British Launch Hunt For Waite

By TYLER MARSHALL
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

LONDON — The British Foreign Office said today it has begun a search for Terry Waite, the Church of England envoy in Lebanon, amid increased concern that he may have been kidnapped.

Foreign Office officials confirmed that the British ambassador in Lebanon, John Gray, accompanied by other British diplomats, had crossed into the Moslem-controlled western part of the city Tuesday in search of information about Waite.

"We are all very concerned," Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe told reporters. "Plainly, people are anxious, and understandably so. He has been undertaking an important task in circumstances which are not free from danger."

Waite, who last year escorted American hostages David P. Jacobsen and Father Lawrence M. Jenco to freedom, returned to Beirut on Jan. 13 in an attempt to negotiate the release of two other Americans held by the radical, pro-Iranian Shia Moslem group called Islamic Jihad. He also hoped to learn more about the condition of two British nationals held by Moslem guerrillas in Lebanon.

Waite reportedly slipped out of his

Beirut hotel before dawn Jan. 20, apparently to meet with members of Islamic Jihad, whose name means Islamic Holy War.

Although Waite has not been seen since then, Church of England officials here said over the weekend that they were in touch with Druze militia leaders who had guaranteed Waite's safety and, indirectly, with the Islamic Jihad group, and that both had reported him safe.

But concern arose when the official Kuwaiti news agency reported Monday that Waite had been placed under house arrest by Islamic Jihad after failing to reach agreement on the release of the two Americans.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Robert A.K. Runcie, read a carefully worded statement to the press Tuesday at the Church of England's Lambeth Palace headquarters. He refused to answer questions, saying that the situation was too sensitive.

Runcie's statement expressed concern about Waite's well-being but was careful to express confidence in the guarantees given by Moslem leaders for Waite's safety.

"We are, of course, greatly concerned for Terry Waite's safety and for the success of his mission to nego-

Iran

By CLIFF HAAS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying "I took a risk ... it did not work," has appealed to Congress to put aside its preoccupation with the Iran-Contra controversy, but the Democrats say he still must clear away the sense of mistrust and incompetence the affair has evoked.

Reagan used his sixth annual report on his view of the nation Tuesday night to briefly express regret over the failed initiative that involved selling arms to Iran and then to plead: "Now, ladies and gentlemen of the Congress, why don't we get to work?"

It was a speech marked by Reagan's characteristic optimism, cheerfulness, nostalgia and patriotism — and his first public appearance since before Christmas — but a few moments afterward Democrats were on the television screens with their response, insisting on answers to their questions about Iran.

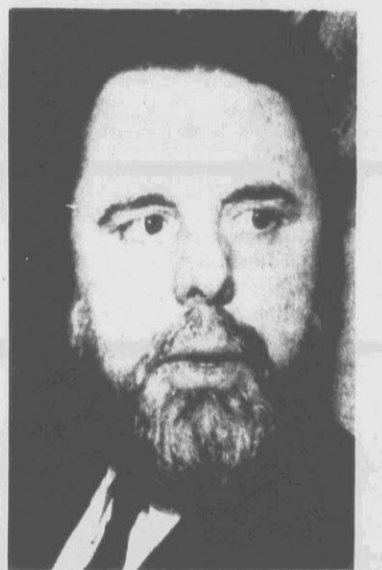

On other matters, the president:

— Deplored the deficit but rejected a tax increase to reduce it as "shop-worn."

— Called for a system of insurance to shelter Americans from catastrophic health bills and a reworking of the nation's "welfare monster."

— Promised to submit proposals to give America a competitive edge in

Troops Fire Gas On Filipino Rebels

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Government troops fired warning shots of tear gas tonight at about 200 rebels holding a walled broadcast center in suburban Manila after they ignored an ultimatum to surrender.

"Don't let this get worse, declare your surrender," an officer shouted through a bullhorn. "The Filipino people are asking you to please think this over thoroughly so we can solve this problem. We beseech you to come out."

The center was the last position held by rebels linked to deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos who attempted a pre-dawn coup Tuesday, the most serious challenge by right-wing military members since President Corazon Aquino came to power 11 months ago.

The commander of the 1,000 government troops surrounding the studios of Channel 7 and DZBB radio station in Quezon City had told the rebels to surrender within 30 minutes.

Heavily armed troops wearing gas masks moved toward the station in a five-truck convoy. Marines in civilian clothes and wearing yellow armbands — the color of Mrs. Aquino's "people power revolution" against Marcos — were on standby to move in on a second wave.

Four tear gas canisters were fired at the compound after the deadline passed in what an officer at the scene described as a warning. There were no reports of fire from the rebels.

Five minutes earlier, rebel leader Col. Oscar Canlas in an interview aired by the Roman Catholic Radio Veritas urged military chief Gen. Fidel V. Ramos to "return to your senses."

Ramos, who met with Canlas for 45 minutes before dawn and ordered him to surrender, said about 190 troops and 55 civilians who supported Marcos were in the studio. The government blamed Marcos backers for the coup attempt, but Canlas said the takeover was aimed at dramatizing the threat from Communist rebels.

Asked what Ramos' instructions were after the warning shots were fired, Armed Forces spokesman Col. Honesto Isleta said: "We cannot wait until tomorrow ... We have to finish it tonight."

Canlas had issued a statement during the day saying he was prepared to leave the station but wanted more time "to arrange these matters, these matters of procedure."

The rebel leader, who also spoke with small groups of reporters allowed into the station, demanded a guarantee from the government that only he be held accountable for actions during the rebellion.

Mrs. Aquino has vowed to punish all those who participated in the failed coup, which involved attempted takeovers of other media and military facilities around Manila.

Military sources said Canlas wanted to wait until Thursday morning before surrendering. A senior civil official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said military commanders suspected the rebel leader was stalling for time to allow pro-Marcos reinforcements to arrive, but Canlas said his troops were afraid of harm if they left in the dark.

HIGH WATER — Water overflowing from the Tar River created a shallow pond near Tar River Estates at the intersection of River Drive and North Elm Street this morning. Flooded streets near the river have been barricaded for the safety of motorists. Officials predict the river will reach its highest level in Greenville today. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest).

Tar Spills Out Of Its Banks

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Tar River has spilled onto the shores of Greenville, flooding streets and damaging at least one home as it rose higher and higher Tuesday, said local officials.

The river, recorded at 18.1 feet above sea level Tuesday night, "hasn't risen up in 24 hours," said Danny Gaylor of the Greenville Utilities Commission water plant. "It's crested as far as I'm concerned."

"Our flood stage is 13 feet" above sea level, he said. The river has crested when "it is not going to rise anymore. It's going to go back down," Gaylor said. The river level was recorded this morning at 17.9 feet above sea level.

The National Weather Service, however, predicted the river will crest between noon and 1 p.m. today, he said.

The river has caused some flooding in the Stencil Drive area of Greenville, said Bobby Joyner, Pitt County coordinator of Emergency Services. Flooding also occurred on North Greene Street near the Riverside Oyster Bar, where one family was evacuated from a flooded mobile home.

"There are some streets that have flooded next to Tar River Estates," said Mayo Allen of the Greenville Public Works Department. The streets have been barricaded for motorist safety.

Allen said he did not know of any family evacuations in that area.

Donna Spangler, the manager at Tar River Estates, said water flooded the clubhouse but she had no comment on possible water damage to the apartments.

Water also may cause some problems at the Pitt-Greenville Airport, said manager Jim Turcotte.

"The runway itself is OK," Turcotte said. "If the river stays like it is now, we're OK. If rises anymore, we'll have some serious problems" protecting the equipment from damage.

More rain is forecast for the Greenville area Thursday.

County Elections Plan Aired

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners met twice Tuesday to consider proposed changes in the method of electing the board — once at a 7 p.m. public hearing on the plan at Farmville Central High School, and earlier in the day with members of the county Board of Education to discuss using the same districts for the election of school board members.

The six commissioners now are elected by countywide vote, although they are required to live in specific districts.

Under the proposed plan, six new residency districts would be created — two of them predominately black — and commissioners would be elected by only the people living in the district they represent.

In addition to the six commissioners elected by district vote, the plan proposes that three commissioners, who would not be required to live in any specific district, be elected by the county at-large.

The proposed plan calls for the election of the six district representatives for the first time in 1988 and the election of the three at-large commissioners in 1990.

Raleigh lawyer Mike Crowell, hired by the board last year to assist with the development of a new voting method, told the 20 people attending the hearing that the three at-large seats were suggested to "assure" that some members of the board would "feel like they represent the interests of the entire county."

He suggested that electing the three at-large representatives at the same time would "increase the chance" of electing "minority representatives" through one-shot voting.

Crowell said the proposed six-district election plan was designed

ECU Briefing

East Carolina University's teacher education faculty members and administrators will be briefed in detail on the state's Task Force on Teacher Education report and recommendations Friday at a special faculty assembly.

Dr. Charles R. Coble, dean of the school of education and director of teacher education, said all teacher education faculty, all Arts and Sciences faculty, deans and department chairs are to attend the assembly beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Dr. John M. Howell, ECU's chancellor and a member of the Task Force, and Dr. Donald Stedman of the University of North Carolina general administration, will present the task force report, Coble said.

Among the recommendations are improving the special education curriculum, adding of liberal arts courses to teacher education degree requirements and requiring a second major in certain teacher education programs. Another recommendation is to raise admissions requirements.

Robbery Attempt

Winterville police are investigating an attempted armed robbery reported today about 12:20 a.m.

Chief Richard Terrel said a clerk in the Fresh Way Store on South Mill Street told police a man wearing a ski mask walked into the store and demanded money. The clerk asked, "Are you kidding," and the man pulled out a blue steel revolver, but then left the store, taking nothing, said Terrel.

Terrel said he and another Winterville police officer searched the area but found no one.

The Daily Reflector has received an "Instant Citation" from the Associated Press Managing Editors' organization for news and photo coverage of the crash of Pitt County Memorial Hospital's EastCare helicopter in Jones County Jan. 8.

In a letter announcing the award, David L. Playford, managing editor of The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and Augusta Herald, said the Reflector was cited for "unselfishly sharing its news and photo coverage of the story."

Playford said "the Reflector's photo team hit the road fast" after it was notified of the 9:30 p.m. crash and "stuck it out until 3 a.m. when authorities finally allowed them into the scene."

"The Reflector also helped by (computer) carboning its stories on the crash and subsequent stories to the Raleigh (AP) bureau."

Four people died in the crash — the pilot, two flight nurses and a 3-month old patient.

Changes Discussed In County Elections

with three goals in mind: compliance with the federal Voting Rights Act, observance of the "one-person, one-vote" requirement and to retain existing boundaries as much as possible.

The proposed new district lines, Crowell said, "retain townships together" with the exception of Greenville Township — portions of which are divided among five of the proposed six districts — and a small portion of Winterville Township east on N.C. 43.

At the Farmville hearing — the third in a series of six scheduled to receive public comments on the proposed election changes — two of the five people commenting on the plan voiced opposition to the proposed at-large seats.

Ernest Brown of Greenville, a spokesman for the Concerned Citizens for Justice (a local civil rights group), cited a resolution adopted by the concerned citizens and the Pitt County chapters of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which supported the six-district plan but opposed any at-large seats.

Another Greenville resident, Mary Alsentzer, also voiced opposition to at-large seats.

Saying "I advocate the six-district plan," Mrs. Alsentzer emphasized there should be "no additional at-large representatives." At-large seats, she said, would "dilute the strength of minority members."

Mrs. Alsentzer, along with Brown and other speakers, suggested that the election districts for the Board of Commissioners and Board of Education be the same.

Pete Anderson of Farmville, speaking as a representative of the Farmville Seniors Council, urged commissioners to "keep it (the election plan) simple" and "try to keep the Board of Education and commissioners on an equal basis," by having the same election district lines for both boards.

"What we do like," Anderson said, is "the six districts. The nine commissioners... that's fine also."

Tony Moore, chairman of the Bell Arthur Precinct Democrats, told the hearing that a resolution adopted by the precinct supports the district election of commissioners and education board members. He noted that the resolution, as amended and adopted later by delegates to the county Democratic convention, also supports at-large seats.

Sam Nanney of Farmville, the last speaker, questioned, "Have we ever thought we are creating segregation?" by proposing a district method with two predominately black districts.

"You need some at-large members," Nanney suggested.

Charles McLawhorn, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, told members of the Board of Education at an 11:30 a.m. meeting that "we would like the same (election) districts as much as possible."

Only eight of the school board members attended the meeting. Among those unable to attend were Chairman Mark Owens, Vice Chairman George Williams, Steve Tripp, Frank Grooms, Alfreida Parker, David Shackelford and Jack Wall.

James Black, acting as chairman in the absence of Owens and Williams, told commissioners the Board of Education "in private discussions" has looked mainly at two district plans — a 14-district proposal and a six-district plan (like the one proposed by commissioners) with two members elected from each district.

"We (as a board) have not really taken a position" on either plan, Black emphasized.

"What we're talking about," Commissioner Charles Gaskins said, "is a six-district division of the county. We need to get together on the number of districts."

But, Gaskins said, "We both are autonomous bodies and have to do what we think is right."

School board member Donovan Phillips said "I think it's important... to have coterminous boundaries... for the pure mechanics... (for) common sense. We need a 12-person board. Six districts is the most logical," he suggested.

School board member Erma Carr also said "six districts and coterminous boundaries" would be the most logical plan. "It would be confusing otherwise," she said.

Robert Halstead again reminded commissioners that the question of what plan to follow "hasn't ever come up at our (education) board meetings yet. We haven't ever determined what we're going to do."

Commissioners were told the school board would probably discuss the various district options at a workshop meeting Thursday, and possibly adopt a new election plan at a regular meeting Monday.

ECU Professor Will Head State Alliance

By The Associated Press
The National Geographic Society has awarded North Carolina educators a $30,000 grant in an effort to keep the subject of geography from disappearing from the classroom.

"Geography is now being covered — perhaps I should say buried — in social studies and history, assuming that it is being taught at all," said NGS president Gilbert Grosvenor.

North Carolina was one of seven states chosen this year to join the society's Geographic Alliance Network, which included a $30,000 seed grant from National Geographic. The alliances were set up to mobilize classroom teachers, school administrators, academic geographers and students toward improving geography education.

Dr. Douglas Wilms, professor of geography at East Carolina University, will coordinate the state's geographic alliance network over the next three years. Wilms, who is chairman of the N.C. Geographical Society's education committee, will work with Dr. William Imperatore of Appalachian State University on the project.

Spaceport Pauses To Honor Astronauts

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Seventy-three seconds of silence, the length of Challenger's final flight, was the spaceport's tribute as Americans honor seven astronauts, including the first "ordinary citizen" in space, who died a year ago today.

Schoolchildren around the country planned memorial observances today, a statue made of 1 million pennies donated by youngsters was to be dedicated, the families of the crew planned to join public memorials or grieve privately, and President Reagan was to address NASA workers via satellite.

All activity was to cease here at 11:38 a.m., the moment on Jan. 28, 1986, when the shuttle roared away from icicle-laden Launch Pad 39. Cold weather was forecast, a grim reminder of the conditions that contributed to the accident.

Many of the nearly 14,000 workers at the Kennedy Space Center were expected to walk outside and gaze at the spot 8.9 miles high where Challenger erupted into a fireball.

They were to be joined by many of the 13,000 workers at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station and Patrick Air Force Base, hundreds of tourists and thousands of local residents. Flags were to be lowered to half-staff.

Killed in the accident were Cmdr. Dick Scobee, Pilot Michael Smith, New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe and crew members Judy Resnik, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka and Greg Jarvis.

At Woodlawn Memorial park in Orlando, Bruce Jarvis was to lay a wreath at the Astronauts Memorial in honor of his son.

Jarvis' widow, Marcia, said she would be alone.

"I'm going to spend that day quietly on a trail somewhere ... because we always did things outside," she said.

Onizuka's family plans a happier observance Saturday, gathering in Houston for a Hawaiian-style luau.

"We promised Ellison a luau when he got back ... and the luau never occurred," said Claude Onizuka, his younger brother. "So we made a promise to the NASA people that on the one-year anniversary we'd come back and put that luau back on."

On Tuesday, the astronauts' families issued a joint "Letter to America" in which they said they hoped to raise $50 million for space learning centers around the country, "places where children, teachers, and citizens alike can touch the future."

All 10 National Aeronautics and Space Administration centers were scheduled to observe the 73 seconds of silence.

Reagan's address was to be followed by a tape of a memorial service attended by members of the Challenger astronauts' families at Arlington National Cemetery.

A moment of silence also was planned at the Seattle Center Flag Pavilion, in the shadow of the Space Needle; at Morton Thiokol's Wasatch Operations in Utah, where the shuttle's solid rocket boosters are made; and at Rockwell International Corp. in Downey, Calif., which manufactures orbiter components.

An observance in Concord, N.H., where McAuliffe taught high school social studies, was to be private.

In West Virginia, a statue showing McAuliffe gazing up to the sky, made in part with more than 1 million pennies donated by schoolchildren, was to be dedicated. Bill Hopen melted some of the coins into the bronze for his $13,000 statue, which will be displayed at Charleston's Sunrise Museum.

"Anytime children see it they will be reminded that tragedy can happen, ... but that shouldn't stop you from reaching for the stars," said Melanie Vickers, a Kanawha County elementary teacher who organized the project and was a teacher-in-space finalist.

A nine-foot monument of polished black granite was to be dedicated in Albany, Ga., to honor Challenger's crew and the three astronauts who died 20 years ago Tuesday in the Apollo 1 fire.

A presidential commission said cold weather probably contributed to the shuttle explosion by degrading the ability of rubbery O-ring seal to close a gap in a solid-fuel booster rocket field joint. The panel said flame escaped through the gap in the joint and triggered the explosion.

Several Morton Thiokol engineers had argued against the launch because of the cold, but were overruled by their managers and middle-level NASA officials.

Soviets Have Kept Up Ambitious Space Program As U.S. Regroups

By CAROL J. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — In the year since space shuttle Challenger's explosion halted manned U.S. space exploration, the Soviet Union has forged ahead with an ambitious program of endurance missions, space construction and inauguration of a second orbiting station.

While failures in the Kremlin's space program have often gone unreported, 1986 appeared to be a successful year. The state-run media have predicted 1987 will be another busy one, beginning with a mission to the new Mir space station.

No date for the launch has been announced, but the Tass news agency reported Jan. 16 that the Progress-27 cargo vessel had been sent to the Mir station to take fuel and supplies for a manned mission to begin soon.

The Mir station was opened in March by two Soviet cosmonauts, who returned to Earth in July after visiting another space station.

In the new manned mission, Soviet cosmonauts will be sent to Mir and a Soviet-Syrian team is to join them for a few days. For 1988, the Soviets have announced a Soviet-French space shot and the launching of two probes to explore Mars.

Officials of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said this week they fear their goal of resuming shuttle launches in early 1988 may be overly optimistic, since testing of redesigned booster rockets and other modifications are behind schedule.

Neither Soviet space officials nor the state-run media have made direct comparisons of their activity with the state of the NASA program, which has been virtually frozen since seven American astronauts died in the Challenger accident on Jan. 28, 1986. But the Soviet Union's active schedule in space last year was in stark contrast to that of the United States.

The Kremlin began last year with a well-received international project to track Halley's comet from two probes that began sending information to a Moscow monitoring station in mid-January. The probes had their closest encounters with the comet in March, sending back electronic images that expanded scientists' understanding of the space bodies.

In February, the Soviets sent up the Mir space station, their second orbiting lab along with the older Salyut-7, and quickly followed up with a manned mission to inaugurate the new facilities three weeks later.

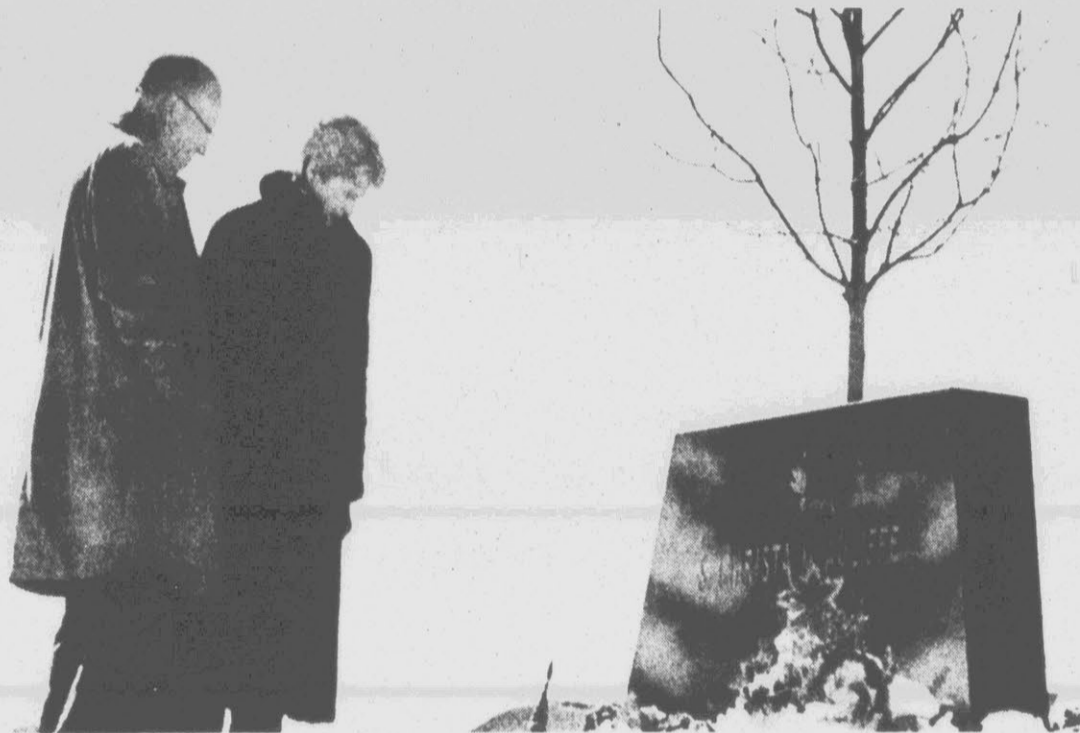

The Soviet Union also has been trying to take over some of the commercial satellite launches that have been delayed by U.S. rocket failures and problems in Europe's Ariane program.

Without directly referring to the Challenger disaster, Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov made a strong pitch for the slow-moving Soviet program earlier this month, assuring prospective clients that the Kremlin would not pilfer Western technological secrets and offering discounts for developing countries.

The Mir station is a new generation orbital laboratory that is intended to serve as the basis for eventual permanently manned operations.

The Mir, which means "peace" in Russian, has six docking ports to accommodate visiting spacecraft or add-on labs and other components that could be flown up to expand the size and capability of the station.

The cosmonauts returned to Earth on July 16 after 125 days in space.

'They'll Remember'

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Millions felt the impact of Challenger's explosion when they saw the bewilderment on Ben Provençal's face in a full-page magazine photo as he stared at the smoke cloud marking where his friend's mother had just died.

Now, a year since the boy stood in the cold and watched the space shuttle Challenger explode, his words may offer some hope.

