Reagan Heckled As He Attacks Soviets

By CLIFF HAAS

Associated Press Writer

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — President Reagan marked the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe today by asserting that the Soviet Union is undermining the world's nuclear stability by developing a mobile, land-based missile "clearly designed to strike first."

In a televised speech to the European Parliament, the president was heckled by several protesters who pounded their hands on their desks and held up banners reading "Hands Off Nicaragua" and "Cruise No Pershing" — a reference to new, medium-range U.S. missiles stationed in Europe.

Reagan ignored the protesters at first, but responded when a chorus of boos and desk-pounding greeted his declaration there were "Soviet efforts to profit from and stimulate regional conflicts in Central America." Reagan paused, grimaced and interjected, "They haven't been there. I have."

During a noisy outburst about midway through his speech, about 30 parliamentarians — most of them members of the British Labor Party — walked out of the assembly hall.

Reagan smiled and said, "You know, I've learned something useful. Maybe if I talk long enough in my own Congress, some of those will walk out."

The audience erupted in loud applause. The Parliament has 434 members. Observers said about one-third of Reagan's audience was involved in today's protest.

Reagan had to raise his voice at times to make himself heard over the demonstrators' noise. To make matters worse, the TelePrompTer that Reagan was using to read his speech failed temporarily, forcing him to use hand-held cue cards.

Immediately to his left, a member waved a red cloth banner urging a nuclear freeze. Another held up a poster reading "No Star Wars," a reference to Reagan's space-based anti-missile defense proposal.

The president hailed "the liberation of Europe from tyrants who had seized this continent and plunged it into a terrible war," and the 40 years of uninterrupted peace that have followed V-E Day.

While warning of a dangerous new turn in a Soviet nuclear buildup, the president also sent Soviet President (Please turn to page 16)

'Happy Hours' Near End, But Sales Will Continue

By JANE WELBORN

Reflector Staff Writer

Local bar and restaurant managers said today they do not expect alcohol sales to decrease as a result of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission's regulation to outlaw happy hours beginning Aug. 1. The ABC Commission Tuesday voted to prohibit restaurants and bars from selling liquor at special prices during certain hours.

"I feel that if no bar can have a happy hour, it will not hurt one individual bar," said Sandra Corbett, manager of T.W.'s Nitelife nightclub. "I don't think the regulation will hurt business or hurt sales. The bar is making more money when the drinks are regularly priced, and people are going to drink no matter what the price."

"I don't believe happy hour prices make people get drunker," Ms. Corbett said. "Low priced drinks or two-for-one drinks are just a way to get the public into your nightclub instead of the competitor's, and hopefully keep them there after the happy hour prices are over."

"I understand why the ABC commission did this, but I think if people are going to drink and get really drunk they will do it no matter what the drinks cost," Ms. Corbett added.

General manager Doug Roos of the Holiday Inn said the happy hour ban will hurt the motel's alcohol sales "a little bit, I'm sure, but if it is a statewide thing, then it will not be monumental."

"The ban will hurt alcohol sales to a small extent," Roos said. "We do maybe 16 percent of our business (in mixed drinks) during the happy hour time of 5 and 8 p.m."

Will O'Neal, the manager of Darryl's 1907 Restaurant, said he does not think the ban will curtail alcohol sales. "The regular prices will probably come down a little bit" in response to the regulation, O'Neal said.

Tom Murphy, general manager of the Ramada Inn, said, "There are certain things that you can do to promote the lounge besides having happy hours. We will just have to be a little more creative in promotions. I really don't feel that it will cause a decrease in alcohol sales."

State officials said enforcement of the regulation will not be a problem because the restaurant and bar owners realize the happy hour ban is "in their best interest."

"During regular enforcement contacts, officers will observe what is going on within the outlets and make sure they are complying with the regulations," said Donald Murray, director of the Alcohol Law Enforcement Division (ALE) in the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. "When advertising is observed that is in conflict with the regulation, ALE will take appropriate action."

"I don't think there will be any problem with the enforcement," Murray said. "I think there will be compliance because the industry should have no reason not to comply. It is in their best interest."

Murray said the banning of the happy hour "takes away a costly competitive tool. Now everybody is going to have to serve alcohol at full price. If the bar down the street wants to serve drinks at a lower price, it must cut the price for the entire day, and that may not be a profitable move."

"I think it was a wise move by the ABC Commission" to outlaw happy hours, Murray added, "and the North Carolina Restaurant Commission supports it."

Besides happy hours, the ruling also outlaws discriminatory price promotions such as free drinks for women, forbids the sale of more than one drink to a person for a single price and states that pitchers of beer must be served to more than one person, but carafes or bottles of wine may be sold to one person.

Establishments may offer special prices for alcoholic beverages as long as the prices are in effect for the entire business day, but they may not advertise for a happy hour.

Grant Is Jailed On Death Charge

Michael Edward Grant, 31, of Greenville, indicted on murder charges by a grand jury last week in connection with the death of a 6-hour-old child at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in July 1983, was in the Pitt County jail today awaiting a preliminary hearing in Superior Court.

Grant was returned to Pitt County shortly after 1 a.m. today by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation who took custody of Grant in California. He had been held in a Los Angeles County jail following his arrest by officers assigned to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's fugitive detail the day after he was indicted.

Another defendant in the case, Robert Andrew Jonas, 36, of Greensboro, surrendered to officers last Thursday and was released under a $70,000 bond following a first appearance hearing.

Grant and Jonas are charged in connection with the death of Darlene Clara Peszko, who was born at the hospital about 10:56 p.m. July 23, 1983, and died about six hours later in the hospital's neonatal unit.

The child was born with anencephaly, a condition described by doctors as being "incompatible with life" in which the upper part of the brain fails to form properly during the first three months of pregnancy.

Because of the short life expectancy, the death was originally considered a natural one, and the parents asked that no autopsy be performed. After hospital officials, in February, asked that the death be investigated because of rumors circulated through the medical center, the body was exhumed in March for an autopsy.

The amended death certificate lists the cause of death as a bruised heart caused by "mechanical compression of the chest."

At the time of the alleged murder, (Please turn to page 16)

DGA Elects Wilkerson President

Herbert (Herb) M. Wilkerson, Jr., a partner in Globe Hardware Co., has been elected president of the Downtown Greenville Association Inc.

A native of Greenville, Wilkerson is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and is working toward a master's degree in business administration from East Carolina University. He is chairman of the Greenville Parking Authority.

Other officers named by the association directors were: Anne I. Guerrant, vice president; Danny Nichols, re-elected treasurer, and Dave Mosier, re-elected secretary and executive director for an 11th term.

New directors elected at the annual meeting were: Bill Austin, Lindsey Gray, Carl Knott, Phil Trull, Elaine Woolard and Tommy Snowden. Directors re-elected are: Tom Haines, Doug Hill, Bud Wheelless and Herb Wilkerson, Jr.

Four members were recognized as having served 10 years, and were named honorary directors with lifetime tenure. The four, all past presidents, are: Morris Brody, John Shannonhouse, Bill Taft, Jr. and Jack Edwards.

The annual dinner, this year to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the association, will be held May 28 at the Greenville Country Club.

Mayor Comfortable

Greenville Mayor Janice Buck, who was admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Monday night following a City Council workshop meeting, was "resting comfortably" this morning, according to City Manager Gail Meeks.

Still a patient, Mrs. Buck was scheduled to undergo further tests at the hospital this morning and was expected to be released later today or on Thursday "depending on the results of the tests," Mrs. Meeks said.

Mrs. Meeks reported Tuesday that Mrs. Buck "wasn't feeling well" Monday night and had her blood pressure checked. It was "not normal for her," so she was taken to the hospital.

REBATE CLAIM COMPLAINT

I would like to sound off about stores stating prices of sale merchandise in their advertisements including a manufacturers' mail-in rebate price, then saying "sorry" when you ask for the form to send in with the ticket for a rebate. This has happened to me at more than one local store. If they are going to use rebate prices to attract customers, they should be thorough enough to have the forms on hand for every item to be sold this way before they make it public through a newspaper or other type ad. They surely aren't winning lasting loyal customers this way. P.A.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
Pitt Home Agent

Termites and rot are sometimes called the homeowner's hidden enemies. This is because they may cause extensive damage to wood before they are noticed. Mike Levi, In Charge, Extension Forest Resources (Wood Decay and Preservation), explains that termites and rot work slowly. By following a few simple steps you can avoid repair bills for hundreds or even thousands of dollars.

Fungi that cause rot need moisture to survive. Dry wood will never rot. If you know that wood will get wet then use pressure treated materials. Termites also need moisture. They get it from the soil or from water leaks in the house. Dr. Levi states that you won't have termite problems if you cut off the termite's access to the ground with a chemical barrier and prevent water leakage inside.

If you are building a house make sure the soil is properly pretreated. Also make sure no untreated wood contacts the soil. It gives the termites a hidden entry into the house.

To prevent rot, untreated wood should be at least six inches above the soil. Landscape the lot so that water runs away from not under the house. The attic and crawl or basementless space should have good ventilation. An annual inspection for rot, termites, moisture and other insect problems is the best way to avoid trouble once a home is lived in. Most people will employ a pest control company. You can do the inspection yourself, but it will take time and effort. A thorough inspection will include the crawl space or basement, attic, inside the living area and the outside of the house. The things to look for are water stains, termite tubes and any evidence of wood damage such as rot or insect holes.

Dr. Levi said the major problems are caused by untreated wood siding and framing in contact with the soil, earth fills under porches and patio slabs, bad drainage, insufficient ventilation in crawl spaces and poor termite treatments.

Wood will last if it is used properly. The Extension Office has additional information on inspection for rot and termites and their prevention. We will be glad to share this with homeowners as part of the "Wood Can Last for Centuries" program that the Extension Service and U.S. Forest Service is conducting in North Carolina.

Students Named To Attend Girls State

The American Legion Auxiliary, Pitt County Unit No. 39 held its meeting Thursday at the Legion Building. Four rising seniors have been selected to attend Girls State.

Named were Mary Ellen Lyons, D.H. Conley, Susan Dail Carson, North Pitt, Amy M. Moore and Susan E. Hewell, both of Rose High.

Girls State is scheduled for June 9-15 on the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. It is an objective citizenship school held each year and is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Brenda Strawn was elected to serve as treasurer for the coming year.

The group will be meeting at the Golden Corral Steak House June 6 at 7 p.m. and members may bring their families for the dutch dinner.

The annual Poppy Day will be held May 17-18. Faye Adams is serving as chairman.

Family Living Seminar Set For June 4

The 10th annual Eloise S. Cofer Family Living Seminar is set for June 4 at McKimmon Center in Raleigh. The theme is "Families Under Pressure: Meeting Society's Challenges."

Dr. Mattie K. Gershenfeld, president of Couples Learning Center and an adjunct professor at Temple University in Rydal, Pa., will be the keynote speaker. A native of Philadelphia, she is a licensed psychologist and is past president of the Pennsylvania Council on Family Relations.

The luncheon speaker will be Dr. John J. Beasley, chairman of the department of home economics at Appalachian State University.

Participants will be able to attend two of the concurrent workshop sessions: Coping With Time Stress in the Family; Child Abuse and Neglect; Teenage Suicide: Recognition Treatment and Community Support; Critical Needs of Child Day Care; Self Help Approach to Crimed Prevention in the Home; Keeping Fads Out of Your Family Kitchen; Give and Take in Family Money Management; Alcohol and Drug Dependence; A Family Affair; and Careers and Cradles for Career Couples Who Become Parents in the 30's.

Dr. Martha Johnson, director of home economics for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, will preside over the opening general session.

The seminar is sponsored by the Home Economics Department of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service and the North Carolina Extension Homemakers Association, Inc. It is funded in part by a grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation Inc. through the N.C. Council on the Status of Women.

Contact the Agricultural Extension Service at 752-2934 for registration information.

WATCHING THE STORMY WEATHER
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — During the prime tornado season from April through June, activity steps up at the National Severe Storm Center headquartered here.

From offices filled with radar screens, satellite maps and computers, meteorologists keep a 24-hour watch for all potential severe weather developments in the continental United States.

The center also issues weather summaries used by the media, and houses the National Aviation Weather Advisory Unit which alerts FAA and flight service stations to hazardous weather conditions.

Vanceboro Residents To Celebrate Strawberry Day

Residents of Vanceboro, located on U.S. 17, will celebrate its special fruit May 17-18 during the third annual Vanceboro Strawberry Festival and Rescue Day.

Boy Wyley and Cynthia Wood, of country radio station WRNS-FM in Kinston, will be masters of ceremonies for the day-long activities.

Beginning at 10 a.m., the reigning strawberry queen and court, scout troops, beauty contestants, community dignitaries, animals, farm machinery and the town's fire and rescue equipment will gather for a parade.

Features of the day will be starting at 11 a.m. including gospel singers, cloggers, craftspeople and food.

Barbecue and chicken plates will be available and strawberries in a variety of ice cream, sno-cones and strawberry shortcakes.

The EastCare emergency helicopter will be on display and local rescue squad volunteers will be demonstrating the life-saving tool. Special games for the children as well as softball tournaments and pie contests will be featured.

The second annual womanless beauty pageant starts at 7:30 p.m. in the Vanceboro/Farm Life School. Wyley will narrate the show while Ms. Wood will be judging the men in the prettiest, ugliest, most talented and sexiest categories.

MRS. SATTERFIELD

Couple Speaks Vows In Garden Ceremony Saturday

The wedding ceremony of Vicky Lynn Johnson and George Howard Satterfield III took place in the WRAL Gardens in Raleigh Saturday at 3 p.m. Ned Hill performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Linda E. Johnson of Raleigh and Billy F. Johnson of Kenly, Joyce B. Satterfield of Raleigh and Dr. George Howard Satterfield Jr. of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by David Hatcher of Pine Level, vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white chiffon and pearl embroidered chantilly lace styled with a scooped neckline edged with a lace ruffle. The fitted bodice with lace and pearl appliques had puffed sleeves with ruffled edges. The full skirt extended into a chapel train and was bordered with tiers of lace. She wore a floral wreath with a fingertip veil and carried a cascading bouquet of rose and white roses, fern and gypsophila with white ribbons. She wore pearl earrings and necklace.

Sisters of the bride, Teresa J. White of Greensboro and Debra J. Lynch of Kenly, were honor attendants. Debbie Green of Reidsville, Debra Satterfield of Greenville, Diane Satterfield and Lisa Satterfield, both of Raleigh and sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

Karen Hatcher of Pine Level was flower girl. Presiding at the register and rice maids were Kris Johnson of Kenly and Darla Eason of Garner. All are cousins of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Ken Johnson and William Lynch of Kenly, cousin and brother-in-law of the bride, respectively, Stan White of Greensboro, brother-in-law of the bride, Mark and Merle Hall of Clayton, cousins of the bride.

The attendants wore daphne rose taffeta gowns and each carried a long-stemmed rose with greenery and ribbons.

The flower girl wore a white chantilly lace dress with a pink sash. She wore matching ribbon in her hair and carried a white lace basket with pink ribbons.

A reception was given by Karen Mzingo of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, and Joyce B. Satterfield of Raleigh, mother of the bridegroom. It was held at Powell Drive Park in Raleigh.

The couple will be living in Raleigh after a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bride is a graduate of N.C.

State University and is employed as a research technician at N.C. State. The bridegroom is attending N.C. Wesleyan while employed at Carolina Componets Corp. in Raleigh.

On the eve of the wedding, a party for the bridal couple was given by her sisters at Lake Johnson Mews Clubhouse. Guests included members of the wedding party and special guests.

Several showers and a pig picking were given for the couple prior to the wedding.

Linda Reid Is Bride Of Horace Lee Spain

Linda Gail Reid and Horace Lee Spain were married Saturday at 1 p.m. in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Billy Rae Anderson of Greenville. The private ceremony took place at Elm Street Park.

The bride is the daughter of Noah and Florine Reid and the bridegroom is the son of James and Martha Teel of Bridgeport, Conn.

Gwendolyn Carroll of Fayetteville was matron of honor. She wore a white eyelet dress and carried a yellow mum with white streamers.

Robert Hardee of Greenville was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a white lace two-piece suit which was accented with scalloped hem and sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white silk roses.

A reception was held after the ceremony. The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow silk flowers. After the reception the bridal couple entertained friends and family at the Unlimited Touch hosted by Raymond Carney.

The bridal couple was honored at several showers prior to the wedding.

The couple will live in Grifton after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride graduated from Pitt Community College and North Carolina A&T. She is employed by Greenville city schools. The bridegroom graduated from Pitt Community College and is employed by the Pitt County Health Department.

If you are poaching the pears, do so in a sugar syrup; add vanilla extract to taste to the syrup after pears have cooked. If you are using canned pears, add vanilla extract to taste to them, cover tightly and refrigerate for several hours or overnight. At serving time, drain pears; arrange pear halves in individual dessert bowls, cavity sides up, using 1 large pear half or 2 small pear halves for each serving. Some of the interesting recipes in my collection are those that professional culinary friends have obtained from other good cooks.

For example, a home economist friend of mine adapted a recipe for Spinach Pancakes with Salmon Caviar from one that a Swedish Countess contributed to a gourmet gala. This scrumptious combination may be offered as the first course of a formal luncheon or dinner or as part of an informal buffet supper.

SPINACH PANCAKES AND SALMON CAVIAR

10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
1 large egg
1/2 cup half-and-half or light cream
1-3rd cup all-purpose flour
Pinch each white pepper and nutmeg
1-3rd cup minced scallion

1/4 cup (about 1) hot melted butter
Two 2-ounce jars salmon caviar, drained
1 1/2 cups sour cream

Bring 1/2 cup water to a boil. Add spinach and cook until it can be stirred smooth. Drain, stirring, in a sieve. Puree in an electric blender or food processor; Measure 1/2 cup.

Beat egg; gradually beat in half-and-half, then flour, pepper and nutmeg. Stir in drained spinach and 2 tablespoons of the minced scallions.

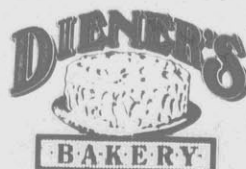

Heat a pancake grill; film with a little melted butter. Drop spinach batter by tablespoonfuls and flatten each with the back of a spoon to

Life Claimed By Smoking Inspires Woman To Quit

DEAR ABBY: On April 5, I read a letter in your column in the Rocky Mountain News that did something for me that nothing else was able to do. It made me decide to quit smoking.

It was written by a woman signed "Grieving in Gulfport," whose beloved younger sister had died from lung cancer. Her doctor bluntly stated, "Cigarettes killed her."

"Grieving's" final paragraphs hit me like a thunderbolt: "Abby, why do advertisers make cigarette ads so attractive? Instead, they should run a before and after picture of a once-beautiful woman vomiting and bald from radiation therapy."

"I know this letter is too long for your column, but if it makes just one person reach into her purse (or his pocket) and throw away that pack of cigarettes, it will be worth it."

Abby, please tell "Grieving" that her letter made this 42-year-old, four-pack-a-day woman reach into her purse and throw her cigarettes in the trash! I've taken an oath to never smoke again.

Too bad she didn't sign her name. She deserves to be thanked publicly.
FREE IN DENVER

DEAR FREE: She did sign her name, but requested that her letter be signed "Grieving in Gulfport" if published.

However, I telephoned her to tell her what a terrific impact her letter had made, and asked if I could reveal her identity.

She said, "If you think it will help just one person, go ahead." So, orchids to you, Dorothy Sosebee in Gulfport, Miss.!

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you for advice, but here I am.

My world is in chaos, and for the first time in my life I am considering suicide. I am the mother of two beautiful twin boys who are 2 years old. I often wonder if they'd be better off without me. I'm 22.

Six months ago I left my husband to live with a married man I thought I loved. I destroyed two families because of my selfishness, and now I'm miserable. I realize that I do not love this older married man.

I want my old life back, but I know my husband and his family will never forgive me for what I have done. Please help me.

ASHAMED IN AMHERST

DEAR ASHAMED: You really want to live or you wouldn't have written to me. You can be helped, and I want to help you, but it's not possible unless you tell me how to reach you.

Please call your telephone operator and ask for your local suicide prevention office. Then phone that office and tell the people there that Abby told you to call. Do this immediately, and let me hear from you at once. I care.

DEAR ABBY: You told "No Way Out," the married man who wants out of an affair he had going with a female employee, immediately to confess everything to his wife so the other woman cannot blackmail him.

This violates the first principle in such matters: Always lie.

The man should either suffer silently, or if it becomes truly intolerable, fire the woman. If she informs the wife of the affair, explain that it's motivated by revenge and untrue. When she presents his wife with his sales slips for expensive gifts to her, explain that they were for prizes for an employee incentive contest. When she presents airline tickets and hotel bills, explain that they were on business trips and had to share a room because of the company's austerity program—and nothing happened. When she presents the wife with pictures of him and her in the ultimate embrace, he should assure his wife that the employee was shaking uncontrollably from malaria-induced chills, and he threw himself on her to warm her up.

Abby, your penchant to recommend confession dooms a lot of marriages. Please be more cautious.

EAGLE SCOUT, OMAHA

DEAR ABBY: I must respond to "Money Wasted," whose husband died after his dentures were finished, and the dentist refused to give her even a partial refund.

I went through a similar experience, only the results were exactly opposite. My 24-year-old son died suddenly a few months ago. Just one week before he died, he had gone to an optometrist for an eye examination. He took his prescription for eyeglasses to Pearle Vision, selected the frames, and was told to pick up his glasses in about a week.

When I notified the folks at Pearle Vision about my son's sudden death, even though the glasses were ready, they expressed their sorrow and told me not to worry about paying for the glasses. They even sent back his deposit.

It didn't stop there. My son had his own apartment, and as his bills came in—electric, telephone, etc.—I contacted each one and explained the situation. All his creditors offered sympathy, and not one would accept a cent from me.

So please tell "Money Wasted" not to judge everybody by that one dentist. There are still a lot of people who put human caring ahead of money.

Embargo

It's truly surprising how easy it was to accept a Nicaragua trade embargo in preference to a continuing armed buildup of the counter-revolutionary force campaigning along the border.

The United States just does not do well with a covert war. In time the rest of the world appears to know more about what's going on than our own people. And have you noticed the side we support is the one that scores a less than break-even grade in the field of propaganda value?

The opposition knows how to go about winning friends and influencing people ... in our backyard, too. They have the right kind of grimy photos, interviews by some obscure reporter with his home office in Three-Forks-in-The-Road, Montana. Others with heavy accents find a ready market for their tapes all over the world.

We don't play that game well.

A trade embargo is more familiar territory. We've been down that road before.

Nobody really "wins," but for a small country facing that kind of policy it really hurts and it hurts their allies who have to pick up the chips.

President Reagan is following the same path President Eisenhower took a quarter of a century ago against Fidel Castro. It was a bloodless tactic that registered American hostility to Marxism in our hemisphere. For a long time, now, Cuba has had an economy that is in shambles and its sponsors have a money-losing dependency.

