Hart Calls For Small-Farmer Land Policy

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Corporate agribusinesses are replacing small independent farmers who are being forced into surrendering their livelihoods by ineffective farm policies under the Reagan administration, former Sen. Gary Hart said today.

"The issue in agriculture in the latter part of this century is not whether we're going to grow food and crops and fiber, the question is who's going to own the land," Hart said.

Hart, a candidate for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, spoke to supporters and local farmers at Linwood Hooks' farm on N.C. 903 southwest of Winterville.

"What we've seen under this administration the past seven years is a massive turnover of ownership of land from the small and independent farmers to giant corporate agribusinesses, and that is not in the national interest," the former senator from Colorado said.

"We've got to reverse that policy. We've got to go back to the values ... that believe in broad-based ownership of productive land in this country."

Policies need to be revised with the smaller farmers in mind, said Hart, who made the campaign stop in Pitt County as part of his tour of eastern North Carolina.

"This nation must have a policy that gives family farmers who are efficient and hard working the chance to make a decent living," he said. "That's the starting point. That has to be our national policy."

"After that, we can incorporate emergency credit relief for farmers who are about to lose their land by turning our farm credit system into one that helps the land-owners instead of driving people off the land as its managers are doing today. It should give the farmers a chance to get an income coming in that is enough to keep them on their land, feed their families and have a future for their children."

Hart, who announced his candidacy earlier this month, said he would work on behalf of the private farmers.

"I have had policies that target price supports for those who need the price support systems the most — middle-sized and smaller producers — and not the giant corporate agribusinesses."

"This nation can have a farm policy that works and doesn't bankrupt the federal treasury and achieves the basic objective which I have stated, and that is to give farmers in this state, in my state and in this country a chance to stay on their land, earn a decent living for themselves and their families and keep ownership of that land."

A balanced economic base is necessary for successful operation in the nation, according to Hart.

"This nation — for 100 years its economy and its economie opportunities were based upon farming and agriculture, the production of food and fiber," he said. "Another 100 years, it was based on manufacturing primarily, but also agriculture as well. Now, we've had for the last 10 or 20 years, a new economic base with various so-called services and new technologies."

"We pursued the challenge of many new technologies, sophisticated computers. We have to keep in mind this nation needs an industrial base and it needs an agricultural base, and right now, what we're seeing is the decline of both of those bases."

Hart said the strength of the country depends on those economic bases.

"This nation is seeing a rapid decline in agriculture and its industrial base," he said. "We can't be a large economic power as we are today if we begin importing our food, importing our energy and importing our steel."

Hope Fades For 19 Trapped In Rubble

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Rescuers using dogs and microphones picked through tons of concrete and steel today as relatives began to lose hope for 19 workers trapped when an unfinished high-rise apartment building "collapsed like dominoes," killing at least nine.

"They're not going to pull any survivors out of there," said Alfred Rinaldi, whose brother Anthony was among the missing. "I went right near there. The steel is twisted, the rods and everything are close together. If anybody is alive, it's a miracle."

"No, there's no hope," said another man whose brother also was missing. Forty-one workers from the site were alive and accounted for, including 12 who were hospitalized, Mayor Thomas Bucci said late Thursday. Witnesses said some workers jumped "like pigeons" from the building as it fell.

"The floors began collapsing like dominoes," said William Curbow, 47, a welder who said he jumped from the sixth floor. "I thought I was going to die."

At midmorning, officials assembled the scores of construction workers who had volunteered to search the rubble, and announced that all but 30 would be pulled off the site so the work could be more organized.

"We're reorganizing now because there's too many on site," Bill Sanderson, a foreman with Plumbers & Fitters union Local 173, told reporters. "There's too much re-bar there. There's no way of removal."

Sanderson said 30 workers at a time would go carefully through the rubble, cutting the re-bar, metal rods reinforcing the concrete slabs, before any further attempts are made to remove the concrete.

He indicated that project managers have some idea where workers were assigned when the building collapsed, which may let the searchers concentrate on those areas. At one point, workers thought they heard a sound like pieces of metal tapping, and the search stopped while microphones were brought in.

City emergency medical services director Jonathan Best said federal mining engineers with experience from the 1985 Mexico City earthquake would arrive this afternoon with microphones that can hear through 1,200 feet of granite.

At that time, Best said, everyone would be removed from the site so authorities could examine the nine "alert areas" pointed out by dogs. Those sites could indicate the presence of one or more person, dead or alive.

Earlier, the search focused on a two-story mound of rubble in the center of the site and a slightly higher pile on the edge, said John Bourgoin, business agent at Ironworkers Local 832 in Wallingford.

"There were known men there working on scaffolding," Bourgoin said.

Police said the search for those missing in the collapse of the downtown L'Ambiance Plaza project could take a week because each concrete slab had to be lifted carefully from the wreckage. Two concrete pillars left standing when the building fell were demolished to protect rescue workers.

Frank Mercaldi, director of the city Building Department, said he inspected the site Monday. He said he saw no problems then but was there for only a few minutes. He said city inspectors looked at the site several times a week, and called the building's construction technique, known as lift-slab, "totally accepted."

The technique involves pouring the concrete floors at ground level and then jacking them into place. Mercaldi said he believes a slab was being put into place when the building collapsed.

Families spent the night at a high school a few blocks away to await news of their relatives.

Rescuers from neighboring towns converged on the site, and construction companies sent crews and equipment. Scores of people in hard hats watched under high-powered lights. Several cranes were used to pull pieces of concrete off one by one and dump trucks hauled away debris.

Several times the scene became quiet. All machinery, including trucks, fire engines, front-end loaders and cranes, were shut off as dogs were sent sniffing across the rubble and microphones lowered in.

After one such eerie silence early today, Gary Rizz, who came to help from another site, said, "There's nobody left alive down there. There's just not enough pockets for people to be in. It's just flat like a pancake."

E. Carolina Trustees OK Work

The East Carolina University Board of Trustees Thursday approved spending almost $1 million for work on two campus buildings.

Trustees gave their approval to an $818,300 renovation of the Messick Theater Arts Building on East Fifth Street as well as $123,600 for structural work on Erwin Hall, just east of Joyner Library and Mendenhall Student Center.

The board also voted to maintain student services at their present level for the coming year.

The recommendation will be forwarded to the University of North Carolina Board of Governors. If that board approves maintaining the level of services, the athletics fee will increase about $14, to $115 for the coming school year.

The fee for operating Mendenhall Student center will go up about $20, to $74 in 1987-1988, while the student union programs fee will increase $2.50 to $22.50. And the student fund accounting fee will increase 50 cents, to a total of $2.

The proposed increases — a total of 11.4 percent — will mean $42 is added to the present fees to give a total of $410 in the coming year.

Bus Bombed

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A bomb exploded today on a bus carrying U.S. military personnel in Athens, injuring seven servicemen, police said.

The explosion occurred near Athens' central market on a bus carrying 25 American military personnel and a Greek driver to the Hellenikon Air Force Base outside the city, police said.

A police official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said authorities were not sure exactly where the bomb was placed on the bus.

Rain May Push Tar Even Higher

The National Weather Service is predicting more rain for tonight and Saturday, raising the possibility that the already flooded Tar River will go even higher.

And that forecast does not bode well for River Oaks residents who are having to use scaffolding to traverse knee-deep water in the complex's parking area.

According to Remco East representative Judy Banks, flooding at the Summit Street apartment building is now confined to the parking lot, laundry room and basement. But one of several Remco employees who have been manning pumps around the clock to keep water levels down said this morning if the river rises a foot or more, first floor units may start to get wet.

Electricity to the complex's hot water heater has already been cut off. All other utilities are in working order. "We're doing all that's necessary to keep our tenants high and dry," Ms. Banks said.

She estimated current flood damage at $3,000. That amount will increase, she said, if the predicted rain comes and drives the river up farther.

A driving tour of flooded areas this morning showed portions of Tar River Estates still under water, as well. No one could be reached for comment on damages.

According to City Engineer Tom Tysinger, there have been no reports of flooded living spaces, though a few people have voluntarily moved out of their homes as a precautionary measure.

"What we're hoping is that the river will begin to recede from past rains before an influx of new water reaches us," Tysinger said.

Today at 9 a.m., Greenville Utilities reported the river's height holding steady at 19.1 feet.

Media Censors Barred

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A provincial Supreme Court today overturned extensive restrictions on reporting of unrest and security force actions that President P.W. Botha imposed in December.

Earlier today, three suspected African National Congress guerrillas were killed and four policemen were injured in a shootout in a black township near Durban, police reported.

The Pietermaritzburg Supreme Court judgment is legally binding in Natal province. According to South African custom, it will be followed in the other three provinces unless another Supreme Court makes a different ruling. The Appellate Court is the final arbiter.

The provincial court did not provide an immediate explanation of its ruling. But the government was granted the right to file an appeal on Monday, which means the ruling will not take immediate effect.

The challenge to the regulations came from the United Democratic Front, a coalition of anti-apartheid groups, and from the Release Mandela Campaign, formed to urge the freedom of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

The court overturned prohibitions on reporting, recording or photographing any news or comment on security force action or deployment.

Also overturned was a prohibition on reporting or comment about any restricted gathering, including disclosure in advance of the time, date, place or purpose, and a ban on an account of any speech, statement or remark made at such a gathering.

The regulations set forth in December extended previous rules imposed under the nationwide state of emergency declared June 12, 1986.

A police spokesman, who declined to be further identified, said riot police surrounded a house at about 2 a.m. today in Umlazi, 10 miles south of the Indian Ocean port of Durban. After police ordered the inhabitants to come out, two women emerged.

A man opened fire from the back of the house. He was hit by police gunfire and ran back into the house, the spokesman said.

As the exchange of fire continued, another man came out of the house and was shot dead.

Boat Blast Kills Boy

BATH, N.C. (AP) — A 4-year-old boy was killed and his mother, father and sister were injured after the boat they were riding apparently exploded shortly after refueling at a Bath marina, authorities say.

The body of Jeremiah Leggett was found early this morning, said Beaufort County Sheriff Nelson Sheppard. His father, Joseph Thomas Leggett, 33, of Beaufort County, was in critical condition at Pitt County Hospital with severe burns, Sheppard said.

Marian Sawyer Leggett, 31, and Sandra Jennings Leggett, 10, were treated and released from Beaufort County Hospital, Sheppard said.

"We really don't know at this point what caused the explosion," Sheppard said, adding that agents from the State Bureau of Investigation had been called to the scene.

The boat exploded at about 9 p.m. Thursday shortly after it had been refueled at the Quarterdeck Marina, Sheppard said. Three men who saw the explosion ran outside and "were able to get to the boat and rescue the daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Leggett," he said.

Witnesses J.C. Morgan and Reuben Braddy said they and a third man, Skip Horney, jumped into Back Creek and pulled Leggett, Ms. Leggett and the girl from the burning boat.

"I just sat there and watched him cry," Braddy said of the boy. "It's the most terrible thing I have ever seen. I tried to get him to jump. He never left that boat. He was engulfed by fire. There couldn't be anything left on that boat."

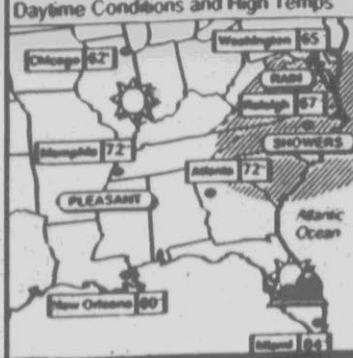

"I will probably see that boy's head a thousand times," Morgan said.

"The explosion near about knocked me down standing in that door," said Morgan.

"I just saw it explode. I just did what needed to be done," Braddy said.

Thursday Thefts

Investigators said five thefts were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer Darryl Bazemore said a coat was taken from a coin laundry near the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 1:04 p.m., while Officer W.C. Widener said a wallet containing $8 in cash was taken from 1618 Lincoln Drive in an incident reported at 1:16 p.m.

Officer R.J. Brewington said a 13-year-old was turned over to juvenile authorities after he allegedly took a $1.09 candy bar from the Farm Fresh store about 2:13 p.m., while Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said a 12-line telephone valued at $125 was taken from the Employment Security Commission office at 3101 Bismark St. in an incident reported at 2:24 p.m.

According to Officer W.S. Heath, a wallet containing $150 in cash was taken from a customer's purse at Kroger Sav-on on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 6:05 p.m.

Assault Charge

Greenville police arrested Samuel Dixon, 45, of 1400 W. Sixth St. on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious bodily injury about 10 p.m. Thursday in connection with an earlier stabbing incident.

Officer B.W. Lewis said Dixon was charged in connection with an incident reported at 4:18 p.m. in which Robert Lee Little of 504 Roundtree Drive was stabbed at the intersection of Conley Street and Roundtree Drive.

Drug Counts Lodged

Drug charges were lodged against Timothy Truscott Ferrier, 18, of Erie, Pa., early today by Greenville police.

