President 'Optimistic' Over Arms Issue

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to put the Iran-Contra affair in the background, is conferring with arms negotiators on a "breakthrough" Soviet offer he says makes him more optimistic than ever about an agreement.

The negotiators — Max M. Kampelman, Maynard W. Glitman and Ron Lehman — flew back to Washington from Brussels, Belgium, after briefing the 16 NATO ambassadors on the Soviet proposal at a closed-door, two-hour meeting Thursday.

The Soviets have offered to sign a treaty to scrap medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, apart from any agreement on long-range nuclear missiles and Reagan's prized "Star Wars" missile defense plan.

Reagan, addressing a gathering of newspaper executives Thursday, said, "This change in the Soviet position is a great breakthrough and shows that, in working for the cause of peace, preparedness pays, patience pays, and firmness pays."

The president said, "I've never felt more optimistic about the prospects for success in this area than I do today."

However, he cautioned that some important issues remain to be settled, such as shorter-range nuclear missiles capable of striking Western Europe.

Reagan said there also were problems about verification and large imbalances in the shorter-range missiles, chemical weapons and conventional forces in Europe.

Emphasizing the issue of arms control, Reagan attempted to turn the page on the Iran episode.

"We've spent enough time the last few months on inside-Washington politics: Who's up and who's down, who's in and out," he said.

"One thing that has made our republic great is that we don't hide from our mistakes," Reagan added. "We learn from them, then we go on and do things better than we did before. That's what I intend to do."

He said investigations of the Iran-Contra affair would continue and his administration will cooperate. "But so far as I'm concerned, the American people sent me here to do a job, and there are just two years left to get it done."

His brother, J. Neil Reagan, said in a published interview he believes the president arranged a diversion of profits from the Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

"My brother said that?" the president said with a look of amazement as he posed for pictures with GOP senators. "I'll skin him."

The president has insisted he knew nothing about such a diversion.

Reagan's brother, a 78-year-old retired California advertising executive, told the San Diego newspaper, The Citizen, that once the president was turned down in Congress on money for the Contras, "I bet he just went back to his office and said, 'There's more than one way to skin a cat. Get a hold of those guys down in Iran and see if they want some armaments.' Then, he was under no obligation to go to anyone and say, 'Can I have a couple of bucks for the Contras.'"

Shultz To Meet Soviets In April

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will hold talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow in mid-April, a Reagan administration official said today.

Word of the meetings came amid a flurry of comments by administration officials that the two countries are closer than ever to an agreement limiting medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe.

It will be the first high-level U.S.-Soviet conference since Shultz met Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze in Vienna last November.

The administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, did not give a date for the Shultz trip or discuss the agenda, although such foreign ministers' meetings in previous administrations have been the final step in reaching an arms control agreement.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, U.S. arms negotiator Max Kampelman met for a half-hour with Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., before going to the White House for a lunch with President Reagan.

Kampelman declined to talk with reporters after the meeting, but Dole said Kampelman believes "there is an opportunity to do business" with the Soviets. "He's a skilled negotiator, he knows the Russians, when he says it, it's meaningful," said Dole.

But Dole cautioned against raising expectations too high. Any treaty is likely to take several months to work out, he said, meaning it wouldn't be before the Senate for ratification until next year.

Since Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev announced last weekend that he was willing to reach a separate agreement with the United States on medium-range missiles in Europe, there had been speculation that Shultz would go to Moscow to try to work out the final details.

The United States and the Soviet Union are currently discussing the details of a draft treaty eliminating the medium-range missiles, although the administration has said measures governing compliance with the pact remained to be worked out.

HOUSE FIRE — Bell Arthur firemen look for hot spots during a fire that destroyed the home of Larry and Mildred Daniels in the Greenwood Forest subdivision off Stantonsburg Road Thursday night. Affair Was 'Unique Exception'

Israel Apologizes To U.S. For Pollard Spy Scandal

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin apologized to the United States for the Jonathan J. Pollard spy scandal, and Israeli legislators demanded that those responsible be punished.

Speaking on Israel Television, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said the Pollard affair caused a "serious erosion" in relations between the United States and Israel. "We must make a supreme effort to overcome it," Peres added.

Pollard, 32, a former U.S. Navy intelligence analyst, pleaded guilty to spying for Israel and was sentenced to life in prison Wednesday in Washington. His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, was sentenced to five years for helping him.

Relations between the two countries were further strained when Pollard's recruiter, Col. Aviem Sella, was promoted Sunday to a top air force job despite sharp American protests.

Rabin said Thursday he "apologized to the United States, its people,

(and) its government for what happened."

He described the affair involving Pollard, a Jewish American, as "an exception, a unique exception," and said Pollard acted "without the knowledge of the political authority."

Pollard, who said he spied for ideological reasons, said high government officials in Israel knew of his activities. But Israeli officials have said Pollard's activities were not known to Israeli leaders.

While Israel's leaders tried to strike a conciliatory note, its legislators sharply demanded that those responsible for the affair be punished.

"Everyone who thought it was a good idea to recruit an American, what's more, a Jew, to spy on the United States, must be punished," right-wing legislator Eliahu Ben Elissar said on Israel Television.

"Whoever gave the order must face the consequences," left-wing opposition leader Elazar Granot told Israel Television. "There cannot be authority without responsibility."

Mordechai Wirshovsky, of the liberal Shinui Party, called for the resignation of Trade Minister Ariel Sharon and Minister-without-portfolio Moshe Arens.

Wirshovsky charged that Sharon, defense minister between 1981 and 1983 and Arens, his successor until September 1984, were in charge when the special ministry unit which recruited Pollard was set up by master spy Rafi Eitan. He said Arens and Sharon were "accountable from the political point of view" for the Pollard affair.

Left-wing legislator Yossi Sarid said Eitan should be dismissed from his job as head of Israel Chemical Co., Israel's largest public concern. Eitan was appointed to the job by Sharon after his spy unit was disbanded.

Likud parliamentarian Ehud Olmert said Israel had been inconsiderate and insensitive towards the Americans in promoting Sella during the week Pollard was to be sentenced, and in inviting the U.S. air attaché to the ceremony.

"If there is such a thing as bungling which is a combination of inconsideration, insensitivity and lack of right-thinking, this is it," said Olmert.

President Chaim Herzog, the mainly ceremonial head of state, also criticized the government's handling of the affair.

Dishonest?

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iranian President Ali Khamenei today accused President Reagan of being dishonest in saying that the United States did not originally plan to sell arms to Iran in return for American hostages in Lebanon.

"This is an open contradiction. He (Reagan) has been compelled to speak this language before the American public," Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Khamenei as saying.

"One can conclude now that the present American statesmen are neither honest, nor do they enjoy real power — whether this is mental power or the power of faith. They do not even believe in their own task anyway," Khamenei said.

Contra Confirms Money Payment

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Contra rebels in Nicaragua received nearly $200,000 from a Swiss bank account controlled by a close associate of fired White House aide Lt. Col. Oliver North, a Contra spokesman said today.

The transfer of the funds from the "Lake Resources" account to bank accounts of the largest rebel fighting force, FDN, was confirmed by the attorney for FDN leader Adolfo Calero, said the spokesman who spoke on condition his name not be used.

Lake Resources was controlled by retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, North's associate. Profits from the sale of U.S. arms to Iran, an operation engineered in large part by North, were deposited in the Lake Resources account in 1986, according to a special presidential panel that investigated the arms sales. North was fired for his role in the matter.

Congressional committees and an independent counsel are investigating the alleged diversion of arms-sale profits to the Contras.

"There were two deposits in October 1985," to the Contra accounts, the spokesman said, adding that the receipts had been discovered by Calero's attorney Joseph Portuondo.

Calero has previously said that, to his knowledge, his forces got no money from the Iran arms sales. He did acknowledge receiving money from unknown foreign sources.

The president's review board did not say whether any arms sales profits went into Lake Resources as early as 1985.

The spokesman said Calero had not reviewed the bank records until last Sunday, and had looked at them only "roughly," not recognizing the Lake Resources transfers.

Calero earlier Thursday discussed the rebels' finances with a federal grand jury attempting to find out whether they received any money from the U.S. arms sales to Iran.

Afterward, Calero told reporters said he asked officials from Taiwan, Israel and Egypt for military aid during nine months in 1984-85 when U.S. aid to the guerrillas, known as Contras, was prohibited. He said he was never informed whether his requests were acted upon.

Calero also said Secord was one of three former U.S. military officers who helped the rebels buy more than $18 million in military equipment during the time that U.S. aid was banned by Congress.

Pitt Writing Tests Rank 'Favorably'

Scores of the North Carolina Annual Writing Assessment Test, administered to sixth and eighth grade students in the Pitt County school system in November, "compared favorably with the state and Region 1" scores, according to school officials.

Sixth-grade students were tested on their ability to write an explanatory-descriptive composition. Eighth-grade students were evaluated on their skills in writing a point-of-view composition.

Each paper was scored from 1 to 4 on two different sets of characteristics by trained readers at a central site. A holistic score was determined by such characteristics as main idea, supportive details, organization and coherence. A convention score was based on spelling, grammar, usage and sentence formation.

The scores indicate that 64.6 percent of the Pitt County sixth grade students who are not handicapped scored a 2.0 or higher. This figure compared to 62.2 percent statewide and 62.5 percent in Region 1.

The individual school display shows that A.G. Cox and South Greenville schools had a higher percentage of non-handicapped sixth grade students who received higher holistic scores than other schools in Pitt County, Region 1 and the state. Cox had 30.9 percent and South Greenville had 30.4 percent of their sixth grade non-handicapped students score a 3.0 or higher, compared to 17.5 percent in Region 1 and 19 percent statewide.

All of the Pitt County sixth grade students, with the exception of those in Bethel, compared favorably with Region 1 and the state in convention scores. Three local schools — Chicod, Grifton and Wellcome Middle schools — scored highest in convention scores. Chicod had 95.7 percent of their students score at the exceptional level, while Grifton had 95.1 percent and Wellcome Middle had 93.6 percent.

A study of the figures for the eighth-grade students in Pitt County shows that 86.1 percent scored a 2.0 or higher in holistic scoring. This is a slightly higher figure than Region 1 (82.3 percent) and the state (84.4 percent).

Four of the Pitt County schools with comparably higher holistic scores were A.G. Cox, Bethel, Wellcome Middle and Chicod. Cox had 47.2 percent scoring 3.0 or higher, Bethel had 36.6 percent and Chicod had 29.9. In Region 1, 20.7 percent of the eighth-grade non-handicapped students scored 3.0 or higher; the statewide figure was 23.5 percent.

G.R. Whitfield and Ayden Middle schools had 94.5 percent of their eighth-grade non-handicapped students score exceptionally well in convention scores.

Proclamation Issued

Greenville Mayor Les Garner has proclaimed March 15 through March 21 as Exceptional Children's Week.

Garner said exceptional children may be identified as children having superior intellectual abilities and rare creative talents, mental retardation, hearing, orthopedic, speech, visual impairments, behavioral emotional handicaps or children with special learning disabilities who require special education and related services.

"In many cases a disability or an ability becomes an exceptionality when the individual is not able to cope adequately with daily living tasks and academic or vocational pursuits, or has negative feelings of self worth and individual integrity," the proclamation said.

"The disabling tendency of exceptionality can be prevented by properly trained professionals in conjunction with community awareness, knowledge interest in, and understanding of exceptional individuals," Garner said.

Study Pinpoints Heart Attack Rate

ATLANTA (AP) — A study of heart disease in black and white physicians found a heart attack rate among the black doctors that was 10 times higher than that among the whites.

"It is well known that blacks have higher rates of high blood pressure and heart disease than whites have," said Dr. John Thomas of Meharry Medical College, who prepared the study for presentation today at a conference on black hypertension.

"What this research strongly suggests is that this difference is not attributable to socioeconomic or occupational factors. The study suggests, too, that for blacks, higher income and status do not shield against heart disease to the extent they appear to do for the population at large."

The study compared 313 doctors who attended Meharry, a predominantly black school in Nashville, Tenn., with 470 white doctors who attended Johns Hopkins School of Medicine from 1958-64.

It found that 4 percent of the black doctors but only .4 percent of the white doctors had suffered a heart attack. Forty-eight percent of the black physicians and 17 percent of the whites had high blood pressure, Thomas said.

Since more blacks than whites smoked or were overweight, the study suggested that those factors were more significant than hypertension in determining the risk of heart attack, he said.

On Thursday, participants at the conference were told that education, particularly directed at young people, is the key to controlling hypertension in blacks.

High blood pressure can be detected as early as the first grade, said Dr. Gerald S. Berenson, a Louisiana State University professor and chief of cardiology at the LSU Medical Center.

If children can be taught good health habits, such as washing their hands and keeping their bodies clean, they ought to be able to learn how to eat right and take care of themselves, he said.

"This is a disease that really begins in childhood. Think how much more effective it would be if we attack the next generation of hypertensive adults by beginning with children now," said Berenson, whose research found that the warning signs of high blood pressure may be detected sooner than was thought previously.

High blood pressure, if not controlled, can contribute to strokes, heart attacks and other health problems.

Blacks in this country have hypertension rates twice as high as whites. Scientists estimate that 60,000 lives could be saved among U.S. blacks each year if their hypertension rates were equal to the rate for white people.

The top priority now is to better use already available means to fight the problem of high blood pressure, said Dr. Neil Shulman, an Emory University associate professor and organizer of the Interdisciplinary Conference on Hypertension in Blacks, being held at Emory through Saturday.

A new education program announced in Atlanta on Thursday is aimed at black populations in 10 Southern cities.

Called "HealthPITCH" — for People Involved To Control Hypertension — the program will conduct education programs beginning this month in Atlanta; Birmingham and Mobile, Ala.; Charlotte and Raleigh, N.C.; Columbia, S.C.; Jackson, Miss.; Memphis and Nashville, Tenn.; and Washington D.C.

No Permit, Please

State environmental officials must consider the precedent it would set if they allow the Girl Scouts to dump treated sewage from Camp Hardee in the Pamlico River.

The implications of such an action go beyond mere potential pollution of a valuable resource. Permitting the camp to dispose of its waste in this manner could open the door to growth of similar tracts of land along the Pamlico's banks that can't be developed without dumping sewage in the water.

The proposal raises serious questions about preferential treatment, citizenship and commitment.

The Girl Scout's dilemma lies in the fact that the organization wants to expand Camp Hardee to allow more girls to use the facility but cannot do so without a waste disposal system. The land the camp is on isn't suitable for septic tanks, so the treated effluent must be disposed in the river.

It would be difficult to object to enlarging a camp that allows young scouts an opportunity to savor the beauty and serenity of the Pamlico River. But the scouts have proposed a measure that could not only harm the environment but could open the door to further damage.

What if trailer parks in the same area want to expand, but can't because a septic system isn't suitable? If Camp Hardee is allowed to discharge waste, how can others be justifiably prevented from doing the same thing? The scouts have a peerless record as good environmental citizens, but non-profit organizations should be treated no differently than private interests when it comes to drawing legal lines.

The idea of dumping sewage in the Pamlico River is in direct conflict with the long-respected Girl Scout adage to "leave a place better than you find it." If Camp Hardee is permitted to place effluent in the Pamlico, that longstanding environmental stewardship will be broken.

A secondary question arises concerning whether the scouts are financially committed to building a wastewater treatment plant that really works. A $300,000 facility is an expensive proposition and might not be realistic or feasible for a non-profit organization. That high price tag and stiff opposition to the proposal from within the Girl Scout organization should make officials think twice before proceeding with a permit.

There is a final, yet important, question of whether or not a sewage system of the type proposed, even if it meets state regulations, would function properly. There are shortfalls in even the strictest regulations. The scouts may propose a sewage plant that meets requirements but because it only operates five months a year — the months the camp is open — the facility may not function adequately. Environmentalists have voiced that fear, and it is a question that should be answered beyond doubt.

When the questions surrounding the issue are examined, it is clear the state would be acting responsibly to deny the scouts' request for a permit. Camp Hardee is an endeavor that successfully teaches youth to enjoy natural resources. Logically, it would be beneficial if more kids were exposed to this healthy, educational recreation.

But when this benefit is considered in the context of dumping treated sewage in a river, it is highly questionable whether the end justifies the means.

Goats And Oats

A goat that beat out two computers and the National Weather Service while predicting snow for the Burlington school system has dealt high technology a heavy blow.

The goat deserves a round of applause. According to a news report, the creature, totally devoid of regional radar, full color precipitation scans, automated forecast capability and satellite tracking, accurately predicted snow three times this year. The goat didn't even have a thermometer or a wind vane.

Based on the goat's forecast, the superintendent there canceled school. Ice and snow promptly fell from the sky in gigantic proportions. The kids were safe at home; all was well.

The question that arises is, what implications does this barnyard approach to precipitation prediction have on the world of weather forecasting? Will the National Weather Service, instead of spending millions on sophisticated equipment that tells us almost too late that the skies will drop rain, snow sleet or produce dangerous lightning, spend hundreds instead on goats and oats?

Will TV broadcasters plant four-legged furry animals outside their stations to replace high technology instrumentation? Better yet, will they replace weather men and women with billies and nannies? That might make some people "maaaa-d" and weather forecasting could go from "baaaa-d" to worse.

On second thought, it might be an improvement.

Resiliency And Forgetfulness

'In recent years the country has demonstrated repeatedly that it can well withstand the trauma of a destroyed presidency. It can even emerge strengthened from the self-correcting process of political renewal.'

WASHINGTON — Howard Baker's reassuring White House debut, with his blend of disarming humor and easy sense of confident command, has produced a collective sigh of relief in Washington.

Thank heavens, political sages are murmuring, we can put this one behind us. No Watergate nightmare this time. No broken presidency again. The nation couldn't stand it, of course.