Ben's photograph in Newsweek was devastating. He sat in Cape Canaveral bleachers next to his mother. His eyes, filling with tears, gazed skyward at the white smoke and zig-zag rocket contrails.

The photo hangs on his bedroom wall, surrounded by other shuttle mementos, six space models and an astronaut Cabbage Patch Kid.

The 9-year-old talked with a reporter about his models, how the terrifying experience changed him and why he still wants to be an astronaut.

"I know it will be safe when I grow up because people who are going to be running NASA will be people my age and they'll remember this and so they won't let anything go wrong," he said.

"Now, I want to see the next space shuttle launch. I want to see if they do it right because if something goes wrong again, no more space, (no more) NASA.

"I want everything to be right because I want to go into space sometime," he said.

Responsibility

Guilt or innocence is not the primary question. The real issue is corporate responsibility.

The $5.7 million fine levied against Texasgulf Chemical Co. for over 2,000 air quality violations has raised serious questions about citizenship in the rural, isolated counties of Beaufort and Hyde. The area is dependent on the industry for one-third of its revenue. It also depends on Texasgulf for quality of life and environment.

With the important Pamlico Sound and the fragile estuaries that nourish it bordering Texasgulf, the community cannot risk taking chances with its environment. The Sound is worth a great deal, both financially and aesthetically, to eastern North Carolina — particularly Beaufort and Hyde counties. That resource cannot afford to be compromised or sacrificed.

The Department of Natural Resources and Community Development does not levy fines and make accusations haphazardly. Their allegations are likely based on carefully collected, highly accurate data.

It is hopeful the violations, if they occurred, were the result of misunderstanding. The incidents, however, underscore the need for corporate responsibility toward the community by Texasgulf. The industry's owners and management should take this opportunity to clear up any misconceptions about rules. Absentee ownership of corporations often does not guarantee an industry operates in the best interest of the community where it is located. In the case of Texasgulf, it is hoped this statement is not true; some of the industry's actions, however, indicate it is.

When Texasgulf moved to eastern North Carolina, it promised good behavior, respect for the environment and the community. Burning eyes, respiratory ailments, and allegations of damaged creeks and canals are not consistent with this pledge.

The industry should foster an attitude more consistent with being a good neighbor.

Can Of Worms

It all started as a simple straight-arrow proposition.

West German customs agents detained a Lebanese man when an examination of his baggage uncovered three wine bottles filled with methylnitrate (similar to nitroglycerin). He was subsequently identified as Mohammed Ali Hamadi, involved in the 1985 TWA hijacking and the callous murder of an American Navy serviceman. That made him a very-wanted man in the United States.

Washington notified Bonn, and because Hamadi presumably faced the death penalty here, the West German Justice Ministry said we were welcome to him if he was not given the death penalty if convicted.

No problem, said U.S. Justice Department officials; they would comply.

With that they opened a can of worms.

While details of the extradition were being worked out a West German businessman was kidnapped in Lebanon ... then another.

Now, West Germany has arrested a man believed to be the brother of the first suspect — a man who may have been directly involved in the kidnapping of West Germans.

Observers suspect the Lebanese kidnapers plan to put Bonn in a position of being so anxious to release its own abducted citizens that a trade can be worked out.

If one is to assume Hamadi was tried, convicted and sentenced to spend a lifetime in an American prison, it would be safe to speculate that the United States could be the victim of retaliatory steps by the forces of terrorism.

One can imagine implications involving the U.S. with that continuing threat of hostage-taking for the lifetime of Hamadi.

Meanwhile, West Germany is silent about the extradition action; but there can be little doubt of their government's concern for the lives of their nationals in terrorist hands.

Extraditing Hamadi to the U.S. for trial would demonstrate a united front against air piracy and accompanying terrorism. At the same time, he is but one of a small army of fanatics which is prepared to take its place in an unholy cause. The United States and the West Germans feel an obligation to protect the lives of our people.

Bonn may have been forced to determine extradition is an impossible decision for them to make. We hope Washington doesn't have to make a choice of that type.

Today's Thought

The intense emphasis on President Reagan's "performance" during his State of the Union address prompts the question of whether anybody heard what he said while watching how he acted.

Surviving The Media Events In Manila

MANILA, Philippines — Twenty-four hours into the siege by rebel soldiers at a key Manila television station Tuesday night, a longtime military observer in the Philippines surveyed the streets surrounding the complex and shook his head.

Every street was filled with hundreds of reporters, photographers and foreign television crews — far more, it seemed, than the 200 heavily armed troops occupying the broadcast station and the hundreds more civilians loyal to Ferdinand E. Marcos who tried to form a human barricade around it.

"To quote Winston Churchill," said the observer, "Never before have so many covered so few."

It was a moment of levity in an evening of tear gas, street melees and heightened fears that the military under President Corazon Aquino may once again have to use force against her people.

But the comment highlighted what may be the most serious impact of the so-far-unsuccessful attempt by Mrs. Aquino's opponents within the Philippine armed forces to take over key military and media facilities here in the capital.

For Mrs. Aquino, the most critical week of her young presidency has become more a war of images than a battle of bullets.

"What Mrs. Aquino must realize is that a government created by a media event can be destroyed by one," said Sylvestre Afable, a key aide to ousted Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, referring to the now-legendary "people's power" revolution that brought Aquino to power last Feb. 25.

In the face of a concerted effort by the nation's political left and right to destabilize Mrs. Aquino's government before next Monday's crucial constitutional referendum, both sides have staged highly visual events on an almost daily basis. And the domestic and foreign media that have flooded into this troubled city have recorded and transmitted each stark image.

The past week has added up to the most serious crisis to face Mrs. Aquino since she took power. Tear-gassing, charges by riot troops, protesters burning tires and denouncing Mrs. Aquino in the streets, and the president's own statement threatening to take a hard line against the rebel troops — all were relayed to a world and a nation that once viewed the 54-year-old former housewife as a woman of peace who rescued her nation from a brutal dictator.

What was worse, Tuesday's attempt by Marcos-loyalist troops to take over two key military bases in Manila and the Channel 7 television complex came just five days after a routine police action ended in a massacre. Mrs. Aquino's military opened fire last Thursday on 10,000 leftist peasant demonstrators, killing 19 and wounding more than 100. The images of those killings, which happened only after the peasant marchers deliberately provoked the military, also were broadcast in chilling detail worldwide.

Mrs. Aquino's advisers insist that the president is not concerned about image.

Teodoro Locsin Jr., special counsel to Mrs. Aquino and one of her top personal aides, insisted that she has no fears that her nationally broadcast statement Tuesday afternoon vowing a military assault on the TV complex would shift her image radically to the right in the eyes of her people and the world.

"She's not worried," Locsin said. "She just wants it done. I don't think the president worries about her image or the image of her government. She's just tired of all this."

In interviews with more than a dozen Philippine and foreign military sources here, though, it is clear that the recent series of attacks on the her government are part of a well-planned strategy targeted specifically at the president's image — an effort, they said, to create at least the impression that her government is unstable, if not to actually destabilize it.

"We had a recent experience," said Deputy Chief of Staff Eduardo Ermita, who led the negotiations from the government side, in a clear reference to last Thursday's shootings. "And we were afraid that lives will be lost."

Mrs. Aquino's trusted military chief of staff, Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, himself announced early Wednesday, "There is a bigger scenario than just these attempted takeovers." And Ramos issued a televised appeal through the night for unity among the armed forces and for the support of the Filipino people.

"This is just a side show to the main event," said one Western military analyst with ties to the intelligence community. "There will be more things that go bump in the night this week as we approach the (constitutional) plebiscite. And you can bet the TV cameras will be there."

Asked whether Tuesday's simultaneous attacks on the strategic installations in Manila was part of an actual attempted coup d'etat by the military, another Western military expert at the scene of the TV station siege said: "Absolutely not. What we're seeing is just another staged event to make the government look unstable."

A Message For Gadhafi

IN THE MEDITERRANEAN — The little town of Augusta lies somewhat south of Catania on the east coast of Sicily. Relatively speaking, it is not even picturesque. Apart from its petroleum refineries, it has nothing much to recommend it to anyone, but on a recent Tuesday it served a splendid purpose for Vice Adm. Kendall Moranville. He wanted to send a message.

Specifically, the admiral wanted to send a message to Libya's Col. Gadhafi. It was a message no man could fail to understand. Toward that end, Moranville put together two battle groups of the Sixth Fleet and a dozen supporting ships, and ordered them to rendezvous off Augusta. A little after noon on this particular Tuesday, they all came steaming in.

Old-timers in the fleet told me they could remember nothing quite like it since World War II. The ships formed into three columns, each of them 10 miles long. Moranville's flagship, the guided missile cruiser Belknap, headed the center column. One by one the warships came out of a hazy horizon, 35 ships in all, silent as shadows, slipping into port on a slate blue sea.

Moranville's purpose was to send a message, not of a perception of power or an image of power, but rather of the reality of power. The anchorage at Augusta was part of a week of exhausting exercises by the two battle groups. One group, headed by the aircraft carrier Kennedy, was finishing its six-month tour of duty; the other group, headed by the carrier Nimitz, was just arriving. Moranville wanted Gadhafi and the ever-present Soviets to get a good long look at the U.S. Navy in action.

It was impressive. This correspondent had applied last autumn for permission to spend a week with the 6th Fleet. The permission came through in time for me to witness the climactic visit to Augusta. It was an overwhelming experience. Our Navy's task in the Mediterranean is twofold — first to protect our own national interest in keeping these vital sea lanes open, second to meet our commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Both assignments are being met superbly.

The carrier Kennedy, commanded by Capt. John A. Moriarty, is a floating city inhabited by 6,000 officers and enlisted men. By the end of the week, they were 6,000 weary men. Over a span of three days, while aircraft were being launched and recovered, Moriarty managed to get four hours of sleep. He was not alone. His air boss, Cmdr. H.R. Bourland of San Diego, a 21-year veteran, was as active. So, too, were the hundreds of deck personnel who got the birds off and brought the pilots home.

Life on an aircraft carrier is tuned to an eerie orchestration — to the rolling thunder of the catapults as they fling the planes off the stern, to the rushing thump and whack of the steel cables as they snare the planes coming in. It is dangerous work. An aircraft shot from a catapult goes from zero to 170 miles per hour in 100 feet; the process takes 1.5 seconds. The returning plane comes in at speeds up to 150 miles per hour and shudders to a stop in one second. This correspondent has now been catapulted once and landed once, and it has done wonders for his morale but little for his digestion.

Last week's exercises saw the Kennedy operating around the clock. Daylight operations are sufficiently complex. Landing on a carrier by night is like finding a postage stamp in a parking lot. There is not much deck in a vast deal of sea, but the operations go smoothly. Meanwhile, below decks, the unseen and unsung activities go on. Twenty thousand meals have to be prepared every day; there is laundry to be done and uniforms to be repaired; the sick must be treated; mail must be handled; equipment must constantly be checked and replaced.

In some ways life on a ship of the line has changed little since the days of Lord Nelson. Enlisted personnel sleep, whenever they can sleep, deep in the bowels of the ship. Their bunks are maybe 22 inches wide, stacked three deep with perhaps a foot of headroom. All of a sailor's worldly goods must be stowed in a tiny locker. Privacy is unknown. On an ordinary day, a sailor works 12 hours plus four hours on watch. During maneuvers, he may be called to quarters at any time. Men are separated from their families for months on end. Mail call means more than most of us can imagine.

Despite the hardships, the sea seems still to hold its old allure. The Navy continues to attract top-flight recruits who tolerate loneliness and thrive on danger. It's a proud service. The taxpayers ought to be proud of it.

Strength For Today

Charles Darwin, the great naturalist, spread lime over an acre of ground and for 40 years watched and recorded the action of angle worms therein. At the end of that time he wrote a paper on the subject which remains standard even to this day.

The old adage that anything which is worth doing at all is worth doing well is often passed by with disdain because it has now become too familiar with us. Yet art and scientific advance is in large measure the capacity to take pains. Success is the reward of those who stick to business until they get a job really done.

Patience, patience, patience! Those who aspire to get somewhere in life should engrave the word on their hearts. If a project is worth sticking to, it is worth sticking to until it is finished, whether it takes an hour, a year or a lifetime.

Reagan's Vigorous Showing Won't Stop The Clamor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's brief treatment of the Iran-Contra affair in his State of the Union address failed to satisfy Republican expectations or still Democratic criticism about a subject that has sapped Americans' confidence in his truthfulness and ability to govern.

But the president was able to deal with his problem on a more personal level. He had not been seen in public since before Christmas, and questions have been raised with growing insistence over his vitality and his command of the office.

What America saw Tuesday night was the familiar, confident Reagan — smiling, fit, forceful, speaking in ebullient terms with his trademark optimism about a nation whose "best days have just begun."

In his 37-minute speech, Reagan offered no new details about the sale of arms to Tehran or the diversion of profits to Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

While proclaiming progress on other fronts, Reagan said he had "one major regret. I took a risk with regard to our action in Iran. It did not work and for that I assume full responsibility."

But he did not apologize, as some lawmakers had urged.

And, while he said that "serious mistakes were made," he did not acknowledge that he was guilty of any of them.

Despite previous statements denying any arms-for-hostages swap, Reagan linked the two initiatives in a single sentence, saying it was not wrong to try to establish contacts in Iran or to save the lives of American captives.

Reagan's advisers said the speech was intended to begin untangling the president from the Iran-Contra affair by presenting an agenda of programs that would attract attention in their own right.

But that was not the message that Republicans in Congress wanted to hear.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., had said in advance the speech was "an opportunity for the president to put to rest a lot of stories, a lot of rumors that are out there" about Iran and the Contras. He called it one of the "few opportunities left" for Reagan "to regain control of his presidency."

On the other side of Capitol Hill,

Wright, D-Texas, was quick to criticize Reagan.

"The administration's recent dealings with Iran have cast a long shadow over this country," he said. "There's a gathering sense of mistrust."

Byrd added that the administration "has the obligation to tell 'We the American People' exactly what led to the arms-for-hostage deal — and what happened to accountability in the White House."

Sketching his overall agenda in the broadest possible terms, Reagan vowed to work for arms control and fight for his Star Wars missile defense plan. On the economic front, he promised to submit legislation to make American businesses more competitive in international trade and to overhaul the welfare system with experimental programs by state and local governments.

Although he was not ready to propose a program yet, Reagan said he would offer a plan soon to help elderly Americans deal with the high costs of catastrophic illness.

Facing a Democratic-ruled Congress for the first time, Reagan spoke of cooperation but chided lawmakers about the "sorry spectacle" of their budget process, with missed deadlines and the packaging of billions of dollars into catchall spending bills.

Terence Hunt has covered Ronald Reagan since his 1980 campaign for the presidency and throughout his six years at the White House.

Norfolk Southern May Try Piedmont Takeover

By ROBERT E. DALLOS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

NEW YORK — Norfolk Southern said Tuesday that it was considering a takeover of Piedmont Aviation, owner of Piedmont Airlines, one of the few U.S. airlines that has not been involved in the merger frenzy of the last 18 months.

In a filing with Securities and Exchange Commission, Norfolk Southern, which already owns 19.4 percent of the airline, said it "should no longer be considered a passive investor" in Piedmont.

Norfolk Southern, formed in 1982 by the merger of the Norfolk & Western Railway and the Southern Railway, said it had retained an investment banking company to assist it "initially in analyzing its alternatives ... and, more recently, to advise it in connection with the possible acquisition" Although the SEC filing did not identify the investment banking firm, a lawyer for Norfolk Southern identified it late Tuesday as Salomon Bros.

Norfolk Southern, which said it already owns 3,770,428 shares of the 18.8 million shares of Piedmont outstanding, bought the stock in 1981 and had a "standstill" agreement with the airline company that prohibited it from purchasing more than 20.5 percent or disposing of its holdings in a block. That agreement expired Monday night.

Norfolk Southern, headquartered in Norfolk, Va., said it would hold discussions with Piedmont concerning its intentions. It added that there could be "no assurance" that it would make an offer for the airline, which is based in Winston-Salem, N.C.

A spokesman for Piedmont, Donald F. McGuire, said Tuesday that no acquisition offer had been received from Norfolk Southern and that any future offer would be "evaluated by the company with a view toward determining what would be in the best interests of the company and its shareholders."

Joseph B. Muldoon, railroad analyst for the Philadelphia brokerage house of Janney Montgomery Scott, calculated that Norfolk Southern would have to pay $60 per share for the remaining shares of Piedmont. That would make the deal worth about $900 million.

The acquisition of an airline by a railroad would be unique in recent aviation history. Veteran observers said the only case they could recall was the Pennsylvania Railroad's ownership of Trans World Airlines' predecessor company in the late 1920s. Passengers between New York and the West Coast in those days would fly by day and travel by railroad at night. The trip took 48 hours.

Some observers said Tuesday that while some railroads have been buying other transportation companies, such as trucking and pipeline companies, the purchase of an airline by a railroad might not be a wise move.

"I am a little at a loss about it, Muldoon said. "I would have understood it when the railroads were heavily in the passenger business but now the railroads are out of the passenger business. I don't see where the railroad would benefit that much."

Piedmont owns 159 planes, serving 113 cities in 27 states, with the center of its operations being in the Southeast. It has 18,000 employees and has been consistently profitable.

Norfolk Southern, which operates its two railroads over 17,600 miles of track in the East, South and Midwest, also owns North American Van Lines. Rail transportation of coal is the company's main source of revenue and it could well afford to buy Piedmont. As one analyst put it, Norfolk Southern is "cash rich," having withdrawn its $1.9 billion bid for the federal government's 85 percent interest in Conrail last year when Congress opposed it.

On Tuesday, Norfolk Southern reported the highest net income in its history for a full quarter and a full fiscal year. Earnings for the fourth quarter of 1986 were $144.2 million, up 20.1 percent from the $120.1 reported for the same quarter in 1985. For all of 1986, earnings were $518.7 million, up 3.7 percent over the $500.2 million the previous year.

WINTER SCENE — Table Rock Mountain in Burke County stands above the snow-laden trees after nearly 18 inches of snow accumulated during the past week. About 2 inches of new snow fell across the mountains early to

Bookkeeper Gets 30-Year Sentence In Embezzlement

By The Associated Press

A Sanford bookkeeper who donated thousands of dollars to conservative political candidates and television evangelists has been sentenced to 30 years in prison for embezzling $2.25 million from his company over 4½ years.

Prosecutors say Lawson W. Barber, 48, used one-third to half the money he embezzled from Cigar Supply Co. to invest in the stock market, where he lost about $850,000.

Assistant District Attorney Eddie S. Winstead III said the remainder was spent on personal purchases, gifts to his family and contributions to politicians and evangelists.

Winstead told the News and Observer of Raleigh Barber drew a salary of $24,000 from the tobacco processing company, but lived in a $200,000 house with two tennis courts and a swimming pool.

He said Barber took 86 percent of the company's profits during one year alone.

"The sheer volume was astounding," Winstead said. "Our first reaction, we laughed. We didn't know what else to do. Somebody comes in and tells me 'We've been ripped off for $2.25 million.' you either laugh or cry."

Barber was sentenced in Lee County Superior Court by Judge D.B. Herring Jr. Thursday after pleading guilty to 53 counts of embezzlement. He faced a maximum sentence of 530 years.

Winstead said he could be eligible for parole in seven or eight years.

Barber's diversion went undetected for 4½ years because he was the sole bookkeeper in the Sanford office, Winstead said. Company president H. Aubrey Ford Jr. discovered the diverted funds in October, Winstead said, after looking at a balance sheet listing expenditures Ford knew the company had not made.

Barber, who co-chaired U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms' 1984 re-election campaign in Lee County, contributed money to the campaigns of Helms, U.S. Senate hopeful David Funderburk and Gov. Jim Martin, Winstead said. He also gave money to the National Congressional Club, Helms' political organization, and The Landmark newspaper, which has espoused conservative causes, Winstead said.

Barber also was a former member of the executive committees of the Lee County Republican Party and the 3rd Congressional District Republican Party.

Abandoned Baby Responding To Treatment, Temperature Up

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — A newborn baby abandoned in 6 inches of snow under the steps at a Rowan County church had a temperature so low it would not register on a thermometer, but hospital officials say the infant is back to normal.

"Her temperature this morning was 98.6 degrees," John Campbell, a spokesman at Rowan Memorial Hospital, said Tuesday. He said the infant is registered as Baby Jane Doe.

The mother, an 18-year-old who has not been identified, was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday. Campbell said the mother came to the hospital complaining of abdominal pains after the baby was brought in. It was determined through examination and questioning that she was the infant's mother, he said.

No charges have been filed against the mother, but the case was turned over to the Rowan County district attorney's office, where Janet Ward Black said Tuesday that a preliminary investigation was continuing.

Officer R.A. Hillard found the 7-pound, 3-ounce infant under the outside stairs at Gethsemane Baptist Church. She was wrapped in what appeared to be half of a purple nylon nightgown and a small white hand towel. Hillard, the father of a 3-year-old, placed the child inside his uniform shirt.

He carried the baby to his patrol car, warmed it with the patrol car's heater and wrapped her in his jacket until an ambulance arrived.

"The rags were soaked with moisture. The baby was cold. I put my finger in the palm of her hand and she closed her hand on it. I knew she was alive," Hillard said.

The police department received an anonymous call at 1:47 p.m. saying that a child was lost in the area of the church.

Southeast Compact Agrees To Choose Next Waste Site

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Southeast Compact Commission has agreed to consider selecting the state that will provide a regional low-level radioactive waste facility after North Carolina fulfills its 20-year obligation in 2012.

The commission agreed to have a subcommittee look for a timetable for choosing the next host state after N.C. Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, said the action might make North Carolina more willing to accept the waste site.

"I think a great deal of assurance could come from the presence of the ongoing host-site designation of the next state," said Miller, who reminded the commission that efforts would be mounted to take North Carolina out of the compact after the General Assembly convenes Feb. 9.

Bill Holman, a spokesman for the North Carolina Sierra Club and the Conservation Council of North Carolina, suggested the commission consider putting all six of the remaining states in order and having each choose a state site. South Carolina is exempt because it currently hosts a site, leaving Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee and Florida.

"It may make a lot of sense for states to go ahead and reserve sites and make sure they are not developed by other things," Holman told the panel. "The compact is predicated on the idea that every state has a suitable site and that every state is going to take its turn."

Holman said most environmentalists remain opposed to the waste compact, but he said "our second line of defense" is to make sure North Carolina is treated fairly in taking over when Barnwell, S.C., stops taking waste in 1992.

"Identifying the next state may be the best way to test the good faith of the member states," Holman said in an interview.

South Carolina commissioner William Newberry argued against jumping into the next choice, although he said, "I understand the political time pressures."

"Now we have the luxury of taking some time where before we were locked in by statute," he said, but he added that changes in the amount of waste generated and waste-handling technology could alter the order of states chosen.

Tennessee representative Ben Smith said the third state could be saddled with huge amounts of radioactive waste because many nuclear reactors may be decommissioned early in the 21st century.

