Soviets Free Jewish Activist Josef Begun

By CAROL J. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities today released Jewish activist Josef Begun from Chistopol prison where he was reunited with his wife and son, relatives in Moscow said.

Yana Begun, the wife of Begun's son, Boris, said she received a call from Chistopol at 5 p.m. (9 a.m. EST) announcing that her father-in-law had been freed.

She said she was told by her husband and mother-in-law, Inna, that Begun was in "fair health." She said she had no more details on the release.

Begun, a 55-year-old Hebrew teacher, had been sentenced in 1983 to seven years in prison for anti-Soviet activity. He was pardoned Tuesday by the Supreme Soviet, the nation's nominal parliament.

Inna and Boris Begun went to Chistopol, 500 miles east of Moscow, after being told by the Interior Ministry that Begun would be released sometime after noon today.

Yana Begun said her husband and his parents planned to return to Moscow from Chistopol on Sunday.

Dissidents, including Begun's family, had staged five days of demonstrations in Moscow last week demanding Begun's release, and were roughed up by Soviet security agents.

On Sunday, Begun's release was prematurely announced by a Soviet official, leading to several days of confusion about his fate.

Begun's family said other freed dissidents have told them Begun was the last prisoner held in Chistopol for alleged anti-Soviet activity. At least 150 dissidents have been released in the past three weeks, and officials have said a like number of cases are under review.

Chistopol has held many leading dissident figures, including Anatoly Shcharansky, who was freed last year, and Anatoly Marchenko, whose death at the prison in December is widely believed to have prompted the wave of pardons.

Shcharansky, freed in an East-West exchange, now lives in Israel and has changed his name to Natan Sharansky.

At the United Nations in New York on Thursday, Sharansky and his wife Avital stepped into a wooden cage to symbolize the imprisonment of Soviet dissidents and urge the quick release of Begun.

He also demanded that Begun and other Jews in the Soviet Union who wish to emigrate be allowed to do so.

Mrs. Begun said that when the Interior Ministry official called her Thursday, he offered no information on whether she and her husband could leave the country.

Another dissident, psychiatrist Anatoly Koryagin, returned home Thursday after spending five years in a labor camp. His release had been announced by Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov.

Koryagin, 48, was sentenced in 1981 for alleged anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda after making his report about dissidents and mental hospitals. He also was a consulting physician to the Working Commission to Investigate the Use of Psychology for Political Purposes.

White House Stands Behind Koehler Despite Nazi Past

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said today the White House was not aware that John O. Koehler had once been a member of a Nazi youth group when President Reagan picked Koehler as his communications director.

Nevertheless, Fitzwater said, the White House is standing behind the nomination. He said Koehler volunteered to come to the White House today to talk with Holmes Tuttle, presidential personnel director, "to see that all parts of his record are clearly understood."

Koehler could not be reached for comment.

An employee in the office at the U.S. Information Agency, where he formerly served as a consultant, said he did not work there any more and had given a telephone number at the White House where he could be reached. An aide to Jonathan Miller, a White House management official whose number this was, said Koehler had visited there Thursday but will not work at the White House until March 2.

In a telephone interview Thursday night, Koehler, 56, said, "Yes, I was a member of the boy scouts run by the Nazi Party when I was 10 years old."

Fitzwater said he telephoned Koehler after NBC News reported the story Thursday and "he indicated to me that it was in some material he filled out (in applying for the White House job) although it was not in the resume I saw."

"We were not aware of it," the spokesman added.

He said the president did not know of Koehler's membership in the organization, although Koehler says he and Reagan have corresponded for several years.

Fitzwater said Koehler was selected on the basis of his qualifications as a former correspondent and executive with The Associated Press and a consultant to the USIA.

The presidential spokesman said Koehler was recommended by Charles Z. Wick, director of the

Heart Patient Says He's Feeling Best 'In Years'

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The man who received a transplanted heart at Pitt County Memorial Hospital Tuesday night told his surgeon today that he's feeling better than he has in several years.

Dr. Randolph Chitwood, who implanted the heart, said he talked to the 58-year-old Beaufort County man and his wife moments before holding his first news conference since the transplant surgery. Chitwood expressed delight at how well the patient is doing.

If all continues favorably, the heart recipient will go home in three to four weeks, Chitwood predicted.

It was announced that the heart donor was a 37-year-old accident victim who, although brain dead, had a healthy heart. Neither the donor nor the recipient has been identified by name.

The news conference was held by Chitwood; Dr. Mark Williams, the surgeon who removed the donor heart; Art Schneider, the cardiac transplant coordinator, and Larry King, the perfusionist (heart-lung machine operator) who participated in the recipient's surgery.

King commented on the "orchestration" involved in transplant surgery. He said plans are so well made that the operating room can be ready in 45 minutes to a one-hour notice. He said many hospital and medical school departments are involved.

The ideal candidate for heart transplant surgery, Chitwood said, is someone for whom it is determined there is no alternative therapy — that no medicine or other type of surgery will cure or even help him or her. This recipient was such a candidate, he said. Though no other part of his body was diseased, his heart function had deteriorated to the point that his quality of life was poor and death looked very near unless the transplant were done.

He said this man is the fourth candidate who has been identified during the last year — that the previous three died before an appropriate donor heart could be located.

The timing for this operation was very fortunate, Schneider said. The decision to ask for a donor heart was made on Saturday and by Monday the person who turned out to be the donor was in Pitt Memorial. In the meantime donor heart requests had been circulated via a computer network that the Carolina Organ Procurement Agency is a part of throughout a 600-mile radius of Greenville.

The donor surgery team is composed of Dr. Mark Williams, surgeon; Robert Waterman, physician's assistant; Dr. Kim Song, anesthesiologist; Doug Whitfield, nurse

WALKING A CROSS — In seven years, John Butler of Florida has walked streets of about 150 cities, carrying an 85-pound cross as his "personal commitment to a calling." He was walking north on Memorial Drive Thursday afternoon as he attempted to spread his ministry through Greenville. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

His Way Of The Cross

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

He says he has been shot at, spit at, cursed at, made fun of, and someone even came toward him with a hatchet.

John Butler of Orlando, Fla., said some people resent his carrying a 85-pound, 12-foot by 7-foot cross and a Bible because "it upsets people in their hearts."

"It should bother them if they're not ready to meet the Lord," he said as he walked north on Memorial Drive Thursday afternoon, carrying his cross.

Butler has been walking down streets of about 150 American cities for seven years "as a personal commitment to a calling," he said. "It's a lifetime commitment."

"I fulfill what God put on my heart as a simple testimony," Butler said. "God loves you and he paid the price to prove it" through sacrificing his son, Jesus Christ.

Butler said when he was called to ministry about seven years ago, he became convinced that the cross was the symbol he must use. "It's a beautiful way to express humanity. I think it's the most powerful testimony there is."

A former supermarket manager, Butler said he walks 10 to 12 hours during the day, and he speaks to churches of all denominations as he travels from city to city in a van.

He said he does not force his message on people. "I don't approach people. I don't bother people," he said, but many people approach him. On this day, he met a Roman Catholic and a woman preacher, he said, "and somebody stopped and asked me to speak at his church."

Butler said he was chosen by God to be his disciple. "I'm doing this because the Lord says do it. It ain't because I want to do it," he said, explaining that he once dropped the cross to find "secular" work.

"The day I took my job, my boy started limping," Butler said, explaining that he is married and has two other children.

Butler said his son was diagnosed as suffering from a chipped joint and a milk allergy before it was found he had leukemia. "It dawned on me. I opened a door somewhere and it (evil) was coming in like a flood."

After fasting for seven days, his son began to show signs of improvement, Butler said. "The Lord said son you're called to be my disciple."

Butler said he supports his family on about $8,000 a year while the other money is used for tracts and traveling. "God has met our needs," he said. "I have never asked a man or a church or an institution for nothing in seven years."

Kemp Wants Shultz Out As Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, bidding for conservative support for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, today called for the resignation of Secretary of State George Shultz.

Speaking to the Conservative Political Action Conference, Kemp said, "When the question becomes whether the president will conform to his secretary of state or the secretary of state will conform with the president, it is time for Mr. Shultz to do the only correct thing.

"In my view, it is time for George Shultz to resign."

Hearing Set On School Lines

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

A public hearing on proposals for new attendance lines in the Pitt County school system will be held Thursday. The proposals include short-term and long-term recommendations.

Pitt County Board of Education members discussed the proposals at a workshop session Thursday. The proposals were prepared by the school system at the request of the board.

Though not required by law, the board members requested that a public hearing be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Walth-Coates School Auditorium, East Fifth Street, to receive public comment on these proposals.

No action was taken at the workshop session.

The short-term recommendations are based on attendance line changes implemented from the 1987-1987 school year until the 1990-1991 school year. The long-term recommendations (only for the Greenville attendance area) run from the 1991-1992 school year through the 1994-1995 school year.

The attendance line proposals presented Thursday are a combination of recommendations previously presented to the board which will provide for both immediate and future needs of the school system.

The long-term recommendations include the construction of a new high school in the Greenville attendance area. Greenville Middle and the new high school would house grades 9-12. East Carolina University has expressed interest in purchasing the J.H. Rose High School building and campus, according to Superintendent Eddie West.

Initial staff recommendations for redrawing the attendance lines in the Pitt County schools were made in December. After a January public hearing, alternate options were drawn up. A board directive in early February called for specific criteria to be considered in redrawing the attendance lines. At a Feb. 13 workshop session, the board requested that short- and long-term proposals be presented, incorporating the criteria set forth by the board.

Those criteria include providing an equal education for all students, racially balancing the schools, providing for a consistent organizational grade pattern, allowing for construction and avoiding a segregated inner-city system.

At the previous February workshop session, the board stipulated that a consistent organizational pattern should be the goal of the school system where feasible and that a goal of racial balance by grade level should be accomplished consistent with school system ratios targeting achievement of a 20 per-

Myers was arrested Wednesday on similar charges in connection with an incident on Jan. 29 of this year when he reported the theft of just over $8,000 worth of property from his home.

Jones Seeks Study Program For AIDS

RALEIGH — Rep. Walter Jones Jr., D-Pitt, today introduced a resolution in the 1987 General Assembly to establish a legislative study commission on AIDS.

"A massive effort to educate the public and raise awareness of the potential of AIDS to become a major health crisis cannot begin until we know more about it," Jones said. "I believe that a study commission can obtain that information."

Legislators need to know more about the potential of the disease, according to Jones, chairman of the Committee on Commissions and Schools for the Blind and Deaf and vice chairman of the Committee on Children and Youth and the Human Resources Committee.

"We cannot ignore the impact of the disease on its victims, on their families, and on the medical community in which they are treated," he said. "Debate must begin in a calm and rational atmosphere."

"A legislative study commission will have access to resources to research the issues, to hear testimony from the authorities on AIDS, and to hold public hearings for our citizens."

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which cripples the body's ability to fight off various diseases, has struck 30,839 people in the United States, killing 17,728 of them so far, according to the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control. Two-thirds of the reported cases have been in homosexual or bisexual men, but heterosexual transmission is an increasingly serious problem.

'Doctors With Heart' Project Successful

The Valentine's Day "Doctors with a Heart" project of Family Dentistry in Greenville has been called a huge success by Drs. Robert Capps and Danny Qualliotine and their staff.

About 120 people were treated and what would have been more than $5,000 worth of dentistry was done free, no questions asked, that day, Qualliotine said.

He said the earliest-seen patient arrived about 6:30 a.m.; the last-seen, about 9:30 a.m. Work continued until about 5 p.m.

"Our staff gave 100 percent all day long," he said. "Four hygienists cleaned teeth steadily all day long and Dr. Capps and our assistants and I did everything from removing impacted wisdom teeth to creating a replacement front tooth for a 17-year-old. He estimated that about half of the cleaning and about 20 percent of the other work was on children."

About 30 people at a time were invited into the waiting room, which was furnished with extra folding chairs, he said.

He said notes of appreciation have come in all week and that some people even volunteered to do chores like cleaning the waiting room as they waited for their family members.

Asked if he and Dr. Capps will do it again next Valentine's Day, he said, "Definitely. I can't tell you how much this day meant to us and our staff."

He repeated his earlier-expressed hope that other doctors and dentists in this area will be involved in the nationwide "Doctors with a Heart" program next year. Anyone wishing information on how to get prepared promotions material for participation may contact Paula Qualliotine at the Family Dentistry office.

cent variance on a short-term basis and a 12 percent variance on a long-term basis. Gradual improvements in racial balance are found in the proposals.

In addition to the criteria proposed by the board, the board's latest proposals reflect the initial criteria utilized by the staff in drawing the lines. Those criteria include building capacity and usage, potential for growth, cost effectiveness, transportation and extent of change.

Action will be taken on the proposals at the March meeting of the board.

The short-term and long-term proposals and the impact of the recommendations provided by the staff are included in the chart below.

Ayden-Grifton Attendance Area SHORT-TERM PROPOSALS

1987-1988 — Present attendance lines and grade levels at each school would remain the same. No students or teachers would be moved.

Projected black-white student ratios would be: Ayden Elementary — 52:48; Ayden Middle — 56:44; Grifton — 43:57; Ayden-Grifton — 43:57. The racial balance for the attendance area would have an eight percent variation.

Construction would take place at Ayden Elementary and Grifton Elementary schools. Building capacity and cost effectiveness would be underutilized and transportation would be approximately the same.

1988-1989 — Ayden Elementary would house grades kindergarten through three and Ayden Middle would house grades four through eight. Fourth grade students at Ayden Elementary School would be moved to Ayden Middle School and an area north of Ayden including Stick Valley subdivision would be moved to Ayden's attendance area, resulting in approximately the same amount of transportation. A total of 126 students and five staff would be affected.

The racial balance would remain at 8 percent deviation. The transportation would be approximately the same and building capacity and cost effectiveness would be maximized. Three trailers would be eliminated.

Greenville Attendance Area SHORT-TERM PROPOSALS

1987-1988 — Students living in Lake Ellsworth, Summerfield, Cambridge, Singletree and Westhaven 3-7 would attend Sadie Sautler, South Greenville and the secondary Greenville schools. Students living in Tucker estates, Tuckahoe, Planter's Walk, Quail Ridge and Windy Ridge would attend Elmhurst, South Greenville and the secondary Greenville schools. To assure consistent attendance patterns, all students attending Eastern and Third Street schools would attend Wahl-Coates School in grades four through six. This recommendation affects students living in Lincoln Park, Brook Green, Rock Springs

Committment

Before the Girl Scouts proceed with a sewage plant at Camp Hardee that would discharge treated waste into the Pamlico River, the organization must be certain it is financially committed to building a system that works.

The camp needs the sewage plant to expand, since the land won't perk for septic tanks. But the cost of a waste treatment plant of the quality needed appears to be a steep investment for a non-profit organization that operates only five months a year.

There is no question about the Girl Scouts' concern for the environment. Neither is there doubt that youths who can't visit the camp year would benefit from expanded service. The question is whether, realistically, the scouts are financially prepared to fund a system that is acceptable.

At the heart of the issue is what type of disposal plant the Scouts come up with. Variance in cost estimates on the proposed system — from $85,000 to $300,000 — suggests a disparity in the quality of systems under consideration. The potential impact of a badly designed, poorly functioning unit on the Pamlico is serious. There is no doubt Scout officials want a system that minimizes the impact of wastewater on the Pamlico, but there is a question about whether the organization can feasibly afford it.

Just because the state grants a permit doesn't guarantee the proposed system will work adequately. There are shortfalls in even the strictest regulations. For example, the Scouts may propose a sewage plant that meets the state requirements, but because it only operates five months a year — the months the camp is open — the facility may not function properly. Environmentalists have voiced that fear, and it is a point that needs investigation.

A malfunction could have a negative effect on water quality. Both scout and state officials should seek the direction of technical experts on the issue and this question should be answered beyond doubt before expansion proceeds.

Again, the Girl Scouts should be sure, before proposing a treatment system, they have a plan that really works. Then, the organization should be certain it is monetarily committed to whatever it takes to build a system that ensures water quality.

Otherwise, the purpose of both the camp and the expansion — allowing the public to enjoy the beauty and resources of the Pamlico — will be defeated.

Cuomo's Departure Uopens Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mario Cuomo's decision not to run in 1988 changes just about everything in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The New York governor stunned Democrats with a flat withdrawal statement during a Thursday night radio show in New York City, ending the speculation about his presidential aspirations that began in San Francisco in July 1984.

From that soaring keynote speech at the Democratic National Convention, Cuomo always said he wasn't running for president. But few believed him.

Cuomo often acted like a candidate, and many thought that in the end he could not resist the temptation that has grabbed so many politicians before him.

But resist he did. "The Democratic Party offers a number of candidates who can prove themselves capable of leading this nation toward a more sane, a more progressive and a more humane future," Cuomo said Thursday. "I will not add my name to that number."

