Soviet Guard Kills U.S. Officer

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP) — A Soviet guard shot and killed an unarmed U.S. Army officer of the American military mission in East Germany and the United States lodged a "serious protest" over the incident, U.S. authorities said today. An urgent investigation of the shooting was under way, authorities said. The officer was identified as Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson, Jr., 37, of West Redding, Conn., according to Lt. Col. Miguel Monteverde, an Army spokesman at the Pentagon in Washington. He joined the Army on May 1, 1969, he said. Nicholson, who was posted to the U.S. military mission in Potsdam, East Germany, was killed while on duty Sunday afternoon with another officer, "some distance from Berlin," said a diplomatic source in the West German capital of Bonn. Monteverde said he had been assigned to the mission since February 1982. The other officer was unhurt, said the source who spoke on condition he not to be identified.

Both Americans were unarmed, he said. At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan was awakened early this morning and told about the shooting by his national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane. "He was just given the facts," the spokesman said, indicating the president did not order any immediate action. Speakes called the shooting "unwarranted and unjustified" and said a preliminary investigation supported that statement. He refused to give any details of the incident. McFarlane had earlier told reporters that, "Right now, there doesn't seem to be any justification for it." The death was announced in a brief statement from the U.S. Army's European headquarters in Heidelberg, which said it learned of the shooting on Sunday. A Pentagon official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the shooting occurred in or near the East German town of Ludwigslust, which is about 100 miles northwest of Berlin and about 30 miles from the West German border. The official said he did not know what type of East German or Soviet installations might be in the area, but added: "This officer wasn't doing anything he shouldn't have been doing." In East Berlin, Soviet Embassy spokesman Viktor Kozlikir refused to comment on the incident. "We have no information," he said. According to an Army statement, Nicholson is survived by his wife, Karyn, and a daughter, residing in Berlin, and his parents, Mrs. and Mrs. Arthur D. Nicholson of West Redding. The initial Army announcing the shooting statement said, "U.S. officials are discussing the seriousness of the incident with the Soviet authorities." Later, a U.S. diplomatic source in Bonn said the United States filed a "serious protest" with the Soviets over the shooting. It was lodged by the U.S. diplomatic mission in West Berlin, he said. ECU Runner Killed

WILSON — An East Carolina sprinter was killed and eight track team members were injured, five seriously, after their van flipped over in Nash County while returning from a track meet in Georgia. Erskine Evans, 22, a junior from Greenville, died about 11 a.m. Sunday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital after the 1:50 a.m. accident on U.S. 264 about 18 miles west of Wilson, said Patty McRae, the hospital's nursing administrator. Evans, listed by Phillips Mortuary as the son of Novella Evans of Greenville, was a standout at Rose High School. The accident occurred when one of two vans carrying ECU athletes ran off the highway, said Bob Helmick, associate athletic director. Evans, a physical education major who ran the 100- and 200-meter dashes, died of massive head injuries, said Rod Compton, ECU head athletic trainer. "We're all stunned," ECU track coach William S. Carson said Sunday. He said the team had competed Saturday in the Georgia Relays in Athens and was returning to Greenville. Carson said he didn't know what effect the accident would have on the team's ability to compete. "We just can't think track right now," he said. "All we can think about is these young athletes and getting them out of the hospital." Helmick said of the eight athletes injured, three had been treated and released at Wilson Memorial Hospital while three others remained hospitalized. Those treated and released were identified by the school as David Parker of Roanoke, Va., Ruben Pierce of Fayetteville and Phillip Estes of Charlottesville, Va. Evans and the two other team members were taken to Pitt Memorial, Helmick said. Hospitalized in Wilson were Julian Anderson, 20, of Louisa, Va., for a bruised chest; Kenneth Daughtry, 21, of Baltimore, injured left arm, and Walter Southerland, 20, of Henderson, a spine fracture. Hospitalized at Pitt Memorial were Jon Lee, 19, of Vienna, Va., with a fractured shoulder, lacerations and bruises, and Chris Brooks, 20, of Raleigh, with a sprained back. Rob Wilson, assistant ECU sports information director, said the cause of the wreck was not known. A second van, carrying other track team members along with the coach, was not involved in the accident, Helmick said.

Soviet Diplomat Missing In India Defected To U.S.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The U.S. Embassy said today a Soviet diplomat who disappeared while jogging has defected to the United States, but the Soviet Embassy claimed their man might have been illegally spirited out of the country. The U.S. Embassy, breaking its silence on the March 17 disappearance of 37-year-old Igor Gezha, who was stationed in New Delhi, confirmed India's report of the defection and dismissed any connection with the assassination of a Soviet embassy official last Thursday in the Indian capital. "Igor Gezha has requested and been granted political asylum at a point outside India," the American statement said. "He is safe and well in the United States."

to a point outside India without gross violation of the sovereignty of this nation as his Soviet diplomatic passport and identity card issued by the Indian Foreign Ministry are currently in the USSR Embassy in New Delhi." The Soviet spokesman also said: "The picture of the disappearance ... is not clear at this stage. But taking into account the nature of this man, it is doubtful he was acting voluntarily." Khurshed Alam Khan, India's deputy external affairs minister, told Parliament the government had asked the United States for an explanation of Gezha's defection. "We have made known our serious concern to the U.S. government about this incident and asked them to let us have full details surrounding it," he said. "The government of India is also examining all aspects of the case as to how an official of the Soviet Embassy left India clandestinely." Khan said the government also wanted to know when Gezha was given asylum. Gezha had worked in the embassy for five years and was due to return to Moscow later this year. It was unclear how and when Gezha slipped out of the country. Police Commissioner Suryakant S. Jog speculated he left the day he vanished, either flying out under a false name or driving across the border into Nepal.

Informal Planning Offered Impetus For Duke's Medical Development

(Editor's Note: This is the second of three articles on development of medical complexes in North Carolina.)

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer
DURHAM — Duke University's medical complex today is a blend of Gothic and modern, a mixing of one era's dreams with the economic realities of another. Despite the mixture of design, the campus retains an old world flavor, a quality that seems to impress itself upon the approximate 13,500 people who work at, visit and use the facility daily. Inside, out of view of imposing gargoyles and the shadow of Duke Chapel's tower, people stream endlessly up and down the carpeted corridors of the center; visitors tilting their heads upward to keep an eye on a myriad of color coded signs telling them where they are, where they're going and how to get there. Outside it's quiet, people are scant; maybe 20 pass by on the sidewalk within an eight-minute period. And there are no cars, at least not the magnitude expected at a regional medical center. This is what the planners intended. Officials of the private institution claim their medical complex owes much of its integrity, both interior and exterior, to the original architects as well as to the mind of Dr. Wilbert Davison, dean of the four-year medical school when construction first began in 1931. Legend has it that Davison would go on daily rounds with contractors in those beginning years and literally make decisions on construction changes while out in the field. It was that informal process, officials say, that contributed to what makes Duke's existing 6.5 million-square-foot, 960-bed hospital what it is today — a regional research, patient care and teaching facility. The center is authorized for 1,008 beds. According to Larry Nelson, Duke director of medical center planning and university architect, the majority of Duke's medical facilities are located in a central area covering approximately 140 acres, most of which is developed. A few clinics and other facilities are located in outlying areas, however. Officials said another aspect contributing to Duke Medical Center's rise to today's standard is its vast amount of land resources — a situation attributed to the foresightedness and genius of founder James B. (Buck) Duke, according to Bob Winfree, Duke assistant vice president for health affairs, planning and administration. Whether or not Duke's method of planning is unique, Winfree said he doesn't know, but the fact that the plan is still "conceptually whole, says a heck of a lot for the quality of the planning process years ago." According to Winfree, the university "almost constantly" updates main campus and medical center development plans. These three plans consist of one created for the entire university in the 1960s, another drawn up about the same time for the medical center, and a third, created in 1981-82 to guide development of Duke North — the (Please turn to page 7)

'Mighty Mo' Afloat

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The battleship Missouri, which sat idle for nearly 30 years, has been refloated after drydock refurbishing on its way to becoming the Navy's third recommissioned battleship. The 888-foot-long battle wagon, scene of the Japanese surrender at the end of World War II, now wears a temporary patchwork of green undercoating, faded gray paint, streaks of rust and bright yellow tarps. Tugboats labored about 1½ hours Saturday to move the ship to a pier where work will continue on a $475 million remodeling project which will make it capable of carrying nuclear weapons. The 58,000-ton "Mighty Mo" is scheduled to be recommissioned in the spring of 1986, joining the New Jersey and the Iowa. Last May the 41-year-old Missouri was towed to Long Beach from Bremerton, Wash., where it had been docked since decommissioning in 1955. "Missouri has only 12 years of operation behind her," Capt. George E. Fink, commander of Long Beach Naval Shipyard, said in a news release. "She represents a young ship with survivability that is as current as anything we're designing today."

North Pitt Senior Chosen As ECU University Scholar

April Janell Weatherington, a senior at North Pitt High School, has been awarded a University Scholar award at East Carolina University. The seven privately funded University Scholar awards, presented for the first time in 1985, each provide a full scholarship of $3,000 annually for up to four years of undergraduate study. Miss Weatherington is ranked first in her class and is a student research assistant at the East Carolina University Medical School. At North Pitt she serves as president of the Spanish Club and is a member of the National Honor Society, the Math Team, Advanced Placement Club and Science Club. She also served as a marshal. Miss Weatherington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Bryan Weatherington of Washington. The idea for the scholarships was proposed by ECU Chancellor John Howell. Nearly 200 high school students were nominated by principals for the 1985 awards and 60 semifinalists were selected by the admissions committee. Four regional committees then selected 10 finalists who were interviewed on the ECU campus by a committee which included students, alumni and faculty. Seven new awards will be presented each year. In addition to the scholarship, most of the recipients will have the opportunity for a summer or semester of foreign study through the Thomas Rivers Foreign Exchange Program.

Radisson Ready For New Tower

Richard A. Friedman, president of Plaza Hotel Management Inc., the Greenville based management company for the new Radisson Hotel, has announced plans for phase two of the project which will involve 200 additional guest rooms. Friedman said construction on a new multistory tower addition is scheduled to begin before the end of the year, "hopefully within the next six months." No cost figures were announced for the expansion. The spokesman said completion of phase two will bring the total number of guest rooms at the Radisson to 350. The first section, which is scheduled to open this summer, has 150 guest units and 7,000 square feet of meeting space, he said. Friedman said construction of the new tower is expected to take "less than a year." Construction on the Radisson, at 207 W. Greenville Blvd., began in mid-1984. Estimated cost of the initial guest rooms and other facilities was set at $3.74 million.

OPEN-ARMHOLE VEST...is a easy to knit.

— open to all members — from time to time. The next one on its calendar of events will be held in Baltimore July 26 through July 28 of this year.

Here's a sampling of the classes that will be offered: "Problem Solving," taught by Mary Smith of Chattanooga, Tenn., will include such problem areas as sagging hems, poorly matched ribbings and seams that pull.

Shirley MacNulty of Lexington Park, Md., will teach "An International Sampler of Stitches." Anne Macdonald of Bethesda, Md., will conduct a session on "Argyle Knitting."

Other classes will give you multiple choices for coating on, making buttonholes, increasing, working inside and outside pockets, starting or expanding your own business, designing your own sweater patterns and "picture knitting." Guild members will also have an opportunity to display their favorite knitted items at a show and share session. Teachers for these classes are Nancy Thomas and Carla Patrick of New York City, Isabel Giger of Pittsfield, Ill., Judith Gross of Washington, D.C., Marlyn Ibele of Canfield, Ohio, and Constance Hallinan Lagan of North Babylon, N.Y.

For more information on this seminar and on membership in The Knitting Guild of America, send a self-addressed, stamp (with 44 cents in postage), business-size envelope to TKGA, P.O. Box 1606, Knoxville, Tenn. 37901. It's not necessary, but it would be nice if you mentioned that you read about the guild in this column.

Local chapters are being formed in several areas of the country, and this idea is sure to spread like wildfire in the years to come as more and more knitters become aware of the advantages of membership. Included in the guild's quarterly publication, Cast On, are book reviews, fashion trends in knits, guild news, original designs and a variety of articles aimed at helping members improve their knitting skills. Membership dues are $15 annually and include the quarterly issues of Cast On.

In addition to the annual convention, the guild plans to hold seminars

Bride Furious At Penciled In Guests

DEAR ABBY: I'm so angry I'm ready to explode! I am soon to be married, and I cannot believe the number of people who are bringing guests to my wedding. A great deal of planning went into making up our guest list, keeping in mind both the size of the room and the cost of the affair, and I resent all these extra people, most of whom I don't even know.

Only one person called to ask if he could bring a guest. Abby, this is not a backyard barbecue; it's a formal wedding, for God's sake!

What should a bride do when the dining room for her sit-down wedding dinner accommodates 210, and the response cards indicate that 234 will attend? (Incidentally, the dinners cost $70 a plate.)

Has anyone ever telephoned an invited guest who penciled in a couple of extra guests and said, "I'm sorry, but I can't accommodate your guests?"

I've heard, "There's always room for one more," and I suppose there is—but 24? Any suggestions?

FURIOUS ON LONG ISLAND

DEAR FURIOUS: If you're asking for my permission to call those who penciled in extra guests to say, "Sorry, I can't accommodate your guests," you have it.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote in to say that women whose husbands always drove them around were at a terrible disadvantage should they become widowed without having learned how to drive. He then urged all married men to teach their wives how to drive.

I'm all for women learning how to drive, but I have never met a man who taught his wife to drive who would recommend it to another man. A man can teach another man's wife how to drive, but when it comes to teaching his own wife, it's one big fight from beginning to end!

I am not smart enough to explain it in technical terms, but there is something about the husband-wife relationship that makes it impossible for the wife to accept criticism or instruction from her own husband. And for some reason, a man has very little patience with his own wife's mistakes.

Newlyweds or old-timers, it makes no difference: If there's a man alive who ever taught his wife how to drive without a fight, I'd like to know how he did it.