Officer C.A. Elks said Ferrier was arrested about 12:45 a.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Washington streets on charges of possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, and resisting, obstructing and delaying an officer.

Revolver Stolen

Greenville police said a .32 caliber pistol was taken from 1400 Myrtle Ave. earlier this week.

Officer J.G. Jenkins said the theft of the revolver was reported about 11:46 p.m. on Wednesday.

Break-In Arrest

Alvin Ray Daniel, 32, of Route 4, Greenville, was arrested by Greenville police on two counts of breaking, entering and larceny Thursday.

Detective S.B. Pass said the charges stemmed from an April 11 break-in at Cox TV Center on Memorial Drive in which a video camcorder and tripod, a compact disc player and a cassette tape player, with a combined value of $2,134, were taken and an April 20 break-in at the Goodyear Tire Center in the Buyer's Market at West End Circle in which two video cassette recorders and a television set, with a combined value of $1,700, were stolen.

Computer Project Wins State Award

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Cooperation between the Pitt County court system and the Department of Social Services recently was recognized with an award for outstanding achievement presented by the North Carolina Child Support Council.

Sandra Gaskins, Pitt County clerk of court, and John Jablonski, child support supervisor for DSS, were honored for achievement in child support enforcement for their joint effort in computerizing the local enforcement program.

The interagency cooperation yielded a system that was hailed at the conference as "the best that exists in North Carolina," Jablonski said. "That is why two of the five state awards went to Pitt County."

"It is because of the joint effort that was put forth" that the system is in operation, he said. "It is an example of what can happen when agencies work together."

Working with the Pitt County Data Processing Unit and with Jablonski and other persons at DSS, Ms. Gaskins implemented a computerized system for child support enforcement which began operation in April of 1984.

"In October 1983, a new support law was passed giving the clerk of court the responsibility for enforcing child support," Ms. Gaskins said.

Prior to that time, persons who did not pay the required child support payments were not brought to court unless someone complained that the payments were not received, she said. The new ruling mandated that persons who did not pay the support on time be prosecuted.

The computerization of the records allows both the clerk of court and the child support agents access to payment amounts and dates so as to enforce the policy efficiently.

Features of the new system include automatic calculation of child support accounts and issuance of delinquency notices. Cash transactions also are handled by the system, as well as daily, weekly and monthly reports.

The computerized system keeps track of 1,718 regular support cases handled by the courts and 1,652 Social Services cases.

Since the transfer of accounts to the new system, child support collections monitored by DSS have risen from an average of $41,986 per month to a current average of $74,261. This increase in collections occurred without additional staff.

There has also been an increase in the child support funds collected through the court system, Ms. Gaskins said. From June 1, 1986 until now, a total of $1,891,857 has been collected through the program.

Ms. Gaskins has been clerk of court for Pitt County since 1978. She has been employed in the clerk's office since 1969. She is a member of the Pitt County Shrinettes and the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

Jablonski, a graduate of East Carolina University, has been associated with the DSS child support program since 1975.

Class Had Speaker

Javier Castillo, chief financial officer for Lawrence Behr Associates Inc., Greenville, spoke in Spanish recently to the Spanish for international business class at East Carolina University.

He discussed several topics, including the use of Spanish in international business and international trade between the United States and Latin America.

Scholarship Funds

An additional $15,000 has been contributed to the existing Josephus Daniels Scholarship Fund at Peace College, Raleigh, by the Josephus Daniels Charitable Foundation, funded by the News and Observer Publishing Co.

The gift supplements the $50,000 fund established in March 1986 to give financial assistance to students.

Soloist Chosen

Judith B. Brown, a registered nurse, will conduct the workshop.

Scholars Weekend

The recent annual Scholars Weekend program at East Carolina University was attended by 65 high school juniors from 34 North Carolina counties.

Students were nominated by their principals due to their high scores on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test and their high academic averages.

Area students participating were Kathy Peed of Williamston High School, Beth Chester and Curtis Wilson of Ayden-Grifton, Melanie Joy Hardee of D.H. Conley, and Scott Strickland of Farmville Central.

While at ECU, the scholars lived in student dorms, attended classes and talked with professors about academic programs.

The program is directed by an ad hoc committee comprised of faculty and staff. The committee is chaired by Dr. David Sanders, an ECU professor of English and director of the honors program.

Boy Scout Project

Boy Scout Troop 826 visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. T.B. Lupton Sr. recently to clean the gutters and windows on the back porch in order to earn points toward the upcoming council camporee.

Those who volunteered for the service project were: David Allen, patrol leader; Paul Allen, assistant senior patrol leader; Kevin Hardy, Brian Rose, patrol leader; Arron Tschetter, quartermaster, and Marty Tschetter.

Two-Sided Problem

The donnybrook over adult basic education funds for North Carolina's community colleges is a two-faceted problem.

On one side is a state legislature, using the old approach of throwing money at a problem to solve it. On the other side is a community college system with no concrete plan in place to appropriately spend these much-needed funds.

There is little doubt that money is desperately required to combat adult illiteracy in the state. That was the motivation behind the $14.3 million earmarked by the N.C. General Assembly for programs geared to adults with less than an eighth-grade education.

But the lawmakers set aside those funds out of the regular budget rather than providing additional monies. That means some regularly-funded programs had to suffer under the special allocation. State officials shouldn't have been surprised when funds were spent on adult education — but not necessarily to fight illiteracy.

Community colleges, however, — Pitt Community College included — must shoulder their share of the blame. Their record on spending the illiteracy funds is questionable. Statewide, only $8.47 million — 59.1 percent — actually was spent on adult basic education. At PCC, the record is worse — $47,906 of $319,574, 6.3 percent, in adult basic education money funded the fight against illiteracy.

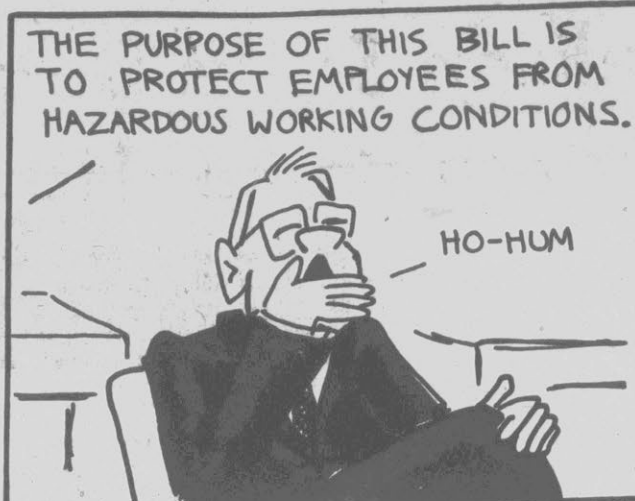

Clearly, the community colleges should have had a comprehensive plan in place for putting the funds to use. They shouldn't operate on the "get money, then appropriate" system. Granted, adults that can't read or write are hard to reach. Even when they are identified they are even more difficult to persuade into programs.

But the need is clear. Illiteracy is a serious problem and the legislature's focus on fighting it is correct. Perhaps a more gradual funding approach, however, with more time for the community colleges to plan spending, would reap better results.

The community colleges should take this opportunity to build programs aimed at reaching those in the community who can't read and write, and drawing them to classes that can provide these skills.

The situation suggests a better method of funding education programs should be looked at by lawmakers.

Only with communication and cooperation between budget-makers and those who administrate the state's education system can problems like illiteracy be positively affected by funding. The current confusion clearly illustrates that fact.

Martin And Jordan: Similar Opposites

RALEIGH — As Jim Martin and Bob Jordan square off as the almost certain gubernatorial nominees of the Republican and Democratic parties, their differences in economic development strategy will be easy to see.

Both men say government should work as a partner with business, and both stress their ties to the business community. In that regard, the candidates are similar. Neither is running, for example, on an anti-business platform. (Such a platform would be unusual for North Carolina, but it is not uncommon in other states.)

The two men advocate that government do the groundwork for economic development. Both, therefore, stress the need to improve the public schools and the state's public works. Both are presenting plans to the 1987 General Assembly for school construction and for water and sewer facilities.

Once past these basics, however, the differences between the two candidates become obvious. Martin, who will be seeking reelection, advocates a stand-out-of-the-way approach to economic development. Jordan, the lieutenant governor, advocates active involvement by government.

'Martin, who will be seeking reelection, advocates a stand-out-of-the-way approach to economic development. Jordan, the lieutenant governor, advocates active involvement by government.'

Legislation proposed by Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, a manufacturer and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, exemplifies the difference in philosophy. Rauch is proposing a Jordan idea to give state corporate income tax credits to employers who expand their workforces in the state's 20 most economically depressed counties. Martin opposes targeted tax credits and favors across the board tax cuts for industry.

In this case, Jordan says government should take an active role in pointing to the geographic areas where development is needed. Martin's approach is that once a good business climate is created, development will follow, especially if those depressed areas prepare themselves for growth.

Another difference comes in the area of venture capital funds. Martin proposes to allow state trust funds to invest a small portion of their money into established private venture capital funds. (Venture capital is a risky, but often highly rewarding, investment. Neither man proposes a non-voluntary commitment of trust funds.) Jordan says the state ought to create a semi-governmental venture capital fund and lure capital into it by granting tax credits to investors.

There the Jordan approach to active involvement is easily contrasted to the Martin approach of leaving things in private hands.

One final example may best explain the difference. Both candidates want to make it easier for business to get the licenses they need to operate in the state. Martin is proposing to create an office in the Commerce Department which would counsel businesses on the licenses that will be required of them. They would then run the maze of licensing bureaus and agencies themselves.

Jordan, the candidate who wants government more active, says the state should do the running around. He proposes a one-stop license office.

With a few exceptions, businesses would come to this office and apply for licenses. Then state workers in that office would contact the licensing agencies and secure the licenses for the businesses.

In the past, Republicans have accused Democrats of being anti-business and pro-big government. The GOP was saying that Democratic beliefs in government's ability to solve problems was against the interests of business. In 1988, the Democrats will be saying that an active government is in the best interests of North Carolina business.

Cause For Concern

Most citizens wrestle with the death penalty on moral and religious grounds.

When it comes to particularly heinous crimes, however, it seems a majority of citizens believe that capital punishment is correct if we are to maintain a civilized society.

Through the years the United States Supreme Court has wavered on the application of capital punishment and, at this time, the application of the death penalty is legal under Supreme Court rulings.

There has to be concern, though, when the court rules that even statistics indicating racial bias are not enough to overturn the death penalty. A split court ruled that way Wednesday. By a 5-4 vote the court upheld the death penalty in a Georgia case even though statistics were presented which show from 1973 to 1978 those who killed whites were 11 times more likely to receive the death penalty than those who killed blacks.

The ruling seems to eliminate the possible pattern of racial bias in higher court consideration of death sentence appeals.

That is bothersome, even if one accepts the premise that there are crimes so heinous that the death penalty is an acceptable final result. There is none who can deny that over the decades the death penalty has been applied unevenly in the United States. A poor black on trial for murder was more likely to receive death than a white. That is borne out even today by the study which accompanied this case.

Progress has been made in obtaining fairer trials for minorities in recent decades. Still the possibility of bias is there. The courts should have the range to examine cases for evidence of patterns of bias in a capital case. The Georgia death penalty case and the narrow Supreme Court ruling on the Georgia death penalty law should cause us all to consider its ramifications.

NATO And Congress Worry About Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West is experiencing a phenomenon U.S. arms control director Kenneth Adelman calls "approach-avoidance."

Now that a desired goal — reducing nuclear weapons — is within reach, various members of the NATO alliance and Congress are having second thoughts about achieving it.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who might be expected to hail an accord with the Soviets, has called for caution.

There is hand-wringing within the alliance. Would the treaty denuclearize Western Europe? Would it damage the strategy of flexible response?

Secretary of State George Shultz is trying to allay those concerns. Numerous arms control experts, usually critical of the Reagan administration, are lined up with him.

By nature, Shultz is a cautious man. He declined to give Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev final approval in Moscow last week of the tentative scheme they worked out for removing hundreds of nuclear missiles from Europe.

The U.S. missiles went in with the consent of the allies, or at their behest, if you subscribe to the theory that the deployment was engineered by former West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

They will come out only with NATO's approval.

So Shultz went directly from Moscow to Brussels to consult. The hand-holding operation will continue on several levels at least until mid-May.

If the allies decide to bless the U.S.-Soviet deal, 108 Pershing 2 missiles would be pulled out of West Germany and another 208 ground-launched cruise missiles in Belgium, Britain, Italy and West Germany would be scrapped.

In exchange, the Soviets would dismantle 270 SS-20 missiles and 112 SS-4 rockets aimed at Western Europe.

But that's not all.

The 171 SS-20s in Soviet Asia would be drawn down to 33 rockets, all confined to a spot where U.S. monitors could keep an eye on the mobile weapons.

Gorbachev last week threw in the 50 or so shorter-range missiles the Soviets keep in East Germany and Czechoslovakia. They would be destroyed.

