Hart Abandons White House Race

By CARL HILLIARD
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — A defiant Gary Hart abandoned the race for the Democratic presidential nomination today, declaring "I refuse to submit myself, my family and my friends" to continued public scrutiny.

"I'm not a beaten man; I'm an angry and defiant man," Hart told a news conference here.

Hart disappointed supporters at the news conference, who cheered briefly when the former senator said, "Hell, no!" after he described a decision to make a quick announcement and quietly leave the scene.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Hart made his decision after the paper presented his staff with "documented evidence of a recent liaison between Hart and a Washington woman with whom he had had a long-term relationship."

The Post quoted a senior Hart aide as saying the Post's information

"accelerated the inevitable" withdrawal of Hart from the race.

Hart campaign manager Bill Dixon, interviewed by the Denver Post, said, "What happened last night may well have accelerated Sen. Hart's decision to protect his family," referring to Hart's learning that other news reports were planned about his personal life, "but I don't think that was the reason for his making this decision."

The departure of the one-time front-runner will scramble the contest, with each of the remaining eight Democratic hopefuls looking to turn the chaos quickly to his own advantage.

It was just six days ago that the Hart campaign was staggered by a story in The Miami Herald, saying he had entertained a 29-year-old model overnight in his Washington townhouse. Both Hart and the woman, Donna Rice of Miami, denied they were having an affair, but they admitted they also had made an overnight cruise aboard a yacht to a Caribbean island in March. There, Hart said, they slept on separate boats.

Hart subsequently refused to answer questions about whether he had ever committed adultery.

Criticism of Hart grew as skepticism about his version of events overshadowed questions about the completeness and correctness of the newspaper's story.

His standing in the polls — where his No. 1 position had not been threatened by the pack of long shot hopefuls — began to drop. And Democrats began to question whether he could continue in the race.

"He's obviously seriously wounded, and I believe it's fatal," said Wisconsin Senate Majority Leader Joseph Stroh before word of Hart's decision spread. Stroh was a Hart supporter in 1984.

Jobless Workers Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment hit a decade-low 6.3 percent last month as tens of thousands of jobs were created in construction, retail trade and business and health services, the government said today.

The 0.3 percentage point improvement over March's rate cut the number of jobless Americans to 7.5 million, the lowest since April 1980.

April's unemployment matches a 6.3 percent rate for the first three months of 1980. Not since December 1979, when unemployment was 6.0, has the rate been lower.

The jobless rate has been falling steadily since September, when it stood at 7.0 percent.

Since then, employers have reported adding a net 1.8 million workers to their payrolls, virtually all in the service area, now responsible for three-fourths of the nation's business and government employment. Manufacturing accounts for the remaining 24 percent.

The Labor Department's monthly household survey showed 467,000 more Americans at work in April than in March, with total civilian employment at a record 111,835,000. A separate survey of business and government payrolls showed an employment gain of 315,000.

Private analysts, noting recent trends, had predicted monthly job growth of just over 200,000.

The jobless rates for adult men and women each fell 0.3 percentage point to 5.5 percent. Unemployment among teenagers dropped from 18.1 percent to 17.4 percent. Among blacks, the rate dropped from 13.9 percent to 13.0.

Reagan To Visit

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — President Ronald Reagan will make a brief Mother's Day visit to North Carolina this weekend.

The president will be at Pope Air Force Base Sunday afternoon to make remarks in an appearance on a Bob Hope special being filmed at the base near here. The special will be televised May 25.

The White House said today that the president would be in the area from 4:40 p.m. until 5:15 p.m.

N.C. Wesleyan Appoints Garner

Leslie H. Garner Jr., a Greenville native, has been named president of North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, said J. Phil Carlton, chairman of the college Board of Trustees.

"After a lengthy search, we have found the right person for the presidency of the college," Carlton said at a news conference today at the campus. "Dr. Garner has vision and vigor and understands the role of a liberal arts college in today's society."

"As a native son, he understands the problems of eastern North Carolina and seeks to place this college at the forefront of helping solve them. He and his intelligent wife, Katrina, bring strength, grace and poise to North Carolina Wesleyan. With their two young sons, they will bring a new and zestful life to the president's house and the college campus," he said.

Garner, the son of Greenville Mayor Les Garner, is currently living in Chapel Hill, but will assume his duties at the college July 1. He is an assistant professor of business administration, director of the Young Executives Institute and co-director of the University Development Program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He graduated from UNC-CH with highest honors and received his master's and doctorate degrees in public policy from Harvard University. Garner has published numerous writings concerned with management, leadership and the decision making process published.

At the conference Garner said "I believe the next several years at Wesleyan will be exciting, dynamic and creative. I am delighted to be

Second 'Other Woman' Appears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just hours before Gary Hart decided to end his race for the Democratic presidential nomination, the candidate's staff was presented with evidence of a recent liaison between Hart and a Washington woman, the Washington Post reported today.

The Post said it presented the candidate's staff with the information, and it quoted a senior Hart aide as saying the development "accelerated the inevitable" withdrawal of Hart from the race.

Hart campaign manager Bill Dixon told the Denver Post that knowledge of more impending reports on his personal life may have compelled Hart to make a decision to "protect his family." But Dixon said that was not the reason Hart decided to end his presidential bid.

The Washington Post said the original information about the liaison last Dec. 20 came from an anonymous source and was "effectively confirmed" by the newspaper. The story added that Hart and the unidentified woman had had "a long-term relationship."

Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Post, denied rumors that it had negotiated with Hart over whether to run the story or identify the woman.

"There were no ultimatums, no negotiations," Bradlee was quoted as saying. "We simply asked to talk to Hart about the information we had gathered."

The Post said one of its reporters told Hart press secretary Kevin Sweeney shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday night at a motel in Littleton, N.H., that the paper had "documented evidence of a recent liaison between Hart and a Washington woman with whom he has had a long-term relationship." The reporter requested an interview with Hart.

Upon hearing about the Post material, Hart was described by a campaign source as being distraught.

Earlier in the day, Hart had held a tense, 51-minute news conference where he refused to answer questions about adultery.

On Thursday morning, senior Hart aide Hal Haddon telephoned Bradlee to inquire what the Post planned to do. Bradlee told him the Post did not have a story prepared and never intended to publish the woman's name.

Secord: Send Funds To Contras

North Appears In Court On 'Sealed Jury Matter'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Council aide Oliver L. North made a surprise appearance in federal court today, while Richard V. Secord told the Iran-Contra hearings he wants funds left from the affair donated to the Contras.

Lt. Col. North, dressed in his Marine uniform, attended a closed hearing before Chief U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. on a "sealed grand jury matter."

From Robinson's courtroom, North and his lawyers went to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and then to the third floor of the U.S. Courthouse where a special federal grand jury empaneled by independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh was meeting. The grand jury is looking into the entire Iran-Contra affair.

Neither North or his attorneys or lawyers from Walsh's office had any comment on the proceedings.

North is believed to be a target of Walsh's criminal investigation into the secret sale of arms to Iran and subsequent diversion of proceeds to the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan rebels.

North was named in court as a co-conspirator by fund-raiser Carl Channell and public relations executive Richard Miller, when they pleaded guilty this month to conspiracy to defraud the government by soliciting tax-exempt donations to buy arms for the Contras.

Secord, a retired Air Force major general, began his fourth day in the witness chair at joint House-Senate Iran-Contra hearings by proposing that any remaining proceeds from the enterprise be turned over to a new fund for the Contras established in memory of deceased former CIA Director William J. Casey.

But that drew a swift rebuttal from Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., who said that while the goal was "laudable," neither the former general nor "anyone else has any right to assign that money." The Justice Department will decide the issue, he said.

Secord has testified previously that roughly $8 million remains in bank accounts, left there when the Iran-Contra affair was aborted on Nov. 25 when Attorney Gen. Edwin Meese disclosed it publicly.

Casey, who devoted part of his tenure as CIA chief to building up the Contra forces to oppose the leftist government of Nicaragua, died on Wednesday. His family announced establishment of a Contra fund in his memory, and asked that any memorial donations be made to it.

The congressional hearings have been televised live all week, and President Reagan told reporters at the White House today that he had watched the sessions "a little."

Secord was cross-examined intensively on Thursday about his claim

Lanier Presented Downing Award

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Roy C. Lanier was presented the second annual Joseph E. Downing Award for Excellence in Teaching in ceremonies at Pitt Community College Thursday.

Lanier, department chairman and instructor of welding, has been an employee of PCC since 1977.

"Thank you; I'm overwhelmed," Lanier said to the PCC faculty and staff when he accepted the plaque and monetary award. "I really appreciate it. I think my students will have to share a little in this."

The award is named for PCC's former associate dean for curricular programs who died in January 1986. Memorial contributions were used to set up the award in his memory to recognize PCC instructors who have demonstrated excellence in teaching and service.

Jo Ann B. Leith of the PCC Business Department was last year's award winner.

The recipient of the Downing award also is PCC's nominee for the State Board of Community Colleges-First Union Awards for Excellence in Teaching.

Teen Center To Open Monday

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Where can a teen-ager go to unwind after school and watch MTV?

How about the new teen center in the former Elks Lodge building?

What can a youth do on a rainy summer afternoon? Why not go to the teen center and play video games or pool and listen to the jukebox?

Who sponsors student dances on weekend nights, complete with disc jockeys or bands? The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department does, at the teen center.

Why don't Pitt County youngsters have a safe, chaperoned place to congregating, gossip and meet new people? They do now.

The teen center, funded by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, will open Monday. The center will be run under the guidance of the department but will be operated with the involvement, work and ideas of the teens who will use the center.

There is no official name for the facility yet. The department will have a naming contest to allow the teens to pick the name for their center.

"We plan on the kids telling us what they want or having them do it themselves," said Charles Vincent, director of the Recreation and Parks Department.

The center will operate from 3:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and will be open until 11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, often with dances being held.

"We may decide to open in the afternoons and stay open until 9 p.m. in the summer," Vincent said.

A grand opening pig picking and dance with music provided by a disc jockey will be held Friday beginning at 6:30 p.m.

At least one recreation staff person will be on duty whenever the center is open, Vincent said. "For large functions, other staff people will be called in to assist, as well as off-duty police officers."

Thursday Thefts

Police investigators said five thefts were reported to the Greenville department Thursday.

Officer D.W. Nichols said parts, including two hubcaps, two foglights and a rear parking light, with a combined value of $395, were taken from three cars parked at Bob Barbour BMW-Volvo on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 10:53 a.m.

Officer T.E. Nevelle said a bird bath was taken from a yard at 104 Fairlane Road in an incident reported at 11:25 a.m., while a bicycle valued at $175 was taken from 709 Johnston St. in an incident reported at 3:08 p.m.

Officer B.M. Highland said $330 worth of merchandise was taken from Ferguson Enterprises on Memorial Drive by a man who illegally charged the material to a local business, according to a 2:05 p.m. report.

Officer H.D. Hines said curtains and sheets valued at $300 were taken from a mobile home at Family Housing, 809 S.W. Greenville Blvd., in an incident reported at 2:46 p.m.

Classes Scheduled

Painting and drawing classes for children 8-14 years old will meet on Wednesdays from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. for six weeks beginning May 13.

The classes will meet in the Jaycee Park activity room with Joanna Huggins as the instructor. Call 752-4137, extension 200, to register.

Mixed media for children 4-7 years old will meet on Tuesdays from 3 p.m. to 3:45 p.m. for six weeks beginning May 12. Classes will meet in the Jaycee Park activity room.

Money Is Stolen

Pitt County deputies are investigating the early morning theft of $37 from the Scotchman convenience store on N.C. 33 east of Greenville, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said today.

Tyson said the store clerk told deputies a customer reached into the cash register and took the money after purchasing a soft drink.

Tyson said the incident was reported at 2:16 a.m. today.

Lawn Mower Taken

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said a riding lawn mower valued at $1,000 was taken from a carport at Route 3, Box 182, Ayden, in an incident reported at 10:14 a.m. Thursday.

PTO Meeting Set

The A.G. Cox Grammar School Parent-Teacher Organization will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the school's multipurpose room.

A slide presentation of school activities will be presented by the Student Council and a short business meeting will be held.

Goose Creek Hike

Connie Albera of Bath will conduct a bird hike at Goose Creek State Park at 8 a.m. Saturday. Participants may wish to bring identification books and binoculars.

The park is located 10 miles east of Washington, N.C., off N.C. 264.

Washington Man Learns Of Quints

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A North Carolina man who is still legally married to a woman who gave birth to quintuplets in March says he learned only Wednesday of the quints.

"This is all a big shock to me," said Billie Carfagno of Washington, N.C. "I didn't know where she was and I certainly had no idea about these babies."

Carfagno said he has been looking for his wife, Robin, since August. The two were married in November 1979 and have been estranged more than 3½ years.

Robin Carfagno gave birth to five girls March 2 at Humana Hospital Sunrise in Las Vegas. One of the quints died a day later and a second quint died last month. The three remaining girls are in satisfactory condition and are scheduled to be released from the hospital next week.

She applied for medical assistance for the babies and stated at the time she was married to Wayne Jenkins, the father of the quints.

Jenkins and Mrs. Carfagno admitted earlier this week she is still married to Billie Carfagno. Jenkins and Mrs. Carfagno say they plan to be married as soon as her divorce to Carfagno becomes final.

Billie Carfagno said Wednesday he filed for divorce from his wife on Feb. 6 in Beaufort County, N.C. and the separation is scheduled to be granted May 22. But he said that could be delayed if he can't reach an agreement on visitation rights for their 6-year-old son, who is living with the mother.

"I've had no idea where she has been and have been trying to find the whereabouts of my son," Carfagno said. "I thought she was in Virginia and now I find out she's thousands of miles away."

Jenkins and Mrs. Carfagno said they have been living together since March 1986 and moved to Las Vegas in August from Newport News, Va., where they met.

Jenkins is currently working as a car salesman.

The two have requested public support to help pay the costs of the surviving quints. Donations have ranged from second-hand clothes to a $30,000 gift for a downpayment on a five-bedroom house.

NAACP Meeting Set

The Pitt County Branch of the NAACP will have its mass meeting Sunday at 7 p.m. at Mount Olive Missionary Baptist Church, Ayden.

Center Opens Monday

Any teen in Pitt County can come to the center free of charge in the afternoons. A small admission fee will be charged for the dances, and youth leaving the building will not be allowed back in without paying again.

"There won't always be organized activities, but there will be plenty to do," he said.

When the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department purchased the brick Elks Lodge building for $35,000, it was with the idea of making the building into a gathering place for young people in the county.

"It doesn't look like a rec center," Vincent said. "It looks like a club, a hang-out."

However, the city will have access to the building for other events, such as programs for older adults or the After-School Care program.

"Greenville has not officially had a teen center in quite a while," Vincent said. "Early in the 1960s, it was at Elm Street center, and before that on Third Street near where Planter's Bank is now."

Jennifer Wooles, a Greenville resident and 1979 graduate of J.H. Rose High School, will be the director of the center. "Hopefully this will be an alternative to the teen-agers getting out and riding around," she said. "It's their place. We want them to feel like it belongs to them."

A Youth Council consisting of approximately 30 Pitt County youngsters has assisted with the plans for the center and has helped get the building in shape for the opening.

The council is working on a set of rules of conduct for the center. "We want the committee to establish rules and regulations they think their peers will understand," Vincent said. "We want them to have input in what goes on out here."

"Every teen in Pitt County is eligible for the Youth Council," Vincent said. "The students must perform 25 hours of community service to become a voting member of the council." The council helps with community events such as assisting with the Jaycee July 4 celebration. They recently held a forum on the attendance line changes in the Pitt County school system.

The Youth Council meets every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., formerly at Jaycee Park and now in the youth center.

Plans for the facility include the addition of volleyball nets and picnic tables on the grounds and hopefully a large screen television for viewing inside the building. Concessions such as soft drinks and snack food will be available at the center.

The center's programs will include more than social functions. "We want to have seminars, conferences, anything about matters that pertain to youth or affect the youth of Pitt County."

"I am looking forward to working with this age group," Ms. Wooles, a kindergarten teacher, said. "I expect a lot of help from them. I can lead them, but they have to do the work. I am expecting a lot out of the Youth Council."

"There is a danger involved when you run a teen facility," Vincent said. "We realize there can be problems with discipline."

"We are aware of the drug scene," Vincent said. "Maybe we can do something about it."

Eventually, membership cards will be issued to teens who read the rules and regulations and agree to abide by them when they are at the center. They will be required to show their card before entering the facility.

"If a kid is sitting home bored, he can come here and be bored," Vincent said. "It is a place to gather."

HEAVE NOW — Jennifer King, front left, and Sonya Lee, right, lift an old record player on to the back of a truck to be hauled away from a shed behind the teen center off 14th street. Traci Erwin and Eugene Lao carry

"We live in a world in which knowledge is a critical asset in the economic growth of regions and nations. We must nurture the mind of our students so they can lead the way to stonger community in the future. The role of North Carolina Wesleyan College with its strong roots in the Methodist Church is to nurture sophistication in science, arts and humanities along with commitment to individual discipline and community service," he said.

Israelies Bomb Sidon Targets

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes bombed Palestinian targets near Sidon today, killing 10 people and wounding 25, police said. The Israelis said they earlier foiled an attempt by guerrillas to enter Israel and seize hostages.

Four U.S.-built F-4s and two Israeli-made Kfir made three runs over the Palestinian refugee camps of Ein el-Hilweh and Mieh Mieh in the attack that began at 1:55 p.m. today, police said.

Ambulances rushed casualties to Sidon hospitals. Police reported one hour after the raid that rescuers had evacuated 25 wounded civilians.

The Hittine neighborhood on the southern entrance to Ein el-Hilweh appeared to be the main target of the strike, Israel's 15th in south Lebanon this year. Reporter Ahmed Mantash said he counted 20 destroyed refugee shacks in the neighborhood.

Police reported 10 dead, and reporters saw the bodies of eight civilians pulled from the debris in Hittine.

The Beginning

Saturday is a great day for some 2,900 graduates at East Carolina University. It is the day that they will conclude four years of work toward degrees in many fields of study.

For most it will be the most important day of their lives at this point, although it is well to note that there will be many more important days ahead.

The graduates have completed their studies at an East Carolina University — an institution which has changed from the day when they entered four or more years ago. If it is a good university it is ever changing.

They will be the first graduating class under the new chancellor Dr. Richard Eakin and the graduates will hear words of inspiration from an old colleague of his, Dr. Michael R. Ferrari, president of Drake University.

