Local Crime Up 6 Percent

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Reported crime dropped 6 percent in Greenville during 1986, according to a preliminary report on crime in North Carolina issued this week by the State Bureau of Investigation.

The SBI Division of Criminal Information said the statewide reported index of crime rose 7 percent over 1985 — up 8 percent in urban areas and up 4 percent in rural areas.

The SBI report classifies Greenville as a rural center. Total index crime in rural centers statewide dropped 1 percent in 1986, according to the report.

The SBI report said a total of 2,662 Part 1 offenses (murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny, auto theft and arson) were reported to Greenville police in 1986 — a decrease of 6 percent from the 2,818 Part 1 offenses reported in 1985.

The 2,442 property crimes reported in the city in 1986 was 6 percent lower than the 2,610 property crimes reported to the department in 1985, while violent crimes increased 6 percent — from 206 in 1985 to 220 in 1986.

Chief Ted Holmes said he was pleased with the overall decrease in crime, particularly an 8 percent decrease in commercial burglary and an 11 percent drop in residential burglary. But he expressed concern about an increase in the number of reported rapes — from 18 in 1985 to 33 in 1986.

According to Holmes, Greenville police cleared 23.25 percent of the offenses reported to the department in 1986. He said the 1986 clearance rate represents an improvement over 1985 when the clearance rate was 21.81 percent and compares favorably to the nationwide clearance rate of 20.9 percent in 1985.

Although the total Part 1 offenses reported in Greenville last year showed a decrease from 1985, Holmes said the total police department workload increased in 1986.

He said the total number of arrests in 1986 — 4,819 — was 16 percent higher than the 4,153 in 1985. Drug arrests in 1986, he said, increased 60 percent (351 in 1985 to 560 in 1986). Calls for services increased 7 percent, from 27,515 in 1985 to 29,517, and the number of traffic accidents investigated rose 10 percent — from 2,140 in 1985 to 2,362.

Part 1 offenses in Greenville in 1986 totaled 2,984, including 214 violent crimes and 2,770 property crimes, while the 2,637 offenses reported in 1985 included 187 violent crimes and 2,450 property crimes.

In 1984, 2,611 offenses were reported to Greenville police, including 200 violent crimes and 2,411 property crimes.

The clearance rate for 1986 is not available, but Holmes said the 1983 clearance rate in 1983 was 20.83 percent while in 1984 the clearance rate was 22.64 percent.

Nuclear Reactors Go Down

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — The federal Energy Department has shut down four operating nuclear reactors here because of management deficiencies that could lead to safety problems, officials said today.

The shutdowns were ordered late Thursday following an internal departmental review of how the research reactors, some in operation since the 1950s, have been run, said Joe LaGrone, manager of the department's Oak Ridge operations.

The decision followed a recommendation by an Energy Department committee that is reviewing reactor operations at Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

"I have taken this action because of cumulative concerns expressed by the headquarters committee and concerns previously outlined by our own investigation which indicated deficiencies in ORNL management and administrative controls related to reactor operations," LaGrone said.

"While there is no single concern expressed which suggests an immediate safety issue, taken together these concerns are indicative of a management problem which, if not corrected immediately, could possibly lead to a safety issue," he said.

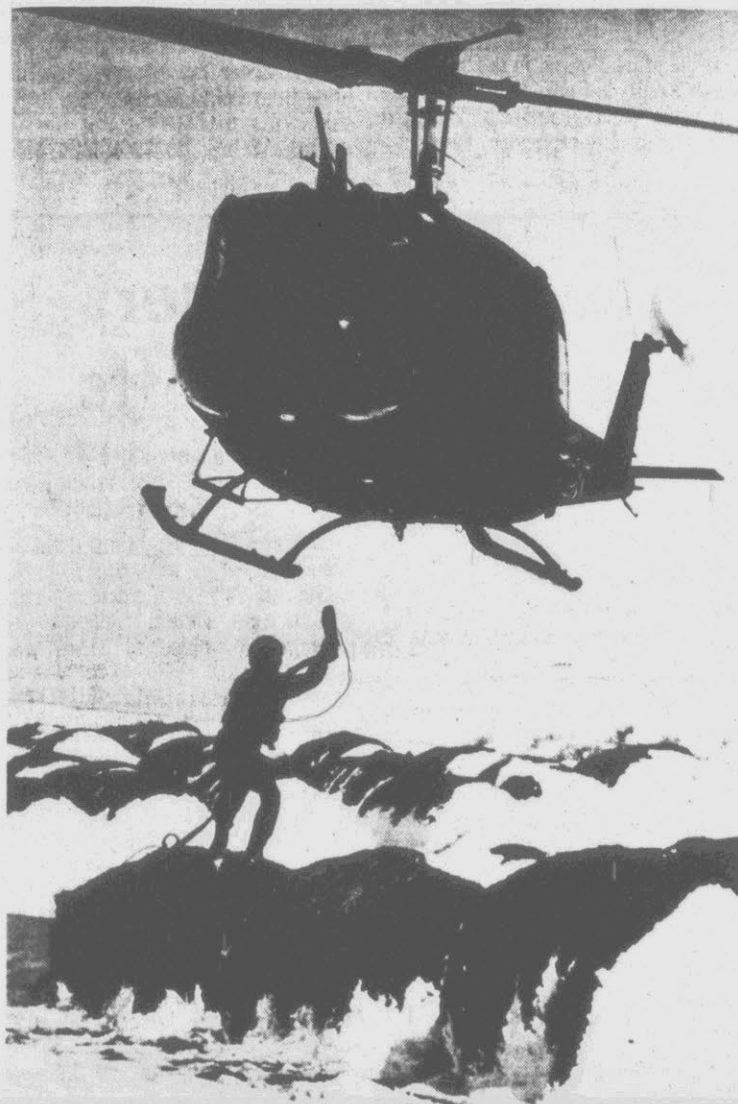

LaGrone said the shutdown would remain in effect until the Energy Department's contractor in Oak Ridge, Martin Marietta Energy Systems, Inc., demonstrates the management and oversight problems are corrected.

Officials at Martin Marietta in Oak Ridge did not immediately return telephone calls asking for comment.

The shutdown affected the Oak Ridge Research Reactor, the Bulk Shielding Reactor, the Health Physics Research Reactor and the Tower Shielding Facility.

The four reactors were used in research for the nuclear industry and medicine, said Energy Department spokesman Wayne Range. Some reactor research had helped improve safety of commercial reactor operations, the department said.

Last fall, one reactor at Oak Ridge National laboratory was shut down after inspectors found years of use and radiation had made the reactor vessel's carbon-steel alloy walls brittle.

Hostage's Wife Appeals For Help

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The day after Moslem extremists released a videotape of her husband, the pregnant wife of American hostage Jesse Turner today pleaded as an Arab for his freedom and the release of three other teachers.

In a five-minute videotaped message, Turner urged the United States and Israel to accept a prisoner swap to free fellow hostage Alann Steen, who he said was dying.

"We're living a new bitter time," the bearded and bespectacled Turner said. "We urge our wives and families to go to America and Israel and press there because the keys of our issue are there. Moving in Lebanon is useless."

Today, Badr Turner, a Lebanese, said that as an Arab, she could do nothing to help secure the kidnappers' demand for releasing prisoners held by Israel.

"Being pregnant, I badly need Jesse," she said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I plead with the kidnappers to be humanitarian and have mercy. Please release Jesse and the other teachers."

The four educators at Beirut University College were abducted on campus in Moslem west Beirut on Jan. 24 by gunmen posing as police.

They are Turner, 39, of Boise, Idaho; Steen, 47, of Boston; Robert Polhill, 53, of New York City; and Mithileshwar Singh, 60, an Indian and a resident alien of the United States.

Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine claimed their abduction.

The only American among the four wives is Virginia Rose, Steen's wife. The wives were interviewed at the college.

The kidnappers said on Monday that Steen was ailing and might die within 10 days. They offered to free him if Israel releases 100 Arab prisoners.

Israel has refused and the United States said it would not pressure Israel.

Turner's message was delivered to the Beirut offices of the leftist daily newspaper As-Safir.

Republican Says GOP Can Grow

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Carlton Smith, chairman of the Pitt County Republican Party, said this morning that he considers the events surrounding the party's county convention Tuesday night an opportunity for the party to grow.

A slate of officers headed by Smith narrowly won at the convention in a hotly contested election.

Smith said today, "I feel like it's an opportunity because a lot of people (not previously) involved in the political process are now involved. It means the organized Republican party will be growing."

He said he has talked with Mary Lou Sugg, the new party vice chairman, since the convention and established "our objectives: precinct organization, party growth, fundraising, candidate recruitment."

"We would like to take this organization and apply it to the benefit of all Republican candidates, regardless of the level they are running on," Smith said.

Smith took issue with a statement published in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Reflector about the election. The news story quoted Randy Doub, who made a nominating speech for the losing slate of officers, as saying Smith has "loyalty to the Congressional Club and (Sen. Jesse) Helms," suggesting that Smith would support Barry McCarty for state party chairman rather than Jack Hawke, who is Gov. Jim Martin's choice for the post.

Doub was Martin's campaign manager in Pitt County and is a member of the state Board of Transportation.

"I made somewhere in the neighborhood of eight campaign speeches" before the convention and "did not mention Barry McCarty once," Smith said. "That doesn't say I support him or don't support him."

Asked who he does support for the post as state chairman, Smith said "I have not made up my mind yet ... not made a stand. I've been preoccupied with the local campaign."

Smith said the selection of a county chairman was "exclusively a local

CIVICS LESSON — President Reagan, seated at a pupil's desk, watches as Heather Watson asks a question about Iran during the president's visit to Fairview elementary school in Columbia, Mo., on Thursday. Reagan Conducts Course In Civics

COLUMBIA, Mo. — President Reagan sought Thursday to leave behind the Iran-contra affair and four months of relative isolation, but the subject remained on his mind as he volunteered an impromptu defense of his policy to a sixth-grade class, acknowledging that he had traded arms for American hostages.

"It sort of settled down to just trading arms for hostages, and that's a little like paying ransom to a kidnapper," he said. "If you do it, then the kidnapper's just encouraged to go kidnap someone else." Reagan's critics have made the same point in recent months.

The president's comments came during his first political venture since the arms sales were disclosed last November. After participating in a brief civics lesson, he paused to take a sole question from Elaine Hassemer's sixth-grade class. Student Heather Watson, 11, was chosen.

"With all this publicity and the press and stuff, they like to drive me out of my mind," she told Reagan, then asked, "I just wonder what is it that made it worthwhile to you?"

Watson did not directly mention the Iran controversy, but Reagan, who appeared to have difficulty hearing, responded at length about the secret arms sales that triggered the gravest crisis of his presidency.

He recounted the fall of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, whom he said he knew personally; the rise of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and a revolution casting the United States as "the great Satan," and the kidnappings of Americans and other Westerners in Lebanon by pro-Iranian terrorists who get "direction" from Khomeini's government.

Reagan recalled his efforts to establish a "better relationship" with Iranian factions.

President Uses Ax On Road Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today vetoed an $88 billion highway bill and called it "a textbook example of special interest, pork barrel politics."

The president said the bill was a "budget-busting" measure and called on the Congress to send him a new, stripped-down version of the bill to be put forward by Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole.

"I'll sign the bill within the hour," Reagan said of the administration plan.

On Capitol Hill, leading Democrats said they do not see an override as a sure thing.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said it "would be tough because of the president's public relations machine and his arm-twisting technique."

"On the merits, we should be able to overcome it," said Byrd. "I hope the members won't chicken out and (will) do what is best for their state and their constituents."

Judges Say Legislators Must Act To Save Prisons

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Two local District Court judges suggest that the solution to prison overcrowding in North Carolina is in the hands of the General Assembly, not with the state's judiciary.

The assembly earlier this month passed legislation "to provide for the stabilization of the prison population," that says if the prison population exceeds 17,460 for 15 consecutive days, the State Parole Commission must parole enough prisoners within the next 60 days to reduce the prison population to 17,280. The inmate population stood at 18,067 on Thursday.

When the parole commission's mandate is triggered, the act provides that people sentenced to local jails may not be transferred to the Corrections Department, regardless of the level of overcrowding in the jail, and allows the Corrections Department to return to a local jail any prisoner previously transferred from the jail.

The bill also places restrictions on sentencing.

The legislation allows trial judges to order persons convicted of misdemeanors to serve sentences in any local jail facility in which space is available, if the facility has space and the parole commission's mandate is in place.

A letter to all District and Superior Court judges from the Administrative Office of the Courts notified the judges "of the triggering of the mandate to the Parole Commission" Thursday.

Chief District Court Judge Burt Aycock said "the real crunch is going to come when that restriction is in place (and you have to) sentence misdemeanants to a local facility and there is no space."

"I don't know what that will

Drug Arrests Made

Three Washington, N.C., men were arrested by Greenville police Thursday on drug charges.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said Edward Duane Rook, 23, Mark Howard Rook, 22, and Frederick M. Rook, 26, all of 116 Pinetree Drive, were charged with conspiracy to possess marijuana.

Pruitt said the three were arrested about 1:25 p.m. on Mumford Road.

Residence Entered

Greenville police said a break-in was reported at 116D River Bluff Apartments about 12:30 a.m. today.

Officer L.R. McLeod said $20 worth of silverware and a blanket valued at $30 were reported taken from the residence.

Property Damaged

Greenville police said two men were arrested on damage to real property charges early today in connection with a 1:09 a.m. incident at Globe Hardware at 120 W. Fifth St.

Officers S.R. Ward and B.W. Lewis said Brian David Bartram, 19, of Poguson, Va., and Stephen Pascal Draughon, 18, of 305D Tobacco Road were charged after a window, valued at $200, was broken at the hardware store.

Department Benefit

A gospel sing featuring the King's Messengers will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the D.H. Conley High School auditorium.

The concert is sponsored by the Red Oak Volunteer Fire Department and all proceeds will assist in purchasing equipment for the department.

Reflector Ad Cited

The Daily Reflector display advertising department has received a first-place award from the Mid-Atlantic Newspaper Advertising Marketing Executives for a promotional advertisement.

The advertisement for the Reflector's new lineup of Sunday comics took the highest award in the category of "best ad promoting a newspaper's circulation, advertising, editorial or other departments" for a circulation of 15,000 to 40,000.

The ad, featuring cartoon characters from the Sunday funnies, was designed by Marty Hardin. The text was written by advertising director Gerald Van Nostrand.

Van Nostrand accepted the award this week at a marketing executives meeting in Charleston, S.C.

The Mid-Atlantic Advertising Marketing Executives organization is composed of members from North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia and West Virginia.

Tickets are available at the door or from any Red Oak volunteer fireman.

Warren Wants School Commissioner Named

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

RALEIGH — Rep. Ed Warren, D-Pitt, has filed a bill in the N.C. House of Representatives which would give the state Board of Education and the state superintendent of public instruction the power to appoint a commissioner of public schools.

The commissioner of public schools would be responsible for directing the administration and operation of a unitary Department of Public Education, according to the Unitary Education Governance bill, which was filed Thursday.

"This officer shall be operationally responsible for the management of the Department of Public Instruction and shall execute decisions and policies of the board through the staff of the Department of Public Instruction," the bill said.

"He shall not be subject to the State Personnel Act and shall serve at the pleasure of the state superintendent."

According to the bill, the commissioner would be required to organize and establish, subject to approval of the State Board of Education and within funds appropriated by the General Assembly, a Department of Public Education which would include such divisions and departments as are necessary for the supervision of the public school system of North Carolina.

"All appointments of administrative and supervisory personnel shall be recommended by the commissioner for approval by the State Board of Education," the draft said.

Warren's bill also adds to the constitutionally prescribed role of the superintendent of public instruction.

Unlike the Senate bill, which calls for the appointment of the superintendent by the State Board of Education, under Warren's bill the superintendent would still be elected.

"I believe we should continue to allow the people to choose," said Warren, a member of the Appropriations Expansion Budget Committee on Education and High Education Committee.

Changing the superintendent to an appointed position would require a constitutional amendment, according to Warren.

"I am not in favor of changing the Constitution," he said.

According to Warren's bill, the superintendent of public instruction would be provided a staff of not more than two professional positions, plus an administrative assistant and a secretary.

"The term 'chief state school officer,' wherever used, shall be deemed to refer to the superintendent of public instruction," the bill said.

"It shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to serve as the chief administrative officer, secretary, and full-time chairman of the State Board of Education."

Jones Files Day Care Proposal

RALEIGH — Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr., D-Pitt, has introduced legislation in the N.C. General Assembly giving the more than 6,000 North Carolina Home Day Care Plan providers representation on the Child Day Care Commission.

The bill, proposed by Jones, would increase the total membership of the commission from 15 to 17, increasing the appointments to the commission by the General Assembly from eight to 10 — five each upon the recommendation of the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House.

Jones said he feels home day care providers should have representation on the Child Day Care Commission.

Praising the "outstanding performance and the excellent service" provided by all day care providers in North Carolina, Jones said that his bill would require all segments of day care be represented on the commission.

If the proposed legislation passes, the General Assembly's appointees would be named for terms commencing on July 1, and expiring on June 30, 1989. The legislation would become effective July 1.

Jones, who served as a member of the House Day Care Study Commission, is vice chairman of the House Committee on Youth and Children. He also serves as a member of the Governor's Advocacy Council on Youth and Children.

Greenville Officers Studying 14 Thefts

Investigators said 14 thefts were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer T.E. Nevelle said a physician's bag containing medical supplies was taken from a car, a quantity of tools was taken from a truck and a radio antenna valued at $250, a computerized chart recorder valued at $1,200, a Loran unit valued at $1,500 and a speedometer valued at $200 were taken from a boat at 1413 Polk Ave. in an incident reported at 7:50 a.m.

Neville also said property was taken from three vehicles parked at the Fresh Way Food Store at 810 E. 10th St. in incidents reported at 1:30 p.m.

A stereo, two speakers, a power booster and equalizer, a box containing 36 cassette tapes and a wallet containing $15 in cash were taken from one car, Nevelle said, while a stereo, two speakers and two boxes containing cassette tapes were taken from a second vehicle. He said a cassette player was taken from the third vehicle.

Officer S.A. Person said a citizens band radio was taken from a vehicle parked at the Fresh Way Store in an incident reported at 8:04 a.m., while a 1972 model motorbike valued at $500 was taken from 222 Kings Arms Apartments on Charles Street in an incident reported at 3:35 p.m.

