Witness Says North Indicated Arms Dealers Were Working For Reagan

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The retired Air Force colonel who managed a private air resupply network for the Nicaraguan rebels testified today that White House aide Oliver L. North "indicated that we were working for the president of the United States."

Col. Robert C. Dutton, a former combat pilot in the Vietnam War, told Congress' Iran-Contra hearings that his mission in running the supply operation for the Contra guerrillas was similar to his work under President Carter in carrying out an abortive attempt to rescue American hostages held in Iran.

As the House and Senate investigative committees convened their fourth week of hearings on the Iran-Contra affair, Dutton said he worked directly under North, then a member of the National Security Council staff, and retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord. He said Secord had been deputy chief of the earlier covert operation to rescue hostages in Iran.

Asked about his understanding of President Reagan's role in the Contra resupply operation, Dutton replied that North, a Marine lieutenant colonel, was in charge of policy for the mission but "he indicated we were working for the president of the United States."

Dutton said that when he returned from Central America in September 1986, satisfied with the outcome of his mission, North had told him:

"This has been a success. You'll never get a medal for this, but someday the president will shake your hand and thank you."

He said North and Secord had emphasized that "we were working with donated funds" for the Contra operation. For two years, from October 1984 to October 1986, direct and indirect U.S. military aid to the Contras was forbidden by Congress.

Dutton said his field staff communicated with the commander of Contra forces on the southern front in Nicaragua through the CIA station chief in a neighboring country, whom he identified only as "Joe." Previous witnesses have described help supplied on the southern front by the CIA station chief in Costa Rica, who went by the alias Tomas Castillo. American crews were used to airlift supplies after an effort to recruit experienced British pilots had failed, he said.

But Dutton said Secord had convinced him from the outset that the resupply operation was entirely legal, so long as deliveries of arms and other military equipment originated outside the United States and no American troops were involved.

He said he accepted Secord's assurances that this was "being done at the behest of the White House," and understood that North was "working at the behest of the president."

Dutton, who retired from the Air Force a year ago after more than 26 years' service, testified under limited immunity from prosecution. Last December, citing constitutional protection against self-incrimination, Dutton had refused to answer questions asked by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

A member of the House investigating committee, Rep. Michael DeWine, R-Ohio, said Dutton was capable of explaining "exactly what was going on in Central America, how the drops were carried out, the mechanics of it."

The week was to have begun with testimony from Albert Hakim, an Iranian-American businessman and partner of retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord, who ran much of the Iran arms sale deal and the diversion of profits to help the Contras.

But in private interviews that stretched through the weekend, Hakim raised new issues and left so many questions unanswered that investigators were not prepared to go ahead with his testimony. His appearance is being postponed until next week.

Hakim controlled the Swiss bank accounts used in the deals, and — according to an earlier deposition — still controls bank accounts containing $8 million left over from the transactions.

DeWine said Hakim had told investigators he still is holding an account containing an unspecified amount of money earmarked for Secord, but that Secord had told him he did not want the money.

"The money was in fact earmarked, put in an account with a name on it. Hakim will say, 'This was Secord's money,'" DeWine said in an interview Tuesday.

"I'm sure the senators and congressmen are going to delve into that, and you're going to get all the ramifications and nuances of that conversation," DeWine said. "There will be questions remaining. You still are back to the question of what Secord's true motivation is and was."

Several members of the House and Senate panels have said they intend to have Secord, who was the leadoff witness for the hearings, return to face another round of questioning.

Secord has said he is willing to do so.

A Positive Move

When the Pitt County Board of Education voted to amend its attendance line "grandfather" policy, that action was a step in the right direction.

Limited grandfathering of students affected by recent revisions in school attendance lines is the correct approach to the issue. By grandfathering only students in grades nine through 12 for the 1987-88 school year, the board made a positive move toward equalizing black-white student ratios in the county's schools.

Redrawing attendance lines is a tool school boards can use to solve crises of overcrowding and racial imbalance. The plan passed by the board in March revising school district lines was a sound approach to the schools' woes but was crippled by an unlimited grandfather clause.

Under this clause, the revisions did nothing to rectify the problems they were designed to eliminate. Now, by applying grandfathering only to high school students, the board has made sure the revisions have a tangible impact on the Pitt County school system.

Revising the clause also eliminates possible U.S. Department of Justice objections to unacceptable black-white pupil population created by the grandfathering at some schools.

In addition, relaxing the policy brings a more unified approach to the issue of attendance line revisions. The amendment is in line with the important concept of consolidation — one school system with the goal of quality education as its top priority. Revising attendance lines and allowing only limited grandfathering gives this newly merged school system a chance to strive toward excellence by utilizing the combined strengths of the schools.

The attendance lines revisions are sound and can improve the quality of education in 1987-88 by better distributing resources and equalizing the racial mix of schools. Now, with a workable limited grandfather clause, this policy will have a realistic chance to work and the school system can expect to feel its impact quickly.

Summer Fling

Consider the sweet, sad story of the cicada. You might say the insect is the Rip Van Winkle of the locust world.

The cicada stays underground for 17 years, then emerges one summer for a brief three-month fling with the sunlight, reproduces and dies. During this period of time it also sheds its skin, leaving it on a post, tree or some other handy place. That in itself is a lesson in purpose of life.

In 17 more years, the offspring of this elliptical life repeat their parents' cycle — sleep, skin-switching, reproduction, then death. The last time the locusts crawled out of their subterranean bliss was 1970. That means in cicada-land — which includes North Carolina — the creatures are scheduled to leave their dens any time now.

While the cicadas sleep in the warm Southern earth, the world above whirls madly. They emerge, blind to the changes their 17-year slumber has bypassed. In this cycle that includes Watergate, gas shortages, that ex-Hollywood actor in the White House and AIDS — which might be enough to keep the cicadas snoozing away underground.

All of this sounds like a plot for a good soap opera. The story line goes something like this: As the world turns, the young and the restless cicadas sleep peacefully, waiting for the guiding light to stir their instincts. They awake and the bold and the beautiful emerge into the sunlight, spending the days of their lives shedding skin and mating. Finally, as summer subsides, their time on earth ends, and at the edge of night, all their children return to the darkness.

The plot has all the characteristics of a real tear-jerker — sex, irony, bittersweet love and unending struggle.

There's only one problem. What would the title be?

A Case Of Stripping The Presidency

WASHINGTON — Although the latest run on the presidency is the Democratic effort to bar any new interpretation of the ABM treaty, questionable tactics within Ronald Reagan's own official family have added to the misery that has made the $303 billion defense bill hostage to squalid politics aimed at the 1988 elections.

The immediate casualty is the defense bill, which Reagan allies have kept from the Senate floor for weeks. Maintaining their filibuster by a single vote, these Republican senators are protecting the president's stake in his Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). The Democrats, with Senate Armed Services Chairman Sam Nunn leading the way, put an amendment into the bill preventing Reagan from interpreting the ABM treaty as he reads it.

Down in the Secretary of State George Shultz gave succor for several weeks to the anti-SDI Democrats by blocking an official report due in February that is highly optimistic on early deployment of missile defenses. The congressional Democrats and Shultz were insensibly allied in stripping power from the Executive Branch at the moment of the Reagan presidency's greatest weakness.

Finally sent to Congress last week after national security adviser Frank Carlucci intervened at State, the Pentagon report outlines multibillion-dollar savings if SDI testing is permitted under a "broad" ABM interpretation. Senate Reaganites say privately that Shultz felt it might strengthen the Senate's anti-ABM minority, thus making the ABM treaty more vulnerable.

The inability of the president's own men to stick together in the interest of political expedience or ideological conviction — not to mention the interests of Reagan — is cause for only minimum alarm because it is nothing new. "This administration has wallowed in indecision before," a Reagan Capitol Hill loyalist told us, "but now it is a real struggle to get any decisions at all."

But the deeper danger goes beyond cat-and-dog politics between the White House, State and Pentagon. It lies in what appears to be the eagerness of the Democratic Congress to put down the president even at the expense of U.S. interests abroad.

Reagan's arms negotiators are now in Geneva trying to complete an intermediate-range missile deal with Mikhail Gorbachev's stiff-necked crew. Here at home, using a wholly non-germane amendment to the defense bill as their agent to freeze presidential action on the ABM treaty, the Democrats seem to be telling the Kremlin: Don't worry, boys, we'll handle the SDI problem for you because sooner or later Reagan has to have a defense bill!

Strategic defense, whether Reagan wants to use it that way or not, is probably the finest bargaining tool he has in Geneva — and for subsequent talks to reduce the big, intercontinental missile force — because the Soviets truly fear it. Moreover, applying a congressional veto over a future presidential desire to reinterpret the ABM treaty trumpets an unmistakable message around the world: This president's term has 20 months to run, but he will not be allowed to interfere in the making of foreign policy.

The politics of 1988 looks likely to be the politics of "peace" and detente. That adds confusion to what has become another in the mortifying series of political frenzies over this nation's programs for strategic security.

Hearings Are PR Plus For Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nicaraguan rebels couldn't have bought the kind of television exposure they got last week for all the money in the United States. Or Saudi Arabia. Or Taiwan. Or Brunei.

The Iran-Contra hearings in Congress have proved to be an unexpected public relations bonanza for the rebels, giving them the kind of forum they'd only dreamed of in trying to sell their story to the American public.

Their supporters' sense of dread that details of scandal would irreparably tarnish the rebels' image has been replaced with a feeling of jubilation after last week's televised hearings. Richard Viguerie, the conservative direct mail guru, is capitalizing on the hearings by launching a fund-raising appeal stressing the need to fight communism in Central America.

What buoyed the backers most was the polished performance of Adolfo Calero, the top Contra leaders who was on the witness stand for two half-days.

The tall, white-haired Calero, who ran a Coca-Cola bottling plant in Managua before the Marxist government came to power in 1979, came across as articulate, intelligent, sincere — and funny.

He joked that he was surprised to learn his code name was "Sparkplug."

"I've always thought of myself as being sort of calm," the University of Notre Dame graduate said in his perfect but slightly accented English.

Here, on national television, was a real person, a man who seemed to care, a man who was jailed for the cause of freedom.

Could this be the same person whose opponents have accused of leading a rag-tag army which allegedly has committed human rights abuses and indiscriminate killings?

Was he the same man whose associates were connected to former Nicaraguan strongman Anastasio Somoza?

Nudged along by sympathetic questioners, most of them Republicans but some Democrats, Calero touched all bases and voiced the right buzz words.

He waxed eloquent about how the Sandinistas have muzzled the Catholic press, desecrated a Jewish temple, forced 500,000 refugees to flee and attacked the solid middle class, a nation's glue.

He even made a pitch for artificial limbs for his wounded fighters.

Liberals were infuriated by the soft-ball questions asked by many GOP lawmakers, the free publicity for the Contras and the failure of Democrats to pursue a tough line of inquiry.

"He handled himself beautifully," David MacMichael said begrudgingly about Calero. MacMichael is a senior associate at the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, a non-profit policy group that strongly opposes the Contras.

While some witnesses have been diminished by the hearings, MacMichael said the Contras, men he refers to as "thugs," have come out ahead.

"What seems to be happening is that they've made themselves look sympathetic," he said. "They are getting a free ride."

Fearful of being branded pro-communist, Democratic opponents of the Contras have seemed almost "deferential" and "timorous" in their questioning, he said.

Some of the rebels' biggest fans, such as retired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, say the Contras have always been a good group of people, but the liberal press hasn't let that positive view filter through.

That's the advantage of free television air time.

"There are some real benefits to having Adolfo Calero have so much time," Singlaub said, explaining those benefits in terms of "educating the Congress and educating the public."

But Singlaub says the short-term public relations gains for the Contras may be outweighed by the negative impact the hearings will have on U.S. foreign policy.

Most dangerous, he said, is that countries that tried to help the Contras at the behest of the United States — among them Brunei, Saudi Arabia and Taiwan — will be angry at having their names exposed. The result could be that other nations will balk at doing business with America.

While Singlaub worried about the long-term impact of the hearings, conservative fund-raiser Viguerie planned to take advantage of the situation in the short term.

Viguerie said his mailing, keying on the hearings, will emphasize the threat of communism in this hemisphere. He said he wants to see the Iran-Contra hearings put the Democrats on the defensive.

Ironically, the hearings, while revealing warts and all, may turn out to be a boon for the Contras, whose leadership structure and fighting capabilities have been criticized in Congress.

The first litmus test of the hearings' impact probably won't come until September when Congress votes on the Reagan administration's $105 million aid package.

Drop The Independents

WASHINGTON — William French Smith, the handsome and courtly Californian who served as Ronald Reagan's first attorney general, turned up in town last week to get a load off his mind. He told a House subcommittee that it's high time to get rid of "independent counsels" who get appointed under the Ethics in Government Act of 1978.

Let's hear it for Bill Smith! He is absolutely right.

The 1978 act, if you recall, was adopted during the spasms of morality that swept over Congress in the wake of the Watergate affair. Among the act's unfortunate provisions was a section requiring the appointment of a special prosecutor — later retitled an independent counsel — whenever allegations of criminal wrongdoing are made against a government official. The act expires next year. Smith's advice is to let it go.

In one sweeping sentence he set forth his objections: "In my opinion this legislation has not served the ends of justice, is cruel and devastating in its application to individuals — falsely destroying reputations and requiring the incurring of great personal costs; has applied artificial standards often unrelated to culpability, and to that extent has prevented the use of normal standards of prosecutorial discretion; has been used more for political purposes and media appetite than to achieve justice; has been a nightmare to administer, and has caused a needless and substantial waste of taxpayers' money."

Every word of that is true. The first invocation of the law, if memory serves, was against Hamilton Jordan, a top-ranking aide to President Carter. This was in November 1979, when a flimsy charge was made that a year earlier Jordan had tried a snort of cocaine at a New York discotheque.

Under sensible procedures, this dubious allegation would have been turned over to the Department of Justice. The department would have looked into the matter, found it baseless, and gone about its business. But, no. Under this portentous act, a special prosecutor, Arthur H. Cristy, had to be appointed. It wasn't until the following May that Cristy's investigation cleared Jordan. Meanwhile Jordan had endured six months of undeserved hell.

A few months later, in September 1980, a similar allegation was raised against White House aide Tim Kraft.

He was to manage Carter's 1980 campaign, but the unfounded charge put him on the sidelines. A special prosecutor cleared him in March of 1981.

Edwin Meese, while he was still at Reagan's White House, before he became attorney general succeeding Smith, went through an anguishing ordeal. He was accused of using his influence to get federal jobs for people who had provided financial assistance to him. If the charges had been true, he would have been subject to indictment. But the charges were manifestly untrue. Special counsel Jacob A. Stein came to that obvious conclusion after months of investigation. The probe cost the taxpayers $721,000 in Meese's legal fees alone. Now Meese is under investigation again, but there is no reason why the Department of Justice itself could not handle the matter.

By my inexact count, we are now in the midst of the ninth costly investigation by an independent counsel. In addition to the charges against Jordan, Kraft and Meese, allegations against Michael Deaver and Ray Donovan have been probed. None of these found any violation of federal law. (Deaver was indicted, but not for any of the charges that triggered his investigation.) Special counsel Lawrence Walsh now holds a brief for the whole of the Iran-Contra affair. An investigation of Lyn Nofziger's lobbying is incomplete. Two other investigations involve unidentified persons in the Justice Department.

Strength For Today

A lady was recently given some rare and expensive tulip bulbs.

Unfortunately she allowed them to stand for a year before she planted them. They sprouted, but did not bloom. Apparently the capacity to produce a bloom had been destroyed when the bulbs had been given a rest for a year.

Sometimes we think that if we were perfectly free to use our time as we wished we should be happy. But the life that becomes inactive ceases to bloom. It may appear at times to be a trial to keep at the daily routine, but if we only knew it, our happiness often lies in the routine we think we dislike. Give every man and every woman a comfortable living without work, and most of the human race would be plunged into abject unhappiness.

A life without meaningful, productive work is a life without bloom.

FmHA Will Hold Forms For 60 Days

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — FmHA administrator Vance Clark has issued orders to county and state FmHA offices to suspend the use of controversial foreclosure forms and to delay "acceleration" actions which lead to foreclosure.

The move gives farmers a 60-day reprieve.

Eddie Miller, special projects representative with the state FmHA, said Tuesday that the action was taken by Clark as a result of a hearing in North Dakota. In that case, a group of Minnesota farmers filed a lawsuit against FmHA. Miller said the judge who is hearing the case thinks that forms sent to delinquent borrowers who are trying to solve their financial crises do not provide enough information.

Joe O'Neill, a spokesman for FmHA in Washington, said Tuesday the agency "suggested" in notices to state and county offices that the "adverse action letters" not be sent out for 60 days, "assuming it's settled by that time." FmHA "will have to wait and see" whether the issue is settled in 60 days, he said.

Miller said the FmHA, which is considered the farm lender of last resort, will stop sending the forms until they can be revised to satisfy the judge.

County offices that have begun foreclosure proceedings will continue to process the cases, he said. Miller said foreclosure proceedings against other delinquent accounts will be postponed for at least 60 days.

The agency foreclosed on 51 farm accounts in 1982, 32 in 1983, 12 in 1984, 11 in 1985, six in 1986 and 19 so far this year.

Miller said the foreclosure record is not bad considering that the agency has sent out 2,311 "adverse action" or warning letters in the past two years to North Carolina farmers who are at least a year behind in their payments. Of that number, Miller said, 1,510 borrowers responded to requests that their payments be rescheduled or other options offered by FmHA to settle the accounts. Miller said 537 warning letters were mailed in February.

Farmers have eight ways to settle delinquent accounts, Miller said. They include selling non-essential items on the farms and applying the money toward the debts, rescheduling payments and applying for "limited resource interest rates" or lower interest rates.

Delinquent borrowers also may voluntarily surrender the property to FmHA to satisfy the debt or sell it on the open market and pay the loan.

Eligible farmers who show that their accounts can be paid after other debts have been satisfied may also request that payments be deferred for up to five years, Miller said.

Of the 1,510 who requested other methods of satisfying their debts, Miller said, "1,218 were serviced." Some of the remaining requests are under consideration, he added.

Summer Enrollment

East Carolina University has an enrollment of 4,859 students for the first session of summer school which began May 19, according to J. Gilbert Moore, registrar.

Moore said 3,933 undergraduate and 926 graduate students were enrolled for the six weeks session. Second session of summer school traditionally has a larger enrollment.

The 1986 first session enrollment figure was 4,888.

Vote Delayed

RALEIGH (AP) — With the House preparing for a vote on a bill to change the scope of the state superintendent of public instruction's job, lawmakers already were looking ahead to a clash with the Senate over the issue.

The House postponed a vote Tuesday on a bill that would retain an elected superintendent but make him chairman of the State Board of Education.

The bill fell victim to a lengthy House calendar and did not come up for consideration before the chamber, struggling to meet a Thursday deadline for getting its bills to the Senate, adjourned at 10:35 p.m.

Its sponsor, Rep. Ed Warren, D-Pitt, said he expected the bill to be debated and voted on today.

Mansion Auction

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill that's likely to clear the Senate this week would create what would amount to a governor's attic sale, allowing the sale of discarded items that once were in the mansion and now are stored in a Raleigh warehouse.