BEEN THERE IN FLORIDA

DEAR BEEN THERE: Probably by knowing how to disengage his mouth until he put his brain in gear, his patience in overdrive and his temper in reverse.

DEAR ABBY: I need advice fast. My mother, who just turned 65, had an operation two months ago for cancer of the lung. One-third of her lung was removed and she's been on oxygen ever since. Her doctor says she's doing fairly well. Now my problem: I have caught my mother smoking several times. Her doctor told her not to smoke, but she smokes anyway.

My father has a heart condition, and if he found out, it would tear him apart. And if her doctor knew this, I don't know what he'd do.

I love my mother and don't want her to turn against me, but I know that not saying anything to my father and the doctor isn't right. How should I handle this situation?

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: I'm sure you are aware that smoking around oxygen can be disastrous, so for that reason alone you must tell the doctor that your mother is sneaking smokes.

Although the cancerous portion of your mother's lung was removed, her craving for tobacco was not, so she also needs to be treated for nicotine addiction. Tell your mother's doctor at once. It could save her life.

Paper now is used by many teachers to introduce art to young students, and Ms. Shelly frequently gets calls from fabric artists or sculptors who want to dabble in paper.

"The craft is very flexible and expandable — 3-year-olds can do it with great success," Ms. Shelly said, putting the soggy red sheets between felt layers in a giant sandwich that was to be pressed and dried, then formed into valentines.

And as it becomes more accepted, it apparently becomes more marketable as art, said Ken Emerick of the Arts Council of Ohio. He had no statistics on paper art sales but said people who work in the medium tell him they are finding it easier to sell their products.

Art Of Making Paper By Hand Being Revived

By SUE CROSS Associated Press Writer

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Lois Shelly sweeps her hand through a tub of bright red slush, pulling out a screen covered with soggy red lumps, once old clothing, that is soon to be paper.

The simple-looking process is a rags to riches story of turning cast-aside clothes into fiber which is reformed into paper, a current favorite activity of Ohio artists.

Ms. Shelly, an artist-in-residence at Toledo's Crosby Gardens park and art complex, turns cotton pulp into rough sheets of textured paper that are combined with such things as string and feathers, dried flowers and fabric to create multimedia artwork. On her desk are sheets of stationery made of straw and cedar, willow and cattails — samples sent by other papermakers.

Both types of paper are examples of what Ms. Shelly sees as a revival of interest in the art — or craft, depending on viewpoint — of papermaking.

"It's not new. It's always been around, but it's just been noticed again," she said of the process of beating fibers, swelling them with water, and pressing and drying them into a paper felt for use in art, bookmaking or as a surface for painting in oil, pastels or other media.

Before 1970, the only people making paper by hand were a scattering of bookmakers who made limited editions on paper they formed themselves, said Kathryn Clark. She claims to have prompted the resurgence of the art in the Midwest at the Brookston, Ind., studio she owns with her husband, Howard.

The studio, called Twin Rocker, is known for its technical expertise in making fine paper exactly to standards for use in other types of artwork, Ms. Shelly said, noting that interest in such materials probably kept its popularity growing throughout the 1970s and into the 1980s.

What she has seen in the last few years, however, is the growth of paper art on a different level.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A

DENTAL PROBLEMS OF TEENAGERS

If you have a teenager at home, among your other concerns you probably want to do whatever you can to protect his dental health. The teenage years can be critical in protecting his permanent teeth.

By the time a child reaches the age of thirteen he probably has all of his permanent teeth except his third molars or wisdom teeth. But he may also be more prone to tooth decay and the damage it can do to his teeth through neglect and poor dental health habits. Accidental injuries are common in the teenage years.

and often a broken or chipped tooth may be ignored. Injuries may also cause his teeth to be pushed out of alignment, causing malocclusion and other problems.

The teenage years are the growing up years, a period in which the child is learning to think for himself and to assume responsibility. This responsibility should include concern for his dental health. Regular checkups and treatment when he needs it will help prevent serious and expensive problems from developing later.

Officials, Growers Disagree Over Extent Of Plight

By The Associated Press
Auction sales of farms continue to crowd each other for space in Sunday newspapers, and land values have plunged to their mid-1970s value. But there's disagreement on how bad the North Carolina farmer's situation is.

Keith Nowell, a Perquimans County farmer, said his father, also a farmer, was facing $450,000 in debts when he committed suicide Jan. 24, six days after talking to a bankruptcy attorney.

"Things are harder on farmers than the public realizes," Nowell said last week.

"I think it was over the farm because he'd been discussing bankruptcy," said Nowell, the only of his father's three sons to follow him in farming. "I said it was no disgrace to file for bankruptcy if it was the only way to hold onto the farm right now. I said that's what I would do in that situation."

"He said, 'You know, I'm not sure what to do. What am I going to do for the rest of my life? I'm 60 years old.'"

Now, the younger Nowell — and many other Tar Heel farmers — are asking the same question.

The debate over the plight of the farmer will heat up at a congressional hearing Friday on farm finance in St. Pauls in Robeson County.

While North Carolina farmers may be having it rough, some officials say it is nothing compared to what farmers in the Midwest face.

"Loan delinquency rates for North Carolina are substantially lower than those for the Midwest, suggesting that farmers are faring better," said Marc A. Johnston, associated head of the department of agriculture and business at North Carolina State University.

Johnston said North Carolina had a 2 percent delinquency rate on farm loans, as of June 30, 1984, compared to the nation's rate of 9.5 percent.

But, the statistics appear to tell another story, though the figures mean different things to different people:

— Between 1973 and 1983, 45,000 North Carolina farms disappeared from the agricultural census.

The Rural Advancement Fund, a Pittsboro-based advocacy organization for farm families, said the decline is a sign of "a deteriorating agricultural economy."

But, Larry W. Godwin, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, said the decline reflects the natural evolution from agrarian to technological society.

"The vast majority of that 45,000 was by choice and consolidation," he said last week. He said many farmers have decided they can make more money by leasing their tobacco poundage quotas and taking a job off the farm.

— The Production Credit Association foreclosed last year on 55 Tar Heel borrowers, and the Federal Land Bank had 114 foreclosures.

— FmHA, the lend of last resort, foreclosed on 12 farms statewide in the 1984 fiscal year ending Oct. 1, 1984, and, except for a legal roadblock, would have foreclosed on 30 to 50 farms.

Goldwin said the figures were only a fraction of the agency's 10,091 borrowers and North Carolina's 79,000 farmers overall.

— FmHA loan delinquency rates are on the rise: 18 percent in fiscal 1982, 22 percent in 1983, 27 percent in 1984 and 39 percent so far in the 1985 fiscal year.

Rural Advancement Fund said those figures indicate farmers are no longer in control. But, Godwin argued that it's early in the year; later, he said, farmers will have paid their bills, lowering that 39 percent delinquency rate.

Godwin also said critics "tend to identify Farmers Home as the norm and we are not the norm." He said FmHA's borrowers represent the highest credit risk.

"Most farmers are doing well, keeping up with their loans," Godwin said, "and 70 percent of ours are doing that."

But FmHA reported that 230 of the state's farmers quit the business because of financial difficulties of all kinds of fiscal 1984, and that figure ranked North Carolina No. 10 in the nation on FmHA's list of distressed states.

State's Highway Traffic Toll Shows Increase Again

By The Associated Press
After a five-year decline in highway traffic fatalities, North Carolina saw traffic deaths shoot up about 15 percent last year, marking the sixth highest increase in the nation, officials say.

While deaths soared, accidents in North Carolina rose only 1.2 percent, said University of North Carolina Safety Research Center official Forrest Council.

"It's certainly clear we're killing more people per accident," Council said.

An 6 percent to 9 percent increase in driving is reflected in a rise in state gas tax revenue and motor vehicle registrations of about 5 percent each last year.

But the rate of North Carolina deaths increased 14.9 percent from 1,242 in 1983 to 1,423 in 1984. The nationwide average was up 2.8 percent.

Council said accidents involving alcohol fell 5 percent between 1983 and 1984 from 17,112 to 16,251 in North Carolina.

Some researchers say the increase in miles and speed may also combine with low seat belt use to produce more deaths from relatively fewer accidents.

Edwin Guy, director of the North Carolina Governor's Highway Safety Program, said that's why many groups would like to see a mandatory seat belt law. He testified before state Senate and House committees in favor of the law last week.

"In New York, it went into force in January, and they've had the lowest death rate since 1926," Guy said.

In Albany, Jean Bave-Kerwin, spokeswoman for the New York

Governor's Highway Safety Administration, said seat belt use jumped from 15 percent to about 70 percent after the law, which carries a $50 fine, went into effect.

The North Carolina proposal calls for a $25 fine.

New York's January deaths, which averaged 97 from 1978-84, dropped to 53 this year. That is the lowest figure since February 1926.

Some North Carolina groups also believe that tougher penalties could be inserted into the state's Safe Driving Law, which went into effect in October 1983. People who register .10 on an alcohol breath test or who refuse the test immediately lose their license for 10 days.

Paul Alwin, head of Charlotte's Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said he has asked Gov. Jim Martin to push for random road blocks by the state Highway Patrol to detect drinking drivers.

"What we want to do is scare the hell out of people," he said.

Of North Carolina's 147,425 accidents last year, 16,251 — about one in 10 — involved a drinking driver.

"I'd like to see the license suspended for 30 days, regardless of who you are or whether you've got the best lawyer in Charlotte," Guy said.

Automatic Gate To Be Installed

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Hoping to generate good will among disgruntled North Carolinians, Virginia parks officials have announced plans to install an automatic, card-triggered gate at the North Carolina-Virginia border near False Cape State Park.

About 35 of the 50 residents who are allowed to travel along the beach to Sandbridge and Virginia Beach heard state officials make the proposal Sunday at the park's education center.

Forrest Gladden III, superintendent of the park, told residents four vehicles have been caught on sand dunes illegally since the barricade was erected, compared to 10 such violations during the same period the year before.

"This is hard evidence that the barricade is doing what it was intended to do," he said.

Virginia rolled out the carpet and offered a variety of soft drinks, doughnuts and other refreshments. Residents were greeted warmly as they escaped the misty outdoors to enter the basement meeting room of the education center.

The Tornado Season Brings Back Old Worries
by Leslie Parker, Social Worker I

Last March tornadoes touched down in Pitt County causing much physical and emotional damage. Now that the new tornado season is approaching, the people of Pitt County are more aware of weather conditions.

It is not uncommon to have some of the same old fears, worries or anxieties, which were experienced after last year's tornado. Children, especially, have difficulties dealing with storm fears. Sometimes a person needs more than self help or support from their loved ones. Sharing thoughts and feelings with others who experienced the tornado can help you understand and work through your feelings, anxieties, fears, etc.

On March 28, 1985, a support group will be open to all persons affected by last year's tornado. The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Paramore Building behind Salem United Methodist Church in Simpson. Everyone is welcome to come and enjoy the fellowship.

It had already been decided legally that juveniles would no longer be housed in county jails, but for this area the real implementation awaited the construction of the Pitt Regional Juvenile Service Center.

The center was opened last week and it will provide facilities for persons aged 15 and under from 23 northeastern counties as they await trial. Officials say the juveniles will average staying at the center for 10 to 12 days. While there they will be given specialized educational instruction, counseling and they will be involved in an exercise program. The staff includes a director, two social workers, an educational specialist, secretary and nine youth service counselor-technicians, who will rotate being on duty around the clock.

The new center will provide an important service for juveniles. It should be generally agreed that, no matter how serious the crime, individuals so young should not be locked up in jails with adults. Persons under 15 need special facilities and special care as the legal system attempts to unravel their problems.

Such facilities and staffs have not been available in the past, but now for the northeastern section an adequate center is ready for use. The area should greatly benefit from it.

Security

We're sympathetic to the suggestion U.S. Supreme Court justices have chauffeurs as an extra degree of security.

There's a lot of crazies in the world with causes that invite excesses beyond the pale of our imagination. U.S. embassies, ambassadors, Foreign Service officers, newsmen and churchmen are not wholly safe even in civilized societies.

Our presidents are frequent targets of threats and occasionally targets of assassins. Why not a Supreme Court judge?

So the reasonableness of chauffeur service and the added security it might represent sounds a rational note in today's world. Some extra vigilance is in order.

The suggested precautionary measure accompanied the court's budgetary request to Congress and involves no extra outlay. Merely authorization. Of course it should be approved.

The court's budget deserves almost an afterthought. Requests for 1986 show a mere 3.6 percent increase over the sum authorized for this year. The total of $17.8 million represents salaries and expenses of some 320 employees with a couple million going for building and grounds care.

Good help is hard to find, so it might be a bargain. When one thinks in terms of the billions sought by other branches, there's not much reason to think Congress will try to shave that budget.

—Harry F. Rosenthal—

Telling The News Can Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senator from Maryland complained recently about the vast sums of taxpayer money that members of Congress spend on news releases and newsletters.

"When there is an oversupply of any product the value goes down," said Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, a Republican.

Mathias was on the Senate floor when he voiced his cry for a change. His staff made sure the world knew about it, by issuing a news release.

According to Mathias, congressmen spent $68 million and senators $43 million on news releases and newsletters last year. He probably got his figures from a news release.

People who write news releases operate on the theory that if you distribute enough of them, some might get used, making the effort worthwhile. Others take the more realistic view that they are producing junk mail no one wants, but it's a living.

The difference between newsletters and news releases is a narrow one. The newsletter, mailed at great expense, tells voters at home what a grand job their representatives in Congress are doing. The congressional news release tells reporters what great things the member is saying and doing.

Congress is only one contributor to the floodtide of handouts. News releases are a major industry in Washington. Fold in the busy minds in the federal agencies and departments, stir in a healthy dose of flackery from lobby groups, season well with gobs of personal promotion and get a stomach ache visualizing whole forests being consumed for self-aggrandizement.

In an exchange with Mathias, Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, wondered RALEIGH (AP) — In about a week, legislators will begin hammering out a tax-cut package that could accent what's generally regarded as a philosophical contrast between the House and Senate leadership.