Commencement speakers find it more and more difficult to tell graduates what to expect in the work world that awaits them. It is difficult because it is a technological world that never stands still. Old opportunities can quickly fade and new ones arise.

It is sobering to those of us who have labored in the 20th century to realize that most of East Carolina University's graduates of Saturday will spend most of their professional careers in the 21st century. The year 2001, after all, is only 13 years away.

Thus the graduates have been preparing during their time here, not so much for the current era, but for an unknown world that will unfold in the century ahead — and we only have to study history to see how much change can take place in a hundred years.

ECU's graduates have been prepared in many fields — medicine, nursing, business, math, science, teaching and liberal arts. They are ready to assume their roles of guiding the nation and the world through the unknowns of the future.

While the future can be fearful it is first exciting. ECU's graduates, and thousands more like them throughout the nation, can make a commitment to removing the fear and building the excitement as we move toward a new century.

We wish them well.

Shortsighted

Assistant Interior secretary William Horn was assigned the lead-off role in another bid to sell Congress on opening up a major new petroleum source for the United States in Alaska.

By opening up the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil rigs, he says, Congress can reduce the need to buy foreign oil, produce royalties for the Treasury and give the nation a net economic benefit that might range into the hundreds of billions of dollars.

Dangling before Congress those potential billions of dollars in benefits from the new field is almost unfair. The lawmakers are struggling these days with a huge budget and large foreign trade deficits. Offer of a quick fix with arctic oil could tempt some people.

Remember Prudhoe Bay? That Far North oil resource was opened up with construction of the wondrous Trans-Alaska Pipeline. In debating access to that resource conservationists warned of potential harm to a 5,000-head herd of caribou that was an essential food source for native villagers as well as a national natural treasure in itself.

Ten years later the herd numbers 15,000; but before one cheers, there is another side to the story. Authorities on the subject say herd growth over the past decade has been below what might have been expected without the pipeline.

The news story had little to say about native villages in the Alaskan coastal plain that have been virtually untouched by civilization, and people living there as they did 100 years ago. It is a rarity that must not be sacrificed — nor should the vast caribou herd upon which they rely be harmed or sacrificed for our own shortsighted policies.

The Arctic preserve is a major draw for tourists and oil drilling is incompatible with this land use and with preservation.

The Prudhoe Bay oil supply could be depleted in another 20 years and national economizing in the energy field is largely a matter of memory. We do not have an administration with an awareness of the need for conserving energy.

Our country simply must focus more of its attention on conservation of petroleum resources and future energy needs. The "quick fix" offered in Alaska by the Department of Interior is as shortsighted as any policy we'll ever see.

Instead of debating opening an important wilderness area to drilling, the administration should re-examine its "instant cure" approach to energy. More emphasis on frugal use of energy and long-term energy sources is needed. Is it really necessary to disrupt one of the nation's most pristine refuges for 20 years of oil?

Besides, where could Americans turn after the Arctic bonanza is gone? Back to OPEC?

An Arab-Israeli Settlement In Sight?

— Barry Schweid —

WASHINGTON (AP) — Within a few weeks it should be clear if peace is about to break out in the Middle East, but in the meantime some skepticism may be in order.

Reports from the area suggest Jordan and Israel have found a formula for negotiations with the blessings of the U.S. State Department.

They would meet at an international peace conference under the benign guidance of the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China.

The hosts would not interfere in the proceedings. Jordan and Israel would negotiate the future of the West Bank and its Palestinian Arab inhabitants. By yielding territory, Israel would gain both security and acceptance and Jordan's King Hussein would be hailed as a peacemaker.

And everybody would live happily ever after.

But wait a minute. Not so fast. Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, who is supposed to have made the arrangements with Hussein, speaks for only half the Israeli government.

He is eager to hold peace talks in such a setting, but Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and the Likud party don't think it's such a hot idea.

They are suspicious of the Soviets, who broke relations with Israel 20 years ago, and are not convinced Moscow would be satisfied to play only a nominal role in the negotiations.

The Soviets regularly side with the Arabs in disputes with Israel and have maintained a steady pipeline of missiles, jet fighters and tanks to Syria.

That raises the question in the minds of many Israelis of whether Moscow could be a neutral intermediary.

The idea that Hussein is ready to make peace also raises questions.

The king has vacillated for years, reluctant to follow the course set a decade ago by Anwar Sadat.

The Egyptian president, impatient with snail's-pace U.S. diplomacy, found in Menachem Begin a willing negotiating partner who would yield all the land lost to Israel in the 1967 Six-Day war.

With the assistance of President Jimmy Carter, they worked out a peace treaty, secured their border and won the Nobel prize.

Hussein has shown no inclination to go it alone in the Arab world. Sadat's assassination in 1981 probably deepened the king's reservations.

And what about the Palestinians? Assured by the United States they have "legitimate rights," they would have to depend on Israel and Jordan to fulfill them.

The Arab world designated the Palestine Liberation Organization in 1974 as the sole representative of the Palestinians. Hussein concurred in the decision.

Can the king presume now to speak for the West Bankers? Would the PLO serenely stand by?

Unquestionably, the Reagan administration is showing new interest in Middle East diplomacy.

Senior diplomat Richard W. Murphy has been sent to Iraq, Saudi Arabia and elsewhere in the Persian Gulf to demonstrate U.S. determination in uninterrupted oil shipments through the war-threatened Strait of Hormuz.

Murphy also will explain the secret U.S. arms shipments to Iran to the Iraqis and see if they are willing to support Jordanian-Israeli peace talks.

Peres will be here in a couple of weeks to see Secretary of State George Shultz and probably President Reagan.

After the visit, it should be easier to gauge whether Peres' peace initiative is an individual effort or one Shamir and Likud are apt to back.

In the meantime, the history of Middle East diplomacy is strewn with false hopes and failed missions. Time will tell if the latest rumors are excessively optimistic.

Only 'Ol' What're Their Names' Remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The abrupt withdrawal of front-runner Gary Hart from the Democratic presidential race transforms the contest into a struggle among seven politicians little known outside their own areas and another candidate that few think can win the nomination.

Only the Rev. Jesse Jackson can claim a significant national following.

The others? They are names like Babbitt, Biden, Clinton, Dukakis, Gephardt, Gore and Simon.

Until this disastrous week, Hart was running significantly ahead of all his rivals in the polls. It was the former Colorado senator against the field. The race was his to lose, and he lost it more swiftly than anyone could have imagined.

Now, according to his Wyoming campaign manager, Rodger McDaniel, Hart will announce today in Denver he is pulling out.

So, the second tier of candidates becomes the first tier until some one or two can break away.

But Hart's departure also opens the door for new entrants, including some who had decided this probably wasn't their year.

If any of the contenders could claim front-runner status upon

Hart's departure it would be Jackson. His support among black voters — the largest group in the Democratic camp — surprised the political establishment in 1984 when he finished third behind Walter F. Mondale and Hart in the Democratic race.

But Jackson's race and his political position to the left of where Democratic leaders think the party ought to be makes him a very long shot for the nomination.

Most prominent among those who decided against running was Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York, and he insisted Thursday he would not change his mind.

Hart's withdrawal "has nothing to do with me," said Cuomo. "The reasons I chose not to run have nothing to do with Gary Hart, have nothing to do with my position in the polls; they have nothing to do with whether or not I could win."

Cuomo's reluctance won't still the voices eager to get the New York governor into the race.

Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, another politician who drew prominent mention as a potential candidate, put his plans on hold last winter and said he would re-examine the situation this summer. He's certain to find the situation dramatically changed from February.

Of the announced candidates, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts is well known in neighboring New Hampshire, the site of the first primary.

A poll of 400 likely New Hampshire primary voters conducted for The Boston Herald and WBZ-TV said Thursday that Hart, who was tied with Dukakis a week ago at 32 percent each, had fallen behind Dukakis 27 percent to 17 percent.

But Dukakis' disadvantage may be the high expectations for him in New Hampshire, a state with a notoriously contrary electorate and a history of being unkind to Massachusetts politicians.

Former Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona recently gambled by committing $250,000 on television advertising in Iowa, the state that leads off the Democratic process with precinct caucuses eight days before the New Hampshire primary.

Some Democrats shook their heads over Babbitt's decision to spend so much money so early in the race. Now they might consider it a stroke of luck if not genius.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri has based his bid on doing well in Iowa and courting support from organized labor. Gephardt is the author of labor-backed legislation aimed at forcing the government to retaliate against Japan to deal with that nation's trade imbalance with the United States.

Many Democrats had considered Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware the candidate with the best chance of overtaking Hart. With Hart out of the contest, Biden's chances will look better.

One of the party's best speakers, Biden is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and a senior member of the Foreign Relations panel. He recently surprised many party regulars by reporting $1.7 million in contributions during the last quarter, about $400,000 more than front-runner Hart received.

The longer shots among this field of long shots would be Sens. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, Paul Simon of Illinois, and Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas. Clinton has not yet said whether he will run, but the removal of the front-runner is certain to make a race more attractive.

Strength For Today

The famous statement of Lord Nelson just before the Battle of Trafalgar has come down across the generations to inspire Englishmen and people of all countries who believe that doing one's duties is an important goal in life.

On the morning of the battle, Nelson instructed his lieutenant to announce to the fleet that England expected every man to do his duty. Bu means of flags, the signal went from ship to ship.

Trafalgar was won. Napoleon was far from defeated, but the naval battle made certain that the triumph in which he then gloried was destined to come to a bitter end.

"England expects every man to do his duty." As the British seamen pondered this statement, it probably conjured up a vision of the people back home looking out to sea, confident of the fidelity of their sons, brothers and husbands.

ECU Faculty, Staff Members Retiring

The end of East Carolina University's 1986-87 academic year marks the combined total of more than 900 years of service by 47 members of the ECU faculty and staff who retired during the 1986-1987 school year.

The retirees with the longest careers at East Carolina are faculty members Marguerite Austin Perry, professor of French language and literature, who has compiled a total of 47 years and six months at ECU, and Herbert Leland Carter, professor of music and director of bands for the ECU School of Music, who has been at East Carolina for 40 years.

Other retirees include 16 faculty members and 29 staff employees. A few faculty members will not actually conclude teaching duties until summer school.

ECU retirees were recognized at a ceremony and retirement dinner held on campus earlier this spring.

Faculty retirees and their academic units are: Carter, Dr. Ruth Boxberger and James Parnell, music; Perry and Grace M. Ellenberg, foreign languages and literatures; Doris Davenport, allied health sciences; Drs. Graham Davis and that he never made a profit from his central role in selling arms to Iran and funneling some of the proceeds to the Contra rebels.

Everett Simpson, biology; Anne Gunn, academic library services; Lorraine Graff, health, physical education, recreation and safety; Myree Hayes and Hazel Stapleton, psychology; Kenneth James, Dr. James Lemley and Dorothy Brandon, business; Dr. Floyd Mattheis, mathematics-science education center; Dr. Mallie Penry, medicine, and Gerald Southerland, social work.

North Goes To Court

Rudman told reporters before the beginning of the day's testimony that Secord's business partner, Albert Hakim, would be summoned to testify later in the hearings. "The assumption in most investigations is that the money in those accounts is being held beneficially for somebody. ... We're going to hear what Hakim says as to why it was done," he said.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a former chief justice of his state's Supreme Court, said enough questions were raised in Thursday's grilling about possible lawbreaking in the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran and diversion of payments to the Nicaraguan Contras to haul Secord into court.

"I don't think there's any question that his testimony today will cause his indictment," Heflin said in an interview after the nearly six hours of questioning. "It will of necessity mean the special prosecutor will bring an indictment."

A jury ultimately will have to decide whether Secord evaded taxes on money he controlled in the deals, violated a congressional ban on Contra aid, defrauded the taxpayers or helped wage war against a country with which the United States is at peace, Heflin said.

"I think there's such a conflict between the interpretation of the facts," he said. "He's either a Dr. Jekyll or a Mr. Hyde. We have got a clear jury case."

Another committee member, Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said, "I don't come to any conclusions about whether he'll be indicted, but all I can say is for a man who says he's going to come voluntarily and tell the whole truth, there's still a whole lot of questions he has not really answered."

He called Secord's decision to testify "a public relations move on his part. And I think he wanted to testify first because we don't have anything else on the record yet in the public hearings that would contradict his testimony."

DOWNING AWARD PRESENTED — Roy Lanier, center, department chairman and instructor of welding at Pitt Community College, was named the recipient of the Joseph E. Downing Award for Excellence in Teaching by Dr. Charles Russell. AIDS Kills McKinney

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright said today the death of Rep. Stewart B. McKinney from AIDS illustrates that a way must be found to halt the spread of the deadly disease.

McKinney's personal physician, Dr. Cesar Caceres, said he believed the nine-term Republican Connecticut congressman got AIDS from blood transfusions received during heart bypass surgery in 1979.

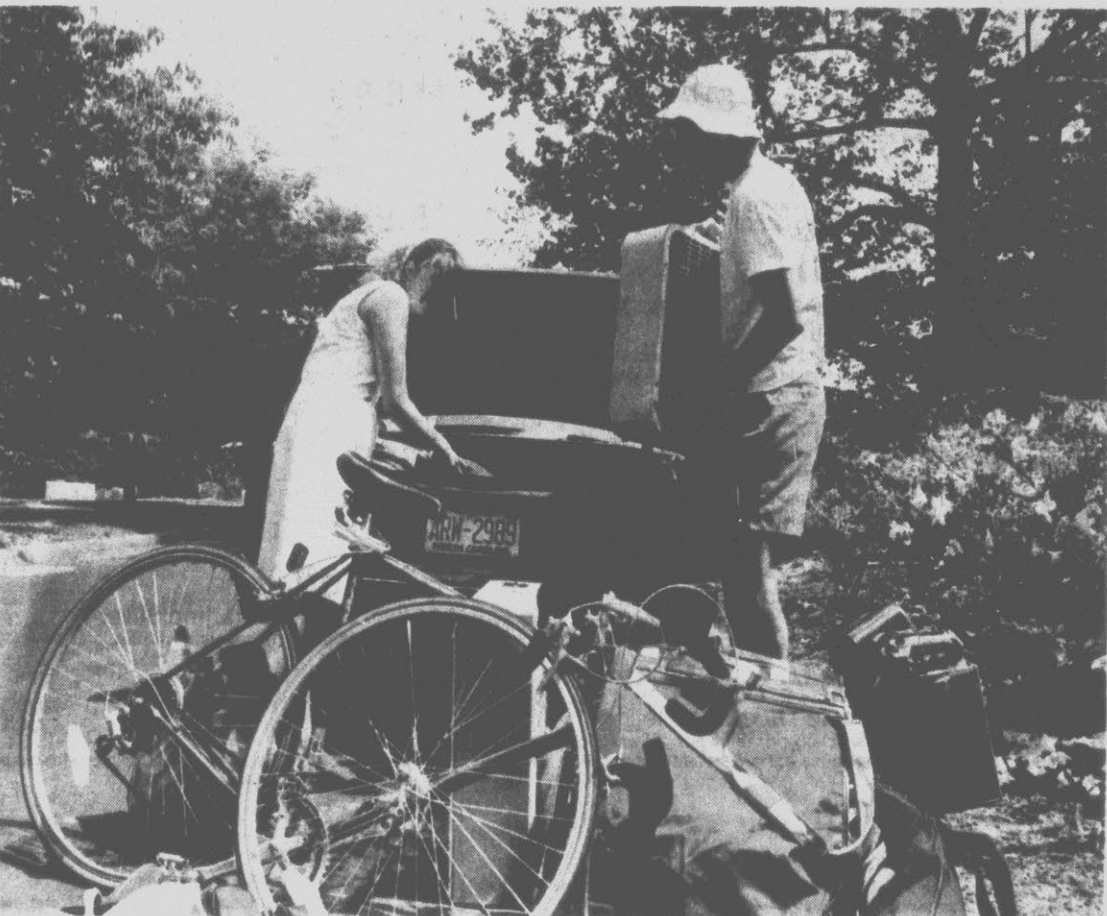

But the Washington Post, quoting knowledgeable sources on Capitol Hill and in the Washington gay community, said McKinney has had homosexual relationships. Homosexual men are at greatest risk for AIDS.

McKinney's office said the 56-year-old congressman, survived by his wife and five children, had died from "pneumocystis pneumonia, a bacterial infection brought on by acquired immune deficiency syndrome."

Noting that McKinney's family said his disease was caused by a hypodermic needle, Wright said, "I think, apparently, this disease is much more widespread than we realized, and many, many more, perhaps millions of people may be walking around not knowing that they carry this deadly virus."

"Surely we must do something in the interest of everyone's health, protection, safety. We must find a way to arrest it, some antidote for it," Wright said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America".

In 1760, the state General Assembly passed a resolution establishing Pitt County.

MOVING OUT — Sometimes the trunk of the family car just isn't big enough to move all the belongings from school. East Carolina University student Dawn Bromley of Long Beach helps her friend, Walter Brown of Raleigh, try to "stuff" the car with suitcases moving home for the summer. Both students will be sophomores next year. ECU will graduate about 2,874 students Saturday morning in its 78th annual commencement. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Lanier Wins Award

Lanier, a native of Snow Hill, is a graduate of South Greene High School and the welding program at Lenoir Community College. He also received an associate degree in vocational teaching from LCC.

He was instructor of welding at Lenoir Community College and worked at Burroughs Wellcome in Greenville.

Lanier served in the U.S. Marine Corps and currently is a member of the N.C. National Guard.

He serves as chairman of the Eastern North Carolina Welding Society and has served on several professional committees at PCC, including the Educational Committee. He also has served as chairman of the Faculty Executive Committee.

He and his wife, Nellie, and son, John, live in Greene County.

PCC President Charles Russell announced the award recipient. "You not only do a good job of teaching, but I don't know how many times we've called on you to weld a little here or weld a little there," he said to Lanier.

The selection of the winner of the Joseph E. Downing Awards for Excellence in Teaching was conducted by a secret panel from nominations by the faculty. Any full-time permanent faculty member is eligible for award consideration.

First Child

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mariel Hemingway, the film star granddaughter of novelist Ernest Hemingway, is expecting her first child around Christmas, her publicist said.

"They don't want to know what sex it is," publicist Harvey Mann said Thursday. He said Miss Hemingway and her husband, New York restaurateur Sam Crisman, were "ecstatic" about the pregnancy.

population categories was for Hispanics, rising from 9.0 percent to 9.2.

The commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, said the restructuring away from an industrial economy to a service-based one has eroded the historical pattern of higher unemployment among women than among men.

"The adult male unemployment rate is still very much affected by the relative weakness of mining and of several key manufacturing industries," she told the congressional Joint Economic Committee today.