"There's everything in there from antique china to a cheap old wooden chair that have been given by individuals, and a lot of times, corporations," said Heywood H. McKinney, assistant secretary for administrative services for the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources. "Although many of the items are in disrepair, there's no telling how much they may bring because many people want to have something that has been in the Executive Mansion."

The bill calls for a panel to be set up to recommend to the N.C. Historical Commission what items should be sold. The proceeds would be used to spruce up the mansion or for the state's general fund.

Lemon Law

RALEIGH (AP) — The House voted 100-1 for a bill that would make North Carolina the 42nd state with a "lemon law" to provide remedies for defective automobiles.

Rep. Charles Beall, D-Haywood, told the House the bill was the product of efforts by the attorney general's office, car dealers, automobile manufacturers and consumer advocates.

The bill would provide that automobile warranties, when provided, cover at least 12 months and 12,000 miles. It also would provide for replacement of a defective car up to 24 months or 24,000 miles after purchase if the warranty covers that period.

Under the bill, a "lemon" is a car that remains out of service for 20 business days in a 12-month period or which has a defect that has not been remedied in four tries.

The bill would provide for a full refund, including finance charges, for someone who buys a lemon. Manufacturers who unreasonably refuse to make repairs could face treble damages.

Credit Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — A state House committee has approved a bill that would reduce the state ceiling on bank credit-card interest rates from 18 percent to 16 percent, despite opposition from the banking industry.

In a divided voice vote Tuesday, the House Banking Committee backed what would be the first cut in the ceiling since the state began regulating credit-card rates in 1969. The measure now goes to the full House, where its sponsor says it appears to have a good chance of passing.

Robeson Schools

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Senate voted 42-0 Tuesday to allow Robeson County voters to decide whether to merge the county's five school systems.

Proponents of a merger said it would correct racial imbalances in Robeson County's school systems — the county system and the city systems of Lumberton, Red Springs, St. Pauls and Fairmont.

According to the 1980 census, the Robeson County population is about 40 percent white, 35 percent Lumbee Indian and 25 percent black. Examples of racial imbalances include the county school system, which is 61 percent Indian, and the Lumberton city system, which is 49 percent white.

The referendum would be held March 8, 1988, the same day as the presidential primary, making heavy voter turnout likely. If it passes, a 15-member interim school board selected by the General Assembly would oversee the merger beginning April 1, 1988.

Team Begins Study Of Monitor To Decide On Salvage Efforts

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Archaeologists and scientists aboard a Navy salvage ship are on the first day of a 14-day expedition off the North Carolina coast to determine if the sunken wreckage of the USS Monitor should be brought to the surface.

The USNS Apache, a salvage ship that was used to recover parts of the space shuttle Challenger after it was destroyed in an explosion in January 1986, is anchored over the site of the Monitor wreckage in the Atlantic Ocean 16 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras.

An unmanned robot-like vessel, called Deep Drone, was to dive 200 feet to the ocean floor today in the first of a series of explorations in the two-week study. Using the remote controlled vehicle instead of human divers, researchers will map the site, locate and photograph any artifacts nearby and examine the physical condition of the wreck.

The expedition, with a price tag of about $1.8 million, is being sponsored by the Navy and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and is designed to determine if the wreckage is in danger of collapsing, NOAA spokesman Dane Konop said Tuesday.

Konop said federal officials will decide later if the wreckage should be left in its watery grave, or whether all of part of the remains of the Civil War gunboat should be raised.

"If it's in imminent danger of collapsing, it will increase pressure on (NOAA) to bring it up," he said. "If it's stable, it may be best to leave it where it is. We'll find out when we get down there."

Today's study featured a team of marine scientists, engineers and archaeologists using non-destructive remote sensing and photographic techniques to collect data.

Konop said plans call for studying the corrosion of the wreckage on Thursday and Friday, surveying the surrounding area Saturday through Monday, preparing a photo map of the site from next Monday through Wednesday, and surveying the ship's structure June 4-7.

The steel-plated vessel sank in a storm in 1862 and the wreck site remained a mystery until the wreckage was discovered in 1974.

Scientists have no plans to recover artifacts from the wreck during this trip. On previous expeditions, divers recovered the Monitor's 1,300-pound anchor, a lantern, bottles and other items from the 170-foot vessel.

The Monitor is considered the forerunner of all modern metal naval ships. On March 8, 1862, the Union ship had its famous battle with the Confederate ironclad Virginia, formerly called the Merrimack. In 1975, the Monitor was designated as the nation's first National Marine Sanctuary, a measure that placed it under NOAA jurisdiction. The U.S. Department of the Interior designated the wreckage a National Historic Landmark in 1986.

AIDS Test Bills Die

RALEIGH (AP) — The Legislature has decided, at least for now, against resorting to mandatory tests to prevent the spread of AIDS in North Carolina.

The House rejected efforts Tuesday to bypass a House committee that earlier in the day defeated four bills seeking mandatory tests for prostitutes, prison inmates and potential marriage partners. Opponents said requiring the tests would be going too far.

"The methods of testing (for AIDS) are not absolutely secure," said Dr. Timothy Lane, an associate professor with the School of Medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "There are multiple layers of problems" and it is "unclear if mandatory testing has served any significant role in controlling (venereal diseases)."

The House Health Committee voted down the bills. Later, supporters took the unusual step of asking the full House to overrule the committee in a parliamentary move known as a minority report.

Rep. Frank "Trip" Sizemore, R-Guilford, spearheaded the effort, calling acquired immune deficiency syndrome "a deadly disease. When you have it, you're dead at this point."

Panel Says Roads Are State Matter

RALEIGH (AP) — Cities should be barred from the road building business regardless of whether they can afford it, says a leading supporter of a bill awaiting a state House vote.

"Since the Depression, we have had a state system of dealing with our road problems," Rep. Bob Hunter, D-McDowell, said Tuesday. "We're concerned that the trend (toward cities sharing road construction costs with the state) is a trend backwards."

The House Transportation Committee approved a bill recommended by a subcommittee that drew on half a dozen pending measures. Hunter, chairman of the subcommittee, said the package represented the best interest of the state although some cities might suffer temporary setbacks.

Hunter said the bill had two major provisions. It would prohibit local governments from spending money to build or improve roads that are part of the state highway system.

Also, it would allow cities to take steps to preserve future rights-of-way for roads, short of actually buying the land. One method would be to limit development where roads are likely to be put, thus preventing the land value from skyrocketing.

Hunter said that provision would save $30 million to $60 million per year that could be spent for road building.

Critics say the bill would cripple efforts of North Carolina's biggest cities to deal with worsening congestion.

NEA Cites Smaller Federal School Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average salary for the nation's 2.2 million public school teachers is now $26,704, and the cost of educating each student in grades K-12 is just under $4,000 a year, the National Education Association said today.

The teacher union, in its annual compendium of school statistics, also reported that the federal share of the public school budget has dropped to its lowest level in more than two decades: 6.2 percent.

NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell scheduled a news conference today to release the report.

"The public is clamoring for education reform, yet education revenues are barely keeping pace with inflation, and federal funding is on the decline. It's time to take a good look at what's needed to bring about real education reform," she said in a statement.

The NEA contends that taxpayers will have to pump 20 to 25 percent more money into teacher salaries and other public school expenses each year if they want to see dramatic improvements in children's learning.

Public school revenues were up by nearly $10 billion, or 6.3 percent, to $160.9 billion for the 1986-87 school year. Since 1976-77, school revenues have shot up 114 percent.

But adjusting for inflation, "public school revenues increased by only 13.8 percent over the decade," according to the NEA report "Estimates of School Statistics: 1986-87."

Bill Kristol, chief of staff to Secretary of Education William J. Bennett, dismissed Futrell's criticisms, saying that total national spending on the schools has gone up every year.

"It's an advantage to have the money spent at the state and local level, where it's more likely to be spent responsibly," Kristol said. "It's really amazing that after the last two decades, when we increased federal spending and achievement went down, that the NEA is still obsessed with federal spending."

The salary figures, enrollment numbers and other data are the NEA's own estimates based on a survey of state education departments. It is the 45th year that the union's research department has compiled the statistics.

Last year, when consumer prices rose less than 2 percent, the average teacher got a 5.9 percent pay raise that boosted his or her salary from $25,206 to $26,704.

South Dakota pulled up the rear, with salaries averaging $18,781. Mississippi ($19,575) and Arkansas ($19,951) were the only other states below $20,000. Maine ($21,257) and Louisiana ($21,280) rounded out the bottom five.

The top five on the pay scale were: Alaska, where virtually everything costs more and teachers command $43,970; the District of Columbia, $33,797; New York, $32,620; Michigan, $31,500; and California, $31,170. The only other state in the $30,000-bracket was Rhode Island ($31,079).

The fall 1986 public school enrollment was 39,800,608, up by 271,000 over a year earlier.

Webster Sworn As CIA's Chief

McLEAN, Va. (AP) — William H. Webster, taking charge of the CIA in a time of uncertainty, is pledging to conduct the nation's clandestine activities "with fidelity to the Constitution and the laws."

Webster, who was sworn in Tuesday as the 14th director of the CIA, said Congress has a legitimate role in overseeing the nation's spy activities.

"We will work with the congressional committees, which must act in secret matters as surrogates for the Congress and the American people, and we will be worthy of their trust," said Webster, who headed the FBI for nine years.

Webster was sworn in by Supreme Court Associate Justice Lewis F. Powell in a ceremony on the steps of the main entrance to the headquarters building in McLean, a suburb of Washington, D.C.

Webster did not allude to the various investigations into the sale of U.S. weapons to Iran and aid to the Nicaraguan Contras, although he did quip at one point that his confirmation process took place "on a tough line of scrimmage."

During his confirmation hearings, Webster had been questioned sharply on the FBI's handling of evidence shortly after the Iran-Contra link was discovered. However, the Senate overwhelmingly approved his nomination, 94-1.

Webster declared Tuesday that "we will diligently carry out our assignments around the world, however difficult, with fidelity to the Constitution and the laws of our beloved country, so help us God."

President Reagan, Vice President George Bush, White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker, National Security Adviser Frank Carlucci, Attorney General Edwin Meese III, budget director James Miller and a host of other administration figures witnessed the event.

Seated side by side on folding chairs in the front row of the audience were former CIA directors Stansfield Turner, William Colby, James Schlesinger, Richard Helms and William Raborn. Bush, also a former CIA chief, sat on the dais with Reagan, Webster, Powell and Webster's daughter, Drusilla Webster Busch.

Webster was introduced by Robert M. Gates, deputy director of the CIA, whose nomination was withdrawn amid questions, still unanswered, about a possible CIA role in a private support network for the Nicaraguan rebels during a congressional ban on direct or indirect involvement by U.S. intelligence agencies.

William J. Casey, the former CIA director and longtime Reagan confidant who died earlier this month, was praised by both Reagan and Webster.

"While the world changed in 45 years since the OSS (Office of Strategic Services) was founded, his capacity for leadership did not, nor did the devotion of the men and women of our intelligence agencies," Reagan said.

Webster said: "I want very much to be worthy of Bill Casey, my good friend, and all those who have led this great agency so well in times past."

Meese, meanwhile, when asked by reporters, said the administration would decide "soon" on a choice to succeed Webster at the FBI. He said administration officials still were reviewing candidates for the job.

In his speech, Reagan defended the CIA against its critics, saying the public rarely hears of its successes because of the secret nature of its work.

"It has become fashionable in some quarters to act as if the Central Intelligence Agency were somehow not completely a part of our own government, as if it were not constantly working against hostile powers who threaten the security of the American people," he said.

Three Die As Platform Comes Lose

HOUSTON (AP) — Lunch-hour pedestrians watched in horror as winds ripped a window-washing platform from near the top of a 36-story skyscraper and hurled it to the street, killing two men aboard it and a woman on the ground.

"All I could see was a border of black coming down," said Dick Dentley after Tuesday's downtown accident. "It was horrible! I was thinking, 'My God, people, get out of the way!' But you can't."

"Even if I had hollered, it was too late. By that time I was speechless."

The platform was near the top of the Pennzoil Building, possibly the 31st floor, and hit the street shortly after noon, striking two female pedestrians at a busy intersection.

"I was just standing on the corner, waiting for the light to change," said Julia Comeau, 35. Someone yelled the scaffolding was coming down.

"It hit me," she said. "I didn't have time to move. I couldn't see. I didn't have time to move. This person to my left was just knocked out flat. It's just a miracle. You're never prepared for these things. You're just so... lucky you're alive."

Ms. Comeau suffered cuts and bruises and underwent foot surgery at St. Joseph's Hospital, where she was listed in stable condition.

The woman standing next to her, Emily Perry, 37, was killed instantly, authorities said. Also killed were the two window washers, Baudilio Argueta, 23, and Efraim Ribas, 47, both five-year employees of the window-washing firm.

"They rode it down. They were locked into it," Deputy Fire Chief L.O. Martin said. "These men were dead on impact and so was the lady. There was no help for them."

Four bolts anchoring the platform to a permanent track atop the building gave way as stiff winds blew the scaffolding sideways, Martin said.

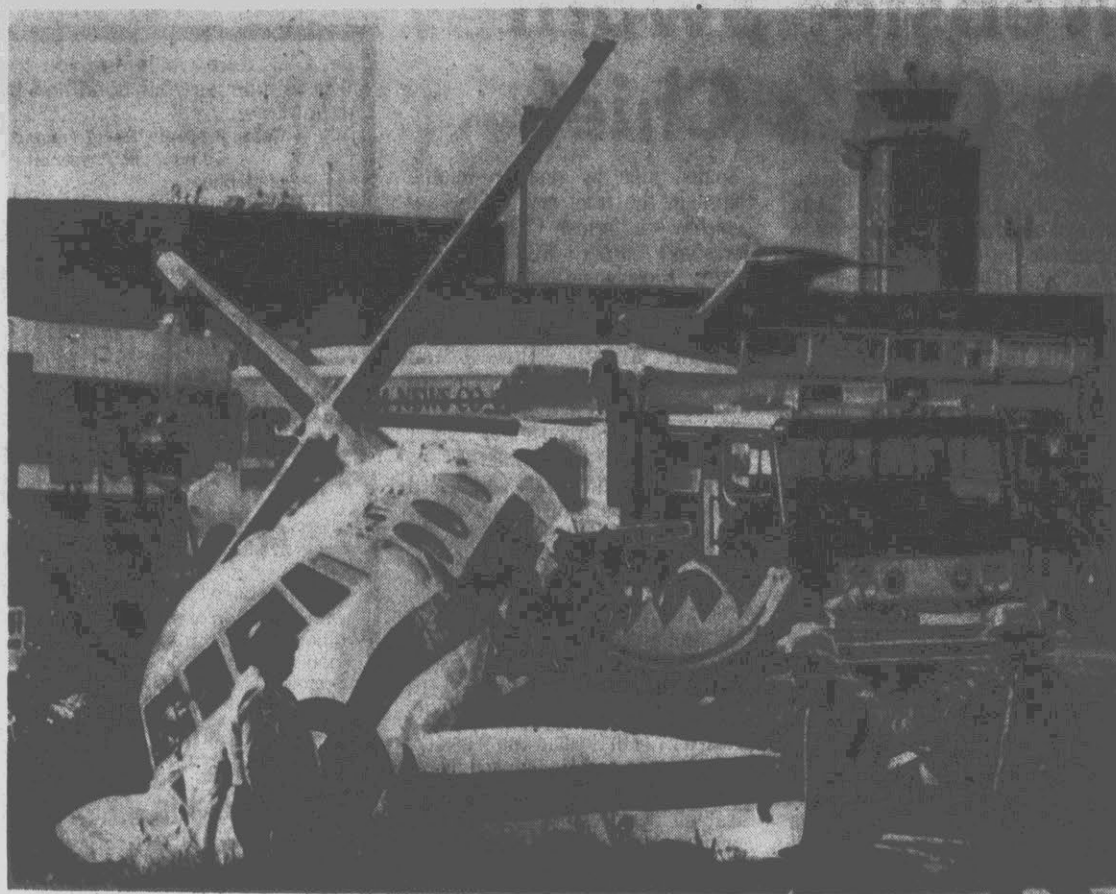

"These skyhooks are designed to go up and down. It appears the wind blew it sideways and when it got to the end of the track it came off. They (the victims) did have their safety harnesses on, but it's just that the whole machine came down," he said. "There was no way to control it."

Homicide detectives were investigating because of the magnitude of the accident, police said. A separate investigation was being conducted by the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

OSHA Area Director Gerald Baty said the agency's investigation would not be complete for at least two weeks.

Winds were unusually strong Tuesday, gusting to 25 mph at the time of the accident, according to the National Weather Service. Martin said he was unaware of any city regulations that limited window-washing due to high winds.

"We don't know too much more about it," said Pat Harris, a spokeswoman with Gerald Hines Interests, which manages the building.

COMMUTER CRASH — A twin-engine commuter plane rests on its side after crashing while attempting to take off from New Orleans International Airport in Kenner, La., on Tuesday. The plane crashed through several

Vatican Restores Powers To American Archbishop

SEATTLE (AP) — Roman Catholic Archbishop Raymond G. Hunthausen is getting his full powers restored eight months after the Vatican generated discontent in the U.S. church by limiting the authority of the liberal cleric.

While being returned to full status, however, Hunthausen will be forced to accept an assistant, or coadjutor, who would eventually succeed him, according to a panel of three bishops assigned to consider the situation.

The apparent compromise comes four months before a visit to the United States by Pope John Paul II.

In limiting his power as archbishop in September, the Vatican had accused the archdiocese of being lax in granting annulments, general absolution of sins, allowing intercommunion with Protestants, and letting homosexuals meet in church facilities.

The bishops panel, in a report issued Tuesday, said problems still exist in the Seattle archdiocese, and attributed them in part to a perception that Hunthausen is permissive.

Bishop Thomas J. Murphy, of Great Falls, Mont., was expected to be named coadjutor, and Bishop Donald Wuerl, who had assumed the powers taken from Hunthausen, was expected to be transferred from the archdiocese.

Hunthausen, 65, and Murphy, 54, were in Great Falls on Tuesday night to help Great Falls Bishop Eldon Schuster celebrate his 50th anniversary of ordination into the priesthood. Neither Hunthausen nor Murphy would comment when asked about the bishops' commission report.

While a coadjutor is designated eventually to succeed an incumbent bishop when he retires, this often is done long in advance to lighten heavy responsibilities, and does not necessarily imply imminent retirement.

Sally Ride Resigns

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The departure of Sally K. Ride, America's first woman in space, is the latest in a series of resignations that has left NASA nearly 40 astronauts short for its shuttle and space station plans.

Ms. Ride said Tuesday she will leave the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Aug. 15 to take a two-year fellowship at the Stanford University Center for International Security and Arms Control.

Her move leaves NASA with 82 astronauts, compared with 102 just before the January 1986 Challenger disaster. NASA has said it will need about 120 to fly the shuttle fleet and start building a space station in the early 1990s.

"We have just gotten started on the space station," said astronaut Henry W. Hartsfield, deputy director of flight crew operations. "We need people badly."

"We are way under strength now," he said.

Ms. Ride, who turned 36 on Tuesday, became the first American woman in space in 1983 when she flew as a mission specialist on a six-day shuttle mission. In 1984, she flew on an eight-day mission.

