Spokesman Fred Mattox told City Council and Greenville Utilities Commission members Monday Brook Valley residents still do not think they have been "treated fairly" by the utilities company in a matter concerning location of an overhead transmission line on railroad property dividing the east Greenville subdivision.

"needs to go to the expense of hiding" a 2,800-foot portion of the transmission line expected to pass through Brook Valley. "They (subdivision residents) have gone to the trouble to establish their homes in a location ... where all of the utilities are underground," Mattox said. He said it was "inherently not fair" for utilities to be put overhead in light of a restrictive covenant initiated by developers in the 1960s requiring that utilities be placed underground on Brook Valley property. Brook Valley was the first subdivision to use underground service in the county and one of the first to do so in the state. Mattox also said residents were upset that they had not been advised of GUC plans to locate the transmission line on railroad property until recently. The purpose of the meeting, called by council members last week, was for commission members to provide information on the GUC proposal to erect a 115,000-volt transmission line on Norfolk Southern Railroad property to link its eastside substation to a new substation at Simpson. Although the council has no jurisdiction over the Utilities Commission, its members requested the meeting, Mayor Buck said in opening comments, because they have received numerous calls from Brook Valley residents who were concerned about the transmission line proposal. Council members wanted more information so they could answer questions "intelligently" without having to refer all callers to GUC, Mayor Buck said. According to GUC figures, installation of an underground transmission line along railroad property passing through Brook Valley would bring the total project cost to $2,740,900, as opposed to an

Midwest Farmers Launch Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Placing white crosses on the Mall to commemorate the growing number of bankrupt farms, Midwestern grain farmers began lobbying for higher guaranteed commodity prices to cover production costs. Members of the American Agriculture Movement Inc., who marched here Monday to kick off a week-long lobbying effort, say they also want strict production controls in the farm bill being debated in Congress. "We just want a fair price for our product so we can survive," said DeVere Manderfield, a farmer from Waucoma, Iowa, who participated Monday in the AAM's "March for Parity." "If inflation goes up, why can't we charge more for our higher production costs? Why do we have to keep our prices low?" Manderfield said. The march started with an outdoor rally at the Jefferson Memorial in a drizzle and 40-degree temperatures. Following brief speeches from AAM leaders and farm-state congressmen, the protesters, many carrying placards, walked about two miles to the Agriculture Department building for another rally. "We're not up here for a welfare check or subsidy payment, we simply want, need and deserve a fair price at that marketplace," said Wayne Cryts, a Puxico, Mo., farmer. Farmers planted 250 foot-high white crosses on the Mall near the Agriculture Department, representing the number of farms the group estimates are going bankrupt each day. District of Columbia police estimated there were 700 marchers, considerably fewer than protest organizers had predicted. Farmers said they welcomed the emergency credit legislation pending in Congress, which President Reagan has threatened to veto.

County Board Delays Construction Awards After Bids Exceed Estimate

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday awarded a contract for plumbing at the new mental health building but agreed to delay awarding other contracts for construction work. The action came after architect James G. Hite reported that bids for the project totaled $354,298, or about $100,000 more than the original estimates for completion of the building. Hite recommended that the plumbing bid of $32,393 by Kinston Plumbing and Heating be accepted and that the other bids — for electrical, mechanical and interior finishing work — be delayed until changes could be made to bring the project within the available funds. Contracts have already been awarded for the building shell and construction is under way. The board agreed to provide a lawn mower and modifications for use in a tobacco plant bed clipping demonstration program after Mitch Smith, tobacco specialist with the county agriculture extension service, said he would like to expand the test program this year. Smith said previous studies indicate that plant bed clipping of tobacco seedlings results in increased root growth, prevents premature flowering in the field, and increases the yield per acre by as much as 150 pounds. Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray reported that the county received $789,109 from the 1 percent local option sales tax and $377,650 from the half-cent tax for the quarter which ended Dec. 31 (on sales for the months of September, October and November). Gray also told the board that Martin County Community Action Agency offices are now located in the penthouse at the county office building. Gray said the location of the offices in the county office building saves the agency some $900 a month in rent and utility costs, which he said the agency has agreed to use on projects in Pitt County. LaRue Evans, representing the Pitt County Historical Society, told commissioners the historical society has made application for a $13,000 grant to fund half the cost of a project to inventory "all old buildings in Pitt County ... to pinpoint them and determine their worth." She said the ultimate goal is "to preserve the way we used to be ... our heritage, our background," by having those buildings of importance preserved. In other business Monday, commissioners: approved making application for a $10,000 Community Development Block Grant to complete a study locating all sub-standard housing in areas outside municipalities in the county; approved making application for matching funds for aquatic weed control, with the 15 percent local match coming from the town of Grifton and three drainage districts presently experiencing problems with aquatic weeds; agreed to accept Greystone Subdivision back into the county's jurisdiction for planning purposes, and appointed Charles Rountree to the Grifton planning agency for a three year term to replace John E. Smith who died in 1984. The board also gave approval for the use of the kitchen and cafeteria area of the county office building as a site to detain persons serving weekend sentences for driving while impaired convictions, and approved revisions to the mobile home park and inspections ordinances. The board scheduled a meeting with the Greenville City Council for March 21.

Observance Aimed At Increasing Awareness

Schools Schedule Tornado Drills

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
An emergency alarm will be set off by the county some time this week and a tornado drill is to be held at that time or at some other time on the same day in each of the Pitt County and Greenville schools. Individual schools are setting the times. The drills are part of Tornado Awareness Week, declared by Gov. Jim Martin and being recommended by the State Emergency Preparedness Office in coordination with the State Board of Education. John McKnight, associate superintendent of Pitt County's schools, said each school will report to the Pitt County

Fire Marshal's office how long the drill took. Each Pitt County school has been provided a tornado awareness poster by the state, and a National Weather Service film titled "Terrible Tuesday" depicting the effects of a tornado which hit a section of Texas has also been made available to the principal of each school, McKnight said. Each principal has been asked to view the film in advance and decide whether he or she believes it should be seen by the students. It's been advised, he said, that exceptional care be taken in areas of the county where children were probably directly affected by the tornadoes of March 28. He said he knows of no special efforts having been made through the school psychologists to protect the children known to have unusual fear about tornadoes. This is the first year the Tornado Awareness Program has been conducted through the schools. Asked if he believes it is a good thing, McKnight said, "Knowledge of what to do in an emergency is always a good thing." Dr. Richard Preston, director of administration of the Greenville schools, said he, too, believes drills are a good thing and said more may be held throughout the spring in the city schools. He said no prior warning will be given so as to be able to truly judge the effectiveness of each drill. The Pitt County Fire Marshal's office said no activities other than the drills are planned in observance of the week, but that materials are available for anyone who wishes to know about steps people can take to protect themselves when there have been tornado warnings. Five tornado awareness workshops are being held across the state. The one for this region was held Feb. 28 at Martin Community College.

Possession Counts

Two people were arrested by Greenville police Monday on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to sell.

Officers assigned to the department's special investigations unit said Louise Mary Blount, 32, of 1907B Kennedy Circle, and Johnny Ray Blount, 31, of 1807A Kennedy Circle were arrested about 10:30 p.m. in connection with an incident that occurred in the parking lot at Carolina East Center.

Exposure Charges

David Arthur Deters, 18, of Kinston was charged with two counts of indecent exposure following investigation of a 2:37 a.m. incident on Alice Drive this morning.

Cpl. T.V. Woolard said Deters allegedly exposed himself to two women after following them to their 302 Alice Drive home.

Woolard said when Deters drove away, the women followed him, got the license number of his car and drove to the police department to report the incident.

Deters, who was taken into custody by Kinston police as he entered the Kinston city limits, was returned to Greenville and jailed under a $400 bond, Woolard said.

Professor Studies Soaps For Research

By MARY KANE
 DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Thomas Skill spends a lot of time watching soap operas — but not just to learn whether Jill will spill her secret or Tom and Brooke will finally get back together.

Published in 1979 in the prestigious "Journal of Communication" and later cited in the New England Journal of Medicine. Skill was aided in his work by communications professor Mary Cassata, then his faculty adviser.

Tuning-in of American Serial Drama," a book Skill co-authored with Cassata.

daytime serials. Although all the soaps have good points, the actions of characters in those three shows in particular consistently remained true to form, Skill said.

"We're also interested in what the audience thinks and does with the programs and why they're so loyal, because they must be getting some kind of reward from participating," Skill said. "We think it's because it's good drama, and we like good stories. That's a part of human nature."

Modern soaps, however, are much more realistic — and even informative — in portraying illness, he said. Latter-day serials are less likely to kill off characters and instead offer hope, Skill said.

But a small percentage — about 8 percent — watch because they are insecure, having problems with relationships in their lives and seeking some answers, he said.

"It tends to repeat itself occasionally, it tends not to offer a lot of wisdom and subtlety and a great understanding of beauty all the time," Skill said.

Skill began researching daytime serials as an undergraduate at New York State-Buffalo in 1978, a time when almost nothing academic was being published about the dramas.

The research on soap opera images of the elderly was included in "Life on Daytime Television:

"All My Children," "As the World Turns" and "Guiding Light."

Studying the serials is growing in academic popularity, Skill said, but acceptance didn't come quickly.

Finders Of Stray Property Are Keepers In Illinois

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the letter from "Upset," whose sister found a diamond ring on the floor of a bathroom in a Chicago hotel, which she promptly turned over to the hotel management. The ring has not been claimed by its true owner. Now the hotel refuses to give the sister the ring and says it will, after a year, turn it over to the police. "Upset" suggests that "finders-keepers" should be the law.

for this state. That statute imposes a duty upon a finder to notify the Circuit Court of any find worth $100 or more, advertise for three weeks in the newspaper, wait a year, then get an order of ownership from the court.

You advised "Upset" to ask the American Bar Association what Illinois laws had to say about finding and returning valuables. Of course, we cannot answer individual legal questions for a number of reasons. The answer to "Upset" depends on additional facts that we do not have, and on an interpretation of the law that we cannot make. We can, however, suggest that sister see her lawyer: Her chances look good, and I will tell you why.

In 1978 the Appellate Court of Illinois had a case surprisingly similar to this one involving the sister's claimed ring. In Paset vs. Bank, Paset found $6,325 cash on a chair pushed partially under a table in an examination booth in the safety-deposit vault area of a suburban Chicago bank. She promptly turned the cash over to the bank. No one claimed ownership. One year later Paset asked the bank for the money. The bank said the money was "misaid," not "lost," and it should keep it until the owner claimed it. Paset sued the bank.

The law of lost, misaid or abandoned personal property comes to us from the common law. Whether, under the facts in each case, the property was "lost," "misaid" or "abandoned" controls the result and has, therefore, occupied courts and juries for centuries.

The Illinois court said the estray statute was intended to encourage and facilitate the return of property to the true owner and then to reward the finder for his or her honesty if the property remains unclaimed. In a six-page opinion (62 Ill. App. 3d 534), the court ordered the bank to give the cash to Paset.

Illinois, however, has enacted an "estrays statute" setting special rules

Under all the circumstances, the best advice you (or we) could give "Upset's" sister would be to see a lawyer quickly.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
 Associated Press Food Editor
 Urged on by the current interest in chocolate desserts, we tried a brand-new one — Chocolate Pate. It is molded in a loaf pan and makes 16 servings.

Line the entire surface of a loaf pan (about 8 by 4 by 2 inches) with a sheet of saran with ends extended over edges of pan.

A make-ahead dessert, it is refrigerated for six to eight hours or overnight and served after that. Or better yet, in our opinion, it may be put in the freezer for several hours and offered in frosty form.

In a small bowl beat eggs until yolks and whites are blended.

This pate has mild chocolate flavor — a pleasant change from the chocolate overkill that's around so much these days.

In a small saucepan, over low heat, melt chocolate and butter, stirring often. Stir in instant coffee and rum and continue stirring until coffee is dissolved; add eggs and stir constantly over low heat until slightly thickened. Off heat stir in vanilla and walnuts. Turn into a large bowl; cool to room temperature.

- CHOCOLATE PATE
 2 large eggs
 2 packages (each 4 ounces) sweet cooking chocolate
 1-3rd cup butter
 1 tablespoon instant coffee
 2 tablespoons dark rum
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 cups finely ground walnuts
 2 cups heavy cream

Whip cream until stiff, fold into chocolate mixture. Turn into prepared pan. Chill for 6 to 8 hours or overnight, or freeze for about 3 hours or until firm.

Using the extended edges of the saran, lift loaf from pan and turn out onto a serving platter; remove saran.

