Testy Secord Defends Acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional hearings into the Iran-Contra affair turned testy today as retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord insisted that he never made a personal profit from his involvement in arranging arms sales to Iran and for the Nicaraguan rebels.

"I did not come here to be badgered," said Secord, who was testifying under oath without immunity as the joint House-Senate televised hearings entered their third day.

Under questioning from Senate counsel Arthur Liman, Secord said he forswore any profits generated by the deal and left them to his business partner, Albert Hakim "to do with what he wished."

"Of course, it's the fact or I wouldn't have testified to it," Secord shot back at Liman at one point when the lawyer questioned him about information he had provided to the committee on Wednesday.

At another point, Secord dismissed Liman's questions as focusing on a "technical" bookkeeping question when there were more important matters to attend to.

"I've got a special prosecutor over here across the street who's trying to throw us all in jail for performing our duty as we saw it," Secord said, referring to independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh who is investigating the Iran-Contra affair.

"I haven't focused on some technical issues like you're bringing up here. This is crazy," Secord said.

From the moment it began with a brisk, "Good morning, Mr. Secord," Liman's questioning was more intense than the exchanges Tuesday and Wednesday between Secord and House lawyer John Nields, who basically permitted Secord to lay out his version of the affair.

And it provoked several protests from Secord and his attorney, Thomas Green. "I don't think you should harass him," Green said at one point.

That drew a rebuff from Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, presiding over the committee. Inouye informed Green that if he wished to object he should do so to the chairman, and not the lawyer. Green promptly did so.

On Wednesday, Secord said that, based on statements to him by top presidential aides, he believed that

Pupils Shoot Selves

By The Associated Press

Two 15-year-old boys shot themselves, one fatally, in front of classmates in schools in Florida and Arkansas, authorities said.

Karl Tramer died early today at Tampa (Fla.) General Hospital, hours after shooting himself in the head Wednesday at the close of an advanced literature class.

Bobby Emmons, a ninth-grader at MacArthur Junior High School in Jonesboro, Ark., was listed in stable condition at St. Bernard's Regional Medical Center in Jonesboro.

Students told police that Emmons pointed the pistol at a classmate with whom he had had a disagreement, said, "This should be for you," then turned the gun on himself Wednesday morning. He was wounded in the abdomen.

Tramer, a Leto High School sophomore, shot himself without saying a word, witnesses told Tampa officials.

Orlan Briant, general area director for the Hillsborough County school system, said he was told Tramer was despondent about the drowning of a friend last week.

The boy was described as an Eagle Scout and a good student, though his performance had slipped enough recently to warrant a routine academic warning that he was in danger of failing a class.

Teacher Deborah McFarland said she noticed nothing out of the ordinary before the shooting.

"It just tears me up that that would happen to such a kid as this. ...," she said. "The kids seemed to like him an awful lot; I like him an awful lot."

In Jonesboro, science teacher David Hawkins said he was checking roll before the first-period class began, and saw Emmons with the pistol in his hand. He said he didn't realize it wasn't a joke until the gun went off.

Superintendent Bill Beasley said he knew of no instances in which the boy had caused problems. "As far as I know, he's just what you would consider a regular student," he said.

The school set up counseling sessions for students after the shooting and allowed some to go home early.

Hart Puts Campaign On Hold, Flies Home To Be With Family

By MICHAEL MOKRZYCKI

Associated Press Writer

GROVETON, N.H. (AP) — Democratic presidential front-runner Gary Hart, dogged by reports about his relationship with a young woman, today put his campaign on hold and flew home to Denver to be with his family, a spokesman said.

Hart cut short a swing through northern New Hampshire, the state with 1988's first presidential primary, but pledged his campaign will continue.

Spokesman Kevin Sweeney, reading a prepared text, said Hart and his family were taking "a few days or a few weeks to be together."

"While running for president is important, right now my family is more important," Hart said in the statement.

"This campaign and the ideals and ideas it represents will continue and our cause will succeed," it said.

Hart's decision to return home followed a week of controversy about his relationship with saleswoman and part-time actress, Donna Rice, 29, of Miami, that caused a drop in his standings in polls here.

Admitting mistakes, but declaring "I am not stupid," Hart said he had "nothing to hide."

His wife, Lee, was at his side for the first time in a week Wednesday as Hart started trying to put his campaign back together with a speech and town meeting. He was buoyed by a town meeting in Littleton, where none of the dozen questions dealt with the controversy.

Hoping to end the furor, Hart held a 51-minute news conference in Hanover, answering questions on subjects ranging from adultery to minute details of his weekend activities with Rice.

"I can just tell you the facts and we'll leave it up to you and the public to believe them," he told the packed news conference Wednesday. "If you don't believe me, there's nothing I can do about it."

Jim Wooten of ABC News reported today that there had been a series of urgent phone calls between New Hampshire and Denver on Wednesday night in which the idea of stopping or suspending the campaign was discussed.

Sweeney said Hart had spent night in a Vermont hotel and called him shortly after 1 a.m. today, sounding "steady."

"He said, 'We're going home. Lee and I want to spend time together,'" Sweeney said.

He read Hart's statement outside James River Corp. in Groveton, a paper company Hart had been scheduled to tour this morning. Hart instead flew out of New Hampshire on a chartered flight to Denver, Sweeney said.

Asked repeatedly if the departure means the Harts are reassessing the campaign, Sweeney referred to the statement which said the campaign will continue.

Sweeney said no decision had been made on whether to continue fundraising. Campaign officials will contact workers around the country to give them the news, he said.

"They will be read the statement and will be informed that the senator and his wife would like to spend some time by themselves with the family and that they don't see the benefit in campaigning at this point because it is difficult for them to get their message out. It's difficult for the campaign to move forward at this point in time," Sweeney said.

Hart's voice was intense with anger at times Wednesday as he

Whites Strengthen Hold In S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The white electorate shifted sharply to the right in a parliamentary election, keeping President P.W. Botha's Nationalists in power while strengthening the hand of those who oppose even modest concessions to blacks.

A spokesman for the far-right Conservative Party, which made big gains in Wednesday's election, promised his opposition party would give the Nationalists "a really hard time" in parliamentary debate.

Black Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace prize winner, said of the results, "I believe we have now entered the dark ages in the history of our country."

Drake President To Speak At ECU

Dr. Michael R. Ferrari, president of Drake University, will deliver the commencement address Saturday when East Carolina University confers degrees on 2,874 candidates for graduation.

The 78th commencement is scheduled at 10 a.m. in 35,000-seat Ficklen Stadium. The program will begin with a band concert at 9 a.m., and the traditional academic procession into the stadium is scheduled at 9:40 a.m.

In the event of rain or inclement weather, the commencement program may be moved into Minges Coliseum which is adjacent to the stadium.

With those students who completed degree requirements last summer or during the fall semester, the 1987 ECU graduating class will total approximately 3,300, a near-record number.

Ferrari is a long-time friend and colleague of Dr. Richard R. Eakin, ECU chancellor. The two were academic administrators at Bowling Green State University in Ohio before Ferrari was elected president of Drake in Des Moines, Iowa, and Eakin was chosen chancellor of ECU. Eakin assumed office at ECU on March 1.

During the commencement, university officials will announce and present the 1987 recipients of the alumni-sponsored University Award, the highest recognition honor at ECU, for academic achievement, service and leadership.

Last year's ECU commencement speaker was R.L. "Roddy" Jones of Raleigh, a former chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees and a member of the UNC Board of Governors.

Group To Perform

Final Approach, one of two music combos within the Tactical Air Command Band, will perform at The Plaza Sunday at 2 p.m.

The group, formed in 1978, is comprised of a vocalist, keyboards, guitar, bass guitar and percussion. It performs songs from artists such as Lionel Ritchie, Hall and Oates, Michael Jackson and Willie Nelson.

Members of Final Approach give an average of 100 concerts each year in support of military functions, community relations programs and Air Force recruiting efforts.

Permit Granted

The Greenville Police Department has granted a solicitation permit to Boy Scout Troop 826 allowing a pancake breakfast on Sunday at St. Peter's Church from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. to raise money to support Boy Scouts at summer camp.

Rotary Scholarships

Rotary International District 773 is accepting applications for four full scholarships to be awarded for next year.

The scholarships include round-trip transportation in studying abroad, all required academic fees, necessary educational supplies, room and board and limited educational traveling expenses while abroad.

Scholarships may be used in any field of study for men and women in five different types: graduate, undergraduate, vocational, teacher of the handicapped and journalism.

Scholarship recipients this year are Hih Song Kim of Greenville, Chris Creed of Dunn, Donna Ray Gooden of Elizabethtown and Tabitha Nance of Morehead City.

Application deadline is July 15, and scholarships will be awarded by Dec. 15.

For more information and a brochure contact Phil Dixon, president of the Greenville-Noon Rotary Club or Jim Lanier, chairman of the club's scholarship committee at Taylor/Slaughter Alumni House, Greenville.

Class Had Guests

ECU Class Teaches Adults How To Read And Write

By KAREN SIMMONS

ECU News Bureau

Marvin Carr's most recent trip to renew his driver's license was a breeze compared to earlier ventures. "I left here that day at quarter 'till 1, and at 20 minutes 'till 2 I had already gotten it," he said. "That shows you how much I've improved. Before I would have had to make a couple of trips."

Carr's improvement is due to a class he's been attending at East Carolina University since 1977. The class is on adult basic education, and through it he's learning how to read and write.

Every Monday and Wednesday Carr, an ECU housekeeping assistant, and eight classmates gather in a room in Brewster for an hour and 45 minutes of reading stories — each at their own pace — and answering questions to check their comprehension.

Very little time is devoted to phonics. "I'd have an empty classroom if we did," said instructor Gina Carlton. "It turns adults off and, after all, they don't have to be here."

In addition, the students learn how to express themselves by writing letters. "I take their letters to Pitt Community, copy them, and give one to each person so they'll have a chance to read each others' stories," Mrs. Carlton said. "A few people have said they are able to read other people's handwriting since coming to class."

The class is free and is sponsored jointly by Pitt Community College, which pays Mrs. Carlton's salary, and ECU, which provides meeting facilities.

Julian R. Vainright, recently retired ECU business manager, organized the program 10 years ago for ECU's hourly employees, but anyone is welcome.

"We had no idea of the interest it would create, nor the extent of the need which existed," Vainright said.

The drastic decline in the number of students — the first year nearly 50 attended — doesn't discourage Mrs. Carlton. "The ones who have stuck with it have made good progress," she said. "The people who come really want to be here. They're the cream of the crop."

James Wooten, a former soda shop employee, continues to come to class even though he retired from ECU in 1983. "As long as I can get one foot in front of the other, I'm going to keep coming," he said. "It helped me a whole lot. Now I don't have to sit at home all the time and do nothing."

Mary Jones heard about the class from a friend last fall and has been coming ever since. Her diligence is inspired by a desire to better understand the Bible. "I wish I had been coming as long as they have, because then I'd know more," she said.

What does bother Mrs. Carlton is the fact that some people are too embarrassed to come to class. "A lot of them get teased by their friends for coming," she said. "One student told me he thought he was going to have to drop out of class but didn't tell me why."

"He kept coming, and a few weeks later he told me, 'Mrs. Carlton, I've decided I'm going to continue. I don't care what anybody says. This guy I work with was teasing me so much because I was going to school. He told me it wasn't doing me any good, which really got me down until he asked me to read the driver's manual to him.' He couldn't read at all and here he was teasing this man in my class."

"I always tell them the shame isn't in not knowing how to read; the shame is in not trying to do something about it."

Another problem Mrs. Carlton has is finding ways to let people know about the class. "You can't put up a sign and say these classes are free because the people who need to come can't read the signs," she said.

In the past she has written letters to job supervisors asking them to get the word out to their workers, and has displayed posters advertising the class. "I'm open to suggestions," she said.

Although reading and writing receive the most emphasis in class, a considerable amount of time is also spent on basic arithmetic. Students learn practical things, such as how to make change, and how to determine gasoline mileage and hourly pay.

"Those who work here at ECU have their salaries set up monthly, but a lot of them work after hours washing windows or doing yard work," Mrs. Carlton said. "After we went over hourly pay, one of the students went back and checked to see what he was supposed to have gotten paid for a job mowing grass and found out he had been short-changed $5."

Solo Day Friday

High school solo day for the Pitt County schools will be held Friday from 9:15 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Farmville Central High School.

Board Issues Licenses

Several area residents were among the applicants granted licenses recently by the State Board of Examiners of Plumbing and Heating Contractors.

The board granted licenses in the three classifications, including: plumbing contracting, class I, Mitchell Goff and Gregory B. Spain, both of Greenville, and Thomas Powell of Snow Hill; heating, group No. 2, Patricia White of Greenville, and heating, group No. 3, class I, Troy R. Campbell of Washington, N.C., William E. Frantz of Greenville, M.N. Grabriel of Snow Hill and William C. Mills of Winterville.

The licenses were granted at a board meeting in Raleigh.

Burro Adoptions

The North Carolina Network for Animals will welcome 40 burros to the Statesville area in late May and will screen applicants for adoption through May.

The network recently completed construction of an adoption center near Statesville, consisting of two acres with fencing and a 12-by-24-foot shelter.

The center will temporarily house goats, burros and horses until adoptive owners can pick them up. The goats and burros are "rescued" by the New York-based Fund for Animals. Its latest project is the removal of burros from Death Valley.

A burro, which is about the size of a Shetland pony, weighs 350-400 pounds and eats about a pound of grain and 20 pounds of hay per day. Anyone wishing to adopt one must have a fenced acre pasture per burro and make a $50 donation.

Contributions to help with construction expenses and adoption applications requests may be sent to Burro Adoption Program, NCNA, P.O. Box 554, Faith, N.C. 28041.

Commissions Meet

Sedimentation control and soil conservation projects in Pitt and Beaufort counties will be studied by the state's Soil and Water Conservation Commission and Sedimentation Control Commission.

The Soil and Water Conservation Commission will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the regional office of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, while the Sedimentation Control Commission will meet at 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Commissioners will visit projects that come under the Sedimentation Control Act Tuesday in Pitt County and Greenville. They will be in Beaufort County Wednesday to see conservation practices installed under the state Agriculture Cost-Share Program.

The meetings and tours are open to the public.

State Gets CD Funds

North Carolina has been allocated $37.5 million for the Community Development Block Grant program for fiscal year 1987, according to Gov. Jim Martin and Tommy Rhodes, Department of Natural Resources and Community Development secretary.

Funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the program is administered in the state by the Division of Community Assistance under NRCD.

Funds are awarded to local governments in community revitalization, economic development, development planning and housing demonstration categories.

CDBG funds must benefit primarily low and moderate income persons, whether in the form of housing assistance or in the creation or retention of jobs. Local governments apply for the funds on a competitive basis.

The deadline for revitalization applications is May 19. For more information call the Division of Community Assistance at 733-2850.

A groundbreaking was held recently for the new Pugh Memorial Fellowship Hall of the Greenville Church of God on South Memorial Drive.

The 4,995-square-foot church addition is being named for George and Margie Pugh. They and other members of their family were special guests for the ceremony.

The general contractor for the project will be R.C. Waters Construction Co. of Greenville.

Calls For Mothers

Free three-minute long-distance phone calls to moms as a Mother's Day gift to the community will be offered Saturday at Carolina East Mall as a service offered by the mall, Carolina Telephone and WKKE Radio of Greenville.

From 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., anyone willing to stand in line for the opportunity will be given a call to his or her mother, regardless of where she lives in the continental United States. Two telephones will be set up at the center court of the mall, said manager Harvey Lindsay.

Zan Monroe, manager of staff operations at Carolina Telephone in Tarboro, said this is the first time free long-distance phone calls have been offered in Greenville. He said one of the purposes of the project is to encourage early calling for Mother's Day, which is usually one of the largest telephone traffic days of the year.

Hart Damaged

The argument will rage about the propriety of the Miami Herald story on Gary Hart and a female companion. Nevertheless the incident shows poor judgment on the part of a presidential candidate.

The Miami Herald reporters followed a young woman to Washington and observed her entering the townhouse of Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart. While the reporters couldn't be certain the visitor was in the townhouse all night, the story of the visit received national coverage.

The debate continues as to whether the media should become that involved in the personal affairs of a candidate. That debate is a proper topic of discussion but that doesn't take Hart off the hook for using bad judgment in this matter. Anyone could have observed the events, political enemies or neighbors, and raised the same questions about propriety.

Those who run for president are opening their lives to public scrutiny. Like everyone they need a private life too, but they have no assurance that any areas of their lives won't be invaded.

Anything that compromises a presidential candidate can hamper him in making unfettered judgments in the event that he becomes president.

Hart admits to a mistake in the incident. "That goes without saying," he commented. However, he denies that he did anything immoral and neither the public nor the press can say what went on behind closed doors.

Public reaction on how a presidential candidate behaves personally ranges from "so-what?" to outrage from those who see the worst. But when an individual is running for president you can't afford to leave doubts with any segment of the populace. It doesn't take a very large bloc of voters to spell defeat.

The appearances of last weekend's incident will offend some; the question of judgment will trouble others. It is obvious, however, that Hart's status as the front running Democratic candidate has been damaged. Perhaps he can repair the damage but it will take a great crisis-reducing effort on his part.

Understanding

Pitt legislative leaders feel the county and city have impressed the State Legislature with its Pitt County Legislative Day reception held at the Raleigh Marriott Tuesday.

