Missile Attack Kills 28 Aboard U.S. Ship

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon said today that 28 servicemen were killed in the Iraqi attack Sunday on an American naval vessel. The White House said the Iraqi government has expressed great regret and promised a full account.

White House spokesman Dan Howard said the Iraqis "haven't accepted responsibility as yet" for the attack on the frigate Stark, which has a crew of 200. "They have suggested an immediate investigation involving the U.S.," Howard said, adding that the promise was delivered orally by Iraqi ambassador Nizar Hamdoun in Washington.

"There is nothing to change our original assessment that it was inadvertent," Howard said, adding that the United States has received condolences from Saudi Arabia and other states in the Persian Gulf region.

Iraq said President Saddam Hussein had ordered a "serious investigation" to determine if the Iraqi air force was responsible.

"The United States regards this attack with great seriousness," Secretary of State George P. Shultz said hours after the guided-missile attack.

The official Iraqi News Agency quoted an unidentified foreign ministry spokesman as urging U.S. officials to exercise "patience" until the investigation is completed. The spokesman insisted Iraq would "publicly announce the results of the investigation and apologize with sorrow" if its air force was behind the attack.

At mid-morning in Washington, Arthur Berger, a State Department press officer, says 25 servicemen, originally listed as missing, were found dead in one compartment of the ship where there had been "an intensive fire."

Berger said of the questions put to Iraq: "We are awaiting an explanation." There was no immediate indication whether the ship had detected the incoming missiles or tried to take evasive or defensive action.

"We have our defenses (on board), yes," Sims said. "But this is very difficult to defend against if you don't expect anything."

At the Stark's Florida home port, the ship's ombudsman and a chaplain were waiting with families of several crew members for word on the fate of their loved ones.

Chief Petty Officer Art Riccio, a Navy spokesman, quoted the chaplain, whom he would not identify, as saying:

"They (the families) are both frightened and tired and fearful whether or not they will be happy or sad at the end of this ordeal. The silence hurts."

The attack was the first to involve an American warship since the Iran-Iraq war began almost seven years ago.

It was the deadliest attack on a ship in the history of the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

It was not, however, the first time an American ship in the Middle East has been caught in regional hostilities. In 1967, Israel launched an air and sea attack on an unarmed U.S. intelligence ship, the Liberty, killing 34 servicemen and injuring 171.

U.S., Soviet Union Share Goal To Keep Gulf Free

By NABILA MEGALLI
Associated Press Writer

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are in the rare position of sharing a common goal — freedom of navigation in the Persian Gulf — and have run into common problems.

The American guided-missile frigate USS Stark was hit Sunday night by one and possibly two missiles fired by Iraqi warplanes near Qatar, the Pentagon said.

A day earlier, the Soviet tanker Marshal Chuikov hit a sea mine near Kuwait. On May 6, Iranian Revolutionary Guardsmen in a speedboat attacked a Soviet freighter with rocket propelled grenades.

The United States and Soviet Union have vowed separately to protect tanker lanes in the Persian Gulf from attacks by warring Iraqi and Iranian forces.

However, neither Soviet nor American officials have said in precise terms what their response would be to attacks on shipping, including their own.

One-fifth of the non-communist world's oil supplies and two-thirds of world oil exports pass through the gulf and its sole southern outlet, the Strait of Hormuz.

Iran repeatedly has said it will strike at will against any ships in the gulf, including those of the superpowers. But neither the attack on the Stark nor the mine blast that damaged the Marshal Chuikov was blamed on Iran.

A News Analysis

The Stark belongs to a seven-unit U.S. task force that patrols the gulf. The Soviets have two warships in gulf waters and two nearby in the Indian Ocean. British and French warships also patrol the Persian Gulf.

U.S. officials in Washington said the Stark was hit by an "accidental strike" in a case of mistaken identity. And Kuwait-based Soviet diplomats said the mine had strayed to neutral waters from the Iran-Iraq war zone.

Gulf-based maritime salvage and shipping sources initially construed the attack on the Stark as an Iranian act, a suicidal attack by a bomb-laden speedboat similar to the May 6 attack on the Soviet freighter.

"Never did the Iraqis attack (ships) in the central sector of the gulf," said one marine salvage officer, whose radio monitors scan the gulf carefully. "We still are baffled why the Stark was hit by the Iraqis and not by the Iranians. It is rather hard for us shipping people to buy Washington's contention."

The 67,980-ton Marshal Chuikov, jolted by the floating mine 35 miles from Kuwait Saturday night, was one of three Soviet tankers leased to Kuwait. The lease was part of a broader Kuwaiti bid to ensure superpower protection of its shipping against an increasing incidence of Iranian attacks.

The official Soviet news agency Tass blamed neither Iraq nor Iran for the mine, which its said drifted southward from the war zone of the northern gulf belligerents, who have been at war since September 1980.

Fishing boats in Kuwait, the country closest to the war zone, and commercial ships further south have been victim of sea mines.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy visited the region last week and discussed plans to register 11 of Kuwait's 21 tanks in the United States so they can carry the American flag, giving them U.S. warship protection.

Murphy said the United States would take the "necessary measures" to secure freedom of navigation for its vessels in the gulf. He assured Iraq and the other Arab gulf states of President Reagan's desire to protect free shipping and bring the Iran-Iraq war to an end.

Jews, Arabs Also Covered High Court Expands Civil Rights Protections

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, significantly expanding the scope of civil rights legislation, ruled today that federal civil rights laws aimed primarily at helping blacks may also protect Jews and Arabs against discrimination.

The court, in two unanimous decisions, in effect said that race may involve more than skin pigment.

In one case, the court cleared the way for a suit by an Arab who said he was denied tenure on a Pennsylvania college faculty because of racial discrimination.

In the second case, the court reinstated a suit by a Jewish congregation in Silver Spring, Md., against vandals who defaced a synagogue with anti-Semitic and Nazi-type slogans and symbols.

Justice Byron R. White, writing for the court, said a post-Civil War law designed primarily to protect blacks also was designed to help other ethnic groups.

"We have little trouble in concluding that Congress intended to protect from discrimination identifiable classes of persons who are subjected to intentional discrimination solely because of their ancestry or ethnic characteristics," he said.

"Such discrimination is racial discrimination that Congress intended (the law) to forbid, whether or not it would be classified as racial in terms of modern scientific theory," he said.

White said, moreover, that an Arab or a Jew may be subject to discrimination even if he or she does not have a distinct ethnic appearance.

"A distinctive physiognomy is not essential to qualify" for protection under the civil rights law, he said. For example, White said, discrimination may be based on the fact that someone is born an Arab. White said that while Arabs and Jews today are considered members of the Caucasian race, they are still entitled to legal protection because they were considered to be distinct races at the time the legislation was enacted.

In the Arab case, Majid Ghaidan Al-Khazraji had been an associate professor at St. Francis College of Loretto, Pa., for more than five years when he was denied tenure in 1978.

Air Force Sending Plane For Wounded

By GEORGE BOEHMER
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The U.S. Air Force has sent a plane with a 24-member medical team to pick up sailors injured in the Iraqi missile attack on the USS Stark in the Persian Gulf, military officials said today.

"A C141 transport plane with doctors and nurses has been dispatched to the region, I assume Bahrain, as a contingency," Navy Cmdr. Gerry Ryan told The Associated Press.

There was no immediate word on where the injured would be taken.

A spokesman for the U.S. Air Force at Wiesbaden, 24 miles west of Frankfurt, said the plane left Rhein-Main Air Base at 5:15 a.m. A base spokesman, Senior Airman Jeff Mulcahy, said the plane carried a 24-member surgical and trauma team.

The Pentagon said today 28 crew members were killed and 21 were injured after at least one and possibly two Iraqi Exocet missiles struck the Stark on Sunday night near Qatar.

Ryan, of the U.S. European Command located near Stuttgart, said it was not yet known if any of the injured would be flown to West Germany, or if they would be taken to another location.

In the past, U.S. victims of bombings and hijackings from the Middle East have been flown to West Germany for treatment at military hospitals.

Burn victims are usually taken to the U.S. Army's hospital in Landstuhl in the southern part of the country, and others to the U.S. Air Force's hospital in Wiesbaden.

Fiji Has Control Struggle

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — The governor general and an army colonel both claimed today that they were the legitimate leader of Fiji, whose month-old elected government was ousted last week in the South Pacific's first coup.

Governor General Ratu Sir Penaia Ganilau issued a statement over the army-controlled radio saying coup leader Lt. Col. Sitiveni Rabuka had acknowledged Ganilau's right to assume executive power, and had urged him to remain in his position.

But within 30 minutes, Rabuka read a statement on the same station saying Ganilau had sworn him in Sunday night as chairman of the new regime's Council of Ministers and planned to swear in the 16 other ministers Tuesday.

The power struggle broke into the open today as demonstrations continued against Thursday's coup.

Shopkeepers around the country, most of whom are ethnic Indians, closed their shops in protest, and 3,000 people gathered in downtown Suva to pray for a return to democracy. Banks shut down because of a run on the Fijian dollar.

Last Thursday, Rabuka arrested Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra and his Cabinet and suspended the constitution, saying he wanted to end communal violence sparked by April 11 elections that established a government dominated for the first time by ethnic Indians.

Ethnic Fijians comprise 47 percent of the population of 715,000 in this South Pacific island nation, while Indians account for 49 percent. Until the election, ethnic Fijians always

Legislators Quicken Pace As Cutoff Deadline Nears

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The pace of the General Assembly has hit a fever pitch the past few weeks, something one lawmaker says has led to a "pass now, think later" philosophy.

Legislative committees, generously laden with bills filed before an April 30 introduction deadline, last week turned up the heat with an eye on May 28, when bills that haven't passed one house will die. Two early casualties will likely be bills to make either the collard or the yam North Carolina's official vegetable.

"That deadline, I'll tell you, it's killing everybody," said Rep. Dan DeVane, D-Hoke, whose House Committee on Water and Air Resources has put some low-level radioactive waste bills on a back burner to consider environmental measures that haven't passed the House.

Tough issues are clogging dozens of committees and those bills that make it to the House or Senate floor have meant lawmakers remain in session longer than usual for this time in a session. This week, the House will convene at 3:30 p.m. Monday — 4½ hours before its usual Monday start. And House Finance Chairman George Miller, D-Durham, gave notice Tuesday's committee meeting will be at 8 a.m. instead of the usual 8:30.

Although the May 28 deadline has not been tried before, many legislative observers predict it may have the desired impact of shortening the session once this mid-session rush is over.

There may even be time for bills the Senate passed in the early doldrums to make milk the state beverage and the shad boat the state boat.

"I'm not gonna worry about it (the vegetable bill) getting past one house," said Sen. R.L. Martin, D-Pitt, sponsor of the collard bill and chairman of the Senate Manufacturing and Labor Committee. "I'm getting more concerned now with workman's compensation bills and things like that. I don't have as much time for a little horseplay right now."

Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston, the yam advocate, agreed the state vegetable issue is dead, saying he had only offered his substitute "as a hedge" against possible enactment of the collard bill.

THE BEST TOOLS FOR YOU

Two of the best tools you can use to maintain good oral hygiene are a toothbrush and dental floss. There are many varieties of these on the market.

You can buy dental floss either waxed or unwaxed. Which is better? Most dentists recommend unwaxed floss because it's more efficient in removing bacteria from teeth. But people whose teeth are very tightly-spaced may find it better to use the waxed floss because it will penetrate more easily.

There's a lot of variety in toothbrushes. They come in different shapes and with bristles that are soft, medium, or hard. Among the most recommended is a brush with soft, multi-tufted, round-end bristles. There are also narrow "periodontal" toothbrushes with two rows of soft bristles for better gum care.

Some people prefer an electric toothbrush, especially those whose hands are handicapped by arthritis. Whether you use manual toothbrush or electric, the best advice as to style and design will come from your dentist.

Call our office for an appointment to get your teeth cleaned. Let our hygienist talk with you about the proper way to brush and floss.

Note: We invite all participants of the Blue Cross/Blue Shield personal care plan to come by our office. We are a member of Cost Care.

Zoning Panel Gets Boundary Proposal

A request by the Planning and Development Department to amend the extraterritorial boundary and zone 140 acres to MD-7 heads the list of items to be discussed by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night.

MD-7 is a district providing for low density residential development. Agriculture uses are also permitted.

The property, located between state roads 1204 and 1202, represents the area the Pitt County Board of Commissioners voted to include within Greenville's planning and zoning jurisdiction.

The commission will also consider a request by C.J.L. Co. (Ralph Tucker Jr.) to rezone a 31.8-acre tract located south of Meeting House Branch and east of N.C. 43 east from residential-agricultural to medium density single family residential.

Commissioners will hear a request by Immanuel Baptist Church to amend the Zoning Ordinance by adding a provision that would allow a percentage reduction in the minimum front, side and rear setbacks for churches when they are permitted in a residential zoning district.

The board will also hear a request by Bill Clark Construction Co. to annex approximately 4.4 acres located on Quail Ridge Road; a request by Mercer Ward Simmons to annex about 2.3 acres located off the southern right-of-way of N.C. 43 west, east of Jehovah's Witness Church, and a request by Ralph C. Tucker Jr. to annex about 4.6 acres located west of Tuckahoe subdivision.

The areas are not contiguous to the city limits.

The panel will discuss a preliminary plat of Cypress Glen Villas, Phase I, the Land Use Planning Committee, and requests to close the unimproved portions of Candlewood Drive, Oakdale Road, and a public alley located off the north right-of-way of Ione Street.

The proposed Planning and Zoning Commission's revised rules of procedure will also be presented to commissioners at the meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor council chambers of City Hall, located on the corner of Washington and Fifth streets.

FAA Says New Computer Means Airlines Can Keep Rush Schedules

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says its new computer system will enable it to ease dangerous congestion without reducing rush hour flights scheduled at major airports, The New York Times reported today.

