Council Accepts Radio Package

The Greenville City Council unanimously approved a bid for a $651,720 communications system after Motorola — the equipment supplier — agreed to accept final payment 90 days after the system begins operation.

Upon the request of Council member Janice Buck, who served on the Mayor's Communications Ad Hoc Committee, council members agreed at a monthly meeting Thursday night to seek the same guarantee from Omnicom Inc., the consultants who designed the system.

Omnicom had originally suggested a 20-day period of continuous operation before receiving final payment.

In a letter to the city of Greenville, Candy Frye, account executive with Motorola Communications & Electronics, said the supplier would accept final payment after the 90-day period.

"Motorola has had a long and successful relationship with the city of Greenville, and we understand how very concerned the city is about the performance of the proposed new radio system," Ms. Frye said.

"Let us assure you that Motorola intends to guarantee the quality and performance of the system as designed in your specifications. We have addressed the issue of quality and performance in our bid response by providing you with a product warranty, radio coverage surveys and a 100 percent performance bond which is valid for the life of the contract," she said.

"It will meet the city of Greenville's communications needs for many years. We have confidence in the system design and are willing to

Center Contract Approved

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council — by a 5-1 margin — has accepted a $283,895 negotiated bid for the construction of the River Park North Science and Nature Center.

The council, which had originally appropriated $250,000 for the construction of three buildings at the site, also approved a budget amendment Thursday night redesignating funds for the Recreation and Parks Department.

According to the budget amendment, $26,000 designated for renovations to bathrooms in a building adjacent to the Little League field on Elm Street and on the second floor of the Community Building, $4,500 to be used for a backhoe attachment and $3,395 in leftover funds from a state contract purchase of a truck will be transferred to cover costs.

The proposal had been recommended by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission Wednesday night.

"Taking into consideration the number of individuals who have worked on, examined, had input into

Medical District Study Panel Receives Award

The N.C. Chapter of the American Planning Association has presented its Citizen's Award to Greenville's Medical District Land Use Study Committee.

The 532-member statewide planners association presented the award to members of the citizen's group at a banquet Thursday night at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill.

The Medical District Land Use Study Committee worked to develop a suggested 5,400-acre park designed to allow for the orderly development of a health care center for eastern North Carolina. The plan was submitted by the committee in December 1985.

William A. McNeil, president of the N.C. Chapter of the American Planners Association, praised committee members for their efforts when he presented the award.

"NCAPA wishes to salute those who have made strong contributions to advancing planning in their own communities, and throughout the state," McNeil, director of High Point's planning and development department, said.

"This is our way of recognizing individuals, groups and planning programs which have shown a commitment to excellence."

Honored for their work on the committee were Dick Flye, original chairman of the group, Janice Faulkner, Tom Baines, Charlie Berkey, Dan Worthington, Wayne Adams, Phil Dixon, Dick McKee and Wes Hankins.

Bobby Roberson, director of planning and community development for the city of Greenville, also applauded the work of the committee.

"It's a tribute to the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County to serve on a committee without compensation to engage in a mission that will have a lasting impression on the Medical District area in our community," Roberson said.

The EastCare air ambulance service resumed operations today for the first time since Jan. 8, when one of its helicopters crashed, killing three crew members and a patient.

The flight crew went on standby status at 7 a.m. today.

Members of the crew were raring to go, Mary Jo Nimmo and Sam Ewing said this morning.

Ms. Nimmo, acting chief flight nurse, and Ewing, lead pilot of Pitt County Memorial Hospital's emergency helicopter program, awaited their first call today.

Both Ewing and Ms. Nimmo have been with the EastCare program since its first flight April 8, 1985.

Ms. Nimmo is in the process of interviewing to fill two additional flight nurse positions. The program now

Approval

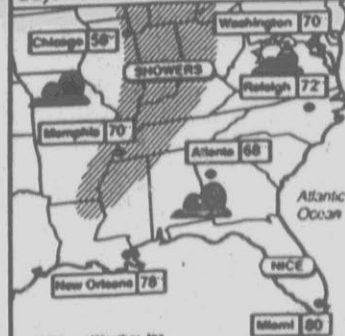

The N.C. Board of Transportation today approved the widening of 14th Street from York Road to the Greenville city limits.

Randy Doub of Greenville, a member of the transportation board, said the project involves widening the existing 22-foot pavement to 32 feet to allow for left turn lanes on the section of road and is an extension of a project presently under construction to widen 14th Street from Red Banks Road to York Road.

The present project also includes the installation of a traffic-actuated stop light at the intersection of Red Banks Road and 14th Street.

Washington Revives Tulip Festival

WASHINGTON, N.C. — A revival of Washington's 1937-1941 Tulip Festival will be held Saturday and, if all goes well, the celebration of flowers will become an annual event.

Jennifer Van Benschoten, festival chairman and president of the Downtown Washington Association, said home movies are available that "show traffic through Washington bumper-to-bumper during the Tulip Festival of 1941, the last one held until now. We think we can again make it something people will enjoy visiting Washington to take part in."

Saturday's festivities will open with a Dutch-oriented parade. Women in Dutch costumes will sprinkle the streets with cleanser and men in outfits reminiscent of The Netherlands will come behind them sweeping. The public is invited to dress in Dutch costumes and take part in the parade.

A beauty pageant with nine participants from Beaufort County 11th and 12th grade high school classes will be held beginning at 10 a.m. on the Stewart Parkway downtown. The winners of the 1937-41 Tulip Festival beauty pageants will judge this contest.

The people of Dutch descent who have for generations grown tulips commercially in the Terra Ceia area 15 miles east of Washington will be in attendance selling fresh-cut tulips. Food, entertainment and music will be provided and clowns will be present. An art show will be held. New cars, boats and recreational vehicles will be displayed. Rides for children will be offered. Dutch dancing will be demonstrated.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

CARDBOARD RECYCLING

I own a country store and have cardboard piling up. Is there anyone who could use this material for recycling so I wouldn't have to take so much to the dumpster in my community. It takes up space there and then just takes up space and goes to waste in the landfill.

Eastern Carolina Vocational Center can buy your cardboard. You have a choice of taking it there yourself and accepting the payment or of arranging to have it picked up periodically by an independent hauler. ECVC will be glad to put you in touch with an independent hauler. Call Bob Jones or Faye Coward, 758-4188.

Lindsey To Speak At Alumni Events

William H. (Bill) Lindsey, executive director of the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Housing Authority, will serve as East Carolina University's 1987 Distinguished Alumni Lecture-Seminar speaker Sunday and Monday. While on campus he will also participate in Scholars' Weekend activities.

Lindsey will deliver a public lecture on "Crisis in Urban America: Will Our Cities Survive?" Monday at 8 p.m. in room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center. He will address Scholars' Weekend guests at a banquet Sunday. The weekend is arranged for top-ranking high school juniors who visit the ECU campus to preview opportunities for honors students. The weekend will include a reception at the chancellor's home and the banquet, during which the 1987 University Scholars Awards recipients will be recognized.

On Monday, Lindsey will participate in informal meetings with campus leaders, honors students and ECU Ambassadors. He will specifically visit students and faculty in the departments of chemistry, sociology, and social work.

Originally from Fayetteville, Lindsey earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry in 1968 and the master's degree in sociology in 1971. Known in "Reader's Digest," "Esquire" and "Time" magazines as the "Slum Buster," Lindsey received ECU's Outstanding Alumni Award in 1985.

Council Approves River Park North Center

and approved these plans, ... the Parks and Recreation Commission thinks that we have had sufficient professional input to provide the best possible facility that we can for the money that we have available," Boyd Lee, recreation and parks director, said.

Council member Lorraine Shinn, who cast the lone dissenting vote on the move, said the figures didn't take into account costs of using city labor and the installation of the planetarium, which was to be included in the $250,000 originally appropriated.

"I think we have to be fiscally responsible in this, but I think we have a commitment to River Park North as well," she said.

Improvements to the bathrooms are necessary, but River Park North presents more of a priority, according to Lee, who said improvements to the lavatories will be put off for at least another year.

"They (the bathrooms) are not the most desirable but they are usable," he said. "We have not requested it in next year's budget, so they'll be put off for at least another year."

Council members Bill Hadden and Nancy Jenkins said they believe the $75,000 needed for the installation of the planetarium would be raised privately, and further delays could jeopardize grants to various groups that plan to have displays at the facility.

Council member Ed Carter said the council owed something to various people in the community who have worked on the project.

"I don't think there is any question that all of us are in favor of proceeding with this project," he said. "I think we all understand the cultural and educational significance of this, and I have to support essentially proceeding with the plan under the circumstances."

Meanwhile, the council voted 4-3, with Mayor Les Garner breaking the tie, to delay awarding a bid on the city's computer system until a new city manager is in place.

Janice Buck, Carter, and Mrs. Shinn voted in favor of the delay, while Hadden, Mrs. Jenkins and Inez Fridley voted against the move.

Ron Kimble, finance director, said bids for the system will expire and a new bid process will have to begin.

However, Mrs. Buck said by waiting the city may save money on computer hardware due to improving technology.

"I don't believe cost will increase. I believe it will decrease," she said.

The council — also by a 4-3 margin — awarded a $106,385 four-year contract for financial auditing services for the city of Greenville, Greenville Utilities Commission, and Sheppard Memorial Library to Lowrimore, Warwick & Co. of Greenville.

Garner, who again broke a tie, voted with Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Shinn, and Mrs. Buck in favor of awarding the bid to the Greenville firm, while Carter, Hadden, and Mrs. Fridley opposed the move.

Members of a joint city, library and utilities committee had recommended the Peat, Marwick firm, which has an office in Raleigh.

Carter, who served on the committee, said the group felt Peat, Marwick had presented a superior written and oral proposal. The committee rated the Greenville firm second.

Peat, Marwick's bid was for $129,500.

Mrs. Shinn supported awarding the bid to Lowrimore, Warwick & Co., saying the city should try to spend money locally.

"I believe in spending your money at home, and I believe the firm that came in second has excellent credentials, and does have an office located here," she said. "The council should strongly consider that when making the choice. People that live here and have businesses here pay taxes here, and I think that's an important fact to consider."

In other business, the council approved an amended Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance designed to protect local governments and residences in the event of an inundation.

"The revisions incorporated within this ordinance have been mandated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency as part of a major update to the National Flood Insurance Program," Tom Tysinger, director of engineering and inspections, said.

Council members denied a request by Lissie C. Braxton to rezone a .34-acre tract located off the western right-of-way of Greenville Boulevard, south of Speight Subdivision, from single family medium density residential to office and institutional.

A request by Harry S. Bateman to rezone a .34-acre tract located off the western right-of-way of Greenville Boulevard, north of Golden Road, from low density residential to shopping center was approved.

Council members also approved a request by Warren Street property owners to rezone their property, containing approximately 12.5 acres, from high density multifamily residential to single family residential.

Other matters to be addressed include the award of a four-year contract for financial auditing services for the city of Greenville, Greenville Utilities Commission, and Sheppard Memorial Library.

The council accepted a proposed Transportation Development Plan for the Greenville Area Transit System and approved the sale of five disposal properties in the South Evans Community Development Project and a parcel in the central business district.

The board also approved a request to close a portion of Hill Top Avenue, tax releases and refunds, a contract with Greenville Museum Inc. for vehicle repair services, and an amendment to the 1986-87 Greenville Utilities Commission budget.

The council reappointed Barbara T. Stone and Lucille Gorham to the Community Appearance Commission and named Mrs. Rudy M. Schulte as a new member to the panel. Williams A. Shires was reappointed to the Environmental Advisory Committee.

EastCare Restored

has seven nurses.

Before resumption of a 24-hour schedule takes place, two more nurses and two more pilots will be hired and trained. There will be four pilots total, but one of the pilots currently assigned to EastCare by OmniFlight, the supplier of helicopters and pilots and maintenance crew, will soon join another air ambulance program.

Ms. Nimmo estimates that 24-hour service is about three months off. That's how long she believes it will take for additional nurses to be hired, give their notices elsewhere and be custom-trained for the EastCare program.

"I'm asked a lot 'Isn't it frustrating to have been grounded for three months?'" she said. "I answer yes. It has been frustrating, but at the same time, I feel wonderful that this hospital has chosen to go the extra mile to see that this is a very safe program. Only three hospitals in the nation have hired independent inspectors to do the kind of exhaustive studies of equipment and the entire program that Pitt Memorial has done. I feel good about this."

She said the hospital has had three patients come in this week that would have been EastCare candidates and "it's been painful not to be up and flying."

"But now we're up," she said. "And some of us are going to fly soon."

Keep Original 6-3

The Pitt County Commissioners have a clear choice when it comes to determining an election method.

If they opt for the plan that will elect the soundest representation for the county, they will select the original 6-3 proposal — six members elected by district voting and three elected at-large.

That plan is preferable to a proposal offered Wednesday. That proposal, a single-shot 6-3 plan, allows citizens to vote on only one of the three at-large seats. The three highest vote-getters are the three at-large board members. In no sense does it provide true at-large representation.

The single-shot 6-3 was undoubtedly conceived and proposed in good faith. It is, however, a weak plan because it restricts voters' power. Rather than voting on three at-large representatives and one district representative, as the original 6-3 plan stipulates, under the new proposal citizens may vote on only two board members — one at-large candidate and one district representative.

There is a real question of constitutionality with the single shot 6-3, since it prohibits citizens from voting on two commissioners that represent them, effectively bypassing the one-man, one vote stipulation. This approach could place Pitt County in a precarious legal position.

The original 6-3 is a much sounder plan because it will create a more balanced board of commissioners. Allowing the citizens to vote on three at-large representatives will broaden the board's scope and restrict the possibility of provincialism.

The original 6-3 plan responsibly addresses the important issue of minority representation. By no means should commissioners short minorities with an election plan. The six district-elected seats — along with the at-large seats — will clearly allow minorities an opportunity for visible voting power on the board without polarizing voters.

Just as district voting is necessary to ensure minority representation on the commission, true at-large voting is equally imperative to a balanced board. Neither method by itself is adequate for sound leadership. When the facts are examined, a balanced combination of both methods provides the type of representation that would govern it effectively.

Commissioners were correct to attempt to negotiate an election plan that benefits all parties involved, but the single shot 6-3 is a proposal that should not be accepted. It is the weaker of the choices, and will produce a weaker board. It is not in the long-term best interest of Pitt County or any of its citizens.

Commissioners should approve the original 6-3 plan on its merits and with the knowledge that it will provide the soundest, most representative government for Pitt County's citizens.

Interstate Link

Even now the gigantic interstate highway system, which was first authorized when President Eisenhower signed legislation in 1955, is not complete.

A huge amount of it has been built, however, and what is left likely are projects which require difficult right-of-way acquisition or involve unusual environmental problems.

The system will be completed someday and perhaps along the way there will be additional projects added which were not envisioned in the earlier planning.