The event was hosted by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. Invited were members of the General Assembly, N.C. Court of Appeals, Council of State, N.C. Supreme Court and the N.C. Board of Transportation. Some 500 guests attended and four bus loads of area citizens traveled to Raleigh for the occasion.

Why was it held? Well, Bill Clark, chairman of the Chamber board of directors, said it gave the people of Pitt County the opportunity to thank the General Assembly for what it has done.

More important, perhaps, he said it hopefully gives our area a "little bit of an edge with these people when they see a bill come through or they see something about eastern North Carolina."

The reception, which has become an annual event, tells the Legislature that "our community is exceptional and needs to be dealt with, Sen. Tom Taft said. There was nothing but good comments from the legislators on the opportunity to meet citizens from eastern North Carolina and talk over the needs of the region.

Taft's comments are appropriate. Pitt County needs recognition with other parts of the state, and the legislative reception helps provide that visibility. The county figures in the overall state political scene and provides leadership in the General Assembly. It is equally influential in areas like economics, education and medicine.

Rep. Ivan Mothershead, R-Mecklenburg, said the state is one big family.

"You would hope that the people of Pitt County would see that we're interested in their problems and hope that they'd be interested in our problems, too, in Mecklenburg County. Such events "serve a very important function and everybody gets to meet the people behind the bills."

We can never go wrong bringing people together so that they can discuss their needs and problems. North Carolina is, indeed one big family. Geographically, though, it is a huge state and it takes communication for the people in one end of the state to understand the needs of those at the other end.

The All-American Boy

The hardest thing to believe is that Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North was able to do all the things he is said to have done in the last few years. The mind boggles at how he kept all those balls in the air.

I can just imagine a simple day in the life of this gung-ho Marine.

"Fawn, I have to go to China tomorrow to pick up some guns for the contras. Book me on a Pan Am flight to Beijing ... Hold it a minute. I just found a note here that the Poles will see me on my request for the land-to-air missiles we're trying to buy. Fix my ticket so I can stop in Warsaw on my way back from Beijing."

"But Ollie, you can't go to China tomorrow. You're scheduled to brief all the contributors of the freedom fighting foundation at the Kennedy Center."

"I'll talk to them at breakfast and fly to China in the afternoon."

"You're booked in Miami in the morning to address the anti-Castro Cubans. You were going to do that on your way to Grenada. The anti-Castro meeting is important because they're trying to raise money to invade Cuba."

"I'll do that after Poland. By the way, I have to stop off in Geneva to arrange financing for arms we're giving Iran."

"Ollie you didn't tell me about any arms for Iran." "I'm flying them in with Bud McFarlane after I meet with a Saudi Arabian, an Iranian and an Israeli businessman in Jerusalem."

"You want to fly from Geneva to Jerusalem?"

"Yes, because that's my takeoff point for Tehran."

"Didn't you promise to race in the America's Cup in Australia this weekend?"

"I haven't forgotten. What time is my briefing with the President?"

"It's Friday at 2 o'clock."

"I'll be back for that unless I go underground in Italy to infiltrate the Red Brigade."

"What are you going to tell the President?"

"I'm not going to tell him anything. He just wants to be assured everything is going to be all right."

"Ollie, did you know you were scheduled to rewire the entire U.S. Embassy in Moscow on Friday?"

"Don't worry, Fawn. I'll take the red-eye back from Tehran."

"You have a PTA meeting on Friday and your wife said she'll kill you if you miss it."

"It seems to me I'm also conducting the National Symphony Orchestra that night."

"That's next week. This week you're slated to give the definitive lecture on brain surgery at the National Academy of Sciences."

"Wasn't I supposed to ride a horse in the Kentucky Derby?"

"No they scratched you when they heard you were going to race in the Indianapolis 500. Ollie, you're doing too much."

"Fawn, whoever heard of a Marine doing too much? We have wars to win, communists to kill and presidents to save. If I don't keep this whole thing together who will?"

"You're so strong, Ollie. Is there anything else you want me to do?"

"Maybe I'll test Star Wars after lunch."

"Ollie, the Supreme Court is on the other line. They want to know if you'll write the majority decision on "The People vs Gambino."

"Okay, but tell them to get the transcript over pronto. I have a yen to parachute into Libya and give Kaddafy a piece of my mind."

The Stench Of Scandal

WASHINGTON — In this season of scandal, when betrayal of trust is pervasive, the metaphor of the times is that steaming, stinking garbage scow plowing the seas in a vain search for a place to dump the mess.

Naturally, no one wants it. So on it sails, a figurative Flying Dutchman of distress, bearing its tons of unwanted wastes to God only knows where. A congressional hearing scheduled this week to examine the causes, implications and possible solutions for this most contemporary dilemma and societal failure, with fitting symbolism, runs head-on into a new version of Gresham's Law:

When it comes to garbage, as with other matters, bad news drives out good. Or, the worse the garbage at hand, the greater the attention paid to it. The waste-disposal hearing conflicts with the greater one on the Iran-contra mess. Guess which will be most widely publicized.

The same applies to other areas of present-day public life. Just when the public begins to focus on one national problem that deserves full attention, such as insider-trading scandals that have shaken the pillars of American capitalism and raised serious questions about the national ethical climate, along comes another to divert the scrutiny.

A Boesky is eclipsed by a Bakker. Public attention shifts from Wall Street con men to religious charlatans, who practice the same game by preying on the same kinds of poor, dumb, trusting souls.

In turn, the con men and charlatans are overtaken by political freebooters of the kind who will be displayed during the Iran-contra hearings. These arrogant true-believers, whose trust has been in themselves rather than the people, have operated with flagrant contempt of law, process and the democratic principles of majority rule and political accountability.

No sooner was that cast about to occupy center stage than it was overtaken by another gamy example of almost unbelievable political insensitivity or betrayal of trust. These seem to be the only conclusions to be drawn from the Gary Hart episode.

Here is the public reacting with revulsion to the series of scandals that have bred new distrust and cynicism after the dashing of hopes of the early Reagan years. Now, voters say, the qualities they seek most in the next president are integrity and trustworthiness, followed by competence, knowledge, experience and a more dynamic brand of take-charge leadership.

Here is the Democrats' leading candidate, as measured by the polls, who responds to whispers about his alleged extramarital relations by urging the media to "put a tail on me" to still the ugly rumors so he can get on with the serious business of running for president.

The press does tail him, and Hart becomes trapped in a mess that makes him out to be either willfully insensitive to public appearances, raising questions about his judgment, or a politician whose word is not credible.

One need not prejudge this case to know something important about it: Hart's followers have every reason to feel let down, if not betrayed, by him. It is one more reason to generate distrust among the general populace, especially those who seek to bring political change by working tirelessly with little reward for the candidate in whom they believe.

Strength For Today

It is a terrible thing to watch a loved one die and millions of people are having that experience every day. Sometimes it is an elderly parent who is passing away. Even more tragic, it is often a husband or wife, son or daughter or perhaps a life-long friend.

What word of comfort is there to be said to people overcome by grief? No human word, certainly. But there is divine assurance on the matter of death which runs through the New Testament from beginning to end. If we could see with the eyes of God we would no doubt be willing to give up our loved ones, knowing full well that they are safer in the Lord's hands than in ours.

"Whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord. Whether we live or die, therefore, we are the Lord's."

Watchdog Press Slips Leash

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was a womanizer who rationalized his behavior by noting that the leadership of the civil-rights movement put him under enormous emotional pressure. According to David J. Garrow's Pulitzer prize-winning biography, "Bearing the Cross," King defended his sexual athleticism as "a form of tension reduction."

While King was subjected to merciless harassment for his sexual adventures by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, the newspapers never touched the subject. Nor did they inquire into the many sexual liaisons of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. Dwight D. Eisenhower's wartime affair with Kay Summersby Morgan did not come to light until the publication of her memoirs 30 years after the fact. Most journalists of the day never knew about the most durable of all presidential affairs — that of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Lucy Mercer Rutherford.

Yet the Roosevelt affair produced a peculiar standoff at the time of the 1940 presidential election when word came to the Roosevelt campaign that the Republican nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, was romantically involved with a woman who was not his wife. Roosevelt's campaign managers feared that the president's own secret might be exposed if they raised the subject of his opponent's infidelity.

Why did none of that information ever reach the public? The answer is found in the code of discretion that prevailed among journalists until very recently and that still causes some of them to be queasy about reporting the intimate details of the lives of public figures.

The code was a simple and straight-forward one: If the private behavior of a public official was not criminal and did not adversely affect the conduct of that official's duties, it was no business of the press to report it.

The dutiful watchdog, however, has lately been transformed into a snarling attack dog — or at least a dyspeptic bloodhound — that can be found rooting around in everything from Henry Kissinger's trash can to Gary Hart's driveway.

The transformation of the press from the attentive guardians of public rectitude into an unrestrained pack of yapping terriers came about because of changes both in politics and in journalism. The turning point probably came in the 1970s as a consequence of the Watergate scandal and the manner in which it was exposed and the quick succession of sensational revelations of Sen. Frank Church's committee during its investigation of the CIA.

By this time, moreover, presidential politics had evolved into an exercise in marketing images on television — a development that challenged journalists to discover the real person lurking behind the mask fashioned by media advisers. Journalists were discovering the tools of aggressive investigative reporting about the same time that politicians were perfecting new techniques of presenting themselves to the public in the most flattering, even heroic, light. If politicians were going to parade around like white knights, the watchdog was going to need teeth sharp enough to pierce the suit of armor.

Rather than resulting in a nice equilibrium in which journalistic enterprise and skepticism balanced off presidential image-making, many reporters allowed themselves to be gulled by the electronic facades of presidents or presidential candidates and to write adoringly of them. But at the first sign that the image they had so lovingly nurtured might be concealing a less noble reality, the reporters would be seized by distemper and go on a rampage.

What is distressing is how little of this new aggressiveness is directed toward policies that are advocated by the candidates and how much of it is just sneering and leering.

Politicians, foolishly, invite such probing. Jimmy Carter, with his smirking sanctimony, virtually dared the press to pick a hole in his coat, and then gave it the tool to accomplish that with his "lust in the heart" statement.

Hart-Rice Incident New Outlet

Just when our craving for vicarious titillation had been amply fulfilled by Jim Bakker's admission to sins of the flesh and his wife's testimony to the aphrodisiac qualities of multiple wigs, just when we were beginning to tire of the Moscow Marines' illicit trysts with Soviet temptresses, just when we were getting thoroughly bored with the question of whether Fawn Hall took more than dictation from Oliver North, we have found a new and willing outlet for our collective voyeurism.

Thank goodness Gary Hart invited reporters to get to the bottom of all those nasty allegations of marital infidelity by putting a tail on him. And when the Miami Herald took him up on the offer, thank goodness Hart turned up in the company of a part-time actress in her 20s.

I mean, what if he had been spied opening the door of his Washington townhouse to, say, a cleaning lady in her 50s? Or worse yet, what if the reporters' two-day stakeout had produced the headline, "Hart Spends Night With Wife"? Can you imagine our frustration?

Not that the Democrats' front-running presidential candidate gave us all that much to titter over. Truth be told, the dirt on Hart, at least that which has been tilled so far, amounts to little more than garden-variety innuendo.

Reporters observed Hart and the woman leave his townhouse at 9:30 p.m. Friday and return at 11:17 p.m. They next saw Hart and the woman at 8:40 p.m. Saturday, thus the conclusion that the two "spent Friday night and most of Saturday" together. Hart claims he has no "personal relationship" with the woman and insists she did not spend the night at his apartment. The Herald has allowed as how the woman could have slipped out between midnight and 5 a.m., when the rear entrance was left unwatched.

Pretty boring stuff really, unless you consider the possibilities.

There is, for example, the possibility that the woman is a Russian spy. And there is always the possibility that it was Tammy Faye Bakker in one of the many wigs she says she uses to pique her husband's interest. Or maybe, just this once, Tammy Faye donned her ultimate disguise and shed the inch-long false eyelashes and inch-thick pancake makeup without which no one could possibly recognize her.

But even if you do stick to the bare, boring facts, given that Hart has a legacy of alleged "womanizing," given that he has twice separated from and reconciled with his wife, Lee, and given the fact that he is friends with Warren Beatty, being seen in the company of any other woman is enough.

Certainly it is enough to stimulate our more prurient fantasies. And it may well be enough to skewer Hart's White House hopes.

"The womanizing issue has become a major one in Hart's campaign because it raises questions concerning the candidate's judgment and integrity," Miami Herald Executive Editor Heath Meriwether said in defending his paper's monitoring of Hart's comings and goings.

Judgment and integrity — those are essential elements of character and, therefore, well worth scrutinizing in our potential presidents. But is womanizing the yardstick by which we should measure them? If a White House aspirant — or occupant — is unfaithful to his wife, if he sleeps with another woman, does that make him dishonest or given to irrationality?

Bakker, Dortch Defrocked By National Church

By RUSSELL CHANDLER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Former television evangelist Jim Bakker was permanently defrocked Wednesday as an Assemblies of God minister for adultery and alleged bisexual activity.

The 13-member Executive Presbytery of the Pentecostal denomination announced the dismissal of Bakker, founder of the PTL empire in South Carolina, as well as the Rev. Richard W. Dortch, Bakker's right-hand man, for "conduct unbecoming a minister."

The Rev. G. Raymond Carlson, the church's top official, said in a statement read at the church headquarters in Springfield, Mo., that the reasons for Bakker's dismissal were "based specifically on his confession of a sexual encounter with (church secretary) Jessica Hahn and his alleged misconduct involving bisexual activity."

Asked for a clarification of the reference to "bisexual activity," Assemblies communications officer Terry Terrell said that it was "an inclusive term for sexual activity with both men and women, though not necessarily at the same time."

Church spokesmen would not elaborate, but in an earlier interview, the second-highest official said the denomination considers homosexual acts to be particularly grievous.

"Homosexuality is clearly described in the New Testament as a horrendous sin against God and one's ministry," the official, Everett Stenhouse, assistant general superintendent of the Assemblies of God, said in a recent interview. "Forgiving and restoring are a priority with us, but with the ministry, we have very high standards."

Unless Bakker proves in a church court that he has not engaged in homosexual activity, he can never regain his credentials with the 2 million-member Assemblies of God, officials said.

Divorced Assemblies ministers who remarry while their previous spouses are alive are also subject to irrevocable termination, according to the church's bylaws. However, after dismissal on other grounds, including adultery, an Assemblies minister may have his credentials restored after a period of "rehabilitation," which includes counseling.

Neither Bakker nor Dortch appeared before church officials to face the charges against them and neither has asked to undergo the two-year rehabilitation process, Assemblies press spokeswoman Juleen Turnage said Wednesday. The ministers may appeal their dismissals within 30 days.

Charges against Dortch, according to the church executives, included "the concealment of information confronting the immoral conduct of a fellow minister and apparent deceit on his part regarding a coverup...."

Bakker and Dortch resigned from the Assemblies on March 19, the same day that Bakker turned over control of the $172 million PTL ministry to fundamentalist Baptist preacher Jerry Falwell. Bakker admitted at the time that he had engaged in a sexual encounter with Hahn in 1980.

During the ensuing upheaval, John Ankerberg, a Southern Baptist television preacher in Chattanooga, Tenn., publicly charged that Bakker had also hired female prostitutes, engaged in homosexual activity and permitted wife-swapping among high-level executives of PTL. Bakker said last week during a brief interview with the press outside his Palm Springs, Calif., home that he was not a homosexual and had not gone to prostitutes.

During a press conference at the PTL's Heritage USA religious resort park last week, Falwell confirmed that Dortch arranged for $265,000 of PTL money to be paid to keep Hahn quiet about her sexual encounter with Bakker. Dortch then concealed the payments to Hahn, Falwell said. The new PTL board, under Falwell, voted last week to banish Bakker and Dortch from further PTL ministry and cut off their salaries and bonuses. Bakker and his wife, Tammy, received $1.6 million in 1986 from PTL, and Dortch got about $350,000.

Dortch, 55, an Assemblies minister for 33 years, until 1985 was one of the 13 executive presbyters who act on disciplinary matters regarding the church's ministers. He relinquished that post when he became the second-in-command under Bakker at PTL.

Bakker, 47, ordained by the North Carolina District of the church in 1964, has never held office in the church's ministerial ranks.

Under Assemblies regulations, resignations of ministers are not automatically accepted if charges of wrongdoing have been filed against them.

The executive board, during a meeting in Springfield on March 25, heard allegations against Bakker and Dortch from Ankerberg and Orange County, Calif., businessman Paul Roper, who had helped negotiate on Hahn's behalf. Evangelist Jimmy Swaggart of Baton Rouge, La., an Assemblies minister, had also presented information about Bakker to Assemblies officials last summer, Turnage said.

The executive presbyters turned the information over to the North Carolina District, which held the ministerial papers for Bakker and Dortch. After two investigations at the regional level, the 16 district officers recommended Tuesday that the two ministers be defrocked. The 13 national executives, via a conference telephone call, concurred in the action Wednesday, Turnage said.

Bakker and Dortch were notified of the decision by telegram Wednesday. Bakker declined comment and Dortch could not be reached.

Senate Committee Approves Higher Speed On Interstates

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A House-backed bill to let the Department of Transportation post a 65 mph speed limit on North Carolina's rural interstates won a Senate committee's approval despite safety concerns.

