Reagan Praises Spain For Democratic Progress

MADRID, Spain (AP) — President Reagan, overlooking criticism of his Nicaragua policy here, praised Spain's progress as a democracy today and declared that "the exceptions to the democratic tide in Spanish-speaking America can be counted on the fingers of one hand."

He identified them as "entrenched military" rule in Paraguay and Chile and "communist tyrannies" in Cuba and Nicaragua.

Nearing the end of his 10-day European tour, the president strolled through the gardens of El Pardo Palace with King Juan Carlos, met with Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez and — in a speech before Spanish community leaders — cheered the beginning of "a golden age of freedom" on the Iberian peninsula.

After his talks with the prime minister, Reagan praised Spain's prospective entry into the European Common Market and said the two agreed that "further efforts are needed to strengthen peace, democracy and economy in Central and South America," a region of "special interest" to both countries. Praising Spain's progress since the death of Gen. Francisco Franco in 1975, Reagan told Gonzalez: "Spain's example has made spirits soar everywhere that people strive for democracy. Many nations, especially in Latin America, are following your lead."

Reagan joined Gonzalez for a typical Spanish men's business lunch that featured filet mignon topped with pico de treviso cheese, followed by brandy and the best Cuban cigars. Gonzalez enjoys Havana cigars, and receives them directly from Cuba's Fidel Castro.

It was not known whether Reagan or his aides were offered Cuban cigars after the lunch or whether they smoked them.

Reagan also is working on a major speech, to be delivered Wednesday before the European Parliament at Strasbourg, France, that will focus on a variety of proposals for improving relations with the Soviet Union.

White House aides said the speech would test whether the new Soviet leadership under Mikhail Gorbachev is serious about seeking to reduce tensions.

While Spain has offered to mediate differences between Nicaragua and the United States, deputy White House press secretary Robert Sims had said earlier, "We'd like to see Spain encourage the Sandinistas to have reconciliation with the opposition."

Mayor Hospitalized

Greenville Mayor Janice Buck was admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Monday night following a City Council workshop meeting.

City Manager Gail Meeks said this morning that Mrs. Buck "wasn't feeling well," and after the meeting ended about 7 p.m. "had her blood pressure checked." It was "not normal for her," Mrs. Meeks said, so Mrs. Buck was taken from city hall to the hospital by a city fire-rescue department rescue unit.

Mrs. Meeks said the mayor was admitted "for observation for irregular blood pressure."

"I don't know how long she will be in the hospital," Mrs. Meeks said, adding that "they ran some tests last night" and were scheduled to "run some more today."

Mrs. Buck, a patient in the hospital's medical intensive care unit, "seems to be resting comfortably," the city manager said.

A hospital spokesman confirmed that Mrs. Buck was still a patient and said her condition was listed as "fair."

City Adopts Road Priorities That Highlight 264 Projects

By SUE HINSON

A list of highway priorities to be presented to the North Carolina Department of Transportation for possible inclusion in the state's 10-year transportation improvement program was endorsed by the Greenville City Council in special session Monday.

Heading up the list of eight priorities is completion of all sections of a new U.S. 264 route from Wilson to Greenville with simultaneous openings of the Farmville and Greenville Northwest Bypass (U.S. 264 northwestern loop).

Priorities 2 through 8 in descending order include:

• Evans Street — widening from a two to five-lane facility from U.S. 264 Business to U.S. 264 Bypass (2 miles).

• Arlington Street Extension — construction of a four-lane facility from Hooker Road to future U.S. 264 now under construction (1.5 miles).

• SR 1703 and 1704, 14th Street — construction of five-lane section from Charles Street to U.S. 264 (1.6 miles) and a four-lane section from U.S. 264 to 1725 (1.4 miles).

• Dickinson Avenue — construct four-lane section from Reade Circle to U.S. 13 (1.3 miles).

• N.C. 33 — widen existing two-lane roadway to multilane facility from east of city limit to S.R. 1726.

• Greenville Southwest Loop — construct a four-lane connector from future U.S. 264 to N.C. 11 south of Pitt Community College.

• Greene Street Bridge — replacement of the Greene Street bridge crossing the Tar River in accordance with the Federal Bridge Replacement Program.

An additional request that will be submitted along with the list to DOT officials includes a bid for additional funds to widen N.C. 43 from two lanes to five lanes from The Plaza to the southern city limit. Small urban project funds amounting to $400,000 were appropriated by DOT last year to widen N.C. 43, but construction estimates indicate $400,000 will not (Please turn to page 10)

County Revises Rules On Wastes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday adopted a revised solid waste disposal ordinance which calls for civil penalties, to be paid directly to the county, rather than for criminal penalties.

The major changes in the ordinance, in addition to providing for civil penalties to be paid directly to the county, include a provision prohibiting scavenging from the 40-cubic-yard solid waste containers.

County Engineer Phil Dickerson told the board that the revised ordinance, designed to "control waste a little bit more," will make it easier for the county to "penalize" individuals and firms who violate the ordinance.

Commissioners postponed action on a revised electrical inspection ordinance which provides for payment of fees "up-front," Dickerson said, and establishes a new fee schedule which raises inspection fees from "10 to 25 percent."

Dickerson reminded board members that the present ordinance permits electrical inspections to be made before fees are paid. He also said the maximum increase in any (Please turn to page 10)

Housing Authority Will Seek 32 Additional Public Units

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville Housing Authority Commission by a vote of 3-1 Monday approved an application for 32 additional units of public housing. Opposing the application was Commissioner Oscar Moore who said he did not think Greenville needed more public housing.

While GHA was invited to apply for the units by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Housing Authority director Joe Laney said Greenville will be "very lucky" if it receives authorization. According to Laney, only 5,000 additional units will be approved nationwide and only 700 will be located in the southeast region of which Greenville is member.

Tagged to the GHA bid for additional units is a request that the units, if approved, be scattered through Greenville's South Evans Community Development Project area. According to Laney, city officials asked that the request accompany the bid in light of the success of GHA's recent West Meadowbrook project in which 40 units are scattered throughout a neighborhood north of the Tar River. Scattering units helps stabilize neighborhoods, Laney explained.

In other business, Assistant Housing Authority Director Ken Nolan reported that Phase II modernization efforts at Kearney Park are 85 percent complete. Modernization efforts at the project include installation of storm windows and doors and new kitchen cabinets, and improvements to electrical and storm sewer systems. The project will cost approximately $600,000 and is being primarily funded through HUD.

Nolan also reported that bids will be accepted today for modernization of Meadowbrook. The project is expected to cost $250,000 and will be paid for with Greenville Housing Authority funds.

In closing business, Laney and Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs, reported on occupancy rates. According to Laney, 117 of 150 privately owned units authorized for rental assistance from HUD are occupied, 102 of 109 moderate rehabilitation units are filled and 59 of University Tower's 60 units are occupied.

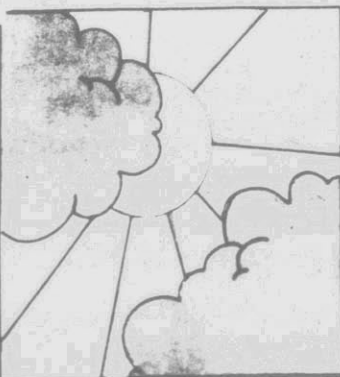

Ms. Streeter reported five vacancies in the authority's seven low-income housing projects. Rents at the projects averaged $155.30 for the month of April with rent at Meadowbrook, $105.37, Kearney Park, $126.56, Moyewood I, $120.64, Moyewood II, $124.50, Newtown, $103.55, Hopkins Park, $100.25, and West Meadowbrook, $116.75. Ms. Streeter said Newtown and Hopkins Park are up for reassessment and that rent at the projects will be changed June 1.

Schools OK Budget Plans

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Board of Education Monday night approved the 1985-86 budget message for the city schools to be presented to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners by May 15.

One member, Martha Coffman, cast a dissenting vote, saying she'd prefer more explanation before casting an affirmative vote.

The budget message for local funds (those allocated by Pitt County) is being submitted in three versions — labeled Budget A, Budget B, and Budget C, all in the current expense category.

Budget A is based on continuation of school operations at the same level as for the 1984-85 school year, with allowances for increased costs of items such as utilities and fuel, but with no salary or increment increases figured in, for a total of $4,062,887; Budget B is predicated on a possible state salary increase of 10 percent plus a 4.8 percent pay increment increase, for a total of $4,417,550, and Budget C is based on a possible state salary increase of 5 percent plus the 4.8 percent pay increment increase, for a total of $4,298,502.

Explaining this three-fold submission approach rather than the usual submission of one budget request figure, school board consultant Dr. Delma Blinson said "due to very considerable uncertainties as to what the legislature will do, it is difficult to project revenues. We have done so based on the best available data at this time, but we must advise you that we are sure there will be significant revisions necessary."

Based on the three budget figures, the dollar and percentage increases over the 1984-85 current expense budget amounts to — Budget A, $97,007 and 2.5 percent increase;

Budget B, $451,670 and 11.5 percent increase, and Budget C, $332,622 and 8.4 percent increase. These budgets are based on the assumption of no fund balance or transfer from capital outlay as was done for the 1984-85 budget.

In the budget message for local capital outlay funds, Blinson is recommending a request of $172,794, the same amount as the 1984-85 budget. This is in sharp contrast to the $1,648,681 which has been recommended in a compilation of needs submitted by principals, maintenance personnel and others of

New Study Reports Stress Causing 'Pain, Suffering' For U.S. Farm Families

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study says stress on farm families is causing "profound pain and suffering," including behavior changes in farm children, high rates of depression and aggressiveness and increases in drinking and suicide.

And to further bring home the human toll behind today's dark farm financial statistics, three actresses who have played distressed farm wives offered emotional testimony before a Democratic House panel on Monday, saying farmers "are being betrayed by this government and left to suffer."

The study, by Judith and William Heffernan of the University of Missouri's rural sociology department, focused on a north-central Missouri county and 40 families who had gotten out of farming in the past five years.

Mrs. Heffernan presented the study's results to a group of farm wives, then listened with members of the group as the actresses — Jane Fonda, Sissy Spacek and Jessica Lange — sought to attract new publicity to the plight of farmers.

The county, which was not identified because of concern for the privacy of those interviewed, was representative of the corn-soybean-hog product mix typical of the Midwestern ritually all had suffered depression during the transition, with 50 percent of men and 69 percent of women still experiencing it. Heavy majorities also reported "feelings of worthlessness," "great changes in moods" and sleeping and eating problems.

Eighteen percent of men and 12 percent of women said they were drinking more, and one-third of the respondents said they became "unable to think or respond logically."

"Social workers who have looked at the data are surprised by both the high levels of stress reactions reported and by the continuing levels," Mrs. Heffernan said in presenting the study to the group. Women involved in Farm Economics.

The farm families interviewed also reported increased marital conflict and added that four of the couples studied were either divorced or about to be divorced, she said.

Fifty-six percent of parents reported changes in children's behavior, such as declining school grades and increased anxieties, demand for attention, crying, rebelliousness, sleep disorders and aggressiveness.

"Children reportedly became 'very sad' and seemed to 'lose their innocence,'" Mrs. Heffernan reported.

In a telephone interview from Columbia, Mo., Heffernan said there had been one suicide in the county while his wife had been there conducting interviews, by a farmer who hre that shot up to 23 in 1983, he said.

Miss Lange, breaking into tears at one point during her remarks before the House Democratic farm task force, said, "It is heartbreaking to witness their anguish as they watch their lives being stripped away."

The star of the film, "Country," said she had spent "countless hours" in recent years talking with farmers about the effects of crushing debt, low crop prices and plummeting land values that have brought the worst farm financial crisis in decades.

"They are being made to feel and made to believe they have failed," she told the group. "Failed their families, their heritage, their country and they have failed their land." She said these most patriotic Americans "are being betrayed by this government and left to suffer."

"The reason we are here is to underscore the gravity of the crisis that is leading to the bankruptcy, humiliation and banishment of farmers from their lands at a rate not seen since my father made 'The Grapes of Wrath,'" added Miss Fonda, in a reference to Henry Fonda's role in the film about the trials of one farm family in the Dust Bowl of the 1930s. She recently starred in a television movie, "The Dollmaker," about a farm family forced off its land.

Miss Spacek, who lives on a farm near Charlottesville, Va., and played a farm wife in "The River," said she feared that "our largest and most vital industry is disintegrating. It is not the marginal prile Rep. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., the panel chairman, said "our purpose is not political," the event had partisan overtones: no Republican members were invited and it was sponsored by the House Democratic Caucus.

A Republican member of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. Pat Roberts of Kansas, dismissed the event as not helping in the difficult task before Congress of writing new long-term farm legislation to replace the law that expires Sept. 30.

"I don't have time, as much as I would like to, to play 'Hollywood Squares,'" Roberts told a reporter.

Beirut Undergoes Heavy Barrage, 28 People Die

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fires burned out of control and hundreds of shell-smashed cars smoldered today as civil war antagonists unleashed their heaviest artillery barrage on Beirut's residential neighborhoods in 10 months.

Police said 28 people were killed and more than 100 wounded in 15 hours of relentless bombardment by field artillery, multi-barreled rocket launchers, mortars and tank cannons in and around the capital. There was a lull after daybreak.

"It is like the doors of hell were all flung open," said Simon Haj, 42, a taxi driver reached by telephone at the basement of his highrise apartment building in mostly Moslem west Beirut. "Shells are raining all around us."

It was the heaviest single overnight toll since the current flare-up of Moslem-Christian fighting erupted 11 days ago. The new figures raised the overall known casualties since April 28 to 68 killed and more than 340 injured.

Police said at least five apartment buildings were gutted by fire in one neighborhood on the embattled Green Line dividing Beirut into Moslem and Christian sections. Shooting prevented fire brigades from moving in to quench the blaze, they said.

Amin Gemayel, the Christian president, conferred by telephone overnight with Moslem Prime Minister Rashid Karami on ways of halting the hostilities and declaring a militia-free neutral zone in central Beirut, local radio stations reported.

