Council OKs Zoning Plan

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

In action met by angry audience rejoinders, the Greenville City Council Thursday by a vote of 3-2 approved a rezoning request that will allow construction of multifamily dwellings, on acreage located near an established single-family home neighborhood.

Council members approving the request to rezone approximately 7.9 acres located west of and partially fronting Hooker Road in the Fairlane Farms Subdivision included Stuart Shinn, who voted in favor of the request only after a period of indecision; Louis Clark, who before voting inquired how area residents would react to a buffer zone between the parcel up for rezoning and their property, and Judy Greene, who said it was the "hardest" decision she'd ever made while on the council. Councilmen opposing the request included Mayor Pro Tem Ed Carter and the Rev. William Hadden.

Brought by Harvey D. Bradshaw, the request specifically asked that the acreage be rezoned from R-15S (low density residential) to R-6 (high density residential, allowing construction of single-family, duplex and multifamily developments). The request came before the council accompanied by a recommendation for denial unanimously adopted by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission in February.

In public hearing session on the request, Bradshaw told the council he had tried to come up with a compromise in the form of a buffer to satisfy and protect area land owners. The buffer consists of an approximate 170-foot horseshoe shaped strip zoned for low density residential development (R-15S).

Several of an estimated 25 area residents who stood in order for their opposition to be recognized, came before the council to state their concerns.

Mary L. Louis of 105 St. Andrews Drive, one of two streets including Fairlane Road where single-family residences back up to the proposed buffer, said she could not support Bradshaw's request because it was a case of one property owner's desires versus the rights of many — an observation echoed by other speakers. "I shudder at what I'm going to be looking at and who's going to be looking back at me" if this measure goes through, Ms. Louis said.

Before making a motion that the request be denied, Mayor Pro Tem Carter said for the city to deviate from its long range plan the situation "would have to be very serious." The city's long-range plan calls for high density residential development along Hooker Road.

Also in discussion, Councilman Clark asked residents attending the meeting if they would be satisfied with a buffer, to which the crowd

S. Services Budget Is Approved

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Social Services adopted a fiscal year 1985-86 budget of $29,208,958 Thursday. This proposed budget will be sent to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners for approval.

According to Ed Garrison, director of the Department of Social Services, the proposed budget requests $5,207,521 from the County Commissioners, an increase of $224,093 over last year's budget. Other funding for programs administered by the department comes from state and federal sources.

The largest increase in the budget is a result of a state request for more funds for the mandatory public assistance programs, such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Special Assistance to Adults. "More money has been budgeted because of the anticipation of an increase asked by the General Assembly," Garrison said. "The state has asked us to budget more

Child, Parents Get $6 Million

The trial of a malpractice suit, which began in Pitt County Superior Court March 18, ended Thursday when a jury awarded a 6-year-old girl and her parents $6.5 million in damages from Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Lawyers this morning said the $6.5 million award, based on a complaint that blamed the staff of PCMH for brain damage suffered by Jennifer Campbell, who was born April 30, 1979, is the largest judgment in a personal injury case in North Carolina — almost twice as large as the previous record of $3.8 million awarded in a case in Asheville late last year.

The suit — filed in April 1982 by the child's parents, Margaret and Jeffrey Campbell of Winterville — charged that Dr. Robert G. Deyton Jr., Greenville Obstetrics and Gynecology, and the hospital were negligent and failed to exercise reasonable and ordinary care and diligence in rendering service to Mrs. Campbell and the child.

Reliable sources said this morning that Deyton and Greenville Obstetrics settled out-of-court on the Friday before the case was called for trial on Monday.

However, Judge Herbert O. Phillips, who presided at the trial, ordered the settlement documents sealed until after the trial, and Thursday ordered the documents to remain sealed until after motions are heard in connection with the case on April 22.

The suit alleged that the hospital staff could have intervened in the child's difficult birth, but because a cesarean section was not performed, the child's umbilical cord was compressed during birth, cutting off oxygen to her brain and causing permanent brain damage.

PCMH President Jack Richardson said this morning "we were just surprised" at the jury's decision. "It was a substantial judgment. We were shocked at that amount."

He said hospital attorneys are "filing motions to set the verdict aside," and in the event the judgment is not set aside, "we expect to appeal to the North Carolina Court of Appeals."

ANOTHER BLAZE — A black wall of smoke fills the afternoon sky Thursday as a fire burned more than a 1,000 acres in Pender County. A tree in the left of the photo explodes in flames under the intense heat from the fire. The blaze began at Holly Shelter State Game Management area and spread to land owned by International Paper Co. Kay Scott of the North Carolina Forest Service said three small air tankers battled the fire, along with at least one tractor. Firefighters worked through the night to contain the fire. (Reflector Aerial Photo by Tommy Forrest)

April Forest Fire Damage Set At $54 Million In State

SCRANTON, N.C. (AP) — Since the dry and windy month of April began, 27 counties have reported brush fires resulting in estimated damages totaling $54 million, officials said.

And as blazes that consumed 95,000 acres in Washington, Hyde and Tyrrell counties have abated, a new Pender County fire burned more than 1,000 acres Thursday, forest officials said.

"We don't have it under control, but we've got a head on it," said Mickey Bunton, district ranger for the state forest service. The blaze began at Holly Shelter State Game Management area and spread to land owned by International Paper Co.

Kay Scott of the North Carolina Forest Service said three small air tankers battled the fire, along with at least one tractor.

"It is running fast," said firefighter Dan Killingsworth. "It's spotting about a quarter mile ahead of the main fire. We're gonna make a stand at Juniper Creek. ... It's in a big area of woodland and no breaks of any type except that little creek. Hopefully, we might stop it there."

Elsewhere Thursday, marines helped forestry workers widen firebreaks and flood fields to contain groundfires in other eastern North Carolina counties, where fires that destroyed at least 99,000 acres were still classified as partially contained, officials said.

Kay Scott of the North Carolina Forest Service said 80 Marines from Camp Lejeune helped man pumps to flood fields and extinguish smoldering peat fires that glowed underground near Lake Phelps. Another 60 Marines widened firebreaks in Tyrrell County.

Larry Such, spokesman for the state forest service at a command post in Hyde County, said fire conditions in Washington, Tyrrell and Hyde counties, where the major fires burned earlier, had improved.

"... We've still got the groundfire burning in there," Such said. "As long as the wind can blow the hot sparks, it's not over. Everyone's breathing a little easier now but we've still got a problem out there."

Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery thundered into orbit today, carrying Sen. Jake Garn among its seven-member crew on a much-delayed mission that blasted off with just 55 seconds to spare.

The space plane vaulted off its launch pad at 8:59 a.m. EST, spewing an awesome 700-foot-tail of fire as it climbed swiftly out over the Atlantic Ocean and then disappeared from view into a heavy cloud layer. Nine minutes later, Mission Control reported Discovery was in a secure orbit, 281 miles up and circling the globe at more than 17,400 mph.

If it had not blasted off by 9 a.m., it would have been postponed again. The launch time was based on requirements for putting two communications satellites into precise orbit.

Joyner said as Adde Saunders, 72, jumped from a front window after receiving burns to most of her body and was still listed in critical condition at Pitt County Memorial Hospital this morning. The investigator said a cause of the fire had not been determined and investigation is continuing. The house, located between Ballard's Crossroads and Lang's Crossroads, was listed as a total loss. Abuse Minimal In N.C. Hospitals

North Carolina has a strong Patient Rights Committee system for its mental hospitals that has prevented abuse similar to that which has been discussed as having taken place in hospitals in 11 states before a recent Senate Labor and Human Resources Subcommittee on the handicapped, according to local and state officials.

Fran Gariglio, president of the Mental Health Association in North Carolina, said her organization has "not received reports of widespread abuse in our four state hospitals. As in all institutions, you may find isolated cases, but in our state, patient rights committees see that patient's legal rights are protected. All four hospitals are fully accredited, meeting strict national guidelines."

"The biggest problem, rather than abuse," said Steve Kaylor, special counsel and chairman of the Patients' Rights Committee of John Umstead Hospital in Butner, "is lack of staff and money to assure the rights patients have been given." He said most cases of abuse reported are by patients against staff. He said patients now have the legal right to refuse medication and "the psychiatrists' hands are tied in treating the mentally ill client according to their desire rather than need."

Bill Eichman, head of psychology and former chairman of Umstead's Patients' Rights Committee, who has been compiling and studying statistics of abuse at the hospital, said, "We have 50 times as many patient-to-staff abuse than staff-against-patient." He said he agrees with Kaylor that the main problem is lack of resources for required trained staff.

Stand Firm

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II has called on Roman Catholic bishops and priests in Czechoslovakia to stand firm in their faith despite difficult circumstances. He delivered a message to Czechoslovak prelates and clerics on the 1,100th anniversary of the death of St. Methodius, a saint who helped bring Christianity to parts of what is now Czechoslovakia during the ninth century.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Couple Decides In-Laws Are Best Enjoyed At A Distance

bet I'm not all that unusual. No name or town, please. My mother-in-law thinks her son is perfect.

ANONYMOUS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "Heartbroken Parents," who blame their daughter-in-law for "stealing" their son from them, thank you, Abby, for saying the daughter-in-law may have influenced her husband, but the final choice was their son's.

We live only a few hours from my in-laws, but we visit less and less as each year passes. I would enjoy a nice relaxing visit at their home, but it never happens. Please let me speak to them through you, Abby:

You turn every visit into a golden opportunity to impose your religious and political beliefs on us. They're not "discussions"; they're lectures on why your beliefs are right and ours are wrong.

Your son and I are forced to watch the painfully obvious favoritism you show toward your other grandchildren who live in your town and therefore see you more often.

We are subjected to your entire schedule of television programs because you think yours are the only appropriate choices.

We, who are health-minded nonsmokers, are subjected to a thick cloud of cigarette smoke during the entire visit.

In short, instead of making us feel as though you enjoy our company, we leave with the feeling that we have spent the weekend at boot camp.

YOUR "THIEVING" DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR D-I-L: Read on:

Birth

Atchison
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Lee Arthur Atchison, Winterville, a daughter, LeKeshia Lashaun, April 4 in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Heartbroken Parents," who blamed their daughter-in-law because they no longer "had" a son.

It is a quote from "The Prophet," by Khalil Gibran: "Your children are not your children. They are the sons and daughters of life's longing for itself. And though they are with you, yet they belong not to you. You may house their bodies, but not their souls, for their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit even in your dreams."

MRS. C., LAGUNA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: In one of your recent columns, you advised a lady to check with her neighbors before making wind chimes out of old keys.

Well, I have a comment to make on that subject. When my neighbors come to me and ask if I object to their cats digging in my flower beds, waking me up in the middle of the night fighting on top of my house and under my windows, and walking all over my cars, leaving their dirty pawprints—then I will ask them if they object to my wind chimes.

Belt-Tightening

The buzzsaw effect in preparing a national budget is a natural phenomenon. It is always just below the horizon and comes into full view when there is a spending cutback on anything resembling a special interest.

This time around, a whole lot of special interests are involved, and the uproar will be commensurate. How could it be otherwise?

There must have been few times in American history when a $55 billion reduction (for the coming year) in the federal budget has been seriously laid before the public; and never, we're sure, has a plan been introduced for a $300 billion reduction over a three-year period.

Without any change in spending (or a tax increase opposed by the president) the deficit at the end of next year has been estimated at $230 billion. A lot of toes were stepped on in achieving the package given the Senate.

Budgets are frustrating things to work with at the family level, the municipal level, the county and state levels. There is always a "special interest" involved whether it's a matter of buying a dishwasher or replacing the family car ... how much can be added to (or subtracted from) funds planned for schools, law enforcement, sanitation or other budgets. Moving up the scale we have all those and add other fields with totals going into the millions. At the federal level we deal in billions.

The heart of it all, whether at family or federal level, is the factor of survival.

A lot of budget items are involved in the proposed cutbacks and we're going to hear a lot of protests down to the closing days of debate. Right now Social Security and the Pentagon are catching much of the heat.

Defense funds are always arguable, but the people responsible for national security are trying to keep up with the Joneses. In short, there is an arms race under way. The fact that any cutback at all was manipulated is heartening.

Present levels of Social Security are unaffected. The cutback there involves only the annual cost-of-living increase which is sorely needed when prices on everything are regularly rising, but possibly less essential if inflation is braked (as planned) by staying within certain limits by curtailed spending. If that happens, no Social Security hikes would be necessary — only enjoyed.

Our lawmakers haven't gotten around yet to one other alternative: an increase in taxes, which was long ago declared out of bounds.

Congress has a lot of angry words to say over how to make the national income fit the national taste for spending, but compromise is the hallmark of every piece of major legislation. We can be certain that advocates of many causes will pull every oratorical string and use every tactic to defend their chosen fields. But their priority (and ours) must be one of reducing the budgetary deficit. It can be done.

It's belt-tightening time on the Potomac.

For Peace

The world is looking to Moscow for new directions under the relatively youthful leadership of Mikhail Gorbachev. And what better way could the Soviets signal a new spirit than to end its war against Afghanistan rebels?

Will that occur? No way, indicates Michael H. Armacost, U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs. He said Gorbachev has signaled a continuation of the Afghanistan fighting. The Soviets invaded Afghanistan in 1979 and now reportedly have some 110,000 troops there. The fighting has been cruel, and it appears there will be no reversal of such tactics as saturation bombing.

If the Soviets want to work for world peace they must first stop their own fighting. The prospects of that any time soon appear dim, indeed.

What Lies Beyond For Kirkpatrick?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republicans crowded when Jeane Kirkpatrick formally crossed over to the GOP, but there was no corresponding sob from the Democrats. Some of them, in fact, probably heaved a sigh of relief.

The defection of the former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations from the Democratic to the Republican Party came as no surprise to anyone.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick has been a GOP partisan in deed if not in registration at least since 1980, and there are indications her falling away started as far back as 1976.

A nationally known political scientist, Mrs. Kirkpatrick at one time was regarded as a valuable and prestigious leader of the Democratic Party. She served on the Democratic National Committee during the early 1970s and played a key role in the revision of the party's national convention delegate selection rules between 1972 and 1976.

As late as 1979, she wrote an article lambasting the Republicans, but in 1980, she surfaced as a Ronald Reagan foreign policy adviser. After he won, she was appointed to the high visibility U.N. post, where she became the darling of the New Right with her hard line anti-communist rhetoric. All during this time she retained her Democratic registration.

Just as it tickled the right wingers to have a Democrat they could so lavishly praise, the usual identification of Mrs. Kirkpatrick in the press and on the air as a card-carrying member of their party gave intense pain to regular Democrats.

But unlike the more rigidly structured political systems in Europe, there is little American parties could do about errant members even if they wanted to.

"Loyalty oaths" are anathema to both Democrats and Republicans because both parties find it expedient to ignore internal ideological conflicts. Quite simply, they are afraid of losing strength if they try to impose party discipline on their members.

