Experts Say Tobacco Will Stay, Regardless

By MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

For major tobacco-producing North Carolina counties like Pitt, increased production of the leaf is the "alternative" to the tobacco program that extension specialists from North Carolina State University recommend.

Should deregulation of the tobacco industry occur, "in the large tobacco counties, such as Pitt, Johnston and Robeson, the alternative to tobacco is tobacco," according to Edmund Estes, extension economist at NCSU. "What else will return $350 per acre?"

Estes said there is "no single panacea opportunity which exists for North Carolina farmers" if the tobacco program is deregulated, but rather "a range of alternatives which offer reasonable prospects for growth" based on "moderate growth in demand and our producer's abilities to be cost competitive."

As many as 6,000 farms in North Carolina could face financial difficulty in 1985, extension specialists say, as farm income shrinks and debt from expansion and high interest rates in the 1970's continue to be a heavy burden. Deregulation of the tobacco program, a closet issue many agriculture officials feel will become reality, has heightened worries about a financial crunch.

Last of a three-part series exploring the state of agriculture in North Carolina today and how it got there.

Discussion about "so-called alternatives to tobacco" has become a popular topic, Estes said, and several alternatives have been suggested, including high value vegetables. "One must ask why current tobacco growers who do not own quota and must rent it into their farms have not switched in large numbers to these more lucrative alternatives," Estes said.

A comparison of alternatives for financially stressed farmers, he said, indicates that government intervention is needed to keep them operating in the black. "Opportunities for farmers who are financially stressed require more government involvement through commodity programs rather than producers evaluating the profitability levels of alternative crop or livestock enterprises," Estes said. Actions recommended include income relief measures, restructuring debt and preferential interest rates and emergency or guaranteed loans for variable production costs.

Opportunities for farmers who are solvent but have cash flow problems are similar but include subsidized credit, contract arrangements, sequence cropping and multiple cropping, he said.

"For some farmers, maybe 4 to 8 percent, none of these actions will work and their best alternative is to seek employment off the farm," Estes said.

Four Counties Hit

Forest Fires Rage In N.C.

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

VALDESE, N.C. (AP) — Fires stoked by tinder-dry conditions and gusty winds raged out of control in four Western North Carolina counties today, forcing hundreds of people from their homes and injuring at least 15 people.

"Our strategy now is to drop retardants where the houses are," said N.C. Forest Service spokesman Don Kass. "Then we'll look at the bad spots along the fire line."

The fires have burned an estimated 6,000 acres and 40 to 50 structures, said Crystal Stowe of the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. The Red Cross set up relief centers for families burned out of their homes.

Fires in Burke, Wilkes, Polk and Caldwell counties were still burning out of control today, she said. Fires in McDowell, Stokes and Buncombe were still burning, but were contained.

Most of the injured were firemen and authorities said one of the injured suffered a heart attack while fighting a fire near Valdese. That unidentified man was reported in stable condition today at a Valdese hospital, authorities said.

State forest officials planned to survey Burke County for fire activity today while Insurance Commissioner Jim Long will travel to the area to inspect damages from the fire, according to a department spokesman.

Insurance Department damage assessment teams were already in Rutherford County, where a fire Thursday threatened the downtown section of Rutherfordton. Flames reached within two blocks of the courthouse. Firefighters contained the blaze, but not before six buildings and a used car lot were destroyed.

Fires had consumed about 2,500 acres in Burke County and 1,200 in Caldwell County, Ms. Stowe said.

Phil Kromer of the U.S. Forest Service said 100 firefighters from Minnesota and Wisconsin joined local crews this morning to battle an 800-acre blaze in the Pisgah National Forest in Caldwell County.

Four 20-man crews from Arizona and New Mexico were expected to arrive in Asheville later today, and four more teams from Minnesota, Michigan and Pennsylvania would be held on stand-by in Asheville, he said.

"Later on, we could be getting help from as far away as northern California," Kromer said, "but that hasn't been confirmed yet."

He said a total of about 250 Forest Service personnel were battling the blaze, which is not threatening any structures and has caused no injuries so far.

Reagan 'Optimistic' Over Revised Budget, Proposal For Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan left the White House for a 10-day vacation at his mountaintop ranch today, saying he is "very optimistic and hopeful" of winning an expected fight in Congress over a budget compromise with Senate Republicans.

Speaking to reporters on the south lawn of the White House before leaving, Reagan also said he thinks the Nicaraguan people will support his new strategy to force a change in the country's leftist government.

When a reporter noted that the Nicaraguan government has denounced his proposal as warlike, Reagan said, "They were saying that before they ever heard what the plan was. I can understand that. They don't want to give up the cushy spot they have now."

"But we believe the people of Nicaragua will be highly supportive, because they still want the goals they fought for in their revolution."

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," charged today that Reagan "has said nothing new and he certainly has presented no peace proposal. In fact, what President Reagan has said to Nicaragua, he says, 'You drop dead or else I'll kill you.' If we do not cry uncle by June 1, he will continue the war against our people, he will continue to finance the thugs to murder and kill our people and destroy our countryside."

Reagan was flanked as he spoke to reporters by Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., and the Budget Committee chairman, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., as he answered reporters' questions.

Civilian Jobless Rate Steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment held steady in March at 7.3 percent, the government said today, as the creation of 430,000 new jobs just accommodated the number of Americans entering the labor force in search of work.

About 8.4 million people were jobless while the number at work set yet another record at 107.1 million, the Labor Department reported.

As has been the case in recent months, the bulk of the job gains were in service industries, and not in manufacturing.

One of the biggest gains, according to a separate job survey, came in retail trade, which logged 80,000 new jobs last month. Manufacturing employment, on the other hand, has shown no growth since August.

In the 28 months of recovery through March, the number of jobless people has been cut by 3.5 million and the jobless rate has declined 3.4 percentage points.

In The Area

Driver Charged

Polly Ann Johnson of Route 8, Greenville, was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety Thursday following investigation of a three-vehicle collision at the intersection of 11th and Washington streets about 5:05 p.m.

Officers, who identified the drivers of the other two cars involved as Patricia Ann McLawhorn of 1115 S. Washington St. and Sarah Gardner Pritchard of 102 Lancaster Drive, set damage at $800 to the McLawhorn car, $2,800 to the Johnson vehicle and $1,600 to the Pritchard car.

Indecent Exposure

Police Thursday arrested Cedric Dean Cheek, 21, of 212C Scott Dorm on an indecent exposure charge in connection with a 9:52 p.m. incident at the Burger King restaurant on Stantonsburg Road.

Officer S.D. Furr said Cheek was taken into custody about 10 minutes after he allegedly walked into the restaurant clad only in a Halloween mask.

Marijuana Count

Patrick Allen Merricks, 22, of 402C Scott Dorm, was arrested about 2:40 a.m. today on three charges, including possession of marijuana, according to police.

Officer P.W. Scheutow said Merrick was taken into custody at Oakmont Square Apartments and charged with marijuana possession, driving while impaired and resisting arrest.

Fatality Reported

H. Herbert Smith Jr., 25, of Route 1, Stokes, was killed in a one-vehicle accident on Secondary Road 1523 — the Rams Horn Road — about 4.5 miles from Greenville around 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

Highway Patrolman Wayne Taylor charged the driver of the pickup truck in which Smith was riding, William Lester Hardee, 34, of Route 5, Greenville, with driving while impaired and manslaughter in connection with the collision.

Taylor said the vehicle, apparently traveling at an excessive speed, went out of control in a curve. The truck crossed to the left side of the road, ran into a ditch and overturned, fatally injuring Smith, the trooper reported.

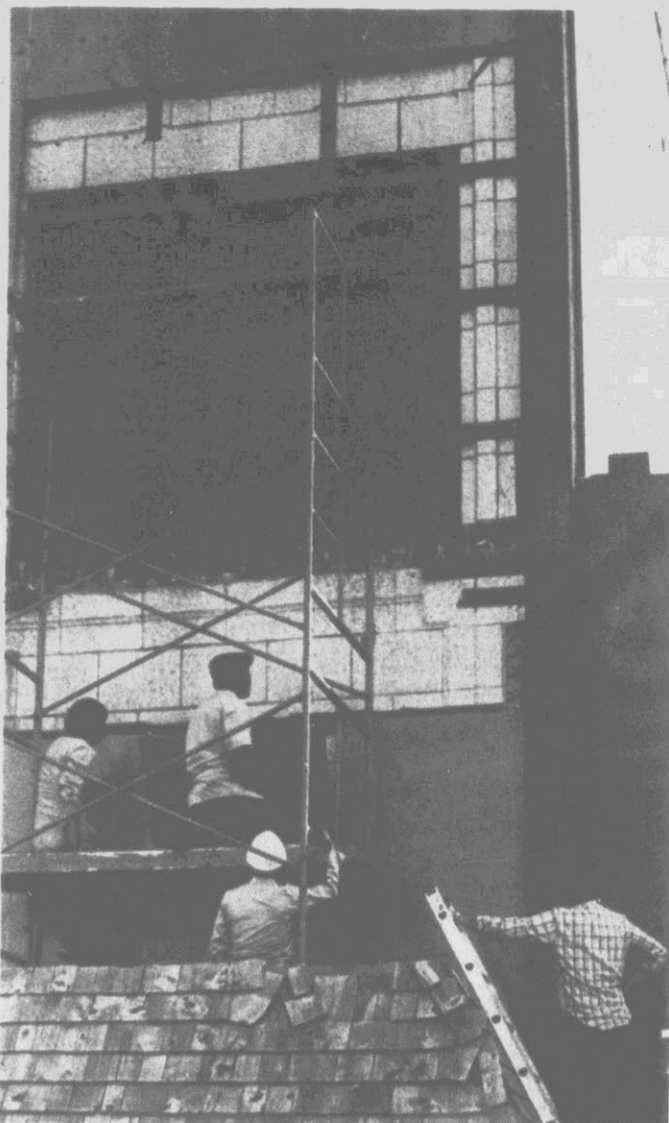

EMT Course Set

Mathematics Award

Gina Parrott, a student at E.B. Aycock Junior High School, has been named a 1985 United States National Award winner in mathematics by the United States Achievement Academy.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Parrott of Greenville.

Telefund Campaigns

Telefund campaigns for the support of East Carolina University's annual fund were held in several North Carolina counties recently.

Telefunds and the amount of alumni contributions pledged include: $3,500 in New Bern, $5,000 in Lenoir County, $6,000 in Charlotte, $15,000 in Raleigh, $7,000 in Rocky Mount, and $7,000 in Winston-Salem.

Cynthia Kitrell, ECU's alumni field director coordinated the telefunds, with assistance from alumni. The funds are used for scholarships, faculty enrichment and enhancement of ECU's academic programs.

Town Hall Closed

The Winterville Town Hall will be closed Easter Monday but the monthly meeting of the town Board of Aldermen will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the Town Hall.

Two public hearings are scheduled for the meeting, including one to discuss the town's 1985 Community Development Block Grant application.

Ayden Holiday

The Ayden Town Hall will close Monday to observe the Easter holiday.

The monthly meeting of the Ayden Board of Commissioners will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday rather than Monday in the Town Hall.

'Viewpoint' Airs

The Pitt-Greenville Senior Games will be the topic of this week's "Pitt County Schools' Viewpoint," a radio show aired on several local stations.

Host Barry Gaskins will interview Sarah J. Ashton, steering committee member for the games.

The show is scheduled at the following times and stations: Saturday, 7:30 a.m. WITN-FM, 8:30 a.m. WGHF-AM, 8:25 a.m. WOOW-AM; Sunday, 9:30 a.m. WRQR-FM; 7:06 p.m. WNCT-AM, and Monday, 3:05 p.m. WBZQ-FM.

For further information contact Pitt County Community Schools at 752-6106, extension 249.

County Offices

All Pitt County government offices will be closed Monday for the Easter holiday.

The offices will reopen at their regular times on Tuesday.

Testimony Heard In Civil Trial

Testimony continued for the 15th day today in a Pitt County Superior Court civil trial of a malpractice suit brought by a Winterville couple against Dr. Robert G. Deyton Jr., Greenville Obstetrics and Gynecology, P.A., and Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The suit — filed in April 1982 in Wake County for Jennifer Love Campbell by her parents Margaret and Jeffrey Campbell, and her guardian Duncan A. McMillian, an attorney — alleges that Jennifer Campbell was delivered April 30, 1979, by Deyton at PCMH in the "breech position," although another physician associated with Greenville Obstetrics and Gynecology had recommended, and the parents had repeatedly requested, delivery by caesarean section.

As a result of the "vaginal-feeeling-breech extraction" the complaint charges, when the child suffered a fractured right clavicle and "did not breathe on her own for at least 40 minutes" after the delivery, the suit charges that Deyton "failed to possess and demonstrate the requisite degree of learning, skill and ability necessary to practice his profession and specialty" and "failed to exercise reasonable and ordinary care and diligence" in rendering service to Mrs. Campbell and the child.

As a result of the breech delivery, the complaint alleges that the child suffered blood anoxia, brain trauma, psychomotor retardation, neonatal seizures, and mixed cerebral palsy.

The suit also alleges that the child is "permanently" unable "to carry on normal actions... either intellectual or physical," and will require "extensive physical and speech therapy."

Trial of the suit, which asks for "damages in excess of $10,000," is expected to continue on into next week, court officials said.

EXCLUSIVE FASHIONS FOR THE LARGE SIZE WOMAN

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Son Helps Mother Keep Her Eye On Family Dates

DEAR ABBY: Several times you have suggested in your column that writing material would be a practical gift for an elderly person.

My son, who lives in another state, went one better last Christmas. On a Girl Scout calendar he had marked the birth dates of all my grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and the wedding anniversaries of all the members of my family.

In addition, he sent a beautiful selection of cards appropriate for each occasion. On the envelope in the corner for the stamp, he had penciled in the name of the person for whom the card was intended.

He didn't forget the stamps either—even remembering the increase that was due in February 1985.

I cannot think of a more acceptable gift for this 86-year-old lady whose eyesight isn't what it used to be.

All I need to do is add a personal line or two to each card. This may help others who don't know what to send an elderly friend or relative for whom shopping is a chore.

G.K.J.,
LAGUNA HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR G.K.J.: What a thoughtful, generous son you raised. And how generous you are to want to share that idea with others. As my beloved mother used to say, "The apple doesn't fall far from the tree."

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what the rule is on using Roman numerals for a name. My mother-in-law insists that our infant son should be David Dennis Monroe IV (not his real name).

His father, grandfather and great-grandfather all had the first name David, but each had a different middle name.

I believe it is not correct to use numerals unless the name is exactly the same. I hope you can clear this up, as I find it very pretentious.

Please, sign me ...
NO NAME, NO CITY

DEAR NO NAME, NO CITY: No problem. You are right. No numeral (or junior) is used when the middle name is different. The last name—first, middle and last—must be exactly the same for the first son to be named "Junior," and for a grandson, a great-grandson, etc. to be named "III," "IV," etc.

DEAR ABBY: I am hurting more right now than I ever have in my whole life. My beloved younger sister died nine months ago. I still can't believe I will never be able to call her on the phone again to gossip and giggle as only sisters do. God, how I miss her!

I asked her doctor what actually killed her, and without batting an eye he said, "Cigarettes!" Now I feel so guilty because she took up smoking because I, her older sister, smoked. Thank God, I was able to quit in time. She tried to quit, but it was too late for her.