The one thing that Cuomo's withdrawal does not change is that former Colorado senator Gary Hart is still the leader in the early, early polls on the race.

Hart's position is even stronger now, since there is no other candidate who can claim a national base and threaten Hart's front-runner status the way Cuomo could have in these early months.

After saying that, however, all bets are off and all the easy assumptions about the Democratic race are shattered.

The New York governor's decision changes the dynamics of the contest, at least through the opening Iowa caucuses and the New Hampshire primary almost a year away.

For the next 12 months, it's now Hart against everybody, rather than a neat two-man race between Hart and Cuomo in the preliminary jousting, with everyone else trailing far behind.

For the candidates already out there, they now have to look at one another for the first time, instead of worrying about him coming down on them," said Thomas Donahue, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO.

And Hart cannot simply count on picking up the supporters Cuomo might have had, since each appealed to different constituencies.

For example, Cuomo appeared to be the Democratic candidate who might well be able to win the AFL-CIO endorsement this fall, union leaders said at a meeting this week in Florida. Without him, it's hard to see any Democrat mustering the two-thirds support needed to win the union nod.

The new dynamics also mean the second-tier candidates — former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, Delaware Sen. Joseph Biden, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri — will get more attention in the media. It means Hart will take potshots from all of them — and he will be forced at some point to pay attention and respond.

And that puts more pressure on Hart to perform. The expectations for his campaign will soar, although not quite as much as one opposition campaign operative joked: "This means Hart has to win 70 percent in the Iowa caucuses to make it a victory."

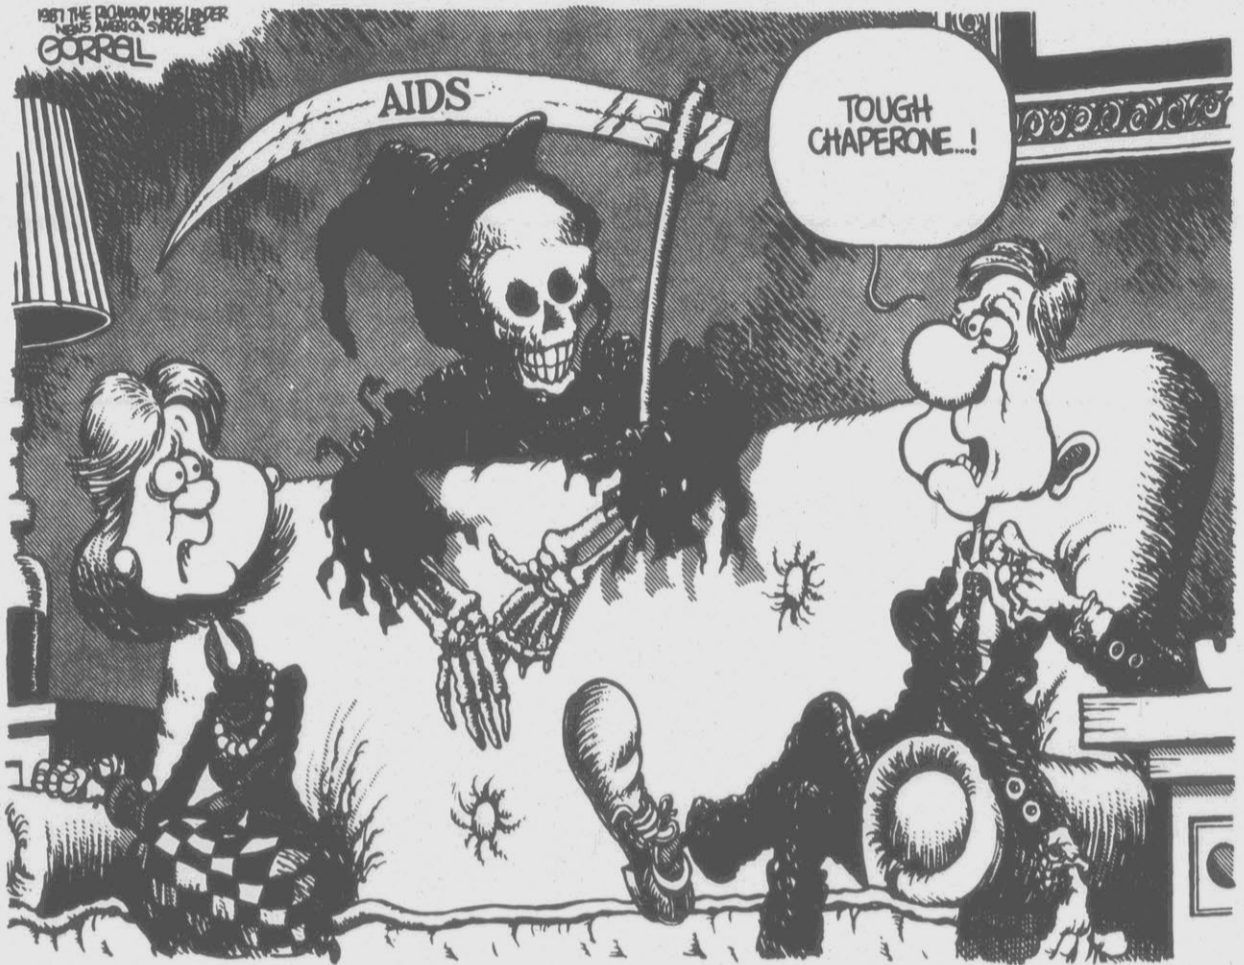

Cuomo's absence from the race may give the Rev. Jesse Jackson a new opening to exploit. Jackson would like to lay claim to the liberal wing of the party, but Cuomo was a strong contender for the liberals' loyalty and support. With the New York governor out, Jackson is certain to press his case.

Cuomo's withdrawal also may bring more candidates into the race.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis — already a likely candidate — becomes an all but certain candidate. Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, who has been ruminating about a bid, may now move toward entering the suddenly more open contest.

Cuomo's decision evokes memories of the last time around the presidential track.

A Case For Judge Hastings

Numerous writers and commentators are saying things to the effect that "the South is going to play a key role in the 1988 presidential races." This is no new thing in political facts of life: the Southern tier of states has rarely been something to be brushed aside by the political world.

One big reason may be that throughout the area almost everybody is somebody else's "cousin." In turn, that feeling creates a sense of political and even spiritual solidarity. The geographical proximity just naturally exists.

Recognition of this was manifested by Democrats and Republicans with selection of not-gable Southern cities for their presidential nominating conventions.

Democrats opted for Atlanta which, in spirit, represents the deepest single city of the "deep south." Republicans settled on New Orleans, which (geographically) is even further south, and whose traditions run also deep as almost any to be found south of Washington, D.C.

Democrat selection may have also been influenced by awareness of the need to re-cement old ties to a longtime solidly partisan bloc; just as Republican strategists may have felt it time to bolster recently-found muscle in the region.

Both can be assured of happy outcomes. They will go on their standard bearers and delegates are going to have good times in New Orleans and in Atlanta.

For Democrats the need may have appeared more pressing. We are reminded that in three of the last five presidential elections the party did not have a southerner on its ticket and in those elections it carried one southern state ... once.

A remedial measure was sought in staging primaries and caucuses in the region in early March of 1988. The outcome might not single out a southern candidate but would offer a measure of southern endorsement for the potential choices.

It's still early in the game; so nobody has emerged to wear that mantle but the days are a'marching on. A touch of suspense is involved.

Today's Thought

The deeper the probe into the Iran-Contra affair goes, the deeper President Reagan appears to go.

WASHINGTON — Alcee L. Hastings is identified by his counsel as a black, liberal, activist Democrat. In 1979, upon his nomination by Jimmy Carter, Hastings became a U.S. District judge for the Southern District of Florida. Now the judge is in a heap of trouble: The Judicial Council for the 11th Circuit has recommended that he be impeached.

It's a bum rap. On the record, Hastings is not my kind of judge, but no matter. It's time for his fellow judges to get off his back.

You will recall that just a few months ago, the House and Senate went through the agonizing process of impeaching and convicting Judge Harry Claiborne of Nevada. The Claiborne case and the Hastings case are wholly different.

Claiborne was indicted for income tax evasion. He was convicted and sentenced to prison. The case against him was proved not merely beyond a reasonable doubt, but beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Hastings was indicted in December 1981 for conspiracy to accept a bribe. He went on trial in February 1983. Hastings was not convicted. He was acquitted. The government's evidence against him was wholly circumstantial. Not one tainted dime ever was traced to Hastings' pocket.

Notwithstanding this jury verdict, two of his fellow judges set in motion a prolonged investigation of the allegations against him. A five-man committee spent months compiling a 381-page report, accompanied by 2,800 exhibits and almost 4,900 pages of transcript, all intended to show that the jury verdict was a miscarriage of justice. The committee concluded that Hastings had fabricated certain evidence at his trial. The Judicial Council for the 11th Circuit accepted the committee's recommendation that Hastings be impeached. The matter now is pending before the Judicial Conference of the United States. In mid-March the conference is expected to act upon the recommendation.

Nothing quite like the Hastings case ever has appeared in the annals of jurisprudence. The post-trial investigation and recommendation raise constitutional questions of grave importance. Some questions involve the impeachment process: How did the judiciary get into the act? Under the Constitution, impeachment is solely the responsibility of the House of Representatives.

Other questions go to the issue of double jeopardy. "No person shall be put in jeopardy of the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb." That is what the Constitution commands. Technically speaking, a trial after impeachment is not a criminal prosecution; it is a proceeding that may result in removal from office. The Constitution contemplates that in the event of conviction by the Senate, "the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law."

But Hastings already has been subjected to indictment, trial and judgment according to law. After a lengthy trial, vigorously prosecuted by the government, a jury set Hastings free. The government had its opportunity to prove Hastings guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and the government failed. This ought to be an end to it. It seems to me patently unfair for the government, through the 11th Circuit Judicial Council, to pursue the charge further. A jury's verdict, after a strongly contested trial, ought to count for something.

The charge against Hastings was to this effect: that a prominent lawyer, had become Hastings' close friend; that in the spring of 1981

Hastings presided over the trial of Thomas and Frank Romano under the federal anti-racketeering act; that the Romanos were convicted by a jury; that Judge Hastings ordered the defendants to forfeit $846,000 in cash to the government; that Borders boasted to underworld figures of his ability to "fix" cases in federal courts; that Borders entered into a criminal conspiracy involving a bribe of $150,000 to get the Romanos' property returned and their sentences made minimal.

Hastings did indeed order the defendants' cash returned, but only because two decisions of the 11th Circuit required him to do so. He did not treat the defendants lightly; he sentenced them to three years in prison. Borders was arrested red-handed with marked money given to him by a disguised FBI agent. He subsequently was convicted. No money ever went to Hastings.

The judge's victim is that he was the innocent victim of Borders' scam operation. It's a plausible defense. The jury believed it. Absent overwhelming evidence of Hastings' perjury, that should suffice.

Strength For Today

Some people do not know how to accept gifts and favors. They may be eager to give, but for some reason they do not seem to be able to accept gracefully when others want to give to them. They seem to regard it as a virtuous piece of self-abnegation if they can arrange affairs so that they are always giving and never receiving.

It is true that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Our Lord made that quite plain. But he also demonstrated by example that there is a time for receiving as well as for giving. When his disciples and others complained about the prodigality of the women who anointed his feet with precious ointment, he rebuked those complainers and declared that this woman had done a beautiful thing.

To receive gracefully is an acknowledgement that both the gift and the giver are important.

Congress Using Hearings To Harness CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a difficult decade of stop-and-go supervision of the nation's spies, the Senate Intelligence Committee is using the confirmation process of a new CIA director to try again to rein in an agency once condemned as a "rogue elephant."

The opportunity is provided by the unexpected illness and resignation of CIA Director William J. Casey and the proposed elevation of his deputy, Robert M. Gates, just as Congress opened investigations into the Iran-Contra controversy.

The secret sale of arms to Iran, described by Gates as "a risky gamble" that in hindsight should not have been tried, was one of hundreds of covert operations initiated by a president since the end of World War II.

Until the Senate and House intelligence committees were made permanent institutions in 1976, most of these closely held operations were conducted in the shadows, outside the realm of regular and consistent congressional oversight.

Assassination plots, experimentation with mind-altering chemicals, the organization of coups all were included in the characterization of the CIA by the late Sen. Frank Church as a "rogue elephant" which, by its very nature, was resistant to the control and guidance of Congress during the 1970s.

Since the Church committee reported in 1976, Congress has sought to make oversight of covert operations a matter of expected routine.

But under Casey, whose roots in intelligence work date to the wartime operations of the OSS in Europe more than four decades ago, and who is widely credited for shoring up CIA morale and bolstering its budget, lawmakers had increasingly complained that information was grudgingly and sparingly provided.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, has said that in getting information from Casey, even behind closed doors and with guarantees of secrecy, one had to ask precisely "the right question."

And even if senators found the right question, they could count on getting only "half the right answer," Cohen said.

Gates has promised to end that. In testimony Tuesday and Wednesday, he repeatedly pledged to be forthcoming and forthright in the information he supplies. He acknowledged the CIA made mistakes in helping the National Security Council facilitate the Iranian arms sales, a covert operation the CIA had been forbidden by the White House to disclose.

And, reversing the stance he took on the first of the two days of public testimony, he told the committee he would feel it his duty as CIA director to report to the panel on any illegal intelligence activity by any U.S. agency, including the NSC.

The relationship between the congressional intelligence oversight committees and the CIA is of necessity a two-way street.

Analysis

For his part, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., the Senate panel's new chairman, has promised to guarantee that the CIA's secrets remain secret.

On the other hand, Boren and his committee want no more surprises about what U.S. agents are up to, surprises such as the jolting 1984 revelation that the CIA had used contract employees to mine Nicaraguan harbors.

That goal of secrets shared and secrets kept can be achieved, both Gates and senators agree, only if a "relationship of mutual security and trust" is nurtured and sustained.

Gates said he believes the oversight committees should be told in advance about covert operations, except in emergencies when he said there might be justification for delaying for "several days."

He said it is clear the Iran-Contra disclosures have strained the CIA's relationship with Congress "to the breaking point."

And he said if he had reason to believe the relationship of trust with Congress was in new danger because knowledge of a covert operation had been withheld, he would "contemplate resignation."

Several senators said they are unconvinced Gates did all he could have done to make sure the CIA stayed within bounds at two key flashpoints during the Iran-Contra episode.

Some said Congress should have been told when NSC aide Lt. Col. Oliver L. North asked the CIA to make available a charter flight by an agency-owned aircraft to ferry what turned out to be a cargo of U.S. arms into Iran.

Others said Gates should have told Congress immediately when he was informed by a senior CIA analyst on Oct. 1 that disgruntled international arms dealers might expose the secret contacts with Iran by claiming that profits from the arms sales had been diverted to the Contras.

On Wednesday, Gates testified he told Casey on several occasions, including one last fall, that the Iran policy was wrong.

"I told the director that I thought the entire activity should be called off and that the whole policy was a bad idea," Gates said.

In testimony before a closed session of the committee Dec. 4, a transcript of which was declassified, Gates said he had not expressed his concern to his superiors in the agency, but he recanted Wednesday, saying he "misspoke."

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., accused Gates of trying to "pass the buck" to Casey and others.

And Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said Gates came close to "dissembling" by trying to distance himself from Casey's initial and only testimony on the possible diversion of the arms sale profits.

That testimony, Specter complained, was scanty, incomplete and possibly deceptive.

And Cohen said, "You basically didn't want to rock the boat. You were not prepared to lay your career on the line for a matter you did not create. You didn't want to know about it."

Whether that was the case or not, Gates says that if confirmed the responsibility for knowing such things will be his.

The confirmation process, he said, has been a healthy ordeal which has cleared the air and helped get the facts on the table.

And as the public phase of the process closed, both the nominee and key senators agreed progress had been made.

Summing up, Cohen told reporters, "I would say he has taken a very large step toward reestablishing trust."

Lawrence L. Knutson covered the congressional investigation into alleged illegal activities by the CIA a decade ago and is now one of the AP reporters covering the Iran-Contra affair.

Farmers Sue Over FmHA County Elections Process

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The election of local Farmers Home Administration loan officials, sought by farmers as a way of getting more qualified people, has spawned a lawsuit saying the new process was hasty and unfair.

"The June 1986 FmHA county committee elections were a sham," said Betty Bailey, director of the Rural Advancement Fund's Farm Survival Project. "Less than 700 individuals voted. In 50 counties fewer than six votes were cast. In only 20 counties were more than two people on the ballot for the two elected positions."

The fund filed suit Thursday in U.S. District Court against the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the FmHA "to correct injustices created in these government agencies' handling of the 1986 FmHA county committee elections," Ms. Bailey said at a news conference.

Ms. Bailey said her group originally had favored elections over the previous policy of having committees appointed.

"We found that they were often committee members more because of political connections or business interests than because of an ability to represent local farmers well," she said. "They often functioned as rubber stamps for county supervisors. In some cases, they overstepped their authority."

