Public Speakers Support Six-District Election Plan

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Overwhelming support for a six-district plan for electing Pitt County Board of Education members was voiced at a public hearing Thursday.

Speakers stated that six districts would provide better representation for black voters and asked that the boundaries for the district lines be the same for both the Board of Education members and Board of County Commissioners. Speakers also commented that the addition of at-large members would deter black representation.

The County Commissioners earlier this month approved a six-district election plan with three members elected at large. That board will begin public hearings next week.

The school board must submit the plan of election to the General Assembly for approval by Feb. 9. The election plan then must go to the U.S. Justice Department for preclearance, and the Board of Education members will be elected in November.

Election plans composed of six districts, seven districts, 11 districts and 14 districts were explained by board attorney Mike Crowell at the hearing Thursday. No one at the hearing commented on the seven-district or 11-district plan, but Grifton Mayor Ralph Thaxton spoke in support of the 14-district plan.

A.C. Brinson of the Pitt County Board of Elections said that, although his board has "no authority to tell the board how many districts to have, our position is that it would certainly be better for the voters of Pitt County if the County Commissioners had the same number of districts that the Board of Education has."

He said, "We urge that these two boards talk to each other — the Board of Education and the Board of Commissioners — and try to work out plans that are equal with coterminous lines."

"If you don't do that ... you are going to have voters who don't know where to vote, it's going to cost more to put on the elections, but that's not the greatest cost. The greatest cost is you'll turn off the voters ... You're going to keep people from voting," Brinson said.

Terry Shank, representing the Pitt County League of Women Voters, told board members, "We strongly urge you to commit to coterminous election districts with those designated for the election of the Board of Commissioners ... Those districts would avoid voter confusion and apathy, would not incur the additional costs required of two separate elections."

"The black community would be adversely affected by the addition of

County Hearings To Begin

Six public hearings on a proposal to create six new districts as part of an effort to change the method of electing members of the Board of County Commissioners have been scheduled.

The first of the hearings will be at North Pitt High School at 7 p.m. Wednesday. The second hearing will be at Ayden-Grifton High School at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The other hearings will be at 7 p.m. on Jan. 27 at Farmville Central High School, Jan. 29 at Pactolus School, Feb. 4 at Wahl-Coates School in Greenville and Feb. 5 at A.G. Cox school in Winterville.

Commissioners last week agreed to hold hearings — one in each of the proposed districts — after approving a proposed election plan.

In addition to creating six new election districts — one member of the board would be elected from each district and have to live in the district — the plan to be presented at the hearings also calls for three members to be elected at-large. The at-large representatives could live anywhere in the county and would be voted on by countywide vote.

As approved, two of the proposed

Another Record

East Carolina University has a record spring semester enrollment of 13,611 students, according to Registrar J. Gilbert Moore. The spring semester began at ECU this week.

Last year's spring semester enrollment was 13,291. Last fall's enrollment reached 14,464, also a record, and spring enrollments usually show a slight decline from the fall.

Moore said the undergraduate total for spring semester is 11,211 with 2,400 graduate students. The enrollment includes 279 students in the school of medicine.

The Greenville Jaycees honored three local people for commitment to their jobs and service to the community Thursday night.

H. John Fisher was named Fireman-Rescuer of the Year; Detective Willie Reid was named Law Enforcement Officer of the Year, and Patricia Mitchell Clark was named Young Educator of the Year.

The awards are given annually "to distinguish local people in their chosen field," said Phil Trull, a Jaycee vice president.

When people do well in their careers and work in the community, "they deserve recognition," he said. "The selection process is done primarily by the people of the profession."

Fisher is stationed on Memorial Drive, and he serves on the External Audit and Review Committee and the EMS Training, Research and Development Committee. He has assisted in the development of the standard record-keeping form for EMT-AI drugs and in the development of specific EMT-AI equipment.

Fisher completed three years of rescue college and has taken several career-related courses.

Reid joined the police force in 1973 as a cadet and is now a detective in the Fraud and Forgery Department. His case load averages 25 per month, and his clearance ratio is 65 percent by arrest. The national average is 18 to 21 percent.

Reid served in the U.S. Marine

SCLC Wants School Boycott On Monday

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference is asking local students not to attend school Monday in observance of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, said Bennie Rountree, local president of the conference.

SCLC is "calling for a boycott of schools that do not observe Martin Luther King's birthday," he said. "We're trying to contact 32 counties in eastern North Carolina," requesting students to boycott school Monday.

About 32 states do not observe King's birthday as a holiday for state employees, including North Carolina, he said. "We don't like that. We want that day off with pay" for state workers.

Greenville "city workers will be off," Rountree said, "but (Pitt) County Commissioners have not considered it a holiday because the state hasn't."

Traditionally black civic and social organizations also will unite Monday to celebrate the nationally observed birthday of King, Rountree said.

"We'll be at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church on Eighth Street beginning at 5 (p.m.)," Rountree said, to observe King's birthday and holiday.

Organizations participating in the services include the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP, the Pitt County Black Ministers' Conference, the Pitt County Black Caucus, the eastern North Carolina chapter of Black Social Workers and Concerned Citizens for Justice.

Other commemorative activities planned include the performance of "King," a play based on King's life, said Carlos Dawson of CD and Company Performing Arts Theater.

"We wrote the play, and we're going to be performing it ourselves," he said. The play, to be performed at the Roxy Theater Sunday at 7 p.m., will include speeches, marches, the assassination, funeral and a celebration for King.

The play is becoming an annual event, Dawson said. "We wrote a play about three years ago," and have performed in the Unlimited Touch and Mr. C's Lounge.

"We just want to show our way of PEKING (AP) — Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang resigned in disgrace today after weeks of student protests and a crackdown on pro-Western intellectuals whom he reportedly backed. Premier Zhao Ziyang was elected to replace him.

The 71-year-old Hu, once considered a likely successor to top leader Deng Xiaoping, resigned after saying he made "mistakes on major issues of political principles," the official Xinhua News Agency and national television reported.

The announcement ended days of speculation that Hu would be ousted. Deng reportedly was unhappy with the way Hu handled the students' pro-democracy demonstrations and the subsequent party campaign against critics.

An enlarged session of the Politburo, the party's top decision-making body, accepted Hu's resignation and unanimously selected Zhao as the new secretary-general of the 44-million-member party, Xinhua said.

It said the decisions on Hu and Zhao would be submitted to the next plenary session of the Central Committee for confirmation.

Politburo members "gave Comrade Hu Yaobang a serious and comradely criticism and at the same time acknowledged his achievements," Xinhua said.

Xinhua said Hu will remain a member of the Politburo Standing Committee.

The agency did not say whether Zhao, 67, will leave his post as premier and, if so, who might replace him. Possible successors mentioned by Chinese sources include Vice Premier Li Peng, 58, and Tianjin Mayor Li Ruihuan, 54.

The Politburo meeting urged the party to continue to stick to party policies and combat "bourgeois liberalization," Xinhua said.

The phrase "bourgeois liberals" has been used to describe those who question the supremacy of socialism and the Communist Party.

Hu and Zhao are both strong supporters of the economic reform and open-door policies Deng has promoted since he rose to power in 1978.

Zhao, however, has been involved mainly in economic matters and has escaped involvement in the turmoil that followed the student protests in at least 11 cities since December.

In recent statements, Deng and Zhao have stressed the crackdown on intellectuals will not affect the economic and open-door policies. Hu has a reputation for relative tolerance toward political debate. Chinese sources have said Hu angered Deng on several occasions by backing writers, including Shanghai social critic Wang Ruowang, who were in trouble because of their controversial works. The party announced Wang's expulsion Wednesday.

The military also reportedly has balked at Hu's taking over Deng's posts, including that of head of the state military commission. Deng also is chief of the party Central Advisory Commission and a member of the Politburo Standing Committee.

Deng has indicated he would like to retire at a party congress scheduled for next fall, but one diplomat said, "If anyone thought of Deng retiring, he can forget it."

Hu and Deng were associates for nearly 40 years and both were banished to the countryside by radical leftists during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

The firm, with industrial mill equipment and electrical supply divisions, has operated at 401 W. 14th St. for the past year and a half, according to company spokesman Jim Parrish.

Parrish said the new Greenville facility will be "about twice as large" as the building Cameron & Barkley now occupies.

Construction on the half-million dollar building, which will include a "lighted showroom," is expected to begin in March and should be completed by August or September, Parrish said.

Parrish said Cameron & Barkley, a "100 percent employee-owned company" headquartered in Charleston, S.C., has 38 branches.

The Greenville branch now employs 13 people. When the move to the new building is completed, Parrish said the company will expand to 18 to 20 employees.

State, Police Study Insurance Policies

Representatives of the North Carolina Department of Insurance will be at the Greenville Police Department Monday through Thursday to handle inquiries from consumers that have been doing business with Mosely Brothers Insurance Agency of Greenville.

The agency filed for bankruptcy in November of last year and is no longer in business.

A police department spokesman this morning confirmed that an investigation is under way.

The spokesman said money from "as many as 50 to 100 or more different policies" written by the Mosley Brothers agency may never have been sent to the insurance underwriters.

Max Powell, special assistant to Insurance Commissioner James Long, said the insurance department needs to hear from any consumer who has purchased an insurance policy from the agency but has not received a policy or those who have had insurance dealings with Mosely Brothers and feel they have had less than satisfactory service.

"These persons should come to the Greenville Police Department (between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday) and bring with them any and all documents pertaining to the insurance transaction and any receipts for monies they previously paid."

Powell said that "if a consumer has a policy or policies issued by Clyde Odom or his agency, that person may also wish to contact the insurance company writing such policies directly to confirm coverage."

He also said that consumers will need to contact the underwriting companies directly to renew coverage.

If there is a problem locating the address or phone number of the insurance company involved, Powell said Mosley Brothers' customers can call the insurance department's consumer services division at 1-800-662-7777 for assistance.

McFarlane Reportedly Overruled Offer To Free Two U.S. Hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane held out for the release of four U.S. hostages during his secret trip to Iran in May, rejecting an Iranian offer to release just two, according to a broadcast report.

During the mission to Tehran, McFarlane overruled fired White House aide Oliver L. North, who had wanted to give in to the Iranian demand that two hostages be freed immediately and two more would be freed after the delivery of more U.S. arms, ABC News reported.

The Americans had flown into Tehran with a planeload of weapons. Only one hostage, the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, was released by a pro-Iranian group in Lebanon, and that was two months after the McFarlane trip. Hospital administrator David Jacobsen was released in November, following another arms shipment to Iran.

White House spokesman Albert R. Brashear today declined comment on the ABC report.

"At this point, I just can't confirm it," Brashear said. "I can't say when, but I think obviously at some point that is something that will be dealt with."

Brashear also said Reagan is not receiving interim briefings on what is being turned up in the internal White House investigation of the Iranian affair, but added, "I can assure you the president is very interested in what is going on."

"We think it is very important that the president not in any way deal with any recollection that may not be based on the entire chronology," Brashear said. "We want to make sure there are no mistakes in anything that we ... provide."

McFarlane went before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today to answer questions about Iranian arms sales.

W. Germany Promises Speedy Extradition Of Hijack Suspect

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Justice Ministry today predicted West Germany would quickly extradite to the United States a Lebanese accused of hijacking a TWA jetliner and killing one hostage.

Justice Ministry spokesman Juergen Schmid said, however, that before extradition could be granted, West German law required a guarantee that the suspect, Mohammed Ali Hamadi, not be sentenced to death if convicted.

The 22-year-old Hamadi was seized at Frankfurt airport when customs agents discovered three wine bottles in his carry-on luggage containing methyl nitrate, a fluid sometimes used in making explosives, security officials said Thursday.

He was one of four people indicted in the United States on charges of conspiring to commit air piracy and murder in the 1985 TWA hijacking, during which a U.S. Navy diver was shot to death.

The hijackers held 39 Americans hostage for 17 days in June 1985 before releasing them following Syrian mediation. Then, hooded and carrying handguns, the hijackers read a statement at Beirut airport before vanishing.

In Washington, U.S. officials said they were talking with West Germany about extraditing Hamadi, believed to have been one of two gunmen who carried out the hijacking.

"It would appear this (extradition) can be handled quickly," Schmid said at a news conference in Bonn.

He said the decision would be made by West German prosecutors, courts and the justice and foreign ministries.

Air piracy contains a death penalty provision in the United States, but U.S. officials have declined to comment on whether the government would seek capital punishment if Hamadi is extradited and convicted.

U.S. officials in West Germany were not immediately available for comment on the West German requirement ruling out the death penalty.

Earlier today, U.S. Embassy spokesman Robert Heath said U.S. authorities were "in touch" with the West Germans on the case. He refused to comment further.

U.S. and West German authorities said they were investigating whether Hamadi had any connection with 26-year-old Lebanese Bashir al-Khodh, who was arrested Monday in Milan, Italy, with more than 20 pounds of plastic explosives and detonators in his luggage.

Italian Interior Minister Oscar Luigi Scalfaro on Thursday said there was a link between al-Khodh and Hamadi, and the operation leading to their arrests was continuing, according to the Italian news agency AGI. Scalfaro, speaking in Rabat, Morocco, was quoted as saying the arrests were the result of better international cooperation against terrorism, but did not elaborate further. Italian news agency AGI reported.

Interior Ministry spokesman Michael Butz said Hamadi had sought political asylum in West Germany from 1982 to 1984, but then returned to Lebanon.

Investigators Say Marine Helped KGB

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Marine sergeant suspected of espionage helped the Soviet KGB learn about the internal workings of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, investigators have concluded, according to administration sources.

Officials investigating the case, however, disagree on whether there was serious damage to national security in the alleged activities of Sgt. Clayton J. Lonetree, the sources said Thursday.

The Marine has taken at least one lie-detector test and appears to be holding back some information, added the officials, who agreed to discuss the matter if not identified.

"We know he was asked a lot (by the KGB) about the people there (at the embassy); the personalities, the interaction within the building and how things were handled," said one source.

"He opened a window on the embassy's operation," observed another. "We just don't know how wide he opened it."

The sources declined to confirm a broadcast report Wednesday night by ABC News indicating Lonetree had identified to the KGB Soviet citizens on the payroll of the Central Intelligence Agency.

One official said, however, that it is possible Lonetree identified Americans at the embassy who are employed by the CIA.

Cocaine-Pizza Parlor Ring Is Uncovered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen people, including an employee at the Colombian Embassy, face 10 years in prison and fines of up to $4 million in connection with a drug ring that sold cocaine imported from Colombia at pizza parlors here, say federal agents.

The drug ring involved Colombian nationals living in the Washington area who are accused of importing cocaine from their homeland, said Robert O'Leary, a Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman.

Authorities said federal agents began arresting 33 defendants Thursday in a series of arrests in the Washington area, Texas, California and New York.

Those arrested here were charged with conspiracy to distribute and to possess with intent to distribute cocaine. The charge carries a mandatory 10-year minimum sentence and fines of up to $4 million.

All were detained pending preliminary hearings.

During the six-month investigation, an undercover federal agent purchased 11 kilograms of cocaine, valued between $35,000 and $40,000 each, O'Leary said.

One on occasion, the agent purchased about four grams of cocaine at a downtown pizzeria and it was delivered to him in a pizza box, officials said.

Two pizza parlors in the Washington area, operated by native Sicilians, were used as fronts for the drug ring, O'Leary said.

Giuseppe L. Cottone, 37, owner of pizzerias in Springfield and Winchester, Va., and Beniamino Centurino, 50, manager of a downtown Washington restaurant, were among those charged in the case, according to a DEA statement.

Also arrested were Diego Hoyos, 25, a Colombian living in Arlington, Va., and Patricia Leon-Gomez, 24, a receptionist at the Colombian Embassy.

An embassy spokesman said Ms. Leon-Gomez is a U.S. resident who does not hold a diplomatic passport.

Aviation Unit

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The 82nd Airborne Division Thursday activated a major new aviation unit that actually will reduce the number of soldiers in the division.