We have a nomination. A link between the Tidewater area of Virginia across eastern North Carolina is a logical extension of the interstate highway system. It is, in fact beyond our comprehension as to why North Carolina politicians of the 1950s didn't seize the opportunity to include this link in the highway planning. Perhaps it goes back to the thinking of the time that nothing in the east was all that important.

So today we have one of the largest population areas of the nation and one of the major ports of the east coast with no adequate highway access to the south. Think what such a highway link could do for commerce in eastern North Carolina.

The highway needs to be planned to serve the maximum population, but at this stage it is clear that it should pass near Greenville and join I-95 west of here. That would provide this area with adequate highway access to I-95 and to the Norfolk area.

After 32 years of development it is obvious in North Carolina that the growth in our state for the most part went where the interstates were constructed. Perhaps that was the thrust over 30 years ago. Regardless, northern, central and eastern North Carolina were totally neglected in the planning. That is history, but it is a mistake that can be corrected. If our present day politicians want to show their clout they will go to work on this project.

Behind Richard Darman's Departure

WASHINGTON — Richard G. Darman's resignation as deputy secretary of the Treasury coincides with a crisis in Reagan administration policy where not only the prolonged American recovery but the world economy is in jeopardy.

With Darman gone, the seven-nation accord to reaffirm exchange rates that was unveiled this week in Washington is — however modest — the limits of Reagan administration initiative. More worrisome, Darman's bureaucratic skill will be sorely missed as the protectionist tide crests in Washington.

Administration policy is taking contradictory roads in its crusade against a statistic: the trade deficit. One uses secret diplomacy in seeking to coordinate economic policies of the seven industrial democracies. The other blusters and threatens retaliation if the trade deficit does not shrink immediately.

The blusterers began achieving the upper hand last summer, under mid-term election Democratic assaults on the trade deficit and Republican pleas for a show of bravado. U.S. trade representative Clayton Yeutter and Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige forced on Japan an agreement regulating microchips.

It would have warmed the hearts of 18th century mercantilists: a two-nation cartel setting artificially high prices and limiting production. How could this happen in an administration filled with officials who each morning routinely put on an Adam Smith necktie? Yeutter and Baldrige simply steamrolled the White House staff with a fait accompli, bypassing Cabinet consideration. The first that Secretary James A. Baker III and Darman at Treasury had heard of the microchip cartel was after it had been signed. All they could do was grumble in private that it was a very bad agreement indeed that could not be enforced.

'Darman's departure suggests the prickly, innovative architect of major Reagan administration domestic policy sees no more progress likely in the next 20 months in international monetary reform as an alternative to protectionist pressures.'

When in fact Japanese private firms immediately began violating the arbitrary prices by selling on the gray market, Yeutter swooped down with his 100 percent retaliatory tariff on selected computer products. With the Japanese caught red-handed violating a bad agreement they had been coerced into signing, nobody could oppose retaliation. The Treasury acquiesced, hoping this would be a pound of flesh to appease protectionists.

More likely, it will encourage them. Even erstwhile free-traders are saying a mailed fist may be needed to win Tokyo's cooperation. In such a climate, the Baker-Darman international efforts to put a floor under the falling dollar which reached a climax this week at the G-7 in Washington won little applause.

Yeutter's private reassurances that Japan will not counter-retaliate missed the point. Critical administration officials predict U.S. tariffs will only encourage more Japanese export subsidies, at a time when the U.S. trade deficit is showing signs of declining anyway.

From their marble palace on Constitution Avenue, the governors of the Federal Reserve Board watch in appalled silence as administration policy unravels. If the Baker-Darman defenses fail to curb the dollar's fall and the protectionists inside and outside the administration succeed in driving it lower, the Fed will tighten the economy.

This prospect that the U.S. might import economic stagnation instead of exporting growth does not deter the rush for protectionism. Administration officials might have been shaken by an 80-point drop in the Dow-Jones average the first hour after the microchip retaliation, but the market's rebound erased that concern.

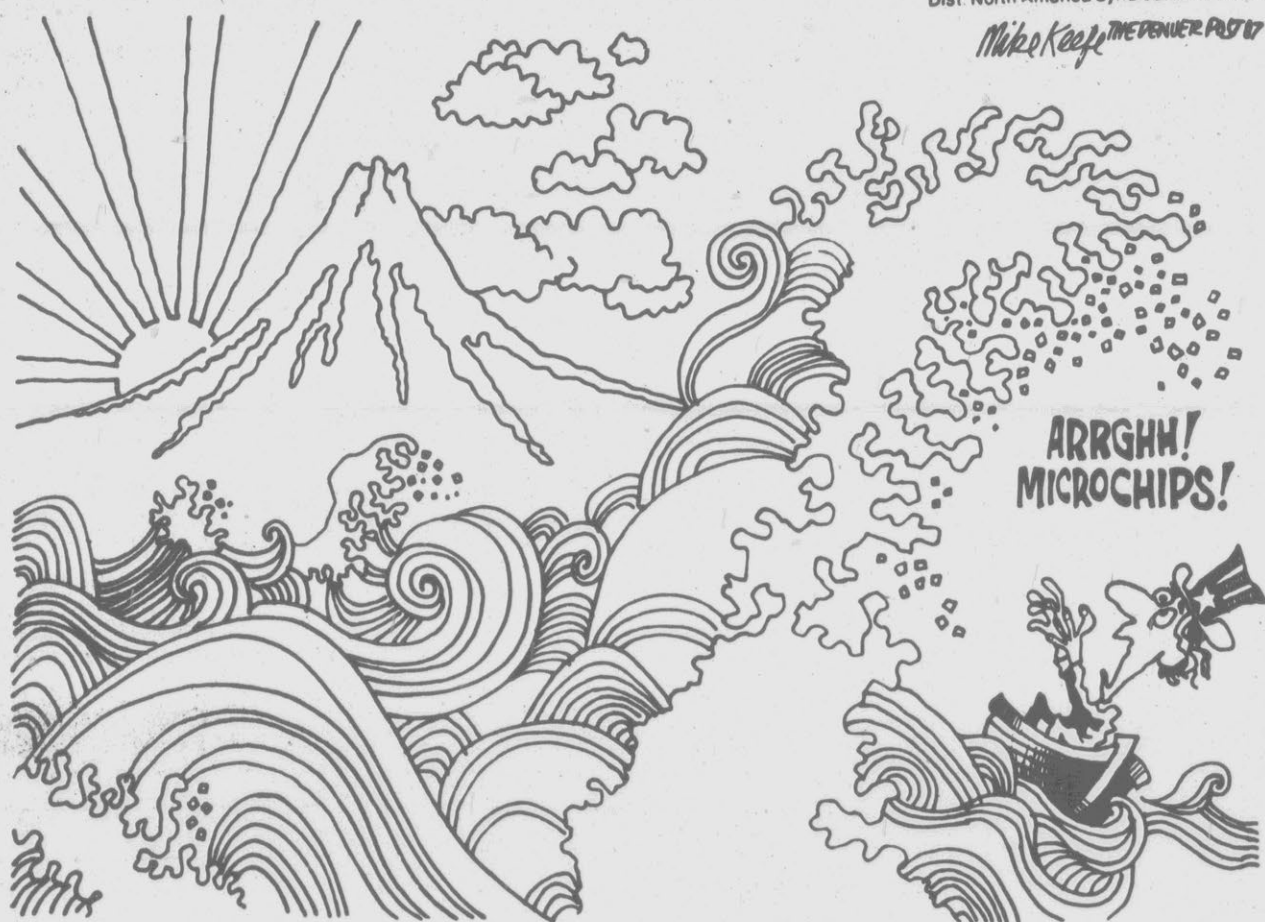

Darman's departure suggests the prickly, innovative architect of major Reagan administration domestic policy sees no more progress likely in the next 20 months in international monetary reform as an alternative to protectionist pressures. His successor, AID administrator Peter McPherson, has no competence or interest in global economics.

Nor is there anybody on the rebuilt White House staff competent to deal with this policy crisis. That void follows months of preoccupation with the Iran arms affair during which President Reagan did not build support against a protectionist trade bill. Now, it seems too late to even unite, much less mobilize, a divided administration.

Wall Street Would Like Better Definition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Insider trading, the crime that brought down Ivan Boesky and now is being alleged in three new indictments, is a little like many people's idea of fine art: They can't quite define it, but they're sure they know it when they see it.

It is not listed or defined in any statute book. Violations are prosecuted as securities fraud, not insider trading. Neither members of Congress nor the industry have come up with a definition that pleases everyone.

Despite its vagueness, it is a crime that has resulted in millions in fines — $100 million for Boesky alone — and prison for others.

That's OK with the Securities and Exchange Commission, which prefers a vague definition allowing discretion. SEC Chairman John Shad and other commissioners have argued that the courts are defining the rough edges, and no more is needed.

"While there is no statutory definition of insider trading, the case law draws clear parameters on who can be charged with a violation," says SEC Commissioner Charles C. Cox. "Briefly, an inside trader is one who trades securities while in possession of material, non-public information."

The loose definition is not enough for many on Wall Street, who say the lack of a firm definition can mean traders are charged with crimes they didn't know were crimes.

"It is important that there be a legislative clarification of what constitutes 'insider trading,'" says Nicholas F. Brady, chairman of the investment banking firm of Dillon Read. "To create an effective deterrent to this kind of behavior, we must first get agreement on what it is we want to stop."

The Securities Industry Association, in urging a better definition, says that while the law "may be clear at its core, it becomes fuzzy when its outer edges are approached."

The definition of insider trading is a question in the indictments handed up Thursday against Robert Freeman, 44, head of risk arbitrage at Goldman Sachs & Co.; Richard B. Wigton, 52, vice president of Kidder, Peabody & Co.; and Timothy L. Tabor, 33, a former Kidder, Peabody arbitrageur.

All have denied wrongdoing. Goldman Sachs Chairman John L. Weinberg, citing an outside investigation of the firm's arbitrage department by lawyers hired by the firm late last year, said he believes there was no wrongdoing.

"We continue to believe strongly that neither Bob Freeman nor the firm engaged in any illegal activity," Weinberg said in a memo on Feb. 17, shortly after the three men were arrested.

According to the indictment, Freeman traded on inside tips given him between 1984 and 1986 by confessed insider trader Martin Siegel, then a Kidder, Peabody vice president.

Freeman gave Siegel inside information on Goldman, Sachs clients, the government said, and Siegel passed that information on to Wigton and Tabor, who used the information in trading for Kidder, Peabody's house account.

The SEC contends its current working definition is enough for now; those involved in the business know where the boundaries lie.

But Cox has conceded that it is not always easy to say who is an insider; when information is material; and whether trades occurred because of relevant inside information rather than just a lucky gamble.

"In most instances, an insider trading case is based purely on circumstantial evidence, and the commission, as well as the courts, will engage in a very delicate balancing test to determine in which direction the pendulum of the defendant's credibility swings," Cox said in a recent speech.

Shad told a House subcommittee recently that not all trading on tips is necessarily illegal.

"What many think is insider trading may be legal speculation on rumors and gossip," Shad said. "The commission does not encourage speculation on rumors and gossip, because of the high risk of losses — but such speculation is not illegal."

Recent cases may involve hard evidence of something more than gossip and rumors. Siegel, Boesky and other insider traders are cooperating with investigators.

But Brady, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee, contended the flow of information does not necessarily prove insider trading.

He cited as an example an investment banker hired to facilitate a hostile takeover who leaks word of the impending bid to arbitrageurs. Acting on his tip, they quickly begin buying up stock in blocks that later will be easily accessible to the raider.

Strength For Today

It is amazing to contemplate the seriousness with which we disapprove of double dealing between persons yet accept it as normal and necessary between nations. A retired diplomat recently wrote that morality in international relationships is measured only by the rate of interest it returns.

Isn't it about time that in international affairs we insist on the same honesty that we would require in personal relationships? Naturally, in important matters of state, there are things it would not be proper to submit to public discussion, but this is no excuse for the deceit and cynical reservation with which international agreements have been drawn up in the past. Such stratagems and betrayals constitute the seeds from which aggressive wars grow. Sincerity is an indispensable element for better international relations.

Kemp Ties Campaign To Reagan

By ERICA JOHNSTON
Associated Press Writer
MORRISVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Republican Rep. Jack Kemp says he is the true conservative candidate who will continue the "Reagan Revolution" into the next decade if he is elected president.

"I'm the only candidate ... who believes we need not just to research and test the Strategic Defense Initiative, but ... also develop and deploy SDI," Kemp said Thursday, calling his cheering supporters "radical Republicans."

"We need a strategy for victory over communism, not just a strategy for containment," Kemp told about 50 supporters and reporters at a press conference at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Kemp, a Republican who has represented the Buffalo, N.Y., area in Congress for 16 years, formally announced his candidacy on Monday. He entered the race as a long shot who draws less than 10 percent in most public opinion polls.

Responding to a question about recent allegations of spying between the United States and Soviet Union, Kemp said that although spying was mutual, "I do not compare the Soviet Union to the United States. There is no moral equivalent."

Kemp, 51, a former professional football quarterback, also expressed support for rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua and the Soviet-backed government of Afghanistan.

"We need to defend the West and Western values, not only here and in the hemisphere, but throughout the world," he said.

On domestic issues, Kemp advocated a strong defense, restrained federal spending and a "war on poverty ... based on free enterprise." He also vowed to fight legalized abortion.

When asked how he would address the farm crisis, Kemp said the solution lay largely in a stable economy and increased U.S. exports.

"Agriculture ... needs something desperately," he said. "Farmers have been whipsawed between inflation and deflation." He said he would stop any vote in international lending agencies such as the World Bank subsidizing other countries to compete against U.S. exports.

Kemp said he considered Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and leaders of the National Congressional Club his friends, even though the Raleigh-based club is courting Helms as a possible conservative presidential candidate in 1988.

"I've talked to Carter Wrenn and Tom Ellis ... it's too early to have any one person solidify the conservative" cause, he said.

Soviets Seeking Mobile Homes

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP) — The Soviet Union has asked an Albemarle company to introduce a familiar part of the U.S. landscape to its vast expanses — the mobile home.

Osmon Soyer, president of Sterling Manufactured Homes in Albemarle, will be the first U.S. manufacturer to display its product in Moscow during an international construction fair that begins in May. The $35,000, three-bedroom, 900-square-foot manufactured home will go to Wilmington, then by Polish ship to Bremen, West Germany, and then 1,500 miles through East Germany, Poland and the Soviet Union.

The 14-by-70 foot, single-wide home has ceramic kitchen counters, a microwave oven, stereo system, dishwasher, two baths and a fireplace.

Soyer said the 900-square-foot home could be built in Russia without some of the luxuries included in his top-of-the-line model for about $15,000.