Thus, Mrs. Kirkpatrick remained a Democrat until she declared herself a Republican, even though she had embraced the GOP for at least five years and probably longer when she made the formal switch. It would be no shock to find Democrats as happy about it in private as the Republicans were gleeful in public.

Now, however, it may be Mrs. Kirkpatrick's turn to learn something painful about political turncoats: their adopted parties usually don't completely trust them.

Whether it is a John Connally, who jumped from the Democrats to the Republicans, or a John Lindsay, who went the other way, most party switchers find their political careers blighted after they cross over. As long as they have powerful patrons, as Connally did in Richard Nixon, they may be able to stay in appointive jobs, but they usually flop when they run for public office.

There are exceptions — one thinks of Democrat-Dixiecrat-Republican Strom Thurmond — but for the most part major politicians who change parties in mid-career don't go anywhere.

If there is any substance to all the talk about Mrs. Kirkpatrick considering a run for the Senate or entertaining a boom for the vice presidency in 1988, she may have walked out of the Democratic tent and into a Republican closet.

Pulling The Strings For An Image

One of the better jobs in Washington these days is working for a public relations firm. There are hundreds of them all over the city and anyone with a decent name in the government can find a home at one — at triple his or her present salary.

There was a time when PR companies worked cheaply and secretly for their clients. Now they charge enormous fees and get their names in the newspapers as frequently as the people they're supposed to publicize.

What do PR firms in Washington do to earn their money? I dropped in on Robert Flack, founder of one of the hottest firms in the business. Among those listed as vice presidents on Flack's door are two retired assistant secretaries of state, the wife of a congressman, an ex-presidential advance man, a South American general and the former emperor of Tubistoland.

Flack's large penthouse office overlooks the White House.

"Boy," I said. "You have some view."

He smiled as he pointed out the window. "Some of the happiest days of my life were spent in the Rose Garden over there."

"I'll bet you miss it," I said.

He sighed, "It's only a stone's throw away and the old man said I can smell the flowers anytime I want to. What can I do for you?"

"There's been a lot of stuff about Washington PR firms in the papers lately and I was curious. Why the high profile?"

"Well, first and foremost, we need clients who can afford our services. In order to get them we have to make sure everyone is aware that we know the right buttons to push. Excuse me just a moment... Miss Blackwell, if Ed Meese calls tell him I'm still out to lunch.... What were you saying?"

"Is the client buying access to people in power?"

"Let's get this straight. I never mention my White House or Hill connections to get a client. I don't want them to think I can open any powerful doors for them just because I'm asking for a six-figure retainer."

"Then why do you have that autographed photo of Tip O'Neill on your desk?"

"It makes me feel good just to look at him."

"How about the one next to it of Nancy Reagan?"

"Nancy gave it to me, and I'm scared to death she's going to walk in here one day and not find it."

"Okay, so you don't use your government connections for your business. What do you do for your clients?"

"Hold it," he said. "Miss Blackwell, call Caspar Weinberger and tell him he looked great on the Ted Koppel show last night."

"You know Caspar Weinberger?" I asked.

"I never talk about anybody in Washington that I know," he said. "Back to my business. What we do is present our client's image in the best light. That does not mean we lie or are dishonest. But there are two sides to every story. Here's a perfect example," he said, holding up a photo of dead people lying in the street. "A foreign government retained us because American television kept showing their troops shooting demonstrators. We immediately put out the story that the only reason the people were shot was because demonstrations are forbidden in the country and the people were breaking the law."

"Didn't President Reagan say that about South Africa at his press conference a few weeks ago?"

"We had nothing to do with that," he protested. "South Africa isn't our client."

"I didn't say it was. So what do you do besides make bad countries look good?"

"We don't make bad countries look good. We make strong countries look good. We also represent U.S. industries under attack from the government, and create favorable climates for businessmen who are going to be indicted by a federal grand jury. We provide junkets for the media and will even write their stories and film their TV news spots for them. America couldn't have an informed public without people like us."

"I believe it. Thanks for your time."

"Don't mention it. Oh, by the way, if you see Henry Kissinger out in the waiting room tell him I haven't forgotten he's there."

Jackson's Action Raises Questions

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Jesse Jackson's selection of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. as a boycott target when he joined anti-apartheid demonstrations last month in front of the South African Embassy has raised troublesome questions.

Westinghouse's modest interests in South Africa were not only exaggerated in Jackson's statement, but one outright error confused the American company with a totally separate British-owned company of the same name. Publicly, Westinghouse spokesmen expressed surprise. What they expressed only privately was the connection they made with efforts by Jackson's half-brother, Chicago multimillionaire businessman Noah Robinson, to become a Westinghouse subcontractor on a mammoth public works project.

Four months earlier, Robinson had written a Westinghouse executive "to get right ... for your own sake." He told us this was "absolutely not" meant as a threat. Both Robinson and Jackson denied to us knowledge of the other's activities. That would make Westinghouse a pivot in an extraordinary coincidence.

Yet it remains unclear why Jackson, picketing March 11 with two sons in front of the South African Embassy 17 weeks after the demonstrations began, selected Westinghouse. The event, coincidental or otherwise, demonstrates the need for great care when Jesse Jackson picks up his boycott gun.

That was true in 1981 when the civil rights leader conducted his boycott against Coca-Cola. Shortly after the company signed a "moral covenant" with Jackson to get more involved with the black community, Robinson became Coca-Cola's first black distributor. He said the company learned of his relationship with Jackson only after the deal was signed, a claim confirmed by Coke.

The coveted distributorship set Robinson off on an entrepreneurial success story, including ownership of a cement contracting firm. When the $100 million-plus "People Mover" rapid transit system to Chicago's O'Hare Airport opened for bids, he sent an upbeat letter Oct. 18 to Westinghouse Vice President Edward Gordon seeking the cement subcontract. "There is no plausible reason," he wrote, why his firm, "should be excluded."

Robinson's tone was different in his second letter Nov. 12 ("Dear Mr. Gordon") had changed to just "Mr. Gordon": "I tried to tell you in my 10/18/84 note, in Chicago, picking just anybody 'Black' of your choice ain't going to cut it ... Chicago Blacks are too politically sophisticated to go for the okey dokey. Now Westinghouse is the guy in the middle. You've got time to get right. I'm suggesting you do so for your own sake!"

On Nov. 18, the Chicago Sun-Times linked one of Westinghouse's competitors for the People Mover business, Urban Transportation Development Corp. (UTDC) of Toronto, with Robinson. UTDC was quoted as telling city officials it probably would hire Robinson's firm if it won the contract.

Four months later, as the March 29 People Mover bid-opening neared, Jackson joined the 17-week-old South African protest with a statement attacking Westinghouse that should have been more carefully researched. A lapsed Westinghouse negotiation to build a coal gasification plant there has not been resumed as Jackson claimed; alleged military aid to Pretoria would violate U.S. law.

A reference to the "Westinghouse Rail Group" equipping South Africa's segregated railroads really meant Westinghouse Bellamie Ltd., South Africa, a subsidiary of Britain's Hawker Siddeley Group and no kin to the American company. Business of the American Westinghouse in South Africa consists of one subsidiary employing 105 people, service contracts for the country's nuclear power system and an 11-person sales office.

Jackson's March 11 statement noted that Westinghouse and a French firm called Matra were seeking the contract in Chicago ("one of this nation's most heavily black urban communities") and that both were doing business in South Africa. He did not mention the third bidder, UTDC (which, oddly, is a distant corporate relative of Westinghouse Bellamie).

"I have no knowledge of it whatsoever," Jackson told us when asked about his brother's contract effort. He said he was seeking to "move from moralizing (about South Africa) to something concrete." Robinson told us he knew nothing about Westinghouse in South Africa ("I'm a businessman") and learned about his brother's activity only when Jackson told him of our call.

Could this be coincidence, as Robinson claimed with the Coca-Cola distributorship? Westinghouse's Gordon would not return our calls, but company officials privately reject the pure-coincidence theory. When a leader with Jesse Jackson's moral muzzle velocity aims his boycott gun, any doubt about motives raises troubling questions that could harm rather than advance black interests.

Public Forum

To the editor: It is indeed a privilege to write a Public Forum that is printed. I really appreciate being able to share concerns with the general public, as it is sometimes hard to know just who is and who isn't interested in what one has to share.

People have different ideas of what is and what is not in poor taste, however, so some Forums don't get printed. I, for example, believe that liquor, beer and wine ads are in poor taste, as well as ads for lurid movies. The editor feels, as is his right, that my descriptions of actions of our governmental leaders and school children and teachers are in poor taste.

If you are concerned and want to be informed, I'd like to hear from you. I would really love hearing your views on these subjects, too. Maybe we can come up with some constructive ideas on how to improve these situations.

answered no. Clark said he had seen many instances in which a buffer had satisfied other residential property owners.

Saying he felt residents had legitimate concerns, Shinn, who voted for the measure, said people should be able to develop land but that he also understood residents' concerns about possible zoning changes in the buffer zone.

The council's decision was met with audible sighs and groans on the part of residents attending the meeting. One man, on his way out of council chambers, called out "what's the use of having a planning and zoning board" if one owner "is chosen over 20 property owners."

In other business, the council unanimously approved an amendment to the city's zoning ordinance for regulation of television satellite dishes. Under the amendment, satellite dishes will still be classified as accessory uses, but will be limited to backyards and rooftops. A 15-foot height limitation has been placed on dishes used in backyards and a six-foot diameter regulation placed on dishes mounted on rooftops. The six-foot diameter limitation was adopted in lieu of a previously proposed four-foot diameter maximum for rooftop dishes to accommodate existing technology.

In following business, council members agreed to continue a request to rezone two adjoining parcels located on the southside of Millbrook Street behind the Carolina Dairy building at 2731 Memorial Drive. Tommy Edwards of Carolina Dairy had submitted a request to rezone a .87 acre parcel from high density residential to office and institutional and a 1.36 acre parcel from high density residential to highway commercial. Continuance was granted upon request by Edwards. This request was recommended for denial by the Planning and Zoning Commission in March session.

Also approved in Thursday's council session was 1) a request by James H. Ward II and Katherine B. Ward to rezone approximately 1.8 acres located on the west side of Evans Street Extension, approximately 130 feet north of Sara Lane from residential agricultural to high density residential; 2) a request to annex approximately 5.9 acres on the south side of N.C. 33 across from Rivergate. The request was brought by Harry D. Bateman, president of Greenville Eastgate Inc.; and 3) a resolution calling for a public hearing on annexation of Westhaven Subdivision, section 5A, consisting of 1.67 acres located at the eastern end of Cedarhurst Road.

Consent Agenda items approved in blanket action included the following:

- A resolution setting a public hearing on a proposal to close Allen Avenue, a street approximately 282 feet in length, located on the west side of Memorial Drive, north of West End Circle.

- Acceptance of Landmark Street from a point 400 feet south of the southern right of way of Greenville Boulevard to a point 1,697 feet south and a portion of Haven Drive from the western right of way of Landmark Street to a point 200 feet away for permanent city maintenance.

- An ordinance authorizing placement of stop signs at two intersections on Concord Drive and Sedgfield Drive and at intersections of Thackery Road and N.C. 43 and Harrow Circle and Singletree Drive.

raises costs for opening and closing of graves before 8 a.m. and after 5 p.m. in city cemeteries.

- A resolution declaring an Elm Street home as surplus property and authorizing advertisement for sealed bids. The one-story, single-family dwelling is located at 1006 Elm St. The successful bidder will be responsible for costs of moving the house from the lot.

- A resolution requesting North Carolina senators and congressmen to encourage the Federal Aviation Administration to provide the Pitt-Greenville Airport with an instrument landing system.

Work To Continue On Beaufort Road

RALEIGH — The State Board of Transportation today authorized the staff of the Department of Transportation to continue with a modified version of a widening project along N.C. 32 in Beaufort County.

The modified plan adopted by the board today provides for widening to four lanes with curbs and gutters a 1.7-mile section of the highway from the Washington town limits to secondary road 1309 at a cost of $1.5 million.

State Secretary of Transportation James E. Harrington said that although the remaining 1.4-mile section of the original project will not be widened under this plan it will be the subject of further study by the DOT.

"The board has authorized further study including a summer traffic count and a review of potential for future development of the area," Harrington said. "If the studies reveal a need, the remaining 1.4-mile section could be included in a future update of the department's transportation improvement program (TIP)."

The project was delayed at the board's February meeting after a petition containing 700 signatures of Beaufort County citizens questioned whether the project was needed.

As originally designed the project called for the widening of a 3.1 mile section of N.C. 32 to four lanes with curbs and gutters from the Washington Town limits to secondary road 1300 east of Washington. The project's cost was estimated at $2.8 million.

State Board of Transportation member Randy D. Doub of Greenville, who represents Beaufort County on the board, said the decision to reduce the scale of the project was based on an objective study of N.C. 32. While the 1.7 mile section scheduled for improvement has recorded traffic counts between 6,050 and 8,165 vehicles per day the remaining 1.4 mile portion averages only 3,500 vehicles per day. The traditional count used to justify widening projects of this type is 7,500 vehicles per day.

Doub added that commercial and residential development is more intense in the 1.7 mile section just east of Washington causing greater congestion than on the remaining portion of the project.

"With the scarcity of funding for needed highway projects today the board must carefully study the necessity for all proposed projects," Doub said. "We have a number of two lane highways in Eastern North Carolina which carry in excess of 7,500 vehicles per day and at this time we cannot justify spending $1.3 million on a section of highway averaging only 3,500 vehicles per day."

Doub said he felt the board made a wise decision based on accurate information, but emphasized the department's commitment to further study and periodic review.

Paley Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS founder William S. Paley could have turned TV news into entertainment, but he didn't, said newscaster David Brinkley, who presented Paley with the Center for Communication's annual award.

Paley received the award Tuesday for his long career in which he supervised the growth of CBS from a small chain of radio stations into a multibillion-dollar broadcast company.

Paley, 83, stepped down as chairman of CBS in 1983 but is still on the board of directors.

because the General Assembly has been asked to increase the money by 5 percent. Medicaid coverage will also be expanded.

"Over two-thirds of the projected increase comes from mandatory public assistance programs," Garrison said.

The proposed budget includes a request of $31,700 for three new employees to expand Work Fair. This program provides food stamp recipients with job training or job placement as a condition for receiving benefits.

The Pitt County Department of Social Services has lost a total of $40,172 in federal funds for the Chore program, Garrison said. The Chore program provides for a caretaker to go into the home of an elderly or handicapped individual to help with daily chores, allowing the disabled person to live independently.

"This is the most cost-effective program we have," Garrison said. "It costs $200 a month to have a Chore provider in the home, and would cost $565 a month if the person had to be put in a rest home."

Garrison said the program will be reduced by 20 percent, reducing the program's ability to meet the needs of the people receiving the service.