The Times said the new system put into effect Sunday can show coast-to-coast air traffic on one screen and is designed to cut down on delays and increase safety.

Last week, the National Transportation Safety Board warned of an impending air safety crisis and called for FAA cutbacks in the number of rush-hour flights arriving and departing at major airports.

John Ryan, the FAA's director of air traffic operations, said cutting flights won't be necessary. "Rather than cutting airline schedules, we can do something else that's more scientific," he said.

The new equipment can show every airplane flying under the jurisdiction of the control system on a single radar display.

Managers at the FAA command center in Washington, D.C., can also focus on sections of airspace where a rush of flights is occurring or is expected, the Times said.

The new system is designed to allow managers to prevent or ease traffic jams by slowing or re-routing flights or by ordering longer intervals between takeoffs, the report said.

By September, the FAA hopes to be able to predict two hours or more in advance when a jam might develop, the Times said.

John G. Richardson, acting manager of the headquarters control center in Washington, D.C., told the Times that by mid-afternoon Sunday, managers had closely monitored three heavily traveled airspace sectors for one-hour periods.

Tentative plans to send some flights on slightly longer routes that bypass congested sectors and to lower some shorter flights' altitudes may go into effect this week, he told the Times.

Plans for the new system were drawn up in October 1985 and programming the computer began early last year, the newspaper said.

Radar data from the 20 FAA regional centers are fed into the new control room in Washington, which will operate 16 hours a day, the report said.

Satellite weather pictures are superimposed on the new traffic pictures to help managers decide whether to send flights around bad weather.

Managers in Washington can use a keyboard to punch up the national air traffic display, or that of any of the 20 regional zones, or even one airport, the Times said.

Ex-HEW Secretary Wilbur Cohen Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wilbur J. Cohen, a New Deal Democrat and one of the creators of the Social Security system, died of an undisclosed illness, his family said. He was 74.

Cohen died Sunday in Seoul, Korea, where he was attending a conference, his son said. His wife was unable to revive him from his sleep, according to Bruce Cohen of Silver Spring, Md., a Washington suburb.

Cohen was a prominent New Deal Democrat who worked for the Committee on Economic Security that drafted the Social Security program 52 years ago. He worked behind the scenes with sympathetic congressmen years later to help win passage of disability benefits over the Eisenhower administration's opposition.

He was HEW secretary from 1968 to 1969 in the waning days of the Johnson administration. He had served previously as undersecretary and assistant secretary.

Cohen was the co-chairman of Save Our Security, a coalition of several dozen senior citizens' groups, labor union, civil rights organizations and social welfare organizations, to lobby against cuts in benefits.

He also taught at the University of Texas at Austin at the Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Bruce Cohen said his father was in Seoul for a conference on aging and welfare for the elderly in collaboration with Yeungnam University and the University of Michigan.

He is survived by his wife, Eloise Bittel of Austin; and two other sons, Christopher of Chicago, and Stuart of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Court Says Workers Shielded From Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families of military personnel killed on duty may not sue allegedly negligent federal employees who took part in the military mission, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-4 vote, the justices said a 1950 Supreme Court decision barring members of the armed services from suing over injuries suffered "incident to service" also shields non-military government employees from being sued.

"Even if military negligence is not specifically alleged ... a suit based upon service-related activity necessarily implicates the military judgments and decisions that are inextricably intertwined with the conduct of the military mission," Justice Lewis F. Powell wrote for the court.

He said allowing armed services members to sue non-military federal employees "could undermine the commitment essential to effective service and thus have the potential to disrupt military discipline in the broadest sense of the word."

Writing for the four dissenters, Justice Antonin Scalia accused the court of wrongly extending the scope of its 1950 decision.

The dissenters said the 1950 decision, in a case called Feres vs. United States, was a mistake that has caused "unfairness and irrationality."

The case decided today was sparked by the 1982 death of Horton Johnson, a Coast Guard helicopter pilot in Hawaii whose aircraft crashed while he searched for a boat lost in a storm.

Johnson had requested and received radar assistance from Federal Aviation Administration air traffic controllers because of poor visibility during the storm.

Johnson's widow, Frieda Joyce Johnson, sued the FAA air traffic controllers under the Federal Tort Claims Act, alleging that they negligently guided the helicopter.

A federal trial judge in Miami threw out the lawsuit, citing the 1950 Supreme Court decision.

But the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reinstated the lawsuit, saying the 1950 ruling only bars those suits that would require scrutiny of military decisions or would compromise the authority of military commanders.

Today's decision reversed the 11th Circuit court's ruling, and killed Mrs. Johnson's lawsuit.

Direction Needed

Finding almost universal agreement on any topic is a rarity among North Carolina legislators, but observers tell us our lawmakers almost universally agree that financing for AIDS education and studies must be handled during this session.

They disagree widely on the need for mandatory testing.

In mid-April there were 207 AIDS cases confirmed in North Carolina. The epidemic has killed at least 137 North Carolinians since 1983 and there is a projection that 1,200 cases will be reported in the state by 1992.

Figures like those make legislators believe they have no time for delay. They want no part of the kind of problems California has encountered.

The first North Carolina AIDS bill, requiring premarital testing for the virus, was introduced in the House last February. Now there are 10. They call for mandatory testing of the blood of engaged couples, food handlers, prisoners and convicted prostitutes; they also call for educating school-age children about safe sex and AIDS prevention, and for expanding the powers of state health officials to restrict activities of AIDS victims.

In almost any other deadly communicable disease, extensive testing of the population would probably represent the first choice of weapons to gain a measure of control. Not this time. Testing remains important but the experts warn (and as most of us have read) present tests are not dependable. Too, officials fear mandatory testing could drive away the high-risk people who really need them, and testing the low-risk population would find few "positives" (most of them false), says one pathologist.

That makes education the basic tool that may help in this particular health problem. It's a frail reed to depend upon when one considers past experience in health and sex education at home or in the schools, and attendant results. The feeling of futility is further underlined on remembering there is no known cure for this plague.

If attainable priorities could be adopted, a cure would be at the top; on the next-best list, a dependable test. Lacking both, there's no alternative but giving the education route our best shot with continuing efforts in other directions.

There is nothing simple about the AIDS problem.

Distinctions

For the record, North Carolina's executive director of the Governor's Waste Management Board is upset over the way reporters and the public often use the word "dump" as a generic term referring to almost any and all facilities that handle hazardous or radioactive wastes.

She (Linda W. Little) observes that there are various kinds of waste facilities that handle specific kinds of waste.

Since waste disposal is becoming an increasingly important subject in today's world it seems appropriate to note those differences.

Solid waste, for example, includes sewage, municipal refuse and household trash taken to the county dumps.

Hazardous wastes are usually chemicals that are toxic, reactive, corrosive or flammable but not radioactive. A search is now going on for a place to put a state hazardous waste treatment facility and possible sites have been identified in 41 counties.

Low-level radioactive wastes include contaminated rags, clothing and other materials used in research plus liquids, control rods and other refuse from nuclear power plants. A regional facility is being sought in North Carolina for use of the eight-state Southeast Compact after a landfill in Barnwell, S.C. closes.

High level radioactive waste includes spent fuel rods from nuclear plants and material used in making nuclear bombs.

Now you know.

Cowboys From The Start

WASHINGTON — Congress has zeroed in on the sordid process of the Reagan administration's Nicaragua policy while aid was banned in 1984-86, but it has paid too little attention to what Robert McFarlane said this week about the origins of the administration's involvement in 1981-82.

It all began, the former national security adviser said, with the administration's delay in getting its foreign policy act together and in installing the president's preferred model of Cabinet government while Alexander Haig was serving as Reagan's first secretary of state. At a time when there had been no "thorough and concerted analysis of our Nicaraguan problem" and in a "policy vacuum," McFarlane said, the CIA made its pitch and the administration was off and running with covert support for the contras.

We have seen how President Reagan, meeting Cabinet resistance to his Iran policy and congressional resistance to his Nicaragua policy, turned to a handy and pliant instrument, the National Security Council staff, after 1984. The McFarlane admission is even more telling. He is suggesting that, much earlier, before the administration was fairly in gear, the president accepted a half-baked covert-action plan and mortgaged his policy to an ardent but woefully inadequate initiative from which he has never recovered.

McFarlane is too much the loyal staff officer to put it this way, but others might say Reagan was playing the cowboy from the start.

What was wrong with covert action in Nicaragua from this conservative standpoint? Here McFarlane, soggy in so much of his testimony, was incisive. With Reagan he had accepted the (dubious) proposition that the United States had an immense strategic stake in repelling the Soviet-supported Marxist regime in Nicaragua. By turning early to covert action, however, the administration short-circuited the altogether healthy requirement to work up a coherent policy and to generate the necessary support for it. It was a defect that the catchup Kissinger Commission of 1983 could only partially remedy.

This is how the administration got the worst of both worlds: its end was contested and, as word of it spread, its means were contested — a sure recipe for frustration.

McFarlane thinks that Congress properly sees covert action as something to be used selectively, "as an adjunct of policy, not as its foundation, and surely not as a vehicle for waging war with a Soviet proxy." Afghanistan is perhaps an exception, but surely McFarlane's basic rule about selectivity is sound.

McFarlane also correctly identified another deep disadvantage of covert action: for the United States to engage a Soviet client state in which the Kremlin is making a heavy investment takes solid public and congressional backing, yet by going the covert route a president is inhibited from rallying the support he needs.

After Congress cut off contra aid in the fall of 1984, McFarlane now indicates, he was ready to accept the verdict on grounds that the contras had not demonstrated political appeal or military competence and faced additional "uncertain" conditions.

His new policy preference, however, reveals a fundamental flaw in the "Reagan Doctrine," the administration's global policy of encouraging local guerrillas to fight the Soviet-connected regimes set up in the Third World during the 1970s. The dilemma is what to do when one of our horses falters.

In the case of Nicaragua, Congress meant to block one option by preventing the commitment of more resources. Conservatives were hardly ready to throw in the towel. For McFarlane, the answer was, he told Congress, "changing our strategy to a more overt combination of U.S. force and U.S. diplomacy." Instead, Reagan went with Ollie North.

McFarlane now presents himself as, in high policy matters anyway, conscientious and thoughtful. But if he is telling us that at some point he and perhaps others recommended direct American intervention, then it is evident that he was more rigid and ideological than the supposedly rigid and ideological Reagan, who, if he ever did receive advice to Americanize the war, had the immense good sense to spurn it. Reagan was a cowboy, but not a complete cowboy. He didn't want a second Cuba, but he also didn't want a second Vietnam.

Gorbachev's Clever Inside Moves

MOSCOW — Kremlin insiders acknowledge privately that Mikhail Gorbachev really wants a summit with President Reagan, suggesting that he hopes to ease East-West relations and tranquilize the U.S. and its European allies while he pushes his economic reforms.

Asked the direct question whether Gorbachev "needs a period of U.S.-Soviet relaxation," a top policy-maker seemed to bridle. "Why do you put it that way?" he asked. But moments later he told us: "We would welcome some relaxation."

A Reagan-Gorbachev summit would usher in just such a period, sure to be labelled Detente II. That would not only give the ambitious Soviet leader running room for his economic reconstruction, called (SET ITAL) perestroika. (END ITAL) It would also enable a highly-activist Soviet foreign policy to intensify its drive toward Moscow's ultimate objective: persuade Western Europe, particularly West Germany, to move away from the U.S.

In the secret confines of the Politburo and its Central Committee Secretariat, where all policy decisions are made, several new Soviet moves may now be under consideration to advance Detente II and the NATO-splitting strategy that would follow.

Move No. 1 is the summit itself, a guaranteed narcotic equally desired by the American president to distract attention from the revelations of the Iran-contra investigation. A successful summit that confirmed the first actual destruction and reduction of nuclear missiles would set the European peace pot boiling. U.S.-Soviet "peace" might also become the political Holy Grail in the 1988 presidential campaign, especially if the Reagan-Gorbachev summit also wrote guidelines covering strategic and chemical weapons or new controls over nuclear testing.

That would position Gorbachev to a follow-up advance guaranteed to flutter hearts all across Europe: withdrawal of those two divisions occupying Czechoslovakia ever since the 1968 Soviet invasion obliterated the Prague Spring.

No hard decisions are known to have been taken in the Kremlin, but the forthcoming Warsaw Pact meetings would set an ideal stage for such a preemptive "peace" move. It would announce to European peace blocs that the bad old days of direct Soviet interventions into its Eastern European empire had been terminated by Mikhail Gorbachev.

A third move — not likely in the immediate future but believed to be under long-range Kremlin study — would be baiting the Berlin Wall hook. Erected in 1961 to block the massive East German exodus into West Germany, the Wall is perhaps the foremost symbol of the Cold War and East-West enmity.

Strength For Today

Road maintenance crews repairing streets or roads seldom shut down arteries of traffic entirely. Instead they repair one section at a time, always leaving a lane of traffic open so that the commercial life of the area can go on as usual.

The repair of lives, when damaged by some unfortunate circumstance, should be carried on in the same way. We should try to solve our problems in such a way that the stream of traffic is not interrupted by what we are doing. It is terrible indeed when one adjoins purposeful living for a time because of sorrow or disappointment — because of something which has roughed life up for a while and made the going hard.

Do your repairing on the side. Keep at least one lane carrying the stream of your life experience open at all times.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Senate Bill 502, titled State Retirement Not Marital Property, was introduced into our North Carolina General Assembly the 17th of April, 1987 by Senators Swain, Harris, and Winner. If this bill is passed it will be economically detrimental to discarded spouses of state employees.

In 1983 the Equitable Distribution Act was passed in North Carolina and pensions were included as marital property to be divided with the total marital property after a divorce. Now, four years later, the spouse discards want to rescind this legislation which protects their dependent spouses.