He indicated, but apparently without being explicit, that another 80 shorter-range missiles in the Soviet Union also would be dismantled.

This week, Gorbachev proposed separate negotiations over their fate, a move that Adelman called "some-what of a walk back" from what the Soviet leader had told Shultz in Moscow.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators, who opened a new round of talks Thursday in Geneva, eventually will have to grapple with that problem.

Whatever the solution, this much is clear: The United States, which has no shorter-range missiles in Europe, obviously would not have to give any up.

However, none could be deployed in the future.

And that is what has made some allies nervous. The Pershing 2 and cruise missiles would be withdrawn, and no shorter-range U.S. missiles would take their place.

Shultz responded to that concern Thursday by assuring the NATO countries that the United States still would have an awesome and flexible nuclear arsenal.

Some of these weapons are in Europe on bombers and on submarines. The others are back home, but with globe-girdling range and therefore capable of hitting Soviet territory.

"There will be, whatever may be the outcome of this negotiation, thousands of nuclear weapons dedicated to Europe that will be able to implement the NATO doctrine of flexible response," Shultz said.

That might not satisfy all the West European leaders, however.

The strategy of flexible response is based on the notion that the Soviets are more likely to be deterred from launching an invasion if they face the prospect of U.S. nuclear retaliation from Western Europe.

The question is whether the other American missiles would serve the same restraining purpose or would the Soviets gamble that the United States would not respond with strategic weapons — though it might have with smaller nuclear arms?

Three American arms control specialists and a former Army secretary supported Shultz at a news conference Thursday sponsored by the Arms Control Association, a think-tank that has taken the lead since 1981 in questioning whether President Reagan's arms control proposals are sincere.

Barry Schweid covers diplomacy and national security for The Associated Press and reported from Moscow and Brussels on Secretary of State George Shultz's talks.

Strength For Today

Christians have a conviction that beyond the seen order is an unseen order with strengthens them in time of persecution. A story illustrating this conviction is told about Admiral Coligny, a French commander, who lived about 300 years ago and was appointed to defend the little town of St. Quentin against the Spaniards. When surrender seemed inevitable, the Spaniards offered reasonable terms. Admiral Coligny's reply consisted of two latin words, "Regem habemus" — "We have a king." This show of valor strengthened the garrison until the day of victory arrived.

So it has always been with Christians. Citizens of different nations, we nevertheless keep our minds and hopes fixed upon a celestial kingdom. Loyal to our earthly magistrates, we give our supreme allegiance to a king who is unseen.

Hardison Seeks Democratic Nomination For No. 2 Spot

RALEIGH (AP) — Veteran legislative insider Harold W. Hardison has entered what promises to be a crowded race for lieutenant governor, saying his reputation as a staunch business ally will be an advantage.

"When you're talking about business, you're talking about jobs."

And I'm a friend of all business," Hardison, an eight-term state senator, said Thursday as he announced his candidacy at the state Democratic headquarters.

HARDISON

Hardison is regarded as perhaps the most conservative of the half-dozen or more Democrats expected to compete for state government's second-ranking post.

While some observers say conservatives historically have not done as well as moderates in Democratic primaries, Hardison said his polling suggested his image "is going to be a plus."

But he downplayed ideology, focusing instead on his experience.

A lifelong resident of Deep Run in Lenoir County, Hardison, 63, spent four terms as chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee and a close ally of former Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. He now chairs the Commerce Committee.

The campaign for lieutenant governor is shaping up as the most vigorously contested of the 1988 races among state Democrats because the incumbent, Bob Jordan, is expected to run for governor and face little or no opposition for the party's nomination.

Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, said in an interview he expected Hardison to do well and would make an ideal running-mate for Jordan. Hardison "is a conservative, and he's from the east," Harris said, while Jordan "is sort of in-between" and hails from Montgomery County.

Other Democrats who have expressed interest in the lieutenant governor's race include Rufus Edmisten, the former state attorney general and unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial nominee in 1984; Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland; Reps. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, Jim Crawford, D-Granville, and Bob Etheridge, D-Harnett; and former Reps. Parks Helms of Charlotte and Tom Gilmore of Julian.

No Republican has declared his candidacy. But Rep. Bill Boyd, R-Randolph, and former Sen. Wendell Sawyer, R-Guilford, have established exploratory committees. John Carrington, a Raleigh businessman who lost to Jordan in 1984, is expected to run again.

The only duties assigned to the lieutenant governor in the state Constitution are to preside over the Senate and serve on the Council of State and the State Board of Education.

However, the post has become increasingly powerful in recent years. By assigning senators to committees and appointing Senate committee chairmen, the lieutenant governor can do much to determine the fate of proposed legislation.

"In the most literal sense, he helps guide and steer legislation from proposals into laws that can affect every citizen of this state," Hardison said.

Hardison said he would accept contributions from business and industry political action committees, but declined to say how much he planned to spend on his campaign. His press secretary, Jerry Mobley, said up to $1.25 million might be needed.

Hardison acknowledged that some critics have described him as an enemy of environmental protection. He sponsored what is known as the "Hardison amendment" — which prohibits the state from adopting environmental regulations stricter than those imposed by the federal government.

Charlotte Awarded Gateway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department approved the designation of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Charlotte, N.C., as new sites for direct, non-stop flights between London and the United States.

Last month, an administrative judge recommended that the Cincinnati site, as proposed by Delta Air Lines, and the Charlotte site, as proposed by Piedmont Aviation, be designated to fill two open "gateway" slots for direct flights from London to the United States.

The Transportation Department made the decision final Thursday. The White House has 60 days to review the decision for foreign policy and national defense considerations, but officials said that process has been a formality in the past.

"We're delighted," said Delta spokesman William Berry. "It's going to land Cincinnati into the trans-Atlantic market."

A bilateral agreement between the United States and the United Kingdom limits the number of gateways between the two countries.

Delta and Piedmont had been competing against American Airlines and Pan American World Airways for the two open routes. American was seeking London service from Raleigh-Durham, N.C., and Pan Am from Pittsburgh.

Delta has made Greater Cincinnati International Airport in northern Kentucky one of its hub airports, with 110 outgoing flights a day. Berry said Delta will move to begin the London service as soon as possible, probably sometime around July 1.

Delta and Cincinnati officials had urged the department to select the Queen City for one of the new slots, arguing that Ohio was the largest state in the nation without a gateway.

Berry said the flights will enhance Cincinnati's reputation by attracting companies interested in direct London air service.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who had supported the Cincinnati site said the service "will bring residents of the Queen City that much closer to the Queen's city."

House Committee Backs AIDS Proposal

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill aimed at curbing prostitution by those with the AIDS virus has won a House committee's unanimous approval while a measure to require AIDS testing for prison inmates is in the works.

The Judiciary I Committee agreed it should be a felony for prostitute testing positive for the AIDS virus to continue selling sex. The vote came after lawmakers were told that the bill would also affect the clients of prostitutes.

"The whole purpose of this legislation is to require that a person convicted of prostitution be tested (for acquired immune deficiency syndrome) because of the fact that they are a walking, loaded gun if they have the AIDS virus," said Rep. Trip Sizemore, R-Guilford, one sponsor of the bill. He said those complaining about including clients were "making a mountain out of a mole hill."

But State Health Director Ron Levine said he was surprised to learn that anyone other than prostitutes would be included and proposed changing it.

"We're after the prostitute. I would urge the committee to find language that would focus on the prostitute," he said. "They are a serious potential source if they were to be infected."

Phosphate Ban Passes House, Awaits Senate Concurrence

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — After a debate that hit everything from alligators to algae blooms, the House held off a series of crippling amendments and approved a statewide ban on phosphorus on household laundry detergents.

Thursday's 65-45 House passage sent the bill to the Senate, where a similar version passed 30-16 on March 30. Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, House sponsor of the bill, said Senate sponsor Russell Walker, D-Randolph, would recommend concurrence in three House amendments. If the Senate concurs, the bill would be enacted.

Most of the debate came over an amendment to limit the ban to areas where phosphorus poses the greatest threat to aquatic life.

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, urged lawmakers not to make housewives in unaffected areas use inferior detergents. He said lakes in his area didn't need to be protected from algae blooms spawned by phosphorus.

"We need this high-powered detergent in my part of the world," he said.

Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover, ironically applauded Wright's speech, saying, "We've brought in farmers, we've brought in alligators, we've brought in the boys on Lake Waccamaw."

Payne said the amendment would leave an area out of the ban "until it turns blue, 'til all the fish die, 'til all the alligators run up on shore."

Rep. Bruce Ethridge, D-Onslow, said consumer studies showed the top three cleaning detergents had no phosphorus. Then Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, House sponsor of the bill, mounted a series of arguments in which he attacked detergent industry lobbyists.

"Representative Wright has done a good job of repeating many of the homilies given to you by the soap and detergent representatives," he said.

Hackney said there was no guarantee the affected areas would be placed under a ban if the amendment were adopted. And he said a regional ban might not be constitutional.

"The opponents of this bill ... would be pleased to have you pass an unconstitutional bill and then file a lawsuit and have it declared unconstitutional and that would be the end of that," he said. "I don't think this amendment is intended to do anything but cripple the bill."

Hackney said the statewide ban would help municipalities save money in removing the phosphorus left from the water.

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, raised an analogy with scurvy, a disease that afflicted mariners until they learned it could be prevented by eating citrus fruit.

"Do we have to all get scurvy before we start eating oranges?" he asked.

"What this bill does is take the first halting step toward changing our sorry habits," he said. "And what our sorry habits are doing folks is destroying the water around us. ... We have fouled nests and it is time to stop it."

Speaker Pro Tem Jack Hunt, D-Cleveland, said North Carolina should follow Virginia's lead in protecting neighboring states by adopting a ban.

"Virginia bit the bullet and passed the ban," he said. "I think we ought to do the same thing for South Carolina."

Rep. Marie Colton, D-Buncombe, noted that housewives in the House split 10-6 for the statewide ban earlier.

"I'm a little ol' housewife in tennis shoes, and I've been using phosphate-free detergent for many years, and my tennis shoes are pretty white," she said. "I think we're just debating a ridiculous thing when we start talking about housewives."

Wright repeated his claim that phosphates improve detergents and rejected Mavretic's arguments about scurvy.

"The problem with this bill is that we pass out the slice of orange to everybody but the housewife," he said.

The House also voted 56-54 against an amendment to repeal the bill after two years and 60-48 against a bid to remove an exemption for textile and industrial cleaners.

After the bill won approval, supporters predicted it could be enacted as early as Monday.

Drowning

DALLAS, N.C. (AP) — A 14-year-old Dallas youth drowned Tuesday after he and five other companions went swimming in a small lake during spring break.

Rescue workers said Stephen Craig Breedlove was dead on arrival at Gaston Memorial Hospital.

Train Deaths

LATTIMORE, N.C. (AP) — Two Forest City men were killed Thursday when their car collided with a CSX Transportation Systems train in Lattimore.

The victims were identified as the driver, Shannon Deon Wood, 19, and his father, Edward Eugene Wood, 55.

Chris Cobb of Forest City, who witnessed the accident, said the car turned into the path of the train about 11 a.m.

The North Carolina Highway Patrol is investigating the accident.

"I couldn't believe they didn't stop," Cobb said. "I couldn't believe they didn't hear the whistle."

Beating

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A 71-year-old Davidson County woman was beaten and her throat was cut Wednesday during a robbery of the woman's grocery store, authorities said.

Jessie Poole Grubb was in stable condition Thursday at Lexington Memorial Hospital.

Donald P. Alberty, 32, and his fiancée, Deborah Sutton Woodring, 23, were arrested Wednesday and charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury, and robbery with a dangerous weapon, said Davidson County Sheriff Paul "Jaybird" McCrary.

Chatham Laws

DURHAM (AP) — A bill filed this week in the General Assembly by Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, would repeal more than 100 obsolete laws in Chatham County that were passed between 1895 and 1949.

Under a Chatham County law passed in 1899, all able-bodied males between the ages of 21 and 45 must spend four days each year working on county roads or be fined $2 to $5 or sentenced to more road work.

The laws, still on the books, also give a picture of problems of the times. Animal control, for example, was a vexing issue.

A number of the statutes scheduled for repeal deal with "stock laws" that regulated where animals could graze freely, Hackney said.

Placement

GREENSBORO (AP) — The North Carolina attorney general's office has been asked to investigate the placement of a teen-age boy with a man who pleaded guilty in 1984 to a charge of assaulting a child, the Greensboro News & Record reported Thursday.

The investigation will focus on the role played by Guilford County Department of Social Services Director Frank Wilson in helping with the placement. Wilson said he was not aware of an investigation and declined to comment on any juvenile matters.

In addition, Guilford County District Attorney Jim Kimel is looking into allegations that Richard Watts Jennings violated his 1984 probation sentence when he sought and gained custody of a 13-year-old boy from a Pennsylvania court last summer. His probation specifically barred him from associating with male children under the age of 18 for five years.

That child-custody case involving Jennings and Wilson will be reviewed by state and local prosecutors.