But Bill Briner, the second N.C. commissioner, said a third state might be needed much sooner than expected if North Carolina refuses to be the next host and leaves the compact. He said waste reduction efforts have hit a plateau and that the criteria used to choose North Carolina should be good enough for any other state.

Also at issue are efforts to find legal ways to keep states in the compact. Miller said the commission will retain counsel to study the legality of penalties for states that might leave the compact holding the radioactive bag.

Release

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County Commissioner Bob Walton will be released from the county jail on Friday, after the N.C. Parole Commission decided he would serve only 15 days of a 30-day sentence.

Walton, a 42-year-old minister, was sentenced to the maximum 30 days in jail after being convicted Jan. 16 of assaulting an 18-year-old during a homosexual encounter.

Walton is in an eight-man medical cell with other prisoners because he requires insulin for diabetes.

Under a good behavior policy, Kidd said, Walton would be released after serving half his sentence, or 15 days.

Violation

WILMINGTON (AP) — A former Carolina Beach resident has been awarded $133,000 in damages by a federal jury that ruled her rights were violated when she was charged with child abuse without probable cause and falsely imprisoned.

Diana Sevigny was living in Carolina Beach with her two small sons in 1984 when her 3½-year-old son slipped away from her and climbed into her car. He found the keys and started the ignition, causing the car to lurch forward into the garage at her condominium.

She said she called police to file an accident report for insurance purposes.

Carolina Beach police Sgt. Andrew Dickson arrived to take the report but didn't believe her story, he testified. He arrested her for misdemeanor child abuse and property damage, put her in jail and called the Department of Social Services which arranged to have her children placed in the care of a friend of Ms. Sevigny.

The criminal charges against Ms. Sevigny were later dismissed because there was no evidence to support the charges, Assistant District Attorney John Carriker testified. DSS officials, who also testified on Ms. Sevigny's behalf, said they quickly determined that no evidence of child abuse existed and reunited the family.

Double Deaths

COLUMBUS, N.C. (AP) — A Columbus couple was found shot to death in a pickup truck Tuesday in rural Polk County in what investigators believe was a murder-suicide.

Dead were Ronald M. Price, 32, of Route 1, and Patricia P. Price, 28. A deputy found the bodies about 3:15 a.m. in an idling pickup truck parked in the middle of N.C. 9 near the intersection of N.C. 108 in the Mill Spring community, Polk County Sheriff Boyce L. Carswell said Tuesday.

Mrs. Price, who was sitting in the driver's seat, had been shot once in the right side and once in the head. Price was sitting on the passenger side and appeared to have shot himself once in the head, Carswell said.

Death Sentence

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Jerry Ray Cummings, an illiterate high school dropout, was sentenced to death Tuesday by a Robeson County Superior Court jury for the August 1986 slaying of his elderly neighbor, who was shot after an argument over a dog.

The jury deliberated 55 minutes before imposing a death sentence for Cummings in the slaying of Jesse Ward, 76, of Route 2, Maxton. On Monday, the jury found him guilty of first-degree murder.

Two Killed

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — A 5-year-old boy and his 3-year-old brother died in an apartment fire Monday while their mother was checking her mail and borrowing detergent, authorities said.

Damien Mungro, 5, and Christopher Mungro, 3, died in the blaze. Neighbors kicked down the door to the apartment, but were unable to enter because of flames and smoke.

Firefighters, who controlled the fire within five minutes, found the two boys dead on the floor near the windows.

Divestiture

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina State University Faculty Senate has refused to consider a resolution urging NCSU endowment trustees to divest all university holdings in companies that do business in South Africa.

The 15-13 vote Tuesday came on a proposal to suspend rules so that the divestiture resolution could be considered Tuesday instead of being routed to a committee for consideration. NCSU's holdings in companies that do business in South Africa were estimated in November at $1.2 million.

Divestiture supporters had wanted the faculty to take a position on the issue before the endowment board considers divestiture at its meeting Feb. 6.

Rather than demand divestiture, as student groups recently have done, the faculty agreed to tell the endowment board that the faculty condemns apartheid.

Belhaven Museum Offers Potpourri Of Treasures, Real And Imagined

By MIKE HUGHES
Washington Daily News
BELHAVEN, N.C. (AP) — It may just be the only place in North Carolina where you can find a 100-million-year-old petrified mammoth tusk displayed under the same roof as a jar containing a two-headed kitten and an eight-legged pig.

The Belhaven Memorial Museum, located in the old Town Hall in this eastern Beaufort County town, is a repository for local treasures — from the mundane to the inane to the unquestionably historic.

There is a display of Confederate money here, not far from a collection of rattlesnake skins. Nearby are china dolls, typewriters, cameras, military uniforms, freak mutations from the animal kingdom, old medicines, wedding gowns and kitchen gadgets, things too numerous and varied to take in during an afternoon visit.

Every item has a story. There's a power drill that belonged to Sam Richard Pespess, who was electrocuted on June 28, 1974, when he turned on the drill while standing in water in his boat.

There is a snake's skeleton with an oval bulge near its tail. A card next to the exhibit explains that the hungry snake was enticed to consume a wooden egg, which proved its undoing.

There is what looks like an olive green pup tent pinned to a wall. "This dress was worn by a lady weighing 700 pounds," a card says. "Fannie Chauncey Hill."

Sharing a shelf nearby are a century-old hearing aid, a model of a World War II B-26 airplane and a couple of "dressed fleas," which must be viewed through a magnifying glass to be seen.

There is a jarred 10-pound tumor that was removed from a woman at Pungo District Hospital. There are toenails and tonsils of local folks. There is a necklace made of a snake's backbone, a necktie made of snakeskin. There are flowers woven from human hair and goggles to keep the sand out of a horse's eyes.

There is a collection of rattles from 34 snakes, a basket fashioned from an armadillo's hide, a tea kettle made from a copper penny and a display of 50-year-old canned foods, including "possum & tatoes."

"There's some weird stuff here. You'd better believe that," says Kathleen Waters of Free Union, one of two curators who tend the museum four hours a day, seven days a week.

The museum was the brainchild and lifelong collection of Eva Blount Way of Belhaven, who died in 1962 at the age of 92. She was noted by her contemporaries as a woman who persisted in all her endeavors and rarely threw out anything.

Stories about her are plentiful. One tale has it that a bear ate four acres of Mrs. Way's corn before she could catch him in a trap.

She got the last laugh, the story goes, because she served bear meat for the next year, used the skin and cut off a claw for her collection.

By 1940, Mrs. Way's collection of buttons and other items had become so well known that she was compelled to open her home to the curious. Over the next 20 years, she averaged 500 tours a year.

When she died, she left thousands of items to her five children, who did not share her zeal for collecting.

Her youngest daughter, Catherine Way Wilkinson, began selling individual items and splitting the money with her brothers and sisters.

In 1964, Mrs. Wilkinson agreed to sell the entire collection for $3,000 to a museum owner from Ocracoke.

Effie Ray Goff and Melba Smith of Belhaven heard about the impending sale and organized a fund drive to buy the collection and keep it in town.

In 1965, the museum opened in a storefront in Belhaven. Then in 1967, when the town's fire house was converted to the town hall, the museum was moved to its present home, where it has become a stop on the Historic Albemarle Tour.

The museum now attracts between 3,000 and 5,000 visitors each year.

Donations to the museum don't come as often as they used to, Mrs. Waters says, but every now and then someone stops by with something out-of-the-ordinary.

Among the displays are Mrs. Way's 30,000 buttons, which she began collecting before the turn of the century. She created designs with them, using discarded hosiery boxes.

Atop a vitamin box covered with small buttons, Mrs. Way explained the benefits she found in collecting.

"Vitamins — Directions: Take one peep every day. Take a good look on Sunday. Guaranteed to cure the blues, mental troubles, high blood pressure, all caused from worry. Take a tip from me. Get a hobby. Find some vitamins to live with. They are a wonderful cure for many ills."

WHALE STUDY — Charlie Potter, member of a Smithsonian Institution team, examines the jawbone of a 55-foot sperm whale that washed ashore last week at Hatteras Inlet. The team abandoned its study of the whale after finding that its skull was badly damaged, making it unsuitable for use as a museum specimen. No reason has been given for the whale's injury. Hart Speaks At Duke

DURHAM (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart called Tuesday night for competency testing of teachers, voluntary tutoring by college students to combat illiteracy, and joint public and private funding as part of a program of educational reforms.

Hart spoke to more than 1,000 people in Duke University's Page Auditorium.

The former U.S. senator from Colorado said the U.S. education system is "racing toward obsolescence" and criticized the Reagan administration's 1988 budget, which proposes reducing the national investment in education for the seventh straight year.

Hart, 50, said his proposals could be financed in part through an oil import tariff that would generate $18 billion annually, while helping wean the country from Middle East oil. The money could also be used to reduce the national debt and pay heating costs for the poor, he said.

He recited a list of problems besieging American education: 20 million functionally illiterate Americans; a 40 percent dropout rate among minority students; and American twelfth graders scoring below comparable students of 15 industrialized nations.

Workers' Pay Hikes Decline

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American workers received wage increases averaging 3.5 percent in 1986, down from the 4.4 percent average a year earlier, but more employers gave lump-sum bonuses instead of higher weekly paychecks, government figures show.

For the fourth year in a row, non-union workers in 1986 won larger percentage wage gains, 3.6 percent, than union members, 2.1 percent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Tuesday.

But unionized workers earn more, and BLS analysts said there was little indication that the dollar gap between union and non-union workers was narrowing significantly.

That average gap was $104 per week in 1985, with weekly earnings for union members averaging $419, compared with average weekly earnings of $315 for non-union workers. Figures on those comparisons in 1986 have not yet been released by the government.

Also, about 40 percent of the workers covered in major collective bargaining settlements negotiated in 1986 received lump-sum bonuses ranging up to $4,000, the bureau said. Those lump-sum payments also are not included in its wage calculations.

Teachers continued to enjoy the largest average pay gains, 5.9 percent last year on top of the 6.1 percent increase they received in 1985. State and local government workers were second with pay raises averaging 5.4 percent in 1986, compared with 5.6 percent the previous year.

Workers in private industry received pay increases averaging 3.2 percent in 1986, down from 3.9 percent the previous years.

Manufacturing workers, however, fared better in 1986 than those in the rapidly expanding service sectors of the economy — just the opposite of what occurred in 1985.

The Labor Department said pay increases for service workers were dampened by the 1.3 percent average wage gains in the deregulated transportation industry, including large pay decreases among airline workers.

The size of raises also dropped sharply in the finance, real estate and insurance businesses, from an average 9.2 percent in 1985, to 2.8 percent last year.

Arson Cited For Flames At Prison

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Arson has been blamed for a smoky blaze that routed hundreds of inmates, caused fights among prisoners and guards and prompted some convicts to set fire to outdoor picnic tables to stay warm, authorities said.

Officials initially said Tuesday's pre-dawn fire appeared to be an accident, but a city investigator said later it was set.

"We've ruled out all natural and accidental causes," said Assistant Fire Chief Kevin Mellott. He did not speculate about who might have set the first of several fires.

At least 25 inmates and three guards were injured from fighting or suffered smoke inhalation before the initial fire and several others were extinguished, said Thomas Seiverling, spokesman for the 105-year-old State Correctional Institution at Pittsburgh.

Inmates hurled bricks at firefighters as they battled the blaze, officials said.

The maximum-security prison, also known as Western Pen, is undergoing a $20 million renovation, including construction of new cell blocks. About 1,600 prisoners are crowded into cells designed to hold 1,100, Seiverling said.

The first fire began in seat cushions in an underground utility tunnel used for storage, and Seiverling had said that inmates normally did not have access to the tunnels.

Smoke forced officials to evacuate 700 to 800 inmates from the prison's two main cell blocks to an outdoor yard. By early afternoon, all the inmates had been returned to their cells, officials said.

"Some inmates were willing to take advantage of the situation," Seiverling said.

Inmates fought with guards and each other during the evacuation, setting fires in eight cells and three other areas of the prison, said Charlie Dickinson, an assistant fire chief.

Another fire, which heavily damaged an auditorium, began two hours after officials declared the emergency under control.

"The exact sequence of things is not clear ... and probably won't be for some time," Seiverling said.

About 200 inmates who had been placed in the auditorium without supervision barricaded themselves inside and left only after fire broke out, he said.

Homeless Get Aid In House

By JOSH GETLIN
 L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — House Democratic leaders, citing a national emergency for the homeless caused by an unusually harsh winter, won quick approval Tuesday for legislation providing an extra $50 million to build shelters and feed displaced people in cities across the nation.

The bill, which was approved 296-79, now goes to the Senate, where Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, predicted swift passage. However, sponsors may be on a collision course with the White House, which has opposed the proposal as too expensive.

Although the vote was strongly bipartisan, Democrats were quick to portray it as an example of their new determination to "set the nation's legislative agenda," according to Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the House's third-ranking Democrat. Coelho, saying that it was a coincidence that Democrats had unveiled the new homeless initiative hours before President Reagan was to deliver his annual State of the Union address, added, "We're not trying to pre-empt him... this is our issue."

Several congressmen, noting that four homeless people recently died of hypothermia on the streets of Los Angeles, said that the $50 million allocation was of particular importance to California.

Rep. Julian Dixon, D-Calif., noting that his state has the nation's largest number of homeless people, said that community organizations trying to aid the homeless in Los Angeles and other communities were doing a good job, but had simply run out of money.

"Mother nature recently dealt Los Angeles a hard blow, with some of the coldest winter weather in years, and we had those (four) tragedies," he said. "This $50 million allocation is not nearly enough to meet all the needs of the homeless, but it's a start."

Dixon added that the bill was not creating a new layer of bureaucracy, but merely infusing extra money into existing programs. Meanwhile, Congress would begin work on legislation providing long-term assistance to the homeless, he said.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said that the legislation could provide urgently needed funds within a matter of weeks, provided Reagan signs the measure. But if there is opposition, he added, "we could be looking at an even bigger tragedy than we already have... we might have more of the homeless dying."

Under the proposed bill, $50 million would be added to the $70 million already allocated this year to the Emergency Food and Shelter Program. The new funds would be taken from the federal government's Disaster Relief program, which provides low-cost loans and other assistance to victims of natural disasters, and made available to groups that distribute aid to the homeless, including the American Red Cross, United Way and Catholic Charities.

White House officials said that they support help for the homeless, but stressed that the federal government already has spent $370 million to date on the emergency homeless program, which since 1983 has provided funds for soup kitchens, food banks and emergency shelters.

A spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget said Tuesday that the additional funding was fiscally irresponsible and not likely to reach the homeless in time to make a difference this winter. He also criticized switching funds from the disaster relief program, saying that it could deplete an important program and set a bad precedent for the "raiding" of special funds.

Study Says UFO May Be Jupiter

NEW YORK (AP) — Astronomical calculations show that a Japan Air Lines pilot who claimed to see an unidentified flying object over Alaska last November was actually looking at Jupiter and possibly Mars, says a new report.

"This is not the first time that an experienced pilot has mistaken a bright celestial body for a UFO, nor will it be the last," said the report by Philip J. Klass, a longtime investigator of claimed UFO sightings.

"Jupiter was only 10 degrees above the horizon, making it appear to the pilot to be roughly at his own 35,000-foot altitude," the report said.

The planet also was unusually bright, and located exactly where the pilot said he saw the UFO. The pilot, Capt. Kenju Terauchi, never mentioned seeing Jupiter or Mars.

Mars was just below and to the right of Jupiter, and may explain Terauchi's initial report that he saw two lights, Klass said.

Klass said Tuesday he has found, in hundreds of UFO investigations, that "they've all turned out to have prosaic explanations." He spoke in a telephone interview from Colorado, where he is vacationing.

Democrats Challenge Competence Of Reagan To Handle Arms Affair

By JOHN BALZAR
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, responding on behalf of Democrats to the president's State of the Union address Tuesday night, questioned the competence of the administration in the Iran-arms affair and warned of "a gathering sense of mistrust" across the nation.

The West Virginia senator called for a complete accounting of the Iran-arms scandal. "The administration has the obligation to tell the American people exactly what led to the arms-for-hostages deal — and what happened to accountability in the White House," he said.

Byrd's comments, prepared for delivery to a nationwide television audience, were his strongest to date on the subject of clandestine arms sales to Iran, although the senator seemed to aim his attack more at the Reagan administration in broad terms rather than at the president himself.

"The sale of arms to Iran, in direct contradiction to our stated foreign policy, raises real questions about trust," Byrd said. "But it also raises real doubts about competence. Without competence — and a good measure of common sense — government will have a tough time earning the nation's trust..."

"That's why so many find the Iranian affair so troubling. It was a breach of faith both here and abroad."

Sharing platform for the Democratic response to Reagan, House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas focused on domestic policies. Wright described a bleak picture of a nation caught in "a disturbing new reality — not upward mobility but downward mobility."

"The average 30-year-old American today is making 26 percent less than his older brother did just 10 years ago. The average 45-year-old couple is finding it harder, not easier, to send their children to college."

Wright suggested a vast reordering of national priorities to emphasize education and the preservation of family farms, as well as aggressive — but largely unspecified — policies to reduce U.S. trade and budget deficits.

"The president sometimes likes to criticize Congress for what he calls 'big spending,'" Wright said. But, the Speaker added, thanks to congressional reductions in proposed defense spending, "the plain truth is that for the six years of this administration, Congress actually has appropriated less in total spending than Mr. Reagan has asked us to appropriate."

"The basic disagreement is not over how much to spend. It's where to spend it, what we get for it and who pays the bill, ourselves or our children."

Just as Reagan has successfully communicated his ideas over the years by casting them in terms of specific human examples, Wright described the $200 billion federal budget deficit as a problem for grandfathers to confront with one another.

"Mr. President, you and I both have grandchildren. We need to stop sending them our bills," Wright said.

Reagan Urges Farm Policy Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is pressing Congress for major changes in farm policy, despite negative rumblings from the lawmakers.

In papers accompanying his State of the Union message, Reagan on Tuesday outlined proposals he said were designed to discourage excess crop production, promote fairness and cut costs.

Reagan said in his address to Congress that the administration would take steps to give "our farmers a shot at participating fairly and fully in a changing world market."

He also described farm exports as a component of the international "competitiveness" concept that is finding favor in Congress as it strives to get a handle on the complex trade issue.

As outlined by the White House, Reagan's farm proposals resembled those unveiled earlier this month in the president's fiscal 1988 budget. It already has encountered problems on Capitol Hill.

Major cuts in target prices, which form the basis of major farm subsidies, are unlikely to win approval in Congress, lawmakers told Agriculture

Secretary Richard Lyng at a Senate Budget Committee hearing last week.

While those warnings came primarily from Democrats, some farm state Republicans have expressed concern about the magnitude of Reagan's plan. He proposes to cut target prices for wheat, cotton, rice and feedgrains by 10 percent a year.

His plan also involves ending the system under which the biggest government payments go to farmers who produce the most. The administration calls that an "incentive to overproduce" and thus add to surpluses.

The plan envisions a redress of the sugar support program that the administration contends is unfair to consumers and encourages overproduction.

Reagan's program would limit direct payments to $50,000 per individual and rules would be tightened to prevent abuses.

Such a step was needed because 15 percent of farm payments go to 2 percent of the farmers and some individuals have "set up artificial corporations and partnerships to qualify for extra payments," the administration said.

Actually, payments already are limited to $50,000 for each individual, but there have been notable exceptions, under which payments to a few large agribusiness concerns have been in the millions of dollars.

In the realm of farm exports, the White House is continuing to sound its free-market theme, vowing to bring down the price of American commodities while pushing trading partners to remove agricultural subsidies.

"The reforms in the president's plan will be successful only if there is international agreement to remove government interference in agriculture," the White House said. It also set a goal of greater flexibility in setting rates for price-support loans. It said that would "help make our wheat, feedgrain and soybeans more competitive in world markets."

Such measures would reverse a trend in which farm exports sank from $44 billion in 1981 to a 10-year low of $26 billion this year, it said.

'We The People' Makes Difference For United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just three words, says President Reagan, distinguish the Constitution of the United States from all other constitutions: "We the people."

"In those other constitutions, the government tells the people what they are allowed to do," he said. "In our Constitution, we the people tell the government what it can do and that it can do only those things listed in that document and no others."

Reagan closed his State of the Union address Tuesday in the year the 200th anniversary of the Constitution is being celebrated with a personal, patriotic tribute to the Constitution — and for plain people, like his mother.

"Here, in America we the people are charge," he said.

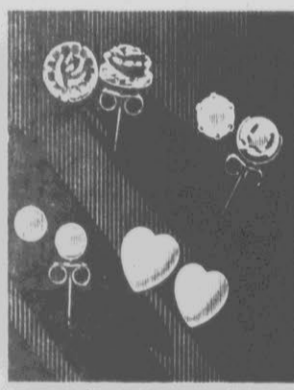

"Just three words: We the people."

"Those are the kids on Christmas Day looking out from a frozen sentry post on the 37th Parallel or aboard an aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean. A million miles from home. But doing their duty."

"We the people. Those are the warm-hearted whose numbers we can't begin to count who'll begin the day with a little prayer for hostages they will never know and MIA families they will never meet. Why? Because that's the way we are, this unique breed we call Americans."

"We the people. They're farmers on tough times, but who never stop feeding a hungry world. They're the volunteers at the hospital choking back their tears for the hundredth time caring for a baby struggling for life because of a mother who used drugs. And you'll forgive me a special memory — it's a million mothers like Nelle Reagan who never knew a stranger or turned a hungry person away from her kitchen."

"We the people. They refute last week's television commentary downgrading our optimism and idealism. They are the entrepreneurs, the builders, the pioneers, and a lot of regular folks — the true heroes of our land who make up the most uncommon nation of doers in history."

Murdered Nun Left Legacy Of Compassion

By GARY LANGER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After four decades of good works, Sister Virginia Thomann heeded a call to counsel homeless men in the South Bronx and found joy in her new ministry. But too soon, death found her.

While in the office of a church-run men's shelter, the 65-year-old Roman Catholic nun was stabbed four times in the neck and died last weekend, just four months after she started work there.

A former shelter resident, Norberto Torres, was arrested Tuesday on charges of second-degree murder in the death. Torres, 19, had been expelled Saturday for violating the rules at My Brother's Place, a three-story brownstone residence, police said.

Grief has gripped Sister Thomann's friends and associates, but they console themselves with the legacy of loving care that survives her.

"She was such a gentle person, so warm and so caring," said Sister Mary Pauline Bilbrough, regional director of Sister Thomann's religious order. "She was a hard worker. And she did a lot of work in her lifetime."

Sister Thomann joined the Order of the Good Shepherd in 1945 and spent her life fulfilling her vows of human service at child- and health-care centers in Philadelphia. She worked for seven years, until last fall, caring for ailing Jesuits in an infirmary at their residence, the Loyola Center in Philadelphia.

"She was constantly thinking of others — not just the sick but everyone around her," recalled Sister Mary Inez Fitzpatrick, head of the 13-bed infirmary. "She was unique in her willingness to sacrifice herself."

Trained as a nurse, Sister Thomann volunteered to answer phones at a pregnancy counseling service, Sister Fitzpatrick said.

