EPA Ready To Get Most Of The Lead Out Of Gasoline

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's taken a decade, but the Environmental Protection Agency is finally getting the lead out — or most of it — from gasoline.

The agency has adopted final regulations reducing the permissible lead concentration of leaded fuel from 1.1 grams per gallon to 0.5 gram effective July 1 and 0.1 gram next Jan. 1, according to EPA sources who spoke on condition they not be identified.

The EPA for the time being has rejected a complete ban on leaded fuel, but also rejected the option of delaying action until 1988. The agency will ask for public comment on banning lead entirely, possibly as early as 1988.

The 0.1 gram of lead will permit pre-1971 cars that might require leaded fuel to remain on the road. EPA believes that only such engines, running under heavy load, really require lead to prevent valve damage.

Lead has long been known as a poison, causing mental deterioration, kidney damage and anemia in high concentrations. The acceptable level of lead concentrations in the blood has been lowered several times in recent years.

The EPA believes its action will mean 172,000 fewer children will have blood lead concentrations above the new definition of lead poisoning adopted late last year by the Centers for Disease Control. The Centers for Disease Control lowered that definition from a concentration of 30 micrograms per tenth of a liter of blood to 25 micrograms.

Children below the age of about 8 are far more vulnerable than adults. Most of their blood lead concentrations comes from chewing on flakes of lead-based paint. But EPA believes that in cities, lead in the air from auto exhaust makes a sizeable contribution.

EPA estimated last year that the IQ scores of 42,000 children under age 7 would rise an average of 2.2 points under its 0.1-gram option. That estimate assumed there would be no gain if blood concentrations of lead were above 30 micrograms.

The EPA believes its action also will mean net economic benefits to the economy of nearly $900 million a year in the form of reduced medical costs and lower maintenance costs for engines now fueled unnecessarily with leaded gasoline.

The Reagan administration took office calling for a relaxation of lead rules, but then-EPA administrator Anne Burford reversed course to have the permissible concentration.

Lead poses another problem for EPA — destruction of the effectiveness of the catalytic converters on all cars to reduce exhaust pollution.

Quake Kills 124 In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A major earthquake struck an 800-mile stretch of central Chile, crumbling houses in villages, rocking skyscrapers in the capital and cutting communications lines. The government said today at least 124 people were killed and 2,000 were injured.

Santiago and the Pacific coast cities of Valparaiso and Vina Del Mar — with a combined population of about 6 million — appeared to be the hardest hit by the quake, which struck at 7:47 p.m. (5:47 p.m. EST) Sunday.

People camped among the debris in city streets, away from their weakened homes, as dozens of aftershocks rumbled through the region all night and through this morning.

Authorities warned that walls in many of the adobe homes in towns near Santiago were cracked, and that they might collapse in the aftershocks. "Our houses may collapse anytime. I think I'll stay outside at least until daylight," said Monica Garrico, a housewife who was camping with neighbors on a sidewalk in a Santiago suburb. "The walls are full of cracks," she said.

The National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the quake measured 7.4 on the Richter Scale. Within six hours, Santiago residents had felt about 48 aftershocks, some of them so strong they rocked highrises. Milder tremors continued through the night.

East Campaign Ad Is Released

RALEIGH (AP) — The East for Senate Committee today unveiled a two-minute television ad that is to begin airing this weekend, and the committee chairman said that Republican Sen. John East definitely will seek re-election in 1986.

Andrew Wells of Catawba County, the chairman of the committee, said the two-minute spot will run for two months and give viewers East's record "unvarnished by the bias of the liberal media."

"We'd rather not get into that right now," Wells said when asked for specific instances of East's record allegedly being distorted. "We don't want to get into what you all might call a negative campaign."

When asked to what degree the ad meant East was running for re-election, Wells said "I think 100 percent." He said East had told him he would seek re-election.

The ad, produced by Jefferson Marketing, calls East "one of the leading authors and supporters" of President Reagan's economic recovery program. Film clips show Reagan talking about the recovery, but not specifically about East.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and former senators John Tower of Texas and Howard Baker of Tennessee praise East for his intelligence.

East, who was in Washington today, does not speak in the ad.

Palmer Sugg, who works for Jefferson Marketing and identified himself as a spokesman for East, said the senator was recuperating well after surgery a few weeks ago. He said rumors about East's health were a dirty campaign tactic.

"The rumor-mongering about his health is the lowest form of low-road campaigning and I hope people will see it for what it is," Sugg said. He said he did not know where the rumors originated, but "Obviously they weren't started by supporters of Sen. East."

Sugg and Wells said they did not know how much the ad cost to produce or how much would be spent on television time over the next two months.

"We're going to raise all the money we can and spend it as wisely as we can," said Sugg, adding that $50,000 has already been raised.

Sugg said the frequent use of Reagan clips in the ad did not necessarily mean that East was riding Reagan's popularity in his own campaign efforts.

"Sen. East has been allied with President Reagan for several years — since he served on the party platform committee in 1976 and, ideologically, even before that," Sugg said. "President Reagan is popular because he carried through the programs Sen. East has supported."

Area Prison Official Fired

The State Department of Corrections has fired four area administrators and three prison superintendents, the department's public information officer says. Among them is Talmadge Barnett, administrator for the eastern area of North Carolina headquartered in Greenville.

"It was simply a management decision," department spokesman Patty McQuillan said, "and the decision was that they felt like they needed people who would be completely loyal to the Martin administration."

The dismissals, announced Friday, bring to 11 the number of firings at the department since Gov. Jim Martin took office in January, Ms. McQuillan said. Also, one job was eliminated and two employees have been demoted.

Those dismissed besides Barnett were Robert Barbour, north central area administrator in Raleigh; Harvey Yow, south central area administrator in Hoke County; David Luther, north Piedmont area administrator in Winston-Salem; Charles Hawley, superintendent of the Granville County Prison Unit in Oxford; Phillip Styles, superintendent of the Yancey County Prison Unit in Burnsville; and Ralph Stamey, superintendent of the McDowell County Prison Unit in Marion.

Ms. McQuillan said the seven employees were asked to leave immediately, but were given two weeks pay in lieu of notice. All the employees were exempt, she said, meaning they served at the pleasure of the governor and could be fired without cause. Barnett said this morning his dismissal was "a total shock." He was in his office today, saying he understands his dismissal is effective Tuesday.

He first heard the news Friday, he said, and knows no reason why the governor and/or the State Secretary of Corrections Aaron Johnson should have placed him among the administrators to be dismissed to make way for "persons loyal to the governor." He said he has no idea what he will do in the future.

Barnett has worked for the Department of Corrections for 26 years. At the time of his dismissal, he was responsible for the operation of 14 correctional institutions in eastern North Carolina.

It's Not Too Late For A Plot

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Although most avid gardeners began preparing for the spring growing season months ago, that corner of your back yard could still, with a little work, be producing carrots, broccoli and peas within six to eight weeks ... if you begin preparations immediately and observe the following guidelines provided by county extension agent Sam Uzzell.

According to Uzzell, your first concern in starting a spring garden should be site selection. To ensure prolificacy, Uzzell recommends situating your garden in the following locations:

- Near the back of the house. In the off season, gardens are often unattractive and can detract from side and front yard views. A garden located close by can also be inspected daily and worked when only a few minutes can be spared.

- Away from trees and large shrubs. Your garden needs as near full sun as possible. Trees and shrubs also compete for nutrients and moisture.

- An area with good drainage. Sites near the tops of hills will escape early and late frost. In the last five out of ten years in eastern North Carolina, the last frost has occurred in the final week of March. Don't let that worry you, though. Most spring plants can withstand temperatures down to 28 degrees Fahrenheit. However, if some of your plants are damaged by heavy frost, just replant.

Once you have chosen a location for your garden, you will need to prepare the soil. Uzzell recommends taking soil samples to determine what, if any, fertilizers and other soil builders need to be added to your garden. "Soil in eastern North Carolina is naturally acid, of low fertility, and often requires help," Uzzell explained.

Since spring planting time is now upon us, you might want to go ahead and plant and use soil sample information later to improve your summer yield. To acquire data on composition of soil, you will need to extract five to six 8-inch cores of soil from throughout your garden with a cylindrical container or soil sample tube provided by the county extension office. Samples should be stored in a clean plastic bucket. Do not put samples in a galvanized pail, elements composing the container will throw off zinc readings. Samples should be taken to the county agricultural extension office, 1717 W. Fifth St., whose representatives will deliver your sample to Raleigh for analysis. Results usually come back within three weeks, Uzzell said.

Another effective way to increase garden productivity is to add well-aged mulch; fresh cow and horse manure should not be put into gardens until it has had a chance to decompose as well. Mulch piles started within the last few weeks or months, therefore, won't be of much use this season; but you might want to consider starting one today for use in coming years. One of the more common methods of preparing compost involves construction of a bin, into which manure, straw, pine needles, shavings, leaves and organic garbage (potato peels, coffee grounds, egg shells, etc.) can be placed. "Don't put in anything like meat, because that will attract rodents," Uzzell advised.

Keys to creating an effective mulch pile include providing plenty of air and maintaining a damp environment. "As the organic matter accumulates, make sure you aerate it with a pitchfork. Do not cover it or allow it to dry out," Uzzell said.

Maintaining an adequate level of dampness is not usually a problem during the spring, he added. "The beautiful thing about early spring gardening is that watering and weed control are not as imperative. You can get away with minimal weeding and almost no watering and still achieve success.

"Rarely do we have a dry spring," he added. "Fronts moving through the area have traditionally provided necessary water levels for plants."

Once you've selected a site and have determined what

Mrs. Vonnannon, police development specialist, will discuss results of the 1984 police training program and training goals for 1985. Officer Tripp, police community relations representative, will discuss the "Patch the Pony" children's crime prevention program.

"City Hall Notes" is the city's weekly radio program and is aired Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10:25 a.m. on WOOW Radio.

Thefts Reported

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of five thefts reported to the department Sunday.

Officer B.W. Lewis said 10 watches and a mini stereo cassette recorder were taken from a display window at Bissette's on Evans Street Mall in a break-in reported at 6:31 a.m., while Officer W.E. Barnhill said $10 in change was taken from a car parked at the Holiday Inn in a break-in reported at 7:57 a.m.

Officer L.E. White said $5,290 worth of jewelry was taken from a guest room at the Holiday Inn in a break-in reported at 9:30 p.m., while Officer L.R. Kepler said an undetermined amount of cash was taken from 504 Manhattan Ave. in connection with an incident reported at 10:35 p.m.

According to Officer T.A. Lee, a stereo, equalizer and amplifier, valued at $620, were taken from a car parked at 300 A-1 Kings Row in a break-in reported at 11:53 p.m.

Drug Charges

Three people were arrested by Greenville police over the weekend on drug charges in connection with two separate incidents.

Officer T.G. Shane said William Edward Moore of Washington was charged with possession of marijuana and consuming malt beverages while driving after the vehicle Moore was driving was stopped at the intersection of Fourth and Reade Streets about 8:36 p.m. Saturday.

Officer E.M. Haddock said Charlie Ray Roberson, 32, of Williamston and Gloria Ann Knox, 24, of Williamston, were charged with possession of marijuana after a small amount of the illegal drug was found in their possession in a dirt parking lot at the intersection of Third and Reade streets about 12:45 a.m. Sunday.

Hardee's Robbed

Police are investigating an armed robbery at Hardee's restaurant at 2907 E. 10th St. — the second such robbery at a Hardee's in two weeks — that was reported at 2:59 a.m. today.

Officer T.A. Lee said two masked men, armed with pistols, entered the fast food restaurant, demanded money, and shut the employees in a walk-in freezer after receiving about $535 in cash from register drawers and other locations.

