Court Backs Death Even If Bias Involved

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a crushing defeat for opponents of capital punishment, ruled today that state death penalty laws are constitutional even when statistics indicate they have been applied in racially biased ways. By a 5-4 vote, the justices upheld Georgia's death penalty law.

They said statistics showing that killers of white victims draw death sentences far more frequently than killers of black victims do not establish that the Georgia system violates the Constitution's equal-protection guarantees.

The closely watched Georgia dispute, perhaps the most important capital punishment case in a decade, had been hailed as the last sweeping attack against the death penalty.

Death penalty opponents fell one vote short of casting into doubt the fates of hundreds of the nearly 1,900 men and women on death rows nationwide.

Writing for the court's majority, Justice Lewis F. Powell said the statistical study of Georgia's death penalty system "at most indicates a discrepancy that appears to correlate with race."

Powell added: "Apparent disparities in sentencing are an inevitable part of our criminal justice system. ... Where the discretion that is fundamental to our criminal process is involved, we decline to assume that what is unexplained is invidious."

The ruling upheld the death sentence given to Warren McCleskey for the 1978 murder of an Atlanta policeman.

McCleskey's hopes to avoid death in the state's electric chair had been pinned on a study by a University of Iowa law professor, David Baldus.

In his study, Baldus examined every Georgia murder conviction from 1973 to 1978 and found that those who killed whites were 11 times more likely to receive the death penalty than were those who killed blacks.

Looking at the smaller number of cases in which the greatest jury discretion was exercised in sentencing, Baldus found that killers of whites were four times more likely to receive death sentences.

"The Baldus study does not demonstrate a constitutionally significant risk of racial bias affecting the

Panel Backs City Annexation

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended City Council approval of six annexation requests which would add almost 100 acres to the city's boundaries.

The new 5-1-1 method of election has enabled the city to resume residential annexation after a two-year layoff, City Attorney Mac McCarley told commissioners at their monthly meeting Tuesday night.

"The (U.S.) Justice Department stopped several of our raw land annexations where the land was going to be developed for residential purposes," McCarley said. "We had to stop in May of 1985 annexing residential property ... because we were bumping up against the limit for annexation of white citizens without unlawfully diluting minority votes."

"We have now remedied that problem by changing the method of election to the 5-1-1 district election system for the city. What that does is put in place a system for proportional minority representation in city government."

McCarley said the city needs to be careful when annexing property adjacent to minority voting districts. "If we start annexing any significant number of white citizens onto an area that is one of the two minority districts, we need to stop and look at that carefully to make sure we don't violate a 1 percent dilution," McCarley said. "For the Justice Department, there is no concern on their part if we add white citizens to the white districts."

None of the property considered at Tuesday's meeting would affect the minority districts, according to McCarley.

The properties, which include Scarborough, Mumford Park, sections of Treetops and Oakdale subdivisions, Willoughby Park Condominiums, and Elks Lodge land, would add $139,514 in revenue at full development, according to Bobby Roberson, director of planning and community development.

"It (annexation) allows us to increase the number of people, which would mean increased money from the Powell Bill for street improvements," Roberson said. "It also allows us to increase our extrajurisdictional zoning jurisdiction."

Roberson said the annexations would cost the city an estimated $74,843 in initial expenses and $74,293

Joyner To Head Study

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's emergency management coordinator was named interim chairman of a committee to study implementation of a 911 emergency telephone system by the Board of Commissioners Tuesday.

Bobby Joyner will head the committee — which includes representatives from various municipal governments as well as from law enforcement, fire and rescue agencies in the county — until a chairman can be elected by the committee, the board directed.

The action in naming Joyner temporary chairman followed a brief discussion of the proposed 911 system, during which various board members said they felt efforts to implement the system should move forward.

The Board of Commissioners began discussing a 911 system as early as 1981 and in late 1984 met with officials from the various municipalities to talk about an emergency telephone system for the county.

Commissioners last year formed a committee to study the implementation of the system. But for various reasons, the committee has not met.

"We're at a place we need to set up our first meeting with the committee," County Manager Kramer Jackson told the board.

PCMH Approves Increases In Pay

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Memorial Hospital trustees Tuesday night approved an increase in beginning pay for nurses and other health professional employed by the hospital.

The pay increase was enacted to assist recruiting of staff which starts about June 1.

Malpractice insurance coverage for house staff residents was increased from $1 million with $1 million aggregate to $1 million with $3 million aggregate. This increase will cost the hospital about $29,000 more per year, an increase from $372,869.

The PMCH Risk Management Preventive and Correction Action Committee was established. This committee will have its members drawn from the nursing staff, quality assurance committees, the risk management office, the medical school and doctors in private practice. It will be used to support the work of the trustees' risk management committee.

A $49,650 gift from the Greenville Service League was acknowledged. The gift will be used for a neurosurgical diagnostic instrument used with the CAT scanner to help physicians sight tumors in the brain.

Approval was given for the purchase of a flow cytometer for the pathology department for $29,340.

The executive committee reported that negotiations on a larger-capacity computer for the hospital are under way. Nothing has been finalized, it reported.

A resolution was adopted designating the Pitt Memorial Hospital Foundation as the organization to handle or approve all fund-raising drives within the hospital.

The board meeting time is being changed from 7:30 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. each third Tuesday. The executive committee meeting will now start at 3 p.m., instead of 5 p.m.

The purchase of $25,000 additional insurance on equipment used in the hospital's helicopter and ground ambulances was approved.

The salvage committee reported that an April 3 auction of hospital equipment raised $1,292.

HIGH WATER — Bruce Eckert paddles a canoe north on state road 1586 off Mumford Road this morning as the water level rose in the Tar River. The river is expected to peak Thursday afternoon. City and county officials have been making preparations to handle any emergencies that may arise due to flooding. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

City Braces For River Flooding

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer
Rising water in the Tar River has caused only minimal flooding, but has prompted city and county officials to initiate preliminary emergency measures.

"We've had some flooding in the Shady Knoll Trailer Park area, some across the road at Parker's Chapel Church on the Pactolus Highway, off North Greene Street behind Riverside Oyster Bar, and some in the city of Greenville off River Road," Bobby Joyner, coordinator of Pitt County emergency services, said today.

The county is prepared to open shelters should the need arise, according to Joyner, who said a few families have had to leave their homes.

"One or two families had to get out

— that's all that we know of," he said. "We are just going to wait and see what arises. If we have to evacuate people, we will open shelters."

Meanwhile, Mayo Allen, Greenville's acting city manager, met with representatives from 10 city departments Tuesday afternoon to review responsibilities under the emergency management plan.

"Because of the high water, we reminded every department of what their responsibilities are if we had to move in," Allen said. "We also made it an alert practice to make sure everyone understands their responsibilities. We're not really expecting any problems from high water."

The city has not had to evacuate any residents, according to Allen, who said most families will be able to tell when it is time to leave. City officials reviewed plans should they be forced to enter Level II of the city's emergency plan.

"Level II is utilized when there is a need for additional manpower equipment from city departments, whether expected or actual," the plan said. "The emergency management coordinator will establish the emergency operations center and direct all emergency operations. All department heads are notified of implementation of Level II, and all personnel are placed on standby."

Meanwhile, Cliff Strickland, a lab technician with the Greenville Utilities Commission, said today the river had reached 18.5 feet elevation and was still rising at 10 a.m.

"It's still rising slowly, and we expect it to crest tomorrow," Strickland said.

He said GUC water plant officials expect the river to peak at about 19 feet at the plant and 18.5 feet at the Greene Street bridge.

The National Weather Service has predicted the water will peak Thursday afternoon at around 18.5 at the bridge, according to Tom Tysinger, director of engineering and inspections, who serves as the city's assistant emergency coordinator.

Allen, the city's emergency coordinator under normal circumstances, said he asked Tysinger to serve in his place while he is acting city manager.

Department representatives needed to be informed about the river

In The Area

Drug Arrests Made

Greenville police arrested two men on drug charges Tuesday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Hagan Street.

Officer M.J. Jordan said Willie Darcell Mills, 34, of Kinston was charged with possession of cocaine, possession of drug paraphernalia and giving false information to an officer.

Vinson Burke Dixon, 39, of Aurora was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of cocaine, according to Officer L.E. White.

The men were taken into custody about 6:30 p.m.

Possession Charges

Greenville police arrested a Rocky Mount man on drug charges early Sunday.

Officer M.R. Benton said Gerald Gregory Macky, 24, was charged with possession with intent to sell and deliver marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia after a car in which he was riding was stopped at the intersection of Farmville Boulevard and Memorial Drive about 1:35 a.m.

Benton said the driver of the car, James Christopher Barnhill, 24, also of Rocky Mount, was charged with driving while impaired and driving while his license was revoked.

Benton, who said Macky was also charged with aiding and abetting driving while impaired, said eight bags of marijuana valued at $200, a pipe and two packs of rolling paper were confiscated from Macky.

Choirs To Perform

The Black Pastor's Conference will sponsor the combined voices of the Pitt County Mass Choir and the New Bern City Mass Choir in concert Sunday at 7 p.m. at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church.

The choirs will perform gospel selections to be used in their Philadelphia concert tour.

Seven Thefts Investigated

Investigators said seven thefts were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer T.E. Nevelle said property valued at $395, including a cordless electric drill and charger, a quartz light, three rakes, a shovel, a fiberglass ladder and a 20-gallon water cooler, was taken from a construction trailer at 100 Cypress Glen in a break-in reported at 9:58 a.m.

Nevelle said $220 in cash, a computer disc holder containing five disks, a pair of sunglasses, a radio-tape player, a pair of tennis shoes and a checkbook were taken from a car parked at 206 N. Summit St. in an incident reported at 10:31 a.m.

Officer J.G. Bridges said $894 worth of electrical supplies and wiring and 10 bathroom ceiling fans valued at $101 were taken from a Courtney Square Apartments construction site in an incident reported at 10:55 a.m.

Officer Darryl Bazemore said six 50-cent pieces, a diamond ring valued at $125 and a sweater valued at $30 were taken from B6 Glendale Court in a break-in reported at 12:54 p.m., while Officer W.C. Widener said a camera, zoom lens and a roll of film, with a combined value of $237, were taken from 27 University Condominiums in an incident reported at 1:50 p.m.

Officer J.A. Bartlett said two cans of beer were taken from the Fresh Way Food Store on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 6:04 p.m., while Officer C.S. Candler said a bicycle chain valued at $4.74 was taken from the K-Mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 7:06 p.m.

Candler said the chain was recovered and a juvenile, who was allegedly involved in the incident, was turned over to his parents.

Girl Scout Leaders

Adjustment Board

Benefit Scheduled For Wright Memorial

The Organization of Black Faculty and Staff of East Carolina University, along with various black student organizations, the ECU Black Alumni and the citizens of the Pitt-Greenville black community, will sponsor the fourth annual scholarship and fund-raising benefit for the Ledonia S. Wright Memorial Scholarship on May 2.

The fund-raising benefit will be held at the Mendenhall Student Center, East Carolina University, at 7 p.m.

The late Ledonia Smith Wright, who died in June 1976, was a member of the faculty in the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions. She was an active counselor of minority students during her tenure as a faculty member.

The Ledonia S. Wright Memorial Scholarship Fund was designed for minority students at ECU. Annual awards are based on academic merit and career potential. Undergraduate applicants must have completed a minimum of 32 credit hours and must have a current overall GPA of at least 2.5. Graduating seniors are not eligible. Graduate and medical school students are considered on the basis of individual merit. There have been 10 recipients of the scholarship since 1984, the first year the scholarships were awarded. The 1985-86 scholarship awards were $300 per recipient.

Applications for the Ledonia Wright Memorial Scholarship are available and may be picked up from any black ECU faculty member. Individuals or organizations who wish to contribute to the fund or desire more information may contact Dr. Larry L. Hines, president, ECU Organization of Black Faculty and Staff, at 757-6876 or Jacqui Hawkins at 551-2499.

MASONIC NOTICE

There will be a stated communication of Crown Point Lodge No. 708 at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

House Topples Into The Ocean

By The Associated Press

An unoccupied house in southern Nags Head fell off a 15-foot cliff into the ocean because of severe beach erosion caused by recent storms, authorities said.

"We're experiencing a lot of winds and rough seas," said Sgt. R.A. Hurdle of the Nags Head Police Department. "The house had been condemned and the power had been cut off. It just washed the pilings out from under it and fell into the ocean."

The house in the Camelot by the Sea subdivision, which was valued at between $150,000 and $175,000, crashed into the Atlantic on Monday. And authorities said three nearby houses could suffer the same fate.

Live TV Reports Planned On English Anniversary Events

RALEIGH — Raleigh television station WRAL-TV will originate live broadcasts from England to North Carolina at 6 p.m. Friday when Charlie Gaddy presents an advance package on the 400th anniversary celebrations of the first English colony in what is now the United States.

The broadcasts will continue at noon on Sunday for the day-long ceremonies commemorating the 400th anniversary of the April 26, 1587, departure from Portsmouth, England, of the third and final group of colonists sent by Sir Walter Raleigh to the Outer Banks of North Carolina. They will conclude at 6 p.m. April 29 when Gaddy will broadcast from the West Pier in Plymouth, England, the site where the Roanoke Voyages of 1584-87 began.

Among North Carolinians to be in England for the ceremonies are Gov. and Mrs. Jim Martin and state Cultural Resources Secretary Patric Dorsey.

By special arrangements made through the N.C. Association of Broadcasters, WRAL-TV will provide a live feed of its coverage to the television stations that are members of the association. WRAL-TV also will make available taped coverage of other special events during the England tour.

These events are being carried out under the auspices of America's 400th Anniversary Committee which is charged with coordinating celebrations connected with the voyages and settlements on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

Highlights of the Sunday celebrations include a Service of Thanksgiving at the Portsmouth Cathedral, with Martin to read the lesson during the service, followed by a colorful procession from the cathedral to the Sally Port of Portsmouth with uniformed escorts, special music and American and British dignitaries.

There, Martin will unveil a plaque commemorating the sailing of the group destined to become Raleigh's Lost Colony. He will be joined in this ceremony by Portsmouth's Lord Mayor, Marie Seaman.

The church service will begin at 4:15 p.m., and the unveiling will be at 5:15 p.m., British time. WRAL-TV will carry these events live at noon.

On April 29 Ms. Dorsey and the North Carolina delegation will revisit the site in Plymouth where the 400th Anniversary celebration began on April 27, 1984. She will lay a wreath on the monument there in memory of the colonists.

The Sunday events coincide with two official tours by the 400th committee. North Carolinians from all over the state are traveling at their own expense on either the "Roanoke Voyage" tour or the longer "Elizabethan Adventure" tour.

The "Roanoke Voyage," April 24-May 3, traces the route of the lost colonists from their embarkation in Portsmouth to the Isle of Wight for their final departure from England.

LITTER FEEDBACK

Tammy Kernen, program coordinator for the adult Community Service Work Program, said she has received good response to a recent Hotline item about the possibility of litter collection along highways being a Community Service endeavor.

She said she needs eight more volunteers to supervise workers doing court-ordered Community Service work on Saturdays. If these people come forth, she will set up a training session for the volunteers and a rotating schedule for volunteer service on occasional Saturdays. Anyone interested in taking part is asked to call Ms. Kernen at 752-7338.

Planning Board Recommends Annexation

in annual expenses at full development.

As part of the recommendation, the board approved a request by Joseph D. Speight to annex Mumford Park, 3.0774 acres located off the southern right-of-way of Mumford Park and south of the Powell Street intersection.

Commissioners approved a request by Morton Associates Inc. to annex Scarborough, 23.7 acres located in the west side of State Road 1704, south of Windy Ridge, north of Tuckahoe, and east of Mattie Mercer property.

Requests by the city of Greenville to annex three acres, formerly the Greenville Elks Lodge, located off the northern right-of-way of the Norfolk-Southern Railroad and east of 14th Street Extension and 7.75 acres in Oakdale subdivision, Section 3, were also approved.

The panel approved a request by Bill Clark Construction Co. to annex Willoughby Park Condominiums, 20.2 acres located off Victoria Court, and a request by H.T. Chapin Jr. to annex Treetops subdivision, Section V, 40.8 acres located west of Fork Swamp Canal and south of White Road.

The board approved a request by Chapin to have the Treetops property zoned for medium density residential use. Commissioners also approved water-sewer extension, street design, and other standards by the city.

In other business, the commission approved a request by the commis-ion and the department of planning and development to rezone property in Belvedere, Club Pines and Westhaven subdivisions from residential-agricultural and residential medium density to single family residential.

The property has frontage on Greenville Boulevard and is adjacent to Nichols Shopping Center, Whichport development, and the rear portion of the commercial development fronting on N.C. 11.

The panel approved a request by Grace T. Pate, Mimi T. Denton and Jarvis Thomas Tripp Jr. to rezone about 3.73 acres from residential-agricultural to high density residential. The property is located approximately 318 feet south of the intersection of U.S. 264 Business and State Road 1135.

Meanwhile, commissioners unanimously recommended approval of a new definition for a "wellness center" to be included in the Zoning Ordinance.

According to the new definition, a wellness center is a "facility designed to promote health awareness and maintenance through a variety of programs and services tailored to a range of individual needs, including but not limited to, physical fitness and nutrition education."

"The programs shall be coordinated by a physician consultant, who shall oversee the content and conduct of each program. A variety of facilities shall be provided, such as indoor-outdoor swimming pools, jogging tracks, walking-cycling trails and may include seminar rooms and exercise rooms. All improved outdoor exercise facilities shall comply with setbacks for the zone where the facility is located and must be visually screened from adjoining property lines and street rights-of-way."

Commission members Dr. Stephen Blades and Dr. Wallace Woole assisted the planning department in writing the definition.

The panel also approved the removal of a section in the Code of Ordinances for clarification.

Court Endorses Death Penalty

Georgia capital-sentencing process," Powell wrote today.

"The Constitution does not require that a state eliminate any demonstrable disparity that correlates with a potentially irrelevant factor in order to operate a criminal justice system that includes capital punishment," Powell said.

He said it is state legislatures, not the courts, which must evaluate such statistical studies and determine "the appropriate punishment for particular crimes."

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Byron R. White, Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia joined Powell's opinion.

Justices William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens dissented.

"Narrowing the class of death-eligible defendants is not too high a price to pay for a death penalty system that does not discriminate on the basis of race," Brennan wrote for the four dissenters.

Nationwide, about 95 percent of death row inmates killed whites even though blacks are more often the victims of murder in this country.

Capital punishment opponents previously acknowledged that McCleskey's case may represent the last broad-based assault on the death penalty. Since 1984, the high court has rejected two other broad appeals.

It ruled that death sentences may be meted out even if state courts do not try to determine whether others convicted of similar crimes were treated more leniently.

And it ruled that death penalty opponents may be barred from serving as jurors in determining guilt or innocence in capital cases, saying that fair-trial rights are not violated if such exclusions result in "conviction-prone" juries.

In a second death penalty decision announced today, the court showed that it still expects state and federal courts to comply with sentencing procedures deemed constitutionally necessary.

By a unanimous vote, the justices overturned the death sentence of convicted Florida murderer James Ernest Hitchcock. They ruled that Hitchcock wrongly was prevented from introducing mitigating evidence during his sentencing trial.

The decision, however, did not disturb his conviction for strangling his brother's 13-year-old stepdaughter in Orange County 11 years ago.

Diplomat Accused

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland today accused a U.S. diplomat of spying and said he left the country after being detained by police during a clandestine meeting with a Polish contact.

Jerzy Urban, the official spokesman for the Communist government, said Albert Mueller, a political officer at the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw, had gathered military intelligence and information on activities by the banned Solidarity trade movement.

"Albert Mueller was caught passing to a Polish citizen spying equipment, spying tasks, code tables and dollars," Urban said. "Counter intelligence of the Interior Ministry caught the American diplomat red-handed."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman confirmed Mueller's detention by police on Saturday evening and said

Mueller left the country for the United States on Sunday. But the spokesman, Paul Smith, refused to comment on the Polish charges.

"It's simply our policy not to comment on allegations of espionage," he said in a telephone interview.

The espionage charges followed a recent warming trend in U.S.-Polish relations after a five-year diplomatic freeze and came amid a U.S.-Soviet dispute over spying in Moscow and Washington.

"The U.S. authorities show specific spying mania toward representatives of socialist countries," Urban said. "At the same time the U.S.A. has in socialist countries, also in Poland, numerous spying groups."

The accusations against the diplomat followed publication in Paris of an interview with a Polish army colonel who defected to the United States.

Ill-Conceived Bill

Question: What is the worst idea so far of the current General Assembly session?

We vote for the Senate Judiciary IV Committee's 5-4 favorable vote on a bill requiring local governments to allow mobile homes in single-family neighborhoods which now have zoning requirements against that. The measure is a restrictive one that strips local zoning authorities of power.

The N.C. Manufactured Housing Institute is lobbying for the bill and the committee obliged. The bill bars local governments from the enforcement of zoning requirements which "prohibit or exclude a manufactured home from being located or installed on a lot zoned for single family dwellings, as long as the manufactured home and lot comply with all requirements applicable to single-family residential structures in that zone."

The bill allows local governments to require removal of wheels, conformance with appearance regulations such as having pitched roofs, landscaping and masonry foundations and minimum size requirements. Mobile homes could be banned in historic districts, flood plains and restrictive covenant neighborhoods.

Sen. Kenneth C. Royall, Jr., D-Durham, who co-sponsored the bill, says it does not strip power from local governments because they can still set standards for the appearance of all homes.

Unfortunately the bill does infringe on the zoning authority of local governments because it directs what they can and cannot do. This is something that it is best for the Legislature to avoid. Local governments on the whole have done a pretty good job of handling zoning matters. Local officials are closest to the needs of local people and that is the way it should be.

The Senate should make quick work of disposing of this ill-conceived bill.

True Patriot

Gradually they are dying — the military leaders of World War II and the postwar era.

This week it was Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor. A four-star general, he died Sunday in Walter Reed Army Medical Center at the age of 85. He had packed much in his long career — more than most of us could ever dream of.

A graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1922, he was at the proper point in his career for full participation in World War II — and he was a leader. There was a dangerous mission to Italy for conferences with Italian officers prior to that country's surrender. He was the leader of the 101st Airborne when it jumped into Normandy on D-Day. He led the paratroopers through heavy fighting in Holland.

Later he was commandant of Berlin, commanded the 8th Army in Korea and was United Nations commander in the Far East. He became Army chief of staff in 1955. Following retirement and civilian positions, he was recalled as a military and intelligence advisor to President Kennedy. The president sent him to Vietnam in 1961 for an assessment of the Vietnamese communist encroachments. Taylor recommended that the American military function as a logistical task force and an emergency reserve in a military crisis. He served as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff beginning Oct. 1, 1962 during the time of the Vietnam involvement. He was named ambassador to South Vietnam by President Lyndon Johnson. Following his return home in 1965, like many government leaders, he faced anti-war demonstrations during his public appearances.

Gen. Maxwell Taylor's military and public career spanned the 1920s when the military was shrunken to the point of near non-existence, through the last popular war — World War II — and then through the difficulties of Korea and Vietnam.

Through it all he served his country well — whether it was facing the dangers of combat or enduring the unpopularity that went with leadership during Vietnam. He was a great military man, and he was always first a true patriot.

Shultz In The Senate: Detente II

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz goes to the Senate this week to sell the new Euromissile pact to Republican leader Robert J. Dole and other hard-liners, but the deal seems cooked however much they warn about verifying Soviet compliance or grumble about the continued occupation of Afghanistan.

The same is true for serious critics in NATO. They know that removing intermediate-range nuclear missiles (INF) from Europe gives the Soviets a wedge to pry the U.S. from its NATO allies. Congress will demand the allies spend more money for non-nuclear arms; with arms control enthroned, European parliaments will not vote it.

That is the unsettling backdrop to an all-but-assured autumn visit here by Mikhail Gorbachev, given carte blanche to do and see what he wants. The result will be a media-extravaganza blitz ushering in Detente II, easing both President Reagan's and Gorbachev's domestic difficulties.

Not all the Senate Republican hard-liners Shultz will visit this week are against eliminating INF missiles in Europe. It is tough politically to break with that old No. 1 hard-liner, Ronald Reagan, when he promotes his imminent reduction — not just a limitation — of nuclear weapons as the centerpiece of the the 1988 general election.

Reagan has ordered a hell-bent pace for his treaty. The NATO Council, overriding European concerns centered in Britain and France, is being pressed to approve Shultz's INF proposals early next month. U.S. and Soviet treaty writers are being rushed back to the Geneva bargaining table this week to concentrate on difficult compliance and verification questions.

The objective both here and in Moscow: to complete a treaty draft in time for the leaders to sign it at a mid-autumn summit. That is particularly critical for Gorbachev, whose glasnost-induced domestic problems are more serious than Reagan's Iran-contra headache.