Garnish with extra whipped cream and, if you like, chocolate curls. Makes about 5 cups (16 servings).

Cheering

The indictment and arrest of five reputed Mafia bosses and four of their sub-chiefs is a news-making event. It's never happened before.

We're told "thousands of hours" of tapes from 90 wiretaps and 80 bugging devices contributed heavily to evidence leading to the indictments and arrests.

The investigation covered several years of effort by federal, state and city lawmen welded together into a unique partnership of investigators and law enforcers.

Before anyone gets his hopes up too high, it would be well to remember the alleged crime syndicate leadership is comprised of some very clever personalities whose "survivability" has been tested again and again. They got to the top of their enterprises because they were smarter and tougher than anyone who dared challenge them.

Too, they can afford to mobilize an army of legal talent that might challenge the horde of courtroom warriors who raced to Bhopal to cash in on the tragedy of a chemical plant disaster and the pending array of damage claims.

The bringing of the defendants to actual trial may well be a prolonged campaign; and the trial itself could be a grinding-down process for jurors, attorneys and the judge.

We will not soon forget that the only charge investigators made "stick" against Al Capone was one of income tax evasion.

So we're wary of exulting at this stage of the game.

When ... and if ... there are reasons for cheering it will be well worth the wait. Who knows? The Congress might even vote to change the name of the J. Edgar Hoover Building to honor FBI Director William Webster. He will most certainly have made his mark.

Record

Pitt County Memorial Hospital set a new patient occupancy record last Tuesday with 517 patients reported for the day. The previous high was 509 set Sept. 11, 1984.

Fred Brown, hospital executive vice president, said the record followed a trend of a 5 percent higher occupancy over last year in the first four months of the fiscal year which began Oct. 1.

The high incidence of flu in the area had some impact but it is believed that new services such as cardiac surgery and pediatric cardiology are contributing to the increase in numbers of patients. The services offered are becoming better known to physicians, which is affecting referrals.

We would conclude the figures indicate that Pitt County Memorial Hospital is continuing to fulfil its role as a regional medical center. And because of that eastern North Carolina is a better place to live.

George Wallace Talks Of Politics

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The governor's mansion looks exactly as if it had been moved from a Hollywood set: a tint of green on the winter grass, great white columns from "Gone With the Wind," the flags of the United States and the sovereign state of Alabama rippling in a gentle wind. Inside, a massive staircase leads to the second-floor living quarters. Overlooking the garden is a pleasant sun room.

"You all just make yourselves at home," says the butler. "The governor will be with you in a minute."

And in a minute there he is. George Corley Wallace, 63, governor of Alabama, looking as he has looked for so many years, like Edward G. Robinson playing the role of an old club fighter. When we first met, 17 years ago, he had a head of glossy black hair; the hair is mouse brown now. Then he moved with the restless grace of a welterweight contender; now he sits immobile in his wheelchair. He wears a hearing aid in his right ear. He has a way of clutching and massaging his upper right thigh. We have known each other long enough that I can ask a sympathetic question: "Are you in pain, governor?"

"I'm always in pain," he says, but he says this softly. He never has tried to capitalize on the paralysis that resulted from an assassin's bullet 13 years ago this spring.

We talk of politics. With George Wallace there rarely is anything else to talk about. He has been actively in politics from the time he went to the Alabama Legislature in 1947 as a member from Barbour County. He was a county judge when the Supreme Court handed down its school segregation decree in 1954. He served as governor in 1963-66, again from 1971-79. He narrowly won another term in 1983, and he may run again next year. He isn't saying yes or no to an itinerant columnist. Under those bushy eyebrows a glint of mischief ignites his brown eyes. He would rather talk of old times.

He remembers the slogan I used to tease him about: "Send 'em a message!" It was one of the great political slogans of all time. It sounded as if it had been scored for bugles, and it meant whatever anyone wanted to read into it. "Send 'em a message!" Wallace sounded the bugles and the troops responded. Second only to Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 (and he is second only by a whisker), Wallace has been the most successful third-party candidate since the two-party system became entrenched well over a century ago.

We tend to forget these things. In 1968, as an independent candidate, Wallace rolled up 9.9 million votes — about 13 percent of the total. He carried five states plus a maverick elector in North Carolina. In 1972 he scared the pants off the establishment. He won the Democratic primaries in Michigan, Maryland and Florida. He took 68 percent of the primary vote in Tennessee, a quarter of a million votes in Wisconsin, 300,000 votes in Indiana. When the primary season ended, Humphrey had 26 percent of the primary vote, McGovern 25 percent and Wallace 24 percent. Humphrey tried to make a deal: He offered Wallace the vice presidential spot on his ticket, but the deal collapsed when McGovern got the nomination. Wallace remembers.

What about the Democratic Party today? Wallace curls his lip. If the national party doesn't stop pandering to minorities, it's going to stay a minority party. "It will be done for down here." Is there any Democrat he would like to see elected president in 1988? Wallace allows himself a long pause. "Offhand," he says, "I can't think of a one. Not right now."

The governor is proud of his record in Alabama. The state's educational system once was widely scorned; now it's on the way up. A couple of years ago the state suffered under an unemployment rate of 17 percent; that's down to a still unsatisfactory 10 percent, but foreign capital is coming into Alabama and the picture brightens. A new and growing concern has to do with narcotic drugs.

With the government's crackdown in Florida, smugglers have moved part of their operation to remote rural airfields in Alabama, and Wallace doesn't like it.

Unavoidably we talk of race relations. Wallace is the only Southern politician who has been on stage continually for the past 30 years. He has made his peace with the black community; without black votes he would have lost his last election. Today he has a respected black revenue commissioner, a black welfare director, 21 blacks in the Legislature, a well-integrated state police force, and a new mood. A couple of weeks ago a black circuit judge sentenced a Ku Klux Klansman to 15 years in prison; two black lawmen led the defendant away.

Nothing like that would have seemed remotely possible when Wallace was on the bench 30 years ago. "It's better now," says the governor, and he repeats his thought to make certain that we know he means it. "It's lots better now."

Leadership Roles Are Changing

RALEIGH — In the game of legislative power politics, you could call Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, either a winner or a loser this year and you'd be accurate. Now that the 1985 legislative session is getting warmed up, it's obvious that Hardison has lost some of the clout he had in earlier sessions. But he still has sufficient standing in the Senate to assure himself of a significant role in the legislative process.

Hardison's case is but one of a number of interesting little political power twists that have become evident as the session has developed.

The second month of the 1985 session finds several previously little know legislators about to take on prominent roles in the Legislature.

For the eight years Jimmy Green was lieutenant governor, Hardison was the second most influential senator, lagging behind only Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham. Royall assured himself a prominent place in the Senate by backing Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan's political campaign early. Few doubt he'll continue to play the leading role. Hardison, on the other hand, joined Jordan late, only after abandoning a run for the office himself.

Jordan didn't return Hardison to the Appropriations Committee chair. But Hardison was named to the head of the important Commerce Committee and reappointed to both the Advisory Budget Commission and the Governmental Operations Committee. "His role is different," Jordan says of Hardison. "There is only one chair of the Appropriations Committee. He does not have a single appointment that equals that one but when you look at his overall appointments, it's obvious that he's a member of the (leadership) team."

There are several new members of "the team." Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, takes Hardison's place at the head of Appropriations and Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, will chair the Base Budget Committee.

Neither has been in a leadership position before. It will be interesting to see if these two can take hold of the budget process and assert themselves. Some skeptics think Royall and Hardison will really be pulling the strings.

Moving away from the budget, several other legislators will be much more visible this year because the bills they'll be handling will be of major importance. Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, and Rep. Ruth Easterling, D-Mecklenburg, have been thrown into the spotlight through their chairmanships of the committees on children.

Those committees will handle all the day care bills, which are proving to be very controversial, and the pupil rights bill, the newest item on the social conservatives' agenda. Rep. Easterling faces an early test of her authority in deciding whether or not to allow a public hearing on the day care bills. One has already been held in the Senate.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, may be one of the most conservative Democrats in the House. He'll be extremely influential as chairman of the Rules Committee. Lilley also chairs the study committee on tax laws which will propose some important changes in the way taxes are collected.

Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, got his first committee chairmanship. He'll head the Base Budget Committee on Human Resources. He'll also head the black caucus and shepherd the criminal code bill through the Legislature.

In every session, there are some legislators who, either through committee assignments or the legislation they propose, take leadership roles in the assembly. Mrs. Easterling, Hipps, Blue, Lilley, Plyler and Rand are the sure bets to do so.

To the editor:

The people of Pitt County have been "railroaded" by the County Commissioners, since they took full authority and consolidated the schools without first letting the citizens vote!

Voting them out of office is too good for them! They should have to ride the school buses every day like the children will!

To the editor:

I noticed in the paper on Thursday that the combined chambers of commerce of area cities were considering forming a coalition that might well be named the "Octad" in order to work together and attract economic development and engage in other mutually-beneficial endeavors.

When I first heard the name "Octad," I must say, I was delighted! "Octad," I thought to myself, "how clever — and meaningful." I conjured up all sorts of positive imagery — first an octopus (just think how useful eight legs must be!) and think, a tadpole (isn't it amazing how they grow up to be frogs?). "Eight-legged frogs," I thought, "How useful," plus, frog legs are delicious! And, boy can they jump!

Unfortunately, I discovered something that may well be the demise of our areas name "Octad," much to my own disappointment.

"Octad," unfortunately, has more than one meaning. In ancient Arabia, the icon Oct-L-Nokshus was a symbol for the devil — and cults of Ancient Arabians, called Octads, oddly enough, insured plentiful crops by sacrificing civic and community leaders in ritual ceremonies. Horrid enough? Sure, but there's more.

The Arabs responsible for capturing the Americans and, thus, causing the Iranian hostage crisis, and the men responsible for the oil embargo leading to our woes in 1974 and since were both reportedly members of modern-day Octads!

In light of this, I believe we should continue our search for another name for our cities coalition, however fashionable it might be to emulate our neighbors in the Triangle and Triad to the west.

Strength For Today

When the Nazis were overrunning Europe, a city in the eastern Mediterranean came under their cruel domination and hostages were taken in case trouble arose. It did arise and orders went out for their execution.

Suddenly the Greek Orthodox Metropolitan of the city appeared carrying a folded paper. He had a new list of hostages, all volunteers, and he asked the Nazi commander to free the hostages he had captured and substitute for them this new list of volunteers. At the head of the list was the name of the Metropolitan himself.

This show of courage appeared to confuse the despicable Nazi commander. He gave up the whole idea of hostages and thereafter administered the affairs under his jurisdiction with, at least a little show of humanity.

Courage and sacrifice make an impression upon even the most evil of people.

Medical School Trains People To 'Play Sick' For Students

ECU News Bureau

Hypochondriacs do it. Barbara Stanwyck did it in the movie "Sorry, Wrong Number." And some students get accused of doing it, usually just before a big test.

What do all these have in common with a group of people at the East Carolina University School of Medicine? At different times, for different reasons, they all play sick.

At ECU, though, the pretense is given the more clinical label of "patient simulation," and it's done to help medical students develop the skills they need to become excellent physicians.

As a regular part of the ECU Department of Family Medicine's training of second- and third-year students, Greenville-area residents are taught to "be sick" — to think like, act like and exhibit the symptoms of an actual patient with a serious illness.

In questioning these "patients," the students are then able to sharpen their technique in the all-important art of interviewing. The information gleaned in the interview, representing up to 85 percent of what a primary care physician needs to know about a patient, is crucial in effective diagnosis and treatment.

For a number of reasons, simulating a patient is preferable to using an actual patient for the classroom exercises, according to Dr. Linda Z. Nieman, an educational specialist with the family medicine department.

Perhaps the most important advantage is that both the students and their simulated patients can relax in a "no-risk" atmosphere, said Nieman. Students need not worry that a mistake on their part may jeopardize the patient, and the patient feels no anxiety about being interviewed by a medical student.

Also, when the patients are actors, they can more freely assess the interpersonal skills of the students in a way that would not be possible in a realistic doctor-patient relationship.

"Simulators can act as evaluators of the students and provide feedback about the way they come across," said Nieman. "It's tough for a regular patient to give a physician or a student feedback."

The people who act as patients for the medical school come from all walks of life. Nieman, who trains them for their roles, says the only requirement is that the simulators be "bright and motivated and really interested in participating."

Nieman begins the process by developing a two-page profile from the medical record of an actual patient with an illness. The profile includes information about the patient's background, medical history, current lifestyle and the circumstances of the visit to the doctor.