Newborn Death Rate Drops: Challenges Ahead

NEONATAL CARE — Kim Vetter, a nurse in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, performs routine care on 3-day-old Justin Mallette. Since the regional care unit was established about 10 years ago, neonatal mortality rates have steadily decreased in eastern North Carolina. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis).

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

High death rates among newborns in eastern North Carolina have dropped since the Neonatal Intensive Care unit at Pitt County Memorial Hospital was established almost 10 years ago, but major challenges still lie ahead, say local doctors.

"The major cause for high infant mortality rate is because there's a high rate of premature births," said Dr. Arthur Kopelman, medical director of the neonatal unit at PCMH. "That has to do with teen-age pregnancies. You really can't allow that prematurity rate to get very high."

Accumulated rates in 1985 found about 8 percent of the children born in North Carolina were premature, said Dr. Tim Monroe, director of the Pitt County Health Department. In the 29-county region PCMH serves, 8 percent of the children were premature while about 9 percent in Pitt County were premature.

The challenge for public health is to prevent premature births, which often leads to neonatal mortalities, he said.

"The Southeast, in general, has a greater problem with premature and neonatal mortality," he said. "Poverty certainly contributes to it. The rural nature of our region may contribute to some extent."

Those factors and others have significantly affected neonatal mortality rates in eastern North Carolina, said Dr. John Wimmer, associate professor of pediatrics in the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

"The infant mortality rate in eastern North Carolina was worse than any area in the state," he said. "The state is one of the worse probably in the nation," rating about 45th in the highest mortality rates.

In 1976, North Carolina had a residence neonatal mortality rate of 14.5 deaths per 1,000 live births, while the region's rate was at 15.3 for the same year.

Pitt County topped both of those figures with a mortality rate of 16.9.

Monroe said he could not explain the higher county mortality rates. "Pitt's higher than the region. That's hard to explain because we have the care center in our backyard," Monroe said.

North Carolina is divided into six perinatal care regions with PCMH serving Region 6 as the regional prenatal care center.

But while the mortality rates have been high, they have decreased steadily in the last nine to 10 years.

In 1985, the state figures had decreased about 40 percent to 8.6 deaths per 1,000 live births. Regional figures decreased by 38.6 percent to 9.4 while county figures decreased by about 36 percent to 10.8.

"Neonatal intensive care units do contribute to that decrease" along with better nutrition and general care for the children, Monroe said.

The neonatal unit at PCMH was established in 1978, Wimmer said. "No intensive care was available for newborns in this part of the state" before that time.

"The closest thing was Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Durham. Somebody from Ahoskie would formerly go to Norfolk. Somebody in Jacksonville was out of luck" for immediate care, he said.

The PCMH neonatal unit now serves 20 hospitals in 29 eastern counties from the coast to near the Triangle area.

"We're very busy," Wimmer said. "A lot of times, we have to send babies to other parts of the state" for treatment.

The neonatal unit treats babies who are premature or who have had a traumatic delivery along with those with serious infections and birth defects.

High risk mothers for premature labor are referred to PCMH to have their children, he said. "If that fails ... then our transport team would go out and pick up these babies."

The neonatal transport team consists of a nurse clinician, a transport nurse and a respiratory therapist. If the hospital's emergency helicopter, EastCare, is used to transport the baby, only the therapist accompanies the pilot.

"Ninety percent of these babies survive," he said. "Most of them do not have serious handicaps."

The unit also has a follow-up program to evaluate babies in their development, Wimmer said. And, the unit conducts education workshops in the hospitals it serves, teaching colleagues how to treat babies with special problems.

When the babies no longer need intensive care, "we send babies back to the other hospital," he said. "So people have to learn how to take care of those kinds of babies."

Wife Welcomes Dental Work

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 70 and recently retired. I am 65. We live comfortably and are in relatively good health. I'm a nice-looking woman, but my teeth are ugly, and I want to have them fixed. I'm talking about extensive dental work — crowns, bridgework and beautification. My dentist says the job would run me about $9,500. My husband says we can't afford it — that I'm better off having all my teeth pulled and getting dentures, which would be cheaper and just as pretty. He's had dentures for years and says they're fine. Dentures would run me about $1,500.

We own $200,000 in certificates of deposit, bonds and short-term savings and checking accounts. Our home is valued at $160,000 and we have made provisions (trusts) for our three grandchildren when they reach 18 years of age. We give generously to our church and local charities and, of course, we both get Social Security checks every month. Can we afford a $9,500 dental bill? — I'LL NEVER SMILE AGAIN

DEAR I'LL: You certainly can! Do not consider having all your teeth extracted and getting dentures. Keep your natural teeth as long as you can, and tell your husband to put his money where your mouth is. Besides, it's your money, too, so get your teeth fixed, and may your smile brighten the rest of your days.

DEAR ABBY: I was moved to tears reading the letter signed "His Widow in Idaho," who approved of her husband's corresponding with his childhood sweetheart until they were both disabled by old age.

As her husband was dying, he asked her to please call this lady to convey his final farewell. The wife called, and the lady said, "Tell him I love him in the same old way." They were both 91.

What a beautiful lady that wife was! It is a testament to the unselfish spirit that some people are capable of. Sad that so many of us do not have that capacity of understanding.

We all have wonderful memories of youth and the people who were so important during that period. It has nothing to do with the love we have for husband or wife.

Her husband must have loved her very much, knowing she transcended petty jealousy. God bless that woman — but he already has! — A READER IN EAST MEADOW

DEAR READER: You and I are in total agreement. However, another reader wrote to express an entirely different point of view:

Staghorn Cable Adorns Sweater

As cool and comfortable as a summer breeze, this flattering sweater can double as a vest to make it practical for year-round wear. The Staghorn Cable panels are repeated on the sweater back and form the banding for the sleeves. The sleeve cables are worked right in as you knit so they do not have to be joined in later.

This classic sweater is worked to a gauge of 4½ stitches to the inch in stockinette stitch using double strands of a silky acrylic yarn. Easy-to-follow directions are given for petite, small, medium and large with finished bust measurements of 35, 37, 39 and 41 inches respectively.

To obtain directions for knitting the Summer Breeze, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-052487 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-0524877 by sending a check or money order for $14.95 for petite, $16.95 for small or medium, or $18.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of white, lilac or peach.

Dear Pat: A friend recently showed me a beautiful afghan knit in the ripple pattern. She didn't have the directions as it had been a gift. Do you happen to know how this stitch is worked, and if so, how difficult it is? —Beth R., Riverside, R.I.

I did find the directions for the knitted ripple stitch, Beth, and am happy to share them with you and all my readers. The pattern stitch is worked on a multiple of 15 stitches. This means that you cast on any number of stitches evenly divisible by 15. I suggest 30 or 45 stitches for a sample swatch.

For Row 1, which is the right side of your work, knit 2 stitches together, knit 5, yarnover, knit 1, yarnover, knit 5, work a slip, slip knit decrease over the next 2 stitches. Repeat these steps on each set of 15-stitch repeats to the end of the row. All stitches are purled on Row 2. Repeat these 2 rows over and over to desired length.

The slip, slip knit decrease, often abbreviated to "ssk," is worked as follows: Insert the tip of the right needle into the first stitch on the left needle as if you were going to knit it.

Instead, slip it to the right needle. Do the same with the next stitch. Then, insert the left needle tip into the front of these 2 stitches. You will see that your needles are now in the normal knitting position, so you just knit the 2 stitches together from this position. The only difficulty I foresee is keeping track of the stitches in each pattern repeat. However, if you place markers on the needle before and after the 15 stitches of each repeat, you should have no problem there. Additional markers of another color could be placed before and after the yarnover in the center of each repeat if you feel you need this additional help.

You can use knotted loops of contrast color yarn for your markers or purchase the plastic ring markers available wherever knitting supplies are sold. If you use the latter, select the smallest size that will slide easily along your needles. Markers that are too large can stretch the adjacent stitches.

To show off the ripple stitch to its best advantage, work it in stripes 2 inches to 4 inches wide. I particularly like the effect when it is worked in blending shades of a single color or two, but you can use bold, contrasting colors if you prefer.

If you use this as an afghan, I would suggest working in a border of garter stitch as you go. If you were to make a 5-stitch border, for example, you would cast on your multiple of 15 stitches and then cast on 10 more. Then, knit the first and last 5 stitches of each row, thus forming your border. In this case, you would place a marker after the first 5 stitches and before the last 5 stitches.

BANDING — Cable panels form banding for sweater sleeves.

Couple Weds On May 9

FAIRFIELD — The Fairfield United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony May 9 of Edith Louise Dudley and V. Carroll Jenkins Jr. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Roger Paxton.

Parents of the bridal couple are Dorothy Jones Dudley of Fairfield and the late Leland Augustus Dudley and V. Carroll Jenkins Sr. of St. Petersburg, Fla., and the late Sudie Spain Jenkins.

Jane Baskerville of New Bern was honor attendant and Ben Prescott of Greenville was best man.

The couple will live in Apex after a wedding trip to St. Petersburg, Fla.

The bridegroom is employed by Cooper Tools in Apex as a computer program analyst. The bride is a senior in the Divinity School at Duke University.

BPW Installation Of Officers Held

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club held its annual installation dinner recently. Awards were presented, new members were inducted and officers installed.

Laura Flake of Tarboro, District X director-elect, conducted the ceremony. Terry Coltrain is the new president and will be assisted by Ann Harper, first vice president; Lora Quinn, second vice president; Sue Benson, recording secretary; Annell George, corresponding secretary, and Dot Seay, treasurer.

Outgoing officers are Patrice Alexander, president; Vera Braswell, first vice president; Ms. Harper, second vice president; Elizabeth Deal, recording secretary, and Terry Coltrain, corresponding secretary.

The clubwoman of the year award was presented to Monzar Saad, owner of X-tra Special. The award is given to a member who has contributed significantly to the club during the year. Through wrapping gifts at The Plaza during November and December, the club has given two $300 scholarships.

Ms. Saad received a plaque from the group.

Pam Creel was inducted as a new member. The club received the Ruby Blythe Award for the most increased membership with 28 new members.

Receiving perfect attendance ribbons were Kemp Baldwin, Mrs. Deal, Freida Lee, Arlene Malison, and Gladys Stokes.

For further information concerning the club, contact Ms. Harper at 830-0089 or Ms. Jesses at 758-6487.

HELP ME SERVE YOU BETTER

While serving in the North Carolina Senate I will publish periodically a questionnaire. This gives you an opportunity to advise me on how you feel about issues pending before the General Assembly.

I feel, as your Senator, I should reflect YOUR needs, YOUR feelings and YOUR position on the issues as much as possible. Please let me hear from YOU!

Tom Taft

Senator Tom Taft Ninth District

- SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION — There is support in the General Assembly to increase the funding for construction and repair of schools. Various funding formulas have been suggested. Among them are (1) a bond issue by the State from which local governments could borrow money at lower interest rates, or (2) a one cent additional sales tax for four years.
A. Do you support the concept of substantially increasing funds for local school construction?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
B. Would you prefer the funds for these new schools to be in the form of a bond issue to be paid from the General Revenues or from a one cent additional sales tax for 4 years?
Bond Issue () One Cent Additional Sales Tax ()
 - SCHOOL-BASED CLINICS — Next year, more than a million unmarried teenage girls are expected to become pregnant. The United States has the third highest adolescent pregnancy rate in the developed world. Some states have chosen to fund school-based clinics that offer traditional health services as well as birth control counseling and contraceptives. Do you support such school-based clinics and programs?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
 - PRIVATE PRISONS — Do you favor privately operated prisons for persons convicted of misdemeanor crimes?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
 - TRANSFER TAX — Do you favor allowing counties to levy a "transfer tax" on all sales of real property?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
If you favor a transfer tax, should the revenues be divided between county and municipalities or returned to the state.
County & Municipalities () State ()
 - STATE EMPLOYEES — A task force of State employees has been formed to develop recommendations for improvement in the State's compensation system. Among the recommendations, is the following: salary increases should be based primarily on the performance of the individual employee, giving the executive, manager or supervisor authority to award pay increases consistent with employee performance, rather than an annual percentage raise. Do you favor this recommendation?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
 - RADIOACTIVE WASTE — Realizing that low-level radioactive waste is a fact of life, whether it is generated within or outside our State, do you favor North Carolina pulling out of the Southeast Low Level Radioactive Waste Management Compact unless we receive assurance that other States will be obligated to accept our waste in future years?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
 - THE ENVIRONMENT — A number of tough new environmental bills have been introduced including efforts to: (1) reduce the phosphate level in streams and rivers, (2) legislation to clean up toxic and hazardous waste dumps and (3) stricter control of coastal development. Do you favor strict and tough environmental legislation or do you favor more tolerant environmental legislation?
Strict Laws () More Tolerant Laws ()
 - DRIVING-WHILE-IMPAIRED LAW — Highway Patrol officials say the number of traffic deaths in North Carolina were at their highest level in 14 years in 1986. The number of driving-while-impaired arrests were up 18% over 1985. Do you feel the DWI Law should be changed to require 48 hours of active jail time for the first offense?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()
 - MANUFACTURED HOUSING ZONING — The commission on Manufactured Housing and Zoning has recommended a bill which would take authority from local governments (City & County) to forbid the placement of manufactured homes in traditional single family residential zones. Do you support such a change in the zoning laws?
YES () NO () NO OPINION ()

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a slight gain today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 5.15 to 2,303.09 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers held a narrow edge on losers in the early rally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 567 up, 550 down and 424 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 25.01 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Allegis gained 2 1/2 to 79 in active trading. On Tuesday the investment firm of Coniston Partners said it owns 13 percent of the company's stock and plans to seek control of its board of directors.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .20 to 162.92. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .24 at 325.10.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 54.89 to 2,298.09, for its third largest point gain on record.

Advances outpaced declines by nearly 4 to 1 on the NYSE, with 1,326 issues advancing, 349 declining and 298 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 152.46 million shares, against 135.82 million in the previous session.

Bakker

align with The Fountain of Life still stands.

"Jerry Falwell won't turn loose of PTL without a fight. He wants that satellite and that mailing list so there's still a chance for us. But we hope the Bakkers succeed," Whittington said today.

While Whittington said the Bakkers would be an financial asset to the Fountain of Life and Healing Hill organizations, he said the "blessings" they would bring to the ministry would outweigh monetary advantages. According to 1986 reports, The Fountain of Life collects between $7 million and $10 million in contributions annually. Whittington declined to elaborate on the current financial status of the organization.

And although Whittington is enthusiastic about the possible union of the Bakkers with his ministry, he said others are not. "I've gotten calls from people who said they wouldn't support me any more because I was aligning with the Bakkers. But those people aren't really dedicated to the cause," he said.

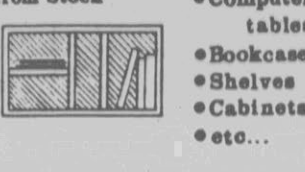

"I don't want anybody like that, people who don't forgive people, to be part of my organization. We want to show people there are still people in this world that believe that God is a god of a second chance," he said.

Precipitating the Bakkers step-down from and Falwell's take over of PTL in addition to the Hahn sex scandal were allegations of homosexuality, wife swapping and drug use. Bakker has denied the charges of homosexuality and wife swapping. Mrs. Bakker recently took part in a drug treatment program.

County Day Care Funds Cut

two staff positions included in the department's expansion budget that was cut by Jackson.

Garrison said, "If the General Assembly implements new classes of coverage, we will need two additional eligibility specialists. It will be late July before the General Assembly's decision." He said that if the new coverage is mandated, the department will come before the commissioners with a supplemental budget request for the two positions that have been cut from the budget.

Garrison said he wanted the commissioners to know that "at least we made the effort to solve the problem" in the original budget request.

Eligibility director Debbie Ryals reported that 3,496 households, representing 13,100 persons in the county, participated in the recent commodities distribution. The supplies of cheese, butter, flour, corn meal, honey, dried milk and rice were adequate.

Mrs. Ryals also noted that 3,819 applications were approved in the Low Income Energy Assistance Program, which provides a one-time payment in emergency situations. A total of $394,893 was spent for the program in the county, with the average payment being $103.

Forty-two persons in Pitt County were helped through the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Emergency Assistance Program, Mrs. Ryals said. There were 85 to 100 requests for assistance. She said that a majority of the requests were for utility assistance. Approximately $14,000 was distributed through the program.

A $25,000 grant for the department's Long-term Screening Program has been reauthorized for the second year. Garrison also said that Pitt County Memorial Hospital will provide $6,000 toward hiring a social worker for the program.

Mrs. Ryals said that a review of the food stamp special claims program found that for every dollar the federal government spends in the county for food stamp fraud or overpayment, the county is returning $1.83 in collections. However, there is a backlog of cases and the county is only collecting 5 percent of the funds per month, Mrs. Ryals said. There is $92,000 yet to be collected in the fraud or overpayment cases.

The board went into executive session to consider suspected fraud cases.

MASONIC NOTICE

Crown Point Lodge No. 708 will have a stated communication Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Masonic Hall in Ayden.

Pitt Plan Advances

objections to the motion, Hunt withdrew it.

Crowell then proposed the primary system for electing at-large candidates, which was supported in a motion for approval by McLaughlin.

"I move that we accept the plan as a substitute bill to House Bill 833 and report to full committee a favorable report on this committee's substitute," McLaughlin said.

Hunt and McLaughlin supported the motion, while Kennedy, a black representative from Forsyth, voted in opposition. Hasty, who chaired the committee, didn't vote.

Rep. Walter Jones Jr., D-Pitt, who serves on the House Local Government II Committee, applauded the efforts to find a compromise.

"There's a glimmer of hope. That's very favorable for Pitt County," Jones said. "I'm very pleased because it looks like both sides are willing to look at the substitute (bill)."

Jones said the move should keep the bill alive in the Legislature.

Rep. Ed

Rose Rallies, Nips Saints, 5-4

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Timmy Moore went to the plate in the bottom of the seventh inning with two runners on and his Rampants trailing Southern Wayne by a single run. His instructions were to bunt the two up a base to give Rose the chance to tie the game up.

But after two abortive attempts to put the ball down, Moore, instead, hit a curling line drive into left field for a two-run triple that allowed the Rampants to pull out a 5-4 victory over the Saints in the first round of the state 4-A baseball playoffs.

"I guess I'm glad that Timmy couldn't bunt," a relieved Coach Ronald Vincent said minutes later.

Moore's hit drove in Hunter Clark and Axel Smith with the tying and winning runs in the game, moving the Rampants, champions of the Big East Conference, into the second round. Southern Wayne, the third place team in the Mid-Eastern Conference, ends its year with a 15-8 record.

Rose trailed early in the game on a two-run first inning home run, came back to take a 3-2 lead, only to lose it in the top of the sixth on the mishandling of a bunt, 4-3.

"I thought we played pretty good most of the way," Vincent said, "except when we fouled up on that bunt."

"I thought Tom (Moye) pitched pretty good. He only had one bad pitch (the home run). And I thought Hunter (Clark) and Jason (Galloway) played well at second and third, too."

Galloway, perhaps, had the most outstanding fielding play of the night. In the third with a man on second base, he went to his left, made a diving stop on a ground ball, got up and threw the batter out going to first. Clark recorded six assists and two putouts.