Any arrangement to move Soviet troops out of Afghanistan before the summit, which Richard Nixon privately warned Shultz he should insist on to avoid an appearance of affirming the Soviet occupation, has vanished as a realistic target. Shultz made a valiant effort during his talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, but got nowhere.

He was told what one U.S. diplomat with Shultz in Moscow termed "diplomatic nonsense": that 12,000 anti-communist mujahedin fighters had recently defected to the Soviet-imposed Afghan government and that 45,000 Afghan refugees had returned from asylum in Pakistan. Shevardnadze ridiculed the proposed four-month outer limit for the Soviets to complete a withdrawal. He claimed to Shultz that a pullout would take a minimum of 18 months, with no starting period in sight.

When Shultz raised the question of Soviet help for the Kremlin's Nicaraguan ally, he met another stone wall. Moscow has every intention of continuing to supply the Sandinistas, Shevardnadze told Shultz, adding that military supplies to Managua will keep going up.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Within a few days the North Carolina House of Representatives will vote on SB 164, the Clean Detergent Act, which will ban the sale of phosphate detergents in the state. Virginia, Maryland, Indiana and other states have already enacted similar bills as a first step toward water quality improvement.

Speaker of the House Liston Ramsey noted recently that the General Assembly must become increasingly concerned about environmental issues facing North Carolina. Since the concerns of our representatives are related directly to the concerns of their constituents, it is time to urge Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr. to vote for the Clean Detergent Act of 1987 and against any amendments that would regionalize or otherwise weaken it. The need for this particular bill is underscored by the intensive well-financed efforts the pollution lobby has mustered to defeat it. Given the current condition of the Pamlico and other eastern North Carolina rivers, this is one issue we can no longer afford to ignore.

To the editor:

The federal government's "head in the sand" energy attitude for the past several years has led the Secretary of Energy to predict an energy crisis equal to the one in 1973 within five years. His plea to allow drilling for oil in a wildlife refuge in Alaska is another example of shortsighted leadership that is partly responsible for the current situation.

We are the most wasteful nation on earth. Study after study has demonstrated that conservation is our most economical source of energy and we could save millions of barrels of oil with no degradation in our standard of living. The technology is available to reduce consumption by one-third — all that is lacking is a national will.

When are we going to recognize the folly of dependence on non-renewable energy resources? A combination of solar, wind, photo-voltaics and other proven technologies can support our needs without the ecological impact of burning hydrocarbons.

I urge everyone to write to their representatives. Ask them to introduce and/or support legislation that would promote conservation and renewable energy system. We can make progress and act as if the future matters.

J. Sam Arnett

To the editor:

It is appalling that the mayor of Greenville continues to make public statements that should embarrass us all. It is equally appalling that the media lets him get away with it by failing to report it, thereby sanctioning it.

The latest example of Mr. Garner's foul quips is a highly inflammable, racist remark that he made at the April 9th city council meeting. After he presented awards to three public works employees who saved a child from drowning, the mayor said, "Stay around; we'll cut some watermelon." In case you could not guess from the punch line, the honored employees were Black. No apologies were offered. And none would be sufficient. Three heroes have been publicly demeaned by the mayor of Greenville.

The mayor's sexist slams at the female dominated city council, to whom he refers as "Titty City", are legendary in male civic club circles.

We do not see any news reporting on the mayor's sick taste in humor even though such remarks are made in the presence of media reporters. Perhaps it is not, never was and never will be news in Greenville when the highest elected official chokes to show his racist, chauvinistic beliefs in public, or maybe people are just so used to such behavior that it has become unremarkable. However the beliefs these remarks reflect are relevant to voters and, if known to many, could make a critical difference.

It certainly is scary that someone like Greenville's mayor, who is so powerful that no one will run against him for election, feels free to flout such unpolitic personal beliefs publicly or privately. And it is certainly ironic that someone with such poor judgement on his own behalf has the power to determine which city employees are "professional" enough for this "forward looking" community.

These insults can stop — at the polls.

High Courts And Petty Cases

WASHINGTON — A little more than a year ago, the Supreme Court handed down an opinion — more accurately, three opinions — in a case of something less than monumental importance. This was the issue that occupied the highest court in our land: "Is a misjoinder under Rule 8 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure subject to analysis for harmless error?"

The case involved two defendants in Texas who were charged with mail fraud and perjury. Technically speaking, the charges were "misjoined," but the case went to trial anyhow. Both men were convicted. The 5th Circuit reversed, and the Supreme Court agreed to hear an appeal. The high court took the case for one reason only: Six of the federal circuits had ruled that misjoinder always is reversible error. Six other circuits had ruled that misjoinder is not necessarily reversible error; it may be only harmless error.

To settle this conflict among the circuits, the Supreme Court considered the petition, read the opposing briefs, heard oral argument, and assigned Justice William Rehnquist to write an opinion for the majority. Justices William Brennan and John Paul Stevens felt compelled to write separate opinions.

It is to prevent this diversion of the Supreme Court's time and thought that Sen. Howell Heflin has revived the idea of an inter-circuit panel to hear and dispose of such conflicts. The bill, S. 239, will come up for hearings before the Judiciary Committee in July. The bill should be passed.

By its very nature, the Supreme Court should hear only supreme cases. Justice Antonin Scalia, though he opposes the pending bill, made the point in an address in New Orleans in February. The stature of the federal judiciary emerges "from the fact that we have dealt, by and large, with cases of major importance, and had enough time to give them the attention they deserved." Given the floods of litigation sweeping over the federal courts, this happy situation no longer exists.

Look at the 1985-86 term. Simply to resolve a conflict between the 5th and 11th Circuits, the Supreme Court frittered away its time on a question of who should pay federal marshals for transporting state criminals. A Michigan case turned on the calculation of benefits under Aid to Dependent Children; the 6th Circuit had ruled one way, the 2nd and 11th Circuits another way.

The 9th Circuit and the 7th Circuit had different views of the Speedy Trial Act in its application to illegal aliens; the Supreme Court had to resolve the issue. One trivial case involved a prisoner in the Richmond, Va., jail who had slipped on a staircase and injured his ankle. A companion case concerned a prisoner in the federal prison at Leesburg, N.J., who had been hurt in a fight. In neither case was any great statutory or constitutional question at issue. Yet another case involved the statutory rights of non-union employees in a certification election; the 9th and 5th Circuits were in conflict on the point.

Why must the Supreme Court fool around with these things? It is because in such cases it is more necessary that the law be settled than that the law be settled "right." Sen. Heflin's bill would provide an inexpensive procedure by which the Supreme Court would be relieved of hearing 30 to 40 cases a year that are taken just to resolve inter-circuit conflicts.

The proposed tribunal would be drawn from judges of the several federal circuit benches. They would hear and decide cases referred to them by the Supreme Court, and except in unusual instances their decisions would be final. The cost would be minimal; the gain to the high court would be large. Scalia's objection that the court would reduce the stature of the existing circuit judges is not well taken. Circuit judges would be doing no more than circuit judges are expected to do.

Heflin's proposal is for an experimental period. It might well result in more thoughtful opinions from the high court in cases of greater magnitude. In any event, the idea deserves a fair try.

The great novel by Victor Hugo, "Les Miserables," contains a profound moral lesson. Jean Valjean, a fugitive from justice, changes his name, becomes prosperous in business and is elected mayor of a small French city. One day he learns that a man has been sentenced to the galleys for a crime he himself had committed. Then and there begins an epic battle between conscience and self-interest for the control of Jean Valjean.

"Go and declare your identity and save an innocent man," says conscience. "Why should you? No one knows," replies self-interest. In the end his conscience conquered and, at the cost of liberty and life, he stood up in court and identified himself.

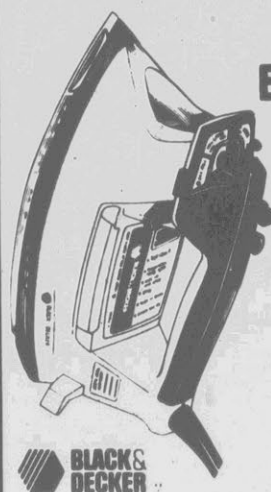

The conflict which goes on continually between conscience and self-interest is a mighty one and people are never happy until they follow conscience.

IN THE STATE

Hoffman

GREENSBORO (AP) — Fresh from a confrontation with the CIA, Abbie Hoffman says his next target will be the U.S. Army and its advertising campaigns for recruits.

Hoffman, at a student workshop and speech at Guilford College Tuesday, said he is outraged by television commercials showing young people fresh out of the Army strolling across a college campus and saying, in Hoffman's interpretation, "I got into grad school by jumping out of airplanes with another Yuppie."

Hoffman was acquitted last week in Massachusetts of charges of disorderly conduct and trespassing in connection with a CIA protest.

Sex Drug

RALEIGH (AP) — Researchers say a drug developed by Burroughs Wellcome to treat severe depression had an unexpected side effect — it enhanced sexual desire and performance.

But Burroughs Wellcome does not plan to sell its drug, called Wellbutrin, to people with sex problems, a company spokeswoman said Tuesday.

Burroughs Wellcome developed the drug over the past 10 years as a treatment for people who suffer from severe clinical depression. The federal Food and Drug Administration approved its sale for that purpose in December 1985.

But the drug was pulled off the shelf two months later after a study showed that four of 50 patients who took the drug had suffered seizures. Since then, Burroughs Wellcome has been talking with the FDA about possibly marketing Wellbutrin again as a treatment for depression in patients who aren't helped by other drugs.

Other researchers are reporting that studies showed that the drug helped more than half of the patients who received it as treatment for sexual dysfunction.

Sanford

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The United States should spend more money on military personnel and proven conventional weapons than on high-priced weapons that provide questionable security, Sen. Terry Sanford says.

"When I look at the tremendous national value of the 40,000 soldiers here at Fort Bragg, I regret the recent tendency to measure our defense capabilities primarily by dollars spent or by projected purchases of sophisticated weaponry," Sanford told soldiers and civilians this week.

"If we can emphasize only one thing to improve our national security, we need to recruit able men and women, train them well, pay them well and equip them with weapons that work," he said.

Workers

LEXINGTON (AP) — More than half of the Davidson County ambulance workers have joined a union because of what they claim are unfair vacation rules set by the county.

Several of the 29 ambulance workers who joined the International Association of Fire Fighters met Tuesday night with officials of the union. About 40 workers are in the ambulance service.

Because they are employees of a local government, they need only join the union rather than vote to bring in a union.

Phil J. Thomas, the vice president of the state branch of the union, said the Davidson County workers are the first in the state to join any union.

Coretta Scott King Backs Holiday Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Coretta Scott King has asked Gov. Jim Martin to ignore the results of a survey in which state employees are being asked which state holiday they prefer to give up in exchange for one honoring her husband's birthday.

Mrs. King and several Raleigh residents met with Martin Tuesday during a daylong trip to Raleigh to recognize recent moves by the state and the city to establish holidays honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

"Our first request was for him to not release any information pertaining to the poll" of state workers, said Bruce Lightner, co-chairman of the local Martin Luther King Celebration Committee and one of those meeting with Martin and Mrs. King.

"We asked him how the process could be validated," Lightner said. "Our concern is there may be a few zealous department heads, or whoever, who will take one memo that reflects how they feel and (make) 200 or 300 copies."

The General Assembly voted March 24 to make King's birthday a paid holiday for state workers. The law requires the State Personnel Commission to decide which existing holiday the King holiday will replace.

Critics accused the Martin administration of trying to stir hostility toward the holiday by distributing the survey, but Martin has said state workers have a right to make their views known.

"We want people to remember, to celebrate, but more important, to act," Mrs. King said earlier Tuesday during a visit to the Legislature.

Mrs. King, who was invited to Raleigh by the Martin Luther King Celebration Committee, drew standing ovations when she appeared in the House and Senate galleries.

Her schedule had called for her to address both chambers, but the speech did not materialize. Spokesmen for Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey said no one had requested permission for her to speak.

Mrs. King did address the Raleigh City Council, which voted in March to honor King's birthday with a paid holiday for city employees.

Since the days of the Indians, tobacco has been a major crop for the Pitt County area. However, it was not until 1891 that the Greenville tobacco market opened with the completion of the first of several local tobacco warehouses.

Senate Rapidly Advances Bill Protecting Shareholders

RALEIGH (AP) — Late opposition to a fast-moving bill to insulate shareholders in North Carolina corporations from hostile takeover bids appeared unlikely to derail enactment.

The state Senate voted 40-7 Tuesday to tentatively approve the House-passed bill and a final vote was scheduled for today.

Most of the objections to the bill sprang from its rapid movement through the Legislature and fears that it might penalize the very businesses it is designed to help.

"If we send out signals ... that we are a body that will take and pass a bill, no matter how well intentioned, in a week or less when serious questions about the bill itself have been raised, we're giving the wrong message to corporations that we might want to attract here," said Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg. "We may be giving the wrong message to corporations that already are here and might, with this type of legislation, choose to locate elsewhere."

Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, said his bill took the best parts of similar laws in 14 states and would keep corporate raiders from acquiring companies and liquidating their assets without paying stockholders a fair price for their shares. It also would discourage corporations from leaving the state and might bring more businesses to the state, he said.

"These unfair hostile takeovers are primarily unfair first to the shareholders, and then they are unfair to the workers who lose their jobs and they're particularly unfair to the communities who lose lots of businesses and corporations," Soles said.

But Cobb read a statement by Russell Robinson, chairman of the North Carolina State Bar Association, saying enactment of the bill "... would greatly damage North Carolina's reputation as a state with a favorable business climate."

"Delaware, South Carolina, and other states who want companies to incorporate there take care that their corporate laws are clear and consistent and do not impose hidden traps for legitimate business transactions," the statement said.

Sen. Jim Ezzell, D-Nash, also had questions about the bill, pushed by a group of lobbyists led by former Gov. Jim Hunt. He objected to a provision that said a would-be raider with 20 percent of the stock would need 95 percent approval by shareholders to complete a takeover.

"I'm not really sure what it does do," Ezzell said. "What it looks to me like is that ... it's a bill to protect management of corporations that are based in North Carolina."

Soles argued against spending more time on the bill.

IRS Resists Proposal To Shift Burden Of Proof On Proving Return Wrong

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a country where "innocent until proven guilty" is a basic right, the Internal Revenue Service is resisting a bill that would shift to the IRS the burden of proving that a tax return is incorrect.

"I don't think it's (a question of) guilty until proven innocent," IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs says in drawing a contrast between civil tax law, which places the burden of proof on the taxpayer, and criminal law, which requires the government to prove its case.

Since the taxpayer has access to all the information to show whether a return is correct, Gibbs said, "the burden is on the taxpayer to show he's reported all income and is entitled to deductions and credits claimed."

The commissioner told a Senate Finance subcommittee Tuesday that shifting the burden of proof to the IRS would result in a system that is more intrusive than existing law.

The provision shifting the burden of proof is one of several in a measure, called the "taxpayers' bill of rights," aimed at curbing the powers of the IRS. The measure, which is being considered by the subcommittee, grows out of years of complaints that some IRS employees have trampled taxpayers' rights.

"The question before us here today is what can we do to protect the rights of our citizens without handicapping the tax-collection system," said Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., subcommittee chairman and a sponsor of the bill. "If we find that it is impossible under the existing procedures to preserve the basic due-process right of taxpayers, then Congress is obliged to make reforms."

Since the panel's opening hearing on the bill April 10, Pryor said, he has received more than 400 letters, most of them telling "horror stories" about alleged abuses by the IRS.

Gibbs acknowledged that some of the 100,000 IRS employees occasionally have been guilty of excesses, but added, "By and large, we are talking about a very small minority ... in a tax system that for all its faults is recognized as best in the world."

The commissioner told the subcommittee that several parts of the "taxpayers' bill of rights" are not necessary, but he pledged to work with Congress to build up confidence in the IRS. "We must increase the quality at the IRS and we are committed to doing that," Gibbs said.

He promised to strive for a change in attitude among IRS employees so that taxpayers are viewed as customers who deserve "to be treated fairly, competently, professionally and timely." The ideal employee, he said, will be able "to distinguish between somebody trying to pay a fair share and those who don't."

Gibbs said the IRS firmly believes in safeguarding taxpayers' rights.

"Somehow or other, I don't think that philosophy is getting out there" to IRS employees in the field, Pryor said. "We want to enact your philosophy into law."

Greenville's first public library was established in 1904.

Preservationists Seek Rules To Save Coastal Shipwrecks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Old, abandoned shipwrecks, prized by historians as an underwater "window to the past," are being left in ruins by profiteering salvage companies and treasure hunters operating in U.S. territorial waters, preservationists say.

"Historic shipwrecks are, without doubt, the single most endangered category of historic resources in our nation today," said J. Jackson Walter, president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

"As a nation, we would not tolerate a commercial enterprise that bulldozed Gettysburg and then dumped the remains through a sifting machine to recover any valuable objects," he said.

"Yet this is exactly what current law allows treasure hunters to do to our nation's maritime legacy," Walter told a House hearing Tuesday.

Walter joined the National Park Service, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and state officials from Florida, South Carolina and New Jersey in urging Congress to pass legislation giving the federal government authority over abandoned shipwrecks lying within the 200-mile limits of U.S. waters.

The bill, sponsored chiefly by Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., would give states legal title to all shipwrecks within their three-mile coastal waters, and authority to manage them as archeological sites.

Without such legislation, a House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee was told, salvage operators and treasure hunters can continue to claim sole ownership of their sunken discoveries under the finders-keepers principle of existing federal law.

The subcommittee staff estimates that under Bennett's bill, the states would stand to gain clear title to between 10 percent and 15 percent of the more than 50,000 shipwrecks in their coastal waters. Between 2,500 and 5,000 of the wrecks are believed to be historically important.

Although the USS Monitor, the sunken Civil War ironclad, has been successfully preserved, Walter said, other historic shipwrecks have suffered major damage.

He cited the USS Cairo, a Civil War gunboat that was lifted from the Yazoo River near Vicksburg, Miss., by salvage operators using cables that severely damaged the ship. Its contents were dumped onto the river bottom and the remains of its hull sat unconserved for years, he said.

"The nation's ability to study this window to the past was lost forever," Walter said.

He also mentioned the Alvin Clark, a 19th century schooner that was raised in 1969 and still sits rotting in Menominee, Mich., for lack of a conservation plan.

More recently, he said, treasure hunters mutilated the HMS Debraak, an English military vessel that sank off Delaware in 1797. Improperly used cables ripped open the hull and dumped much of the ship's contents and interior on the sea floor, where a clamshell bucket was used to put the vessel's remains into a highway construction rock sorter to sift for treasure.

"Imagine someone trying to sell chunks off Plymouth Rock," Bennett told the panel. "Of course this could not happen, but it is the type of thing we leave our historic shipwrecks open to."

Shuttle Will Be Delayed By Additional Testing

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The first post-Challenger space shuttle flight will be delayed several weeks to conduct two tests that are partly intended to build confidence among members of the launch crew, officials say.

NASA had set Feb. 18, 1988, as a target for resuming flights, but the agency said Tuesday it is reassessing the date because of the added tests and other factors. Some officials believe the launch could slip several months, to as late as September 1988.

A new launch date will be announced in a few weeks, after the assessment has been completed.

The new tests are a "wet" countdown test, in which shuttle Discovery's large fuel tank will be filled with liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, and a flight readiness firing, in which the three main engines will be ignited for 20 seconds while Discovery is locked on the launch pad.

The three remaining shuttles have been grounded since the January 1986 Challenger explosion that killed the seven crew members.

"The tests will definitely affect our launch date by a number of weeks," Arnold Aldrich, director of the shuttle program, told the opening session of the 24th Space Congress here Tuesday.

Aldrich told a news conference later that the two tests would delay the launch until at least April 1. But he acknowledged the flight could be much later.

An internal document at the Kennedy Space Center here looks to a September 1988 flight, with engineers contending there is too much work to do to make an earlier date. But Aldrich said, "I think we'll do better than September."

Initial tests of the redesigned solid-fuel booster rocket are several months behind schedule, and modifications to the main engines, brakes, landing gear and other systems are lagging. A faulty booster rocket allowed flame to escape and trigger the Challenger explosion.

Most NASA officials have said for some time that Feb. 18 was unrealistic, so Tuesday's announcement was no surprise.

"It's vital that we have a schedule we can work toward as an integrated team," Aldrich said. "And our schedules are based on the best assessment of what is realistic at a given time."

He said the countdown and firing tests "not only will demonstrate changes we are making to the launch vehicle and ground equipment, but it also will be a good confidence-builder for the launch crew after standing down for more than two years."

The tests probably will be conducted six to eight weeks before the next flight, he said. Discovery and a five-man crew will fly that mission, which will deploy a tracking and data relay satellite.

Aldrich said the countdown test will be done first, followed two to three days later by the firing. Only the three liquid-fuel engines will be ignited in the second exercise. The solid-fuel booster rockets can't be fired in such a test because once ignited, there is no way to shut them down.

USDA Proposal Would Ban Foreign Workers In Most U.S. Farm Jobs

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign workers would be allowed to harvest wheat and corn but prohibited from working in cotton and soybean fields or helping with the milking under rules proposed by the Agriculture Department.

The proposal, announced Tuesday, involves definitions of fruits, vegetables and other perishable commodities that will be used to carry out the Immigration Reform Act passed by Congress last year.

Officials said the rules would help determine eligibility for temporary legal status of alien workers involved in seasonal agricultural jobs in the United States.

The proposal, which is open three weeks for public comment, is expected to attract a wave of protests from some agricultural interests that would be barred from hiring foreign workers, mainly migrants or temporary help from Mexico.

Al French, a USDA farm labor specialist, said the proposed regulations would prevent most farmers from employing alien workers. When grain producers are counted, about 78 percent of the farms that hire workers would be barred from employing foreigners.

The 1982 Census showed that about 850,000 farms had hired workers, either full or part time, he said. But those included all hired workers, not just aliens.

On the other hand, all plant crops grown for human consumption would be approved for the alien work force, French said in an interview. Corn is a commodity that is expected to stir controversy because it is mostly a livestock feed in the United States, he said. However, much of the grain is exported to countries where corn is important as a food grain.

New federal regulations, including the definitions, are being drafted and will begin to take effect next month. A general amnesty is provided for aliens who can prove continuous U.S. residency since Jan. 1, 1982.

The proposed rule will be open for public comment until May 13. Comments can be sent to Al French, Acting Special Assistant for Labor Affairs, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Economics, Room 227E, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. The telephone number is 202-447-4737.

Federal Prosecutors Accuse LaRouche Of Siphoning Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal prosecutors are accusing political extremist Lyndon LaRouche of siphoning millions of dollars for his personal use from three corporations which the government is trying to force into involuntary bankruptcy.

The Justice Department, in documents released Tuesday, also says the fringe presidential candidate's complex web of organizations is on the verge of financial ruin and "is attempting to liquidate substantial real estate holdings."

FBI agents and federal marshals seized three principal corporations run from LaRouche's headquarters in Leesburg, Va., on Tuesday after obtaining a federal bankruptcy court order appointing interim trustees to take control of the companies. Offices in Quincy, Mass., Washington, D.C., Houston, and Palisades Park, N.J. also were seized.

At the same time, the government filed petitions to have the companies placed into permanent forced bankruptcy to collect part of the more than $21 million in fines facing LaRouche-related groups.

The companies, they charged, refused to pay debts while spending money on luxuries for LaRouche.

Author Defines Ways To Vary Campus Views

By ANN JAPENGA

LOS ANGELES — When Helen Lefkowitz Horowitz was elected Tree Day Mistress at Wellesley in 1960 — an honor equivalent to being crowned homecoming queen — she became an automatic insider on campus.

But within months after her ascendancy she traded her preppy attire for black turtle-necks.

Horowitz, now a professor of history at University of Southern California, had bowed out of insider life to become an outsider, someone who cared more about finding herself than garnering titles.

Given a choice between Tree Day Mistress and self-realization today, Horowitz fears that most of her students at USC would choose the title — it would look better on their resumes.

It's this attitude of "grim professionalism" on campus — students' single-minded devotion to getting good grades and good jobs — that has bothered the 45-year-old professor in recent years. To understand the changes in campus attitudes, Horowitz undertook an exhaustive historical search, thumbing back over 200 years of campus culture in the form of autobiographies, fiction, interviews and scholarly works.

Horowitz's findings will appear in her book, "Campus Life: Undergraduate Cultures From the End of the Eighteenth Century to the Present," to be released next month by Alfred A. Knopf.

Throughout history, Horowitz found, students have sorted themselves into minicultures. As early as the late 18th century, there were two distinct societies on campus, the College Man and the Outsiders.