Resignation

GREENSBORO (AP) — A former candidate for sheriff in Forsyth County has resigned as a North Carolina Highway Patrol officer after being charged with soliciting to commit a crime against nature.

Robert Dean Woods, 47, of Rural Hall resigned April 16, said Capt. B.Q. McDonald, the patrol commander in Greensboro. McDonald said Woods gave no reason for his resignation.

Woods was arrested April 8 and was charged with soliciting a Greensboro police officer to commit a crime against nature, according to court records. The incident occurred at 11:35 p.m. at a Greensboro intersection.

Dynamite Brings On Evacuation

CHARLOTTE (AP) — At least 200 people were evacuated from houses, apartments and businesses in a four-square-block area of Charlotte after 500 sticks of dynamite were found stacked between two buildings, police say.

A passerby found the five cases of dynamite between a business and house Thursday evening. Each case was marked explosive and contained 100 sticks of dynamite. The cases, which appeared to be old, were stacked in tall grass next to a utility pole, fire officials said.

"Evidently it had been there for several days," said Battalion Chief Jerry Holmes.

Police said they were uncertain where the dynamite came from.

Police, firefighters and bomb squad members ordered evacuations in a four-block area about 7 p.m., but residents were allowed to return to their homes about three hours later.

"We had to take every precaution," Holmes said. "Some of the dynamite was liquified and the more it liquifies, the more unstable it becomes."

Holmes described the explosives as extremely dangerous.

"I was told it could blow a hole about the size of a truck in the ground," he said. An explosion would have shattered windows for blocks, Holmes said.

Four police officers and an off-duty firefighter who works as a volunteer police reserve officer drove the dynamite about three-quarters of a mile to an open field. Five police squad cars, their blue lights flashing, each carried a case of explosives in the trunk.

Police laid the dynamite in 10 piles on cut-up wooden pallets and doused each with diesel fuel. They lighted the piles, which burned with bright yellow flames, but did not explode, as police and firefighters watched from 100 yards away.

While police officers worked to dispose of the explosives, Ruby Johnson, 69, stood barefoot on a streetcorner near her home. She didn't have time to put on her shoes when ordered to evacuate.

"They came and told me to get out and I ran," she said. Her front door is less than 100 feet from where the dynamite was found.

Cradling her Chihuahua, Punkin, under her housecoat, Ms. Johnson said she spotted the crates Thursday morning.

"I thought it was garbage," she said. "I know it said explosives but I thought it was garbage."

Police Maj. J.M. Cherry said 100 sticks of dynamite found Wednesday night along another street matched the dynamite found Thursday. Police are investigating where the dynamite came from.

Fiery New Hanover Airplane Crash Leaves Two Dead

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Two people were killed when a twin-engine cargo plane crashed into a wooded area near New Hanover County Airport after one of its engines caught fire on takeoff, authorities say.

Lt. Jim Price of the airport office of public safety said the pilot and a passenger on the Air-Lift Associates cargo plane were killed when the craft crashed in a ball of fire less than a mile from the runway Thursday night.

John Thomas Wringler, of Raleigh, the pilot of the plane, and Brad Burmahl, of Wilmington, were killed in the crash, said Sgt. Clarence Fredlaw of the Wilmington police department.

The plane, which was carrying cargo for United Parcel Service from Wilmington to Lumberton, flipped upside-down as it sliced through trees near a residential area, authorities said.

John Hoffman, president of Air-Lift, based in Raleigh, said the pilot was an Air-Lift employee who flies the Merlin IV Turbo Prop plane on a nightly schedule to Lumberton, Wilmington and Raleigh.

"The cause of the crash is not known at this time, but it is being investigated by the company and Federal Aviation Administration," Hoffman said in a prepared statement.

Gary Scott, who lives near the crash site, said he saw the plane as it started its descent into the trees.

Florida Gunman Kills Six

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer
PALM BAY, Fla. (AP) — A gunman "shooting at anything in sight" killed six people in a rampage at two shopping centers before police fired tear gas into the store where he held three hostages early today and wrestled him to the ground, authorities said.

At least 13 other people were wounded, one critically, and the hostages were freed unharmed, police said. Three people were found huddled unhurt in a refrigerated storeroom. The dead included two police officers.

William Cruse, about 60, of Palm Bay was arrested 7½ hours into the siege and was being questioned early today. No charges had been filed.

"He hasn't stated a clear motive for what he did," police spokeswoman Louise Brown said.

The gunman, who police said was armed with two rifles, one high-powered, opened fire at 6:25 p.m. Thursday at a Publix supermarket, then continued shooting as he made his way across the street into a Winn Dixie supermarket, where he took three people hostage, police said.

"This guy was shooting at anything in sight," said Stephanie Call, who worked in one of the shopping centers. "He didn't care. He was amazing. He wasn't aiming. He was just shooting at anything."

"I felt one bullet go right through the top of my hair," said Fletcher Redmond, 62, a jewelry store owner in one of the shopping centers. "I just dropped to the floor. I just knew the next shot was going to be lower."

Witnesses said the gunman continued to fire at people, including an elderly couple, after they fell to the ground.

The gunman, in contact with police by telephone, released the hostages because "he didn't want to hurt any more women," Ms. Brown said from the scene about 1 a.m.

"He asked for cars and airplanes and a number of things," but not money, said Palm Bay Police Chief Chuck Simmons. Police decided to move in when the gunman cut off negotiations, Simmons said.

About 200 police officers converged on the supermarket, firing into it tear gas and a device that emits a bright flash and a loud noise.

"They started to cuff him when they grabbed him, and he fought them all the way to the car, knocking one of those guys down," said Buddy Donald, 25, who lives nearby.

Three victims were pronounced dead at Holmes Regional Medical Center, and three were found dead in store parking lots, Simmons said. No victims' names were released.

Witnesses initially reported two gunmen with red hair carrying military rifles, one in his late 20s and the other in his 50s, Ms. Brown said. A man in his 20s was arrested soon after the shooting started, but officers later decided the man holed up at Winn Dixie was the sole assailant.

Of the 13 wounded, a 16-year-old boy was in critical condition with a gunshot wound to the abdomen and five other people were in serious but stable condition after surgery, according to Dr. D. Scott Gettings, director of emergency medicine at Holmes Regional Medical Center.

Three others were hospitalized and four others, including an infant, were treated and released, he said.

At least five school buses evacuated a few hundred people who had holed up in stores after the shooting began. They were taken to a nearby K mart to be questioned by police. They then were taken to Palm Bay City Hall to meet relatives, authorities said.

Brad Roshto was locking the front door of the Jewelry Gallery at closing time when he saw a man with a rifle.

"I heard the shots across the street," Roshto said. "I heard about 20 rounds just bam, bam, bam, bam."

Jimmie Evans was at a pay phone outside the jewelry store when the gunman took aim at the Winn Dixie supermarket next door and opened fire.

"I just hit the door and hit the floor," Evans said. "Glass sprayed across everyone."

Palm Bay, a 65-square-mile city on the Atlantic Coast about 70 miles southeast of Orlando, has a population of about 43,000.

Jury Awards Test Pilot's Widow Over $3 Million

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A federal jury has ordered General Dynamics Corp., the nation's largest defense contractor, to pay $3.1 million to the widow of a top-rated pilot whose early-model F-16 fighter jet crashed four years ago.

The negligence lawsuit brought by Janet Harduvel and her 7-year-old daughter was the first of its kind to go to trial.

"I'm very, very happy that the truth has come out," Mrs. Harduvel, 35, said Thursday after jurors issued their verdict.

General Dynamics, the jet's builder, said it would appeal. It had blamed the crash that killed Capt. Ted Harduvel on pilot error, perhaps brought on by the side effects of a medication that Harduvel had been taking until three days before his last flight.

Mrs. Harduvel's suit claimed that early-model F-16s, including Harduvel's, were flawed by faulty and potentially dangerous electrical wiring. General Dynamics, the suit claimed, knew of the danger but failed to warn the Air Force.

Mrs. Harduvel, who lives in nearby Lutz, said the verdict was a vindication of her husband, who crashed into the base of a granite mountain in South Korea while on a training flight in November 1982.

"It's not, to me, that I won," said Mrs. Harduvel. "To me, it was a question of my husband's honor, and that he was cleared."

Harduvel, 35, was a graduate of the Air Force's elite Fighter Weapons School at Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada and was a top-rated F-16 pilot and instructor at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa.

Mrs. Harduvel said she turned down an offer from General Dynamics to settle out of court for $500,000 before filing her suit in 1984. After the verdict, she and her daughter carried flowers to her husband's grave at Myrtle Hill Cemetery.

In Washington, D.C., Air Force spokesman Capt. Jerry Thomas declined to comment on the trial. But he said the Air Force stands by the safety record of the F-16, one of the fastest single-engine jets in the world.

GAO Says Unpaid Tax Will Skyrocket

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The amount of income tax owed the federal government but not collected is expected to soar within the next 17 months to $53 billion — enough to cut the 1988 budget deficit by half.

The average amount owed by these tax "deadbeats" almost tripled between 1982 and 1986, to $6,152 each, the General Accounting Office said Thursday. The total of the accounts receivable has grown from less than $25 billion in 1983.

The estimates come as no surprise to the Internal Revenue Service, whose proposed 1988 budget would assign almost 3,000 new workers to collect some of these accounts at a cost of $122 million.

With Congress looking for any painless way to reduce the budget deficit, IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs told the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee Thursday that the total of accounts receivable is unrealistically high by business standards.

For example, Gibbs said, the IRS counts as receivable taxes owed by corporations that no longer exist and by some businesses that have filed for bankruptcy. "They might have a refund in the future that we could offset" to collect all or part of the tax, he explained.

The accounts receivable are not to be confused with the $100-billion-a-year "tax gap." The larger figure represents the taxes that the government estimates would be owed if all income — including that from crime — were reported and if taxpayers were honest in claiming deductions. Receivables are taxes already assessed as owed but uncollected.

Gibbs went before the House subcommittee to defend the IRS budget that the Reagan administration has proposed for fiscal 1988, which begins next Oct. 1. The budget is for $5.1 billion, up 12 percent from this year.

The panel was told by three former IRS commissioners that more money is needed for taxpayer services, including workers to answer telephone questions and otherwise help people with their tax returns. If questions go unanswered, said Roscoe L. Egger Jr., Jerome Kurtz and Donald C. Alexander, taxpayers are likely to provide their own answers, and that could further reduce compliance with the tax laws.

Gibbs said the $261 million earmarked for taxpayer services is adequate, assuming Congress grants him authority to transfer up to $70 million from other IRS programs.

Pitt County is located approximately 30 miles inland from the coastal sounds, 80 miles from the Atlantic Ocean and roughly 150 miles from the Appalachian Mountains.

New Reagan Library Site Sought

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A foundation raising $100 million for a Ronald Reagan presidential library and policy center has dropped plans to build at Stanford University after four years of wrangling with the faculty.

The foundation said Thursday it will seek a new site in Southern California.

Stanford's trustees, acting on a recommendation by the faculty senate, had voted against the policy center in 1984 because the center would have been controlled by the Hoover Institution, a semi-independent campus think tank.

Last month, 12 former chairmen of the faculty senate said the library should be scaled down or moved farther from the center of campus. The proposed 20-acre site was approved by Reagan two years ago.

The trustees had been scheduled to take up the issue on May 12.

The foundation, which is trying to raise $70 million for the center and $30 million for the library, announced its decision in a statement that did not mention increasing complaints from the faculty about the library.

Warrent Christopher, president of Stanford's board of trustees, and Stanford president Donald Kennedy said in a statement that the university was disappointed by the decision.

At the White House, officials declined to comment.

Trustees of the foundation include Attorney General Edwin Meese III; former Reagan adviser William Clark; publisher Walter Annenberg; economist Martin Anderson; Mary Jane Wick, whose husband, Charles, heads the U.S. Information Agency, and former Attorney General William French Smith.

FROM OUR FINANCE COMMITTEE: The first quarter has come to a close and we are sending out a report of giving to those in our church who are behind. At our last finance meeting it was reported that 203 people are behind in their giving in the amount of $15,966.00. We would like for each person to catch up as soon as possible. It will help our cash flow. We are having to send out $800.00 every Monday to help pay off our bonds. Thank You.

Senate Wife Makes Fast Change

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Karnes is getting a fast introduction to her new life as a Senate wife, finding the Capitol's subways and learning where to pick up the secret key to a hideaway restroom near the Senate gallery.

A little more than six weeks ago, she was working as a school administrator at Boys Town, Neb., while raising four daughters aged 10 to 3 at home in Omaha. Then her Republican husband, David Karnes, chief lawyer for a large agribusiness firm, was appointed to succeed Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., who died March 6 of a heart attack.

Suddenly, she found herself in Washington for her husband's swearing-in March 13 as the newest and, at 38, the youngest member of the Senate.

"It's two different worlds," Mrs. Karnes said.

She said in a recent interview that she's been working outside her home since she received her Ph.D. in education from the University of Nebraska in 1975, and has never been "a corporate wife."