Next she meets with a group of about six patient simulators to go over the profile. She encourages the simulators to put themselves in the patient's place, to become the person described in the profile.

In a second session, the simulators meet with the physician of the actual patient, who helps with the verisimilitude or "realness" of their performance. At the end of the session, just before meeting with the students, the group holds a "tune-up" to "iron out any differences in presentation."

In the tune-ups Nieman plays the part of the doctor, quizzing the simulators about their diet, symptoms and daily habits.

Finally the moment of truth arrives. The "patients" split up in classrooms with different groups of 10 or 12 medical students. One student serves as the designated interviewer while the rest furiously scribble notes.

The interviewer works to establish a rapport with the patient, then gradually begins to extract pertinent details. If the questioner reaches an impasse, time out is called to allow other students to pose questions.

The patient simulators should earn Oscar nominations for their performances. With remarkable exactness, they assume the speech, posture and mannerisms of the actual patient they are portraying. They act shy, hesitant, even a little suspicious at first, then gradually warm to the attention of their questioners. At that point the interviewer becomes a gentle persuader, lobbying for certain changes in diet and lifestyle.

That kind of give-and-take is often at the heart of the doctor-patient relationship. Nieman said the simulations show the students that the patient interview is more than just an exercise in medical problem-solving. It is also a human encounter, and how successful physicians are at winning the patient's confidence can be important in their ability to manage the patient's illness over the long term.

Nieman said the exercises also help the students learn to work together in a group with colleagues. And for second-year students, who spend much of their first two years of medical school engrossed in classroom study, the exercises provide a welcome taste of direct patient care.

A criticism of the simulated patient program has been that it is artificial, that students don't take the "make believe" exercises seriously. But Nieman cited cases in which even experienced clinicians couldn't distinguish simulated patients from real ones. And medical students have testified that they soon forget that their patients are merely actors.

For the simulators themselves, the program has rewards, too. They receive payment for the "three to four hours plus homework" that they invest in the program. But more important, they say, is the excitement, the fascination and the fun they get out of participating.

Salvation Army Cites Fund-Raisers

The University City Kiwanis Club raised the largest amount of money for the Salvation Army in 1984, and was presented with first place Bell Award at the 1985 Annual Report Meeting of the Salvation Army, according to Maj. Ronald L. Davis, local Salvation Army commander.

A total of $19,000 was raised for the Salvation Army through kettle collections during the 1984 Christmas season.

Installed at the meeting were 1985 advisory board officers: Greenville Banks Jr., chairman; Wilton Duke, vice chairman; Julian Vainwright, secretary, and James Sullivan, treasurer.

The University City Kiwanis Club raised $3,692 for Salvation Army-sponsored Christmas programs, such as toys, food and fruit basket distributions. A total of $2,229 was raised by the second-place Golden K Kiwanis Club, and $1,517 was collected by the Kiwanis Club of Greenville, which was the third largest contributor.

Clubs receiving special bell awards for collecting over $1,000 were the Pitt Golden K Kiwanis, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and the Veterans of Foreign Wars

Post No. 7032.

The youth club collecting the most money for the support of the Salvation Army was the E.B. Aycock Builders Club, with a $451 donation. The total income for the Salvation Army Christmas programs in 1984 was $46,826, and 2,208 persons were assisted during the Christmas season. The Salvation Army distributed 430 food and fruit baskets; 1,510 toys, and 755 bags of fruit and candy.

The local Salvation Army recorded a total income of $407,402 in 1984. Of that, $59,280 was donated by the Pitt County United Way and $271,297 was from direct public support, while activity income made up the remaining $76,825. Expenses totaled $434,913, with $83,632 being spent in assistance to individuals.

According to the Salvation Army's report, 2,389 persons were assisted through 840 services in 1984.

Guest speaker Col. Rodolph Lanier, field secretary for personnel in the Southern Territory, said the Salvation Army's tornado disaster relief is continuing in Pitt County. According to the local Salvation Army's report, 260 families were assisted with clothing, rent, house payments, food, household items and other needs following the March 28, 1984, tornado in Pitt County.

Lyman Ormond presented Lanier a third installment check of $8,000 for the support of the Salvation Army School for Officer's Training.

Judge Cuts Jury Award For Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court judge has drastically reduced damages awarded to a man whose healthy left kidney was removed by doctors instead of his cancerous right one, but his attorneys said they will appeal the decision.

Superior Court Judge Robert C. Nye said Monday he had no choice in cutting the amount jurors awarded 67-year-old Harry Jordan from $5.2 million to $256,600.

Nye cited a California Supreme Court opinion handed down Thursday that upholds a $250,000 general-damage limit in malpractice cases. The jury in Jordan's trial had awarded damages Friday, following three months of testimony.

The additional $6,600 tacked onto the $250,000 limit was the amount awarded for medical expenses incurred by Jordan after the bungled surgery in Long Beach Community Hospital in November 1982.

Nye also ordered defendants to pay the first $97,000 of any of Jordan's future medical expenses not covered by insurance. Jurors had awarded Jordan that sum in their verdict last week.

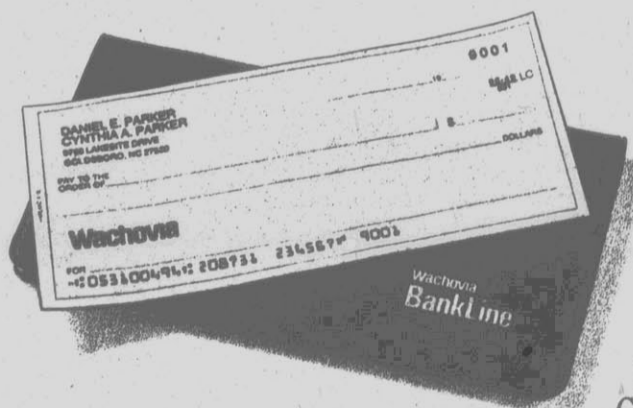

Although the law upheld by the high court has been on the books since 1975, one of Jordan's attorneys, James J. Pagliuso, said, "Most people felt it was unconstitutional or were waiting to see."

Jordan's attorneys promised to appeal, and said they may take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The jury's award broke down to about $5.1 million for past and future non-economic damages — pain and suffering — incurred by Jordan and his wife.

The prime-based line of credit up to $50,000 or more that's as easy to use as writing a check.

There's no easier way to borrow in North Carolina than Wachovia BankLine, a prearranged line of credit up to $50,000. Simply write a check — at any time, for any amount up to your credit limit.

BankLine is inexpensive, too. The interest you pay is tied to Wachovia's Prime Rate.* And unlike most banks, Wachovia bases your interest rate on your credit line, not the amount you borrow.

Wachovia also offers Equity BankLine, a line of credit of $10,000 or more based on the equity you have in your home. There are no loan origination fees, although the normal mortgage loan closing expenses apply when the line is established and at every 10-year anniversary.

BankLine	Your credit line:	Your interest rate:	APR for February is:
BankLine (unsecured or secured with liquid assets)	$10,000 or more	Prime + 1%	11.50%
	$ 5,000 to $9,999	Prime + 1½%	12.00%

INNOCENT PLEA — Robert Edward Matthews of Melbourne, Australia, pleaded innocent to a robbery charge, saying he held up a fast food restaurant and took $1,400 to help pay for surgery for his daughter. The daughter since has received a heart-lung transplant. (AP Laserphoto)

Father Pleads Innocent To Robbery, Saying He Did It To Save Daughter

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A Melbourne man pleaded innocent today to charges he robbed a McDonald's restaurant of $1,400, explaining he took the money to pay for his 5-year-old daughter's heart-lung transplant operation.

Hours earlier in London, his daughter Brooke became one of the youngest recipients of heart and lung transplants.

"I did it for Brooke and I'd do it again," Robert Edward Matthews, 39, told reporters before the court hearing in which he pleaded innocent to four charges arising from the armed robbery of the restaurant in suburban Collingwood on Dec. 13.

Doctors had told Matthews his daughter would live only a few months without the operation, and he said he was innocent because he was under strain at the time. Newspapers said Matthews was unemployed.

"The only reason I did it was because the government would not give me the money to go to England," he told reporters. Australia has a national health insurance program, but reimbursement for expensive operations must be approved by the government on an individual basis.

A statement by the National Heart Hospital north of London said Brooke Matthews was "making good progress in the intensive care unit" after a 4½-hour operation in which she received the organs of a 3-year-old girl.

Matthews said he was happy the operation had been completed and was optimistic his daughter would live, but he added he had not seen Brooke for "a couple" of months and had not heard from her since the operation.

He praised the people who donated money to help pay for the operation and for flights to London for Brooke and her mother Deborah.

"I think it was great, really great," he said, noting that a farmer had donated nearly $16,000. He did not identify the farmer.

Appearing before Magistrate Bertram Gillman,

Matthews faced charges of armed robbery, theft, false imprisonment and aggravated burglary.

Matthews faces up to 20 years imprisonment for robbery. "He's looking at a very severe stint in prison," said a police officer, who spoke only on condition he not be identified.

Prosecutors told the court Matthews used a shotgun to hold up the restaurant and escaped with the equivalent of $1,400.

He was committed for trial to the County Court next month and his $700 bail was continued.

The transplant operation was performed by Egyptian-born Dr. Magdi Yacoub, according to the National Heart Hospital statement.

Brooke "had suffered since birth from a complex heart defect with almost complete absence of the right side of the heart," the statement said. "She had several operations to improve her condition in Australia, but after an initial improvement her condition worsened due to a progressive disease in the lung vessels."

Boeing Drops Proposal To Recover Contributions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Boeing Co. is withdrawing its claim against the Pentagon for at least $125,000 in 1982 political contributions it sought to add to the cost of the weapons systems it sells the U.S. government, the company says.

But the Seattle-based aerospace giant says the $1,800 it spent that year for dinner with Vice President George Bush is a legitimate "community relations expense," chargeable to the government and the taxpayers.

Boeing wants to be reimbursed by adding the cost of that dinner — and hundreds of thousands of dollars in other public relations expenses — to the costs of its weapons contracts with the Defense Department.

Within hours after The Associated Press reported the billing of political contributions Monday, a Boeing spokesman called the news agency to say the company had notified the Defense Contract Audit Agency it was withdrawing its request for payment.

The spokesman, Harold Carr, said there had been "no intention of charging this to the government" and that the contributions "inadvertently had been placed in the wrong account."

This was a change from an earlier statement in which Carr said such expenses were routinely billed even though the company knew that a certain percentage of them would be disallowed after negotiations.

"The rules say certain things — that contributions and donations are unallowable," Carr said initially. "And then you go on and look at other sections and you see a lot of gray areas."

Carr said an $1,800 expense shown in a Pentagon audit for "dinner with the Vice President" apparently refers to Boeing buying a table at a dinner honoring George Bush.

"We would argue that was a community relations expense," Carr said.

Asked if he was sure the dinner was in fact for Bush, the Boeing spokesman replied, "I don't think there is any other vice president running around."

Another item in the audit discloses a total of $25,000 contributed by Boeing to a committee trying to "kill" a Washington state ballot initiative that would have had the effect of raising Boeing's state taxes.

Boeing apparently is still seeking reimbursement for that expense.

The initiative was defeated overwhelmingly in 1982.

Carr said Boeing believes certain other community relations contributions should be allowed. He cited, for example, money given to a school betterment organization in a small town.

Pentagon audit agency documents made available to The Associated Press show that Boeing gave $61,075 in 1982 to political candidates of both parties, and contributed $20,228 to Republican and Democratic campaign and party committees, $38,600 to groups on one side or another of various voter issues and $6,944 to state and local political action committees.

Pentagon auditors called the charges "questionable" and "unallowable," and Defense Department auditors refused to approve reimbursement.

Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., said Boeing's decision to withdraw its claim "raises more questions than it answers."

"Boeing still insists on billing the taxpayer for ... other contributions which are patently unallowable," he said.

Stark plans to introduce legislation this week to prohibit defense contractors from claiming certain public relations expenses on their federal income taxes.

"It's tough to be shocked at waste in weapons programs any more, but these billings go beyond impropriety," Stark said.

"The contractors either take us for fools or they're incapable of understanding what constitutes a legitimate bill," he said. "If the Pentagon won't take real action to stop this, I'm willing to bet Congress and the IRS will."

But congressional critics say the Pentagon has no precise definition as to what constitutes an allowable public relations expense.