The game also had some early controversy. Southern Wayne Coach Doyle Whitfield came out of the dug-out as Rose came to bat in the first inning to complain that the Rampant bat carried by Axel Smith did not have its proper taped ring 18 inches up the handle to define the pine tar limit. Smith was forbidden by the umpire from using the bat, as were several of the next few batters.

The problem was solved, however, when a fan offered a role of adhesive tape to the team and each of the bats were "repaired."

In many ways, the game was a pitching duel between Rose's Moye and Southern's Mike Lanier. Moye gave up only two hits — none after the second inning — and only two of the four runs against him were earned. He struck out five and walked an equal number.

Lanier, meanwhile, gave up five hits, two of them in the final inning, but only two of the runs against him were earned. He walked three and struck out eight.

Southern took the lead in the first with two runs. With two outs, Dexter Evans walked and Roderick James followed with a blast that easily cleared the fence in left center.

Rose came back with a run in the second. Robbie McDonald opened the inning with a single to center and Curtis Perkins hit a grounder back to the mound. Lanier, fielding the ball, whirled and threw to second, but was high with his throw, leaving both runners safe. Greg Jones walked to load the bases and Moye grounded in to a double play, with McDonald scoring on the play.

Over the next few frames, both teams failed to cash in on scoring opportunities. Southern left a runner at second in the third and on third in the fourth. Rose left a runner at third in the second.

Then, in the fifth, the Rampants pushed over two runs to take the lead for the first time. Clark opened by reaching on an error and Smith followed with a single. After both moved up on an infield out, a pair of wild pitches allowed both Clark and Smith to score, giving Rose a 3-2 lead.

But in the sixth, Southern came back with a pair of runs to regain the lead, 4-3. With one out, James walked. Kevin Kennedy bunted the ball down the third base line and

North Pitt Is Postponed

WILLIAMSTON — The 2-A first round state playoff baseball game between Williamston and North Pitt, scheduled for Tuesday night, was postponed.

The game has been rescheduled for tonight at Williamston.

Galloway scooped the ball up and threw to first. His throw, however, was just beyond the glove of Clark, and the resulting error allowed James to come all the way around and Kennedy to end up on third. Courtesy runner Andy Best then scored on a wild pitch.

Clark led off the bottom of the seventh by beating out an infield chopper to second for a hit. Smith, bunting, reached when the first baseman came off the bag before catching the ball, leaving both runners safe.

That brought on Moore, who, after blowing both attempts to bunt, lined one into left field. The left fielder appeared to have a line on the ball, but then saw it curve away from him and just beyond his outstretched glove. By the time he could chase it down, Clark and Smith were beating it home down the third base line and Moore was puffing into third, giving Rose the victory.

The win was the 20th of the year for the Rampants, who have lost three times.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

The Rampants now advance to the second round against Wilmington Laney, which downed Northern Nash Tuesday night. That contest is expected to be played on Friday in Wilmington.

Safe On An Error

Rose High School's Robbie McDonald goes in to second base as Southern Wayne's Allen Battle (11) leaps high to try to snag a throw from pitcher Mike Lanier. Lanier had tried to get McDonald at second on Curtis Perkins' second inning grounder back to the mound, but overthrew the base. The play led to a run as Rose came up with a 5-4 win in the game. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Two Cagers Charged

Former East Carolina University basketball players Howard Brown and William Grady, who have been charged with felony larceny and possession of stolen property, are scheduled to appear in Pitt County District Court on June 1, according to ECU police.

Brown of 77 Sullivan Place, Brooklyn, N.Y., was brought in for questioning regarding a stolen watch and was subsequently arrested, J.R. Rose, chief of ECU Campus police said. A search of his dorm room at 206-D Scott Dorm revealed a watch and a cassette player.

The watch is valued at $2,800 while the cassette deck is reportedly worth $110, according to police reports.

Grady, Brown's former roommate, was also charged with felonious larceny and possession of stolen property following the search of their dorm room, Rose said.

The theft of the watch was reported on May 7, shortly after midnight, reports said.

Brown, a sophomore guard, was dismissed from the team late in the 1986-87 season for disciplinary reasons. Grady, a senior, completed his eligibility this past season.

Both are free on $3,500 secured bond.

Yellow Jackets Defeat Chargers

ROANOKE RAPIDS — The Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets stung the Ayden-Grifton Chargers for a 6-4 victory in the first round of the state 2-A baseball playoffs Tuesday night.

The loss ended the season for the Chargers, who finish with a 12-9 record.

Roanoke Rapids took the lead in the second inning, scoring four times. Ayden-Grifton, however, rallied for one in the third.

Then, in the fifth, the Chargers came up with three runs to tie it up. Gary Eubanks singled and Todd Miller was hit by a pitch. Ty Little walked to load the bases. Andy Swanson's sacrifice fly scored Eubanks and the other two runners were able to advance on the play. Both then scored when Tony McLawhorn singled, knotting it at 4-4.

But Roanoke Rapids came back with a run in the bottom of the frame to regain the lead. Rogerson singled, moved up on an error and scored on Jackson's single.

The Yellow Jackets picked up another run in the sixth for insurance.

Storey, Jackson and Hoffman each had two hits to lead Roanoke Rapids, while no one had more than one hit for Ayden-Grifton.

Vikes Quench Firebirds, 6-4

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — When D.H. Conley pitching ace Bronswell Patrick struggled, the Vikings turned to a sophomore to get them through the rough spots en route to a 6-4 win over Southern Nash in the first round of the state 3-A baseball playoffs.

Brian Bullock, a sophomore left-hander, came in in relief of Patrick in the fifth inning with the bases loaded and 5-2 lead, got out of that jam and went on to record the save as the Vikings survived a lackluster performance to move into the second round of the playoffs.

"I don't know whether it's since we haven't played in a week or what," said Conley coach Allan Wilson. "It's kind of like the last two weeks, we haven't been emotional. Tonight we got a five-run lead and then they sat back. They thought it was going to be a cake walk."

Conley, 18-3, moves on to play Southern Durham at a time to be decided.

The Vikings came out and and scored five runs in the first two innings and looked like they would cruise to an easy win.

Bullock and Patrick both walked in the first, before Bullock came home on consecutive wild pitches. Sherwood Wilder then came up and deposited a shot over the fence in left center field to make it 3-0.

In the second, Amzie Hoffner reached when he was hit by a pitch. One out later, Butch Mills walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Hoffner then stole third and then came home on a wild pitch. Bullock followed that by doubling home Mills to make it 5-0.

Patrick struggled early as Southern Nash put three men on base in the first but stranded all of them.

Patrick came back to strikeout the side in the second inning but allowed the bases to become loaded in the fourth when he sandwiched two walks around an error by shortstop Butch Mills. Mills later mishandled a ball at second, allowing Jeff Epps to reach and Joey Burnette to score. Mills then threw wildly to third which brought Dan Wood in and make it 5-2.

Southern Nash's Kelly Murray and Harlen Steed opened the fifth with a singles off Patrick. Steed was picked off first but Burnette and Wood then drew walks to load the bases to chase Patrick.

Bullock came in and gave up a single to Ernie Jones that scored Murray but Bullock regrouped and struck out the final two batters to end the inning.

"He's probably thrown better for us than anybody," Wilson said. "He's shown a lot of guts for a sophomore. Patrick, he's struggled. That's probably the first time I've taken Patrick out (since he's been here). It's hard to pinpoint. He hasn't been sharp, I don't think, but one game this year and that was against Havelock (a 2-0 win)."

The Firebirds added another run in the sixth when Epps, who went 2-3 on the day, singled and went to second on a balk. Scott Vick sacrificed him to second before he scored on Murray's sacrifice fly.

But Conley came back to score a run in the bottom of the inning to get a little breathing room. Robbie Nichols opened the inning with a single and stole second. After two outs, Patrick, who had no trouble swinging the bat while going 2-3, doubled him home.

Bullock gave up a double to Burnette to open the sixth before recording two strikeouts. Bill Newkirk then singled to put the winning run at the plate before Scott Collie struck out to end the threat.

Despite the margin of victory it still goes down as a win but the performance brought back memories of last year's first-round playoff loss to Tarboro. Conley had gone undefeated last year while winning the Coastal Conference before losing to Tarboro, the number three team from the Tar Roanoke conference, by a score of 2-0.

The Vikings won the Coastal again this year with a record of 11-1. Southern Nash was the No. 3 team from the Tar-Roanoke Conference and brought in a record of 9-12 and 8-4.

"I've stressed that right now it's a matter of emotion," Wilson said. "The physical part, we've been doing for three months. Right now it's a game of breaks and who is ready."

Craig Brannon singled home Alan Columbo with the winning run in the bottom of the sixth to give True Value a 9-8 win over Wellcome in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game Tuesday.

The game was tied 8-8 after Tucker Moore and Will Pleasant scored on errors in the top of the sixth for Wellcome.

With one out in the bottom of the final inning, Columbo doubled and went to third on a passed ball. Chris Ball then walked before Brannon nailed his game winner.

Columbo, Brannon and Beau Williams all had two hits apiece to lead True Value.

Moore had three hits to lead Wellcome while Frank Alford had two hits.

Daryl Cherry's two-run double broke a 2-2 tie and gave Eveready a 4-2 win over the Lions in a North State Little League baseball game Tuesday.

With two outs in the seventh, Jay Moyer singled. Sam Jennings followed that by being hit by a pitch. A wild pitch advanced both runners. Cherry then doubled both home to win the game.

After giving up a walk to Brian Fagundes to open the bottom of the seventh, Jennings recorded three straight strikeouts to end the game.

Cherry had three hits to lead Eveready while Jennings added two more. Dean Barrett had two hits to lead Eveready.

Pam Pack Defeats Bertie

WINDSOR — Washington High School nipped Bertie, 3-2, to advance to the second round of the state 3-A baseball championships Tuesday night.

Walter Davis' Mother Dies

PINEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Gertrude Davis, the mother of Phoenix Suns' and former North Carolina basketball star Walter Davis, died Tuesday in a Charlotte hospital of a heart attack. She was 72.

One week ago, her husband, Edward, died of complications from a stroke.

The Pam Pack, the third place team in the Coastal Conference, will meet East Wake on Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Washington. East Wake advanced with a 10-6 win over Coastal runner-up East Carteret, Tuesday night.

Bertie took the initial lead with a run in the first inning. Washington came back, however, to take the lead with two runs in the third. Both scored on a two-run double by Franz Holscher.

Washington added what proved to be the winning run in the third. Donald Tyer was hit by a pitch and Gary Hodges was safe on an error. When the Bertie catcher bobbled a pitch, Tyer headed for third and the ball was thrown away, allowing him to score. Hodges was thrown out at the plate on the play.

Bertie came back with one in the seventh before Washington closed the door.

Anthony Pierce had three hits to lead Bertie, while no one had more than one for the Pam Pack, now 10-8 on the year.

Bird's Steal Aids Boston Comeback

BOSTON (AP) — "I was right there," Boston's Jerry Sichting said. "I saw how it happened."

Years from now, similar words undoubtedly will be uttered by some of the 14,890 spectators who witnessed another amazing play by Larry Bird. It was a play that saved the game and, very likely, the NBA season for the Celtics. It was a play that not even Bird's teammates expected. It was a play that Detroit certainly didn't anticipate.

"I'll put that on top of everything Larry's ever done," Boston assistant coach Chris Ford said.

Trailing by a point, Bird stole Isiah Thomas' inbound pass with five seconds left and fed Dennis Johnson for the winning layup with one second to go Tuesday night. The basket gave Boston a 108-107 victory and a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference final.

"We had the game won," said Thomas, who added that he didn't see Bird race to the ball.

"It looked bleak," said Sichting, who was guarding Thomas and forced him to throw the ball from the sidelines backward to Bill Laimbeer under Boston's basket. "You don't expect things like that to happen.

Larry was going to the ball before Isiah threw it."

"It happened so quick, you don't have time to think about it," Bird said. "It was just a reaction. I was going to foul Laimbeer. I stuck my hand in there and then I knew I had it stolen. He (Thomas) didn't throw a good pass. He just lobbed it in the air."

"As soon as I got it I was going to shoot. I was counting four seconds in my head and then I turned around and saw D.J. cutting down the lane."

Despite being guarded closely by Joe Dumars, Johnson put the ball up with his right hand from the left side of the basket. It rolled around the rim and dropped through.

"We have a very good sense for each other," Johnson said of himself and Bird. "I'm really becoming a believer in the Boston Garden mystique."

The victory was Boston's 35th in its last 36 games in the Garden and 17th straight there over Detroit. But now the Celtics must play Game 6 Thursday night in Pontiac, Mich., where they lost by 18 points Saturday and 26 Sunday.

"Yogi (Berra) said it first," Boston forward Kevin McHale said. "It ain't over 'til it's over. Then Larry said it.

And, sometimes, it's still not over."

If Bird didn't steal the ball or if Johnson missed the shot, the season would have been just about over for the defending champion Celtics. To stay alive in the playoffs, they would have had to win Thursday night on the road, possibly without center Robert Parish.

Now if they lose the next game, they'll return home for Game 7 Saturday to determine who will play the Los Angeles Lakers in the championship series.

Parish was helped off the floor with 7:19 remaining when he re-injured his sprained left ankle. He returned to the game 58 seconds later only to leave for good with 3:41 left when he fell and couldn't stand without help.

"I wasn't concerned with Parish leaving the game," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "I was concerned with what happened with five seconds left."

Bird led the Celtics with 36 points, McHale added 20 and Dennis Johnson 18. Detroit was paced by Adrian Dantley with 25, Vinnie Johnson with 20 and Thomas with 17.

Rose Moves Into Finals

DURHAM — Rose High School's golf team battled off two other teams to grab off a spot in the State 4-A finals in sectional play held at the Duke University Golf Course Tuesday.

The Rampants finished in a three-way tie for second place at the conclusion of the round and had to go to sudden death to earn one of the three team berths which came from the tournament.

Northern Durham, which plays on the Duke course, won the event with a 312 score. Rose, Northern Nash and Durham Jordan all finished in a tie for second at 317.

Rose won the number two spot by having the lowest team score after one hole, while the third spot went to Northern Nash. Jordan lost out and will stay home.

The Rampants' Rob Thomas was the individual winner of the sectional, carding a 72 for the round over the par 71 course. Thomas took bogies on the final three holes, however.

Lee Watson had 80, Simon Moye 81 and Greg Hallow 84 to account for the other scores for the Rampants on the day.

Rose will travel to Chapel Hill's Finley Golf Course for the 4-A Championships on Monday.

NASCAR Fines Bodine $15,000

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — NASCAR officials announced Tuesday that Geoff Bodine is being fined $15,000 and placed on probation until Dec. 31 for rough driving during the Winn-Dixie 300 Busch Grand National race at North Carolina's Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Three days before that Saturday event, Bodine was fined $1,000 and required to post a $4,000 bond for unsportsmanlike conduct in The Winston on May 17 at Charlotte.

"I'm shocked and extremely disappointed over NASCAR's initial decision to regard this as an incident even worthy of reaction, much less such a preposterous penalty," said Bodine's team owner, Rick Hendrick.

"The fine and penalty are so unjustified that it's hard to decide whether to laugh or cry," Hendrick said, adding that Bodine filed an appeal with NASCAR officials Tuesday.

After reviewing video tapes of Charlotte's Busch Grand National race, NASCAR officials ruled that Bodine made unnecessary contact with Dale Earnhardt, resulting in damage to cars driven by Larry Pearson and Darrell Waltrip.

Hendrick contended in a prepared statement that Bodine was "nose-to-tail" with Earnhardt's car, and that Bodine's car did not collide with Earnhardt's car.

"Trying to determine cause or intent, especially from film or tape, in such a subtle situation is impossible," Hendrick said.

NASCAR officials had met with Bodine, as well as other drivers involved in undesirable actions during The Winston, following that race. Three drivers, including Bodine, were fined and warned.

ECU Inks Linkster

East Carolina golf coach Hal Morrison announced the signing of Francis Vaughn, his third and final recruit of the 1987 season.

Vaughn, a native of Hershey, Pa., was a four-year letter winner and captain of the Hershey High School golf team. Vaughn was runnerup in the 1986 Pennsylvania State High School Championships and won the York Invitational the same year. He will enter ECU as a freshman.

Simon Moye, from Greenville, and John Lynch, from Wilmington, Del., have also signed letters of intent to come to East Carolina.

"I was real happy to get Francis," Morrison said. "He, along with Moye and Lynch, will definitely be able to help us this year."

The Pirates are the defending Coastal Conference golf champions.

The Celtics' only deficit in the first half was 2-0 and they led 58-56 at intermission. They let a 69-58 advantage three minutes into the third quarter drop to 86-85 entering the fourth.

Thirty-six seconds after Parish left, Vinnie Johnson's jumper put Detroit on top 99-95 with 3:05 to play. But Darren Daye had the first five points in an 11-4 Celtics' run that gave them a 106-103 lead with 53 seconds left.

Laimbeer hit a jumper from just beyond the foul line with 46 seconds remaining. Bird missed a short shot with 28 seconds to go and Thomas connected from the foul line, giving Detroit a 107-106 lead with 17 seconds to play.

Then Dennis Rodman blocked Bird's shot with seven seconds remaining and the ball went out of bounds off Sichting.

"I thought we had it," Rodman said. "I thought it was our game."

Then Bird changed his and the other Pistons' minds.

"They thought they had us, but you can't blame them," Bird said. "We would have thought that we had it."

Thomas said he didn't see Bird until after Bird stole the ball. Daly said he wanted to call a timeout before the pass was made. After Johnson scored, Detroit did call one.

When play resumed, Dantley's inbounds pass from midcourt went off Laimbeer's hands and out of bounds as the game ended.

DHC's Pinner Places 28th

CHAPEL HILL — Gentry Pinner of D.H. Conley shot a 81 to finish 28th in a field of 77 players in the 3-A State Golf Championships.

Pinner, a freshman, was the only Viking qualifier and the first Conley player that has advanced that far.

Paul Manning of Washington shot a 78 to place 15th overall.

West Carteret, the Coastal Conference tournament winner, finished 12th out of 13 teams.

It was the final disappointment of a tough night for Laimbeer, who is disliked by the Celtics for his physical style. With 23 seconds left in the first half, Parish knocked him to the floor with a left-right combination after they jockeyed for rebounding position.

Referees Jack Madden and Jess Kersey said they didn't see the punches and Parish wasn't penalized. Laimbeer appeared to push Parish in the chest or throat just before the Detroit center was hit.

Last Saturday, Laimbeer decked Bird with a hard foul. With both players on the floor, Bird punched Laimbeer and both were ejected.

"I thought it was a flagrant foul by Parish," Daly said. "but I don't have the jurisdiction to make the call."

K.C. Jones coached the Celtics despite the death Monday of his mother, Eula Jones. He is expected to miss Thursday night's game to attend her funeral Friday in San Francisco.

Royals Look Like Class Of West

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Kansas City Royals, even with George Brett absent, are looking like the class of the American League West.

Willie Wilson opened Tuesday night's game with a home run and Danny Jackson struck out a career-high 12 as the Royals beat the Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Kansas City won for the third straight time and has won 11 of its last 13, opening up a five-game lead in the AL West.