Threats to build up the military strength of Nicaragua's anti-government forces never did seem to worry the Sandinistas; but the leadership is less fiery and belligerent when speaking of how much they'd like to get "development funds" or see doors open to more trade.

There is good reason to think imposing the embargo and resultant economic pressure would have a great impact. In many ways it's a better deal than trying to impose a military solution and chances of a backlash are significantly less. True, some have their doubts; seeing the embargo route as strengthening ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union. In any event, the outcome is fully as uncertain in its long-range aspects as the military option.

Tiger

It was such a simple thing: denoting firm action, consideration of hardship problems acceptance of unforeseen handicaps and finally solution of a festering need. The Environmental Protection Agency seems to sometimes stretch understanding and patience to incredible limits ... and it hasn't worked.

Back in 1983 a General Accounting Office study said 78 percent of landfills had failed to meet the monitoring rules requirements. Congress extended the deadline to Nov. 8 of this year, but said landfills must close then if they are not in compliance.

The non-compliance rate remains high and widespread problems persist. The EPA says it wants to close the laggards in compliance with the law but the agency files are filled with data from landfills trying to meet requirements, and closing them raises questions of equities.

It is probable most landfill operators will get more time.

The American people rushed into environmentalism and each year has been a learning process about the unexpected and what we've really gotten ourselves into. We've got a tiger by the tail and can't let go.

Improving The Vintage

There are only three great "Master Coca Cola Tasters" in the world. One is Beauregard Cokely from Marmaduke, Ga. Beau has been producing and bottling the finest vintage Coca Cola in the South for the past 40 years.

His palate is so sensitive that I have seen him perform a blindfold test where he was able to distinguish between unmarked bottles of Coca Cola, Dr. Pepper, Seven-Up and Miller's Lite Beer.

I have attended four-star banquets where Beau, by just holding his glass up to the light, was able to tell the year a coke was bottled, the district it came from and, what was more astounding, the first name of the truck driver who delivered it to the supermarket.

It was no wonder that when Coca Cola announced it would introduce a new formula for its drink last week that I sought out Beau to discover exactly what was going on.

I found him in his famous Coke cellar at Chateau Lafite Atlanta with his wife and daughter. The three of them was hip deep in a large vat stomping on juicy red cola grapes in their bare feet.

Beau climbed out of the vat and greeted me warmly. Then he bent over, opened a spigot and poured some cola syrup into a tin cup. He sniffed it, sipped it, swilled it around in his mouth and spat it out. "Stomp a little harder," he yelled up to his wife. "It's not sweet enough."

He handed me the cup. "What do you think?"

I tasted it and also spat. "It shows extraordinary promise, and its honesty can't be questioned," I told him.

Beau nodded. "I believe that 1985 could be one of the greatest vintage years for Coca Cola. You would have to go back to the glorious reds of '31 and '35 to match this one for body and bouquet. The sun has finally shone on Georgia."

"Is it true that after 99 years Coca Cola has a new taste?"

"We haven't changed the taste. We've improved its virility. In place of the light, dry bubbly that has been our trademark, we're producing a mature, full-bodied, more distinctive cola."

He went over to a Coke case marked "1984." "Taste the difference between this and the '85," he said.

I did. "Now that you mention it, the '84 does seem to lack breeding." "Of course it lacks breeding. To give Coke back its nobility, we've made this year's vintage rounder, smoother and bolder. We're allowing the cola to mature in its six-pack a week longer and the bubbles to breathe in the can. We want our customers to be part of an entirely new soft drink experience."

"Rumor has it that you are just pandering to the Pepsi generation," I said.

Beau was furious. "It's an insult to mention Coke in the same breath with Pepsi Cola. Pepsi consists of nothing but carbonated water, sugar, caramel color, phosphoric acid, caffeine, citric acid and natural flavorings. Coke, on the other hand, is the real thing. It will always be the pause that refreshes because every American knows things always go better with Coke."

Beau's wife and daughter were leaning over the side watching us. He looked up and yelled at them, "Who told you to stop stomping?" They went back to jumping up and down.

I said, "Beau, could you tell me what the Coke formula is all about?"

"I'm sworn to secrecy."

"All right, just nod your head if I'm right or wrong. Would it have anything to do with making the syrup with your bare feet?"

Beau kicked me out through the cellar door.

"What did you do that for?" I asked.

He said, "You're getting too close to the secret for comfort."

Democrats Wooing The Public

RALEIGH (AP) — It was an unfamiliar sight — Kenneth Royall, the hulking, normally reticent Senate majority leader, lumbering to the podium to deliver a prepared speech during a subcommittee meeting.

Reporters were equally surprised that he had copies of his remarks distributed to them — and sent extras to the Legislative Building press room for anyone who missed the meeting of the Senate panel considering Republican Gov. Jim Martin's tax-cut package.

Democratic legislative leaders generally are accessible to the media, but let reporters come to them instead of the other way around. That, however, is changing — and not by accident.

Key Democrats have decided that in order to win the war of words with Martin, they'll have to do better at presenting their views to the voters who last fall gave Martin more votes than any other North Carolina governor.

It was decided during a recent House-Senate Democratic caucus that state party chairman Wade Smith, a former legislator, would issue periodic statements contrasting the stands taken by the Republican administration and the Democratic opposition.

Meanwhile, legislative leaders have taken steps to counter what they see as an enormous advantage for Martin: abundant media coverage.

"It's a fact of life that when the governor has a press conference and makes a statement, it makes the front page and goes out all over the state, whether it's fact or fiction," says House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

Martin, like his predecessor, Democrat Jim Hunt, has a weekly news conference at which he makes announcements and fields questions. Aides see the conferences as an opportunity for the attractive, articulate Martin to bypass a hostile legislative leadership and appeal directly to the public for support.

Lawmakers say the gubernatorial news conference is a forum they can't match. But evidence abounds of their stepped-up quest for exposure.

Royall frequently glanced at the lone TV camera in the room while delivering his finance subcommittee speech, a scathing attack on Martin's plan to repeal the inventory and intangibles taxes and the state sales tax on food and non-prescription medicines.

"In my opinion, the final plan adopted by the Legislature will be fairer, better balanced, and more fiscally responsible than that proposed by the governor," said Royall. "It will be more people-oriented and not fraught with fiscal uncertainty."

Earlier, when the House approved its alternative to the Martin program, Rep. George Miller — chairman of the subcommittee that developed the plan — went so far as to mail copies of his floor speech to reporters. Rep. Dwight Quinn, chairman of the Finance Committee, prepared for journalists a packet of documents comparing the two plans' costs and effects.

Ramsey said in an interview he had encouraged legislators to make such efforts the rule rather than the exception.

There's more at stake in all this than bragging rights. Republican strategists make little secret of their intention to portray the Democratic leadership as unfair to Martin during the 1986 campaign. The GOP hopes Martin's popularity will translate into additional legislative seats. Traditionally, the party in control of the White House loses ground in off-year elections.

Democrats have a healthy respect for Martin's ability to perform well in front of cameras.

"He's been successful, so you'd have to say he's been skillful," said Ramsey. "He's been able to use the press."

Martin readily acknowledges that he relies heavily on the media to communicate with the Legislature and the public. But he didn't seem fazed last week when discussing the opposition's new publicity initiative.

"I hope they'll get some of the people who helped them in the last campaign to help them put this together," said Martin with an impish grin.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The headline under which the Tyer-Savage article of April 29, 1985, reports the indictment for the death of an anencephalic infant reflects unfairly on the male minority of the nursing profession.

As a manner of presentation, it is highly unlikely that you would headline an article as "female physician or female attorney;" both of these, as well as male nurses, are a minority in their professions. To have headlined "Male Nurses" is in my opinion discriminatory and outdated. I have been in the nursing profession for many years and it has been my privilege to work at the bedside as well as in management and leadership positions with outstanding, dedicated and committed male nurses.

While all of us in the nursing profession deplore any act that would jeopardize life or the quality of patient care, we resent the apparent discrimination that your headline implied. I would think Ms. Tyer and Mr. Savage would be more concerned for reporting the facts rather than the gender.

Strength For Today

Some years ago the dead body of a woman was discovered in the basement of her palatial home.

Upstairs the closet in her dressing room was filled with the most exquisite garments. Her home was beautifully furnished. Yet for years she had lived in the basement and slept on a pallet there. Of course she had never worn any of the fine clothes. She was in rags when they found her.

Multitudes of people live, morally, in the basement, although they have been taught right from wrong in their childhood and have fine backgrounds. A beautiful mansion with gorgeous appointments awaits them, but they never live in this mansion. They live in the basement.

Everyone who is not living up to his best self, who hesitates to renounce evil, to repent, to accord forgiveness to enemies and to accept Christ's offer of a better life, is living in the basement.

Laxalt Is Question Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speculation that Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada might get into the race to succeed his close friend Ronald Reagan as president is adding a new, potentially unsettling element to the early maneuvering for the 1988 campaign.

Laxalt would be the one candidate who could upset key aspects of the strategies of Vice President George Bush and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, generally regarded as the two leading prospects for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination.

For example, how would the president respond to a contest in which his loyal vice president and his close personal friend were rivals?

"I wouldn't expect the president to endorse anybody in 1988," Bush has said. "He never has, and it's against his policies to do that."

He has been happy to have Reagan say repeatedly, "As far as I'm concerned there has never been a finer vice president."

That kind of statement appeared to send a clear message to Reagan's conservative supporters: Bush had been a loyal vice president and deserved their support in 1988.

But would Reagan continue to be as complimentary to Bush if Laxalt got into the race? Reagan and Laxalt have been close friends since they were governors of adjacent states in the 1960s.

"We're like brothers, just like brothers," is how Laxalt has described the relationship.

In 1976, 1980 and again in 1984, the Nevadan was chairman of Reagan's presidential campaign. At the Republican convention in each of those years, it was Laxalt who delivered the speech placing Reagan's name in nomination.

Laxalt often is described as the only person Reagan would be tempted to endorse as his successor.

All that would seem to be good news for Kemp. A key element of the congressman's 1988 strategy is the hope that Reagan would not give overt help to the vice president.

But a Laxalt candidacy also has a downside for Kemp.

Just the speculation that Laxalt might run in 1988 "freezes a lot of people in place," said one Reagan activist, speaking on condition he not be identified. He was referring to the core of conservative Republicans who have worked on Reagan campaigns through the years.

Most of them remain suspicious of Bush and would be more inclined to side with Kemp or some other conservative in 1988. They might have provided the base around which the New York congressman could build an early campaign organization. But the talk of a Laxalt candidacy has them hanging back, hoping he will decide to run.

First, Laxalt has to make a decision about 1986, when his Senate term expires. For some time, the betting has been he would not run for a third term. But, more recently, there has been increasing speculation he would run. Laxalt has promised to announce his decision in August.

Meanwhile, Bush operatives were busy trying to get commitments from key supporters from the 1984 campaign and Kemp was becoming increasingly willing to talk about what he would do if he were president.

All this activity seemed to confirm the advice Reagan campaign official Lee Atwater gave the Commission on National Elections, the latest self-mandated group setting out to reform the system.

"Regardless of what laws you think up, we're in a permanent campaign," said Atwater, who was deputy director of the 1984 Reagan-Bush campaign.

Organ Procurement Agencies Merged

ECU News Bureau

Three of the state's major organ and tissue procurement programs have merged to form a single agency responsible for organ donation, recovery and placement in the eastern Piedmont and eastern North Carolina.

The move involves organ procurement programs at Duke University Hospital, the East Carolina University School of Medicine and North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. The institutions will combine their operations July 1 in an independent, non-profit organization to be called the Carolina Organ Procurement Agency (COPA).

The COPA program, with an 11-member staff, will be based at two regional sites. The Triangle Regional Office will be located in the Eastowne Office Park in Chapel Hill, while the Eastern Regional Office will be located at the ECU School of Medicine.

Officials with the institutions said the unification will afford better coordination of organ procurement activities in the area and result in greater availability of organs, tissue and corneas for transplant in North Carolina.

"This agency will address all aspects of organ and tissue donation and recovery in the 54 counties it serves," said Dr. Stanley Mandell, a transplant surgeon at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and president of COPA's executive board. "By combining our resources and working together, we can do more than we could as independent agencies."

Mandell said the formation of COPA will be especially beneficial in assuring that organs recovered in North Carolina are, when possible, transplanted in patients within the state. Under the previous arrangement, if an organ could not be used immediately by the recovering institution, it was registered in a national sharing network.

With the advent of COPA, the affiliated institutions will receive priority placement status, followed by other North Carolina medical institutions and finally the rest of the country.

In addition to its recovery and placement activities, the agency will be responsible for increasing public awareness of the need for organ donation and for training medical professionals to identify and meet the needs of potential organ donors. COPA will also aid in research and development of improved methods of organ and tissue recovery, preservation and transplantation.

COPA's activities will include recovery and placement of human corneas, in affiliation with the Winston-Salem-based North Carolina Eye & Human Tissue Bank.

The agency's activities will be overseen by a 12-member board of directors with equal representation from each of the participating institutions.

12 Rose High Juniors Are Selected For Governor's School '85 Session

Twelve Rose High juniors have been elected to attend the 1985 session of North Carolina's annual Governor's School — six each at sessions to be held at St. Andrews College, Lenoir County, and Salem College in Winston-Salem.

Those going to St. Andrews, and the fields in which they were selected, were:

•Jeffrey Stephan Bray, science. The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bray, Jeffrey is a marshal and is active in the Rose High Drama Club. He is a substitute organist at St. Gabriel's Parish, and is a member of the church's youth organization. He received an excellent rating in the N.C. History Day project. His hobbies include fishing, drawing, singing, and playing the piano.

•Robin Asher Bolande, drama. Robin is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert P. Bolande. He has been active in Rose High productions including drama and musical presentations, and is treasurer of the Drama Club. He placed first in the district Junior Women's Club Arts Festival in public speaking, and is a member of the school chorus and the International Club. As a sophomore, he was a member of the varsity track team. His interests include creative writing and French.

•Mark Lewis Elmore, art. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Elmore, Mark is deeply involved in art. Since his grammar school days, he has won numerous art and other awards for things such as a poster contest, a History Day Award in Raleigh, and Gold Key Awards from Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, on two occasions. He was a district winner in the N.C. History Day competition held at East Carolina University this spring, and competed in the state competition in Charlotte, where he received a rating of excellent.

•Kelly Margaret Jones, instrumental music. Kelly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Jones. She is drum major for the Rose High Marching Band, belongs to the Anchor and French Clubs, is junior class vice president, a member of the Student Government Association, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. At Memorial Baptist Church she is a member of the chancel choir and is president of the Church Youth Group. Kelly also is on the Rose track team and the cross country team. She plays flute and piccolo and is interested in sports medicine.

•Charlotte Ann Proctor, math. The daughter of William Proctor, Charlotte is an all-A student, and belongs to the French Club, the International Club and the Juniors. Her special interests include traveling, reading and field hockey.

•Carl Roland Wille, math, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Carl R. Wille. A marshal, Carl is the 1985 captain of the soccer team, lieutenant governor of the Key Club for Division 12, and a member of the Drama Club and the International Thespian Society. He was selected to attend Boy's State and placed second in the Elizabeth City State University Math Contest. A member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, he likes to play soccer and basketball.

The six juniors selected to attend Governor's School West at Salem College, and their fields, were:

•Andrea Catherine Bath, instrumental music. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath, Andrea is a marshal and is very active in music. She received honorable mention in the NCMTA competition in 1983, was runner up in 1984, and was winner of the 1984 Wilmington Symphony Young Artist Competition. She is a performer in the East Carolina Symphony, the Greenville Chamber Players and the Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina and has membership in the Anchor, Keywantes and French Clubs.

•Glenye Lee Cain, drama. Glenye is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cain. She won National History Day District and State Awards in 1982 and 1985, has won Women's Club Writing Awards, and in 1981 and 1982 won the Coastal Plains Horse Show Circuit championship. Glenye is secretary of the Rose Drama Club, and belongs to the Latin, International and Saddle Clubs. She is also the student representative on the Faye M. Creagan Scholarship Committee.

•Christy Dyan Garrison, dance. Christy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garrison, and is an early admissions student at East Carolina University in chemistry, geography and dance. She belongs to the Anchor and Spanish Clubs and is a member of the Student Government Association. She has appeared in dance performances at ECU and in acting roles at ECU in dramas and musicals. Christy was also selected for the TIP program at Duke University, and is a Sunday School teacher at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

•Joshua (Josh) McKinnon Hickman, instrumental music. Josh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hickman, was chosen for the North Carolina All State Honors Orchestra in 1984 and in 1985. He is a member of the Key Club and of the First Presbyterian Church and Youth Group. He performs with the Rose High Orchestra, the Greenville Chamber Players, and an Eastern Youth Orchestra string quartet. In sports, he plays on the Rose High soccer and golf teams.

•Nancy Elizabeth Johnson, social science. Nancy is the daughter of Thomas Johnson and the late Nancy Adams Johnson. She attended a presidential classroom for young Americans, and is a marshal. Nancy is a member of the Anchor and Drama Clubs, RECAST, the Quill and Scroll, and is on the staff of the school newspaper, Rampant Lines. She sings with the youth church choir at St. James United Methodist Church and in sports takes part in track and gymnastics.

•Aaron Michael Nieman, instrumental music. Aaron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Nieman, is active in music. He is principal second violin of the Eastern Carolina Youth Orchestra, won a scholarship and attended Cannon Music Camp in Boone, has been a performer in the Eastern Region Honors Orchestra, was first violin with the Greenville Choral Society, attended All State Orchestra, Winston-Salem, and plays also in the Rose High School Orchestra, the Greenville Chamber Players and the Suzuki Players of Eastern North Carolina. He enjoys tennis, swimming, basketball and writing poetry.

Warren Says Plan Beneficial

RALEIGH — Rep. Ed Warren, chairman of the House Appropriations Base Budget Committee on Education said Tuesday that he feels the people in his district will benefit by the tax plan passed by the N.C. House of Representatives.

"It will change a little more, of course," Warren said. "The normal procedure for tax packages in the General Assembly, or any major piece of legislation for that matter, is for both the House and the Senate to come up with packages and for those packages, plus whatever package has been presented by the governor, to be considered by a conference committee which then presents a full package to both bodies for a vote.

"This procedure guarantees that full thought and deliberation is given to very important issues.

"What I like about the House-passed package," Warren said, "is that it helps the people who need help in all segments of society."

The House package includes the repeal of the inheritance tax which will eliminate some 15,000 to 16,000 returns this year if it goes into effect on July 1.

"This is particularly important," Warren said, "because so many family farmers are threatened by inheritance tax. Often a family will own a farm for generations, paying taxes on it every year, then when the oldest member dies, the survivors sometimes have to sell their property to pay off the taxes."

Property Stolen

Police are continuing their investigation of three thefts reported to the department on Tuesday.

Officer J.E. Fleming said a blouse, skirt and wallet were taken from Matita's Dress Shop at 110 E. Fourth St. in an incident reported at 10:50 a.m., while Officer J.G. Bridges said a purse was taken from a vehicle parked at Greenville Cable TV on Arlington Boulevard in an incident reported at 3:49 p.m.

According to Officer J.A. Bartlett, a bicycle was taken from 500 W. Fourth St. in an incident reported at 6:22 p.m.

Traffic Charges

Officer B.M. Hamill said Jerry Brian Lee, 20, of Route 1, Greenville, was arrested on multiple traffic charges about 8:09 p.m. Tuesday following a chase that ended on the Slantonsburg Road.

Hamill said Lee was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign, exceeding the posted speed, failing to stop for a blue light and siren, and speeding more than 15 miles an hour over the limit to elude arrest.

Death Investigated

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of the death of Heloise Russell Olsen, 71, of 1719 Forest Hills Drive, which was reported to the department at 4:29 a.m. today.

Investigators said Mrs. Olsen was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Tuesday after she apparently fell at her home, and was released after treatment. When a city fire-rescue department unit was called to the residence early today, they found that Mrs. Olsen was dead.

An autopsy was scheduled to be performed today to determine the cause of death, officials said.

Pitt Drug Arrest

The operator of the Tree Tops Mini Mart on State Road 1700 south of Greenville has been arrested by Pitt County authorities on various drug charges, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said deputies confiscated approximately $8,000 worth of drugs, including cocaine, marijuana and Deazepen and Phentermine capsules, in the arrest of Henry Harris, 37, of 101B Courtland Road.

Tyson said Harris was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to manufacture, sale and deliver; possession of drug paraphernalia; manufacturing a controlled substance; possession of cocaine; simple possession of marijuana, and felonious possession of cocaine.

Tyson said deputies seized from the store and Harris' residence approximately two ounces of cocaine, $233 in cash, a quantity of marijuana, and various items including smoking pipes, sifters, grinders, plastic bags, paper rolling machines, razor blades, scales and straws.

Bond for Harris was set at $10,000.

Monday Symposium

A free symposium on "Violence in the Family" will be held at the Sheraton Greenville Monday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Reservations can be made prior to Friday by calling the Pitt County Family Violence Program Center, 752-3811.

The symposium will acquaint participants with the rate of family violence in Pitt County, create awareness of society's ways of discouraging women from seeking assistance, and discuss resources available for women who recognize violence and want to initiate responsible action.

Rebecca Garrison, Judith Kornegay and Mary Louis will conduct the seminar.

Church Plate Sale

The Greenville Church of God on South Memorial Drive is selling pork barbecue plates Friday from 4-7 p.m. For delivery and ticket information call 756-4837.

Chapter Gathering

Luanne Wallace, scholarship recipient, was the special guest at a recent meeting of the Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa.

Ms. Wallace, a Rose High senior, has been selected to receive a $200 scholarship from the Alpha Nu Chapter sorority for outstanding women educators. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kelly Wallace and plans to attend Meredith College in Raleigh.

Following a program on makeup by Dawn Gaither, chapter president Faye Dempsey reported on the society's recent state convention in Raleigh. Area members attending included Ann Byrd, Ms. Dempsey, Shirley Moore, Barbara Tyson, Linda Whitehurst, Edith Barnhill, Barbara Parker, Sarah Perkins, Lee Brickhouse and Bea Little.

Chowan Program

The science department at Chowan College will sponsor its third annual Science Enrichment Week June 17-21. Students in grades six through nine may take part.

The day-student program will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is designed for 30 students — 15 in grades six and seven and 15 in grades eight and nine. Each group will participate in three laboratory sessions a day. A fourth session will consist of varied activities including recreation.

For further information, contact James Dewar, (919) 398-4101.

ACS Subcommittee

Registered nurse Terry McCaffrey, the occupational health nurse at Yale Materials Handling Corp. in Greenville, recently participated in the North Carolina Division of the American Cancer Society Subcommittee on establishing a workplace public education program.

'Hot Tub Sit'

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is sponsoring a benefit "Hot Tub Sit" May 25 from noon until 3 p.m. at Southpark Shopping Center in Greenville.

Individuals or teams can participate and help raise funds to enable MDA to continue its direct patient service and research program. To register or for further details, contact Landry Gray, 756-7991.