Spurred by the election of Republican Gov. Jim Martin on his tax-cutting platform, lawmakers in both chambers have introduced bills seeking to reduce or repeal taxes on everything from food to cash stashed in safes.

No action has been taken on them, as chairmen of the House and Senate finance committees await Martin's plan and spending committees continue dissecting his $16.4 billion budget proposals for fiscal 1985-87.

The challenge, lawmakers say, will be crafting a package that satisfies the more business-oriented Senate and the House, where populist Speaker Liston Ramsey insists individual taxpayers get their share.

"Historically, the Senate has been the more conservative body," said Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee. "I ... wouldn't be surprised to see some real philosophical differences emerge."

One point on which there's agreement, however, is that some form of tax relief will pass.

"That much we're sure of," said Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, chairman of the House Finance Committee.

A bill containing Martin's plan to eliminate the property taxes on intangible assets and business inventories and the sales tax on food and non-prescription medicines is expected to arrive early this week, according to I. Beverly Lake, the governor's chief lobbyist.

"We've been laying the groundwork for some time ... getting sponsors lined up, planning our work with the committees," Lake said in an interview Friday.

Martin has said repeatedly he hoped Republicans and Democrats would co-sponsor the bill, but Lake wouldn't identify the likely signers, saying it was "just a strategy we adopted early not to get into that."

Rauch, D-Gaston, perhaps the Legislature's most vocal tax-cut proponent, says his timetable calls for starting committee discussions next week. He hopes to produce an omnibus bill that will reach the Senate floor in late May or early June.

"We will work toward something the Senate can support, and hopefully something both houses are comfortable with," he said.

Quinn said he expects to begin talks next week with Rauch and his co-chairman, Sen. R.P. "Bo" Thomas, D-Henderson. Leaders of the joint budget committees will participate in some of the discussions, Quinn said.

"That's the only way to put together something like this," he said. "You don't want to start out with a lot of differences."

Nevertheless, if the diversity of the tax relief sought is any indication, there already are substantial differences.

Before both committees are bills seeking partial repeal of the intangibles, inventory, and inheritance taxes — which legislative leaders say privately are the most likely to be cut.

However, no one in the Senate has proposed cutting the food and medicine tax. In the House, Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, introduced a bill to abolish the food tax while raising the sales levy on other goods to 4 cents per dollar. Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, proposed granting an income tax credit to the poor for their food tax payments.

Another House bill with no Senate counterpart, sponsored by Speaker Pro Tem Jack Hunt, D-Cleveland, would reduce the income tax rate for the first $2,000 of income. Ramsey proposed that before the session began.

Mavretic and Senate Majority Leader Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, have introduced general sales tax increase bills.

The inheritance tax is a relative newcomer to the debate that Martin's election brought to center stage: how best to share a portion of North Carolina's surplus revenue with the taxpayers.

Repealing the inheritance levy was proposed only last week by two of Ramsey's top lieutenants — budget committee chairmen Billy Watkins, D-Granville, and Bob Etheridge, D-Harnett.

Some lawmakers described the move as another Ramsey attempt to find a tax cut that would benefit low- and middle-income individuals and balance a Senate package likely to emphasize business tax relief.

Branding Irons Can Help

The biggest item in the General Dynamics billing dispute with the government is $4.5 million for "public relations."

"What has public relations got to do with building submarines, planes and tanks?" I asked the G.D. spokesman.

"If we didn't inform the people as to the good job we were doing, we wouldn't get any re-orders for new weapons. Whenever the taxpayer needs a Trident submarine, an F-16 fighter or an M-1 tank, we want him to think General Dynamics."

"I can see the advantage from your standpoint. But I'm not clear why the taxpayer should be billed millions of dollars for your company's advertising and PR campaign."

He replied, "The average American doesn't know one billion-dollar system from another, and it is essential that he believes he is getting top-of-the-line merchandise for his money. The only way he will ever become a discriminating buyer and a connoisseur of fine weaponry is if he knows what defense contractors he can count on. That's why education through the media is so important."

"I don't quarrel with that," I said. "But you would think since you make so much money on your weapons, you would throw in your public relations costs for nothing."

"It's impossible to separate the price of our hardware from our PR costs. The consumer's faith in what we make is as important to this country's survival as the weapons themselves."

I then asked, "How does the taxpayer know the press release he is paying for tell the entire story as to what your company is doing for him?"

"Because we adhere rigorously to the 'Truth in Defense' contracting code. It prohibits us from advertising unsubstantiated claims about our weapons, deliberately underbidding to get a contract and issuing false information about cost overruns. Under the code we have agreed to put a Surgeon General's warning on all our products saying 'This weapon could be dangerous to your health.' Without the code we contractors are nothing."

"I would like to ask you about some specific items which you people charged us for. Why the 10,000 F-16 necktie tacks?"

He said, "The F-16 is the finest fighter the company has ever built and we felt our friends in and out of the Pentagon needed a tie clasp to remind them of it. With our markup they still cost less than a dollar apiece."

"I don't think the taxpayer objects to giving gifts to anybody. But there is still the question of who should have to pay for them."

"It is written in our contract that all tie tacks, cufflinks and gifts to Admiral Rickover's wife may be listed as spare parts and included in the price of a weapon. That goes for baseball hats, necklaces and special branding irons."

"I was going to ask about those branding irons. What do they have to do with the defense of the country?"

"Those branding irons were one of the most popular gifts we ever handed out. There are people all over Texas and Oklahoma who would have never heard of our fighter if they hadn't seen a steer with a F-16 logo on his butt."

"What other justification do you have for the Pentagon paying your public relations fees?"

"The obvious one is so we can defend ourselves in Congress and the media against charges that we are bilking the public. It would be criminal for an established defense contractor to pay those costs out of his own pocket."

Strength For Today

"He is the richest that has the fewest wants," says an old proverb.

Some people who are rich to the income tax collector are not rich at all. They have a great deal of money, but they worry about it all the time, lest they should lose some of it. Their sense of their own position makes them live on a scale they can hardly afford.

Therefore, they always live in straightened circumstances.

We know a man who is truly rich on the small income of a high school teacher. For many years he has lived in a little house in an inexpensive neighborhood. But over the years he has given to students hundreds of dollars so they could go to college after leaving high school. Furthermore, his friends always find him generous.

"He is richest that has fewest wants." It's not what we have but what has us that counts.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q73 ♥J102 ♦AK ♣AKQ83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—The conservatives among our readers are likely to add North's minimum of 13 points to South's 19 and suggest that South should invite slam by bidding four no trump. However, we feel that South's good five-card suit compensates for any deficiency in high cards, and we would opt for six no trump. We are prepared to compromise with an ace-asking bid of clubs en route, so that we can stay out of slam should we be missing two aces.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q76 ♥8653 ♦A852 ♣Q10
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Dble 2 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—In this sequence, North's bid of three hearts is preemptive, not invitational — he wants to make it as difficult as possible for the opponents to enter the auction. Had he wanted to invite game, there were any number of other bids he could have made. Therefore, there is no reason for you to do anything other than pass.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ62 ♥AJ54 ♦Q6 ♣Q3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—North's bidding shows a sub-minimum, two-over-one response with long diamonds. You could make some sort of an argument for a pass, but we feel that the queen of diamonds is just enough for one move toward game. Raise to four diamonds.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A93 ♥AQ8 ♦AQ632 ♣A5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 NT Pass 5 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—At the very least, partner must have five good clubs, the king of diamonds and an outside card. Therefore, you can virtually count 13 tricks at no trump. However, partner also more than likely has a singleton in one of the majors. Thus, it might be safer to bid the grand slam in diamonds, just in case you need a ruff or two to bag all the tricks you need.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠84 ♥J102 ♦K1063 ♣A763
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
Pass 2 ♣ Pass Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner's bid of two no trump was simply a competitive maneuver to prevent the opponents from buying the hand too cheaply — it did not show extra values. Now you have to determine whether no trump is your best spot for a part-score. With your weak spade holding and good four-card support for diamonds, a suit contract should be preferable. Retreat to a safer haven by correcting to three diamonds.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠754 ♥KJ52 ♦98 ♣QJ73
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♥ ?

What action do you take?
A.—The only bid that can be considered is one no trump. However, you are a whit too weak for that action, which shows a fair hand. Pass, and wait to see whether partner is good enough to reopen the bidding. By not tipping off your heart holding, you also could induce the opponents to overreach themselves.

Aerial Fireball Lights Up Southeast

By The Associated Press
A lightning-quick "ball of fire" streaked across the Southeastern night sky "brighter and bigger than a shooting star," but authorities were at a loss to explain it.

"I saw it fall from the sky," said Tennessee Highway patrolman Harold Munger, who said he was about 10 miles east of Chattanooga when he spotted a bright flying object overhead around 8 p.m. Sunday.

"It appeared to be a ball of fire and seemed much brighter and bigger than a shooting star," Munger said. "It had fire streaming from behind it. My concern at first was that it might have been an aircraft in trouble.

"It hit the horizon and went behind a mountain in front of me. I didn't see an explosion or anything. It just disappeared," he said.

Munger said the fireball "appeared to be moving real low and was real bright," but said no injuries from falling debris had been reported.

In Washington, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dennis Feldman said air traffic controllers reported sighting a fireball as far north as Chattanooga, Tenn., and as far south as Orlando, Fla.

However, people as far north as southern Illinois also reported seeing bright lights in the sky.

"FAA air traffic controllers at our Jacksonville (Fla.) center and the Atlanta center have received reports from pilots about this so-called fireball, but as far as we know it was not an airplane," Feldman said.

"We have no idea what it was — this is all fragmentary information," he said, adding that no aviation accidents had been reported.

In Huntsville, Ala., an FAA spokesman said pilots passing over north Alabama reported witnessing a "sudden flash" that caused static on their radios.

"Three pilots reported seeing a streak of light that changed from red to green to orange," said Ken King, the FAA supervisor at the Huntsville Jetplex, adding that such color changes are typical of a meteor.

In Atlanta, FAA duty officer John Whiteside said pilots "saw flames coming out from around it. "Even experienced people are totally amazed at the size, and the fact that it came straight down rather than at an angle."

Based on pilots' reports, National Weather Service meteorologist Howard Bookman, at the FAA's air traffic control center in Hampton, Ga., said the object was probably a meteor that entered the Earth's atmosphere in the Cherokee-Forsyth County area about 50 miles northeast of Atlanta.

Cmdr. William Ranzinger, a duty officer at the North American Air Defense Command's Cheyenne Mountain complex in Colorado, said, "There is a possibility it could have been some meteor showers."

"We did have a window for meteor showers for around the 20th of March, and this could have been part of that," he said.

The complex, which tracks all objects in space, had expected some debris from a Soviet rocket body to make a flaming return into the atmosphere, but "it doesn't correlate" with the time of the reported sightings, Ranzinger said.

Two Pumps Help Keep Man Alive

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A man owes his life to a pair of $250 pumps that functioned as his heart following surgery, in a process doctors say may eventually be more widely used than mechanical heart implants, a newspaper reported.

The mechanical pumps, called ventricular assist devices, were hooked up to the 60-year-old doctor for more than four days last month in the first successful use of two of the devices at the same time, doctors told the Pittsburgh Press in an article published on Sunday.

Police Cruiser Driven Away From Wreck By Cuffed Man

Billy Wayne Rogers, 25, of Route 2, Riegelwood, was arrested on multiple charges Sunday morning after he allegedly wrecked one stolen car, then took a Pitt County Sheriff's Department car from the scene of the wreck.

Greenville police said the series of incidents leading to Rogers' arrest began at the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity house at 422 W. Fifth St. shortly before the incident was reported to police at 4:25 a.m.

Officer B.W. Lewis said Rogers had been asked to leave a party at the Fifth Street house several times earlier in the night. Later, Lewis said, Mike Rivera of 422 W. Fifth St., Robert Anderson of Shady Knoll Trailer Park, and Stephanie Jane Schwartz of 1400B First St., left the house and Anderson got into Ms. Schwartz's car, parked in a lot behind the dwelling.

Before Rivera and Ms. Schwartz were able to enter the vehicle, Lewis said Rogers, whom the three believed to be armed with a pistol under his shirt, ordered Rivera to the ground and attempted to force Ms. Schwartz into the car. But Lewis said Ms. Schwartz broke away from Rogers, Anderson got out of the car, and all three ran from the scene.

Lewis, who said Rogers then drove away with Ms. Schwartz's car, said the vehicle was found wrecked in a field off N.C. 43 between the VOA Road and Bruce, by Pitt County Deputy Cecil Craft, shortly after the theft was reported.

Sheriff Raleph Tyson said Craft found Rogers at the scene of the wreck, cuffed him with his hands behind his back and placed him in the patrol car with the seat belt fastened. The deputy, Tyson said, then went to search the Schwartz car for a weapon.

While Craft was away from the patrol car, Tyson said, Rogers unfastened the seat belt, got his hands from behind him, and drove away in the county-owned vehicle, with the blue lights still flashing.

Tyson said Rogers was then stopped by sheriff's deputies, Greenville police and state Highway Patrol toppers just west of the Greenville city limits on N.C. 43, and taken into custody.

In addition to two counts of auto larceny and one count of attempted kidnapping, Rogers was charged with driving while impaired, careless and reckless driving, speeding to elude arrest, leaving the scene of an accident, and assault on an officer.

He was placed in the Pitt County jail under $22,500 bond pending a court hearing.

A Reflector Review

'Amadeus' Lives Up To Advance Billing

When the Oscars are given out tonight, this movie is sure to walk away with several. "Amadeus" (now playing at Plaza Cinema) is a movie that lived up to its hype: everything you've heard about it is true.

The film is a story of the great composer Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, as seen through the eyes and memories of Salieri, a composer of mediocre talents who worshipped Mozart's talents and despised him and who renounced God — because Mozart had both talent and a profligate lifestyle, while Salieri had neither. The story is told 30 years after Mozart has died; Salieri claimed it was he who killed Mozart, and he tells the story to a young priest who has come to hear his confession.