The creation of the 82nd Aviation Brigade is part of the Army's continuing program to streamline combat troops. With the activation of the brigade and deactivation of the current 82nd Combat Aviation Battalion, the division will end up with 64 fewer aircraft and 500 fewer soldiers in aviation careers, said Maj. Mike Nason, 82nd spokesman.

Those soldiers and aircraft will come under XVIIIth Airborne Corps control, giving Lt. Gen. John W. Foss more aviation assets to support other corps units.

Ahead

Greenville's City Council is ahead of schedule — a fact which may give the board a jump on progress for 1987.

As the mid-point of the 1986-87 budget nears, the council is already working on the 1987-88 budget — none too early. Beginning preliminary planning in January provides the council with an opportunity to prepare a reasonable and sound budget for 1987-88. Starting this early is more than a good idea — it is nearly a necessity. Last year both the city and county governments were unable to complete a budget on time — a fact that indicates footdragging and a reluctance to make decisions. If the City Council's approach is any indication, perhaps in 1987 that will change.

By starting well in advance of the July deadline, members will have adequate time to inform themselves on financial issues. They will have ample time to do research, utilize resource persons and understand the complexities of funding that face them. They will be more aware of the deficits, changes in revenue sources, salary needs of employees and financial demands of running the city in the coming year.

Perhaps the City Council has realized, as all public officials should, that budget preparation is a continuous process, not just something done at one time of the year.

The City Council should be commended on its initiative and encouraged to continue this earlybird approach as it considers other issues. Staying ahead is a key to progress and growth. Other public boards should follow the lead.

Sound Premise

Thanks to some farsighted studies and their acceptance by the state's General Assembly, North Carolina's people can look forward to enjoying their beaches for a long time to come.

Geologists learned one does not protect a beach by adding seawalls and other beach "hardening" devices because in the end they often cause the beach to disappear. Already, much of South Carolina — where seawalls are allowed — does not have a beach at high tide.

A Duke University professor, Orrin Pilkey, says states that allow beach hardening are paying the consequence. "Twenty years from now it will be hard to find a beach to swim on in South Carolina," he emphasized.

"Shoreline erosion is a term used by beach cottage owners, but we geologists call it shoreline retreat," says Pilkey. "There is no erosion problem unless someone builds right next to the shoreline. The problem is not nature. The problem is man."

That conclusion was accepted by state officials who say they will stick with the geologists' view because the long-term future of the coast cannot be sacrificed for temporary protection of property owners.

That is a sound premise.

David W. Owens, director of the state Coastal Management Division reminds "you don't build up the beach to protect the beach. The only reason to do nourishment is to protect the upland development where it currently is. The beach doesn't go away, it moves. You don't lose the beach, you just change the location of it. The beach and public recreational use of it is going to be the same, wherever it is."

All this is pretty grim stuff for a considerable number of property owners. The New Year's Day storm left more than 500 buildings with less than 20 feet of sand between their foundations and the surf, state officials say. Without protective dunes many buildings are likely to be damaged or destroyed by future storms.

Owners of beachfront homes must include some who disapprove of North Carolina's coastal management policy. They'd much prefer to be permitted to build protective seawalls and have the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to replenish the beach with sand. Estimated cost of replenishing the beaches runs around $1 million per mile every year.

People familiar with ways of the sea (and shores) simply are too smart to build on the beach. They know beachfront homes have a poor prospect of longevity.

Today's Thoughts

The EastCare landing pad at Pitt County Memorial Hospital was a place of continual activity, day and night, prior to the recent disastrous crash. Nothing can be darker at night than this former center for now-suspended mercy flights.

Super Bowl is ahead on Jan. 25 with the New York Giants to play Denver. As the World Series creates baseball fans, the Super Bowl will whet the interest of millions who don't normally watch pro football. They will be football fans for one day.

High-Toned Dialogue

RALEIGH — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey say their decision to open the previously secret budget-writing sessions of the super subcommittee won't have much of an impact on the kind of state budgets North Carolina gets. Both men said the money will continue to be doled out in pretty much the same fashion as in past years.

If that is to be so, then it may be fun now to look forward to next June when the budget is put together. Let's imagine some of the high-toned dialogue we'll hear as budget leaders try to write a traditional budget while the public watches.

SEN BLOB: As y'all know, some parts of this state are in trouble, economically. We need to develop our economic resources, and a half million dollars for a new roof on the Yo-Yo Hall of Fame is a wise move. It's a great tourist attraction. I'd support state funding even if it wasn't in my district and even if my brother wasn't their lawyer.

REP. AARF: I agree, Senator, economic development must be our highest priority, along with the schools, fighting drugs, saving the environment and building a new state parks systems. So we gotta double the salary we're paying former Rep. Rosie Hayseed to work in state government. She's doing a great job.

SEN BLOB: Well then, I move that we combine the issues of the Yo-Yo

Hall of Fame and the pay raise for Rep. Aarf's friend, er, for former Rep. Hayseed, and then put some restrictions in this budget so the bureaucracy doesn't misspend the hard-earned tax money of the good people of North Carolina.

REP. SHYSTER: I've got a money-saving provision. These prisons are just killing us. The judges are locking up all these people at $30 a day to the state. Somehow we gotta keep the prison population down so we can save some money. Here's a little something that says as long as a man pays his lawyer in full, then he doesn't have to serve any time. We'll just slide this into the budget here on page 1,098, down in the footnotes where everybody will get a chance to see it, and let the whole General Assembly pass it.

SEN BURP: I don't know if I can go for that. What'll it do to the courts of this state? We'll need more clerks and assistant district attorneys.

REP. SHYSTER: That may be the case. I suggest we experiment by adding another provision here on page 765 which adds three new assistant prosecutors in a judicial district, any district. I don't know where — maybe in Sen. Burp's district, to see if more people will help.

SEN BURP: I think that will work very well. While we're at it, why don't we just slip jurisdiction over the Supreme Court over to the legislative branch. Do that here, on page 987.

CHAIRMAN DOLT: Gentlemen, this is just wonderful work. It's just what I'd hoped we'd be able to accomplish today. But I am a bit disappointed that no one has raised the critical issue of hazardous waste. I've been most disappointed that the General Assembly has, in the five months it's been here so far, overlooked the necessity of picking a state burial site for this dangerous material. Therefore, on line 34, page 102, I suggest we add provision putting the site near Lake Norman, where the governor can keep an eye on it everytime he goes home for the weekend.

SEN BURP: Before we do that, don't you think we ought to hear from the legislators who represent that district?

CHAIRMAN DOLT: Well, this meeting's open to the public. They chose instead to attend the Republican caucus.

SEN BURP: In that case, let's get this train on the tracks and get this budget approved this afternoon so we can stop wasting the taxpayer's money by being in session. And the meeting adjourns.

Shifts At The Bargaining Table

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a visit dictated by protocol, Yuri Dubinin, the Soviet ambassador, called last week at the State Department to report a shift at the top of his government's arms control negotiating delegation.

Yuli Vorontsov, a fast-rising star in the Soviet hierarchy and the first deputy foreign minister, would take over for Viktor Karpov in Geneva.

The Soviet ambassador also had a request to make as he informed Assistant Secretary of State Rozanne Ridgway of the change: Would the United States match the Russians by appointing a higher-level negotiator?

As Dubinin was to explain this week at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy, Moscow's intention was not to "send any arrows" in the personal direction of Max Kampelman, who has headed the U.S. delegation since 22 months ago.

Nor, he said, were the Soviets seeking to engage in a "propagandistic duel" with the Reagan administration.

Dubinin said Moscow simply wanted to elevate the position of chief delegate and hoped the United States would go along.

The implication was that more powerfully placed negotiators could more readily come to terms.

The U.S. response was to give Kampelman a second job, one he had been in line for anyway: counselor of the State Department. That raised his status while he stayed on as chief U.S. negotiator.

Actually, there is no precise equivalent to first deputy foreign minister in the State Department hierarchy. Deputy Secretary John Whitehead and Undersecretary Michael Armacost are roughly comparable in position to Vorontsov but not exactly.

Both sides entered the latest and seventh round of talks pledging to do their best to reach agreements. But while they are close to an understanding to reduce their missile stockpiles, they apparently are too far apart on space-based defenses to come to terms.

Should it make a difference, then, who is in charge of the delegations?

Zbigniew Brzezinski, the national security adviser in the Carter administration, says he does not think the appointment of Vorontsov "matters substantively."

He views the move as an attempt by Moscow to give the impression of movement since President Reagan's summit meeting in October with General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev.

Approached separately, Paul Warnke, the chief U.S. negotiator under Carter, basically agreed.

"It does not matter really," he said. "The negotiators do not have any authority to deviate from the position of the United States and the position of the Soviet Union."

A critic of Reagan administration policy, Warnke said, "The problem is they are sending Max over there without anything he can sell... And you can't make chicken soup out of chicken feathers."

Earlier in the day, Warnke and William Colby, a former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, unveiled a report by the Committee for National Security, a private research group.

It called on the Reagan administration to curb "Star Wars" tests that might be interpreted by Moscow as part of a plot to quickly mount a defense against missiles. Tests of other components would be permitted.

The idea is to reach a compromise with the Soviets that would allow agreements to reduce offensive weapons to go through.

Barry Schweid has covered U.S.-Soviet relations and arms control for The Associated Press since 1973.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Some events of the past year or so have caused me to suspect senility on my part. But CBS' "Nightwatch" showed me that I am repeatedly bombarded with the "incredible," and most folks are believing and accepting the incredible as "fact."

On Nightwatch, a biographer of President Reagan claimed to have studied Mr. Reagan all the way back to early childhood. His "insights" explained a lot. For example, he said Reagan had twice made the claim that he photographed survivors of the "death camps" near the end of World War II; however, he says, Mr. Reagan was in the U.S. of A., not in Europe. How, pray tell, does one explain such a fabrication? Simple. He's lived most of his life in an America that never existed and he makes up little "parables" or "morality stories" as the occasion presents itself, according to the writer.

I understand now, at least in part, the Reagan promise, during his first presidential campaign, that he would balance the federal budget. Also, it's now understandable that Col. Oliver North was a "national hero" (a few weeks ago) but is now not the "most reliable source" on the Iran/Contra affair. And a "modest" defense budget includes a 66 percent increase for "Star Wars." And the Constitution is sufficiently complete, without the Bill of Rights.

Any day now, I expect to see the presidential limousine traveling up a Yellow Brick Road to the White House, where Alice and her friends will greet the Wizard and curtsy, as he re-enters his Wonderland.

Were Ronald Reagan and Walt Disney ever roommates? We'll all need to read the biography to find out. Meanwhile, we waste money and man hours fretting over the President's knowledge of events of the Iran/Contra affair. Why worry? Facts never slowed him down before. Just give him 30 minutes of TV to tell us a "parable" or two, and let's get on with another Rambo sequel.

Strength For Today

David Livingston, the devoted British missionary to Africa, always declared that he never made a sacrifice in his life. Yet he traveled through more jungle, over more trackless mountains, across more desert wastes than any man of his generation. He received for his efforts just about enough to keep him clothed and fed. But he was working for the Lord, and he considered that to be an inestimable privilege far beyond any reward which many could give.

It makes a great difference when love enters our work. Who could possibly pay for the service a mother gives a child? Every devoted public servant gives more sacrifice than he is paid for.

The word sacrifice implies giving up something for an inadequate return. But when sacrifice is made in the spirit of love, nothing is given up. Sacrifice becomes a privilege.

IN THE STATE

Surprise

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — School officials in Henderson County were surprised this week when the Appalachian Regional Commission reported the countywide dropout rate at 34.6 percent.

That's because Hendersonville reports a dropout rate of 4.6 percent and Henderson County, 6.7 percent.

Locals schools measure the rate by calculating how many ninth-graders eventually graduate from high school. The ARC got its figure from the U.S. Census Bureau's 1980 report.

In those findings, 34.6 percent of county residents between the ages of 18-24 interviewed by census workers did not graduate from high school. It did not matter if those interviewed dropped out of schools here, or someplace else.

Court Martial

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A Marine corporal says he thought a man he hired to kill his wife would strangle her or hit her, not slit her throat and stab her 24 times.

Marine Cpl. Darryl F. Morelock testified Thursday that he intended to pay Cpl. Michael T. Westmoreland for the slaying after he collected on his wife's life insurance policy, but he was arrested before he could make the claim.

"After I found out how it was done, I probably would never have paid him anyway," Morelock testified at Westmoreland's court-martial at Camp Lejeune.

Constance Harryman Morelock's body was found July 30, 1984, but was not positively identified until January 1985, with the help of X-rays.

Jordan Speaks

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Education and the economy will top the General Assembly agenda this year, and North Carolina may be on the verge of an industrial coup, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says.

"Basic education will continue to be the primary issue in this year's General Assembly," Jordan told the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners Thursday. "To further improve the schools, I will seek legislation that will continue to enhance the teaching profession, more clearly define governance and ensure accountability and better management of our schools."

Jordan said he will focus on strengthening the state's industrial base by encouraging the growth of small businesses during the 1987 session. He hinted at an economic coup and, without revealing the type of industry that might come to North Carolina, noted that it would "attract high dollars and high employment."

Charges Dismissed

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Trespassing charges have been dismissed against 13 University of North Carolina students accused of refusing to vacate a shanty put up in an anti-apartheid protest.

The students were arrested Nov. 21 as they protested the university's investments in companies doing business in South Africa.

District Court Judge Lowry Betts said Thursday his decision was based primarily on testimony given by Maj. Charles Mauer of the UNC Police Department. In that testimony Mauer said he asked the students to leave the shanty.

"He said, 'would they leave?'" Betts said. "He didn't order them to leave. He didn't tell them to leave."

Warrants against the 13 on trial Thursday also were first lodged as disorderly conduct. They were later changed to criminal trespass.

Voting Suits

RALEIGH (AP) — Blacks in Granville and Vance counties have filed two federal lawsuits challenging at-large elections of county commissioners, a system they say discriminates against minority voters.

The class-action suits, filed in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, ask the court to order the counties to switch to a district system under which commissioners would be elected by voters from particular parts of the county.

The suits, filed on behalf of all black voters in each county, represent the latest in a line of similar actions filed in North Carolina by blacks and the NAACP. Seven similar suits were filed in North Carolina in 1986.

Burn Victim

DURHAM (AP) — A 67-year-old Durham man was killed in a fire that destroyed his duplex apartment after apparently being started when the man was lighting his wood stove, officials said.

Willie Edwards died around 2 p.m. Wednesday. He was found lying on the floor of the gutted middle room of the three-room apartment.

RJR Nabisco Shifting Headquarters To Atlanta

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Two months after announcing it would keep its corporate headquarters in Winston-Salem, R.J.R. Nabisco Inc. has changed its mind and decided to move its 300-person corporate headquarters to Atlanta.

RJR spokesman David Fishel said Thursday it "became obvious" that the presence of the holding company's corporate headquarters in the same city as the tobacco subsidiary was causing problems.

"No other R.J.R. company has had to operate with corporate headquarters sitting right next door," Fishel said after the company's board of directors approved the move and voted to donate its $40 million headquarters building to Wake Forest University. "It's better that they not work side-by-side."

In an Oct. 23 press release announcing a corporate reorganization,

RJR said the reorganization was not part of a plan to pull out of Winston-Salem. "As previously stated by the company, the R.J.R. Nabisco corporate headquarters will be located in Winston-Salem," the company said then.

But company president and chief executive officer F. Ross Johnson said RJR changed its mind after it began reorganizing, and the possibility of moving came up at the November board of directors meeting.

"Some things become obvious, and when it's obvious you go with it," Fishel said Thursday.

Fishel said R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Inc. and 14,000 employees will continue to work in Winston-Salem, and that "the 112-year history and tradition of R.J.R. tobacco business will remain here. It will remain one of the largest corporations and taxpayers in North Carolina."

Fishel said the headquarters would move to the Galleria Building in Atlanta by September. Fishel said he didn't know whether Thursday's board of directors vote was unanimous.

Harry Pardue, Forsyth County's tax supervisor, said the impact of the transfer to Wake Forest depends upon the building's use.

"If it's income-producing property it will be taxed," he said. "If it's used for educational purposes it will be exempt."