Sen. Ralph Hunt, D-Durham, acknowledged to the Transportation Committee Wednesday that increasing the speed limit could result in more fatal accidents. But he said taking the safety argument to its logical conclusion would mean reducing the interstate speed limit to 45 mph or even 35 mph to reduce fatalities below current levels.

Hunt contended that lawmakers also should consider how the 55 mph limit affects commerce.

"More goods and services at 65 can be delivered over a given period of time than they can at the speed of 55," he said. "I think we have to strike a balance somewhere."

The panel's approval, on a divided voice vote, came after a subcommittee that studied several approaches to the speed limit issue decided to recommend approval of the House bill. The bill could go to the Senate floor later this week.

Sen. Jim Speed, D-Franklin, was among those who argued against the bill, saying people who now drive 65 in violation of the law will race along at 75 or higher.

"When I consider all of the pros and cons, I just can't vote for the bill in any form," Speed said.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, who chaired the subcommittee, agreed that allowing 65 mph driving on rural interstates may increase the temptation for people to cheat on other roads less suitable for high speeds. But he argued that most people obey the speed limit and will continue to do so.

"We feel that once they see that sign ... they'll drop back to the correct speed limit," Barnes said.

He said the subcommittee had considered recommending stiffer fines and additional penalty points for speeding above 65, but decided against it.

Currently, he said, exceeding 55 puts three penalty points on a driver's license, prompting a 40 percent insurance premium increase and up to $200 in fines. People caught twice in one year lose their licenses.

Federal legislation enacted last month allows states to raise their speed limits to 65 on rural interstates, which are stretches of interstate highways outside corporate limits of cities of 50,000 or more.

North Carolina has 630 miles of rural interstates. But DOT officials have said no portion of the state's highway system is suitable for 65 mph driving.

Gov. Jim Martin has promised that if the bill becomes law, DOT will do its best to honor the spirit of the law by conducting thorough studies to find places where 65 mph is acceptable.

"I think they'll take a professional approach," said Rep. Sam Hunt, D-Alamance, sponsor of the measure. "I think people are too much in favor of 65 to just offhand make a statement like, 'We're not going to raise it anywhere.' ... I would imagine there would be a substantial amount of them raised."

Weakened Spanking Bill Passes House

RALEIGH (AP) — The state House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to require local guidelines on spankings in public schools after adopting an amendment to give teachers a freer hand.

Rep. John Kerr, D-Wayne, managed to turn around last week's two-vote defeat of his amendment to allow spankings as a first-line punishment whenever alternative means of discipline might not be "practicable."

Kerr, during House debate, repeated arguments that the bill might "over-regulate" corporal punishment unless modified.

"This is not a child abuse bill," he said. "This is a reasonable corporal punishment bill."

Rep. Marie Colton, D-Buncombe, sponsor of the bill, said she was outmaneuvered by Kerr on the weakening amendment.

"He's been spending a lot of time on that, calling people," she said. "Frankly, I had a lot of other things I needed to be doing."

Tax Credit Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate approved a bill that would give state income tax credits to businesses that create jobs in economically disadvantaged counties after lawmakers agreed to exempt jobs shifted between counties.

The bill, passed 43-3 Wednesday and sent to the House, would give new or expanded businesses in any of the state's 20 poorest counties a state income tax credit of $2,800 for every job above 10 that they create.

The credits would be paid in $700 installments over four years but could not exceed 50 percent of a company's state tax payments. Only profitable companies would get the tax credits.

The 20 eligible counties would be determined through a formula that includes the unemployment rate and per capita income as determined by the state Department of Commerce.

Opponents of the bill argued that using tax incentives to lure new business and industry would be a bad precedent that would punish companies already in North Carolina. Supporters said 33 states already offer such incentives and that such a policy is needed to help pump the state's economy and create jobs.

BOND DENIED — Former White Patriot leader Glenn Miller, front left, is followed by Robert Jackson and Douglas Sheets as they are led from the federal courthouse in Raleigh on Wednesday. Judge Orders Miller Jailed While Appeal Is Pending

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Now that former White Patriot Party leader Glenn Miller and two other white supremacists are behind bars, U.S. Attorney Sam Currin says the threat of violence has diminished.

Miller was charged Wednesday with using the mail to threaten a race war against the government and a federal judge ordered him jailed while he appeals a 1986 contempt conviction.

Miller left his home in Hillsville, Va., last month after receiving permission from probation officials to take a vacation. Shortly after he disappeared, a letter calling for a race war and bearing Miller's signature was mailed to white supremacists and government officials.

Miller, Robert Jackson, Douglas Sheets and Tony Wydra were captured at a mobile home park in Ozark, Mo. Wydra was released, but the other three were held as fugitives and returned to North Carolina, where they had a court appearance Wednesday.

Currin said after the hearing that investigators took Miller's call for a race war seriously.

"We would not have charged him with mailing a threatening communication if we did not believe it to be a threat," Currin said, adding that now the "more troublesome" people were behind bars, he believed the potential for violence had lessened.

Miller admitted violating the terms of his bond by failing to report to a federal probation officer. But he said he did not violate a second stipulation, which required him to disassociate himself from the white supremacist group and its members.

U.S. District Court Judge Earl Britt ordered Miller held without bond while he appeals the contempt conviction. Britt set a June 8 hearing on whether to revoke Miller's $10,000 bond.

"God is with me. Who can stand against me?" Miller said as he was led from the courthouse after the hearing.

FBI agent Steve Drews, in asking for the new arrest warrant against Miller, said investigators found a rented copying machine, the original "declaration of war" and about 1,000 unmailed copies of the letter in the trailer where Miller was captured.

In other court action Wednesday, Jackson, who was convicted in absentia of federal conspiracy charges in Elizabeth City last month, was ordered held without bond pending his sentencing.

Jackson had been charged along with Wydra, his half-brother, and former WPP chaplain Stephen Miller with conspiring to blow up the offices of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala. Jackson, who did not appear for the trial, and Stephen Miller were convicted, while Wydra was acquitted.

Sheets, who had been subpoenaed as a material witness in that trial, was arrested in the courtroom Wednesday on charges that he failed to appear. His attorney, however, was involved in another case and could not be in court, so his detention hearing was delayed.

Miller, who said he had been unable to contact a lawyer since his capture last week, asked for a court-appointed attorney. He later asked Britt if he could make a statement.

"I'm just trying to clear this thing up now," Miller said. "It's been blown all out of proportion."

But Britt advised Miller to make no statement without a lawyer, then asked if Miller was waiving his right to have an attorney. Miller said he would waive his right to have an attorney in court while he made his statement.

"You can't have it both ways, Mr. Miller," Britt said. "If you want to waive your right to an attorney, then we'll move ahead. But you are not going to use this court for a forum."

Miller said he did not wish to waive his right to an attorney, and Thomas Manning was appointed to represent him.

A probable cause hearing on the new charge against Miller, originally scheduled for Monday, was delayed at Manning's request.

Cheese Recalled

RALEIGH (AP) — Two cheese manufacturers have been asked to recall products by the Food and Drug Protection Division of the N.C. Department of Agriculture.

The NCDA has requested Kolb-Lena Cheese Co. of Lena, Ill., to recall Old Heidelberg Soft Ripened Cheese, net weight four ounces, with code: for maximum freshness use before date shown — Apr 22, 87. It also asked Fromageries Bel, Inc. of Litchfield, Ky., to recall Natural Mini Bombel Semi-Soft Cheese, five cheeses of 1/4-ounce, net weight of 3 3/4 ounces with code: July 23 87.

Consumers having these chesses should not eat them, state officials said, and should return the cheese to the place of purchase.

"These products were sampled and tested by the Food and Drug Protection Division and found to be contaminated with Listeria monocytogenes, a bacteria which may cause flu-like symptoms in some people," said Robert L. Gordon, director of Food and Drug Protection. "Individuals most vulnerable to these bacteria are pregnant women, fetuses, infants, frail and elderly or other persons with weakened immune systems. There have been no reports of illness due to consumption of these products."

School Board

RALEIGH (AP) — Three new members joined the North Carolina Board of Education Wednesday, giving Gov. Jim Martin a majority on the board and a strong say in its selection of the next chairman.

Martin said Wednesday he is supporting board member Jere Drummond to succeed outgoing Chairman Mebane Pritchett. Drummond, a Charlotte Republican appointed to the board by Martin last year, also has the support of Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan.

Members joining the board Wednesday were Howard Haworth, William Meekins and Patricia Neal.

Fire Investigated

GREENSBORO (AP) — Greensboro fire investigators say a fire at Lora Brown's apartment, which injured five people, was set by an arsonist with a flammable liquid. A five-gallon gasoline can was found inside the apartment.

Ms. Brown, 25, on her way to work, was leaving her first-floor apartment with her two children about 4:40 a.m. Tuesday when a man pushed them into a utility closet off the patio, according to investigators.

"The gentleman came up behind her ... and locked her and her two children in the utility room," said Capt. Louis Martin of the Greensboro Fire Prevention Bureau. "She ... kicked her way out."

Ms. Brown sustained second-degree burns on her shoulders, hands and arms. Her 2-year-old daughter was burned on the forehead. Both were treated at Moses Cone Memorial Hospital and released.

Three people staying in an upstairs apartment were injured when they jumped from the second floor to escape the burning building.

Takeover

GREENSBORO (AP) — New York financier Asher B. Edelman and Dominion Textile Inc. of Montreal have offered to buy any stock they don't already own in Burlington Industries Inc. directly from shareholders for $67 a share.

The tender offer, which is considered hostile because it circumvents Burlington's board, is $7 higher than the "friendly" offer Edelman and Dominion made to the board less than two weeks ago and is a significant step in any takeover attempt.

Meanwhile, in Raleigh, Edelman and Dominion established another front in their battle to take control of the nation's largest textile company, filing a lawsuit in U.S. District Court that challenges the constitutionality of a 1977 state law designed to regulate the sale of North Carolina firms.

The partners are prohibited from acquiring more stock through the stock market while the tender offer, which expires June 3 but can be extended, is in effect. However, Edelman and Dominion disclosed Wednesday in papers filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission that they have increased their stake in Burlington to 13.44 percent of Burlington's 27.3 million outstanding shares, for a total investment so far of about $182 million.

Cummings

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — A Hoke County Superior Court jury Wednesday recommended the death penalty for Edward Lee Cummings, who was convicted of murder in the slaying of a Wake County woman.

Judge Robert Farmer set Cummings' execution for July 10, but the case will be automatically appealed to the State Supreme Court.

The same jury had convicted Cummings Monday of first-degree murder in the death of Karen Puryear, 22. The jury began deliberations Wednesday morning on whether to sentence Cummings to death or to life imprisonment.

Cummings is still awaiting trial on a murder charge in the slaying of Miss Puryear's 15-year-old sister, Teresa.

The bodies of both young women were found last year in shallow graves in Hoke County.

Grateful Victim

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Opal Marion has a word for the thieves who stole a concrete lion from her front yard — thanks.

Mrs. Marion said she was watching from her front window as two people, whom she recognized, wrestled with the lion and hauled it to their car trunk — right under the Community Watch sign tacked to a nearby tree.

"I got pretty excited," she said. "I started to call the Sheriff's Department."

"But my husband stopped me. He said, 'You've been wanting to get rid of it. Let them take it.'"

The stolen lion has a mate standing on an oil drum filled with concrete in the back yard. Both were purchased 15 years ago and had begun to show their age.

Mrs. Marion declined to identify her benefactors.

Island Owner Will Take Barge's Trash

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The owner of a tiny Bahamian island has agreed to take 3,100 tons of Long Island, N.Y., trash and end the six-week saga of a barge that traveled from New York to Central America in search of a dump.

Clearwater resident Tony Gallina, 44, said he wants to use the trash as fill for developing Little San Salvador, his 5 1/2-mile-long, 2 1/2-mile-wide island located east of Andros Island in the Bahamas.

"I think it's a solution that can solve a lot of problems for everybody," he told WTVT-TV in Tampa Wednesday.

"The garbage will be our start and someday nobody will ever know what started it all, because we can envision a fantastically beautiful island that everyone will want to see," he said.

Lowell Harrelson, the New York man who contracted with Islip, N.Y., to get rid of its commercial refuse, told the station he reached the agreement with Gallina earlier Wednesday. The garbage could be unloaded in a week, he said.

"I'm ready for it to find a home," Harrelson said.

Gallina said he and Harrelson will meet in the next few days to iron out the arrangement and discuss a partnership for developing of Little San Salvador.

The barge remained anchored seven miles off Key West, Florida Marine Patrol Maj. Randy Willich said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the chairman of a congressional subcommittee criticized the Environmental Protection Agency for failing to solve the problem of the wandering tugboat Break of Dawn and the trash-stacked, fly-infested barge it has towed from New York to the Central American nation of Belize.

Rep. Thomas Luken, D-Ohio, chairman of the House subcommittee on transportation, tourism and hazardous materials, asked an EPA official Wednesday what the agency was doing about the barge from March 22, when it left Islip until April 17, when the EPA reminded the barge owners of ocean dumping laws.

"We began tracking the barge when it became obvious it wasn't going to find a home, and we tracked it because of the potential for ocean dumping," said J. Winston Porter, EPA's assistant administrator for solid waste and emergency response.

Porter said while the EPA has no legal jurisdiction over the floating trash — other than to make sure it is not dumped at sea — EPA officials have been monitoring the barge and working with New York state to find a final resting place for the waste.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., who also testified, recommended that the EPA be given authority to review and coordinate state waste disposal efforts.

"This authority should require state solid waste plans to include provisions that any solid waste leaving a state be certified to ensure that both the method of disposal and its destination site have been approved by the state receiving the waste," D'Amato said.

The baled trash, which the EPA has said is harmless, has traveled about 5,000 miles since embarking from Long Island. North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Florida, Mexico and Belize have all refused to permit its dumping.

DEA Ends Largest Cocaine Operation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three reputed top figures in the Colombian drug trade were among 58 people arrested in three cities to cap what officials say was the largest undercover investigation in federal drug enforcement history.

The 3-year-old "Operation Pisces" culminated Wednesday with indictments of 115 people, more than half of whom were arrested in Miami, New York and Los Angeles. Some had already been arrested and others were fugitives.

Up to 20 undercover Drug Enforcement Administration agents acting as middlemen won the trust of the drug traffickers and then took a cut of the drug money as their split for laundering $116 million over three years and moving it to foreign banks, officials said.

Altogether, the DEA agents handled 325 transactions for the traffickers, as much as $1.5 million at a time, Attorney General Edwin Meese III said.

Simultaneously with Wednesday's arrests, the government of Panama, using a new law aimed at halting drug money laundering in the Central American country, froze 54 accounts in 18 of that nation's banks where drug proceeds from Operation Pisces were deposited.

The Panamanian action means that the traffickers' bank accounts now will be opened to U.S. drug agents, who will try to track the money trail with the goal of seizing all the illicitly gained funds, DEA officials said.

"Operation Pisces says to traffickers the world over that drug assets are everywhere insecure," said Meese. "There will be no safe havens for drug money. We will find it, and we will take it."

At a Los Angeles news conference, the Panamanian attorney general, Carlos Villalaz, dismissed suggestions that Panamanian banks had been dependent on money laundering, saying "In Panama we do not live on drug money."

In Miami, U.S. Attorney Leon Kellner said the investigation focused on money-laundering because "the major traffickers may not touch the drugs. But there's one thing they always touch — the money."

The operation supplied the DEA with enough information to enable state and local authorities to arrest more than 350 people since 1984 and to seize more than 19,000 pounds of cocaine with a wholesale value of $270 million.

To date, the operation has netted $49 million, most of it in cash, along with 95 cars, 15 airplanes and one boat.

It was "the largest and most successful undercover investigation in federal drug law enforcement history," Meese said.

Using the traffickers' money, the DEA in Miami even purchased a Gulfstream jet that was to have been used to smuggle cocaine into the country.

Among those captured Wednesday were three reputed top leaders of Colombian cocaine trafficking and money laundering cartels, including the alleged operators of two massive drug rings in the United States.

One reputed kingpin, Jose Auli Lopez Chacon, 37, of Bogota, was picked up as he stepped off a jetliner in Miami.

Hollings Delays Vote On Webster

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of FBI Director William Webster to head the CIA is being held up due to congressional concern over security at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., using a prerogative available to any senator, announced Wednesday he was placing a "hold" on the Webster nomination until Webster assures him the Justice Department will conduct a full investigation of the embassy problem.

"It is apparent that the FBI has no idea of doing anything," Hollings said at a news conference. "It is apparent that I'm being given the runaround."

He accused the FBI of not vigorously investigating the State Department in the matter involving U.S. Marine guards accused of espionage at the embassy.

"When are you going to start enforcing the damn law? ... When are you going to wake up?" Hollings asked FBI official John D. Glover at a congressional hearing.

A federal statute provides prison terms of up to 10 years for people entrusted with classified documents who through gross negligence allow national secrets to be disclosed.

Glover, the FBI's executive assistant for administration, said agents are assisting naval intelligence officers in investigating the case.

FBI agents have sat in on interviews with State Department personnel in the probe, added Gary Penrith, deputy assistant director for the FBI's intelligence division.

Glover and Penrith both made clear, however, that the probe is focused exclusively on military personnel and that the Naval Investigative Service is the agency actively investigating the matter.

"That's the wonderful FBI," Hollings responded sarcastically.

"This simple monitoring is not investigating," he said. "The FBI isn't buying tickets to hearings. They're supposed to be pursuing violators of the law."

His criticism came at a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing on the FBI budget.

