Reagan Sends Farm Bill To Congress

By DON KENDALL

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, vowing not to "pull the rug out from under" American farmers, is sending Congress a controversial farm bill that is already under attack by critics who say it would devastate family farmers.

The bill was being sent to Congress today, where it was to be introduced by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Edward R. Madigan, R-Ill.

Beforehand, National Farmers Union spokesman Bob Denman said the bill would "hasten us very rapidly down the road to where the agricultural assets of this country are controlled by a landed gentry of a few individuals and corporations."

But Reagan, in a nationally televised news conference Thursday night, said the proposals for "market oriented" federal farm price supports "won't pull the rug out from under anyone instantly who has geared themselves to these government programs."

Agriculture Secretary John Block says the bill offers a needed overhaul of the basic structure of government farm programs so that producers can gradually end a reliance on federal controls and subsidies.

"Many of the problems they (farmers) face today are the result of government's involvement," Reagan said. "And I think you'll find that a great majority of farmers believe that the answer to their problems is out in the free market."

"If government is to help, then we should help by opening up world markets for them, by holding trade negotiations," Reagan told reporters.

At a news conference today, Block said the strict controls and support formulas in existing farm law are "a drag on this industry" and have gotten some farmers "effectively hooked" on government subsidies.

While he would not predict that Congress would buy the administration's bill in its entirety, Block said he thought the "principles" of the plan would survive.

"I don't think more of the same is a viable option," Block said.

Block argues that American farmers need to be more competitive in world markets. But current government supports artificially dictate minimum prices and help crowd U.S. crops out of the international competition.

The administration's bill offers a long-term approach to farm policy that would carry through the year 2000 with "market-oriented" price supports and a phasing out of direct payments to producers.

According to recent drafts of the proposal, for example, the administration plan would base wheat price supports on 75 percent of the most recent three-year average of market prices — a "moving" average.

Wheat supports, currently at $3.30 per bushel, are expected to decline to $2.56 in 1986 under the administration bill. By 1990, according to projections, wheat supports would be down to around $1.92 per bushel.

Corn supports, likewise, would be expected to drop from the current level of $2.55 per bushel to $2.12 next year and to around $1.75 or so by 1990.

The current target price system of "deficiency payments" to farmers to make up the difference between the target level and market prices — or the loan rate, whichever is higher — would be phased out by annual reductions.

Crop supports currently are maintained through "non-recourse" loans to farmers. Those loans can be taken out at harvest and, if markets improve, paid off so the crop can be sold for cash.

However, as in the case of huge surpluses, when market prices don't improve farmers have the option of turning their crops over to the government, in which case the loan obligation is canceled. There is no limit on price support loans.

The administration plan would impose a limit of $200,000 on the amount farmers can receive in non-recourse loans. Any amount over $200,000 would be recourse loans, meaning that the debt would

Howell Suggests Caution On SAT Scores Legislation

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University officials seem to have no trouble with a proposal by University of North Carolina officials to review policies governing intercollegiate athletics at the 16 schools within the UNC system.

But one, Chancellor John Howell, suggested "we ought to be very cautious" about bills introduced in the General Assembly this week that would require a minimum score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test for all students admitted to UNC campuses.

Phillip G. Carson, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors, this week proposed that a special committee be established to review policies governing intercollegiate athletics, particularly policies "pertaining to the admission and academic progression of student athletes."

The review, he said, should "assess the impact" of athletic programs "on the basic academic mission of the institutions."

Ken Karr, ECU's athletic director said of Carson's proposal "I think that's fine ... it may be a very timely time for his group to review existing policy and to comment on it. Every university has a certain degree of autonomy ... admission standards vary from institution to institution."

"I think admission policies are very much an institutional prerogative. Until we make a move to standardize that, it will remain so," Karr said.

Karr suggested that if a minimum SAT score of 700 is required for admission to all UNC campuses by the General Assembly "it would probably affect all programs equally as much. If that is the standard, I'm sure we will adjust and recruit by what the standards are."

In fact, according to Karr, the proposed 700 SAT minimum is "not too far afield from an NCAA (National Collegiate Athletic Association) code going into effect in 1986" which he said "speaks of a core curriculum at the high school level and a minimum of 700 on the SAT ... for all sports." The present NCAA requirements, he said, include an "overall 2.0 high school grade point average."

"I think it would be an interesting study ... in North Carolina and throughout the United States," head ECU Football Coach Art Baker said.

"It's something that concerns all of us in the profession of football. Basically you would find most coaches primarily interested in recruiting athletes that can graduate. That should be the bottom line."

But Baker said that some coaches recruit good athletes who rank poor academically because "winning is the bottom line in keeping a job," suggesting a "conflict" between "recruiting a man who can graduate and winning. Therein lies the monster," he said.

"I don't know the recruiting requirements of the other 15 schools (in the UNC system)" Baker said. But he said of the proposed 700 SAT score legislation "all the schools in the state system would have violated that rule at various times." In the past, "Unfortunately, some of our better athletes, for various reasons ... their socio-economic background ... no pressure to excel in the classroom ... for various reasons, some of the better athletes end up with less than 700."

However, Baker said, "if the law were passed, I think it would help all 16 universities to graduate more of their athletes," although "not neces-

Hackney Discusses Caucus Proposal

By JERRY RAYNOR

Reflector Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Robert Hackney, president of the Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce which covers 43-counties of eastern and northeastern North Carolina, on Thursday talked about the aims of the chamber in proposing a caucus to promote the interests of the area through the involvement of 67 legislators representing the area.

"We have had two meetings in Raleigh with legislators," Hackney explained, "the first in January and a recent one. Both were for the purpose of getting a feeling from the legislators about the concept of such a caucus, whether the legislators would consider the idea of organizing."

One of the prime factors behind the proposal, Hackney said, "is to maintain the momentum built by former Governor Hunt to develop progress in the east. Hunt was the first governor from eastern North Carolina we've had this century. Our idea is basically to have chambers of commerce and legislators working together to see that progress on key issues is maintained."

"The major role of chambers of commerce is, naturally, one primarily of regional interests on things like better schools, tourism, industrial and economic development. All we want to do in making this proposal is to bring people together in a continued effort."

"We surveyed local chambers on these key issues and found that all were in agreement that things like getting our fair share of industrial prospects and the promotion of tourism were important issues for our area," Hackney added.

At the second of the two meetings, held Feb. 18, Hackney said legislators agreed to form a steering committee to consider the chamber's suggestion. Legislators appointed as co-chairmen of the committee are Sen. Robert Warren, D-Johnston and Rep. Josephus L. Mavretic, D-Edgecombe. Other members are Sen. Lura Tally, D-Cumberland and Rep. Daniel H. DeVane, D-Hoke. The latter two represent committee members from the southeastern North Carolina area covered by the Cape Fear Chamber of Commerce.

"Our entire aim is to see what interest there is in such a caucus," Hackney said. "We'll know more about the extent of interest when the group meets again at a future date."

Student Named Outstanding Achiever For 1984 In Pitt County's JA Program

By JANE WELBORN

Reflector Staff Writer

Wendy Wooten of Ayden has been named Outstanding Achiever for 1984 by Pitt County's Junior Achievement program.

Wooten, a student at Ayden-Grifton High School, was one of several junior achievers receiving recognition at the organization's annual banquet Thursday. JA is the oldest economic education program in the United States. The program seeks to teach high school age students the principles of the free enterprise system through hands-on experience.

JA participants form companies sponsored by local industries and issue shares of stock in the companies. With this capital they purchase raw materials and manufacture, market and sell products. In the final step, the profit is distributed to shareholders and the company is liquidated. Miss Wooten's company was Totally Business Minded (TBM), sponsored by Yale Corporation.

Others receiving awards at the dinner included Rose High student Chester Rogers, whose company was Best Business In Town (BB&T), sponsored by BB&T, named Outstanding Salesperson for the year; and Richard Haselrig and Dottie Parker, two Rose High students from Greenville, who received National Travelships from the organization. Haselrig's company was TBM and Miss Parker's was YACA, sponsored by Procter & Gamble.

In addition, the following four JA participants received local scholarships: Michelle Teel, a North Pitt High School student whose company was Students of Success (SOS); Page Griffin, a Rose High student whose company was Young Achiever Corporation of America, sponsored by Procter & Gamble; Valeria Jones, a D.H. Conley High School student whose company was BB&T; Angela Trueblood, a North Pitt student whose company was SOS.

The Outstanding Company for 1984 was Young Achievers Company of America, sponsored by Procter & Gamble.

The past year was JA's sixth year in Pitt County. The program is a function of the economic committee of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. In 1984, the program reported 110 participants representing all five area high schools. The annual banquet was attended by over 200 persons.

According to Joan Giordano, community coordinator of the JA program, the organization experienced a 33 percent growth in 1984. "We've expanded in 1984 from four to six companies, a 33 percent increase," Giordano said. "We are enjoying the JA center donated by Burroughs Wellcome and located on property the (Pitt) County Commissioners have allowed us to use." Giordano said the center and the "cooperation of volunteers from the corporations and high schools has had a great deal to do with the growth."

Jones Says Bill Would 'Put Teeth' In Law

RALEIGH — State Representative Walter Jones Jr. said today that his bill that would levy a $5,000 fine against officials or legislators who reward or punish government employees for their political activities is designed to "put teeth" into the present state law.

Jones, who introduced the legislation cosigned by Rep. Ed Warren on Wednesday, said current state law covers only campaign activities by state workers, and dismissal is the only punishment. The new bill will include lawmakers and policymakers, including the governor, Jones said.

"I think the General Assembly needs to make a statement. I feel like it's time that we did something," Jones said.

Under the new bill, promises of preferential treatment or threats of job loss will be prohibited. Current law already prohibits campaigning on state property or in state buildings.

SESSION WITH REPORTERS — President Reagan faces reporters in the White House East Room Thursday night. In the first news conference of his second term in office, Reagan said he would not "pull the rug out ... instantly" from under the nation's farmers, but that government agricultural programs have not worked. Medical School Will Operate As Eye Bank Recovery Center

The East Carolina University School of Medicine will begin operations this month as a regional recovery center for the N. C. Eye and Human Tissue Bank.

The new service, a cooperative effort of the ECU Organ Procurement Agency and the Winston-

Salem-based bank, is expected to increase donation and recovery of eye tissue used in corneal transplants.

Agency Administrator Steve Joyner said ECU personnel will be coordinating the recovery, processing and placement of eye tissue within the 29-county area served by the ECU School of Medicine. Though placement of the tissue is on a first-come, first-served basis, candidates for corneal transplants in eastern North Carolina will be given priority status for tissue recovered in the region, Joyner said.

The agency also will train regional health professionals to identify and manage potential donors, and will conduct public education programs.

Joyner said the ECU agency has been involved in similar activities for several years in the recovery of organs for transplantation as well as in the recovery of skin, bone and bone marrow. Affiliation with the bank expands the service to include eye tissue.

Last year 996 eyes were donated to the program and 554 corneas were transplanted. The number of people waiting for the surgery averages about 100.

A $70,000 grant from the Kate B. Reynolds Health Care Trust to the bank enabled it to link its program with ECU. Start-up costs include the addition of two staff members and the special laboratory equipment in processing the tissue.

With the addition of ECU to its program, the eye bank has three affiliate branches in the state. The other two are in Charlotte and the Triangle area.

Summer Field School Is Scheduled By ECU

A summer field school in maritime history and underwater archaeology will be conducted by East Carolina University, June 10-July 19, at shipwreck sites on the Tar River and in Pamlico Sound.

"Students selected for the program will get a basic introduction to American maritime history and the scientific methods and techniques employed in underwater archaeological research," said Dr. William Still, a co-director of the ECU Program in Maritime History and Underwater Research.

Classroom lectures, workshops, seminars, field trips and on-field research activity will be included in the course, which will operate out of campus facilities at Greenville and at several 18th and 19th century shipwreck sites in coastal North Carolina.

Much of the field activity will be conducted onboard a 56-foot vessel designed for underwater archaeological research. From the vessel the student will work with remote sensing devices and other gear used in locating shipwrecks and recovering submerged artifacts.

The field school is open primarily to students enrolled in history, archaeology, geography or related studies who are also certified in the use of scuba equipment. A limited number of students will be accepted under a non-diving option emphasizing maritime history and research and activities that support the collection of data on underwater sites.

For additional details about the field school, medical forms and applications contact the Program in Maritime History and Underwater Research, Department of History, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Mexico Will Sell Its Hotels

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government announced that its 12 first-class hotels are among state-run businesses that are for sale.

The hotels, mostly in coastal resorts, were on a list of 24 state-owned companies to be put for sale and 18 state-owned agencies to be liquidated. The list was published in the federal register.

The list was released by the Budget and Planning Department, following the publication of a similar list the previous week of 40 state-run companies up for sale, transfer or liquidation.

The government announced earlier in February that the divestiture of more than 200 state-owned companies would take place as part of a new round of austerity measures designed to combat inflation and offset falling oil prices.

The list of companies is being released gradually. It does not affect such major state-owned companies as the oil monopoly Pemex or the Federal Electricity Commission.

Couple Marries In St. James Church

MRS. VURNAKES

Julie Anna Hicks and William P. Vurnakes were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the St. James United Methodist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Caswell Shaw and Father Michael Petrides of the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church of Raleigh.

The bride is the daughter of Ethel S. Hicks of Rocky Mount and the late Dr. Robert G. Hicks. The bridegroom is the son of Mary D. Vurnakes of Fayetteville and the late Peter G. Vurnakes.

Diane Layton of Durham was the maid of honor. The best man was Dean Vurnakes of Colonial Heights, Va., brother of the bridegroom. Ushers included Robert K. Adams of Greenville, Greg Christos and Peter Bougades of Raleigh, cousins of the bridegroom.

A program of organ music was presented by Frances Cain.

The bride wore a tea length ivory dress with a V-neckline with lace accenting the shoulders. The long puffed sleeves ended in a cuff and the waistline was trimmed with a self-fabric sash. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, miniature rosebuds and an orchid. She wore stephanotis in her hair.

The honor attendant wore a tea length gown in a royal blue print. She carried a cascade of flowers similar to those of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held at the Greenville Country Club. Music was presented by the Greenville Chamber Trio including Alisa Weatherington, pianist, Candace Dixon, violinist, and Katherine Jenkins, violinist.

The couple will live in Greenville until October and will then move to Portsmouth, Va., when the bridegroom will be transferred to the Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

The bride is a registered nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She received a B.S. in nursing at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy Nurse Corps stationed at the Naval Hospital, Marine Corps Air Station in Cherry Point. He also graduated from East Carolina University with a B.S. in business administration and a B.S. in nursing.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday In Candlelight Ceremony

Janie Evelyn Brann and James Donald Reason were married Saturday at 5:30 p.m. in the Friendship Free Will Baptist Church near Farmville. The Rev. Walter Reynolds, minister of the church, performed the double ring, candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Walter Brann of Farmville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gay of Farmville and the late James E. Reason.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She chose a formal gown of candlelight silkened organza over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline encircled with bands of floral patterned silk Venise lace centered with loops of pearl medallions. The fitted bodice featured a sheer yoke of imported English net outlined in appliques of silk Venise lace flours beaded in pearls and iridescent sequins. An overlay of chantilly lace embellished with beaded silk Venise lace centered the bodice front. A ruffle of chantilly lace accented the basque waistline and the long fitted sleeves were accented at the shoulders with rosettes of rolled chantilly lace. A panel of chantilly lace trimmed the sheer sleeve with appliques of beaded silk Venise lace. The cuff was fashioned with a ruffle of chantilly lace. The full skirt and attached chapel length train were fashioned in the chantilly lace edged at the hemline in a double border of ruffled chantilly lace that formed a bustle effect in the gown back. Appliques of silk Venise lace adorned the train.