The exultation over Baker's assumption of control over the White House staff is understandable and right. To paraphrase Jack Valenti's famous remark about Lyndon B. Johnson, America can sleep better knowing that Howard Baker is in the White House instead of Donald T. Regan, Oliver L. North & Co. But the widely held notion that America is incapable of surviving another broken presidency is nonsense.

In recent years the country has demonstrated repeatedly that it can well withstand the trauma of a destroyed presidency. It can even emerge strengthened from the self-correcting process of political renewal. As one distinguished public servant of long service to other presidents commented after Baker's dramatic appointment was announced:

"All this 'let's-not-have-another-broken-presidency' business is rubbish. A broken president does not do damage to our country if that president has done irreparable harm to the United States. We might have to postpone some of the nation's business for awhile because of it, but the worst thing would be to preserve a discredited president through a whitewash or a perversion of standards of justice."

The real question is not that another Watergate-style presidential scandal would destroy the nation. It is: How was it possible for anyone who occupied the White House in the 1980s to forget the lessons of Watergate?

As the damning facts about the Iran-contra scandal have poured forth — and the continuing judicial and congressional investigations will show they are far from complete — the most striking aspect of this entire affair has been in its resemblance to the end-justifies-the-means mentality of Watergate.

At work in Ronald Reagan's second-term White House, as in Richard M. Nixon's, has been a contempt for the processes of government, an obsession with secrecy and political enemies, an arrogance about the exercise of power, an all-pervasive attitude of being above the law.

Those similarities have been almost eerily reinforced by the emergence in the Reagan White House crisis of some of the people who played a part in the Watergate period and its aftermath.

First, obviously, is Howard Baker, who came to prominence through his Watergate Committee role. Another is Brent Scowcroft of the Tower commission, who was Gerald R. Ford's national security adviser but previously served as Nixon's military assistant and Henry A. Kissinger's chief national security deputy in the Watergate years.

Scowcroft is among many in Washington who labored to ensure that White House lessons painfully learned during difficult presidencies would be passed on to succeeding ones. I remember interviewing him in the last days of the Ford administration. His West Wing White House desk was covered with stack upon stack of papers and he kept a scratch pad beside him. From time to time he jotted down another thought.

Another person, less known publicly, is James Cannon, who has been assisting Baker in the new Reagan White House transition.

In the Ford White House, Cannon held John D. Ehrlichman's job as head of the White House Domestic Council. As the Ford presidency was ending, I spoke to him in Ehrlichman's old upstairs White House office. He showed me what he described as a legacy from his predecessor. Cannon got up from his chair, walked across the room to a magnificent wooden cabinet, unlocked it, reached inside and drew out a bottle of Old Fitzgerald bourbon. Across the top was a silver label. It read: "Bottled Expressly for John Ehrlichman."

How To Succeed On Wall Street

I hate to go over to Morton's house because he's always yelling at his TV set.

This is what he was doing the other night when one of the Wall Street wise guys was being sentenced for making a killing on inside stock tips.

"Do you have anything to say before sentencing?" the judge asked the defendant.

"Tell him the devil made you do it," Morton yelled at the screen.

"Your honor," the defendant began, "I am ashamed of what I did. I should have never gotten involved with insider information."

"That's not what you're ashamed of," shouted Morton. "What you're sorry about is that you had to give back $6 million."

The defendant wiped a tear from his eye. "Most of all I am full of remorse because I brought disgrace on my parents and my friends who had no idea what I was doing."

"So why did you make your mother buy 1,000 shares of Shepherd's Pudding at 34 1/2?" Morton yelled.

"Morton," I begged, "let the man have his day in court."

"He deserves the gas chamber. Instead he'll get two months as the tennis pro at Allenwood."

The defendant said, "I have discovered that when you betray the people you work for and the country you love there is a lot of pain."

Morton yelled, "Tell us about it, dirty fingers."

I said, "He's just a child. Everyone makes mistakes."

"What was his mistake?" Morton asked.

"He had the same barber as Ivan Boesky. You must remember the stock market is a jungle — it's dog eat dog, and you can't blame a young man for wanting to make more money than Merrill Lynch Fenner and Smith. If this guy didn't feed inside information to Boesky somebody else would have. The traders have a saying on Wall Street, "If a man does something illegal and they put his picture on the front page of the New York Post he has suffered enough."

The defendant continued, "I ask all the people I have hurt to forgive me for what I've done. I'm going to devote the next 60 years of my life to giving poor people good stock tips."

"I don't believe him," Morton said. "I'll bet he's made a deal to rat on everyone in the World Trade Center."

"Morton, it's not for you to decide what a man should get for cheating in the stock market," I said. "The important thing is to make sure he will not do it again."

"How can you be sure he won't do it again?" he asked.

"Because of the rat factor. The guy turned in a lot of other guys including Boesky. Now Boesky is turning in others and they will rat on still others until every crooked person on Wall Street will be brought to the bar of justice and punished according to the law. This is what makes America great, the willingness for citizens to rat on each other after they're caught."

"I'm not greedy," said Morton. "If they hang him by his thumbs I'll be satisfied."

When we turned back to the set the judge was reading to the defendant, "You are a disgrace to your profession, your loved ones and the Dow Jones averages. I have spoken to the attorney general and I concur with the plea bargain he worked out with your lawyer."

"For stealing $60 million and endangering the entire financial system of the United States, I sentence you to 10 days in traffic school, with three days off for good behavior."

Strength For Today

Often we hear it said that the fullness of life depends upon the amount of experience we have. There are some people who even go so far as to say that it does not make any difference whether the experiences are good or bad, moral or immoral. The experiences themselves bring about growth and maturity.

Actually it is not experience which make us wise but the capacity to learn from it. Some of the greatest writers and philosophers were men who could learn vicariously from the experience of others. Some of these men never traveled more than 50 miles from their homes.

Most of us in the everyday course of our lives go through experiences with much learning potential. Our task is to profit from these.

Legislature Rushes 'Distasteful' Prison Bill

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Threatened with loss of control over the state prison system, the General Assembly took barely 24 hours to introduce, debate and enact an emergency construction bill that even the sponsors called distasteful. "I don't like it," Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said Thursday. "But we have no choice."

The Senate Appropriations Committee unanimously endorsed the package Thursday morning. Hours later, it won 44-2 approval in the Senate and passed the House 101-0.

The bill authorizes an emergency building program designed to add 2,200 beds to the crowded system by replacing one prison and expanding 21 existing facilities across the state.

It also exempts the emergency projects from normal bidding procedures and other quality-control statutes, which supporters said would allow completion of the program within 18 months.

Enactment of the measure came one day after its introduction and followed weeks of frantic negotiations between the Martin administration and legislative leaders amid warnings by the Attorney General's Office that the federal courts were poised to seize control of the prison system.

If that happens, the courts would set a ceiling on the inmate population and order the Legislature to spend whatever is necessary to meet it — which could cost hundreds of millions of dollars, Plyler said.

Also, the courts would appoint a "special master" to administer the prison system and possibly order the release of many inmates, according to Skip Capone, special deputy attorney general.

In other states where the federal government has intervened, "they've had no choice but to turn prisoners out en masse and build, build, build," Capone said in an interview.

North Carolina officials hope to relieve the crowding problem in the long run through a combination of construction and alternative sentencing programs such as intensive probation. They hope the emergency action will buy time for those programs to work.

The federal threat results from several lawsuits filed on behalf of inmates that claim the prison system is so packed, it violates their constitutional rights.

The suits are aimed primarily at triple bunking, a condition the state has eliminated in the South Piedmont region under a federal court order. Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the construction program would solve the problems mentioned in the suits.

But Sen. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus, warned there was no guarantee that the bill would satisfy the courts.

"Our position in court will be that we have a good-faith effort" to reduce crowding, Johnson said. "Basically we're going into court with our hat in our hand" to plead for leniency.

A pre-trial hearing is scheduled for April 23 in U.S. District Court in Raleigh on one suit, which covers 48 prison units statewide. Another suit, which targets aging Craggy Prison in Buncombe County, is scheduled for trial April 20 in U.S. District Court in Asheville.

One of the items in the emergency bill is replacement of Craggy Prison with a 300-bed unit.

The bill also:
— Funds construction of 32 residential units, each containing 50 beds, at 15 minimum-custody facilities across the state.

— Funds construction of six 100-bed dormitories in five counties, including two at the N.C. Correctional Facility for Women in Wake County.

— Pays for renovations at other units across the state units statewide.

— Hires an outside professional to oversee the emergency building program. The consultant would report to Budget Director C.C. Cameron, one of Gov. Jim Martin's most trusted aides, whose office is taking charge of the construction program.

— Creates 24 new positions in the Department of Correction to handle an expected load of parole candidates if another emergency bill is passed. That measure would put a ceiling of 18,000 on the prison population and make additional inmates eligible for parole whenever the population reaches 97 percent of that number.

— Temporarily suspend "red-tape" statutes that subject state construction projects to a lengthy bidding process and studies to determine their impact on the environment and their energy efficiency.

The latter provision drew the only vocal opposition in committee and floor debate.

Sen. J.K. Sherron, D-Wake, who was state property officer in the Hunt administration, protested suspension of the bidding laws.

"What you're doing is circumventing all the laws and statutes that this Legislature ... has established to try to protect the best interest of the taxpayers," Sherron said.

Plyler said without the provision, it could take five years instead of 18 months to complete the emergency projects.

Democrats in both chambers blamed Martin's Correction Department for letting the situation reach the critical stage.

House Committee Backs Proposal For King Holiday

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill to establish a paid state holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. won House committee approval despite one member's concerns that it might force the state Personnel Commission into a tough decision over which current holiday to replace.

Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, sponsor of the bill and chairman of the Judiciary II Committee, said the bill limits the number of paid holidays to 11 — the total observed last year — in part to silence critics who have said a King holiday would cost the state money. But Rep. Walt Windley, R-

Gaston, who cast the lone vote against the bill, wondered which holiday would be eliminated and suggested not all North Carolinians would like to honor the slain civil rights leader.

Last year, North Carolina workers were given the day off for New Year's Day, Easter Monday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day and Veterans' Day. There were two holidays for Thanksgiving and three for Christmas.

Blue said the commission could drop one of the Christmas or Thanksgiving holidays or perhaps Easter

Monday, which he said is unpopular with banks because many other states don't observe it as a paid holiday.

Blue, who is black, said it would be particularly appropriate to enact his bill this year, the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

It would "bring North Carolina ... to the point that we commemorate and celebrate, if you will, the struggle in this country since 1787 to make the basic fundamental documents that govern our lives in this country really apply to all citizens," he said.

Candidate Seeks Support Among N.C. Legislators

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic presidential hopeful Richard Gephardt says his lack of nationwide name recognition will be a major stumbling block only if he fares poorly in Iowa and New Hampshire.

"Everybody other than (former Senator) Gary Hart is an unknown or a long shot," Gephardt said during a campaign visit to North Carolina Thursday. "The history of our political process ... is that unknowns can do quite well."

Gephardt, a Democratic congressman from Missouri who announced his presidential candidacy last week, visited the General Assembly at the invitation of an old friend, state Sen. Marc Basnight, D-Dare.

The six-term congressman lunched privately with Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and legislative leaders, delivered a speech in the Legislative Building auditorium, and mingled in the halls with lawmakers, lobbyists and other passersby.

Thursday night, he was guest of honor at a reception at an exclusive fishing club near Raleigh.

"I have a very good feeling about this state," Gephardt said in a meeting with reporters. He owns a vacation home in the Outer Banks village of Duck and has made several political trips to North Carolina in recent years.

He said he considered it essential to do well in North Carolina and the other Southern states that are having their presidential primaries on "Super Tuesday" in March 1988.

Despite his confidence he can garner significant support in the South, Gephardt said he needs to finish first or second in the crucial Iowa caucus and the New Hampshire primary to have a realistic hope of capturing the nomination.

The reason, he said, is that winners in those early races are flooded with national media attention that convinces many voters it is useless to support anyone else.

"The people of the South don't want to throw away their votes on people they think don't have a chance," he said. Without the perception of momentum, "the people in the South won't know who you are."

Gephardt put balancing the federal budget and arms control atop his agenda, along with restoring the nation's confidence in its government and helping the ailing farm economy.

If elected, he said, he would bring to the presidency "the ability to come up with ideas and make them happen. That's leadership."

He said he was a longtime supporter of the federal tobacco program, especially since it was adjusted to become self supporting.

Acknowledging that critics say it encourages smoking, he said, "It does nothing of the kind. It encourages an orderly market for tobacco. ... We're going to have tobacco and tobacco products in America and it's just a matter of where it's grown."

Gephardt echoed other Democratic leaders in praising President Reagan's speech on the Iran crisis, but saying it would take much more to restore his credibility and breathe new life into his presidency.

"Nobody wants the country adrift," Gephardt said. "The speech helped him get back on track. ... A speech, however, alone is not going to turn that around. He's got to follow up the speech with actions."

State Elections Board Issues Report Critical Of Guilford

RALEIGH (AP) — A report on the Guilford County elections board office by the State Board of Elections says the office lacks adequate leadership, organization and proper participation by local election board members.

The report was released Thursday during a special joint meeting of the county and state boards.

The meeting was prompted by election problems in Guilford County uncovered last December during hearings on Democrat Robin Britt's request for a recount in his 79-vote loss to Republican incumbent Howard Coble in the 6th Congressional District race last fall.

"The critical absence was in the person of a very strong administrator," said Alex Brock, the state board's executive director.

The four-page report, prepared by Deputy Director of Elections Yvonne G. G. listed weaknesses in the county board's organization, procedures and handling of absentee voter applications and ballots.

"Absentee voting procedures were structured and operative but incomplete as required by law and detailed by the state board," the report said. "The audit trail necessary for a recount or election protest was not in place."

Names and addresses and dates required on the register of absentee ballots were missing.

"It should be noted," the report said, "the staff is now fully aware of these deficiencies."

The report and Brock were especially critical of the operation of the High Point elections office.

"Careful thought ought to be given to prospects of combining the High Point and Greensboro offices, or set up more structured guidelines to what the High Point office is set up to do," Brock said.

"I realized High Point, with its own personality, feels qualified to have its own office," Brock said. "If an office is needed, then it ought to be limited, and when questions arise they should be directed to Greensboro."

Kay Gerrald, supervisor of the Guilford elections board, declined to discuss Brock's remarks, but she acknowledged that "things could run a little bit smoother if we ran out of one roof."

But, she added, "I don't see how we possibly can because we're the only county out of the 100 counties in the state that has two major municipalities. That does have to be taken into consideration."

Ms. Gerrald said several measures are being studied to make the operations more efficient, but she declined to elaborate.

Richard Conner, county board chairman, outlined several changes and recommendations the board is making to improve and avoid the problems that plagued the 1986 elections.

He said the board will be preparing a procedures manual and changing operations to comply with all state laws. It also is seeking more modern voting equipment.

Conner said the county board will send a written report on progress in correcting the problems.

Coastal Management Division Reorganizes Staff Roles

RALEIGH (AP) — State officials say the Division of Coastal Management will be reorganized to give more authority to regional offices and speed up permit processing, but one critic says the move amounts to a "decapitation and dismemberment" of the division.

Under the reorganization announced Thursday by S. Thomas Rhodes, secretary of state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, the 40-employee division will lose responsibility for the estuarine sanctuaries program, which manages 12,000 acres of marshland where fish breed. The program and its one staff member will be shifted to NRCD's Division of Parks and Recreation.

The division also will decentralize its land-use planning and beach access programs, doing away with Raleigh-based coordinators. Responsibility for those programs will go to beefed-up district offices in Wilmington, Morehead City, Elizabeth City and Washington, N.C.

The submerged lands division, which is processing 10,000 claims to coastal wetlands, will be transferred to the Division of Marine Fisheries. Surveying responsibilities will be moved to the Division of Land Resources.

"What we're trying to do is provide a better service to the people out there," Rhodes said. "I think when somebody puts in a permit (application) ... they have the right to get an answer to that as quickly as they possibly can."

"The bulk of the management (now) is with the office in Raleigh," Rhodes said. "What this does is put the front-line strength out in the field."

"I'm so angry I'm not thinking very straight," said environmental lobbyist Bill Holmann, who called the reorganization a "decapitation." "I'm concerned about anything that is hatched without any input,"

Holman said. "I think it would've been a courtesy to ask those involved before a major reorganization of the division is proposed."

"I'm wondering if they asked anybody in local governments. What do developers think of this? What do environmental groups think of this?"

Rhodes said he initiated the reorganization based on a study by Lynn Muchmore, assistant secretary for natural resources.

"It is final and will go into effect April 1," Rhodes said. "The governor knows of this. He approved of it."

Dan Besse, chairman of the state Coastal Resources Commission, attended the briefing and said he thought the changes could improve the division's performance. "It can work better," Besse said. "It will depend on the personnel and it will depend on the implementation."

Another CRC member was not optimistic. Karen Gottovi of New Hanover County criticized the reorganization generally as "short-sighted" and the shifting of the estuarine sanctuaries program as "a serious error."

"These are not parks," she said. "The purpose of an estuarine sanctuary is to do research and to have a thorough, careful management program."

Required Language Dropped

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Education has changed part of the standard curriculum that all public schools will be required to teach by 1993 so that students in middle grades will no longer be required to take foreign language courses.

Students in grades kindergarten through 5 will still have to study a second language, and schools will have to make second-language courses available to students in grades 6 through 12.

But mandatory foreign language courses for students in grades 6 through 8 was killed Thursday. Beginning in the sixth grade, students will be able to choose whether or not to continue that study.

Currently, public school systems in the state generally offer foreign language programs only at the high school level, if at all.