But after the 1988 elections, when she's convinced her husband will be elected to a full, six-year term, she plans to quit her professional career, which also includes serving as treasurer on the Omaha city school board. They'll sell their home in Omaha and the family will move to Washington.

Until then, Mrs. Karnes will commute to Washington once a month. While here a couple of weeks ago, she received a one-day crash course in being a senator's wife.

Two Senate aides showed her where to find the Senate beauty salon, the subway connecting her husband's office building with the Capitol, and the guard who keeps the secret key to the lounge reserved for members' families down the hall from the Senate gallery.

"With four little girls, that's going to be very helpful, instead of constantly trooping all the way down to the public restroom," she said with a laugh.

Mrs. Karnes was coached on introducing herself to the Capitol police and elevators, to gain easy access to areas closed to the public. She was told how to order free catered lunches, flowers, photographers and tour tickets for visiting constituents. She learned that she and her children are entitled to special police protection while her husband is traveling outside Washington.

She said she was "close to getting tears in my eyes when I met women like Mrs. Glenn (wife of Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio) whom I'd read about and admired. ... It was really exciting to meet some of those women, the women behind those men."

For herself, Mrs. Karnes said she wants to be "the woman next to the man," working alongside her husband as an office volunteer, meeting with constituents and advising the freshman senator from Nebraska on education issues.

She and her husband met as freshmen at the University of Nebraska and were married when they graduated. They've always taken turns helping each other achieve their goals, she said.

"I helped David through law school, and he helped me through graduate school," she said. "He supported me and stood beside me in my campaign for the school board, and I'll stand next to him and support him in his campaign."

But Mrs. Karnes realizes it will take a while to learn all the right names and faces — and vice versa.

The morning after Karnes took his oath as a senator, he and his wife left their downtown hotel for a six-mile jogging tour of the city, including a visit to his new office on Capitol Hill.

"We went into the door, all sweaty, and the police officer said, 'Yes?' and my husband said, 'I'm Sen. Karnes and this is Mrs. Karnes.' And the police officer said, 'Who?'"

Linen And Silk — Now Washable

By SHERYL FITZGERALD
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Silk. Linen. The very mention of the words brings complaints. Linen wrinkles. It's impossible to iron. Silk doesn't wash. The colors run. The cleaning bills cause bankruptcy.

Now, thanks to some new — and not-quite-new — technology, it ain't necessarily so. You can have your silk or linen and wash it too.

The trend toward washable silk is not exactly new. Pak Mulwani, founder of the mail-order house Royal Silk, began it in the late 1970s by offering blouses in easy-care silk. Knowing that the average consumer would not know how to manage this, Mulwani also issued booklets that told purchasers how to care for everything from tussah to silk broadcloth by hand.

In the '80s the trend was furthered by such British designers as Katharine Hamnett, who offered washable silk shirts to go with her guerrilla-chic chinos and field jackets, and English Eccentrics, which offered handpainted silk shirts in vibrant color combinations.

This spring, their ranks have been joined by a plethora of newcomers, each offering his or her own formula for making silk the next great easy-care fabric. At Kenar, owner Kenneth Zimmerman has developed a patented coating process that he says makes his silks both colorfast and hand washable. Although he would not discuss the process, other than to indicate that it uses chemicals similar to those used to treat polyester fibers, Zimmerman is enthusiastic about his new fabric. It's available in everything from T-shirts and shorts to drawstring pants, big shirts and skirts. He has also produced children's clothing — quilted baseball jackets, overalls, T-shirts and shorts — of washable silk.

Blouse designer Lloyd Williams is equally enthusiastic about "Belle Soie" his entry in the washable-silk sweepstakes. Machine washable on the gentle cycle, Belle Soie repels stains such as Coca Cola, coffee and tea and resists wrinkling.

"Women are still interested in quality," said Williams, crushing the sleeve of a Belle Soie blouse in his fist. "At the same time they are very much aware of maintenance. They want fine fabrics, but they don't want to spend a lot of time or money to keep them looking fine."

In addition, The Wear House is offering what spokeswoman Cathy Dean calls crinkle silk — handwashable silk separates that retail for under $50. At The Limited, washable silk is a bit more pricey but right on target. The firm's Forenza line styled its washable silk jumpsuit after the one worn by actor Tom Cruise in the hit film "Top Gun." It retails for $134.

But however enthusiastic designers may be about their "new" washable silks, it's really an old story, said Robert Beaulieu, chairman of the department of textile science at the Fashion Institute of Technology. "People have been wearing silk for a few millennia, but dry cleaners have only been around for about 60 years," said Beaulieu. "It sort of makes you wonder how the Japanese kept their silk kimonos clean."

What has made silk such a difficult fabric to care for over the past few decades is the fact that due to increases in the price of tin it's no longer cost effective for textile manufacturers to reweight silk fibers in the traditional way — with tin salts. Such treatment replaces the manageability lost when the natural gum coating is removed from raw silk fibers in order to dye them. "Tin weighting created a permanent bond which did not damage the fabric," Beaulieu said. "Now, due to the cost of tin, textile manufacturers are using other materials that are water soluble, that come off in the rain." These compounds, along with non-colorfast dyes, are the chief culprits when it comes to washing silk in water.

When manufacturers do come up with washable silks the compounds they do use are not all that secret, said Mary Lou Rooney, a textile chemist with the 3M Co. Williams, Zimmerman and others are probably using fluorochemical compounds or silicon to make their fabrics stain repellent and water washable. But any silk can be made stain resistant, said Rooney — all you need is a can of ScotchGard or other fabric spray.

"The whole idea that silk should not be washable is bunk," said Beaulieu. "Napoleon used silk in tents. If you go to museums you see clothing hundreds of years old that is silk. What did they do? They washed it."

Most of the technology that is being bandied about as new is actually centuries old and can be found in books in Japan and other countries if people bothered to look, he said. But until now, no one has. Instead designers made silk into a status item, like a Rollex watch. "What do you do to imbue something with status?" he asked. "You tell the consumer that it's delicate, that you need to be careful of it. But it's not true. The same type of dyes that are used to dye hair can be used on silk. I can come up with silk in colors that you can boil in the washing machine."

If modern-processed silk is fragile, linen suffers has another problem altogether. It's tough, said Beaulieu. By its very nature flax — the fiber from which linen is woven — is brittle; it has less ability to bend. Thus, he continues, flax fibers start breaking when you mess around with them and, once broken, the fabric will never again look as crisp and pristine as it did when new. Thus, he said, most designers who use linen suggest dry cleaning as a way to avoid the tumbling and agitation of machine washing — processes that batter the fibers.

Nancy Heller bypasses the issue by doing the battering for you. The result — in blazers and skirts for businesswear, shorts and big tops for leisure — is a slightly rumpled, soft and flexible linen that is strictly no-iron. In addition to the popular indigo, Heller offers her separates in celery, beige, white and black. The collection is also available in large sizes. On the other hand, Kenar's washable linens are strictly sportive — including jumpsuits, drawstring pants, snap-front work shirts and skirts in indigo or white.

With washable silk becoming an accepted idea, technologists are turning their attention to wool. Last month, Du Pont announced that it had developed a new version of Zepel, a compound previously used to make manmade fibers stain-repellent, for use on wool. Meanwhile, a new compound called Dylan-Ultrasoft, which claims to make wool shrink-resistant, is being marketed to wool manufacturers in Britain. HEART DISEASE

NEW YORK (AP) — There are several studies which suggest that drinking in moderation can reduce the risk of heart disease, says Dr. Bruce Hensel, a contributing editor to Family Circle magazine.

Moderate drinking, he says, can raise levels of the protective kind of cholesterol — highly-density lipoprotein — in the blood. There are also indications, he says, that alcohol's relaxing effects can be beneficial to some people since stress, too, has been implicated in the development of heart disease.

'Coke' Causing Life To Crumble

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a serious problem. I started using cocaine two years ago, and now it has become a terrible habit. I seem to need more and more.

I am a union steam pipe fitter and my take-home pay is $520 a week, but I'm always broke. My landlord is threatening to evict me unless I pay him what I owe him, and I'm two months behind in my car payments. My girlfriend of three years has left me for good, and my life is crumbling around me.

Abby, I have never used any other kind of drugs, but this one has got me in such a terrible mess because I can't live without it.

There's a drug clinic in town I would like to go to for help, but if I do, how can I keep it from my family? They are good and loving people, but they'd never understand.

I can't give you my name, so please help me by printing this. I'll be checking the Dear Abby column every day. Thank you. — DESPERATE IN MARYLAND

DEAR DESPERATE: Don't hide and don't lie. The stress of deception will only add to your problems. If you have a loving family, tell them the truth. I promise you, they will understand, and respect you for admitting to a problem you can't handle alone and are dealing with intelligently. Good luck and God bless you. Write again soon and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: A longtime friend of mine is getting married and she has asked me to be a bridesmaid. She has also asked me if my 4-year-old daughter would be her flower girl. I told her yes, and went ahead and had identical gowns made for me and my daughter. I don't mind telling you that this is costing me an arm and leg.

My husband just told me that he wants me to tell my friend that if this wedding is called off, she will have to reimburse me for the money I laid out for our clothes.

Should I mention this to her, or would I be out of line? — BEST FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Unless your friend is a certified flake, having already accepted, you would be out of line to mention it now.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has this question for you. Is it proper for a girl to say to a boy on their first or second date, "If you were thinking about kissing me goodnight, it's OK with me"? — ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR ALLENTOWN: Only if you're absolutely positive he's thinking about it. Imagine how embarrassing it would be (for both of you) if he weren't.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to you complaining that nobody told her about a friend's child's death until it was "too late" for her to offer support and comfort.

Tell her that if she thinks three months is "too late," may she never lose a child. — STILL CRYING IN PORTLAND

DEAR STILL: May she, or anyone else, never lose a child. Under any circumstances, that is without question the most heartbreaking tragedy a person can experience.

Features like doubled knees and reinforced pockets, elbows and zippers help children's clothing hold up.

Workshop Held For New Program

GRIMESLAND — A workshop introducing "Ag in the Classroom" was held at G.R. Whitfield School Monday afternoon.

Bob Jenkins, president of N. C. Farm Bureau of Raleigh; Phama Mullen, coordinator of the program; Janice Bliss, director of women's programs; Ken Powell, district field representative of the organization; and Alma Worthington of Pitt County Farm Bureau conducted the session for grades K-4.

Slides, lesson plans, treasure boxes and computer discs were used.

Mrs. Worthington said, "Agriculture is the oldest and largest industry in North Carolina, contributing more than 16 billion annually to the income of North Carolinians."

"The purpose of this program is to teach our children to understand and appreciate the way agriculture influences their lives, she said.

Mavs, Lakers Get Easy Wins

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

It didn't take long to prove to the Denver Nuggets and Seattle SuperSonics that they didn't belong on the same court with the Los Angeles Lakers and Dallas Mavericks.

"We wouldn't even show up for the next game if the league would let us," Denver Coach Doug Moe said with a resigned laugh after the Lakers matched an NBA playoff record with 82 points in the first half en route to a 128-95 victory over the Nuggets in their first-round playoff opener Thursday night.

"It was over in the first quarter," Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said following a 151-129 loss at Dallas in which the Mavericks set a team scoring record. "We've got to be realistic. Dallas is a better team than we are. We've got to solve our problems and don't have much time to do it. We'll come back with something."

The other two playoff openers were closer, with the home team also winning. Boston edged Chicago 108-104 and Utah defeated Golden State 99-85 in the Warriors' first playoff game in 10 years.

In tonight's series openers, it's Indiana at Atlanta, Washington at Detroit, Philadelphia at Milwaukee and Houston at Portland.

The Nuggets-Lakers game was highlighted by an 80-foot basket by Earvin "Magic" Johnson at the halftime buzzer. It gave Los Angeles an 82-53 lead, equalling the NBA record set by San Antonio, also against Denver, in 1983.

Johnson, who had 16 points and 14 assists, rebounded a miss by the Nuggets' Bill Hanzlik, whirled to his right with one second on the clock and threw the ball the length of the court. The ball hit the back of the rim and fell in.

"I saw Fernando (Valenzuela) pitch last night and kinda stole it out of his book," Johnson said. "I just got the ball, threw it and it went on a straight line. I knew it had a chance. I've done it in practice before, but it's a one-in-a-million shot."

James Worthy scored 21 of his 28 points in the first half for the Lakers, who beat the Nuggets five consecutive times in the regular season by an average of 22 points. Los Angeles went on to a largest lead of 111-64 in the second half.

A.C. Green scored 20 points for the Lakers and Byron Scott had 17, while Blair Rasmussen led the Nuggets with 26 points and 13 rebounds.

Mavericks 151, SuperSonics 129
Nine Dallas players scored in double figures in the rout of Seattle, led by Mark Aguirre with 28 points.

"I knew the game was over after four minutes," Coach Dick Motta said. "We were very intense. We were real serious. We had practiced that way during the week."