Washington Trip

The Congressional Action Committee of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a trip to Washington, D.C. June 4-5. Reservations are being accepted for the annual trip.

The bus will depart at 10 a.m. June 4 and will return at approximately 11 p.m. June 5. For further details and reservations contact the chamber at 752-4101.

'Legislative Day'

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring another "Pitt County Legislative Day" in Raleigh May 22.

The chamber said the event is being held on behalf of Pitt County citizens, the East Carolina University School of Medicine, ECU and Pitt Community College.

A reception will be held at the Raleigh Hilton from 7-9 p.m. Pitt County is hosting the General Assembly, Court of Appeals, and Council of State. Gov. Jim Martin has indicated he will attend.

There will be bus transportation from Greenville. For ticket information or reservation space, call the chamber office at 752-4101.

Lecture Planned

A lecture titled "The Rainbow Warrior-the Heart of the Warrior-the Way of the Priest" will be given Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church.

The lecture by Ka'lani is sponsored by the Wholistic Life Network of Greenville. For information call Glenda Whitefield, 752-4569.

Bill Introduced

State Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. has introduced a bill that would ban restaurants from using sulfites as fresheners in fruits and vegetables.

Jones said he introduced the bill, sent to the Agriculture Committee and expected to be before the full House in early June, "because I heard that certain people had suffered attacks of shortness of breath and wheezing after being exposed to sulfites. A ban on these fresheners is the best way to protect the state's consumers."

Sulfites are most often used by restaurants to keep lettuce from turning brown. If passed, the ban would become effective Oct. 1.

'Spotlight' Series

The second in the Mental Health Association sponsored "Spotlight" series of programs on violence in Greenville and Pitt County will be held Thursday at noon at the Jaycee Park administration building.

The topic "Domestic Violence" will be discussed by Cynthia Perry, director of the Pitt County Family Violence Program.

Doctors Say Schroeder Suffered Stroke, Has Neurological Disorder

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder suffered a stroke earlier this week and "has a severe neurological problem," a hospital spokeswoman said today, adding that the world's longest-lived artificial heart patient seems to be gradually improving.

The origin of the neurological problem was not known, said Donna Hazle, public relations director at Humana Hospital Audubon.

The 53-year-old Schroeder, who was readmitted to Audubon on Monday afternoon, continues to respond to verbal commands but is not speaking, she said.

He remains in critical but stable condition, following what was described as a hemorrhagic stroke.

Schroeder was returned to the coronary care unit — after spending 30 days outside the hospital — when tests detected bleeding in the brain on Monday afternoon.

A second round of tests on Tuesday afternoon showed that bleeding had stopped. But doctors told Ms. Hazle it may be awhile before they determine the cause of the bleeding.

"Physicians this morning indicated that Bill Schroeder has a severe neurological problem," Ms. Hazle said.

"The bleeding occurred from the left base of the brain, the left frontal lobe," she said in a tape-recorded statement. "The neurologist has determined that there is weakness in his right extremities. This is partially due to the old stroke and has been aggravated by the recent bleeding."

Schroeder, who received his Jarvik-7 mechanical unit on Nov. 25, suffered a series of strokes Dec. 13, which impaired his memory and speech.

Schroeder had been receiving doses of blood-thinning drugs to help avert stroke, but the medication was discontinued Monday to help stop bleeding. The anti-coagulant therapy hasn't resumed, Ms. Hazle said.

"The patient is awake and responsive to his wife, nurses and doctors," she said. "He is not speaking."

No tests, other than an arteriogram, or X-ray of arteries, were planned, she said. "Therapy at this time includes quiet bed rest."

The Jasper, Ind., man was discharged from the hospital April 6, and had been living since then with his wife in a specially equipped apartment across the street from Audubon.

Schroeder's hometown physician, Dr. J.P. Salb, said Schroeder seemed to be aware of people in the room around him. Schroeder's family visited him several times on Tuesday.

"Margaret (Schroeder) said that when she was in there he squeezed her hand when she talked to him," Salb said.

It might be some time before doctors perform tests to determine whether Schroeder suffered lasting brain damage, Ms. Hazle said.

A cerebral hemorrhage occurs when a blood vessel breaks or blood seeps out of its normal channels, resulting in too much blood washing over the brain. A stroke occurs when a clot blocks the flow of blood to the brain.

On March 16, Schroeder completed his 112th day on the heart, equaling the time of the first permanent artificial heart recipient Barney Clark, who died in 1983 at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

King Is Chairman

Roscoe L. King was re-elected to a second one-year term as chairman of the Greenville Housing Authority Monday during the agency's annual meeting.

Also re-elected were Billy B. Laughinghouse, vice chairman, and Joe M. Laney, secretary/treasurer.

King has been a GHA commissioner since May 1980.

The Housing Authority is a public non-profit organization established by the city of Greenville 24 years ago to develop public housing for low-income families.

Bloodmobile

The Pitt County Red Cross reported the collection of 127 units of blood at Tuesday's bloodmobile at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Blood Chairman Barry Gaskins said 148 persons visited the bloodmobile to donate and 18 were deferred for various health reasons.

Request Approved

Police Lt. D.R. Bullock has approved a request made by the St. Peter's Women's Club to solicit area merchants for merchandise to be used for a card party. The solicitation will be conducted through May 17.

Donation For House

The Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority of Snow Hill has donated $176 to the Ronald McDonald House, which will be built in Greenville and serve as a live-in facility for seriously ill children and their parents during hospital treatment.

Construction on the house will begin in June. The facility is expected to be ready for occupancy late this year.

GHDC President

Patricia G. Rice was re-elected to a second one-year term as president of the Greenville Housing Development Corp. Monday during the annual meeting of the local agency.

Also re-elected were Roscoe L. King, vice president, and Joe M. Laney, secretary/treasurer.

The agency is a non-profit corporation established by the Greenville Housing Authority to provide bond financing for development of private low-income housing in the city.

School Trip

Stokes Elementary School culminated its two-week celebration of North Carolina Heritage Week with a schoolwide trip to Manteo and the Outer Banks involving 231 parents, students and staff.

Killed By Mower

EATON RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 79-year-old woman whose body was found under a mower attachment apparently had been run over by the device after a tree branch knocked her off a tractor, authorities said.

Wava Lee Ricks had been missing four days when her body was found Monday night protruding from under a machine she had used to mow alongside a fence row on her farm, sheriff's spokeswoman Terri Wolfe said Tuesday.

"A tree branch knocked her off," Ms. Wolfe said. "The tractor was still in gear and the brush hog was still engaged and ran over her."

Authorities believed Mrs. Ricks was killed on Thursday, Ms. Wolfe said.

A neighbor called authorities after

Mrs. Ricks had not been seen for several days and had failed to show up for Sunday church services, Ms. Wolfe said.

MASONIC NOTICE
There will be a stated communication at Crown Point Lodge 708 Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a Republican deficit-reduction plan in tatters, Senate Democrats are coming forth with some budget plans of their own — one of them calling for a six-month delay in Social Security benefit increases — but Democratic leaders say they expect initial defeat.

"I don't think anything we offer will pass right now," said Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, senior Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee.

Chiles and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., a former chairman of the budget panel, have joined forces and come up with a Democratic "alternative" to be offered to the Senate today.

Their plan, calling for a six-month delay in Social Security cost-of-living increases and $72 billion in new taxes — largely falling on corporations — is designed to balance the federal budget within five years.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., after seeing a Republican "compromise" that was endorsed by the White House dismantled by the GOP-run chamber, challenged Democrats on Tuesday to come up with their own budget.

Republicans control the Senate by a narrow 53-47 margin. And Dole all but conceded on Tuesday that to get any package through the chamber will require bipartisan support.

However, Democrats are deeply divided on the issue.

A rival plan, authored by Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., guaranteeing full cost-of-living Social Security benefit increases, is also being offered to the Senate.

The two Democratic plans both call for offsetting deficits by new corporate income taxes, a course Republicans have so far tried to avoid — largely because of President Reagan's vow to reject any new tax increase, corporate or otherwise.

Senate debate on the budget appeared to be coming to a head, after three weeks of little action.

"This place hasn't reached critical mass yet. But when things start to move, they really move," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., cosponsor of yet another budget plan — one calling for a freeze on all federal spending, but no new taxes and no accompanying domestic spending cuts.

Biden's plan is also being pushed by Republican Sens. Charles Grassley, of Iowa and Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas.

"It's the only plan out there that is now capable of picking up bipartisan support," Biden said.

However, Chiles claims he doesn't think any plan now before the Senate — not the Democratic offerings and not the one backed by Reagan — can win a 50-vote majority.

"If everything fails, Republicans will have to sit down with Democrats and put a compromise together," Chiles told reporters.

The Senate last week rejected two major elements of a budget plan negotiated by Senate leaders and the White House — voting to reject a proposed 2 percent cap on Social Security benefit increases over the next three years and slicing $17.7 billion from Reagan's defense buildup.

The Senate has been coasting ever since, with Dole saying on Tuesday that he would rather "run out the clock" on the budget debate rather than calling up Republican-sponsored amendments that would further dismantle the Republican package. At the same time, he sought to flush out Democrats by taunting them to come forth with their own proposals.

That process will come today as the budget debate nears a climax.

Meanwhile, the Senate on Tuesday rejected, 71-26, a plan by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to raise revenues by selling off a part of the government's portfolio of delinquent loans.

Moynihan said the plan could help trim the deficit by $8 billion a year by turning over a small portion of the government's $245 billion in loans owed — ranging from unpaid college loans to overdue loans to foreign governments — to private banks and collection agencies.

But Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.,

scoffed at the proposal as a "quick fix" for the deficit, and Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., said it was a candidate for a "flim-flam award."

In another vote, the Senate rejected, 56-40, a proposal by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, to shift funds from foreign aid to agriculture.

All plans are designed to trim the federal deficit, which now stands at more than $200 billion.

Grading Change Proposed

GREENSBORO (AP) — The North Carolina Restaurant Association would like to change its sanitation grading system by giving most restaurant operators a worksheet specifying items to be corrected, instead of the current "A," "B" and "C" system, officials say.

T. Jerry Williams, executive vice president of the association, said with the change, restaurants with an A would maintain that grade in most instances where they would now get a B.

He said some overzealous grading on the part of sanitarians is "a nitpicking mess."

"We think the sanitarian's emphasis should be on food protection," Williams said. "We think sanitarians should protect public health but also help keep restaurants in business."

Under a proposal that the association says it's being pushed into, the state's letter and number system of grading restaurants would be replaced with a pass-fail plan.

Council Agenda

Items to be considered at Thursday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Greenville City Council include the following:

- A request by Tommy Edwards to continue until August a public hearing on rezoning of two parcels of land located behind Carolina Dairy and on the south side of Millbrook Street from high density residential to office and institutional and from high density residential to highway commercial. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended denial of the rezoning request.
- A request by Jonathan R. Day, agent for owners, to rezone acreage located 100 feet east of Warren Street, between the proposed extension of Third Street and the Tar River, from residential agricultural to high density residential. The matter will require five affirmative council votes, because a valid protest petition on the request has been received. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended approval of the rezoning request.
- A request by the city of Greenville to annex 1.67 acres in the Westhaven Subdivision. The property is located at the eastern end of Cedarhurst Road, east of Kempton Drive. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended approval of the annexation.
- A request by North Carolina Equipment Company to close Allen Avenue. The street is approximately 282 feet in length and is located on the west side of Memorial Drive, north of West End Circle. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended approval of the street closing.
- An ordinance amending the city's zoning ordinance regarding retirement homes. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended approval of the change.
- Scheduling of public hearings on annexation of a .932-acre tract on the north side of Mumford Road (west of and adjacent to the Greenville Utilities Operations Center) and application for a taxicab franchise by the City Cab Co.

Items to be considered in blanket, consent action include a resolution authorizing placement of a stop sign at the corner of Haven Drive and Landmark Street, an application for state aid in mosquito control and designation of an agent to execute the documents, tax releases and refunds, and consideration of a contract with the East Carolina Student Government Association for maintenance and repair of SGA transit vehicles.

Public Doesn't Envy Life On Farm

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans believe farmers work hard in a risky business and the government doesn't help them enough — and they wouldn't want their children to go into agriculture, a Gallup survey shows.

The poll of 1,507 people found the public regards farming about on par with the military in terms of desirability as a job for their children, and only ahead of truck driving in a list of 10 possible occupations.

About nine out of 10 say farming involves hard physical work, entails relatively high risk and requires good management skills. But just one-third believed the average farmer makes more money than they do.

Sixty-six percent said they believe the days of the family-owned farm are numbered, and that they eventually will be replaced by big agribusiness.

The survey was conducted by telephone in December and January, before much of the national publicity over the farm credit crisis this spring. Its results were released today by Agfocus, a non-profit group that grew out of the Western Governors Association and that is headed by Gov. Ted Schwinden of Montana. The poll had a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent or less, the association said.

Among major disadvantages the public sees in farming, according to the poll, are difficulty in making a living, 22 percent, and the uncertainties of weather in raising crops, 19 percent.

A factor heard frequently from farmers themselves — the low prices received for crops — was cited by 11 percent of the general public. Other frequently mentioned drawbacks were inflation in prices of fertilizer, fuel and other supplies, along with grueling work and long hours.

Despite their dismal view of farmers' incomes, people vastly overestimated income from farming. The median guess for what farmers make was $24,000 a year, about double the $11,749 reported by the Agriculture Department for net income in 1983.

Those interviewed generally mentioned few advantages to farming. Seventeen percent said being your own boss was a plus, and 13 percent said they thought farmers were more self-sufficient when it comes to food. Ten percent said farmers have a lot of freedom.

When it comes to government policy toward farmers, nearly half of Americans think federal aid is inadequate. But more than half — 58 percent — believe farms would be more efficient if federal price supports were removed altogether.

Seventy-three percent said current government policies help only big farms and not "family-size" farms. And 77 percent said farmers often receive less for their crops under current conditions than it costs to produce them.

Food processors were blamed by the most respondents — 26 percent — for increases in food prices.

Another 23 percent blamed the government, and 33 percent said federal payments to farmers cause higher food prices. The farmer was singled out as the cause of higher food costs by just 3 percent of those interviewed.

Federal agriculture policy is mostly determined by Congress, said 36 percent of those questioned.

But just one in 10 had heard of the primary vehicle for setting that policy, the four-year comprehensive farm bill now being rewritten by Congress. Awareness of the farm bill was highest in the West, at 13 percent, followed by the South (10 percent), Midwest (9 percent) and East (8 percent).

Sixty-two percent said the United States produces more food than it needs. More than three-fourths, however, said that should not be cause for cutting production. Nine out of 10 said the surplus should be distributed to poor Americans, 56 percent said they would like to see more exports to friendly nations and 61 percent said food should be exported to any country that wants it.

Contact Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel is investigating a White House official's contact with federal regulators who filed a complaint against an oil company partly owned by his family.

House Energy Committee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., said Tuesday that for several months his subcommittee on oversight and investigations has been looking into the handling of millions of dollars in alleged oil product overcharges by Anchor Gasoline Corp. of Tulsa, Okla., and a subsidiary, Canal Refining Co. of Church Point, La.

Deputy White House Budget Director Joseph R. Wright Jr. has acknowledged calling the Department of Energy's top regulator on Sept. 23, 1982, nine days after the department filed a formal complaint seeking $7.6 million in alleged overcharges plus $8.5 million in interest from Anchor. Wright's family owns 20 percent of Anchor's stock.

Travelers Attacked After Seeking Help

By NICK GERANIOS
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Two lost travelers from Indiana who asked a man to direct them back onto an expressway were led instead into a housing project, where police said they were beaten, robbed and the woman was raped.

Police arrested and charged three men in the incident.

The 50-year-old woman and her nephew, both from rural Indianapolis, had stopped at a gas station Tuesday morning, when a man offered to direct them, police said.

"They had no idea they were entering a housing project and they didn't suspect a thing," said Police Sgt. John Byrne.

"The two people seemed to be down-to-earth country people from outside Indianapolis," Byrne said. "I would describe them as naive."

The nephew, 35, was treated and released from Roseland Community Hospital, but was "bruised and busted up all over," said Byrne. He had cuts and bruises on his head and four teeth knocked out.

The woman originally was listed in fair condition at the hospital, with a broken cheek bone, broken nose and severe bruises around the eyes, according to hospital officials.

Tuesday afternoon, a hospital spokeswoman said they "are no longer here." She refused to elaborate.

Police filed charges of armed robbery against Theodus Spence, 19, Edward Garret, 24, and Walter Munson, 23, said detective Tom Shine. Garret also was charged with aggravated criminal sexual assault, Shine said.

Police said the couple were traveling to suburban Aurora, just east of Chicago, and got off Interstate 94 about 2 a.m. to find a gas station and to call relatives in Aurora to seek directions.

"One of the offenders came up and offered to befriend them and said he'd show them how to get onto the main highway," said Police Sgt.

Alvin Palmer.

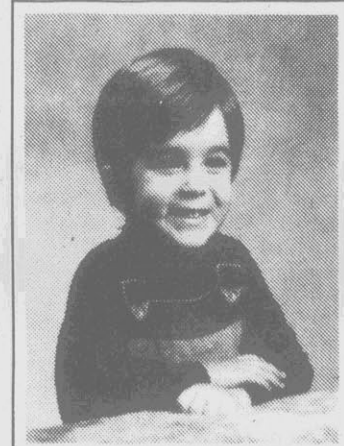

The man got into the car, but instead of directing them to the freeway, he directed them to a sprawling housing project, Palmer said.

Saying he had to ask his father's permission before directing the couple, the man went into a house, then emerged with two others, Palmer said.

The nephew got out of the car to greet the men and was attacked, police said.

The woman was taken behind the building to a nearby woods, where she was raped and beaten, Palmer said.

Kennedy Says U.S. Administration 'Soft' On Soviet Arms Violations

By LAWRENCE KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, relishing a rare reversal of roles, is pouncing on alleged Soviet violations of arms control pacts to portray a leading Reagan administration hawk as soft on Moscow.

Puffing on a big cigar, Kennedy on Tuesday told Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perle that when it comes to Soviet arms control violations, the administration is long on talk and short on action.

"All of us are impressed by the list of the alleged violations," Kennedy said after listening to Perle repeat a long series of complaints about an "insidious pattern" of Soviet violations stretching back to the 1960's.

"It is an eloquent presentation, but quite repetitive, frankly," Kennedy said.

"This administration has known about these alleged violations for two years," said Kennedy, who recently advised fellow Democrats to take a tougher stand on national defense issues.

"We have a right to know when the administration is going to do something about it," he told Perle. "You tell us that this (a response to the alleged violations) has not been resolved within the administration. That's not an acceptable response..."

"I'm just surprised that you continue to put up with it," Kennedy said. "When are we going to get some kind of policy on these issues?"

Perle, one of the severest critics of the arms control process inside the Reagan administration, said one course of action is to increase military spending to counter the military effect of the alleged Soviet violations.

"But frankly," he said, "it is not clear to me how after voting to freeze the defense budget, which I presume you did, one can turn around and accuse the administration of fecklessness."

"Your only response is bigger defense dollars," Kennedy replied. "Is there nothing else you are prepared to suggest?"

"You say the Soviets are knocking on the door" with these violations, he said. "We'll (soon) see the Soviets knocking on other doors and you don't tell us how we are going to keep them locked."

Perle responded: "It may be that you've got some great ideas, I'd like to hear them."

The exchange came at a hearing of a Senate Armed Services subcommittee in which Perle testified that because of Soviet violations, he believes it would be "very unwise" for the United States to extend its voluntary adherence to the terms of the SALT II strategic arms limitation treaty beyond the end of the year.

Perle said that while the administration has reached no conclusion on whether to keep observing the unratified agreement after it expires at the end of 1985 it is his personal view that the SALT II limits should not be extended.

"For the United States to adhere to a treaty the Soviets are violating would create a double standard which I think would be unwise," Perle said.

The Soviets wouldn't do "much more than they are already doing" if they were no longer bound to observe the treaty's terms, he said.

The SALT II treaty will be tested with sea trials late this year for a new Trident submarine, an event that would place the United States over the treaty limit on ballistic missiles unless existing Poseidon submarines or Minuteman missiles are dismantled.

Perle maintained that if the United States were to continue the Salt II limits beyond 1985, "we would be forced to dismantle more weapons than the Soviets would be required to dismantle."

"It seems to me that on both military and political grounds it would be very unwise to continue these limits beyond the date that they were scheduled to expire," he said. "We would be dismantling weapons to comply with a treaty the Soviets are violating."

Saccharin Wins New Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saccharin, the artificial sweetener which last month lost the special protection that kept it from being banned as unsafe, has won another reprieve from the Senate, and the House is expected to add its approval shortly.

The Senate on Tuesday night voted 94-1 to extend for two more years the special exemption that allows saccharin to be used by consumers despite evidence linking it to bladder cancer. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., voted against, but did not explain his vote.

In adopting the extension, the Senate rejected a proposal that would have put new restrictions on the competing sweetener aspartame, sold under the trade name NutraSweet.

Following heavy lobbying by the soft drink industry, the Senate defeated 67-28 an amendment that would have required soft drink bottlers to tell consumers how much aspartame is contained in their diet sodas.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who offered the amendment, credited the defeat to industry lobbying, predicting defeat even before the vote.

"My guess is that the lobbyists have done their job and done it well," he said a few minutes before the vote.

Saccharin, man's oldest sugar substitute, has been used since the 1890s. It came under attack by the Food and Drug Administration in 1977 after laboratory rats fed large quantities of the sweetener showed increased rates of bladder cancer.

An FDA proposal to ban saccharin met public outrage, particularly from diabetics and others who needed to avoid sugar and had nowhere else to turn. Congress responded by temporarily forbidding the FDA from acting against saccharin.

The ban was extended periodically, but the most recent extension expired April 22. The new bill will extend it to May 1, 1987.

The extension was not controversial. While studies of the sweetener are still under way, FDA Commissioner Dr. Frank Young testified last month that data collected since 1977 "does not raise our level of concern over saccharin."

The actual risk, if any, of saccharin to humans still appears to be slight.

The bill now goes to the House, where it also is expected to be non-controversial. Michael Apatoff, an aide to Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the House sponsor, said the House is expected to accept the Senate version and send the measure directly to the White House.

More controversial was the labeling requirement for aspartame, the newest sweetener approved by FDA.

N.Y. Gives Vets Confetti, Cheers and Tears

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Carried along by the cheers of a million onlookers and drowned in a sea of confetti, about 25,000 Vietnam veterans, most in combat fatigues, marched through a tumultuous ticker-tape homecoming from a war that ended a decade ago.

Signs lining the route that wound across the Brooklyn Bridge and through Wall Street on Tuesday summed up the crowd's feelings: "We should have said it sooner — we're proud of you," said one. "Thanks, so much," said another.

Later Tuesday, about 4,000 veterans capped the festivities with a party at the aircraft carrier Intrepid, permanently docked in the Hudson River.