Charles H. Rivers, the director of the state Department of Public Instruction's Division of Communication Skills, said that state school officials had wrestled for two years over whether foreign language study should be available or required at the various levels.

He said the staff concluded that making the classes available for the middle and upper grades is enough — and that making them mandatory at those levels could have been impossible anyway, because of a shortage of trained teachers.

In other business, the state board also directed its personnel committee to take a list of grievances to a meeting with a group from the University of North Carolina's Board of Governors.

The grievances are over a report on the preparation of teachers, prepared by a task force appointed by the Board of Governors.

On Wednesday, the personnel committee approved a report by the Department of Public Instruction that severely criticizes several of the task force's recommendations.

The report says that the recommendation to raise standards for students who want to become teachers and for teacher training programs would doom teacher training programs at several colleges and universities — especially at the state's predominantly black schools.

The state board also voted to approve a move by the Department of Public Instruction to phase out the hiring of 16-year-old bus drivers in the state. A survey showed that only 364 — or 3 percent — of the state's 13,000 bus drivers were 16 last year.

Union Bid Rejected

GASTONIA (AP) — Union organizers at Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.'s Gastonia tire cord mill say the announcement of three other plant closings Tuesday helped sway workers to vote against unionizing the plant.

"We were hoping we could overcome that," said Mike Black of the North Carolina AFL-CIO after the plant's hourly workers voted 266-159 against forming a union Thursday. "Obviously, we didn't."

Firestone announced Tuesday it would close three tire plants by Sept. 15, eliminating the jobs of 3,000 workers and threatening 200 jobs at Gastonia.

The vote set workers upset about wage cuts and working conditions against those who praised Firestone as a benevolent employer that offers pay and benefits better than other Gaston County mills.

More than a third of the mill's 450 hourly employees last fall signed a petition asking for the election after the company increased production demands that determine wages. Some said they lost more than $50 a week as a result.

Piedmont Chairman Says Options Being Considered

By The Associated Press
Piedmont Aviation Chairman William Howard says the Winston-Salem-based airline is considering several options in the wake of a bid by Trans World Airlines to buy USAir Group, which has been negotiating to buy Piedmont.

USAir's $1.65 billion takeover proposal among several other options. Norfolk Southern Corp. also has offered more than $1 billion for Piedmont, but has not been heard from since USAir made its last offer.

USAir Thursday rejected a $1.6 billion cash takeover bid from TWA Chairman Carl Icahn and accused him of attempting to sabotage its plans to buy Piedmont Aviation.

Piedmont's directors met Wednesday afternoon to review offers for acquisition from USAir and Norfolk Southern Corp. But 30 minutes after they began their telephone conference, TWA announced its bid and threw Piedmont's discussions into confusion.

USAir, in rejecting the TWA proposal Thursday, said it "is nothing more than an attempt by Carl Icahn to disrupt at the eleventh hour USAir Group's acquisition of Piedmont, a transaction which the USAir Group board views as most beneficial to USAir Group's shareholders, employees and passengers and which Mr. Icahn obviously regards as contrary to his own personal interests."

RJR Layoffs

GREENSBORO (AP) — RJR Nabisco has told about 280 employees they will be laid off between now and this fall, increasing the number of dismissals to about 467 since RJR began streamlining its operations last fall.

The tobacco and food company, releasing for the first time Thursday specific numbers on terminations and transfers, also said it has asked about 160 RJR corporate staffers to move to Atlanta when the company transfers its headquarters from Winston-Salem this fall.

RJR said it expects to move about 400 corporate and 1,150 RJR Archer employees to its domestic cigarette unit, which will remain based in downtown Winston-Salem.

That will leave RJR's Winston-Salem employment at more than 15,000, said RJR spokeswoman Maura Payne.

Convicted

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — A woman who testified that her husband had severely abused her for 20 years has been sentenced to six years in prison in connection with his shooting death.

Judy Norman, 40, sobbed Thursday when she heard the sentence from Superior Court Judge John Gardner. Her daughter, Phyliss, had to be helped from the Rutherford County courtroom.

Mrs. Norman, who admitted shooting her sleeping husband in 1985 after three intense days of abuse, was convicted Tuesday of voluntary manslaughter. She faced a maximum sentence of 20 years.

"I was concerned from Day One about the example that would be set in this case," District Attorney Alan Leonard said after Thursday's hour-long hearing. "If Mrs. Norman didn't get some active sentence, that would in effect give the court's approval to an intentional homicide."

Mrs. Norman was originally charged with first-degree murder.

AIDS Drug

RALEIGH (AP) — Burroughs Wellcome Co., whose experimental AIDS drug was approved for sale in Britain Wednesday, could get the nod from federal regulators at any time, company officials said.

"I can't really be too specific about that ... we are waiting to hear from the FDA (Food and Drug Administration)," said Kathy S. Bartlett, a spokesman for Burroughs Wellcome, which is based in Research Triangle Park.

An FDA spokesman in Washington declined comment. An FDA advisory panel recommended in January that the drug be approved and the matter is still pending.

Chemicals

RALEIGH (AP) — State environmental officials said Thursday that Onslow County developer Marlow F. Bostic has 30 days to dispose of a highly toxic chemical discovered by firefighters at a warehouse owned by Bostic.

Bostic said he would cooperate. The chemical, called 2,4-dinitrophenol, was ordered removed after federal environmental officials told their state counterparts the substance had been banned last year for use as a wood preservative, said Richard L. Gay, a specialist with the state Solid and Hazardous Waste Branch.

"It's extremely toxic, it can be absorbed through the skin," Gay said. "Inhalation of the dust can be fatal. It's going to have to go to proper disposal."

Volunteer firefighters found about 100 barrels of the chemical at the warehouse near Holly Ridge in southern Onslow County.

Shooting Probe

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — Sampson County Sheriff Cranford Fann said an investigation in the shooting death of a Sampson County man, his wife and his mother-in-law was complete except for a few interviews to complete the case file.

Dr. Carl Barr, county medical examiner, on Thursday ruled the deaths of Walter DeLozier of Route 1, Godwin, his wife and her mother, were the results of murder and suicide.

Barr said no autopsy would be required on the body of DeLozier since suicide had been determined as the cause of his death and there could be no defendant to charge with the slaying.

The bodies of DeLozier, 52, his wife, Mary, 44, and her mother, Mary Donaldson, 67, of Fort Washington, Md., were found by a friend about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the kitchen of the DeLozier home.

Talks Continue On Medium Range Missiles

By BRENDA WATSON
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA (AP) — The seventh round of U.S.-Soviet arms talks formally ends today, but negotiations on medium-range nuclear missiles are continuing indefinitely with both sides expressing optimism about reaching an accord.

The official end of the round was expected to be low-key compared with previous rounds, due to the departure Thursday of the top three U.S. negotiators to brief North Atlantic Treaty Organization officials.

The negotiators, Max Kampelman, who heads the overall U.S. delegation and the delegation on space and defense systems, Maynard Glitman, head of medium-range talks, and Ronald Lehman, in charge of long-range missile talks, then headed to Washington for consultations.

In previous rounds during the 2-year-old talks, Kampelman has delivered a closing statement to reporters on the final day and sometimes answered questions.

In Brussels on Thursday, Kampelman gave Washington's NATO allies an upbeat assessment of prospects for agreement to scrap medium-range missiles from Europe, sources said.

But he said there are still important obstacles to a formal accord, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said Thursday that his government's initial reaction to a U.S. draft treaty on eliminating medium-range missiles from Europe was "very positive."

He said the Soviets wanted an agreement as soon as possible, but said that drafting treaty language has proven in the past to be "interminable."

While the three chief U.S. negotiators were absent from Geneva, their aides continued negotiations with the Soviets, U.S. spokesman Terry Schroeder said. He declined to say which groups met Thursday, or which groups were scheduled to meet today.

Glitman said he would return to Geneva early next week to continue talks on medium-range missiles with the Soviets. The two other negotiating groups, on long-range weapons and space and defense systems, were due to recess today.

The eighth round is scheduled to begin April 23.

The talks on medium-range missiles were given a boost this week when both sides made formal proposals for eliminating such missiles from Europe. Their proposals embodied some agreements reached in October at the superpower summit in Reykjavik, Iceland.

Formal agreement was prevented at that meeting when the Soviets insisted that accords be reached simultaneously on all subjects, including the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, or "Star Wars," a program studying the possibility of a space-based missile-defense system.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Saturday announced that the Soviets were dropping that requirement, freeing the way for a possible accord on medium-range missiles.

On Wednesday, the U.S. team formally presented a draft treaty calling for elimination of U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise missiles and Soviet SS-20s from Europe.

There are 316 U.S. and 243 Soviet medium-range missiles in Europe, and NATO says the Soviets have about another 200 in the Asian sector that can be transported rapidly to Europe.

The U.S. draft includes a provision that each side be able to maintain 100 medium-range warheads on its own territory, with the Soviet missiles in Asia.

It also contains language on Soviet shorter-range systems capable of striking Western Europe and on anti-cheating, or verification, provisions, but details have not been released. These are said to be two questions that may prove difficult in the negotiations.

'One-Woman' Man Labeled Bigamist

SEATTLE (AP) — For seven years, John Charles Lutter's wife believed she was the only woman in her husband's life.

She said that was before she learned he may have been married to as many six other women and fathered 16 children in several states.

The Seattle-area woman, who does not want her identity disclosed, has filed for divorce. Police are looking for Lutter, a former flight engineer for United Airlines, after King County prosecutors filed one bigamy charge against him in September.

"He was a religious man, and he also told me he was a one-woman man; the other women said he told them that, too," said the woman, who had a baby by Lutter.

The woman said she learned Lutter, 45, may also have been married to women in places including Florida, California and Colorado. Some of the marriages may have been by common law, police said.

Lutter's whereabouts are unknown, though his attorney, John Etienne in San Mateo, Calif., said Thursday that Lutter has been in contact with him periodically.

"I don't think the man is fleeing," Etienne said in a telephone interview. "The last time in this office ... he appeared willing to get the mess squared away."

The women still love Lutter, he said, and "I was hoping this whole thing could be settled with the women. ... I'm even hoping I can even salvage his job with United Airlines."

Etienne, who said he also represents Lutter's wife in Sacramento, said Lutter married her in 1966.

"It seems like a hell of a psychological problem," Etienne said of Lutter's attraction to several women. "What was going on is a strange situation where he may have thought he wasn't married. ... He said he thought he was divorced, or not legally married."

United Airlines spokesman Joe Hopkins of Chicago declined to comment on Lutter. He said only that Lutter started working for United in 1965, and was a flight engineer of Boeing 727 aircraft when he left the company on July 1, 1966.

The census of wives, relationships and children is imprecise, but the investigation so far suggests that between 1966 and 1966 Lutter was united, either by marriage or common law, to at least six women and produced 12 children, according to King County officials.

That doesn't include one marriage that, if records are accurate, began when he was a teen-ager in 1957 and ended, four children later, in a 1966 divorce.

The case has been difficult because marriage and divorce records are filed by county, said King County Police spokesman Dick Larson.

The bigamy charge carries a penalty of up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Lutter dropped out of sight last July and was reported as a missing person, apparently by some of his wives, King County authorities say. He was located in Hillsborough County, Florida, Sept. 23 at the home of one of the wives, then showed up a few days later in Seattle. He then vanished.

"On the one hand, all of us basically still love him," the Seattle woman said. "All I will keep are the good memories. On the other hand, he used all of us. There are times I think of how he's lost a good job, he's lost all of the women he thought he loved and all of his children."

She said she would rather avoid the media attention her story has attracted and does not want to contribute to his capture by authorities.

TREATED — Rudolf Hess, former deputy to Nazi leader Adolf Hitler, smiles during his Nuremberg war crimes trial in 1945. Hess, now 92 and the last imprisoned top-ranking Nazi leader, is being treated at a British hospital for pneumonia. (AP Laserphoto)

Hess Hospitalized With Pneumonia

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, the last imprisoned Nazi leader, is in a British military hospital and a family lawyer said today the 92-year former Hitler deputy has pneumonia.

Hess was taken from West Berlin's Spandau prison early Sunday to the nearby hospital, said Anderson Purdon, a spokesman of the British diplomatic mission.

"He's simply in for observation. He was taken there simply because he said he wasn't feeling well," Purdon told The Associated Press.

But Alfred Seidl, the Hess family lawyer, told the AP in a telephone interview from Munich that Hess has pneumonia. He would not say whether Hess had viral or bacterial pneumonia or provide other details.

Purdon responded to Seidl by saying: "We are not allowed to say anything about his condition."

A U.S. Army doctor in Heidelberg, talking generally about the effects of pneumonia, said it is "potentially life-threatening for the elderly."

"If someone is 90, we take it far more seriously than if he is 50 or even 70," said Dr. George Brown of the 7th Medical Command.

Purdon said the prisoner's family had been notified. However, Hess' daughter-in-law, Andrea, said the family had to call British authorities in Berlin today to find out about Hess' condition.

"As usual, we had to call Berlin to find out that he'd been taken to the hospital. We have no way of saying how serious the condition is," Mrs. Hess said.

The mass-circulation Bild newspaper said Hess has occasionally been comatose and has been acting mentally unstable. The newspaper also said Hess was nearly blind and was receiving heart and blood pressure medication.

Since 1966, Hess has been the only prisoner at Spandau prison which is administered jointly by the Allies — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

The United States, Britain and France repeatedly have called for Hess' release on humanitarian grounds, but the Soviets have refused.

The four Allies take monthly turns guarding the prison, and it was the Soviets' turn when Hess was taken to the hospital.

House OKs Bill To Aid Homeless

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, after rejecting several Republican efforts to dilute the effectiveness of a bill to help the nation's homeless, passed and sent the $500 million measure to the Senate.

On a vote of 264-121 Thursday evening, the House approved the emergency bill which was introduced by the House Democratic leadership and opposed by the Reagan administration as too costly.

The legislation would provide food, shelter and rent subsidies through several programs. It was supported by demonstrators including actor Martin Sheen, who along with several members of Congress slept in Washington streets with the city's vagrants early Wednesday.

In one of the closest votes on several proposed amendments, the House voted 207-203 to kill a provision by Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois which would have prohibited any new money from being appropriated for programs covered by the legislation. Instead, Michel's proposal would have taken money from other programs.

"In the United States of America, it is intolerable that human beings should sleep outside in the cold," Michel said. "And it is equally intolerable that, in any weather, the streets of America's cities should be used for sleeping."

Michel said the cities must remove the people from the streets as soon as possible. Estimates of the number of homeless in the nation range from the hundreds of thousands to the millions.

"There is absolutely no excuse for a mayor of any city to allow human beings to sleep in the cold on the streets," he said. "The basic minimum we should demand is that local officials save individual human beings from their immediate dilemma."

But the GOP leader said if the House believes there ought to be aid to the homeless, "then let's not exacerbate the fiscal ill by making it new money. We should transfer the funds from existing accounts."

A similar bill by Rep. Robert S. Walker, R-Pa., also failed on a vote of 230-154.

The House also rejected 292-101 an amendment by Rep. William E. Dannemeyer, R-Calif., to prohibit anyone from receiving help under the emergency programs until they are tested for the AIDS virus.

In another vote, the House rejected 202-183 an amendment by Tom DeLay, R-Texas, which would have required that any organization receiving money under the bill be required to open its books for an Internal Revenue Service audit.

DeLay said the amendment was aimed at Mitch Snyder, who led some of the demonstrations by the homeless and runs a shelter near the Capitol. DeLay said Snyder already had received $5 million to rehabilitate the shelter run by his Community for Creative Non-Violence but has refused to undergo an audit to determine where the money has gone.

The bill would authorize $100 million for renovation of underused public buildings, $70 million for charitable programs, $30 million for transitional housing such as group homes, $100 million for emergency shelters, $100 million for rental subsidy "certificates" under the federal government's low-income housing program and $100 million for emergency outpatient health care.

Democrats would have to seek a supplemental appropriation to fund the programs if the Senate passes the measure and President Reagan signs it into law.

In a statement of Reagan administration policy, the Office of Management and Budget said the bill "establishes costly and duplicative new programs in a time of fiscal problems."

Hostage-Taker Gives Up After 30 Hours

NEW YORK (AP) — A parolee who authorities believe was high on cocaine surrendered his gun, freed the family he had held captive for nearly 30 hours and turned himself over to police, authorities said.

About 9:15 p.m. Thursday, Ismael "John" Igartua, 25, peacefully left the East Harlem apartment building where the drama had unfolded. Police rushed Igartua away, his head covered by a blanket, his hands cuffed and his girlfriend and lawyer at his side.

During the standoff, Igartua fired at least 27 shots, police said. Police fired no shots, instead relying on negotiators maintaining continuous contact with Igartua and wearing him down.

Several times during the standoff the gunman seemed to threaten the hostages and at one point he held a child at gunpoint at a window. He also had repeatedly demanded baking soda, an ingredient needed to make the potent cocaine derivative crack, but police refused.

The incident "began with a drug deal gone bad," said Chief of Department Robert J. Johnston Jr.

He said investigators believe that "Igartua was here to rip off an alleged drug dealer." Police declined to say what connection, if any, Igartua had with the family, or otherwise to elaborate on a motive for the incident.

Police said they believed Igartua used drugs during the siege.

"We heard what sounded like snorting (of cocaine), but can't say for sure," Johnston said.

Igartua, of Queens, was examined at a hospital and then taken to central booking, said police spokesman Officer Peter O'Donnell. As of early today he had yet to be charged, police said.

Hostages Rafael Altreche, 35; his wife, Angelita Alejandre, 34; their 4-year-old daughter Tiffany Altreche; and the woman's 19-year-old son Jose Rosado were released minutes before Igartua was taken into custody, said Officer James Coleman.