The high divorce rate in the United States correlates with No Fault Divorce laws, which were passed in almost every state in the union in the 70s and 80s, unbeknownst to most women. Now the marriage contract offers little protection for an economically dependent spouse and allows the supporting spouse to act in any manner he/she chooses, resulting in wide scale discarding of no longer wanted spouses. An unwanted divorce must be accepted — based solely on a year's separation. The main concern of the divorce courts is the finding and division of assets. The pension often represents the largest asset of the wage earning spouse and is needed to buy a younger, fresher model, but the discarded spouse also needs a portion of the pension as she/he has often sublimated her/his career to that of the state employee and has no pension.

Submissions to the Public Forum should consist of no more than 300 words and should deal with public issues. The editor reserves the right to cut longer letters. Signatures and phone numbers should be included on all letters.

The state retirement system is mostly supported by you the taxpayer. Please contact your representative in the state government and have them vote against S502. Thank you.

To the editor:

In the aftermath of the Gary Hart event, may I tell you what I as an American citizen have always expected of the press:

- that it be objective
- that it be thoughtful
- that it take no part in the news it reports
- that it understand its place in the American democratic process
- that it not usurp the power of the voter
- that it hold its power carefully, responsibly — even fearfully
- that its motives be beyond question
- that it understand the trust Americans must place in it in order to make responsible decisions
- and that, when the trust is lost, it is never fully regained.

As an American citizen, I expect a lot of the press ... yet, perhaps, not so very much.

Hearings Prompt Many Questions

Analysis

WASHINGTON — Two weeks of Iran-contra congressional hearings have provided intriguing answers to the famous political question, what did the president know and when did he know it? In short, Ronald Reagan knew a lot — and from the beginning.

What has not been answered is the critical question largely untouched by the two select committees investigating the affair. That is: did Reagan know of and authorize the diversion of funds from arms sales to Iran to the contras? Throughout, the president has maintained that he did not. He repeated that assertion once more Friday in a news conference with out-of-town editors and reporters.

Since the Iran-contra affair erupted into a scandal last November, the White House has sought to make that one question the only significant one about Ronald Reagan. But these two weeks of hearings have raised many others that members of Congress and the public may think demand answers.

The picture that has emerged thus far reinforces Inouye's opening characterization of the Iran-contra scandal as "a sad and sordid" story that will be deeply disturbing to the American people.

Ironically, it was Reagan, not witnesses and congressional investigators, who best described the significance of information divulged during the first two weeks.

"He called to say that he had watched the hearings and he had thought that they showed, shed more light on this issue than all of the previous efforts put together," McFarlane testified Thursday, describing a phone call he received Tuesday night from the president.

For nearly six months the president has professed to be largely in the dark about what happened and why. "I am still waiting as are others to find out some of those answers," he said again yesterday at his news conference. He has made similar remarks repeatedly since November.

Yet the single most significant aspect of the voluminous record being compiled on Capitol Hill is that Reagan was far more directly involved and informed about the events that led to the most politically-charged congressional inquiry since Watergate 14 years ago. Each day of the hearings has brought fresh detail about the president's involvement and participation — and has afforded revealing insights into his thinking.

He has been shown to have talked personally in the White House with Saudi Arabia's King Fahd about Saudi multi-million-dollar contributions to the contras — but denied that meant he had solicited funds for the contras from any foreign country.

He approved a covert U.S. operation — never reported to Congress as required by law — using U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency employees, CIA money and a so-called "reverse diversion" of contra funds to ransom American hostages held in Lebanon. Friday, he said: "I am having some trouble remembering that." He also said he didn't "recall ever anything being suggested in the line of ransom."

He interceded personally with the president of Honduras to release a shipment of arms for the contras that had been seized by Honduran military officials. And he was, on the testimony of McFarlane, briefed "dozens of times" about the Central American situation, a subject of major presidential priority, according to the testimony.

Reagan, again in McFarlane's account, also took a "more liberal interpretation" of Boland Amendment congressional prohibitions against direct or indirect U.S. aid to the contras. As McFarlane put it Thursday, amplifying earlier testimony:

"What I intended was to reflect that in our conversations, the president often noted his belief that the tradition in the United States of helping 'freedom fighters,' as he referred to them, was very clear, and he thought entirely legal. He would refer occasionally to the volunteers that fought in the Spanish Civil War in the '30s, referred to others that have gone overseas to fight before we were formally at war, joined other countries' armed forces and said that he believed that this tradition — it goes all the way back to our own revolution and the assistance we got from the French — is one that we should... identify with and support. But that is not to say that he urged or in any way authorized me or anyone else to take any illegal activity..."

All of this depicts a different Reagan than that widely held before the hearings began. They provide what Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., described as "a portrayal of a president that's not disengaged, as suggested by the Tower report, but a president who had the information before him, who understood the risk, but who... had the strength to make a decision that... proved to be very unpopular, in pursuing what he felt was right for the country."

Much more than Reagan's role has been highlighted in the Hill testimony. The hearings have also demolished the administration's contention last fall that Oliver North appeared to have been acting alone in carrying out his many secret missions to help the contras "hold body and soul together."

The highest levels of the American government were deeply and officially involved in helping North arrange and finance the secret private network employed to ship arms to Iran and resupply the contras with cash and weapons. In this, the testimony of retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord was especially illuminating.

Secord, who said at one point "I was basically in a receive mode," funneled millions of dollars into and out of Swiss bank accounts and engaged private operators without U.S. security clearances on sensitive government-backed missions.

Family Farm Income Expected To Hold Steady

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A recent farming study indicates a financial turnaround is coming, but one agricultural expert says the family farm outlook across North Carolina may not improve much this year.

Steve Sutter with the Agricultural Extension Service at North Carolina State University said he doesn't expect the farming picture to improve this year, even with cooperative weather.

"Due to the drawdown of inventories of stored crops and feed, the net income picture may not improve much in 1987, regardless of the weather," he said.

Sutter said the modern farmer has to be a good planner and a person willing to study management tools like computerization, marketing techniques, insurance and employee relations.

"Some of our better farm operators are also some of our better managers," Sutter said.

He says the state will continue to lose farm businesses in 1987 because of farmers' inability to meet scheduled principal payments, interest expense, taxes and equipment replacement needs."

On the up side, despite last year's record drought that wiped out crops, animals and some producers, detailed financial records from 50 North Carolina farms indicate that growers who survived actually improved their net farm income over 1985.

"Government payments and crop insurance were factors in the 1986 improvement," Sutter said.

Sutter said the 50 farms used in the study were volunteers who participate in a fee-paying record-keeping service sponsored by the university.

"The farmers in this sample have operations that are larger than the state average, carry heavier debt loads than the average farmer and have at least average management skills," Sutter said. "You might appropriately call them survivors, because most of them have been under considerable financial pressure in recent years and have managed to stay in business."

The study showed that crop farms averaged $153,474 in revenue last year and $125,126 in cash operating expense. Depreciation averaged $16,393, which yields a cash margin before adjusting for change in value of inventories of crops and supplies of $11,995.

That was more than $20,000 better than a similar sample in 1985, which showed a net farm income of negative $9,928. Crops farms in 1986 received an average of $14,674 in government payments and $1,332 in crop insurance.

Hog farms in the sample made even more progress, due largely to higher market prices and cheaper feed. They averaged $280,093 in revenue, $229,218 in cash operating expenses and $29,334 in depreciation expenses.

Hog farms showed a 12 percent increase in revenues, but Sutter said there is no guarantee those revenues will continue to increase.

"Hog prices are cyclical," Sutter said. "Hog farmers in the next year or two may become hard-pressed again as they were several years ago."

Financial records indicate the classic family farm, where husband, wife and children work together, is fading fast, Sutter said.

"There is a good deal of off-farm income farmers are having to get, primarily by having their spouse work off the farm," Sutter said.

"This has provided family living expenses. That stereotype (of the family farm) is disappearing."

IN THE STATE

Black Educators

RALEIGH (AP) — The limited supply of blacks with doctorates has bedeviled recruitment efforts nationally, and failure to reach hiring goals has been the rule, including in North Carolina.

N.C. State University is the only school among the four doctorate-granting institutions in the University of North Carolina system which met a voluntary goal for hiring black faculty, The Raleigh News and Observer reported this week.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, East Carolina University in Greenville and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro all fell short of their goals, set in affirmative action plans adopted in 1983, the newspaper said. They are scaling back their goals for the next two to five years.

Although the goals were voluntary, the U.S. government could withhold federal funds if it found that campuses had not made "good-faith" efforts to meet them. The U.S. Education Department will not investigate the UNC system until at least 1989, the newspaper said.

Robbery Attempt

DURHAM (AP) — An unidentified man, thwarted in an attempted armed robbery Saturday in Hillsborough, shot himself when it appeared he would be arrested, police said.

Hillsborough Police Chief Larry Biggs said the man entered Revco Discount Drug Center in the Daniel Boone Village with a rifle about 1:30 p.m. The man demanded drugs from a woman employee, but the drugs he wanted were locked in a safe, Biggs said.

Biggs said the employee didn't have a key or combination to the safe, so the man forced her to go to a back room in the store while other employees and customers called the police and then locked themselves in a room.

"A deputy and an officer arrived, so he tried to get out of the back door," Biggs said. "That door was locked, and she — the employee — didn't have a key. He then turned the rifle on himself, and shot himself once in the head."

Dean Leaving

DURHAM (AP) — The dean of the Duke University School of Medicine is stepping down from the position after only one year.

Dr. Charles E. Putman, appointed dean of the school last May, announced he will leave the post July 1 to concentrate on his duties as vice provost for research and development. As vice provost, he raises money and improves connections with foundations, corporations and individuals.

A new dean has not been selected, said Edith Roberts, a Duke Hospital spokeswoman.

Body Found

LOUISBURG (AP) — The body of a Zebulon man who has been missing since May 2 has been found near a rural Franklin County community, and a 20-year-old man has been charged with murder, authorities say.

Franklin County Sheriff Arthur Earl Johnson said the body of Willie B. Coe, 41, was found Thursday night on the Lawrence Perry farm near the community of Pearce.

Johnson said the body was found after he received a call from Wake County Sheriff John Baker, who told him that he had a 14-year-old girl in custody who said she knew where a "murder victim" could be found.

Michael A. Harris was charged by the Wake County Sheriff's Department with murder in connection with Coe's death. Deputies said the suspect was the 14-year-old girl's boyfriend and the dead man was her stepfather.

Morgan Opposes Wiretap Proposal

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The director of the SBI thinks wiretaps are too expensive and time-consuming to be an effective tool, but North Carolina may be joining 30 other states in allowing state judges to approve wiretaps.

A bill introduced in the General Assembly, sponsored by Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, would allow state judges to authorize wiretaps and other electronic surveillance in drug investigations. In the past, only federal judges have had that authority in this state.

Rand, the Senate majority leader, told the Winston-Salem Journal last week that the bill is necessary because of the state's inability to curb the flow of drugs into North Carolina.

"Narcotics traffic is really a problem that we've been unable to put a dent in," Rand said. "And the problem appears to be getting worse."

According to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, the average cost of a federal wiretap is nearly $63,000, and the average state-authorized wiretap costs about $19,000. A spokesman for the FBI said it takes as many as 15 people to operate and monitor a tap.

SBI Director Robert Morgan said the money, which would come from the SBI's budget, could be better spent. He said he fears the bill could jeopardize other SBI proposals — like the nearly $7 million for forensic chemistry laboratory that he recently requested.

"I have never thought the wiretapping was productive," Morgan said. "As a whole, they are not very effective and certainly not very cost effective. And they are very intrusive and subject to abuse."

Of the 10 states that authorized the most wire intercepts last year, eight of them had legislation similar to Rand's. Since 1969, only 10 wiretaps have been authorized in North Carolina through the federal courts.

Observers say the bill may face tough opposition from the State Bureau of Investigation and the Attorney General's office.

Rand's bill would allow the head of any local law enforcement agency — such as a police chief, sheriff or district attorney — to seek permission to install a wiretap through the state's attorney general. The attorney general would then ask the chief justice of the state Supreme Court to appoint a judicial review panel to study the request and either approve or deny it.

The wiretaps would be conducted exclusively by the SBI.

Attorney General Lacy Thornburg opposed a similar bill when it was introduced in 1985 but his aides say he has not yet taken a position on the bill this year.

Tax Increase Plan Opposed

By The Associated Press
Raising the federal excise tax on cigarettes — as well as on such items as liquor and gasoline — would virtually eliminate benefits gained by middle- and low-income families from tax reform, according to a study by a Washington-based research group.

The study was released as proposals to hike excise taxes seem to be gaining popularity in a Congress that may be looking for about $18 billion in new revenues for the budget for fiscal year 1988.

"The biggest threat to tax reform at present is that Congress may attempt to meet its 1988 budget targets through stiff increases in federal excise taxes," concluded the study by Citizens for Tax Justice, a non-profit research group.

Diet Food For Thought...

Dieting has become big business in our society. It is also very serious business. While it is important to lose weight, it is also important to go about it in a sensible manner...both in terms of health and economics.

HOW DOES YOUR DIET COMPARE?

Can you average a weight loss of 3½ to 5 pounds each week?
Does it cost more than $35 per week...total cost...no hidden fees?
Are the counselors educationally trained to help you?

OR

Are you required to buy products on a regular basis? How much will this cost?

At DIET CENTER we do not feel that injections or special products are necessary. We feel it is more important to learn to control your weight with regular foods that you will continue to eat for the rest of your life.

We offer our exclusive DIET SUPPLEMENT. This supplement is GIVEN to you at NO additional charge.

If the diet is guaranteed, what does the guarantee say? How much money will you get back if you are not satisfied? At DIET CENTER we feel it is impossible to guarantee weight loss, but should you decide to pay in advance for our program we will refund any unused portion of your money if for any reason you decide not to continue our program.