However, new FmHA regulations governing elections barred from nomination all FmHA borrowers and anyone active in a political club, organization or committee, the lawsuit said. The suit also alleges farmers had an average of only five days to nominate candidates.

"We believe that FmHA's actions in the case of the county committee elections are part of an overall pattern ... making it more and more difficult for farmers to receive legitimate low-interest loans at a time when they are most needed; by making it more and more difficult for farmers to control any of the important decisions that are being made about their lives; and by accelerating the exodus of farm people from the land, pushing them out of farming," Ms. Bailey said.

The suit asks that the June 1986 elections be set aside, that FmHA be required to drop restrictions on nominees and provide more notification and that new elections be held. In addition, the suit asks that any negative loan actions by the present county committees be invalidated.

Steven Levitas, the Raleigh attorney who filed the suit, said farmers believe they will be treated more fairly if the election process is opened up.

The class-action lawsuit was filed on behalf of all farmers, but five farmers were named as plaintiffs — Bobby Sullivan of Princeton, Leon Spaulding of Clarkton, Victor Crosby of Harmony, John Chaney of Midland and Wilson Gerald of Orrum. All said they were barred from participating as nominees or did not have time to actively work for the election of others.

Other defendants named in the suit were USDA Secretary Richard Lyng, FmHA Administrator Vance Clark and North Carolina FmHA Director Larry Godwin.

Benny Bunting, chairman of the United Farmers Organization Legal Committee, said his group supported the suit.

"We have been legislated in and regulated out," he said. "The new rights we won through Congress' passing of the Food Security Act were taken away by FmHA's administrative handling of the election regulations. We have worked to get this lawsuit filed today in order to correct this injustice."

'Piggyback' Tax Plan Offered

RALEIGH (AP) — There's no reason why North Carolina taxpayers should waste time and money filling out federal and state tax returns that require different calculations, two legislators say.

That would change under a bill filed Thursday by Sens. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, and Charles Hipps, D-Haywood. Under the measure, the state tax code would "piggyback" the federal code, with the state individual income tax being a percentage of federal taxable income.

Under the bill, the state would apply its rates to the income definitions, deductions, exemptions and exclusions that apply under the federal tax code. Thus, people would not have to figure their taxes twice each year.

"It's always appeared to me ridiculous to have to go through a complex federal calculation and then start all over again from the beginning ...," Winner said. "We ought to be able to devise a system which raises the same revenue and which treats everybody at least similarly without a second, duplicate calculation."

Hipps said the purpose of the measure was to simplify the system for business and individual taxpayers, "cutting through the red tape" and sparing them the expense of paying accountants to prepare separate state and federal forms. Eight other states, including South Carolina, "piggyback" the federal system, he said.

"You ought to be able to devise a North Carolina return the size of a large postcard when we're through with this," Winner said.

The bill does not propose a new set of rates. Winner said those would be inserted later after a study is done to determine what rates are needed to keep the bill "revenue-neutral" — that is, neither increasing nor decreasing taxes.

Textile Forces Revive Drive For Import Bill

By DAVID PACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After narrowly losing the major trade battle of the 99th Congress, supporters of the textile and apparel industry have returned with a new import-restricting proposal designed to resolve the complaints that cost them victory a year ago.

Rep. Butler Derrick, D-S.C., chairman of the Congressional Textile Caucus, introduced the new bill in the House on Thursday, insisting that the changes from last year's textile bill will win the votes necessary to override a threatened presidential veto.

"We're very confident we are going to get it passed and we're confident that if the president vetoes it, we will have a veto override," Derrick said.

The new bill, a scaled down version of the one vetoed by President Reagan during the last Congress, sets a global limit on textile and apparel imports based on 1986 levels and permits a 1 percent annual growth in each import category.

The vetoed bill, sponsored by Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., targeted specific countries for substantial import rollbacks, triggering complaints that it discriminated against the major textile exporting countries of the Far East.

Jenkins, who co-sponsored the bill introduced Thursday, said the global import limit will resolve such discrimination complaints and the elimination of import rollback provisions will prevent retaliation against U.S. exports in other areas.

Jenkins said the new bill also provides for textile tariff reductions to compensate countries injured by the global import limits. The absence of such a compensation provision in last year's bill prompted charges that it would violate international trade agreements requiring such compensation.

"By making these changes, we have met all of the major criticisms of the previous bills," Jenkins said, "and if the president and other opponents of the bill continue to oppose this modest effort, it will become painfully evident that they are simply against the textile, apparel and shoe industries and they will never support any meaningful legislation."

South Carolina Sens. Strom Thurmond, a Republican, and Ernest Hollings, a Democrat, introduced an identical textile bill in the Senate on Thursday.

Both the House and Senate approved Jenkins' bill in 1985 by wide margins, but the House failed by eight votes last August to override Reagan's veto. The battle to override the veto produced one of the most expensive lobbying campaigns in Congress in recent years.

Derrick said administration officials have assured him that Reagan will veto the new textile bill if it reaches his desk, but he said the changes from the Jenkins' bill should attract enough new support to override a veto.

IN THE STATE

Conviction

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — A man convicted in October of conspiring to firebomb his restaurant in Boone, N.C., in 1981 was sentenced Thursday to five years in prison.

Mike Hakaj, 32, now of New York City, also was sentenced to three years' probation on two related charges of interstate travel in aid of racketeering. The charges were consolidated for sentencing, according to Thomas Bondurant, an assistant U.S. attorney. The probation will begin after Hakaj serves the five-year sentence, he said.

Hakaj was acquitted in Watauga County Superior Court in November 1981 on state charges of arson, conspiracy to commit arson, and burning a building to injure an insurance company, all in connection with the fire at Hakaj's Italian Village Restaurant at the Boone Mall.

911 System

GREENSBORO (AP) — Southern Bell will spend $40 million in the Greensboro area to improve its telecommunications system, including an emergency 911 system to begin about July 1.

The $40 million in projects are part of the company's overall plans to spend nearly $300 million in North Carolina during 1987, company officials said Wednesday.

The 911 system will enable people with emergencies to dial just three digits. Now, residents in Greensboro, High Point and rural Guilford County must dial regular, seven-digit phone numbers.

Trial Denied

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Superior Court Judge Thursday denied the request of parents of a severely handicapped child for a new trial of their medical malpractice suit against a Greensboro obstetrician.

Judge Preston Cornelius' ruling followed a 29-day jury trial of the case. Last month the jury decided that Dr. Sherry Dickstein, Moses Cone Memorial Hospital and labor nurse Leslie Gains were not responsible for the severe handicaps and other brain damages to Dustin Clark.

The ruling closes the case in Guilford Superior Court, unless Michael and Celeste Clark ask the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to grant them a new trial. The Clarks' attorney, Grover McCain of Chapel Hill, said the couple had not decided whether to pursue the request.

Apple Still

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — There's more than one use for 250 bushels of rotten apples, a federal judge told a Wilkes County man who pleaded guilty to a charge of using the apples in a still.

John Junior Smith's attorney said Smith couldn't think of any other use for the apples, and was "taking waste agricultural products and turning them into a usable resource."

"Well, he could have made applesauce out of them," said Judge Woodrow W. Jones before fining Smith $1,000 and placing him on probation for three years.

Agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms arrested Smith and another man after finding a still near Roaring River in November 1985.

Prison Opposed

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Burke County residents don't want another prison, says state Rep. Ray C. Fletcher of Valdese, who says he will fight the proposal to put a medium-security prison near Morganton.

Gov. Jim Martin recommended last week that a replacement for Craggy Prison in Buncombe County be put on a 97-acre state-owned site beside the Western Correctional Center. The new prison would house 300 men.

Martin's proposal was part of a $15 million emergency legislation package designed to reduce prison overcrowding.

"I really don't think it should be moved," said Fletcher, D-Burke. "People (in Burke) don't want a medium-security prison in the county. We already have Western Correctional Center and they'd rather not have another prison."

Drug Arrests

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh police began arresting suspects early Thursday in a two-month undercover drug operation aimed at street drug dealers, officials said.

Police Maj. R.T. Justice said 49 people will be charged on a total of 177 indictments, most of them felony drug charges. At 10 a.m., 27 of the people had been booked, Justice said.

Justice said the operation, called On Target, was a spinoff from Operation Stay Awake in the Wake County schools late last year. In that operation, 90 students were arrested on drug charges. Officials said the On Target raid was aimed at suppliers of drugs.

Piedmont Opens Door To More Takeover Offers

By ROBERT E. DALLOS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Piedmont Aviation put itself on the auction block late Thursday after declining a takeover offer from Norfolk Southern worth nearly $1 billion. After meeting for more than six hours in Raleigh, the airline's board announced that a special committee of outside directors, which earlier had recommended that Norfolk Southern's $65 per share offer be accepted, "would withdraw its recommendation."

The action came in response to a counter-proposal made Wednesday by USAir Group of Washington. USAir, like Piedmont, is one of the few medium-sized airlines that has not been acquired recently by a larger carrier. USAir's bid, the third it has made for Piedmont, was for $1.6 billion and involved the payment of some stock. But Piedmont has indictated that it prefers an all-cash deal. Norfolk Southern already owns about 19 percent of Piedmont's stock. Piedmont's board said that in view of USAir's sweetened proposal, the board had "determined to hold discussions with all interested third parties which may be interested in a business combination with Piedmont."

Piedmont spokesman Donald McGuire said that he was unaware of any other offers that had been received as of Thursday evening. The latest USAir bid is worth $1.36 billion, based on Piedmont's 18.86 common shares outstanding. But if the deal is calculated on the basis of the airline's fully diluted shares — which include all instruments convertible into common stock — it would be valued at about $1.6 billion. USAir is offering $71 a share in cash for 50 percent of Piedmont's stock and between 1.55 and 1.9 USAir shares for each of the remaining Piedmont shares. Either bid would be the most ever paid for airline, possibly twice as much as the $884 million acquisition of Republic Airlines by Northwest Airlines in 1986. "Opening itself for bidding is just the kind of step that I expected," said Louis Marckesano, airline analyst with the Philadelphia-based brokerage house Janney Montgomery Scott. "They did not accept the Norfolk Southern bid to see if anything else materialized. If not they'll go with USAir."

On the New York Stock Exchange, Piedmont shares rose $3.875 Thursday to close at $69.75. Nearly 1.6 million shares were traded. Piedmont has been one of the fastest growing, most profitable airlines in the country. Its revenues have grown at an annual rate of 28 percent and its earnings have grown at a compound annual rate of 35 percent since the industry was deregulated in 1979. Since the deregulation free-for-all began, Piedmont has grown from a regional carrier operating 46 airplanes in the mid-Atlantic states to a major airline (revenues above $1 billion annually) with more than 162 jets flying coast-to-coast and a large number still on order. This year, 20 aircraft will be delivered and another 39 are scheduled for delivery between 1988 and 1991.

Martin Says No To State Effort In Piedmont Bidding

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A state attempt to interfere in bids to acquire Piedmont Aviation Inc. might serve only to notify industry in general that North Carolina does not have a healthy business climate, Gov. Jim Martin says.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said Thursday he was worried that a takeover could result in the moving of Piedmont's corporate headquarters from Winston-Salem. He said he was trying to arrange a meeting with company officials whom he declined to identify.

But Martin, at his weekly news conference, said that was not the only concern in attempts by USAir Group Inc. and Norfolk Southern Corp. to acquire Piedmont.

"We of course have to anticipate that there are some circumstances where acquisition might lead to a decision, either right away or later, to relocate those headquarters," Martin said. "And yet there's no appropriate way (for the government) to fend off an acquisition."

Martin said it would be "a serious mistake" for state government to retaliate against firms that make business decisions with which the state disagrees.

"That would say not only to those businesses involved but to other businesses that North Carolina is not a welcome climate to succeed in," he said. "Rather, I think we should continue to build a climate in which we welcome growth in our state."

"Any company that succeeds is going to become an inviting prospect for merger or acquisition," Martin added. "I think we have to be careful here in North Carolina that we not appear to be discouraging people from being successful."

Martin, a Republican with strong business ties, has drawn fire from Democrats who say he did too little to stop several recent plant closings and departures, including the decision of RJR Nabisco Inc. to move its corporate headquarters from Winston-Salem to Atlanta.

Martin says he did not become aware of the impending move in time to influence RJR Nabisco officials. He says that instead of engaging in futile efforts to stop the move, he focused on persuading company officials to boost their food processing investment in North Carolina.

Martin praised Piedmont, saying its stock value had doubled in two years because of fast growth and profitability. Regardless of the outcome of the bidding war, he said he would urge company officials to maintain their commitment to North Carolina.

"Our interest is for Piedmont Airlines to continue to be a strong and growing and prospering business, because that means job security and excitement and vitality for all the people that work there," he said. "That's good for North Carolina."

Jordan told reporters after the Senate session he did not know what state government could do to keep Piedmont's headquarters in North Carolina, but would try to find out. "I'm going to ask them if we can sit down and talk about the things we can do to help them make decisions to see that the headquarters stays in North Carolina," he said.

Teachers Say Routine Paperwork Too Much

RALEIGH (AP) — In response to a survey showing 67 percent of teachers find paperwork often interferes with instruction, the North Carolina Association of Educators has announced plans to seek an expanded role for administrative computers.

Teachers in the survey by FGI of Chapel Hill said grades were handled by computer at 32 percent of the schools, with automated test scores at 31 percent and money records at 12 percent. Lunch reports were on the computer in only 9 percent of schools.

But Karen Garr, NCAE president, said Thursday the survey showed a wide disparity between high schools and elementary schools, where only 6 percent of teachers in kindergarten through grade 3 reported any computer use.

"The high schools are using the computer at a much greater rate than elementary schools," Ms. Garr said. "Things like money records, blue sheets, and lunch reports, all of which should be computerized, are not. Any businessman who looks at the way our schools are suffering would immediately suggest relieving teaching of paperwork which could readily be transferred to the computer."

To relieve the problem, NCAE will press the Legislature for funding of the Student Information Management System during the legislative session, Ms. Garr said. The program would allow all systems to put attendance and other student information on the computer.

Sanford Protests Search

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Terry Sanford and senators from six other Eastern states have written U.S. Energy Secretary John Herrington, accusing him of injecting politics into the search for a nuclear waste repository.

Herrington last year postponed the search for a repository for high-level nuclear waste in the East, but last week said if Congress does not act, the department will have to resume the search this summer. Two sites in North Carolina are on the list of 12 finalists under consideration.

"Not only do we not need this next year or by the year 2000, we don't really need a second site for a generation," Sanford said. "So we've got plenty of time to wait and do it right and do it scientifically."

In the letter Thursday, Sanford and the other senators said it would be a mistake for the Energy Department "to allow political pressures to change its technical decisions."

The department has been criticized by Western senators for considering sites in Washington, Nevada and Texas for the nation's first repository for wastes generated by the nuclear power and weapons industry.

Western members of Congress agreed to authorize construction of the first dump somewhere in their part of the country only after assurances that the East would get its turn.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., did not sign the letter.

"I have not had a chance to talk to John (Herrington) about this yet," Helms said.

Flea Markets Protest Bill

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina flea market operators and vendors are uniting to fight a proposed law that they say lumps them with shady peddlers by forcing them to register with police and pay a fee.

Gary Willis, general manager of Charlotte's Metrolina Flea Market and temporary chairman of the organizing N.C. Flea Market Association, says the 40-member group will ask for a public hearing on a bill now before legislative committees.

The bill, recommended by a study commission, would require merchants to register with local law enforcement agencies, listing name, address, sales tax license number, location of sales, type of goods and length of time expected to sell. They also would pay $10.

Currently, vendors at flea markets must give the operator only their name, address and sales tax number.

The bill exempts people who sell their personal goods, merchants who sell at farmers markets, groups invited to sell in malls or shopping center parking lots, nonprofit groups and exhibitors at trade shows.

The legislation's House sponsor, state Rep. Charles Beall, D-Haywood, said the bill was not intended to include flea market vendors.

"What we're after are those people that don't pay any tax," Beall said, describing people who sell socks, tools or furniture in parking lots, on street corners and at truck stops. "They're not responsible for anyone but themselves."

But Willis said exemptions in the bill don't cover flea market operators clearly.

"The way it's written now, we're not exempted," he said. "We'll try to defeat or modify this legislation. We'll have an organization that can continue to represent our interests so we don't get blindsided."

Program Cited

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Nursing has cited N.C. Central University's nursing program for incomplete admissions policies, poorly kept records and curriculum problems.

The complaints, issued in late January, were based on a committee's findings in a visit last fall. A board spokesman said the list of 18 areas where improvements were needed was unusually long, but did not necessarily indicate the problems were serious. Nevertheless, if the problems are not corrected, the program could face being shut down.

The board, a state licensing agency, approves the 85 nursing programs in the state.

NCCU officials said they would address the criticisms and were confident the board would be satisfied when it reviews the program again next September or October.