In other AL games, Detroit downed Texas 8-7 in 11 innings, Boston held off Cleveland 6-5 and Minnesota beat Milwaukee 4-2.

Jackson, 2-6, walked only one and gave up eight hits, including Greg Walker's two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning. Dan Quisenberry recorded the final two outs for his sixth save.

"He pitched great tonight," Royals Manager Billy Gardner said of Jackson. "He has lost a lot of close games but for the first time we got him a lead and he got in a good groove."

Jackson, with his nasty slider working, retired 13 straight batters at one stretch. He struck out Harold Baines four times.

Wilson hit his first home run of the season opening the game against Bill Long, 1-1.

"Hitting home runs is not my game," said Wilson, who had three hits. "My game is getting on base and making things happen."

Wilson hit a two-out double in the seventh after a single by Jamie Quirk, setting up a two-run single by Kevin Seitzer that made it 4-1.

After Walker and Ken Williams, who homered in the second, hit doubles in the eighth that pulled Chicago within 4-2, Kansas City pinch-hitter Hal McRae had an RBI single in the ninth.

Frank White's solo homer had given the Royals a 2-1 lead in the fourth.

The Royals lead second-place Minnesota and Seattle by five games, even with Brett back on the disabled list for the second time this season.

Tigers 8, Rangers 7

Kirk Gibson hit a two-out, two-run double in the bottom of the 11th inning to give Detroit its victory over Texas.

Gibson, who homered earlier in the game, doubled to left-center off Dale Moberg, 3-2, after one-out singles by Dave Bergman and Lou Whitaker. Pete O'Brien had led off the Texas 11th with a home run off winner Mike Henneman, 2-0.

The host Tigers won their third straight game and have won 11 of their last 13.

Red Sox 6, Indians 5

Dave Henderson hit a three-run homer and Wade Boggs had two doubles and a single as Boston beat visiting Cleveland. The Red Sox won two games in a row for the first time in three weeks.

Henderson's homer capped a four-run second inning and made it 5-0 against Greg Swindell, 3-4. Al Nipper, 4-4, pitched 7 1-3 innings and gave up 11 hits, including a home run by Tony Bernazard.

Joe Carter hit a three-run homer, his eighth, with two outs in the Indians' ninth against Calvin Schiraldi.

Twins 4, Brewers 2

Bert Blyleven and Jeff Reardon combined on a four-hitter and Tom Brunansky homered and tripled, leading Minnesota past visiting Milwaukee.

Blyleven, 4-4, pitched seven innings and gave up four hits, including a two-run homer by Jim Gantner. Blyleven, who allowed a major-league record 50 home runs last season, has given up 20 this year and at least one in all 11 starts.

Reardon finished with hitless relief for his 10th save.

Parker Keeps Game From Going Into Extra Innings

By BRIAN TRUSDELL
Associated Press Writer

Dave Parker used his advancing years as inspiration to beat the Chicago Cubs.

"When you're 35 years old, you don't like to go past nine innings," Parker said Tuesday night after his ninth inning lead-off homer lifted the Cincinnati Reds over the Chicago Cubs 3-2. "I said, 'I'm going to try to take one deep.'"

But Parker had a little help.

As Parker's ball headed toward the 400-foot sign in center field, Bob Dernier threw himself at the wall and stretched his glove over the top. The ball went into his glove, then popped out as he started bringing it back.

"I did have it," Dernier said. "I had to fly from the foot of the warning track. The ball was scalded. It was in the end of the glove, and the whiplash took it away."

The victory was only the Reds' third in 11 games, yet they are only one game behind division-leading San Francisco in the National League West.

"It shows that maybe our luck has changed, and my luck has changed," Parker said.

Lee Smith, who fell to 1-3, gave credit to Parker rather than blame himself.

"He hit a good pitch," Smith said. "I had it exactly where I wanted it. I think I'll change my mind about where I want it next time."

John Franco was given the victory despite allowing Chicago to tie the game 2-2 in the ninth.

Elsewhere, it was Atlanta 5, St. Louis 4; Houston 10, Pittsburgh 3; Philadelphia 3, San Diego 1; Montre 8, Los Angeles 3, and New York 3, San Francisco 2.

With the Cubs trailing 2-1, Shawon Dunston and Brian Dayett led off the ninth with singles. Gary Matthews struck out but Ryne Sandberg walked to load the bases.

Dernier hit a ball to shallow right field, but Andre Dawson followed with an RBI infield single.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the seventh on Buddy Bell's RBI single and a sacrifice fly by Nick Esasky.

The Cubs scored their first run in the eighth when Leon Durham doubled with two outs and Jody Davis singled.

Mets 3, Giants 2

Scott Garrelts' two eighth-inning wild pitches scored Keith Hernandez and Darryl Strawberry, enabling New York to rally past San Francisco.

Trailing 2-1, New York loaded the bases against Jeff Robinson, 3-3, on a single by Hernandez, a walk to Strawberry and an infield single by Mookie Wilson.

Garrelts then relieved Robinson and threw a 2-2 pitch into the dirt to Howard Johnson, allowing Hernandez to score, and two outs later threw another one to Rafael Santana, scoring Strawberry.

Doug Sisk, 1-0, pitched the seventh for the victory and Jesse Orosco pitched the final two innings for his ninth save.

Expos 8, Dodgers 3

Andres Galarraga had three RBI and Herm Winningham hit a two-run homer, pacing visiting Montreal over Los Angeles, the Expos' fourth straight victory.

Galarraga drove in the Expos' first run in the first inning with a single and hit a two-run single in the third to put Montreal ahead 4-0.

Phillies 3, Padres 1

Glenn Wilson hit a two-run, sixth-inning homer to help Shane Rawley win his fourth consecutive game as Philadelphia beat San Diego.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Padres, who have lost six of their last seven. The win was the Phillies' eighth in their last 11 games.

Wilson's seventh homer came off San Diego starter Jimmy Jones, 0-2.

Rawley, 5-2, allowed five hits, struck out six and walked five in 7 1-3 innings. Steve Bedrosian pitched the last 1 2-3 innings for his ninth save.

Braves 5, Cardinals 4

Ken Griffey's sixth inning, lead-off homer snapped a 4-4 tie and Doyle Alexander made a successful 1987 debut as Atlanta beat St. Louis.

"You Gotta See This House"

When it's a custom built home by CWC Developers, Inc., it's a home that's built to last for years of enjoyment. It's a home where every detail has been considered and not a corner has been cut... the difference in a quality home built by CWC Developers, Inc. Now that's construction with class.

BRITTANY RIDGE

This beautiful home is so well designed that you'll find it hard to believe it has less than 2000 square feet. Built to E-300 energy efficient specifications, this home features a whirlpool tub, a fireplace, insulated windows, an illuminated kitchen ceiling, a parquet foyer and Dupont stainmaster carpet. For outdoor enjoyment, there's a custom two tier deck. A high efficiency heat pump and an open-air garage make this home complete for the perfect opportunity for home ownership. Lot 17-B off Jennifer Place in the Brittany Ridge subdivision.

Remote Hamlet Gives Glimpse Of 19th Century

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

SAWYERS BAR, Calif. — A visit to this remote Siskiyou County hamlet wedged between a towering cliff and the north fork of the Salmon River is almost like a journey into the 19th century.

So isolated is the village that it has no electricity, no television and not even much radio reception.

Nor do many of the 150 or so residents — mainly loggers, miners, woodsmen and their families — have indoor plumbing.

Yet, they seem to like it here.

"We have never missed the city," said Teresa Johnson, 32, the Town Hall secretary whose husband works in a nearby gold mine. "We moved here 10 years ago from La Habra (Calif.) We fell in love with Sawyers Bar. We liked the people and the old-fashioned way of life."

A few families have been here since the 1880s and early part of this century. Some are escapists seeking the quieter life. Others are here because there is work for them as miners and foresters.

Ten-year-old Wook "Wookie" McBroom, whose family has lived here for four generations, is not bothered by the fact that there is no television. "Don't miss what we've never had," he said.

Wookie said he hikes in the woods, fishes in the river and plays with his friends after school until it gets dark. "I eat dinner, do my homework by kerosene lantern, then go to bed," he said. "We go to bed early around here."

Bear and deer meat are eaten more than beef and chicken in Sawyers Bar. Families often hunt for their food. Wookie (who is named after his grandfather) said he knows that not many kids elsewhere have eaten bear and "I bet fewer have ever eaten rattlesnake." The latter, he said, tastes like "a mix between hamburger and chicken."

Sawyers Bar, embraced by the Klamath National Forest and on the edge of Marble Mountain Wilderness, is 25 miles from the outside world via a twisting, one-lane mountain road. The road clings precariously above the Salmon River much of the way. Etna is the nearest town. Yreka, the county seat, is 55 miles to the northeast.

The people of Sawyers Bar are scattered up and down the river and in narrow gulches leading north and south from the river with a few living "downtown" in a dozen rustic homes and cabins.

"Downtown" is a tiny post office erected in 1969 (with lumber from the old Little North Fork Bridge), the general store, the weather-beaten house and the two-room school with 29 pupils in kindergarten through eighth grade.

When a baby is born in Sawyers Bar, each woman prepares a square for a baby quilt, Johnson said. When someone dies, the men make the coffin and the women decorate the inside with fabric and "with loving care, so it's not just a box," she said. Then the men dig the grave in the little cemetery.

Men and women of the hamlet donated their time and materials to

REMOTE SCHOOL — Pupils at the Sawyers Bar School in a hamlet near the north fork of the Salmon River in northern California put away their generator-powered computers for the day. The hamlet has only electricity supplied by a generator during day-light hours, has no television and little radio. Telephone service is available, but reception is poor. (L.A. Times-Washington Post Photo) build the frame Town Hall in 1971. But the building has been padlocked for the past year and a half because the people of Sawyers Bar cannot afford to pay an annual $1,200 liability insurance policy that the State of California requires.

The nearest doctor and dentist are an hour and a half away in Fort Jones.

Postmaster Sandra Reynolds, 29, who is also secretary of the school board, often rides her horse, Baby, to and from work. She opens the post office three hours a day, six days a week, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. It is without electrical lights and is heated by a wood stove. She is paid $365 a month.

The postmaster has two children, ages 8 and 10. Her husband works for the U.S. Forest Service and is based in Sawyers Bar.

Last year at a community meeting, townspeople were asked to list the needs of Sawyers Bar. Topping the list was "getting computers for the school so our kids will be ready for the computer age." This year, the school has five new Apple computers acquired through a grant.

Although no power lines lead to the town, the school is served by a generator during the day. "Sometimes we spend hours in the dark when the generator goes out," said Bill

Slocum, 42, principal and teacher.

Slocum has lived in Sawyers Bar for two years. He said he was teaching in a San Jose, Calif., junior high school when he heard about the opening for teacher-principal at Sawyers Bar. He took it because it enables him to teach four classes at once and still be an administrator.

"The quality of life here is surprisingly livable," Slocum said. "People do extremely well without regular power, without television, without many things people in other places take for granted. I'm thoroughly enjoying the experience."

Monthly potlucks, dances and bingo games are held at the school.

Siskiyou County Sheriff's Sgt. Larry Schaller, 42, said the people of Sawyers Bar settle most of their problems among themselves because it takes a deputy 1½ to 2 hours to respond to a call from the hamlet.

There are a few phones in town and the reception on them leaves much to be desired.

"We have to get along in an isolated place like this," said gold miner Wayne Burke, 70. "Any time we get any rotten eggs in here we ostracize them; we ace them out."

VILLAGE AHEAD — The hamlet of Sawyers Bar, Calif., lies behind a sign warning that pedestrians may be on the road. The remote village, isolated by nature in its northern California habitat, offers visitors a glimpse of what 19th century life may have been. (L.A. Times-Washington Post Photo)

Chinese Would-Be Yuppie Has Plan To 'Make It Big'

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

CHONGQING, China — At 20, fresh-faced Guan Li is full of spunk and ambition.

"I want to make it big," Guan declared in fluent, American-style English. "People in China aren't afraid of getting rich anymore," said the young woman, who has adopted the English name Catherine, with a voice full of confidence.

Guan, a university student who works part-time for a private shipping company here, sports a silver necklace and a designer-style blue-jean jacket imported from Hong Kong.

Most Chinese women her age would choose marriage and a secure, low-paying job in a state-owned company over the risks that Guan hopes to take.

But with a year to go before graduating from Yuzhou University in Chongqing, she said she may never get married. She said she wants to join a private business and then, perhaps, even start her own clothing boutique.

Her openness about her ambitions, and her decidedly "bourgeois" tastes, reveal much about the limits that have been placed on the Chinese Communist Party's current ideological drive against "bourgeois liberalization," or Western influences.

Officials are critical these days of those Chinese who are "bourgeois" enough to search eagerly for profits and consumer goods.

But according to young Chinese in this smog-blackened industrial city about 1,000 miles southwest of Beiing, if one is not bent on directly challenging the leadership of the party, one can still get away with much that looks distinctly bourgeois.

Far less inhibited than many other Chinese, the slender, long-legged Guan will also be the closest equivalent to a Chinese yuppie if she realizes her ambition.

She likes to dance to disco music and listen to tapes of Tchaikovsky's symphonies. If she has no partner, the energetic Guan dances alone.

She has little interest in politics. When she saw student demonstrators marching toward the city hall in Chongqing a few months ago, she marched the other way. The students reportedly were protesting bad food at the university.

Guan's father holds an important position as a manager in a steel factory, and both her parents are party members. But unlike her parents, Guan has no desire to join the party. "My parents and I have different views on this," she said.

Following her university graduation, Guan's plan is to join the Chongqing Universal Shipping Co., where she already works part-time.

This private company was established in Chongqing in late 1984, mainly on the basis of investments from Chinese citizens who have well-to-do relatives living in the United States and elsewhere overseas.

Eventually, Guan said, she would like to form her own export-import company and then a boutique selling fashionable clothing.

All of this is possible in today's China, but there are limits on how far private businesses can expand. Most such businesses have a maximum of six to eight employees.

Guan recognizes that it might be difficult for her to start her own trading company. "Maybe starting a fashion shop would be more realistic, because our country has a planned economy," she said.

According to official reports, 18.5 million Chinese are engaged in about 12 million private businesses across China. They control 11.8 percent of the country's retail sales, an official newspaper said recently.

In Chongqing, most private enterprises are family-size operations, including the best clothing shops in the city and many small but popular restaurants.

Guan said some private salesmen in the city can earn more than $270 a month, which is about 10 times more

CAMP SPRINGS, Md. (AP) — Every few minutes, rain or shine, day and night, a giant computer here runs millions of numbers through a series of equations for meteorologists to use in forecasting weather conditions around the world.

But high technology isn't always enough.

"It's always a good idea to look out the window," acknowledges Richard W. Schwerdt, glancing into a bright, sunny afternoon outside the National Weather Service's World Weather Building.

That caution by Schwerdt, who produces forecasts for Washington, D.C., reflects the way people have forecast the weather for thousands of years — by looking at the sky.

But a good weather eye is getting a lot of help from sophisticated computers these days and the National Weather Service forecasts are becoming increasingly accurate and detailed, looking farther into the future.

"Forecasts of three days are now as accurate as forecasts of 1½ days were a dozen years ago," says Ronald L. Lavoie of the weather service's Office of Meteorology in Silver Spring, several miles north of Schwerdt's forecast center and the computer operation. Correspondingly, he says, the five-day forecasts are as accurate now as the two-day predictions once were.

"Our data show a steady improvement over a 20-year period in local forecasts for 24-, 36- and 48-hour periods," adds Paul D. Polger, who is in charge of tracking the accuracy of the weather service forecasts. "The improvement is statistically significant."

Joe D'Aleo, director of meteorology for The Weather Channel, an Atlanta-based national cable television service, agrees. "I think they have improved, and the prospect is good for further improvement."

"Their ability to detect and communicate severe weather has improved with satellites and radar. Also, their communications system improvements allow them to more quickly process messages and then transmit forecasts and warnings."

A big gain has been in the three-to-five day forecasts, which simply didn't exist a decade or two ago. That was just too far in the future to predict the weather with any accuracy.

Now, Weather Service meteorologists routinely forecast the weather five days ahead with confidence — "with some skill," in Lavoie's words.

And, although they won't call it a forecast yet, a group headed by Dr. Donald Gilman is even using computers to generate a weather "outlook" for 30 days and 90 days in the future, although it's a pretty general picture.

A chart showing how National Weather Service forecasts over the past few decades compare with what actually happened outdoors looks like a series of plateaus — a step up each time a new computer allows more detail to be used in calculating the current and future weather.

"If you're looking at the progression over a period of time, 30 years ago we used fairly subjective means, drawing lines on charts and moving the lines forward," Lavoie says.

The big computers came into their own in the mid-50s and since then the improvement has been in steps. "Each more powerful computer allows a more realistic model to be run, including better physics and so forth," Lavoie explains.

The starting point for any forecast is, of course: What is the weather doing now?

To find out, meteorologists in more than a hundred countries around the world — and at hundreds of locations in the United States — take detailed measurements twice a day.

This is done everywhere at the same time, at noon and midnight

Greenwich mean time — 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. EST — so that the result is a detailed picture of the weather of the whole world.

Those calculations are shared by all the countries and fed into computers which calculate what is happening.

Then, using about six basic equations for winds, temperature, humidity, precipitation and other factors, the computer calculates what will be happening in the world's weather in a few minutes and draws that worldwide picture.

From that, it calculates what the situation will be in another few minutes, and so on into the future, 10 or 15 minutes — or less — at a time.

The length of those forward steps varies, depending on the detail of the information and which weather data is being used, explains Dr. John Brown, chief of the Development Division at the computer operation. Some steps move forward in 75-

PBS Offers Thought-Provoking Show In 'Faces Of The Enemy'

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Does a soldier who kills in a war develop his concept of "enemies" the way a cold-blooded murderer might?
That is a theory put forth by theologian and author Sam Keen in the thought-provoking film "Faces of the Enemy" on PBS tonight.
Keen says that before society engages in war, it creates an "enemy" in its collective mind. "First we think each other to death, then we make a battle ax or a ballistic missile," he says.
He uses propaganda posters and political cartoons collected from around the world to show how enemies are portrayed similarly, be they Japanese, Jewish, Iranian, Soviet, American. All are pictured as demons and liars and often as vile vermin.

"It's as if all these propaganda artists went to the same art school," Keen says. The dehumanizing of enemies is essential, he says, to make it acceptable for society to kill them.
Keen asks the rhetorical question, "How do these images affect the individual? Because it is the individual who has to make the decision to kill."
To at least partially answer that question, Keen risks turning off his audience by jumping quickly to an interview with David Rice, a drifter convicted last year of bludgeoning to death a Seattle family of four.
A jury found Rice guilty after rejecting defense arguments that he was insane because he thought the family was part of a communist invasion. Rice says he got the notion from the rhetoric of Jack Mohr, a retired army general and head of a fervently anti-communist group.