Easter Bunny Finds Santa's House For Sale

GREENSBORO (AP) — With Easter just around the corner, Jack True is busy setting out the rabbits on his front porch and getting ready for the children who will flood his house next week.

"I'm waiting to get my bunny hat back," True says. "I got a lady working on it for me."

No one gets more excited about holidays and special days than True, best known as the Santa Claus of South Chapman Street, with lesser fame as the Easter Bunny and the Halloween Gorilla.

But, as real estate broker Sandra Hoyle learned recently, True's house is on the market.

Come next Halloween and Christmas, the thousands of children who find their way to his house may find the Gorilla and Santa Claus gone and the house undecorated.

For 21 years, True has rented the small house that hugs the street. The owner has put the house up for sale, and True, who lives on a $340-a-month disability check from a work accident many years ago, can't afford to buy it.

But Ms. Hoyle says the Santa of South Chapman Street needs saving. She has established a "Santa is True" Trust Fund at Piedmont State Bank.

Her goal is $25,000 to $30,000 to buy the house and to repair the falling plaster, the rotting bathroom floor and the worn-out roof.

True would then be declared the owner. Any left-over money would go to fix True's broken-down car.

"I think it is a good way for Greensboro to say thanks to Santa Claus," Ms. Hoyle says. "He has contributed so much for so many years and has never asked for anything for himself."

True began playing Santa Claus 14 years ago at his wife's urging. Jack and Jettie loved to decorate at Christmas. With two sons of their own, the Trues delighted in watching children at Christmas.

In his red suit, True stood in front of his home waving at passing cars. Pretty soon people started stopping. Pretty soon people were lining up to talk to Santa and receive a piece of candy.

"This past year, as far as you could look on this street, there were cars," True says.

In the early years, Jettie would sit inside the door reading her Bible and waiting for her husband to finish. During breaks, when Jack told kids he had to feed the reindeer, Jettie would have a hot meal waiting.

Eleven years ago, on Christmas morning just hours after Jack came inside, Jettie was hit by a heart attack. She died in her husband's arms before the ambulance could arrive.

Each Christmas season since then, Jack's smile and ho-ho-hos have been deceiving.

"When Christmas goes around, it is hard on me," he says. "I'm real sad on Christmas Day."

But kids bring cheer, and holidays are something to look forward to during long days at home. A few years ago he started playing the Easter Bunny and Halloween Gorilla. Christmas, though, is the big show. His 1967 Christmas candy is already bought.

"I hope I don't have to worry about being here," True says. "I hope I have enough good friends out there."

House Approves Bill Stripping Contract Power From Governor

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican opposition fell on deaf Democratic ears as a bill to shift control over state building projects from the governor to the Legislature chugged toward passage.

"This train is on the track," House Minority Leader Betsy Cochrane, R-Davie, acknowledged Thursday before the House approved the measure.

"We are, as a legislative branch of the government, intruding more and more on the executive branch of government," said Ms. Cochrane, who added, "I haven't said some of the things that in anger I'd like to say about this kind of action on our behalf."

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, said the bill was not intended as a slap at Republican Gov. Jim Martin.

"Under Democratic governors, two of which I know, the Legislature took all of their (appointments) away, didn't even give 'em three,"

Watkins said. He cited the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, which previously had some gubernatorial appointees but now consists entirely of legislative appointees.

"There's ample precedent for this," Watkins said. "Nobody is stripping anybody of anything."

The state House passed the bill 77-32 and returned it to the Senate. If senators agree to two amendments, it will become law.

The bill, which has sparked perhaps the hottest partisan bickering of the 1987 session, would create a State Building Commission dominated by legislative appointees that would award contracts to engineers and architects for construction of state buildings.

The governor would appoint three members of the commission, which would consist mostly of professionals in such fields as architecture, engineering, and electrical and general contracting. The lieutenant governor would appoint three members and the House speaker three.

The commission would replace the Capital Building Authority, which currently awards the contracts and is controlled by the governor's five appointees. Four are appointed by the Legislature.

Also, the bill would repeal an executive order Martin issued in March that created a 12-member professional board to advise the Capital Building Authority. All members of that panel were to be chosen by the governor.

DWI Bill Advances

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to let judges shorten jail terms of alcoholic drunken drivers who submit to treatment is designed neither to get "blood out of a defendant" nor to coddle him, a lawmaker says.

"What this bill is trying its best to do is attack the fundamental problem and make the highways safer," Rep. Alex Hall, D-New Hanover, said Thursday before the House Judiciary II Committee approved the bill on a divided voice vote.

The bill would allow judges to reduce offenders' jail sentences by the amount of time spent receiving treatment — usually around 28 days.

But Ron Stephens, district attorney in Durham, said the state's prosecutors oppose the bill in the belief that the threat of jail is the biggest deterrent not to drive drunk.

"It has made the Safe Roads Act the strong DWI law that it is," Stephens said, referring to the 1983 law that stiffened penalties for impaired driving. "This is a legal loophole around that."

Hall countered that the stigma of alcoholism treatment was comparable to that arising from being jailed.

The measure already has gotten the panel's endorsement, but was returned for more study after encountering stiff resistance on the floor.

The committee approved a slightly different version that makes clear the defendant, not the state, must pay for his alcoholism treatment and that he must be treated at approved facilities.

Hall acknowledged that the Safe Roads Act was designed to make habitual drunken drivers serve time behind bars, with sentences ranging from one week to two years.

Panel Approves Phosphate Ban

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill for a statewide ban on phosphorus in household laundry detergents emerged unscathed from a House committee, but opinions differed on whether supporters could fight off weakening amendments on the House floor.

"I would suspect ... they would adopt some kind of limiting amendment on the floor," said Sam Johnson, representing the Soap and Detergent Association. He said close committee votes on amendments to limit the bill to environmentally sensitive areas showed more support for the idea than ever.

But Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, House sponsor of the bill, said the Natural and Economic Resources Committee was not particularly sympathetic to environmental issues.

"It's something of a challenge to have taken it there," he said.

The committee voted 12-9 for the bill after rejecting an amendment to restrict the ban to the Chowan River and Falls and Jordan lakes.

NCAE Makes Pitch For Higher Taxes, State Lottery

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Association of Educators is lobbying lawmakers to approve new sources of revenue, including additional income taxes, conforming state income-tax laws to federal standards and, in a low priority category, a state lottery.

"For the first time, we created a section in our legislative agenda this year on financing public education," said Karen Garr, president of the 45,000-member state teachers' group. "We felt we should give legislators some suggestions, since we were always suggesting appropriations."

Ms. Garr said Thursday the lottery "would be an additional source of income ... but we believe there must be other, more stable forms of beefing up the General Fund."

The group, which began a three-day convention Thursday, has been lobbying lawmakers, but no legislators have agreed to introduce any of those proposals as a bill in the General Assembly, Ms. Garr said. "A number of leaders are looking at our needs. No one as yet has said 'I'm introducing this bill,'" she said.

Nonetheless, Ms. Garr gave this year's lawmakers good marks for their intent.

"We really believe there is a commitment in the General Assembly for education," she said. "They see the dilemma they face — how to fund the programs they want. They're frustrated by the fact that they constantly have to take small steps in education, instead of the large leaps they'd like to make."

Money is tight this year, Ms. Garr said.

"We're seeing the results of the tax cuts that were passed two years ago," she said. "That, coupled with our costs, which are always rising, have made this year particularly tight."

Nonetheless, the teachers' group is pushing for a 10-percent salary hike. North Carolina dropped from 28th to 30th of the 50 states and Washington, D.C., in a recent National Education Association survey of average teacher salaries, she said.

Every 1 percent salary increase for educators costs $19 million, Ms. Garr said. Gov. Jim Martin has proposed a 4.5 percent salary increase for teachers.

"If we got a 10 percent salary increase, we would still be under the national average. And the national average is nothing to brag about," she said. "If we're trying to get the very best people in the classroom and keep them there, we're going to have to do some massive work."

The teacher's group also lobbied lawmakers Thursday for money to boost their health insurance program, which Ms. Garr said has a $50 million shortfall, largely because of skyrocketing insurance costs.

Ms. Garr said the NCAE also would urge legislators not to expand next year the experimental career-ladder program. The group has criticized several aspects of the program, including the method of evaluating teachers' performance.

Martin Bill Nears Introduction

OAK RIDGE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin says his proposal for a $1.5 billion bond referendum to finance school construction may be introduced in the General Assembly this week.

"This is the boldest proposal we've ever had in North Carolina for building the schools we need," Martin said Thursday. "The need is great. We've fallen behind in North Carolina."

Martin cited the 64-year-old Oak Ridge Elementary School, where he spoke Thursday, as one of many in the state that can't be easily adapted as the Basic Education Program is expanded. "It's an example of a grand school that's given good service, but needs a new building," he said.

Martin had announced last week the bill would be sponsored by Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, and Sen. Paul Smith, R-Rowan, but Hardison later disavowed Martin's bill and said he was sponsoring a similar bill of his own.

"We've got to build support for this proposal," he told a small group of school officials and reporters. "It's not just going to happen."

But Democratic leaders in the state House say they have a better idea to generate more than $2 billion needed for school construction — a four-year sales tax increase of 1 cent per dollar.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, supports that plan. He has said Martin's proposal would triple the state's indebtedness and force many local governments to boost property taxes.

"That's a typical Democratic response," Martin said. "I think you'll find that not many of his colleagues will even vote on the (tax) increase."

Indictments

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal grand jury in Charlotte indicted three men Thursday in connection with 13 bank robberies in the Charlotte area, officials say.

Barry Wayne Bynum was charged with six counts of bank in connection with robberies in Charlotte, and Avery Brice was charged with robbing two Charlotte banks. Charles Jarvis McNeil was charged with five counts.

Paul Daly, special FBI agent in charge of North Carolina, said there have 26 bank robberies in North Carolina this year, and arrests have resulted in 13 convictions.

Egg Frozen

GRANDFATHER MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — A female golden eagle was forced off her nest in the environmental habitat at Grandfather Mountain because of 100 mph winds and 26 inches of snow, and authorities say her egg was frozen in the storm and will not hatch.

Hugh Morton, president of Grandfather Mountain, said he is encouraged that the eagle, named Goldie, built a nest and was incubating an egg, even though weather conditions prevented it from hatching.

The egg had been incubating since March 12, and was expected to hatch around April 15.

Chief Hired

MEBANE, N.C. (AP) — Resigning Mebane Police Chief Grady L. Caviness has been hired as police chief for the Wake County town of Wake Forest.

Caviness, 51, will replace Harvey R. Newsome, who retired in February after 23 years as chief in Wake Forest. Lt. Gary Bumgarner will serve as chief in Mebane until a permanent replacement can be found for Caviness.

Caviness will start his new job April 21.

NCSU Salaries

RALEIGH (AP) — On the average, women faculty members earn less than their male colleagues at North Carolina State University, according to a salary study requested by the Faculty Senate.

The study, compiled by Jack W. Wilson, associate professor of economics and business, found that during the current academic year salaries averaged $41,247 for men and $30,009 for women among the university's 1,254 full-time faculty.

House Panel Clears Catastrophic Health Plan

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — Catastrophic health insurance for Medicare beneficiaries would be financed by raising income taxes for about half the elderly under a bill headed for consideration by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Those in the lower half of the economic strata would pay nothing for the additional Medicare benefit.

The measure approved Thursday on a 9-2 vote by the Ways and Means health subcommittee would insure the elderly against more than $1,000 a year in out-of-pocket doctor bills and provide 364-day-a-year hospitalization benefits.

Under present Medicare law, only 59 days a year of full hospitalization is provided and there is no cap on doctor bills.

On the benefit side, the bill is similar to a catastrophic health plan proposed by President Reagan in February — but about a third more generous.

The most significant difference between the so-called Stark-Gradison measure and the administration approach is how they are financed.

While the bipartisan subcommittee bill relies on income tax financing, the administration would pay for its plan with a flat premium increase of about $6 a month on all 31 million Medicare beneficiaries.

That difference in approach is expected to draw much of the attention as catastrophic health legislation winds its way toward almost certain passage in one form or another.

The eventual fine-tuning of benefits will hinge to a large degree on how much money is available for the package.

However, Stark-Gradison now becomes the vehicle for further consideration — in the House, at least — and legislators are likely to find it difficult to vote to lessen the benefits it envisions.

The full Ways and Means Committee is expected to take the measure up soon after Congress returns from next week's Easter recess.

Not only would Stark-Gradison move Medicare financing toward a progressive tax-based system, it also would inject the politically sensitive concept of taxing an employer-paid health fringe benefit.

This is because the bill would achieve its tax increase on some of the elderly by assigning an actuarial value of $1,800 a year on the portion of the Medicare benefit that was financed by employer contributions under the Social Security system.

One of the major items in last year's tax reform debates was a move to tax employer-paid health benefits for active workers, a concept that was opposed bitterly and successfully by both organized labor and business.

Rep. Fortney H. Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the Ways and Means health subcommittee, acknowledged that there is some "semantic objection to taxing actuarial value" and said he would not necessarily oppose an alternative method that retained some concept of progressive, tax-based financing.

The plan co-sponsored by Stark and Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr. of Ohio, ranking Republican on the panel, would cost about $4.9 billion in 1989, its first year of full implementation.

Stark estimated that making the $1,800 actuarial value of Medicare benefits subject to taxation would bring onto the tax rolls about 1 million elderly people who now pay no income tax because they have insufficient income.

It would require additional taxes from the 15 million or so elderly who already pay some taxes.

Subcommittee staffers estimated the additional tax for an elderly couple with $10,000 to $15,000 annual income would be about $172 a year — roughly $28 more than the same couple would pay for coverage under the administration's flat premium plan.

A couple with $20,000 to $30,000 income would pay about $278 in additional tax and one with $30,000 to $50,000 about $600 more in taxes.

Surgeons Transplant Brain Tissue In Patient With Parkinson's Disease

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A 42-year-old woman was in stable condition today after doctors tried to curb her symptoms of Parkinson's disease by grafting adrenal gland cells onto her brain in the first such surgery in this country.

Dickye Baggett underwent five hours of surgery Thursday at Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

"This development in the treatment of Parkinson's disease may usher in a new era of transplantation of tissue into the brain," said Dr. George S. Allen, the hospital's neurosurgery department chairman who led the medical team.

Parkinsonism is a degenerative neurological disorder often characterized by tremors, rigidity or loss of balance.

The disease, which affects nearly 1.5 million Americans, results from the loss of brain cells that produce a substance known as dopamine, which allows nerve cells to transmit messages to one another.

Cells from her adrenal glands were used in the transplant because they also produce dopamine.

Similar operations were performed with some success in Sweden and in Mexico.

"We have high hopes for this research," said Allen.

Drugs can control symptoms, but their effects can be sporadic and complications sometimes include psychological disturbances and impairment of movement.