Pardue said the Reynolds building, which was opened in 1977, has a tax value of $31 million. If the building is used for educational purposes, he said, the county would lose about $300,000 in revenue — less than 1 percent of the $55 million to $60 million in total county property tax revenues.

Fishel said the move resulted from a decentralization of the corporation and a desire to give its various subsidiaries more autonomy.

As part of the reorganization, RJR

Nabisco Vice Chairman Edward A. Horrigan Jr. will assume the additional title of chairman and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Inc., overseeing operations of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco USA and R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International Inc.

Twenty executives of the international tobacco subsidiary will be moving to London, Fishel said.

Fishel said Atlanta was chosen because company executives wanted to maintain RJR's southern heritage and because of Atlanta's access to national and international transportation and the financial community.

"It's based entirely on business considerations," said Fishel. "Winston-Salem is losing a small corporate staff, but it remains the headquarters of our worldwide tobacco operation."

Tobacco accounts for $8.1 billion, or 50 percent of the corporation's annual sales and 65 percent of its earnings.

Reynolds will remain a major benefactor for Winston-Salem and North Carolina, Fishel said, noting that the company provided $6.5 million to community organizations last year.

Fishel downplayed speculation that a rift between the tobacco executives and executives of Nabisco Brands Inc., which Reynolds took over in 1985, had led to the decision to move.

Johnson, who came to the conglomerate from Nabisco, told city officials that he personally wanted to stay in Winston-Salem.

Fishel also said the move should not be taken as a criticism of North Carolina's business climate. Fishel said he didn't know what tax advantages the move would bring the company, and he said the decision seemed to take Atlanta officials by surprise.

Gerald H. Long, senior executive vice president of R.J.R. Nabisco, will also become president and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco USA. That newly created subsidiary will operate the domestic tobacco business. Long reports to Horrigan.

Lester W. Pullen, chairman of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International Inc., also will report to Horrigan, but will move to London.

Fishel said the move of 20 executives of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International will make it easier for them to travel and look after the company's overseas operations.

RJR Nabisco is expected to have 1986 sales of nearly $16 billion and has more than 130,000 employees worldwide. In addition to Nabisco and the tobacco companies, the conglomerate owns Heublein Inc. of Farmington, Conn., and RJR Archer Inc., a packaging company in Winston-Salem.

Waste Sites Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — A state panel charged with finding a site for a $20 million hazardous waste treatment plant by April 1 has released a list of 139 potential sites in 42 counties.

"This is just the first step in our process to select a site for the facility," Joe Harwood, vice chairman of the state Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission, said Thursday.

The report released Thursday shows the number of potential sites in each county, but did not give specific site locations.

Counties with the most potential sites include Mecklenburg and Rowan, both with 13; and Edgecombe, with 11. Other leading counties include Johnston, with 7; Randolph and Scotland, both with six; and Forsyth, Nash and Wilson, all with five.

Commission chairman Deborah Parker said the specific locations would be released Wednesday, after legislators and officials in the counties named in the report have been contacted.

"Commission members have not had a chance to look at the final draft," she told the Asheville Citizen. "We've given ourselves one week to go over it, make sure it's correct. We feel an obligation to write the legislators and county managers, making them aware of the situation before the media starts putting it in the papers and people start discussing it."

The facility will render chemical wastes essentially harmless by incineration or chemical processes. Such wastes do not include nuclear or radioactive materials.

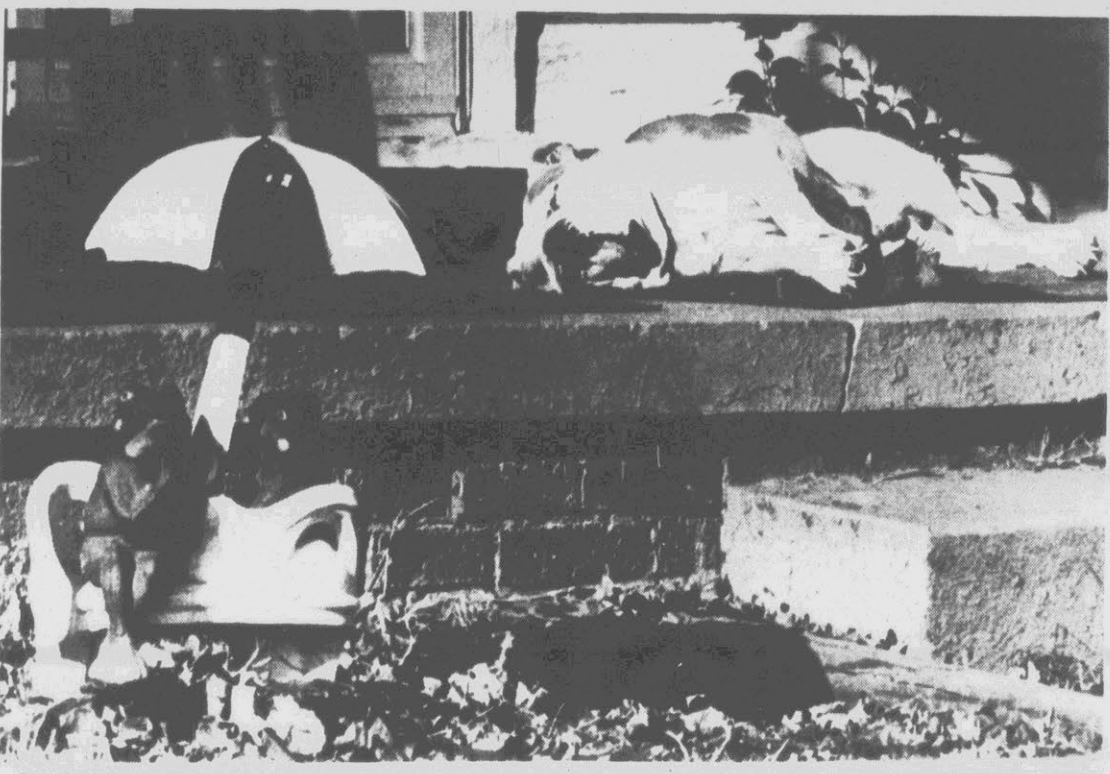

Ms. Parker's chief concern is that the public get correct information on the incinerator and quickly.

"I don't believe if the media helps us along we'll have any amount of people too upset about this," she said. "We're not talking about dealing with things we're not in contact with every day. They're all around us, under the kitchen sinks, in the garage, on our farms."

PEI Associates, a consulting firm hired to help with the study, identified 518 sites in 51 counties in November and narrowed it to 148 sites. Ms. Parker said nine more sites were eliminated because the commission didn't have enough information on them.

Ms. Parker said PEI was told to look for sites with accessibility to natural gas, considered the best energy source for the incinerator; within 25 miles of an interstate highway; and not located in wetlands, national historic sites, military reservations or national forests and parks. The sites also need to be at least 50 acres and served by city water.

The 1986 legislature provided $1.1 million for permit work and planning on the incinerator.

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he is still opposed to making Martin Luther King's birthday a state holiday, even though King "moved us closer than any living soul to the ideals on which America has been founded."

"He didn't ask us to build a monument to him," Martin said after speaking at a memorial service sponsored by Blacks United In State Government. "He came to help build a freer society, a more fair society, and we can certainly honor him for that. He did not ask for extra days off. ... He asked for more jobs, for more economic opportunity, for better education."

Martin said while a member of Congress he had voted against making King's birthday a national holiday, favoring instead designating a Sunday to honor King.

Martin said he had not lobbied lawmakers against a holiday and would leave the matter up to them.

During his speech, Martin called King "the most skilled advocate of human rights in modern history," but repeated his opposition to making the slain civil rights leader's birthday a state holiday.

"Dr. King was truly a prophet who reached out across those chasms of hostility, prejudice, ignorance and fear to touch the conscience of his native land and ours," Martin said.

King's "example and ... leadership moved us closer than any living soul to the ideals on which America has been founded," Martin said in the packed auditorium of the State Archives and History Building.

Several members of Martin's Cabinet joined the mostly black crowd for the memorial, which was scheduled for noon so state employees could attend during the lunch hour. King was born Jan. 15, 1929, and was assassinated in 1968.

The group sang rousing spirituals, prayed, listened to solos, and heard a brief speech by Martin and a keynote address by Wanda J. Garrett, a member of the State Parole Commission, who called on the General Assembly to make King's birthday a paid holiday for state workers.

The Legislature in 1983 designated the third Monday in January as a state observance of King's birthday. Supporters of a full-fledged King holiday have vowed to raise the issue after the Legislature convenes next month.

Ms. Garrett said a holiday would give all North Carolinians an opportunity to reflect on King's life and work.

Rates May Hold

CHARLOTTE (AP) — If inflation and fuel costs stay stable, Duke Power Co. may not have to raise its rates for the rest of the decade, a senior company official says.

Executive Vice President Bill Grigg said Thursday he could not promise that unforeseen conditions will not run up Duke's costs.

"We're working very, very hard to avoid a rate increase in the next three or four years," Grigg said. "It's going to depend on inflation, interest rates, on Congress not doing anything untoward"

Duke's rates went up every year but one in the 1970s and 1980s, largely to pay for the billion-dollar construction of seven nuclear and two coal-burning power plants.

Rates have risen a combined 16 percent in the past two years alone, mostly to pay for the last two nuclear units at the Catawba nuclear plant.

Greenville's first public library was established in 1904.

Insurance Industry Offers Rate Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Experienced drivers and those with recent traffic violations would pay less and inexperienced motorists, including some with clean records, would pay more under changes in the automobile rate system proposed by the insurance industry.

The changes, contained in a 38-page proposal by the North Carolina Rate Bureau, would make the rate system fairer, said John W. Watkins, general manager of the bureau, which represents the state's insurance industry on rate matters.

"It is attempting to more equitably distribute the costs of automobile insurance," Watkins said Wednesday.

But the proposal got a lukewarm reception from state Insurance Commissioner James E. Long, who has the final say on how rates are designed.

"With the limited review we've had so far, it was somewhat disappointing," Long said. "We were hoping that it would be a somewhat more creative filing."

The proposal also got a mixed review from state Sen. Joseph E. Johnson, D-Wake, a principal author of legislation authorizing a new plan for automobile insurance. He said it hit inexperienced drivers too hard.

The proposal calls for changing the state law that prohibits the consideration of age or sex in setting insurance rates. The law, approved in 1975 at the urging of former Insurance Commissioner John Ingram was designed to reduce the high rates that were being charged to young male drivers.

The insurance industry now wants to allow discounts for drivers 55 years and older. But the proposal also would raise premiums for younger drivers who benefited from the 1975 law.

The proposal would extend the classification for inexperienced drivers from two years to eight years. The surcharge for a driver with less than two years experience is now 100 percent of the base rate. Under the proposal it would increase to 200 percent.

Lobbying Effort

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. privately has been lobbying officials on the Triangle J. Council of Governments in an effort to defeat plans for an oversight board proposed for the Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant, Raleigh Mayor Avery Upchurch said.

Upchurch, council chairman, said he wasn't sure CP&L was maintaining a previous vow to cooperate in the planned board.

Mac Harris, a CP&L spokesman, said Thursday he could not comment on any lobbying effort because he did not know details of the issue. He said CP&L officials who would be familiar with lobbying efforts could not be reached Thursday morning.

The council gave the proposed review board a favorable review Wednesday. The board would monitor activities at the nuclear plant, examine procedures and management, review compliance with state and federal laws and interpret plant data and reports for the public.

Legislator Studies State-Operated Trust Program For College Students

By The Associated Press
State officials are considering establishing a trust fund that would allow parents to make an initial investment to guarantee a college education for their children.

"It would be super," said Sen. Marshall A. Rauch, D-Gaston. "A grandparent could make a deposit at the birth of a child that would pay for the child's college education. But we're a long way from home."

Rauch said the amount of the initial investment has not yet been calculated, but the prepayment program being considered is based on one about to take effect in Michigan.

Under the Michigan plan, the state guarantees a child's tuition at any public college or university in the state if the parents deposit as little as $3,000 in a state-sponsored trust fund. The state would invest and administer the fund free of charge.

If officials in the University of North Carolina system like the idea, Rauch said, he plans to introduce legislation during the General Assembly's coming session to get the program going.

Rauch said he has sent University of North Carolina President President C.D. Spangler Jr. information on the Michigan plan and is waiting for Spangler to evaluate it. UNC vice president Felix Joyner said the plan is under review.

"If the legislature wants to give the people the opportunity to prepay the costs of going to college, we would be hard pressed to say that it's a bad idea," Joyner said.

Rauch said the plan would assist students bound for both public and private schools.

"The purpose is not to help the (UNC system)," he said, "but to help students go to the college of their choice and not our choice."

That prospect sounded good to officials at the N.C. Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, which represents 38 private institutions in the state.

"We would be interested in anything that helped public and private schools," said John T. Henley, the association president. "We would support any effort in that regard." Rauch said state Treasurer Harlan Boyles has agreed to administer a tuition trust fund should one be organized.

"On the sideline, just observing, it sounds like a good idea," Boyles said, "but everything that sounds good isn't always practical. It's premature to say that the concept is viable in North Carolina."

Not everyone thinks prepayment is the way to go.

"It's a very sexy way of saving for college, but it's a lazy way of doing it," said Mary Garren, president of the N.C. Association of Student Aid Administrators. "If they plan wisely, a family can accomplish the same thing this will do."

Michigan officials say the plan introduced by Gov. James T. Blanchard received widespread support. They said the plan lets students go to the college of their choice and not the one they might be able to afford. It also allows students to graduate without debt and frees up scholarship money for the neediest students.

"Nobody thought it was a bad idea," said Robert Kolt, a spokesman for the Michigan Treasury Department, "but there were a lot of technical questions to be worked out."

Seven states already have introduced legislation identical to the Michigan plan.

Rauch believes North Carolina should be added to that list.

"I'm hoping the university will feel it has merit," Rauch said. "There's a lot to work out, but we will work it out."

Abortion Activists Win Fight

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A state panel has ordered the North Carolina Social Services Commission to reconsider two regulations that critics say would impose undue burdens on women seeking state-funded abortions.

"Hooray for sanity," Deborah Steely, coordinator of the North Carolina Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, said Thursday after the state Administrative Rules Review Commission unanimously objected to the proposed regulations.

Paul Stam, a Wake County attorney and anti-abortion activist who suggested the regulations that the Social Services Commission approved in October, called the ARRC "a bunch of liberals, a stacked deck. I would have been shocked if they had not" objected.

One measure would require that when women who apply for state-funded abortions receive counseling from local social-services departments as required by state law, they be given the option of viewing models of developing fetuses.

The second rule would require that when a woman seeks government money to terminate a pregnancy resulting from rape or incest, the social-service agency to which she applies report the crime to the local district attorney.

Rally Backs Probe Demand

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — Leaders of a black and Indian coalition told more than 600 people at a Robeson County rally that the slaying of an unarmed Lumbee Indian by a county sheriff's deputy will be properly investigated.

"We're going to make sure this coalition doesn't fall apart," the Rev. Mac Legerton, head of the Robeson County Clergy and Laity Concerned, told the crowd gathered at West Robeson High School Thursday.

The coalition has protested the November shooting of Jimmy Earl Cummings, 36, who was killed after being stopped by Deputy Kevin Stone, the son of Sheriff Hubert Stone. A county coroner's jury ruled two weeks after the slaying that Stone had shot Cummings either accidentally or in self-defense, clearing him of any criminal charges.

The rally was held just hours after members of Cummings' family met with investigators from a federal and state drug task force to discuss Cummings' possible role in the sale of drugs stolen from the Robeson County Sheriff's Department.

Plane Collision Kills 10 People

By PEG McENTEE
Associated Press Writer
KEARNS, Utah (AP) — Airport radar did not detect a small plane before it collided with a commuter aircraft, killing all 10 people aboard both planes and showering a residential area with debris, officials said.

The crash, 1987's first U.S. commercial aviation disaster, occurred five months after a small plane collided with an Aeromexico DC-9 as the jetliner was approaching Los Angeles International Airport, killing 82 people.