Sentenced

GREENSBORO (AP) — A car dealer from Elkin has been sentenced to seven years in prison in connection with an odometer rollback scheme.

Jerry Everett Byrd was found guilty on Dec. 23 of 57 federal charges.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

GARDENS AND VINEYARDS IN BIBLICAL TIMES!

GARDENS WERE, AS THE HEBREW WORD (GEDERAH) INDICATES ENCLOSURES, USUALLY ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF TOWNS PLANTED WITH VARIOUS TREES AND SHRUBS. FROM ALLUSIONS IN THE BIBLE, WE LEARN THAT THEY WERE SURROUNDED BY THORN HEDGES (IS. 5:5,6) OR STONE WALLS (PROV. 24:31). SOME LANDOWNERS BUILT WATCHTOWERS THAT WERE USED BY WATCHMEN SO THEY COULD DRIVE AWAY WILD ANIMALS OR PEOPLE WHO WOULD DESTROY OR EAT THE FRUIT GROWING IN THE GARDENS. THE GARDENS OF THE HEBREWS WERE PLANTED WITH FLOWERS AND AROMATIC SHRUBS BESIDES OLIVE TREES, WALNUT TREES, FIG TREES AND OTHERS FOR DOMESTIC USE (EX. 23:11; JER. 29:5). GARDENS OF HERBS, OR KITCHEN-GARDENS ARE MENTIONED BOTH IN DEUTERONOMY AND FIRST KINGS (DEUT. 11:10; I KINGS 21:2) CUCUMBERS WERE GROWN IN THEM (IS. 1:8) AND PROBABLY ALSO MELONS, LEEKS, ONIONS AND GARLIC WHICH ARE SPOKEN OF (NUM. 11:5) AS THE PRODUCE OF A NEIGHBORING COUNTRY. THE CLIMATE WAS IDEAL FOR GROWING GRAPES AND ALL GARDENS HAD THEM. IN THE SECLUSION AND COOLNESS OF THEIR GARDENS, PEOPLE SPENT THEIR LEISURE TIME OFTEN SPREADING REPASTS FOR JOYOUS FEASTING. NO ONE, WHO HAD A GARDEN, WOULD EVER CONSENT TO GIVING IT UP--SOMETIMES TO THE POINT OF DEATH! WHICH HAPPENED TO A MAN NAMED NABOTH, WHOSE GARDEN A KING WISHED TO POSSESS! ALTHOUGH NABOTH WAS KILLED FOR HIS GARDEN, KING AHAB NEVER DID ENJOY THE COMPLETE POSSESSION OF IT, FOR ON THE DAY THAT AHAB STEPPED INTO NABOTH'S GARDEN TO ACQUIRE ITS OWNERSHIP...

...BUT EVEN AS HE BREATHEES THE AROMATIC SCENT OF NABOTH'S BEAUTIFUL GARDENS, A FOREBODING SHADOW FALLS ACROSS HIS PATH!

"HAST THOU FOUND ME, O MINE ENEMY?" SAID AHAB...BUT WHY DON'T YOU READ IT FOR YOURSELF!? THIS TALE OF A KING'S GREED FOR OTHER PEOPLE'S POSSESSIONS IS FOUND IN I KINGS, CHAPTER 21.

Thousands Of Chile School Teachers Fired

By EVA VERGARA
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Thousands of teachers across Chile will be heading for unemployment lines as the 1987 school year begins.

Nearly 8,000 elementary and high school teachers — more than 5 percent of the nation's total — have been fired by the military government in January and February, the Southern Hemisphere's summer vacation time.

The government claims the firings are necessary because of a large teacher surplus that will top 40,000 by the end of the decade. Because of this, it says, the firings will have no real impact on the quality of education at the nation's 12,000 public and municipal schools.

But leaders of teachers unions and other associations claim the real reasons for the firings are political and economic. They also dispute the government's contention that the dismissals will not seriously harm the quality of education of some 3 million students.

Education Minister Sergio Gaete said in early January, when the firings first started, that 4,000 to 6,000 teachers would lose their jobs. But five weeks later, more than 7,700 had already been fired.

When the school year begins March 9, "it's going to be chaos at most schools as a result of these firings," said Jorge Pavez, president of Chile's national school teachers trade union, AGECH.

Fernando Azula, another teachers' union leader, said the firings are politically motivated, since "a large majority of those fired are critical of the military government."

Osvaldo Verdugo, president of the Chilean Professional Association of School Teachers, said the firings will also have a negative impact on education because they will create "an atmosphere of permanent fear" among teachers of losing their jobs.

"A teacher who feels his job is in danger will probably have very little to deliver to his students," he said. "Teachers will become mere bureaucrats instead of educators."

The government claims it is firing teachers who lack an academic degree or who are nearing the legal retirement age.

But Verdugo said many of his colleagues who have lost their jobs were fired because they are active in the trade unions.

He added in an interview that "more than 40 percent of the teachers fired so far have their degrees."

Azula said by firing the teachers the government is also seeking to reduce the fiscal deficit to meet conditions set by the International Monetary Fund to approve new financial resources for Chile, which has a $20-billion foreign debt.

For decades, education in Chile had been almost entirely in the hands of the state. But, under the 13-year-old military regime of Gen. Augusto Pinochet, authorities have encouraged private education, and all public schools are being transferred from the Ministry of Education to municipalities.

Said Azula: "In fact, the government is resigning its duties in this field, leaving the responsibility of educating our children in the hands of the private sector. This is a mercantile approach to education, because private schools are supposed to earn profits."

To encourage private schools, the government subsidizes them at an average of $10 a month per student. The subsidies are suspended when the students fail to advance to a higher grade.

This, according to Azula, encourages many private schools put pressure on the teachers to promote students even if their grades are not good enough. He said he himself was fired from a school when he rejected the principal's demand that he promote seven students who had failed.

The teachers associations also reject the government's claim of too many teachers. They point out that the nation's illiteracy rate remains at 7 percent, and that about half a million students cannot attend school, usually because of economic problems at home.

Also, Verdugo said, more teachers would be needed if a legal limit of 35 students in each class at public schools was respected.

He Will Welcome Sympathy

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend whose dog is sick and growing feeble, and will soon have to be put to sleep. He has had the dog for 13 years and is very attached to her. When his pet dies, what expression of my sympathy would be appropriate?

This truly concerns me. I want to show my friend how much I care about his loss, but I don't want to come across as foolish or overreacting. — HIS FRIEND OF MANY YEARS

DEAR FRIEND: One who must put a beloved pet to sleep after 13 years of togetherness will grieve for that pet much as a parent would mourn the loss of a child. Not to diminish the depth of human relationships, but that's the feeling many pet owners have experienced. So do send flowers or a warm letter of condolence. It will be deeply appreciated, I assure you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 41

Dear Abby

years died last summer, so in order to avoid receiving Christmas cards addressed to Edith Johnson, which I detest, I sent my Christmas cards out early and clearly wrote my return address as "Mrs. Horace A. Johnson."

Well, some insisted on addressing their Christmas cards to Edith Johnson. I was so angry that I drew a line through the "Edith" and above it wrote "Mrs. Horace A." and returned it to the senders, explaining that although I had lost my husband, his name was given — not loaned — to me.

A neighbor insists that a new etiquette has taken over, and a widow's mail should be addressed to her by her given name. — MRS. HORACE A. JOHNSON

DEAR MRS. JOHNSON: Your neighbor is in error. It's the woman's choice. She may use her first name, the initial of her maiden name and her husband's last name — or, as you prefer, she can be addressed as Mrs. Horace A. Johnson. That name is yours until you change it by remarriage. And if you never remarry, you retain your husband's name forever.

DEAR ABBY: The pastor of our church (Olivet Baptist) said that you had been married three times. I see nothing wrong with divorce, I like your column, and his remarks will not stop me from reading it.

I don't believe you've been married three times and would appreciate knowing the truth. — A FAN IN LAWTON, OKLA.

DEAR FAN: The truth is your pastor is mistaken. I am still married to my first husband.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to the letter signed "Grieving in Gulfport, Miss." She spoke of her younger sister dying of cancer due to cigarettes.

I, too, have lost a loved one to cigarettes. My husband died of cancer two months ago. Over the years, each of our kids asked their father to quit smoking many times. I recall one saying, after seeing a film at school, "Dad, if you saw what we saw today, you'd never smoke again."

He didn't see his youngest daughter graduate from college. He will never have the privilege of walking her down the aisle on her wedding day. He will never see his grandchildren. He will never fish with his friends again, or go to church with his family, or hold me close and say, "I love you."

This family will never be the same again. We had a rich, full life together. But it ended too soon. And if writing this letter will make a few people throw away their cigarettes, it will be worth it. — DOROTHY MORD, MINNETONKA, MINN.

It may seem we've had too much winter already, but there are still plenty of slushy days ahead, enough, certainly, to be concerned about preserving what's left of our wardrobes.

Considering how costly clothes can be today — particularly shoes and outerwear — caring for them in a simple matter of safeguarding one's investment. Wetness is the main culprit, and this winter has brought an inordinate amount of snow, sleet and rain, worsened by winds and freezing temperatures. Slipping and sliding our way to work has left many a shoe soggy and misshapen.

When our garments get wet, we have a natural tendency to try and dry them as quickly as possible, perhaps by draping a trouser over a radiator, shoving shoes under or next to a heating element or even taking a blow dryer to a fur coat.

"Those are all the things you shouldn't do," advised Bill Seitz, executive director of the Neighborhood Cleaners Association, which represents 4,000 dry cleaners along the Eastern seaboard. "The safest way to handle a wet garment is to air it out overnight and let it dry naturally."

As a preventive measure, Seitz advises having your wool coats professionally treated with a water-repellent finish. Most cleaners will treat a garment with a water-repellent for less than it costs to clean it, Seitz said. Unfortunately, with each cleaning, a new water-repellent treatment becomes necessary. Although also effective, aerosol water-repellent sprays are better suited to use on small garments such as children's snow suits.

As for genuine down jackets, coats and vests, dry cleaning is preferable over machine washing since the water extraction cycle in most home washing machines may leave moisture inside that could leak out and streak the shell fabric. If the down filling is not thoroughly dried, it tends to clump together, thereby impeding its insulating ability. And washing a down garment is not an easy task because once wet it is heavy and hard to handle.

Another midwinter threat to the well-being of both shoes and clothing is salt. Because chemical de-icers contain the chloride forms of various salts, they can wreak havoc on fabric dye, discoloring a trouser cuff or coat hem. Until the garment can be brought to a dry cleaner, wipe with a damp sponge.

The same advice holds true for leather shoes and boots. A spokesman for Footwear Industries of America said to remove salt by cleaning with a mild shoe cleaner or saddle soap and a soft cloth. Shoes should then be allowed to dry naturally, preferably in shoe trees and away from direct heat. When thoroughly dry, a good polishing should restore the shine and suppleness to the leather. As a preventive measure, shoes and boots can be treated with a silicone spray that will render the shoes water resistant, at least temporarily.

It's not winter's wetness that ruins fur coats, said Sandra Blye, executive vice president of the American Fur Industry, a trade group, but heat.

"If a fur coat gets wet, it's best to shake it out slightly to fluff it up and hang it on a broad shouldered hanger," said Blye. "Keep it away from direct heat, which can cause the skin to become brittle and crack. And never use a hair blower to speed up the drying process, since it damages the fur's tips." Blye recommends having it dried professionally at a furrier, which costs about $25.

While commuting, it is best to remove a fur coat since the friction from sliding on a seat could break the hairs. Straps of shoulder bags can be equally destructive. If you do take it off, fold the lining inside rather than out, said Blye, protecting the costly, easily stained silk lining.

A fur should be kept in a roomy closet where there is air circulating, never in a plastic garment bag. For traveling, use a cloth bag, which allows the fur to breathe. Most importantly, Blye said, a fur should never be stored in a cedar closet, since the wood is treated with chemicals that takes oxygen out of the air and can dry the skins.

What does it take to get a child to behave?

Discipline, of course. Although the answer seems obvious, parents and teachers spend a great deal of time correcting unwanted behavior. Some studies have found that every 7½ minutes, mothers of normal children use disapproval statements; teachers, once every 2 to 3 minutes. But they are effective, researchers say, only about half the time.

Researchers at the State University of New York at Stony Brook have embarked on a series of studies to measure the efficacy of various ways of disciplining children. The results are far from astonishing: While everyone knows that discipline should be delivered quickly, calmly and consistently, nobody does it.

Psychologist Susan O'Leary and her colleagues at Stony Brook set up experiments to find out what kinds of punishments had positive effects, how consistently punishments should be used, whether warnings are effective, and basically how discipline works. "This may all be common knowledge, but there is no data to back up these assumptions," the psychologist said.

The studies were conducted at the Point of Woods Laboratory School, located on the Stony Brook campus.

The first study was conducted with second- and third-graders to find out whether positive and negative feedback used together were more effective than either one alone. Each condition — positive, negative and a combination of feedback — was delivered for a two-week period.

The teacher who used positive comments such as "Michael, you do your work so well when you pay attention," watched over time as her class fell apart. Punishment was necessary to keep the class in line.

"Punishment, in the form of reprimands, is necessary to maintain reasonable decorum," O'Leary said, adding that the role of positive feedback is still not clear.

The researchers also found the tone of the reprimand — soft or harsh — seemed to make little difference in controlling a child's behavior. The tone of voice, according to O'Leary, may only have an impact based on its association with a stronger consequence, an actual punishment.

Consistency seems to be the hallmark of successful discipline. Nonetheless, there are unanswered questions the Stony Brook researchers are attempting to study. For example, is it good to always act on the unwanted behavior or is it better to ignore it occasionally? Might someone be consistent 75 percent of the time, and still be a successful disciplinarian?

Finally, there is the question of timing. If punishment is not immediate, how delayed can it be and still have an effect? Also, is it better to introduce punishment in a small dose and build up over time, or use a stronger punishment to begin with?

William Futersak, a Stony Brook doctoral student, decided to measure both ways of responding to unwanted behavior. Each class was exposed to two teachers who delivered different forms of punishment.

The teacher who delivered punishment in small doses and in a mild fashion got stricter as time went on. The other teacher delivered reprimands consistently and sternly throughout the study. Her behavior toward the children did not change.

At the end of six weeks, the permissive teacher had to use far more negative behavior than the teacher who started out tough, Futersak said.

The findings may serve as a warning to parents, O'Leary said. "You are not doing children a service by being lenient early on. Delivering a reasonable amount of punishment — a verbal reprimand — immediately following the behavior will preclude the need for stronger and more frequent reprimands later on." ## Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

"Our Friend the Policeman," "Police Officer Day and Night" and "Neighborhood Watch" are just a sampling of the many educational programs offered to area residents by the Greenville Police Department. The programs are designed to teach school age children and adults about the functions of their police force as well as educate participants about safety. Officers will present programs to schools, clubs and civic organizations upon request.

agency and a longtime friend of the president, and then was interviewed twice by Tuttle, who recommended him to chief of staff Donald T. Regan. Regan also interviewed Koehler and recommended him to the president, who talked with Koehler on Wednesday. The appointment was announced Thursday.

"The basis of his selection was his experience and credentials and recommendations and this has not changed," the spokesman said. Asked specifically if the White House was standing by the appointment, he said, "Yes."

"I can never prejudge a future course, but to our knowledge he is an excellent candidate," he added.

Koehler expressed anger at the news report about his membership in the group and said it was not newsworthy.

"It would be newsworthy if I was 30 years old and was a member of the SS or the Nazi Party," he said. "If this is newsworthy what I did at age

10, then it was also newsworthy that I was married to a Jewish woman."

"Does anybody do anything at age 10 that's really voluntary?" he said. "You don't even think for yourself then."

"My hunch is somebody said it in jest," he said. "It's just another thing to do in Ronald Reagan."

Koehler, who retired as an executive with the AP in 1965, said his participation in the Nazi group for six months as a youngster was irrelevant to his qualifications for the White House job.

"All I can say is if I was good enough to serve in the AP for 28 years, then by God, it was a blot on the AP too," he said.

Koehler, a native of Germany, said the group, Jungvolk, was "a boy scout group run by the Nazis."

Reagan picked Koehler to see that Reagan's "goals for the coming two years are clearly and effectively articulated to the American people."

Koehler and Donatelli will rank as assistants to the president.

anesthetist; Renee Grainger, surgical nurse, and Sarah Barefoot, operating room nurse. Connie Ansley and Brenda Myrick, two other operating room nurses in training for team membership, also participated Tuesday.

This team could have been flown up to 600 miles by Learjet to procure a donor heart, Chitwood said. From 600 miles away, it could have been removed and been ready to implant within three hours. The stores of energy in the heart deplete very rapidly once it is removed from the human body, even with the best of care, he said, so three hours is the maximum amount of time that can elapse between removal and implantation. He said Tuesday's patient had the donor heart beating in his chest within one hour and 17 minutes after it was removed in a nearby operating room.