They said the two called on the army's six-man Higher Military Council and the four-party security committee representing the principal warring militias to hold a joint session today to negotiate a cease-fire.

Gemayel met with the Higher Military Council at noon Monday at his palace in suburban Baabda, but failed to achieve any agreement.

Police and radio stations said the nightlong artillery battles were the heaviest since a Syrian-sponsored agreement to refrain from shelling population centers was enforced last July 4.

The Christian-controlled "Voice of Lebanon" radio station said at least 2,500 shells and rockets struck east Beirut and a string of Christian suburbs stretching to the mountain resort town of Beit Meri, six miles east of the capital.

Blood Donors Are Lifeline To Rescue Those in Need

DEAR ABBY: Please give the piece titled "What Good Is a Blood Donor?" another run. I missed it the first time it ran, but several people have told me about it.

Blood donors are so desperately needed now, it sounds like something we could use.

VOLUNTEER

DEAR VOLUNTEER: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I just donated blood to the American Red Cross Blood Center in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and I'm enclosing a piece that was handed to me on my way out.

I hope you will print it. So many people are not aware of how important it is to give blood—especially now that our blood bank supply has become critically low.

NEW YORK BLOOD DONOR

DEAR DONOR: You gave more than blood. You gave me an item that will (I hope) inspire more blood donors. Bless you.

WHAT GOOD IS A BLOOD DONOR?

A blood donor is good for people who go through windshields and red lights. For somebody with leukemia. For people being operated on. For barefoot kids who aren't careful. For people who are into feudin' and fightin'. For hemophiliacs and daredevils. For people undergoing dialysis while waiting for a kidney transplant. For people who fool around with guns. For little kids who manage to uncup a bottle of something poisonous.

A blood donor is good for people who have been badly burned. For new mothers who need transfusions. For new babies who need a complete change of blood supply. For people having open-heart surgery. For cancer patients. For people with severe hepatitis and anemia. For kids who fall out of trees or whatever. For anybody any age with bleeding ulcers. For people who were in the wrong place at the wrong time.

A blood donor is good for people who are in a lot worse shape than most people you know.

A BLOOD DONOR IS GOOD FOR LIFE.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of a problem that I'm sure has cropped up in many marriages. Do you think a husband should bring guests home without giving his wife some notice?

My husband does this all the time. It's usually a co-worker for dinner, or some business associate. If they've never been here before, my husband gives them a tour of the house. This really upsets me because some days I'm behind in my work and the place doesn't look all that great. Yesterday I had an early morning dental appointment and a lot of errands to do, and I didn't get around to making the beds, when in comes my husband with two strangers!

Abby, am I unreasonable to ask my husband to give me at least a half an hour's notice, or the option of saying, "Not today, please"?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You are not unreasonable—your husband is inconsiderate. And unless you put your foot down firmly, where it will make a lasting impression, don't expect anything to change.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

THIS SAMPLER PILLOW...is a lesson in quick and easy pattern stitches as well as an elegant furniture accent.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

An exquisite symphony of stitches will make this needlepoint sampler pillow an heirloom to treasure for years to come. It's designed to be a learning experience for those needlepointers who would like to work with quick and easy pattern stitches to create elegant home and personal accessories.

The instruction leaflet includes easy-to-follow, step-by-step diagrams for each pattern stitch as well as a full chart for stitch placement. The pillow is worked with Persian wool yarn on 14-mesh canvas. The finished size is 11 inches square.

To obtain directions for making the Needlepoint Sampler Pillow, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-0505 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 15922, Lenexa, Kan. 66215.

Or you may order Kit No. N-0505 by sending a check or money order for $13.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, the instruction leaflet, off-white Persian yarn, canvas and needle. (Fabric backing is not included.)

Dear Pat: I like to design my own needlepoint projects, but the one area where I have a problem is in planning for the amount of yarn I will need to complete an item. Are there any guidelines you could give me? — Sally P., St. Petersburg, Fla.

To accurately estimate your yarn requirements will require a bit of arithmetic and some experimenting, but it is well worth the time.

You should first chart the design you will be working. If it is done in pattern stitches, the chart will show you just how many repeats of each pattern stitch you will use.

Next, cut strands of yarn 1 yard long, even though you will use shorter lengths when actually working the piece. On a scrap of canvas, see how many pattern repeats you get from the 1-yard length for each type of pattern stitch used. Then divide that number into the total number of pattern repeats to find the final yardage.

For example, suppose your design included 60 Smyrna stitches and from your sample you determined that you could get 12 Smyrna stitches with 1 yard of yarn. Dividing 60 by 12, you see that you will need at least 5 yards of yarn for that portion of the design.

When you repeat this procedure with each of the other pattern stitches used, you can readily come up with an accurate total for the finished project. Of course, always figure on a bit more to allow for any ripping you might have to do in the event you make an error in stitching or — as is often the case when we design our own — change your mind about the design while you're working on it. It's always better to have some left over than to run short and be unable to match the dye lot.

If the project is to be worked entirely in tent stitch, determine the total number of square inches to be worked with each color and then see how much yardage it takes for 1 square inch on the mesh size you're using.

Remember that although the three types of tent stitch — half-cross, continental and basketweave — all look the same on the right side of the canvas, they do not require the same amount of yarn, so do be sure to work with the same stitch you will be using on the finished project.

When you're working your tent stitch sample, you will probably be more comfortable working with yarn lengths shorter than 1 yard. Just be sure to cut all that you will use on your sample to the same length and take note of it. If you use 24-inch lengths, keep a record of how many of these lengths you use to complete the 1 square inch. If there is a partial strand left over at the end, secure the yarn in your usual manner, snip it off and take note of the amount remaining.

The final step is to measure the area of canvas to be covered, figuring how much is to be done in a single background color and estimating the size of the other color areas.

Then multiply the length by the width of each area to calculate the square inches. Finally, multiply the total square inches by the amount of yarn needed for a single square inch. It is usually better to measure the yarn in inches to do this rather than yards. You can then convert the inches to yards by dividing by 36.

Again, be sure to overestimate rather than underestimate.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Years ago when I worked for a morning newspaper, along about 2 in the morning, the calls would start to come in from the over-served and the insomniacs.

"What was the name of Dale Evans' horse?"

"How many completed passes did Johnny Unitas make?"

"Is 'Crocker' Betty's married name?"

People had a love affair with the telephone which I predicted would wear off.

Today, the telephone is a universal umbilical cord. Cut it and the country dies. People talk to one another from their cars. They talk from airplanes to earth. They talk by satellites from one continent to the other. When they can't talk, their recording machine calls another recording machine. Their fingers don't even walk anymore. The phone dials itself.

And there are hundreds of strangers who will talk to you about anything you want to talk about for as long as you want to talk.

Talk show hosts will listen to your gripes. Sex therapists will sort out your feelings. Authors will tell you why they wrote the book. And there are enough hot lines in the phone book to keep you talking until you need a tongue transplant.

If you want to know where the Blue Nile is located you call the Homework Hot Line. If you have a rebellious teen-ager who won't tell you where she's going or where she's been, there's a Discipline Hot Line out of Temple University that will counsel you by phone. If you want to know how long to cook your turkey, there's a Turkey Hot Line in Chicago.

I'm not a telephone person. Never have been. I don't want to have one with a 500-foot cord and I don't want to be buried with a phone when I go to that big utility room in the sky.

But just for kicks, I dialed several hot lines the other day. Three hours and $36 later I had discovered some interesting facts: I knew the president's schedule for the day including a 10 o'clock meeting with the Villanova basketball team. The trout fishing is good in Colorado and they're hitting on worms at Horace Reservoir.

For 55 cents I was updated on "One Life to Live" and learned that Asa and Jessie's home had been broken into. I dialed a hot line number to the University of California Seismographic station where a recording told me an underground nuclear explosion near Berkeley registered 5.6 on the Richter scale.

I had two more numbers to call: Dial-a-Trance or Dial-a-Romeo. What the heck. I can sleep anytime.

Strength

Of all the measurements of prosperity nothing is more frustrating than a high rate of unemployment.

When the percentage of unemployment creeps up it stands for a certain number of workers who are totally out of work. In many cases they can draw unemployment compensation, but frequently that does not equal the money they were drawing prior to being laid off. Most presumably would rather be working and producing than drawing money for being unemployed. In periods of extended recession the benefits can also run out. Sometimes unemployed workers cease to be a part of the statistics and just disappear into a sea of permanently unemployed.

Thus, we can be pleased in Pitt County. The unemployment rate fell in March to its lowest percentage in a number of years. It stood at 4.5 percent. In February the unemployment rate had been 5.3 percent. James A. Hannon, manager of the Greenville Employment Security Commission office, saw this as a "notable decline." Hannon said several employment sectors registered a gain in workers, with most of it coming in nonmanufacturing.

Of course 4.5 percent unemployed still represents a considerable number of people — 2,270. Nevertheless the figures are a good indication that Pitt County's economy is strong.

Uncollected

If you are missing any money you might try checking with the North Carolina treasurer's office.

That office has $28 million which it has collected over the past 14 years. It mounts up at the rate of about $4 million per year and it comes from bank accounts, safe deposit boxes, utility deposits, insurance policies and estates which are not collected for more than five years.

A spokesman for the office says the major source is bank accounts and safe deposit boxes. You would be surprised, however, at how much comes from utility companies. People make deposits for electric service and telephones. When they leave town they forget to claim it. After five years the companies turn the unclaimed deposits over to the state treasurer.

If you plan on making a claim you had better have proof that it is yours. The treasurer spokesman says they are careful to determine that ownership exists. If you don't claim the money, you are making a contribution to higher education. Last year interest on the fund was $2.5 million which was turned over to the education assistance fund. Last year some 1,000 education loans to state residents were made.

So the money is there at the state treasurer's office for those who have a legal right to it. Otherwise, it will still go for a good cause.

Controlling The Damage

BITBURG, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan, beaming with smiles, got a big round of applause from his staff as he boarded Air Force One on his return from the Bitburg military cemetery, an eight-minute event that had generated the biggest controversy of his presidency.

The big question, though, is whether he will get similar reviews back home, offsetting the 25 days of criticism from Jews, veterans, Congress and even his closest ally in NATO, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, that led up to Bitburg.

White House officials had acknowledged in advance they botched up plans for Reagan's trip by overlooking the fact that the military cemetery in Bitburg contained the graves of 49 Nazi SS troopers.

The criticism and anger that exploded after that revelation seemed to overshadow everything Reagan did and drowned out his explanation that visiting Bitburg would underscore reconciliation between West Germany and the United States four decades after World War II.

In the end, Reagan proclaimed, "It's been a wonderful day," and his aides insisted Bitburg will be remembered as a great triumph.

It could well be the most important 10 minutes of the Reagan presidency and yet the great communicator didn't speak a word," said White House deputy press secretary Peter Roussel. "Once all is said and done, I think Bitburg will prove to be a positive thing for the president."

Actually, Reagan spent only eight minutes at Bitburg, two minutes less than scheduled. Photographers accompanying the president were kept back from the ceremony, making it difficult to capture the scene.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Burt, a man who usually will not talk on the record with reporters, volunteered to reveal what he told Reagan after Bitburg: "I told him I was proud of my president."

Burt called it "a brilliant performance" and said, "I can only make a prediction, and that is after they've watched the president, they've read what the president has said, that most Americans will support him."

Burt and Secretary of State George Shultz both described the day with the same words — as one of "conflicting emotions:" remembrance of the Holocaust and recognition of West Germany as a force for freedom and democracy.

Recognizing the tough challenge facing Reagan, the White House drafted Ken Khachigian to work on the president's address at the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp, the event immediately preceding the stop at Bitburg. Khachigian, a former White House speechwriter regarded as perhaps the best Reagan has had, is called on in times of trouble.

Reagan initially had refused to visit a concentration camp, saying that would impose an unnecessary

For a decade, educators have been talking of the need to re-train teachers. But with the aging of the teacher population, Schlechthey says mass re-training is less important that is proper training for the young teachers who are replacing retiring teachers.

Slechthey predicts that in the next five or six years, 900,000 to 1.1 million new teachers will be needed to replace retirees and teacher drop-outs. In the year 2000, most people teaching will have been hired after 1985.

The same turnover can be expected in the ranks of principals. The principals' force is getting old, he said, and there should be massive retirements around the year 1990.

"This is partially an opportunity and partially a crisis," Schlechthey said. "If we don't make the right decisions in the next 15 years, then we'll have lost the opportunity to make them in the next 20 after that."

Slechthey, of course, is a proponent of career ladders for teachers. He says the teaching profession must offer higher esteem, better pay, some chance for diversity and better opportunities for advancement.

Teaching is currently a profession which attracts people who do not have high ambitions for themselves, who do not believe in taking risks, who do not have high esteem but who do have high anxiety levels. Young teachers who scored well on their teachers' exam, who are idealistic and ambitious often get out of teaching at an early age, he said.

Simply improving education programs in the colleges and raising standards for teachers won't solve the problem, he said. Smart young teachers won't stay in education if the job isn't rewarding, if it doesn't offer both satisfaction and continuing challenges. Those who can't do better will stay in education and the state will have to lower standards to keep all the jobs filled.

As more good teachers leave public schools, middle and upper class students will be pulled out by their parents. Only poor children and the children of unconcerned parents will remain. "We'll have a public school system where the helpless are led by the hopeless," he said.

Slechthey says the Legislature should make sure this doesn't happen. If reform comes in the near future, young principals can be taught the new management techniques of career ladders without having to unlearn old policies. Young teachers can get off to a good start in their profession.

He suggests passage of career ladder legislation that is flexible enough for local school boards to develop programs tuned to local circumstances. He also criticizes current state proposals saying they don't take into consideration the need to offer advancement opportunities throughout the entire 30-year career of a teacher.

Career ladder legislation does not have great momentum yet in the Legislature. Schlechthey is saying that if the Legislature doesn't act soon, it might as well spare itself the effort.

Dependency On The Uncle

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of the Census came up with an astonishing figure the other day: Almost half of all households in the nation — 47 percent, to be precise — were receiving some kind of check from the federal government during the first quarter of 1984.