Person said a 30-horsepower outboard boat motor valued at $2,500 was taken from 2612 S. Wright Road in an incident reported at 1:30 p.m.

Officer B.M. Highland said a motorized bicycle was taken from 307 S. Summit St. in an incident reported at 8:35 a.m., while a 25-horsepower boat motor valued at $1,900 was taken from 2703 Crockett Drive in an incident reported at 9:11 a.m.

Officer D.R. Wyrick said a 7.5-horsepower boat motor valued at $1,000 and a depth finder valued at $400 were taken from 2611 S. Wright Road in an incident reported at 7:15 a.m.

Officer L.R. Kepler said tools and parts for copiers valued at $1,000 were taken from a vehicle parked at 3103 Landmark St. in an incident reported at 2:22 p.m., while Officer C.M. Credle said two trees valued at $100 were taken from the yard of 1013 E. Wright Road in an incident reported at 3:59 p.m.

Officer W.S. Heath said a 1980 model car was taken from Hollowell's Drug Store at the intersection of Sixth Street and Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 8:01 p.m. Heath said the vehicle was recovered about 9:15 p.m. in the 1200 block of Battle Street.

Officer R.S. Sawyer said a television set valued at $550 was taken from 1509A N. Washington St. in a break-in reported at 9 p.m.

Firm Announces a Prescription-Free Solution For Thinning Hair

Minneapolis — Robert Taylor, Chief Executive Officer of MINNETONKA CORP., said the personal care product firm has agreed to distribute and market Foltene® Treatment for Thinning Hair in the U.S. This product makes hair look fuller, thicker and healthier.

Foltene treatment was developed by an Italian pharmaceutical company when research scientists noticed that special compounds they were testing had a beneficial side effect. When used in topical hair treatments, condition of thinning hair significantly improved. The researchers then mixed a number of these biological extracts together to create a unique Tricosaccaride® compound which is the basis for Foltene treatment.

Foltene treatment has been marketed in European countries for more than five years and has been acclaimed for its unique process of enhancing the look of thinning hair.

Taylor said the product will be available, without prescription, in department stores throughout the United States.

NOTE: Foltene is now available in all JC Penney Stores with cosmetic departments.

Kids' Health Fair

A "Health Fair for Kids" will be held at Carolina East Mall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

A series of booths will offer various health and safety-related activities for children. Prizes and certificates will be awarded.

Participants will practice "stop, drop and roll," an activity to teach them to roll on the ground if their clothes are burning. Children will learn about prevention and first aid for poisoning and about seatbelt use. They will play with stethoscopes, try on hospital masks, caps and gloves, and become familiar with some of the equipment they would see in a doctor's office or hospital.

The fair is sponsored by the Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina as part of Children and Hospitals Week. For information call Anna Blair, Cindy Stephenson or Bill Bevell at the Children's Hospital, 757-4979.

Quake Hits West N.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A light earthquake shook parts of East Tennessee and western North Carolina today, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

The tremor, recorded with a magnitude of 4.3 on the Richter scale, happened about 2:29 a.m. EST and was centered some 30 miles southwest of Knoxville, Tenn., the geological survey said.

The earthquake was reported felt in parts of East Tennessee from Knoxville to Chattanooga and in some counties of western North Carolina, the geological survey said.

The tremor happened in the same general area as a magnitude 3.4 earthquake on Sept. 24, 1982, which caused some minor damage in Knoxville and Alcoa, Tenn., the geological survey said.

The Richter scale is an open-ended gauge of energy released by an earthquake as measured by ground motion recorded on a seismograph.

Permits Approved

The Greenville Board of Adjustment has approved a request by Edward Earl Aldridge and James A. Thorpe for a special use permit to allow a pawn shop at 3205 E. 10th St.

The property, which is zoned highway commercial, is located between Paul Putt Golf and Games and St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The board also approved a request by David J. Whichard II and John S. Whichard for a special use permit to allow a newspaper operation at 209 Cotauche St. The property is zoned office and institutional.

Board members approved for one year a request by Reynolds Aluminum and James Roberson for renewal of a special use permit in order to maintain a trailer at 1114 N. Greene St. for the purpose of storing aluminum. The property is zoned commercial downtown fringe.

A request by Jesse R. Laughinghouse for a variance in order to expand the Bostic-Sugg Furniture building beyond the 40 percent maximum lot coverage limit was approved. The property is located at 401 W. 10th St.

In other business, Howard Cummings was elected vice chairman of the board.

Washington Team Wins Expo Award

Fourteen teams of students won awards during the recent "Energy Expo" competition at East Carolina University.

"Energy Expo" was held in conjunction with the Northeast Regional Science Fair, which drew students from schools in the 15-county region of northeastern North Carolina.

A first-place "Energy Expo" award and a Greenville Utilities Commission award was presented to the Washington (N.C.) High School team composed of Lisa Holland, Dayette Gunter, Kim Edwards, Tokeya Tucker and Tracy Graham; the teacher adviser was Marietta Jones. A second-place award went to the Washington High School team made up of Yvette Clark, Valerie West, Parker Dawson and Vickie Edmunds and teacher adviser Marietta Jones.

Williamston Primary School received a second place award. The team included students Aimee Chung, Meredith Hardison and Mary Katherine Slade and teacher Edna Thomas.

The purpose of the competition is to promote scientific inquiry, creative problem solving, improved communication skills and energy conservation.

Airspace Request Not Acceptable

Nobody goes to the beach — especially not to a national seashore — to be buzzed by a Marine Corps jet.

But if the military is granted a requested restricted airspace over five coastal North Carolina counties, visitors to the state's shores will find themselves sunning in the shadow of noisy aircraft instead of watching seagulls glide on ocean breezes. Rather than the lovely sound of waves washing the shore, they will hear the scream of high speed, low-altitude aerial combat practice.

Those scenes are totally incompatible with the economy and aesthetics of the affected areas. The Marine Corps' request for this territory as additional airspace is in direct opposition to the best interest of the state. The public should roar as loudly as those low-flying jets to convince the Department of Defense the idea is ridiculous.

The request is a poor choice. It's ludicrous to propose that up to 42 formations, each containing as many as 18 jets, be allowed to fly over a portion of North Carolina's prime recreation, fishing and tourism areas each day. Even more inane is the suggestion that part of this airspace be over Cape Lookout National Seashore — a pristine beach earmarked for serenity by tax dollars.

Marine officials obviously don't know what they are proposing. Jets could fly fast and furious, as low as 100 feet, from 7:30 a.m.-11:30 p.m. They could be allowed night flights too. In the 25-mile area of Beaufort, Craven, Hyde Pamlico and Washington counties and the 4-by-30 mile area in Carteret County that would be affected, the economy is based primarily on commercial fishing, tourism and farming. The roar and constant interruption of passing jets would degrade the aesthetics of the environment and cost North Carolina lost dollars in these important industries.

The state's fragile coastal resources already bear too much pressure from development. They do not need the additional burden of screeching aircraft engines and the spectre of fiery crashes.

Furthermore, the effects of continuous, high speed combat maneuvers over the coast would diminish the appeal and functionability of the land. Noise from the proposed flights would be highly irritating to residents. Hospitals, schools and retirement homes in the area would suffer especially from the disruption.

Whoever proposed the airspace made an inappropriate decision. The Marine Corps may need the practice room but it doesn't need it over the state's beaches. The state's citizens and its lawmakers must be unwavering in their opposition to an expanded Marine Corps airspace over such critical coastal resources. A much more suitable area can and must be found.

Questions

That Pentagon assessment of the Russian military buildup through 1986 is open to questioning primarily because it is a self-serving project. By raising new and more "gaps" the Defense Department has long since learned it helped during budget-bargaining.

"The Soviet Union expanded virtually every part of its military arsenal last year, in the process deploying increasingly advanced weaponry that undercuts the West's ability to deter war" is how the news report launched its story on the Pentagon study.

Well, in 1986 the United States was also expanding its arsenal, adding and deploying advanced weaponry etc. (We hope.)

If this country hasn't, it should have been. After all, defense spending is the second-largest category in the national budget which has been growing at a rate that ignores the sky as a "limit".

It's awfully hard to compare our military budget and the Soviet's military budget. Different standards are involved. We're told Russia's military outlays consume between 15 and 17 percent of the country's gross national product. By comparison, Pentagon spending consumes about 6 percent of America's GNP. (Our productivity is several times that of the USSR, so we really do not have a basis for comparison there, either.)

Nor does the comparative weapons data include production of several highly industrialized countries who are allies of the United States. The Pentagon publication should be interesting reading but it should also be taken with more than a few grains of salt.

Tortoise & Hare Candidates

'Gephardt and Biden are co-favorites to "break out" of the crowded field next February in the Iowa caucuses just as Hart did against Mondale in 1984.'

WASHINGTON — Because front-running Gary Hart still cannot convince Democratic leaders that he is a viable presidential candidate, party insiders see a tortoise-vs.-hare race to supplant him.

The tortoise is Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri: stolid and unspectacular, working the grass roots as tirelessly as Jimmy Carter and courting the party's special interests as unabashedly as Fritz Mondale. The hare is Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware: the field's most flamboyant orator who may also soon lead in prestigious endorsements.

Gephardt and Biden are co-favorites to "break out" of the crowded field next February in the Iowa caucuses just as Hart did against Mondale in 1984. Ironically, Iowa four years later is strewn with booby traps that could quickly demolish Hart's seeming national advantage.

The hare and the tortoise are unknown to rank-and-file Democrats, each showing poll support in the low single digits while Hart enjoys a huge lead far exceeding Mondale's at this stage. Yet, he has trouble convincing key party figures that he can survive the primary election ordeal.

Sen. Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, soon to be named Biden's national chairman, typifies the prestigious Democratic worthies who thus far have eluded Hart. While running about 50 percentage points behind Hart in the polls, Biden in the next few weeks promises to swamp him in endorsements.

As Ed Muskie learned in 1972, endorsements do not guarantee a nomination. But a front-runner's inability to get them constitutes a vote of no-confidence. It is not Hart's 100 percent liberal Senate voting record that frightens away the stalwarts. Although Gephardt and Biden are a little more conservative on social issues, all three pass the key liberal litmus tests (headed by opposition to contra aid, the visa for entering the Iowa Democratic competition).

Rather, Gary Hart's problems are less easily defined — especially in Iowa. "The secret is that he is in serious, serious trouble here," one of the state's Democratic insiders, neutral until now, told us.

At the root of Hart's problem, the 16 percent second-place vote in Iowa four years ago that catapulted him into national prominence in fact was built by an anti-Mondale coalition concentrated in a few counties. Party activists claim he since has ignored the state, belatedly starting to develop a base. Then, too, Hart is haunted in Iowa as elsewhere by his '84 debt, with creditors threatening to confront him on the campaign trail.

In this environment, Gephardt the Tortoise, after spending more than 100 days in Iowa, is now given the best chance for a breakout. His co-sponsorship of Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin's radical farm bill helps him with the minority of the state's farmers who vote Democratic. His blatantly protectionist trade bill endears him to the politically potent United Auto Workers union.

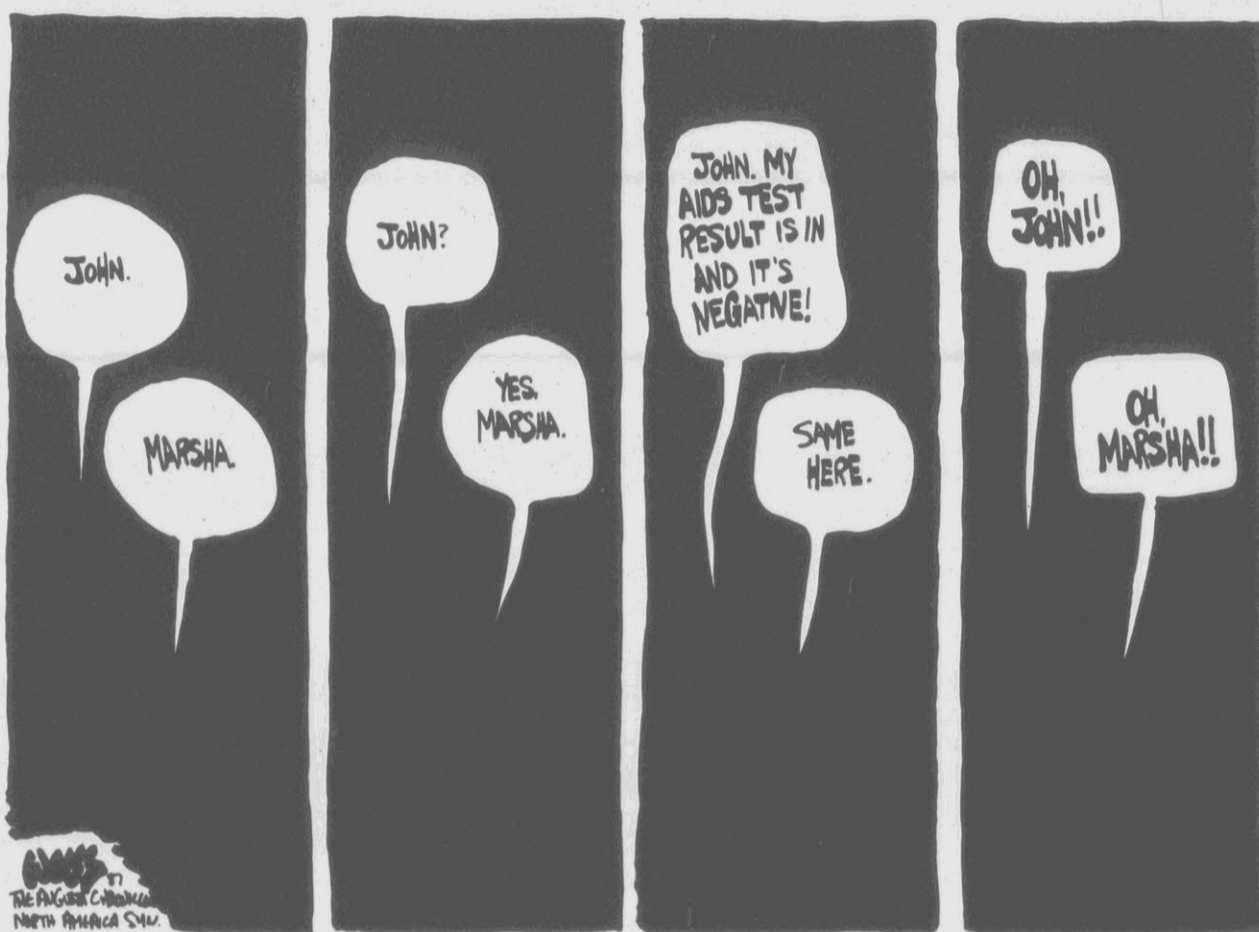

But Biden the Hare, having finally conquered indecision, rules out any snoozing to interrupt his running. His overabundant supply of Washington-based political gurus may never agree or even get along with each other, but he is now working hard at what he does best and what no other Democratic prospect does very well: revivalist oratory painting an eloquent vision of the future.

It is Biden's platform skill that causes so many leaders to be intrigued by a candidate who has neither high poll ratings nor a solid organization. Gov. Bob Casey of Pennsylvania is interested. So are labor leaders Gerry McEntee (government workers) and Bob Georgine (construction workers). Biden soon might have two to five Southern state chairman in his camp.

It is this allure of the first charismatic Democratic presidential nominee since John F. Kennedy 28 years earlier that challenges Gephardt's carefully constructed labor-farmer base in the race to make the breakout against Hart in Iowa. Since Hart's fragile lead probably cannot survive even a perception of decline, the coming year-long chase on the Midwestern prairies between the tortoise and the hare conceivably could decide the Democratic presidential nominee and the nation's next president.

Reagan Vows More Veto Fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, once described by conservative critics as "veto shy," is vowing to exercise more vetoes and to fight to sustain them as he seeks to bolster his political clout with a Congress emboldened by his Iran-Contra troubles.

"There will be a lot of vetoes," says presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

For starters, Fitzwater says the administration will wage an all-out fight to sustain Reagan's promised veto of an $87.5 billion highway bill.

This would be in sharp contrast to Reagan's last veto of Jan. 30, when he conceded in advance that Congress probably would override his disapproval of a $20 billion water cleanup bill. Both the House and Senate did as expected and overrode.

Statistically, the president has a slightly better chance this time, since 17 members of each house voted against the highway bill to begin with, compared with only six in each house on the water bill.

To win, all he needs is for one house to fall short of the two-thirds override.

A more significant difference, however, is that this time Reagan is promising an all-out effort, concentrating on the Senate, to prevent opponents from getting the 67 votes needed to override. On the water bill, he made pleas to lawmakers to support him, but did not mount any major lobbying campaign.

His objections to both bills were much alike. He denounced the water cleanup bill as "loaded with waste and larded with pork." He said the highway bill is "really a lemon" and vowed to send it back to Congress with a message to "stop the spending spree."

Some conservatives, however, say Reagan's veto performance has failed to match his rhetoric about curbing congressional spending.

A study by the influential Heritage Foundation in July 1985, said that Reagan vetoed 39 bills in his first term, or an average of about 10 per year. This was more than Presidents Carter, Nixon, Johnson or Kennedy, but fewer than President Ford, who averaged 22 per year in his less than 2½ years in office. President Eisenhower averaged 23.

According to records of the House of Representatives, Reagan's veto of the water bill was his 61st, making an additional 22 vetoes, or 11 per year so far in his second term.

His vetoes have been overridden seven times since he took office.

The Heritage study described Reagan as "veto shy" and urged him to "send an unambiguous signal to Congress that he is firmly resolved to control the deficit."

Heritage policy analyst James Gattuso, who wrote the 1985 study, says he still regards Reagan's vetoing deeds as lagging behind his vetoing words.

"What you have to do is make it very clear in advance what would be approved in a bill and what would be disapproved and stay to that," Gattuso said in an interview. "Let Congress know what is not acceptable. That is what he has done very successfully with a tax increase. It has kept Congress for two years from enacting a tax increase or even looking into a tax increase."

To have equal success in his avowed aim of holding down congressional spending, the president "must use the veto more seriously and be more consistent with following through on veto threats," Gattuso said.

Strength For Today

When Admiral Penn, father of the founder of Pennsylvania, learned that his son William had joined a group of people called Quakers who refused to fight, he considered his son a coward. But as time went on and he saw his son facing angry crowds and suffering himself, though he would not inflict suffering on others, he realized that the young man had integrity and conviction.