Detective James Conaboy, one of the negotiators, said Ms. Alejandre had hidden under a bed in the three-bedroom apartment and emerged shortly before the family was freed.

Mormon Influx Outruns Capacity

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Championing old-fashioned virtues, Mormons are expanding worldwide, their image of decorum sometimes drawing newcomers — blacks now as well as whites — faster than they can be accommodated.

This is particularly the case in its new mission fields in black Africa, say officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

There and elsewhere, the exceptional growth rate of the American-founded movement is seen as pointing toward its becoming a major, genuinely international religious body, rivaling older churches.

Sociologist Rodney Stark says it shows all the signs of "the rise of a new world religion," an event of a kind that has happened only rarely in history.

On the basis of statistical projections, he says, "the Mormons will soon achieve a worldwide following comparable to that of Islam, Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism and the other dominant world faiths."

Now 6.2 million strong — 4 million in the United States and 2.2 million abroad — the total has risen about 69 percent overall in 10 years, 43 percent in this country, but 145 percent overseas.

Estimates are that by around the turn of the century, membership abroad will exceed that in the United States.

"We're not just a Utah church, that's for sure," says Beverly Campbell, the church's Washington, D.C., communications director, referring to headquarters in Salt Lake City.

In some third-world areas, particularly in African countries where new missions began after the church in 1978 opened its priesthood to blacks, leaders can't be trained fast enough to accept all those seeking membership.

"It's an enormous challenge," Ms. Campbell said in an interview. "Literally whole villages are waiting to be baptized."

Citing mission work in Nigeria and Ghana, she said the strategy is to build up capabilities of church units without overtaxing them, accepting additional members only as they can be responsibly served.

The idea is "to grow from centers of strength," she says. "We are wisely limiting growth in order not to outgrow the leadership base and thus founder."

Missionaries serve temporarily as "shadow leadership," providing initial guidance for local leaders, she said. "But the church has to be their own. They don't want an American church."

"We have to go slowly and see that districts are well funded, that leadership is strong and they can stand on their own."

In many other developing areas, such as Mexico and Central America, she said local branches already have developed competent local personnel, able to train others and expand.

"But there is so much growth," she said, elaborating on its problems.

Providing for it involves developing elaborate organizational life and programs for young and old — a distinguishing mark of the church — with youth groups, sports, drama, socials, women's auxiliaries and relief services.

"It's often in simplified form, but these programs are necessary" for fully functioning branches, Miss Campbell said.

The church's huge missionary program, in which college-age members serve for 18 months, keeps about 30,000 of them steadily in the field, more any other U.S. denomination.

Facts About The

BIBLE

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Genesis intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

A BRIDE FOR ISAAC

AS ABRAHAM NEARS THE END OF A LONG, HAPPY, AND PROSPEROUS LIFE, IT IS EVIDENT THAT GOD HAS INDEED BEEN GOOD TO HIM.

HIS TENTS ARE NUMEROUS AND WELL-STOCKED WITH ALL THE PROVISIONS NECESSARY FOR A COMFORTABLE LIFE AND WHEREVER THE EYE CAN SEE, HIS FLOCKS ARE GRAZING, FAT, AND STRONG....

...BUT IN THESE, HIS DECLINING YEARS, ONE THING STILL WORRIES THE OLD PATRIARCH, SO...

...NOW HE SENDS FOR HIS FAITHFUL STEWARD, ELIEZER, HIS MOST TRUSTED SERVANT...

MY FATHER ABRAHAM, WHAT DO YOU DESIRE OF YOUR SERVANT?

ENTER, AND WELL MUST YOU LISTEN TO ME, O ELIEZER!

BEHOLD MY BELOVED SON ISAAC—AND HE HAS NO WIFE!

Author Already Changed Textbook

WILMINGTON (AP) — A Wilmington teacher who wrote a home economics textbook banned by a federal judge in Alabama says she is a Christian, not a secular humanist, and has already changed references to "values" in a revised edition of the book.

Frances Baynor Parnell, who teaches at Hoggard High School, wrote "Homemaking Skills for Everyday Living," one of 45 books that U.S. District Judge William Brevard Hand ruled Wednesday should be removed from Alabama public schools.

The ruling said the books promoted "secular humanism" and neglected the role of traditional religion in American history.

"When it was picked up and interpreted in that light, it came as a surprise," Mrs. Parnell told The Morning Star in Wilmington Thursday.

"I guess I'm rather surprised, because the book was not written to project religion," she said. "I am a Christian."

In an appendix to his ruling, Hand listed as objectionable this passage from "Homemaking Skills for Everyday Living":

"The values you have were not given to you at birth. You have developed them on your own. All of the experiences you have had throughout your life have contributed to your set of values. Your future experiences will also affect your values. Some of your values will become less important. Your set of values will never be finalized. Your values change as you change."

"The best defense against drug abuse is to develop the ability to make good decisions. If you investigate all available information and follow the five steps in problem solving, you have a better chance to make good decisions."

Mrs. Parnell said the references to "values" will be changed in an upcoming revision.

"That word is offensive to some people," Mrs. Parnell said. "I have completed revisions for the new edition. In the new edition, we will say 'priorities' instead of 'values.'"

Mrs. Parnell uses the book as a supplemental text in her classes. It is on a list of books approved for use as supplemental texts in North Carolina public school systems.

Three other home economics books and three history books approved for use in North Carolina are also on the list of texts challenged in the Alabama case.

URBAN COMPANION — A parakeet is but one of the answers 13-year-old Heather Knight of Greenville has come up with to beat the limitations imposed on pet keeping by city living. Her parakeet, like her hermit crabs, takes little space, is fun to watch and is easy to keep. Not so easy to manage, however, are her four chickens and Shetland sheep dog. She must keep her chickens caged and her dog leashed to comply with city animal control laws. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

Trendy Cats Move Into Star Pet Status

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Dog may be man's best friend, but in today's world of condos, cars and terrace-sized back yards there's little room for wagging tails and trusting brown eyes.

Instead, the realities of town life have elevated the cat to star status.

Witness the trend in television. Not so long ago, afternoon TV was punctuated with the likes of Lorne Greene, whose voice boomed out from the reaches of the western past to proclaim the merits of Alpo dog food.

Greene's smiling retrievers aren't so happy now.

The big screen fields they once gamboled across have been replaced by kitchen floors and cats — dancing, singing and thinking cats. Cats who have purred, rubbed, scratched and sassed their way into the homes and hearts of a good many city dwellers, Greenville residents included.

Why? Cats are trendy, cats are convenient. That's part of the explanation Greg Thompson gives.

A doctor of veterinary medicine, the Greenville vet is one of nine now serving the Pitt County animal community. And he, like the others that specialize in small animals, reports that the feline population is on the climb.

"I don't think there's any doubt about it that we're seeing more and more cats. They're plain old easier to take care of, they're less of a responsibility and they don't create as much of a housing problem for apartment and condominium dwellers," he said.

Roy Byrum of Overton's grocery also attributes the city's burgeoning cat community to a preponderance of condos and apartments. He added, however, that East Carolina University students have a lot to do with it, too.

Located in the heart of the Tar River neighborhood, Overton's serves a good many of the students living in off-campus housing — students, whom Byrum said appear to view cat-keeping as the easiest way to create that little bit of home away from home.

Byrum bases his observations on the popularity of cats and pets in general on sales figures. As grocery manager for the Greenville store, Byrum said he's watched buyers of dog and cat food for upward of 13 years. In that time, he said he's seen the number of consumers increase about 10 percent a year.

New products serve as barometers of pet preference as well, he said.

"Years ago Friskies Buffet offered only five flavors, now they have 25 to 30. And the others, well, they're always changing ... moister, lighter, heavier and meatier, the list is endless," he said.

As with cats, convenience plays a role in growing favor for bunnies, birds, gerbils, hamsters and reptiles.

According to John Cook of Animal House, a Greenville pet store, the age of the traditional penthouse pet — be it poodle or chihuahua — is past. And that trend, he said, is reflected by the inventory of Animal House and other pet stores across the nation.

A former resident of New York, Cook said many stores there no longer sell dogs and cats. "They (consumers and pet stores) are into what suppliers call companion animals — reptiles, birds."

But in Greenville, the story is different. Cook said people here are into fish — a preference the cats probably don't mind.

Imagine the scene: Tabby topped out on Tender Vittles, lazily perusing the tank as tetras, guppies and tiger barbs glide by. Or, if Tabby's owner is one of the 40 percent of Animal House customers preferring salt water set-ups, the prey might be clowns, tangs, anemones, feather dusters, flame scallops or dominoes — a selection that's a far cry from the smelly bowls and gold fish of our youths, said Cook.

"Fish keeping has turned into a sort of therapy," according to Cook. "They're used in situations providing for the elderly, in prison systems, in doctors' offices. They're very stress relieving."

So from a community that once boasted a multitude of Muffins, Rags, Spikes, Dukes, Princes and Fritzes, Greenville has evolved into a city of Cleos, Whiskers, Pollys, Tweeties and fishes that swim up to the glass and say "oh."

In fact, there's so many of them slinking, flying and swimming around that they, along with the dogs, account for 90 percent of Dr. Joseph Bateman's practice.

The city's longest-established clinic, Bateman Animal Hospital opened in 1943. Then the work consisted mostly of vaccinating and tending to large animals — horses, cattle, hogs and sheep. But as the community grew, the needs changed, Bateman said. Enough so that from 1943, when Bateman was one of only two certified veterinary surgeons operating here, the county's number of vets has grown to nine.

As Thompson puts it. "The business is there; you can make a living."

They're not the only ones. Manufacturers of pet equipment, toys and treats are going all out if the shelves of local pet emporiums are anything to go by.

For sale at Pet Village in downtown Greenville, for example, are kitty condos, jingle cat locator bells, iguana, bird and guinea pig feed and hamster caves.

At Animal House there are tapes to aid in the training of talking birds, scratching posts, covered litter boxes for the shy feline, along with perches and collars and cages of all shapes and sizes.

And not to be forgotten, the dog, once man's most common friend, is provided for as well. There are sonic collars designed to so bemuse fleas they abandon their canine hosts. Doggie fashions in plaids and festooned with ribbons and bows as well as squeeze, squeak and chew toys, chains, clips, harnesses and beds with cedar, acrylic and foam padding are available for a price, too.

So maybe the dog days are gone, but at least life hasn't gone totally to the cats.

Dinks Without Kids Have The Income To Buy Minks

By NIKKI FINKE
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Newlyweds Nancy Kendall and Patrick McCabe of Los Angeles first bumped into the term at a recent party. "Someone was saying that we're not yuppies anymore, we're dinks," Kendall recalled. "I felt vaguely insulted."

Advertising executive Tom O'Sullivan discovered it in New York magazine last month, then discussed it in the University of California, Los Angeles, marketing course he teaches. "Dink is just a great word," he said. "It's like a good dirty joke. It makes it from coast to coast in seconds."

No, dink is not derivative of the common adjective dinky. Rather, dink is an acronym for "double income, no kids," a shorthand way of describing the millions of baby-boom couples who work for wages and, so far, don't have children.

Not surprisingly, the origin of dink is a hot topic of speculation. New York magazine associate editor Amy Virshup may well have been the first writer to use it in print. She, in turn, traced it to a conversation aboard a New York commuter train.

"I got it from an architect friend who got it from another architect friend who got it from a Wall Street type who heard it on the train from Scarsdale," she said. "We accuse Madison Avenue of so many things, this sounds like one more thing we'd accuse them of doing," said Valerie Folkes, assistant University of Southern California professor of marketing, who discovered the acronym a few weeks ago.

Still, Folkes thinks dink has invaded the vernacular for legitimate reasons. "People in marketing are always watching changing demographics to see where there might be opportunities.... Of course, there have always been childless couples. But what we see now is that they are a large enough portion of the population where we can identify them as a worthwhile segment to go after," O'Sullivan, a partner in the advertising agency of Kollwe & O'Sullivan, agreed. "I'm sure that somebody said 'Eureka!' when they found dink. Because it works, and you can remember it."

Like it or not, there are several factors working to turn dinks into a bona fide trend.

Foremost is the surging presence of American women in the labor force: From 1965 to 1985, the number of women with jobs almost doubled. Among 25- to 34-year-old married couples, two-thirds of the wives are working for wages, compared with fewer than half a decade ago.

Secondly, these two-career couples can beat inflation and income stagnation; in real dollar terms, their combined salaries have steadily increased in the last two decades, while singles and married couples with children have suffered.

A 1985 research report prepared for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress on the economic future of the baby boom notes that for the past decade, "the American economy has been in a quiet depression in which neither wages nor family incomes have grown."

As a result, according to the study's authors, University of Maryland Professor Frank Levy and the Urban Institute's Richard Michel, "today a 30-year-old man is earning about 10 percent less than his father earned when the young man left home."

It should come as no surprise, then, that "the typical young American family — husband, wife and child under 12 — is having a tough time. With a median pretax family income totaling $25,157 in 1984, there's "hardly enough to buy a BMW and eat out regularly," the researchers contend. And home ownership remains out of reach for most.

Only one group has fared dramatically better — double-income, no-kids couples. In 1985, their median income was $36,431.

"Only by postponing kids and having two incomes have these couples found they can achieve those very high material aspirations that all baby boomers start out with," Levy explained. "That's how they stay ahead of the curve."

Indeed, a child's drain on a couple is staggering in monetary terms. The Urban Institute has calculated that by the start of the 1980s, the cost of raising the so-called "average" kid to age 18 had reached $82,400.

"When you don't have to spend for baby furniture and private schooling, you have more disposable income for adult toys," Folkes noted.

The U.S. Census Bureau cannot provide statistics on the number of double-income, no-kids couples in the United States. But it's safe to say their numbers are well into the millions.

What makes the trend suddenly stand out, however, is the fact that dinks are staying dinks longer.

Back in the 1940s, 1950s and 1960s, newlyweds normally spent a brief year on their own before starting a family. And only the most avant-garde husbands "allowed" their wives to work for wages. Today, it's not unusual for wives to earn more than their husbands, or for couples to remain a twosome for five or 10 years before baby makes three.

The business, advertising and media communities have been somewhat slow to jump on the dink bandwagon. Food manufacturers still insist on making products in only two sizes, "Soup for One" and "Family Size." Advertisers have finally discovered the single person, but they often overlook dinks.

That is, until recently. Now ad agencies are trying to find a way to reach these people who rarely watch TV, let their magazines go unread and barely have enough time each day to breathe. They're "time poor," in ad lingo.

Network television almost by accident gave us a double-income, no-kids couple in the 1970s — remember "The Bob Newhart Show" with Bob and Emily? — and then proceeded to dwell on their peculiarities. ABC's "Jack and Mike" is the only current network series that regularly explores the trials and tribulations of genuine dinks. In fact, it was fan mail that convinced the show's producers to zero in more on the couple's emotional conflicts.

It's still too early to tell whether dink will take on the same kind of pejorative connotations that turned yuppie into a near insult. Already, there is some negative feeling — or maybe it's just dink envy among "sinks" (single income, no kids), "zinks" (zero income, no kids), "diks" (double incomes who fink out and have kids) and "siks" (single income and kids).

For anyone trying to keep score, a dink couple can consist of two yuppies, but not always. The reason is that double-income, no-kids couples can come from a wide variety of age, income and educational levels.

"Just because they're dinks doesn't mean they're better educated or better placed in the work force," O'Sullivan said. "A dink couple can consist of a blue-collar husband and a wife employed in a secretarial position. But, between them, they make substantially more than the average family income."

More often than not, dink wives use their maiden names at work — a fact that helps to confuse nearly everyone except their closest family members and friends. Dinks take numerous vacations, often to exotic locales, and seem equally at home schussing down ski slopes or acquiring a Caribbean tan. One dink spouse usually does all the cooking, and frequently it's the husband.

Dinks can afford to rent in the "best" neighborhoods or buy a house within the first two years of marriage, usually a design by a well-known local architect. Dinks make exercise and community service a regular part of their weekly routines, alternating fund-raising events with bouts on the rowing machine.

In addition, dinks can afford to indulge in cultural chic. From a marketing standpoint, dinks are entertainment crazy, whether it's going out for dinner several times a week or just watching their VCR.

Author's Four Novels Coming Out This Year

BY CAROLYN S. CARLSON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Flying into 1987 with four novels scheduled for publication by four different publishing companies, a bemused Nan Ryan says she got her wings when her first book sold a couple months after she had completed it in 1982.

Zebra Books published "Kathleen's Surrender" in February 1983, by which time the author, then 46, had finished her second historical romance novel and was well into her third. Then she wrote fourth and fifth novels.

Her first editor got pregnant and quit. She found another, but that editor moved to a new publishing house which went bankrupt.

"I kept writing but, as you can see, I had a dry period when I ran up against the rejections that other people face," Mrs. Ryan said in an interview.

As the manuscripts stacked up, she finally decided, "I had had all this trouble and I thought I needed help and I needed it bad. So I called up the best agent I'd heard of."

Richard Curtis, a New York agent who represents other historical and romance novelists, read one of Mrs. Ryan's books and agreed to represent her.

By then, an editor who had rejected

Beverly Burnette Gives Program

Beverly Burnette was keynote speaker at the meeting of the Benevolent Circle of the Kings Daughters and Sons.

She talked about Eastern Carolina Home Health Hospice Services, Inc. Mrs. Burnette is hospice executive director. "Hospice has been active in Pitt County for 5½ years. It provides services for persons having cancer or AIDS," she said.

Reporting on the Creative Living Center were Betty Tate, Annie Turner and Jean Weaver. Plans were made to have a Brunswick stew supper for residents at the Willoughby home March 10 starting at 5:30 p.m.

Named to the nominating committee were Nancy NaHouse, Kay Moore and Beverly Bartik.

