from popular tax relief, but said he didn't agree.

"I feel that's an effort (on the Democrats' part) to show a spirit of cooperation," he said, adding that the bills — combined with his own proposals — would produce "a good, wholesome, healthy discussion."

On another topic, Martin said he opposes raising the minimum age for drinking beer and wine from 19 to 21, but conceded the Legislature probably will do it to avoid losing federal highway money.

Attention Greenville Citizens

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE QUESTION OF REMOVING 49.21 ACRES FROM THE EXTRATERRITORIAL JURISDICTION OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building on February 14, 1985 at 7:30 p.m. on the question of the adoption of an ordinance removing a certain parcel of land from the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the City. The property to be removed from the extraterritorial zoning jurisdiction of the City is as follows:

To Wit: W.E. Dansey; Tommie L. Little Property; 49.209 acres

Location: Winterville Township, Pitt County, South of NCSR 1708, being adjacent to the N.C. Forestry Service property and Evans Mobile Home Park

Tract # 1. This property has approximately 870 feet of frontage along NCSR 1708, is opposite the property owned by Verna H. Worthington and Lawrence A. Stocks, and is adjacent to the North Carolina Forestry Service property. It contains approximately 3.576 acres, including the road right-of-way.

Tract # 2. This property is south of Tract # 1 and is adjacent to Evans Mobile Home Park and adjacent to the following property owners: Charlotte S. Langston, Dr. M. T. Frizzelle Heirs, Harry M. Dudley. This property contains approximately 45.833 acres.

If the City Council adopts the proposed ordinance, it will declare Ordinance No. 1442 null and void, thus removing the 49.209 acres from the extraterritorial zoning jurisdiction of the City of Greenville.

During this public hearing, objections or suggestions will be duly considered by City Council. All interested persons are requested to be present at the hearing, and they will be afforded an opportunity to be heard.

A copy of the proposed ordinance is on file at the City Clerk's office located at 201 W. Fifth Street, and is available for public inspection during normal working hours Monday through Friday. BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE, NC BY ADDING A DEFINITION OF, AND SPECIFIC REGULATIONS FOR, SATELLITE DISH ANTENNAE

Pursuant to Article 19, Chapter 160A of the General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, NC, will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building in the City of Greenville, NC, on February 14, 1985, at 7:30 p.m. on the question of the adoption of an ordinance amending the Zoning Ordinance by adding a definition of, and specific regulations for, satellite dish antennae.

Section 1. Section 32-3 will be amended by adding the following definition:
"Satellite dish antenna - an apparatus capable of receiving communications from a transmitter or a transmitter relay located in planetary orbit."

Section 2. Section 32-95 A-4 will be amended by adding the following use which may be considered as an accessory use:
(n) Satellite dish antenna, subject to Section 32-95 A-5d and 5e

Section 3. Section 32-95 A-5 will be amended by adding the following specific regulations for satellite dish antennae:
(d) Satellite dish antenna for residential uses:
(1) Satellite dish antennae may be placed in the rear yard in accordance with the setbacks established for conventional accessory structures. In addition, satellite dish antennae may be placed in the side yard provided the side yard setback for the district in which it is located is observed and provided further that a visual buffer in accordance with these provisions be established between the side yard in which the satellite dish is located and street right-of-ways and abutting residential uses or residentially zoned property. Satellite dish antennae are prohibited from front yards. Further, satellite dish antennae exceeding four (4) feet in diameter shall not be permitted on any roof top.

(2) Required buffers may consist of an earth berm, evergreen vegetation or solid fence or any combination of the three. An alternative buffer may be substituted with prior approval from the Planning Office. All buffers, except evergreen vegetation, must create a complete visual buffer between the satellite dish antenna and the property lines and right-of-way line where they are required at the time they are established. When evergreen vegetation is used to satisfy these requirements, a complete visual buffer between the satellite dish antenna and the property line and right-of-way line where a buffer is required must be established within one year after planting.

- (3) Satellite dish antennae may not exceed fifteen (15) feet in height and shall not exceed fifteen (15) feet in diameter.
- (4) There shall be no more than one satellite dish antenna per residential lot.
- (e) Satellite dish antennae for non-residential uses:
(1) Satellite dish antennae shall comply with the setback requirements of the district in which they are located.
- (2) Establishments which sell satellite dish antennae may display an antennae no closer than ten (10) feet to any street right-of-way.
- (3) Where abutting a residential use and a buffer is not already established, a buffer shall be required between the satellite dish antenna and the residential use. Such buffer shall be in accordance with the buffer requirements of section 32-95 A-5d-2.

A public hearing was scheduled on January 10, 1985, and during this public hearing, there was some concern voiced by a citizen stating that the TV dish antennae should not be located in a side yard. This item was continued until the February 14, 1985 meeting of City Council. During this meeting, consideration will be given to locating TV dish antennae in side and rear yards in residential districts. The ordinance to be considered may add additional requirements, such as the color of the dish antennae and the buffer requirements shall be at a minimum height of six feet when the dish is located in the side yard.
During this public hearing scheduled for February 14, 1985, objections or suggestions will be duly considered by City Council. All interested persons are requested to be present at the hearing, and they will be afforded an opportunity to be heard.
A copy of the proposed ordinance is on file at the City Clerk's office located at 201 W. Fifth Street, and is available for public inspection during normal working hours Monday through Friday. BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

Rose Letter Defended

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Accused of trying to threaten tobacco companies, U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., actually supports a lower federal excise tax on cigarettes, a Rose aide says.

But Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., said Wednesday a letter Rose mailed to tobacco companies threatens manufacturers by implying that they should buy 812 million pounds of surplus tobacco at reduced prices or risk losing the support of tobacco-state congressman.

"The letter said, in effect, that if the tobacco companies don't help out with the surplus, we won't fight the 8-cent increase in cigarette taxes," Neal said in a news release. "I hope the companies will help ... but even if they don't, it's important that we keep fighting the higher cigarette tax, and I intend to keep fighting it."

Rose, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts, mailed a letter to major domestic cigarette makers this week urging them to buy surplus tobacco in exchange for congressional support for reducing federal excise taxes on cigarettes.

"It was meant to highlight the animosity that growers are demonstrating toward those major companies because of the imports being purchased by those companies," said Ivan Smith, an aide to Rose. "Charlie Rose is not out to create tobacco company problems, he's out to support a lower cigarette tax."

The federal excise tax on cigarettes, which was doubled to 16 cents a pack in 1982, is scheduled to drop to 8 cents a pack on Oct. 1. Some congressmen have proposed keeping the tax at 16 cents to help reduce the federal deficit.

Neal declined to sign Rose's letter, said James Taylor, an aide to Neal.

Indictments Returned

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Seven more people have been indicted on charges of mail and wire fraud in connection with the FBI's national "Dipscam" probe of mail-order diploma mills.

Charged with using the mail or telephone to obtain money by false pretenses were: Anthony James Gerentino, 41, of Reynoldsburg, Ohio; James Robert Caffey, 54, of Springfield, Mo.; Donald George Minnich, 46, of Sedona, Ariz.; Viola M. Clark, 32, of Columbus, Ohio; Martha Julia Jupinko, 36, of Tucson, Ariz.; Larry Edward Pfalzgraf, 42, of Pickerington, Ohio; and Lucille Crawford, 74, of St. George, Utah.

The charges were contained in a 30-page indictment returned Thursday by a federal grand jury meeting in Charlotte.

The seven are accused of doing business under the names of one or more of 22 so-called schools, guidance centers and alumni associations, including the Northwestern College of Allied Science, American Western University, Southwestern University and Vocational Guidance Inc.

The operations had post office boxes or addresses in Ohio, Arizona, Oklahoma and Missouri, the indictment said. Although the schools aren't based in the Tar Heel state, the indictments were returned in Charlotte because some diplomas were sent to North Carolinians.

The seven schools awarded diplomas for a price, "without any actual attendance or new work being required on the part of the prospective graduate," the indictment said.

Depending on the school, prices ranged from $45 for a high school equivalency diploma to $1,450 for a doctorate.

FEC Sues Agencies Linked To Helms

By DENNIS PATTERSON

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Claims in a Federal Elections Commission lawsuit that the National Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing Inc. violated election law are groundless, says the club's executive director.