Winter Storm Strands Scores

By The Associated Press

A late winter storm dumped snow today from the Great Lakes to northern New England after blasting the Upper Midwest with up to 30 inches of snow and 70-mph wind gusts that stranded travelers and left 65,000 people without power. In Illinois, dozens of families fled a rain-swollen river.

At least 10 people are dead or missing nationwide since the storm rolled out of the Rockies on Friday.

The National Weather Service warned of a band of heavy snow and strong winds today from northern and central New England through northeastern New York and Upper Michigan and a swath of freezing rain to the south of that.

Winter storm watches have been posted for today over California's Sierra Nevada.

Early today, the National Weather Service said snow was falling from the upper Great Lakes across northeast New York state into northern and central New England.

By 1 a.m. today, 6 inches of new snow had fallen at Montpelier, Vt., and Portland, Maine. Five inches was reported at Lebanon, N.H., and 3 inches at Marquette, Mich., the weather service said.

Harry Gordon of the National Severe Storms Forecasts Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today that storm "should be pretty well moving out to sea" later in the day.

Sixteen inches of snow Monday forced the Minnesota House to cancel a session for lack of a quorum for the first time in at least 44 years and heavy snow stranded 70 of 105 members of the South Dakota Legislature in Pierre.

Ice and snow downed power lines, blacking out thousands of utility customers across the Midwest. Holes were torn in the air-supported roof of the Silverdome at Pontiac, Mich., which deflated for the second time in 10 years.

Airports were closed Monday at Minneapolis-St. Paul, Detroit and Milwaukee, and every airport in South Dakota was closed except Sioux Falls. Most of both interstate highways crossing South Dakota were ordered closed.

More than 100 people were stranded on I-29 near Sioux Falls and Brookings. The motorists were rescued and taken to safety by police, said Lt. C.H. DeWald of the South Dakota Highway Patrol.

BB&T. It's More Than A Bank. It's An Attitude.

Is it going too far to suggest that, in today's complex financial world, your bank's attitude could possibly make a difference? We don't think so.

In fact, at BB&T, we think attitude is all-important. We don't mean a superficial cheerfulness, a smile worn like a suit and as easily removed.

Attitude, for us, goes much deeper than that. It takes in the ability, and even more important, the willingness to commit our talents to meet your future goals as well as your current needs.

It rests on the integrity of a company that still believes it is driven by the needs of its customers, rather than its own corporate objectives. A company that realizes that the quality of its service is inseparable from the attitude of its people.

Come discover what a difference the right attitude makes. At BB&T, it's the very thing that makes us more than a bank.

BB&T
It's More Than A Bank.
It's An Attitude.

British Miners Return To Work

LONDON (AP) — Marching with clenched fists behind brass bands, most striking miners returned to work today after their leaders called off a nearly year-long walkout without gaining concessions from Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government.

Holdouts from Scotland and the southeast England county of Kent prevented a return to work at some coal mines as they demanded amnesty for 718 miners fired for allegedly committing criminal offenses during Britain's longest and most violent national walkout.

Union leader Arthur Scargill, the fiery Marxist who led the unsuccessful campaign to stop mine closures, headed a miners' parade to the gates of Barrow Colliery, near his home in Worsborough in the north England coal country of Yorkshire.

But the march was turned back by a picket of Kent miners. "I don't cross picket lines," Scargill declared, turning and walking away from the mine. No miners went inside.

Pickets had similar success at another Yorkshire mine, Cortonwood, whose planned closure sparked the walkout last March 12.

But the large majority of the National Union of Mineworkers' 186,000 members heeded the national leadership's back-to-work order, approved Sunday in the face of a surge back to work that followed the collapse of negotiations.

Chilean Earthquake Toll Reaches 135

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Authorities enforced a curfew to prevent looting and rationed water today in areas of central Chile hardest hit by an earthquake that killed at least 135 people, injured 2,000 and destroyed 4,900 homes.

Thousands of people camped out for a second night in debris-strewn streets, driven from their homes by aftershocks of the Sunday earthquake that knocked down walls, severed communications and rocked skyscrapers in Santiago and other cities in an 800-mile-long area of the Pacific coast.

The Chilean government imposed a midnight to 5 a.m. curfew in much of the earthquake zone to prevent looting, which was reported overnight Monday in some heavily damaged commercial districts.

Electric power and water were interrupted in various locales. In the coastal city of Valparaiso, authorities were rationing water.

Thousands slept on mattresses and blankets on streets and sidewalks near their homes, saying they feared looters.

"We'd like to leave and go somewhere else," said a Santiago mother of four, who identified herself only as Gladys. "But we're afraid that if we leave, thieves will take what little we have left inside."

The streets of Santiago were almost free of rubble today, as shopkeepers and homeowners continued to sweep up plaster and concrete. Pedestrians kept to the outer edge of sidewalks, wary of falling masonry.

Congressmen Go 'Eye To Eye' On Floor Of House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., says he plans to file a complaint against colleague Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., over a shoving match on the floor of the House of Representatives.

In a fracas that brought other House members rushing to the rear of the chamber on Monday, Downey and Dornan engaged in an animated nose-to-nose argument, briefly disrupting House proceedings.

Downey accused Dornan of yanking his tie and threatening "bodily harm." Dornan said he only "straightened" the tie although he conceded he had called Downey "a wimp."

It was the first time in years that an altercation on the House floor involved physical contact between members.

Downey said he planned to press a complaint today with House Sergeant-at-Arms Jack Russ against the California conservative.

"I think he owes me and the House an apology," Downey said. "Our constituents sent us here to agree and disagree — not to threaten one another."

Both congressmen agree the dispute started when Downey asked Dornan about a published report in which Dornan was quoted as calling the New York liberal Democrat "a draft-dodging wimp."

"He proceeded to get very excited about that and other issues," Downey recounted. "When I attempted to walk away from him, he grabbed my collar. It's difficult to turn the other cheek when someone's got you by the collar and tie."

"He said, 'it's good you're being protected by the sergeant-at-arms. If I saw you outside, it would be a different story.' He threatened me with some form of bodily harm," Downey said.

He didn't elaborate on what kind of "bodily harm," saying: "I don't want to go into the details. I will tell them to the sergeant-at-arms."

Dornan had a different account: "He (Downey) tapped me on the shoulder and wanted to know if I had called him a 'wimp.' I said, 'Yes. You are a wimp.'"

"He turned white. He was confronted with the truth. I didn't pull on his tie at all. I just straightened it out for him. It was crooked and it needed to be straightened."

Dornan said he called Downey a "wimp" because of his repeated criticism of anti-government "contra" forces in Nicaragua who are supported by the Reagan administration.

"He called them 'thugs,'" Dornan said. "Downey and others like him don't have the courage to say 'thug' to the contra forces to their faces."

Downey said he was surprised and distressed by Dornan's actions. "It wasn't any way for an elected representative to behave."

FBI Checks Shooting At Justice's Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says it is investigating the possibility that an anti-abortion group may be responsible for a bullet fired through a window in Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun's apartment last week.

Blackmun has been the target of threats since he wrote the court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

FBI spokesman Lane Bonner said Monday that while the agency had no suspects, "We are looking seriously at threatening letters from anti-abortion groups, especially a recent one."

No one was injured in the incident, although Mrs. Blackmun reportedly was sprayed with glass as she sat in the living room of their apartment in suburban Arlington, Va., when the shot was fired after 10 p.m. Thursday.

Blackmun, 76, was said to have just left the room when the shot was fired.

The bullet, a 9mm slug that could have been fired by a pistol or rifle, was recovered from a chair in the Blackmun apartment on the third floor of a 12-story building.

Blackmun has been placed under constant police protection and all of his mail is being screened, Wanda Martinson, the justice's secretary, told The Washington Post in today's editions.

Means of communication — the ability to cross from one hand to the other — can be vital to both the offense and defense. For declarer, it gives him flexibility in planning and executing his line of play. For the defender, it provides the way to transfer the lead to the key hand at a critical time. It played an important part on this deal.

After East opened the bidding, South gave up all thoughts of slam and simply bid what he thought he could make. That was sensible decision for two reasons: four hearts was a reasonable contract, and it prevented the opponents from finding their cheap save at four spades.

Against four hearts, West came up with the inspired lead of a club. A careless declarer might win the club in dummy and lead a trump. Now the 3-0 heart split would doom the contract. West would win and return a club, then win the next trump, cross to his partner in diamonds and obtain a club ruff for a one-trick set.

There is a simple, yet effective, countermeasure to prevent the ruff — declarer must sever the communications between East and West. Declarer should be alive to both the possibility of a club ruff and of a 3-0 trump division. After winning the opening lead, all he need do is return a diamond. That forces the defenders to use their only line of communication before West is ready to ruff a club. Now declarer can force out West's master trumps at his leisure, draw the remaining trump and claim his contract — East can never gain the lead to give his partner a ruff.

How Perdue Chickens Go Against The Grain.

The net income from one Perdue broiler house, built on a few acres, equals the income of 135 acres of soybeans, 93 acres of corn or 20 acres of rented tobacco. This comparison is based on 5½ average flocks per year and Perdue's recommended financing schedule.

Better net per acre is just one benefit of growing with Perdue. When you build a Perdue broiler house you greatly increase the value of your farm, become eligible for a 10% investment tax credit from the government, save plenty of money every year on fertilizer by using chicken litter and save gasoline by working in your own backyard.

One other benefit of growing chickens versus field crops is that you may never again worry about the weather. Go against the grain, grow broilers for Perdue. Mail in the coupon or call us collect at (919) 795-4151, and let's talk chicken.

Give yourself a raise — raisin' with Perdue.

I'd like to know more about starting my own Perdue broiler operation.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced in active trading early today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.76 points to 1,293.29 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a slim lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In this morning's economic news, the Commerce Department said new factory orders in January fell 0.9 percent to a seasonally adjusted $192.18 billion.

The decline compared with a revised dip of 0.1 percent in December, it said.

On Monday, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker warned again that the big federal budget deficit is being financed largely by foreign investors — a scenario he said contains "the seeds of its own destruction."

In a speech to the National Council of Savings Institutions, Volcker told the bankers he realized they would be lobbying Congress on legislation of specific interest to their industry.

Obituary Column

Best
 Mr. Jordan B. Best, 46, died Monday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His funeral will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Revs. Van Knight and Terry Huffins and Dr. Harold Deitch. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Best was born and reared in Mount Olive and graduated from Mount Olive High School in 1956. He graduated from East Carolina University in 1961 and from then until 1980 was associated with Carolina Telephone in both yellow page sales and commercial management. He served as commercial manager in Morehead City and then returned to Rocky Mount to become division sales manager for business systems sales. From 1980-84 he was regional sales manager for Utilcom, a subsidiary of United Telecommunications Inc.

While in Rocky Mount he was a member of Englewood United Methodist Church and was active in civic affairs including Kiwanis Club, United Fund, Chamber of Commerce, Salvation Army, Twin County Masonic Lodge, and Shriners. Since September, 1983, he resided in Greenville and was a member of Hooker Memorial Christian Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nannie Sue Crawford Best; two daughters, Debra Sue Best of Greenville and Ashley Rae Best of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Best of Mount Olive; a brother, Kenneth Best of Mount Olive, and a sister, Mrs. Melrose Bryan of Goldsboro.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. today. Memorials may be made to the American Cancer Society, Pitt County Unit, P.O. Box 377, Greenville, N.C., 27834.

GHA OKs 107 Rental Aid Projects

Director Joe Laney told Greenville Housing Authority board members Monday GHA has endorsed rental assistance for 107 families through its low-income, HUD-funded housing supplement program.

The program, recently authorized for expansion by HUD, provides rental assistance to eligible families living in privately owned housing. Federal funds are used, Laney said, to make up the difference between what low-income families can afford to pay and the market rate of privately owned rental property, thus ensuring that owners receive fair prices on their holdings.

Also approved under the same program were 38 certificates entitling holders to similar rental assistance once appropriate dwellings are located.

In other business, Director of Resident Affairs Sallye Streeter reported that the average rent for the authority's seven housing projects in January was $107 — rent at Meadowbrook was $98; Kearney Park, $123; Moyewood I, $123; Moyewood II, $131; Newtown, $103; Hopkins park, $112, and West Meadowbrook, $55. The January average for West Meadowbrook, she said, was based on pro-rata rent and beginning in February should average $122 per month.

Reagan Urges 'Undecideds' To Back MX Missile Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, pressuring Congress for money to build more MX missiles, told a group of undecided Republicans today that the Soviet Union will be watching how they vote on MX to see whether "we will blink" and unilaterally reduce America's nuclear arsenal, a White House spokesman said.