Members of the recipient's surgery team were Dr. Chitwood, chief surgeon; Dr. George Clark, surgical resident; Dr. Steve Chapman, surgical resident; Dr. Terry Massagee, anesthesiologist; Bruce Lawrence, nurse anesthetist; Larry King, perfusionist; Sarah Hill, head

Rose's Boys, Girls Claim Titles

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It set those with basketball memories to task. When was the last time Rose High School had won an outright basketball title?

The answer — never!

A few years back, the Rampants finished in a four-way tie for the Big East championship, but never, since Rose High School came into existence has the school been atop its conference standings by itself — until last night, that is.

The Rampants took a 69-49 victory over Wilson Hunt — while the girls were coming away with a 61-24 decision — to win not only one but both Big East titles.

Bud Phillips, who serves as athletic director at the school, said he believed one would have to go back to either 1957 or 1958 to find a basketball championship, and that would be by Greenville High School, since succeeded by J.H. Rose.

Both Rose teams did it in style, although both got off to slow starts. And, the victories ensured them of one big fact. Throughout the Big East tournament, and in the first three rounds of the State 4-A Playoffs, all of their games will be played on the Rampant home court. The Big East Tournament is set to begin on Monday — final plans for that are to be set today — while the state playoffs begin on March 2.

The Rampants, who close out regular season play tonight at Elizabeth City Northeastern, are now 12-1 overall and 18-3 in the league and 17-2 overall. Both records are the best ever by Rose High School teams.

"This is what we wanted," Coach Jim Brewington said after the boys wrapped up their title.

"I thought we played well," he said. "This is something that you dream about, but I didn't expect it to come this easy. I just hope that we can follow it up and go a whole lot further. Having the home court advantage will help us a lot."

Rose scored the first four points of the game, but Hunt, led by John Finch, rallied and finally took the lead at 11-10 on a toss-back by Randy Barnes with 3:09 left in the first quarter.

Melvin Jenkins, however, quickly put Rose back on top, throwing back a rebound for a 12-11 lead. Errol Wooten followed up from the baseline with 2:22 left and from there on out, Rose was in control.

From that point, the Rampants outthit Hunt, 8-3, led by four points each by Wooten and Terry Warren, expanding the lead to 22-14 by the end of the period.

Even through the Rampants went 3:36 in the second quarter without a point, they held the Warriors scoreless also, then got a free throw from Kevin Cobb and a tap-in by Warren to up the lead to 31-22. After another Hunt basket, Keyford Langley made a free throw and a jumper and Wooten hit off a steal with one second in the half for a 36-24 edge.

The second half turned into a dunking exhibition by the Rampants. After getting two in the first half, they picked up five more in the second — mostly on breaks.

The third quarter was a continuation of the pullaway as Rose continued to dominate play, running the lead out to 59-32 at the end of the quarter.

In the final period, Rose boosted its lead to 63-33 in the early going, and with 5:56 left, Brewington went to his bench, playing everyone on the roster the rest of the way, as Hunt cut 10 points off the lead in the time remaining.

Warren led Rose with 19 points while Wooten added 18 and Jenkins had 12.

Finch paced Hunt with 32, nearly two-thirds of the Warrior total. Rose held a 35-25 rebounding edge in the game and had seven fewer turnovers. Both teams shot fairly well, Rose posting a 49.0 percentage and Hunt, a 45.8 mark.

The Rampettes got off to a slow start, leading only 4-2 after the first four minutes of play.

But they caught fire then, outscoring Hunt 12-1 the final four minutes of the first quarter, to storm out to a 16-3 lead.

From there on out, it was just a question of what the margin would be. In the second quarter, Rose scored the first nine points, then after a Hunt basket, added six more for a 31-5 lead. The period close at 33-7.

The Rampettes continued to build on their lead in the third quarter, making it 39-9 with 5:14 left in the period. It was extended to 49-11 before Hunt scored the final point of the quarter to trail 49-12.

The lead reached its apex at 59-18 late in the game before Hunt outhit Rose, 6-2 over the final three minutes.

Kim Dupree led Rose with 16 points while Kim Bridges added 13. No one scored in double figures for Hunt.

"I'm glad that we finally clinched it," Coach Bill Kuykendall said. "I thought we played hard tonight, even though we had a lot of different combinations in there. We shot well and we played good defense."

Kuykendall said that the game was just a continuation of the good job the girls have done all year. "Both Dupree and Bridges have shown good leadership, both on and off the floor."

The coach said he really didn't anticipate winning the championship.

"I thought that if our first unit could gel, we would have a good team, but I didn't expect to win the title. I really thought that we would have a chance to finish in the top four, but I never expected us to win like we have."

Pirates Close Out Year

East Carolina's Pirates close out their 1986-87 regular season Saturday and Monday nights, playing host to a pair of Colonial Athletic Association rivals.

Saturday night, the Pirates will entertain George Mason at 7:30 p.m., while James Madison comes to town on Monday, also for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Meanwhile, East Carolina's women take to the road to close out their regular season, facing George Mason in Fairfax, Va., on Saturday night and James Madison in Harrisonburg, Va., on Monday.

Earlier this year, the Pirates suffered through a pair of losses on the road to their two guests of this weekend. George Mason handed the Pirates a 79-74 defeat while the Pirates fell to the Duke of Madison, 78-70. In each instance, the Pirates held the lead at various times and had the opportunity to pull out both games.

Currently, East Carolina is riding a four-game losing streak, and hasn't won in the conference since beating American on Jan. 31. The Pirates are currently in seventh place in the league standings, but with a pair of wins, could take over sixth place, providing American loses one of its two games. A single ECU win, combined with two losses by American would also move the Bucs up a notch.

However, a pair of losses by the Pirates, coupled with two William & Mary wins, could push the Pirates down into eighth place.

George Mason comes into the game with a 6-6 league record, in fifth place, and 14-11 overall. James Madison is currently 7-5, 18-7 overall, prior to its Saturday night meeting with UNC-Wilmington. Second place in the league standings will be riding on that game. A UNCW would sew up second for the Seahawks, while a loss would throw second into a turmoil, with JMU, Richmond and Mason all having a chance to tie for the spot.

Mason, however, would have to win both of its remaining games up as high as a tie for second in the standings, depending on the outcome of other games.

George Mason has only one player in double figures, 6-5 sophomore forward Kenny Sanders at 17.8. The other starters include 5-10 junior guard Anthony Davis, 9.2 ppg; 6-3 junior guard Darin Satterthwaite, 1.9 ppg; 6-8 senior center Mike Dufreen, 7.8 ppg, 5.5 rebounds per game; and 6-6 senior forward Tracy Battle, 4.4 ppg, 7.0 rpg. Sanders pulls 8.0 rebounds a game.

Madison, which has made one of the nation's top turnarounds since last year's 5-23 record, has three starters in double figures, plus another player who has started some games also hitting there.

The top scorer for the Dukes is 6-3 senior guard Eric Brent, with a 15.5 mark. He's followed by 6-5 senior center John Newman at 12.5 and a 6.8 rebound mark. Bennie Gordon, a 5-11 junior guard, is third at 11.8 points a game.

The forwards are 6-5 freshman Claude Ferdinand, 6.3 ppg, and 6-5 junior Ralph Glenn, 4.1. However, 6-5 sophomore Kennard Winchester is averaging 13.8 points and 5.8 rebounds, but is not listed in the starting lineup.

East Carolina's Lady Pirates are currently 15-10 on the year, 7-3 in CAA play. They defeated George Mason, 64-51, but were beaten by nationally ranked Madison, 73-47, in their first meetings.

Smith, Teammates Have Fun In Ripping Wolfpack

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — John Smith says he and his Duke teammates had lost sight of how much fun basketball can be — but that was until the 17th-ranked Blue Devils stopped North Carolina State 66-50.

Smith scored 13 points as Duke broke away from the Wolfpack in the first half en route to the victory.

"We came out really fired up for this game," Smith said. "We've gotten a little businesslike the last few weeks and that, I think, has hurt us."

N.C. State had led by as much as seven early in the first half before the Blue Devils put on a run that stretched until halftime. Duke climbed to 21-5, 8-3 in the ACC.

N.C. State's slump continued as it dropped to 14-13 and 4-7. The Wolfpack has lost 10 of its last 13 games.

The Wolfpack played more aggressively in the first seven minutes and with Charles Shackelford and Walker Lambiotte scoring six points apiece, N.C. State held a 16-9 edge with 13:29 left before halftime.

Duke fought back to within 20-19 on two Quinn Snyder free throws at 6:43, but Shackelford scored on a dunk at 6:26 for a 22-19 lead for N.C. State.

The Blue Devils then went on their decisive run, scoring 11 straight points and outscoring N.C. State 15-1 for the rest of the first half. "With us really hustling and playing our system, that served to frustrate them a little bit," Smith said. "It created some good opportunities for us to take advantage of."

A Mike Giomi layup with 12:37 to play pushed the Wolfpack within 43-35, but after Duke called a timeout, the Blue Devils responded with seven straight points, four by Smith, for a 50-35 lead with 10:38 remaining.

"I thought it was just a real smart and intelligent game by our team and an aggressive game," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "It was a good, emotional win for us."

Tommy Amaker had 12 points, Snyder finished with 11 points and Danny Ferry had 10.

"We can't seem to get everyone playing well at the same time," N.C. State coach Jim Valvano said. "Today, Shack started out well but no one else could score."

Shackelford scored 13 points, all in the first half, and was the only Wolfpack player in double figures.

ECU Begins Life Without Winfred

Come Saturday afternoon, East Carolina's baseball Pirates will open the 1987 season and seek to learn the answer to that burning question: Is there life without Winfred?

The Pirates lost a big bite out of both their offense and defense with the graduation of senior Winfred Johnson this past spring. Johnson, twice The Daily Reflector's Collegiate Athlete of the Year, became the first NCAA player to hit 70 home runs and pitch 30 victories during a career. The All-American will certainly be missed — but Coach Gary Overton is hopeful that it won't be all that badly.

The Pirates, who won the regular season Colonial Athletic Association title last year, only to lose to Richmond in the league tournament finals, should be a contender for the title once more. The Pirates, 40-10 last year, return 10 letter-winners, five of whom were pitchers on a consistent, stingy staff.

"Pitching is certainly our strong suit," Overton, entering his third year, said. "We feel like we have five quality starters and some talented young relievers. We have a very experienced staff, and if they can just stay healthy, we could have a good year."

Tops among the returning pitchers is senior Jim Peterson (12-4 last year with a 3.88 earned run average). Selected to the all-CAA team last year, Peterson started 16 games and completed 12, beating North Carolina, N.C. State and James Madison among others.

"Peterson is a tough competitor and has beaten the big teams," Overton said. "His breaking ball is his pitch, and he has the ability to locate the ball."

Joining Peterson in rotation will be senior Craig Van Deventer (8-1, 3.20 ERA) and sophomore Jake Jacobs (4-0, 2.49 ERA). Senior Daniel Boone returns to the staff following a 5-1 campaign in 1985. He missed most of last year due to an injury received in pre-season drills. The fifth starter will be left-hander Gary Smith, a junior college All-American.

Johnson, who was 11-4 last year with a 3.97 ERA, also played a role elsewhere when not on the mound, playing first base or being the designated hitter. He batted in 19 homers, 20 doubles and had 72 runs batted in while hitting .389 last season.

Also gone from the team is shortstop Greg Hardison (.311, 9 homers); and centerfielder Chris Bradberry (.333, 10 homers). Between the three they accounted for 43 of the team's record 60 homers last season and had 60 percent of the record 314 runs batted in.

"This team won't have a lot of power at the plate," Overton said, "or at least it will seem that way after last year. Losing the players that we did will obviously take some thrust out of our offense. However, we will not be anemic. We will have the ability to score runs — just not as quickly."

Three players may provide the brunt on the batting attack. They include senior Mike Sullivan (14 doubles, 36 rbi), junior Jay McGraw (10 homers, 36 rbi) and highly regarded freshman Calvin Brown. Brown hit a fine .409 with 11 homers and 39 runs batted in at North Edgewood High School last year.

Senior Steve Sides (.341) is the top returning hitter, and figures to join the three already mentioned as a team leader.

Defensively, the Pirates are not expected to have outstanding speed, but will be solid at every position.

"We won't make many of the flashy defensive plays," Overton said, "but we should be very solid. We have solid performers throughout. At East Carolina, we emphasize defense and spend a great deal of time on it. That's our philosophy."

Sides, who played all but one game at second base, returns there while senior Jim Riley will return behind the plate. Sullivan and Brown will both see action at first and as designated hitter. Mike Andrews, a transfer from North Carolina, will replace Hardison at shortstop while freshman John Adams and UNC Charlotte transfer Chris Cauble will battle for third base.

The graduation of Bradberry and Mont Carter in the outfield leaves two vacancies there. McGraw will be at one spot, while David Ritchie, Dean Eehalt, JC transfer John Thomas, or Junior Johnson will fight it out for the other two spots.

East Carolina is expected to have a tough time duplicating its 13-5 record in the CAA this year. James Madison and Richmond both appear strong and could be the favorites.

"James Madison and Richmond are the teams to beat. James Madison has the best talent, and Richmond returns a lot of experience. George Mason, UNC-Wilmington and East Carolina look equal on paper, and William & Mary can beat anyone in the league on a given day," Overton said.

The league will be missing one member, however, as American University, has dropped baseball, leaving only six conference members in that sport. Navy plays in another league in baseball.

One good thing about the schedule for the Pirates this year is the fact that both James Madison and Richmond play their three-game stands with the Pirates at Harrington Field. ECU will make three-game road appearances at William & Mary, UNC-Wilmington and George Mason.

Among teams coming into Greenville for non-conference games are Virginia Commonwealth, Old Dominion, North Carolina and N.C. State.

The Pirates open the season Saturday at 1 p.m. against UNC-Asheville in a doubleheader, then play them again on Sunday in a 1 p.m. single game.

Hoosiers, Rebels Playing To Form

By The Associated Press
One of these days, Jerry Tarkanian and Bob Knight are going to be surprised by their respective basketball teams. Top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas just might play a close game, and Indiana might win one by more than a basket.

Neither happened Thursday night, however. UNLV blasted Long Beach State 86-66 in a game Tarkanian thought would be a lot closer. And Indiana, continuing to defy logic, endured its third consecutive struggle against a Big Ten also-ran before edging Minnesota 72-70.

"It was nice to get a big lead early," Tarkanian said after his club ran its record to 27-1. "It's tough to do that on the road. I don't think I really expected a leadout. We have an exceptional group of seniors on this squad who keep us ready to play."

Two of them played a big role Thursday night. Freddie Banks scored 20 points and Armon Gilliam added 19, including 15 during a first half that saw UNLV run off to a 44-26 lead.

Not since an 89-88 loss at Oklahoma, a stretch of 12 games, has a team finished within eight points of the Rebels.

Things have been quite different for Indiana. The Hoosiers, ranked No. 2 in the country with a 22-2 record, have been hard-pressed to handle the dregs of the Big Ten. In the last 10 days, Indiana has beaten last-place Northwestern 77-75, ninth-place Wisconsin 86-85 in three overtimes, and eighth-place Minnesota.

"It's good to have games like this, but not against teams like this," said Darryl Thomas, who led the Hoosiers with 24 points. "If we play like we did tonight against (No. 4) Iowa on Saturday, we're going to lose by 20 points."

"Minnesota did a good job," Knight said. "They were very patient, took their time and made the shots they had to. We could not get the second play. That's something Minnesota prevented us from doing. They made the each play they had to, until the last one."

After Dean Garrett, who scored 17 points, hit two free throws with three seconds to play, Minnesota had a last chance to tie. But Ray Gaffney was called for traveling as he put up a last-second shot.

In other Top 20 action Thursday night, No. 5 Temple clubbed St. Bonaventure 77-56 to wrap up the Atlantic 10 Conference title, No. 9 Syracuse shaded No. 19 Providence 90-81 to grab a share of the lead in the Big East, No. 15 Kansas extended its home winning streak to 48 games with an 84-67 thumping of Kansas State, and No. 16 Duke throttled North Carolina State 66-50.

Long Beach State, 12-15, kept UNLV within range through the first 10 minutes, trailing only 20-16. It looked as if Tarkanian's fears of a tight game would be realized.

Then Banks scored 10 points and Gilliam eight during a 24-6 run that turned the game into a laughter by halftime.

"All season long we've had those periods like we did tonight, where we went a long period without scoring points," Long Beach Coach Ron Palmer said. "We weren't intimidated; it was the best opportunity in the world."

"If you beat No. 1, you get instant recognition. If you lose, you just join all those other teams they've beaten."

Chocowinity In Opening Victory

CHOCOWINITY — Chocowinity's Tobacco Belt Conference regular season champion girls had little trouble in moving into the semi-finals of the league's post-season tournament with a 50-33 win over Columbia Thursday night.