That is not the most astonishing news. If the bureau's survey were truly encompassing, so that it covered all kinds of federal subsidies for individuals, it probably would develop that two-thirds of American households benefit in some direct fashion from federal programs. The bureau's survey reflected the picture in 1984; nothing suggests that the picture is significantly different in 1985. In one way or another, millions of us are dependent on everybody's favorite uncle.

The bureau divided its study into programs that are means-tested and programs that are non-means-tested. The survey found that 39 million of the 83.6 million households were receiving benefits from one or more government programs. In 23 million households, at least one person was receiving a check from a non-means-tested program, mainly Social Security. In 16 million households, at least one person was benefiting from such programs as food stamps, Medicaid, subsidized rental housing, free school lunches and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

As you would expect, many households benefited under several programs. Typically a family on AFDC also would qualify for Medicaid and food stamps. The bureau found that 3.6 million households count on two checks a month; 2.4 million benefit from three programs; and 1.6 million are participating in four or more.

In getting to its figure of 47 percent of all households, the bureau worked by some mystifying guidelines. For example, the survey included those households in which someone was getting a veteran's loan or a guaranteed student loan. It excluded those households participating in other loan programs. It included railroad retirement; excluded federal civilian and military retirement.

Neither did the survey include households that benefit from subsidized electric power. In the Northwest, customers of the Federal Power Marketing Administration pay one-third of the market rates paid elsewhere. Customers of the Tennessee Valley Authority similarly are privileged. Roughly 10 million consumers — including me, as a matter of fact — are captive members of REA cooperatives. Presumably we are beneficiaries of the co-ops' subsidized loans, though these benefits, if any, are scarcely visible to the naked eye.

Among the government's most costly programs are the commodity support programs. About 200,000 rural households benefit directly from federal purchases of wheat, corn, peanuts, tobacco and dairy products.

Other programs come to mind. The national endowments for arts and humanities provide grants that support musicians, actors, dancers and writers. The bureau's survey did not include about 40,000 persons who last year were receiving training in the Job Corps. If the study had embraced all of us who benefit directly and personally from "tax expenditures," such as the deductions we take for home mortgages and charitable contributions, the survey would have taken in just about everybody. We are all in the trough together.

The statistics provide a quiet but eloquent explanation for the pressures that were manifest in the Senate's debate last week on the budget. When 30 million persons are getting Social Security checks, it is formidably hard to cap a cost-of-living adjustment in benefits. Checks for military retirement come into 1.2 million homes every month — and 351,000 of those homes have incomes in excess of $24,000 a year. Voters dwell in such homes. Lots of voters.

The long and short of it is that as a people we are addicted to all sorts of direct federal subsidies. So long as we insist that these programs be maintained at current levels — so long as we are unwilling to give up anything — just so long will these appalling deficits persist.

Strength For Today

Generous people often say that the only things they really have are the things they have given away.

Some years ago a man gave a dormitory to a missionary college in Asia, and then severe times came upon him and he was almost in want. But he never regretted what he had done.

"The only thing I have today," he said, "is the building I gave to missionary enterprise. That is a real possession in the inmost regions of my heart. I carry it on the asset side of the ledger."

Many devout Christian believers give one-tenth of their incomes to the Lord's work. And among such people there is a radiant spirit of happiness, an absence of fear concerning the future and a deep sense of gratitude for the blessings that fill their lives.

We can see from this that the Christian gospel turns the standards of the world upside down. It's not what we get that makes life significant, but what we give.

Schroeder Stabilizes After Suffering Brain Bleeding

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder, who has lived longer than any other artificial heart recipient and a month ago was well enough to leave the hospital, has been readmitted in critical condition with a brain hemorrhage.

Schroeder's condition stabilized overnight and his vital signs were normal today, said Donna Hazle, a spokeswoman for Humana Hospital Audubon.

"He is awake some of the time. He is breathing on his own at this time," she said.

Schroeder, who had battled back from a series of strokes after the heart implant last Nov. 25, gave a hand squeeze and responded to verbal commands after he was taken back to the hospital Monday afternoon, said Humana Inc. spokesman Bob Irvine.

A CAT scanner — a device that uses computers to make detailed X-ray pictures of the inside of the brain — revealed that Schroeder had suffered bleeding in his brain. Doctors believed the bleeding had stopped by late Monday, but "we can't confirm that until the second CAT scan," Irvine said.

The second scan, to determine what caused the hemorrhage and if Schroeder had suffered another stroke, will be performed today, said Ms. Hazle, hospital public relations director.

In recent days, Schroeder had become listless and too weak to leave his bed in a hospital-owned apartment across the street, Irvine said.

Schroeder was listed in critical but stable condition in the hospital's coronary care unit, Irvine said.

"He was real peaceful when I stopped by," Irvine said of Schroeder Monday night. "He is alert and responding to voice commands from Dr. William DeVries. When (DeVries) said move your legs, he moved his legs; when he said move your arms, Schroeder could move his arms."

"(Schroeder) even squeezed my hand."

DeVries implanted the Jarvik-7 heart, driven by pulses of air from an external compressor, 164 days ago.

Irvine said Schroeder's responses Monday night indicated that he had suffered no permanent neurological damage as a result of the hemorrhage, but "that again is preliminary."

Asked if the situation was life threatening, Irvine said, "At this point, they are trying to determine just what the situation is. It is critical, but stable." Irvine said the possibility existed that Schroeder could begin bleeding again.

Schroeder, who was well enough to go fishing 14 days after being released from the hospital on April 6, was returned there at 4 p.m. for a CAT scan.

Doses of anticoagulant drugs that had been given to Schroeder since he suffered mild seizures after a series of strokes Dec. 13 have been stopped, Irvine said.

Schroeder was discharged from Humana to a specially equipped apartment with his wife, Margaret, across the street from the hospital. He received 24-hour nursing care while in the apartment.

Mrs. Schroeder was with her husband through the day Monday, Irvine said.

In addition to becoming progressively weaker over the weekend, Schroeder also required a blood transfusion, said Ms. Hazle.

DeVries has said that his patient would require blood transfusions for the remainder of his life. The mechanical heart unit, he said, tends to break down red blood cells.

Schroeder was too weak to walk more than a few steps on the day he was discharged. But he rebounded quickly and surprised DeVries and Allan M. Lansing, chairman of the Humana Heart Institute International, one week later by visiting their homes.

One week after that he spent an afternoon at a small lake near Louisville, "reeling several in," Ms. Hazle said later.

after suffering a brain hemorrhage. He and his wife, Margaret, are shown in his room before Schroeder underwent surgery last year. (AP Laserphoto)

GOP Seeks Converts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Party leaders, encouraged by Sun Belt converts, are stepping up their efforts to convince Democrats to switch their party allegiance to the GOP.

Frank Fahrenkopf Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Edward Rollins, White House political adviser, identified the targets South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi and Pennsylvania.

For the most part, the GOP has gained converts in Sun Belt states where it has found fertile ground among conservative Democrats. But the GOP also has been encouraged by scattered developments in the North.

Former Democratic Rep. Kent Hance of Texas announced last Friday that "I am a Republican" at a Washington news conference also attended by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who made a similar switch two years earlier.

Ortega's Trip To Moscow May Backfire

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The trip to Moscow by Nicaraguan President

Daniel Ortega has aroused a bitter reaction in Congress that probably will lead lawmakers to reverse themselves and approve some aid for the anti-government Contras, informed congressional sources say.

It is still considered unlikely that the House of Representatives would approve any military aid, but proposals focusing on humanitarian aid such as food and medicine are gathering support.

"I think there is a general feeling that humanitarian assistance, which isn't just provisions for troops, might be widely accepted in the House," said Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, one of a number of House Republicans who voted last week against military aid to the Contras. He said in a telephone interview Monday he would still oppose military aid.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Monday he also would continue to oppose military aid, but added that Ortega "embarrassed us" by the timing of his trip to Moscow last week. "Whether or not there is any real change of heart, I don't know."

The announcement that Ortega was going to Moscow to seek $200 million in Soviet economic assistance came only hours before the House voted down President Reagan's request for $14 million in military aid for the anti-Sandinista rebels. The House also rejected several proposals for non-military aid.

Many lawmakers did not find out about the trip until after they voted, and a number of them have reacted with anger and said they would have voted in favor of aid, had they known.

The issue could come up as early as next week when the House takes up the 1986 foreign aid authorization bill.

A key House Democratic staff member said Monday that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats had yet formulated details of a new position, but he acknowledged that opposition to any aid had softened among Democrats.

"There is a definite shift in opinion here since the Ortega trip toward the idea of doing something for the Contras," said the aid, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

He said it didn't surprise the lawmakers that Ortega would go to Moscow, but the timing was terrible from a congressional point of view. He said lawmakers voting against Contra aid have had difficulty defending themselves against charges from the administration that they favored the Sandinista government, which most insisted was not the case.

But the timing of the Ortega trip has made it more difficult to defend their positions that they were not pro-Sandinista. Reagan said after last week's vote that the lawmakers had voted in favor of a Marxist-Leninist government in Nicaragua.

The vote against the Contra aid was seen as one of the worst congressional setbacks for Reagan since being elected president.

Any program that keeps aid going for the Contras will mark a partial, but not complete, victory for Reagan, who had initially fought for $14 million in military assistance.

Also, keeping aid flowing would open up the possibility of a future aid program that did include military assistance. Until Congress began balking at aid for the Contras last year, the administration had approved about $80 million in covert aid over a three-year period beginning in 1981.

Leach said a consensus is building for non-military aid and "one real possibility" would be aid consisting exclusively of food and medicine. He said a key issue still to be resolved is whether aid would be distributed by the Red Cross, the United Nations or a U.S. agency, such as the Agency for International Development. He would favor the Red Cross or the United Nations, he said.

Opposition appeared still to be strong against providing aid through the Central Intelligence Agency, which initially organized, financed and directed the Contra insurgency.

Senate May Delay Vote On Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — A final Senate vote on the 1986 budget may be delayed until after President Reagan returns from his trip to Europe to give the president a chance to lobby wavering Republicans, Majority Leader Robert Dole says.

Dole said he is trying to put together a new package to replace the one negotiated earlier with the president — a package that has been largely dismantled in the GOP-led Senate — and the president's help might be needed.

Meanwhile, Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said Dole and other Senate leaders are making a big mistake if they include in their new plan a one-year freeze on Social Security benefit increases.

"I think they're kidding themselves. It may pass here but I don't see it passing the House of Representatives," D'Amato told reporters after a closed-door GOP strategy session at which the subject of a new try at Social Security limits was reportedly discussed.

D'Amato, a leader of the successful Senate vote last week striking from the budget the Reagan-endorsed proposal for a 2 percent, three-year cap on Social Security cost-of-living benefits, said resurrection of the proposal in any form will only result in eventual defeat for the budget plan.

"We're going to be really spilling blood. Why don't we structure a package that has a chance of passing?" he asked.

Dole and other Senate Republican leaders have in the past discussed a one-year freeze on cost-of-living benefits as a likely possibility, noting Democratic support for such an approach in the past.

Democrats voted unanimously last week against the Reagan proposal for the 2 percent limitation, which wouldn't affect any cost-of-living increase above 4 percent.

But two of three proposed Democratic budget plans, including the one proposed by Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, the senior Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, call for a one-year freeze on all government spending — including defense and Social Security benefits.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., has also indicated support for such an approach.

"There will become a package and it will be part of everyone — pieces of Chiles and pieces of Domenici," Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said following Monday's GOP caucus.

Dole has watched the Senate defeat two major elements of the budget plan endorsed by Reagan — by rejecting the Social Security limits and approving a $17.7 billion reduction from the president's proposed defense buildup over the next three years. Now he's urging Democrats to come forth with their proposals.

But Democrats seemed in no rush to present their plans, and the Senate spent most of Monday on the budget with few members on the floor and hours of silence — even though some 60 amendments remain to be debated.

"Nobody wants to do anything until the last four or five hours," Dole complained. Under Senate rules, 50 hours were set aside for debating the budget. There are now about 20 hours of that time left, with the Senate in its third week of debate on the spending blueprint.

Dole said Budget Director David Stockman "feels it would be very helpful to wait" until Reagan's return on Friday before completing action on the budget.

Reward Set For Mengele

JERUSALEM (AP) — The government today offered a $1 million reward for the capture of Dr. Josef Mengele, the notorious Nazi concentration camp doctor who performed experiments on inmates at Auschwitz.

Justice Minister Moshe Nissim said the prize would be valid for two years. It is sponsored by the government and the World Zionist Organization, a federation of Jewish bodies outside Israel, it said.

Nissim's announcement, released by his office, followed President Reagan's Sunday visit to a German war cemetery at Bitburg, West Germany.

It said Israel's commitment to capturing and trying Nazi war criminals was growing, especially "when we are witness now to expressions of conciliation and forgiveness for those who committed the largest of horrors since God created mankind."

The Nazi regime is believed to have killed 6 million Jews, and millions of Slavs, Gypsies and others deemed racially undesirable.

Mengele has been reported hiding in Paraguay, but the government of the South American nation denies he is there. He would be 73 if still alive.

Mengele is accused of conducting brutal experiments on inmates at Auschwitz, particularly dwarfs and twins, and of personally selecting thousands of people for the gas chamber.

Pitt Boy Scouts Win Two Camporee Blue Ribbons

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Over the past weekend, nearly 1,800 people — Boy Scouts and their adult advisers — attended the encampment of the East Carolina Council held at Camp Bonner North in Beaufort County.

The council, which covers 40 eastern North Carolina counties, ranges geographically from Roanoke Rapids to Bailey, Jacksonville and the Outer Banks.

"This encampment was special to us," commented Bill Plueddemann, Pitt County district Scout commissioner, "because it marks the 75th anniversary, the jubilee of Scouting. Boy Scouts is the longest, continuously operating organization for youths in America. Each Scout attending was given a special shoulder patch to mark Scouting's 75th anniversary."

The encampment site, Camp Bonner North, Plueddemann pointed out, "is the largest permanent Boy Scout campsite in the U.S. We used six different areas to take care of the Scouts and visitors during the encampment."