R.E. Carter Wrenn, also director of a private foundation that owns Jefferson Marketing, was named as a defendant, along with the two groups, in the suit filed Thursday. He said the action was "just one more harassment ... of a conservative group."

The lawsuit charges that the two organizations, which are linked to U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., are a single entity that violated election law by not reporting cut-rate advertisement services as campaign donations.

"Jefferson Marketing is, and has been at all times, dependent upon the Congressional Club as the source of most of its revenue," the suit said.

"We feel if the suit goes all the way, JMI could be put out of business," Jane Kramer, an attorney for Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., said in a telephone interview from Washington. "We're certainly happy that the voters of North Carolina are finally having this resolved after 2 1/2 years."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, alleges that the violations occurred in the 7th District congressional campaign in 1982.

The suit asks that Wrenn and the Congressional Club be ordered to pay a civil penalty of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution involved in the violations found. It asks that a similar penalty be levied against Jefferson Marketing.

"The $5,000 figure in the suit is deceptive," Ms. Kramer said. "If this is looked into, it could be a major suit. With similar violations that may be out there, it could run into the millions (of dollars)."

"We feel Congressman Rose's position has been fully vindicated by the suit," Ms. Kramer said. "As it says in the complaint, the two organizations are really one entity."

Last week, the two groups sued the FEC, accusing it of harassing the club and Jefferson Marketing.

The National Congressional Club was organized to pay off Helms' 1972 campaign debts. Jefferson Marketing was organized by the Congressional Club in 1979 to provide advertising services to candidates favored by the club.

The suit charges that in 1982,

Jefferson Marketing produced a TV ad for Rose's primary opponent, Lumberton businessman Tom Gibson. Jefferson Marketing billed Gibson's campaign committee $617.49 for the advertisement, which actually cost $9,923.32 to produce and air, the suit said.

The suit says Gibson's committee never paid the $617.49 bill because it was assumed by the Congressional Club as a donation to Gibson's campaign.

Rose filed a complaint with the FEC in October 1982, charging Jefferson Marketing with making illegal campaign contributions through cut-rate services.

"Through its officers and managing officials, R.E. Carter Wrenn and Thomas Ellis, the Congressional Club has created, financed and controlled Jefferson Marketing," the suit says. "Thus, for the purposes of the FECA, Jefferson Marketing and the Congressional Club are a single entity."

The suit says that in May 1983 the FEC found reason to believe Jefferson Marketing had violated election law, and conducted an investigation until Aug. 17, 1984.

The commission found probable cause on Oct. 16, 1984.

State Says No Special Rules For Mentally Retarded

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Mentally retarded workers at Chemtronics Inc. and other plants have no special protection guarding their "right to know" about hazardous materials on the job, state officials say.

The Occupational Safety and Health Act hazard communication standard makes no specific references to mentally handicapped workers who may be exposed to hazardous materials and whether they can fully understand any risks, said Mercer Doty of the state Department of Labor.

At the Chemtronics plant near Swannanoa, workers produce military decontamination kits, commercial explosives and flame retardants. Previous owners manufactured chemical warfare agents, tear gas, rocket fuels and armaments over the past 20 years.

The EPA is investigating the site before hazardous wastes buried on the 1,027-acre Buncombe County tract are cleaned up.

Handi-Skills, an Asheville workshop to train the handicapped, has referred 15 to 20 mentally retarded workers to the Chemtronics plant, said workshop director Janis Hunter.

"We have been assured that the materials the (retarded) workers are handling are nonhazardous and that they are supervised," Ms. Hunter said.

The workshop works closely with the Association of Retarded Citizens on the job training program and with the division of vocational rehabilitation of the state Department of Human Resources. Clients are evaluated to determine whether they are capable of understanding what hazardous means, Ms. Hunter said.

The Handi-Skills workers at Chemtronics assemble military decontamination kits, said Chemtronics president John F. Schultheis. The workers assemble a dummy kit of alcohol and water used by troops in training for attack by chemical weapons. They also produce the field kit with active bleach and alcohol compounds to wipe skin exposed to chemical agents.

"It's explained to the workers that it's bleach and its serious nature. They know what to do if something breaks on them," said Ms. Hunter. "We don't recommend the placement of individuals who would be incompetent. We take responsibility for that."

No handicapped worker handles hazardous materials at Chemtronics, Schultheis said.

"My company's philosophy is we would not feel comfortable putting someone handicapped in a manufacturing position that might be considered hazardous," he said. "It doesn't make good sense."

Trump Coup Tommy had been on a business trip to London, a fact that was appreciated by all the members of those bridge clubs he visited, except the few who had the misfortune to be his partner. As you remember, Tommy is a walking bridge disaster except on those rare occasions when trumps break badly. Then he turns into a master of technique to land even the most difficult contracts.

In deference to his hosts, Tommy adopted the British style of bidding. North's jump to four diamonds agreed spades as trumps, and in the process showed a very good diamond suit. For once, Tommy was not interested in slam.

West led the top of his doubleton in partner's suit, and Tommy went to work with a will. It was more than likely that trumps were breaking badly since East was marked with long hearts for his intermediate jump overall. To protect against the opponents drawing dummy's trumps too quickly, declarer ruffed the opening lead in dummy and led a low club. East pounced with the ace and Tommy cleverly unblocked the king.

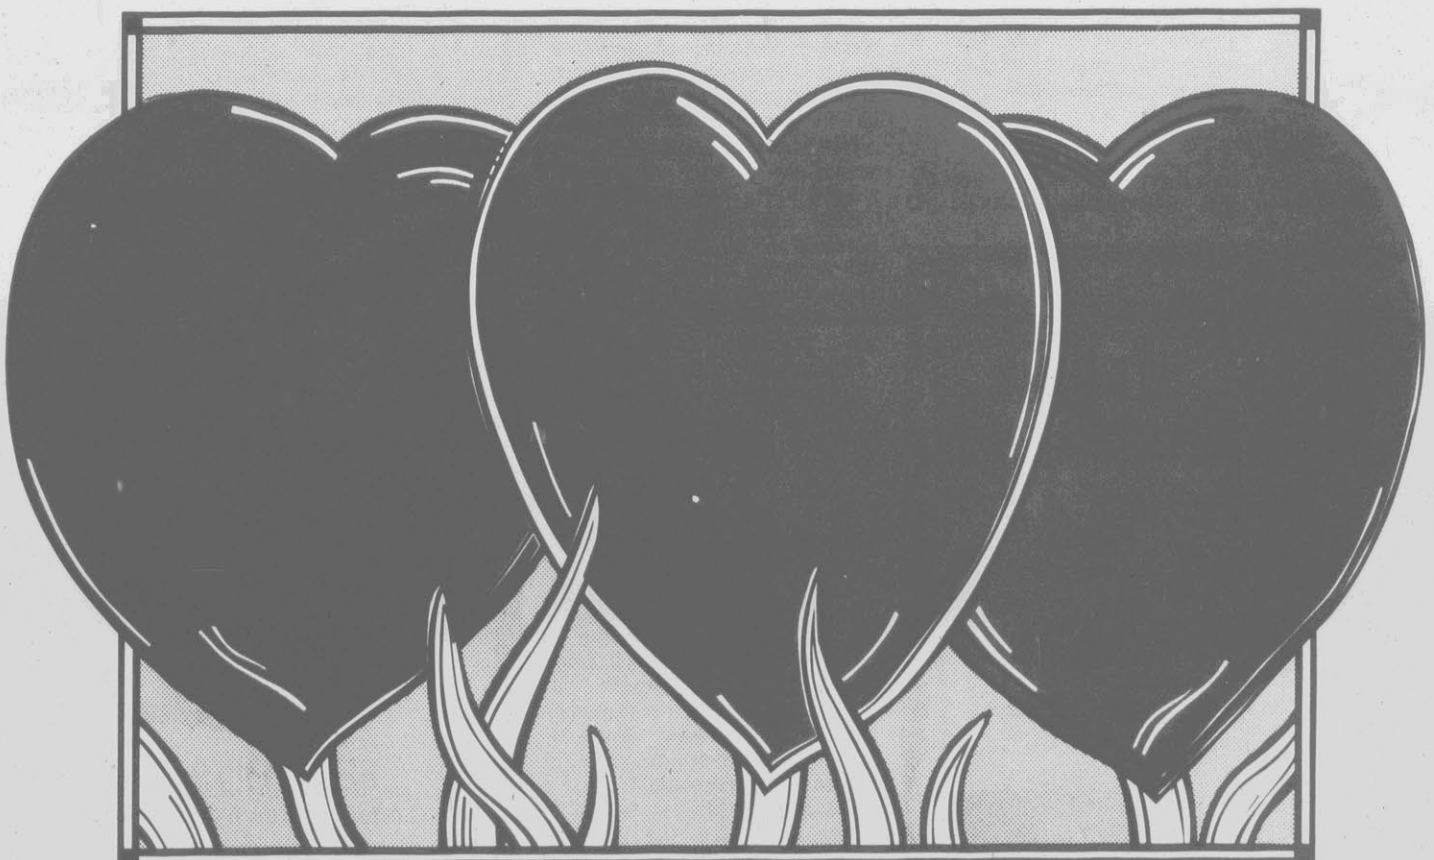

East continued with the king of hearts, won by the ace. Tommy crossed to the ace of diamonds, and led the queen of diamonds for a ruffing finesse. East covered and Tommy ruffed. He returned to the table with a club and cashed a club and the jack of diamonds, sluffing two hearts from hand.