Later, Hollings told reporters that the Reagan administration is "stonewalling" on the idea of looking into the possibility of criminal behavior by State Department personnel in the Moscow embassy scandal.

Hollings said the administration's attitude is "they just had a few young Marines, who really got oversexed."

"It's not that case at all," he said. "It's the security of the Department of State that's irresponsible."

Hollings later in the day sent a letter to President Reagan asking for a "thorough and vigorous investigation."

A week ago, Attorney General Edwin Meese III said the Justice Department was looking into whether State Department personnel could be prosecuted for criminal negligence in embassy spying case. No decision has been made.

Hindenburg Blast Recalled In Service

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — The commanding officer of the naval base here cringed when a replica of the Hindenburg fell from a podium, bounced once and crashed to the ground during a ceremony marking its fiery explosion.

"Somebody would think that was prophetic," Capt. James R. MacDonald told the 500 people gathered Wednesday.

Many in the crowd witnessed the explosion 50 years ago of the German airship at the site where they stood for the ceremony, a barren field at the Naval Air Engineering Center, which in 1937 was known as the Lakehurst Naval Air Station.

Ground was broken Wednesday for a historical marker.

A month ago, Navy officials had not planned on a ceremony, saying some people might feel uncomfortable because the 804-foot Hindenburg was a Nazi airship.

Secord Says Drug Agents Planned Possible Rescue Of U.S. Hostages

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials, disappointed that arms sales had failed to produce freedom for American hostages in Lebanon, planned a possible rescue mission using drug enforcement agents, according to testimony in the Iran-Contra case.

Richard V. Secord, the retired Air Force major general who worked with fired White House aide Oliver L. North in the sale of arms to Iran and diversion of money to the Nicaraguan rebels, provided glimpses Wednesday of an operation planned in May 1986, but he did not reveal details of how it was to work.

"It did not succeed," Secord said in his second day of testimony before the congressional panels investigating the Iran-Contra case.

"I had been asked by North some time just before this mission to support the DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency) people in another attempt to locate and perhaps rescue some of the hostages in Lebanon," Secord said.

The mission he referred to was the trip that North, former national security adviser Robert McFarlane and others took to Tehran in May 1986 in an unsuccessful attempt to bargain for the release of Americans held by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon. The U.S. team brought weapons with it.

"He was very disappointed, and of course, so were we all," Secord said of McFarlane.

Meantime, planning was under way for the possible rescue mission, which involved a ship that Secord and his business partner, Albert Hakim, had bought for about $350,000. Secord has said they hoped to lease the ship for $1.2 million for the six-month project.

The DEA agents who had been tapped for the mission were working out of Cyprus, but they went to Switzerland to pick up money from Hakim for their operation, Secord testified.

"It was a little bit confusing for me," Secord said. "And, in fact, after I heard of some curious things about this Cyprus operation — one of which was they wanted my boat ... to go down and stand offshore to be used in some operation to pick up the hostages."

Secord then asked his friend, Thomas Clines, a former CIA agent, to go to Cyprus "to join up with the DEA agents and try to find out what was going on."

Clines assessed the operation as having a 40 percent chance of success, and then he downgraded its chances to 20 percent, Secord said.

The DEA agents were given expense money from the private Secord network because the DEA chief had agreed to "detail some agents to this project from time to time, but the expenses of these agents would have to be borne by outside financing," Secord said.

DEA spokesman Cornelius Dougherty said the DEA did not want to comment immediately on the specifics of its involvement, but he said an explanation offered by another government official "makes pretty good sense."

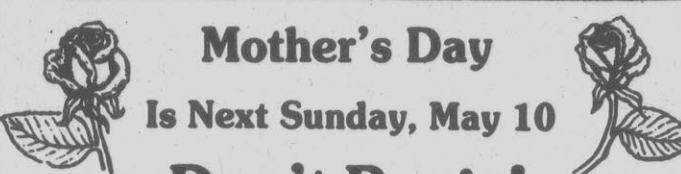

That official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said DEA agents had good contacts in Lebanon, a country where drug profits are often used by local warlords to pay for military equipment.

Officials thought the DEA's contacts could prove useful to freeing the hostages, he said.

North, in a June 3, 1986, memo printed in the Tower commission's report, talked about how Secord had worked through the "earlier DEA-developed Druze contacts" on a possible hostage rescue mission.

The Druze militia is one of the warring factions in the sectarian conflict in Lebanon.

Miami Herald Editorial Accuses Hart of Lying

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Herald attacked Gary Hart in an editorial today, saying the Democratic presidential candidate "has added lying to his previously documented demonstrations of bad judgment."

"The Democratic presidential candidate is behaving in the classic pattern of a man trapped by public disclosure of his own actions: He is shading the truth," the Herald said, challenging Hart's responses to its report that a Miami woman spent Friday night and much of Saturday at his townhouse.

Hart, in an address Tuesday to the American Newspaper Publishers Association convention, denied Donna Rice stayed overnight and also said the Herald story "was written by reporters who by their own admission undertook a spotty surveillance, reached inaccurate conclusions based on incomplete facts, who after publishing a false story now concede they may have gotten it wrong."

Hart also said the reporters "refused to interview the very people who could have given them the facts before filing their story which we asked and urged them to do."

But in its editorial, titled "Now the Cover-up," the Herald challenged those statements.

"In fact, on Saturday night outside his home, Herald reporters repeatedly asked Mr. Hart to identify and let them interview the woman they had seen him with on Friday night and Saturday. He refused," the editorial said.

At a news conference Wednesday in New Hampshire, Hart said he had made "a judgment" not to identify Rice and the two other people with him at his Washington townhouse and that he was "not entitled to jeopardize them in some sort of scrutiny or slander without their permission."

It is not within my capability to bring somebody else into it, without at least discussing it."

Hart said his friend William Broadhurst, one of his guests at the townhouse, later contacted the reporters and offered to talk with them if they would not publish their story beforehand.

The Herald also said "Hart lied about approaching the reporters on Saturday night."

On Tuesday, Hart said, "I sought out the reporters; they didn't have to come find me. I knew I was being followed, and I went and confronted them ..."

"In fact," the Herald's editorial said, "he walked past their car and the reporters had to catch up to him in order to identify themselves and ask him questions."

As to Hart's remark Tuesday about the Herald conceding a mistake was made, the newspaper replied, "The Herald concedes no such thing."

While acknowledging that its reporters were not watching both entrances to Hart's townhouse at all times, the Herald said "what the reporters might have missed seeing is, by any reasonable reckoning, far less important than what they saw."

Lee Hart Joins Candidate For N.H. Campaign Visit

LITTLETON, N.H. (AP) — Lee Hart quietly joined her husband, Gary, on the presidential campaign trail after saying she loves him and believes him when he says "nothing happened" between him and part-time actress Donna Rice.

The Democratic front-runner and former Colorado senator introduced his wife to an overflow crowd of more than 100 at a community hall Wednesday night, kissed her on the cheek and called her "the bravest wife in the world."

Mrs. Hart stood several feet behind her husband as he briefly mentioned the controversy over his association with Rice, 29, a sales representative and former model from Miami. He reiterated he had made a mistake in judgment in socializing with her.

Mrs. Hart, 51, made no statement at the community hall and did not answer reporters' questions as she and her husband of 28 years made their way, arm in arm, to a waiting car.

Before boarding a plane for New Hampshire earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Hart, commenting for the first time on the controversy, said, "When Gary says nothing happened, nothing happened. One thing I do know about my husband, he does not lie."

"I love my husband very much," she said in an interview at the Denver airport. "My support is as strong today as I have always given to him."

Mrs. Hart said a sinus infection prevented her from joining her husband at an address Tuesday to the American Newspaper Publishers Association in New York City. It was his first public appearance since Sunday's Herald story.

"I don't think one should misconstrue something that may be a bad political judgment with the kind of character assassination that has been going on," Mrs. Hart said, accusing the Herald of a "breach in journalistic ethics."

She flew from Denver to Lebanon, and joined Hart in Hanover, where he spoke at Dartmouth College. She did not attend a news conference afterward where Hart answered questions about his friendship with Rice.

Hart's presidential campaign, like his bid for the presidency in 1984, has been dogged by rumors of womanizing, but the candidate said Tuesday his marriage is strong despite two separations.

Mrs. Hart said she stood behind her husband's explanation of his relationship with Rice "absolutely. I have no doubt in my mind. I have lived with Gary 28 years. I know him very, very well."

"He said, 'I did nothing,' and I know he did nothing. In all honesty, if it doesn't bother me, I don't think it ought to bother anyone else."

Passengers 'Bumped'

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Federal authorities are investigating whether a man traveling with Gary Hart falsely identified himself as a Secret Service agent and ordered passengers bumped from a flight the candidate was taking.

The allegation has "enough credibility to investigate it," said Jane Vezzeris, a Secret Service spokeswoman. She refused further comment, saying the agency does not release details of its inquiries.

A Precision Eastern Express Airlines agent at Newark International Airport reported being approached by Hart and three others, one of whom said, "I'm with the Secret Service and no one else can board this flight except Mr. Hart and his party," according to airline spokesman Fred Martin.

Hart Puts Campaign On Hold

called for fairness. And he continued to point out what he called flaws in Sunday's Miami Herald story that said Rice spent Friday night and most of Saturday with him at his Washington townhouse while his wife was in Denver. Hart and Rice deny the story.

"Now I'm going through this and I will continue to. I want to answer questions and I'm doing my best and I intend to continue to do my best," Hart said. "You can ask me about adultery. You can ask me about any question you want. And believe me, my wife and I have answered more personal questions than I think anybody in public life. And we will probably have to continue to, to my regret."

"But I am going to demand this system be fair. And I have a right to demand it. And if someone is going to follow me around, they better follow me around. And they better print all the facts."

As Hart made his first campaign trip since the Herald story, the news from the polls was not good.

A poll of 400 likely New Hampshire primary voters conducted for The Boston Herald and WBZ-TV said Hart has slipped in New Hampshire from a tie at 32 percent with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis a week ago to a 27 percent to 17 percent Dukakis edge.

Hart acknowledged the damage from the controversy, but said the damage, like the jokes, would be only short-term.

"Jokes only last so long," he said.

Senate OKs $1 Trillion Budget Based On Taxes, Defense Limits

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a $1 trillion budget today that sets a collision course with President Reagan, holding military spending to the inflation rate and relying heavily on that dirty word at the White House: taxes.

The lawmakers gave final approval to the Democrat-written spending plan by a 56-42 vote shortly after midnight this morning after a debate that began at 10:30 a.m. EDT Wednesday. The blueprint calls for $119 billion in new taxes over four years and has more domestic spending than the administration prefers.

"The budget passed by the Senate is realistic ... (and) down to earth," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., taking a slap at some of the proposals Reagan included in the budget he offered in January. "There are no gimmicks, no garage sales of assets, no attempt to use the next generation's credit card to pay today's bill."

All but one of the Senate's 54 Democrats voted for the measure. Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., did not vote.

All but four of the chamber's 46

Republicans voted against the proposal. John Chafee of Rhode Island, Robert Stafford of Vermont and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut voted for it, and Larry Pressler of South Dakota did not vote.

"I'm confident now this party of mine has demonstrated it can do the job," Byrd said after the final roll call.

The budget, composed by Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, would result in a $134 billion deficit according to the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office — well beyond the $108 billion ceiling imposed in the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law. But opponents aimed much of their fire at the taxes and Pentagon spending in Chiles' plan.

The proposal would provide $290.6 billion for defense next year, enough to keep up with inflation. But Chiles tacked a condition to $7 billion of that amount: It would only be available if the president approves $18.3 billion worth of new taxes for 1988.

"This is a tax-raising measure, not a budget based on any kind of fiscal restraint," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the senior Republican on the budget panel.

"By passing this budget, the Senate is saying we will raise America's taxes to continue our uncontrollable, profligate ways," said Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif.

But Chiles countered, "This debate is whether we're going to borrow more money, or start living a little bit within our means."

And Weicker, arguing for the proposal, said, "It is far more predisposed to the business of life than any other budget ... of life, of science, of health, of those matters that have been on the back burner for too long."

The House passed a similar budget, but without the extra defense spending, in April. Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he liked the Senate approach and thought the two chambers could work out their differences quickly in conference committee meetings that should begin next week.

"I think you see here both houses saying, 'Look, Mr. President, we differ with your domestic priorities and without significant revenues for defense buildup, you can't continue that buildup,'" Gray said.

Reagan has frequently made clear his opposition to tax increases. The budget does not require presidential approval, but separate spending and revenue laws putting the budget into effect do. Domenici predicted that the president would veto a bill containing the higher revenues, saying, "We are handing him a victory on a silver platter."

But Democrats complained that they have simply been unable to get the president to work with them.

"We can't get the president to cooperate. We can't get the president to help us with the budget," said Byrd, so Democrats were forced to "go it alone."

The lawmakers took a poke at Reagan earlier in the day by rejecting the president's budget 81-18, with only Republicans favoring it and more GOP lawmakers voting against it than for it. Reagan's budget had $16 billion less in domestic spending, $8 billion more for defense and about $7 billion less in revenue increases than the Chiles plan.

"It's not a serious budget, it's sham budget..." said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., of Reagan's proposal. "All it is is a political terrorist attack."

The senators then also rejected a budget offered by Domenici, 70-29, that would have produced lower taxes and domestic spending but more money for the Pentagon than the Chiles plan.

The Senate budget would provide $290.6 billion for the Pentagon next year and $301.5 billion in military spending authority — that is, permission to enter multi-year contracts up to that amount. Reagan had sought $297 billion in spending and $312 billion in budget authority.

Among the domestic spending items Chiles' plan includes that are higher than Reagan's proposals are $3.7 billion more for agricultural programs, more than $2.5 billion more for housing, $1.4 billion more for transportation, $4.4 billion more for education and job training, $2 billion more for Medicare and $3.6 billion more for other health programs.

Farmers' Food Share Drops Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farmer's share of what consumers spend for food is declining again this year, according to a new forecast by the Agriculture Department.

Consumers are expected to spend an estimated $377.3 billion on food produced on U.S. farms this year, an increase of about 4.5 percent from $361.1 billion spent in 1986.

Expenditures cover food eaten out as well as groceries bought for home use, but the figures do not include imported products or seafood.

The "farm value" of the 1987 consumer food bill — that portion returned to farmers — may rise slightly to $89.6 billion, the department's Economic Research Service said. That would be 23.7 percent of this year's $377.3 billion total food spending, down from 24.6 percent in 1986 when the farm share was $89 billion out of the $361.1 billion.

According to agency economist Howard Elitzak, the 4.5 percent rise in consumer food expenditures this year is about in line with annual increases since 1982.

Retail food prices are expected to increase an average of 2 percent to 3 percent this year and, along with population growth, will account for the rise in total spending, he said.

Elitzak's analysis was included in the May issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine, a monthly publication of the USDA agency.

The small rise in the dollar amount going to farmers this year — about $600 million more than in 1986 — will be due mainly to higher cattle prices, the report said. Smaller supplies and a 2.7 percent increase in real per capita disposable income were cited as factors.

"Little change is likely in the farm value of poultry and eggs, since a 6 percent hike in production will probably be offset by lower producer prices," the report said. "Grain supplies will remain large, and production declines will not be sufficient to boost the farm value."

The report added: "The farm value of fruit and vegetables may rise, reflecting a fruit production gain which will more than offset any price drop. A small increase in the farm value of dairy products may occur because of a further gain in commercial milk use."

CAR TALK

From Joe Cullipher Chrysler Plymouth, Dodge, Peugeot

By James Phillips

BATTERY CARE TIPS

Nobody really appreciates the importance of his car's battery until it goes dead. It has a tremendous job to do. But it's most important function is to provide the massive, momentary power demanded when starting the engine. No juice - no start. You can insure your battery's output by taking a few, simple maintenance steps.

At least once a month, check the fluid level in each battery cell and add water as needed. Do not overfill. Regularly wipe traces of dirt, moisture and corrosion from the battery top, tray, hold-down clamps and connections. At least once a year, carefully clean the unit with a mild, lukewarm solution of baking soda and water. Rinse off with clear, cold water and wipe dry. Make sure that the terminal connections are tight.

About twice a year ask your serviceman to check the battery voltage or the specific gravity of the acid-water solution. Investing a few extra minutes, on a regular basis, will mean extra miles of dependable performance.

Classes Help Students Pass Medical Boards

By DONNA BRYSON
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A university faculty has developed a recipe that includes a dose of common sense, a portion of research into how people learn, and a large pinch of compassion into a remedy for stalled medical students.

That concoction attracted 29 students to the University of Missouri at Kansas City this winter. The students had failed, in many cases several times, Part I of the boards.

"Boards" is the nickname given to a comprehensive test administered by the National Board of Medical Examiners. Part I covers the basic science curriculum of the first two years of medical school.

About 70 of the 110 medical schools in the United States require students to pass the boards either before they can go on to the third year or before graduation. More than half the schools require students who fail to withdraw from school until they do pass.

Students who score in the bottom 13 percent fail the boards. Most of the schools allow students to take the test three times. If a student cannot pass, he or she faces dismissal.

"This stops their life, they can't do anything else until they pass," said Deanna Martin, director of the Center for Academic Development at the university. She and her husband, Robert Blanc, coordinator of curriculum development at the UMKC medical school, organized the first study sessions in 1982 for four students.

"This exam doesn't focus on recall — they want to test reasoning,"

Blanc said. "I don't have a problem with the idea of asking people to pass a comprehensive exam."