As the administration forced Congress into a vote on releasing funds for the MX at the outset of a new round of U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva, two key congressmen predicted the tactic would get Reagan the money he is seeking.

But Reagan was taking nothing for granted.

Spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters Reagan stressed his "seriousness of purpose" in a brief speech at a White House breakfast for about 30 GOP House members, many of whom are believed to be wavering on continued funding for the program to modernize the U.S. intercontinental missile force.

Speakes said Reagan reiterated his desire for a meaningful arms reduction agreement with the Soviets and eventual elimination of nuclear weapons.

GUC Director Charles Horne explained to the council and about 70 Brook Valley residents attending the meeting the Norfolk Southern route had been chosen because of cost, impact to adjacent property owners and the availability of an existing utility corridor.

Chargers, Lady Rams Fall In Tourney

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

HAVELOCK — Mickey Rasberry connected on a 17-footer with 1:10 remaining and added a free throw 30 seconds later as the West Craven Eagles held off Ayden-Grifton 48-45 in the semifinals of the District II, 3-A high school basketball tournament.

In the girls' semifinals, tourney host Havelock needed four free throws by point guard Karen Johnson in the final 1:41 to eliminate Greene Central 59-55.

Havelock will meet Farmville Central, which pulled off the first major upset Friday by defeating previously unbeaten SouthWest Edgecombe, in the championship game Wednesday at 7 p.m. West Craven's boys will take on Coastal Conference rival West Carteret at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Marvin Dawson paced West Craven with 16 points, while Tim

Cox added 13. Maurice Berry and Danny West posted 12 points each to lead the Chargers, and Marvin Smith added 11.

The Chargers, led by Doug Anderson with nine, held a slim rebounding edge. But the biggest difference was on the offensive boards, as the Eagles scored five times on follow shots while Ayden-Grifton managed only one bucket. Dawson led the Eagles with seven rebounds, while center Morris Jones, who spent much of the game in foul trouble, pulled down five.

"Defensively, I was pleased with what we did," Ayden-Grifton Coach Bob Murphy said. "I thought we did a good job on Jones keeping him out of their offense."

"I think what really hurt us was when they went to that spread zone defense. They try to spread you all over the court, and we need a penetrating guard when that happens. We didn't play real positive in the first half; it was like we didn't think we were supposed to win."

The Chargers took a 3-0 lead at the start of the game, but Dawson posted eight points as the Eagles took a 10-7 lead at the end of the first quarter. The lead changed hands five times in the period, with Dawson scoring from 18 feet out at the 2:22 mark to put the Eagles ahead.

Berry connected on an 18-footer 51 seconds into the second quarter to trim the margin to one, but Cox scored inside to give West Craven a 12-9 lead. Anderson drove in for a layup to cut the gap to one again, but the Eagles scored the next six points to take an 18-11 edge with 3:49 left in the period.

Berry and West scored as the Chargers trimmed the deficit to 18-15, and Cox answered with a follow shot inside before Jesse Campbell soared through for a dunk

Silverdome Roof Caves In, Three Lions Run For Safety

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Three Detroit Lions football players narrowly avoided injury by scrambling for cover when the Pontiac Silverdome roof collapsed under the weight of a 6-inch snowfall.

Gary Danielson, Eric Hipple and James Jones were playing catch Monday on the floor of the domed facility when the roof collapsed at 11:40 a.m. No injuries were reported.

"I thought the whole place was going to cave in, and I quickly went toward the exit," Jones said. "I thought it was an earthquake."

Danielson said the 10-year-old, $55.7 million Silverdome, in which a National Basketball Association game between the Detroit Pistons and Milwaukee Bucks had been scheduled for Monday night, looked like a war zone. The basketball game was rescheduled for April 7, and two games to be played later this week were moved to Detroit.

"I was telling James, 'I've seen this thing rip before with lightning,'" Danielson said from his Rochester home. "It was leaking all over the drains."

Hipple was standing beneath the southwest corner of the roof when it began tearing, Danielson said.

"All we did was start pointing. Eric didn't know what was happening. Then it started coming down all at once, and we ran like hell to the tunnel."

"It looked like somebody threw hand grenades in there," he said. "It was a lot more dangerous situation than we thought at first."

The roof has "come down and lost pressure before, but I've never seen it do this before," Hipple said. "Maybe one-fifth of the sections are blown out."

R. Clayton Jones, executive director of the operating Pontiac Stadium Authority, said no damage estimates would be available until a stadium inspection today, but he said he didn't believe there was any major structural damage.

The air-supported roof of the 80,000-seat facility also collapsed during a thunderstorm in August 1976.

Repairs on the roof may begin as early as Friday, Jones said.

The NBA announced Monday that Wednesday's scheduled game between the Pistons and New York Knicks would be played at Joe Louis Arena in downtown Detroit, and Friday's game against the Utah Jazz would be switched to Thursday, also at Joe Louis.

None of the Pistons players were at the stadium when the roof fell, and the Milwaukee players were at their hotel in nearby Northville, said Pistons spokesman Matt Dobek.

The weight of the snow tore at least seven holes in the 100 panels that comprise the fiberglass-and-Teflon roof, warping the wooden basketball floor and sending concrete from the upper deck smashing into several plastic seats, Dobek said.

"It sounded like thunder, only with about 10 times the impact," Dobek said. "I thought, 'I'm 25 years old. Lord, I don't want to go now.'"

Added Tom Wilson, Pistons' executive director: "It was like watching the Hindenberg crash. You could see the ceiling start to invert, and it was only a matter of time before the panels began to rip."

A similar fate was avoided at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis, home of the Minnesota Twins baseball team and Minnesota Vikings football team. Maintenance workers climbed the Metrodome exterior and shoveled snow off the roof, which had collapsed twice before during heavy snows.

Jerry Bell, executive director of the Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission, said its usual procedure is to use eight to 10 maintenance workers with fire hoses to melt down accumulations of snow on the Metrodome.

"But this snow is different than usual," Bell said, adding that an additional 20 to 30 people were called in Monday morning to help the crews that had begun Sunday night.

Yates Heads First Team 1985 ECAC-South List

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Carlos Yates, who leads George Mason's basketball team in scoring, has been accorded first-team honors by the ECAC-South for the fourth consecutive year, conference officials announced Monday.

The 6-foot-5 Yates was named to the squad as a guard by ECAC-South coaches and writers who cover various conference teams.

Joining him on first team are William & Mary senior guard Keith Cieplicki, Navy center David Robinson, and forwards Vernon Butler of Navy and John Newman of Richmond. It is the third straight year on the first team for Cieplicki and the second for Butler and Newman.

The second team consists of guards Ricky Wilson of George Mason and Kelvin Johnson of Richmond, North Carolina-Wilmington center Brian Rowsom, and forwards John Newman of James Madison and Rob Rose of George Mason.

The ECAC-South will announce its player of the year on Wednesday, one day before the conference tournament in Williamsburg, Va.

Charles, Bias Lead Vote For 1985 All-ACC Team

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — North Carolina State's Lorenzo Charles and Maryland's Len Bias each polled 246 points to lead balloting for the 1985 All Atlantic Coast Conference basketball team announced today by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Also named to the first team were Georgia Tech's Mark Price with 223 points out of the possible 250, Duke's Johnny Dawkins with 199 and North Carolina's Brad Daugherty with 194.

The second team is comprised of Wake Forest's Kenny Green, 155; Duke's Mark Alarie, 138; Georgia Tech's John Salley, 127; Maryland's Adrian Branch, 85; and North Carolina's Kenny Smith, 67.

Charles, the only senior on the team, and Price, a junior, are repeat first-team choices from a year ago, while Dawkins, a junior, moves up from last year's second team. Alarie was a first-team selection in 1984.

The Atlantic Coast Sports Writers

Association picks its teams regardless of position and gives two points for a first team vote and one for second. Of the association's 200 members, 125 cast ballots.

Charles, a 6-foot-7 Brooklyn, N.Y., native, led N.C. State in scoring during the regular season, averaging 18.6 points per game. He shot 58 percent from the floor and 70 percent from the foul line.

Bias' 19-point scoring average is the best in the ACC. The 6-8 Landover, Md., native shot 53 percent from the floor and 79 percent from the foul line.

Averaging 16.7 points a game, Price, a 6-foot Enid, Okla., native hit for over 50 percent from the floor and was 82.5 percent from the foul line.

Dawkins, 6-2 from Washington, helped Duke stay in the regular season title chase until Saturday's loss to North Carolina. Dawkins averaged 18.4 points a game, shooting 50 percent from the field and 81 percent from the foul line.

Daugherty, currently the best ACC rebounder, averaged 9.3 per game. The 6-11 Black Mountain, N.C., native boasts the ACC's second best field goal percentage at 61.3 and averaged 17.8 points a game.

On the second team, Green averaged more than 17 points a contest and had the league's second best rebounding average at 8.5. Alarie averaged 16.4 points and five rebounds per game, while Salley hit for more than 15 points each contest and leads the ACC in field goal percentage at 66.

Branch averaged 13 points and five rebounds a game, while Smith ranks second in the conference with more than 7 assists and first in foul shooting at 88 percent.

Other players receiving strong voting support were Clemson's Vince Hamilton, Virginia's Olden Polynice, North Carolina's Steve Hale, Wake Forest's Delaney Rudd and Georgia Tech's Bruce Dalrymple.

Warren County Wins In District

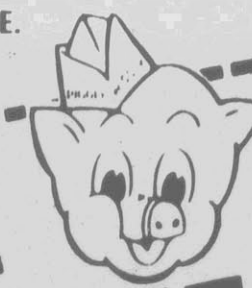

AHOSKIE — Two Roanoke River Conference teams moved into the finals of the District I 3-A Tournament with wins last night over Northeastern Conference squads.

Warren County's boys rolled up an 82-61 win over Plymouth in their game, while the Weldon girls slipped past Ahoskie, 64-54.

That sets up the finals on Wednesday night with Warren County facing Washington in the boys' championship and Weldon and Plymouth meeting for the girls' crown. The winners advance into the regionals at Wilson next week.

Hoyas Climb Back To Poll Top

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Sports Writer

Georgetown regained the top spot today in The Associated Press college basketball poll as the Hoyas were the unanimous choice despite finishing second in the Big East Conference regular-season race.

St. John's, which had held the No. 1 spot for the past five weeks, fell to second after losing to the Hoyas, 85-69, last week. Georgetown followed that victory with Sunday's 90-63 national television thrashing of then No. 12 Syracuse. But the Redmen clinched the Big East regular-season title and the No. 1 seeding in this week's Big East post-season tournament with a victory over Providence.

The Hoyas, 27-2 overall and 14-2 in the Big East, who held the No. 1 spot in the poll from the pre-season vote until the one-point loss to St. John's on Jan. 26, received all 60 first-place votes and 1,200 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

St. John's, 25-2 overall and 15-1 in the conference, had 1,127 points in outdistancing Big Ten champion Michigan, 23-3, which remained third with 1,087 points.

Oklahoma, the Big Eight regular-season champion which defeated then No. 10 Georgia Tech 87-80 Sunday in a nationally televised game, improved two places from last week's poll as the Sooners jumped from sixth to fourth with 989 points.

Memphis State, the Metro Conference regular-season champion, fell from fourth to fifth with 937, while North Carolina, one of three teams to tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season title, jumped from eighth to sixth with 756 points, 11 more than Duke, which finished fourth in the ACC after a 78-68 weekend loss to the Tar Heels.

Louisiana Tech, the Southland Conference regular-season champion, dropped one place as it finished eighth with 732 points, 12 more than Georgia Tech, one of the teams that tied for the ACC crown. Georgia Tech won the conference's coin toss to decide the top seed for the post-season tournament that gets under way Friday.

Kansas, which finished second to Oklahoma, rounded out the Top Ten with 707 points.

Nevada-Las Vegas leads the Second Ten followed by Virginia Commonwealth, the Sun Belt Conference regular-season and tournament champion; Syracuse, Illinois, Tulsa, the Missouri Valley Conference regular-season champion; Loyola, Ill., the Midwestern City Conference regular-season champion; Georgia, North Carolina State, the third team to tie for the ACC crown; Louisiana State, winners of the Southeastern Conference regular-season race, and Southern Methodist.

Louisiana State, 19-8, in the only new member of the Top Twenty as the Tigers returned to the rankings after a two-month absence.

Last week's Second Ten was Kansas, Syracuse, Southern Methodist, Georgia, Tulsa, North Carolina State, Virginia Commonwealth, Illinois, Arizona and Loyola, Ill.