The encampment "actually got under way Thursday, with the staff going down then to get things in readiness. The boys began arriving about noon Friday and stayed until mid-day Sunday."

Of the nearly 1,800 from the East Carolina Council area, attendance from troops in the Gold Area, which is Pitt County, "accounted for 268 Scouts and their adult leaders," Plueddemann said.

Major activities carried out by the Scouts included a first-aid type event, a bandage relay; signalling exercises; knot tying; a rescue relay, and a quiz on Scouting. "We had one deaf troop from Wilson who demonstrated the use of hand language in giving signals," Plueddemann said. "Also, during the weekend about 200 Cub Scouts and their parents visited the encampment."

"Two patrols from Pitt County won blue ribbons, the highest awards given during the camporee," Plueddemann said. The two are the Flaming Arrow Patrol, Marc Setliff, patrol leader, and Troop 30, Neal Creech, patrol leader.

Council recognition was also given to outstanding patrol flags. Those cited were the Cherokee, Frontiers and Beaver patrols, with David Allen, Patrick Stanforth and Eric Moody, patrol leaders, respectively.

"The flag ceremony, Saturday night was very impressive," Plueddemann remarked. "More than 300 flags were carried in the march onto the event field. After the flag ceremony we sang songs, pledged allegiance to the flag, and the evening ended with a display of fireworks." Joe Goodson and Dr. Charles H. Moore coordinated the flags ceremony and other Saturday night activities.

The final event on Sunday was an interdenominational church service conducted by Dr. Maurice Ankram.

Plueddemann praised the efforts of several Pitt County Scout leaders for their roles in the 75th anniversary encampment — Bernard Hasselrig, events chief for the Gold Area; Pat Williamson, Wayne Ross and Wayne Bryant, registrars, and Jack Farrior, who furnished the cooking gear used. "There were other volunteers from Pitt County, about 15 of them. All helped make this a successful encampment," Plueddemann said.

Conference On Human Rights Delayed By Agenda Haggling

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

OTTAWA (AP) — Impasses over ground rules and agenda forced postponement of today's scheduled opening of an assembly of 35 nations to review compliance with human rights pledges signed a decade ago at Helsinki, Finland.

Delegates met throughout the night, but failed to agree on an agenda and time limits for the meeting, or on whether sessions should be open to the public.

When the weary representatives gave up after 8 a.m., their Canadian hosts rescheduled the opening address by Foreign Secretary Joe Clark — previously set at 10:30 a.m. — for late afternoon.

"It is a pity it came out the way it did, or rather didn't come out the way it didn't," said Arthur Watts, deputy head of the British delegation.

Richard Schifter, the U.S. ambassador, said he believed the conference could move into its substantive work immediately after Clark's welcome, but he acknowledged that the Soviet delegation was likely to disagree.

Both Watts and Schifter said they did not think the breakdown should threaten the entire conference, expected to last six weeks.

"We are not looking for compromise over words," Shifter said. "We are looking for actions which are not going to be taken here, but in the various nations."

Once the assembly opens, the United States and its Western allies are expected to accuse the Soviet Union and East bloc countries of systematic violations of the Helsinki accords.

Western officials said the Soviet Union argued that the entire conference should take place behind closed doors.

"They're dead set against any publicity," Schifter said in an interview.

Schifter said the main American presentation, expected later this week, would accuse the Soviets of disregarding key sections of the accords.

"They really are not paying attention to it," he said. "We have to get the message to them that this is important to us."

Schifter said he would cite Soviet violations of the accords with particular concern for the repression of members of groups established to monitor compliance with the Helsinki provisions.

Schifter said at least 38 Helsinki Watch activists have been jailed or banished in the Soviet Union.

The Soviets are expected to criticize the United States for its race relations, unemployment and housing problems, and failure to guarantee women's rights in the constitution.

Harry Jay, Canada's ambassador to the conference, said his country would try "to draw attention to particular situations around the world in a nonpolemical, non-confrontational way."

Before leaving Moscow last month, Soviet Ambassador Vsevolod Sofinsky said each participating country should be limited to discussing its own human rights affairs.

"Discussion of human rights in other countries would not contribute to the success of the conference and would only lead to confrontation," Sofinsky was quoted as saying by the government news agency Novosti.

Western delegates said the Soviet representative took the same position in the preparatory sessions, but had no chance of prevailing.

Many groups interested in human rights issues have sent representatives to Ottawa to keep an eye on the proceedings, hold demonstrations and publicize their causes.

The Canadian Committee for Captive European Nations presented statements from officials of 14 organizations urging the Western countries to take a harder line toward the Soviet Union.

"All the attention we can give definitely will help the situation of the prisoners of conscience and those in psychiatric institutions and slave labor camps," said Olaf Tammark, chairman of the Relief Committee of Estonian Prisoners of Conscience in the USSR.

At a news conference Monday, officials of several groups called for greater freedom for Jews in the Soviet Union.

"The case of Soviet Jewry is one of the most blatant violations of human rights in the Soviet Union," said Steven Roth, chairman of the Helsinki Monitoring Committee of the World Conference on Soviet Jewry.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened higher today after posting slim gains Monday, but confusion continued about the course of interest rates and the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.32 points at 1,250.11 in the first half hour of trading today, with more stocks rising in price than falling on the New York Stock Exchange.

Companies involved in mergers and restructurings continued to dominate trading.

Uniroyal, which agreed late Monday to be acquired and taken private for $22 a share by a group including its management and the New York investment firm of Clayton & Dubilier, rose ¾ to 20¼ in the early going.

Mobil, which said Monday it is scaling down its troubled Montgomery Ward & Co. to prepare the retail chain for the independent operation, fell ¾ to 32¼.

Meanwhile, traders were looking for further clues on the economy's performance.

Several analysts say the economic is picking up strength following a sluggish performance in the first quarter.

But not everyone is convinced, and interest rates have been falling in credit markets because of expectations that subpar growth will allow the Federal Reserve to accommodate even lower interest rates.

the city schools staff.

Three budget amendments for the current 1984-85 budget were approved. No. 6 in current expense is for an increase of $3,851, for a year's total of $3,969,730; No. 5 for state funds is for an increase of $7,880, bringing the state allocation for 1984-85 to $7,852,636, and amendment No. 1 for federal funds is for an increase of $314,221, bringing the federal fund total for 1984-85 to $1,099,811. The significant increase in federal funding represents the difference from early projected allocations and the final allocations federal agencies were able to provide.

Two field trips were approved. One is for students at Wahl-Coates to take a one-day trip to Busch Gardens as part of their studies of Europe. The other is for students of the Greenville Elementary Honors Bands from South Greenville and Wahl-Coates to take a summer trip on June 27 to Charlotte to perform at the national convention of the American School Band Directors. Expenses for this trip will be paid by the Greenville City Band Boosters Club.

Blinson reported to the board that chances are good that the city will authorize the use of the Agnes Fullilove facility for another year, provided action be taken to correct a number of deficiencies. "It will take about $5,000 to make the repairs indicated by the city inspector as necessary," Blinson said, "and it must be emphasized these are temporary. We are on notice by the city that if extensive renovations are not carried out soon, action will have to be taken to condemn the building."

Two teachers, Emalynn Colardo and Elaine Tschetter, were presented to the board and congratulated on their recent selection as one of six exemplary teachers nationally for the nutrition program the two devised and carried out in the city schools.

The presentation of an early childhood "Sequential Development of Language" program at the kindergarten level was presented by Dr. Sal DeMarco of the speech, language and auditory pathology department of East Carolina University. The program, funded by a federal grant made two years ago, is one to determine the development of language learning approaches involving sound and vision. It has been carried out primarily at the kindergarten level in the city schools, but has also involved the cooperation of staff members at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Pre-School Program and the Pitt Community College Pre-School Program.

In executive session, two interim elections, three resignations, three retirements, and one election to career status were approved.

inspection fee is $5.

Commissioners also approved the awarding of contracts for internal construction and heating and air conditioning work on the new mental health building, after architect James G. Hite recommended a contract to Farrior and Sons for $117,490 for the interior construction general contract and Kinston Plumbing and Heating for $44,782 for the plumbing and heating work.

Hite reminded that Farrior and Sons was awarded a contract totaling $210,300 for site work and construction of the building shell several months ago.

He said that including the electrical work, which has not been awarded as yet, the total project should cost no more than the $450,000 budgeted for the project.

The board adopted a resolution — to be presented Wednesday at the state Board of Transportation's Division 2 meeting, designed to receive public input on the update of the Transportation Improvement Program — outlining a schedule of priorities for inclusion in the 1985-1994 TIP.

The projects listed include: completion of all sections of new U.S. 264 from Wilson to Washington, including the northern Farmville Bypass and the Northwest loop of Greenville "as soon as possible;" widening of Evans Street to a five-lane curb and gutter section from U.S. 264 business to U.S. 264 by-pass; construct a four-lane facility (Arlington Boulevard) from Hooker Road to U.S. 264 now under construction; 14th Street — construct five-lane curb and gutter section from Charles Street to U.S. 264 and four-lane curb and gutter section from U.S. 264 to Secondary Road 1725 at Red Banks Church; Dickinson Avenue — construct four-lane curb and gutter section from Reade Circle to West End Circle; widen existing two-lane N.C. 33 from east of the city limits of Greenville to SR 1726; construct a four-lane connector from future U.S. 264 to N.C. 11 south of Pitt Community College (Greenville southwest loop); replace Greene Street bridge crossing the Tar River in accordance with the Federal Bridge Replacement Program, and build a rest area on the northern Farmville Bypass as part of the U.S. 264 relocation project.

In other business, commissioners reappointed Vernon E. White as a member of the board of trustees of Pitt Community College; adopted a revised affirmative action plan; approved the application for three grants by the Mental Health Department (a $13,000 Community Based Alternatives grant, a $34,000 Children's Trust Fund grant, and a $50,000 grant for prevention, treatment and early detection of chemically dependent women), and formally endorsed advanced life support (intra-venous level training) for the Farmville Rescue Squad.

Commissioners also approved a contract between the Department of Social Services and the Sheriff's Department under which the DDS will pay the cost of one deputy sheriff (with 70 percent federal funds) to serve legal papers for the DDS's child support enforcement program; approved three projects recommended by the Pitt County Juvenile Task Force for funding for the coming fiscal year (Project Care at Agnes Fullilove School, the Juvenile Services Restitution Program and the in-school suspension program at Greenville Middle School for a total of $83,191), and agreed to pursue an appeal of the Stroud Wholesale bankruptcy case.

The federal bankruptcy court had authorized the sale of the Stroud Wholesale property and subordinated the county's tax liens in the distribution of the proceeds from the sale. But U.S. Eastern District Court Judge Earl Britt, hearing the case on appeal, ruled that the bankruptcy court erred and that Pitt County should recover the tax on the property.

County Attorney W.H. Watson told commissioners Monday that the bankruptcy trustee has appealed the District Court's decision to the Court of Appeals.

be sufficient to complete the project.

Mayor Janice B. Buck will present the list on behalf of the city at a DOT public hearing Wednesday at the Willis Building in Greenville. Also making presentations in support of the list will be representatives from Pitt County government, the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and East Carolina University.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday morning passed a resolution designating the same priorities for highway improvement targeted by the city in later Monday action. In addition, the board elected to ask the City Council to include an additional item on the list — installation of a rest station at the eastern bypass of Farmville. Council members declined to add the item to the list, saying they preferred a commissioners' representative to make a verbal request for the rest station at the public hearing.

Information gathered at the Greenville DOT public hearing and others will be used to update the state's 10-year improvement program. DOT's plan for 1986 should be approved toward the end of 1985.

Alston, Emory Pace Rose Win

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Van Alston blasted a pair of two-run homers, but it took a two-out single by Battle Emory to drive in Tyrone Jones with the game-winning run in the bottom of the seventh as the Rose Rampants rallied past Wilson Beddingfield 5-4 Monday in Big East 4-A baseball.

"I just thank the Lord for Van Alston tonight," Rose Coach Ronald Vincent sighed. "He really picked us up twice and kept us in the game."

Alston finished with three hits, while Emory added a pair. Winning pitcher Steve Wall slapped two doubles en route to running his record to 8-3 on the season.

"I thought Steve Wall pitched well, but we didn't do much to back him up on defense," Vincent said. "Tyrone Jones made a couple of good plays early in right field, and Doyle Kirkland at second had a good game."

Beddingfield took a 3-0 lead after the fourth inning, but Eric Jarman walked before Alston ripped the ball over the fence in left field to trim the margin to 3-2 in the bottom of the fifth. Wall followed with his second double, and courtesy runner Lenny Langley went to third on a wild pitch. Langley attempted to score when the ball got past Beddingfield's catcher but was thrown out at the plate.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 7, 1985

Rose opened the seventh inning the same way, with Jarman drawing a base on balls and Alston sending the ball over the fence in left-center to knot the score 4-4. After Wall grounded out, Jones walked, stole second and went to third on a passed ball.

Pinch hitter Travis King struck out, and James Matthews followed with a base on balls. Emory looped the ball to right-center for the game-winning RBI.

"Battle just hit the ball where it was pitched," Vincent said. "(Beddingfield's) Charlie Atkinson is a tough pitcher to hit. He's deceptive; he's got a good pickoff move, and he took us out of some opportunities early."

Jarman singled after one out in the first, but Atkinson caught him flat-footed for the second out. Alston followed with a single, and Wall and Jones drew walks which would have forced in a run. Instead, Scott Davis popped out to end the inning without incident.

The Rampants missed another opportunity in the second. Matthews walked, and Langley — again as a courtesy runner — went to second on a balk. But Atkinson whirled around to trap Langley for the first out, and the Bruins escaped unscathed again.

Beddingfield took the lead in the top of the first when leadoff hitter Russell Best singled, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on a two-out single by Shane Baker.

In the fourth, Greg Lamm walked, went to second on a sacrifice, took third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Chuck Maddry. Maddry stole second, then scored after two outs on an error of a grounder hit by Baker as the Bruins took a 3-0 lead.

