Arms Talk Team Gets Sendoff By Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today dispatched American arms negotiators to Geneva, cautioning that talks with the Soviet Union to curb nuclear arsenals will be long and difficult but instructing his team to "explore every promising avenue for progress."

In a formal sendoff at the White House for the U.S. delegation, Reagan said, "Like Americans everywhere, I want these negotiations to succeed and will do everything I can to insure that this happens. I pray that the Soviet leadership is prepared to make the same commitment."

Reagan met over breakfast in the State Dining Room with his bargaining team, congressional observers of the Geneva talks, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane. Because of a physical examination planned later in the day, the president did not eat.

After the breakfast, Reagan met in the Oval Office to give the negotiators what he called "instructions for the first round of talks" — hinting that U.S. strategy for the negotiations will continue to unfold in the days ahead.

Reagan said, "These instructions enable our negotiators to explore every promising avenue for progress."

Noting that both the United States and Soviet Union have expressed hopes of eventually eliminating all nuclear weapons, Reagan said, "It is now our task and responsibility to take practical steps to turn this venture into reality."

"We should have no illusions that this will be easy since any venture of this magnitude will take time," the president said. "And since the most vital security interests of both sides are at stake, this will clearly be long and difficult."

"We are realistic because we know that our differences with the Soviet Union are great," Reagan added. "Patience, strength and western unity will therefore be required if we're to have a successful outcome."

The president said, "We seek agreement as soon as possible on real and verifiable reductions in American and Soviet offensive nuclear arms. For our part, the United States is ready with firmness, patience and understanding to negotiate fair and equitable agreements reducing the dangers of nuclear war and enhancing strategic stability."

The ceremony was a prelude to the opening in Geneva next Tuesday of the first U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in more than a year. The two sides seem far apart, particularly on the issue of space weapons and the U.S. "Star Wars" program that envisions the use of space-based lasers and other high-technology systems to shoot down enemy missiles in flight.

McFarlane said Thursday "if the past is any guide our job will be extremely difficult."

He said U.S. negotiators would be ready to offer tradeoffs in offensive weapons systems "which provide very powerful inducements for an agreement right now."

The U.S. bomber and submarine forces are considered superior, while the Soviets have an edge in heavy ground-based missiles.

Jobless Numbers Holding Steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment nationwide edged down 0.1 percentage point to 7.3 percent in February as continuing economic strength created nearly 300,000 new jobs, the government said today.

The number of unemployed Americans, however, remained about the same, with 8.4 million people listed as out of work, down just 85,000 from January.

Moreover, the jobless rate for black workers rose by 1.4 percentage points to 16.3 percent, largely as a result of increased joblessness among adult black men. The rate for whites, meanwhile, was off, from 6.4 percent to 6.2 percent.

The number of Americans holding jobs rose to a record 106.7 million, the Labor Department reported. The bulk of the employment gain came in industries providing services rather than in those manufacturing products.

Indeed, testifying before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, said, "Large over-the-month gains in the service-producing sector — 255,000 — were partly offset by declines in the goods-producing sector, particularly in manufacturing." Goods-producing jobs fell 137,000.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said more than 60 percent of the adult population held jobs last month, a figure he said was "equal to the highest employment peak in our history."

"We have seen a number of positive economic indicators in recent weeks but none is more reassuring than a drop in unemployment," Speakes added. "The economy is creating jobs in record numbers."

Meanwhile, the length of the average workweek for production workers fell 36 minutes to 40.0 hours on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Overall, the unemployment rate was off 0.1 percentage point from January's 7.4 percent.

Banks' Merger Official

The proposed merger of First State Bank into First Citizens Bank has been approved by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., First Citizens announced today.

In a news release, First Citizens officials said the merger of the two banks will be completed on March 28, subject to a Justice Department review.

First State operates one office in Winterville and three in Greenville. The bank reported assets of $51.2 million and deposits of $43.5 million on Dec. 31, 1984.

First Citizens Bank, headquartered in Raleigh and a subsidiary of First Citizens Corp., serves 60 North Carolina counties with 271 offices in 127 towns, including branches in Grimesland and Grifton. First Citizens has assets of $2.1 billion and deposits of $1.9 billion.

First State was formed in January 1906 in Winterville, and opened the first of the Greenville branches in 1970.

The proposed merger was agreed (Please turn to page 12)

NARCOTICS ANONYMOUS?

I understand there is a Narcotics Anonymous group meeting in Greenville. When and where? S.J.

There are a number of NA groups active in Greenville and Kinston and you may attend any of them, David Elliott, substance abuse counselor at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, said. Open discussion meetings are held every Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at 308 Lenoir St., Kinston; every Sunday at 8 p.m. at 107 Oakmont, Greenville; every Monday at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, Kinston; every Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church on U.S. 264 west of Greenville; every Wednesday at 8 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenville; every Thursday at 8 p.m. at 308 Lenoir St., Kinston; every Friday at 8 p.m. at Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church west of Greenville. There is also a closed meeting at another site, which you may inquire about at an open meeting or by calling the Mental Health Center, 752-7151, and asking for Substance Abuse.

Elliott said the NA meetings follow a format very similar to Alcoholics Anonymous and afford the same degree of support and anonymity. Families of people with substance abuse problems may attend the open meetings, but not the closed ones.

West Tells Young Athletes Academics Also Essential

Pitt County school Superintendent Eddie West told athletes from North Pitt High School Thursday that athletics and academics are inseparable and that pride in both areas is necessary for success.

West, speaking at a banquet that honored the school's athletes and stressed the importance of academic achievement, told students that five attributes — patience, responsibility, intelligence, determination and enthusiasm — are necessary for success in both athletics and academics.

"To an athlete and a successful student, patience is a necessary attribute," West said. "It is very rare to find an individual who has God-given talents sufficient to make him totally successful without a great deal of practice and study along the way."

It is also unusual, West added, to find a student capable of excellence in both academics and athletics with very little effort. In the area he is not skilled, patience is a must, he said, and "for a student athlete to be

Cheerleaders

By MELANIE PHILLIPS
Reflector Staff Writer

Since 1982, the J.H. Rose High School cheerleaders have been forbidden to use pyramids or do stunts that stack the girls more than two high. According to a co-sponsor of the cheerleading squad, the school outlawed that type of stunts after accidents at other schools left cheerleaders injured.

A similar rule is in effect in the Big East Conference, which includes Rose and D.H. Conley high schools.

The ban on high pyramids has come under public attention this year since a cheerleader at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was injured in a practice session.

Scott Allen, a co-sponsor of the Rose High cheerleaders, says that she thinks the ruling is a good one.

"We'd rather be safe than sorry," she said. "We require two spotters for each stunt to make sure that if anyone falls, they'll be protected by the spotters."

Ms. Allen added that since the cheerleaders cannot form pyramids, their team focuses on partner stunts and sequences.

Guidelines released last August by Joe Webb, assistant state superintendent for instructional services, and Al Proctor, director of the Division of Health, Physical Education, Safety, and Sports, outline several safety standards the state recommends for cheerleading squads are urged to adopt. The recommendations are similar to the guidelines set up by Rose High Principal Howard Hurt three years ago.

Valerie Holland, co-sponsor of the Safety Rules Are Followed

Rose High cheerleaders, said that safety rules sometime limit the squad's competitive ability. During cheerleading competitions, other squads outside the conference form pyramids, while the Rose High squad and other Big East Conference schools cannot. According to Ms. Holland, this sometimes intimidates the squad.

She noted, however, that "there is possible danger in these pyramids. We have gotten rid of the danger for the most part and try to make sure there is no room for error."

Ms. Holland said that other people argue that if spotters are used there is little danger of injury. "We don't want to take the chance that the spotters might not be effective," she said. "We don't want to be what other schools talk about — one of the horror stories."

In lieu of performing the visually appealing pyramids, Ms. Holland said that their squad stresses details and "little things" that make the teams performances look good even without the more dangerous stunts. She said that the girls work harder on partner stunts, and don't mind the ruling too much.

Leigh Lanier, a senior at Rose High and head cheerleader of the squad, said that the outlawing of pyramids and other potentially dangerous stunts is sometimes disappointing because these stunts are such crowd pleasers. "Players get hurt during football games, but they're not outlawed. We're not allowed to do anything that may be dangerous. It takes away from our performances."

In The Area

Minorities Session

The second annual statewide conference for minorities sponsored by the North Carolina Council for Minorities in Science, Math and Engineering was held Thursday and today in Greenville.

The conference, for 200 seventh through 12th graders from eastern North Carolina, was hosted by East Carolina University and Pitt Community College and coordinated by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

The students, who excel in science and mathematics, participated in a quiz bowl and various competitions, including computer simulations.

Enrichment tours for the participants were hosted by DuPont, Procter and Gamble, Burroughs Wellcome and the ECU School of Medicine. A career planning seminar was presented by Gail Wallace of Pitt Community College.

Guest speaker at a Thursday night banquet was Dr. Vinetta Jones of Chapel Hill, director of the Mathematics Science Education Network of North Carolina. Carol Maidon, research assistant at North Carolina State University, also addressed the group.

MINORITY CONFERENCE — Minority seventh through 12th graders from throughout the state met in Greenville Thursday for a conference and competition in science, math and engineering. Attending a banquet were from left, Dr. Sandy Shugart, vice president of the N.C. Department of Community Colleges, and guest speakers Carol Maidon, research assistant at N.C. State University; Dr. Vinetta Jones, coordinator of the Math-Science Teacher Education Centers Program, and Dr. Charles Coble Dean of the ECU School of Education. (Reflector Photo by Chris Bennett)

Pace of Greenville, has been selected as a member of the St. Mary's College chapter of the Societe Honoraire de Francais, a national honor society for high school students of French.