"If you don't get the federal funds, there's no need to request the county funds to match it," he said.

The Department of Social Services' total budget in fiscal year 1984-85 was $26,677,881.

Women's League Elects Officers

Terry Shank was elected president of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County during its annual meeting this week.

Other new officers are Mary Furth, first vice president; Gail McGara, secretary, and JoLinda Sanders, Rhea Resnik, Vicki Williams, and Doris Davenport, additional board members. Continuing board members are Linda Gurganus, treasurer; Vickie Fore, second vice president, Chris Dettwiler and Jayne Silliman.

Ms. Shank is director of cooperative education at Pitt Community College and is a Realtor. She is a past president of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County and the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council. She served for 10 years on the Greenville school board, acting as chairman in 1979.

Prior to the installation, Rhea Markello, outgoing president, presented the annual report and budget, both of which were adopted. It was recommended that the program study of local City Council terms of office be continued in line with league procedures.

Three former president of the league presented highlights and happenings during their tenures. Natalie Clark, organizer of the provisional league and first president, talked of the first board of directors' foundation building. Rhea Resnik said that, under her leadership between 1973 and 1977, the League "worked hard toward the development of public transportation, an elected school board, and toward coalition-building and campaign finance reform." Patricia Dunn, president from 1979 to 1982, said the league increased in membership and activities which raised the awareness of public officials and citizens and began reviewing the Pitt County, city of Greenville and both school units' budgets.

Ms. Markello was honored for her three years of service as president of the 70-member non-partisan organization whose purpose is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.

Backs Parks

RALEIGH (AP) - A proposed $50 million bond issue would enable North Carolina to purchase 35,000 acres for expansion of the state park system, Gov. Jim Martin said Thursday.

"I've indicated to the sponsors ... that I do favor that," said Martin in his weekly news conference.

Wes Davis, director of the parks division of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, said that of the 35,000 acres to be bought, 10,000 had been identified as "critical."

That means the privately owned land is inside or adjacent to existing parks "where the pressures of increased development are substantial," said Davis.

Ms. Senior America, 64, Wins Crown With Lively Tap Dance

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Sixty-four-year-old Laverne Stokes tap-danced her way to victory over 10 other contestants to claim the title of Ms. Senior America for 1985.

"I'm on cloud nine. I probably will be that way for about a week," said Ms. Stokes, who was crowned Wednesday night, winning one weekend stay at a casino hotel and another in New York's Catskills.

Ms. Stokes competed against women from New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, the District of Columbia, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Virginia.

began the first day of her reign by checking out of her hotel and driving home to Toms River, about 60 miles north of Atlantic City, without rousing farewell normally given pageant winners.

"I think it's a little different with seniors," Ms. Stokes said of the 5-year-old regional contest. "It's not publicized as much. Maybe it is because they're just starting out."

Contestants ranged in age from 60 to 78, pageant director Maureen Donovan, 38, said. The women were judged in four categories — talent, evening gown, interview and inner beauty, the last being their ability to discuss their philosophy of life.

courage women, young and old, that just because you hit a certain age that someone decides to call you a senior citizen that you do not have to be relegated to a rocking chair," said Ms. Donovan.

The pageant began a decade ago as a local community service program, and started seeking contestants from other states five years ago.

Staff members are unpaid volunteers, Ms. Donovan said. Organizations representing elderly people in the nine states and Washington, D.C., fund the contestants in the pageant, which hopes to attract national sponsorship eventually, she said.

AND THERE SHE IS — Laverne Stokes, 64, of Toms River, N.J., waves to the crowd after winning the fifth annual Ms. Senior America pageant in Atlantic City. She tap-danced her way to the title, beating nine other contestants. (AP-Laserphoto)

Feminists, Labor Balk At Pay Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminist and labor groups pounced on the Civil Rights Commission as the panel approved a controversial report rejecting comparable worth, or equal pay for jobs of similar value.

In stinging critiques circulated well before the commission's 5-2 vote Thursday, the groups attacked not only the report but the panel itself.

"The report is an abomination, and quite simply, makes a mockery of the once independent, once respected, once credible Civil Rights Commission," said Judy Goldsmith, president of the National Organization for Women.

She labeled the commission majority "right wing ideologues" who speak "only for President Reagan and the business interests who profit from discrimination."

The commission "is attempting to rewrite history" by ignoring overwhelming evidence of discrimination against working women, charged Gerald McEntee, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The 1.1-million member union has filed lawsuits and job discrimination complaints in 10 states.

In a statement following the vote, the commission called comparable worth an "unsound and misplaced concept" that should be rejected by federal civil rights enforcement agencies, the Justice Department and Congress.

Proponents of comparable worth, also called pay equity, believe historical discrimination such as sex-segregated "help wanted" ads has led to artificially low wages in nursing, secretarial work and other women-dominated fields.

Through court cases, discrimination complaints and legislation, they are pressing individual employers to re-evaluate jobs and adjust wages on the basis of skills, education, responsibility and working conditions.

The commission report, approved after 2½ hours of intense debate, was based on two days of consultations with professional and academic experts.

Indian Queen Asked To Resign Her Title

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Miss Indian America 1984 says her title "belongs to the Indian people" and that the pageant board behaved in a juvenile fashion by asking her to resign for accepting a cash gift and attending a conference.

But Anne Louise Willie, a 25-year-old White Mountain Apache and Paiute Indian from Arizona, said Thursday she would have to consult an attorney before responding to the board's request.

"It's not a matter of me being in Penthouse or being inebriated," Miss Willie said. "It's very juvenile."

Miss America Vanessa Williams was forced to resign last year because she had posed nude for pictures published in Penthouse magazine.

Pageant board President Larretta Hall confirmed Thursday that Miss Willie had been asked to step down, but declined to comment on the dispute.

"I really don't want to elaborate on (the board's request) at this point," said Ms. Hall, a Turtle Mountain Chippewa. "When there is a further statement to be made, the board is anticipating calling a press conference."

The 20-member board is evenly divided between Indians and non-Indians.

Holder of the Miss Indian Nevada crown, Miss Willie was named Miss Indian America at last summer's pageant in Sheridan, Wyo., which has been host of the event since 1952. Bismarck was chosen as the new pageant site.

Miss Willie said she was asked at a board meeting Wednesday about a $200 gift she received in November from the American Indian Heritage Foundation in Washington for a wardrobe.

The board contended it should have gotten 90 percent of the money, $180, said Miss Willie, who argued that money she receives from Indian people is hers to keep, except for large amounts.

The board provides $200 a month for cosmetics, dry cleaning, clothing and other personal needs, she said.

Rape Witness Dares Court To Put Her On Trial

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer

MARKHAM, Ill. (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb today challenged the court system to try her for perjury after a judge refused to believe that she lied about a rape that sent a man to prison six years ago.

"I feel the court system did a great injustice to Gary Dotson by sending him back to prison," Mrs. Webb said in an interview. "And it wasn't just my testimony but the testimony of six other alibi witnesses to prove his innocence."

"And I'd like to see the court try me now (for perjury) and the other six witnesses," Mrs. Webb said. "I'd like to see a jury of my peers hear the truth."

Circuit Judge Richard Samuels, saying he did not believe that Mrs. Webb fabricated a 1979 rape charge, refused Thursday to free Dotson, 28, who still faces the balance of a 25- to 30-year sentence.

Samuels ruled that Dotson "failed to sustain his burden (of proof) and I cannot find that perjury was committed."

"He's innocent! ... He's innocent!" screamed Mrs. Webb as she was led from the courthouse Thursday supported by her husband and attorney John McLario.

"I lied in 1979 and I'm telling the truth now," she continued, speaking through tears, pale and visibly shaken.

Mrs. Webb, 23, testified last week she was never raped on July 9, 1977. She said she made up the story when she was 16 because she feared she was pregnant and wanted to prevent her foster parents from learning she had had sex with a boyfriend.

Samuels, who had sentenced Dotson in 1979 on the rape and aggravated kidnapping charges, said Illinois Supreme and appellate court rulings made it difficult to accept recanted testimony. He said that new witnesses who appeared on Dotson's behalf failed to "establish the credibility of Cathy's recantation."

Dotson, who was freed April 4 on $10,000 bond after Samuels continued the original hearing until Thursday, covered his eyes as the judge began reading his notes from the bench following closing arguments. He will be eligible for parole in 1988.

In an interview from the Cook County Jail in the Chicago Sun-Times today, Dotson said, "I'm not surprised about what happened to me. I've done some research on what has happened in the past with recanted testimony. I learned that never in the state of Illinois has anyone been freed from jail based on recanted testimony."

"I certainly appreciate what Cathleen did and I appreciate it even more now after what she's had to go through in this court hearing. My heart goes out to her and I want to be her friend. And I know she wants to be my friend."

As the judge announced his decision, Dotson's mother, Barbara, screamed "What happened?" from her seat several feet behind her son. Dotson slammed the table, then sat back quietly, staring at Samuels.

Mrs. Webb, who now lives in Jaffrey, N.H., said on ABC-TV's "Nightline," "I lied (in 1979), evidently too convincingly ... I regret deeply that it took me six years to come forward ... Prior to my decision to become a Christian I didn't have a conscience about this."

Mrs. Webb, speaking this morning on NBC-TV's "Today" show, said, "There were no discrepancies or inconsistencies in my current testimony and if people look at the records of the current testimony they will see that."

Warren Lupel, Dotson's attorney, said, "This is appealable, but I'm not going to comment on what I'm going to do. I'm not going to abandon him because this is an innocent man in jail."

Lupel declined to say whether he would try to contact Gov. James R. Thompson about granting clemency to Dotson. David Fields, a spokesman for Thompson, said any clemency request would have to be referred to the state Prisoner Review Board.

Asked last week by Assistant State's Attorney Peggy Frossard about blood and semen found in her panties at the time of the alleged rape, Mrs. Webb was vague about when she had sex with her boyfriend.

At first, Mrs. Webb testified she had sex a few days before the reported rape, then altered her testimony to a time closer to July 9.

Ms. Frossard picked up that line of questioning Thursday with Mrs. Webb's foster mother, trying to show that Mrs. Webb would not have kept the same undergarment on for several days after having sex with her boyfriend.

Earlier Thursday, Dotson took the stand and was asked by Lupel, "Did you rape her?"

"No," Dotson replied, "I did not."

Dotson said he had been drinking beer with friends July 9 and driving around between parties. He said he remained in the car while friends attended one party and "from there I lost track of time because I fell asleep."

The physician who treated Mrs. Webb at the emergency room, Dr. Andrew Labrador, testified that three separate tests shortly after the alleged rape failed to reveal traces of sperm or seminal fluid in her.

Mark Stolorow, a crime lab scientist with the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement, testified for the prosecution that a hair found on Mrs. Webb's body in 1977 "is microscopically consistent with ... that of Gary Dotson and dissimilar to those of" both the former boyfriend and Mrs. Webb.

Reagan Itinerary Upsets U.S. Jews

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — American Jewish leaders say they are shocked and saddened that President Reagan plans to honor German war dead by visiting a cemetery near the site of World War II's bloody "Battle of the Bulge."

Apparently surprised by the vehemence of the Jewish reaction, administration officials said the plan might be looked at again.

"There is no active reconsideration of it at present. But that's not to say there won't be," said one White House official, speaking privately. "We may or we may not" review it.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes announced Thursday that Reagan will join West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on May 5 in visiting the cemetery at Bitburg, a German staging area for the Battle of the Bulge. Plans call for a wreath-aying ceremony, a religious service, and a joint U.S.-German military ceremony.

The visit is planned as part of Reagan's 11-day trip to Europe, beginning May 1.

Jewish groups, already disappointed that Reagan would not visit a concentration camp, protested the president's planned stop at a German cemetery.

"We are saddened," said Phil Baum of the American Jewish Congress, "that the president of the United States should decide against commemorating those European Jewish communities destroyed in concentration camps and decide instead to pay homage to the very soldiers who fought a war in defense of a regime that engineered their destruction and indeed who killed thousands of American young men."

B'nai B'rith International, a Jewish service organization, said it hoped he would reconsider.

"President Reagan was reluctant to visit the site of the Dachau concentration camp for fear of reopening old wounds — a decision we take strong issue with," said Daniel Thurz, executive vice president of the organization.

"His willingness now to visit a German military cemetery shocks us precisely because it reopens old wounds — and in a way that will stir the bitterest resentment not just among Jews, but among former American soldiers, the soldiers of our allies, and the families of all the victims who fell to Nazi Germany's madness," Thurz said.

Dejected Dotson Returns To Prison Cell

MARKHAM, Ill. (AP) — Hope, fear, relief and disbelief alternately flickered in Gary Dotson's eyes through the dizzying, day-long roller-coaster ride that ended with a judge returning him to prison for a rape his accuser insists never happened.

The slight, soft-spoken Dotson returned to court Thursday after a week of freedom secured by a $10,000 cash bond and told reporters before the hearing, "I'm nervous. But after today, it'll be all right."

Throughout a day of testimony, successive witnesses would offer a glimmer of hope during examination by Dotson's attorney, Warren Lupel. But almost as quickly, Cook County prosecutors would cloud those hopes by eliciting conflicting testimony.

And nearly eight hours later, Dotson slammed his hand to the defense table as Circuit Judge Richard Samuels said, "The petitioner has failed to sustain his burden (of proof) and I cannot find that perjury was committed." Samuels denied a motion to vacate a 25- to 30-year sentence imposed in 1979 after Dotson was convicted of raping Cathleen Crowell Webb.

Several feet behind Dotson, Mrs. Webb gasped sharply, and Dotson's 49-year-old mother, Barbara, clutched a relative and wailed.

Dotson, meanwhile, sat back quietly and stared at Samuels, the same judge who had sentenced him after the first trial.

Dotson and Lupel exchanged words quickly, and Lupel said afterward:

"His last words were 'Please find John McLario (Mrs. Webb's attorney) and Cathy Crowell and tell them that I forgive her for anything, that I hold no ill will, that I'll be all right. I'll make it,'" Lupel said.

"This is the kind of young man this is and this is the kind of young man that shows you what kind of man he is..." said Lupel.

Not everyone was saddened by the judge's ruling. Upstairs, in a second-floor office of the courthouse, assistant state's attorneys celebrated with a beer party, laughing, back slapping and rehashing the case.

When told of the ruling, Louis Trencani, a juror in the 1979 trial, said, "We all thought he was guilty. There was no doubt in our minds. There was not a doubt that she was telling the truth then."

Mrs. Webb, 23, now a mother of two living in New Hampshire, testified last week that she was never raped on July 9, 1977, as she had said before. She said she concocted the story when she was 16 because she feared she was pregnant and wanted to prevent her foster parents from learning she had had sex with a boyfriend.

FBI Director Says Citizens Coming Home Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director William H. Webster says agents often question Americans returning from other nations, but he denies the bureau has violated anyone's constitutional rights.