Her husband and children are inconsolable. I have learned a lot from this terrible experience. A smoker has a lot more to worry about than dying. My sister's stay in the hospital with lung cancer wiped her family out financially.

Abby, why do advertisers make cigarette ads so attractive? Instead, they should run a before and after picture of a once-beautiful woman vomiting and bald from radiation therapy.

I know this letter is too long for your column, but it will help just one person to reach into her purse (or his pocket) and throw that pack of cigarettes in the trash, it will be worth it.

GRIEVING IN GULFPORT, MISS.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Curt Hendrix Is Speaker

Curt Hendrix, Greenville community ambassador, recently presented a slide program at a meeting of Alpha Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa.

He spent six weeks last summer in Switzerland and lived with a family there for three weeks. "Switzerland is a beautiful and clean country with people who take pride in their precise workmanship," he said.

Mary Ann Brannon presented a devotional on "Seeds We Sow." President Elizabeth Avery reminded members to bring needles, thread and scissors to the next meeting.

A donation of $50 is being made to an East Carolina University student to attend the Exceptional Children's National Convention.

Pat Minges and Judy McCall were meeting hostesses.

It is safe to store fruits and fruit juices in opened cans in the refrigerator but acid fruits and juices may take on an unpleasant metallic taste.

SHERNETTA RENA BRYANT...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bryant Sr. of Route 1, Hobgood, who announce her engagement to Vincent Price, son of Audrey Lucille Price of Hobgood and the late Rev. William I. Price. The wedding is planned for April 27.

Eastern Star Officers Installed Saturday Night

Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of Eastern Star installed officers for 1985-86 Saturday night at the Masonic Temple. Gertie Andrews is the new worthy matron and Bryce Tharp is the worthy patron.

Others elected are: Associate Matron, Jane Adams; Associate Patron, Kenneth Caswell; Secretary, Jean Tharp; Conductress, Camille Leggett; Associate Conductress, Agnes Bunch; Chaplain, Mary Freeland; Marshall, Grace Hill; Organist, Marguerite Cook; Adah, Sarah Caprell; Ruth, Cornelia Mills; Esther, Margaret Schiller; Martha, Jean Riggan; Electa, Mabel Caswell; and Warder, Ruth Forrest.

Presiding officers were Lon Forrest, worthy patron, and Ruth Forrest, worthy matron. They also gave the welcome. Distinguished guests included Mrs. Glenn Garner, past grand matron, installing grand chapter officer. She was assisted by Mary Lucy Taylor, grand marshal, Blanche Jackson, grand chaplain, and Corabob Turnage, grand organist.

Mrs. Andrews gave an acceptance address with faith, love, joy and smile as her theme. She also introduced her family. Tharp gave his acceptance address. Mrs. Andrews received the gavel from her daughter and son-in-law, Gwen and Bill

Scott. Lon and Ruth Forrest were presented their jewels. The couple presented a program honoring Mrs. Andrews and Tharp.

Philip Evancho, visiting artist from Pitt Community College, presented a program of songs. He was accompanied by Mrs. Cook.

A reception followed in the Sugg-Whichard dining hall. Dolores Bell poured punch assisted by Josephine Harper and Elizabeth Ewell. Lillie McLawhorn and Estelle Tucker presided at the registration desk. Audrey Felton and Lillian Hendrix greeted guests. Rachel and Timothy McLawhorn lighted candles and Angie Whelihan was page.

The reception table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and white daisies flanked by candelabra holding white tapers.

Margaret Gray, treasurer, and Jerome Bostick, sentinel, will be installed at a later date.

Good News

Too often we read of thefts and break-ins and violence. It is refreshing when a story comes along about someone who has gone the extra mile to be honest.

Glaster Jordan, who works with Sterling Radiator Division of Reed National Corp. in Farmville, lost his wallet two years ago. Recently it was returned in the mail from Grant Mechanical Inc. in Fargo, N.D. Credit cards and $11 in cash were intact. A note said the billfold was found inside a Sterling duct furnace by a worker at a job site. Jordan sent off a note expressing appreciation to the sender and asked that she convey his thanks to the person who found the billfold.

Of course the worker did what any of us should do in such a situation. But he didn't have to and there are some in the world who would never have taken the time to return the billfold.

It is a good news story.

Answer?

Whoever coined the phrase "it's a jungle out there" might have had the Charlie Allen saga in mind.

Allen is the former mob hit man who says he knows the answer to the old question "whatever happened to Jimmy Hoffa?" His version is that Hoffa was the victim of a "pre-emptive" murder whose body was ground up, placed in a steel drum and dumped into the Florida Everglades.

His story could be true. The copyrighted account was carried in a Richmond newspaper last Sunday. Allen reportedly has never served a single day in jail for his part in three murders and other admitted crimes, but we may not have heard the last of him.

There is always the possibility of a book, maybe even a movie.

Or, he may make the television celebrity circuit ... appearing with a screened face for interviews with Mike Wallace and/or Ted Koppel. A few "cruelty jokes" might be worth a couple minutes with Carson or Saturday Night Live.

Proving or disproving the Allen story is something else. Finding and identifying the remains of the ex-Teamster boss is about the most impossible task ever confronting crime investigators.

Disaster's Shock Waves Linger On

WASHINGTON — Four months after Bhopal, chemical makers are still on the defensive.

Recently, the Chemical Manufacturers Association announced plans to "increase public access to hazard information" about products made by its member companies and, starting soon, to help communities plan for chemical emergencies.

Edwin C. Holmer, an Exxon Chemical executive and the trade group's chairman, said that the December disaster in India had forced the chemical industry to become more forthcoming. "It's been very difficult for us to reconcile (Bhopal) with our established position as the safest of 42 U.S. manufacturing industries," Holmer conceded in revealing the voluntary, two-prong program.

Good reputations deserve protection, of course. But it's unclear how forthcoming the chemical industry, and Holmer's company in particular, intend to be in the future.

Disclosure of the Chemical Manufacturers Association's plan virtually coincided with the release of a congressional survey showing chemical companies to be far bigger polluters than previously believed. Of the 80 firms surveyed, 67 responded, and about 50 did so in detail. The results have prompted legislators and industry executives to agree that stricter government controls on toxic air pollutants are necessary.

Holmer's company was one that did not provide complete information to congressional investigators, who were conducting the survey at the behest of Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Health and the Environment Subcommittee. Exxon Chemical failed to produce data on its Bayonne, N.J., plant because, it said, the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection "does not require an annual emission inventory." Companies act, it seems, only when the government forces them to.

One way to avoid nuclear winter has been suggested by Harold Brode of the Pacific Sierra Research Corp. in Los Angeles. According to scientist Carl Sagan and the Defense Department — and other sources — even a small number of above-ground explosions would produce enough airborne dust to enshroud Earth in near-darkness for years. Brode told a congressional committee last week that earth-burrowing warheads would reduce the amount of debris emitted into the air. Unfortunately, he couldn't say that the amount of fallout would be similarly affected.

U.S. Navy officials are concerned about an increasing amount of ocean piracy. Attacks on ships are apparently most frequent in the waters off the coasts of Colombia, Ecuador, Ireland and Nigeria and in the Straits of Malacca separating Malaysia from the Indonesian island of Sumatra. The federal government has established a special computer network to monitor pirate activities worldwide.

Despite Moscow's relative calm, the U.S. has taken several steps recently to tighten security at its embassy in the Soviet capital. Soviet employees of American businesses and news organizations, for example, can no longer pick up mail or trade. What would you like?" "In exchange for selling an unlimited number of Japanese cars, you have to buy American goods from us. I have to prove to Congress that you're serious about helping our balance of payments."

"If you insist," Mr. Nakasone said. "Put us down for a dozen eggs, a pound of butter, two loaves of Wonder bread and a can of Log Cabin syrup."

"You have to do better than that, Yasuhiro. Our trade deficit to Japan is $37 billion."

"Ah so, Mr. President. I will authorize a special import license for Cabbage Patch dolls."

"How many?"

"Three. One for each of my grandchildren."

"You have to be serious and open up your doors to American products. I can't tell you what pressure I'm getting from the National Association of Manufacturers," the president said. "How about some telecommunications equipment? We make the finest in the world."

"If I buy telecommunications equipment from you I will lose face with the Nippon Telephone Company."

"You have to make a gesture even if it means offending your people, Yasuhiro."

"If you feel so strongly about it, I'll take two Princess phones — one for downstairs and the other for my bedroom."

"I don't think Congress would accept that as a fair exchange for 500,000 automobiles," the president said. "How are you fixed for pharmaceuticals? Would it hurt to buy a six-pack of extra-strength aspirin? You must have a lot of headaches in Japan."

"We haven't had too many since our balance of trade has been so good."

"Yasuhiro, you're toying with me," the president said angrily. "The strong dollar plus foreign dumping of goods on the American market is costing the United States jobs and threatening my economic plan for recovery. I'm a free trader, but if you don't make a serious commitment to buying our products, the trade barriers will go up and I can't do anything about it."

"I understand your problem, Mr. President. But America doesn't produce anything that Japan needs."

"What about military weapons?"

"We've got the best that money can buy — fighter planes, bombers, tanks, aircraft carriers, the MX missile."

"What would we do with an MX missile?"

"You could use it as a bargaining chip when you negotiate a trade agreement with the Soviet Union in Geneva."

"Mr. President, my people don't want me to spend any money on armaments. We're a peace-loving nation, and all we ask is to be left alone and corner every automobile market in the free world."

"Yasuhiro, that's just the point. I can't let you do that. Either you issue licenses for American imports or I'm putting the auto quota back on."

"You drive a hard bargain, Mr. President. All right, send me some Kentucky bourbon."

"Now we're getting somewhere. How many cases?"

"One bottle will do. I find most American congressmen who come to see me to complain about Japan's import quotas always ask for Scotch."

Strength For Today

Jesus said to his disciples on one occasion: "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you, for so did their fathers of the false prophets."

This is a hard saying. All of us like to have people speak well of us. If we know that we are criticized, it gives us an uncomfortable feeling. We look at people radiant with personal charm and wonder why we cannot be the same and have the same.

But if people are critical of us, we should never get the idea into our minds that it is simply because we are right and they are wrong, we are wise and they are ignorant. There is such a thing as being criticized — perhaps disliked — because one takes a stand for what is right. If the issue becomes as plain as that, do not hesitate where to take your stand. Popularity with men will mean nothing, if this means unpopularity with God.

Looking After Widows And Orphans

RALEIGH — It was Benjamin Franklin who told us that, "In this world nothing can be said to be certain except death and taxes." Neither is pleasant but when the two are combined, the survivors of the deceased certainly learn how miserable life can be.

In the 1985 General Assembly, a widespread effort to make death less taxing is under way. No less than 16 bills have been filed which aim to reduce the tax bite involved with dying.

The major push comes with the inheritance tax. One set of proposals increases the tax credit on inheritance, another eliminates the tax for surviving spouses while a third repeals the state inheritance tax.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, has the most modest proposal. He would increase the tax credit for a surviving spouse from $4,650 to $8,150. That amounts to making the first $200,000 worth of an estate tax free. In a package of related bills, Lilley also proposes a number of highly technical changes that would reduce some inheritance tax bills.

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, wants to make the surviving spouse's tax credit apply to all survivors.

Many companies provide a death benefit to their employees and the first $5,000 of this benefit is not taxable by the state. Lilley wants to expand that tax break to self-employed persons who establish a death benefit for themselves.

When a trust will increase the size of an estate after one's death, that increase is subject to inheritance tax. Lilley proposes that the amount of the inheritance tax on those trust earnings be exempted from future income tax.

Lilley also would increase the level at which an estate does not have to be reported to the state. Currently, all estates of $75,000 or less are exempt from reporting. He'd raise it to $100,000.

Sen. Wilma Woodard, D-Wake, has proposed elimination of the inheritance tax altogether for spouses. "I've just heard some horrible stories" of women not having the cash to pay the inheritance tax. "They have to sell their homes or farms, or it takes up all the insurance money." Her bill would cost the state about $15 million annually in lost revenues.

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, and Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, are proposing outright repeal of the inheritance tax. "At one time, 47 of the 48 states had the inheritance tax. Presently, it's down to 25. It causes people to move out of North Carolina ... People spend their whole lives trying to determine how they'll have enough cash to pay off the inheritance taxes," Watkins said. Repeal would cost the state $60 million annually.

Inheritance tax isn't the only collection the government makes at the time of death. There's a sales tax on all costs of a funeral above $150. Lilley is proposing to raise that to $500. Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, has filed a bill which would reduce the administration fee for bringing an estate to court.

Several proposals before the assembly would increase the death benefit the state pays to its employees. Rep. Gerald Anderson, D-Craven, proposes increasing the death benefit for public safety employees (police, firemen, etc.) killed in the line of duty to $30,000 from $25,000. Rep. Paul Tyndall, D-Onslow, would provide a $4,000 death benefit to retired legislators, teachers and state employees. He'd give a $5,500 benefit to retired judges.

Looking over the list of bills he and others filed, Lilley repeated the time-honored legislative line, "We're just looking out for widows and orphans."

A Lesson In Applying Pressure

President Reagan picked up the phone and called Japanese Prime Minister Nakasone in Tokyo.

"Yasuhiro," the president said. "What are you doing to me? I ended 'voluntary' U.S. import quotas on Japanese autos and now you're sending in 2.3 million cars to compete with our domestic industry. Detroit is screaming bloody murder, and I'm on the spot. You're got to give me something in return."

"Of course, Mr. President. We in the inscrutable East believe in fair trade. What would you like?"

"In exchange for selling an unlimited number of Japanese cars, you have to buy American goods from us. I have to prove to Congress that you're serious about helping our balance of payments."

"If you insist," Mr. Nakasone said. "Put us down for a dozen eggs, a pound of butter, two loaves of Wonder bread and a can of Log Cabin syrup."

Stations Broadcast Album All At Once

By The Associated Press
Radio stations around the world today dropped their usual programming for a few minutes for a simultaneous Good Friday broadcast of "We Are The World," the enormously popular pop song aimed at helping African famine relief efforts.

Before the broadcast, at 10:50 a.m. EST, organizers said stations in at least 25 countries and Muzak — playing a voice for only the second time — were to broadcast the song by 46 American artists.

The cable rock channel MTV also joined in, along with Voice of America and Armed Services Radio. The Associated Press Radio Network transmitted the song over its network line to some 1,100 stations around the country.

At least 21 stations in the New York City area played the song, along with some 90 percent of the stations in the District of Columbia.

"We'll have 5,000 stations playing it, and that's a conservative estimate," said one of the organizers, Harvey Melnick, director of marketing for Radio and Records magazine, before the broadcast. "This has turned into a radio phenomenon, with stations banding together in the hope that millions more dollars will be raised to fight hunger."

In Richmond, Va., radio station WRVQ broadcast from outside City Hall and encouraged listeners to congregate there while the song was played. The two disc jockeys at City Hall estimated at least 800 people turned out, said Treeda Smith, station news director.

"There really wasn't a question of whether or not to play it, because it's such a big event," said Steve McFarland, program director at WROV in Roanoke, Va. He said his station monitored others in the area and believes all but one took part in the simultaneous broadcast.

Muzak, which pipes "background" music into 110,000 offices, shops and factories around the country, broadcast a human voice only once before, spokesman Charles Furlong said. The first time was to announce the release of American hostages from Iran in 1981.

Muzak reaches about 80 million Americans daily through satellite transmissions to more than 200 ground stations around the U.S., Furlong said. "We saw this as a way to double or triple the number of people we can reach" with the famine relief song, he said.