The collision Thursday 7,000 feet over the Salt Lake Valley damaged several houses, but there were no injuries or fires on the ground.

Dozens of police, sheriff's deputies, firefighters and rescue workers rushed to the snowy crash site about 15 miles southwest of downtown Salt Lake City, cordoned off the area and fanned out to recover debris over three square miles.

It occurred as a Skywest Airlines 18-seat Fairchild Metroliner turboprop carrying six passengers and a crew of two was making its final approach to Salt Lake International Airport from Pocatello, Idaho.

The other plane, a single-engine Mooney M-20 carrying a licensed pilot and a flight instructor, had taken off 26 minutes before the collision from Airport No. 2, a small facility near the crash site.

The Mooney went undetected by either radar or radio at the larger airport's control tower, said Tom Doyle, an assistant air traffic manager at the international airport.

"I don't know where that aircraft was," he said.

"We were in complete control of that Skywest aircraft. He was inbound to the airport and doing exactly what he was supposed to do, from our perspective on radar and voice communication."

Sheri Casen, a Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman at the Seattle regional headquarters, also said "there were no other targets observed on the radar" when the twin-engine Skywest aircraft dropped off the screen at 12:56 p.m.

"It shouldn't have happened because everybody on board (the Mooney) was an experienced pilot," said Ron Nelson, base operator at Airport 2.

One woman was walking to her bedroom when landing gear smashed through the ceiling, killing her two cats.

"All of a sudden it was just boom! I was four steps away from opening up the door and it hit," said Rebekah Whitelock, 20. "I feel like the Lord kind of watched over me."

Aboard the Mooney were pilot Chester Baker and passenger Paul Lietz, an instructor, Nelson said. The identities of the other victims were not immediately released, but Red Cross spokesman Steve Hill said they were two young boys, the two male pilots, one female and three male passengers.

The victims' remains were recovered by Thursday night and taken to a makeshift morgue at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church before being turned over to the state medical examiner.

FAA officials said the collision occurred at 7,000 feet. When the small plane reached 5,400 feet, it was no longer required to remain in radio contact with Airport No. 2, Nelson said.

The pilot of the small plane may have been on a semi-annual flight review required to maintain his license, he said.

Visibility at the time was 30 miles with a cloud ceiling of 7,000 feet, authorities said.

Crews recovered the Skywest aircraft's in-flight recorder, said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward. It was turned over to the FAA and National Transportation Safety Board investigators.

KSL-TV quoted an unidentified NTSB investigator as saying two witnesses reported seeing the smaller plane's left wing strike the nose of the Skywest aircraft.

Sister Marilyn Mark, a teacher at the St. Francis Xavier elementary school adjacent to the church, was sitting in her office and "thought someone was up shoveling snow on the roof."

"Seconds later, I heard a kind of crash. I ran downstairs to see what was going on," she said. "That's when I found part of a body. It seemed to be a leg."

The 150 students at the school, where body parts pelted the front porch and glass door, were evacuated. About 4,500 students from six schools were kept late to prevent them from encountering bodies or debris.

The largest piece of wreckage, the Metroliner's twisted fuselage, landed in the middle of a snow-covered street. Deputies said it contained four bodies, the pilot, co-pilot and what appeared to be two children.

Ron Reber, a Skywest vice president, said the Skywest pilot had three years' experience with the airline. It was the first fatal accident in Skywest's 15-year history, Reber said.

The worst collision in the United States occurred Sept. 25, 1978, when a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 getting ready to land in San Diego hit a private plane, killing 144 people. The crash was blamed on faulty air traffic control procedures and PSA crew error.

New AIDs Drug Approaches Important Regulatory Step

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — An experimental AIDs drug which is farther than any other along the regulatory path to general approval is taking another major step with formal consideration by a Food and Drug Administration advisory committee.

The maker of the drug AZT has sought permission to make it available for prescription by all physicians, and the advisory panel's recommendation on the request is expected to carry heavy influence with the FDA.

Today's meeting comes a day after Surgeon General Everett Koop told a Senate panel that education about the disease's deadly consequences remains the best weapon against AIDS even though fighting it is the government's No. 1 health priority.

The FDA advisory committee was devoting a day-long meeting to consideration of AZT, or azidothymidine, with presentations from FDA staff members and the company to be followed by several hours of discussion and, perhaps, a vote late in the day on what recommendation to make.

The FDA approved expanded, although still tightly controlled, use of AZT on Sept. 30 after more restricted clinical trials demonstrated it appears to prolong life and reduce symptoms in some patients with AIDS.

The manufacturer, Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C., and federal health authorities have asserted that AZT is not a cure for AIDS, although it appears to relieve some symptoms.

The trial result that prompted the expanded use involved AIDS patients with a rare form of pneumonia, Pneumocystis carinii, which afflicts an estimated 50 percent to 60 percent of the 12,000 living AIDS patients in the United States.

In those tests, AZT patients suffered fewer deaths than a control group and, beginning six weeks after starting the drug, also had noticeably fewer bouts with other infections and cancers associated with AIDS, researchers said.

In related clinical trials, AZT also seemed to be of some benefit to patients with a less-severe condition called AIDS-related complex, or ARC. But those results were not dramatic enough to cause the FDA to approve wider use of AZT for patients in that category.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a fatal affliction in which the body's immune system becomes unable to resist disease. There is no known cure and no one is known to have recovered from AIDS.

Its chief victims have been homosexual men and intravenous drug users.

Although FDA approval for general prescription probably would be accompanied by specific recommendations on how it should be used, once any drug receives market approval it becomes the decision of individual physicians whether to prescribe it for a particular patient.

Christian Unity Still Elusive Although Goal Is Standard

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Working for Christian unity has become thoroughly institutionalized, a part of the organizational machinery of virtually every major church body and of liaison units among them.

But as the special week approaches, Jan. 18-25, when Christians around the world pray, as Jesus did, "that they may all be one . . . so that the world may believe," the goal is seen as still elusive and perhaps fading.

Some say the effort has sagged at a critical impasse.

"We are at an ecumenical crossroads," says the Rev. William T. Rusch, ecumenical director for the Lutheran Church in America.

"Today churches are being asked if they want to continue just to speak about unity or if they want to do something about the actual possibility."

The doctrinal dialogues continue among denominational theological teams, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox, and the "convergence" agreements proliferate, but without steps implementing them.

What's needed, says the veteran United Methodist ecumenist, the Rev. Albert C. Outler, is some sort of intercommunion "that could authenticate the oneness in Christ that so many feel is now so near and yet still so far."

"There is a tragic irony here. Having come so far, what seems still lacking is the will to venture those crucial steps that still lie beyond."

His comments, and those of a wide variety of others, came in the January issue of Ecumenical Trends, published by Catholicism's Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, of Garrison, N.Y.

It coordinates the week of prayers for unity together with the doctrinal commission of the Protestant-Orthodox World Council of Churches.

"Reconciled to God in Christ," is the theme for the week taken from Second Corinthians 5:17-20, to be used in thousands of church services, many of them on an ecumenical basis.

The observance is sponsored in this country by units of the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, and by the U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' conference.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE FIFTH SON!

DAN WAS THE FIFTH SON OF JACOB. HIS MOTHER WAS BILHAH, HANDMAID TO JACOB'S WIFE, RACHEL. JACOB'S OTHER WIFE, LEAH, HAD ALREADY BORNE FOUR SONS. TO JACOB AND RACHEL, DESPAIRING THAT SHE WOULD HAVE NO CHILDREN, SHE GAVE HER HANDMAID TO JACOB AS A CONCUBINE, IN THE HOPE THAT SHE COULD GIVE A SON TO JACOB IN THAT MANNER. AND, FORTUNATELY, BILHAH DID CONCEIVE AND RACHEL NAMED THE INFANT SON DAN; FOR, SHE SAID, GOD HATH JUDGED ME, AND HATH ALSO HEARD MY VOICE, AND HATH GIVEN ME A SON --THE BIBLE SAYS LITTLE ABOUT THIS SON, BUT THE DESTINY OF HIS DESCENDANTS WAS THUS PREDICTED BY JACOB WHEN HE GAVE HIS FINAL BLESSING TO HIS TWELVE SONS:

"DAN SHALL JUDGE HIS PEOPLE, AS ONE OF THE TRIBES OF ISRAEL, DAN SHALL BE A SERPENT IN THE WAY, AN ADDER IN THE PATH, THAT BITETH THE HORSE'S HEELS, SO THAT HIS RIDER FALLETH BACKWARD." (GEN. 49:16, 17)

MEANING THAT THE TRIBE OF DAN WOULD BATTLE AND STRIVE WITH THE FOES OF ISRAEL AS EARNESTLY AND CRAFTILY AS WOULD ANY OF THE OTHER TRIBES! THIS WAS PROVEN LATER WHEN THE TRIBE OF DAN, RESTRICTED BY THE AMORITES (JUDG. 1:34) AND CRAMPED FOR LIVING SPACE IN THE HILL COUNTRY, SENT SPIES OUT TO THE NORTH FOR A NEW LOCATION -- THEY FOUND WHAT THEY WERE LOOKING FOR IN A TOWN OF LAISH, OCCUPIED BY CANAANITES, THE DANITES SENT AN EXPEDITION, SEIZED THE TOWN, SLEW ALL ITS INHABITANTS, AND RENAMED THE TOWN AFTER THEIR ANCESTRAL FATHER, DAN! THE MIGHTY SAMSON WAS A MEMBER OF THE TRIBE OF DAN!

Donations Come In

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Evangelist Oral Roberts has raised $1.6 million for his medical scholarship fund in the 10 days since he said God would kill him if he did not meet a $4.5 million goal by March, a spokeswoman said.
 "This is his next project for God, and his life is on the line about it," Jan Dargatz said Thursday.

Roberts, 68, said on his weekly "Expect A Miracle" television program Jan. 4 and Jan. 11 that God had given him the March deadline to complete fund-raising for an $8 million scholarship program at the Oral Roberts University medical school.

 On the programs and in a letter mailed to 1 million followers this month, Roberts said he received the instructions from God in March.
 Roberts' message has raised a furor, with some television stations that carry his program balking at airing it or insisting on reviewing tapes. Ministry officials said Roberts' program would consist of taped highlights from previous shows for the next two weeks.

Children's Stress Stays When Parents Remarry

By PAUL BERG
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

If there's one thing worse for children's behavior than divorce, it's the parents getting back together again, a study suggests.

New Zealand psychologist D.M. Fergusson studied 1,000 children over six years in an effort to determine the effects of divorce on behavior. As expected, Psychology Today reports, children whose parents divorced had more behavior problems than children whose parents stayed together.

But when the custodial parent remarried, or when a divorced couple reconciled, behavior problems got even worse. The children in stable single-parent homes did better.

Behavior was judged by interviews and questionnaires from mothers and teachers.

Fergusson offers several explanations for why remarriage or reconciliation makes misbehavior problems more common. One is that the more changes in a child's living arrangement, the harder it is for the child to adjust.

But another is that the reconciliations and remarriages tended to break up after two to three years, "suggesting that these marriages were stormy while they lasted" and therefore difficult for the children, the magazine concludes.

times as often as babies given the standard bear, suggesting they actively sought out company.

— They got 50 percent more restful sleep.

The bear's breathing is simulated with a respirator generally used on small animals.

The study, by Dr. Evelyn Thoman, was reported in the journal Pediatrics.

Seventy percent of Americans believe that a limit should be placed on how much money a jury may award in a malpractice suit, according to a survey by the American Medical Association.

The survey suggests Americans are beginning to accept the view, put forth by the AMA, that the legal system is in need of reform.

The survey of 1,510 adults, reported in the organization's newspaper, found that:

— 58 percent thought juries usually awarded too much money.

— 66 percent favored a cap on pain and suffering awards.

— 76 percent think doctors have to pay too much for malpractice insurance.

In most areas, the survey showed a shift toward the AMA's point of view in the past year. It was a year in which many doctors, particularly gynecologist-obstetricians, limited their services to avoid procedures that often lead to suits, such as delivering babies.

AMA lawyer Kirk Johnson said some doctors have even prescribed lower-than-optimal doses of chemotherapy to cancer patients in order to limit uncomfortable side effects and keep patients happy in hopes of preventing suits.

"inappropriate" may be one way to help children realize that normal touching is good.

It is also important, she says, for adults to continue to embrace and cuddle youngsters to prevent a generation of "touch-deprived" children from ending up on the therapist's couch as young adults, the journal Human Sexuality reports.

"Twenty to 30 years from now," Dwyer says, "therapists are going to see (touch-deprived) female clients who internalized negative messages about their breasts and genitals while they were young children taking sex-abuse-prevention courses."

Children who have epileptic seizures often score lower on intelligence tests than other children — 10 points on the average — a fact long attributed to epilepsy-caused changes in the brain. But a new study, taking other factors into consideration, concludes that seizures have no effect on intelligence, according to the Harvard Mental Health Letter. Once social class and family background are considered — two factors known to affect performance on intelligence tests — the 10-point IQ difference disappears. ... The nation's arteries breathed a sigh of relief Monday as the peak cholesterol period came to an end. For reasons not altogether clear, levels are about 3 percent above average for men between Dec. 15 and Jan. 12, Science News reports. They are lowest in June. The pattern is less clear for women. Holiday eating and lack of activity explains part of the cycle, the experts say, but not all of it. ...

This Reader Hates Being Hounded By Charities

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am not rich, neither am I poor. I've always contributed to the charities I feel are deserving, and nobody has to remind me to make my annual contribution, but things have now gotten out of hand.

Lately I have been deluged with what appear to be "bills" from numerous well-known organizations, pleading that they are desperately in need of funds. Yesterday, I received 16 requests from charities — yes, 16 — with urgent "please-help-us-now" letters, of which 12 were third and fourth requests! I felt as though I was being billed for a debt that was long overdue.

I am aware that charities need funding, but I am so annoyed at this point, I am ready to toss all of these letters into the wastepaper basket without even opening the envelopes — even though some may contain a 22-cent postage stamp that could be used for another purpose.

Abby, please get this message across. These people need to know how turned off some of us get when we are ... DUNNED TO DEATH.

DEAR DUNNED: I couldn't agree with you more. But please don't quit giving to the charities of your choice because of those who dun you to death with high-pressure tactics.

DEAR ABBY: My 58-year-old husband has a habit of sitting sideways at the table when we are eating. He always has turned his chair sideways, and now the children, ages 27, 22 and 19, are doing exactly the same thing. This is especially annoying when we have company for dinner.

Would it be wrong to tell my family to please sit the proper way, or leave the table? — E.A.K.

DEAR E.A.K.: Yes, it would be wrong. However, you could tell them before your guests arrive to please sit properly at the dinner table. And by the way, if your husband has always sat that way, your chances of breaking that irritating habit are slim. But you could work on the 19-year-old.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, so family means a lot to me. My sister, whom I'll call Joan, is married. Hers is not a happy marriage, but she has tried hard to make it work. Joan asked me to receive mail for her at my address, and I agreed. She's corresponding with "Jim," a former boyfriend. He is also married, and they see each other occasionally and maintain contact by mail. When I see how happy Joan is when she gets a letter from Jim, it does my heart good because she gets so little happiness from her husband.

Well, the inevitable happened. Her husband found one of those letters Joan had carelessly left in the bathroom. Although it was addressed to me, he read it and became very angry. He confronted Joan, they talked it out and she promised to end all contact with Jim. He forgave her, but he refuses to speak to me or have me in his house. He hangs up on me when I call, and I am never included in anything they do together.

Joan tried to reason with him, but he is very stubborn. She is forgiven. Meanwhile I am being punished.

What advice have you for me? — OUT IN THE COLD IN WISCONSIN

DEAR OUT: Try to put it out of your mind. You can't change anyone but yourself. Unfair? Yes. But you are paying dearly for having been a party to a sneaky business in the first place. I hope your sad story will prevent someone else from making that mistake.