Peace movements do not start with governments but with individuals. William Penn went forth into a hostile world not to seek peace but to make it. As long as he governed the colony of Pennsylvania there were no hostilities between the colonists and the Indians.

Beating swords into plowshares must begin in the human heart. We must take the swords of ill-will, petty spite and carping criticism and beat these into plowshares which will cultivate a peaceful world.

Regional Compact Sets Limit On Withdrawals

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Southeast Compact Commission has voted to amend its bylaws so that any member wishing to withdraw from the compact after 1997 would need the unanimous approval of the commission and the consent of Congress. The action Thursday is an attempt to calm the fears of North Carolina officials who fear that other states will pull out after a new regional low-level radioactive waste facility opens in the state in 1992. The resolution gives each of the eight member states a five-year period to withdraw from the compact after the storage facility opens in North Carolina in 1992. The measure also calls for waste facilities to remain open for 20 years or until 32 million cubic feet of wastes are stored. Gov. Jim Martin said acceptance of the grace period by member states would satisfy one of two conditions he has set for recommending that North Carolina remain in the compact. The other is that the state be able to levy sufficient tariffs to pay for state-of-the-art technology in disposing of the wastes and to make the facility an economic boon to the host community. "I believe that we're going to get cooperation from the other states on that," Martin said. "I have talked with all the governors except Governor (Ned) McWherter of Tennessee and we'll be in touch with him. ... And I find that they were very receptive to that." The commission called on the legislatures in the eight member states and Congress to approve the changes. The other members of the compact are South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee. After the resolution was drafted Wednesday afternoon by the commission's ad hoc committee on sanctions, North Carolina member George Miller said he hoped it would appease elected officials in his state who wanted to withdraw from the organization. At Thursday's meeting, those same concerns were raised by other commissioners, including Vice Chairman Fred Braswell of Alabama. "I know they're in a bind (in North Carolina), but I want to know that they will fulfill their obligation to operate a facility," Braswell said. N.C. commissioner William Briner, who chaired the committee that drafted the motion, responded: "The big difference is that we're in the hot seat now. You're not yet. But if the commission adopts this resolution, it's an affirmation of the compact that this is the direction we ought to go." The sanctions committee decided to amend the compact's bylaws concerning withdrawal after being told by law professor Eugene Gressman that there was nothing that could be done to stop states from quitting the compact at any time. Before Thursday's vote, Miller said he could not promise that efforts would end efforts in his state to withdraw from the body. But he said the North Carolina delegation's support of the plan was a show of good faith that the state intended to fulfill its obligations. "Our concern in North Carolina is that we'll accept our share of responsibility and then there will be no one to share it with us at a later date," he said.

N. Carolina Runs Dead Last In Receipt Of Federal Funds

By The Associated Press
When it comes to handing out money, North Carolina is Uncle Sam's least favorite nephew, the Census Bureau says. A report by the bureau issued Thursday showed that North Carolina attracted the smallest stream of money from Washington last year, trailing in such categories as government aid, assistance payments to individuals and procurement. Overall, the federal government spent $3,391.94 per American last year, according to the massive Consolidated Federal Funds report for fiscal 1986. Included in that total were an average $460 in grants to state and local governments, $492.81 in salaries and wages, $1,489.90 in direct payments to individuals, $840.25 in procurement and $108.98 in other spending. The report said the federal government spent an average of $2,487.14 per person in North Carolina, making it dead last among the 50 states and District of Columbia. In Alaska, which benefited most from Uncle Sam, the figure was $5,091.13. The three-volume report analyzed the spending of some $830 billion in tax money for fiscal 1986, up from $788 billion a year earlier. It includes virtually all federal spending within the United States, except for interest on the national debt. "The biggest factor in North Carolina's poor showing would have to be procurement, contracts for the big ticket items, the hardware," said David Kellerman, a statistician who worked on the report. Kellerman said that although North Carolina is the 10th most populous state with 2.6 percent of the nation's population, its companies only snared .7 percent of the federal contracts let in 1986, or $1.5 billion of a total $205.6 billion. Steve Moazed, an aide to Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-N.C., said he had not seen the report but was surprised to hear North Carolina ranked last. "It seems unusual that North Carolina would fall last, to me," Moazed said. "It certainly presents us with a challenge to try and get a bigger piece of the pie down to North Carolina." Lancaster's 3rd District includes Onslow County, home of the Marine's Camp Lejeune. The base brings in large amounts of federal spending. Keith Pitts, an aide to Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., said he was still checking on the implications of the report but said the 7th District, which Rose represents, is an exception in most measures of federal spending.

"We finished up better than many districts," Pitts said. "We finished pretty much at the top." The 7th District contains Fort Bragg Army Base and Pope Air Force Base, which represent hefty federal spending. Pitts said Gov. Jim Martin's staff was also sorting through the report. "They're looking into it more than we are, really," Pitts said. "While, I won't seek federal funds simply because they are available, I will look for reasonable opportunities for the state to receive what it justly deserves," Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., said in a prepared statement. "I have invited a number of mayors to keep an eye out for projects that are especially deserving of federal funds and I want to extend that invitation to all local officials," he said. The study doesn't necessarily mean the government is spending too little in North Carolina, according to Ed McDonald, press secretary to Rep. Howard Coble, R-N.C. "It's just another indication the federal government is spending too much in other states," McDonald said. "But at the same time, if this money is going to be spent, we ought to get our fair share."

Hickory Area To Host Most Hopefuls For 1988 Presidential Nominations

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Between now and spring 1988, Hickory and the surrounding area will be host to most of the Republican presidential candidates and a fair number of Democratic contenders, party officials said. "We're going to see most, if not all of the Republican presidential candidates in this area, as well as other very prominent Republicans who are not candidates," said Tom Dlugos, former Catawba County Republican Party chairman. That includes a second visit by Vice President George Bush, who spoke Monday night at the county's Lincoln Day dinner. Strategists are focusing on the Hickory area for several reasons, including its media market, which stretches from Asheville in the west to Charlotte and Winston-Salem on the east. Ted Arrington, a Republican who is a political scientist at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, said Hickory "is somewhat of a Republican mecca in North Carolina." Alexander, Burke, Caldwell and Catawba counties are considered the strongest Republican area in the state, he said. Two other likely GOP presidential candidates — Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York — have appeared in the area in the last two weeks.

"If you take the Martin vote or the Ford vote or the Broyhill vote or the vote for any Republican candidate — Jesse Helms excepted — and plot it on a map, Hickory is the epicenter of the Republican turnout in the state," Arrington said. In addition to Bush, likely Republican visitors include Dole; former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who announced his 1988 presidential candidacy Tuesday; television evangelist Pat Robertson, who is considering a run for the Republican nomination; and former President Richard Nixon. Democrats say they expect Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Martin Says GOP Will Survive Infighting Over Party Leader

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says he and Sen. Jesse Helms are working to preserve Republican unity, despite a Helms ally's warning that the battle over the state GOP chairmanship could leave permanent scars. "I don't think anyone should suffer any long-term hostility or disappointment," Martin said at his weekly news conference Thursday, adding that he and Helms were "determined to keep the party together and build on it." On another topic, the governor predicted the Legislature would reject a bill introduced Tuesday by Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, that would boost the state sales tax 1 cent for four years to generate over $2 billion for building schools. Martin favors issuing up to $2 billion in bonds to create a fund for school construction. The news conference came two days after the raucous Wake County GOP convention, one of many taking place throughout the state to choose delegates to the May 29-30 state convention in Asheville where Republicans will elect a state chairman and other officers. Jack Hawke, Martin's 1984 campaign manager and a former administration official, was elected chairman by the GOP Executive Committee in January to complete the term of Bob Bradshaw, who resigned to continue his law practice. Hawke, backed by Martin and his mainstream GOP allies, is seeking a full two-year term as chairman. The conservative National Congressional Club, Sen. Jesse Helms' political organization, favors Barry McCarty of Elizabeth City. The battle between Hawke and McCarty supporters has sparked acrimony at numerous county conventions. At the six-hour Wake gathering, Martin loyalists ousted the county chairman — a McCarty supporter — and elected a slate of state delegates who back Hawke. On Wednesday, Congressional Club Director Carter Wrenn charged the Wake convention was "rigged" and said he was considering an appeal to the national GOP or a lawsuit.

Cougar Deaths Bring Charges

RALEIGH (AP) — Two North Carolina men have been charged with violating state game laws in connection with the fatal shootings of two cougars in Tyrrell County. Jeff Garry Gibbs of Fairfield and Harry Thomas Phelps of Creswell were arrested and charged in connection with the deaths of the big cats found within a three-day period last week. One of the cougars, a female, was found shot to death March 16 on the roadside. The second animal, a male, was found in a garbage dumpster March 17.

Obscenity Trial Ends In Acquittal

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — The acquittal of an Alamance County company and its president on obscenity charges may send a subtle message across North Carolina even if the case doesn't have legal ramifications outside the county, some lawyers say.

"What it tells legislators is that jurors are a lot more tolerant than the law as framed was expecting to find them," he said.

Gardner said he believes the law should be changed so local obscenity materials must be reviewed allegedly obscene material before subjecting defendants to a lengthy, costly trial. Such review was required before the law was revised in 1985.

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, who sponsored the 1985 obscenity bill, doesn't believe the law needs fixing. In fact, he considers the verdict proof the law is working.

"That's exactly what was intended," he said. "It's up to the community to decide. The verdict is a tribute to the system."

Harvey called the decision a "repudiation" of the minority in Alamance County who would attempt to determine community standards.

"Those in the minority have attempted to meddle in the general affairs of tolerant citizens," Harvey said. "And they don't have that right. The decision today underlines that fact."

Harvey and PHE still face one count each of second-degree exploitation of a minor in a charge involving actress Traci Lords and the movie "The Sex Goddess." Prosecutors said they did not know how that case would be handled.

Jury foreman Robert West said the jury reached its decision in five minutes, but continued its discussion for an hour in deference to prosecutors.

"It just seems like government is trying too hard to regulate what we look at," West said. "We just felt like the whole deal was politically motivated."

The company, which is headquartered outside Chapel Hill, was charged last year after a State Bureau of Investigation agent in Alamance County bought four videos and two magazines through the mail.

These materials, which feature hour-long sprees of anal and oral intercourse, were shown to the jury this week.

"The first five minutes were tantalizing," West said. "After that it was boring."

Bus Accident

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Fifteen students and an adult bus driver were treated at a Charlotte hospital after two school buses collided in front of a junior high school, officials say.

Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools spokeswoman Myra Joines said the 7:55 a.m. accident Thursday occurred in front of Hawthorne Traditional Junior High School, and was one of the most serious bus accidents this year in Charlotte.

"It is definitely the most serious in terms of damage," Ms. Joines said. "Fortunately, there were no serious injuries."

The accident occurred when one school bus turned in front of another bus, Ms. Joines said. "The buses virtually hit head-on," she said.

Damage to one bus was estimated at $4,000, while the other received at least $5,000 in damage and may be a total loss, Ms. Joines said.

Driver Killed

RALEIGH (AP) — A tank truck carrying 1,500 gallons of heating oil slipped off a low shoulder on a Raleigh street and flipped over, killing the truck's driver and injuring his passenger, authorities said.

Paul J. Hobbs, 18, of Wendell was thrown from the truck as it flipped off the road a second time, said the state Highway Patrol. The passenger, Eric R. Stencil, 61, remained in the truck after it overturned. Both men, employees of Norwood Oil Co., were taken to Wake Medical Center, where Hobbs later died. Stencil was treated for a broken collar bone and released.

Cell Study

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Researchers are studying ways to put biological brakes on abnormal cells before they grow into life-threatening cancers.

Gathered for a conference at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, they are focusing on substances called growth factors that fuel the uncontrolled growth of cells into cancer. Although early in their study, scientists say the growth factors may offer more promise in fighting many kinds of cancer than conventional treatment with chemotherapy drugs.

Scientists are turning to the study of growth factors at least partly because they have been frustrated by chemotherapy's limited success. Chemotherapeutic drugs — which work by poisoning cancer cells — have only partly reduced the death rate from the most common cancers of the lung, breast and colon.

The study of growth factors eventually could show scientists how to halt or reverse the abnormal cell growth that gives rise to cancer.

Onslow Arrests

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Five Onslow County men were arrested Thursday and charged with multiple counts of participating in and promoting prostitution of a minor.

All the charges stem from incidents on Feb. 6-9, according to arrest warrants issued by the Onslow County Sheriff's Department. Preliminary court appearances were scheduled today.

Driver Pinned

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A Tennessee truck driver was killed early Thursday after his rig ran off Interstate 85, pinning his body in the mangled wreckage and tying up rush-hour traffic for more than three hours.

A passenger in the cab was injured and transported to Gaston Memorial Hospital.

Gastonia police and state Highway Patrol officers believe the driver, Henry Babb, 56, of Chattanooga, Tenn., fell asleep at the wheel of his tanker truck.

The wreck occurred about 4:30 a.m. The tanker, was owned by Matlack Inc. of Chattanooga, Tenn.

"This was not a close case for the jury," he said. "We put on no defense and had a verdict in an hour."

Tom Ziko, an assistant state attorney general, disagreed on the verdict's impact.

"It's a single decision in a single case that's limited to its facts," he said. "I don't see that it will have any effect outside Alamance County."

The case marked the first time the owner of a business, rather than just a clerk, was prosecuted under the obscenity law revised in 1985.

George Gardner, executive director of the N.C. Civil Liberties Union, said he hopes the verdict will force the General Assembly to revise the obscenity law again.

Scholarship

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Elizabeth Goodall, an eighth-grade student at Hardin Park Elementary School, has won a four-year, $12,000 scholarship at the N.C. School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

She took first place in annual competition sponsored by NCB National Bank. In the final audition earlier this month, Elizabeth was the youngest of eight performers who were chosen from among 60 who started in the regional competition.

She has been playing the violin since she was 5. She won a summer scholarship in 1985 to the University of Sterling, Scotland, for her Scottish fiddle playing. She has played with the Appalachian State University Orchestra since she was 12.

Guilty Plea

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — Carl Edward Stufel, 24, charged along with Donna Arnold, 34, in the death of her husband, Dan, on July 18, 1984, pleaded guilty Thursday to second-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

The plea in Sampson County Superior Court was the result of a bargain arrangement between district attorney Bill Andrews and Stufel's court-appointed attorneys, Bill Bacon and Ernest Ratliff.

Arnold was found near Immanuel Baptist Church in Clinton, where he was minister of music, stabbed and slashed across the throat and the back of the skull.

Separate Trials

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A Superior Court judge has ruled that a Wake County man will face separate trials on charges he killed two sisters whose bodies were found in Hoke County.

Edward Lee Cummings, 45, of Willow Springs is charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of Karen Marie Puryear, 22, and Teresa Annette Puryear, 15, both of Wake County. The deaths occurred 26 months apart.

The two were slain and their bodies buried near McCain in Hoke County, where they were discovered in January 1986. Assistant District Attorney John Dickson said Wednesday that the state will go to trial on April 6.

Falwell Says Bakkers To Stay On PTL Payroll, Conditionally

By WILLIAM STRACENER
Associated Press Writer
FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — The Rev. Jim Bakker's church says the evangelist might face dismissal for his 1980 sexual liaison, while the Rev. Jerry Falwell says the PTL board has agreed to an audit of the ministry's finances.

Falwell, Bakker's hand-picked successor to the PTL evangelical empire, also said the Pentecostal minister and his wife, Tammy Faye, will be kept on the PTL payroll.

However, Falwell added, if Bakker tries to retake the presidency of the group, the board would likely resign in protest. He said "the credibility problem that we now have would be an impossible challenge for us."

Falwell, who presided for the first time over the PTL board Thursday, refused to say how much Bakker and his wife, who is undergoing treatment in Palm Springs, Calif., for drug dependency, will get. Their combined salaries were $72,800 in 1979, the last year the ministry revealed how much they were paid.

"The ministry would not be here if it were not for Jim and Tammy Bakker," Falwell said. "It would not be Christian to cut off the life supply to the couple responsible for this ministry."

Falwell said the board also has approved an independent financial audit of PTL, the $172 million evangelical empire from which Bakker resigned March 19. Bakker revealed he had committed adultery and claimed he was being blackmailed because of it.

The Rev. G. Raymond Carlson, general superintendent of the Assemblies of God, said Thursday during a news conference at church headquarters in Springfield, Mo., that no evidence has been found that Bakker had been blackmailed.

"To the contrary, the evidence seems to indicate that effort and money have been expended to cover moral failure. We are deeply sorry to have to say this," Carlson said. "We grieve for the impact all this has had upon the entire Christian community."

The evidence will be forwarded to the North Carolina Presbytery, which has jurisdiction over the South Carolina-based PTL, he said.

"The complete procedure must and will be followed to determine whether resignation or dismissal is in order," Carlson said.

Bakker has offered his resignation to the Assemblies of God, his 2-million-member Pentecostal denomination, but no action has been taken.

Meanwhile, Jessica Hahn, the woman with whom Bakker had the sexual tryst seven years ago, told reporters she was "deeply concerned" that churchgoers everywhere should understand the current scandal "has no reflection upon the Lord."

"I don't want people under the impression this goes on everywhere. It does not go on everywhere," Ms. Hahn said in an interview outside her West Babylon, N.Y., home.

The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer reported Thursday that PTL lawyers agreed two years ago to pay Ms. Hahn and her representatives $265,000, instead of the $115,000 initially reported.

The paper said the fund has been in existence since spring 1985, with Ms. Hahn receiving $10,045 that year.

The new PTL board agreed at its meeting to review PTL's books to learn whether any contributions were diverted improperly, but the audit will not encompass Bakker's personal finances, Falwell said.

A financial statement distributed by PTL revealed assets of $172 million and total current liabilities of $42.1 million. Other long-term debt was listed at $28.2 million.

"The board's primary responsibility is to restore the credibility of this ministry nationwide," Falwell said after the meeting. PTL's reputation probably is intact among Bakker's followers, he added. "But with the general public, I think we will need time."

"We're here to do what Jim Bakker asked me to do ... to maintain the stability and the ongoing health of this ministry of Christ," Falwell said. "It is our opinion we could not do it if Jim Bakker were here on this campus."

Before the news conference, Falwell announced on the PTL ministry's talk show that the board had unanimously ratified the appointment of the Rev. Richard Dortch as the new PTL president. Dortch had been PTL's executive vice president under Bakker.