Beddingfield added another run in the sixth as Best ripped a leadoff single, moved to second on another sacrifice by Maddry, took third on a passed ball and scored on an infield single by Baker to expand the margin to 4-2.

Alston and Emory's heroics lifted the Rampants' record to 11-7 overall while 5-5 in the Big East. Rose returns to action tonight against Kinston at 7:30 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

Kelly, Gamblers Top Breakers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland Coach Dick Coury says you won't find a better quarterback than Jim Kelly or a faster football team than the Houston Gamblers.

The combination of Kelly's arm and the Gamblers' blazing speed overwhelmed Coury's Breakers 45-7 Monday night, allowing Houston to regain sole possession of first place in the Western Conference of the United States Football League.

Richard Johnson, returning to full speed after a series of annoying injuries, caught a USFL record four scoring passes. He was just one of several Houston speedsters who exploited the slow-footed Breakers.

"They're as quick as anybody's ever had," Coury said of the pass catchers who do most of the damage in the Gamblers' "run-and-shoot" offense.

Kelly had another big game, boosting his season's touchdown pass total to 35. He completed 32 of 45 passes for 348 yards before sitting out the final 12 minutes of the game.

The Gamblers never were forced to punt.

"Kelly must be the best in both leagues," Coury said. "His offense is one of the main things that pulled them through."

Johnson said he was glad to regain the Houston quarterback's confidence.

"I was hurt for awhile and he kind of shied away from me," he said. "I couldn't perform like I knew I could. Now I think I'm back."

Johnson, who led the USFL with 115 catches last season, has been bothered by a pulled hamstring, sprained ankle and inflamed toe this year. But he said he felt fine Monday night.

"This is the type of night we always expect to have," he said. "We pretty much know we can score every time we get the football."

Kelly, who also scrambled 11 yards for a touchdown, said it's great to have Johnson and another swift receiver, Ricky Sanders, back in good health.

"To be a great quarterback you've got to have great people around you," Kelly said. "When I have all our receivers healthy, it makes me look good."

All of the Gamblers looked good.

"There's no doubt in my mind this was the best game we've played all year," said Houston Coach Jack Pardee.

The 5-foot-9 Johnson, in his fourth pro season from Colorado, had scoring catches of 1, 11, and 49 yards in the first half, then added a 7-yard catch late in the third quarter. He wound up with 10 receptions for 167 yards.

Houston scored on each of its five first-half possessions to blow open a 31-7 lead, with Kelly completing 23 of 32 passes for 276 yards in the first 30 minutes alone.

Houston, 8-3, won its third in a row — all on the road — and pulled a half-game ahead of Oakland in the Western Conference race.

Portland, 3-8, lost for the fourth straight week and continued to suffer from a severe lack of offense.

"We were never in it," said Coury. "We just evidently aren't as good as I thought we'd be. We just don't have anyone on offense that's a real threat, with any quickness."

The Breakers, playing at home for the first time in a month, drew a crowd of 18,457. There were plenty of boos from the few who stayed until the end.

Portland's only touchdown came in the second quarter on a penalty-aided, 75-yard drive that ended with Harold Ricks scoring on a 1-yard run.

Buford Jordan, seeing his first extensive game action in seven weeks due to a hamstring injury, gained 81 yards on 14 carries for Portland.

Breaker quarterbacks Doug Woodward and Matt Robinson combined to complete only 7 of 34 passes for 95 yards.

Giants Utilize DeLeon's Wildness, 7-5

By The Associated Press
 Jose DeLeon continues to remain an enigma to himself and to the Pittsburgh Pirates.
 "I finally get a lead and there it goes without anybody even hitting the ball," DeLeon said after his wildness allowed the San Francisco Giants to rally past the Pirates 7-5 Monday night.

The loss dropped DeLeon to 0-5 this season. He has dropped 14 of 15 games over the past two years despite several sparkling outings during that span.

The major problem he's encountered has been a lack of support. When he went 7-13 last season, Pittsburgh was shut out in six of the losses and scored just one run in five other defeats.

When the Pirates gave DeLeon a 3-2 lead going into the sixth inning against San Francisco, it was the first time he had been in front this season.

But DeLeon, who struck out nine in the first five innings, allowed the first five batters to reach base in the sixth, three on walks, as the Giants scored four times for a 6-3 lead.

"Jose has all the stuff in the world — you have to in order to strike out nine in five innings — but he got a lead and he was too fine, too tentative," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner.

The game was one of only three in the major leagues on Monday. In the other two, both in the National League, Los Angeles beat Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings and St. Louis downed San Diego 5-2.

Chili Davis walked to start the San Francisco sixth but was picked off first by catcher Tony Pena. DeLeon then walked Gary Rajsich and Bob Brenly around Chris Brown's infield single to load the bases.

Jose Uribe singled home Rajsich and then Scot Thompson, batting only .139, cracked a two-run single off reliever Cecilio Guante. Uribe then scored on Dan Gladden's grounder.

Bill Laskey, 1-3, pitched five innings for the victory. The Pirates scored twice in the seventh off reliever Greg Minton to pull within 6-5 before Brenly homered — his third — in the eighth to give the Giants a 7-5 margin.

Pittsburgh tried to come from behind in the ninth against reliever Mark Davis, putting runners on second and third with two outs.

Scott Garrelts was then summoned from the bullpen to face Bill Madlock. Garrelts induced Madlock to pop up for the final out and his second save.

"If you had brought me into this game last year, I would have been timid," Garrelts said. "This year I've changed and I feel comfortable. I want to get into the game. Last year, I didn't. I just went to the ballpark to show up."

Dodgers 5, Cubs 4

Mike Scioscia belted a two-run homer in the ninth inning off Chicago reliever Lee Smith to send the game into extra innings, and an error by rookie shortstop Shawn Dunston enabled Los Angeles to score the tie-breaking run in the 10th at Wrigley Field.

Candy Maldonado singled off Ray Fontenot, 0-1, to start the 10th and took third on a single by Ken Landreaux. Pedro Guerrero then hit a grounder that skipped past Dunston, allowing Maldonado to score. Mike Marshall bounced an RBI single past Chicago's drawn-in infield to make it 5-3.

Ron Cey homered for the Cubs to lead off the bottom of the 10th. Ken Howell, 2-1, got the victory.

Cardinals 5, Padres 2
 Willie McGee went 4-for-4, including two doubles, to lead host St. Louis over San Diego. McGee's second double was a run-scoring

Bowa Wants New Team

CHICAGO (AP) — Backup shortstop Larry Bowa has asked to be traded, but Chicago Cubs President and General Manager Dallas Green isn't sure he can help the frustrated veteran find more playing time.

Green on Monday said that Bowa's agent, Jack Sands of Boston, had formally asked for a trade on behalf of his client.

"I don't know that I can better the situation for Larry Bowa ... at 39 years old," Greensaid.

Bowa, who lost his starting job to rookie Shawn Dunston in spring training, was not specific when asked Monday if he could live with being the backup shortstop.

"That's what I am, the backup shortstop," said Bowa.

There has been some talk that Bowa might return to the Philadelphia Phillies, but Green said that was not likely.

"I talked to the Phillies when we were trying to get our roster down to 25 players before the season opened," said Green. "They brought up Bowa's name and I told them I hadn't even thought about it."

"There has been no conversation with the Phillies since that date on Larry Bowa nor do I intend to have any," he said.

Preakness Manager Sees No Trend If Buck Passes

BALTIMORE, AP — The lure of immediate big bucks may rob the Preakness Stakes of the Kentucky Derby winner this year, but General Manager Chick Lang of Pimlico Race Course sees no developing trend.

"I have no fear that this will mess up the Triple Crown," Lang said Monday of the $600,000 first prize and the $2 million bonus which Derby winner Spend A Buck could claim for owner Dennis Diaz by capturing the Jersey Derby at Garden State Park.

Spend A Buck, purchased for the bargain basement price of $12,500 as a yearling, qualified for the special bonus offered by Garden State by winning the Cherry Hill mile and the Garden State Stakes at the rebuilt track.

"It was a million-to-one shot," Lang insisted. "It may never happen again."

The 1 1/4-mile Jersey Derby will be run May 27, nine days after the 1 3/16-mile Preakness. After Spend A Buck ran the third fastest Derby in history last Saturday, Diaz said that he would not consider running his 3-year-old colt in both races.

He promised an early decision, but when the wire-to-wire Derby winner was shipped to Garden State on Monday, trainer Cam Gambolati said he would delay a decision until after a Thursday morning workout.

Diaz, meanwhile, reportedly had begun talks in Kentucky with William S. Farish III, who has expressed interest in purchasing into the colt as the first step toward syndication.

Farish, whose colt Bee Bee Bee scored an upset in the slop to win the 1972 Preakness over Riva Ridge, is a steward of The Jockey Club and a racing traditionalist. If he has a choice, Farish undoubtedly would prefer that Spend A Buck be pointed for the Preakness and Belmont Stakes in an effort to become the 12th Triple Crown champion.

The Triple Crown events are all Grade I races, the highest classification that can be given a stakes race, while the Jersey Derby is rated Grade III, a factor which could have an effect on future stud prices.

"In the breeders' game, everyone knows the Triple Crown is the ultimate prize," said Lang, who also contended that such a champion could conceivably be syndicated for up to $40 million.

While awaiting word from Diaz, Pimlico officials also looked toward Wednesday's Withers Stakes at Belmont Park and their own Preakness Prep on Saturday for Preakness starters.

George Steinbrenner's Image of Greatness will go in the one-mile Withers, while local favorite Roo Art heads the field for the Preakness Prep.

Lang said three Kentucky Derby competitors, including beaten-favorite Chief's Crown, Skywalker and Eternal Prince, were considered definite Preakness starters. Other possibilities from the Derby were Proud Truth and Tank's Prospect, who like Image of Greatness is saddled by D. Wayne Lukas.

Lukas said if Image of Greatness fails to do well in the Withers, he likely would send Tank's Prospect to Pimlico. If Image of Greatness does well, there is a possibility both would be entered.

In that event, the trainer's entry would be joined by Eternal Prince, since both he and Image of Greatness include Steinbrenner in the ownership, and become a three-way betting interest.

West Carteret Captures Title

JACKSONVILLE — West Carteret slipped by Havelock to win the Coastal 3-A golf tournament championship Monday.

West Carteret was tied with Havelock at 326 after 18 holes, and the fifth player's score was used to break the deadlock. D.H. Conley followed with 337 and host White Oak trailed with 350.

Jeff Johnson of Havelock was the tourney medalist with a 75.

John Pinner and Russ Edwards each shot 82 for Conley, while Hall Dunn added an 85, and John Parker and Paul Emerson 88.

Pinner was named to the All-Conference team, which consisted of the six lowest scores.

Conley finished twurd in the regular season Coastal Conference standings, and concludes its schedule Thursday against Ayden-Grifton in a dual match.

Ragan Expected To Make Full Recovery

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — Doctors said a stock car driver is expected to recover completely from a crash that fractured his neck, but that he probably will not be able to return to race tracks this year.

Ken Ragan's condition was changed from critical to fair on Monday and he was moved from the intensive care unit to the orthopedics section of Northeast Alabama Regional Medical Center.

The 34-year-old Ragan was leading the Permatex 500-kilometer race Saturday, travelling more than 190 mph with nine laps to go, when his car slid through oil and slammed into a concrete wall at Alabama International Motor Speedway at Talladega.

He underwent neck surgery that night. Ragan also suffered two cracked ribs and torn knee ligaments.

Hospital officials said there was no paralysis associated with the neck injury.

Ragan was World Karting Association national champion in 1977. He runs an automobile dealership in Urack at more than 195.828 mph. The car was driven in that race by Bosco Lowe and finished in 17th place.

Will MacKenzie banged out three hits in helping Pepsi-Cola to a 12-10 victory over the Moose in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

Pepsi scored first, rushing across six runs in the second inning. The Moose rallied for two in the bottom of the frame, but Pepsi scored three more in the top of the third. The Moose came back with four in the bottom of the inning to cut the lead to 9-6.

Then in the fourth, Pepsi scored three times to wrap it up. John Gavigan walked with one away as did Paul Allen. Richie Grimsley reached on a fielder's choice that erased Allen. Both runners then scored on a triple by MacKenzie, who later scored the final run on a wild pitch.

The Moose rallied for four more in the fifth, but fell two short.

Jeff Wilkins hit a three-run double to spark the Optimists to a 4-3 rally over Coca-Cola in the North State Little League yesterday.

Coke took the lead in the first inning, scoring all three of its runs then.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the sixth inning, when the Optimists pulled off their game-winning rally. Mike Beland led off with a walk, and Kevin Kirkland also walked. With one away, Mitch Jones walked, loading the bases. Wilkins then followed with a double, driving in all three runs. Wilkins advanced on a passed ball and had to stay when Rod Whitley beat out an infield hit. Milton Carawan followed with a single, scoring Wilkins with the game-ending run.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Utah Jazz Hope To Avoid Elimination

By The Associated Press

There's only one way to overcome a 3-1 disadvantage in a best-of-7 series, says Utah Coach Frank Layden. Take it one game at a time. "I don't think you look at three games," Layden said before meeting the Denver Nuggets tonight in Game 5 at McNichols Arena. "You look at one. You go there and try to win one. Then they have to come back here (to Salt Lake City) and you try to win one game. You can't start wishing your life away, thinking of three games."

The Jazz, whose rally from 24 points back against the Nuggets fell short in the final minute Sunday night, will be eliminated from the Western Conference semifinals if they lose again.

"We're in a hole and there are only two things we can do," said forward Thurl Bailey. "Get out of it or go home. And we don't want to go home yet."

Tonight's other Western Conference semifinal has Portland at Los Angeles to meet the Lakers, who lead the series 3-1.

On Wednesday, Detroit is at Boston. The winner of that series, tied at 2-2, faces Philadelphia, a 4-0 winner over Milwaukee, in the Eastern Conference finals.

The Denver-Utah series could also have been tied 2-2 as the Jazz reduced a 62-38 Denver lead to one point with 30 seconds remaining.