The robbery this morning followed a similar incident at the Hardee's at 910 Cotanche St. about 10:13 p.m. Feb. 8, where two armed men took cash from registers and shut employees in an office before leaving.

Award Presented

Dr. Constantine Kledaras, associate director of graduate studies in the department of social work of East Carolina University, has been awarded the 1985 Isabelle Kirkland Carter Award, which cites him as "the social worker in mental health who exemplifies the ideals and spirit shown by Mrs. Carter as a professional social work."

The award was presented at the North Carolina Association of Social Workers for Mental Health's annual awards banquet held Friday. Mrs. Carter was long a professor in the school of social work at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. This is the highest social work award presented each year in North Carolina.

Jump Marathon

Third grade students at W.H. Robinson Primary School in Winterville will participate in "Jump Rope for Heart," a three-hour jump rope marathon, to benefit the American Heart Association Thursday.

The school raised over $2,500 in last year's marathon, one of the largest amounts raised out of the 250 schools in North Carolina which participated, said Pat Congleton, coordinator of the fund-raiser.

Swine Meeting

A swine production meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. March 14 at the Pitt County Office Building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Jack Parker, area swine specialist, will speak on "Management Techniques to Improve Feed Efficiency," and Dr. Ken Esbenschade, extension swine specialist, will speak on "How To Sell More Pigs Without Increasing Size."

For further information or for reservations contact Pitt Extension Agent Phillip Rowan, 752-2934, before March 13.

Greenville Guest

The executive director of the North Carolina Poultry Federation was in Greenville over the weekend as the guest of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

ED WOODHOUSE

Ed Woodhouse received the trip and accommodations when he was chosen as the winner at the Carolina Society of Association Executives Trade Show in Raleigh in December.

Woodhouse registered for the trip at the "How Sweet It Is In Greenville North" booth sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and the Greenville motels.

Woodhouse and his wife were flown to Greenville Friday by Sunbird Airlines. Accommodations and meals were provided by local hotels. A shopping spree and rental car were donated by local merchants.

Collisions

An estimated $2,350 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Sunday.

Officers said cars driven by Reba Barrett Best of 305 Elizabeth St. and Ernest Lee Hardy of 1711A Hopkins Dr. collided about 2:16 p.m. at the intersection of Howell and Greene streets, causing $200 damage to the Best car and $1,000 damage to the Hardy vehicle.

Hardy was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of the mishap.

Danny Ray Hawkins of Route 3, Greenville, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:40 p.m. collision on DuPont Circle, 350 feet south of the Pinewood Drive intersection.

Police said the Hawkins car collided with an auto driven by Richard Lee Rumley of 505 Bremerton Drive, causing $550 damage to the Rumley car and $600 damage to the Hawkins vehicle.

Robbery Charge

David Lamont Whichard, 27, of 904A Bancroft Ave., was arrested by Greenville police about 10:50 p.m. Saturday on robbery with a dangerous weapon charges following investigation of a 10:05 p.m. armed robbery at 632 Albemarle Ave.

Officer T.G. Shane said Whichard was charged after Clyde R. Cash, 20, of Falkland told officers that he was approached by a man who put a knife to his throat and took an undetermined amount of money from his pocket.

Two Charged

Police arrested two men on breaking, entering and larceny charges Sunday in connection with a break-in Saturday at the Phillips 66 station at 1025 Dickinson Ave.

Officer B.W. Lewis said Jesse Lee Spellman, 38, and Chester Lee Spellman, 31, both of 415B W. Third St., were charged in connection with the theft of $99 worth of cigarettes and wine from the station.

Lay Meeting

Freedman-Lawson Vows Said Sunday Afternoon

The wedding ceremony of Pamela Denise Lawson and Michael Vy Freedman took place Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Person St. Pentecostal Holiness Church in Fayetteville.

Parents of the bride are Riley John Lawson of Fayetteville and the late Ida C. Lawson.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Elton Bryan. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bobby Jackson, organist, and Adina Jackson, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, James D. Williamson. Her maid of honor was Donna Grimes of Robersonville. Linda Jones of Greenville, Brenda Williamson of Fayetteville, cousin of the bride, and Donna Mansour of Raleigh were bridesmaids.

Larry Anderson of Copperas-cove, Texas, nephew of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer. George Barry of Fayetteville was the best man and ushers included Mike and Terry Lawson, both of Fayetteville, and bothers of the bride, and David Freedman of Jacksonville, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride selected a dress of white satin tissue taffeta. It was styled with a V-yoke of chantilly lace defined with scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured a basque waist and long sleeves. The fluted train was chapel length. The bride wore a wide brim hat angled on the crown covered in satin and trimmed with pearls, sequined alencon lace, silk flowers and pearl loops, pencil edged, with triple pauf and streamers. She carried a cascade bouquet of miniature carnations of wine and mauve with lilies and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a formal gown of rosette faille taffeta designed with an open neckline featuring a double ruffle of taffeta outlining the off-shoulder neckline and deep scooped back. Short cap sleeves complemented the gown. A sash of taffeta encircled the waistline of the gathered skirt.

The bridesmaids wore burgandy dresses of tissue taffeta, with sweetheart necklines, puff sleeves and an Oscar de la Rente bow attached. Fitted bodices complemented the A-line skirt. The back had tuxedo pleats with two roses on the waist. The bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets with lilies, carnations and baby's breath.

A sit-down dinner reception was held at Canton Station Restaurant in Fayetteville.

The couple will live in Greenville after a Carnivale Cruise to the Bahamas.

The bride is a cosmetologist with Shear Hair Design. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is pursuing a medical career. Both are graduates of Seventh-First Senior High School in Fayetteville.

Children Need Advice Concerning Anniversary

DEAR ABBY: My parents will be celebrating their golden wedding anniversary this summer, and we (their children) want to observe the day in some special way. The problem is that Mama has been in a nursing home for the last four years—so senile she doesn't remember who we are half the time. Dad is fine. He has a live-in companion who has been an angel to him.

We discussed the various options with Dad. We considered having a lovely dinner with just close family members at the restaurant near the nursing home, but Mama is terrified of riding in a car, and her table manners are non-existent at this point. We could have a nice catered dinner for just the family right in the nursing home. Many couples give a golden wedding dance, and that's what Dad would like, but we have mixed emotions about it because obviously Mama can't be there, and if Dad hosts a dance without her he says he wants his ladyfriend with him, which would take away from the reason for celebrating.

We decided to ask for your advice. MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: A nice catered dinner at the nursing home with close family members is by far the best choice. And since your mother isn't able to participate in a golden wedding dance, it would be most inappropriate for your father to host such a party with his ladyfriend by his side.

DEAR ABBY: After breaking up with my boyfriend of two years, I returned to the nightclub scene because I enjoy dancing and I didn't want to just drop out of sight. I go to fairly high-class clubs, but I'm offended by these men who talk to a girl for five minutes, then ask her if she would like to go to bed. I'm not talking about just one guy;

March Is National Nutrition Month

"Shop the outer aisles of your grocery store first," Donna Watson, R.D., president of the American Dietetic Association suggests as the organization begins its promotion of March as National Nutrition Month.

"This is our 13th annual nationwide campaign urging Americans to eat better, get in shape and live healthier, longer lives," she said. "We're encouraging them to go back to the basics — fresh fruits and vegetables, dairy products, and lean meats and fish — all usually found on the outer aisles."

"When your favorite fruits and vegetables are not in season, frozen and canned products can also be nutritious choices, but be sure to check labels for sodium and sugar content."

Rush Breakfast Planned March 16

Barbara Sloan was hostess for the meeting of Xi Gamma Xi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi meeting. A rush breakfast was planned for March 16.

Pig picking plans were discussed for March 23.

A program concerning the history, designs and styles of teddy bears was presented by Tana Hill.

I'm talking about a whole series of them. One evening I had seven propositions. One conceited jerk had the nerve to say: "Don't play hard to get; this is your last chance. If you don't come with me, I'm leaving with the girl over there." Then he pointed to her. I said no, so he went over to her and said, "OK, let's go," and they left together.

I'm no prude, Abby, but I'm no pushover, either. I look like a lady, act like a lady and talk like a lady. So where are all the gentlemen? OFFENDED IN NAZARETH, PA.

DEAR OFFENDED: Obviously they're not at the clubs where you've been hanging out. If you enjoy dancing, keep looking until you find a higher-class club.

DEAR ABBY: My son is happily married to a fine young professional woman. When they married, "Mary" did not take my son's name ("Smith"). She wants to be known as "Dr. Mary Jones"—Jones being her maiden name.

They are expecting a baby, and she wants their child to bear her maiden name—Mary or Johnny Jones—not his surname of "Smith."

I may be old-fashioned, but I do not like the idea of my son's child bearing his mother's maiden name instead of his father's surname. People who don't know better may assume that the child was born out of wedlock.

Also, what is the correct way to

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A

THE RULE OF THREE

Any teeth are susceptible to decay if they meet three conditions. You've got to have bacteria in your mouth, eat foods with sugar in them, and have a tooth that's susceptible to the decay attack.

Unfortunately, these are conditions that everyone can meet. Bacteria thrive on the human mouth. And the bacteria that love to eat teeth are in ecstasy. Your mouth is their heaven.

Even if you don't eat candy, a lot of foods have sugar in them. And who wants to give up eating apple pie?

As for susceptible teeth, very few can withstand the constant barrage of bacteria that feast on foods with sugar. Tooth enamel is the hardest substance in the human body. But the bacteria that feed on teeth create acid. Without good oral hygiene and regular dental care, the acid soon breaks down the enamel, causing cavities. Unstopped, it soon finds its way to the tooth's pulp and can destroy the tooth completely.

Taking good care of your teeth, with regular dental checkups, can change "Rule of Three" to "Cavity-Free".

Mental Health Perspectives

OUTPATIENT COMMITMENT

By Barbara H. Bradford, Case Manager

Do you have a family member or close friend who is showing signs of mental illness and is refusing to seek professional help? If you are worried that this person may become dangerous to himself or others, there is help.

The Outpatient Commitment Program is available to assist people who would not ordinarily seek the treatment they need. The program allows the client to remain in the community while receiving treatment at the Mental Health Center, instead of being placed in the hospital.

Services provided by the program include providing transportation for appointments at the center, as well as assistance in improving basic daily living skills.

If you have questions about this program, please call Barbara Bradford at the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Up-Front Talk About Above-Ground Entombment.

Although it is a common practice in many areas of the country, above-ground entombment is new to this area.

As we begin construction of Pinewood Mausoleum, we want to educate you about our mausoleum services so that we may better serve you when the time comes.

Cost Crypt entombment in a mausoleum has often been thought of as only for the rich; not so. In fact, it is comparable to ground burial.

Facility Pinewood Mausoleum will be constructed of solid granite and Italian marble and will be built by the most respected mausoleum builders in America.

Permanence and Upkeep has been our primary consideration from the beginning — and it's part of the reason we spent three years planning this building. The building will be built to last through the ages and the staff is dedicated to the excellent upkeep that has been our hallmark throughout Pinewood Memorial Park.

Contact us for a detailed, personal consultation about our mausoleum services.

Restraints

There has been a somewhat artificial "to-do" in Raleigh over firing of some state employees by the new administration. True. One could call them political firings just as one could have called them originally political hirings. It means little except perhaps to the individuals involved.

Actually, Gov. Martin says 104 people were fired ... less than 1 percent of the state's employment; and we're told none were dismissed for political retaliation as political foes.

A lot of state jobs (and on local levels, too) carry no job-security provisions. In effect, job-holders may be said to be serving at the pleasure of the governor. There is room for some surprise over the small number thus far involved.

Certainly in those states wherein partisan political rivalry is especially strong, a wholesale housecleaning of job holders often follows each shift in party control of the statehouse. In North Carolina we are unaccustomed to partisan turnovers in the statehouse. Republicans have been infrequent winners of the governorship.