In today's editions, the Observer quotes businessman Paul Roper as saying that Dortch negotiated the settlement regarding Ms. Hahn with him in February 1985. Roper is Ms. Hahn's legal adviser.

Dortch, the only former board member on the new PTL board, has declined to discuss his role in the Hahn matter.

Thursday night, Falwell talked about an evangelist's role on CNN's "Larry King Live" show.

"I hope that God will use this as a reminder to make us more sensitive of the awesome influence and responsibility we have for our conduct and our personal accrual of wealth," he said.

Rivalry Among Evangelists Shows Scope Of Competition

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Signs of rivalry in TV evangelism, which emerged this week in the Jimmy Swaggart-Jim Bakker affair, were seen as symptomatic of an underlying condition in a packed field of such broadcasters.

Some call it a "saturated market," using up the available pool of support, creating increasing competition for it. Others say new, added donors remain to be gained, but nevertheless, the competition goes on.

"It's part of the free enterprise system among evangelists," says the Rev. Ben Armstrong of Morristown, N.J., long-time president of National Religious Broadcasters.

"The competition for the religious market is a healthy thing, and not hurtful," he said in a telephone interview. "It's what keeps evangelists on their toes, to come out with better programs."

However, he said that in that vying field, TV evangelists are going to have to subscribe to high, defined standards of financial accountability, and his organization is taking steps for such certification.

The Swaggart-Bakker feud showed up in disclosures naming TV evangelist Swaggart as the previously unidentified figure whom resigned TV evangelist Bakker accused of plotting to take over his ministry.

However, the middle-man Bakker picked to handle it, TV evangelist Jerry Falwell, said the conflict was resolved after he had a long conversation with Swaggart and was convinced he had "no designs whatever" on Bakker's ministry.

"He told me his only goal was to clean up a very embarrassing situation on behalf of the Assemblies of God, and I believe him," Falwell said. Both Swaggart and Bakker belong to that Pentecostal denomination.

Bakker earlier had said his resignation was prompted by blackmail over a 1980 sexual encounter.

That episode and other undisclosed criticism were cited in letters both by Swaggart and a group of religious broadcasters, relayed to Falwell, his spokesman said, leading him at one point to see a potential "civil war" between TV evangelists.

"But it's not going to happen," said Mark Demoss, a Falwell associate. "Enough rumors and stories were circulating to give reason to believe that was a possibility."

But some misunderstandings that had existed don't exist now."

Nevertheless, the sequence of events brought out the latent ingredients of rivalry among TV evangelists that both Armstrong and others say exists.

The Rev. Arthur C. Borden, executive director of the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability, says TV evangelists have "saturated the market. No new donors are out there. That's why they're struggling for them."

To get them, he said, TV evangelists have to take them from each other.

However, Armstrong maintains new audiences and donors still are available, although there is a "sense of saturation in the major markets," and "increasing competition" for them among TV evangelists.

"But the real competition is against the secular market," he said. "The TV evangelists are not at one another's throat, but are trying to get attention in a secular environment in which they've been largely ignored."

"That's the No. 1 battle. The secondary battle is among evangelists and the quality of their programs." He called that a positive, stimulating competition, the kind of free enterprise that "made America great."

He said additional audiences still are obtainable with new programs and varied approaches — what he called "different strokes for different folks."

"But I don't see the donor pool as exhausted or in trouble," he said. "There's an increasing response to spiritual and traditional values."

He said that while the major markets, with only so much TV spectrum, were crowded, most TV evangelism was in cable systems, with ample room for expansion. "That's the growing edge," he said.

Armstrong, who has headed the swiftly expanding religious broadcasters organization for 20 years, now including 1,200 members, said its Ethics and Financial Integrity Commission is drafting a firmer code of ethics.

It previously had a 1944 set of standards, tightened somewhat in 1978, but never effectively applied. He said the new guidelines, requiring independent auditing of finances and public accessibility, would be ready in June.

Mood Of Hope Covers PTL Village

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer
FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — From jars of wrinkle cream to autographed piggy banks, reminders of the PTL's exiled founding family are everywhere in the curious capital of their evangelical empire.

Post cards picturing the Rev. Jim Bakker, his wife, Tammy Faye, and their two children were selling out at the PTL gift shop at Heritage USA, the Christian theme park where the multimillion-dollar ministry is based.

"I guess people figure Jim and Tammy might not be around anymore, so they consider this picture of them so precious that it's like a collector's item," said Anita Lidie, assistant manager.

Hope and forgiveness seemed to be the predominant mood in the 2,300-acre compound where the Carolinas meet.

Sue and Lloyd Coursey journeyed here from their Atlanta home when they heard the bad news.

"We just wanted to be here at this time, like dropping in to visit a sick friend," Mrs. Coursey said. "We're not Jim and Tammy followers. We're not caught up in them. But that doesn't mean we're not hurting for them right now."

Feelings may be hurting, but business is not, according to the Rev. Jerry Falwell, the PTL's new leader.

"There is no indication of any loss of support or ... negative fallout," Falwell said Thursday, noting that the 504-room Heritage Grand Hotel was booked solid.

Falwell also said Bakker souvenirs would be sold as long as there is a demand for them.

PTL officials were unable to provide sales figures for merchandise trading on the Bakkers' popularity.

Some of the items spotted on a stroll through the village's shopping arcade:

- Nine albums recorded by Tammy Faye Bakker, including her latest record, "Enough Is Enough." Price $10.
- An album by the Bakker's 17-year-old daughter, Tammy Sue, featuring the single "It'll Be Alright" and baby blue sweatshirts ($21) bearing her name and the song title.
- A dozen books by Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker, including "How We Lost Weight and Kept It Off!" which includes confessions of a chocolate cake binge.

- A line of Tammy Faye cosmetics, including wrinkle cream and eye makeup.
- Tammy Faye pantyhose.

PTL vice president and spokesman Neil Eskelin acknowledged the Bakkers' tremendous hold on Heritage USA, noting that "there's very little here that was not Jim Bakker's idea."

Even before the scandal, some fundamentalists argued that PTL's wealth would be better spent spreading the gospel and helping the needy, but Bakker kept building his dreamland.

It has mushroomed into the country's third-largest theme park, outdone only by the Disneys.

Heritage resident Pamela Schuffert doesn't think the park's appeal will suffer without Bakker.

"When Walt Disney died, it didn't affect Disneyland," she said.

Today, Heritage features a 52-foot, $10 million water slide and other rides, lodging for 6,000 guests — including some 600 campsites that ministers visit on horseback — a clinic, petting zoo and dinner theater.

On Tuesday afternoons the hotel's lobby swimming pool is converted into a baptismal font.

Embassy Guard Faces New Charges

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sgt. Clayton J. Lonetree, the Marine embassy guard whose arrest on spying allegations triggered an investigation and the arrest of another Marine, now faces a second capital charge of espionage, Pentagon sources say.

The sources, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, disclosed Thursday the Marine Corps had preferred five new charges against Lonetree — including a new count of espionage under Article 106 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Conviction on such a charge carries a maximum penalty of death. The corps previously had preferred 19 counts against Lonetree, including a single count of espionage.

The sources said the decision to add charges was prompted by last week's arrest of another guard at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, Cpl. Arnold Bracy, who is a former Lonetree colleague.

"It's directly related to the surfacing of Bracy," one source said. "The investigators believe they have enough to show the damage done here was more than originally thought."

The sources declined, however, to discuss the specific allegations underlying the new charges. They said the new charges included one count of espionage, two counts of conspiracy to commit espionage and two counts of "espionage-related" general misconduct charges.

According to the sources, the corps' decision to prefer the additional charges was made Wednesday. But it did not become known until Thursday at the conclusion of a closed-door legal hearing at the Marine base in Quantico, Va.

Both Lonetree and Bracy are being held at Quantico, located about 30 miles south of Washington.

After being informed of the new charges, defense attorneys were granted a recess of the hearing until April 15, the sources said.

Efforts to contact the defense attorneys were unsuccessful Thursday. Maj. Tony Rothfork, a Marine Corps spokesman, confirmed a recess had been ordered in the case, but he said he could not discuss the report of new charges.

Lonetree, who worked as an embassy guard in Moscow and Vienna, was arrested in mid-December and transferred to Quantico on Dec. 31. On Jan. 30, the Marine Corps announced it would ask a military reviewing officer to order a court-martial on 19 different counts.

The hearing officer, who conducts what is known as an Article 32 investigation — the equivalent of a grand jury probe — had been expected to decide shortly whether the evidence was sufficient to order a court-martial and if so, on how many counts. The Article 32 now is being held up.

Lonetree already had been accused of passing to the Soviets the names and photographs of American intelligence agents attached to the Moscow embassy's staff. He also had been accused of providing the Soviets with descriptions of floor plans and office assignments for the embassies in Moscow and Vienna.

Bracy, 21, who worked with Lonetree in Moscow for roughly eight months in 1985 and 1986, was arrested last week for investigation of espionage on evidence uncovered in the probe of Lonetree, according to the Marine Corps.

According to the sources, investigators now suspect Bracy and Lonetree, working together, may have provided Soviet agents access to the Moscow embassy during after-work hours. It appears there were times when the two men were paired as the only guards at the embassy, one source explained.

The sources also said both men became involved sexually with Soviet women who were employed at the embassy, which in turn allegedly led to their recruitment by Soviet agents.

The sources said Bracy might appear today before a military magistrate who would decide whether Bracy should remain in custody pending start of an Article 32 investigation.

Deaver Pleads Innocent

L.A. Times-Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Former presidential aide Michael K. Deaver, indicted by a federal grand jury last week, pleaded innocent Thursday to five counts of lying under oath about his post-government lobbying activities.

"I am not guilty, your honor," Deaver said in a firm voice, flanked by defense attorneys Herbert J. Miller Jr. and Randall J. Turk.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson set a trial date of June 8. He said he first would rule on anticipated motions by Deaver's lawyers challenging the legality of the indictment on grounds that independent counsel Whitney North Seymour Jr. lacked constitutional authority to prosecute him.

Jackson earlier this month dismissed those arguments as premature since Deaver had not yet been indicted, and a panel of appellate judges, as well as Supreme Court Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, took the same position.

Miller told reporters he would file at least two motions attacking the indictment before April 20, the deadline set by Jackson. One will assert there is insufficient evidence for the charges and the other will challenge Seymour's appointment as unconstitutional, Miller said.

Search For Bodies Continues

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police continued digging for body parts today in the basement, yard and garage of a house where half-naked women were chained to a sewer pipe and human limbs were found in a freezer.

The investigation focused on the run-down home of Gary Heidnik, 43. He was charged with one count of murder and four counts of rape, kidnapping and related offenses against the women, who said he had fed them human flesh.

District Attorney Ronald Castille said he also intended to charge Heidnik in the murder of a second woman, who was butchered.

A captive who escaped led police early Wednesday to Heidnik's north Philadelphia home, where officers discovered three women naked from the waist down. The women, who had been kept captive for up to four months, told police they were chained to a basement sewer pipe near a torture pit.

Later Wednesday, police found the partly buried body of Deborah Dudley in a remote area of Wharton State Forest in southern New Jersey and charged Heidnik with murder. Miss Dudley also used the last name of Johnson, police said.

Cyril Brown, who lived with Heidnik for a time at the house, was charged with murder, rape, kidnapping and conspiracy in the death of the second woman, Sandra Lindsay, his girlfriend for about three years, police said.

Parts of Ms. Lindsay's body were found in the kitchen, authorities said.

The two men were being held without bail today.

Heidnik's father, Michael F. Heidnik, 74, said Thursday his son should be hanged.

"I'll even pull the rope," said the elder Heidnik, from a Cleveland, Ohio, suburb. He said he had not seen his son in 20 years.

Police said the body of Ms. Lindsay, 24, was identified through interviews with the captives, who ranged in age from 18 to 26.

An autopsy performed Thursday determined that Miss Dudley, 23, was electrocuted in water the night of March 19 and her body kept chilled until early Sunday, "when it was dumped in the woods," said George Kerns, spokesman for Camden County Prosecutor Samuel Asbell.

One of the captives told police she was forced to hold a live electrical wire to Miss Dudley's handcuffs while the victim stood in a water-filled pit.

The woman said she dropped the wires, but Heidnik picked them up and completed the circuit until the girl's body appeared lifeless, according to the Philadelphia Daily News, which quoted an affidavit filed by police seeking a search warrant.

Another captive said Ms. Lindsay died after hitting her head on the basement floor. The captive said Heidnik lured her to his house three days before Christmas with a flashy car and offers of money for clothes and restaurants.

The three captives found Wednesday were treated for malnutrition, dehydration and sexual abuse, authorities said. They told police they were fed the ground remains of Ms. Lindsay along with dog food and bread.

Three Students Die In Wreck

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Five University of Mississippi sorority sisters were in critical condition today after three others died when a truck slammed into a car trailing a charity walk-a-thon, flipping it onto the group, officials said.

A one-ton truck pulling a hay-baler slammed into a small foreign car that was trailing 20 walkers on the shoulder of the four-lane roadway Thursday afternoon, said Lt. Steve McClure of the state Highway Patrol.

The driver of the truck said he swerved to avoid the rear-most car was escorting the walkers and struck a second escort vehicle.

"The truck, the car and everything went over into the girls," said investigating trooper Ricky Roy. Troopers said the speed limit on the highway was 55 mph and there was no indication of excessive speed.

D.D. Cvitanovich, chief of patrol for the state police, said no police parade permit was needed for the walk alongside the highway.

The members of the Chi Omega chapter were walking from Batesville to their sorority house on campus about 25 miles away to raise money for the Mississippi Kidney Foundation, Chancellor Gerald Turner said.

Vatican Calls For Special Giving Help Resolve Its Financial Crisis

By DON A. SCHANCHE
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

VATICAN CITY — A special commission of 10 Roman Catholic cardinals responsible for overseeing Vatican finances predicted Thursday that the financially strapped city-state would suffer a record budget deficit of $63 million for the current year and appealed to church leaders throughout the world to help resolve the crisis.

The projected shortfall tops last year's deficit, which the special Council of Cardinals had previously estimated at $56 million.

Although the cardinals made public no detailed Vatican financial figures after a three-day meeting, their brief press release forecasting the record deficit contained a note of near-despair.

The statement said the cause of the deficit was "the drastically insufficient wealth of the Holy See, with its total revenue not reaching even half of the expenses necessary for the activities of the central administration (of the church)."

The cardinals complained that last year the church was forced to dig deeply into its capital resources to make up for insufficient earnings and contributions.

Although the annual Peter's Pence, a yearly offering by the world's 800 million Catholics originally intended for use by the pope in financing charities and missions, has in recent years been used to defray Vatican deficits, the cardinals said it was woefully short.

In 1986, Peter's Pence totaled $32 million, "a sum which, because of the sharp drop in the value of the dollar against the Italian lira, fell far short of covering the year's deficit," the cardinals said.

However, a source familiar with the cardinals' deliberations said there was some cheer in the Peter's Pence figure because it showed an increase for the second year in a row. Contributions had fallen in 1984, apparently reflecting widespread disappointment over the involvement of the Vatican Bank — the Institute of Religious Works, as it is formally known — in Italy's worst bank scandal, the $1.3 billion collapse of Banco Ambrosiano.

The Institute of Religious Works is an independent church institution that does not figure in the Vatican budget or fall under the jurisdiction of the Council of Cardinals. Its president, American Archbishop Paul Marcinkus, was recently charged, along with two other bank officials, with "fraudulent bankruptcy" in connection with the Ambrosiano affair, and the Italian Justice Ministry said this week that it will soon request their extradition to face trial.

The Vatican budget covers the expenses of the church's central administration, Vatican Radio, the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano and Vatican delegations abroad, as well as a minor portion of the pope's foreign travels. Papal travel expenses are mostly borne by the churches of the countries he visits.

The cardinals' statement said they were sending "concrete proposals" to the world's Catholic bishops, asking their assistance in solving the deficit crisis. It gave no details, but sources close to the cardinals said their most likely new proposal would be to call for a new annual collection, apart from Peter's Pence, specifically earmarked for Vatican expenses.

It was the seventh meeting of the Council of Cardinals since Pope John Paul II established the group in 1981. Among its members are American Cardinals John Krol of Philadelphia and Joseph O'Connor of New York.

A BRIDE FOR ISAAC

ABRAHAM'S STEWARD, ELIEZER, AT THE REQUEST OF HIS MASTER, HAS PREPARED A SMALL CARAVAN TO JOURNEY TO THE LAND OF THE CHALDEES IN SEARCH OF A WIFE FOR ABRAHAM'S SON, ISAAC....

...HEAVILY LADEN WITH RICH GIFTS AND PROVISIONS THE CARAVAN SETS OFF ON THE LONG JOURNEY...

...TO FULFILL ABRAHAM'S HOPES TO SEE HIS SON MARRIED BEFORE HE DEPARTS THIS LIFE...

...THE CARAVAN IS GUARDED BY MANY ARMED SERVANTS, FOR, IN THESE ANCIENT TIMES, TO GO ON A JOURNEY UNDEFENDED, WOULD BE AN OPEN INVITATION TO AN ATTACK BY THIEVES AND ROBBERS!

DAY AND NIGHT, THE CARAVAN PLODS ON, MOVING EASTWARD...

...UNTIL, AT LONG LAST, ELIEZER COMES TO THE LAND OF ABRAHAM'S BIRTH, THE LAND OF THE CHALDEES—AND NOW HIS REAL WORK WILL BEGIN—TO DILIGENTLY SEEK A PROPER MAIDEN AS A BRIDE FOR ISAAC!

Christian Fund-Raisers Vow To Avoid Shabby Practices

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Disturbed by increasing instances of shabby religious tactics in seeking contributions, a worried gathering of Christian fund-raisers has vowed to shun such practices. But they didn't spell out specific rules about it.

Representatives of about 350 organizations, declaring "mistakes have been made" in proliferating fund-raising methods, urged greater concern for accountability and biblical, ethical standards. They also signed a joint "covenant" to "put no stumblingblock in anyone's path" so ministries "will not be discredited" as they "seek godly ways" of raising and using money.

But explicit standards for meeting that objective weren't laid down. Many participants called for "detailed guidelines — for some definite do's and don'ts," says Gary L. Wall, spokesman for the affair and a New York publisher of Christian materials for youth. "It may ultimately come to that," he adds, with the conference serving as a catalyst.