"It was a great game for us," Nuggets Coach Doug Moe said. "Naturally, when you're up 3-1 you feel pretty good but you can't relax. It takes four games to win. Also, if we do advance to the next round, we need some rest. We'd certainly like to finish it Tuesday."

The series started with Utah's 7-foot-4 defensive star, Mark Eaton, out with torn knee ligaments. But the injury lists have evened out.

The Nuggets' Dan Issel played

Sunday although his right ring finger was in a plastic cast. He sank a crucial 22-foot bank shot in the final minute, putting Denver ahead by three points.

Issel is listed as probable for Game 5, but point guard Lafayette Lever is out. He underwent arthroscopic knee surgery Monday night and a team spokesman said he would be sidelined seven-to-10 days even if no major damage was found.

Lever had been a standout, averaging 17 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists in the first three games before he hyperextended his left knee at the close of Game 3. Rookie Willie White will start in his place.

Portland stayed alive Sunday night with a 115-107 victory over the Lakers, their first loss in seven playoff games.

"It's win a game so we have a chance to win another," guard Jim Paxson said. "One thing that impresses you about the Lakers is that they bounce back quickly."

The Lakers have won 21 straight games the Forum.

"They'll be ready Tuesday night," Paxson said. "They know they can wrap it up at home. There's nobody who expects us to win that game. Nobody in Portland, nobody anywhere."

"I think they've got the feeling they know they're going to win. Just a matter of time."

The Trail Blazers forced 28 Los Angeles turnovers Sunday with a surprise trapping defense.

"We haven't been trapped in a while and we didn't do a good job handling it, but we'll be ready next time," said Michael Cooper, who turned the ball over nine times.

The 76ers are happy to have a week off to nurse some aches and pains.

"The rest also will allow us to regroup emotionally," Coach Billy Cunningham said. "It's very difficult to sustain that peak attitude. We have to begin building to another pitch."

Despite acknowledging that the 76ers would get a homecourt advantage if Detroit beats Boston, Philadelphia center Moses Malone said, "It doesn't matter who we play. As long as we prepare ourselves, we'll be all right."

Malone added, jokingly, "If we could play any team next, I'd pick Indiana," which shared the worst record in the NBA with Golden State.

The Brook Valley Ladies Golf Association held a Superball tournament at Brook Valley this past weekend.

Top Class Spread Thin

By The Associated Press

If the heavyweight division were a horse race, it would be a claiming race, not the Kentucky Derby.

There is barely enough talent to supply challengers to one champion, let alone three.

But it's unlikely there will be one champion as long as Larry Holmes continues to fight, and it appears that might be until he loses.

The 35-year-old Holmes, recognized as champion by the International Boxing Federation, is unbeaten in 47 pro fights and has earned the right to be called the world's premier heavyweight, although critics question the caliber of several of Holmes' more recent opponents.

Holmes, who had said his fight against David Bey last March 15 would be his last, will get $2.5 million to fight Carl "The Truth" Williams May 20 at Reno, Nev.

The truth is that Williams, who is 16-0, is untested, and for the kind of money Holmes is getting to fight him on NBC, why would he risk his unbeaten record to fight big, strong Pinklon Thomas or Tim Witherspoon. Witherspoon almost beat Holmes in 1983 when Larry held the World Council title.

Thomas now is the WBC champion and will make his first defense June 15 against Mike Weaver, the hard-punching former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, who appears to be on the down side of his career.

But a cloud hangs over Thomas.

He recently underwent an eye examination ordered by the WBC. The Council's president, Jose Sulaiman, said the 27-year-old Thomas had undergone retinal surgery, but had passed the examination.

The WBA champion is unbeaten Tony Tubbs, an unexciting counter puncher, who lacks power.

Tubbs, who at least works at his profession, won the title April 29 over Greg Page, who possesses a lot of talent, but hardly any self-discipline.

Page, weighing 239½, jiggled and jounced around a ring in Buffalo for 15 dull rounds against Tubbs in losing for the third time in four fights.

The 26-year-old Page won the WBA title when he knocked out South African Gerrie Coetzee in an eighth round than ran 48 seconds past the three-minute limit.

But given a chance to make something of his sagging career after getting a title shot he didn't deserve, Page reverted to the form he showed in the uninspired 12-round decision losses to Witherspoon for the vacant WBC title and to Bey that preceded the Coetzee fight.

Greg Page has become an opponent.

Another heavyweight who seems to seriously train at the dinner table is James Broad, who hoped to use his fight against Witherspoon on the Tubbs-Page card as a stepping stone to a title shot.

So he came in at 261 pounds and got knocked out in the second round.

As Broad slumped to the canvas along the ropes, he looked like a 261-pound bag of sand with a hole in the bottom.

Witherspoon could be the best heavyweight in the world. He looked sleek and mentally sharp for Broad, like a man who now realizes what he had (the title) and realizes boxing is sport where you pay your dues every time out.

A young heavyweight who fought on the Tubbs card who has possibilities is Jose Ribalta, a New Jersey-based Cuban.

He was knocked down in the first round by James "Bonecrusher" Smith, but got up to fight well enough to win clearly. However, Smith got a 10-round split decision.

Generally, though, the pickings are slim.

Coetzee looks to be finished, and Michael Dokes, a former WBA champion, has lost a lot. Bey didn't seem to be in the best of shape for his fight against Holmes, making one wonder if he's willing to pay the price.

By the way, whatever happened to Gerry Cooney?

Kosar May Visit Browns

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar may make an appearance at the Cleveland Browns' minicamp this week, his father says.

The National Football League team gave up its first-round draft pick last week to the Buffalo Bills as part of the deal that could eventually bring Kosar to the Browns.

Kosar may show up at the camp, although he cannot be selected by the Browns until a supplemental draft is held in the summer, said Bernie Kosar Sr.

The younger Kosar is finishing his studies at Miami. He had his last spring exam on Monday and was due home in the northeastern Ohio city of Boardman during his one-week academic break.

Kosar may speak with the Cleveland coaches, but may not discuss contract terms. The Cleveland practices are open to the public.

Meanwhile, the Browns are looking for targets for veteran quarterbacks Paul McDonald and Gary Danielson, and possibly Kosar.

One prospect in camp now is Stanley Shakespeare, a receiver at Miami who is used to Kosar's style.

The 5-10, 175-pound Shakespeare caught 34 passes for 452 yards as a junior and caught 38 for 621 yards last year.

"We like his quickness, the toughness and ability to catch over the middle," said Bill Davis, Browns' personnel director.

Shakespeare, signed by the Browns as a rookie free agent, said he was disappointed about not being taken in the NFL draft, but that he was glad to be on the same team that will likely employ Kosar.

"Now I'm at the point where I've got to start over again, to prove I can play against the best," Shakespeare said.

TURNOVERS HELP

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets, the run-and-shoot team of the NBA, found another way to win a game this winter.

They defeated Phoenix in a game in which they hit a low percentage of their shots. But they pressured the Suns into 34 turnovers.

Coach Doug Moe of the Nuggets was overjoyed. "It was a beautiful victory," he said. "When you can't make a basket to save your life and then create all those scoring opportunities on turnovers, I have to call it a thing of beauty."

Alabama Grabs Three Top Awards, Judds Get A Pair

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — Alabama, a group that features hot fiddle music and well-crafted love songs, became the biggest all-time winner of Academy of Country Music awards by walking away with three top trophies at the 20th annual awards show.

The Judds, a mother-daughter singing team, won two awards — song of the year and vocal duet — for their "Why Not Me."

"If we never win another award, it's been a great career," a giddy lead singer Randy Owen of Alabama said. "But I don't see us getting out of the business. I feel just like a little kid."

Alabama, a four-member band, swept the ceremonies Monday night at Knott's Berry Farm by picking up entertainer of the year, vocal group of the year and album of the year honors, the latter for "Roll On," released on RCA Records. Monday's ceremonies, televised on NBC, brought to 11 the number of Academy of Country Music awards the band has won since 1982, one more than singer Kenny Rogers.

Naomi and Wynonna Judd were the only other multiple winners. "Everybody back in Kentucky is glued to their sets. They're having jug parties tonight!" said daughter Wynonna Judd.

The Judds won a Grammy in February for best country performance by a duo or group for their single "Mama He's Crazy."

Ricky Skaggs won an award for specialty instruments for his mandolin playing, and his Ricky Skaggs Band won for touring ensemble.

Top female vocalist went to Reba McEntire.

"My brother and sister used to tell friends, 'She's not a star, she's just a twinkle,'" Miss McEntire said. "I guess I'm a bigger twinkle now."

Top male vocalist went to George Strait. Willie Nelson and Julio Iglesias' "To All the Girls I've Loved Before" was named top single.

The award for top single was an upset. The duo's "Hat" — named for the cowboy hat atop the trophy — beat out songs by Alabama and the Judds. Nelson, Iglesias and Strait were not on hand to pick up their trophies.

Vince Gill, who won the top new male vocalist award for his song, "True Love," managed a tearful thanks to his wife and daughter before leaving the stage.

Veteran Grand Ole Opry performer Roy Acuff, 81, received the academy's Pioneer Award for his overall achievement in country music. Two of Acuff's songs, "The Great Speckled Bird" and "Wabash Cannonball," are longtime country standards.

Nicolette Larson, once a pop singer, walked away with the top new female vocalist honor.

"A lot of people used to say to me,

'You're country,' and I'd say, 'No, I'm rock,'" Miss Larson said. "I give up. I'm country."

The Tex Ritter award for country movie went to "Songwriter," starring Willie Nelson and Kris Kristoferson as country songwriter-performers who find themselves at odds with their own industry.

Hank Williams Jr. beamed as he accepted the award for "All My Rowdy Friends Are Comin' Over Tonight," the first-ever video award presented by the academy. It also was the first award from the academy for Williams, who recently issued his 50th country album.

The final five nominations in 11 of the categories were selected by the academy's 2,600 eligible members from a list of 10 nominations made by the academy's award selection committee. The members voted again to choose the winner from among the five.

In addition, there were nine instrumental categories, nominated by the academy's musician-bandleader and artist-entertainer branches.

The academy announced in March that Gilley's club of Pasadena, Texas, had won the country nightclub of the year award for the fifth time. It also honored Coyote Calhoun of WAMZ of Louisville, Ky., as large-market country disc jockey of the year, with Billy Parker of KVOO in Tulsa, Okla., and Dan Hollander of WDXE of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., taking honors for medium- and small-market, respectively.

WMC of Memphis was named the academy's large-market radio station of the year, with KVOO and WLWI of Montgomery, Ala., earning top honors in the medium- and small-market categories.

ABC Goes After Youthful Viewers

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC is attempting to regain its traditionally young following with hard-driving cars, hard-driving music and a wise-cracking 17-year-old named Gary Coleman whose series was canceled by NBC only last week.

Third-rated ABC on Monday announced 10 new series for the 1985-86 season, an overhaul that was dominated by changes at 8 p.m. to win teen-agers and young adults away from NBC, which had the top ten series with teen-agers last season.

The main thrust of ABC's four new comedies, three dramas and three action-adventures is "to become dominant in the key 18-49 (years of

Three Categories Eliminated From Tony Awards Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — When Broadway honors the best of the 1984-85 theater season, there will be no Tony awards for outstanding actor and actress in a musical or for choreography, an unprecedented move prompted by a dearth of quality productions.

"Big River," a musical version of Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," and the Royal Shakespeare Company each captured 10 Tony award nominations Monday, but three musical categories were eliminated because there weren't enough qualified candidates.

The decision by the 11-member Tony nominating committee follows last week's ruling by the Tony administration committee to eliminate the best actress-musical category because only one performer, Leilani Jones of "Grind," met the eligibility requirements. She received a nomination in the supporting category Monday. "The word on top of the ballot is 'outstanding' and the Tonys always try to stand for excellence, and we thought that none of the people were outstanding," said Henry Hewes, a member of the nominating committee. "We thought it was in the best interest of the theater and the Tonys not to present a slate of people who had not performed excellently in their art."

The decision by the nominating committee reflects what many Broadway professionals consider to be the poorest musical season on Broadway in years, in terms of quality and quantity of shows.

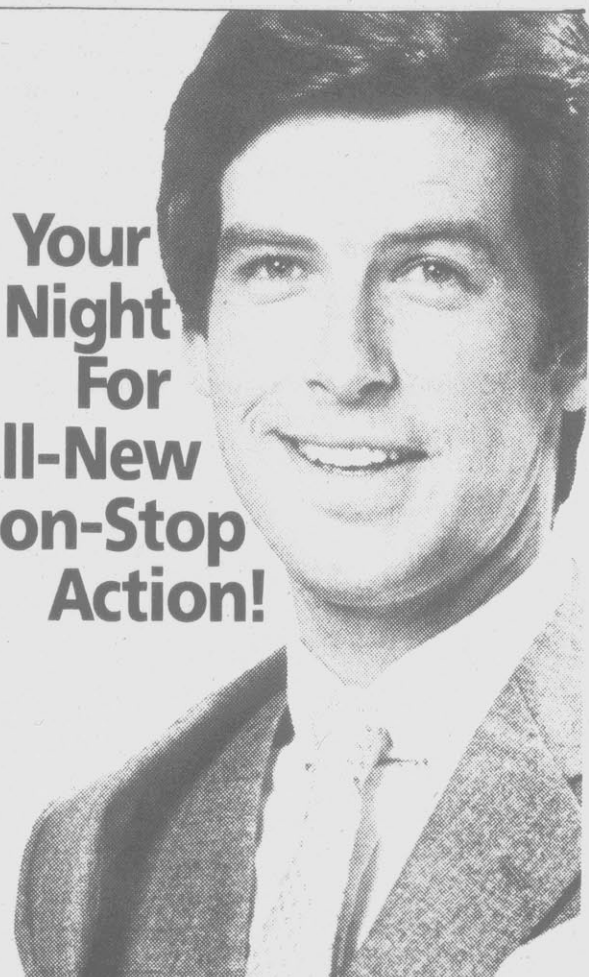

"This has never happened before. The nominating committee has never actually refused to nominate an entire category," said Richard Barr, president of the League of American Theaters and Producers. "If they feel so strongly, I suppose that's what we're going to have to live with, even though I don't necessarily agree with all of their decisions."