Muzak is owned by Group W Broadcasting, a subsidiary of Westinghouse Electric Corp., and Furlong said Group W's 11 radio stations have agreed to participate in the airing along with several other major networks.

The Good Friday broadcast was started by stations in Georgia and Utah.

Recorded by U.S. artists after last month's American Music Awards show, "We Are The World" has netted an estimated $8 million for the USA for Africa relief fund, a non-profit organization founded by the singers.

Stevie Wonder, Lionel Richie, Diana Ross, Billy Joel, Dionne Warwick, Michael Jackson, Bruce Springsteen and Ray Charles were among the 46 singers who participated. Jackson and Richie wrote the song.

The album version of "We Are The World" — which included unreleased tracks by Springsteen, Tina Turner and Huey Lewis and the News, among others — was declared a gold record Wednesday after selling 500,000 copies since Monday, the Recording Industry Association of America said.

The single version has been certified gold, platinum and multiplatinum — selling 1 million, 2 million and 4 million, respectively.

Horse Hits Train, Rider Hurt Fatally

CONETOE — A Greenville woman was killed a quarter-mile west of here Tuesday night when the horse she was riding ran away with her and struck a train car. Phil Ellis, a spokesman for the Edgecombe County Sheriff's Department, identified the woman as Christine Boggess, 26, of 113 E. 13th St.

Ellis said Miss Boggess and Steve Powers of Greenville, were riding horses along the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad near Conetoe about 7:20 p.m. The couple guided the horses to a spot about 100 feet from the tracks when they saw a train approaching.

After the engine of the train passed, Ellis said, the engineer blew the whistle for the Conetoe crossing. The whistle "spooked" the horse. Miss Boggess was riding and he started to run back across a trestle the train was crossing.

As the animal ran across the trestle, it was hit by one of the train cars, and Miss Boggess was either thrown or fell.

Ellis, who said Miss Boggess died at the scene, said she suffered severe head injuries when she hit an iron post at the edge of the trestle. He said physicians at a hospital in Tarboro said either the head injury, or an injury to her left leg that severed an artery, would have been enough to kill her.

Patrol Promotes Greenville Native

RALEIGH — Roy A. "Bobby" Clark, a Greenville native, has been promoted from the rank of captain and commander of Highway Patrol Troop C in Raleigh, to major and assigned to patrol headquarters.

Clark, whose promotion was effective April 1, will be in charge of zone operations for the four patrol troops in the eastern half of the state — from Greensboro to the coast.

A 1946 graduate of Greenville High School, Clark joined the patrol in March 1950, and was assigned to Warren County for 18 years, Hertford County for three years and Alamance County for four years before being promoted to the rank of lieutenant.

He then served in Asheville and Hickory before being assigned to patrol headquarters in 1976, first as state recruiting officer, then in internal affairs and then as the commandant of the patrol's basic school. He was promoted to the rank of captain later in 1976 and given command of Troop C.

The Burke County Commissioners declared a state of emergency Thursday night after 400 people were forced to leave their homes in the southeast corner of Valdese. Those people eventually returned home.

Some sections of Caldwell County were also evacuated briefly, officials said.

Steve Foster of Burke County Emergency Management said a blaze along N.C. 18 was under control Friday morning.

"We're going to take it as it comes," said Icard fire chief W.S. Perry. "I just hope the wind don't get up, but it's forecast for 15 to 20 miles per hour."

A C-130 cargo plane began dropping some 3,000 gallons of fire retardant on the fire on the southside of Mineral Springs Mountain at 7:30 a.m.

Kass said firefighters using bulldozers cut fire lines around the entire fire except for a portion running from High Peak Mountain to Interstate 40.

"The question today is whether the fire will stay inside the lines with the wind coming up," Kass said. "If there is no problem today we should be OK."

Foster said a rescue team was going to check some of the 50 or more houses that burned in Burke County to look for bodies.

"We don't think there are any, but we're just checking," he said. "They'll be looking for hot fires, too."

Interstate 40 was closed at mid-afternoon Thursday as flames approached the highway. At 6 p.m., the road was reopened, only to be clogged by people trying to escape the threat of fire.

On Mineral Springs Mountain south of Valdese, at least 50 structures, many of them homes, were destroyed by the fire.

Reagan Agrees To Budget Proposal That Includes Social Security Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who promised never to tamper with Social Security benefits, has agreed to press for a new budget plan that under his own projections could cost retirees half of the cost-of-living increases they would otherwise receive.

Reagan's budget director, David Stockman, claimed Thursday the formula he helped work out with Senate Republican leaders doesn't really violate the president's re-election campaign pledge. But it directly contradicts previous statements made by presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, who said Reagan had authorized him to make them.

Under the compromise plan that Reagan is now pledged to support, all federal retirement programs — including Social Security, civil service, veterans' pensions and railroad workers — would be guaranteed a 2 percent cost-of-living raise in each of the next three years.

But if the cost of living rises faster than that, as expected, pensioners would have to give up any benefit increase between 2 percent and 4 percent.

Any inflationary increase above 4 percent would be covered with a commensurate increase in the benefit.

And the administration's own projections put inflation at 4 percent in each of the next three years.

"A president should never say never, but I'm going to violate that rule and say never," Reagan said during his nationally televised debate last Oct. 7 with Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale. "I will never stand for a reduction of the Social Security benefits to the people that are now getting them."

It was Reagan's standard line, which did not specifically rule out program changes that could affect scheduled cost-of-living increases or the benefits of those not yet on the rolls.

"Well, that's exactly the commitment that was made to the American people in 1980," Mondale replied. "He would never reduce benefits. And of course what happened right after the election is they proposed to cut Social Security benefits by 25 percent. ..."

Two days later, Mondale ruled out any reductions whatever in the Social Security system, even for future beneficiaries, and challenged Reagan to do the same.

Even before word of the challenge spread, spokesman Speakes announced to reporters at the White House, "I am here to say that I have just spoken with the president, and Mondale ought to be ashamed. He is out to frighten the elderly. The president will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody who is now getting it or future recipients."

In a sometimes contentious briefing that followed, Speakes pledged that current and future Social Security recipients would receive all cost-of-living increases to which they are entitled under current law.

Under further questioning, the spokesman said, "Let me put it as simply as I can: no change in Social Security now or in the future, now or in the future, period."

Reagan made no attempt to modify that pledge before the election, in which he won a second term by a landslide; but in January, he indicated he could be swayed.

Asked at a news conference about congressional proposals to freeze Social Security cost-of-living increases, Reagan said he would be "resisting of this" but would consider it if such legislation came to his desk for signature.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and others who have spoken to Reagan about the issue since said the president told them he never meant to rule out any tampering with the government's giant retirement program, but that his remarks were interpreted that way, and he decided to go along with it.

GOP Budget Plan Ready

By CLIFF HAAS
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and Senate Republican leaders are trying to sell a skeptical Congress an ambitious deficit-reduction plan that would restrict Social Security increases, slow the military buildup and eliminate a host of domestic spending programs.

Under a compromise reached Thursday by top White House aides and senior GOP senators after nearly two weeks of private bargaining, federal spending would be slashed $52 billion next year and nearly $300 billion over the next three years by freezing, cutting or eliminating many popular programs.

Among the major changes: — The automatic cost-of-living adjustment for the nation's 36 million Social Security beneficiaries would be suspended for three years and replaced with a 2 percent annual increase. If inflation is above 4 percent, the beneficiaries would get the 2 percent, plus an automatic adjustment for inflation above 4 percent.

— All federal retirement programs — civil service, military, railroad retirement — would come under the formula applied to Social Security.

— The Pentagon would get a 3 percent annual increase after inflation next year instead of the 5.9 percent the president originally wanted. Nonetheless, the military spending authority next year would be $304 billion.

— Amtrak, general revenue sharing, the Small Business Administration, the Job Corps, postal subsidies, various grants to local governments and other programs would be eliminated or phased out.

— A freeze on Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals and higher costs for patients.

All of that would still leave projected budget deficits of $175 billion next year, $145 billion in 1987 and $99.7 billion in 1988, compared to well over $230 billion a year without action.

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan hailed the package as "the most ambitious budget reduction plan in postwar history."

He added, "The president is committed to this package, and he intends to fight for passage in both houses."

Budget Director David A. Stockman, noting the hard work is just beginning, said, "This is going to be the most difficult imaginable proposition to pass in the (GOP-controlled) Senate."

Administration officials have not even begun worrying about how to pass such a package in the Democrat-controlled House.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the Budget Committee chairman, said the agreement was "tough medicine for a tough time."

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., has scheduled action on the package by the full Senate later this month. Dole began his sales pitch Thursday saying that "overall, the package represents a balanced and reasonable approach to deficit reduction."

The only response from Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia was a one-sentence written statement: "I am glad that Sen. Dole appears to agree with me that the priorities in this budget should be debated openly and Democrats look forward to joining that public debate."

The compromise was achieved after the president moderated his demand for deep domestic spending cuts and some Republicans moderated their insistence that the president sharply slow his Pentagon buildup.

But administration officials are happy with the deal.

"We probably got three-fourths of the dollars we asked for (in savings) and more importantly, about 90 percent of the permanent structural reforms," Stockman said, referring to the elimination of an array of domestic programs.

Audit Finds More Overcharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Defense, having already withheld some $90 million in "unallowable" overhead claims by the General Dynamics Corp., has now concluded it paid another $154 million in excess claims to the defense contractor.

Michael I. Burch, the Pentagon's top spokesman, said Thursday a team of 20 auditors reached that conclusion earlier this week after completing a special review ordered on March 5 by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

"To summarize the report of the audit team, they found that we need to go back to recoup $154 million to adequately protect the government's interests," Burch said. "If the corporation wants to contest the audit, they may do so, but we will be holding the money."

"This $154 million is in addition to the $90 million that we've already held back from previous audits for such unallowable expenses as the dog kennel. So if you were to add the $90 million with the $154 million, overall then the government will receive a total of $244 million in payment for overcharges."

Burch's reference to the dog kennel stems from a disclosure during congressional hearings last month that General Dynamics had submitted overhead claims with its weapons contracts that included the cost of boarding an executive's dog at a kennel along with country club expenses and questionable travel costs.

It was shortly after those disclosures that Weinberger announced he was freezing all overhead payments to General Dynamics for at least 30 days and ordering a special audit.

The 30-day suspension ordered by Weinberger was scheduled to end today.

National Teacher Of Year Was Viet Waif

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Therese Knecht Dozier, the winner of the 1985 National Teacher of the Year award, says her background as a waif in Vietnam who was adopted by an American soldier inspires the children she teaches.

Mrs. Dozier, 32, the daughter of a Vietnamese woman and a former German SS officer, was sold to a Chinese businessman as an infant and adopted at age 2 from a French orphanage, then raised in Florida.

"I have always been conscious of having been given a chance to make something out of myself," she has said. "Teaching is my way of repaying the debt."

The teacher at Irmo High School near Columbia said Thursday her 10th grade world history students are "very interested and very curious" about her life, which gives them a better perspective on the obstacles they face.

Word of Mrs. Dozier's selection from among finalists from 50 states leaked out Thursday when a public relations company mailed a letter containing details about the winner, who will be honored later this month in Washington.

TERESE DOZIER

The competition, sponsored by Encyclopaedia Britannica Inc. and run by the Council of Chief State School Officers, is in its 34th year.

"I've known for quite some time. It was supposed to be a secret," said Mrs. Dozier, who will be presented with a crystal apple April 18 by President Reagan. "It's very hard to keep something this exciting inside. I can tell people now."

"It's the most exciting thing that's ever happened to me. For me, I have to emphasize, it's due to the students I teach."

Teaching for most in the profession is a "calling," she said. "They go into it because of something in their heart."

Mrs. Dozier was born in Saigon to a Vietnamese mother and a former Waffen SS colonel who fled Hitler's Germany during the closing days of World War II, when the Allies were arresting Nazi officers.

"He tried to hide his identity by joining the French Foreign Legion," she said in an earlier interview. He was sent to French Indochina, where Vietnamese insurgents were then fighting to end France's colonial rule.

Her mother died after bearing her younger brother and her father sold the children to a Chinese businessman who, fearing arrest, gave them up.

Authorities discovered the severely undernourished children and turned them over to a French orphanage, where the boy was spotted by a U.S. Army adviser and his wife who "fell in love" with him, Mrs. Dozier said.

The couple adopted the children and brought them to America in 1954.

Mrs. Dozier grew up in Florida and was graduated first in her class from Charlotte High School in Punta

Gorda, then compiled a perfect 4.0 grade-point average at the University of Florida, where she got her bachelor's and master's degrees.

She taught at a middle school in Gainesville, Fla., and an inner-city middle school in Miami before taking the post at Irmo High School in suburban Columbia seven years ago.

"I made a vow that if I wasn't good or didn't like it that I would get out of teaching. This is an affirmation of that vow," Mrs. Dozier said. "I get frustrated not so much with teaching, but the public's perception of what we do. I think a lot of it stems from the fact that we are not paid very well. Status is connected with pay."

Key Suspect Is Captured

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Police officers acting on information from U.S. officials located a key suspect in the slaying of a American drug agent and captured him after a brief shootout outside San Jose, authorities said.

Costa Rican agents found Rafael Caro Quintero, who is reported to be a major figure in Mexico's leading drug syndicate, and captured him on an estate close to San Jose's international airport Thursday, Security Minister Benjamin Piza said.

"There was a very brief shootout, then he gave up," Piza said. No was wounded. Piza said Costa Rican authorities acted on a tip from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

Police also took into custody four other men and a 17-year-old Mexican girl who said she had been kidnapped, Piza said.

Man Freed After Accuser Tells Court She Faked Rape

COUNTRY CLUB HILLS, Ill. (AP) — Gary Dotson is "home and he's happy" today after spending his third night out of the prison where he served six years before the woman who accused him of rape testified she made up the story.

Dotson's "whole face lit up" when he walked into his family's suburban Chicago home and saw about 25 friends and relatives waiting to celebrate, said his brother, John. "I missed him and I love him and I'm glad he's back."

"Gary Dotson is innocent and loved and welcomed back home to Country Club Hills by his family and friends," said a sign on the door of the green, one-story, brick-and-frame house.

Dotson, 28, was released on $100,000 bond Thursday after a dramatic hearing in which Cathleen Crowell Webb, who accused him of rape and aggravated kidnapping, said she had lied in 1977, when she was 16, because she thought she was pregnant.

"I'm not totally free yet," Dotson said after he walked out of Joliet Correctional Center into the arms of his mother, Barbara, and his sister, Debbie.

"I've got a court date and I've got to take it from there. I'm just going to sit down and relax. That's all I want to do."

"He's home and he's happy," Debbie said after they arrived home.

The hearing was recessed until Thursday while the state performs blood and saliva tests to compare with 1977 tests to determine "if she's telling the truth now or not," said J. Arthur Scott, who prosecuted the case.

Mrs. Webb testified that when she left the restaurant where she worked in Homewood on July 9, 1977, she "ripped the buttons from my shirt, I ripped the zipper

(on my pants)...

"I tried to bruise my arms, to make fingernail marks on my breasts... I used a broken bottle to mark my abdomen."

She said she created a description of an attacker, from which a police sketch was made. Shown a mugshot of Dotson, she identified him as her assailant because he so resembled the sketch "that if I didn't, it would show it was a lie," she testified.

Under cross-examination by Assistant Cook County State's Attorney Peggy Frossard, Mrs. Webb said several times she couldn't recall details of her earlier testimony or statements to police.