DEAR ABBY: I was raised by adoptive parents, born in the 1890s with old-fashioned ideas. Sex was a dirty word in our household, and as a result, at the age of 21 I was arrested on a morals charge. I spent three or four days in jail, then was put on six months probation and the charge was filed with the FBI. I have not been in any trouble since, but this happened 38 years ago in the state of Ohio. Don't you think that after 38 years this charge should be taken off the FBI records? I have lost a good many jobs — good jobs — over it, and I think that I have been punished enough because of this one mistake. I have been happily married for 31 years and am desperately hoping you can help me accomplish this. — DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Under the Freedom of Information Act, you are entitled to know if your "morals charge" record is still on file with the FBI. Send a notarized letter listing your full name, date and place of birth, and current address to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover Building, Washington, D.C. 20535. Mark on the envelope: Attention: F.O.I.A. You also must include a photocopy of your driver's license or some other form of current identification. You will be advised of your "record," if it is still in existence.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DOWN IN THE DUMPS IN MONTGOMERY, ALA.: Nobody said it better than Dale Carnegie: "The tendency to seldom think of what we have but always of what we lack is the greatest tragedy on earth. Count your blessings — not your troubles!"

Census Study Says There's Life After 30

By SPENCER RICH
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

College-educated women still single in their thirties can choose their silver pattern after all: According to a new Census Bureau study, their prospects for getting married are three to seven times better than portrayed last year in a widely discussed report by three Ivy League scholars.

The 1986 report, by Yale sociologists Neil G. Bennett and Patricia H. Craig and Harvard economist David E. Bloom, caused widespread consternation by suggesting that marriage delayed for college and a career might end up as marriage permanently forgone.

In a gloomy assessment, the 1986 report said white college-educated women born in the mid-'50s and still single at 30 had only a 20 percent chance of marrying. It said the same women who were still single at 35 had only a 5 percent chance, and at 40, only a 1.3 percent chance. This prompted Newsweek magazine, in a June 2 cover story, to declare that "40-year-olds are more likely to be killed by a terrorist" than to marry.

Not so, says Census Bureau demographer Jeanne Moorman in a study released Tuesday.

Moorman's study concluded that of all college-educated women of any race who were 30 years old in 1985 and never had married, between 58 and 66 percent would do so by the time they reached 65 — triple the proportion estimated in the earlier study. Of all such women who were 35 in 1985, Moorman estimated, between 32 and 41 percent would marry by age 65, and of those who were 40, 17 to 23 percent would marry eventually. Even at 45, about a tenth of the never-married college women still were likely to marry by age 65.

Moorman said her study and that of the Yale-Harvard scholars were in flat disagreement due to differing statistical assumptions about recent marriage rates and what happens when a woman delays marriage to attend college. She said the average age of marriage for college graduates is about 23 or 24, while the average age for high school graduates is about 20.

Moorman's figures show that a much larger percentage of high school graduates have married by the time they are 25 or 30 than is the case for college graduates.

For example, among high school graduates who were 25 in 1985, three-quarters had already married, while the figure for college graduates was just under half. At 35, 93 percent of high school graduates had married, but only 87 percent of college graduates. At 40, the figures were 96 percent versus 93 percent.

"The college-educated delay longer" in getting married, Moorman said, but she found that at ages 25 and 30, the prospects for marriage among college-educated women who were still single was actually greater than among high-school educated women, allowing the total percent who eventually married to begin catching up.

She said a reason for that might be that the proportionately larger remaining pool of unmarriages among the college-educated might include more who only deferred marriage to complete school and start a career.

On the other hand, she said, the smaller remaining pool of unmarriages among high school graduates probably would include more who didn't marry early because of illness, religious vocation, choice or lack of opportunity.

Moorman's study said that historically there has been a "strong negative relation" between a high level of education for a woman and the likelihood she would ever marry, but that with more women going to college and other changes, this was decreasing and might even be reversed. For example, the study found that 93 percent of college-educated women born in 1940 would probably eventually marry compared with 97 percent of high school graduates born in 1940. However, among women born in 1960, up to 94 percent of the college-educated would eventually marry but only 92 percent of the high school graduates.

Yale sociologist Bennett, in a telephone interview, remained unimpressed with the Moorman study. "We stand by our conclusions," he said. "We have great faith in them. This Census study is based on assumptions that we do not consider legitimate."

"The Census study assumes that the proportion of women in any given age group who will marry in a given year will be the same for the next 50 years as it was in 1978. If that were so, the same method applied to 1983 marriage rates would yield the same result as their study. However, we analyzed these assumptions using 1983 rates and found that 13 percent of the college-educated women who were age 15 in 1978 would ultimately never marry, whereas the Census study got a rate of only 4 percent. This severely undermines the credibility of their method."

Bennett said that instead of assuming that marriage rates would remain constant well into the future, as the Census did, his study actually followed women born in the mid-1950s through their lives since then and found that the proportions who were marrying were decreasing.

Couple Marries In Four Oaks

FOUR OAKS — Diana Dee Elrod and Alan Scot Langston were united in marriage Jan. 3 at 5 p.m. in Barbour's Chapel Church. The Rev. Burke Holland of Raleigh conducted the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore her mother's dress of chantilly lace over taffeta. The gown was styled with a basque bodice, sabrina neckline, long sleeves which tapered at the hands and bouffant skirt with hand-rolled ruffles. It had an overlay of lace with scalloped hand-sewn pearls. Her tiered fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a band of sequined pearls accented with pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white rosebuds, cattleya orchids, baby's breath, stephanotis and ivy.

After the ceremony the bride's parents gave a reception in the fellowship hall. Ruth Griffin served cake. Patricia Barbour and Georgia Strickland poured punch. Others assisting were Joyce Barefoot, Doris Ann Cannady, Doris Hill and Regina Burch.

The wedding was directed by Georgia Opal Carver of Portland, Ore., aunt of the bride. Programs and rice bags were distributed by Carla Barbour and Lisa Strickland, cousins of the bride.

The couple will live in Portsmouth, Va., after a wedding trip to Paris.

The bride graduated from East Carolina University School of Nursing and was an emergency room nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from ECU in the School of Business. He is employed by P.Y.A. Monarch Foods of Portsmouth.

An after-rehearsal dinner and dance was held at the Johnston County Country Club and a bridal buffet luncheon was held at the Smithfield Holiday Inn. A breakfast shower and several miscellaneous showers were given for the couple prior to the wedding.

Public Backs Plan

at-large members in the election plan, undermining the one-person, one-vote principle," Mrs. Shank said.

Spokesperson Ernest Brown of the Pitt County Concerned Citizens for Justice said the group supports the six-district system "because it's the only system that can provide a fair opportunity for black representation consistent with the black population of Pitt County."

He added, "At-large elections are unfair to any and all minority groups. If more than six school board members are desired, then we can elect two from each district."

"The addition of even one at-large member to any of the proposed systems will dilute the voting power of the minority members, a power we must secure and not weaken," said Greenville resident Mary Alsentzer.

Other groups supporting the six-district plan include the NAACP, Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the advisory council of the Pitt County Council on Aging and the Farmville Senior Citizens Council.

Speakers also commented that the board should have held public hearings earlier in the process of election planning, should have provided the public with maps and information at an earlier date and should have held public hearings throughout the county.

The Board of Education will meet Jan. 29 at 5 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Pitt County Office Building to discuss the election plans.

Board members must decide whether the board's future members are elected from single-member districts or a combination of single-member and at-large members, Crowell said. There is no limit on the number of districts, the size of the board or the length of the term.

Crowell said the election method must comply with the one-person, one-vote legal requirement imposed by the U.S. Supreme Court and with Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, which calls for minority representation. The districts must be roughly equal in size, with a deviation of 10 percent or less according to the 1980 census. The election plan must provide the same opportunity to elect blacks to the board as are found on the interim appointed board, Crowell said. Four blacks and 11 whites are on the 15-member board.

Valvano Takes No Chances

By TOM FOREMAN Jr. AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Two years ago, North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano ignored Wake Forest's Tyrone Bogues, and the 5-foot-3 guard scored 20 points in a 91-64 victory over the Wolfpack. This time, Valvano didn't take any chances.

Bogues scored 13 points, but committed a career-high nine turnovers as the Demon Deacons dropped a 75-67 decision to the Wolfpack Thursday. Valvano said he learned his lesson and used the quickness on his team to neutralize Bogues. In that game two years ago, he had instructed his team to concentrate on the four other players and make Bogues beat them.

"We have two kids who are pretty quick themselves in Kenny Drummond and Kelsey Weems," Valvano said. "So our game plan was, very much, to work and make Muggsy work very, very hard to get his points. The kids did a good job."

Bogues used his quickness to penetrate the lane, but the Wolfpack defense stymied him and either intercepted his passes or forced him to take shots that were blocked.

The nine turnovers pleased Valvano.

"There's some solace in that because he's buried us now for four years," Valvano quipped.

Bennie Bolton did most of the offensive damage for the Wolfpack, scoring 14 points in the first half and finishing with 18. But it was cold Wake Forest shooting that allowed the Wolfpack to get in position for a first-half runaway.

The Demon Deacons hit 11 of their first 16 shots, the last a Bogues jumper at the 9:11 mark that tied the score at 22. From there, Wake Forest hit three of its next 15 attempts and N.C. State was in charge.

Mike Gioni hit a baseline jumper at 8:55 and Bolton completed a three-point play at 7:59 to extend N.C. State's lead to 27-22. The Wolfpack stretched the lead to 13 on three occasions, including the halftime score of 42-29.

N.C. State's lead grew to 57-38 after Kenny Drummond scored on a spinning move to the basket with 12:31 left. Wake Forest then mounted its charge, scoring seven straight points and outscoring the Wolfpack 12-4 in the next five minutes. Cal Boyd later hit consecutive three-point jumpers from the right corner to cut the gap to 73-67 but Wake Forest ran out of time to complete its rally.

Valvano said there might not have been a rally if the Wolfpack had stuck with his strategy.

"With a double-digit lead, we wanted to use the clock and take good shots, but we didn't do that," Valvano said. "We allowed Muggsy to come from behind and get three steals from us."

The Demon Deacons fell short, however, and Coach Bob Staak blamed it on an overall lack of scoring.

"I thought we lost our composure at times out there tonight, and really didn't generate enough offensively to win," Staak said. "We got behind, but I thought we fought back very well."

N.C. State climbed to 11-3, 3-1 in the ACC. Wake Forest dropped its 20th straight conference game and fell to 8-5 and 0-3.

Charles Shackelford scored 16 points, Drummond had 13 and Vinny Del Negro had 11 for the Wolfpack.

Bogues, Boyd and freshman Sam Ivy each had 13 points for the Demon Deacons.

Pirates Look To Stretch Winning Streak

East Carolina's Pirates, winners in their last three games, including two in the Colonial Athletic Association, put that record on the line against a team that has been a nemesis to them since joining the CAA.

UNC-Wilmington will invade Minges Coliseum on Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. basketball contest, as the Pirates try to snap a three-game losing streak against the Seahawks. All three of those games were during last season — two in the regular schedule and the other in the first round of the CAA tournament.

Overall the Pirates lead the series between the two schools, 15-9, including a 9-4 record in Minges Coliseum.

Meanwhile, East Carolina's Lady Pirates will be seeking to win their fourth CAA outing in as many games when they travel to Wilmington

Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. facing the Lady Seahawks.

The Pirates men come into the game with a 9-5 overall record and a 2-2 CAA mark. UNC-Wilmington brings in a 7-6 record. They are 3-1 in Colonial competition.

Wilmington's record, however, is deceptive. They lost three games by a total of three points — one of them to nationally ranked Indiana in the first round of the Indiana Classic, in which the Pirates also participated in, finishing second. The Seahawks lost the second round game to Southern Illinois on a three-point shot at the buzzer by a point the following night.

The Seahawks are led by all-conference center Brian Rowsom, a 6-9 senior. He is averaging 21.6 points a game and also pulling down 12 rebounds a game. Rowsom scored 35 points against Indiana in the Indiana

Classic, setting a new tournament record. East Carolina's Marcell Henry tied that record in the second game of the night with 35 against Southern Illinois. Then, in the consolation game against the Salukis, Rowsom set another record, hitting 36 in a losing effort.

Rowsom, despite the fact that his team didn't win a game in the tournament, was named as the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

In the three games with the Pirates last season, Rowsom scored 71 points and pulled in 34 rebounds.

The Seahawks appear to be on a roll now also, having won four in a row since bowing to Navy in their first CAA game of the year, 72-58. The four wins include conference wins over American, William & Mary and Richmond, and a non-conference victory over Coastal Carolina.

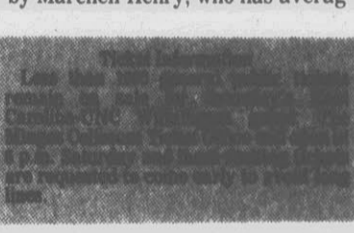

The Seahawks also have one other player in double figures. Guard Sandy Anderson, a 6-2 senior, is hitting 10.7 points per game. His backcourt mate is 6-0 senior Rob Wagner, averaging 3.5 points per game.

In the front court with Rowsom are 6-6 sophomore Greg Bender, hitting 8.8 points and pulling 5.6 rebounds, and 6-5 senior Charles Cherry with a 1.8 scoring average.

"Wilmington will pose a big challenge for us," Coach Charlie

Harrison said. "They are playing much better basketball, and they're playing with confidence. Brian Rowsom is an excellent center, who gave us a lot of trouble last season, but they are now a one-man team."

East Carolina continues to be led by Marcell Henry, who has averaged 20.6 points a game and 5.8 rebounds. Henry scored 62 points in three games this past week, including 23 against Longwood, 27 against Richmond and 12 over William & Mary. That swing also saw him hit 62 percent from the field.

"Marcell had an excellent week," Harrison said, "as did (reserve center) Manuel Jones. We played our best basketball of the week against Richmond, and we needed to because they were coming in sky-high from a win at Navy. We had to struggle offensively against William & Mary, but our defense was very aggressive."

That aggressiveness, plus a renewed offensive punch will be needed against the Seahawks, Harrison said.

Other Pirate starters are scheduled to be Blue Edwards at the other forward spot, averaging 15.9 ppg; Leon Bass at center, averaging 10.6 ppg and 5.9 rebounds; Howard Brown at guard, 7.8 ppg; and Keith Sledge at guard, hitting 8.0 ppg.

The game will close out the current home stand for the Pirates. They take to the road on Tuesday for a game at Central Connecticut, then resume CAA action next Saturday at George Mason.

East Carolina's women will be trying to keep at least a share of the Colonial lead with a win over the Lady Seahawks.

Wilmington brings a 9-2 record into the game, but is only 1-2 against Colonial opposition.

Oddly enough, all five starters for the Lady Seahawks are scoring in double figures. They are led by 6-0 junior center Elizabeth Bell with a 22.3 average. She also is pulling in 7.1 rebounds per game.

Wanda Carroll, a 5-5 senior guard, is second on the team in scoring at 19.0 ppg, followed by 5-8 junior forward Sharon McDowell, hitting 13.7. McDowell is the team's leading rebounder with an 8.4 average.

Rounding out the starters are 5-10 junior forward Sissy Morse, hitting 13.1, and 5-5 sophomore guard Johnnie Smith, scoring 11.4 points a game.

The Lady Pirates bring in a 10-4 record following their 82-71 loss to N.C. State's Lady Wolfpack Thursday night.

Following the Saturday night contest, the Lady Pirates travel on to UNC-Charlotte on Monday to face the Lady Niners in a 7:30 p.m. game. They return home on Jan. 24 against George Mason.

AP Athlete Of The Year

Bird Named AP Athlete Of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird, the first basketball player ever to be named The Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year, says he's living a dream with the Boston Celtics.

"I'll tell you, I can't vision myself playing for somebody else," Bird said Thursday. "Looking back, it's just been a dream."

"This is my eighth year and it's gone so fast I'm gonna be out of here shortly."

Bird, who turned 30 last month, said he's still having fun as an NBA super star and he's very happy with his $2 million-a-year contract which has three years remaining plus an option year.

"I'm very happy with what the Celtics give me," he said. "I'll never go in and ask for more money. The only thing I concentrate on is winning a championship."

