School Boards' Authority Challenged

By MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Work on consolidating the Pitt and Greenville boards of education has come to a halt because the Consolidated Board of Education allegedly "has no legal right to function since the boards that formed it had no authority to do so," board Chairman Mark Owens announced, according to an assessment by the U.S. Justice Department.

"Because of changes in the electoral process and composition of both the Greenville and Pitt boards of education in the 1960s and 1970s that were not approved by the Justice Department, neither board is legally bound to function," Owens said at the board's monthly meeting Monday. "In fact, the Consolidated Board has no legal right to function since the boards that formed it have no authority." The Consolidated Board is composed of 12 members of the current Pitt and Greenville school boards.

"We have no authority, so there is no need to go forward if legally we can't do anything," he added. Owens adjourned the meeting shortly after his statement.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 requires governmental bodies get "preclearance," or approval, from the Department of Justice when adjustments are made in the number of members of a board or in the way board members are elected to office. When changes were made in Greenville and Pitt County under former administrations, the "boards did not get this pre-clearance," Owens said. He pointed out that "present board members had no part" in these changes.

The lack of a preclearance review indicates, in essence, that both the Pitt and Greenville boards may have been operating illegally since the changes were made, Owens said.

Eddie West, currently serving as superintendent for the two systems, said the allegations of illegal operation "should not have any effect" on the schools' operation. Both systems were open as usual this morning.

The adjustments in question include:

- A 1977 change in the composition of the Greenville Board of Education that was not submitted for review.

- A 1965 revision of the Pitt County Board of Education that increased membership from five members to nine.

- A 1965 amendment to the above that revised the terms of office of Pitt County Board of Education members.

- A 1971 revision of the membership and terms of the Pitt Board.

- A 1979 amendment to the 1971 revision that reduced the number of board members from nine to eight, the current number.

Owens told members that the county board's attorney received a request from an attorney representing the Concerned Citizens for Justice, a minority group that wants changes in the membership of the Consolidated board, to discuss "revisions in the (county) board that allegedly didn't have a preclearance review" by the Justice Department. The board's attorney, Owens and Pitt Superintendent Eddie West also met with lawyers representing the Department of Justice in Washington, and "came back with the feeling that the changes were made for the betterment of the school system" but that "the required preclearance had not taken place," Owens said.

Members of the Concerned Citizens for Justice told the Consolidated Board at its March meeting they wanted more representation on the board, members elected by school districts instead of at-large election, and a stronger affirmative action program in the consolidated school system.

According to school officials, the attorney for the North Carolina General Assembly that prepared the consolidation legislation received verbal approval from the Justice Department of the electoral process and board structure proposed in the legislation. The Department of Justice says it will not formally review legislation until it is acted on by a legislative body.

Letter To Emory

ECU Moving To Cut Pay

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University has moved to halt payment of Ed Emory's salary and the state has filed a motion to dismiss the suit brought by the former head football coach.

The motion to dismiss was filed this morning in Pitt County Superior Court by the attorney general's office, followed by the release of a letter by Emory attorney Marvin Blount which said that Emory's salary may be halted by the school.

"This is a clear case of them (the state) trying to delay a legitimate complaint," Blount said. He followed up that charge with one that Dr. Howell had written Emory threatening to cut off his pay unless the suit is dropped.

"We do not feel that this is the normal thing" in a case such as this, Blount said. "They have a duty to continue to pay his salary under the terms of the contract."

Dr. Howell, however, said that he did not say that. "He has misread my letter. I would not write him a letter threatening him if he did not drop the case," the chancellor said.

Howell, however, would not go into details of the letter, and Edwin Speas, special deputy attorney general, who is handling the case for the state, said that the letter was of a private nature and could not be released by the state. "If Mr. Emory wishes to release it, it's his prerogative to do so."

Blount then released to The Daily Reflector a copy of the letter Howell sent Emory, in which the chancellor states that Emory, in filing the suit, apparently violates the stipulations for continuancy of his salary.

Howell states that attorneys for the school advised him that contract provisions regarding salary and benefits only apply in the event of "mutual termination."

"Neither you nor the University viewed the decision to terminate your contract in December of 1984 as a mutual decision. Indeed, ECU believes that cause existed for termination of your contract. Consequently, you are not entitled to the (Please turn to page 7)

SWATTERS ATTACHED — Space shuttle Discovery's mission specialists, Jeffrey Hoffman, right, and David Griggs, work to attach the swatters on the end of the Canadian robot arm aboard the shuttle. The arm will be

'Walkers' Fix Tools To Rescue Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Working with great speed, two spacemen floated into Discovery's open cargo bay today and attached to the shuttle's robot arm crude "flyswatter" tools designed to save an $80 million communications satellite.

"Job well done," Mission Control commended them. "You can take a bow."

The unrehearsed work by astronauts David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman was the first step in a hastily arranged but well-thought-out plan to try to rescue the Syncom satellite.

Early Wednesday, Discovery's crew will close the 40-mile gap with the satellite, move in and try to snag a four-inch lever on the side of the huge rotating payload with holes cut in the plastic flap-like ends of the tools, which look like large flyswatters.

The lever is an on-off switch for electrical power, and was supposed to have tripped outward automatically when the astronaut deployed Syncom on Saturday. Without power, the satellite is useless.

Working in cumbersome $2.1 million space suits, Griggs and Hoffman had trouble at first as their tools, straps and other gear kept floating away at the end of tethers. After about 40 minutes they were well-adjusted to their outside environment and within 90 minutes they had completed strapping the tools to the arm. Mission Control had estimated the task would take more than two hours.

The "flyswatter" tools were crafted out of pieces of plastic, a window shade, tubing and other items scavenged from Discovery's cabin. Their shapes prompted Hoffman to dub the crew "the Swat Team."

The rescue exercise has extended the mission from five to seven days. (Please turn to page 8)

Public Hearings Scheduled On Two Pitt Ordinances

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday scheduled public hearings on proposed changes in the electrical inspections and solid waste disposal ordinances for 10 a.m. May 6.

Proposed changes in the electrical inspections ordinance include a new fee schedule which increases some fees — County Engineer Phil Dickerson told commissioners the increases should "raise about $4,000 a year" in additional revenue — as well as a requirement that "all permit fees shall be paid at the time the electrical permit is issued, prior to the commencement of the wiring ..."

Proposed changes in the solid waste ordinance would, among other things, prohibit scavenging from the 40-cubic-yard solid waste containers, and provide for civil penalties, to be paid to the county, for violations of the ordinance rather than the present criminal penalties.

In a report to the board comparing the cost of contract hauling of the 40-cubic-yard containers to county hauling, Dickerson said "considerable savings are realized by the county's operation of the solid waste hauling system."

Dickerson said that from April 31, 1984, through March 1, 1985, 6,948 loads were hauled to the landfill by county-owned vehicles and employees at a total cost of $186,104. The same 6,948 loads would have cost $324,263 — at $46.16 per load — under the old contract hauling con-

Pitt Development Leader Suggests Need May Expand For Second Industrial Park

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Creation of another industrial park in Greenville-Pitt County could be the way to go as far as drawing medically related industry to the area, a county Development Commission representative says.

John Chaffee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, raised the suggestion Monday in an appearance before the Greenville's Medical District Study Committee.

Chaffee was invited to the study committee's meeting to provide information on what the commission sees as the medical district's role in future development of industry in the county and city.

He told the committee past contact with company representatives considering a location in Greenville-Pitt County has indicated there is some interest in the area as a possible site for development of medical related industry. Chaffee said such interest would suggest that an alternative to the current industrial park may be needed in the future.

The existing park, located north of the Tar River on approximately 2,500 acres between N.C. 11 on the west and U.S. 264 on the east, is primarily occupied by heavy and medium industry. Most medically related manufacturing concerns, however, can be considered light industry, and as such, Chaffee said he feels representatives of such companies would be interested in a location other than the industrial park.

Chaffee also noted that contact with company representatives has shown the area will be viewed as more conducive to medical manufacturing rather than research. The majority of companies that have looked at this area have said they needed to be in the triangle vicinity to take advantage of advanced work in biotechnology. Chaffee explained, "To date ... what we're doing (here in terms of biotechnology) is small compared to North Carolina State University, Duke and Chapel Hill," he said.

While Greenville has been relatively unsuccessful in attracting medically related industry in the past, Chaffee said he feels that situation will improve when more is done to determine the Greenville-Pitt County niche in the scheme of medical development, and when intensive research on companies' cost factors and driving incentives in terms of location is completed.

Saying a lot of people both from in and out of the state underrate Greenville, Chaffee commented that the Pitt County Development Commission works continually to dispell some of the myths associated with the area. One such myth, that Greenville is inaccessible, will be dispelled when four-laning of por-

The scholarship is aimed at helping Pitt County students further their education at the school of their choice and further their awareness of conservation of natural resources.