Are you discouraged from exercising? If so, take another look at the program, common sense tells us a safe diet and exercise program is the only sensible approach to good health and weight loss.

Gimmicks don't work. If they did, we'd all be thin and stay thin. Weed out the gimmicks. Call DIET CENTER today. We will explain our program, answer your questions, but we will apply no pressure. The decision is yours. Our consultations are FREE.

Insurance Women Are Professionals

Members of the National Association of Insurance Women (International) have come from many lines of insurance, including personal, commercial, excess & surplus, life, risk management, premium auditing and dozens of other technical specialties, to form an organization of 20,000 insurance professionals in the United States and Canada. Through cooperation within NAIW, they've discovered a new way to view their industry - as a complete picture rather than one line at a time.

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women was formed in 1973. PCAIW is a member of the North Carolina Association of Insurance Women and the National Association of Insurance Women, International.

PCAIW strives to promote education, loyalty and fellowship among its members, the insurance industry and the general public. If you are affiliated with the insurance industry in any manner, we extend to you an invitation to become a part of this organization.

This week is National Insurance Women's Week. We salute the following insurance women that are members of PCAIW.

If your banker changes the subject when you ask about Certificate of Deposit rates, maybe it's time to change your account to First Federal.

Our Certificate of Deposit Accounts pay higher rates on a low minimum balance.

It's never been quite clear why big banks reporting millions of earnings every quarter consistently pay lower rates on Certificate of Deposit Accounts than First Federal. But it's a fact.

So, the next time you're checking rates on Certificates of Deposit Accounts, check the rates at First Federal. All insured to $100,000 by the FSLIC.

All in all, our Certificates of Deposit pay more interest and offer you a safe investment. So, we don't want to change the subject when you mention Certificate of Deposit Rates. We want to change where you bank.

Simon Enters Name In Democratic Race For Presidential Nomination

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Illinois Sen. Paul Simon today officially joins a newly scrambled Democratic presidential field, saying his bow-tie image is right for voters tired of candidates "slickly packaged like some new soft drink."

"I haven't tried to do what is temporarily popular or politically fashionable or what will raise campaign funds," Simon said in remarks prepared for delivery at his announcement. "You get what you see and hear."

Simon, 58, returned to southern Illinois near his home town of Makanda for the formal announcement of his candidacy, and said he was buoyed by polls showing he's gained strength since front-runner Gary Hart dropped from the race.

"I think we're gaining ground," Simon said. "We're still way behind, but we're moving. We're ahead of most of the others who have been out there a long time."

Simon insisted he's ready for the kind of scrutiny that drove Hart from the race, although he said, "I'm a candidate for the presidency, not for sainthood."

"I've been in a fishbowl for a long time and I understand what that's all about," he said.

Simon said he had no intention of changing a political style that's been successful, and he said voters are ready for an unconventional candidate.

"To become fashionable, some people tell me to get rid of my bow tie and my horn-rimmed glasses, and — most of all — to change my views," Simon said. "As before, 1988 is not going to be the year for the candidate slickly packaged like some new soft drink."

After his formal announcement at Southern Illinois University, Simon was to fly to Iowa for a series of campaign stops.

Simon insisted, "I'm in this race, period," and said he would remain no matter who else joined in.

"We have raised over a quarter of a million dollars in contributions before we sent out our first solicitation for funds," Simon said.

In his announcement, Simon harkened back to traditional Democratic themes, while aides noted that Hart's departure from the field has scrambled the race, leaving it without a clear front-runner.

Simon's unabashed advocacy of populist Democratic themes will sell well among party activists, they said.

"I stand here as one who is not running away from the Democratic tradition of caring and daring and dreaming," Simon said. "I do not join those who want the Democratic Party to forget its heritage in order to become more acceptable to the wealthy and powerful."

Simon joins a Democratic presidential field that includes Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt as formally announced candidates. Rev. Jesse Jackson, Delaware Sen. Joseph Biden and Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore are expected to join the field by summer.

Aides said Simon, who is little known outside Illinois, must score well in early tests in order to establish himself as a credible candidate.

"I think we're going to have to rewrite expectations and scenarios in light of what's happened in the last week or so," said deputy campaign manager John Fitzpatrick.

Fitzpatrick said Simon's folksy approach sells well among small groups of voters, a major strength when early tests are in small and rural states.

"He campaigns well in groups of 10 or 25 or 35 people," Fitzpatrick said. "All of that, to me, is a description of the kind of candidate who does well in Iowa and New Hampshire."

A New York Times-CBS poll made public during the weekend showed Simon picked by 5 percent of the 453 registered voters who said they planned to take part in Democratic primaries.

In Iowa, where the first test will be held next February, a poll published in Sunday's editions of the Des Moines Register showed Simon backed by 6 percent of the 401 people surveyed, though the biggest percentage of those sampled — 37 percent — said they were undecided.

U.S. Says Israel Must Support Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will participate in an international peace conference on the Middle East only with Israeli backing, Secretary of State George P. Shultz says.

"The president and I are not committed to an international conference," Shultz said Sunday following a 90-minute meeting with Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres.

Peres is on a U.S. visit to recruit Reagan administration help in convening such a multi-nation conference as an umbrella for peace talks with Jordan.

Outlining the American position on the subject, which has been somewhat unclear over the past few weeks, Shultz told a conference of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, "We will proceed only with the support of the government of Israel."

Shultz, addressing his remarks to pro-Israel lobbyists, urged Israel to give the conference idea a chance because for the first time ever "a genuine opportunity" for direct talks between Israel and Jordan may have been presented by Jordan's King Hussein, who has been meeting with U.S. envoys on the subject for more than a year.

Couple Marries Saturday Afternoon

Geneva Elizabeth Elks and Dennis Jay Roberson were united in marriage at 2 p.m. Saturday in the University Church of Christ, Greenville.

The bride is the daughter of Jerry Leo and Sandra Jackson Elks of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Jay and Goldie Roberson of Washington, N.C.

The Rev. Rick Townsend conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Diane Jackson of Grimesland, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Debbie Coward and Teresa Kellum, both of Greenville, Cindy Elks, cousin of the bride, of Greenville and Sandy Dawson of Winterville.

Kelly Lilley of Winterville was the flower girl.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Carlton Elks, brother of the bride, Albert Campbell of Greenville, K.A. Flake of Farmville and Michael Reel of Pactolus.

The organist was Dare Merritt. Pam Jolly sang, "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza and chantilly lace with silk venise lace motifs etched with pearls forming the Queen Anne neckline. Elizabethan sleeves were of organza and chantilly lace and featured a fluted ruffle at each wrist. The basque bodice was overlaid with chantilly lace beaded with pearls and sequins. The A-line skirt featured a double ruffle of chantilly lace and organza at the hem and extended to a semi-cathedral train. The train was further enhanced with cascading ruffles of lace extending from the center back. Her two-tiered veil of illusion featured a scalloped rolled edge and fell from a headpiece of silk venise lace beaded with pearls and sequins. It was decorated with a side spray of silk flowers and pearl stamens. She carried a cascade of white roses and lilies, with baby's breath and satin streamers.

The matron of honor wore a dusty rose gown. The bridesmaids wore gowns of suede rose satin. All their gowns were designed with scalloped embroidered bodices and puffed sleeves accented with shoulder ruffles. Self-fabric belts encircled the waists and tied in the back with bows. They carried nosegays of pink lilies, daisies, and mums with baby's breath and pink satin ribbons. They wore a circle of pink garden flowers in their hair. Kelly Lilley, flower girl, wore long white taffeta gowns with heart-shaped neckline and short puffed sleeves. They carried baskets of garden flowers.

The bride's mother was attired in a long mauve knit gown with a v neckline and sunburst pleated skirt. The gown was accented with a softflowing chiffon cape. The bridegroom's mother wore a tea-length dress of raspberry crepe georgette. Both mothers were presented with corsages of white lilies.

Grandmothers, Mrs. Geneva Elks of Chocowinity, and Mrs. Margaret Jackson of Grimesland were given corsages of white carnations.

The wedding was directed by Linda Tripp.

A reception was given at the church. Guests were greeted by Mr.

& Mrs. Bobby Elks of Greensboro.

The couple will reside at Route 3, Washington, N.C.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is employed by Sunnyside Eggs. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Pitt High School and is employed by Hackney & Sons of Washington, N.C.

A rehearsal dinner was given by parents of the bride. Several showers were given for the couple by family and friends.

Young Drivers Request Reprint

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Prom night will soon be here, and then, summer vacation begins.

Will you please rerun "Please, God, I'm Only 17"? I lost two of my best friends in a senseless car accident last May. Maybe running that piece again will make teenagers drive a little more carefully. — STILL MISSING CINDY AND BUD

DEAR STILL MISSING: I have printed that piece annually for the last 15 years, and each time the requests for a rerun have outdrawn all others.

It's a powerful piece, whose author is unknown, and here it is:

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17
The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 3:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off — going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remembered was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please — somebody — wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

Angela Dupree And J.L. Roberson Wed

REIDSVILLE — The Elm Grove Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Angela DeWilla Dupree of Carboro and Jonathan La Mont Roberson of Raleigh.

The double-ring ceremony was performed Saturday at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Clarence Johnson.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dupee of Reidsville and Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Roberson of Wilson. The bride is the great-granddaughter of Clara C. Vines of Farmville.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white satin gown with a fitted elongated bodice, a full gathered skirt and a cathedral train, decorated with embroidered floral and venise lace, seed pearls and embroidered cut-outs. On her head she wore a v-band with a two-tiered veil of French illusion.

The maid of honor was W. Gail Clark of Charlotte. Bridesmaids were Kimberly D. Austin of Durham, Paula K. Clark of Charlotte, Angela R. Dillard of Reidsville, Vickie Ferguson and Stephanie Mitchener, both of Greensboro, Regina Garraway of Lexington Park, Md., and Lori Glosemeyer of Carboro. Each attendant wore a royal blue satin dress accented with a lace overlay.

Reginald L. Speight of Wilson was best man. Ushers were Erwin Baker, Kenneth Barnes, Randolph Emory and Gregory Wilkins, all of Durham, Wesley Newsome of Greenville, B. Keith Robinson of Wilson and Kenneth Turner of Reidsville.

The flower girl was Tania Compton and ring bearer was Clinton Blackwell. Both live in Reidsville.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist Paula Harrison and vocalists Laetitia Wells and John Palmer.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

The bride and the bridegroom are graduates of the University of North

MRS. ROBERSON

Carolina at Chapel Hill. The bridegroom attended graduate school at East Carolina University.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Johnson-Harrell Vows Said

MURFREESBORO — Elaine Shirley Harrell and Boyce Exum Johnson were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Mount Tabor Baptist Church. The Rev. Edward C. Revelle of Franklinton, brother-in-law of the bride, conducted the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Bertha Parker Byrum of Route 1, Murfreesboro. She is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed as a laboratory supervisor at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Johnson of Bethel, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and ECU. He is a chemist at Burroughs Wellcome Co.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist Joyce P. Miller and soloist Phyllis R. Dixon, both of Murfreesboro. Selections included "The Wedding Song," "The Wedding Prayer" and "Whither Thou Goest." Mistress of ceremonies was Betty H. Parker of Murfreesboro, aunt of the bride.

The bride wore a floor length gown with a cathedral train of bridal taffeta with re-embroidered alencon lace. Scattered alencon lace motifs applied the skirt and train. A deep border of scalloped alencon lace encircled the hemline of the skirt and train. The fitted bodice featured a bateau neckline with an illusion sweetheart yoke outlined with alencon lace, long tapered sleeves and a basque waistline. Alencon lace motifs embellished with seed pearls and sequins applied the bodice, deep V-back and the sleeves. A fluted-edge rosette accented the back of the waist. She carried a cascade bouquet of a dozen pink roses accented by stephanotis, baby's breath and greenery.

The maid of honor was Pamela

Ann Corey of Greenville. Bridesmaids were Shana Kay Cuthbertson and Kimberly Dean Cuthbertson, both nieces of the bride from Como, and Betsy Marie Davis and Kimlie Morrison, both of Greenville. The attendants each wore a tea length pink satin gown accented with a lace overlay designed with a scalloped bateau neckline and hemline, a deep V-back and a pink satin waistband and bow. The maid of honor carried two calla lilies laced in pink ribbon, and the bridesmaids each carried a single calla lily.

Honorary bridesmaids were Kay Harrell Cuthbertson of Como, Diane Harrell Revelle of Franklinton and Debra Harrell Futrell of Murfreesboro, all sisters of the bride.

The flower girl was Melonie Day

Revelle of Franklinton, niece of the bride. She wore a gown designed like those of the attendants and carried a basket of mixed flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Ellis Jennings Bedsworth Jr., William Edward Hemingway Jr. and Gary L. Porter, all of Greenville; Jeffrey Allen Nelson of Lincolnton, Dr. J. Lewis Ayres of Anderson, Ind., and Ronnie S. Greger of Raleigh. The ring bearer was William Brent Futrell of Murfreesboro, nephew of the bride.

The acolytes for the ceremony were Chad Allen Revelle of Franklinton and Jonathan Lloyd Futrell of Murfreesboro, both nephews of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

After a wedding trip to the Virgin Islands, the couple will live in Greenville.

The parents of the bridegroom hosted a rehearsal dinner at The Jenkins House in Ahoskie. A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Betty Parker, Joan Parker and Frances Brown was held at the home of Mrs. Parker. Several other dinners, parties and showers were held in honor of the couple.

FIBER FACTS

What homeowner hasn't shopped a favorite carpet retailer and been bewildered at the array of colors, styles, textures and fibers. The problem's compounded by glowing descriptions hailing the advantages of one type carpet over another.

I won't pretend to provide information on matters of personal preference. Fibers, however, I do know something about, since I deal with them daily...long after the sale.