The College Man (and, beginning in the late 19th century, College Woman), as Horowitz labels them, devalued intellectual achievement, felt themselves at war with the faculty, and believed it acceptable to cheat to get good grades. College Men revere frivolity and rowdiness and look at academics as a distasteful necessity.

This hedonistic tradition, which would later become the fraternity way of life, has its roots in long-ago student revolts against faculty tyranny. Horowitz reports that in 1800, College Men at Princeton shot pistols and rolled barrels filled with stones through the corridors of Nassau Hall to protest disciplinary actions against students.

In reaction against the College Man strain came the original Outsiders.

To the College Man, they were pious, fuddy-duddy "grinds" who lacked charm and seemed to be forever buried in a book. Where the College Men were jolly and comradely, the Outsiders were seen as grim, studious loners.

The Outsiders were the group Horowitz found liberally represented in autobiographies. She knew she was on to one whenever she read lines like: "I didn't have time for college pranks," "I was an immigrant and had to study hard," or, "I cared so much about chemistry I couldn't be bothered with college life."

The first Outsiders were students preparing for the ministry. The next wave of Outsiders came from the ranks of the poor, immigrants, Jews and the earliest college women. They respected learning — they needed to learn to improve their lot. And they regarded professors as allies, not adversaries.

In the book, Horowitz quotes a writer, Willie Morris, who had an Outsider's reaction to the College Man tradition he found at the University of Texas in the 1950s: "All of a sudden I got mad — probably the maddest I had ever been in my whole life — at homesickness, at blond majorettes, at gat-toothed Dallas girls, at fraternities, at twangy accents, at my own helpless condition. 'I'm better than this sorry place,' I said to myself."

In the early 1900s a new strain of campus society emerged — the Rebels. Like the Outsiders, the Rebels wanted to learn, but they were not as docile as the obedient Outsiders. They constantly questioned the university's means of imparting knowledge. And they demanded control of the school paper and school politics. During the '60s and early '70s, this group reigned on the campuses.

It was in the 1970s that the new generation of grade-grubbers evolved, according to Horowitz. She calls them the New Outsiders.

College days for the New Outsider may be marked by loneliness, stress-related ailments and even suicidal thoughts. "It's really rough," said Horowitz, who has a son, Ben, who is a sophomore in high school and a daughter, Sarah, in the third grade. Her husband, Daniel, teaches American history at Scripps College in Claremont, 35 miles east of Los Angeles.

The New Outsider typically refuses to experiment for fear of losing his or her place on the highway to success. "These students enter college predetermining the track they'll take and don't let themselves get diverted by what matters to them," Horowitz said.

An example of such a student is the premed major who confided in Horowitz that she adores English literature and composes poetry between classes, but who said she can't allow herself to deviate from her goals by studying English.

The values that come across clearly in "Campus Life" are Horowitz's own. In her opinion, college is a place where you're supposed to experience life. And if, in the excitement of that experience, your grades drop for a term, or if you take a temporary detour that leads nowhere — so what? That's what this time is for.

"College did for me what I want it to do for others," Horowitz said. "I think college students make a terrible mistake when they chose to limit themselves to a small world."

Horowitz is unabashed about taking such an opinionated stance in a historical work. She comes out even more boldly against the College Man tradition, to the point of suggesting that fraternities should be abolished.

She argues that fraternities are "antithetical to learning" and that they tend to encourage drunkenness, violence and sexual assault.

The New Outsiders share some of the traits of the Fraternity tradition Horowitz so dislikes. They do not really value learning. They may not be as arrogant or unruly as the College Men, and they are less hostile to professors. But still Horowitz hopes the New Outsiders are just a passing phase.

What's next, then? Here and there on the campuses, a category of quiet rebels is beginning to appear, Horowitz said. Unlike the earlier rebels, they tend not to organize. They go their own ways, think their own thoughts, remain open to happenstance, and care about the intellectual life.

They may dress the same as the success-driven New Outsiders, but they answer to something beyond paychecks. They would take personal revelation over the Tree Day Mistress crown any day.

Horowitz ends her book with an homage to these new rebels: "May their numbers and strength increase."

A whole sirloin tip, weighing nine to 12 pounds, is a good buy. Have it cut into roasts, cubes for kabobs, and steaks.

Keep In Step With Knitted Stripes

Pat's Pointers
Pat Trexler

Even the beginner can create a knitting success story with this easy-fitting pullover. Contrasting stripes and textured ridges combine to give tremendous eye-appeal, with two main colors of cotton-linen blend yarn accented by a third color stripe on the sleeves and neckline.

To clean, straight lines, minimal shaping and an easy-to-learn pattern stitch add up to an exciting look, while buttons — cleverly hooked by loops at the shoulders — top off a design guaranteed to hold your interest from start to finish!

Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 36, 38 and 40 inches respectively. The stitch gauge is 4 inches to the inch.

To obtain directions for knitting the Simple Stripes sweater, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-041987 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-041987 by sending a check or money order for $24.95 for all sizes to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and back and white yarn with red accents.

Many of you may wonder how easy a needlecraft project has to be for me to label it "beginner-easy." I even suffer a credibility gap with my friends when I use that phrase. "Maybe for you, but not for me," they will sometimes say.

I look very carefully at all aspects of a pattern before I recommend it to beginners. Some of my reasoning may surprise you, though. For one thing, I like to see a touch of pattern stitchery incorporated in the design.

Basic stockinette stitch needs to have a very even tension and be mistake-free to avoid an amateurish look. These are two very difficult things for the beginner to achieve.

A simple-to-follow pattern stitch that adds a texture of some sort serves as a good cover-up for whatever degree of unevenness might appear in early efforts. Even the use of a striped and/or textured yarn will fool the eye and hide minor mistakes or tension variations.

For the inexperienced knitter, I like to use a pattern stitch that does not require extra concentration on every row. An occasional pattern row between several rows of simple knits and purls accomplishes the purpose very well.

Once I am sure that a pattern stitch can be easily mastered, I look at the amount of shaping required. Frequent increases, decreases, mid-row binding off or casting on can complicate matters for someone just getting used to handling needles and yarn, so the simpler the shaping the better.

The pattern stitch used in today's featured design is a good example of one I think most beginners can quickly master. If you already know how to cast on, knit, purl and bind off, pick up some needles and scrap yarn and try it.

Cast on any uneven number of stitches. For the sample swatch, 21 stitches is a good number. For the first four rows, work in garter stitch, in which you knit all stitches on every row. After this garter stitch border, begin the pattern stitch.

Row 1: Knit the first stitch. After this, make a yarnover, then knit the next stitch. Repeat the last two steps all across the row. Row 2: Knit every knit stitch and drop all yarnovers.

BLEND YARN — Cotton-linen blend yarn is a perfect choice for this cool, clean striped sweater.

Explanation: If you are just learning to knit, you might not know what I mean by "yarnover." This is a term for laying an extra strand of yarn over the needle. (This will appear as "yo" in knitting abbreviations.)

When you are told to yarnover before a knit stitch, you simply bring the yarn to the front of your work as you would do if you were going to purl the next stitch. However, you do not purl the next stitch; you knit it even though the yarn is the "wrong" position for knitting. This automatically lays an extra strand across the needle.

If you were to knit these extra strands on the following row, you would be increasing one stitch for every yarnover made. In this pattern, however, you are told to drop the yarnovers. So, on the following row, knit the first stitch and then let the extra strand that follows it drop off the left needle. Continue across the row in this way, knitting each knit stitch and dropping each yarnover.

Back to the pattern stitch: Next work 4 rows of stockinette stitch (knit all stitches on every right-side row and purl on every wrong-side row). When you have completed the 6 rows, you begin again at Row 1 and continue to repeat the 6 rows until the desired length is reached.

Peace And Harmony Fill Years

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

Members of the Inter Se Book Club say they celebrated 50 years of peace, harmony and good learning when the group held its anniversary luncheon Tuesday at the Greenville Country Club.

In the beginning, club sponsors were Mrs. Judson Blount and Mrs. Will Hooker. The initial meeting was held March 11, 1937, at the home of Mrs. Hooker with 12 charter members. "Mrs. Hooker and Mrs. Blount told us we needed a constitution and committees. We did what they said as much as possible," said Mrs. Jack Edwards, who gave highlights of the 50 years.

"The first meeting was held March 31 and each member was asked for a name suggestion. We selected Inter Se, which means among ourselves in Latin," said Mrs. Edwards.

"We started out in an ambitious way as girls and remained ambitious for the first 25 years. By then we were ladies and then decided to relax during the next 25 years. We did exactly like we wanted to and had a glorious time," said Mrs. Edwards.

The women are still active, meeting twice a month and have two luncheons a year.

"Our first topic 50 years ago was 'Religions of the World.' The hostess would write a paper and present the program. We had very serious topics during the first years and then we started having some outside speakers," said Mrs. Wyatt Brown.

"We grew up together — we were young — building houses and having children," said Mrs. Brown.

Mrs. Plato Evans joined the group several years later. "The members have good fellowship with each other and we read good books. At one time, we had a book auction and we also contributed our books to the library. One particular party I remember was a progressive dinner with our husbands which was fun," she said.

"It started to snow just as members started to arrive," said Mrs. Brown.

"This has been a wonderful occasion and a special celebration for the members of Inter Se — one we've eagerly anticipated. How well I remember coming into the club and the warm welcome I received. It has truly been a rewarding experience," said Mrs. C.W. Harvey Jr.

"This club consists of fine, genteel ladies and it is exemplified in all its endeavors," said Virginia Basnight.

"My funniest experience was just this year. I made a suggestion in a format change to be considered and was told 'They would take up year after next.' The officers are very organized," said Mrs. Basnight.

Former members attending the luncheon were Mrs. Irby Jackson, Mrs. J.W. Benson, Mrs. Robert Shoffner, Louise Bourne and Mrs. Marvin Blount.

"I remember studying India and learning so much. I am pleased you thought about doing this and including us," said Mrs. Shoffner.

"Don't take for granted, your friendships here. I am so happy to be here today," said Mrs. Jackson.

Charter members of the club were Mrs. Blount, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. L.M. Buchanan, Mrs. R.L. Coleman, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. David Evans, Mrs.

Frank Kohler, Mrs. Howard Keeler, Mrs. Sam Northrop, Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. A.B. Stallworth, Mrs. Joseph Taft and Mrs. W.H. Taft.

Entertainment was provided by Dr. Thomas C. Irons, associate professor of pediatrics, East Carolina University School of Medicine. He played the guitar and sang several selections.

"This is a very special time with very special people," said Dr. Malene Irons, club president, in giving the welcome.

Secretaries Pray To Make It Through Their Day

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A word about Secretaries' Day: We hear about it a month in advance through ads for cards, candies, flowers, restaurants, etc. I try to ignore it until it arrives, then I dread that day when attention is showered on the secretary.

Why the secretary? Since the birth of this day, I've been dined, flowered, candied and carded — and I must say embarrassed to death.

How about spreading the glory? Let's make it National Employees Day. Pick a day to send all employees a card, give them a flower or bring in a treat — even a warm handshake for a job well done. It would mean so much. — JUST A SECRETARY IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR ABBY: I hate National Secretaries' Day. My boss feels obligated to take me to lunch, and I feel obligated to go. He's a nice man, but all he talks about is himself. How boring! I'm sure there are secretaries who would be thrilled to go to lunch with their bosses, but I'm not one of them. — GIRL FRIDAY IN FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: Last year, I received a corsage — addressed to the secretary of the president of this company. It must have been a promotion dreamed up by a florist. Never mind that I am a male secretary. The corsage was beautiful — and I wore it! — MOREY IN MANHATTAN

DEAR ABBY: Please print this message to my boss on National Secretaries' Day, but don't use my real name or town: If you want to show me how much you appreciate me, skip the lunch and flowers and give me a raise. — MONEY TALKS IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR ABBY: I am hosting a retirement party for a woman who has been my devoted secretary for 34 years. I heard that you published a prayer for secretaries several years ago. I would like to read it at the dinner.

I hope you can find it. Thanking you in advance, I am ... IN OIL IN MIDLAND, TEXAS

DEAR IN: You are also "in luck." Here it is:

PRAYER FOR SECRETARIES
"Dear Lord, help me to do my work well; to have the memory of an elephant, the patience of a saint and the hide of a rhinoceros. And when the boss asks me to stay late to type a three-page letter that absolutely must go out today, and he doesn't get around to signing it until tomorrow, please help me to keep my mouth shut.

"Dear Lord, never let me lose patience, even when the boss has me searching the files for hours for something that is later discovered on his desk!

"Help me to have the knowledge of a genius, although my education is limited to high school and secretarial training.

"Help me to understand and carry out all instructions without any explanation.

"Let me always know exactly where my boss is and when he will be back, even though he never tells me when he leaves.

"And Lord, when the year ends, please give me the foresight not to throw out records that will be asked for in a few days, even though I was told emphatically, 'Destroy these — they are cluttering up the place!' Amen."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, leveling off after the sharp rise in blue chip issues Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped 2.13 to 2,334.94 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers and losers were evenly balanced in the overall tally on the New York Stock Exchange, with 554 up, 555 down and 424 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 30.57 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

This morning the Commerce Department reported that new factory orders for durable goods increased 3.4 percent. However, most of the gain came in the volatile category of military orders.

Among actively traded blue chips, Sears Roebuck rose 1/8 to 54 and General Motors was up 1/4 at 89 1/2, but General Electric dropped 1/2 to 105 1/2 and American Express lost 1/2 to 69 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .20 to 165.30. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .03 at 328.99.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 66.47 points to 2,337.07, for its second-biggest gain ever. The record rise was 69.89 points on April 3.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE, with 979 up, 631 down and 352 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 191.34 million shares, compared with 139.07 million shares in the previous session.

conditions, according to Tysinger, who said the river reached 18.2 feet in elevation at the bridge Tuesday afternoon.

"The river has probably risen 5 to 6 feet since Friday," he said. "We've got some real indications based on past history and the experience of the water plant operator that they expect the crest to be somewhat higher than (where the weather service predicted.) We're expecting somewhere around 19."

The Tar River peaked at 18.6 feet at the bridge on Jan. 27 when some other flooding occurred, Tysinger said.

"We're anticipating this thing to get up roughly a foot higher than it was January 27," he said. "On the Tar River that makes a big difference. The flood plain is extremely wide out there so just a matter of inches in the water surface change can affect a lot of people in different areas."

Rose Slips Past Conley In Eighth Inning, 6-4, To Win Tourney Crown

By TOM MORRIS

Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — After two straight strikeouts, Rose's Jason Galloway said he felt he was due. The third baseman then hit an RBI single in the eighth inning that drove home the winning run and gave Rose a 6-4 victory over cross-county rival D.H. Conley in the Pitt County baseball Tournament Wednesday.

"I knew he was going to throw me some curve balls," Galloway said. "He struck me out the second and third times up so I figured I would rip one."

Galloway's hit scored Hunter Clark and broke a 4-4 tie in the top of the eighth. Clark had opened the extra inning with a reach on an error on the second baseman.

Axel Smith, named the tourney MVP, followed with a single to put men at first and second. A wild pitch advanced both batters. Galloway then came up and hit the game winner.

Curtis Perkins, who up to that point had gone 0-4, then lashed a RBI single to score Smith and give the Rampants a two-run bulge.

"At the end we got the timely hits," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent. "Jason came through again. He's been doing it all year."

The Vikings still had a chance to tie or win the game in the bottom of the eighth but Tom Moye, facing the bottom of the Conley batting order, sandwiched two strikeouts around a ground out to end the game.

"I figured one run would probably win it," said Viking coach Allan Wilson. "They hit the ball at the right time."

Moye took the win, his fifth against no losses this year, recording 10 strikeouts and three walks. Bronswell Patrick took the loss but recorded 11 strikeouts and seven walks.

Conley took the early lead, pushing across a run in the second inning.

Sherwood Wilder opened with a double and went to third on a single by Kervin Vines. Jim Faulkner followed with another single to score Wilder.

Rose rallied to tie it in the next inning when Smith reached on an error, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and came home on Galloway's single.

The Vikings came back to score three runs in the bottom of the third to take a 4-1 lead.

Brian Bullock opened with a reach on an error and went to second on Patrick's single. Brian Joyner walked to load the bases, followed by Wilder reaching on a fielder's choice that put out Bullock.

After a strikeout, Faulkner knocked a shot to the shortstop who misplayed the ball. The resulting error allowed all three runners to score.

"I felt like Tom Moye really did a good job after the third inning," Vincent said. "Tom really settled down."

Moye allowed only two more hits over the final five innings and got some help from his teammates who tied the game up with three runs in the fifth inning.

With one out, Robbie McDonald singled, followed by Moye reaching on a walk. McDonald went to third on a wild pitch and came home on an error that allowed Greg Jones to reach.

Scott Davis followed with another walk before Smith then singled into the gap between second and third to score courtesy runner Dallas McPherson and Jones.

Both teams were scoreless over the final two innings before the Rampants pushed across the runs they needed in the eighth.

The game continued the strong rivalry that wouldn't exist if not for the Easter Tournament.

"It's the only time we play Rose," Wilson said. "There's a little bit of a county rivalry. Rose has been successful, we've been successful the last few years. There are no hard feelings. We showed we could play with them."

Vincent said that while there is a strong rivalry, the two teams play hard but clean.

"It's a good, aggressive rivalry, the way baseball is supposed to be played," he added.

Galloway echoed his coach's sentiments.

"I'd say it is a pretty big rivalry," he said. "I knew it was going to be a close one. They beat us down here last year (in the tournament semifinals). The whole team wanted it."

Smith and Galloway collected two hits and two RBI apiece to lead the Rampants. Patrick and Faulkner had two hits apiece to lead Conley.

Rose improves to 12-1 while Conley falls to 10-2.

Milwaukee Feels Streak Shows It Can Challenge

CHICAGO (AP) — No matter what happens from now on, the Milwaukee Brewers will always have their 13-game season-opening winning streak.

The Brewers didn't expect it to last forever, and it didn't, ending Tuesday night with a 7-1 loss to the Chicago White Sox. But the Brewers think the streak shows they're won't be the also-rans they were expected to be.

As proof, they point to the way games were won — a no-hitter, a pair of eight-run innings, two victories by a rookie pitcher, two game-winning hits by a rookie catcher and a five-run, two-homer ninth inning.

"That's the great part of this thing," veteran center fielder Robin Yount said. "You just can't point a finger at one guy. We're finding a different way to win games, with different people doing it every time."

Yount, a 14-year veteran, drove in the game-winner in the record-tying 13th straight victory, a 6-4 defeat of the White Sox on Monday.

"We've had leads, we've had leads and lost them and came back, we've been behind," Yount said. "We've had every kind of game you can imagine."

The Brewers, picked by many for a sixth- or seventh-place finish in the American League East, swept the defending AL champion Boston Red Sox in their opening three games. Boston's top three pitchers, Roger Clemens, Dennis Boyd and Bruce Hurst, didn't pitch for a variety of reasons.

"Instead of seeing their 1-2-3 guys, we saw 4-5-6," Brewers manager Tom Trebelhorn said, although he added that the streak was "no fluke."

The Brewers won the opener 5-1 behind seven shutout innings from ace Ted Higuera and then nipped the Red Sox 3-2 in the second game as rookie Chuck Crim got his first big-league victory in relief.

Milwaukee won the final game 12-11 after trailing 4-0 and then blowing an 11-6 lead. Rookie catcher B.J. Surhoff hit his first major-league homer to win the game in the eighth.

Then it was on to Texas where the Brewers put together eight-run innings in each of the first two games in 11-8 and 8-6 victories.

In the third game of the series, Surhoff's two-run single in the 12th drove in the go-ahead run. The Brewers had trailed 2-1 entering the eighth but Paul Molitor tied it with a homer. Milwaukee then squandered a 5-2 lead in the 11th before Surhoff's two-out hit provided a 7-5 victory.

Cecil Cooper came off the disabled list at the start of the Brewers' next series, in Baltimore. He drove in two runs, including the game-winner, with two sacrifice flies in a 6-3 win. The next night the Brewers hit five homers in a 7-4 win.

With eight straight victories, the Brewers suddenly had the attention of all of baseball. Juan Nieves ensured that it didn't waiver by pitching the first no-hitter in the club's history.

The no-hitter was completed when Yount made a diving catch of Eddie Murray's liner to end the 7-0 victory.

Milwaukee General Manager Harry Dalton, who had witnessed five no-hitters while with Baltimore and California, said, "I've never seen one end on such a dramatic play. And I've never seen one thrown by someone so young." Nieves is 22.

Returning home, the Brewers rallied three times to beat the hapless Rangers, who were on a nine-game losing streak.

They scored seven runs in the seventh inning of the opener in a 10-2 win and in the second game rallied from 2-0 for a 4-3 victory as Glenn Braggs drove in three runs and Rob Deer homered.

Sunday afternoon's game is the one the Brewers will remember the rest of the season, regardless of where the team finishes.

Down 4-1 headed into the ninth inning and with an 11-game winning streak — one away from the AL record — in jeopardy, the Brewers tied the game on Deer's three-run homer and won it on Dale Sveum's two-run shot three batters later.

"This one stands by itself, out of the context of the streak," Trebelhorn said after the game.

Trailing 4-3 at Chicago on Monday night, Molitor, off to one of his best starts ever, doubled home the tying run with two outs in the seventh and scored on Yount's blooper to right. Crim got his second victory and Dan Plesac his fifth save without giving up an earned run.

"Everybody's contributed," hitting coach Tony Muser said. "That's the sign of a good ball club, when the players can pick each other up."

Tom Trebelhorn said, although he added that the streak was "no fluke."

The Brewers won the opener 5-1 behind seven shutout innings from ace Ted Higuera and then nipped the Red Sox 3-2 in the second game as rookie Chuck Crim got his first big-league victory in relief.

Milwaukee won the final game 12-11 after trailing 4-0 and then blowing an 11-6 lead. Rookie catcher B.J. Surhoff hit his first major-league homer to win the game in the eighth.

Then it was on to Texas where the Brewers put together eight-run innings in each of the first two games in 11-8 and 8-6 victories.

In the third game of the series, Surhoff's two-run single in the 12th drove in the go-ahead run. The Brewers had trailed 2-1 entering the eighth but Paul Molitor tied it with a homer. Milwaukee then squandered a 5-2 lead in the 11th before Surhoff's two-out hit provided a 7-5 victory.

Cecil Cooper came off the disabled list at the start of the Brewers' next series, in Baltimore. He drove in two runs, including the game-winner, with two sacrifice flies in a 6-3 win. The next night the Brewers hit five homers in a 7-4 win.

With eight straight victories, the Brewers suddenly had the attention of all of baseball. Juan Nieves ensured that it didn't waiver by pitching the first no-hitter in the club's history.

The no-hitter was completed when Yount made a diving catch of Eddie Murray's liner to end the 7-0 victory.

Milwaukee General Manager Harry Dalton, who had witnessed five no-hitters while with Baltimore and California, said, "I've never seen one end on such a dramatic play. And I've never seen one thrown by someone so young." Nieves is 22.

Returning home, the Brewers rallied three times to beat the hapless Rangers, who were on a nine-game losing streak.

They scored seven runs in the seventh inning of the opener in a 10-2 win and in the second game rallied from 2-0 for a 4-3 victory as Glenn Braggs drove in three runs and Rob Deer homered.

Sunday afternoon's game is the one the Brewers will remember the rest of the season, regardless of where the team finishes.

Down 4-1 headed into the ninth inning and with an 11-game winning streak — one away from the AL record — in jeopardy, the Brewers tied the game on Deer's three-run homer and won it on Dale Sveum's two-run shot three batters later.

"This one stands by itself, out of the context of the streak," Trebelhorn said after the game.

Trailing 4-3 at Chicago on Monday night, Molitor, off to one of his best starts ever, doubled home the tying run with two outs in the seventh and scored on Yount's blooper to right. Crim got his second victory and Dan Plesac his fifth save without giving up an earned run.

"Everybody's contributed," hitting coach Tony Muser said. "That's the sign of a good ball club, when the players can pick each other up."

Charlotte To Get Last Word From NBA Today

NEW YORK (AP) — George Shinn was pleased when he was called "the Spud Webb of NBA expansion applicants."

Not only is the 5-foot-7 Shinn the same height as the NBA's smallest player, but he realized that he had to work harder than other potential franchisees to transform Charlotte, N.C., from a longshot to a favorite to become the league's next expansion franchise.

"We had to be a little bit better, so we went out and got a great lease, a few strong local owners and a strong season-ticket base to prove we were serious about making a strong bid for a team," Shinn said on the eve of today's Board of Governors meeting on expansion. "But when we went to Phoenix for the meetings last October, one newspaper said the only franchise we would get would have golden arches."