House Panel OKs Tax Cut Package

RALEIGH (AP) — The House Finance Committee today approved a scaled-down version of Gov. Jim Martin's tax-cut package, including partial repeal of the intangibles and inventory taxes and elimination of levies on inheritances and gifts.

"We have accepted the governor's premise that there should be tax relief," said Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, chairman of a subcommittee that hammered out the omnibus bill Monday night. "We did not feel that we could reduce taxes to the extent that he recommended."

The bill was approved 37-11 and is expected to reach the House floor Thursday.

If enacted, the bill would save taxpayers $36.8 million in fiscal 1985-86, compared with the $70.3 million Martin says would be saved by approving his plan to eliminate the intangibles and inventory taxes and the sales taxes on food and non-prescription medicines.

The savings would be $132.8 million in 1986-87, compared to Martin's $258.1 million, and $189.9 million in 1987-88, compared to Martin's $362.3 million.

Some Republicans voted for the substitute bill, but others dissented and angrily complained that Martin's program — introduced in the House on Monday — hadn't been given fair consideration.

There was no immediate reaction from Martin. His press secretary, Tim Pittman, said the governor and senior staff members were reviewing the committee's bill.

The House bill would: — Repeal the intangibles tax on bank and insurance company deposits, but keep the tax on stocks and bonds.

— Grant a 25 percent inventory tax cut.

— Exempt food purchased with food stamps from the sales tax.

— Repeal the state inheritance tax, but retain the estate tax used to absorb the federal estate tax credit for state death taxes.

— Repeal the state gift tax.

— Eliminate the sales tax on funerals.

— Increase the state income tax credit for day-care expenses from $2,000 to $2,400 for one child and from $4,000 to $4,800 for two or more children.

The Burroughs Wellcome Fund has announced three Clinical Pharmacology Scholar Awards for 1985 totaling $750,000.

One award is being made to the University of Colorado Health Science Center on behalf of Dr. John Gerber for research into the role of prostaglandins in physiology and pathophysiology. He is studying the modulation of gastric acid secretion by prostaglandins, the relationship between renal prostaglandin production, renin release and the vascular effects of the diuretic, furosemide; and possible correlations between platelet functioning and vascular disease.

The second award went to Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine on behalf of Dr. James Lipsky for research on the mechanism of hypoprotrombinemia, a condition associated with some antibiotics that can cause serious, unwanted bleeding in patients receiving these drugs for infections.

The third award went to Vanderbilt University School of Medicine on behalf of Dr. David Robertson for research on the autonomic control of the cardiovascular system and how pharmacologic agents affect that control. He is currently investigating alpha-2-adrenoreceptor regulation in normal and hypertensive subjects.

DEAR ABBY: I invited some friends over for cocktails at 6:30 p.m. That afternoon one of my guests called to confirm the time. We talked a while, and just before she hung up, she said, "I'll come by early. Goodbye." I was so surprised, I didn't say anything, but it was too late anyway.

She was presumptuous to assume that she would be welcome to come early. And you lacked the backbone to call her back and tell her it would not be convenient for her to come early—which is what you should have done.

Is it acceptable in today's society for guests to inform the hostess that they will be coming by early? And how could I have avoided this unsettling experience?

You advised me to get into therapy, even though I said I couldn't afford counseling. You said, "You can't afford not to have it; call your local mental health facility—you'll be charged only what you can afford to pay."

Well, I went for counseling, and it really turned my life around. Now I realize that my husband did me a big favor when he left me because I met and married a loving, caring man whom my "ex" couldn't compare to.

Sometimes when it seems like the end of the world, it's really only the beginning.

Fallout

The cold war atmosphere carries with it certain kinds of fallout that have a worldwide impact.

Even the quest for knowledge is affected. It's a steep price to pay.

Just how broad the shadow cast by a cold war mentality is illustrated by its effect on a usually open scientific meeting of the Society of Photo-Optical Engineers wherein Defense Department rules almost wiped out their program of interchanging information.

This is no small thing. The open exchange of data on research, information and projections is all part and parcel of such symposiums. For one thing, it opens doors to new fields of study, perspectives and thought. It may provide answers which others have been seeking. Some of the new data offers launching pads for further investigation and might deter duplicative efforts which are costly in time and energy.

The reasons for stringent limitations on the free and open exchange are pretty plain: the Pentagon is worried unfriendly governments would be beneficiaries.

The unfriendlies are not the only ones handicapped by imposition of security measures. So, too, are the people wearing "white hats".

Unicorns

The Grinch — in wholly delightful accounts of unicorns having joined the circus in New York — is the humorless executive director of the N.Y. Consumer Protection Board, who messaged the president of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

"While we respect and appreciate the traditions of the circus and recognize that 'fantasy' may be a traditional element of circus advertising, we believe that your latest ad campaign is cruel, deceptive and legally questionable".

On the whole, the chief veterinarian of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's office in Albany is made of better stuff.

"Personally," he volunteered, "I don't mind calling them a unicorn." There were other words in his statement which included something about surrendering to whimsy, but by taking his words out of context we have it on good authority that the circus has four unicorns.

Who's to argue with a USDA veterinarian?

Since unicorns have been either extinct or invisible for ages, it is possible our authority gathered his information about unicorns from an ancient text, or has an inborn knowledge (maybe he's a throwback) of the unfamiliar.

Meanwhile, the circus world has been having a field day. Not since the era of General Tom Thumb, or the massive pachyderm known as Jumbo, has the Big Top enjoyed so much hype as that provided by four ... uh ... unicorns. A delighted news media has fallen in step and the Great Unicorn Debate was covered by earnest reporters, cameras, tape recorders, pens and pencils wielded by small armies of news people who took afternoons off to cover the story and, incidentally, go to the circus.

In time, it is possible that every road show with more than one ring will have its own unicorn, but those Johnny-come-latelies will only ruin the market.

An artist with a video camera caught fleeting seconds of our single-horned hero-for-a-day. The gentle and benign face wore a beatific smile. Only a wink was missing.

No extraordinary goat in this world ever had it so good.

Male Fashion Takes A Change

WASHINGTON — When machismo became fashionable again in the early 1980s, some of us worried that the average American male was overreacting to the emotional insecurity brought on by Jimmy Carter, the Iranian hostage crisis and the sexual revolution.

But the modern icon is not the grizzled and unkempt figure often played by Harrison Ford or Clint Eastwood. It may be, instead, the guy who models clothes for the advertisers in Esquire, Gentleman's Quarterly and M. These magazines and others like them are making a mint of the obsession that professional men have with fashion. There may be a number of explanations for this development, but it suggests that traditional macho style isn't what many men want after all.

What real men want became very unclear to us recently when an exclusive New York clothing store, Charivari, sold out of a new item created by Paris designer Jean Paul Gaultier: a skirt for men. Many New Yorkers, of course, have a taste for the outrageous, but this outfit looked more like a culotte with an apron in front than one of Prince Charles' kilts. Ostensibly, some people think there's a lucrative — albeit oddball — market for such outfits.

GQ's fashion editor says his magazine will "lampoon" the new style in an upcoming issue. "I don't think our readers would buy them," he adds, "but they would want to read about them."

Yet that interest alone is one of the telltale signs of the American male's new fascination with how he looks. Magazines like GQ and M may fill their pages with the writings of celebrity authors, yet a serious reader has trouble excavating their prose from glossy pages thick with French cuffs, Japanese blacks and grays, and tanned tosos. The readers of the so-called men's magazines are turning to fashion news and tips — evidently (given the increased volume of ads) to a degree some of us would be ashamed to admit.

Esquire's fashion-advertising pages, for example, have increased from fewer than 30 in 1980 to 250 last year; like Playboy, it publishes a fashion supplement. At GQ, the ad base last year was up 33 percent over 1983 (the magazine's circulation has more than tripled in the last five years, from about 200,000). In M's first full year (1984), about 33 percent of the magazine's pages were devoted to pitches for one piece of apparel or another.

Now there's a magazine for the under-30 crowd: Men's Guide to Fashion (MGF). MGF's April issue, which deals with, among other important matters, manicures for men, enjoyed a circulation of around 130,000, about half that expected by the end of the year. This magazine is for advertisers who want to cultivate future customers.

Professional man's obsession with the game of fashion, and the apparent financial success of magazines that cater to that fixation, stem in part from an affluence known mostly in New York, Los Angeles and yuppie places like them. Whether single or married, many of the men in those towns make so much money at a relatively early age that they can afford to dress like Jay Gatsby or some of the other high-rollers they once read about in English class or subsequently in personal, political, sexual or social beliefs.