"Amadeus" has something for everyone: sumptuous production design by Patrizia von Brandenstein with incredibly ornate settings and fabulous costumes, lushly photographed by Miroslav Ondricek; Mozart's wonderful music (conducted and supervised by Neville Martinson), and the dances in his operas (choreographed by Twyla Tharp); all the best special effects available for the stage of those times; and truly engaging characters and a good story.

Milos Forman has taken Peter Shaffer's screenplay (based on his stage play) and directed a visually and emotionally satisfying movie, one with humor, pathos and jubilant life. True, Shaffer has taken liberties with the facts of Mozart's life, but that is irrelevant, for the sense of the man's life and music shines through, as does a feel for the times. One nice touch is that the opera "Don Giovanni" is presented on the restored stage in Venice where Mozart first presented it, and many of the other settings are real castles in Europe. Much of the movie was shot in Czechoslovakia.

Tom Hulce as Mozart is charming, a handsome manchild with a crazy laugh and an exuberance that initially bubbles from the young composer, an exuberance that finally is wrested from him as he is tormented by the private demon of his dead father, a torment used to great advantage in one of the most truly devious pieces of psychological terrorism of all time, a torment worthy of a Shakespearean play.

F. Murray Abraham is equally brilliant as Salieri, a man driven by his own private tormented relationship with God, his dreams and his minor talent; he is finally driven by jealousy of Mozart to plot his end while pretending to be his friend, in the hope that he can steal Mozart's final piece of music, a requiem, and call it his own. During the course of the movie, we see him go from a young dreamer to an old and crazed man, and he plays the role with style and consistency.

Elizabeth Berridge is fresh, sweet and pretty as Mozart's wife Stanze, a young woman with a practical mind and a strong will beneath her physical charms. "Amadeus" is an outstanding and ambitious movie. It is certainly one of the best movies of the past year, and it puts a movie like "Passage to India" to shame, both for its sheer opulence and for the emotional depth of the movie.

It is playing at Plaza Cinema through April 4, and is rated PG. All but the youngest children will enjoy it.

Duke ...

center's newest addition, completed in 1980. The old hospital facility is referred to as Duke South.

"You should use the old plans, if only for a benchmark, because it helps you to keep from repeating history's mistakes," Winfree said.

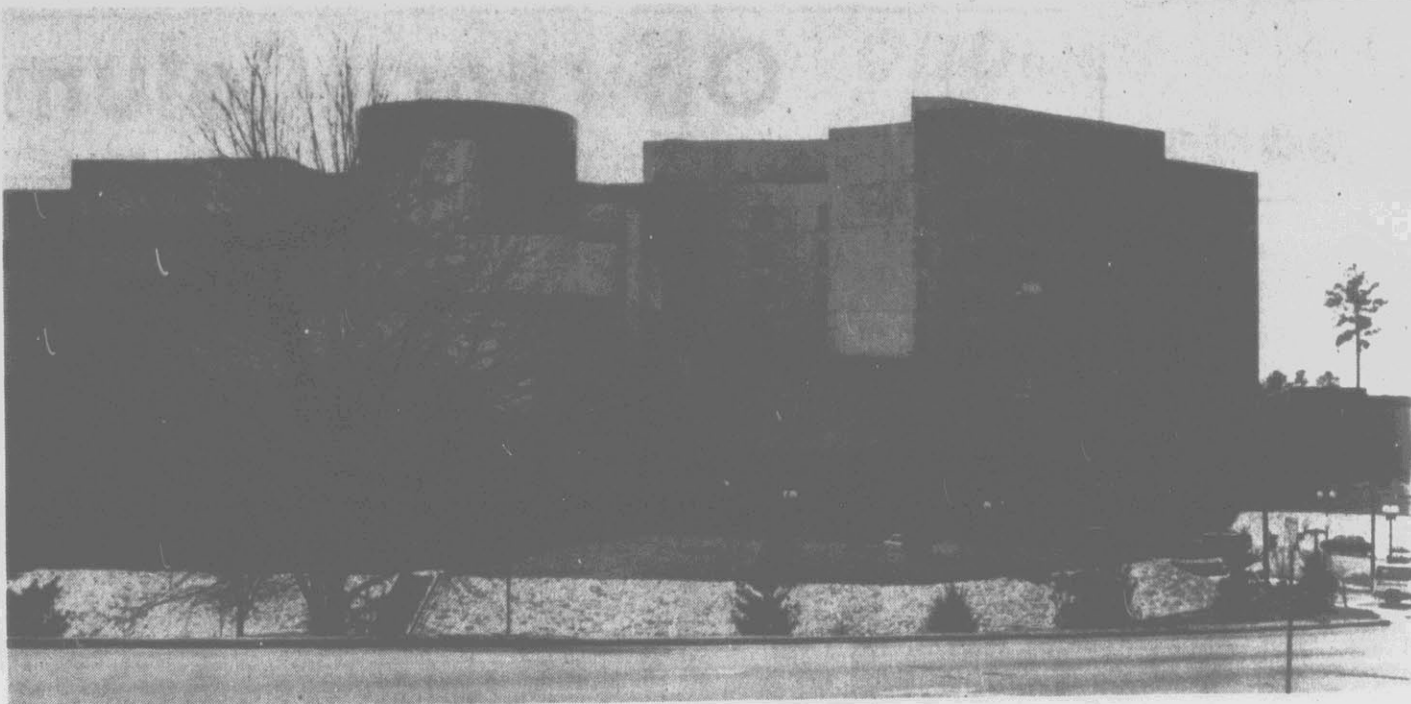

Louis Swanson, a Duke employee who "lived, saw and built" that history and now serves as a part-time faculty member, said the existing development is "pretty darn close" to those plans developed so long ago. But what makes the center so viable, Swanson said, is its layout. "Flexibility is a key thing in planning. That is, you must make sure whatever you build can be expanded so you don't have to tack on an arm where a leg oughta be. You can't function that way," Swanson explained.

For instance, although research, patient care and education concerns are located in different areas of the complex, all are (or will soon be) connected by a covered corridor system. Also part of that connector plan now in existence is an elevator system and a rapid transit shuttle linking the first level of the entire complex (the old south and new north hospitals). The shuttle service is intended to extend to the hospital's parking decks as well, but a car for that purpose has not been purchased.

Duke currently has two parking decks to service its medical center, one on the immediate exterior of the complex located on Erwin Road and another in the medical campus interior — two more decks than Nelson said he "would like to see."

"Parking decks tend to become necessary, though," he said, "because surface parking uses up a lot of valuable space." Together, the decks can house 2,530 vehicles, two-thirds of the center's vehicle population. Expansion plans, however, call for an increase of 1,040 deck spaces in the near future.

Parking spaces for the remaining third of vehicles whose drivers utilize the hospital in some form or other are provided in surface lots, lots that are hidden by trees and bushes. "We tried to do a good job of disguising those lots," Winfree said, "so the campus doesn't appear to be a sea of cars."

Another element Swanson says contributes to the overall effectiveness of Duke's physical plant is an exterior sign system, as comprehensive as the interior system. Signs every several hundred feet or so provide frequent directions for visitors traveling by foot or vehicle.

Accessibility to the complex will be further improved in the future by extension of a Durham east-west expressway. Plans call for the expressway to be extended from its present termination point at Erwin Road, which fronts Duke North, to U.S. 15-501. Erwin Road is also slated for widening from a four to five-lane thoroughfare.

Those two improvements will, Swanson said, "be very welcome and provide the accessibility so needed for a regional medical center."

"We've been working under a very severe handicap for the last 16 years while waiting for the project to go through," Swanson explained.

The closest commercial development to the center is located along Erwin Road and consists of a few hotel/motels, nursing and retirement homes and gas stations — concerns Nelson said are "necessities of life" and "in a way good" for the medical complex. For the most part, however, the campus is relatively free from and should remain free from commercial effects until expansion reaches the northern outer limits of university holdings — a situation Nelson said Duke has tried to avoid. "We've tried to protect Duke University through general purchases of property in close proximity."

Officer ...

The U.S. officer was killed while "doing his job and acting appropriately," said one diplomatic source, who also demanded anonymity. He refused to say more.

The U.S. military mission in West Berlin this afternoon confirmed the shooting.