Mohr denies suggesting any such thing.
Keen says he doesn't expect to draw realistic parallels between Rice's behavior and sanctioned violence in times of war.
"I did think someone who claimed he killed for ideological reasons might give me some clues into the process of enemy-making," Keen says, insisting that Rice's delusions "were based on reality. We perceive the Soviets as our enemies and they perceive us as theirs."
Cut to Keen interviewing the eminently reasonable Vladimir Posner, a Western-raised spokesman for the Soviets. Posner says the Soviet Union has no intention of dominating the world by force, but simply presumes communism will take over in a natural evolution of human society.

Cybill Cites Screaming On The Set

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Cybill Shepherd says she's been a screamer on the set of "Moonlighting," but not just because her character, Maddie Hayes, has outbursts on the hit TV series.
"Every script had a screaming Maddie for a while," the 37-year-old star said in TV Guide's May 30 issue. "Sexist, unflattering, stupid things" were happening to her character, she said.
She said that she, co-star Bruce Willis, who plays partner David Addison, and "Moonlighting" creator Glenn Gordon Caron often clashed.
"We have actor's moods. We are all very volatile personalities. There are times when the three of us — Bruce, Glenn and I — are all screaming at each other," she said.
"The time was getting to me, too," she said, adding that she told producers she did not wish to work more than a 12-hour day.
Caron said he could understand, because "I have a performance-oriented show, and if the performers aren't feeling good or confident, it won't work."

Spotlight

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Children's entertainment was in the spotlight at Brown University's commencement, which honored "Sesame Street" developer Joan Ganz Cooney and Dr. Theodor Geisel, better known as Dr. Seuss.
Cooney was greeted with a spontaneous rendition of the public TV show's theme at the Monday commencement during which she and Geisel received honorary degrees.
Singing celebrity Stevie Wonder, who was among others awarded honorary degrees, sang from the porch of a school building after the ceremony.

NEW BRIDGE — The footbridge over a stream at the drainage end of a pond in River Park North along the nature trail has been in a state of architectural flux in recent years. At first, passage was by stepping over a few rocks in the stream, followed by a makeshift structure of broken tile and teetering pieces of plywood. Later, a sturdy wooden footbridge spanned the stream. That disappeared in the early April high waters that inundated the ponds and streams. The latest bridge installation, shown above, is a sturdy dike-like structure of sandbags over a large metal culvert. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Census Projects Changes

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — If there's one piece of advice researcher Paul Glick would give after studying America's population for almost 50 years, it's that men should hold on to their women.

Glick, former chief demographer for the U.S. Census Bureau, has worked on the government's tally every decade since 1940. What he sees in the next two decades is the end of many trends that have molded American society since then.

Following World War II, millions of men left the armed forces, married and settled down, and America entered a period of prosperity and family-building known as the "baby boom."

During the postwar years, a shortage of men of marriageable age produced what became known as the "marriage squeeze," Glick said.

While women outnumbered men, the divorce rate rose as men were confident they could find a second mate if they became dissatisfied with the first, he said. Unmarried women were forced into the job market, which contributed to the women's liberation movement.

But now that the baby boom's effects are ending, the squeeze is headed the other way as men outnumber women.

"The men have got to hold on to the women," he said.

The trend will lead to more stable marriages and halt the steady rise in the divorce rate, which has changed little since 1980 when it peaked with nearly half of all marriages ending in divorce, he said.

Glick made his remarks after a presentation in which he reflected on his career for Arizona State University students. He retired from the Census Bureau six years ago but continues his research at age 76 as an ASU adjunct professor of sociology.

Glick's specialty has been observations of the American family that he culled from thousands of census reports.

He was instrumental in identifying many of the major characteristics about U.S. society that are the basis for many laws — determining the age of adulthood, categorizing the major racial and ethnic groups, and noting the rise of households maintained by unmarried couples.

Students' Work On Display

GOLDSBORO — "We're So Proud," an exhibit of work by students in watercolor and oil painting classes sponsored by the Community Arts Council and Wayne Community College, will be on display at the Community Arts Council beginning Sunday and continuing through June 19.

A reception, free and open to the public, will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday. The gallery is located in Herman Park Center, 901 E. Ash St., Goldsboro. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. For more details, call 736-3300.

'Bed And Breakfast' Booklet

RALEIGH — An information booklet on what people need to know about "Opening a Bed and Breakfast" in North Carolina is now available. The booklet, which covers investments, regulations and other topics, is offered for $1 and can be ordered from: UNC Sea Grant, Box 8605, N.C. State University, Raleigh, N.C., 27695. Ask for UNC-SG-84-03.

Halifax Tour Is Scheduled

HALIFAX — Discussions of early excavations at Historic Halifax, awarding of certificates of appreciation, a tour of Halifax and election of officers will be highlights of the third annual meeting of The Friends of North Carolina Archaeology Inc. in Halifax on Saturday.

At the day-long meeting, Stanley South, archaeologist at the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology, Columbia, will discuss his early excavations at Halifax. He has recently directed work at the Spanish fort of Santa Elena on Parris Island, S.C.

Volunteers, corporations and other groups and individuals will receive certificates of appreciation for their support of North Carolina archaeology and for the Friends of North Carolina Archaeology.

Members and guests will tour Historic Halifax State Historic Site. The meeting is open to the public and those interested in North Carolina archaeology are encouraged to attend. For more details, call 733-7342.

Park Program Features Frogs

GATESVILLE — At 7 p.m. Saturday, a program, "Feeling Froggy," will be presented at Merchants Millpond State Park near Gatesville. Frogs and toads will be the subject of the program which will begin with a lecture and slides of the various species to be found in the park.

After the inside portion of the program, those attending will be taken along the shores of the pond to try to find frogs and to listen to their singing and mating calls.

The program begins at the interpretive building near the canoe rental area. Those attending are to bring flashlights and sturdy walking shoes. Sensible clothing with long sleeves, trousers or slacks is recommended, as is insect repellent.

This is the fifth special event program at the park for 1987. For more information call 357-1191.

Skateboard

NEILTON, Wash. (AP) — A 24-year-old man died from injuries suffered in a skateboard accident that left him face down in a shallow creek at the bottom of a 25-foot embankment, authorities said.

Robert Lee Ezell, a landscaper, died early Sunday after borrowing the skateboard he had seen at a friend's house. He had removed his glasses before riding the board down a steep grade.

Ezell apparently tried to jump off the board after failing to negotiate a turn but apparently was propelled over the embankment, the coroner said.

Navy F-8 Crusader Retired

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the U.S. Navy's most famous airplanes of the postwar era — one that John Glenn used to set a transcontinental speed record and that he calls "an old friend" — has joined the illustrious roll of great aircraft of the past.

The F-8 Crusader, the Navy's first supersonic jet fighter, served for 31 years as both a fighter and a photo reconnaissance plane. Recently, in formal ceremonies at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, the last five Crusaders on active duty as Light Photographic Squadron 206 were formally put out to pasture.

No one was more sentimental about the occasion than Glenn, the former U.S. Marine pilot and astronaut and now U.S. senator from Ohio.

"I loved that plane and it was pretty good to me, too," said Glenn. "Although it always is painful to see an old friend retire, at least we know the F-8 paved the way or new generations of supersonic fighters to keep our strength in the skies. But to me it will always seem that when you're out of F-8s, you're out of fighters."

The first F-8, which achieved supersonic speed on its maiden test flight at Edwards Air Force Base in California on March 25, 1955, now is the property of the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum here. All told, the LTV Aircraft Products Group of Dallas produced 1,261 of the fighters between 1953 and the final rollout in 1965.

Glenn, then a major in the U.S. Marines and still years from his career as an astronaut, was the pilot of the first supersonic transcontinental flight on July 16, 1957, when he flew his F-8 Crusader from Los Angeles to New York in a stunning three hours, 23 minutes, 8.4 seconds.

Other historic accomplishments by the F-8:

— It played a major role in the Cuban missile crisis in 1962, obtaining many of the photographs which gave President John F. Kennedy proof of the construction of missile sites in Cuba.

North Carolina's first Baptist Conference was organized in Greenville in 1830.

Weather Forecasting Is Getting Better, But Chance Is Still There

second increments while others don't have to be calculated as often.

"It really takes a supercomputer to do this," Brown chuckles. "You have to do it faster than the weather evolves, or you aren't making a forecast."

The computer calculates these steps for six hours, prints out a weather map of the expected conditions, then goes at it again to extend the conditions to 12 hours.

"The trouble is, of course, that there are simplifications in the physics and there are features that you haven't been able to fully identify and observe, which grow and begin to make the projection incorrect," Lavoie explains.

So, he says, "that essentially produces a limit on the usefulness of the prediction, which is currently at about six or seven days."

Beyond that, the larger patterns of temperature or moisture trends can be foreseen, but smaller things like a low pressure area or a cold front development may be missed.

The basic models are rerun twice a day to use the new worldwide information being sent in, except for the longest term forecasts, which are done only once a day.

American forecasters have three weather models: more general ones cover the world, and a detailed model of the weather over North America looks at smaller areas with more accuracy.

But Lavoie stresses that "the responsibility for the forecast is at the local level, the local forecast office."

While the big computer compiles worldwide conditions and reports what it thinks will happen across the nation, that information is merely guidance for meteorologists who must use their own local knowledge and training to produce specific forecasts.

Until three years ago, national forecasters added their interpretation to the computer models before sending them out to the local offices. Now the computer models have become so good they can be sent directly to local forecasters, who modify them with local information.

"Of course, the computers depend upon data, so one has to also give some credit to the improved data, satellite data for example, that is fed into the models," Lavoie says.

Much of this improvement stems from the World Weather Experiment conducted in the late 1970s, a concentrated effort to see how much detailed weather data could be collected all over the planet.

"The further you go out in time, the more distant the influences that can affect the forecast are, so at five days and beyond we would definitely be affected by features on the other side of the globe," Lavoie says.

"Most countries recognized the improvements that were available from this enhanced observing system, so they made an effort to maintain this level."

When most folks think about the weather, they wonder if it will rain on the barbecue, if they'll need an overcoat or whether snow will mess up traffic the next day.

"Of course, what people would like to know is the exact eventual snow depth to the nearest inch and that's still a very difficult proposition," Lavoie says.

"One of the difficulties in this whole business is the variability, which is particularly extreme in the summer with showers and thunderstorms, but even in the winter, when people think that a storm produces fairly uniform results, we find that there are swaths just a few miles across sometimes in which conditions may be quite significantly different than elsewhere."

Better computers have also improved the performance of the Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., which issues tornado and severe storm watches for the whole nation.

And the future looks even more promising with the impending arrival of Nexrad, the next generation weather radar which will give an even better picture of sky and wind conditions. Nexrad is expected to go into service in 1989, jointly paid for by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the Federal Aviation Administration and the Department of Defense.

Advanced radars used experimentally in Oklahoma have provided vastly improved tornado warnings, while reducing the number of false alarms, Polger says.

Many people chide their local forecasters when they warn of an 80 percent chance of rain and the sun shines all day.

"When we put out a probability of 80 percent, I think in the public mind they certainly expect it to rain," Polger says.

"In order to achieve 100 percent accuracy, all our forecasts would have to be expressed as either a zero chance of rain or 100 percent chance of rain and every one of them be correct."

"That's completely unrealistic, because by nature these precipitation systems are spotty. And if you're forecasting for an area, and you have showers moving around through the area, there's no way that those showers are going to wet every part of that area."

So, says Lavoie, "The only realistic way to express the forecast is the probability that some parts are going to get rain and some are not, and that's the way it is."

Pole-Sitter Follows In Mom's Footsteps

By LISA PERLMAN

Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Perched 43 feet above a parking lot, on two telephone poles, Melissa Sanders has celebrated her birthday, bathed in an inflatable tub and kept company for more than 200 days with a feline appropriately called Pole Cat.

On May 25, she'll equal the pole-sitting feat her mother achieved in 1958, but she won't climb down, she insists, until she's raised more money for research on cancer, which has stricken her sister.

"Mom thinks it's great, but she won't come up here," Melissa said with a laugh. "She was crazy when she was young, but not anymore."

If Melissa can stay in her 6-by-7-foot house atop the poles until March 14, 1988, she'll break the current pole-sitting record, 488 days. According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the mark was set in July 1965 by Mark Sutton of Victoria, British Columbia.

Twenty-nine years ago, Melissa's mother, Mauri Rose Kirby, then 17, sat for 211 days in a 3-by-6-foot box 71 feet in the air as part of a publicity stunt for a drive-in restaurant on Indianapolis' south side. It was a record at the time.

The South Pole restaurant, in whose parking lot Melissa perches, is also on the south side. Owner Richard P. Turner thought of the stunt in 1963 when he took his brother, who suffers from cancer, to a chemotherapy treatment.

"I saw the suffering he was going through and I felt so helpless," Turner said. "I thought I could use my talents in the restaurant business and open a place up and raise money for cancer research."

Although his goal is to raise $100,000, donations are trickling in. Since October only $3,000 has been donated. Twenty percent of whatever is raised will go to Melissa, 10 percent will go toward expenses and the rest will go to the Indiana University Hospital for Cancer Research.

Melissa, who grew up in Tucson, Ariz., says she's wanted to set the pole-sitting record since she was 12, but was waiting for the right time. That time came last summer, when a relative in Indianapolis called to tell her about a newspaper advertisement for a pole-sitter.

"Two months later I was here," she said. She climbed the poles Oct. 26, 1986.

"My friends thought I was crazy and that I couldn't do it. I know it's kind of crazy, but I think I can dedicate a year of my life to this. If we can raise the money, it'll be well worth my time."

Artful graffiti, telephone numbers (Melissa has two phones) and drawings of cartoon characters grace the walls. She has a color television and two portable stereos. "I win radio contests all the time," she boasted.

than the average monthly wage here.

Under senior leader Deng Xiaoping, the Communist Party began in the early 1980s to encourage the rapid growth of limited forms of private enterprise. The aim has been to improve services, stimulate competition from sluggish state-owned enterprises and provide employment to millions of youths who might otherwise not find jobs.

But some shop owners note that the party has never produced a long-range plan on how far private enterprise will be allowed to develop in China.

Social security and other benefits available to most Chinese who are assigned jobs by the state have never been extended to shop owners, some of whom complain that they are subject to harassment or unauthorized "taxation" by officials.

Ren Zhonglin, a high-ranking national official responsible for industry and commerce, said recently that "individual economic activity has become an indispensable part of China's socialist economy ..."

But the official press frequently accuses private businessmen of engaging in tax evasion and price gouging.

With a staff of 230, the shipping company that Guan Li works for is unusual. It is being allowed to expand rapidly, because it is attracting investment and is supposed to support China's export trade eventually.

Yu Guoshen, the company's general manager, said in an interview that the company is paying taxes and creating jobs without any investment from the state.

The company owns three tugboats and 12 barges that carry cargo up and down the Yangtze River. Within three years, the company plans to break into the international shipping market, Yu said.

He speaks disparagingly of a competing company that receives heavy support from the Chinese government. "They call themselves private," he said. "But they get big bank loans from the state."

A Riveting Sight

San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge opened fifty years ago today. The 1.7-mile-long bridge took four years to build and cost about $35 million. The towers anchoring the bridge contain enough cement to pave a sidewalk from San Francisco to New York. The steel cable supports could circle the equator three times. When the huge suspension bridge first opened, 200,000 people strolled across it. Officials later realized that souvenir hunters took about 200 rivets with them.

DO YOU KNOW — The Golden Gate Bridge links San Francisco to what well-known county?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The Wright brothers made their first flight in Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY May 28

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After some delays you find that all kinds of interesting new ideas and plans of action come into play. You will be able to put more spark and enthusiasms in your activities.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You have all kinds of ways to get rid of conditions that do not please you. Replace them with those you like.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): An expert in finance can be of great assistance to you. Make contact with this person soon.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Avoid a partner who depressed you. Go after what you desire with the utmost of confidence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): It's a good day to contact those who have the information you have been seeking.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): It's time to see friends who have fine progressive ideas. You can make new contacts that will improve your social life, too.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be sure to get out into the active world and accomplish a great deal. Staying at home will accomplish nothing.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Take time from regular routines so that you can plan how to handle important affairs more wisely.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): It's a good time to have a talk with one in business. Be of assistance to your mate for fine results.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be with a young and clever person and make yourself more cheerful. Be tactful in relationships.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Handle that old duty and then you know just how to be more productive in your regular activities.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Meet the expectations of a good friend. You understand how to make your special talents work better.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Know what kind desire the most and get at it. This can bring fine results provided you're charming.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will need to work harder than others to learn lessons at school, but once the habit is formed your progeny can become more alive, alert and enthused than all the rest. Whether male or female, this child will do well in sales. There is no limit to the success.

As a general principle, you signal attitude at trick one—whether you like the lead or not. However, suppose dummy shows up with a singleton in the suit led. Now third hand can use a suit preference signal: the highest card in the suit led requests a shift to the higher-ranking side suit; a low card asks for the lower. But what if he wants opener to continue the suit led? A bit of card-reading and a modicum of intelligence can work wonders.

Consider this hand, where North-South quickly found their way to six spades. Note that North had no inclination to probe for a grand slam—a preemptive opening denies possession of two aces, so North knew his side was off a quick trick.

On this type of auction it is often unwise not to cash an ace right away, and West had no hesitation in choosing the ace of diamonds as his opening lead. East could see that, if he could get his partner to continue with a diamond, thereby forcing dummy to ruff, he would score a trump trick to defeat the slam. How could he prevent his partner from shifting at trick two?

SIGNAL THE SHIFT

East chose to follow to the first trick with the eight of diamonds, and it was up to West to read its meaning. West could not be sure the eight was not his partner's lowest diamond, but a club shift didn't seem right. And East certainly had to have a higher diamond, and could have used that to signal for a heart. So West wisely decided his partner did not want a shift, and he continued with another diamond. It took declarer only a few moments to realize that his contract had gone the way of all flesh when West showed out on the first trump lead.

Wolf

By Teresa Lambe

Wolf was the most beautiful person I had ever seen. He had a face so full of love you thought it would never stop smiling. Every wrinkle on it was from years of laughing at life. I never heard him doing anything other than laughing.

His eyes were a deep, velvety brown, the color of freshly turned earth. They shone out on all the world, taking you in at a glance. Wolf's eyes looked almost as if God had reached into the earth and plucked two purplish-brown rubies out, and placed them in his face.

Snub-nosed and perky, but with an aqualine tone, his nose provided majestic lines to his otherwise laid back face. Wolf's lips were thin and expressive, but forever moving. In all the years I knew him, they were either talking, laughing, or just mumbling secrets to himself.

His metallic grey hair stood out at all angles from his weatherbeaten face. Wolf didn't spend time combing it, he figured that "if God wanted me to have slicked down hair, he would have been born that way." The silkness of his hair fell a little below his shirt collar; he was always meaning to get it cut.

Wolf was the man who taught me how to fish. All through the summer he would stand on the banks of some obscure creek, showing me how to cast and reel the fish in. There he presided, intent on a scrawny 10-year-old in cut off jeans and a T-shirt. He'd shout at me, but then he'd laugh seeing how hard I was trying.

We spent many lazy hours together on the creaky wooden porch behind his house, drinking lemonade from tall glasses through swizzle straws. We'd talk about the fish we'd caught or how many butterflies he had helped me catch or about how we wished school would never come.

I went to visit Wolf yesterday. He lay between the cool white sheets, not laughing, for once his lips still. The fire in his eyes was extinguished by heavily drawn lids.