So, what's the best fiber? That question is best answered with a quick examination of the types available.

Wool—Though not very lustrous, wool wears well and hides soil even better. The chief drawback is that it stains easily and is expensive—not a wise choice for the average home with youngsters and pets!

Polyester—The miracle fiber of the 70s, polyester, is hard to stain and wears well. However, traffic changes its texture (crimp-loss) so that entry areas look worn very quickly.

Acrylic—Promoted as "the synthetic substitute for wool", acrylic looks like wool but is highly stain-resistant. Drawbacks are twofold: first, nap-reversal causes traffic areas to stand out vividly. Second, due to non-resiliency, furniture on acrylic creates permanent impressions...Disaster!

Olefin (Astro-Turf, etc.)—Olefin resists staining and cleans easily. Like acrylic, however, there are problems with nap-reversal in traffic areas and impressions under furniture.

Nylon—Last year, 81.5% of carpet fiber was nylon. I could close with that, but let's look at the reasons why. First, nylon wears better than any fiber, including wool. Second, nylon cleans well and is stained only by certain dyes. A three-year-old with a cup of Kool-Aid can quickly spot-dye most nylon carpet—coffee, tea, soft drinks, grease—no problem. Finally, nylon bounces back even after being crushed for years i.e., it really holds its original appearance for quite some time.

Still have questions? A reputable retailer has more information to make your final decision yield dividends for years to come! ©GFC 1987

Fiji Control Debated

dominated the government, while the Indians controlled the economy. Rabuka ignored Ganilau's early statements that he was assuming executive power, and prevented him from speaking on the radio. But in recent days, he has tried to win support from Ganilau, who is Queen Elizabeth II's representative and is seen as the principal obstacle to the success of the coup.

Sunday night, the Fiji radio station reported that a joint statement by Ganilau and Rabuka was imminent, fueling speculation that Ganilau would end his opposition to Rabuka's government and its plans for a constitution favoring ethnic Fijians. However, no statement was broadcast.

This morning, Ganilau went to the radio station and repeated that he had assumed executive powers, as provided by the British-written constitution in the absence of ministers. Ganilau, who normally is a figurehead, also announced he had received a message from Queen Elizabeth II promising to "do all we can" to support him. He said he planned to fly to London to discuss the crisis on this former British colony with the queen.

In an earlier speech today, Rabuka warned foreign journalists to "behave in a responsible manner and not provoke unrest by their activities," the radio reported.

Australian Broadcasting Corp. reporter Travor Watson was expelled today, and more than 20 other foreign reporters have been detained for several hours for their reports.

British Broadcasting Corp. correspondent Red Harrison and another Australian Broadcasting Corp. reporter, Peter Cave, were detained at gunpoint, taken into a back alley and lined up against a wall this morning before being released.

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?
Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere between 70% and 80%. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and your representative will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

If you have a hearing requested or scheduled before an Administrative Law Judge, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

ECU Tops Dukes For CAA Title

To Dream The Impossible Dream...
...To strive when your arms are too weary;
To reach the unreachable star.
From "Man Of LaMancha"

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
RICHMOND, Va. — The impossible Dream.

Saturday morning, East Carolina baseball coach Gary Overton put forth the impossible dream — to win four games in 36 hours. To reach the unreachable star — the Colonial Athletic Association baseball championship.

Sunday night, the arm-weary Pirates had done just that. They had struggled back from an 8-1 deficit against James Madison, the double elimination tournament's only unbeaten, to grab an 11-10 win in 11 innings in the first game. Then, they rolled out to an early 10-3 margin and held on for dear life to take a 14-11 win.

Gary Smith came back once more to earn a save — his second of the tournament — and claim Most Valuable Player honors. Smith, who appeared in four games — three of them in the final two days — also earned another save and a victory along with a no decision in a strong performance on opening day.

"I felt pretty good," Smith said of his getting the call after having already pitched 20 and a third innings since Thursday. "I wanted the ball, and I knew the team was ready to play," Smith added.

"These kids just don't know that the word 'lose' means," Overton said after the first game.

And when the second was over,
Overton appeared almost as worn down as his Pirates did — but they were big smiles. For coupled with the CAA championship was an automatic berth into the NCAA Regionals, which begin Thursday.
East Carolina will learn this afternoon where it has been assigned.

"I don't think there is enough credit to dish out to these kids," Overton said. "They came back from an 8-1 deficit and won it all. They battled back to force the second game. Getting the big lead in that helped, and then, even though we were just hanging on, we were still able to pad the lead somewhat.

"Of course, Gary Smith came in the final three innings and did a masterful job."

The heroes in the first game included Mike Sullivan, who hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning to the deepest part of The Diamond to pull the Pirates back within striking range; Dean Eehalt, who had gone hitless throughout his first 18 official at bats before getting a hit to drive in the tying run in the bottom of the ninth; and John Thomas, who hit a lead-off home run to right in the bottom of the 11th to win the game.

In the second game, there were more heroes. Jim Peterson rebounded from two less an auspicious appearances to not only earn the win in game one, but start game two and perform well enough. And the rest of the team, which send 14 men to the plate in the third inning to build a 10-3 lead over the Dukes.

"We talked about winning four games in 36 hours," Overton said.
"Fortunately, we were able to do just that. I'm happy and elated that we've got the opportunity to go back to the NCAA."

The regional bid is the first since 1984 for the Pirates, and their 10th since 1964.

Having to come back through the losers' bracket, the Pirates found themselves down early in the first game Sunday. James Madison pushed over two runs in the top of the first. Jeff Garber singled and Steve Schwartz reached on an error. Both were sacrificed up and Dave Kennett singled in Garber. With two away, Mark Brockell brought in Schwartz with a single.

Garber hit a solo homer in the second to up the lead to 3-0.

The Pirates came back with one in the bottom of the second. Sullivan led off with a single and took second when a pickoff attempt was off-target. He moved to third on an out and scored when Thomas reached on a third-strike wild pitch.

In the fifth, Madison pushed over five runs to take an 8-1 advantage.
Schwartz led off with a single and Ron Boddie got a hit. Both moved up on a passed ball and both scored when Kennett reached on an error.
With two away, Sam rose got an infield hit, scoring Kennett. Three straight wild pitches by Brian Berckman brought him around.

Bobby Ivanicki then walked as did Mike DiMedio. Garber singled to drive in Ivanicki with the final run of the inning.

East Carolina started its comeback with three in the bottom of the fifth, cutting it to 8-5. John Adams singled and Steve Sides got a hit. Jay McGraw singled in Adams, and Sullivan followed with a homer over the fence in dead center, some 410 feet from home.

Two more crossed in the sixth, trimming it to 8-7. Thomas singled and Eehalt walked. Both moved up on a wild pitch and Adams singled in Thomas. Eehalt scored when McGraw grounded out.

Madison appeared to get some insurance in the eighth, scoring twice for a 10-7 lead. Boddie led off with a single, and after a sacrifice, Scott Mackie was intentionally walked.
With two away, Rose singled to left center, driving in both runners.

But East Carolina added two more in the eighth, closing it to 10-9. Sides doubled and scored on a double by McGraw. With two away, Cauble singled in McGraw.

Then, in the ninth, the Pirates got the tying run. Mike Andrews led off with a single and was sacrificed up.
Eehalt then got his first hit of the tournament, a single to right, driving in Andrews with the tying run.

The Pirates left runners in scoring position in both the 9th and 10th, while Madison left a runner at third in the 11th.

It was quickly settled in the bottom of the inning, however, as Thomas opened the frame with the game-winner, a homer over the fence in right.

Sides and Thomas each had three hits for the Pirates in the game, while Adams, McGraw and Sullivan each had two. Boddie led Madison with five hits, while Garber had three and Rose and Ivanicki each had two.

Celtics Top Bucks To Take Series

BOSTON (AP) — After the game ended, after the bruised Boston Celtics had barely survived an all-out attack by the Milwaukee Bucks, players on both teams embraced,
shook hands and went off to rest.

"This game was like the 'Rocky' fights," Boston guard Dennis Johnson said. "At the end you just walk up to anybody on the other team and say you don't want no more of this."

Boston overcame an eight-point deficit in the final six minutes, held the Bucks scoreless for the final 3:29 and took the lead for good on Larry Bird's two free throws with 2:02 to go Sunday to beat Milwaukee 119-113 to capture the Eastern Conference semifinal series 4-3.

"They played us as tough as anyone can play us," Bird said.

"It is frustrating," Milwaukee guard Sidney Moncrief said. "I have a very empty feeling. We put so much into this game and the series."

The Bucks, who nearly became the fifth team in NBA history to win a series after trailing 3-1, weren't the only ones who did that.

For Boston, center Robert Parish and forward Kevin McHale played with ankle injuries and guard Danny Ainge sprained his right knee with 4:46 remaining in the third quarter and didn't return.

"We've got guys on this team who will play hurt," McHale said. "If you work hard enough, good things are going to happen."

McHale had 26 points and 15 rebounds and Parish, whose sprained ankle forced him to miss Game 6, had 23 points and 19 rebounds. Boston held a 69-36 rebound advantage and grabbed a season-high 25 offensive rebounds.

"We had total control in the first half, but their ability to continually get second shots killed us in the second half," Moncrief said.

The Celtics, whose 31-game Boston

Garden winning streak was stopped in Game 5, have little time to recover from their wounds. Detroit, which won its Eastern Conference semifinal last Wednesday, will be in Boston for Tuesday night's opener of the best-of-seven conference final.
Ainge's status for that game is uncertain.

"At least we're in that series," said
Bird, whose six consecutive free throws gave Boston a 117-113 lead. "I just want to savor this for a while."

Until the final seconds of Sunday's game, there was doubt that the Celtics would be able to continue pursuit of their second consecutive NBA title, third in four years and 17th overall.

Boston's last lead in the first half was 4-2 and it trailed 59-56 at halftime. Its biggest lead in the third quarter was five points and the Bucks led for nearly the first 10 minutes of the fourth quarter.

The Bucks went ahead 108-100 on Jack Sikma's jumper with 5:55 to go but were outscored 19-5 the rest of the way.

"You don't think about the lead on the court because there is no eight-point play designed yet," McHale said. "You just think about the next possession."

Ricky Pierce's short shot in the lane made the score 110-103 with 5:26 left. It was the Bucks' last field goal.

"Down the stretch we had the shots we were looking for but they were going in and out," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson, who has had differences with club owner Herb Kohl and added that he didn't know if he would return for a 12th season in his job.

"They went to the basket at the end while we went for the jump shots," said John Lucas, who had 20 points for the Bucks.

Jerry Sichting, filling in for Ainge, hit consecutive baskets and Bird.

On To Victory

Earnhardt Takes Winston

HARRISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Fans came to the Charlotte Motor Speedway expecting to see a 10-lap dash for a lot of money, but what they got was a whole lot more.

Dale Earnhardt, NASCAR's winningest driver this season, won $200,000 and The Winston Sunday after overcoming a trip through the apron grass, but the real story developed after the race.

On the cool-down lap, Bill Elliott bumped Earnhardt's car on the back stretch, then moved briefly in front of Earnhardt down pit road as Earnhardt was working his way to Victory Lane. The crews of the two drivers exchanged heated words.

"It bothered me what happened on the back stretch," said Earnhardt, of Kannapolis, N.C. "I didn't like that, but that's a deal between me and Bill and no one else."

"I'm not mad at Bill Elliott," Earnhardt continued. "He had the race won, but the last 10 laps didn't go his way. It got a little rough out there, but when there's that much money on the line, you have to expect that."

However, Elliott didn't mince any words in his post-race criticism of Earnhardt's style.

"We're not kids," said Elliott, of Dawsonville, Ga. "We're not Saturday night wrestlers. We're racers.
The thing of it is, he liked to wreck me and several others on the track. If that's the way he wants to win the race, I hope he wins a thousand of them on Saturday night."

"The thing of it is, everything was working so good," Elliott said. "The car was there. And to have it taken away like that. How would you feel?"

"If a man has to run over you to beat you, it's time to stop. I'm sick of it. Time and time again. If that's what it takes to be a Winston Cup champion, I don't want it."

A fight also broke out in the garage area after the race between Kyle Petty and Rusty Wallace over an incident on the track.

NASCAR officials announced they will investigate the incidents in The Winston and take appropriate actions.

"Any time you run 10 laps for $200,000, you're going to have problems," said NASCAR Winston Cup Director Dick Beatty.

Earnhardt and Elliott will race again twice next weekend at Charlotte Motor Speedway. They are entered in Saturday's Winn Dixie 300 Grand National race and Sunday's Coca-Cola 600 Winston Cup race.

Front row starters Elliott and Geoff Bodine wrecked in the first turn at the start of the final segment.

The Beatings Continue For Brewers After Fast Start

By The Associated Press
The beat goes on for the Milwaukee Brewers.

Sorry, make that the beatings go on.

In what has become almost a complete reversal of their 13-0 start, the Brewers' losing streak reached a club-record 11 games Sunday when Danny Tartabull hit a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning to give the Kansas City Royals a 3-2 victory.

"We're still six games over .500, and that's not bad at all," Brewers catcher Bill Schroeder said. "It's the way we get back that breaks your heart. We have no answers, only questions."

Like where have all the hitters gone?

After averaging 6½ runs in winning 20 of their first 23 games, the Brewers have scored only 24 during their 11-game skid — and eight of those came in one contest.

"There are no easy answers," Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "We need to play better and capitalize on the situations."

Other teams are capitalizing on Milwaukee's collapse. The New York Yankees, 8-3 winners over Seattle, and the Toronto Blue Jays, who lost to Oakland 3-0, have climbed past the Brewers, who had a five-game lead when the losing streak began and now find themselves 2½ games out of first in the American League East.