When some of the priests she had been caring for died last year, Sister Thomann felt the urge to move on, Sister Bilbrough said. "She was looking for a ministry change."

She found it through a Catholic magazine's feature article on My Brother's Place, shelters in Brooklyn and the South Bronx for young, homeless men. She visited the Bronx shelter in September.

"As soon as she walked in the door she felt that this was where God wanted her to be," said Mark Redmond, the shelters' program director. "She told me she'd been praying to the Blessed Mother to guide her to her ministry, and she felt that she had been guided right here."

Within a month she joined the three other staff members living at the shelter, working as receptionist and bookkeeper and organizing voluntary religious services for the 12 residents, all recovering alcoholics or drug addicts.

"She was one of the most beautiful people I have ever met — a very, very spiritual person," said Sister Patricia Moore, a fellow staff member.

A small and soft-spoken woman, Sister Thomann attacked her work with great spirit, Sister Moore said. "She'd go all day and half the night. She just had a wonderful attitude about everything."

Sister Thomann wrote to her old associates to say she was "very, very happy" with her new work, recalled Sister Bilbrough, in Silver Spring, Md.

"She loved it," said Redmond. "Not long ago she announced to us how glad she was to be there. She loved being with people at the bottom rung, and helping them create a better life for themselves."

But her newfound joy was snuffed out Sunday night. Police said she was fatally stabbed in the neck while sitting at her desk in her basement office.

The suspect, Torres, had been expelled the day before because he was using drugs and didn't pay a portion of his salary to the shelter, both violations of its rules, police said.

"It is a real tragedy. To die that way is awful," said Bishop Francisco Garmendia, vicar of the South Bronx. "But from the other hand, if you look at it with the eyes of faith, you see a tremendous example for all of us."

"She was very much like Christ," said Garmendia, who eulogized the nun at a service Monday night. "Christ gave his life for the sinners. He was living with the sinners. And so was she, this sister, working with these homeless people."

In her death was another telling example of how Sister Thomann lived her life. Residents found her body at 12:30 a.m. Monday when they returned from watching the Super Bowl at another men's shelter. They thought to check her office because the door had been closed behind her.

Sister Thomann, they said, always left the door open.

Liberace Reported Gravely Ill At Home

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Liberace is gravely ill from anemia, emphysema and heart disease but resting comfortably at his home here, a publicist says.

The flashy 67-year-old pianist, known by the trademark candelabra atop his piano, was under the care of doctors at his desert home, according to a statement by New York publicist Denise Collier.

"It is my great regret to inform you that Liberace is gravely ill with pernicious anemia, complicated by advanced emphysema and heart disease," she said Tuesday.

"Liberace is resting comfortably at his home ... and is sincerely appreciative of the hundreds of get-well wishes and prayers he has received from his fans."

Asked if Liberace's illness was a complication of AIDS, Collier said: "All I know is this statement. He's only being treated for emphysema and heart disease. It seems to me that all this is heavy enough."

Liberace's manager, Seymour Heller, angrily denied persistent reports that Liberace has AIDS, including a story in the Las Vegas (Nev.) Sun. The newspaper based its report on unidentified sources.

"The statement (from Collier) is it. There is nothing else, and anything else is vicious rumor," Heller said Tuesday.

He said the statement was made after consultation with Liberace's physicians, and so was more detailed than his own account Monday.

Nicaragua Frees U.S. Mercenary

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sam Nesley Hall, a self-styled American soldier of fortune accused of spying in Nicaragua, was released from custody and allowed to leave the country today because he is mentally unstable, the Sandinista government said.

Hall, the brother of U.S. Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, was brought to Sandino International Airport on the outskirts of the capital and put aboard an Aeronica national airlines flight for San Jose, Costa Rica. Aeronica is the government-run airline of Nicaragua.

Dressed in a pink shirt and brown trousers, Hall was taken to the airport by Sandinista security agents and turned over to U.S. Vice Consul Luis Moreno. Hall then boarded the aircraft, where he met by family lawyer Gary Froelich of Dayton, Ohio, who arrived in Managua on Monday night.

Hall's travel plans from San Jose were not immediately known, but there are several daily flights from the Costa Rican capital to Miami.

Javier Chamorro Mora, deputy foreign minister, told a news conference Tuesday night that Hall was being released "so he may be taken to the United States and receive adequate treatment at a specialized institution."

Hall was "carrying out acts of intelligence and sabotage, according to his own statements," Chamorro said.

Soviets Expect Top-Level Changes In Politburo

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party Central Committee reconvened today and was expected to make changes in the ruling Politburo following Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's call for replacement of aging party leaders.

The official news agency Tass said the plenary session began work at 10 a.m. to discuss the speech Gorbachev delivered before the committee's opening session Tuesday.

Gorbachev's address focused on personnel issues. He called for changes in the way some senior party officials are elected and suggested creation of a mechanism for replacing aging members of the Politburo, secretariat and Central Committee.

There was no official word on when the Central Committee meeting would end and it was possible it would continue into Thursday.

Personnel shifts at the top of the party hierarchy always are announced at the close of such meetings, held roughly every six months.

The removal of Politburo member Dinmukhamed A. Kunaev was widely predicted following his ouster Dec.

16 as party chief in the republic of Kazakhstan. naev was replaced by an ethnic Russian, Gennady Kolbin, sparking nationalist student riots in the Kazakhstan capital, Alma Ata.

There also were rumors of other impending Politburo changes, as there are before all plenums, but none could be confirmed reliably.

The Central Committee, which has more than 300 members, represents the top leadership of the party in Moscow and the 15 Soviet republics.

While the Politburo runs the country day to day, the ruling body needs the backing of the powerful committee members to carry out major political or economic programs.

In his speech, Gorbachev lashed out at what he called the "conceit and complacency" of officials who oppose his program of reform, aimed at modernizing Soviet industry, rejuvenating the bureaucracy and easing some of the traditional restrictions on arts and letters.

Gorbachev proposed multiple-candidate elections for party secretaries from the factory level to the central committees of the nation's republics.

He also said the party needs a way to bring new blood into the Politburo and Secretariat without the damaging power struggles that have accompanied such changes in the past.

Under the late Leonid I. Brezhnev, Politburo and Secretariat posts became virtual lifetime sinecures.

Gorbachev said that because there was no history of regular changes in the Politburo, Secretariat, Central Committee and ministerial posts, his administration had to make sweeping changes in a relatively short period — less than two years.

"This cannot and should not be repeated," Gorbachev said.

He also called for a change in the traditional system by which executive organs, such as the staff of the Central Committee, dominate elected bodies.

Gorbachev did not explain how he planned to carry out these changes, fraught with potential political risk. He stopped well short of suggesting that multiple-candidate elections be used to pick the membership of the Central Committee or the Politburo.

And he said the system of "rule from the top" would remain in place. "Of course," he said, "the principle of the party rules, under which the decisions of higher bodies are compulsory for all lower party committees, including those on personnel matters, should remain unshakable in the party."

Soviets Capture Japanese Vessel

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese fishing boat with 23 crew members was captured by Soviet patrol vessels after allegedly fishing within banned areas of the Soviet Union's 200-mile economic zone, maritime authorities said today.

The Foreign Ministry said the crewmen faced trial on charges of illegal operations and ignoring a Soviet order to stop. It said the crew members were reported in good health but gave no other details of the incident.

Under bilateral agreements reached between Japan and the Soviet Union last December, Japanese fishing boats are allowed to operate in limited portions of the Soviet economic zone.

Akihito Saito of the Maritime Safety Agency's regional headquarters at Shiogama, northeastern Japan, said the 349-ton vessel No. 15 Kyowa-Marui was seized Saturday.

It was fishing about 70 miles south of Paramushir, a small island off the tip of the Soviets' Kamchatka Peninsula, he said. Twenty-three crewmen, including skipper Yasushi Anka, were aboard.

Other fishing boats nearby said the Japanese trawler was taken to Severo Kurilsk, a port on Paramushir, Saito said.

The Soviet Embassy said it had no comment.

The No. 15 Kyowa-Marui left its base at Kushiro on Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, last Wednesday to catch Alaskan pollack and flatfish, Saito said.

Last year, the Soviet Union seized nine Japanese fishing boats carrying a total of 67 crew members. It still holds one boat and three crewmen.

U.S. Gains Listening Post With Mongolian Contact

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — In establishing relations with Mongolia, the United States gains a diplomatic listening post at a key point of tension between the Soviet Union and China.

Mongolia, twice the size of Texas but with a population of only 1.9 million, is sandwiched between the two Communist giants and closely allied with Moscow. About 38,000 Soviet troops are stationed in Mongolia, with comparable numbers of Chinese troops across its southern frontier.

The United States and Mongolia signed an agreement Tuesday in Washington establishing relations following secret negotiations at the United Nations.

The signing ceremony came 12 days after the Soviet Union announced it was withdrawing an infantry unit and some support troops from Mongolia. The U.S. State Department estimated about 10,000 troops were being pulled out.

State Department officials said Kremlin approval probably was needed for Mongolia to open relations with the United States. But Mongolia's top diplomat at the United Nations denied that.

"It was our decision," Ambassador Gendegin Nyamdoo said. "We sometimes consult (with the Soviets) on very important issues, and I don't mean establishment of diplomatic relations. This does not mean we are dependent on the Soviet Union."

A Soviet diplomat stressed his country's friendly relations with Mongolia, but said, "Mongolia is an independent and sovereign country."

"It's up to her government to decide when and with whom to establish relations," said Mikhail Bely, a counselor of the Soviet Mission.

Baby Lives For 3 Days

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — An infant boy whose mother died giving birth survived three days next to her body before being found by a neighbor, officials said.

The 6-pound, 13-ounce baby was reported hospitalized in satisfactory condition today.

The baby was found Monday in a bedroom in an apartment in Kingston, on Brisbane's southern outskirts, police said. His 4-year-old brother, Andrew, also was found alongside the body of their mother, Christine Clements, 36.

An autopsy Tuesday found that the mother died from a severe hemorrhage after giving birth.

The baby, born three weeks prematurely, was jaundiced and dehydrated when found.

Police said a neighbor, Tess Harris, went into the apartment after becoming concerned because Andrew had been wandering around the building with a cut on his finger that had not been attended to. When asked where his mother was, he replied: "She's sleeping. She's sick."

Mrs. Harris said that when she entered the apartment she found Andrew in a hallway next to his mother's body.

'Bird Feeding Brings Natural World Closer'

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

According to estimates of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 62 million Americans feed wild birds per year. And that number, Service officials say, is expected to rise as are dollar amounts spent on the pastime.

But why? What prompts more than a third of the United State's adult population to invest in thistle, sunflower and millet seed, tube, globe and suet feeders? What is the impetus for the annual American outlay of $54 million for feeding stations and more than $500 million on bird seed?

According to Service representative William P. Horne, it's because bird feeding is "a good way to draw the natural world closer. It's a way to involve yourself in wildlife conservation."

Grace Smith agrees. An avid birder for 20 years, Mrs. Smith is active in both backyard and field bird watching. It wasn't always so.

As a child growing up in attached city housing, Mrs. Smith said she was intrigued by the great outdoors, but didn't get much of an opportunity to indulge that interest. Now, however, she daily makes up for lost time.

Surrounding her Greenville home are bird feeders of every shape and description brimming with home-made and store-bought morsels to tempt the most recalcitrant of birds.

There are wire cages stuffed with suet and nailed to tree trunks about eye level to attract woodpeckers, chickadees and titmice. There are table-top level feeders filled with cracked and whole sunflower seed to entice cardinals, grosbeaks and wrens. And then there are the window feeders for close-up viewing and several kinds of hanging feeders, packed with peanut butter, sunflower seed, thistle seed — anything to bring down to viewing level the dozens of kinds of birds that frequent eastern North Carolina.

Anyone seeing Mrs. Smith's 12 plus feeders for the first time can tell right away birds are one of her passions. It's a passion she shares with her husband James.

"When we get up in the morning we're always in a state of suspense to see what's going to be out there," she said.

While the Smiths have feeders all around their home, "out there" refers specifically to a section of their back yard visible through a large picture window. In front of the window stands a large old pine table on which the Smiths do their correspondence, pay their bills and read or sip tea while watching the antics of the birds and squirrels. "We always find some reason to sit here," she said.

And all the time they spend watching is well worth it. "The birds are so beautiful, so different, you learn so much, what one bird likes and others don't, and sometimes, if you're lucky, you'll get to see a rare bird," Mrs. Smith said.

The most unusual bird the Smiths have had the pleasure of viewing was an African widow bird that was blown to these parts during a hurricane about 10 years ago. The 2½-inch bird with 8-inch tail was so rare, it was taken to East Carolina University where professors tried for several years to find it a mate.

The daily feeder frequenters give pleasure as well, especially the squirrels, according to Dr. Smith.

At first, the Smiths tried everything they could to keep the squirrels out of their feeders, but nothing worked for any period of time. "You can bang on the window, make noise, nothing scares them away," Smith said.

"My father even tried trapping them in a humane cage and letting them go in the country," Mrs. Smith said.

One winter and 144 squirrels later, Mrs. Smith said they still had 10 squirrels in their yard. "We figured out that our yard would support 10 squirrels whatever we did so we sat back and began to enjoy. They're so acrobatic, you have to admire them," she said.

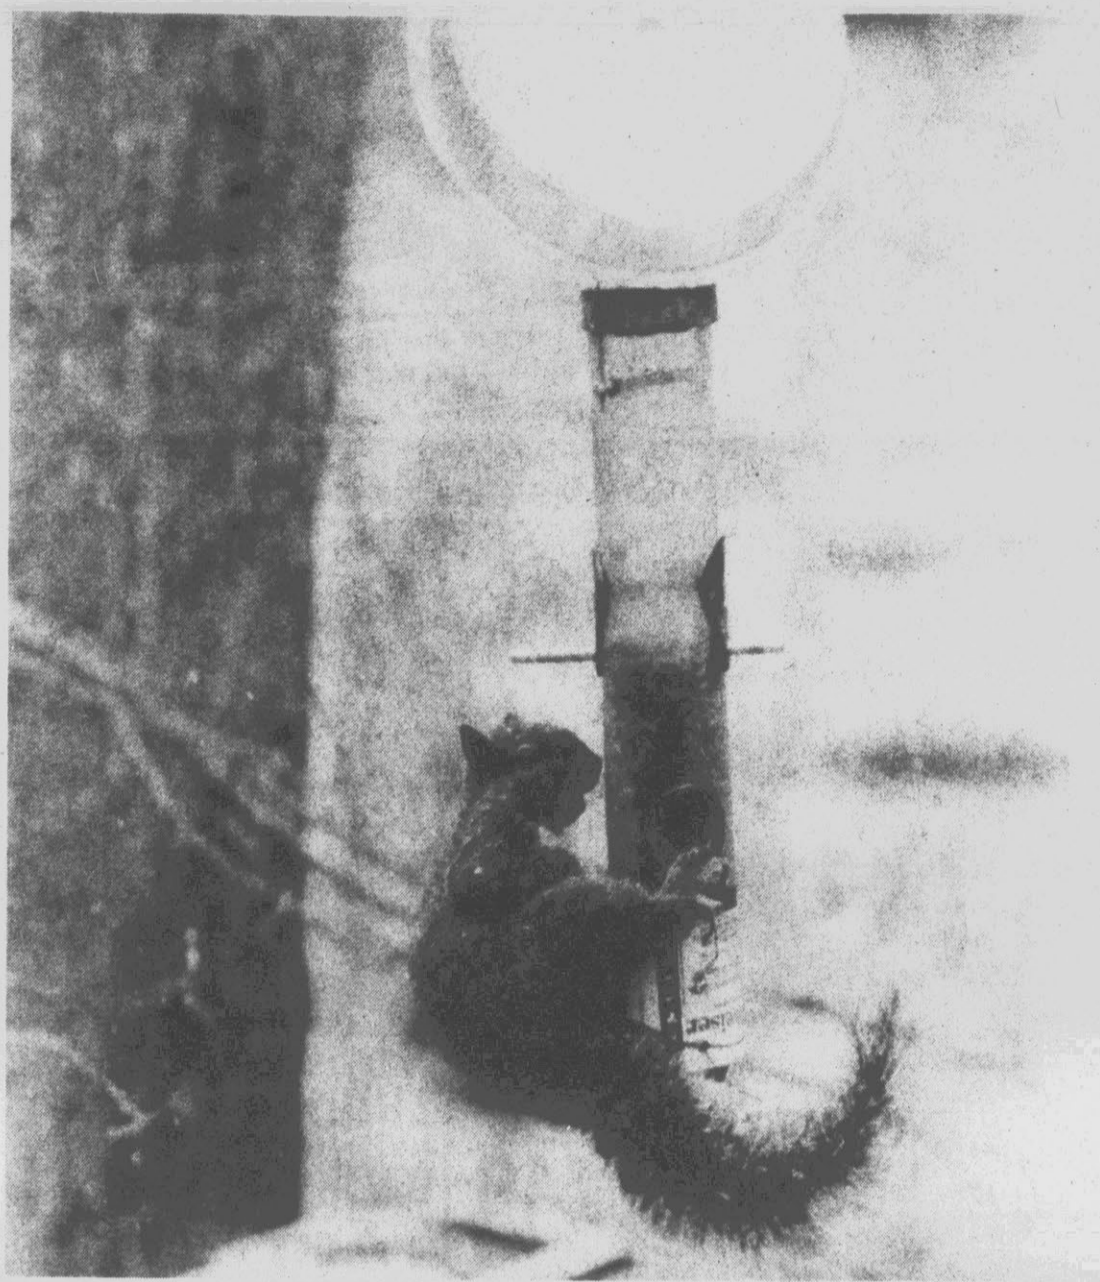

As avid a set of birdwatchers as the Smiths are, there are four-footed fans that are equally dedicated.

Take for example Carol West's cat at Creative Gardens. One year the cat tried repeatedly to make supper out of a family of blue birds that took up residence in one of the garden center's blue bird boxes.

"He would jump up on top of the house and peer down into the hole, but it never seemed to bother the birds. They continued to thrive in spite of the cat," Mrs. West said.

If the birds had been sick or lazy, however, Mrs. West said they might have fallen prey to the cat. "It's just evolution," she said. "You cannot worry about the cats and the birds, it's nature at work, but I doubt that a cat could wipe out your bird population."

While most birds can take care of themselves — witness the one-legged blue bird that Mrs. West continued to provide for his chicks despite his crippling injury — proper feeding can help.

PEST OR PLEASURE? — According to Grace and James Smith of Greenville, this acrobatic squirrel who frequents their backyard bird feeders should be named "Persistence." Never to be outdone, Persistence and his pals once chewed the bottom off the feeder above, requiring a replacement part in the form of a beer can. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

A number of stores in the area sell a variety of seed and feeders designed to attract members of the North Carolina winter bird population.

Birds that frequent this area include the cow bird, starling, blue jay, evening grosbeak, oriole, dove, mocking bird, white-throated sparrow, purple finch, gold finch, flicker, cardinal, wren, junco, yellow-rumped warbler, brown thrasher, yellow-bellied sapsucker, titmouse, chickadee, towhee, downy woodpecker, red-bellied woodpecker and pine warbler, to name a few.

Feeding need not be limited only to winter, however. According to Mrs. Smith, nothing is "quite so exciting as getting to know the birds through the winter and then see them bring their families around in the spring and summer. We had one woodpecker that would bring his family over and teach them how to use our suet feeders," she said.

If you decide that you, too, would like to start your own backyard bird habitat, information is available in bookstores and at local companies that sell bird feeding apparatus and seed. In addition, the following tips from the Smiths and Mrs. West should help:

- Make sure you provide the birds with water as well as seed. A bird bath, over-turned trash can cover, ornamental pond or something of the like will do.
- Provide cover for the birds by leaving piles of brush in your yard, if and where possible.
- Plant fruit and berry-bearing trees and shrubs such as dogwoods, blueberries and wood myrtles to encourage natural feeding. The berries from your trees and shrubs also can be picked and refrigerated for later use.

•If you have feeders on or near window areas, place stained-glass window ornaments on your windows to keep birds from flying into the glass.

•Last but not least, be patient. Sometimes no matter how perfect your habitat is, it can take birds as long as a month to lose their fear of strange new feeders.

WOODPECKER FAVORITE — Suet (animal fat) and cracked or whole sunflower seed are basic types of feed you can provide if you are just starting a bird feeding center. Be sure suet cages, above, are secured well to trees since 'possums and raccoons like to cart off the delicacy. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

Young Woman Doesn't Want To Move West

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with me? I'm engaged to a wonderful man and I should be the happiest woman in the world, but I'm not. I'm depressed because of this one problem:

I was born in West Virginia and have lived here all my life. "Buddy," my fiance, moved here seven years ago from Oregon. He was offered a job in California. He says it's an opportunity of a lifetime, so he took it, so that is where we'll be living after we're married. Buddy has already relocated there, and I visited him for three weeks to see what it was like. I suppose most people would say California has more to offer than West Virginia. Not for me, it hasn't.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I don't care for the California climate, the people, the distances or their way of life. I guess it boils down to the fact that I don't want to move to California, raise a family there, grow old there and die there.

It breaks my heart to think of leaving my family, friends and the state that I love. I'm not a career-type woman. All I want to do is be a good wife and mother. I truly love Buddy. He would make a wonderful husband. But while I'm making wedding plans, I'm dreading the day. Please help me. — TEARS ON MY PILLOW

DEAR TEARS: Obviously Buddy doesn't know how you feel, so TELL him at once. Let him know that you are dreading your wedding day because you don't want to leave your family and the state you love. Perhaps he will consider returning to West Virginia for your sake. (Maybe not.) In any case, put your wedding on hold until you can replace your tearful sadness with genuine joy. You may not be ready to marry Buddy or anybody else yet.

DEAR ABBY: On the issue of signed vs. unsigned credit cards, I am one of the "unsigneds." The reason: I work in a prison and have heard many inmates talk about how they became experts on forging signatures of stolen credit cards.

I can prove who I am by simply showing my driver's license or ID from work, both of which have my picture and signature. If anybody gives me an argument, I leave the merchandise at a checkout station.

Last Christmas season I used three major credit cards for a total of 40 times. Not once did anybody even look at my signature. Sign me... UNSIGNED IN GEORGIA

DEAR UNSIGNED: My mail is running 10-to-1 AGAINST signing credit cards. Read on for a letter from a sharp reader:

DEAR ABBY: An item in your column touched me where my credit cards are: in my wallet. I flatly refuse to sign my credit cards, and I'll tell you why:

If I should lose a signed credit card and a crook gets ahold of it, he could copy my signature and run up more bills all over town than I could pay off in two lifetimes.

I carry my I.D. and picture, and any clerk who gives me any trouble will lose a sale. Guaranteed! — V.G. SHARP, GRANTS PASS, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: A question came up, and we hope you can answer it. A widower gets remarried. Is he a widower any longer? Some say yes and some say no.