But Blanc was concerned that capable students were being weeded out by the test.

"It wasn't that they were weak in their content," he said. Instead "we found that a lot of them didn't know how to think about those problems."

These are the kids who were the first in their kindergarten class to learn the pledge of allegiance. But they are also the kinds of kids who will memorize something wrong, and they never realize that it's not helpful knowledge.

"It's possible for people to reason effectively in one arena and not in another. (These students) were successful in premed programs. They were very successful in their (medical school) classes. It's just when it comes to a comprehensive test, they fail," Blanc said.

"Sometimes it's the first F they've ever seen by their name," Ms. Martin added. "You can't get into the problems that these students face without thinking about what led them to this point. These students have been educationally mismanaged."

She says the educational system emphasizes rote memorization over reasoning and rewards the quick answer at the expense of thoughtfulness.

The 29 students gathered in Kansas City from all over the country have paid $3,600 for a place they secured on a first-come basis. From February until June, when the test is given, they will study up to 12 hours a day, every day.

"We're trying to get people into a whole new way of thinking. It's not something they'll learn overnight," Blanc said.

About 125 students have completed the program. Only one has been unable to pass the boards and a handful have had to repeat the program before passing, Blanc said.

Upon arrival in Kansas City, students are given a mock board, during which their test-taking habits are observed. They also are given diagnostic tests of reasoning skills.

Then UMKC medical faculty review anatomy, biochemistry, microbiology, pathology, pharmacology and physiology. Following those lectures students break into small groups and, sometimes with the help of tutors, review the lectures and work with questions simulating the boards.

"I thought before I came here that they were going to teach me something magical. What surprised me is that we teach ourselves — which is good because it builds our confidence," one student said.

"We get students to spend a lot of time talking — explaining things to each other and to us," Blanc said.

The buzzword heard constantly during the UMKC lectures and study sessions is "think." The favored response to a question is: "Let me try, because I don't know."

"The whole emphasis is not on the answer," Ms. Martin said. "The emphasis is on the process of getting the answer."

Ms. Martin says the students arrive in February depressed, their confidence shaken. The first activity is dinner at her home. She says the students blossom under her and her husband's support.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday

CHAPEL HILL — The wedding ceremony of Lisa Elaine Jenkins and Gerald Wayne Richardson Jr., both of Rock Hill, S.C., were married Saturday at 2 p.m. in the University Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of R. Edward Jenkins of Chapel Hill and Elberta L. Jenkins of Philadelphia, Pa.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wayne Richardson Sr. of Rock Hill, S.C.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held at the Chapel Hill Country Club.

The couple will be living in Rock Hill after a wedding trip to St. Thomas and Barbados.

The bride is a graduate of Hard-barger Junior College in Raleigh and is a sales manager with B&G Enterprises in Rock Hill. The bridegroom attended Spartanburg Methodist College and is general manager of P&R Home Satellite Co., Inc.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jenkins of Greenville.

Bird Owner Has Warning

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful yellow canary who sings every day, all day long, rain or shine. His song makes me both happy and sad, and when I look at him, I could cry.

You see, he has no feet — he just scoots around on the bottom of his cage on the little balls at the end of his legs. I've had him for three years.

Just before last Christmas, I was cleaning his cage and noticed that the bands on his legs were very tight. I tried to cut them off, but they were so tight, I feared I would injure his legs, so I just left the bands on.

About three weeks ago, his legs became infected and swollen around the bands, and then his little feet just dried up and he pecked them off!

I realize that birds are banded to show they've passed inspection for health and shipping; now I am asking you to please print something in your column asking pet shop owners to cut off those horrible bands once the bird has been sold to an individual owner.

I prayed that my little darling would go to sleep and never wake up, but God let him live, and healed those swollen legs minus the feet, so he could sing again for me. Abby, please try to save other little singers from this fate. — A VERY SAD READER

May Fellowship Held On Friday

Church Women United held its annual May Fellowship luncheon Friday. Mrs. Howard Dawkins is president-elect for 1987-88.

Frieda Steinbeck reported over $1,000 was given for blankets for world service and a donation was made to Operation Sunshine for its building fund.

Mary O'Hare, volunteer coordinator for the Pitt County Family Violence Program, was keynote speaker. She talked on abuse in homes in Pitt County and services provided through the family violence program.

"We are working to break the cycles of family violence in the community and offer protective shelter to abuse victims for as long as 30 days," she said. Counseling is one method used in breaking the cycle of family violence.

"An estimated eight percent of married couples in Pitt County live with the threat or presence of violence. That's 2,895 individuals. The family violence program is dedicated to aiding these victims of abuse and eliminating violence in future generations," she said.

Twenty-one churches in the Greenville area participate in Church Women United.

Sweater Goes Spring To Fall

It would be hard to imagine a sweater that tops this one in comfort and good looks.

Incredibly easy to knit, with a loose, airy fit that flatters every shape, this pullover features dropped shoulders and a placket closing fastened with six buttons. The blouson effect on the sleeves and bottom is achieved by a finishing row of single crochet.

The soft cotton-acrylic yarn used has a nubby texture that imparts a fashionable look to take you through summer and into fall in style. Size 8 needles and a gauge of 4½ stitches to the inch assure a speedy finish.

Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium, large and extra-large to fit bust measurements of 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches respectively.

To obtain directions for making the Year-Round Comfort, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-050387 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-050387 by sending a check or money order for $20.95 for small or medium or $22.95 for large or extra-large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of azalea, ming blue or ecru.

Dear Pat: As a beginning knitter, I appreciated your recent column encouraging novices to do simple pattern stitches and to experiment with stripes. But, you although gave us tips on a pattern stitch, nothing further was said about knitting in stripes. Don't you think self-taught beginners deserve a little help in this area too? — Betty B., Winchester, Ind.

As mentioned in the previous column, anything that breaks up a solid expanse of stockinette stitch will disguise any unevenness that might mar your first attempts at knitting. Stripes do a good job of fooling the eye and hiding tension variations.

To work horizontal stockinette stripes, you need to learn only how to change from one color to another at the beginning of a row. Make the color change at the beginning of a right-side row unless advised otherwise.

Most "how-to" knitting books fail to say anything about joining in a new strand at the beginning of a row, however. There are a couple of ways to do this.

I simply drop the strand I have been using, pick up a strand from another ball or skein, and start knitting with the new strand. At this point, I just let the yarn ends hang loose. After completion of that row and the next, I can then tie the two loose ends together in a square knot, pulling it up so the tension of that stitch matches the other edge stitches.

However, as a beginner you might feel a bit insecure about the loose, loopy end stitches this temporarily creates. Instead, you can use a crochet hook to draw the end of the new strand through the first stitch on the needle and tie it around this stitch.

Another alternative is to tie the loose ends together before you start the row. Or, you can work the first stitch holding both strands together, tying them later.

If you choose to tie the strands in any of the ways mentioned, do so loosely. It is much better to make the final tie later after several rows have been worked.

If you are working narrow two-row, two-color stripes, it is possible to "carry" the yarn not in use up the side of the piece. If you choose this method, which does have the advantage of not leaving so many loose ends to weave in later, you must be careful to keep these strands fairly loose or this edge will end up being much shorter than the opposite edge. I do not recommend this procedure to the inexperienced knitter. I only mention it as a possible option for future projects.

I also would like to advise beginners to always leave at least a three-inch "tail" on all loose ends of yarn.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. Too few percent of the loads offered have been confirmed. The market is trending higher and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights light to desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,968,000, compared to 1,941,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn mostly steady at mostly 1.91-2.03 in East and mostly 2.08-2.20 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 5.33-5.53 in East and mostly 5.39-5.43 in the Piedmont; new crop corn 1.72-2.10; soybeans 5.01-5.36; wheat 2.40-2.89. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady to 1/2 percent lower and ranged from 101 to 103 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 8.09 to 2,350.28 in the first half hour of trading. Gainers outnumbered losers by about 9 to 5 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 709 up, 387 down and 401 unchanged. Volume on the Big Board came to 35.03 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street. Shearson Lehman Brothers Holdings traded at 34 after a public offering of 18 million shares at that price. The stock was sold by Shearson's parent company, American Express, as part of a series of transactions to increase the securities firm's capital. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .62 to 167.09. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .85 at 331.90.

Porker Dies

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Norma Jean, the 600-pound pig who sipped champagne and ate expensive chocolates at her coming-out party attended by 400 formally attired people, has died.

Veterinarian N.G. Baird said Norma Jean died April 30, more than two months short of her third birthday. The cause of death was not available.

Her owner, Dr. Raymond Sattler, a neurosurgeon, was attending a medical convention in Dallas and could not be reached for comment.

The Sattlers kept the pig in their home and in March 1986 held a black-tie invitation-only, RSVP debutante party for Norma Jean at the Ramada Inn here. Norma Jean and the Sattlers arrived at the motel in a limousine amid spotlights and the beam of television camera lights.

About 400 guests, wearing tuxedos, furs and evening gowns, attended the party, described by some as a night of swine and roses. Norma Jean reclined on a couch, sipping champagne and chewing on Godiva chocolates as she was admired by her guests.

Quake

MOSCOW (AP) — A strong earthquake shook the far eastern Soviet Union today but there were no immediate reports of injuries or damage, a spokeswoman for a seismological institute said. The quake struck at 7:06 a.m. Moscow time along the Soviet coast of the Sea of Japan about 500 miles northeast of Vladivostok, said the spokeswoman, who spoke on condition she not be identified. She said the quake was centered deep underground, which generally reduces the impact on the surface. The Soviet Far East is a mountainous and sparsely populated area that contains many secret military installations. Most of it is off-limits to foreigners.

Guatemala Says U.S. Transported Trainees

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — President Vicio Cerezo said the moving of Guatemalan soldiers in U.S. helicopters with American crews was an "isolated occurrence" that would not be repeated soon. He also said that the troop lift was for training purposes and not to combat leftist guerrillas as U.S. officials had stated. Cerezo commented to reporters Wednesday on the Pentagon's report that C-47 Chinook helicopters from Palmerola air base in neighboring Honduras and their American crews moved 300 to 350 Guatemalan troops from Guatemala City to Playa Grande, about 200 miles north of the capital. The Guatemalan army confirmed the Tuesday operation but gave few details. A small leftist insurgency of about 2,000 rebels has been active in Guatemala for 25 years. Since 1983, their activity has largely been limited to sporadic ambushes of army troops and coffee plantations. The Pentagon said that the U.S.

soldiers, who carried sidearms, faced minimal risks and that the helicopters were unarmed and operated from secure areas. "The operation was mounted in response to an official request from the Guatemalan president to the U.S. ambassador," Pentagon spokesman Col. Marvin Braman said Tuesday. "This is an isolated area that has become the scene of increased hostile guerrilla activity of late, and the government there has few assets to transport its soldiers." Cerezo dismissed the Pentagon report about fighting guerrillas as "an opinion of theirs." He said Guatemalan recruits were airlifted to the sparsely populated northern province because the trip would have taken 18 hours by truck. He also said Guatemalan pilots went along to learn how Chinooks were flown. "The truth is that they are recruits and this is not going to be repeated in the short term," he said.

Whites Tighten Hold

outgoing white chamber of Parliament to at least 19, according to near-complete returns. It was supplanted by the main parliamentary opposition by the Conservative Party, a staunch supporter of racial segregation. With 160 of 166 races decided, Botha's National Party, which has governed for 39 years, had 119 seats. Twelve seats of the 178-member, dominant white chamber of the tricameral legislature are filled by appointment, and the Nationalists were expected to receive 10 of them, putting them beyond the 127-seat majority they had in the previous Parliament. The Conservative Party, formed five years ago as a breakaway from the Nationalist Party, won 20 seats. The New Republic Party, an ally of the Progressives, won one seat and one went to an independent. Extreme rightist parties received 29 percent of the votes — nearly double their total in the last white election in 1981 and far ahead of the 18 percent garnered by an informal alliance of anti-apartheid candidates. "Clearly we will have to re-examine our role and function," said Progressive Federal Party leader Colin Eglin, who was re-elected easily. "We're going to give the National Party a really hard time in debates on constitutional issues," said the Conservative Party's Johannesburg regional chairman, Clive Derby-Lewis. "We're going to apply for the reintroduction of the Influx Control Act," he said, referring to the "pass laws" that for decades required blacks to carry documents authorizing them to be in any white area.

Caught Off Base

East Carolina's Steve Sides (2) tries to avoid the tag from N.C. State second baseman Scott Davis (22) as third baseman Bryan Kosco (29) watches. Sides, who had advanced from first to second on a hit by Chris Cauble, was tagged out after he made the turn at second and was caught on the relay. N.C. State took a 17-8 win in the game. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Rose Rebounds With Win; Conley Remains Unbeaten

WILSON — After two straight losses, Rose High School's Rampants found their way back to the winning side of the scoreboard Wednesday night, romping to a 10-1 baseball victory in the Big East Conference game.

The victory kept the Rampants hot on the heels of the new league leader, Northern Nash, one of the two teams that handed Rose a loss this past week.

The Rampants are now 7-2 in league play and 14-3 overall.

Tom Moyer pitched the first three innings of the game, giving up the only run and the only two hits the Warriors were to pick up on the day. Robbie McDonald came on to start the fourth and finished up, going four innings of no-hit ball to earn the victory.

Hunt's only run came in the second inning. Billy Ruffin cracked a home run to account for it.

The only other Hunt hit came in the third, a single by Johnny Hinnant.

Rose, meanwhile, had already put the game away with the run scored. The Rampants took the lead with one in the top of the first. Axel Smith led off with a single and Hunter Clark was also safe on an error, allowing Smith to come all the way for the score.

In the second, Rose exploded for seven runs and an 8-0 margin. Moyer doubled and Greg Jones beat out a bunt single. Scott Davis followed with a sacrifice bunt that was errored, allowing courtesy runner Dallas McPherson to score. An error then let Jones score. Hunter Clark walked and Jason Galloway doubled in Davis. David Daniels walked and McDonald followed with a grand slam home run.

Rose added single runs in the third and fourth. In the third, Davis tripled and scored on Smith's grounder to short.

In the fourth, Daniels tripled and scored on McDonald's single.

McDonald, who drove in five runs, and Jones led Rose's hitting with two each.

The Rampants return to action Friday night, playing host to Wilson Beddingfield at 7:30 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

HOLLYWOOD — Bronswell Patrick singled home Butch Mills with the winning run in the seventh inning as D.H. Conley defeated East Carteret in a key Coastal Conference baseball matchup Wednesday.

With the score tied at 3-3 in the bottom of the seventh, Butch Mills singled with one out. After another out, Patrick ripped a triple that brought home Mills and gave the Vikings the win.

Conley led most of the game but East Carteret, the pre-season pick to win the Coastal, rallied back to tie it up at 3-3 when Chris Graham hit a solo homer in the sixth inning.

Patrick was the winning pitcher, giving up five hits. He also was the Vikings' leading hitter with three, including a double and the key triple. Scott Lewis led East Carteret with three hits.

Conley improves to 14-2 overall and remains unbeaten in the conference at 8-0. The Vikings return to action Friday at North Lenoir.

SWAN QUARTER — Jamesville held off Mattamuskeet and gained a 10-7 Tobacco Belt Conference baseball victory Wednesday.

The Bullets took the initial lead with a run in the first, but Mattamuskeet came up with two in its half of the frame. Jamesville went back out with two in the second and added two more in the third.

The Bullets then put it away with five in the fourth. Keith Basnight was hit by a pitch and stole second, moving to third on a passed ball. Eric Spruill walked and a double steal scored Basnight. Craig Dickerson singled in Spruill. Jeff Phelps walked and Ernie Coltrain doubled in Dickerson. Kelby Moore walked to load them up, and a passed ball scored Phelps. Coltrain then scored on a hit by Doug Jones.

Mattamuskeet rallied for one in the fourth and four in the fifth, but fell short.

Coltrain led Jamesville with three hits while Clifton James and Joseph O'Neal each had two for Mattamuskeet.

Jamesville is now 8-7 in league play and 8-10 overall. The Bullets play host to North Edgecombe today.

Zaun's Two Homers Pace N.C. State To 17-8 Romp Over East Carolina Nine

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Turtle Zaun hit two home runs, one of which was the first of three N.C. State hit in the seventh inning, to pace the Wolfpack to a 17-8 baseball victory over hosting East Carolina University Wednesday night.

It marked the second time the Pirates had allowed the Wolfpack to score 17 runs against them this season. In small consolation, the Pirates did score seven more runs at Harrington Field than they did in the earlier game at State's Doak Field.

"I thought we played a fine offensive game," Pirate coach Gary Overton said. "I was pleased with the offense after our dead bats of this past weekend (against George Mason). But we are having troubles putting our pitching and our hitting together."

"I did think that Gary Smith did a good job, despite giving up three home runs," Overton continued. "But I thought only one of them was legitimate. The other two could have been caught at the fence. We just played them poorly."

Nevertheless, they counted, and State's total of five homers accounted for nine of their runs. Zaun's two ran his total for the year to 19 and his RBI to 54.

"I've got to give N.C. State credit, they did swing the bats," Overton continued. "But we helped them along too with poor defense. Some of the mistakes we made won't show up in the error column...the home runs that should have been caught, or hits we ran the wrong route on."

The Pirates took the early lead in the game, scoring twice each in the first and fourth innings. "But we should have padded our lead. We made a baserunning mistake in the third that took us out of it and we had the opportunity to get more and let it get away. It could have changed the complexion of the game had we been further ahead," Overton said.