There is good reason to think Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, in calling attention to the firings, has simply laid some groundwork of what he hopes is in store four years from now and the reclaiming of job-hiring. The process goes with the territory.

We are told Martin (while a candidate) pledged not to retaliate against career bureaucrats who were not policy-makers; and so far as we are aware the promise has not been violated. First, the insignificant number involved almost suggests Gov. Martin has leaned over backward to keep his pledge; secondly, in a change of management there is bound to be a fresh assessment of individual employees and talents as well as productivity ... which can lead to dismissals. And thirdly, there remains: if you cannot trust your elected governor, whom can you trust?

We'll be seeing more minor skirmishes between the Republican governor and the Democrat Party-controlled Assembly. It seems unlikely the governor will be looking for conflict because he is dependant on the Legislature to adopt programs beneficial to North Carolina as a whole.

As holder of a mandate from the majority of Tar Heel voters he would not risk its loss by foolhardy combativeness. Nor would Democrat legislators be inclined to create an image of wearing the black hats in state government. There are restraints on both sides; and that's a good thing, too.

Taxes

Gov. Jim Martin has proposed massive tax cuts in his state of the state address.

There is little doubt in the legislative halls that tax reduction is an idea whose time has come. Whether the measures Gov. Martin has proposed are sound, however, is another matter. The governor proposed repeal of the state sales tax on food and non-prescription drugs and repeal of the inventory and intangibles taxes. It would mean $328 million in tax cuts, or to look at it another way, lost revenue for the state. Since inventory and intangible taxes go to local governments, the governor proposed that the lost revenues be replaced by the state government.

The governor proposed 5 percent salary increases for state employees and teachers and he plans to outline $1.28 billion in new spending before the joint House-Senate Appropriations Committee Monday night.

The governor believes that additional revenues will come from economic growth for the state. That could be questionable given the state of the tobacco and textile industries currently.

At any rate it is clear that voters were favorable to Gov. Martin's campaign which emphasized tax cuts and, no doubt, the Democrat-controlled Legislature will respond. The Legislature does not, and should not, accept what the governor proposes as the final word. The legislators should develop a plan of tax relief that is positive for the poor and middle class of our state and allows local and state governments enough revenues to carry out governmental obligations responsibly.

Veto Proposal Surprised Legislators

—John Flesher—

RALEIGH (AP) — By all accounts, the most surprising thing about Republican Gov. Jim Martin's State of the State address was his call for gubernatorial veto power — and it was a stunner.

"We knew in broad, general terms what he would say, but we sure didn't expect that," Senate Minority Leader Bill Redman, R-Iredell, said of himself and his GOP legislative colleagues.

The Statehouse was abuzz with speculation Friday about Martin's motive in endorsing the veto. Only days earlier, when asked about a pro-veto amendment introduced by freshman Sen. Wendell Sawyer, R-Guilford, Martin had been noncommittal, commenting simply that it was "interesting."

Martin told reporters after his speech that the veto issue should be "discussed on its merits ... and I think the people will be interested in it."

His policy assistant, Jack Hawke, said Martin was aware the veto's chances were slim. Martin brought it up largely in response to efforts to prohibit governors from serving consecutive terms, suggesting that both matters be put before the state's voters in a November 1986 referendum, Hawke said.

As Martin pointedly noted in his speech, North Carolina is the only state that doesn't allow its governor to reject bills passed by the Legislature. The veto question is central to a long-running debate over the relative strength or weakness of the North Carolina governor.

Critics cite the lack of a veto and the possible repeal of succession as examples of what they call the Legislature's dominance over the executive branch. They complain that legislative leaders such as three-term House Speaker Liston Ramsey and Senate Majority Leader Kenneth Royall have almost as much power as the governor and can serve as long as they want just by winning re-election in their districts.

But legislative leaders say the governor's broad appointment powers — he chooses members of the Cabinet, Board of Transportation, Advisory Budget Commission and other panels plus hundreds of state employees — make up for his lack of a veto.

"The governor controls the budget and he controls the bureaucracy," said Ramsey. "Under our system,

With Democrats outnumbering Republicans 120 to 50 in the Legislature, Sawyer's veto amendment is seen as having virtually no chance. It was sent to the Senate Judiciary I Committee, and its chairman, Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, hints strongly that it might not even be debated.

Barnes noted with amusement that Martin, in his speech, spoke of "residual phobia against royal governors." A few days earlier, Barnes had spoken passionately of the oppression North Carolina suffered under tyrannical British governors before the Revolutionary War in decrying the veto proposal.

"Yes, I know it's been a long time since the royal governors," said Barnes. "But, by golly, that's what they taught me in college, and he (Martin) didn't change my mind."

Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, speculated that Martin raised the veto question as a "straw man" in an effort to deflect some of the criticism of his budget and tax plans.

"Like in football, where you send out a decoy receiver and pass to somebody else," said Ballenger. "It would make sense, since they're (legislative Democrats) going to be antagonistic anyway. If he keeps bringing that (the veto) up, maybe they'll shoot at it and pass the other."

Redman said it was more likely that Martin honestly wanted the matter discussed, however briefly.

"It really shouldn't be a partisan issue," said Redman. "I supported the veto under (former Democratic Gov.) Jim Hunt. The governor is blamed for so many things he doesn't have any control over. ... And with it looking like we're going to let the voters decide about succession, we ought to do the same with the veto."

But don't count on it. "No, the veto has no chance of passing," said Royall. "None."

—Art Buchwald—

Enjoying The 'Good Life' On The Farm

President Reagan, in last week's radio address, said the government has done everything it can for the farmer. It is now time for others to pitch in and do more, "from officials at the state level to banks, private groups and individuals in the community."

I wasn't quite sure what I, as an individual, could do to help the farmer, so I drove out to Culpeper, Va.

Hi, Farmer Brown. President Reagan told me I should pitch in and help you. What exactly can I do?

"You can buy my farm."

"I don't know much about farming."

"Shucks, there's nothing to it. All you have to do is get up at 5, milk the cows, feed the hogs, and see how many chickens died in the night from the frost. Any fool can do that."

"When do you get the play golf or tennis?"

"After you till the soil, plant your seed, spread fertilizer, spray for bugs and dig furrows for irrigation."

"Don't you ever get into town?"

"Sure. You get to go once, maybe twice a week, to meet with your banker and explain to him why you can't meet the payments on your loan."

"Dave Stockman says the reason you farmers owe so much money to the banks is you keep speculating in land and buying new equipment to make windfall profits at the expense of the American taxpayer."

"Dave's a good old boy, but he knows as much about farming as he does about drawing up a balanced budget."

"It wasn't just Stockman. President Reagan said the same thing. The reason you're in so much trouble is you bet on inflation and you were wrong. Didn't you hear him Saturday morning?"

"I meant to. But since it was the weekend I decided to relax and dig fence holes, repair the barn, cut down timber, wash my horse and sit up with a sick calf. I'll let you have the farm real cheap."

"How much money can I make?"

"You can make a bundle — provided the bugs don't get your corn, the sub-zero temperatures don't freeze your tomatoes, your cows don't get pneumonia, the dollar gets weaker and the Russians are starving to death."

"You don't make it sound like much fun."

"It's a lot of fun, if you're a gambler. What other business offers you a chance to bet your house on the crap table once a year?"

"The people in Washington say the reason you farmers are living on the edge is that you're always producing too much food and the taxpayers are stuck with the bill."

"I can't quarrel with that. We're just dumb people who know how to grow things, but we don't know how to market them. The ideal situation for America is if we farmers didn't grow enough food and made everyone pay through the nose. Then instead of the taxpayer having to give us price supports we could charge him $15 for a pound of potatoes. I'm sure those smart fellows in Washington will be able to figure out a way of causing a food shortage in the country so we could get a fair price for our crops. You should buy my farm now while it's dirt cheap. Then when Washington works out a plan there will be so few farms left you can get $6 for a quart of raw milk on the open market."

"It sounds tempting. But I'm not sure I want to be a farmer. Even if you make a lot of money it doesn't sound like you have much time to enjoy it. Isn't there some other way I can help you?"

"Well, if you're going back to Washington you can take the corn cob with you and tell David Stockman to stick it in his ear."

Changing The Line On The Soviets

WASHINGTON — President Reagan personally vetoed a State Department effort to convert the Feb. 5 anniversary of the 1945 Yalta conference from the perfect time to recall broken Soviet promises into a time for praising the wartime union between the U.S. and the Soviets.

In a decision that shocked some White House insiders, the State Department had planned to recall the glories of wartime unity with the Soviets, with a statement to be read routinely by spokesman Bernard Kalb. When Reagan heard about it, he moved the anniversary statement from Foggy Bottom to the White House and ordered Kalb to be replaced by — Ronald Reagan himself.

The major change was what was said. Instead of emphasizing the wartime camaraderie, Reagan's statement spoke of the "dividing line between repression and freedom" across Central Europe imposed by Soviet refusal to hold the free elections it pledged at Yalta. Reagan said the importance of the Yalta anniversary is that "the freedom of Europe is unfinished business."

In working with the White House to build public support for anti-communist guerrillas in Nicaragua, conservative activist Lewis Lehrman issued this edict to President Reagan's speechwriters: stop describing "freedom fighters" as "contras."

Lehrman's Citizens for America (CFA), a grassroots lobbying organization, is taking the anti-Sandinista campaign as its major effort. Some 20 guerrilla fighters are being brought to the U.S. to campaign for their cause in nearly 200 congressional districts. But Lehrman insisted that the perjorative phrase "contras" be dropped from administration language. The president's radio speech of Feb. 16 repeatedly described the guerrillas as "freedom fighters."

A footnote: Lehrman's principal ally in the Nicaraguan campaign is CIA Director William Casey. Although the Central Intelligence Agency is supposed to be divorced from partisan politics, the manager of Reagan's 1980 campaign has taken an intense interest in the CFA.

An unpublicized warning has gone to the White House from Senate conservatives that President Reagan's imminent nomination of Assistant Secretary of State Rick Burt to succeed Arthur Burns as U.S. ambassador to West Germany may be held hostage to the expected nomination of Rozanne Ridgway as his successor.

Ridgway is a respected Foreign Service officer and presently ambassador to East Germany, but her strong advocacy of detente with Moscow and arms control as practiced during the Carter administration makes her unacceptable to Reaganite conservatives. Even worse to them, she was counselor to Carter's Secretary of State Edmund Muskie — a policymaking job that accentuates her non-Reagan credentials.

The job of assistant secretary for Europe that Burt will give up is an important policymaking post. Senate Republican conservatives want assurances that Burt will be replaced by a conservative. Insiders told us that Secretary of State Shultz, whose choice of Ridgway reflects Foreign Service advice, is hoping her sex will help her get confirmed on the theory that voting against a woman would be hard.

Relations between the newest member of the Federal Reserve Board, Martha Seger, and Chairman Paul Volcker have soured so badly that she told friends she felt like going back to teach college in Michigan.

Seger, President Reagan's second appointment to the central bank's seven-member board, has dissented from Volcker's austerity policies. In return, Federal Reserve bureaucrats grumble that she publicly displays too much dirty laundry.

Seger's friends charge that life has been made uncomfortable for her by Volcker, even to the point of slowing down her travel and expense accounts. If so, the pressure may have worked. Seger's profile has lowered considerably.

Gov. Mario Cuomo dined privately in Manhattan recently with Chrysler head Lee Iacocca in what could be the beginning of an important Democratic political alliance.

—Elisha Douglas—

Strength For Today

Phillips Brooks, the great Episcopal rector of Trinity Church in Boston and later bishop of Massachusetts, was the outstanding preacher in the United States 100 years ago. He was beloved of all classes. One day a tailor said to him: "I am not of your faith, but often I come to hear you preach because you make me think of God."