The bride wore fingertip veil of illusion held in place by a cloche overlaid in lace and beaded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of wine, rose and ivory roses tied with matching ribbon streamers.

Edith Joyner of Farmville was maid of honor and wore a floor length gown of wine satin with puff sleeves and embroidered bodice. She carried a nosegay of wine, pink and ivory flowers with streamers of matching colors.

Bridesmaids were Becky Shirley of Farmville, sister of the bride, who wore a gown and carried flowers like the honor attendant, and Sandy Brann of Farmville, cousin of the bride, wore a daphne rose gown fashioned like that of the honor attendant.

Junior bridesmaids were Tammy Shirley, niece of the bride, and Misty Joyner, daughter of the matron of honor. They were dressed in wine floor length dresses of lusterous celanese fortrel polyester knit with stand-up collar. The front and back yoke were of point d'esprit lace with a flounce which created a capelet effect. Each carried a nosegay of wine, rose and ivory roses with matching streamers.

Flower girls were Kristi Reason, daughter of the bridegroom, and Rebecca Shirley, niece of the bride. They wore daphne rose dresses like those of the junior bridesmaids. They carried baskets filled with silk flower petals.

Dee May was rice girl and wore a lavender floor length dress. She is niece of the bridegroom.

William Gay, stepfather of the bridegroom, was best man and groomsmen were Paul Denton and Jeff Moore.

Nancy Brann, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the register. A program of wedding music was presented by Susan Beaman. She sang "The Rose" and "The Wedding Prayer" and was accompanied by Nellie Kirkland, pianist.

The bride's mother wore a dark rose satin floor length dress which she designed. It was accented with ivory Venise lace. The mother of the bridegroom selected a rose colored floor length dress. Both wore a corsage of white mums.

Jean Beamon of Farmville directed the wedding.

The bride is employed with Collins and Aikman of Farmville and graduated from Greene Central High School. The bridegroom attended Farmville Central High School and is employed by the Little Rocket in Farmville.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will live near Farmville.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church after the ceremony and was given by family and friends of the bride. Margaret Baldree and Grace Cobb served cake and Brenda Thornton and Linda Owens poured punch. Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Cobb.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom at their home.

The couple was honored at several showers prior to the wedding.

Church Wedding Is Possible Dream For Interfaith Couple

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you stated: "If there is a rabbi or Roman Catholic priest who will perform a mixed marriage in a synagogue or church, I don't know where he (or she) is." Permit me to reply.

There are many rabbis and many priests who will officiate. We have had many mixed marriages in our synagogue in the past several years, including many in which clergy of other faiths have participated in the wedding ceremony.

Furthermore, the Rabbinic Center for Research and Counseling in Westfield, N.J., periodically compiles a list of rabbis who will officiate at interfaith marriages. There are presently 180 rabbis on that list, including more than 50 who will invite other clergy to join them in the ceremony.

RABBI JOHN M. SHERWOOD, TEMPLE EMET, WOODLAND HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR RABBI SHERWOOD: I appreciate the helpful information to pass on to my readers. However, interested parties should not assume that they can just ring up any rabbi on the list and be assured of an instant marriage ceremony. For example, most rabbis require a premarital conference and encourage a program of Jewish study after the marriage. Some rabbis (not all) require a commitment that the couple will establish a Jewish home and/or raise their children as Jews.

There are other conditions too numerous to mention here required by some rabbis, but a national list of rabbis who will perform mixed marriages, plus the prerequisites of each, is available free of charge by writing to: Rabbi Irwin H. Fishbein, Rabbinical Center for Research and Counseling, 128 E. Dudley Ave., Westfield, N.J. 07090.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for recommending the Unitarian Church to the Catholic man and Jewish woman who wanted to marry but couldn't find a priest or rabbi who would perform the ceremony.

My Catholic daughter was engaged to a Jewish man, and they, too, were having trouble finding a clergyman of either faith to marry them. They were ready to settle for a justice of the peace when in your column I read about a couple who were having the same problem. You said, "Try the Unitarian Church."

I called my daughter right away and told her what I had read, and she got right on it. She found a Unitarian Church listed in the phone book, called the church and made an appointment with the minister. Then she and her fiance went to see him.

First, he gave them both a course in premarital counseling, and then he married them in a beautiful ceremony that included both the Christian and Jewish rituals.

I hope the couple who wrote to you takes your advice and finds a Unitarian minister as wonderful as the Rev. Robert Jones in Cherry Hills, N.J. I have never attended a more beautiful wedding nor heard a more meaningful service.

MRS. D. CRAIG, MAGNOLIA, N.J.

DEAR MRS. CRAIG: Others wrote to praise the Unitarian Universalist ministers for their non-judgmental, compassionate attitude.

DEAR ABBY: It takes a liberal rabbi and broad-minded priest to perform a mixed marriage without going through a lot of red tape. Those in the New York area should investigate the Chapel of the United Nations. It's a beautiful setting!

Elsewhere, inquire at the nearest college or university. A rabbi and a priest can be found to perform the ceremony at a non-denominational chapel where the dignity and spirituality of both religions are combined. You don't have to be a young college kid to be married in a chapel on a college campus. Anyone of legal age—and up—can get married there.

Some People Won't Go Home

Ingenius Idea

There must be a use for computers in just about every field of concern. They have even reached into absenteeism in the schools.

Statewide, the absentee rate is said "not too bad". A. Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction, says about 94 percent of the high school students attend school on an average day; but we're sure there are some schools whose administrators would look at that statistic and wish they had it so good.

As all are aware, there are a variety of reasons for a youngster to miss several days of school during the year other than disinterest, family distractions and outside jobs. But the point is, they add up; and the cost is damaging to continuity of the teaching process. You can't teach an absentee.

Solutions exist, and are being applied. Some consist of expanded course offerings and even incentives through rewarding good attendance.

Then there's the computer. In at least one North Carolina school a $4,000 computer system calls students' homes as many as nine times a day to deliver a taped message to parents that their child was absent.

An assistant principal feels it helps. "Kids are paranoid about staying out now", he says. True, making personal contact with an absent student's home holds a priority insofar as practicality permits; but some parents are just difficult to contact...so there is resort to the tapes.

The idea is ingenious, it also poses questions about how cost effective it is to use a $4,000 high-tech gadget to telephone taped messages for a few minutes each day. Perhaps it has other unmentioned functions.

A Bright Spot

All of us rejoice when any American who has been illegally held captive regains his freedom.

It is particularly pleasing that Jeromy Levin of Cable News Network is now free after being kidnapped and held for almost a year by terrorists in Lebanon. It was a heartless captivity, as he put it "in darkness and deep gloom ... in irons and misery."

In the end Levin managed to free himself, slip out of the house where he had been held and walk away, eventually finding friendly forces and returning to the United States.

Levin thanking everybody, said he was not bitter, just glad to be free.

He made a passionate appeal for the freedom of others who were abducted as he was. "Let my brothers go," he said. "Let your brothers go. In the name of our common Lord, God and Allah, please let them go." He was referring to four other Americans who are missing and believed held by the kidnappers.

It is another frustrating wait for families and country. We believe so strongly that everyone should be free unless one is properly convicted and sentenced by a court of law. So far we have found little that has been effective against those who illegally deprive Americans of their freedom. Occasionally, however, there is a bright spot. This time it came when Jeromy Levin escaped his abductors.

RALEIGH — Some people just won't ever go home.

That's the case with a bunch of former legislators who lost their bids for reelection last November. They're hanging around the Legislative Building this year, making a living either as legislative aides or lobbyists for private concerns.

The legislature has always been a friendly place for former legislators to make some cash lobbying. There's hardly a major lobbyist working the halls today that hasn't served in the legislature at one point or another.

But even given that history, this year's crop of new former legislators is unusual. Former representatives Pinky Hayden of Sparta and Sam Beam of Cherryville have won staff positions. Mary Seymour of Greensboro is lobbying for the N.C. Railroads Association. Gus Economos of Charlotte is working for Labor Commissioner John Brooks. All of those people lost in the November election.

Add to that list former representatives Al Adams of Raleigh and Tom Rabon of Winnabow, both retired and are now lobbying.

Then there are the former legislators who don't seem to have anything better to do than come back and visit. Former Rep. Jeanne Fenner of Wilson lost in an election held only days before the opening of the session. She's been seen in the hallways several times during the opening weeks. So have former representatives Marvin Musselwhite of Raleigh, Margaret Tennille of Winston-Salem, D.R. Mauney of Cherryville and Betty Thomas of Concord.

Mrs. Hayden had a new position created for her. She's the first ever staff consultant to the appropriations committees on education. She's being paid a consultant's fee of $600 a week, with no benefits.

Beam got a deal that pays better than serving in the legislature. He's getting $100 a day in salary and $40 a day in expenses to serve as one of two legislative aides to House Speaker Liston Ramsey. Legislators get $700 a month as salary, $200 a month for official expenses and $420 a week for living expenses. (Former Rep. Roger Bone, who left the legislature several years ago, is Beam's co-aide.)

"I guess it gets in your blood," Mrs. Hayden said of the legislature. "It's an exciting place to be. It's where everything is happening." She said she'll probably run for office again in 1986.

Beam said he wants "to stay in touch with what's going on. Certainly I'm going to try again. If I get beat, I'll hang it up." Mrs. Seymour said she saw lobbying as a new challenge and didn't know if she'd run again. As for the unusual number of 1983 legislators hanging around this time, she said, "To my knowledge, I don't recollect a year when as many key Democratic legislators got beat. We have some special insights to offer that make us valuable as lobbyists."

Several Republicans find the presence of the fallen Democrats amusing. "It says to me that their egos are as big as anybody's," said Rep. George Robinson, R-Caldwell.

Rep. Walt Windley, R-Gaston, who defeated Beam, said, "I'm not going to comment on that. I'm going to wait till I get home, it might be a good campaign issue."

There's a precedent for a legislator losing and coming back to Raleigh to serve as a kind of shadow legislator. In 1964, Liston Ramsey lost his seat in the House. He came to Raleigh and set up an office where he lobbied for his district. He won his seat back in 1966 and has been here ever since. He's the speaker of the House and is not expected to go home for a long time.

Who To Make Mad?

David Stockman rang for one of his assistants. "I'm going up on the Hill to testify today. What segment of the population haven't we offended yet?"

"Let's see. You have the farmers mad at you, the students up in arms, and the military want your scalp. How about the American Indians?"

"I'm saving them for later. Are the veterans ticked off?"

"They certainly are, particularly after you charged that the military are more interested in protecting their pensions than their country."

"Can't anybody take a joke?"

"It's hard to get people to laugh, Dave, when their ox is being goaded."

"My job is to gore oxes. What sacred cows are left?"

"Would you want to take on lawyers? They cost the country billions of dollars every year."

"No one gives you credit for attacking lawyers," Stockman replied. "Suppose I savage people who take the train and bus to work every day and aren't paying their full fares?"

"They're one of the most vocal groups in the country. Attack them for chiseling and you'll have 20, maybe 30 million people screaming overnight."

"So be it. Did you know that every Amtrak passenger costs the government $35 and every subway rider 15 cents per trip? I'm going to draft a statement."

"Shoot."

"Subsidizing trains and buses is an outrage, a scandal. Mass transit passengers are more interested in what they can save in fares than in protecting the United States from a Soviet nuclear attack."

"Do you want to add that farmers, students and military retirees are the most guilty of abusing transportation subsidies?"

"Why not? They can't get any more upset than they are right now."

"That should take care of the House Budget Committee in the morning. What special interest group would you like to offend when you testify before the Senate in the afternoon?"

"Did I trash small businessmen for trying to get government-guaranteed loans through the SBA?"

"Yes, sir. You told the press any consenting adult who asks for a small business loan doesn't deserve to be in business. You haven't said anything about the environmentalists."

Stockman hit his forehead. "How could I have forgotten the environmentalist, who thinks the federal government should protect him from acid rain and toxic waste?"

Take this down. Environmentalism is the last refuge of the scoundrel. If you can't drink the water, stay out of the kitchen."

"Well said, Dave. Any other group you want to humiliate today?"

"Who's left?"

"Working mothers, senior citizens, the unemployed, urban dwellers and people who watch soap operas."

"Put them on hold for future hearings. If I attack too many special interest groups in one day no one will pay attention to me."

"I couldn't agree with you more. I don't want to get personal, Dave, but are you planning to run for public office when you get out of the OMB?"

"I'm not sure. What makes you ask?"

"I was just curious."

Strength For Today

We always see farther when winter takes the leaves off the trees. Spring is lovely, and the gorgeous foliage of summer lovelier still. We may not like the bleak trees of winter, but the fact still remains that we see farther when the leaves are taken away than we did when the leaves were there.

"The winter of our discontent" may be brought about by the death of a loved one, but such a sorrowful circumstance very often awakens us to a new and more vital conception of life. Many people who have had everything swept away by loss of a job or a depression have nevertheless found their lives taking on a new significance when all the leaves had been blown off the trees. Often we learn the best lessons of life in the winter of sorrow and defeat.

We may not like bare trees, but bare trees with vision are better than beautiful trees without vision.

Depression.

The president has said the program he envisions would be phased in gradually to prevent unnecessary shock from withdrawal of government supports, but administration planners are resigned to watching as many as 200,000 farmers go broke or abandon their land in the hard years ahead.

One official, speaking on condition he not be named, said some projections show 10 percent of the nation's 2.4 million full-and part-time farmers will leave the land before the decade is out.

The official stressed that the administration regards farm failures as a consequence of existing problems and policies, not as the likely shakeout of a transition to Reagan's proposed market-based farm economy.

But no consideration is being given to new federal efforts to save failing farmers.

"There comes a time when you can't do any more," one White House aide said this week, "and the time of $200 billion deficits is probably it."

Even the latest revisions in Reagan's election-eve credit assistance programs were aimed more at bailing out rural banks than the farmers to whom the banks had lent money, one administration official confided.

"The fact is, the cost of any real relief from the debt crisis would be astronomical," said the official, who also spoke on condition of anonymity.

According to administration analyses, there are 200,000 farmers with a debt-to-equity ratio of 40 percent, putting them in the banker's folder of "potential problems." Of those, about 80,000 have a debt-to-equity ratio of 70 percent or more, meaning they are in imminent danger.

But that problem, as portrayed by a number of White House officials, is primarily a result of land speculation — sometimes even referred to as greed. The typical farmer on today's serious list, according to this portrait, is one who borrowed all he could to buy farmland as prices skyrocketed with inflation in the 1970s.

With ensuing high interest rates and recession, millions of farmers found themselves deeply in debt and unable to obtain new loans to plant and farm their newly acquired lands. And as land values tumbled along with world food prices, farmers found they couldn't sell the land for enough to pay off the debts they had incurred to buy it.

It was that scenario to which budget director David Stockman referred when he blurted out during a recent budget hearing: "I cannot figure out why the taxpayers of this country should have the responsibility to go in and refinance bad debt which was willingly incurred by consenting adults who went out and bought farmland when the price was going up."

Although no one pretends the credit crisis is the only problem in American agriculture, administration officials have found it a convenient way to explain the inevitability of farm failures, while promoting Reagan's long-term hope of getting government out of agriculture.

"I believe that most farmers and farm organizations want a procedure that gets us back to the marketplace," Reagan told The Associated Press.

But aides decided recently that the president's free-market approach wasn't popular enough in the Farm Belt for Reagan to stop there to deliver a pep talk to farmers on his way home from a California holiday.