East Carolina pushed over two in the first to take the initial lead. With two outs, Mike Sullivan walked and Jay McGraw responded with a homer to right, his seventh on the season.

In the third, Steve Sides led off with a single but was then thrown out at second after passing that base on Chris Cauble's hit to right. The throw behind Sides caught him off the base and he was put out in the ensuing rundown.

State got on the board in the fourth on the first of Zaun's homers.

But the Pirates came back with two in the bottom of the frame. Mike Andrews led off with a solo homer,

Steele Inks 1st Player

East Carolina head basketball coach Mike Steele announced today the signing of the first student-athlete for the 1987-88 season.

Stanley Love, a 6-5, 205-pound native of Decatur, Ala., became the first recruit for the new ECU coaching staff when he was signed by Pirate assistant coach Dan Bell.

Love led his Austin High School team to a 27-7 record this past season and a number three ranking in Alabama's top 6-A classification. He averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds while earning area player of the year honors.

Love's efforts also earned him a spot on the McDonald's High School All-American honorable mention team.

"Stanley represented every aspect we were looking for in our recruits," Steele said. "He is a great competitor and athlete, and he's also a fine student."

Daugherty, Two Other Cavs Named All-Rookie

CLEVELAND (AP) — The management of the Cleveland Cavaliers had said all along that this past season was a building year for the National Basketball Association team. Now they have official confirmation they are building with the right players.

Cavaliers Brad Daugherty, Ron Harper and John "Hot Rod" Williams were named Wednesday to the NBA All-Rookie team by the league's 23 head coaches.

Chuck Person of the Indiana Pacers and Roy Tarpley of the Dallas Mavericks also were chosen to the team.

Daugherty, Harper and Person were unanimous choices, landing 22 votes apiece. Williams and Tarpley each received 12 votes.

The showing of the Cleveland rookies marked only the second time in the history of the NBA Rookie team, which dates back to 1962-63, that three players from the same team made the squad.

Willis Reed, Howard Komives and Jim Barnes of the New York Knicks made the team in 1965, when six players were chosen because of a tie.

"At first I don't think we got much respect," Harper said in reaction to the selection of the three Cavaliers' players. "As the season went on and we kept playing hard, our team kept getting more and more respect. I think we will have a fine season next season. We have learned a lot this past season, and we played hard."

Cleveland, with the three rookies as its top scorers, struggled to a 31-51 record. The last Cleveland player to make the All-Rookie team was Dwight Davis after the 1972-73 season.

Harper, the No. 8 pick out of Miami (Ohio) in last year's NBA draft, is the only guard on this year's All-Rookie squad. He led all first-year players with a 22.9 scoring average to rank 16th in the league. He also is a leading candidate for the league's Rookie-of-the-Year award.

Daugherty, the only rookie starting center in the NBA this season, averaged 15.7 points and a team-high 8.1 rebounds. From North Carolina, Daugherty was the league's No. 1 draft choice.

Williams, who made the switch from center to power forward in the NBA, was the Cavaliers' third-leading scorer with a 14.6 average, their second-best rebounder with a 7.9 average and their top shotblocker with an average of 2.09 per game. He was a second-round pick in 1985 but sat out one season before being absorbed in the Tulane point-shaving investigation.

Person, a forward and the No. 4 pick out of Auburn, led the Pacers in scoring with an 18.8-point average and led the team in rebounding with 677, although his average was just behind teammate Steve Stipanovich, 8.27 to 8.26.

Tarpley was a key reserve at center and forward, averaging 7.5 points, 7.1 rebounds and 1.05 blocks. The Michigan product was the No. 7 draft pick.

The coaches who made the rookie picks weren't allowed to vote for their own players. They voted at the completion of the regular season regardless of position.

Cocaine May Be Involved In Death

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Cocaine may have been a "contributing factor" in the death of Texas-El Paso basketball star Hernel "Jeep" Jackson, according to court papers.

An autopsy "has ruled out natural causes and physical trauma," police homicide Detective Joe E. Garcia said in an affidavit filed in municipal court. "Pending the receipt of final toxicology reports, it is believed that cocaine was the contributing factor to the death."

Police investigating the death searched Jackson's apartment and found what was believed to be cocaine residue, the sworn affidavit said.

Jackson, a senior All-Western Athletic Conference guard for the Miners, joined some Houston Oilers football players for a benefit basketball game last Saturday at the Fort Bliss military reservation. During the second half, as he sat on the bench, Jackson collapsed. He was declared dead at Beaumont Army Medical Center about an hour later.

Manuel Diaz, chief investigator for the El Paso County medical examiner's office, said a three-hour autopsy Sunday showed "no visible signs of damage to the heart that could be seen with the naked eye."

Samples of blood, urine and tissue from Jackson's body are being studied, police Lt. J.R. Grijalva said Wednesday, but test results aren't expected until next week.

The affidavit was filed Tuesday night by police seeking an arrest warrant for Michelle Lee Cabrera, 19, who was arrested Wednesday on a felony charge of delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine under 28 grams, or less than one ounce.

According to the affidavit, Cabrera met Jackson and others at a restaurant near the UTEP campus last Friday. She accompanied them to Jackson's apartment, where he "ingested some of the substance in a manner consistent with cocaine use."

"Since the death, the defendant has made verbal statements to various individuals, expressing her guilty feelings for what happened to Jackson," the affidavit reads.

Municipal Court Judge Ernest A. Guinn, who issued the warrant, set bond at $500,000. Cabrera was booked into El Paso County jail and was released Wednesday night after posting bail.

If Jackson's death ultimately is linked to cocaine, it would mark the third sports-related cocaine death in 11 months.

Maryland All-American forward Len Bias died of cocaine intoxication on June 19, 1986, two days after he was selected in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft by the Boston Celtics. Eight days later, standout Cleveland Browns defensive back Don Rogers died after ingesting cocaine at his bachelor party. He was to have been married the day after his death.

"What has now happened ... is a young lady is being unfairly and improperly linked to the death of Jeep Jackson when such an inference is preposterous," said Richard Esper, the lawyer representing Cabrera.

Jackson was in excellent health with no history of heart problems, officials have said.

Elliott Feeling No Pressure This Time

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Bill Elliott, who had to learn to cope with stardom in just four months in 1985, said Wednesday he feels less pressure going into NASCAR's $600,000 The Winston this season than in previous years.

"(Dale) Earnhardt's year has overshadowed everybody, just like my year did in '85 and with that it's made it just like a holiday for me," said Elliott, who won The Winston last year at Atlanta International Raceway.

This year, Earnhardt has won six of nine Winston Cup races and leads Elliott in the battle for the national driving championship. The May 17 event pays a minimum of $200,000 to the winner.

Wednesday, Earnhardt's Chevrolet was clocked at 170.723 mph, the day's quickest practice lap at the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway. He received $1,000 for his efforts and afterwards rewarded each crewman with a $100 bill.

In 1985, the roles were reversed. Elliott dominated the superspeedways that season with 11 victories and collected a $1 million bonus from R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. for winning three of the big four — Daytona 500, Winston 500, Coca-Cola 600 and Southern 500.

"1985 changed me as a person quite a bit," said Elliott, whose quickest one lap practice speed Wednesday was 168.697 mph. "I got home after the Winston 500 (in early May) and everybody was coming from everywhere to see me. It was hard for me to deal with."

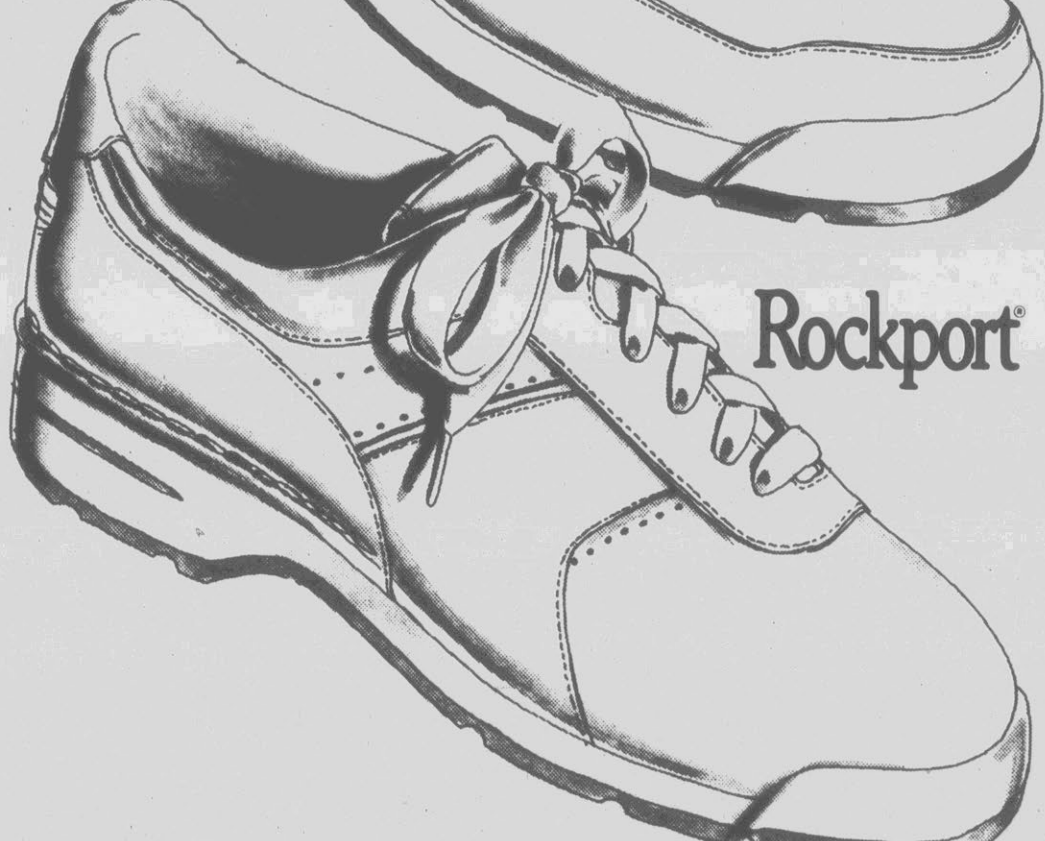

"A lot of people wanted to talk with me who didn't understand racing. That was the hardest thing for me. They didn't understand I had to work on my race car. I wasn't prepared for everything that happened in '85."

Wellcome.....11
True Value.....10

Will Pleasant singled home Jason Tetterton in the bottom of the seventh inning to give Wellcome a 11-10 win over True Value in Tar Heel Little League baseball action Wednesday.

The teams were tied at 10-10 after five innings of play when Wellcome rallied back from a 10-7 deficit with three runs in the fifth inning. Pleasants had the key hit in that inning with a two-run double.

In the seventh, True Value went three and out as Pleasants, who pitched the final two innings, got the side out on a pop-out to the third baseman and two strikeouts.

Wellcome's Garnett Moore opened the bottom of the seventh with a single. Tetterton followed with a walk before Moore was thrown out at third on a fielder's choice that allowed Jon Paul Devoe to reach. Pleasants followed with his game winner.

For the game, Pleasants went 4-5 with four RBI. Henry Clark went 3-4 to lead True Value.

Eveready.....3
Lions.....2

Edward Broadus doubled home Chris Edmundson in the fifth inning to score the winning run and give Eveready a 3-2 win over the Lions in a North State Little League Wednesday.

Eveready then held off the Lions in the seventh. Sam Jennings, who went the distance for the win, opened the inning by giving up a single to Deke Herrin, who advanced to third on consecutive passed balls. Jennings then got a pop-up and two strikeouts to end the game.

Broadus' hit was one of only two Eveready collected.

Conley Romps By Mariners

HOLLYWOOD — Trellany Boyd went 4-5 to lead D.H. Conley to a 16-1 romp over East Carteret in Coastal Conference baseball action Wednesday.

The Valkyries jumped on top early, scoring three runs in the first.

In the first, Boyd singled and Tabatha Dalton followed with a home run to make it 2-0. Lynn Keeter then tripled and Rhonda Mills followed by singling her home.

Dalton went 3-4 while Charlene Davenport, Rhonda Mills and Cash each had two hits for the Valkyries.

Conley is 14-4 overall and 6-2 in the conference with its next game Friday at North Lenoir.

East Carteret was led by Shelley Willis, J. Saunders and Goodwin with two hits apiece.

SWAN QUARTER — Mattamuskeet rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to squeeze out a 10-9 softball victory over Jamesville Wednesday.

The game was only five innings, since the Lakers also had a make-up game with Bear Grass following the contest with Jamesville.

Jamesville took the lead with four runs in the top of the first, but Mattamuskeet came back with two on Ellen McCabe's homer in the bottom of the frame. Jamesville added a fifth run in the second, but the Lady Lakers picked up three in the bottom of the inning to tie it at 5-5.

Mattamuskeet then pushed over two in the third for a 7-5 lead, but Jamesville rallied for four and a 9-7 edge in the top of the fourth.

Then, in the bottom of the inning, Mattamuskeet rallied for three to win it. With two outs, R. Gibbs singled and Newman reached on an error. Armstrong reached on a fielder's choice. McCabe was then intentionally walked to force in a run, but Glover reached on an error, scoring Newman and Armstrong with the tying and go-ahead run.

Shay Hale, Jennifer Getchell, Val Clark and Sherri Lilley each had two hits for Jamesville while Gibbs had two to lead Mattamuskeet.

Jamesville is now 10-7 overall and 8-7 in Tobacco Belt Conference play. The Lady Bullets return to action today, hosting North Edgecombe.

WILSON — Wilson Christian Academy banged out 21 hits en route to a 14-1 win over Greenville Christian in a high school softball game Wednesday.

Renee Cashwell lashed a three-run triple to key a four-run first inning.

GCA was led by Kim Faulkner who went 3-5. Wilson was led by Tracie Burlingame who went 4-4. Krystal Burlingame went 3-4.

GCA finishes the season at 4-10.

AHOSKIE — Williamston High School romped to a 16-2 Northeastern Conference softball victory over hosting Ahoskie Wednesday.

The Lady Tigers pushed over two runs in the first with Ahoskie coming back with one in the bottom of the frame.

Williamston then put it away with two more in the second. Lynn Cowan, Shelly Harrington and Wendy Johnson all got singles to load the bases. A hit by Susan Forehand brought in Cowan and Myra Brown's sacrifice fly scored Harrington for a 4-1 lead.

Williamston went on to add three in the third, five in the fourth and two each in the fifth and sixth. Ahoskie got one more in the third.

Brown and Cowan each had three hits to lead Williamston, while Harrington, Forehand, C.J. Lilley, Sharon Whitfield and Keisha Moore each added two. No one had more than one hit for Ahoskie.

Williamston is now 9-1 overall and 8-1 in Northeastern play. The Lady Tigers play host to Plymouth tonight.

CHOCOWINITY — Micki Surface collected two hits, including a home run in the third inning, as Aurora topped Chocowinity, 6-3, in a Tobacco Belt Conference softball game Wednesday.

The Lady Trojans had a four-run sixth inning that allowed them to rally from a 3-1 deficit.

B. Cayton opened the sixth by reaching on an error. J. Carrow followed with a double. Angie Smith then singled in Cayton. Kate Fulcher added another single to score Carrow and Smith.

S. Smith followed with a single before Lisa Lewis scored Fulcher with a sacrifice fly. The final run came when Smith crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly by L. Montgomery.

Chocowinity is 6-9 overall and returns to action today at Belhaven. Fulcher and Smith also had two hits apiece for the Lady Trojans.

Wendy Dixon, Mignon Langley and Susan Elks had two hits each for Chocowinity.

Bucks Improve, But Still Lose

BOSTON (AP) — Milwaukee played much better than it did the night before. Unfortunately for the Bucks, so did Boston's Danny Ainge.

His deadly outside shooting kept the Boston Celtics in Wednesday night's playoff game until they could win it in the final minute 126-124. Despite their improvement, the Bucks trudge home trailing the best-of-seven NBA series 2-0.

"We're going before a favorable crowd," Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said. "If we play the caliber of ball we played tonight, we'll have a chance."

Especially if Ainge doesn't play in Friday night's third game the way he played in Game 2.

Boston's guard hit just one of nine shots and scored four points in a 111-98 victory in Tuesday night's opener in which Milwaukee shot poorly and handled the ball carelessly.

But on Wednesday night, he scored a career playoff high 30 points as he hit 11 of his 14 field goal attempts, including four of six three-pointers. He also had eight assists, four rebounds and three steals.

"I was probably thinking too much about defense and (Bucks' playmaker John) Lucas in the previous game," Ainge said. "I guess it affects your offense."

"They were trapping DJ (Dennis Johnson) to keep the ball away from Larry (Bird)," he said. "They gave me more opportunities."

"Against any team we rely on cutting off the inside game. We've been doing that the entire year," Milwaukee guard Sidney Moncrief said. "When you play Boston, you have to give up something. Tonight we gave up the outside shot."

Despite that, the Bucks almost snapped Boston's five-month home winning streak. The victory was the Celtics' 33rd in a row at home since they lost to the Los Angeles Lakers on Dec. 12.

It also was their ninth victory in a row, including five in the playoffs, and tied the record of 14 consecutive home playoff victories set by the Minneapolis Lakers from 1949 through 1951.

"Sooner or later, if we're hanging around, they've got to lose here once," Bucks' center Jack Sikma said.