Ethel Allen was welcomed as a new member.

The March 25 meeting will be held at the home of Jean Weaver, president.

Reports Given At Monday Meet

Committee reports were given at the meeting of the Greenville Service League held at the Greenville Parks and Recreation Building.

Mrs. Richard McKee, bloodmobile chairman, reported two bloodmobile visits were held in February collecting 223 units by 44 workers who worked 137¼ hours. Mary Wesley Harvey reported 14 bundles of coat hangers were collected.

Mrs. Howard Dawkins, hospital activities chairman, announced that 455 Valentine tray favors, and one Valentine arrangement were prepared for the hospital. There will be an Easter workshop April 13.

Mrs. R. Kelly Barnhill reported the Laughinghouse Fund report. Mrs. C.W. Harvey Jr. answered three calls for layettes.

Mrs. William C. Brewer Jr., placement chairman, announced the sign-up for the fall term will begin April 7.

Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr., president, conducted the session.

The three fastest growing Pitt County townships from 1980 to 1984 other than Greenville were Ayden, Grifton and Grimesland. Ayden's population grew 2.7 percent, Grifton, 2.51 percent, and Grimesland, 1.88 percent.

Parents Wonder If Son Should Move Out

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son, who will soon be 21, is a full-time college student living at home. He has a part-time job that pays well, but not well enough for him to live independently in his own apartment, which we would prefer. "Earl" has started spending many nights away from home, and we're sure he's sleeping at his girlfriend's. She's 22, also a college student, and shares an apartment with two other college girls.

My husband and I expressed our disapproval of Earl's all-night absences. We've also told him if he chooses to continue his relationship with this girl, it's up to him to take responsibility for birth control. (He neither admitted nor denied sleeping with her.)

Should we kick Earl out? His father thinks we should; I am against it, but I don't see any other solution, do you?

—FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Solution to what? If you think you can control your son's sexual behavior at this stage of the game, you are kidding yourselves. Earl is a man — not a boy. Your job is done, for better or worse. Kick him out if you want to, but control his sexual behavior? Don't count on it.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Goldilocks" really ticked me off. She's the gal from Sarasota who (according to her) was just one of the crowd until she dyed her brown hair blond — then men started to stop her on the street and in stores just to make conversation with her. (They probably thought she was a hooker.)

Listen, I am a brunette and have never had any trouble getting attention. I've always been popular with girls and boys (now men), and it couldn't have been my looks. I was friendly, outgoing and natural. Just being myself appealed to people.

I'm 28 and married to a wonderful guy who all the girls used to fight over. All of his ex-girlfriends were blondes, and look who got him — a plain-looking "32-B," and a brunette to boot. — I GOTTA BE ME IN PALEO ALTO

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own and operate a restaurant. (Don't say where, please.) We work 14 to 16 hours a day, seven days a week, and make a good living out of this place because we are always here and work hard. The problem: Our married children have developed the habit of bringing their children (ages from 3 1/2 to 9 years old) here, and leaving them with us when they want to go somewhere.

We love our grandchildren and do not mind having them here once in a while for a few hours, but lately we have been baby sitters for them five and six hours at a time, and we can't handle it. A busy restaurant is no place for children, and some of these children have to be watched carefully or they might get hurt. Also, they are in the way when we get real busy on weekends.

Is there some nice way to tell our children that they should either stay home and look after their kids, or hire a baby sitter? Marched they see this, they will get the hint. — DAD AND ME

DEAR DAD AND ME: Don't look for a "nice" way to tell your children that your restaurant is not a day care center. Just get the message across. And don't expect them to see this in my column and take the hint. If they see it, they'll think it's meant for somebody else. Be firm. They cannot take advantage of you without your cooperation.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson was married last summer. The marriage did not last. The wedding gifts were never acknowledged, and affection for the groom's life was gone. I and me, many of our friends, sent fairly gifts.

I have been hoping for several months because no "Thank you" notes were ever sent, and my friends' valentines with the following message enclosed:

"When my grandson and his bride married last year, you were so very dear to send them a gift. The marriage did not work out and your lovely gift was never acknowledged. There is nothing I can do to make up for such thoughtlessness, but I want you to know how much your going means to me. Thank you."

It may not help, but I feel much better. A member of my family said she thought my message was improper. What is your opinion, Abby?

DOROTHY B.
DEAR DOROTHY: I think your message was not only proper, but a gracious acknowledgment of a gift that otherwise would have been rudely ignored.

(For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Town Fights To Save Tiny 9-Pupil School

MONROE BRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Residents of this town of 140 people have no church or general store and they lost their only industry two years ago, but they are hanging on to their nine-student school. The school board decided this week to ignore the advice of officials and voters and keep the school open. "We made an awful lot of people mad, but we did what we thought was right," said board member Eleanor Wiley. "If I was looking to buy a house here, I'd think twice if I knew the town didn't even have a school." The school, with two teachers, includes kindergarten through eighth grade, and expects to expand its enrollment by one next fall, said Superintendent Joseph J. Joseph. There is only one smaller school district in Massachusetts, on the island of Cuttyhunk.

In an advisory vote earlier this month, residents voted 23-20 in favor of closing the 50-year-old schoolhouse and busing the students to a 70-student school 14 miles away. "The people are unstinting in their dedication and support of the school and always have been," agreed Joseph. "But how can you justify an $80,000 budget for 10 students?" Most members of the town's board of selectmen favored closing the school. Mrs. Wiley's husband, Edward, who serves as a selectman and was the only member of the board to back the school board, said the issue has divided the town.

"There are those that are dead set against keeping it open and those that are just as vehement about keeping it open. The only sure thing, the issue isn't dead yet," he said. Monroe Bridge hugs a hillside above the Deerfield River and during the winter is sometimes accessible only through Vermont.

The history of the town includes a judge who dismissed charges against 98 people caught at an unlicensed boxing match in 1928 because, he declared, he'd been to Monroe and knew how little there was to do.

Things have gone steadily downhill in the two years since the closing of Deerfield Specialty Papers, which had made glassine windows for envelopes.

After the workers tried and failed to buy the plant, younger people started moving out. The population of the town dropped from 179 to 141 and the school enrollment fell from 19 to 9.

Sandy Goodermote, who was born and raised in Monroe, teaches the one first-grader and two fourth-graders. Guy Patalano, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., who said he fell in love with the Berkshires, has the remaining students, two each in grades 5, 6 and 7. Older students are bused to North Adams.

Joseph said the Monroe enrollment has been steadily dropping since a high of 37 in the early 1970s.

"It's not so much the mill, but the declining birthrate," he said. "The young families with children aren't moving in, because there is nothing here for a young family."

ministration is throwing down the gauntlet to Congress on aid to Nicaragua's rebels, while bolstering the legal standing of the independent counsel investigating the matter.

Actions by Reagan and Attorney General Edwin Meese III Thursday came amid generally favorable reaction, tempered by criticism from the Soviet Union and Nicaragua, of Reagan's televised response to the first major investigative report on the Iran-Contra affair.

In the Soviet Union the official news agency Tass said the president's speech "abounded in contradictory statements."

In Panama City, Panama, Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said of Reagan's speech, "If in the future as a result of ongoing investigations it is discovered he indeed knew about ... the diversion of funds to the Contras, then the good impact of the speech would have been ephemeral and he might find himself in even worse shape than he was before."

Both Reagan and Vice President George Bush sought to shift the focus to arms control and other issues from the crisis that has gripped Reagan's presidency and hampered Bush's unannounced presidential campaign.

Meanwhile, White House counsel Peter J. Wallison denied a report in The Washington Post today that he asked the Tower commission not to disclose that Reagan gave two conflicting versions of when he approved Israel's 1985 shipments of U.S. arms to Iran.

The Post said the board included details of the president's conflicting stories, including the final version that he couldn't remember when he approved the arms sales, because it thought they showed how Reagan was manipulated by senior aides, the newspaper said, quoting anonymous sources.

"It has always been my view that the president was trying to recall and had not definitely come to a view," Wallison told The Associated Press in a telephone interview after the Post report was published.

Wallison said the board's opinion was that "the president had made a definite recollection in the first meeting and changed it in the second meeting and chose to report it that way," Wallison said.

Wallison said that when the Tower board's opinion on the conflicting reports became known, he and David Abshire, special counsel to the president on the Iran-Contra affair, went to Reagan, who said he did not recall when he approved the arms shipments.

"We said then that is the answer you have to give to the Tower board," Wallison said.

Reagan sent Congress a certification that automatically triggers $40 million in previously approved aid unless Congress disapproves it within 15 days. The House could vote such disapproval, but its chances in the Senate are less clear.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., has said he supports the idea of holding up the $40 million, but Senate Democrats have not yet united behind Byrd's plan.

The speaker of the House, Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, said a vote on the moratorium until there is an accounting of Iran sales money is scheduled for next Wednesday. Aides said it is expected to pass by a close vote.

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., conceded, however, that aid opponents probably do not have the votes to override a presidential veto.

At the Justice Department, Meese appointed independent counsel Lawrence Walsh to head a new office of independent counsel — an effort to nullify a lawsuit by North that threatened to derail Walsh's investigation.

Women Charged

PARIS (AP) — French authorities charged two alleged members of the Direct Action terrorist group with killing Georges Besse, chairman of the state-owned Renault auto company.

In other developments Thursday in Europe's fight against terrorism, a West German court convicted a former teacher of belonging to the Red Army Faction, and France said its agents investigating Middle East terrorists are holding seven people for questioning after finding a cache of weapons and explosives.

Nathalie Menigon and Joelle Aubron were charged with killing Besse, who was gunned down on a street outside his Paris apartment last Nov. 17 by two women. Direct Action later claimed responsibility for the slaying.

By 87-75 Score Falcons Run Past Rose

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Hot-shooting Fayetteville 71st High School placed all five starters in double figures Thursday night and eliminated Rose High School from the state 4-A basketball playoffs, 87-75.

The Rampants fell behind early in the game and never were able to catch the running Falcons, who sprinted out to a 13-point lead at the half and held onto that the rest of the way.

"They really shot the ball well," Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "They are the best shooting team that I've seen. (Reggie Evans) can shoot from anywhere."

The Falcons tossed in 66.7 percent of their shots on the night, with Evans leading the way with 20 points, all on field goals.

But that wasn't the only area in which the Falcons topped the Rampants. Time after time, 71st was the quicker team down the floor, beating Rose back on offense to score the easy basket. And when they didn't hit, they were in position to make the rebound and come away with the points anyway. The Falcons held a 36-27 edge in the rebounding department.

The only place in which Rose came out ahead was in turnovers. Rose committed only 17 for the game while 71st had 21. Many of them were unforced, however, as the Falcons rushed the ball up and down the court.

"They were just too much for us," Brewington said. "I thought we played about as good as we could, but they were just too strong. I thought maybe if they had missed a few shots — and we had gotten the rebounds — we might have had a chance. But they were so much quicker than we were. We tried to adjust in the second half, but we were too far down."

Rose did lead briefly at the start, as Melvin Jenkins scored the opening basket of the game.

But that was it. Evans canned two straight, one from the baseline and the other on a fast break, for a 4-2 lead by the Falcons with 6:50 left in the quarter. Artice Council added another basket from underneath for a 6-2 lead before Rose scored again.

That came on another Jenkins basket, and was answered by three more 71st buckets, two by Council and one by Milton Clavon, running the lead to 12-4.

Rose came back with six in a row after that, four by Errol Wooten, to cut it back to 12-10, but that was as close as it got.

The Falcons then outit Rose, 8-2, over the final 2:06 of the period to run out to a 22-14 edge.

The lead reached 10 at 26-16 early in the second quarter. The two then exchanged baskets until 71st had another run of five straight to open the gap to 13 at 37-24 with 2:07 to go. That margin held the rest of the way, as the Falcons led, 43-30, at the half.

Clavon hit the opening basket of the second half to give 71st a 45-30 lead before Rose put on a rally that cut it back to 10, 51-41, with 5:03 to go. But they could get no closer, and trailed, 65-53, at the horn.

An early spree ran the lead out to 71-54 early in the final period before Rose again managed a late rally to get within 11 again, but only 40 seconds remained at that point.

Council finished with 19 points for 71st while Alex Gaines added 14, David Simmons had 11 and Clavon hit 10.

Rose was paced by Wooten with 28 while Jenkins added 20 and Johnny Ebron came off the bench to hit 14.

The Falcons, 24-4, now advance to the sectional finals on Saturday, while Rose closes out the season with a 19-6 mark on the year.

Farmville Rips Ahoskie, 60-43

FARMVILLE — After building up a big first-half lead, Farmville weathered a third-quarter rally by Ahoskie and then rolled to a 60-43 win in the second round of the state high school basketball playoffs Thursday night.

The Jaguars built up a 33-15 lead by halftime but the Cougars came out pressing in the third quarter. Farmville's Tyrone Joyner opened the period with a layup that stretched the lead to 35-15 but Ahoskie then ran off 12 straight points, taking advantage of five straight Jaguar turnovers.

Gary Moore hit two free throws for Farmville but Mitchell answered that with a jumper to make it 41-31. Reid scored again to make it 43-31 as the third period closed.

In the fourth quarter, the Jaguars slowly eased the lead back up. Mark Williams hit inside to make it 48-35 with just under six minutes to go. Reid and Alexander Daniels each added a free throw to move it 50-35 with 5:08 to go.

From there, the lead grew to 18 with 2:20 remaining when Mark Williams tossed back a follow shot to make it 57-39. From there on, the only matter to be decided was the final margin.

"I felt like it was a real balanced scoring attack," Terrell said. "We don't have a money man. We have five kids who can score well. They play well together."

Things were looking good for the Jaguars in the first quarter when Kennedy Williams, who led the Farmville with 13 points, hit two of his first three shots. Williams, the Jags' leading scorer, suffered through a 5-17 shooting performance on Tuesday night as Farmville struggled past Franklinton, 58-54.

"The last few nights, our shooting has been off," Terrell said. "We needed that. I think it was a real good win for our kids. I think we played excellent defense. I think we went to the backboards well on both ends. We knew they played a zone and we wanted to get the ball inside and we did in the first half."

Joyner and Mark Williams added 12 points for Farmville, 20-5. Williams in particular came through with a good game after failing to connect on a field goal against

With 51-44 Overtime Win

Aces Deal Chargers Out

By DON REUTER

LITTLEFIELD — Edenton's Deronne Felton poured in 21 points, including 16 in the second half to lead the Aces to a 51-44 overtime victory over Ayden-Grifton in the second round of the state 2-A basketball playoffs Thursday night.

Felton sank a four-foot jumper with nine seconds left in regulation to tie the game at 44-44 and send it into overtime.

Edenton won the tip at the start of the extra period, and moved the ball around until Felton hit a short jumper with 2:22 showing on the clock to give the Aces a 46-44 lead.

The basket proved to be the margin of victory as Edenton held the Chargers scoreless for the full three minutes of the overtime.

After Ayden-Grifton's Eric Blount missed a 15-foot jumper with 1:55 showing, the Chargers fouled Edenton's Darrell Overton with 53 seconds left.

Overton missed the front end of a one-and-one, and the Chargers moved back down the floor with a chance to tie it up, but Ronnell Peterson missed a 3-footer and the rebound went out of bounds off Ayden-Grifton's Hilton Ellison with 32 seconds to go.

Two seconds later, the Chargers fouled Overton, who again missed the front end of a one-and-one. Blount then pushed the ball down court and drove the lane, but his shot from underneath bounced off the front of the rim with 17 seconds to go.

Edenton's Brad Hendricks sank a pair of free throws to give Edenton a 48-44 lead with 13 seconds left. Ayden-Grifton, which shot 0-4 from the floor in the overtime period, missed again with six seconds left.

Tim Chestnut buried a pair of free throws and Robert Rankins added another for Edenton in the final five seconds to give the Aces the 51-44 win.

Peterson scored 17 points and Shawn Farmer added 11 for the Chargers, who finish the season at 21-6. Edenton, which plays at Plymouth Saturday, improves to 13-10.

Edenton Coach Robert Woodley said his team was wary of the Chargers before the game.

"We were a little bit scared coming in here because they beat Roanoke by 30 points (in the first round of the state playoffs), and we lost to Roanoke in the (Northeastern Conference) tournament," Woodley said.

The difference in the game was the Aces ability to limit the effectiveness of Peterson and Blount late in the contest, according to Woodley.

"I knew if we could keep the ball out of a couple of players hands, we would have a chance," he said. "We knew we had to stop Peterson, and we knew we had to stop Blount. We went to a triangle and two near the end of regulation to try to stop them."

Peterson and Blount combined for just four points in the fourth quarter and overtime while shooting 2-8 from the field.

Meanwhile, Ayden-Grifton Coach Bob Murphrey said his team simply didn't play well.

"We didn't execute anything. We had plenty of opportunities," Murphrey said. "We just didn't play with any intelligence, and Edenton did a good job."

Ayden-Grifton shot 43.2 percent from the field, while Edenton did only slightly better at 44 percent.

The Chargers, who led by as much as seven points in the fourth quarter, couldn't nail down the win despite several opportunities to do so.

After Hendricks gave Edenton a 36-35 lead with 7:11 to go in the fourth period, the Chargers rattled in eight unanswered points to take a 43-36 lead with 4:31 to go. During the stretch, Peterson buried a pair 10-foot jumpers, and Farmer scored off a give and go with Blount.

Edenton battled back by scoring six unanswered points to pull within 43-42 with 1:45 left. Felton scored four points and Rankins put in a layup off a turnover.

With 17 seconds remaining, Farmer hit one of two from the foul line to give the Chargers a 44-42 advantage, but Felton tied the game up with nine seconds to go.