"Big River" picked up 10 nominations including one for best musical.

Legislative Ethics Panel Studies Complaint

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Allegations of "very serious" misconduct have been raised against at least one state legislator, prompting a closed-door meeting of the Legislative Ethics Committee, sources say.

"It is very serious and it is very sad," a state representative said Monday on condition that he not be identified. He said he was familiar with the allegations but would not give details.

The ethics panel was scheduled to meet today at noon, according to its chairman, Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston.

He also declined to say what would be discussed, but said the meeting would be in executive session in accordance with a state law permitting legislative committees to meet privately "in order to prevent personal embarrassment" of a lawmaker.

Sources differed on whether one or two legislators was involved. A knowledgeable legislator said that the matter arose from a complaint against one lawmaker and that the name of another "has been mentioned."

The identities of the legislators could not be confirmed. Sources said they included a senator and a representative from the same county.

Sources said the allegations came from people outside the Legislature and that the lawmaker or lawmakers involved had not presented their side of the story.

A senator who asked not to be identified called the allegations "so serious that the whole business might be out of our hands."

The Legislative Ethics Committee is a nine-member panel. Both the House and Senate have four members, and they take turns supplying a fifth member who serves as chairman.

This year, Rauch is the fifth Senate member.

Although it has met several times this session, the committee has dealt with no controversial matters. It recently compiled a list of guidelines for legislators on such matters as use of office telephones.

MAKING THE EFFORT — Sometimes, it really is the effort that counts. That must be the way Bryan Darrow, 4, of Penn Yan, N.Y., felt after borrowing his father's softball gear to play catch with a friend. The problem, of course, was that none of the equipment fit the youngster. (AP Laserphoto)

Advocacy Group Seeks Elimination Of Physical Punishment In Schools

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to let local education boards outlaw "barbaric" spanking and other physical punishment is needed to protect pupils from abuse, a child advocacy group leader says.

"It's an important, symbolic step toward saying that children are not a separate class of citizens that we are going to let be hit," said John Niblock, director of the North Carolina Child Advocacy Institute.

Corporal punishment "is barbaric, outdated and anachronistic," Niblock said Monday after Rep. Marie Colton, D-Buncombe, filed her bill.

"Under state law as it is, corporal punishment is the law of the land," said Ms. Colton. She said the measure was designed to encourage city and county systems whose leaders "think there are better ways to discipline children."

Under the bill, even if a local unit bans spanking, "reasonable force" would be acceptable to control an unruly student, take away a weapon, or protect innocent people.

The bill would give local superintendents and principals "a freedom they should have had all along," Niblock said. Many local systems already discourage paddling, Ms. Colton said.

In other legislative action: Sen. Bill Martin, D-Guilford, filed a bill to provide an income tax credit for low-income people's food tax payments.

The bill also would exempt food stamp purchases from the sales tax and replace the across-the-board corporate income tax rate with a progressive scale.

Currently, the corporate income tax rate is 6 percent. Under Martin's bill, it would range from 3 percent to 7½ percent, depending on the income of the firm.

The package would produce about $6.7 million for the state, Martin said.

"This would provide the food tax relief everyone seems to want without having to worry about a $300 million revenue loss," said Martin.

Complete repeal of the food tax is included in Gov. Jim Martin's tax-cut package, which would cost $600 million over the next three fiscal years.

A Democratic tax package approved by the House would cost about $396 million a year and would lift the sales tax on food bought with food stamps.

Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, sponsor of Martin's package, said he was still holding out for repeal. "But we might have to go the credit route if we can't get anything else," he said.

The Legislative Research Commission would study the possibility of letting parents educate their children at home under a resolution approved by the Senate Rules Committee.

The measure will be referred to the Appropriations Committee, which decides which study committees to fund.

"If somebody had told me at the beginning of the session that I'd have introduced this bill, I'd have told them they were nuts," said Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe.

He said a number of constituents had written him in support of home

Prison Settlement Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposed settlement of an inmate lawsuit against the state could result in construction of more prison dormitories to relieve overcrowding, a state official says.

The settlement, under review by both sides, calls for the state to spend more than $10 million on prison units in the southern Piedmont. The suit — originally a 50-page, handwritten complaint filed in 1979 by four inmates in Union County — evolved into a class action on behalf of other inmates in that part of the state.

The southern Piedmont district includes Charlotte and is bounded roughly by Salisbury, Shelby, Union and Albemarle.

The tentative agreement, prepared by state correction and legal officials, is being considered by Gov. Jim Martin and lawyers for the inmates.

"It was what I'd call a shotgun complaint," said Assistant N.C. Attorney General Lucien "Skip" Capone III. "They complained about everything having to do with life in a prison — from overcrowding to medical care — food, clothing, educational programs, visitations."

The problem that came to be a prime issue in the lawsuit and the one expected to cost the most to resolve was "triple bunking," Capone said.

Ben G. Irons, legal counsel for the N.C. Department of Correction, said triple bunking involves stacking bunk beds three high in dormlike prison facilities. Normally, they would be stacked two high, he said.

Capone said although the agreement does not require building new prisons, improvements would be made at existing ones — for example, building more dormitories at five prisons. "But that's subject to change," he said.

Budget recommendations from former Gov. Jim Hunt and from Martin call for the Correction Department to be allocated $5.6 million in 1985-86 and again in 1986-87 for construction to eliminate triple bunking.

Carnegie Grants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen high schools in 15 states, including two from North Carolina, will share $800,000 in grants for school improvement projects, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has announced.

The schools were chosen Monday from among 785 that competed for the grants, funded by the Atlantic Richfield Foundation.

The North Carolina schools chosen for the grants were Tarboro High School and Enloe High School of Raleigh. Tarboro High will receive $44,605 while the Raleigh school will get nearly $25,000.

Specialized Care

RALEIGH (AP) — After being found guilty of keeping their sons home from school, the parents of two deaf boys have asked a Wake Superior Court judge to order the public schools to provide specialized deaf education for their sons.

John and Kathleen Lufkin filed a lawsuit seeking a preliminary injunction that would order the Wake County Board of Education and State Board of Education to provide the classes.

A hearing is scheduled for May 15.

The Lufkins contend that Wake schools should continue to provide specialized education in cued speech to their sons, Scott, 7, and Andy, 9. The boys started school with instruction in that method, but were switched in 1983 to classes taught by conventional sign language.

Cued speech is a communication method for deaf people that combines hand symbols with lip reading.

The Lufkins' older son, Jason, continues to be taught in cued speech in Wake public schools. The couple say it is confusing and disruptive for their three sons to be taught to communicate by two different methods.

Aquarium Tests

WILMINGTON (AP) — A marine scientist is conducting final tests on the world's first deep-water aquarium before it is shipped to The National Aquarium in New York City later this month.

Michael R. Jordan, a researcher at the Institute for Marine Biomedical Research at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, said the 250-pound, 10-liter aquarium safely could maintain pressures equivalent to that of a mile below sea level.

The system permits the injection of food and oxygen into the tank without reducing pressure. Jordan said the aquarium would permit public display of creatures from the ocean's depths. No animals yet have been brought back alive from such depths.

Jordan said the aquarium project required three years' research and cost nearly $750,000. Work has begun on a larger tank to be displayed in Wilmington this fall, he said.

Grace Bid Rejected By Ingram

RALEIGH (AP) — Saying its legal dispute with former Insurance Commissioner John Ingram is "not serving any useful purpose," W.R. Grace & Co. has offered to settle the litigation, but officials say Ingram rejected the effort.

Grace offered to drop its lawsuit against Ingram about three weeks ago if Ingram would drop his counterclaim against the company, William F. Maready, a Winston-Salem attorney representing W.R. Grace said.

The Attorney General's Office referred the Grace proposal to Ingram's attorneys in Washington, senior deputy attorney general Andrew A. Vanore Jr., said Monday.

"It was rejected," Vanore said.

Maready said Grace probably would drop its proposal if a settlement was not reached by May 17, when a hearing on the case is scheduled in the N.C. Court of Appeals.

Maready said the company offered to settle the suit because "at this point, the litigation is not serving any useful purpose."

Ingram would not comment on the suit and his attorney could not be reached for comment.

Grace in August 1984 filed a $5 million damage suit against Ingram, the state's insurance commissioner, in Wake Superior Court. The company claimed that Ingram, in his statements and actions regarding the herbicide diacamba, libeled and damaged the company.

Director Named

RALEIGH (AP) — State Attorney General Lacy Thornburg announced Monday the appointment of Martie Stanford as director of the North Carolina Justice Academy in Salem.

The academy was created by the General Assembly in 1973 as part of the Department of Justice and the Attorney General's Office. The academy is responsible for providing professional education and training to members of the criminal justice system.

Ms. Stanford, a former instructor and department head at the academy, is currently a regional administrator with the Virginia Department of Corrections. She replaces Perry Powell, whose resignation is effective May 31.

"I will not be satisfied with simply meeting requirements," Thornburg said at a news conference Monday.

"I want the North Carolina Justice Academy to set a standard of excellence for training, not only in North Carolina but also in the nation. I believe that Martie Stanford will take the academy in a direction that we both seek."

Worker Fired

RALEIGH (AP) — The director of the Division of Motor Vehicles license and theft section has been fired because of a letter he wrote last summer on behalf of unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten, state Transportation Secretary James E. Harrington said Monday.

J.G. Wilson Jr., 56, said he had been "terminated," effective May 31. Harrington confirmed Monday that the letter prompted the action.

"He wrote a letter to each of the employees of his (section) soliciting funds and their vote for the unsuccessful candidate for governor," Harrington said. "That may be good politics, but it's not very good political judgment on the part of an employee supervising 300 or 400 employees."

Wilson, who has spent 32 years in state government, was promoted to director of license and theft in 1975.

Dragnet Eluded

RALEIGH (AP) — Two men who were involved in a shoot-out with a Wake County woman Monday escaped a police dragnet, officials say.

The shoot-out occurred after Dawn Shaffer Cooke, 22, of Apex, spotted two men climbing her backyard fence and called the Wake County Sheriff's Department for help. Wake County Sheriff's Capt. S.M. Pickett said. The men opened fire with a shotgun and Mrs. Cooke returned fire with a .22-caliber rifle, Pickett said. The shooting lasted "a matter of seconds," he said.

The men jumped back over the fence and into the densely wooded area behind Mrs. Cooke's house after she returned fire, Pickett said. Mrs. Cooke was slightly injured in the exchange, suffering a superficial wound in her left arm from a single shotgun pellet.

More than 20 law enforcement officials, including State Highway Patrol troopers, license and theft agents from the Department of Motor Vehicles, and Wake County Sheriff's Department deputies, participated in a three-hour search for the men.

Festival Rejected

SOUTH BOSTON, Va. (AP) — A trial balloon to revive the National Tobacco Festival here in its birthplace has been deflated by a lack of local enthusiasm.

Officials said near-total community participation would be needed to properly organize and conduct an event as large as the National Tobacco Festival, but the attendance at two exploratory committee meetings held recently indicated that sufficient interest was lacking.

"Frankly, we just did not have enough interest to go gung-ho on a National Tobacco Festival in 1985," said City Councilman Roy B. Davis Jr., who chaired a feasibility study committee. "It's better not to do it, rather than to do something and not be proud of it."

The National Tobacco Festival was begun in South Boston in 1935 as a Depression-era morale booster for tobacco-dependent southern Virginia. The idea caught on and the festival grew into an elaborate pageant with celebrities, big bands, parades and crowds as large as 150,000.

The festival was held annually through 1941, when it was stopped for World War II, and later was transferred to Richmond. In January, the festival's board of directors said it was ending the event.

Governors' Aides Say Martin Has Too Many People Reporting To Him

RALEIGH (AP) — Some aides to Gov. Jim Martin say he has too many people reporting to him, but another adviser says Martin is wary of trading off responsibility for increased efficiency.

"In this multibillion dollar business we call state government, it's difficult (for the governor) to be chairman of the board, CEO (chief executive officer) and president all at one time," said Senate Minority Leader Bill Redman, R-Iredell.

Even some who report directly to the governor say it's time Martin named a chief of staff.

"If I were a consultant, I think I'd have to suggest to the governor that he has too many people reporting to him," said C.C. Cameron, the retired chairman of the First Union Corp. who is Martin's budget chief.

"A governor has to go around the state and stay visible. He has to meet people who come to Raleigh," Cameron said. "And he has to work with the Legislature when they're in town. He doesn't have time, after all that, to really run the show and run all the facets of this big business."

Joe Martin, the governor's brother and one of his closest advisers, said the governor is hesitant to name a chief of staff because that official often evolves into "an enormously powerful person who is not elected."

"This governor does not like to abdicate his responsibility. He is wary of trading off his responsibility in order to get more efficiency," Joe Martin said.

Cameron, executive assistant to the governor for budget and management, is one of four senior staffers who report directly to Martin. The others are Jim Lofton, executive assistant and staff director; Jack Hawke, special assistant for policy, and Jim Trotter, senior assistant and special counsel.

Despite those titles, none has the power reserved for a chief of staff, who might control the flow of information to the governor and control who sees him and when.

Martin said he is open-minded about naming a chief of staff later. "But I don't think so for right now," he said last week. "I'm learning state government faster by being forced to look at everything myself."

At a recent meeting in which 11 Republican senators outlined mix-ups, delays and breaches of protocol committed by Martin's staff, Sen. Jim Jonson, R-Cabarrus, said the governor was not "qualified to be your own sergeant."

"It's a damned mess, governor," Jonson said. "What you need is a first sergeant. You're not qualified to be your own sergeant. Your time's too valuable. You're the commander in chief, and your job is to set policy."

The two governors before Martin each had a chief of staff: Gene Anderson ran Republican Jim Holshouser's office, and Joe Pell ran Democrat Jim Hunt's.

Before taking office almost four months ago, Martin set up six interoffice committees designed to provide a constant flow of information to him.

The committees, which study everything from legislative initiatives to personnel decisions, "give input from a lot of different people, which is the governor's style," said Lofton, who says the committee system is "working well."