What do you say? — JERRY U. IN FORT MYERS

DEAR JERRY: I say he is no longer a widower — he's a married man.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices jumped in heavy trading early today, strengthened by the impact of the falling dollar and sheer momentum from the previous session's big advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which hit its 14th record-high close of the year Tuesday, rose 12.51 points to 2,162.96 by 10 a.m. on Wall Street. Broader stock measurements also advanced.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange exceeded 34.2 million in the first half hour, and gaining stocks outpaced losers by about 7-to-4. There were 746 issues rising, 356 falling and 416 unchanged.

The NYSE's composite index of all listed issues rose 0.68 to 156.57. On the American Exchange, the market-value index rose 1.43 to 299.26.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrials soared 43.17 points to a record 2,150.45. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 192.32 million shares, vs. 138.80 million in the previous session.

Patient Dies

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Floyd Ronald, a Chapel Hill man who had been in critical condition for two weeks while awaiting a heart transplant at N.C. Memorial Hospital, died Tuesday of cardiac arrest.

Since suffering a massive heart attack and cardiac arrest Jan. 12, Ronald, 57, had been kept alive at the hospital with the help of a balloon pump to keep blood circulating while doctors searched for a compatible donated heart for transplant surgery.

Ronald was one of 318 would-be heart transplant recipients on a nationwide computer registry designed to link organ donors with recipients.

Tugboat

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A sunken tugboat resting on the ocean floor off the Carteret County beaches with 35,000 gallons of diesel fuel on board is creating a navigation hazard and pollution threat, Coast Guard officials said Tuesday.

Oil leaking from the Barbara McAllister, a 118-foot-long vessel that sank Saturday, has caused a sheen on the water but no major pollution so far, said Lt. Steven D. Hardy, head of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office in Morehead City.

He said divers had patched some holes on the vessel as a temporary measure until the tug could be salvaged or the oil removed.

Rescue

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A 7-year-old girl helped save four of her siblings by tossing them out a window of their burning house to her 9-year-old brother, authorities said.

The 9-year-old, Louzon Davis, was awakened by the fire and woke his siblings before escaping through the first-floor window, said fire department spokesman Wendell Smith.

His sister, Dalisha Taylor, dropped four other children to her brother, Smith said. A 6-year-old brother climbed through the window on his own. The children ranged in age from the 9-year-old to 6 months old and all escaped injury.

Hunt On For Waite

tiated for the release of hostages in Lebanon," Runcie said. "However, we have been promised all possible security by Islamic leaders who are his hosts, and I believe that they have been true to their promise."

Runcie emphasized that there was no direct evidence that Waite was being held against his will.

The British Broadcasting Corp., quoting "informed sources in Beirut," reported late Tuesday that Waite was still negotiating for the release of the two Americans and that the talks had reached what it described as an "extremely delicate and sensitive stage."

The BBC added that Waite's life was not at risk but that he "may not have complete freedom of movement."

Although Waite's brief disappearances from public view on previous trips to Beirut have been interpreted more as signs of progress than cause for alarm, the unusual length of his absence this time, coupled with a rash of additional kidnappings in the past two weeks, has caused concern.

Eleven people, including four Americans, have been abducted since Jan. 13, bringing to 25 the number of Westerners known to be held in Lebanon against their will. At least eight are Americans.

Waite is said to be negotiating for the freedom of Thomas Sutherland, 55, acting dean of agriculture at the American University in Beirut, who was abducted in September 1985, and Terry A. Anderson, 39, chief Mideast

West Germans Say Liquid Explosive In Area Where Suspect Was Arrested

By KENNETH JAUTZ
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Security sources said today police found large amounts of a liquid explosive when they searched a square-mile area after arresting a Lebanese man believed linked to the kidnappings of two West Germans in Beirut.

Officials have said Ali Abbas Hamadi, who was arrested at the Frankfurt airport on Monday, may be involved in the abductions of the two West Germans.

Authorities said they believed the kidnappings were intended to force the release of Mohammed Ali Hamadi, a brother of Ali Abbas Hamadi. Mohammed Ali Hamadi was arrested Jan. 13 and is accused by the United States of air piracy and murder in the 1985 TWA hijacking in which a U.S. Navy diver was killed.

The explosive, methyl nitrate, was found on land outside the town of Beckingen in southern Saarland state Tuesday, security sources told The Associated Press. The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Cologne-based Deutschlandfunk radio said officials found about five gallons of the explosive.

Mohammed Ali Hamadi was carrying methyl nitrate when he was arrested at Frankfurt airport, police have said.

Beckingen is six miles from Merzig, where Ali Abbas Hamadi recently lived, and about the same distance from Saarlor, where Mohammed Ali Hamadi lived until 1984 and still has a girlfriend, security sources said.

The area is close to both the French and Luxembourg borders with West Germany. The square-mile area searched was roped off today.

A West German television network reported Tuesday that Ali Abbas Hamadi may be the leader of a terrorist group involved in bombings in France and in recent kidnapping of foreigners in Beirut.

Government officials said they could not confirm or deny the report. "All of these things are being investigated. I can't tell you any more," said one well-informed official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

West Germany's ZDF television network cited security sources for its report on Ala Abbas Hamadi. It said the alleged terrorist ring may have been responsible, among other attacks, for a June 1985 bombing at Frankfurt airport that killed three people.

Travel records of one of the arrested brothers corresponded closely with a series of bomb attacks in West Germany and France, ZDF said. It said Ali Abbas Hamadi's had just arrived from Beirut when he was arrested.

The United States has accused Mohammed Ali Hamadi of being one of two gunmen who hijacked the TWA jetliner to Beirut in June 1985, holding 39 Americans prisoner 17 days and killing Navy diver Robert Stethem.

The U.S. government wants him extradited to face hijacking and murder charges, and West Germany says it is studying the request.

West German officials say the abductions of West Germans in Beirut may have been ordered by a third Hamadi brother, Abdul Hadi Hamadi, the Beirut security chief of the radical Shiite Moslem group Hezbollah.

In another development in the case, police reported wounding a resident of Merzig on Monday while searching an apartment building.

They refused to reveal other details. But a 19-year-old Palestinian resident, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the wounded man was his 23-year-old brother. He said his father, Hamsa Kassim, and three other brothers were arrested and his wounded brother was hospitalized.

In a telephone interview, the Palestinian said Ali Abbas Hamadi lived next door to his family until December. But he said the family had no other connection with him.

The youth said his brother was shot in the confusion when about 20 police officers stormed into the family's apartment. They searched the apartment for hours, he said.

He said his father remained in police custody Tuesday, but that his brothers were released.

'Risk Didn't Work'

international trade. Reagan said that could be accomplished by "guaranteeing that government does everything possible to promote America's ability to compete."

But when Reagan had finished, the Democrats talked mostly of the arms sale.

"The sale of arms to Iran — in direct contradiction to our stated foreign policy — raises real questions about trust," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. "But it also raises real doubts about competence."

"The administration has the obligation to tell 'we, the American people' exactly what led to the arms-for-hostage deal — and what happened to accountability in the White House," Byrd said.

Still, Byrd and House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, stressed that they wanted to work with Reagan during his final two years in office.

Republicans exaggerated their reaction to the applause lines in Reagan's speech, rising to their feet to clap and shout, while Democrats sat silently.

Only when Reagan made reference to issues the Democrats have criticized him for, such as the huge federal budget deficit, did the Democrats come to life.

"In 10 years I have never seen the floor of the House that way," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif. "The last time I was part of something like that was at a high school basketball rally."

Even Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas was a little sheepish about the display.

"A couple of times it got a little out of hand," Dole said. "It started on our side, although not among senators. Some of those (House) guys, you tell them it's Tuesday and they applaud."

White House aides and congressional supporters hoped Reagan's address, would show him as in command after prostate surgery on Jan. 5 and the damaging revelations about the Iran-Contra scheme. The atmosphere and perception of it were at least equally as important as its substance.

On that score, reaction also broke along party lines.

"I think he's back," said Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.

"I felt a little bit sorry for him because I thought the speech was weak, and I don't want to see a weak president," said Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan.

Reagan used most of his speech to lay out a broad agenda ranging from boosting America's competitiveness overseas to domestic concerns like the budget deficit and welfare reform.

On Iran, the president said it was not wrong to try to establish contact with a nation of strategic importance and "certainly it was not wrong to try to secure freedom for our citizens held in barbaric captivity." Unlike his earlier statements on the subject, Reagan, in a single sentence, linked the effort to open contacts with Iran with trying to free the hostages.

He added, "But we did not achieve what we wished, and serious mistakes were made in trying to do so."

Reagan said his administration had made progress on many fronts but "I have one major regret. I took a risk with regard to our action in Iran. It did not work and for that I assume full responsibility."

While mentioning mistakes, Reagan did not say he, specifically, was guilty of any.

Reagan did not offer any new revelations about the arms sale and said nothing about the diversion of profits to Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

He added: "Let there be no mistake about American policy: we will not sit idly by if our interests or our friends in the Middle East are threatened, nor will we yield to terrorist blackmail."

ATTENTION
The Greenville City Council recently amended the refuse fee ordinance on January 8, 1987. These new provisions changed the basis for billing in apartment and/or condominium complexes, and in shared container arrangements for nonresidential customers.
The amendment also allows month to month exemptions in certain instances where residential and nonresidential dwellings remain vacant for more than 30 consecutive days. Additionally, nonresidential customers who do not receive City commercial refuse service will be eligible for an exemption.
The amended ordinance will become effective for all bills received on and after February 1, 1987. There will be no refunds or adjustments in the above described areas for billings received prior to February 1, 1987. The City of Greenville is presently mailing special forms to affected customers now through the first week in February. For more information, please call or write to:

Football Hall Inducts 7 New Members

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — All seven members voted into the 1987 class of the Pro Football Hall of Fame called their selection an honor. But Larry Csonka also called it a reprieve from the past tense.

"For the last five years, it seems that I've been talking about what was," Csonka said. "Like all old pros, the 'was' fades. To suddenly be cast into the 'is' again — to be inducted into the Hall of Fame — is like living forever."

Csonka, the prototypical fullback of the 1970s while with the Miami Dolphins, was joined by teammate Jim Langer, defensive tackle Joe Greene, quarterback Len Dawson, fullback John Henry Johnson, wide receiver Don Maynard and guard Gene Upshaw.

"For the last five years, I've been sitting in buses or trains or planes ... talking about the Dolphins of 1972," Csonka said. "That was 15 years ago. This (Hall of Fame selection) is current. What it means is that you have escaped the hands of time."

Csonka and Langer were both integral parts of the Dolphins' undefeated season in 1972 that ended with a Super Bowl victory.

Csonka rushed for 8,081 yards and 64 touchdowns during an 11-year career, spent with the Dolphins, the New York Giants and for a year in the defunct World Football League.

Langer was picked up on waivers by the Dolphins early in his career and went on to be named to the Pro Bowl six times.

"Larry and Jim were instrumental in the Miami Dolphins playing in three Super Bowls and winning back-to-back championships in 1972 and 1973," Dolphins owner Joe Robbie said. "Larry is one of the greatest power runners of all time and Jim is as good as any pro center to have played the game."

Greene was the enforcer on the defensive line that powered the Pittsburgh Steelers to four Super Bowl championships. "Mean Joe" was twice named the National Football League's Defensive Player of the Year and was chosen for the Pro Bowl 10 times in a 13-year career.

"I didn't play pro football to make All-Pro or to make the Hall of Fame," Greene said. "I played to have fun and make a living. It would be a frail and weak existence if the purpose of playing was to achieve those goals. ... I'm just thankful that other people saw (my career) and that I was considered for this great honor."

Steelers President Dan Rooney said, "He might have been the greatest leader I ever saw in the football business."

Johnson, the recommended candidate of the Old-Timers Committee, rushed for 6,803 yards and 48 touchdowns during a 13-year career with the San Francisco 49ers, Steelers and Houston Oilers. He rushed for more than 1,000 yards in both 1962 and 1964 with the Steelers, and was the leading rusher with the 1957 NFL champion Detroit Lions.

"I really didn't give much thought to it when I was playing," Johnson said of the Hall of Fame. "I began thinking about it more after I retired. When August (and induction ceremonies) comes around, I'm sure I'll be all pepped up about it. It's a nice thrill."

Dawson became the third former Kansas City Chiefs player voted into the Hall, joining Bobby Bell and Willie Lanier. Dawson passed for 28,711 yards and 239 touchdowns during a 19-year career with the Steelers, Cleveland Browns, Dallas Texans and Chiefs. He led the Texans to the American Football League championship in 1962, winning league player of the year honors, then went on to be named the most valuable player in the 1970 Super Bowl as the Chiefs upset the Minnesota Vikings 23-7.

"It's terrific, it's the top. It doesn't get any better than making the Hall of Fame," said Dawson, who grew up in Alliance, Ohio, near Canton, where the Hall of Fame is located.

"I hope I don't have any trouble getting any tickets for the induction. I'm one of 11 children and I have a lot of relatives there."

Upshaw, now the executive director of the National Football League Players Association, spent 15 years as a guard with the Oakland Raiders.

McCaskey Criticized

CHICAGO (AP) — The ouster of Jerry Vainisi as Chicago Bears general manager has brought a storm of protest from Chicago football fans, but none has been as strong as a $1,500 "Dump McCaskey Now" ad in a local newspaper.

"All of us here are major Bear fans," said Tracy Jourdan, receiving manager of Advanced Business Systems. So his company took out an ad protesting the way President Michael McCaskey is running the team.

Jourdan wrote a full-page advertisement in last weekend's Reader, a free weekly newspaper.

But Advance Business Systems' 22 employees were faced with splitting a $1,500 advertising bill.

"It would have been a bit expensive for us. I talked the boss — Norm Toscano — into paying for it. He's the biggest Bears fan here," said Jourdan.

Many fans have written letters to newspaper sports editors in the past few weeks to protest Vainisi's ouster and express concern over the future of Coach Mike Ditka.

Houston Fails At The Line, And Drops Game To Utah

By The Associated Press

If you can't make foul shots, you can't win in the NBA. Just ask Houston Rockets Coach Bill Fitch.

"We missed more free throws tonight than I can remember," Fitch said after Houston shot a woeful 22-for-47 from the foul line Tuesday night and lost to the Utah Jazz 92-88.

The Jazz sank 33 of 44 free throws, with Kelly Tripucka making four foul shots and John Stockman adding a pair in the final two minutes.

"We had our chance to win it and we didn't," Fitch said.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Portland 107-100, Philadelphia defeated New York 108-103, Boston downed Chicago 105-97, Milwaukee held off Golden State 119-115, Sacramento tripped New Jersey 118-115, Atlanta beat Indiana 114-98, Washington topped Dallas 118-113 and San Antonio defeated Detroit 118-107.

Prime offenders for Houston at the foul line were Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson. Olajuwon made just eight of 18 free throws and Sampson four of 10. Olajuwon finished with 32 points and 17 rebounds.

"The only thing worse than our free throw shooting was our outside shooting," Fitch said. The host Rockets made only 41.2 percent of its shots from the field as their four-game winning streak ended.

Utah led 84-83 with two minutes left. Karl Malone, who had 24 points and 11 rebounds, hit a shot and Tripucka added two free throws to increase the lead to five. After Houston then again got within a point, Tripucka and Stockman each made two free throws.

"As far as stretch play goes, you have to give credit to Tripucka," Stockman said.

Tripucka finished with 16 points, and was 8-for-9 from the foul line. Bobby Hansen made nine of 10 free throws.

Lakers 107, Trail Blazers 100

Byron Scott scored 21 points and Magic Johnson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 20 apiece as Los Angeles beat Portland for the 17th straight time.

The Lakers, now 19-1 at home this season, led 85-76 after three quarters and outscored the Trail Blazers 11-2 to start the fourth period. Portland got within five points with 2:20 left in the game, but no closer.

Los Angeles used a 14-1 run, including six points by Billy Thompson, to take control at 52-42 in the second quarter.

Steve Johnson scored 25 for Portland.

76ers 108, Knicks 103

Charles Barkley, named earlier in the day to his first NBA All-Star Game, scored 25 points and had 23 rebounds as Philadelphia won in New York.

The 76ers led 61-52 at halftime before the Knicks went on a 22-4 surge and took a nine-point lead. But Barkley made his second buzzer-beating three-point shot to pull Philadelphia even at 80-80, and the 76ers outscored New York 7-2 to start the fourth quarter.

Julius Erving and Roy Hinson scored 22 points each for Philadelphia. Gerald Wilkins had 31, Patrick Ewing 25 and Bill Cartwright 20 for the Knicks.

Bucks 119, Warriors 115

Ricky Pierce scored 30 points, including two foul shots with three seconds left, as Milwaukee held on after almost blowing a 24-point lead.

The Bucks led 82-58 late in the third quarter before the host Warriors pulled within a point in the final minute. After Golden State's Rod Higgins hit a 3-point shot that made it 117-115, Pierce was intentionally fouled and made both shots.

Eric Floyd scored 31 points as the Warriors lost their fourth straight game. Purvis Short, Golden State's leading scorer through the first 10 games this season, returned to action for the first time since a knee injury Nov. 19 and scored 10 points in 23 minutes.

Celtics 105, Bulls 97

Kevin McHale's 30 points and Robert Parish's 20 led Boston over Chicago for the seventh straight time.

The Celtics led 93-91 before Parish and Dennis Johnson each made two foul shots. Parish scored four more points in the final 66 seconds to preserve Boston's fourth straight victory.

Michael Jordan led the host Bulls with 30 points.

Kings 118, Nets 115

Otis Thorpe scored 21 points and Reggie Theus 20 as Sacramento used clutch foul shooting to hold off visiting New Jersey.

The Kings led 99-81 with 7:45 left to play before the Nets rallied within

30,000 Celebrate Giant's Return

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants returned to their snowy stadium and were greeted by more than 30,000 cheering fans who braved 10-degree weather to feel the warm glow of a Super Bowl victory celebration.

Confetti and snowballs replaced field goals and first downs Tuesday as the Giants celebrated their first national championship since 1956.

"I have a little something to show you," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said as he held up the silver Vince Lombardi Trophy earned for the team's 39-20 victory over the Denver Broncos Sunday.

Parcells got the traditional victory shower, this time from a Gatorade bucket of confetti.

"I hope that sometime in the near future we can all get together and do this again," said quarterback Phil Simms, the Super Bowl MVP who joined his teammates on the stage to receive gold medallions from New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean.

"What a great day. The Giants are the first world champions from the state of New Jersey," said Kean.

He added that "the Giants are a team which knows no formal boundaries," but there was no doubt the fans rejected any claims by New York City, where Mayor Ed Koch at first snubbed the team by refusing a ticker-tape victory parade.

Koch, vacationing in Poland, compounded the insult this week when he called the official Giants Stadium celebration "practice" and kept open an offer for a corporation-sponsored parade down Broadway.

The only dignitary from the other side of the Hudson River on hand Tuesday was New York City Council President Andrew Stein, who could barely get out a "New York loves New Jersey" before boos and a few snowballs chased him off the stage.

The players chose a more diplomatic course, praising all their fans for patient loyalty through the losing seasons.

Veteran defensive end George Martin assured them, "The feast has just begun," and crowd responded with a chorus of kazoos playing "California Here I Come," an optimistic reprise referring to the Super Bowl next year in San Diego.

U.S. Sen. Bill Bradley, a New Jersey Democrat and former professional basketball player, tried to dodge questions about which state can claim the team.

"Why don't we call them 'our Giants' and include our friends across the Hudson River and people in Connecticut, too," Bradley said.

The frigid weather limited the crowd. Organizers had prepared for 125,000 people, raising $650,000 from private donations, ordering 100,000 kazoos and stuffing bags with pompons, buttons and confetti.

The first diehard fans, thinking they would have to compete for seats, spent the night in the icy parking lot. More gathered at dawn, lighting bonfires and cooking tailgate breakfasts.

"The cold is no problem because the Giants won the Super Bowl," said Catherine Leonard, 13, of Fairfield.

Her uncle, Bob Leonard of Montville, stood in 4 inches of snow on the tarp-covered field and said, "I'm going to keep warm by doing a lot of cheering and a lot of yelling."

"I wouldn't have missed this for anything," said Bob Leeks, 16, of Bridgeton. "The Giants really did make our dream come true."

The stadium was bedecked with banners, streamers filled the air and a huge inflated football floated above the stage painted in Giants blue and red as comedian Joe Piscopo, a New Jersey native, got the festivities under way.

He praised the New York Giants and then paused to add: "It's the New Jersey Giants. I was just testing you."

The lineup included David Brenner, Henny Youngman, professional wrestler Lou Albano, the singing group The Roches and Tiny Tim, who was pelted by snowballs as he sang a medley of patriotic songs.

Fans provided some of their own entertainment, chanting "We're No. 1," singing "We Are The Champions" and "Go Giants Go" and getting into wild snowball fights.

About 100 National Guardsmen were called in to guard the snow piles on the field and several people were escorted out of the stadium. There were no arrests during the celebration, which lasted a few hours.

About 20 people were treated for minor injuries from snowballs, falls on the ice and exposure, authorities said.

How Will Bob Tway Top Success Of Last Season?

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Bob Tway, like other great golfers before him, has played himself into a problem.

Last year, he had one of the great seasons in recent history — four victories, the most on the PGA Tour, including the historic sand shot that won the PGA; and $652,780 in official earnings and more than $1 million overall.

So what does he do for an encore? What would constitute a good season for the 1986 Player of the Year?

"I really don't know," Tway said before a practice round for the $600,000 Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, the old tournament that formerly was known as The Crosby.

"I could win two tournaments and $500,000," Tway said, "and people are going to be saying, 'What's wrong with him?' I'm just going to try to not worry about it, not think about it."

"I'm going to concentrate on improving my game. There's a lot of room for improvement, lots of things still to be learned. If I can do that, improve my game, become a better player, that'll be fine. I'll feel it's been a good year."

Tway got into title contention last week in Phoenix, but couldn't make a move in the final round.

"I took three weeks off at the end of the year last year. That may not be much for somebody else, but it's a lot for me," he said.

"I was a little rusty. But things are getting better now. I think it's finally getting back in the groove. I feel like I'm getting things closer to where I want them to be," said Tway, one of the leading contenders in the 180-man pro field that will play one round on each of three Monterey Peninsula courses before the field is trimmed for the final round Sunday at Pebble Beach.

Other leading figures include Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who will be making his first start of the season; British Open titleholder Greg Norman of Australia, and defending tournament champion Fuzzy Zoeller.

Also on hand are Tom Watson,

Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, Andy Bean, Tom Kite, Lanny Wadkins, Bernhard Langer of West Germany and John Mahaffey.

The celebrity amateurs include actors Jack Lemmon, George C. Scott and James Garner, singer Andy Williams, pro football star Dan Marino, baseball stars Johnny Bench, George Brett and Willie Mays, and baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

UTEP Problems Continue

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — It's been a tough season for the Texas-El Paso sports program, with some athletes arrested on shoplifting charges and, in the latest incident, investigation of an alleged gang rape at a dorm.

The run-ins with the law have hurt the image of the athletic program at UTEP, whose track and cross-country is now beginning a three-year probation imposed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association last July.

"I can remember athletes getting in trouble. I can't remember when we've gotten so much publicity," said Joe Avila, UTEP dean of students since 1976.

That may be because for 12 weeks, as one scandal involving UTEP athletes was dying down, another one would pop up.