The Lady Indians will face Bath on Wednesday at Washington High School at 7 p.m. in the semifinals. The championship game will be played on Feb. 27, also at Washington.

Chocowinity has already clinched

No. 2 Indiana 72, Minnesota 70

Kim Zurcher hit a basket to bring Minnesota into a 70-70 tie with 1:25 to play. After a missed 3-point attempt by Steve Alford, who suffered a third straight offensive nightmare, Zurcher went up for the potential go-ahead basket.

But his shot with 13 seconds left was blocked by Indiana's Steve Eyl and Garrett was fouled during the scramble for the loose ball.

Minnesota had to be content with a moral victory, although its record dipped to 2-11 in the Big Ten and 9-14 overall.

No. 5 Temple 77, St. Bonaventure 56

Howard Evans scored 20 points as Temple extended the nation's longest winning streak to 14 games with two of its best players on the sidelines. Center Ramon Rivas missed the game because of an infected heel and guard Mike Vreeswyk, hobbling with a sprained ankle, played only sparingly in the second half.

The Owls didn't appear to need either in running their league record to 16-0. Nate Blackwell added 19 points and Rivas' replacement, Derrick Brantley, had 10 points and six rebounds.

Rob Lanier had 15 points for the Bonnies, now 5-20 overall and 3-13 in the conference.

the number one seeding for the league in the State I-A Playoffs.

Chocowinity ripped off a 16-8 lead in the opening period to take the lead for good. The Tribe continued to pull away in the second quarter, 8-5, building up a 24-13 lead to take into the dressing rooms.

In the third period, Chocowinity outlith the Lady Wildcats, 16-7, to balloon the lead out to 40-20. Columbia was then allowed a 13-10 rally in the final quarter.

Drusilla Crawford led Chocowinity with 15 points while Paula Peele and China Grice each had 10. Lavora Spencer led Columbia with 15 while Michelle Edmonds added 12.

In other games Thursday night, Bath downed Aurora, 48-32; Belhaven topped North Edgewood, 59-58, and Creswell beat Mattamuskeet, 60-28.

Tonight's action switches to the boys' division. In games at Belhaven, Aurora takes on Chocowinity at 7 p.m. while Belhaven and Bath collide at 8:30 p.m. At North Edgewood, Columbia and Creswell meet at 7 p.m. with North Edgewood facing Mattamuskeet at 8:30 p.m.

No. 9 Syracuse, No. 19 Providence 81

After a miserable first half, Sherman Douglas scored 18 points in the final 20 minutes to pace Syracuse, 22-4, to a victory that boosted the host Orangemen into a tie with Pittsburgh atop the Big East at 10-3.

Douglas, a point guard who also contributed 11 assists, scored eight points and was guilty of six turnovers in the first half. Not surprisingly, Syracuse trailed 44-41.

With Douglas in charge in the second half, Syracuse took charge. Providence, 18-6 and 8-5, pulled within 84-81, but Douglas broke through for a couple of layups and the Orangemen won going away.

The Friars were led by Ernie Lewis and Billy Donovan with 18 points apiece.

No. 15 Kansas 84, Kansas St. 67

Danny Manning scored 33 points to become the No. 3 scorer in Kansas history as the Jayhawks completed their third consecutive perfect season at home. The Jayhawks haven't lost at Lawrence since Oklahoma won 92-82 on Feb. 22, 1984 — the season before Manning arrived.

Manning, a junior, has scored 618 points this season and 1,767 in his career. He passed Dave Robisch's total of 1,754 Thursday night and has the KU leader, Clyde Lovellette, within reach. Lovellette scored 1,987.

Another streak was extended when Kansas State, 18-8, dropped its 10th game in a row to the Jayhawks, now 20-7 and alone atop the Big Eight at 9-3.

Others

Charles Rochelin scored five points in the closing minutes to help UCLA get by Oregon State 57-53 and assume sole possession of first place in the Pacific 10 Conference. The Bruins, 18-6 overall, are 12-4 in the league to Arizona's 11-4. Oregon State dropped to 10-5.

At Laramie, Wyo., Wyoming became the 50th team to win 1,000 major-college basketball games when the Cowboys dumped San Diego State 85-73.

Cox Girls In Championship

AYDEN — A.G. Cox rolled up a 52-20 victory over Ayden Middle School in girls' junior high school basketball action Thursday, to win the Pitt-Greene-Lenoir Conference championship.

Lendora Tyson led Cox with 22 points while Stacy Gardner added 16. N. Wilson led Ayden with eight points.

Cox completes the year with a 12-0 record while Ayden ends up with a 10-2 mark.

Roanoke Girls Share The Title

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School's girls downed Edenton, 40-35, Thursday night to earn a share of the Northeastern Conference basketball championship.

Roanoke's boys, however, fell to Edenton, 48-41, in their game.

The girls finished the regular season with a 10-2 league record, tying with Northampton East. A coin-toss was to be held today to decide seeding for the league tournament, which gets underway on Saturday.

Roanoke's girls, if seeded first, will play on Wednesday at home against a first round winner, or, if seeded second, will host #7 Roanoke Rapids in a game at Roanoke on Monday.

The boys, seeded fifth, will face Edenton again on Monday. That game will be played at Roanoke or at Northampton East, depending on the result of the girls' coin toss.

Edenton's girls offered a threat to the Roanoke hopes, however. The Lady Aces held an 8-5 lead after one period, but Roanoke rallied, 9-4, to take a 14-12 lead at the half.

Roanoke outscored Edenton, 11-10, in the third period to lead 25-22, then held off Edenton with a 15-13 margin in the final period.

Joyce Outlaw led Roanoke with 20 points while Arlene Twine had 17 for Edenton.

Roanoke's boys held a 15-13 lead after one period, but Edenton turned it around in the second frame. A 13-10 advantage allowed the Aces to take a 26-25 halftime lead.

Roanoke came back, 8-4, in the second quarter, to regain the lead, 33-30. But Edenton came on strong in the final period, 18-8, to pull out the victory.

Deron Felton led Edenton with 17 points while Ricky Congleton had 11 to pace the Redskins.

Pirates ...

In a way, the JMU-ECU game could be a warm-up for the CAA tournament, which opens the following Friday at James Madison.

Mason, only 2-8 in the league, is led by 5-7 senior guard Veronica Gilliard, who averages 20.7 points per game. Jeannine Jimenez, a 5-10 sophomore forward, is the only other player in double figures with an 11.4 average. Other starters are 5-6 junior guard Angie Lewis (5.2 ppg); 6-0 junior center Beverly McLaughlin (9.3 ppg); and 6-1 freshman forward Veronica Holland (5.3 ppg). Jimenez is the top rebounders at 6.7 while McLaughlin is pulling 6.4 per game.

Madison, meanwhile, is 21-3 on the year and 10-0 in the conference, pending a Saturday night game against UNC-Wilmington.

The Lady Dukes are currently ranked 14th in the country on the Associated Press' Women's Poll.

Sydney Bealey, a 6-1 junior center, leads the team with a 17.6 average, while 5-6 senior guard Flo Jackson is at 11.6 points an outing and 6-0 junior Alisa Harris has a 10.8 mark. The other starters are 5-11 senior forward Betsy Witman 9.6 ppg and 5-6 sophomore guard Donna Budd (5.8 ppg).

Northeastern Loop Tournament Starts

The Northeastern Conference basketball tournament will get underway on Saturday night with two games, to be played at either Plymouth or Northampton East, depending on the result of a coin toss.

Plymouth and Northampton East tied for first place in the league standings with 9-3 records, and split their two meetings during the regular season. The coin toss was held today to decide which would be first and second.

Another coin toss was needed to decide first place among the girls, where Roanoke and Northampton East tied for the title. Again, they split their regular season meeting.

The loser of the boys' coin-toss will host the Saturday first round games. That team will take on #7 Roanoke Rapids. In a girls' game there also, Edenton, which finished fourth, will take on Williamston, the fifth place finisher.

On Monday, the girls' runner-up will host two games. That team will face #7 Roanoke Rapids, while #4 Edenton and #5 Roanoke will meet in a boys' game.

Tuesday night, at #3 Ahsokie, the Cougars will face #6 Williamston in a boys' game, while #3 Plymouth takes on #6 Ahsokie in a girls' game.

The tournament moves to the top-seeded girls site on Wednesday, where that team will host the 4-5 winner, while the boys 3-6 survivor meets the 2-7 winner.

Thursday, at the number one boys team, that team faces the 4-5 winner, while the girls 3-6 winner meets the 2-7 survivor.

The championship games will be played next Friday at Ahsokie.

SMU's Fate Still To Be Decided

DALLAS (AP) — Despite some indications the NCAA will not impose the "death penalty" on the Southern Methodist University football program, it probably will be a week or more before the school learns its fate, SMU's faculty representative said.

When he and other school officials met last weekend with the NCAA infractions committee at San Diego, the NCAA enforcement staff stopped short of recommending the suspension of football at SMU, faculty representative Lonnie Kliever said Thursday.

The enforcement staff's proposal at the hearing was the same as SMU's, Kliever said.

"We went into the hearing with the staff and the institution agreeing on violations and proposed penalties. Neither the institution nor the enforcement staff went in asking for the death penalty," Kliever said.

Kliever would not say what penalties the school and the enforcement staff proposed.

However, Kliever emphasized that the NCAA's infractions committee is not bound by the enforcement staff's recommendation and still could impose the maximum penalty on its own.

"I have no indication ... what the conclusion of the infractions committee will be. I have not been told that we will not get the death penalty," Kliever added.

Under legislation adopted in June 1985, the NCAA may suspend repeat offenders for up to two years, prohibiting competition, recruiting, coaching or scholarships during that period.

SMU, the most penalized school in NCAA history, was already under sanction when it was reported last fall that senior tight end Albert Reese and former player David Stanley were living in rent-free apartments provided by an alumnus.

Larry White, SMU sports information director, said he is preparing for a news conference that will be called when the school gets the word on its fate. That could be a week or more away, White said.

"We have received no word from the NCAA as to what our penalty will be," White said.

David Berst, director of enforcement for the NCAA, would not discuss the case or what penalties the NCAA sought.

SMU's program already is in shambles, Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer said Thursday in saying he hopes the NCAA will be lenient.

SMU head coach Bobby Collins and athletic director Bob Hitch resigned after the latest allegations, and no replacements have been named, pending the NCAA's ruling.

Because of the existing sanctions, Southern Methodist was allowed no new scholarships in 1986 and only 15 new scholarships this year. However, with the future of the program in the air, no recruits were invited onto campus and none was signed on the Feb. 11 national signing date. SMU is also under a two-year ban against live television or bowl appearances.

"Look how SMU has already suffered," Switzer said. "They're already in disarray and turmoil, and the people responsible for most of what happened are no longer there, they say. People talk about the death penalty being a two-year proposition, but it in fact would force them into doormat-status for a decade or more. And who can recruit to a doormat?"

Frank Remington, professor of law at the University of Wisconsin and chairman of the six-member infractions committee, said last week that lesser penalties are an option of his committee.

"The legislation calls for the imposition of a major penalty, the loss of contests, subject to exceptions authorized by the committee in unique situations. It is called the death penalty, but it says the prohibition of 'some or all' contests. We could cancel as few as one game. It is an oversimplification to call it the death penalty."

"Its purpose is the desire of membership to have substantial penalties. We are bound by what the membership tells us."

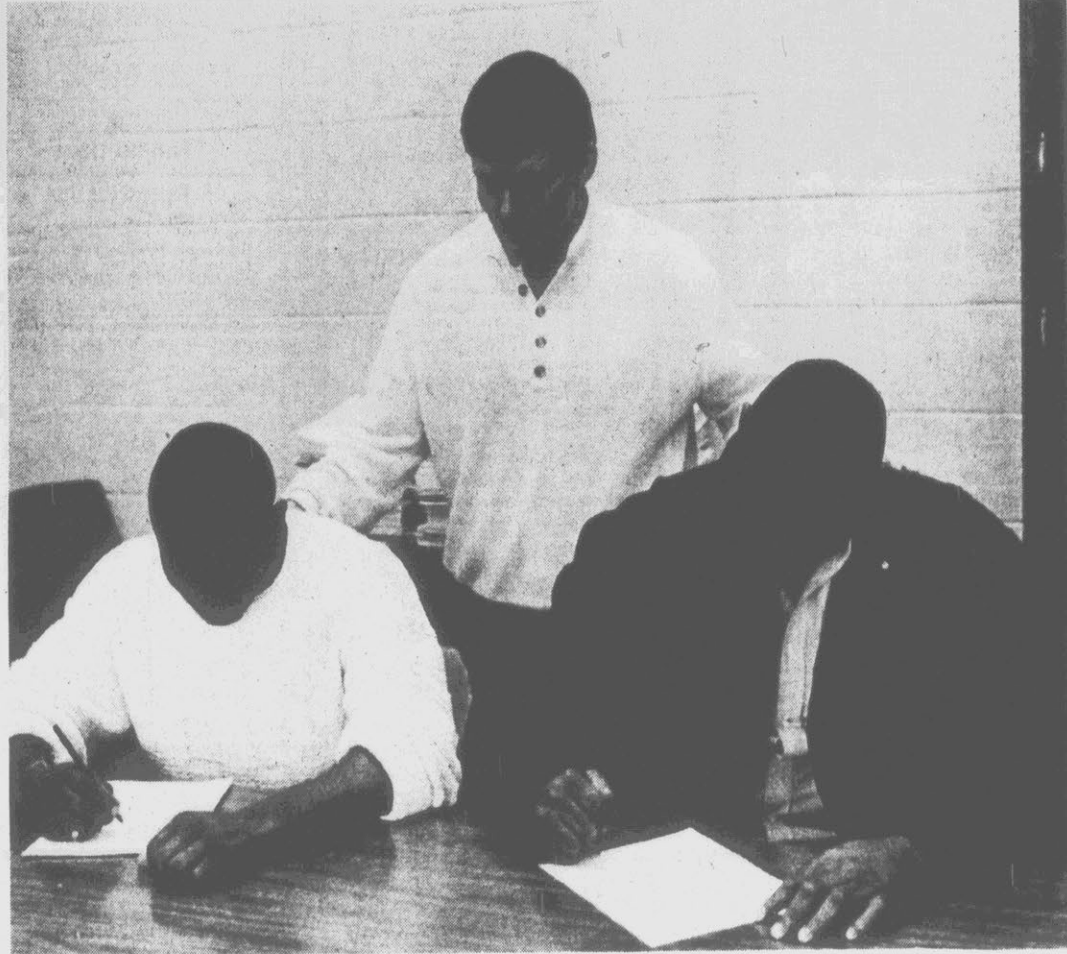

Remington said he considered the 427-6 vote by NCAA schools to adopt the death penalty a mandate.

"We believe if we do not apply the measure of the new penalty structure when it seems appropriate, we will have to answer to the membership as to why we did not."

He added, "The membership indicated they wanted serious infractions viewed seriously. That message was loud and clear. There is no question that that was the message. That's the message the membership sent to the infractions committee. That is the message we heard."

Kliever said SMU had no indication that its presentation at the hearing "blunted the committee's sensitivity to the nature of the infractions," but he said the university believed there were mitigating circumstances that would justify a lesser penalty.

"Those circumstances reach to the character and cooperation of the university in identifying and dealing with the infractions," Kliever said.

Watkins Looking For U.S. Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bobby Watkins has shown he can win pro golf tournaments. He just hasn't shown anybody on this continent.

"I know I can win. I haven't proven it to anybody here in the U.S., but I have those three wins overseas," Watkins said, referring to two victories in Japan and another in Europe.

Watkins, looking for his first PGA victory since joining the Tour in 1975, shot a 5-under-par 66 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the Los Angeles Open.

He held a one-shot lead over Larry Rinker and Jeff Lewis — also non-winners on the PGA Tour — after the first round of the $600,000 tournament.

Lewis' round included a hole-in-one on the 236-yard fourth hole at Riviera Country Club, where he used a 3-iron to bang in his tee shot.

A group of five, including Jerry Pate, was two shots behind Watkins.

Another group, at 69, included Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Corey Pavin, who's already won twice this year.

Defending champion Doug Tewell matched par 71.

Watkins, who earned $226,079 on the tour in 1986 for his best money year, said it doesn't bother him that he hasn't won a U.S. event.

"I don't really pay much attention to that," he said. "I'm sure before I leave (Riviera) somebody will say, 'You've been on the Tour 13 years and you haven't won yet. Doesn't that bother you?'"

"Well, I just try to do the best I can, and if that's going to be second, like last week (in San Diego), or 12th like the week before, then that's the best I can do," he said.

"Let me have six or seven seconds this year and that's fine with me. That's a lot of money."

Ironically, another Watkins — his older brother Lanny — has had great success at the Los Angeles tournament. Lanny lists two LA Open victories among his 15 career wins.