"Current drug treatment of parkinsonism is directed toward reversing the symptoms and does not halt the progression of the disease," said Dr. R. Stanley Burns, a member of the surgical team who is also associate professor of neurology and psychiatry and director of the Vanderbilt Parkinson's and Movement Disorder Clinic.

Hospital officials said Mrs. Baggett lived near Nashville, but would not be more specific.

Wayne Wood, a spokesman for the medical center, quoted Mrs. Baggett as saying before the operation that the surgery was "a risk I'm willing to take," even though it might not work.

"The possibilities that could come from it are very real, maybe helping in some ways myself and other people too," she was quoted as saying.

"All along I felt like the good Lord gave me Parkinson's disease for some reason. Maybe this is the reason why."

"My muscles just don't move the way they're supposed to," Mrs. Baggett said. "I have to think 'move.' When I write my name, I have to think each letter."

Mexican doctors who performed similar surgery on a 35-year-old patient in March 1986 said he showed improvement without medication.

Webb Wins Senate OK As Navy Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — James H. Webb, who has backed down from his once strong opposition to the inclusion of women in U.S. military academies, will be secretary of the Navy.

The Senate on Thursday cast a voice vote to confirm Webb despite criticism of an article he wrote in 1979 saying women in the academies were poisoning the atmosphere there.

Webb, an Annapolis graduate and a successful novelist who has been assistant defense secretary for reserve affairs, will replace John Lehman.

Lehman had been the civilian chief of the Navy since 1981, guiding the service as it built toward the 600-ship goal set by Reagan when he took office.

Webb was questioned during confirmation hearings this week about views he expressed in the article. He had written: "By attempting to sterilize the Naval Academy environment in the name of equality, this country has sterilized the whole process of combat leadership training, and our military services are doomed to suffer the consequences."

During Monday's hearing, however, Webb told the Senate Armed Services Committee that he accepted legal changes allowing women into the service schools. But Webb also said he believed the institutions were no longer effective in training men for combat and that women should not serve in combat.

Webb was a highly decorated Marine officer in Vietnam, winning the Navy Cross and two Bronze stars.

Student Lets Dummy 'Talk'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — When Lee Pitts shares the gospel message, she lets a dummy do the talking.

Ms. Pitts, a Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary student and a ventriloquist, has ministered in more than 500 churches and schools, advocating faith through her puppet, Nicky.

She relates that she had a rough childhood, once even considering suicide, but that her commitment to Christ gave her assurance, and Nicky enables her to express it.

"Nicky helped me blossom as a young lady," she said. "Because he is able to say things I could never say, he's like the other side of me no one ever saw."

"My ventriloquy ministry is proof that God uses ordinary people for his extraordinary purposes. The message Nicky and I share with others is that God is not concerned with our abilities but with our availability."

The Faithfuls of La Grange, and The Rock Island Singers of Fountain.

The choir will have a barbecue dinner sale Saturday beginning at 11 a.m. at Selvia Chapel Church, 1701 S. Greene St. For information call 756-5909.

Friendship Quilts To Be Feature Of Show

Friendship quilts will be the special feature of the quilt show scheduled for Saturday and Sunday by the Greenville Quilter's Guild.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. The show will be held at the Community Building, located on the corner of 4th and Greene Streets, downtown Greenville.

The show is entitled "Quilts of Joy and Friendship." Guild members will be show friendship quilts which they have made. Other items in the show will be wallhangings and clothing.

A group project will be on view — a tulip applique quilt with pieced blocks in between, designed by Zelda Fasciano, a member of the guild. Each block was appliqued by one of the members of the guild.

Another ongoing group project is making baby quilts.

A highlight of the summer for guild members will be the annual N.C. Quilt Symposium scheduled for May 27-30 at Guilford College in Greensboro.

The guild meetings are held the fourth Tuesday of each month. Programs and topics are presented on quilts and related topics. Margaret Hadden is current president.

The quilt show is being held in conjunction with the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

Doctors Of Law Could Add Degree To Title Confusion

DEAR ABBY: Recently a "Dentist's Wife in Utica, N.Y." took you to task for your reference to "all of the doctors and dentists," noting that dentists ARE doctors — doctors of dentistry, and should be recognized as such. You agreed with her, and so do I.

About 20 years ago, most law schools began to award their graduates the doctor of law (jurisprudence) degree. So since the majority of attorneys now hold a doctor of law degree, why shouldn't attorneys also be called "Doctor"? — ATTORNEY'S WIFE, MACON, GA.

DEAR WIFE: It's all right with me. Some lawyers get to the scene of an accident before a doctor. And with the threat of malpractice suits so common, fewer physicians are volunteering as "Good Samaritans." So an accident victim might be better off with a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for assuring a reader that it is perfectly all right to send a note of sympathy and flowers to someone who has lost a beloved pet. There is yet another way:

After I lost my beloved "Sophie" — an aged terrier — I received a lovely card from our animal shelter advising me that a contribution had been made in honor of "Sophie" from a thoughtful friend of mine. As an animal lover, I thought that this was an especially loving gesture on the part of my friend, and want to pass it along to you, hoping you will share it with your readers. — VIRGINIA GRANDFIELD, DEERFIELD, ILL.

DEAR VIRGINIA: I heard from many other animal lovers suggesting that a contribution to the local humane society in memory of the deceased pet would be a fitting way of expressing condolences. And by the way, the amount of the contribution is never disclosed.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Re: "Worried Wife" whose husband, Sol, has to lose 40 pounds after his heart attack: The key words in Sol's wife's letter were: "I don't have the heart to tell Sol's friends off in front of Sol."

So, do what I did — write them a letter! Photocopy it, and let each one know you've sent a copy to Abe, Sam, Dave, Ed and Fred.

My husband, Gerry, has had two heart attacks, then open heart surgery. I've done just what I'm telling Sol's wife to do. Here's the letter:

Dear Friends: I'm writing to you on Gerry's behalf. Thank you all for coming to see Gerry, and not bringing candy. Thank you for cooking poultry without salt when you have us over for dinner. Thank you for helping Gerry to stay on his diet so that we can enjoy life longer and enjoy your friendship longer. And most of all, thank you for truly being his friend and never questioning what his doctors tell him to do. You good people brighten our lives every day, and for that we thank you. Love, BERNICE

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a collection of snappy comebacks for the question, "How come a nice girl like you never married?" The best response I ever heard was: "Because I never found a man who could stand to be as happy as I would have made him." — LOUISE TARBUTON, ORANGE, CALIF.

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

How Millions Of Infants Could Be Saved

By LARRY THOMPSON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Each year, more than 15 million children throughout the world die before reaching their fifth birthday. By the year 2000, 179 million children will die in the first few years of life, often needlessly.

Diarrhea alone kills 5 million. More than 3.5 million die from vaccine-preventable diseases such as measles, polio, tetanus, diphtheria, pertussis and tuberculosis.

But, concluded a report by the Institute for Resource Development Inc., a Westinghouse Electric Co. subsidiary in Columbia, Md., the toll need not be so high. The lives of more than 65 million children younger than 5 could be saved if developing countries simply implemented programs to reach goals they themselves have set to prevent childhood deaths.

The report, which was released this week, is part of a five-year project commissioned by the U.S. Agency for International Development. It was designed to identify the major problems faced by children in the 112 developing countries to help policymakers make appropriate changes.

"There is no easy fix," said Katrina Galway, a demographer on the project. Increasing the food supply is a major issue, since malnutrition plays a key role in undermining the health of children.

But some of the causes of childhood death might be easier to fix. For example, the study found that simply being born less than two years after an older sibling increases the chances of either child dying prematurely. It appears that the early arrival of the next child causes Third World mothers to stop breastfeeding their older child prematurely and the physical burden of two babies leaves them too exhausted to adequately care for either child.

"One in five infants could be saved if they were spaced more than two years apart," Galway said.

Even worse, nearly one-third of the children born between two siblings, both less than two years apart, are likely to die in a developing country, the report found.

The age of the mother and the total number of children also seem to make a difference, Galway said. For example, 31 percent more children born to mothers 19 or younger die than those born to mothers 20 to 29. And mothers 40 or older lose their babies 47 percent more often than mothers in their 20s.

Children born into families of seven or more children had a 40 percent higher probability of dying than children born into families of only two or three children.

While these fertility practices have profound impact on the child's chances of survival, knowledge and the availability of birth control varies widely from country to country. In Kenya, for example, where 77 percent of the women said they did not want to have a child in the next year, only 10 percent used a modern birth-control method and only 43 percent knew where to find it.

Only half the population (excluding China) has access to safe water, and only one-third has access to sanitation facilities. Consequently, diarrhea is a major problem.

Mothers in Third World countries often treat diarrhea by withholding food and water from the child, Galway said. "There is a kind of logic to it. The mother sees that the child is unable to keep water or food in its body, so she withholds it." That, of course, exacerbates dehydration, which can be deadly. "Of the 5 million children that die from diarrhea, 70 percent are dehydrated."

"Oral-rehydration therapy (ORT) (a simple, life-saving technique to fight the dehydration of diarrhea) is not widely known or understood," Galway said.

At least 15 million children could be saved from six infectious diseases if their countries succeeded in vaccinating them, the report concluded. Measles is the most lethal, killing more than 2 million children.

"More than 3½ million children are blinded, crippled or mentally retarded by these six diseases," Galway said.

Preventing these six diseases is more complicated than simply getting the vaccine into the country. Vaccines are expensive. Most of them must always be kept refrigerated — the so-called cold chain. If they are not refrigerated, their ability to prevent infection is lost.

"The death of a child, a relatively rare tragedy for parents in developed countries, is a frequent occurrence in the developing world," according to the report. "In Egypt, for example, two-thirds of women experience the death of one or more children by age 50."

Slides Shown To League Members

Kathy Brown was speaker at the meeting of the Greenville Service League Monday. She is program coordinator for the Ronald McDonald House.

Mrs. Brown presented a slide show and discussed volunteer needs for the new house. She was introduced by Mrs. Lawton H. Nisbet.

Mrs. Richard McKee reported on two Bloodmobile visits at East Carolina University during March; 224 units were collected and 34 workers worked 110 hours. Mary Wesley Harvey gave a report.

Mrs. Howard Dawkins announced an Easter workshop for hospital decorations on April 13. Mrs. R. Kelly Barnhill, Laughinghouse Fund chairman, answered seven calls.

Mrs. C.W. Harvey Jr. answered two calls for layettes and three calls were answered by the lending chest according to committee chairman, Mrs. Raymond MacKenzie.

Ayden Residents Are New Officers

KINSTON — Marie H. Ray and Joseph A. Ray of Ayden have been installed as officers of Kinston chapter No. 53, Order of Eastern Star.

The installation was held Saturday in St. John's Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Ray was named worthy matron and Ray is worthy patron.

Opening the meeting was Ray, worthy patron, and the chapter was opened by Betty S. Smith, worthy matron.

Acceptance addresses were made by Mr. and Mrs. Ray and they introduced members of their family and other special guests. The past matron's jewel was presented to Mrs. Smith by Mrs. Glenn W. Garner, past grand matron, and Jack Smith. Mrs. Ray presented a gift to Ray.

Shannon and Bryan O'Geary, grandchildren of the newly installed worthy matron and worthy patron presented an engraved gavel to Mrs. Ray. Song selections were presented by Brenda Briley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray, and by Ray, accompanied by Elizabeth M. Moore.

A reception followed the ceremony.

Young Women Don't Despair Marrying Age Is Now Older

By RHODA AMON
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Love is booming. If you doubt it, consider these facts: More than 5 million Americans got married in 1986. And they didn't marry barefoot on the beach. Marrying couples spend an average of $10,379 to tie the knot, much of it going into staging a nuptial extravaganza, according to a survey by Bride's Magazine.

In the late 1950s more women were marrying at the age of 18 than at any other age. Today nearly half of all brides are over 25, and more than one of every four is in her 30s, 40s or older. In fact, if you're over 30 and want to get married, the odds are better than 2 to 1 that you will, according to U.S. Census Bureau statistics. The latest facts contradict last year's gloomy, much-publicized Harvard-Yale study that gave over-30s only a 20 percent chance of getting married. It just ain't so, says statistician Jean Moorman, who was herself a 33-year-old first-time bride.

The new groom is older, too, and more gung-ho. Studies show four out of five single men want to get married. Once engaged, some men are wearing engagement or "acceptance" rings, putting their photos in the paper and even being thrown a "groom shower." Once "hitched," one out of three becomes a "total husband" making dinner at least one night a week, and 10 percent make dinner more than three times a week. But not all grooms are docile. A Southampton, N.Y., groom canceled after guests had assembled for a $260,000 wedding. The party went on.

How would you like to get married free with rings, tuxedo, limousine, a wedding-night hotel and a honeymoon in Acapulco thrown in? The only catch is you have to take your vows on a basketball court before 17,000 screaming basketball fans. Lorie Limbach and Don Brandsma, the lucky winners drawn at random from 100 eager entries, tied the knot at halftime of the Denver Nuggets-Indiana Pacers game on Valentine's Day.

Was it worth it? "Absolutely," said the bridegroom. His only regret: "I didn't get to see the second half." Guests did, however. Denver radio station Q103-FM, sponsors of the third annual Nuggets Nuptials contest, gave the couple 100 guest seats.

"I don't wanna make history; I just wanna make love," goes the song. But some couples will also go to great lengths to make history. Take, for instance, Glynn Wolfe, a former minister, who claimed to be the Most Married Man in the World when at 75 he took his 26th bride, Sue Camacho, 38. On the other hand, Joanne Kopinski and Bruno Matya said they weren't trying to set any records when they married in St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Chicago surrounded by their wedding party of 38 bridesmaids and 38 groomsmen. Kopinski explained that the couple had a lot of cousins and friends and didn't want to offend anybody, so they invited all 76.

Then there's the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, then spiritual leader of the Unification Church, who united 2,200 couples, most of them newly met in Madison Square Garden in 1982 — probably the largest mass wedding ever staged.

What's the busiest month for marriages? If you said June, you're right. It still tops all the other months for weddings with 276,000, although August runs a close second with 268,000. Surprisingly, more couples get married in the second six months of the year, 54.1 percent, compared to 45.9 percent in the first six months. And the mellow harvest months of September and October are almost as popular a season for marriage as June and August.

The question is more valid than you think. A survey shows 87 percent of brides are employed at the time of the wedding compared to only 76 percent of the grooms. The figures may reflect brides who are helping finance their grooms' higher education. An equal number of brides and grooms — 23 percent — hold professional or managerial posts.

Another sign of changing times: Such anachronisms as "obey" and "man and wife" have long vanished from most ceremony vows. Latest custom to succumb is the one in which the officiant asks "who giveth this woman in marriage?" and her father replies "I do." In many weddings today, the officiant asks, "Who supports this union?" and both sets of parents, bride's and groom's, chorus, "We do."