Both teams had chances to win the game in the final seconds. The Chargers were called for a five-second violation, but the Aces threw a pass out of bounds with eight seconds left. Ayden-Grifton had the final opportunity but Peterson missed a 20-footer from the corner with two seconds to go.

Edenton held a 12-11 lead after one period of play, but the Chargers, thanks to a last-second 8-foot jumper with two seconds showing in the second quarter, moved ahead 21-19 at intermission.

The teams continued to trade the lead in the third quarter until Blount stole the ball and scored on a layup with eight ticks left in the third quarter to give the Chargers a 35-34 lead.

PINETOPS — Ricky Farrow scored 23 points to lead D.H. Conley past Southern Nash in the second round of the state 3-A high school basketball playoffs Thursday night, 57-47.

The Vikings, 18-8, took a 16-10 lead in the first quarter and expanded that to 32-17 by halftime.

That was expanded to 44-26 after three quarters of play before Southern Nash outscored the Vikings 21-13 over the final frame to pull within 10 by the final buzzer.

Corey Williams topped Southern Nash with 21 points.

Conley advances to play Burlington Williams Saturday at SouthWest Edgecombe High School at 8:30 p.m.

Says NCAA Was Misled

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University's Board of Governors met today amid reports that the NCAA's top investigator was intentionally misled by school officials trying to cover up improper payments to athletes.

David Berst, enforcement director for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said Thursday he believes that SMU officials were instructed to withhold information about board-level approval of the payments to athletes.

Plymouth Nips Panthers, 53-51

PLYMOUTH — James Carter hit the first of two free throws with two seconds to go to give Plymouth a 53-51 win over North Pitt in the second round of the state 2-A high school basketball playoffs.

Plymouth led from the start until late in the third quarter when North Pitt went ahead 35-33 with 2:25 to go. Plymouth came back to take a 39-37 by the end of the period.

In the fourth quarter, North Pitt went up 44-43 with 5:24 remaining when Calvin Hunter came up with a steal and a basket. Billy Hardison added a free throw to move it to 45-43. Plymouth then went ahead, 47-45, on a pair of baskets by William Barrow.

With 1:10 remaining, Plymouth led, 51-47, but the Panthers cut it to one at 52-51 with four seconds left when Morning stole the ball and scored with five seconds remaining. Carter then intentionally fouled with two seconds left and hit one to make it 53-51. Plymouth then in-bounded the ball and ran the remaining time off the clock.

North Pitt, which finishes the season at 11-14, was paced by Ashley Sheppard's 13 points.

ECU Baseball Finally Opens

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

After having his first six games rained out so far, East Carolina baseball coach Gary Overton was glad to see clear skies Thursday afternoon for a scheduled doubleheader with Atlantic Christian College at Harrington Field.

But the monkey wrench that had been tossed into the schedule was not quite ready to drop out of the machine works. When the 1 p.m. starting time came, no umpires were in sight.

Frantic telephone calls finally revealed that the booking agent had misread his schedule and assigned the umpires to show up on Friday instead of Thursday. Further frantic telephone calls finally located substitute officials, but it was 3:55 before play finally got underway in the long-delayed season opener.

When it did, it had been decided to play only one game instead of two, and the Pirates used a big third inning to come away with a 10-5 win over the previously unbeaten Bulldogs.

The Pirate success was due to a combination of newcomers and veterans. ECU banged out 11 hits on the day, two each by freshman John Adams, junior Steve Sides, freshman Calvin Brown and junior college transfer Mike Andrews.

Daniel Boone started the game, but came out in the fourth in favor of junior college transfer Gary Smith, who completed the contest and got the win.

Adams slapped a two-run homer in the third to key the Pirates from a 2-1 deficit, while Brown cracked a two-run double in the seventh that put the icing on the cake.

Atlantic Christian, which came into the game with a 3-0 record, jumped into the lead in the first inning with a pair of runs. After retiring the first two batters, Boone, who missed most of last season with an arm injury, walked Mark Mauldin. John Mello then took the first pitch and sent it over the fence in center field for a two-run homer.

East Carolina came up with a run in the second. John Thomas reached on a fielder's choice that left two men away. He moved on to third on a single by Andrews. Andrews then took off for second, allowed himself to be caught in a rundown, with Thomas scoring before the tag.

The Pirates broke it open in the third, scoring five times. David Ritchie led off with a walk and Adams followed with his first collegiate home run, a shot to left field, giving the Pirates a 3-2 lead.

Then, with two away, Jay McGraw and Brown both drew walks. Jim Riley singled to drive in McGraw and Thomas got a single to score both Brown and courtesy runner Tommy Yarbrough.

The Bulldogs closed the gap to 6-3 with a run in the fourth. Bruce Ellis reached on an error and Frank Cabral walked. Randy Daniels singled to right, loading the bases. Rich Thachski followed with an infield out, Ellis scoring on the play.

The Pirates boosted their lead to 7-3 with one in the sixth. McGraw opened with a walk and stole second. He took third on an infield out and scored when Thomas reached on an error.

The final three for ECU scored in the seventh. Adams reached on a fielder's choice and Sides singled. Mike Sullivan singled in Adams and McGraw reached on a fielder's choice that got Sullivan at second. Brown followed with a double up the alley in left center, scoring both Sides and McGraw. A pair of walks loaded the bases, but a strikeout ended the rally.

Atlantic Christian got its last two in the eighth. Cabral and Paul Summerlin both got doubles to open the inning. Cabral scoring on the latter. Thachski struck out, but the ball was dropped by Riley, who then threw to first, getting the batter. Summerlin, meanwhile, broke for third, and the relay there by Sullivan was overthrown, allowing Summerlin to come the rest of the way with the fifth ACC run.

Cabral led the Bulldog hitting with three while Wayne Murphy and Mello each had two.

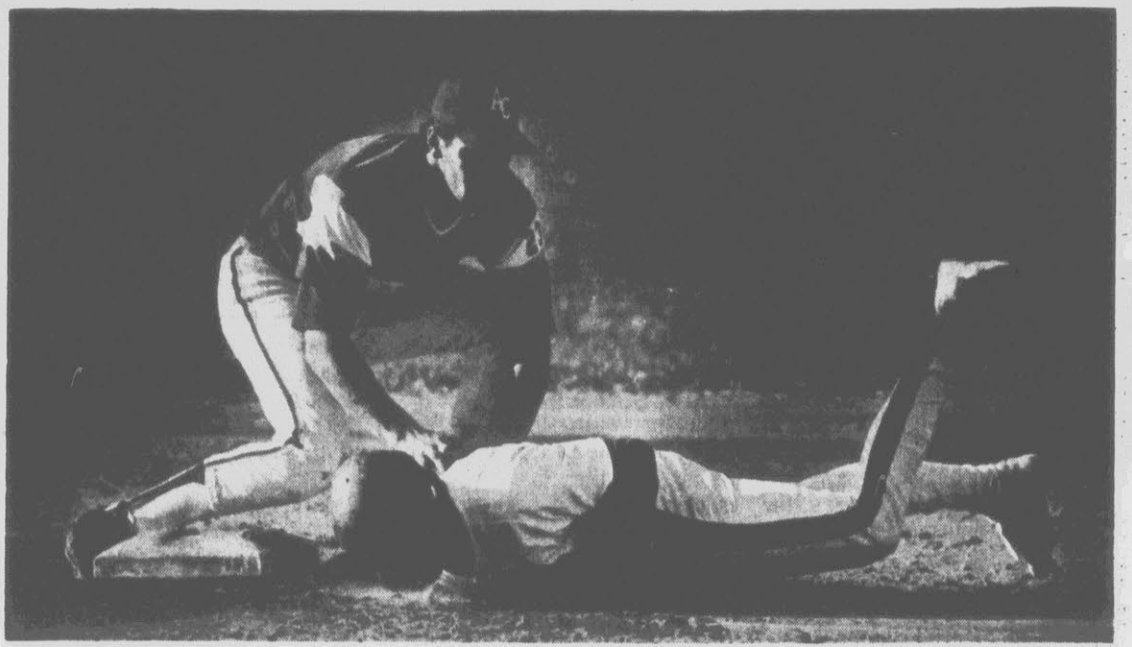

The Pirates return to action on Sunday at 3 p.m., hosting Fairfield University.

Redskins Roll Past Jamesville

ROANOKVILLE — Roanoke High School jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning, saw that evaporate, then went on to take a 9-4 baseball win over Jamesville Thursday.

The win was the first in two starts for the Redskins, while Jamesville was bowing to the second straight game to a higher classed opponent.

The Redskins pushed over two in the first only to see Jamesville come back with four in the top of the second for a 4-2 lead. Michael Cox led off with a walk and Bill Cox singled. Doug Jones reached on an error, loading the bases. Ernie Gardner singled in Michael Cox. Eric Spruill then doubled in the other three runners for the brief Bullet lead.

Roanoke rallied with three runs in the bottom of the inning to regain the lead, 5-4, and never trailed again. The Redskins added four more in the fourth to wrap it up.

Starkey Whitfield led Roanoke's attack with two hits, one of them a double. Bill Cox had two hits to pace Jamesville.

The Bullets return to action on Tuesday, opening Tobacco Belt Conference play with Chocowinity. Roanoke plays host to Farmville Central on Tuesday.

Jamesville Takes Win

ROANOKE — Jennifer Getchell went 5-6 with three RBIs as Jamesville rolled over Roanoke, 15-5, in girl's high school softball action Thursday.

Jamesville pushed across five runs in the first inning. Getchell and Val Clark each reached on singles. Senita Rodgers then popped up but the ball was dropped, scoring Getchell.

Rochelle Rodgers then singled to score Clark. Karen Styons reached on an error by the shortstop to load the bases. Amanda Barber grounded to the shortstop, putting out Rodgers but scoring Senita Rodgers to make it 3-0. Carolyn Price then singled to score Styons and Penny Price followed with a single to bring home Barber.

Sherri Lilly also went 3-6 with 3 RBIs for the Lady Redskins with Rochelle Rodgers and Carolyn Price adding two more hits apiece.

Jamesville improves to 2-0 and returns to action Tuesday hosting Chocowinity.

GCA Takes Win In Playoffs

WINSTON-SALEM — Stephanie Stevens scored 11 points as the Greenville Christian girls took a 49-24 win over Falls Road Christian Academy in the North Carolina Christian Activities High School playoffs Thursday.

GCA took a 13-0 lead after the first quarter and expanded that to 20-3 by halftime. The lead grew to 35-11 before the final margin of 49-24.

GCA improves to 15-1 and plays Wilson Christian today.

In the boy's game, GCA fell behind 30-19 at the half and was never able to close the gap as Gospel Light took a 71-62 win.

The loss ended the year for GCA, 15-6.

Roger Bayne scored 20 points to lead Gospel Light, with Joey McCarthy adding 16 and Brian Dunbar 12.

GCA was led by Robin House with 26 points and Paul Hollingsworth with 22.

Bonecrusher Ignored The Critics Of His Age

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — James "Bonecrusher" Smith was told he was to old to start boxing at the reported age of 26.

But Smith was actually 28 when he got serious about boxing.

"If he had only known," said the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, who lied about his age so he could get fights.

Smith, now 33, will try to make a case for aging fighters Saturday night when he goes up against 20-year-old Mike Tyson in a bout that will unify the WBA and World Boxing Council heavyweight crowns.

It is a fight most feel Smith is destined to lose, including this city's legal oddsmakers who make him a 7-1 underdog. The same oddsmakers make Tyson a 6-1 favorite to knock Smith out and you can get 5-7 odds that the fight doesn't go four full rounds.

Smith, not surprisingly, doesn't agree.

"Tyson's ego and confidence could get him knocked out in the first round," said Smith, the only heavyweight champion with a college degree. "If he believes he's invincible, he could go out quick."

"I look forward to the challenge," said Tyson, who says he has no plans to abandon the no-holds barred style that has carried him to a 28-0 professional record, with 26 knockouts.

Smith's most dangerous weapon in the scheduled 12-round bout at a 14,600-seat arena at the Las Vegas

Hilton is a powerful right hand that has earned him 14 knockouts in compiling a 19-5 record.

He used the right hand to score a devastating first-round knockout over Tim Witherspoon last Dec. 12 in New York that earned him the WBA title. Smith took the fight on a week's notice and was a heavy underdog.

"It's a different feeling being the champion," said Smith, a former prison guard in North Carolina who earned a degree in business administration at Shaw University. "I have struggled so long against so

To The Sports Editor:

After reading the second article in your series on ECU basketball and Charlie Harrison in particular, I feel the need to point out some discrepancies in your reporting.

First, you express a great deal of concern over his salary. In my opinion, if salary was a large consideration of Coach Harrison, then he should have left and sought employment elsewhere. If salary was not an issue, then why bring it up? Perhaps he was paid what he was worth.

Second, in the first article you quoted the Coach as saying "players aren't coming in here and leaving like they have in the past." Where are Roy Smith, Peter Dam, Herb Dixon, Gus Hill and many others? The turnover rate of players was the highest in history under Coach Harrison.

Next, in order to substantiate your opinion, Tom Barrise is interviewed. Asking Barrise about coaching is like asking the guy who invented the Edsel how to build a good car. I am very glad that Tom Barrise is happy at Fairfield, but I don't see how his sour grapes relates to us.

I am confident that the administration is committed to building a successful Division I program at ECU. Your attempt to make a martyr out of Charlie Harrison is not going to help attract that quality coach we need. Don't worry, the commitment is there.

The fact that ECU has some problems is no secret. However, there is one problem over which the University has no control and that is the local media coverage. Not only is the sports coverage inaccurate, it is totally non-supportive. One thing crucial to ECU's ultimate success is the need for a competent, professional sports department at The Daily Reflector.

many odds, to get there is a great feeling."

Smith, who will earn $1 million to fight Tyson, took up boxing while serving in the Army. But he didn't turn professional until the age of 28, doing his early work in the gyms of Philadelphia. His pro career started inauspiciously with a fourth-round knockout loss to James Broad but he then went on a 14 fight winning streak that culminated with a November 1984 shot at the heavyweight title against Larry Holmes.

"I had Holmes in trouble twice in that fight, but I gave him too much respect," said Smith, who was eventually stopped by Holmes in the 12th round. "Knowing what I know now, Holmes wouldn't have gone past the fifth round."
Smith lost three of his next four fights before rebounding with a first-round knockout of former champion Mike Weaver - a knockout that gave him renewed confidence in his ability to compete at the top of the heavyweight ranks.

Two other heavyweights, both No. 1 contenders, will fight on the undercard, with both being mentioned for possible fights against the winner of the Tyson-Smith fight. The winner was to fight International Boxing Federation champion Michael Spinks in June, but that fight fell apart amid court squabbles and the IBF's lifting of Spinks' title.
Tyrell Biggs, the Olympic super heavyweight champion who is top-ranked by the WBA, will fight David Bey and Pinklon Thomas, the former WBC champion ranked first by that organization, will fight Danny Sutton.

Heels Enter Tourney As Favorite

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Second-ranked and top-seeded North Carolina went into today's 34th annual Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament as the favorite to win its first conference title in five years, while several top contenders were starting the tournament with key injuries.

North Carolina opened the tournament against eighth-seeded Maryland, 9-16 and 0-14, at noon in the Capital Centre.

Meanwhile, 13th ranked and second-seeded Clemson, the team with possibly the best chance to defeat North Carolina, has lost point guard Grayson Marshall with a severely sprained ankle.

Marshall hurt his ankle last Saturday in a loss at Duke. Georgia Tech also has three players hobbled with a variety of injuries.

In the other matchups, fourth-seeded Virginia plays fifth-seeded Georgia Tech at 2 p.m.; second-seeded Clemson takes on seventh-seeded Wake Forest at 7 p.m.; and third-seeded Duke battles sixth-seeded N.C. State at 9 p.m.

"I wish I could kiss it and make it well, but I can't," Clemson coach Cliff Ellis said of Marshall's injury. "The biggest thing will be to try to get some chemistry going (without Marshall). We need to try to meet a challenge like this team has been doing all year."

Georgia Tech comes into its first-round game with a 16-11 and 7-7 record, and a host of injuries. Yellow Jackets' coach Bobby Cremins said leading scorer Dwayne Ferrell is suffering from bronchitis, while Craig Neal has a pulled groin and Bruce Dalrymple has a bum knee.

"Yeah, we are pretty beat up," Cremins said. "It's all part of it, though."

Despite Maryland's 9-16 overall and 0-14 conference mark this season, North Carolina forward Joe Wolf said this week the Tar Heels must be ready to play an improved Terrapin team.

"They have taken a lot of people down to the wire," Wolf said. "It's scary if you look at it. They have just gotten to the point where they are keeping with people and they are losing it in the last minute."

Maryland first-year coach Bob Wade said Thursday the key to beating North Carolina is to keep the Tar Heels off the boards.

"We have to do a tremendous job of boxing out and allowing them one shot at the basket," Wade said.

"They possess outstanding athletes inside. We have also got to protect the basketball."

Virginia, 20-8 and 8-6, went into the 2 p.m. game riding a five-game winning streak and having beaten Georgia Tech twice in close games this season.

"I just think Virginia has put it together at the right time," Cremins said. "They are solid. They just are a really fine basketball team. Nobody played North Carolina closer than Virginia."

Georgia Tech comes into its first-round game with a 16-11 and 7-7 slate. "You have to feel good about yourself going into the tournament with five straight victories," Virginia's Andrew Kennedy said. "I think we have to do the same things we have been doing all season long to win — play within ourselves. I think we will be able to do that against Georgia Tech."

The first game of the nightcap features 13th-ranked Clemson, 25-4 and 10-4, against Wake Forest, 13-14 and 2-12.

"It's kind of sad to see a player of Grayson Marshall's caliber go out and not be able to participate," said Wake Forest point guard Tyrone Bogues. "Grayson means a great deal to Clemson, but I'm going to go out there and try to do the best I can for our team and for me."