The unusual meeting March 9-11 in Kansas City, considered the broadest evangelical gathering of its kind, involved various evangelizing ministries, schools, relief agencies and other evangelical institutions. It "was long overdue, and I expect the outcome to influence Christian fund-raising for years to come," says Arthur C. Borden of Oakton, Va., executive director of the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability. That council does set specific standards of annual auditing, public disclosure and other processes of accountability, which are required of members, now totalling 354 evangelical organizations.

But the only widely heard TV evangelists among members with approved standards are Billy Graham's organization and Fred Price of Los Angeles. Other big-time TV evangelists don't belong. Nor were most of them, such as the TV ministries of Jerry Falwell, Oral Roberts, Jimmy Swaggart and now resigned Jim Bakker represented at the meeting, although Pat Robertson's TV ministry did send a participant.

Results of a Gallup poll presented there found that 46.6 percent of Americans think most Christian fund-raising is "ethical or honest," but 39.9 percent put only "some or very little of it" on that dependable level.

Another 2.3 percent think none of it is upright, and a remaining fraction don't know.

Those distrustful of it variously suspect misuse of funds, dishonest leadership or blame over-commercialization.

At the conference, there was some criticism of organizations refusing to identify with rules of the accountability council, thus avoiding auditing and public financial statements.

Borden said the meeting "almost turned into a promotion" for the council, that numerous non-members indicated interest and "I expect to hear from a number of them, but it takes time for applications to be prepared."

The meeting heard scathing criticism of assorted current practices, such as "bait and switch" tactics, basing appeals on some emotion-touching cause and then using receipts for something else.

"Fund raising techniques once viewed with disdain are becoming as common in evangelical circles as are botanical hairdos and skin-grafted jeans in secular society," said noted evangelical theologian Carl F. H. Henry.

He said dubious methods — which he termed "heresies" — pose a danger to the "spiritual vitality and moral integrity of evangelical enterprises."

Henry, of Arlington, Va., criticized numerous current techniques, such as "prosperity theology," implying the more you give the more you get, and various "fund-raising premiums."

Often, some "special spiritual worth is attributed to tiny twigs from the Holy Land, or mother-of-pearl crosses from Bethlehem, or olive

Filed Wills Are Public

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: How do I go about finding out the actual terms of my deceased aunt's will? She passed away four years ago in another part of the country. I was left a modest sum, but other family members came into a great deal more, and all have refused to divulge the amounts.

— CURIOUS KIN
DEAR CURIOUS: When a will is filed in court, it becomes public record, and anyone who wishes to read it may do so. Write to the registrar of wills, located in the city hall where it was filed. There may be a small fee (maybe not), but do enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for a reply.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is addressed to everyone who does NOT have genital herpes or any other transmittable disease:

I have had genital herpes for six years. No one knows except my mother, my husband and, of course, my doctor. It's not something I tell everyone. It's a disease that your co-worker, neighbor, fellow church member, or even your brother or sister may have, but it's not discussed because it's so misunderstood.

An outbreak of herpes can be caused by stress, overexcitement and even extreme weather temperatures. For years, I've heard people make jokes in public or in personal conversation about the disease. "Don't sleep with him! You'll probably catch herpes or VD!" Or, while several women are sharing a lipstick in the ladies' room, someone says, "I hope no one here has herpes!" (Giggle.)

People with herpes are neither "dirty" nor "bad." Not only would it be extremely painful to engage in sex during an outbreak of lesions, I wouldn't do that to my worst enemy.

So, please, folks, cool the jokes. They aren't funny, and could deeply hurt your co-worker, neighbor, or even a member of your family. Sign me... NOT LAUGHING

DEAR NOT LAUGHING: Thank you for a helpful letter. Herpes jokes should be outlawed along with those tasteless Helen Keller, Stevie Wonder and AIDS jokes.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and everyone he works with has to "ask" his fellow employees also resent having to ask for theirs, one letter signed by all should do it.

DEAR ABBY: This pet peeve has bugged me for years. My English literature teacher taught me 65 years ago that I could not love anything that could not love me back. You hear people say, "I love my car," "I love ice cream," "I love a certain brand of soap or toothpaste." You get the idea.

There aren't any teachers like Miss Brudie around anymore. — MRS. RALPH CRAMPTON, LEMON GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR MRS. CRAMPTON: Unfortunately, Miss Brudie isn't around to defend herself, but she surely must have known that people can "love" their country, their freedom, their independence and any number of other things that can't love them back.

(For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Ties Blossom With Color

NEW YORK (AP) — A color revolution in men's neckwear, fostered by the enormous popularity of yellow and bright red neckties, marches forward in a profusion of new and bold shades this spring, reports the Neckwear Association of America.

"The yellow tie craze has opened men's eyes to the possibilities of color," says Gerald Andersen, NAA executive director. "The three most popular neckwear colors have always been good old, safe navy, burgundy and brown. The yellow, then the bright red, necktie came along and changed all that."

Colors this spring range from the bold to the downright shocking, he notes. Shades of green from teal to bright emerald, hot pink, purple, aqua, and even orange, are used as both accent and background.

For the less adventurous these same colors are available in toned-down versions such as pastel shades of blue-green and dusty rose. Of course, yellow and bright red continue their unprecedented popularity, he adds.

Patterns are getting bolder for spring as well, in contrast to the neat, traditional "yuppie" look of the past several years, Andersen says. Paisley continues to be a strong theme in prints. However, the patterns are bigger and bolder and the colors sharper and brighter than in the past.

Silk-printed neckwear, which is still a very popular category, is generally bolder and more creative, including everything from large geometrics to Miami Vice-inspired tropical and scenic themes.

Floral designs, which began to sprout last spring, are in full bloom this season, running the gamut from neat to bold impressionistic designs.

Patterns that relate to a theme, such as equestrian motifs or sports ideas, are enjoying increased popularity.

Among other spring trends, according to Andersen:

— Striped neckwear is also bolder and more colorful, with designers loading in a profusion of colors.

— Traditional spring fabrics such as cottons and linens are also being done in the bolder colorations and designs. These fabrics are being interpreted in strongly textured, homespun looks.

— Woven patterns which pay tribute to the abstract designs popular in the '50s and '60s are enjoying a resurgence.

— There is no major change in neckwear shape, with 3 1/4 inches remaining the most popular width.

— Bow ties are gaining in popularity and there is growing interest in sets, both tie and handkerchief and tie and suspender.

Dog School Has Dual Purpose

By MIKE BURRIS

Edwardsville Intelligencer
EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — An ambitious program by the young Madison County Humane Society should bring dogs and their owners closer, and also promote the adoption of thousands of dogs and cats that otherwise face death at the county pound each year.

"Most dogs want to please their masters," said Sherry Harper, vice president of the society and the person responsible for fund-raising. "They enjoy the classes. They're anxious to go. It's kind of like their social life."

At the first session, dogs typically growl at each other because they're strangers. "By the end of the first class," she said, "they're all friends."

The sessions are held to raise money for a new animal-adoption program and to bring dogs closer to their owners, she said. "A lot of them can't control their dogs, and we don't want them to dump them. They just want them to have nice manners.

"All different sorts of people turn out," Ms. Harper said, adding the dogs are as varied as their owners.

"Usually, it's the owners that mess up, not the dogs," she said. "The majority of the mistakes are the people's."

For example, she said, masters are trained to start on the left foot when the dog is directed to heel; the dog is trained to have its head beside the master's left leg in preparation for walking. If the dog is ordered to stay, masters are supposed to start with the right foot to keep from confusing the dog.

"We've had real good response to our classes. We run them all the same. They just learn basic obedience training on a lead," Ms. Harper said.

Ms. Harper, 32, demonstrated what dog training can do with her German shepherd, Keshia, putting the dog through a series of maneuvers.

Keshia was a first-prize winner some time back, even though she did not look like a winner at first, Ms. Harper said. "She's probably a little rusty. She was not real bright when I got her. She did real great in the classes."

Money from the training sessions, which cost $35 per dog or two dogs for $60, will be used for the society's dog- and cat-adoption program at the Madison County Animal Control Shelter.

Last year, more than 3,200 animals were destroyed at the pound, Ms. Harper said. "And they found homes for 64 dogs and 20 cats."

Lack of county personnel to encourage adoptions is part of the reason, she said.

"The county won't be doing any adoptions. It'll just be us," Ms. Harper said. "We don't think we'll adopt 3,000 out."

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Patterns Aid Sewing Trends

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

Patterns and fun fabrics make the trend in sewing easier, according to Paula Foss of Cleveland. She is an educational consultant with a sewing machine company.

Ms. Foss was in Greenville last week and conducted a series of sewing sessions including making a skirt in an hour, hemstitch blouse, heirloom linen collars, unlined tailored jacket, and accessories.

She also went through the process of making a gathered skirt with a waistband. She talked about fabric selection, interfacing selection, and threads for different fabrics and materials.

"The focus of my programs is fast and easy sewing using the latest sewing techniques and notions. There are a lot of new notions on the market that help speed up your sewing and we have been showing them during the sessions," she said.

She also demonstrated computerized sewing machines and sergers.

"People that are sewing are excited about the new types of machines on the market and the neat notions," she said.

"The age of the heavily tailored jacket is out right now. Linens are big for spring in muted colors. Hemlines seem to vary from area to area. Personally, I like mid-calf lengths," said Ms. Foss.

"The fun part of my job is traveling throughout the United States — meeting company dealers and informing the public about our sewing machines. In addition to conducting seminars, I train dealers in the latest techniques using the machines and sales training," she said. Ms. Foss serves as a company representative at fairs and home shows.

Ms. Foss didn't study clothing while a student at North Dakota University in Fargo. "I majored in consumer economics; however, I have always enjoyed sewing which I have been doing since the seventh grade. Now, sewing is one of my hobbies as well as my job," she said.

Ms. Foss travels approximately 70 percent of the time. Her traveling wardrobe are things which she has made.

"One of the sad factors today are that a lot of high schools are eliminating sewing and home economics programs. Therefore students aren't being exposed to sewing. The message I am trying to put across is sewing can be fun and easy," she said.

Bagels And Bach: Music Fare

By CAROL ZUEGNER
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A 10-year-old concert series at Joslyn Art Museum offers nourishment for the body and the spirit, even if the bagels get top billing over Bach.

At Bagels and Bach, performers with styles ranging from classical to bluegrass fill the air with music after the Sunday morning audience has its fill of bagels topped with cream cheese and lox, or apple muffins.

The monthly concerts also fulfill part of the museum's mission, said concert series director Jan Braden.

When Sarah Joslyn donated money more than 50 years ago to build the museum, she envisioned an arts center to honor her husband, George.

"One of the greatest joys of Joslyn's life was music and Mrs. Joslyn wanted the museum to reflect that," Braden said.

Symphonies and other more formal musical programs are performed in Joslyn's 1,200-seat concert hall, but the two-story Storz Fountain Court's marble walls, mosaic-like tile floor and ceiling of skylights create an informal, light-filled space for morning music.

"It's a wonderful way to start a Sunday," said Omahan Elvira Garcia, a Bagels and Bach regular. "It's like being in another world."

Braden says the concerts draw 250 to 300 people, many of them regulars.

"There's a certain group that shows up every time," she said, "and there are always some newcomers."

Karen and Paul Waters brought a Sunday School class from Murray, a town about 215 miles from Omaha.

"We're studying art and religion so we decided to come here today. We're skipping church," Mrs. Waters said. "Many of our children might not take the opportunity to come by themselves."

Flutist Jan Boland and guitarist John Dondall traveled six hours from Marion, Iowa, to perform before more than 300 people on a recent Sunday.

The Boland-Dondall Duo's repertoire ranges from Renaissance music to spicy Latin American folk songs, but its specialty is 19th-century music. That fits in nicely with Bagels and Bach, Ms. Boland said.

"Musicians in the 19th century played at house parties, like this," she said. "You couldn't just put on a tape or a compact disc if you wanted to hear music."

Ms. Boland and Dondall, who teach part time at Coe College, wore 19th-century costumes and played on authentic 19th-century instruments for the first half of their program. The second half was 20th-century music and a piece by, of course, Bach.

Braden said the musicians' contracts used to have a clause calling for at least one work by Bach in each program.

"That got pretty interesting with jazz groups and bluegrass music," she said. "They tried."

Classical music is the favorite of Bagels and Bach regulars, Braden said, though a yearly bluegrass concert that coincides with a festival celebrating Omaha's Western heritage draws an enthusiastic crowd of boot-wearing music lovers.

Organizers say they are never sure exactly how many people will show up for each concert.

Catering manager Linda Anania says she generally counts on cutting more than 20 dozen bagels, bought from a local baker.

"We've had to make emergency runs," she said.

The museum's catering department concocts the toppings, which range from a vegetable cream-cheese mixture to an egg salad or cream cheese and lox. Muffins also are a recent popular menu addition.

Leftovers are not a problem. "They usually lick the platters clean," Ms. Anania said.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a mood of caution after the market's erratic showing in the past couple of sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.13 to 2,374.72 in the first half hour of trading.

But losers outnumbered gainers by about 5 to 4 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 483 up, 604 down and 460 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 26.40 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

In today's economic news, the Labor Department reported that the consumer price index rose 0.4 percent in February, on top of a 0.7 percent increase the month before.

Consolidated Rail Corp. led the active list, unchanged at 30%. The stock made its debut Thursday on heavy volume after a public offering at $28, in the largest stock offering in U.S. history.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .12 to 170.65. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .82 at 339.23.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 9.10 to 2,372.59, topping the previous closing peak of 2,369.18 set on Tuesday.

Smith Optimistic

election. Relative to claims by Doub, I think that that was trying to interpolate something on a state basis to get support" for the slate of officers Doub supported, which included Ed Griffith as chairman and Gladys Strauss as vice chairman.

"I have always, since his campaign ... supported (Governor) Martin," Smith said, adding that the county party election this week was "a local election ... a grassroots victory because it was a grassroots campaign."

Mrs. Sugg, who attempted, unsuccessfully, to have the various candidates voted on individually, rather than as slates, said Thursday that "I would have much preferred to run as an individual.

"The normal method of electing officers is to vote on each office individually. But the Doub forces jammed through a rule requiring the candidates to run as slates," she said, "apparently thinking that would give them an edge.

"When that did not work to get their slate of officers elected," Mrs. Sugg said "they were still determined to nominate a slate for the executive committee to shut out all persons who would not totally align themselves with their faction. That did not work for them either.

"I am not aligned with either faction of the party," Mrs. Sugg said, "and preferred to run as an individual against my opponent. I have supporters from both factions of the party, plus the support of those in the center, like myself. And I prefer to work with both factions of the party on the executive committee.

"Better decisions can be made when both factions are included in decision making," Mrs. Sugg suggested. "No group should be shut out. It is not good for the party and not good for elections."

Members of the county executive committee elected at the Tuesday meeting — nominated as a slate and identified at the meeting as Helms-McCarty faction supporters — include: Howard Moye, Michael Karachun, Gordon Walker, Allen Taylor, Martin Kilcoyne, Paul Rasberry, Lee Pascasio, Marshall Helms, Frank Steinbeck, Billy Coggins, Matthew Clark, Leon Bonner, Frank Anderson, Rick Lennings and Nita Rasberry.

He was a member of the Ruritan Club and the Stokes Fire Department.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Irene Hickson Whichard, and a brother, Carroll Whichard of Route 1, Robersonville.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Judges Say Legislature Must Act

mean," Aycock said. "It may mean that counties are called on to build more jail space."

Aycock said "the lengths of available sentences are decided by the Legislature. Based on the way people are being sentenced by the courts, we have overcrowding."

"I don't see that the courts are going to change their way of sentencing. They sentence on a case-by-case basis based on the severity of the crime."

The only way prison overcrowding can be solved, Aycock suggested is for "the Legislature to reduce the available time (defendants can get if convicted of a particular law violation) or build more prison space.

"It's going to have to be simply what their constituents think is appropriate — either build more prisons or reduce time for these crimes," Aycock said.

Another District Court judge, who asked not to be identified — "I don't want to get into trouble" — was somewhat less diplomatic.

"To begin with," he said, "jail space has been short for 10- or 12-years (and) nobody is doing anything about it."

The judge then suggested that "what it (the letter from the Administrative Office of the Courts) says is that we're short on space, so if you can keep from sending anybody to jail, don't do it."

Another concern voiced by the judge: "When the (prison) population reaches a certain level, the parole board starts paroling people ... not because they deserve it, but because they need the space.

"Only a judge can lock a man up in prison, but it seems that anybody has got the authority to turn him out."

"It's a shame the way the people are misled by politicians," the judge said. "All the average person wants is to be safe in his home at night ... on the highway, in his business. He's not going to be safe if we start turning them out."

"You send officers out at night to make arrests. The officer is on a salary that will just feed him ... that's all. He risks his life," arrests a man and the man is convicted "and you don't have any jail space" to put him in.

"I took an oath and am trying to live up to it, (but) it didn't include providing jail space," the judge said.

"A few old masters like me are not going to pay any attention" to the prison population limits, he said.

Under the emergency provisions ordered by Gov. Jim Martin Thursday, all inmates serving time for misdemeanor offenses, except those whose crimes involved violence, automatically become eligible for parole.

Martin said the expedited paroles would not jeopardize public safety, emphasizing that the commission would not grant early release to violent criminals.

"There won't be a sudden wave of (releases), because it will just be a gradual increase over what we've been doing," he said.

"There is always some anxiety and always some risk that someone who is released will go back to their criminal ways," he said. "If they do that during the term of parole, then of course we can automatically put them back in prison."

Southern Miss Captures NIT Crown, Defeating LaSalle By 84-80 Score

NEW YORK (AP) — Southern Mississippi Coach M.K. Turk said all week that the 3-point shot wouldn't beat his team in the 50th National Invitation Tournament, and he was right.

"In crunch time, you have to get the ball into the paint," Turk had warned after La Salle used the 3-point shot to get into the NIT final against Turk's Golden Eagles.

In the championship game on Thursday, the 3-pointer was Turk's best friend, but it was also La Salle's worst enemy as Southern Miss held on for an 84-80 victory that represented the state's first Division I postseason basketball championship.

Casey Fisher had 18 points on six 3-pointers and Derrek Hamilton added three more, two of them as he scored 10 of his 17 points during a 16-4 streak that gave the Golden Eagles a 59-48 lead with 10:13 remaining.

LaSalle, which went 4-for-24 from 3-point distance after going 9-for-5 in the semifinals against Arkansas-Little Rock, never caught up despite the efforts of freshman Lionel Simmons, who scored 21 of his 34 points in the second half.