Candidates must have a 3.5 grade point average in French and a 3.0 average in all other subjects for the preceding three semesters at St. Mary's, Raleigh.

Merit Scholarship

Nancy Kennon Sneed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Sneed of Greenville, has been awarded a special merit scholarship for the 1985-86 academic year at Peace College. Miss Sneed is a senior at J.H. Rose High School.

The scholarships are awarded to students who have maintained above-average grades in high school and who possess leadership characteristics.

Book Presented

A copy of a Greenville published book, "The Vacationer: The Only All-North Carolina Travel Guide, North Carolina 400th Anniversary Souvenir Edition," was presented by the book's editors to Gov. Jim Martin in Raleigh on Wednesday.

The book is published by S&S Publishers and is edited by Thomas A. Williams and Charles F. Simpson.

Honor List

Deborah Joyner of Greenville made the dean's list for the 1984 fall semester at North Carolina Central University, Durham.

Group Will Meet

The Eastern Medical Group Managers will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Beef Barn in Kinston. Frank Dail, president of Tadlock Insurance Agency of Greenville, will be the guest speaker.

For further information and reservations contact Mary Stoneham at 758-4181.

Computer Manual

A 116-page manual on "Computer Use in Education," authored by Dr. Veronica Pantelidis, has been published by the department of library and information studies at East Carolina University.

The manual is designed to provide a source of information on applications of the computer in education.

A short introduction by Emily S. Boyce, department chairwoman, is included.

Storytelling Unit

East Carolina University has established the National Clearinghouse for Information on Storytelling to be jointly administered by the department of library and information studies and Joyner Library.

The clearinghouse will collect information and materials and develop a structure for the retrieval of the material.

A spokesman said the group welcomes published and unpublished materials on storytelling, the names and addresses of individuals to contact, and information on the use of storytelling in non-traditional fields.

For more information contact the director, Dr. Constance A. Mellon, department of library and information studies at ECU.

Car Wash

La Chic of '86 will hold a car wash Saturday at the Elma Service Station on West Fifth Street in Greenville.

Computer Service

A computer bulletin board system, a non-profit service to area computer users, has been established by operators Gary Davis and Mike Langley of Greenville. The Downeast Nochange PC Bulletin Board is centered around the IBM-PC, with sound, color and graphics.

A bulletin board allows participants to use their personal computers to send messages to each other by telephone, with the messages stored by the computer on the receiving end. The caller wishing to receive a message can call the computer at his convenience and read the message.

A library of public domain software will also be available.

The service is provided by calling 758-5261.

Guest Lecturers

D.H. Conley home economics students heard several guest lecturers this week and took a field trip to Raleigh to conclude a unit of study on grooming.

Speakers included Charles Johnston of the Fashion Institute of Atlanta, who spoke on careers in fashion; Richard Ezzell and Barbara Waller of Mitchell's beauty School, who spoke on hair care and styling; Kathy Stokes and Joyce Ormond of Artistry Cosmetics, who spoke on skin care and make up, and Margie Clemmons of a modeling clinic, who spoke at the Future Homemakers of America chapter meeting.

In addition, 53 students and seven parents attended the North Carolina Home and Garden Show in Raleigh.

Utility Fight

RALEIGH (AP) — The Council of State has approved unanimously the allocation of $80,000 for Attorney General Lacy Thornburg to fight Duke Power Co.'s $340 million rate-increase request.

The money will be used for Thornburg to hire an energy expert to fight Duke's claims that it needs to raise electricity rates by 19.6 percent to help pay for the Catawba Nuclear Station near Rock Hill, S.C.

Thornburg said he will hire John W. Wilson, an economist in Washington, to help his Energy and Utilities section in the fight against Duke.

NCSU Awards

RALEIGH (AP) — A retired professor, a textile executive and a former governor received the Watauga Medals, North Carolina's State University's highest non-academic awards, in ceremonies Wednesday night.

Dr. Alvin M. Fountain of Raleigh, John N. Gregg of Wayne, Pa., and former Gov. Jim Hunt, received the awards from N.C. State University Chancellor Bruce Poulton.

The awards are given annually in recognition of "unusually distinguished service to the university."

The Past Presidents' Club will entertain at a luncheon Sunday. State President Gail Ottinger of Kingston will honor all local club presidents.

Carol Hardee is president of the local club and Jo-Ann White of Greenville is a state sponsor. Marian Hardee, also of Greenville, is state chaplain.

Dr. Hawk Gives Sorority Program

Dr. Parmalee Hawk, education professor at East Carolina University, recently spoke to Alpha Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa.

Many changes are taking place in education to which teachers must respond in a positive manner. Some of these changes were brought about by the report "A Nation at Risk" published in 1983 said the speaker.

Since that time the entire nation has reexamined its educational systems and sited improvements in the "Nation Responds." North Carolina has developed its quality assurance program for teachers. In support, universities are improving their teacher education programs she pointed out.

Member Beth Crumpler was commended for being chosen the Jaycee Young Educator of the Year for N.C.

Scholarship chairman Patricia Anderson will be receiving applications for scholarships for 1985-86.

Mary Ann Brannon and Mildred West were recognized for their altruistic projects at the pediatric ward of Pitt County Memorial Hospital and Greenville Villa.

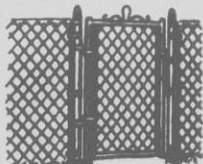

Ms. Brannon, Ms. Anderson and Mary Rose Stocks were meeting hostesses.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

A "most" list of anything has always intrigued me.

None more than the 25 Most Influential Women in the country. They are chosen for the World Almanac by editors from all over the nation who acknowledge their impact on other women. In other words, when these women talk, E.F. Hutton listens.

This is the sixth year I have been on the list and I can no longer live a lie.

If I told my kids Tuesday followed Monday, they would cock their heads to one side, narrow their eyes and say, "Are you sure?"

Not once, in 30 years of child-raising, have they ever taken my advice. They bought the car that I warned them could be used only as a planter. They cultivated the friend I told them was a barn burner and would come to no good. They ate the foods I told them were bad for them. They picked the school that I was opposed to.

You would have thought in all these years I would exude some influence over my husband. Did he throw away the pale peach Nehru jacket that hangs in his closet? He did not. Did he tell his boss to stick it in his ear? No. Did he go back to school and take a course in Conversational Iranian in case a job opened up? Of course not.

I spent an entire afternoon with a friend advising her to go back to school, get a job, stand on her own two feet and build an independent life for herself. The next day she ran off with an unemployed house painter.

I could peddle a diet where the more you chewed the thinner you got and no one would buy it. In over a quarter of a century slaving in the kitchen, not one person has asked for my recipe for anything.

A few years ago, it began to strike me what a fraud I was when I was summoned for jury duty. I had visions of being a Henry Fonda in "12 Angry Men," resurrecting a victim from 11 closed minds by converting them to justice via my influence. I couldn't even get on a jury.

In looking over the list of the other 24, I realize these are women who are role models. Women whose every word and action stirs the spirit of women everywhere. No one hangs up on their phone answering service before the sound of the beep! Au contraire. They order what she orders for lunch. They wear what she wears. They share her views on the world. They vote the way she votes. They read what she reads. You don't see her driving around with a bumper sticker for Mondale on her DeLorean. No siree.

That's why I wrote the powers at World Almanac and told them I could no longer pretend to be a major force of influence among women and that they should immediately withdraw my name from the list.

I never heard from them. Why am I not surprised?

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Coffee Shop Conversation Too Spicy For Lunchtime

DEAR ABBY: We often have lunch at a coffee shop near our office. The acoustics there are such that conversations at nearby booths or tables are very audible. More than once we have had to listen to vulgar and profane language because we could not help overhearing.

Today I heard a vulgar expression I've never heard before (I'm 58). These are not arguments, just business people discussing their office or jobs.

If you were sitting there, would you:

1. Suffer in silence. (After all, this sort of thing is not uncommon and is therefore tolerated.)

2. Ask the manager to speak to these people. (That hardly seems fair, asking him to do your dirty work, when he probably does not want to offend other regular customers.)

3. Go up to the booth or table and say something like: "Pardon me, but perhaps you are unaware that your conversation is being heard at the nearby tables."

If you print a better solution, I'll keep copies in my purse to hand out.

OFFENDED IN L.A.

DEAR OFFENDED: I would write a note saying something like:

"Your language is offensive. Please clean up your act, or keep your voices down. Thank you.—The Lunch Bunch"

Then I would either ask the waitress to deliver it to the offending table, or I'd deliver it myself.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a unique problem with no visible way to solve it without losing a friendship.

We have friends with whom we play cards at least once a week. Both my husband and I have seen Mr. X palm a wild card off the table onto his lap to be used when he needs it in order to win. We do not play for high stakes, so neither my husband nor I can comprehend why Mr. X. does this.

Needless to say, Mr. X is always the big winner—the total rarely amounts to $5.

Now when we play, I am all tense, always looking to see if Mr. X is going to palm another card. We don't want to mention this to his wife or to his other friends, as we really care for them.

What should our game plan be?

CHEATED IN FLORIDA

DEAR CHEATED: Your game plan should be "truth or consequences." When you see Mr. X palm a card, call him on it in a jocular way—"I didn't know you were a sleight-of-hand artist; let's see you palm another card!" Then let him take the consequences.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is very insensitive about people who have had mastectomies, as I have had. She mentions her big bosom every chance she gets, and seems so proud of it.

Recently she lost 10 pounds, and at a party loudly stated that she was sad because she lost it all in her bosom! Then the other evening at another party, she announced that she had gained two pounds—and guess where? "In my headlights!" This was particularly disgusting to everyone because another good friend who had had a mastectomy was present.

She then went on to say that she gets up every morning, takes a shower and goes back to bed. Someone asked, "You go back to bed? Why?" Her answer was, "Oh, I have to take care of John (not his correct name) every morning."