John Dornan, executive director of the N.C. Association of Educators, immediately blasted that bill saying it could cut off all classroom discussion of history and literature. He pointed to a definition of psychiatric testing in the bill that included the words "a group activity" and said that phrase could be used to deny a teacher the right to discuss the origins of the Second World War or the messages behind Moby Dick. He also said that students could not take job aptitude tests with this kind of law in place.

When Rhodes heard of Dornan's objections he looked honestly puzzled. "I don't like the Gestapo tactics that are going on in our schools ...with regard to experimental testing and psychological tests regarding religious beliefs, politics and sexual behavior."

"A job aptitude test is not experimental," Rhodes said. "And I don't see how my bill would pertain to the classroom because that would be an open discussion and my bill only talks about private discussions" in which personal attitudes are elicited.

The second bill to raise a storm was the Basic Education Plan that has now passed the Senate. In public hearings on the bill, fundamentalist Christians repeatedly alleged that professional educators are trying to reorder American society and establish a "secular humanistic" state.

In arguing against the plan, Pansy Jones of Richlands told the House Education Committee that current curricula aims to "reprogram our students to accept, and be willing participants, in a new form of government which is better known as humanism or globalism." She added that children "are being taught to keep silent and accept and participate in actions totally against moral principles being taught them in family, friend or community environments."

One senator who sat through some of the hearings said he was baffled by the allegations about the plan and current teaching curricula. "When I was coming through the schools, this stuff they're complaining about was what everybody called getting a good education, being a sort of Renaissance man." Other legislators said Mrs. Jones and the other critics of the plan were overreacting. The Senate passed the plan by an overwhelming majority.

In the highly charged political atmosphere of the 1985 session, and with fundamentalists flexing newly developed muscle and their ideological opponents trying to stave them off, any issue as sensitive as education is likely to be argued in a highly emotional and often exaggerated manner.

Strength For Today

There is a duty resting upon every one of us to achieve a certain excellence of performance. If we cannot give a thing our best, let us not waste any time doing it at all. The old adage that a thing worth doing is worth doing well continues to be repeated because it is infallibly true.

Are you a clerk in an office? Some years ago a man began as a clerk in a railroad office and because he did his work so well he ended up as president of the railroad.

Work with diligence and conscience and you will become a marked man or woman upon whom the future smiles happily. You may look at the boss's big limousine and sigh. But if you will only keep in mind that excellence is the only ideal you need to pursue, then life will have its rewards for you — "full measure, pressed down, running over will men pour into your bosom."

Posture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers may not be able to legislate good posture, but it won't be for lack of an effort on the part of Rep. Frank Horton.

"All too often we have failed to take as seriously as we should the familiar, but all too easily dismissed, exhortation of every mother, father, grandparent and aunt and uncle: 'Sit up — mind your posture,'" says the New York Republican.

Horton has introduced a bill to promote "correct posture" throughout the nation. It is currently awaiting action before a House subcommittee.

His bill would not quite make it against the law to slouch. But it would clearly put both the Congress and the president on record against the bad habit.

His measure would designate May 1-7 as "National Correct Posture Week." It would also encourage President Reagan "to involve every American, through presidential proclamation, in getting back to basics in personal health care."

"It is entirely appropriate" for Congress to involve itself in such a matter, Horton said. He observed that physical fitness has been a national concern since the Kennedy administration.

He said his goal is for "a healthy, robust and self-confident citizenry." And you can't have that unless more people straighten up, Horton suggested.

"Of course, in any campaign for good posture, our focus must be on our youth," Horton said in a speech inserted in the Congressional Record. "The business of a strong body is not something obtained overnight. You have to start early and work at it."

Horton noted the effort already has the support of one interest group: the American Chiropractic Association.

"AWW GEE WHIZ, DADI...AMY CARTER'S FATHER LETS HER BREAK THE LAW!..."

Public Forum

To the editor:

Do you want your family to be strong? Of course you do. Then what are the marks of a strong family? Dr. Nick Stinnett of the University of Nebraska identified from a survey of 76 families five characteristics of strong families. Here is what he found:

1. Strong families spend a significant amount of time together playing, working, recreating and eating. While family members all have outside interests, they find time to be together.
2. Strong families have a high degree of commitment to each family member, as indicated in their ability to work together for a common cause.
3. Strong families communicate. They spend time listening and speaking to one another in conversation. During stressful times, strong families are thus able to get their feelings out in the open and find solutions to problems.
4. Strong families frequently give compliments to one another — compliments which are genuine and not superficial. Each family member tends to feel appreciated and loved.
5. Strong families have a high degree of religious orientation. This may be expressed in a variety of ways from disciplines of prayer and devotion at home, to church participation, to church-related community involvement. Not all families express it in the same way, but some type of religious orientation is present.

How can we define a strong family?

1. The strong family recognizes and respects differences in children.
2. The strong family consciously strives for a happy home. How parents and children alike need a refuge to come home to that is warm and joyful.
3. The strong family agrees on some rules — guidelines.
4. The strong family prepares the children to leave. They will grow up and leave.

Remember — strong families give their children happy homes. Is yours a strong family?

To the editor:
There have been a number of erroneous news reports in recent days that the 90,000-plus-acre fire in Hyde County began on Pungo National Wildlife Refuge. As you probably know, the report is false. The fire did not start on the refuge and was definitely not a result of any refuge activities. Although the N.C. Forest Service has attempted to make it clear that the fire had other origins, the rumors continue to spread. Any help you could provide to clarify this matter would eliminate a lot of rumors, hard feelings and possible law suits. We encourage you to verify this statement with the North Carolina Forest Service.

'Hate Groups' Get Warning In Neo-Nazi Case

SEATTLE (AP) — Charges against 23 reputed members of a neo-Nazi group, including a fugitive possibly linked to the killing of a Missouri state trooper shortly after the indictments, are a warning to those tempted to join "hate groups," an FBI official said.

The indictments disclosed Monday charge reputed members of The Order with the slaying of a Jewish radio personality, the killing of a group member, armored-car holdups that netted more than $4 million and several firebombings, officials said.

Sixteen of those indicted are in custody and the nine-month investigation has effectively neutralized the group, but "our perception is that there may be a lot of sympathizers," said Bill Baker, the FBI's assistant director.

The severity of federal charges should serve as a warning to extremists "who cross beyond rhetoric into action," Baker said Monday. "A warning is basic in this indictment ... that they should be careful not to become involved in the fringe of hate groups, because they can be drawn into the center."

Those in custody have been arrested on various charges in 13 states after Thomas Allen Martinez, 29, of Philadelphia, pleaded guilty to using counterfeit money and was persuaded to become an informant, according to court papers.

Six of those charged are still being sought and another is negotiating his surrender through his attorney, said U.S. Attorney Gene S. Anderson.

In Ridgedale, Mo., a man stopped by the Highway Patrol for a random traffic inspection Monday opened fire, killing one trooper and wounding another before fleeing. Authorities said he may have been one of those indicted here.

When pulled over, the gunman gave the name of Matt Samuels, an alias that has been used by David C. Tate, 22, of Athol, Idaho, who was accused along with five others of killing a member of The Order who disappeared, said Max Geiman, a spokesman for the FBI in Kansas City.

Arraignments were to begin Thursday and could take two weeks, said David E. Wilson, the assistant U.S. attorney who directed the grand jury probe.

Robert J. Mathews, the late founder of The Order, was accused in the June 18 killing of Alan Berg, who criticized right-wing groups on his KOA talk show in Denver, and in the June 1 killing of Walter Edward West, a reputed member of The Order who authorities believe may have been suspected of informing.

Mathews, 31, of Metaline Falls, died Dec. 8 in a fire ignited by FBI flares after he fired more than 1,000 rounds of ammunition from his waterfront hideout in a siege on Whidbey Island, north of Seattle.

In addition to the killing of Berg and West, other counts cited armored-car holdups that netted $3.3 million near Ukiah, Calif., on July 19, and $500,000 in Seattle on April 23; the making and passing of counterfeit money; and arson fires April 29 at Congregation Ahavat Israel synagogue in Boise, Idaho, and April 22 at a Seattle adult movie theater.

The indictment said The Order, also known as White American Bastion and Bruders Schweigen, German for silent brotherhood, was formed about October 1983 as a militant offshoot of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian, also known as the Aryan Nations, in Hayden Lake, Idaho.

Several of those indicted had been top aides to the Rev. Richard G. Butler, head of Aryan Nations, who has said the group shared the goals but not the methods of The Order.

All of those indicted were charged with violating and conspiracy to violate the federal Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act. Each count carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison, a $25,000 fine and confiscation of all assets gained through the criminal enterprise.