Ms. Frossard hammered at Mrs. Webb's statements about the encounter with the teen-ager with whom she had sex and about the assault, focusing on what she said were inconsistencies in the woman's current story.

She cited 1977 reports that indicate Mrs. Webb sat huddled and frightened at the police station and at the hospital where she was examined.

Ms. Frossard also asked Mrs. Webb about the religious experience that had prompted her to come forward.

Mrs. Webb, a mother of two living in New Hampshire, said, "The Lord convinced me of the need to make restitution. I said no, and He's not stopped bothering me since."

After granting the recess for tests, Presiding Circuit Judge Richard Samuels, who sentenced Dotson to 25 to 50 years in prison on his 1979 conviction, set bond at $100,000.

Dotson's mother, Barbara, posted a $10,000 cash bond, money Lupel said was provided by an anonymous donor.

Exxon Still Largest In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon is still the nation's largest industrial company, but No. 2 General Motors gained on the oil giant in 1984 and Chrysler broached the top 15 for the first time in seven years, according to the Fortune 500 list.

The most prominent newcomer to the list was newly divested American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which ranked eighth and formerly had not qualified as an industrial company under the list's criteria. Fortune magazine reported Thursday.

The list of industrial companies, ranked according to 1984 sales, appears in the April 29 issue of Fortune, which will be available on newsstands April 15.

Exxon topped the list with sales of $90.9 billion in 1984, and GM was second at $83.9 billion, the magazine said. It noted that the sales gap separating the two companies had narrowed to $7 billion this year from $14 billion a year ago.

Third was Mobil Corp. with sales of $56.0 billion, followed by Ford Motor Co. with sales of $52.4 billion. Those were the same positions the two companies held last year.

Texaco Inc., which acquired Getty Oil Co. last year, moved up to fifth place from the sixth spot a year ago with sales of $47.3 billion.

International Business Machines Corp. fell to sixth from the fifth spot with sales of $45.9 billion.

Retaining its seventh position was Du Pont Co. with sales of $35.9 billion.

AT&T ranked eighth with sales of $33.2 billion in its first appearance on the industrial companies' list.

Before its court-ordered divestiture at the start of 1984, AT&T had failed to meet Fortune's criteria for inclusion on the list of industrial companies. The magazine requires that a company must derive more than 50 percent of sales from manufacturing, mining or both to qualify as an industrial concern.

General Electric Co. came in ninth, up from the 10th spot a year ago, with sales of $27.9 billion. Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) fell to the 10th spot from the No. 8 position last year with sales of $26.9 billion.

Falling from the top 10 was Chevron, which had ranked ninth last year but was 11th on the latest list. It had 1984 sales of $26.8 billion.

Chrysler Corp. moved from the 21st spot to No. 14 with sales of $19.6 billion, a gain of $6.3 billion over 1983.

The magazine also ranked companies by profit, and IBM led that list for the third straight year with $6.6 billion in net income in 1984. Second was Exxon at $5.5 billion, followed by GM at $4.5 billion and Ford at $2.9 billion.

Chrysler ranked fifth, the third automaker among the top five companies in terms of profitability. It vaulted from No. 20 in terms of profitability as its net income tripled in 1984 to $2.4 billion.

The biggest money loser among the Fortune 500 was A.H. Robins Co. Inc., which it said lost $462 million in 1984. Thirty-four of the Fortune 500 companies lost money in 1984 compared with 60 a year earlier.

New York was home to the largest number of Fortune 500 companies with 80 headquartered in the state. Illinois has 52, Ohio 40, California 39 and Pennsylvania 37.

CBS Alters Bylaws To Block Meetings

NEW YORK (AP) — Small shareholders won't be able to "harass" CBS Inc. by calling special meetings now that the network's board of directors has amended company bylaws, a top CBS official said.

The directors of CBS, the reported target of a takeover attempt, removed a clause Thursday that enabled shareholders owning 10 percent of CBS stock to call a special shareholders meeting, the company said.

Now a special meeting can be called only by the chairman of the board jointly with the chairman of the board's executive committee, by vote of a majority of the directors or at the request of two directors. There are 12 members on the CBS board.

William Lilley III, a CBS senior vice president, said the amendment would block any attempt by "a small group of shareholders" who might want to "harass CBS by calling special meetings for the purpose of publicizing their demands."

The offices and operation center of Greenville Utilities will be closed on Monday, April 8 in observance of Easter.

Customers wishing to pay their bills on that day may use the "Dropbox" beside GUC's drive-in window.

GUC will reopen Tuesday, April 9 from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. To report emergencies at night, weekends, and holidays, call 752-5627.

Weinberger Tells Viets To Change Policy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger warned that the United States will not condone Vietnam's "policies of aggression and colonialism," and is determined to protect its interests in the region.

In a 30-minute speech Thursday night, Weinberger also said the United States will never again "go into combat unless it is our intent to win."

While Weinberger spoke, about 500 people across the street at Union Square demonstrated against U.S. policies in Central America and South Africa, and a proposal to base the nuclear battleship USS Missouri in San Francisco.

Police seized two women who tried to carry a banner into the room where Weinberger spoke, but reported no arrests.

"We bear the Vietnamese people no ill will," Weinberger said in his speech to the World Affairs Council of Northern California. "But we can never condone the policies of aggression and colonialism being pursued by their government against their neighbors."

"We call on Vietnam to become a responsible member of the community of nations — to pursue a truly independent foreign policy — and to let her neighbors enjoy the freedom and independence that Ho Chi Minh so often preached."

"Our policies and our commitments (in Southeast Asia) are and will be based on a sober assessment of our nation's interests — interests we are determined to protect," he said.

Weinberger said a shipment of U.S. arms — including artillery and armored vehicles — will arrive in Thailand later this month. Vietnamese forces occupying Cambodia have on occasion chased Cambodian rebels across the border into Thailand.

About an hour before the secretary's speech, police and demonstrators scuffled when about 25 protesters began pounding on barricades outside the hotel. Police, some in riot gear, swiftly moved in and restored order.

Richard P. Koch, an attorney with the demonstrators, said "We wanted to bring attention to what we think are incorrect U.S. responses in South Africa, and to insurgencies in El Salvador and Nicaragua."

In a 12-minute news conference before his speech, Weinberger said the Soviets should discipline those responsible for the shooting death of a U.S. Army intelligence officer, but said a Soviet apology need not be a precondition for a meeting between military leaders.

"All that's required is for the Soviets to discipline their troops and not permit this kind of murder to be repeated," he said.

Sudan Considers Price Rollbacks

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — President Gaafar Nimeiri's government says it is considering a rollback in the price increases for bread and other staples that led to riots and a crippling general strike.

The offer came Wednesday night in a nationwide television speech by the first vice president, Omar Mohammed el-Tayeb, who is the senior government official while Nimeiri is visiting in the United States.

The strikers have vowed to oust Nimeiri and have virtually sealed the city off from the outside world.

El-Tayeb said two "popular committees" have been formed to study the price increases, and one has recommended reducing the price of bread from 8 cents to 5 1/2 cents. Before the government removed subsidies, the price of bread was 6 cents.

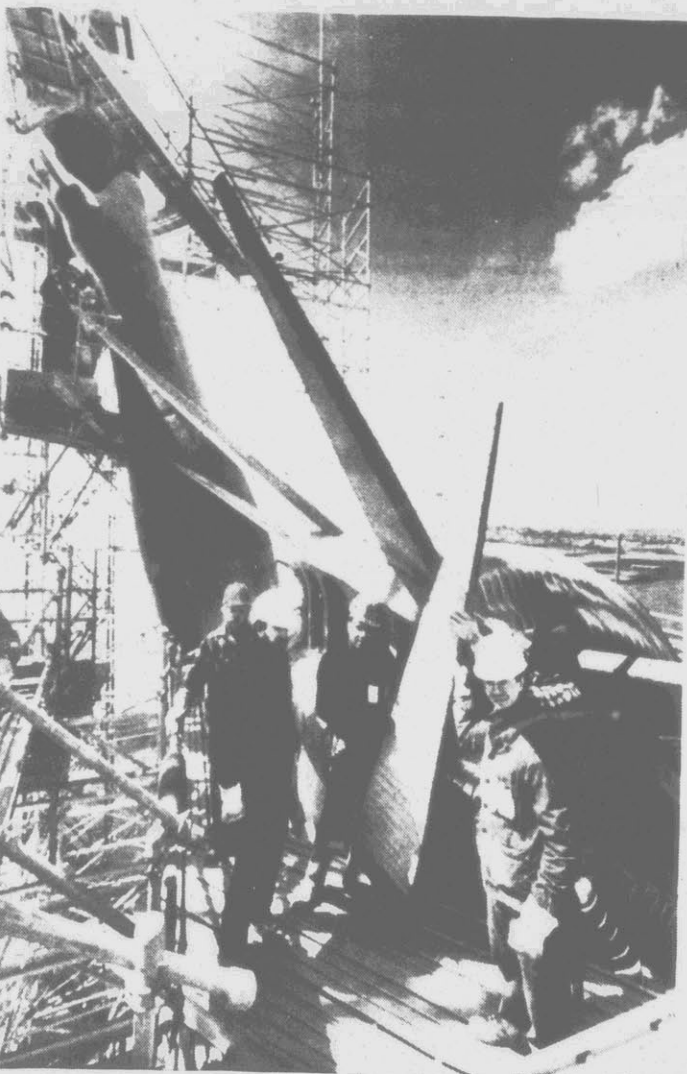

"We will work on carrying out these recommendations," he said.

El-Tayeb said the other committee is studying the price increases for other commodities including soap and oil.

Diplomatic and other reports outside Sudan on Thursday said the strike had shuttered banks, closed the airport, interrupted electricity and water supplies and curtailed medical services.

International telecommunications and telephone services were down. It was not clear whether the government had shut them to muzzle foreign reporting of the situation or the communications engineers had joined the strike.

Nimeiri was quoted in an interview published Thursday in a Saudi Arabian newspaper as describing the disturbances as a "transient matter."

LIBERTY SPIKES — Workers remove the first of seven giant spikes from the Statue of Liberty's crown Thursday in part of a program to refinish and strengthen the spikes during an overall restoration of the statue. Each of the spikes, which represent the seven seas and the seven continents, is about 9 feet long and weighs 150 pounds. (AP Laserphoto)

Iraq Opens Missile Attack on Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — A powerful blast, the eighth in 23 days, today rocked Baghdad, and Iran said it launched a missile attack on the Iraqi capital.

A huge plume of dark gray smoke could be seen billowing from the densely populated city center moments after the blast.

A foreign resident who lives near the city center described the explosion as "very fierce."

"The house was shaking for a few seconds and I stumbled while rushing to the balcony to find out what was happening," said the foreigner, who refused to be identified.

It was not immediately known whether there were any casualties. The foreigner reported hearing ambulance sirens.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, sent a flash message across its wires saying "Baghdad Missile-Attacked ... Baghdad Missile-Attacked" shortly after the blast.

Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian Parliament, was quoted as warning earlier today of a missile attack on Baghdad in retaliation for Iraqi strikes on Iranian cities the previous day.

Attention Greenville Citizens

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF AN ORDINANCE REZONING TERRITORY LOCATED WITHIN THE CORPORATE LIMITS OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE, NC

Pursuant to Article 19, Chapter 160A of the General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, NC, will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building in the City of Greenville, NC, on Thursday, April 11, 1985, at 7:30 p.m. on the question of the adoption of an ordinance rezoning the following described territory located within the corporate limits of the City of Greenville as follows:

DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY TO BE REZONED FROM R-6 (SINGLE-FAMILY, DUPLEX, MULTI-FAMILY) TO CH (HIGHWAY COMMERCIAL) AND O&I (OFFICE AND INSTITUTIONAL):

To Wit: Carolina Dairy Products, Inc.
 Location: City of Greenville, Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, east of Memorial Drive, south of Millbrook Street, north of Green Mill Run

During this public hearing, objections or suggestions will be duly considered by City Council. All interested persons are requested to be present at the hearing, and they will be afforded an opportunity to be heard.

A copy of the proposed ordinance is on file at the City Clerk's office located at 201 W. 5th Street, and is available for public inspection during normal working hours Monday through Friday.
 BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE QUESTION OF THE ADOPTION OF AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE, NC

Pursuant to Article 19, Chapter 160A of the General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given that the City Council of the City of Greenville, NC, will conduct a public hearing in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building in the City of Greenville, NC, on Thursday, April 11, 1985, at 7:30 p.m. on the question of the adoption of an ordinance amending the Zoning Ordinance by adding a definition of, and specific regulations for, television satellite dish antennae.

Section 1. Section 32-3 will be amended by adding the following definition:
 "Television satellite dish antennae—an apparatus capable of receiving communications from a transmitter relay located in planetary orbit."
 Section 2. Section 32-95 A-4 will be amended by adding the following use which may be considered as an accessory use:
 "(n) Television satellite dish antennae subject to section 32-95A-5d."
 Section 3. Section 32-95A-5 will be amended by adding the following specific regulations for residential television satellite dish antennae:
 "(d) Television satellite dish antennae for residential uses shall be subject to the following additional requirements:
 (1) Television satellite dish antennae exceeding four (4) feet in diameter shall be prohibited from rooftops.
 (2) Television satellite dish antennae exceeding four (4) feet in diameter shall not exceed fifteen (15) feet in height.
 (3) Television satellite dish antennae may not exceed fifteen feet in diameter.
 (4) There shall be no more than one television satellite dish antenna per residential lot."
 Section 4. Section 32-95B will be amended by adding the following specific regulations for nonresidential television satellite dish antennae:
 "(2) Television satellite dish antennae for non-residential uses shall be subject to the following additional requirements:
 (a) Establishments which sell television satellite dish antennae may display antennae no closer than ten (10) feet to any street right-of-way.
 (b) Where abutting a residential use or residentially zoned property and a buffer is not already established, a buffer shall be required between the television satellite dish antenna and the abutting residential use or residentially zoned property. Required buffers may consist of an earth berm, evergreen vegetation or solid fence or any combination of the three and with the exception of evergreen vegetation, must be a minimum of six (6) feet in height. When evergreen vegetation is used to satisfy these requirements, such vegetation must be planted at an initial height of at least three (3) feet; be of such a variety that a height of at least six (6) feet can be obtained within three (3) years of planting; and be spaced at intervals so that within three (3) years of planting, the television satellite dish antennae will be visually buffered from adjoining property and right-of-way lines to a height of at least six (6) feet."

During this public hearing scheduled for April 11, 1985, objections or suggestions will be duly considered by City Council. All interested persons are requested to be present at the hearing, and they will be afforded an opportunity to be heard.

A copy of the proposed ordinance is on file at the City Clerk's office located at 201 W. Fifth Street, and is available for public inspection during normal working hours Monday through Friday.
 BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL.
 Lois D. Worthington, City Clerk

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE BIBLE'S HOLY MEN!