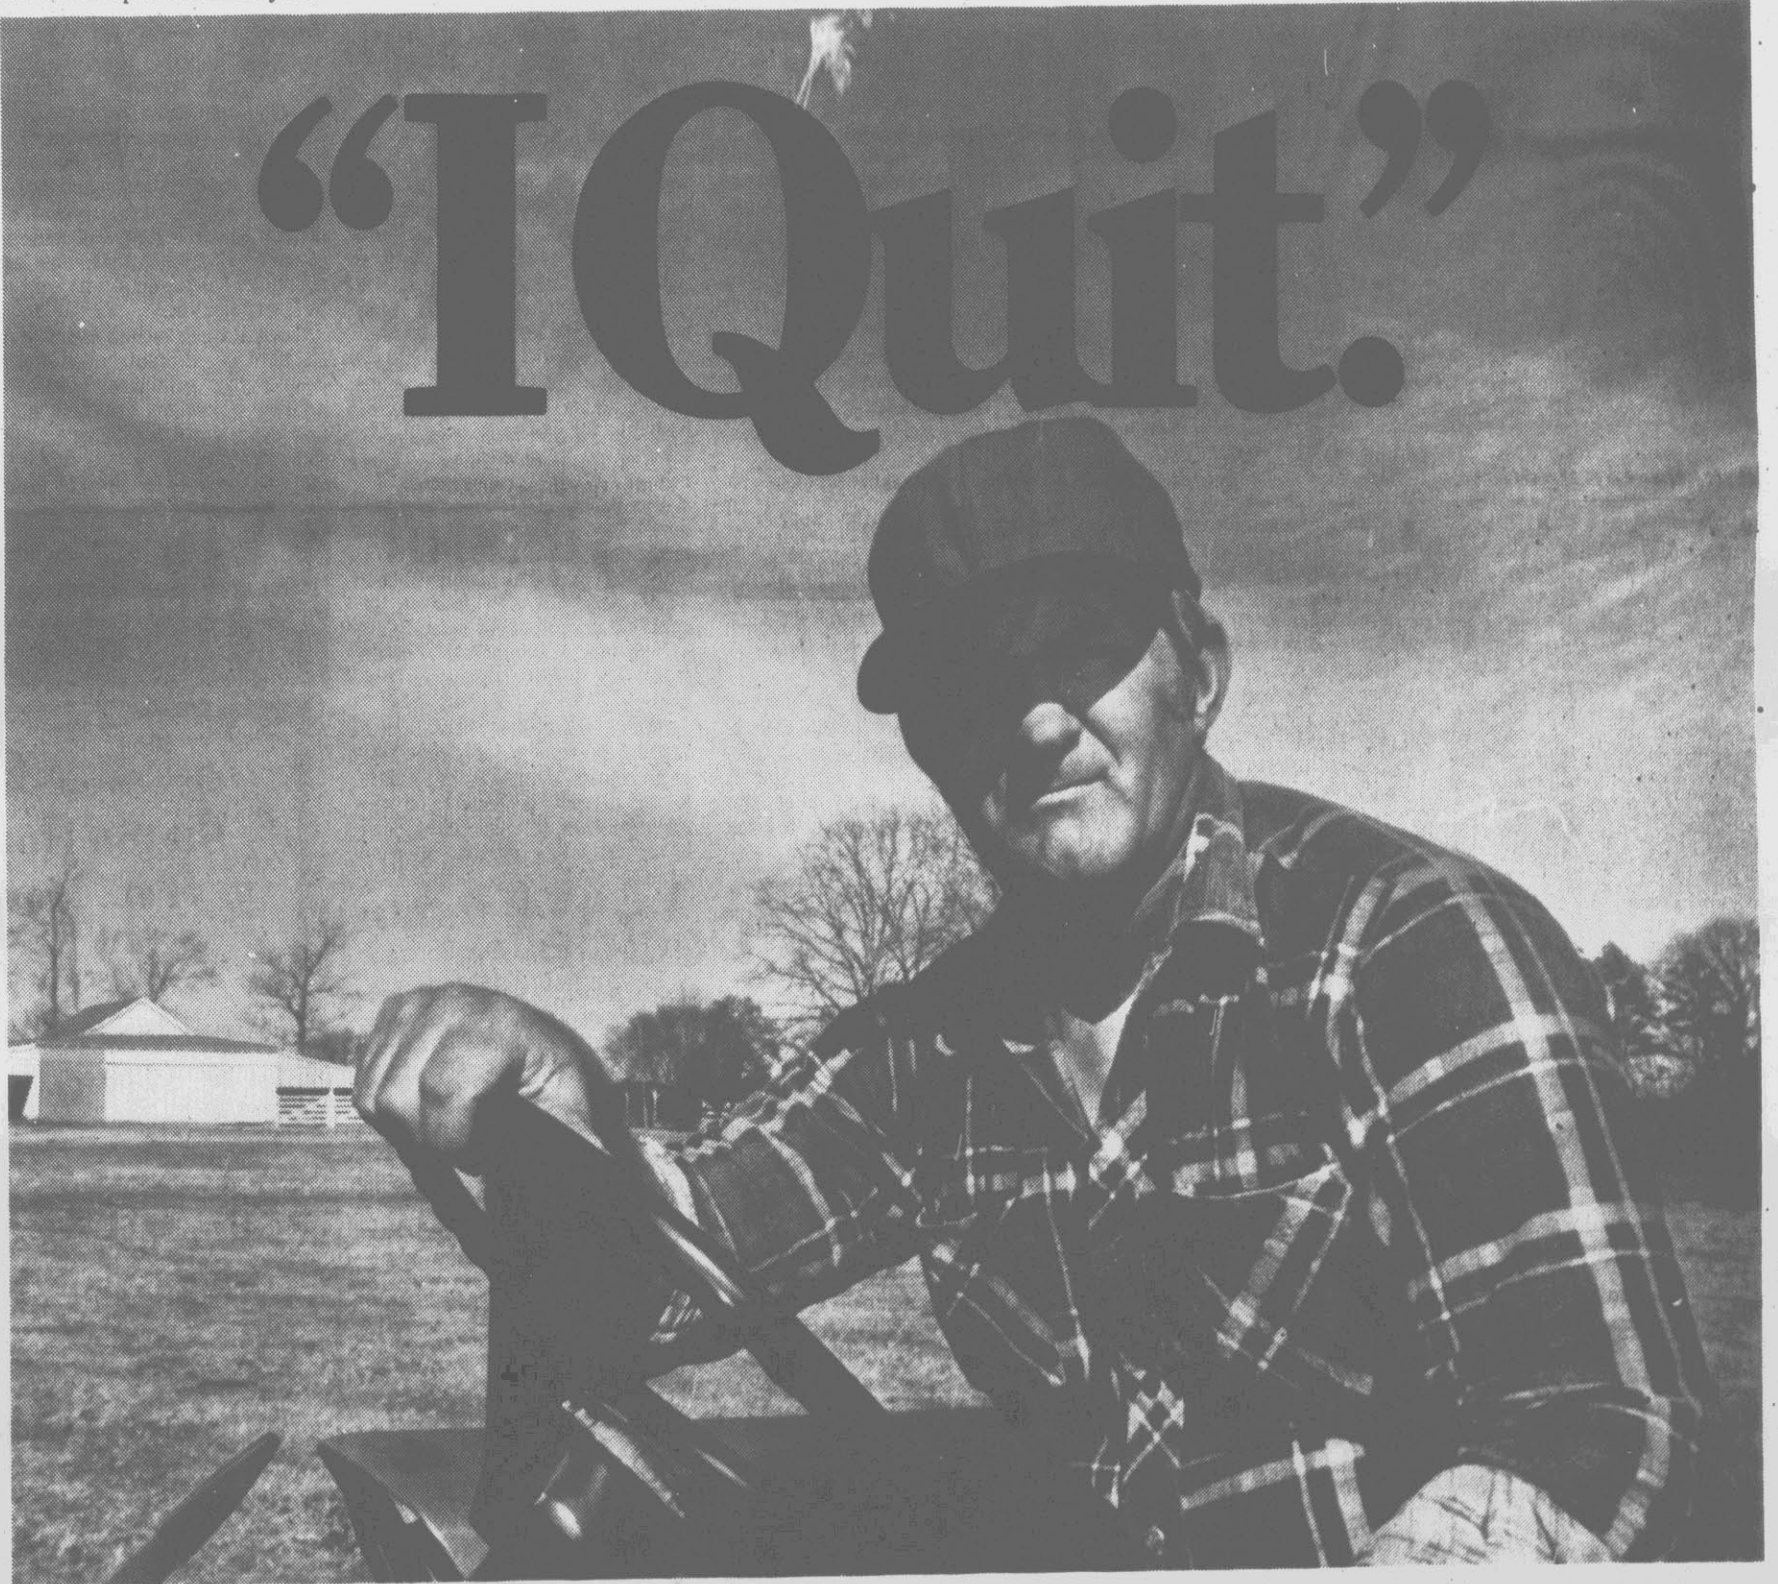

"It is with deep regret that I must confirm the shooting and the death of an American army officer by a Soviet soldier in the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) on the afternoon of Sunday, March 24," a statement by spokesman Thomas A. Homan said.

"The officer was on duty as a member of the U.S. military liaison mission in Potsdam (East Germany)," the statement said. "An urgent investigation is under way to determine the exact circumstance of this unfortunate incident."

Officers at the Potsdam missions are allowed to travel around East Germany except in restricted areas named by the Soviets, such as Soviet military installations. In Washington, a State Department official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the slain officer "was not in a restricted area."

The U.S. mission was one of three set up in Potsdam after World War II by the three Western Allied powers — the United States, Britain and France — as a liaison with the Soviet forces in East Germany.

At the time the missions were established, in the late 1940s, Communist East Germany was still the Soviet-occupied zone.

Last Year 60,000 Farmers Said It. Here's Why.

Weather, machinery costs, market prices and governmental interference are the worries that have forced thousands of farmers to quit. But, when you diversify tobacco and row crop operations by raising chickens for Perdue, most of these worries are reduced or eliminated.

Perdue chickens have an ever increasing consumer demand that must be supplied in greater quantity than ever before. That demand plus Perdue's liberal producer contract arrangements make a Perdue poultry house the ideal choice for the farm family that wants to remain on the farm.

Talk to a Perdue representative about a greater percentage return than other crops, a substantial positive cash flow, investment tax credit and all the other Perdue incentives that make growing for Perdue so good.

Keep on farming, but add a sure-fire cash crop—growing chickens for Perdue. Return the coupon, or call us collect at (919) 795-4151, and let's talk chicken.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, giving back some of last week's gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 20.10 points last week, dropped 8.40 to 1,259.05 in the first half hour today.

Losers took an 8-5 lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that investors were faced with many uncertainties involving the outlook for interest rates.

The Federal Reserve's policy-setting Open Market Committee is scheduled to meet Tuesday to discuss how credit conditions should be managed in the weeks ahead.

The committee, as usual, is faced with a difficult balancing act as it considers such factors as the recent volatility of the dollar in foreign exchange and evidence of slower-than-expected growth in the economy for the first quarter of 1985.

Traders also will be watching the response of the credit markets to the government's sale of $16.25 billion in notes and bonds.

Another problem for the market was International Business Machines' announcement late Friday that it would report lower earnings for the first quarter.

However, IBM shares, which fell 1 point on Friday, recovered 1/4 to 128 in the early going today.

Losers on the active list included ITT, down 7/8 at 34 1/2; Eastman Kodak, down 1/2 at 66 1/2, and Johnson & Johnson, 1/8 lower at 39 3/4.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .77 to 1,267.45.

Declines outnumbered advances by about 4 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 99.25 million shares, against 95.93 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .20 to 103.65. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .10 at 224.99.

Order Reversed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An appeals court says "there's no way" the country music group Alabama breached its contract when it left its manager in 1981, and reversed a 2-year-old lower court ruling.

The state Court of Appeals on Wednesday reversed a $1.8 million judgment against the group, voted entertainer of the year the past three years by the Country Music Association.

The trial court ruled in April 1983 that the band, famous for hits like "Mountain Music," "Roll On" and "There's No Way," breached its exclusive contract with International House of Talent when it changed to Dale Morris and Associates Inc. in June 1981.

Corman, 58, famous for motorcycle and beach movies, built his last company, New World Pictures Inc., into the largest independent distribution concern in the country, then sold it in 1983.

Pentagon May Require Military Doctors To Have State Licenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department is moving to require that its active-duty doctors and dentists have valid state licenses — something that one in five now lacks, the Pentagon's top health official says.

Dr. William Mayer, the assistant secretary of defense for health affairs, says a mandatory licensing directive is being drafted even though he believes the overall quality of military care is "superior to the national community standard."

A state license has never been required for physicians who enter the military directly from medical school. That would change under the new directive, which ultimately will affect more than 3,500 military physicians, dentists and clinical psychologists.

Mayer informed the surgeons general of the Army, Navy and Air Force of his decision last week during a closed-door meeting. He said in an interview last Friday that he expected his draft directive to be signed by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and take effect by summer.

Physicians already working for the Defense Department will be given a grace period of up to three years to gain their accreditation. The directive will apply immediately to new doctors seeking to enter the service.

Mayer said state licenses are not required "if a person comes directly from his education into the service, and in case of physicians, does his first or first and second post-graduate years of training in the service."

Nonetheless, Mayer said the large number of physicians found to be working without valid state licenses was a surprise. While offering several medical reasons for changing the old policy, he acknowledged the decision was prompted in part by public perception.

The directive comes at a time when the Pentagon has had to confront several well-publicized malpractice claims as well as internal audits critical of service hospitals for failing to adequately investigate the backgrounds of newly hired health professionals.

"It's partly a problem of perception," Mayer said. "Since much of medicine is still an art that has to do with the patient's feelings about who's taking care of him — the so-called doctor-patient relationship — we think it's important enough that it (the requirement) needs to be added."

"We've established now that a varying percentage of active-duty professionals, ranging from about 15 to 30 percent depending on the service and at different times, don't have an active current medical license," he said. "It runs probably about 20 percent overall. We've decided that it would be wise to make sure everybody has a license."

Mayer's directive will apply to doctors, dentists and clinical psychologists, as well as nurses, although his survey discovered virtually all military nurses already hold state licenses. The Pentagon says there are approximately 13,000 doctors, 11,300 nurses and 5,000 dentists on active duty. The number of clinical psychologists was not available, but the total was said to be fewer than 180.

Using Mayer's overall estimate of 20 percent without valid state licenses, that would mean some 2,600 military physicians and 1,000 military dentists are practicing without state accreditation.

Mayer declined to provide exact figures or to break out the numbers of unlicensed physicians for each service. However, another official who asked not to be named said the figures varied by type of doctor as well as service. For example, a higher percentage of military dentists have state licenses than physicians, the official said, and a higher percentage of physicians appear to have state licenses than psychologists.

Wolfpack, Heels Ousted As Big East Dominates

By The Associated Press
The Big East suddenly looms even bigger.

Only 6 years old, the Big East has become the first conference ever to place three teams in the Final Four of the NCAA basketball tournament. And it did so at the expense of the Atlantic Coast Conference, which had three teams eliminated in head-to-head play with the Big East in the regional finals over the weekend and five of six during the tournament.

The Final Four in Lexington, Ky., next weekend will consist of three members of the top five in the final Associated Press poll — top-ranked Georgetown, No. 3 St. John's and No. 5 Memphis State — along with the unranked Villanova Wildcats.

"We made a pact before we played a game as freshmen that before we finished that we would go to the Final Four," Ed Pinckney, one of Villanova's four seniors, said after the Wildcats stunned seventh-ranked North Carolina 56-44 Sunday to win the Southeast Regional at Birmingham, Ala. "We've finally done it. There aren't any words to describe how I feel."

It was an emotional day, too, for Lou Carnesecca, the 60-year-old St. John's coach, as the Redmen made the Final Four for the first time since 1952.

"When I looked at the clock and saw five seconds left, I thought, 'That's it, we're going, we're going,'" Carnesecca said moments after St. John's defeated No. 16 North Carolina State 69-60 in the NCAA West Regional at Denver. Carnesecca said he was "very much elated, very happy. After 1,000 games, this one... when I'm going down into the grave, this is the one I'll remember."

However, St. John's drew the unenviable task of playing defending NCAA champion Georgetown for the fourth time this season in next Saturday's second game. The Redmen took one of their three previous meetings against Georgetown, which captured the East Regional on Saturday with a 60-54 triumph over sixth-ranked Georgia Tech at Providence, R.I.

In Saturday's opener, Villanova meets Metro Conference champion Memphis State, which edged No. 4 Oklahoma 63-61 on Saturday in the Midwest final at Dallas.

Villanova, 23-10, overcame a cold first half — 23 percent shooting and a 22-17 deficit — and Harold Pressley, Dwayne McClain and reserve Harold Jensen put the Wildcats in control with six points each during a 22-7 run early in the second half. They shot 76 percent — 16 of 21 — in the second half while limiting North Carolina to 45 percent for the game.

Villanova, which last appeared in the Final Four in 1971, was led by Pressley with 15 points, McClain and Gary McLain with 11 each and Jensen with 10, all in the second half. Brad Daugherty had 17 points for North Carolina, 27-9.

Villanova trailed 26-21 early in the second half before Pinckney started a 10-0 spurt with a layup. After North Carolina cut the lead to a point, Jensen hit three jump shots and Pressley added two baskets for a 43-33 lead with 8:13 to play.

"I started Jensen in the second half on a whim," said Coach Rollie Massimino.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said Villanova's defense "was more active than I've seen it on tape. We weren't really sharp in the second half. This is the time to be sharp, and Villanova certainly was."

As usual, St. John's, 31-3, was led by Chris Mullin with 25 points and Walter Berry with 19. But the Redmen didn't pull away from North Carolina State until the final two minutes.

Mullin's rebound basket and two subsequent free throws gave the Redmen a 47-42 lead midway through the second half. With 6:18 left, the 6-6 Mullin, in a mismatch against State's 5-7 Anthony "Spud" Webb, went inside for a three-point play. A minute later he popped a 15-foot jumper over Webb for a 56-48 lead.

Student Trainer Aids ECU Crash Victims

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

In the aftermath of an accident — especially one in which a fatal injury occurs — one sometimes misses an unsung hero.

Sunday morning, when an accident fatally injured one East Carolina track athlete and hurt several others, that unsung hero was student trainer Joel Beam of Gastonia.

Beam, a junior at East Carolina, has spent three years in the sports medicine program and is in his third year as a student trainer under Director of Sports Medicine Rod Compton and his staff.

During the previous two years, Beam has been taught about the care and treatment of athletic injuries, but what greeted him Sunday morning was not what he'd expected.

Still, according to his superiors at the university and to track Coach Bill Carson, he performed outstandingly.

"He did a fantastic job," Carson said. "What we had was something akin to a triage situation like you would expect in the military. But he took command. He worked with Erskine (Evans, who later died of the injuries he sustained) and the others and kept everything going. His experience and leadership gave me and the rest of the team the confidence we needed to come through this and do the right thing.

We were very fortunate to have him to guide and direct us."

Beam, who is hoping to go to graduate school and become a certified athletic trainer, was driving the lead van of the two, and saw part of what happened.

"I just happened to glance into the rear view mirror," he related. "I saw the van swerve, go off the road and then back on it again. It flipped over on its side and then went end-over-end. Headlights were going everywhere; it was really weird. I've never seen anything like it."

Beam said that he quickly swung the van around in the median and pulled back to the wrecked van, playing his headlights on the vehicle as it lay partially on the road and partially in the median.

"He was out of the van in an instant," Carson recalled, "getting things going."

"The first thing we wanted to do was to get everyone out, in case there was a fire," Beam said. Several athletes had been thrown from the van and several were getting out when he got back to it. They, and team members from the other van helped get everyone out except the driver.

"He was stuck inside and we couldn't get his seat belt off. I went back to the van for my scissors, but they got him out in the meanwhile," Beam said.

Beam and Carson immediately made an effort to determine the extent of the injuries, and it quickly became apparent that Evans was the most seriously injured.