Reading the hand perfectly, Tommy continued with a high club. East ruffed with the ten and Tommy overruffed with the queen. When he now led a heart, West, down to nothing but trumps, was forced to ruff low — to ruff with the ace would concede the contract. Tommy overruffed in dummy and exited with the king of spades.

West was a dead duck. Tommy had nine tricks in the bag, so West had to win the ace. But now he was end played and forced to lead from his 9-7 of trumps. Tommy, who still had the 8-6, could not be stopped from scoring the fulfilling trick.

Late Seahawk Scores Nip ECU

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
George Durham scored a season-high 16 points including five straight in the last minute of play to lift the UNC-Wilmington Seahawks to a 58-56 ECAC-South victory over East Carolina University last night.

The Pirates, down by as much as six points three minutes into the second half, rallied to a five-point lead with six minutes left but had three costly turnovers in the final three minutes that allowed the Seahawks to rally and pull out the victory.

The loss was the ninth straight for the Pirates, who have yet to win in seven ECAC-South games this year. It also was their 17th straight road loss in the league, a string that goes back to their first year in the ECAC-South, 1981-82, when they won their initial conference start at George Mason.

It was, despite the loss, one of the better efforts in the last few weeks by the Pirates. "We played good defense, damn good defense," a heartbroken Charlie Harrison said afterwards. "We deserved to win this one, but we didn't."

"We got beat on the boards in the first half or it would never have been close. We made some mistakes and we missed some shots, but I can forgive that. I can excuse that if we play to win and tonight we played to win," he said.

The Pirates did play well on the defensive end of the court, holding the Seahawks to only 35.0 percent from the floor. Their leading scorer, Brian Rowsom, managed 15 points, close to his average, but the usual 55.4 percent shooter made only 33.3 percent against the Pirates.

In the first half, however, the Pirates were badly outrebounded, 29-14, and that allowed Wilmington to erase an early seven-point ECU lead and take a 28-22 lead of its own at the half. ECU came back in the second half to stay almost even with the Seahawks, 19-16.

"We played hard, with an intensity I haven't seen for at least three weeks," Harrison continued. "But we made some boneheaded plays at the end and some shots didn't fall for us and Wilmington kept coming back. Two plays, one defensive and one offensive, killed us," he added, declining to identify those.

The offensive one, however, appeared obvious. That came with just over two minutes left in the game and East Carolina up by three, 54-51.

The Pirates stole the ball and William Grady raced downcourt on the break, along with Curt Vanderhorst. Two UNCW defenders closed on Grady as he moved to the basket, and instead of dishing off to the open Vanderhorst, he chose to take it in despite the defense. Grady missed the shot and fouled on the rebound.

That put Bobby Jo Springer on the line with 2:04 left and he made both shots, cutting the lead to 54-53.

The Pirates regained the edge on a Vanderhorst baseline jumper with 1:24 remaining at 56-53. Thirty seconds later, Herb Dixon stole the ball from Durham, who then stole it back and drove in for a three-point play with 52 seconds left and that tied it up.

The Pirates worked the shot clock down to about five seconds only to turn the ball over as Dixon drove the basket — Durham again coming up with the ball. He was fouled as he broke away and made both shots with 10 seconds left in the game.

The Pirates then missed on a final shot at the basket and UNCW got the rebound and ran out the clock.

"Crucial turnovers hurt us again," Harrison said. "Herbie had a couple, but he played one heck of a ballgame too. I can accept the mistakes when he plays like that."

The Pirates scored the first four points of the game and moved out to a 14-7 lead with 12:21 left in the first half. But the Pirates went over seven minutes with only a three-point play by Roy Smith to show for it as the Seahawks pushed through 14 points to take a 21-17 lead with 5:00 left. ECU cut it back to two and had two chances to tie it up but failed. The Seahawks edged away in the remaining time, taking a 28-22 lead at the horn.

The two teams matched baskets for five minutes until Grady hit two free throws and Vanderhorst scored off the fast break to put ECU back ahead, 40-38 with 14:20 left. UNCW tied it up twice before moving back ahead at 47-46, but Leon Bass scored on a hook to return the lead to the Pirates, 48-47.

Dixon and Vanderhorst added baskets for a 52-47 lead with 6:15 to go, but Durham and Rowsom each hit in the next two minutes to cut the back to one. Dixon scored off a drive to run it back to three, 54-51 with 2:57 left.

Then came the final turnaround. "If we continue to play with this enthusiasm, we'll be a better team at the end of the season," Harrison

Martin Leads Tar Heel Victory

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — When North Carolina and Virginia met earlier this season, the Tar Heels scored a 65-61 victory, but Cavalier center Olden Polynice had a field day with 22 points and 14 rebounds.

This time, North Carolina center Brad Daugherty and reserve Warren Martin were ready.

The 15th-ranked Tar Heels came away with an 82-73 Atlantic Coast Conference victory Thursday night against Virginia in a game that wasn't as easy as it looked.

"We wanted to make him run," Martin said of Polynice. "We wanted to get down the court and make him come with us."

Martin and Daugherty combined for 29 points and 20 rebounds, with Martin scoring a career-high of 18 points. He and Daugherty held Polynice to 14 points and eight rebounds yesterday.

"Warren has to be pleased," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith. "He's from Virginia and I know this meant a lot to him."

Though Daugherty didn't score a field goal in the first half, he came back to score seven points early in the second half to propel the Tar Heels from a 34-34 halftime tie to a 43-48 lead with 16:33 left.

But Daugherty found himself in foul trouble, picking up his fourth foul with 16:02 to go. Despite Daugherty's absence, North Carolina was able to build a 16-point lead at 68-52 with 6:54 left.

North Carolina missed Daugherty in the next five minutes when the Cavaliers outscored the Tar Heels 19-5 to cut the lead to 73-71 with 1:31 left. But North Carolina was able to regroup, scoring the next nine points to preserve the victory. Kenny Smith hit two free throws with 1:18 to start the Tar Heels on their way.

"We played a lot better than we have recently," said Smith, whose team snapped a two-game ACC losing streak. "The only problem was foul trouble. Brad got in it and we need him. Warren was excellent, but we like to have them both together on the court."

With a 16-point lead, North Carolina may have been counting on victory too soon.

"We really haven't been in that position much," Smith said. "Maybe we got a little complacent. Virginia played hard and made some good steals. I really don't know what happened. I don't think we got tentative. We just didn't do the things we're capable of doing."

But if Smith wasn't sure what happened, Virginia coach Terry Holland seemed to be able to pinpoint the problem.

"I think a couple of times we could have hit some key shots and had a chance," he said. "But Carolina's ability to rebound and our inability to put the ball in the hole cost us those chances. Once we got in a desperate situation, we made a good run to get out of the hole. I think the key to the game was that we were missing shots. That gave them a chance to rebound the ball, and give Carolina credit for their good defensive play."

Kenny Smith added 16 points for North Carolina, now third in the ACC with a 5-3 mark and a 17-5 overall record. Daugherty and Joe Wolf added 11 points each.

Yates Takes Scoring Lead

East Carolina's Loraine Foster and George Mason's Carlos Yates gained ECAC-South Player of the Week honors for their play in games of the week ending last Saturday.