THE ORDINARY HEBREW WORD FOR "HOLY" IS KADOSH--SEPARATED, CONSECRATED-- IN OTHER WORDS, "SET ASIDE" FOR SACRED USE, LIKE THE UTENSILS IN THE SANCTUARY, ETC., ETC.. PROPHETS, AND THE PRIESTS OF THE TRIBE OF LEVI, WERE ALSO "SET ASIDE" FROM THE COMMON MAN--THEY DID NOT WORK AS COMMON MEN BUT ATTENDED TO THE WORK AT THE TABERNACLE AND ITS SERVICE. THESE INHERITED DUTIES KEPT THE PRIESTS FROM EARNING A LIVING LIKE THE OTHER MEN OF ISRAEL! BUT MOST OF THE SACRIFICES THAT WERE BROUGHT TO THE TEMPLE BY THE PEOPLE--DOVES, LAMBS, BREAD ETC., WERE USED AS FOOD BY THE PRIESTS AND IT WAS MOSAIC LAW THAT EACH TRIBE HAD TO CONTRIBUTE, TO THE TRIBE OF LEVI, A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF EVERYTHING THAT THEY GREW OR MADE (DEUT. 18:1-8). SO, FOR THE LEVITE, MAKING A LIVING WAS OF NO CONCERN--THEY WERE CARED FOR BY ALL THE OTHER TRIBES. IT WAS SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT FOR THE LONE PROPHET! THE PROPHETS DID NOT INHERIT THEIR OFFICE LIKE THE LEVITE PRIESTS DID. THE CALL OR "THE WORD OF THE LORD" CAME TO THEM DIFFERENT WAYS AND, ONCE THE CALL CAME, THEY SPENT THEIR DAYS IN WANDERING FROM VILLAGE TO VILLAGE, PREACHING THEIR MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE. FORTUNATELY, THE TRUE PROPHET WAS RECOGNIZED BY THE PEOPLE BY HIS WORKS, BY HIS PREDICTIONS, THAT CAME TRUE, AND HIS DOCTRINE OF TEACHING. THESE PROPHETS WERE TRADITIONALLY FED AND HOUSED BY PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS FOR THEIR GOOD WORKS! FOR EXAMPLE, AS THE RICH SHUNEMITE WOMAN TOOK CARE OF THE PROPHET ELISHA (II KINGS 4:8-11).

LITTLE DOES THIS WOMAN REALIZE THAT GREAT THINGS SHALL BE DONE FOR HER BECAUSE OF HER KINDNESS TO ELISHA!

New Book Stirs Protest

By GEROGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
At the table with his men, the teacher said, "I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer." It was the age-old Jewish seder, and also the last supper of the Jew, Jesus.
That foundational link between the head of Christianity and the mother faith, Judaism, both of which are observing key festivals this weekend, was causing some incidental and uncharacteristic friction this time.
Ordinarily, kindred themes of redemption are pointed up at Passover, the Jewish commemoration of ancient liberation from slavery in Egypt, and Easter, the Christian celebration of Jesus' resurrection from death.

Furthermore, joint Christian-Jewish observances of the Passover seder, the ceremonial meal recounting the old story of freedom from bondage, have spread in many communities to deepen understanding between the faiths.
But this year, with the eight-day Passover beginning this Friday at sundown, the same day Christians mark Jesus' crucifixion before celebrating his resurrection Sunday, a hassle developed over a small book.
A broad front of national Jewish organizations, along with the Jewish Book Council of the Jewish Welfare Board, an umbrella group, protested publication of a children's Passover storybook that briefly mentions Jesus.

Blue Greenberg, the JBC president, deplored what he called the storybook's "mixing Christian and Jewish concepts as though they are one... It is beneath the dignity of the new ecumenical encounter."
The book, "The Story of Passover for Children," a 24-page, color-illustrated paperback in verse, was issued by Ideals Publishing Corp. of Milwaukee, a subsidiary of Thomas Nelson Publishers of Nashville.

Christians Trace Path Used By Jesus

JERUSALEM (AP) — Christian pilgrims from around the world, some bearing wooden crosses, today retraced the steps of Jesus through the narrow streets of Old Jerusalem to Calvary in a Good Friday procession.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II donned a priest's black mantle, slipped into a booth inside St. Peter's Basilica and heard 13 worshippers' confessions at the start of a day of mourning to mark Christ's crucifixion.

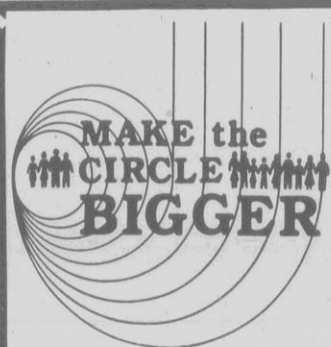

Meanwhile, Israelis cleaned their homes of bread and other leavened foods as they prepared to celebrate the Jewish Passover holiday commemorating the exodus of the Israelites from slavery under the Egyptian Pharaohs.

The holiday begins at sundown today with a traditional feast known as the Seder, and continues for eight days.

The start of Passover this year coincides with Good Friday, and tens of thousands of Jewish tourists and Christian pilgrims have arrived in the Holy Land in the past few days.

Led by Franciscan priests, several thousand pilgrims marched from St. Anne's Church at the start of Jerusalem's Via Dolorosa to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

Design Students Complete Projects

Environmental/interior design students from the East Carolina University School of Art have completed plans for four public service design projects for local non-profit agencies and new businesses.

Sharon Teague completed a design for a science education module at River Park North, while Jacqueline Johnson and Suzanne Gardner drew plans for a phased interior redesign of the Willis Building, which houses the Regional Development Institute.

Barbara Nichols has done design and drafting work for the Athletic Department at ECU on stadium seating plans and installation of fences.

Seven students drew design guidelines for consideration for revitalization of Greenville's downtown area. These will be presented to city officials at a public meeting set for April 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Willis Building. Downtown design team students were Kay Alston, Laura Elizabeth Graham, Lori Moore, Robin Tabayoyon, Linda Yarbrough, Julie McGill, and Richard Orzol.

NCAE Convention

The Pitt County unit of the North Carolina Association of Educators will send 13 delegates to the annual NCAE state convention in Raleigh Thursday and Friday.

The delegates will represent the views of the 375 members of the Pitt County NCAE, according to Beverly Peaden, county president. The convention will include an awards banquet and talks by Raleigh Mayor Avery Upchurch and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan.

Photo Winner

Ray Scharf, aquatics director at East Carolina University and owner of The Rum Runner Dive Shop, has won second place in the SEAS '85 underwater photo competition.

The competition was held as part of the annual SEAS (Southeast Atlantic States) underwater education conference in Raleigh.

Scharf, a certified SCUBA diving instructor, took the prize-winning color slide, "Final Landing" — a picture of the tail section of a submerged airplane at sunset — on a dive trip to Mexico. The aircraft was used as a set in a James Bond movie.

The conference was sponsored by the North Carolina Marine Education and Resources Foundation and the photo competition included entries from all sections of the United States.

Johnson Leads Heels By Pirates

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina's Scott Johnson drove in five runs with three hits including a UNC-record setting homer as the Tar Heels ripped the Pirates of East Carolina 13-2 Thursday in college baseball.

Carolina plated four runs after two out in the seventh, then added seven more two-out runs in the eighth to put the game away.

Scott Johnson's performance came as no surprise to the Pirates, as he had pounded ECU pitchers in both contests. In the two games, he had eight hits in 10 at bats, four homers, 10 runs batted in and scored six times.

Scott Johnson's effort overshadowed that of Olympian B.J. Surhoff, who went 3-5 with a towering solo homer in the first to give UNC the early lead.

The Pirates battled back in the second as Mike Sullivan doubled to left, took third on a passed ball and scored on a single by Jay McGraw to knot the score.

East Carolina took the lead briefly in the top of the sixth on a homer by Chris Bradberry that hit the foul pole.

But in the bottom of the frame, Scott Johnson doubled to right, and Chris Lauria doubled him in with two out to even the score.

In the seventh, Mike Jedziniak and Howard Freiling singled before ECU pitcher Winfred Johnson recorded a strikeout and a pop fly. Surhoff ripped singled past Robert Langston to score Jedziniak for 3-2 lead, and Scott Johnson blasted a homer to right for his 17th homer of year setting a new UNC record.

UNC plated seven runs on seven hits in the eighth, with Scott Johnson providing a two-run double.

"I'm really disappointed because we had them where we wanted them through six innings," ECU Coach Gary Overton said of the pitching duel between Winfred Johnson and UNC starter Chris Turner.

Winfred Johnson, whose record slips to 6-2 on the season, gave up 16 of the Tar Heels' 18 hits and 11 runs, 10 earned.

Bradberry paced the Pirates with 3-3 performance at the plate, while McGraw and Mont Carter added two hits each. Tom Reed, who came on in relief of Turner in the sixth, is now 1-0. North Carolina, which improved its record to 27-11-1, has won nine straight and 15 of its last 16.

East Carolina slipped to 19-8 on the season and hosts American today at

Vikings Rally Then Hold Off Rose For 4-3 Victory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

KINSTON — Kinston's Vikings pushed over four runs in the fourth inning, then held off Rose High School the rest of the way to claim a 4-3 Big East baseball victory Thursday night.

The Rampants struck first, getting a run in the second inning, only to see Kinston score its four and take the lead in the fourth. Rose then rallied for two in the fifth, and put the tying run on first base with no one out in the sixth and seventh innings, but failed to bring it around.

East Carolina's offense outscored the defense Thursday as the Pirates went through their third full-scale scrimmage of the spring in Ficklen Stadium.

The players will be allowed to go home for the Easter break and practice will not resume until Tuesday. ECU will practice seven more times before the Purple-Gold spring game, scheduled for April 20.

The Pirate offense took its second scrimmage in three tries by outscoring the defense 24-16 in a complicated tabulation method that allows points for key plays.

"I thought that today was typical of a pre-holiday scrimmage," head coach Art Baker said. "There was not much intensity and a lot of pushing and shoving. A good indication of that is the fact that our offense won the scrimmage without scoring a touchdown."

Senior placekicker Jeff Heath supplied the offense with six points as he connected on field goals of 40 and 27 yards. His only miss was a 52-yarder that fell short.

"I have a lot of concern of the lack of sustained drive by our offense," Baker said. "We are getting some excellent play from Kevin Walker and Robert Washington while David Kramer and Greg Thomas are playing well at the offensive guards. Our defense is progressing, but it is still not at the level it should be."

Defensive coordinator Don Powers agreed with Baker's assessment of the scrimmage. "We weren't bad at time and some players gave good efforts, but we just played and you can't just play on defense. We were looking for our defense to show some consistency and some players did, but the emotion was not there. There are lessons to be learned and thank goodness we can learn those lessons at spring practice because they are a whole lot harder to take on a Saturday afternoon in the fall."

The Pirate coaching staff indicated there could be as many as three more scrimmages before the April 20 spring game. There were no new injuries to report.

"This was a hard loss," Coach Ronald Vincent said as the Rampants dropped to 1-3 in league action. "We didn't hit the ball very well. We had the chance to break it open early, but we hit the ball right at them instead."

Gary Scott took the loss, his first decision of the year. He allowed only two earned runs, walked three and struck out three. Kinston tagged him for seven hits, four of them in the fourth.

"I thought Gary did a good job. He kept them off balance and battled them well," Vincent added.

Rose had a chance in the first inning, putting its first batter on via an error. But after stealing up, he moved to third on an out and died there.

In the second, however, Rose pushed over an unearned run. With two away, Scott reached on an error and courtesy runner Lenny Langley stole second. Langley scored on a single to center by Larke Weatherington.

Rose again put a runner on with none out in the third, but after moving him to third on another error, a double play and a strikeout ended that threat.

Kinston, too, have threats in the first, second and third innings, but Rose was able to shut the door in time each inning.

But in the fourth, the Rampants could not put out the fire in time. With one away, Whit Whitley drew a walk and Tom Vermillion doubled down the left field line, scoring Whitley all the way from first.

Then, after a strikeout, James Watson singled to center, scoring Vermillion with the go-ahead run. Steve Whitley followed, reaching on an error, and the next two batters, David Washburn and David Mitchell sent grounders just past the glove of Weatherington at second for run-scoring hits, making it 4-1.

Kinston again threatened in the fifth and sixth, but was unable to score again.

Weary Leader

Golfer Jeff Sluman relaxes on his golf bag during Thursday's first round of the Greater Greensboro Open being played at the Forest Oaks Country Club near Greensboro. Sluman is the first round leader with a six-under-par score of 66. (AP Laserphoto)

New Experience For Jeff Sluman

GREENSBORO (AP) — It's a new experience for Jeff Sluman.

"Everything felt pretty good. I got into a rhythm. I felt like I was going to play pretty good all day.

"But leading the tournament? Yes, I'm surprised," Sluman said after his no-bogey, 6-under-par 66 had staked him to a one-shot advantage Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament. Sluman, now 27, joined the PGA Tour in 1983. "I thought I'd give it a shot," he said. "I didn't want to be 35 and say 'what if.'"

The 5-foot-7, 135-pounder failed to meet the minimum performance standards that season, took his game on the Asian circuit last season and rejoined the American Tour this year. He ranks a distant 148th on the money-winning list, has a career-high finish of 25th and is leading a Tour event for the first time.

The turn-around in his fortunes, he said, is the result of some help he received on the practice tee earlier this week from fellow pro Bob Tway. "I had the ball too far away, my stance was too open," Sluman said. "I changed my set-up, and it helped," he said. "I got into a good rhythm and things were falling."

Sandy Lyle, a long-hitting Scot who needs only to qualify for the final two rounds of this event to secure his full playing rights on the U.S. Tour, was the first man off the tee and completed his 67 before winds kicked up and hampered play the rest of the day.

Dan Pohl, Bobby Clampett and Joey Sindelar had 68s, 4-under-par on the 6,857-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course. Lanny Wadkins, a two-time winner already this season, and Roger Maltbie were next at 69.

Of those leaders, only Clampett played in the afternoon when the winds were at their worst. "It was difficult," Clampett said. "They'd be blowing 35-40 miles an hour, then die down. And they were swirling. It was pretty tricky."

Ben Crenshaw, who will defend his title in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., next week, shot 75 in the afternoon gusts. U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller matched par 72. Andy Bean, the defending Greensboro champion, struggled to a 74.

Sluman dropped a 20-foot birdie putt on the first hole, chipped in on the eighth, kept it going with a good save on the 10th and birdied both of the par-3s on the back nine, each time hitting to within 6 feet of the flag.

"Kind of fun," he said.

Conley Loses First Game, 12-10

HOLLYWOOD — West Carteret tied the game when a run scored on a two-out passed ball on a third strike and went on to hand the Vikings of D.H. Conley their first loss of the season 12-10 Thursday in Coastal 3-A high school baseball action.

Glenn Corbett walked to lead off the top of the seventh for the Patriots and went to second on a passed ball. After one out, Jeff Hadley lofted a fly ball to right field, but an error on the play allowed Corbett to cross the plate and trim the margin to 10-6. Greg Gould and Dee Willis walked, and Jason Willis followed with a two-run double to chase Conley starting pitcher Paul Hill.

David Rose rapped a grounder to shortstop for an out, driving in Jason Willis to cut Conley's lead to 10-9. Reliever Bronswell Patrick quickly ran the count to 0-2 against Ricky DySard, and DySard swung at a pitch that bounced in front of the plate for the strikeout. The ball got past catcher Fred Bryant allowing the tying run to score.

John Stiles singled to put runners on first and second, and Corbett followed with a single to center. The ball got past Steve Mills in center field allowing two more runs to score for the final margin.

Jason Willis paced the Patriots with two hits in four trips to the plate, while David Rose added a solo homer in the third.

Lee Hardee paced Conley with a 4-4 performance at the plate, including three doubles and a two-run homer in the sixth. Shane Adams went 2-4 for the Vikings.