"He was breathing on his own, but was a little congested. His jaws were spasmed shut, and I didn't have an oral screw with me. But I got a tongue depressor and got his mouth open to make sure he was okay as far as breathing was concerned. I checked his eyes and it was apparent he'd had a bad head injury. And I knew he was in trouble."

Beam said he made Evans as comfortable as possible and assigned a teammate to watch him while he checked the other injured. "I told him to call me back immediately if there was any change at all, but there wasn't any. I thought that there might be a possibility he'd need CPR (cardio-pulmonary respiration)."

Meanwhile, Beam used his training and equipment to dress wounds, using sterile gauze dressings from his trainer's kit. "I don't know if it helped that much, but at least the dressings were sterile, not just something someone picked up to use."

A car pulled up about two minutes after the accident and the driver was asked to contact rescue personnel. "We found out later that he called, but gave the wrong location. About six or seven minutes later, another car came by and that driver called in the proper information. The ambulances started arriving about 14 or 15 minutes after the accident."

By then, Beam and Carson had decided on which of the athletes needed the quickest treatment, and Evans was placed in the first ambulance for transport. He was taken to Wilson and later moved to Pitt Memorial, where he died Sunday about 10 a.m. of massive head injuries.

"Once the rescue people arrived, I kind of faded back. I didn't want to get in the way," Beam said. "Coach loaded us all in the other van and we went on to the hospital."

"I've got to compliment the Wilson Hospital on its treatment of the team," Carson added. "They did a super job in taking care of them."

"But I just can't say enough for Joel. I don't know what we'd have done without him," he said. Beam said he operated on instinct and training. "I was wearing only a tee shirt when it happened, and it was cold, but I never felt it until we left the hospital (Sunday) morning to come back to Greenville. I don't think I really began to feel what had happened until about 10:30 (Sunday)."

"We're trained in taking care of athletic injuries, not automobile accidents. But most of the injuries that could be helped were the same type you might see. Having sterile dressings to put on them was a help. And, of course, I knew more than what, say, a Boy Scout might know in giving treatment. I knew the signs of injury to look for."

It's been a long time since an active East Carolina athlete was killed in an accident, officials recalled. The last time was back in 1967 when football player Robert Farris died in a single car accident returning to school for the start of fall practice. Two years earlier, another football player, Norman Swindell, drowned in a hunting accident.

Joel Beam is hopeful that there won't be another for a long, long time.

Whisnant Heads All-State

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Cherryville forward Terry Whisnant and Kinston center Charles Shackleford were the top vote-getters on The Associated Press boys' high school all-state squad announced today.

Raleigh Broughton guard Jill Goldberg and Bandys forward Beth Laney paced the girls' all-state team with 15 votes each from a panel of 27 sports writers across the state.

All five players on the boys' team are seniors, while three seniors made the girls' team along with a junior and sophomore. The boys team also includes two repeaters.

Whisnant, a 6-foot-5 senior, was named on 15 ballots while Shackleford, a 6-9 senior, got 13 votes. Chuckie Brown of North Brunswick and Eric English of Hillsborough Orange each received 12 votes while Marty Hensley of McDowell got seven votes.

Shackleford and English made the first-team for the second straight year, while Whisnant was a second-team selection last year.

Rounding out the girls' team were Andrea Stinson of North Mecklenburg, who got 14 votes, East Forsyth's Renee Williams (10) and West Caldwell's Schonna Banner (10).

Whisnant averaged 20 points and 16 rebounds an outing to lead Cherryville to the state title with a 82-75 victory over Whiteville Friday. Whisnant, who scored 30 points against Whiteville, will play football for North Carolina next season.

Shackleford averaged 16.4 points and 10.6 rebounds while also blocking 62 shots for the Vikings. Shackleford has signed a basketball scholarship with North Carolina State.

Brown, a 6-8 senior, scored at a 25-point clip while also pulling down 10 rebounds per outing. He will also play for N.C. State.

English, a 6-1 senior guard, averaged 20.4 points, 6.4 rebounds and 5.0 assists a game for Hillsborough Orange. Hensley, a 6-11 senior center, averaged 20.3 points and 14 rebounds per game while also blocking about five shots a game.

Hensley will play for North Carolina next year.

On the girls' squad, Goldberg, a 5-9 senior guard, averaged 17.4 points, 4.5 assists and 3.5 rebounds. Goldberg, a second-team pick last year, scored 20 points Friday night to lead the Caps past High Point Central 51-49 for the 4-A state title.

Laney, a 5-10 senior forward, scored at a 18-point clip and also hauled down nine rebounds a game. Stinson was the only sophomore named to either the first- or second-team after averaging 22 points a game. Stinson, a 5-9 forward, also grabbed nine rebounds a game.

Williams, a 6-4 senior center, averaged 32.8 points and 25 rebounds per game. She will play for N.C.

State next year.

Banner, a 6-2 junior center, averaged 19.7 points and nine rebounds an outing.

Making the boys' second-team were: Avie Lester of Roxboro Person, Kenny Poston of Cherryville, Walter Walker of Statesville, Tony Dawson of Kinston and Mike Washington of Monroe Parkwood.

Stephenson Ends Streak

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Jan Stephenson snapped a long winless string and became the LPGA's latest millionaire in the process Sunday when she shot a 75 that was good enough for a one-stroke victory in the $250,000 GNA tournament.

Stephenson finished the tournament at the difficult Oakmont Country Club course at 2-over-par 290, a stroke ahead of Amy Alcott, Pat Bradley and Barbara Moxness.

After carding a bogey on No.17 to allow the trio — all of whom already had finished play — to within one shot of her lead, Stephenson parred the final hole to save the victory.

She lagged her fourth shot on the par-five 18th to within a foot of the hole for a tap-in, which she then made.

Alcott shot a final-round 71, Bradley had a 72, and Moxness a 73.

Nancy Lopez, still winless in 1985, finished two shots back of the winner at 292 with a closing 73.

Bonnie Lauer, Atsuko Hikage of Japan, Lauren Howe, and Kathryn Young finished at 293.

Pearl Sinn, the 17-year-old high school senior who was the only amateur in the field, had a final-round 77 to finish at 296, tied for 15th. She had shared the first-day lead with a 70, then remained within striking distance of the lead during the next two days.

Stephenson hadn't won for almost two years. But during the final round of the GNA tournament, she was able to successfully hold off challenges by five different players.

She began the final 18 holes with a three-stroke lead, but during the round, Lopez, Becky Pearson, Moxness, Bradley and Lauer each were within a single shot of the lead at various times.

Strange Sinks Putt For Las Vegas Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It's already a good year for Curtis Strange. In fact, it's a very good year, the best he's ever had.

And he has every intention of making it a better one.

"I've got something to rest on now," Strange said Sunday after his second victory of the season in the Panasonic Las Vegas Invitational golf tournament.

"I don't want to put my foot in my mouth and make any predictions that I might be sorry for," Strange cautioned. "But now I've won two early. I've got a chance to have a really good year now."

"This brings a lot of things into the picture — leading money-winner, almost anything."

Even though the season is less than one-quarter gone, the money-winning title became a realistic possibility when Strange dropped a 6-foot birdie putt on the 90th hole of the five-day tournament and claimed the biggest prize in American golf, $171,000.

That huge check pushed his season winnings to $332,344, by far the best on the Tour and well over his earnings for any previous year.

He won this one with a closing, 5-under-par 66 and a 338 total, 17 under par on the Las Vegas Country Club course. In addition to staking him to the money-winning lead, it enabled him to join Lanny Wadkins and Mark O'Meara as the double winners for 1985, virtually assured him of a place on the Ryder Cup team, and stamped him as a prime contender for the important Tournament Players Championship this week in Ponte Vedra, Fla.

"I'm playing well now," said Strange, who has finished first, fourth and first in his last three starts.

"Hopefully, I'll keep improving. You can't play good golf every day. You can't play good golf every week. You just can't do that."

"But I expect to play well in the TPC."

The Masters, only three weeks away, is a different story.

He isn't even sure he'll be playing. His wife, Sarah, is expecting their second child "the Friday of August," Strange said.

"I'm going to try to play the Masters. But I don't know if I'll be able to," he said.

Strange took the lead with three consecutive birdies beginning on the sixth hole but had to survive three major challenges to acquire the seventh title of his career.

The first was from Tom Watson, the six-time Player of the Year who led through the third and fourth rounds. Watson, however, drove out of bounds into a construction site on the 12th hole, made double bogey and followed with a bogey from a bunker on the 13th. He wasn't a factor again.

Next, it was Jay Haas, who was within a stroke of the lead until he dumped his second shot in the water on the par-5 18th and made double bogey.

And, finally, there was the longshot Mike Smith, a 34-year-old career struggler. Playing in front of Strange, he uncorked a birdie-birdie-birdie finish that lifted him into a brief tie for the lead.

That presented Strange with the need for a birdie on the last hole to win.

Gamblers Down Breakers

By The Associated Press

Although Jim Kelly wasn't the passing ace he usually is, the Houston Gamblers still are holding five of a kind — all victories.

The Gamblers, the only 5-0 team in the United States Football League, accumulated a net of only 254 yards in total offense, a record low in the team's 23-game history, in Sunday's 27-20 decision over the Portland Breakers. Kelly, who had 17 touchdown passes in his first four games, added only two scoring tosses while completing 18 of 32 passes.

"I didn't have the stats that everyone expected in this one but the big thing is that we came back and won the game," Kelly said.

Actually, it was Portland that came back to make the game close, scoring two fourth-quarter touchdowns to tie the score 20-20 before Kelly handed to Sam Harrell for the game-winning TD from a yard out with 54 seconds left.

In other USFL games Sunday, New Jersey tripped Tampa Bay 28-24, Birmingham edged Baltimore 7-3 in a mud bath and Oakland defeated Memphis 31-19. On Saturday night, Arizona whipped Los Angeles 27-13.

Tonight, San Antonio is at Denver.

Portland quarterback Matt Robinson had better numbers than Kelly, hitting 21 of 33 passes for 289 yards and one touchdown, while Breakers running back Dwight Beverly rushed for 103 yards, including a 6-yard touchdown that tied the score with 3:38 to play. Earlier in the fourth period, Robinson passed 32 yards to Vince Williams to get within a touchdown.

But early in the game, Portland blew several scoring chances.

"This was the first time we really got tested on the running game," Houston linebacker Kiki DeAyala said. "But they couldn't stay with it because we finally came out and played well defensively when we had to."

"You put the ball inside the 20 four times and come away with only three points and it really hurts," Robinson said.

"I'd give the defense TWO game balls for this one," Kelly said.

Kelly hit touchdown shots of 50 yards to Vince Courville and 13 yards to Mark Barousse and Toni Fritsch added field goals of 25 and 42 yards prior to Harrell's game-winner.

Houston's Clarence Verdin set up the winning drive with a 45-yard kickoff return, leaving the Gamblers only 48 yards to go for their final touchdown.

"The whole game was returns and they got the big one," said Portland Coach Dick Coury, who saw his team fall to 2-3.

Generals 28, Bandits 24

New Jersey crossed up Tampa Bay with a running play in the final minute and Herschel Walker scored the winning touchdown from 13 yards out with 24 seconds remaining.

"They were expecting us to throw all the way," Generals Coach Walt Michaels said. "So we crossed them up with a quick pitch to Herschel and he just ran it in there."

Walker's TD climaxed a Generals rally from a 24-14 deficit and left both teams with 3-2 records.

Flutie, who hit 11 of 22 passes for 165 yards and two TDs, started New Jersey's comeback when he capped a 62-yard drive by firing a 7-yard TD pass to Walter Broughton with 5:05 left. Broughton also caught Flutie's 33-yard TD pass in the second quarter.

Bandits quarterback John Reeves completed 20 of 39 passes for 39 yards, including a 64-yard scoring pass play to Eric Truvillion.

Stallions 7, Stars 3

Birmingham improved its record to 4-1 as Joe Cribbs scored the game's only touchdown on a 10-yard run in the third period.

Baltimore, the defending USFL champions, scored only on a third-quarter field goal by David Trout after a drive stalled at the four.

The Stars, 1-3-1, also lost their leading runner, Kelvin Bryant, due to a pulled hamstring in the first quarter.

Invaders 31, Showboats 19

Bobby Hebert threw second-quarter touchdown passes of 1 yard to Gordon Banks and 15 yards to Anthony Carter and fullback Albert Bentley ran for 148 yards for Oakland against Memphis.

Walter Lewis fired three scoring passes game in a losing cause — 24 yards to Greg Moser in the first period, 5 yards to Mark Raugh in the second and 14 yards to Derrick Crawford in the fourth.

The Invaders improved their record to 3-1-1, while Memphis is 3-2.

Sixers Crush Denver 124-103

By The Associated Press

For many National Basketball Association teams, a three-game losing streak is no special cause for alarm. When it happens to the Philadelphia 76ers, however, it's time to call a summit meeting.

The 76ers players, who virtually fell out of their first-place race with the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division because of the losing streak, had an air-clearing talk among themselves Sunday before routing the Midwest Division-leading Denver Nuggets 124-103.

"We tried to establish a new direction because we had lost three in a row," said Julius Erving, who hit 11 of 14 shots from the field and scored 22 points for the 76ers. "We were talking with one another, talking about our pluses and minuses in such a way that no one took it the wrong way."

"It does some good for a team to get together and talk things out," reserve forward George Johnson said. "It was good for us to close the doors and talk among ourselves about what we're doing and what we'd like to be doing."

But despite Sunday's triumph and a gaudy 52-19 record, the 76ers are still five games behind the Celtics.

In other games, San Antonio defeated Seattle 104-99, the Los Angeles Lakers outscored Detroit 148-130 and Utah routed Chicago 110-92.

Guard Andrew Toney paced the 76ers' triumph, posting the first "triple double" of his four-year career with 28 points, 12 assists and 11 rebounds. Moses Malone added 20 points and 16 rebounds.

Lakers 148, Pistons 130

Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 25 points, 19 assists and 10 rebounds, his 11th "triple-double" of the season, leading Los Angeles to its 10th straight victory.