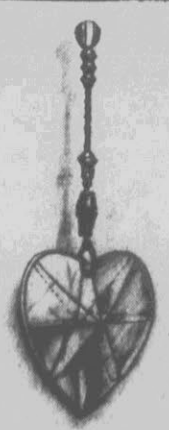

"Women, on the other hand, have traditionally been more concentrated in some of the fast-growing service industries, ... now the primary source of increased jobs."

Service industries produced 275,000 of the 315,000 new jobs recorded last month on business payrolls. Of that, employment in retail trade, capitalizing on the late Easter, jumped by 65,000.

In business and health services, employment grew by about 50,000. Banks and other financial institutions reported an increase of 20,000 workers, while real estate and insurance businesses said they hired 15,000 additional employees.

Apart from the service sector, construction employment jumped by 25,000 jobs after big March layoffs. Analysts had expected a sharp rebound once Congress overrode President Reagan's veto of an $88 billion highway-construction bill.

Higher Speed Limit Awaits State DOT Study

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly has given its blessing to a 65 miles per hour speed limit on rural interstates, but motorists who don't want to risk a speeding ticket must restrain themselves a few months longer.

A bill authorizing the higher speed, which the House approved last month, cleared the state Senate 23-21 Thursday. Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey were to sign the bill into law today.

However, the measure leaves it up to the state Department of Transportation to decide which, if any, of the state's 630 miles of rural interstates would be safe at 65. A department official says it will take 60 to 90 days to complete a study of that question.

Gov. Jim Martin, who has said it would not be safe to raise the limit anywhere, promised Thursday that his administration would give the matter serious consideration.

"We have been charged under the Constitution with carrying out the laws of the state, and we'll do our best to do that," Martin said.

Sen. Bill Goldston, D-Rockingham, chairman of the Transportation Committee that handled the bill, said the Legislature could pass a law raising the limit if the DOT hasn't done so by next summer's session.

Supporters of the measure prevailed in the Senate after warning that North Carolina would be ridiculed across the nation if it ignored the trend toward 65.

"After all these other states have (raised their limits), we're going to turn on the TV set one night and there on '60 Minutes' is going to be a spotlight on North Carolina," said Sen. Bill Barker, D-Pamlico. "We're going to be known as the speed trap of the nation."

Sen. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, said the worldwide oil shortage has not gone away despite the disappearance of lines at gasoline stations. "By raising the speed limit ... we're going to increase the consumption. That means our grandchildren or our great-grandchildren will run out of oil just a little bit sooner so that we can drive just a little bit faster," Johnson said.

Sen. Jim Speed, D-Franklin, said experts had warned that increasing the speed limit would boost fatalities. He said letting people drive 65 on interstates would make it harder for them to restrain themselves on secondary roads where the limit would remain at 55.

But Sen. Bob Somers, R-Rowan, said only 2.7 percent of the highway accidents on North Carolina roads happen on interstates.

"I came back from Charleston (S.C.) this past summer doing about 68, 69 in a 55, and highway patrolmen were passing me," said Sen. Jim Ezzell, D-Nash. "What I'm saying is we have a 55, but the true speed limit is 65, maybe 70."

"If we raise the legally acknowledged speed limit to 65 ... on I-95 through Rocky Mount, the Marines and the Canadians, they're going to be going 80, and those trucks are going to be going 80."

Goldston said poor enforcement of the current limit is no justification for disallowing a higher limit.

house in Raleigh on Thursday. Robertson had lunch with several state legislators and later spoke in the House chamber. (AP Laserphoto)

Evangelist Drums Support In Visit With Legislators

By JODY TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Though scandal has touched both political and religious figures in recent months, evangelist Pat Robertson says he trusts the American public to distinguish between a "bad apple" and a leader with integrity.

Hours before Democratic Party officials said Gary Hart would withdraw from the presidential race, Robertson predicted that Hart had "pretty much disqualified himself" in light of a published report that he spent the night with a Miami actress turned pharmaceutical saleswoman.

"There is a Billy Sunday saying: God can forgive sin, but stupid is forever," said Robertson, who was in North Carolina Thursday to gather support for a possible Republican presidential bid.

"I just think that anybody who didn't have any better discretion than that would do very poorly with the Soviets in a hard negotiation," Robertson said.

Robertson's visit to the North Carolina General Assembly came as Hart announced he was postponing his campaign schedule indefinitely and returning to Colorado with his wife. Hart said Thursday that family considerations took precedent over his political campaign.

"It's a sad thing for all of us," Robertson said of the newspaper allegations that Hart and Donna Rice spent the night in his Washington townhouse. "(But) scrutiny is healthy."

Also, The Washington Post said in today's editions that Hart's decision to drop out of the 1988 presidential race came hours after the paper presented his staff with "documented evidence of a recent liaison between Hart and a Washington woman."

Robertson also said he had not seen any backlash in his own television ministry from the sex scandal that toppled Jim Bakker from the presidency of PTL.

Robertson runs the Christian Broadcasting Network, a cable network, and is host of "The 700 Club."

"I think the American people can tell the difference between somebody who's essentially a bad apple and somebody with integrity, and it hasn't affected me politically at all," Robertson said.

On another topic, Robertson told North Carolina legislators that the court system in the United States has disintegrated the moral fiber of the school system and is used as an instrument to bring about liberal change.

Robertson spoke to lawmakers over a lunch of fried chicken, corn and ice cream in the General Assembly's cafeteria. He later gave a three-minute speech on the floor of the House, commending legislators for their work.

"I know you're having a problem here having to do with runaway liability costs," Robertson told the audience in the cafeteria. "We have had a problem with schools because of the interference of the courts with the school system."

Martin Hints At Tax Cuts

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin, who made tax cuts the centerpiece of his 1984 campaign, says an unexpectedly strong state revenue picture may enable him to push another package of reductions this year.

"No one would doubt our motives if we did it in a non-election year, would they?" a grinning Martin asked reporters Thursday.

At his weekly news conference, Martin — who in 1985 persuaded a reluctant Legislature to enact a $171 million tax cut, the state's biggest ever — said his administration had revised its forecast of how much surplus revenue the state will have when the 1986-87 fiscal year ends June 30.

Martin's proposed $19.6 billion budget for fiscal 1987-89, which seeks spending increases totaling $1.3 billion but no tax cut, is based on the assumption that revenue growth for the current fiscal year will generate about $450 million above what was raised last year.

It now appears that the surplus will reach $600 million, he said.

Patrol Gets New, Low-Profile Light

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Drivers who are thinking about putting the pedal to the metal in North Carolina had better check twice to make sure that isn't Smoky's cruiser coming up in the rear-view mirror.

That's because the conspicuous "bubble-gum" light that has been standard equipment for nearly 20 years on the roof of every State Highway Patrol cruiser is giving way to a low-profile set of lights.

The sleek, high-tech rack of lights isn't as easy to spot as the old one — especially for a speeding motorist who has to peer into a small mirror or glance behind a billboard.

"I'm sure they'll be more difficult to pick out. But that's not our problem," said Sgt. E.L. Pierce, of Troop "B" in Fayetteville. "It's not like the old blue light that sticks way up."

Lt. Fred Patton, executive officer of the patrol's communications and logistics division in Raleigh, insists that the new lights were not selected to disguise the patrol cars.

High-Living Pig's Health Was Failing

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — It was more dignified, said Norma Jean's family, to send her to a final resting place at her home than to have her show up as part of someone's breakfast, lunch or dinner.

The 650-pound Duroc sow, who gained international acclaim after she was given a formal debutante party in March 1986, was put to sleep April 30 because of failing health, possibly brought on by arthritis in her right front leg, said Dr. Norman Baird, Norma Jean's veterinarian. There was nothing he could do for her pain.

It took seven men to carry Norma Jean to her grave in the back yard of her owners, Raymond and Deborah Sattler. A minister performed a brief service, and the grave was marked with a downturned bottle of champagne and some begonias, Norma Jean's favorite flower.

Before Norma Jean was put to sleep, she enjoyed a last meal of chocolate and champagne.

The family buried Norma Jean "with dignity rather than sending her to the porkchop factory," Sattler said.

Norma Jean had shared living space with Sattler and his wife — sometimes sleeping in their bedroom — since arriving at the couple's home on Sattler's 40th birthday. She was bottle-fed, cuddled and treated like a child.

"It sort of started out as a joke," Sattler said. "She was brought to me as a gift, and we really got attached to her. We had a good time with her."

But Sattler said Norma Jean, who died at the age of 2 years, 9 months, began having trouble walking about five months ago.

He said the disease affected her mind "and her personality changed dramatically. She had been meticulous about her toilet habits but became careless. It was as if she lost the desire to live."

Norma Jean also wouldn't get up from her pen in the evenings to come inside and watch television. Some days, she wouldn't get up at all. She became ornery. And she quit eating her Godiva chocolates.

Baird said Norma Jean's declining health made her a little irritable. Once she chased a boy out of her stall, a second time she rejected the ministrations of the veterinarian and still another time she ran into an elderly gentleman in the neighborhood, Baird said.

Baird, who gave Norma Jean to the Sattlers, said the couple could expect another red-haired Duroc pig from a litter to be born in early June.

As for Norma Jean, Baird said: "She lived a good life."

Martin Says Jobs Market Improving

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin has unveiled a study showing North Carolina was tops in the Southeast last year in creating manufacturing jobs — a statistic he used to counter Democratic critiques of his economic leadership.

Martin said an annual tally by the Southern Industrial Development Council showed 24,682 manufacturing jobs were created in North Carolina last year. Tennessee was a distant second with 19,358 new manufacturing jobs.

The state had 124 new plant announcements in 1986, with investments totaling $609.7 million, Martin added at his weekly news conference.

"That's why ... I'm delighted that the political opposition has chosen that to be their standard bearer, their flag, for the 1987 part of the 1988 campaign," Martin said. "Because that helps to draw attention to the fact that North Carolina is experiencing a very positive pattern of growth in our economy."

Democrats have indicated that North Carolina's economic condition will be a major issue in next year's campaign, in which Martin and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan likely will clash for the governorship.

Democrats say Martin has no strategy for preventing such developments as the recent closure of major manufacturing plants in North Carolina and the decision of RJR Nabisco to shift its corporate headquarters from Winston-Salem to Atlanta.

Martin says the state loses some businesses every year and that closings during his administration have been comparable to those that occurred under former Gov. Jim Hunt.

"It reflects the growth of our economy, it reflects the healthy, positive attitude of communities all over our state for recruiting business."

On other issues, Martin found common ground with Democrats, endorsing a proposal for an appointed superintendent of public instruction and backing a plan by Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, to ban substantive legislation from budget bills.

Martin previously had spoken in favor of a superintendent appointed by the state Board of Education, but withheld his support of a Senate compromise because it would allow the Legislature to choose some members of the State Board of Education. Martin favors the current arrangement under which the board consists of 11 gubernatorial appointees plus the lieutenant governor and state treasurer.

Martin said he changed his mind after talking with Jordan, who had said the proposed constitutional amendment could not pass without the governor's support.

Martin said a major factor in his decision to back the amendment was Jordan's promise to oppose other efforts to erode the governor's appointive powers.

Jordan "expressed sympathy with that position," Martin said. "I believe I have an ally there in helping to ward off" power stripping measures.

Under the Senate amendment, which will be submitted to a statewide referendum if it gains three-fifths approval in the House, the board would consist of 10 gubernatorial appointees, two members appointed by the lieutenant governor and two by the House speaker. The lieutenant governor and treasurer would also be board members.

Meanwhile, Martin strongly endorsed a proposed constitutional amendment that would bar the General Assembly from passing substantive legislation by attaching it to budget bills.

Fires Blamed On Military Exercise

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Camp Lejeune firefighters battled a woods fire near Hubert Thursday night, one of nine blazes that officials think were ignited during the day by the Solid Shield military exercise.

Lt. Col. Dave Tomsy, director of the joint public affairs office, said the fires were reported around 4 p.m. Officials think flares being used during the large-scale military exercise probably started the fires.

No injuries or damage to structures had been reported by 7 p.m. Thursday. Firefighters had extinguished all but the largest fire — on the base side of N.C. 24 near Hubert. The other fires were in the area of Courthouse Bay and the rifle range.

Base Forester Pete Black said the fire, which was moving northeast, did not pose a threat to people or buildings. It had burned about 28 acres.

First Round

RALEIGH (AP) — A Sanford tobacco company that was embezzled out of more than $2 million by its longtime bookkeeper has won the first round in its battle to recover the money.

Superior Court Judge J.B. Allen Jr. signed a preliminary injunction this week freezing the assets of Lawson W. Barber, now serving a 30-year jail term for embezzlement. Assets of several people to whom Barber made cash gifts also were frozen pending a trial in which the company, Cigar Supply Co., will seek to recover about $2.2 million.

Barber pleaded guilty in January to 53 separate counts of embezzlement and was sentenced to 30 years in prison. Prosecutors alleged Barber had used the money for a variety of purposes, including investments in the stock market, gifts to family members and friends and contributions to conservative political and religious groups.

Bond Hired

ATLANTA (AP) — Civil rights leader Julian Bond has been hired to promote Paul Simon's "Graceland" concert tour to blacks.

The former Georgia state senator would not disclose how much he was being paid to promote the tour set for next month.

Bond also said he has not lost any money from speaking engagements because of allegations by his estranged wife, Alice, that he used cocaine, but said two appearances were canceled.

A federal grand jury and a special city panel are looking into how the city handled drug allegations made last March by Mrs. Bond, who told police she had seen Bond and several other prominent Atlantans use cocaine.

House Panel OKs Legislation Limiting Control Of Billboards

By JODY TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Local governments should compensate billboard owners when ordinances force the removal of such outside advertisements, say supporters of a bill that won House committee approval.

But opponents of the measure, which the House Judiciary IV Committee passed 4-2 Thursday, said it amounts to a payoff to visual polluters.

Many of the half-dozen speakers who appeared before the committee said the bill would strip local governments of control over outdoor advertising, and some accused the bill's sponsor, Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, of knuckling under to the billboard industry.

"This bill would greatly frustrate efforts at the local level to regulate billboards," said Bill Holman of the North Carolina Conservation Council. "The only effective regulation of billboards in North Carolina is at the local level. It seems to me what's happening here would stifle local regulation."

"The idea of profit for landowners is ludicrous," said Greg Allen, the executive director of Look Charlotte.

But Miller told the committee that property owners should be entitled to compensation.

"The bill is not here to determine if local government, state government or federal government should regulate outdoor advertising," Miller said.

"If the property has been taken through zoning, then the acquiring agency would be required to pay just compensation."

"I am benefitting from the improvement of life with these signs coming down," Miller said. "But we are depriving the property owners."

"It doesn't matter if you're pretty or ugly," said Rep. Sam Hunt, D-Alamance. "If the city puts you out of business, they ought to pay you. That's basically to me the American way."

But some speakers said their voices weren't being heard above the billboard lobby.

"There are big bucks behind it (the bill)," said Dewey Batts, of VISTA Unlimited, a non-profit organization. "The bill is obviously for the billboard industry."

Some speakers and legislators also complained that the bill was moving too quickly because of a May 28th deadline to get measures out of committee.

"I think it's the worst rule in the history of the General Assembly," said Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe. "We're going to have to start stepping on our principles (because) there just isn't time."

"This contrains us as members of this committee," said Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, the committee chairman. "But it's time to make some policy decisions."

Bill Requiring Industries To Clean Dumps Advances

RALEIGH (AP) — Supporters of a bill to make industry clean up abandoned hazardous waste sites say it appears likely to pass the Senate, which had shunned similar efforts the past two sessions.

"I think the Senate's really moving in the right direction," said Sen. Lura Tally, D-Cumberland, after the Senate Committee on the Environment approved the bill Thursday. "I think it will pass. It's something we've needed for a long time."

Committee approval came after attempts to insulate responsible businesses from cleanup costs were defeated. But those amendments were likely to appear again on the Senate floor, Ms. Tally said.

"I'm delighted that the Senate Committee on the Environment has approved this bill," said Bill Holman, who has said cleaning up orphan dumps was the top priority for the North Carolina Conservation Council this session.

Linda Little, director of the Governor's Waste Management Board, praised the compromise bill fashioned by a subcommittee from three measures.

"Environmental interests would say it doesn't go far enough; business interests, that it goes far too far," she said. "The important point is that it offers a vehicle which we believe could pass so we can get on with this essential first step in the cleanup process."

The bill would give state officials authority to study the estimated 700 inactive sites, rank them on potential health risks, find responsible parties and, where possible, have those parties pay for cleaning up the sites.

"Where possible, responsible parties should pay for this cleanup, but a number of these sites may have no identifiable responsible party or the responsible party may not have sufficient funds for the cleanup," Ms. Little said. "In such cases, if the sites pose a substantial threat, they should be cleaned up and some mechanism should be devised to fund the cleanup."

Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, said the bill is "probably stronger than anything anybody would have dreamed would come out of this Legislature." He offered an amendment to eliminate liability for anyone who exercised "due care" in disposing of waste under rules known at the time of the disposal.

"It's just unfair to now turn around and say we're changing the rules," Taft said.

But Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, said that might exempt every business that operated under accepted industry standards of the time. He said a similar federal rule had required the government to go to court in every case to recover cleanup costs.

"I think it's just a hole to drive through," added Sen. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus.

The committee defeated that amendment, but Sen. Bill Barker, D-Pamlico, offered a similar one to limit liability to those who "knew or should have known" of the dangers of dumping the waste. That amendment also was defeated, with Barker and Taft voting in the minority.

Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, was the only committee member voting against the bill, which will go to the Senate as early as Friday. Harris said he objected to having a separate funding bill for the measure, saying, "That's not good business."

Ms. Little estimated the bill would cost state government about $250,000 a year to administer. Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, House sponsor of the main bill, has filed a spending bill calling for $6 million over two years to pay for cleanup.

Holman's only objection to the bill approved by the committee was a provision capping cleanup costs at $3 million.

Garbage Barge Runs Into Bahamian Snag

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer
LARGO, Fla. (AP) — A developer is seeking an exception to the rules in pursuing his plan to dump a barge-load of New York garbage on an uninhabited Bahamian island he wants to turn into a resort.

The Bahamian government put Florida developer Tony Gallina on notice Thursday that it doesn't accept foreign waste and put police on alert to turn back the cargo if it enters Bahamian waters.

The barge with 3,100 tons of trash from Islip, N.Y., was anchored off Key West after hitting the latest snag in a sea odyssey that began nearly seven weeks ago.