Conley trailed 5-1 going into the fourth inning but plated four runs to even the score. Hardee led off with a double, Randy Mills singled and Adams drove in Hardee with a hit. Two passed balls allowed Randy Mills and Adams to score, and Michael Elks later scored on a fielder's choice by Steve Mills to even the score at 5-5.

Hardee again doubled to open the fifth, and an error on a single to center by Randy Mills allowed Hardee to cross the plate. A sacrifice by Adams drove in Mills.

The Vikings added three in the sixth before West Carteret's rally.

Conley, now 10-1 overall and 0-1 in the Coastal Conference, faces North Pitt Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Pitt County Easter Tournament.

SNOV HILL — Tommy Dunn sacrificed in Tony Tilghman with the winning run as C.B. Aycock took advantage of a pair of errors in the top of the seventh to defeat Greene Central 3-2 in Eastern Carolina high school baseball Thursday.

Winning pitcher Paul Summerlin struck out 15 Greene Central batters and scattered five hits to record the victory.

Summerlin homered in the fourth inning to put the Falcons on the board first, but Greene Central evened the score in the fifth. Summerlin issued all three walks in the fifth — to Stacy Chase, Michael Griffin and Ervin Collins — and a wild pitch allowed Chase to cross the plate.

In the sixth, Ken Wade singled and moved up on a sacrifice by Roger Sutton. A pinch-hit single by Eddie Horridge drove in Wade for a 2-1 Greene Central lead.

But in the seventh, Tilghman singled and moved to third on errors of bunts before Dunn's sacrifice.

"We played hard (Thursday)," Greene Central Coach James Fulghum said. "We were just on the verge of putting it away but just couldn't do it."

The Rams drop to 1-3 in the ECC, 2-9 overall, and face Fike Saturday in the Wilson Optimist Easter Tournament.

WASHINGTON — Williamston High School pushed over three runs in the top of the seventh inning to claim an 8-5 Northeastern Conference baseball win over Washington.

The Tigers took the initial lead in the top of the first inning, scoring once. With two away, Jesse Ward doubled and Troy Raynor walked. Mike Leggett then doubled in Ward.

Washington came back with three in the bottom of the frame, however, for a 3-1 lead. David McIver singled and stole second, scoring on a single by Steve Oden. Oden moved up on passed balls, scoring on one of them. Sam Stephenson singled and Ronnie Godley got a hit. Marty Hodges then singled in Stephenson.

Williamston tied it up with two in the second and got one in the third, only to see the Pam Pack come up with two in the bottom of the inning. Williamston then tied it at 5-5 with one in the fourth.

It stayed that way until the seventh, when Williamston scored three times to win it. Ward singled and stole up and Raynor singled. Leggett singled in Ward and a hit by Glen Hardison brought in both Raynor and Leggett.

Ward led Williamston with four hits, one of them a double while Leggett had three, also with a double. Hardison also had three while Raynor had two. Stephenson led Washington with three.

Williamston is now 8-1 overall and 6-1 in league play. The Tigers play North Edgemont in the Jamesville Easter Tournament Saturday, while Washington faces Creswell.

Warriors Win Golf Match

KINSTON — Eastern Wayne edged past host Kinston and Ayden-Grifton to win a three-way golf match Thursday.

Eastern finished the day with a 301 total while Ayden-Grifton took second at 325. Kinston was third with a 331 total.

Drew Nelson led Eastern Wayne with a one-over-par 73. Charles DeLorey and Richard Kimble each 75 while Kent Denton had a 78.

Marc Davis led Ayden-Grifton with a 75. Chris Brick and Brian Heath each added an 83 while Jeremy Shadle had an 84.

Anthony Kennedy led Kinston's effort with a 79, while Ken Neuhoff had 81, Sim Hodge had 82 and Mike Willoughby had 89.

Ayden-Grifton is now 7-5 on the year and returns to action on Monday, April 15, hosting Farmville Central and Pamlico.

Havelock Girls Slip By Conley

HAVELOCK — Havelock High School's girls' track team slipped past D.H. Conley yesterday, 73-59.

Havelock won eight individual events, led by a trio of double winners. Pat Abel won the discus and the 100-meter dash, while Victoria Morris took the triple and long jumps. Deborah Schry added both of the distance runs.

Veronica Thomas was a double winner for Conley taking the 200-meter dash and the shot put.

Conley also won two of the three relays, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Lady Rams' lead.

Conley is now 3-4 and returns to action on Monday, April 15, traveling to New Bern.

Summary:
Shot put: Thomas (C) 31-5; Morris (H) 27-10; Siebelink (C) 26-1.

Van Hoose Gets Good Advice

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Myra Van Hoose issued an ultimatum to Worth Blackwelder a few years ago — he had to choose between being her caddy or being her boyfriend.

"My first thought was that I would be her caddy," Blackwelder recalled, smiling as he held his and Myra's 10-week-old son, Myles.

Myra Blackwelder, after shooting a 4-under-par 68 Thursday for the first-round lead in the LPGA's $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore, credited her spouse of five years with giving her a boost before she began play.

"My husband gave me a little talk before I started," said Blackwelder, who has yet to win in five years on the tour. "He told me what Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino told his players, 'There's no sense walking on the court unless you think you can win.'"

"Although I'm not as fine-tuned as I'd like to be, that competitive spirit comes out when I walk onto the course."

Blackwelder, who played under her maiden name from 1980-84, had two birdies on each nine and no bogeys over the Mission Hills Country Club course she forged a one-stroke lead over Patty Sheehan, Judy Clark and Jane Crafter of Australia.

Six golfers posted opening 70s, including Betsy King, Pat Bradley and Alice Miller — who lost a share of the lead when she double bogeyed the final hole.

Blackwelder, playing in only her second tournament after a six-month layoff to have her baby, said that she was presently experimenting with her game and doesn't feel completely comfortable with the changes yet.

Thus she was surprised at her score, and said she was not really feeling the pressure of leading the Dinah Shore, one of four LPGA "majors" that's also one of the two richest tournaments on the tour.

Monarchs Down ECU

NORFOLK, Va. — Old Dominion's Lady Monarchs dominated the Lady Pirates 8-1 Thursday in women's college tennis action.

Janet Russell and Ann Manderfield of East Carolina defeated Allison Saldana and Desire Leemets 7-5, 6-7, 6-3 to win the top flight doubles match for the only Lady Pirate victory of the match.

The Lady Pirates, now 3-6 on the season, host UNC-Wilmington Wednesday.

Nelson Captures Putt-Putt Win

Eric Nelson, after a slow start, shot six under par the second round to win the Pro Division Thursday night at Greenville Putt-Putt.

Ray Taft shot a five-under par 67 for the two rounds to finish second, three shots behind Nelson.

In the Amateur Division, Herb Paschal jumped out to a commanding six-stroke lead after one round and coasted to an easy 12-shot win. Brian Bowles finished 2nd with an 80 and Bobby Bryant shot an 84 for third place.

Greene Central Netters Down Farmville 8-1

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School took a hard-fought Eastern Carolina Conference tennis match from Farmville Central, 8-1, yesterday.

While the Rams took all of the matches but the number six singles, all but one of those singles matches was a battle. Two matches went split sets, and in all but one of the matches, there was an extra-set event.

The win boosted the Greene Central record to 9-1 overall and 4-1 in the league. Farmville Central drops to 4-2, 3-1.

Greene Central plays host to Rosewood on Wednesday, while Farmville Central is idle until Tuesday, April 16 when it entertains Southern Nash.

Summary: Steve Harrison (GC) d. Joe Smith, 6-3, 7-5. Tim Sauls (GC) d. Paul Bassett, 6-2, 7-5. Mark Hall (GC) d. Howard Keel, 6-3, 7-5. Allen Rogers (GC) d. Eric Shine, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5. KINSTON — Rose High School's tennis team won the last four singles matches and the pivotal number three doubles to nip hosting Kinston, 5-4, in Big East competition yesterday.

Kinston captured the number one and two singles matches before Rose came back to win the next four and take a 4-2 lead into the doubles. But there, Kinston evened it up with the first two before Doug Bray and David Giordano teamed for a win in the number three match to win it.

Rose is now 3-5 on the season and is idle until Tuesday, April 16, when it plays host to Wilson Fike.

Summary: Chris Moore (K) d. Clay Jackson, 7-5, 6-4. Andrew Baker (K) d. David McDonald, 6-1, 6-2. Mike Gavigan (R) d. John Sebastian, 6-2, 6-1. Ralph Harper (R) d. Rob Beamon, 6-1, 6-1. Tulane Scandal Ends 73-Year Program

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane University's 73-year-old basketball program, rocked by an alleged point-shaving scheme and cash payments to players, has been shutdown for good, says the president of the 150-year-old institution.

Eamon Kelly also said Coach Ned Fowler resigned Thursday after admitting that he paid cash to players — a serious violation of NCAA rules. Assistant coaches Mike Richardson and Max Pfeifer also resigned.

Kelly made his announcement while Fowler and three assistants were closeted with a grand jury investigating allegations that basketball players used drugs and took money to cut Tulane's score in three games.

Later Thursday, the panel indicted three players, including John "Hot Rod" Williams, and five other men — three of them students — on charges of sports bribery and conspiracy. It accused five players of accepting at least $17,000.

Gary Kranz, a student indicted in the gambling case, also was charged with possessing cocaine and — in a separate indictment — with selling the drug to three team members. No players were indicted on drug charges.

The drug sales started about two weeks before the point-shaving, the indictments alleged.

Shaving points involves winning by fewer points or losing by more than the betting line that bookies establish on a game.

Until Thursday, only games against Southern Mississippi and Memphis State had been mentioned in connection with the investigation.

The indictment added a third, at Virginia Tech. But Tulane, a 12-point underdog, beat the line when it lost that game on Feb. 16, 66-65 on the strength of 28 points by Williams.

Tulane, as a 10½-point favorite, failed to beat the spread in a 64-63 victory over Southern Mississippi on Feb. 2. The Green Wave was a four-point underdog Feb. 20 when it lost 60-49 to Memphis State. Williams, who averaged 17.8 points per game in Tulane's 15-13 season, scored 15 against Southern Mississippi and 14 against Memphis State.

Kelly said he is certain the board of administrators and the university Senate will accept his recommendation to drop basketball, and he expects the termination to be permanent.

"A great university has to set standards of excellence and cannot tolerate or condone behavior that does not meet the test," he said.

Fowler, Richardson and Pfeifer were not implicated in the alleged gambling scheme, and none of the 150-year-old private university's other sports will be investigated, District Attorney Harry Connick said.

But he said the gambling and drug probes are continuing, and may involve some out-of-state residents.

"I have reason to believe that other folks out there deserve to have their activities scrutinized very carefully," Connick said.

The first information about the NCAA violations came from the district attorney and the university began its own probe, Kelly said.

Kinston Rallies By Rose

KINSTON — Kinston rallied for a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth to defeat the Rose Rampettes 4-3 Thursday in Big East high school softball action.

With a runner on first, a long fly tipped off Lisa Harkley's glove in left field and rolled to the fence allowing two runs to score.

Rose took the lead in the top of the inning when Harkley reached first on a fielder's choice and scored on a single by Kim Bridges for a 3-2 lead.

Vicki Parrott led the Rampettes with three hits in four trips to the plate, while Newton went 2-4.

Rose, now 2-2 in the Big East and 5-3 overall, remains idle until hosting Wilson Fike Tuesday April 16.

C.B. Aycock.....16

PIKEVILLE — Greene Central saw its unbeaten Eastern Carolina Conference softball status threatened yesterday by Charles B. Aycock, but they withstood the challenge, 19-16.

The Lady Rams took the lead with five runs in the first inning while the Falcons came up with two in their half of the frame on a homer by Elliott.

The Rams then added five more in the second, only to see Aycock score nine times for an 11-10 lead in the bottom of the inning. Atkins had a three-run triple to highlight the inning.

Greene Central came back with two each in the fifth and sixth to regain the lead, 14-11, but a five-run outburst by Aycock in the bottom of the sixth pushed the Lady Falcons back on top, 16-14.

The Rams then scored five times in the seventh to pull it out.

Cyndi Hicks led Greene Central with four hits, one of them a double, while Sharon Dawson (triple) and Cynthia Jones each had three. Trenette Daniels, Denise Warren, Antonette Wilkes and Renee Sullivan each added two. Best and Thomas, each with two, and each with a triple, led Aycock.

Greene Central is now 9-1 overall and 4-0 in ECC play. They will play Monday against Wilson Beddingfield in the Greene Central Softball Tournament.

GRIFTON — The deadline for the Shad Festival Tennis Tournament is Sunday.

Competition is in men's open, women's open, mixed and men's and women's 35 and over doubles competition.

To enter contact Ed Rhem, 129 Niblick, Grifton, 28530, or call 524-4075.

The deadline for the softball tournament is Wednesday. To enter contact William Dixon, 524-4703.

A $70 entry fee is charged, and entered teams must also furnish two softballs for the men's double elimination tournament, to be held at the DuPont softball field.

WASHINGTON — Williamston High School's girls' softball team pasted Washington, 27-0 yesterday behind six hit pitching by Angie Gainer.

The Lady Tigers pounded out 24 hits in the game, led by four by Christy Lilley. Myra Brown added three, including a homer and a double as the Tigers came up with six runs in the first frame and added as many in the second for a 12-0 start.

Pam Riddick, Jan Mills, Gainer and Sharon Jones also added three hits each for the Lady Tigers, while Shelly Harrington had two. Gloria Sherrod led Washington with two hits.

The win boosts Williamston to 7-0 in Northeastern Conference play. They return to action on Tuesday, April 16, hosting Edenton.

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Prince To Stop Public Tours

NEW YORK (AP) — Academy Award-winning rock star Prince gave some strange answers when asked about his plans, but his manager said the flamboyant singer will quit touring when his current 32-city swing ends Sunday.

The concert at Miami's Orange Bowl "will be his last live appearance for an indeterminate number of years," manager Steve Fagnoli said Thursday in a statement issued by the singer's public relations company, the Howard Bloom Organization.

It quoted Fagnoli as saying, "I asked Prince what he planned to do. He told me, 'I'm going to look for the ladder.'"

"So I asked him that that meant. All he said was, 'Sometimes it snows in April.'"

The statement said nothing about Prince's plans for records, tapes or movies.

Prince won an Oscar last month for best original score for his movie "Purple Rain." The album of the same name has been a top seller.

Baez Biography

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Folk singer Joan Baez says she's "walking history" and that she's writing an autobiography.

Ms. Baez, 44, was in Tucson for two concerts Thursday night to benefit the Sanctuary Movement to aid refugees from Latin America.

The shows ended a seven-week tour. Ms. Baez said she is busy writing an autobiography that "will hopefully provide a perspective of my whole career until the paralysis of the '80s. I'm walking history at the moment."

Florence Nightingale Film History Scheduled For Television Sunday

By JERRY BUCK
 AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gerald Abrams likes to put people's lives on film. He's already done biographies on James Dean, the actor, Roy Campanella, the baseball player, and Golda Meir, the politician — a diverse bunch indeed. His latest portrait is Florence Nightingale, the nurse.

The NBC movie, "Florence Nightingale," will be broadcast Sunday.

"I wanted to do Florence Nightingale because everyone has an image of her," he said. "That's why I've done a lot of biographies. People had an image of Golda Meir (the late Israeli prime minister), but no one really knew anything about her. The same is true of Florence Nightingale."