But some of the governor's other top staffers said committees slow things down and prevent the administration from being decisive.

"I would not have created as many committees," said Hawke, who sits on all of them. "I don't think you can run government by committee. I think you tend to sit around and discuss things too long. The important thing is making a decision, implementing it and moving on to the next thing."

Martial Arts Key To Training Police

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A man who has been training North Carolina law enforcement officers in defensive tactics for the past 15 years says the public sometimes forgets that every time an officer is in a fight there's a weapon involved — his own.

"The public doesn't appreciate the problem that wearing a gun creates for an officer," said John Lamont, director of the Officers Survival Institute. "The public really doesn't understand how much danger an officer's in or how quickly."

Lamont, through defensive tactics based on the martial art of Aikido, teaches federal agents, military police, sheriff's deputies and other law enforcement agents how to deal with that problem and others. He teaches individual groups, or is hired through community colleges to teach classes there.

He's now also recognized as an expert witness on police procedure involving the use of force, weapons training, defensive tactics and body mechanics.

Lamont is also a reserve officer with Raleigh's Selective Enforcement Unit, the city's SWAT team, "so I get a chance to practice what I preach," he said.

The institute was created in 1980, but Lamont has been training law enforcement agents since 1970.

State statutes require that officers use the least amount of force necessary to make an arrest. The techniques and philosophy of Aikido are to bring down an opponent without injuring a suspect or the officer, so the two work well together, Lamont said.

"Aikido is a throwing and pinning type of art rather than a striking type of art," Lamont said. "For law enforcement agents, it works well because their goal is custody."

Unlike other martial arts such as karate, Aikido is non-competitive, he said. That, too, fits in with the officer's duties, he said.

"An officer's job isn't to win or lose. An officer's job is to remain undefeated," Lamont said.

North Carolina requires 16 hours of defensive tactics training for police officers, Lamont said, adding that he did not think that was enough time.

"If they (suspects) get hostile, he's got to be able to handle it," Lamont said. Although about half of the officers who attend his classes are there on their own time, Lamont said there are many others who have a second job and do not have the time to take more training.

At 6 feet 2 inches tall and 157 pounds, Lamont is not an intimidating person. When he first began training officers, many would try to take him on, he said. "By the end of the course, they understood that size has nothing to do with it," he said.

State Keeps 3-A Bond Rating

RALEIGH (AP) — An audit shows North Carolina had $15.1 billion in assets at the end of fiscal 1984 and kept its triple A bond rating, but officials say they found four areas where the state didn't comply with accepted accounting principles.

The study shows North Carolina was in "good shape" financially in 1983-84, state Auditor Ed Renfrow said.

Renfrow said the state needs to adopt a fixed asset system to account for all of the state's property. How much of the $947.4 million in general fixed assets has been lost or stolen is unknown because of the lack of such a system, Renfrow said.

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

More often than not, if you make an inadvertent bid, you end up paying dearly for the error. So it is a pleasant duty to report a case where just the opposite occurred. It happened at the recent Spring North American Championships in Montreal.

The players were late in getting started and South, Sam Smith of Newton, Mass., intended opening the bidding with one diamond.

To his horror, he heard himself say: "One heart." After his partner had responded one spade, he could think of no way to bid the hand without getting himself into more trouble, so he tried a rebid of one no trump in the hope that his partner would be weakish and pass. Matters did not improve when his partner jumped to four hearts. West's double, followed by North's redouble, turned the whole auction into a nightmare, but there was no place to go, so Smith decided to stick it out.

West led his singleton club honor. Declarer won in hand and led a low trump, on which West played low. Dummy's ten won, and declarer returned to hand with the king of spades to lead another trump.

There was no point to following with a low trump to this trick, so West won the king and exited with his low trump, won in dummy. The diamond finesse lost to West's queen. He drew the last trump, but that was it for the defense—declarer had all suits under control, and the rest of the tricks were his.

Instead of the zero he had been expecting, South ended up with a top score thanks to the double. The usual contract was three no trump which, when declarer brought in the whole club suit with a finesse of the nine, usually yielded ten tricks if the opponents cashed out when they got in with a diamond.

Sea Hunt For Marines Called Off

TOKYO (AP) — The U.S. military today abandoned the search for survivors of the crash of a Marine Corps helicopter off southern Japan, saying the 17 U.S. Marines on board were missing and presumed dead.

An overnight search by Japanese patrol boats yielded only small amounts of debris, including some personal items and an unopened 12-man life raft. Japanese officials said they probably would call off their search soon, also.

The Marine Corps command on Okinawa, where the victims were based, issued a statement today saying: "An accompanying helicopter witnessed the impact and observed that there were no survivors. All aboard are missing and presumed dead."

The casualties were the highest involving U.S. military personnel in the area since March 1984, when another Marine Corps CH-53D helicopter crashed into a Korean mountainside during military exercises, killing 18 Okinawa-based Marines and 11 Koreans.

A Marine Corps officer at Kadena Air Base in Okinawa, who asked not to be identified, said U.S. rescue aircraft essentially quit the search late Monday because, "We knew they were all dead."

Lt. Col. John Toner, a U.S. Air Force public affairs officer at Kadena, said officials decided to call off the search after finding so little debris in the crash area, about 15 miles off the southern Japan island of Yukushima, after a 24-hour period of constant surveillance.

The big Sikorsky helicopter is a workhorse model used for carrying cargo and troops, and is similar to those used in the disastrous attempt to rescue the American hostages from Tehran in 1980.

The Marine helicopter went down while on a flight from Iwakuni, a Marine Corps air station in southwestern Japan, to another Marine base in Futemma, Okinawa, early Monday afternoon. It was accompanied by a second CH-53D helicopter on the flight.

Coke Is STILL It!

The Coca-Cola Corporation recently announced it would soon change the 99-year-old secret formula of Coke. That soft drink was invented by Dr. John Pemberton, an Atlanta pharmacist, who called it "a brain tonic." Its chief competition at the time was called Moxie Nerve Drink. In 1982 the average American consumed about 40 gallons of soft drinks per year. The residents of North Carolina consume more soft drinks per person than any other state.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the name for Coke's secret formula?

NASA Says Space Crew Successful

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Challenger's space shuttle crew, faced with flying rodent food and faulty drinking fountains, proved man to be the best research tool in space, NASA says.

The crew of the 17th space shuttle mission emerged victorious after equipment breakdowns that plagued early stages of the week-long mission that ended with touchdown here Monday.

The stubby-winged space plane returned to Earth with a smooth landing at 12:11 p.m. on Southern California's Mojave Desert, emitting twin sonic booms that rattled windows and set off burglar alarms across Los Angeles.

The flight ushered in a new era of space research based on the success of experiments conducted in the $1 billion Spacelab module, said National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials and shuttle crew members.

"I think this science is what is going to make space pay for itself," said astronaut Frederick D. Gregory, Challenger's pilot. "Sooner or later, we are going to come back with stuff we never even dreamed of."

Challenger returned with a cargo of 24 rats and two squirrel monkeys, which were quickly unloaded and sent to Cape Kennedy, Fla. The rats will be decapitated and dissected. The monkeys will be studied.

The astronauts were sent to Houston for debriefings that began today.

Animal rights protesters greeted Challenger's return and condemned animal research in space, but NASA officials defended their treatment of the animals and said the research was important.

The most important developments from Challenger's flight involved the human factor, said Burton Edelson, associate administrator for science and applications in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The seven-man crew faced early problems in the mission that hampered five of 15 experiments.

The problems ranged from rat food and feces that flew out of cages to an airlock that frustrated an astronomy experiment. A crew drinking fountain also failed.

Each time, the astronauts and ground crew solved the problems.

Finally, 14 of the 15 experiments were successful because of human ingenuity, said Jesse Moore, NASA's associate administrator for space flight.

"This is what this program is all about," he told reporters after the landing. "We have demonstrated once again the value of people in space."

"It goes to show the most versatile computer you can build is a human being," said astronaut Don Lind.

The spacelab returned with a wealth of data, including a crystal grown in space, which may be useful in computer research.

Other data included miles of film and three million frames of videotape, some of which will be studied frame-by-frame, said Joseph Cremin, the Spacelab mission manager.

Another breakthrough was the short turnaround time achieved, with two shuttle missions having been completed within 24 days, Moore said. Space shuttle Discovery landed April 18.

N.Y. Honors Vietnam Vets

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of Vietnam veterans who returned home to indifference or worse gathered in wheelchairs, military fatigues and business suits to help dedicate the city's memorial to those who fought in Southeast Asia.

Today, an estimated 20,000 veterans will get the homecoming they never received a decade ago when the last Americans left Vietnam. A tickertape parade is planned across the Brooklyn Bridge into the "Canyon of Heroes" in Wall Street.

About 8,000 Vietnam veterans came together Monday night for the lighting of a 70-foot-long, 16-foot-high glass wall etched with the names and words of some of those who served in Vietnam.

About 50 veterans, several in wheelchairs, rushed the wall. One rested his head against it, sobbing uncontrollably.

Another leaned against the wall and stared blankly for several minutes as fireworks exploded over the East River to celebrate the war memorial.

Many who descended on the newly named Vietnam Veterans Plaza were wearing black armbands and black jackets to remember 2,247 American soldiers still listed as missing in action.

For Betty Perko, tracing her son's name on the glass meant solace at last.

Terry Perko, 20, a lance corporal from Maple Heights, Ohio, was fatally shot in the throat on Feb. 21, 1967, by a sniper in Vietnam.

"I guess I can finally get on with my life," said Mrs. Perko, 59, touching Terry's name on the frosted wall as if she were touching her son again. "It's just hard to see those words there, 'killed in action.' It's so final."

Perko's name appears on the wall along with a letter that then-Cpl.

John Houghton, now a tugboat deckhand in Camden, N.J., wrote to Mrs. Perko upon hearing of his war colleague's death.

Excerpts from the letter, etched in the wall with 82 others, said:

"We are all afraid to die, and all we do is count the days till we go home. ... I want to hold my head between my hands and run screaming away from here. I'm hollow Mrs. Perko. I'm a shell and when I'm scared, I rattle. I'm no one to tell you about your son Terry. I can't, I'm sorry."

Mrs. Perko, fighting tears, said she never could write Houghton to thank him for the poignant letter: "I just couldn't. I never could answer him."

But today, Mrs. Perko will meet Houghton for the first time.

Some, like Michael Mancuso, a mail carrier from Waterbury, Conn., found their own names in the wall.

"Dear Mike," Mancuso wrote in 1970 to his friend, Sgt. Michael Cook, who appeared Monday with Mancuso. "So how are you doing? I really hope you'll be OK. You didn't look too good the last time I saw you, laying on that trail covered with blood."

Monday, the two veterans stood together at the wall, hugging one another. "This is great, wonderful," Mancuso said to Cook, a film producer in New York. "Really something to remember."

Mayor Edward Koch, who lighted the wall, told the veterans, "What we do here tonight begins to undo the terrible injustice. ... We have opened the eyes of a new generation to the lessons of the past."

Said developer Donald Trump, who donated $1 million to the veterans and to a jobs program set up by the city to help unemployed New York veterans, "It's a great evening. I only wish it could have taken place 10 years ago."

CELEBRATION — Fireworks fill the sky in New York Monday night during the dedication ceremonies for a Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Manhattan. The dedication coincides with the 10th anniversary of the fall of Saigon and the end to America's longest war. A parade honoring Vietnam veterans was scheduled in New York today. (AP Laserphoto)

"I Quit."

Last Year 60,000 Farmers Said It. Here's Why.

Weather, machinery costs, market prices and governmental interference are the worries that have forced thousands of farmers to quit. But, when you diversify tobacco and row crop operations by raising chickens for Perdue, most of these worries are reduced or eliminated.

Perdue chickens have an ever increasing consumer demand that must be supplied in greater quantity than ever before. That demand plus Perdue's liberal producer contract arrangements make a Perdue poultry house the ideal choice for the farm family that wants to remain on the farm.

Talk to a Perdue representative about a greater percentage return than other crops, a substantial positive cash flow, investment tax credit and all the other Perdue incentives that make growing for Perdue so good.

Keep on farming, but add a sure-fire cash crop—growing chickens for Perdue. Return the coupon, or call us collect at (919) 795-4151, and let's talk chicken.

Give Yourself a Raise—Raisin' with Perdue.

I'd like to talk chicken with Perdue.

Gambling Den

PEKING (AP) — A hotel in Guangdong province ran a gambling den named "Pleasure City" and raked in about $7,000 a day until a newspaper expose led to its closure, the official China Daily reported.

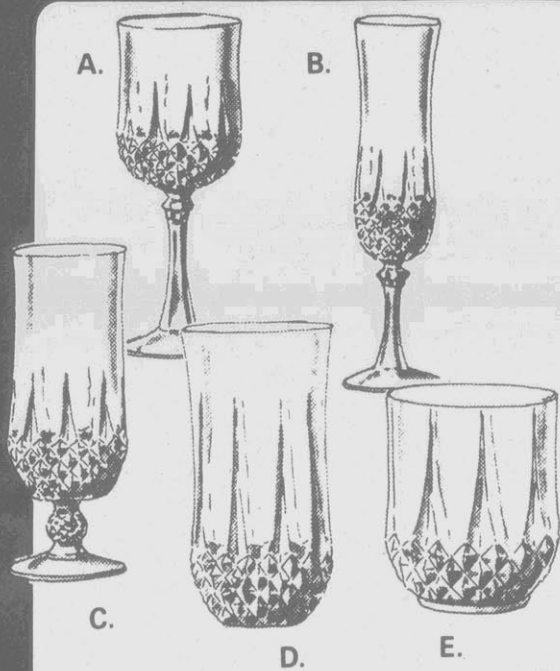

Located in Taiping township a few hours by river steamer from Hong Kong, the den attracted throngs of youngsters for dice and other illegal betting, the English-language daily reported. Gambling was banned in China after the Communist takeover in 1949, but the addiction persists in many places.

The Nanfang Daily sent reporters to investigate "Pleasure City" last month, and the county government clamped down May 2.