Gallina wants to use the garbage as a fill on Little San Salvador, a 5½-mile-long and 2½-mile-wide island 250 miles southeast of Miami that is home to nesting seabirds and a haven to sport fishermen.

Gallina, 44, is president of LSS International, which holds the island lease. He said no deal had been worked out and the barge would stay put for now.

"What we are preparing to do is go to the government and ask for a waiver. We're not dumping this garbage. We want to use it as a landfill in the Out Islands and create jobs," Gallina said.

Burlington Stock Sees Heavy Sales

GREENSBORO (AP) — Heavy trading continues in Burlington Industries stock as new legal challenges were launched against North Carolina laws designed to block a takeover of the Greensboro-based textile manufacturer.

The company's board said it would decide by May 19 whether to accept a $67 per share offer made earlier this week by New York investor Asher Edelman and Dominion Textile of Montreal.

Burlington's stock closed Thursday at 64½, up 1¼. Some 2,135,700 shares were traded, about 1 million less than Wednesday. Much of the trading was in blocks of 10,000 or more shares, meaning, as one stock analyst said, "the big players are doing the trading."

The Greensboro News & Record reported rumors that Burlington's financial advisers had begun exploring a leveraged buyout, in which the company's executives, borrowing on its assets, raise money to buy the firm from stockholders.

Blue Bell and Cone Mills used leveraged buyouts to stave off unfriendly takeovers. Cone Mills went private in 1984, and has continued operations. Blue Bell was sold last year to VF, which closed its headquarters and sold some plants but has continued to operate Wrangler, Blue Bell's flagship jeans division.

Burlington released a one-paragraph statement Thursday in which it said the offer to purchase the textile firm's shares "is being considered by the company's board of directors."

The statement also said that Burlington, before May 19, "will advise its stockholders as to whether Burlington recommends acceptance or rejection of the offer and of its reasons for the position taken." The company said it requested that its stockholders "defer making a decision to accept or reject the offer until they have been advised of the company's position."

Meanwhile, in New York, Edelman and Dominion changed a lawsuit filed in New York to include a challenge to a new law passed by the North Carolina Legislature designed to make it difficult to take over Burlington.

Disposal of any waste generated outside the Bahamas "is against very clearly stated policy," said Dr. Norman Gay, health minister. "It can only be harmful."

An environmental group added its objection. "When you start burying the world's garbage in our islands you're asking for nothing but trouble and health problems," said Lyn Holowesko, president of the Bahamas National Trust. "I don't know what the flies are carrying and what diseases may be accompanying the barge."

The Environmental Protection Agency has certified the trash as harmless.

The Bahamas was the third country to reject the refuse along a 5,000-mile voyage that began March 22 at Long Island. Mexico and the Central American country of Belize also said no. So have North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Florida.

Gallina acknowledged he had not contacted government officials before his plan was made public. He said he was trying to arrange a deal with Alabama middleman Lowell Harrelson, who contracted with Islip to get rid of the community's commercial refuse after its landfill closed.

"If you had a barge full of garbage looking for a home, you would talk to anyone who made sense," Harrelson said Thursday in Bay Minette, Ala.

Census Bureau Reports Americans Spend $11 Billion On Child Care

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Child care costs Americans billions of dollars each year, and problems such as the inability to find a baby sitter disrupt the jobs of 450,000 parents a month, a government study shows.
Some 5.9 percent of employed mothers using child care other than schools reported that they or their husbands lost time from work monthly because of problems with their child care arrangements, the Census Bureau reported Thursday. That would add up to an estimated 450,000 parents a month with baby-sitting or other child-care problems.

Even so, American families spend an estimated $11.1 billion annually on child care, according to the survey of 19,000 households taken in the winter of 1984-85.

The study, "Who's Minding the Kids," was designed to measure the extent of child-care services used by employed mothers across the nation. It found that 5.3 million families with employed mothers pay for child care, at an average cost of $40.33 a week. That includes family arrangements in which some money is paid to a relative to watch the children, as well as baby sitters and professional day-care services.

Of the 7.7 million women using some type of child care service — whether paid for or not — those most often facing work disruptions had their child cared for at the home of another person — 7.8 percent. Professional day care centers had the fewest problems, 1.3 percent. The women were asked whether they or their husband had lost time from work in the month prior to the interview because of problems with their child-care arrangements.

"Child care in someone else's home may be more susceptible to personal emergencies or weather-related disruptions that result in higher rates of failures in child-care arrangements than when using organized child-care facilities where more staff are available on a daily basis," the study said.

The study looked at 8.2 million children under age 5 and 18.3 million between the ages of 5 and 14 to determine the child-care needs of working mothers. This was the bureau's most detailed study of this area, although previous surveys have reported on child-care arrangements of pre-school children.

The new study found that for preschoolers, the largest share — 37 percent — were cared for in someone's home other than their own. Some 22.3 percent were cared for by a non-relative, 10.2 percent by a grandparent and 4.5 percent by some other relative.

In addition, 31 percent of preschoolers were cared for in their own home while mom worked — nearly half being watched by dad. Others were supervised by a grandparent or other relative.

Organized day-care facilities cared for 23.1 percent of preschoolers and about 8 percent were cared for by the mother herself either while she worked at home, or took the tot with her to her job.

For children aged 5 to 14 the most common arrangement while mother worked was for them to attend school, this accounting for 75 percent. In addition, 11.8 percent were cared for at home, 4.3 percent in another home and the rest were at day-care facilities, with their mother or caring for themselves.

While 5.6 million unmarried women are coping with work and the demands of children, only about 900,000 unmarried men are in the same category, the Bureau found.

The report noted that finding child-care arrangements for the youngest children presents a problem for many families, since formal day-care facilities often exclude infants and very young children.

For children under 1 year of age, 78 percent were cared for at their home or someone else's home while mother worked, the study found. But by the age of 3 or 4 the share cared for at someone's home dropped to 58 percent, with many of the others heading to day care.

"It is apparent that for the first few years of a child's life, the children of working women may experience considerable changes in the type of child care as the children grow from infancy to school age," the study observed.

House Panel Approves Bill Adding Insurance For Catastrophic Illnesses

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House committee approval of a catastrophic health bill sets the stage for the first major expansion of Medicare in 22 years and strongly suggests a tax-based progressive financing plan will be injected into the program for the first time.

The major additional benefits in the measure, which cleared the House Ways and Means Committee late Thursday, are patterned on a plan drafted by Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen and embraced by President Reagan after weeks of debate within the administration.

Although the House bill goes somewhat beyond the Bowen plan in benefits, the major departure from the administration approach is the progressive nature of financing in which 40 percent of relatively well-to-do elderly Americans would pay most of the freight for the entire program.

The administration would finance its proposal by imposing the same flat premium increase — about $6 a month to start — on all 31 million Medicare beneficiaries regardless of income.

Although backers of the income-related financing in the House bill are careful not to use the word tax, the variable charge — called a "supplemental premium" — would be calculated under a new section and premium table on income tax forms.

"There was some objection to calling the payment a tax," Rep. Fortney H. Stark, D-Calif., chairman of the Ways and Means health subcommittee, told reporters after approval of the bill. "It is a premium. It is an income-related premium. It is not means-testing."

Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr. of Ohio, ranking Republican on the health subcommittee and co-author of the bill with Stark, said he prefers to call the financing mechanism "a mandatory, income-related user's fee."

Whatever it is called, the financing in Stark-Gradison is strikingly similar to that in a catastrophic health insurance bill introduced earlier this week by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

That measure is co-sponsored by a majority of the Senate committee members, assuring it an eventual hearing on the Senate floor just as Thursday's action sends Stark-Gradison to the House floor.

Taken together, the unfolding developments this week on opposite sides of the Capitol removed most of the mystery from the likely eventual shape of catastrophic health legislation almost certain to clear Congress this year.

It appears the eventual benefit package will go marginally beyond what Reagan proposed: no long-term nursing home benefit but perhaps expanded home care and some coverage of prescription drugs for Medicare beneficiaries with particularly high drug bills.

The developments also suggest a strong consensus to finance the expansion largely on an income-related basis rather than with a flat premium, although both the House and Senate bills would raise premiums slightly on all beneficiaries.

High-Spending Senators Now Want Change Limiting Campaign Costs

By SANDY JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., spent $12.5 million to win re-election last year. His colleague, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., shelled out $2 million to win another term.

Now both men say enough is enough, that issues and voters have taken a back seat to fund-raising as the cost of politics spirals. They are among the sponsors of a proposed constitutional amendment to let Congress set limits on campaign spending.

"Democracy pays a very heavy price" when candidates spend more time raising money than talking with voters, Cranston said. He and his opponent, Rep. Ed Zschau, spent a total of $25.5 million in their bitter battle in California.

"It's going to go up and up and up until we stop it," Cranston said.

Hollings added, "It's a disgrace."

Winning senators spent an average of $3 million each in the 1986 elections; successful House members spent an average of $347,000.

All told, House races cost $190 million in 1986 and Senate races $182 million, according to the Federal Election Commission.

Cranston, Hollings, and Reps. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., and Bruce Vento, D-Minn., said at a news conference that the amendment would let Congress set strict spending limits.

They noted that in 1974 Congress passed legislation to limit spending for federal offices but the limits were declared unconstitutional in 1976 by the Supreme Court.

At the time, the legislation set these ceilings per candidate: In the Senate, $100,000 or 8 cents per eligible voter in the primary, whichever amount was higher; $150,000 or 12 cents per eligible voter in the general election. In the House, $70,000 in both the primary and general election campaign. These limits were to be indexed for inflation.

The legislation also would have curtailed so-called independent expenditures, or money spent independently by lobbying groups to elect or defeat a candidate. The bill set a $1,000 limit per group on this spending. In 1986, independent expenditures reached $8 million.

"Our elections are supposed to be contests of ideas, but too often they degenerate into megadollar derbies — paper chases through boardrooms and union halls," Hollings said.

"What it compels you to do is spend more than half your time raising money rather than talking issues and talking with people," said Cranston.

The high-stakes financing also has unfairly squeezed out many candidates, he said, adding that limits would level the playing field.

"Candidates not blessed with great personal wealth, or bulging campaign war chests, would no longer be at such a great disadvantage," Schumer said.

The constitutional amendment simply states, "The Congress may enact laws regulating the amounts of contributions and expenditures intended to affect elections to federal offices."

The proposal has a long road to travel: to become part of the Constitution, it would need approval by a two-thirds majority in the House and Senate, and then ratification by three-quarters of the states.

Several other campaign spending reform measures are winding through Congress, including one by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., to finance Senate campaigns with public funds.

But Hollings said that measure was "dancing around the fire," by just shifting the burden to the taxpayers.

Witness Challenges Goetz Story

NEW YORK (AP) — A witness testified he watched in terror as Bernhard Goetz pulled a shiny pistol from his jacket and, without visible emotion, gunned down four teenagers on a subway train.

Solitaire Macfoy also said that Goetz was not surrounded by the youths before he pulled out his gun.

"I was very terrified," Macfoy said Thursday at Goetz's trial on attempted murder charges.

The shots were fired "in a somewhat regular pattern," Macfoy told the jury. He said Goetz's "face seemed to be calm and bland, somewhat calculated, without real emotions."

Macfoy, a programming analyst, said he had noticed nothing wrong before "suddenly a man took out a gun and started to shoot at some people who were on the train."

Macfoy said he had not seen anyone acting in a threatening manner, and "I wouldn't say that this person (Goetz) was surrounded."

Goetz, charged in the shootings of Darrell Cabey, Troy Canty, James Ramseur and Barry Allen, claims they had surrounded him and were about to rob him; the prosecution says they merely were panhandling.

Macfoy's account differed from some other descriptions of what happened: he placed Goetz on the other side of the train, and had him shooting from right to left instead of from left to right, as Goetz has described it.

Defense lawyer Barry Slotnick said there is no record that Macfoy called police the next day, as he said he did, and suggested he was not on the train.

He also said Macfoy had talked with lawyer William Kunstler, who represents Cabey, the most seriously injured of the four Goetz shot. Cabey, who was paralyzed and suffered brain damage because of the incident, has filed a $50 million suit against Goetz.

But friends of Macfoy testified he told them about the shootings before they heard about them on the radio.

Oklahoma Men Are Charged With Plotting Ortega Death

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Two men described as right-wing extremists were arrested on charges they plotted to mount a $5 million Rambo-style mission to assassinate Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, authorities say.

The men claimed an unidentified businessman put up the money for the conspiracy, said a federal indictment unsealed Thursday.

Donnell Howard, 35, of Maysville was arrested Thursday in Oakland, Calif., and John Norris, 30, of Purcell was picked up at his central Oklahoma farm. Howard waived his right to a hearing, and was ordered transferred to Oklahoma by U.S. Magistrate F. Steele L.

An investigation is continuing, U.S. Attorney Layn Phillips said.

Ortega, in the Nicaraguan capital of Managua, blamed the alleged plot on President Reagan.

"All this is part of the hysteria that Reagan has created with his policy against Nicaragua," Ortega said. "President Reagan continues making speeches against Nicaragua, and there are extremists such as these now accused who could be used indirectly by the CIA to carry out these criminal actions."

The Nicaraguan government later announced that Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto had sent the U.S. State Department a formal protest, claiming the Reagan administration has been conducting "a campaign of inflammatory rhetoric" against the Central American nation.

The indictment said the assassinations were made between Dec. 1 and Jan. 29.

Archbishop Has Diplomatic Knack

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Archbishop John L. May doesn't make much of it, but he has a knack for diplomacy, a skill particularly handy in his new job as president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

As spokesman and liaison to the Vatican for some 300 American bishops, May seeks, and usually finds, a middle ground on divisive church issues.

May, head of the St. Louis Archdiocese, prefers not to use labels such as "moderate." Yet many say he is exactly that. He shows that moderate approach about relations between the Vatican and American Catholics.

"I believe we need to have a greater understanding between some people in Rome and some people in this country," May said in an interview.

"We have to face the fact that we Catholic Americans look kind of different to people in Europe. They see an awful lot of bad values coming out of the United States. They think the American Catholic Church needs to shape up."

May, 64, said some Americans were becoming increasingly frustrated, complaining that the Vatican was too strict and old-fashioned. But there are others, he pointed out, who say:

"It's about time. The American bishops have gone soft, and the Catholic Church in the United States is losing its backbone. The Vatican has been entirely too understanding and should have cracked down on us a long time ago."

"I think both are extremes," May said, characteristically weighing both sides before settling for the middle.

May's election last November over more conservative candidates was seen symbolically as endorsing both church moderation and the bishops' recently increased social activism such as in criticizing U.S. policies on nuclear arms, in Central America and for welfare cutbacks.

"From time to time we make statements on values — they're always statements on values. We don't get into partisan politics," May said.

Ordained a priest in 1947, May became associate pastor of St. Gregory Church in Chicago, serving there until 1956. In 1967, he was appointed auxiliary bishop of the Chicago Archdiocese, serving there two years until appointed head of the Mobile, Ala., Diocese.

As archbishop of St. Louis since 1980, May oversees 542,000 Catholics in 245 parishes. He sees the disintegration of the family as the biggest problem before American Catholics.

"Catholics at one time were known as people who rarely had a divorce in their family, where such things as out-of-wedlock pregnancies were very rare," May said. "And Catholic kids had different values on such things as sex, drugs, alcohol and so on."

"Unfortunately, I think that we, like most of American society, have been taken in by much of the sex revolution, much of the pleasure principle, much of the consumerism," he said. "Catholics are like everybody else. They want to give their kids the best but they also want to give them the best in values. Sometimes it's hard to keep a balance."

But doing that is considered May's forte.

"He's a very steady individual," said Monsignor John R. Gaydos, chancellor of the St. Louis Archdiocese. "He'll always be the calming influence — the eye of the hurricane."

May is tireless in his work, Gaydos said, and is known for his commitment to ecumenical work. He recently called for a collaborative effort with other area religious groups and public and private entities to fight AIDS.

Despite his packed schedule, May keeps physically fit by riding his bicycle and playing golf. He enters several benefit tournaments each year.

As a leader, May effectively delegates authority, said Monsignor Edward Sudekum, editor of the St. Louis Review, the official archdiocese newspaper for which May writes a weekly column.

Judaism Flourishes In Hindu Region

AIZAWL, India (AP) — On the basis of a dream, several thousand Mizo Shinlung tribespeople in India's remote northeast pursue their practice of Judaism, despite difficulties.

They're a comparatively new group of affirming Jews in this largely Hindu land.

Although Judaism goes back to ancient times, it was only in 1947 that the faith bloomed anew in this region.

In that year, an elderly man named Chala in the village of Buallawan, about 90 miles from this capital of India's Mizoram state, awoke with a vision that 10 Shinlung people were one of Israel's 10 lost tribes.

He saw God in a dream telling him the Shinlungs were descendants of Manasseh, the first son of Joseph, relates Joseph Rei, 63, a carpenter and leader of the Jewish community here.

The influence of that vision spread. Some Shinlungs, who are of Tibetan-Burmese stock, saw a parallel between their own long-practiced customs and Judaism.

Today, several thousand people in Mizoram and neighboring Manipur state maintain their Jewishness, go each Saturday to prayer services, and try to observe other Jewish practices.

But this is not always easy in this region largely inhabited by Hindus and Christians, says Rei's wife, Mariam.

"As a housewife, I do my best to observe the Jewish formalities, but often it is impossible," she said.

"For instance it is impossible to buy unleavened bread in this place.

While Kosher meat is difficult to get, I make it a point not to mix meat with milk and clean all meat scrupulously before cooking."

Passing Guilt Is Dying Art

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

This might be the most frightening revelation you will read all year. The passing of guilt from parent to child is a dying art. That's right. The "gift that keeps giving" has tapered off because working mothers feel sorry for their children and don't want to burden them with more pressure.

This has been the most depressing news to me since I was 12 and refused to eat my lima beans and made my mother sick. We're talking about an American tradition here that is as old as dirt. Guilt should never be considered a curse that is passed on, but rather a bonus for having children of your own where the power shifts and you have your day in the sun. It's the evolution of Motherhood as it was meant to be.

One mother recently confessed to me that she had never spread guilt in her entire life. She didn't know how. And she calls herself a mother!

I told her, "There's nothing to it. For starters, when you arrive home from work tonight, drag tiredly into the living room where the kids are watching their favorite game show and say, 'Would you bring in the groceries from the car?' Give them three seconds to respond. NOT ONE MINUTE LONGER. Then suck in your breath and with dead, vacant eyes turn and say, 'Never mind, I'll do it myself.' It will make them feel positively rotten. If you can manage to turn your ankle lugging in the groceries, or get a concussion when the door slams on you, it's all the better. They won't be able to live with themselves."