"Everyone knows that she was a nurse, the 'lady with the lamp,' as the soldiers in the Crimean War called her. The film biography to me is proof that truth is stranger than fiction. I think people are interested in people. Newspapers, magazines, electronic journalism are dedicated to people. People are fascinated with people, and real people are the most fascinating of all."

Jaclyn Smith, who previously starred in "Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy" and was Sally Fairfax in the "George Washington" miniseries, plays Florence Nightingale.

Miss Nightingale founded the modern nursing profession. She was the first to introduce sanitary nursing conditions on the battlefield. She arrived in charge of 38 nurses in the Crimea in 1854, just as casualties were coming in from the Charge of the Light Brigade, made famous by the poem by Alfred, Lord Tennyson. During the war she helped bring the death rate down from 42 out of every 100 wounded to two in every 100.

Abrams said in considering a film biography he looks for a subject with a story to tell.

"A lot of the projects I consider never get made because there's no interesting story. But sometimes they do get made," he said. "There was the James Dean film and 'The Jesse Owens Story,' which we backed out of. They weren't about anything. In both cases you almost had to manufacture a story."

"The best films have been about people who are household names that people don't really know much about. You have to have a story. Just doing a film about a famous person doesn't guarantee that it's going to be interesting. Sometimes, there are good stories about people who aren't well known."

Until he started the research, Abrams was unfamiliar with Miss Nightingale's story. "The story is that she felt a calling from God but didn't know what it was," he said. "She lived during the Victorian era when woman of privilege didn't do these things. It was a story of a woman who dared to help people in a time when no one helped anybody. It was a time of poor medical services."

Abrams said Miss Smith was the only star he considered for the role. He wasn't deterred by some people still associating her with "Charlie's Angels."

"She had done film biographies before and one performance in particular showed that she could do them well," he said. "That was as Sally Fairfax in 'George Washington.' She did a little sequence about the 'language of the fan.' I was impressed by that."

Abrams is not exclusively a biographer. He's working on two series pilots, "Steel Collar Man" for CBS and "Sam and Terry" for ABC. He's also going to produce a movie for CBS this summer called "The Last Run," which stars Burt Lancaster. It's about a prison break.

Haggerty Sentenced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Grizzly Adams" television star Dan Haggerty is to have surgery for a cancerous mole, his lawyer said as Haggerty was sentenced to 90 days in jail for selling cocaine.

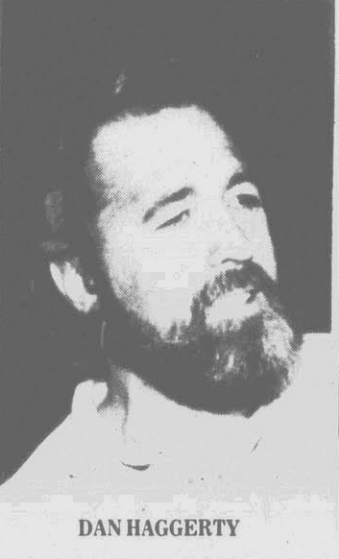

Superior Court Judge Aurelio Munoz also on Thursday gave Haggerty three year's probation, ordered him to do 200 hours of community service and to undergo periodic drug testing.

Haggerty, 41, was convicted March 8 of selling an eighth of an ounce of cocaine to undercover police.

Munoz stayed the sentence pending appeal by Haggerty's lawyer, W.

Michael Mayock, who said doctors this week determined that a mole on Haggerty's shoulder is cancerous. He said surgery is planned next week.

Haggerty said he has been unable to get work in Hollywood because of the case. "The motion picture industry is very unforgiving," he said.

Martin, Assembly Leaders Discuss Veto

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican Gov. Jim Martin says an 80-minute, closed-door parley with the Legislature's two top Democrats convinced him that a gubernatorial veto bill won't be killed without debate.

"I'm satisfied it's going to get full consideration, and it'll be treated in a normal way," said Martin, emerging from a meeting Thursday with Lt. Gov. Byb Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

Jordan invited Martin and Ramsey to his office in a bid to stem an increasingly bitter feud between the executive and legislative branches.

The leaders would not reveal the substance of their discussion, but Martin said they touched on nine topics, including a veto bill filed that day by Rep. Jm Craven, R-Moore.

Last week, the Senate Judiciary I Committee killed another veto measure and the full Senate's Democratic majority avoided a floor vote. Martin lambasted the moves as "repulsive" and "arrogant."

Martin told reporters Thursday morning he wanted all House members to vote on the veto. Asked after the meeting with Ramsey and Jordan if he expected a floor vote, Martin said, "I don't think there's any way to control or guarantee that."

Ramsey reiterated his opposition to the veto, but added, "Anything that's been introduced in the House since I've been speaker gets a fair hearing." He said the veto bill will be sent to the Constitutional Amendments Committee.

Craven's bill would schedule a referendum for November 1986. If enacted, the amendment would empower the governor to veto any bill or item in the state budget. A three-fifths vote in the House and Senate would be required to override a veto.

"North Carolina is the only state with a governor lacking veto power," said Craven. "The people of North Carolina deserve the right to decide whether this missing link in our check and balance system should be approved."

Martin, who didn't make an issue of the veto in his campaign but made a surprise pitch for it in his State of the State address, said in his morning news conference that it was "not a fly-by-night issue."

"It's an issue of historical importance," he said. "Let's put those issues before the people. That's all I ask."

"If it's not going to happen, then ... let's have a debate on it and have a hearing, so people can have some input, and so they will know who's for it and who's against it."

If the bill passes in the House, it might be ruled ineligible for consideration in the Senate, since under its rules an issue can't be brought up twice in the same session. Suspension of the rule would take a two-thirds vote.

"I don't think it would have a Chinaman's chance," said Senate President Pro Tem J.J. "Monk" Harrington, chairman of the Rules Committee. Martin said, "If you've got the votes, you can do pretty much whatever you want to do."

After Thursday's meeting, Jordan said if the veto bill reaches the Senate, the rule "would have to be looked at very carefully to see if it would apply. ... There will be nothing done to try to prevent it from happening."

The leaders said they avoided discussing the sharp criticism leveled at each other in recent weeks.

Jordan said they agreed that partisan issues would not disappear, but that "it's very important that we take those other issues that have no need to be partisan in any way, and to have as full agreement as possible."

Martin said he had assured Ramsey he would not seek legislation to make the House speaker's job elective statewide, a move Martin said would be "absurd." He acknowledged that an aide had raised the possibility. House members elect the speaker.

Flanked by other GOP lawmakers at morning news conference, Craven insisted the veto issue wasn't partisan. But if Democratic leaders doesn't give the bill a fair hearing, the GOP will use it against them in the 1986 election campaign, Craven said.

"It wouldn't be a question of backing anyone into a corner," said Rep. Frank "Trip" Sizemore, R-Guilford. "It would be a question of holding them accountable for their actions in this term."

Martin Says Skip Quotas

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Highway Patrol should be an "equal opportunity employer," but should avoid quotas as it recruits and promotes more blacks and women, Gov. Jim Martin says.

"I have never been in favor of quotas," said Martin in a news conference Thursday. "I want us to continue to ... reach out and seek out qualified candidates who would come and ... apply for the positions, and go through the training."

The Reagan administration has urged North Carolina and 50 other states and cities to dismantle their court-imposed minority hiring and advancement policies. The move followed a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that the Memphis, Tenn., fire department did not have to violate its seniority system to protect blacks from being laid off.

Martin said, "If the Justice Department feels we can achieve our goals without quotas, then fine."

The North Carolina plan, arranged in a 1980 federal court consent decree, reserves up to 50 percent of each patrol trooper training class for blacks and 25 percent for women.

MAKING UP — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, right, back to camera, stands with Gov. Jim Martin, left, and House Speaker Liston Ramsey after the three met for 80 minutes an what Jordan said was an effort to "start working together like we are supposed to. The Republican governor and the Democratic legislative leaders have been at odds frequently over issues before the General Assembly in recent weeks. (AP Legislator)

Standards Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — An eight-year program that would raise the minimum education standards for all North Carolina schools has won tentative approval in the Senate by a wide margin.

The Senate tentatively approved the bill 35-8, but Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, objected to a final vote, saying the issue needed more debate today. If the bill wins final Senate approval, it will move to the House.

"If we pass this legislation and if we implement it later on ... this is what this General Assembly will be remembered for," Sen. Dennis Winner said Thursday. "We are deciding whether or not we want to spend considerable sums of money to raise the level" of poorer systems.

Legislator Wants Happy Hours Ended

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to eliminate happy hours has dampened the spirits of some bar and restaurant owners who say the Legislature should let the ABC Commission order the next round of rules.

"We would be opposed to a wipeout of the concept of happy hours," said Jerry Williams of the North Carolina Restaurant Association.

Williams said he is surprised that a bill was introduced Thursday when the Alcoholic Board of Control is scheduled to consider happy hours next month.

"This will be one more element of government telling us what we can charge," he said. "We're regulated enough in that area."

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, said he filed the bill to reduce drunken driving sparked by special prices on drinks.

"There's no question that happy hours encourage consumption," he said. "The idea is to get enough drinks in them (patrons) at a reduced price so that when the time expires they'll buy more at the regular price."

Williams said the ABC commission knows more about licensing procedures than the Legislature does and is not subject to the "rush and push of the legislative process." He said the commission may decide to outlaw two drinks for the price of one and leave other drinking incentives alone.

Growers Organize Tobacco PAC

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Tobacco farmers have launched an effort to increase their clout in Congress, forming a political action committee that will work to elect their friends and defeat their foes.

"This all boils down to one thing — tobacco farmers have decided to pull together some political muscle," said W.W. "Billy" Yeargin, the group's secretary-treasurer.

The Tobacco Producers Political Action Committee's 14-member board of directors planned fund-raising projects and mapped strategy in their organizational meeting at a Raleigh hotel. The need for congressional support is particularly acute this year, with the Reagan administration and anti-smoking forces working together to eliminate the federal tobacco support program, said the PAC's co-chairmen, Shelton Hinnant of Kenly and Jerry West of Fremont.

"It's very evident that we're about 10 years too late in getting started," Hinnant said in an interview. "But no, I don't think it's too late to save the program, or I wouldn't be here."

Hinnant and West stressed that the PAC, a bipartisan, non-profit organization, was not a policymaker. They said such groups as the North Carolina Farm Bureau and the North Carolina Grange have fought past efforts to establish a leaf growers' PAC for fear of losing power.

"Some groups are so self-contained that they just don't want any of their thunder taken away from them," said Hinnant. "We're in a position now where we need all the guns we can get."

He said the tobacco program's embattled condition might lead such groups to put aside their fears and support the PAC — especially if the various "support" industries that rely on tobacco lend a hand. Fertilizer producers, equipment manufacturers, and small businesses in farming communities would suffer if the leaf program were dismantled, he said.

Yeargin said that in 1978, while managing director of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee, he helped research a study that showed that every 10 percent reduction in tobacco consumption cost the North Carolina economy $3 billion, with losses ranging from tax revenues to land values.

The PAC will use direct mailings, pig-pickings, and other methods to raise money. It hasn't set a particular fund-raising goal, Yeargin said.

"without coercion," while only about 10 of the 100 senators are considered reliable friends of tobacco. A candidate won't have to promise to vote a certain way to get help from the PAC, but it will seek as strong a commitment as it can get, West said.

TOWN BURNS — A fire that began in a dry kudzu patch spread into the town of Rutherfordton Thursday, covering more than 15 acres of land. Officials said at least six buildings were destroyed before the flames were extinguished. The fire came within two blocks of the county courthouse in downtown Rutherfordton. (AP Laserphoto)

Father Charged In Girls' Deaths

RALEIGH (AP) — A man seen fleeing a burning trailer has been charged with murder in the deaths of two teen-age girls found fatally stabbed in the charred remains of the home, police said.

Melvin Coleman, 36, of Raleigh, was charged Thursday in the deaths of Marian "Mimi" Coleman, 13, and Monica A. Cobb, 17, whose fully clothed bodies were found in separate bedrooms in the South Raleigh trailer.

State Medical Examiner Page Hudson said both girls died from multiple stab wounds in the chest and back shortly before the fire started and blew up the mobile home.

Coleman was caught by police Wednesday after he fled the burning home, Raleigh Police Capt. E.O. Lassiter said.

Coleman remained in critical condition in the North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, with second- and third-degree burns over half his body, including his legs, hands and face, a hospital spokesman said. A security guard was posted outside his room.

The State Bureau of Investigation has not determined the cause of the fire. But Raleigh police chief Frederick Heineman said officials suspect that gasoline was used the start the fire.

Coleman, father of Marian Coleman, and stepfather of Monica Cobb, had been indicted by a Wake grand jury Monday on charges of rape, incest, and taking indecent liberties with the girls.

State Crime Rate Drops 3 Percent

RALEIGH (AP) — More people had cars stolen and more cases of arson were reported in North Carolina last year, but cases of crime, rape, robbery and burglary were down from the year before, a new report shows.

The overall crime rate fell 3 percent in 1984, while the number of murders dropped 1 percent statewide but increased 9 percent in urban areas, the preliminary annual report on crime in North Carolina showed.

Overall, crime fell 1 percent in urban areas and 5 percent in rural areas in 1984 as compared to 1983, the report showed.

Violent crime, which includes murder, rape and robbery, dropped 1 percent statewide with a 1 percent increase in urban areas and a 4 percent decrease in rural areas, the report said.

While the number of murders rose in urban areas, the murder rate dropped 6 percent in rural areas, the report said.

"Although the murder rate dropped last year, there are still more than 525 unsolved murder cases," state Attorney General Lacy H. Thornburg said in a statement accompanying the report. "These cases have been assigned for review by a special SBI task force." Thornburg said the task force will look at each case, "even though most of them are several years old."

"An unsolved murder leaves a lot of lingering fear in a community," he said. "Nothing is more important to me than to help our citizens feel safe and secure in their homes and communities."

The report also showed that property crimes, including burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft, fell 3 percent statewide, with a 2 percent reduction in urban areas and a 5 percent drop in rural areas.

Motor vehicle theft was the only crime included in the report that rose in all areas, increasing 8 percent in urban areas, 11 percent in rural areas and 9 percent statewide.

Arson increased 15 percent statewide, the report said.

Meanwhile, among North Carolina cities, Burlington reported an increase in crime of 15 percent while crime dropped 10 percent in both Winston-Salem and Greensboro.

Crime increased 6 percent in Wilmington and 4 percent in Charlotte and Goldsboro and fell 6 percent in Wilson and 3 percent in Durham and High Point, the report said.

Among North Carolina counties, crime jumped 25 percent in Buncombe County and fell 27 percent in Forsyth County, the report said.

Crime rose 10 percent in Mecklenburg County and 7 percent in Onslow County and dropped 24 percent in Robeson County and 19 percent in Wake County, the report showed.

FOCUS

A New Leaf

On Friday, children in Missouri and Arizona will plant thousands of trees in honor of Arbor Day. Nearly 1,200 kinds of trees grow wild in the United States. There are more than 600 species of eucalyptus trees and 275 kinds of oaks in the world. Twenty-five percent of the world's forests lie in the vast zone of coniferous trees covering 2.7 billion acres in the northern part of the Soviet Union. About 38 percent of that forest consists of Siberian larch.

DO YOU KNOW — Which species of tree is practically fireproof because its sap is nonresinous?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Anton von Leeuwenhoek invented the first light-reflecting microscope.

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

A falsecard doesn't have to be a huge bluff to be successful. Sometimes just one spot can make all the difference.