Webster acknowledged Thursday that an agent seized the diary and personal papers of a free-lance journalist returning from Nicaragua because a Customs Service official "thought that it might have counter-intelligence significance."

Webster was asked to explain the bureau's policy in view of a suit filed against the FBI by Edward Haase, a Kansas City, Mo., self-employed journalist. Haase says an agent took his personal papers, including his diary, as he passed through Customs in Miami Jan. 16 en route home from Nicaragua.

Haase, who describes himself as a broadcast engineer and free-lance journalist specializing in Nicaragua and U.S.-Nicaragua relations, complained that his constitutional rights were violated when the FBI took his papers and photocopied some materials.

Michael Ratner, a lawyer affiliated with the Center for Constitutional Rights in New York, who is representing Haase, called the FBI actions "totally unjustifiable and totally unconstitutional."

At a hearing in late February, U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson asked that the materials held by the FBI's Miami field office be sent to Washington and placed in Webster's custody until the case is decided. He also ordered no further copying of the materials.

The FBI is trying to have the suit dismissed. Haase had been in Nicaragua 2½ months when he returned to this country on Jan. 16. He said the FBI was called in after Customs Service agents at Miami International Airport went through his luggage and saw newspapers and magazines purchased or given to him in Nicaragua. He quoted FBI Special Agent Joe Miranda as telling him the bureau and the Customs Service had the right to search for "subversive materials that advocate the violent overthrow of the United States."

Among the material seized were papers concerning the work of the National Network in Solidarity With the People of Nicaragua, described as a coalition of domestic, religious, professional, human rights and solidarity groups that support the efforts of the Nicaraguan people to build a democratic society. Haase says he is a member of the organization.

The suit said Haase noticed the FBI photocopied the personal papers and documents before they were returned to him.

Asked about this in a meeting with wire service reporters, Webster said, "it is a pending case ... so I have to be very circumspect about what I say about it."

But he said, "I think you have to understand that the FBI was responding to a call from the Customs Service, and that Customs has some statutes that are more sweeping in respect to (scrutinizing) people who are not yet back in the United States."

"We don't maintain a right to copy," Webster said. "I think that in that particular situation, it was viewed as an alternative to Customs holding the man until everybody had digested what Customs had a legal right to inspect. The man was trying to make an airplane (connection). That (the photocopying) was thought at that time to be a viable alternative."

"I'm just not aware of this happening very often," he said.

"Our mission is to perform a counter-intelligence function," Webster added.

Still Moderate At 0.2 Percent

Wholesale Prices Stage Sharpest Increase Of '85

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose a moderate 0.2 percent last month, the steepest increase of 1985, the government said today. Over the last year, however, prices have been up 0.3 percent, the smallest 12-month inflation rate in 20 years.

In March, a hodge-podge of increases more than wiped out cheaper prices for gasoline and food, which was down overall despite a 16.7 percent gain in vegetable prices.

The March rise followed a 0.1 percent gain in February. Prices had held steady in January.

For the first three months of the year, prices were up just 0.3 percent, at an annual rate. Indeed, that rate held true for the last year as a whole and was the lowest since a 0.1 percent rate for the 12 months ending in January 1965.

The 0.8 percent gasoline price decline was the product of the Labor Department's seasonal adjustment process, designed to remove predictable, periodic influences from price activity. Without the adjustment, prices at the pump actually rose 1.7 percent.

Analysts, however, expect pump prices to begin falling before long as pressure builds from the worldwide oil glut.

Indeed, many analysts predict inflation for all of 1985 could be as low as 2 percent, only a slight deterioration from the 1.8 percent gain recorded in 1984.

That performance, combined with a minuscule 0.6 percent increase in 1983, gave the United States its best back-to-back inflation record in two decades.

As for March, the department offered these specifics on price activity:

—Food prices overall fell 0.2 percent, the third monthly decline. The drop came despite the big rise in vegetable prices, which was almost four times the 4.6 percent gain of the preceding month.

Prices were also up, but at more modest levels, for eggs and pork while costs fell for fruit, down 8.3 percent, for beef and veal, for fish and for poultry. The drop in fruit prices almost erased the 9.1 percent February gain.

—Energy prices overall fell 0.9 percent, the fourth straight monthly decline. Natural gas prices were off 2.5 percent but home heating oil costs rose 0.6 percent.

Heating oil costs are now 15.9 percent below their levels of a year ago while gasoline prices are off 9 percent.

The energy price calculations reported today were actually for February. That component of the wholesale measure lags a month because energy companies report their prices too late for inclusion in the most recent index.

—New car prices were up 0.3 percent, the smallest rise this year. Light truck prices rose 1.4 percent. —Capital equipment costs gained 0.4 percent.

The overall rise was also propelled by price gains of 1.1 percent for newspapers, 1 percent for automobile tires, 0.6 percent for furniture and 0.5 percent for women's and children's clothing.

The optimism about overall future price moderation is based in part on the fact that worldwide oil demand is still well below the production capacity of the oil-exporting nations and will likely remain so for some time.

In addition, the dollar, while retreating somewhat from the records set in February, still remains at high levels. By one measure, the dollar has risen by about 70 percent since the end of 1980 against a trade-weighted group of foreign currencies.

The strong dollar holds prices down, especially in a commodity index such as the wholesale price measure, by making imported goods cheaper for Americans. At the same time, U.S. producers are constrained from raising their prices for fear of losing even more business to foreign competition.

If last month's 0.2 percent increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 2.5 percent.

Nakasone Says Car Plan 'Error Of Judgment'

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said today his decision to raise the quota of Japanese auto exports to the United States was an "error of judgment" resulting from a misreading of potential American reaction.

Also today, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry announced a five-point plan to increase foreign imports of manufactured products, and Minister Keijiro Murata appealed to Japanese consumers to buy more foreign goods.

A news release from the ministry said it will call on 60 leading Japanese companies, including automobile, electronic and machinery manufacturers, trading houses, department stores and supermarkets, to make special efforts to promote imports.

Among the 60 firms are Toyota Motor Corp., Nippon Steel Corp., Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Sony Corp., Mitsubishi Co. and Mitsui and Co., ministry officials said.

Besides the appeal to promote imports, the five-point ministry plan provides for import fairs, conferences for foreigners doing business in Japan, the expansion of trade in certain products, upgrading financial aid to importers and a publicity campaign to increase awareness of the importance of buying foreign goods.

"With the benefit of hindsight, maybe we should have studied the situation more in advance" of raising the quota, Nakasone told foreign journalists at a luncheon. "But we hope it is understood that we acted in sincerity and good faith."

The government announced March 28 that auto shipments for the fiscal year beginning April 1 would be 2.3 million, up from the 1.85 million sent in fiscal 1984 when Japanese automakers were still under "voluntary restraint" on exports to the United States.

Nakasone called that decision, which boosts exports to the United States by 24.3 percent, an "error in judgment about the attitude in the United States."

The U.S. Congress, angered by Japan's $36.8 billion trade surplus and what it perceived as Japanese cars flooding the U.S. market, subsequently passed a non-binding resolution to retaliate against Japan if it refused to open its markets to more American competition.

Nakasone's comments were contained in a pool report by reporters at the luncheon.

They came three days after the government's announcement of a new package of measures designed to liberalize Japanese markets for foreign products in telecommunications, electronics, pharmaceuticals and medical equipment, and wood products.

The auto export issue, which has been dealt with separately over the past five years, was not a part of that three-year program, the seventh package of trade liberalization measures offered by Japan since 1981. U.S. and European officials have complained that the programs were inadequate.

In a nationally televised speech following the announcement of the program, Nakasone urged his countrymen to buy foreign products to help reduce Japan's growing surplus with its trading partners, which reached $44 billion last year.

At the luncheon, Nakasone held up a poster bearing his picture and the slogan, "Never before have imports been so important to us." He said it was part of a nationwide campaign to boost the purchase of imported goods.

The auto export quota was raised in consideration to Japanese automakers, who had begrudgingly agreed to voluntarily hold back exports to the United States since fiscal 1981.

Sudanese Unions Propose Naming Impartial Cabinet

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Sudan's unions and political parties today proposed to the new military rulers an apolitical Cabinet to administer the country during a one-year transition to civilian rule.

A spokesman for the Alliance of National Forces, formed by the unions and political parties, said it petitioned for "a Cabinet composed of civilians with no political affiliations" at a meeting with members of the Military Council this morning. The spokesman requested anonymity.

The 15-member council now running the country is led by Gen. Abdul-Rahman M.H. Swareddahab, who led a coup ousting President Gaafar Nimeiri last Saturday.

Protests including a general strike launched by the unions and opposition parties fueled last Saturday's takeover.

The spokesman said alliance members "realize that the caretaker government has very serious problems to tackle, and the absence of any differences on political ideology will make their job slightly easier during the transitional period."

He refused to name the proposed Cabinet members.

The nation continued to return to normal activities that were disrupted by the strike and coup. The Military Council said Khartoum Airport would be opened today to "all scheduled flights." It had been closed to international traffic after flight engineers joined a general strike last week.

The civilian negotiators disclosed Thursday night that the council had accepted their demand that the transition be limited to a year and that the caretaker Cabinet include only one military member, the defense minister.

Nimeiri named Swareddahab commander-in-chief and defense minister March 18, a few days before he left on his last trip as president. The coup occurred while the president, who had ruled Sudan for 16 years, was returning from a U.S. visit.

Troopers Nab Shooting Suspect In Creek

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

HARMON DEN, N.C. (AP) — An "exhausted" 25-year-old Kentucky man was charged with first degree murder in the death of a state trooper after he was found near the shooting site and dragged kicking and screaming up a 1,000-foot embankment.

Billy McQueen of Lexington, Ky., was held without bond pending a first appearance hearing today. He was captured late Thursday afternoon after police pinned him face-down in the Pigeon River gorge three miles from the Tennessee border and hauled him to the top, ending a two-day manhunt that involved as many as 200 officers.

"He was very crafty," said Highway Patrol Capt. C.H. Long, but "we had the cooperation of a good citizen" — a motorist who saw McQueen crossing Interstate 40 about 1 1/2 miles from where the trooper was shot to death.

McQueen was unarmed when captured, although police said he was believed to have carried a .22-caliber rifle and a .22-caliber pistol.

"He was acting weird," said Haywood County Magistrate Jerry Moody.

McQueen, walking barefoot as a trooper carried his boots, was escorted by three troopers into the Haywood County Jail.

He was charged with first-degree murder in the Tuesday night shooting death of Trooper Giles A. Harmon, said Haywood County Magistrate George Queen. Officials detained another man, but hadn't charged him Thursday night.

Harmon was shot once in the chest after he stopped a car near a detour of rockslide-blocked I-40. Authorities said it was unclear why the trooper stopped the car.

"He was exhausted," Long said of McQueen. "He'd been in the woods several hours. All day long, we've been tracking him with bloodhounds. We'd pick up his track in the creek (Pigeon River), off the bank and in the creek again."

Trooper Mike Thompson, 36, of McDowell County, was one of the four or five troopers who pounced on McQueen after they slid down the river's embankment. A helicopter swooped in as officers pinned McQueen in the river.

"He was zig-zagging in and out of the creek trying to lose the scent," Thompson said. "He was smart. But what he doesn't know is that he made a bigger mistake jumping from the creek to the bank because it washes that distinct scent into the water."

It took about 30 minutes to get McQueen to a waiting patrol car. Officials tied together hundreds of feet of rope and a volunteer took one end down to the floor of the gorge.

McQueen, screaming, kicking and crying for help, was tied to the rope and hoisted to the top. He continued screaming until he was put into a patrol car.

Warrants charging McQueen with one count of communicating threats and one of harassing telephone calls were filed Tuesday by Marsha Isaac, McQueen's estranged wife in Statesville.

Warrants charging one count of communicating threats, dated Tuesday, and one count of trespassing, dated March 29, also were drawn against him by Ann Sims, whose address was the same as Ms. Isaac.

Officials said they thought McQueen had been headed to Statesville to see his wife.

Meanwhile, a man who told authorities McQueen kidnaped him and then shot Harmon, remained hospitalized Thursday in Haywood County Hospital under police guard for treatment of a gunshot wound to the left thigh.

The Highway Patrol said Thursday Charles G. Barker "is still a suspect" in Harmon's death. He had not been charged with any criminal offenses Thursday night.

had been kidnaped in Lexington, Ky., shot and forced to travel to North Carolina.

Barker told the man and a newspaper reporter that McQueen, who was a friend, "shot the patrolman without any reason."

McQueen had been living in Barker's farmhouse in Kentucky, where he worked for Barker as a farmhand, officials said. Law enforcement officials from North Carolina flew to Lexington Thursday in an effort to find out more about McQueen.

Harmon was described as a friendly man who as a child was interested in law enforcement.

"He was very personable, very friendly and outgoing," said Dwight Harmon, his uncle. "He never met a stranger."

Harmon's wife, Melinda, continued at her job as dispatcher with the Buncombe County Sheriff's Department for several hours after learning that a highway patrol trooper had been shot near the area her husband was patrolling.

It was only when a highway patrol official came to tell her of his death that she knew her husband was the one who had been shot and killed, said Mark Ivey, chief deputy for the sheriff's department.

"I'd say she is taking it very well," Ivey said Thursday. "But it's very rough on her."

CAPTURED — Law enforcement officers haul Billy McQueen, a 25-year-old Kentucky man charged with murder in the shooting death of a state trooper, out of the Pigeon River gorge Thursday after he was tracked down by troopers using bloodhounds. Democrats Chart Strategy

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic leaders in the General Assembly have met quietly away from the Legislature, seeking a consensus on tax relief proposals, a legislator said.

"We're just trying to get our thoughts together on this package so (Republicans) don't divide and conquer," a lawmaker who requested anonymity told the Asheville Citizen.

The latest meeting was Tuesday at the Raleigh apartment of Sen. Aaron Plyer, D-Union, where they reportedly discussed taxes and the public's perception of Democrats in the General Assembly as opposed to Republican Gov. Jim Martin.

The two-hour meeting was at least the second at the apartment in which both House and Senate Democrats met, the lawmaker said.

Plyer said the meeting had no agenda and called it a "social gathering." He said it was held to discuss the hiring of a public relations firm to represent Democrats in the General Assembly.

"We weren't conducting the business of the state in my apartment," Plyer said Thursday.

Both Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey, the two ranking Democrats in the General Assembly, attended the meeting, the newspaper reported.

Martin Defends His Lobby Effort For Tax Cut Package

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he has contacted as many legislators as possible to request their support of his tax package, but many Democrats say they haven't heard from him.

"I have not had one phone call, one letter, or one visit from the governor or any of his people," said Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, in an interview Thursday.

"I don't even know what's in the tax package," said Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee.

Martin, in his weekly news conference, acknowledged that some lawmakers have complained about lack of access to him. But he said his lobbyists were readily available.