Wake Forest coach Bob Staak said he plans to attack Clemson both from the inside and outside.

"We would like to take it inside and get their big people in foul trouble," Staak said. "But on the other hand, I think we have to shoot the ball well from the perimeter."

The final game of the day pits 14th-ranked and defending conference champion Duke, 22-7 and 9-5, against N.C. State, 17-14 and 6-8.

While some teams are losing players to injuries, the Blue Devils will be getting a player back. Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said forward Billy King will see some action after missing the last four games with a broken wrist.

"He (King) is pretty excited about it, too," Krzyzewski said. "I think that it's something we need right now. We always need Billy King, but it's a nice push for us."

"I think State is playing well," Krzyzewski said. "They are better than the last time we played them and I think they feel better about themselves."

N.C. State seemed looser at its Thursday practice session. The Wolfpack practiced almost 1 1/2 hours, 30 minutes more than most teams did.

"We should be loose," Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano said. "We aren't invading a small country or anything, we're playing a basketball game. To me the end of the season is supposed to be a fun time for the kids."

"The kids have been up — we have won three in a row," he added. "The basketball Gods have just not shined upon us this year."

Plymouth Nips DHC In JV Ball

Mike Diggs singled home Chris Coker in the bottom of the eighth to give Plymouth an 11-10 win over D.H. Conley in J.V. baseball action Thursday.

In the bottom of the eighth, Chris Coker doubled and Stewart Walker was then intentionally walked. Rick Blount reached on an error by the third baseman to load the bases. Mike Diggs then singled home Coker to win the game.

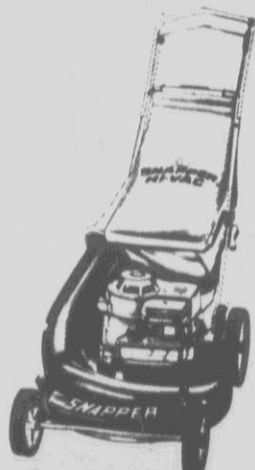

Conley was led by Scott Claybrook with three hits and Scott Seymour with two more.

Plymouth was led by Chris Woodland with three hits.

Conley, 1-1, returns to action Tuesday at Ayden-Grifton.

Spotty Rebels Still Roll

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Playing spotty basketball, top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas was only 35 points better than Long Beach State. What happens when the Rebels really get into gear?

UNLV upped its record to 31-1 in the first round of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball tournament Thursday night with a 105-70 romp over the 49ers. Next up at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif., is Cal-Fullerton, and Rebels Coach Jerry Tarkanian claims his team will have to be a lot better tonight.

"This is the toughest game since Oklahoma, maybe tougher," Tarkanian said, referring to the Rebels' only loss this season. "I think they (the Titans) are better than Auburn (another UNLV victim). I think they are an outstanding team. I say that in all sincerity."

"I said all along they were the second-best team in the league and I still say that. They have great athletes."

Still, Fullerton is just 17-11 after a 92-81 victory over Cal-Irvine in the opening round. The Titans' coach, George McQuinn, called that win "probably our best effort in a long, long, long time. We knew there was no tomorrow and played like it."

UNLV, which has won 16 straight games, got 24 points and 11 rebounds from Armon Gilliam and 20 points by Freddie Banks.

UNLV guard Mark Wade broke the NCAA single-season assist record he shared coming into the game with St. John's Mark Jackson. Wade had eight assists, giving him 336 for the season. Jackson had 328 assists in the 1985-86 campaign.

"After the first four or five minutes of each half, we played well," Tarkanian said. "It just seemed like we weren't in the game at the start and at the beginning of the second half."

"It was a funny game, both halves."

We were slow starting. I thought we got very intense that first half after about the first or five minutes.

"That's the kind of intensity we wanted."

Long Beach State, 12-19, was playing its final game under Coach Ron Palmer, who resigned last Monday.

Earlier Thursday, UC Santa Barbara downed Utah State 87-79 and San Jose State whipped New Mexico State 71-54.

The only team to gain entry into the 64-team NCAA field Thursday was No. 8 Temple, which avenged its only Atlantic 10 regular-season loss with a 70-57 homecourt victory over West Virginia for the conference's postseason title. Temple, 31-1, joined Alabama-Birmingham, Fairfield, Marshall, Navy, Pennsylvania, Wichita State, and Xavier, Ohio as qualifiers.

In non-tournament games involving ranked teams, No. 6 Iowa belted Northwestern 103-76 and 20th-rated Notre Dame beat Miami, Fla., 65-49.

The wildest tournament action was in Flagstaff, Ariz., where the Big Sky's first round had two one-point games, a two-point result and eighth-seeded Weber State, which was 6-21 during the season, beat No. 1 Montana State 106-101. The top three seeded teams in the Big Sky all lost.

Elsewhere, a couple of teams which showed surprising strength in last year's NCAA tourney were winners Thursday night in first-round conference tournament contests. Cleveland State took Eastern Illinois 60-53 in the Mid-Continent tourney, while Arkansas-Little Rock nipped Texas-San Antonio 62-60 in the Trans America.

The other Mid-Continent winners were Wisconsin-Green Bay, Illinois-Chicago and Southwest Missouri State. In the Trans America, Steston, Houston Baptist and Georgia Southern also advanced.

In the first Pacific-10 postseason action ever, Arizona State whipped Washington State 76-60, and Oregon beat Southern California 51-49. The Sun Devils got top-seeded UCLA, the host team, on Friday afternoon.

Also, Northeastern beat Siena 89-79 and Boston University took Niagara 84-82 in the ECAC North Atlantic semifinals; Mid-American first-round contests were won by Eastern Michigan, Kent State and Bowling Green; Bethune-Cookman, North Carolina A&T and South Carolina State advanced in the MEAC; Grambling, Southern, Texas Southern and Jackson State won in the SWAC; and Texas-El Paso, Brigham Young, New Mexico and Wyoming in the WAC.

The opening round of the Big East tournament in New York saw Boston College edge Connecticut 61-59. The Eagles got to play No. 7 Georgetown, the top seed, tonight. Tenth-ranked Syracuse opposed Villanova, No. 11 Pittsburgh faced Seton Hall and St. John's tangled with Providence in other Big East games.

The Atlantic Coast Conference tournament began with No. 2 North Carolina vs. Maryland, followed by Virginia and Georgia Tech, No. 13 Clemson against Wake Forest and No. 14 Duke vs. North Carolina State.

In the Southeastern Conference, Louisiana State, a Final Four team last year, downed Mississippi State 68-54, while Tennessee beat Vanderbilt 74-57. Today in Atlanta, it was Georgia vs. Mississippi, Kentucky against Auburn, Florida and Louisiana State, and No. 9 Alabama against Tennessee.

At Dallas, the Southwest Conference event had Texas Tech vs. Arkansas, No. 15 Texas Christian against Texas A&M, Baylor playing Southern Methodist, and Houston vs. Texas.

The Big Eight in Kansas City featured No. 19 Missouri against Colorado; No. 17 Oklahoma taking on Iowa State; Kansas State vs. Nebraska; and Kansas against Oklahoma State.

Atlantic 10
Mike Vreeswyk scored 21 points and Howard Evans added 20 points and 11 steals for Temple. Nate Blackwell, who had 19 points, was the tournament MVP.

Tyrone Shaw had 17 points for West Virginia, 23-7.

Big Sky
Harry Willis scored 23 points and Walt Tyler added 22 to pace Weber State, which finished last in the eight-team league and lost 108-78 at Montana State during the season.

"I don't know if the kids were looking to pay back or what, but they played with a lot of intensity," Coach Larry Farmer said. "When the kids line up, they have short memories. It's been a frustrating season so far, but this takes a little of the sting away. I think we showed people how well we're capable of playing."

"Weber State took it to us," Bobcats Coach Stu Starnes said. "They jumped on us early and we didn't handle it well."

Idaho State took second-seed Boise State 78-77 behind Jim Rhode's 24 points. A 3-point try by Boise's Doug Usitolo at the buzzer bounced off the backboard.

Idaho won 63-62 against No. 3 Montana as the Vandals, who hit 67 percent of their free throws during the season, sank 17 of 18 attempts. Ken Luckett hit four crucial free throws in the final minute.

Nevada-Reno was the only higher-seeded team to win Thursday as Boris King scored 28 points in an 82-80 win over host Northern Arizona.

Mid-Continent
Ken McFadden scored 23 points as Cleveland State overcame a 14-point deficit to defeat Eastern Illinois. The Vikings outscored the Panthers 26-12 over a 12-minute span to tie the score at 53, then blanked Eastern Illinois the rest of the way.

Trans America
Texas-San Antonio's Frank Hampton missed a 3-point shot at the buzzer, allowing top-seeded Arkansas-Little Rock to escape with the victory.

UALR was without center Paris McCurdy, suspended from the team this week for disciplinary reasons. Curtis Kidd, the Trojans' top scorer, missed all nine of his shots from the field before fouling out.

But Eddie Powell hit six 3-pointers as he scored 22 points, all in the first half. James Dawn added 19 points.

Pac-10
The first-ever Pacific-10 tournament got underway with Arizona State ripping Washington State as Steve Beck scored 13 of his 19 points in the second half and Bobby Thompson got 12 of his 14 in the second period.

Anthony Taylor scored 14 points and Oregon outlasted Southern Cal. After the lead changed four times in the second half, Oregon went on top for good on David Girley's 10-foot jumper with 2:07 left.

Big East
Boston College didn't lead until Jamie Benton hit a jump shot with 14 seconds remaining that gave the Eagles their win. Tyrone Scott tied the game for BC with 1:22 remaining on a layup, the third tie of the game's final three minutes. Connecticut's Gerry Besselink missed a short jumper and the tip-in attempt with 57 seconds left, setting the stage for Benton to win it.

Dana Barros led Boston College with 25 points, including five of six from 3-point range. Freshman guard Steve Pikiell scored a career-high 27 points for Connecticut.

SEC
For LSU to get back to the Final Four would be a major surprise. But the Tigers had too much for Mississippi State Thursday night, as LSU forced 18 turnovers and made 11 steals.

Anthony Wilson and Oliver Brown each scored 18 points for LSU.

"The key for us was again the three things that we are among the tops in the league in: defense, steals and causing turnovers," LSU Coach Dale Brown said. "We're not a team that wins pretty. We're a blue-collar type of team."

Tony White, the SEC's leading scorer, hit for 30 points in lifting Tennessee over Vanderbilt.

No. 6 Iowa 103, Northwestern 76
The Hawkeyes had little trouble with the Big Ten's worst team as Kevin Gamble scored 21 points and reserve guard Jeff Moe connected for five 3-point field goals. Iowa made nine 3-pointers overall.

It was Iowa's 26th win of the year and the 300th coaching victory for Coach Tom Davis, who is in his first year at Iowa City.

Notre Dame 65, Miami, Fla., 49
David Rivers scored 22 points and Donald Royal 20. The Irish defense held Eric Brown, Miami's leading scorer, to only five points.

Some Say Saturday Runs Gauge Race

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Some racing people say that the final practice session on Saturday is the time to handicap the cars for Sunday's race.

"That's the time when you see the cars in their racing setup, figuring their fuel consumption and running the kind of laps they'd like to be running in the race," said Waddell Wilson, crew chief for Darrell Waltrip, the newest member of the Hendrick Motorsports team.

That's why Wilson is a bit upset this week as NASCAR's stock cars visit Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway for the Miller High Life 400, which was postponed for two weeks by a snowstorm.

Wilson, also a newcomer to Rick Hendrick's team, but considered one of the top crew chiefs and engine builders in the sport, will miss that all-important final practice Saturday at the half-mile oval.

Instead, he'll be in Charlotte, N.C., walking his daughter, Lisa, down the aisle at the First Baptist Church.

The wedding was scheduled on what had been an open weekend in the grueling 29-race Winston Cup season. When the race postponement came, Wilson knew immediately he would not be in Richmond on Saturday.

"I should be at the track with Darrell and the rest of the crew, but I'll be dressed in a monkey suit, giving Lisa away in Charlotte," he said with a grin. "I'd never hear the end of it from her or her mama if I wasn't there."

But Wilson might be excused if he spends some of his time Saturday with his mind drifting back to the .542-mile track in Richmond.

"It's our first short-track race together, and we know the pressure will be on to perform well," Wilson said. "That's another reason why I hate to miss the last practice session."

But the curly-haired Wilson will be back in plenty of time for Sunday's 400-lap race.

Wilson had been with the Harry Ranier's team, preparing cars for Cale Yarborough in recent years. But the team ran a limited schedule which did not include any short track races.

"This is my first short track race since 1982 and we haven't had as much test time as we wanted because of the weather," he said. "It seems like every time we scheduled a test session for our short track car, we either got snowed or iced out. We finally did test at North Wilkesboro (N.C.) and Darrell seemed pretty pleased. But we would have liked more test time."

Waltrip, a three-time Winston Cup champion who has driven for Junior Johnson in recent years, holds the Richmond qualifying record of 91.218 mph and will be among the favorites when the pole and the rest of the top 20 qualifying spots go up for grabs today.

TRW Chief Blames People In Pentagon Overcharges

By OSWALD JOHNSTON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — TRW Chairman Ruben Mettler, rebutting accusations by former employees that overcharges on government contracts were caused by flaws in the aerospace giant's internal policies, told Congress Thursday that the issue was "a people problem, not a system problem."

Mettler denied allegations by two TRW executives who contend that they were fired last December to divert attention from serious irregularities in the company's accounting procedures.

He asserted that the two former employees, who oversaw units where overcharges occurred, were themselves responsible for the abuses.

"The other 8,000 TRW employees got the message that legal and ethical behavior was a top priority," Mettler told the Energy and Commerce subcommittee on investigations, which for two days has heard testimony from former TRW employees who blamed their problems on their superiors. "It was not a system problem. It was a people problem."

However, Mettler acknowledged that the company, in four self-initiated investigations, has uncovered overcharges totaling between $10 million and $23 million, but said the company intends to reimburse the government.

TRW is fighting any government consideration of a possible suspension of the company as a defense contractor. The Defense Logistics Agency, which has the authority to suspend a contractor, is examining TRW's conduct.

Mettler insisted that four well-publicized recent cases of TRW overcharges and quality control failures came to light only because of a tough self-policing policy, in which he insisted TRW is an industry leader.

Mettler explained that before March 1985 it was standard practice for a defense contractor to estimate overhead on a percentage basis, then negotiate the final amount with Department of Defense procurement officials. When TRW billings were withdrawn and audited, it turned out that ineligible costs had been included, including country club dues, travel by executives' wives and boarding a dog at a kennel.

But Mettler rejected any suggestion by dismissed TRW officials and committee Democrats that the company was targeting mid-level officials for discipline while overcompensating top executives who should have been held responsible.

To open the hearing Thursday, fired TRW executives Robert L. North, a senior corporate officer, and Hugo Poza, who reported to North and headed a San Diego based unit where overcharges occurred, blamed the problems poorly designed and overly complex company accounting procedures.

"The point was to isolate a few individuals they could cite for wrongdoing and ignore the root causes," North testified.

"The discipline was more a matter of showmanship than anything else," said Poza, who said the charging procedures at the San Diego unit were used at other TRW operations, including one in Redondo Beach, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Mettler, however, asserted no similar overcharging problems were found at the Redondo Beach unit, and charged that North and Poza "used charging practices that were completely outside any acceptable range."

Citing testimony Wednesday from Larry L. Eagley, a former comptroller at TRW's compressor components division in Cleveland, where there had been overcharges on rotor blades manufactured for military jet engines, subcommittee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., and other committee members asked why Eagley was fired but company higher ups were not disciplined.

Mettler explained that Wallace "was the whistle blower" who started the investigation and Wilson was unaware of the abuses because "Eagley kept the information" from him.

Jobs Rate Holds At 3-Month Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate held at 6.7 percent in February — its third month at the lowest rate in nearly six years — as 290,000 married women found new jobs, the government said today.

In all, the economy created 370,000 jobs last month, according to a Labor Department survey of households.

Added to the gains in previous months, nearly 1.2 million Americans have found work since October. The proportion of the civilian population at work edged to a record 61.2 percent last month, the department said.

Over the last year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said, the nation's workforce has grown by 2.2 million people, with adult women accounting for nearly three out of five new job holders or seekers.

The greatest job gains last month, seasonally adjusted, were in retail trade, with 130,000 jobs created. Nearly half of the growth was in department and general merchandise stores.

Service employment rose by 115,000 jobs, with large gains in business and health services. Factory employment grew by 50,000 after a gain of only 3,000 in January.

"But most of the increase represented the return to work of people who had been involved in labor-management disputes," said Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics in remarks to the congressional Joint Economics Committee.

She was referring to the end of a lockout at USX by steelworkers and the end of strikes in the machinery industry.

The number of Americans listed as officially unemployed fell by 56,000 to 7,967,000 in February, only the second month in the last 5½ years that that number has dipped below 8 million.

In December, the number had dropped to 7.95 million. But it jumped back to just over 8 million in January.

The number of jobholders reached a record 113,122,000 last month. More people are working part-time, however, because they cannot find full-time jobs, today's report said. The number of people working part-time for economic reasons jumped 275,000 to 5,780,000.

Ms. Norwood said that blacks have been entering the labor force at almost twice the rate of whites over the last year. But she did not say what portion had found work.

The labor force growth rate among Hispanics is even greater, she said.

"Although the comprise only 7 percent of all U.S. workers, Hispanics accounted for 23 percent of the overall increase in employment," she told the committee.

The jobless rate for Hispanic workers fell a full percentage point in February, to 9.6 percent, roughly midway between the 14.3 percent black jobless rate and the 5.7 percent white jobless rate.