My husband said that she must have gained two pounds between her ears. We are all around 70 and have never heard anyone talk that way before. How should a woman like this be treated?

Awareness

Tornado Awareness Week was an important facet of life and survival against the forces of disaster. It's proven to be a worthwhile experience, particularly among those unfamiliar with the hazards and precautions accompanying those freakish occurrences that infrequently touch most of us.

Older heads, who've had no personal experience with tornadoes, have absorbed over the years a sort of subconscious awareness of what to do and what not to do when tornado alerts are sounded. Explicit advice is helpful to them. Very young people who endured and survived the experience remember too well the fright and destruction, but in whom the steps of self-preservation might not have fully registered, may need those reminders — just as do adults whose memories were shocked by the experience to an extent that thoughts of protective measures were forced into the background.

It is reasonable to think that the deliberate turning of attention in the direction of what to do for self-protection (or the safety of others) for only a few minutes during Awareness Week is worthwhile.

We hope it becomes an annual program.

Athletics

The Miami gathering of NCAA Division 1-A university leadership did bring general agreement on banning freshman participation in major sports and the reform of academic standards for college athletes. We are pleased with the affirmative stand in those directions by the Tar Heel delegation.

A special meeting of the 1-A Division's full membership in New Orleans next June is the follow-up step. That session may decide whether the Miami consensus was an empty gesture.

There are megabucks involved as well as a natural compulsion to be a winner in any and all competitions. Those forces often run counter to the very reason for institutions of higher learning.

Overlooked in the ongoing assessment are benefits accruing to professional football and basketball franchises. They enjoy benefits of a vast "minor league" system without any investment involved. Their potential hurt could be considerable. In their shoes we would like to be involved (behind the scenes) in the debate.

Qualms about the June meeting are natural. The track record for the cause of academics is not all that great.

Dan Rather And The Network

Three well-dressed gentlemen came in to see me the other day.

One of them said, "We're from the 'Jesse Helms Committee to Fire Dan Rather' and we're interviewing people to replace Rather on the 'CBS Evening News.'"

"Has Dan been fired already?" I asked.

"It's just a matter of time until we have enough stock to get control of the company. Your name was given to use as a staunch conservative who believes in the American way of life, and someone who won't sell out his country."

I blushed, "That's a fair description of myself."

"How do you feel about Dan Rather?"

"I'd like to tear the sweater off his back."

One of the gentlemen smiled, "We were hoping you would say that. The anchorman we're looking for is someone who will report the news without prejudice, while at the same time highlight the conservative side of the story."

"That's no problem," I said. "If you can't give the conservative point of view on the evening news, you don't have the right to call yourself a journalist."

"How do you feel about secular humanism?" one of the gentlemen asked me.

"I don't think people should engage in it until they're married," I said. "I wouldn't put a secular humanist story on the air because I know a lot of kids are watching."

This seemed to please all three.

One of them said, "Suppose a woman was raped and wanted an abortion. How would you treat that story?"

"I'd interview Sen. Helms and let him tell me why she was wrong."

"How do you stand on the church and state issue?"

"I don't believe in the separation of church and state. If I got Dan Rather's job I would start off my show with a prayer every night. No one has the right to keep God off the evening news."

I could tell they were getting very interested in me.

"Are you for an arms agreement

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — For years, President Reagan has gone out of his way to hype Nicaragua's military as the scourge of Central America, an overbuilt force that far exceeds this nation's security needs.

Now Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega has asked U.S. lawmakers to test Reagan's claim for themselves. Said Ortega: "We are inviting them to ... come without any type of restrictions ... so they can know the reality of the military development that exists in Nicaragua, which is truly defensive development."

A recent report by the Washington-based Council on Hemispheric Affairs suggests that the congressmen will find substance in the Nicaraguan's claim.

"Nicaragua's troops are not trained in the sort of combined operations necessary for an invasion of another country, nor does the Nicaraguan officer corps have the necessary experience," the report says. "The Sandinistas lack the logistic supplies ... necessary to sustain an offensive operation. They lack the ability to provide air cover to an invasion force and have little air transport ability."

The report offers some interesting data on the military capabilities of some countries in the region. For example, while Nicaragua maintains about 61,800 "real" troops (not counting civilian reserves), El Salvador has 51,500 and Guatemala 51,600. The differences are inconsequential.

Nicaragua leads the field in tank strength. The Nicaraguan army owns a fleet of 55 Soviet-made T-54 and T-55 medium tanks for use on flat terrain (that's an important fact, given the mountainous nature of the region). El Salvador operates 12 AMX-13 light tanks and 48 armored troop carriers.

But Nicaragua's air force pales in comparison to its northern neighbors. Its collection of two dozen aircraft — 10 of which can be described as combat aircraft — dates back to Somoza. Meanwhile, Honduras boasts 12 French-built supersonic fighters; the Salvadoran air force, which has 2,350 men, is equipped with 41 combat planes and 63 combat helicopters.

U.S. estimates of the number of Cuban military advisers in Nicaragua hover around 3,000. The Nicaraguans say the figure is actually 250 and that most of its Cuban contingent is involved in human services and economic development. But even if the Sandinistas' estimates misrepresent reality, the Cuban issue can still be put into perspective. In Honduras, for example, the U.S. has stationed about 1,000 troops and trainers, ostensibly for ongoing military exercises. El Salvador is now home to 97 U.S. military personnel, including advisers; about 9,000 American troops are on duty in Panama.

"What any effort to calculate a military balance in Central America ignores is that no country in the region has the capacity to carry out a decisive, offensive campaign against any other nation by means of its armed forces," concludes the Council on Hemispheric Affairs. The Reagan administration, which prefers to live by the fiction of regional imbalance, is wont to ignore such findings.

Federal Intrusion

RALEIGH — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling in February has state and local officials extremely worried about federal meddling in local affairs.

On Feb. 19, the court ruled that workers for the San Antonio, Texas, bus system had to be paid according to federal regulations. The city had argued that labor rules for city employees should be formulated by local officials.

As with most high court rulings based on constitutional questions, the case of Garcia v. San Antonio Mass Transit has implications far beyond the obvious. Officials in North Carolina worry that the decision opens the way for the federal government to make all kinds of decisions previously reserved for the Legislature and local governing boards.

"We'll be a meaningless body if they keep taking authority away from us," said Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, chairman of the Senate Judiciary I Committee. "They've given more authority to the federal government and they're doing away with the authority of state and local governments."

At issue, says Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, chairman of the House Judiciary I Committee, is the 10th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. That amendment gives to the states all authority which the Constitution does not explicitly give to the federal government. For two centuries, the 10th Amendment has defined the lines of authority.

"What we're seeing with this court decision," Miller said, "is the erosion of the 10th Amendment as a matter of constitutional law ... If the court can say that the Congress can set the minimum wage for a garbage collector then where do the states have final statutory authority?"

Lawyers like Barnes and Miller often scream and wail over stuff that doesn't really affect real people. But in this case, the Supreme Court decision has the potential of entering everybody's life.

Fred Baggett, general counsel for the N.C. League of Municipalities, says the league is concerned by the decision. He thinks Congress could soon be mandating national policies that would run counter to local practice. For example, North Carolina law prohibits municipalities from collective bargaining with labor unions. Baggett says Congress could now force all local governments to deal with labor unions and effectively repeal the North Carolina law.

Miller says the ramifications on the Legislature could be immense. For example, Congress wants a national drinking age of 21. Congress just can't order that so it is using the threat of reduced federal highway funds to coerce states into compliance. Miller says that under this latest ruling, the Congress wouldn't have to coerce. It would simply raise the drinking age.

Miller sees almost no end to the kind of federal mandates which could follow from the decision. There could be national prison sentence laws, a national death penalty law, a national seat belt law, national laws for the handling of hazardous wastes that don't leave a state's borders.

To the editor:

I've received a request for financial support for the National Conservative Foundation's "Media Fairness Campaign." The letter presents conservatives as being "practically defenseless" in the face of "network and newspaper liberals ... united against President Reagan's policies." I wonder how it was that Jimmy Carter lost his re-election campaign and Ronald Reagan is in the White House for a second term? If conservatives are defenseless, it hasn't been revealed at the polls.

I believe the media, like all of us, do reflect bias from time to time, especially the printed media. However, I totally reject the notion that any one party of philosophical view "controls" the media. Money, more than anything else, seems to influence "media" and that largely via paid advertisements.

Just as we do not need a state-controlled church or a church-controlled state, we do not need the news media "controlled" by any party or philosophy, whether liberal or conservative (What those terms really mean totally escapes me.)

I hope "freedom of the press" is not up for grabs.

To the editor:

Concerning state-supported college admission changes: I would suggest in fairness to all and the best interests of all, Mr. Friday, Mr. Poulton, Mr. Fordham, Mr. Fearn and others in college entrance policy-making positions not limit their freshman entrance requirements to only potential athletes. The thinking is good. Also, it should be worded to include all peoples — black, white, foreign and whoever. Admission of foreign people as students should require them to be English-speaking or require them to pass English-speaking classes within nine months of entering.

And, yes, I'm glad Clemson is in South Carolina, not North Carolina.

Strength For Today

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, 'I have no pleasure in them ...'"

Thus begins the last chapter of the Book of Ecclesiastes. Many have judged the writer of this Book to be a cynic. The truth is that he was a most admirable realist. He saw many things in human life to love and admire and many things to criticize and denounce.

The truly religious man is always realistic. He is conscious of the sin and injustice which characterize human life. But he believes in the power and over-arching love of God, no matter how badly his own fortunes go. No matter how much he has to take of pain, disappointment, frustration, and the hateful treatment by hateful men, nevertheless, his faith remains firm in God.

"Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

House Democrats Divided On Supporting MX Missile

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the eve of U.S. Soviet arms talks in Geneva, key House Democrats are split over whether to vote new money for the MX missile that President Reagan says is essential for success in the negotiations.

In the Senate, assistant Republican leader Ted Stevens of Alaska says he believes at least 55 of 100 senators eventually will decide to vote in favor of continuing MX production, largely because of concerns that doing otherwise would hurt the U.S. negotiating position at Geneva.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said on Thursday at least 200 House Democrats are prepared to vote to kill MX funds.

A "no" vote by either House would cut off MX production funds.

The Democrat-controlled House is expected to vote around March 25. If all 433 seated members of the House voted, it would take 217 votes to approve or defeat the proposal.

There are 251 Democrats in the House and 182 Republicans.

O'Neill is attempting to persuade another influential Democrat, Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin of Wisconsin, to abandon his previous support for the missile system.

Aspin is reported by House sources to have told O'Neill privately he is prepared to vote in favor of the MX although Aspin's office says his public stance is that he has yet to make up his mind.

O'Neill said that while he has not given up hope of winning Aspin's vote, Aspin so far has left his intentions "clouded."

"I am still working on it," O'Neill said.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that five lawmakers — including Aspin — have agreed on a broad strategy linking the future of Reagan's nuclear weapons program to signs of American "good faith" at the arms control talks in Geneva.

The lawmakers have agreed to support 21 MX missiles, but they also have agreed to press for slowing the production rate of the MX and possibly cutting back the planned deployment of 100 MX missiles, the newspaper said.

Others in the group are Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.; Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn.; Rep. Norman D. Dicks, D-Wash., and Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine.

The key factor in the decision to be made by the House and Senate remains the reopening of U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva on March 12.

Mayors Balk At Budget Plans For Urban Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — From health care to housing, from transportation to sanitation, the nation's cities are unanimous in condemning President Reagan's 1986 budget proposal as crippling to urban America.

A survey released Thursday by the U.S. Conference of Mayors said the president's reduced aid to local governments will "eliminate or sharply reduce nearly every federal urban program of significant benefit to cities."

The report said Reagan's $974 billion budget proposal for 1986 will cut grants to cities and states by $20 billion, an 18 percent decrease.

Dismayed by the findings, New Orleans Mayor Ernest Morial, president of the group, and several other mayors, scheduled a news conference in Chicago today to discuss the report, titled "The Impact on America's Cities of the Administration's Federal Budget for Fiscal Year 1986."

Among his group's conclusions: — "Despite increasing numbers of hungry and homeless citizens, and despite increasing demand for emergency human services, there would be no funds to continue the emergency food and shelter programs."

— Elimination of the $4.6 billion General Revenue Sharing program "would trigger wide-ranging and disruptive cuts in the most basic public services, such as police and fire protection, and would force some local tax increases." Ninety-seven percent of the cities responding said they would have to reduce services, and 68 percent said they would need to increase local revenues.

— Low income and elderly citizens would be hard hit by cuts in federal housing assistance aid from nearly $11 billion this year to less than a half billion dollars next year.

— Public transit would be reduced by $2.75 billion, resulting in "service cuts and some shutdowns."

CITY DIRECTORY CENSUS TO BEGIN

Johnson Publishing Company survey workers are contacting local residents to obtain current information to update the next Greenville City Directory. Local people have been hired to conduct the survey. In most cases, the census will be conducted by telephone, however some residents may be contacted in the evening or in person at home. You will not be asked to buy anything.

- You will be asked:
- Husband and wife's names, occupations
 - Address and telephone number
 - Home ownership
 - Number in family

Businesses will be asked to provide the correct firm name, names of owners and officers, address, telephone number, nature and classification of business and number of local employees.

Information gathered in the survey is to be used in the next edition of the Greenville City Directory—a community reference book used by local businesses, governmental agencies and emergency services. Your cooperation with our survey workers will be appreciated.

Wallace Thanks Selma Marchers For Election Help

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Twenty years to the day after civil rights' "Bloody Sunday," Gov. George C. Wallace told recreators of the historic Selma march that he credited blacks for his unprecedented re-election.

About 2,000 marchers, joined by nearly 800 people at the Capitol, on Thursday completed the final leg of the commemorative journey tracing the 1965 Selma-to-Montgomery voting rights trek.

Wallace invited leaders into his office and publicly thanked blacks for their crucial support in his 1982 election to an unprecedented fourth term.

March organizer Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, reminded Wallace that in 1965 he refused to meet with The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. or his aides following the march.

"That's not true," Wallace said. "I met with you."

"No," said Lowery, "that was five days later," outside the national spotlight. "We're glad 20 years later we don't have any difficulty meeting you."

"I'm very thankful to the black people of Alabama for making it possible for me to do the only thing I know how to do — be governor of Alabama," Wallace said.

Thursday's celebration occurred 20 years to the day after "Bloody Sunday," when a group of about 600 blacks were clubbed by state troopers and deputies when they crossed the Edmund Pettus Bridge at Selma. The violence inspired the second march, led by King, that went all the way to Montgomery.

The 1965 march prompted Congress to pass the Voting Rights Act which banned tactics that denied the ballot to millions of southern blacks.

Wallace said race relations have improved dramatically the past two decades but "we always have room for improvement. We will work toward that end."

Coretta Scott King, King's widow, said Thursday, "We've learned that freedom is not really free. We have to fight to maintain our freedom and it has to be won in every generation."

During a rally on the Capitol steps, Lowery said the five-day march from Selma was an indication of the progress blacks have made, but he said two decades have not erased racism.

He criticized Reagan administration policies and called for a nationwide movement to prevent "a California cowboy from turning the clock back on racial justice."

The marchers, whose numbers shrank to about 80 at times during the trek from Selma but swelled during the symbolic final walk to the Capitol, also were joined by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the former King lieutenant who ran for president in the Democratic primaries last year.

Jackson said the focus of the civil rights movement has shifted to economics, with poverty striking whites as well as blacks.

Some of the crowd carried American flags and sang "We Shall Overcome" and other civil rights songs.

Among the signs was one that read: "20 Years Later, The Unfinished Task." Another said: "The Pain Is Gone, But the Scars Still Remain."

WALLACE AND MARCHERS — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace met Thursday with leaders of the 10th anniversary re-enactment of the 1965 Selma to Montgomery march. In 1965, he refused to meet with the march leaders until five days later. With Wallace

Thursday were, to his right, the Rev. Joseph Lowery and his wife, and to Wallace's left, Atlanta City Councilman John Lewis and the Rev. Jesse Jackson. (AP Laserphoto)

Surgeon Says Patient's Survival 'A Long Shot'

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An auto mechanic who was kept alive with an unapproved, manmade heart until he underwent his second human heart transplant was in critical condition today, and doctors said he had only "a long shot" chance for survival.

After a human heart was put in Thomas Creighton's chest Thursday, his lungs were full of fluid that pressured the organ and forced it to work harder, said Dr. Jack Copeland.

Creighton, a 33-year-old divorced father of two, was kept alive by the Phoenix Heart for 11 hours Wednesday at the University of Arizona Medical Center.

Creighton's kidney functions and other aspects of his overall condition showed signs of improvement while he was on the artificial heart, Copeland said.

But at an evening news briefing Thursday, Copeland said it would be "a long shot to have him survive."

"It remains to be seen how much more recovery he will make,"

Copeland said. "We are still looking at an unlikely event that he should make a full recovery. ... The chances are probably less than 25 percent."

Creighton was the first human to undergo implantation of the Phoenix

Heart and at least the fourth person to receive an implant of a temporary artificial heart. His first human heart transplant failed Tuesday.

"We know nothing about the heart at all," said spokesman Dave Duarte in Washington.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime will bring many changes in relationships unless one is prepared to accept different conditions and go along with them in a harmonious fashion.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to cooperate with each one of your partners and make allowance for their individual needs in this modern world.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have many duties to perform which are radically different from each other, so study the solution to each well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to improve your fun activities so they work out more smoothly and give you greatest satisfaction. Be discreet.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Forget that moodiness and show kin that you are dependable and thoughtful of their needs.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Perk up your thinking when you are with friends who are dynamic and you can easily hold your own with them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure you get the right price for any improvements you want to make on your property. Be sure to study periodicals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study into new ways of improving your appearance and be more charming. Then later get out socially and make a good impression.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into personal problems that need your attention and solve them quickly and accurately. Do not neglect to get shopping done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to choose the right friends who can assist you to gain a cherished wish. Then show your gratitude.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you handle financial affairs wisely so that you do not jeopardize your credit in any way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can get good ideas today that will help you to expand, but separate the wheat from the chaff, as it were.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Consult with an expert if you want to make your environment more charming and know the right things to do.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will want to cooperate with others and be of help, but should be more discriminatory, otherwise your progeny could get into trouble and lose out where the self is concerned. Teach to adhere to the finest types of persons who will appreciate the fine artistic sense in this nature.

Flu Outbreak Winding Down

ATLANTA (AP) — Scientists at the national Centers for Disease Control see several signs that the 1984-85 flu season is winding down, but flu still may be killing people at the highest rate in nine years.

The CDC, in its weekly report, said Thursday that its reporting doctors saw an average of eight suspected flu cases last week, down from nine the week before and 11 five weeks ago. Meanwhile, the number of states with flu outbreaks continues to drop.

But one measure of the severity of the flu season — the percentage of deaths which are caused by flu or pneumonia — still indicates the harshness of the current flu season.

Last week, 7.3 percent of the 14,262 deaths reported to the CDC from 121 cities were caused by pneumonia and flu, a level the same as a week earlier and significantly higher than the usual 5 percent.

That 7.3 percent is the highest level of flu and pneumonia deaths since early 1976, said CDC flu specialist Karl Kappus. Most of those deaths were from pneumonia, not flu, "but over the years, when they (the numbers) have been elevated like this, it's almost always correlated with influenza season," he said.