The 23-member board was expected to vote on an Expansion Committee recommendation that Charlotte be added to the league in 1988, Minneapolis in 1989 and a Florida city — either Orlando or Miami — in 1988 or 1989. The recommended entry fee is $32.5 million per team.

Shinn, who would become majority owner of the Charlotte franchise, negotiated a lease for the 23,500-seat Charlotte Coliseum, now under construction, in which he would have to pay the city only $1 per game for five years.

He also required a $250 escrow deposit for season tickets that will not bear interest for the ticket-holders. The deposit will be refundable only if the city fails to win a franchise.

Despite that restriction, season ticket sales jumped from 8,900 to 13,700 in the two weeks since the NBA Expansion Committee recommended on April 2 that Charlotte receive a team. That team has tentatively been named the Spirit.

But Shinn said he didn't expect the board to rubber-stamp the committee recommendation. Eighteen of the 23 owners must cast positive votes for expansion to be approved.

"It's my nature to be afraid that it won't work out," Shinn said Tuesday. "I'm a salesman and I've learned that until something's signed, it's not a deal. But we've come a long way. At one time there were 11 cities talking about applying for a franchise, and we were considered to be 11th. When it got down to seven cities, we were seventh and when it got down to four finalists, we were considered fourth."

The NBA was known to be worried about Charlotte's population of less than 400,000, but Shinn convinced the Expansion Committee that the 5.6 million people who lived within a 100-mile radius of the city provided a sufficient base.

"We're convinced it's a major-league city in an area that hasn't been given a chance to prove it," said Shinn, who would share ownership with Cy N. Bahakel, Rick Hendrick III and Felix Sabates. "And very few people realize that the closest ACC (Atlantic Coast Conference) school is a two-hour drive from Charlotte."

Minneapolis, which the committee recommended as a 1989 entry because of construction of a new arena, also was being cautious about its chances.

arena, also was being cautious about its chances.

"We're not taking anything for granted because when a group of 23 people gets together, anything can happen," said Bob Stein, attorney for prospective Minneapolis Timberwolves owners Harvey Ratner and Marv Wolfenson. "But short of taking it for granted ... they appointed a committee for a reason and that was to report back to the Board of Governors. You assume that will have some weight."

The committee suggested delaying until October a decision on which Florida city to add. But Miami Heat and Orlando Magic officials have lobbied aggressively since the committee's decision two weeks ago.

Jaguars Win; Chargers Fall

HOLLYWOOD — Farmville Central topped New Bern, 6-1 to take seventh place in the Pitt County Easter Tournament.

The Jaguars pushed across all the runs they would need in the third inning.

Brian Huber opened with a walk, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Kevin Huber then walked followed by a single by Mark Wooten that scored Brian Huber. Kevin Huber and Wooten then pulled off a double steal before both runners came home on Howard Collins' single.

Brian Huber went 2-3 to lead the Jaguars.

Craft New Vike Football Coach

HOLLYWOOD — Steve Craft, head football coach at North Johnston High School for the past seven years, has been named as the new head football coach at D.H. Conley High School.

Craft, 39, will replace Donnie Bunn, who resigned at the end of the 1986 campaign. Bunn, who served as Conley for three years, will enter private business at the end of the school year.

A 1969 graduate of East Carolina, Craft began his coaching career at Rosewood Junior High School near Goldsboro, serving as head coach for two seasons, posting a 10-3 record.

In 1971, he moved up to Rosewood High School as head coach, serving for the next nine years. His best year was in 1973 when his team went 11-2. His overall record at Rosewood High was 60-34.

In 1980, he moved to North Johnston, where he has coached since then. His best year there was in 1981 when his team went 7-3 in the 2-A Capital Area Conference. Last year's team went 3-7, and his overall record at North Johnston is 32-37-1.

His overall varsity coaching record is 92-71-1.

Craft also is the track coach at North Johnston. At Rosewood, he also served as athletic director for eight years and was head baseball coach for five years. At both schools, he taught in the healthy and physical education department.

Steve Craft

Craft is a member of the United Methodist Church, is an instructor in CPR, a merit badge counselor with the Boy Scouts, and an official in basketball and softball. He is a member of the North Carolina Coaches Association and the National Federation Interscholastic Coaches Association.

Conley's 1986 team went 2-8, with a 1-5 Coastal Conference record.

Houston Rallies In 9th To Win

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Houston Astros Manager Hal Lanier is a realist. "You don't come back very many times with that many base hits with two outs to win a game in the last inning," Lanier said after Houston scored four runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Atlanta Braves 7-6 Tuesday night.

Alan Ashby started the inning with a solo home run. Then after two were out, the fun began for the Astros.

Paul Assenmacher walked Bill Doran, bringing on reliever Gene Garber. Billy Hatcher, who extending his hitting streak to 14 games, singled Doran to third, from where he scored on a single by Phil Garner.

Glenn Davis singled in Hatcher and an intentional walk to Kevin Bass loaded the bases, setting the stage for Denny Walling's game-winning single.

"It was a great comeback. We don't give up," said Garner, who scored on Walling's hit "He (Garber) usually gets me out, but tonight I got ahead of him. It was a good pitch, but I waited on it."

Dale Murphy's solo homer and Glenn Hubbard's three-run double had helped give Atlanta a 6-3 lead going into the bottom of the ninth.

In other National League games, it was the New York Mets 9, Pittsburgh 6; the Chicago Cubs 5, St. Louis 4; San Diego 3, Cincinnati 2; and Los Angeles 11, San Francisco 8 in 10 innings.

Hatcher had two hits in the game, giving him nine straight games in which he has had two or more hits.

"The hits are just falling for me," Hatcher said. "It's nothing but amazing that they're just finding the holes."

All Hall doubled to lead off the Atlanta first and eventually scored on Gary Roenicke's sacrifice fly. Murphy then hit his third homer of the season.

After Houston cut the deficit to 2-1 in the second on Jose Cruz' double and Ashby's single, Atlanta increased its lead to 5-1 in the sixth on Hubbard's bases-loaded double.

Houston scored twice in the seventh when pinch-hitter Jim Pankovits singled and scored from center fielder Hall misplayed Doran's fly ball for a three-base error. Hatcher then singled home Doran.

The Braves added a run in the ninth on an error, setting the stage for Houston's final-inning heroics.

Padres 3, Reds 2
Garry Templeton's two-out single in the eighth scored Steve Garvey as San Diego edged Cincinnati. Rob Murphy, 2-1, gave up an infield single to Garvey with one out, then struck out Benito Santiago and walked Marvell Wynne before Templeton delivered the game-winning hit as the Padres snapped a four-game losing streak.

The victory wasn't very pretty, Padres Manager Larry Bowa, said, "but we'll take any win we can get at this point."

Lance McCullers, 2-1, pitched two shutout innings in relief for the victory.

Cincinnati right-hander Mario Soto made his first start after undergoing surgery to his right shoulder last August. Soto went six innings and left the game for a pinch-hitter with the Reds leading 2-1 in the seventh. He allowed just three hits, walked three and struck out two.

"It felt pretty good," said Soto, whose last victory came Aug. 15 against the Padres in Cincinnati.

"For the first time I have a good fastball. I believe I can throw it in any situation."

Dodgers 11, Giants 8
Mike Marshall was the night's final hero, hitting a game-winning home run in the 10th inning for Los Angeles. But he was in an apologetic mood later.

"My emotions got carried away," Marshall admitted, voicing regret for his actions while rounding the bases. "I apologize to Roger Craig for it. I regret I made those gestures. It was sheer emotion and frustration."

On the next pitch after Marshall's homer, loser Scott Garrelts sent batter Alex Trevino into the dirt with an inside fastball, bringing players from both teams out of their dugouts for a confrontation. Then fans tossed beer, ice and other things at the Dodgers as they returned to their dugout.

"Those fans are a disgrace to the USA. What gives them the right to throw things at ballplayers?" Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda asked. "They ruin it for all the good people (fans) up there in the stands."

Marshall's homer was the sixth of the wild game. The Dodgers broke San Francisco's three-game winning streak.

Mets 9, Pirates 6

Rafael Santana's three-run homer powered a six-run New York fourth inning and the Mets went on to defeat Pittsburgh and end a four-game losing streak.

After the Pirates narrowed the Mets' lead to 7-6 in the eighth inning, New York scored twice more in the

In the opening game of the final day of play, Williamston got all it needed in the first inning, scoring twice. Doug Manseau walked and scored on Tyrone Rodgers' triple. Guy Spruill then hit a sacrifice fly to score Rodgers.

The other run came in the second. James, in going the distance for Williamston, struck out 14 and walked two. The only hit he allowed was a single by Chris Edwards with none out in the seventh inning.

Earl Lee had two hits to lead Williamston.

In the championship game, St. Francis scored a single run in the first inning to take the lead, but Williamston came back with four runs in the top of the sixth inning for a 4-1 lead.

Then, in the bottom of the sixth, St. Francis rallied for four to regain the lead and pull out the win. Jim Maj led off and was hit by a pitch. Eric Karney singled and Sean Hennessy was walked, loading the bases. Tom Morowski reached on an error, scoring Maj, and Pete Piatasik doubled, driving in all three baserunners.

John Dantonio, Morowski and Piatasik each had two hits to lead the

Friendship Rips GCA

RALEIGH - Friendship Christian Academy romped to a 17-7 softball victory over Greenville Christian Tuesday.

GCA pushed into the initial lead with two runs in the top of the first, but Friendship came back with five in the bottom of the inning. GCA cut it back to 5-3 with one in the second, but saw Friendship score two more in its half of the frame.

Then, in the third, Friendship put the game on ice with five more runs. Christie Miller, Michelle Westberry and Dawn Westberry all walked, loading the bases. Walks to Christy Evans and Kellie Carter forced in two runs. Lisa Friend singled in the next two and a hit and an error of the bat of Kelly Ketter brought in Carter with the fifth run. That gave Friendship a 12-3 lead.

Friendship added five more in the fourth. GCA picked up two more in the fourth and three in the fifth.

Friend and Dawn Westberry each had two hits to lead Friendship. Kim Faulker, Myra Locklear and Erica Spain each had two hits for Greenville.

The Lady Knights are now 2-5 on the year.

Loss Was Hardly Crushing One

CHICAGO (AP) - On a cold night in the Windy City, the Milwaukee Brewers finally cooled off.

After 13 games of often bewitching baseball, after 13 victories that tied a major league record for quick starts, the Brewers were beaten for the first time in 1987.

Disappointing, yes, but hardly crushing.

"They can't do anything those 13 games that are on the right side of the ledger," first-year Manager Tom Trebelhorn said after a 7-1 loss Tuesday night to the Chicago White Sox. "Our guys remember what it takes to win. I still think we'll win 85 to 90 games."

The game was played at Comiskey Park with temperatures in the low 40s.

Their start, which matched the 1982 Atlanta Braves for the best in major league history, hasn't catapulted the Brewers into a large lead in the American League East, however. Milwaukee is only two games ahead of the New York Yankees with 148 to go.

"That's one of the disappointing parts," said Brewer third baseman Paul Molitor, one of Milwaukee's hottest hitters during the streak. "It's too early in the season to be concerned about what other teams are doing.

"But if we keep playing well ourselves, there will be plenty of time to worry about the Yankees. They've quietly gone about making a great start of their own."

Molitor said that, while the Brewers were disappointed by having the string snapped, "you can't be that upset."

"You have to be realistic. A 13-game winning streak, whether it be at the start of the season or for a club in a pennant chase in September, is a phenomenal streak at this level of play."

"There really wasn't any hanging of heads. There were a lot of congratulations on the good start and we said, 'Let's show them what we're made of and get something started tomorrow.'"

First baseman Greg Brock said the Brewers "just couldn't hit the ball like they had in the past" against Chicago's Joel Davis and Jim Winn, who limited Milwaukee to seven hits. The Brewers had averaged 10 hits and seven runs entering Tuesday's game.

"I don't think anybody felt pressure. When you're trying to end a losing streak, that's pressure," he said.

Panthers Shut Out

PINETOPS - Jeff Davis tossed a one hitter, striking out nine and walking one, to lead Northampton East to a 10-0 win over North Pitt in the finals of the Southwest Edgecombe Invitational baseball tournament Tuesday.

Northampton East tallied five runs in the second to take control early. Jerry Lynch singled. After one out, Keith Ridley singled. One out later, Terry Williams walked to load the bases.

Bobby Evans singled home two runs. Doug Blow reached on an error that scored Williams. Steve Ramsey singled to load the bases. Jeff Ramsey scored the final two runs with another single.

Evans, Lynch and Ridley each had two hits apiece to lead Northampton East. Ramsey was named the tourney's MVP.

Lee Eakes got the Panther's only hit.

Brewers' Streak Ended By Chisox

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers have a new goal — to start a one-game winning streak.

The Brewers' major league record-tying burst of 13 straight victories at the start of the season ended Tuesday night with a 7-1 loss to the Chicago White Sox.

"Now we can get back to reality," Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "We've got to go after one in a row."

The Brewers, who rallied to win eight of those 13 games, trailed 5-0 after three innings and could not come from behind again. Greg Walker and Donnie Hill hit home runs and Joel Davis and Jim Winn teamed to check visiting Milwaukee on seven hits.

Milwaukee set the American League record for consecutive victories from the start of the season with triumph No. 12 Sunday against Texas. The Brewers tied the major-league mark of a 13-0 start, set by Atlanta in 1982, by beating the White Sox on Monday night.

Despite their great start, the Brewers hold just a two-game lead in the AL East over the New York Yankees, who extended their winning streak to eight by beating Detroit 3-1 Tuesday night.

"That's one of the disappointing parts," Milwaukee third baseman Paul Molitor said. "It's too early in the season to be concerned about what other teams are doing."

In other games, Boston trounced Kansas City 8-0, Cleveland beat Toronto 5-0, Texas defeated Baltimore 6-4, Minnesota beat Seattle 6-1 and California got past Oakland 8-5.

On a Chicago night with temperatures dipping into the low 40s and winds at 22 mph, the White Sox got hot early.

Donnie Hill hit a solo home run in the first inning off rookie Mark Ciardi, 1-1, and Chicago added three runs in the second on an RBI single by Tim Hulett and Gary Redus' two-run single. Daryl Boston's sacrifice fly made it 5-0 in the third.

Davis, 1-1, pitched 5 1/3 shutout innings, allowing four hits. Winn finished for his first save.

The Brewers, who hit into three double plays, did not threaten until Paul Molitor's RBI single in the eighth.

The victory was the first for Chicago in five games at Comiskey Park this season.

"We had a streak of our own going, we lost four straight at home," Redus said. "That was the streak we wanted to break. Their streak just got in the way."

Red Sox 8, Royals 0

Roger Clemens, after missing all of spring training in a contract dispute and then losing his first two games of the season, flashed his 1986 form with a three-hitter against Kansas City.

Clemens held the visiting Royals hitless and had retired 16 straight batters until Frank White led off the seventh inning with a single. Clemens, 1-2, struck out six and walked one.

Dwight Evans homered and drove in four Boston runs and Bill Buckner had a pair of two-run singles.

Yankees 3, Tigers 1

Joe Niekro gave up two singles in seven innings before leaving after being hit in the left wrist by a line drive, and Cecilio Guante finished with hitless relief as host New York defeated Detroit for its eighth straight victory.

Niekro, 1-1, departed after being struck by Johnny Grubb's liner, the Tigers' second hit. The injury was not believed to be serious. Guante took over and got his first AL save.

Niekro and his 48-year-old brother Phil, who pitches for Cleveland, have combined for 526 victories, three short of the major-league record held by Gaylord and Jim Perry.

Walt Terrell, 1-2, pitched a complete game and allowed nine hits, including Dan Pasqua's first home run of the season in the fifth.

Rangers 6, Orioles 4

Ruben Sierra, Larry Parrish and Scott Fletcher homered and Charlie Hough survived 10 Baltimore hits, enabling Texas to end its nine-game losing streak.

Sierra connected in the first inning for first homer, a three-run shot that capped a four-run outburst against Mike Flanagan, 0-2. Parrish hit a solo shot in the third for a 5-3 lead and Fletcher homered leading off the eighth.

Hough, 1-1, stranded 10 runners in sending the visiting Orioles to their third straight loss.

Indians 5, Blue Jays 0

Tom Candiotti pitched a six-hitter and Cory Snyder and Pat Tabler hit two-run homers, leading host Cleveland over Toronto.

Candiotti, who led the AL with 17 complete games in 1986 while winning 17 games, won for the first time in four decisions this year.

Tabler hit an RBI single in the third inning and homered, his third, in the fifth. Snyder hit his fifth homer of the season and second in two games in the fourth.

Jimmy Key, 3-1, gave up all five runs in eight innings. He had allowed just five runs in his first three starts.

Twins 6, Mariners 1

Les Straker, a 10-year minor leaguer, won his first big-league game by shutting out Seattle for seven innings in Minnesota.

Straker's only other major-league appearance resulted in a no-decision earlier this season.

Tom Brunansky hit a three-run homer in the second inning after a throwing error by shortstop Rey Quinones on a potential double-play grounder.

The Twins are 10-4, the second-best start in their 27-year history. They began the 1972 season at 11-3.

Angels 8, Athletics 5

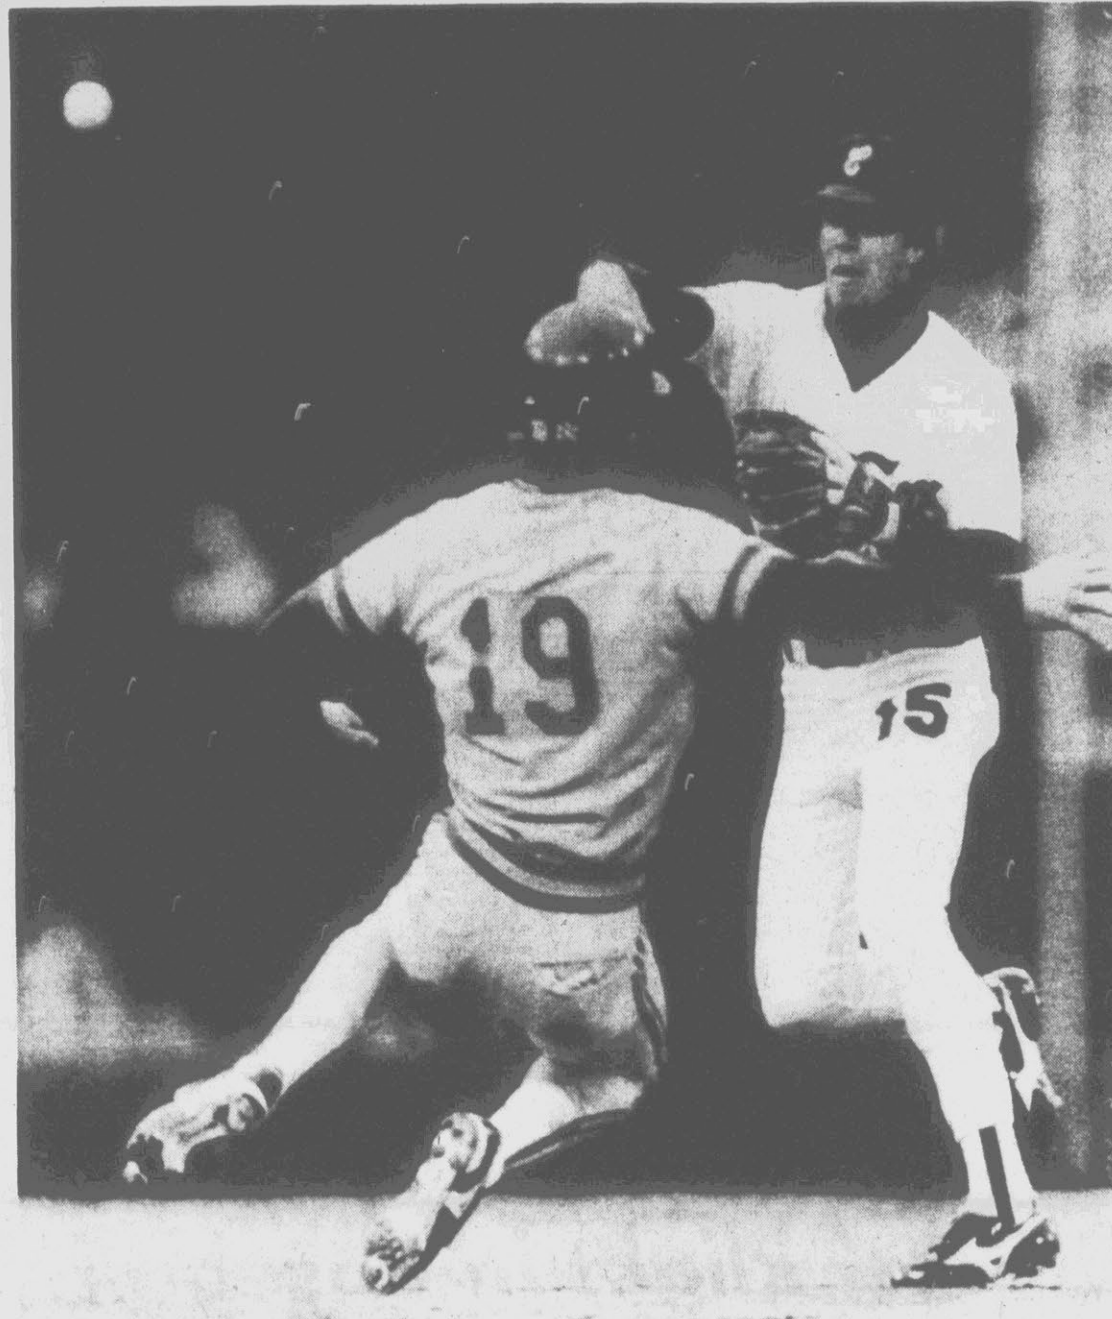

Gary Pettis' RBI single broke a 5-5 tie in the eighth inning and California went on to beat visiting Oakland.

Devon White of the Angels drove in three runs with three hits. White hit his fifth home run of the season in the fifth inning and Wally Joyner followed with his first homer since Aug. 5.

With the score 5-5, Dick Schofield opened the eighth with a single off reliever Dennis Eckersley, 0-1. But left fielder Stan Javier misplayed it for an error, and when center fielder Dwayne Murphy recovered and prepared to throw, the ball slipped out of his hand for another error as Schofield reached third. Pettis followed with his single.

Mike Cook, 1-0, won his first major-league game and Willie Fraser got his first save. Mark McGwire hit a three-run homer for the Athletics.

SCLC Hopes To Improve Blacks' Plight In Baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Encouraged after a meeting with baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, the president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference is hopeful major league clubs will take steps to hire blacks and other minorities for key front office and managerial jobs.

"His role is key to setting the tone for the owners," the Rev. Joseph Lowery said of Ueberroth after the hour-long meeting Tuesday.

Lowery, who co-founded the civil rights group with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. 30 years ago, said his organization also is seeking to help minorities become members of the boards of teams and wants baseball to do business with black-owned enterprises.

"It was a very profitable meeting," he said. "The commissioner is sensitive to the situation and committed to change. I'm very encouraged."

Remarks made by Los Angeles Dodgers vice president Al Campanis, who was forced to resign April 8, prompted Ueberroth to meet with the Rev. Jesse Jackson on Monday and then Lowery.

In a national television interview April 6, Campanis said blacks may lack some of the "necessities" for such jobs as field manager and general manager. Campanis had been invited on ABC-TV's "Nightline" show to discuss the significance of Jackie Robinson breaking baseball's color barrier 40 years ago.

"Sports are so visible," Lowery said. "Now there's an opportunity through Mr. Campanis. Sometimes God brings good out of evil."

"I may give Mr. Campanis an award. He's brought this situation out into the open."

Ueberroth, spurred by the backlash following Campanis' statement, has pledged to put his job on the line in an effort to increase minority hirings.

Lowery met last week with Kansas City Royals co-owner Ewing Kauffman, who agreed to work toward placing blacks and other minorities in management and all other parts of the club's operation.

U.S. Builds 5 Warheads Each Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' nuclear weapons building complex has produced 60,000 warheads since 1945 and now turns them out at the rate of five per day, a study concludes.

The $7.5 billion-a-year enterprise employs 90,000 people in 13 states and has evolved since the end of World War II from constructing nuclear bombs by hand to "an assembly-line process," says the book written by four Washington researchers.

"If the Energy Department's warhead complex were a Fortune 500 company, it would rank in the Top 20," said Dr. Thomas B. Cochran, a co-author and a senior staff scientist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, a New York-based activist environmental group that sponsored the book.

"During the Reagan administration, from 1981 to 1987, approximately 11,000 nuclear warheads and bombs of 10 types have been produced," he said. "The budget for warhead production has gone from $3.4 billion in 1981 to over $8 billion (proposed) for the coming year."

The 223-page study, obtained Tuesday, was scheduled to be released today at a news conference.