Although some consideration was given to making a brief visit to Iowa, it was decided the angry mood in the heartland might spark a negative reaction to a Reagan speech, and the plan was scrapped.

—Michael Putzel—

Ideology Reflected In Farm Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's conservative ideology and his commitment to cut back big government are nowhere more evident than in the farm program his administration will propose to Congress.

Reagan's goal is to dismantle a half-century of government efforts to prop up farm prices, control production and assure a decent livelihood for the nation's farmers who, in American mythology, are the backbone and moral fiber of the country.

Although Reagan shares that traditional view, he believes farmers would be better off without the government agriculture programs that have evolved since the Great

Reagan Says Decision Near On SALT II Treaty Violations

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he will decide in the next several months whether to join Moscow "in violating" the SALT II treaty limits on the number of missiles each nation may deploy.

Moscow has denied any violations. "We know that the Soviet Union, we're sure, has violated some of the restraints now," Reagan said Thursday night in a nationally televised news conference.

"We'll have a decision several months from now to make with regard to whether we join them in violating the restraints," he said.

Reagan will face his decision when a new missile-firing submarine, the USS Alaska, is scheduled to begin sea trials in October, just three months before the treaty would expire anyway.

The treaty, which was never ratified, would entitle each nation to have 1,200 ballistic missiles capable of carrying more than one warhead.

The limit includes land-based missiles, as well as submarine and bomber-launched missiles. The United States is almost at the limit now, and could exceed it when the new submarine capable of carrying 24 Trident missiles begins sea trials.

The treaty allows each side a total of 2,250 ballistic missile launchers — land, sea and air — including launchers of single-warhead missiles.

Reagan said on Jan. 10 that he was planning to retire older missile-firing submarines, presumably the Poseidon, to make room for the new submarines and therefore stay within the 1,200 multi-warhead limit.

But at his news conference Thursday night, the first of his second term, Reagan alleged that Moscow has violated the limits and made clear he is reserving that option for the United States as well.

Reagan said the Soviet Union, when faced with a similar choice, has retired older submarines but then converted them to submarines for firing cruise missiles.

Although Reagan told the press conference the conversion to cruise-firing submarines was "one of the violations of theirs," a White House official said later the president wasn't alleging a specific violation. But, the official said, "certainly the spirit of the treaty is being violated."

The official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said the treaty envisioned that the older submarines be retired from service. He said the Soviet move to arm them with new weapons is an example of how Moscow "takes advantage of every loophole" in arms control agreements.

The official said the issue isn't a new one but it is now "on the president's mind" because of the whole issue of whether the Soviet Union is violating existing treaties and whether the United States should stay within the SALT II limits.

The administration previously has alleged that Moscow violated SALT II by testing two new kinds of ballistic missiles, designated by Washington as the SS-X-24 and SS-X-25. The Soviets have denied they tested two different missiles.

The official said there was nothing to prevent the United States from also converting its older submarines into cruise-missile firing submarines to escape the SALT II limits.

Cruise missiles are low-flying, non-ballistic missiles that follow a prescribed route on the way to predetermined targets. Capable of being fired from land, sea or air, they are for the most part not covered by any existing treaties.

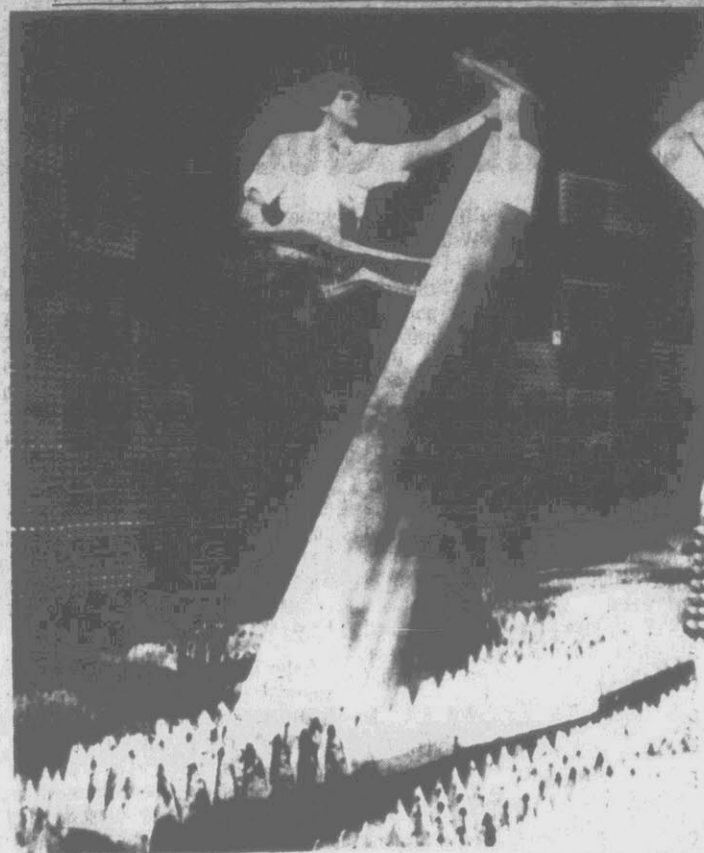

The United States has recently deployed land-based cruise missiles of its own in Western Europe, a move that caused Moscow to break off the last round of arms control talks in Geneva in 1983.

The SALT II treaty was completed by the Carter administration in 1979 although negotiations were also conducted in the Nixon and Ford administrations. Although Reagan said during his 1980 presidential campaign that SALT II was flawed and unfair to the United States, his administration has respected it.

SALT II would expire at the end of 1985. But with a new round of arms talks beginning in Geneva on March 12, there will be pressure on Washington both in this country and from U.S. allies to continue to respect it.

Reagan also said Thursday night he had no recollection of informing Moscow in 1981 he would not approve SALT II, as reported by columnist Jack Anderson. The columnist called it a "backroom deal" that led Moscow to build 500 more strategic missiles than the accord allowed.

"I don't recall that at all," Reagan said. He said both countries had decided to conform with the SALT II restraints.

Agreement Between Farmers, Cigarettes Makers Is Eyed

RALEIGH (AP) — An agreement between tobacco farmers and cigarette companies may be announced today, and that could be followed by an announcement of the 1985 assessment on flue-cured tobacco, officials said.

A possible arrangement between tobacco growers and cigarette makers "will be discussed, but I can't prejudge" the outcome, tobacco official Fred Bond said Friday before hosting a board meeting of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

Bond, stabilization's general manager, said one cigarette company would meet with Stabilization at the Friday meeting, but declined further comment.

T. Carlton Blalock, executive vice president of the Tobacco Growers Association of North Carolina, said he had been told that R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. representatives would meet with Stabilization. Blalock said he expects Stabilization to reach a conclusion.

"I think they will reach a consensus to do something or reach a consensus that they're not going to be able to come to an agreement with the manufacturers," Blalock said. Stabilization and the six major domestic cigarette makers have been negotiating a plan for the cigarette makers to buy the cooperative's 812 million pound inventory of tobacco, perhaps over five years, in return for lowering the average support price on flue-cured tobacco from the current level of $1.70 a pound.

Cigarette companies have proposed a rollback to $1.35; Stabilization has pushed for an average support level of $1.45.

Cigarette companies want the support price rolled back through legislation, but it could be done through an administrative agreement, officials said.

50 Feared Dead In Mali Crash

BAMAKO, Mali (AP) — An Air Mali Antonov-24 carrying 51 people crashed today shortly after taking off from the airport at Timbuktu, killing all but one of the people on board, officials at the airline's headquarters here said.

Among the dead were about a dozen foreigners, but their nationalities were not immediately known, the officials said.

The twin turbo-prop plane was on a regularly scheduled flight from Bamako to Gao, in the eastern part of this Saharan nation. After a stop in Timbuktu, the plane was just taking off for Gao when the crash occurred, officials said.

According to information reaching Bamako, the accident occurred at 7:40 a.m. when the plane apparently experienced engine failure just after takeoff.

An investigation commission headed by the director of the airline went to the scene of the accident, officials said.

It was the second crash of an Antonov-24 this year. Thirty-eight people, including two Americans, were killed at Jinan, in eastern China, on Jan. 18 when an Antonov-24 belonging to the government airline CAAC crashed during a landing attempt.

The Soviet-made Antonov 24 was introduced in 1960 and a total of about 1,100 were made before production stopped in 1978.

The last major plane crash in Africa occurred on Aug. 31, 1984, when a Cameroon Airlines Boeing 737 caught fire, killing 24 and injuring 72 as it prepared for takeoff at Douala, Cameroons.

There were three African plane crashes in 1983, including the Nov. 8 crash of an Angolan airline TAAG Boeing 737 at Lubango airport that resulted in 126 deaths.

Administration Proposes New 'Superfund' Law

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is proposing a new "Superfund" law that would force businesses and states to pay a larger share of the cost of cleaning up toxic waste dumps, congressional sources said today.

The legislation, scheduled to be unveiled by Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lee M. Thomas at an afternoon news conference, proposes spending $5.3 billion over five years to begin cleaning up about 360 sites, according to the sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified.

They said the administration will ask Congress to enact a new "waste end" tax that would be levied on all businesses depositing materials in toxic dumps.

This tax would seek to raise $600 million a year, or more than half the money the EPA is proposing to spend on the Superfund program in each of the five years beginning Oct. 1.

The Superfund program is now in the final months of its first five years of operation. The budget during those years has been $1.6 billion, with six dumps being cleaned up and operations beginning at 150 to 200 others.

The administration will also ask Congress to raise the states' share of the cost of Superfund, from about $160 million a year to $320 million.

The cleanup program is now financed principally by state contributions, federal appropriations and a so-called "feed stock" tax paid by manufacturers of 42 basic chemicals that are the building blocks for other toxic substances.

The feed stock tax now accounts for two-thirds of Superfund receipts, far short of the planned proportion of almost 90 percent. The administration is proposing to end the federal contribution and maintain the feed stock levy at the present levels, the sources said.

They said the administration believes that the larger Superfund will also receive about $100 million a year through recoveries gained from court actions brought against polluters.

However, the sources said, the administration's legislation still has a gap of about $300 million over the five years between projected revenue and planned spending.

The sources said they doubted the financing plan will gain quick acceptance on Capitol Hill, where committees in both houses are pushing for a renewed Superfund set at a minimum of $7.5 billion over five years.

Congressional panels, including the House Ways and Means Committee, have studied the waste end tax in the past and rejected the approach on the grounds that it is too uncertain a revenue source.

And the sources pointed out that even under the current Superfund law, which expires Sept. 30, states are falling about 84 percent short of meeting their obligations.

Reagan Stands Firm On Bible Quotations

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says that he doesn't think he is using the Bible for political purposes when he cites Scripture to caution against cutting the Pentagon's budget.

At his news conference Thursday night, the president was asked about statements he made earlier this month that a Biblical parable supported expenditures for a strong U.S. defense. He was also asked whether he thought it was proper to use Scripture to defend a political argument.

"Well, I don't think I've ever used the Bible to further political ends or not, but I've found that the Bible contains and answer to just about everything and every problem that confronts us," Reagan replied. "I wonder sometimes why we don't recognize that one book could solve a lot of problems for us."

The president said he had "checked with a few theologians" to see whether he had correctly interpreted the passage he cited — Luke 14:31 — in two separate speeches.

"They seemed to think that it was perfectly fitting, yes," Reagan said. "It was a caution to those people in our own country who would, if given the opportunity, unilaterally disarm us."

In defending the Pentagon budget before a group of business and trade representatives on Feb. 4, Reagan said: "You might be interested to know that the Scriptures are on our side in this.

"Luke 14:31, in which Jesus in talking to the disciples spoke about a king who might be contemplating going to war against another king with his 10,000 men, but he sits down and counsels how good he's going to do against the other fellow's 20,000, and then says he may have to send a delegation to talk peace terms," Reagan told the group. "Well, I don't think we ever want to be in a position of only being half as strong and having to send a delegation to negotiate under those circumstances — peace terms — with the Soviet Union."

Later in the day he cited the same passage to the National Religious Broadcasters Conference, but he added: "I don't think the Lord that blessed this country as no other country has ever been blessed intends for us to have to some day negotiate because of our weakness." His remarks were met by loud applause from the broadcasters.

The biblical passage that Reagan referred to reads: "Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first and consulteth whether he be able with 10,000 to meet him that cometh against him with 20,000? Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassador and desireth conditions of peace."

The passage continues: "So likewise whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple."

Judge Says University Can't Ban X-Rated Films

By FREDERICK STANDISH
Associated Press Writer
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — X-rated films may be shown on campus at Michigan State University, at least during the next 10 days, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Douglas Hillman made his ruling Thursday in a case in which the American Civil Liberties Union sued the university on behalf of two students who were forbidden to show more movies after they presented "Deep Throat" on campus last month.

"This is a classic First Amendment case," Hillman said. "... The conduct by the university ... constitutes a prior restraint without any minimal procedural safeguards...."

If there is to be censorship before anyone has seen the movies the two students might show, "that censorship must have precise and clear standards," he said.

He issued a temporary order that forbade the university from preventing the students involved, Darin

Greyerbiehl and Bob Murawski, both 20, from showing movies in rooms rented on campus.

Campus officials were given 10 days to respond.

The suit said the university's canceling of room reservations for Revolver Cinema, headed by Greyerbiehl, and Box Office Spectaculars, led by Murawski, violated constitutional rights.

The university, its board of trustees, president Cecil Mackey, vice president Moses Turner, and Turner's assistant, Jim Studer, were all named in the suit.

Hillman ruled that the university had not shown that it had regulations governing the showing of X-rated films by student groups.

He dismissed university arguments that the two students showed their films for personal profit, in violation of university rules.

Greyerbiehl had planned to show an X-rated double feature tonight — "Gloria Comes Home" and "The Erotic Director." But he said Thursday that his group had no room reserved.

Greyerbiehl and Murawski, both of Bad Axe, said admission to their movies varied from 50 cents to $2.50. Greyerbiehl said he had shown an X-rated film "Pay for It" to raise money for the John De Lorean Defense Fund. He said it netted about $46.

Terror Group Claims It Killed Publisher

By KERIN HOPE
Associated Press Writer
ATHENS, Greece (AP) — November 17, a leftist terror group which has boasted of killing two U.S. officials here, has claimed it killed a conservative Greek newspaper publisher in what it said was a campaign to "strike down CIA agents."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman dismissed as "nonsense" claims that the slain publisher, Nicholas Momferratos, had been involved with the CIA.

Momferratos, 60, chairman of the board at Apogevmatini (Afternoon) newspaper, died Thursday evening, moments after two gunmen fired a dozen bullets through a side window of his blue Mercedes limousine, striking his back and chest, Athens police said. The attack occurred in the city's fashionable Kolonaki district.

Momferratos' driver, Pangiottis Roussetis, was in "critical but stable condition" today after surgery to remove bullets from his arm and stomach, a spokesman for the Red Cross hospital in the Greek capital said.

Police sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said ballistic tests indicated a .45-caliber gun fired in Thursday's attack was the same weapon used in previous killings claimed by November 17. The other weapon was a .22-caliber gun, police said.

In a rambling, four-page typewritten leaflet found near the attack site, November 17 claimed it carried out the Momferratos killing and said: "We shall uncover and strike down CIA agents in the press."

The statement claimed Momferratos "became owner of Apogevmatini with CIA money."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified, today said, "The charges are nonsense. We deplore the killing."

Apogevmatini, a popular Athens afternoon paper, opposes Premier Andreas Papandreu's Socialist government and supports conservative President Constantine Caramanlis, the country's head of state and a personal friend of Momferratos.