In the first six weeks of their up-and-down season, the Brewers have set team records for consecutive wins and losses. Their 13-0 start tied the major-league record and set an AL mark. Their last victory, however, was May 2 in Seattle.

Tartabull's homer off Mike

Birkbeck gave the West Division-leading Royals their seventh straight home victory and 11th in their last 14 games over-all.

Yankees 8, Mariners 3
Dan Pasqua, who came into game batting .158, hit a tie-breaking three-run homer in the fifth inning. Winning pitcher Joe Niekro allowed all the Seattle runs in the first inning but combined with Dave Righetti to pitch hitless ball after the third.

With the score tied 3-3 in the fifth, Claudell Washington, who was 4-for-6, led off with a double off Mike Moore and was sacrificed to third. After Don Mattingly walked, Pasqua hit his third home run of the season to straightaway center field.

Athletics 3, Blue Jays 0
Dave Stewart pitched hitless ball for 5 2/3 innings and finished with a four-hitter as the A's, 18-18, reached the .500 mark for the first time this season. Stewart had seven strikeouts and walked three. Tony Fernandez ended his no-hit bid with a single up the middle.

Oakland had only four hits but they included solo home runs by Jose Canseco in the first inning and Ron Cey in the second off John Cerutti. Cey's homer was his first as an American Leaguer and the 313th of his 15-year career.

Orioles 3, Angels 2
Rick Burleson singled home the tying run with two outs in the ninth inning and California left fielder Mark Ryal's fielding error allowed the winning run to score. California reliever DeWayne Buice surrendered a one-out single to Ray Knight and walked Terry Kennedy, who homered in the fourth inning. It was Kennedy's fifth and made it 10 con-and Tim Lulett's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning accounted for the tying and lead runs and Greg Walker hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

The Rangers had six successive hits, including a two-run homer by Ruben Sierra, when they scored four times in the sixth inning and took a 5-3 lead. Gary Redus also homered for Chicago.

Tigers 8, Indians 4
Terry Harper hit a two-run double and Tom Brookins and Darrell Evans homered as Detroit won its fifth consecutive game. Walt Terrell went 7 1/3 innings, allowing seven hits and four runs, two of them unearned, in raising his record at Tiger Stadium to 21-7.

Loser Steve Carlton, making his second start of the season after nine relief appearances, yielded six runs, four earned, on five hits in 4 1/3 innings. He walked four and struck out three as his ERA rose to 5.76. Mel Hall homered for Cleveland.

Twins 10, Red Sox 8
Solo home runs by Minnesota's Gary Gaetti and Tom Brunansky off Wes Gardner tied the score in the bottom of the ninth and Kent Hrbek hit a two-run homer off Calvin Schiraldi in the 10th.

The Red Sox had wiped out a 6-1 deficit by scoring seven runs in the eighth against Frank Viola, George Frazier and Jeff Reardon. Dave Henderson ignited the inning with a pinch homer and capped it with an RBI single.

Home Or Away Makes No Difference To Chicago

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Chicago's Wrigley Field has long been known as "the friendly confines." These days, the Cubs use that term all over the National League.

With Brian Dayett hitting two home runs and Manny Trillo and Shawon Dunston each adding one off Houston's Bob Knepper, the Cubs beat the Houston Astros 6-4 Sunday. That gave them a sweep of their three-game series in the Astrodome and ran their road record this season to 16-5.

"It doesn't matter what stadium we're playing in, we can hit it out," Dayett said as the Cubs became the first team ever to hit four homers off an Astros pitcher in the Astrodome, one of the toughest parks in baseball for home-run hitters.

Cardinals 10, Reds 2
St. Louis won its fifth straight game by getting seven strong innings from Lee Tunnell and a grand slam from catcher Tom Pagnozzi, who has been filling in while Tony Pena recovers from a broken hand.

Seaman, 39, who won last year as a member of Team Domino's Pizza, said he will return next year to seek a third straight victory.

"The conditions were a lot worse this year," he said.

Etheridge and Seaman had a total time of 90 hours and 27 seconds for

of the wall in left-center with two on and two out in the ninth.

San Diego's Andy Hawkins, who had lost five games without a victory, allowed five hits in seven innings and Kevin Mitchell hit a two-run homer to turn a 2-1 deficit into a 3-2 lead. San Diego opened it to 6-3 before the Phillies cut it to 6-5 in the eighth and threatened to win it in the ninth.

Pirates 6, Braves 5
Mike Diaz's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the eighth scored Jim Morrison, who had tripled with one out, to give the Pirates the victory.

Albert Hall's two-run single in the top of the inning off Don Robinson had tied the score.

Expos 3, Dodgers 3
Tim Wallach broke a 3-3 eighth-inning tie with a two-run double and Herm Winningham added a three-run double later in the inning to give the Expos a three-game sweep over Los Angeles.

Bob McClure, 2-1, the fourth of five Montreal pitchers, got the victory as the Expos moved to the .500 mark with an 18-18 record.

Spurs Win NBA Draft Lottery

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, a five-time division champion from 1978 through 1983, no longer pull much weight around the NBA.

"Now we have a chance to get fat again," General Manager Bob Bass said after the Spurs got the No. 1 pick in the June 22 draft by winning the NBA lottery on Sunday.

Actually, the Spurs will have to wait awhile before they reap any benefit from Sunday's stroke of fortune because College Player of the Year David Robinson, the player who they say they will select, has a two-year Navy commitment.

"The fans will come back," Bass said. "Why? Because this guy is the best player in the country."

Sagging attendance and declining fortunes on the court as star players like George Gervin and Artis Gilmore aged in the mid-1980s sparked rumors that the Spurs will leave South Texas. They were 28-54 last season, the fourth-worst record in the league.

Spurs President Angelo Drossos said before the lottery that he wasn't sure he would risk selecting Robinson if the Spurs won the No. 1 pick. But in a statement Sunday, he indicted that he will go after the 7-foot center.

Bass, who represented the team at the lottery, said there is "no doubt in my mind that we will take Robinson."

Spurs spokesman Wayne Witt, after talking with Drossos, said of Robinson, "He's obviously the No. 1 pick."

Robinson has the option of retaining his amateur status until he leaves the Navy, but the Spurs could have some factors acting in their favor.

International rules would permit Robinson to sign an NBA contract, and even draw pay, while remaining eligible to play for the United States in the Pan American Games this summer and the Olympic Games in 1988. However, he could not play in the NBA.

Current NBA rules would give the Spurs only a year to sign Robinson, but because of the uniqueness of his situation, the NBA will decide before the draft next month whether to extend the deadline.

Bass said the Spurs "will do whatever it takes" to sign Robinson.

"He is a terrific athlete," Bass said. "He's got quickness, he can jump and run the floor. Everything is in front of him. He will improve faster than people expect."

San Antonio has never picked first in the draft since joining the NBA in the 1976.

"We've waited 14 years (since the team moved from Dallas to San Antonio)," Bass said. "What's two more to wait after waiting that long?"

Robinson, who is involved in Commissioning Week at the Naval Academy prior to being commissioned as an ensign on Wednesday, was not available for comment on Sunday.

But in a statement issued last week, he said, "I have not made a decision as to whether I will sign with an NBA team while fulfilling my two years of active duty. I have a lot of options and want to keep them open. It's important to me that I enjoy playing wherever I am."

Sunday's lottery, in which envelopes containing logos of the NBA's seven non-playoff teams were drawn out of a bin, determined the order of the first seven draft picks.

After San Antonio, the order will be Phoenix, New Jersey, the Los Angeles Clippers, Seattle, Sacramento and Cleveland.

who had 13 of his game-high 31 points in the fourth quarter, sank a jumper to close the gap to 110-109 with 4:22 remaining.

Moncrief made two free throws, McHale connected on a drive down the lane and Terry Cummings hit one of two foul shots to give Milwaukee a 113-111 lead with 3:30 left.

Then Paul Pressey, who had a playoff career-high 28 points, fouled out when he held Bird with 2:32 to go. Bird, who played all 48 minutes, sank both shots to tie the game and, with his defensive nemesis on the bench, repeatedly drove to the basket and drew fouls.

"We made some changes in the game plan to get the ball to Larry," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said.

"If there was one matchup problem we had it was defending Larry Bird without Paul Pressey," Nelson said. "The biggest point in the game was losing Pressey."

After Pressey left, Bird was fouled by Pierce with 2:02 to go and Cummings with 1:31 remaining. He made all four shots.

Boston clinched its victory as Parish hit a foul shot with 33 seconds remaining and Fred Roberts sank one with eight seconds to go.

"I have mixed feelings," Sikma said. "I'm disappointed because we played our heart out and came up short. I'm happy because the team came together near the end of the season and during the playoffs."

Clearwater Wins 1st By Taking Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Until last week, a golfing unknown named Keith Clearwater had never laid eyes on a proud and picturesque golf course called the Colonial.

On Sunday, he owned it.

Clearwater, 27, a tour rookie from Orem, Utah, tamed Colonial's Trinity River treachery with two rounds of 6-under-par 64 during a marathon 36-hole finale and won the storm-disrupted $600,000 National Invitation Tournament by three strokes over Davis Love III, who shot 65-66 in the final two rounds.

The 64s gave Clearwater a record-tying 72-hole total of 266, 14 under par and his first PGA victory, which was worth $108,000. He also received a nationally-televised hug from his wife, Sue.

He said the $108,000 about equaled his total earnings last year on the mini-tour.

"I'm sure I'll go back to my hotel room and think about all the fun things that will happen now," Clearwater said, eyes aspartle and wearing a grin about the size of Amarillo.

The fun things include an automatic invitation to the Masters but not a free trip to the U.S. Open. The former Brigham Young All-American had an appointment at dawn today for a 36-hole Open qualifying test at Fort Worth's Lost Creek golf course.

ECU Wins CAA Title ...

The Pirates grabbed the initial lead in the top of the second in the second game. McGraw singled, moved up on a stolen base and an error and scored on Cauble's ground out.

Madison quickly rebounded, scoring three in the bottom of the frame for a 3-1 lead. Mark Brockell singled with one away and with two outs, Mike DiMedio reached on an error. Scott Engle followed with a two-run double, scoring himself on Garber's hit to center.

The lead was short-lived, however, as the Pirates erupted for nine runs in the top of the third to take a 10-3 lead. Thomas walked and Ehehalt singled. Adams walked, loading the bases. Sides then reached on an error, scoring Thomas and Calvin Brown singled in both Ehehalt and Adams. After a sacrifice, Sullivan hit a two-run singled and Cauble doubled him to third. Andrews' sacrifice fly to center was dropped, scoring Sullivan, and Thomas walked. A wild pitch plated Cauble and Adams singled in both Andrews and Thomas to conclude the frame.

Madison got one run in the bottom of the inning. Kennett walked, moved up on a hit by Mackie and a passed ball and scored on Brockell's ground out.

Four more Madison runs came in the fourth, cutting it to 10-8. With two away, Garber doubled and Schwartz walked, as did Boddie. Kennett singled in both Garber and Schwartz. Mackie followed with a triple, driving in the other two.

East Carolina added one in the fifth. Thomas doubled, was sacrificed up and scored on Adams' out for an 11-8 edge.

Madison countered with one in the sixth. Schwartz reached on an field-er's choice and advanced on an error on the play. He scored when Kennett's grounder to first took a bad hop over Brown's head into right.

But again, ECU came back with the counter in the top of the seventh. Cauble returned the bad hop favor at short with a single. He was sacrificed up and scored on Ehehalt's double, making it 12-9.

The Pirates made it 13-9 with one in the eighth. Brown singled as did McGraw. They were sacrificed up and Brown scored on Cauble's deep fly to left that Boddie caught over his shoulder going toward the fence.

One final Pirate run made it 14-9 in the ninth. Ehehalt singled and moved up on Adams' hit. He scored on a squeeze bunt by Sides.

And the padding was fortunate as Smith was touched for two in the bottom of the frame. Kennett singled and Mackie walked. Brockell singled to load them up. Rose hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Kennett and DiMedio grounded out scoring Mackie.

Smith then struck out Engle to end the game, giving the Pirates the title.

Ehehalt led the Pirates with three hits, while Adams, Brown, McGraw and Cauble each had two. Garber had three while Kennett and Mackie each had two for Madison.

Madison finishes the year with a 28-21 record.

East Carolina is now 26-15 with one unreachably star in its pocket, and it eye on still another.

'Morning' Troubles Affiliates

L.A. Times-Washington Post

NEW YORK — The video personals ads are gone. Daisy the dog, who made her TV debut on the show, is not around much anymore. But the live audience still is there, applauding even station breaks. Good audience.

Bad ratings, though. And that is why CBS' 5-month-old "The Morning Program" was expected to be a top grumble of station executives at the annual CBS affiliates' convention opening today in Los Angeles.

"I think it will be high on the agenda," said Paul Raymon, an affiliate board member whose station, WAGA-TV in Atlanta, does not carry the show, opting instead for local news and the syndicated "Hour Magazine."

"Affiliates are not very happy with what has happened so far," he said, although he noted that only a few of CBS' 200-plus stations — notably his and one in New Orleans — do not carry the show.

Still, he said, "the network is very concerned that because of the poor ratings and the continued poor press that the program gets, that this might encourage some defections."

Foaled on Jan. 12 with Mariette Hartley and Rolland Smith as hosts, "The Morning Program" aims at a younger, upscale audience, particularly women, and, according to CBS officials who urge patience, it is starting to get that.

Offering only two brief newscasts, "The Morning Program" was created after various lighten-the-format changes in recent years failed to bring Nielsen joy to the old two-hour version of the "CBS Morning News."

Airing from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. against NBC's top-rated "Today" show and ABC's "Good Morning America," CBS' new effort offers entertainment reports, comedy, weather-with-comedy, health and product news, and occasional five-part discussions of various matters.

The first five-parter, in March, featured "Platoon" writer-director Oliver Stone and three veterans with whom he served in Vietnam. Last week's effort was "Throwaway Wives." This week's edition features Bette Davis.