Basketball players Tim Hardaway and Keith Manuel and Manuel's brother Gerry, a former football player, were arrested Oct. 29 and charged with misdemeanor theft. They were accused of stealing two $15 plants from a nursery. The three were in a car borrowed from assistant coach Rus Bradburd, a violation of NCAA regulations.

On Nov. 16, basketball player Chris Sandile and former football player Greg Williams were arrested for allegedly taking $16.66 worth of groceries from a supermarket.

More recently, football players Roderick Tobias, Richard, Dwight Myers and Charles Edward Lewis were arrested Jan. 19 and accused in an alleged gang rape at the campus coed dorm.

"What some athletes do looks so much worse because they get the publicity, but it's not disproportionate to the rest of society," Avila said Tuesday. "There's as many non-athletes getting into bad things."

Avila, though, said he was not belittling the accusations.

"The athletic department, the coaches talk to the players on how behavior reflects on the university, that they're role models," he said, adding that he has spoken to some of the players involved.

"I don't think that these students, after I've talked to them, think I'm extra-friendly," he said.

The players have undergone no disciplinary measures but the first two incidents are being looked at in quite a different light from the alleged rape, said Athletic Director Bill Cords.

An 18-year-old woman who is not a UTEP student told police that Richard threatened her with a knife, stole her purse and invited others to have sex with her for $2 in a room at Barry Hall, a dorm on campus.

Mariners Top Washington

BEAUFORT — Jack Garrison scored 21 points to lead East Carteret to a 63-55 win over Washington in Coastal Conference basketball action Tuesday night.

East Carteret led from the start and thwarted a Pam Pack comeback in the final quarter to raise its record to 10-4 overall and 3-3 in the conference.

Washington had a chance to pull within two late in the final period but failed on a dunk shot.

Washington, which falls to 2-13 and 0-6, was led by Frankie Warren's 18 points. Ryan Dixon added 15 and Tyron Lodge 10.

In the girl's game, East Carteret jumped ahead early and coasted to a 45-21 win.

Kim Oden led East Carteret with 17 points and Shelley Lewis added 16. Washington was led by Angela Holley's 10 points.

East Carteret improved to 11-1 overall and 5-1 in the conference.

113-109 with 56 seconds remaining. But Sacramento blunted the rally, helped by 12 of 15 foul shooting in the final eight minutes.

Sacramento has won six straight home games. Orlando Woolridge scored 22 points and Albert King 21 for New Jersey, which lost its sixth in a row on the road.

Bullets 118, Mavericks 113
Moses Malone and Jeff Malone each scored 23 points, leading Washington to a win in Dallas.

Moses Malone, who also had 13 rebounds, sank a jump shot and added four free throws in the final 27 seconds.

Mark Aguirre scored 22 points and became the first player in Mavericks' history to reach the 10,000-point mark. Rolando Blackman also scored 22 for Dallas.

Hawks 114, Pacers 93
Dominique Wilkins scored 33 points and Antoine Carr added a career-high 18 as Atlanta used a 27-2 spree in the second quarter to beat Indiana.

The host Hawks trailed 41-38 when they started their holding, holding the Pacers without a field goal for more than eight minutes.

Kevin Willis scored 20 points and Glenn Rivers 19 for Atlanta. Clint Richardson scored 19 for Indiana, which lost its fourth straight game.

Spurs 118, Pistons 107
Jon Sundvold scored 22 points and rookies Larry Krystkowiak and Johnny Dawkins led a third-quarter surge that sent San Antonio past Detroit.

Krystkowiak had seven points and Dawkins four as the visiting Spurs outscored Detroit 15-6 for a 94-84 lead after three periods.

Isiah Thomas scored 23 points in the Pistons' third straight loss.

American In Aussie Camp

Howie Marion, a former sailmaker from Northern California, is the sail director for the Kookaburra Syndicate and the only American working for the Australian syndicate that is defending the America's Cup. (AP Laserphoto)

American Casts Lot With Aussies

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Howie Marion was born in Virginia, grew up in California and lived in Connecticut, an American from sea to shining sea.

So why is he working for the enemy in the America's Cup yacht racing series?

A sailmaker by trade and a nomad by inclination, Marion goes with the shifting employment winds.

For now, he ties up at Australia's dock. Dennis Conner will steer Stars & Stripes in the Cup finals starting Saturday against Australia's Kookaburra III, which will be powered by sails from Marion's program.

"I have worked all over the world," said Marion, the sail coordinator for Kookaburra III who still considers northern California his home. "I worked in Italy for a number of years, Hong Kong for a while and on the East Coast of the United States and the San Francisco area."

"I don't really view the competition as such a nationalistic quest.

Dennis obviously had to beat more American syndicates than we will have to beat and, conversely, we've already eliminated four Australian syndicates.

"At this level, it's a Grand Prix situation. You see in racing cars an Italian driver with a French car and an English mechanic."

Marion, 30, attended Stanford and the University of California. His last declared major was comparative literature. His first love was engineering and mathematics.

"I found that pretty easy," said Marion, who has been making sails for 12 years. "That's what we do now. In sailmaking, it's basically an engineering problem."

He worked for the now-defunct Horizon Sails for seven years. He came to Australia in July 1985 seeking customers and made his pitch to Kookaburra III helmsman Peter Gilmour.

"He said, 'Well, that's all just fine, but we really need somebody to run our sail program,'" Marion recalled.

"When I looked carefully at the people involved ... and discovered that they were well financed, I was very impressed. That, and the fact that my work with Horizon was coming to an end, I was very happy to accept."

"They're the people I felt I could do the best job for and got the best opportunity to work with. Obviously, Dennis never even offered me a job."

Marion said people haven't called him a traitor. He didn't have to wrestle with his conscience to join forces with the Aussies.

"No problem at all," he said.

A stable home life is not always a sailor's lot. Different jobs and different competitions sometimes make that elusive. His fellow yachtsmen understand that.

"The people I know within the sailing industry are actually very complimentary," Marion said.

"I think the Task Force (Kookaburra) Syndicate will have the support of a lot of people from other nations, not just Australia," he added. "I think there'll be Americans interested in following us and I just think, as a professional, you just go with the best campaign."

He has been here for the last 19 months after working for Horizon Sails in Rowayton in southwest Connecticut. He would like, someday, to return to his native land.

"The year and a half I've been here is the longest I've been any one place in the last 10 years," Marion said. "I still consider myself, definitely, a resident of northern California. I don't think I'll ever really settle down until I get back there."

His post-Cup future is a question mark. He has discussed staying with the Kookaburra group. He also would consider pledging his allegiance in the next Cup competition to an American effort.

"I wouldn't mind at all working for an American 12-meter group," he said. "I'd love to do that. That would be great. In some ways, it would be simpler."

In what way? "It would stop questions like you've just been asking."

Free Agent Fallacy Continues

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

To the players, and the agents and all 26 major-league baseball teams: Enough, already. Whatever the game is, play it.

Tim Raines, Lance Parrish, Andre Dawson and Bob Horner, among others, are in limbo. There are grievances. There is greed — on all sides.

The start of spring training is just three weeks away, and again the emphasis is away from the field. Two years after strike talk and drug rumors dominated the headlines, the buzzwords in baseball are now collusion, fiscal responsibility and free agents.

"It's a mess," says Bucky Woy, the agent for Horner. "I don't like what I see."

Well, neither do a lot of other folks.

Who will be the starting catcher for the Boston Red Sox on Opening Day — Marc Sullivan, a career .200 hitter and son of the team's chief executive officer? Maybe, because Rich Gorman may be taking batting practice on some high school field that day.

How about Ron Guidry? He could be out fishing in a Louisiana bayou when the New York Yankees begin the season.

"He's handling it very well," Reggie Ringuet, Guidry's agent, said of his client. "We knew what the ramifications were when we went in to this."

But did anyone really know what would happen to this All-Star collection of free agents? Does anyone know?

Later this week, an arbiter is expected to rule on whether teams that failed to sign their free agents by a Jan. 8 deadline — and are now prohibited from re-signing them until May 1 — can negotiate with them, or invite them to spring camp or give them a minor-league contract so they can work out.

That matter is part of the players union's larger case, a contention that owners have banded together to restrict free-agent movement and drive down salaries. A decision on that grievance may not come until the summer, and it will be an important one for the game, not just a bunch of legal mumbo-jumbo as some would want to believe.

In the meantime, it's hard to tell whether teams are free to sign anyone they want, although the answer seems over and over to be no.

Philadelphia Phillies President Bill Giles, whose club is desperately in need of a catcher, is meeting with Parrish today on the West Coast. Giles, a baseball man and straight talker, admits "Detroit is unhappy with us."

Parrish already turned down $1.2 million per season from the Tigers, and is said to be thinking in the $1.8 million range. But the Phillies may also be talking around $1.2 million.

At that rate, what would Parrish do? Does he take less to play for Philadelphia and prove a point, or does he go back to Detroit?

The players' union contends the owners will make Parrish return to the Tigers, looking like a whipped, naughty little boy straggling home after pretending to run away.

And what of Ray Knight? He made $645,000 last season, and went on to become the Most Valuable Player in the New York Mets' World Series victory. Knight wanted $1 million for next season, the Mets offered $800,000 and he walked.

Players and agents say they are only asking for fair-market value. Owners say they are tired of losing money, and assert the time of spiraling salaries is over.

Punitive Decision Due In Klein Suit

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A jury that awarded former San Diego Chargers owner Gene Klein more than $5 million compensatory damages in his malicious prosecution lawsuit against Los Angeles Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis is trying to decide whether to add punitive damages against Davis.

The panel of six men and six women last month found in Klein's favor in the initial phase of the civil trial.

Jurors deliberated Tuesday about 35 minutes before recessing until today.

During closing arguments, Klein attorney Frank Petrie urged the jury to punish Davis for wrongfully naming Klein an individual defendant in the Raiders' antitrust suit against the NFL.

"We have to send a message that hurts and is felt," Petrie said, adding that a $7 million punitive judgment would be in the "hurt" range.

Women's League Apparently Folds

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The National Women's Basketball Association apparently has folded without ever playing a regular season game and after piling up a reported $150,000 in debts.

None of the teams that originally planned to begin the NWBA's first season in November remains intact, but Charlotte's entry, the Carolina Blaze, held on for weeks before disintegrating after the holidays.

"Most of the girls stayed through the holidays, but they're gone now," said Blaze coach and general manager Angie Rinehart said. "A lot of them went back to school to get the few hours they needed to graduate. Some have jobs."

"This has really been frustrating. It's the first year in 15 I haven't been in the gym every night," Ms. Rinehart added. "It's almost like a divorce."

Ms. Rinehart said she has heard nothing from NWBA principal investor Howard Hanson.

"I've tried to get up with him (by telephone) since November," she said. "I'm just getting his answering machine."

Hanson could not be reached for comment. Calls to NWBA president Ephriam McDaniel were unanswered.

"I'm still under contract to the NWBA, but I'm not being paid, so I guess you could say I'm no longer commissioner of a defunct league," commissioner Wayne Fulcher said. "There are some people who are looking into doing something (with women's basketball), but under a new name. "And the league's principals are looking into the Chapter 11 (bankruptcy) route. They are hoping to straighten out their investors and get on with their lives."

Ms. Rinehart said she heard that longtime college official John Russell, who had been the NWBA's head of officials, might be helping to organize a new league. Russell said there are some interested people, but he is moving cautiously.

"I've got a bad taste in my mouth from the NWBA," Russell said. "I had thought there was money available, and when it wasn't, it was the biggest shocker of my life. I'm going to have to be careful in the future about attaching my name to something."

The league was headquartered outside Charlotte.

APR

On Home Equity Loans Through April 15, 1987.

Introducing Peoples Equity Line that features a limited-time 7% interest rate that's well below prime. And, there's no origination fee. Lately you've been bombarded by bank advertising telling you all you ever wanted to know about home equity loans and how you can take advantage of the last of the big tax loopholes. And, it's all true.

But, why pay more for a home equity loan than you have to? The next time you need cash for a car, tuition, home improvement or other major expenditure, write yourself a loan with your Peoples Equity Line. And, if you draw against your Peoples Equity Line now, you'll pay only 7% interest rate on the outstanding balance through April 15, 1987. After that time, your interest rate will continue at a low rate of Peoples Bank's Prime Rate + 1/2% for balances over $15,000 and Prime + 1% for balances below $15,000.* You only have to pay 1.5% of the balance (or $100, whichever is greater) each month, and your line of credit is open for 15 years.

Build up your tax deductions with Peoples Equity Line. By obtaining a home equity loan from Peoples Bank, you could possibly start adding up your tax deductions for the future. The staff of Peoples Bank will be happy to assist you in setting up your Peoples Equity Line. Call or visit any of our 62 offices today.

*This interest rate applies to Peoples Bank deposits only. If the rate were not discounted at this time, it would be either 8% or 8 1/2% depending on the outstanding balance. Please refer to the rate formula stated above. The rate may vary month-to-month after April 15, 1987, depending on Peoples Bank's Prime Rate. For non-deposit customers of Peoples Bank, should be added to all interest rates quoted. For complete information on interest deductions for tax purposes, consult your tax advisor. The Prime Rate is that rate from time to time announced as Peoples Bank's Prime Rate.

SPEND YOUR MONEY FOR A RAINY DAY

Sitting inside a Volvo can be a very secure feeling. Even when heavy rain clouds your day. And Volvo's concern for safety engineering isn't the only reason why. Consider "On Call" Volvo's roadside assistance plan that can assist you 24 hours a day in all 50 states. All it takes is dialing the toll-free number. Once you do, help is on the way. Come rain or come shine. The Volvo 240. The family sedan that's more than just a fair-weather friend.

A car company you can believe in.

A View Of Belhaven Harbor

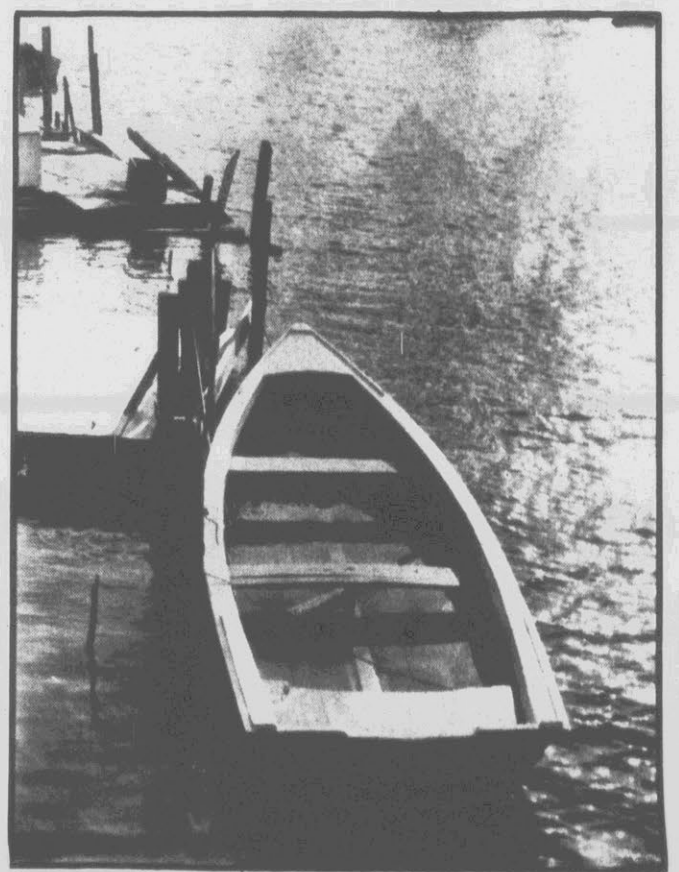

Winter Safety

Although the trees are bare, the skies are cloudy and the weather is cold, winter makes for good photography.

These three pictures are from a winter photographic collection by photographer Tommy Forrest.

The large photo of the boats in the harbor and the small print of the nets on the fishing boat were photographed with a Hasselblad 500CM using an 80mm lens. The shot of the smaller boat at the pier was photographed using a Calumet 4 X 5 view camera with a 210mm lens. All photographs were shot on Kodak Plus-X film processed in D-76 developer, 1:1.

'Getting Away From It All'

Weekend Jaunts Hold Favored Position In Family Travel Plans

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The weekend jaunt has surpassed the traditional two-week trip as America's vacation preference, according to a survey commissioned by a major hotel chain.

Nearly three-quarters of all pleasure trips take three days or less, while only one in four was a longer trip, reported the research firm Audits & Surveys, Inc.

That survey of 1,513 people last November and December was commissioned by Marriott Hotels and Resorts. The results have a possible margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

Overall, the survey found that during the preceding year 66 percent of Americans took a pleasure trip in which they spent at least one night away from home.

"While the extended vacation will not disappear, it is being gradually replaced by an increase in shorter, more frequent weekend, pleasure trips," said Jeffery J. Hallett, president of the consulting firm Trend Response and Analysis Co.

He said the growing number of two-earner families accounts at least in part for this change.

"This makes it difficult to go away for two weeks at a time ... where coordinating longer vacation time is a frustrating task," he said.

Thus, weekends can help provide an increased number of opportunities to get away from the pressures of daily life.

He noted that the most common reason cited for a weekend trip is "getting away from it all."

"Time has become more and more a precious commodity. On the average, most of us have only 17 vacation days and holidays each year. We do, however, have 104 weekend days," Hallett observed.

"The survey results show that Americans are not waiting for a preferred time of year to take weekend pleasure trips," Hallett said.

He said a major motivation is to get away from the mental stress of work. "People want to do things that provide a stimulating experience but do not take too much time," he said.

Four in 10 people cited sightseeing as their favored activity on weekend vacations. Other popular activities included swimming, hiking and shopping in the summer and sightseeing, snow skiing and shopping in winter.

Nationally, Americans expected to spend $313 for a weekend trip, not counting transportation costs.

Southerners were willing to pay the most at $332, while residents of the North Central states estimated they would spend only $287. In between, residents of the West were willing to spend $312, and those in the Northeast $310.

Overall findings of the study included:

— During the past year 66 percent of Americans traveled overnight at least once. Of those, 73 percent of the trips were three days or less.

— Major reasons for the short trips were to get away from it all, 23 percent; relax, 16 percent; have fun, 14 percent, and visit family, 13 percent.

— Most popular summer activities were sightseeing, 40 percent; swimming 36 percent; shopping, 18 percent; camping and hiking, 17 percent and dining, 15 percent.

— In winter the top activities were sightseeing, 37 percent; snow skiing, 26 percent; shopping, 19 percent; dining, swimming and camping and hiking, 14 percent each.

— The most often encountered problem was disappointing food, cited by 59 percent of people. Other problems listed included accommodations too expensive and disappointing accommodations, 46 percent each; unfriendly or poor service, 45 percent, and overcrowding or running out of money, 42 percent each.

Carolina Events

Gala To Honor Howells

East Carolina University and the community will salute retiring Chancellor John M. Howell and his wife Gladys for their service to the university at a gala dinner Friday evening.

More than 600 reservations have been made for the $25 per person event which will be held in Minges Coliseum. A program of music is planned, but dinner officials said the gala is to be a festive, social occasion without formal speechmaking.

Dr. Howell will step down as chancellor on March 1 and will be succeeded by Dr. Richard R. Eakin, former vice president for budget and planning at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. Howell celebrated his 65th birthday this week.

The Howells came to East Carolina in 1957 when he was appointed an associate professor of government. In 1963, he became director of the department of political science when that department was established. Howell later became dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, dean of the graduate school and provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs.

In 1981-82, Howell was selected by a search committee to succeed Dr. Thomas B. Brewer as chancellor.

Mrs. Howell, the former Gladys David of Jacksonville, Fla., also served as a professor on the faculty of the department of sociology and anthropology. She relinquished her faculty post when Howell became chancellor in 1982.

The Howells, married in 1952, are the parents of two sons. They will continue to live in Greenville.

St. Andrews Forum

LAURINBURG — Two St. Andrews Presbyterian College employees will be featured readers at the St. Andrews Writers Forum at 8 p.m. Thursday. The reading will take place in the main lounge of Mecklenburg Hall on the St. Andrews campus.

Reading will be June Milby and Rob Martin. Ms. Milby, formerly public affairs director of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, will read from a series of poems recently completed.

Martin will read from his past poetry. A graduate of St. Andrews, he has acted with the English Theater in Vienna, Austria, has been a night club singer in New York City, and has studied with Ron Byes at St. Andrews.

The reading is free and open to the public.

Black Arts Festival

Oliver LaGrone, sculptor, poet and teachers, will present a lecture-exhibition in the opening event of the Black Arts Festival on Sunday in the multipurpose Room of Mendenhall Student Center.

The opening day celebration will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 10 p.m. LaGrone will lecture on "Afro-American Culture" at 3 p.m. with a reception to follow. His appearance, lecture and exhibition is being sponsored by the Student Union Minority Arts Committee.

From his studio in Hamlet, LaGrone offers an art-culture program for universities and high schools, traveling to more than 20 states. For his exhibits, he brings in 18 to 20 sculptures in bronze, marble, alabaster, wood and cast stone.

LaGrone's poems, articles and reviews have appeared in such publications as the Saturday Review, Negro Digest and the New York Times Sunday Book Review, with his poetry included in several anthologies.

A graduate of the University of New Mexico, he attended Howard University, Cranbrook Art Academy and did graduate work in art and special education at Wayne State University.

Students To See Opera

LAURINBURG — More than 1,200 grade school and day care students from the Laurinburg area will see a version of Humperdinck's opera, "Hansel and Gretel" in the Liberal Arts Auditorium at St. Andrews College.

Twelve performances for school children will be given between Thursday and Feb. 5.

A performance for the public at large will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday.

ECU Professor Uses Floating Classroom

By GEORGE A. THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

When geography professor Frederick A. Day of East Carolina University stepped on board the sleek, chalky white cruise ship he knew immediately that he was beginning the most unusual teaching assignment of his career.

He would sail around the world aboard the SS Universe, a 600-foot, 18,000-ton floating classroom. In every respect the ship was a seagoing university and it was both his home and work during his 102-day voyage around the world last fall.

Day, a lecturer in the department of geography and planning, was on a leave of absence from ECU to teach geography to students enrolled in the Semester at Sea Program sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh. He was among the faculty of 22 professors from colleges and universities in the United States and abroad chosen to make the voyage.

The ship, its crew, the faculty and 380 students from across the United States and a few foreign countries circled the globe. They cruised for more than three months and made port in 12 countries including the

Lucas Hits Brick Wall With Costly Movie Proposal

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Would you believe that a George Lucas movie project could be turned down by all the major film companies?

Yes, it seems impossible that the creator of five of the top eight moneymaking films in history could be rejected by Hollywood studios. That was one of the matters he revealed in an interview during his recent visit to open his "Star Tours" attraction at Disneyland.

"I have a movie I want to do and I've tried it on all the studios," said Lucas. "I was turned down by all of them. It's expensive, and they got scared as soon as they heard the $30 million cost. They weren't interested."

"I worry about these gray flannel types who are running the studios nowadays. The only thing they care about is money. I ask them, 'What are you going to do with all that money?' Myself, I put all of my money into my company and my ranch up north. What good is money if you don't build something with it?"

