British Diplomat Released After Abduction

By BEN DOBBIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - Britain's No. 2 diplomat in Iran, kidnapped by six armed men in Tehran, has been released and returned to his family, the Foreign Office said today.

Edward Chaplin, 36, was abducted Thursday after the gunmen stopped his car as he drove along a Tehran highway with his wife and two children, dragged him out and beat him.

"He has indeed been released," a Foreign Office spokesman said. "We understand that he is safe at home in Tehran with his family, but we have no word on his condition."

Britain had protested to Iran today over what it described as the "horrific incident."

At the same time, Iran said it had protested "the illegal arrest" of an Iranian diplomat in Britain, and said Britain "will be responsible for the consequences of this unlawful act."

The spokesman, who in line with British practice would not be quoted by name, said the British diplomatic mission in Tehran had informed the Foreign Office of Chaplin's release.

British officials had strenuously rejected the idea of a link between Chaplin's abduction and Iran's protest of its diplomat's arrest. Britain refused to consider any deal with the kidnapers of Chaplin, first secretary of the British interests section at the Swedish Embassy in Tehran.

"We are protesting extremely vigorously and are doing everything we can to secure the release of our diplomat," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said at her daily briefing of reporters covering the June 11 election campaign.

The Foreign Office said Chaplin was the target of an "horrific incident in Tehran yesterday in which (he) was abducted ... and severely beaten."

Chaplin's superior, Christopher MacRae, said in a telephone interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. from Tehran that Chaplin had been driving in the Iranian capital with his wife, Nicola, their 3-year-old daughter and infant son, and a colleague and another child when a car stopped quickly and caused a collision with Chaplin.

"Out of it came six men whom we have not identified who proceeded to beat Edward up and drag him into their car, and drive off with him," MacRae said.

The Foreign Office spokesman said one of the gunmen got into Chaplin's car and drove off recklessly with the diplomat's family and the other passengers, then stopped, got into another car and left them behind.

Senate Panel To Address Compromise Legislation

A compromise bill changing Pitt County's method of election will be addressed Tuesday by an N.C. Senate subcommittee.

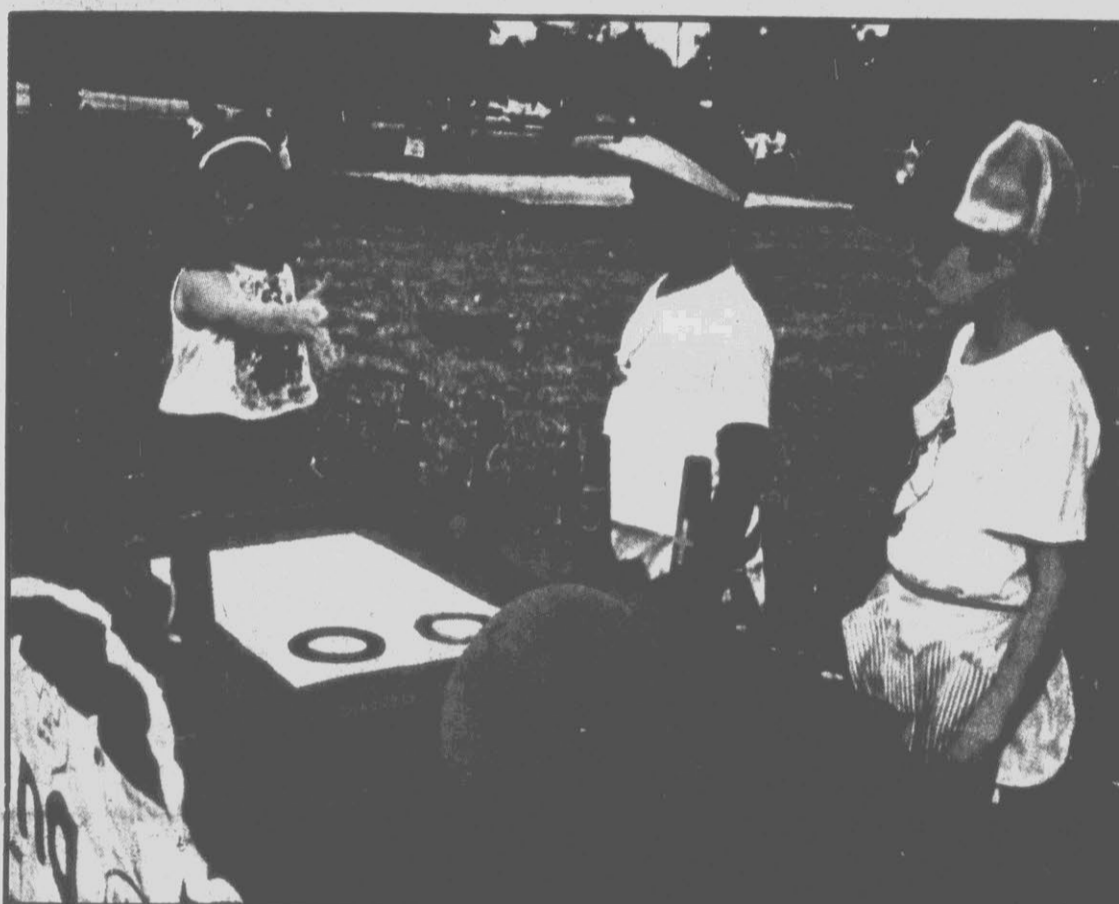

The bill will be considered by the eight-member subcommittee chaired by Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, at a 10:30 a.m. meeting in room 1129 of the state legislative building. The N.C. House passed the bill earlier this week.

According to Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, and Sen. Bob Martin, D-Pitt, neither the NAACP or Concerned Citizens for Justice, local groups actively involved in the push for a new system of election, have indicated to legislators whether they will oppose the bill in its final stages. Members of the groups could not be reached for comment today.

The bill to be considered Tuesday is a compromise between the initial "six-three" proposal recommended by Pitt County Commissioners and a straight six-district plan local minority groups supported. The six-three incorporated a combination of district and at-large voting.

The compromise bill also calls for six of Pitt's commissioners to be elected from districts, and three commissioners to be elected at large, but only after the three are nominated by party primaries in districts created by collapsing the six districts into three regions.

The compromise was suggested by a House subcommittee to give minorities a better chance of election to at-large seats.

Stark Victims' Funerals Begin

By RICHARD HERZFELDER
Associated Press Writer

A "fine young man" who always had time for his elders and a sailor who was the sixth member of his family to join the Navy have been buried in the first funerals for sailors killed in the Iraqi attack on the USS Stark.

Hundreds of relatives and friends gathered to mourn and remember Antonio Armondo Daniels and Brian W. Clinefelter at ceremonies Thursday in Greeleyville, S.C., and at California's Riverside National Cemetery.

Navy honor guards, dressed in white, escorted the flag-draped caskets. The Purple Heart that is awarded to those who are injured or die in combat were given to the families.

The two sailors were among 37 crewmen killed aboard the Stark, stationed in the Persian Gulf, when an Iraqi missile hit the ship May 17. Funerals and memorial services for the men were scheduled through the weekend.

About 450 people from Greeleyville, a farming community of about 600, gathered for petty officer Daniels' funeral in the gym-

Warsaw Pact Proposes Talks

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet-led Warsaw Pact today proposed East-West negotiations on battlefield nuclear weapons in Europe, the Communist alliance's secretary-general said.

Concern over battlefield nuclear weapons has helped hold up a NATO response to Soviet arms control offers on removing medium- and shorter-range nuclear weapons from Europe.

Herbert Krolikowski, the Warsaw Pact's secretary general, also said the Warsaw Pact would hold talks with NATO on developing strictly defensive military doctrines.

The aim of such talks would be "not to have more forces and armaments than are absolutely necessary for the defense and the maintenance of peace in the world," Krolikowski told reporters at the end of the alliance's two-day meeting attended by Soviet Leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Krolikowski said such talks could also cover "inequality of forces and arms" between the two military alliances.

Krolikowski, who is also the deputy East German Foreign Minister, said the Warsaw Pact favored an immediate U.S.-Soviet treaty on ridding Europe of the superpowers' medium-range missiles and a "simultaneous" abolition of shorter-range nuclear missiles.