Although the show's general tone is so cheery that it makes Dale Carnegie seem like Capt. Grouch by comparison, the ratings have been somewhat to the left of whoopee.

Thanks to advance publicity, the show opened with a 3.1 rating. Not bad, even though many critics called the program awful, terrible, wretched and even no good. The show has failed to reach those Nielsen heights again.

Last month, it hit its lowest mark — a 2.1 rating and a 10 percent share of audience. According to the latest returns, for the week ending May 8, it posted a 2.6 rating and 13 percent share of audience. Each rating point represents 874,000 homes.

In that week, "Today" had a 4.8 rating and a 24 percent audience share, while "Good Morning America" had a 4.3 and a 21 percent share.

HBO Scrapes Bottom Of Barrel For Movies

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is there anything more tired than the spoofs of low-life lounge acts in Las Vegas? How about heart-warming flicks about athletes who overcome temptation to win that big game?

Home Box Office is holding an unnecessary referendum on the question this month with "Viva Shaf Vegas" and "Long Gone." It's one large, plus one jumbo serving of video oatmeal: bland, unremarkable entertainment.

"Viva" stars Paul Shaffer, bandmaster of "Late Night with David Letterman," in a 1-hour version of his long-running Vegas gag.

"Long Gone," a saga of Class D baseball in the mid-1950s, is your basic B movie about the jock who's bribed to take a dive, but finds his conscience at a convenient moment. The 2-hour film is scheduled for May 23, 25 and 28, and June 2, 7 and 12.

Burt Reynolds did it funnier and simpler in "The Longest Yard." There are so many subplots in "Long Gone" that none is developed convincingly.

William L. Petersen plays Stud Cantrell, player-manager of the Tampico Stogies, whose wise-cracks mask his frustrations at never making the big leagues. He's being pursued by a bimbo named Dixie Lee Boxx (Virginia Madsen), with designs on marriage.

Those names, sad to say, are typical of the juvenile level of Michael Norell's script.

Larry Riley, reprising his role from "A Soldier's Story," plays a slugging catcher who is the team's first black player. Dermot Mulroney plays Jamie Weeks, a young infielder who gets his girlfriend pregnant.

The Stogies find themselves playing for the league championship on the final day of the season. Stud, however, has accepted a managing job with the rival club, with the provision that the Stogies lose this year.

Now, can anyone guess how this ends? Would you be surprised to see Stud show up in the late innings, and get the final at-bat?

Would you be surprised if team wins pennant, girl gets guy, pregnant girl gets other guy, black guy finds acceptance?

The only surprise is that this got on television.

It's easier to understand how "Viva Shaf Vegas" got cable time. Shaffer is a funny guy, and he brings a following from "Late Night." But his fond contempt for Las Vegas-style showbiz is becoming as threadbare as jokes about Ed McMahon's drinking.

Shaffer, Harry Shearer and Tom Leopold wrote the script and Shearer directed. The 1-hour special made its debut last week, but you can catch it May 20, 25 or 30. Its run coincides with the "Late Night" stint May 18-22 on location in glitzy city.

Billed as an "affectionate tribute" to the town that losers built, "Viva" instead seems deeply contemptuous. The acts are terrible, the settings are sleazy, the people are witless.

Shaffer plays himself at a moment of crisis: he can't decide whether to settle down with his girlfriend of five years (Laura Harrington) or succumb to the glitter life.

ABC Cans 'Dynasty,' But Adds Parton Variety Show

NEW YORK — "Our World," which looked at contemporary history, is history now. But Dennis Weaver, Dabney Coleman and John Ritter, part of TV's past, are in the network's future. So is Dolly Parton. All have new series slated for next fall on low-rated ABC.

ABC's new schedule, which, with Parton's show, returns the long-absent music-variety format to TV, also will bring back the futuristic "Max Headroom." But that show, which had an unspectacular six-week run on Tuesdays this spring, may face similar ratings woes next season. It has been shifted to Fridays opposite CBS' durable "Dallas" and NBC's cool-hued "Miami Vice."

A total of eight new series — four sitcoms, three dramas and Parton's variety show — are in the fall lineup for ABC, which has fallen on hard times in the Nielsen. It came in third in the prime-time ratings last season for the third consecutive season.

In girding for September battle, the network axed ABC News' "Our World" after one season. While critically acclaimed, the Linda Ellerbee-Ray Gandolf effort, aired opposite NBC's hit comedies "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties," had ratings so low it was said that divers were dispatched each week to find them.

Another ABC casualty, one that got a weak lead-in from "Our World" on Thursdays, was "The Colbys," a "Dynasty" spinoff that lasted 1½ seasons. Also dropped: "Mr. Belvedere," "Webster," "Jack & Mike," "Mariah," "Harry," "Sidekicks," "Starman" and ABC's Sunday-night movie. In addition, "The Disney Sunday Movie" was cut from two hours to one.

A veteran ABC News series, "20-20," survived. But it was shifted from Thursdays to a different night — Friday, part of an all-new ABC lineup on that evening.

Five other returning series also will be in new time periods, including "Spenser: For Hire," which now will face CBS' hit "Murder, She Wrote" on Sundays at 8 p.m.

"Spenser" will be followed by the Parton variety show, then Weaver's new series, "Buck James," in which the folksy former "McCloud" star plays a trauma center's "crack surgeon," one who has an estranged wife and children. Those roles aren't cast yet, ABC said.

Another newcomer, this slated for Tuesdays at 10 p.m. after "Moonlighting," is "Thirtysomething," a yuppie drama-comedy, it stars Ken Olin and Mel Harris as a 30ish couple who've given up one of their incomes and urban life for suburbia and a new baby.

Two new sitcoms will check in on Wednesday. The first, "Hooperman," from "L.A. Law" creators Steven Bochco and Terry Louise Fisher, stars John Ritter of "Three's Company" as a plainclothes cop in San Francisco who also owns an apartment building full of lively tenants.

The second, "Slap Maxwell," stars Dabney Coleman, formerly the loveably nasty host of NBC's cheered but short-lived "Buffalo Bill." For ABC, he'll play a crusty sports writer — CBS also has one in its new "Frank's Place" — who divides his free time between his estranged wife and his girlfriend. Those roles have not been filled yet, ABC said.

Friday will bring "Full House," a sitcom about a widower (John Posey) with three daughters aged 10, 5 and 6 months. He is aided in raising his kids by his rock 'n' roll-star brother-in law (John Stamos) and a young stand-up comic (David Coulier).

Another new Friday sitcom, also featuring a widower with children, is "I Married Dora." The kids (Juliette Lewis and Jason Hurst) have a nan-nie (Elizabeth Pena) from El Salvador. Upon learning she faces deportation, the widower (Daniel Hugh Kelly) marries her.

ABC's eighth newcomer, "True Color," a fantasy drama-comedy, stars Jim Turner as a cartoon character, Capt. Justice, who somehow gets loose in the real world with his faithful sidekick Gumshoe, played by Robert Forster. Tony Award-winning actor Milo O'Shea plays the cartoonist who created Capt. Justice.

The release of ABC's fall roster late Friday afternoon mirrored the hectic haste of CBS last week in getting word out on programs that will face those of first-place NBC, which confidently unveiled its new fall line as scheduled on Wednesday.

CBS, which initially said its new schedule would be out by Friday, rushed things by a day. ABC, which originally said its schedule would come out Monday, decided to release it Friday, saying it did not want the new lineup to leak out over the weekend.

With all three schedules out now, CBS has the most new series, nine, while NBC has the fewest, five.

NBC next season will field 12 sitcoms, 12 one-hour series and have movie nights on Sundays and Mondays.

CBS, which dropped two movie nights but retained its Sunday movie slot, will offer six sitcoms, 15 one-hour entertainment shows, and, unless it decides to delete "West 57th," two newsmagazine series — the other being the high-rated "60 Minutes."

ABC's fall roster has ABC News' "20-20," "Monday Night Football," eight sitcoms, a variety show, a returning Thursday-night movie and 11 hourlong series.

Here is ABC's night-by-night schedule (subject to change before the season begins in September):

Monday: "MacGyver," "Monday Night Football."

Tuesday: "Who's the Boss?," "Growing Pains," "Moonlighting," "Thirtysomething."

Wednesday: "Perfect Strangers," "Head of the Class," "Hooperman," "Slap Maxwell," "Dynasty."

Thursday: "Sledge Hammer!," "The Charmings," "ABC Thursday Night Movie."

Friday: "Full House," "I Married Dora," "Max Headroom," "20-20."

Saturday: "True Colors," "Ohara," "Hotel."

Sunday: "The Disney Sunday Movie," "Spenser: For Hire," "The Dolly Parton Show," "Buck James."

Regulation Ball

The large number of home runs this season has some folks wondering if the ball has been "juiced up." Most American baseballs are made in Haiti. The ball begins as cushion cork. This tiny core is then covered by two layers of rubber. Three wrappings of 300 yards of wool yarn and one wrapping of polycotton yarn are then wound around the rubber. This yarn is covered with a coat of rubber cement. Finally a cowhide cover is sewn on with 108 stitches.

DO YOU KNOW — What New York Yankee hit 61 home runs in a single season?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Thomas Edison invented the incandescent light bulb.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J5 ♥Q982 ♦J743 ♣1054

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
Pass 1♥ Dbl 1♣
Pass Pass Dbl Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Since you have not yet spoken, partner's second double is still for takeout. With your balanced, weak hand you don't want to give partner any sort of encouragement, so we would opt for one no trump rather than two diamonds. Don't worry about a spade stopper—partner has that.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠9 ♥K10752 ♦AQ43 ♣J62

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1♣ Dbl ?

What action do you take?

A.—You have enough for a redouble, but that can't be right. The opponents are certainly going to bid some number of spades, and what then? Since you are not strong enough to introduce your hearts at a high level, that suit could easily get lost. The modern treatment is to ignore the double and respond one heart, which is a one-round force.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K9 ♥A72 ♦83 ♣AKQJ62

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1♣ 1♣ Pass Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Certainly, no one will deny that you have the values for a jump rebid of three clubs, but that will quite likely end the auction. A bid of two no trump is more to our taste—after the expected spade lead, you will have eight running tricks. The jump in no trump also advises partner that you need only the semblance of a trick from him to make game.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A8 ♥A73 ♦95 ♣KQJ954

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one no trump.

What action do you take?

A.—No one will blame you if you make some sort of club overcall. However, we would forget about point count rules and double one no trump. After a club lead, we would expect to make seven tricks in our own hand, and anything partner can produce would be gravy.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A102 ♥QJ108 ♦Q872 ♣93

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North
1♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♦ Pass 4♥ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—East-West appear to have little to spare in the way of high cards, so you can expect a little something from partner. You have a nasty surprise in store for declarer—you know trumps aren't breaking. Double. On a good day, that will produce a bonanza.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A103 ♥AK6 ♦J762 ♣987

The bidding has proceeded:

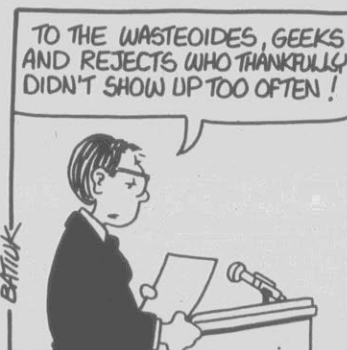

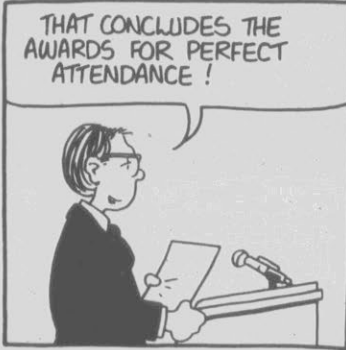

East South West North
1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—This time the opponents have reached game on a power auction, and it is quite likely that partner has a near bust. In addition, your hand has nothing that declarer might not expect—he will know that he is missing the ace-king of trumps. Pass, and hope that your side can pick up another trick.

Lawmakers Dispute Reagan Claim That Contra Ban Didn't Affect Him

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators looking into the Iran-Contra affair say President Reagan is wrong when he asserts he was exempt from congressional restrictions on U.S. aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

"He's not a king and this is not a monarchy," Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, said Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley." "The reality is that Colonel (Oliver L.) North was engaged in activities covered by" the Boland amendment that banned U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan Contras.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" that the president "is clearly wrong" when he says the restriction didn't apply to him.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, also appearing on the CBS program, said: "There's growing evidence a number of laws were broken at specific periods of time. I'm disappointed, and I have a sense of outrage when I find there have been clear examples of a flouting of the rule of law."

All three legislators belong to the House and Senate committees jointly investigating the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the diversion of some of the money to the U.S.-backed Contra guerrillas fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist government.

One key question at the hearings, which enter a third week tomorrow, has been whether U.S. help to the Contras violated the Boland amendment, which was named after Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass.

The amendment banned official U.S. military aid to the Contras from October 1984 to October 1986, but Reagan and his top aides have asserted that the president did not violate that law.

Reagan told reporters Saturday he had "never done anything that encroached upon or violated" the Boland amendment.

In other developments:

—The president said he was not aware that travelers' checks were being distributed by North to Contra leaders, as North associate Robert W. Owen testified in the Iran-Contra hearings last week.

—Fawn Hall, North's secretary when he worked at the NSC, testified before a grand jury that North told her to alter four NSC memos about his support of the Contras during the congressional ban on military aid. The (Baltimore) Sun reported Saturday. Ms. Hall has appeared three times before the grand jury investigating the Iran-Contra affair — the last time on Friday.

An unidentified source told The Sun that Ms. Hall testified North instructed her to alter four memos concerning the Contras during the latter part of the week of Nov. 16, 1986, possibly as late as Nov. 21.