Detroit trailed only 103-95 at the end of the third quarter, but a 32-11 streak in the first eight minutes of the fourth period put the Lakers, who hit 65.3 percent of their shots for the game, in control.

Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Detroit guard Isiah Thomas led each of their teams with 30 points.

Abdul-Jabbar was 15-for-19 from the field to surpass the previous NBA record for field-goals attempted, 24,272 by Elvin Hayes. Abdul-Jabbar now has 24,289.

Spurs 104, Sonics 99

Backup center Ozell Jones scored 10 of his 13 points, blocked three shots and grabbed seven of his 11 rebounds in an eight-minute span of the second quarter to give San Antonio the lead for good against Seattle.

The Spurs, who had six players with 10-16 points, led by as many as 12 points in the second period before settling for a 65-57 halftime lead.

George Gervin scored eight of his 15 points in the fourth quarter to help defuse a Sonic rally led by Tim McCormick and Tom Chambers, who scored 29 and 26 points, respectively.

Jazz 110, Bulls 92

Utah outscored Chicago 71-49 in the second half to roll to victory.

The Jazz didn't take the lead for good until the 6:18 mark of the third period, when Mark Eaton, who had 12 points, 18 rebounds and eight blocked shots, hit the second of two consecutive hook shots to make it 54-52.

Adrian Dantley scored 29 points and Darrell Griffith 25 to lead Utah, while rookie Michael Jordan paced the Bulls with 26.

Past NCAA Champions Crowd NIT Final Four

The NCAA Tournament may be the biggest in the world of college basketball, but in comparing the respective Final Fours the National Invitation Tournament doesn't have to take a backseat where tradition is concerned.

UCLA, Indiana and Louisville, all of which own NCAA championships, are heading for New York this week, along with Tennessee. Indiana outlasted Marquette 94-82 in double overtime Sunday night while Louisville downed Tennessee-Chattanooga 71-66.

On Saturday, UCLA trimmed

Fresno State 53-43 and Tennessee beat Virginia 61-54. The home team won all the quarterfinal contests.

"I think anybody that would ever wonder about the good of the NIT only has to look to this game," said Indiana Coach Bob Knight, whose Hoosiers have won two NCAA championships and one NIT crown.

"We played about as well as we can play. We talked coming into the game that we really hadn't won a game that really meant anything since December. We just couldn't win a game that let us go on to something. I'm happy for our players, regardless of what happens in New York."

On Wednesday night, Indiana meets Tennessee and UCLA faces Louisville. The finals will be held Friday night.

Steve Alford scored 29 points and Indiana rallied with free throws at the end of regulation play and in the first overtime, then pulled away with 10 more foul shots in the second extra period.

The Hoosiers scored the final five points of the first overtime, including two free throws by Alford with 33 seconds left and one by Uwe Blab after time had expired to tie the game 76-76.

called his defensive strategy a "calculated risk. That's why Chris is an All-American; he made two great plays there."

Lorenzo Charles, who didn't score until late in the first half, led North Carolina State, 23-10, with 15 points.

"You think about this as soon as you start playing ball," said Mullin, a member of the Gold Medal United States Olympic team. "If you're a college basketball player, this is the ultimate. The Olympics was a great experience and I think this is probably pretty equivalent."

Georgetown is in the Final Four for the third time in four years and Coach John Thompson said: "We gear everything we do to the tournament. This is the Big Top, where the pressure is, where the excitement is. We consider ourselves America's team."

The Hoyas used an unusual route to get to the Final Four. Saddled with four fouls, All-America center Patrick Ewing missed most of the second half and point guard Michael Jackson missed half of it. But Ralph Dalton stepped in for Ewing and Horace Broadnax filled Jackson's playmaking role.

Georgetown, 34-2, trailed 42-38 with 10:15 left but outscored the Yellow Jackets 22-12 the rest of the way for its 16th consecutive triumph. Broadnax had seven points and Dalton six in that stretch. Dalton also led all players with six rebounds and sank both ends of a one-and-one to give Georgetown a 58-54 lead with 14 seconds to go. Ewing led the Hoyas with 14 points.

"It's not a strange way to win," said Jackson. "We've been doing that all year. You never know on our team who is going to come out and be the hero."

Georgetown led Georgia Tech's Mark Price, a second-team All-American, to just three of 16 shots.

Gastonia Tops E.E. Smith For State 4-A Prep Title

While he didn't consider the contest an artistic success, Gastonia Hunter Huss coach G.C. Harrill is more than pleased with his team's 40-37 victory over Fayetteville E.E. Smith for the N.C. High School Athletic Association 4-A boys' championship.

"I love it," Harrill said. "We didn't play a very good game offensively, but we had it when we needed it."

What Harrill had was Dirk Floyd's eight-foot baseline jumper with nine seconds left to secure the victory. Huss trailed throughout most of the third period, but once the Huskies gained command in the fourth period, Harrill got clutch performances from Floyd's cousins, Daryl and Perry.

The Huskies shot 28.3 percent from the field but finished their season at 20-9. Dirk Floyd finished with 14 points and Chris Davidson added 10. James Hardister's 10 points led Smith, which finished the year at 24-6.

In other championship games, Sammy Gibson scored 23 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead West Carteret to a 66-59 victory over Statesville in the boys' 3-A title game.

Orrum cruised to a 65-36 triumph over Edneyville in the girls' 1-A championship game, while Southwest Guilford successfully defended its 2-A title with a 75-66 victory over South Robeson.

Gibson helped West Carteret gain a 38-26 halftime lead by scoring 14 points. When guard Kelly Willis fouled out in the fourth period, Statesville tried to take advantage by using a quicker lineup. The Greyhounds got to within 61-59 but Todd Gabriel missed a one-and-one opportunity and West Carteret pulled away at the free throw line.

"We made some bad passes and kind of relaxed," West Carteret coach Billy Widgeon said. "We tightened up and they just stayed after us."

Walter Walker's 22 points paced Statesville, 24-6. West Carteret closes at 25-5.

Edneyville led 9-8 at the end of the first quarter, but Orrum rallied for 11 straight points and put its opponents away. Nettie Williams led the way with 22 points as Orrum won its 59th straight game and closed this season at 30-0.

Southwest Guilford maintained control throughout its championship battle, keeping South Robeson at bay until Osaie Leach's five straight points at the start of the third period pulled the Mustangs to within 40-37. That was as close as they would get.

Derita Craig and Lesley Springs scored 20 points apiece to pace Southwest Guilford, which raised its record to 27-3. Leach led all scorers with 34 points as South Robeson ended the year at 23-5.

In Friday night's games, Clarkton downed Edneyville 57-47 in the boys' 1-A final and Cherryville stopped Whiteville 82-75 in the 2-A championship.

West Caldwell defeated Farmville Central 65-54 in the 3-A girls final and Raleigh Broughton rallied for a 51-49 victory over High Point Central in the 4-A matchup.

Oscar Rehearsals Carried Out Under Tight Security

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences, stung by criticism of last year's Oscar telecast, clamped a lid of secrecy on the rehearsal for tonight's award ceremony, barring spectators from the run-through.

Academy spokesman Bob Werden said before Sunday's rehearsal at the Los Angeles Music Center that the four producers of this year's show had decreed "a closed set" but would not say why.

The Academy's sensitivity about the rehearsal, which is normally open to reporters and spectators, apparently stemmed from criticisms of last year's TV show and widely circulated promises that this year's show will be shorter and better.

Outside the Music Center, flocks of movie fans with cameras and autograph books gathered in the warm sunshine to see the stars arrive.

Kirk Douglas, in blue jeans and a denim jacket, waved to the fans as he arrived to rehearse his role as a presenter of the golden Oscar.

Burt Lancaster and Diana Ross were greeted with loud cheers from the crowd.

Around the corner, fans who planned to stay overnight saved seats in the outdoor bleachers — a prime viewing area for the arrival of gowned and bejeweled stars when the real thing gets under way tonight.

The 57th annual Academy Awards, expected to be seen by some 1 billion television viewers around the world, goes on the air live at 6 p.m. (9 p.m. EST) with no clear favorite to sweep the show.

"Amadeus" with a whopping 11 nominations was the favorite for best picture. "A Passage to India" also had 11 nominations.

"Amadeus" nominations also include Milos Forman for best director and F. Murray Abraham and Tom Hulce for best actor.

"The Killing Fields," a searing story of a reporter's experience during the war in Cambodia, was a runaway winner of the British equivalent of the Academy Awards. Its best chance for an American Oscar was Dr. Haing S. Ngor, a Cambodian first-time actor nominated for his supporting role.

For celebrity watchers, the appearances of non-nominated stars are almost as important as the brief time spent on stage by the winners. Star watching is the chief attraction for those who spend hours outside the Music Center.

"I've wanted to do this for 25 years, and I've finally made it," said Caroline Guldin, who came from Allentown, Pa., to see the stars. She said her son was holding seats in the bleachers and would stay there overnight.

"I saw Gregory Peck and Burt Lancaster," she said. "That's why I came — to see the old stars, you know, the good ones."

Teen-aged Steve Gaubert of Canoga Park, Calif., said he's been coming to rehearsal day for five years and the highlight was when he saw the late Natalie Wood.

"She stopped and talked to us and signed autographs," he said. "She was really nice. Some of the stars just run past us."

Gaubert said he would stay home and watch the actual show on TV. So will an estimated billion viewers who will see the show live on ABC-TV or on tape in 77 countries, including first-time viewers in China and Poland.

Last year's show ran a deadening three-hours, 45 minutes — a record which the show's producers promise not to duplicate.

They have warned winners to keep their acceptance speeches short and have installed a flashing red warning light at the podium to warn overtime speakers. If the speeches go on more than 45 seconds, the orchestra has been ordered to play exit music.

Jack Lemmon, a past winner, is Oscar's host this year, replacing Johnny Carson.

Time-saving devices include mass-introduction of co-hosts and presenters, about 40 in all. The quartet of producers — actor Gregory Peck, writer-producer Larry Gelbart, director Robert Wise and Academy President Gene Allen — also are spreading the big awards throughout the evening.

The five films nominated for best picture are: "Amadeus," "The Killing Fields," "A Passage to India," "Places in the Heart" and "A Soldier's Story."

Besides Abraham and Hulce of "Amadeus," nominees for best actor are Albert Finney of "Under the Volcano," Sam Waterston of "The Killing Fields" and Jeff Bridges for "Starman."

Nominees for best actress are Sally Field for "Places in the Heart," Jessica Lange of "Country," Sissy Spacek of "The River," Judy Davis of "A Passage to India" and Vanessa Redgrave, "The Bostonians."

The race for best director includes David Lean for "A Passage to India," Forman for "Amadeus," Roland Joffe for "The Killing Fields," Robert Benton for "Places in the Heart" and Woody Allen for "Broadway Danny Rose."

ABC Chief Blames 'Overconfidence'

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC founder and chairman Leonard H. Goldenson, 79, whose television network is being sold to Capital Cities Communications Inc., blames overconfidence for last-place prime-time ratings this season.

"I think our people felt that they could do no wrong whatever shows they put on because they would be promoting them during the Olympics," Goldenson was quoted as saying in the April 1 edition of Newsweek.

"The public makes the decision. And if they don't like it, they'll turn you off," he said.

On losing programming chief Fred Silverman, who directed ABC's fortunes from 1976 to 1981 before leaving for a disappointing stint at NBC, Goldenson said, "We were sorer at the time he left than we were later on."

Goldenson was also asked how ABC passed over "The Cosby Show," a smash hit this season on NBC. "It was never brought to my attention," he said. "I didn't know about (the decision not to fund a pilot) until after it was made."

Dating Easier

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Carol Burnett, two years after splitting with her husband of 20 years, says dating is easier the second time around.

"Because I'm very direct, dating is much easier now than when I was a teen-ager. My God, I'm not a teen-ager — I'm 51!" she is quoted as saying in the current issue of Family Circle magazine.

Since her 1982 divorce, she said, she has resented that many people believe each half of a couple is diminished without the other.

She and former husband, Joe Hamilton, "were more than 200 percent when we lived together, but without him I'm still at least 100 percent," she said.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Dee Snider, lead singer for the rock band Twisted Sister, says he's "out to prove to the world that heavy-metal music isn't played by idiots for idiots."

"You don't have to be stupid to like heavy metal," Snider said Sunday. Hard rock is the 1980's music of the masses, he said, because "no self-respecting kid wants to listen to a band that his father approves of."

Gas Blast Injures 21 In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A mysterious gas possibly produced by abandoned oil wells triggered an explosion that ripped through a clothing store, injuring 21 people, shattering windows and sending flames leaping through sidewalk cracks, officials said.

Two of the injured were reported in critical condition.

In addition, fire department spokesman Ed Reed said at least one employee at the shattered Ross Dress-for-Less store was unaccounted for after the 5 p.m. blast Sunday. "There's a possibility there are more victims in there," Reed said.

Gas seeping through the ground fueled flames that danced several inches high along the sidewalks on two sides of the demolished building, sometimes leaping several feet into the air through cracks and fissures.

Firefighters shut off mains that could possibly be fueling the fires and concern grew that an underground pocket of gas or abandoned well was the source.

Hundreds of people in a one-block area surrounding the store were evacuated as officials feared more explosions.

"There was debris a mile in the air, it seemed," said Kim Canada, who works at Mordigan Nursery Inc. across the street from Ross.

The explosion blew the front off the Ross store, shattering windows up to a block away and cracked the pavement around the store.

Jim Radcliffe, division manager for Southern California Gas Co., said: "What we have found just recently in our preliminary lab reports is that it is not our gas," but it wasn't precisely known what kind of gas it was.

"The way it's burning, it appears to be a methane-based gas," he said. Abandoned oil wells in the area may have produced it, he said.

"We have in our experience that those wells have leaked (in the past)," he said.

Fumes were also detected in a K mart store across the street, and fire officials vented both stores with spark-free blowers, Reed said.

Gas company service representative John Amos said he went into the basement of the K mart and found "about two inches of water in some areas of the basement and gas is seeping up through the water."