Then, in apparent reference to reports that slugger Jim Rice of the Red Sox was the highest paid Boston athlete, also with a reported $2 million last year, Bird said: "Why I'm not even the highest paid athlete in Boston. But I don't worry about that."

Bird, who won the NBA's most valuable player award for the third consecutive year in 1986, edged the American League MVP Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox for the AP Athlete of the Year honor.

Bird was named on 60 of the 95 ballots cast by a nationwide group of sports writers and sportscasters.

Clemens, who had a 24-4 record in pitching the Red Sox to the American League pennant, was named on 63 ballots, but Bird had 30 first-place votes and 214 points based on five points for first, three for second and one for third. Clemens had 19 first-place votes and 189 points, while Mike Tyson, 20, who became the youngest heavyweight boxing champion in history, had 22 firsts and 186 points.

Tour de France cyclist race winner Gred LeMond, had nine first place votes; pro golfer Greg Norman had eight; and National League MVP Mike Schmidt seven. Norman had 72 points, LeMond 64 and Schmidt 39.

Other top finishers were tennis star Ivan Lendl (35 points); Argentine soccer player Diego Maradona (32);

Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees (29); Heisman Trophy winner Vinny Testaverde (28); and NHL scoring leader Wayne Gretzky (28).

Bird is the fourth Boston athlete to win the Male Athlete of the Year. The others were members of the Red Sox — Ted Williams in 1957, Carl Yastrzemski in 1967, and Fred Lynn in 1975.

Donahue Reportedly Heading To Atlanta

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA football Coach Terry Donahue will accept a five-year offer to coach the NFL's Atlanta Falcons for $2.5 million, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported today.

The Bruins' most successful coach — 88-34-7 in his 11 years in the job — had told Falcons officials he would let them know his decision today.

He would replace Atlanta's Dan Henning, who did not post a winning record in any of his four seasons.

The newspaper, quoting unidentified sources close to UCLA, said the 42-year-old Donahue decided Thursday he would take the Falcons job. It said attempts to contact Donahue at home Thursday were unsuccessful.

The sources named Oregon Coach Rich Brooks, a former UCLA assistant and a close friend of Donahue, as the leading candidate to replace him. Brooks' 10 years of leading the Pacific-10 Ducks produced a record of 40-66-4, with a best single-season record of 6-3-2.

Donahue played defensive lineman for UCLA from 1965-66 and was an assistant coach at Kansas for four years. He returned to UCLA as an assistant in 1971 and was named head coach five years later.

State Rolls By Lady Pirates

From Staff and wire reports RALEIGH — Junior forward Annemarie Treadway scored a career-high 30 points, including 20 in the second half, to lead No. 14 North Carolina State to a 82-71 women's college basketball victory over East Carolina Thursday night.

A 14-2 run helped the Wolfpack overcome an early deficit and take an 18-10 lead with 12:17 left in the first half. That lead expanded to 44-33 at halftime.

In the second half, East Carolina could get no closer than nine points as Treadway and senior center Trena Trice enabled the Wolfpack to keep a comfortable lead. Trice finished with 23 points on 10 of 12 shooting from the field. The Wolfpack improved its record to 12-3.

The Pirates, 10-4, were led by Jody Rodriguez' 19 points. Delphine Mabry also added 13 and Monique Pompili had 17.

"Our team showed a lot of poise in the second half to cut in to the State lead," said ECU coach Emily Manwaring. "Sarah Gray did an excellent job in the second half defending the post while our two junior centers did not come to play."

Jody Rodriguez provided the scoring spark we needed. Pompili was outstanding on the boards. We put ourselves into a situation of having to foul as we ran out of time. We weren't too smart in fouling State's leading free throw shooter (Treadway)."

Have A Seat

Giants Have Recurring Images

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The images are fairly recent and all involve wide receivers.

Jerry Rice of the San Francisco 49ers breaking into the open after catching a Joe Montana pass and fumbling the ball at the New York 25 when he was headed for an apparent touchdown early in the NFC semifinal.

Gary Clark of the Washington Redskins running past New York cornerback Elvis Patterson twice in the NFC title game and both times dropping Jay Schroeder passes.

No scores. Just potential big plays, the kind John Elway and the Denver Broncos have been known to make, and could make in the Super Bowl on Jan. 25.

It all points to the alleged glaring weakness in the vaunted New York defense, its secondary. It's the one area almost every Giants opponent has made the point of attack.

"Look at our defense," safety Kenny Hill said. "Our line is composed of three guys who are basically All Pros. Our linebacker corps is called the best in the game of football with two All Pros, one guy who should be All Pro and another guy who is very good."

"When compared to these two groups, it's easy to see why we're the supposed weak link."

Statistically, there is no question the defensive backs don't stack up against the Giants front seven.

The Big 7 of Leonard Marshall, Jim Burt, George Martin on the front and Lawrence Taylor, Harry Carson, Gary Reasons and Carl Banks behind are the best run defense in the NFL, limiting opponents to 80.3 yards per game. In the past 24 games, no leading rusher on any opponent has been able to rush for 100 yards.

This season, the opposition ran 350 times against New York. Meanwhile, opposing quarterbacks put the ball in the air 587 times against Hill, Patterson, Perry Williams, Terry Kinard, Herb Welch, Mark Collins, Greg Lasker and Tom Flynn, averaging 217.1 yards per game, the 19th worst figure in the NFL.

"We have given up some yards," Patterson said. "We also just go out and win every week too. The bottom line is that as long as a team doesn't get into the end zone we've done our job. If a receiver drops a ball, it's probably because we made some play before that one to cause it."

On Super Sunday, Williams, Patterson, Hill and Welch will be the players on the hot spot. Kinard would have been in there, but he tore up his knee in early December and was replaced by Welch, the 326th player taken in the 1985 draft.

"Sometimes we need to take some of the blame," Welch said. "But we're doing a good job now. Everytime a quarterback gets sacked isn't just because the line got to him. Sometimes it's because he had to hold the ball because no one was open."

Kinard, who will miss the Super Bowl because of his injury, said defending against the pass is more than a one-on-one battle between receiver and back.

"You can be the greatest athlete in the world, but if they don't put pressure on the quarterback you're going to be beat," he said. "I think as a unit our secondary is maturing. They young guys have gotten some experience with the nickel and we've done a job of adjusting."

The Giants will have to do a lot of adjusting with Elway.

"You can't cover a guy all day," Welch said. "If we allow him (Elway) the time, he's going to hit somebody."

Elway hit 27 of 49 passes against New York on Nov. 23 for 336 yards. He was intercepted twice. The Broncos also lost 19-16.

Snow Sends Broncos Inside

DENVER (AP) — While a blizzard raged outside, the Denver Broncos prepared for the Super Bowl in their climate-controlled, bubble-topped indoor practice field.

Following their 23-20 AFC championship victory over Cleveland, the Broncos had Tuesday and Wednesday off. When they returned on Thursday, they were greeted by 10 inches of fresh snow, forcing the team under cover.

Coach Dan Reeves called the light but spirited workout "a good practice."

Three players who nursed minor injuries were held out of Thursday's one-hour practice in pads.

Two starters — linebacker Karl Mecklenburg and offensive guard Mark Cooper — and backup offensive lineman Daniel Rensberg did not participate. Mecklenburg has a slightly hyperextended knee, Cooper aggravated a foot injury, and Rensberg has a twisted ankle.

"I just felt like they needed more rest," Reeves said in explaining his decision to excuse the trio from the workout. "I feel sure they'll be ready to go by Tuesday" when the Broncos begin full-scale workouts in California for their game with the New York Giants.

The Broncos were scheduled to hold additional light workouts today and Saturday. They'll have Sunday off, and will fly to California on Monday.

While the Giants' primary image is one of a marauding defense, the Broncos aren't taking the New York offense lightly either.

Reminded that Giants' running back Joe Morris is supposed to be a more effective runner on artificial turf than on grass (the Super Bowl surface), Reeves demurred.

"I read some statistic that Morris averages 90-some yards on artificial turf and 70 yards on grass," he said. "That's not much of a difference."

He's a great runner on anything. He has great vision and the ability to make people miss him."

Mecklenburg noted that Morris, while not as elusive as Seattle's Curt Warner, "has explosiveness. He's more of a power-type runner. Plus, his size (5-foot-7, 195 pounds) is a problem because he's hard to find. He can hide behind an offensive lineman, and before you see him he's past you."

Morris gained the bulk of his 1,516 rushing yards in the regular season on artificial turf — the surface at Giants Stadium and at most of the other stadiums in the NFC East. He gained 110 yards on grass against the Raiders, but 52 of those yards came on one play. He also was held to 14 yards on 13 carries on grass at San Francisco.

"All I know is, in the big games, the ones that mean a lot, he has run awful well," Reeves said.

"The Giants offense can score some points," Reeves said. "I thought Phil Simms threw well against us when we played earlier in the year (a 19-16 Giants victory in the Meadowlands). Against San Francisco in the playoffs, I don't think I've seen anyone throw more good passes than he did. He was under pressure and he knew he was going to get hit, but he'd stand in and deliver a perfect pass."

"Their offensive line is solid, and (Mark) Bavaro is probably the best tight end in football right now. When we played them before, they were hurting at wide receiver, but they've got (Lionel) Manuel back, and he's their most dangerous receiver."

Denver defensive coordinator Joe Collier compares the Giants to the Los Angeles Raiders, a divisional opponent the Broncos face twice each season.

"The Giants are not into a lot of movement and shifting," Collier said. "They just line up and say, 'Here we come.' Their idea is to out-block you, to out-execute you. If they do, they're a difficult team to stop."

That philosophy, Collier said, makes the Giants a "relatively easy team to prepare for from a mental standpoint, but not from a physical standpoint."

Screaming For Warm Weather

Denver Bronco linebacker Ricky Hunley screams for the "warmth of Arizona" as he steps into the snow and cold from the lockerroom at Broncos Headquarters prior to the start of Thursday's practice. Weathering It Out

Andy Bean, of Bradenton, Florida, reacts to missing a birdie putt Thursday on the 18th hole at Indian Wells Country Club during the 28th Annual Bob Hope Chrysler Classic golf tournament. Despite rain and cold winds, Bean finished the day in first place with 13-under par. (AP Laserphoto)

Edwards Solves Weather Dilemma

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — David Edwards found himself in a dilemma.

"To stay warm, you have to wear so many clothes you can't play golf. To play golf, you have to take off so many clothes, you can't stay warm."

"You just try to strike a happy medium," Edwards said.

And he did a good job of it — for 17 holes — in the second round of the $900,000 Bob Hope Classic.

But on the 18th, he hooked a 3-iron through a cold, drizzling rain and into a pond. It produced a double bogey that provided Andy Bean with a three-shot lead Thursday.

Bean didn't have the same problem. He, too, faced unusually chilly temperatures, a rare desert rain and occasionally gusty winds. But he didn't have to worry about overdressing.

"You don't expect this kind of thing here. I didn't bring these kind of clothes. I didn't have enough to put on. I was freezing," Bean said after a 4-under-par 68 enabled him to get through 36 holes in 131, 13 under par.

But, facing a forecast of colder temperatures and rain today, he took steps to correct the situation. Immediately after signing his scorecard at Indian Wells, Bean rushed into the pro shop and bought some heavy corduroy trousers for his third round at the difficult and controversial PGA West course.

"I feel sorry for him," Edwards said, tongue in cheek.

Bean plays PGA West today. The course carries a U.S.G.A. rating of 77.1, the highest in the country. It is generally considered to be 5-6 shots more difficult than the other three courses used in this five-day, 90-hole tournament.

And Edwards had it even par through 17 holes, before he slipped up on the 18th.

"I'm still in good shape. And Andy still has to play it," Edwards said after completing two rounds in 135. So do all the other leaders. Of the first 17 names on the leaderboard, only Edwards has had a round on PGA West.

Bernhard Langer of West Germany had the best round of the day, a 66 in temperatures that ranged from the low 30s in the early morning to high of about 50. That put him alone in second at 134 in the chase for a $162,000 first prize. Like Bean, he played his second round at Indian Wells and faced PGA West today.

Willie Wood and Ed Fiori were tied with Edwards at 135, nine under par. Fiori had a second round 68 at Tamarisk, Wood a 69 at Indian Wells.

PGA champion Bob Tway and Fuzzy Zoeller moved into contention at 136. Both played at Tamarisk, with Tway shooting 69 and Zoeller 70.

They were tied with 49-year-old veteran Al Geiberger, Andrew Magee and Mark Calcavecchia. Calcavecchia closed up with a 67, Magee had 68 and Geiberger 69, all at Indian Wells.

U.S. Open title-holder Ray Floyd was six shots back at 137 after a 68 at Tamarisk.

Defense Keys Lakers Victory

By The Associated Press
James Worthy and Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored 31 points apiece, but Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley talked about the Lakers' defense.

"The key to our game was defense," Riley said after the Lakers defeated the Golden State Warriors 129-109. "The double figures in blocked shots definitely played an important part."
The Lakers took a 106-95 lead in the fourth quarter after Byron Scott, who finished with 26 points, scored the Lakers' first seven points in a 9-2 run. And although the Warriors scored the next six points to cut the margin to 106-101 with 8:03 left in the game, Golden State could get no closer.

"We just had to go back to basics like we did in the first quarter," Scott said. "We had to pressure them, make them take shots they didn't want to take, and run."

The Lakers' defense blocked 13 shots, forced 19 turnovers and pulled down 36 of a possible 49 defensive rebounds.

In other NBA action Thursday, it was Atlanta 130, Milwaukee 91; Indiana 113, Washington 105; Houston 107, Chicago 96; Phoenix 123, Utah 107; and Sacramento 120, Portland 118.

Terry Teagle hit a 20-footer from the right of the key with 36 seconds left in the third period put the Warriors ahead for the first and only time in the game, 93-92. But Kurt Rambis' three-point play and Johnson's two free throws gave the Lakers a 97-93 lead after three quarters.

Then, when the Warriors pulled within five points late in the game, the Lakers went on a tear, Johnson feeding Worthy with a behind-the-head pass for a slam dunk to climax the run that gave the Lakers a 115-101 lead.

"It just didn't seem like anyone was serious," Warriors Coach George Karl said of his starters, who started slowly and were quickly removed. It was the bench, led by Teagle, Rod Higgins and Greg Ballard, that kept Golden State in the contest.

"Our bench has been a very good part of our team and will have to continue to be," Karl said. "They have been giving us more of a defensive lift than an offensive one."

Eric "Sleepy" Floyd led Golden State with 21 points, while Teagle added 16.

Kings 120, Trail Blazers 118
Forward Eddie Johnson hit a three-point jumper from the right corner with three seconds left to boost Sacramento over visiting Portland. Seven seconds earlier, Johnson hit a 15-foot jump shot from the top of the key to give Sacramento a 117-116 lead.

Portland regained the lead with nine seconds remaining when guard Terry Porter sank a pair of free throws.

The victory snapped a four-game Sacramento losing streak. The Kings have lost 18 of their last 23 games.

Forward Otis Thorpe and guard Reggie Theus led Sacramento with 29 points apiece. Portland forward Kiki Vandeweghe paced the Trail Blazers with 37.

Hawks 130, Bucks 91
Glenn Rivers sank a 76-foot shot at the halftime buzzer as everything worked for Atlanta in its victory over Milwaukee.

Dominique Wilkins scored 32 points to lead the Hawks as Milwaukee never threatened after a 9-1 Atlanta run snapped a 4-4 tie.

The Hawks ran off streaks of six and seven points in the third quarter, building a 94-69 lead late in the period.

Kevin Willis finished with 28 points and Mike McGee added 23, while Rivers had 18 assists — 13 in the first half.

"Tonight, everything just went right for us," Rivers said. "We knew they were going to make us pass the ball. Usually when a team does that it gives us problems, but we worked on it today. Tonight I didn't have to look for the ball. I could distribute the ball all game long."

Ricky Pierce scored 19 points and Jerry Reynolds had 15 for the Bucks, who lost for the fourth time in five games.