It is not often that we encounter people who definitely make us think of God. Once in a while we do, and these are occasions which haunt our minds for months, and sometimes years which follow. As we encounter some people we think only of meanness, of narrowness and bigotry.

Leaders in many other religions than Christianity and Judaism have had the capacity to turn the attention of people in a transcendent direction. Men and women who make us think of God! How precious they are.

Sun Belt States Offer Best Job Potential

WASHINGTON (AP) — Job seekers should continue to look to the Sun Belt states, with cities such as Houston and Anaheim, Calif., expected to lead the growth in employment through the year 2000, a national research group reports.

A new study released Sunday by the National Planning Association anticipates that half of all new jobs created by 2000 will occur in just 30 metropolitan areas.

California is host of seven of these growing communities, while Florida and Texas each include five of the places expected to be big job gainers.

The planning association, a private, non-profit research group, said Houston will lead the way in new jobs, gaining 1,268,700 by the year 2000.

In general, the South and West will continue to attract employers, explained the association's Nestor Terleckyj.

New industries are behind the development of many cities where rapid growth is forecast, such as energy in Houston and high-technology in New England and California.

In addition, Terleckyj noted that "population for the most part follows jobs. So when we have increased employment in some areas we have increased population, and that generates more jobs." Those new jobs, he commented, are often in the housing and construction industries or in service businesses.

However, Terleckyj stressed that such trends cannot be followed blindly by statisticians, because none of them can persist forever.

"Otherwise," he said, "we will wind up with New York and Michigan being empty and everyone going to Nevada."

Instead, he noted, there has been somewhat of a revival in Michigan with the population beginning to grow again in the last year or two. And New England is doing better than in recent years.

Still, Houston is projected to be the biggest gainer, despite a recent slowdown. The only other community expected to gain more than a million jobs is the Anaheim-Santa Ana, Calif., region, the planning association said.

Besides Houston, four other Texas communities are expected to be big gainers: Dallas, Austin, San Antonio and the Fort Worth-Arlington area.

California growth leaders, besides Anaheim, are expected to be the Los Angeles-Long Beach area, San Jose, San Diego, San Francisco, Oakland and the Riverside-San Bernardino area.

Florida also did well, placing five metropolitan areas on the list. Those are Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fort Lauderdale, Miami, Orlando and Palm Beach.

Here is a rundown of the 30 metropolitan areas expected to lead in job growth through the year 2000 and the number of new jobs expected:

Community	Job Increase
1. Houston	1,268,700
2. Anaheim, Calif.	1,004,300
3. Los Angeles	841,000

4. San Jose, Calif.	643,900	13. Fort Lauderdale, Fla.	427,000	22. West Palm Beach, Fla.	237,300
5. Dallas	639,300	14. Minneapolis	394,600	23. San Antonio, Texas	230,700
6. Denver	630,000	15. San Francisco	373,400	24. Baltimore	220,500
7. Phoenix, Ariz.	588,100	16. Austin, Texas	333,700	25. Tucson, Ariz.	219,200
8. Washington	546,600	17. Miami	332,800	26. Fort Worth, Texas	218,300
9. San Diego, Calif.	533,900	18. Orlando, Fla.	319,100	27. Portland, Ore.	218,300
10. Boston	507,800	19. Oakland, Calif.	297,200	28. Riverside, Calif.	217,500
11. Atlanta	488,500	20. Nassau-Suffolk, N.Y.	269,600	29. Raleigh, N.C.	207,300
12. Tampa, Fla.	457,200	21. Seattle	266,700	30. Oklahoma City	206,600

Raleigh-Durham Expects New Jobs

The Raleigh-Durham area has been ranked 29th among 30 metropolitan areas a planning agency expects will account for half of the new jobs created in the nation by the end of the century.

The National Planning Association, in a report issued Sunday, said total employment in the Raleigh-Durham area is expected to reach 542,700 by the year 2,000, a 2.71 percent annual increase, or an increase of 207,300 jobs from 1982 to the end of the century.

Projections were based on an economic growth model reflecting historical and ongoing trends as well as the projected state of the national economy.

"If a person desires a job in this area, then he or she can find a job," said Raleigh Mayor Avery C. Upchurch. "North Carolina has a tremendous community college system to train people for new jobs."

The growth projections will be a "great challenge" for the area, Upchurch said.

Atlanta, Boston, Denver and Minneapolis are among the larger established Metropolitan Statistical Areas that will see large work force increases, the report said. The rapidly growing smaller areas included Raleigh-Durham, Austin, Texas, and Tucson, Ariz.

Houston is expected to see the largest increase in jobs — 1,268,700 — for a total projected work force of 2.9 million people by the year 2,000, the research group said.

The National Planning Association is a non-profit economic research group based in Washington.

Selma Trek Recreated

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Despite numerous advances since a 1965 civil rights march in which about 600 demonstrators were clubbed and routed by state police, there's still "a long, long way to go," an organizer said as 2,000 people re-created the trek from Selma to Montgomery.

The Rev. Joseph Lowery, the march organizer, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson criticized Reagan administration foreign and domestic policies as the 50-mile march commemorating "Bloody Sunday" began.

"We've marched too far to be turned back now. We've died too young to let a California cowboy turn back the clock," said Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Recently, attempts have been made in West Virginia to revive the use of steam locomotives in the United States. The opening of the Liverpool to Manchester Railway on September 15, 1825, is often regarded as the start of the railroad age. It was also the day of the first railroad fatality. William Huskisson, a liberal member of Parliament for Liverpool, was struck that day by one of the locomotives while discussing the future of railroads with the duke of Wellington.

Subs Make Strongest Anchors

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Since Jan. 14, when the "CBS Morning News" unveiled its latest facelift, the best anchors have been the substitutes — Bob Schieffer for Bill Kurtis and Jane Wallace for Phyllis George.

Schieffer, filling in when Kurtis was on assignment, was relaxed and natural in both his interviews and the show's obligatory chit-chat. Ms. Wallace was self-assured and savvy when she pinch-hit for a flu-ridden Miss George.

The substitute anchors seemed spontaneous and at ease, which, in turn, made viewers comfortable. In television, the biggest turn-off is to make the folks at home squirm in their easy chairs.

When Dan Rather first took over the reins on the "CBS Evening News" four years ago, his uneasiness showed and unnerved some long-time fans of the broadcast. But viewers came back; they always knew that Rather was a journalist on a news show.

They aren't so sure what the "CBS Morning News" is, nor what the two anchors — Kurtis and Miss George — are supposed to be.

While Kurtis and Miss George are both capable in certain situations, they have been thrown together in a format that doesn't do justice to their talents and forces them to work too hard doing things they don't do naturally.

On stories Kurtis can actually hold and mold, he's superb. Two weeks ago, viewers caught a glimpse of why Kurtis was the toast of Chicago as a local anchor in the 1970s.

The story was the libel case of retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland, and the "Morning News" assembled nine jurors to explain their leanings. A special set (resembling "Hollywood Squares") was constructed for the jurors, and Kurtis went from one to another, effortlessly pulling the story together.

But, too often, Kurtis is placed in no-win situations, particularly when he joins those family portraits with Miss George and the congenitally congenial weatherman Steve Baskerville.

It takes a certain type of personality to look comfortable bantering with Miss George and Baskerville about the merits of gloves vs. mittens, but Kurtis doesn't have it, maybe to his credit. The end result is that he looks pained and helpless, perceptibly sinking into his chair, away from all that awkwardness, while damaging his credibility and, perhaps, lowering his energy level.

Kurtis also doesn't know what to do with his hands during these sessions. One time, he even tried clutching a coffee mug, but that didn't last long.

Miss George, the former Miss America and TV sports personality, must be a whiz on the cocktail party circuit. She can make small-talk into smaller talk with the best of them. As the anchor who greets viewers first every half hour, she is the hostess with the mostest.

Now that may be a charming attribute, but not enough for the "CBS Morning NEWS," particularly when she's so weak with her interviews.

Viewers must believe that an anchor is knowledgeable and in control. But, without crib sheets on her lap, Miss George seems helpless during many discussions.

There's nothing wrong with having written questions as backstops, but she's so beholden to those prepared questions that she doesn't listen and absorb enough, missing many opportunities to follow up answers and pursue stories.

Strike By Movie-TV Writers Guild Appears Likely To Start Tuesday

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A strike against the movie and television industry was virtually assured as East Coast members of the Writers Guild of America vote on an $84 million contract offer already rejected in the West.

"They are more militant than we are," Writers Guild executive director Naomi Gurian said Sunday of the guild's East Coast members, who were to vote today.

The less militant California guild members voted 1,255 to 803 on Saturday for a strike.

Movie studios and networks have been stockpiling scripts in preparation, but taping season for prime-time TV is over, so no immediate impact was expected there. The area most likely to be affected would be the five-time-a-week soap operas.

The strike, set to begin at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, will affect all motion picture and television script writing, as well as any entertainment scripts for radio, although newswriters are unaffected.

The two sides held no talks Sunday, a spokesman said.

Starting today in Los Angeles is binding arbitration over the issue of percentages for writers from the sale of videocassettes and on whether writers were overpaid for certain types of work done for pay television.

As part of their final contract offer Friday, producers offered writers a $1 million health fund contribution offer to drop the arbitration.

"We anticipate those proceedings to last several months and if the writers are on strike because of that, than that's their choice," Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers president J. Nicholas Counter said Saturday.

But Ms. Gurian said the $1 million offer was never seriously considered by her union, and she is confident the guild can win the arbitration quickly.

The last writers guild strike lasted 13 weeks in 1981 and was preceded by a 67-day actors' strike.

The guild has 9,221 members — 6,425 on the West Coast and 2,796 on the East Coast. About 7,500 — 5,500 in the West and 2,000 in the East — are active, voting members, guild spokesman Mickey Freeman said.

Ms. Gurian said the rejected $84 million contract proposal was a three-year offer with a 6 percent increase in pay to the writers, which is on a project basis. For example, a half-hour situation comedy under the just-expired contract would bring a writer $14,782, including the residual from a first prime-time rerun.

There were 273 items on the contract talks which had started in early January, but attention was immediately focused on the percentage guild members could get from the sale of videocassettes, the same main issue as in 1981.

An industry standard was set in July, when the Directors Guild of America narrowly avoided a strike and agreed to receive 1.5 percent of the producer's gross from the first $1 million in videocassette sales and 1.8 percent thereafter. The producers made an identical offer to the writers.

But the Writer's Guild leadership called the terms unsatisfactory, and the matter of videocassette percentages for writers will go to arbitration.

Tenor Opens World Tour

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Tenor Luciano Pavarotti opened his 1985 world tour to standing ovations and a four-encore performance before nearly 11,000 people in the Lawlor Events Center.

Holding a white handkerchief, as he does in every recital, the ebullient singer stretched out his arms in warm response to the enthusiastic audience and to the Reno Philharmonic, conducted by Emerson Buckley, which accompanied him.

His performance here Friday included classical selections from

"Rigoletto," "I Pagliacci," "Lucia Di Lammermoor," "Il Trovatore," "Orfeo Ed Euridice," along with light classical songs, including some from his most recent album, "Mamma."

Pavarotti appeared Saturday in Las Vegas and has scheduled concerts in New York, Atlantic City, N.J., St. Louis and other U.S. cities, Toronto, Paris, Berlin, Hamburg and Munich.

A school teacher until making his operatic debut in "La Boheme" in 1961, Pavarotti developed an international reputation by the late 1960s.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Opera star Dorothy Kirsten French ended a four-year absence from the stage to perform in a benefit for victims of Alzheimer's disease, from which her husband, Dr. John Douglas French, suffers.