The flu and pneumonia death figures, reported each week by CDC scientists, usually lag two weeks or more behind other flu statistics reports and are not necessarily a "leading indicator" of how serious the flu season is, Kappus said.

Nine states — Alaska, Hawaii, Montana, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania,

Virginia and Wisconsin — and the District of Columbia reported "widespread" flu outbreaks last week, or outbreaks in areas containing at least half the population. Twelve states reported less serious "regional" outbreaks, the CDC said.

The week before, 26 states reported widespread or regional outbreaks.

Warships Sail, Stranding Sailors

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Two U.S. warships, the Eisenhower and the Mississippi, abruptly left Mallorca island three days before their official liberty was to end, leaving about 100 crew members stranded, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the ships departed due to "a change in program." He refused to elaborate.

The spokesman said the crew members were left behind late Thursday when the aircraft carrier Eisenhower and the guided missile cruiser Mississippi set sail from the Balearic island in the Mediterranean.

The embassy spokesman, who cannot be identified by name under embassy rules, said he did not know where the ships were heading.

Mallorca, a part of Spain, is a favorite rest and recreation spot for ships of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Dan Bauer said he was informed the Eisenhower was no longer in port and had left some crewmen on shore. He said he had no numbers.

He said the ship's destination was in the western Mediterranean. He said he had no information about the Mississippi.

CBS Asks Court To Dismiss Order

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS Inc. has filed papers in court accusing North Carolina newspaper publisher Hoover Adams of trying to obtain a list of its shareholders for "improper purposes."

CBS lawyer Paul Dodyk charged Thursday that Adams is acting on behalf of Fairness in Media, a Raleigh, N.C.-based conservative advocacy group closely linked to U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. The group's mailing address in Raleigh is the same as the Helms for Senate Committee and Citizens for Reagan (N.C.), Dodyk said.

CBS, in papers filed in Manhattan's State Supreme Court, also suggested the state court had no jurisdiction since the matter is already the subject of a federal court action.

The CBS papers were in opposition to a show-cause order Adams obtained Feb. 22 from Justice Stanley Parness in Manhattan. The order directed CBS to explain why the company should not have to divulge the shareholder list.

Dodyk told Justice Elliott Wilk he should dismiss the Adams petition because "the matter is the subject of a prior and far broader action pending in U.S. District Court in Manhattan."

CBS quoted Adams' SEC papers as saying he "was approached Jan. 30, 1985, by Thomas F. Ellis, a member of Fairness in Media, about considering a request (in Adams' name) of a shareholders list of (CBS) should such a request become necessary."

Dodyk said CBS received the request for the list Feb. 8 and filed a federal suit Feb. 14, complaining that Adams and his group:

—Violated federal securities laws by disseminating false and misleading statements in proxy solicitation materials;

—Made material misstatements in connection with the purchase and sale of a security;

—Have no right to inspect the shareholder list pursuant to the Business Corporation Law.

Adams also filed a Schedule 14B document with the federal Securities and Exchange Commission, as required by law, reporting his intent to engage in a proxy fight for control of CBS stock.

Dodyk said Adams was acting as "a front" for Fairness in Media to get the CBS shareholder list for the group's "national crusade" against CBS and in the solicitation of political contributions.

"This is a palpably improper purpose for seeking access to the list," Dodyk said. "There is no nexus between this campaign and the business interests of CBS."

Adams, owner and publisher of the Daily Record of Dunn, N.C., and co-owner of two other newspapers in that state, admitted in court papers that he was acting for Ellis' group. "I support Fairness in Media's objectives of effecting a change in control of CBS Inc."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, showing signs of stabilizing after its recent decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up 1.55 to 1,273.08 in the first half hour.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said rising interest rates have been the main force pushing stock prices lower in recent days. Today, however, rates turned sharply lower in the bond and short-term money markets.

Rates on short-term Treasury bills fell about a quarter of a percentage point. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, rose more than $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

Brokers also said some traders were shopping for "bargains" in the stock market, with the Dow Jones industrial average having closed Thursday at a six-week low.

In the economic news, the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate declined 0.1 percent in February, to 7.3 percent. A drop had been widely expected on Wall Street.

Phillips Petroleum led the active list in the early going, unchanged at 49 1/2 in trading that included a 250,000-share block at that price.

The company recently reached a settlement with a group led by financier Carl Icahn, averting a takeover bid.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.84 to 1,271.53.

Declines outpaced advances by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 112.10 million shares, against 116.94 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .57 to 104.07. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .87 at 226.92.

Rose squad, said many of the rules are good. "The outlawing of knee drops is especially good. We had someone last year who had a knee injury and couldn't do them anyway," he said.

The cheerleading squad at D.H. Conley feels similarly. Most of the girls agreed that stunts such as pyramids could be dangerous, but argued that with spotters, mats and careful practice, they should be allowed to perform pyramids at competitions. Michelle Deal, a junior at Conley said it was discouraging to the cheerleading team to be forbidden to form pyramids because "they have crowd appeal. Pyramids show our squad's strength and hard work."

Lucretia West, also a junior at Conley, said that pyramids should not be considered dangerous compared to other stunts that are allowed in the Big East Conference ruling. "If you can perform pyramids and other stunts safely, have trust in your teammates, and know exactly what you're doing, then you should be allowed to do these stunts," she said.

According to Miss West and others on the squad, they are over-protected because they are girls. "Football and basketball players are injured a lot, but they're not going to ban tackles or anything like that. They should consider cheerleading as a sport, just like any other — and it is," Miss West said.

Lillian Outterbridge, sponsor of the cheerleading squad at D.H. Conley, said that no matter how much practice, or how perfectly the girls can perform a stunt, something can always go wrong. "The possibility of something happening in this stunt is a reality just as it is in any situation," she said. "We go over and over the stunts that we are allowed to perform, but I never really feel comfortable with them."

Ms. Outterbridge said that limitations on the height of pyramids and safety precautions such as the use of spotters and mats are good. She said that banning the formation of pyramids, though, should only be during the school year and during school functions so that the squad can compete with other squads who are permitted to form pyramids.

successful, he must obtain proficiency in both areas."

"To be a student athlete requires a very high degree of responsibility," West said. In addition to responsibilities at home and at practice, an athlete is "responsible for maintaining an appropriate academic average and spending whatever amount of effort or however many hours of study might be required to maintain that average," he added.

In addition, a student athlete is responsible for "completing assigned work and projects" and abiding by "the rules and guidelines established by the school for academic performance," West said. "Above all else you are responsible to yourself."

West said intelligence is another ingredient for success. "Again, it is extremely rare to find an individual who is so naturally gifted, and lucky enough to remain healthy, to successfully support himself on sports alone," he said. "Even some who can, choose to do other things."

Intelligence means "pride in studying, pride in knowledge, and pride in placing one's self in a position to have a choice," West added.

Determination means setting a goal and working toward it, West told students, and that attribute is necessary in success. "Things that come too easily are often taken for granted but those things you have to work really hard for are more appreciated and more valued in the end," he said, whether it be grades or a starting position.

The final ingredient for success is enthusiasm, West said. "An enthusiastic approach to studies, an enthusiastic approach to sports and, in general, an enthusiastic approach to life," West said, are essential.

"What more could I wish for each of you than to achieve real pride in yourself by attaining these attributes and applying them to all the goals you set for yourself both now and in the future," West concluded.

Robinson, Navy Sink Pirate Hopes

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sport Editor
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — David Robinson came to the U.S. Naval Academy as a 6-7 rookie with only two years of high school experience behind him a year ago and promptly won Rookie of the Year honors.

As a sophomore, he's grown up a bit — to 6-11, and he's just been named the ECAC-South's player of the year.

Thursday afternoon, in the opening round of the league's tournament, he showed just why he gained those honors.

Against East Carolina's Pirates, Robinson was simply awesome. He attempted 12 shots and hit on each of them — a tournament record 12-of-12. He added nine of 13 free throws and jerked away a game-high 11 rebounds to finish with 33 points.

With him, Navy powered its way to a 94-73 victory over the eighth-place Pirates. Without him, the pesky Pirates just might have been able to pull off the upset.

But as it was, Robinson proved to be just too much for the Pirates, who end their 1984-85 season with a 7-21 record.

In other opening round action, Richmond, the tournament's No. 2 seed, disposed of American University 74-68. William & Mary's host Indians ousted James Madison 68-61 and George Mason edged North Carolina-Wilmington 70-67.

Tonight's semifinal action sends Navy against William & Mary and Richmond against George Mason. The championship game will be at 4 p.m. Saturday.

The contest started out like a slaughter and suddenly turned into a tight game as the Pirates refused to lie down and roll over. Navy, in the opening six minutes stormed out to a 20-4 lead, then suddenly found the Pirates back in the action, having three opportunities to cut the lead to as little as one point.

For Navy Coach Paul Evans, the explanation of it was simple. "We hit a lot of early baskets and they didn't. We got some deep rebounds and got the break going. But once they started to hit, we obviously weren't getting those rebounds, and they were able to come back on us."

For Coach Charlie Harrison of East Carolina, the game plan was to try and stop Robinson and to work the boards as best the Pirates could against the lanky sophomore and Vernon Butler, his junior front-court mate.

"I thought we did as best we could on the boards," Harrison said. The Pirates were outrebounded, but only 35-31.

"But we knew that we couldn't match them inside on offense," Harrison added. "Robinson and Butler compliment each other so well. And, too, when you shoot like Robinson — and he shot right over our people — it gives you another dimension."

The Pirates played behind Robinson most of the time, and sagged someone back on him each time the ball came to his side of the court. That frustrated the sophomore in the first half to some extent, despite a 5-for-5 effort.