The Warsaw Pact then wants "negotiations to solve the problem of

Garner Inc. Plans Merger, Expansion

Garner Wholesale Merchandisers Inc. of Greenville announced today it will merge with Richfood Inc. of Richmond, Va., and plans to expand its employment level and facilities.

Garner Inc. is a non-foods distributor which has been located in Greenville since 1951. Richfood is a retailer-owned food distributor serving more than 600 independent food retailers in North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Garner will become a subsidiary of Richfood and will continue to do business as Garner Wholesale Merchandisers. The company will locate a new distribution center in Greenville to handle the combined non-food volume, its board chairman, Leslie H. Garner, said.

Garner now distributes about 8,000 general merchandise and health and beauty aid items to more than 1,500 supermarkets, convenience stores, drug, discount and department stores in North Carolina South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Washington, D.C., Maryland and Delaware. Its 1986 sales amounted to more than $23 million.

Richfood's non-food sales in 1986 exceeded $27 million and its total company sales were $967 million.

Garner currently employs 160 people, of whom about 100 live in Pitt County. As the subsidiary grows to meet the needs of its expanded customer base, it is expected that employment levels will double and possibly even triple over the next three to five years, Garner said.

He commented, "We are very excited to join hands with Richfood. This is an aggressive, well-managed company that has developed a sound strategy for future growth. We look forward to growing alongside such a fine company."

"We are especially excited about growing our business right here in Greenville. Our management team

PCC Board Discusses New Budget Requests

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt Community College board of trustees discussed the institution's county budget request of $816,290 at a Thursday meeting.

The operational budget, which was presented to the Pitt County Commissioners in April, delineates the increases in the budget from the 1986-1987 fiscal year. The 1986-1987 fiscal year operational budget was $765,819.

State funds will be added to the budget later in the fiscal year.

The new budget request adds an additional $49,035 in institutional funding, including a $4,506 increase in the president's supplement. Funding also has been requested for longevity adjustments and supply increases.

The operational budget calls for the addition of a maintenance position, a maintenance helper position and two housekeeping positions.

Also included in the budget request is the adjusted net operational fund balance; this item includes $13,523 in money from the 1986-1987 fiscal year budget unspent at the end of the year.

The board also adopted the 1987-

1988 interim budget resolution which will keep the institution operating until the final state budget has been received later in the fiscal year. The total budget is $8,928,709.

In other action Thursday, the board approved the personnel committee's recommendations on employment of institution personnel. Each year, the board must approve the re-employment of all persons currently employed at PCC.

The board accepted a report of the finance committee giving approval for the purchase of a new boiler for the White Building, at a cost of 22,973, and an air conditioning coil replacement for the Whichard Building, at a cost of 10,986. Also approved was the $16,500 funding for the renovation of the former learning center to offices for the Student Services staff. Prior period fund balances will be used for the projects.

The board approved a renovation project for the old library space on the third floor of the Humber Building; the space was vacated when the library was moved to a new building. The 5,400 square feet on the third floor will be renovated to accommodate the Business Skills Lab. The estimated cost of the project is $125,000.

The board also agreed to hire the architectural firm of Dudley, Shoe, Ellinwood and Associates of Greenville to prepare the architectural and engineering specifications for the job. Their fee is $7,500.

KEEP THAT LINE STRAIGHT! — A mother duck and her 11 ducklings make their way across a walk behind Sheppard Memorial Library Thursday afternoon. Local businessman Bill Taft spotted the family Thursday morning walking near his business off Evans Street. Taft called the city's animal control department, who after a short chase captured the family. Animal officer Fred Wade said he would consult with wildlife officials to find a proper home for the ducks. The family apparently made their home behind the library in some bushes. HARRY LESLIE

Leslie Honored

G. Henry (Harry) Leslie was named the Pitt District Distinguished Citizen of the Year by the Boy Scouts Thursday during a program at the Greenville Country Club.

The program, sponsored by the Pitt District Boy Scouts of America "had a dual purpose — to honor a citizen and to market support for the scouting program in Pitt County," said Lawton Nisbet, district chairman.

Leslie was cited for his contribution to the community through his services with organizations such as Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Burroughs Wellcome.

"He's just been an outstanding citizen," Nisbet said.

Speakers during the program reflected on Leslie and his contributions. Nisbet spoke on behalf of the Boy Scouts, while Tom Kennedy, vice president of Corporate Affairs with Burroughs Wellcome, Raleigh, spoke of his contribution there. Fred Webb spoke of Leslie as his friend.

Leslie also was "given a commissioned picture depicting significant events in his life," such as participation in the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Golden Gate Club and golf, Nisbet said.

The Edwards Singers will have a car wash benefit Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. on 14th Street near Wainwright Amoco Station.

Bowen Sentenced

James R. Bowen of Ayden, 54, owner of Bowen's Open Air Market, was sentenced Thursday in U.S. District Court in Raleigh to three years in prison and five years probation for income tax evasion, an Internal Revenue Service spokesperson said.

Bowen, who was charged with failing to file income tax returns from 1980 to 1983, pleaded guilty on March 27 to income tax evasion counts for 1981 and 1982, the spokesperson said.

U.S. District Court Judge Franklin L. Dupree also assessed Bowen $110 in criminal fines.

The IRS spokesperson said Bowen owes $109,811 in taxes on $318,546 he earned from 1980 to 1983.

Penalties and interest on the taxes double the amount owed, according to the spokesperson.

Aycock Assault

A 14-year-old female student at E.B. Aycock Junior High School suffered cuts to the face requiring 18 stitches and a fellow student was charged with assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury in connection with the incident, Greenville police said.

Officer J.E. Tripp said a 14-year-old male student was taken into custody Thursday afternoon following the incident in the school's library.

Tripp said the two students became involved in an argument and the male student allegedly assaulted the female student with a boxcutter.

The female student required 15 stitches to close a cut on her nose and three stitches to close a wound on her lip, according to Tripp, who said the incident was reported at about 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

Tripp said the male student, who was placed in the Pitt Regional Detention Center Thursday night, was released to the custody of his father following a juvenile hearing early today.

Thefts Reported

Investigators said three thefts were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer J.W. Corbett said 100 pieces of half-inch copper tubing 20 feet in length valued at about $1,000 were taken from Shannon Strobel and Weaver Construction site on Landmark Street in an incident reported at 8:22 a.m.

Officer T.E. Nevelle said a radar detector valued at $239 was taken from a vehicle at 107-A Brockwood Drive in an incident reported at 10:56 a.m.

Officer J.A. Bartlett said a bicycle valued at $180 was taken from 300 N. Oak St., Apartment 5, in an incident reported at 11:10 p.m.

SUIT-ABLE SOLUTIONS!
Tips For Selecting A Fitting "Camouflage Suit"

- SURPLICE
One of our most popular styles. Good for many figure types; minimizes a large bust, can maximize a small one. With belt emphasizes shapely waist, without, it deemphasizes.
- BLOUSON
A versatile, popular style that hides a heavy midriff waist. Good fit for long or short torsos, often strapless for sunning.
- SKIRTED TUNIC
Complements heavy thighs through softening lines of skirt, camouflages large derriere, provides lots of coverage. Can evenly disguise "flat" rearends.
- CLASSIC SHEATH, SHEATH, SHIRRED SHEATH
Any of these will smooth and slim the waist, help control stomach.
- MAILLOT
Provides almost total coverage. Creates illusion of good figure, further enhanced by color and design choice.
- BIKINI
Not for "perfect" figures only! Visually elongate short torsos, solve fitting problems for long torsos. Versatile top styling can minimize, enhance bust lines.

Competition

First the good news: North Carolina is strongly competing for a supercollider, a research device which will be 17 miles across at its farthest point.

Now the bad news: the competition includes 31 other states.

The stakes are huge. The federal government will spend $4.4 billion on the supercollider. That is big money for any state, but it will also be a prestigious research installation that will undoubtedly draw some of the world's premier scientists. It will involve research that may open whole new worlds of practical uses for mankind.

The oval installation will be 53 miles in circumference which means that a huge right-of-way will be a necessity. No doubt major research centers will be an asset to its location. In North Carolina that immediately brings to mind the Research Triangle with Duke University, UNC-Chapel Hill and N.C. State University in proximity — and it is in that general area that the state is trying to interest the federal government to locate the sophisticated instrument.