North-South conducted a reasonable auction to arrive at four spades. Since South had described an unbalanced hand by rebidding three diamonds (with a balanced hand he would either have passed or raised no trump), he had to have a five-card spade suit, so North gave preference to spades with three-card support rather than raise diamonds — a 10-trick game rated to be easier to make than five of a minor.

West led the queen of clubs, declarer played low from dummy and East encouraged with the nine.

The normal play with touching cards is to signal with the highest possible, so in declarer's mind, East's little bluff fixed the ten of clubs with West. West continued with the jack of clubs and declarer ruffed.

When declarer ran the jack of diamonds to East's bare king, the ace of clubs was returned. Declarer ruffed, cashed the king of trumps and now tried to reach dummy by leading a low heart. But West jumped in with the king and played another diamond.

East ruffed for the setting trick and then continued the rout by returning the two of clubs. Since declarer was sure that West still had the ten of clubs, he elected to ruff this trick in dummy. To his surprise, West ruffed with the nine of trumps, then gave East another diamond ruff for down three.

Note that, with peripheral vision, declarer can make an overtrick. After ruffing the second club, he leads a diamond to the ace, picking up the king. Now a trump finesse and two heart finesses, using the queen and eight of diamonds as entries, brings declarer's trick total to 11.

FORECAST FOR SAT. APRIL 6, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning brings you a considerable amount of understanding what you can best do to make your surroundings more attractive and to shop for those items that will bring pleasure.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is fine for investigating into whatever you do not comprehend and then you will have right data with which to work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you clarify your position, you can easily get allies to join with you in some venture. Then please others as much as you can.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Consider the aspects before tackling any job and then you will know what to do. You may get new ideas in the evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Count the cost of some pleasure you desire having, and see where you can cut corners so that it won't be so expensive.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Showing kin that you are practical can please them very much today, but avoid some strange newcomer in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Phone calls to and from can be the means through which you gain fine benefits today. Make visits that are necessary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you are conventional at home, you can solve that financial affair very nicely. Get basic affairs well handled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you plan carefully, you can start getting your big plans working successfully, but don't permit kin to get you discouraged.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be in the quiet of your study or with an expert and work out plans of importance for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are able to get the backing of a dynamic friend for some interest that means a great deal to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You understand how to gain more goodwill in the morning, so make the plans that will bring right results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You get fine ideas and results during the day hours, but tonight one who opposes you can be upsetting. Get into civic work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to formulate plans for becoming very successful during the lifetime and should be encouraged in this. Be sure to give right spiritual training early plus a good education so that upon reaching adulthood your progeny won't be torn between one and the other.

Arms Shipment

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — An arms shipment seized in southern India was bound for Tamil separatist guerrillas in Sri Lanka, a Defense Ministry official said.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said India confirmed finding the arms shipment in a container "as big as a railway wagon." The Press Trust of India news agency reported from New Delhi that customs agents seized the weapons in Madras.

The Sri Lankan official said the weapons were part of an arms build-up for a guerrilla offensive planned later this month.

Tension builds as islanders face choices of independence or continued association with France.

New Caledonia, A Troubled Pacific Island

By MERCER CROSS

National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — New Caledonia, a remote remnant of French colonialism in the South Pacific, is a divided island territory tensely awaiting a decision on its future.

The choices: whether to join most of its neighboring archipelagos as an independent nation or to remain under the control of France, which has ruled it for the past 132 years.

Despite New Caledonia's obscurity, the decision will reach far beyond the immediate region into other areas of international rivalry.

Racial tensions underlie the dispute. They have cost about 20 lives in recent months.

Violence is no stranger to the island cluster. Cannibalism and tribal warfare were common among the ancestors of the Melanesians, or Kanaks, the native people who lived there when James Cook, the English explorer, first visited the islands in 1774.

Looked Like Scotland

When Cook saw the main island, a 30-by-250-mile stretch of land about 800 miles east of Australia, he dubbed it New Caledonia. Its pine trees and rugged terrain reminded him of Scotland, which the Romans had called Caledonia.

Both the British and the French were interested in claiming the territory. In 1853, France beat Britain to the punch.

Soon the French began to take choice grazing lands away from the natives, forcing the Melanesians onto reserves. The French aggrandizement led to several bloody revolts including big ones in 1878 and 1917.

Today, Melanesians compose only about 43 percent of the territory's approximately 145,000 residents. Whites of European extraction, chiefly French, account for nearly 36 percent. The rest are other ethnic groups, mainly Polynesians, Wallis and Futuna Islanders, Indonesians, and Vietnamese.

Most of the French population lives in and around the capital city of Noumea, on the southwestern side of the main island. Most of the Melanesians live in villages and on subsistence farms. Noumea and its nearby beaches are often described as a South Pacific version of the Riviera, with exclusive French shops, fine restaurants, fancy hotels, and topless beaches. The subtropical climate is excellent.

Includes Many Islands

Included in the French Overseas Territory are the Isle of Pines, 30 miles southeast of the main island; the Loyalty Islands — Uvea, Lifu, and Mare — 60 miles east; the Belep Islands, 30 miles north; and the Chesterfield Islands, a cluster of uninhabited atolls more than 300 miles northwest, in the Coral Sea.

New Caledonia is not only one of the largest island territories in the watery vastness of the South Seas; it is one of the wealthiest. Nickel was discovered in 1863, and New Caledonia became one of the world's largest producers. In recent years, however, recession has hit the nickel industry worldwide. One side effect in New Caledonia has been significant unemployment, which in turn has added to internal tensions.

Rugged mountains, some more than 5,000 feet high, run the length of the long, narrow island. Millions of years ago, New Caledonia was attached to Australia.

When the islands drifted apart, New Caledonia took with it a high percentage of native Australian plants that are now peculiar to it alone, making it a dream territory for botanical research. "It's one of the most interesting pieces of real estate you could hope for," says Dr. Gordon D. McPherson, assistant curator of the Missouri Botanical Garden at St. Louis, who lived on the island for five years.

Despite the glories of its climate and natural beauty, however, many of the first European settlers considered New Caledonia the furthest thing from an island paradise.

From 1864 to 1898, France used both the main island and the Isle of Pines as a penal colony. Among the first inmates of the prisons were political prisoners from the Paris Commune of 1871. Many of today's established French families in the territory are descendants of prisoners.

During World War II, New Caledonia was a strategic base for U.S. military operations in the Pacific. In 1946, France declared it an overseas territory, a decision that was ratified in a 1958 referendum. And such it remains, helping France to maintain its maritime presence in the Pacific.

Colonialism Declines

Since the war, however, colonialism has been a declining force in the South Pacific, as one archipelago after another has gained independence. Besides New Caledonia, the only remaining French territories in the Pacific are the Wallis and Futuna Islands and French Polynesia.

One of the latest Pacific territories to become independent is Vanuatu, formerly New Hebrides, which cut loose from joint administration by Britain and France in 1980. Independence was not gained without a struggle. And Vanuatu, seeking to avoid entanglement with the superpowers, refuses to recognize either the United States or the Soviet Union.

Other new island nations have made the transition peacefully. Despite their independent status, many of them continue to rely heavily on economic support from their former parent countries.

One diplomat notes the unusual character of the governmental transitions in the South Pacific: no coups, no dictatorships, no communists. The major Western powers want to see that trend continue.

That's why there is concern about the terrorist training of several militant young Melanesians in Libya. The regime in Libya is well known for its eagerness to help almost any group seeking to foment rebellion by terrorist means. But whatever connection exists between Kanaks and Libyans now seems "pretty tenuous," says one diplomat.

"The Kanaks surprised everybody by demonstrating their ability to be a disruptive political force," he adds. "What they've done is to establish themselves as much stronger political players. They've fundamentally changed the political equation."

Competing Kanak political parties support the drive for independence. But they are not a united force, and some Melanesians side with the French settlers and others in their preference for continued French control.

The socialist French government of Francois Mitterrand, elected in 1981, has supported independence. But its timetable, to have culminated in a 1989 referendum, was too slow for the separatists, and the result was their boycott of the Nov. 18 elections to the territorial assembly.

Violence has erupted sporadically in recent years. A French-born leader of the independence movement was murdered in 1981.

Fighting In Legislature

Un 1982, protesting the election of a pro-independence administration, rightist militants broke into the Territorial Assembly, New Caledonia's legislative body, and fought with opposition politicians. In rioting outside the chambers, 10 people were arrested and 19 policemen were injured.

The current and most serious violence began on election day. One party, the militantly pro-independence Front de Liberation National Kanak et Socialiste (FLNKS), boycotted the elections in two polling areas. Kanak militants set up roadblocks, burned several French houses, occupied police stations, harassed voters, and kidnapped a French official. One Melanesian and one European were killed.

As a result of the FLNKS abstentions in the two constituencies, and anti-independence party, the Rassemblement pour la Caledonie dans la Republique, won 71 percent of the territorial vote and 34 of 42 assembly seats.

Disregarding the election outcome, FLNKS on Dec. 1 installed its own "provisional government" for the self-proclaimed independent nation of Kanaky. A green, red, and blue flag replaced the French tricolor over the "government's" headquarters in La Conception, a suburb of Noumea.

Leader of FLNKS is Jean-Marie Tjibaou. Two of his brothers were among the 10 persons killed in a bomb-throwing ambush Dec. 5.

To curb the violence, France sent military reinforcements to New Caledonia.

After an emergency meeting of the French Cabinet on Dec. 1, President Francois Mitterrand and Prime Minister Laurent Fabius appointed a veteran diplomat, Edgard Pisani, as special envoy to New Caledonia. He was ordered to seek a negotiated settlement to the dispute.

Calls For 'New Order'

In a televised speech to New Caledonians on Dec. 5, Pisani called for a "new order" for the territory, to be arrived at through a three-stage program designed to satisfy "the legitimate aspirations of the different communities."

A few days after his arrival, roadblocks were removed and relative calm was restored to the troubled island.

A few weeks later, however, the restless truce was replaced by even greater violence than before, violence that threatened to postpone or kill a compromise proposal for limited independence.

On Jan. 7, Pisani announced a plan that would combine sovereignty for New Caledonia with continued legal association with France. The French, under this arrangement, would be responsible for maintaining internal and external security on the islands.

"The best solution, doubtless the only solution, is independence, but independence associated with France," Pisani said in a radio speech. His plan called for a referendum in July and, if approved, independence on Jan. 1, 1986.

Four days after Pisani's speech, the 17-year-old son of a white cattle rancher was shot and killed, touching off widespread rioting. Police killed two FLNKS leaders Jan. 12. The territorial government declared a state of emergency. France dispatched 1,000 more troops. Mitterrand, declaring his support for the Pisani proposals, made a 24-hour flight to visit the territory on Jan. 19.

But Mitterrand's visit appeared only to stiffen the opposition to independence. Noisy crowds of anti-separatists demonstrated in Noumea during his 12-hour stay. At home in France, rightists raised the specter of Soviet interference.

Visions of Algeria

To some Frenchmen, the scene was an unpleasant reminder of the 1954-61 civil war in French-ruled Algeria, and of the exodus of whites after Algeria won independence in 1962. Some of the whites displaced from Algeria moved to New Caledonia.

Diplomats now fear that the latest violence has hardened positions on both sides to the point that a July referendum cannot be held. Tjibaou, the FLNKS leader, backed away from his initial qualified endorsement of Pisani's plan and demanded immediate independence.

Adding to the murkiness of the future status of New Caledonia are the elections to be held in France early in 1986. Mitterrand's popularity has slumped. Unless independence is won before the election, the Socialists could be replaced by a conservative government that opposes independence.

In that event, all bets would be off. Tensions would remain high. And, in all likelihood, bloodshed and terror would continue.

Ancient Lobster Fossils Found In South Dakota

By JOY ASCHENBACH

National Geographic News Service
WASHINGTON — Sometimes you don't have to get your feet wet to look for lobsters. Instead, you put on cowboy boots and head inland to cattle and sheep ranches in the northern Black Hills.

Lobsters in South Dakota? There are hundreds lying out there on the open range — bits of tails, legs, and bodies hardened into clay-like nuggets barely distinguishable from the dry, cracked earth.

Rings Within A Circle

A CIRCLE OF RINGS — This photograph of a crossview segment of the top of a fence post shows clearly the pattern of growth rings of a tree from the heart of the tree outward. Despite being a treated post, time has eroded the softer ring grooves of the tree. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

From Time of Dinosaurs

"Linoparus is a rare living fossil. It was around with the dinosaurs and it's practically unchanged throughout the tremendous span of time," says paleontologist Gale A. Bishop, who has spent two summers on the South Dakota range picking up the black fossilized pieces that ranchers call "spider rocks."

Linoparus lobsters are not the famous big-clawed American lobsters found off the New England coast. They have no claws and are harvested primarily for their tail meat. They belong to the family popularly known as spiny or rock lobsters, which inhabit tropical and warm temperate waters.

"It's incredible to be able to still see such primitive lobsters alive today and possibly have the chance to study the biology of something that lived millions of years ago, to see how they eat, mate, and live," says Bishop.

Why did Linoparus lobsters, like horseshoe crabs, for example, survive so long unchanged, and why are they found today only in the South China Sea and Indo-Pacific region? No one yet has the answers.

Bishop believes in starting at the beginning — when the lobsters first crawled along the sea bottom. They are known to have existed in both North American and European waters from the Early Cretaceous Period (about 130 million years ago) to the Early Eocene, about 50 million years ago.

In western South Dakota, Bishop has discovered a "lobster zone" along a narrow 54-mile-long strip of land. To collect the thousands of 90-million-year-old fragments, he and field assistant Brian Meyer covered at least five miles a day on foot. The research is supported in part by the National Geographic Society.

Pieces in a Puzzle

A professor of geology at Georgia Southern College in Statesboro, Bishop is gluing together the pieces of these 3-D jigsaw puzzles in his campus lab. A single foot-long lobster may have broken into 30 pieces or more. He has about 400 at least partially complete lobsters from South Dakota.

Fossilized Linoparus specimens also have been found near Dallas, Texas, in northern Mississippi, and along the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal. All of these areas were under water when the North American landmass was split in two by the western interior seaway.

The ancient lobsters in North America lived in shallow waters in the oozy, soft sea bottom, probably on a diet of shellfish.

Today Linoparus live in a smiliar muddy environment, but in much deeper waters at depths of 250 to 1,000 feet, says zoologist Austin B. Williams of the National Marine Fisheries Service. Williams is collaborating with Bishop in comparing the fossils with the only three Linoparus species still known to exist. There are 27 extinct species.

Because of the depths at which they now live, today's Linoparus lobsters are more difficult to reach than their 90-million-year-old ancestors on dry land. A very small amount get caught with the 400 million pounds of lobsters that make up the world's average annual catch, says Williams. They show up primarily among frozen lobster tails from Japan.

To observe their behavior would require the use of a camera-equipped submersible. Bishop and Williams theorize that the lobsters still look and live so much like their ancestors because their habitat, though deeper, probably has not changed, and their food resources have remained stable.

Whether the lobsters migrated to the Indo-Pacific from North America or were always there is not known.

At this point, Bishop has seen more fossilized lobsters than live Linoparus. And he has yet to taste a morsel of sweet Linoparus.

CENTURIES APART . . . Ninety million years separate three fossil Linoparus lobsters from their modern relative, the one with antennae. In comparing them, paleontologist Gale Bishop, left, and zoologist Austin Williams discovered that time and distance have barely changed them. They were found thousands of miles apart.