"It sounds cruel," she said. "Nonsense, that's how they stockpile guilt for their own children. That line will be perpetuated for years to come."

"Answering machines are a great catalyst for guilt. At the sound of the beep, say, 'I know you're lying in bed listening to me and I'm glad you're getting your rest. Don't bother to call me back. You're busy. I just wanted to tell you I hardly hurt at all today.' Then when he calls back right away, don't answer it."

It's distressing to me that mothers no longer take the egg with the broken yolk, grab the fork with the bent prongs or are silent for a week, saying only, "You know what you've done." I never had such a good time as I did the year I had "WELCOME" written across my chest and went to a Halloween party as a doormat.

My friend shook her head and said, "Are you saying that children should be a part of our suffering?"

"Sweetie," I smiled, "they are the REASON for our suffering."

Club Raises Funds For Scholarships

By ECU News Bureau

A total of $2,300 was recently contributed to a new scholarship fund at East Carolina University by the EC University Club. The organization, formerly known as the ECU Woman's Club, donated the funds to the Gladys David Howell University Scholarship program.

The club has dedicated more than 25 years of fund-raising service to East Carolina, beginning in 1962 when the group agreed to help support the Ficklen Stadium Fund. The following year the club changed its focus, devoting energies toward raising money for scholarships.

Their scholarship, first listed in the 1964 ECC Catalog as the 'Faculty Wives Scholarship,' was supported throughout the next decade by a variety of fund-raising events — craft fairs, bridge benefits, card parties and bake sales.

In 1975 the ECU Club created the Lillian Jacobsen Jenkins Scholarship Fund in tribute to the late wife of Chancellor Emeritus Leo Jenkins. The scholarship remained the club's major annual project until 1983, when the Jenkins Scholarship endowment reached a level (in excess of $20,000) which would permit the fund to stand on its own.

The Gladys David Howell Scholarship Fund was begun in 1984 as a new project for the ECU Club; since then it has increased with proceeds from the organization's two major annual UNIVERSITY CLUB SCHOLARSHIP — Gladys Howell, left, accepts a $2,300 check from Tamara Chitwood of the East Carolina University Club and club board member Pam Hart. The funds were raised with two university club projects held this past year, chaired by Mrs. Chitwood and Mrs. Hart.

projects — a fall 'silent auction' of donated goods and services and a spring fashion show luncheon. All funds raised this fall provide the foundation for the university scholarship program established in honor of Mrs. Howell earlier this year. A similar award was established by ECU friends and supporters in honor of her husband, recently retired Chancellor John Howell.

The club plans to continue fund-raising activities for the Howell Scholarship Award until the fund reaches the level needed to support a $3,000 annual award for an outstanding ECU student.

University club board members for 1986-87 are Tamara Chitwood, Pam Hart, Margaret Wirth, Diana Coble and Ellen McDonald. Membership in the club is open to ECU faculty and staff members and spouses of ECU employees. The club will honor new faculty and staff members and spouses at a membership reception this fall.

Pool Chemicals Can Be Hazardous

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Water treatment materials found in just about every swimming pool owner's garage or storage shed are potentially hazardous and must be handled with care, advises a major pool chemicals maker.

"If not stored and used properly, pool chemicals can burn the person handling them; they can give off dangerous gases, and can even lead to fire," says Ken Lee, product safety manager of PPG Industries, which supplies calcium hypochlorite-based pool sanitizers and also furnishes water testing systems.

In addition to the usual precautions, such as keeping chemicals out of children's reach, Lee recommends the following procedures to ensure pool chemicals safety:

— Handling and using: Always read and follow label instructions. Add chemicals to water, never water to chemicals. Keep chemicals away from open flames, including cigarettes. Don't mix pool chemicals. Use a clean, dry scoop for each chemical. Close containers between usages. Use up all of one container before opening another. When empty, rinse containers thoroughly with water before discarding.

— Storing: Keep pool chemicals in closed containers, away from heat sources and fuels in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place. Don't stack containers. Keep various pool treatments (chlorinators, pH regulators, water clarifiers) apart and away from other chemical-type products, including soaps, detergents, paints, solvents, gasoline and anything labeled corrosive, flammable, combustible or hazardous.

— Clean-up: Clean spills immediately. Wear rubber gloves and use clean tools to place spilled material in a clean, dry container; never return it to the original container, and don't throw it into the trash.

After clean-up, flush area with large quantity of water. Place container with spilled material in an isolated, well-ventilated area until it can be disposed of according to label directions, or dilute with large quantities of water and place in the sewer.

While not flammable by itself, calcium hypochlorite can ignite if contaminated by materials such as oil, glycerine, sweeping compounds, wet paint and carbonated beverages.

— Emergencies: If calcium hypochlorite dust is inhaled, get to fresh air; if it gets on the skin or in eyes, flush with water; if it is swallowed, drink large quantities of water. Do not dust off clothes; flush with water.

In all cases, immediately seek medical attention. The dust can severely burn respiratory and digestive tracts, eyes and skin. Inhaling too much dust can be fatal.

— Where to get help: Keep a list of local fire and rescue unit, physician and hospital telephone numbers and the PPG chemical emergency response number (304) 843-1300, next to your telephone.

take turns telling their stories. And what stories!

I heard the following: "I'm a bookkeeper for a very large company. I started to steal from the company to play the horses. I embezzled over $100,000 and I'm trying to pay it back before I get caught and go to jail."

"I'm a housewife who's so hooked on bingo, I've even stolen money from my kids' piggy banks."

"I'm a cab driver" ... "I'm an airline pilot" ... "I'm a sportswriter" ... "I'm a bellhop" ... "I'm a shoe salesman" ... "I'm a dentist" ... "I'm a plumber," and the list goes on and on.

There are compulsive gamblers all over the world. G.A. has received letters from Arabia, India, Asia, Europe and South America requesting information.

There are approximately 700 chapters in the United States and Canada. They are usually listed in the local telephone directory. To locate the chapter nearest you, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Gamblers Anonymous, P.O. Box 17173, Los Angeles, Calif. 90017. Anyone whose family suffers because he

Please share this information with your husband, and try to persuade him to attend a meeting. And if he sincerely wants to quit gambling, I'll bet my bottom dollar he can. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that if even one drop of alcohol is served to an alcoholic, it's one drop too much.

Please take that one step further: When alcohol is used in punch, candy, desserts, etc., guests should be warned. I have acute pancreatitis. One drop of alcohol — even in cough syrup or vanilla flavoring — can trigger a pancreatic attack. These attacks are dreadfully painful, and could be fatal! — S.J.

'Independent' Tries To Carve Out Alternative

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Katherine Fulton spent several years working at daily newspapers, but she turned to a biweekly alternative tabloid to answer her questions about American journalism in the late 20th century.

Ms. Fulton is editor of The Independent, a newspaper first published in April 1983 and begun by two Duke University graduates.

"To me, The Independent is an experiment in whether you can combine a seriousness of purpose with commercial success," she said during a recent interview in her cramped quarters in the two-story white frame house that is the newspaper's office. "All the forces in journalism in the 1980s are to maximize profit and homogenize content. I saw firsthand at a daily newspaper, the price that's paid, what those forces really mean."

"... So The Independent is an experiment in whether you can carry on the best traditions of American journalism in a new climate. Can you write with a point of view and still be fair? Can you write with a human voice and still be fair, accurate, unbiased. We see people on television everyday who are real human beings, yet newspapers read like they were written by machines. Can you put out a publication that has an identity and that is not afraid of emotion and maintain your credibility? Those are the questions. I think sometimes we have been successful and sometimes not."

She can tick off the successes easily, beginning with the newspaper's early coverage of the ethics of growing tobacco and including its on the malpractice crisis, the prison crisis, groundwater pollution and the composition of the Industrial Commission. An entire issue of The Independent works when it shows its three sides: community newspaper, magazine and alternative publication.

A recent issue did all three, she said. The cover story was a magazine length piece, a story on workaholics picked up from an out-of-state newspaper. Inside was a story wrapping up all the suits charging racial discrimination filed against boards and commissions across North Carolina. And a third story was a first-person feature about an artist who's a masochist.

As a community newspaper, The Independent must "take a significant state or local issue and try to hold people accountable. This is muck-raking. This is trying to hold people accountable for their actions," she said. As a magazine, the newspaper must go after longer, more analytical stories with a more polished style of writing.

And as an alternative newspaper, The Independent should "stretch the political debate," she said. "Write about topics that the daily press has ignored or has not caught on to yet or writes about in a very one-sided way. Part of what we're trying to do is get things on the agenda, both in the daily press and politics in general."

"So I don't spend a lot of energy covering things that I think are being covered well. We write about something only if we can add something. We're a supplement to the rest of information available. We'll never be the primary source for anybody. But if we do our job well, we can get different news and make people feel we're essential even if we're supplemental, that you're actually going to miss something if you don't read The Independent."

KATHERINE FULTON

But before you pigeonhole The Independent as a liberal newspaper, Ms. Fulton is quick to point out a recent essay on why religion should be taught in public schools and a column on the shootout in Greensboro involving the Klan, Nazis and communists, which laid part of the blame at the feet of the communists.

"We try to unpredictable," said Ms. Fulton, who believes that unpredictability keeps readers and writers on their toes.

The Independent, which just celebrated its fourth anniversary, now has a free now has a free circulation of 45,000 with about 1,000 subscribers. The paper, which began with 10 investors, now has about 45.

"We are beginning to bring our losses down so we are hoping not to have to raise as much next year," she said. "If the growth that we're experiencing now continues, we won't have to raise as much as money."

The Independent also has several awards, including one for Ms. Fulton, to its credit.

Ms. Fulton, who worked four years at the Greensboro Daily News (now the Greensboro News and Record), received a Lyndhurst Prize earlier this year from the Lyndhurst Foundation, which has its headquarters in Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Lyndhurst prize — $30,000 a year for three years with no strings attached — is given to "individuals whose religious, charitable, artistic, literary or educational work have been interesting, creative and significant for a number of years."

The foundation makes its selections solely at the initiative of the board of trustees. No one applies for the awards, and no one is nominated.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday

KINSTON — In a candlelight ceremony at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Lou Ann Murphy became the bride of Joseph Conklin Raspberry III in the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Richard Murphy Jr. of Snow Hill. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Joseph Conklin Raspberry of Kinston and the late Mr. Raspberry.

The Rev. Huw Christopher officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A program of music was presented by organist Buford Goodman of Kinston and soloist Cathy C. Sisk of Raleigh.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a wedding gown she designed made of white imported silk peau de soie with a bodice of alencon lace embroidered with pearls. The high neckline edged with matching lace fell into a point at the back. The long fitted sleeves of peau de soie, closed at the wrist with covered buttons, were decorated with appliques of lace. The full gathered skirt was attached to a basque waistline. The skirt, edged in matching alencon lace with appliques of lace embroidered with pearls, extended into a cathedral train. The gown was made by Eric Ennis of Raleigh. She wore a full-length veil of illusion attached to a Camelot cap covered in lace with clusters of pearls. The bride carried a crescent cascade of white gardenias, stephanotis, ivy and springerii greenery.

Vanessa Murphy Hardy of Snow Hill was the honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids were Amy Davis Adams of Greenville, Frances Wooten Parrott of Kinston, Elette Everett Owen of Winston-Salem, Anna Dell Watts of High Point, Lisa Kay Cunningham of Raleigh, Myrtle Florence Hassell of Raleigh, Sheila Saunders Hanson of Hoboken, N.J., Jill Shirley Fish of San Diego, Calif., Martha Raspberry Sherman of Kinston, sister of the bridegroom. Julia Eleanor Sherman of Kinston, niece of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid.

Each wore a tea-length gown of turquoise taffeta styled with low waistline, gathered skirt with a side bow. The elbow-length sleeves were gathered at the shoulders. Each carried an arm bouquet of blue delphinium, white calla lilies, orchids, miniature gladioli, alstromeria and pink roses tied with lace ribbons.

John Sherman Jr. of Kinston was best man. Groomsmen were Joseph

Daniel Gay of Greenville, Jeffery Miles Minges and Dr. Courtney Mitchell III, both of Kinston, John Royal Bunting III of Bethel, William Harvey Hill of Southern Pines, James Frederick Murphy and John Richard Murphy III, brothers of the bride, and John Ryan Murphy, nephew of the bride, all of Snow Hill.

The bride's mother wore a tea-length dress of cherry silk and chantilly lace. The mother of the bridegroom selected an aqua, pink, blue and rose silk tea-length dress with an overblouse. Both wore white orchids.

The acolyte was John Sherman III of Kinston, nephew of the bridegroom.

Mrs. John Richard Murphy III and Mrs. James Frederick Murphy, sisters-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest register. Mrs. William Sugg III of Snow Hill directed the wedding.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Kinston Country Club.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College and is working toward a master's degree in education. She teaches in Wake County. The bridegroom is a graduate of N.C. State University and is a commercial real estate appraiser for Landt-Blackwell Co. in Raleigh. He is working toward his MAI designation.

After a wedding trip to California, the couple will live in Raleigh.

The mother of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Kinston Country Club. A dance honoring the bridal couple followed. A wedding luncheon was given by families of the couple.

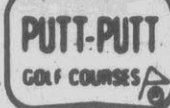

A luncheon, champagne brunch and linen shower, cocktail party and bachelor party were held prior to the wedding.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 87 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 49.52 cents. The market is trending higher and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 2,037,000, compared to 1,968,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market lower. Supply burdensome for a moderate demand. The undertone for next week's trading is weak. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 9 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn 1 to 2 cents higher at mostly 1.92-2.05 in East and mostly 2.10-2.25 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 10 to 12 cents higher at mostly 5.61-5.65 in East and mostly 5.53-5.65 in the Piedmont; new crop wheat 1.83-2.15, soybeans, 5.12-5.47, wheat 2.40-2.96. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady to 1/2 percent lower and ranged from 101 to 103 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today, rallying after the completion of the Treasury's quarterly sale of bonds.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 9.66 to 2,344.32 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 8 to 5 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 680 up, 370 down and 447 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 25.39 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

On Thursday the Treasury auctioned $9.28 billion in 30-year bonds at an average yield of 8.76 percent.

That showing got mixed reviews on Wall Street. However, analysts said traders seemed to be relieved that the offering was completed without a drastic rise in interest rates.

Business Leaders See Slow Growth

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The nation's top business leaders predicted today that the U.S. economy will continue growing at a modest rate over the next two years, but they warned of rising threats of a recession stemming from a weak dollar and higher inflation.

In its semi-annual economic forecast, the Business Council was decidedly less upbeat than just six months ago, attributing the increased pessimism to worldwide trade tensions, uncertainties over the dollar and a recent jump in interest rates.

"No one forecasts a recession in 1987 or 1988," the council said in its consensus report. "However, there is a widespread feeling in the group that expansionary forces are rather fragile and vulnerable to shocks."

Potential recessionary threats include trade disputes between the United States and other countries such as Japan and a continued rise in interest rates, the council said as it began a three-day meeting at this mountain resort.

The chance that the 4-year-old economic recovery will tumble into a recession was put at 25 percent by some of the business economists who prepared the forecast.

The Business Council, made up of executives from 65 of the country's largest corporations, predicts economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, of 2.5 percent this year.

Hart Withdraws

Even early in the week, as Hart struggled to continue the campaign, he spoke of the end.

"This is not just a political race. It is really a cause," the former Colorado senator told a New York City fund-raiser. "It's more than a campaign for office: for thousands of people around the country, it's a crusade to move this nation forward."

"If I'm right about that, it really doesn't matter if the leader is struck down in battle — or with a knife in the back — because the cause goes on and the crusade continues."

He had scheduled a full day of campaigning Thursday in New Hampshire, but abruptly canceled all the events and flew to Denver with his wife.

In a statement released by his staff in Groveton, N.H., Hart said that "while running for president is important, right now my family is more important."

Some of those in the crusade were crushed by Hart's decision.

Pirates Take Season Finale, 7-3

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Pirates finally put it all together to pull out a 7-3 victory over Division III powerhouse N.C. Wesleyan Thursday night in the final game of the regular season.

"I don't know whether one game can give you momentum," Coach Gary Overton said. "But it sure can give us a boost going into the (Colonial Athletic Association) tournament."

East Carolina took an early 1-0 league, lost it to the Battling Bishops, 2-1, then, after tying it at 2-2, took command with three runs in the third inning and never trailed again.

The Pirates banged out 15 hits in the game, paced by three each from John Thomas and Steve Sides. They also got good pitching, as Jim Peterson picked up the win, scattering seven hits and giving up two unearned runs in seven innings. Gary Smith, who took the loss against N.C. State the night before, hurled the final two innings, striking out four and allowing only one baserunner — on an error.

On the field, the Pirates did commit three errors, but also came up with some fine fielding. The highlight was a diving catch at the right field line by Jay McGraw.

"I thought we played better tonight. I thought the element of difference was that we were more aggressive. A couple of times that got us in trouble a couple of times. But we had gotten ourselves a lead and were able to be aggressive."

The two times Overton referred to came in the sixth inning when both Dean Ehehalt and Steve Sides were thrown out trying to stretch singles into doubles.

Overton added that two plays showed the aggressiveness and paid off. One was Ehehalt's coming from second to score on a hit to short left field, and the other was John Thomas' score from third on a grounder hit back beside the mound. "Our offense was commendable," Overton said.

East Carolina started the scoring in the first inning, getting one run. With one out, Sides singled to left and Chris Cauble was hit by a pitch.

McGraw followed with a single off the shortstop's outstretched glove and Sides scored on the play.

Wesleyan, however, came right back to take a 2-1 lead in the top of the second. Gary Appleton led off with a double to right center. Former Rose High School player Eric Jarman beat out a swinging bunt between the mound and third. Rich Chaparro hit back to Sides, but when he tried to tag Jarman, the baserunner knocked the ball loose and all hands reached safely, Appleton scoring to tie it up.

Jarman was then cut down trying to steal third while Chaparro moved up to second. He scored on Michael Dengler's single.

The Pirates tied it up in the second on a solo home run by Calvin Brown, his sixth of the year.

Then, in the third, the Pirates pushed over three runs and took a 5-2 lead, a lead they never gave up. Ehehalt led off with a double and Sides reached on an infield hit. Cauble followed with a single to left, scoring Ehehalt with the go-ahead run. McGraw hit back to the mound and Sides was forced at third. Mike Sullivan then singled to center, scoring courtesy runner Ed Tant, and Mike Andrews walked. Tommy Yarrow grounded to third, with McGraw scoring on the play with the fifth Pirate run.