More than 1,100 people, including entertainers Jack Lemmon, Dick Shawn and Rhonda Fleming, attended the benefit Sunday sponsored by the John Douglas French Foundation, founded by Miss Kirsten in 1983.

Alzheimer's is an ailment which causes senility and is often fatal.

Democrats Vow To Make Comeback

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — House Democrats, following a weekend of "stark awakenings," are vowing to rekindle their legislative drive by focusing on plans for reducing trade and budget deficits and for helping U.S. farmers.

The Democrats ended three days of soul-searching at the opulent Greenbrier Hotel here Sunday with leaders declaring they would seek to raise their party's political profile — partly by imitating techniques developed by Republicans.

Those include taking greater advantage of free House television exposure and stressing a few major legislative themes in as simple and direct a fashion as possible, leaders said.

"I think we can do a better job, I think we must do a better job," House Majority Leader Jim Wright said in summing up the conference attended by 135 House members and their families and staffs — the largest gathering of Democratic elected officials since the 1984 elections.

"We had some stark awakenings ... heard some harsh criticism of our failure to communicate from friends and foes," Wright, D-Texas, said.

Wright said Democrats will make a major political stand in behalf of legislation to authorize federally backed loans to financially strapped farmers. The administration opposes the bill, which is due for action in the House on Tuesday.

Wright also said Democrats plan to move forward in developing their own plans to chop the $200 billion federal budget deficit and to find ways of reducing the nation's $150 billion balance-of-trade deficit.

Up to now, Democrats have taken a back seat in the budget battle, allowing Senate Republicans to seize the initiative.

Wright raised the possibility that the Democratic alternative budget might include tax increases, telling a news conference that both the spending and tax sides of the ledger would be considered in putting together the deficit-reduction package.

However, he then went on to say that it was unlikely Democrats would propose a tax increase unless President Reagan were to offer one first.

Wright also said a Democratic task force would be named in the next few weeks to study ways to trim the trade deficit.

Democratic leaders said the Greenbrier conference would help the party better focus its energies.

"It's the beginning of a process for us — the only Democrats who have control of part of the federal government," said Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, organizer of the conference and chairman of the House Democratic Caucus.

David Gergen, former Reagan communications director, told the conference on Sunday that most Americans still blame Congress — and not the president — for the nation's $200 billion deficit.

"It may not be true ... but it's the perception," Gergen said.

Gergen said one reason for Reagan's enormous popularity is his ability as a "natural communicator" and his knack for "making things simple and understandable."

Gergen, who quit his White House post in January 1984 to become a political columnist and commentator, suggested Democrats would do well to focus on just a few themes, as Reagan does.

"The president is able to dominate the agenda if he keeps things simple," Gergen said.

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca delivered a similar message to the Democrats on Saturday — urging them to concentrate on trimming budget and trade deficit and stressing jobs.

Japanese automobile imports that rankled some Democratic conference participants.

Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., claimed Iacocca's remarks were insensitive to Japanese-Americans. Matsui, who is of Japanese descent, said Iacocca "knew what he was trying to do. He was trying to create anti-Japanese feeling."

Wright said he had talked to Iacocca following Saturday's speech, and the auto executive was "dreadfully sorry" his remarks had offended anyone.

"He didn't intend it to be racist (but) Lee Iacocca is a very plain-spoken man," Wright said.

News reporters were barred from the speech, but participants said Iacocca at one point told the conference: "The Japanese are coming in. While we're trying to deal with things in the front yard, they're in the back yard taking over the country."

"It was a very ugly speech," Matsui said. "A number of members came up to me afterward and asked me 'what did you think?' I'm very disappointed in his attitude."

U.S., Soviets Open Preparations For Arms Negotiations In Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan isn't toning down his tough talk toward the Soviet Union as he enters a series of meetings leading up to the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva next week.

Reagan, who'll meet a member of the Soviet Union's top policy-making body later this week after sending his negotiating team off to Geneva, told a group of conservative reporters the Soviet Union was "attempting to give legitimacy to its tyranny" around the world.

"Throughout the world, the Soviet Union and its agents, client states, and satellites are on the defensive — on the moral defensive, the intellectual defensive, and the political and economic defensive," Reagan declared in the speech last week.

The president will meet Thursday with Soviet Politburo member Vladimir Shcherbitsky, who arrived in Washington late Sunday, and was greeted by Secretary of State George Shultz, just back from a trip to South America.

Shcherbitsky is leading a 30-member Soviet delegation in a tour that reciprocates a 1983 visit to the Soviet Union by a bipartisan congressional group.

Speaking through an interpreter, Shcherbitsky told reporters at Andrews Air Force Base, "We believe that in the present tense international situation (the United States and the Soviet Union) share a role in the destiny of the world. ... We should use every possibility to remove the threat of war."

The Soviet official said his country does not seek advantages at the Geneva talks, but wants "the cessation not the continuation of the arms race. Successful talks would be an important contribution to solving the most important problem of the day — removing the threat of nuclear war."

The United States and the Soviet Union begin arms negotiations March 12 in Geneva, and Reagan is holding several top-level meetings this week that are expected to touch on the talks and U.S.-Soviet relations in general.

Except for Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the Shcherbitsky visit marks the first time in 12 years that a full member of the Politburo, the Soviets' top policy-making group, has come to the United States, White House officials say.

White House deputy press secretary Robert Sims says Thursday's meeting between Reagan and Shcherbitsky affords a chance for "a general exchange of views," since it is not specifically pegged to the upcoming round of arms control discussions.

Yet, the meeting comes at a particularly propitious time, given that the arms control talks are set to begin five days later in Geneva.

"We believe such visits between leaders of the U.S. and Soviet Union can usefully contribute to building a more constructive relationship between our two countries," White House deputy press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Another White House official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said the meeting is seen by the president's advisers as a significant event.

Chemical Is Available

Pitt Extension Agent Mitch Smith said today that the multipurpose chemical Chlor-O-Pic should be available to growers for the 1985 growing season.

"I have received several questions regarding the use of Chlor-O-Pic as a multipurpose material," Smith said. "In our (the extension service) field tests Chlor-O-Pic performed at least as well as other other multipurposes in the control of Granville wilt. However, it is not as effective as a nematocide as the other fumigants more commonly used."

Chlor-O-Pic is straight chloropicrin, Smith said. "It should be remembered that no multipurpose chemical is capable of completely suppressing Granville wilt," he said. "Nonetheless, they do help and Chlor-O-Pic seems to be comparable with others for this purpose."

According to Smith, Vorlex 201 will also be available for grower use in 1985. "This formulation is different from the old Vorlex with which many growers are familiar in that it contains 15 percent chloropicrin," he said. "This change makes it more effective in controlling Granville wilt than the old formula." Smith said Vorlex 201 also performed comparably in the extension service's 1984 tests with other multipurpose fumigants. "In addition to being used for Granville wilt, it is also an effective nematocide," he said.

Farm Scene

By PHILLIP ROWAN
Agricultural Extension Agent

Feed normally accounts for 60-80 percent of the total cost of producing swine. Swine producers must look at all possible ways to improve feed efficiency for the pork operation to be profitable.

On most swine farms a reduction in feed per unit of production will lower cost more than any other single area. Nearly everything that relates to pork production affects the efficiency with which pigs utilize feed.

Feed wastage probably accounts for enough loss on some farms to pay the utility bill. A 2 percent feed wastage can result in a dollar loss on each hog marketed.

Proper nutrition of swine is certainly necessary for good feed efficiency. If rations are not balanced properly, feed costs can go up. Feeding protein levels below the pigs' requirement will reduce gain and feed efficiency. The use of quality feed ingredients is important. Poor quality feeds containing mold and insect damage decreases pig performance. Other factors affecting feed efficiency include environment of the pig, use of antibiotics, genetics, sow productivity, health, and weights of pigs marketed.

Jack Parker, area extension swine specialist, will speak at a March 14 swine meeting in Greenville on ways to improve swine feed efficiency. Producers can learn more about saving on feed costs by attending this seminar. For further information contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 752-2934.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, continuing its struggle to clear the 1,300 level in the Dow Jones industrial average.

Dow Jones' average of 30 blue chips, which wound up last week at a record closing high, slipped 2.87 to 1,296.49 in the first half hour today.

The widely recognized indicator has surpassed 1,300 at least four times since late January, but has never closed above it.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors' confidence about the economic outlook seemed to remain strong.

A monthly survey of purchasing executives found a "healthy increase" in new orders last month, along with small increases in production and employment. The respondents to the survey also reported wide-spread evidence that inflationary pressures remained subdued.

But some traders evidently continued to regard the Dow-1,300 level as a cue to sell.

Phillips Petroleum led the active list, up 5/8 at 50. Over the weekend the company made a sweetened offer to its share-holders to stave off a takeover bid by a group led by financier Carl Icahn.

Today Phillips said it had settled its battle with Icahn, and that he was withdrawing his offer for Phillips stock.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average closed with a 15.35-point gain at 1,299.36. That topped the previous closing peak of 1,297.92 reached on Feb. 13, and brought the average's gain for the week to 23.52 points.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 139.87 million shares, against 100.72 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained 1.11 to 106.04, just short of its Feb. 13 peak of 106.08. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.05 at 228.48.

Garden ...

soil builders need to be added, you are ready to prepare the plot. Gardens need to be turned two to three times, depending on the consistency of the soil, Uzzell said. Dirt should be loosened and freed of weeds to a depth of 6 to 8 inches to allow adequate root development.

After the soil has been turned, you will need to get out a pencil and piece of paper to determine variety and placement of plants. Vegetables such as broccoli and potatoes require larger areas and are best planted in single rows; carrots, beets and like-plants with less extensive root systems can be planted in beds.

Plants that do well in eastern North Carolina and that can be planted in March include potatoes, garden peas, cabbage, collards, carrots, beets, lettuce, spinach, broccoli and cauliflower. Cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and varieties with similar root systems can be sprouted in your home for setting at a later date. Others, including carrots and peas, need to be planted directly in the garden.

Tending and eating the produce of your garden may provide satisfaction, but why not add to your pleasure and plan to raise flowers as well. Flowers, however, cannot withstand cold temperatures as well as vegetables so do not set out seeds or plants until after the danger of frost is past.

Selections Uzzell recommends for planting in early April include the following annuals: impatiens, particularly for shady areas; portulaca, for brilliant coloring, nothing exceeds them; geraniums, begonias, marigolds, zinnias, petunias, pansies and lobelia. Attractive perennials include foxglove, gerbera and shasta daisies, columbine, delphinium, day lilies, nasturtiums and snap dragons.

Maintaining your garden once it is planted is as important to a good yield as are the steps outlined above. Make sure your garden gets an inch of water per week and is kept relatively weed free. Weed growth can be curtailed considerably by placing layers of newspaper under and between rows; a couple of minutes each day with a hoe or trowel works wonders as well. Once weeds get a grip; however, your chances of controlling them decline rapidly. The most important step in keeping up a garden, though, is to enjoy. A nicely arranged garden can bring hours of culinary and visual pleasure.

Lady Pirates Take ECAC-South Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
RICHMOND, Va. — Anita Anderson scored six straight points in the final two and a half minutes to lead the East Carolina women's basketball team to a second straight ECAC-South basketball tournament championship Sunday afternoon.

James Madison, which had lost close games twice to the Pirates in regular season play, rallied from 11 points down to tie the game at 57-57 with 2:42 remaining on a three-point play by Sue Manelski before Anderson hit the next six points to put the game away.

The Lady Pirates, winners of the regular season ECAC-South title with an 11-1 record, finish the season with a 20-9 record, winning 18 of their last 19 games.

And while it looked at times like Anderson might roll over and die in the championship game, the Lady Pirates continued to rally, finally pulling even.