Foster, who's award was announced earlier in the week, led the Lady Pirates through a 3-0 week, scoring 68 points, 16 assists and six steals. She shot 60 percent from the floor as the Lady Pirates knocked off James Madison and UNC-Wilmington within the league and South Florida in a non-conference contest.

Yates led Mason to wins over Navy and East Carolina in league play, scoring 56 points and pulling away 14 rebounds. He scored 28 points and had 10 rebounds as the Patriots handed Navy its first league setback.

James Madison's Robert Griffin, a 6-2 freshman guard, was selected as the men's Rookie of the Week, while American's Beth Shearer, a 6-0 freshman, took the women's award.

Griffin scored 33 points and has 12 rebounds and six assists in a 2-1 Madison week that saw them defeat East Carolina and American.

Shearer won her rookie honors for the third time this year. She scored 44 points and had 27 rebounds in wins over Randolph-Macon and ECAC-South foe Richmond, including 22 points, 16 rebounds and a team record seven steals against the Lady Spiders.

Yates has moved ahead of Navy's David Robinson as the league's leading scorer. Yates finished the week with a 23.6 average, not quite half a point ahead of Robinson, who is in at 23.2. Richmond's John Newman is third at 19.0.

Robinson continues to hold the rebouncing lead, however, with a 10.5 average, ahead of teammate Vernon Butler, with a 9.9 average. Brian Rowsom of UNC-Wilmington is third at 8.8.

Robinson also continues to lead in field goal percentage, hitting 63.5 percent, as compared with Butler's second place standing of 58.1 percent. Scott Coval of William & Mary is the free throw percentage leader with a 95.1 mark, while Richmond's Kelvin Johnson is second at 87.9.

Doug Wojcik of Navy leads in assists with 6.9 per game, followed by Mike Sampson of American at 6.2.

Robinson is the leader in blocked shots, averaging 4.4 per game. Rob Rose of Mason is second at 1.3, while East Carolina's Leon Bass is third at 1.1.

John Davis of Richmond leads in steals with 2.1 per game while Sampson is second at 2.0.

East Carolina players among the leaders include William Grady, tied for eighth in scoring at 16.1; Curt Vanderhorst, tenth in scoring at 15.1 and seventh in free throw percentage at 77.8; and Scott Hardy, seventh in assists at 4.3 per game.

The Pirates are seventh in field goal shooting as a team, hitting 47.8 as compared to Navy's league leading 53.5, and eighth in free throw shooting at 58.2, as compared to George Mason's leading 77.3.

UNC-Wilmington's Gwen Austin continues to lead the women in scoring with a 19.8 average. Karen Elser of Richmond is second at 18.5 while George Mason's Linda Jones is third at 15.3.

Austin also leads in rebounding with a 12.5 average, well ahead of Elser, second at 9.3 and Kia Cooper of American, third at 9.1.

Elizabeth Bell of UNC-W is the leader in field goal percentage, hitting 57.7, while Austin is second at 52.2. East Carolina's Loraine Foster is third with a 50.7 mark.

Cooper is the top free throw shooter at 83.1, followed by Sue Manelski of George Mason at 82.8.

Jody Thornton of American leads in assists with 6.7 per game, but ECU's Sylvia Bragg is coming on strong with 4.8 per game, 12 in each of her last two games.

Austin is the blocked shot leader with 2.4 per game, with Elser second at 1.5. ECU's Anita Anderson is third at 1.2 with teammate Monique Pompili fourth at 1.1.

Jones of Mason is the steals leader with 4.1 while Jackie Isreal of Richmond is second at 3.3. Bragg stands third with a 2.9 mark.

Other ECU players among the leaders include Anderson, seventh in scoring at 13.2; Foster, tenth in scoring at 12.5; and Lisa Squirewell, sixth in rebounding at 7.9, and ninth in free throw percentage at 63.3.

The Lady Pirates are third in field goal percentage at 44.6, with UNC-W leading at 51.2. The Pirates are fourth at the stripe at 62.0, with American leading at 70.1.

Speed Not Always Cause Of Deaths

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Racing people generally agree that not every serious injury or death in a race car is attributable to speed.

But, when you are talking about speeds in excess of 200 mph, the danger is more apparent — and perhaps closer — than ever.

Francis Affleck, a Canadian-born driver trying to earn his sixth start — and first in an Automobile Racing Club of America stock car — at Daytona International Speedway was killed Thursday during a practice session on the 2.5-mile, high-banked oval.

Observers said he had been running laps averaging between 180 and 190 mph when his late model Ford veered out of control on the Speedway's long backstretch and began flipping wildly down the track. The 34-year-old resident of Charlotte, N.C., died of massive injuries, becoming the 14th racing fatality since the Daytona track opened in 1959.

The death cast a pall over the historic track, where for the next 10 days the annual Speed Weeks celebration will continue, culminating with the $1.2 million Daytona 500 Grand National stock car race on Feb. 17.

The wild crash also is likely to add to the tension leading up to Saturday's front-row qualifying for stock car racing's biggest race.

The Grand National cars, which begin practice today, are faster than the ARCA cars, which will race here Sunday prior to the Busch Clash for 1984 Grand National pole position winners.

And at least a dozen of the cars that will race in the 500 are expected to qualify at more than 200 mph Saturday when the pole position and outside spot on the front row go up for grabs.

"Any time you run over 200, you're on the ragged edge," said Bill Elliott, a rising Grand National star and one of the favorites to win the pole position after testing a Ford Thunderbird at more than 203 mph here in December.

"I fully expect 12, maybe 15 cars to be over 200 in qualifying," Elliott said. "I suppose there could be some danger in that, but the speeds in the race will be down somewhere in the 192 to 195 range, I expect."

The superfast speeds at Daytona have become a fact of life in recent years, with Cale Yarborough breaking the 200 mph barrier in qualifying two years ago, then capturing the pole a year ago at more than 201 mph.

However, the three-time Winston Cup champion also gave a frightening illustration of the dangers inherent in such speeds when, in his spectacular 1983 time trials stint, he demolished his car on the second of his two qualifying laps.

Yarborough escaped injury, but he said, "When things happen at those speeds, you have absolutely no time to react. That's the worst thing about going 200."

He also noted, however, "I don't think 200 is more dangerous than 190 or 195. When you hit a wall at those speeds, 5 miles an hour doesn't mean very much one way or the other."

Ange, Peele Lead Bullets' Victory

JAMESVILLE — Richie Ange fired in 19 points and Tracy Peele added 16 as the Jamesville Bullets held off Mattamuskeet 59-55 Thursday in Tobacco Belt 1-A high school basketball action.

Robbie Harris contributed 13 points for the Bullets, now 8-5 in the conference and 8-7 overall.

Merron Burroughs paced Mattamuskeet with a game-high 23 points.

The Bullets held a 35-16 lead at halftime, but Mattamuskeet outscored Jamesville 16-8 in the third period to cut the margin to 41-32. Mattamuskeet held a 23-16 scoring edge in the fourth quarter, but Jamesville used eight free throws to seal the win.

"In the second half, we started moving the ball pretty swiftly," Jamesville Coach Bill Johnson said. "We started rushing things; we threw up shots. When you move that fast, you're going to make some mistakes."

"Mattamuskeet cut our lead to 11 in third quarter, but we played a little better in fourth."

In the girls game, Tammy Crisp fired in 13 points as the Lady Bullets outscored Mattamuskeet 25-16 in the second half to take a 36-35 victory. Linda Cooper led Mattamuskeet with 14 points.

Jamesville travels to Columbia tonight for another Tobacco Belt matchup.

Bethel Tops Wellcome

BETHEL — Bethel Middle School split a pair of junior high school basketball games with Wellcome Middle School yesterday.

Wellcome took the girls' game, 43-42. Gwen Pilgreen led Wellcome with 22 points while Keisha Pilgreen added 13. Louise Powell led Bethel with 15 while Clemmie Jenkins added 12.

Bethel won the boys' game, 41-39. Marcus Hines led the win for Bethel while Jeffrey Whitfield added 14. Reggie Daniels had 15 to lead Wellcome.

Wake Christian Academy took a pair of junior high games from Greenville Christian Academy yesterday.

Wake won the girls' game, 37-12, behind 14 points from Kathy Fisher. GCA was led by Myra Locklear with eight.