Arizona, 20-9, which lost Pac-10 conference games to Washington and UCLA, fell from the Top Twenty despite the losses being by a com-binated six points. Southern Methodist, which had been ranked as high as second during the season, fell from 13th to

12-18 Team Qualifies For NCAA

By The Associated Press

Lehigh University may not have the best record in college basketball this season. But at least the Engineers are going to the NCAA tournament.

"Championship games are funny and teams show emotion in different ways," Lehigh Coach Tom Schneider said Monday night after his team rallied to beat Bucknell 76-74 in overtime to win the East Coast Conference tournament title.

The victory gave the Engineers, at 12-18, an automatic bid to this year's 64-team NCAA playoffs. Lehigh's record, however, is not the worst ever in the tournament — George Washington, for example, was 9-16 when it won its way there during the 1960-61 season.

"We didn't lose face and kept our championship dream alive," Schneider said. "This is a great moment for our basketball program."

None of the nation's Top Twenty teams played Monday night.

It was a big night for Iona, which beat Fordham 57-54 to win the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference tournament title, and Fairleigh Dickinson, which defeated Loyola, Md., 63-59 in overtime for the Eastern College Athletic Conference Metro tournament crown. Each victory carried bids to the NCAA playoffs.

Lehigh will be making its first-ever appearance in the NCAA tournament after winning its first-ever ECC title. The Engineers trailed 28-13 midway through the first half before taking their first lead of the game at 67-65 with 35 seconds left to play. Bucknell's Chris Seneca then forced the game into overtime with a 25-foot jump shot as time expired in Towson, Md.

In the extra period, Mike Polaha made two foul shots with 1:20 left to put Lehigh ahead, and after Bucknell again tied it, Polaha sank a 14-foot shot with eight seconds remaining for the game-winner.

Freshman Daren Queenan scored 31 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to help engineer the triumph. Bucknell, which lost the ECC tournament title game last year to Rider, finished 19-10.

Fairleigh Dickinson defeated Loyola College behind Larry Hampton, who scored 19 points and was named the tournament's most valuable player. Hampton sent the game into overtime by hitting a bank shot with 16 seconds left in regulation.

"We call that play, 'Give the ball to Larry and get out of the way,'" said Fairleigh Dickinson Coach Tom Green, whose team is now 21-9.

Also in the NCAA tournament is Iona, 25-4, which got two foul shots from Arnie Russell with 61 seconds left to break a 54-54 tie.

Lehigh, Fairleigh Dickinson and Iona increased the number of teams already in the NCAA tournament to eight. They join Michigan, which won the Big Ten Conference; Virginia Commonwealth, which won the Sun Belt Conference tournament; Marshall, which took the Southern Conference playoffs; Pepperdine, the West Coast Athletic Conference winner; and Middle Tennessee State, which won the Ohio Valley Conference tournament championship.

For some teams, conference playoffs are a welcome last-chance to make the NCAA. Other teams, however, are wary of such tournaments.

Middle Tennessee State finished fifth in the eight-team Ohio Valley and had a 17-14 record before winning the conference tournament.

"If anybody had told me at the beginning of the season that we'd be in the NCAA tournament, I would have given them a great handshake, and ask if I could raise them as my son," Middle Tennessee Coach Bruce Stewart said.

Georgia Southern is 23-4 going into this weekend's Trans America Athletic Conference playoffs in Statesboro, Ga.

"It's going to be difficult to get the NCAA bid if we don't win our tournament," Georgia Southern Coach Frank Kerns said. "The NCAA uses a computer which has a lot to do with (the selection of teams) it. We don't blow out anybody with the style we play. I just think it will be awfully difficult."

Mike Montgomery, coach of Montana in the Big Sky Conference, faces a similar problem despite a 22-6 record.

"We don't get the press, nor the TV coverage, that other leagues get," the Montana coach said. "There never have been two teams (in the NCAA playoffs) from the Big Sky. I don't think our chances are good if we don't win the playoffs. A league championship is a must."

For more highly regarded conferences, such as the Big East, Atlantic Coast, Southeastern and Southwest, winning their post-season tournament is not as vital. Those conferences have each had a couple of Top Twenty teams this season that are virtually assured of making the NCAAs.

Several teams that have been staples of the NCAA tournament in the past face uncertain futures this year, partly because the champions of 29 conferences are guaranteed automatic berths in the field.

Houston, which has reached the Final Four the last three seasons, has struggled to a 16-12 record this year. Louisville is 15-15 going into the Metro Conference tournament, while UCLA is 14-12. Also, Indiana, which had been in the Top Twenty earlier this season before falling on hard times, is 15-11 while Kentucky is 16-11 heading into the Southeastern Conference playoffs.

Roof Caves In On Phoenix

By The Associated Press

The roof fell in on the Phoenix Suns but it wasn't quite the same way it happened to the Detroit Pistons.

Detroit's National Basketball Association game with Milwaukee was postponed Monday night after the roof of the Pontiac Silverdome collapsed under the weight of an overnight snowfall, sending three members of the Detroit Lions football team scurrying for cover.

"It looked just like an avalanche," said quarterback Gary Danielson, who was practicing with James Jones and Eric Hipple when wet snow tore through the roof at 11:40 a.m. "It looked like somebody threw hand grenades in there. It was a lot more dangerous situation than we thought at first."

In Phoenix, where it doesn't snow, Mark Aguirre poured in 27 points, including nine in a 1:42 span of the second period, as the Dallas Mavericks beat the Suns 107-99. Dallas scored the first 11 points and rolled to a 58-38 halftime bulge.

"It was very similar to the Detroit game of about a week or so ago," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod, referring to a Feb. 18 loss to the Pistons by a 122-103 score. "We got ourselves in a big hole early and we just couldn't get going and never got out of it. We couldn't buy a bucket early in this one."

In other NBA games, the San Antonio Spurs downed the Philadelphia 76ers 109-103 and the Cleveland Cavaliers outlasted the Golden State Warriors 108-104.

The Suns opened the second half against Dallas with an 8-0 run only to have Aguirre score eight quick points and build the Maverick lead to 87-70 heading into the fourth period. Dallas coasted from there, leading by as many as 23 at one stage. Rolando Blackman finished with 19 points, Jay Vincent 16, Sam Perkins 13 and Derek Harper 12 for Dallas. Phoenix got a career-high 27 from Charles Jones.

Spurs 109, 76ers 103

San Antonio used Artis Gilmore's strong rebounding and a tight defense to offset the absence of high-scoring George Gervin — out with a bruised shoulder — and win its third game in a row. Philadelphia's Moses Malone scored 26 points but Julius Erving was held to 12.

Cavaliers 108, Warriors 104

World B. Free sent Cleveland ahead with a jump shot with 1:41 left and scored 25 points as the Cavaliers won their fifth straight game. Golden State's regular center, Jerome Whitehead, missed the game with a sprained ankle and Purvis Short, the league's third leading scorer, was ejected late in the first half after drawing two technical fouls. He scored 15 points.

After drawing a personal foul on a drive to the basket, Short said something to referee Dick Bavetta and was slapped with a technical. He chased after the official, was held back by teammate Larry Smith and then was charged with a second technical.

In Pontiac, a Pistons spokesman said wet snow that accumulated overnight on the 10-year-old, $55.7 million stadium tore at least seven holes in the fiberglass-and-Teflon roof, warping the wooden basketball floor and sending concrete from the upper deck smashing into several plastic seats.

Waverly Brooks Quits ECU Post

Assistant football coach Waverly Brooks has resigned his post on the East Carolina University staff, effective in June, Dr. Ken Karr, director of athletics, announced Tuesday.

Brooks, who has coached defensive ends at ECU while also holding the title of recruiting coordinator during his two seasons with the Pirates, will be leaving to enter private business.

The Richmond, Va., native was one of five assistant retained from Ed Emory's staff by new head coach Art Baker after Emory's firing December 10, 1984. Brooks came to Greenville and ECU in 1983 from Marshall University where he served as recruiting coordinator while also working with the Thundering Herd defense from 1979-82.

Wilson, Dupree On All-Big East Teams

Rose High School landed one boy and one girls on the Big East All-Conference teams, announced today.

Carlton Wilson, a 6-5 forward, was named to the boys' unit, while Kim Dupree, a 5-10 forward, was picked for the girls' team.

Wilson Hunt, the regular season champion, along with Wilson Beddingfield and Northern Nash each had two players selected to the girls' team. Named from Hunt were Jamie Mills and Jackie Davis. Beddingfield landed Tracy Hooker and Tammy Farmer, while Northern Nash had Teresa May and Monica Harris picked.

Jewel Sharpe represented tournament champ Rocky Mount, while Kinston placed Cathy Murrell and Fike had Teresa Atkinson.

Regular season champ Kinston placed three players on the boys' unit, including Charles Shackelford, Tony Dawson and Rondey Davis.

Fike and Beddingfield each had two. Charles Howard and John McNeil each made it from Fike, while Beddingfield was represented by Eric Batts and David King.

Also making the team were Anthony Carter of Northeastern and Marvin Macklin of Northern Nash.

Butler, Robinson Lead Navy Victory

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Vernon Butler and David Robinson combined for 48 points to lead Navy to an 84-63 victory over Campbell Monday night.

The Midshipmen jumped to a 40-23 halftime lead and then withstood a Campbell rally midway through the second half to earn the triumph. The Camels closed the gap to nine points with 8:28 remaining on a Juan Austin jumper. But two baskets by Robinson and a layup by Cliff Rees put the game out of reach for the Camels.

Butler tallied 28 points while grabbing 10 rebounds. Robinson scored 20 rebounds and pulled down 11 rebounds.

The victory lifted Navy to a 22-5 season. The Midshipmen, No. 1 seed in the upcoming ECAC-South tournament, play East Carolina Thursday in the opening round of the three-day event.

Campbell was paced by 21 points from senior guard Andrea McGee, who also grabbed seven rebounds. John Huffstetler added 10 points for the Camels.

Campbell concluded its season with 5-22 record, the worst in school history.

Tiger Coaches Prepared For Report To Officials

PICKENS, S.C. (AP) — Two of three former Clemson University coaches indicted for possession and distribution of prescription drugs prepared to report to authorities today, prosecutors said.

A Pickens County grand jury heard four hours of evidence in a closed session Monday before returning misdemeanor indictments against Sam Colson, women's cross-country coach and strength coach for all sports; Stan Narewski, men's and women's track coach and men's cross-country coach; and Jack Harkness, assistant strength coach.

Solicitor William Traxler said Colson and Narewski were expected to report to authorities today and have bond set. Harkness lives in Canada, and Traxler said he was not certain whether he would return voluntarily to face charges.

"Colson and Narewski have been very cooperative, that is something (the judge) will consider when setting bonds," said Traxler.

The grand jury hearing came longer than four months after the death of Clemson runner Augustinus Jaspers sparked a probe by the State Law Enforcement Division and the circuit solicitor's office into drug use in the Clemson athletic program. Jaspers, who was 23, died of congenital heart failure Oct. 18, but traces of the pain killer phenylbutazone were found in his bloodstream. He did not have a prescription for the drug.

Colson and Narewski were suspended Dec. 8 and resigned Dec. 11 after school officials began investigating the circumstances of the death.

Blood-Stained Towels Linked To Brown Charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blood-stained towels were allegedly found in the home of football Hall of Famer Jim Brown by police investigating allegations that he punched and choked a 33-year-old teacher to force her to have sex with him and another woman, according to court documents.

The allegations were contained in a police report filed in Municipal Court in support of a search warrant to comb the Hollywood Hills home of the 49-year-old former Cleveland Browns' running back, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported today.

"The victim used towels, toilet paper, paper towels and tissues to wipe up blood from her injuries," a police detective said in a sworn affidavit.

Brown was booked for investigation of rape and sexual battery on Feb. 19. Carol Moses, 22, was booked for investigation of sexual battery.

Neither has been charged in the case. A spokesman for the district attorney's office has said a decision on filing charges would be made by the end of the week.

An attorney for Brown told the Herald Examiner he had no comment on the case. Brown and Ms. Moses have maintained they will be vindicated.

Brown is free on $17,500 bail. Ms. Moses is free on $1,000 bail.

The teacher told police that Brown and Ms. Moses were drinking and smoking what she thought was marijuana before the alleged attack, according to the police report.

According to the document, Brown told the woman, "You're not going anywhere."

The woman told police that Brown hit her in the eyes, nose and stomach, and when she told Brown to stop, he only continued to strike her, the report said.