Pacers 113, Bulls 105
Rookie Chuck Person scored 29 points, reaching double figures for the 14th consecutive game, as Indiana stopped Washington in Indianapolis.

The victory snapped the Pacers' three-game losing streak and a four-game winning streak by the Bulls.

Leading 88-78 after three quarters, the Pacers outscored Washington 8-2 to start the final period and were never seriously challenged again.

Moses Malone was used only sparingly in the second half, scoring just 13 points in 23 minutes of action for the Bulls, who also played much of the second half without Jeff Malone. He left the game with a back problem.

Rockets 107, Bulls 96
In Chicago, Akeem Olatunju hit eight points in the final 4:31, and Robert Reid scored 26 points to lead Houston over the Bulls.

It was the Rockets' fourth straight victory, even though only eight players saw action for Houston following the suspensions of Lewis Lloyd and Mitchell Wiggins for drug use. The loss ended the Bulls' four-game winning streak.

Michael Jordan scored 43 points for Chicago.

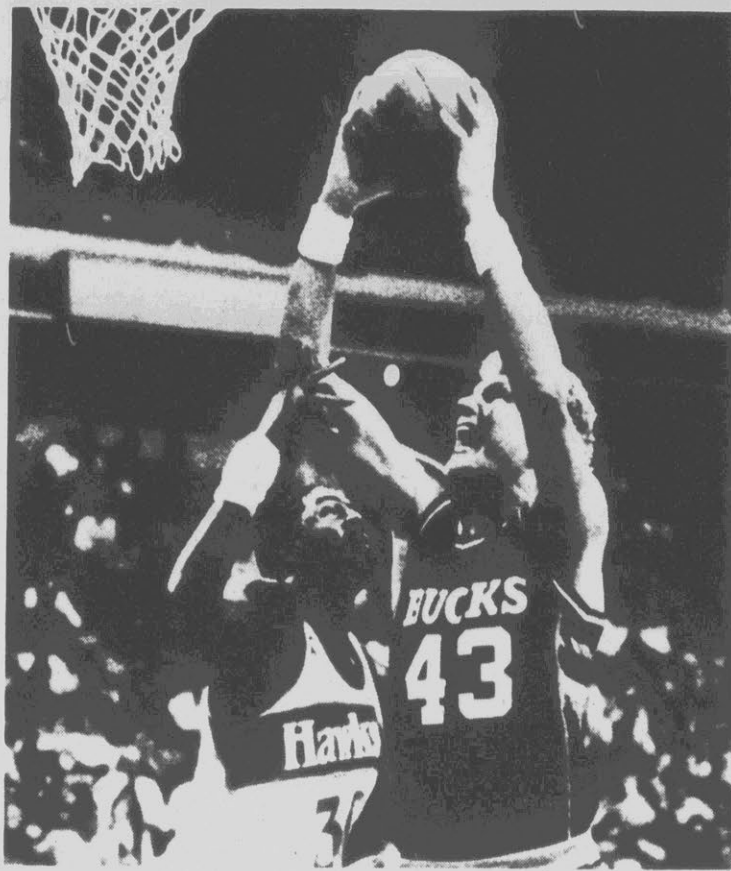

Suns 123, Jazz 107
Shifted to forward to replace the injured Larry Nance, Walter Davis scored a career-high 45 points as the Suns snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating visiting Utah.

Davis, a five-time All-Star, scored eight of his 10 second-period points in the final 48 seconds to erase a 54-53 deficit and give Phoenix a 61-55 halftime lead.

Davis had 10 more points in the third period and Alvan Adams added seven to put the Suns up 96-85 entering the final quarter.

Utah never got closer than nine from there, losing its third straight game.

Karl Malone paced the Utah with 27 points.

New Zealand Back In Cup Race

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — New Zealand climbed back into the America's Cup challenger finals today, taking advantage of a critical gear failure aboard Stars & Stripes to win by 38 seconds and cut the U.S. boat's lead to 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

The gear failure early in the second leg dropped Stars & Stripes' spinnaker in a heap on deck and cost the San Diego-based boat the 21-second lead it built up on the first leg. Instead, skipper Chris Dickson and New Zealand grabbed the lead and went on to win a furious tacking battle for their first victory in the final series.

In the defenders' finals, Kookaburra III posted its second straight convincing victory, a 46-second triumph over Australia IV. Kookaburra III leads the best-of-nine series 2-0.

Both series are scheduled to resume Saturday.

Dennis Conner and Stars & Stripes seemed headed for a third straight victory taking the early lead. His crew set a spinnaker borrowed from the New York Yacht Club's eliminated America II, but a halyard shackle let go as the sail started pulling and it fell in a smothering mess on the foredeck.

In a fine display of seamanship, the American crew rushed forward and had the sail back up in just over a minute, and a deckhand was hoisted up the mast to make repairs.

But the accident allowed Dickson to slip ahead of Stars & Stripes, with New Zealand grabbing a six-second lead after the second mark — its first lead of the series.

That put New Zealand in the driver's seat. Conner tacked a Cup record 132 times on the next three windward legs to try and get free of the more versatile New Zealanders, but he couldn't — and actually lost time sailing into the 22-knot wind, the first time in the three races Stars & Stripes failed to win a windward leg.

Dickson raised a protest flag on the second leg as Conner tried to keep him from passing, but the victory made the foul claim moot.

Grace's Block Keys Sooners

By The Associated Press
The blocked shot that sealed the victory for Oklahoma over Kansas came from an unlikely source — point guard Ricky Grace.

The 16th-ranked Sooners led the No. 20 Jayhawks 76-74 Thursday night on a field goal by Tim McCalister with nine seconds to play.

Kansas still had a chance to tie, or win, and the last shot, a 3-pointer by guard Mark Turgeon, was blocked by the 6-foot-2 Grace.

"It was clean all the way," Grace said of his defensive play. "I saw him fake Mac and I just came over to help out."

"We were going for three. We were trying to hit the trailer, but Turgeon had a good shot," Kansas Coach Larry Brown, whose team was 1-for-3 on long-range shots before Turgeon's, said. "Grace made a super block."

Let's you think Grace is strictly a defensive specialist, the junior college transfer finished with eight points and 10 assists as Oklahoma improved to 11-3 overall and 1-1 in the Big Eight Conference. Kansas, which was led by Danny Manning's 21 points, fell to 9-5 and 2-1.

In other games involving members of the Top Twenty Thursday, top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas beat Cal-Santa Barbara 88-74; No. 4 Indiana routed Wisconsin 103-65; No. 7 DePaul defeated Loyola, Ill. 84-65; No. 11 Temple beat Penn State 66-49; No. 15 Alabama defeated Louisiana State 69-65; and No. 17 North Carolina State beat Wake Forest 75-67.

Grace got his chance at being a hero because of the rebounding of his teammates in the final seconds.

Oklahoma rebounded a missed Kansas shot with 1:15 to play and the score tied 74-74. The Sooners took two shots and missed them both. But each time they were able to get the rebound. After running 36 seconds off the 45-second clock, McCalister, who finished with 21 points, took his game-winner from the left side of the lane.

"We wanted to take a quicker shot. We wanted to get a shot up before it got down to 45 seconds so it wouldn't let them dictate the end of the game," Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs said. "We were very fortunate when we got those rebounds."

McCalister was sure of his last shot of the game.

"I had a feeling it was going in," he said. "I got it off like I wanted to. I shot it like I had all night."

No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas 88, Cal-Santa Barbara 74

The top-ranked Runnin' Rebels got a slight scare by Cal-Santa Barbara before extending their unbeaten streak to 15 games.

The Gauchos, 6-6 overall and 1-2 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, used a 13-1 run in the second half to take a 64-62 lead with 7:56 to play. But Mark Wade's layup put Nevada-Las Vegas back in front and the Runnin' Rebels were never headed.

Armon Gilliam led the Runnin' Rebels, 4-0 in the PCAA, with 25 points, while Freddie Banks added 20 including four of 11 shots from 3-point range.

Carrick DeHart and Brian Johnson led the Gauchos with 15 points each in the game played before a UCSB Campus Events Center record crowd of 6,214.

"I'm very happy to escape Santa Barbara with a win," Runnin' Rebels Coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "I was afraid our team might look past the Gauchos, but they always play us real tough. Although our intensity wasn't there all together, I hope it will be back for Saturday's game (at No. 16 Oklahoma)."

No. 4 Indiana 103, Wisconsin 65

Steve Alford made 7-of-8 3-point attempts, the only shots he took in the game, as he passed the 2,000-point mark for his career. The Hoosiers won their 10th consecutive game to improve to 13-1 overall and 4-0 in the Big Ten Conference. Two of Alford's

3-pointers came in Indiana's game-opening 12-0 run.

Indiana beat visiting Wisconsin, which was led by Trent Jackson's 21 points, for the 14th consecutive time as the Badgers fell to 10-8 and 0-5.

"I knew I was getting close to it but I knew going into the season if I had an average year, that it was going to happen sometime in the year," Alford said of the 2,000-point mark. "Obviously me scoring points is one of the keys to this team but it's not the key to our team."

No. 7 DePaul 84, Loyola, Ill. 65

DePaul improved to 13-0 and posted the 1,000th victory in school history by beating its cross-town rival.

The Blue Demons used a 16-2 run at the start of the second half to overcome a 43-42 halftime lead by the Ramblers and open the game up.

Dallas Comegys scored 23 points for DePaul, while Kevin Edwards added 21 points and nine rebounds. Loyola, 7-7, was led by Bernard Jackson and Andre Moore with 18 points each.

DePaul Coach Joey Meyer gave the credit for the Blue Demons' longtime success to one man.

"That belongs to Ray Meyer," Meyer said of his father who was the coach for 724 of the victories. "He should be proud of it, and I'm proud of him."

No. 11 Temple 66, Penn State 49
Howard Evans scored a career-high 24 points, 17 in a 23-4 second-half run by Temple, which held a 59-29 lead with 9:25 to play.

The victory was the 27th in a row at McGonigle Hall for the Owls, 15-2 and 5-0 in the Atlantic 10 Conference. Penn State, which was led by Paul Murphy's 14 points, fell to 8-4 and 2-2.

No. 15 Alabama 69, Louisiana State 65

Jim Farmer's 19 points included four free throws in the final minutes as the Crimson Tide won its ninth consecutive game. Louisiana State rallied from an 11-point first-half deficit to take a 46-44 lead with 11 minutes left. But Alabama, 12-2 and 5-0, went on a 12-2 run and was able to hold off the visiting Tigers' last-minute rally with Farmer's free-throw shooting.

Louisiana State, 9-8 and 1-5 in the Southeastern Conference, was led by Anthony Wilson's 22 points.

No. 17 North Carolina State 75, Wake Forest 67

North Carolina State held a 57-38 lead with 12:31 left in the Atlantic Coast Conference game and was able to hang on for the victory. Bennie Bolton scored 14 of his 18 points in the first half for the Wolfpack as Wake Forest, which hit 11 of its first 14 shots, missed 12 of 15 from the field after a 22-22 tie and was never able to recover.

NASA Finds Problem In Shuttle's New O-Ring

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Engineers testing the redesigned space shuttle rocket booster have run into a problem: a new type of O-ring seal that leaks under pressure and deteriorates when it is in prolonged contact with a rust-inhibiting grease.

As a result, said a report sent to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Thursday, designers have returned to the same kind of O-ring that doomed the space shuttle Challenger.

In order to maintain proper temperature on the rubber-like seal — which loses resiliency when cold — the redesign uses heaters to hold temperatures to 75 degrees. That, in turn, creates the possibility of loosening adhesive bonds made weaker by higher temperatures, the report said. The study by a panel of the National Research Council is the second this week critical of aspects of the booster redesign program. It used the O-ring problem as an example of the kind of contingency that caught engineers unaware.

"The schedule for the program reflects an assumption that each test will produce results that are expected and understood; there is little room in the schedule for modifying the design if this does not prove to be the case," the study said.

"It is prudent, therefore, to plan for contingencies ... If an aspect of the design is shown not to meet safety objectives, an alternative should be available to carry the program forward."

The report says potentials for problems in the joint between the rocket casing and the nozzle — and for problems with the nozzle — are greater than for leaks from the joints between segments — the problem on the Challenger mission.

The Rogers investigating commission found that a hot gas leak from the Challenger's right booster triggered the explosion last January that wiped out the ship and killed seven astronauts.

The redesign effort includes no real alternative in that area, the study said, and introduces a large number of new bolts and bolt holes — potential paths for leaks of hot gases.

"We consider the lack of an alternative to be serious since the joint is critical for safety, few tests of the final configuration are planned and they occur late in the test program," the NRC report said. It recommended "meaningful tests of the design."

The earlier report said NASA's timetable did not allow for design changes if they should become necessary. NASA has set Feb. 18, 1988, for the first post-Challenger flight.

H. Guyford Stever, chairman of the technical evaluation panel, addressed his report to NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher and met with the space agency head on Thursday.

The O-rings used until the Challenger explosion were made of rubber-like fluoropolymer. They were to have been succeeded by rings made of silicone, but a test showed they can't be used with the grease.

"Tests also revealed that pressurized gases can leak past the seals significantly," the report said. Significant changes in estimates of loads in the boosters and their attachments to the huge shuttle fuel tank have been reported to the panel and a crack developed in a skirt near the bottom of the rocket during a recent structural test, the study said.

It called for better planning for completely new designs — possibly radically different from the current ones.

"The nation's space program cannot afford to continue to rely on older technology indefinitely into the future. Consequently, we believe that NASA should vigorously pursue a program to develop the next and future generations of motors for use in the space transportation system," the report said.

The report also called for more contingency planning for rocket joints put together at the Morton Thiokol factory in Utah, the joints assembled at the Kennedy Space Center and the attachment of the rocket nozzle to the casing.

"We are appreciative of what they are doing and we will certainly take into account anything they recommend," NASA spokesman David Garrett said. He said officials had not had time to study the paper.

Gil Moore, a spokesman for Morton Thiokol in Utah, also declined to comment on the same grounds.

Shuttle Commander Says Flight Will Be 'New World' For NASA

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The commander of the first post-Challenger shuttle crew says the space flight he will lead in 13 months will be the safest yet because NASA is stronger and wiser than ever.

"It is a whole new world since Jan. 28, 1986," said Navy Capt. Frederick Hauck, referring to the day the Challenger exploded, killing its seven astronauts.

"The accident changed the way everybody in the agency looks at their jobs, at their responsibilities. I have no worries that this mission (will be) the safest mission yet.

"The spirit of the crew of Challenger is with us. We are looking forward to taking up where they left off."

Hauck and the four others in his crew, pilot Richard O. Covey and mission specialists John Lounge, George Nelson and David C. Hilmers, are veterans of previous shuttle missions. They met with reporters Thursday to discuss their scheduled four-day mission aboard space shuttle Discovery.

Hauck, 45, said the Feb. 18, 1988, launch date would be difficult to accomplish, but that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would delay the mission if necessary to make sure the flight is safe. Another disaster could end U.S. manned space flight, he said.

"We shouldn't take it for granted that the American people will always fund recoveries from major accidents," he said. "We couldn't survive two major disasters in a matter of months."

All the astronauts acknowledged in private interviews that they felt a sense of betrayal when they learned that Challenger was destroyed by a rocket flaw that was known to some engineers but not reported to the astronauts or senior NASA executives.

"I was dismayed and angered," said Covey, 40. "I found it difficult to imagine that that could have happened."

But he said his trust in NASA was being restored.

"We found a problem, but we can fix it. And I think we have," Covey said.

Nelson, 36, said he got mad after the tragedy, "but I don't carry a grudge."

Just after the accident, Nelson said, his two daughters asked him not to fly again. But he said they have come to accept his new mission because "that's what I do."

Covey said although he had faith in NASA's recovery, space flight is a dangerous business.

"I never became an astronaut thinking there was no risk involved," he said. "There are always accidents and people die. You accept that risk as being part of the job."

Lounge, 40, told the news conference the launch of Discovery would not be "the big social event" that the launch of his first mission was.

Hilmers, 36, said NASA was more open to questions about safety and that he would have no hesitation about calling attention to any serious problem.