In the boys' game, Wake took a 38-23 win. David Winn led Wake with 12 points, while Clint Parker had eight to lead Greenville.

Douglas Telfair fired in 18 points and Eric Edwards added 10 as Whitfield defeated Chicod 41-13 in junior high basketball action Thursday.

Gray Mills paced Chicod with nine points.

In the girls game, Wanda Jenkins scored 12 points to lead Whitfield to a 37-17 victory over Chicod. Kimberly Mills led Chicod with 15 points. Whitfield hosts Bethel Monday.

said, "I just hope we can play with this enthusiasm against William & Mary (Saturday night)."

Harrison said he was a little surprised at Durham's non-scoring play. "We knew he could score, but he's never hurt us before. He looks to score, and I told the kids that when he gets the ball, he's going to go until someone stops him."

In addition to Durham's 16, Rowsom added 15 and Springer had 10.

East Carolina was led by Dixon's 16, a career high, while Vanderhorst had 14 and Grady had 10.

The loss drops the Pirates to 5-13 overall. UNCW upped its mark to 3-6 in the league and 9-9 overall.

East Carolina stays on the road, traveling to William & Mary Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game. The Pirates return home on Monday to host American University.

Atlantic Seaboard Meet Opens Tonight At Minges

The 30th annual Atlantic Seaboard Swimming and Diving Championships will be held tonight and Saturday at Minges Natatorium on the East Carolina University campus.

The diving preliminaries get underway tonight at 8 p.m. Saturday's swimming preliminaries start at 8:30 a.m. with the finals set for 5:30 p.m.

The meet, one of the largest on the East Coast, is expected to attract 52 teams with approximately 350 swimmers participating, up from last year. Nearly every state from New Jersey to South Carolina along the coast has entries, along with schools as far west as West Virginia.

The bulk come from Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina.

Calvert Hall of Towson, Maryland, is the defending champion for the girls and is expected to win again this year. Mercersburg, Pa., is the defending girls' champion, and too, is expected to successfully defend its title.

Top challengers for Calvert Hall could be Greensboro Grimsley High School from North Carolina and W.T. Woodson from Arlington, Va. The leading challenger for the girls should be Petty School of New Jersey.

Rose High School's Kelly Barnhill is the top seed in the 50-yard freestyle event.

PLAGUES OF THE BIBLE

THE FIRST PLAGUE MENTIONED IN THE BIBLE WAS THAT SENT ON THE PHARAOH OF ABRAHAM'S TIME. IT WAS FOR THE PROTECTION OF SARAH, THE WIFE OF ABRAHAM, (GEN. 12:17) THAT THE EGYPTIAN KING DID NOT MAKE HER HIS WIFE. THE NEXT PLAGUES WERE THE TEN INFLICTED ON THE EGYPTIANS IN MOSES' TIME! THESE WERE INFLICTED TO PERSUADE THE PHARAOH TO LET MOSES AND THE ISRAELITES GO OUT OF EGYPT (EX. 7:14-35) FIRST THE RIVER TURNED TO BLOOD, THEN EGYPT WAS OVERRUN WITH FROGS, THEN THE SPREAD OF PESTILENCES LIKE SAND FLIES, OR FLEAS PRODUCED FROM DUST, THEN SWARMS OF FLIES, THEN BOILS AND SORES ON MAN AND BEAST! THE SEVENTH WAS A DESTRUCTIVE HAILSTORM AND A FLOOD BY THE RIVER NILE! OF COURSE IT WOUND UP WITH THE DEATH OF ALL FIRST BORN SONS BEFORE PHARAOH WOULD GIVE HIS CONSENT! THERE WERE MORE PLAGUES THROUGHOUT THE HISTORY OF THE ISRAELITES BUT NONE SO SPECTACULAR AS THE "TEN PLAGUES OF EGYPT"--ALTHOUGH THE PLAGUE VISITED ON THE ISRAELITES, (II SAM. 24) BECAUSE KING DAVID NUMBERED THE PEOPLE AGAINST GOD'S WISHES WAS SPECTACULAR ENOUGH SO THAT 70,000 PEOPLE DIED!

ALL OF THE EGYPTIAN CATTLE DIE - BUT THE ISRAELITES' CATTLE ARE UNHARMED!

BEHOLD! IT IS THE WORK OF THE ISRAELITES' GOD! OUR CATTLE ARE DEAD AND THEIRS LIVE!

Wife Wants Beer Heir To Conserve

MILLWAUKEE (AP) - Harry G. John Jr., a millionaire philanthropist who says he wants to preserve Roman Catholic authenticity, is chafing under his wife's refusal to loosen the purse strings.

John is heir to a beer fortune with which he founded what is called the world's wealthiest religious foundation. He faces a suit by Erica John, who accuses him of spending more than is necessary toward his goals.

"We were stopped in midflight by my wife's very destructive lawsuit," he remarked recently in one of the few interviews he has granted in his many years of quietly dispensing funds to Catholic schools, missions and charities at home and abroad.

Money from his De Rance Foundation Inc. has been so important to church organizations that his wife says even the Vatican dispatched representatives to her to express concern about the sums dispensed in the last two years on one of John's new pet projects: a cable-television network.

The network's religious programming is geared to reversing what John calls a growth of unorthodox theology and a deterioration of obedience to the teachings of Christ.

"Those who owe obedience to Christ and the pope are not being obedient, and those who are supposed to exercise authority are not," he said.

Internal Revenue Service files show that in 1983 alone, De Rance donated more than $9 million.

Recipients ranged from a leper colony in India and prayer meetings in Wisconsin to anti-abortion groups and the Houston Explorers Club of Texas for an expedition to find the remains of Noah's Ark.

De Rance, headquartered in suburban Wauwatosa, got its start with wealth inherited by John nearly 40 years ago from his grandfather, founder of the Miller Brewing Co. of Milwaukee, after a court contest with his mother.

Buddy Harrison
LIVE SEMINAR
FEB. 13, 14 & 15
7:00 p.m.

Buddy Harrison is a man walking after love with a vision for what God is doing today. He moves in the gifts of the Spirit with sensitivity and understanding.

Buddy was healed of paralyzing polio as a small boy and it was over 15 years ago that he answered the call of God on his life. During the 10 years with the Kenneth E. Hagin Evangelistic Association, he developed the monthly magazine WORD OF FAITH, and he developed radio programs, tape ministry, video ministry and the correspondence school.

He is Founder and Chief Executive Officer of Harrison House, Inc., which began in November of 1975. Harrison House publishes and distributes Word teaching books for Christians by such authors as Fred Price, Norvel Hayes, Charles Capps, T.L. Osborn, Oral Roberts, Hilton Sutton, Marilyn Hickey, John Osteen and other great ministries throughout the world.

Buddy is the founder and pastor of Faith Christian Fellowship International Church in Tulsa, Ok., where over 1,300 people attend each Sunday. It is a family church, a teaching center, and a world outreach ministry.

Not only is Buddy Harrison a singer of psalms and spiritual songs, he is an excellent teacher of the Word of God, with the ability to communicate the principles from the Word with a New Testament love. He attributes any success he has to obeying the Spirit of God and living the Word.

Pastor Harrison had two years of classwork at Southwestern Assemblies of God Junior College in Waxahachie, TX., and earned his Bachelor and Masters Degrees in Business Administration and Ph.D. in Ministry from Golden State University. He and his wife, Pat Hagin Harrison, have three children, a son and two daughters.

ABC To Show Teen-Age Suicide Drama

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One lasting impression — and there are many — from ABC's movie "Surviving," about teen-age suicide, is that the victims also include the ones left behind to ask the questions, why him, why her and... why us?

The three-hour film, a reflective, exceptionally well-acted, emotionally wrenching production, will be broadcast Sunday night against the first installment of CBS' "Atlanta Child Murders" in another sweeps month battle of the blockbusters.

The first half of "Surviving" focuses on the growing alienation felt by Rick and Lonnie, teen-age friends who become lovers, played by Zach Galligan ("Gremlins") and Molly Ringwald ("16 Candles").

The rest is aftermath, showing how the often angry, selfish act of suicide may serve to end a troubled adolescent's emotional pain but it only begins a sorrowful and guilt-ridden life after death for the survivors.

"He only cared about himself. He must have really hated us," said Rick's grieving younger brother. Rick's sister suffers from nightmares. And Rick's parents are torn in half.