Once little more than accessories at the wedding, the groom's parents are now likely to find themselves active participants, accompanying their son in the processional, adding their names to the invitations and even picking up half of the tab.

The traditional tiered white fantasy wedding cake still dominates most wedding receptions, but its contents might fool you. According to Bride's Magazine, some health-conscious couples are opting for "health" cakes made of wheat, bran and honey or a carrot cake instead of luscious layers of chocolate or white cake frosted with buttercream flowers.

The ornament that sits on the top of the cake is also being improvised these days. It could be a tiny music box that plays "The Wedding March," a pair of love birds or a miniature bicycle built for two.

Another sweet custom — in which the bride lovingly feeds a mouthful of cake to the groom, and then the groom feeds a mouthful to the bride — has been replaced by some iconoclastic young couples who instead scrunch each other in the face with the mushy buttercream. Fortunately, this bit of slapstick has not really caught on, bridal consultants say.

Paintings Interpreted By Floral Arrangements

The second annual fine art and flower arranging show opened Thursday evening at Arlington Hall. Artists and garden club participants were honored at a reception.

Participating artists are Naomi Camnitz, Linda Gillam Clark, Betsy Evans Glenn, Marilyn Gordley, Tran Gordley, Joanna Huggins, Jacquelin Jenkins, Patricia Kordas, Dan Morgan, Judy Sanders, Margie Sawyer, C. Chamberlain Davis, Nancy Rogers, Deborah Hayden and Kate Buie.

"The show demonstrates how flowers and plants can have a place in complementing fine art," said Enid White of Arlington Hall. Winning first place in flower arranging was Mary Warren Mann, of the Dig and Delve Garden Club, for "First Picnic." Her art selection for interpretation was "Voiliers sur la Riviere" by Ms. Hayden, an acrylic on canvas.

Mrs. Mann's arrangement was placed in a grapevine wreath basket and filled with yellow forsythia, jonquils and Carolina jasmine, purple statice, verbenas and grape hyacinths.

Phyllis Robbins' "Creative Shell" placed second. Her selected painting was a watercolor by Ms. Rogers entitled "Sunken Basket."

Third place went to Margaret Angevine of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club for "Island Memories." Her selected work of art was Patricia Kordas' "Dotted Sky."

Kay Sutton of the Greenville Garden Club received first honorable mention for her arrangement "She Loves Me, She Loves Me Not." Her painting selection was "Josh and Scott" by C. Chamberlain Davis. The second honor mention went to Mrs. Mann's "Pleasures of Spring" for her interpretation of Linda Gillam Clark's painting by the same name.

The Lynndale and Potpourri Garden Clubs also prepared interpretive compositions. The show was held in cooperation with the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

Judges for the flower show were Mrs. Edward D. Baker and Mrs. Kenneth Hoff Meyer, both of Morehead City and master flower show judges, and Mrs. Grier Garrick of Jacksonville, an accredited judge.

The flower designs will remain at Arlington Hall until Saturday and the art show will be on view for four weeks. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

HOGS: Trend is 50 to 75 cents higher at North Carolina buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 51.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 51.50; Wilson 51.50; Rowland 51.50. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 44.00; Wallace 45.00; Spivey's Corner 46.50; Rowland 45.00.

N.C. BROILER-FRYERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. Fifty-two percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 46.10 cents. The market is trending lower and the live supply is adequate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,956,000, compared to 1,802,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply burdensome for a light demand. The undertone for next week's trading is weak. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 14 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 2 to 3 cents higher at mostly 1.77-1.90 in the East and mostly 1.89-2.00 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 5 cents higher at mostly 5.01-5.21 in the East and mostly 5.05-5.11 in the Piedmont; new crop wheat 2.50-2.85. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 101 to 104 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices continued to follow the plunging dollar today after the U.S. currency hit a new low against the Japanese yen.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 6.67 points to 2,332.53 as of 10 a.m. EDT. Earlier, it was down about 15 points.

Declining issues outpaced advances by a margin of 17-to-4, with 918 stocks down, 214 up and 328 unchanged on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 29.82 million shares after the first half hour of trading.

The dollar closed at 142.50 yen today, down 2.90 yen on the Tokyo foreign exchange market.

Topping the NYSE most active list today was Navistar, which was unchanged at 6 1/2.

Big losers included DuPont, which fell 1 1/2 to 114 1/2 and Southwestern Bell, which slipped 1 1/2 to 108 1/2.

Among the gainers were Texas Instruments, which rose 2 to 198 1/2 and ASA Mining, which jumped 1 1/2 to 69 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index was down 0.55 to 165.54. On the American Exchange, the market value index was down 0.61 to 338.62.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average closed at 2,339.20, down 12.96 points.

Decliners outpaced advances by a margin of more than 7-to-2, with 1,249 issues lower, 355 higher, and 384 unchanged. NYSE volume totaled 180.25 million shares, compared with 179.84 million shares Wednesday.

The NYSE index was down 2.42 at 166.09 and at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 2.06 points to 339.23.

As Cook Leads First Round Greens Said Key At Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Australian Greg Norman put it best.

"The speed of the greens was the crux of the matter," Norman said Thursday after an opening round of the 51st Masters golf tournament that brought mixed reviews from the players.

Tom Watson loved the firmness of the greens. So did Jack Nicklaus.

West Germany's Bernard Langer, however, thought they were too quick, and Norman was concerned with the pin placements.

"I cannot imagine the greens being any faster than they are now," said John Cook, who posted a 3-under par 69 early in the afternoon, good enough for a one-shot lead over Augusta native Larry Mize.

"They are so smooth," said Cook, who hasn't won a tournament since the 1983 Canadian Open. "If you miss, you just go hit it again."

"The greens were good," Norman said. "It was just that they were very quick. There were some places where you couldn't put the ball close to the hole."

Norman, the pre-tournament favorite coming off 10-victory worldwide performance in 1986, said the first-round pin placements made the biggest difference.

"If the pins were in the right places, you wouldn't notice the severity of the speed," he said after opening with a 73.

"The greens are very good, the best they've ever been," Watson said. "Firm. It really makes you think around the golf course."

Watson, winless during the last two seasons, was one of only eight players to break par on the 6,905-yard, par-72 Augusta National Golf Club course.

He shot a 71 and was tied with five others — Calvin Peete, Curtis Strange, Langer, leading money-winner Corey Pavin and Payne Stewart.

"The golf course is a defensive golf course," Watson said. "There are certain places on the golf course you simply can't be and expect to make par."

Watson compared the conditions with those of links course in Great Britain, saying one couldn't shoot for the flags, but instead had to run shots onto the hard greens.

"I like the course the way it is, hard and fast," Nicklaus, the defending champion and six-time winner, said after posting a 74.

Asked whether the conditions favored golf's best players, Nicklaus replied:

"Absolutely. We don't see these conditions on tour."

"I don't think the course needs it because the course layout is hard enough," Langer said. "The greens are too firm, burned in certain areas, extremely fast. You have to hit 20 feet short, maybe 30 feet short to account for the bounce."

Langer's 71 came despite three-putting from 20 feet for bogeys on two holes.

"I was pleased overall today," Langer, the 1985 Masters winner, said. "I don't believe there's going to be very many players below par at the end of the day."

Watson also was pleased with his 71.

"That's a darn fine score at Augusta National," Watson said. "I think four of them will win the golf tournament."

Despite his two-year winless slump, Watson, the game's top player only a few years ago, said, "I'm hitting enough good shots to make me honestly believe I can win the golf tournament."

Cook said he had the kind of day that when he missed a shot, it was in the right place.

Cook's round was highlighted by consecutive birdies near the end — a 12-footer on the par-3 16th and a three-footer on the par-4 17th.

He called the putt at 16 "one of the scariest" of his life. "If the ball had missed the hole, it would have rolled to the front of the green."

Mize, who grew up in Augusta, also made his round in the late stages, closing with birdies on the final two holes, sinking a 30-foot putt on the final green.

Two-time champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain, with a 73, was in a large group that also included Lanny Wadkins and Tom Kite, who has 10 top-10 finishes in this event.

U.S. Open champion Raymond Floyd and Ben Crenshaw, both former Masters winners, had 75s, and Scotland's Sandy Lyle, winner of the Tournament Players Championship two weeks ago, had a 77. PGA champion Bob Tway opened with a 78.

Two stars of the past, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer, struggled. Trevino shot 80 and Palmer, a four-time Masters champion, 83.

NFLPA Says Tests Must Be Agreed To

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association says random, mandatory testing for drugs should be instituted only if the program comes about as a result of arms-length collective bargaining between management and the union.

Gene Upshaw, the former All-Pro guard with the Oakland Raiders who now is the union's executive director, told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Wednesday that the union's goal has been to educate, test, treat and rehabilitate.

"The fact that significant publicity surrounds professional athletics often leads management to try to impose a quick cure at the expense of individual rights or in disregard of the collective bargaining agreement," Upshaw said. "As we approach the serious problem of drug abuse and dependency in our society, we must recognize there are no overnight solutions."

"We need programs that include education, treatment, rehabilitation and confidentiality," he said.

In answer to questions by Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., the committee chairman, Upshaw said that the imposition of a mandatory urinalysis by management means "they are asking us to overhaul our entire work force with one test."

"I wouldn't want a doctor to operate on me with one test," Upshaw said. "I would want a second opinion."

If a mandatory program were instituted without the benefit of collective bargaining, he said, the union fears there may be management abuse.

He described one incident in which a player called into the coach's office was asked to explain why he didn't join his teammates after practice for a few beers. He didn't join, the player told the coach, because he was taking piano lessons and was afraid teammates would poke fun at him.

"A coach might think he was on drugs and that's why he didn't hang out with his teammates," Upshaw said. "That's the kind of abuses we're afraid of."

In another example, Upshaw said a player was seen laughing in an elevator before a big game, so the coach thought he had a "bad" attitude and was on drugs. The coach wanted him tested, he said.

Upshaw did not identify the players, coaches or teams involved in the incidents he cited.

Under the current NFL contract with the union, management can conduct drug tests during the preseason and upon "reasonable cause" at the direction of the team physician. Attempts by management to impose drug urinalysis during the regular season have been met with opposition by the union, including lawsuits.

"We believe that the success of any such program depends on trust and cooperation," Upshaw said. "In that regard, the collective bargaining process is a critical means of developing and securing the trust and cooperation under which such a program can be effective."

Giants Trounce Dodgers By 8-1

Ready or not, here come the San Francisco Giants.

"I said opening day we were probably as ready as any club I've ever been with both physically and mentally — especially mentally," Manager Roger Craig said after the unbeaten Giants trounced the winless Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1 Thursday.

The Giants are 4-0 for the first time in 13 years. The last time the Dodgers lost their first four games was 1976.

In other National League games, New York beat Pittsburgh 4-2, St. Louis defeated Chicago 4-2 and Atlanta edged Philadelphia 8-7 in 10 innings.

Chili Davis and Chris Brown hit two-run homers as San Francisco spoiled the Dodgers' home opener.

Will Clark singled on loser Bob Welch's first pitch of the game and Davis followed with his homer. Brown's second homer of the season capped a four-run fifth inning that kayoed Welch, who had a 17-3 lifetime record against the Giants.

"We knew before the season started that we were going to lose four games, but we didn't know when," Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda said. "Things will change and we'll start getting the run production that we can and the good pitching."

Mark Davis, converted from a relief pitcher to starter this year, allowed one run and five hits in seven innings. It was his first victory as a starter since June 14, 1984, the last year he started on a regular basis. He started three games while relieving in 141 over the last two seasons.

"I don't remember my last win as a starter," said Davis, who had been winless in his last 17 starts with 10 losses and seven no-decisions. "I have only a 12-month memory. I do remember my last good game as a starter; it was last year."

"Everything I had I thought I was throwing fairly well. I was throwing the ball where I wanted."

Mets 4, Pirates 2

Darryl Strawberry, who homered earlier, led off the seventh inning with a double off rookie Logan Easley and scored the tie-breaking run on Howard Johnson's sacrifice fly as the Mets swept the two-game, season-opening series from Pittsburgh, a team they beat 17 of 18 times last year.

Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds hit consecutive home runs leading off the second inning against Doug Drabek. The Pirates scored twice off Ron Darling in the seventh on Rafael Belliard's infield hit, R.J. Reynolds' pinch double, Barry Bonds' sacrifice fly and Andy Van Slyke's double off Gene Walter.

"It's time to show what Darryl Strawberry can do," Strawberry said after his second homer in two games. "I'm concentrating well. I'm not being fooled up there. I'm determined to perform well this year."

It was Easley's major-league debut and, he conceded, "I was nervous. My concentration wasn't there and my nervousness sort of snowballed. If you fall behind Strawberry you're going to get hurt."

Cardinals 4, Cubs 2

Terry Pendleton hit a two-run homer and Vince Coleman stole four bases to set up two more St. Louis runs. Pendleton, who hit only one home run last year, connected off Steve Trout in the sixth inning to give the Cardinals a 3-0 lead.

"I guarantee I'll hit more than one," said Pendleton, who hit seven in his first three seasons in the majors. "That's not being cocky, that's being confident. This winter I worked a lot on getting the lower part of my body in my swing. And if you look at the lower part of my body you'll see where my power is."

Winning pitcher Danny Cox didn't allow a hit until Ryne Sandberg led off the bottom of the sixth with a home run. It was the only hit allowed by Cox, who struck out eight and walked six before leaving with two outs and two on in the seventh. Andre Dawson hit his first homer as a Cub in the eighth.

Coleman's four stolen bases tied his career high and led to the Cardinals' first and last runs. He walked to open the third, stole second and third and scored as Tommy Herr grounded out. In the seventh, he singled, stole second and third again and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ozzie Smith.

Braves 8, Phillies 7

Dion James hit a one-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 10th inning snap a tie. Philadelphia reliever Tom Hume hit Glenn Hubbard and then Rafael Ramirez with pitches after a one-out single by Ken Oberkfell off loser Dan Schatzeder. James singled on Hume's next pitch.

Pinch hitter John Russell's RBI double in the top of the eighth tied the game 7-7. James also had a run-scoring double in the Braves' four-run sixth that gave Atlanta a 7-6 lead.

Philadelphia scored six runs off Zane Smith in the fourth inning to take a 6-1 lead. Atlanta came back with two in the fifth and four in the sixth, including consecutive home runs by Ken Griffey and Ozzie Virgil, to knock out Phillies starter Bruce Ruffin.

Pirates To Scrimmage

The East Carolina football Pirates will scrimmage Saturday at 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The scrimmage will be open to the public.

The scrimmage will bring to a close the coaches' clinic which got underway today on the ECU campus.

Travis Hunter has emerged during the first half of spring drills as the leading candidate for the starting job at quarterback. The red-shirt sophomore shared starting duties with sophomore Charlie Libretto last fall.

Elsewhere on offense, Willie Lewis and Brian McPhatter have looked good at the slot positions, according to head coach Art Baker.