Motta said the lifting of the Mavericks' first-ever Midwest Division championship banner to the rafters shortly before the game got the team fired up.

"It got 'em real emotional," Motta said. "We want Seattle to know we are better. Seattle is very capable of giving us trouble if we don't pay attention."

Dallas scored 149 points twice in 1985 for its previous high total in a game. Reserve guard Dennis Nutt hit the 151st point with 10 seconds remaining.

Roy Tarpley had 25 points and 11 rebounds and Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman had 18 points apiece for the Mavericks. Tom Chambers was high for the Sonics with 35 points, and Dale Ellis scored 22.

The Mavericks surged to a 77-59 lead at halftime, the most points they scored in a half this season and the most ever in a playoff game.

Celtics 108, Bulls 104

Boston led by as many as 21 points in the first half, but needed a 12-foot jumper with 37 seconds left to beat Chicago and win its 30th consecutive home game.

A 19-5 spurt by the Bulls tied the game 100-100 after they trailed 95-81 with 7:37 left. After an exchange of points tied the score 104-104 in the final minute, Parish's shot from the lane put the Celtics ahead for good.

Michael Jordan, who scored 35 points, was triple-teamed on Chicago's next possession, and he was forced to pass to Brad Sellers, who was standing out of bounds. The turnover with 19 seconds left forced the Bulls to foul Dennis Johnson, and his two free throws 10 seconds later clinched the outcome.

"We missed a lot of outside shots, a lot of open shots, and we turned the ball over," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said of Chicago's comeback. "So it was more a case of what we didn't do rather than what they did."

Boston, seeking to become the first repeat champions since the 1969 Celtics, was led by Kevin McHale with 21 points, Danny Ainge with 20 and Parish with 19.

Jazz 99, Warriors 85

Utah spoiled Golden State's first playoff appearance in 10 years as Karl Malone and Thurl Bailey scored 20 points each and Mark Eaton had 15 rebounds.

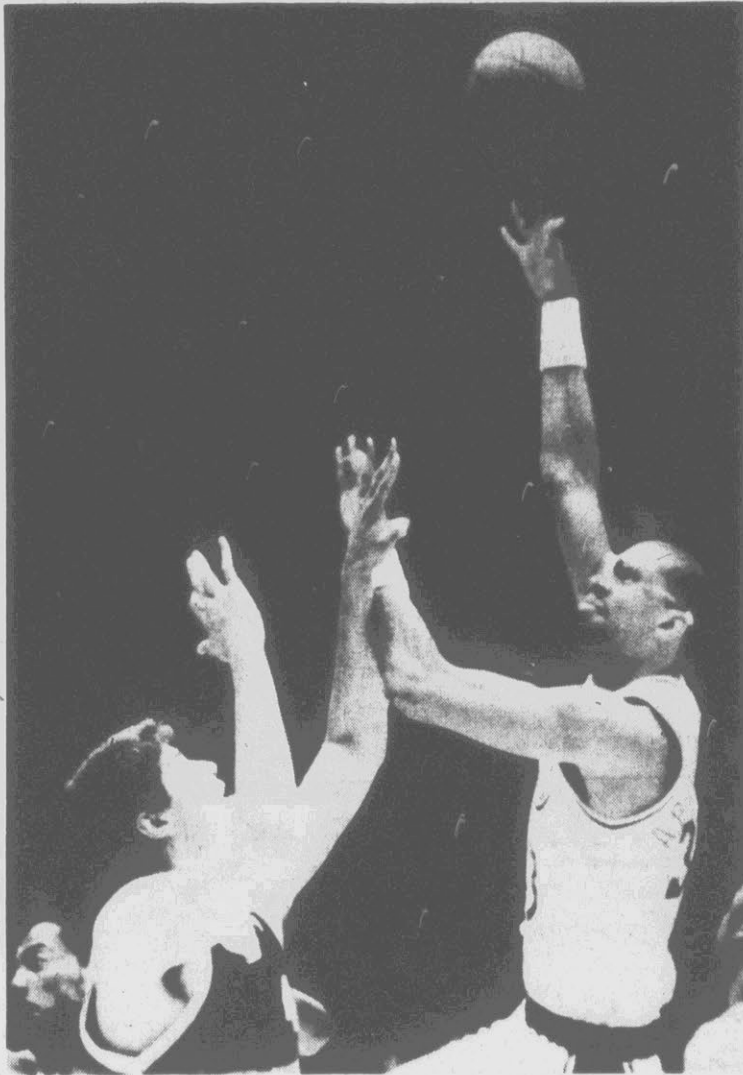

Jazz Coach Frank Layden said a 56-46 rebounding advantage was the key to the victory.

"We're probably the worst rebounding team in the history of the world, but tonight we were grabbing the ball," Layden said.

The Jazz led 89-72 with 6:03 left in the game, but an 11-0 spurt by the Warriors got them within six.

Utah, which never trailed, then got two free throws from Bobby Hansen, three straight baskets from Rickey Green and two more free throws from Bailey to put the game away.

A 13-2 spurt in the second quarter helped Utah grab a 53-41 lead at halftime, but the Warriors, who were led by 18 points from Joe Barry Carroll, cut the deficit to 59-55 with an 11-2 run early in the third quarter before the Jazz broke away again with its own 11-2 run.

Earnhardt's Success Surprises Sheperd

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Morgan Sheperd says he finds it hard to believe the way Dale Earnhardt is dominating NASCAR stock car racing this season.

Sheperd, a short-track expert from Conover, N.C., took the spotlight away from Earnhardt, at least briefly, on Thursday when he set a Martinsville Speedway record in winning the pole position for Sunday's Sovran Bank 500.

The 45-year-old driver, earning the fourth pole of his career and first since 1982, posted a lap of 91.355 mph on the .546-mile oval.

He was one of nine drivers who topped the previous mark of 90.716, set last April by Tim Richmond, who still is out of action recovering from pneumonia.

Sheperd's fast lap was clocked at 20.738 seconds, just .009 seconds faster than Terry Labonte's quick lap of 20.727 for 91.315 mph.

"Every time we ran the car, we ran quick," said Sheperd, who last Friday tested the Buick LeSabre owned by drag racing star Kenny Bernstein. "It was just a question of getting the right set of tires on it and not making mistakes."

But the talk quickly turned to Earnhardt, whose Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS qualified fourth at 91.100.

Earnhardt, the defending Winston Cup champion and current point leader, has won three straight races and five of the first seven this season.

"I really didn't expect to see this again after Bill won his million and was so dominant," said Sheperd, referring to Bill Elliott's 11 poles, 11 victories and Winston Million triumph in 1985. "I think for sure his team has it all together right now. Everybody's doing the right thing."

"We're only the drivers. We only push the buttons. You can't win unless the guys give you equipment that can win. And when a guy like Dale is doing what he's doing now, it makes everybody work extra hard and lose a lot of sleep."

The top 20 qualifiers for Sunday's Sovran Bank 500 NASCAR stock car race, with type of car and qualifying speed in mph:
1. Morgan Sheperd, Buick LeSabre, 91.355 (breaks track record of 90.716, set in April of 1986 by Tim Richmond).
2. Terry Labonte, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 91.315.

Purple-Gold Game Set To Go

East Carolina University will bring to an end its spring football practice Saturday with the annual Purple-Gold game.

Kickoff is set for 3:30 p.m. in the centerpiece for the Fourth annual Great Pirate Purple/Gold Pigskin Pigout Party. Activities got underway on Thursday and a golf tournament had been scheduled for this morning.

Further activities, including a mini-carnival and various contests — including the cooking of pigs for Saturday's barbecue — will continue tonight and Saturday morning and afternoon.

Former pro football greats Larry Csonka and Conrad Dobler, both members of the Miller Lite All-Stars, will be special guests and will be available for autographs throughout the activities.

Meanwhile, Coach Art Baker is going to be looking for a couple of things from his charges as he watches from the press box. "I want to see how they perform in a game-like experience before a crowd," Baker said. "And I hope that they perform the way they have all spring. They seem to have a new attitude, one of confidence."

"I really expect a tight game. The first offense (Purple) will be going against the first defense (Gold) and the second offense against the second defense for the most part. It's been that way all spring and the play has been intense."

Travis Hunter will start for the Purple team at quarterback, while Charlie Libretto will be the number two man, starting for the Gold at quarterback.

"It's still close," Baker said of the battle for the starting slot this fall. "There's not a lot of difference in the two. Both of them have made a tremendous amount of progress this spring."

One thing which fans may notice is a chance in the defensive backfield. The players who were there last year are in different positions. Safeties Ellis Dillahunt and Robert Martin had been switched to the cornerback positions, while the two who played there, Flint McCallum and Roswell Streeter, have been moved to safeties. "I think this will give both Flint and Roswell the opportunity to be able to play for us this fall," Baker said of the move.

There have been some pleasant surprises in the spring, too, the coach pointed out. They include the running of tailback Willie Lewis and fullback Tim James. "Tim has been an intimidating runner this spring. We need to find a place for him and Anthony Simpson in the same backfield," Baker said.

A couple of other surprises have been the play of Glen Willis at linebacker and Billy Michel in the offensive line. "That's where we should have had (Michel) all along," Baker said. "He's had an excellent spring."

Baker said the biggest disappointment has been the number of small, nagging injuries which have kept a number of players sidelined. Some 18 to 20 will miss Saturday's game because of them. And a number, according to the coach, were in the offensive line, where repetitions were badly needed.

"But I also want to say that the addition of our three new coaches (Steve Shankweiler, Don Thompson and Chuck Driesbach) have helped us a lot in both abilities and confidence and attitude."

Starting players for the Purple team will be: Offense — QB Travis Hunter, TB Willie Lewis, FB Anthony Simpson, FLK Jarrod Moody and Walter Wilson, WR Don Gaylor, TE Ben Billings; T Grant Lowe and John O'Driscoll, G Stewart Southall and Billy Michel; C Kyle Condrey; Defense — T Rodney Glover and Shannon Boling, NG Bruce Simpson, DE Ernie Logan and Junior Johnson, LB Mike Leggett and Ken Taylor; CB Ricky Torain and Ed Brodgen; S Gary Stephens and Ernie Tynes.

Starting players for the Gold team will be: Offense — QB Charlie Libretto, TB Brian McPhatter, FB Tim James, FLK Tony Smith and Carl Barkers, WR Jackie Armstrong, TE Matt McLaughlin, T Brad Brown and Mark Minshew, G Chad Martin and Wade Perry, C Carl Carney; Defense — T Mike Applewhite and Walter Bryant, NG Medrick Rainbow, DE John Williamson and Willie Powell, LB Vinson Smith and Glen Willis, CB Robert Martin and Ellis Dillahunt, S — Flint McCallum and Roswell Streeter.

Other members of the Purple team will be: QB Rich Neapolitan, WR Lewis Wilson, TB Todd Abrams, TB Reggie McKinney, SS Eddie Hawley, FB Paul Hudson, LB Essray Taliaferro, FLK Al Whiting, FB Sam Miller, PK Robb Imperato, SS Lynn Porcher, P Craig Losito, RG Todd Drugac, LB Compton McCurry, RG Tom Astiell, RG Joe Molineaux, RG Bobby Winstead, LG Wes Johnson, DE William Pretty, RT Tim Orr, FLK Teffin Benedict, LB Ron Gilliard, NG Todd Morris, DT Chris Richards, DT Mike Donahue and DT Jimmy Branch.

Other members of the Gold team will be: PK Jake Fine, FLK Andre Fields, QB Brad Walsh, SS Barriet Easterling, FB Roy Argento, P Tim Wolter, FS R.L. Beeman, TB Derrick Parker, DE Bernie Gyant, TB George Franklin, LB James Singletary, RG Bill Maxwell, RG Mason Howell, LG Brian Walsh, RG Tod Creech, RT Leon Hall, FLK Bill Carver, WR Lindsey Ham, P Sam Watts, DT Brian McArtan, DT Joey Maddox and TE Shannon Boling.

The Gold team will be coached by Driesbach, assisted by Les Herrin, Jeff Farrington, Ellis Johnson, Tyurone Johnson, Ken Matous, Tom Collins and Rex Sponhaltz.

The Purple team will be coached by Shankweiler and Thompson, assisted by Don Powers, Clyde Christensen, Kenny Phillips, Tom Taricani and Gary London.

Fiori And Barr Lead Houston Open

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — PGA tourmates Ed Fiori and Dave Barr have been virtually inseparable this week, both on and off the golf course.

They fished together on Monday and shared a courtesy car Thursday to drive to the first round of the $600,000 Houston Open.

After the round ended, Fiori and his house guest Barr were again companions with identical 6-under par 66s for a two-shot lead over four other players.

"We were in qualifying school together and have been friends since then," Barr joked. "We share condos at tournaments some times but not many hotels. He's too hard to live with."

The pair even played only one threesome apart in Thursday's round over the dried out greens that made long-range putting at The Woodlands Country Club hazardous for many.