Papandreu, who condemned Momferratos' killing, met today with Caramanlis and discussed terrorism. An official statement issued afterward said the two Greek leaders "ascertained the need to intensify and organize more suitable measures to neutralize this threat."

After Momferratos was shot, three attackers drove away in a white Fiat with stolen license plates, police said. The car was later found abandoned 150 yards from the scene of the shooting, a city police spokesman said.

The limousine smashed through the window of a luxury store selling chocolates and porcelain.

Witnesses described one of the attackers as swarthy and of medium height, and another as bearded.

Thursday's attack was the first shooting claimed by the extremist group since April 1984, when it boasted of a failed attack against U.S. Army Sgt. Robert Judd as he was driving to the U.S. Air Force base at Athens airport.

November 17 claimed responsibility for the shooting of U.S. Navy Capt. George Tsantes, an attaché at the American Embassy, in November 1983. It claimed the killing of Richard Welch, CIA station chief in Athens, who was gunned down at Christmas 1975, and three Greek police officers.

Thatcher Returns From U.S. Trip As Pound Falls

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher returned from Washington today as the British pound hit a record low, carrying a blunt message from President Reagan that Americans will not slow the dollar's rise.

British commentators complained that Mrs. Thatcher was returning empty-handed despite her "special relationship" with Reagan and her much-applauded speech to a joint session of Congress on Wednesday.

The prime minister said before flying to Washington on Tuesday that she planned to tell Reagan the dollar's soaring value was hurting European economies.

She arrived at Heathrow Airport this morning and went to her office without making any comment. The pound was trading at a record low of $1.0780 in reaction to Reagan's comment Thursday that the U.S. government should not interfere with the surging dollar.

"Reagan Blow to Maggie," said the headline in the evening Standard newspaper, which reported that Reagan sent Mrs. Thatcher back across the Atlantic "with nothing but sympathy to help the ailing pound against the mighty dollar."

A currency market analyst declared: "If the purpose of the prime minister's visit was to persuade Reagan that the dollar was too high, then clearly it was a total failure. He has ruined any attempt to halt the pound's slide."

Commentators noted that Reagan's tough remarks were made while Mrs. Thatcher was flying home from Washington.

"If Mrs. Thatcher went to the United States with any serious purpose she has come back totally empty-handed," said Roy Hattersley, the opposition Labor Party's chief spokesman on financial matters.

"President Reagan made it brutally clear that he does not intend to bail out the British economy. He is not going artificially to depress the value of the dollar," Hattersley said.

"We must all hope that Mrs. Thatcher will also one day learn that British problems will not be solved by tinkering with money supply and public borrowing. Our prosperity depends on the investment and expansion which she has so damaged," he said.

Richard Wainwright, the Liberal Party's economic spokesman, added: "President Reagan's selfish nationalism in the essentially international matter of the dollar shows how dangerous it is for Mrs. Thatcher to flatter him."

At a Washington news conference, Mrs. Thatcher had sharply criticized New Zealand for demanding the United States declare whether any visiting U.S. ships carried nuclear weapons.

She said she would be "very disappointed" if Royal Navy ships were refused entry for the same reason. Like the United States, she said, Britain had no intention of disclosing whether a ship was carrying nuclear weapons.

Laborite Bryan Gould, a former British diplomat who was born in New Zealand, said: "Britain has been presented as an American satellite. It is hard to see how that will promote Britain's relations, either with the Soviet bloc or with our European and Commonwealth partners."

Hunt International In Financial Straits

DALLAS (AP) — Hunt International Resources Co., a major holding of the Hunt brothers, said in a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission that the company is nearly insolvent and may not be able to continue operations, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Hunt International, owned by Nelson Bunker Hunt and W. Herbert Hunt of Dallas, contended in the filing that a lack of cooperation by lenders or unanticipated legal costs "will result in the inability by the company to continue to finance its operations."

The document, filed Wednesday in Washington, said that "full payment of the company's and its subsidiaries' liabilities and obligations should be considered unlikely."

Telephone calls by The Associated Press to Nelson Bunker Hunt and Hunt International went unanswered early today. Hunt International's decline stems from a sharp fall in the price of commodities, including sugar and oil.

The SEC filing shows that all revenue from Hunt International's sugar manufacturing and marketing operations are collected immediately by lenders who then disburse funds deemed necessary to continued subsidiary operations, the newspaper said.

"The refusal by ... lending institutions to continue to advance funds will result in the inability to continue to finance the sugar operations," the filing said.

Hunt International, at the end of January, owed more than $453 million, according to the filing.

The company had a net loss in fiscal 1984 of $123.5 million on revenue of $370.9 million, according to the filing. The company in 1983 lost $53.3 million on revenue of $433.4 million, the document said.

Leak Forces Cruise Missile Delay

GRAND FORKS AIR FORCE BASE, N.D. (AP) — The Air Force postponed for 24 hours today's test of a U.S. cruise missile in Canada after a fuel leak was discovered aboard an aircraft assigned to monitor the flight, a base spokesman said.

The early morning exercise was delayed until after the fuel leak aboard an EC-135 aircraft was found late Thursday, Maj. Alton Waller said at Grand Forks Air Force Base, where the mission was scheduled to begin.

Canadian and American anti-nuclear activists planned to demonstrate at the border north of Pembina, N.D., today against cruise missile testing, a spokesman for the U.S. group said.

Test plans had called for the monitor plane, based at Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., to rendezvous over western Canada with a B-52 bomber carrying the test missile. The EC-135 would then monitor the unarmed missile during its flight, Waller said.

The B-52 was waiting on a runway at the Grand Forks base with a cruise missiles under each wing when the mission was called off shortly before midnight until Saturday.

"We'll try it again in 24 hours," Waller said.

He said officials at the Fairchild base gave no indication how severe the fuel leak was, "but you don't want to be flying with one."

The Red River Valley Peaceworkers, a Grand Forks

anti-nuclear group, planned to join hands with members of the Winnipeg Peace Coalition at the border this morning, the Rev. Walter Scott, coordinator of the Peaceworkers, said Thursday.

"We want to make a statement that we support Canadians who oppose our cruise testing in their airspace," Scott said

Doctors Working On Discharge Date For Improving Schroeder

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — While Murray Haydon continues to recover "very nicely" from his artificial heart implant, officials are working on plans to discharge his only living peer, William Schroeder, their doctor said today.

Dr. William C. DeVries, in his first meeting with reporters since performing Sunday's implant on Haydon, gave no date for Schroeder's release from the hospital. Dr. Allan M. Lansing, medical spokesman for DeVries' implant team, had said earlier that Schroeder might be out next week.

"I was hoping he (Schroeder) would get out the middle of February and this flu, or whatever, just put us back about three weeks," DeVries said.

Flu was among several suggested causes of a persistent fever that plagued Schroeder for most of this month, again complicating his recuperation from the world's second artificial heart implant. Schroeder had a major setback Dec. 13, suffering a series of strokes.

"We're working on discharge plans with him right now," DeVries said.

DeVries said he was working to educate Schroeder's wife and children about caring for the mechanical-heart patient and trying to instill "confidence" in them.

Asked if there was any medical reason that Schroeder could not be discharged immediately, DeVries said, "We'd like to get a little time under our belt, make sure the fever doesn't come back."

Meanwhile, Haydon, the third artificial heart recipient, "is doing very well this morning and he's recovering very nicely," DeVries said. Doctors earlier said he was experiencing fatigue and minor kidney problems.

Doctors have been tinkering with Haydon's blood pressure to find the ideal level for all his body functions, DeVries said.

DeVries said he wasn't sure whether Haydon was yet experiencing any post-surgery depression.

Haydon is a "quiet, gentle person," much like the late Barney Clark, the first Jarvik-7 heart patient, so "it's hard to tell if he's going through the blahs yet," DeVries said.

On Thursday, a pathologist said his tests indicate that Haydon was "less likely to have a stroke" like those that struck Schroeder.

Also Thursday, Schroeder, 53, of Jasper, Ind., made his second wheelchair trip outdoors. He spent about 10 minutes on the Humana Hospital Audubon parking lot, accompanied by his wife, Margaret, and several hospital staff members.

Speaking in a near-whisper and with apparent difficulty, Schroeder told three reporters, "I'm feeling real fine," and waved several times at a television camera.

Schroeder made his first trip outside on Tuesday, but an outing Wednesday was canceled because doctors were concerned about the number of reporters waiting for Schroeder. Thursday's outing was limited to a pool of reporters.

"It feels good to have him just come out; that's the main thing," said Mrs. Schroeder. "I don't want him to be frightened of everybody when he comes out the door. ... It would make him kind of not want to come out again, afraid that he might see that everybody out there is going to look at him."

After discharge, Schroeder and his wife are to occupy one apartment in a four-unit building across the street from the hospital. Humana Inc. owns the building.

Haydon, 58, of Louisville, whose Jarvik-7 was implanted Sunday, continues to be weak, but "his breathing has come much easier," Lansing said at a Thursday briefing.

He said Haydon's kidney failure should clear up without treatment.

If his condition remains stable, doctors expect to connect Haydon to the shoulder-slung Heimes drive system, the portable power supply, for the first time on Saturday or Sunday.

Pathologist Stephan Johnson, who dissected both patients' natural hearts, said they contrasted sharply, but that there was one similarity.

"Both hearts were so severely damaged they led to intractable damage — damage that did not respond to modern medical methods," Johnson said.

Unlike Schroeder's heart, Haydon's was relatively free of arterial disease and blood clots.

Since arteriosclerosis is unlikely to be confined to the heart, "it would be assumed that there is no significant involvement of the vessels in his (Haydon's) brain and, therefore, on that basis, he's less likely to have a stroke," Johnson said in an interview.

Haydon suffered from cardiomyopathy, a deterioration of the heart muscle, and had lost nearly all his strength.

"He by definition had a matter of perhaps days or weeks to live," Johnson said.

Fifty percent of the disease's victims die within six months of noticing its symptoms, such as chronic shortness of breath, and two-thirds die within a year, Johnson said.

Cardiomyopathy is most often caused by a virus, which has been mentioned several times by Haydon's doctors as the likely root of his problems.

Competition Worries Private Satellite-Launching Companies

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of a private satellite-launching firm has told Congress that companies like his won't be able to compete with the space shuttle if the government continues to subsidize the shuttle's costs.

"A commercial industry cannot exist if it has government competition that does not face the same economic world," Antonio L. Savoca, president and chief executive officer of Transpace Carriers, Inc., testified Thursday. The company has not yet launched its first payload.

To date, NASA's shuttle operations have been a money-losing business but it was intended that way. To lure customers, the government agency set its prices low for the first years of operation. The first shuttle launch was in April 1981.

Although each shuttle flight will cost about $150 million at the rate of 14 missions a year, NASA can earn back only about $40 million for satellite launches per flight until October when the price rises above $71 million through October 1988.

Savoca testified at a House subcommittee hearing on NASA's pricing policy for three years beginning in 1989. NASA has said that with an ever-increasing launch schedule — up to 24 flights a year — the shuttle can pay its way after 1989 if it can earn back $87 million on each mission.

Owners of communications satellites currently pay NASA $10 million for a launch, a price that will double beginning in October. The bargain introductory price has prompted Telesat of Canada to go ahead with the shuttle launch of a communications satellite it doesn't need. The satellite will either be sold, or it will be parked in orbit until Telesat has use for it.

While Savoca argued for "full-cost recovery," another witness said a higher price would put his firm out of business and still another questioned whether the shuttle should be in the satellite-launching business in the first place.

Transpace Carriers operates under an agreement with NASA to conduct commercial launches using expendable Delta rockets.

A charge of $87 million per flight "falls substantially short of full-cost-recovery as the term is known in the economic world," Savoca said. "Indeed, given the apparent NASA definition, no rational businessman would decide to enter the industry."

He added that if the $87 million price becomes policy, it would cause the one-use rocket industry to fail. But David W. Thompson, chairman and chief executive officer of Orbital Sciences Corporation, which is building rockets to move satellites around in space, said shuttle prices should remain low after 1988.

"The space shuttle was never intended to be used solely for U.S. government mission," he said, "and it would be a national tragedy if forthcoming decisions had the effect of so limiting its use."

A third view came from John W. Townsend Jr., president of Fairchild Space Company, whose space activities include leasing of satellites.

"My view is that prices already are too high and any significant increase will probably eliminate some ventures, considering the fact that most of us face considerable risk as things stand now," Townsend said.

If shuttle prices rise, he said, the competition from the European Ariane rocket will quickly capture the market for launching commercial communications satellites.

"I wonder if we, as a nation, are doing the right thing to put heavy pressure on NASA to make the shuttle 'pay off,'" Townsend said.

"An alternative might well be not to use the space shuttle at all to launch commercial communications satellites," Townsend said. "Instead, save it for the launch of NASA research and development satellites, Department of Defense missions that need it, on-board scientific and applications research, the space station when ready and those beginning ventures in space commercialization that require it."

Fast Food Chain Opens First Thailand Eatery

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — America's fast-food invasion scores another victory with Saturday's opening of the first McDonald's restaurant in Thailand, traditionally the land of a quick bowl of noodles or curry from wayside vendors.

"It's a combination of Western and Thai style," says local managing director Dej Bulsuk of his hamburger outlet. But besides Thai script, portraits of Thailand's royal couple and photographs of old Bangkok, the 200-seat eatery is a gleaming, computerized, assembly line operation, American-style.

Dej, a 34-year-old businessman who vied for the franchise with a number of other Thai entrepreneurs, said the equivalent of $2.1 million had already been spent on the restaurant, which will employ more than 100.

The 5,380-square-foot restaurant is located in a recently opened shopping mall in the heart of Bangkok.

Dej said four other outlets would be opened in Bangkok under the direction of McThai Co., a joint venture with the American fast-food giant.

The Subtle Beauty Of Weathered Wood

Traditionally, as a matter of aesthetic preference, the Japanese leave unpainted the wood used in construction of houses, walls, shrines and other structures. The changes in wood colors and textures due to exposure to sun, wind, and rain as well as the consequent heightened emergence of the pattern of the wood grain is to them a source of pleasure, an unobtrusive art that forms an integral basis for much of their poetry, painting and literature.

Unpainted wood structures are one of the most prevalent types of buildings on the rural scene in eastern North Carolina. The motivation for not painting is usually one of economics, not aesthetics. But the end result is the same — an abundance of wood structures, primarily of pine, but with a scattering of hardwoods, which reveals the subtle beauty that wood surfaces take on in exposure to the elements of nature through the years.

Minister Sails To Spread Message

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Jesus called some of his disciples from their boats to join his ministry, but a modern-day follower is reversing the pattern — taking to a boat to spread the message.

The Rev. Stanley Easty, a retired Episcopal priest, and his wife, Reba, have sold their house and most other possessions and bought a yacht, Nicodemus, as home and for ministry along 1,000 miles of the Southeast coastline.

"It's a whole new lifestyle," he says. "All those possessions were an albatross around our necks."

He plans to serve as vacation relief for clergy at parishes along the way, where many priests in resort areas have trouble finding temporary replacements in vacation periods, and also do casual counseling.

"Everybody's got problems," he says. "And when they find you sitting at a dock, willing to listen, they want to tell you about them."

He calls his floating ministry plan "the perfect retirement job. I'll be able to keep up my ministry without all the red tape and rigamarole of parish life."

CWS Plans Relief Aid

NEW YORK (AP) — Church World Service, relief arm of the National Council of Churches plans to provide aid to Afghan people in territories both outside control of the Soviet-supported government and under it is planned by Church World Service, relief arm of the National Council of Churches.