As I stood there, in my dry-cleaned suit and alligator skin heels, I felt him slipping away. It wasn't visible, just as though his mind was detaching from mine. Pulling from me ... the way glue will peel off your skin if you let it dry long enough.

The nurse walked in and pulled the dry sheets over his ruby eyes covered by those dark eyelids.

"I'm sorry, Ms. Van Steuvanson," she said in a voice as white as the sheets Wolf lay on.

I felt my mouth move, repeating the words — "Good bye, Wolf ... good bye."

I did not bother to brush the tears away, as I once more stood on the bank of the creek, catching crappies and sunfish.

My World

By Nancy Dunn

My own little world.
No one in it but me.
My thoughts and I
Running around free

Dreams and ideas
Flying through my head,
While I,
Lie asleep in my bed.

In the morning

I get out of bed
But I know that
My world is not dead.

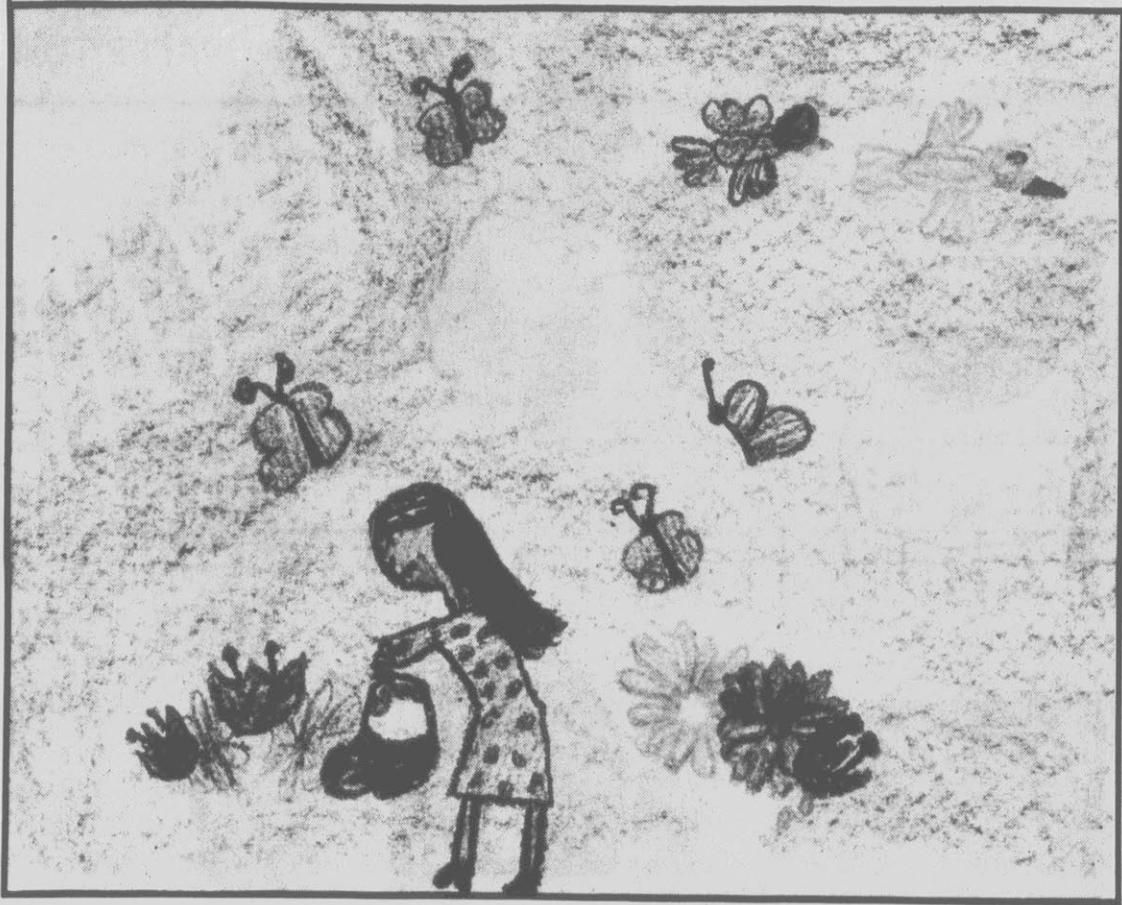

My world is great
It comes every night,
While I,
Sleep tight.

I climb under the Covers once more,

To see my world
Almost the same as before.

My dream world.
Nobody's but mine.
I love my world
Because it is mine.

The Sports Car

By McKinsey Sheperd

Once there was a goose, pig and a cow, and they lived in a big house on a hill. It is very, very pretty on that hill. Grass grows and everything. Then they all were going on a field trip, when they noticed that they didn't have a car. So they went to Joe Cullipher Subaru and bought a brand new sports car. It was a candy-apple red Peugeot. And they flew down to the train station and went on their field trip.

McKinsey Sheperd, 8, a student at Eastern Elementary School receives special mention.

Alley Cat

By Susan Coleridge Chesson

I saw a little alley cat walking down the street.
He seemed to be a little nice and a little sweet.
But when I tried to pick him up,
I saw that he was really tough!

He was really a fatty, too!
He even tried to bite my shoe!

Susan Coleridge Chesson, 7, a student at W.H. Robinson School receives special mention.

Dreams

By Neil Harrington

I lie in my bed and can only think about my trip with dad to go fish. I'm so excited. I can't sleep a wink. For tomorrow to get here is my wish. The sun arises as the birds fly free; upon the water the sunbeams dance. Gentle wind ripples the glassy sea. And now the time has come for my big chance. Casting out the line with my hopes sky high, dreams of an "8 pounder" race through my mind, as many little and big fish pass it by. I await a catch with all cares behind. And finally all my hopes and dreams come true, as I reel in the big one, a great blue.

Neil Harrington, 17, a Student at D.H. Conley High School receives special mention.

Herbs They Bring Out The Best In Foods

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Used to garnish the table as well as to season dishes with flavor and sensory appeal, herbs can bring out the best in foods.

"Every since year one people have had mint in their back yards for their tea," said Betty Grossnickle, who uses herbs when teaching cooking at the Kitchen Cupboard Ltd. in Greenville.

"People tend to associate basil and oregano with tomatoes; tarragon for fish dishes, sage for stuffing in Thanksgiving," she said. "Rosemary is marvelous with fresh lamb.

"Marjoram and thyme are classic combinations for seasoning stews, gravy and vegetables."

The best way to learn how to cook with herbs is to experiment, Ms. Grossnickle said. "Sit down and have a tasting party" by combining a mixture of a 1/2 pound of mild cheddar cheese and 2 tablespoons sour cream.

Separate the mixture into portions and add an herb to each one. Let it set for about an hour and taste each one.

Another approach is to try recipes that use one herb and become familiar with its characteristics and the food it enhances. Then try combining herbs, remembering to avoid combining two strong herbs such as sage and rosemary.

When combining a strong and a delicate herb in the same dish, keep the strong herb to a minimum so as not to overpower the delicate one.

Fresh herbs may be substituted for dry herbs in most recipes, but "dried herbs are more potent," Ms. Grossnickle said, so the amounts must be adjusted. The basic rule is 1 tablespoon of fresh herbs for each teaspoon of dried herbs, or 3 to 1.

Fresh herbs lose their flavor when cooked any length of time. They test best when added to the dish a few minutes before it is done. They also may be sprinkled on the food before it is served. Bay is the only exception to this as it releases flavor only when cooked an extended time.

Herbs "are very easy to grow," Ms. Grossnickle said. "If you've got a black thumb, you can grow herbs."

She has a raised-bed herb garden of basil, rosemary, thyme, french tarragon, oregano, marjoram, dill and comfrey. "The more you pinch them (off), the more they grow," she said.

Herbs may be preserved through drying, freezing or pureeing.

Try the Salsa Tricolore recipe listed below. It creates a delicious oil bath for grilled fish, chicken and other meats. It is especially tasty with cold meats or vegetables.

Pesto is "probably the most famous herb sauce," Ms. Grossnickle said. It may be used on garlic bread, as sauce for pasta, on baked or broiled fish or as salad dressing.

Try those and other recipes listed below from Ms. Grossnickle and "Herbs" by Emelie Tolley and Chris Meade.

Heart-Healthy Foods Don't Have To Be Bland

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

If the thought of eating heart-healthy foods brings bad connotations of too much effort for bland meals, try the recipes distributed at "Fast Track Eating — Setting The Pace For Good Nutrition," a recent food forum in Chapel Hill.

The recipes featuring ideas for breakfast, appetizers, soups, main dishes, vegetables, sauces and dressings, breads and dessert are compiled from the American Heart Association Cookbook, the Culinary Hearts Kitchen Cooking Course, Culinary Hearts Kitchen Cooking Course Low Sodium Supplement and Lighten Up Quantity Recipe Cards.

MASTER MIX

3/4 cups baking powder
3 tablespoons salt
2 tablespoons cream of tartar
2-1/2 cups nonfat dry milk powder
1/2 cup of sugar
10 cups all purpose flour
10 cups whole wheat flour
2 pounds corn oil margarine
Stir baking powder, salt, cream of tartar, dry milk and sugar into unsifted flour mix. Cut in the shortening till it resembles coarse cornmeal. Place in canister with tight lid; store in the refrigerator. Yield: 28 cups.

COFFEE CAKE-MASTER MIX

3 cups master mix
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
5/8 cup water
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons nuts, chopped
Combine master mix, sugar, egg and water. Pour mixture into an oiled 8X8 inch pan and sprinkle with brown sugar, cinnamon, and nuts. Bake for 25 minutes at 400 degrees. Yield: 12 servings, 225 calories per serving.

PANCAKES-MASTER MIX

3 cups master mix
1 egg (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
1-1/2 cups water
Blend all ingredients. Bake pancake as usual. Yield: 15 4-inch pancakes, 121 calories per serving.

WAFFLES-MASTER MIX

3 cups master mix
1 egg, separated, and 2 additional egg whites
2-1/4 cups water
Combine master mix, egg yolk and water, mix well. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff and fold carefully into batter. Pour batter into hot waffle iron. Yield: 15 waffles, 123 calories per serving.

GRANOLA

2-1/2 cups rolled oats
1 cup sesame seeds
1 cup sunflower seeds
1 cup wheat germ
1 cup bran (optional)
1 cup dry non-fat milk
1-1/2 cups vegetable oil
1/2 cup honey
Mix dry ingredients. Mix oil and honey. Combine dry ingredients. Spread in large baking pan. Bake at 300 degrees for 45-60 minutes, turning every 15 minutes. Yield: 24 servings, 260 calories per serving.

Note: This is great to have on hand and a healthier alternative to the commercial kind. Can be served with skim or low-fat milk or plain, low-fat yogurt.

1/4 cup of granola with 1/2 cup skim milk: 300 calories.
1/4 cup of granola with 1/2 cup plain, low-fat yogurt: 320 calories.

COTTAGE CHEESE AND CINNAMON TOASTIES

1 slice of toast or 1/2 bagel
1/4 cup lowfat cottage cheese
1/2 teaspoon sugar cinnamon
Spread toast or bagel with 1/4 cup of low-fat cottage cheese. Mix sugar with cinnamon and sprinkle on bread. Put under the broiler or in a toaster-oven until sugar-cinnamon mixture bubbles. Serve at once. Calories per serving: 125 with toast and 139 bagel.

Kathy Kolasa

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Q: I've been eating salads to lose weight, but my roommate says salads can be fattening. Is she right? M.M., Greenville.

A: Yes. My first advice is to WATCH SALAD BAR FATS! Salad bars are popular in eastern North Carolina. Local steak houses advertise salad bars of 30-50 items, all you can eat, for less than $4. Pizza stores have smaller salad bars with 12-15 items for about $1.50, all you can eat. Grocery stores have salad bars of 40-50 items for about $2 a pound. Even some fast food restaurants have added salads or salad bars to their menus. Like you, most people think if they eat from the salad bar they are getting a low calorie and nutritious meal. A salad can be low calorie, low in dietary fat, and nutritious, but it might not be! It's up to you and the choices you make.

Salad dressings are the obvious source of fat and calories on the salad bar. Most salad bars offer the regular dressings including french, creamy Italian, 1,000 island and blue cheese. As you load on the dressing, you load on the calories. Remember, these dressings have 65-85 calories per tablespoon and about 8 grams of fat. A 2.5 ounce salad dressing packet at a fast food restaurant might have 285-400 calories. That might be as many calories as in the rest of the salad. Low calorie dressings are available on most salad bars and have only 10-20 calories per tablespoon and about 1-2 grams of fat. A restaurant packet of lite vinaigrette dressing might be about 50 calories. Choose your dressing wisely.

In Greenville, I'm told that the fastest selling items at the salad bar are: fresh fruit, cheese, cherry tomatoes, cucumbers, green peppers, diced eggs, ham and turkey, broccoli and cauliflower, chicken and ham salads and carrots.

Can you pick the higher fat and calorie items on that list? You're right if you picked cheese, diced eggs, ham and turkey, chicken and ham salads. If you're trying to make a low calorie salad, use small amounts of these items. To keep a salad low in calories and fat, use lots of the raw plain vegetables. The vegetables provide vitamins, minerals, dietary fiber, no cholesterol and little fat or sodium. Also, go easy on pickled items, like beets, and bacon bits. Take small helpings of prepared salads like coleslaw and potato salad. Use diet or vinegar dressings.

Many of the fast food restaurants will give you nutrition information about their salads, if you ask.

Salads are enjoyable to build and eat. I marvel at the beautiful salads built by some customers — they are works of balance and art. Salads provide a mix of textures, colors, and flavors that add enjoyment to meals.

And each ingredient has some interesting history or lore. For example, the Spanish who took the tomato from South America to Europe called it "love apples." Sir Walter Raleigh was reputed to present a tomato to Queen Elizabeth as a gesture of affection and respect.

Enjoy a cool, refreshing, interesting and nutritious salad soon.

Low-Salt Cooking

By NINA KILLHAM
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

In recognition of National High Blood Pressure Month, the American Heart Association wants to remind you that excessive salt intake is dangerous to your health.

The average American, it reports, consumes 6 to 18 grams of salt daily (roughly 1 to 2 teaspoons). According to the AHA, anything above 0.5 grams is too much.

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels are the No. 1 cause of death in the United States. High blood pressure, which affects more than 58

And while it can't be cured, it can be controlled in many cases through a low-sodium diet. Accordingly, the AHA recommends a maximum sodium intake of 1 gram (1,000 milligrams) for every 1,000 calories.

Ordinary table salt is not pure sodium. It is a compound called sodium chloride, with 40 percent sodium by weight. There are 28 grams of sodium in 1 ounce of salt, 5.5 grams of sodium in a teaspoon of salt.

Although salt is necessary for good health, it must be kept in balance (See SALT, D-6)

Herbs Can Be Used To Garnish The Table And To Season Dishes

3 to 4 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
2 tablespoons chopped fresh sage (or 1/2 teaspoon dried)
1 to 2 teaspoons chopped fresh tarragon (optional)
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
3 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
3/4 cup olive oil
1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped
 Roast the pepper under a broiler, turning with tongs until the skin is charred all over. Wrap in foil or but in plastic bag for 10 minutes. Peel off skin and remove the stem, seeds and ribs. Cut into 4-inch dice. Add remaining ingredients. Taste for seasoning and vinegar-oil balance.
 Note: Be careful not to chop too finely when using a food processor.

PESTO

2 cups fresh basil leaves
1/2 cup parsley leaves
1/2 cup olive oil
2 garlic cloves
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
 Puree the basil, parsley, oil, garlic and salt in a blender or processor. Stir in the cheese. Store any leftover pesto in the refrigerator with a thin layer of oil on top, or freeze.

SAGE FRITTERS

3 dozen fresh sage leaves
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
Pinch of salt
1/4 cup milk
Vegetable oil for frying
1 extra-large egg white
 Carefully wash and dry the sage leaves to avoid bruising. In a saucepan, melt the butter in 1/2 cup water over low heat. Set aside to cool to lukewarm.
 Combine flour and salt in a bowl. Gradually blend in the butter-water mixture and the milk, beating until the batter is smooth. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 1 hour.
 Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Heat about 1 inch of oil in a large skillet. The temperature is right when a little drop of dough browns quickly but doesn't burn. In a bowl, beat the egg white until stiff but not dry. Gently fold the white into the batter. Dip a few of the sage leaves in the batter and drop them one at a time into the oil to cook. Do not overcrowd the pan. Fry until the fritters are golden brown on both sides, turning once during cooking.
 Using a slotted spoon, remove the fritters from the oil and drain on paper towels. Keep warm in the oven until all of the fritters are cooked, then serve at once.

STUFFED CLAMS

1 onion
3 cups dried bread crumbs
4 tablespoons butter, melted
Finely grated zest of 2 lemons
Juice of 1 lemon
2 teaspoons dried thyme or 2 tablespoons chopped fresh
3 teaspoons dried oregano or 3 tablespoons chopped fresh
Salt and freshly ground pepper
 Clean the clams. Remove them from the shells, reserving 24 small halves for serving. Coarsely chop the clams, celery and onion. (If using a food processor, be sure not to over-process).
 Melt the butter in a large saucepan. Add the clams, celery, onion, bread crumbs and 1/2 cup water to the melted butter and mix well. Stir in half of the lemon zest (reserving the other half for garnish) and all of the lemon juice and fresh herbs. Season with salt and pepper and mix well.
 Preheat broiler. Divide the clam mixture among the 24 clam shells. Arrange the shells on a baking sheet and place under the broiler for about 10 minutes or until browned on top. Garnish with lemon zest and serve.

HERBED WALNUTS

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 pound walnut halves
1 1/2 tablespoons crushed dried rosemary or 5 tablespoons finely chopped fresh
1 teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons salt
 Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Place the butter and oil in a large pan and melt in the oven. Scatter the nuts in the pan, stir them to coat with the butter-oil mixture, then spread them out in a single layer.
 Scatter the rosemary, paprika and salt evenly over the nuts. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes, shaking and stirring several times but not burned. Drain, if necessary, on paper towels and serve warm or at room temperature.

IRIS SCONES

2 sticks plus 2 tablespoons butter
5 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup baking powder
1 1/2 cups sour milk (sweet milk may be soured by adding a few drops of lemon juice and letting it stand a few minutes)
1/2 cup yogurt
2 1/2 tablespoons caraway seeds
1 large egg yolk, beaten Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Cut the butter into little pieces and put in a bowl. Add the flour, sugar and baking powder. Using a pastry blender (or two knives), cut the butter into the dry ingredients until they have the texture of coarse cornmeal.

Mix the sour milk and yogurt together and add to the flour mixture, stirring it in quickly but gently with a fork. Turn the slightly sticky dough out onto a floured board, pour the caraway seeds and currants on top, and quickly knead them in, working the dough as little as possible.

Divide the dough into 4 equal parts. Pat each part into a circle 1 inch thick, then cut each circle into 8 pie-shaped pieces. Put the pieces on a lightly floured baking sheet and brush the tops with the beaten egg yolk. Bake about 15 minutes or until golden brown and cooked through.