He said the gas lacks the odor which the gas company puts into its gas but instead had a "sewer type odor."

More than 100 firefighters backed by 16 engines battled the flames, fire department spokesman Jim Wells said.

Six ambulances transported 14 of the victims to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, Brotman Memorial Hospital, Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital and UCLA Medical Center and there were seven walk-ins with lesser injuries, Wells said.

Diana Lopez, 25, was in critical condition at Brotman with first-, second- and third-degree burns and Michael Armstrong, 26, suffered burns over 30 percent of his body and was also in critical condition, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Most other victims were treated for minor injuries and released, hospital officials said. Juan Bermeo, 24, a K Mart camera salesman, said he went into the Ross store immediately after the explosion and rescued a burned and bleeding man.

"I went behind into the bathroom and everything was blown," Bermeo said. "I pulled a guy out of it. He was buried in clothing and stucco and ceiling."

An unidentified security guard told firefighters that at least 75 people were in the Ross store at the time of the explosion.

More Ohio Thrift Banks Are Opening

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ohio officials are looking for the end to the nation's biggest "bank holiday" since the Great Depression, and more than 2,000 angry depositors of the troubled Home State Savings Bank are looking for their money.

Many of the 69 savings and loans closed by Gov. Richard Celeste opened their doors Saturday for the first time since March 15, with a state-imposed $750 limit on withdrawals. More were expected to reopen today, officials said.

By Sunday, 18 of the institutions that had obtained federal insurance were given the OK to operate without restrictions.

"Instead of hot air about confidence, yesterday was the day we established confidence," Robert McAlister, the new superintendent of the state Division of Savings and Loans, told a Sunday news conference in Columbus.

Home State's collapse March 9 triggered runs on the state's privately insured savings and loan associations, jeopardizing the insurance fund. That led to the largest closing of financial institutions since President Franklin D. Roosevelt declared a national "bank holiday" in 1933.

But more than 2,000 Home State depositors jammed the Xavier University fieldhouse in Cincinnati on Sunday, crowding three-deep around tables with petitions urging Celeste and state officials to unfreeze their deposits and guarantee full payment.

"They're bitter," said Mark Stachler, a depositor and meeting organizer. "What we're trying to do is control that bitterness and redirect it at state officials because they reassured us we didn't have to get into the lines (during the bank run)."

Home State depositors withdrew more than $154 million in the three days before it closed, and the S&L was loaned more than $45 million by its private insurer, the Ohio Deposit Guarantee Fund, according to a report filed Friday with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The thrifts Celeste closed also had been insured by the private fund, and the state created a fund March 13 to support deposits in all the thrifts except Cincinnati-based Home State, which is up for sale.

The $750 withdrawal limit does not apply to thrifts that have obtained federal deposit insurance or merged with a company that already had the insurance. There were 18 such S&Ls by Sunday, and McAlister said a total of 51 savings and loans have applied for federal insurance.

Although withdrawals outpaced deposits Saturday, only four thrifts had to go to the Federal Reserve Board for cash, officials said.

An Associated Press survey showed that 50 S&Ls opened Saturday for some type of business, including 10 that had received approval from the state to offer full service. Sixteen of the thrifts remained closed, with nine planning to reopen today. Telephone calls to three of the institutions were not answered.

It was reported Sunday that a consortium of major insurance companies reportedly will hear an unprecedented proposal this week to provide $1 billion worth of temporary insurance.

Zoo's Animals Slaughtered

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Shocked keepers at the children's zoo this morning found the carcasses of 64 animals, including kangaroos, sheep and a crocodile, that had been hacked to death during the night, police said.

Police Detective Sgt. Jeff Lawrence said the attackers appeared to have climbed into the children's section of the Adelaide zoo over a wooden fence and slaughtered the animals, more like pets to staff and the thousands of children who visited them.

Police said they were sure the killings were carried out by more than one person because several people would have been required to hold down some of the larger animals while they were being killed.

An antelope, a llama, kangaroos and sheep were among the larger animals attacked in the slaughter which extended indiscriminately to guinea pigs, rabbits and chickens inside a children's playhouse.

O'Neill Says Can Still Block MX In House Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill says he can still build a House majority to kill the MX missile system but that President Reagan is "pulling out every stop" to assure its survival.

"The vote is very, very close," White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan said Sunday.

The intense battle for votes was continuing today, with House members invited to a White House briefing by Reagan and chief arms negotiator Max Kampelman "on the relationship of the MX program to progress in arms control."

Meanwhile, a newspaper reported that a group of 23 House Democrats has sent a private letter to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev warning that Moscow must comply with existing arms treaties or risk "serious consequences for the future of arms control."

The most pointed reference in the letter, according to today's New York Times, was to a massive radar facility under construction near Krasnoyarsk in central Siberia, which Reagan administration officials contend violates the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

The newspaper said signers of the letter include Reps. Les Aspin of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee; Dante B. Fascell of Florida, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, and Joseph P. Addabbo of New York, chairman of the Appropriations defense subcommittee. The letter was delivered to the Soviet Embassy on Friday, the Times said.

The first of two House votes on the MX is scheduled Tuesday on whether to provide the administration with $1.5 billion for a second installment of 21 missiles. The Senate approved that plan in two carbon-copy 55-45 votes last week.

"The president is the most powerful man in the world," O'Neill said. "He has an awful lot to offer to someone who is in public life — in regards to your home district. He is pulling out all stops."

Regan, explaining his prediction of a close vote, said on NBC's "Meet the Press," "the reason is that the House leadership, although they said it was not going to be a partisan issue, started lobbying against the MX and that has made our job a lot more difficult in corraling the Democratic support that we need to go with Republicans in the House."

South African Police Pace Blacks In White District

UITENHAGE, South Africa (AP) — Police in helicopters and armored cars hurried a convoy of thousands of jeering blacks through a whites-only district after the blacks attended a funeral for victims of race riots.

Uniformed police and reservists at almost every street corner Sunday made sure the cars did not stop.

Blacks shouted, "We're going to get you, whitey!" but there was no violence in spite of the highly emotional atmosphere surrounding the police killing of 19 blacks in the same area last Thursday.

Smoldering houses filled the air with smoke after overnight clashes with police in which three people died, raising to 29 the number of blacks killed since last Thursday, according to authorities on Sunday.

Mono Badela, a reporter for the Johannesburg-based black newspaper, City Press, said at least 25,000 blacks attended Sunday's funeral, on a large open square in the black township of Kwanobuhle.

The funeral was for six blacks killed in riots two weeks ago, but only four were buried in Kwanobuhle on Sunday.

The police spokesman, Col. Gerrie van Rooyen, said about 8,000 blacks joined the funeral and procession to the cemetery. White reporters were barred from covering the funeral.

"We didn't go into the township at all during the funeral," van Rooyen said. He said there were no clashes during the day in Cape Province.

At the funeral, speakers from the United Democratic Front and other organizations opposing apartheid, the white-minority government's official system of race segregation, addressed the mourners.

After the burials, thousands of mourners traveled in cars, trucks and vans through Uitenhage en route to the black town of Langa. Nineteen black marchers were gunned down by police last Thursday in Langa in an incident that provoked outrage from government opponents and foreign governments.

Police fired on a crowd of blacks marching to the funeral for the three blacks, possibly unaware that the ceremonies had been postponed until Sunday.

Three houses, apparently those of blacks regarded as government collaborators, were torched over the weekend, and police Col. Gerrie van Rooyen said demonstrators also burned a liquor store and a shop.

Police scuffled with rioters looting the liquor store, and fired on the crowd when rioters began throwing stones and gasoline bombs at them, van Rooyen said.

He said police gunfire killed a black man and woman, and another body was later found near the scene. Seven blacks were killed Friday and Saturday.

The violence marked the latest round of agitation against the racial separation policies of the white-minority government. The discontent has been aggravated by black dissatisfaction with housing and education policies and a recession that has led to layoffs of blacks.

The government has ordered a judicial inquiry into the shootings of the 19 blacks, which it maintains happened when the blacks refused orders to leave the whites-only district through which they were marching and began throwing rocks and gasoline bombs.

Iraqi Jets Hit 2 Iranian Cities

u BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq said its jet fighters raided the Iranian city of Kashan and Iran's capital Tehran today. The raids came shortly after a mysterious explosion in Baghdad, which Iran said was the result of a missile attack.

An Iraqi military spokesman, who read a statement on state radio, said the Iraqi warplanes "returned safely after scoring accurate and effective hits on the selected targets."

He said the attacks were in response to "the attack on Baghdad and other Iraqi cities," but he said nothing about the explosion or Iran's claim that it had hit the Iraqi capital with a missile.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in London, said that an Iranian missile was fired at Baghdad in response to attacks on Iranian cities and ships headed for Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal on the northern end of the Persian Gulf.

The news agency also reported violations by Iraq of Iranian airspace near Tehran and Hamadan early today, but provided no details.

The blast in Baghdad, the fifth in 11 days, was heard shortly before 4 a.m., but no details were available about its cause or location.

The State's Child Passenger Safety Law took effect July 1, 1982. Brochures on this law are available at the Police Department.

French Teacher Kidnapped

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The head of the French Cultural Center in the Moslem port city of Tripoli in northern Lebanon is reported missing and feared kidnapped, police here said today.

Police sources in Beirut said Bernard Bonne, a French language teacher at the center, informed police in the El-Tall neighborhood of the city that Gilles Sidney Peyrolles last had been seen Saturday afternoon. Tripoli is 50 miles north of Beirut.

The sources spoke only on condition they not be identified.

Police said an investigation had been launched but that there was no word on Peyrolles' whereabouts.

Although the Lebanese army was sent into Tripoli late last year to end militia fighting, Tripoli remains largely under the control of the "Tawheed Islami," a Sunni Moslem fundamentalist group headed by Sheik Saeed Shaaban.

The report followed the kidnappings of at least four foreigners, and possibly six, in mostly Moslem west Beirut in the past two weeks. No clues have emerged to the whereabouts of any of the victims.

The kidnap victims include American journalist, Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press; two Britons and a French diplomat. Two other French citizens are missing and feared kidnapped.

Anonymous telephone callers have claimed responsibility for all the recent kidnappings, as well as the abductions of four other Americans missing in west Beirut, in the name of a group called Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War.

Meanwhile, Sheik Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, a Shiite Moslem cleric with reported links to the mysterious Hezbollah radical movement, issued a statement denouncing kidnapping.

Fadlallah, regarded by many people as the spiritual leader of Hezbollah, or Party of God, said: "As a principle, I reject kidnapping regardless of the person kidnapped."

His statement appeared in the Beirut independent newspaper An-Nahar on Sunday.

Fadlallah has said he does not believe Jihad Islami exists. Some observers say the name Jihad Islami may be a code word used by several anti-Western groups.

The 1984 federal tax legislation requires that taxpayers substantiate the business use of certain listed property with adequate contemporaneous records. Passenger automobiles are included as listed property.

The definition of a passenger automobile includes any four-wheeled vehicle designed for highway use and weighing 6,000 pounds be defined as passenger automobiles.

If a business deduction is to be claimed for any passenger automobile, the taxpayer is required to keep adequate contemporaneous records. This requirement became effective Jan. 1, 1985.

The adequate records rule can be satisfied by keeping a log or diary for each vehicle with the content including the following information: date of use, purpose of use, name of user, number of miles recorded.

A round trip to purchase farm supplies or feed cattle can be considered a single use. Therefore, the mileage for a round trip could be accounted for by single entry.

Here are examples of record-keeping entries: 1-2-85 — anywhere, N.C. — purchased tractor parts — Joe Smith — 22 miles; 1-3-85 — farm use — feeding cattle — four miles; 1-4-85 — anywhere, N.C. — delivered feeder cattle — John Brown, hired hand — 15 miles; 1-5-85 — anywhere, N.C. — purchased feed — Joe Smith — 40 miles.

Taxpayers should have recorded the vehicle mileage on Jan. 1, 1985. They are required to keep records on all business use. Then on Dec. 31, 1985, they should record the ending mileage of the vehicle. These figures can be used to substantiate the business mileage.

Adequate contemporaneous records are required for all passenger autos. This includes vehicles that are used entirely for business purposes.

You're looking at the best reasons for using Vernam® in peanuts.

Nutsedge. It's your biggest weed problem. If you treat only yellow nutsedge, you could be overlooking another problem weed: purple nutsedge. But there is one herbicide that can control both varieties. Only one. Vernam.

And Vernam has a lot going for it besides nutsedge.

Like sicklepod, morningglory, pigweed, lambsquarters, Florida purslane, and 15 other grass and broadleaf weeds. In a tank mix with Balan*, it gets tough buffalo grass as well. Also, since Vernam is applied preplant incorporated, you get reliable coverage in wet or dry weather. With Vernam, you don't have to rely on precisely the right amount of rain to do the job.

You know nutsedge is a problem in your peanuts. And you know Vernam can get the job done. Peanut farmers like you have gotten year-in, year-out reliable weed control with Vernam since 1968. Make Vernam the backbone of your weed control program. Follow label directions. Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, CT 06881.

Introducing Reward.™

Selective Herbicide

It leaves sicklepod defenseless.

Reward reduces the waxy "armor" on sicklepod leaves so later postemergence sprays can attack more effectively.

Reward knocks back early sicklepod and forces later-emerging sicklepod to grow up in the shade of your soybeans' canopy.

You can hardly find a tougher-to-control weed in your soybeans than sicklepod (or coffeeweed). But sicklepod has two defense mechanisms that new Reward helps you crack.

First, sicklepod has a tough waxy coating that is almost impossible to penetrate by most postemergence herbicides. Reward, applied preplant, reduces these foliar waxes. So your postemergence sprays can stick and adsorb better and knock out sicklepod more effectively.

Second, sicklepod grows fast in full sun but grows poorly in the shade. Reward knocks back first flush sicklepod to give your beans a head start. Later emerging sicklepod never has a chance, because by that time your soybeans have started to canopy.

If sicklepod is one of your biggest problems in soybeans, knock it defenseless with new Reward. See your dealer for all the details now. Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, CT 06881.