The Pirates added a sixth run in the fourth. Thomas opened with a double and moved to third on a passed ball. He then scored on Sides' grounder between the mound and first.

Wesleyan cut the lead back to 6-3 with a run in the fifth. With one out, Garry Ormsby singled to center and stole both second and third. With two away, James Anderson walked. Appleton then hit back to third, but a wild throw allowed him to reach and scored Ormsby.

After that, however, Wesleyan had only two more runners to reach base.

The Pirates, meanwhile, added one more in the sixth. With one down, Thomas singled and stole second. He scored on Ehehalt's single to left.

In addition to Sides' and Thomas' three hits, Ehehalt, McGraw and Sullivan each added two for the Pirates.

Rusty Dail had two hits to pace Wesleyan.

The win boosts the Pirate record to 21-14 on the season while Wesleyan, already assured of a berth in the NCAA Division III Regionals, drops to 40-6.

The Pirates return to action on Thursday at The Diamond in Richmond, Va., facing George Mason in the first round of the Colonial Athletic Association's post-season tournament. The winner of that will represent the CAA in the NCAA Regionals.

FC's Worthington Receives Honor

From Wire and Staff Reports

CHAPEL HILL — Hilda Worthington, girls' basketball coach and athletic director at Farmville Central, has been named as the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's female Coach of the Year.

At the same time Robert Siler of Jordan Matthews, an Associated Press all-state football and basketball player, was named 1986-87 Mr. North Carolina High School Athletic Association Thursday, symbolic of the state's best male athlete.

North Mecklenburg's Andrea Stinson received the Ms. NCHSAA award after starring in both basketball and softball, spokesman Rick Strunk said at the conclusion of the association's annual meeting.

Siler was named AP football player of the year in North Carolina after rushing for more than 1,900 yards and scoring 37 touchdowns. Siler, who has signed a grant-in-aid to play college basketball at Wake Forest, averaged 22.5 points and 8.0 rebounds per game this past season.

Stinson, who scored 2,128 career points, was named women's AP basketball player of the year after averaging more than 30 points a game. In softball, Stinson is battling .685 with 10 home runs and 29 RBI.

Last year's winners were Whiteville three-sport star Patrick Lennon, who signed a professional baseball contract with the Seattle Mariners and Greensboro Dudley track and basketball star Pam Doggett.

Also honored Thursday as was Homer Thompson of Winston-Salem Parkland, named male coach of the year.

Worthington had been at Farmville Central for the past 16 years, after serving at Rose for six seasons. Prior to that, she was at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, and at Greenville Junior High School.

At Farmville, she has coached girls' basketball and girls' track, giving the latter two years ago. Her 1984-85 team advanced to the state finals before bowing in the championship game.

She has been coach of the year in the Eastern Plains Conference in both basketball and track. She was the District I Coach of Year for the state last year.

She is also one of less than a half-dozen women athletic directors in the state.

NASCAR Slows Big Track Cars

HUEYTOWN, Ala. (AP) — A spectacular crash that nearly sent Bobby Allison's race car flying into the stands at the Winston 500 was bad enough to prompt a NASCAR rules change, but his wife has seen worse.

The veteran driver's most death-defying accident wasn't on a superspeedway but on a short track at Elkhart, Minn., says his wife of 27 years, Judy Allison.

Allison "came off the starting line at 90 miles an hour and came to a sudden stop when he hit a concrete wall abutment," she said.

"He was holding his hands in front of him, and they were bloody. It was awful. His face was split wide open. He had to have 40 stitches from his eye to the corner of his mouth," she said. In addition, his feet were crushed.

By comparison, Allison suffered barely a scratch at the Alabama International Motor Speedway when his car blew a tire at 205 mph, became airborne and tore down 35 yards of fence right in front of a packed grandstand, injuring several spectators.

In response to the accident Sunday,

NASCAR officials have announced a reduction in carburetor size that should slow down the 3,500-pound cars by 8 to 10 mph.

Judy Allison was in her husband's pit area at the time of the wreck.

"It started right in front of our pit," she said. "I heard something, and he got a little sideways then started turning around and spinning."

"Then I couldn't see, but I could tell from the reaction of the grandstand and the red flag dropping immediately that it was really bad," she said. "I went over three of our guys. They were trying to stop me. They were telling me they were talking to Bobby on the radio, and he was all right."

Just three days after the near tragedy NASCAR ordered race teams to change to a smaller carburetor. The notice, mailed out to Winston Cup competitors on Wednesday, mandates the use of the smaller carburetor for the races July 4 at Daytona International Speedway and July 26 at the Alabama track, the two places where laps above 200 mph have become commonplace.

Rams Paste Panthers, 13-3

By TOM MORRIS

Reflector Sports Writer

North Pitt coach Gerald Garner said his team would need a near-flawless performance in order to beat Greene Central. He didn't get it.

Instead, the Rams jumped on top early and kept the pressure on en route to a 13-3 Eastern Plains conference baseball victory that kept them undefeated in the conference and rolling toward a regular season title.

"I think we were intimidated a little bit," Garner said. "Greene Central is a good ball club. They are very rich in baseball tradition. They were a consensus pick to win the conference. They are the type of ball club that if you give them a break, they are going to take advantage of it."

Panther starter Darrell Moore opened the game by yielding a single to Ervin Collins but then got two straight groundouts and a strikeout to end the inning. "I was real excited after the first inning," Garner said.

The excitement was shortlived. Greene Central quickly put men in scoring position in the second inning.

Tommy Eason opened with a single. Anthony Jones came in to run for him and stole second. Daren Radford followed with a walk before Barry Ginn singled home Jones.

After one out, Jake Barrow singled home Radford, Barrow then stole second. Ervin Collins then reached on a walk. T.J. Johnson followed by singling home Ginn and Barrow. Collins later came home on a wild pitch.

"We're a bunt and finesse ball club," Garner said. "And they took the bunt out of our hands."

Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum felt that might have been a key, but an early lead sure didn't hurt either.

"One key was us getting ahead early," he said. "You never know what to expect. You just go out and play hard."

North Pitt tried to rally in the bottom of the second. Roosevelt Hines led off with a solo homer. After two outs, Calvin Hunter tripled but a ground out on the next play stranded him and left the score 5-1.

The Rams came back to add three more runs in the third to take firm control of the game.

Eason led off with a solo home run. Daren Radford followed that up with a bloop single to left where outfielder Ashley Sheppard and second baseman Johnny Sherrod collided.

Radford went to second on the mishap and Sherrod left the game. Barry Ginn then walked. Vance Head singled to move Ginn to second. Jake Barrow added another single, this one scoring Radford. Johnson finished off the scoring for that inning with a single that brought home Barrow and made it 8-1.

Moore left the game midway through the third, giving way to Jarvis Massenburg.

Greene Central added another run in the fourth to make it 9-1. The closest North Pitt would get from there was 9-3 after the fourth inning. Hines doubled and went to third on Chuck Doak's single. Randy House then brought in Hines with a sacrifice fly. Doak went to second on an error and came home on consecutive passed balls.

Greene Central went on to add three more runs in the fifth and one more in the sixth to provide the final margin.

Fulghum said he had wanted to pitch Anthony Jones, the Rams' ace, but that he developed a little soreness in his shoulder. In his stead, Greene Central started Chris Hooker. He went the distance, giving up nine hits while striking out four.

"We didn't play that badly," Fulghum said. "Hooker didn't do a bad job. We played good defense."

Eason went 3-4 with two RBI to lead the Rams offensive attack, which pounded out 15 hits. Barrow also went 3-4 while Radford and Head had two hits apiece.

Stanton Alleyne and House had two hits apiece to lead the Panthers.

Greene Central is 14-3 overall and 7-0 in the conference. North Pitt falls to 10-7 and 6-3.

Cards Come Close To Blowing Lead

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

There isn't enough kerosene in the world for the St. Louis Cardinals' arson squad to blow a 14-run lead, but they gave it a good try.

The Cardinals' bullpen is loaded with flame-throwers these days when what they really need are some fire extinguishers.

"Have you ever seen anything like that? I never have," Manager Whitey Herzog said Thursday after the San Diego Padres scored five runs in the seventh inning and five more in the ninth before the Cardinals secured a 17-10 victory. "I wonder what was the biggest blown lead in the final inning in history? This one had all the makings."

Herzog saw his relievers blow eighth-inning leads of 5-2 and 7-1 earlier this month. And despite Thursday's scare, the victory lifted St. Louis back into first place in the National League East, one-half game ahead of the Chicago Cubs, who lost to San Francisco 11-1. In the only other game, Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 6-3.

If you think Herzog has problems with a bullpen that has allowed 24 earned runs and six homers in its last 16 1-3 innings, consider the plight of Larry Bowa, San Diego's rookie manager, whose club has a 7-23 record.

"Can you imagine, we get 10 runs in a game (a season high) and we're not even close," Bowa said.

Skeeter Barnes, in his first at-bat of the season, hit a three-run homer and Jack Clark hit a solo shot among 17 St. Louis hits. The game was scoreless until Clark's seventh homer touched off an eight-run fourth inning, six of them against Andy Hawkins, 0-4. Clark and Willie McGee each had two hits in the inning, with McGee's second single capping the scoring.

Barnes, recently promoted from the minors, connected in the eighth inning off Greg Booker. Winner Bob Forsch blanked the Padres until he was chased in the seventh, when Stanley Jefferson and Bruce Bochy homered for San Diego. John Kruk hit a three-run homer off Ray Soff in the ninth.

Bowa indicated that Hawkins, whose ERA is 5.08, may lose his spot in the starting rotation.

"I think I've bent over backwards trying to get him on the board," Bowa said. "There comes a time in everyone's career when you've got to say, 'Hey look, I ain't doing the job.' And I think that time has come."

his second NL at-bat to open the scoring in the third inning and Mike LaCoss allowed seven hits in 6 2-3 innings and struck out a career-high nine batters in his first start since April 12.

Wilfong, the fifth player to start at second base for the Giants this season, homered off Ed Lynch in the third inning after LaCoss was safe on third baseman Keith Moreland's throwing error. Wilfong, who hit 38 homers in 10 American League seasons, was signed as a free agent on Tuesday and called up after playing two games in the Pacific Coast League.

The Giants made it 3-0 on Matt Williams' RBI double in the fourth. Bob Melvin drove in two runs with a fifth-inning double and doubled home another run in San Francisco's three-run seventh. Jeffrey Leonard and Candy Maldonado hit consecutive home runs off Frank DiPino in the Giants' three-run eighth. The Cubs' only run came on Ryne Sandberg's fifth-inning homer.

The victory moved the Giants into a virtual tie with Cincinnati for first place in the National League West although the Reds lead by 12 percentage points. After three days atop the NL East, the Cubs fell to second place, one-half game behind St. Louis.

Dodgers 6, Pirates 3

Rick Honeycutt allowed eight hits in 8 1-3 innings and struck out a career-high 10 batters. Honeycutt, who has made 36 starts since his last complete game on Sept. 10, 1985, also drove in a run with a squeeze bunt while Mickey Hatcher had three hits, including a solo homer and run-scoring single.

Hatcher opened the scoring when he led off the second inning against Bob Kipper with his first home run since he rejoined the Dodgers as a free agent last month after six years with the Minnesota Twins. Mariano Duncan hit his third home run of the season in the third inning for a 2-0 lead.

The Dodgers increased their lead to 5-0 in the fourth on a bases-loaded, two-run single by Reggie Williams — he was hitless in eight previous at-bats this season — and Honeycutt's squeeze bunt against Hipolito Pena.

Honeycutt lost his bid for his first shutout in more than three years in the seventh on Sid Bream's two-run homer.

"I'm not worried about it (lack of complete games)," Honeycutt said. "There'll be other games. I'll take the win any time, no matter how we got it. I felt great out there. I had enough stuff to keep going."

Washington Girls Take Track Title

HAVELOCK — Washington took top honors at the Coastal Conference girls' track meet Thursday.

The Pam Pack totaled 184, followed by Havelock 133; West Carteret 93; Conley 38; North Lenoir 26; East Carteret 13 and West Craven with 6.

Kim Payton was the lone winner for Conley, taking the 100 meter dash with a time of 12.7.

Conley's Angie Baker set a conference record in the preliminaries of the 300 hurdles with a time of 49.9. In the finals, she took third with a time of 51.4 but still qualified for the girl's sectional on the basis of her preliminary time.

The girl's sectional track meet will be held at SouthWest Edgecombe May 15. Payton qualified in the 100 and 200 meter dashes. Baker will compete in the triple jump as well as the 300 meter hurdles. The two will also join Celeste Charlton and Beth Daughety to compete in the 400 meter relay.

Junior High Baseball

GOLDSBORO — E.B. Aycock Junior High School romped to a 10-1 baseball victory over Goldsboro Thursday.

Grant Harmon tossed a two-hitter at Goldsboro and also picked up two hits in the game himself. Matt Aldridge also had two hits with three RBI, while Matthew Cagle had two RBI and stole two bases.

Aycock is now 8-0 and plays host to J.T. Barber on Monday.

Whitfield-Chicod

GRIMESLAND — G.R. Whitfield took a 12-7 baseball victory over Chicod in junior high school baseball action Thursday.

Wayne McCullough and Derrick Rodgers combined for the win on the mound. McCullough led the hitting with three, one of them a home run, and another a double. Paul Pajak had two hits, one of them a double.

E. Coscher got the only hit of the game for Chicod.

In the girls' softball game, Chicod gained a 20-2 victory.

Rose Nips Fike, 1-0

WILSON — Rose High School's girls' soccer team outlasted Wilson Fike and came away with a 1-0 victory Thursday.

The lone goal in the defensive struggle came with 20 minutes gone in the second half. Alexis Hickman booted the ball in off an assist by Lisa Leisten after Wilson goalie Sherri Parker had battered away a free kick.

Rose had only three shots on goal in the match with Parker recording two saves. Fike took six shots on goal while Rose goalie Adrienne Harrington had six saves.

The win sets up a decisive battle on Tuesday at Rose when the Ramettes host Wilson Hunt. The Lady Warriors, 8-1-1, are currently in first place in the league. Rose, 9-2, and playing their final game, could capture the league championship with a victory.

Nicky Phillips went 4-4 with two RBI to lead Jarman's Auto past First Federal, 20-3, in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game Thursday.

Phillips also combined with Troy Greene on a four-hitter to gain the win. He pitched three scoreless innings with five strikeouts to open the game.

Phillips had an RBI triple in the first inning, a double in the third, a RBI single in the fourth and a double in the fifth.

Dante Randolph added a two-run, in the park, homer in the fifth as Jarman's totaled 10 of its runs in that frame.

Omar Jordan added three hits for Jarman's while Greene chipped in two more hits.

Coca-Cola.....4
Kiwanis.....1

Coca-Cola pushed across two runs in the bottom of the third inning to break a 1-1 tie and go on to take a 4-1 win over Kiwanis in a North State

Little League baseball game Thursday.

Ron Clemons opened the third by reaching on a walk. Adam Charlton singled and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. An error on the catcher then allowed both runners to score and make it 3-1.

Coke added another run in the fifth when Jacob Zonn walked, was singled to second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a walk to James Ebron.

Charlton went the distance for the win, giving up five hits and recording 11 strikeouts.

To The Sports Editor:

The Terry Paige benefit softball game is over, but not forgotten. The game pitted ECU's football players against the coaches and members of the media. The proceeds went toward defraying the cancer treatment costs of former Pirate Terry Paige.

That game was a testament to the character of the team and the players' devotion to their ex-teammate. It was also the most entertaining seven innings I've ever seen. I've never laughed so much! Those players whose football careers are nearly over have an alternative one in either acting or comedy. And press box announcers Shannon Boling and Jarrod Moody were hilarious!

There's talk of making the game an annual event. I wouldn't miss the next one for the world and advise all area residents to attend.

Pirate players, coaches, media reps—thank you! I'm still chuckling and I'm still praying for Terry Paige.

Twins Finally Break Curse Of Lefty

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Twins apparently have broken the curse of the left-handed pitcher.

After losing to two Baltimore lefties, the Twins thwarted a third left-hander and beat the Orioles 5-2 Thursday.

"We're not looking back. We're going to the future," said Twins Manager Tom Kelly, whose team opens a three-game series tonight against the New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium.

Until Thursday, the Twins had not fared well against Baltimore southpaws. Rookie Eric Bell held Minnesota hitless until the ninth inning of a 5-4 Baltimore victory Tuesday night, and Scott McGregor hurled a three-hitter as the Orioles shut out the Twins 6-0 Wednesday night.

But Minnesota salvaged the final game of the series in a dual of losing left-handers. Twins starter Frank Viola snapped a four-game personal losing streak while winless Baltimore starter Mike Flanagan fell to 0-5.

It was the only game played Thursday in the American League.

"I knew my ability," said Viola, 24. "I knew I would come around."

Viola went 7 1-3 innings, allowed six hits, struck out six and walked two. Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth inning to pick up his seventh save.

"He put hitters on the defensive instead of pitching defensively," Twins catcher Tim Lardner said of Viola's comeback.

Twins' outfielder Kirby Puckett said Viola's teammates had confidence he would bounce back.

"You knew Frankie was going to be all right," Puckett said. "All he had to do is throw his game and everything would be fine."

Kelly agreed with his players' assessment of Viola.

"He's very capable of winning 20 games," Kelly said. "He's one of our main shooters and he has to contribute for us to win."

Gary Gaetti had three hits and drove in two runs for the Twins, who moved to within a half-game of first-place California in the AL West.

The Twins scored two runs in the first inning. Al Newman walked, and scored on Dan Gladden's double. Gladden then scored on a ground out by Puckett.

Baltimore cut the lead to 2-1 in the sixth inning when Cal Ripken Jr. scored on a sacrifice fly by Nelson Simmons. But Minnesota scored three runs in the seventh to take a 5-1 lead.

Newman led off with a double to left, went to third on Gladden's single and scored on a single by Puckett. After Puckett stole second, Tony Arnold relieved Flanagan. Gaetti then singled to center, scoring Gladden and Puckett.

The Orioles scored their final run in the eighth when Ripken doubled and came home on Ray Knight's single.

Flanagan gave up eight hits, five runs and three walks in six innings.

North Pitt Gains Victory Over Greene Central, 5-4

SNOW HILL — North Pitt High School slipped past Eastern Plains Conference leader Greene Central, 5-4, in softball action Thursday.

North Pitt jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning while Greene Central rallied for one in the bottom of the frame.