Anderson, however, scored from underneath with 2:27 to go, putting the Pirates back on top, 59-57. Just over half a minute later, Anderson was fouled on a rebound by Alisa Harris, and she canned both of those for a 61-57 margin.

After Madison missed on a free throw, Anderson scored on a turnaround jumper with 39 seconds left to slam the door on the Dukes, 63-57. Madison got one more basket, but Lisa Squirewell made a pair of free throws with eight seconds to go to set the final margin.

Emily Manwaring, who capped her first season as ECU's head coach with the twin championships, said she was never worried about the Madison rallies. "I knew (the Lady Pirates) would come through. I wasn't surprised by their rally; they've got a good team. But our team has all the confidence in the world and I knew that they'd get the comeback spirit they needed."

Manwaring said that while she knew that Madison had a good shooting team, the Lady Pirate defense hampered them. Both teams shot 40 percent. "For a change against them our rebounders came through. This is the first time in three games that we've outrebounded them (41-36)."

Squirewell led the ECU rebounding with 12, while Julie Franken had 10 for the Dukes. JMU guard Sue Manelski added nine rebounds.

The Lady Pirates pressed constantly, but Manwaring said that it wasn't so much to create turnovers as to slow down the Madison offense. "They overload and then swing it to the other side, and it takes some time to do that. I thought it worked pretty well."

JMU never led throughout the contest, and tied it only at the 57-57 mark. East Carolina scored the first four points and slowly built up a 10-3 advantage by the 16:43 mark. A Squirewell basket off a rebound midway through the half upped the margin to eight for the first time, 18-10, and two minutes later, Anderson hit from underneath to up the lead to 22-12.

Madison then put together the first of its rallies, cutting the lead back to five on three points by Michele James and two by Franken, 24-19. ECU again went back to a ten-point lead behind Squirewell and Anderson, only to have JMU again rally to within five, 29-24.

But Loraine Foster, who hit a number of key shots for the Pirates, scored on a jumper, and Squirewell added four points to run the lead out to 11, 35-24, before Manelski made two free throws to end the half at 35-26.

Early in the second half, JMU again cut the lead to five, 37-32, before the Pirates pushed back out to ten again, 45-35. Another three-point play by Manelski and a basket by James cut it back to five again, 45-40, and the two teams traded baskets over the next few minutes.

With 5:43 left, Manelski made two more free throws to cut it to 53-50, and after two more exchanges, she again hit a three-pointer, tying it up at 57-57.

That set the stage for Anderson's spree that wrapped up the title for the Lady Pirates.

Squirewell finished with 17 points to lead ECU, while Foster had 16, Anderson 14 and Bragg 12.

Manelski led Madison with 18 points while Franken and James each had 14.

Bragg's points left her eight points shy of 1,000 for her career, and the junior should pass that mark in the first game of the season next year.

"All of our girls contributed today," Manwaring said.

Anderson, who was snubbed by the all-conference selections, may have been fired up by that. But she had the added incentive of a new television promised by her father if the Lady Pirates won, Manwaring said.

"Syl (Bragg) was ready; she was up for the whole tournament," Manwaring said. "She did a great job right from the start. We needed Loraine to be hot, to hit for us from the outside. They are so strong inside, we needed the outside attack.

"Lisa did a great job on the boards and in getting the inside shots, and while Annette (Phillips) doesn't show up on the stat sheet, she plays great defense. She did a good job rebounding and kept the other team from scoring a lot of points."

The Lady Pirates lose both Anderson and Phillips this year, but Manwaring is optimistic for the future. "We'll have Delphine (Mabry) back next year and we hope to bring in a couple of 6-2's to help us inside, if all goes well. I think we'll be a little quicker than we were."

"This team had all it needed,

Terps Top Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, after watching his team beat Virginia 60-55 in the regular season finale for both Atlantic Coast Conference teams, says his squad belongs in the Top 20 and Virginia belongs in the NCAA Tournament.

"I think we deserve it," Driesell said Sunday after guard Adrian Branch scored 19 second-half points to key Maryland's come-from-behind win. "We've won two big conference games on the road (against North Carolina State and Virginia) and we're playing well."

"We've got 23 wins. That's the most we've had at Maryland in nine years," Driesell said. "I think that will put us in the final Top 20."

Branch, who finished with 23 points, netted eight of his points in the final four minutes of play as Maryland overcame a 3-point deficit to run its season record to 23-10. The Terps improved their ACC record to 8-6, earning them a tie for fourth place with Duke in the final ACC regular season standings.

As for Virginia, which finished at 15-14 overall and a last-place 3-11 in the ACC, Driesell said, "I think Virginia definitely is one of the top 64 teams in the country and I think they should be in the NCAA Tournament."

"Anybody that thinks Virginia, Wake Forest or Clemson shouldn't be in the tournament is crazy," he said.

But Virginia Coach Terry Holland, whose team has lost its last three games, disagreed.

"We have to win the ACC Tournament to get an NCAA bid," the Cavalier mentor said.

The Terps' Len Bias finished with 10 points, connecting on a pair of free throws with eight seconds left to keep alive his string of 49 consecutive games in double figures.

Friday Supports Freshman Rule

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina President William Friday, who attended meetings with other college representatives last week, says he endorsed a recommendation that freshmen be ineligible for intercollegiate sports.

Friday said he also believes eligibility rules should not be weakened and that recruitment practices should be reworked to relieve pressure on prospective athletes. He also favored proposals that "playing seasons not be lengthened and should be shortened if possible."

"There has to be some kind of national standard for participation in intercollegiate athletics," Friday said in a telephone interview after representatives of 30 colleges issued a four-point recommendation to the National Collegiate Athletic Association. "We are determined to see to it that the integrity of these institutions is not eroded."

Friday, who attended meetings in Florida before returning to North Carolina late Friday, said the "quality of learning and research are primary" to the reputations of colleges.

The meeting, attended by representatives of almost one third of the 105 Division I-A schools, was called amid suggestions that schools might have to break from the NCAA if it did not become more responsive.

Friday said a minimum score of 700 on Scholastic Aptitude Tests should be required for students to participate in athletics.

"The ACC (Atlantic Coast Conference) once had an 800 requirement, and that didn't cause any trouble," he said. "The important factor is that there be some minimum national norm to be met by everybody."

Georgia Tech Takes Top ACC Seed

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Georgia Tech, which has played only six basketball seasons in the Atlantic Coast Conference, will enter Friday's conference tournament as the top seed.

The Yellow Jackets were locked in a three-way tie for the top spot at 9-5 with North Carolina and North Carolina State. A draw Sunday gave Georgia Tech the top seed, and the Yellow Jackets will meet eighth-seeded Virginia in the tournament's opening game.

But while Georgia Tech got good news from the ACC, non-conference opponent Oklahoma delivered some bad news. The sixth-ranked Sooners defeated the 10th ranked Yellow Jackets 87-80 Sunday.

In another Sunday game, Maryland beat Virginia 60-55. The Terps drew the fifth seed in the tournament, and will meet fourth-seeded Duke in the first round Friday.

In Saturday games, North Carolina defeated fifth-ranked Duke. The No. 8 Tar Heels got the second seed in the tournament and will face seventh-seeded Wake Forest.

The Demon Deacons' bid to upset 16th-ranked N.C. State fell short Saturday. The Wolfpack, which got the third seed in the tournament, defeated Wake Forest 66-64 and will face sixth-seeded Clemson Friday. Georgia Tech, which also played Saturday, defeated St. Louis 64-54.

In Atlanta, Mark Price hit all six shots from the field and was perfect on six free throws as his 18 points led Georgia Tech past St. Louis. Georgia Tech, 21-6, scored the first 12 points and cruised to its third-best record in the school's history.

On Sunday, Price and Duane Ferrell led Georgia Tech to a 12-point lead over Oklahoma at 72-60, and held a 76-73 lead with 3:16 left. But Oklahoma grabbed a 79-78 lead with 1:50 on two Wayman Tisdale free throws and never trailed again.

Maryland coach Lefty Driesell said he believed the victory should help put the Terrapins back into the Top 20.

"I think we deserve it," said Driesell. "We've won two big conference games on the road (against North Carolina State and Virginia) and we're playing well."

But after a close victory over

Virginia, he warned that no one should be taken lightly in this weekend's tournament.

"I think Virginia definitely is one of the top 64 teams in the country and I think they should be in the NCAA Tournament," Driesell said. "Anybody that thinks Virginia, Wake Forest or Clemson shouldn't be in the tournament is crazy."

The Cavaliers trailed 53-47 with 58 seconds left, but got back within two at 57-55 when Derrick Simms hit a long jumper with 13 seconds left.

Jeff Baxter then hit the front-end of a one-and-one, and the Terps got the rebound on the missed second shot. Bias was fouled and sank both free throws.

Virginia coach Terry Holland, who has watched his team lose the last three games, said possibilities for the NCAA are now dim. His Cavaliers are 15-14 and 3-11, and have lost their last three games.

"We have to win the ACC Tournament to get an NCAA bid," Holland said.

North Carolina's victory kept alive a streak of 19 straight seasons in which the Tar Heels have finished first or second in the ACC regular season standings.

"I know some people don't think finishing first in the regular season means a lot any more, but it is important," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith. "The tournament is three games, and this is 14. The regular season is a lot tougher to win."

Brad Daugherty who scored 23 points and grabbed 12 rebounds for the Tar Heels was the catalyst for the Tar Heel victory. He scored 17 points in the second half, hitting six of seven field goals and five of six free throws.

"They got the ball to Daugherty very well," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski. "He has been playing well all year, particularly the last couple of weeks."

Anthony "Spud" Webb, who scored 10 points, had three points and a steal in the last 31 seconds as the Wolfpack gave fifth-year Coach Jim Valvano his 100th victory at the school.

Webb scored with 24 seconds left to give the Wolfpack a 65-64 lead, and made a steal as Wake Forest's Delaney Rudd was preparing to shoot. Rudd fouled him and Webb hit one of two free throws to give the Wolfpack a 66-64 edge.

Rudd made one final attempt at a tying shot, but it fell short.

"If Rudd's shot goes in, I leave. I leave the building," Valvano said. "I saw a job application down at McDonald's for a night job. I'd tell Pam (his wife) and the kids, 'That's it for me. There's got to be another way to make a buck.'"

"We've won seven of our last eight games..." Valvano said. "I'd say that's a pretty good stretch run."

But Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy said he's hasn't given up hope.

"This was our fifth really tough, close loss in the conference this year. I still feel good about our chances in the tournament," Tacy said. "As long as we get effort like we did (against N.C. State), we can beat anyone in the league."

In Clemson, Vincent Hamilton scored 20 points to become the third player in Clemson history to score more than 1,500 points as the Tigers drubbed Winthrop.

The Tigers, 16-11 and 5-9, led 47-27 at the half and never trailed.

Pirates Sixth In IC4A Meet

PRINCETON, N.J. — East Carolina finished tied for sixth with 26 points Sunday in the IC4A Indoor Track and Field Championships.

It was the highest finish ever for ECU, as the Pirates finished just three points behind Notre Dame.

For the Pirates, Craig White finished second in the 55-meter hurdles at 7.25, while Lee McNeil was second in the overall 55-meter dash with a time of 6.28. Both those races were decided by a photo-finish, with the Pirates coming up short in each.

Julian Anderson finished second in the 600 meters with a time of 1:03.33, and Ken Daugherty finished fifth at 1:03.63.

In the 400-meters, Chris Brooks was fouled in the finals.

Bonnett Breaks Unlucky String

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Neil Bonnett isn't superstitious, but the No. 13 weighed heavily on his mind for more than a year.

That's the number of career Grand National stock car victories that Bonnett had been stalled at since winning a race at Atlanta in November of 1983.