Four people were charged in the death of Berg and five in the killing of West.

The government will claim the proceeds of raids and arrests to date, Anderson said. They include $429,696.96 cash; title to 270 acres of land allegedly used for paramilitary training camps; 150 firearms, including 11 machine and assault guns; 39 vehicles; computers, scanners, citizens band radios; fragmentation grenades and explosives.

Missouri Trooper Killed In Traffic Check Shooting

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — Authorities searched trains and used dogs and infrared sensors today to comb 150 square miles of mountains for a reputed member of a neo-Nazi group suspected of slaying one state trooper and wounding a second.

The suspect, identified by police as David Tate, 22, of Athol, Idaho, was named Monday in racketeering and conspiracy indictments returned in Seattle against reputed members of the white-supremacist group known as The Order.

About 80 members of the Missouri Highway Patrol, county and local police and the FBI set up roadblocks, used infrared sensors from planes and tracking dogs in the Ozark Mountain country, said highway patrol Capt. Lee Thompson.

Authorities cut back the search early today and concentrated on preventing Tate from escaping the area, Thompson said.

"He's murdered an officer," said patrol Lt. Ralph Biele. "I can't see this man walking out of the brush with his hands up."

Search parties checked homes and other buildings in the sparsely populated area and authorities stopped trains that had passed through.

The manhunt began after troopers Jimmie Linegar, 31, of Reed's Spring, and Allen Hines, 35, of Branson, were shot Monday afternoon during a routine traffic check, Biele said.

The officers had stopped a 1975 Chevrolet van with a Nevada license plate and the driver showed an Oregon driver's license for Matthew Mark Samuels, 23, Biele said. A computer check indicated that was an alias used by Tate, who was wanted on an Oregon weapons violation, he said.

Heart Patient Improving

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors watching for signs of infection or worsening kidney damage in the latest artificial heart recipient said today that Jack C. Burcham was much improved following emergency surgery to stanch a leak that oozed blood with every beat of his new pump.

Dr. Allan M. Lansing also announced at a briefing that Burcham had lost more than 42 pints of blood — four times his normal body volume — since he received the artificial heart.

"I'm relieved to tell you things are much better now than they were at any time last evening," Lansing said today, one day after Burcham was taken back into the operating room to redo the stitches connecting his artificial heart to a major blood vessel.

"We feel very much relieved about his condition."

LaVonne "Jinx" Burcham, the patient's wife of 42 years, talked to reporters today for the first time since arriving in Louisville and said she and the rest of the family were "very thankful" that the second surgery on her 62-year-old husband was successful.

"Before yesterday's operation I was quite scared — again. After it was over, I think we were all very relieved," she said.

Lansing, medical spokesman for the Jarvik-7 heart implant team at Humana Hospital Audubon, said there were no signs of infection. He also said he did not yet have the results of tests on Burcham's kidneys, but "so far, things look OK."

He said Burcham was being given morphine for pain, particularly for the "aggravating condition" caused by the respirator tube down his throat.

O'Neill Says Soviet Leader Displays 'Sense Of Charm'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. says Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev insists that the Soviets bear no blame for the killing of U.S. Army Maj. Arthur Nicholson because he was "at the wrong place."

But the Massachusetts Democrat told an airport news conference late Monday upon his return from a visit to the Soviet Union that Gorbachev acknowledged the slaying was "regrettable."

O'Neill said the subject of the Soviet shooting of Nicholson last month in East Germany came up during a four-hour session last week between Gorbachev and four visiting U.S. congressmen.

He cited it as an example of Gorbachev's toughness, which he said was mixed with "a sense of charm."

A resolution expressing congressional outrage with the Nicholson shooting was due for action on the House floor today.

O'Neill said the timing of the debate, coming on the first day back for the 14-member bipartisan group of U.S. lawmakers who visited the Soviet Union, was coincidental.

Gorbachev was "articulate, energetic and tough," O'Neill told a news conference at nearby Andrews

Air Force Base, Md.

O'Neill and House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said they hoped to meet with President Reagan later this week to brief him on their week-long visit. They also said the full delegation would submit a report on the trip.

On the Soviet slaying of Nicholson, O'Neill said: "We have very firm views. They have very firm views — diametrically opposite. My feeling is there's been a cover-up" on the part of the Soviet Union.

Supreme Court Overturns Law Denying Voting Right

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down an 84-year-old provision of the Alabama Constitution that denied the right to vote to people convicted of crimes of "moral turpitude."

The justices unanimously ruled that the ban on voting was based on unconstitutional racial discrimination.

Led by Justice William H. Rehnquist, the court agreed with a federal appeals court in finding that the invalidated provision of the state's constitution was meant to and did discriminate against blacks.

Although the provision also discriminated against poor whites, Rehnquist said, it must be overturned as racially motivated.

"Its original enactment was motivated by a desire to discriminate against blacks on account of race and the section continues to this day to have that effect," Rehnquist said. It therefore violates the Constitution's equal protection guarantees, he said.

The provision had denied the right to vote in all elections to people convicted of felonies and some misdemeanors, crimes punishable by less than one year in jail.

Two state residents, Carmine Edwards and Victor Underwood, challenged the constitutional provision in 1978. Each man had been convicted of passing worthless checks, a misdemeanor.

The county registrars for Montgomery and Jefferson counties, respectively, refused to let the two men vote because their offenses were classified as crimes of moral turpitude.

Their ensuing lawsuit charged that disenfranchising residents for non-penitentiary offenses was a policy adopted to blunt black voting power.

A federal trial judge threw out the suit, but the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Edwards and Underwood. State officials then appealed to the Supreme Court.

In his opinion for the court, Rehnquist said the justices were not deciding whether the constitutional provision "would be valid if enacted today without any impermissible motivation."

The vote was 8-0. Justice Lewis F. Powell, who missed hearing arguments in the case while he was recuperating from surgery, did not participate in the decision.

tions of U.S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville is completed in 1987, and when a northwestern loop of U.S. 264 to decrease traffic flow through the medical district and city is in place.

"Construction of U.S. 264 is at a stage now that an industry coming into the area can see a very definite commitment toward improving transportation ... and if a company makes a decision this year to come in, it's going to be about a year before the plant goes into operation so its a matter of only 12 months before we've got highway access. Therefore, we don't view inaccessibility as being a handicap any longer. Also, we have seen a very definite improvement in air service from Greenville to both Raleigh-Durham Airport and Charlotte's Douglas Airport that makes us more accessible," Chaffee said.

Another plus for Greenville as far as attracting industry, Chaffee told the committee, will be opening of Greenville's new water treatment plant. The 10.5 million gallon capacity plant will be able to process approximately 2.5 million gallons per day more than the city's old facility. The new plant is expected to become fully operational within the next six to 10 weeks.

In addition, Chaffee said Greenville-Pitt County is a growing community, a community where industrial investments (primarily expansion investments of existing industry) have exceeded $20 million per year since the mid 1970s, a community with a work force productivity rate 10 to 15 percent more than other parts of the nation, and an area with many cultural and educational advantages.

"The area has a unique blend of characteristics that does set us apart," he said. Greenville-Pitt County is basically a new manufacturing center, a new medical center and "in many respects a new community," he said, adding that leaves area officials and planners a lot more room to avoid mistakes other cities have made in the past.

benefits ... at this point," the letter continues.

Howell included in the letter a form that Emory could sign to make the termination of contract "mutual," saying that if returned by April 14, 1985, Emory's salary would be continued.

Howell said this morning that Emory had returned the form unsigned.

Under the terms of the letter sent Emory, that would result in discontinuation of his salary effective immediately.

Since Emory's firing, he has continued to be paid. He is currently working with the Memphis Showboats of the USFL, allegedly as an unpaid volunteer assistant coach.

Emory's suit asks almost $1.2 million in actual damages, for mental and emotional damages and in punitive damages. It charges that Dr. Howell, along with Dr. Ken Karr, director of athletics, maliciously worked to deprive him of his position as head coach, costing him the opportunity for new employment in a similar position, as well as financial well-being.

In his motion, Speas claims that the court lacks the jurisdiction for the suit, that Emory fails to show that he should be reinstated at head coach, and that it fails to show interference for future employment, Emory's right to sign a contract, any intentional infliction of mental anguish, libel and slander, and civil conspiracy.

In a companion piece, the state also asks that the first part of the suit, titled "Introduction and Summary" be deleted from the suit, should it go to trial, as "irrelevant, immaterial and impertinent."

That part of the suit refers to Emory's 1983 team, which was written up in "Sports Illustrated" and ranked in the top 20, losing only to three teams, one of them the national champion Miami Hurricanes.

It also refers to ECU as "mirroring 'outlaw schools'" where only winning counts and that his 1984 losing season led to his firing.