"This was like a college reunion, only not as romantic," said Air Force veteran Ron Naismith as his comrades ate hot dogs, drank beer and listened to pop music of the Vietnam era.

Leaning from office windows, standing on fences and perching precariously on cars and trucks, throngs cheered and waved American flags as group after group of veterans from across the nation passed by.

"It's long overdue," said George

Alvarado, 29, a former Marine from Brooklyn. "We took a big loss and never got any recognition."

Police estimated the crowd at 1 million, although some stretches of the route through Brooklyn and into Manhattan were thinly populated.

Yet even when sparse, the crowd's enthusiasm welled up as the veterans, led by retired Gen. William Westmoreland and 26 Medal of Honor recipients, strolled by or marched past in cadence. Although most vets wore fatigues, some appeared with neat rows of ribbons and medals pinned to business suits.

"It was really a thrill,"

Westmoreland, who headed American forces in Vietnam, said afterward.

Mayor Edward Koch pushed the wheelchair of Assemblyman John Behan, who lost his legs 20 years ago in Vietnam.

"It was a lousy war, but a helluva parade," Behan said. "The enthusiasm of the people was nice to see. They meant it when they said, 'Welcome home.'"

Spectators gave some of their loudest applause to a small group of women marching behind a yellow banner that said: "Women who served in Vietnam."

"It's wonderful. It's really beautiful. I'm here with all my sisters," said Sharon Vennel, 33, of Haddonfield, N.J., who spent a year in Vietnam as an Army decoder.

But for some, the experience was not entirely a happy one.

Angel Irlanda, a radio operator who served in Vietnam from 1967-69, shed tears for the comrades he left behind. "I'm happy in my heart for myself and all my buddies here today but sad about the many left behind. The sons and husbands who died."

Walking with a cane and waving both the American flag and the flag of his native Puerto Rico, Irlanda repeated over and over, tears glistening in his eyes, as he marched: "Thank you, America, thank you."

Some of the veterans at the parade expressed bitterness that the recognition had come so late.

Jerry White, 35, of Manhattan, a former Marine who said he served in Vietnam for "13 months, 23 days and 6 hours," did not march, even though he was wearing a uniform adorned with sharpshooter and pistol medals. He said he came out of respect for those who died.

"I don't consider this a thank you, and it's not a parade. It's just a mob, it's more like a political convention or something. Ten years is too late for anything," he said.

"We came home and we had to pin on our own medals," said Julio Rivera of the Bronx, who was wounded several times during the war. "The people who greeted us were waving North Vietnam flags."

"A lot of us are in jails. ... A lot of us are drug addicts, but that's 'cause they treated us like we were nothing. This is 10 years late, but it opened up my heart that people know a little bit what we went through."

The parade was organized by the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Commission, which also is conducting a program to obtain jobs and job training for out of work veterans.

BRIDGING THE GAP — Vietnam veterans march across the Brooklyn Bridge in New York Tuesday as the city presented them an emotional homecoming — the ticker-tape parade they were denied 10 years ago when that divisive conflict ended in an American defeat. The celebration brought tears of joy and of remembrance to many of those who participated. About 25,000 veterans marched in the parade. (AP Laserphoto)

Israeli Trade Pact Clears House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S.-Israeli agreement to drop mutual trade barriers within 10 years is well on the road to swift congressional approval.

"It is a historic moment for both countries, especially for Israel," Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., said Tuesday as the House passed 422-0 the first pact under which the United States and another nation have agreed to abolish trade restrictions.

In the Senate, the Finance Committee sent the measure to the floor with a favorable recommendation earlier Tuesday.

But the Senate committee, at the urging of Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Max Baucus, D-Mont., agreed to make clear in a report accompanying the bill that it should not be viewed as a precedent for dropping trade barriers with Mexico, Canada and other nations.

The pact provides that the United States immediately drop current tariffs and quotas on 88 percent of the Israeli exports now subject to duties. At the same time, Israel would abolish tariffs on 53 percent of the U.S. goods entering the Middle Eastern country's $8 billion import marketplace.

A handful of barriers remaining would be phased out by Jan. 1, 1995.

Nicaragua Begins To See Results Of Trade Embargo Set By Reagan

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — As the U.S. trade embargo went into effect, the government began diverting shipments of bananas from the United States to Belgium, and shoppers jostled each other for a chance to buy scarce goods.

Jaime Wheelock, the agriculture minister, told reporters Tuesday that 70 boxes of bananas, each weighing 50 pounds, were diverted to Belgium. He said more such shipments would follow soon.

Bananas and coffee are Nicaragua's main exports, and last year the United States purchased $23.5 million worth of Nicaraguan bananas.

President Reagan declared the embargo and suspension of Nicaraguan commercial airline landing rights May 1 to pressure the leftist government into severing their close military ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union. The action came as President Daniel Ortega was pleading his case to Soviet officials for aid, reportedly amounting to $200 million.

Residents went to stores Tuesday to buy such scarce items as soap and toilet paper, which are expected to get even scarcer as U.S. imports and dollar income from exports to the United States are choked off.

The shelves of many supermarkets have been stripped bare each day for the past week, and by Tuesday they had very little to sell. At one supermarket, shoving matches broke out among shoppers over a few remaining cakes of soap.

The Nicaraguan state airline Aeronica also announced it had canceled its four weekly flights between Managua and Miami, depriving it of a badly needed source of dollars.

Sandinista spokesmen said they will try to diversify sales of Nicaraguan products abroad, but many people doubt that that could fully compensate for the losses.

Vice President Sergio Ramirez acknowledged Saturday that "the North American measure will be a source of suffering, shortages and limitations for our country."

Before the embargo, the United States was Nicaragua's principal trading partner. Exports of Nicaraguan coffee, sugar, beef, cotton, bananas and seafood to the United States totaled $57 million, 17 percent of the Central American country's total exports, in 1984. Imports from the United States totaled $111.5 million.

In Geneva, a spokesman for an international trade organization said Nicaragua had requested a special meeting on the U.S. embargo this month.

The spokesman, David Woods, said the meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade would be held during the week of May 20.

GATT is the principal international body set up to promote world trade. Nicaragua is one of the 90 "contracting parties" to the agreement. Nicaragua claims the embargo is illegal.

Meanwhile, top diplomats from four other Central American countries — El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica, and Guatemala — met in San Salvador to prepare for a meeting next week with the four-member Contadora peace group next week in Panama City.

Diplomatic sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the embargo and other economic sanctions against the Sandinistas will figure prominently in the Contadora discussions.

Honduras and El Salvador support the embargo. Costa Rica has not made its position public. While Guatemala has not condemned the move, it said it is willing to sell Nicaragua foodstuffs as long as Nicaragua pays cash.

Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama — the four Contadora countries that are trying to bring about a negotiated peace in Central America — oppose the embargo.

The foreign ministers of the Contadora countries plan to meet with their counterparts from El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua May 15-16.

RESOLUTION NO. 894
RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE DECLARING ITS INTENT TO CLOSE ALLEN AVENUE

WHEREAS, the City Council has received a petition that Allen Avenue be closed; and

WHEREAS, the City Council intends to close Allen Avenue in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 160A-299;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL that it is the intent of the City Council to close the following described Allen Avenue a distance of approximately 282 feet, and being more particularly described as follows:

To Wit: Allen Avenue
Location: Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina. Bound on the north and south by property of North Carolina Equipment, on the west by Myrtice Hemby, and on the east by Memorial Drive. Lying within the corporate limits of Greenville, North Carolina.

Beginning at an iron stake located in the Hemby line said iron stake being S38-00 E 297.04 feet from the southern right-of-way line of Norfolk Southern Railroad and running thence N 63-25 E 287.55 feet to the western right-of-way line of Memorial Drive; running thence S 23-22-25 E 40.07 feet to the southern right-of-way line of Allen Avenue; running thence S 63-25 W 277.24 feet to the Hemby line; running thence with the Hemby line N 38-00 W 40.81 feet to the point of beginning.

A thirty (30) foot wide right-of-way easement along the length of Allen Avenue will be retained by N.C. Natural Gas Corporation as recorded in Book 0-40, Page 194, Pitt County Register of Deeds Office.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a public hearing will be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Building, Greenville, North Carolina, on May 9, 1985 at 7:30 p.m., to consider the advisability of closing the aforesaid Allen Avenue. At such public hearing, all objections and suggestions will be duly considered.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in The Daily Reflector; that a copy of this resolution be sent by certified mail to the owners of property adjoining the aforesaid Allen Avenue as shown on the County tax records; and that a copy of this resolution be prominently posted in at least two (2) places along the aforesaid Allen Avenue.

U.S. Embargo Has Some Loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new economic sanctions against Nicaragua will permit existing trade between that country and the United States to continue for six months and would specifically exempt the rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government, according to administration officials.

In House testimony Tuesday, Assistant Treasury Secretary John M. Walker Jr. appeared to soften the economic impact of the embargo President Reagan announced with tough rhetoric from Europe last week.

Walker said the administration will allow export contracts that were in effect prior to May 1 to be carried out through October.

Nicaragua exports mainly farm products such as bananas to the United States.

Nicaraguan imports of products such as machinery may face additional limits, but generally will not be embargoed for six months, Walker said.

He also said U.S. banks would be permitted to make loans to Nicaraguan businesses. And although flights by the Nicaraguan government airline will be suspended, Americans still would be permitted to travel there by other means.

Walker, along with Assistant Secretary of State Langhorne Motley and Assistant Commerce Secretary Joseph F. Dennin, testified before two House Foreign Affairs subcommittees on international trade and the Western Hemisphere.

Dennin said that while the embargo will apply "meaningful economic pressure" now, Nicaragua will find new markets for its products and new suppliers in the international market.

"In time," Dennin said, "Nicaragua will adjust to these changed circumstances and life will go on. The sanctions will probably not have been a crippling blow."

During the hearing, subcommittee chairman Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., said the six-month delay in imposing much of the embargo "appears to take the sting out of the policy...."

Walker also disclosed that "certain classes of goods" will be exempted from the embargo, namely materials headed for the Contras seeking to overthrow the Managua government and "donated articles intended to relieve human suffering such as food, medicine and clothing."

The administration officials came under heavy fire from Democrats who said the embargo was improperly applied and was bad policy.

"This act of economic warfare once again tells the Sandinistas that we are not interested in reaching an agreement with them," said Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of a House panel on the Western Hemisphere.

Barnes said the embargo gives leverage to Marxist hard-liners in Managua and drives them into closer alliance with the Soviet Union.

He said the Nicaraguan hard-liners "are laughing all the way to Moscow. Why don't we understand that the embargo sets back the peace process?" Barnes said.

But Dennin said Nicaragua has already sharply increased its trade with the Soviet bloc nations, including Cuba.

For those who say the sanctions "will drive Nicaragua further into the Soviet camp," said Dennin, "Nicaragua has already charted that course."

Under the law, Reagan was required to declare a national security emergency to unilaterally impose the embargo on Nicaragua.

"This has been a clear case of declaring an emergency where none exists," Barnes charged.

Motley justified the embargo by saying "an accumulated set of events" in Nicaragua under the Sandinistas threatened U.S. security interests in the hemisphere.

Kinston Holds Off Rose, 7-6

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Tom Vermillion's three-run homer in the first inning provided a grub steak for the Kinston Vikings and two Rose High School rallies fell short in the 7-6 Vike baseball win last night.

The defeat left the Rampants with a 5-6 Big East record and mathematically eliminated them from any chance at the league's championship — and the berth in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's state playoffs. This will be the first time in six years that Rose has not been involved in the playoffs.

Kinston, up 3-0 after half an inning, kept Rose at bay by a run the rest of the way. The Rampants scored a pair on the bottom of the inning, but could never push over the tying run.

Then, after Kinston scored four more in the fifth, Rose also came up with an equal number and had the tying run in scoring position but again fell short.

"We did some good things, but their pitcher (James Watson) showed a lot of heart," Rose Coach Ronald Vincent said. "He made good pitches when he had to.

"I thought Eric Jarman did a good job in relief for us, and we fought back hard, but we just couldn't get over the hump all night long."

Kinston struck quickly for the lead. With one down in the first, David Mitchell got a hit right up the middle, then stole second. Whit Whitley walked and Vermillion cracked a homer to left field, staking the Vikings to a 3-0 lead.

Rose came back in the bottom of the inning to score twice and trim the lead to one. Doyle Kirkland opened with a single into the hole that the shortstop managed to knock down, but he was unable to make a play. Jarman followed with a triple just over the head of the first baseman, easily scoring Kirkland with the first run. Jarman then scored on Steve Wall's single to right.

Kinston left a man on third in the second after David Washburn singled with two away and went to third on Steve Whitley's single.

A double play helped get Rose out of a jam in the third. After the twin-killing, a single and a walk put runners in a threatening position again, but a fly ball ended the inning.

Rose meanwhile, threatened in the third. With two away, Van Alston singled and advanced on an error, but died there. In the fourth, James Matthews reached on a fielder's choice, moving to second on an error on the play, but again the rally died.

In the fifth, Kinston exploded for four runs, chasing starting pitcher Gary Scott. Mitchell opened with an infield hit and raced to third when Scott was off-target on a pickoff play. Whit Whitley singled him in and stole second. Felton Mason singled to put runners on the corner and Billy Raney got a hit, scoring Whitley. Raney stole up and both he and Mason scored on a single by Ralph Sutton. Washburn followed with a double, but Sutton was halted at third and the rally ended there with a 7-2 Viking lead.

But the Rampants fought back and scored four of their own in the bottom of the inning to pull back within one again. Joey Hollow opened with a single that took a bad hop at third and scored on a triple to deep center by Kirkland. Alston singled in Kirkland and stole second, scoring on a double by Tyrone Jones up the alley in left center. Scott Davis followed with another double, this to right, scoring Jones with the sixth Rampant run.

But a strikeout ended the rally still a run short and Rose never got another man into scoring position.

In the seventh, Jarman led off with a walk, but Alston popped up and courtesy runner Lenny Langley was cut down trying to steal second. A strikeout ended the game.

Mitchell, Whit Whitley, Mason and Washburn led Kinston's hitting with two each, while Kirkland, Alston and Davis each had a pair for Rose.

Kinston climbs to 10-10 overall and 6-5 in league play. Rose is now 11-8 overall.

The Rampants return to action on Friday, traveling to Wilson Fike for a 7:30 p.m. game. That contest will be played at Fike, rather than at Fleming Stadium as earlier scheduled.

Welcome Home

Gary Carter of the New York Mets looks for three "high fives" as he touches home plate after hitting an eighth-inning grand slam homer Tuesday at Shea Stadium. The shot beat the Atlanta Braves and relief pitcher Bruce Sutter 5-3. (AP Laserphoto)

Padres 12, Cardinals 2

Kevin McReynolds had a two-run single and Carmelo Martinez a two-run double in the first inning as San Diego scored early and often against St. Louis starter Bob Forsch. 2-2. Kennedy singled in two runs in the fourth and capped a three-run uprising with another two-run single in the sixth.

Dave Dravecky, 1-2, won his first game after suffering shutout losses in his first two decisions.

Cubs 4, Dodgers 2

Lopes, a former Dodger, tied the game 1-1 with a sacrifice fly in the second inning, walked and scored a run in the fifth and singled in an insurance run in the sixth as the Cubs kept pace with the Mets atop the NL East. Dick Ruthven, 1-1, got the win with relief help from Ray Fontenot and Lee Smith, who earned his seventh save. Tom Brennan, 1-1, was the loser.

Reds 2, Phillies 0

Soto, 5-2, and relievers John Franco and Ted Power combined on a five-hitter, but player-manager Pete Rose said third baseman Nick Esasky deserved a share of the credit.

"If it hadn't been for Esasky's great play, we'd still be playing," Rose said.

The Phillies had the potential tying runs on base when Mike Schmidt lashed what looked like a sure double down the third-base line. Esasky flagged down the drive to prevent a score, and Soto pitched out of the inning by getting a force at the plate and then making Glenn Wilson one of his six strikeout victims.

Kevin Gross, 2-3, was tagged for runs in the first on a triple by Ron Oester and in the fifth when Eddie Milner scored on a single by Cesar Cedeno.

Aycock Girls Edge Kinston

E.B. Aycock's girls' softball team squeezed out a 9-7 victory over Kinston yesterday.

Tammy Smith and Jenny Stoneham each hit homers for Aycock, while Charles Cox had three hits, one of them a double, and Nichole Maxon had two hits.

Kathy Parks was the winning pitcher. Aycock travels to Wilson Fike on Thursday.

Bucs Change, Still Losing

By The Associated Press

When the Pittsburgh Pirates opened the season with good pitching but little hitting, Manager Chuck Tanner figured things had to change. He was right.

"Now we're hitting fairly well and the pitching hasn't been good," Tanner lamented after the Pirates dropped a 5-3 decision to the San Francisco Giants in a game matching the National League's two worst teams. The Pirates fell to 8-16, last in the NL East, while the victory pulled the Giants 10-15, within 1 1/2 games of fifth place in the West.

In other games Tuesday, Gary Carter drilled a grand-slam home run in the eighth inning to propel the New York Mets to a 5-3 triumph over the Atlanta Braves; Terry Kennedy drove in four runs with two singles to lead the San Diego Padres to a 12-2 thumping of the St. Louis Cardinals; and Dave Lopes drove in two runs and scored another as the Chicago Cubs tripped the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2.

Also, Mario Soto won his fifth game with seven innings of four-hit ball as the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0, and Bob Knepper and Bill Dawley threw a combined five-hitter as the Houston Astros stopped the Montreal Expos in a game plagued by a lengthy rain delay and frigid temperatures.

The Pirates and Giants brought up the rear of their respective divisions a year ago and each is showing signs of doing so again. But Tanner, for one, isn't about to panic.

"I'm not discouraged ... I'm encouraged," Tanner said. "I think we've been playing better the last week."

As for Tuesday's game, Tanner added, "we had runners in scoring position but we didn't get the big hits when we needed them."

The Giants struck for three runs in the third inning off Pittsburgh starter Lee Tunnel, 0-3, and never looked back. Dan Gladden tripled in the first run and scored the second on a wild pitch. Gary Rajsich capped the inning with a two-out single after walks to Jeff Leonard and Chili Davis.

Jose Uribe singled and stole second in the Giants fourth and came home on a throwing error by Pittsburgh third baseman Jim Morrison. Davis doubled and Rajsich singled him in to give the Giants a 5-1 edge in the fifth.

"We were struggling for runs early in the year, so when you get an early lead, it makes a difference," said Giants starter Jim Gott, 2-0, who was touched for five hits and two earned runs in seven innings. "I still believe we have a great hitting club and the batters are starting to come around now. That's a big help to the pitchers."

Mets 5, Braves 3

Pinch-hitter Mookie Wilson started the Mets' winning rally by drawing a leadoff walk from Atlanta reliever Zane Smith. 2-2. Wally Backman, attempting to sacrifice, was safe at first as Wilson went to second on a throwing error by Smith. Howard Johnson, whose homer in the seventh had tied the game 1-1, sacrificed the runners ahead.

In came Atlanta relief ace Bruce Sutter, who loaded the bases by intentionally walking Keith Hernandez. That set the stage for Carter, who wasn't even sure he would play because of rib, ankle and knee injuries.

"Sometimes when you hurt in so many places, you just have to concentrate on the ball," said Carter, who put one of Sutter's famous split-finger fastballs into the left-field seats.

Claudell Washington homered for Atlanta in the fifth, and the Braves threatened in the ninth against the Mets' stopper, Jesse Orosco. Atlanta got runs on singles by Brad Komminsk and Rafael Ramirez and loaded the bases for Dale Murphy, the major-league home run and RBI leader. But Orosco fanned Murphy and then got Paul Zuvella to pop out to end the game and secure the victory for Ron Darling, 2-1.

Waters Leads Hawks By Conley

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — Jerry Waters blasted a solo homer to open the game, then raced home on a wild pitch in the top of the seventh to lead the North Lenoir Hawks a 5-4 victory over D.H. Conley and the regular season Coastal 3-A baseball championship.
Conley starting pitcher Paul Hill notched his 100th strikeout of the season and finished the game with 12, but in the end it was Viking miscues that gave the Hawks the title. Hill scattered six hits and five walks, but the wild pitch that allowed Waters to score was preceded by a run-producing passed ball in the sixth.

"Paul went through the second, third and fourth innings striking out a lot of batters, but he gave out of gas," Conley Coach Alan Wilson said. "That's twice they've beaten us in the seventh inning. We just made some mistakes that cost us."

After Waters homered leading off the first, Bobby Simmons walked and scored on a two-out single by John Copeland for a 2-0 Hawks lead.
But Conley roared back with four runs in the second before base running mistakes ended the rally.

Randy Mills drove a long fly off the fence but was held to a single. Bronswell Patrick reached first on an error, and Jody Vines singled in Randy Mills for the first run. Hill doubled in two runs, but later started the base-running woes. On a grounder by Ken Hadnott to Simmons at shortstop, Hill was trapped in a rundown and eventually tagged out. Meanwhile, Hadnott was belatedly attempting to take second but was nailed by the relay throw.

Steve Mills followed with a triple and scored on an error of a grounder by Todd Cochran as the Vikings took a 4-2 edge.
The Vikings missed another opportunity in the fourth when Hadnott walked after one out and Steve Mills followed with a double to center. Hadnott raced toward home on what was supposed to be a squeeze play, but the Hawks used a pitch-out to give catcher John Copeland the tag on the play.
"Base running mistakes cost us at least two runs," Wilson said. "We had the squeeze play on and gave it away when (Hadnott) broke for the plate too early. Everybody in the park knew what was coming then."
"You can't make mistakes like that against teams like North Lenoir and expect to have a chance."
North Lenoir finally took advantage of the situation in the sixth when John Johnson opened with a single and Stan Robinson followed with an RBI triple to cut the margin to one. Robinson later scored on a passed ball to give the Hawks a 4-4 tie, but Hill struck out Jamie Taylor to end the inning.
The Hawks took control in the seventh but missed an opportunity to add an insurance run on the same play. Waters walked and went to third when Simmons reached first on an error. Simmons stole second to set up the Hawks' winning run,

A pitch by Hill bounced off the plate and over catcher Randy Mills, who was unable to locate the ball as Waters scored the eventual winning run. Simmons raced home on the play but strided over the plate. Mills tagged Simmons for the second out as he attempted to return to the plate.
But Steve Quinn retired the Vikings in order in the bottom of the seventh to guarantee the title as the Hawks improved their Coastal record to 8-0 while 17-2 overall.
Conley, now 17-4 overall and 4-3 in the conference, battles at West Craven Friday attempting to maintain a share of second place.

Metrodome Defeats Yanks

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer
As far as Manager Billy Martin and the New York Yankees are concerned, the Minnesota Twins can take their Metrodome and go home.
"It's a little league ballpark," Martinsaid. "What a joke."
What frustrated Martin most was not that his Yankees lost to the Minnesota Twins 8-6 Tuesday night. What peeved him was how his team lost.