The Rev. R. Lawrence Turnipseed, CWS Southern Asia director, says Afghans face a "very real threat of famine and starvation" because of the prolonged fighting and disruption of civil life resulting from the Soviet intervention.

"There is evidence of conscious disruption of the food supply system by the Soviets," he says.

CWS is seeking at least $100,000 from member denominations to provide food, medicine and blankets to be channeled through Pakistan's InterAid Committee to people in areas not controlled by the Soviet-backed government.

The agency says it will also seek to aid people in areas under government control. Turnipseed, citing a 1984 report, says the fighting in Afghanistan has caused decreased agricultural production and inadequate nutrition for children.

Bill Tightens Tuition Breaks

RALEIGH (AP) — Dependents of military personnel or veterans must register with the Selective Service System in order to qualify for special college scholarships or in-state tuition under a bill introduced in the Legislature.

"We give vets a special break because they have been extra loyal and served this nation well, but we have run across some who declared their eligibility for those breaks and yet have refused to comply with the (registration) law," said Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, one of the bill's co-sponsors. "If they choose to be of this kind, then they do not get this type of benefit."

Dependents of military veterans who either served in a war or were disabled are allowed special scholarships in North Carolina. Dependents of active-duty personnel can now attend a state university or community college at in-state rates even if their official residency is in another state if their parent is stationed in North Carolina.

Presented earlier this week, the bill would require that before any of those breaks are allowed, dependents who are of age must be registered with the federal government.

Swain, Sens. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, and Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, sponsored the bill, which has been referred to the Committee on Education by Lt. Gov. Robert Jordan.

Facts About The BIBBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WHO WERE THE PATRIARCHS?

THE TITLE IS ONE THAT IS GIVEN TO THE MEN OF GOD, AND THE HEADS OF FAMILIES AND CLANS, WHOSE LIVES ARE RECORDED IN THE OLD TESTAMENT AND WHO LIVED, CHIEFLY, BEFORE THE TIME OF MOSES. NATURALLY, IT IS A TITLE FOUND ONLY IN THE NEW TESTAMENT AND COMES FROM THE GREEK WORD "PATRIARCHES," WHICH SIGNIFIES "HEAD OF FAMILY." IT IS APPLIED TO ABRAHAM (HEB. 7:4), ALSO TO THE TWELVE SONS OF JACOB (ACTS 7:8-9), AND TO KING DAVID (ACTS 2:20). IN THE PATRIARCHAL SYSTEM, THE RULERSHIP OF A CLAN IS REGARDED AS THE PATERNAL RIGHT AND IT RESIDES, THE FIRST INSTANCE, IN THE PROGENITOR OF THE TRIBE, DESCENDING FROM HIM TO THE FIRST-BORN SON, OR THE ELDEST MALE DESCENDANT. THE HEAD OF EACH SEPARATE FAMILY, INTO WHICH THE INCREASING GENERATIONS EXPAND, ALSO EXERCISES THE SAME RIGHTS WITHIN HIS OWN LIMITED SPHERE.

Family Is Rocked By 'Disownment'

By SUSAN YELLIN
Canadian Press Writer
WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — On the same hot and muggy summer day that Shawna Yaffe, born a Jew, celebrated what should have been one of the happiest days of her life, her parents went into mourning.

youngest daughter has died when she marries a non-Jew.
"But even in Fiddler on the Roof, when they were leaving, he turned around and said something to her before they left," says Shawna, whose real name appeared in the obituary but who now asks that it be kept confidential.

On Aug. 23, 1984, Shawna married a Gentile. A few days later, her parents placed their daughter's obituary in the weekly Jewish Post newspaper, requesting that "no condolences be sent or memorials be made."

She says her parents' action was not unexpected, that she felt it coming five years ago when she started to date the man who is now her husband.

The Yaffes had disowned their daughter.
For most North American Jews, about all they've heard of "disownment" — where parents consider their child dead and observe the traditional seven days of mourning — probably comes from the popular stage and film musical, "Fiddler on the Roof." In it, an anguished Tevye acts as if his

She says her parents' action was not unexpected, that she felt it coming five years ago when she started to date the man who is now her husband.
The religious background to the now rare action rests in the Old Testament, Deuteronomy 7:3, in which God instructs the Jews, before they cross the Jordan river, not to marry non-Jewish inhabitants to avoid being swayed to serve other gods.

"I think the philosophy behind it (disowning) is a way of or a method of impressing upon our young adults the importance of keeping the Jewish faith alive and furthering the Jewish faith in its cause," says Orthodox Rabbi Ephraim Bryks of Winnipeg.

Bryks, who acted as mediator between Shawna and her parents before Shawna was married, points out the case is unusual — that "it may happen only once" in every 100, or even 1,000, cases of intermarriage.

have to be repaid in cash. A limit of $20,000 per farmer would be placed on deficiency payments in 1986 and would be lowered to $15,000 in 1987 and $10,000 in 1988 and thereafter until the payments were phased out.

In return for price support benefits and deficiency payments, producers of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice would have to reduce their acreage by 15 percent in 1986, 10 percent in 1987 and 5 percent in 1988.

No "paid diversion" programs for idling land would be authorized. After 1988, USDA would not have the authority to impose acreage reductions.

The Reagan plan also calls for sweeping changes in the dairy program, including the phase-out of the present method of USDA buying surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk to prop up milk prices at the farm. Beginning in 1987-88, farmers would get direct payments based on target prices.

Peanut allotments and quotas, and the honey support program also would be eliminated by the administration's farm bill.

According to administration budget experts, programs under the current Agriculture and Food Act passed by Congress in 1981 have cost taxpayers $63.3 billion, compared to $27.7 billion for the 1977 act and $12.7 billion for the 1973 law.

In the 1982-83 fiscal year alone, net outlays for federal commodity programs were a record $18.9 billion. Those have eased to an estimated $15 billion for the fiscal year that will end on Sept. 30 and, under Reagan budget proposals, would drop to about $10.5 billion in 1985-86.

The goal, according to the administration, is to cut farm spending to a range of $3 billion to $5 billion a year in the 1989-91 period.

40 Percent In Church

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — On a typical week in 1984, 40 percent of the American people went to church, reports the Gallup poll organization.

It says church attendance has remained remarkably constant for 12 years, not varying more than 1 percent from the 40-percent mark since 1972.

The 1984 figures show 51 percent of Roman Catholics and 39 percent of Protestants attended church in a typical week.

According to Baker, in almost every state and community officials are "tightening the belts on academic requirements for athletes." This is good, he said. "It needs to begin in the ninth and 10th grades."

Howell said, "I think that the committee Mr. Carson has proposed will be a very useful committee for the university system. The issue has not just developed. It's been talked about as long as I've been chancellor.

"We've been trying to gear ourselves up to be in compliance" with the NCAA 700 rule when it takes effect," Howell said.

But he said at East Carolina "we do not use the SAT score as the primary criteria for admission" of any student. Most schools don't. We rely primarily on a student's high school academic record.

"We have a formula by which we predict the grade average of prospective students," Howell said. "We put in such things as high school average, size of class, student rank and SAT score. We weigh it to give more to the high school average than to the SAT score. The high school average is a better predictor. The SAT is a means of corroborating what you find out on his high school average."

Saying the "general public is beginning to have the view that the SAT is the most significant factor in the admissions decision," Howell suggested instead that the "SAT is a quick and dirty way of deciding

Inside Game Lets American Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

FT. MEYER, Va. — It's not often that a college basketball team can shoot 59 percent from the floor, 87.5 percent from the line and still lose.

But that's exactly what East Carolina University did last night when it visited American University at the Ft. Meyer Center, bowing 88-79.

The Pirates shot well, but they matched 20-footers with layups, and the tale was told there.

American University, taking its shorter men inside against the taller Pirates, scored 18 of 31 field goals from "the paint," and when they didn't score they got fouled. That was the difference. East Carolina scored five more field goals than did the Eagles, but made seven of eight free throws as compared to 26 of 31 for American.

For a downhearted Charlie Harrison, it was the same old story that's been told so many times this year. "We're just not getting any inside play. Oh, we might get a point or a rebound here and there, but very few second shots. We can't play good defense on the perimeter if we're not getting any inside."

And that's what happened — again. East Carolina's outside men poured in the points, with Curt Vanderhorst hitting 28, William Grady 21, Herb Dixon 12 and Keith Sledge eight. That left just nine points for the two inside men, Roy Smith and Leon Bass.

The two big men collected eight rebounds between them as the Pirates were outrebounded 29-22. In comparison, the two inside men for American snatched away 16, nine by Jim Lutz and seven by Eric White, while forward Steve Nesmith also had seven.

The leading rebounder for the Pirates was Sledge, who pulled away six.

Amazingly, the best lineup the Pirates put on the floor was five men who would normally be considered guards: Dixon, Vanderhorst, Sledge, Grady and Scott Hardy. They made a run at American at the end, but finally had to resort to the foul to try and get the ball and it failed to pay off.

"This game was typical of our breakdowns," Harrison said. "We've had good shooting from the outside in most all of our games, but when you don't get anything from the inside people and never get any second shots, even when we're in position..."

As they have in so many games this year, the Pirates scored the first four points only to see American come back and finally take the lead on a three-point play by Chuck West, 7-6 with 15:33 left in the half. Vanderhorst hit to put the Pirates back on top 8-7, and Grady added a jumper from the lane for a 10-7 advantage.

But again American rallied, and another three-point play by West put them up 12-10 with 14:12 to play. They never trailed again.

Lutz hit from the baseline to give the Eagles a four-point edge, 14-10, and for the next few minutes, it was give-and-take as the two swapped points.

Finally, however, a pair of Nesmith baskets upped the lead to 27-22, and later hit hit two more to run it to 33-26 with 4:55 left.

A few seconds later, Longmire Harrison scored to give the Eagles a 37-28 lead, their largest of the half. ECU cut it back to 40-33 at the half.

A three-point play by Lutz to start the second half gave the Eagles a 10-point spread, 43-33, but the Pirates battled back to a 45-42 deficit three minutes into the half.

Then, after an American time out, the Eagles outhit the Pirates 8-2 to move back out by nine, 53-44, and then followed that up by stretching it to 13 as White scored six straight for a 61-48 lead.

East Carolina cut it to eight, then went through a period of basket swapping before Dixon and Vanderhorst both scored to cut the lead to 78-72 with 3:03 left.

But Lutz and West both scored on drives to move back out by eight and the Pirates were out of it after that. Nesmith led American with 22 points while Lutz and West each had 19 and White had 18.

The Pirates fall to 6-18 overall and 0-12 in ECAC-South play, while American is now 8-17, 3-10.

The loss also cemented the Pirates into the basement of the league and they will now meet top-seeded Navy in the first round of the ECAC-South tournament on March 7.

500th At Long Last
Maryland head coach Lefty Driesell gestures to his players during their game with Towson State (Md.) Thursday night. Maryland

Towson St. Quietly Rolls Over For Lefty's 500th

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — After failing four times to reach the 500-victory mark, Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell was sandbagged by his own players after he finally reached the pinnacle.

Invited into the locker room for comments instead of heading for his usual postgame spot in the training room after Thursday night's 91-38 drubbing of Towson State, Driesell was greeted by a champagne dousing.

Driesell fought off his son Chuck, a senior guard, and freshman center Derrick Lewis before the contents of the bottle was poured on his bald pate.

"They messed up my cigar," Driesell said, puffing to get the tobacco burning after drying it off as well as he could. Then he vowed to order extra running in practice for the ringleaders.

The champagne had been toted around the Atlantic Coast Conference for two weeks while the Terps tried to nail down the elusive victory.

"I'm glad it's over," Driesell said of the quest. "I got tired of hearing '499' every time we played on the road."

Driesell was already in fast company on the all-time list, even before the mismatch against Towson State, an undermanned intrastate rival which was down to eight players because of injuries, illness and academic difficulties.

In his 25th season of collegiate coaching, Driesell becomes the 17th to reach the 500-victory level in Division I competition, and ranks sixth among those still active.

"His record speaks for itself," said senior Adrian Branch, who paced Maryland with 20 points. "We're being coached by a legend. It was a big win at home... Coach deserved a chance to go down in the history books."

Driesell, hounded by the media and enemy crowds as the Terps lost to Duke, North Carolina, Clemson and Georgia Tech, was able to joke for the first time in two weeks.

"This was a good way to win a big game," he said after Maryland extended its record to 20-10. "We need to schedule more games like that next year."

With Towson State, 7-18, missing 14 of its first 15 shots and having four others blocked, Maryland jumped ahead 16-2 and led 38-20 by halftime.

Leading 48-28 after Steffan Bunsavage scored for Towson State with 16:03 left, the Terps outscored the Tigers by an incredible 38-1 margin — a streak snapped by a foul shot after 20 consecutive points.

"It was nice to be able to relax and play loose," Driesell said. "I didn't have to get my heart beating fast."

Driesell insisted throughout his extended ordeal that reaching the 20-victory level and beating an ACC team was more important than reaching No. 500, and he persisted after the game.

"This was our 20th win," he said. "I hope it gives us some spark."

"We got 20, 500 and our self-esteem back," added Branch.

It was the 16th time in 25 years at Maryland and Davidson that Driesell had reached the 20-victory level.

In answer to a question, Driesell said he did not try to run up the score against Towson, explaining he used a pressing defense because the Terps needed work on that aspect of their game.

Coach Terry Truax of Towson, a Maryland graduate, said he had no trouble with Driesell's tactics.

"He's won 500, so he knows what he's doing," Truax said. "He wanted to give the Maryland team some confidence. Maryland was hungry and wanted to beat someone."

Asked to describe his feelings facing the Terps under the circumstances, Truax cracked: "It was like going to Vietnam without a gun."

At least, Truax said, he was comforted by the thought that "there has never been a shutout in basketball."

Chris To Sit Out Year

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State basketball coach Jim Valvano says it's better that freshman Chris Washburn "hit the books" and perform court-ordered community service than return to the Wolfpack squad this season.

"I just hope that Chris can go ahead and get the job done, for his own sake," Valvano said in an interview Thursday after releasing a statement that Washburn would not be allowed to return to the team this season.

UNC-Wilmington Hands Lady Pirates 1st Loop Loss

WILMINGTON — All good things must come to an end, and East Carolina's Lady Pirates saw their 15-game winning streak come to a close last night against the Lady Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington, 79-70.

After wrapping up top seeding in the ECAC-South's post-season tournament on Monday with a victory over James Madison, 61-57, the Lady Pirates were trying to give themselves the regular season championship, but failed to do so.

They can still do it, however, by beating Richmond in their final home game Sunday at 3 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

With Gwen Austin leading the way for the Seahawks, UNC-W stormed out to a five-point lead in the opening minutes of the game. East Carolina struggled back, however, and finally tied it up at 14-14.

From there East Carolina pushed ahead, moving out by as much as seven points. But the Lady Seahawks suddenly got hot and rolled out to a 43-34 lead over the Pirates.

In the second half, Wilmington pushed out to as much as an 11-point lead, but the Lady Pirates finally pulled back to within three with 5:30 left. It stayed close until the 2:40 mark when UNCW ran off five unanswered points that wrapped it up, gaining a 75-69 lead with 1:40 left to play.

Austin led the Lady Seahawks with 22 points, also pulling away 13 rebounds on the evening. Sissy Morse hit 21 points while Sonya Pickard added 15 points.

East Carolina was led by Anita Anderson with 18 points while Loraine Foster hit 16 and Lisa Squirewell added 14. Squirewell led the ECU rebounding with 11 but the Pirates were outrebounded by the Seahawks, 46-42.