The motion is scheduled to go before a judge in the civil section of Pitt Superior Court, and could come up at the next session, set for April 26. "The court normally hears motions on Fridays," Blount said, "and we will attempt to get it on the calendar then."

Should the judge dismiss the motion, the state would then have 20 days in which to respond to the suit, unless the judge allows a longer time. "I really don't see that they have any grounds for the motion," Blount said.

tract, Dickerson said, for a savings to the county of $138,159.

The fact that solid waste hauling is increasing at a rate of about 14 percent a year will require the addition of a truck and driver about every two years, according to Dickerson's report. However, Dickerson said management of the solid waste disposal system through enforced regulations, the use of compactors at certain locations and other management techniques can help slow the growth of the solid waste budget.

Board members were told that the average cost of the county's self-insured workmens compensation program over the past four years has cost $65,405 a year. Total premiums paid during the past four years has amounted to $412,534. With total refunds and discounts received amounting to $126,335, and projected refunds of 24,578, the net premium cost for the past four years amounts to $261,619, County Manager Reginald Gray explained.

In other business Monday, commissioners: presented a resolution congratulating Mrs. Jean Creech, a guidance counselor at Rose High School, for being named North Carolina and National Secondary Guidance Counselor of the Year — the first North Carolinian ever to receive the national award; appointed Harold L. If you want more muscle, you can use your good name or your credit record to qualify for a line of credit up to $50,000 with LineOne.

Or you can use the equity in your

Either way, with LineOne or with LineOne Equity, you pay a lower rate than with other forms of credit because the rate's based on NCNB Prime.*

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a small gain today as investors studied conflicting signals on the business outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose .45 to 1,267.23 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers took a slight lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Stock prices have been nudging ahead for the past week, aided by falling interest rates in the credit markets.

Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, rose about $2.50 for every $1,000 in face value in early activity today.

But analysts said confusion persisted on Wall Street over whether the economy was growing strongly or losing momentum.

Today the government reported that housing starts registered a stronger-than-expected 16.2 percent increase in March. Building permits, regarded as a good indicator of future construction activity, rose 10.9 percent.

However, another key measure of the economy, industrial production, was less upbeat. It rose 0.3 percent last month, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Among today's early volume leaders, International Business Machines gained 1/8 to 129 3/4; American Telephone & Telegraph dropped 1/8 to 21, and Raytheon was up 3/4 to 44 1/2.

E. F. Hutton Group, which reported higher first-quarter earnings, gained 1/4 to 35 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.10 to 1,266.78.

Advances outpaced declines by about 4 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 80.66 million shares, against 86.22 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained .23 to 104.87. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .91 at 231.39.

The innovative thinking that developed the "flyswatter" has helped astronauts convert bad situations into good on many missions.

"We will once again have demonstrated the flexibility of the manned system, whether we succeed or not in this," said flight director Randy Stone. "We are going to give it our best effort. Obviously, there are many possibilities that this is not the problem, but this is the only thing we can do anything about. An action like this does have a lower probability of success than we normally go into an exercise with."

"Our ingenuity people have been working overtime," Mission Control's Bob Springer told the astronauts Monday as he sent them instructions on how to make the tools.

Hoffman and Griggs were selected for the spacewalk because they had trained in case an emergency sent them into the cargo bay to stow or unstow the robot arm and open or close a satellite sun shield, which were considered the most likely contingencies.

Court Upholds CIA Secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today gave the CIA practically unlimited power to keep its intelligence sources secret.

By a 7-2 vote, the justices said it is up to the spy agency to specify who is an intelligence source protected from disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act.

The court overturned a ruling that in some cases — such as those in which the agency merely is trying to avoid public outrage — could have forced the CIA to reveal its sources.

The court threw out a ruling that could have forced the CIA to disclose the names of researchers who took part in a notorious program in the 1950s and 1960s involving brainwashing and experimental drugs.

"Congress intended to give the director of Central Intelligence broad power to protect the secrecy and integrity of the intelligence process," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in his opinion for the court. "The reasons are too obvious to call for enlarged discussion."

Without such protections the agency would be virtually impotent.

In other cases, the justices ruled that Indian tribes may tax mineral, oil and gas leases on tribal lands without the federal government's approval.

By a unanimous vote in a case involving Navajo lands in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah, the court said the imposition of such taxes do not require approval by the secretary of the Interior.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the "federal government is firmly committed to the goal of promoting tribal self-government." He added that "power to tax members and non-Indians alike is surely an essential attribute of such self-government."

The CIA case involved a program with the code name MKULTRA in which some individuals unwittingly were administered LSD and other drugs and at least two persons died because of the experiments.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals

here ruled in 1983 that the CIA may not refuse automatically to disclose the names of researchers involved in the research program.

The agency's desire for secrecy appeared to be an attempt to avoid a public outcry, the appeals court said.

But today, Burger said the ruling "overlooks the practical necessities of modern intelligence gathering."

It is not necessary for the CIA to show that it could not obtain the information without protecting the secrecy of the sources, Burger said. Also, he added, the CIA is not required to prove that the sources are spies whose identities normally are confidential.

"Congress simply and pointedly protected all sources of intelligence that provide, or are engaged to provide, information the agency needs to perform its statutory duties with respect to foreign intelligence," Burger said.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, in an opinion joined by Justice William J. Brennan, said the ruling went too far.

The court's opinion "thwarts congressional efforts to balance the public's interest in information and the government's need for secrecy," Marshall said.

A congressional committee and a presidential commission investigated MKULTRA in the mid-1970s, shedding light on numerous alleged abuses.

Steel Firm Files For Reorganization

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., among the nation's 10 largest steel makers, announced today it would file for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy law.

The company's directors earlier had voted to file under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code, according to a source close to the company's failed effort to win concessions from creditors owed $500 million.

Trading in the company's stock was suspended today because an announcement by the company was imminent, the New York Stock Exchange said.

The directors' vote reportedly came Monday as the United Steelworkers continued to refuse to grant new concessions unless the company's bankers also agreed to shoulder some of the company's financial burden.

The source said the company would file today under Chapter 11.

The 10,000 USW members who work at nine Wheeling-Pittsburgh plants in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio previously conceded more than $100 million in wages and benefits to help keep the company afloat. Amid the latest crisis, their negotiators agreed to an additional $126 million in concessions over the next two years.

Hagler KO's Hearn's In The Third Round

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It was one of the most hyped fights in history. It lived up to every superlative — starting with "Marvelous."

Marvelous Marvin Hagler, shocking Thomas Hearn's with a lightning-and-thunder assault Monday night, retained his undisputed middleweight championship and sent Hearn and his dreams of four titles cartwheeling into oblivion.

Hagler began at Hearn's midsection. Within a minute, he was unleashing bombs to the challenger's head.

Blood from a cut between Hagler's eyes soiled his face and Hearn's gold trunks. But still, Hagler waded in, staggering Hearn's in each of the first two rounds.

Early in the third round, the blood was gushing from the cut on the bridge of Hagler's nose. Referee Richard Steele signaled time out, waved Hagler back to his corner and summoned ring physician Dr. Donald Romeo.

"I had to get a medical opinion on the cut," Steele said. "The doctor stated to me that the cut wasn't that bad because the blood was not blocking his vision."

Steele waved the fighters together again and Hagler resumed his assault, finally sending Hearn sprawling with a right to the jaw.

Hearn struggled to his feet at the count of nine. Steele cleared Hearn's gloves. There was nothing he could do about the challenger's eyes. They were cloudy and glazed, to go with rubbery legs.

"He was not responding," Steele said. "I didn't ask him any questions. I knew that he'd had enough. ... Dusting the gloves off is just routine. But at the same time, I was taking inventory."

And he found nothing left in Hearn's arsenal. Two minutes and 1 second into the third round, Steele waved the fight to an end.

With his 51st knockout, Hagler improved his record to 61 victories against two losses and two draws, while handing Hearn only the second loss of his 42-fight career.

And Hearn's dream of ultimately winning four championship belts was dealt a blow as brutal as the one that jangled his brains.

Hagler and Hearn had railed at each other during months of prefight promotion. It was going to be hard to live up to the simple yet awesome claim that this was to be "The Fight."

But it was. The two fighters whaled away at each other for eight of the most intense minutes in the sport's history. "I haven't seen that much action in three rounds, ever," said Steele, a referee for 15 years.

Roughly 2 million fans saw it worldwide, more than the record 1.6 million who saw the first Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight. There is a good chance it will net more than the record $22 million which Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney brought in three years ago.

"We gave the people what they deserved, what they paid their money for," Hearn said. "It was one damn good fight. But it doesn't stop here. If it happened once, let's do it again!"