But Barr had a bogey-free opening round that included birdie putts of 35, 25 and 25 feet and an 18-foot downhill birdie on No. 15 over the par 72, 7,042-yard Tournament Players' Course.

"I never hit it close today," Barr said. "I guess I was a little lucky on a few of them."

Fiori birdied four of the first six holes but he had no long putts. But his short game was effective enough to keep pace with Barr.

"I've been trying to work on my tempo," Fiori said. "I have a tendency to get a little quick. But when you're playing well, it just comes down to putting." Keith Clearwater, Howard Twitty, Ray Stewart and Perry Arthur, were in the group that shot 68.

Clearwater went 6-under par with an eagle on the par 5 No. 13 hole, but double bogeyed the next hole to drop off the pace.

Fiori and Barr left Fiori's home in southwest Houston early Thursday for a 55-minute drive to the tournament site.

"Our courtesy car is No. 6," Barr said, comparing it with the 6-under par scores. "But I guess I can't beat him. It's not nice to beat your host."

The lucky series of 6's was a break in a string of bad luck for Barr, who has failed to make the cut in five of the 10 PGA tournaments he's played this year.

"I haven't played that well this year," Barr said. "My putting has been holding me back. Now I feel more comfortable standing over the ball."

"And it helps for a few of them to go in the hole."

Fiori started on the No. 1 tee and quickly took command.

"I got a fast start on them and hit it close," he said. "I didn't want any long putts on those greens."

Ben Crenshaw, the No. 3 money winner on the tour, shot a 71, although he was battling the flu and had a whiff and a top in his round.

Both defending champion Curtis Strange and Masters champion Larry Mize shot 70.

Greg Norman shot a 73 and played in the same threesome with Mize, whose 140-foot chip shot on the second playoff hole beat Norman for the Masters title two weeks ago.

Orioles' Mistakes Aid Texas Win

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Not all seven-run innings are built on long homers, spectacular base-running or perfect offensive execution. Sometimes, they are just handed to you.

The Texas Rangers got just such a gift Thursday night from the Baltimore Orioles, and it was the difference in a 9-4 victory. Texas trailed 4-1 entering the fourth, when the Orioles' defense collapsed and the Rangers' also benefitted from some lucky hits.

"I'd rather have bloopers fall for hits than have line drives go for outs," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said.

Orioles Manager Cal Ripken Sr. added, "If we could have eliminated the big inning, it would have been a great ballgame. We should have been out of the inning, but they had some seeing-eye hits.

Here's what Texas got in the fourth:

Scott Fletcher walked leading off. Pete Incaviglia singled, and after Larry Parrish struck out, Ruben Sierra doubled the two runners home. Sierra went to third when Cal Ripken Jr. misplayed the relay from left field, and scored on Tom Paciorek's single to center.

Pacioerek went to second on Baltimore starter Eric Bell's wild pitch, and after another out, Eddie Murray's throwing error on Steve Buechele's grounder put runners at first and third.

Third baseman Ray Knight booted Jerry Browne's grounder as Paciorek scored the go-ahead run and Buechele went to second. He scored on Bob Brower's single to left, making it 6-4 and bringing on Tony Arnold in relief.

Fletcher greeted Arnold with an RBI single, and Incaviglia beat out a roller to deep second as Brower scored the seventh run of the inning. Five of them were unearned.

"I just can't say enough about the guys," Valentine said. "Bell had good stuff and we're down 3-0 right off the bat. But we just kept battling."

The Orioles got a home run from Nelson Simmons, while Don Slaught homered earlier for Texas.

Mike Loynd pitched 4 1-3 innings of solid relief to get the win.

"Being a long reliever is an unforgiving job and a tough job," Loynd said. "You keep getting up and down, and then someone else goes into the game. But games like tonight make it worthwhile."

In other games Thursday night, it was California 7, Minnesota 3, and the New York Yankees 5, Cleveland 4.

Angels 7, Twins 3

John Candelaria continued his winning ways and even got a victory indoors. The left-hander who has not lost since last Aug. 20, allowed four hits in seven innings, then let Donnie Moore finish up.

"I think I've won only two games in 13 years of pitching in domes, so this win really feels good," said Candelaria, 30.

Candelaria got plenty of help from Devon White, Wally Joyner and Brian Downing, each of whom homered. Joyner has hit home runs in three straight games.

The win tied California, which made five errors, with Minnesota atop the AL West.

"Those errors didn't seem to faze either Candelaria or Moore," California catcher Butch Wynegar said. "They just dug down deeper and got the job done. You got a lot of guys trying to learn how to play in the dome. That might have been responsible for those errors."

Gary Gaetti homered for Minnesota.

Yankees 5, Indians 4

Dave Winfield's two home runs, including a three-run shot in the ninth inning, gave the Yankees their 10th straight victory. They're only one game behind Milwaukee in the East.

Rickey Henderson also homered, leading off the game, for New York, while Cleveland also got all of its runs on home runs — by Tony Bernazard, Julio Franco, Brook Jacoby and Carmen Castillo. The last two, off starter Dennis Rasmussen in the ninth, brought on Dave Righetti, who got his sixth save.

Winfield has five career at-bats against Cleveland starter Greg Swindell, 1-3. Three times, he has homered. The other homer came in the Yankees' home opener this season.

"We're quite a few games over .500 and we're starting to build a cushion," Winfield said. "We've just won so many, and won some games late, that we expect to score and win."

Admiring His Handiwork

New York Yankee Dave Winfield takes a long look as his 1st inning homer heads for the left field seats at Cleveland Stadium Thursday against the slumping Indians. Winfield and teammate Rickey Henderson, who also homered in the 1st, helped the Yankees top the Indians for their 10th straight win. (AP Laserphoto)

Carter's Suspension Still Unexplained

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State football coach Earle Bruce still is not saying why he suspended All-America wide receiver Cris Carter, but he says he's sorry he had to do it.

But Bruce, speaking publicly for the first time since the suspension was announced Wednesday, said Thursday: "If you violate team rules, you've got to pay the penalty. He's got to pay the penalty like anybody else."

The latest report on the suspension surfaced today in The Columbus Dispatch, which quoted an unidentified source close to the Ohio State athletic department as saying Carter was suspended because of use of marijuana. Earlier reports centered on an NCAA investigation and Carter's relationship with a brother who works for an agent.

Carter, the leading receiver in Ohio State history, who will be a senior this fall, has been unavailable for comment.

The team physician, Dr. Robert Murphy, would neither confirm nor deny the newspaper report when reached late Thursday night by The Associated Press.

Astros Top Braves, Continue Streak

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Indoors or out, the Houston Astros feel like winners. Indoors, at the Astrodome at least, that's exactly what they are.

Houston has been perfect at home this season. The defending National League West champions won their ninth straight game as hosts this year by beating the Atlanta Braves 5-3 Thursday night.

Kevin Bass, who led the Astros into a three-way tie atop the division by knocking in three runs and getting three hits, knows why Houston is so dominant under the dome.

"This is our domain and we just play well here," Bass said. "This ballpark fits our club. We've got some contact hitters who are pesky hitters and one guy (Glenn Davis) who can hit it out of the park. It doesn't matter if we get behind five runs. We still feel confident going into the seventh, eighth, and ninth innings."

In day games Thursday, it was Cincinnati 3, San Diego 2; St. Louis 5, Chicago 2; and Montreal 6, Philadelphia 5. Houston, Cincinnati and San Francisco share first place in the West at 11-5.

With the Braves ahead 2-0 on first-inning RBI hits by Dale Murphy and Ken Griffey, the Astros began chipping away. In the second, Bass led off with a single, Jose Cruz walked and Bass scored when Craig Reynolds doubled.

Billy Hatcher extended his hitting streak to all 16 games with a leadoff single in the third. He went to second on a grounder, to third on a Davis single, and scored when Bass' groundball forced Davis at second.

Terry Puhl started the Astros' three-run seventh with a pinch-hit double and moved to third on Bill Doran's grounder. After a walk to Hatcher, pinch-hitter Phil Garner doubled in Puhl. One out later, Bass bounced a two-run single into right field.

Rookie Dave Meads, 1-0, got the win in relief, striking out the only batter he faced. Dave Smith recorded his fifth save, pitching 1 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

"I think the majority of our success is mental," Garner said. "When you can't win and you're struggling, you don't know how to find it. Now, no matter how the game goes, we know sooner or later we're going to bust loose."

Reds 3, Padres 2

Dave Parker had been fanned his first three times up by Andy Hawkins. But you don't hold down a superb hitter like Parker for long, and Hawkins couldn't handle him in the eighth inning.

Parker hit his fifth homer of the season for the winning run as Cincinnati gained a split of the four-game series in San Diego.

"I could lie and say I was setting him up," Parker joked.

Hawkins had predominantly thrown fastballs high in the strike zone. This time, he tried a low, inside slider and Parker sent it over the right-field fence.

The Reds scored first on second-inning doubles by Buddy Bell and Bo Diaz, then San Diego tied it on a squeeze bunt by Joey Cora. Tony Gwynn led off the fourth with his second homer, but the Reds tied the score in the fifth when Kal Daniels singled, was balked to second and scored on Kurt Stillwell's double.

Cardinals 5, Cubs 2

Danny Cox allowed 11 hits in win-ing his third straight game and rookie Jim Lindeman and Jack Clark drove in two runs apiece for the host Cardinals. St. Louis moved into a first-place tie with the idle New York in the East.

Keith Moreland homered for the Cubs.

"Last year I didn't win my first game until June, so I'm way ahead of schedule," Cox said.

Second baseman Tom Herr left the game in the third inning with a groin injury, and Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said Herr might be placed on the disabled list. St. Louis has already lost catcher Tony Pena (broken hand) and pitcher John Tudor (broken bone in knee).

Expos 6, Phillies 5

Vance Law hit his third homer of the season and Reid Nichols had three hits to pace the homestanding Expos. Montreal trailed 5-4 entering the seventh inning, but Dave Engle singled to center, scoring one run. Another came home when Phillies centerfielder Milt Thompson mishandled the ball.

There are more than 100,000 different species of butterflies. One of the most beautiful, the monarch butterfly, is able to discriminate taste differences 12,000 times more subtle than those humans can detect. All butterflies taste with their hind feet. They drink the sweet nectar of flowers through a tube-like appendage called a proboscis. Unlike caterpillars, butterflies can do no damage to plants because they are unable to bite or chew.

DO YOU KNOW — Are butterflies or moths more likely to have hair-like antennae?

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY April 25

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You're feeling good today. Make a special effort now to handle matters associated with charm, romance, sociability and the lighter side of life.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You arise feeling like an ace and can charm everyone you see today. Avoid a bigwig who isn't up to par now.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Improve your appearance today. You can be with the one you love and enjoy many pleasures now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't do anything that could confuse your mate today. Get into advanced ethical studies that are helpful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Keep busy at improving your vocation, but don't permit a procrastinator to deter your advancement.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You can study into new interests or improve old ones today, but first get your chores handled nicely.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Study whatever promises you have made and keep them. Don't agree to some big change your mate proposes.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Be with a wise partner who can help you gain some worthwhile ambition. Stay away from frivolous matters.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Co-workers will appreciate you more if you stay on the job. Get this extra work behind you now.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Set up an appointment for pleasure, but study the cost well. Build up your bank account.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Any guests you invite into your home should be relatives since you have been neglecting them lately.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Start a new budget that will allow you more money for pleasure as well as the luxuries you like.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Your own ideas for a good time may be best for you, even if you have to absent yourself from a close tie.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be quite charming and have much artistic ability, be it in art, music, or other creative activities, as well as a keen business sense. Give as comprehensive an education as you can and teach this one not to be taken in by greedy people.

On first analysis, it might seem that declarer was simply unlucky in his choice of how to play for 11 tricks. If you look at the position more closely, however, you will find his technique was at fault.

When South showed an unbalanced hand, North realized there was a possibility his side would have only one heart stopper, so he judged that the hand would play better in the minor suit game. His judgment was accurate, but his partner was not up to the task.

West led the top of his heart sequence. Declarer rose with dummy's ace and led a trump to the king and ace. West shifted to a spade, and the finesse of the queen lost to the king. After that inauspicious start, it was a moral certainty that declarer would misguess in trumps and end up losing two trump tricks and a spade.

Declarer was unfortunate in finding everything wrong, yet he had only himself to blame for failing to make the contract. If he could avoid losing a spade trick, he could have afforded to concede two tricks in trumps, and his line of play should have been based on keeping West off lead.

After winning the ace of hearts, declarer should have come to hand with a heart ruff and led a trump to the ten. Let's consider the worst scenario, where that loses to the jack. East is on lead, and nothing he can do harms declarer. Declarer simply wins any return and forces out the ace of diamonds. Now, when West shifts to a spade declarer can rise with the ace, draw a trump if necessary, then discard the table's two losing spades on high clubs. Declarer will end up losing only two trump tricks and the contract will be home.

On the actual lie of the cards, this line produces an overtrick.