California new seems to be the leading contender for the project, some observers say, and other states are strongly in contention. Just recently the U.S. Senate decided to take itself out of the location decision by voting to leave it to the federal government to determine a site based on quality.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., who offered the amendment, said, "It ought to be on the best site in the country ... and not on what a state offers as financial compensation."

The competition will go on, of course, except the states now might transfer their hard-sell efforts to the appropriate federal agencies. Certainly North Carolina should continue its efforts. We have a lot to offer and the long term benefits of having such a facility here can be enormous.

Family Influence

"We always told them that if they expected to amount to anything in life, they had to get a good education and work hard."

That was a proud mother talking and it underlines a truism repeated in this space over the years: the education of young people begins (and too often ends) with parental influence.

Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson of Haddock's Crossroads have seen their efforts rewarded with three of their children graduating at one time from UNC-Chapel Hill. A fourth will graduate from St. Augustine's next year and that son plans to get his master's degree at Chapel Hill, too.

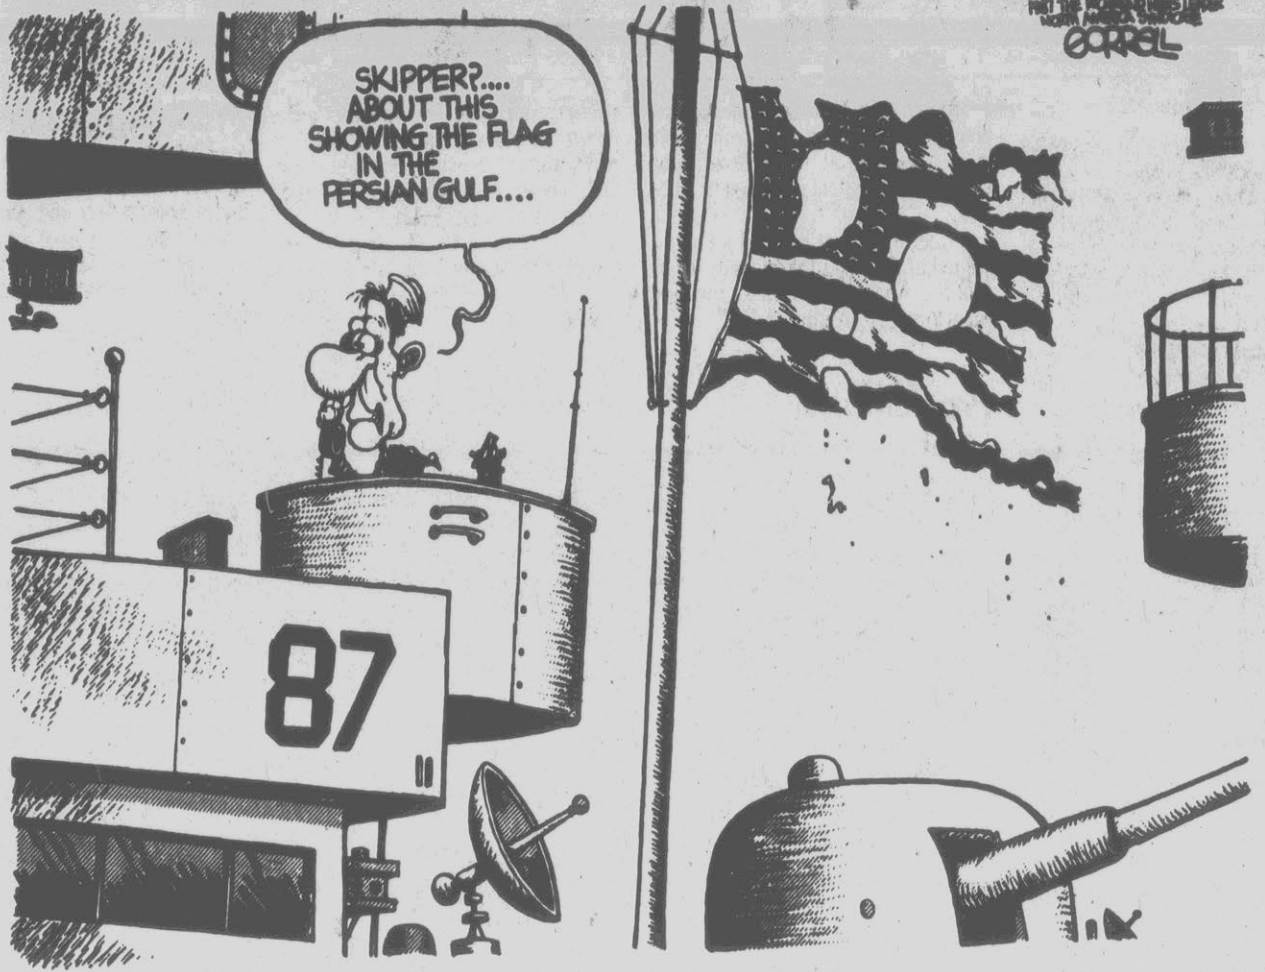

A lot of families shudder at the thought of the costs of higher education for their families, but William and Dorothy Anderson know the rewards, too. Mr. Anderson's parents were educators, and he made that his career. Dorothy Anderson made a career of working in Pitt County schools so there was a lot of personal and shared awareness of what education can mean. But as Mrs. Anderson told a Daily Reflector writer, "It was a family project all the way through".

The young people did their part. They held part-time jobs; they also qualified for scholarships and committed themselves for loans. They knew they could depend on some additional help from the homefront.

So the four young family members have been building careers for themselves and who can doubt they will someday be guiding children of their own toward the same self-discipline, higher education and better lives.

They are the products of their parents and grandparents; none of whom could feel anything but pride.

Perspectives, goals and ambitions appear most frequently to have their inception in the home and their story tells us anew that good parenting does change the future. The reminder and the example are always welcome as well as inspiring.

What Happens If U.S. Flag Attacked?

WASHINGTON (AP) — In all the administration rhetoric about self-defense and free passage in the Persian Gulf, one question remains conspicuously unanswered: what happens if Iran attacks a Kuwaiti ship flying a U.S. flag?

"I don't think that's a question that I should even attempt" to answer, President Reagan said Wednesday during an interview with foreign television journalists.

He did hint that missile batteries on Iranian soil might be targets.

"Now, it is true that the Iranians have placed missiles on shore that can reach targets at sea," he said. "That has to be considered with regard to more than just shooting at another vessel or shooting at an airplane."

But that's about as specific as anybody would get.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, for instance, was asked whether an attack on a Kuwaiti tanker carrying a U.S. flag would be regarded as an act of war.

"The rules of engagement have all been laid out. And, as I said yesterday, we are there as a deterrent force, not to initiate any offensive action. And we would not characterize

'Reagan's answer: "I don't think that's a question that I should even attempt to ask (sic). First of all, our actions will be defensive. We will defend ourselves."' any incident as an act of war."

Take the example of attacks on two Kuwaiti tankers, both being escorted by U.S. warships. One carries the U.S. flag and one the Kuwaiti flag. Would the United States respond be any different in the two cases, Fitzwater was asked.

"I can't imagine a difference, but then I'm not really qualified," the spokesman said.

A ranking Pentagon civilian, however, speaking on condition he could not be quoted by name, said the decision to allow Kuwaiti tankers to fly the U.S. flag "changes the dynamics" in the Gulf.

"Our ships haven't been targets, and both Iran and Iraq knew our Navy was there to protect only those ships," this official said.

In the television interview, Reagan was asked whether belligerent statements by Iranian officials were not "a sort of anticipated declaration of war from Iran to the United States."

"I doubt that Iran would ever declare war on the United States knowing what the inevitable consequences would be," he replied. He did not say what consequences he meant.

"We are not just in there daring someone to do something," the president added. "That's an international waterway ... There is no way that we can sit back and let the Persian Gulf be closed to international trade."

So, he was asked, how far would the United States go in response? Might U.S. forces strike against Iranian territory?

Reagan's answer: "I don't think that's a question that I should even attempt to ask (sic). First of all, our actions will be defensive. Now, it is true that the Iranians have placed missiles on shore that can reach targets at sea. That has to be considered with regard to more than just shooting at another vessel or shooting at an airplane. But the reason why I don't think I should go farther is, I think it's far better if the Iranians go to bed every night wondering what we might do than us telling them in advance."

Fitzwater made the same point by an allusion to history.