Defensively, sophomore transfer Mike Applewhite, 6-3, 280, has won a starting position at tackle, and is playing well.

Masters Leader

Indians In Romp; Knights Defeated

CHOCOWINITY — Jamie Stokes tossed a two-hit shutout at Jamesville Thursday as Chocowinity gained a 5-0 win in the Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

Stokes struck out nine batters and walked just one in going the distance for the Tribe.

The Indians got all they needed in the first inning, scoring one run. Stokes walked, stole second and waited while the next two batters went down. But Jonathan Hawley then singled to drive in Stokes for a 1-0 lead.

Chocowinity added two in the second, and one each in the fourth and sixth.

Hawley led the Chocowinity hitting with two. No one had more than one for Jamesville.

Chocowinity is now 5-5 in league play and 5-6 overall. Jamesville falls to 4-5 in the league and 4-7 overall.

The Indians return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Bear Grass, while the Bullets play host to Matamoras.

Linwood Scott and Dewey Scott both went 3-4 as Wilson Christian School defeated Greenville Christian, 14-5, in a high school baseball game Thursday.

Wilson opened the first with four runs to take the lead it would never relinquish.

Linwood and Dewey Scott and Bill Price walked consecutively to open the inning. Joel Attoe doubled home both Scotts. Jimmy Speight lashed another double to score Price and Attoe and make it 4-0.

Wilson added one more run in the second, two in the third and three in the fourth to take 10-0 lead.

GCA rallied for two runs in the fifth when David Rouse singled. Joey Williams followed with another single. Mark Holloman walked. Tim Bland then added another single to score Rouse. Franklin Huggins followed with a single to score Williams and make it 10-2.

GCA added three more runs in the sixth. Kevin Joyner walked. Holloman singled. Huggins singled. Brad Dixon singled to score Joyner. Billy Overton walked to bring home Holloman. Rouse reached on an error that scored Huggins.

GCA was led by Holloman and Bland with two hits apiece.

GCA falls to 2-2 and returns to action today hosting Bethel Christian.

Okamoto Leads

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ayako Okamoto's 6-under-par opening round in the LPGA Kyocera Inamori Golf Classic gave her a one-stroke lead and reason to reflect on current events, particularly her 36th birthday.

Okamoto celebrated that event last week while playing her way to a fifth-place finish at the Nabisco Dinah Shore tournament in Palm Springs.

"I had my birthday April 2," Okamoto said Thursday through an interpreter. "So maybe now I'm older and wiser. Every year my birthday comes during the Dinah Shore and I usually don't play well."

"But this year I finished in the top-five, so I must be learning something."

Youth and experience were well represented in a tie for second position at 67 between 28-year LPGA veteran Kathy Whitworth and Tammy Fredrickson, in her second season on the tour.

Okamoto continued last week's success by completing the par-72 Bernardo Heights Country Club course without making a bogey. Four birdies and an eagle paced the field of 144.

"This is the best first round I've had all year," Okamoto said. "I'm not hitting the ball real well, but I'm concentrating better."

Whitworth has 88 tour victories since turning pro in 1958.

"This means more to me now than when I was 20," Whitworth, 47, said. "I know it (my career) is coming to an end and I want to go out gracefully."

Fredrickson, on the other hand, has yet to win a tour event. Her best finish was 34th at the Sarasota Classic last year.

The Knucksie and Lefty Show had the Toronto Blue Jays talking to themselves — and Silent Steve Carlton talking to the media.

For the first time in baseball history, two 300-game winners pitched for the same team and the ancient arms, with lusty support from some young bats, led the Cleveland Indians to a 14-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Phil Niekro, 48, notched win No. 312, allowing three runs and seven hits in five innings. Carlton, 42, winner of 323 games, pitched four scoreless innings for his first save since 1968. The relief outing ended Carlton's record string of 544 consecutive starts.

"It felt strange, absolutely strange," said Carlton, who usually refuses to talk to the media. "I'm not accustomed to warming up like that and then coming in trying to get ground-ball outs."

Another 300-game winner didn't fare as well. Don Sutton yielded a pair of home runs to Seattle's Dave Valle as the Mariners beat the California Angels 7-2.

In other American League games, it was Milwaukee 12, Boston 11; Minnesota 5, Oakland 4; Chicago 6, Kansas City 0; Detroit 9, New York 3, and Baltimore 8, Texas 6.

Almost as unusual as Carlton's relief appearance was his postgame speech pattern; he talked so much it was hard for reporters to get a word in.

"I'm not chopped liver," he said with a wink after allowing four singles, walking two and striking out one. "I feel too good to retire. I'm having too much fun and I love the game too much to retire. After doing the same thing for 22 or 23 years you just don't quit because things don't go right."

"I didn't throw the slider for strikes and I didn't throw the curveball for strikes. My fastball was my best pitch."

"He had good stuff today, threw the ball well," Manager Pat Corrales said. "I tell you he doesn't take long — he gets the ball, throws, gets the ball, throws."

Cory Snyder's grand slam, one of four Cleveland homers, highlighted a six-run Cleveland first inning against Joe Johnson. Julio Franco and Joe Carter hit two-run homers for the Indians while Tony Bernazard had a solo shot.

Mariners 7, Angels 2

Valle snapped a scoreless tie with his first homer leading off the third inning and added a two-run shot in the seventh to make it 3-0. Both homers came off the 42-year-old Sutton. Meanwhile, Scott Bankhead held California to one run over 6 2-3 innings. Steve Shields earned his first major-league save despite a home run by Jack Howell in the ninth inning.

"Every year in the minor leagues I've had at least one game like this. It's a lot of fun. I've been waiting 10 years for this. I'm really excited. I believe I'm ready for the task," said Valle, who began his professional career as a 17-year-old in 1968.

Brewers 12, Red Sox 11

Rookie catcher B.J. Surhoff led off the bottom of the eighth inning with his first major league home run as Milwaukee swept the season-opening three-game series from the defending AL champs. The winning homer came off Steve Crawford after Boston's Danny Sheaffer's first major-league homer with two out in the seventh inning tied the game 11-11.

Rob Deer hit a pair of three-run homers, both off Rob Woodward, to give the Brewers an 11-7 lead after five innings. His first homer capped a five-run third inning and his second one wrapped up a four-run fifth that also included a solo homer by Glenn Braggs. Wade Boggs and Dave Henderson also homered for Boston.

"I was running hard. I thought it was a double, maybe a triple. I saw him (center fielder Henderson) running back on it. I thought maybe wall-ball," said Surhoff, who entered the game in the fifth inning after starter Bill Schroeder was injured. "I haven't had much time to work on my home run trot."

Twins 5, Athletics 4

Pinch hitter Dan Gladden's bases-loaded two-run single capped a three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth that gave Minnesota a three-game sweep. With one out, Gary Gaetti doubled and Tom Brunansky singled off Oakland relief ace Jay Howell to cut the Athletics' lead to 4-3.

Roy Smalley doubled and Howell intentionally walked pinch hitter Mark Salas before Gladden's game-winning hit. Juan Berenguer pitched one-hit ball over the final three innings to earn the victory. Mike Davis drove in three runs for Oakland with a homer and double.

The Twins are trying to take their good start in stride. They begin a nine-game West Coast road trip Friday night.

"I've got to say that there's a real good feeling," Gaetti said. "But you know what the key is? That's got to happen on the road."

White Sox 6, Royals 0

Jose DeLeon and Bobby Thigpen combined on a three-hitter and Greg Walker tripled home two runs to lead Chicago. DeLeon yielded a leadoff bunt single to Willie Wilson in the first inning but did not permit a runner to second until he issued one-out walks to George Brett and Frank White in the seventh.

Steve Balboni walked to load the bases with two out, but Thigpen came in and retired pinch hitter Thad Bosley on a fly ball. Kansas City's other hits were singles by pinch hitter Juan Beniquez in the eighth and George Brett in the ninth.

Leading 1-0, the White Sox scored four times against Mark Gubicza in the fifth, including Walker's triple. Gubicza's career record for the month of April is 0-8.

Tigers 9, Yankees 3

Chet Lemon homered to break a 1-1 tie in the second inning and doubled home another run in Detroit's six-run third as the Tigers averted a sweep of the season-opening three-game series. Walt Terrell, who upped his career record to 20-5 at Tiger Stadium, pitched eight innings, allowing 10 hits and striking out five.

New York starter Bob Tewksbury lasted two-plus innings, giving up four runs and five hits, although Bob Shirley bore the brunt of Detroit's big inning, which included Alan Trammell's two-run single.

Orioles 8, Rangers 6

Consecutive home runs by Fred Lynn and Ray Knight touched off a tie-breaking six-run sixth inning and Ken Gerhart also homered for Baltimore. Lynn's homer off Texas starter Mike Mason snapped a 2-2 tie. Third baseman Knight, whose throwing error gave Texas an unearned run in the third inning, followed with another homer and the Orioles scored four more runs, two on a double by Gerhart, before Texas recorded the first out.

Baltimore starter Ken Dixon went 6 2-3 innings. He yielded six hits, five for extra bases, including home runs by Don Slaught and Larry Parrish, and struck out nine. Texas' Steve Buechele homered in the ninth off Don Aase.

To The Sports Editor:

First of all I would like to welcome Coach Steele to Greenville and East Carolina University. I am sure he needs all the support he can get. I urge everyone concerned about ECU basketball to buy season basketball tickets. Coach Steele has a tough road ahead of him, and if the fans and alumni of ECU show enthusiasm and support, the basketball program at ECU will succeed. The success of the program depends greatly on the collective support of all concerned.

As a side note, I find it interesting that all but two of ECU's current basketball players are in academic trouble. I wonder where all of Charlie Harrison's supporters are who stated what wonders he has done to turn the program around academically. I guess you just can't believe everything you hear or read.

Smith's Blast Leads Rampettes

KINSTON — Cammie Smith lashed a three-run homer in the first inning to help Rose take a 5-2 win over Kinston in Big East Conference softball action Thursday.

Gina Parrott and Joann Brown each singled to lead off the first. Smith then homered to clear the bases and give Rose a 3-0 lead.

Kinston came back to score two runs in the bottom of the inning and make it a one-run game.

Rose came back with two runs in the top of the seventh.

Smith led off with a single. With one out, Shannon Perry singled. Both tagged up on a fly out by Andrea Rodgers to move up one base. Jenny Carroll then singled both runners home to make it 5-2.

Parrott and Smith both went 2-3 to lead the Rampettes.

Rose, 4-3 overall and 3-1 in the conference, returns to action Tuesday, hosting Wilson Fike.

CHOCOWINITY — Chocowinity pushed across three runs in the sixth inning to overcome a one-run deficit and take a 19-17 softball win over Jamestown Thursday.

The Lady Indians trailed 17-16 heading into the bottom of the sixth inning but came up with the needed runs to go ahead.

Wendy Dixon started things off when she reached on a fielder's choice. Dawn Mayo followed with a single. An error on the play allowed Dixon to score and Mayo to advance to third.

Sheila Norman followed with another single that scored Mayo and made it 18-17. Kristie Moore then hit another single to bring home Norman and complete the scoring.

Chocowinity then held Jamestown scoreless over the final inning to secure the win.

Dixon led the Chocowinity hitting attack with two hits.

Jamestown was led by Senita Rodgers, Amanda Barber and Cindy Price with three hits apiece. Shay Hale, Val Clark and Senita Rodgers each had a home run.

Jamestown, 6-5 overall, and 4-5 in the Tobacco Belt Conference, returns to action Tuesday against Matamoras. Chocowinity, 5-5, plays next at Bear Grass.

HERE'S WHO MAKES OUR LIFETIME GUARANTEE ON CAR REPAIRS POSSIBLE.

Because we offer the free Lifetime Service Guarantee on car repairs, my job as service manager is a little tougher. I have to make sure car repairs are done right the first time. Because if they're not, it's our problem, not yours.

Here's how the Lifetime Service Guarantee works. If you pay for any covered repair and it has to be done again, we fix it free. That's free parts and free labor. For as long as you own your Ford, Lincoln, Mercury, Merkur or Ford light truck.

The Lifetime Service Guarantee covers thousands of parts and repairs. And it doesn't matter how old your vehicle is, how many miles are on it, or even where you bought it. Add all this up and you've got the best car repair guarantee in America.

Ask us to see a copy of the Lifetime Service Guarantee. Then give us a chance to turn our guarantee into a lifetime reality.

Starting Position No Concern For Wallace

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — While drivers and mechanics are preparing their machines for Sunday's $326,115 Valleydale 500 at Bristol International Speedway, last year's winner is not worrying whether he will start in the pole position.

Rusty Wallace started from the 14th position last year and threaded his way through the pack to the front during the first half of the race on the .533-mile track, then stayed in the lead for the last 100 laps to win his first NASCAR Winston Cup event.

"If I'm not in the top five or the top 10 (in qualifying), I'm not going to worry about it," Wallace said Thursday. "This is a long race."

Qualifying was to be held today and Saturday.

Running under the green flag all the way, he pulled out to a 10-second victory over runner-up Ricky Rudd.

"If you win a race basically because the leaders fell out, you're happy but you know in your heart that you didn't really win because you were the best that day," Wallace said.

"But for me to come here and win by 10 seconds with all those guys still running that's the way anybody would want to win their first race."

Wallace would love a repeat of last year's performance.

"I'm more fired up about this race than any we've run this year," he said. "The car is exactly the same one we used here last year."

Wallace is currently 10th in the Winston Cup points standings. His car, owned by drag racing legend Raymond Beadle and prepared by crew chief Barry Dodson, wound up sixth in last year's points standings.

The team suffered a major setback prior to the Daytona 500 when a former employee broke into the Blue Max shop and stole a significant amount of parts and equipment needed for the race.

Wallace started in 32nd position and lasted 10 laps before his engine failed. The Kodiak Pontiac team has been trying to make up ground ever since. Wallace helped himself with a pair of thirds at Richmond and Atlanta in March.

The short tracks, such as Bristol, appeal to Wallace. His only other Winston Cup win came on the half-mile oval at Martinsville, Va. last September.

"They're my strongholds," he said. "It's important to take advantage of that and get back up in the points standings."

Farmville Tops Wellcome, 7-3

FARMVILLE — Farmville Middle School gained a 7-3 victory in a baseball game over Wellcome Thursday.

John Wade tossed the win for Farmville. Wade and Morris Foreman each picked up two hits to pace the Farmville attack, Wade hitting a double. Wellcome got only two hits on the day.

Farmville is now 2-0 and travels to A.G. Cox on Monday.

Cox-Chicod

CHICOD — A.G. Cox romped to a 22-0 baseball victory over Chicod in junior high school action Thursday.

Brian Smith took the win on the mound. Cox was led by A. Conger led Cox' hitting with four, while R. Edmondson and A. Barrett each added two. Chicod was led by Eric Doscher and Shawn Green, each with one, the only hits allowed by Smith.