In 1965 a jury found Brown innocent of assault and battery charges after an incident in Cleveland involving an 18-year-old girl.

Brown was arrested in June 1968 for investigation of assault with intent to murder when his 22-year-old girlfriend was found semiconscious under the balcony of his Hollywood apartment.

The charge was dropped after the woman said she had fallen while trying to leave the apartment when police arrived. Brown was charged with resisting a police officer and fined $300.

In 1978, Brown was sentenced to one day in jail and fined $500 for beating up a golf pro at a Los Angeles course in an argument over the placement of a golf ball.

Brown, who ended his nine-year career with the Cleveland Browns in 1965, was the National Football League's all-time leading rusher until Chicago's Walter Payton topped his mark last season.

He stills hold the NFL record for most career touchdowns (126), and rushed for 12,312 yards on 2,881 carries in 118 games. His average of 5.2 yards per carry is the highest career rushing average in NFL history.

on a rebound to close the first-half scoring at 22-15 in favor of West Craven.

"We might have been a little tight in the first half," Murphrey said. "But overall, I thought we played a good second half."

Cox and Dawson posted field goals as the Eagles took their biggest lead of the night at 26-15 with 7:13 left in the third quarter.

But Ayden-Grifton, utilizing an assortment of shots, outscored the Eagles 13-2 through the 1:28 mark to knot the score at 28-28. West Craven added a field goal by Campbell and a dunk by Dawson before Marvin Smith connected inside for the Chargers at the buzzer, setting the score at 32-30.

Mike Dixon cut the deficit to one with a 17-footer, then gave the Chargers the lead at 39-38 with 4:42 remaining.

The lead changed hands six times through the 1:10 mark when Rasberry put the Eagles ahead to stay. Berry connected on a pair of long-range shots to keep the Chargers in the game.

"Maurice Berry hit some big shots for us, as did Mike Dixon," Murphrey said. "I didn't think we went to Marvin Smith like we needed to; we can't go away from our strength."

GREENE CENTRAL-HAVELOCK
Johnson led Havelock with 20 points, while Pat Abel added 15. For Greene Central's Lady Rams, Cyndi

Hicks posted 18 points, Cynthia Jones 16 and Cynthia Corbett 10.

Jones scored inside with 1:51 left in the game to give Greene Central a 55-53 lead, but Johnson sank two free throws 10 seconds later and Shannon Stobell popped a 19-footer for a four-point edge with 37 seconds left.

Hicks took the ball at the top of the key, drove into the lane but was called for traveling as she attempted to go up for a shot with nine seconds on the clock.

Johnson was fouled again with six seconds remaining and connected on both free throws to set the final tally.

"They were cutting (Laura Maxwell) inside to free the outside shooters," Greene Central Coach Brenda Dail said. "Usually you don't have someone that shoots from that far out, but they have several."

"It's so hot in here, I think the girls were getting tired near the end."

Havelock took a 12-6 lead at the 1:49 mark of the first period with eight unanswered points, but the Lady Rams trimmed the margin to 14-12 at the end of the period with a 6-2 scoring spurt.

Jones posted six points in the second period as Greene Central took a 22-16 advantage with 3:19 left. Maxwell sank four straight free throws for Havelock, and Pat Chapman added a move inside to knot the score 22-22 at the 2:37 mark.

Greene Central gained the advantage on field goals by Hicks and Sharon Myatt, but Laura Luzadder and Maxwell added two free throws each as Havelock pulled even, 26-26. With two seconds on the clock, Johnson stole an inbound pass and layed the ball in to give Havelock a 28-26 halftime edge.

Greene Central knotted the score at 35-35 on an inside move by Jones with an assist from Hicks, but Johnson and Stobell combined for eight points as Havelock went ahead 43-37 with 2:18 left. The Lady Rams closed the period with six unanswered points in the final 2:10 to knot the score 43-43.

"We weren't getting very good rebounding position, and that's something we said we had to work on," Dail said. "Overall, I think we had an excellent season; something these girls can look back and be proud of."

"I'm sure some of the girls will be playing college ball next year."

Today's Cryptiquip clue: K equals E

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

CBS Movie Focuses On Child Abuse And How It Can Affect Family Life

By JERRY BUCK
 AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nearly three years ago producers Rick Rosenberg and Bob Christiansen began to notice a flurry of newspaper stories about child abuse.

"Every time it seemed to be a repeat offender and it involved violence," said Rosenberg. "These kids were really brutalized. We said there must be something really wrong with a system that keeps turning these people out to molest children."

That was the seed for "Kids Don't Tell," a CBS movie Tuesday night starring Michael Ontkean and JoBeth Williams. Ontkean plays a young filmmaker who finds that the documentary he's doing on child abuse is having a wrenching effect on his marriage and his relationship with his daughters.

The film has become even more timely because of recent events and the continuing McMartin

Pre-School case in the Los Angeles suburb of Manhattan Beach.

Rosenberg said he could empathize with the children because he had been a victim when he was 12. "I had the guilt feelings," he said, "and for years I wouldn't say anything." "The more we delved into it the more we found out about what happens in the home," he said. "You don't hear about that as much. Then the McMartin case came along and we found that our character was too naive. We had to change him to reflect these new developments."

Christiansen said, "We hope that one thing children learn is that they can complain and they can say no. Many cases occur in the home and involve a relative and the child can say no and stop it."

Rosenberg added, "We wanted to get into our film that there are good touches and bad touches. Our biggest plea is for communication. We don't want this to become a witchhunt.

Christiansen and Rosenberg have produced some of television's most significant shows. They won an Emmy in 1974 for "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman." They also produced "The Glass House," "The Man Who Could Talk To Children," "I Love You, Goodbye," "The Stardust Ballroom," "Strangers: The Story of a Mother and Daughter," and the recent CBS miniseries "Robert Kennedy and His Times." They've also produced several feature films.

"Sometimes the reason we do these films is that people feel awfully alone out there," said Rosenberg. "But if they know there are other people with the same problem and that there are people to help and listen, it's a great benefit."

The original idea for "Kids Don't Tell" was for Ontkean to be working on a movie of the week. They wanted to tell in a realistic manner how you get such a picture made for television.

"But we felt that was too incite,

The American dollar has shown amazing strength on world money markets recently, thanks to high interest rates and low inflation. The world's record for inflation came in Hungary after World War II. In 1939, one American dollar bought 3.38 Hungarian pengos. In 1946, the same dollar bought 500 MILLION TRILLION pengos. Wages rose daily, but prices rose by the hour. A haircut cost 800 TRILLION pengos.

Cyndi Lauper Gets Top Video Listing

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — One week after winning a Grammy for best new artist, pop singer Cyndi Lauper grabbed seven American Video Awards nominations for the romantic "Time After Time" and the raucous "She Bop."

The third annual video awards will be presented April 3 at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium and taped for syndicated television broadcast in about 25 cities. The nominees in 15 categories were announced Monday at Ma Maison restaurant.

Miss Lauper, 31, was nominated for best female performance for "Time After Time," and was nominated for best pop video, best director, best editing and best lighting design.

"She Bop," part of which takes place at a drive-in restaurant overrun by motorcycle gangs and Brooklyn matrons in hair curlers, was nominated for best choreography and best costume design.

Soul singer Tina Turner, 43, who won three Grammys, was nominated twice for best female performance, for her Grammy song of the year, "What's Love Got to do With It?" and "Private Dancer," which was also nominated for best video costume design.

Bruce Springsteen, 35, took similar honors in the best male performer category for his "Born In the U.S.A." and "Dancing in the Dark," the latter also nominated for best pop video. Springsteen won a best male vocal Grammy last week for "Dancing in the Dark."

The National Academy of Video Arts and Sciences was founded in 1980 for professionals in the video industry.

Writers' Strike Threatens Soaps

NEW YORK (AP) — A walkout today by the Writers Guild of America threatens to throw a monkey wrench into the production of daytime soap operas but will have little immediate impact on prime time television, union and industry officials said.

East Coast members of the Writers Guild voted nearly 7 to 1 late Monday to reject a three-year pact that offered 6 percent annual pay raises and to strike with the larger West Coast membership against the motion picture and television industries.

A "strike hotline" was set up at midnight to inform guild members of any updates on the walkout and to urge members to remain united. A recorded message at a strike headquarters telephone in Los Angeles said simply: "The Writers Guild is on strike as of midnight, March 4th, 1985."

Today's walkout halts movie and television script writing as well as entertainment scripts for radio.

But movie studios and television networks have saved scripts in anticipation of a walkout and most prime time television shows have finished taping this season, so they would not feel the affects of a strike until the fall, when most television shows resume.

The 9,000-member guild rejected, among other issues, a 6 percent raise for each of the next three years. It reportedly had sought 7 percent annual raises.

Martin Urges Delay In Teacher Career Plan

By JOHN FLESHER

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — As he promised, Gov. Jim Martin's $16.4 billion budget for fiscal 1985-87 would fund tax increases, start new programs and improve others. But legislative leaders are finding plenty to criticize.

"He just guts the education program developed by people who, in my opinion, know a lot more about the progress we need than whoever advised him," said Senate Majority Leader Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, after Martin unveiled his budget Monday night.

Other Democrats focused on the state's credit balance, which they said would hit perilously low levels if Martin's combination of $1.28 billion in new expenditures and $328 million in tax cuts were implemented.

The Martin budget foresees a balance of $212.1 in 1985-86. But the surplus would dip to $35.6 million in 1986-87, $8.6 million in 1987-88 and $24.5 million in 1988-89, and lawmakers warned that a recession could put the state in the red.

"One little slump... and we've got trouble," said House Speaker Liston Ramsey, who said the credit balance usually is between $200 million and $300 million.

Martin acknowledged that the Legislature will make the final decisions, but stood firmly behind his economic package.

"I am personally convinced that there is adequate money for growth, even with the tax cuts that I have proposed, that will provide for substantial improvements in education," said Martin in a rare appearance before the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee.

Martin's proposed budget totals about $338 million less than the nearly $16.8 billion suggested by Hunt in December. That would leave $328.4 for the initial stage of Martin's three-part tax cut, which he said would cost $489.1 million when fully in place in 1989.

Last week, Martin outlined his spending proposals for continuing programs, which differ little from Hunt's. The only program Martin would alter substantially is the $1.3 million fund for elective abortions for the poor, which he would all but eliminate.

Martin's expansion budget, which totals $519.2 million for fiscal 1985-86 and $809.7 million for 1986-87, duplicates a number of Hunt's spending proposals but would slash by roughly 50 percent the amount Hunt wanted for education improvements.

While Hunt called for an additional $216.9 million for education in fiscal 1985-86, Martin suggested $76.2 million. For the next year, Hunt sought $216.9 million for education;

Martin wants $108.8 million.

Among the education savings proposed by Martin are $43 million by deferring for one year statewide implementation of a career ladder program for teachers and $4.2 million by delaying the hiring of staff for a teacher advancement center at Western Carolina University that hasn't been built.

Martin also suggested hiring 50 percent fewer employees than Hunt, deferring $5 million for a new biotechnology center, halving welfare increases, and scrapping money to provide day care for another 2,300 children.

Martin endorsed Hunt's proposals for a 5 percent across-the-board pay increase for state employees and teachers and asked that a three-year freeze on merit pay be lifted for about two-thirds of the state's work force, not including teachers.

For the second year of the biennium, Martin proposed that $217.4 million be set aside for unspecified compensation improvements, to be determined later.

Martin budgeted $3 million for additional staffers and expanded programs under the child day care licensing section of the Department of Human Resources. Hunt proposed $15.8 million.

Also, Martin requested a $3.7 million cut in Hunt's suggested $9 million allocation for tuition grants for private college students.

Other items in Martin's expansion budget include:

- $120 million over two years for grants to local governments for water and sewer projects.
- $58.2 million to reduce class sizes in grades 7-9 to a ratio of one teacher per 28 students the first year and to one teacher per 26 students by the second year.
- $50 million for the University of North Carolina needs ranging from enrollment increases to research.

— $25.5 million for the community college system.

Martin called for a 10 percent UNC system tuition increase this fall, which would generate $9.1 million, drew criticism from Democrats.

"It's a little out of the way to raise tuition so you can cut taxes," said Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan. "I think you could have some problems with that."

The centerpiece of Martin's legislative program is elimination of the sales tax on food and non-prescription medicine, the property tax on intangible assets and half the property tax on business inventories July 1, 1986. The rest of the inventory tax would be lifted Jan. 1, 1988.

According to Martin, that would cost the state $70.3 million in fiscal 1985-86, $258.1 million in 1986-87, $362.3 million in 1987-88 and $489.1 million in 1988-89.