He also strongly denied allegations that he was plotting to wage a halfhearted battle for his tax bill, let it die and blame the Democrats during the 1986 legislative election campaign.

"I am very genuinely and sincerely committed to the entire tax package," said Martin. "I am not a magician. I have no dominant position over the Legislature where I could make a personal appeal and have everyone get into line..."

The best way to get lawmakers to back him is to generate grassroots support, he added.

"If their constituents don't care, then they might not feel strongly enough about it to break any party-line discipline that might be attempted," said Martin.

For the Legislature to reject all or part of the package would have "political consequences," he said, but added that he expected lawmakers to base their votes on the bill's merits.

Martin's tax package, which he estimates would cost $489 million when fully implemented in fiscal 1988-89, includes elimination of the food and drug tax and the property taxes on intangible assets and business inventories.

Two of the package's most influential supporters — Senate Finance Committee chairman Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, and Senate Minority Leader Bill Redman, R-Iredell — warned Wednesday they could find little support for food and medicine tax repeal.

Martin said he hoped a public hearing on the bill next Wednesday would demonstrate that his plan has wide support.

- Heats water faster!
- Keeps heating when power's off!
- And because of electricity's inherent inefficiency, they SAVE ENERGY!

Garwood Says Vietnam Holding Soldiers' Remains

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Vietnamese government "obviously" has the remains of several captured American soldiers and "are giving them back a few at a time," former POW Robert Garwood says.

Garwood said a Marine whose remains were recently returned to the United States was one of eight or nine captured American soldiers buried near two communist prisons.

"Several are buried side by side. They (Vietnamese) obviously have the others and are giving them back a few at a time," he said Wednesday in a statement released to The Daily News in Jacksonville.

Garwood's comments were made during a telephone conversation with Ted L. Sampley, deputy national coordinator of the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition. Garwood declined to talk directly to reporters.

"The Vietnamese are obviously not giving them all back," Garwood said. "Those that died, died under the same camp administration."

Garwood, a former Marine convicted in 1981 of collaborating with the enemy, now lives in the Washington, D.C., area, where he works at a service station. Sampley spoke to him, with reporters present to hear his end of the conversation, from the newspaper's office.

Sampley, a former Special Forces soldier in Vietnam who lives in Kinston, said he thinks Vietnamese communists are not returning the remains of all U.S. servicemen killed during the war and said Garwood's statements back his views.

Sampley said he ended the interview after Garwood became emotionally upset by talking about the remains recently returned and the bodies remaining in Vietnam.

Several of the graves in Vietnam were marked with crude, hand-carved headstones, some made by Garwood, Sampley said.

Garwood has told The Wall Street Journal he knows there were at least 70 Americans held prisoner in Vietnam during the late 1970s, years after the communists said all prisoners had been repatriated.

"Garwood has knowledge of as many as 22 graves of Americans in Vietnam and he's offered to go back and show the North Vietnamese government where they are. They have refused," Sampley said. "So, one out of a possible 11 bodies was returned. They (Vietnamese officials) are sandbagging, holding back."

"This is a prime example of the information the Department of Defense is rejecting because of their attitude," he added. "Bobby Garwood is a wealth of information and they're just not making any effort to follow through on Bobby's effort to help; he's the one who is doing this."

The body of Sgt. Robert C. Sherman of Danville, Ill., was one of six identified during the past month at the U.S. Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu, Hawaii. The remains were returned in March by the communist Vietnam government.

Sherman was on picket duty with troops of the South Vietnamese army when he was captured in June 1967. He died of hunger edema (abnormal accumulation of fluid, causing swelling) and malaria in 1968 in Quang Nam province while confined in the same camp where Garwood was held.

Garwood said that 11 dead captives from two prisons that were about "a half-day's walk apart" are buried near the camps. He said that the bodies of two civilian German nurses are among the 11.

Senate Delays Final Vote On Higher Drinking Age

RALEIGH (AP) — The final Senate vote on a bill that would raise the drinking age for beer and wine to 21 has been delayed until Tuesday after one senator called it "the sorriest bill" devised to save federal funds.

"I understand the purpose was to come up with the sorriest bill we could and still keep the money," said Sen. R.P. Thomas, D-Henderson. "I know there's $15 million out there in federal money if we'll restrict these billboards up and down the highway, but we haven't had the courage to tackle that."

"I want to save the money and respect the 19- and 20-year-olds in my district," he said before his motion to delay the final vote was approved 34-14.

Congress has threatened to withhold federal highway funds from any state that doesn't raise its drinking age to 21 by October 1986. In North Carolina, the loss would amount to $30 million over two years.

"The bill itself isn't offensive, but the action that led to it offends our whole basic sense of government," said Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, one of four senators who voted against giving the bill tentative approval Wednesday.

"I don't know what their thinking is (in Congress)," Winner said. "Maybe it's that we're incompetent. In my judgement, we've got to refuse to cave into them."

The bill, which has already passed the House, would raise the drinking age for beer and wine from 19 to 21 on Sept. 1, 1986. But any 19- or 20-year-old caught drinking or possessing the beverages would be guilty of an infraction, not a crime, and would face a maximum $25 fine with no court costs.

The bill also contains a provision that the drinking age would revert to 19 if the federal mandate is ruled unconstitutional or is reversed.

"This bill will have an effect," Winner said after arguing that more alcohol-related accidents and driving while impaired arrests involve older drivers.

"The effect is insidious," he said. "We're telling them (19- and 20-year-olds) 'Don't worry about it.' It's time for us to stop and think about what we're doing, and lose the money if we have to."

Leaf Growers Urge Delay In Tax Bill

By The Associated Press
The 3,000-member Tobacco Growers Association of North Carolina is urging U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose not to introduce legislation next week that would earmark cigarette excise tax funds to finance the ailing tobacco program.

Association Director T. Carlton Blalock said Thursday his group has told Rose the excise tax bill is "a sleeping dog we don't want to wake up."

"It would be very harmful to farmers in the long run," Blalock said. "Once that genie is allowed out of the bottle, it would be extremely difficult to contain it. Everybody else would want a piece of that money. Everybody would jump on the bandwagon."

Bills already are pending or are about to be introduced that would raise the cigarette excise tax from 16 cents a pack to 24, 32 and even 40 cents a pack, Blalock said.

The tax is scheduled to be cut in by half in October due to a "sunset clause" in the present legislation engineered by tobacco state legislators.

But Rose, chairman of the House Tobacco and Peanut Subcommittee, has acknowledged that if his excise tax bill is enacted, there would be little or no chance that the tax would be slashed.

Rose announced two weeks ago he would introduce the legislation if Philip Morris did not agree to participate in a proposed cigarette manufacturers' buyout of 1.3 billion pounds of flue-cured and burley surplus tobacco.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, hesitating after its advance of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.10 to 1,262.59 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 7-6 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Stocks have had a strong bond market working in their favor for most of the week. Open-market interest rates have fallen sharply in the past few days.

But the reasons for those interest-rate declines — in particular, signs of a slowing economy — have produced some mixed feelings among market participants.

The government's report Thursday of a surprise 1.9 percent drop in retail sales during March, for example, got a rousing welcome from bond traders.

But while it helped send interest rates lower, the news also raised questions in many Wall Streeters' minds about the outlook for corporate profits.

In today's economic news, the Labor Department said the producer price index of finished goods rose 0.2 percent in March, maintaining a low level of upward pressure on consumer prices.

Among today's early volume leaders, International Business Machines rose 1/8 to 127 1/2; American Stores gained 1/2 to 54 1/4; Citicorp dropped 1/2 to 44 1/8, and American Telephone & Telegraph was down 1/8 at 21 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.75 to 1,263.69, bringing its gain over the past two sessions to 9.83 points.

Advances outpaced declines by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 108.36 million shares against 108.15 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained 44 to 104.43. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.05 at 230.72.

Hallberg Not Resting With Early Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Hallberg says there's no way he will begin thinking about a Masters golf championship yet.

"If you think like that you can eliminate your chances right away," Hallberg said Thursday after securing a one-shot lead with a 4-under-par 68 in the opening round of the season's first major championship.

"It's four days, 72 holes," he said. "The easiest time is when you're on the golf course. It's the other 18 hours I have to keep such thoughts away."

"I don't want to think about it until I have a tap-in on 18 Sunday," he added.

"It's a wonderful feeling, and I'm going to try not to get too excited about it."

Hallberg, who wears an Indiana Jones-style fedora, birdied two of the last four holes on the 6,905-yard Augusta National Golf Club layout.

Payne Stewart, whose clothing quirk is knickers, and Tom Watson, who has won twice and recorded five other top five finishes in the last eight Masters, shared second, one slender shot off the pace.

There were several other imposing figures within striking distance.

Defending champion Ben Crenshaw, PGA champ Lee Trevino and former Masters winner Ray Floyd were in a group at 70.

Jack Nicklaus, holder of a record five Masters titles and 17 major professional triumphs, and South African Gary Player, a three-time winner of this event, were in a group at 71.

Hallberg also gave credit to a physics professor and a teaching pro from Scotland.

He said he went to see the physics professor, Dr. Ralph Mann of Ocala, Fla., two weeks ago for computerized swing analysis and got some more help from the Scot, Bob Torrance, on Wednesday.

Hallberg told Torrance he thought he had done wonders with his son, Sam Torrance, who had an opening round 73. The elder Torrance then spent about an hour helping Hallberg work on his game.

Hallberg says he wears the Indiana Jones hat for several reasons.

"I didn't want to be like the other clones I hear so much about out here," he said. "It's funny. Baseball and football players wear the same uniform, but they're seen as different."

He also said the hat shields his eyes from the sun and keeps him from making eye contact with spectators, which he finds distracting.

"I used to spot friends in the crowd and I had to go speak to them, then I'd lose my concentration and get a bogey," he said.

Hallberg's round included six birdies and two bogeys. It was a two-putt birdie from 25 feet on the 15th that gave him a share of the lead and a 10-footer on the 17th that moved him to the top of the leader board.

Watson said his round was "like night and day." He had trouble on the front, shooting 38, but came back with a 5-under 31 on the back, the highlight coming when he drilled a 25-foot eagle putt on the 13th.

Starting with a birdie at the 11th, Watson took five shots off par over five holes.

"For the most part I've stuck pretty close in there after a good first round," Watson said.

"The 69 is a little better start than I'm accustomed to here," said Stewart, who opened with a 76 in last year's Masters.

Nicklaus said there weren't many highlights to his round until he birdied from 6 feet on the 14th and followed with a 10-foot eagle putt on the next hole.

Nicklaus was more content with praising a pair of amateurs — Sam Randolph from the University of Southern California and John Inman from the University of North Carolina — who had impressive 70s. Inman is the brother of touring pro Joe Inman.

"If that isn't a shot in the arm for amateur golf..." Nicklaus said. "I was tickled pink."

Seve Ballesteros, the dashing Spaniard who won at Augusta in 1980 and 1983, headed a large group at 72.

Cal Peete, winner of the Tournament Players Championship two weeks ago, had a 75 and U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller 77.

Curtis Strange, winner of two Tour events earlier this year, had an 80 and one of the all-time favorites among Masters galleries, four-time winner Arnold Palmer, had the worst score of the day, an 83.

Hardison Sparks Pirates' Victory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Greg Hardison, who played his first year of collegiate baseball at N.C. Wesleyan, gets fired up when the Bishops visit his current team, the East Carolina Pirates.

Last night at Harrington Field was no exception as his glove helped the Pirates to a 6-5 decision — and helped touch off a brohouna that sent both head coach Mike Fox and assistant coach Mike DeLeone off the field in the ninth inning.

Hardison accounted for three putouts and eight assists, but it was his final one that set off the fireworks.

Wesleyan, trailing 6-2 in the top of the ninth, got two runs when Richard Beaupre walked and John Haggerty homered. The next batter, Kevin Rose, grounded deep in the hole to Hardison. His throw was off the bag, but first baseman Winfred Johnson swept Rose with the ball.

"I got him four feet off the bag," Johnson said later. "I got him high on the chest and my arm kept going as he went by. It might have given them the impression that I missed."

At any rate, DeLeone, coaching at first base, quickly jumped the field umpire, bumping him with his chest, and earning a quick thumb-out. Fox, meanwhile, charged over from first and shoved DeLeone away and went chin-to-chin with the ump, finally earning the thumb himself. After Fox was finally guided to the gate, DeLeone, who had gone to third to coach, was reminded that he, too, had been ejected. That brought Fox back to the field for more argument.

And even when he finally did leave, it wasn't over.

With two away, Steve Druelli banged a homer to right, cutting the lead to one. The next batter flew out to center, ending the game.

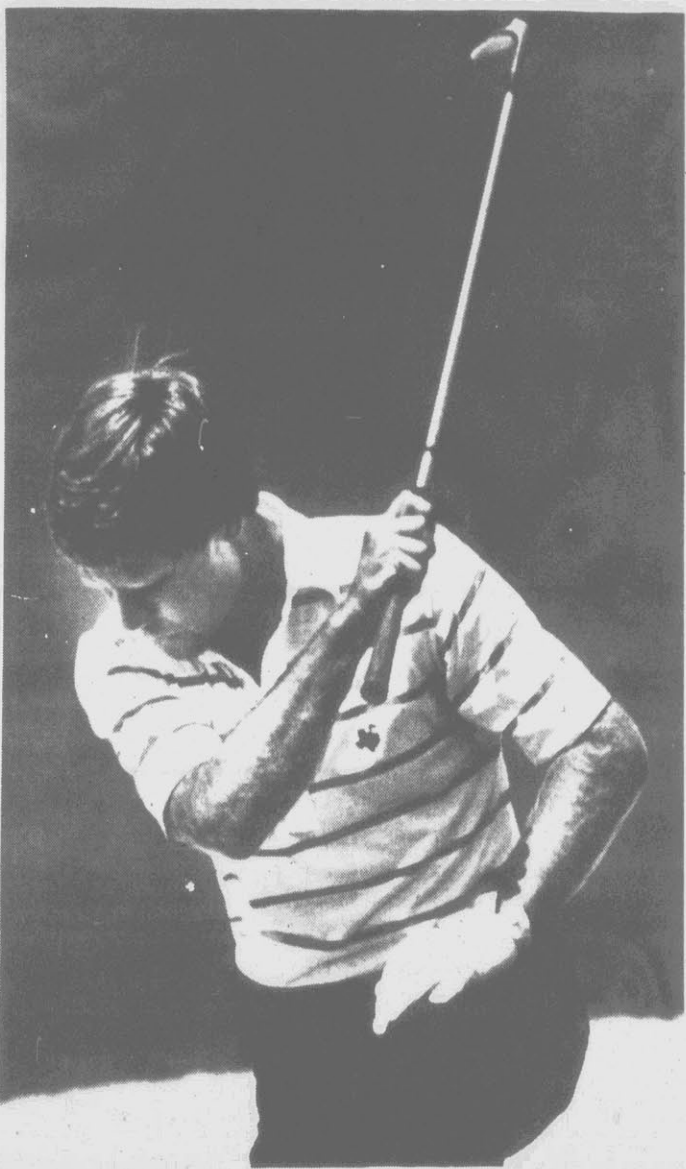

But not the fireworks. Fox again flew back on the field for one last set of words for the umpire before finally retiring for the night.