Hagler's dream remains very much alive. He is chasing Carlos Monzon's record of 14 successful middleweight championship defenses. This was his 11th. "Hopefully, we can knock on the door of history," Hagler said.

Hearn, the World Boxing Association welterweight champion before he relinquished that share of the crown to Sugar Ray Leonard in his only other loss, remains the World Boxing Council super welterweight champion.

He had dreamed of taking Hagler's belt, then going after the one held by Michael Spinks, the undisputed light heavyweight champion.

"I was picturing myself with four belts around my waist, my chest, my neck, my legs," Hearn said with a beatific smile. "How in the hell was

I gonna walk?"

He couldn't — not after Hagler was finished with him. He had been standing at the end, but he had to be carried back to his corner like a sleeping child by a tuxedoed member of his entourage. It was 45 minutes before he was sufficiently recovered to appear in public again.

"I just thank the Lord for letting me come out not being damaged in any way," Hearn said. "I still have my proper senses."

"I don't take defeat easily. I have to give Marvin respect, proper respect, for being a great champion. The man has not held the title eight years for nothing."

"I was looking to reach greatness, to make history. It hurts...I always seem to reach the big fights and it always seems to be a problem."

The 5-foot-9½ Hagler, with a 75-inch reach, was noted for being a slow starter. A big question was whether the shortening of the fight from 15 to 12 rounds at the WBC's insistence would give Hagler enough time to break through the 78-inch reach of the 6-1 Hearn's powerful left jab and survive the challenger's knockout right.

Hearn, despite his predictions of a third-round knockout, had been expected to keep Hagler at arm's length for the first few rounds before going for the stopper.

He never got the chance. Hagler fairly flew at Hearn's midsection and suddenly Hearn, his jab rendered all but useless, was trading bombs with Hagler.

"I started out slugging because I had to," Hearn said. "It was there. It presented itself. Marvin started running in and I had to protect myself. I had to show Marvin that I deserved some respect."

"Marvin was in there to make me back up, to make me run, to show me that he was a much bigger man than I was. But I was there to show him that it's not true. That's why I started out punching."

"I figured I had to take some punches in order to give some," Hagler said. And by the middle of the first round, he had taken Hearn's best. He'd been jolted a few times. He'd been cut. But he hadn't been slowed.

"Once I see blood, I turn to that bull," Hagler said. "That's when I knew I had to get serious and get it done quicker."

"I have to admit Tommy took some good shots in the opening round. But I felt him kind of tiring in there. In the first round I think he threw everything at me ... but I showed him I could take his good right hand. I wasn't afraid of that."

Hagler won that round on two of the three judges' cards. He won the second one 2-1 as well. Then he won it all.

"I knew I had him in the third round," Hagler said, "because he went back (to his corner) a little slow in the second."

Then, with the ego-tripping of someone who has done exactly what he said he would do, Hagler added: "He can't count over three, anyway."

Bandits Dig Gold

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — John Reeves passed for 292 yards and one touchdown, and Gary Anderson ran 1 yard to score his 14th TD of the season Monday night to lead the Tampa Bay Bandits to a 33-17 United States Football League victory over the Denver Gold.

Greg Boone and Ricky Williams also ran for touchdowns as the 6-2 Bandits won for the fifth time in their last six games to keep pace with Eastern Conference co-leader Birmingham.

The loss snapped Denver's three-game winning streak, but the 5-3 Gold remains atop the Western Conference standings along with Houston. Shutout in the first quarter when Denver took a 3-0 advantage on Brian Speelman's 22-yard field goal, Tampa Bay scored on four straight possessions in the second period to build a 20-3 halftime lead. The Bandits' domination stopped there, though, as the Gold roared back with a pair of third-quarter touchdown drives directed by backup quarterback Bob Gagliano, who replaced injured starter Vince Evans.

Gagliano — taking over after Evans dislocated a finger on his right hand — tossed a 7-yard TD pass to Marc Lewis 2:59 into the period. Eight minutes later, the Gold cut their deficit to 20-17 on Bill Johnson's 23-yard run.

Denver missed out on an opportunity to tie the game, however, when Speelman — who also failed on field goal attempts of 42 and 54 yards — launched a 39-yarder that sailed wide right with 12 seconds left in the third quarter.

GC's Hicks To Campbell

BUIES CREEK — Cyndi Hicks of Greene Central has signed a grant-in-aid to play basketball with the Lady Camels of Campbell University.

Hicks, a 5-9 guard, was recently named honorable mention on The Associated Press all-state team and second team All-East. She is among four recruits inked by Coach Wanda Watkins and averaged 19.7 points per game in her senior season with the Lady Rams.

She joins 5-7 guard Tonya Colwell of Clinton, 5-8 wing Denice Ford of Greensboro and 6-1 forward Monika Krause of Fayetteville.

"I think we're very fortunate to bring in the quality of players we've signed," Watkins said. "They're also excellent students and young people. They've all been honored with post-season awards, and I'm sure more honors will be coming their way. This possibly could be our best recruiting class ever, but only time will tell."

Smith Flips Over New Deal

By The Associated Press
Acrobatic Ozzie Smith occasionally does front flips and back flips on the ballfield when he's happy.

So when baseball's best-fielding shortstop signed a four-year contract extension that will pay him more than $2 million per season, he found another way to celebrate.

He hit a home run. For only the eighth time in his eight-year career. "It put a little icing on the cake," Smith said Monday night after his home run helped the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos 6-1.

Earlier in the day, Smith, who was in the final year of his contract, ended rumors of a possible trade when he signed the rich extension. Hours later, in the sixth inning of the Cardinals' home opener before 42,986 fans, he homered off Montreal reliever Dan Schatzeder.

Ironically, Smith's last home run came last year during the Cardinals' home opener. "That's just the way it worked out," he said.

In other National League games, San Diego bopped San Francisco 8-3, Pittsburgh halted New York 4-1, Los Angeles beat Houston 5-3, Cincinnati held off Atlanta 9-8 and Chicago nudged Philadelphia 2-1.

The Cardinals had two reasons to celebrate Monday night. Besides Smith's home run, Bob Forsch scattered eight hits in a strong performance.

Forsch missed half of the 1984 season because of back surgery, and his effort against the Expos marked his first complete game since he pitched a no-hitter against Montreal on Sept. 26, 1983. "So many people have written Bob Forsch off, but he showed tonight that he can throw, not only throw but throw effectively," Smith said. "Anything we get from him is gravy."

Forsch threw 100 pitches and did not walk a batter in winning his first decision of the year.

"I didn't really plan on going nine innings when I was coming to the ballpark. I was just hoping for good, solid stuff," said Forsch, 35. "I didn't have to throw a lot of pitches. I had good location. That's the most important part."

Mike Fitzgerald had an RBI single for Montreal in the fifth before the Cardinals struck for three runs in the bottom of the fifth and three more in the sixth.

Bill Gullickson, 1-1, walked Mike Lavalliere on four pitches to start the fifth and Smith followed with a single. Forsch advanced the runners with a sacrifice and Tommy Herr cracked a two-run single. Terry Pendleton's second of three hits in the game later drove in Herr. Smith homered in the sixth after the Cardinals had already scored twice.

Gullickson, who pitched seven scoreless innings against Cincinnati in his first start of 1985, left the game after yielding a leadoff single to Jack Clark in the sixth.

"He had good stuff, but he didn't have real good stuff," Montreal Manager Bob Rodgers said. "If Bill Gullickson pitches five innings without a strikeout, you know he's not at his best."

Padres 8, Giants 3
Carmelo Martinez, taken off the disabled list earlier in the day, drilled two home runs, including a grand slam, to help defending NL champion San Diego win its home opener.

Martinez connected for his first career slam in the seventh inning off reliever Greg Minton. In the fourth, Martinez homered after Terry Kennedy belted a two-run shot off Atlee Hammaker, 0-1.

It was the first time the Padres had hit consecutive home runs since 1979, when Kurt Bevacqua and Dave Winfield did it.

A crowd of 54,490, the largest ever to watch a Padres' regular-season game, saw Eric Show limit San Francisco to two runs on three hits over seven innings. Show is now 2-0 with both victories coming against the Giants.

The only damper of the night came when San Diego first baseman Steve Garvey dropped Bob Brenly's foul pop in the ninth inning for an error. Garvey had gone a major-league record 193 games at first base without a miscue.

Dan Gladden drove in all three San Francisco runs with a double and a single.

Pirates 4, Mets 1

Mike Bielecki, a rookie starter, and John Candelaria, a veteran who has been turned into a reliever, combined to end New York's season-opening, five-game winning streak.

Bielecki, the minor league pitcher of the year in 1984 when he was 19-3 at Class AAA Hawaii, went 6 2-3 innings. Candelaria then took over and earned the save.