Educators Still Optimistic Over Funding For Schools

RALEIGH (AP) — Educators and legislators remained mainly optimistic about the future of North Carolina's public schools despite Gov. Jim Martin's proposal to give schools about half what former Gov. Jim Hunt had suggested.

"Overall, I'm pleased with his emphasis on education," said Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, after Martin presented his budget to the Joint Appropriations Committee Monday night. "We just have to convince him that people prefer better education to tax cuts."

Martin's $16.4 billion budget recommends a pay increase for teachers, a two-year test of a career-ladder program, smaller classes in grades 7-9, and more money for the University of North Carolina and state community college systems.

But while Martin would fund most of the programs recommended by Hunt, many would get less money.

For fiscal 1985-86, Hunt's budget calls for new education funding of $216.9 million, while Martin wants $108.8 million. The next year, Martin asks $185 million for education improvements to $367.3 million sought by Hunt.

The major differences in Martin's expansion budget for education include:

- Delaying by one year statewide implementation of the career ladder program for teachers, a move endorsed by the State Board of Education, saving $43 million.
- Delaying staffing the teacher advancement center planned for Western Carolina University, saving $4.2 million.

Additionally, Martin recommends a scaled-down version of the Basic Education Program developed by the education board and endorsed by Hunt's task force on education for economic growth.

Martin proposes:

- Adding 1,297 teaching positions in grades 7-9 to reduce teacher-to-student ratios to 1-26 by 1986-87 and adding 52 assistant principals, $33.1 million.
- Providing remedial summer school for third-graders who do poorly on achievement tests, $5.5 million. Hunt wanted the remedial help for sixth- and ninth-graders as well, with a total cost of $17.6 million.
- Buying $6.5 million worth of new textbooks.
- Buying math and science equipment and materials, $5.2 million, and vocational education equipment, $2.5 million.
- Spending $1.3 million for staff development, instead of the $4.1 million Hunt proposed.

Martin would not fund parts of the Basic Education Program asking that the state assume funding of 142 finance officers who had been paid by local school systems or seeking $23.3 million to fund support personnel such as nurses, librarians, social workers and job counselors.

Phillips bemoaned Martin's recommendations for the support personnel, saying, "That may be the most important item he left out."

I-40 Tunnel Collapses

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An Interstate 40 tunnel a few miles east of the North Carolina-Tennessee border collapsed before dawn today, trapping a truck in the debris and closing the highway, authorities said.

"At this time, we don't have anything to tell us that anyone was trapped," said Mack Underwood of the Waynesville Police Department. "We believe the trucker saw what was happening and stopped and got out."

Underwood said rescue crews were called in to dig through the debris to the cab of the truck and the Highway Patrol was trying to reroute the traffic.

"This is just the stretch of I-40 that has given us a lot of trouble," Underwood said. "In the past several years, this area has been well known for slides. It's a stretch they're trying to redesign."

Former Senate Switches

CHARLOTTE (AP) — State GOP officials hailed former state senator Ben Tison's decision to switch from the Democratic to Republican Party as a "sign of things to come."

State GOP Chairman Robert Bradshaw said "more and more Democrats are becoming disillusioned with the special-interest-oriented, tax-and-spend liberalism of their party's leadership."

Tison ran in last year's Democratic primary for the 9th Congressional Seat. He placed third in the primary.

Tison, a 12-year veteran of the General Assembly, served as a state senator from Mecklenburg County from 1983 to 1985 and as a state House member from 1973 to 1983.

Woman's Body Found

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — A week-long search for a missing Scotland County social worker has ended with the discovery of her body in a wooded area 4 miles north of Laurinburg, authorities said.

The body of Karen Gibson Monroe, 40, of Laurinburg was found shortly after 2 p.m. Monday, Sheriff Alfred White said. A preliminary autopsy showed she had been shot once in the head, White said.

Defendant Changes Plea

WENTWORTH, N.C. (AP) — A Reidsville man who pleaded guilty to first-degree murder could face the death penalty for the beating-strangulation death of a 92-year-old retired Baptist minister.

After pleading innocent last month, Perry Dyon Simpson, 21, changed his plea Monday in the slaying of the Rev. Jean E. Darter of Reidsville.

Jury selection was scheduled to continue today in Rockingham Superior Court for a sentencing hearing. District Attorney Phillip W. Allen is seeking the death penalty.

As part of a plea agreement, Simpson also pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit first-degree murder and armed robbery. He faces up to 50 years on those charges. The state agreed to drop charges of first-degree burglary and conspiracy to commit armed robbery.

Taxi Provides Getaway

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Mecklenburg County taxi driver unwittingly served as a getaway driver for a Charlotte man who allegedly robbed a convenience store.

"I'm not surprised at anything that happens out here," said the driver, who requested anonymity. "Everybody does their own thing in this world."

The driver said he took the man to the store to use a pay phone early Sunday morning and that it wasn't until police stopped him and arrested Jeffrey Bernard Lineberger that he found out something was fishy.

Lineberger, 29, was charged with armed robbery after being arrested at about 3:30 a.m., less than 20 minutes after the convenience store clerk had called police to say he was robbed by a man who kept his hand in his right pocket as if he had a gun, authorities said.

Police said they recovered a paper bag containing $105.49, including a marked $2 bill.

Could Become State's 2nd Largest Bank First Union Seeks Merger

By TOM MINEHART

AP Business Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — If shareholders and regulatory agencies give the go-ahead, a merger between First Union Corp. and Northwestern Financial Corp. would push First Union up a notch to become the state's second largest bank-holding company with $10 billion in assets.

"The main economic thing that drives a merger like this is the opportunity to reduce cost," Edward E. Crutchfield Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of First Union, said Monday. "You're spreading more volume of business over a smaller cost basis."

The resulting corporation, to be called First Union Corp., would be directed by officers from both banks. The combined bank would have 380 branches in the state — more than either NCB National Bank or Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Winston-Salem — and put First Union into 17 additional counties, Crutchfield said.

"We feel like this merger made sense period, even if no interstate banking were occurring," he said.

"But it does position both banks to be a good-sized aggressive player in the interstate banking world we're getting into."

First Union had assets of $7.2 billion and North Wilkesboro-based Northwestern, currently the state's fourth-largest bank, had assets of $2.7 billion on Dec. 31, but bank officials said growth probably would push the combined total to more than $10 billion by March. Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. of Winston-Salem had assets of $8.7 billion as of Dec. 31. NCB Corp. of Charlotte is still No. 1 in the state with year-end assets of $15.7 billion.

The banks' boards of directors, meeting simultaneously on Monday, decided about 12:30 p.m. to approve the definitive agreement to merge, Crutchfield said.

Crutchfield, who will keep his positions in the combined bank, said the merger will result in no layoffs.

Ben T. Craig, now chairman and chief executive officer of Northwestern Financial Corp., will become president of First Union Corp. and chairman and chief executive officer of First Union National Bank, its primary holding company.

"The management of the two organizations is very compatible, both personally and philosophically," Crutchfield said. He said he and Craig, both alumni of Davidson College, were good friends, and this enhanced the merger.

Craig said the proposed merger "offers a very attractive financial opportunity for our shareholders on a tax-free basis with potential for improvement in the future" and that the combined bank could compete better in a deregulated banking environment.

Princeville Boys Drown In Pond

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two young boys drowned in a pond in Halifax County on Sunday, according to sheriff's deputies.

The bodies of Darrell Purvis, 12, of Hobgood and Lorenzo Purrington, 8, of Princeville were found about 10:15 p.m. after authorities dragged a pond on a farm where the boys had been swimming, Capt. Tom Moore of the Edgecombe County Sheriff's Department said.

The two boys were last seen about 4 p.m., Moore said.

Cleveland Purvis found the clothes of his grandson and Purrington about 8 p.m. near the pond, Moore said.

The deaths were ruled accidental, he said.

Rose Eyes Tax-Backed Tobacco Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., has threatened to introduce legislation to use as much as 2 cents a pack of the federal cigarette excise tax to finance the federal tobacco program.

Rose said Monday he wanted cigarette manufacturers to back down on demands they have made about a plan calling for them to purchase 812 million pounds of surplus leaf from the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

The companies have lobbied against cigarette tax increases and moves to assign revenues from the tax to a specific purpose.

Congress doubled the excise tax to 16 cents a pack in 1982 legislation that included a three-year sunset clause to return the tax to 8 cents a pack starting Oct. 1. Rose said if his bill were enacted, the cigarette tax might not fall all the way to 8 cents.

The cigarette makers have asked Congress to pass legislation cutting the average support price from $1.70 to $1.35 and protecting the manufacturers from antitrust lawsuits they might face because of the buyout.

Rose, chairman of the House tobacco subcommittee, called on the manufacturers to accept a support price of $1.40 a pound and to drop their request for congressional legislation, particularly the antitrust protection.

"It is not my intention to introduce this legislation if the companies agree" to those conditions, he said.

Rose's bill would set a formula in which the treasury secretary would designate a part of the excise tax revenue, up to 2 cents per pack, to fund the tobacco program. The measure would end the No Net Cost Program assessments — set at 7 cents per pound last year and at 25 cents this year.

A spokesman for R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. in Winston-Salem said the $1.35 figure had been proposed by Stabilization's board, not by the tobacco companies.

"Right now, we'd like to hear their (Stabilization officials') opinion" about the $1.40 figure, said David B. Fishel, the Reynolds spokesman.

Elizabeth II May Sail This Spring

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — In the three years Horace Whitfield has been captain of the Elizabeth II, the replica of a 16th century merchant ship has been under way only once, when it was towed half a mile.

But better days lie ahead.

Dredging to deepen a 2.5-mile-long, 10-foot channel through Shallow Bay will enable the ship to leave its port opposite the Manteo waterfront where it has been since its construction.

The dredging, which might be completed by mid-April, is needed because the bay is as shallow as 6 feet in places and the Elizabeth II draws 8 feet of water. When the dredging is done, the ship's crew will cast off the lines, raise sail and head for Wanchese, a stone's throw down Roanoke Sound, where the three-masted square-rigger will be hauled out for some work on the hull.

"It's just routine painting and scraping," Whitfield said last week. "But she's overdue for that. That will take a week or 10 days. Then, if there's time and money left, we'll put her through her trials in Pamlico Sound. We feel that since she hasn't had her trials, we want to test the rigging and see how everything works."

Built with private donations and completed in November 1983, the Elizabeth II was the centerpiece of North Carolina's celebration of the 400th anniversary of the Roanoke voyages sponsored by Sir Walter Raleigh.

Whitfield already has found the 69-foot pine and juniper reproduction leaks — from the top.

"After a heavy rain," he said, "she's taken on water. There are several leaks in the deck that have to be fixed."

Money will be needed each time the Elizabeth II makes a voyage because she will always be accompanied by a tug, a precaution that Whitfield calls a prudent measure.

"We're approaching this whole thing prudently because she has no auxiliary (power plant) and if the wind dies, ..." he said. "We also want a crew support vessel to take care of the crew, one with a shower, a head and a lounge. A drug boat that's been confiscated would do well."

Whitfield doesn't expect many problems in sailing the ship because he has been training aboard the Maryland Dove, a similar vessel based in the northern state. In Manteo, he has been training 40 crew members, some of whom come on weekends from as far as Charlotte.

The Certificate With Clout.

For $10,000, we think you deserve a lot of muscle. And we're offering more than any other place.

First, there's our Buck-Building System, which lets you pick the terms, the amount, and, in effect, the return.

Because, the more you invest, the longer you invest, the higher your rates and yields. Which means that Certificates at NCNB pack quite a punch. But now we're adding even more muscle.

Right now, you can get a special bonus

Deluxe Banking: for $10,000 in a Certificate or $2500 in Regular Savings, nobody puts more muscle in your money.

when you invest $10,000 or more in an NCNB Certificate: DeLuxe Banking.

Here's why many people call it the best bank account in the state.

It knocks out charges for a standard-size safe deposit box, a checking account that pays 5 1/4% interest, personalized checks, Checkmate® (the plastic check), travelers checks and a financial newsletter.

It trims rates on personal loans and credit cards, including a Premier Visa® Card. You can get cash coast-to-coast at over 3,000 Plus System® machines.

All told, just about all the services you need at special rates or no charge.

The DeLuxe Certificate. Competitive rates. Flexible terms. FDIC security. Plus all you get with DeLuxe Banking.

No bank, no broker, no S&L puts more muscle in your money. So come see us. It's all right here in your neighborhood.