"Where did I fail? What clues did I miss?" asks Rick's pediatrician (William Windom) at the funeral service.

Teen-age suicide has become an epidemic. ABC cites conservative estimates of 6,000 teen-age suicides a year.

According to experts, the signs of normal adolescent growing pains are not unlike those coming from a tormented youth who may contemplate suicide. All teen-agers occasionally rebel at authority, test their wings and undergo mood and behavior swings.

And, from time to time, a normal adolescent may exhibit erratic eating and sleeping habits and turn gloomy and sullen. Even risk-taking and a fascination with death can be parts of many teen-agers' real and fantasy worlds.

How, then, does a parent know the difference?

"You don't know," says Lonnie's mother, Tina. "Just don't ever take the chance."

One way to lower the odds is for parents to take time to know their children, listen and communicate. Only after Lonnie's death does Tina find the time to read her poems, in which the anguished teen-ager was searching for help.

Teen-agers need to be convincingly assured that the world falling around them will stop falling. They need to have outlets, places to turn, so that real-life Ricks doesn't see suicide as the only solution. "There's no place to go," Rick tells Lonnie.

Lonnie's suicide is more easy to understand. She's never been a happy child. She tried to slit her wrist before. But Rick, a model child until he catches his hard-driving father having an affair, is the tougher characterization to figure.

Although Rick feels betrayed by his father's hypocrisy and has trouble expressing his anger, his transformation into the initiating force in the suicide pact lacks some credibility. Rick had been holding up well to his father's persistent pushing and seemed to be a competent, well-rounded individual.

Rick and Lonnie come from well-to-do backgrounds. Both homes have swimming pools. Their parents are best friends.

Rick's parents, played by Len Cariou and Ellen Burstyn, seem to have a good relationship and have provided a caring environment for their three children. Lonnie's parents, acted by Paul Sorvino and Marsha Mason, have little in common besides their T-shirt business. Lonnie was an accident, and she says she's never felt fully loved.

"Surviving" also deals with how the suicide impairs the parents' friendship, with each pair blaming the other's child. That dimension is one of the ways in which the ABC film differs from another first-rate production on teen suicide, CBS' "Silence of the Heart," which was broadcast last fall.

These productions illustrate how TV can turn today's headlines and emotional issues into movies faster than the theatrical-movie community. These films are meant to be watched, felt and discussed by the entire family, and they have attracted large audiences, certainly more than a suicide film would lure to the theaters.

But there's always a danger that these movies might plant seeds and romanticize death. Rick says he read about suicides in the newspaper. To this production's credit, suicide is never glorified, and although the contagion factor should not be dismissed lightly, a responsible film raising the danger signals and the safety valves should do much more good than harm.

During the funeral procession, the camera focuses on ordinary people — small kids playing on the lawn, young mothers walking on the sidewalk. To them, the people in the motorcade are just a curiosity. But they used to be just ordinary people, too.

Stars Mark Tubb Birthday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Roy Acuff and Bill Monroe head a group of country music stars scheduled to gather Saturday night to commemorate the birthday of the late legend Ernest Tubb.

The stars are to perform on a special version of the "Midnight Jamboree" radio show, which Tubb started in 1947 to follow the Grand Ole Opry broadcast.

The event is being held to raise money for the Ernest Tubb Memorial Fund, set up to help research emphysema treatment.

Tubb, who died of emphysema last Sept. 6, would have turned 71 Saturday. Known as the Texas Troubadour, Tubb pioneered the "honky-tonk" sound of country music. His most famous hits include "I'm Walking the Floor Over You" and "Waltz Across Texas."

Tubb's son, Justin, is to be host of the show, aired live on AM radio station WSM from one of the late singer's record shops.

Others scheduled to be on hand for the show include Hank Snow, Porter Wagoner, Stonewall Jackson, Connie Smith, Jean Shepard and Bill Anderson.

Loretta Young To Head Cast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar-winning actress Loretta Young will return from a 20-year retirement to star in "Dark Mansions," a television movie to be produced by Aaron Spelling Productions.

Miss Young, 72, will portray the matriarch of a Seattle shipping family in the two-hour "contemporary Gothic drama," Spelling publicist David Gerrie said Thursday.

The movie, to begin filming in April, is expected to become a television series for ABC, said Spelling and Miss Young's agent, Norman Brokaw.

Miss Young, who debuted at age 15 opposite Lon Chaney in 1928, starred in 94 motion pictures and produced and starred in her own television series.

She won an Academy Award as best actress for her role in "The Farmer's Daughter."

CNN Going To Europe

ATLANTA (AP) — Cable News Network will begin broadcasting to Europe in September.

Officials of Turner Broadcasting System said Thursday they will offer

Sentence

LONDON (AP) — An Arab princess who pleaded guilty to beating her two maids for such things as sweeping too slowly or looking out the window has received a suspended jail sentence.

According to testimony, Kuwaiti Princess Faria Alsbah, 30, who maintains a luxury home in London, whipped her maids with a riding crop and lengths of electric cord and once held a maid's hand over a hot plate. Both maids had scars over much of their bodies.

Crown Court Judge John Hayman ordered the princess to pay the equivalent of $2,184 in fines, court costs and compensation to the maids. He also sentenced her to six months in jail but suspended the sentence for two years.

Stars To Help

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rock stars Prince, Linda Ronstadt and Pat Benatar will contribute songs to the forthcoming "USA For Africa" album, dedicated to alleviating starvation in Africa, producers say.

None of the three pop stars participated in a recording session with Bruce Springsteen, Michael Jackson, Cyndi Lauper and 42 other musicians that was held after the American Music Awards show last week. The session produced a single, "We Are The World," written by Jackson and Lionel Richie.

Producer Ken Kragen said Prince's song "Tears in Your Eyes" was written especially for the "USA For Africa" album. Miss Ronstadt's song is titled "Keeping Out of Mischief." Details on contributions by Miss Benatar and other artists were unavailable.

The record will follow a similar effort by British rock stars, whose "Do They Know It's Christmas" single has sold an estimated 7 million copies worldwide.

FDA Rejects Label Change For Painkiller

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The painkiller ibuprofen has not caused kidney failure in the seven months it's been available without a prescription, and strengthening the label warning in the face of criticism might not be in the public interest, federal officials said Thursday.

The National Kidney Foundation recommended in December that people with specific health problems be warned that the drug could cause kidney problems. Three Veterans Administration doctors made a similar plea in a letter in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

"We believe that the present product labeling, as approved by the Food and Drug Administration, is grossly inadequate," wrote Dr. David J. Nashel and colleagues from the VA Medical Center in Washington, D.C.

Ibuprofen has been sold as a prescription drug in the United States since 1974. Last June, it became available without a prescription under the brands Nuprin and Advil.

Some people — including the elderly and those with various illness — are susceptible to kidney damage if they take high doses of the medicine. The controversy centers on whether the label instructions should warn these people specifically to seek doctors' advice before using ibuprofen.

In its report, the FDA said it thought the most effective approach was to caution anyone under care for a serious condition to ask their doctors before taking the drug but not to single out those with particular ailments.

The VA doctors said that susceptible people should be cautioned about the possible danger. They recommended that the label warn people to use the drug only under a doctor's supervision if they are elderly, if they take diuretic drugs, if they already have kidney problems or if they suffer from congestive heart failure or cirrhosis of the liver.

"We have observed several patients in whom marked renal (kidney) insufficiency developed after administration of moderate doses of ibuprofen during hospitalization," they wrote. "In two instances, life-threatening complications ensued."

In their rebuttal in the journal, Drs. Harry M. Meyer Jr. and Robert Temple of the FDA's Center for Drugs and Biologics said there are few reports of kidney problems among people using ibuprofen as a prescription drug. The prescription pills are available in stronger doses than the over-the-counter variety.

The risk of kidney trouble when the drug is used at recommended over-the-counter doses for short periods "must be extremely low," they wrote. After its availability as a non-prescription drug for seven months in the United States and 18 months in Britain, "we are aware of no documented reports of renal failure resulting from such use."

They questioned whether changing the label to emphasize low-level risks would really increase public protection.

"It is not necessarily a benefit to consumers to imply that an elderly patient is better off accepting the risk of gastrointestinal hemorrhage when he uses aspirin than he is accepting the very low risk of renal impairment when he chooses ibuprofen," they wrote.