Jim Peterson went the distance for the Pirates, giving up six hits, but four of them were scattered over the first eight innings. One of the two runs he allowed prior to the ninth was unearned.

"I thought Peterson threw well tonight, maybe even his best game of the season," Coach Gary Overton said. "He got stronger as the game went along. In the ninth, with us comfortably ahead, he was just trying to get ahead of the batters."

Overton was pleased with the play of the Pirates, despite four errors.

Elliott Surprised By Pole-Winning Time

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Bill Elliott, who posted a near-record qualifying time to win the pole for Sunday's TranSouth 500, acted as though he were a little mystified.

"You just never know," Elliott said after the first 20 starters were selected Thursday. "With this race track, you can gain a lot of time or you can lose a lot of time. This one really surprised me."

Elliott, who already had Grand National wins at the Daytona and Coca-Cola 500s this year, turned in a one-lap speed of 157.454 mph, barely missing Tim Richmond's 1983 qualifying record of 157.818 mph.

Outside Elliott on the front row will be David Pearson, who has won 10 races on the 1.366-mile Darlington International Raceway oval — known as the "granddaddy" of all NASCAR tracks.

Qualifying was to resume this afternoon to select the second 20 starters. Those missing the cut Thursday on their first attempts were Morgan Shepherd, Kyle Petty and Bobby Allison.

The track, which has undergone a partial facelift since Harry Gant won the Southern 500 last September, has been re-paved with asphalt in turns one and two and the pit areas have been modified with new protective barriers.

Asked if the new pavement improved the track, Elliott said: "I don't know. It looks like they got the big bump out of it but they made a lot of little ones."

Nevertheless, the 29-year-old driver added: "Today, we just had everything right (on the car). I had a fast first lap and knew the speed usually picks up on the second one."

The top money winner on the NASCAR circuit with $288,155 this year, Elliott has six Grand National wins to his career credit, winning three in 1984 and one in 1983.

The Dawsonville, Ga., native won the pole here in 1981 and finished fourth. In 1982 and 1984, he placed third in the TranSouth 500, and in 1983 he finished fifth.

Even with all that experience, Elliott wasn't expecting to post Thursday's fastest speed.

The track, often called "too tough to tame," tends to defy pole sitters. Not since 1976 has the fastest qualifier won the race.

Pearson, a Spartanburg, S.C., native who has 10 victories at Darlington, last won here in 1980. He finished fifth in 1981 and fourth in 1982.

The third-fastest, first-day qualifier at 156.318 mph was Terry Labonte, last year's Winston Cup Grand National champion and current points leader on the circuit with 738 points.

Benny Parsons, who has won the TranSouth pole twice and the race once, qualified for the race's 29th running with a speed of 156.228 mph. Lake Speed set the fifth-fastest pace, clocking 155.758.

Ron Bouchard, whose best finish this year was a fourth at the Miller High Life 400, had a speed of 155.517 for the sixth-fastest time.

Trevino Returning To Old Form At Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It was the Lee Trevino of old: stalking and swaggering, grinning and gesturing, brash and brassy as ever.

"If I can strike the ball the way I did today, there's no reason I can't win," the 45-year-old Trevino said Thursday after a 2-under-par 70 in the opening round of the Masters. He was two shots off the lead in this event that holds a unique place in his career.

Once, back in 1969, he vowed he'd never again play in a Masters. He said the hilly course wasn't suited to his game. And, too, the stiff and proper atmosphere of the Augusta National Golf Club didn't suit his free-wheeling style.

For a couple of seasons, he declined an invitation to compete.

But now, he's done a 180 degree turn.

A victory in the Masters is one of the most cherished dreams for the man who won the U.S. Opens in 1968 and 1971, the British Opens in 1971 and 1972, the PGA in 1974 and again last year.

The Masters now is the only one he needs to place his name on golf's most select and exclusive list — the roster of those who have swept all of the game's Big Four events. Only Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan have accomplished that feat.

Trevino is close.

But he knows that time is running out.

"There's no reason I can't win here," he said.

"If I'd had a good attitude, I could have won before. There's no one to blame but myself."

"It'll probably haunt me the rest of my life."

Trevino, who broke a three-year victory drought with his upset triumph in the PGA last year, said his new wife Claudia is responsible for "my turn-around in the last 16 months. Without her, I probably would have quit playing by now."

And, he said, she was responsible for his positive attitude about the Masters.

Cubs Challenge Light Ruling

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Chicago Cubs will have their turn at bat in the Illinois Supreme Court.

The state's highest court has agreed to decide the constitutionality of city and state laws that prohibit the National League club from playing night baseball at Wrigley Field.

The Cubs have taken a swing at the laws, claiming they're discriminatory. The team is under pressure from other major league clubs to play night games should it reach the playoffs again this year.

Justices on Thursday granted a request by Gov. James R. Thompson and others to hear an appeal from a trial court ruling that upheld the laws banning night ball at the only major league park in America without lights.

The Cubs had opposed the direct appeal to the Supreme Court, saying a speedier resolution might be available by going first to a lower court of appeals. But their lawyers said they were pleased with Thursday's decision because justices set a speeded-up schedule for hearing the case, scheduling oral arguments for May 31.

Cubs General Manager Dallas Green seemed philosophical.

"It's out of our hands. It's up to the lawyers," Green said Thursday during the Cubs' game at Wrigley with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Thompson, the City of Chicago and a neighborhood group asked the high court to take the case now because it would almost certainly hear it eventually.

"It would be beneficial for all to have a final resolution by this court sooner rather than later," lawyers for Thompson said in papers filed with the court.

Cook County Circuit Judge Richard Curry on March 25 upheld the city and state laws designed to cut down on nighttime noise at sporting events.

The state law applies only to Wrigley Field. Chicago's two other large stadiums — Comiskey Park and Soldier Field — are exempt because both held night contests before the measure was passed in 1982.

The 1983 city ordinance prohibits professional sporting contests between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m. in open stadiums containing more than 15,000 seats that are located within 500 feet of 100 or more dwelling units.

Residents of the neighborhood surrounding Wrigley Field have complained their evenings would be disturbed by noise and rowdy behavior by Wrigley's "bleacher bums."

The Cubs, 1984 winners of the National League East Division, complained the state law and city ordinance unfairly singled out Wrigley Field.

The Cubs have come under pressure from baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth to install lights so if they make the playoffs again this year, baseball can reap the benefits of higher nighttime television revenues.

ECU Tops Bishops...

"We made some physical mistakes, but we played good defense overall. Hardison had a great game. We were aggressive and that made up for a lot of the mistakes."

Johnson, who has already set season records for home runs and runs batted in, drew aim on his own mark of 115 total bases in a season, set last year. With a double and a single, he ran his total to 114, just one shy of the mark.

East Carolina took the lead in the first. Mark Shank doubled to right and was sacrificed up. He scored on a groundout by Chris Bradberry.

Wesleyan, however, tied it up with one in the second. And it could have been more. Gene Sanguinetti led off with a double, but catcher Jim Riley picked him off. Paul Prisco walked and Jim Provanzano and Beaupre both reached one errors, the latter scoring courtesy runner Nick Beamon.

But the tie didn't last long. Jay McGraw broke it with a leadoff homer in the bottom of the frame, his third of the season.

The Pirates added three more runs in the third. Shank walked and was again sacrificed up. He scored on Bradberry's double, and Bradberry came around on a hit by Johnson. Mike Sullivan walked and McGraw singled, loading them up. Riley then walked, forcing over Johnson for a 5-1 lead.

Wesleyan added a second run in the fourth. With one down, Prisco again walked with Beamon running for him. Hits by Provanzano and Beaupre loaded the sacks and John Haggerty's ground out scored Beamon.

East Carolina added what proved to be the winning run in the fifth.

With two away, Riley walked and courtesy runner Mont Carter scored on a double to right center by Mark Cockrell.

Petersen saw men reach third in both the seventh and eighth innings, but got out of the jam each time. In the seventh, Haggerty reached on a two-base error and took third on an out, only to die there. In the eighth, Prisco doubled with two away and a wild pitch put the runner on third before a fly ball ended the frame.

Then, in the stormy ninth, Wesleyan rallied for three — still a run short — before finally bowing.

The loss dropped Wesleyan, ranked first among NCAA Division III teams, to 27-5-1 on the year. East Carolina climbs to 25-9.

The Pirates return to action on Saturday, hosting Virginia Wesleyan in a 2 p.m. contest.

Cey Sparks Cub Rally

By The Associated Press

Steve Trout made one bad throw, and it cost him a run, but Jose DeLeon's one bad pitch cost him the game.

With two runners aboard in the fourth inning, DeLeon threw a pitch to Chicago's Ron Cey that wandered across the middle of the plate. Cey deposited the ball into the left-field seats to send the Cubs to a 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"It was a fast ball, the one bad pitch I made the entire game," said DeLeon, who beat the Cubs four times a year ago.

"DeLeon pitched a good game," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. "He made a bad pitch to Cey but Cey could just as easily have popped it up."

Trout, meanwhile, limited the Pirates to three hits in tossing a complete game. His only bad toss was directed toward first base, and the resulting errant toss set up Pittsburgh's only run.

In other National League action, Mike Marshall's two-run homer capped a three-run Dodger uprising in the eighth inning and Los Angeles held on for a 4-3 victory over the Houston Astros at the Astrodome.

In New York, Danny Heep drew a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the Mets a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In Philadelphia, Dale Murphy drove in three runs and scored twice to pace the Atlanta Braves to a 6-3 triumph over the Phillies, who have lost 11 consecutive games over two seasons.

Like Trout, DeLeon had little trouble with the hitters on a day when the wind was blowing out at Chicago's Wrigley Field. All of his troubles came in the fourth inning, when the Cubs scored all their runs.

Gary Matthews opened with a single and went to third when Leon Durham's grounder skipped past third baseman Bill Madlock for an error. After Matthews scored on a wild pitch, Keith Moreland beat out a bunt single and Cey homered.

"I thought he'd pitch me in or jam me," Cey said. "Maybe he made a mistake, but it came out over the plate."

"The weather was ideal," he added. "Usually in April the wind blows in. Two years ago, I lost at least three home runs with the wind blowing in."

Dodgers 4, Astros 3

The Dodgers, who dropped behind 3-0 in the early going, got to Houston starter Bob Knepper for a run in the sixth before erupting in the eighth against reliever Bill Dawley.

Mariano Duncan walked with two outs in the eighth and scored when Ken Landreaux doubled to right. Marshall, who had struck out five times in three games, followed with his first homer of the season.

Carlos Diaz gave up one hit over three innings to pick up the victory in relief of starter Orel Hershiser. Ken Howell pitched the final two innings for the save.

Mets 2, Cardinals 1

New York, forced into extra innings for the second time in as many games, again won at the expense of ex-Met Neil Allen. After Keith Hernandez singled to open the 11th, Allen came on to face Gary Carter, who won Tuesday's 10-inning affair by belting an Allen pitch into the St. Louis bullpen. On Thursday, Carter singled off the glove of third baseman Art Howe and, when the ball skittered into foul territory, Hernandez chugged into third.

George Foster was walked intentionally to load the bases before Heep was walked on a 3-1 pitch.

The New York comeback ruined a fine outing by St. Louis starter John Tudor, who scattered three hits over nine innings. The only run he allowed was tainted by two errors.

Mets starter Ron Darling spaced four St. Louis hits over seven innings, but the victory went to Roger McDowell, who retired three batters in the top of the 11th in his first major league appearance.

Braves 6, Phillies 3

In addition to Murphy's hitting, Atlanta got a boost from rookie reliever Zane Smith.

Pendergraft Named New UNCC Assistant

David Pendergraft, an assistant on the staff of ECU basketball coach Charlie Harrison, has resigned to accept a similar position at UNC-Charlotte.

A six-year veteran on the ECU staff, Pendergraft began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under former Pirate Coach Dave Odom. He was later elevated to a full-time assistant's post.

A 1974 graduate of Cary High School, Pendergraft played guard on the Imp team, then attended Brevard Junior College in Cocoa, Fla., where he also played. He also played a year of varsity ball at The Citadel before transferring to Catawba, where he finished his career and earned a bachelor's degree.

As a prep player, Pendergraft was named to all-conference and all-metro teams, making all-state and all-conference teams while at Brevard.

Pendergraft, 29, will join the staff of new UNCC coach Jeff Mullins, recently named to the basketball position and as athletic director for the 49ers.

Harrison said he did not know when a replacement for Pendergraft would be named, and said he had not decided as to whether he would promote within the staff or go outside for the replacement.

Thomas Misses Chance To Tie Mark

By The Associated Press
Seattle's Gorman Thomas knows how it feels to be down. So he wasn't about to show up the Oakland A's, even if it meant passing up a chance to tie a hallowed major-league record.

Thomas, a veteran slugger who hit just one home run in 1984 while missing most of the season with a torn rotator cuff, had already blasted three home runs, including a grand slam, when he came to the plate in the seventh inning Thursday night with the Mariners leading 13-6.

And, in his final at-bat with a chance to tie the major-league record of four homers in a game, Thomas walked on a 3-2 pitch.

"I would have liked to hit four home runs, but there is no way I was going to swing at a 3-0 pitch or even a 3-1 pitch," said Thomas, who also walked in the first. "Then you're showing someone up. In this game you try not to embarrass yourself or anyone else."

Thomas wound up with six runs batted in as Seattle belted seven homers and won 14-6.

Earlier, when Thomas slammed his third home run, the fans at the Kingdome kept standing and applauding hoping for a wave. But Thomas stayed in the dugout.

"It's not that I don't appreciate the fans' cheers, I do," he said. "But if I come out of the dugout, it could be interpreted as rubbing it in someone's face."

Tigers 11, Indians 10
Detroit, which got off to a 35-5 start last year and went on to win the World Series, completed a season-opening, three-game sweep of Cleveland when reliever Dave Von Ohlen walked three batters in the bottom of the 10th.

Shortstop Julio Franco's error allowed Detroit rookie Chris Pittaro to reach base to lead off the 10th. Pittaro took second on a sacrifice, and Von Ohlen intentionally walked Alan Trammell. Kirk Gibson's fly ball moved Pittaro to third.

Blue Jays 4, Royals 3
In Kansas City, George Bell blasted a mammoth home run on Royal reliever Dan Quisenberry's first pitch of the 10th inning to give Toronto its triumph.

For the second straight night, Blue Jays reliever Bill Caudill got the victory.

Red Sox 6, Yankees 4
Dwight Evans clubbed a two-run homer and had a sacrifice fly to help Boston complete a season-opening, three-game sweep of New York.