But Lanny, 37, shot a 73 to start off

Akeem's Absence Helps Celtics Power By Rockets

By The Associated Press

When the Houston Rockets need him, Akeem Olajuwon is usually there.

But he wasn't Thursday night, especially when the going got tough in the fourth quarter against the Boston Celtics.

The reason was foul trouble, and the result was a 99-92 victory for the Boston Celtics in a rematch of last year's NBA playoff finalists.

"We made mistakes we normally don't make," said Olajuwon, who was hit with four fouls and a technical, all in the fourth period. "They are a very good team and they take advantage of your mistakes."

Olajuwon was actually outplayed by Boston's Robert Parish, who had 30 points and 12 rebounds. The Houston center had only 15 points and 11 rebounds.

"I know we can beat them," Olajuwon said of the defending NBA champions. "We just didn't do the job tonight."

In other NBA games, it was Detroit 117, Seattle 105; New York 120, Cleveland 105; Golden State 110, New Jersey 106, and Portland 124, Phoenix 108.

The Celtics used a 10-2 spurt to take the lead for good midway in the third quarter, although the Rockets made a charge early in the fourth period. But Olajuwon picked up four quick fouls in the final period and the Celtics held on to beat back the Houston challenge.

Kevin McHale added 21 points for the Celtics and Larry Bird finished with 16 after suffering a cut near his right eye with 8:27 left in the game.

Steve Harris scored a career-high 22 points to lead the Rockets and Jim Petersen had 20 points, tying his season high.

Boston Coach K.C. Jones credited Parish with keeping the Celtics alive.

"He did a job on the boards and blocking shots," Jones said. "He came through when it was crunch time."

Pistons 117, Sonics 105

Adrian Dantley and Isiah Thomas scored 28 points apiece to lead Detroit over Seattle, handing the visiting SuperSonics their eighth consecutive loss.

The victory, Detroit's fourth in its last five games, gave the Pistons, 33-17, a one-game lead over idle Atlanta in the Central Division.

Dale Ellis led Seattle with 31 points, while Xavier McDaniel added 29.

Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said that a string of recent road games have contributed to the SuperSonics' woes.

"It's tough," Bickerstaff said. "Seven of those eight have been on the road."

"We're doing what everybody else in the NBA does on the road — lose," continued Bickerstaff, who noted that only Detroit, Boston and the Los Angeles Lakers have winning road records.

Knicks 120, Cavaliers 105

Gerald Wilkins scored 29 points and rookie Kenny Walker added 20 to help New York snap a four-game losing streak. The Knicks, playing without regulars Gerald Henderson and Bill Cartwright, dealt Cleveland its 13th straight road loss.

Wilkins scored 10 of his points during a critical third-quarter stretch when New York broke the game open. Wilkins, scoring 20 or more points for the 21st time this season, keyed a 17-9 spurt to begin the third quarter and help the Knicks take a 79-69 advantage midway through the period. Wilkins added 13 assists in the game.

New York's defense held Cleveland to 30 per cent field goal shooting and forced the Cavaliers into committing 20 turnovers. And the Knicks, the league's worst rebounding club, did not get beaten off the boards, matching Cleveland's 50 rebounds.

"The key to tonight's game was defense," said New York Coach Bob Hill. "We got a lot of deflections and turned them into easy baskets. We tried to rebound tonight. Our effort was there. Our defense was our best offense."

Trail Blazers 124, Suns 108
Kiki Vandeweghe had 35 points and Clyde Drexler added 30 to lead Portland over Phoenix.

Cuomo Bows Out Of The '88 Presidential Race

By MARC HUMBERT
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo, one of the Democratic Party's most eloquent spokesmen, has bowed out of the race for his party's 1988 presidential nomination with a simple statement that has left people wondering why.

"I will not be a candidate," the governor announced Thursday night on New York City's WCBS radio during a call-in show carried statewide by 10 other stations.

"In my opinion, the Democratic Party offers a number of candidates who can prove themselves capable of leading this nation toward a more sane, a more progressive and a more humane future. I will not add my name to that number."

Cuomo, 54, said his decision was best for his family, state and party. He refused to elaborate on the program. He was whisked by helicopter back to Albany, where he also dodged reporters.

Cuomo, who rose to national prominence with a rousing keynote address at the 1984 Democratic National Convention, had agonized so long and so publicly about running that he was accused of turning the decision into political theater.

Even political confidants were caught unaware.

"He would have made a ... good candidate," said Gerald Raifshoon, a media consultant who helped Jimmy Carter become president and who had been talking to Cuomo about a possible campaign. "I'm surprised. I'm not shocked."

"I'm surprised. I think he would have made a terrific candidate and think he would have been elected president," said Michael Del Giudice, a Wall Street investment banker and former Cuomo chief of staff.

"Obviously the concerns of the family and state responsibilities weighed on him and we all respect it."

Del Giudice was part of a small group of Cuomo advisers who had been surveying the political scene.

Recent nationwide polls had Cuomo running a strong second to former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart as the choice among Democrats for the nomination.

Hart called Cuomo "the leading conscience of the Democratic Party" and said in a statement that all Democrats "will benefit from his leadership and sense of humanity for a long time to come."

"I respect what must have been a difficult personal decision for Governor Cuomo," Hart said.

A spokesman for Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis said Cuomo's exit would have little impact on Dukakis' decision on whether to run.

"He will make his decision based on those personal criteria of family, of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, of his ability to serve," said James Dorsey.

However, George Bruno, party chairman in neighboring New Hampshire, home of the leadoff primary in 1988, said Cuomo's decision "makes Mike Dukakis a hot property."

Other potential candidates and political leaders expressed surprise and puzzlement, and some saw advantages.

"Clearly he was contemplating running," said the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, who sought the nomination in 1984. "So clearly something has happened and apparently something rather radical."

Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt said Cuomo's decision would make it easier to raise money in New York, and Georgia Sen. Sam Nunn said Cuomo would still "have a lot to do with who the emerging nominee will be."

Gephardt and Nunn are potential Democratic candidates.

Cuomo said Thursday night he wanted to clear the field for other candidates and allow his potential supporters to make other choices.

"There were some people who were developing expectations and I don't want them to be damaged as a result of that and so I chose this moment to make my position clear — I will not be a candidate," he said.

Cuomo said it was too early to talk about whom he might support.

Martin Steadman, Cuomo's press secretary, refused to discuss the governor's motivation.

"I think his statement was very clear," Steadman said. "If he didn't want to go beyond that, I'm not going to."

"He doesn't want to talk," added another Cuomo spokesman, Gary Fryer.

Cuomo returned Tuesday from a trip to New Orleans that had fueled speculation he would run because he spent so much time discussing national and international issues. He was in California last week.

Cuomo has other out-of-state trips planned for the next few months, including commencement addresses in Iowa and New Hampshire. Both states have important early contests for presidential candidates.

Cuomo aides had said privately that a major factor weighing against a candidacy was his concern over the treatment of his son in last year's re-election campaign, which ended with a record landslide victory over Republican Andrew O'Rourke and a $4 million campaign surplus.

O'Rourke had suggested that Andrew Cuomo had taken advantage of his position as the governor's son to attract well-heeled clients to his small Manhattan law firm, although no such evidence was presented.

The governor also has been bothered for years by a bad back and is undergoing therapy for a painful pinched nerve in his neck suffered last year.

He was first elected governor in 1982 with an upset victory over New York Mayor Edward Koch in the gubernatorial primary and a narrow general election victory over millionaire Republican businessman Lewis Lehrman.

Aide Says Bush Ready To 'Audition' For 1988

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush is a step closer to entering the 1988 presidential race and his campaign manager says Bush is ready to "audition for the job of the presidency."

Bush formed a presidential campaign committee Thursday, a step that makes him a candidate in the technical view of the Federal Election Commission.

But it's short of the vice president standing up and declaring he is a candidate. He'll do that sometime after Labor Day.

So far, only former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont has gone all the way and declared his candidacy. He'll be joined soon by former secretary of state Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

"that's a deviation from the administration's policy. And I can see places where there might be a little bit of friction, might be a little contradiction. But I think the president would understand."

Robert Mosbacher of Houston was named national finance chairman of the Bush campaign and Holmes Tuttle of Los Angeles, a close ally of Reagan, was named finance co-chairman.

A native of South Carolina and a veteran of Reagan's 1980 campaign, Atwater was deputy manager of the Reagan-Bush campaign in 1984. Edward J. Rollins, who was manager of the 1984 campaign, has signed on with Rep. Jack Kemp's presidential effort.

Also waiting in the wings are Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas, the Rev. Pat Robertson, former Senate GOP leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee and Donald Rumsfeld, a former Illinois congressman and defense secretary.

Lee Atwater, a former White House political aide, was named Bush campaign manager and he said the vice president "is going to be going around the country and he's going to start auditioning, in effect, for the American people."

Atwater added that "the way you audition for the job of the presidency is you go out and give your position on the issues to the people, you talk about your vision of the future, you talk about what you stand for."

Asked if Bush could do that without seeming to differ with President Reagan, Atwater replied, "Absolutely. ... He'll say, here's what we've done, here are the good things in the Reagan administration. Now, we're moving into a new era, we're moving into the 1990s, we're moving toward the next century, here's what I believe we need to do."

During a trip to Michigan last week, Bush took a tentative step toward distancing himself politically from Reagan when he told a news conference he had privately "expressed certain reservations on certain aspects" of the administration's Iran policy.

Bush conceded that disclosures of the secret arms sales to Iran and alleged diversion of funds to the Contra forces in Central America had hurt his 1988 prospects, a fact indicated by polls showing the vice president's lead over his potential rivals diminished.

"If I'm going to take credit for the good things (accomplished by the Reagan administration)," Bush said, "then I've got to be man enough to take the associational guilt" from the Iran-Contra affair.

He told reporters he would not "jump away from the president," but acknowledged that as he started giving his own vision people might say

Nancy-Don Feud Soars

NEW YORK (AP) — White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan hung up the telephone twice on conversations with first lady Nancy Reagan, once after apologizing for doing it before, a broadcast report said.

NBC News on Thursday also quoted a source "very close" to Mrs. Reagan as saying she leaked the story that she was no longer speaking to Regan as an attempt to force him out of the White House.

The source told the network that Mrs. Reagan and the chief of staff argued by telephone in December, and that Regan hung up the phone, then called back to apologize.

Ten days ago the two argued again and Regan hung up on the first lady, the report said, citing two unidentified sources.

Rules For Drug Tests Milder Than Ones In Use

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Guidelines calling for bathroom monitors to police urine sampling of federal workers resurrect the controversy over mandatory drug testing in the government, but the new rules probably seem tame to thousands of workers already tested.

The estimated 5,000 Defense Department civilian workers tested last year, for example, did not have the luxury of going into a toilet stall. Their monitors watched them fill the cup.

Michael Walsh, a National Institute on Drug Abuse official who worked on the new guidelines, said the eyewitness approach has been the most common safeguard used in mandatory testing programs in and out of government.

Pronouncing himself "somewhat amused with the focus on specifics of the procedure" outlined Thursday, Walsh acknowledged in a telephone interview that the step-by-step instructions on how to conduct a urine test emphasize the underlying questions about invasion of privacy in a mandatory program.

"What we tried to use are some common sense approaches, an attempt to strike a balance between protecting the privacy of the employee while still ensuring integrity of the system," said Walsh, director of the institute's Office of Workplace Initiatives.

Walsh said the most precise way to ensure a urine sample is not doctored is to observe the person giving it, but he noted that President Reagan specifically ruled out that approach last September in instructing the Department of Health and Human Services to write technical testing guidelines.

The guidelines include two major guards against cheating: Toilet water where the testing is conducted is to be dyed blue so it cannot be used to dilute the sample, and the temperature of the sample is to be taken within four minutes to make sure it has just come from a human body.

A trained monitor, perhaps a lab technician or a nurse, will be close by but will not actually watch the sample being given.

There also will be elaborate steps to guard against the sample being mishandled en route to a laboratory — accidentally or otherwise — and restrictions on how the tests are conducted and the results handled.

Any sample showing an initial positive test would be subjected to a more precise, and more expensive, second test before it was recorded as a positive.

Even then, the result could be reported only to a medical review officer in each agency — a physician with experience in drug abuse diagnosis — before being passed on to the employee's supervisor.

The review officer would be required to consider any mitigating evidence offered by the employee and would have the authority to report a negative result if he deemed the test "result scientifically insufficient for further action."

Walsh said inclusion of the medical review officer in the chain is an important employee protection that "to my knowledge is not present in most private sector programs."

"When you're developing a system like this you have to have those kinds of safeguards in there to resolve issues that just don't make sense," Walsh said. "I think a great deal of authority is going to be delegated to that medical review person."

He said that in cases in which a positive drug test could have resulted from some legitimate "positive medication ... it is important that that information not go directly to some personnel clerk."

Robert M. Tobias, head of the 120,000 member National Treasury Employees Union, said of the regulations: "The administration continues on in its quest to use federal workers as models by forcing them to line up at the stalls, go while being observed and risk firing if they do not urinate in official government-blue stained toilets."

The Office of Personal Management estimates 1.1 million federal workers technically could be subject to mandatory tests — using the definition that they hold "sensitive" jobs — and that about that many will be notified of that possibility.

However, the final determination will be made on an agency-by-agency basis, and OPM officials say they expect only a small fraction actually to be tested.

"I think when it's all said and done we're going to be talking about 50,000 people," Walsh said. "The courts have made clear they're only going to support this where it is reasonable and appropriate. It also has to be reasonable to the public at large."

Reagan Removes Polish Sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — While lifting economic sanctions against Poland, the Reagan administration says it is not ready to upgrade the American diplomatic presence in Warsaw with appointment of an ambassador.

The last remaining sanctions were removed by President Reagan on Thursday to encourage more political reforms in Poland.

The penalties — denial of "most-favored-nation" tariff treatment and a ban on U.S. credits and guarantees — were among steps imposed after Poland's 1981 martial law crackdown on the Solidarity trade union.

In lifting the sanctions, Reagan noted that martial law was lifted in 1983 and that thousands of political prisoners have been freed in a series of amnesties. Since last September, no one has been arrested on political charges, he said.

"Yet there is still far to go," Reagan said. "The threat of arrest still hangs over those who seek their freedom. The right to genuinely independent trade unions is still stifled. Independent political activity continues to be repressed by various governmental measures," the president added. "National reconciliation remains a dream, a goal for the future, rather than a reality of today. ...

"Our relations with Poland can only develop in ways that encourage genuine progress toward national reconciliation in that country," he said.

John Glenn Marks 25th Anniversary Of His Earth Orbits In Friendship 7

By JAMES HANNAH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — John Glenn etched his name in the history books 25 years ago today, orbiting the Earth three times and propelling the United States into a dash for the stars with the Soviet Union.

"It can't be that long," the first American to orbit the Earth and now Democratic senator from Ohio joked during an interview in his Senate office this week. "It literally seems to me like it was maybe a month or two ago. I can remember parts of the flight and how vividly I felt."

The silver anniversary of the flight of Friendship 7 has sparked a surge of interest in the historic event. Glenn has been flooded with interview requests and appeared before reporters Thursday next to his Mercury space capsule at the National Air and Space Museum.

"It seems very vivid to me," the former Marine fighter pilot said of the flight. "I guess it was etched in my memory rather indelibly. I remember very vividly the anticipation before liftoff. I remember the apprehension I felt when there was an indication on the ground that the heat shield had come loose."

Glenn's Senate staff was planning to mark the event today with the showing of a 22-minute videotape of the flight. In addition, Glenn's wife, Annie, is to present him with leather-bound copies of the three Life magazines which featured her husband on the cover.

And tonight Glenn was to be reunited with his fellow Mercury astronauts at a dinner-dance at a Washington hotel. Expected for the gathering are Alan Shepard, Donald Slayton, Gordon Cooper, Scott Carpenter and Walter Schirra.

Next week Glenn is scheduled to recount his experience at the National Air and Space Museum as part of a lecture series.

The success of the Glenn's flight on Feb. 20, 1962, touched off an extraordinary national celebration. The Soviet Union already had succeeded in sending men into orbit, reinforcing their lead in the space race. But Glenn's three orbits around the Earth gave Americans hope the nation would catch up.

Glenn had endured 10 postpene-ments in his flight beginning Dec. 20, 1961.

But Feb. 20, 1962, was to be different.

It began at 2:20 a.m. for Glenn, who breakfasted on orange juice, scrambled eggs, filet of beef and toast before receiving a final physical exam and slipping into his skin-tight space suit. By 6:59 a.m. he was alone in Friendship 7.

Following several holds on the countdown to work out technical problems, the Atlas rocket blasted off the launchpad at 9:47 a.m., shooting Glenn into orbit five minutes later.

"Zero-G, and I feel fine," he reported into his microphone. "Capsule is turning around. Oh, that view is tremendous."

But as Glenn passed over Cape Canaveral into his second orbit, a ground instrument indicated the capsule's heat shield was loose. If that were true, the friction of re-entry would disintegrate capsule and astronaut long before splashdown.