"I'm always reminded of the great scene of Hannibal crossing the Alps, and somebody saying, 'Now, how many elephants are going through the pass there? Have you thought about the winter snows, and will the catapults really kill the elephants?' You just can't talk about tactics."

Fitzwater did give one hint. He was asked whether an attack on Kuwaiti ship carrying the U.S. flag would bring the same response as an attack on an American vessel.

"Yes," he said. "If it has an American flag on it, it is an American ship."

The spokesman did not answer, however, when asked what the response would be.

How Ronald Reagan Broke Rule 5.176

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oh, sure, President Reagan, you've got a lot on your mind: the deficit, the Democrats, what Oliver North may say on the witness stand. But this is important.

This is grammar. This is history. Sometimes, in your speeches and public papers, you say "an historic" and sometimes you say "a historic."

The record shows that you are inconsistent, and a frequent violator, sir, of the government's rules covering such matters. That's probably not an impeachable offense.

Last Jan. 27, in your written State of the Union message to Congress, talking about farm subsidies, you wrote: "Program costs are at an historic high," and, talking about human rights in the Soviet Union, "emigration remains at an historic low."

But last April 22, talking to foreign journalists about a forthcoming meeting with other heads of state, you said, "It's going to be somewhat of a historic summit."

On April 16, 1986, in a Law Day ceremony at the White House, you said, "Today the House of Representatives will cast an historic vote."

But in welcoming President Mohammad Hosni Mubarak of Egypt to the White House on Feb. 3, 1982, you said, "The steps we took on the road to peace in the Middle East generated a historic change."

On June 24, 1981, you told the Jaycees convention in San Antonio, Texas, "And as I've said before, when Congress passed that bipartisan budget resolution, they took an historic step."

But on April 14, 1986, in a letter on the situation in Cyprus, you said, "The secretary general's initiative presents the leaders of the two Cypriot communities with a historic opportunity."

Last Dec. 19 following your Reykjavik meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, you reported on the radio to the American people: "For the first time, we came close to an historic agreement."

But after meeting with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt on Aug. 5, 1981, you said in a toast, "Our meeting today was a historic one by any measure."

The Public Papers of the Presidents, now accessible through computers, record every public word a president speaks or writes. All told, the public papers show that since taking office you've used "an historic" at least 158 times and "a historic" at least 12.

Your chief speechwriter, Anthony Dolan, was taken aback when told, "No kidding!" he said. "That's very interesting."

Asked to account for this presidential discrepancy, Dolan thought for a while. "Let's put it this way," he said, "the president is Irish and understands the importance of variety."

Asked to account for it, Robert McArtor, chairman of the Style

Board of the Government Printing Office, said, "Reagan's giving away his age. When I went to school, we said 'an historic' too."

McArtor heads the seven-member board that publishes the GPO Style Manual. It tells the government how to spell, abbreviate, punctuate and italicize when there's a legitimate choice.

"It's Rule 5.176," says McArtor, reciting it: "The indefinite article 'a' is used before a consonant and an aspirated 'h.' 'An' is used before a silent 'h' and all vowels except 'u,' pronounced as in 'visual,' and 'o,' pronounced as in 'one.'"

"It's a usage rule," says another expert, Charles Suhor, deputy executive director of the National Council of Teachers of English in Urbana, Ill. "Traditional, conventional — and now archaic, I'd call it — usage says 'an historic' but contemporary usage is 'a historic.' A purist would probably say 'an historic' but it tends to sound pretentious in common usage today."

Strength For Today

"Little souls pay their debt to life by what they do; great souls by what they are."

Thus wrote Ralph Waldo Emerson many years ago. The modern world is afflicted with an activity complex. We must be endlessly busy. And somehow or other there grows up within us the conviction that if we are busy we are making progress. The worst thing many of us can think of is not to have anything to do or place to go. But, says Emerson, what we do is a matter of small consequence compared with what we are. We may become rich and famous; we may acquire great popularity and power. But if, deep down inside, we are a mean type of person, all of these achievements mean nothing. Nothing that we can ever give the world in the way of achievement will mean so much as what we give it in the way of character.

Public Forum

To the editor:

This is an effort to respond to a recent "Public Forum" letter from Mrs. W.E. Tripp. Mrs. Tripp wants a concerted effort by the residents of Greenville to ensure racial balance at North Pitt High School.

Having not studied them in depth, I don't know a great deal about leading concerted efforts, but limiting the participants to Greenville residents and limiting the school in question to North Pitt High School seems less than an efficient way to attain our goals.

We need racial balance and an even-handed fiscal policy for all our schools throughout the county system. Many people (both residents and non-residents of Greenville) want these things and will continue to support all efforts toward these ends. School board member Frank Grooms has on several occasions made motions which would require system-wide racial balance and fairness in allocating funds. Did your representative on our school board support these motions? Too many did not.

The real leaders of our effort are Frank Grooms, Erma Carr, Alfreida Parker, Donovan Phillips, David Shackelford, Stephen Wall, and George Williams. They are the members of our board who support efforts for racial balance and equal opportunity in all our schools. If we are to concert efforts, let's concert one to elect more people like these and remove those who would like to grandfather Pitt County back to 1954.

We are on your side, Mrs. Tripp. We need your help and the help of residents from all our county's attendance areas to elect a school board that will seek the best for all its constituents.

No Certainty In Protecting Kuwaiti Ships

Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, after agreeing to extend a military umbrella over Kuwaiti oil ships in the Persian Gulf, is confronting several options, all unattractive and none guaranteeing that the job can be done.

President Reagan and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger have contended forcefully over the past week that the United States has no choice but to shoulder the new burden, despite the devastating May 17 attack by an Iraqi fighter on the U.S. frigate Stark in which 37 American sailors died.

Reagan says the issue of freedom of the seas is at stake; Weinberger argues Soviet influence in the region cannot be allowed to grow.

That aside, there is a growing realization in the Defense Department that the United States will have a difficult time bringing its enormous military strength to bear in the distant Persian Gulf.

Here's why:
—The Navy does not want to operate an aircraft carrier battle group inside the gulf itself. The gulf is a relatively small body of water, filled with hundreds of ships on any given day, with a single narrow entrance past Iranian shores. Maneuvering space is scarce. "and you just don't have the freedom you need if combat starts," says one Navy analyst.

—Jet fighters from a carrier stationed in the nearby Arabian Sea or Gulf of Oman can provide air cover for ships traversing the Persian Gulf, but only with repeated aerial refueling. Although Navy carriers can send up tankers of their own, "they don't have enough of them and they don't have sufficient capacity for an operation like this," a Navy aviator says.

—Navy carrier jets, refueled in the air by land-based tankers, could provide air cover, but only if countries like Saudi Arabia or Kuwait are willing to extend landing rights for the tankers. Another option would be to secure permission to augment Navy jets with Air Force jets at land bases. Both options are being explored, but to date no gulf nation has volunteered to become a U.S. military outpost, the sources say.

—European allies like England and France, which rely to a much greater extent on Persian crude oil than the United States, have yet to offer any additional military forces of their own for escort duties.

—The Navy's Mideast Task Force could be increased in size or augmented with larger, more capable warships. Ultimately, such changes could be made only by stripping forces from other parts of the world or ordering longer deployments for Navy ships — neither option particularly palatable to the Navy.

"And if you're down to using more surface ships, you're back to allowing those ships to defend themselves the way they're supposed to in wartime — shooting down enemy planes before they can launch a missile," said one Pentagon official.

In addition to those military considerations, the decision to allow Kuwaiti tankers to fly under the U.S. flag "changes the dynamics," said one ranking Pentagon civilian who spoke on condition he would not be quoted by name.

"If you accept the attack on the Stark as an honest-to-goodness mistake, neither Iran nor Iraq has ever attacked a U.S.-flag ship," he said.

"Our ships haven't been targets, and both Iran and Iraq knew our Navy was there to protect only those ships. The Kuwaiti tankers are a special target of Iran, and the Iranian government is simply not a rational government. If they know it's a Kuwaiti ship, they might not care what flag it's flying."

"I think it's just a matter of time until the Iranians do (attack a U.S.-flag ship)," agreed Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., who just returned from a fact-finding trip to the region.

Pressures Threaten NATO Defense Plans

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Even as NATO was polishing up a public pledge this week to spend more on conventional defenses, one alliance member was privately saying it no longer could afford one of its military tasks.