"I thought our kids played great in the second half," Evans said. "We used a triangle and two on (Curt) Vanderhorst and (William) Grady to try and cut them down. David had better concentration and he went to the ball better. We're a role team and everyone played their role well."

Despite the defense, Vanderhorst was able to work well, scoring a team high 24 points for the Pirates. Grady, quickly in foul trouble, played only 22 minutes, but Keith Sledge, who came in for him, canned 12 points on six of nine shots.

After the two teams swapped points their first time up and down the floor, Navy ran off 14 straight points before Herb Dixon drove in for a layup with 14:41 left. Then, Navy added four more before Vanderhorst hit his first basket of the afternoon. By then, however, Navy held a 20-4 lead.

And while it might have been seemingly over then, the Pirates suddenly came to life. They stole the ball, forced turnovers, and got some key rebounds. Dixon keyed a five-point surge and then three different players hit on a six-point run that cut the lead back to 30-21 with 9:22 remaining.

Another six point run, four of them by Vanderhorst, trimmed it to 31-27, and after Butler missed on the second of a two-shot foul, Sledge scored to cut the lead to 34-31.

But after getting the ball back, the Pirates missed on a chance to cut it to one, and later missed out on two other chances to do the same. Navy, meanwhile, scored four straight for a 42-35 lead, but Peter Dam threw back a missed shot at the horn to cut it to 42-37 at intermission.

Cockrell's Homer Allows Pirates To Nip VCU, 5-4

Mark Cockrell blasted a game-winning homer in the bottom of the 10th inning to lead East Carolina to a 5-4 win over Virginia Commonwealth Thursday at Harrington Field, giving the Pirates their fifth win in as many outings in the young 1985 baseball season.

Mike Christopher went the distance on the mound for the Pirates, scattering seven hits and striking out 10 VCU batters.

Junior Winfred Johnson cracked his fourth homer of the season, a solo shot in the fifth, and finished with four hits in five trips to the plate.

East Carolina jumped on the Rams for three runs in the first inning, as Cockrell walked with the bases loaded and Jay McGraw delivered a two-run single. Johnson's homer gave the Pirates a 4-0 lead after five innings.

But Virginia Commonwealth battled back, as Chuck Downs ripped a two-run homer in the seventh and the Rams added a pair in the top of the ninth to send the game to extra innings.

Cockrell watched a pair of balls delivered by losing pitcher Mike Fitzgerald, then sent the ball over the fence in left to end the game.

The Pirates hosts North Carolina State today at 3 p.m. and Fairfield Sunday at 2 p.m.

Two Pirates Swim To Wins

CLEVELAND — East Carolina's Bruce Brockschmidt and Kevin Kaut each won first places in the first day's competition in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships, which got underway yesterday at Cleveland State University.

Three individual events were held, with the Pirates, in third place in the team standings, winning two of them. In all, they placed in each of the five events held.

Pittsburgh led the field after the first day with 246 points while West Virginia was second with 209. ECU had 142 while St. Bonaventure was fourth with 131 and Marshall was fifth with 116. A total of ten schools are in competition.

Brockschmidt took the title in the 200-yard individual medley, winning in 1:52.7, clipping over two seconds off the ECU varsity record. Chris Pittelli was fifth in the event in 1:54.9.

Kaut won the 50-yard freestyle in 20.97. Two other Pirates also scored points in the event. Jeff Brown was 16th in 22.1 while Ronald Fleming was 18th in 22.2.

In the 500-yard freestyle, ECU placed three swimmers. Chemma Laranaga was 13th in 4:38.5, Andy Cook was 14th in 4:38.7 and Stratton Smith was 16th in 4:43.5.

Scott Eagle took seventh place in the one-meter diving with 441 points, while Paul Durkin was 15th with 361 points.

The 400-yard medley relay team of Kevin Hilalogo, Lee Hicks, Brockschmidt and Kaut was fourth with a time of 3:29.4.

The meet continues Friday and Saturday.

Kirkland And Turner Lead Rose Past Eastern Wayne

Doyle Kirkland doubled in the game-winning run in the bottom of the first and Les Turner drove in a pair of runs with a double as the Rose Rampants posted seven runs in the first and held off Eastern Wayne 8-6 Thursday in 4-A non-conference high school baseball at Guy Smith Stadium.

Joey Hallow added two hits including an RBI double, while Larke Wetherington posted two singles.

The Rampants jumped on Eastern Wayne early, as Tyrone Jones led off with a single in the bottom of the first and Kirkland doubled him in. Winning pitcher Eric Jarman followed with a single, and Steve Wall reached first on an error to load the bases. Robbie Ehrman lofted a sacrifice fly to right, driving in Kirkland for a 2-0 lead.

Turner plated Jarman and Wall with his double, and Hallow doubled in Turner. Tony Taylor ripped double to drive in Hallow, and Wetherington capped the rally with a single to drive in Taylor.

George Mason ripped a three-run homer in the top of the third to trim the margin to 7-3, but Rose added another run in the bottom of the frame.

Wetherington singled, stole second and later scored on a single by Kirkland for the final Rampant total.

Eastern Wayne added one run in the sixth and two more in the seventh before Gary Scott closed the game on the mound for Rose.

Rose is now 2-0 on the season and hosts Greene Central Tuesday.

Vikes Dump Cougars; Chargers Win

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley scored four times in the bottom of the sixth inning and gained a 10-6 baseball victory over SouthWest Edgecombe High School Thursday afternoon.

The Cougars scored first, getting a run in the first. Andy Varnell walked and was sacrificed up. He scored on Mark Pittman's single.

Conley came back with four in the second for a 4-1 lead. Shane Adams walked as did Amzie Hofner. Mike Elks singled, loading the bases. A grounder by Martin Anderson forced Adams at the plate. Steve Mills then singled in Hofner and Elks and Todd Cochran tripled, scoring Anderson and Mills.

The Vikings added one in the third and another in the fourth, only to see SouthWest rally for one in the fourth and three in the fifth to tie it at 6-6.

Conley then scored four times in the bottom of the sixth to claim the win. Anderson reached on an error and Mills was also safe on a misplay. Cochran squeezed Anderson over with the tie-breaking run and Fred Bryant singled in Mills. Courtesy runner Jody Vines stole second and scored on Lee Hardee's single. Randy Mills singled and stole up, with Hardee scoring on Shane Adams' ground out.

Hardee led Conley with three hits while Cochran, Bryant and Adams each had two. Mark Pittman led SouthWest with three hits, one of them a two-run homer.

Conley is now 2-0, and will host Ayden-Grifton on Tuesday.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central and Goldsboro battled to a 3-3 tie in a baseball game called because of darkness after seven innings.

Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum said that the tie would probably stand and would not be broken at a later date.

Greene Central struck first, getting a run in the bottom of the first. Michael Warren walked, stole second and moved to third on a passed ball. He scored when a pickoff attempt at first was misplayed.

Goldsboro came back with one in the top of the second. Darryl Pope singled, moved up on a wild pitch and an out and scored on Eric Baldwin's sacrifice fly.

Greene Central went back up, 2-1, in the fourth, only to see Goldsboro score twice for a 3-2 lead in the top of the fifth.

In the bottom of the fifth, the Rams tied it up once more. David Collins walked and stole second. After Adrian Smith walked, Stacy Chase reached on an error, scoring Collins with the tying run.

Neither team scored again. No one on either team had more than one hit.

The Rams, now 0-1-1, play host to North Lenoir on Saturday at 2 p.m.

BETHEL — The Roanoke Redskins utilized a pair of North Pitt errors in the top of the fourth and scored six runs to insure an 11-6 victory Thursday in high school baseball action.

Mike Griffin picked up the victory on the mound for the Redskins.

Roanoke picked up two runs in the first as Ricky Taylor opened the game with a single and Jeff Morning walked. Charles Craft singled in Taylor, and Morning later scored on an error.

The Redskins posted two runs in the second, then added six in the fourth to put the game out of reach.

But North Pitt cranked up its offense in the fourth, posting six runs capped by a three-run double by Scott Rawls. Neal Everett opened the rally with a single, John Hobbs walked and Thomas Wright singled in Everett. Alfred Braxton drove in Hobbs with a fielder's choice, and Lee Eakes later drove in Braxton on a fielder's choice.

Jeff Lloyd singled while Greg Briley and Jarvis Massenburg walked to set up Rawls' double.

Craft led the Redskins with three hits, while Taylor and Stacy Wallace had two each.

North Pitt falls to 0-2 on the season.

BEAR GRASS — Troy Raynor belted a two-run homer in the fifth to put Williamston ahead to stay, as the Tigers pounded Bear Grass 15-6 Thursday in high school baseball action.

Raynor led the Tigers with four hits, while Les Thomas, Greg Hardison and Mike Leggett had two each.

Lawrence Watson cracked a two-run homer in the third and led the Bears with three hits. Billy Fulford added three singles, while Robbie Bowen and Bobby Cherry added two each.

Bear Grass took a 1-0 lead in the first, but Williamston posted three runs in the top of the second. The Bears roared back with three in the third for a 4-3 lead, but the Tigers plated four in the fifth and six in the sixth to put the game out of reach.

LITTLEFIELD — Shannon Peele tripled in three runs to cap a six-run fourth inning and Terry Garrett fired a four hitter as the Ayden-Grifton Chargers pounded Kinston 13-1 Thursday in high school baseball.

Peele led the Chargers with three hits in four trips to the plate, while Wesley Hardee and Tony McLawhorn each went 2-4.

Hardee ripped a leadoff homer in the bottom of the first to open the offense for the Chargers, but Kinston came back with a run in the top of the fourth to even the score.

In the bottom of the fourth,

McLawhorn led off with a single, and courtesy runner Jesse Hooker stole second and went to third on a throwing error. Curt Tucker walked and stole second, and Garrett walked to fill the bases.