Then, in the third, the Pant-Hers got what proved to be the difference. With one away, Gwen Pilgreen singled, but was put out on Wendy Parker's grounder. Tammy Beacham followed with a single, and Renee Jacobs got a hit to drive in Parker for a 5-1 lead.

Greene Central tried to rally, scoring once in the third and twice in the seventh, but fell short.

Pilgreen and Jacobs each had two hits to lead North Pitt while Joy Albritton had two for Greene Central. The win boosts the North Pitt record to 7-6 overall and to 6-3 in Eastern Plains action. Greene Central is now 7-2.

The Pant-Hers travel to West Craven for a non-conference game today, while Greene Central entertains Farmville Central.

North Edgecombe Rolls By Bullets

JAMESVILLE — North Edgecombe's Tyrone Davis and Jeff Whitaker combined for a two-hitter as the Warriors rolled up a 7-1 baseball victory in the Tobacco Belt Conference Thursday.

Davis went the first four and a third innings, allowing one hit. He struck out 11 and walked five. Whitaker, in the final two and two-thirds, allowed a hit, fanned three and walked none.

North Edgecombe took the lead with one in the second, then pushed over three more in the third.

Keith Viverette opened the third with a double and Davis walked. Mark Williams brought both runners home with another double. Titus Rhodes then singled in Williams for a 4-0 lead.

The Warriors added single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth.

Jamesville's only run came in the fifth when Jeff Phelps walked, moved to third on consecutive passed balls and scored on Kelby Moore's groundout.

Anthony Williams and Vivrette each had two hits to lead North Edgecombe.

Jamesville falls to 8-8 in the league and 8-11 overall. The Bullets play host to Aurora on Tuesday.

Lakers Win, Take 2-0 Lead

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Golden State Coach George Karl said it wasn't really an NBA playoff-quality performance — by either team.

But the Los Angeles Lakers, who beat Karl's Warriors 116-101 Thursday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series, mostly disagreed.

"We played four quarters of basketball and didn't try to win it in one quarter," said Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 25 points.

"We sustained the offense for 48 minutes; we really had a team effort."

"I expected the Warriors to come out and play a tough game, and they did."

The 40-year-old Abdul-Jabbar, in the playoffs for an NBA record 16th year, scored 12 points in the final quarter as the Lakers finally shook off the tenacious Warriors.

"Kareem really was aggressive and he got us back up again," said Laker guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who scored 23 points, had eight rebounds and eight assists.

"He was a real force on the offensive end of the floor particularly," Johnson said. "When the Warriors tightened the game up, he hit some hooks and we pulled away again."

The series now shifts to Oakland, where the Warriors beat the Lakers in both meetings during the regular season, for afternoon games Saturday and Sunday.

Houston beat Seattle 102-84 in the only other playoff game Thursday night. Seattle leads the series, which resumes Saturday at Seattle, 2-1.

Tonight, Atlanta travels to Detroit with that series tied at 1-1, and Boston takes a 2-0 lead to Milwaukee.

Karl said he was disappointed with his club's intensity in the second loss to the Lakers.

"I think we beat ourselves," he said. "I don't think either team played very well; it wasn't a good NBA playoff game."

"We're the underdogs. We've got to come out and battle and we didn't do that. "Now we've got to win both games in the Bay Area. We did that against Utah (in the first round), but the Lakers are a great team."

"We're going to have to play great basketball."

James Worthy had 20 points for the Lakers, while Joe Barry Carroll led Golden State with 22.

The Lakers, who won all three regular-season games against the Warriors at the Forum but lost by 10 points and by 15 points in three games in Oakland, figure they'll have it tough again in Northern California.

"They'll come out with a lot of passion," Johnson predicted of the Warriors.

"It's their crowd and they always play well against us up there."

"It will be the toughest game of the series," Abdul-Jabbar predicted. "I expect them to be fired up."

Golden State, which lost the opener 125-116 when the Lakers broke loose for a 49-point third quarter, was able to keep Los Angeles from making any sizeable runs in the second game.

But the Lakers, who led 85-78 heading into the final quarter, took command by outscoring Golden State 15-9 in the first six minutes of the period to build a 100-86 pad.

The Warriors, who trailed by as many as 12 points in the second quarter, rallied to tie the game at 60 in the opening minutes of the third period.

Later in the quarter, however, the Lakers reeled off a 9-0 streak to pull out to a 77-68 advantage.

Rockets 102, SuperSonics 84

Akeem Olajuwon scored 22 of his 33 points in leading Houston to a 23-point halftime lead that avoided a win-or-else predicament in Game 4.

The Sonics scored only 13 points in the second quarter as Houston built a 56-33 halftime lead, and Seattle never caught up.

"I'm very pleased," Houston

Coach Bill Fitch said. "Any time you're down 2-0, you never know what to expect, especially with the way Seattle has been playing."

Beaten by a combined seven points in the first two games at Houston, the Rockets limited the Sonics to the lowest halftime total in the team's playoff history. The previous low was 34 points.

Dale Ellis, who averaged 32 points in the first two playoff games against Houston, was limited to 12 points. Tom Chambers led the Sonics with 24.

Ralph Sampson added 18 points, including 13 in the first half, for Houston, which led 75-57 after three quarters and by at least 15 the rest of the way. The closest Seattle could get was 77-62 in the first two minutes of the final quarter.

"We'd won five straight and we realized it couldn't go on forever," Seattle's Tom Chambers said.

Houston To Christen $70 Million Opera-Ballet House On Saturday

By RUTH RENDON
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — In this town where the busted oil boom has left some skyscrapers practically empty, the elite are priming for the grand opening of a $70 million arts center, the nation's first opera and ballet house built since 1971.

Originally scheduled to open this fall, the Wortham Theater Center is being christened at a black-tie affair Saturday, four months ahead of schedule and $5 million under budget.

The original plans were scaled back by more than $40 million as the oil bust deflated the city's economy. But donors came through with enough money to ensure that the complex, spread across two downtown blocks, was finished before the completion of a concert hall under construction in rival Dallas.

"The confidence and commitment of our citizens in our city and to our arts is one of our major strengths, and the Wortham Center represents a great future for our city," said Mayor Kathy Whitmire.

"The opening will certainly be a dream come true," said Harris Masterson III, a philanthropist who helped mastermind the project. "We needed a place for the opera and ballet and other smaller groups to grow. Now both the opera and ballet can grow and will attract the best artists and directors in the country."

The two-theater center, with a total of 3,242 seats, will house the Houston Ballet and Houston Grand Opera, which have been sharing the nearby 3,000-seat Jones Hall for the Performing Arts with the Houston Symphony.

The Grand Opera will open its season at the Wortham in October with a production of Verdi's "Aida," which also was the opera's debut production when Jones Hall opened in 1966.

Saturday night's invitation-only opening features a variety show staged by Emmy Award-winning producer George Stevens Jr. On Sunday, the theater complex, the first in the nation to open since Washington's Kennedy Center in 1971, will be open to the public.

The center's facade of Texas brick and red granite is on the banks of Buffalo Bayou, just a few blocks from where Houston was founded 151 years ago.

In grand Texas style, the 437,000-square-foot complex's roof area alone is as large as three football fields, and a six-story building would fit inside the grand foyer. A towering 90-foot-high Romanesque arch is at the center of an entryway that overlooks a plaza.

The complex is named for the late Gus S. Wortham, founder of American General Insurance Co. His Wortham Foundation contributed $20 million to the project. More than half the $70 million cost came from foundations, and 3,568 individual donors contributed.

"We are very proud of the partnership that has been forged between the public and private sector to bring about the dream of a major, state of the art, two-theater home for our Houston Ballet and Houston Grand Opera," said Whitmire.

BACK STAGE — Actress Mary Martin joins James Earl Jones in his dressing room after a performance of the Broadway play "Fences" in which Jones stars. He also plays in the movie "Gardens of Stone" which opens in theaters across the nation today. (AP Laserphoto)

'Cheers' Has Surprise Exit For Shelley Long

NEW YORK (AP) — Diane told Sam she'd see him in six months but Sam didn't act convinced after they halted their wedding on Shelley Long's final "Cheers" appearance.

The bittersweet season finale on Thursday night had been kept secret by the producers of the NBC hit comedy, who said they had three possibilities.

In the one they chose, Miss Long's character, the highbrow barmaid Diane Chambers, goes off by herself to a cabin in Maine to finish a novel she had started years earlier.

She and bar owner Sam Malone, played by Ted Danson, were in the middle of the ceremony at Cheers, surrounded by all their friends, when Diane's old English professor calls to say she has been given a cash advance and a promise of publication if she finishes the book, improbably titled "Jocasta's Conundrum."

"I don't want to be married to a woman who'll always be asking 'What if?'" says Sam. "You got to take your shot."

"See you in six months," Diane replies.

But Sam, as if acknowledging they will never get back together, bids her farewell with the words: "Have a good life."

The fadeout is a scene in which Sam dreams of himself and Diane as a married couple 40 years in the future, silently dancing.

Hours before the broadcast, the producers had refused to divulge which of three filmed endings would be used to say goodbye to Miss Long, who is leaving the show after five years to concentrate on her film career.

In a second ending that was up in the air until Thursday night, Sam and Diane got married. The third option was not divulged.

'World' Tops Day Emmy List

NEW YORK (AP) — Susan Lucci of ABC's "All My Children" set a record in Daytime Emmys nominations while CBS' long-running "As the World Turns" again received 20 nominations.

Lucci was nominated Thursday for the eighth time as outstanding lead actress in a drama series for her role as Erica Kane. She has never won the award. It was the second year in a row that "As the World Turns" won 20 nominations.

Scott Bryce, who plays Craig Montgomery, and Larry Bryggman, who plays Dr. John Dixon, were nominated for the 14th-annual awards, which will be announced in a daytime telecast June 30.

Another soap, "The Young and the Restless," also had two lead actor nominations.

NBC's "Santa Barbara" received 14 nominations and CBS's "Pee-wee's Playhouse" and "The Young and the Restless" each received 12.

Nominations cover the broadcast period from March 6, 1986, through March 5, 1987, and were made by members of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences and the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

Concert

NEW YORK (AP) — James Brown, Neil Diamond, Linda Ronstadt, Kris Kristofferson and Crosby, Stills and Nash will perform at a Fourth of July "Welcome-Home" concert sponsored by celebrities for Vietnam War veterans.

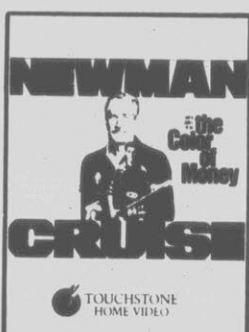

The sponsors of the concert, to be held in Washington's RFK Stadium and shown on HBO, include Jon Voight, John Ritter, Robert De Niro, Gregory Peck, Cybill Shepherd, Pee-wee Herman, Tom Brokaw, Stevie Wonder, Kenny Rogers and Oliver Stone. The money raised will go to veterans' groups.

Eastwood Award

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) — Clint Eastwood is the winner of the Saddleman Award, which honors contributions to the American West and once was won by John Wayne.

The Western Writers of America is to present the annual award, a statue of the famous Levi Strauss cowboy figure, on June 25 when about 400 WWA members convene in Sheridan.

ABC Miniseries 'Queenie' Depicts Life Of Actress

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For the viewer who finds it simply enthralling that the title character in "Queenie" is supposed to be the late actress Merle Oberon, the ABC miniseries will be more than the usual hand-wringing over lust, money and death.

Portions of the miniseries were shot on location in India, and the acting, writing, direction and photography are above average. About the worst that can be said for "Queenie," as compared to others of the overwrought, melodrama-miniseries ilk, is that it drags. It also leans too heavily on its spunky but slight star, Mia Sara, late of the teen flick "Ferris Bueller's Day Off."

"Queenie" airs in two hours on Sunday and three on Monday.

The miniseries is based on the Michael Korda's best-selling novel, in turn based on the life of Miss Oberon, who was married for six years to Korda's uncle, movie mogul Alexander Korda.

Kirk Douglas plays David Konig, the character based on Alexander Korda.

"It's firmly and unquestionably based on the life of my late aunt Merle Oberon, and I haven't made any bones about that," Korda said in a recent telephone interview from his office at Simon & Shuster, where he is editor in chief.

Like the Queenie of his novel, Miss Oberon was born in India and was of "mixed blood," a fact she hid from intolerant society. Even recent biographies still list her place of birth as the Australian island state of Tasmania. She went by the name Queenie O'Brien before she became an actress.

But much of the novel was fiction, and even more was added to the miniseries.

Miss Sara is a perfectly fine actress, but she always seems the teen-ager, never growing into the role of movie star. Kate Emma Davies, as young Queenie, doesn't seem that much younger than Miss Sara.

Douglas struts about, obviously enjoying himself, not expending too much energy. Korda said his only intervention in the making of the miniseries was in getting Douglas the role, because Douglas always wanted to portray Korda's late uncle. The Israeli actor Topol almost steals the show, however, as a wise-cracking nightclub owner-turned-agent.

The cast also includes Gary Cady as Queenie's lover, Joss Ackland as evil Sir Burton, Claire Bloom as Queenie's long-suffering mother, Serena Gordon as Sir Burton's spoiled daughter, Sarah Miles as lusty Lady Sybil, Leigh Lawson as Queenie's well-meaning but ne'er-do-well uncle and Joel Grey as Konig's best friend.

Part one establishes that Queenie Kelly can pass for English, to the delight of her mother, also part Indian.

Queenie's uncle, who does not pass for English, is caught dallying with Lady Sybil, Sir Burton's wife. Queenie asks Sir Burton to give her uncle his job back. Sir Burton demands sex in return. When Queenie flees, he chases her, falling to his death over a staircase railing. Queenie and her uncle go to London on the lam and struggle to find work.

Queenie gets a job as a fan dancer in a nightclub and meets Lucien, a successful young photographer. She changes her name to Dawn Avalon. Back in Calcutta, Sir Burton's daughter vows to find Queenie and prosecute her for murder.

In part two, Lucien takes Queenie to a party where she meets film producer David Konig. She gets a role in Konig's big movie, but it means returning to India where her secrets might be revealed. Queenie is reunited with her mother, who must pose as a maid to avoid exposing Queenie.

Konig is jealous of Lucien and sends him away by getting him a film job on location in Cairo. Konig then hides the young lovers' letters to each other so each thinks the other has found someone new. Queenie marries Konig and becomes a big star, but the two cannot be happy while keeping secrets from each other.

By the conclusion, everything is tied up, if not predictably, then very neatly.

"I don't think they left a lot out, but they put a lot in," Korda said. "They take her back to India to make a big movie. That's very exciting, but it's not in the book and was not in Merle's life."

In her real life, Miss Oberon married a cinematographer named Lucien Ballard after she and Alexander Korda divorced. She later divorced Ballard and married a younger man.

NBC Renews 'Elsewhere'

NEW YORK (AP) — The Emmy Award-winning television series "St. Elsewhere" will be back for a sixth season despite lackluster ratings.

NBC announced Thursday it was keeping the one-hour, drama-with-black comedy series, which is set in fictional St. Eligius Hospital in Boston.

"St. Elsewhere" had its debut in 1982, 1½ years after the police drama "Hill Street Blues" stunned critics with its similar gritty realism.

Both shows are productions of MTM Enterprises Inc. "Hill Street Blues" was not renewed this year.

"St. Elsewhere" is broadcast on Wednesdays at 10 p.m. and stars William Daniels, who has won two Emmys for his role as the snobbish Dr. Craig; Ed Flanders, who won a 1983 Emmy for his portrayal of kindly Dr. Westphall; Ed Begley Jr., Christina Pickles, Eric Laneauville, Stephen Furst, Cindy Pickett, Howie Mandel and Denzel Washington.

The show ended the season 55th of 83 network prime-time series, with a A.C. Nielsen Co. rating of 13.4. The rating is a percentage of the nation's estimated 87.4 million homes with televisions.

NBC announces the rest of its fall schedule next week.

Mayor To Visit

FLORA, Ill. (AP) — The mayor of Flora, featured prominently in a rap video the town is using to lure a prison, will appear on Joan Rivers' "The Late Show" tonight, says the video's producer.

Mayor Charles Overstreet, 62, and other leaders of the Southern Illinois town appear in the video, "Is We Is?"

The video began as a tongue-in-cheek effort to bring a $41 million prison to Flora, one of 30 communities vying for the medium-security institution, but blossomed into a nationally released record and video.

Pandamonium

Two pandas are now at the Bronx Zoo on loan from China. Giant pandas live wild only in China's Sichuan province. Although the pandas look more like bears, experts say they are actually more closely related to racoons. Pandas can grasp objects between their fingers and an extra "thumb." This "thumb" grows from the wrist of each bear's forepaw. Pandas feed chiefly on bamboo shoots. This rare animal is so roly-poly, it can sleep with its hind legs tucked behind its head.

DO YOU KNOW — China gave the U.S. two pandas following the visit of what U.S. President?

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY May 9

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a Saturday to do those things and see those persons who have proven stalwart and satisfactory in your life. Use caution in any undertakings today.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Plan your activities so that arguments will not surface. Partners could be in an irate mood, so maintain your poise.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Study your appearance and see how best to improve it. Your mate maybe a little testy today, so be careful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get busy improving your home. Tonight you may find your fondest pleasures lacking in excitement.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Though the conditions at home need a bit of adjustment, invite guests in tonight.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): A business situation arises that lets you forget a different business worry, but by handling one you solve the other.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): You need to study a personal matter more before you can start any action on it. Avoid a greedy friend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): A private affair can spoil your morning if you let it. Show consideration for your mate and try not to disturb this person.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): A new contact could prove trying. Your mate may be demanding, but remain pleasant and poised.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): If you are conscientious in handling an outside affair you get good results. Be your independent self now.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): It is wise to dig up further facts connected with an important matter, so wait before moving ahead.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Plan how to be more precise where your accounts are concerned. Show more loyalty for your mate.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Avoid long talks with an associate since this could result in an argumnt. You find it hard to keep promises now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will need to learn patience. This child will want everything to proceed exactly as desired, so teach this one to be more objective and learn to cope with life's vicissitudes. A profession allowing the expression of this humanitarian is the best choice.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Leo Durocher, who coined the phrase "Nice guys finish last," obviously never knew Norman Kay of Philadelphia. Not only has he been winning national titles for some 30 years, but if there is a greater gentleman anywhere in the world of bridge, we have yet to meet him.

For instance, it pains Norman not to lead his partner's suit, especially when his partner has taken the trouble to overcall. He feels that even a void in partner's suit is hardly sufficient justification! At the Spring North American Championships in St. Louis, he was faced with both a bidding and defensive problem on this hand from the Vanderbilt team event.