No. 14 finally came Sunday when the 35-year-old driver from Hueytown, Ala., barely outdueled Harry Gant to win the Carolina 500 by less than a foot.

"There's no doubt I questioned myself a lot in the last year," Bonnett said. "I won two IROC (International Race of Champions) races and a Busch Clash, but I wasn't winning like I'm supposed to on the Grand National circuit."

Bonnett drives one of two Budweiser-sponsored cars for the team owned and operated by Junior Johnson. Last season, teammate Darrell Waltrip led all Grand National drivers with seven victories while Bonnett was struggling just to finish races most of the time.

"Just to get this first one (victory) with Junior Johnson, like I'm supposed to, is a relief," Bonnett said. "But Junior has been very understanding. I offered to quit near the end of last year, but Junior said to stick with it and we'd win races."

Sunday's race was a wild, three-way duel over the last 50 laps, with Bonnett battling Gant and defending Winston Cup champion Terry Labonte at the front.

The green flag came out with 35 laps remaining following the last of 10 caution periods in the 492-lap race.

Bonnett wrestled the lead from Gant on lap 463, then Labonte moved on top on lap 477. Bonnett regained the top spot the next time around North Carolina Motor Speedway's 1.017-mile, high-banked oval, but Gant moved ahead again two laps from the end.

And there was plenty of fender-bumping going on as the leaders jockeyed for position.

"When Harry got by me the last time, I wasn't sure I could get past him again," Bonnett said. "But, going into the first turn on the last lap, I saw he slipped (up the banking) just a little. I was hoping he'd do the same thing when we got to the third turn.

"He did slip just a little bit going into the third turn and I just got a fender under him and moved up side-by-side with him. We were even about 50 feet from the start-finish (line) and then I saw my car just pull ahead at the line. I knew I had him by a few inches — less than a foot."

Gant, who lost to Bill Elliott by less than three feet in the race here last October, said, "He just pushed me out of the way on the last lap. It was as simple as that. He went under me in the third turn and then pushed me up. I'm not mad at Neil, though. He was at the right place at the right time."

Labonte, who was right behind in third, giving Chevrolet Monte Carlos a sweep of the top three places, said, "There just wasn't anywhere for me to go on that last lap. Neil and Harry got side-by-side and that was it for me."

Lake Speed was fourth in a

Pontiac Grand Prix, the only other car on the lead lap. And Kyle Petty finished one lap down in fifth in a Ford Thunderbird.

The grueling race was punctuated by a series of crashes, but the only reported injury was a sprained leg suffered by Elliott.

Bonnett picked up $35,505 as he became the third different winner in as many races this season, joining Elliott and Dale Earnhardt as 1985 winners.

A crowd of more than 40,000 was on hand for the marathon race, which ran for four hours, 35 minutes and 27 seconds under sunny skies.

Bonnett, slowed by 76 laps under caution, averaged 114.953 mph. He was one of six drivers who swapped the lead a total of 26 times.

Twenty-one of the 40 starters were running at the end, but among those who were gone from the action were defending champion Bobby Allison and Waltrip, both of whom retired after a series of mechanical problems.

Denver Gold Pounds Stallions

By The Associated Press

Denver's new run-and-shoot offense may also be termed lost-and-found.

It was non-existent in an opening-game 31-10 loss to the Oakland Invaders but it didn't take long to surface Sunday — just one play.

"Offensively, we were given a big boost since we got down so close to scoring and scored at the beginning of the game," said quarterback Vince Evans, who flipped a 55-yard screen pass to Bill Johnson on Denver's first play that took the ball to the one-yard line. Johnson scored on the next play and the Gold was en route to a 40-23 United States Football League drubbing of the Birmingham Stallions.

"This has to be an added punch for our offense, especially after last week," Evans added. "I knew I had confidence in our offense. We needed just a little more time to master it, and I was very encouraged by our progress."

In Sunday's other games, Houston outslugged Tampa Bay 50-28, Oakland rallied for a 17-point deficit and tied Baltimore 17-17 and San Antonio whipped Arizona 16-14. Portland downed Los Angeles 14-10 on Saturday night, and New Jersey, with Doug Flutie throwing a club-record four touchdown passes, whipped Orlando 28-10 on Friday night. Memphis plays at Jacksonville tonight.

Evans passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in directing a 564-yard Denver attack. He completed 14 of 27 passes for 284 yards, including touchdowns of 48 yards to Vincent White and 39 yards to Leonard Harris.

The Gold led 26-21 and broke the game open with drives of 78 and 56 yards, capped by scoring runs of one yard by Evans and eight yards by Johnson.

"Vince obviously did a good job and I was pleased very much with his win," said Denver Coach Darrel "Mouse" Davis, who installed Houston's run-and-shoot attack last year as the Gamblers' offensive coordinator.

Gamblers 50, Bandits 28

Davis' former team unleashed an offensive show of its own as Jim Kelly passed for 261 yards and four touchdowns and Clarence Verdin and Gerald McNeil returned kicks for scores. Verdin, who returned a kickoff 94 yards, and McNeil, who scored on a 79-yard punt return, also caught touchdown passes from Kelly, who has thrown for 835 yards and nine TDs in two games.

Kelly teamed with McNeil on a 58-yard bomb for a 38-21 lead 5:52 into the third quarter and fired a 20-yard strike to Verdin less than three minutes later. Kelly also tossed touchdown passes of four and 13 yards to Richard Johnson and Vince Courville, respectively.

The Houston defense, meanwhile, intercepted Tampa Bay quarterbacks John Reaves and Jimmy Jordan six times as the teams attempted a USFL record 103 passes.

"I didn't set any records," said Kelly, who passed for a professional record 574 yards against Los Angeles a week ago, "but as long as we win that's all that counts with me."

Invaders 17, Stars 17

Oakland's Bobby Hebert threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Carter with one second left in the fourth period, forcing the game into a scoreless overtime session. The Invaders, who trailed 17-0 late in the third period, drove 59 yards in 31 seconds for their final touchdown, which was followed by Novo Bojovic's extra point.

With 4:25 left in overtime, David Trout of the Stars missed a 49-yard field goal attempt. Bojovic tried a 48-yarder with 1:47 left and the kick was blocked by Baltimore's George Cooper.

Oakland managed only five first downs and 101 yards before Hebert hit Gordon Banks on a 42-yard touchdown pass as time ran out in the third quarter. Bojovic kicked a 40-yard field goal to make it 17-10.

Gunslingers 16, Outlaws 14

Defensive lineman Jeff Chaffin sacked Arizona quarterback Doug Williams for a game-winning safety with 1:08 remaining. San Antonio was scoreless until the fourth quarter when it capitalized on a bad punt snap for one touchdown and a 69-yard pass from Rick Neuheisel to Danny Buggs for another.

Breakers 14, Express 10

Buford Jordan bulled for 110 yards and scored the game-winning touchdown on a four-yard run early in the fourth quarter as Portland made its home debut a success. A crowd of 25,232 watched the USFL's first Portland performance on a cool, clear night in 32,500-seat Civic Stadium.

Generals 28, Renegades 10

Flutie tossed three of his scoring passes to wide receiver Clarence Collins as New Jersey rolled up 449 yards in total offense. The Generals, who also got 201 yards rushing from the tandem of Herschel Walker and Maurice Carthon, built a 21-0 halftime lead.

Pitt Spikers Win Tourney

DURHAM — The Pitt junior volleyball team defeated Durham #3 15-11, 15-6 to win the Durham Classic Tournament over the weekend.

Pitt defeated Durham #4 15-9 in the semifinals.

In pool competition, Pitt split with the Crusaders 12-15, 15-5, swept Durham #4 15-8, 10-15 and divided against Durham #3 7-15, 17-15.

Pitt, now 22-10 overall, will compete March 23 in Raleigh.

Strange Holds Off Challenge For Honda Classic Golf Title

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Curtis Strange had his victory and the big check that went with it.

Still, he mused: "Nobody ever lets it be easy."

Sunday it was Peter Jacobsen, just back from a five-week injury absence, who gave Strange anxious moments. Jacobsen was trying to provide himself with a surprise birthday present in the Honda Classic golf classic.

In a way, he did. In a way, he didn't. Jacobsen, who said he "didn't even think about winning until the last nine holes," made up a 6-shot deficit in the final round and found himself in a playoff with Strange for the title and the $90,000 first prize.

But Jacobsen, who is 31 today, 3-putted for bogey on the first extra hole and allowed Strange to escape with the title on a routine 2-putt par.

"I kind of let him off the hook on the playoff hole," said Jacobsen, who had been sidelined for more than a month with pulled muscles in the rib cage.

"But I really didn't expect to win my first week back. It takes some time to get sharp, get the edge again. I'm very, very happy with the way I played. Very pleased," he said, and then flashed a big smile.

"And I guess $54,000 (the second place check) isn't too bad a birthday present."

Strange, who had shared the second and third round leads with Fred Couples, admitted he "was struggling," over the last few holes.

A bogey on the 17th, a putt that spun 180 degrees around the cup and stopped on the lip, "put me in a state of shock," he said.

It also dropped him back into a tie with Jacobsen and, after Strange had preserved that position with a gritty 6-footer on the final hole, set up a sudden death playoff.

"Curtis let me in," said Jacobsen, who came out of the pack with a no-bogey, 4-under-par 68 in the final round.

Strange, who opened the gates for Jacobsen's late challenge with a double bogey from the water on the seventh hole, had a scrambling 74 over the last 18 holes of regulation and matched Jacobsen's 275 total, 13 shots under par on the Eagle Trace Club course.

CARY — Kerry Farris of D.H. Conley and William Bridgette of Greenville won their respective weight class titles at the East Cary Junior Olympic Tournament held Saturday.

Farris defeated Dorsman of Fayetteville in the finals of the 143-pound class in the high school division.

Bridgette, a former Conley wrestler, won the 180-pound class of the open division with a victory over Shelton of Pembroke State.

Through 1983 there were 26 decisive seventh games in the World Series. The visiting team won 15 and the home club won only 11.

Martin To Detail Budget Plans Tonight

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Armed with his tax-slicing budget proposals, Gov. Jim Martin tonight will face the legislative "money" committees — Appropriations, which deals with spending, and Finance, which handles taxes.

Since the General Assembly convened Feb. 5, the Appropriations and Finance committees have attended daily briefings on the $16.8 billion budget for 1985-87 compiled by former Gov. Jim Hunt and the Advisory Budget Commission.

"It will be good to get the specifics of the changes he (Martin) proposes," Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said Friday, noting wryly that press reports have commented on the lack of action on the budget. "We do need to move ahead."

Among his plans was a 5 percent pay raise for state employees and teachers, which would cost $174.5 million in 1985-86 and $175.2 million in 1986-87. Martin also proposed lifting a three-year freeze on merit pay for state workers, at a two-year cost of $53.2 million.

The governor's continuation or "base" budget, which would pay for ongoing programs, differed little from Hunt's. Martin suggested $16.1 million worth of adjustments and cuts, including sharp reduction of the $1.3 million abortion fund.

D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. "Education is very important to me this year, and I think it's very important to the people."

GOP Director Named

RALEIGH (AP) — Andrew Frazier was named executive director of the North Carolina Republican Party Sunday, and will oversee the daily operations of the state Republican Party, officials say.

TV To Cover Trials

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Broadcasters say they will televise at least 12 trials this year to help the state Supreme Court decide whether to continue to allow news cameras in the courtroom.

UNC Philanthropist Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred W. Morrison, a philanthropist who endowed several scholarships at the University of North Carolina, died Saturday at Georgetown University Hospital. He was 94.

Martin Contributors

RALEIGH (AP) — Manufacturing executives accounted for more than one-fifth of the top-dollar contributions Gov. Jim Martin received during his gubernatorial campaign, according to a newly published study.