The book, part of an ongoing effort to build an encyclopedia of information on the world's nuclear arsenals, is entitled "U.S. Nuclear Warhead Production." It focuses primarily on the Department of Energy, which is responsible for the design, test, manufacture, assembly and retirement of warheads needed by the Department of Defense.

"We are trying to shed some light on what has become an immense, yet nearly invisible industry," says William Arkin, a co-author and researcher with the Washington-based Institute for Policy Studies.

That industry "spreads over 13 states and covers a land area equal to half the size of Massachusetts," said Dr. Stan Norris, another co-author and senior research associate at the council.

The main research and design of nuclear weapons occurs at three national laboratories: Los Alamos and Sandia in New Mexico and Lawrence Livermore in California. Los Alamos and Livermore perform the warhead design work, actually competing against each to develop the best warheads, while Sandia is responsible for designing all the non-nuclear components needed to make a finished warhead, the book states.

Contractors Given Access To Blueprints

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blueprints for U.S. diplomatic missions were given to foreign contractors without security clearances in Moscow and the Middle East, raising chances that the plans fell into the hands of terrorists or hostile intelligence agents, a congressional study says.

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, released the report on the eve of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee hearing scheduled today on security breaches at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The chairman of the panel, Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., and the ranking minority member, Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, visited Moscow this month and said Soviet workers had implanted so many listening devices in a new U.S. Embassy office building there that it may have to be torn down.

The GAO report dealt primarily with plans to build a new $9 million embassy in Beirut, the war-torn Lebanese capital where three American buildings were damaged severely by truck bombs in 1983 and 1984.

Seventeen Americans died in a truck bomb attack on the embassy April 18, 1983, 241 U.S. servicemen were killed in a similar bombing of Marine barracks at Beirut airport Oct. 23, 1983, and 14 people, including two Americans, died at the U.S. Embassy annex in another bombing Sept. 20, 1984.

Blueprints for sensitive buildings in Washington, such as the White House, Pentagon, State Department and CIA, were classified to keep them out of the hands of terrorists or hostile intelligence agents, the report said.

But the State Department "did not know how many copies of blueprints were in existence for any of its overseas projects since the prime contractors are not required to provide this information and blueprints can readily be reproduced or photocopied."

A State Department response included in the GAO report said the government tightened procedures last fall amid growing concern about the security of U.S. embassies. The department response also emphasized that blueprints for sensitive sections of the buildings were held tightly, and that work on those areas was done under U.S. supervision.

In April 1986, eight Lebanese contractors received copies of the blueprints for the planned Beirut embassy.

Iran Jails American Who 'Confessed' To Spying

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An Iranian court sentenced an American who confessed to spying for the CIA to 10 years in jail, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported today.

Jon Pattis, 50, a telecommunications engineer for Cosmos Engineers, of Bethesda, Md., was arrested in June 1986 while working at the Asadabad communications center 200 miles southwest of Iran's capital, Tehran.

In an interview broadcast by Iran's state television in October, Pattis confessed reporting to the CIA through his company about Iranian military activities, oil production, inflation and the distribution of foodstuffs.

He also said he provided information on the Asadabad center and a warning system that was supposed to protect it against attacks. His arrest came after an Iraqi air raid on the center temporarily knocked out Iran's communications with the outside world.

"The CIA was highly interested in gathering information on the vulnerability of Iranian economic centers," Pattis was quoted as saying. It also wanted to know about Iran's combat strength and port capacities, he was quoted as saying.

CIA officials at the time refused to comment on Pattis' confession or whether the CIA had any relationship with Cosmos. Cosmos also refused comment. Altogether, Pattis faced seven charges linked to spying and using a forged passport. The Iranian news agency, which is monitored in Nicosia, did not say when Pattis' trial took place.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman said, "We are aware of the press report, but we have no independent confirmation, and I don't have anything more on it at this point."

Official confirmation will have to come from the Swiss, who represent U.S. interests in Iran, he said, adding: "It has not been a speedy process. I just don't know how long it will take."

Pattis' arrest was first disclosed by the speaker of the Iranian parliament, Ali-Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani last July.

In September, Iranian Information Minister Mohammed Reyshahri said Pattis had been in contact with the CIA through an agent named "Kavi Austin." IRNA today identified the agent as "Gery Austin."

Pattis said he worked in Iran as a telecommunications expert from 1969 to 1979, the year that more than 50 Americans were taken hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for 14 months.

He said he returned in 1984, 1985 and 1986, the last time using a forged Italian passport in the name of Giovanni Pattis.

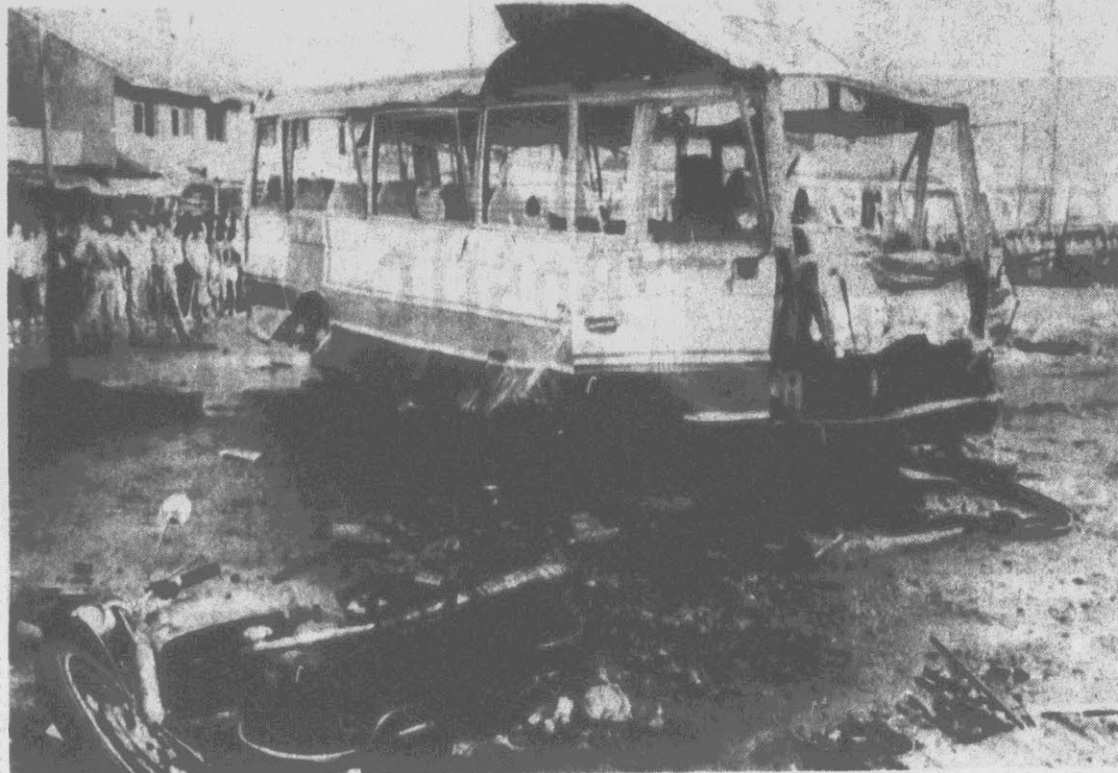

Pattis' sister, Ellen, said in the United States after his arrest that the Iran telecommunications agency had asked Cosmos to provide its American personnel working in Iran with non-American passports.

She said the agency was concerned Iranian immigration authorities would not grant entry visas to Americans.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said in August that Iran had ignored repeated requests by Swiss diplomats for consular access to Pattis.

North Carolina's first Baptist Conference was organized in Greenville in 1830.

BOMB BLAST—Police cordon off the area in Colombo, Sri Lanka, where a terrorist bomb blast killed at least 106 people Tuesday. Authorities say the toll from the bombing may go as high as 200. More than 360 people have been killed in Sri Lankan violence since Friday. (AP Laser-photo)

Canada Cites Farm Subsidy War As Grain Prices Decline

TORONTO (AP) — Canada will slash its farm prices 18 percent this year because of a world surplus of grain created in part by the farm subsidy war between the United States and Western Europe, the government said.

The prices guaranteed by the government to 140,000 growers of wheat, barley and oats are the lowest in 15 years and follow a 20 percent reduction last year. Thousands of prairie families face bankruptcy.

"It's another blow," Bruno Friesen of the Alberta Wheat Pool said Tuesday after the Canadian Wheat Board, which markets all the nation's grain, set price ceilings for the 1987 crop.

"Producers don't see much of a chance for recovery now," he said.

Wheat Board Minister Charlie Mayer said top-grade red spring wheat, used for bread-making and Canada's most important crop, will fall to $94 a metric ton, compared with $99 last season.

Mayer said Canada had to lower its prices to find markets in a world glutted with grain.

"The main price-depressing factor has been the very large export subsidies used by the European Economic Community and the United States," he said.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney is urging world leaders to tackle the subsidy war at the Venice economic summit in June. Dividing agricultural sales according to traditional market share is one possible solution.

Exporting nations such as Canada and Australia, which produce twice the food they need, have been hard hit by the surpluses of grain, milk, beef and other goods built up by the trans-Atlantic subsidy battle.

As demand and prices continue to fall, producers become even more reliant on government support. U.S. farm subsidies this year are expected to total $25 billion, while farmers in the European Economic Community, also known as the Common Market, will get about $45 billion.

Unlike American growers, Canadians are not paid to leave their land idle, and in the current glut, the more they grow the lower prices could plunge.

The Wheat Board absorbed a record loss of $152 million last year when world prices fell below forecast levels.

In the breadbasket province, the social fabric is unraveling because of farm debt and the demise of small rural communities, Friesen told The Associated Press. Agricultural land values have dropped 50 percent in five years.

Sri Lankan Warplanes Strike Separatist Strongholds

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Government warplanes today pounded Tamil separatist strongholds in retaliation for the terrorist bombing of Colombo's main bus station, and the two-day civil war death toll rose to more than 220.

Near Trimcomalee in eastern Sri Lanka, Tamil rebels detonated a bomb under an army vehicle today, killing 15 soldiers and wounding another 60, according to a military officer.

The officer, who commented on condition of anonymity, also said Tamil separatists attacked an army camp at Kankesamturai, 12 miles north of Jaffna, and killed 14 soldiers and three policemen late Tuesday. He said eight rebels were believed killed.

Today's violence raised to at least 360 and perhaps more than 450 the number of people killed in ethnic violence since Friday.

So far 106 have been confirmed dead in Tuesday's bus station bombing, which the government blamed on the rebels. But one official said the toll could exceed 200.

The military sources said revenge-seeking Sinhalese prisoners at Colombo's penitentiary may have been killed six Tamil prisoners.

The government said the air force carried out retaliatory bomb attacks today on outposts of the two Tamil rebel groups that it blamed for the bus station bombing. It said the air strike killed at least 80 people and injured about 80 others.

Tilak Ratmakara, chairman of the government media center, said some civilians may have been among the injured in the bombing on the Tamil rebel-dominated Jaffna peninsula.

"The government has issued a call that civilians should not remain near known militant targets," he said. "The government will continue to strike at these targets until civilian killings are stopped and peace negotiations resume."

Colombo was under curfew today, part of the government's effort to prevent communal rioting.

In Colombo's Welikade Prison, a group of inmates from the island's majority Sinhalese community rioted, capturing and beating a prison official, the military source said.

He said the army opened fire to restore order, wounding two Sinhalese. The approximately 200 Tamil inmates were moved to a separate building but not before as many as six were beaten to death, the official said.

The prison has about 5,000 inmates, but it was not known how many were involved in the riot. During 1983 anti-Tamil riots in Colombo, 59 Tamil inmates were killed in the prison.

Sinhalese, who are mostly Buddhist, make up a majority of island's 16 million people and control the government and military. The mainly Hindu Tamils claim they are discriminated against by the Sinhalese, and Tamil guerrillas have been fighting for four years to set up an independent homeland in the north and east.

Ratnakara said the confirmed toll from Tuesday's blast was 106 dead and 295 wounded, many of whom were badly burned.

However, he said the number of dead could rise, and that the dismemberment of many bodies was making the count difficult.

"We cannot count heads and arms," he said.

Another official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said more than 200 people may have died in the explosion, which occurred shortly before 5 p.m. when the open-air terminal was crowded with thousands of workers heading home.

Thronges of people stood behind police lines around the station this morning when the curfew was lifted for four hours to allow people to buy food. The onlookers stared blankly or pointed at the carnage.

Offices, banks, schools and many shops were closed today by government order.

After Tuesday's explosion, several Tamil-owned shops were stoned or looted.

The military officer said at today's briefing that one Tamil was apparently beaten to death near the station shortly after the bombing.

Ratnakara said it was believed the bomb was planted in a car. He said a second bomb was found in a nearby bus and defused.

Linnas' Lawyers Say Soviets Hindered His Defense

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Karl Linnas, accused of Nazi war crimes, was deported to the Soviet Union for what he believes will be his execution under a system his lawyers say kept them from collecting rebutting evidence.

U.S. courts relied in part on Soviet-supplied documents and interviews of Russian witnesses videotaped in the Soviet Union in the presence of U.S. Justice Department lawyers to reach their conclusion that Linnas falsely obtained American citizenship.

Linnas' lawyers complain they were under severe restrictions when trying to collect evidence from the Russians to dispute evidence that he had been the head of a concentration camp in Estonia where 12,000 people were put to death in 1941 and 1942. Estonia is now part of the Soviet Union.

His lawyers were not permitted to peruse Soviet archives in search of documents that might help their clients. They complained about the interpretation of what was said on the videotapes; the interpreters were supplied by the Soviet government.

The government's lawyers, however, said that the procedures already in place provide ample protection for the rights of the defendants, and that the use of videotapes provides a judge with unlimited opportunities to evaluate the testimony.

Moreover, the Office of Special Investigations, a Nazi-hunting unit in the Justice Department, says the case against Linnas was air-tight, adding that evidence supplied by Soviet witnesses merely corroborates evidence obtained in the United States.

In 1962, Linnas, 67, was convicted in absentia in the Soviet Union of being a war criminal. He was sentenced to death.

His deportation Tuesday ended his five-year struggle to stay in this country. Forced aboard a plane that carried him to Czechoslovakia, he shouted to reporters that his deportation was the equivalent of "murder."

U.S. courts could not try him for war crimes. But they could, and did, seek to determine whether he had illegally become a citizen by making false statements, thus opening the way for his deportation.

The procedures under which the courts operated have been in effect for seven years under arrangements relied on by the Office of Special Investigations. U.S. courts for the most part have accepted the evidence resulting from the cooperation between the Soviets and OSI.

Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, one of Linnas' attorneys, has said that an independent translator found flaws and discrepancies in witnesses' testimony. His comments have been vigorously denied by U.S. prosecutors.

The U.S.-Soviet discussions during the Carter administration that led to the information exchange system on suspected war criminals touched on the possibility of Soviet citizens being brought to the United States for questioning.

"Why didn't OSI insist on it (Soviet witnesses being brought to the United States)?" asked Larry Schilling, one of Linnas' attorneys in the latter stages of his court appeals.

"Why doesn't OSI insist that lawyers be allowed to interview freely in the Soviet Union and be free to look at documents?" Schilling added.

The Soviet official presiding over the videotaped testimony in the Linnas case repeatedly referred to him as a "fascist war criminal." The U.S. judge who stripped Linnas of his citizenship alluded to that fact, but did not find that it was sufficient to warrant ruling in Linnas' favor.

In the videotapings, Soviet witnesses with recollections about Nazi atrocities are interviewed at Soviet facilities rather than at a "neutral site" such as the American embassy or a U.S. consulate. The Soviet government produced the witnesses rather than allowing American defense attorneys to track down potential witnesses on their own.

U.S. prosecutors respond that in matters such as this, wide latitude is given to defense attorneys for cross-examination, although Linnas' attorney chose not to make the trip for the Soviet videotapings.

In Linnas' case, there were four witnesses who testified against him on videotape in the Soviet Union. One of them, Hans Laats, a guard at the Tartu concentration camp that Linnas was accused of running, said Linnas himself shot some prisoners lying at the bottom of a ditch just to make sure they were dead.

Schilling, Linnas' attorney during the recent stages of the court appeals process, points out that Laats also testified that he had a medical problem that affected his memory.

Before the government filed the denaturalization lawsuit, two New York newspapers quoted Linnas as saying that he had served as a supervisor at the concentration camp in Tartu, Estonia.

Richard Seibach was in a car pool with Linnas in the early 1960s and testified that his traveling companion admitted he had been a concentration camp guard at Tartu.

Soviet-supplied documents from Tartu bearing Linnas' signature were submitted to the FBI for testing and found to be legitimate.

Turning over a denaturalized U.S. citizen to the Soviets has ample precedent, although Linnas is only the second person to be deported to the Soviets under the current arrangement. Fedor Fedorenko, accused of being a guard at the Treblinka concentration camp, agreed in 1984 to be deported to the Soviet Union. He had been sentenced to death there; his appeal is pending.

After World War II, U.S.-directed military tribunals prosecuted hundreds of Nazi war criminals and executed 259 of them. The U.S. government also handed over to the Soviets 45 of 65 reputed war criminals the Soviet government had requested.

Philippine Rebels Flee

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The army today deployed reinforcements in mountains north of Manila to halt about 300 Communist rebels believed fleeing toward the capital, the government-run television reported.

Sporadic clashes continued Tuesday night and early today, the government-run Philippines News Agency said.

Rebels broke up into small groups to elude troops who overran a rebel training camp Sunday in the foothills of the Sierra Madre Mountains in Bulacan province about 20 miles north of the capital, said the government-run People's Television station.

It did not specify how many troops were added to the approximately 1,000 who have been searching the area for rebels since Sunday.

Shadyside Village, Three Years Later, Is Still Up For Sale

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer

SHADYSIDE VILLAGE, Pa. (AP) — Two years after going on the market for $300,000, a tempting price as far as townspeople are concerned, this village, all 38 acres of it, is still for sale.

Yup, that's 21 houses, 14 garages, a chapel, four paved streets, one ashed alley, a water system, backhoe and 1984 pickup truck, all still for $300,000 or thereabouts, with 20 percent down.

That also includes a stocked trout stream with a swimming hole, a ballfield, a playground and, by far the biggest attraction for local folks, a pair of horse-shoe pits.

"If I had the money, I'd buy it," said Don Kilgore Sr., 49, a disabled factory worker who lives three doors down from his son, two doors down from his nephew, across the street from one brother and two streets over from another. "We just like it," he said, shrugging. "It's a quiet little town. Everybody's friendly."

Constance Bowser also would gladly buy the village, if she could afford to. Her husband, Ed, 71, a retired miner, is the unofficial mayor and runs, unofficially of course, the unofficial complaint department. Two daughters and a son live within hollering distance.

"There isn't any other place I want to be," Mrs. Bowser, 50, said. "Nobody really bothers you. But if you need any help, there's always somebody around."

Better known as Yellow Dog, this rural hamlet nestled in a wooded valley along Buffalo Creek about 40 miles northeast of Pittsburgh, has been for sale since May 1985 by owner Jesse Buzzard.

Buzzard bought Shadyside Village in 1980 from an insurance salesman, who bought it in 1965 from a church, which bought it in 1959 from a limestone mining company that built it around the turn of the century for its workers.

"I need it like I need a hole in my head," explained Buzzard, who runs a trucking business in nearby Rimersburg. "I'm 64 and not in that good of health. I'd like to peddle it."

Because of logistics, it is a package deal. The 14 duplexes and seven single dwellings, which Buzzard rents for $135 to $200 a month, can't be sold individually since the yards are too small for wells and septic tanks.

Village caretaker Mark Patz, 24, a state-certified water operator, manages the community's water supply. He also remodels and repairs the 2-story homes, maintains the unnamed streets, organizes an occasional town meeting, enforces a 9 p.m. noise curfew, runs the only commercial enterprise in town, a soda machine, and conducts a head count every Christmas.

His latest census turned up 148 people, 35 dogs and innumerable cats. Patz, born and raised in Shadyside Village, and everyone else around figured their hometown would be snapped off the market after news reports brought it fame in the fall of 1985.

For weeks, Stanley T. Smith of Kittanning's Towne Realty Co. was deluged

Dating Service Runs For Money

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Robert Hisrich runs a computer dating service for money.

That's what this University of Tulsa professor of marketing calls his year-old, high tech matchmaking that initiates courtships between cash-poor entrepreneurs and investors he says are capable of committing up to a total of $41 million.

Hisrich holds Tulsa's Bovaird Chair of Entrepreneurial Studies and Private Enterprise. The title smacks of ivory tower academia. But Hisrich's specialty is "doing deals." He is creator of Tulsa's Venture Capital Exchange.

"What we do is use the computer to link up entrepreneurs with active, informal investors called venture capitalists or 'angels,'" Hisrich said. The Tulsa program is one of two operating in the nation.

His computer has 41 angels on line. Most are willing to invest $1 million in the right venture capital "deals," he said.

"Put them all together and that can start up a lot of companies," Hisrich said. More than one-third of his angels are Tulsans. "Most come from the region, but I've got one from Minneapolis who said he likes the entrepreneurial spirit of this part of the country," Hisrich said.

There also are 112 entrepreneurs-in-waiting in the data base who are vying for an angel to make their deal fly.

They range from a Tulsan who has developed a mechanized wheelchair for toddlers to another who wants to market a new type of seasoned salt that goes equally well on pork, poultry or popcorn, Hisrich said.

As a result of one successful match, Tulsa consumers now can purchase Germ-A-Way disposable disinfectant towelettes to protect themselves against suspect public toilet seats and telephone receivers. The throw-away germ zapper was the brainchild of a Broken Arrow family that turned to Hisrich. They landed an angel with $85,000 in 40 days.

Locally, Hisrich's angels generally have made money in the oil, gas and

Videomania Sweeps The Globe

By RANDOLPH PICTH
Associated Press Writer

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) — A woman whose husband was addicted to videocassette movies had a "Dear John letter" videotaped and left it for him on her way out of the door.

Another had her husband's funeral taped with instructions that it show the casket being lowered into the ground in slow motion to the theme music from the movie "Chariots of Fire."

People want the darndest things videotaped these days, says Stuart Dizak, who started Video Data Services five years ago in this Rochester suburb and now has sold 144 franchises for video production companies in the United States and Canada.

He's setting up franchises in Thailand and Singapore and plans to expand into Japan and Europe this summer.

The company's swift rise is one indication of the growing fascination people have for video, an industry that has skyrocketed in the 1980s and is expected to have factory sales of $13.7 billion this year.

"When we went into this business I never expected to have anywhere near the growth rate that we have had, but I think most people in the whole video field will say that," Dizak says.

Two out of every five homes in the United States now have at least one videocassette recorder, according to Allan Schlosser, a spokesman for the Electronic Industries Association, a manufacturer's trade group.

VCR sales have increased from 1.3 million in 1981 to 13.2 million last year, Schlosser says.

The most recent phenomenon is the camcorder, which is a lightweight combination video camera and recorder that debuted in 1984 and hit store shelves a year later, Schlosser says.

In 1985, camcorder sales were 517,000. In 1986, sales reached 1.2 million and this year they are expected to hit 1.5 million, Schlosser says.

Dizak, 43, tried to anticipate the market boom in 1980 when he opened a video equipment and tape rental store in Sarasota, Fla.

However, within six months the store lost $100,000.

"The only good thing about the Sarasota escapade is that we were having certain people, primarily realtors and attorneys, coming in and asking us to make videotapes for them," Dizak says. "At first we refused, because at that time nobody had heard of it."

But because business was slow, Dizak, a photographer in the Army for "Stars and Stripes" newspaper, started doing the videotaping and the idea for a national company was planted.

He left Sarasota and returned to upstate New York to get started. Dizak was born and raised in Buffalo and spent 10 years in Rochester selling copiers before his brief stint in Florida.

For $13,950, a person can get a franchise that includes training, equipment, a territory and some help with marketing and advertising.

One franchise owner in Roanoke, Va., a former pet shop owner, used his video equipment to teach a parrot to talk. He recorded the tapes and sold $50,000 worth of them within two months, simply by advertising in pet magazines, Dizak says.

"He was very clever," Dizak says. "He had two tapes. The first taught the bird some words and came with a B.S., bachelor of sentence degree. The second one came with an M.S., master of sentences."

A franchise in Athens, Ga., has broken new ground by videotaping childbirths, he says.

Dizak recalls buying his first videocassette recorder in 1976 for $1,400 when they were considered the ultimate in high-tech gadgets.

He says two-thirds of the franchises, which pay a one-time $500 royalty fee to him in addition to the $13,950, have sales of better than $50,000 a year.

Most of their business comes from videotaping weddings, legal testimony, re-creations of accidents, job interviews and real estate.