"We went out there last night and hit balls up to the ceiling, but that didn't work," Martin said.
The Yankees lost several flyballs in the Metrodome's white ceiling and lights and misjudged a few others in falling to the Twins.
"It's like a magic trick," said

Yankees shortstop Bobby Meacham, who lost track of a couple of balls that fell for hits. "I said I wasn't going to take my eye off it. I didn't and it still disappeared on me."

In other American League games, Boston beat California 6-4, Toronto routed Oakland 10-1, Chicago halted Cleveland 7-4, Milwaukee downed Seattle 5-2, Baltimore tripped Kansas City 4-2 and Detroit shelled Texas 10-1.

Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner said he understood other teams' complaints about the Metrodome, but "was not too sorry."

"We have to live with it every day," he said.

The Yankees probably knew they were in trouble from the start. After taking a 2-0 lead in their half of the first inning, weird things began to happen when the Twins came to bat.

Kirby Puckett led off with a bunt single. Mickey Hatcher hit a popup to center that fell between four New York fielders for another single. Kent Hrbek hit a weak grounder to first baseman Don Mattingly, but it turned into a bases-loading single when pitcher Ed Whitson couldn't cover first fast enough.

Tom Brunansky followed with a sacrifice fly, and with two outs Roy Smalley hit a drive to deep right field that Dave Winfield had trouble gauging. The ball fell for a two-run double that put Minnesota ahead 3-2.

Hatcher doubled home another run and Hrbek stroked an RBI single as the Twins knocked out Whitson, 1-4, in the second. Minnesota finished with 15 hits.

Frank Viola, 5-2, became the AL's first five-game winner. He gave up eight hits — six of them doubles — and departed after seven innings because of a tender elbow.

Red Sox 6, Angels 4
Tony Armas cracked his seventh home run of the season and also singled to drive in three runs as Boston won in Fenway Park.

Jim Rice stroked three straight singles and Mike Easler knocked in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Roger Clemens, 3-3, went seven-plus innings for the victory. Bob Stanley, who allowed RBI singles to Jerry Narron and Rob Wilfong in the eighth, got his fifth save.

Armas' two-run homer in the fifth knocked out California starter Kirk McCaskill, 0-2.

Blue Jays 10, A's 1
Ernie Whitt drilled a two-run homer and George Bell fueled Toronto's six-run sixth inning with a two-run single.

Willie Upshaw broke an 0-for-20 slump with an RBI single in the fifth to give the host Blue Jays a 4-0 lead before they finished off Oakland in the sixth.

Dave Stieb, 2-3, went seven innings for the victory. Loser Don Sutton, 2-3, was knocked out in the sixth.

White Sox 7, Indians 4
Ron Kittle snapped out of his slump with a home run while Chicago starter Floyd Bannister and relievers Tom Seaver and Bob James combined to strike out 14 Cleveland batters.

Kittle had struck out six straight times before launching his first home run of the season, a solo shot in the second inning. Greg Walker clubbed a two-run homer in the fifth to break a 4-4 tie in Cleveland.

The Indians had gotten off to a good start when Brook Jacoby hit a grand-slam home run in the first inning. But that was all Cleveland could manage off Bannister, 1-3, who struck out nine in 6 1-3 innings. Seaver — who was pitching in his 600th career game, but for just the ninth time in relief — and James, who fanned four in the final two innings to get his third save.

Brewers 5, Mariners 2
Ben Oglivie homered and drove in three runs to support the five-hit pitching of Moose Haas.

Oglivie's two-run homer gave host Milwaukee a 5-1 lead in the sixth. Oglivie also had an RBI single in the second.

Haas, 2-2, struck out seven during

Garris-Evans 13
Hendrix & Dail..... 10

Graig Willoughby had two hits to help lead Garris-Evans to a 13-10 Prep League victory over Hendrix & Dail last night.

Garris-Evans took the lead with a run in the top of the first, adding five more in the second. After one crossed in the third, Hendrix & Dail got on the scoreboard for the first time with one run. Garris-Evans added one more in the fourth to make it 8-1.

But Hendrix & Dail rallied for eight runs in the fourth, three on an inside-the-park homer by Gatlin, to take a 9-8 lead.

Garris-Evans then came back in the fifth to score four times to put the game away. Michael Harris led off with a walk and Eric Huber also walked. Clarence Harman reached on an error, scoring Harris and Shonte Gay tripled in two runs. An error on the relay allowed him to score for a 12-9 lead.

Garris-Evans got one more in the sixth while Hendrix & Dail scored once in the seventh.

D. Clark had three hits to lead Hendrix & Dail.

Little League

Kiwanis 10

The Lions rallied for six runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to gain an 11-10 victory over the Kiwanis in the North State Little League yesterday.

The Lions took the initial lead with two runs in the first, but the Kiwanis came up with three in the second. The Lions went back out with two in the bottom of the second and added a fifth run in the third.

The Kiwanis rallied for five runs in the fourth including a two-run homer by Jason Bizzaro. They picked up two more in the fifth for a 10-5 lead.

But in the bottom of the sixth, the Lions rallied for six runs to pull it out. Robin Joyner walked as did Steve Nazel. With one away, a wild pitch and an error let Joyner score. Jeff Barwick reached on an error, allowing Nazel to score. Chad Parks walked and with two away, a walk to James Anderson loaded the bases. David Likosar walked forcing in a run and Jonathan Measamer also walked, bringing in another. Joyner followed with a two-run single, scoring Anderson and Likosar to win the game.

Joyner had three hits to lead the Lions, while Bizzaro had three and Monte Smith and Bill Wainwright each had two for the Kiwanis.

True Value..... 17
Jarman Auto..... 4

Matthew Cagle and Gamal Hunter each banged out three hits and Cagle held Jarman Auto to three hits as True Value Hardware rolled up a 17-4 Tar Heel Little League victory yesterday.

True Value got all it needed in the first inning, scoring six times. Cagle led off with a single and both Beau Williams and Aaron Tschetter walked, loading the bases. Hunter singled in Cagle and Williams and Brooks Honeycutt walked, reloading the bases. Whit Thomas reached on an error, scoring Tschetter and Hunter. Henry Clark singled to score Honeycutt and Thomas with the final runs.

True Value added one in the second, nine in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Jarman's scored one in the second and three in the third.

An 18th True Value run, scored in the top of the sixth, was erased when the game was called because of darkness before the inning was completed.

Johnson's One-Hitter Leads Chargers

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C. Wednesday, May 8, 1985 19

LITTLEFIELD — Gene Johnson struck out 12 and walked three but narrowly missed a no-hitter as the Chargers of Ayden-Grifton pounded Farmville Central 10-1 in Eastern Carolina baseball action Tuesday.

Farmville leadoff hitter Hugh Moore ripped a single in the top of the first to end the of a no-hitter, but Johnson cruised until the fifth when the Jaguars plated an unearned run.

Shannon Peede and Curt Tucker went 2-2 at the plate to lead Ayden-Grifton, while Wesley Hardee and Eddie Brown each went 2-4.

The Chargers plated one run in the second but broke the game with seven in the third.

Frank Mills singled to open the rally, Hardee singled and Jackie Conway beat out an infield hit to load the bases. Brown doubled in Mills and Hardee, and Peede singled to drive in Conway and Brown. Peede went to second on the relay home, and Tucker singled in Peede.

Tucker stole second, and Tony McLawhorn followed with a base on balls. A wild pitch advanced the Tucker and courtesy runner Jesse Hooker, and both scored on an error of Ty Little's grounder.

"That was a big win for us," Ayden-Grifton Coach Chris Ross said. "It keeps us tied with Southern Nash for second place, but we've still got to win our last two."

Ayden-Grifton, now 11-9 overall and 8-3 in the conference, has an open date Friday before traveling to North Pitt Tuesday.

PIKEVILLE — C.B. Aycock plated an unearned run in the bottom of the seventh to rally past Greene Central 11-10 Tuesday in Eastern Carolina 3-A baseball.

Tommy Dunn opened the rally with a double and moved to third on a sacrifice. After a base on balls to Paul Summerlin, John Thomas singled in Dunn to even the score 10-10. An error on a ball hit by John Herring allowed Summerlin to race home with the winning run.

Greene Central evened the score 5-5 with a run in the top of the third, but Aycock got back-to-back homers from Richard Hanson and Dunn to regain the lead. Hanson's homer was a two-run shot, as the Rams took an 8-5 lead.

Greene Central trimmed the margin with two runs in the fourth, but Aycock plated another run in the bottom of the frame for a 9-7 edge.

In the fifth, Michael Griffin drew a base on balls, Stacy Chase singled and Scott Jones walked to load the bases. Ervin Collins and Barry Ginn walked to force in two runs, and Jones crossed the plate on a wild pitch to a 10-9 Rams lead.

Dunn, Summerlin, Thomas and Kelly Crumpler posted two hits each for the Eagles.

Collins, Ginn and Jerome Flowers each went 2-4 at the plate to pace Greene Central.

The Rams, now 3-6 in the league and 4-15-2 overall, travel to Farmville today to complete a suspended game and host Southern Nash Friday.

BELHAVEN — Jamesville jumped off to an 8-2 lead in the first three innings of the game and went on to record a 15-4 baseball win over Belhaven yesterday in the Tobacco Belt Conference.

The win kept the Bullets unbeaten in conference play. They are now 12-0 in the conference and 14-3 overall.

Jamesville scored four times in the first inning to take the lead for good. Greg Hardison led off with a single and Kevin Perry reached on an error. Richie Ange singled to score Hardison and Terry Perry doubled in the other two runners. He scored on Earl Bowen's single for the fourth run.

After Belhaven scored once in the bottom of the frame, Jamesville added what proved to be the winning run in the second. Whit Brown walked and when Greg Bell's sacrifice was thrown away, he raced all the way home for a 5-1 lead.

Jamesville went on to three each in the third and fourth and four in the seventh. Belhaven scored single runs in the second, fourth and fifth.

Bowen and Pee Wee Groover each had three hits for Jamesville, while Terry Perry, Ange, Chris Jones and Brown had two each. Groover had a double and Perry had two and each drove in four runs while Bowen drove in three.

CHOCOWINITY — Creswell went with the long ball and rolled up an 11-0 Tobacco Belt Conference baseball victory over Chocowinity yesterday.

Creswell got all it needed in the first inning of the game, scoring three times. Gatlin and Davenport both led off with back-to-back home runs. Doug Clifton then singled and scored on a hit by Winslow.

In the second inning, Chocowinity issued walks to the first two batters and then Davenport again cracked a homer for a 6-0 lead. Creswell added another run before the inning ended.

The final four crossed in the fifth.

Chocowinity got only two hits off the combined hitting of Clifton and Mark Hall, who came on in the fifth inning. Jamie Stokes and Larry Hardison each picked up hits for Chocowinity.

Davenport and Clifton each had three hits to lead Creswell.

Chocowinity is now 2-12 overall and 2-11 in the league. The Tribe travels to Jamesville on Thursday.

Players Union Head Displeased With Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the baseball players union says he's not impressed with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's new plan to institute mandatory drug testing for all baseball personnel — except major league players.

"It's grandstanding," said Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, which must give its approval before Ueberroth's plan can be applied to big leaguers. He made the statement Tuesday night, hours after Ueberroth announced the program.

"We already have a joint drug program and it's working," said Fehr, who added that he believes Ueberroth's announcement is an attempt to pressure the union to agree to mandatory testing. "We've always felt that mandatory testing was demeaning."

Ueberroth said he will ask that testing for major leaguers be included as part of the joint drug program administered by the Player Relations Committee and Players Association.

"We will include everyone from the owners on down," Ueberroth said in a statement released by his office. "This means it will include more than 3,000 minor-league players, the American and National Leagues, scouts, the major-league front office personnel... everyone."

Today, on NBC's "Today" show, Ueberroth said: "If we only graduate ones (minor-league players) that are clean, we won't have a continuing problem. ... Baseball has to rid itself of drugs. There cannot be a Tulane in baseball," a reference to the recent basketball drug-related point-shaving scandal. "We cannot permit it."

With respect to an investigation by the U.S. attorney for Western Pennsylvania into possible drug use by baseball players, a probe which has involved the questioning of a number of Pittsburgh Pirates, Ueberroth said: "I think it's going to be bad. There will be things that will be damaging to the game."

If Ueberroth's program is approved, it would make baseball the only sport with mandatory drug testing. Ueberroth said he would outline details of the plan "in the very near future."

Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott said she was "100 percent" in favor of Ueberroth's plan.

"I guess if you ask everyone else to do it, you should be willing to do it yourself," she said. "A lot of companies do it, and they got the shock of their lives when they did."

"If that's what he (Ueberroth) wants to do, I will be pleased to submit to it and have all our people submit to it," said New York Mets President Fred Wilpon. "I suspect he wants everybody to show that we are an example too."

Mets' General Manager Frank Cashen said he had "no reservations about it."

"What he's trying to do is clean up the whole industry."

In contrast to Fehr, Bill Madlock, player representative of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said he expects there will eventually have to be some sort of drug testing program.

"I think the majority of players want it because the majority of players aren't drug users," Madlock said. "I wouldn't be surprised to see the Players Association agree to the tests, but I don't think it will be (in current negotiations) because some players don't want them."

"I know guys who are scared to death to have a bad year because they will be suspected of using drugs. That creates a lot of pressure on guys, pressure the public doesn't understand."

Baseball, like other sports, has had its share of players involved with drugs in recent years.

A year-and-a-half ago, four then-members of the Kansas City Royals were sentenced to jail terms after drug convictions. The four — Willie Wilson, Willie Aikens, Jerry Martin and Vida Blue — were suspended by Ueberroth's predecessor, Bowie Kuhn, although the suspensions were eventually cut short by an arbitrator. Kuhn also suspended Steve Howe of the Los Angeles Dodgers, although Howe was never convicted of any offense.

A federal grand jury in Pittsburgh is currently investigating cocaine trafficking among National League players. A dozen players from nine National League teams have testified under immunity from prosecution.

An NBC News report Tuesday night said the federal investigation was being expanded to other cities, including Atlanta and St. Louis. Sam Reich, a lawyer who represents some unspecified players, told WPXI-TV, an NBC affiliate in Pittsburgh that in his opinion, "the alleged activities are of a fairly moderate scale."

"In my opinion," Reich said, "it is unlikely any player would be a target of prosecution unless perjury has been committed."

Ueberroth told NBC: "We've got to stop drugs in baseball. We just flat have to do it. I think the union's going to be sympathetic and will help us."

Smith Resigns At Campbell

BUIES CREEK (AP) — Jerry Smith, head basketball coach at Campbell the past two seasons, said it was "time to slow down" and announced his retirement from coaching after 21 years, university officials announced Tuesday.

"It has been a very rewarding 21 years, with a lot of fond memories," Smith said. "I've given a lot to other kids along the way and I think it's time I gave more time to my own family."

Smith, who accepted an administrative position at the school, led the Camels to records of 10-18 and 5-22 the past two seasons.

SNOW HILL — Greene High School's girls' softball team topped Charles B. Aycock Community College yesterday and clinched another state championship. It was a tie for the Eastern Conference championship.

The win did ice one of the two playoff berths for the Lady Rangs. "We can't wrap up the title in this one outing. Southern Nash, in the league, is the only team left with a chance to tie the Lady Rangs. We must beat them Friday in Statesville to keep those hopes alive. Otherwise, it will be all over for 1985."

Senator's Conduct Under Investigation

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A state senator says a probe by the Legislative Ethics Committee will show an allegation that he gained a business advantage from a bill in the General Assembly is false.

"I categorically deny that I have used my office for personal gain," Sen. John Jordan, D-Alamance, said in a statement he issued Tuesday evening.

"And I believe once the Ethics Committee has finished their investigation of all the facts, you will see that I received no gain by the introduction of a bill."

Jordan, son of the late U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan, issued his statement even though the committee hasn't made a public statement about the details of the case. Committee members refused to identify the person under investigation.

"We do have an allegation against one member of the General Assembly," said the chairman, Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, after emerging from a 1½-hour closed meeting. "The member is in the Senate, and the ethics committee still has it under advisement. Again, I want to say it's an allegation."

Rauch said the committee would meet again in about two weeks and that he hoped the matter would be resolved then.

A legislator who spoke on condition that he not be identified said in an interview that a senator had been accused of using his position to obtain an advantage in transactions

Phosphate Ban Given House OK

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite more than a dozen vote changes, a heavily amended bill to limit phosphates in household laundry detergents was given House approval and sent to the Senate.

Caught in a whirlwind of lobbying, 13 people changed votes from Thursday's tentative 63-51 House approval to Tuesday's 65-51 vote. Two of three members who did not vote Thursday joined the opposition and one member of each side missed the final vote.

"It was quite something keeping up with the changes," said Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, who sponsored the bill. "It was a calculated risk to hold it over the weekend."

He said lobbyists for the soap and detergent industry may have backpedaled because "they were getting some backlash effect ... from people who were tired of being lobbied so hard."

House approval came after the 73-37 defeat of an amendment to make cities clean up the problem at water treatment plants.

Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, said the amendment would require that cities in areas prone to algae growth due to phosphorus must install wastewater treatment to take 95 percent of phosphorus out of the discharge by 1992. He called Hackney's bill a "token move" that "prevents cities from doing what is right and what needs to be done."

"The cost of cleaning up our waters will never be less than it is right now," Barker said, adding that this amendment would not take effect unless the ban proved ineffective. Cities without cleanup facilities would be barred from making new sewer hookups, but Barker said the cost would only be about $25 to $30 per year per household to build the facilities.

Hackney said the issue would be better addressed in another bill and that the EMC already is asking for such plans from some cities. He added that some areas need only a small reduction like the 23 percent from a phosphate ban to clean up algae blooms.

"Before we mandate millions of dollars of construction ... we ought to give the ban a try," said Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, while Hackney said it would be five years before any new plants could be built or re-equipped.

What was once a call for a statewide limit on household laundry detergent has been restricted to areas around Jordan Lake, Falls Lake and the Chowan River, where algae blooms spurred by phosphorus threaten to deprive fish of oxygen.

"in the general field of between $500,000 and $1 million."

Another lawmaker said the bill to which Jordan referred was House Bill 666, sponsored by Rep. Tim McDowell, D-Alamance.

McDowell said in an interview that he was not under investigation by the ethics committee, which two committee members confirmed.

The bill would regulate water flow over certain dams on the Haw River south of Interstate 85, requiring that the minimum flow equal one-fourth the incoming flow.

Jordan sold a dam spanning the Haw River at Saxapahaw several years ago to William H. Lee of Saxapahaw, according to Lee's attorney, Edward S. Finley of Raleigh.

Lee sells electricity produced by the dam to Duke Power Co. under an agreement approved by the state Utilities Commission, Finley said.

McDowell's bill would reduce the amount of electricity that the dam could generate because it would require more water to flow over the dam than through its turbines, Finley said.

The measure states that its purpose is to "ensure that instream flow needs are met, thereby protecting property values of land along the river and preserving the fish, wildlife and other environmental qualities of all stream channels below the dams." Violation of the bill's provisions would be a $100 fine.

with each day's violation a separate offense.

In a brief interview on the Senate floor before issuing his statement, Jordan said he owned property along the Haw River. Asked whether he would strand to gain by introduction of the bill, he said, "Absolutely not."

Pressed to elaborate, he said, "Let the Ethics Committee work ... I'm sure they'll come up with whatever's correct."

Should the committee decide that the allegations are true, it could recommend censure or expulsion.

"We can do a number of things," said Rauch. "We can drop the charges at any time, or we can continue until we can feel there's a

IN THE STATE

Customs Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Ways and Means subcommittee has approved a bill that would block proposed cuts in the U.S. Customs Service and add 800 new positions nationally.

The bill must now be scheduled to go through the full Ways and Means Committee before it can be voted on in the House.

In a voice vote Tuesday, the House Subcommittee on Trade approved the bill, which would preserve 887 Customs import specialist and inspectors positions the Reagan administration has proposed cutting during fiscal 1986. An amendment submitted by Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., would add another 800 agents.

None of the committee's eight Democrats and five Republicans voted against the measure.

"It is significant that nobody opposed this on the subcommittee," said Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C. "It's a very good step, although only an initial step."

The Customs proposal, which would save an estimated $29 million, would remove import specialists from North Carolina and put the state under a consolidated district headquartered in Norfolk, Va.

Rose has joined with a number of other congressmen in campaigning against the proposed cuts, which opponents say would cost North Carolina thousands of jobs connected with imports and exports.

Bill Sidetracked

RALEIGH (AP) — A House committee considering a statewide basic education plan has temporarily sidetracked a broad Senate bill and voted to examine a more specific House bill.

Questions at the past two meetings of the House Education Committee have centered on whether the eight-year, $640 million plan should be left up to the Department of Public Instruction and the state Board of Education, as in the Senate bill, or whether the Legislature should write standards into law, as in a House version prepared by a subcommittee.

Memorial To Be Dedicated

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The city of Mooresville will dedicate Saturday a 4½-ton granite memorial in memory of North Carolinians who died in Beirut.

The memorial is inscribed with the names and hometowns of each of the 20 Marines and one sailor from North Carolina who died during American participation in the multinational peacekeeping force from September 1982 to February 1984.

Most of the men died during the suicide bomb attack on Oct. 23, 1983, that claimed the lives of 241 servicemen.

Lt. Col. Howard L. Gerlach, the former commanding officer of one of the Beirut units, will be the guest speaker. Gerlach was recently medically retired from the Marine Corps because of injuries he suffered in the blast. Most of Gerlach's unit was killed in the blast and he was buried under rubble from the bombing.

Sheriff Indicted

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Cherokee County Sheriff Blain Stalcup was indicted Tuesday in U.S. District Court in connection with a probe of voter fraud in western North Carolina on two charges of intimidating a grand jury witness.

Stalcup, 52, was indicted on charges of making threats on April 10 and on Monday to harm Robert H. Jones if he did not "withhold information during Stalcup's trial," the indictments allege.

Stalcup was arrested in Asheville Tuesday. U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow W. Jones refused a request from the U.S. attorney that Stalcup be held without bond and set a secured bond at $5,000.

The intimidation charges are the latest in a series Stalcup faces as a result of Project Westvote, the U.S. attorney's investigation into voter fraud in western North Carolina.

Tobacco Conference

RALEIGH (AP) — American society has a moral obligation to restrict the sale of cigarettes, which thousands of medical studies have shown to be the single largest cause of preventable, premature death, a public health professor says.

"We have to face the fact that hundreds of thousands of people die each year and that we prosper because of it," said Dr. Dan E. Beauchamp, referring to the state's economic dependence on tobacco and smoking.

Beauchamp, a professor in the school of public health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, addressed participants Tuesday in the opening day of a two-day conference on tobacco and health. The conference is sponsored by the N.C. Health Council, founded in 1949 for health-care providers and agencies concerned with the health of North Carolina residents.

The conference, "Tobacco: A Dilemma for North Carolina Health Workers," is the first such gathering in the state.

Safety Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Corps helicopters of the type that crashed earlier this week off the coast of Japan have been involved in 14 major accidents over the past 5½ years that left 75 dead, a spokesman says.