Roger Clemens pitched six innings for the victory and Bob Stanley finished up for a save. Dennis Rasmussen took the loss.

The triumph marked the first time since 1973 that the Red Sox have won their first three games of a season. The Yankees fell to 0-3 for the first time in 10 years despite a 4-for-4 performance by Dave Winfield, who homered in the sixth.

Brewers 8, White Sox 1
Ray Burris made a successful debut for Milwaukee, holding Chicago to five hits. The right-hander, acquired in a trade that sent Don Sutton to Oakland, was in command the entire way.

The host Brewers took control early, pouncing on former San Diego Padre Tim Lollar for three runs in the first inning. Paul Molitor and Robin Yount led off with singles and both scored on Mark Brouhard's double. Paul Houser then doubled home Brouhard.

Angels 4, Twins 3
In Anaheim, Calif., Darrell Miller scored the winning run from third base in the bottom of the 10th inning when slow Bob Boone beat the relay of a potential inning-ending double play.

Miller led off with an infield single against Minnesota reliever Rick Lysander and moved to second on a single by Bobby Grich and took third on a fielder's choice.

Boone hit a grounder that third baseman Gary Gaetti fielded and threw to second for a force, but Tim Teufel's relay was wide and bounced off first baseman Kent Hrbek's throat, allowing Miller to score.

California, which lost its first two games to Minnesota, scored twice in the ninth off Lysander, 0-1, to force extra innings.

Tom Brunansky and Mickey Hatcher hit solo homers for the Twins, the second of the year for both.

Celtics Pound Cavs

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Cavaliers, still excited about making the National Basketball Association playoffs, had better settle down soon and figure out how to beat the Boston Celtics.

Larry Bird scored 29 points Thursday night as the Celtics defeated the Cavaliers 121-115. The victory marked the 15th straight time Boston has beaten Cleveland, dating back to January 1983.

More importantly, the outcome ensured the Cavaliers will meet the Celtics in the first round of the playoffs next week. That series will be best-of-five.

Still, Bird says he is wary of his team's opening-round opponent.

"The Cavs are on a hot streak and they have a bunch of scrappy guys," Bird said. "There are other teams I'd probably rather play in the first round."

A crowd of 20,363 turned out in Richfield, Ohio, to watch the game.

Cleveland took a 98-95 lead into the fourth quarter before Kevin McHale sparked Boston's surge. McHale, who scored 25 points, made a key basket with 36 seconds left to keep the Celtics in front.

"Tonight at the end it was Kevin McHale," Bird said. "We have four or five guys like that that we can go to, and it makes a difference."

World B. Free scored 24 points for Cleveland, but did not score in the fourth quarter. Mel Turpin added 18 for the Cavs.

Boston's victory improved its record to 63-17, clinching the best record in the NBA this season. Cleveland, which lost for just the second time in nine games, slipped to 35-45. Two nights earlier, the Cavaliers earned a playoff berth for the first time since the 1977-78 season.

Rockets 125, Kings 123
Ralph Sampson sank a 10-foot shot with two seconds left to give Houston its victory.

Kansas City had tied it with 10 seconds left when Eddie Johnson made an 18-foot shot. The Rockets called timeout, and Sampson then took the inbound pass and worked inside.

Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon each scored 31 points. Olajuwon also grabbed 11 rebounds.

Johnson had 26 points and Mike Woodson 24 for the host Kings.

Jazz 145, Trail Blazers 107
Adrian Dantley scored 23 points, Jeff Wilkins 22 and Fred Roberts 20 as Utah won by the biggest margin in its 11-year history.

The victory enabled the Jazz to pull into a tie with Portland and San Antonio for the fifth Western Conference playoff spot.

Utah's previous biggest winning margin was 30 points over San Antonio during the 1979-80 season. But the host Jazz surpassed that mark against Portland by breezing to a 35-20 lead after one quarter, increasing the margin to 68-45 at halftime and upping the advantage to 105-67 after three periods.

Lakers 137, Warriors 130
Byron Scott and Earvin "Magic"

Johnson sank consecutive baskets to help Los Angeles fend off Golden State's furious rally.

The Lakers led by 17 points early in the fourth quarter, but Sleepy Floyd and Purvis Short helped pull the Warriors within 124-121 with 2:18 remaining.

But Scott, who had 22 points, and Johnson, who had 28, made their baskets to give the visiting Lakers their victory.

Floyd scored a season-high 33 points and Short had 20.

Mavericks 124, SuperSonics 80
In Tacoma, Wash., Mark Aguirre scored 30 points, and Rolando Blackman added 20 as Dallas took advantage of Seattle's injured front line.

The victory clinched the home-court advantage for the Mavericks in the first round of the playoffs.

Tom Chambers, normally a forward for Seattle, started for the first time in his career at center. He scored 13 points and grabbed a career-high 18 rebounds.

Nystrom Whips McEnroe

DALLAS (AP) — On the day Sweden's Joakim Nystrom shot the lowest golf round in his life, he also whipped defending Buick WCT Finals champion John McEnroe, the world's top-ranked tennis player, in straight sets.

"It was the greatest victory of my career, in tennis that is," said a stunned Nystrom. "My baby being born was another."

"I played my best match. I also played golf earlier and shot 92. It was my best score there also."

The 22-year-old Nystrom knocked off the 26-year-old four-time WCT Finals king 6-4, 7-6, 6-3 Thursday night and McEnroe said "I felt like my tennis shoes were glued to the floor."

McEnroe had made the finals in the tournament the last six years. "I felt flat," said McEnroe. "But Nystrom is a good player who makes you work. You have to be on top of your game. I played bad."

Nystrom, the world's 11th ranked player and 10th seeded here, will meet America's Tim Mayotte in a Saturday semifinal match.

Mayotte, the tournament's 11th seed, made surprisingly quick work of the favored Mats Wilander, fourth seeded and No. 4 in the world, 6-3, 6-1, 7-6.

His serve-and-volley game devastated the Swede, who had beaten him twice previously.

"It was the best match I ever played," said Mayotte. "I served well, and had very few errors volleying. I just didn't let him get it together."

Wilander admitted he was dazzled by Mayotte's serve.

"I just couldn't read it," Wilander said.

Tonight's quarterfinal matches feature 19-year-old Stefan Edberg, who upset his Swedish Davis Cup doubles partner Anders Jarryd in five sets, meeting No. 3 seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia.

In the other match, 17-year-old Aaron Krickstein, who knocked off Eliot Teltscher in five sets, goes against No. 2 seeded Jimmy Connors, who has all but recovered from back trouble which forced him to default in Chicago last week.

Facts About The

BIBLE

TRADITIONAL ETIQUETTE IN THE BIBLE!

MANY OF THE CUSTOMS PREVALENT IN BIBLE TIMES DIFFER FROM MODERN WAYS OF DOING THINGS! FOR INSTANCE, MEN AND WOMEN DID NOT, AS A RULE, ATTEND THE SAME PARTIES OR BANQUETS--IT JUST WASN'T DONE! IF, FOR SOME REASON, IT DID OCCUR, AND A WOMAN FOUND HERSELF BANQUETING WITH MEN, ETIQUETTE DEMANDED THAT SHE SIT UPRIGHT ON HER BANQUET COUCH RATHER THAN SPRAWL COMFORTABLY AS THE MEN DID! THIS WAS TO SHOW HER DEFERENCE TO THE OTHER GUESTS AS A SIGN THAT SHE REALIZED SHE WAS OUT OF PLACE--USUALLY, THE ONLY WOMEN AT A BANQUETTE WERE THE SERVANTS WHO WERE THERE TO ADMINISTER TO THE GUESTS' COMFORTS IN DRINKING AND EATING! IT IS RECORDED IN THE BOOK OF ESTHER, THAT THE QUEEN GAVE A BANQUET FOR THE KING AND HAMAN, (ESTHER 7:1) BUT, ALTHOUGH HISTORY DOESN'T STATE, IT IS ALMOST CERTAIN THAT ESTHER SAT UPRIGHT WHILE HER TWO GUESTS WERE MORE COMFORTABLY SPRAWLING ON THEIR RESPECTIVE COUCHES! THE ONLY AFFAIRS WHERE MEN AND WOMEN WERE "CALLED TO," WERE WEDDINGS, AND THERE, TOO, THEY WERE SEPARATE--THE MEN ON ONE SIDE, AND THE WOMEN IN A CIRCLE, ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE BANQUET ROOM WHERE (SHADES OF WOMEN'S LIB!) THEY WERE EXCLUDED FROM ALL WINE DRINKING AND DANCING!

Bishop Says Catholic Group Concerned Over Public Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) - The president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops said today that the bishops have increasingly tackled public issues - sometimes opposing Reagan administration views - because the issues have developed heightened moral implications.

Bishop James W. Malone noted that the bishops have directly challenged government policy on several matters, including its military involvement in Central America and nuclear strategies.

The bishops' 1983 pastoral letter condemning nuclear warfare was a "fundamental critique of the premises and policies of U.S. nuclear strategies," he said in a speech prepared for delivery to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

"We intended a basic moral challenge," he said.

The bishops plan to keep pressing that challenge, Malone said, as in their recently voiced opposition to funding the MX missile, which the Reagan administration narrowly got through Congress late last month.

Malone, of Youngstown, Ohio, also said the bishops oppose attempted military solutions in Central America.

"We reject the idea that a military solution to the problems of the region is either possible or desirable," he said, contending that the prime causes of trouble there are "long-standing injustice and human rights problems."

Touching on another nerve with the administration, which sees East-West rivalry over the region, Malone said:

"We do not deny the significance of regional and geopolitical factors, but we have consciously resisted giving primacy to the geopolitical interpretation, which views Central America as primarily an East-West problem."

Malone says that these matters, like opposition to the Supreme Court decision allowing abortion and pushing for more economic help for the poor, "have inherent moral dimensions."

Observing that "religion and politics have taken on a sharper edge in the 1980s," he attributed their increased interaction to the more morally pointed "nature of issues which now confront American society."

Whether the issues are laboratory fertilization, genetic surgery, "Star Wars" defense plans or fears of nuclear winter, assessing them is "not purely technical or tactical, but is filled with moral content," Malone said.

Given modern technological capabilities, he said, the key question often is "not what America can do, but what 'we ought to do' or 'ought never to do.'"

He said the situation makes it "impossible to formulate wise policy without asking what constitutes 'good' policy in a morally normative sense," and added:

"It is because that question is implicated in so many public policy issues today that the Catholic bishops enter the public policy debate with growing frequency."

He said it was the duty of churches and synagogues to relate religious-moral "values and principles to public issues," and not doing so would obscure the "human dimensions of public policy."

While critics sometimes object to religious engagement in public affairs, Malone said the U.S. Constitution's "separation clause" means that "religious organizations should expect neither favoritism nor discrimination."

He said "our constitutional system presumes the fact of religious pluralism, is committed to a guarantee of religious freedom, and at the same time expects religion to play a public role."

"We do not purchase religious freedom at the price of silencing religious voices."

Bishop Wounded In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - An American-born bishop suffered slight wounds when a group of assailants tossed a grenade at his jeep in northeastern Nicaragua.

Monsignor Salvador Schlaefter, a U.S. citizen who is bishop of the Nicaraguan city of Bluefields, said he was not sure who threw the grenade in the attack Thursday. The Sandinista government blamed Nicaraguan rebels.

Schlaefter, 65, a native of Wisconsin, spoke briefly with reporters when he arrived in Managua, his face scratched and his blue shirt spattered with blood.

He said grenade fragments caused flesh wounds in one hand and his lower back but his driver, Isaac Vargas, was not injured.

Schlaefter gave this account of the attack:

His vehicle was nearing the village of Las Brisas, 125 miles northeast of Managua, when several armed men lying in ambush by the roadside attacked.

"Apparently, a hand grenade hit the back of the jeep" and exploded. "I shouted at them, 'Silly! I'm the bishop of Bluefields,' and they apologized. I was very perturbed and angry. The jeep, out of control, plowed into the jungle by the roadside. I asked them if they would help me pull it out, and they said no. Then, they disappeared.

"I then picked up my bags and started walking along the road until I ran into army troops who had been alerted by the noise of the shooting. They took me to Las Brisas, where they have a base, and they treated me."

A communique from the presidential press office said Schlaefter "was wounded by shrapnel when he was ambushed by counterrevolutionary groups."

Schlaefter was asked if he thought his attackers were members of rebel groups battling the left-wing gov-

Young Graham Resembles Father But Ministry Differs

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

They're both tall and lean with those direct, penetrating eyes. Both have that strong jaw, the introspective smile. Both boost the Christian faith. But Billy Graham's son is doing it in his own way.

"We move in the same direction, but I can't be a little Billy Graham Jr.," says the famed evangelist's offspring and namesake, the Rev. William Franklin Graham III. "I just don't have that calling."

"God has called me into another area."

The elder Graham, now 66, and the world's most widely heard minister, serves the Gospel with his Bible-studded preaching, but his closely resembling son, 32, pursues the same cause with deeds.

"I want to be faithful, too," he said in an interview. "But I do it through social action. I never wanted to ride on my father's coattails."

Young Graham, admittedly something of a hellion until his early 20's, now is president of Samaritan's Purse, an unusual, innovative agency for enabling overseas churches to help their own poor and meet emergencies.

"Everything we do in crisis areas of the world is done through the local churches, and they get the credit for it, not some foreign agency," he said. "That lifts them up and strengthens the message on the scene."

Samaritan's Purse, named from the parable of the Good Samaritan who helped an injured Jew instead of passing him by like others, acts as a kind of broker or middleman between U. S. contributors and Third-World churches.

Supported by individual donors and congregations enlisted through young Graham's preaching visits, the interdenominational organization channels its funds or materials to overseas churches in zones of dire need.

They do the relief work themselves.

"It's not our program, but that of others," he said. "It's done for the needy regardless of faith, but it gives the churches in the areas the opportunity to show the love of God

Rev. W.F. GRAHAM III

in Jesus Christ."

Graham's organization, based in Boone, N. C., about 80 miles from his father's mountain home at Montreat, dispered $3.2 million last year in underwriting overseas church projects for the needy in about 100 countries.

Projects range from building houses — more than 200 of them — for Lebanese refugees to planting income-producing coconut trees on poor family plots in India to digging wells there, 2,000 so far, and plans for well-drilling rigs in Ethiopia.

"There's great satisfaction in doing something for people and seeing the results," Graham said. "It's evangelism, but not in the sense of my father's."

Young Graham said he found in a study of Jesus' miracles that they always stemmed from compassion. "He could not pass by the lame, the sick people and the hurt. He would always stop and do something about it."

Afterward, the accounts say, "and many believed," Graham noted, adding:

"He lifted them out of a ditch and they believed in him. I believe that's what he wants us to do today in a hurting world, to heal, feed and lift out lives from the ditch so they might believe in the person of Jesus Christ. "That's why all our work is through the local churches in the areas of need."