Tulane University Senate Votes To Cut Basketball

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Tulane University Senate has voted to abolish men's basketball and to study whether the select private university should continue in big-time football and baseball.

The action came in the wake of charges that some members of the basketball team had been involved in point-shaving, drugs and illegal payoffs.

The senate vote on Monday ratified two recommendations by university President Eamon Kelly. The school's Board of Directors meets on Thursday to make the final decision on both matters.

The vote came hours after two basketball players, a convicted bookmaker and an alleged go-between entered pleas of innocent to charges of conspiracy and sports bribery in connection with two home games allegedly rigged in February.

Players David Dominique and John "Hot Rod" Williams, along with Roland Ruiz, 48, and Craig

Bergeron, 23, pleaded innocent before District Judge Alvin Oser.

Kelly said he supports varsity athletics as a valuable part of a university education, but the price can be too great.

"I am committed to such participation only in so far as it complements — not compromises — the central mission of Tulane, which is teaching, learning, and research and only insofar as it does not undermine institutional values of honesty, fairness, and respect for the principle of rule by law," Kelly said.

"It is essential that the university demonstrate beyond any doubt that it will not wink at sports corruption operating within it and will not tacitly condone such corruption operating outside it."

Viewers Make TV Choices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a totally unscientific poll, CBS' "Cagney & Lacey" was named the best quality drama series and NBC's "The Cosby Show" was named the best quality comedy series.

The key word was quality. The poll was conducted by Viewers for Quality Television, a grass-roots organization formed last fall to encourage better television.

The group was put together by two women who have never met. Donna Deen lives in Plano, Texas, and works in a real estate office. Dorothy Swanson is a housewife with three children who lives in Hillsdale, Mich.

"Dorothy read about me in a Detroit newspaper when I was conducting a campaign to boost the ratings of 'St. Elsewhere' in 1983," said Ms. Deen in a telephone interview. "Dorothy sent me a letter of encouragement and told me about her campaign to save 'Cagney & Lacey'."

"We found we liked the same shows and we got to wondering if there were other people out there who also supported quality television. We organized VQT last Deember and we now have about 800 members around the country."

Mrs. Swanson said by telephone, "What we're trying to accomplish is involving viewers of quality shows in the decision-making process at the networks. We feel the networks rely exclusively on the Nielsen numbers, with the exception of NBC. We want viewer participation and we want the networks to be more aggressive in discovering the views of the public."

The results of the First Annual VQT Awards:

Best quality drama series — CBS' "Cagney & Lacey;" Best lead actress, drama — Sharon Gless, "Cagney & Lacey;" Best lead actor, drama — Daniel J. Travanti, NBC's "Hill Street Blues;" Best supporting actress, drama — Veronica Hamel, "Hill Street Blues;" Best supporting actor, drama — Bruce Weitz, "Hill Street Blues;"

Best quality comedy series — NBC's "The Cosby Show;" Best lead actress, comedy — Shelley Long, NBC's "Cheers;" Best lead actor, comedy — Bill Cosby, "The Cosby Show;" Best supporting actress, comedy — Rhea Perlman,

"Cheers;" Best supporting actor, comedy — Nicholas Colasanto, "Cheers" (Colasanto died earlier this year.)

Ms. Deen said Viewers for Quality Television sent out 534 ballots and got 190 back.

In some categories the vote was very close, she said. "Cagney & Lacey" edged out NBC's "St. Elsewhere" by only six votes. Betty Thomas, also of "Hill Street Blues," trailed Veronica Hamel by just several votes. For lead actor in a drama series, second place was a virtual tie between William Daniels and Ed Flanders of "St. Elsewhere."

"Many members wrote that they had a very tough time choosing a favorite among favorites," she said.

Ms. Deen said the group's aim was to encourage viewers to write letters to the networks and advertisers in support of quality television.

Beatty Wins 'Reds' Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Beatty, who directed and starred in "Reds," won an arbitration decision requiring ABC-TV to use an uncut version of the Oscar-winning epic film about American journalist John Reed when it airs on television.

The network had planned to cut about 10 minutes, or 5 percent, from the 200-minute movie to fit it into prime-time scheduling on April 28 and 29. But the ruling by entertainment attorney Edward Mosk on Monday said Beatty had the right to the final cut of the 1981 film.

Beatty had been unable to persuade the network to run the full version, so he sought arbitration.

"He concedes they have the right to cut the picture for censorship reasons" such as nudity and language, "but that is not the issue here," said Beatty's attorney, Burt Fields.

"His position was you can't cut movies like sausages to fit preconceived time slots," Fields said.

An ABC-TV spokesman said the film won't run on the scheduled dates, but made no further comment to the Los Angeles Times, which contacted him.

Fields said Beatty insisted that the motion picture would have been altered significantly by the proposed cuts.

Beatty won an Academy Award as best director for the movie, which told the story of Reed's involvement with American socialism and the Russian revolution.

Offer Rejected

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leonard Goldberg, who produced some of ABC's most popular programs, including "Charlie's Angels" and "Hart to Hart," after he left the network in 1969, said he and the network might work together again some day but not just now.

Goldberg said Monday that he turned down an offer to rejoin the third-place network and try to rescue its floundering programming schedule.

 2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
 4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Look around for an extra chance. More often than not, to combine more than one line costs nothing. Consider this example.

North is on the borderline for a jump to three spades. Because of his concentration of strength in spades, his hand contains a lot of losers, so he elected to take the conservative path and raise to only two spades. South was not sure that his partner had four-card spade support, so he made the most descriptive rebid and North knew exactly where he wanted to play.

To the first trick declarer played the seven of clubs from dummy and captured East's nine with the king.

Declarer drew three rounds of trumps ending in hand, and it seemed that the contract would hinge on either a 3-3 club split or finding the ace of hearts with West. As you can see, neither of these chances were to materialize, but South found yet another arrow in his quiver.

He led a low club and inserted the table's eight, losing to East's jack. Back came a diamond. Declarer won in hand with the king and took the precaution of cashing the ace of diamonds before testing the clubs. When West showed out on the next lead, declarer rose with the ace and returned a club, sluffing his losing diamond from hand. As it happened, East had been stripped of all side suits, so when he won the fourth club he had to lead a heart up to the king. Declarer thus lost only one heart.

What if East still had a diamond to return after being thrown in with the club? Declarer would ruff and lead a heart, and the contract would still be made if West had the ace of that suit. Declarer's foresight in cashing the second diamond simply increased his possibilities of making the contract at absolutely no cost to himself.

Don't Fence Me In

Despite protests from animal-rights groups, the roundup of wild horses on the western ranges may be quite extensive this year. Mustangs like these have roamed the open ranges for almost 400 years. This small, hardy breed of horse is probably descended from the first horses in North America — brought here by the Spanish explorers. The word "mustang" is derived from the Spanish word "mestenos" meaning ownerless or strayed.

DO YOU KNOW? — What breed of horse has a reddish coat with black or brown "leopard" spots?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Tortoises belong to the animal classification called reptiles.

Survival

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Angela Lansbury says she survived "a succession of stinkers" in the movies to stage her latest acting comeback, as the star of a television serial.

Miss Lansbury, 59, said in the May issue of McCall's magazine, released Monday, that she was playing middle-aged women through much of her film career, which she started as a teen-ager in the 1940s.

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Broyhill Furniture Industries Inc. will move its showrooms to High Point from Lenoir effective with the October Southern Furniture Market.

The president of Broyhill, the final major western North Carolina furniture company to move its showrooms to the High Point area, said Sunday it is making the move to get its furniture closer to the buyers.

President Gene Gunter said Broyhill has signed a long-term lease on one floor totaling 67,000 to 68,000 square feet in the Southern Furniture Market Center, which will make it one of the largest tenants in High Point's largest furniture showroom facility.

While Lenoir will be losing Broyhill's showrooms, Gunter stressed that Broyhill will keep its headquarters and factories in western North Carolina. That part of the state will benefit from increased furniture production if Broyhill is able to sell more furniture from its new High Point showrooms, he said.

Gunter said that Broyhill, a subsidiary of Interco Inc., a diversified St. Louis firm whose holdings include Ethan Allen, had record shipments, although not record profits, in 1984.

Farm Experts Say Interest Helped Cut Net Earnings

RALEIGH (AP) — High interest rates have been a major reason that many North Carolina farmers are harvesting lower net earnings, officials say.

"Most of our farmers have had an uphill struggle for the past five years," said Leon Allen, agricultural extension service chairman in Martin County. "And unfortunately, there's very little relief in sight in 1985."

Besides double-digit interest rates on loans for annual operations, many farmers in North Carolina, as in other states, are paying high interest rates on real estate and machinery loans taken out in the 1970s, Allen said.