Hardee drew a base on balls to force in one run, and Peele later cleared the bases. Peele was caught in a rundown after crossing second but slid under the tag at third. Eddie Brown's fielder's choice drove in Peele to end the rally.

Ayden-Grifton added six more in the fifth inning to put the game out of reach.

"Terry Garrett pitched kind of ballgame a coach likes to see," Ayden-Grifton Coach Chris Ross said. "He only struck out one, but he only walked one and gave up four hits.

"He kept ball down low in the strike zone. They hit it, and our infield backed him up. I couldn't have asked for anything more."

Ayden-Grifton, now 2-0 on the season, travels to intra-county rival D.H. Conley Tuesday.

Rampettes Down Warriors, North Pitt Tops Rosewood

Rose High School's girls' softball team won its opening game of the year yesterday, downing Eastern Wayne, 5-4.

All five Rampette runs came in the fifth inning. Eastern Wayne had scored single runs in the first, third and fourth inning for a 3-0 lead.

Amanda Smith led off the fifth for Rose, reaching on an error. Casey Drewery single and Vicki Parrott reached on a fielder's choice that erased Smith. Cheryl Clark reached on an error and Renee Murray singled in Drewery. Lisa Harkley and Susan Tadlock both singled, scoring Parrott and Clark to tie it at 3-3. Melissa Stanley's grounder got Murray at the plate, but Tammy Newton reached on an error, scoring boty Harkley and Tadlock.

Eastern closed it back to one with a run in the top of the seventh.

Parrott led the Rose hitting with three, while Tadlock and Drewery each had two. Price, Rue and Gardner each had two for Eastern.

Rose, 1-0, travels to Greene Central on Tuesday.

Hoyas Pound Connecticut, Face Syracuse Orangemen

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Georgetown may be scary, but its next opponent isn't too scared. Yet.

The No. 1 Hoyas continued their recent rampage Thursday by blitzing Connecticut 93-62 in a Big East Conference tournament quarterfinal game.

That victory, which equaled the biggest rout in the six-year history of the tournament, came after the defending NCAA champions finished the regular season by destroying then-No. 1 St. John's and Syracuse.

The next stop for the Georgetown express will tonight in Big East semifinals against No. 13 Syracuse, a team the Hoyas romped past 90-63 last Sunday.

"It's scary, they're playing so well," Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim said after his Orangemen defeated Boston College 70-69 later Thursday. "I know we can play better than last time."

"We have to play a near-perfect game. We think we can do it."

Dom Perno, the Connecticut coach, was impressed with the Georgetown steam-roller.

"You probably saw the greatest team in the country," Perno said.

"They have the numbers and (Patrick) Ewing is unbelievable."

A few hours after Georgetown's easy triumph, No. 2 St. John's routed Providence 90-62 in another Big East quarterfinal. St. John's is the top seed in the tournament, having won the conference regular-season championship by one game over Georgetown.

Several other Top Twenty teams were in action, most of them in tournaments.

Fifth-ranked Memphis State beat Southern Mississippi 68-58 in the Metro Conference tournament; No. 11 Nevada-Las Vegas stopped Pacific 89-58 in the Pacific Coast Athletic

In the second half, the Pirates cut it back to 44-41 and again missed out on a chance to trim it to one.

But with 17:23 left, Harrison was whistled for a technical after protesting on a no-call. On the play, Grady had missed a shot, captured the rebound and went back up to shoot over Robinson, who snatched the ball away from him.

"That's my first technical of the year," Harrison said afterwards. "I thought Robinson fouled William, and I was just trying to protect my players. We were playing too hard to get no-calls like that."

The technical, however, helped Navy begin to pull away. After scoring four points off that they got back-to-back three-point plays by Butler and Robinson for a 56-46 lead.

After that, Navy steadily pulled away, stretching the lead to 18 at 70-52 near the midpoint of the half.

Late in the game, Robinson scored nine straight points as the lead climbed to 87-66.

"One of my assistants turned to me and said, 'Robinson's killing us!'" Harrison said with a grin. "I asked him what he wanted me to do, get a gun and shoot the —"

"No, really, Paul has done a great job at Navy. I wish I could coach a kid to grow six inches like he did."

Kyle Whitaker added 20 points for the Midshipmen while Butler had 16 and Cliff Rees had 14. Doug Wojcik also set a new tournament record of 14 assists in the game.

East Carolina, in addition to Vanderhorst's 24, got 18 from Dixon and 12 from Sledge.

Bowie To Play Hired Gunman

LONDON (AP) — Flamboyant rock star David Bowie, used to calling the shots in movies he directs, plays a hired gun in his latest big-screen foray, John Landis' "Into The Night."

Bowie, 38, said he agreed to take the bit part because "I'm a great admirer of Landis' movies. When he asked me to join some of his pals playing guest roles I was very flattered."

Landis, whose hits include "Trading Places" and "National Lampoon's Animal House," also has cast a string of fellow directors in walk-on parts in his new movie.

Sharp-eyed movie buffs may spot Roger Vadim and Paul Mazursky among Hollywood luminaries usually behind the cameras. Landis himself will make a brief appearance.

"Into The Night" stars Jeff Goldblum, who was in "The Big Chill," and Michelle Pfeiffer, who appeared in "Grease 2."

Living Cost

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The cost of living in Argentina rose 20.7 percent during February, and 803.9 percent in the year ending that month, the economy ministry said.

The government had no comment on the latest inflation figures. Inflation during January was 25.1 percent.

With a $48.4 billion foreign debt, Argentina has promised foreign creditors that the yearly inflation rate will be reduced to 300 percent by the end of September.

U.S. Prime-Time Soaps Big Hits With British Television Audience

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The trials and tribulations of the wealthy in Texas and Colorado may not appear to be sure-fire TV fodder for British audiences, but "Dallas" and "Dynasty" have picked up a big following here.

"Wealth, power, and sex is always a powerful formula," said David Platt, a senior programming assistant for the British Broadcasting Corp., the publicly financed organization that funds the BBC1 and BBC2 channels.

Platt said part of the popularity of ABC-TV's "Dynasty" was that it stars actress Joan Collins, who is British.

"Dallas" was first shown on the BBC in 1977, when "the whole idea of a glossy soap opera was new," Platt said. Its success contradicts traditional assumptions about the sorts of American shows that go over well in England.

"Usually, when an American show doesn't go here, it comes down to literary reasons," Platt said. "I remember someone saying that in America they make moving pictures and here they make talking pictures. "With soap operas and all that intrigue, the writing is not nearly so important," Platt continued.

But not all American shows make it to England.

"If the show is strictly about things like the Civil War or American ethnics or baseball, it's unlikely that we'll buy it," said Leslie Halliwell, a buyer for the advertising-funded Independent Television Network and for Channel 4, Britain's fourth — and newest — channel launched in 1982.

Halliwell goes to Los Angeles twice a year to purchase new American material for Britain. He primarily brings back action series, since Britain has so many comedies of its own. About 15 percent of the shows on British television are imported, he said in an interview.

Of the situation comedies that do make it here, the series considered commercially safer are aired over ITV and BBC1. The riskier imports — tried-and-true American sitcoms such as "Rhoda," "Maude" and "Alice" — go out over the more adventurous Channel 4 and BBC2.

'Dallas' Launching Mystery Contest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The cast of "Dallas" got together on the lawn in front of the South Fork ranch house, but there was no dirty dealing, intrigue or passion.

The people who make one of television's top-rated programs were toasting the launching of a book and contest that producers hope will get as much attention as the show's famous "Who shot J.R.?" cliff-hanger in 1980.

"Who Killed Jock Ewing?" is a mystery novel and contest with a first prize of $50,000 to the person who solves the case of the "Dallas" patriarch's disappearance nearly four years ago in a South American jungle.

"We think this is an exciting idea and that it is going to be a very popular book.

"Happy Days" bucked expectations by crossing the comedy barrier to "become part of the furniture" locally, said Halliwell. But the American favorite "Laverne & Shirley" has never been shown here. Neither has "Three's Company," which was based on a British original, "Man About the House."

Some American series actually do better in England than they do back home, encouraging American suppliers to continue filming an otherwise shaky prospect.

The series, "Fame," a show about teen-age show biz hopefuls at The High School of Performing Arts in New York, was continued by MGM partly on the strength of its foreign sales. The show, though canceled by NBC after the 1982-83 season, is still producing originals for syndicated distribution in the United States.

"Young people in Britain responded to that show biz dream which is very American, so that Americans might have been a bit biased about it," said Platt.

Halliwell spoke more cynically of the same show's appeal. He said the BBC scheduled "Fame" right after "Top of the Pops," a widely watched popular music show. "It was a whole evening appealing to teen-agers," he said, "but I don't know any adults who watched it."

Martin Says His Budget Treats Education Fairly

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Legislators who say Gov. Jim Martin's proposed budget ignores North Carolinians' desire for better education should remember that people also want tax relief, Martin says.
"You can't do everything," said Martin in his weekly news conference Thursday, adding that he wasn't surprised to hear complaints. "I can live with that. I've been around a few years."
Martin's plan for $1.28 billion in new expenditures, unveiled Monday night, has gotten a volley of criticism because it seeks only about half as much for education as former Gov. Jim Hunt recommended.
Hunt, a Democrat, asked for an additional $216.9 million for education for the first year of the biennium, while Martin seeks $76.2 million. For the second year, Hunt requested $216.9 million. Martin, a Republican, wants $108.8 million.

Martin would grant teachers a 5 percent pay increase, but hire fewer support personnel than Hunt, spend less on such initiatives as the basic education program and defer funding of projects including statewide implementation of a teacher career advancement program.
Martin noted, however, that under his budget 44 percent of the General Fund would go to education — 2 percent more than under Hunt's budget.
"I want people to keep in mind that if the Legislature agrees to all the appeals that are going to be made to add this, add that, add the other ... and prevent themselves from being able to act favorably on tax cuts, there are going to be a lot of other folks who are going to be unhappy," he said.