"It wasn't just the 3-pointers that beat us," Simmons said. "I missed three layups that I should have made. Shutting down our 3-pointers is a credit to their man-to-man, but we missed a lot we normally make."

"We missed shots we normally make with our eyes closed," La Salle Coach Bill "Speedy" Morris said.

"I said before the game that we had to defend against their 3-point shots, and that's what we did," Turk said.

Turk said he doesn't consider the 3-pointer an integral part of his offense, but he acknowledged that the long-distance shots can come in handy.

"It's great when you're up two and then you take two trips down the floor, look up at the scoreboard and you're up by eight," he said.

Randolph Keys joined Fisher with 18 points and Kenny Siler, the Golden Eagles' only senior, added 17. Forward John White had 10 points, including two free throws with six seconds left after La Salle forced a five-second violation and then turned the ball over before getting a chance to tie the score.

Keys, with 42 points and 18 rebounds in the last two games, won the Most Valuable Player award, but said after the game that any of the Southern Miss starters could have won it.

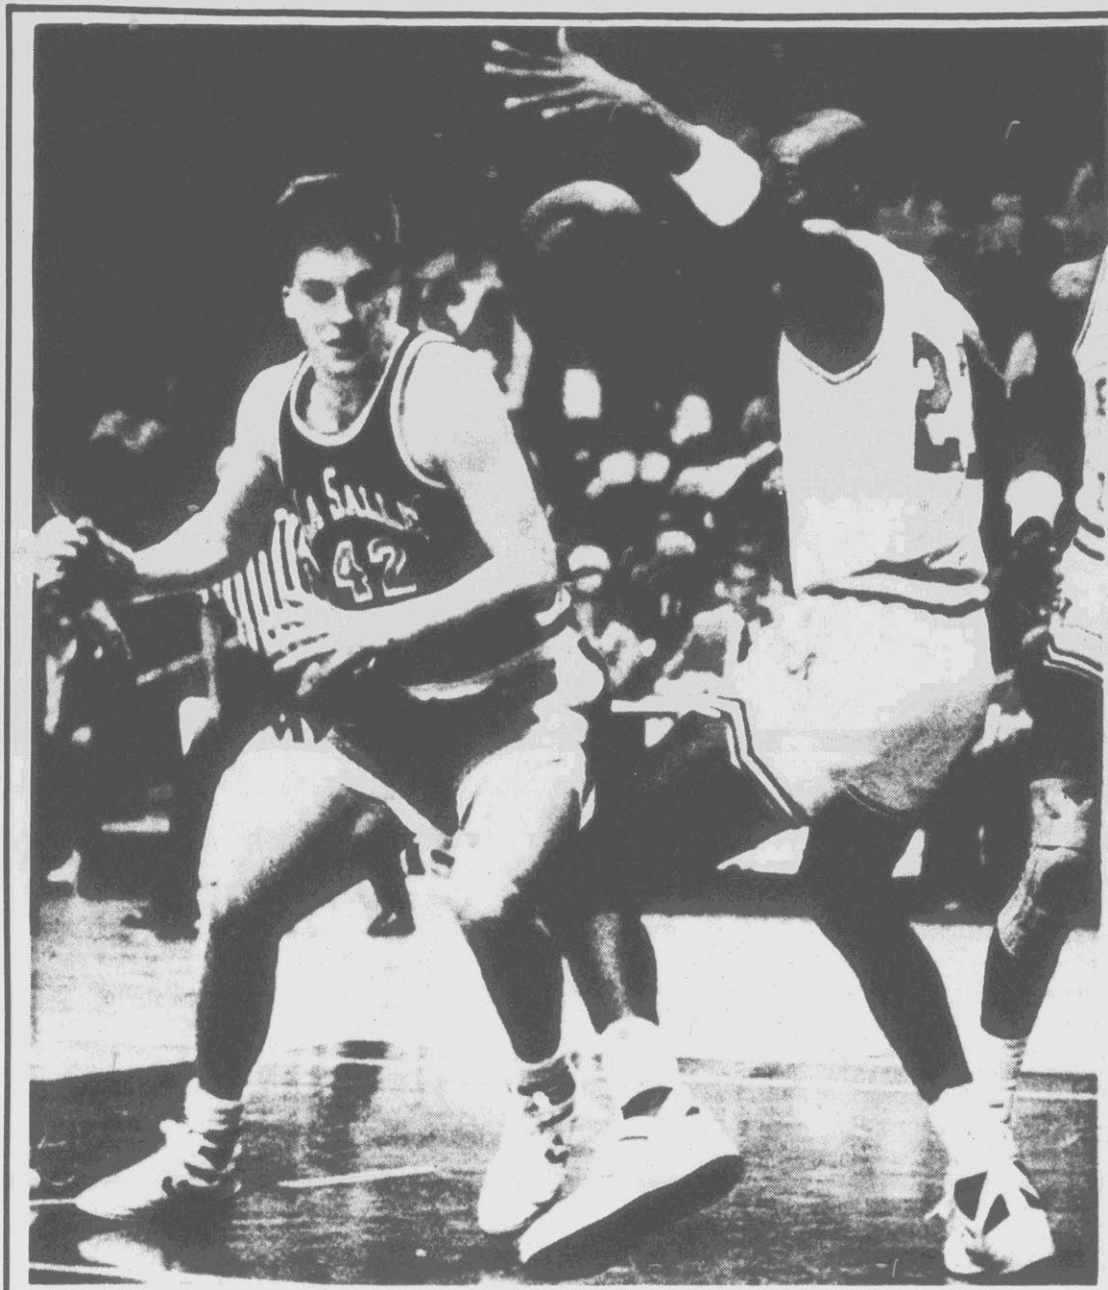

"It's a great feeling to get the award," Keys said, "but all of us are MVPs because we're a family and it was a team effort."

"Webster's dictionary doesn't have the words to describe how the players, coaches and fans feel about winning this," Turk said. "A team that was not mentally tough could not have survived this."

The Explorers, who trailed by as many as 11 points in the first half, came back after halftime to go ahead 44-43 with 17:06 remaining. Keys started the 16-4 spurt with a basket before Hamilton scored the Golden Eagles' next eight points to make it 55-46 with 11:22 to go.

After the spurt gave Southern Miss a 59-48 lead, La Salle fought back to get within three points twice, at 59-56 and 64-61.

Two 3-pointers by Fisher rebuilt the advantage to 75-65 with 3:11 remaining, but two baskets by Simmons, two free throws by Rich Tarr

Chapman Says Still Interested

Tom Chapman says that he is still interested in the East Carolina men's basketball coaching position.

Chapman, who is in New Orleans for the Final Four this weekend — along with ECU Athletic Director Ken Karr — said he isn't ready to make a final decision on the job.

"I'm very interested. But they were not ready and I'm not ready," he said.

East Carolina had called a press conference for Wednesday, but then canceled it several hours prior to it without explanation.

Karr, prior to leaving for New Orleans said that he had made a gamble in calling the press conference, but it had not panned out.

He said then that there would be no announcement prior to Tuesday, and that it could occur on that day, Wednesday or Thursday.

John Ruby, Chapman's assistant coach at Gannon in Erie, Pa., told the Daily News there that the disagreement was over the length of contract offered by East Carolina. ECU was offering three years and Chapman was asking for four.

However, a source at East Carolina said that was not true. He added that no offer had been extended to Chapman, but it was known that Chapman was the choice of the selection committee to be the next coach.

After the spurt gave Southern Miss a 59-48 lead, La Salle fought back to get within three points twice, at 59-56 and 64-61.

Two 3-pointers by Fisher rebuilt the advantage to 75-65 with 3:11 remaining, but two baskets by Simmons, two free throws by Rich Tarr

Ken Schrader Drives Past Earnhardt For Pole Spot

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Ken Schrader is another one of those overnight successes who took years to make it.

The 31-year-old Schrader knocked Dale Earnhardt off the pole Thursday in the opening round of qualifying for Sunday's TransSouth 500 at Darlington International Raceway.

Afterward, Schrader, who started racing in the NASCAR stock car series in 1985, was asked if he was surprised to be succeeding "so soon."

Schrader, who drove Midwest tracks for years in sprint cars and stock cars, looked as if he didn't know whether to laugh or cry. He replied: "I've been racing 19 years. This doesn't seem fast to me."

But it was a momentous day for both Schrader and car-owner Junie Donlavey, who both came up with their first-ever Winston Cup pole position.

Dunlavey, 62, whose first superspeedway race was at this track in 1950, couldn't help but smile.

"This is just a great feeling," he said. "Winning it (the first pole) here at Darlington means a lot to us. We've been coming here a long, long time."

Schrader agreed that it was special, but for a different reason.

"It was extra special for us that it was at this racetrack," said the driver. "The walls at this place are so close it absolutely terrifies me."

Still, he was able to turn at lap at 158.387 mph on the newly resurfaced 1.33-mile oval. And that was good enough to relegate Earnhardt's 158.071 to the outside of the front row for Sunday's 500-mile race.

"This is the same old Darlington, but with a smoother face," said Earnhardt, who did not seem particularly unhappy about his second-place finish. In fact, he was one of the first people to congratulate Schrader when the latter stepped from his Ford Thunderbird.

"I think we'll be in perfect shape for the race," said Earnhardt, the defending race champion and a two-time winner in four starts this season. "We've got a perfect combination on the car."

"If you want to win a championship this year, you've got to beat the No. 3 car (Earnhardt)," Schrader said. "I think everybody knows that."

"We ran an awful good lap, but like everybody else we're going to lose some (speed) in the race. But, Dale is so close to right that he knows he's only going to lose a tenth (of a second) or so. He's ready to race."

Schrader said it doesn't surprise him at all that the team is coming together in their third season. The driver pointed to the addition this season of highly regarded crew chief Bob Johnson.

He noted, "If you had raced for 25 years with the money you make this week going toward the race next week and with 10 volunteers working on the car every night, then find yourself suddenly with a decent budget, five guys working in the shop all week in the daytime and those same 10 volunteers coming in at night, you'd be enthusiastic, too. Everything is looking up for us."

Bill Elliott and Benny Parsons took the second row positions Thursday, followed by rookie Davey Allison, Rusty Wallace, Geoff Bodine, Bobby Allison, Lake Speed and Ricky Rudd.

The top 20 positions were locked in Thursday, with the rest of the 40-car lineup to be filled today.

Among the drivers who failed to make it in first-day qualifying were Richard Petty, Kyle Petty and local favorite Cale Yarborough, from nearby Sardis, S.C.

The top 20 qualifiers for Sunday's TransSouth 500 NASCAR stock car race, with type of car and qualifying speed in mph (rest of 40-car field to be filled in time trials Friday):

1. Ken Schrader, Ford Thunderbird, 158.387
2. Dale Earnhardt, Ford Thunderbird, 158.071
3. Bill Elliott, Ford Thunderbird, 157.863
4. Benny Parsons, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 157.853
5. Davey Allison, Ford Thunderbird, 157.792
6. Rusty Wallace, Pontiac Grand Prix 2+2, 157.622
7. Geoff Bodine, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 156.991
8. Bobby Allison, Buick LeSabre, 156.706
9. Lake Speed, Oldsmobile Delta 88, 156.636
10. Ricky Rudd, Ford Thunderbird, 156.442

Coaches Rate Final Four Matches As A Toss-Up

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Coaches from across the country rate this Final Four a toss-up.

"It's a strange Final Four," said George Raveling, who has made the coaching circuit from Washington State to Iowa and now to Southern Cal. "Any of the four teams have a real good shot to win. Logic says go with Las Vegas, but Bob can be real tough with a week to prepare."

The Final Four begins Saturday with the semifinals at the Louisiana Superdome. No. 10 Syracuse, 30-6, faces unranked Providence, 25-8, in an all-Big East semifinal at 3:42 p.m. EST. Top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, 37-1, meets No. 3 Indiana, 28-4, in the second semifinal 30 minutes after the conclusion of the first game.

The championship game will be played Monday beginning at 8:12 p.m.

"Sometimes you can see a little advantage to one team or the other," Raveling said, "but not this time."

Nevada-Las Vegas has won 22 straight since losing to Oklahoma 89-88 at Norman. Like Providence, the Runnin' Rebels have built much of their success on the 3-point field goal.

Nevada-Las Vegas, led by Freddie Banks, made the most 3-point field goals of any NCAA team this season, hitting 296, while Providence, led by Billy Donovan, made the most per game, with an average of 8.1. Banks hit 142-of-339 3-point attempts for UNLV, while Donovan shot 96-of-234 from the 19-foot, 9-inch range for Providence.

"The 3-point field goal helped two teams for sure," said Pitt Coach Paul Evans, whose team beat both Providence and Syracuse twice during the Big East season.

Syracuse is led by 6-foot-10 junior center Rony Seikaly, who averaged 15 points and 8.1 rebounds per game despite being slowed in early season during his recovery from a broken foot. Seikaly scored 104 points and had 37 rebounds in four tournament games and was named Most Valuable Player of the East Regional after the Orangemen beat second-ranked North Carolina 79-75 behind his 26 points and 11 rebounds.

Indiana's prime offensive weapon is Steve Alford, who averaged 21.7 points per game and broke the Hoosier's all-time scoring mark this season. While both UNLV and Providence have several 3-point shooters, Alford made 98 of Indiana's 121 long-range shots during the season.

"I think probably Syracuse's inside game will take its toll on Providence, and I think when Bobby has a week to prepare, he can beat anybody," Evans said in picking the Orangemen and Hoosiers in the semifinals.

In the final, Evans said, "I would hope for Syracuse, but probably Indiana."

Michigan Coach Bill Frieder, whose team lost twice to Indiana during the Big Ten season, said it was "an interesting Final Four — a wide open tournament. It's a tough call."

"Seikaly's play made Syracuse what it is now," Frieder said. "Indiana is in every game it plays, and Las Vegas has probably the best final after winning two of three during the Big East season and tournament. "It's like the NBA, when you play best-of-five or best-of-seven, you never sweep. Syracuse is in a tough situation. They've won twice. It's psychologically tough. Both teams are playing well, and you can't predict."

athletes, the best talent. Providence, the 3-point play has really benefited them.

While Frieder called Indiana's Dean Garrett, at 6-10 and 220 pounds, the only "true center in the conference," he said Alford could be the key to the tournament. "If he gets on a roll," Frieder said, "a lot will depend on how Vegas does at containing him."

Georgetown Coach John Thompson, whose Hoyas beat Syracuse to win the Big East tournament final, felt it would be tough for the Orangemen to defeat Providence a third time. Syracuse won two regular-season meetings with the Friars and have won 15 straight Big East games against Providence.

"It's very unpredictable anytime you have two league teams," said Thompson, whose Hoyas lost to Providence in the Southeast Regional Thompson called the Indiana-Las Vegas battle a tough one to size up.

"You have full court and half court. Jerry (Tarkanian, UNLV coach) tends to run a lot, and Bobby has a great half-court offense," Thompson said.

Syracuse is the only team in the tournament without a consistent 3-point shooter, although Raveling said he felt the mere threat of the long-range shot could help the Orangemen. Greg Monroe made 74-of-165 3-point attempts for the Orangemen.

"I almost feel like that during the tournament, the 3-pointer could help Seikaly," Raveling said. "There's so much pressure to guard the perimeter, it opens up the middle for him. Seikaly's made a lot of money for himself in this tournament."

Greene Central Tops C.B. Aycock

SNOW HILL — Gary Ginn and Shay Beaman both went 2-3 as Greene Central topped C.B. Aycock, 5-3, in the opening Eastern Plains Conference baseball game for both teams Thursday.

The Rams scored all five of their runs in the third inning. Gary Ginn and Shay Beaman each led off with singles. Tommy Eason then singled home Ginn. Chris Howell, running for Eason, stole second.

Darren Kadford singled to score Beaman and Howell and make it 3-0. Barry Ginn reached on an error on the shortstop. Vance Head singled and came home on a throwing error on the catcher to make it 4-0. Anthony Jones singled. Jake Barrow, courtesy runner for Jones, then stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. T.J. Johnson then hit a sacrifice fly to score Barrow and make it 5-0.

Anthony Jones went the distance, giving up four hits, to pick up the win for the Rams. Dion Battle went 2-3 with 2 RBI to lead Aycock.

Greene Central improves to 7-2 overall and 1-0 in the EPC. The Rams return to action next Friday at Ayden-Grifton.

Dale Cole threw a one-hitter, striking out seven and walking two as Chocowinity rolled by Creswell in a Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference baseball game Thursday, 7-1.

Cole went the distance for the win, and the only run Creswell scored was unearned.

The Tribe pushed across one run in the first and four more in the second to go ahead early and never look back.

In the first inning, Brian Badeau reached on an error. Jamie Stokes walked. Badeau was forced out on third on a fielder's choice that allowed Mike Jones to reach first. Brad Tyson walked to load the bases.

Jonathan Holley reached on an error by the shortstop that allowed Stokes to score.

In the second inning, the Indians pushed across four more runs.

Keith Mills, Lee Parrimore and Badeau all walked to load the bases. After two infield flies, Tyson was hit by a pitch to force in a run. Holley walked to bring home another run. Kevin Vick then singled home Badeau and Tyson.

Chocowinity is 3-3 in the conference and 3-4 overall. The Indians return to action Tuesday hosting Belhaven.

BELHAVEN — Belhaven High School scored runs in pairs to pull out a 6-5 baseball victory over Jamesville in the Tobacco Belt Conference Thursday.

Belhaven started the scoring with two in the first, then fell behind as Jamesville came up with four in the top of the third. But the Bulldogs tied it up with two more in the third.

Jamesville went back out by 5-4 with a run in the fifth, but was unable to hang onto the lead.

Belhaven rallied for two in the bottom of the inning to gain the win. Darrell Griffin walked and Melvin Satchell reached on a bunt single. Jay Holland reached on an error, scoring Griffin, but Satchell was thrown out at the plate. Wayne Moore then doubled to drive in Holland.

Adam O'Neal was the only player in the game with two hits, leading Belhaven's attack.

Jamesville falls to 3-4 overall and 3-2 in conference play. The Bulldogs are back in action on Tuesday at North Edgemore.

Lady Bucs Roll To Win

East Carolina's Lady Pirates picked up an 8-1 victory in a tennis match with St. Mary's College Thursday.

The Lady Pirates lost only in the number one singles where Sarah McGuire downed Amy Ziemer. Aside from that, and the number three match, which went to split sets, the Pirates had little trouble.