"We didn't have any second and third shots," Coach Emily Manwaring said. "They shot really well in the first half but we did a little better on defense in the second half, going to man, but they got several layups out of that. They made their free throws down the stretch and we didn't make ours, and that was one of the differences."

Manwaring said she didn't think that the Lady Pirates have had intensity in three of their last four games. "I thought we had good intensity against Madison, but not in the other three. I don't know what caused it, but we can't play away games without good intensity. This was the lowest of that desire."

Manwaring added that she thought Anderson and Annette Phillips played well, but she didn't feel that she got the play from the guards that was needed to win.

"I don't know if we've peaked early or not or what. I don't think we learned anything from the loss, but it reminds us that it's no fun to lose. I think they'll be ready for Sunday and the tournament."

"I do think that we probably lost any slim chance that we had for an at-large (NCAA) bid with the loss after we had gotten off to such a poor start."

The loss dropped the Lady Pirates to 17-9 overall and 10-1 in ECAC-South play.

Williams Paces North Pitt

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Clifton Williams fired in 18 points on the North Pitt Panthers took advantage of Greene Central's inability to score in the first half and advanced to the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament finals with a 48-32 victory Thursday.

But the story of the night was 34 points by Cyndi Hicks as she led the Lady Rams of Greene Central to a 60-49 come-from-behind win over Farmville Central. That game was marred by a series of flagrant fouls and near-fights in the final minute of play.

Greene Central eventually iced the game at the line, as the Lady Rams hit 13 out of 19 in the final period while Farmville managed just six of 11.

The Lady Jaguars trimmed the margin to nine points on a drive by Lisa Lang with 20 seconds left, but Farmville's Joy Peaden fouled out 17 seconds later when Hicks was wedged in a pack of defenders. Peaden further antagonized the Greene Central cheering section with an obscene gesture as she left the court.

Hicks missed the first of a one-and-one free throw situation, and Farmville cleared the rebound — only to have Hicks steal the ball and drive toward the goal. Lang shoved Hicks from behind preventing the bucket but also enraging the volatile crowd.

Hicks made both free throws to set the final margin, and Greene Central Coach Brenda Dail kept her team on the floor but away from the ball as time expired.

"I thought it was a very competitive game up until that point," Dail said. "I only have seven kids on the team now, so I had to protect them."

Cynthia Corbett contributed 12 points for the Lady Rams, while Cynthia Jones added 10. Lang paced Farmville with 21 points, and Stephanie Newton added 13.

"We've lost so many players, we had to come together again as a team," Dail said. "We've got to rely on Hicks' outside shooting to open up the middle for us. Cynthia Corbett has started to come into her own, as she showed (against Farmville)."

"I thought (at halftime) that if we stayed within five points of Farmville, it wasn't too much of a deficit to make up. We started getting the ball inside when they had to come out and guard Cyndi (Hicks)."

Farmville Central held a 29-24 halftime lead, but the Lady Rams quickly erased the deficit with 11 unanswered points for a 35-29 lead at the 3:18 mark. Hicks connected on a pair of field goals and a free throw, and Cynthia Corbett added four points in that stretch.

The Lady Rams maintained a 37-33 advantage going into the fourth quarter, which turned into a series of trips to the free throw line for each team. Hicks and Cynthia Jones sank two free throws each for Greene Central as the Lady Rams outscored Farmville 13-3 through the 3:55 mark to build their lead to 50-36.

The Lady Rams' 13-point margin was matched two more times, as Hicks connected on a pair of free throws with 3:19 left and again at the 2:44 mark.

The Lady Rams will play SouthWest Edgecombe tonight at 7 p.m. for the ECC championship. SouthWest has defeated Greene Central twice including a 17-point loss in the regular season finale, but Dail hopes her team can turn the table.

"Even though we lost by 17 last week, I feel like we learned a lot," Dail said. "I think we can stay with SouthWest, but the (game) that really counts is in the district tournament."

PANTHERS-RAMS

The trouble started early for Greene Central's boys as they managed a 2-2 tie on a field goal by James Hill at the 6:38 mark, then didn't score again until 1:21 remained in the quarter as O.J. Sheppard sank a free throw to trim the margin to 10-3.

Meanwhile, the Panthers got four points inside by Paul Streeter at the start of the game, and Williams took over in the second quarter with a seven-point effort as North Pitt expanded the margin to 20-4 at halftime.

"We just didn't get it going on offense," Greene Central Coach Gregg Ashorn said. "But I'm completely satisfied with the way we played. If we went out on a bad note, at least I know we played hard all the way. I knew we could beat them if we played hard and executed our offense."

"We had a big win Tuesday against Farmville; anything after that was gravy. We weren't expected to win that game, but we did. I think a lot of young kids learned a lot about basketball this year; I'm just sorry we lose (seniors) Maurice Edwards and Mike Warren."

North Pitt and Ayden-Grifton square off in the championship game at 8:15 p.m. The Chargers and Panthers split their two ECC meetings during the regular season, with each winning on the road.

"I told the kids all you need is a chance," North Pitt Coach Cobby Deans said. "We earned it (against Greene Central), and now we have to come back against Ayden-Grifton. Knowing that you're already in the district tournament takes some of the pressure off."

"Ayden-Grifton will have this place packed."

Williams sank four out of six from the free throw line and grabbed seven rebounds for the Panthers.

"Clifton Williams is having a good tournament," Deans said. "He plays hard all the way. We were a little improved inside; (Greene Central's) pretty physical inside."

"Against Ayden-Grifton, we have to try and control Marvin Smith and Doug Anderson inside. Mike Dixon and Danny West give you problems with their outside shooting, so it's not going to be easy."

Six Champions Ready To Defend State Mat Titles

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Six of seven state champions from 1984 return to defend their titles Friday as the first round of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association wrestling championships begin at Winston-Salem Parkland.

Last year, Fayetteville Cape Fear broke a nine-year string of Mideast team titles by winning the overall crown, despite failing to take home an individual champion.

With the start of Friday's competition in the two-day tournament, six teams enter five qualifiers apiece and six more, including East Forsyth and West Caldwell, have four each.

Brevard, last year's runnerup, and Fayetteville Westover — both with five wrestlers — are among the early favorites.

The six returning champions are Scottie Holden (108) of East Gaston, Mark Bumgarner (135) of Brevard, Todd McIntosh (170) of High Point Andrews, Chris Zwilling (188) of Sanderson, Geno Segers (198) of East Forsyth and Tony Mercer (HWT) of North Mecklenburg.

A dinner break for fans and coaches will follow Friday's first round. Quarterfinals are set for 7 p.m.

Saturday's schedule has first-round consolation at 10 a.m., semifinals at noon, second-round consolation at 2 p.m., consolation finals at 7 p.m. and championship finals at 8 p.m.

Twiggs Leads Trevino By One

MIAMI (AP) — Lee Trevino admits to practicing a little gamesmanship from time to time. "I'm a good player," the Hall-of-Famer said in a matter-of-fact tone Thursday after a wind-blown 69 had put him one shot off the pace in the first round of the $400,000 Doral-Eastern Open.

"I know I'm a good player," Trevino said. "I have confidence in myself and what I can do. I can play. If I shoot 80 tomorrow, I'll still say I'm a good player."

"I'm still capable of winning. I'm still capable of winning in the majors."

"The only time you'll hear me say, 'Oh, I can't play, I can't putt, I'm too old' is when I'm trying to turn people off a little," he said. Moment earlier, he had completed his 3-under-par round despite an erratic driver and winds that gusted to 35 miles per hour.

"I hit the driver awful. I can't remember when I hit so many off line," Trevino said.

But only one man in the field, rookie Greg Twiggs, had a better score. Twiggs, 24, who has played in only three other Tour events and did not qualify for the final round in any of them, birdied the last hole for a 68.

He's only seen his name on the leaderboard once in his Tour career.

He has yet to make a cut. "The first few weeks, nothing seemed to go right," said Twiggs, who last year competed on the mini-tours before gaining his playing rights in golf's big leagues, the arena in which Trevino has starred for many years.

But Trevino insists that he, not the rookie, is now the underdog.

NBC Plans Three-Part 'Evergreen' Miniseries Beginning Sunday Night

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Evergreen" is one of those purposefully fuzzy titles that sounds alluring and can mean anything to anybody, but ends up delivering much less than meets the eye.

Since NBC's three-part miniseries is about a beautiful immigrant whose dreams of trading her rags for riches do come true, does "Evergreen" refer to the constant lure of the great American greenback?

Since our heroine ages about 60 years in the six-hour multigenerational tale but never wrinkles, is "Evergreen" a metaphor for a forever young sapling?

Or, since the miniseries is, for the most part, slow and stilted, could it be a reference to a tree that just sits there, year after year, without change?

Based on the best-selling first novel by Belva Plain, the New Jersey grandmother who wrote it in 1978, at the age of 59, "Evergreen" is not as intellectually insulting as last week's "Hollywood Wives," but it offers no compelling reason to watch.

The miniseries, which was filmed in Toronto (the stand-in for New York) and Israel, will be broadcast Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Its broad premise is enticing: a Polish Jew, fresh off the boat in 1909, raises an upwardly mobile family while 20th century America goes through wars, depression, prosperity and social changes.

But, except for some tender family moments and some effective scenes about pig-headed prejudice by Christians and Jews in Part 2, the production doesn't move in that direction enough. As an introspective look at growing up Jewish in America, or as social commentary, "Evergreen" falls flatter than a matzah.

"Roots" Goldberg, this isn't. So, what is it?

It's mostly an unconvincing triangular love story. Lesley Ann Warren stars as Anna, the poor Jewish housekeeper who marries Joseph Friedmann (Armand Assante) but is hopelessly in love (through wars, depression and prosperity) with Paul Lerner (Ian McShane), the wealthy son of her first employer.

Paul is a woefully underdeveloped character, and their secret love, the least interesting storyline, weaves in and out like an annoying drunk. Near the end of Sunday's installment, she agonizes whether to stay with her solid family man or leave for a passionate love with Paul.

That artificial conflict aside, the most poignant and believable dilemmas are the Friedmanns' internal ones.

Joseph has more of an Old-World concept of his religion than Anna or their children, and when their son, Maury (Tony Soper), marries a blue-blooded Protestant (Kate Burton), Joseph disowns him and even refuses to see his grandson.

In another affecting scene, Joseph has a heart-to-heart talk with his grandson — Joseph isn't stubborn forever — about Jewish identification and discrimination, while they're polishing the family's fancy car in their suburban driveway.

Assante plays Joseph, the virtuous family man, as if he were an Italian godfather, and the portrayal works marvelously. He has more impact than Miss Warren. Although she has a high-voltage smile and is an appealing actress, her accent and overpronunciations would fit better on a "Saturday Night Live" parody.

Miss Burton gives a breezy, natural performance as the Friedman's estranged daughter-in-law. Brian Dennehy is quite good as Matthew Malone, Joseph's salt-of-the-earth Irish-Catholic friend and business partner.

This production can evoke some heart-felt emotion around the dinner-table, but the tragedies that beset the family every generation seem more like the prerequisite soap-opera mishaps. The family suffers, seems barely affected and moves on. There's little reflection or growth.

NBC has forecast that "Evergreen" should attract 35 percent of the viewing audience. If it really does that well over three nights, NBC will be ecstatic. Miniseries have not been performing spectacularly this season, and many industry observers credit that to the increased inroads by cable. With so many choices now available on the dial, audiences may be reluctant to commit to three nights of a mediocre miniseries.

NBC, which does better than ABC and CBS in pay-cable homes, could be hurt Sunday by the debut of HBO's "Finnegan Begin Again," starring Mary Tyler Moore and Robert Preston.

The made-for-HBO film is an uneven, but better-than-average (for TV) romantic comedy about a mismatched couple — he's 65 and she's 45 — whose prickly friendship evolves into something more.

One point of "Finnegan Begin Again" is that love and an indomitable spirit can counteract age, a philosophy that one might dub ... Evergreen.

European Disney Park Talked

PARIS (AP) — Will Mickey Mouse go Continental?

Nice might be nice for the most beloved of mice, but France has a farmfield outside Paris in mind for Monsieur Mickey Souris, as the Disney cartoon character is known to the French. Meanwhile, Spain is trying to woo Raton Miguelito and his Disney pals to the Spanish Mediterranean.

The word that Disney Productions wants to open a theme park in Europe similar to Disneyland in California and Disneyworld in Florida means the chance for some 10,000 jobs at the park, employment for construction workers and billions in investment and tourist dollars.

The reported front-runners for the project, France and Spain, are vying hard for the park, with insiders saying the French seem to have the edge.

Disney Productions, at an annual shareholders' meeting earlier this month, announced it was considering a European venture.

High-level negotiations in France have been going on for a year. Premier Laurent Fabius is playing a major role, along with the Ministry for Foreign Trade and Industry, and the Paris regional government.

The "dossier Disney" is being treated like a state secret and no one in government is willing to reveal specifics. Disney representatives shutting between France and Spain have refused to comment at all.

But sources familiar with the project say it is now down to France and Spain — or no project at all. A final decision is expected within the next two or three months, the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said.

"We are very interested in the project," said Michel Giraud, president of the Paris Regional Council, after a meeting last week with the Disney team. "We decided to meet again on March 4."

Disney requires an area of at least 5,000 acres with a population of 35 million in a radius of 100 miles. "With the proximity of Paris, the eastern sector of Marne-la-Vallee is very close to that figure," said Giraud.

Marne-la-Vallee is a new town about 12 miles east of central Paris.

The proposed site is a few miles east of town in what is now unused farmland.

Administration Ponders Speed Limit Options

By H. JOSEF HERBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department says it is considering a wide range of options in deciding whether to urge changes in the 55 mph speed limit, including linking higher limits to enactment of state seat belt laws.

Philip Hazeltine, deputy assistant secretary of transportation, emphasized the department has made no decision on the speed limit issue, which has become increasingly controversial in Western states where there is widespread opposition to the law.

But he told a House subcommittee Thursday "the potential options" include:

— Keeping the speed limit at the current level nationwide, an approach the Reagan administration has up to now endorsed but which is attracting widespread opposition.

— Allowing higher speeds on certain limited access rural roads as some members of a recent National Research Council panel as well as a number of members of Congress have suggested.

— Limiting higher speed limits to states that take "other safety measures such as increased enforcement or the enactment of safety belt use laws."

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole has said she considers enactment of mandatory state seat belt laws one of her top priorities, arguing it is the quickest way to save thousands of lives.

Four states — New York, New Jersey, Illinois and Michigan — already have approved mandatory seat belt laws and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says at least 29 other states are considering such legislation.

The rush to pass seat belt laws, however, also has become entangled with the controversy over whether cars should be equipped with air bags.

Federal regulations issued last summer require automakers to equip all new cars with air bags or passive seat belts by September 1989. But they would be exempted from the rules if states with two-thirds of the nation's total population pass mandatory seat belt requirements by April 1989.

A link between the 55 mph speed limit and the seat belt issues could prompt state legislatures in the West to take a more favorable view of belt laws, highway safety authorities acknowledge.

Meanwhile, several bills calling for a higher speed limit or allowing states to decide again what speed is best have been introduced in Congress by representatives from the Western states.

"The 55 miles per hour speed limit is easily the most abused law in the land," Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., sponsor of a bill that would raise the maximum speed limit to 65 mph on rural interstate highways, told a subcommittee of the House Science and Technology Committee.

The subcommittee is reviewing the findings of a recent report by the National Research Council urging that the national 55 mph speed limit be retained. But the panel also suggested consideration of some limited increases in the maximum speed for sparsely traveled rural, divided highways, saying many panel members favored such an approach.

The report said that 2,000 to 4,000 lives continue to be saved annually because of the speed restrictions.