Martin wants to eliminate the inventory tax, the intangibles tax and the sales tax on food and medicine. He said the need to cut the tax on business inventories was demonstrated anew by last month's unemployment statistics, which show that 20 of the 28 North Carolina counties with double-digit jobless rates last month are rural, border counties.
Martin says the inventory tax encourages industries to settle across the border in neighboring states that don't levy it.
Legislative leaders also have grumbled that Martin submitted a new budget instead of amendments that would make apparent his desired cuts in Hunt's proposals.

Martin said he would resubmit the budget as a series of amendments to please lawmakers, dismissing the Democrats' complaints as "the fun and games of politics."

Senators Consider New Seat Belt Law

RALEIGH (AP) — People who don't wear seat belts are often guided by "myths," but it is not necessarily the function of government to change their minds, a Senate panel considering a mandatory seat belt law was told.
Donald Reinfurt of the Highway Safety Research Center in Chapel Hill told the Senate Judiciary I Committee Thursday that 15 percent of drivers use seat belts. He said the rest believe that "accidents only happen to other people," that people thrown from a car are more likely to survive or that someone trapped in a car by a seat belt might die in a fire.

Reinfurt said people thrown from a car are 25 times more likely to die than those who remain in the car and fires occur in only 0.5 percent of crashes.
"And you're more likely to be conscious and able to get out of the car if you're restrained with a seat belt," he added.
The bill introduced by Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston, drew comments ranging from personal observations of tragedy to concerns that government intervention might spill over into cigarette smoking.
"I knew it would be controversial," said Warren. "There's a lot of people, including me, that don't like to see government take a big-brother attitude and intervene in our daily lives."
"We could save over 400 lives a year in North Carolina alone by enacting mandatory seat belts," he added. "If I could be partially instrumental in saving one life ... then it's been worth it."
Steve Streater, a University of North Carolina punter paralyzed in a 1981 wreck shortly after signing with the Washington Redskins, also supported the bill.
"I did not have my seat belt on when I had my accident. I had a rising career and to be cut short is a long, hard road," said Streater, now state coordinator for Students Against Drunk Driving.

State May Build Bypass To Reopen I-40 To Tennessee

By The Associated Press
A plan is in the works to build a bypass around part Interstate 40 in Haywood County that was closed after a 100,000-ton rock slide blocked two tunnels connecting North Carolina and Tennessee.
The bypass over an existing service road could make it possible to reopen the major western North Carolina thoroughfare within three weeks, state Department of Transportation officials said.
Meanwhile, a driver whose rig tumbled 400 feet down a roadside ravine, said one of the alternate routes — U.S. 25-70 — being used because of the rock slide should be off-limits to truckers.

Several accidents — most of them minor — involving trucks have occurred on U.S. 25-70 and other alternate routes as drivers cope with twisting mountain roads. In the most serious, Wayne D. Lyman, 36, of China Grove, died when his truck was hit by another truck Wednesday on U.S. 23 in Tennessee.
Officials at first estimated that the eastbound tunnel on I-40 near Harmon's Den about five miles south of the Tennessee state line would be closed for at least six weeks and that the westbound tunnel would be closed for up to nine months.

But those estimates were revised when construction crews got the go-ahead Thursday to build the detour route around the Sterling Mountain tunnels. The detour would consist of paving a half-mile segment of a gravel access road at a cost of about $100,000.
The access road is perched on the edge of a cliff overlooking the Pigeon River gorge.
Transportation spokesman Jim Sughrue said the department hoped to complete the detour route at about the same time it expects to have the eastbound tunnel clear of debris.
He also said a plan was being considered to push the work on a 24-hour-a-day schedule when blasting operations to clear the rock slide are completed.

After the eastbound tunnel is clear and the detour road is finished, the DOT plans to reopen I-40, running westbound traffic through the open tunnel and eastbound traffic on the detour road.
Sughrue said the department has discarded an earlier plan to allow both eastbound and westbound traffic to travel through the tunnel because it would be too dangerous.
Michael Zimmer, 29, of Covington, Ohio, said U.S. 25-70 through Madison County is a "cowpath" from which tractor-trailers should be banned.
From his bed at Asheville's Memorial Mission Hospital Wednesday, Zimmer said he was "living proof" that the narrow, two-lane highway was unsafe for transfer trucks.
Zimmer's rig fell from U.S. 25-70, south of Hot Springs, early Wednesday morning after state highway officials routed traffic away from I-40. Zimmer injured a knee when he was thrown from the cab, while the crash scattered thousands of dollars worth of meat in the ravine.
Zimmer, who has been driving nine years, was unaware that part of I-40 was closed when he drove out of Chicago Tuesday with a full load of beef bound for a Raleigh warehouse.
He was almost to Newport, Tenn., on I-40 when he made a mandatory stop. He said he was told of the tunnel collapse and advised to take U.S. 25-70 instead.
"They said it was a straight shot and that it was dangerous, but if everyone took their time, they'd make it," he said.
He'd made it just past Hot Springs when he drove up to a line of southbound trucks at about 2 a.m. and had to stop on a steep grade.

State officials had not yet worked out a one-way truck traffic pattern on U.S. 19-23 and U.S. 25-70, and tractor-trailers were headed in both directions on each highway.

TIGHT SQUEEZE — Detours around an Interstate 40 tunnel blocked by a rockslide are making for tight squeezes for some vehicles. Above two trucks meet on U.S. 25-70 about 10 miles from Hot Springs. State officials may build a bypass around the tunnel to reopen I-40. (AP Laserphoto)

Church Schools Oppose Changes

RALEIGH (AP) — A campaign slogan used in the fall election — "Where do you stand, Jim?" — has been revived by church leaders who want Gov. Jim Martin to fight a bill that would toughen day-care regulations.
"I have taken a stand on some aspects of day care, not all," said Martin. "I think you can expect I'll take a stand on ... whatever part of it ... they want me to take a stand on."
He said he wouldn't speak out until he had studied the issue further.
"Less than two months into the Martin administration we're losing liberty piece by piece and he is silent," said Lamarr Mooneyham, president of the Moral Majority in North Carolina.
The New Right organization has asked 21,000 of its supporters to send Martin postcards asking that he speak against proposed standards that some fear would impinge on religious freedom.
Martin said in his weekly news conference Thursday that the cards were coming in, and that he understood they contained the "where do you stand" slogan Helms used in his successful re-election bid against former Gov. Jim Hunt.
Jack Hawke, Martin's special assistant for policy, said the governor couldn't stop the day-care legislation regardless of his feelings because he has no veto power.
Of the 2,500 day-care centers in North Carolina, about 400 are church-related. Although exempted from standard licensing requirements, about 375 have obtained licenses voluntarily. Those centers using their exemption are required to meet minimum standards.
But like Mooneyham, who sees a "hidden agenda" in the new proposals, some church members say they threaten closely held values and could force them under an ever-widening regulatory umbrella.
"Legislators need to understand that church day care is different from private and certainly public day care," said Thomas Strickland, a Goldsboro lawyer who represents the North Carolina Association of Christian Schools. "Day care is a ministry of the church the same as Sunday school is and the same as preaching is."
Although the groups Strickland represents don't object to all the day care proposals, he said they oppose many, including one that would require more staff training. Strickland said that could erode a church's discretion to hire workers whose beliefs and values are more compatible to its needs than is formal training.

Another issue is discipline. Last month, a rule approved by the Day Care Licensing Commission took effect that forbids corporal punishment at day-care centers, even if sanctioned by parents.
"We always have to revert to the higher power when legislators make rulings that are contrary to the Word of God," said Mooneyham.

Mergers Cut School Units

RALEIGH (AP) — More than 30 city school units in North Carolina have merged with their host counties since 1960, leaving the state with 140 school systems, shows a report released this week.

School mergers to become effective in Cumberland County in July and Pitt County in July 1986 will leave North Carolina with 40 chartered school districts.

State Superintendent A. Craig Phillips said Wednesday that city schools originally were chartered largely because parents in urban areas generally had higher expectations for their children and were willing to tax themselves to provide "better schools."

"Through the years, however, citizens in rural areas have demanded more and more of their schools to the point that there is little difference in the expectations of urban parents and parents in rural areas where small family farms previously dominated the economy," Phillips said at a meeting of the state Board of Education.

City school systems also have experienced a faster rate of decline in student population than county systems. Eight chartered city districts now have less than 2,000 students, which typically results in high schools of less than 600 students.

"Many authorities consider a high school with fewer than 600 students too small to offer a comprehensive high school program at a reasonable cost," said Darrell Spencer of the state Department of Public Instruction.

Woods To Head UNC Search

By The Associated Press
George Woods of Candor was named chairman Thursday of the search committee which will help select a system president to replace William Friday, who will retire July 1, 1986 after holding the post for 30 years.

The UNC Board of Governors search committee met for the first time Thursday with the board's advisory committee, made up of the system chancellors, faculty, student representatives and seven at-large members. The committees chose six sites for public hearings to give the public a chance to voice opinions on the qualities of the new system president.

The public hearings will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the following cities: Asheville, April 2; Charlotte, April 3; Fayetteville, April 9; Greensboro, April 10; Greenville, April 16, and Raleigh, April 17.

FOCUS

Women of the World, Unite!

Today is the 75th anniversary of International Women's Day. Two centuries ago, American women held many of the same jobs as men — and earned the same wages. During the American revolution, brides often wore red dresses, signifying rebellion. In 13th century China many women studied medicine. Harvard Medical School did not enroll women until 1945.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the first woman to serve in the U.S. Cabinet?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The average life expectancy of Americans in 1900 was 47.3 years.