East Carolina is now 12-8 and returns to action on Tuesday hosting Campbell.

Summary:
Sarah McGuire (SM) d. Amy Ziemer, 7-5, 6-2.
Maria Swaim (EC) d. Lele Kirkland, 6-0, 6-3.

FBI May Investigate Agents

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI officials in Dallas will neither confirm nor deny reports that the bureau has begun an investigation into alleged cases of violence and threats involving sports agents and players.

The New York Times reported today that the Dallas office of the FBI had recorded a phone conversation between New York-based agent Lloyd Bloom and a former Southern Methodist University wide receiver Ronald Morris.

In that conversation The Times reports Bloom threatened to have Morris hands broken were he to sign with another agent.

The Times also reported New York-based agent Norby Walters was among subjects of this investigation.

Quoting unidentified sources familiar with the investigation, the Times said the FBI was investigating alleged threats made against Jeff Atkins, another former SMU player.

The Atlanta Constitution reported on March 12 that Walters admitted giving cash to college athletes in an effort to sign them as clients.

The Constitution reported today that Walters and Bloom are suing former Auburn running back Brent Fullwood and Terence Flagler of Clemson, alleging that the two took money from them but reneged on contracts signed while they were still playing college ball.

Walters and Bloom are seeking $500,000 in damages apiece from Fullwood, and Flagler in the suits filed in New York Supreme Court, the Constitution said.

Walters also has come under the scrutiny of the National Football League Players Association (NFLPA), which says two college seniors eligible for the April 28 draft called the union to report that Walters had threatened "to break their legs" for firing him.

Walters denies the charges, but he does not deny making cash payments to college football and basketball players before their eligibility has expired — a violation of NCAA rules.

Fullwood was among the players Walters said he has given money to during their college playing careers. Fullwood completed his eligibility last fall.

Lon Trost, an attorney with Shea and Gould in New York who is representing Walters' firm, World Sports and Entertainment Inc., in a number of lawsuits, told The Times he was not aware of an FBI investigation concerning Walters.

Edward Vincent King Jr., a San Francisco attorney dealing in sports litigation, told The Times he knew of a sports agent who had spoken with the FBI on Tuesday and that four other players had been interviewed.

The newspaper said the Chicago FBI office was brought into a police investigation of an assault on a sports agent who had signed two players formerly associated with Walters.

Rose Girls Get Revenge By Topping Eastern Wayne

Rose High School gained revenge for an earlier loss and earned their first victory of the year by downing Eastern Wayne Thursday, 6-2, in softball.

The loss was the first of the year for the Lady Warriors, who are now 5-1. Rose climbs to 2-1 on the season.

Eastern Wayne took the lead in the top of the first with two, while Rose scored once in the bottom of the frame.

Rose then took the lead with three runs in the second. Shannon Perry reached on an error and Jenny Carroll singled. Andrea Rodgers doubled to drive in Perry and Kristen Shea reached on an error which allowed both Carroll and Rodgers to score for a 4-2 lead.

Rose added two more in the fourth. Kim Bridges and Carroll each had two hits to lead Rose while Cammie Smith added a triple. Wilcox had two hits to lead Eastern Wayne.

Rose travels to Northern Nash on Tuesday to open Big East Conference play.

PIKEVILLE — Greene Central's softball team continued to roll along Thursday, downing Charles B. Aycock, 19-4, for its sixth straight win on the year and its 27th in a row.

It was also the first Eastern Plains Conference action of the year for the Lady Rams.

Greene Central took the lead with one in the first, but Aycock responded with two in its half of the frame.

The Lady Rams then put the game out of reach with six in the second. Audrey Thomas singled and Joy Albritton got a hit. Both scored on a home run by Laticia Warren. Angel Harrell kept it going with a single and Chanel Hooker tripled to drive Harrell in. Missy Poole doubled in Hooker and scored the sixth run on a hit by Thomas. That made it 7-1.

Greene Central added two in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth, three in the sixth and four in the seventh. Aycock added two more in the fourth.

The Rams were led by Hooker, Poole, Albritton and Harrell with four hits each while Christie Warren and Jennie Hardison each three. No one had more than one hit for Aycock.

Greene Central is now idle until April 3 when it plays host to Ayden-Grifton.

BELHAVEN — Jamesville took advantage of 19 errors by Belhaven and banged out 17 hits of its own to romp to a 24-5 softball victory over the Lady Bulldogs Thursday.

Jamesville took the lead in the first scoring a single run.

But in the second, the Lady Bullets put it away with 10 big runs. Jamesville took advantage of only three hits and nine errors and no walks in the inning. One of the hits, however, was a three-run homer by Val Clark.

Jamesville added seven runs in the third, two in the fifth and four in the seventh. All five Belhaven runs came in the fourth inning.

Jamesville's hitting was led by Jennifer Getchell and Clark with three each. Another of Clark's was a triple. Amanda Barber, Karen Styns and Shay Hale each added two. One of Styns' was a double.

Gibbs had three for Belhaven. Jamesville is now 5-1 overall and 3-1 in conference games. The Lady Bullets travel to North Edgemore on Tuesday.

CHOCOWINITY — Chocowinity, with only one pitcher available Thursday, fell to Creswell, 16-9, after the hurler sustained a hairline wrist fracture on his pitching hand.

Vickie Elks suffered the injury late in the game, but continued to pitch, but was ineffective as Creswell banded out five hits, and took advantage of six walks and two errors to rally for 10 runs and take the win.

Chocowinity had taken the lead with three in the first, but Creswell rallied for three in the top of the third before Chocowinity added five in its half of the frame. Christie Bradley had a three-run homer to highlight the frame.

Creswell came back with two in the fourth and one in the fifth before exploding for 10 in the sixth. Chocowinity added one in the fifth.

A. Moore led Creswell with four hits while M. Cahoon had two. Wendy Dixon, Susan Elks, Mignon Langley and Ann Wood each had two for Chocowinity.

Now 2-3 in Tobacco Belt play, Chocowinity travels to Belhaven on Tuesday. Creswell is now 3-1.

Farmville Rolls To Win In Golf Match

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central High School took first place in a three-way golf match held Thursday at the Farmville Golf and Country Club.

The Jaguars finished the 18-hole match with a score of 326 while Conley was second at 332. Southern Wayne finished third with a 342 score.

Mark Williams led Farmville with a 72 while Lance Parker had an 81. Parker Ledbetter added an 85 while both Brad Flowers and Allen Lewis added 88s.

Johnny Pinner paced Conley with a 76, while Greg Siegel had an 83. Tran Dean had an 86 while Gentry Pinner had an 87.

Bo Young carded a 77 to lead Southern Wayne, while Mike Kennedy had 85, Kevin Walling had 88 and Craig Byrd had 92.

Farmville is now 3-4 on the year and is at Ayden-Grifton on Monday. Conley returns to action on Monday at Washington.

Rose.....298
Ayden-Grifton.....346

Rose High School's golf team rolled to its third straight victory Thursday a Brook Valley Country Club, downing Ayden-Grifton.

The Rampants finished the 18 hole round with a team score of 298 while the Chargers finished with 346.

Rob Thomas led Rose with an even-par 72. Simon Moye added a 74 while David Lee had 75 and Lee Watson had 76.

and a rebound basket by Craig Conlin cut the deficit to 82-80 with 21 seconds left. The Explorers then forced a five-second call on the inbounds pass, but Hamilton forced an off-balance pass and a turnover.

White, limited to 21 minutes because of foul trouble, was fouled in desperation and hit the two free throws, clinching the outcome.

"We built the lead, then lost most of it three times, but when John White went to the foul line, I told the coaches that this one was history," Turk said. "I knew he would make it. When it's crunch time, you have to concentrate and be mentally tough."

Hamilton, Tarr, Simmons, Derrick Vick of Nebraska and James Dawn of Arkansas-Little Rock made the all-tournament team.

Simmons was following in the footsteps of three-time La Salle All-American Tom Gola, the MVP of the 1952 NIT championship team when he also was a freshman.

Rampant Netters Take Win From Northeastern

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School struggled through a 15-13 tie breaker in the deciding match as the Rampants dominated Northeastern, 5-4, in a Big East tennis match Thursday.

Jim Metzger and Jason Dohm finally downed White and Farmer, 9-8, after the 28-point tie-breaker to give Rose the win. Both teams had won three singles matches and one doubles match each prior to the final match.

The Jaguars wrapped up the win in the singles, winning five of the six events. Southern came back to win all three doubles matches, but the overall decision had been made.

Farmville is now 4-3 on the year while Southern drops to 0-3. Farmville plays host to Rosewood on Tuesday.

North Lenoir.....76
 Conley.....54
 LAGRANGE — North Lenoir piled up an early lead in the field events and held off D.H. Conley in a Coastal Conference track meet Thursday, taking a 76-54 victory.

North Lenoir won eight individual events while Conley won the remaining six. Conley also won all three of the relays, but could not overcome the Hawks' depth.

The loss drops Conley to 1-3 on the year. They return to action on Thursday at West Craven.

GAO Says $16 Million Spent Improperly On Inauguration

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $16 million spent by the government for President Reagan's 1985 inauguration was an "improper use of taxpayer funds," according to Capitol Hill auditors who warn it will happen again unless Congress steps in.

Some federal agencies, such as the Department of Defense, which spent $10 million and assigned 8,500 people to the inauguration, have only limited authority from Congress for such activity, the General Accounting Office said.

For lack of legislative guidance, agencies adopted a variety of practices for getting reimbursed by the Presidential Inaugural Committee, a private enterprise, the report said.

It said that at the Defense Department "virtually all inaugural support was without reimbursement."

Of the $16,189,761 spent by seven federal agencies, only $677,422 was reimbursed, the GAO said.

There were nine balls and 10 other inaugural events in a four-day period around the inauguration Jan. 21, 1985, "largely planned, staffed, and executed by federal employees at the taxpayers' expense," the report said.

The "legally questionable support at taxpayers' expense" will reoccur in 1989 and at all future inaugurations unless Congress specifies functions and activities to be publicly financed, the GAO added.

"Legislation is needed to clarify federal agencies' roles in inaugural planning and support activities, the nature of the inaugural event, and the presidential Inaugural Committee for future inaugurations," the GAO said. "Under existing law, agencies may not use federal funds to support private concerns."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., asked for the audit from the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress.

Accountants dug back into history and tracked the progression of inaugural trappings from the single formal dance held weeks after George Washington was sworn in, through 19th century parades "dominated by fife and drum corps, herds of livestock, and Indians," to the festivities for Reagan's second term.

They noted that the Constitution requires only one thing of the incoming president: that he take the 37-word oath of office.

According to the report:

—The committee, headed by Reagan's friend Michael K. Deaver, raised nearly $2 million by selling commemorative items ranging from sweatshirts and jelly bean jugs.

—The only government agency fully reimbursed was the Smithsonian Institution, whose Air and Space Museum was used for one of the balls. The others — particularly the Department of Defense — got back only minuscule amounts of what they spent.

—The Armed Forces Inaugural Committee was reimbursed $52,468 of its nearly $10 million, including $7,000 for portable toilets, $1,360 for bullhorns, $1,260 for box lunches and $2,219 for white gloves.

—A military staff of 1,826 devoted 81,603 staff days to the inauguration and included 560 drivers, 244 ushers and 43 people providing "transportation-operations assistance" for entertainers, first family friends and big bands. Governors and other state representatives got 56 military aides, the president and vice president's families had 23.

—On inauguration day the number of military swelled to 8,400 people, including 2,570 assigned to the parade that didn't take place because of bitter cold. The number was well below the 10,789 military involved in Reagan's first inauguration in 1981.

"DOD provided, in GAO's opinion, legally questionable support at taxpayers' expense," the report said.

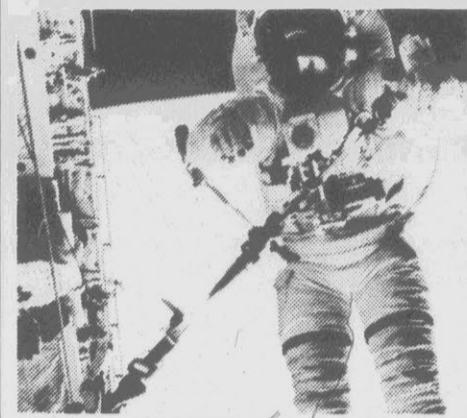

—The General Services Administration spent $1.9 million and was reimbursed $396,000; the District of Columbia got back $7,000 of its $2,194,000; the Secret Service spent $1.3 million and was reimbursed $140,000; the Department of Interior put out $703,000 and got back $56,000.

The GAO said the inaugural committee, acting on advice of its legal office, withheld access to its records after first agreeing to cooperate. The committee went out of business before the GAO could ask questions about its reasons for requesting federal support for its activities.

Deaver worked in the White House as Reagan's deputy chief of staff until early in 1985 when he started a consulting firm. He pleaded innocent Thursday to five counts of lying about his lobbying activities to Congress and a federal grand jury.

House Republicans Scan Presidential Contenders

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Contenders for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination are courting a tough audience of House Republicans who are looking for a candidate to carry on the agenda President Reagan has begun.

All but one of the expected GOP hopefuls will be auditioning today and Saturday for the legislators who have come to New York — site of the First Congress — as part of the congressional bicentennial activities.

Organizers of the conference have told the candidates to leave their stump speeches at home and instead be prepared to answer questions from the House members during separate appearances before the group.

"Frankly, this is an influential group in our party," House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said Thursday. "It's an opportunity for the candidates to meet us all."

And it is a chance for the House members to tell the candidates what message they should be bringing to voters. So far, that message is not to stray from the Reagan agenda that brought him two landslide victories.

"I don't think any (GOP) candidate ... is going to want to be departing very far from what we've got as a base out there," Michel said.

Today, conference participants were scheduled to question Vice President George Bush, Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

Former Delaware Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV and former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. will appear Saturday.

Haig declared his candidacy earlier this week, and du Pont had declared earlier. Kemp plans to make his announcement April 6.

Dole, Bush and Rumsfeld are considered certain to enter the race.

Not attending the session because of a prior commitment is television evangelist Pat Robertson, who also is considering a bid for the GOP presidential nomination.

About 120 of the 177 GOP members of the House of Representatives and their families traveled by train from Washington Thursday to pay tribute to the First Congress, which convened in New York in the spring of 1789.

The event has had the lighthearted air of a class trip, beginning with the send-off in Washington.

William Pitts, a top Michel aide, was dressed as a colonial town crier, complete with powdered wig.

"Hear ye, hear ye. The Democrats are going to raise your taxes," Pitts shouted as passengers arrived to board the chartered train dubbed the "Founding Fathers' Special."

Like participants on a class trip, the legislators had been given a memo from Jack Russ, the House sergeant at arms, warning against pickpockets and muggers in New York.

Thursday night, Michel delivered a keynote address for the 48-hour conference, saying Republicans are facing issues similar to those that challenged members of the First Congress: "Making the federal government work so that it meets national needs but does not crush the real heart of America, the local governments, voluntary associations and various communities from which so much of our national strength comes."

Michel stressed the theme of "a nation of communities" and said, "That vision is opposed by the national leadership of the Democratic Party."

Soviets Whistle With Delight Over Brubeck Concert

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Jazz pianist Dave Brubeck mounted a Soviet stage for the first time in his career and launched into two hours of virtuoso improvisations that fulfilled a personal dream and had the audience whistling with delight.

The 66-year-old American musician began a 13-performance tour of the Soviet Union Thursday before a packed 2,500-seat concert hall in the Rossiya Hotel near the Kremlin.

For some Soviets in the high-ceilinged hall, who had first heard Brubeck in broadcasts by the Voice of America during the Cold War or on tape recordings circulated by friends, it was like coming face to face with a legend.

"Brubeck for me is my youth, the 1950s, the thaw after Stalin, better relations with America," said one 55-year-old Moscow office worker and jazz enthusiast. "He's all that, plus of course his wonderful music."

Brubeck's trip to the Soviet Union was made possible by the cultural accord signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev at their November 1985 summit meeting in Geneva.

The pianist, who arrived in Moscow Wednesday, told reporters at the airport that his previous plans to play in the Soviet Union had fallen through because of strained relations between the superpowers.

"To come to the Soviet Union and perform with my quartet — that's the fulfillment of a dream," he wrote in program notes given out at his first Moscow concert.

Brubeck, joined by his 34-year son Chris on bass guitar, clarinetist Bill Smith and drummer Randy Jones, delighted the audience at Moscow's Central Concert Hall with unorthodox time signatures and harmonic experimentation.

The quartet swept through the Brubeck theme "Take Five," and other jazz classics including Duke Ellington's "Take the A Train" and a medley that included "St. Louis Blues," George Gershwin's "Summertime" and hints of boogie-woogie and ragtime.

At one point, Brubeck rose from the keyboard of his grand piano, clapped to a syncopated rhythm that the audience joined along in, then launched into the rollicking tune "Unsquare Dance."

Bouncing his feet off the floor, the silver-haired Brubeck dashed his fingers across the keys to end the piece with a few bars of "Turkey in the Straw" as the audience shouted, applauded and whistled its approval.

"Brubeck in Moscow — it's a pure miracle," commented one member of the audience, 32-year-old musician Alexander Mirokhin. "Like jazz, he's no longer American, he's international, something we all understand."

Law student Alexander Bolotsky, 22, said he had waited in line to buy his ticket for several hours, and that once the box office had opened, all 1,250 tickets available were sold within 2½ hours.

"But I'm happy, overwhelmed, really, by this music," he said. "This was the music my parents raised me on, and now I'm getting to watch as it's made."

The audience included military men in uniform, society matrons, bureaucrats in suits and numerous young people in sweaters and jeans.

Speaking to reporters backstage following the two-hour concert, a smiling Brubeck said, "They were wonderful." Asked about Soviet audiences, he replied: "I don't know where they'd be better."

The quartet is scheduled to play in Moscow through Monday, then travel to Tallinn, the capital of Soviet Estonia, and to Leningrad, where they will play their final concert on April 10.

The tour is sponsored by the Soviet state concert agency Goskontsert, the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and the Kadan Co. of San Francisco.

Brubeck said upon arrival in the Soviet Union that the main reason for his tour is to play music, rather than to serve as an ambassador of good will from the United States.

But Soviet jazz critic Andrei Batashyev, who served as master of ceremonies for the Thursday night concert, said the music was something people of both superpowers could share.