Meanwhile, Rep. Barbara Vucanovich, R-Nev., who has introduced a bill that again would allow states to set speed limits, testified that the 55 mph speed restriction often is impractical in Western states where wide open highways stretch across hundreds of miles.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., subcommittee chairman, said he hoped his panel will be able to determine in the coming months whether the speed limit can be increased on some highways — primarily rural interstate systems — without "any substantial threat to public safety."

But Joan Claybrook, former head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and currently president of Public Citizen, a public advocacy group, urged Congress to keep the speed limit as it is. She said that even on rural roads it has saved lives that would have been lost if higher speeds were allowed.

Housing Starts Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts, pushed by a surge in apartment construction, jumped 14.9 percent last month, the biggest increase since May 1983, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said new housing was started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.83 million units in January, compared to a revised rate of 1.60 million units in December.

The increase — the biggest since a 17.7 percent gain 20 months ago — was led by a 76 percent jump in construction of apartment projects with five or more units. They were started at an annual rate of 692,000 units in January. This was the highest level of activity in this category since a rate of 750,000 units in September 1973.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the figures amounted to a "remarkable January surge" showing that "housing and the economy are off to good starts."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the large number of starts came despite unusually cold weather.

SAT Scores Bills Are Questioned

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislators who introduced bills requiring a minimum score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test might be putting too much faith in the SAT as an admissions tool, officials at University of North Carolina schools say.

Jack Jordan, chairman of the board of trustees at North Carolina State University, said Thursday it might be wise for the Legislature to seek advice from the UNC Board of Governors on what should be done.

"I think there probably should be a minimum," Jordan said. "Whether it's 700 or not, I don't know. There are professionals who can look at it."

On a related matter, school trustees and administrators said they welcomed and would cooperate with a move by Philip Carson, chairman of the UNC board of governors, to establish a special board committee to review policies governing intercollegiate athletics at 15 UNC campuses.

Rep. Howard B. Chapin, D-Beaufort, and Rep. Frank E. Rhodes, R-Forsyth, the legislators who introduced the bills Wednesday, said they were concerned that schools were lowering their standards so that they could admit athletes.

The issue came to light this month when it was disclosed in court documents that N.C. State basketball star Chris Washburn had a score of 470 on the SAT — 70 points above the minimum score on a 1,600-point scale.

"I don't think the problem is as simple as having a 700 rule," said C. Ralph Kinsey Jr. of Charlotte, who is chairman of the East Carolina University board of trustees. "The solution is having standards of admission and progression that do not discriminate in favor of athletes."

Dr. William Wagoner, chancellor of UNC-Wilmington, stopped short of opposing an SAT minimum, but said he was concerned about being applied rigidly.

"When you take just one of those (admissions) factors and isolate it from other factors that doesn't give the best estimation of a student's ability to succeed in college," he said.

John Thomas, chancellor at Appalachian State University, said he wasn't against an SAT minimum.

"It wouldn't cause us problems here, but there are institutions that have strong feelings about tying admissions to any score — SAT, ACT or any other," Thomas said. "They prefer to maintain a balance of scores, grade point average and class standing and have a subjective evaluation, given the school that a person is coming from."

School officials also said such a cutoff would hurt black students, who generally score lower than whites on the SAT.

"Traditionally, the SAT scores of a lot of our black students have not been as high as we would like them to be," said Dr. Charles V. Holland, chairman of the board of trustees at predominantly black North Carolina Central University in Durham.

"But they are closing the gap. This (legislation) could make it more difficult for some students to enter traditionally white universities," he added.

According to a 1981 consent decree, signed in federal court to speed desegregation in the UNC system, the system has as a goal 10.6 percent minority enrollment at the 11 predominantly white institutions in the 16-school system by fall 1986. This past fall, minority enrollment was 8.2 percent — short of the goal of 9 percent the system had set for the year.

"There is a place for the use of tests, including the SAT, in the admissions process, but not, in my opinion, as an exclusionary device to deny educational opportunity," said Charles Lyons Jr., chancellor at Fayetteville State University, also a predominantly black school.

"The SAT should not be used as a sole criterion for admission to any college or university in America," Lyons said.

Bills Affecting Education Introduced In Legislature

By DENNIS PATTERSON

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The state would assume a larger share of public school costs and the state superintendent of public instruction would be appointed instead of elected under bills proposed by the Public Education Policy Council.

Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston, and Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, co-sponsored legislation Thursday to clearly separate responsibilities of the state and counties in funding public schools.

The bill commits the state to pay for operating costs of the instructional program and gives the full responsibility for school facilities and their maintenance to the counties.

"It reverts back to the beginning of financing public education," said State Treasurer/Harlan Boyles, who served on the council's finance subcommittee. "I see the state picking up the lion's share (of costs). But I also see it heading off even more dramatic costs in years ahead."

"If we do not voluntarily do this, we are vulnerable to class action suits saying the state has the responsibility for providing equal educational opportunities across the state."

Boyles said the bill would pave the way for a statewide program to upgrade the quality of education and make it uniform statewide. And he said it will give local school officials more freedom to improvise with state funds.

A second bill would have the state take over the local third of funding for vocational education in secondary schools — currently shared equally among the state, local and federal governments.

"This one takes over the local's third of the funding each year for three years," Warren said. "We are losing federal dollars for various reasons. Local people have trouble keeping up."

"The state's responsibility is operating expenses," he added. "That has historically been the case. We have gotten away from that in recent years. This is just an attempt to get back to that."

Warren said having the state Board of Education name a superintendent would help focus education.

"Now the governor, the superintendent, the chairman of the (state) Board of Education — all three can speak in whatever direction they want to without necessarily speaking in the same direction," Warren said.

State Superintendent Craig Phillips, who has objected to the idea of an appointed superintendent in the past, said Thursday he would remain open to the question.

"My reaction is one of support for an effort to fairly and responsibly look at the issue of governance of education in North Carolina," he said. "It is important, I believe, that we find a better way to clearly govern elementary and secondary education in North Carolina."

In other legislative action:

Gaston Pipeline

State attorneys are seeking $500,000 in emergency appropriations to continue fighting a proposal to pump water from Lake Gaston to Virginia Beach, Va.

"They need some more money for expert witnesses and attorney fees," said Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Expansion Budget Committee.

Watkins said attorneys in the Justice Department hope to narrow the focus of the case from four federal courtrooms to one. Chris Windham of the state attorney general's office said he hopes to get the case back in Raleigh.

Last month, U.S. District Judge John A. MacKenzie rejected arguments that litigation over the 85-mile pipeline approved by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers should be heard in Raleigh instead of Norfolk, Va.

Windham said MacKenzie's ruling has been appealed to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., where "differences of opinion in law" may be decided. Meanwhile, he said, Virginia Beach officials have asked a multi-district panel in Washington, D.C., to recommend Norfolk as the site for a consolidated case.

"Our contention is that the federal administrative procedures act gives us the right to sue the corps in Raleigh to seek judicial review of their action," Windham said.

The corps in January 1984 gave Virginia Beach officials a permit to lay the pipeline and the city asked the U.S. District Court in Norfolk to declare the permit valid. Former North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt filed a lawsuit in Raleigh against the corps, contending the agency violated federal law by failing to perform adequate environmental impact studies before granting the permit.

Virginia Beach wants to pump 60 million gallons a day from Lake Gaston, which straddles the Virginia-North Carolina line, by the year 2030. Supporters say the city will outgrow the supply of water it now buys from Norfolk, Va., but opponents say the drain will cause dangerously low water levels while reducing Lake Gaston's economic and recreational value.

"It does not only affect the Roanoke River basin," said Watkins. "It is of statewide importance. It will affect any part of the state that has a river."

Final Morehead Interviews Set

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Final interviews will be conducted for the 1985 Morehead Awards beginning on Saturday at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, officials say.

About 60 of the 116 finalists will receive Morehead Awards, with the other finalists receiving four-year North Carolina Merit Tuition Awards, which are also funded by the Morehead Foundation.

High school seniors — 70 from North Carolina — will come to UNC-Chapel Hill for interviews from Saturday through Tuesday, foundation officials said Wednesday in a news release.

The selections will be announced March 1, officials said.

The Morehead Awards provide an all-expense paid undergraduate education at UNC-Chapel Hill. It is the largest scholarship program for undergraduates in the nation, said Mebane Pritchett, executive director of the foundation.

The program was established in 1945 by the late John Motley Morehead, a Rockingham County native who graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1891.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The earliest part of the day is by far the best time to consider what new interests and activities you want to be engaged in the future, so look into whatever information is available.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Early be off to those activities that appeal to you very much even though they are new to you. Drive and walk with care.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You had better plan early just which activities you want to get into before you actually do so. Utilize good judgment.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day for much gregariousness and seeing friends you like and having a delightful time with them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A god day to get into some kind of public activity that you like, so spring out of bed early and go-go-go.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get an early start on some trip so that you can garner the data you need that is important to your way of life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take enough time to find out what a business person expects of you. Then your association can be handled very satisfactorily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A dynamic person will try to convince you to team up and have a worthwhile relationship in the future. Perk up your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put more pizzazz into your regular work and gain more benefits in the future. Teach a co-worker to be more enthused.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get your talents modernized and then you can have greater prosperity. You can take that small risk now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Everyone at home has a different idea how to better conditions there, so try to balance them successfully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you get an early start, this can be a day of real accomplishment for you. Let partners know you're willing to go with their ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact that most successful bigwig you know and get ideas that will help you to become more prosperous in the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have a sort of dual nature, conventional on one hand and pioneering on the other. Give a combined course of education so that your progeny can profit by both. Teach to complete whatever has been started, otherwise your progeny could become merely a dabbler.

Lawmakers Angered At Transit Cut Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's proposal to eliminate federal support for Amtrak and sharply reduce public transit subsidies is being greeted by an icy, bipartisan hostility in Congress where lawmakers are vowing to fight the cuts.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole for the second straight day Thursday ran into sharp opposition to the reductions during an appearance before a subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"What you're doing is pushing people back into their automobiles," snapped Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., strongly challenging the need to cut Amtrak and transit funds.

He accused the Reagan administration of turning passenger rail travel over to the same private interest groups that "left the Northeast high and dry" by letting rail passenger operations deteriorate to a point where Amtrak had to be created.

Another subcommittee member, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., vowed to strenuously oppose the transit reductions which he called "unrealistic ... draconian ... (and) thoughtless" by an administration that wants to cripple transit systems around the country.

One congressman after another — both Democrats and Republicans — criticized the Amtrak and mass transit reductions during a House appropriations subcommittee hearing Wednesday.

Mrs. Dole fared no better during her appearance Thursday before the Senate panel to defend her department's fiscal 1986 proposed budget that calls for an immediate end to $684 million in subsidies for Amtrak and $2.7 billion in cuts to public transit systems over the next three years.

Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., the subcommittee chairman, expressed concern for small communities, including a number in his state, if Amtrak were to be shut down as Amtrak officials have predicted if federal money were eliminated.

He also questioned where Amtrak riders might find alternate transportation in the Northeast where airports already complain of being overcrowded and highway traffic into major cities is often clogged.

But Mrs. Dole reiterated that mass transit funds should be provided by local governments where the user benefits. She argued that too few passengers use Amtrak to warrant the federal government spending millions of dollars — an average of $35 per ticket sold — to support it.

"If service is truly desired, I'm confident these parties (states, local authorities and private entities) will find ways to finance it," she said, although acknowledging at another point that she knew of none at this point who would agree to assume the role.

Mrs. Dole acknowledged that she originally had sought to have Amtrak and mass transit funds frozen at current levels, but she refused in a sharp exchange with Weicker to say how far she took the argument within the administration or whether she appealed the cuts to President Reagan.

"I don't think I can discuss that," Mrs. Dole said.

After several more exchanges, Weicker called the response inadequate and said it was his "understanding" that she did appeal to the president and was rejected. He asked again.

"I've given my answer, senator," Mrs. Dole responded.

"I don't think it's a satisfactory answer," Weicker repeated.

Court Upholds Stress Ruling

PROVIDENCE (AP) — Workers in stressful jobs should be compensated for stress-related disabilities, the Rhode Island Supreme Court has ruled.

In a unanimous decision Thursday, the court upheld a decision by the state Workers' Compensation Commission to grant benefits to the widow of the sports editor of The Evening Times of Pawtucket.

Edward F. "Ted" Mulcahey died in 1978 of a cerebral hemorrhage after covering a football game.

The commission ruled Mulcahey's death was spurred by his job. It said the odd working hours and pressure of filing stories on deadline aggravated his high-blood pressure and diabetes.

"An employer takes its workers as it finds them ... and when the employee aggravates an existing condition and the result is an incapacity for work, the employee is entitled to compensation for such incapacity," Justice Thomas F. Kelleher said in the court's decision.

The commission awarded Helen F. Mulcahey $55,000 in retroactive benefits and weekly payments of $200 for the rest of her life.

New England Newspapers Inc., owner of The Evening Times, appealed the commission's award to the state Supreme Court.

Old Reagan Ads Are Questioned

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader wants the White House to call for an end to the use of George Washington's name and picture to sell carpets, but the White House says it apparently can't even do anything about the use of Ronald Reagan's image to advertise old television shows.

The original sponsor of the 30-year-old "Death Valley Days" programs, however, has ordered the distributing company that placed the ads to discontinue them, and the president of the company says it will comply at least for the present.

By coincidence, the flap about the television reruns erupted just as Nader, the consumer activist, released a letter to Reagan on Thursday urging him to "take the proper opportunity to urge that businesses rein in their promotional addictions and permit the historical record, not sleazy advertising, to speak for our past presidents and founders."

The letter noted, among other things, the use of Washington's picture to advertise George Washington's birthday sales of everything from automobiles to carpeting.

Meanwhile, the White House confirmed that its legal office is reviewing "Death Valley Days" ads placed by Blair Entertainment of New York that feature photographs and television clips of Reagan taken in 1955 and 1956, when he was appearing in the series.

Anson Franklin, assistant White House press secretary, said the ads were called to the White House's attention by inquiries from the news media.

"There's a longstanding tradition in this administration and previous ones to prohibit companies from using the president's likeness for commercial purposes," Franklin told Electronic Media, a broadcasting industry weekly that carried the first story about the advertisements.

On the other hand, Franklin said, "The fact is the president was a television and movie star and if, indeed, the company owns the rights to those shows, within the law, the company can do what their contracts allow them to do."

On Thursday, however, Richard Miller, manager of household products at United States Borax & Chemical Corp., which sponsored "Death Valley Days," telephoned an official of Blair Entertainment and said Borax can do what the president can't: stop the ads.

Miller, reached by telephone at the company's headquarters in Los Angeles, told a reporter he had not seen the ads and "they may not be in poor taste, but they violate the terms of our basic syndication agreement" with Blair Entertainment.

The official said Borax's contract with Blair to distribute the films gives Borax the right to approve advertising.

Richard Coveny, president of Blair Entertainment, said the company has signed up 17 stations to carry the programs and expects to have 50 by the time it is through. The package consists of 130 episodes of the series of half-hour color Westerns, including eight in which Reagan starred and 13 that he introduced as host.

An ad that has appeared in trade publications features a color photograph of Reagan in a cowboy hat with the caption: "Ronald Reagan is one of the many stars and surprises you'll rediscover in this award-winning and colorful series — now returning to television."

A promotional film for the series says it features "some of today's biggest stars" and cuts to a picture of Reagan wearing a cape and top hat.

"The ads make no reference to Ronald Reagan being president," Coveny said. In any event, he said, "There is nothing in the series that is anything he would be ashamed of."