That wouldn't be enough for Milwaukee. The Celtics must lose the remaining two games here while dropping two of three on the road for the Bucks to advance to the Eastern Conference finals.

The game was the only one played Wednesday night. Tonight, Houston, trailing 2-0 visits Seattle, and Golden State is at the Los Angeles Lakers. The Lakers lead that series 1-0.

Bird shared game scoring honors with Ainge with 30 points, while Robert Parish added 24 and Johnson 21 for the Celtics.

The Bucks, who dropped their ninth straight game at Boston Garden, were led by Terry Cummings with 28 points, Ricky Pierce with 20 and Sikma with 19.

Boston came about as close to losing at home as it has in any other game during the streak. It trailed most of the first half before a late flurry in which Ainge hit consecutive three-point field goals to tie the game 64-64 at intermission.

Magrane Continues His Roll

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Joe Magrane isn't the least bit intimidated by the major leagues.

The rookie left-hander, in just his third appearance since being elevated from the minors on April 24, pitched a four-hit shutout as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Diego Padres 3-0 Wednesday night.

"I went right at the hitters," Magrane said. "I was just very aggressive. I don't try to worry about them hitting me. If I do what I'm supposed to do, everything will fall into place."

Most of the San Diego hitters fell into place for Magrane, who didn't allow a baserunner beyond first base and faced only 29 batters. The only hits off him by the 7-22 Padres were two singles by Luis Salazar, one each by Randy Ready and Steve Garvey.

"He pitched like a veteran," Padres rightfielder Tony Gwynn said. "Nothing seemed to rattle him. He changed speeds and kept us off balance. He didn't overpower us."

Magrane isn't overpowered by his surroundings. He has taken the place of John Tudor, out with a broken leg, in the St. Louis rotation, a hefty chore for any pitcher, no less a rookie. How does Magrane react to that?

"I played for a Pac-10 school," he said of the University of Arizona. "It's one of best baseball conferences in the country. We did a lot of traveling, played a lot of tough teams, so that set me up for coming into the big leagues."

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, strong starting pitching helped New York over Cincinnati 3-2 and Los Angeles get past Pittsburgh

2-1; Houston took Philadelphia 3-2; Montreal downed Atlanta 6-2; and Chicago beat San Francisco 9-4.

Cardinals 3, Padres 0

Magrane, the Cardinals' top pick in the 1985 draft, received help from right fielder Curt Ford, who leaped just above the outfield fence to one-hand an eighth-inning drive shot by Salazar. Magrane walked none and struck out three.

The Cardinals got single runs in the second, seventh and eighth innings. With two outs in the second, Ford singled to center, stole second and scored on an RBI single by Jose Coleman. In the seventh, Vince Coleman had an RBI single and, in the eighth, Ozzie Smith doubled, advanced to third on Jack Clark's fly ball and scored on a wild pitch.

Mets 3, Reds 2

The Mets snapped a three-game losing streak behind Rick Aguilera, who tied a career high with nine strikeouts, and Jesse Orosco, who pitched the ninth for his seventh save.

Aguilera, 3-1, gave up a run in the first inning on consecutive singles by Kal Daniels and Kurt Stillwell and two wild pitches. The right-hander got 13 of 14 batters at one stretch but, in the eighth, he allowed singles to Daniels and Stillwell with none out. He struck out Dave Parker and Eric Davis before Buddy Bell's bloop single to left field made it 3-2. Then Aguilera, who walked one, struck out Bo Diaz to end the inning.

"I was hoping I wouldn't be lifted," Aguilera said. "I wanted to be the man to win it or lose it. Strikeouts are great, especially in that situation."

Mets Rookie Dave Magadan went

3-for-3 with a walk, scoring a run and knocking in one. Darryl Strawberry of the Mets singled in the seventh inning for his 500th career hit in his fifth major-league season.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 1

Orel Hershiser pitched a seven-hitter, striking out seven and retiring 16 of the last 18 batters for his third complete game of the season.

"I had a good curve ball tonight and I didn't want to get beat on my second-best pitch," said Hershiser. "I had good movement on my sinker, but I was throwing the curve for strikes and I stayed with that."

Rick Reuschel, who gave up six hits, has lost four straight games to the Dodgers dating back to June 1981, and still is looking for his first victory at Dodger Stadium since August 1977.

The game included some sloppy defense by both teams.

A botched rundown play by the Dodgers helped the Pirates take a 1-0 lead in the second. Los Angeles pulled even in the fourth, helped by a two-base fielding error by Pittsburgh second baseman Johnny Ray. A throwing error by Reuschel led to Bill Madlock's tie-breaking infield single in the sixth.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Terry Puhl's infield single, on which reliever Kent Tekulve got a glove but couldn't handle, drove in Jose Cruz with the winning run with two outs in the ninth. Cruz opened the inning with a single, was sacrificed to second by Mark Bailey and went to third as pinch-hitter Craig Reynolds grounded out.

Solid relief pitching helped the Astros. Larry Andersen pitched two scoreless innings and Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his sixth save. Glenn Wilson homered off Nolan Ryan for host Philadelphia.

Expos 6, Braves 2

Bryn Smith, making a comeback from elbow surgery last November, picked up his first victory with five strong innings, although he gave up a two-run homer to Glenn Hubbard.

Tim Raines, who is batting .450 in his five games since re-signing with Montreal as a free agent on May 1, had two hits and knocked in a run. Vance Law homered for the Expos, who have won four of the five games Raines has played.

"I'm real happy with everything," said Smith, who was knocked out in the third inning against the Mets in his first appearance of 1987. "I wasn't overpowering, but I got back to pitching. I was going after the hitters. If it had gone like it had in New York, I'd be a basket case."

"He's the Bryn Smith of old. He was in command for five innings," Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner said.

Cubs 9, Giants 4

The heavy-hitting Cubs got two home runs from Jody Davis and two RBI from Andre Dawson, who tied Eric Davis for the league lead with 27.

Davis raised his home run total to seven.

Candy Maldonado hit two homers and Bob Melvin got one for the Giants.

his second of the year. With two away, John Adams doubled and scored on John Thomas' single to right, making it 4-1.

After that, however, State took control. Scott Davis led off the fifth for the Wolfpack, reaching on an error. Chris Wooten followed with a two-run homer to left, closing the gap to 4-3.

In the sixth, State scored three times. Zaun led off with a double to center and Bill Klenoshek walked. Mark Withers laid down a sacrifice bunt to third, but Sullivan threw it away, allowing Zaun to score. Gary Shingledecker followed with a double to center, scoring both Klenoshek and Withers. It gave State a 6-4 lead.

Then, in the seventh, the Wolfpack jumped on the Pirates for six more runs. Bryan Kosco got a one-out walk and Zaun hit his second homer of the game. Klenoshek singled and that ended starter Gary Smith's time on the mound.

But reliever Jake Jacobs had no luck at all. He dished up a home run ball to Withers for two more tallies, then, after walking Shingledecker, gave up another homer to Davis, running the lead out to 12-4.

State added three more in the eighth. Zaun walked and Klenoshek singled. Withers hit a sacrifice fly to score Zaun and Shingledecker doubled to left, driving in Klenoshek. Bobby Russell came on to replace Shingledecker, and Davis singled him to third. He scored from there on Wooten's grounder.

The final two came in the ninth. Brian Bark singled and moved up on an out, scoring on Zaun's second double of the game. Klenoshek reached on an error and Withers grounded out, scoring Zaun.

East Carolina rallied to score four in the bottom of the eighth. Andrews led off with a single and both Calvin Brown and Tommy Yarborough beat out infield hits, loading the bases. Adams doubled to left, scoring Andrews and Brown, and Sides grounded out, bringing in Yarborough. Cauble singled to drive in Adams, but that was it for the Pirates.

Zaun, with two homers and two doubles and four RBI led the State attack. Withers also had four RBI with two hits, while Shingledecker, Klenoshek and Wooten each added two hits.

Sides, Cauble, McGraw, Andrews and Adams each had two for the Pirates.

The win boosts the Wolfpack to 33-10 on the year, while the Pirates, who have now lost four in a row, fall to 20-14.

"I don't think our problem is mental," Overton said. "We've lost some close games, but I can't think of a single game where we played poorly all around. It's either been poor pitching or defense or poor hitting. But losing four in a row and playing poorly should not hurt us mentally."

"We just have to iron out the flaws, hit better, pitch better and play better defense going into the (Colonial Athletic Association) tournament."

The Pirates close out the regular season tonight at 7 p.m. when they host strong N.C. Wesleyan.

Brewers Heading In New Direction

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers have gone from the sublime to the ridiculous.

After winning 20 of their first 23 games, including a record-tying 13-0 start, the Brewers have not only dropped three in a row but have suffered the indignity of two consecutive shutouts for the first time since 1981.

"When you can't score runs, you can't score runs," Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn philosophized following Wednesday's 3-0 loss to the California Angels. "Every team goes through that. We hope it's just a short-term thing. It's not something you can turn on and off. But give the guy on the hill some credit, too."

The guys on the hill for California were Mike Witt, who allowed four hits while striking out nine over seven innings, and DeWayne Buice, who allowed one hit the rest of the way for his first major-league save.

In other American League games, it was New York 4, Chicago 1; Kansas City 6, Toronto 3; Baltimore 6, Minnesota 0; Boston 6, Oakland 2; Texas 7, Cleveland 2; Detroit 7, Seattle 5.

California, which has won four in a row and has a one-game lead over Kansas City and Minnesota in the AL West, got the only run it needed against Milwaukee on Jack Howell's second-inning homer off Mike Birkbeck. The Angels added two in the ninth on Howell's double, Dick Schofield's single, a sacrifice fly by Darrell Miller and Gary Pettis' single.

"We've got good pitching the last two days and no hitting," said Trebelhorn, whose Brewers have a .287 batting average despite their recent lack of production. "I know we'll start scoring runs again. One of our concerns has been starting pitching, and it hasn't been a concern the last two days."

"When anybody in baseball loses a leadoff hitter (Paul Molitor) and a cleanup hitter (Rob Deer), two guys who are hitting over .350, two guys who have accounted for 40 runs, either RBIs or runs scored, you're going to be down offensively."

Yankees 4, White Sox 1
Rick Rhoden pitched New York's second straight two-hitter as the Yankees moved back into second place in the AL East, 3½ games behind Milwaukee. Rhoden gave up singles to Ron Karkovics in the third inning and Ron Hassey in the fourth in his first victory since April 20.

New York went in front 1-0 in the first inning and stretched the lead to 4-0 in the third. Rickey Henderson doubled and scored on Don Mattingly's single. Mattingly came around on singles by Dave Winfield and Gary Ward and Lenn Sakata's RBI single chased Chicago starter Floyd Banister.

"I threw decent, but not what I'm capable of. I still don't feel 100 percent," said Rhoden, who has been suffering from the flu.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 3
Hal McRae doubled home two runs and Bud Black checked Toronto on six hits through six innings in his first start in exactly a year. McRae, the Royals' 41-year-old player-coach, doubled to cap a three-run first inning against Jimmy Key as the Royals stretched their winning streak to four games, longest of the season, and climbed into second place in the AL West.

"When you get to a certain age, people like to say, 'Well, he can't play,' but I know I can still hit," McRae said. "When the time comes that I can't get it done any more, I'll be the first to know."

Juan Beniquez singled leading off the Royals' first and went to second on a groundout. After Danny Tartabull singled him to third, McRae doubled and scored on Frank White's single. Beniquez had an RBI double in the fifth and the Royals scored twice in the seventh on Beniquez's sacrifice fly and Kevin Seitzer's double.

Orioles 6, Twins 0
Scott McGregor pitched a three-hitter for his first victory of the season and Cal Ripken capped a four-run third inning with a three-run homer. Ripken's homer was his ninth of the season, giving him 30 RBIs. His last nine hits have been for extra bases, including four homers.

The Orioles took a 1-0 lead against Bert Blyleven in the second inning on Terry Kennedy's RBI groundout. They scored four times in the third after singles by Ken Gerhart and Alan Wiggins. Jim Dwyer singled to score Gerhart and Ripken hit a 413-foot home run.

Red Sox 6, Athletics 2
Mike Greenwell, again filling in for the injured Jim Rice, hit a tie-breaking three-run homer in the seventh inning. Greenwell, who drove in Boston's first run with a third-inning grounder, hit a pitch from Steve Ontiveros just inside the right-field foul pole, 302 field from home plate, for his third home run of the season.

With one out in the seventh, Marty Barrett singled and Ontiveros replaced Dennis Eckersley, who was making his first AL start since the Red Sox traded him to the Chicago Cubs in May 1984. Wade Boggs got his third single of the game before Greenwell homered.

Calvin Schiraldi earned the victory after taking over in the sixth for Roger Clemens, who suffered a bruised right ankle when hit by Mike Davis' line drive in the fourth.

"I'm excited at just getting a chance to play and everything seems to be happening," said Greenwell, who is batting .387 with 12 RBIs in just 31 at-bats. "This is definitely an important stretch for me — a show-then-what-you-can-do stretch. I was in a groove like this in Triple-A last year, but it's been a while."

Rangers 7, Indians 2
Pete Incaviglia, Larry Parrish and Pete O'Brien homered, and Charlie Hough allowed eight hits in winning his ninth consecutive decision over Cleveland. The Cleveland runs were unearned.

All the homers came off 48-year-old Phil Niekro. Incaviglia hit a three-run homer, tops in the AL, in the first inning. Parrish hit a two-run homer in the fourth and O'Brien added a solo shot in the fifth.

"I guess I'm one of the weird guys because I like hitting against knuckleball pitchers," said Parrish, who also singled home Texas' final run. "Phil pitched pretty well, but, as with most knuckleballers, if the ball doesn't move it's just a 75-mile-an-hour off-speed pitch and they usually get hurt on it."

Tigers 7, Mariners 5
Darrell Evans, Kirk Gibson and Matt Nokes hit home runs as Detroit snapped a four-game losing streak. Winner Walt Terrell allowed eight hits in 7 1-3 innings for his first victory since April 9, making him 21-6 lifetime at Tiger Stadium.

The Tigers scored five runs in the third and two in the fifth, on solo home runs by Gibson and Nokes off loser Scott Bankhead. In the third, Pat Sheridan, Lou Whitaker and Gibson, in his second game since recovering from an injury, singled for one run. Whitaker and Gibson scored on a double by Nokes and Evans followed with his third homer.

Seattle's Ken Phelps had four hits, including his eighth homer.

Olympic Game Preparation Gearing Up At Home Sites

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — With months to go and many thousands of miles to travel, the 1988 Summer and Winter Olympics have moved into the spotlight as the governors of the Games prepare for their annual meetings.

The threat of an East-bloc boycott hangs over the Summer Olympics in Seoul, unless North Korean demands for a bigger role hosting the event are met.

In the latest effort to avert another political blow to the Games, International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch was said Wednesday to be ready to send a delegation to the North Korean capital of Pyongyang on an unprecedented fact-finding mission.

Sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said the IOC chief had told the north of his plan last month and that the trip would take place later this month.

Samaranch wants to get all the background information he can prior to a fourth set of joint meetings with the two Koreas, set for this summer at Lausanne, Switzerland. For the first time, some of that information will be gathered in the Communist north of the divided peninsula.

"It's the desire to find out some of this information in the north's own capital city," one source said in explaining the trip.

All of the negotiations have been conducted in Lausanne, where the IOC is based.

Today, in Seoul, a South Korean official said North Korea will try to disrupt the Games. Huh Moon-do said South Korea government must maintain massive security to safeguard the Games.

Huh, minister of unification, told a news conference that North Korea would use any opportunity to disrupt the Games to embarrass South Korea.

"If there is any chance of disrupting the Games, (North Korean president) Kim Il Sung will not miss that chance," Huh said.

Huh, who oversees the Seoul government's policy on reuniting the divided Korean peninsula, said North Korea would take part in the Games only if it concluded it had no chance of foiling the event.

South Korea was taking every measure to ensure the safety and security of the Games, Huh said. Talks had been held with the United States on American assistance in maintaining security, he said.

The United States has some 40,000 troops stationed in South Korea under defense agreements with Seoul.

As more of the committee's 91 members arrived for the start of a week of meetings, the head of the organizing committee for the Winter Games at Calgary stood strongly by his panel's embattled ticketing program.

Frank King, chairman of the Calgary Olympic Organizing Committee, said concern over tickets was "a myth" and that plenty were still available, including many earmarked for distribution in Europe and Asia.

On Tuesday, a source, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said the IOC was "very worried" that not enough tickets were being distributed outside North America.

King said that organizers were trying to match tickets for certain sports to areas where those sports are most popular, such as Scandinavia for cross-country skiing and West Germany for bobsledding.

"There is no cause, none whatsoever, for such concern," King said. "There is no ticket situation. It's a myth. We are here to clear up confusion."

The Calgary organizers will be questioned by the IOC executive board on Friday and by the full IOC at its 92nd Session on Sunday. King said he expected no grilling along the lines the source had indicated the previous day.

"We have had a relationship with the IOC that has been complimentary and positive throughout," King said.

North Korea first issued its demand to co-host the '88 Games in late 1985, about four years after the Games had been awarded to Seoul.

Three negotiating sessions have been held and a fourth is scheduled for July 14-15 at Lausanne.

Pyongyang has reduced its initial demand for a 50-50 split of events and now says it wants to host seven or eight. The IOC and the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee are offering four — the entire table tennis and archery tournaments and parts of the soccer and cycling programs.