Government policies encouraged farmers in the last decade to expand to boost farm exports, he said. But farm exports are now down and farm imports are up, Allen said, because the value of the U.S. dollar is rising, compared to other major world currencies.

An extension economist at North Carolina State University said the financial crisis befalling the nation's farms seems to have hit North Carolina harder than previously believed.

"A majority of tobacco and other field crop producers in the state had very low farm earnings in both 1983 and 1984," said Stephen R. Sutter.

Sutter said the financial records of 54 crop farmers enrolled in the university's mail-in, electronic farm records program indicated that income on those farms dropped drastically from 1983 to 1984.

The average net income per farm in the sample was $6,067 in 1983. In 1984, it dropped to an average of $2,204.

Gross receipts on the 54 farms increased 10 percent from 1983 to 1984 but total expenses increased 12 percent, Sutter said.

"Although not a statistically random sample, the group is representative of business characteristics and performance of somewhat larger than average commercial crop farm operations in North Carolina," he said.

To arrive at net income per farm, Sutter started with gross receipts and subtracted ordinary cash expenses and depreciation. No allowances were made for changes in inventory of crops and supplies.

Net farm income varied widely in 1983 and even more so last year. In 1984, the top third — the most profitable of the 54 farms — earned an average of $35,410 each; the middle third, $6,391 per farm; and the bottom third, an average loss of $35,190 per farm.

Shooting Witness Released

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Authorities have released and will not charge a Kentucky man who said he witnessed the fatal shooting of a state Highway Patrol trooper last week in Haywood County.

"No charges will be filed" against Charles G. Barker, said District Attorney Marcellus Buchanan III. "The more information we obtained as the week went on, the more it became clear that he was not involved."

Barker, 43, was scheduled to return to his home in Lexington, Ky., on Saturday, Buchanan said.

Barker had been detained in Haywood County since Wednesday while officials investigated the shooting death April 9 of Trooper Giles A. Harmon of Arden.

Another Lexington man, Billy Denton McQueen, 25, was charged with first-degree murder in the incident. He surrendered to law enforcement officers Thursday after a two-day manhunt that involved 200 law enforcement officers.

Harmon, 26, was killed after stopping a car on a detour around a rockslide-blocked Interstate 40 tunnel at Harmon Den near the Tennessee state line.

After Barker was found Wednesday by a U.S. Forest Service employee near Harmon Den, he told officials he had been kidnapped by McQueen in Kentucky, forced to withdraw cash from a safety deposit box, held hostage, shot and then forced to travel to North Carolina.

"They shot the patrolman for no reason," Barker said Wednesday. Although he used the word "they" several times, officials said at that time that Barker and McQueen had no companions.

Officials said McQueen had been living in Barker's farmhouse, where he worked as a farmhand.

Court Load Now Exceeds Million Cases

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's courts handled over 1.5 million cases during the 1983-84 fiscal year and collected more than $63.5 million in court costs, fines and forfeitures, the latest annual report on the court system says.

The report by the Administrative Office of the Courts shows that between July 1983 and June 1984, the state's District Courts handled 1,450,179 cases, including 768,403 traffic cases.

Of those traffic cases, 437,665 defendants waived their court appearances and pleaded guilty.

Robert Giles of the AOC said he would expect that percentage of waivers even if traffic cases were decriminalized — a change that has been suggested by some lawmakers.

"If that particular approach were made (decriminalizing minor traffic cases), I don't know how much difference that would really make because you have the potential of shifting the traffic cases from criminal cases to civil cases," Giles said. "I would anticipate that if any change were made there, the General Assembly would still provide for court hearings for those that insist upon it."

"I would also anticipate that a considerably large number — over half — would in all probability forego any court hearing, just as they do now," he said.

In Superior Court, 80,552 cases were filed during the year, down from 85,488 in the previous year. The state Court of Appeals handled 1,314 appeals and 471 petitions, while the state Supreme Court had 201 appeals docketed and 547 petitions filed.

Courts received $29.1 million of the revenues taken in by the courts, while $1.6 million went to cities and $30.1 million went to the state, the report said. An increase in court fees generated $8.6 million more revenue than the previous year.

IN THE STATE

Rose Will Delay Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., saying he did not want to jeopardize negotiations for a buyout of surplus tobacco, said he will delay introducing a bill to finance the federal tobacco program with cigarette excise tax revenues.

Rose previously had said he would introduce the bill, which cigarette makers oppose, today. But he said Monday he would delay doing so at the request of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

Stabilization is trying to negotiate a huge sale of its tobacco surpluses to cigarette manufacturers.

"I'm a little frustrated with having to hold off," Rose said. "But I'm not going to jeopardize the negotiations as long as Stabilization still thinks there is a chance" of an agreement.

The proposed buy-out would free farmers from the financial burden of Stabilization's 800 million pounds of surplus leaf. To finance the program this year, growers will pay 25 cents for each pound they sell.

Insurance Refunds Available

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolinians who bought "estate conservation" plans from agents selling Academy Life Insurance policies may be eligible for full refunds plus interest, Attorney General Lacy Thornburg said Monday.

"This is an unsettling example of salesmen misleading the elderly under the guise of providing them an annuity for retirement and a means to avoid estate taxes," Thornburg said.

Under court-ordered provisions contained in an April 5 consent judgment between the attorney general's office and the insurance company, all known North Carolina policyholders are being notified in a letter from Thornburg that they may request refunds and policy cancellations on the Academy Estate Conservation Plan, also known as the Endowment at 95 or AE-95 Plan.

The court action does not involve any other policies sold by Academy Life.

Bronze Star Comes Late

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Forty-two years after serving in World War II, Clayborne Knox Kiser of Winston-Salem has his Bronze Star Medal for bravery.

"And I'm glad," he said. "I have always wanted to get it." Kiser, 63, won the medal at the age of 21 when he landed in South Italy on Sept. 9, 1943, with the first wave of American troops from Company I, 142nd Regiment of the 36th (Texas) Division.

At one point, he killed one enemy soldier, wounded another and helped destroy a pillbox protecting enemy installations, he said.

"I consider my service in World War II complete," he said. "I just always had wanted this medal, and now it is here. It is beautiful."

Fire Hurts Business District

GREENSBORO (AP) — A weekend fire that badly damaged eight historic buildings that were to be converted to apartments and retail shops could doom the future of other downtown businesses, officials said.

"We've had some large fires in Greensboro, but this has been the largest fire with the greatest loss potential than any in my career," said Greensboro Fire Chief R.L. Powell, a veteran of more than 30 years with the fire department.

"It's a mess. It looks awful," said Mayor John Forbis.

A federal historian was scheduled to examine the fire scene today to determine if the historical significance of the gutted buildings has been obliterated. The eligibility of further federal tax credits for the project will rest on his decision.

Bus Wreck Hurts Five

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Five children were treated at a hospital and released Monday after the school bus they were riding collided with a car, officials said.

The accident occurred shortly before 8 a.m. as the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools bus, carrying six pupils to Newell Elementary School, was traveling on U.S. 29.

"It appears the driver rearended another vehicle ... when the brakes failed on the bus," said school system spokeswoman Myra Joines.

Ms. Joines said five children were treated and released from Charlotte Memorial Hospital. She said the worst injury was a bruised knee.

Ex-Guilford Deputy Indicted

GREENSBORO (AP) — Six people, including a Guilford County sheriff's deputy who resigned last week, have been indicted for issuing fictitious drivers licenses, many of them to repeat DWI offenders ineligible to drive.

The State Bureau of Investigation launched an investigation after a DWI arrest last July in which a suspect with 10 previous drunk driving convictions was found to have a valid North Carolina driver's license, said assistant district attorney Dick Panosh.

Indicted Monday on three counts of unlawfully issuing drivers licenses and conspiracy to unlawfully issue a license was William A. Cameron Sr., 61, a sheriff's deputy assigned to jail duties.

Cameron, who resigned from the Sheriff's Department last week, retired from the Department of Motor Vehicles in 1982 after working there for 33 years.

Forest Threat Remains

RALEIGH (AP) — Moderate to severe drought conditions continue to exist in many parts of North Carolina despite isolated showers over the weekend that prevented new outbreaks of forest fires, officials said.

"If the skies clear and the wind picks up, we could be in a serious forest fire situation within a day," E.F. Corn of the state forest service said Monday.

The dry conditions have caused the continuation of a statewide cancellation of burning permits and a ban on all outdoor burning, Corn said.

Some parts of the state have had 7 inches less than the normal annual rainfall to date, he said.

Firefighters were expected to leave the Holly Shelter State Game Management Area in Pender County by late today, said John Shepherd of the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources.