As Glenn plummeted back to Earth following the third orbit, the outside temperature of the capsule hit 3,000 degrees and chunks of flaming metal began to flash past the windows.

"I didn't know what was going to happen on re-entry," Glenn recalled. "I still remember to this day how it felt. I remember watching these chunks go by and thinking that if that's the heat shield, I'm going to start feeling the heat and feel it on my back."

As it turned out, the fiery material Glenn saw was pieces of the retro-pack, the rockets used to slow down the spacecraft, and not the all-important heat shield.

"Boy, that was a real fireball," Glenn remarked before safely landing in the Atlantic Ocean, four hours and 55 minutes after launch.

"It was quite a day," Glenn would later say at a Cape Canaveral news conference. "I don't know what you can say in which you see four beautiful sunsets in one day, but it's pretty interesting."

U.S. Reportedly Planned Egyptian Invasion Of Libya After '85 Hijack

By RICHARD L. VERNACI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran's influence in freeing passengers held hostage aboard a hijacked flight in 1985 led to a shift in U.S. policy for dealing with the Tehran government and to a proposed invasion of Libya, a report published today said.

Meanwhile, former National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane told a special presidential commission that he falsified a document outlining the Iran-Contra affair to give the president the option of denying he authorized an August 1985 arms shipment to Iran, The New York Times and the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The National Security Council and Robert M. Gates, nominated by President Reagan to run the CIA, drew up plans in the summer of 1985 for Egypt to attack Libya, capture half its territory with U.S. air support and then use this position to force Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi from power, The Washington Post said.

McFarlane, along with his former deputy, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, and another NSC aide, Donald Fortier, devised the plan, the newspaper said.

The drive "was to embrace the Ayatollah (Khomeini) and demolish Gadhafi," the Post said, quoting an administration official who was involved in the policy-making.

It was thought that Iran, because of its assistance in the June 1985 hijacking of TWA flight 847, could be of further help in gaining the release of other Americans held hostage by pro-Iranian groups, the Post said.

Gates, then head of intelligence analysis for the CIA and now acting CIA director, wrote a paper in mid-July 1985 saying a U.S.-Egyptian attack on Libya would present an opportunity to "redraw the map of North Africa," the newspaper said, quoting sources who have read the document.

The White House was considering the action against Libya even though there was no evidence linking Gadhafi to the hijacking, the newspaper said. The purpose was to get tough with what the Reagan administration believed to be the most vulnerable of the governments supporting terrorism.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz considered the plan "crazy" and summoned Nicholas A. Veliotis, then ambassador to Egypt, home on a secret weekend mission to help thwart the proposal, the newspaper said.

Although the State Department failed to stop a mission to Cairo by Poindexter, it did succeed in limiting his authorized discussions to contingency planning rather than preparations for military action, the newspaper said.

White House spokesman Dan Howard said Thursday night the administration would have no comment on the report.

In April 1986, the United States conducted bombing raids on Tripoli and Benghazi, saying the action was in response to Libya's role in the bombing of a West Berlin disco frequented by U.S. servicemen.

In January 1986, Reagan signed an order authorizing the CIA to kidnap terrorist suspects abroad and bring them back to the United States to stand trial, The Wall Street Journal reported today. That authority has not yet been used to kidnap anyone, the Journal said.

The order, which had been opposed by some in the CIA and the FBI, came about after the United States tried without success to find the hijackers of the TWA flight, the Journal said.

In other developments: — Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said evidence gathered by congressional investigators indicates Reagan approved in advance an August 1985 arms shipment to Iran, and he should not feel pressured to change that story now.

"All of the evidence would indicate ... that the president did at least give a conditional OK to going ahead with the Israeli part of the Iran arms transfer in August of 1985," said Durenberger, former chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee that investigated the Iran-Contra affair in December.

"I think the president ought to stick with that," despite reports that his embattled chief of staff,

Donald Regan, persuaded him to change his testimony to the White House commission investigating the affair, Durenberger said.

President Reagan himself remained publicly quiet on the affair and his spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, would not comment on the reports that Reagan had changed his story to the commission led by former Sen. John Tower.

The Tower Commission, with just a week left before the deadline for completing its final report, went to Bethesda Naval Hospital to interview McFarlane, who is recovering from police described as an attempted suicide by drug overdose.

McFarlane told the board he helped write a chronology of the affair that was deliberately falsified so the president could deny he gave prior approval to the August 1985 arms shipment, according to reports today in The New York Times and the Los Angeles Times.

"There was a kind of panic," according to one source cited by The New York Times. "The general atmosphere was, 'Save the president.' Operationally, the plan was to keep this thing aloft by keeping the president at some distance."

The commission's report will criticize Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger for not being aggressive enough in opposing the U.S. arms sales to Iran, according to an unidentified source cited in today's editions of The Baltimore Sun.

— Iraian Prime Minister Hussein Musavi said today that Vice President George Bush was involved in McFarlane's visit to Iran in May 1986.

"Party factions in the U.S.A. are trying to hide his (Bush's) role in this political disgrace," Tehran radio quoted Musavi as saying.

Bush has said he cannot recall when he first learned of the decision to sell arms to Iran, and had "expressed reservations on certain aspects" of President Reagan's Iran policy.

The radio, in a broadcast monitored in England, gave no further details of Musavi's remarks and did not expand on what he meant by saying Bush had a role in the secret visit.

Druse Alliance Consolidates Gains As Beirut Gets Truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Relative calm settled over most of west Beirut today as a Druse-led leftist alliance consolidated its gains against Shiite militiamen. Police said at least 200 people were killed in the all-week battle for control of the Moslem sector.

A Syrian-brokered truce took hold Thursday night and appeared to be holding today in most of the embattled capital.

However, heavy sniping interspersed by occasional blasts of rocket-propelled grenades kept patrols of a special security force from moving into Tarek Jedideh and Karakoul el-Druse neighborhoods, where Druse and Shiite gunmen were only 50 yards apart, police said.

Amal, the main Shiite Moslem militia, has been fighting a leftist alliance of the Druse and Lebanese Communist Party since Sunday. Police said more than 200 people have been killed, 400 wounded and scores of buildings gutted by fires in the battle.

The special security force made up of 200 Syrian army commandos, 750

Lebanese troops and policemen, 150 Druse and 50 Amal militiamen set up buffer zones in six neighborhoods with shoot-to-kill orders, police said.

Syria, which maintains 25,000 soldiers in east and north Lebanon, supports all the factions involved in the fighting and has tried to stop the killing.

A police official said Walid Jumblatt's Druse militia had routed Justice Minister Nabih Berri's Amal militia from several west Beirut districts and had gained control of about 75 percent of the Moslem sector.

Most leftist gains were in the Hamra commercial district and the predominantly Sunni Moslem residential districts of Zarif, Aisha Bakkar and Tallet Khayyat, according to police. They said three Amal pockets held out in Hamra.

Some of the fiercest fighting took place around the seven-story Commodore Hotel, which the Druse captured in a seven-hour battle Wednesday. The hotel's last two guests, American Moslems Mohammed Mehdi and Dale Shaheen, left Beirut for Cyprus Thursday.

The two men, who represent the New York-based National Council for Islamic Affairs, arrived in Beirut on Saturday with messages for three American captives from their families. Eight of the 26 foreigners missing and believed held hostage in Lebanon are Americans.

Informants who spoke on condition of anonymity said they believed the hostages and Terry Waite, the Anglican Church hostage negotiator who dropped from sight Jan. 20, were held in the Shiite suburbs away from the street battles.

Shamir Says 'No Soviets'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir says he would oppose a Soviet role in Mideast peace talks, even if Moscow resumed diplomatic relations with Israel after a 20-year break.

"Their aim is not to bring peace there," Shamir said Thursday. He said the Soviets would put Israel in an "untenable position" of having to face extreme Arab demands.

Shamir gave his views in an interview with The Associated Press and in a speech to the National Press Club.

Despite Shamir's views, President Reagan and key aides told the Israeli leader an international peace conference that included the Soviets may be one way to get peace talks started.

"We are opposed, I am opposed," Shamir said. "In my opinion, it will be harmful to peace, to prospects of peace in our area, and to Israeli interests."

Asked if Soviet recognition of Israel would cause him to change his mind about a peace conference, the prime minister replied quickly: "In my opinion, no."

Irish Winner Seeks Coalition Support

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister-elect Charles Haughey, denied his goal of a parliamentary majority, is seeking essential support from outside his party to tackle such problems as a stagnant economy and Northern Ireland.

Final results tallied Thursday, 36 hours after Tuesday's general election ended, gave Haughey's Fianna Fail party 81 seats in the 166-seat Dail, the lower house of Parliament — three short of a majority.

Some analysts saw the outcome as auguring instability and possibly another election well ahead of schedule.

Fianna Fail said it was looking to three of the four independent lawmakers elected to make up a majority. Fianna Fail lawmaker Bernie Ahern spoke of reaching "some kind of arrangement."

But left-wing independent Tony Gregory is expected to demand bigger spending on social welfare. Another independent, nationalist die-hard Neil Blaney, has said Haughey must renegotiate the 1985

Anglo-Irish agreement in Northern Ireland.

The accord gives the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish Republic a formal consultative role in running British-ruled Northern Ireland, where Protestants outnumber Catholics 3-2.

Haughey made no statements following his bitter-sweet victory over Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald, except to tell reporters: "I intend my government to run its full course."

He was to go before the Dail on March 10 to be voted in for his third term as taoiseach, or prime minister.

Later in March he faces his first major test when he presents the national budget. It will have to deal with an economy plagued by record debt, high taxes and interest rates and 19.6 percent unemployment.

Ahern, speaking for Fianna Fail in an inter-party discussion on state TV, said: "The people have decided. Fianna Fail does not have a majority, but that being so we must continue on and implement the policies which we have to do."

PBS' 'Newton's Apple' Mixes TV And Computer Programs

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Within "Newton's Apple" this season there's a brand-new corps, of computer users, who can expect much fancier treatment next season.

The PBS science show had four programs this season that could be studied either on a television screen or on a personal computer, using software distributed free of charge to schools or through computer bulletin boards.

"We're really pleased with them and planning to do more," said James Steinbach, the show's executive producer. "It looks like something that will continue to grow."

The difference next season is that the software will be written for larger computers. The first software, which included lessons on mirrors, probability and hypothermia, was designed for 16K memories.

After allowing 6K for the user's interaction, the programs had very little memory for fancy graphics.

In the inertia segment, there was a little graphic showing an apple banking Newton's noggin, but the pictures were generated using text characters.

"Next year, they'll look like professional and expensive software," said Tom Hallinan of Tel-Ed, a Los Angeles educational firm that designed the programs.

"We had some good constructive criticism, especially from some of the richer states, that our programs were needless memory misers, that the programs could be more fancy," Hallinan said.

His firm surveyed school contacts in 50 states, and found that 70 percent of the machines in schools used 128K programs. The programs are written for Apple II machines.

Among the subjects of next year's programs is a lesson about the physiological effects of cocaine, and another on the physical principles involved in gymnastics.

"No one had ever done this before. For a pilot program, this flew amazingly well, well enough that Du Pont is increasing its funding commitment by about 100 percent," Hallinan said.

The programs are written by teachers and reviewed by another panel of educators who teach science at the junior high school level.

The "Newton's Apple" team at KTCA-TV in Minneapolis also reviews the software "to make sure it has the flavor of the show," Hallinan said.

That demands a certain light touch. In the software about mirrors, for instance, there's a multiple choice question asking who would not see his reflection in a mirror. One of the choices is Ronald Reagan, but the correct answer is Count Dracula.

"What made this different was not just the programs themselves but (that) they contacted a person in each state who could be a central person," said Steinbach. "It's freeware, so the point was to get copies made."

Hallinan estimated that about 2,500 floppy disks were distributed, mostly to people who duplicated them for classroom use. Next season, he hopes to double the size of the distribution list.

"The result will be, given the amount of memory we can fool around with, software that would be worth $40 and $50," Hallinan said.

Both the show, which made its national debut in 1983, and the computer programs are underwritten by Du Pont, but they are almost separate projects — except for coordinating subject matter.

Ira Flatow, the TV host, has no involvement in the software, although he has pitched in to promote the idea, Hallinan said.

People's Choices Nominated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Moonlighting" stars Bruce Willis and Cybill Shepherd were nominated for People's Choice Awards in a nationwide Gallup Poll along with Tom Selleck, Bill Cosby and the wisecracking puppet Alf.

Cosby was nominated for favorite male TV performer and all-around male entertainer, and "The Cosby Show" was listed among the top comedy programs. Phylicia Rashad, Cosby's TV wife, is a contender among female performers.

The nominees, three in each of 21 television, film and music categories, were selected in a poll of 5,000 people and announced Thursday at a Beverly Hills Hotel news conference by Ken Kercheval of "Dallas" and Dick Van Dyke.

The winners will be announced during the 13th Annual People's Choice Awards telecast live by CBS on March 15 from the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

In the category of favorite male performer in a new TV program, Alf, the furry puppet in the situation comedy of the same name, was nominated along with Bronson Pinchot of "Perfect Strangers" and Andy Griffith of "Matlock." Alf stands for "alien life form."

"Dynasty" was nominated in two drama categories, while its star Linda Evans is up against Mrs. Rashad and Miss Shepherd for top female TV entertainer.

Winfrey Eyes Series

CHICAGO (AP) — Popular talk-show host Oprah Winfrey is talking with ABC-TV and Reeves Entertainment Group about starring in a situation comedy.

The proposed show would be somewhat autobiographical, featuring Ms. Winfrey as the host of a daytime TV talk show in Chicago, said Alice McGee of Harpo Inc., which represents Ms. Winfrey.

She would continue her real-life show, now seen in 145 markets, Ms. McGee said Thursday. Industry sources have said Ms. Winfrey may earn $32 million this year from the Chicago-based syndicated show.

Ms. Winfrey won an Oscar nomination for her first role in "The Color Purple" and also appears in "Native Son."

The Ninth President

Many Americans will commemorate the birthday of George Washington this weekend. Contrary to popular belief, Washington was NOT the first U.S. President. He was the first President to serve under the U.S. Constitution. Eight Presidents served between 1781 and 1789 under the Articles of Confederation. The first President of the United States was actually John Hanson. His title was "President of the United States in Congress assembled."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Feb. 21

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you need to take care of your health. Use much care on the highway and in other motion. Use your Saturday to catch up on errands and correspondence.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You want to get into new activities, but this is not the day for progress. Screen new partners wisely.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may feel that others are taking advantage of you, but this may not actually be the case.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): One who keeps harping on some point should be avoided. Save yourself some heartache this way.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Your Saturday duties seem more difficult than usual. Don't argue with co-workers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Get into the recreational activities that you like, but make a little preparation first so they go well for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Nothing seems to work out as you please at home. Don't be forceful in trying to gain your way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Your friends may be too busy with their own affairs, so don't ask assistance for them at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You are apt to act too hastily where a financial matter is concerned, so postpone and get results later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Do not rush after what you desire. Instead, make wise plans for the best possible results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get your time scheduled so that you can handle your duties wisely. Don't be forceful with your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You are eager to be your gregarious self during the day, but be more discriminating for best results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Keep busy at personal activities and avoid outside meanderings that could bring you trouble.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be apt to speak without much thought and get into trouble thusly, so teach this one the art of meditation. Early schooling is important here. Be sure to add foreign languages since much travel is possible. Make sure the diet is good.

 Opening lead: Queen of ♠

Some two-way finesses are a straight guess. At times, however, the bidding will tell you which way is more likely to succeed. On other occasions, your holding will dictate how you play.

We agree with West's decision to make a takeout double. While he might have been a few points shy in terms of high cards, his perfect distribution compensated, especially at this vulnerability. Note North's decision to raise to two spades—the modern treatment is to ignore the double and to bid normally.

West led the top of his diamond sequence and declarer's problem was obvious. Since West was most likely to have the ace of clubs for his takeout double, there was a danger of losing three club tricks and a diamond. A winning heart finesse would permit declarer to get rid of one loser. However, declarer could take either a normal heart finesse or a ruffing finesse. Which line should he choose, and why?

Had declarer gone only by the bidding, it would seem West was highly likely to have the king of hearts, particularly since the opening lead marked East with the king of diamonds. Fortunately, declarer realized he could afford to lose a heart trick to West and still make his contract. Losing a heart trick to East, however, would surely be fatal, for that worthy would be able to lead a club through the king.

Declarer won the ace of diamonds (there was no point to holding up) and drew trumps in two rounds. Next he led a heart to the ace and ran the queen through East. When East played low, declarer discarded a diamond. Had West won the trick, the king of clubs would have been safe from attack and declarer would have been able to use the table's jack of hearts to take care of one of his club losers. And if East covered the queen of hearts, declarer would have ruffed, crossed to the table with a trump and taken his discard on the high heart.