In an interview, Nashel replied: "We would disagree with them very strongly. I think it would certainly be worthwhile to address the specific diseases that we mentioned, because they are the ones that put people at risk. It's not like they would have to list 400 diseases."

Ibuprofen manufacturers maintain that the drug is safe if used as directed.

Britain's Once Mighty Pound Sinking Rapidly

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Once the mighty ruler of the world economy, the British pound has fallen to one of the bottom rungs of the ladder of Western hard currencies.

It has slipped to but a few cents of parity with the U.S. dollar — one pound for one dollar.

Parity with the dollar would likely to come as a severe psychological blow to a nation whose currency dates to 760 A.D. when Offa, king of Mercia, decreed that 240 pennies be struck from a pound of silver.

The decline that began more than 17 years ago, with only one brief respite, accelerated last November and reached its lowest point in January.

While a weak pound is not necessarily all bad for Britain's economy, it is seen by many as a symbol of how the mighty have fallen; an empire that once ruled one-fifth of the globe and dominated one-third of its markets has shrunk to little more than a handful of small islands.

By coincidence, but symbolically nonetheless, in the midst of the pound's latest slide Britain signed an agreement with Peking, turning its last major colony, Hong Kong, over to China in 1997.

Underlying the immediate causes of the pound's feebleness — the volatile oil market and the strength of the U.S. dollar — is the widely held perception that Britain is afflicted by a mysterious malaise that saps its industrial vigor while the West Germans and the Japanese forge ahead.

The pound fell 20 percent in 1984 against the dollar. It dropped steadily from a peak of $2.45 for one pound in 1980 to as low as $1.10 on some markets in early January. The sterling index, which measures the pound against a basket of hard currencies, has fallen 6 percentage points since November, and half of that drop was registered in the first two weeks of January.

It recovered slightly after the latest meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries produced no price upheavals. But the likelihood of sterling quickly regaining its past strength is remote.

To the average Briton, the immediate effect of the pound's fall has been a rise in interest rates of 4.5 percentage points in January, to a record 14 percent, meaning higher mortgages for homeowners and tighter credit for businesses.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says Britain's economic performance is much better than the pound reflects.

"It's something of a mystery," she told a television interviewer.

Indeed, the country appears to be recovering from its lengthy recession. Its balance of payments is in the black, oil production is at record levels and inflation has been pushed down from an annual rate of 20 percent in 1980 to about 5 percent.

Investment is at an all-time high, and among businessmen one encounters a mood of buoyancy that contrasts sharply with the gloom of the mid-1970s.

The dollar's strength has hit all the European currencies. While the pound fell 20 percent against the dollar in 1984, it dropped only 7.5 percent against that other powerhouse currency, the West German mark.

Oil accounts for 20 percent of Britain's export earnings and 8.5 percent of its tax revenues. So the oil price slump for Britain means fewer dollars — the currency in which oil transactions are made — but the pound's weakness means those dollars buy more sterling and increase tax revenues.

The pound has also been hit by a suspicion voiced in market circles that the government is wavering in its commitment to fight inflation. Real earnings increased 7.5 percent last year, more than inflation. The money supply is growing faster than planned, and the government faces problems controlling that supply because of difficulties in selling bonds.

Some economists are beginning to urge Mrs. Thatcher to modify her economic austerity and adopt some deficit-spending to stimulate business.

The benefits of a weak pound are a rush by foreigners to buy real estate, which in turn boosts confidence in Britain. The streets of London are filled with American tourists spending healthy dollars. And many exporters have moved to cash in on the weak pound, since their goods became easier to sell in the U.S. market.

Harry Bibby, equipment sales director of the British electronics giant Ferranti, says his company is sending a delegation to the United States hoping to sell cable television equipment at almost half the cost of American equivalents.

By the time the pound recovers, he says, he will have had a golden opportunity to get his product established in America. Generally, however, a weak pound has not meant an overall export boost. From 1981 to 1983, when sterling fell 39 percent against the dollar, exports increased only 19 percent while imports jumped 30 percent and the visible trade surplus fell by two-thirds.

Imports cost more when sterling is low, so that the gains from exports are easily wiped out and domestic prices edge up.

In the scramble for American markets sparked by the dollar's strength, Britain has upped its exports to the United States by 20 percent, less than half the increase achieved by France, Italy and Germany.

Man Recovering After Stabbing Cut Into Heart

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Six nights ago, Chris Valva was stabbed through the heart. He lapsed into a coma and his heart stopped. Today he's awake and recovering — but doesn't remember being stabbed.

"He essentially bled to death and lived to tell about it," said Dr. Eugene Rumsey Jr., the trauma surgeon on duty early last Saturday when Valva was brought to Mercy Hospital after trying to stop three youths who were tampering with cars in his North Park neighborhood.

"It was just incredible. I saw him die," said Valva's mother.

Police say the stabbing occurred Friday night when Valva, 19, and co-worker Tom Bowman were driving home after working a late shift at a print shop.

According to Bowman, Valva stood in the front yard of his home and shouted at the youths to get out of the neighborhood. One of them strolled up to Valva and said, "Brother, you just been stabbed."

He then plunged a knife into Valva's chest.

Interviewed at his hospital bedside Thursday night, Valva couldn't remember what led to his hospitalization. No one has been arrested in the attack.

"Was I stabbed?" he asked his mother.

"Yes, you were stabbed sweetheart," his mother replied. "And you were very, very sick, and you came to the hospital and you're just getting better now."

Despite the memory loss, Valva is alive — which is far more than he should be, Rumsey said.

"When he was rolled in here, his whole blood volume had either come out through the stab wound or filled his left chest until the heart no longer had anything to pump," he said. "I've worked with some real trauma experts in my training, and they've never seen a case like this."

Valva, a football, soccer and baseball player, is in "terrific physical shape," the doctor said.

Rumsey said Valva is 80 percent recovered. He will spend perhaps another week in the hospital and then be transferred to a physical rehabilitation center.

Valva said he wants to play college football after his recovery and continue playing guitar, his hobby of three years.

He squeezed his mother's hand, glanced at his 14-year-old sister Natasha and smiled. He appeared confused by some questions and didn't hear others.

"We're progressing along very nicely but he does have a long way to go. Only the time and the good Lord knows how much he's going to get back," Rumsey said. "There are so few survivors of this that there's no way to make a comparison to other cases."

Valva's mother, Irene Ferguson, ran to her son's side when he stumbled, bleeding, into the house.

"I kept saying, 'It's OK darling, it's OK. I know you're scared but it's not a big cut. It wasn't a wide cut, but it was deep,'" his mother said. "And he kept saying, 'It feels so terrible. It feels so bad. It hurts so bad.'"

Ms. Ferguson has slept at home only two nights since last Friday. The rest of the time, she's been at Mercy, watching "a magic thing" unfold.

"I really feel like something else happened besides the trauma team," she said. "We're not religious. We don't go to a specific church. I've always felt real uncomfortable when people say, 'I'll pray for you.' But I think I really believe in the power of prayer."

Is it a medical miracle?

"For sure," Rumsey said. "Without a doubt."

Chernenko Health Debate Flares Anew

MOSCOW (AP) — Hours after Soviet officials confirmed Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko was ailing, the official news agency Tass reported he addressed the nation's ruling Politburo.

The 73-year-old Chernenko has not been seen in public or photographed since a televised awards ceremony Dec. 27, leading to speculation that he might be seriously ill.

The mystery of his health deepened Thursday when a Soviet journalist told NBC News that Chernenko was ill but in stable condition.

Also, French television reported a source with the Soviet delegation to the French Communist Party Congress said Chernenko had "an accident of health" on Jan. 14 and lost the use of his speech. In Soviet parlance, an accident of health implies a stroke or heart attack.

But the Tass report said Chernenko had addressed the Politburo meeting on spring agricultural planting. It did not say when the meeting was held but its story was dated Thursday, the day the policy-making body usually meets.

The account of the meeting, though, was unusual in not mentioning the Soviet leader prominently. His name appeared well into the story and after a list of five government officials whose reports were heard.

Moreover, the report on the issues discussed was very similar to an account of a Politburo meeting two weeks ago.

In the latest account, Tass said the Politburo "heard reports by a number of ministers on the progress of preparations for the spring (agricultural) sowing campaign." Five names were given.