Hauck said the astronauts would visit plants where NASA contractors are building spacecraft and rocket parts to motivate safety awareness by meeting "eye to eye" with the people on whom their lives depend.

NASA's three remaining space shuttles have been grounded since the Challenger disaster while engineers redesign the flawed rocket booster blamed for the accident.

Protesters Moan As Trident Soars

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Anti-nuclear protesters pounded drums and fell to the ground in mock agony as the Navy completed a successful test launch of its new Trident 2 submarine missile.

The 44-foot missile, said to be powerful and accurate enough to destroy missile silos and command centers reinforced against nuclear attack, drilled an ocean target far down the Atlantic tracking range Thursday.

The missile carried a dummy warhead.

Lt. Cmdr. Bob Prichard said the missile scored a "complete success. It operated as advertised. Everyone was very pleased with the results."

About 25 protesters beat their heads, pounded drums and fell to the ground as the Trident 2 thundered from a land pad and darted flawlessly through a clear sky.

Security was extremely tight because of the demonstrators, many of whom had pledged to reach the launch area and halt the countdown.

Sixty-six people, including 19 on Thursday, have been arrested for

Although the launch was not announced, about 75 protesters gathered at the main gate to Cape Canaveral on Thursday morning, and some tried to block traffic by linking arms in the middle of the road. Officials closed the gate and directed arriving workers to another entrance.

When technical problems delayed the liftoff more than two hours, many of the protesters drifted back to their campgrounds, where several hundred are gathering for a Saturday march and demonstration.

Protest spokeswoman Judy Freiwirth said she was disappointed that the launch had been carried out.

"Our real goals were to educate the people," she said. "We have surfaced the Trident 2 in the public debate, in the public consciousness, which is what we set out to do."

The test was the first of 20 scheduled from a land pad, with one planned about every 40 days. That series will be followed by 10 submarine-launched tests before the scheduled operational date of late 1989.

GOP Committee Says Payments Weren't 'Bonuses'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Republican Senatorial Committee, which provoked criticism by giving employees large post-election "bonuses," now says the largest payments were not bonuses but "contractual agreement" sums.

The committee's finance director, Rodney A. Smith, who acknowledged Thursday that the payments have drawn numerous complaints from Republicans, wrote to the Federal Election Commission saying the $90,000 payment to himself and the $50,000 to committee director Thomas Griscom are to be described differently on the committee's financial disclosure report.

"Explanation shown as 'Bonus' is incorrect," said the letter the FEC received Thursday. The sums are to be described as "contractual agreement," Smith wrote.

The GOP committee, fresh on the heels of losing control of the Senate to the Democrats, came under criticism after filing an FEC report last month listing $255,250 in bonuses to 87 employees.

"We've heard about it," Smith said, referring to negative calls received by the committee.

Critics included White House political director Mitchell Daniels, who said word of the bonuses shocked him. He told Rowland Evans and Robert Novak in a CNN interview, "We have to question many of the ways money was spent" by the committee.

Smith said Thursday his was not a "bonus" because he had an arrangement with the committee in which he would receive the $90,000 "incentive" if as fund-raising director he brought in more than $30 million net receipts.

He raised more than $90 million, he said, including money that came directly to the committee's FEC account or its non-reportable building fund and money that went directly to candidates' treasuries.

From the beginning of January

1985 until just before the election the committee reported receipts of nearly $80 million, the FEC said.

Smith said Griscom's payment also was based on a contractual arrangement, but did not relate to money raised.

But Griscom, who did not return a reporter's calls Thursday afternoon, said in an earlier interview his bonus was determined by committee chairman Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa.

Smith said whoever prepared the FEC report for the committee made a mistake in classifying the two payments as bonuses, but that the much smaller sums — ranging from $250 to $12,000 — paid to 85 other employees will remain classified as bonuses.

"Our people worked as hard as they possibly could...Some of them did it above and beyond the call of duty," he said.

In addition to the post-election payment, Smith made $482,900 from the committee, which was paid to his consulting firm, Fundraising and Financial Management.

Ex-Official Is Indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former deputy mayor for the District of Columbia faces extortion and other charges in a scheme in which he allegedly received more than $40,000 from city contractors, according to an indictment.

A federal grand jury Thursday indicted Alphonse G. Hill on charges of extortion, tax evasion, false financial disclosure and defrauding the district government.

If convicted on all charges in the 11-count indictment, Hill could be sentenced to up to 115 years in prison and fined $380,000.

Hill, 48, one-time city controller and former deputy mayor for finance, has been credited with largely shaping the city's current financial management system during his nearly seven years as a city official. He was hired in August 1979 and resigned last March.

He is the second former deputy mayor in the administration of Mayor Marion Barry Jr. to face criminal charges.

Ivanhoe Donaldson, a former deputy mayor for economic development and close adviser to Barry, currently is in prison for stealing $190,000 in city funds.

Mayor Barry told a news conference that Hill's indictment has not shaken his confidence in his judgment of people. He noted Hill had strong credentials when he was hired.

"Obviously, when you make a judgment you make the best judgment you can," Barry said. "I think my judgment is still good."

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the opening days of the 100th Congress.

House

Taxes — By a vote of 175 for and 240 against, the House refused to add a ban on higher taxes to legislation setting internal House rules for the 100th Congress.

The Republican proposal stood no chance of passage in the Democratic-led House, and was seen as an attempt to make Democrats look bad on the taxation issue. It sought to block any increase in the lower corporate and individual rates set by the 1986 reform law.

Supporter Willis Gradison, R-Ohio, said some Democrats had suggested raising taxes to cut the deficit. He said "the American people...were promised tax reform, not higher taxes."

Opponent Martin Frost, D-Tex., termed it "the ultimate gimmick" for Republicans to try "to write substantive tax law into the rules of the house."

Members voting yes wanted House rules to contain a ban on higher taxes.

Voting yes: Howard Coble, R-6, Alex McMillan, R-9, Cass Ballenger, R-10.

Voting no: Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Martin Lancaster, D-3, David Price, D-4, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Clarke, D-11.

Not voting: Stephen Neal, D-5.

HUNGER COMMITTEE — By a vote of 312 for and 89 against, the House approved a resolution (H Res 26) extending for another year the life of the Select Committee on Hunger, which was created in 1984 as a "temporary" panel.

Lacking legislative authority, the committee seeks to coordinate the anti-hunger efforts of regular House committees.

Critics say the panel, with a budget of more than $500,000 but no power to act on bills, only adds to the Congressional bureaucracy.

Supporter Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., said "this was not intended to be a legislative committee, but to raise the people's consciousness to the crucial (hunger) problems that exist."

Opponent Robert Badham, R-Calif., said there is adequate authority to deal with hunger among the House's 140 legislative subcommittees.

Members voting yes wanted to keep the hunger panel alive.

Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, David Price, Neal, Hefner, McMillan, Clarke.

Voting no: Coble, Ballenger.

Not voting: Rose.

CLEAN WATER BILL — The House passed, 406 for and 8 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR1) authorizing grants and loans to communities for construction of sewage treatment facilities.

The bill would provide $18 billion over eight years for that purpose and fund a variety of other programs, including ones to stop toxic discharges into public waterways from factories and farms.

This was a rebuff to President Reagan, who late last year vetoed virtually the same legislation.

Members voting yes supported the bill.

Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, David Price, Neal, Coble, Hefner, McMillan, Ballenger, Clarke.

Voting no: None.

Not voting: Rose.

SENATE

IRAN-CONTRA PROBE — The Senate voted, 88 for and 4 against, to establish a special committee to probe the Administration's sale of arms to Iran and the alleged diversion of some of the profits to U.S.-backed Contra forces in Central America.

Supporter Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., said the committee would "develop the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth -- the full facts, and lay them all out" to the public.

Opponent Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Congress should put the Iran-Contra episode behind it and "get on with trying to balance the budget and some of the other problems facing this nation."

Senators voting yes wanted to create the investigative committee.

Voting yes: Sanford, D. Voting no: Helms, R.

'Scarecrow' Ray Bolger Dies Of Cancer Problems

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ray Bolger, the last surviving member of the whimsical foursome that skipped down the Yellow Brick Road in the classic film "The Wizard of Oz," has died less than a week after his 83rd birthday.

Bolger, the lean and limber actor and dancer whose career spanned six decades, died at a nursing home Thursday from complications of cancer, said family spokesman Barry Greenberg. Bolger had celebrated his birthday Saturday.

"Now, Dorothy and her friends are back together again," said Jack Haley Jr., whose father played the Tin Man to Bolger's Scarecrow in the 1939 movie. Dorothy was portrayed by Judy Garland, who died in 1969, two years after Bert Lahr, who played the Cowardly Lion. Jack Haley Sr. died in 1979.

"A great dancer and a great performer," said actress Rose Marie. "He sang, he danced, he did skits, he did comedy, he did drama."

A funeral Mass is tentatively scheduled for Monday at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills, Greenberg said. He is survived by his wife. The couple had no children.

Bolger, who appeared in more than a dozen movies, preferred to think of himself as a comedian rather than a dancer.

"I was hired as a comedian in my first show and I'm still a comedian," he once said. "I became a dancer in self-defense. I was doing a comedy monologue and didn't know how else to get off, so I danced off."

Michael Kidd, who choreographed Bolger in the 1952 movie "Where's Charley," said "nobody danced the way he did."

"His legs gave out, his knees buckled. I always wondered how his knees held up. He would do a series of falls and get up and do them over and over again."

The dancing stopped in 1984.

"I stepped down from the stage and there was nothing there," Bolger recalled after the performance in Coronado.

He underwent surgery to receive an artificial hip after X-rays showed almost all the cartilage was gone. His doctor said he could dance again. "But I'm 80, and how much more dancing do I want to do?" Bolger asked.

"The Wizard of Oz," in which he portrayed the brave man of straw in search of a brain, was his favorite film. But he said he had no idea the movie would become a classic.

"I knew that I was taking part in a strange kind of adventure," he said.

Vietnam Veterans Divided Over Merits Of 'Platoon'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Just as they were during the war it depicts, congressmen and the men who served are divided over "Platoon," the latest and perhaps most powerful of Vietnam War movies.

Numbness was the common reaction among those invited to a special Washington premiere of the new film. As with the war, the movie appears destined for controversy, but there was no debate over its intense impact.

"It probably was as emotionally draining an experience as I've had," said Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., who is vice chairman of the caucus of Vietnam-era veterans in Congress.

"When I came out I felt a little ashamed," said Bob Moran, a double-amputee who now works with the Paralyzed Veterans of America. "I didn't stay for the credits."

The movie, which is just opening around the country, is the film of the Vietnam experience many veterans say they've been waiting for — one written and directed by a Vietnam vet, Oliver Stone.

The Vietnam Veterans of America, the service organization chartered by Congress, sponsored the showing Wednesday night along with Daschle's group, Vietnam-Era Veterans in Congress.

When it was over, grown men were crying.

Some left hurriedly. Others sat paralyzed in their seats. Almost no one talked.

The movie crams many of the stories of the war's brutality and atrocities into its two hours: American soldiers killing civilians, raping and terrorizing children, smoking dope, and fighting or "fragging," killing among themselves. It is climaxed by a firefight in which the enemy overruns the U.S. firebase, and a survivor tries to make sense of it all.

It is a brutal movie, but also one in which the soldiers were victims, too, dehumanized and brutalized by the war, the fear and the circumstance. They step off the plane as fresh-faced kids and days later, outraged by the enemy's killing of their own, are killing villagers by gun, by grenade and by hand.

"I just loved it; it was so real," said Jan Scruggs, the man who started and directed the successful drive to build the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington. "It captured a lot of the Vietnam experience that a lot of vets had tried to forget."

"One thing I couldn't believe when I got over there was seeing GIs throwing rocks at civilians," said Scruggs. "But in six or eight months, I was doing the same thing. I didn't kill anyone — I couldn't live with that."

Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, the Mississippi conservative who is chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, didn't like the message he saw.

"I went over there seven times during the war and six times after, working on the MIA issue," Montgomery said. "I just didn't find the American soldier of that brutality, and I went to these firebases and talked to the infantrymen."

FOCUS
How Brew Grew
 On this day in 1920, these saloon patrons and others mourned as the United States went legally "dry." Prohibition tried to end what is actually a centuries-old practice. Beer, for example, has been brewed throughout recorded history. In 3400 B.C., the Egyptians levied a tax on a popular beer known as barley wine. The ancient Romans learned the art of brewing from the Greeks. Caesar's armies loved the drink and spread it wherever they conquered.
DO YOU KNOW — What amendment repealed Prohibition?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Caspar Weinberger is the current Secretary of Defense.

Soviets To Withdraw Full Division From Mongolia

By CELESTINE BOHLEN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Defense Ministry announced Thursday it will withdraw one division of troops from Mongolia between April and June of this year.

In a statement issued by the official news agency Tass, the ministry said one full-strength motorized rifle division and several individual units will return to the Soviet Union under an "understanding" reached with the government of Mongolia. Mongolia, on the Soviet border with China, is one of Moscow's most loyal allies.

The withdrawal will involve between 10,000 and 12,000 troops, according to estimates made by western diplomats. Soviet troop strength in the Mongolian People's Republic is now about 70,000, the diplomats said.

The move, first indicated by Communist Party leader Mikhail Gorbachev in a speech last July, is one of several gestures made by Moscow recently to improve relations with China.

"The U.S.S.R. seeks to move forward the idea of Pan-Asian security," Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov said Thursday.

"The withdrawal of part of the Soviet troops from the Mongolian People's Republic is fully in line with this policy and should, we are convinced, help improve the general situation in the region," he noted.

China has listed the Soviet presence in Mongolia as one of three obstacles it says are blocking a thaw in the Sino-Soviet relationship. The other two are Soviet support for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia and the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

Western diplomats here noted that the announcement about Mongolia was made simultaneously with a cease-fire announced by the government of Afghanistan that many assume was initiated by Moscow.

Thursday's announcement comes during a period of heavy Soviet diplomatic activity, particularly in Asia.

Moscow's role in the Afghan cease-fire was highlighted last week with a sudden visit to Kabul by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and foreign policy adviser Anatoly Dobrynin. During the last month, Moscow has also stepped up its diplomatic dialogue with Pakistan and Iran.

Last week, the Soviet government issued official statements, formally reiterating a proposal for a Middle East peace conference and a call for an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

"I think what we are seeing is the big January 1987 peace offensive," said one western diplomat. Last year on Jan. 15, Gorbachev unveiled a package of disarmament proposals aimed at eliminating nuclear weapons by the year 2000.

Afghan Truce Uncertain

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — A senior official said 800 Moslem rebel units have laid down their arms since the government called for a truce, but that it is too early to determine if the day-old unilateral cease-fire is holding.

Internal Security Minister Gulam Faruq Yakubi, one of several top Afghan officials who met with foreign reporters Thursday, claimed that debates over the cease-fire among Moslem rebels leaders show "the power of our proposal."

The Marxist Afghan government announced the cease-fire Jan. 1, and it took effect at midnight Wednesday. It is to last six months if the guerrillas honor it.

The government said all Afghan soldiers and their Soviet support forces were withdrawn from field positions to permanent military bases, and will not fight the guerrillas unless fired upon.

No fighting was evident Thursday immediately around the capital and a military officer who identified himself only as Col. Fakhri said there were no reports of fighting elsewhere in the country.

However, Western diplomats based on Kabul, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was small-arms fire in the Kabul area and sporadic, heavier exchanges at Kandahar in southwest Afghanistan.

In Pakistan, guerrilla spokesmen claimed dozens of Afghan soldiers and militiamen were killed or wounded in attacks Thursday on government positions in eastern and southwestern provinces.

The reports could not be independently verified and the Moscow-based group of reporters flown here at the government's arrangement on Thursday was kept in the capital.

The leaders of seven main guerrilla groups individually have rejected the cease-fire, but were meeting in Peshawar, Pakistan, to discuss it. The guerrillas began fighting after Communists seized power in April 1978 in a coup, and have said they will not stop until the estimated 115,000 Soviet troops aiding the government leave and the government is ousted.