While the work of Samaritan's Purse is extensive, it stays lean itself with a staff of only about 20 and operating budget of $330,359 a year, less than 10 percent of its outlays in aid, a markedly low overhead.

Graham, one of five offspring of the globe-girdling evangelist and his wife, Ruth, including three older married sisters and a younger brother still in college, said they had ordinary, rural childhoods.

"We never hobnobbed with the wealthy," he said. "Mountain kids and farm people were my friends. My parents still live very simply in the same log house I grew up in."

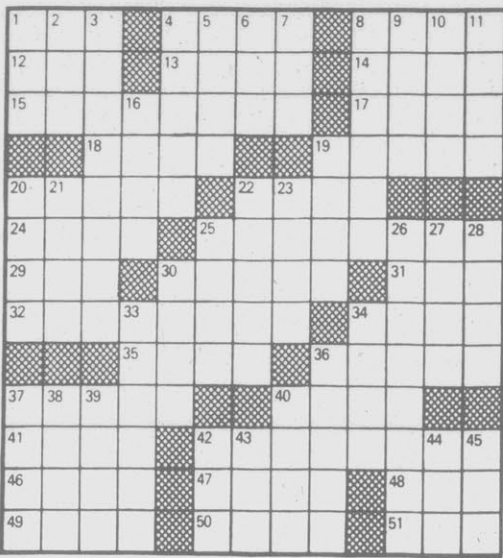

But in his late teens, Graham said he had an errant streak, that he smoked, drank, drove fast cars, earned a pilot's license and got kicked out of his first try at college for skipping classes and assignments.

'Space' Grandest Epic Of The Season

By FRED ROTHENBERG
 AP Television Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — The max-series "Space" takes viewers on an exhilarating mission that floats effortlessly amid fact, fancy and fireworks, recapturing the tingly drama that once surrounded those red, white and blue heroes who hitched rocket rides through the sky and our imaginations.

CBS will broadcast the $32 million, 13-hour television adaptation of James Michener's best-selling novel on five consecutive nights, Sunday through Thursday.

Warning: this is don't-miss viewing. So clear the week's calendar for the grandest commercial TV epic of the season.

Schmaltzy soap opera, where the only space is between the sheets, this isn't. It is, however, everything "The Winds of War" never was — intelligent, insightful and funny. Even the romance is mostly credible and purposeful.

And America's former love affair with space will be tapped with stirring scenes recalling the space-launched goosebumps from the early flights.

"Space" captures those times, while emotionally touching major themes from the 1950s, '60s and '70s: the fickleness of press and public about space, the public's insistence on making mortals who had walked on the moon into larger-than-life heroes, the civil strife during the Vietnam War, the civil rights struggles of blacks and homosexuals, and feminism and conflicts within two-career families.

The production doesn't go overboard on the science fiction. Special-effects junkies won't get their kicks until the fourth part, but the real NASA footage melds nicely with the artificial stuff, and Part Five's walk on the moon (actually the Paramount lot) is not cheesy at all.

"Space" will immediately grab you. The elaborate musical opening sets a momentous tone, alternating the violins of surrealism, the synthesizers of science and the rock 'n' roll of reality, all with pictures to match.

Then the character introductions, normally slow going, will hook you for good. "Space" is the story of five men, and their women, whose lives connect and are dominated by America's space program from the 1940s to the 1970s:

— James Garner, who gets top billing while the rest of the cast takes alphabetical turns in the credits, plays war hero Norman Grant who becomes a U.S. senator and cheerleader for the federally funded space administration.

Garner is solid as a rock as the politician who lets his principles get in the way of his power struggles. Grant's wife (Susan Anspach) is a strange one, a housebody who can't find happiness (sexual or otherwise) with or without Norman. Her character is never fully fleshed out.

— Bruce Dern, thoroughly likeable in a rare TV appearance, is Dr. Stanley Mott, an engineer who delivers key German rocket scientists to America at the close of World War II. Dern becomes nursemaid and confidante to these new immigrants and their big IQs.

— Dieter Kolf, played by the classy Michael York, is the featured German. Working out of Texas, then Alabama, his genius guides the space program and helps overtake the Russians and their Nazi braintrust.

— Harry Hamlin plays straight-arrow astronaut John Pope. Hamlin is the weakest link, mistaking John Glenn-type virtuosity for blandness.

No Animosity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There were no hard feelings between Loretta Young and producer Aaron Spelling after the Academy Award-winning actress withdrew from her role in an ABC movie and projected nighttime soap opera "Dark Mansions."

"Loretta Young will not be rendering services because of creative differences over the story," her agent, Norman Brokaw of the William Morris Agency, said Thursday in a statement.

Miss Young had been due to come out of retirement to begin work on the two-hour movie on April 22.

"The parting between Miss Young and (producer) Aaron Spelling was amiable despite the story differences," the statement said.

The 72-year-old actress had been scheduled to play the role of Margaret Drake, the matriarch of a Seattle shipping family in the drama.

Dr. Salk's Miracle

Thirty years ago today, Dr. Jonas Salk displayed bottles containing the first perfected vaccine against polio. Like influenza, polio is caused by a virus. The polio virus is extremely small: if one human red blood cell were two feet wide, a polio virus would be the size of a pinhead. In 1952, the United States had 57,879 cases of polio — the highest number ever recorded. Thanks to the Salk vaccine, and an oral one made by Dr. Albert Sabin, polio now is rarely reported.

DO YOU KNOW — Which American President contracted polio in the 1920s?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Frank Robinson managed the Cleveland Indians in 1975.

Bel Geddes Returning To 'Dallas'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A surprise announcement has thrown a new twist into the behind-the-scenes drama of "Dallas" — the CBS television series that specializes in cliff hangers and whodunits. Barbara Bel Geddes, who left the series two years ago after suffering a heart attack, will return for the show's eighth season this fall as the poised and distinguished Miss Ellie, a spokesman for Lorimar productions said Thursday. Lorimar, which produces the top-rated "Dallas" for CBS, hired Donna Reed last year after it seemed clear that Miss Bel Geddes would not return to the show. "Barbara all along had hoped to come back, and everyone had hoped so, too," said Bob Crutchfield, a Lorimar spokesman. "Donna knew this was a basically temporary situation all along, not knowing going in whether Barbara would recover enough to return." In the rankings for the official TV season that began last Sept. 24, "Dallas" and ABC's "Dynasty" both have identical 25.0 ratings but "Dallas" is ahead by 2 percent in its share of the viewing audience. Miss Reed, in an interview published 2½ months ago, indicated that she planned to stay on Dallas, saying "I feel comfortable with the character of Miss Ellie, so I hope that comes through."

they wanted me to replace Barbara Bel Geddes," Miss Reed said last September. "I thought it over and decided it was totally right. Miss Ellie was in the right age bracket, and she was the glue that kept everything together. Besides, she remained a farm lady, even though she was terribly rich. Coming from Denison (Iowa), I had always wanted to play a woman of the soil."

Director Sees 'Jedi' Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When "The Return of the Jedi" made its return to movie screens across the nation, one of the fans showing up to get another look at the third film in the "Star Wars" trilogy was its director, Richard Marquand.

"Now I've been able to take my son to see it," Marquand, 45, said in a recent interview.

"I have a photo of him at five months, sitting in Chewbacca's lap. Now he's three-and-a-half years old." Chewbacca was a friendly, gorilla-like creature in the film.

Directing the sequel to two of the most successful films of all time — "Star Wars" and "The Empire Strikes Back" — was an extraordinary challenge, the British-born Marquand said.

Producer George Lucas himself directed "Star Wars," released in 1977, and Irvin Kershner directed "The Empire Strikes Back," which premiered in 1980.

"I think it was very daring of George (Lucas) to have three different directors," Marquand observed. "It was also good showmanship. Each of the films has its own quality, reflecting the attitudes and aspects of ourselves."

Opening lead: King of ♦.

The trademark of most safety plays is that they cost a trick. That is a small price to pay if it is an over-trick at rubber bridge. At duplicate, however, that might be more than you can afford.

North-South were playing five-card major opening bids, hence South's one diamond opening. Specifically in this sequence, when you play five-card majors, the heart rebid is not a true reverse. North bid what he thought he could make.

West led the king of diamonds and declarer ruffed in dummy. In duplicate, you have no problem — you cross to hand with a high trump, ruff another diamond then try to draw trumps. When the suit splits 4-1, you quietly go down three! However, you should get an average score. Most pairs will be in four hearts and, since a 3-2 split is overwhelmingly more likely than a 4-1 division, every declarer should play the same way you did. After all, your play gives you an excellent chance to collect all 13 tricks, and you must strive to make the maximum number of tricks in tournament play.

At rubber bridge, though, it is foolish not to give up an over-trick or two to insure your contract. Since only a 4-1 trump break can harm you, you ruff the opening lead on the table and immediately duck a trump.

If trumps were 3-2, you have given up one over-trick. As the cards lie, however, the contract is secure. If West continues with diamonds, you can ruff on the board, draw the remaining trumps, then run dummy's clubs for two over-tricks. In fact, there is nothing the defenders can do to stop you from making 12 tricks should you choose to play for them. Isn't that much better than going down?

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of DOUBLES for penalties and takeout. For a copy of his DOUBLES booklet, send $1.85 to "Goren-Doubles," P.O. Box 611, Palmyra, N.J. 08065. Make check payable to Newspaperbooks.

Multimedia Says Purchase Offers Would Be Rejected

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Multimedia officials say their company is not being sold, despite an offer by Lorimar Productions for $61 a share.

Under South Carolina law, mergers must be approved by the holders of two-thirds of a company's outstanding stock, a Multimedia news release issued Thursday states.

"No one should assume that any transaction will occur" with Lorimar or an earlier $60 a share offer from a group led by former secretary of the treasury William Simon, the release states.

Bruce Thorp, an analyst with the brokerage firm of Lynch Jones & Ryan in Washington, D.C., said the South Carolina law is similar to a Michigan law.

"I'm not sure that it (the Michigan law) has always been very protective of the companies as it was designed to do," he said.

R. Cooper White, first vice president of Interstate Securities Inc. in Greenville, said a merger might not be possible because of the law, but Lorimar or other companies might be able to make a tender offer for any of the stock not controlled by management or the founding families.

The result, if enough stock were purchased, would be a takeover rather than a merger, he said.

Last week Multimedia rejected the offer from Simon's group, which was contingent on the sale of the newspaper operations.

Lorimar's and Simon's proposals were contingent upon arrangement of necessary financing.

"The management and the founding families have indicated no intention or willingness to sell Multimedia," the company's news release states.

In a letter sent to stockholders Wednesday, Multimedia Chairman Wilson C. Wearn and President and Chief Executive Officer Walter E. Bartlett said, "Founders and management have no interest in selling out their interest in Multimedia or in liquidating the company."

Multimedia senior management and the founding families, who have made a cash-and-bond offer valued at approximately $54 to buy the stock, control more than 40 percent of the 16.7 million shares of outstanding stock.

The stockholder letter characterized that offer as "a fair and relatively high price" for the stock.

White said the market value of the stock probably is $70.

Some stockholders are not pleased with the rejection of the Lorimar offer without management going to the board of directors, he said.

Friars Honor Six

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Rather, Frank Sinatra, Bill Cosby, Dustin Hoffman, Eddie Murphy and John Madden have been named recipients of Showbiz Best awards by the Friars Club, an entertainment industry organization.

Sinatra, 69, the "abbot" or head of the 81-year-old club, was named best entertainer for the third year running.

In balloting by the organization's 1,400 members and 600 show business journalists, the CBS Evening News was cited Thursday as the best national news program, and Rather, 53, its anchorman, was voted best national news commentator.

Cosby, 47, was named best TV performer, and his "Bill Cosby Show" tied with "Hill Street Blues" as the best television entertainment program.

Murphy, 24, was voted best film performer for "Beverly Hills Cop," and Hoffman, 47, best stage performer for his lead role in "Death of a Salesman."

Former Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, 49, was voted best TV sports personality for his CBS commentaries.

The Showbiz Best awards, now in their fifth year, carry no cash prize and there is no presentation ceremony, said club spokesman Al Rylander.

Easter Sunday Visitors At A North Carolina State Beach

There was a time not too distant past when only a few diehards visited North Carolina beaches before the end of the school year that ushered in the days of summer. Today, beach people are more adventurous — the first warm weekends of March and April see thousands heading for the beaches of southeastern North Carolina and the Outer Banks.

Another difference — one no longer encounters beach people predominantly from nearby areas of the state. At the beach at Fort Macon State Park on Easter Sunday, April 7, visitors from several lands were in evidence. There were Indians, their wives colorfully dressed in native costumes, sitting on blankets while their husbands and children played on the beach. Oriental and Arab nation students from N.C. State University were down for the weekend, and Spanish speaking youths banded together in lively groups. Young Marines from nearby Cherry Point were among the few who braved swimming in the chilly waters.

For the most part, visitors basked in the sun, searched for rocks and shells, or strolled along the beach. One couple, Ronald and Carol Gallion of Washington, N.C. said they had discovered some attractive specimens — "I'll use these to make some decorative items for my children and grandchildren," Mrs. Gallion commented. Serious tan seekers moved inland to warmer hollows within the sand dunes behind the beach. A few surf fishermen tried their luck in areas past the crowds, and college students tossed a football back and forth.

Each year more people are discovering the pleasure of North Carolina beaches in seasons other than the hot months of summer.

MARINES ON ROCKS . . . Two Marines stationed at Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station got in some off-duty exercise by climbing rocks in a breakwater at Fort Macon Beach. At left is Jeff Thomas of Childress, Texas, and Jack Byrd of Geneva, Alabama.

KITE FLYERS . . . Dancer-actor-singer Randy Jones of Raleigh, New York and Beaufort, and a friend, Cyndy Barker of Raleigh, took advantage of the ocean breeze to fly a red kite. Randy, trained at the N.C. School of Arts, Winston-Salem, is best known as the cowboy member of the former Village People music group of television and the movie, "Can't Stop The Music." Cyndy is a horticulturist.

A MOMENT'S PAUSE . . . Abigail Falger, a student at Carteret Technical College in Morehead City, and her friend, Rich Jablonski of Virginia Beach, Va., pause along the entry path leading to the beach. The two were trying to decide whether to stay among the sand dunes or go down to the beach.

THE VIEW IS WORTH THE CLIMB . . . Two young brothers, Jimmie Blalock, at top, and Jamie Blalock of Knightsdale, struggle up a soft sand dune to get a better view from the top. The lads exhibited the energy typical of youngsters by making numerous climbs up the slope of the dune.

THIS IS THE WAY IT'S DONE . . . Thee Lloyd, left, of Morganton, explains some of the techniques involved in surf fishing to Jou Yih-Liang of Taipei, Taiwan. Thee had just begin fishing. Jou is a student at N.C. State University majoring in nuclear engineering.