So the creator of "Star Wars" turned to other sources and says he's nearing a deal for financing.

Lucas also expressed concern about today's film economics: "You make a movie for $30 million, and then they put their overhead on it, then prints and advertising, and you find that you've got a $60 million cost to get back. It's madness."

With his slight build, trim, prematurely gray beard and shy manner, George Lucas hardly seems the mogul type. Nor is he willing to play that role, despite more than $1 billion worth of tickets sold for his "Star Wars" and "Indiana Jones" films.

He's been offered posts as production head at various studios, including the Walt Disney Co., his partner in the "Captain EO" and "Star Tours" attractions at Disneyland.

He converted memories of his Modesto (Calif.) boyhood into "American Graffiti." Then he dreamed up "Star Wars," which was rejected by Universal because of its $8.5 million budget (it cost a million more). 20th Century-Fox agreed to finance the film, and history was made.

"One of the reasons I made 'Star Wars' was because nobody at that time was making films for young people," he remarked, as he had coffee and a roll on a bench in Tomorrowland. "The movies of the 1970s were either cynical and adult, or they were too childish."

"I wanted to make a film that was both intelligent and fantastic. I've always believed that kids are much smarter than older people think. Fortunately, 'Star Wars' was able to appeal to adults as well as children."

The Lucas touch failed last summer with "Howard the Duck." He made no attempt to dodge the uncomfortable subject.

"A duck from outer space worked as a comic book, it didn't work as a movie," he said. "If I had it to do over, I'd do it again. Look — making movies is like a sporting event: playing the game is the best part. You put all your effort into it, and sometimes you'll be successful, sometimes the public won't connect."

However, he said, "Howard the Duck" has been a hit in Europe and Japan and will eventually earn back the $32-million production cost.

Will the "Star Wars" saga continue?

"Perhaps some day," said the filmmaker, who had initially planned nine films in the space epic. "The trouble is that they require a three- or four-year commitment on my part, and I can't do anything else. When I oversee a film, the commitment is much less."

But he is definitely doing another "Indiana Jones" movie with Harrison Ford.

PBS Airs Sequel Tonight To Nancy Reagan Appeal

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Thousands of people organized to combat teenage drug and alcohol abuse, spurred by the public television show "The Chemical People," hosted by first lady Nancy Reagan in November 1983.

The sequel, "Generation at Risk," also with Mrs. Reagan as host, airs tonight at 8 p.m. EST, and expands the focus of concern to other teen-age problems, including pregnancy, suicide, crime and school truancy.

"What we're trying to tell them ... is the fact that we cannot be that narrow in our focus. There are many other problems afflicting this generation, and we have to start looking to see how we can help," said Russ Martz, a spokesman for Pittsburgh's WQED-TV, the program's producer.

Again and again, however, the issue of drugs and alcohol comes up.

"Someplace in that environment, there are drugs and alcohol. Almost all the time, it's interconnected," said Robert Christiana, chairman of Chemical People Institute Inc.

Many task forces sponsored a teen action day at shopping malls last weekend in conjunction with tonight's broadcast and planned town meetings to watch and discuss the show.

Actor Sam Waterston of "The Killing Fields" narrates the hour-long special. Rehabilitated youngsters and their parents describe their experiences, and successful anti-suicide campaigns and other programs are spotlighted.

The statistics, according to the show's creators, are alarming.

Thirty-four percent of high school seniors abuse drugs regularly. Twenty-five percent of all youngsters become problem drinkers in high school.

Four of every 10 girls become pregnant while still in their teens. One of every four youngsters drops out of high school.

Every 90 minutes somewhere in America, a teen-ager commits suicide.

Martz attributes the problems, in part, to a lack of communication within families.

"If all of this could be worked out with a simple conversation between the parent and child, we wouldn't need all this. But it doesn't seem to be working as smoothly as we'd like it to work in a family unit," he said.

"When you bring in the community, when you bring in ministers and other outsiders, I think you bolster the family as a unit."

That's precisely what many people had in mind when they gathered at 11,000 town meetings around the country to watch "The Chemical People" in November 1983.

The two-part series, aired by the nation's approximately 300 PBS stations, encouraged parents, teachers, nurses, counselors, clergy and other concerned citizens to unite in a coast-to-coast fight against addiction among young people.

As a result of the program, more than 8,000 task forces were created to deal with teen-age drug and alcohol abuse. Most still exist.

"This is just a small core group in each community which is working against all odds to make a difference," said Ricki Wertz, national director for the Public Television Outreach Alliance. "What are they getting out of it? Nothing, but they're trying to change the environment to a positive, healthy one for children."

Some task forces have persuaded local magistrates to counsel young drunken drivers, while others have encouraged bartenders to pledge never to serve teen-agers. Still others have sponsored liquor-free proms, parent-supervised parties, support groups for children of alcoholics, and fairs with the theme "Get High on Yourself."

"What they do isn't splashy. They're not glitzy. They're just picking away slowly at a problem and seeking solutions," Ms. Wertz said.

A major obstacle for the task forces, according to Christiana, has been coping with the "complacency that seems to set in" among the general public.

"We're continually asked, 'Are we talking about drugs and alcohol again?' he said. "It's taken us this long to break that denial."

While acknowledging there is "no quick fix" to such adolescent problems, the show's creators are hoping "Generation at Risk" proves as successful as its predecessor.

"I don't think we can know that one kid didn't ever smoke marijuana today" because of the task forces' efforts, Martz said. "But the continuance of these programs should indicate they're doing some good."

Current projections indicate that Pitt County's current population of 95,671 should grow 11.8 percent by 1990. Greenville's population, now listed at 40,088, is expected to grow 23.1 percent by 1990.

Prof Uses Floating Classroom

Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

"It was a one-of-a-kind experience," said Day, who is a world traveler in his own right. He has spent six years in countries outside the United States and speaks French, Korean and Thai. His principal field of interest is population geography and the Far East.

Day taught classes in geography while the ship was at sea. While in the port he directed field trips to go along with what the students were learning in the classroom.

"For me this was the ideal way to teach geography," Day said. "I would give an in-depth overview of the country that we were heading towards and then we would dock in port and the students could go out and see for themselves."

The ship departed Vancouver, British Columbia, on Sept. 10 but, before it left, the students had a chance to see Expo '86. Stops in East Asia included Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and the People's Republic of China. The ship then proceeded to Malaysia, India, across the Arabian and Red seas and through the Suez Canal to Turkey. The final three European stops were the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and Spain. The voyage ended in Port Everglades, Fla. on Dec. 20.

While the stops in various ports lasted only three to six days, the students were able to get an appreciation of the distinctiveness and richness of the many different people in the world. "It was an eye-opening experience for the students," he said.

Day said the most profound experience was in India where remnants of the old exists side-by-side with the modern.

"We saw cows wandering across streets with shiny new cars zipping by," he said. "There is the poverty of people sleeping and living on the streets of Bombay, and in the next instance, one might meet a middle-class gentleman, immaculately dressed, with impeccable English and a dazzling intellect."

But the students were impressed most by the spirit of the Indian people, which was high despite the poverty and lower standards of living, he said. "Pride and esteem pervades the country," Day said. "This is at least partially accountable to their long rich cultural and religious traditions of thousands of years."

"Americans tend to think of themselves as best, on the basis of our values. It is quite a shock to find another culture so proud, and rightly so, on the basis of their own values," he said.

A typical student on the ship would take four courses for college credit. A wide variety of courses was offered in the social sciences, humanities, business and a few other fields. Day taught economic geography, regional geography of Asia and population geography.

The S.S. Universe is the only ship of its kind in the world. It was built in the United States but operates out of Hong Kong. Its crew is Chinese.

"The food on board was quite good," said Day. There was both American and Chinese cuisine. However, the professor said that by the end of the voyage he "was getting a little tired of rice."

The ECU professor is hesitant to label any of the ports as his favorite but said he enjoyed returning to Korea, where he spent two years in the Peace Corps and where he has many close friends.

Istanbul was another enjoyable place for him. "It's such a remarkable city with huge mosques dotting the hillsides and with winding streets hundreds of years old."

He also said he was impressed with the rapid progress in China. "Buildings were going up everywhere, especially in the rural countryside."

"I guess I find most all places fascinating in their own way. I suppose that's why I'm a geographer!" he said.

Consulting Service

TOKYO (AP) — People who buy travelers checks at the Bank of Tokyo can have their own individual foreign currency consulting service at the touch of a button, according to MIS Week.

The management information services journal reports the bank's computers ask a series of questions about the traveler's plans, including destination, duration of visit, shopping needs and hotels.

The computer then offers advice on how much will be needed in travelers checks and in what denominations, and how much in cash.

The prospective traveler also gets an accompanying printout which contains interesting tips, such as "the yen-dominated travelers check does not circulate well in the United States Midwest" or "the yen circulates well in North Korea, but the dollar does not mean much."

Ninety-nine percent of bank customers who used the system found it agreeable, the publication says.

Tombstone Marshal's Job Sought

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP) — If Tombstone's new marshal, Gerald R. Hollway, ever decides to resign, there are plenty of people who want his job.

Applications for the position have been flooding in from all over the United States and even Canada, City Clerk George L. Kruse said recently.

Kruse said television shows about Tombstone had mentioned the vacancy. Shortly thereafter, the mail began bringing one to three letters a day from people seeing themselves as marshal of Tombstone.

At first, Kruse said, he did not keep the letters after he replied to them. But he began to keep them as more and more arrived.

Kruse said the letters ranged in quality from poorly spelled and written on tablet paper to professionally typewritten on letterhead paper.

Some included resumes. Many of the people who applied were well-qualified, he said.

A 21-year-old ranch hand and tree trimmer in Colorado wanted the job. So did a man employed by the Kansas Department of Corrections. A man in South Carolina wrote he wanted the job "to follow in the steps of Wyatt Earp."

A Canadian applicant described himself as a pilot with military, security, business and technical training. "Most of all, I'm honest, fair and I've had to have more guts than anybody in Canada to survive Communists and Criminals," he wrote.

He enclosed a photograph of himself in uniform.

Kruse says he replies to all letters. "The least we can do is honor them with a response on City of Tombstone stationery," he said.

One man wanted only a refusal of Tombstone city stationery as memorabilia. Kruse said he put the city seal on his reply to make it nicer.

Siren Song

One year ago today, the flight of the space shuttle Challenger ended in tragedy. But while the American space program may be down, it is not out. Perhaps it will begin to experience better vibes when it again sends astronauts to the moon. When the Apollo 12 crew landed there in 1969, the impact of the craft caused the moon's surface to vibrate for almost an hour. Even laboratory instruments on Earth picked up the vibrations.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the first person to set foot on the moon?

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Jan. 29

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's new moon brings you the chance to get out from under some confusing conditions. Progressive friends can be very helpful to you.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): First, get rid of that annoying responsibility. Later concentrate on how to gain your cherished wishes.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Soothe a demanding associate. Get into more modern activities at this time and make good progress.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get that annoying work behind you and then delve into new outlets. Listen to the ideas of new contacts.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Find a more modern system through which you can get your business interests improved.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): As soon as you complete a task at home, contact a prominent friend and join in some long-term activity.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): If you find it hard to answer a communication, get your surroundings in better order.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): You can gain much happiness from a recreational activity you engage in with congenials today.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Invite talented persons into your home after your prsonal duties are done. Add a streamlined look to your abode.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Get rid of some worry and later you can get your ideas across to others in a most brilliant manner.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Be certain to add new ideas to whatever you are thinking of doing regarding your home and assets.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Handle a wordly affair this morning and then go after what you desire in a most dynamic manner.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Use more modern methods and you can soon become more successful. Take your mate out for amusements. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who is a product of the New Era and should be educated in the most modern schools. Don't try to change your progeny in any way or much of the fine promise here may be quickly eradicated.

Bridge players at the Fall North American Championships in Atlanta had a surprise visitor. Omar Sharif was in the country on a promotional tour, and he took a few days off to play some bridge. It did not take him long to come up with a pretty defense in the Swiss Team event.

After a strong no trump opening bid by South and a Jacoby Transfer Bid by North, South became declarer at a contract of two hearts. Sharif led the queen of spades, which by agreement asked his partner, Tannah Hirsch, president of Goren International, Inc., whether he liked the suit or not. East's deuce was discouraging. Declarer won the ace, crossed to the king of diamonds in dummy and tried a low trump to the nine and king. Sharif ducked smoothly!

Not surprisingly, declarer continued with a trump to the ten, and the hand collapsed. East won the jack and shifted to the queen of clubs. Declarer took his ace, then used a club ruff as the entry to the table for a diamond finesse. Sharif was delighted to win the queen. Declarer's failure to play on spades made it a certainty that East held the jack, so the hand was an open book. Sharif cashed the ace of trumps and then reverted to a club, forcing the table's last trump. The defenders took the rest of the tricks for down two.

At the other table North used the Stayman Convention over his partner's one no trump opening bid, and as a result Sharif's teammates ended in a contract of two spades. They made nine tricks in that contract, so the Sharif team gained 6 International Match Points on the hand. Had they done as well on the rest of the boards, they would have won the event!

A Tribute To East Care And Its Team

By Heather Hodges

So many people you had saved,
The roads to many lives you've paved.
We thank you for just being there,
With a medical team that showed they cared.

Now to the team we mourn that's gone,
We thank you for a job well done.
We know you've gone to a better place

To God your heart is won.

When I Was Nine

By Karen Howell

In July, when I was nine,
I went to the hospital though I felt fine.

And when I awoke I couldn't say a peep.

All I could eat was ice cream so sweet.

My tonsils had to come out,
There was no doubt.

My mouth was so dry I thought I would die

A Portrait

By Bronwyn Ito

Montrice De'Shawn Williams, 11, a student at Wahl-Coates School receives special mention.

Caroline was all ready with brush in hand and paper in front of her. Longingly she stared onto the blank piece of paper. She had nothing to paint. She was stuck. Quietly she sat, but then an idea popped into her head.

Usually she painted flowers or meadows full of beautiful flowers but today she painted a doll. It's dress was tattered and worn but the face was lovely. The bright blue eyes seemed to sparkle and the thin line of lips were as bright and red as berries.

A couple of weeks later when the painting was finished it was hung above the fireplace where guests could admire it. The painting wasn't there long though. It was kind of spooky. Neighbors and guests complained about it "watching" them. They felt uneasy in the room with it. it was stashed into the attic and put behind locked doors for months.

"Ugh!" Caroline groaned as she hauled the old t.v. up to the attic. She scanned the area and in the corner she spotted, "the doll."

Ignoring it she put down the t.v. and something caught her eye. "My old college books", she exclaimed, "Why I haven't seen these in years!" She stooped down to look at them. Nearly four hours she sat rummaging through old annuals and books. Realizing it was late she got up to leave but in the corner she saw two lustrous lights. They were the dolls eyes! Staring at them she saw out of the window to her neighbors house. It was on fire! She raced downstairs and called the fire department.

Grabbing her coat she ran out to the house. Luckily no one was in the house when it happened. Caroline was the first to get there but others soon followed.

The glowing eyes were too much for Caroline. When the fire was out and she was safe at home she called the auctioneer for the painting to be auctioned off the next morning.

The next day an old lady bought it. She even said she had a doll just like it. Caroline was amazed. She arranged to talk to her the next day. Mrs. Rivers, the buyer, told a story about the eyes of her doll. She was on her way to the store when two bright lights shone out of her house. She knew her husband wasn't home so she went inside to inspect. The glowing eyes focused on her husband who was clutching his chest in the middle of the floor. The doctor said if she was a minute later she would have lost her husband forever.

Caroline was content now. She was relieved to get that painting out of her house and now the lady's doll has a self portrait.

Adventures In Science

Evaporation and Condensation

For this experiment you will need: a teakettle, about 18 inches of tubing to place over the spout of the teakettle (use tin foil if necessary), a clear glass bottle with a narrow neck, a large pan so that both the bottle and ice can fit in, water and a heat source.

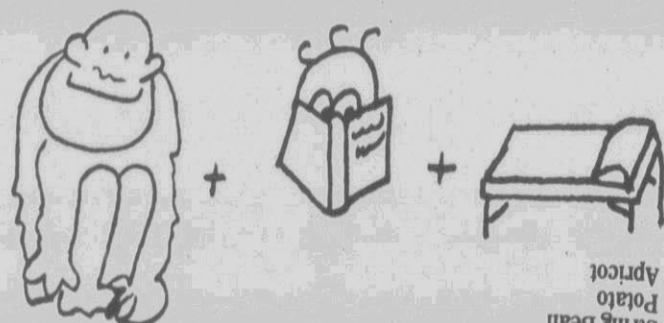

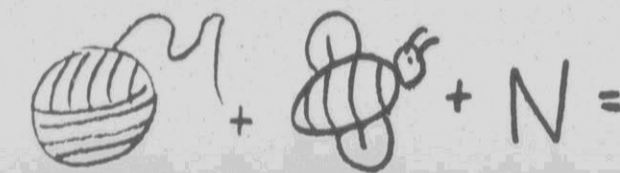

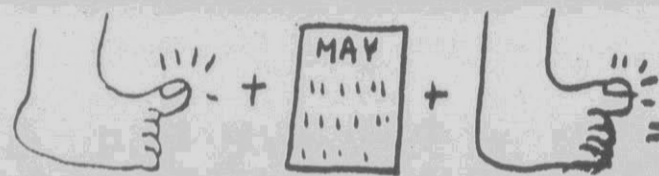

Place about a pint of water in the teakettle and attach the tubing to the spout, as airtight as possible. The other end of the tube should be placed in the empty bottle. Place the bottle in the pan and pack the ice around the base of the bottle.

Boil the water in the teakettle until you see a few drops of water collecting inside the bottle.

The energy from the heat speeds up water molecules and some move so rapidly that they evaporate into the air as gas or water vapor. As more rise, they push into the tubing and pass through it to enter the bottle, which has been cooled by the ice. At that stage the cold slows down the gaseous water molecules and they come together or condense, once again returning to the liquid state.

COCONUTS — The versatile coconut may be used in a variety of ways, including drinks or to decorate cakes. The palm tree it grows on is also useful in making mats or baskets. Experience the edible versatility of the coconut by trying one of the accompanying recipes.

Coconuts

They Are Versatile, Flavorful And Exotic

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

It is used in cakes and candy bars to add flavor and texture. The "milk" it produces may be used in various beverages or may be consumed fresh from its natural container.

It may be used to make soap and candles. The tree it grows on may even be used to make mats, ropes, brooms, houses and bridges.

The leaves on the tree may be used to make thatch roofs, hats, mats and baskets. The sap of the tree's blossom is used to make the sweet drink, "toddy" or tuba, and the sap is also used to make sugar, vinegar and an alcoholic beverage.

What is this versatile fruit? The coconut.

The coconut is the fruit of the coconut palm found in tropical or subtropical parts of the world. The tree stands from 40 to 100 feet high with feathery leaves.

The coconut seed is covered by tough, brown skin, reddish-brown husk and light-colored rind as it grows on the palm. It is sweet-tasting "meat" with a hollow center containing sugary liquid or coconut milk.

Coconut meat is called copra when it is dried solid in the sun, in ovens or by smoking. Oil from copra is used to make margarine and soap.

Try some of the coconut recipes listed below.

CHILLED COCONUT DESSERT

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 (15 1/4-ounce) can crushed pineapples, undrained
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 (5-ounce) package whipped topping mix
- 1 (10 3/4-ounce) loaf angel food cake, cut into 1/4-inch pieces
- 1 (6-ounce) package frozen coconut, thawed

Soften gelatin in cold water. Combine gelatin mixture, sugar and boiling water; stir until gelatin dissolves. Stir in pineapple and lemon juice. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white.

Prepare whipped topping according to package directions. Fold pineapple mixture into whipped topping. Gently fold cake pieces into pineapple mixture, coating all pieces well.

Spoon into a lightly greased 13 by 9 by 2-inch dish; sprinkle with coconut. Chill several hours. Yield: 15 servings.

CREAMY LIGHT COCONUT SAUCE

- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 1/3 cups skim milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons flaked coconut, toasted

Combine eggs and sugar in a small, heavy saucepan; mix well. Gradually stir in milk with a wire whisk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly 15 to 20 minutes or until thickened.

Remove from heat, and stir in vanilla. Cover and chill.

To serve, stir in 1/4 cup coconut and garnish with remaining coconut. Serve with fresh fruit or over ice milk. Yield: 13/4 cups.

BLENDER COCONUT PIE

- 1 (13-ounce) can evaporated milk
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup flaked coconut
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Ground nutmeg

Combine all ingredients except nutmeg in container of electric blender. Process mixture until well blended. Pour into a greased and floured 10-inch pie plate (mixture will be thin).

Sprinkle top of mixture with nutmeg. Bake at 325 degrees for 40 minutes or until pie is set. Let pie cool 10 minutes before serving.

Coaches' Wives Pen Cookbook

The wives of five Atlantic Coast Conference college basketball coaches have joined together to produce a special cookbook in conjunction with a national flour company and the ACC.

Entitled "Favorite Recipes from Carolinas' Coaches' Wives," the book includes recipes for the favorite dishes of Pam Valvano, wife of NC State's Jim Valvano, Dr. Linnea Smith, wife of University of NC's Dean Smith, Carolyn Ellis, wife of Clemson's Cliff Ellis, Joanne Staak, wife of Wake Forest's Bob Staak and Mickie Krzyzewski, wife of Duke's Mike Krzyzewski.

Portions of the proceeds from the sale of book will be divided among the athletic departments of each of the five schools.

Special family recipes included in the book are Pam Valvano's crabmeat dip, Joanne Staak's sausage stuffed mushrooms, Carolyn Ellis' seafood gumbo, Mickie Drzyzewski's veal piccata and Dr. Linnea Smith's cheese biscuit snacks. These are only several of the many recipes for appetizers, quick breads, main dishes, vegetables, cakes and cookies featured in the book.

Each of the recipes have been tested and approved by the Betty Crocker Kitchens in Minneapolis.

The cookbook is available by writing to Carolina's Coaches' Wives' Cookbook, Box 5401, Dept. 830, Minneapolis, MN 55460.

One of the recipes found in the cookbook is:

PAM VALVANO'S BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

- Heat oven to 400 degrees
 - Ungreased cookie sheet
 - 3 cups self-rising flour*
 - 1/4 tsp. baking soda
 - 1/2 cup margarine or butter, softened
 - 1 cup plus 2 tbsp. buttermilk
 - 1 egg white, slightly beaten
- Mix flour and baking soda in medium bowl; cut in margarine until mixture resembles cornmeal. Stir in just enough milk so dough leaves side of bowl and rounds up into a ball. (Too much milk makes dough sticky; not enough milk makes biscuits dry). Turn dough on to lightly floured board.
- Knead lightly 10 times. Roll or pat dough 3/4 inches thick. Cut with floured 2-inch biscuit cutter. Place about 1 inch apart on cookie sheet. Brush tops with egg white.
- Bake until light brown, 10 to 12 minutes. 15 biscuits.