In the girls' softball game, Chicod took an 11-0 win.

Chicod was led by Stephanie Had-dock and Nikki Adams with three each. Cox was led by L. Edwards with two. Valeria Mills was the winning pitcher.

Cox is 2-0 and Chicod 1-1 in baseball, while in softball, Chicod is 2-0 and Cox is 1-1. Chicod travels to Bethel on Monday.

Bethel-Whitfield

GRIMESLAND — Bethel and Whitfield played to a 6-6 tie in a baseball game at Grimesland Thursday. The game will be completed on May 11.

In the girls' softball game, Bethel took a 14-6 victory over Whitfield.

Tracy Palmer led Bethel with three hits and also recorded two unassisted double plays. Lori Howard and Angela House combined for the win on the mound.

Culbreth Takes Win

Culbreth Junior High School of Chapel Hill handed the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department's junior boys' tennis team its first loss of the year Thursday, taking a 6-3 win.

The loss drops Greenville to 3-1. They play host to Wayne Country Day on Monday.

Summary:

Exhibitions: Jeff Pittman (G) d. Aaron Gray, 8-3; Claiborne-Metzer (G) d. Zilper-Mourad, 9-7; Honeycutt-Thompson (G) d. Booth-Bryd, 8-2; Nisbet-Wilkins (G) d. Lassiter-Bouche, 8-2.

Ladies Golf Has Tourney

KINSTON — The Eastern North Carolina Ladies Golf Association held its April play date Thursday at Kinston Country Club.

Harriette White of Greenville Country Club, with a 77, won the low gross title in the championship flight.

Missy Decker of Brook Valley Country Club, took low net in the first flight with a 72 while Sue Hardy on Greenville had second low net with a 74.

In the third flight, Jane Joyner of Greenville had a 71 to win low net, while in the fourth flight, Betty Lou Howard of Greenville took low gross with a 92.

A total of 88 women competed on the day.

Smithfield's Johnston Country Club will host the final two-day tournament of the spring on May 11-12.

U.S. Dollar Skids To Record Low Against Japanese Yen

By JAMES M. KENNEDY
AP Business Writer

The dollar sank to a record low against the Japanese yen today as efforts by the world's major industrial powers to prop up the troubled U.S. currency met with disappointment on most financial markets.

The decline came one day after a similar drop that ignited big sell-offs in both the bond and stock markets and two days after the United States and its trading partners agreed Wednesday to rally their support behind the dollar.

The trading alliance's commitment to breaking the fall of the dollar was apparently not strong enough to satisfy the markets.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed at 2,339.20, down 32.96 points. Declining issues outpaced advancers by a margin of more than 7-to-2.

In the bond market, the Treasury's 30-year issue plunged more than 2 points, or more than $20 for each $1,000 in face amount. Its yield jumped to 8.07 percent, compared with 7.90 percent late Wednesday.

It was the first time the yield on the bellwether issue finished above 8 percent since last March, analysts said.

In the foreign exchange market, the dollar plunged to a record low of 144.25 on Thursday against the yen in late New York trading, from 146.15 Wednesday. Then after the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market opened today, the dollar sank below the 143-yen level for the first time despite intervention by the Bank of Japan, traders said.

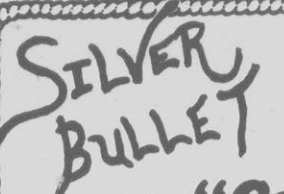

Within 20 minutes of opening at 143.75 yen, the dollar plummeted to 142.90 yen. It recovered slightly, and was being traded at about the 143.20-yen level an hour after the opening bell.

Gold prices jumped sharply higher in response to the dollar's slump. Republic National Bank of New York quoted gold bullion at $431.50 a troy ounce at 4 p.m. EDT, up from $420 late Wednesday.

In other economic news Thursday, the nation's largest general retailers reported sales were mixed in March. Those with negative results blamed bad weather and a late Easter.

The Federal Reserve Board reported the nation's basic money supply fell $2 billion in the last week of March. The money supply measure known as M1 fell to a seasonally adjusted $738.9 billion in the week ended March 30 from a revised $740.9 billion the previous week.

Surging Food Costs Boost Wholesale Prices Upward

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, driven by the first surge in food costs in five months, jumped 0.4 percent in March, the government said today. Energy costs, after dramatic gains in January and February, began leveling off.

Food prices, led by a nearly 21 percent increase in fresh vegetable costs, jumped 0.5 percent in March, a dramatic reversal from February's 0.5 percent downturn.

Pork prices rose 1.1 percent; fresh fruit and bakery prices jumped 0.7 percent; soft drink prices were up 0.5 percent.

Coffee prices, however, fell 2.3 percent and are now 17.0 percent under the levels of a year ago.

Gasoline prices rose 0.4 percent; fuel oil costs up 0.1 percent.

Gasoline costs had risen 15.7 percent in January and 5.5 percent in February while heating oil costs had spurted more than 21 percent over those two months.

Overall, energy prices fell 0.2 percent last month following gains of 4.0 percent in February and 9.8 percent in January. Diesel fuel prices fell by 5.9 percent while natural gas prices fell by 1.5 percent.

The 0.4 percent increase in the Labor Department's overall price calculation came in under January's 0.6 percent gain but above February's 0.1 percent gain.

March's gain amounts to an annualized price increase of 5.5 percent. For the year, prices were rising at an annual rate of 4.6 percent.

Prices for consumer goods other than food and energy rose at a considerably considerably steeper pace in March than they had in most recent months. Women's clothing costs were up 1.0 percent while prices for prescription drugs rose 1.1 percent, cosmetic prices gained 1.7 percent and home electronic prices advanced 1.6 percent.

Wholesale prices for household appliances, however, held flat and automobile prices dropped 0.8 percent, following a 3.4 percent February decline, as manufacturers continued to offer rebates.

The March increase left the Producer Price Index at 29.23. That means that an array of goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $29.23 last month. That is 42 cents more than the same assortment would have cost in March 1986.

Unlike the other figures in today's report, the index itself is not adjusted to remove the impact of routine, predictable seasonal influences.

Wholesale prices dropped 2.5 percent in 1986, the biggest decrease since 1949, largely because of plummeting oil prices early in the year.

Oil prices, however, have rebounded sharply since last July, when the spot-market price of the benchmark West Texas crude hit a decade-low level of $11.49 per barrel. Last month, that crude oil sold at an average spot-market price of $18.41 a barrel. That price is still 30 cents below January's level.

Costs for capital equipment rose 0.1 percent last month, less than the 0.3 percent February gain.

Modest increases in several categories of machinery and equipment more than offset a 1.0 percent drop in prices for light trucks. Capital equipment prices are still below the level of last November. Analysts, however, predict that such prices will begin rising as U.S. manufacturers start matching the price increases many foreign producers are imposing because of the falling dollar.

Texaco May Seek Bankruptcy Filing

L.A. Times-Washington Post

NEW YORK — Texaco may file for bankruptcy protection by Monday if it is unable to reach an agreement on how much of its assets it must pledge as security to Pennzoil while the companies' acrimonious legal dispute moves through Texas state courts, it was learned Thursday.

Sources close to meetings between the two oil companies said that Pennzoil has so far been "unsympathetic" to Texaco's contention that it is unable to put up security valued anywhere near the $12 billion that Pennzoil has asked. Texaco says that if it is forced to pledge property and assets on that scale it will trigger provisions in its debt agreements that might bring to a halt its access to credit and its ability to do business.

Monday is the day set for a hearing before the Texas Court of Appeals in Houston on the size and nature of Texaco's security.

The case arises from a jury's decision in late 1985 that Texaco illegally interfered in Pennzoil's agreement to acquire Los Angeles-based Getty Oil.

The jury awarded Pennzoil damages of $10.3 billion plus interest.

Texaco had threatened previously during the legal battle to file for bankruptcy to confound any Pennzoil attempt to seize Texaco assets, but the threat has generally been seen largely as a bargaining ploy. Still, Texaco Chairman Alfred C. DeCrane Jr. said Monday that the company has retained bankruptcy counsel and "made itself familiar" with bankruptcy procedures. Moreover, one source argued that the brinkmanship engaged in by the two parties as Monday's hearing nears only raises the possibility of a "miscalculation" resulting in a preemptive Texaco filing.

Under a Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing, Pennzoil would become Texaco's largest unsecured creditor.

New Charges Filed In Insiders Scandal

NEW YORK (AP) — Three top Wall Street executives whose arrests in the insider-trading scandal last February shocked the financial community have been indicted on charges of conspiracy and securities fraud.

The four-count federal indictment Thursday named Robert M. Freeman, head of Goldman, Sachs & Co.'s risk arbitrage department; Richard B. Wigton, vice president at Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Timothy L. Tabor, a former Kidder, Peabody arbitrageur.

Tabor, 33, of Manhattan, was arrested Feb. 11; Freeman, 44, of Rye, and Wigton, 52, of Summit, N.J., were arrested the next day. All three have been free on bond.

The usual 30-day deadline for indicting a person accused of a federal crime was extended by a U.S. magistrate at the request of both the defense and prosecution, said Associate U.S. Attorney Benito Romano.

Such delays are provided for "complex and unusual cases," he said.

They were scheduled for arraignment April 16.

Attorneys for Tabor and Curran said they would plead innocent and expect to be cleared at trial. Wigton's lawyer, Stanley Arkin, was out of his office and could not be reached for comment.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said if convicted on all counts, each could receive up to 20 years and fines of either $250,000 or twice the gross profits of the alleged conspiracy.

Sandi Patti Wins Top Dove Awards As Artist Of Year, Female Vocalist

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Sandi Patti won two top awards and honors in a third category as the Gospel Music Association presented the 18th annual Dove Awards.

Miss Patti was named artist of the year and No. 1 female vocalist Thursday night at an awards gala. The artist of the year honor, the top award, was her fourth, and it was the sixth straight year she was voted top female singer.

The 30-year-old singer from Anderson, Ind., also won the best inspirational album award for "Morning Like This." Her three awards made her the big winner at gospel music's most prestigious awards presentation.

"I'm always pleasantly shocked," she said about winning. She was earlier named artist of the year in 1982, 1984, 1985.

After the presentations, she was asked if she would return to the PTL show, whose co-host Jim Bakker resigned last month after admitting a tryst with a church secretary. Miss Patti has appeared on the gospel music-talk show twice.

"If asked, I'd give it prayerful thought," she said backstage at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center.

Steve Green was voted No. 1 male vocalist over Derek Floyd, Larnelle Harris, Russ Taff and Wayne Watson.

The trio First Call was a double winner, voted group of the year and the Horizon award for career development.

Also taking home two awards were Dick and Melodie Tunney, who were chosen songwriters of the year and won song of the year for "How Excellent Is Thy Name." Paul Smith shared the song of the year honor with them.

Amy Grant, who teamed with pop singer Peter Cetera on the recent No. 1 hit "Next Time I Fall," won nothing. She was a finalist for artist of the year, an award she won in 1986, and top female vocalist. She currently has the No. 1 album on the national gospel charts, "The Collection."

Other finalists for top artist were Harris, the band Petra and Green.

Remaining finalists for top female vocalist were Cynthia Clawson, Twyla Paris and Deniece Williams.

Entertainers Johnny and June Carter Cash were to have been hosts of the two-hour show, but bowed out because Cash was ill in New York City with high blood pressure, show spokeswoman Donna Hilley said.

They were replaced by entertainer Carol Lawrence, veteran gospel singer Bill Gaither and the comedy team Hicks and CoHagen.

Recipients are selected by the 3,000 members of the Nashville-based Gospel Music Association.

The awards presentation will be shown Saturday night on cable's Christian Broadcasting Network. The show also will be shown on commercial stations via syndication.

Myerson Gives Up New York Office

L.A. Times-Washington Post

NEW YORK — Bess Myerson, the daughter of a Bronx housepainter who became Miss America and later a power in New York politics, Thursday resigned her post as the city's Cultural Affairs Commissioner, the latest casualty of the city's expanding municipal corruption scandal.

Ms. Myerson, a close ally of Mayor Edward I. Koch, was guilty of "serious misconduct" in hiring the daughter of a judge who later reduced alimony payments in the divorce case of Ms. Myerson's close companion, contractor Carl A. Capasso, according to a report by former federal judge Harold R. Tyler.

Tyler, whose report was summarized in a statement by Koch, also found "improprieties" in her use of city employees' services for personal purposes and her failure to report gifts received from Capasso. Details of the investigation were not released because Ms. Myerson and Capasso are subjects of a federal investigation by U.S. Attorney Rudolph W. Giuliani.

Federal and city agencies are investigating whether Capasso paid kickbacks to help obtain a $53.6 million contract to build a sewer plant in Brooklyn in 1983 and whether Ms. Myerson may have used influence on his behalf.

Tyler found no evidence of misconduct by Ms. Myerson in connection with the contract.

The investigation of Ms. Myerson, 62, and her highly publicized entanglement with Capasso, 41, has

Soviet Authors May Reshape Their Roles

DORTMUND, West Germany (AP) — Soviet authors who formerly helped fill the information gap left by the state-run news media may have to reshape their role in the new era of openness, author Valentin Rasputin says.

With Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev urging more frankness and criticism in newspapers and television, literature may lose some of its importance, Rasputin said in an interview.

"Before, the citizens got a lot of information on certain matters from literature. Now that there is more openness, that has changed," he said.

"What we had to do before, the journalists are now doing, and they are doing it faster. That means authors must find a new responsibility."

Rasputin, who is considered one of the most talented writers in the Soviet Union, has used his own books to call attention to the destruction of nature and Siberian village life by industrialization and modernization.

Although his writings stirred controversy and were labeled "anti-modern" by some Soviet critics of the 1970s, he recently won the Order of Lenin.

One of his best-known novels is "Farewell to Matyora," about a village that is flooded out when a new dam is built. The book was made into a movie by Soviet filmmaker Elam Klimov, and it was shown this year at the Berlin Film Festival although not entered in competition.

Rasputin talked about Soviet writers while attending the recent German-Soviet symposium on the environment in Dortmund. The weekend event was sponsored by the Rhine-Westphalia Foreign Society and was attended by Soviet writers and West German ecologists.

The author said that one important role Soviet writers could continue to play under Gorbachev is promoting ethics and humanitarianism in an officially atheistic society.

"(Our) writers also have a religious, moralistic function. The truth that the church cannot speak out must be taken over by writers," he said.

His own works have such a moral overtone, prominently citing traditional values such as respect for work and care of the elderly.

Good Guys Win In TV 'Holocaust'

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Escape from Sobibor" is a Holocaust movie with a difference. The good guys win. In 1943, the Nazi death camp Sobibor in eastern Poland was the scene of a successful prisoner revolt. Half of the camp's 600 inmates escaped.