The Belgian government told its NATO partners that it would not, as previously planned, replace its nuclear-tipped Nike air-defense missiles with the more effective but costlier Patriot system. The Nike rockets will be dismantled and not replaced, it said.

Although Belgium plays a relatively small role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, its financial pinch points up a dilemma facing the alliance as it moves toward less reliance on nuclear weapons.

The governments of the alliance say they worry that nuclear disarmament will expose Western deficiencies in conventional defense. Yet most of them are reluctant to spend more money to fill the gaps.

In what has become a ritual at meetings of NATO defense ministers, the alliance declared Wednesday that the members were determined to increase national defense spending by at least 3 percent a year. Officials say privately there is little chance they will do it.

The ministers said the West's conventional defenses must be beefed up to meet the challenge of numerically stronger and rapidly expanding Warsaw Pact armies capable of overrunning NATO forces in days.

The issue has become even more pressing in light of improved prospects for a U.S.-Soviet deal to reduce nuclear arms in Europe.

If — as envisioned by the superpowers — the 316 U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe are withdrawn in exchange for removal of more than 1,300 nuclear warheads atop Soviet SS-20 rockets, NATO will have lost a key part of its nuclear defenses.

Reliance on non-nuclear defense would become even more pronounced if, as proposed by the Kremlin and under study by NATO, the two sides also eliminate shorter-range nuclear arms.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said he told his NATO counterparts that progress in nuclear arms control talks "underlined and emphasized" the importance of improving conventional forces.

Yet there are few signs that NATO members are ready to take up the challenge.

Belgium is not the only alliance member to scale back its defense spending. Britain, one of the key powers in NATO, has said it plans to cut expenditures by about 5 percent over the next three years.

Only four NATO members besides the United States — Italy, Luxembourg, Norway and Portugal — are expected to actually increase defense spending by 3 percent this year. That means 11 members will fall short of the alliance goal, and a similar result is expected for 1988.

The U.S. buildup in defense spending under President Reagan also appears to be nearing an end. The House last week approved a freeze in defense spending at this year's level. Reagan has requested the equivalent of a 3 percent increase, but even the more generous Senate version of the bill would fall short of that.

"We all need to do more, but, unfortunately, defense ministers don't write checks," Weinberger said.

"One of the problems is, of course, that conventional forces cost more than nuclear forces. Cost seems to be a primary factor in the minds of a lot of people."

Chamber Names Farris Farmville Citizen Of Year

Jack A. Farris was named Farmville Citizen of the Year Thursday night by the town's chamber of commerce.

The award was presented at Farmville Middle School during the annual Citizen of the Year banquet. The event was co-sponsored by the Farmville Chamber of Commerce and other civic betterment organizations.

Farris is president of the Farris and Sons Inc. general contracting business of Farmville, which he operates with his father, Hugh Farris, and his brother, Bill Farris. The business employs about 100 people and operates mostly in eastern North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. He also is a partner in a firm now constructing multi-family housing in Farmville.

He is a former town commissioner, a former president of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce and Farmville Economic Council, an advisory board member of the Bank of North Carolina, chairman of the Greenville-Farmville Advisory board of North Carolina National Bank, a member of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority board of directors, and a member of a committee to raise money to expand the physical facilities of the Farmville Community Arts Council.

A longtime Boy Scout volunteer, he has served in every capacity from Scoutmaster of Troop 25 to vice president of the East Boy Scout Carolina Council for 15 years. He has served the East Carolina Council on its executive board for 20 years, on its Camp Inspection Team for the Southeastern Region of Scouting, and as its representative at many regional and national meetings. He was honored with the Silver Beaver Award for Distinguished Service to Youth, the highest award for a volunteer in Scouting, and has completed national requirements for the Woodbadge Award. In 1971 he served as Camporee chief. He was largely responsible for the building of the Challenging Outdoor Physical Encounter Course (COPE) at Camp Bonner Boy Scout Camp. The course is named for his company.

He is a supporter of the Department of Construction Management of the East Carolina University School of Technology. Most recently, his company presented a computer system to this department.

Long a member of the Farmville Presbyterian Church, he has served as a deacon, chairman of the board, chairman of the long-range planning committee, chairman of the Friends of the Seminary, and a Sunday School teacher. He is a council member for the Albemarle Presbytery.

He is a private pilot and likes to give impromptu flying exhibitions for such people as the inmates of Maury's Eastern Correctional Institute.

During the banquet, special service-to-the-community awards were also given to the Rev. Ronald L. Davis, LaRue Moye and Juanita Williams.

Maury O'Dell, WPTF radio station manager and morning show announcer, was the speaker.

Bill Flowers, now Chamber president, discussed plans for the coming year's work by the Chamber. Joe Joyner, immediate past president, discussed the accomplishments of the year just past.

Nursing Center Resident Celebrates 100th Birthday

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Friends and five generations of family celebrated Ianthia Newsome Swinson's 100th birthday with her Thursday.

Swinsons — from North Carolina to Maryland — gathered to give a party for Mrs. Swinson and her fellow residents of University Nursing Center. Balloons, birthday cake, jelly beans, flowers and lots of picture taking were used to make the occasion festive.

A Farmville resident for most of her life, Mrs. Swinson has been a resident of the nursing home for nearly nine years.

According to her only surviving child, Glasco Swinson of Baltimore, she was born near Fremont, one of her 16 children. She had seven full and eight half-brothers and sisters. Only she and her half-sister, Emma Swinson Fox of Baltimore, are living now.

Several of her early married years were spent in Wilson, where her husband, Haddie Swinson, operated a small store. One night as he walked home from work, he was shot to death during a robbery.

The young widow then moved her children and herself to the Walstonburg area, where they farmed until moving to Farmville about 1921. After that she did day work for area farmers and worked each fall for many years in the A.C. Monk tobacco processing plant.

Her granddaughter, Willie Blount Suggs of Rocky Mount, said Mrs. Swinson raised many children, not just her own, but also grandchildren and great-grandchildren. A resident of 1007 S. Main Street, Farmville, for many years, she never remarried after being widowed prior to 1920. She made her family, her church, her house and her garden the focuses of her life. "Until she was 90 years old and a while beyond, she walked anywhere in Farmville she wanted to go," Mrs. Suggs said. "People would stop and offer her a ride and she'd say 'I'd rather walk.'"

The summer before she had the stroke that necessitated her move to the nursing home, she had probably as good a garden as she'd ever had, Mrs. Suggs remembers.

Mrs. Suggs' mother, Mary Bert Swinson Blount of Farmville, saw to Mrs. Swinson's needs until her own death about a year ago. Since that time, Mrs. Suggs has visited the nursing home each Sunday and, in cooperation with her uncle and his wife in Baltimore, has provided support for the nursing home in Mrs. Swinson's care.

Mrs. Swinson has two grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

Graduation

The 75th graduation for inmates in the Pre Release and Aftercare program of the Division of Adult Probation and Parole recently was held at Holy Trinity United Holiness Church, said Melvin McLawhorn, training coordinator.

Tony Hathaway, superintendent of the Martin County Prison Unit, was the speaker for the event.

Bishop Ralph Love, pastor of the church, presented a welcome and the invocation, while ladies of the church, coordinated by Louise Cohens, sponsored the meal. Churches and organizations interested in sponsoring a graduation may contact McLawhorn at 756-8400.

Leading Candidate

DALLAS (AP) — A Duke University law professor is the leading candidate to become president of Southern Methodist University, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

The News, quoting unnamed sources, said in a copyright story that A. Kenneth Pye could be named to the post today at a special meeting of the SMU board of trustees.

Pye, reached in Dallas Thursday night, declined to comment because he had not yet met with the board.

Asked if he would accept the job if it is offered, Pye said: "I have a tendency not to decide whether I'd take any position until it's offered to me. That's an idiosyncrasy of mine."

The university has scheduled a news conference after the board meeting, but officials declined to say what announcements might be made.

Sources said Pye met Thursday with Dallas oilman Ray Hunt, head of the SMU presidential search committee and acting chairman of the board of trustees. Hunt declined to comment on the presidential search.

L. Donald Shields resigned as SMU president in November, citing health problems. His resignation came after allegations of improprieties in the SMU athletic department and was followed by the resignations of the athletic director and football coach.