That safety record "is neither significantly better nor significantly worse" than the corps' overall aviation record for all types of airplanes and helicopters during the same period, Lt. Col. Vic Russillo said Tuesday.

From the standpoint of the accident count, the safety record for the Marines' CH-53 is better than that of the Army's UH-60 Blackhawk helicopter, which has been involved in 22 major accidents since its introduction in 1981. But the Army lost 37 soldiers in those accidents compared with the 75 men lost by the Marine Corps.

The Army's entire fleet of Blackhawks is currently grounded pending a special safety review. The Marine Corps is still investigating Monday's crash of a CH-53D off Japan, but no grounding orders have been announced.

Presidential Possibilities

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A committee trying to replace the first president of the University of North Carolina system has more than 100 names, including a CBS News commentator and the head of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg public schools.

Along those nominated are former Gov. Bob Scott, head of the state's 58-campus community college system; Dr. Raymond Dawson, senior vice president of the university system; Dr. Jay Robinson, superintendent of Charlotte-Mecklenburg's 72,000-student public system, and Bill Moyers, CBS commentator and former adviser to President Johnson.

The university president oversees a 120,000-student system that includes 16 campuses from Cullowhee in the Blue Ridge Mountains to Elizabeth City near the coast.

Raleigh Man Rescued At Sea

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The sole survivor of a four-man fishing vessel that sank off Savannah, Ga., says he watched his three companions on a life raft die one at a time while he drifted for more than two days.

M. Greg Palmer, 28, of Raleigh, N.C., was rescued Tuesday 45 miles southeast of Charleston in a life raft equipped with only a bottle of dishwashing detergent, an air horn and a tube of toothpaste.

"I didn't want to spend another night out there. It was cold in that water," Palmer said Tuesday. "I just had a lot of hope that somebody would find us. I just kept hoping that somebody would come by."

He was being treated at Charleston Memorial Hospital for dehydration and exposure and was listed in stable condition.

Palmer and the three others were aboard his uncle's 34-foot commercial fishing boat, the "Can Do," based in Jacksonville, Fla., when the boat was abandoned about 4 a.m. Sunday after it began taking on water.

Palmer said his cousin Stacey Chancey of Jacksonville, Fla., tried to swim from their life raft to get help about three hours after they abandoned ship.

Chancey, who either lost or removed his life jacket, disappeared while trying to reach a sailboat about 100 yards away. "He started yelling at us to come get him," Palmer said.

Another crew member, whom Palmer could identify only as Tommy of Tybee Island, Ga., died aboard the life raft Sunday night after becoming ill.

Palmer said the Georgia man had been drinking sea water. "We just couldn't get him to come back out of it," Palmer said.

The man's body was secured to debris, but disappeared during the night, Palmer said.

Shortly before help arrived Tuesday, a third crew member, Robert Watson of Pensacola, Fla., floated away from the raft.

"I turned around and he was just slipping into the water. He just looked at me and said, 'I can't take it anymore,'" Palmer said.

A Coast Guard jet from Elizabeth City, N.C., spotted the life raft and contacted a boat in the area that picked up Palmer about 12:30 p.m. A Coast Guard helicopter then hoisted Palmer off the boat, and he was taken to Charleston Memorial Hospital.

Federal Judge Says MacDonald Is Entitled To 'Fatal Vision' Royalties

RALEIGH (AP) — A judge says Jeffrey MacDonald is entitled to royalties from the best-selling book about his family's murder because a law denying royalties to convicts had not been enacted at the time of the murders.

U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree late last month denied a government motion to prevent MacDonald from receiving royalties from the book "Fatal Vision," written by Joe McGinniss.

"I don't think it's right for a convicted felon to profit (from crime)," said Freddy Kassab, stepfather of slain Collette MacDonald. Kassab fought for legislation prohibiting people convicted of crimes to collect royalties from movies and books.

But MacDonald said Tuesday Dupree's ruling does not guarantee that he will receive the money.

MacDonald said he has received about $76,000 in profits from the book. But McGinniss said he halted payments to MacDonald after MacDonald filed a $15 million lawsuit against him in federal court in Los Angeles.

MacDonald's lawsuit charged McGinniss with "multiple false statements."

"He (McGinniss) stopped paying me unilaterally in June of last year and refused to give us an accounting," MacDonald said in a telephone interview from the federal prison in Bastrop, Texas, where he is serving three life sentences for the slayings of his wife and two young daughters.

But McGinniss said, "The suit was a breach of contract he had with me in which he said he would never file suit for anything Until that whole thing is resolved, all the money that would have gone to him is put in an escrow account."

McGinniss added Dupree's ruling did not change anything since MacDonald had been eligible for the payments for the past six years.

"It just leaves things the way they have been," McGinniss said in a telephone interview from his Massachusetts home.

Brian Murtagh, an assistant U.S. attorney, filed the motion to prevent MacDonald from receiving the money last December, citing provisions of the Victims of Crime Act. The act allows the government "to pursue an order of forfeiture" against someone collecting royalties from movies and books about crimes they committed.

But Dupree ruled MacDonald's case did not fall under the act because the murders occurred 15 years before it was passed in 1984.

McGinniss contracted with MacDonald for exclusive rights to the life story of the former Green Beret doctor, court documents showed.

During the trial, McGinniss resided with MacDonald and his lawyers at an North Carolina State University fraternity house. The book details the courtship and family life of the MacDonalds, the murders and MacDonald's trial.

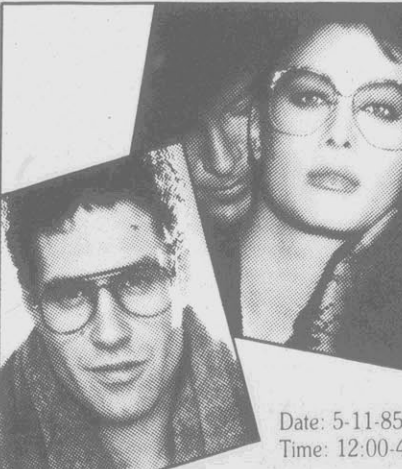

First Vets To Graduate

RALEIGH (AP) — The first doctor of veterinary medicine degrees in North Carolina will be awarded May 11 to 37 members of the North Carolina State University School of Veterinary Medicine, school officials say.

"It's a milestone because it closes another chapter in the history of the school of veterinary medicine," said Dr. Donald R. Howard, associate dean and director of academic affairs.

The 19 men and 18 women, representing 21 North Carolina counties, will graduate in commencement exercises in William Neal Reynolds Coliseum on the NCSU campus. More than half the graduates will enter animal practice or mixed practice in North Carolina cities, Howard said.

Since its formal dedication in April 1983, the school has grown to include 89 full-time faculty in four departments.

Supreme Court Allows In-Home School

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A fundamentalist Christian couple who object to such public school teachings as evolution have the right to educate their children at home, the N.C. Supreme Court has ruled.

The court on Tuesday reversed a state Court of Appeals decision that prevented Larry and Michelle Delconte of Harnett County from teaching their two children at home. Justice James G. Exum, in writing the decision, described the Delcontes as "deeply religious, fundamentalist Christians and hold services at their home."

In other actions Tuesday, the high court censured a former District Court judge who contributed $2,500 to the unsuccessful campaigns of former Gov. Jim Hunt and former attorney general Rufus Edmisten in 1983.

In the home education case, Delconte told county school officials that he would teach his children at home and named his school the "Hallelujah School." A Harnett County Superior Court judge classified Delconte's school as a qualified nonpublic school, saying failure to do so would violate Delconte's religious freedoms as guaranteed in the Constitution.

State education officials argued the school could not be acknowledged as qualified within the meaning of the law and the appeals court reversed the decision.

Court records show the children were achieving average to better than average test scores and were in the upper quartiles in most areas. Exum disagreed with the appeals court interpretation that the legislature intended by use of the word school to preclude home education.

Exum said the Legislature might one day choose to discuss the issue of whether home education "should be prohibited, or if permitted, to regulate it more closely than it does now."

In the censure case, the court issued its decision in the case of District Court Judge Paul M. Wright of Goldsboro, who resigned last June. Chief Supreme Court Justice Joseph Branch wrote the opinion.

Wright made contributions of $1,250 each to Hunt's Senate campaign and Edmisten's gubernatorial campaign. Following disclosure of the contributions, the state Judicial Standards Commission recommended censuring Wright.

In his argument to the state court, Wright said his contributions to the two campaign committees constituted contributions to a political organization, which is acceptable under state judicial canons. He claimed such contributions "do not result in prejudice to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute."

While the state Code of Judicial Conduct says a judge or judicial candidate cannot make financial contributions to a candidate for political office, it does allow judges to contribute to a political party or an organization.

"The fact that a candidate has set up a committee to handle the contributors to his campaign does not insulate him from the contributors," Branch wrote. "Such a committee is the creature of the candidate who created it and is established for the convenience of the candidate."

Wright also argued that his contributions did not constitute conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice.

"We conclude that (Wright's) campaign contributions constitute conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute," Branch wrote.

The high court also upheld a Superior Court decision in the case of John R. Hill, who was told he was denied a position within the Department of Correction because of a job freeze.

Hill filed a grievance with the State Personnel Hearing Commission upon learning that he was prevented from taking an accounting job in the department because one accountant had been promoted and another had been moved up into the vacant spot.

Hill argued that because he had been released from the Department of Human Resources after his job had been designated as policy making, he was eligible for any position available for which he was qualified. The commission said Hill should have been offered the job.

The court agreed with Hill's argument that he had a right to an automatic offer at the first opening.

The court modified and affirmed a Court of Appeals decision which had prevented a Mecklenburg County woman from being sterilized because she was mentally retarded.

The county's division of social services had asked permission to sterilize Sophia Renee Truesdale because it felt the woman was incapable of raising children. Two courts denied the request, saying there had to be evidence that the woman, 18 years old at the time the petition was filed, would be engaged in sexual activity.

Hunt's Order To Expand Hospital Beds Challenged

RALEIGH (AP) — A Rocky Mount hospital says it was improper for former Gov. Jim Hunt to order that the projected need for hospital beds in Rocky Mount be increased, and officials have filed a petition asking for the overturn of the order.

Court documents in Wake County Superior Court say Hunt ordered the increase in 1983, four months before a hospital company represented by a law firm including a top Hunt political adviser applied for a certificate to add beds in the area.

In a petition filed Monday, Nash General Hospital of Rocky Mount and the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency of Greenville contend it was improper for Hunt to order former Secretary of Human Resources Sarah Morrow to change the projections on acute care beds that would be needed by 1989.

The hospital and the agency said Hunt made the order "so as to allow development of 24 additional beds" in the area served by Community Hospital of Rocky Mount and its parent corporation, American Medical International.

The Department of Human Resources had projected there would be a surplus of 15 hospital beds in the Rocky Mount area by 1989. The projection was included in a department draft of a "state medical facilities plan" submitted to Hunt.

Hunt ordered he change in an Oct. 27, 1983, letter to Morrow, a copy of which is included in the court documents. The department followed Hunt's order and changed the projection, the petition says.

Four months later, on April 25, 1984, Community Hospital of Rocky Mount and American Medical International applied for a certificate of need to add 24 beds.

The Rocky Mount law firm of Spruill and Spruill (then known as Spruill Lane Carlton McCotter & Jolly) represented AMI and Community Hospital at the time Hunt ordered the change, the petition said.

J. Phil Carlton, a top political adviser to Hunt and former associate justice of the state Supreme Court, is a partner in the firm, which Hunt joined after leaving office in January.

Hunt did not return phone calls Tuesday to his Raleigh office.

Asked if he had discussed the hospital bed projections with Hunt or recommended Hunt alter the projections, Carlton said, "I just don't discuss what I do for my clients. That's just something I don't go into publicly."

Auditor Says SBI Was 'Ineffective'

RALEIGH (AP) — Management of the State Bureau of Investigation under former Attorney General Rufus Edmisten was "ineffective and inefficient" and included interference by the attorney general in SBI operations, a report by the State Auditor's Office says.

"Bureau personnel at all levels stated that there has been a question as to who has been running the bureau over the past few years," said the operational audit report, which was requested by Attorney General Lacy Thornburg this year. He released the report Tuesday.

"It apparently was commonplace for agents to bypass the bureau chain of command and take their complaints and requests directly to the Attorney General's Office," the report said.

"Agents stated that it was not uncommon for assignments to be received directly from the Attorney General's Office, bypassing bureau management," the report said.

The SBI is a division of the state Justice Department.

Edmisten, attorney general from 1975 through 1984, disputed the findings. "Just for the record, I would venture to say that during my 10 years as attorney general the bureau made more advances than at any other time during its history," he said in an interview.

The report said morale among agents was low and that the bureau had "outdated" facilities and laboratory equipment and an "antiquated" communications system.

The report made several recommendations it said could result in savings of about $1.1 million. The SBI has a staff of 503, including 270 agents.

State Auditor Ed Renfrow said Tuesday he would have no comment until today, after the legislature's Governmental Operations Commission receives a copy of the report.

But Thornburg said in an interview that he agreed with the audit findings and that he would comply with most of its recommendations.

Europe Celebrates V-E Day Anniversary

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer

Forty years after it ended, Europe recalled the agony of World War II today — with West Germany's president calling Hitler's defeat a day of liberation, France welcoming President Reagan, the Soviets honoring their war dead and Britain stressing reconciliation.

On May 8, 1945, the surrender of Nazi Germany was announced, and the war that began with the invasion of Poland on Sept. 1, 1939 was over. Europe celebrated the anniversary today with parades, religious services and other memorials.

Strasbourg, France, a city on the border with West Germany that has been in the middle of several wars between the two countries, greeted the anniversary in a festive mood, preparing for Reagan's arrival to address the European Parliament.

Store windows were decked with American and French flags and a U.S. flag flew from the main flagpole at city hall.

Forty years after the war, heavy two-way traffic flows across the Rhine River bridge linking Strasbourg with West Germany. Shoppers and workers cross the border daily, and the ancient city is popular with German tourists.

In his speech to the Parliament, Reagan was to discuss a new missile developed by the Soviet Union which could alter the East-West military balance, said Robert McFarlane, Reagan's national security adviser.

In West Germany, a pollster said a "silent majority" of the West Germans see nothing worth commemorating in public.

In a survey by the Allensbach Institute for Polling, 58 percent of the 2,000 people polled nationwide voiced surprise at the lengthy debate at home and abroad over how to commemorate the anniversary. The debate started months ago, as politicians argued whether it was primarily a day of liberation or a day of defeat for the Germans.

President Richard von Weizsaecker told the West German Parliament today that all Germans, whether or not they participated in Nazi war crimes, must accept their past.

"The 8th of May is for us Germans not a day to celebrate. We have no reason to take part today in victory celebrations. But we have every reason to recognize May 8, 1945, as the end of an erring way in German history," he said.

"The 8 of May was day of liberation. It freed us all from the system of National Socialist (Nazi) tyranny," von Weizsaecker said. "There was no zero hour. It was a chance for a new beginning, and we have used it as well as we could."

Weizsaecker said Germans must take responsibility for World War II and its results, including millions of deaths, postwar hardships, and a Europe divided between East and West.

An ecumenical church service also was scheduled in Cologne Cathedral today.

French commemoration of the anniversary started Tuesday when Premier Laurent Fabius visited the schoolroom in Reims in eastern France where the Germans first signed their unconditional surrender May 7, 1945. They signed again in Berlin late the next day.

In a message to the Soviet Union, President Francois Mitterrand of France hailed "the brotherhood of arms" which united the two nations in wartime.

In Moscow, delegations from the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact allies and other Communist nations arrived Tuesday for victory day celebrations scheduled for Thursday, the anniversary of the date news of Germany's surrender first reached the Soviet Union.

Today, Communist Party leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev launched Soviet observances by leading other members of the Politburo in two wreath-laying ceremonies.

Soviet television showed Gorbachev and the other 10 Moscow-based members of the Politburo placing a wreath at the Red Square mausoleum of the founder of the Soviet state, Vladimir I. Lenin, and at the tomb of the unknown soldier at the Kremlin's wall.

At both ceremonies Gorbachev was flanked by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Premier Nikolai Tikhonov. He stepped forward after honor guards positioned the wreaths of red carnations and white lilies and adjusted a red sash slightly before pausing for silent reflection.

Celebrations Thursday of the victory that cost the Soviet Union 20 million lives will include a Red Square parade of wartime veterans, battle wreaths and vintage armor and artillery.

Army Gen. Pyotr Lushev, commander of the Moscow military garrison who will lead the marching columns, said on television Tuesday night they will include wartime Red Army heroes and other veterans, many of whom marched in the first victory parade of 1945.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain released the text of a letter from Gorbachev on Tuesday in which Gorbachev said the Soviets want to cooperate with Britain to prevent another world war.

Queen Elizabeth II, her husband Prince Philip, other members of the royal family, were attending a service at London's Westminster Abbey.

The British domestic news agency Press Association said that at the request of Mrs. Thatcher, the service would not be a formal state occasion with all customary trappings of pomp and circumstance.

The news agency said Mrs. Thatcher was "concerned that the spirit of reconciliation with Germany must be uppermost in people's minds."

In Norway, which the Nazis occupied, 82-year-old King Olav attended a ceremony Tuesday at Lillehammer, where the Germans capitulated.

Gorbachev Seeks Thatcher's Help

LONDON (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has asked Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to join him in fighting against the nuclear arms buildup, the militarization of space and another world war.

Gorbachev's message came in an exchange of letters with Mrs. Thatcher to mark the 40th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany in World War II.

Mrs. Thatcher's office released copies of the letters to the media Tuesday night.

"The experience which the peoples of our countries lived through shows that war should be fought against before it breaks out," Gorbachev wrote.

"In order to prevent a new world war, a climate of trust and mutual understanding among peoples is urgently needed, as well as consistent efforts by all states aimed at stopping a dangerous build-up of nuclear arms, preventing the militarization of space, and removing the military threat hanging over the world," he said.

"The Soviet Union is prepared to cooperate with Great Britain — its former ally in the anti-Hitlerite coalition — in achieving these noble goals," he said.

Gorbachev said the people of the Soviet Union respect the gallantry of the British people who contributed to the victory.

Mrs. Thatcher wrote that: "the experience of these 40 years points to the vital importance of our efforts to work patiently and realistically for better understanding and cooperation between our two countries and peoples, acknowledging our mutual desire for security and lasting peace."

She said it was right to look back with pride and thankfulness for the heroism of those in both countries who fought in a common cause.

Reagan Message Cordial, Hopeful

MOSCOW (AP) — President Reagan sent a message to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today, saying the best way to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II is to work harder for world peace and the elimination of nuclear weapons.

The text of the letter was released by the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

There was no immediate word on whether Gorbachev had sent a reply.

Reagan was to give a speech today to the European Parliament in Strasbourg, France, in which he accuses the Soviet Union of developing apparent "first strike" missiles, a top aide traveling with the president said.

But the president's letter to Gorbachev was cordial, expressing hope that the United States and the Soviet Union could resolve their differences.

City Eyes Boys Busy In Streets

By LARRY ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — A move to stop nimble inner-city kids from dashing up and washing windshields for change while cars are stopped at traffic lights has split the City Council along racial lines and stirred up debate about the reasons for the proposed ban.

Some black leaders say they fear safety is not the only motive for the public push for legislation that would drive the young entrepreneurs off the streets.

Opponents say the legislation would punish ambitious youngsters who cannot turn to mowing lawns and other jobs open to their suburban counterparts.

"What's the alternative? Do we have a million kids running around with shoeshine boxes?" said Councilman Kweise Mfume.

"If we're not going to allow them to wash windshields, at least we should find a way to give them work," he said. "In many ghetto areas, they can't cut lawns because there are no lawns. And they can't go into neighborhoods where there are lawns because then they'll be stopped for looking suspicious."

Summer unemployment among black teen-agers here, where blacks make up 55 percent of the population, has been running over 50 percent, Mfume said.

He was among eight black council members who voted against the proposal April 22. All 11 white members of the council present that day voted in favor.

Seeking to ease tensions, Mayor William Donald Schaefer persuaded the council to delay a final vote until a committee could investigate ways of making the practice safer.

The panel includes the police commissioner and city solicitor, both of whom are black. Its report is expected soon.

"If a way can be found to have them there and have their safety attended to, I think he would look favorably on it," Pat Bernstein, the mayor's spokeswoman, said Thursday.

Supporters of the ban say the children are risking accidents, although there have been no reports of any serious injuries since the activity became popular last summer. Supporters also cite complaints that some youngsters have been discourteous to motorists who refuse their services.

"There's just no safe way for these kids to do what they're doing," said Councilman Frank Gallagher, who led efforts to pass the ban.

Most of the windshield washers are black, from poor neighborhoods. They congregate around several major intersections just north of the city's center.

Equipped with inexpensive squeegees and buckets or plastic spray bottles of water, they dash in and out of traffic to wash car windshields in the hope of earning a tip before the light changes.

They're also a common sight on some streets in New York, which has no specific regulations about their behavior. New York police Sgt. Peter Sweeney said police have been called only a few times because of incidents involving the practice.

"Normally they leave when told to," he said. If a windshield washer refused to leave, the officer could issue a summons for blocking traffic, or arrest the person, Sweeney said.

In Baltimore, the proposal has become a major controversy, fueled by angry calls to radio talk shows, and editorials and letters to newspapers.

In a three-hour show on the subject on WBAL radio, reaction to a ban was generally split along racial lines, said host Allan Prell.

"Black people readily identified with what the squeegee kids are trying to do," Prell said. "Non-black people felt intimidated, especially if they were women."

The Baltimore Afro-American, in what it called the re-emergence of "an unpleasant side of the old Baltimore," said: "The debate ... degenerated into lurid projections of squeegee kids raping and murdering defenseless women at stoplights."

The mayor said accusations of racism were unfounded. He said black and white motorists alike have complained about windshield washers resorting to intimidation.

Gallagher rejected a proposal by Mfume that would allow the kids to stay on the job, but restrict their hours and require them to be licensed, wear identification badges and take safety and courtesy lessons.

"As soon as you license them, you put them on the street, and when there's an accident, you're liable for it," Gallagher said.

The kids themselves say business is booming.

Tony Mitchell, 14, who has been washing windshields for about a year, said Thursday that he made $100 one recent day. Most motorists, he said, give him 50 cents.

Mitchell said he has a job lined up with a fast-food restaurant as soon as he turns 15 on June 1, so he's not worried about a ban. But he said, "I don't think it's right because there would be a lot of kids getting in trouble."

Burt Reynolds Plays Vengeful Character In 'Stick'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"STICK" is based on the best-selling film "MacArthur's Children" by Leonard, who is listed with Joseph L. Stinson as scriptwriter, has disavowed the film as a betrayal of his book. Burt Reynolds has substituted Miami glitz for Leonard's gritty realism. However, "Stick" remains a satisfactory, if fairly standard, action entertainment.