Diet Rules For Heart Patients May Also Be Good For Others

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Normal, healthy Americans seeking a diet for good nutrition may consider using a modified version of the American Heart Association Dietary Guidelines, said a local professor of nutrition education.

"Dietary guidelines for heart patients are not much different than those for the American public in general," said Kathryn Kolasa, professor and section head of Nutrition Education and Services in the department of family medicine, Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center. "They're just a little more strict."

days from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the center.

Changes in diets made for good nutrition should be done gradually, she said. "If we do things cold turkey, we don't last very long. If we go on crash diets, we fall off of them. We want to make small, gradual changes," she said.

For example, Mrs. Kolasa said she has weaned her husband from 8-ounce servings of meat to 4-ounce servings over a few years. "We don't tell you to cut any single food out of your diet totally," she said.

About "$30 million just for air time is going to be spent in the next year on meat commercials," teaching consumers how to discriminate between beef cuts for better health, Mrs. Kolasa said.

American consumers also will be weaned from some fats and sodium through new products on the market.

Polydextrose is a replacement for part of the fat found in foods such as cakes, cookies, candies and frozen dairy products, she said. Salt Sense is a salt product that uses less salt to flavor foods without significantly changing the taste to consumers.

The average American's diet is composed of about 42 percent fat, 12 percent proteins, 18 percent simple sugars and 28 percent complex carbohydrate and natural sugars. Fat, however, comprises about 50 percent of the eastern Carolinian's diet, Mrs. Kolasa said.

When modifying a diet, personal considerations such as the influence of friends and family, food availability, eating habits and statements of health professionals should be considered, she said. "You can't take statements out of context" without creating some confusing contradictions.

The 1986 American Heart Association Dietary Guidelines recommend that saturated fat intake be less than 10 percent of calories, and total fat intake should be less than 30 percent of calories.

Elegant Chicken The Easy Way

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Stuffed chicken rolls are my specialty for entertaining. Each plump, golden roll equals one serving portion so they're convenient for buffet dining. I've tried many fillings but this one made of Boursin cheese with garlic and herbs is the one my guests seem to like best. The cheese is available in the dairy case in most supermarkets.

When my schedule calls for a make-ahead, I pound, stuff and roll the chicken breasts, then cover and refrigerate them for several hours. I add the crumb coating just before baking so it stays crispy.

CHEESE AND HERB STUFFED CHICKEN

- 2 whole medium chicken breasts (1 1/2 pounds), skinned, boned and halved lengthwise
 - 5-ounce package Boursin cheese with garlic and herbs, softened
 - 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
 - 1/4 cup shredded carrots
 - 1/4 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
 - 1/4 cup snipped parsley
 - 1/3 cup fine dry bread crumbs
 - 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
 - 2 tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
- Place each chicken breast half, boned side up, between 2 pieces of clear plastic wrap. Using the flat side of a meat mallet, pound lightly, working from center to edges to form a 5 1/2-inch square. Remove plastic wrap.

In a small mixer bowl beat together Boursin cheese and flour until smooth. Stir in carrot, walnuts and half the snipped parsley. Place one-fourth of the cheese mixture on each chicken breast half; fold in two sides and roll up jelly-roll style. Press edges to seal.

Good Advice For Eating Safely

By NINA KILLHAM

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Eating safely, according to the American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR), means less fat, more fiber and moderate alcohol consumption.

"An Ounce of Prevention," its newly released four-volume cookbook series, offers low-fat, high-fiber recipes that are easy to make and lively.

John Lough, AICR vice president for public affairs, says, "Our focus is primarily on cancer prevention through dietary changes. We try to help people make food decisions that will lower their cancer risk by creating recipes that would tie in with low cancer-risk ingredients."

"We try to explain to people the cancer process, and how diet relates to it."

Two principal actions people can take right now, according to the AICR, are to lower their fat intake and eat more natural ingredients. "As a nation we have too much fat in our diets," says Lough.

He does not recommend supplements, saying that we should get our vitamins and fiber naturally from fresh foods. Whole grains, he says, carry a lot more nutritional value.

AICR offers the following guidelines to lower your cancer risk:

1. Reduce intake of dietary fat — both saturated and unsaturated — from the current average of approximately 40 percent to a level of 30 percent of total calories.
2. Increase the consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole-grain cereals.
3. Consume salt-cured, smoked and charcoal-broiled foods only in moderation.
4. Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation.

The four volumes of AICR recipes correspond with the seasons: "We try to make use of the ingredients that are most available during that season," says Lough.

In the fall issue appear 69 recipes, including curried chicken with vegetables, prune muffins, oatmeal bread, dragon prawns, braised pork with creamy cider sauce and an imaginative, moist, cocoa-lentil cake.

To obtain a copy of this book write to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Cookbook, Washington, D.C. 20069. A donation of $6 per volume is requested. Please indicate which season is desired, as well as a complete name and address.

SPICY POACHED PEARS — A dessert that tastes extra special served warm with vanilla ice cream.

Spicy Poached Pears On Ice Cream Is Tops

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes And Gardens
Food Editor

Poaching simply means cooking something in liquid. Choose a wide, shallow pan. Add about 1 1/2 inches of a liquid that adds and enhances flavor — wine or fruit juice, for instance. Add your choice of seasonings such as sugar, spices or lemon slices. Place the food in the hot liquid and simmer until it's done.

SPICY POACHED PEARS

- 3/4 cup dry white wine
- 1/3 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 2 1/2 inches stick cinnamon or 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 6 large fresh pears, peeled, cored and halved

Shredded orange peel (optional)
Vanilla ice cream

In a 3-quart saucepan combine wine, orange juice, brown sugar and cinnamon. Cook and stir over medium-low heat until sugar is dissolved. Add pear halves; cover and cook 8 to 10 minutes or until pears are barely tender. Uncover; cook about 20 minutes more or until pears are translucent. Remove cinnamon stick; cool. Garnish with shredded orange peel, if desired. Serve warm with vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Transform Dough Into Fancy Bread

By Nancy Byal
Better Homes And Gardens
Food Editor

Voila! Spicy apple filling and a crumb topping transform white yeast bread dough into a fancy breakfast or brunch bread. For the filling, choose a tart apple that holds its shape well when cooked, such as Jonathan, Granny Smith or Winesap. A medium-size apple makes about 1/2 cup of chopped apple.

APPLE STREUSEL COFFEE BREAD

- 16-ounce loaf frozen white bread dough
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened
- 1 1/2 cups finely chopped peeled apples
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter, melted
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
- 1/2 cup slivered almonds (optional)

Thaw dough according to package directions. Divide dough in half; let rest 10 minutes. On floured surface roll each dough half into an 8-inch square. Spread each with half the softened butter. Arrange half the apples down the center of each dough square. Combine brown sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over apples. Cutting toward filling, make 2-inch-long cuts in dough at 1-inch intervals on both sides of apples. Fold strips alternately over apples; fold under ends of loaf.

Place loaves on a greased 15 by 10 by 1-inch baking pan. Brush with melted butter. Stir together flour and granulated sugar. Cut in the 1-tablespoon margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle half the crumb mixture over each loaf; top with almonds, if desired. Cover; let rise until nearly double (45 to 60 minutes). Bake in a 350-degree oven 30 minutes or until brown. Serve warm. Makes 2 coffee breads, 24 servings.

ITALIAN-STYLE FISH

- 4 fresh or frozen halibut, salmon, shark or swordfish steaks, cut 1 inch thick (about 2 pounds)
 - 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 - 2 tablespoons snipped parsley
 - 1 tablespoon snipped fresh basil or 1 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
 - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - Cooking oil
- Thaw fish, if frozen. Beat together butter, parsley, basil and lemon juice. Brush grill with oil to prevent fish from sticking. Place fish steaks on grill over medium-hot coals. Brush lightly with some of the butter mixture. Cover grill. Grill fish 4 to 6 minutes or until light brown. Brush with more of the butter mixture. With a wide spatula, carefully turn the fish. Cover and grill another 4 to 6 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork, basting often with butter mixture. Before serving, top each fish steak with a dollop of remaining butter. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Ingredients For Popular Ethnic Foods No Mystery

America's interest in ethnic cooking and eating is a well-documented trend. Once, Italian, Mexican and Chinese foods were almost exclusively confined to restaurant menus; now, ethnic prepared food and ingredients line the shelves of supermarkets in virtually every neighborhood.

Italian foods have always been popular in this country. But in recent years, Americans have sought authenticity and learned to appreciate real Italian flavor.

One traditional Italian food common to almost all regions of Italy is the antipasto, meaning "before the pasta." An antipasto tray can be arranged simply or elaborately using as few as four or five ingredients, or as many as twenty or thirty.

This recipe for Antipasto Neapolitan uses a variety of vegetables such as cauliflower, cucumber slices, olives and cherry tomato halves. The vegetables are marinated overnight in Italian dressing for an authentic, robust Italian flavor. When ready to serve the vegetables are arranged on a platter with an assortment of provolone or low-moisture part-skim mozzarella cheese slices and salami or bologna slices.

ANTIPASTO NEAPOLITAN

Italian dressing
Cauliflower, partially cooked
Thin cucumber or zucchini slices
Pitted ripe olives
Cherry tomato halves
Provolone or low-moisture part-skim mozzarella cheese slices, cut in half Salami or bologna slices

Pour dressing over combined cauliflower, cucumbers, olives and tomatoes. Cover; marinate in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Drain. Arrange on platter with cheese and meat.

For the main attraction serve Canneloni Per Due. Large Manicotti noodles are filled with a savory mixture of ground beef, spinach, Casino natural low-moisture part-skim mozzarella cheese, Kraft grated parmesan cheese, eggs and seasonings. Smothered in a tomato sauce and topped with additional mozzarella cheese, it makes a colorful and flavorful dish.

CANNELONI PER DUE

17-3/4-oz. can spinach, drained
1 cup (4 ozs.) shredded low-moisture part-skim mozzarella cheese

2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
1 egg, beaten
1/4 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
1/8 teaspoon pepper
6 large manicotti noodles, cooked, drained

115-1/2-oz. jar tomato sauce
Brown meat; drain. Add spinach, 1/2 cup mozzarella cheese, parmesan cheese, egg and seasonings; mix well. Fill noodles with meat mixture. Pour 1/4 cup sauce onto bottom of 10x6-inch baking dish; top with noodles. Cover with remaining sauce. Cover. Bake at 400 degrees, 25 minutes. Top with remaining mozzarella cheese; continue baking, uncovered, until cheese is melted. 2 servings. Variation: Substitute 1/2 of a 10-oz. package frozen chopped spinach, cooked, drained.

MICROWAVE: Crumble meat into 1-quart casserole. Microwave on high two to three minutes or until meat loses pink color when stirred; drain. Add spinach, 1/2 cup mozzarella cheese, parmesan cheese, egg and seasonings; mix well. Fill noodles with meat mixture. Pour 1/4 cup sauce onto bottom of 10 by 6-inch baking dish. Top with noodles. Cover with remaining sauce. Cover with plastic wrap, venting one corner. Microwave on high 10 to 12 minutes or until thoroughly heated, turning dish after 5 minutes. Top with remaining mozzarella cheese; microwave uncovered 30 seconds to 1 minute or until cheese is melted.

Here the cannoloni is accompanied by Oven Herb Bread. Italian or French bread slices are spread with soft margarine seasoned with oregano leaves, dried basil leaves and, of course, a sprinkling of garlic salt.

OVEN HERB BREAD

Italian or French bread slices, 1 inch thick
1/4 cup soft margarine
1/4 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
1/8 teaspoon dried basil leaves, crushed

Dash of garlic salt
Spread one side of each bread slice with combined remaining ingredients. Place, spread side up, on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees, 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Approximately 1/4 cup. Variation: Substitute pre-sliced frozen bagels, split, for bread slices.

The grand finale to this Italian feast is creamy and delicious Venetian Freeze. Melt miniature marshmallows with 1/3 cup milk until smooth. Stir this hot mixture slowly into two beaten eggs, stirring constantly. For flavor add a small amount of sherry or marsala and chill the mixture until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream and broken macaroons and you have a luscious dessert treat.

A TREND — Ethnic foods are popular with Americans.

Root Vegetables Just Perfect For Home Cooking

By BERNADETTE WHEELER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Although root vegetables have been labeled old-fashioned, their solid, earthy character fits right in with the current vogue for "home" cooking. And their strong flavors and textures suit cold-weather appetites for heartier foods.

Celeriac, or celery root, familiar to most people as the cold appetizer served with mustard mayonnaise, can be used in more ways than one. Try it baked, as in the recipe below, adapted from Elizabeth Schneider's "Uncommon Fruits and Vegetables."

Parsnips are delicious by themselves or combined with meat or poultry, and turnips don't always have to be hidden in the mashed potatoes.

Beets, more acceptable to the general population than some of these other root vegetables, can be put to more diversified uses than in well-known borscht, but the recipe below, adapted from a 23-year-old cookbook, is so easy and so tasty that it is worth a try.

CELERIAC WITH HAM AND MUSHROOMS

- 2 celery roots, about 1 pound each
- 1 quart ice water combined with 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1 clove garlic, peeled salt to taste
- 3/4 cup coarsely chopped fresh mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
- white pepper
- 1/2 cup cubed ham
- 3/4 cup grated Gruyere cheese

1. Peel and cube celery roots, placing pieces in a bowl with water-lemon juice as they are cut.

2. Drain and place in saucepan with broth, garlic and salt to taste. Cook gently until vegetable is just tender. Drain, discard garlic but reserve liquid.

3. In saucepan, melt butter, add mushrooms and cook until they release some liquid, sprinkle flour over them, stir and cook for about 2 minutes. Blend in reserved broth, stir until smooth and cook over low heat, stirring, for about 10 minutes until thickened. Add nutmeg and pepper to taste.

4. Place celery root in shallow baking dish, mix in ham and cover with mushroom sauce. Sprinkle cheese over top. Bake in preheated, 350-degree oven for about 35 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

CHICKEN WITH PARSNIPS

(From "Greene on Greens")

- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 1 large chicken (about 3 1/2 to 4 pounds) cut into 10 pieces
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 pound medium parsnips, peeled, halved lengthwise
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

1. Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Combine the cinnamon, salt and pepper in a small bowl. Rub the mixture into the chicken pieces.

2. Heat the butter with the oil in a large skillet over medium heat. Sauté the chicken pieces until golden brown on both sides, about 15 minutes. Transfer the chicken to a shallow baking dish, reserving the drippings in the skillet. Place chicken in oven.

3. Cook the parsnips in boiling salted water for 5 minutes. Drain and cut lengthwise to 1/4-inch-thick slices; cut into pieces about 3 inches long and 1 inch wide.

4. Heat 3 tablespoons of reserved drippings in skillet used for sauteing chicken. Add the parsnips, cook over medium-low heat until tender, 12 to 15 minutes. Place parsnips around the chicken and return to the oven.

5. Lightly wipe out the skillet and add the sugar. Heat, stirring constantly, over medium heat until the sugar melts and begins to caramelize. Carefully stir in the water and vinegar. Stir until smooth. Spoon this sauce over the chicken and parsnips and bake 10 minutes longer.

Serve sprinkled with parsley. Makes four servings.

5 or 6 medium-size beets
4 cups beef broth, canned or homemade
1/2 (6-ounce) can of tomato paste
1/2 tablespoon cornstarch salt and pepper to taste sour cream or yogurt as garnish
Cook beets in water until barely tender. Cut into julienne strips. In saucepan, heat broth, add tomato paste and stir to dissolve. Add beets, bring to boil and cook for about 10 minutes. Mix cornstarch with a little cold water, add to soup and cook gently until mixture has a transparent look. Season to taste. Serve hot or cold with sour cream or yogurt. Makes 4 servings.

(From "World of Vegetable Cookery")
1 pound small white turnips
2 tablespoons sesame oil
1 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons cider vinegar

thinnest possible slices. Stack the slices and cut into slivers.
2. Combine all ingredients and marinate the turnip slivers in the mixture for several hours. Makes four servings.

Sliced packaged bacon tends to go rancid faster than slab bacon.

FRENCH-TOASTED SHORTCAKE

- 1 frozen loaf pound cake
- 10-ounce package frozen halved strawberries in quick-thaw pouch
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter

Frozen whipped dessert topping (optional)
Let frozen pound cake stand at room temperature about 10 minutes to thaw slightly. Meanwhile, thaw strawberries according to package directions. Beat together egg, milk and nutmeg. Set aside egg mixture and strawberries.

Slice pound cake into 1/2-inch slices. Dip each slice in the egg mixture, coating both sides. In a large skillet fry pound cake slices in hot margarine over medium heat for 4 or 5 minutes or until golden brown, turning once. To serve, spoon strawberries over cake slices. Top with dessert topping, if desired. Makes six servings.

Coconuts

MELT IN YOUR MOUTH BARS
 1 stick butter
 1 1/2 cups graham cracker crumbs
 1 package chocolate morsels
 1 package butterscotch morsels
 1 can coconut
 1 cup chopped pecans
 1 can condensed milk
 Melt butter in bottom of a 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Sprinkle crumbs over butter. Add layer of chocolate morsels, butterscotch morsels, pecans and coconut. Pour the condensed milk over top and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Cool in pan about 15 minutes. Cut into bars

Diet

Cholesterol intake should be less than 100 milligrams per 1,000 calories, not to exceed 300 milligrams per day, and protein intake should be approximately 15 percent of calories.
 Carbohydrates intake should make up 50 to 55 percent or more of calories with emphasis on increasing sources of complex carbohydrates, and sodium intake should be reduced to approximately 1 gram per 1000 calories, not to exceed 3 grams per day.
 Alcoholic beverages only should comprise up to 15 percent of total calories per day, and total calories should be sufficient to maintain the best body weight.
 To reduce fat in meals, the center suggests selecting leaner cuts of meat such as the flank, round and rump, lean pork and picnic or Boston butt hams; broil, bake, steam or stew rather than fry, and make low-fat substitutes such as veal or poultry over fatty meats, skim milk for whole milk, and polyunsaturated margarines over butter.
 To reduce the use of salt, season with lemon juice, onion, garlic and herbs as flavoring; reduce eating salt snacks such as pretzels, nuts and crackers; avoid salty or smoked meats and fish; check food labels and avoid foods where sodium is high on the list.
 Eating less candy, pie, cake and pastry reduces sugar in the diet as well as avoiding soft drinks and presweetened products such as fruit juices and cereals.

Elegant

In a small bowl combine remaining parsley, bread crumbs and Parmesan. Brush chicken rolls with melted margarine; roll in coating mixture. Place rolls, seam side down, on a wire rack in an 8 by 8 by 2-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with any remaining coating mixture. Bake in 350-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until tender and golden. Makes 4 servings.
 Nutrition information per serving: 435 cal., 34 g pro., 11 g carbo., 28 g fat, 60 mg chol., 243 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 39 percent vit. A, 11 percent vit. C, 22 percent riboflavin, 57 percent niacin, 39 percent phosphorus.

Good

Put steam basket in pan with 1 inch water. Scrub carrots and cut into 2 1/2 by 1/4-inch sticks. Place in steam basket with snow peas. Sprinkle with white pepper. Starting at narrow tail end, roll up each fillet half loosely. Arrange on top of vegetables. Arrange ginger slices and scallions on top of fish. Cover and steam 8 minutes, until fish is just opaque.
 Meanwhile, make sauce: Warm oil in small skillet over medium heat. Add orange zest and cook until it begins to curl, about 30 seconds more. Add garlic and minced ginger; cook about 30 to 60 seconds more. Add soy sauce and 3 tablespoons water; bring just to a boil, then remove from heat. Pour sauce over fish and vegetables to serve.

Tips For Tempering Chocolate

By JOAN DRAKE
 L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Tempering crystallizes the cocoa butter in chocolate into a very fine, homogeneous mass. This process ensures that chocolate will have a high gloss, even color and texture and a crisp snap when broken.

Because most chocolate is in this condition when purchased, cooks need not be concerned unless they melt the chocolate for dipping or molding. This breaks the temper, and the finished products will "bloom" — be dull and grainy, with a whitish film — unless the temper is restored.

The process of tempering chocolate involves heating it to 110 to 120 degrees, then cooling it to an optimum temperature for dipping or molding, which varies depending on the type of chocolate, as noted below:

 White — 84 to 86 degrees.

A chocolate thermometer that measures temperatures from about 50 to 140 degrees in one-degree increments is a wise investment for anyone serious about tempering chocolate. They are available at cooking and baking specialty shops.

We experimented with tempering chocolate using a double boiler and a microwave oven. Both accomplished the same result, but the microwave oven proved to be the easier of the two methods. Using a double boiler required keeping close tabs on the temperature of the water as well as the chocolate. With the microwave oven, the power setting was placed at 50 percent and only the temperature of the chocolate needed to be checked.

A standard heating pad, turned to the lowest setting and covered with plastic wrap for protection, worked well for holding the tempered chocolate during dipping.

Both of the following methods require 1 1/4 pounds chocolate. At least one-quarter pound must already be in good temper and should be in a solid chunk. This is used for "seeding," stabilizing the butter fat crystals. Coarsely chop the remaining one pound and divide in two (eight-ounce) batches.

Double Boiler Method

Chop one pound of chocolate. Place eight ounces of chopped chocolate in the top of a double boiler. Fill the bottom with enough 125-degree water to touch the bottom and sides of the top half. Retain the water at this temperature during melting.

Let the chocolate stand a few minutes until it begins to melt. Then stir and gradually add the remaining eight ounces of chopped chocolate until all the chocolate is melted. Dark chocolate should be stirred frequently, milk chocolate almost constantly and white chocolate continuously to ensure the crystals melt completely and evenly.

Heat the melted chocolate until it reaches 110 to 120 degrees. Remove the top of the double boiler and dry the outside of the pan. Transfer the chocolate to a one-quart bowl. Add a quarter-pound solid piece of chocolate and stir slowly and continuously until the temperature drops to the optimum dipping temperature.

Remove the piece of chocolate (this is now out of temper). Place the bowl on a heating pad wrapped in plastic with the temperature set at low. The chocolate is ready for dipping.

Microwave Oven Method

Chop one pound of chocolate. Place eight ounces of chopped chocolate in a two-quart microwave-safe bowl. Microwave at 50 percent power until melted, 90 seconds to three minutes. Check milk or white chocolate after 90 seconds.

Stir chocolate, making sure it is completely melted, then add remaining eight ounces chopped chocolate. Microwave at 50 percent power another 90 seconds to 3 minutes, gently stirring until melted.

Check temperature. If chocolate has not reached 110 to 120 degrees, microwave at 10 percent power five to 15 seconds until it reaches that level. Transfer chocolate to one-quart bowl. Add a quarter-pound solid piece of chocolate and stir slowly and continuously until the temperature drops to the optimum dipping temperature.

Remove the piece of chocolate (this is now out of temper). Place the bowl on a heating pad wrapped in plastic with the temperature set at low. The chocolate is ready for dipping.

Stir regularly as the chocolate is used. If it loses fluidity, microwave at 10 percent power five to 10 seconds, but do not heat above 91 degrees.

When buying fresh oranges, select those that are firm and heavy for their size. Those that are puffy or spongy will give less juice.