He estimates that half of all weddings in suburban areas of the country are being videotaped and the use of expert testimony presented in court on a VCR is growing.

Will couples of the future who want just one more look at their wedding pictures reach for a videotape? Will job applicants send videotapes instead of resumes? Will lawyers carry briefcases in one hand and VCRs in the other?

Probably not, Dizak says.

"I think there will always be room for both — whether it be photographs or videotapes, video cameras or court reporters," he says. "For what it's worth, though, we've found that people who have both photographs and videotape of their wedding almost always get more use out of the videotape. It's entertainment. The photographs are more like art."

Titanic Buff Intends To Open Music In Middle Of Cornfield

By DOUG FISHER
Associated Press Writer

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP) — In the middle of a cornfield in western Ohio, John R. Whitman intends to transplant a tragic piece of seafaring history.

"I think the world's finally realizing that the Titanic's one of a kind," Whitman said recently as he walked around his almost completed Titanic Memorial Museum.

It opened March 8, one month shy of the 75th anniversary of the sinking of the British luxury ship in which more than 1,500 people died.

He strolled among the movie posters, diagrams of the ship's rigging and models of what, at the time, was the world's largest man-made moving object.

"It's the 1912 science. I think the science got too big and it took over and that's why God sank the ship," he said.

It is not unusual for Whitman, 40, to make such reverent statements about the Titanic. Since he was 10, he's been hooked on Titanic trivia.

In one corner is his pride, a poster for the 1953 movie "Titanic," which launched his lifelong love for the ship. Whitman said he had been ill for three days when his mother suggested he watch the movie.

"God, we cried, and it really hit me. To think of a ship that big. I can't even remember thinking of the Titanic before that," he said.

At 14 he bought his first memorabilia item, the official edition of "The Sinking of the Titanic," which included proceedings of the boards of inquiry.

Now, Whitman has enough to fill five rooms in the back of his Artists Cove Institute, a private school he has operated since 1971.

Whitman has no estimate on what his collection is worth, but says he recently paid between $5,000 and $10,000 for the rigging diagrams. He says that on the same trip to England he offered $9,200 to a private collector for a Titanic deck chair that eventually sold for $16,400.

He says he is waiting for a shipment of 77 original photographs, a wooden ring from a barometer left behind when the Titanic sailed and some of the final payroll receipts White Star Lines paid to surviving relatives of the Titanic's crew.

Whitman ran four videotape recorders on news programs last summer and in 1985 to capture all the footage from the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute expedition that found the ship.

He notes inconsistencies in reports and believes there is a cover-up of the wreck's condition to keep the Titanic from being raised. That puts him at odds with the Titanic Historical Society in Indian Orchard, Mass., and with Congress, which want the wreckage left more than two miles under water as a memorial.

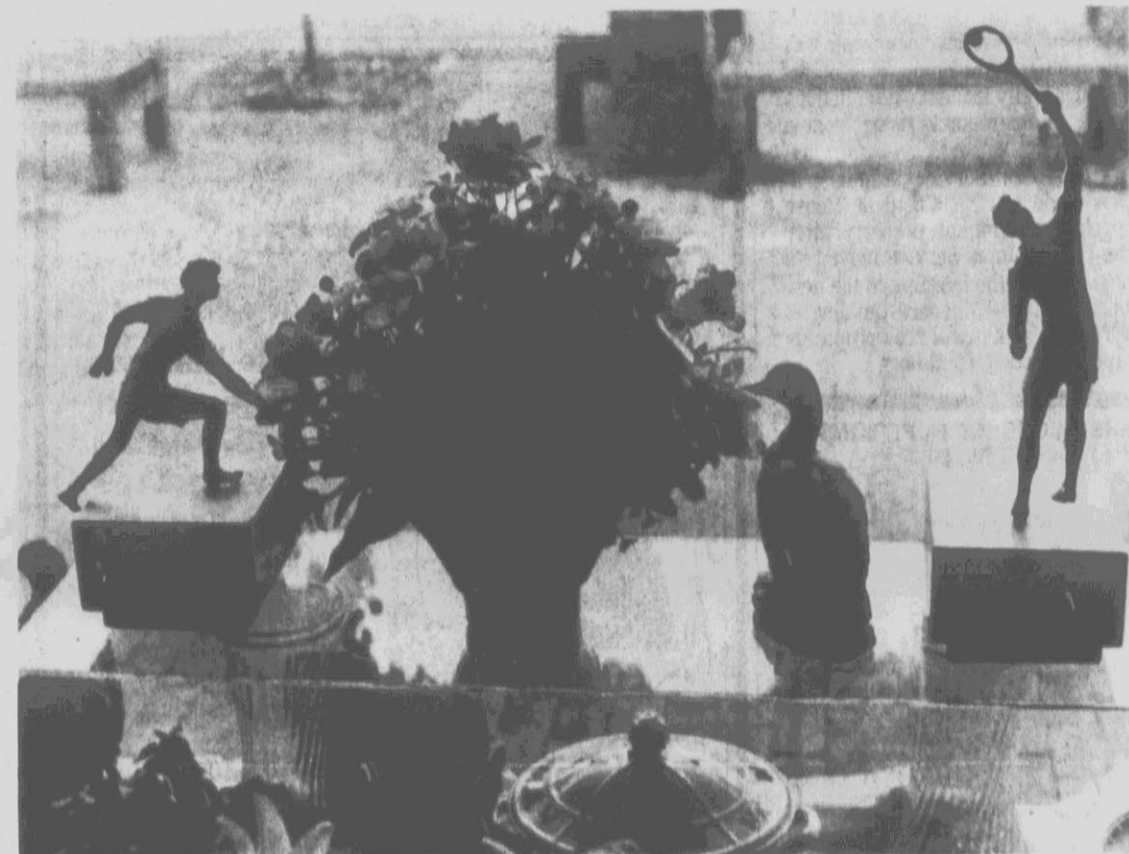

"To actually have something from the greatest tragedy, and the greatest story, and the greatest love story, that would be fantastic," Whitman said.

Most original items are in the Titanic Historical Society's collection housed at the Philadelphia Maritime Museum, at the Fall River, Mass., Maritime Museum or at the Mariners' Museum in Newport News, Va., said Louis Gorman, treasurer of the historical society.

Instead of original items, a visitor to Whitman's museum sees walls filled with posters and scenes from the movies "Titanic," "Raise the Titanic" and "A Night to Remember."

There is a lifejacket used in "Raise the Titanic." There also are display cases filled with books on the disaster and a scrapbook kept by a survivor, although it is not about the disaster itself.

Downstairs is a room filled with murals Whitman has painted. Upstairs are models and drawings of the ship and maps of Southampton, from which it sailed. In one room, Whitman is working on a 30-foot scale model of the Titanic.

Murfreesboro To Mark 200th Anniversary

MURFREESBORO — Historic Murfreesboro will celebrate its 200th anniversary on Saturday and Sunday. Gov. Jim Martin will be grand marshal for the 10:30 a.m. parade Saturday. There will be guided tours of 25 historic buildings on both days, a band concert, an Indian village, historical dramas, Revolutionary War re-enactments, river tours on Meherrin River, music and other events. For complete details on times of events, call 398-4886.

Annual Sharing Festival In Durham

DURHAM — The fourth annual Sharing Festival will be held in Durham Saturday at the George Watts Elementary School from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The event will showcase children and teen-age performers.

Groups to perform will include Alayanfe, Dance Arts Unlimited, the W. G. Enloe High School Dance Group, and a singing Group, The Thomas Sisters. For more information on events, call 489-8931.

Spring Tour Of Edenton Homes

EDENTON — The Spring Tour of Homes in Edenton will take place on Friday and Saturday. Points of interest will be open both days from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 2 to 5 p.m.

Homes in Edenton and Chowan County to be toured include Mount Auburn, the Leary House on the waterfront, Beverly Hall, Coffield House, and two newly restored homes, the Speight House and the Banning House. Other buildings on the tour include the Barker House, the Cupola House, Iredell House State Historic Site, the Old Chowan Courthouse and jail, St. Ann's Catholic Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church and Yeopim Church.

The Elizabethan Camerata group will perform Renaissance Music in the Old Courthouse at 8 p.m. Friday. For more details, call 482-3663.

Three-Day SpringFest In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE — The sixth annual SpringFest will be held in Charlotte Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

A wide variety of events are scheduled in uptown Charlotte, to include a bicycle race of 100 nationally ranked cyclists, races, art and craft shows, musical entertainment, and children's events. Two dozen performance groups will be on stage during the three-day period.

For more details, call 704/332-0126.

Chowan College To Hold Spring Festival

MURFREESBORO — Chowan College will celebrate its Spring Festival on Saturday in a traditional way — hosting alumni, crowning its royalty, and offering a concert and free ice cream to visitors.

Activities will begin at 10 a.m., with a reception in Lakeside Student Center. Students will take part in the Murfreesboro Bicentennial Parade at 10:30 a.m. At 1:30 p.m., the Chowan Choir and Stage Band will present its spring concert in the Recital Hall in Daniel Fine Arts Building.

Free ice cream will be served at 2:30 p.m. on the front lawn, and at 4 p.m. Chowan's President Bruce E. Whitaker and his wife, Esther Whitaker, will crown the sophomore king and queen and the freshman prince and princess.

Two exhibits will be on display, the high school art competition in Green Hall and an exhibit of photos by Chowan students will be shown in Horner Hall.

Senior Art Student Has Work Exhibited

Art work by Kellie Keisler of Leesville, S.C., a senior in the East Carolina University School of Art, is on view this week at Joyner Library on the ECU campus.

She is showing examples of communication art projects — logos, menus, photography, magazine ads and other items, mostly executed with cut film or paper.

Miss Keisler, daughter of Walter Keisler, is a candidate for the A.B. degree in communications art and plans to study abroad this summer at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Pitt Students' Work On Display

Pitt County school children in grades K-12 are the artists showing work at Pitt County Memorial Hospital during April. The show is being exhibited on the walls of the main ground floor corridors of the hospital.

Pitt County schools arts coordinator Emmy Whitehead, with the assistance of county art teachers, assembled the show. Each school in the county is represented. The work spans a wide variety of medias and style.

Musical Events Set In Kinston

KINSTON — Two musical events are scheduled to take place in Kinston this week.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, at the Arts Council, 111 E. Caswell St., the five-piece jazz ensemble Trilogy will present "Jazz: A Living Legend of Sound." Mario Hunter, visiting artist at Lenoir Community College and coordinator of Trilogy, has written, produced and performs in the show.

Other Trilogy performers are Vince Stout, Dan Davis, Harry Petteway and Drew Lile.

Following the concert, a reception for the musicians will be held at the Arts Council site.

The concert and reception are both free and open to the public.

At 8:15 p.m. Sunday, at the Airport Theater in Kinston, the Community Council for the Arts presents Dithyrambe, a piano-violin duo from Cleveland, Ohio. Performers are Barbara Gross, pianist and Renata Artman Knific, violinist. They will perform works by Handel, Dvorak, Prokofiev, Stravinsky and Szymanowski.

For more information and ticket reservations, call 527-2517.

Artist Sought For Olympic Festival

CARY — Area artists are invited to compete for a $1,000 prize for creating artwork to be used on the U.S. Olympic Festival '87 limited edition poster.

Works by selected artists will be exhibited at Artspace, Inc. in downtown Raleigh.

Artists wanting full details are to call 828-3997 by Friday.

Customs House

BOSTON (AP) — The city bought the U.S. Customs House, Boston's oldest skyscraper and one of the finest examples of Greek Revival architecture in the country, for $11 million from the federal government.

When built in 1847, the Customs House was broad and squat, surrounded by 32 granite columns and topped by a 50-foot-wide granite dome, much like the U.S. Capitol.

In 1914, a 25-story clock tower was built on top of the dome, over objections from city leaders who called it a "vast chimney stack rising from a Roman temple."

The General Services Administration declared the Customs House surplus government property after the U.S. Customs Service moved its offices out of the building to the new Thomas P. O'Neill federal building.

The city said it will seek proposals to rehabilitate the building.

Swedish Rock Group Europe Sings Numbers Only In English

By DENNIS HUNT
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

LOS ANGELES — He was right. It sounded awful.

Joey Tempest, the chatty lead singer of the Swedish hard-rock band Europe, was giving an impromptu demonstration of why singing rock in Swedish sounds horrible. In a crowded cocktail lounge here, Tempest started wailing "The Final Countdown," the band's Top 10 single and the title song of its million-selling album, in Swedish.

It was hard to hear him above all the noise but it was obvious that in his native language, the only Top 10 the song would have made was on the chart listing the worst singles of the year.

"It's not just this song," explained Tempest, who speaks perfect English. "I could sing others in Swedish and they'd sound just as ridiculous. The language just wasn't meant for hard rock. That's why we only sing in English."

Even in that brief lounge concert, Tempest's voice was impressive — high and remarkably clear. He's not a shrieker. His vocals have an appealing melodic quality, much like Journey lead singer Steve Perry's.

"I'm a pretty good singer," Tempest insisted, looking somewhat sheepish after making such an immodest statement. "I've worked hard to get my voice to where I want it."

As he talked, Tempest exchanged smiles with a pretty young admirer — not for the first time during the interview.

Many women were eyeing him, which is no surprise since the 24-year-old singer is strikingly handsome. His leather outfit made him look even more dashing. Even his long hair — in fashion in the hard-rock world but outmoded in the real world — did not dissuade the stream of female admirers.

Tempest is the best-looking member of a group that includes four other handsome young musicians, all from the same area, near Stockholm. His colleagues are keyboardist Mic Michaeli, bassist John Leven, drummer Ian Haugland and guitarist Kee Marcello.

Though Tempest does not especially like to hear this, Europe has not made it on music alone. "I know people say we've made it on our looks," he said. "I'm tired of people saying that. It's not true. Our music is the main thing. If people didn't like the music, they wouldn't buy the records."

Many critics, though, remain convinced that Europe is made up of a bunch of no-talent pretty boys who'd be nowhere without those handsome faces.

Europe is on its first American tour. The band plays melodic hard-rock — or, in Tempest's terms, hard-edged melodic rock — that falls somewhere between the music of Journey and Bon Jovi.

When Europe's "The Final Countdown" album came out last May on Epic Records, nobody cared. But that was before Bon Jovi's heavy-metallic hard-rock megahit album "Slippery When Wet" forced pop radio to drastically change its attitude toward that music last fall. Largely because of the success of the Bon Jovi album, Europe finally got the air play that made hits of both "The Final Countdown" album and the single of the title song.

"Bon Jovi helped open things up for us," Tempest acknowledged. "The success of his album made it easier for other hard-rock bands to get air play. I know we share a lot of fans with Bon Jovi."

Remarkably, all Europe's American success has happened without any touring. That's because the band was aided by another vital source — MTV. "The Final Countdown" video came out a few months after the album," Tempest recalled. "That created a lot of interest."

Translation: Young female rock fans saw these good-looking guys and absolutely flipped. With this band, it seems that sex appeal really has been as important in attracting fans as the music.

Europe was formed near Stockholm in 1982. Tempest (a name he adopted because his real last name was too complicated for most people to remember) has always been the leader. His fascination with music started when he was 7 and was so intense in his late teens that he dropped out of technical college to pursue a music career.

The group's debut album was released by a small label in 1983. "It was very raw," Tempest admitted.

The second album, "Wings of Tomorrow," was better, even more strongly reflecting the influence of bands like UFO, Rainbow and Deep Purple. That album helped establish the band as a promising newcomer in some countries, but not in America. It was the band's debut Epic album, and it died.

Tempest is still somewhat bitter about that. "We were amazed that nothing happened with that album in this country," he said. "We weren't happy about it. There were some strange things going on then involving what happened with that album, things I'd rather not go into."

Europe has suffered through a parade of membership changes. Creative differences have been cited as the main reason musicians have left. The most recent change was guitarist Kee Marcello's replacing John Norum. Reportedly, Norum wasn't happy with the band's accent on commercialism.

"You have to sell yourself," Tempest insisted. "You have to let people know you're there. We had to have someone who didn't mind doing promotion and publicity."

Though very popular in this country, Europe still isn't the top band in Sweden. It is, however, the most popular band that plays in English. "There are all of these well-established bands that sing in Swedish," Tempest said. "That's what Swedish people like to hear. But we have always sung in English. That's what people in the rest of the world want to hear."

Tempest spoke highly of the Swedish people but downgraded both his country's weather — too cold for too long — and the dreaded Swedish tax structure. "When you earn a lot of money in a short time like we have, you can pay 90 percent of what you make in taxes," he pointed out. "I love my country, but that's ridiculous. We may have to move out of Sweden to avoid the taxes."

They are now considering moving to the Bahamas or Monaco. "We want to save some money but it's hard when you pay that kind of tax," Tempest explained. "This is a crazy business. Who knows how long this popularity will last? We could be nobodies in an album or two. If that happens we want to have something left. We have to leave Sweden just to survive."

Historic 'Nevsky' Film To Be Revived

L.A. Times-Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Philharmonic and the American Film Institute will be the beneficiaries of a unique revival of Sergei Eisenstein's 1938 classic film "Alexander Nevsky" Nov. 3, it was announced Monday.

The presentation, sponsored by AT&T, will feature a new print of the film, electronically enhanced dialogue and sound effects from the sound track, subtitles projected beneath the picture and a live performance of Sergei Prokofiev's original symphonic score (the film sound track used a small orchestra) by the Los Angeles Philharmonic, conducted by Andre Previn, joined by the Scottish mezzo-soprano Christine Cairns and the Los Angeles Master Chorus.

The event will be the first of three showings of the newly restored film in the United States. Nov. 22, the Cleveland Orchestra, conducted by Vladimir Ashkenazy, will perform at a screening in Cleveland, and Mstislav Rostropovich will conduct the National Symphony at Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., next spring.

Proceeds from each of the three performances will benefit both the presenting orchestra and the American Film Institute, which has earmarked its portion for the National Center for Film and Video Preservation, established three years ago by the institute and the National Endowment for the Arts.

"This is the first time that film audiences will hear the film and music audiences will see the music," said John Goberman, the Emmy-award winning producer of the "Live From Lincoln Center" series on PBS, who is producing the events, which are costing an estimated $300,000.

Long familiar as a popular concert-piece, Prokofiev's "Alexander Nevsky," a cantata for orchestra, mixed chorus and contralto soloist, has not had wide distribution in its original film context. The subject of the film is a crucial event in Russian history: the bloody battle, in the winter of 1242, between an army of peasants, led by Prince Alexander, and Teutonic invaders.

Movie Director Dislikes Audiences Weaned On TV

By SUSAN ROGERS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The film "Beyond Therapy" was beyond hope as far as moviegoers were concerned, and they stayed away in droves. But that's what director Robert Altman expected.

"I don't know what most movie audiences get, and I hate to say it but I don't care," he said. "I can't deal with 16-year-olds and 14-year-olds and people who have been weaned on television."

Those are the people whose movie-going habits usually dictate whether an American movie is a hit, according to Altman, who pitched his movie to the sophisticated yuppie — the "self-involved sorts."

But apparently they were all too deeply absorbed in their own crises to break away for "Beyond Therapy." According to Variety, the movie opened in 31 New York theaters in early March and by its second week had been dropped by all but four. In its third week, the number of theaters was too low to monitor.

Based on a French farce, "Beyond Therapy" stars Jeff Goldblum, Glenda Jackson, Julie Hagerty and Tom Conti.

The story involves a sexually confused young man who is engaged in a homosexual relationship but places a personal ad seeking a relationship with a woman. All characters have psychotherapists. The movie also features a great deal of unshown but implied casual sex, something that has been criticized by more than one reviewer in light of AIDS.

Altman says such reactions are too literal. "I think it is romantic and funny and bizarre," he said. "It is too sophisticated for most audiences. It will eventually be seen as a much better film than it is perceived as now."

Viewers must be willing to suspend their everyday concerns long enough to open up to the movie, he added. "Some people are just too lazy to do that. They see themselves starting to get interested and they draw back. They don't want to make the trip."

Like many of his other movies, Altman has an ensemble in "Beyond Therapy." His use of strongly drawn characters rather than finely drawn plots is a hallmark of his work.

"My films' flaws, or what are perceived as flaws, are their greatest uniqueness," he said, citing "McCabe and Mrs. Miller" as an example.

Though it was a box-office disappointment, grossing less than $300,000, according to Altman, the turn-of-the-century Western melodrama became a cult classic with its harsh irony, blunt profanity and nudity.

Altman, who has made 30 movies, has had critically acclaimed films and two big hits: "Nashville" and "M-A-S-H." But since the 1970s, he has not had a smash hit.

Still, the balding, slightly rotund 62-year-old filmmaker is busy, traveling from his apartment in Paris to his apartment in New York.

He's shooting two plays by Harold Pinter for ABC-TV: "The Dumb Waiter" stars John Travolta and Tom Conti; "The Room" stars Academy Award-winning actress Linda Hunt. He's also working with the Weintraub Entertainment Group in Los Angeles on "Nashville, Nashville," a sequel to "Nashville."

It will use the original cast. "It doesn't matter to me how others take these movies as long as I'm able to continue making the kinds of things that matter to me," Altman said.

Altman, a native of Kansas, got his start in filmmaking by directing television shows in the 1950s, including "Bonanza," "Combat" and "My Little Margie." He moved into documentary and feature filmmaking in the 1960s, a passage his critics might describe as a journey from the ordinary to the sublime to the ridiculous, with the release of "Beyond Therapy."

"He's made a couple of marvelous movies," said film critic Pauline Kael. "You can't write him off." However, other critics have been unimpressed or even irritated by Altman's works since the '70s and the current "Beyond Therapy."

"Sometimes ... I think people really hate the movie, and hate me," Altman said. "Once a reviewer said I should be incarcerated."

He is also surprised by movie's ability to "arouse such striking reactions."

"It isn't that important," he said. "These are just little pieces of art that won't last — just an invitation to come and look through my distorted little window on the world."

'Pack Of Lies' Is Sensitive, Suspenseful Spy Drama

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The spy drama "Pack of Lies" has no violence or action sequences, takes place mostly in one house, and has as much suspense as anything on television this season.

The two-hour "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation, airing Sunday on CBS, is an adaptation of the stage play by Hugh Whitmore, which was based on the true story of two close friends and neighbors torn apart by Cold War suspicions in 1961. It was shot on location in England, near where the original story occurred.

The superb cast includes Ellen Burstyn as an English housewife, Teri Garr as her American neighbor, Alan Bates as the counterintelligence agent who changes their lives forever, and Sammi Davis as teen-aged Julie, Ms. Burstyn's daughter.

Pacing is the key to the emotional suspense that forms the core of the story. The excellent direction is by stage veteran Anthony Page, whose credits include the award-winning television movie "Bill" with Mickey Rooney and the Broadway production "Heartbreak House" with Rex Harrison.

The drama opens benignly, establishing the close friendship between the outgoing American woman, Helen, and her repressed and sensitive neighbor, Barbara. Barbara's bouncy 16-year-old daughter calls the American woman "Auntie Helen" and tells Helen her deepest teen-age secrets.

Barbara's husband Peter (Daniel Benzali) works for a technology firm. Helen's husband Bob (Ronald Hines) is a bookseller.

The couples have dinner together, the women go shopping and take art classes. Helen gives Julie advice about love.

Then Stewart arrives at Peter and Barbara's, identifying himself as a police investigator. He seems polite and considerate. Stewart wants to use the house for "a couple of days" to watch for a suspicious character he says is known to frequent the neighborhood.

Peter and Barbara oblige reluctantly, not wanting their household disturbed, but willing to assist the police.

When Stewart finally spots the suspicious character, he is emerging from Helen and Bob's house.

Thus begins Barbara's grinding ascension toward hysteria. Threatened with legal action if she says anything, she must continue to be friendly toward Helen, while not knowing whether her friend is in danger — or has lied to her for the three years they have been neighbors.

One scene embodies the poignancy of Barbara's dilemma: As the police are installing a special phone in her bedroom, their lookout post, they knock a porcelain figurine off her dressing table and break it. A policewoman hopes it was not too valuable. Barbara cradles it in her hand. No, she says, it has only sentimental value. She thinks she can repair it with glue.

In the end, though, none of their lives can be repaired.

Bates, best known to American audiences for his films "Far From the Madding Crowd," "Georgy Girl" and "King of Hearts," was seen most recently in the feature film "Duet for One" with Julie Andrews. "Pack of Lies" marks his debut in a television project made especially for American audiences. His Stewart is a climber in the police bureaucracy, reasonable on the surface, but ambitious deep down and determined not to let anything stand in the way of the case.

Ms. Garr, nominated for an Oscar for her supporting role in "Tootsie," plays Helen as an innocent whose concern for her increasingly anguished neighbor is genuine — until a brief but riveting scene at the end, after she learns of the counterdeception.