A Case of Identity

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — John William Shoe III says his story about being dubbed Lord of Burlington by Queen Elizabeth was an elaborate fantasy that drew in his family, friends and the city of Burlington before he could stop it.

Trial Without A Body

Farm Woes Spur New Legislation

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Money troubles plaguing tobacco growers may generate wide-ranging legislation to help all North Carolina farmers, state legislators say.

Senate Agriculture Chairman Jim Speed, D-Franklin, said members of both houses met last week in an effort to present a "united front" on agricultural legislation in the next few days.

Jordan, calling farmers "the most distressed group we have," said a better answer might lie in making it easier for them to get loans.

Warren agreed that agricultural legislation should be aimed at all farmers, noting that failing leaf growers find themselves unable to sell "bail-out" crops.

In Wayne County, Schrum said, the party sent out 1,000 letters to county Republicans asking for names of potential Democratic converts.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 5, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After a dynamic early morning towards gaining your most desired objectives, you will find a slowing of your pace, and then you would be wise to consider your long-range plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are enthused in the morning about gaining interesting goals, but later find that you need to plan more thoroughly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) In the morning you get fine ideas on how to make conditions at home much better, but later find the work to be done rather difficult.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Before you make new contacts socially, be sure to choose the right ones for you so that you will have no regrets later.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Have an important conversation with others in the morning and come to right decisions.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get conditions around you as you want them to be and be very energetic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to be more gregarious in future and take the right initial steps in such direction. Be courteous and diplomatic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your friendships well so that you can improve them and gain more benefit from them in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you are more enthused about the work you have to do, you can do it better and derive greater profit from it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are toying with a good idea in the morning that should be utilized and later you can also listen to the views of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to best discharge your responsibilities in the future. Also confer with a clever business person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get in touch early with those you want to establish better relations and make the right arrangements. Be happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look at your work from the highest perspective and put new life into it, gain more profits. Get cooperation from fellow workers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can bring much pleasure to others early in life and will do very well in sports or have some special talent that is unusual. Make sure that the finest possible education is provided and your progeny can get into a vocation of real scope. Give praise where deserved and your progeny will thrive on it.

Charlotte Officers Hit By Car

Charlotte (AP) — Four Charlotte police officers were hit by a car but not seriously injured Sunday after a man tried to flee the parking lot of the Charlotte Coliseum, police said. Jeffrey Paul Heavner, 20, of Lincolnton is charged with four counts of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and Ricky Thomas Roseman, 22, also of Lincolnton, is charged with aiding and abetting the assaults. Police said vice officer H.F. Frye approached a car in the coliseum parking lot after he noticed people apparently drinking beer. Another officer, G.P. Sennett, showed a passenger his badge, but the passenger locked his door, and the driver backed up the car, hitting

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠J5 ♥A85 ♦QJ643 ♣A75
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
 3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass
 4 ♣ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A. — North's bidding shows a good six-card spade suit and four diamonds. Under the circumstances, there is no reason why you should want to get out of four spades — there are hands where you can make 10 tricks, but not 11.

Q.2 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠6 ♥AJ9763 ♦A32 ♣963
 Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
 A. — You know where you want to play this hand — four hearts. So you should simply go ahead and bid it. We won't fault you too much if you bid only three hearts, but there is no logic in that action. Three hearts should either suggest that three no trump is a possible contract, or that you are interested in slam.

Q.3 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠5 ♥KJ982 ♦A765 ♣KJ3
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♥ Dble 3 ♥ Pass
 Pass 3 ♣ Pass Pass
 What action do you take?
 A. — If you bid again, you must have misread the auction. Partner's jump to three hearts over the takeout double showed at least four hearts and scant defensive values. You have no reason to think you can make four hearts, and even less to suppose you might defeat four spades. Pass while you are well off.

Q.4 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠J762 ♥AK95 ♦J5 ♣A103
 What is your opening bid?
 A. — Your heart suit could be bid, but we would not open one heart. Should partner respond two diamonds, you would be awkwardly placed. A convenient one club opening bid will enable you to handle any response partner makes.

Q.5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠J762 ♥AK95 ♦J5 ♣A103
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
 What action do you take?
 A. — Since partner did not show a new suit at the one-level, and did not respond one no trump, it is more than likely that he has a five-card or longer club suit. With a minimum hand, there is no reason to venture on: Pass.

Q.6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A1053 ♥AQ4 ♦K87 ♣K63
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 NT Pass Pass 2 ♣ ?
 What action do you take?
 A. — You have a minimum no trump opening bid and, even though you probably have two trump tricks, it is illogical to suppose that your side can beat two spades — bear in mind that partner did not act over your opening. Pass, and let partner decide if he wants to compete.

Alliance Threatened

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Prime Minister Bob Hawke said today that an annual meeting of the Australia-New Zealand-United States defense alliance has been postponed and that the alliance has virtually ceased to function because of a dispute between Australia's two partners. The 33-year-old alliance, known as ANZUS, has been thrown into chaos by New Zealand's decision to ban visits by nuclear-powered or nuclear-armed warships. New Zealand's prime minister, David Lange, says visits by those ships make New Zealand a nuclear target. As a matter of policy, the United States refused to confirm of deny whether any of its ships carry nuclear arms, and it has withdrawn from ANZUS exercise in protest of New Zealand's decision.

Sennett and Frye. Police said the driver then moved the car forward, tossing a third plainclothes officer, T.G. Barnes, on the hood. Officer C.W. Ranking, who was directing traffic at the parking lot entrance was also hit and landed on the hood of the car before it stopped, police said.

Report Confirms Rich Get Richer, Poor Gets Poorer

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the United States, Japan, the Arab oil countries and Western Europe grew steadily richer in the 1970s, the average person in 30 poor countries of Africa and Latin America grew even poorer, according to figures compiled by the World Bank.

Among Western countries, the United States was second to Switzerland in average income.

The average Swiss earned $16,390 in 1983 compared with the average American's $14,090. Outside the oil countries, the closest averages to the United States were Norway with $13,820 and Sweden with $12,400.

In 1982, Swedes, Norwegians and Luxembourgers did better than Americans, but the rise of the dollar made a big change in 1983 and probably an even bigger one in 1984. The bank has no figures yet for 1984.

The average in some of the small oil countries of the Persian Gulf in 1983 was even higher: The United Arab Emirates, $21,340; Qatar, $21,170; Brunei, $21,140; Kuwait, $18,180.

But those are special cases in which the averages aren't as meaningful, since much of the new oil wealth goes into the hands of governments that use it for investment, new housing, education and health services.

Most of the poor areas that showed declines in their already low living standards were in Africa, with Chad and Uganda heading the list. But the average Nicaraguan and Argentinian also earned less in 1983 than in 1973.

The bank calculated that about 2.2 billion people — nearly half the world's population — produced an average of less than $400 worth of goods in 1982. That would mean an average income of about a dollar a day, plus what they received in aid from wealthier peoples.

Detailed information is not available for many areas, including most of the communist-ruled countries. Of those for which the bank could make estimates, the poorest was Bangladesh with an average income of $130 a year per citizen, and Nepal, with $170.

But Bangladesh and Nepal are both improving their situations, though slowly, the bank said. In Uganda there was a drop of 56 percent over the period 1973-82, and another drop in 1983 to a level of $220 a year.

In Nicaragua, there was a similar drop of 53 percent for the 1973-82 period, but there was an improvement between 1982 and 1983 from $860 to $900 a year.

Argentina's and Bolivia's decline amounted to 11 percent and Jamaica's to 40 percent for the decade.

The World Bank, the largest source of international loans to raise living standards, is owned by 148 countries, with the United States holding the largest number of shares. It puts out data on 189 countries and territories in the form of an atlas.

For the first time, the publication, issued last week, includes comparative information on the quality of life, which shows some improvements that cannot be measured in dollars.

"Life expectancy at birth in the developing countries was 60 years in 1962, compared with 45 years in 1960," the bank said. "For the industrial countries, the corresponding figure is 76 years, up from about 70 years in 1960."

There were declines in the rates of infant mortality, defined as the death of children before their first birthday. Increases in school attendance were also reported.

In the decade between 1973 and 1982, the average income rose by 15 percent in the United States. In many other areas the growth was much faster, but started from a much lower base.

In Singapore, for example, the rise was 65 percent. But in 1983 the average income in Singapore was still only $6,620 a year even though the area is one of the most successful of what the economists call "the rapidly industrializing countries."

Protesters Driven Off

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Anti-nuclear protesters in a dozen small boats tried to surround and halt two arriving U.S. warships today, but they were driven off by police who rammed their vessels and then pushed them away with grappling hooks.

The protesters yelled obscenities at sailors aboard the destroyers USS Buchanan and USS John Young as they motored alongside the warships in their small boats.

Several nuclear protest groups had vowed to prevent the U.S. ships from entering the harbor at Sydney, and Australian authorities were prepared for them.

The destroyers arrived about 20 minutes apart, and marine police guided them through the protesters, using long hooks to shove away boats that got too close. They are due to remain in Sydney until Friday, and then leave with Australian warships to take part in a naval exercise codenamed "Flying Fish."

Study Raps Military Pensions

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military pension system not only is more generous than most retirement plans but also harms national defense by encouraging skilled personnel to retire relatively early, a private group said in a study issued today.

"The need to reform the military retirement system thus seems clear," the non-profit Center for Budget and Policy Priorities said in a report titled, "The Military Payoff." The center, founded in 1981, specializes in analyses of federal budget issues, including entitlement programs, low-income benefits and military spending.

"The military retirement system, with an annual cost larger than food stamps, aid to families with dependent children and supplemental security income, provides high levels of benefits to a small and largely affluent segment of society," the study said.

"It is a far more generous pension system than Civil Service retirement or virtually any private pension system," the center said.

"The military retirement program, as now constituted, also works counter to our nation's defense readiness needs. It encourages the armed forces' most skilled personnel to retire at a young age when they are just reaching the peak of their careers," the study said.

The center found that:

—The median age at which military personnel complete at least 20 years of service and begin collecting pensions is 41. They pay no part of their salaries toward their pensions, which are nearly three times larger than median benefits paid by private pension plans.

—Because they begin drawing retirement pay earlier than most other people, total lifetime benefits "vastly outstrip" those earned by others. An Army colonel or Navy captain leaving after 20 years will collect an average of $590,000 in pension payments.

—After leaving the service, most retirees begin new careers, adding this pay to their retirement income and often qualifying for still another pension when they turn 65. In 1983, at least 29 percent of the officers retiring with the rank of major or above went to work for defense contractors.

—"Military pensions go to a relatively small and elite group." Only 13 percent of the officers and enlisted personnel entering the military today will serve long enough to qualify for a non-disability pension, and most men who served in combat never receive any retirement pay.

—"Sixty percent of all military retirement benefits go to the wealthiest fifth of all U.S. households. ... The wealthiest fifth of the population receives twice as much in military pension benefits as the poorest fifth receives either from supplemental security income or food stamps."

—Taxpayers in the future will have to pay at least $563 billion to cover the unfunded liabilities of the military pension system. The unfunded liabilities rose 58 percent from 1979 to 1983.

—While most federal benefit programs for the poor have been cut from 10 percent to 30 percent under the Reagan administration, spending for military retirements has been trimmed only 4 percent.

The study said the military pension system was developed in the late 1800s and early 1900s as a means of encouraging personnel approaching middle age to make way for young, more physically vigorous officers to lead troops into battle.

"Since then, the nature of the U.S.

armed forces has changed dramatically," the study said. "Much of the officer corps is now engaged in management, procurement, engineering, technical functions. ..."

"Reforms are needed," the center said. "Modifications should be made that reduce the number of beneficiaries drawing benefits before age 60. ... The system needs to be structured to provide incentives for skilled personnel to stay in service rather than to leave."