Reynolds not only stars but directs as well. This time he gives us the stoic Burt in his Stick character, no wry smiles, no wisecracking. Stick is as humorless as Dirty Harry and just as vengeful.

He rides into town in a boxcar after seven years in the slammer for armed robbery. Soon afterward, he is lighting a fire under the boor on the next stool and pounding the man's head on the bar.

"You gotta cool it," advises his old prison friend, Joe Perez. When Perez is executed while he and Stick make a drug-money drop in a cane field, Stick vows to punish the villains.

What good assortment they are. Charles Durning is a dithering slob in an orange wig and Hawaiian shirts. Richard Lawson is an albino killer with rabbit eyes. Castulo Guerra is a suave but deadly drug boss who punishes traitors with live scorpions.

Stick manages to get hired as chauffeur to George Segal, a millionaire "crime" writer who employs ex-cons and hoodlums. Segal's investment counselor is Candice Bergen, who is intrigued by Stick's gruff charm. The plot weaves through the standard number of chases and shootouts for this kind of action film.

As an actor, Burt Reynolds knows the territory and he is in good form, though strangely hoarse — perhaps the result of his recent illnesses. As a director, he displays a sureness that was missing from his earlier efforts. "Gator," "The End," "Action" comes naturally to him, and his best work arrives early, when he races a van through a cane field, which he ignites to make his escape. Another choice scene: A Hollywood producer (Alex Rocco) tries to con a round of drug bosses into investing in a movie. His scheme is exposed as a tax fraud by the knowledgeable Miss Bergen.

The performances are uniformly good, especially the grotesques — Durning and Lawson. The small but memorable role of a barmaid is played by Sachi Parker. Her smile identifies her as the daughter of Shirley MacLaine.

The R rating is well deserved for a large amount of gutter language and violence.

Japanese Filmmaker Has Never Forgotten Thoughts Of V-J Day

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Masahiro Shinoda learned on Aug. 15, 1945, that Japan had lost the war, the 14-year-old's first thought was how he could kill himself.

"It was a beautiful, clear day," Shinoda recalls vividly after 40 years. "I couldn't believe the news, and I cried a lot against the blue sky. I seriously considered suicide, but when I went home, my mother and my father and my brother were not thinking of killing themselves. So the idea left me."

A member of a landowning family in Gifu near Tokyo, Shinoda went on to major in drama at Waseda University. After graduation in 1963, he was one of five chosen from 3,000 applicants for assistant director at Shochiku studio. Since 1960, he has made two dozen films. With Nagisa Oshino, he has become one of the most famous of Japan's New Wave directors.

However, Shinoda never forgot V-J Day.

Children," based on the Aku book. Released in Japan last June, it attracted an amazing 3 million customers, the director reported.

Though it was Japan's entry as foreign-language film in the Academy Awards, it wasn't among the five nominees, and is only beginning a U.S. release.

The story takes place on a remote island, where the youngsters react with wonder and delight, adults with forboding, to the advent of the Americans. A meaningful scene comes when a fifth-grade boy burns paintings and posters of the glorious Japanese army and fleet.

"That came out of my own life," Shinoda said. "I burned all of the war mementoes I had collected. I also have a vivid memory of being dusted with DDT, and that is in the film — also the crossing out of passages in the history books. But in my school, so much had to be erased that the teacher simply threw out the books."

Glenn Miller's classic swing number, "In the Mood," was the first American music that the teen-age Shinoda heard, and it made a profound impression on him. The record is part of the "MacArthur's Children" score.

Masahiro Shinoda saw no American movies during his youth, however, he remembers his father talking about Charlie Chaplin and Harold Lloyd. His first postwar films were a Sonja Henie musical and "100 Men and a Girl" with Deanna Durbin and Leopold Stokowski. He also was profoundly influenced by the films of William Wyler, particularly "The Best Years of Our Lives."

"MacArthur's Children" has prompted many Japanese to re-examine their feelings and experiences following the war's end.

Letter-Writer To Get TV Show

MANCHESTER, Maine (AP) — Samantha Smith, whose 1982 letter to a Soviet leader won her international headlines, will star in a weekly ABC television show this fall. Samantha, 12, will appear in an action-adventure called "J.G. Culver" with Robert Wagner. She will portray the daughter of an insurance investigator played by Wagner.

"When I first found out I was screaming," she said Monday from her home. "I've gotten over the thrill," but "I'm really excited and I hope it will last a long time."

The family plans to move to California next month for the beginning of taping. The series is set in the United States and London.

Samantha's father, Arthur, has quit his job as a college English professor to devote all his time to handling his daughter's public appearances. She is getting an undisclosed amount for the television show.

Samantha entered the news when she wrote a letter to Yuri Andropov, then-Premier of the Soviet Union expressing her worries about nuclear war. He wrote her back and invited her to Russia for two weeks.

Fuel Supplies

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa will supply Zambia with more than 2 million gallons of diesel fuel to meet shortages caused by a breakdown in a pipeline between Tanzania and Zambia.

The government's South African Transport Services said it would transport a quarter of the fuel immediately and the rest as soon as possible.

Four-Part 'Spaceflight' Opens Tonight On Public TV

BY FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — You've seen the dramas, now see the documentary, "Space" and the "The Right Stuff" were good, but public television's "Spaceflight" is the real stuff.

Well-done reality is more compelling and riveting than fiction or fudged non-fiction, and that's the case with "Spaceflight." The four-part series begins on PBS tonight and continues the next three Wednesdays.

CBS' recent 13-hour "Space" cost $32 million. This documentary, produced and written by former PBS creative director Blaine Baggett, cost a mere $600,000.

"Spaceflight," narrated by Martin Sheen, examines three decades of space rides, first with the 23-inch aluminum ball Sputnik to today's reusable shuttle that doubles as spaceship and science laboratory. The ups and downs of the American and Soviet space programs are chronicled in pictures and interviews with academics, reporters and the principals.

The four-part series goes full circle, beginning with the German V-2 rocket as war weapon (chilling London in World War II) to President Reagan's "Star Wars" concept to utilize the heavens as a military base.

But, in between, there are superb science stories and glorious pictures about human quests and conquests, featuring rare footage from the U.S. and Soviet space programs. Film from NASA was labeled top secret, but Baggett sent letters to government officials, persuading them to declassify the material just for "Spaceflight."

He also got 10 hours of film of Soviet space missions from a scientist attached to the Soviet Embassy in Washington. After the Soviets shot down the South Korean Air Lines jet in late 1983, Baggett's contact was deported as a spy, the producer said.

"I guess he gave me the film because he believed I wasn't out to rape the Soviet Union," Baggett said. "I hope I've presented their achievements in a good light."

Tonight's "Thunder in the Skies" covers some of the same terrain as "The Right Stuff." Daredevil Chuck Yeager, competing against other pilots for the title of fastest man alive, is shown in the 1950s at Edwards Air Force Base in California breaking the sound barrier in the X-1 jet.

Yeager recounts the story of how a rib injury prevented him from using his right arm to close the door on the X-1 before his first record-breaking flight. So a friend rigged a broomstick through the door handle that Yeager could use to pull it shut with his left hand.

These heroics are taken in aw-shucks stride. Fellow test pilot Scott

Crossfield said his X-15 once split in two and blew up another time. "Those were just rocks in our shoes," he said.

Next week's "The Wings of Mercury" covers the earliest manned space flights by the Soviets and Americans, who were spurred on by President Kennedy and turned the race to the moon into a symbolic test of America's leadership, spirit and manhood.

The astronauts' groupie scene at Cape Canaveral and their family lives, so important for the dramatic "Right Stuff" and "Space," are ignored here. The real drama and peril of venturing into the unknown and the man-vs.-man elements are stressed instead.

Alan Shepard, one of the original seven Mercury astronauts and the first American in space, says the tremendous competition among the Magnificent 7, as they came to be glamorized, was "underlying everything."

Pete Conrad describes his Gemini 5 duration flight as "eight days in a garbage can" and physically painful and tedious.

Under weightless conditions, "you don't need to sleep," Conrad said. "And Gordon Cooper and I had spent the better part of a year training

Richie Will Get Honorary Degree

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — Grammy award-winner Lionel Richie will return to the place where he launched his musical career as member of the Commodores when he receives an honorary degree from Tuskegee Institute next week.

School officials announced Monday that Richie will receive an honorary doctorate of music during commencement exercises at his alma mater May 12.

Richie, 36, became leader of the Commodores not long after the six-member musical group formed at Tuskegee Institute in 1968.

Since leaving the group two years ago for a solo career, Richie has won a Grammy award and signed a multimillion-dollar contract with Pepsi Cola for a series of commercials.

The musician received a degree from the school in business administration in 1974.

Travel With Kids Isn't Always Ordeal

EAST AURORA, N.Y. (AP) — Car bingo, license games and sing-alongs are favorite travel pastimes with the preschool and older crowd, but what do you do on an extended journey to amuse the tinier tot?

"Certainly cumbersome blocks and large stuffed toys aren't the answer for a crowded car, bus or plane, nor are toys with pieces that can easily get lost or misplaced," says Kay Willis, who as a mother of 10 has taken dozens of family trips with several kids in tow.

Now, as a consultant for Fisher-Price Toys, Mrs. Willis is sharing her expertise in these matters to tell parents that traveling with kids doesn't have to be an ordeal.

"Baby's first trip, whether by car, train, bus or plane, can be extremely disorienting and sometimes disconcerting," she says. "But it is one of the best times for parents to take a fresh approach to play, trying to make it as versatile, stimulating and comforting as possible."

The choice of which toys to take along to entertain your baby is an important consideration that often gets overlooked, according to Mrs. Willis.

"When picking toys for a trip, choose multifunctional ones that perform in a variety of ways to keep your baby more actively involved and to cut down on what to carry," advises Mrs. Willis, adding that your mode of travel will determine what toys to bring.

"Toys that engage the baby by making noise or stimulating action are useful during long trips," she says. "However, when traveling in close confines with strangers, quiet toys that can't be thrown or dropped are best — such as ones that can be affixed by a suction cup to a pull-down tray, or hand puppets."

"It might be a good idea to bring along a few new toys and picture story books, or toys that your baby hasn't played with often. They'll be fresh and are likely to be interesting and stimulating."

She warns against buying travel souvenirs as playthings for babies. "Souvenir items are not necessarily made with an infant's special needs and could prove to be unsafe," she says.

Mrs. Willis says it's also good to bring along some familiar objects and favorite toys to assist in the transition to new places and unfamiliar faces.

"Because a parent's voice is one of the most familiar sounds to a baby, talk about and explain the different things your child is experiencing," she advises. "Your child may not understand what you're saying, but the sound of your voice can be very comforting."

The possibility of lost luggage looms large in every vacationer's mind, but when traveling with children it's an even bigger concern. The way to avoid any difficulties with baby's personal items is to pack the things in carry-on baggage separate from your own, Mrs. Willis suggests.

"Since a baby's personal items are usually more specialized than yours (harder to replace on short notice), if luggage gets lost or misplaced, having the items with you will assure that you're at least able to keep the baby comfortable," she says.

This idea makes sense for any mode of transportation, she points out, as easy access to baby's things, from diapers to playthings, is a must while traveling.

"As most parents are well aware, a baby's attention span is relatively short," Mrs. Willis says. "Consequently, variety is the name of the game where traveling is concerned. Try not to stay in the same position too long. If you're traveling by car, make occasional stops to give baby a change of pace and a chance to exercise. Also, I always made sure my tots were elevated in their car seat so they had good visibility."

Of course, when traveling by car you don't have to worry about the discomfort of strangers caused by too much noise or activity, she notes. In this case, she suggests bringing along a tape recorder so that you can record and play back your songs and stories. Then you can play the radio or favorite tapes when your voice tires.

Aulander Marking Town Centennial

The Bertie County town of Aulander is celebrating its centennial with three days of festivities this week — on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. A number of activities in arts, competitions and sports-related events are scheduled.

One of the highlight events will be an invitational croquet tournament to be played on two courts — at Elm Street behind the library and at 601 Broad St.

The event, sanctioned by the U.S. Croquet Association, will be the first in North Carolina with nationally rated championship players from Florida, Georgia, Kentucky and New York participating. The Aulander team will also be playing.

The tournament will cover all three days, with playing to begin at 9 a.m. and to continue until 5 p.m., with the finals on Sunday.

Among other events scheduled to be continuous over the three-day period are craft and art shows and sale, and a display of the town's memorabilia.

Special events scheduled include: On Friday, a concert of live entertainment from 7 to 10:30 p.m. at the ball park featuring the Greenville Barbershop Chorus, Bob Browns' Jazz Combo, Billy Raynor playing the organ, and the Trinity Ensemble.

On Saturday, events include the Greater Aulander Road Race to begin at 9 a.m.; a day-long Boy Scout Camp Site exhibit; a beard judging contest at noon, and a street dance from 8 to 12 p.m. featuring Bob Marshall and the Crystals.

The grand finale to the centennial celebration will take place from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday with Aulander native Emmett W. Burden as guest speaker and a performance by the 2nd Marine Air Wing Band from Cherry Point.

Aulander is 52 miles north of Greenville — reached by traveling N.C. 11 via Bethel, Oak City and Lewiston-Woodville.

Indian Instructor Delights In Destroying Stereotypes

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Frank Dukepo, a man of letters himself, was telling a young Indian audience about the C's, D's and F's of life. And he wasn't talking about grades.

Dukepo was the keynote speaker at a recent American Indian Career Day attended by more than 200 Indian high school students at Mountain View High School.

He spoke of the three F's: feeding, fighting, fooling around.

"How we fulfill each need is what makes us, us. If we eat too much, it will affect our appearance. If we eat the wrong kinds of foods, it will affect how we feel."

"Fighting is good in a proper context. It can be good if you're fighting for yourself."

"Fooling around is not just reproduction, but loving in a real sense."

He spoke of the big D.

"Where are we as an Indian people? Who or what is our greatest enemy? The Indians' greatest enemy is the Indian. I am my own greatest enemy. You are your own greatest enemy."

"And that leads to a big D. The big D is depression, the No. 1 problem of the Indian people today. We have all the emotions. We feel envy, hate, contempt and jealousy."

"Combine that with self-pity. 'Poor me. I'm just an Indian. I have to go to school. I have no friends.' And, depending on how we deal with those emotions, we can end up with depression."

Depression and failure can be overcome by the four D's: desire, dedication, determination, discipline, he said.

"It's not enough just to have desire. You need a burning desire."

"The real Indian time in dedication is being there beforehand. If the chief says, 'Meet me at sunrise,' don't show up at noon. Be there before sunrise."

"Indians often say the key to Indian success is self-determination, which is true. I'd add this: self-determination comes through self-control. The self-controlled person is content. He practices the three C's: communication, caring, communion."

"We must learn to communicate both to the physical and spiritual self. Communication is an area we don't think much about. Just think how many problems are caused because people don't share with others what is in their heads and hearts."

"Don't believe in stereotypes. The danger is that they will become a self-fulfilling prophecy. If people tell you that you can't do something because you're an Indian, it's important not to believe it, because you are what you believe."

Festival Depicts America

LONDON (AP) — A three-week festival of American arts in Britain will show another side of the United States with a program plump with poetry, painting, music, theater, sculpture and ethnic crafts.

The festival, which runs May 8-June 1, is billed as the largest American arts event ever held outside the United States.

Jennifer Williams, who directs the London-based British American Arts Association, said the festival is a response to the Britain Salutes New York event in 1983.

"One reason why we were so interested in presenting the festival is that life and art in the United States isn't reflected on television and in movies shown in Britain," Miss Williams said.

"Whatever your feelings about America, there are a lot of wonderful people there and this is an opportunity to see something of it," said Steve Rogers, a 29-year-old Briton who has visited the United States 25 times in the past seven years and organized the festival program.

Rogers said in an interview: "We expected a certain amount of critical reaction in waving the American flag so vigorously, because this is a critical period in international affairs."

"We aren't deliberately doing the festival as a public relations exercise for the United States. We're saying, whatever you may feel about politics, you don't have to be anti-everything American and anti-American culture."

Anti-Americanism is largely confined to the British left, which generally supports Nicaragua, opposes nuclear weapons and scoffs at President Reagan's anti-Soviet posture.

Still, the anticipated arrival in Britain of hundreds of American musicians, actors and other artists for the festival was welcomed by its patron, Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II.

"This is a unique chance to savor the rich diversity of a culture that has its roots in three continents," Philip wrote in the festival program, "America Live 85."

The organizers said they deliberately excluded major stars to make room for up-and-coming artists.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 25 through May 1.

House

BITBURG — By a vote of 390 for and 26 against, the House passed a non-binding resolution (H Con Res 130) urging President Reagan to cancel his May 5 visit to the German military graveyard at Bitburg where Nazi SS troopers are buried.

Supporter Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., said: "As a human being, I am appalled that (Reagan) is participating in ceremonies commemorating the graves of those who implemented the holocaust, one the darkest events in the history of humanity."

Opponent Thomas Harnett, R-S.C., said "the patriotism of President Reagan cannot be questioned," and added that "those horrible men who lie in Bitburg Cemetery have already faced a judgment far more critical and far more important than members of this House of Representatives can pass on them."

Members voting yes wanted Reagan to cancel the cemetery visit.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; William Cobey, R-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Howard Coble, R-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; Alex McMillan, R-9; James Broyhill, R-10, and Bill Hendon, R-11.

INDIANA — The House voted, 236 for and 190 against, to seat Democrat Frank McCloskey as the representative of Indiana's 8th Congressional District. This was a party-line vote, except for 10 Democrats who voted on the losing GOP side.

Democrats now occupy 253 House seats and Republicans 182.

In a recount of last November's election results that was supervised by the Democrat-controlled House, McCloskey was declared the victor by four votes over Republican Richard D. McIntyre.

This came after a state recount had resulted in Indiana's Republican secretary of state certifying McIntyre the winner by some 400 votes.

Each party challenged the integrity of the other's recount.

Supporter Jim Wright, D-Tex., said: "Unfortunately, the Constitution places upon us, as the Congress, the clear responsibility to be the judge of elections."

Opponent Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said the fairest and most constitutional solution was for the House to reject the seating of McCloskey and order a new election.

Members voting yes wanted McCloskey to be seated.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Neal, Rose and Hefner.

Those voting no were Cobey, Coble, McMillan, Broyhill and Hendon.

Senate

SOCIAL SECURITY — By a vote of 65 for and 34 against, the Senate adopted an amendment to permit higher cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) for Social Security recipients than President Reagan has requested.

The vote allows hikes averaging nearly 4.2 percent during the next three fiscal years. By contrast, Reagan wants to cap increases at 2.1 percent in fiscal 1986, 2.3 percent in 1987, and 2.1 percent in 1988, saving some $22.7 billion.

Overall Reagan seeks cuts totaling $300 billion during the three years, in hopes of lowering the 1988 annual deficit to $100 billion, about half its present level. He would terminate 20 major federal programs and severely cut 30 others.

The vote occurred during debate on the budget master plan (S Con Res 32).

In a previous vote, the Senate endorsed the president's ambitious budget blueprint, including the cap on Social Security COLAs. But that victory will prove meaningless if the Senate rejects individual austerity moves that Reagan has requested.

Supporter Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said "the Republican Party has never liked Social Security. Every proposal to cut it has come from that side of the aisle, from the president."

Opponent Robert Dole, R-Kans., replied "it is always interesting to listen to (Riegle) because he has never met a federal program he did not like, particularly if it spent money."

Senators voting yes were opposed to limiting cost-of-living hikes for Social Security recipients.

North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms voted no. Sen. John East did not vote.

The Police Department has initiated a "Citizen Ride Along" Program for Greenville residents who are interested in seeing how police operate while on patrol. If interested, call 752-3342 for details.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Five of ♦.

When you don't have a sure way to fulfill your contract, it is often sound policy to run a long suit. The defenders might find it difficult to discard. French internationalist and writer Jean Paul Meyer spotted this hand at the recent Spring North American Championships in Montreal.

Sitting South was world champion Peter Weichsel of Miami. His decision to bid three no trump was an eminently practical solution to a difficult bidding problem.

West led his fourth-best spade, won by dummy's queen. Since declarer had eight tricks and this was the only time he was likely to be in dummy, there was a temptation to try for the contract via a finesse for the queen of hearts. Weichsel spurned this in favor of an end play. He ran his diamonds to reduce the hand to this position:

♥ AQ ♥ 96
♦ A7 ♦ K9

Now declarer simply exited with a club, and the defenders were left without resource. Assume that West wins the ace of clubs and exits with a club to East's king. (The same position arises if West allows East to win the first club.) If East returns a spade, declarer rises with the ace and throws West in with the king of spades. West can take the ace of hearts, but he must present declarer with the fulfilling trick by leading a heart to the king.

It is no better if East returns a heart. West can take his two heart tricks, but he must then lead away from his king of spades into declarer's ace-jack tenace for the ninth trick.

Note that West must keep both heart honors. If he does not, declarer simply plays a heart to set up his ninth trick right away.

Costa Rica
To Receive Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two dozen U.S. military advisers will spend three months in Costa Rica, helping train the country's security forces in "basic military skills," the Pentagon says.

Members of a U.S. Army Special Forces detachment in Panama will oversee the training at a small Costa Rican village near the Nicaraguan border starting May 15, the Pentagon said. It said the advisers are being sent at the request of the Costa Rican government.

Costa Rica lies directly south of Nicaragua, where leftist Sandinistas came to power in 1979. The announcement of the new training effort comes less than a week after President Reagan imposed a trade embargo on Nicaragua.

Costa Rica has long been the most stable democracy in Central America and has lived without a standing army since 1949. As tensions in the region have grown in recent years, however, it has begun efforts to strengthen its small internal security force, or civil guard.

"At the request of the Costa Rican government, a mobile training team consisting of four officers and 20 enlisted men will be deployed to Costa Rica for a 12-week period in order to train four companies of Costa Rica's security forces," a Pentagon statement said.

Maj. Fred Lash, a Pentagon spokesman, said the training would be conducted in the village of Murcielago, near Costa Rica's northwest coast about 12 miles below the Nicaraguan border. Approximately 750 men in Costa Rica's civil guard will be given "basic training," the spokesman added.

Lash said the 750 men who will receive the training will be divided into four, 175-man companies plus a small headquarters staff.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Rural Farmers Are Turning To City Centers To Find Wives In Japan

By TERRIL JONES
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Takashi Homma has 45 cows, a 125-acre farm, good health and an annual income of $85,000, but he doesn't have a wife. That's why he came to Tokyo.

"There aren't many women in my region," says Homma, 35, whose farm is in Hamatombetsu, on the frigid edge of Japan's northernmost main island of Hokkaido.

"It's not that I feel I have to get married by a certain age, but I'd like someone to spend my life with me," he said.

Homma is one of about 9,000 Hokkaido farmers looking for wives in rural regions, largely deserted by young women who have gone off to find careers — and husbands — in the cities.

Serving as a go-between is the Japan Youth Center, set up in Tokyo five years ago for the purpose of matching up eligible young farmers and women who would like to live outside Japan's noisy, crowded cities.