First, he had to decide whether it was right to bid two in the suit the opponents had opened. (In his methods, two clubs would have been natural.) He certainly would have made that contract with at least one overtrick. However, he elected to pass, and it was then up to him to justify that decision.

Obviously, it had to be right to lead a club, and we guarantee that 99.9 percent of players would stodge ily lead the ten, top of their interior sequence. That would have given declarer a trick with the jack and the timing to make at least seven tricks at one no trump. Instead, Kay hit on the killing lead of the queen of clubs, smothering the jack!

Had declarer known the position, he would have gone after hearts immediately and settled for down two. However, he hoped that West had only one fast entry, so he played on diamonds instead. As a result, he had to settle for four tricks, yielding 300 points to East-West.

Jewish Congress Attacks Alleged Nazi

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The World Jewish Congress concluded its first meeting in the Soviet bloc with strong criticism by an American Jewish leader of the Kremlin's treatment of Soviet Jews.

On Thursday, the last day of the two-day meeting, the congress also urged about 90 delegates attending from 30 nations to press for the extradition and prosecution of alleged Nazi war criminal Alois Brunner, who has lived in Syria since 1955.

U.S. delegate Menachem Rosensaft called Brunner "the most notorious living Nazi war criminal" and said he was responsible for deporting 125,000 Jews to Nazi death camps.

Rosensaft said he hoped Jews from the Soviet bloc, which has good relations with Syria, would exert pressure for extradition of the Austrian-born Brunner.

The U.S. delegate said Brunner was sentenced to death in a trial in absentia in France in 1954, and that arrest warrants are also out for him in Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Austria, Greece and Israel.

Jews from Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Bulgaria, Romania and host Hungary attended the meeting, and at least one Moscow rabbi and two other Soviet Jews were present as guests.

Some of them appeared discomfited by Thursday's dinner speech by Morris Abram, an American who is leader of the WJC's Presidents' Conference, an umbrella organization of American Jewish groups.

Abram insisted emigration is a fundamental human right, "otherwise a country is a hermetically sealed prison, not a home."

"I ask why should the Soviet Union be frightened to obey the law of nations with respect to emigration?" Abram said.

"Why should a state so great and powerful as the Soviet Union... be afraid of teachers teaching Hebrew," he continued. "Why should it be the only great power that is trying to force the assimilation of its Jewish community?"

Abram accompanied WJC President Edgar Bronfman on a recent trip to Moscow, which congress officials have said brought signs of progress on easing Soviet restrictions on Jewish culture.

Soviet Jewish emigration reached 717 last month, the highest monthly figure since 1981. But that figure was still far below the monthly average of over 4,000 in 1979, when 51,000 Jews emigrated.

Abram said he seeks lasting changes in emigration.

"We shall not be deceived by verbal assurances, or placated by highly publicized Soviet gestures designed to still protests until the Soviets get needed commercial and other agreements."

A dispute over Soviet Jewry emerged earlier Thursday when Czech Jews issued a statement objecting to Western campaigning on the issue.

"Organizing hysterical pressure drives from the outside does not contribute to a smooth settlement," the statement said.

In his speech, Abram lauded Hungary, which has 75,000 Jews, as an example of a Communist regime tolerating Jewish culture and allowing emigration to Israel.

Afghans Show Off Wreckage Of Plane Downed By U.S.-Backed Moslem Rebels

KHOST, Afghanistan (AP) — Officials of the Soviet-backed government escorted foreign journalists to the wreckage of a transport plane and said U.S.-backed Moslem guerrillas killed 36 civilians when they shot it down.

The communist government, in what appeared to be a costly public relations exercise, flew about 40 foreign reporters to Khost on Thursday.

The government called Pakistan, which provides staging grounds for the Afghan guerrillas, "a stooge of American imperialism." It accused Pakistani planes of repeatedly violating Afghan airspace and warned of "grave consequences" if the incursions continue.

"The 36 people included children and people going from Khost to Kabul for medical care," Brig. Gen. Ghulam Farouq said during a tour for 40 foreign journalists at this border town 95 miles southeast of Kabul.

Moslem guerrillas have said the AN-26, shot down Feb. 9 about five miles from the Khost airfield, was carrying 43 Afghan soldiers.

Farouq, commander of the Afghan army's 25th division and chief of the Khost garrison, said the plane bore military markings but that civil aviation had only nine planes and often used military transport.

Officials in Khost charged that 915 guerrillas were being trained in Pakistan to learn how to fire U.S.-supplied Stinger anti-aircraft missiles. They also accused Pakistan of violating Afghan airspace at least 20 times this year.

"All of these activities are testifying to the fact that the military regime of Pakistan as a stooge of American imperialism is impudently aggravating tension in the region," said a statement from the official Bakhtar information agency read to reporters in Khost.

The statement warned Pakistani President Gen. Zia ul-Haq of "grave consequences of such provocations," but did not provide details.

Western diplomats in Kabul said the journalists' trip to Khost portended increased pressure on Pakistan from Afghan leader Najib and his Soviet backers to cut support for the insurgents.

"We have seen much more of a squeeze put on Pakistan lately from the Soviets and Afghans, and it looks like this press operation is pointing out the justification for a sharp increase," said one diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"They've been bombing refugee centers and making phenomenal violations of Pakistani airspace, and it seems clear that we're heading for much more," the diplomat said.

Pakistan is engaged in U.N.-mediated peace talks with Afghanistan and has called for immediate removal of the estimated 115,000 Soviet troops that are helping the Kabul government fight the guerrillas. Red Army troops entered Afghanistan in 1979.

As they landed at the Khost airfield, the journalists' planes went down in sharp spirals and jettisoned flares every 1½ seconds to confuse the rebels' heat-seeking missiles.

Two helicopter gunships painted in green camouflage whirled overhead as military trucks took the reporters from the airfield over rutted dirt tracks to the crash site.

The swooping copters, an armed escort of about 50 Afghan troops and at least four rocket or mortar round explosions belied Afghan officials' claims that the Khost area had been pacified.

An elderly man who Afghan interpreters said was the father of one of the passengers killed said combat was a way of life in the Khost area.

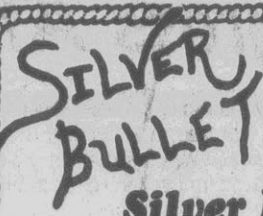

"It happens most of the time," he said, shielding his eyes from the strong noonday sun. "There are still rocket firings and encroachments."

Officials brought three young women dressed in traditional ankle-length veils to the crash site, where they wept in view of photographers and cameramen.

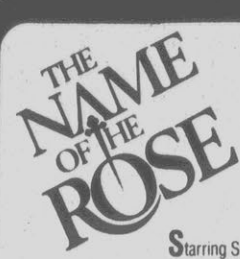

The Afghan government also has charged that Pakistani F-16s shot down another AN-26 carrying 34 civilians and five crew members on March 30 during a domestic Afghan flight. Pakistan said the plane was downed after it intruded into Pakistani airspace and refused to land.

At the tiny hamlet of Seluddinkala, the Afghans presented what they said was the wreckage of a U.S.-made Sidewinder missile fired over Afghanistan by a Pakistani F-16 on April 16.

The tail assembly of the 5-foot-long missile bore the number 10001-1555671 and the nose, which apparently contained the guidance system, was marked in English "Caution, Install Finger Tight Only."

Thatcher's Party Scores Big Gains In Local Elections

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party made a strong showing in municipal elections, making a June general election appear virtually certain.

As results of Thursday's elections for control of most of the cities and towns in England and Wales poured in before dawn today, the main opposition socialist Labor Party was the only party suffering a net loss of seats.

Labor retained control of the big cities of Birmingham and Manchester, but with a reduced share of the vote, and lost hundreds of seats on councils in surrounding metropolitan districts.

Even so, Labor wrested Liverpool back from the centrist Liberal Party.

About 11,000 seats were contested. With results declared from 288 of the 369 municipalities, a computer tally by the British domestic news agency Press Association showed the Conservatives with a net gain of 66 seats and the alliance of the Liberal Party and the Social Democratic Party with a net gain of 310. It said Labor had a net loss of 184.

A later British Broadcasting Corp. analysis of 323 municipalities showed the Conservatives with 102 cities and towns, including a net gain of four, and Labor with 100, a net loss of seven. The alliance had won eight districts, a net gain of four. The remaining districts were won by independents or had no one party in control.

Labor held up well in its north England heartlands. But the alliance and the Conservatives both cut deep into Labor territory in central England. In a stunning loss there, Labor forfeited Nottingham by one seat to Conservative control.

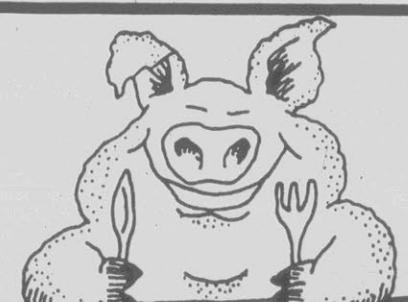

In the biggest blow to Conservatives, the party lost control of Cardiff. The Welsh capital was the Tories' only municipality in the principality, dominated by socialists and Welsh nationalists. Labor, which had set its sights on Cardiff, failed to win a majority, and the alliance held the power balance.

Before polling, the Conservatives controlled 126 of the 369 districts, Labor 110 and the alliance seven.

There were no ballots in London, Scotland or Northern Ireland, which hold local elections on a different timetable.

With an election looming, officials of all the parties said they were satisfied.

"We're perfectly pleased with what we've achieved. There's everything to play for in a general election," said Labor's campaign manager, Bryan Gould. "There's a gap that's closing."

Sakharov Relatives To Visit In Moscow

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Soviet authorities have given tentative approval for relatives of Andrei Sakharov to visit the Soviet dissident and his wife, Yelena Bonner, in Moscow, Bonner's daughter says.

"I have learned from my mother, with whom I spoke on Tuesday, that my request has been granted and that necessary papers will be sent to me," Tatiana Yankelevich said.

She said Soviet authorities have tentatively agreed to allow her, her two young children and her 86-year-old grandmother, Ruth Bonner, to travel to the Soviet Union on May 29 or shortly thereafter.

Ruth Bonner, who has been living with her granddaughter since 1980, plans to remain in the Soviet Union, she added.

"It has been her intention always to come back. She came (to the United States) as a visitor. She's a Soviet citizen. She doesn't need a visa to go back — it is her right," said Mrs. Yankelevich, who is an American citizen.

She said her grandmother waited to return to Russia until Soviet authorities last December allowed Sakharov and Yelena Bonner to return to Moscow from their banishment in the isolated Soviet city of Gorky.

Sakharov, a physicist who won a Nobel prize for his human rights activities, was exiled to the city, which is closed to foreigners, in 1980 for what authorities called anti-Soviet behavior. His wife was sent there in exile four years later after being convicted of slander.

Yelena Bonner returned to the Soviet Union last May after spending about six months at her daughter's home here. While in the United States she underwent a heart bypass operation and received treatment for an eye ailment.

"In terms of her heart, it seems she's feeling much better," Mrs. Yankelevich said of her mother. "But she has leg problems. Her arteries are not in good shape, so she cannot really walk well."

Mrs. Yankelevich said her mother plans to return to the United States in about a year for a medical checkup.

China Asks Japanese Journalist To Leave

BEIJING (AP) — A Japanese journalist has been asked to leave China for allegedly obtaining intelligence information illegally, sources said today.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Shuichi Henmi of Kyodo News Service was told by State Security Ministry officials that he had 10 days to leave China.

Henmi, 42, worked in Beijing from 1977 to 1980 and has been here since June 1984. He is fluent in Chinese and is one of the most experienced foreign reporters in China.

If expelled, he will be the third foreign journalist to be deported by China in the past year. A New York Times reporter was expelled last July for allegedly entering a restricted area, and a correspondent for the French news agency Agence France-Presse was deported in February for allegedly receiving internal documents.

The sources said two security officials visited Henmi at his home and took him to a police office. They told him he was guilty of stealing national intelligence documents and that he would not be detained if he left the country within 10 days.

The officials did not say what the documents were. Kyodo last January published details of several internal documents concerning the ouster of Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang and the campaign against "bourgeois liberalization."

Bourgeois liberalization is a catch phrase describing a drift away from communist principles.

Henmi last August was one of the first to report that a State Security Ministry official had defected to the West.

Kyodo had no immediate comment on the reported charges against Henmi. The Foreign Ministry also declined comment.

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO NOMINATE BY PETITION
The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is accepting nominations for County Committee elections for Pitt County. This notice is issued to inform eligible voters of the right to nominate candidates by petition. Copies of the petition and instructions on its completion can be obtained from your local FmHA office.

Persons nominated should be currently engaged in the operation of a farm, have principal farming operation within the County or area in which activities of the County or area Committee are carried out, derive the principal part of their income from farming (that is more than 50 percent of their gross income must come from agricultural production), be a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, not have an FmHA insured or guaranteed loan, and be well qualified for committee work. Nominations must be received in the Farmers Home Administration Office no later than June 10, 1987. FmHA committee elections are open to all eligible voters without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, political affiliation, marital status, sex, and/or handicap.

Your Port For Waterfront Living

Townhomes & Home Sites

Creating the perfect waterfront community was our goal as the developer of Pamlico Plantation. Waterfront living is a special kind of lifestyle and should reflect a special tranquility and an ease of living that's suited just for you. Pamlico Plantation is a community of townhomes and homesites gracing the banks of the beautiful Pamlico River and Broad Creek.

Overlooking the waterfront pool is a cedar lined club-house for entertaining and relaxing with friends. From the pool walk down the lighted dock to your own personal boat slip which comes complete with electricity and a portable pump station. There's also tennis and golf at arm's reach from your home at Pamlico Plantation.

Treat yourself to a special kind of lifestyle. Carolina waterfront living. Experience it at your port for waterfront living offered exclusively at...Pamlico Plantation.

A WEYERHAEUSER COMMUNITY

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending May 1.

House

TRADE BILL — By a vote of 290 for and 115 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a tough, retaliatory measure (HR 3) to help American industry and force cuts in the nation's trade deficit, which reached a record $170 billion in 1986.

Drafted by Democrats and denounced as protectionist by President Reagan, the 896-page bill limits the executive branch's ability to avoid retaliation in combatting trade imbalances and resolving complaints against a specific trading partner.

Also, the bill provides additional aid for laid-off workers and relief for import-battered industries, creates a competitiveness council to promote U.S. exports, tries to ease the Third World debt repayment problems, imposes certain 'Buy America' requirements and sets mechanisms to establish favorable currency exchange rates.

Supporter Jim Wright, D-Tex., said, "If you are really serious about wanting to improve America's competitiveness, here is your opportunity."

Opponent Willis Gradison, R-Ohio, warned, "If ever there was a case of false advertising it is to say we can cut the trade deficit by passing protectionist legislation."

Members voting yes favored the trade measure.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Martin Lancaster, D-3; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Howard Coble, R-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; Alex McMillan, R-9; Cass Ballenger, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

TO RETALIATE — By a vote of 218 for and 214 against, the House amended its trade bill (above) to require the government to force 10 percent annual reductions in U.S. trade deficits with nations judged to have used unfair tactics to build trade surpluses over America.

The internationally provocative Gephardt amendment was denounced as protectionist by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and lauded by the AFL-CIO as a strike for fair trade.

It would be triggered against countries such as Japan, South Korea and Taiwan if the intermediate steps of negotiation and limited retaliation failed to remove the countries' large surpluses or unfair practices. It replaced a less severe provision in the bill that stopped short of mandatory 10 percent reductions.

Sponsor Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said, "The bottom line is pressure" in dealing with formidable trading partners.

Opponent Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., called the amendment "too draconian to be effective."

Members voting yes wanted presidents to be able to force 10 percent annual cuts in the American trade deficit with certain countries.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Ballenger and Clarke.

Those voting no were Coble and McMillan.

GOP SUBSTITUTE — The House rejected, 156 for and 268 against, the Republican alternative to the Democratic-drafted trade bill (above).

The GOP endorsed the thrust of the bill but sought to strip it of specifics such as the Gephardt amendment requiring mandatory retaliation, 'Buy American' language, new disclosure requirements for foreign investors, provisions setting favorable exchange rates for the dollar and language creating new agencies to spur American competitiveness and ease the Third World debt repayment problem.

Members voting yes supported the GOP version of the sweeping trade bill.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Coble and McMillan.

Those voting no were Jones, Valentine, Lancaster, Price, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Ballenger and Clarke.

Senate

DEMOCRATIC BUDGET — By a vote of 50 for and 49 against, the Senate gave preliminary approval of the Democratic majority's version of the fiscal 1988 federal budget (S Con Res 49).

Although the vote was on a procedural issue, it signalled the Democratic budget blueprint will be approved when a final Senate vote occurs in early May.

The $1.1 trillion Democratic budget for the fiscal year beginning in October authorizes higher domestic spending than President Reagan wants, sets Pentagon spending at $13 billion less than the $297 billion requested by Reagan, and provides $18.5 billion in new revenue including about $11 billion in new taxes.

Regarding its projected deficit, Republicans accused Democrats of using creative bookkeeping to comply with the $108 billion in fiscal 1988 red ink permitted under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law.

Senators voting yes endorsed the Democrats' fiscal 1988 budget.

North Carolina Sen. Terry Sanford, D, voted yes. Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted no.

Buddha's Remains Exhibited In China

BELJING (AP) — Buddhist priests and nuns viewed rice grain-sized fragments of bone believed to be remains from the cremation of Buddha about 2,470 years ago.

"They are holy objects and a first-class, precious cultural relic," Huan Binzhong, deputy director of the Buddhist Cultural Relics Library, said Thursday after the bones went on display at a temple.

The bone fragments were displayed under a tiny plastic dome at the Guangji Temple, headquarters of the Buddhist Association of China. They were discovered six years ago, but the discovery wasn't announced until last week.

After Buddha, the founder of the Buddhism, was cremated, his remains were divided into eight portions and sent to different kingdoms of ancient India. A bundle was brought to China in 601 as a gift and put into a cave near Yunju Temple, southwest of the capital, where it was found.

"As relics, they are an invaluable find and underline how Buddhism was brought to China (from India)," said Peng Siqi, deputy director of the Beijing Bureau of Museums and Archaeological Data. "Along with Buddha's teeth, they are the most important relics to Buddhism."

Objects purported to be Buddha's teeth are in Sri Lanka and in a pagoda in western Beijing.

Authorities did not announce the discovery of the bone fragments for six years because they needed to "put everything in order and conduct extensive research on it," Peng said.