Farm Equipment
Needs Lead In GasBy DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low-lead gasoline protects older engines from excessive valve wear, but government tests show that tractors and other engine-powered farm equipment are vulnerable if unleaded gasoline is used.

The Environmental Protection Agency and the Agriculture Department said Thursday in a joint report that gasoline without any lead causes damage to valve seats, particularly those in older engines that lack hardened seats. Lead serves as a lubricant to help protect the valves.

In 1985, the EPA reduced the amount of lead in regular leaded gasoline from 1.1 grams per gallon to 0.1 gram per gallon, effective Jan. 1, 1986. With that action, the amount of lead in gasoline has been reduced by about 99 percent since the early 1970s as part of a program to reduce pollution.

But farm groups objected to total elimination of lead in gasoline on grounds it would be harmful to engines. The Food Security Act of 1985 directed that the study be made.

The American Farm Bureau Federation said the tests "show conclusively that total elimination of lead from gasoline results in extensive damage to older farm engines" and asked the EPA to abandon plans for removing lead entirely from all gasoline.

In 1985, the EPA proposed to ban leaded gasoline entirely as early as Jan. 1, 1988, but has not proceeded because of concerns about damage to older engines and because the agency still is evaluating the health effects of the small amount of lead remaining in gasoline.

Farm Bureau President Dean Kleckner said a complete ban on lead "would have tremendous economic implications" for farmers and ranchers.

"America's farmers are suffering through some of the worst economic times in our history," he said. "They are ill-prepared to retool existing engines or to purchase new equipment."

Kleckner said the federation's surveys show that farmers own an average of 10 older engines per farm and that to replace them would cost an estimated $100,000 per farming operation.

The EPA-USDA report said some non-lead additives "may have potential as substitutes for lead, although these products would have to be developed further."

Eight engines were tested at the National Institute for Petroleum and Energy Research in Bartlesville, Okla. Those included four tractor engines, one combine engine, two farm truck engines, and one recreational vehicle engine. The tests were run on leaded, low-lead and unleaded gasoline.

The engines tested were for John Deere B, Farmall H, International Harvester 240, and Ford 8N tractors; a John Deere 303 cubic-inch combine engine; two General Motors 292-inch, six cylinder truck engines, and a General Motors 454-cubic inch V-8 recreational vehicle engine.

Farmers operate some 1.8 million gasoline-powered tractors, 271,000 gasoline-powered combines and 750,000 trucks larger than 1-ton capacity that use leaded gasoline. Gasoline tractors represent about 40 percent of all tractors, with the rest powered by diesel fuel.

The EPA will accept written comments on the study until July 10 and will hold public hearings June 1 in Washington, June 4 in Indianapolis, and June 9 in Des Moines, Iowa.

Officials said EPA will report to Congress later this year on its findings and recommendations on the need for leaded gasoline for farm equipment.

Wheat Subsidy Bill
Approved By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winter wheat and sugar beet growers unable to plant because of flooded fields would receive federal payments under legislation headed for a House-Senate conference committee.

The bill cleared the Senate on a voice vote Thursday after lawmakers beat back a drive to attach a $1.6 billion soybean subsidy and speed up $2.8 billion in federal payments to corn producers.

Success in fighting off major budget items buoyed sponsors hoping to obtain President Reagan's signature if conferees manage to iron out details. But they said there is no assurance it will escape a veto.

"It's possible," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. He said the administration was "not very enthusiastic" about the measure even without the corn and soybean payments.

The measure would allow winter wheat growers to receive 92 percent of normal payments for their 1987 crop while idling all their acreage which was eligible for the farm program but too waterlogged for planting.

It would in effect make the growers eligible for a share in $400 million in disaster aid approved by Congress last year in the wake of rain and floods that wrought havoc in farm fields across the South and Midwest.

But the legislation also would expand the program to provide assistance for all applicants, although the additional money would not be available until appropriated by Congress.

Also eligible for relief under the bill would be an array of other growers including those whose hay and straw were swept away, Colorado sugar beet producers, northern Maine vegetable farmers and Missouri River landowners whose private levees were topped or breached by the raging waters.

Fox To Show Emmys

NEW YORK (AP) — Fox Broadcasting Co. has outbid ABC, CBS and NBC for rights to show the Emmy Awards for the next three years in what it cited as proof the fledgling network is "in it for the long haul," but CBS groused that fewer people will watch.

The agreement between Fox and the Academy of Television Arts was to be made final today, said Academy President Richard H. Frank. The big three networks' contract to broadcast the awards on a rotating basis expired last year.

Fox, owned by media magnate Rupert Murdoch, this fall started distributing original programming in prime time to its 108 affiliated stations. Fox now has four prime-time shows on Sunday, and has other programs debuting through June.

By summer's end, Fox will have a weekend, prime-time lineup, plus its "Late Show Starring Joan Rivers" on weeknights.

Robert Urich Pushes Drive To Keep 'Spenser' Going

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Urich hit the road this month in a campaign to keep "Spenser: For Hire" on ABC's schedule, but he thinks the show has hit a dead end unless the private eye's old girlfriend comes back.

"We've made some mistakes," Urich said. "I think Spenser is not Spenser without Susan Silverman around. I think we've got to have her back."

But first, the show and its fans have to persuade ABC to bring back the low-rated series for a third season.

"Spenser," based on the books by Robert B. Parker, has occasionally been in the bottom 10 in this season's A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings; it ranked 82nd for the season. Most weeks,

"Spenser" was soundly beaten by NBC's "Hunter." Last week, it moved to Wednesday and was punched out by CBS' "Magnum, P.I."

Urich visited New York and Los Angeles to promote a "Save Spenser" letter-writing campaign that began in Boston, where the show is filmed and where he, his wife and two kids have become full-time residents.

The show "doesn't feel finished to me," Urich said. "I think we're just kind of zeroing in on the elements that could make it work."

One of those elements is Susan, played by Barbara Stock, who was dropped at the start of this season.

Carolyn McCormick was installed as the new female interest, Assistant District Attorney Rita Fiore, but she and Spenser still seem to be just friends.

"Towards the end, I thought, they've gotta do something, they've known each other this long, they have to at least try to come to terms with how they feel about each other," Urich said. "But it was never a Susan-Spenser relationship, ever."

Juanita Bartlett, the show's executive producer, ditched Susan because she saw nowhere to go with the couple.

"There were too many things already prescribed about the relationship," Urich agreed. "In the pilot I asked her to marry me, and she says no. In episode four, she's having an abortion. I fought and fought not to do that episode, although it turned out to be a good show. It was too early for that kind of stuff."

"But now, I think we could use all that stuff, coming back and starting over again. Now we can come back and say, 'Why are you back? Where have you been? Why didn't you come after me?'"

Urich argues that the show didn't have a chance on Saturday night, following a string of feeble ABC shows. He'd like to be back on Tuesday nights — who wouldn't? — following ABC's hit series "Moonlighting."

And if "Spenser" crashes, well, "it's not terminal. I'll survive — and then I'll have to find a job real quick," Urich said.

He has crashed before, and faster: His first lead role, as Bob on "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice," lasted six weeks in 1973. He played a lecherous tennis pro on "Soap" and was murdered in the first season; an air-headed TV personality on "Tabitha," a spin-off of "Bewitched" that survived one season; and a cynical former CIA man for five months on "Gavilan." His longest stretch was three years as detective Dan Tanna on "Vegas."

With "Spenser," Urich is in TV's Death Valley, a Saturday time slot against NBC's muscular lineup. It's the story of his life.

As a football player at Florida State University, Urich played center, "which is an unlikely position for a guy my size."

"But in high school it was the same thing," he said. "I went out for the position where we seemed to be weakest, because I wanted to play."

Urich was feeling all of his 40 years at the end of this season, which included a starring role on ABC's extended miniseries "Amerika" as well as the "Spenser" schedule. His right arm throbbed from banging on a heavy punching bag; his left knee may need surgery.

"I want to do a story — maybe because this is what I'm feeling right now — I want to do a story on Spenser just burning out and having nightmares and not being able to bring himself to do what he does anymore. Real personal stuff, to find out what makes this guy tick," Urich said.

"I'm on flame-out right now. All physical and mental systems are shutting down, just stopping," he said after a sleepless night in a too-warm hotel room.

"I'm feeling," he added with a touch of Spenserian flippancy, "that there's no chance that I might be a professional athlete anymore."

Festival

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lineup for the Los Angeles Festival in September includes a Canadian circus, a down-home Kentucky theater company and "La Boheme" with Plácido Domingo, organizers have announced.

"Quite literally, this festival is a legacy of the Olympics," said festival chairman Maureen Kindel, referring to the $2 million surplus from the 1984 Los Angeles Summer Games that is helping to pay for the event.

Organizers announced the lineup Wednesday at the downtown Embassy Theater, one of nine stages that will be used for the $5.8 million festival, which will run Sept. 3-27.

Groups scheduled to perform include Sweden's Royal Dramatic Theater, Britain's Michael Clark Dance Company, France's Lyon Opera Ballet and South Africa's Earth Players and Market Theater.

Nakasone Faces Threat After Losing Tax Plan

TOKYO (AP) — Opposition leaders celebrated what one called a “complete victory” after Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone failed to push a 5 percent sales tax proposal through parliament.

The parliamentary vote Thursday prompted speculation Nakasone may have to resign before his term expires this fall.

“We have dealt the final blow in settling the withdrawal of the sales tax,” said Takako Doi, chairwoman of the leading opposition Japan Socialist Party. “This is a complete victory.”

The lower house of the Diet, Japan’s parliament, passed a $382 billion budget for fiscal 1987 after Nakasone’s governing Liberal Democratic Party withdrew the sales tax from the package.

The budget, which passed by a vote of 291 to 136 after days of squabbling on the sales tax, will take effect in one month whether or not the upper house acts on it.

Since April 1, when fiscal 1987 began, Japan has been operating on a provisional budget.

Nakasone, 68, was granted an unprecedented one-year extension of his term as party president and prime minister after he led his party to a landslide victory in parliamentary elections last year. Critics said he might be forced to step down by late summer.

But Nakasone, who had made the sales tax a top priority, vowed to fight on.

“We will not forget our original intent. We consider tax reform a basic principle. We would strongly like to see it realized,” he said.

Nakasone also said he would work to stabilize the rising yen, which has decreased profits, investment and employment in some Japanese industries because it makes Japanese goods more expensive in foreign markets. He said he would try to reduce unemployment, which hit a record 3 percent in January.

Opposition leaders interpreted Liberal Democratic Party losses in local elections April 12 as a sign that voters rejected the sales tax.

Argentine Court Suspends Trial For Accused Officers

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Supreme Court suspended the trial of 17 naval officers accused of torture and murder as judges and lawmakers sought to resolve military opposition to human rights abuse proceedings.

Thursday’s move by the Supreme Court, meeting in extraordinary session, came only days after the peaceful resolution of three mutinies by soldiers demanding amnesty for crimes committed by security forces during the late 1970s.

President Raul Alfonsin said Thursday the country was all quiet and that the military crisis had been “absolutely overcome.”

That was disputed by opposition legislator Luis Manzano. The crisis, Manzano said, “has not been overcome because there are people with contacts among members of the armed forces who say a state of complaint, of unrest, still continues.”

The five-man court, with two members abstaining, voted 3-0 to suspend the trial of the naval officers, including six retired admirals, accused in connection with the operation of a clandestine detention center at the Naval Mechanics School in northern Buenos Aires.

One hundred witnesses had been scheduled to testify beginning Thursday in the trial in a federal appeals court.

The Supreme Court, in a brief communique, said it’s decision was based on a complaint filed by the defense. Defense attorneys have requested that the cases against the naval officers be turned over to the Supreme Military Council, the highest military court, for trial of the accused by their “peers.”

The court clarified that the suspension “does not imply a judgement on the basis for the cases.”

The Mechanics School cases are considered among the most sensitive pending against military and security officers accused of violating human rights during their so-called “dirty war” against suspected subversives in the late 1970s.

Argentina was ruled by a rightist military dictatorship from 1976-83.

A demand for amnesty for about 250 officers facing trial on rights abuse charges in several courts across the nation was the basis for the three rebellions by army officers in the last nine days.

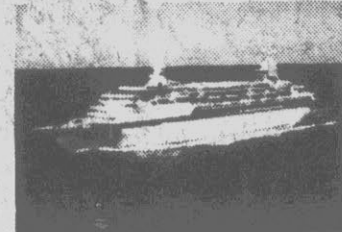

The uprisings — in the western city of Cordoba, in suburban Buenos Aires and in the northern city of Salta — all ended without bloodshed.

Defense Minister Horacio Jaunarena said 383 officers and soldiers participated.

The revolts were followed by an army shakeup in which 24 high-ranking officers resigned or were fired, including 15 generals, among them Chief of Staff Gen. Hector Rios Erenu.

Jorge Vanossi, head of the House of Deputies Committee for Constitutional Affairs, said Congress is studying a measure that would freeze all military trials for 120 days while a solution to the problem is sought. He did not provide details.