It held its 11th such group "o-miai" (arranged marriage meeting) recently with 17 women and 23 men, from Hokkaido. It also holds annual o-miai for single farmers from Miyake Island, south of Tokyo, and northeast Yamagata prefecture.

Twenty-two couples have been joined in matrimony since the program began.

"Before, daughters couldn't inherit land, so they would leave their families," said the Youth Center's director, Kiyotaka Shimada. "Besides, the Japanese economy concentrates on importing raw materials and exporting finished products, so the jobs are in the cities."

"I didn't want to marry a salaryman (office executive)," said Yukari Kitamura, who met her farmer husband Hisao two years ago. "I had been an O.L. (office lady) for eight years with salarymen all around me."

She visited Hisao's home after an exchange of letters and decided that was the life for her.

Yoko Itamoto, a marriage counselor for the Youth Center, said the organization places newspaper ads in cities such as Osaka, Kobe and Hiroshima, and pays the fare for young women to come to Tokyo for few days to meet prospective suitors.

Hiroko Tsuda, 32, signed up this year when her art supply company in Hiroshima fell on hard times.

"Before then, I had never thought of marrying. But now, there's nothing else," she said.

She said she likes animals and the open spaces of Hokkaido, the closest thing that Japan has to an undeveloped wilderness.

At the recent mass o-miai, participants wore numbered badges, 1 through 17 for the women and 101-123 for the men, dairy farmer Homma among them.

The women sat at six tables in a conference room while the men moved about, changing tables every 15 minutes. The chatter centered on hobbies, family and work.

The men wore suits, almost invariably with white socks. Some brought travel brochures which they used in describing the areas where they live.

"They asked me most often what I thought of farm life," said Yukari Suenaga, 23, who wore a pink sweater, flowered dress and lace stockings. "I've visited Hokkaido and I like it a lot. I'd like to live there."

Miss Suenaga paid 5,000 yen ($20) to meet a dairyman, including a date to visit an international science exposition the next day. The farmers paid 40,000 yen ($157) for the round trip and accommodations.

Farmer Chikara Kunii, 22, who earns $51,000 a year, said he was young enough not to worry about finding a mate, but added, "I wanted to get to know someone from Tokyo, someone who might end up being my 'koibito' (sweetheart)."

After the sessions at the tables, everyone went through self-introductions, with varying degrees of nervousness.

Said one farmer: "I don't drink, I don't gamble, so you won't have to worry about me."

Said a timid girl: "I like cows. If you like me, I'd like to meet you."

Everyone then wrote three numbers of those they wished to meet, and Ms. Itamoto and some assistants retired for 20 minutes to match up the cards.

"I didn't really meet anyone I particularly liked," said Miss Suenaga. "But I only talked to six people."

She said she had no special type of farmer in mind, but "the more money he makes the better."

In fact she did get matched up, with 22-year-old Masaaki Omiya, who earns $65,000 a year from his 50 Holsteins.

Once paired, the couples were sent off for quick dates, to be home before 9 p.m.

FOCUS

"The Greatest Day Ever"

Forty years ago today, the end of World War Two in Europe — V-E Day — was greeted with joy and celebration. Mussolini was executed on April 28. Hitler's suicide was announced on May 1. Berlin fell the next day. The European war alone caused millions of deaths and injuries. The Nazis exterminated 6,000,000 Jews and 5,000,000 others. Germany's "blitzkrieg" bomb raids of Great Britain killed 70,000 Britons.

Credit Unions Recover From Hard Times

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The solitary messenger clutched a plain brown envelope as he picked his way carefully across a deserted, icy sidewalk near the White House. Inside was a check for $13 million.

It was Inauguration Day 1985, a morning most memorable for the raw cold that forced cancellation of a parade and drove President Reagan inside to take his second oath of office.

But for the messenger, and for the trio huddled around an electric space heater waiting for the check, it also was the deadline for credit unions to deliver payments to the new federal insurance fund that backs the deposits of 51 million credit union members.

The $13 million check, the largest single payment, was from the huge Navy Federal Credit Union in Washington.

The little-noticed transaction — one of more than 7,000 totaling $480 million that frosty January weekend — illustrates how the nation's 15,000 federally insured credit unions have quietly put their house in order.

Edgar F. Callahan, the just-resigned chairman of the National Credit Union Administration, said the credit union's willingness to embrace a new approach to shoring up their insurance fund was just one example of how the industry has recovered from the hard times of 1981.

Credit unions were falling right and left then as factory after factory either laid off a big portion of their workers, or shut down outright.

It also marked the beginning of interest rate deregulation in which credit unions — as well as other financial institutions — were thrown into competition for the first time over how much return they would offer depositors.

Callahan, who left the federal agency Friday after 3½ years as its chairman, said the way credit unions emerged to a banner year in 1984 shows the member-operated institutions are a good idea whose time keeps coming.

The challenge for his successor, Callahan said in a weekend interview, is to keep Congress and other policy-makers aware that credit unions are unique.

"You're in an industry that is often grouped with banks and S&Ls and there's a tendency to get painted with the same brush," he said. "You must withstand their crisis oftentimes and there can be a knee jerk reaction ... because of perceived problems."

"There is danger in getting sucked into that atmosphere," he said. "My successor will need to maintain that credit unions have been ahead of the problem curve and need not be grouped with other financial institutions."

He noted, for example, that no credit unions suffered from investments in failed government securities deals because of what "you might call a jungle grapevine" in which credit union managers stay in contact through the federal agency with an investment hot line.

The Federal Savings and Loan

Insurance Corp., which insures deposits in savings and loan institutions, has under consideration a plan to pattern its fund after the credit union fund revisions put in place in January.

The credit union approach, approved by Congress last year at the urging of the industry, enables member institutions to place capital deposits into the fund rather than pay annual insurance premiums.

The fund's operating expenses and losses are covered by interest and the member institutions are able to carry their fund holdings as an asset — just as if the money had been deposited with a bank.

The effect is to increase the size of the insurance fund dramatically, without a corresponding cash drain on member credit unions.

The insurance funds covering banks and S&Ls are comprised of cash premium payments. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., the one covering S&Ls, recently had to impose a special assessment to shore up the sagging fund.

Reagan has selected former Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa., as Callahan's successor. The nomination requires Senate confirmation. Callahan will remain in Washington as a credit union consultant.

Amendment To Give D.C. Residents Vote Will Die

By MICHELE COPPOLA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A constitutional amendment that would have given residents of the nation's capital the same voting rights as other Americans will die this year.

As a result, the 638,000 residents of the District of Columbia will continue to lack representation in Congress by voting members of the House and Senate. The city's only representative in Congress is a non-voting delegate, Walter Fauntroy.

"The District of Columbia is too urban, too liberal, too Democratic and too black. Those facts were used by certain forces with narrow self interests to work to deny us what they demand for themselves, representation in the U.S. House and Senate," Fauntroy said of the amendment's death.

Added Joseph Raub, an attorney and civil rights advocate, "We don't have it because the Republicans don't want two black, liberal, activist Democrats in the Senate."

Residents of the district, whose population is about 67 percent black, were first allowed to vote in presidential elections in 1964 and have given their three electoral votes to the Democratic nominee every time. Voters in 1975 went to the polls for the first time to elect a mayor and council who, until then, had been appointed by the president.

But they have no chance any time soon of being represented by voting members of the Senate and House. Only 16 of the 38 states needed for ratification have approved the amendment, which would have given them that right. Too few legislatures remain in session to achieve ratification by the August deadline.

"Mathematically, it won't be possible to get it ratified but we're not going to close up shop," said Mary Jane DeFrank, executive director of the Coalition for Self-Determination for D.C. "Every state counts for us. We don't want to pull the rug out from states that have been working on it, some as much as seven years."

"For a year we haven't expected to obtain victory," said Richard Clark, chairman of the self-determination group. "Our objective now is to use the campaign as an organizing vehicle for education and political base purposes."

Clark noted that a Republican-controlled legislature has never voted for the amendment.

"I find it appalling, astounding, amazing that we faced the parochial interests opposition that we did. We had been encouraged by the bipartisan support we had during the congressional campaign," he said.

Legislators who have voted against the amendment, which was passed by Congress on Aug. 22, 1978, suggest that if the district wants voting representation in Congress, it should cede itself to neighboring Maryland or Virginia.

"It (the amendment) is the improper vehicle to allow for the participation in congressional representation," said Pennsylvania Rep. James J. Gallen, a Republican who led the opposition when the amendment recently came up for a vote in that state's House. "A city that is one-third the size of Philadelphia should not have two U.S. senators."

"The language is as if it were a state. It's unlike any other state, any other city. The people of the District of Columbia are almost to a person at the federal level. They either work for the federal government or somebody in their family does or are in some way connected," Gallen said.

Five states have smaller populations than the District of Columbia, according to U.S. Census estimates for 1983. They are Alaska, with 479,000; Wyoming, 514,000; Vermont, 525,000; and Delaware, 606,000. But in area even the nation's smallest state, Rhode Island, is almost 18 times larger than the district.

As for employment, there are 69,000 people living in the city who work for the federal government, according to the D.C. Department of Employment Services.

Fauntroy said he will probably reintroduce the amendment in Congress "to reaffirm our determination to get voting representation," but will concentrate on achieving statehood for Washington.

A proposal to make the city a state, named New Columbia, is awaiting congressional hearings. However, backers give it little chance of passing, mainly because of a controversial constitution that contains such provisions as guaranteed employment or income and the right of police to strike.

Research Group Cites Harm To Water By Soil Erosion

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soil erosion, traditionally seen as a blight on the long-term productivity of farmland, may be having even more serious effects off the farm — on water supplies, reservoirs and wildlife habitat.

Erosion is costing the United States some $6 billion a year in increased flood damage, water treatment expenses, river and harbor dredging, lost recreational capacity and similar effects, according to an assessment released recently by the Conservation Foundation, a non-profit Washington research group.

The figure, which the foundation concedes is at best a rough measure, is the first attempt in 40 years to gauge the downstream costs of erosion. When analysts last calculated the cost of soil runoff in the mid 1940s, the cost in constant dollars was put at $700 million.

Soil erosion has likely become the No. 1 cause of water pollution in America, as clean-up laws reduce the adverse impacts of municipal and industrial waste disposal, the new study said.

For every pound of food eaten in the United States in 1977, water washed 22 pounds of dirt from the fields where it was grown. The eroded soil, some 6.4 billion tons a year, winds up clogging reservoirs and shipping channels and adding to flooding problems. Its chemical fertilizers and pesticides destroy fish and wildlife breeding grounds and seep down into drinking water.

"The damages are going to continue to increase," said Edwin H. Clark II, the primary author of "Eroding Soils: The Off-Farm Impacts." "If we don't start getting cropland erosion under control, farmers will apply more chemicals" and the problem will worsen.

While there is no solid evidence that the rate of erosion has grown over the past decade, Clark said the increase in chemical use to maintain soil productivity makes the impact of current erosion rates more harsh.

Of the rough $6 billion estimate of erosion's off-farm toll the largest portion, roughly one third, is blamed on cropland runoff. Other erosion and pollution runoff sources include construction sites, mining operations and city streets.

Topping Clark's list of adverse effects was recreation, which he said suffers some $2 billion in losses annually because of damage to fishing and to boating and swimming because of silt accumulation and weed growth.

Another major cost, some $690 million a year, comes from the storage capacity in expensive reservoirs being filled up with eroded soil. Dredging to maintain river channels and ports costs another $560 million a year, flood damage some $770 million, and water treatment costs are boosted $100 million annually by runoff pollution, Clark estimated.

If further progress is to be made in the struggle to restore the nation's water quality, attacking soil erosion at its source is the most effective way to do it, Clark said. But while federal dollars aimed at combatting pollution from cities and factories have had marked effects, the government's soil conservation spending often has been spread too thin to do much good, he said.

Clark said in an interview he hopes the study will stimulate new efforts under the Clean Water Act and under new comprehensive farm legislation, as well as "increasing awareness in the farm community" of the problems.

He called for a new strategy that involves permanently retiring the most eroded farmland from production by paying farmers to idle it; increased use of farming practices that reduce the amounts of chemicals applied to the land; and targeting soil conservation dollars where they will do the most good.

"Such a strategy needs to include more than just the education, technical assistance and cost-sharing programs that have been the staple of traditional soil conservation efforts" over the past 50 years, Clark wrote.

Glass Blowing Is Serious Business

CARNEYS POINT, N.J. (AP) — The laid-back students taking the glass blowing class at Salem Community College are often greeted by corporate recruiters offering salaries of up to $30,000 a year.

More job offers "than I could possibly fill" pour in to what instructor Joe Luisi says is the only school in the United States offering courses on scientific glass blowing.

The 20 students, who arrive for classes wearing sunglasses and stereo headphones, come from a wide range of geographic and social backgrounds to learn the trade in this rural southern New Jersey town near the Delaware River.

Traditionally, the field has paid modestly. But the increasing demand for glass blowers in burgeoning high technology industries has driven up the scale.

Companies hire the students to make specialized equipment for scientific purposes. The laboratory is filled with elaborate configurations of spiraling and curving glass tubes.

The job offers are so bountiful that an increasing number of students are leaving before completing the two-year program.

"I would say it's unbelievable," said Luisi, a veteran glass blower. "I've been in it all my life and I didn't get that much money ($30,000) after 40 years."

Luisi taught Salem's first glass blowing class in 1959, then left after a year to work for a glass blowing company in Vineland. He returned to the college in 1979.

The instructor regards glass blowing as more of an art than a trade, and in his spare time makes intricate glass sculptures, some of which have been displayed at Atlantic City casinos.

But the higher salaries are offered for jobs making items with quartz glass, a rigid material that is more difficult to shape, Luisi said.

"I'm an artist, I love the beauty of blowing and watching the glass form," he said. "You can't do that with quartz. They're welders."

Doni Kornahrens, a 23-year-old student who came from Portland, Ore., for the course, agreed that she would rather work with a more pliable glass than quartz, which requires intense heat of up to 2,500 degrees to shape and gives off unpleasant fumes.

But a wide variety of jobs are available and a steady stream of recruiters visit the laboratory to watch students blow air through a tube to shape masses of molten glass held over a heat source.

"It's something artistic, creative, technical and industrial all at once," Ms. Kornahrens said from behind sunglasses worn to shield her eyes from the flame.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning brings out all sorts of problems with saying or doing the tactful thing, and it is not a good time to make commitments. You have an opportunity to make long-term plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find a better way of handling career duties and later you can handle business matters very wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You get some good ideas for becoming more successful provided you steer clear of a newcomer.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go to an expert for advice about business problems, and then you can handle them wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You and a partner may be at odds in the morning, but later can reach a fine accord.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Work may go slowly in the morning, but don't get discouraged since later all picks up and you can accomplish a great deal.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it difficult to reach one you like and make plans, but later something comes up and you can have a fine time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may not comprehend what is going on at home, but bide your time and then you can profit from the situation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to fly off the handle with a bigwig or you lose valuable support. Be very careful in the handling of mechanical gadgets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You do not understand a monetary matter well in the morning, so give it more thought before you handle it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may feel very anxious without cause in the morning, so go after your personal wishes with poise and gain them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't worry about a situation you can do little about. Concentrate on more practical affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Early plan how to gain your personal wishes and then carry through in a most positive way and get right results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will early have to be shown that it is foolish to act on impulse and be taught to think and make plans before taking action on anything. Your progeny can become a fine organizer. Teach to be more direct and not try to work so many angles.

Prison Sentence

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A court has sentenced an alleged Basque separatist to 92 years in prison for participating in an attack which left four policemen dead and one wounded. Jesus Maria Zabarta Arregui also was ordered to pay the victims' families $220,000.

The court said Zabarta was member of the command of the Basque separatist organization ETA which attacked a police patrol car near Renteria, a town in the northern basque province of Guipuzcoa in September 1982.

Watered Down Used Car Rule Is Effective Thursday

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.

Wednesday, May 8, 1985 45

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether they're called cream puffs or clunkers, second hand or previously owned, used cars sometimes break down. So, before buying one, consumers should think about who will pay for any repairs.

That's the message the Federal Trade Commission hopes to drive home with new regulations that will cover the nation's used-car dealers starting Thursday.

But, even before the rules can be shifted into gear, consumer advocates are complaining that changes made last year eliminated most of the regulatory horsepower.

The main provision of the rule requires window stickers on used cars, telling buyers whether a car is being sold "as is," or if a warranty is offered; and giving other advice about such purchases.

"The most important piece of information that a used-car buyer can obtain is to find out from the dealer who is going to pay for repairs if something goes wrong after the sale. And that is exactly what this rule is going to do," said Carol Crawford, director of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

The most prevalent problem found in a study of the used car market, she said, "was that cars that were sold 'as is,' that is, without a warranty, were being represented by the dealer as coming with a warranty."

But while the rule gives consumers a clear indication of whether they get warranty protection, a controversial provision that would have forced dealers to tell their customers about any defects they were aware of, was dropped from the regulation.

And it's that missing provision that has drawn the ire of consumer advocates.

"I think that the rule will go into effect without notice and without effect. It simply misses what consumers want to know when buying a car, and that is, what's wrong with it," said Clarence Ditlow, head of the Washington-based Center for Auto Safety.

"If they (the FTC) were serious about protecting consumers from unsafe autos, they would have required disclosure of known defects, rather than leaving it up to the buyer to make that determination," added Jack Gillis, author of "The Car Book," a buyers' guide to auto safety.

In fact, the scrapping of that provision drew a sharp rebuke from FTC Commissioner Patricia P. Bailey, who dissented in the 3-1 vote last fall when the new regulation was passed by the agency.

"The FTC's rulemaking authority is a potentially powerful tool for promoting consumer welfare, but this rule, without the known defects provision, is little more than a consumer education campaign masquerading as significant, industrywide regulation," said Ms. Bailey in her dissent.

And Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., chairman of the House subcommittee on commerce, transportation and tourism, said that dropping the disclosure requirement in effect tells used car dealers that if they know of a major defect, such as a cracked engine block, they don't have to tell consumers.

Nonetheless, the commission believes that the regulation will help car buyers by making sure they understand the terms and conditions of purchases and by making them wary of promises.

Being informed about warranties will allow comparison with different cars and different dealerships, Ms. Crawford said.

In addition, she said, by focusing on warranties, the rule may encourage buyers to bargain for added coverage.

What a dealer thinks about a car also is often reflected in the warranty he offers, Ms. Crawford said. If the dealer thinks it's a great car, he's more likely to provide a warranty.

The new window sticker to be placed on used cars is a legal document and the dealer is bound by whatever promises he makes on the paper, she said. A copy of the sticker has to be attached to the purchase contract.

In development since 1976, the used car regulation will require the sticker to state whether a warranty is offered and, if so, the terms and what is covered. The commission cannot force dealers to offer warranties. But through the new stickers it does warn consumers that if the car is sold "as is," they will have to pay for any needed repairs.

The sticker suggests that buyers have an independent mechanic inspect any vehicle before buying it and warns them that oral promises can rarely be enforced. Also, the back of the form lists the various major parts of a car, along with some of the things that can go wrong with them.

But while this general list may give consumers some ideas about what to look for, it contains little information about the specific automobile being purchased.

The discarded provision, requiring car dealers to list on the stickers any major defects they were aware of, had been included in regulations under development since 1976.

That requirement was vetoed by Congress in 1982, but that veto was later overturned by the Supreme Court.

A lawsuit challenging the rule also was filed by auto dealers, and a federal appeals court directed the commission to reassess the regulation. It was then that the disclosure requirement was discarded by the agency.

"That was a very alluring proposal, a very attractive proposal, it sounds good. We looked at it very carefully and it simply does not withstand careful scrutiny," Ms.

Crawford said in an interview.

"I think those who have clung to that proposal are promising consumers something that they simply can't deliver," she said. "We found that consumers might read a requirement that a dealer disclose problems that he knows about, as an absolute disclosure of the condition of the car."

However, she added, a form listing no major problems could mean several things other than that the car is in perfect shape.

"It could mean that the car was inspected and they didn't find a problem, but in fact there was a serious problem; it could mean that the car was inspected but not very well, it could mean that the car wasn't inspected at all," she said.

Even cars that have defects repaired before sale often develop other problems within a couple of months, a commission staff report noted.

The commission also noted that proving a dealer knew of a defect and failed to disclose it would be difficult.

Some states, such as Wisconsin, have their own used-car regulations requiring dealers to disclose major defects in autos they sell. States with rules at least as stringent as the new federal regulations can apply for an exemption and continue to follow their own systems.

Brazil Will Pay Its Debt

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Jose Sarney on Tuesday said Brazil will pay off its estimated $100 billion foreign debt, but wants to renegotiate the terms.

Quoting the late President-elect Tancredo Neves, Sarney told his Cabinet, "This debt cannot be paid with the hunger of the Brazilian people."

It was Sarney's first major economic and political address since his formal designation as president following Neves' death on April 21.

Brazil will seek renegotiation of conditions for repaying its debt, Sarney said, adding, "Our creditors must understand that we cannot cease to grow."

The International Monetary Fund and foreign banks, which have provided billions of dollars in emergency funds, have insisted that Brazil cut spending and control inflation, now 228 percent.

Sarney said he would also fulfill major promises made by Neves — to establish direct elections for all offices and call a special assembly to rewrite the constitution, heavily amended during 21 years of military rule that preceded civilian administration.

Neves and Sarney, as vice president, were elected "indirectly" Jan. 15 by an electoral college set up by the military government. The rules provide for a term of six years, but Sarney said he prefers to serve only four.

DOUBLE MFG.'S COUPONS!

MANUFACTURER'S COUPON	MFG'S CENTS OFF	YOU SAVE AT KROGER
COUPON A	20¢	40¢
COUPON B	39¢	78¢
COUPON C	50¢	$1.00
COUPON D	75¢	$1.00

We will double 5 mfg.'s coupons (up to 50¢ face value) for every $10 purchase!

EXAMPLE

$10 Purchase 5 Coupons
$20 Purchase 10 Coupons
$100 Purchase 50 Coupons

Between now and May 11, we will redeem national manufacturer's cents off coupons up to 50¢ for double their value. Offer good on national manufacturer's coupons only. (Food retailer coupons not accepted.) Customer must purchase coupon product in specified size. Expired coupons will not be honored. Coupons for free merchandise excluded from this offer. Offer does not apply to Kroger or other store coupons whether manufacturer is mentioned or not. When the value of a coupon exceeds 50¢, this offer is limited to $1.00. If double the value of a coupon exceeds the value of the item, this offer is limited to the retail price. Limit one cigarette or coffee coupon per customer. Limit one coupon for any one particular item. If you, for example, have two coupons for 15¢ off on Miracle Whip and intend to purchase two jars of Miracle Whip - only one of these coupons will be doubled. You may use the second coupon, but it's face value remains at face value.

"Trust" The Kroger Pharmacy

Recognizes National High Blood Pressure Month

High Blood Pressure is called the "silent killer" because it usually has no symptoms. Early detection by regular testing is the only way to know.