VEAL MEATBALLS WITH TARRAGON

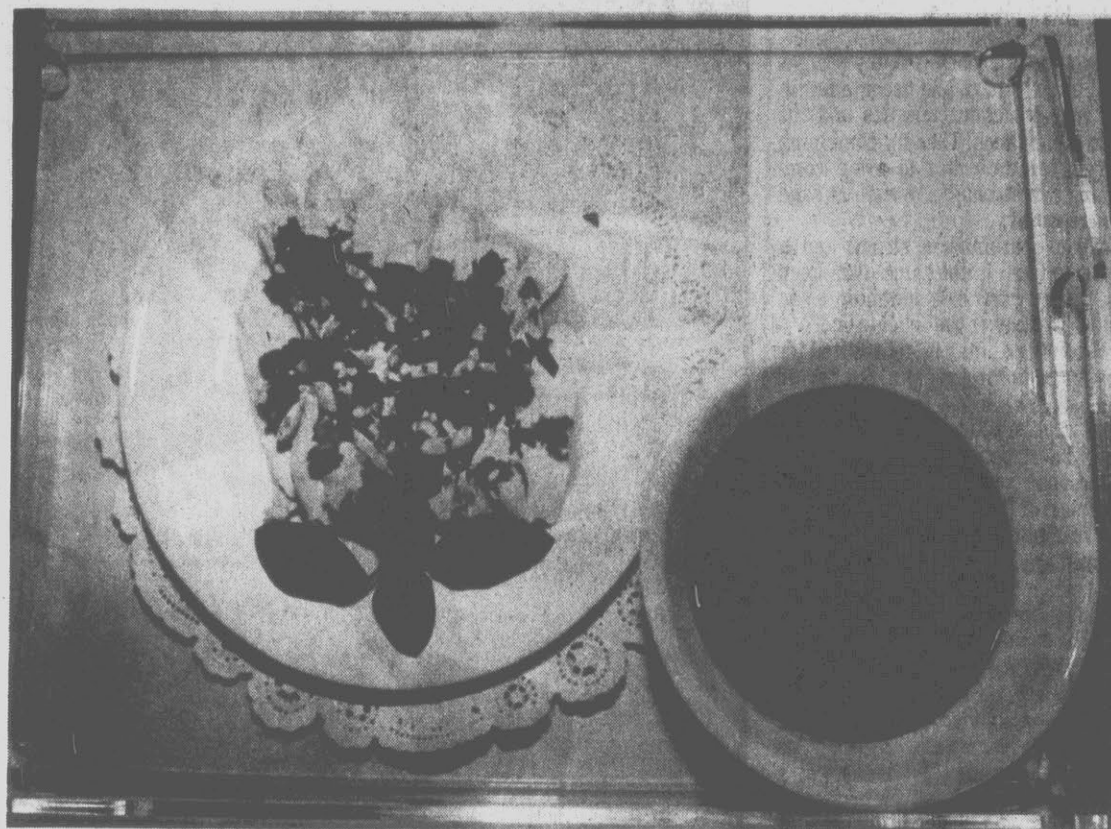

3/4 pound ground lean veal
1 tablespoon butter
3/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon finely minced garlic
1/2 cup fine fresh bread crumbs
2 teaspoons finely chopped fresh tarragon or 1 teaspoon dried
1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
1/8 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
1 egg, lightly beaten

1/3 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons heavy cream
Salt to taste (if desired)
Freshly ground pepper
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
2 to 4 tablespoons olive oil
About 5 cups tomato sauce (recipe follows)

1 pound spaghetti, cooked to desired degree of doneness
 Place the meat in a bowl. In a small skillet, heat the butter and add the onion and garlic. Cook, stirring until wilted. Add this to the veal. Add the bread crumbs, tarragon, parsley, nutmeg, egg, cheese, cream, salt and pepper to taste. Blend well. Chill to make the mixture easier to handle.

 Shape the meat into 18 balls. Dredge lightly in flour, shaking off the excess. Heat enough oil in a skillet to reach a depth of about 1/8 inch. Add the meatballs and cook, turning until browned all over. Add the meatballs to the tomato sauce and simmer about 30 minutes.

(See HERBS, D-3)

Herbs

TOMATO SAUCE

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 3/4 cup finely chopped onion
 - 1 tablespoon finely minced garlic
 - 2 1/2 cups canned imported tomatoes
 - 3/4 cup tomato paste
 - Salt to taste (if desired)
 - Freshly ground pepper
 - 1 1/2 cups water
 - 2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil or 1 tablespoon dried
 - 1/2 cup finely chopped parsley
 - 1 bay leaf
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
- Heat the oil in a large saucepan or casserole and add the onion and garlic. Cook, stirring until wilted. Stir in tomatoes, tomato paste, salt and pepper to taste and 1 1/2 cups water. Add the basil, parsley, bay leaf and thyme. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat to low, and let simmer for 30 minutes.

PASTA NOLA

- 1/4 cup olive oil
 - 1 pound onions, julienned
 - 3 pounds tomatoes, peeled, seeded and diced
 - 1 1/2 pounds prosciutto, julienned
 - 8 large garlic cloves, crushed
 - 3 cups heavy cream
 - 4 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
 - 3 1/2 pounds fresh egg fettuccine
 - Whole basil leaves for garnish
 - Freshly ground pepper
- In a skillet, heat the oil and saute the onions and tomatoes until the onion is soft and translucent. Add the prosciutto and garlic, and saute lightly for 2 to 3 minutes. Add the cream and the chopped herbs. Simmer for 30 minutes.
- In a large pot of salted boiling water, cook the fettuccine until just al dente. Drain the pasta and place it in a warmed serving bowl. Pour the sauce over the hot pasta and serve, garnished with whole basil leaves and lots of freshly ground pepper.

TERRINE OF SMOKED TROUT WITH SORREL

- 1 pound fillets of Dover sole
 - 1 1/4 pounds fillets of whiting, cod or other firm white fish
 - 1 large trout, filleted
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 4 slices white bread
 - Salt and freshly ground pepper
 - 3 egg whites
 - 2 1/2 cups heavy cream
 - 1 large smoked trout, filleted, cut in strips
 - 20 large sorrel leaves, chopped
 - 1/4 cup chopped watercress plus whole leaves for garnish
 - 1 package unflavored gelatin
 - 2 tablespoons Cognac or brandy
 - Juice of 1/2 lemon
 - Sorrel Sauce (recipe follows)
- Finely mince the sole, fish and fresh trout. Boil the milk; remove from fire and soak the slices of bread in it. Squeeze the excess milk from the bread and mix it into the minced fish. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Set aside for 1 1/2 hours.
- (This dish can be made the day before it is to be served or early in the day so that the terrine has time to cool before being decorated with aspic).
- Dissolve the package of gelatin in the amount of water recommended on the package. Decorate the top of the terrine with the whole watercress leaves and pour on a thin layer of aspic. Serve with Sorrell Sauce.

SORRELL SAUCE

- 2 cups plain yogurt
 - 1 cup homemade mayonnaise
 - 5 tablespoons chopped fresh sorrel
 - 5 tablespoons chopped fresh watercress
- Mix the yogurt into the mayonnaise. Stir in the chopped herbs and set aside to allow the flavors to develop.

LEMON CHICKEN PIE

- 2 pounds boneless chicken breasts, cut into strips
 - Salt and freshly ground pepper
 - 4 tablespoons chopped fresh lemon balm
 - 3/4 pound minced veal
 - 3/4 pound minced pork
 - 4 slices white bread, crusts removed
 - Juice and finely grated zest of 1 lemon
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 1/2 pounds short pastry
 - 1 egg yolk, beaten
 - 2 cups aspic (optional)
 - Mustard and Herb Sauce (recipe follows)
- Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Season the strips of chicken with salt and pepper and roll them in 2 tablespoons of the chopped lemon balm. Mix the veal and pork in a large bowl. Soak the bread in a mixture of lemon juice and water, squeeze well. Add the bread to the meat mixture, along with the remaining 2 tablespoons lemon balm, the lemon zest, eggs, salt and pepper to taste. To check the seasoning, fry a small nugget of the mixture in a little butter or oil and taste. Adjust seasoning if necessary.
- Roll out two-thirds of the pastry about 1/8-inch thick, and line the bottom and sides of the 9 1/2-inch springform mold. Cover the bottom crust with one-third of the veal-and-pork mixture. Top with half of the chicken strips. Continue making layers, ending with the veal-and-pork mixture. Roll out the remaining pastry in a large circle large enough to cover the pie. Place the pastry over the pie and trim and crimp the edges, sealing the top to the side crust. Roll out any pastry scraps and cut out leaf shapes for decoration.

Brush the crust with the beaten egg yolk and decorate with pastry leaves. They will stick to the egg glaze. Brush the leaves lightly with the yolk. Cut a tiny hole in the center of the crust with a knife and insert a metal funnel to keep the juices from running over.

Bake for 1 3/4 to 2 hours. The meat in the pie is done when the juices run clear. To check the juices, press on the top so they rise in the funnel. If the pastry browns before the pie is done, cover with foil for the remaining cooking time. Remove the pie from oven and cool on a rack.

The pie may be eaten as is. If you would like to add aspic, wait until the pie is cool, and pour the aspic through the funnel. Serve at room temperature with Mustard and Herb Sauce.

MUSTARD AND HERB SAUCE

2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon grainy mustard
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons chopped mixed herbs (chives, tarragon, parsley, dill)
1 cup olive oil
Juice of 1 lemon

Place egg yolks, mustard, salt, pepper and herbs in the bowl of a food processor or blender. Process for a few seconds. Add the oil, drop by drop, with processor on or with blender set at low. Continue adding the oil until the sauce is thick. Blend in the lemon juice. If the sauce is too thick, add 1 to 2 tablespoons boiling water.

MINTED CORN ON THE GRILL

6 ears of sweet corn in their husks
6 tablespoons butter, cut into 12 equal pieces
6 mint sprigs

Soak the corn in a pot of salt water or salted water for about 1 hour. The wet husks will steam the corn as it cooks, keeping it moist, and the salt water adds its saltiness to the corn. Carefully peel the husks back without detaching them at the bottom and remove the corn silk. Pull the husks back up around the corn, putting 2 pieces of butter and a sprig of mint in each. Make sure the husks completely cover the kernels. Grill the corn over medium-hot charcoals, turning frequently for 10 to 15 minutes.

SUMMER SALAD

4 roasted red bell peppers
1 onion, thinly sliced
1 garlic clove, sliced
1 teaspoon coarse salt
Freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
6 to 8 tablespoons olive oil
Choice of greens, including rocket, arugula, sorrel, chicory
3 tomatoes, cut into bite-sized pieces
4 hard-cooked eggs, peeled and quartered

Fresh herbs and herb flowers: purslane, basil, hyssop leaves and flowers, nasturtium flowers

Peel and seed the peppers, then tear them into strips and place them with their juices in a large salad bowl along with the sliced onion. Make a vinaigrette by mashing the garlic in a bowl with 1 teaspoon salt and a few grinds of pepper. The garlic should be completely pureed. Add the vinegar and stir well, then stir in the oil. Pour the vinaigrette over the onions and peppers and let them marinate for 2 to 3 hours.

When ready to assemble the salad, cross the salad spoon and the fork over the peppers and onions. (The crossed serves keep the greens from resting in the vinaigrette and getting soggy).

Add the washed and dried greens. Arrange the tomatoes and quartered eggs on top. Then add basil leaves, the young leaves of purslane, finely chopped hyssop leaves and scatter the blue hyssop flowers and orange nasturtium flowers on top. Toss the salad at the table before serving, making sure the ingredients are well mixed and vinaigrette well distributed.

FORGOTTEN HARVEST ICE TEA

3 tablespoons raspberry leaves, dried and crushed
2 tablespoons lemon grass, dried
1 tablespoon hibiscus flowers, dried

Pour the boiling water over the herbs. Steep for 20 minutes. Strain into a 1/2 gallon container. Fill with cold water. Serve with ice and an herb leaf or borage blossom for garnish.

FRUIT AND SPICE HERB TEA

2 cups dried lemon verbena leaves
1 cup dried chamomile
1 cup dried orange mint
1 cup dried orange peel (see note)
3 tablespoons whole cloves, crushed

16-inch cinnamon stick, crushed
Blend all of the ingredients together and store in a tightly covered tin. When ready to make tea, shake the tin well, then spoon 1 teaspoon of the tea into th pot for each cup of water. Pour boiling water over the tea and let steep 5 to 10 minutes.

Note: To dry orange peel, scrape the inside of the shells clean after squeezing the oranges for juice. Leave only the orange part of the peel (the zest). Cut in strips and set on rack to dry. When brittle, break in small pieces and store in a covered jar.

Salt

with the water in your body fluids and tissues. Eating salty foods makes you thirsty, because as salt is added to the body, extra water is needed to dilute it.

Kidneys keep the normal level of sodium in the body's fluids, but if they are overworked from having to remove too much sodium through the years, they can fail to operate successfully. The sodium that has not been excreted holds water, causing the volume of blood to rise and the blood pressure to increase.

Normal adult blood pressure should be below 140-90. The upper number in the ratio represents the force exerted on artery walls when the heart beats. The lower number represents the pressure in the arteries when the heart is at rest.

Though meat, poultry and dairy products can be naturally high in sodium, most of the sodium in our diet comes from commercially processed food. Be careful in reading labels, scouting any words beginning with soda or sodium or the chemical symbol for salt, Na.

But you can start right now on a lower salt diet. With vegetable oil and black pepper in the cupboard, it's just a dash through the express lane.

LIME-BROILED FISH STEAKS WITH MUSTARD AND GINGER

1/4 cup lime juice
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon salt-free dijon-style mustard
2 teaspoons grated ginger
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Freshly ground black pepper
4 8-ounce fish steaks (salmon, swordfish, halibut), each about 1 inch thick

In a bowl, combine the lime juice, 1 tablespoon oil, mustard, ginger, cayenne pepper, and black pepper to taste.

Marinate the fish steaks in the marinade for 30 to 60 minutes, turning occasionally.

Preheat the broiler. Brush the broiler pan with the remaining oil. (If cooking outdoors, use white coals and brush the grill with remaining oil.)

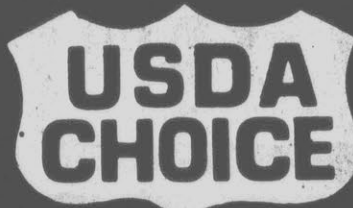

Broil the fish, brushing often with the marinade, until cooked through and opaque white in the center, about 10 minutes. Turn the fish after cooking for 5 minutes.

Try Rhubarb For Special Tart Flavor

By BERNADETTE WHEELER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Rhubarb has been a welcome sight of spring for so long that we take for granted it has always been with us as a food, lending its distinctively tart flavor to pies, sauces and relishes, in the familiar communion with strawberries or combined with whipped cream in the popular dessert known as "fool."

But it wasn't until the 1800s that this leaf stem, really a vegetable that is treated as a fruit, was used in baking and came to be known as "the pie plant" in some sections of the country. Before that it was used in 16th-century Europe to make rhubarb syrup, taken in spring as a gentle purge.

Because rhubarb seems such an old-fashioned, home-garden favorite, these recipes are tuned to earlier times.

The relish recipe must date back quite a way. It is described as "very old" in a 1939 cookbook, where it appears as the contribution from a woman in Dedham, Mass., who says it won the grand prize in a contest conducted by a national magazine. It packs a bit of sweet-sour "pow" — a little may go a long way with timid palates — and is excellent with roast meats and chicken, hot or cold, and with curries.

Roly-poly, another oldie, may draw frowns of disapproval in these diet-dreary days, but anyone who has fond memories of hot apple dumplings splashed with heavy cream for breakfast or for the windup of a light Sunday-evening meal may want to revive the recollection with this similar treat.

The ice cream tastes best when it is freshly made and has not been in the freezer more than a day. It is great by itself or with a fresh strawberry sauce.

In buying rhubarb, choose firm stalks; cut off both ends, removing every bit of the leaves, which are poisonous.

DEDHAM RHUBARB RELISH

2 cups rhubarb, diced
1 cup cider vinegar
2 cups onions, chopped fine
1 pound brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt, or to taste
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 teaspoon celery seed

Bring rhubarb and vinegar to a boil; reduce heat to moderate and cook for 20 minutes. Add the onions, sugar, salt, pepper, cinnamon, cloves and celery seed. Mix well and cook slowly for about 1 hour, until thickened. Makes about 2 cups.

RHUBARB ROLY-POLY

2 cups flour, sifted
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt, or to taste
2 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons cold butter, cut in pieces, or solid, white vegetable shortening
3/4 cup milk
2 cups rhubarb, in 1/2-inch dice
2 1/2 tablespoons butter
1 cup sugar

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
2. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in 4 tablespoons butter or shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough. Knead about 10 times on a lightly floured board, shape into a rectangle and roll to 1/8-inch thick.

3. Spread rhubarb evenly over dough, leaving a 1/2-inch margin all around. Dot generously with butter, sprinkle with sugar and roll up like a jelly roll, tucking in the edges of dough on each side and on the ends.

4. Place seam side down on flat baking sheet with a rim and bake for 40 to 45 minutes. Serve each portion with some of the syrup that forms in the pan. Add heavy cream or hard sauce, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RHUBARB ICE CREAM

1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/3 cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

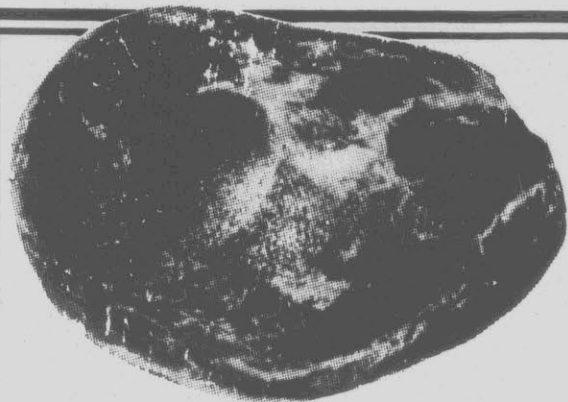

1. Mix rhubarb with 1/4 cup sugar and let stand 30 minutes or longer. Cook, stirring occasionally, until rhubarb is soft. Chill. Place in blender or food processor and puree until mixture is smooth. (There should be one cup.)

2. Beat egg and sugar until thick and cream-colored. Add cream, vanilla and cooked rhubarb; blend well. Use an ice-cream maker according to manufacturer's directions, or freeze in an empty ice-cube tray.

6 IMPORTANT REASONS TO BUY AT THIS SUPER LOW PRICE!

The rugged Sears Premium insulating storm/screen doors provide long-life, security and protection against the elements. Compare the features before you buy.

- 1 Designed to keep bad weather outside where it belongs! Adjustable bottom expander with 2 vinyl sweeps and double weatherstripping on top and both sides insure a tight fit, reduce air leaks.
- 2 Provide added security! All have double key locks with deadbolts.
- 3 Built to last! Sturdy, rugged construction with foam-filled, extra-wide frame and kickpanel.
- 4 Choose the style and color to complement your decor! All styles available in white, black, brown or bronze.
- 5 No hassle to change door from storm to screen! Interchangeable glass and screen inserts have patented vinyl strips for each side to wedge them snugly in place. No fussing with clips or screws.
- 6 3-Year Limited Warranty! Ask a salesperson for details.