The three-hour movie, based on the book by Richard Rashke, airs Sunday on CBS. It stars Alan Arkin, Joanna Pacula, Rutger Hauer and Hartmut Becker.

A recent screening at a New York theater was attended by many of the survivors of Sobibor as well as the cast of the movie.

Hauer, the big, blond, Dutch actor known in the United States mainly for macho villain roles in "Night Hawks," "Blade Runner" and "The Hitcher," plays a captured Russian soldier who helps plot the escape.

At the end of the screening, Hauer sobbed.

"Yeah, I broke up," he said in an interview a few days later. "I'd seen it once, trying to be a professional, objective, accurate, and I could see it was good, you know, but I was kind of not getting emotionally involved."

"The second time I saw it with all these people. The difference between the two screenings is like a million miles. In the dark you can cry, so I sobbed a little bit. I thought by the end I was over it. Then, after the applause was going, I just fell apart. And my stomach was aching all day the next day. I kept crying. I think I cried five times the next day."

Arkin had said in an interview the day after the screening that he felt the movie was special as soon as he got the script.

"I sobbed for about half an hour when I got through reading it. That's all the signal I need that I've got to be connected with something," he said. "I don't know, there was something about it, the richness of it made you dig into yourself in a very profound way. It brought out the best in people."

The movie, filmed in Yugoslavia, opens with shots of the deceptively lovely surroundings, and a train arriving with Jews who still believe they are going to a work camp. Prisoners who work in the camp are stationed alongside the track to help the newcomers, knowing they have been brought to Sobibor for extermination.

A couple of the prisoners manage to whisper to the new ones, "Volunteer!" The ones who understand and step forward, whether qualified or not, when the Nazi commander asks for tailors or seamstresses. The rest are marched off to the "showers."

Reginald Rose wrote the excellent teleplay. Jack Gold, whose television credits include "The Naked Civil Servant" and the film "Aces High," did a superb job of directing.

"Sobibor" is vivid without being graphic. The horror of the gas chamber is conveyed in one scene — a child panics and runs screaming from the line of naked women. A Nazi guard lets loose his German shepherd. The reaction is seen on another youngster's face.

The apparent futility of escape is established in another wrenching scene. Thirteen people who were caught are lined up in front of the assembled prisoners to be shot.

But the Nazi sergeant Wagner (Becker) adds an evil twist. He commands each of the 13 to pick one prisoner to die with him. They refuse. So Wagner tells them if they do not choose, 50 prisoners will die.

With no other choice, they walk into the crowd and select death partners. No one protests. The remaining prisoners are forced to watch the shootings.

Center Helps Ex-Dancers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — There can be life after dancing, and the anxiety caused by a career-ending injury can be treated, says a top Canadian dancer who works with a clinic to help professional dancers struggling with retirement.

Karen Kain, a principal dancer with the National Ballet of Canada, has starred in performances around the world. But her success hasn't made her insensitive to the plight of less-fortunate dancers.

"We all think we're going to be young forever and aren't prepared for retirement," said Ms. Kain, 35, chairman of the board of the Dancer Transition Centre in Toronto.

"Dancers are so focused on what they do. They've usually started when they're kids and haven't prepared themselves for anything else," Ms. Kain said in an interview in Minneapolis, where she will perform Friday and Saturday with the National Ballet of Canada at the University of Minnesota's Northrop Auditorium.

The Dancer Transition Centre was formed in September 1985 in Canada

FOCUS

Ant Wars

Ants have inhabited the world for at least 100 million years. There may be as many as 10,000 species and a quadrillion individuals. There might be fewer if the Weaver ants had their way. Weaver ants are warriors. They often line up along a front to fight one another. Their battles can rage for days. "Peace settlements" are often reached, establishing boundaries between opposing ant colonies. Weaver ants patrol the jungles of Africa.

DO YOU KNOW — What group of ant-like insects mostly feed on wood?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Matthew Perry opened trade between Japan and the West in 1853.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY April 11

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's overall aspects for getting conditions in proper order is favorable. Consider what you want to do the most, then tackle any problems that may be in the way.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You are interested in some new venture and should pursue it without delay. It will require much work.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You have a wise plan for improving home affairs, but you'll find it a bit hard to make it work correctly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Make the right arrangements so that you can handle your communications. Solve your travel problems.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You know exactly how to add to you present prosperity, but it will require a great deal of work.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You have big ideas now, but the energy needed to make a success of them before things start moving is great.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): You can become more successful if you put your ideas to work instead of just talking about them.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Get into that new venture with a group of friends who have both vision and ability to make a success of it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Do whatever can gain you more prestige in civic and government circles as well as other worldly affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Some new course of action is necessary today to bring greater success, even if it means sacrifice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You are a fairly good organizer and can use this latent talent in the business world today.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): A partner can give you suggestions of an idealistic nature that you would do well to follow.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Make your home more functional. Let others know what you are doing. Avoid any misunderstanding later on.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have every ability to understand how to handle projects of large scope, and handle them well. Teach this one that much effort is required in everything to gain the success desired and the greater the effort, the greater the satisfaction when accomplished.

Styles change. The old-fashioned treatment of a double of an opening bid of one no trump showed the equivalent of a one no trump opener. The new method is to show a hand that is capable of defeating one no trump: it can be weaker than a one no trump opener but, in that case, it contains a good, long suit that can be developed by giving up one trick in the suit. The theory is that you seldom get a strong, balanced hand when someone has already shown 16-18 points, and the second type of holding crops up with much greater frequency.

Fortunately for East-West, a pair of rubber bridge players of long standing, they did not put much store in these new-fangled ideas. They abided by the methods which had stood them in good stead over the years, so West had no problem about what to do after South opened the bidding with one no trump. East knew his side held the balance of power and passed with relish.

West made his normal lead of his fourth-best heart, and East's king forced the ace. Declarer had no option but to try to establish diamond tricks, so he led the king in the hope that he might pick off a singleton queen -- a singleton ace would not have helped him.

In with the ace of diamonds, West found a masterly defense: He shifted to the jack of clubs! There was no counter to this brilliant sally. East signalled with the eight and declarer could not hold up. He won with the king and resumed his effort to set up diamonds. But it was easy for West, after winning the queen, to trust his partner and continue with a low club. East put his entry to good use by reverting to hearts, trapping declarer's jack.

When the smoke cleared, the defenders had collected four heart tricks, two diamonds and three clubs for 500 points.

By CAROLYN LUMSDEN
Associated Press Writer
NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Amy Carter, Abbie Hoffman and 13 others arrested in an anti-CIA rally were counting on testimony from Daniel Ellsberg to help convince a jury they were justified in objecting to the spy agency's campus recruiting.

Ellsberg, the defense analyst who released the secret Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam War, was scheduled to testify today at the trial of the 15 protesters in Hampshire District Court.

Hoffman, a 50-year-old 1960s radical from Batavia, N.Y., and 11 other protesters were charged with trespassing in a Nov. 24 demonstration at the University of Massachusetts.

Former President Carter's 19-year-old daughter, a student at Brown University, was charged along with two others with disorderly conduct for allegedly blocking a bus taking away protesters to be booked.

Defense witnesses argued Thursday that university policy permits recruiting only by law-abiding groups and that the CIA violated the law.

"The students' reaction in that incident was the reaction any right-thinking American, peace-loving American, would have in the face of the serious harm the agency has done," said defense attorney Leonard Weinglass.

Bullet Holes Found In Building's Meter

NEW YORK (AP) — Bullet holes in a meter allowed natural gas to leak into a grocery store before it was flattened along with an abandoned tenement by a blast that killed six people, a utility official said.

Fire officials said the blast in the Bronx on Wednesday appeared to have been caused by natural gas, and Consolidated Edison, the utility serving the area, received a report of a gas leak moments before the explosion.

"The holes caused the leak," Con Ed spokesman Dan Waldman said Thursday. Utility officials said gas passes through the meter.

Deputy Police Commissioner Alice McGillion said, "This is now going to be the focus of our investigation."

Scores of police and utility officials picking through bricks and dirt found the gas meter in the store's basement Thursday.

VA Hospital Fire Leaves One Dead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Fire officials today searched for the cause of a smoky blaze that forced the evacuation of about 200 elderly patients from the Veterans Administration Hospital. One patient died after suffering a heart attack.

One other patient suffered a heart attack, one a stroke and another a minor leg injury during the evacuation Thursday, but hospital officials refused to blame the emergency.

All three were in stable condition, said Dr. Sam Threefoot, hospital chief of staff.

"I don't know exactly what was burning, but it got into the walls," said Fire Chief William McCrossen. "I understand they were doing renovations and apparently the fire started in a wall in the fifth floor."

McCrossen would not comment on speculation by a patient that a workman's cutting torch had started the fire.

Prosecutor Diane Fernald said the case was a simple one of whether the defendants were guilty of trespassing and disorderly conduct.

University Vice Chancellor Dennis L. Madson told the jury how more than 150 protesters, including the defendants, took over a university office.

A police officer and a woman who works in the building occupied by the protesters testified that the protest violated campus policy by continuing past normal working hours and that the demonstrators refused repeated requests to leave.

Francis Boyle, an international law professor at the University of Illinois, testified that the CIA has repeatedly violated international law and condones crimes against humanity by directing the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

"People have the right to act and stop international crimes in any extent they can," Boyle said.

Defense witness Morton Halperin, a former member of the National Security Council, said the CIA consistently violated a 1984 act prohibiting military aid to the Contras.

Ralph McGehee, a 25-year CIA veteran who retired 10 years ago, testified that the CIA was covertly involved in the Vietnam war for years and waged a campaign of misinformation to draw the United States into the war.

Police ballistics experts determined that two of the holes were bullet entry holes and the third was an exit hole, said Officer Peter O'Donnell. He said an aluminum jacket for a .38-caliber bullet was found in the meter.

Police said they did not know whether the bullet was fired directly into the meter or had strayed, nor how long it had been there.

Con Ed spokeswoman Pat Richiardi said a meter reader had visited on March 16 and found no irregularities.

Three of those killed were employees of the store. The others were believed to be customers. Rescuers found one with a telephone in his hand.

Seventeen civilians, including a 3-year-old child, and 12 police, fire and housing officers were injured during the explosion and subsequent search for victims.

About two-thirds of the 356 patients on the upper floors of the 10-story building were evacuated during the four-alarm fire that sent smoke billowing through fifth- and sixth-floor halls just before 9 p.m., said hospital director Gregory Haag.

The evacuees, most of them elderly and many in beds or wheelchairs, were taken to a new addition. Some received intravenous medicines and other treatment in hallways.

The dead man, a cancer patient in his mid 50s, died soon after being transferred to nearby Hotel Dieu hospital, officials said. His name was being withheld until relatives were notified.

About 60 firefighters brought the blaze under control in about an hour, McCrossen said. The hospital sustained extensive water damage, but much less fire damage, officials said.

Simon Seeks Nomination As 'Traditional' Democrat

By ROBERT SHOGAN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Illinois Sen. Paul Simon said Thursday that he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination, becoming the first of his party's White House aspirants to describe himself as a "traditional" Democrat following in the activist trail blazed by Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal.

Promising "leadership that has vision, leadership rooted in the traditional values of our party," Simon said, "I am not a neo-anything," a reference to the so-called neo-liberals who have called for change in the party's past liberal doctrines. "I am a Democrat."

Simon's chief asset as a candidate, besides the strategic importance of his home state, is his reputation for high-minded liberalism, which, as much as his habitual bow ties, has been the hallmark of his long political career. He was first elected to the Illinois Legislature in 1953 and entered Congress in 1974, serving five terms in the House before winning his Senate seat in 1984.

Sen. PAUL SIMON

But some analysts question whether Simon is well-suited in terms of style and background to gain the Democratic nomination in 1988 at a time when his party is in ferment and many of its leaders are calling for change.

At 58, Simon apparently will be the oldest of the Democratic contenders for the presidency. Though warm and friendly, he is short and unprepossessing in appearance, with a droning voice. The author of 11 books, he is often linked in intellectual achievement to his fellow Illinoisan, the late Gov. Adlai Stevenson. But even Simon's admirers concede that he lacks Stevenson's sparkling wit and rhetorical flair.

So bookish is Simon that associates say his wife, Jeanne, whom he met while both were serving in the Illinois Legislature, complains that he refuses to read novels, concentrating instead on weighty non-fiction.

Adding to the difficulties facing any contender little known outside his own state, Simon's equivocation about running has made some in the party view him as indecisive and may have cost him potential support.

Simon's announcement Thursday that he had authorized the formation of a presidential campaign committee came 10 weeks after he called a press conference to announce that he had decided not to run. He explained at the time that after only two years in the Senate he wanted to gain more experience on Capitol Hill and would support Arkansas Sen. Dale Bumpers for the nomination. Bumpers, however, decided not to run.

Simon offered no explanation of the switch Thursday in the four-minute statement he read in a crowded Senate caucus room. He was hustled away afterward by his staff, refusing to answer questions.

But Floyd Fithian, Simon's Senate chief of staff, said that Bumper's decision not to enter the race left "a whole chunk of spectrum (among Democrats) that's open, message-wise." Like Simon, Fithian shied away from the word "liberal," now out of political fashion, to describe the segment to which Simon is appealing. He said he preferred the term "traditional" instead.

Bush Urges Study Of Alcohol Fuels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush, pushing for the use of alcohol in cars, trucks and buses to reduce air pollution, is asking a new "working group" to promote such conversions in heavily polluted cities.

The group formed Thursday would help more than 70 metropolitan areas nationwide which face the loss of billions of dollars in federal highway funds unless they reduce carbon monoxide and ozone, commonly known as smog, by the end of the year.

A shift to alcohol would reduce urban ozone levels by 80 percent and carbon monoxide by 10 percent to 15 percent at little cost, enabling dozens of cities to meet legal requirements, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

EPA's strategy for reducing ozone and carbon monoxide currently involves a list of regulations including limits on wine making and baking, but the agency has not yet embraced alcohol fuels as one of its remedies.

However, in a closed-door presentation Thursday to Bush and his Task Force on Regulatory Relief, EPA Administrator Lee Thomas characterized alcohol fuels or additives as extremely effective ways of reducing ozone and carbon monoxide levels.

Under the plan Thomas outlined, commercial and government fleets would be permitted to convert to alcohol use, either as gasoline additives or in the form of pure, or neat, methanol. States could compel the conversions. The Clean Air Act requires them to come up with a plan to reduce emissions.

"We're under a lot of pressure from the mayors of Cleveland, Albuquerque, Phoenix, to give some guidance on this," said Boyden Gray, the vice president's counsel. "EPA is now acknowledging the very powerful impact these fuels can have."

Alcohol fuel comes in two varieties: methanol, made from natural gas or coal, and ethanol, synthesized from corn, sugar cane and other agricultural crops. Currently, alcohol is being used as a gasoline additive in parts of the U.S., but neat methanol is unavailable.