"Today they applaud Soviet jazz in the United States, and we are delighted to welcome American jazz to our country," he said.

Request Rejected

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — The State Ports Authority rejected a request Tuesday to give or sell a small-boat harbor in Brunswick County to the city of Southport as a way of boosting tourism and tax revenues.

A delegation of Southport officials said the harbor, which currently is leased to a private company, Southport Marina Inc., could benefit the area more if the city owned it.

W.R. Thorsen, a member of the city's board of aldermen, said the facility now was used for commercial, not recreational, purposes.

The authority's board members voted to approve changes in a contract with Southport Marina but took no action to give up the property.

Commission on Thursday adopted the new rules as part of a five-year transition to a period when cable operators will not be told what broadcast signals they must carry.

In the meantime, cable systems will have to transmit a certain number of local broadcast stations.

The FCC last year ordered the cable industry to provide so-called A-B switches and install them free of charge for all 40 million customers. The A-B device allows viewers to switch at will from the cable feed to their old rooftop antenna to receive channels — typically local public TV stations — not being carried by the cable system.

The agency stayed those rules in December because of intense opposition by the cable industry, which said the switches, which cost about $5 apiece, would cost operators $1.4 billion over five years.

The commission Thursday retained a section of the earlier rules requiring cable systems to carry a certain number of local stations, including non-commercial stations, but that requirement expires in five years.

Cable operators were generally pleased with the FCC action, but public TV stations were disappointed that the carriage requirements are not more stringent. Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., chairman of the House telecommunications subcommittee, called the rules outrageous because they are not permanent.

The commission was concerned that after years of becoming ac-

FCC Clarifies Rule On Local Channels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cable companies must provide $5 equipment to new customers to allow them to watch local stations not carried by the cable system, federal regulators say.

The Federal Communications Commission on Thursday adopted the new rules as part of a five-year transition to a period when cable operators will not be told what broadcast signals they must carry.

In the meantime, cable systems will have to transmit a certain number of local broadcast stations.

The FCC last year ordered the cable industry to provide so-called A-B switches and install them free of charge for all 40 million customers. The A-B device allows viewers to switch at will from the cable feed to their old rooftop antenna to receive channels — typically local public TV stations — not being carried by the cable system.

The agency stayed those rules in December because of intense opposition by the cable industry, which said the switches, which cost about $5 apiece, would cost operators $1.4 billion over five years.

The commission Thursday retained a section of the earlier rules requiring cable systems to carry a certain number of local stations, including non-commercial stations, but that requirement expires in five years.

Cable operators were generally pleased with the FCC action, but public TV stations were disappointed that the carriage requirements are not more stringent. Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., chairman of the House telecommunications subcommittee, called the rules outrageous because they are not permanent.

The commission was concerned that after years of becoming accustomed to receiving programs only by cable, many viewers have stopped keeping their antennas in good repair.

"This maximizes the consumer's choice," FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler said. "We are giving the subscribers the ability to choose what they will watch, instead of the government determining that."

Commissioner James H. Quello went along in approving the rules, but said he disagreed with the expiration provision and expressed concern that cable operators might inflate the price of switches to discourage subscribers from buying them.

FCC General Counsel Diane Killory said the expiration feature is necessary for the rules to pass legal muster. The rules are expected to be challenged in the courts.

Markey, whose committee plans to hold hearings on the "must-carry" issue, said the expiration provision has virtually no support in Congress.

In 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington threw out rules that required cable systems to carry all TV stations in a community that could be received over the air. The court said the rules abridged a cable operator's First Amendment right to select what programming to show.

Under the new rules, all cable systems will have to carry at least one local, non-commercial TV station. Also, cable companies will select which stations to carry if there are more stations than can fit on one-fourth of the system's channels. To get into the pool of channels from which the selection is made, a station must meet minimum viewership levels.

Cable operators will be required to explain to subscribers that switches are available and describe their operation.

Charlton Heston To Host SNL

NEW YORK (AP) — Charlton Heston says he offered historical perspective to the staff of "Saturday Night Live" when they met, but it dealt not with "Ben Hur," but with Caesar — as in Sid.

Heston, who made his name playing heroic figures in screen epics, will try his hand as guest host of SNL on Saturday.

"It's a rare chance to kid around a little," Heston said in an interview. "I've spent most of my life playing these formidable fellows who are busy leading the Jews out of bondage or painting the Sistine ceiling, and those fellows, they're too busy to make jokes."

Heston, who now stars on ABC's prime-time soap "The Colbys," said he had gone over one night to observe the SNL writers' meeting.

"They were at great pains to explain it to me the way they went about it, and I said, 'I think you lack some historical perspective.' In the '50s I did the Sid Caesar Show about eight times when it was really much the same kind of show.

"The way they put it together was precisely similar," he said. "Then they didn't have to call it 'Sid Caesar Live,' because everything was live, or just about everything."

Heston said when he did Sid Caesar, the writing staff included Neil Simon, Mel Brooks and Carl Reiner.

"Caesar was extraordinarily gifted at doing doubletalk that sounded like Italian or German or French or Japanese, and they would do an 'Italian' movie," he said. "It was all gobbledygook, but it sounded like Italian, and the guest star always got to be one of the guys in it."

"And even though you were not, as I was not, given in making that stuff up, Reiner and Brooks and those people threw off so much stuff — it really was different every day — you didn't have to make up your own doubletalk, you just listened to it and did their castoffs, and I loved doing that."

"The Colbys" concluded its season with a cliffhanger episode Wednesday. The show has done poorly in the ratings, but Heston said, "I'm sure it will" return next fall.

Hometown Has Party For Tess

MAMMOTH SPRING, Ark. (AP) — Tess Harper's hometown plans to throw an Academy Awards Watch Night Party to root for the actress nominated for her role in "Crimes of the Heart."

"Entertainment Tonight" will also be stopping in town Monday, which has been declared Tess Harper Day, said Mayor Jean Pace.

Miss Harper — who grew up in this Missouri border town of 1,200 as Tessie Jean Washam — has been nominated for best supporting actress. Her parents, Ed and Rosemary Washam, operate Washam's Hardware on Main Street.

"The first time that I can remember that she did anything was for the school when she was in second grade," Miss Harper's mother said Thursday. "... She sang a song called 'Tammy.'"

The other actresses nominated are Piper Laurie for "Children of a Lesser God," Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio for "The Color of Money," Maggie Smith for "A Room With a View," and Dianne Wiest for "Hannah and Her Sisters."

Miss Harper, who lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., won't be attending the Watch Night Party, her mother said. She'll be at the awards ceremony in Los Angeles.

Since 1960, Pitt County's population has increased from 69,942 to approximately 95,000.

Bruce Isn't Running

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Rock star Bruce Springsteen says he has no plans to run for governor, contrary to a tabloid report that he was considering entering the race as a Democrat. The report in this week's National Enquirer was false, Springsteen's publicist, Marilyn Laverty, said Thursday.

The tabloid said the New Jersey native told an unidentified "close friend" he is "seriously considering" running in 1989, when Republican Gov. Thomas H. Kean must step down at the end of his second term.

Springsteen has occasionally supported political causes, including an unsuccessful attempt last year to keep a 3M plant open in his hometown of Freehold. His concerts have raised money for food banks and Vietnam veterans.

Separation

LONDON (AP) — Rock star Elton John and his wife, Renate, have separated but have no immediate plans for divorce, his office said.

"Elton and Renate jointly wish it to be known that they have for many months lived apart whilst each of them has been considering the future of their marriage," a statement released Thursday said.

The statement said the two "remain on very good personal terms" and have no immediate plans to divorce.

Prince Tour

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rock star Prince plans to kick off an eight-week European concert tour with three performances May 8-10 in Stockholm, Sweden, his publicist said.

"He's going all over the place," Robyn Riggs said Thursday. "He's very popular in Europe. He had a good time on his last tour."

Prince played a surprise 75-minute performance Saturday at a nightclub in his hometown of Minneapolis.

The singer's next album, a double-record set entitled "Sign o' the Times," is set for release March 30.

FOCUS

Crippling a Virus
 On this day in 1952, Dr. Jonas Salk announced his discovery of a new vaccine for immunization against polio. A few years later, the Salk vaccine was tested on more than one million American school children. The first medical description of polio was made in 1840 by a German bone specialist. But experts believe polio has afflicted humans since ancient times. An Egyptian carving from 1400 B.C. shows a young man with a withered leg that may have been caused by polio.
DO YOU KNOW — Who developed the first oral vaccine for polio?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — In 1925, John Scopes was tried for teaching the theory of evolution.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY March 28
GENERAL TENDENCIES: You will be able to make this a profitable time by walking the straight and narrow. Don't heed the temptation to stray from rightness. Drastic changes should be avoided.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't run off on any tangents. Be sure you steer clear of that individual with strange views who can upset you.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Get into hobbies and pleasures with a good friend. Plan how to gain a personal wish and it is soon yours.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get busy at outside matters and avoid a partner who wants too much of your valuable time.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Handle important matters, but don't bother with unnecessary details. Avoid moody co-workers.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Plan how to get your business affairs handled wisely. Forget that hobby and try to please your mate this evening.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): It's a good day to sit down with a partner and come to a happy understanding for the future.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): It's a good day to study your surroundings and find some way to improve them. Be careful on the roads today.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Get into outlets that give you relief from tensions. Forget distressing business matters.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): You may feel limited at what you are doing today, so be with your family members who are happy.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Several short trips can bring the results you want. Be with cheerful persons and avoid gloomy individuals.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Forget amusements for now and concentrate on practical matters. Be careful in motion.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Concentrate on personal affairs and seek greater happiness and comfort. Put worldly matters aside for now.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she would do well at any profession connected with large corporations, foundations, institutions, etc., but would meet with much trouble in foreign countries. Teach this one to be more objective and avoid hurting the feelings of others as well.

Opening lead: Queen of ♣
 When you are dealt a bad hand, it is often easier to complain than to value it realistically. While South might get the credit for his fine play in making the slam, we feel the kudos really belong to North for bidding it in the first place.

South showed a tremendously powerful hand on the given sequence. Since North had shown nothing other than length in hearts, South's takeout double and cue-bid prior to his jump to five spades virtually guaranteed a secondary diamond suit as well, and the ability to take 11 tricks on his own. North decided his three trumps and ruffing value in diamonds just made his hand worth the trick South was looking for.

West led the top of his club sequence. Matters looked easy until West showed out on the second trump. A brief study of the position revealed only one possibility: declarer, saddled with a sure heart loser, had to reduce his trumps to the same length as East's, and then be able to give up the lead when both declarer and East were down to nothing but two trumps each. Once the position had been visualized, the execution was simple indeed.

Since East would have to hold four diamonds and two clubs, declarer cashed the king of clubs and his high diamonds. Then he ruffed his diamond loser on the table. When he led a club, it would not help East to ruff, so he discarded a heart and declarer trumped. The rest was easy.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and exited with his low heart, not caring who won the trick. If East had the monarch, he would have to lead a trump at trick 11, and the finesse was marked. If West won, East's trumps would be caught in a coup. Either way, the slam was home.

Lightning Destroys Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Lightning appears to have destroyed a rocket in a setback for a worldwide military communications network and another blow to a space agency still reeling from the Challenger disaster.

The unmanned Atlas-Centaur rocket tumbled 51 seconds after launch Thursday and was blown apart along with its military payload by a radio signal to prevent it from careening into populated coastal areas. Flaming debris plunged into the Atlantic about three miles offshore.

A videotape released by NASA clearly shows a large lightning bolt descending from the area of the rocket, hidden in clouds, and striking the launch pad about the time the vehicle exploded.

NASA did not immediately place blame for the failure and was expected to name a review board today to investigate the accident, which ended a streak of seven launch successes.

The failure ruined a $161 million mission, with the rocket valued at $78 million and the satellite at $83 million. The satellite was to have joined a network of five communications payloads to link military forces worldwide.

The 137-foot rocket lifted off in a rain storm at 4:22 p.m. EST and went into a cloud bank.

NASA launch commentator George Diller said the rocket appeared to be flying normally, "a very clean bird," when he suddenly announced, "We have lost all telemetry data. ... We have lost control of the vehicle. We appear to have lost the rocket."

He reported later the rocket had shot out of control and was blown apart, at an altitude of 14,250 feet, by a radio signal that detonated explosive charges in it.

The explosion was not visible from the ground but observers heard a muffled blast.

Although launch officials were reluctant to place blame, launch director James L. Womack said, "Certainly, there was a possibility there was a lightning strike in the area. We've asked the range to check all their intensity meters to determine if there was one."

Launch rules prohibit liftoff if there is lightning within five miles. Lightning on the edge of the five-mile zone held up launch for 14 minutes, said John W. Gibb, manager of NASA's Atlas-Centaur project office.

"At the time of the launch, we were in a solid go as far as the weather was concerned," Gibb told a news conference.

Gold Mine Disaster Kills 30 People

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — A cave-in buried 50 miners at a gold mine in mountainous southern Ecuador, killing as many as 30 of them, officials said.

The disaster occurred Thursday at the Nambija mine, on a mountainside four hours by foot from the town of Zamora, capital of Zamora Chincipe province and about 435 miles south of Quito.

Rescue equipment and doctors were being sent to the mine, said police Lt. Renan Velasco in a telephone interview from Zamora with The Associated Press.

There were no confirmed casualty figures, and details on the accident were not immediately available.

Floro Regalado, prefect of Zamora Chincipe province, estimated 30 deaths and said news of the accident had arrived with messengers from the mine. Police, quoting survivors, said 50 miners were buried.

"Doctors are urgently needed to treat the injured," Regalado, the area's chief administrative officer, told Radio Centinela, a station in the nearby city of Loja.

"We are carrying out a mission to remove the bodies," he said.

Regalado said authorities had long feared a cave-in at El Playon, the sector of the mine where the accident occurred.

Authorities had closed and condemned the mine, which dates to the colonial era, but miners have continued to work it for the last 10 years, said Regalado.

About 10,000 people live in the area of Nambija, a hillside with dozens of mine shafts that are exploited by free-lancers despite the great danger.

Experts say the mountainous region is rife with perforated rock strata that makes traditional mining unsafe.

The average daily temperature in Pitt County is 73 degrees Fahrenheit. The average daily minimum temperature is 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the week ending March 20.

House COMMITTEE BUDGETS — By a vote of 280 for and 117 against, the House authorized a $47.9 million budget (H Res 108) for some of its committee operations in 1987. This is an increase of nearly $4 million, or 9 percent, over the same authorization for 1986.

The $47.9 million will fund about half of the cost of the 27 House committees this year. This "investigation and studies" budget covers travel, consultants, investigations and miscellany, as well as salaries for nearly half of the approximately 2,000 committee employees.

Supporter William Thomas, R-Calif., said the House has done "a remarkable job of trying to hold the line" in 1987 committee spending.

Opponent Robert Walker, R-Pa., said it will take "about 1,300 American working families paying every dime in taxes" to raise the $4 million in additional committee spending.

Members voting yes wanted to spend 9 percent more this year on certain House committee operations.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; W.G. Hefner, D-8, and James Clarke, D-11.

Those voting no were Howard Coble, R-6; Alex McMillan, R-9, and Cass Ballenger, R-10.

Not voting were Martin Lancaster, D-3, and Charles Rose, D-7.

COMMITTEE FREEZE — The House rejected, 127 for and 268 against, an attempt to freeze the 1987 authorization for certain committee operations at the 1986 level of $44 million.

This occurred as the House debated a measure (H Res 108, above) setting its committee "investigations and expenditures" budget at nearly $48 million, up 9 percent over 1986. The vote was on a motion to send the budget back to the Administration Committee for trimming.

Freeze supporter Joel Hefley, R-Colo., said it was wrong for the House to increase its committee spending by more than twice the rate of inflation.

Opponent Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said the resolution "strikes the proper balance" between fiscal restraint and meeting committee needs.

Members voting yes favored a committee spending freeze.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Coble, McMillan and Ballenger.

Those voting no were Jones, Valentine, Price, Neal, Hefner and Clarke. Lancaster and Rose did not vote.

65 MPH SPEED LIMIT — The House voted, 217 for and 206 against, to enable states to raise the speed limit on rural interstates from 55 mph to 65 mph.

The resolution (H Con Res 77) was sent to the Senate. Although it potentially could legalize 65 mph driving on three-fourths of the 42,500-mile interstate system, its impact is uncertain because many states would retain the 55 mph limit.

Supporter Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, called the 55 mph mandate "an unnecessary and unreasonable intrusion into states' rights."

Opponent William Lehman, D-Fla., said backing the faster speed "is like casting a vote in favor of crashing one or two Boeing 747's each year."

Members voting yes wanted states to be able to permit 65 mph driving.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Neal, Coble, Rose, McMillan, Ballenger and Clarke.

Those voting no were Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price and Hefner.

Senate CONTRA AID — The Senate rejected, 48 for and 52 against, an attempt to keep $40 million in U.S. military aid from flowing to American-backed contras in Nicaragua.

The vote killed a resolution (S Res 81) to disapprove the aid, which is the final payment of $100 million that Congress appropriated last year.

It appeared to insure the release of the $40 million, even though the Senate also was weighing a House-passed measure to block the payment by different means. The House would freeze the money until the Administration accounts for funds already made available to the contras.

Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., referred to the contra policy and the Iran-contra scandal and said American prestige "lies in the gutter because it is a gutter policy."

Pete Wilson, R-Calif., who voted to shake loose the aid, said communism must be checked in Central America because "I do not want American boys to go (there) to fight a war that they need not fight."

Senators voting yes wanted to block the contra aid.

North Carolina Sens. Terry Sanford, D, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted no.

HIGHWAY BILL — By a vote of 79 for and 17 against, the Senate approved the conference report on a bill (HR 2) authorizing nearly $88 billion over the next five years for mass transit programs and highway construction including the completion of the interstate system.

The bill also makes it possible for states to raise the speed on rural interstates to 65 mph.

It was sent to President Reagan, who threatened to veto it as pork barrel. He objected in part to its $1.4 billion outlay for highway "demonstration projects" in 36 states.

Supporter Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said that before Reagan vetoes the bill he should visit Massachusetts and experience the traffic congestion "that is turning Boston into gridlock city."

Opponent William Roth, R-Del., said that due to the high spending for demonstration projects sponsored by individual members, "the term 'highway robbery' was never so appropriate as in describing this bill."

Senators voting yes supported the bill.

North Carolina Sens. Broyhill and Helms both voted no.