Black joblessness in January had been an identical 14.3 percent; the white jobless rate had been 5.9 percent.

Among other groups, the department gave these jobless figures:

- Adult men, 5.9 percent, down from 6.0 percent.
- Adult women, 5.8 percent, down from 5.9.
- Teenagers, 18.0 percent, up from 17.7.
- Black teenagers, 38.9 percent, down from 39.5.

The number of married women at work has risen by 1.1 million over the last year to 27.8 million.

Carpenter Plans Solo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-composer Richard Carpenter soon plans to release his first solo album, "Time," and may make his first national tour since the death of his sister Karen four years ago. Dionne Warwick, Dusty Springfield and Herb Alpert also perform on the album, which will be released in May, Bob Garcia, spokesman for A&M Records, said Thursday. "It is all original material ... produced, arranged and played by Richard. He does all of the male vocals," Garcia said. Carpenter, 41, wants to see how the album does before deciding on a tour, Garcia said. The singer has made many solo appearances since his sister's death and has appeared as a guest artist with various orchestras, Garcia said.

Karen Carpenter died in February 1983 from effects of anorexia nervosa, an eating disorder characterized by emaciation and the avoidance of food. She and her brother broke into the pop music scene in 1970 when she was 20 and he was 24. Their hits included "We've Only Just Begun," "Close to You" and "Rainy Days and Mondays."

Recovery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doctors say Gilda Radner can resume her television comedy work four months after having a cancerous cyst removed from her ovary.

Actress Undergoes Liver Transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Linda Marchiano, who starred as Linda Lovelace in the sex film "Deep Throat," underwent surgery to receive a new liver today. Mrs. Marchiano, 37, of New York's Long Island, extremely ill with hepatitis, was rushed to Presbyterian-University Hospital of Pittsburgh Thursday evening after a suitable donor was found, said hospital spokeswoman Chris Shirer. The operation began at 10:40 p.m. and was expected to last about 12 hours. "Things are proceeding normally," hospital administrative assistant Roxann McCutcheon said early this morning. Mrs. Marchiano's husband, Larry, accompanied his wife to the hospital and maintained a vigil there overnight, according to Miss Shirer.

No information regarding the liver donor was available.

Mrs. Marchiano underwent tests last November at the hospital to determine whether she was a suitable transplant candidate. She was placed on the list for liver transplants eight days later and returned to her home in Center Moriches to wait.

She arrived back in Pittsburgh about two weeks ago and was staying near the hospital, according to Miss Shirer.

Doctors believe Mrs. Marchiano contracted hepatitis from blood she received after a car accident in 1970.

The problem was not discovered until last September, when she was undergoing tests at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York in preparation for a radical double mastectomy, which was postponed.

"I've had medical problems on and off for the past two years," she said during an interview last November. "They knew there was something wrong with my liver, but they didn't know what."

Mrs. Marchiano has insisted she made "Deep Throat" in 1972 against her will. She began speaking out against pornographers in 1973 and subsequently married. She has a 10-year-old son and 6-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Marchiano, a homemaker and part-time author and lecturer, had requested help from the public last November in paying for the transplant, which could cost as much as $200,000.

"People think my husband and I are filthy rich from the bad experience I had, but it's far from that at all," she said at the time. "He's a laborer, and we go week to week like everybody else in middle America."

Poitier Returns To Acting Role

MONROVIA, Calif. (AP) — Sidney Poitier has returned to acting after years of producing and directing, but his sympathies seem to remain with the management side of movie-making.

"We as actors don't deserve $6 million or $10 million up front if a picture doesn't get its cost back," Poitier said recently in an interview on the set of his 42nd movie. "Nothing would upset me more than to be in a film for which I was paid a great deal of money that didn't work."

Poitier, 60, plays an FBI agent in "Little Nikita," a film about a teenager whose parents are spying for the Soviet Union.

Writer Says Silent Films Created For Live Music

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Davis had no trouble proving that silence is melodic when he composed scores for silent movies starring Lillian Gish, Greta Garbo, Douglas Fairbanks and John Gilbert.

As the composer of "The French Lieutenant's Woman," starring Meryl Streep and Jeremy Irons, he's shown that he also has no problem with talkies.

Davis conducts his music during a silent film festival at Radio City Music Hall, running March 5 through March 8.

"Silent films were never meant to be shown silently," Davis said. "They were always created to have live music. When they were made, they had musicians on the sets, creating the right mood."

"We all think of a pianist or organist improvising to the film — the least inviting thing in the world. The major cinemas in the major cities had orchestras. Each had a music director, some ambitiously composing music. Very few studios issued scores for their films. Some did. You can get the scores of 'Birth of a Nation' and chunks of 'Intolerance.'"

Davis, who was born in Brooklyn in 1936, composed the music for "The Wind," "Flesh and the Devil," "Thief of Bagdad" and "The Big Parade" for the Thames Silent Film Festival, part of the London Film Festival since 1980. He has composed all 14 scores for the festival's silents and this year will score "The General" and the 1925 "Ben-Hur."

He conducted his "Flesh and the Devil" score last month in Luxembourg. He conducts for about 25 silents a year, and will go to Belgium, Israel and Sweden this year.

"Up to the late '70s, the bulk of my work had been fitting into the English and BBC scene," he said. "I hadn't used any of my American background. In 1978, Thames Television did a 13-part series on the history of silent film. That involved me in learning about how they handled the scores, what sources they went to."

"In 1980, there was knowledge the Music Hall was going to put on the silent movie, 'Napoleon.' Thames decided they would commission a version with music by myself. I said, 'Why two versions?'"

"They said the Radio City version would be shown at 24 frames per minute. The speed of film projection only became standardized with the coming of sound. In the main, silent films were hand-cranked. The jerky movement is because the film is being shown too fast. Our 'Napoleon' was shown at 20 frames."

Davis was then commissioned to compose music for a series of silent film classics. He reconstructed the 1919 score for "Broken Blossoms," preserving the sections from "Madama Butterfly" it used.

"For 'Thief of Bagdad,' I decided it looked so much like Diaghilev's Russian Orientalism that I used 'Scheherazade' as the basic source. When I ran out of Rimsky-Korsakov I provided my own 'in the manner,'" he said.

For "Flesh and the Devil" he wrote a theme "which shimmers around Garbo on solo violin. That theme becomes a waltz at the ball. The moment you get it to feel the music and picture go together is what this is about."

Davis uses his classical background in writing for theater and film music. "The ambiance of 'The French Lieutenant's Woman' was Brahms and early Schoenberg," he said. "I said, 'Let's pretend they're writing.' I gave it the best classical music I could provide. The art is to make it help the film, not that there's a lot of heavy stuff going on."

Breaking Away

On this day in 1836, Mexican troops captured the Alamo after a 13-day siege. Only one man escaped the assault on the Alamo. After being advised of the hopelessness of the situation, Louis "Moses" Rose and the other men present were asked to lay down their lives for the glory of Texas. Rose, who had fought with Napoleon Bonaparte, chose instead to flee. He leaped over a wall and ran, narrowly escaping capture by Mexican troops. Rose lived 14 more years.

DO YOU KNOW — In what city is the Alamo located?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — "Out of Africa" won the Oscar for Best Picture of 1985.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY March 7

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be alert to the need for changing conditions. There may seem to be delays in new beginnings. Don't be fooled by this and things will happen quickly.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Correspondence with others can show you the current trends in business. Study carefully those telephone calls.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): New situations are now coming up that can be opportunities for advancement. Grasp at these.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be prepared for changes to occur in some association you value. Double your efforts and be wise.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Meditate quietly about some limitations. You are then free to go about your activities intelligently.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Some friends may not agree with your mate, but there is no need to take sides. Remove yourself from the situation.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Study your status in the outside world and plan how to enhance it instead of puttering around the house so much.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): You have fine ideas that should be put into operation, so get out of that daily rut you've been in.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Many changes can occur in your business affairs. It would be wise to build up credit holdings now.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): You think a partner has too many interests. Replace this association with one more like yourself.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Plan your Saturday tasks more wisely. Seek the pleasures you like this evening.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Get the arrangements made for pleasures you prefer. Get some talent working better.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): The situation at home may be unsatisfactory, but don't run away from this. It would make things worse.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very vivacious and emotional and should have good spiritual training very early in life. The mind is good and would do well in the field of sales. Teach this one to finish what has been started. Give the finest academic training you can.

player will realize he must resort to the bizarre if his side is to have any chance. If he is successful, the results can be flabbergasting.

South probed for a major suit in his partner's hand with his Stayman two-club bid, then offered his partner a choice of contracts with his jump to three spades. North showed a maximum no trump with diamond strength, but that was the last thing South wanted to hear.

Looking at all four hands, it is obvious declarer can collect 11 tricks because the ace of hearts is with West. However, the auction made it clear to West that the contract was going to be hard to beat, especially since the king of hearts rated to be behind the ace-queen.

Since North had no more than three hearts, West decided to gamble on declarer having some length in hearts, and he selected the deceptive queen of hearts for his opening lead. He struck gold! Not surprisingly, declarer thought West was leading from the queen-jack and that East held the ace. To protect his ten from a lead through, declarer played low from dummy to the first trick. When West continued with a low heart, declarer again followed low from the table, confident East would produce the ace or that his own ten would win the trick. He was taken aback when East scored his jack at the second trick, and a heart came back to West's ace.

West continued with the 13th heart. Declarer discarded a club from the table, East ruffed with the jack and declarer overruffed. A thoroughly shaken South was now convinced that West had played a fourth heart in an effort to promote a trump trick for himself, so declarer cashed the ace of trumps and led another. When West followed with the seven, declarer finessed dummy's eight. Down one!

PETITION FOR PARTITION
LINDA P. SMITH, and husband, BOBBY GLENN SMITH, Petitioners.
Versus
HICKS I. POLLARD, (widower); PATSY P. WARREN, and husband, STUART WARREN; HICKS A. POLLARD, and wife, BRENDA C. POLLARD; and JOSEPH I. POLLARD, (single), Respondents.
NOTICE OF SERVICE OF PROCESS BY PUBLICATION
TO: Joseph I. Pollard, the above named respondent.
Take notice that a pleading seeking relief against you has been filed in the above entitled proceeding. The nature of the relief being sought is as follows:
The petitioners and respondents are tenants in common and owners of an interest in two tracts or parcels of land situated in the County of Pitt, State of North Carolina, formerly owned by Gladys A. Pollard containing two lots on North Jarvis Street and 32 acres more or less near the Pitt Branch, part of the J. Allen homestead. That the petitioners desire to hold their interest in said lands in severalty. Since the lands cannot be divided in kind, the petitioners are asking the Court to authorize the sale of the lands at public auction and the net proceeds received from said sale or sales, after the payment of the costs, including reasonable attorney fees, of this proceeding, be divided among the tenants in common and those interested therein in the proportion of their several interests.
You are required to make defense to such pleading not later than the 3rd day of April, 1987, said date being 40 days from the filing of this petition, notice, or from the date the petition is filed, whichever is later; and upon your failure to do so the party seeking service against you will apply to the Court for the relief sought.

Supernova Bolsters Star Death-Rebirth Theory

By LEE SIEGEL
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The apparent detection of tiny particles shot into Earth by a supernova blast provides the first direct evidence that exploding, dying stars are reborn as neutron stars or black holes, researchers say.

"Most of us are in a state of shock," said astrophysicist John Bahcall, of the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J. "We've been trying to understand supernovas for 30 years."

Italian and Soviet researchers alerted other scientists Saturday that they detected a seven-second burst of five of the tiny particles, called neutrinos, at 6:53 p.m. PST on Feb. 22 using a device located about a mile beneath Mont Blanc in the Alps along the Italian-French border.

That was eight hours before visible light from the explosion of Supernova 1987A first was photographed by a telescope in Australia, said Brian Marsden, director of the Smithsonian Institution's Central Bureau for Astronomical Telegrams, a Cambridge, Mass., reporting agency for astronomy discoveries.

Supernova 1987A is located in the relatively nearby Large Magellanic Cloud galaxy about 150,000 to 170,000 light years, or nearly 1 million trillion miles, from Earth. Its discovery was credited to Canadian astronomer Ian Shelton, who saw the supernova from a mountain top in Chile, because photographs from the Australian telescope weren't developed immediately.

If other devices confirm the blast shot neutrinos into Earth, "the observation of these neutrinos will be the first time we've been able to see either a neutron star or black hole forming" from material left behind by a supernova explosion, said University of Arizona astrophysicist Adam Burrows.

The discovery is "one of the most momentous events in astrophysics in the past 20 years," he said.

Theory says that when massive stars much larger than our sun exhaust their nuclear fuel, they collapse until much of their matter explodes in a supernova.

Scientists believe the remaining collapsed material forms either a black hole, which is matter so dense that its gravity sucks in light, or a slightly less dense neutron star, which contains as much matter as 1½ suns collapsed into a space the size of New York City, Burrows said.

When a collapsing star starts to explode internally, hours before the shock wave hits the star's outer shell to cause the visible supernova, neutrinos are generated, according to prevailing theory.

The neutrino burst detected by the Italian-Soviet device fits that theory, Burrows, Bahcall and University of Pennsylvania physicist Mike Cherry said during telephone interviews.

"It changes theories of supernovas from an intellectual game to a science," Bahcall said.

Neutrinos are incredibly tiny particles. People are bombarded trillions of times each second with neutrinos created by the sun and by the collision of cosmic rays with Earth's atmosphere. The particles almost always pass through matter, so they cause no harm and are very difficult to detect.

Physicists have built detectors, basically huge pools of liquid buried deep underground, to detect the few instances when neutrinos collide with an atom of matter.

The Italian-Soviet discovery, which pinpoints the precise time the supernova started to explode, is the first time neutrinos have been linked to a source outside our solar system, and the first time a neutrino burst has been detected, Burrows and Cherry said. The sun produces neutrinos in a steady stream, not bursts.

Based on the supernova theory, Bahcall and his colleagues had predicted the neutrinos would be detected.

Burrows and Cherry said that as visible light from the supernova fades during the coming months, astronomers will try to see if a neutron star or a black hole is left behind.

Because the size of the star that exploded into the supernova is smaller than what would be theoretically necessary to form a black hole, scientists expect to find a neutron star, Burrows said.

Marsden said the apparent discovery of supernova-generated neutrinos was made by a team led by Carlo Castagnoli, director of the Institute of Cosmogeophysics in Turin, Italy, and G.T. Zatsepin, of the Soviet Union's Institute of Nuclear Research.

Information collected by neutrino detectors in South Dakota, Japan and the Soviet Union is being analyzed for neutrinos from the supernova, Cherry said.

Stargazer Finds Fame

TORONTO (AP) — A 29-year-old Canadian stargazer who lives alone on a Chilean mountaintop and earns less than $15,000 a year has elated astronomers worldwide with his discovery of the explosion of a dying star — one of the most important celestial events observed in centuries.

The finding was made by Ian Shelton, a bachelor from Winnipeg described as a "self-denying sort," who is employed by a small observatory that operates on a shoestring.

In fact, the University of Toronto observatory almost had to shut down two years ago when the government slashed its grant by 30 percent.

At 11 p.m. on Feb. 23, almost by accident as Shelton waited for a comet to race across the southern hemisphere, he suddenly glimpsed an exceptionally bright star on a routine photograph. It hadn't been there hours before.

Shelton dashed outside the observatory at Las Campanas in northern Chile to take a clear-eyed look at the naked sky and confirmed his discovery.

Within hours, astronomers around the world were in a state of high excitement.

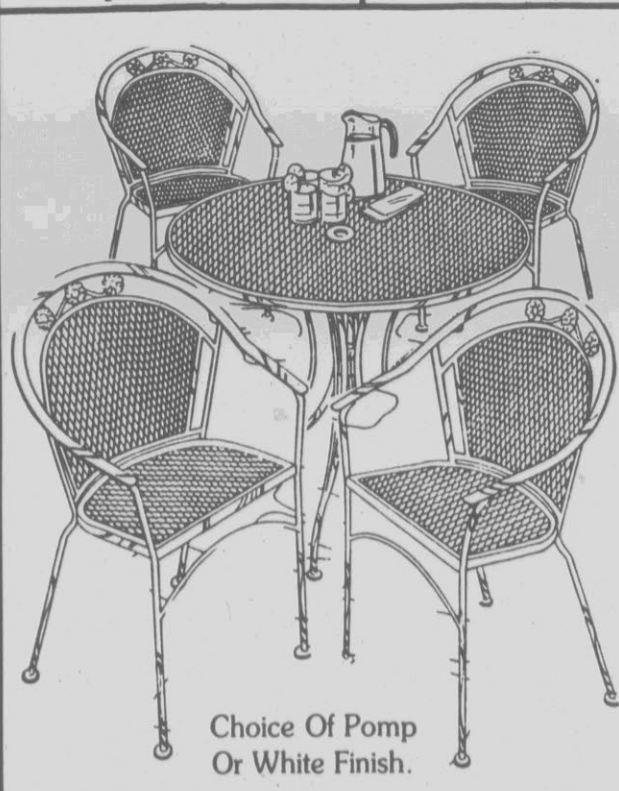

Shelton — followed a few hours later by a New Zealand amateur astronomer — had stumbled upon a supernova, the celestial explosion of a dying star.

The importance comes from the star's proximity in the Large Magellanic Cloud, a satellite of the earth's galaxy, about 150,000 light-years away, very close by astronomical standards.

That makes it the brightest supernova since 1604 and the only one visible to the naked eye since 1885.

"This is really big for astronomers and incredibly exciting to be a part of," said Dr. Robert Garrison, director of the University of Toronto observatory.

"Every telescope in the Southern Hemisphere is now looking at it," he said of the supernova, expected to fade within a month as it turns into a neutron star or black hole.