Ms. Burstyn, an Academy Award winner for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," had once been offered the stage role of Helen, but does frail Barbara with a sensitive understatement that makes her eventual breakdown especially jarring. Burstyn does just enough of an English accent to get by, not enough to be distracting.

The charming English actress Sammi Davis is new to American television audiences, unless you caught her as the runaway, May, in the acclaimed British feature film "Mona Lisa."

Modern-Day Pilgrims Remember Chaucer's Tales About Canterbury

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Millers and monks, a wife of Bath and nuns with stories to tell set off to Canterbury in "Aprille with his shoures soote" to seek the "hooly blisful martir."

A group of modern-day pilgrims is taking the same journey to England's spiritual center in the southeastern part of the country that led Geoffrey Chaucer to "The Canterbury Tales" 600 years ago.

Written in Middle English, the unfinished work traces an immortal cast of storytellers who set out from Tabard Inn in Southwark in the rainy month of April to go to the shrine of Thomas Becket, the Archbishop of Canterbury who was murdered in 1170 on orders of King Henry II. He became a martyr following his death and was canonized by Pope Calixtus III in 1173.

But if these modern pilgrims weren't retracing Chaucer's steps, nothing much would be happening in the land of his birth.

Although Chaucer is revered throughout the English-speaking world, official England has ignored the anniversary; there isn't even a postage stamp.

"It is odd because Chaucer is regarded as our other great poet beside Shakespeare, and he was the first to write in recognizably modern English — although a lot of schoolboys would disagree," said William Kelleher, a manuscript specialist at the British Library.

"It would be nice to see it marked with some event, but dates and such like from Chaucer's time are rather vague. Perhaps that's the reason," he said. "We don't even know the date of Chaucer's birth. Scholars say the few facts we do know from the tales would fit 1387 as the year of his pilgrimage, and April the most likely time."

The anniversary pilgrims include 30 devotees, dressed like Chaucer's characters, who include the wife of Bath, a merchant, a scholarly clerk, a prioress, a pardoner (a person who sold ecclesiastical pardons in the Middle Ages), a miller, a knight and a monk. They will act out their tales of courtly romance, sermons, allegory, fables and racy romps along the route to help raise $360,000 to establish a Chaucer center in Canterbury.

They crossed London Bridge for prayers in Southwark Cathedral on April 16 and then were to have a "pilgrims' supper." "I'm giving them dishes based on 14th century recipes, made from food available in those days," said Heather Pickering, who owns the eating house called Pilgrims. It's close to the site of the Tabard Inn, where the original pilgrims assembled for the five-day horseback journey to Becket's shrine.

Today's pilgrims started their supper with hearty broth, a thick soup of peas, beans, lentils, onions and carrots, into which they dunked wholemeal bread. Baked fish, chicken basted with honey and seasoned with sage, mint and parsley and a side salad of cress, lettuce and onions followed. The meal was topped off with a choice of two sweets: applemoy, which is baked spiced apples with a crusty top, or Lombardy tart — a custard with figs, raisins and parsley in a pastry case.

The travelers couldn't hire enough animals in London to go the 55 miles to Canterbury on horseback, so they will drive most of the way. But they plan to ride the last stage into Canterbury for prayers in the cathedral to commemorate the poet on April 21.

The celebrations were organized by Martin Starkie, who was co-producer with Nevill Coghill of the 1968 musical, "Canterbury Tales." "Nevill was my tutor and friend and I'm remembering him as much as Chaucer," Starkie said.

Coghill died in 1980. He was Merton Professor of English Literature at Oxford University and translated the Middle English of the original Chaucer into modern English verse.

"His version was very successful and has had a lot to do with the popularity of Chaucer today," said Peter Keegan, editor of Penguin Classics, which has sold 1.7 million copies of Coghill's Chaucer since 1951.

However, modern versions of Chaucer's tales "lose the flavor of Chaucer's time," Kelleher said.

Village For Sale

with calls and letters from prospective buyers as far away as Honolulu. Some wanted to turn Shadyside Village into a retirement center, while others wanted to convert the pink, beige, gray and green shingled houses into specialty shops.

Of the several hundred people who contacted Smith or Patz as a result of the publicity, about 75 actually visited Shadyside Village. Only one, a West Virginia contractor, made an offer and put money down. The deal, for reasons no one really knows, fell through last fall.

A Michigan businessman currently is interested in acquiring Shadyside Village, but has yet to make a move.

Smith's son, Ray, also a real estate broker, believes part of the problem may be the asking price.

"It's the old adage, 'Anything that sounds too good to be true probably is.' They think if it's $300,000, it's falling down," he said. "The ones who do venture out and look at it, they find out that it's a full-time job."

"It's a lot of work and a headache," agreed Patz, who briefly considered buying the place himself. In addition to his caretaker responsibilities, he operates a hauling and contracting business and is running for county commissioner.

"I already have one wife; I don't need another," he said, chuckling. "If you own it, you're married to it."

Despite such reservations, Stanley Smith is optimistic.

"I always say a property won't sell unless you have the right person," he said. In this case, it's "somebody looking for a (tax) shelter and something to keep themselves busy."

"There's someone out there who this village is just for them."

 The human eye is amazingly sensitive. On a clear night with no moonlight, a healthy human eye can detect a match struck 50 miles away. Our eyes can perceive more than one million simultaneous visual impressions and can distinguish between eight million shades of color. ## Childhood Memories

By Susan Stocks

My childhood memories come rushing back
As I sit and ponder about the days
When life was just Slinkies and choo-choo tracks,
When growing up seemed so, so far away.
I'd sit in my playhouse as a child
And play with all my favorite toys.

I even thought about life for awhile,
And how growing up would be such a joy.
Now I realize all the fun I had, And I wish that those days were here again.
But the thought of no return makes me sad
Because life was so much easier then.

I guess I'll make the most of my life now,
But if only I could return somehow....

Susan Stocks, 18, a student at D.H. Conley High School wins this week's writing contest.

My Guitar And I

By Felicia Williams

My guitar and I are very good friends
We are always thinking of lyrics to blend.
It sings to me in such passion and glow
I can never let this guitar go.

Morning, evening, or any time.

My guitar and I are much alike
It plays its tunes with all its might.

It has nice, long, tight and slender strings
That I often play on when I sing.

My guitar and I go out together

Rain, sleet, snow or any kind of weather.
I will love my guitar forever and ever
For as long as we live, we will be together.

Felicia Williams, 16, a student at J.H. Rose High School receives special mention.

The Foreseeable Outcome

By Susan Leigh Sayetta

You saw the look in my eye
You know it by heart
You'd seen it before the unspoken good-bye
Making you realize who was smart
And just who was blind and could not see
That our passion and love would never flee

But until you forget her
And let who you know into your life
You will never see how your spur

Pricked whose horse into mid-air flight

Who asks for nothing as she stares and sighs
And who would do anything for you in a lark
But your coldness shattered the vision and did us die
With whose love, leaving no choice but who to depart
And just who was blind but now can see Knows how our passion and love was soon to flee

But soon may a change occur
And an opposite for each will us be enticed
And you will live to never know how your spur
Once sparkled a flame that will burn everbright

Susan Leigh Sayetta, 17, a student at J.H. Rose High School receives special mention.

The Moon

By Avery Gaskins

The moon and I,
We both said hi,
Up in the sky
Down on the ground.
Hide and seek our favorite game,
He could not hide oh what a shame.

But wait a minute what's that I see,
The moon disappeared suddenly.
He disappeared oh, what a shame,

Now we don't play our favorite game.

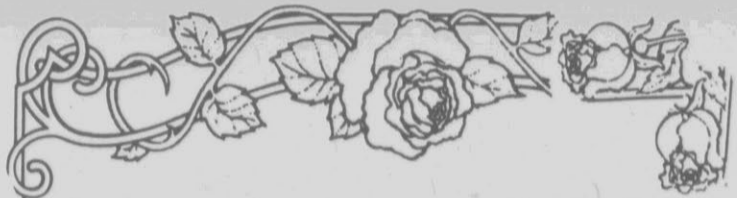

Avery Gaskins, 12, a student at South Greenville School receives special mention.

The Road To The Tomb

By Jim Bob Gray

Jesus was born on Christmas Day,
To Mary and Joseph in a stable of hay.
He was a boy just like you and me,
But He grew up to make the blind to see.
He made the lame to walk,
He made the dumb to talk,
He made the deaf to hear,
For He knew His time was near.
The water into wine, changed He;
And He met Zacchaeus in a tree.
He told the parable of the sower's seed,
And of the Samaritan's good deed.
The Pharisees were jealous of Jesus' great power.
They watched Him every minute and watched Him every hour.
They said He was only a carpenter's son,
They would not believe He was the One.
Even though Pilate tried to convince them.
All they could say was "Crucify Him, Crucify Him!"
As for Barabus, they set him free
They wanted Jesus to die;

that was plain to see.
The Pharisees said, "Guard the tomb till the third day,"
"So the disciples can not take Jesus' body away."
In the grave for two days He lay.
But when it was time, He could not stay.
When the Sabbath had come to an end
Mary Magdalene, and a friend,
Came to the tomb where Jesus' body lay
But when they got there they thought, "Someone has taken it away!"
Then an angel appeared before them
And asked, "Why do you seek here for Him?"
"He is risen! Yes, He has gone away!"
Like He said He would, on the third day."
And through His death was paid my penalty
And I shall live with Him—forever—in all eternity.

Jim Bob Gray, 13, a student at Greenville Christian Academy receives special mention.

Send In Your Entries To Expressions

The Daily Reflector is looking for elementary, middle, and high school students to draw pictures, write stories, essays and poems. Each week we will publish the best writing and drawing. The winner of each will receive $2. We will publish stories and art work we feel should receive special mention.

Entries must be original. Drawings must be in ink, crayon, markers or paint on thick colored paper. Please no pencil. Entries will be held for a period of ninety days and will be considered for that period of time. Entries will be returned if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is included.

Parents or teachers who sign the entry form should monitor for good taste and plagiarism.
Fill out the form and attach it to your entry.

real estate industries and are looking for new directions, he said.

The Venture Capital Exchange data base gets about one new angel and five to six new entrepreneurs a week.

Both entrepreneurs and investors fill out profiles and the information is fed into the computer. When a potential match of opportunity and investment interest occurs, a copy of the proposed business plan is sent to the investor. But at this point, it's still a blind date. No names are included.

If the investor likes what he sees, names are provided to both sides. They arrange the direct contact. "At this point we're out," Hisrich said.

The Securities and Exchange Commission forbids the non-profit program from providing financial counseling.

So far the computer has made 1,094 initial computer matches. In 110 cases, direct contact resulted between the two parties. There have been at least four matches where "money has changed hands," Hisrich said. He notes, however, that the parties aren't required to divulge the outcome.

Confidentiality is a key attraction of the Venture Capital Exchange. "If you're an investor and hang out a shingle that says, 'I'm an angel,' you'll get every kook in the country on your doorstep," Hisrich said.

Two thirds of his investors said they were most comfortable investing in the $50,000 to $500,000 range for individual deals. The rest were looking for $500,000 and up investments.

Applications from entrepreneurs are accepted from all states. About 82 percent originate in Oklahoma and Texas.

Joel Kinsch of Broken Arrow is one satisfied local customer. He anticipates first year sales of $1.8 million for his fledgling family business, Kinsco Manufacturing, which developed the disposable disinfectant towelettes.

"Without Venture Capital Exchange, we'd have to go to investment bankers or venture capitalists on our own," he said. "It would have been a long, hit and miss process."

Being part of the Venture Capital Exchange data base for a year costs $200 for angels and $100 for entrepreneurs.

Stewart Heard 'Germ Of Ocean'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jimmy Stewart says one of his earliest experiences before an audience also was one of his most embarrassing: he told his grade-school classmates he heard a song called "Columbia, The Gem of the Ocean."

"I've never lived it down," said the 78-year-old actor. The title of the patriotic ballad is "Columbia, The Gem of the Ocean."

Stewart said that as a boy he built a radio and that he and his friends were thrilled when they picked up a broadcast of President Warren G. Harding's inauguration in 1921.

"The next day in class I was asked to get up and tell what it was like to hear this. Now, I had never done this. ... I had not progressed anywhere as an actor," Stewart said.

"And I said I heard speeches and I heard a band and they played 'Columbia, The Gem of the Ocean,'" he said.

Stewart, who was born in Indiana, a city about 60 miles east of Pittsburgh, was honored Thursday by the Pennsylvania Association of Broadcasters.

Time Off

NEW YORK (AP) — Susan St. James says she may take time off after her "Kate & Allie" contract expires.

"I'm ready to slow down," she said. "(Daughter) Sunny and (son) Harmony will still be in high school and I don't want to miss their last years at home."

Ms. St. James, co-star of the CBS-TV series along with Jane Curtin, says having children has boosted her career. Working Mother magazine reported Monday.

The actress said she could "easily take five or six years off" after her "Kate & Allie" contract expires in two years.

New Album

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbra Streisand's first live, full-length album in 20 years is providing nearly a half-million dollars to help protect civil liberties and the environment.

The Streisand Foundation is giving the money to organizations "supporting such issues as safe nuclear energy and the abolishment of the threat of nuclear war, the preservation of the environment and the protection of civil liberties," the entertainer's publicist, Lee Solters, said Monday.

Miss Streisand is keeping a promise made in September when she taped "One Voice" for cable television, Solters said. Columbia Records announced last week that the album from that show was being released.

TROPICAL CARROT CAKE — An extremely moist cake, this delicious dessert is easy enough for the kids to prepare and combines the convenience of a packaged cake mix with the speed of microwave cooking.

Microwave Oven Can Help Speed Up Cake Baking

If you have a craving for sweets, but no time to bake, use a microwave oven to streamline cake baking. The secret to success is to start with a good recipe which produces consistent results every time.

Tropical Carrot Cake is an extremely moist cake which is so easy that even the kids can make it while you're getting a meal ready.

To ease cleanup, and eliminate the need to grease and flour the cake dishes, line them with two sheets of wax paper in a placed cross pattern. It only takes 10 minutes to microwave each cake layer.

Convenient packaged cake mix is combined with eggs, oil, crushed pineapple, carrots, cinnamon, pecans and coconut to make this simple one-step cake. Don't forget the carrots! No grating is necessary because junior baby food carrots are added to give this cake its characteristic flavor.

Microwave each layer separately on an inverted saucer so that the bottom center can absorb microwaves to ensure doneness. After standing time, use overhanging ends of wax paper to easily lift cake out of dish onto wire rack to cool. Frost with the delicious cream cheese frosting.

For additional recipes, plus microwave tips and techniques for covering food and lining pans, order the free brochure "Cover Up-Tips For The Microwave" from the Reynolds Wrap Kitchens. Full of helpful information for every microwave owner, this brochure contains a handy defrosting time chart, vegetable cooking guidelines, microwave basics for reheating and shortcuts for microwave candy making.

Chic Appetites May Threaten Good Health

By CAROLE SUGARMAN
 L.A. Times-Washington Post
 News Service

It's risky to eat chic. Rare duck breast, tuna carpaccio or turkey tartare is certainly a change from surf 'n' turf. But new recipes, trendy foods, ethnic goods and expanded food operations are forcing experts on foodborne diseases to be on the lookout.

"We're not seeing (outbreaks) right this second," said Richard Bills, manager of foodborne surveillance with the New York State Department of Health. "But we've been looking at trends with the idea that sooner or later, something's going to happen."

Bills cited the illegal importation of a Jamaican fruit called ackee, which is poisonous if eaten under- or over-ripe. But the government is "not able to inspect everything that comes in, especially in the Port of New York," Bills said.

Tom Schwarz, assistant director for program development in the Food and Drug Administration's Retail Food Protection Branch, voiced concern over the current popularity of wild mushrooms and exotic fruits.

Schwarz said that expansion of the mushroom trend could lead to irresponsible sources who may not know which are poisonous. As for exotic fruits, "we don't know anything about" some of them, Schwarz said.

Eating steak tartare has always carried inherent risks, since bacteria in the meat would not be killed via cooking. Now a variation of the raw-beef dish, called kitfo, is being featured in some Ethiopian restaurants.

Even turkey tartare was spotted at a San Francisco food conference. "I don't even want to think about that," said Schwarz. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that 40 percent of raw poultry is contaminated with salmonella bacteria, according to Schwarz.

Beyond the more familiar risks from eating raw or undercooked beef, poultry, fish and shellfish, lie potential unexpected microbial hazards from genetically engineered foods.

Modifying the acid balance of a food, for example, can put it in or out of the category of being potentially hazardous, said Betty Harden, chief of food control of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

FDA's Schwarz said that a new variety of tomato, genetically engineered to have a low-acid content, caused a recent outbreak of salmonella in Burbank, Ill. There were 88 confirmed cases, according to Schwarz.

Ralph Cordell, an epidemiologist with the Cook County (Ill.) Department of Health, said that the agency was "quite surprised" when fresh tomatoes were cited as the probable cause of the outbreak, since they are

Busy Cooks Think Chicken

Chicken is for busy cooks! For the cook who is in a hurry, "Baked Orange-Wine Chicken Breast" may be prepared ahead of time, refrigerated or frozen and cooked just before serving! The simple dressing of bread crumbs, celery, onions, poultry seasoning, margarine and water may be prepared while the golden orange flavored sauce is simmering on the stove. Your kitchen will be filled with a wonderful mouth-watering aroma!

The North Carolina Poultry Federation recommends serving the "Baked Orange-Wine Chicken Breast" entree and other menu suggestions to your family during April, which is traditionally Poultry And Egg Month in North Carolina. Don't forget the "Creamy Coconut Pie" ... it's wonderful!

BAKED ORANGE-WINE CHICKEN BREASTS

- 2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved
  - 2 teaspoons salt, divided
  - 1/3 cup sugar
  - 1 1/2 tablespoons flour
  - 1 egg, beaten
  - 1 cup orange juice
  - 1/4 cup white wine
  - 4 cups cubed bread (6 slices)
  - 1/2 cup finely diced celery
  - 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
  - 1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
  - 4 tablespoons margarine, melted
  - 1/3 cup water
- Sprinkle 1 teaspoon salt on chicken and let stand. Make sauce by mixing sugar and flour; add egg, orange juice and wine. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, about 10 minutes or until thickened. Make stuffing by mixing together bread, celery, onion, remaining salt, poultry seasoning, butter and water. Place stuffing in 4 mounds in large shallow baking pan. Place a chicken breast half, skin side up, on top of each mound. Spoon sauce on chicken. Bake in 350-degree oven about 1 hour or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Serves 4.

GINGERED CARROTS

- 6 medium carrots, cut into 3-by-1/4-inch strips (about 1 1/2 cups)
  - 2 teaspoons margarine
  - 2 teaspoons brown sugar
  - 1/4 teaspoon ginger
- Cook carrots in a small amount of boiling water until crisp-tender; drain and set aside. Melt margarine in saucepan; stir in sugar and ginger. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Add carrots; cook, stirring gently until carrots are well coated and thoroughly heated. Serves 4.

CREAMY COCONUT PIE

- 1/2 stick margarine, softened
  - 3 eggs
  - 1 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 13-ounce can evaporated milk
  - 1 tablespoon cornstarch or flour
  - 6-ounce package frozen coconut, or 1 1/2 cup flaked coconut
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1 deep dish pie crust, uncooked
- Mix all ingredients and bake in uncooked pie shell at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Bake leftover custard in individual pyrex dishes. Serves 6.

Quick-Cook Strategies Aid Meal Preparation

A hectic day doesn't mean you have to resort to carryout dinner ... not when quick-cook strategies make it possible, even easy to prepare an entire meal in 30 minutes.

The first strategy is letting the supermarket do some of the work. The meat department in most supermarkets, for example, offers beef prepackaged as kabobs, veal already pounded and scalloped, pork cut into strips, and chicken breasts boned and skinned. Small, boneless pieces of meat and poultry will cook more quickly than larger pieces.

Supermarket salad bars eliminate the need for cleaning, slicing and dicing fresh vegetables. Sold by the pound, these pre-cut veggies make quick work of skillet dishes, main dish salads and soups. As an added bonus, a salad bar eliminates waste and leftovers because it allows you to buy just what you need for a particular recipe.

A well-stocked pantry is the second quick-cook strategy. Pasta, rice and quick barley all cook in 20 minutes or less, and they can be used as accompaniments, in skillet dishes or as a base for stir-frys. Instant bouillon and tomato products make short work of sauces, and they make quick beginnings for whole meal soups. Canned salmon, tuna and chicken shortcut one-dish meals. Herbs and condiments such as mustard and vinegars are natural flavor enhancers.

A third strategy is to utilize quick-cooking methods such as broiling and stir-frying. Chicken Vegetable Stir Fry gets a headstart from boneless chicken breasts, pre-cut vegetables and a three-ingredient sauce. The crunchy, seasoned oat coating surrounding each tender chicken strip makes this fix-it-fast entree more than just another stir-fry.

Oat flour, easily made by grinding regular or old fashioned oats in the blender or food processor, can be prepared in quantity and stored tightly covered in the refrigerator. Nutrition-conscious cooks know that oats are one of the best sources of water-soluble dietary fiber. Ground oat flour can be used instead of all-purpose flour to thicken soups, stews and sauces and to bread chicken and fish before stir-frying or baking. Recent research has shown that when oats are eaten as part of a fat-modified diet they can help reduce blood cholesterol levels.

Oats straight from the package give a fiber boost to Salmon Cakes With Cucumber Sauce, another quick-fix main dish. Prepare the herbed yogurt sauce first so it can chill while you shape and saute the patties until crisp and golden.

Neither the salmon cakes nor the chicken stir-fry require anything more than a salad and fresh fruit dessert. However, the stir-fry could be served over rice. A pretty platter or attractive garnish add the visual pizzazz that says you've been fussing for hours instead of minutes.

CHICKEN VEGETABLE STIR FRY

- 3/4 cup oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
  - 1/2 teaspoon ginger
  - 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- (See MEAL, D-7)

CHICKEN VEGETABLE STIR FRY — This dish gets its fast start from pre-cut vegetables and skinless, boneless chicken breasts. The seasoned oat coating which surrounds each chicken piece adds important dietary fiber as well as eye and taste appeal.

Appealing New Grits Recipes Spruce Up A Southern Tradition

NASHVILLE, TENN. — Few foods, especially those that are so basically bland, stir up as much ire and passion as grits. Yet, along with the familiar biscuit, they symbolize southern cooking. And, loving them is almost aligned with loving the South.

To many native southerners, grits are as necessary for a good breakfast as bacon and eggs. Steaming-hot grits, topped with butter, have been included in their daily diets for generations.

But visitors and regional newcomers tend to approach their first serving of grits with a certain amount of fear. That first experience is often a negative one. And the reason may be that many of these folks have never eaten "true grits" — cooked slowly over low heat and stirred every so often so they don't stick to the pan.

Curiously, grits are closely related to cornmeal, enjoyed extensively both in the South and out of it. They're derived from the same base — dried kernels of corn, whole or ground.

The heart of the corn kernel is hominy. To separate out the hominy, corn kernels are hulled, washed and boiled. When the hominy is ground into very fine particles, it becomes cornmeal. And, when it is ground coarsely, it produces grits.

Grits come in three forms — regular, quick cooking and instant. To the true grits lover, quick cooking and regular varieties have the most satisfying taste and texture.

While the origin of the word "grits" is not certain, it may relate to the product's texture, which is actually gritty since it is a collection of those tiny particles of ground hominy.

But while the name's beginnings are questionable, the origin of the product is fairly well nailed down. Southern historians claim grits as America's first food, which was offered by the Indians to the settlers who landed in Jamestown, Virginia in 1607.

Those American Indians are generally credited for giving us the process for making grits. They learned to soak corn in lye-water to remove the skins. And those tender inner kernels were then washed and boiled to make hominy or ground into grits.

The Indians called the product they gave to the settlers "rockahominie". That name was later shortened to hominy and was to become the mainstay of the southern diet.

Besides being delicious and filling, grits are also good for you. Like other grains, they provide vegetable protein that, when combined with a little meat or cheese, or some beans, produce a complete-protein meal.

By themselves, grits are a simple staple. But nobody eats grits plain. At the very least, butter and salt or pepper are a requirement.

But for generations, southern cooks have shown a tremendous amount of ingenuity in fixing grits, allowing them to become a major ingredient in every kind of recipe imaginable. You could say that grits are to Southern cooking what rice is to Oriental fare and pasta is to Italian chefs.

Americans now consume more than 600 million pounds of grits a year, and the challenge for many comes in thinking of new uses for this ever popular southern staple.

In answer to this need, the home economists of the Martha White Kitchen have developed three recipes for both experienced grits cooks and those seeking to add some flair to this traditional southern cooking art.