Samaranch has personally traveled far and wide in attempts to reach a solution, even going to Havana to enlist the aid of Cuba's Fidel Castro, one of North Korea's top allies. He has avoided, however, traveling to Pyongyang or sending representatives there until now.

there's no urgency," MacLeod said after an initial meeting Wednesday. "But I think we'll talk again in a few weeks."

Shinn, the managing general partner in Charlotte's new National Basketball Association expansion franchise, said he does not have a timetable for hiring a coach, but wanted to talk to MacLeod because he is available.

"Obviously, I wanted to interview John now," Shinn said. "He's probably not going to have to look hard for work, and I wanted to be in early."

"If you have four expansion teams and there are capable people like John available, I'd like to hire first."

The NBA awarded franchises last month to Charlotte and Miami, which will enter the league in the 1988-89 season, and Minneapolis and Orlando, Fla., which will follow one year later.

MacLeod, 49, was fired by the Suns in February. He is working as a commentator on cable telecasts of the NBA playoffs.

"I expect to coach. I want to coach," MacLeod said. "I'm plenty young. I have a lot of juice. I want to keep going."

"The best way to sum up (Wednesday's talks) is to say we had a general discussion about basketball, about how things could be done here, about what my thoughts were."

Running Team Places Second

NORFOLK, Va. — The Greenville, N.C., based Tiger running team placed second in team competition at the Elizabeth River Run in Norfolk recently.

Over 3,800 runners competed in the 10-kilometer race.

Rob Powell of Greenville led the Tigers with a third place overall finish in 30:36. Mark Davis of Rocky Mount was second for the team and 10th overall in 31:12. Phillip Rowan was third for the team and 13th overall in 31:26, followed in by Wayne Broadhead of Goldsboro in 32:04 and Pete Gibson of Murfreesboro in 32:54.

Other team members competing in the event were Barry Scott and Brent Conway.

Producer Turns Out New TV 'Road' Series For NBC

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a drawbridge that drew producer-writer Don Bellisario to Houma, La., to film the two-hour pilot for his new NBC "road" series "Three on a Match."

"We looked all over Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi and the Carolinas for the kind of bridge we needed," said Bellisario, the creator of "Magnum, P.I."

"Drawbridges are a disappearing structure in the United States. We needed a small bridge in the South. The only one we found that fit our needs was in Houma. According to the Coast Guard, a drawbridge is a tolerated nuisance."

The drawbridge was needed for a stunt that sets up the coming together of the trio of the title — Scott, Newt and Ripper.

Scott, a young California business executive driving through Louisiana, comes to the aid of a beautiful girl, who turns out to be the wife of a policeman. He tries to outrun the cop by attempting a leap over the opening drawbridge. But the car hangs up on top, and Scott ends up on a prison road gang — where he meets Newt and Ripper. The prison camp boss is the policeman's cousin and is out to kill Scott. The three escape prison and are off on a series of adventures that will take them across the country.

Patrick Cassidy stars as Scott, David Hemmings as Newt and Bruce Young as Ripper.

"Three on a Match" will be in the tradition of other road series, such as "Route 66" and "The Fugitive."

Bellisario said he didn't know how much would be filmed on location. "We're keeping the scripts generic so they require a specific location," he said. "After we decide where the guys will be, we'll tailor it to the place."

Bellisario wrote the pilot and directed it on location in Louisiana. "The bridge we used is over the Intracoastal Waterway and has the reputation of being the most struck bridge in the country," he said.

"While we were filming there were some barges we couldn't stop. A barge train is 400 feet long, 70 feet wide and is pushed by a tugboat with a 4,000-horsepower engine. It's just barely moving but there's a current and a crosswind.

"The tugboat pilot is at the rear and operates with just hand signals and a radio. He's got a clearance of just a foot and a half on each side. One came through with a 10-story-high drilling rig. The bridge captain said the last time he took out the whole bridge. You never saw a Hollywood crew get off a bridge so fast. But he went through without a scratch."

Bellisario was accompanied by his wife, actress Deborah Pratt, who played a small role in the movie, and her mother, who is from nearby New Iberia.

"Everybody treated us so well," said Bellisario. "The chief of police, the state police, the parish president. It's a depressed area with 33 percent unemployment, so we hired as many local people as we could. One day 600 people showed up for a casting call for 15 prisoners."

"We built a prison camp in the swamp. The hardest thing to film were the alligators. They just sit there like a log. Suddenly, they snap at something, and it's over in a split second. People who work with them have enormous respect for them. We had to keep them tied down."

Bellisario, had a series commitment from NBC and met with programming chief Brandon Tartikoff a few months ago. "He said he was looking for something for 8 o'clock," Bellisario said. "I thought about it and came back and said I wanted to do a show that puts three people together who normally would not be together."

"One would be a yuppie from California who's very ethical and moralistic. He's got the world in his pocket until he lands in jail. The other two are criminals. Newt's a con man and impostor. He and Ripper live by their wits. So there's often some conflict between them about how to do something. Scott wants to do it the legal way. Newt and Ripper will do whatever's necessary."

In addition, Bellisario also has deals with MGM, Universal and Tri-Star for feature films that he will write and direct.

PBS Special Will Focus On Choreographer De Mille

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Choreographer Agnes de Mille says television has helped dance enormously because "it has allowed people right through the United States to see good dance."

"I've always believed if people could see the best, they would prefer the best," says Miss de Mille, the subject of an hour-long special on public television Friday.

She has always worked passionately to create the best, from the famous dream ballet in "Oklahoma!" to the dances in "Brigadoon," "Carousel," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "Paint Your Wagon" and a great many ballets for ballet companies.

"Agnes, the Indomitable de Mille," part of the "Great Performances" series, is a character study of Miss de Mille but also studies her dances with folklore subjects.

The choreographer, born in 1905, talks about her parents and sister; her uncle, Cecil B. de Mille; her husband of 42 years, Walter Prude — they have a son and two grandsons — and about her stroke in 1975.

Miss de Mille gave files, films and photographs to the makers of "Agnes," and they interviewed her for four days at her summer home near Monticello, N.Y. The filmmakers also did some shooting outdoors. "I think they used that very poetically, and I do not use that word very often," Miss de Mille said in a recent interview.

Asked whether her dream ballet in "Oklahoma!" is as important as her ballet "Rodeo," she said no. The "Oklahoma!" ballet, she explained, "cannot be detached from the play. It makes no sense whatever on its own. The Cowboy and the Farmer" (also in "Oklahoma!") is a good country romp, but standing by itself on a concert stage, it's not so much."

Miss de Mille choreographed "Rodeo" in 1942 and danced the female lead, the Cowgirl, when the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo performed the premiere in New York. Aaron Copland composed the music. Her favorite Cowgirl is Christine Sarry, who dances it in excerpts seen on the PBS show.

In the ballet, subtitled "The Courting at Burnt Ranch," the cowhands court girls in frilly dresses, but not the girl who has been out riding with them all day. The Cowgirl finally gets the idea and dons a feminine frock.

Hearing Miss de Mille talk about "Rodeo" tells more about the way she thinks. In her choreography, the dance steps tell the story.

When she watches "Rodeo," she says, "I look for sincerity. That's not so common as you think or as dancers would like to think. It doesn't mean just staying on the beat."

"It's an appreciation of what that girl stood for. She was a child of the soil and country. It's the Western pioneering spirit. I think the value of the ballet is that through it comes a folk statement about the land, at least it did to me."

"The Cowgirl wants to be with men because they're more fun than the women. She doesn't trust herself as a woman, so she rides with the men. She's not really a tomboy. She's an adolescent who has outgrown her childhood and is not yet a woman. She's hysterically amorous, in love one second, torn with shame the next. It's terrible, the gaffes she makes."

"It has to be a very shy, passionate girl. I've taken 'Rodeo' away from many companies, because they have a lead girl who is a cocky little smart aleck, dancing a hoyden. When I try to talk to these girls, they don't know the difference. They say they get laughs from the audience. They think I'm just crazy."

"Of course they get laughs. They're built in. I fixed that back in '42. This dance is as delicate as a Swiss watch."

Miss de Mille currently is writing two books and creating a new ballet. "I'm trying to do some rehearsing. I can only demonstrate it with one half-paralyzed hand and one good one," she said.

"I came of a family of doers. I was brought up never to sit down if possible. Artists' commitment is lifelong and total. We're happy doing it. I don't have much money. I don't get royalties except from 'Brigadoon.' I never was bored. I never was exhausted emotionally. Ever, ever."

Soap Fans Foaming Over Iran Hearings

By DIANE HAITHMAN
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Soap opera fans were foaming at the mouth Tuesday over congressional hearings into the Iran-Contra affair, aired by the three networks during daytime hours.

They were not bubbling with rage over details of a possible political scandal, however. The hearings had preempted their favorite soaps.

In Los Angeles, the three networks and their local affiliates received more than 4,000 calls from viewers who were outraged that politics had taken precedence over "One Life to Live," "As the World Turns" and "The Bold and Beautiful."

"They vented their spleen on our operators," said a representative of ABC, which received about 1,800 irate calls at the network and its local outlet, KABC-TV.

CBS and KCBS-TV received more than 700 complaints. NBC and KNBC-TV logged a total of 1,659 complaints. Of those, 918 asked about a favorite soap (551 asked specifically about "Days of Our Lives"); 714 wanted to know what the hearings were doing on the air.

The phenomenon was nationwide. In New York, NBC News reported more than 1,000 complaints, while ABC News and WCBS-TV logged about 400 each. Even in Washington, not everyone was intrigued by the hearings. The CBS affiliate there received 400 complaints; the NBC affiliate, 150; and the ABC affiliate, 120.

NBC in Los Angeles noted that one viewer called to express pleasure at the opportunity to see the hearings.

Arc de Falling Stone

French officials recently placed protective nets and scaffolding around the Arc de Triomphe to prevent falling stone from injuring tourists. Experts say the thundering traffic and sinking streets of Paris are weakening this great monument. Napoleon first thought of the arch in 1806 as a way to glorify his imperial conquests. The structure, patterned after triumphal arches in ancient Rome, was completed in 1836. Now, France intends to restore the monument.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Put aside any matter that's long been delayed and concentrate on some interesting new venture or undertaking. Don't get into any confrontations.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Try to organize your work, since later arguments may arise and you will have to stave them off.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You have fine business acumen today, but do not commit yourself to any expenses. Control your temper.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A conversation with one who has the right information can bring you fine benefits, provided it's confidential.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Approach a good pal for assistance with a new project. Avoid the social side of life today.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be wise in handling community affairs. Let the influential people in your life know you agree with their plans.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Show that you will consider the views of a practical person, even if they are different than your own.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Come to the right understanding with one to whom you owe money before you delve into a new project.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): You can now convince a recalcitrant associate to agree with your views concerning some important matter.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be conscientious in the handling of your work. Avoid a partner who likes to take up your time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Before you plan recreation, study the cost well. Don't argue with a fellow worker over some project.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Know what the needs of your family are and try to help them. Don't go off on some silly tangent today.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): One who looks to you for help through the mail deserves an answer. Don't let some family argument disturb you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be most capable at building a solid and secure structure, both literally and financially, and this practical progeny should have a fine education to add to this natural talent. Teach this child not to be too forceful in his, or her, life for best results.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	2 H
Pass	4 ♥	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

There is a natural reluctance on the part of a defender to give declarer a trick he can't normally win. That aversion played a key role on this hand from a secondary event at the Spring North American Championships, held in St. Louis.

Four hearts was reached at several tables in the event. Most Norths judged that their cards were well placed over the opening bidder, and that a doubleton in support of a suit that their vulnerable partner could introduce at the two-level when he could not hold much in the way of high cards, should be adequate support.

At most tables, declarer covered the jack of spades with the queen. West took his ace and continued with the ten to force out the king. The declarers realized that a third spade would be overruffed, so they entered dummy with the ace of diamonds to take a trump finesse. After they had eventually drawn trumps, two club finesses and a lucky 3-3 split in the suit allowed them to get rid of their remaining spade to bring home the game.

At the table where Dr. George

Rosenkranz of Mexico City held the East cards, he too was defending four hearts with the lead of the jack of spades. Declarer correctly covered with dummy's queen, but Rosenkranz made the fine defensive play of allowing the queen to win. Declarer could now make two spade tricks, but not his contract!

A trump finesse lost to the queen and West returned another spade. Now East put his ace of spades to good use by winning and continuing with a third round of the suit. West's five of hearts was just enough to ruff higher than dummy, so the defenders scored three trump tricks and the ace of spades for a one-trick set.

If your banker changes the subject when you ask about money market rates, maybe it's time to change your account to First Federal.

Our First Insured Money Fund pays higher rates on a low minimum balance.

It's never been quite clear why big banks reporting millions in earnings every quarter consistently pay lower rates on money market accounts than First Federal. But it's a fact.

So, the next time you're checking rates on money market accounts, check the rates on our First Insured Money Fund. You can open a First Insured Money Fund account with $1,000 and earn our highest money market interest (as long as your average balance remains above $1,000). You'll also get unlimited personal withdrawals and up to three checks per month. There are no service charges, access to your funds through our 24-hour teller, no-fee travelers checks and even free notary services. All insured to $100,000 by the FSLIC.

All in all, First Insured Money Fund pays more interest and offers you more services. So, we don't want to change the subject when you mention money market rates. We want to change where you bank.

FIRST FEDERAL

The best place to bank.

Nothing compares to a WHITE!

White has the right outdoor product for you! To prove it, White is offering their best-selling lawn tractors and rotary mower at special sale prices. These units stand alone in power and performance comparisons. You select the horsepower to fit your needs, and White provides the performance features to make lawn maintenance a breeze.

With White, you can count on power to spare. Lawn and garden tractors feature the heavy-duty industrial/commercial class Briggs & Stratton 4-cycle engine. Tractor models featured in this flyer all have electric start and range from 11 HP single cylinder to 12.5 HP twin cylinder engines. The Model 204 rotary mower uses a 4 HP "Max" series Briggs & Stratton engine.

In addition to these best sellers, White has nine other tractor models from 8 to 18 HP and nine other push mower models for you to choose from.

Along with power and performance, White provides a limited 2-year warranty, easy financing, and a large network of professional servicing dealers.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES "CRUISE-MATIC"

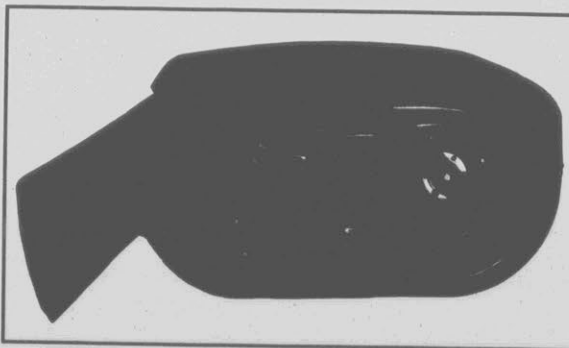

All lawn tractors feature the exclusive White "Cruise-Matic" transaxle drive that makes maneuvering as easy as driving a car. The operating cruise speed can be changed on-the-go by a convenient fender mounted lever. A single foot pedal allows the operator to smoothly vary the speed and apply the brakes without shifting—depress to slow down and brake, release to speed up. And just like the cruise control on your car, your pre-selected operating speed is resumed when you release the pedal.

The unique "Cruise-Matic" speed control operates without affecting engine speed, giving maximum power to the mower cutting blade.

TURBOCUT™ DECK

White's new high-vacuum TurboCut™ mower decks are aerodynamically designed to provide exceptional lift and ejection of grass clippings. The combination of a deep deck construction, high lift blades, and 3" front lip create a whirlwind of air which lifts the grass for a smooth even cut. Both the 32" and 38" TurboCut™ decks are counter balanced to "float" in all directions and have anti-scalp gauge wheels.

The "swept-back" design of the discharge tunnel and chute provide superior collection to the Vac-Pac™ Twin Bagger.

VAC-PAC™ TWIN BAGGER

White's Vac-Pac™ twin bag collection system is specially designed to work with the TurboCut™ mowing deck. The Vac-Pac™ has a large 6.5 bushel capacity, and for added convenience can be used with standard disposable refuse bags.

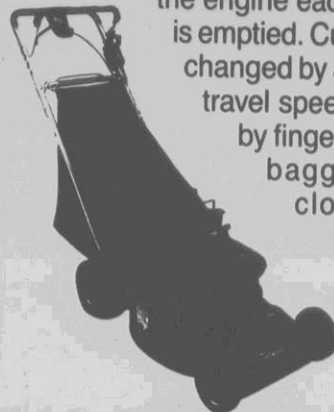

The 7" diameter discharge chute resists clogging and evenly fills both sides of the bagger. Two view windows allow you to see each bag from the tractor seat. The Vac-Pac™ system can be easily removed in seconds without tools. All these features make it a system second to none.

CONVERTIBLE REAR BAGGER

The popular White 204 Lawn Boss 21" rotary mower can be quickly and easily converted from rear bagging to side discharge. This self-propelled mower features the new, easy-starting Briggs & Stratton "Max" engine and a large capacity, easy dump bag. When the operator's hands leave the handle, an exclusive safety clutch stops the cutting blade while the engine continues to run. It eliminates the need to restart the engine each time the grass bag is emptied. Cutting height is quickly changed by a single lever, and the travel speed is easily controlled by finger action. The 204 rear bagger system permits close mowing around trees and shrubbery.