Teen Pregnancy

RALEIGH (AP) — Citing Greene County's pregnancy prevention program as an example, a regional consulting firm's report says school-based health care can reduce teen pregnancy rates and strengthen the work force.

Released by the Southern Growth Policies Board, the report says health services based in schools offer accessibility and low cost since they can be funded by sources outside of the county — such as federal or private grants — and are located in the same buildings as students.

Funded by the governments of 12 Southern states, the board makes recommendations on economic growth.

"School-based clinics alone will not solve the problem of inadequate health care or teenage pregnancy," the report says. "However, in many communities throughout the South, school-based clinics could have a significant impact on the health and well-being of teenagers whose option in life has been reduced by poverty, ill health, early pregnancies or drug and alcohol abuse."

The report listed four "model" school-based health programs in North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Mississippi. Snow Hill in Greene County, where a five-year-old adolescent parent prevention program has been operating at the county's only high school, was one of the highlighted programs.

The county's teen pregnancy rate has dropped 26 percent since 1983, and the pregnancy prevention program at Greene Central High School could be part of the reason, school officials agreed in interviews with The News and Observer of Raleigh.

Located in a county that has no doctors and no hospital, the program provides about 1,500 students with in-class pregnancy prevention teaching and counseling. Other services, such as referrals and physical examinations also are available.

The program's focus is on prevention through education, not contraceptives, said Helen Hill, the program's director.

Spotted Fever Cases

ATLANTA (AP) — Rocky Mountain spotted fever, a rare, tick-borne disease, increased slightly in the United States last year.

There were 755 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever reported nationwide in 1986, up 8 percent from 700 the year before, the national Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday. The fatality rate was 3 percent.

North Carolina had the most cases with 129. Oklahoma had 14.

Despite last year's slight increase, reports of the disease have fallen considerably in most of the nation fallen from 14.4 cases per million in 1983 to 5.3 per million.

The CDC said it doesn't know a reason for the decline.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever can cause chills, fever, pains and rash, and can be fatal.

"The best method of preventing Rocky Mountain spotted fever is to avoid tick-infested areas," the Atlanta-based agency said. People who cannot avoid such areas should wear protective clothing, and use a tick repellent.

since the early part of this decade, the CDC said.

The trend is especially evident in the two areas of the country most prone to Rocky Mountain spotted fever, the CDC said. The rate in the South Atlantic states has fallen from 19 cases per million in 1981 to 8.3 per million currently. The rate in the Western South Central region has

Carousel Carver

CHARLOTTE (AP) — For a mere $5,000, Calvin Wagoner would be willing to part with one of his hand-carved carousel horses. That's a good deal, considering all the time it takes to create such a wonder.

"I do it in my spare time at home," Wagoner said in a telephone interview from his home in Lexington. "I guess it takes me six or seven months to make one of them. It's a lot of handwork."

Wagoner was recently selected as the artist of the month by the High Country Art & Craft Guild. His two carousel horses are currently exhibited in the front window of the Guild's headquarters in downtown Asheville.

Wagoner says he became infatuated with horses during his years in the rodeo. When he saw a carousel horse from the 19th century during a visit to Charlotte, he offered its owner a deal.

"I restored it for her and she allowed me to measure it to make copies," he said. "The original was found in Virginia and it probably was made in New York."

SITE OF LANDING — This is the main entrance to the Key West Naval Air Station on Boca Chica Key in Key West, Fla., where a high-ranking Cuban official and his family landed Thursday afternoon in a small plane. State

Department officials said Brigadier Gen. Rafael Del Pino and four family members flew into the base in a small plane and defected. (AP Laserphoto)

Administration Exults Over Cuban's Defection

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, exultant over the defection of Cuba's second-ranking defense official, is describing it as perhaps the biggest U.S. intelligence coup in the 28 years of the Cuban revolution.

Brig. Gen. Rafael del Pino Diaz, deputy chief of the Cuban Defense Ministry, flew a small plane to Key West Naval Air Station in Florida on Thursday with his wife and three children.

Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten said del Pino, formerly chief of the Cuban Air Force, requested asylum on arrival and was undergoing questioning.

Perry Rivkind, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Miami, said the family has been paroled into the United States, a status permitting them to remain here indefinitely without passports or visas.

"If this guy is who he says he is, this is the biggest intelligence coup since (Fidel) Castro took power," said an administration official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

"This is a very important guy," said another official, who added that del Pino is believed to be one of the founders and organizers of the post-revolutionary military establishment in Cuba.

There have been several high-ranking defectors from Cuba in recent years, most of whom have remained largely anonymous out of fear that Cuban authorities might retaliate against their families if they go public.

The Reagan administration had almost nothing to say officially about del Pino aside from providing his name and rank. His motives for defecting were not disclosed. Privately, however, officials acknowledged that del Pino's flight represented a rare piece of good news at a time when the Iran-Contra hearings have been keeping the administration on the defensive.

The only other known Cuban military official who fled to the United States was Air Force Lt. Eduardo Guerra Jimenez. He left Cuba in a MiG-17 fighter on Oct. 5, 1969, but 10 years later returned to Cuba after hijacking a U.S. jetliner.

Pentagon officials who asked not to be identified said del Pino's plane, a small Cessna, was picked up on U.S. military radar at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla., at 1:42 p.m. EDT.

Two F-16 fighter jets were scrambled to check out the plane and were in the process of moving into visual contact with the aircraft when the Key West Naval Air Station established radio contact with the Cessna. The naval station said the Cessna reported it wanted to land at Key West. The two F-16s remained in the area until the Cessna landed, the officials said.

The plane landed on Boca Chica Key about 2 p.m. EDT, according to Art Skelley, manager of the Key West International Airport. Skelley said the plane was an American-made, twin-engine Cessna 402.

Del Pino was able to take off in the aircraft because of his senior rank and by saying he was taking his family on an aerial jaunt around the Cuban island, unidentified officials told The Washington Post in today's editions.

Enrique Baloyra, a University of Miami professor, said del Pino is believed to be in his mid-50s and as a young man was an opponent of the rightist dictatorship ousted by Castro in 1959.

Baloyra said del Pino joined Castro's insurrection in the late 1950s and also played a role in defeating the CIA-sponsored Cuban rebels who invaded Cuba at the Bay of Pigs in 1961.

Subway Visit Planned Today For Goetz Jurors

By SAMUEL MAULL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jurors saw Bernhard Goetz's shooting of four youths re-enacted in an imaginary subway car, then heard the rules for their visit today to a real, graffiti-smearred train.

"You may sit, stand or walk around or do anything else you want to help you in your understanding of this case," Justice Stephen Crane told jurors in the attempted murder trial.

At the request of defense lawyers, the judge scheduled the walk-through of a subway car like the one in which Goetz shot the four teen-agers on Dec. 22, 1984. The car in which they were riding has been taken out of service.

In court Thursday, defense attorney Barry I. Slotnick used white tape to outline the floor plan of the car where Goetz shot Troy Canty, Barry Allen, James Ramseur and Darrell Cabey, all 19 at the time.

Goetz, charged with attempted murder, assault, reckless endangerment and weapons violations, says he shot the four because they were about to rob him.

The prosecution says they were panhandling money for video game machines and that Goetz acted criminally by pulling an unlicensed .38-caliber pistol and shooting them.

Slotnick and Joseph Quirk, a retired New York City detective and ballistics expert, recreated the shootings using four young, black members of the Guardian Angels anti-crime group to portray Goetz's victims.

Quirk, who said Slotnick paid him $1,500 for his expert testimony, said he believed that Cabey was standing when Goetz shot him.

Cabey slipped into a coma and was left paralyzed from the waist down following the shootings. One witness testified Cabey was seated when Goetz fired a bullet into his spine, and Goetz has told investigators he shot one victim who was sitting.

During an aggressive cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Gregory Waples, Quirk admitted his testimony was not based on medical reports, examinations of the youths or checks of their clothing.

"You're not pretending you know what went on in that subway car, are you?" Waples asked.

"No," responded Quirk. He said he based his testimony on information Slotnick gave him, and that different information would cause him to give different answers. Quirk said he based his opinions on the height of the victims, the height of Goetz and where the victims fell after the shootings.

Highest Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — A live interview with Jim and Tammy Bakker this week gave ABC's "Nightline" its highest ratings in the program's seven-year history, according to overnight Nielsen figures from 12 major cities.