On Nov. 21, Attorney General Edwin A. Meese III began investigating the sales of U.S. arms to Iran. A Justice Department team searched North's office Nov. 22 and found a memo referring to the diversion of proceeds from the Iranian arms deals to the Contras.

The Sun said the documents Ms. Hall altered were written in April and May 1985 by North to his former boss, then-National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane.

—The special prosecutor in the Iran-Contra case, Lawrence E. Walsh, has granted immunity from prosecution to retired Air Force Col. Robert C. Dutton and has questioned him before a grand jury. The New York Times reported in Sunday's editions. Dutton helped run the private supply network for the Contras and also was linked to the shipment of U.S. arms to Iran last year.

—The Senate Intelligence Committee is stepping up its monitoring of CIA covert activities and plans to conduct spot financial audits of secret operations. The Washington Post reported Sunday. Committee Chairman Sen. David Boren, D-Okl., told the newspaper that increased oversight was necessary because Congress had not been informed about CIA involvement in the effort the resupply the Contras.

—A Dayton, Ohio, man captured and accused of spying in Nicaragua says North approved some of his activities and Owen was his contact. "Ollie North was the guy who was OK'ing my missions," Sam N. Hall, whom Nicaraguan authorities described as "unstable" before they released him Jan. 28, said in an interview published Sunday in The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer. "When I had to have my missions OK'd, I had to give them to Rob Owen. Rob Owen then gave them to Ollie North."

Owen, a former State Department consultant, testified Friday he carried cash and U.S. government maps from North to various Contra figures. He will continue his testimony Tuesday.

Reporters on Saturday had asked Reagan about an article published in the May 25 edition of U.S. News & World Report in which he said, "There is nothing in the law that prevents citizens — individuals or groups — from offering aid of whatever kind they wanted."

The president was asked by the reporters whether his remarks meant he believed the amendment did not apply to him.

"It so happens that it does not apply to me, but I have never done anything that encroaches on or violates it," Reagan said.

Reagan also repeated his statement that he didn't ask other countries to send money to the Contras.

Howard H. Baker Jr., the White House chief of staff, echoed those statements during an interview Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" and said, "That's been our position all along" that none of the private aid violated the Boland provision.

Baker said the provision "does not apply to the president. The president has done nothing illegal."

Baker said the Boland amendment applied to intelligence agencies in government, not to Reagan or to the National Security Council. But he acknowledged that the White House and McFarlane disagree on whether the act covered the NSC.

North Dispensed Contra Money From His Safe

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver L. North, in trying to help the cause of the Nicaraguan rebels, also helped them spend their money, reportedly dispensing traveler's checks from his safe to lobby Congress on Contra aid and pay Nicaraguan Indian leaders.

And North's own secretary, Fawn Hall, cashed at least one traveler's check provided to North by the Contras. She bought fast food, according to Contra attorney Joseph Portuondo, who has reviewed the bank records.

The traveler's checks recovered from the Contras' Miami bank indicate North asked the rebels for $75,000 to $100,000, and then spent some of it on various efforts to help the Contra cause, Portuondo said. North apparently preferred to make the payments himself rather than asking the Contras to do it.

One payment was to bring an expert on communism and insurgency movements to Washington in the spring of 1985 to meet with members of Congress considering a $37 million humanitarian aid package for the Contras, Capitol Hill lobbyist Dan Kuykendall said.

Kuykendall, a former Republican congressman from Tennessee and a key pro-Contra lobbyist, said Saturday that North reimbursed him about $3,000 after he paid the Concorde ticket for the expert, a dignitary from France.

"I didn't know whose money it was," Kuykendall said of the envelope of traveler's checks North gave him.

He said North had asked him about having the Frenchman come, and said, "I'll see if I can get some friends to help" with the expenses.

Several traveler's checks signed by Kuykendall turned up in the Contra records, Portuondo said.

Contra leader Adolfo Calero, who as head of the largest rebel army controlled the Contra finances, said he did not know specifically how North spent the money he gave him.

In collecting records for the Iran-Contra investigations in Washington, Calero and his attorney found many traveler's checks that went to North were signed by people the Contras had never heard of or did not recall paying, Portuondo said.

Several checks were signed by B. Rivera, whom sources identified as Brooklyn Rivera, a leader of the Miskito Indians in Nicaragua. However, Rivera denied on Friday that he ever received money from North or Calero.

North's payment system was revealed last week in testimony by Robert Owen, who told the select congressional investigatory committee that he was North's courier in dispensing money from the safe to the fractious Contra leaders in Washington and Central America.

Calero's forces had received about $32.5 million in 1984 and 1985 from foreign sources, believed to be Saudi Arabia mainly.

Calero said he and North had talked "about my helping out ... taking care of some expenses of other resistance members that did not come directly under FDN," the acronym for Calero's Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

It was determined it might not be "politically advisable" for Calero to give the money directly to the individuals, and besides he did not know some of them, and it was easier for North to deliver the payments through Owen to those in Central America, Calero said.

"I never asked him for an accounting of what he did with it," he said. "I assumed that was happening."

About $50,000 of the money was requested by North for a project to help rescue Americans held hostage in Lebanon, he said.

Some $1,000 in traveler's checks were signed by North as payment to Pan American Airlines in the summer of 1985, Portuondo said.

He said he did not have at hand the exact amounts of all the checks.

Owen told the congressional investigators he had paid one unnamed Indian leader several thousand dollars in the spring of 1985 in hopes that individual would stop negotiating with the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

A source close to the investigation said the person was Rivera.

WINNING FROG — Frog jockey John Hand of Sweet Home, Ore., chases his amphibian "Sugar Town Dandy" as it went for a distance of 19 feet, 7 1/4 inches. Sugar Town Dandy won the annual Calaveras County, Calif., Jumping Frog Jubilee on Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

Oregon Frog Jumps His Way To Victory

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Sugar Town Dandy's proud owner knew he had a winner when he took the spindly legged frog out of an Oregon mountain pond and launched its bid to leap into the annals of amphibian immortality.

"Sugar" leaped 19 feet, 7 1/4 inches Sunday to win the annual Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee as owner John Hand pounded the carpeted stage and shrieked entreaties before some 3,500 spectators.

"I never had a frog like that," said Hand, a veteran of 18 years in the contest, as friends doused him with beer and ice water following the jump. "I thought I had a frog this time with 22 feet in it."

Sugar Town Dandy, whom he described as a "mountain frog" from near his home in the Willamette Valley community of Sweet Home, brought Hand $500 in first-prize money.

Seventy-one entrants competed in the grand finals of the jubilee, an event inspired by a Mark Twain's Gold Rush-era short story about a talented jumping frog that failed to leap after an opponent filled its belly with buckshot.

Second place went to High Fly, owned by Douglas Offenheiser of Lemon Grove near San Diego, while third place was captured by Gene Fasano of San Jose.

The winning jump, beating out 3,000 frogs over four days, was nearly two feet short of the world record, 21 feet 5 1/4 inches, set last year by Rosie the Ribeter, owned by Lee Giudici of Santa Clara.

Under contest rules, a jump is measured as the combined total distance of three successive hops. Frogs are placed on a small pad, and their owners scream and pound the floor to force them airborne.

The frog jump was first held in 1928 to celebrate the paving of Main Street.

Americans Spend Less On Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study by the Agriculture Department shows Americans spend more each year on tobacco and alcoholic beverages than the annual net family earnings in half the 25 countries surveyed.

In 1983, the U.S. consumer expenditure for alcoholic beverages was almost $32 billion, plus $28.3 billion for cigarettes and other tobacco products, the study said. At a total of $60.3 billion, that was more than the take-home pay in each of 12 countries.

The study also showed that once again the United States ranks first with the smallest share of annual take-home pay the average family spends for food and all beverages:

14.1 percent in 1983, compared with a range of 16.6 percent in the Netherlands to 51.1 percent in the Philippines.

Overall, U.S. take-home pay was about $2.33 trillion in 1983, and spending on food, all beverages and tobacco was $329.3 billion.

"A country's standard of living is often measured through its food expenditures," said Penelope Korb of the department's Economic Research Service. "The smaller the share of income people spend for food, the more money is available for other purchases and savings."

Ms. Korb said further in an agency staff report that reliable information on disposable personal income was unavailable for some countries. Disposable personal income represents the total money people have available to spend.

In some regions, such as Latin America, inflation "makes it nearly impossible to compile a meaningful series of economic indicators, while in others, including Africa, the undeveloped economies lack national accounting systems," she said.

Another problem area includes the centrally planned economies of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. For those, the report included a "modified" set of figures without the details available for the 25 countries in the survey.

In the Soviet Union, for example, industrial workers pay an estimated 30 percent of their household disposable income for food and beverages, while those on collective farms pay 34 percent.

Czechoslovakia showed the lowest relative costs, with about 25 percent of the average family's take-home going for food and beverages in 1983. The most was 44 percent to 49 percent in Bulgaria.

Ms. Korb said most of the statistical information in her report came from two sources: the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and the United Nations. Projections for the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, however, were provided by the USDA agency.

Economists Say Inflation To Gain Strength This Year

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy will see significantly higher inflation this year because of a weaker dollar, but the falling greenback will finally begin to lift the fortunes of American manufacturers, leading economists predicted today.

The National Association of Business Economists said its latest survey of member sentiment found more optimism that the country will be able to avoid a recession through 1988.

The economists, who work for some of the nation's largest corporations, forecast stronger growth this year, a lower trade deficit and a declining federal budget deficit. But they said these favorable economic developments would be offset somewhat by a pickup in inflation.

Consumer prices, which rose at a two-decade low rate of 1.1 percent last year, will climb 4.3 percent in 1987, the economists forecast. This prediction was more pessimistic than a survey just three months ago which forecast a 3.8 percent price rise for this year.

Even with the less-favorable inflation prospects, the economists still were optimistic that the recovery from the 1981-82 recession will continue for at least the next two years.

The analysts forecast the economy, as measured by the gross national product, will expand this year and next at annual rates of 2.9 percent, up from the 2.5 percent GNP growth turned in during 1986.

More than half the economists, 57 percent, believe the current expansion will last through 1988, compared with only 48 percent who were that optimistic in the previous survey.

While the Reagan administration is forecasting no downturn through 1991, the private economists are not that optimistic.

"Virtually all of the business analysts look for a downturn to occur within the next five years," said Jerry L. Jordan, president of the association. "Ninety percent of the economists think a recession will begin by the end of 1989."

The Reagan administration, led by Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, began in 1985 pursuing a policy of pushing the value of the dollar lower in order to limit imports and make American goods more competitive on overseas markets.

The new survey indicated this strategy was finally beginning to pay off, with one-fourth of the economists reporting higher export sales by their companies in the past three months, up from just 8 percent in a November survey.

And 55 percent of the economists in manufacturing firms reported rising demand, both domestically and internationally, for their products.

"These were the highest shares reported since the middle of 1984, when the economy shifted into a pattern of lower economic growth," said Jordan, who is chief economist for First Interstate Bancorp of Los Angeles.

Some critics have charged that the administration's strategy could backfire if the dollar drops much further. But the economists were much less concerned. Asked what should be done if the dollar comes under massive downward pressure on foreign exchange markets, more than 40 percent favored no action at all, preferring to allow further declines to boost overseas sales even more.

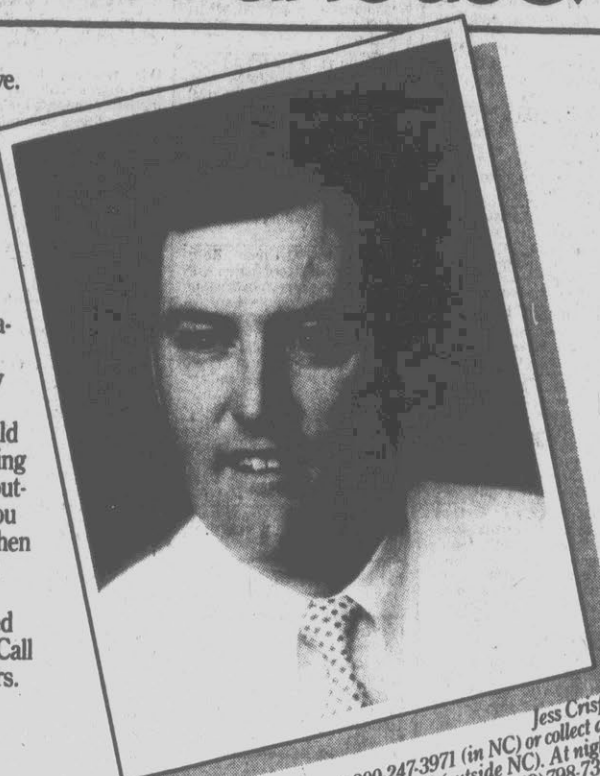

The 228 economists surveyed said they expect the country's trade deficit, which hit a record $166 billion last year, will shrink to $135 billion in 1987. They also were optimistic that the federal budget deficit, which hit a record $221 billion last year, would shrink to $170 billion this year.

Several major banks announced on Friday another hike in their prime business lending rates to 8.25 percent, the second time in two weeks the prime rate has been increased.

The Last Thing This Man Is Going To Do Is Sell You A Birdhouse.

He's a Perdue housing representative. And he's as concerned about your operation as you are. He's not going to waltz in and give you a lot of fast talk or high pressure. The first thing he's going to do is answer your questions, clearly and simply, without a runaround. Answers about cost, cash flow, building specifications, service contracts, legal work, financing alternatives, construction time, and almost anything else connected with a poultry operation. Then he'll help you go over your operation to see what poultry could realistically add. He'll review the growing opportunities Perdue has to offer and outline all your options. He'll make sure you have all the answers and all the facts, then let you decide if you want to talk about investing in a Perdue House.

This man has the know-how you need when you need to know about poultry. Call him, day or night, and get some answers.