1 cup grits
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 cup (4 ounces) grated sharp Cheddar cheese
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 cup self-rising flour

Bring water and salt to boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits; cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir small amount grits mixture into egg; return all to saucepan. Add cheese, paprika and hot pepper sauce; blend well. Pour mixture into greased, shallow 2-quart casserole. Cool; cover and place in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Cut into 1-inch cubes and coat with flour. Deep fat fry until cubes are golden brown and float to the top. Drain well; best served warm. Good with Sweet and Sour Sauce. Makes about 40 appetizers.

JALAPENO CHEESE GRITS
4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup grits
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

2 cups (8 ounces) grated Cheddar cheese
1 roll (6 ounces) jalapeno cheese
3 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons chopped jalapeno pepper

Paprika
Preheat oven to 350 F. Grease a 2-quart baking dish. Bring water and salt to a boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits. Cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Add butter and cheeses, stirring until all are melted. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, eggs and chopped pepper. Pour into prepared dish. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Bake about 45 minutes or until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CREOLE GRITS CASSEROLE
3 1/2 cups water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup grits
1 cup chopped celery
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1/4 cup vegetable oil
1 can (2 1/2 to 3 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained

1 can (14 1/2 ounces) whole tomatoes, chopped and undrained
1 cup ketchup
1 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine, melted

Bring water and salt to boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits. Cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour grits into greased loaf pan; cover and chill. Saute celery, onion, salt and pepper. Simmer 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Preheat oven to 350 F. Slice and layer grits in greased shallow 2-quart casserole. Pour tomato mixture over grits; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and drizzle with butter. Bake 35 to 40 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Deviled Beef Ribs From The Waldorf Culinary SOS

By ROSE DOSTI
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Dear SOS: The deviled beef ribs at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York are incredible. Can you possibly get them to part with their recipe? —CHARLES

Dear Charles: The bones were introduced to the Waldorf's steak house, the Bull and Bear, when it opened in 1962 and has been a favorite since, executive chef John Doherty said. "It was a good way of using good, meaty bones left from the prime rib," Doherty said.

WALDORF DEVILED BEEF RIBS WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

8 pounds beef ribs (from prime rib of beef), about 2 racks
Salt, pepper
1/4 cup virgin olive oil
1 cup Dijon mustard
2 1/2 cups plain bread crumbs
10 ounces veal or beef stock
1/2 cup Madeira
1/2 teaspoon cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon water
2 tablespoons butter
Lightly season bones with salt and pepper. Place bones on baking sheet and roast at 325 degrees 1.5 hours. After bones have cooked, allow to cool until easy to handle, about 15 minutes.

Combine 3 tablespoons olive oil and all but 3 tablespoons mustard, blending well. Separate bones into rib sections and lightly coat with mustard mixture. Dredge each piece in bread crumbs and place on baking sheet. Sprinkle bones lightly with more olive oil. Bake at 375 degrees until golden brown.

Combine stock and Madeira. Reduce by half. Combine cornstarch with water until smooth. Stir into sauce and cook until sauce coats back of spoon. Continue to simmer several minutes to blend flavors over low heat. Add butter and 3 tablespoons reserved mustard. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Dear SOS: About five or six years ago you printed a recipe for a wonderful chocolate cake called All-American Chocolate Cherry Cake. I cut the recipe out but lost it. Can you help? The chocoholics in my family would be eternally grateful. —MICHAEL

Dear Michael: You are in luck. It was a prize-winning recipe submitted by Melinda Lou Campbell of Los Angeles back in 1981.

ALL-AMERICAN CHOCOLATE CHERRY CAKE

2 cups cake flour
2/3 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
1 1/4 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 2/3 cups sugar
4 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
1 (21-ounce) can cherry pie filling
1 (6-ounce) package semisweet chocolate pieces
1 cup seedless raisins
3/4 cup chopped almonds
Powdered sugar

Sift together flour, cocoa, baking soda and baking powder. Set aside. Beat together sugar, eggs and vanilla until well-mixed. Add cream cheese, beating until smooth. Add flour mixture, beating until well mixed. Stir in cherry pie filling, chocolate pieces, raisins and almonds.

Pour into well-greased and floured 12-cup fluted tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tests done. Let cool. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

Dear SOS: It finally happened to me. I lost the recipe for Fiddler's Three Cheddar Cheese Soup. It was printed many years ago and I would love to serve it for a family gathering. —GLORIA

Dear Gloria: Fiddler's Three restaurant in Fullerton, Calif., shared its recipe with us in 1973, and the recipe is still going strong.

FIDDLER'S THREE CANADIAN CHEESE SOUP

1 cup shredded carrots
1 cup thinly sliced celery
2/3 cup thinly sliced onion
2 1/2 tablespoons chicken soup base
2 1/2 cups water
1/3 cup flour
3 cups milk
1 pound sharp natural Cheddar cheese, shredded
Salt, pepper

Add carrots, celery and onion to chicken soup base with water. Cover and simmer 10 to 12 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Blend flour and half of milk and add to vegetable mixture, stirring well. Add remaining milk and cook until thickened, about 15 minutes. Add cheese and stir just until melted. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Varieties Of Food Stimulate Appetite

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Americans who overeat could blame the lure of more than 15,000 varieties of food displayed in the average supermarket, according to a researcher at State University of New York at Binghamton.

Jane Connor, associate professor of psychology, says "variety is a stimulus for appetite," and the abundance of choice, including some 4,000 new food products introduced each year to the American palate, can be cited as one strong factor contributing to the nation's obsession with weight.

In a test involving 90 students, Connor told them to eat as much as they wished of their single favorite of three possible foods. In another test, they were directed to eat as much as they wished of all three foods, including the favorite. Offered the variety, most consumed more and demonstrated less self-control.

"These people might end up tasting everything at a buffet, even if they are already full," Connor says. "It

Easter Leftovers Star In Creamy Potato Dishes

The fun of an Easter egg hunt lies in finding the colored treasures. Clever cooks like to find imaginative ways to make an enjoyable meal with those same eggs. Consider the eggs a bonus that provides the basis for meal-in-one suppers.

Time is on your side with fast main dishes like these that rely on hard-cooked eggs for flavor and color. Both recipes make good use of America's favorite vegetable, the potato, featured in potato mixes with extra creamy cheese sauces.

Skillet Potatoes with Broccoli and Eggs is nutrient-rich and ready to eat in about half-an-hour. The tangy three-cheese seasonings in the au gratin potato mix bring out the best of the broccoli and the eggs. This colorful range-top dish is a good source of nutrients, all for just 290 calories per serving.

You'll have the chance to use both the Easter eggs and the Easter ham in Ham, Egg and Scalloped Potato Bake. It starts with the combination of two of America's favorite flavors — potatoes and cheese in a cheese scalloped potato mix. Blend the potatoes with the ham, milk and green pepper. While the mixture bakes, prepare simple deviled eggs, and when the baking time is almost finished, place them over the bubbling mixture. Or if you prefer, simply slice the eggs and place them on the potatoes.

SKILLET POTATOES WITH BROCCOLI AND EGGS
 1 package au gratin potato mix
 3 cups water
 1 cup milk
 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
 2 cups chopped fresh broccoli or 9-ounce package frozen cut broccoli, thawed and drained

1 tablespoon prepared mustard
 2-ounce jar sliced pimiento, drained
 8 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
 In medium skillet, combine potato slices, contents of seasoning mix envelope, water, milk and margarine. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring occasionally. Cook and stir for five minutes, stirring occasionally. Carefully fold in pimiento and eggs. Cover and cook an additional 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. 4 servings.

2/3 cup milk
 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
 1 cup cubed, cooked ham
 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
 4 hard-cooked eggs
 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 Heat oven to 400 degrees. Pour potato slices into ungreased 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with contents of seasoning mix envelope. Stir in water, milk, margarine, ham and green pepper. Bake uncovered at 400 degrees for 25 minutes.
 Meanwhile, slice eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and place in small bowl. Mash yolks with fork and add mayonnaise; mix until fluffy. Fill egg white halves with yolk mixture. Arrange on top of potatoes. Bake an additional 10 to 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. 4 servings.

HAM, EGG AND SCALLOPED POTATO BAKE

1 package cheese scalloped potato mix

LEFTOVERS MAKE A MEAL — Skillet Potatoes with Broccoli and Eggs is nutrient-rich and ready to eat in about half an hour. The three-cheese seasonings in the au gratin potato mix bring out the best of the broccoli and the eggs.

A Nostalgia Buff's Perfect Dessert

By MARIE BIANCO
 L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

There are few ingredients more humble than day-old bread, a little sugar and some milk. When these components meld, they produce bread pudding, a thrifty dessert that many adults remember from childhood days.

No one was ever lukewarm about bread pudding; it was either loved or hated. Adding raisins evoked yet another controversy.

The current nostalgia for down-home, comfy foods has put them on restaurant menus these days, and bread pudding is the perfect ending to a meal of meat loaf and mashed potatoes or chicken pot pie.

At home, bread pudding is a good way to use up yesterday's French or Italian bread. New Orleans bakers have been known to make extra loaves so they will have stale bread on hand for their traditional bread pudding.

When bread contains no preservative, it hardens quickly, and the chewy crust produces a firmer-textured pudding.

The addition of bourbon-soaked raisins takes this bread pudding out of the nursery. And with the addition of bourbon-laced sauce, this bread pudding definitely becomes an adult dessert, a fitting end to any dinner party.

SOUTHERN BREAD PUDDING WITH BOURBON CREAM SAUCE

12-ounce loaf French or Italian bread (preferably day-old)
 1 cup raisins
 1/4 cup bourbon whiskey
 1 tablespoon grated fresh orange rind
 4 eggs
 1 cup granulated sugar
 4 cups half-and-half
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
 1. Cut bread into 1-inch cubes. There should be about 12 cups. If the bread is fresh, arrange the cubes in a single layer on baking sheets and dry out in a 200-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.
 2. In a small bowl, soak raisins in bourbon and orange rind for 30 minutes.
 3. In a large bowl, whisk eggs until frothy. Add sugar and beat until well combined. Add half-and-half, vanilla and nutmeg; mix thoroughly. Add bread and raisins, and toss gently. Set mixture aside for 15 minutes, stirring once or twice.

4. Generously butter a 9-by-13-inch oven-proof pan. Pour bread mixture into pan, and bake in a 350-degree oven until set, about 45 minutes. Serve at once or at room temperature with bourbon cream sauce or orange bourbon sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

BOURBON CREAM SAUCE

1 cup heavy cream
 4 egg yolks
 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
 1/4 cup bourbon
 1. In a small bowl, beat heavy cream until soft peaks form.
 2. In a separate bowl, beat yolks until fluffy, about 5 minutes. Add confectioners' sugar and bourbon. Beat on mixer's high speed until well blended.
 3. Gently fold in whipped cream. Makes about 3 cups.

ORANGE BOURBON SAUCE

1 1/4 cups orange juice
 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 1/4 cup bourbon
 1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
 2 tablespoons butter
 1. In a small saucepan, combine orange juice, brown sugar and nutmeg. Bring to a boil.

Even with today's interest in health and fitness, there are still those who have not jumped on the health-food bandwagon. But usually when women find out they are pregnant, good nutrition becomes the foremost issue in their lives.

The responsibility of nurturing another human being apparently brings out the best eating habits in pregnant women and nursing mothers. They give up smoking, cut back on caffeine and look to foods that provide optimal nutritional benefit.

Increasing iron in the diet is a high nutritional concern during this time. Improving iron supplies during pregnancy, according to Rita Storey, media representative and spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association, is a necessity because additional blood will be used in building and nurturing the new life — in the formation of fetal, placental and maternal tissues.

For the mother, it is a requirement because her body will develop a reserve of hemoglobin to stave off anemia during high-volume blood losses, such as when the baby is delivered.

In the body, hemoglobin is the principal component of the red blood cells. It accounts for most of the iron found in the body, and its purpose is to carry oxygen from the lungs to the tissues.

The rate at which the body absorbs iron from food varies depending upon the type of iron consumed — heme, derived from meat, fish and poultry in which the iron is part of a protein, and non-heme, present in foods such as milk, eggs and plant products. (Growing children, pregnant women and anemic individuals have a higher rate of absorption than healthy males; therefore, their needs are greater.)

The composition of the rest of the meal and the status of the individual's iron stores are also major influences. Some factors that have an inhibiting effect on the body's absorption of iron are tannins from tea, phytates from cereals (phytate is a phosphorus-containing organic compound that decreases mineral absorption) and antacids.

The Recommended Dietary Allowance for adult males is 10 milligrams, and for females the figure jumps to 18 milligrams. Some good food sources include meat, fish, poultry, and especially liver, whole-grain and enriched cereals, legumes, green leafy vegetables, eggs and dried fruit.

The recipes that follow are designed to supplement an iron-conscious diet. None will exclusively provide the required daily amount.

DILLED LIVER IN TOAST CUPS
8 slices wheat bread
7 tablespoons butter
1 pound sliced calf's liver
3 tablespoons flour
1 onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
¾ cup beef broth
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon dill weed
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 cup sour cream, room temperature

Trim crusts from bread. Spread each with 1/2 tablespoon butter and gently press into 8 custard or muffin cups. Bake at 425 degrees about 8 minutes or until toasted. Set aside.

Cut liver into cubes and coat with flour. Heat remaining 3 tablespoons butter in skillet until hot and saute onion and garlic in butter until onion is tender. Add liver cubes. Cook, stirring constantly, about 3 minutes.

Stir in beef broth, mustard, dill and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat and stir in sour cream. Spoon into toast cups and serve with additional sour cream and sprinkle of dill, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Nutrient data does not include additional sour cream.

PRUNEOLA BARS
4 cups oats
1 cup diced pitted prunes
1 cup chopped walnuts
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups brown sugar, packed
3/4 cup butter

Combine oats, prunes, nuts, cinnamon and salt in large bowl. Toss to blend, then set aside.

Combine brown sugar and butter in saucepan. Heat to melt butter and dissolve sugar, stirring to blend well. Pour butter mixture over oat mixture, stirring to coat all ingredients. Press firmly and evenly into greased 15-by-10-inch baking pan. Mixture may appear crumbly. Bake at 350 degrees 20 to 25 minutes until golden around edges. Cut into bars with sharp knife while still hot. Cool completely in pan. Wrap bars individually or seal in plastic bag to store. Makes 24 bars.

USRDA: Protein 4 percent; Riboflavin 2 percent; Vitamin A 7 percent; Niacin 2 percent; Vitamin C 1 percent; Calcium 3 percent; Thiamine 7 percent; Iron 8 percent.

PRUNE-ORANGE NUT BREAD

1 1/2 cups prune juice
1/2 cup orange juice
1/3 cup butter, softened
1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped prunes

1 1/2 tablespoons grated orange zest
3 cups flour
3/4 cup brown sugar, packed
2 teaspoons baking soda
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
2 eggs, beaten

Bring prune juice and orange juice to boil in small saucepan. Pour into large bowl and stir in butter to melt. Stir in prunes and orange zest and set aside to cool to lukewarm.

Meanwhile, combine flour, brown sugar, baking soda, salt and nuts in large bowl. Stir eggs into prune mixture, then add to dry ingredients. Mix

Pour into greased 2 1/2-quart soufflé dish and smooth top. Bake in center of 325-degree oven about 1 hour 30 minutes or until wood pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in dish 10 minutes. Remove from dish and cool on rack. Wrap securely in plastic wrap or foil. Slice and serve. Makes 10 servings.

PER SERVING: 457 calories; 8 gm protein; 74 gm carbohydrate; 16 gm fat; 342 mg sodium; 448 mg potassium.

USRDA: Protein 13 percent; Riboflavin 15 percent; Vitamin A 20 percent; Niacin 15 percent; Vitamin

C 15 percent; Calcium 6 percent; Thiamine 23 percent; Iron 27 percent.

VEGETABLE TOTES

1 cup finely shredded red cabbage
1 cup shredded carrots
1 cup cooked green peas
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped spinach
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1/2 cup Italian salad dressing
1 cup alfalfa sprouts
1/4 cup chopped cashews
4 pita breads
8 slices Swiss cheese
Combine cabbage, carrots, peas, green pepper, spinach and mushrooms in large glass bowl. Add dressing and toss lightly to coat. Cover bowl and refrigerate several hours to blend flavors. Just before making sandwiches, add sprouts and nuts. Toss lightly to blend.

Cut pita breads in halves, open pockets and fill each half with 1 slice cheese and 3/4 cup filling. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Easy Cake Baking

- 1 cup finely chopped pecans
- 1/2 cup flaked coconut
- Cream Cheese Frosting:
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 4 cups powdered sugar
- Finely chopped pecans (optional)
- Marzipan carrots (optional)

Cut four 8-by-16-inch sheets of wax paper. Line bottom and sides of two 8-by-8-by-2-inch microwave-safe dishes with two sheets of wax paper in a cross pattern, leaving 2-inch overhang on all sides. Combine all cake ingredients in large mixing bowl. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl occasionally, until ingredients are well blended. Beat at medium speed 2 minutes. Divide batter between dishes (about 3 cups in each dish), spreading evenly.

Microwave one cake at a time. Place dish on top of an inverted microwave-safe saucer. Microwave on medium (50 percent power) 6 minutes, rotating dish halfway through cooking time. Increase power to high (100 percent power). Rotate dish. Microwave 3 to 4 minutes, or until center springs back when pressed lightly, rotating halfway through cooking time.

Let stand directly on countertop 15 minutes. Use overhanging ends of wax paper to lift cake out of dish onto wire rack. Cool completely. Remove wax paper. To make frosting, combine cream cheese, butter, orange peel and vanilla in 1-quart microwave-safe mixing bowl.

Microwave on medium (50 percent power) about 1 minute or until softened; beat well. Gradually beat in powdered sugar until of spreading consistency. Place wax paper strips between edge of cake and plate. Frost cake; remove wax paper strips. Sprinkle sides with chopped pecans and decorate top of cake with Marzipan carrots, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Meal Preparation

- 1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1 1/4 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 1-inch strips
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 cups (about 5 ounces) broccoli flowerets
- 1 cup (about 5 ounces) red, green or yellow bell pepper strips
- 1/2 cup (about 1 1/2 ounces) sliced green onions
- 1 cup (about 3 1/2 ounces) sliced mushrooms
- 1 teaspoon chicken flavor instant bouillon granules
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon lite soy sauce

Place oats, ginger, garlic powder and salt in blender or food processor; cover. Blend about one minute, stopping occasionally to stir. Coat chicken pieces with oat mixture. In large skillet, heat 2 tablespoons oil over medium-high heat.

Stir fry chicken about 6 to 8 minutes until evenly browned and tender. Transfer chicken to serving plate; keep warm. Heat remaining 1 tablespoon oil in skillet; add broccoli, red pepper and green onions. Stir fry 2 to 3 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender.

Add mushrooms and cook 1 minute longer. Dissolve bouillon granules in water. Combine cornstarch and soy sauce, mixing well. Add broth and cornstarch mixture to vegetables; cook 1 to 2 minutes or until sauce is thickened and clear. Spoon vegetable mixture over chicken. Serve with cooked rice, if desired. 6 servings.

SALMON CAKES WITH CUCUMBER SAUCE

- 1/2 cup plain lowfat yogurt
- 1/3 cup (about 2 ounces) chopped tomato
- 1/3 cup (about 2 ounces) chopped cucumber
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dill weed

One 15 1/2-ounce can pink salmon, drained, skin and bones removed

3/4 cup oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)

- 1/3 cup skim or lowfat milk
- 1 egg white or whole egg
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dill weed
- 1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1 tablespoon margarine

Combine yogurt, tomato, cucumber, onion and dill; mix well. Chill.

Combine salmon, oats, milk, egg white, onion, dill and salt; mix well. Shape to form 5 oval patties; pan fry in margarine over medium heat 3 to 4 minutes on each side or until golden brown and heated through. Serve with sauce. 5 servings.

Chic Appetites Risky

Aside from specific foods, public-health officials are looking at new types of food operations, such as the convenience stores and supermarkets that are becoming involved in the preparation of restaurant-style food.

"Seven-Eleven is equivalent to the fast-food restaurant of the '50s," said Schwarz of FDA. For example, according to Nation's Restaurant News, 7-Eleven is test-marketing a menu including cheesesteaks, char-broiled hamburgers, fresh deli sandwiches and several breakfast items.

Schwarz said that some convenience stores were not designed to be restaurants and may not have the proper equipment or trained personnel to keep up with the menu.

When full-scale supermarkets get into the fast-food business, they open up increased possibilities for cross-contamination, Schwarz said. This could happen if raw poultry or meats are sliced in areas near prepared foods or by the same employees who have not washed their hands, or if "good old chicken blood" drips on a loosely packaged deli item in a shopping cart, Schwarz said.

Karen Brown, spokesperson for the Food Marketing Institute, said that there are "lots of training programs out there" for supermarket personnel about how to deal with prepared foods. Brown added that cross-contamination in a supermarket cart is unlikely. "Nobody's plopping down a raw piece of meat or a raw fish in their cart," she said.

Nevertheless, Trevor Hayes of the Santa Clara County (Calif.) Health Department said that not all supermarkets getting into deli foods are large, well-known chains. Some are smaller establishments that are looking for a way to expand — and fast food is the way to do it these days, Hayes said.

Home delivery of foods other than pizza is another upcoming trend with potential for concern, Schwarz said.

Schwarz said that there have been "quite a few" foodborne-disease outbreaks associated with Meals on Wheels programs. The outbreaks have occurred primarily because of time and temperature abuses, he said.

The growing phenomenon of vending machines stocked with foods more elaborate than candy bars or soda may also be potentially hazardous, Schwarz said. If maintenance or building staff does not carefully monitor the machines' temperature controls, Schwarz said, problems could arise.

A more immediate risk has already been posed by contaminated imported packaged goods, sold in ethnic grocery stores or restaurants. A continuing interest in foreign foods and a surging ethnic population has exacerbated this problem.

In a memorandum issued last year by the FDA's Ad Hoc Task Force on Packaged, Imported Foods, the agency said that these goods have a "high rate of defects."

The defects include swollen, leaking and rusty containers, vermin-defiled foods in plastic bags, undeclared food additives, short weight and lack of required English-language labeling, the memorandum stated.

In 1984 Gordon Brown, a field specialist in the agency's regional office in Baltimore, found unfit packaged foods in 75 to 80 percent of the Oriental markets he visited. Brown's investigation included 45 stores in the Washington metropolitan area, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Newark, Del.

Brown said he first encountered problem goods at a market in Arlington Va. Swollen, leaky and rusty cans, mice, beetles, moths and roaches in packaged foods and inadequate holding temperatures for frozen and refrigerated items were found. With the help of the Arlington Health Department, more than 1,700 pounds of food were later destroyed, and the store was temporarily closed for clean-up.

Ben Werner, medical epidemiologist with the infectious-disease branch of the California Department of Health Services, said that foodborne-disease outbreaks have been associated with Asians' consuming raw goat intestines and pig's blood.

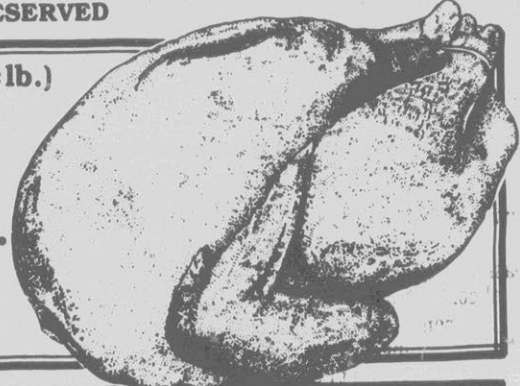

But it's not just Asian foods that have come under scrutiny. Werner said that one salmonella outbreak in California was traced to basderma, an Armenian raw-beef dish.

Prices Effective Thru May 2, 1987

It is our intention to maintain the prices in this circular until May 2, 1987. However, special circumstances beyond our control may make it necessary to increase or reduce the prices before that date. For example, unusual market conditions in many commodities may result in price fluctuations after this circular is issued. In such cases, we reserve the right to revise our prices. You will be notified of the changes at our store prior to processing your purchase. WICKES RAIN CHECK POLICY. Should we be out of stock on any advertised sale item, our manager will be happy to order this item for you at the same advertised sale price. If the same item is not available for reorder, the manager will make available to you a comparable item of the same value at the advertised price.

Wickes Lumber

14'x20' Pressure Treated Designer Deck

This beautiful deck features built-in tables and benches, an attractive sunscreen, and our designer rail system. It's constructed from Wickes original deck plank, an easy to use decking material that costs less than 1x6 stock. And it's Wolmanized so you know it will last a lifetime. The size and shape make it ideal for parties, or just relaxing. The one low price includes all the decking materials you need plus easy to understand instructions so you can build it yourself.