ABC estimated that 20 million people watched Wednesday night's broadcast, which was the Bakkers' most extensive interview since they left their PTL evangelical empire amid a sexual scandal.

The broadcast received a 15.4 rating and a 42 share. A rating point equals 1 percent of all households with televisions in the areas surveyed. The share is the percentage of TV sets in use at the time.

"Nightline's" previous record overnight rating, a 12.3, came on April 15, 1986, the day after U.S. planes bombed Libya.

NASA To Study Using Liquid-Fueled Rockets

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — NASA has announced plans to study the feasibility of using liquid-fueled rockets to replace solid rocket boosters blamed for the Challenger disaster.

The Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., said Thursday it was asking contractors to develop concepts for the design of liquid-fueled boosters that could be used to launch the shuttle or future spacecraft.

Marshall spokesman L.T. Spears said the center will consider the submitted proposals this summer and select two contractors to conduct a detailed, nine-month, $6 million study.

The 1986 accident that destroyed Challenger and killed its seven crew members was blamed on a flawed solid-fueled booster rocket.

Spears said liquid-fueled rocket engines are more versatile than solid-fueled rockets because they can be throttled, held down on the launch pad after ignition and shut down in flight.

Solid-fueled rockets, however, instantly fire at full thrust and will continue to burn at that rate until the fuel is exhausted. The burn rate can't be modified once solid fuels are ignited.

Spears said the request for proposals issued Thursday did not specify what kind of fuel could be used in the liquid rockets. NASA has flown rockets that use kerosene and oxygen, or hydrogen and oxygen as propellants. The shuttle's main engines use hydrogen and oxygen.

The rocket study would also consider whether proposed liquid-fueled rockets should be reusable or discarded after one use.

Hulls of the shuttle's solid-fueled rockets are recovered at sea and reused. Liquid-fueled rockets, however, such as the Saturn 5 used in the Apollo program, have been used once and discarded.

The proposal reopens a debate that raged through the National Aeronautics and Space Administration during the 1970s when the space shuttle was being designed.

Some concepts then called for a liquid-fueled rocket booster system that would carry the shuttle to a high altitude, detach and then be flown back to a landing site near the launch pad, while the shuttle went on to orbit.

NASA abandoned the liquid-fueled booster concept, however, to save money in the space shuttle development and chose to use solid-fueled rockets. The shuttle became the first manned spacecraft to be launched with solid rockets.

Challenger was destroyed when a joint in one of its two solid-fueled boosters leaked superheated gas that caused a fuel tank to rupture, triggering the explosion.

NASA's shuttle fleet has been grounded since Jan. 28, 1986, accident while engineers redesign and test the solid-fueled rockets. Shuttle flights are expected to resume in June 1988.

Spears said results of the study could help NASA determine whether the agency will develop liquid-fueled shuttle rockets, "but we're not going into it with any preconceived notions."

Congress Will Review Plan For U.S. Role In Gulf

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress agrees that the United States should have a military presence in the Persian Gulf, but will look closely at details of the plan as offered by the Reagan administration, two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today.

"We cannot let the Persian Gulf become a Soviet lake, and it will if we do not show our presence there," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Moynihan and Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., appearing on NBC-TV show "Today," took a conciliatory tack toward the Reagan administration following an agreement worked out the night before to satisfy congressional demands for more information.

Under the agreement, reached late Thursday, the administration will provide more information to Congress about U.S. policy in the Persian Gulf, stemming congressional demands for formal "consultation" under the War Powers Act.

"Our goals are to keep the Russians out and the Iranian presence lower," Pressler said, noting that the May 17 attack on the USS Stark led Congress to question U.S. direction in the region.

"This is not a new policy, but since the apparent accident last week it has come under review," Pressler said.

The agreement between the administration and Congress was worked out late Thursday in a series of closed-door meetings between House and Senate leaders and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and National Security Adviser Frank Carlucci.

At the same time, the administration put off for several weeks its plan to place Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Persian Gulf under U.S. naval protection, Pentagon and congressional officials say.

Pressler said the Foreign Relations Committee would press the administration for a statement of its intentions when it heard testimony today from Richard W. Murphy, the assistant secretary of state for the Near East.

"That's what we will be talking about today," Pressler said.

The administration's plan to put 11 tankers under the U.S. flag, with American captains aboard, has raised concerns in Congress that the United States might be drawn into the Iran-Iraq war, now in its seventh year.

Initially, White House and Pentagon officials said the program to place American captains and the American flag on Kuwaiti ships and to protect them with American forces probably would begin in early June.

Pentagon officials, speaking Thursday on condition they not be identified, said re-flagging the Kuwaiti vessels was continuing but the U.S. flag would not fly over those ships until the Navy was ready to escort and protect them — a process that could take several weeks.

"We've got to do more work on the military side, but we've also got to do more explaining to Congress," a source said.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said re-flagging of the tankers would not be complete until mid-June "and there won't be any escorting of those tankers by U.S. Navy vessels until the re-flagging is completed."

"I don't think from what I've been told that the administration has decided the degree of military force that will be required" to protect the tankers, the senator added.

A State Department official speaking on condition of anonymity said the tankers might not be put under U.S. control until the end of June.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, however, denied there had been any slippage in the timing of the move. He said the re-flagging would start early next month.

"There's no timetable or deadline for the re-flagging. We have been discussing this with the Kuwaitis for weeks. It will start when we're ready," Fitzwater said.

"We expect we would be ready to escort tankers in the next week or two. We have said all along (we would start in) early June, and I expect that would hold," Fitzwater said.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told reporters Thursday night that he did not know of any decision to delay the "flagging."

He described the process as "somewhat laborious," involving inspection of the tankers to make sure they meet U.S. Coast Guard standards and finding captains to take charge.

Flower Thefts

GREENSBORO (AP) — Graham police and funeral home directors have reported at least 30 cases of flowers stolen within days of area funerals, saying the thieves are apparently taking the flowers and selling them.

"Here lately, just about any time we have a funeral, the flowers turn out missing in a day or two," said Graham police Sgt. Ed Norwood.

Norwood, who has hidden in the woods at Graham Memorial Park in unsuccessful attempts to catch flower thieves, said the most commonly stolen items are artificial flower arrangements and live roses and orchids.

"So there's a process under way," Shultz said. "I haven't heard about any delay in it."

"The United States has no intention and will not get directly involved in the Iran-Iraq war," Shultz said. "We will not go to war with either party."

In other developments:

—The leader of the U.S. team investigating Iraq's May 17 attack on the frigate USS Stark said the Americans had disagreements with Iraqi officials but he expected the joint inquiry to be finished today. Rear Adm. David Rogers, deputy director of operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, would not describe differences that had arisen in probing the assault that killed 37 U.S. sailors.

—Military sources in Washington said the Iraqis had not permitted the investigative team to talk to the pilot who fired on the Stark, but did answer all the questions it had for the pilot. Iraq says the airman thought he was attacking an Iranian ship.

—Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who is headed to the region with a congressional delegation, said the administration has abandoned its neutrality. Several members of Congress have voiced concern that Iran might be provoked to attack the Kuwaiti tankers, prompting a reported agreement for the administration to provide more information about its Persian Gulf policies to Congress. Legislators said the agreement Thursday came during a visit to Capitol Hill by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and National Security Adviser Frank Carlucci.

—Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, Said Rajaie-Khorassani, in a television interview, said the United States is "looking for trouble" by stepping up its military presence in the gulf. Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman, acknowledged Thursday that Congress had not been notified that the Navy on two occasions escorted Kuwaiti merchant ships carrying U.S.-made tanks to Bahrain. "It did not put our forces at risk," he said.

—NATO allies have turned down a

U.S. appeal for help in protecting oil tankers in the gulf, State Department officials said Thursday. But they said Shultz is likely to bring up the matter again when he meets with allied foreign ministers in Reykjavik, Iceland.

For two weeks, the Pentagon, White House and State Department have studied how best to provide the protection. The Navy's Mideast Task Force, consisting of a half-dozen small warships, is considered too small to do the job.

The options include the possibility of using jet fighters to provide air cover — possibly with logistics support at land bases in such countries as Kuwait or Saudi Arabia — or increasing the size or changing the composition of the Mideast Task Force.