In view of Borax's objections, he said, "For the time being, we will not run the Reagan ad again." He said he planned, however, to discuss the matter with Borax officials.

Darby Ratcliff, director of operations for television station WXXV in Biloxi, Miss., one of the prospective buyers, said the station was interested in the series because of its quality, not just because of Reagan.

"The president is in it, there is no denying that," Ratcliff said. "But it would be sort of silly for us to program our station with that in mind."

Miller said Borax has a policy of not exploiting its past relationship with Reagan.

"It is not a matter of whether the ads make him look silly," he said. "It is a matter of whether we take advantage of a contractual relationship we had with a film actor who later became president. We don't think it is appropriate."

Mayoral Musical

NEW YORK (AP) — Move over, Yul Brynner. Another bald hero is coming to Broadway and he lacks the slightest resemblance to the protagonist of "The King and I."

He's Mayor Edward I. Koch, New York's bald and brash chief executive and the author of the best-selling autobiography "Mayor."

The musical, naturally, will be called "Mayor."

"It was Ed's idea," Charles Strouse, who wrote the songs for "Annie," said Thursday. "He takes chances and this is a big one. He is not going to be lionized in this show."

The mayor himself will not appear on the Great White Way, but more than 100 actors and actresses auditioned for parts on Thursday. The show is expected to open in mid-April, just in time for Koch's third mayoral campaign.

We are indebted to Ib Lundby of Denmark for this unusual end play. It cropped up during his country's junior teams championship.

East was simply presented with his trump trick, but he did not relish having the lead. He was forced to lead a red suit, and so be the stepping stone for declarer to reach dummy.

A brilliant East might have avoided the end play. He must jettison his king-jack of trumps on the first two leads of the suit.

BEHIND VENTERS GRILL on Mum

Gubernatorial Veto Suggested

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina should join the other 49 states in giving its governor veto power because the chief executive is too weak without it, says a Republican state senator.

"In our system, the governor has no way of stopping legislation which he sees as bad; he has no way to directly intervene in the process," freshman Sen. Wendell Sawyer, R-Guilford said Thursday after filing a proposed constitutional amendment to grant the veto.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey and Senate President Pro Tem J.J. "Monk" Harrington promptly denounced the measure.

Veto supporters "just don't know what the situation really is," said Ramsey. "Under our system, the governor is one of the strongest in the nation."

North Carolina is the only state whose governor has no veto power, although some states allow their legislatures to override a veto by simple majority vote.

To be enacted, the Sawyer amendment would have to be favored by 60 percent of the House and Senate membership and the majority of those voting in a November 1986 statewide referendum.

Prospects of adopting a veto amendment generally are seen as so remote that governors seldom pursue it seriously.

Child Support Is Ordered

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — New York Giants linebacker and former University of North Carolina star Lawrence Taylor must pay $900 a month in child support for a girl he fathered while in college, a judge has ruled.

Orange County District Judge Patricia Hunt on Thursday ordered Taylor to make the payments beginning March 1 to support 4-year-old Whitney Taylor Davis. Under state law, Taylor is obligated to support his daughter until she is 18.

The child was born out of wedlock to Kathy L. Davis, whom Taylor dated while both were students at UNC.

The court ruled in 1983 that Lawrence is the girl's father after examining blood tests and other evidence. In the decision returned Tuesday, Ms. Hunt also ordered Taylor to buy a house worth at least $70,000 for the child.

Chapel Hill attorney Lunsford Long, who represented Taylor, said the all-pro linebacker is satisfied with most of Tuesday's ruling and added that Taylor wants to support his daughter. But Long said he will appeal a requirement that Taylor pay $43,000 in legal fees for Ms. Davis.

Ms. Davis' attorney, Steven Bernholz of Chapel Hill, said the ruling isn't enough for the child of such a wealthy football star.

Deportation Faces Family

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Scottish family facing deportation apparently saw the American dream and wanted to stay in the country after becoming stranded during a visit three years ago, an immigration official says.

Ian Leggate, 39, and his family defied two deadlines to leave voluntarily and could be deported any day now, said Ed Brigham of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Charlotte.

"It's routine," Brigham said. "The only thing unusual about this case is that we don't get too many people from Scotland."

But Leggate, who is being held in the Mecklenburg County jail, said his family didn't have enough money to leave the United States after being stranded here.

The Leggates arrived here for a visit three years ago. No-frills Laker Airways, which got them here, went bankrupt, leaving the family without enough money to return home.

Their visas expired long ago, Leggate, his wife, Phyllis, 35, and their four children, have lived in the Moore County town of Robbins since last September.

"I could write a book," Leggate said in an interview at the jail, where he's been held without bond since Feb. 7. "If I didn't have bad luck, I'd have no luck at all."

Tobacco Acreage Drop Seen

By The Associated Press

Acres of tobacco grown in North Carolina are expected to drop off nearly 10 percent this year compared to 1984, but plantings of other crops should increase by 2 percent, says the N.C. Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Flue-cured growers expect to plant 240,000 acres this year, an 8 percent decrease from the 262,000 acres harvested in 1984, the service said. Most tobacco farmers don't know how much leaf they will plant because of the uncertainty facing the federal tobacco program.

The support price and grower assessment haven't been set, but tobacco growers are expected to face a cut in the support price and an increase in the assessment.

Overall, plantings in 1984 were 8 percent more than 1983.

Two of the main reasons for the smaller increase expected this year is that corn and cotton plantings are expected to rise only slightly this year, the reporting service said.

Corn is expected to climb 3 percent, compared with 1984 when the number of acres planted rose about 20 percent.

Slight increases in plantings are expected in 1985 in most crops except tobacco, sorghum and oats.

ECU Recognized

RALEIGH (AP) — IBM Corp.'s Communication Products Division received the 1984 Governor's Award of Excellence for Outstanding Achievements in Waste Management on Thursday from Gov. Jim Martin.

"I commend IBM's Communication Products Division in Research Triangle Park for its leadership and commitment to protecting the environment from dangerous pollutants through superior waste management..." Martin said in a prepared statement.

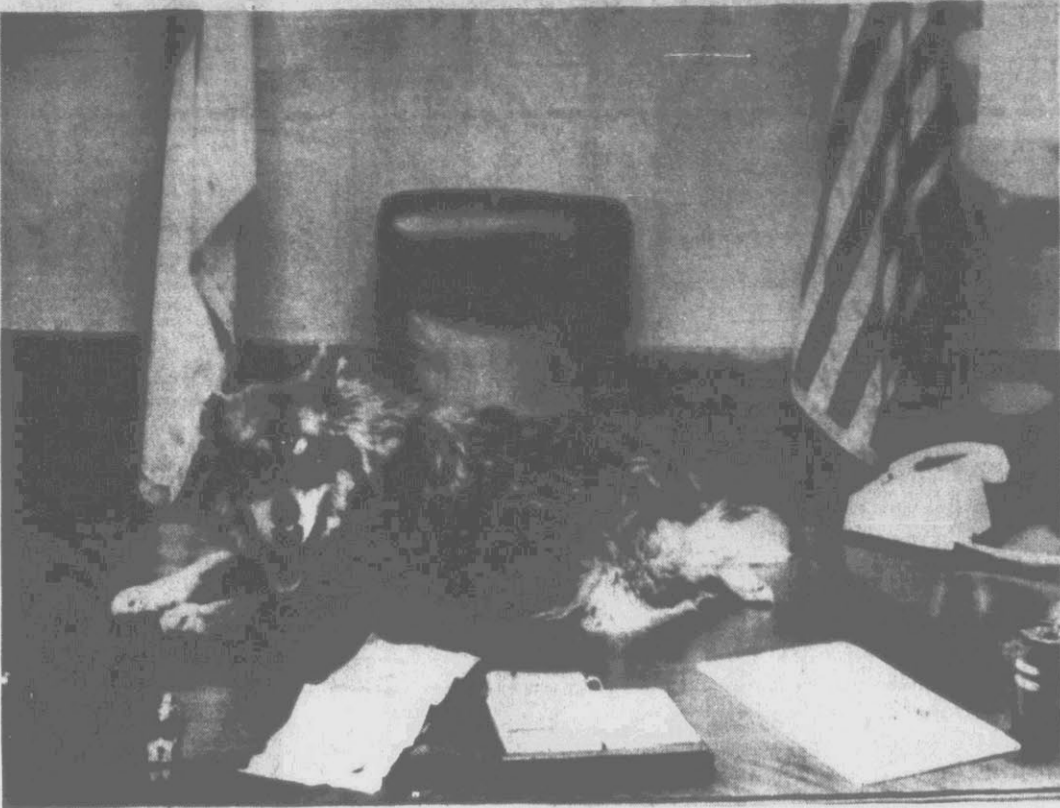

Richard L. Daughtery, site general manager, received the award for the International Business Machines Corp.

Martin also recognized three other organizations who received honorable mention: the Office of Radiation Safety at East Carolina University School of Medicine, IBM's Charlotte facility and the U.S. Coast Guard Support Center in Elizabeth City.

Officer Acquitted

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Former Gastonia police officer Charles Lee Johnson has been acquitted of depriving a motorcyclist of his civil rights by allegedly beating him after a 16-mile chase through Gaston County.

The U.S. District Court jury of seven women and five men deliberated more than three hours before returning its verdict Thursday, saying there was a lack of evidence against Johnson.

TIGER TAKES OVER — "Tiger" was left at Congressman Tim Valentine's Durham office Wednesday by Scott Williams, a 15-year-old from Henderson, so the congressman could find a home for the dog. Williams left a note on a dogeared brown paper bag asking Valentine's help. "I found this pretty little dog and would love to take it home with me but we already have four dogs," the note said. Looks 'Tiger' A Home DURHAM (AP) — U.S. Rep. Tim Valentine's office is on a mission of canine proportions — trying to find a dog, temporarily named Tiger — a home.

The light and dark brown dog, left at Valentine's Durham office by a boy scout, is young and "looks real scrungy," said Valentine assistant Terri Campbell.

When she arrived for work Wednesday, assistant Sandra K. Massenburg found the dog, along with a note written on a paper bag by Scott Williams, 15, of Henderson.

"I am visiting Durham with the Scouts," the note read. "When I walked around the corner I found this pretty little dog. I would love to take it home but we already have four dogs. I hope you can find her a home."

Mrs. Campbell gave the hungry pooch a cheeseburger but received little thanks.

"This is off the record, but this dog barked all over the cloth seats in my car," she said. Mrs. Campbell had taken the dog to the pound for a quick checkup.

A.B. Swindell, head of Valentine's Durham office, first said the dog should be turned over to the pound, she said. But Swindell reconsidered and called Valentine, D-N.C., who told him "if the little boy wants us to find it a home, we'll find it a home."

Williams, a member of Scout Troop 632, said Valentine called him Wednesday, promising to talk to his troop as soon as he's invited.

"It was real nice of him to find the dog a home," Williams said.

A spokeswoman in the congressman's office said there had been several calls about the dog but that the pooch had not found a home as of Thursday afternoon.

Humanities Prize

WILMINGTON (AP) — Father Canon Robin Lamburn, who's spent 50 years of his life as a missionary in Africa, will receive the 1985 Albert Schweitzer International Prize for Humanities, it was announced Thursday.

Lamburn, 81, who is British and studied theology and pathology at Oxford during the 1920s before going to Africa in 1930, has spent the last 20 years at the Leprosy Village in Kindwitwi, Tanzania, under the auspices of the Anglican Church.

Martin Defends Firings

By JOHN FLESHER

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AAP) — Despite strong attacks about political firings that led Gov. Jim Martin to ask if "the honeymoon's over," the Republican governor says he is pleased lawmakers apparently will let him seek a second term in office.

"I'm entitled to get control of the government," Martin said in his weekly news conference after Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan accused him of turning his back on campaign promises with political firings. "The public would expect us to ... operate it in a way that we believe would be consistent with the philosophy and the policies that we espoused during the campaign."

Meanwhile, Martin responded to bills introduced this week by Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, and Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir. Each would end succession for governors and lieutenant governors, but would exempt Martin and Jordan.

"I'm very grateful that the leadership and members of the General Assembly seem to respect (the fact that succession) was in effect when I was first elected," said Martin.

"Having two consecutive terms does strengthen the office of governor ... especially in a state where we have the only governor who does not have veto power," he said.

Wicker's succession bill would return the state to the pre-1977 system of one four-year term for the state's top two officials. Hardison's bill would grant both a single six-year term.

Martin said Thursday his administration had fired 104 people, fewer than 1 percent of the state's employees, and none in retaliation for being a political foe.

Saying he would "turn away wrath with soft answers," Martin suggested that Jordan's criticism could be construed as indirect praise.

"I'll be charitable and suggest that maybe he's helping to call attention to this area so that people will see the truth is we're not unfair," he said.

"Does this mean the honeymoon's over? ... Of course, the honeymoon with this administration is not a honeymoon, because nothing was ever consummated," he added.

Martin made treatment of state employees a major campaign issue, promising repeatedly not to retaliate against career bureaucrats who were not policy makers — regardless of their party affiliation.

Martin refused to discuss the reasons behind the firings of four veteran state employees whose removal especially angered Jordan, saying it would violate their privacy.

On other matters, Martin said:

— He has no plan to intervene in the hiring of two former Hunt political aides, Joe Grimsley and Wayne McDevitt, for top administrative posts at state universities.

Shortly before leaving office last December, Hunt allocated $15 million in unspent funds that ordinarily would have reverted to the General Fund. Part of the money funded the jobs at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and UNC-Asheville.

McDevitt was hired at Asheville and Grimsley at Wilmington, although Grimsley's employment was put on hold temporarily so others could apply in accordance with federal equal-opportunity standards.

Martin said the chancellors of the universities should use their "best judgment" in filling the posts.

— He is considering what effect federal spending cuts would have on state revenues, but that little would be clear on the federal level until Congress passes the budget this fall.

He said while critics complain about how the Reagan administration's proposed cuts would hurt government programs, they seldom acknowledge how the reductions would help the economy.

— It's not true that, as some lawmakers have alleged, his proposal to cut the inventory and intangibles tax was a veiled attempt to reduce the corporate income tax in half.

— He is pleased that Reps. Walter Jones Jr., and Ed Warren, both D-Pitt, have introduced legislation to forbid state officials from punishing or rewarding their subordinates for political activity.

He said he established a separate policy this week for law enforcement officers, forbidding them from all political involvement except voting and contributing funds, because of complaints that in the Highway Patrol and other agencies it had become hard to win promotion without political connections.

Teachers, Take Newspapers Back To School

National Newspaper in Education (NIE) Week is coming March 4-8, 1985. The Newspaper in Education program encourages the use of newspapers for a variety of educational purposes. National NIE Week emphasizes the importance of reading and writing and is a cooperative effort of the International Reading Association and newspapers.

Teachers, use ads, maps, graphs, and schedules to teach reading and math. Show students how to write news stories, editorials, ads, and reviews. Also have them write letters to the editor and use newspapers to update research projects. Ask them to discuss the judgments that are made in interviews and editorials. Most important, have them read daily to develop the habit of reading and to keep well informed.

Use The Daily Reflector for one or more days each week. To place an order, call Margy Blount at 752-6166 or write her at P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834. During NIE Week and throughout the year, classroom sets of newspapers are available at a reduced rate. Each newspaper costs 12¢. Hurry and place your order today, so your students may use The Daily Reflector during NIE Week.

A special edition of the state's Newspaper in Education newsletter, DATELINE NC, is available free of charge. The newsletter features teaching ideas for use during NIE Week. To receive the newsletter, send the coupon below to the N.C. NIE Foundation. Return the coupon before February 24.