It then said: "The reliable ensuring of the spring sowing campaign, stressed by Konstantin Chernenko speaking at the Politburo of the Communist Party Central Committee's meeting, becomes especially important this year as the party and all people are preparing for the 27th party congress."

Before the report was released, another Tass wire carried a highly unusual editors' note that an account of the meeting would be broadcast Thursday night.

In an account of the Jan. 25 Politburo meeting, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said — in almost identical words as Thursday's report — that the officials discussed last year's economy. "At the same time, as Konstantin Chernenko pointed out, more effort is needed to consolidate the successes gained in economic development," it said.

The Soviet press frequently mentions that Chernenko has made statements or pointed something out on a variety of subjects. Such references usually indicate the statements were made in the past.

In the NBC interview, Vladimir Bolshakov, a commentator for the Communist Party Daily Pravda, was asked about the condition of the leader.

He replied: "Well, I heard it was stable." Asked if Chernenko had suffered a stroke, he replied, "No." It was not clear how Bols at 235-b. In London, the newspaper the Standard said Thursday that 07:57 Chernenko had suffered a massive coronary attack. Quoting "reliable sources in Moscow," the newspaper said he was recovering in a special cardiology clinic in the Soviet capital. It did not say when he was stricken but said he was back on his feet a week later.

Pravda's editor, Viktor G. Afanasyev, told Italic limited public appearances since late November when he met Britain's Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock and Austrian Chancellor Fred Sinowatz.

On Dec. 22, he appeared frail while viewing the body of Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov. Two days later, he missed Ustinov's funeral in Red Square on a bitterly cold day. And a few days after that, he seemed to be having difficulty breathing during brief, televised remarks.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip -- WHY WASN'T OUR MEAL READY? NOT ENOUGH THYME, THE WAITER SAID, LEERING.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals P
 The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

China Is Catching Computer Craze

PEKING (AP) — Haidian Street is China's outpost in the computer revolution.

Half a world away from California's Silicon Valley, nearly a score of newly opened high-tech shops dot the tree-lined lane in northwest Peking, where posters entice customers inside for a look, and buyers go from door to door in search of a better deal.

Dicker they might, since imported computers aren't cheap in China, a Third World country that hoards foreign exchange.

Haidian Street sits amid China's "science town," a cluster of universities, research institutes and laboratories in the northwest corner of the capital.

"There are more than 20 computer companies on this street now," said Gao Jianyu, sales manager of Syntone, one of the biggest shops. "Demand is great, business is thriving."

In a crash effort to modernize its economy, the government has given top priority to high technology. It said it spent more than $1 billion last year on computers and sophisticated machinery made in developed capitalist countries.

The government has said it hopes to use computers and automation to help free many of the country's 800 million peasants from agricultural work and direct them into work in other industries.

On Haidian Street, Gao is selling Apple and IBM compatibles, many assembled in Peking from imported parts.

A Peking copy of the Apple II+ goes for $2,500, the equivalent of seven years' pay for an average Chinese. An IBM look-alike costs $7,142.

At those prices, most buyers represent schools, factories or trading companies. The Syntone showroom never sees a teen-age hacker.

"Chinese families can't afford a personal computer," said Gao. "Even at the Academy of Sciences there are only a few professors with their own PCs."

A computer research institute, a factory and a neighborhood technology development unit launched Syntone in 1984 as a "profit-making company."

Syntone sells 20 to 30 computers a month, and buyers receive up to 120 hours of instruction as part of the deal.

"Customers walk from shop to shop comparing prices," said Meng Li, sales manager at the Peking Haisheng Computer Software Co., another Haidian shop. "We don't like it with so many companies."

A joint venture of Peking University, the Electronics Ministry and another concern, Meng's shop has its own niche: software.

"We have people in the 6th department of the Electronics Ministry who will write custom programs for customers," he said.

China produced its own first-generation, vacuum-tube computer in 1958 and is now developing a fourth generation of computers. The latest official statistics say 4,000 large computers and more than 30,000 microcomputers are in use.

The Chinese have surged ahead in software and theoretical aspects of computer science, disciplines not requiring a heavy investment in costly hardware.

According to Gao, customers prefer foreign hardware to domestic. "We have the ability to design and build microcomputers, but our customers want foreign equipment," he shrugged.

Buying imported equipment requires foreign exchange, and Haidian shops are scrambling to locate foreign funds or "wai wei" notes, the special Chinese currency redeemable in foreign exchange.

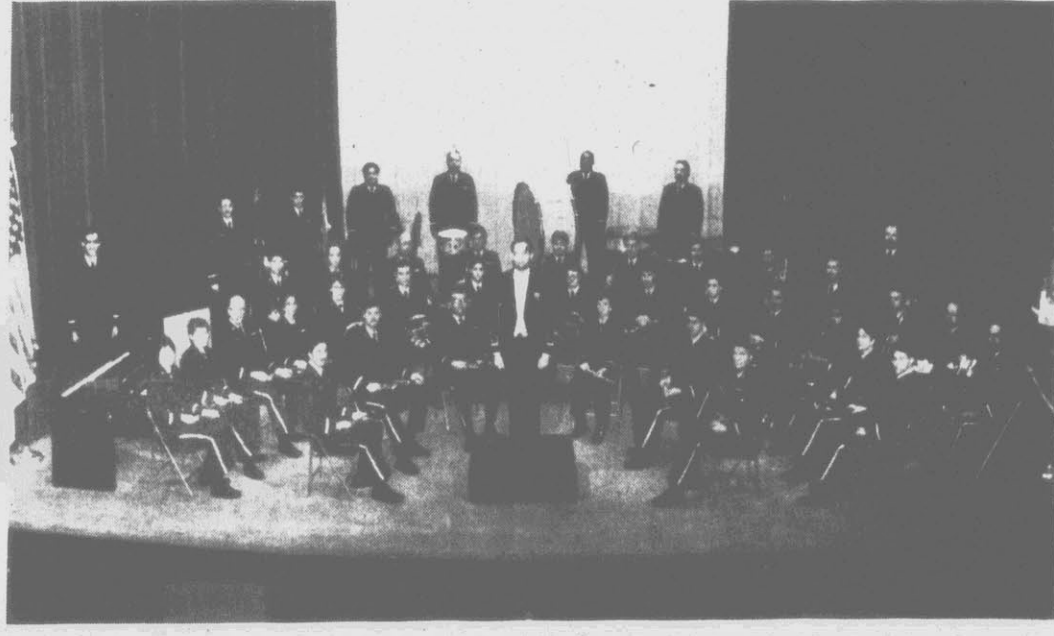

"Some foreign exchange we get from the government, but the rest we get ourselves," Gao said. That involves swapping ordinary Chinese money, renminbi, for wai wei, often at a ruinous discount.

COMMAND BAND

from Langley Air Force Base, Virginia

Captain Lowell E. Graham, Commander/Conductor

Since its formation in November, 1941 at Langley AFB, VA, the Tactical Air Command Band has been recognized as one of the finest musical organizations in the United States through its dynamic performances and enthusiastic critical reviews. Public recognition from the Governor of Massachusetts, Senators of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, and Mayors of numerous East Coast cities, demonstrate the band's significant contribution to the cultural and recreational climate throughout the area.

The Tactical Air Command Band has played a major role in the musical life of the East Coast for the past forty years, performing in a large area from Wilmington, NC to Hagerstown, MD, and from the Atlantic Ocean to Western Virginia. The band has also performed on occasion in Florida, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and other areas as needed to fulfill its mission. The 45-member band, under the direction of Captain Lowell E. Graham, logs nearly 30,000 miles each year, entertaining more than one million people annually. The band has performed for such international leaders as the Queen of England, the President of France, as well as several Presidents of the United States. In over 500 performances each year, the Tactical Air Command Band gives its audiences the pleasure of hearing a military band proud of its tradition of musical excellence.

Inventive Minds

Tomorrow, National Inventors Day, will be a day of honor for creators of every innovation, from the wheelbarrow to the world's smallest TV. The ancient Chinese are credited with inventing the wheelbarrow, porcelain, silk and the magnetic compass. Peter Henlein is supposed to have invented the first watch around 1,500 A.D. It was so heavy he had to hang it from a belt around his waist. Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper, went into bankruptcy in 1837.

DO YOU KNOW — Who holds the all-time record for patents?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Dickens' novel "A Tale of Two Cities" takes place during the French Revolution.