The Washington Post reported that a plan is expected to be presented today to President Reagan, and it will envision a convoy of three or four tankers being escorted under U.S. naval protection about every 10 days.

The newspaper, quoting administration sources, said the necessary air protection would come from U.S. planes based on carriers outside the gulf. But Pentagon officials say the plan is likely to include a combination of options. And Shultz said Thursday the United States may ask Saudi Arabia to provide airfields for the U.S. jets.

Paper Says Bakkers Benefited From Secret Account

By The Associated Press

A secret bank account unknown to PTL's board of directors was used to funnel more than $2 million last year to Jim and Tammy Bakker and top aides at the multimillion-dollar ministry, The Washington Post reported today.

The account was administered by Laventhol & Horvath, the nation's 10th-largest accounting firm, which until last month also served as PTL's independent auditor, the newspaper said.

Meanwhile, The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer reported that two lawyers representing PTL complained to Bakker last fall that he and top aides, not the board, appeared to control the organization and that executives' high pay endangered its tax-exempt status.

On Thursday, the Bakkers canceled a Thursday night appearance on Cable News Network's "Larry King Live," King said.

King said he was told by a Bakker spokesman that the appearance was canceled because Mrs. Bakker had an "upsetting" night after an interview Wednesday night on ABC's "Nightline" appearance.

Bakker spokeswoman April Espinoza said the Bakkers had nothing further to say. "They refuse to be a part of the vicious mudslinging war that is going on," she said outside the Bakkers' home in Palm Springs, Calif.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell also weighed in Thursday, saying on the "PTL Club" program that it was time to halt the bickering that has made PTL sound like a "soap opera" and to concentrate on saving the ministry, which is $70 million in debt.

Falwell said later Thursday on "Nightline" that he spoke by telephone earlier in the day with Jessica Hahn and said she confirmed his account of her 1980 sexual encounter with Bakker. Falwell, who said it was his first conversation with Ms. Hahn, had said that in addition to Bakker, one of Bakker's associates had sex with Ms. Hahn, and a third person attempted also to take advantage of her. Bakker, while admitting his episode with Ms. Hahn, this week denied anyone else was involved.

Bakker handed Falwell control of PTL in March and admitted having a 1980 sexual encounter with a New York church secretary. Bakker on Tuesday accused Falwell of tricking him into giving up his ministry, a charge Falwell denied.

According to the Post, Laventhol wrote checks on the secret account on instructions from Jim Bakker's former personal aide or his secretary.

William Spears, the Laventhol partner who handled the account, said his firm's function was strictly "clerical" and did not conflict with the firm's role as auditor.

Spears refused to discuss details of the transactions, citing confidentiality rules.

The Post story did not provide a breakdown of the money paid the Bakkers and their aides. On Wednesday, Falwell said the Bakkers were paid $1.9 million last year.

Spears said he was confident the board would have been aware of amounts paid the Bakkers, but two former board members disputed that.

A.T. Lawing said that he was shocked to discover the Bakkers made more than $1 million last year and that he didn't recall the board ever discussing or approving such figures.

Don George, who served on the board from 1985 to February of this year, said the Bakkers' salaries were never brought before the board.

PTL executives' high pay posed a "very serious" threat to PTL's tax-exempt status, PTL attorneys Charles Chapel and Michael Wigton wrote Bakker last Sept. 9, according to the Observer.

The attorneys told Bakker they were withdrawing as PTL's counsel in an effort to maintain its tax exemption, the newspaper said.

In 1985, the Internal Revenue Service proposed revoking PTL's tax-exempt privilege for 1981-83, arguing PTL was operated partly for Bakker's private benefit. The IRS also is auditing PTL's finances for 1984-87.

Wigton and Chapel urged Bakker to comply strictly with the law, the Observer said, quoting from the six-page letter.

"You have been entrusted with the care, custody and control of hundreds of millions of dollars. ... We have not seen the kind of commitment required for us to continue to represent the church," the letter said.

"I know how busy you are and I know how fast the church has grown and how hard it is," it continued. "But that is not enough. You have got to take charge and get your business under control. Otherwise, your church will be lost."

The attorneys also complained that Bakker didn't return phone calls and had stopped cooperating, that the PTL staff was hostile and that the PTL board had been given a limited role in the operation of the ministry.

Chapel and Wigton refused to comment on the letter Thursday.

Heavy Rains Drench Midwest; Storm Damage In The Millions

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

An 11th straight day of rain in Oklahoma today kept up to 1,000 people from their homes as a ribbon of thunderstorms blamed for two deaths caused tens of millions of dollars in damage in the Midwest.

A state of emergency remained in effect in Oklahoma, where 6 to 9 inches of rain fell in the central part of the state Thursday, after moist air from the Gulf of Mexico clashed with cool northern and western air along a 1,000-mile front.

Thunderstorms in Texas on Thursday spawned eight tornadoes as well as baseball-size hail at Knickerbocker and 70 mph wind gusts at Wills Point, while in Wisconsin lightning hit at least 10 people, seriously injuring several of them.

The rain was so heavy in a Dallas suburb Thursday night that it sent the roof crashing down on an office party, injuring six people. Three were hospitalized in serious condition.

"We have been on the edge of a very potent situation for about a week," said Skip Ely, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Fort Worth, Texas. "Late-May storms are real juicy, like this one."

Some roads and bridges remained closed in Oklahoma, where a 2-year-old girl died Thursday when her family's car was washed off a road, and a 14-year-old boy drowned in a flooded creek Wednesday.

In central and southwest Oklahoma, muddy water from swollen rivers and creeks drove about 1,000 residents from their homes. The forecast called for 2 more inches of rain today.

"It won't be as heavy as we have had in the past few days," said meteorologist John Victory. "But even light rain will hurt."

State Civil Defense Director Norris

Price said damage in Oklahoma could rise as high as $20 million.

In Iowa, an earthen dike burst in Hamburg, sending waters from the record-high Nishnabotna River swirling into the town of about 1,600 people. The National Guard spent the day sandbagging, patrolling and assisting with evacuations, said Lt. Col. Jerry Gorden.

Elsewhere in Iowa, conditions were starting to return to normal, said Ellen Gordon of the Office of Disaster Services, but state officials estimated agricultural damage alone at $3.6 million.

Reports from the four hardest-hit counties in the southwest tip of Iowa showed that 20 percent to 30 percent of the area's corn and soybean crops were harmed, said Dennis Olson of the state Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service.

In Texas, 66 counties, or one-fourth of the state, was under a tornado watch Thursday night. There were numerous reports of power outages and downed trees.

In Wisconsin, at least 10 people were struck by lightning Thursday, including six members of a Pennsylvania Air National Guard unit training at Volk Field.

Theodore Bernstein, a University of Wisconsin engineering professor, said the number of injurious strikes was "just a coincidence really. There's nothing special you can attribute to it."

Scattered thunderstorms were not expected to break a heat wave in Michigan, where forecasters predicted only a slight break in temperatures that threatened livestock and pushed power demand to recover levels for May.

Highs today were expected to reach the mid-80s to about 90 in the Lower Peninsula and in the low to mid-80s in the Upper Peninsula, the weather service said.

Programs For Older Citizens Are Reauthorized By House

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's network of community services for senior citizens was renewed in a lopsided House vote that added new programs for frail elderly people living at home and for long-term care facilities.

The Older Americans Act, signed into law in 1965, was reauthorized Thursday on a 379-8 vote. The Senate has yet to act on the reauthorization.

Among the services provided under the act are senior centers, meals for delivery to shut-ins, group meals, transportation, legal assistance, employment opportunities and research activities.

The four-year, $6.8 billion extension won overwhelming support from both sides of the aisle, even after Republicans tried and failed to trim increases in allowable spending for some activities.

Rep. Dale Kildee, D-Mich., chairman of the House Education and Labor subcommittee on human resources, called the act "one of the most non-partisan programs this Congress has seen. ... It successfully enables the elderly to continue to be active participants in their communities."

The renewal bill would raise the current authorization about $100 million to slightly more than $1.5 billion next year, and boost each program 5 percent annually.

However, spending this year on Older Americans Act programs is only about $1.2 billion and outlays for many activities are expected to remain lower than the full authorized levels. Actual spending will be determined later this year during the appropriations process.

The House authorized several new programs to begin in 1988, including $25 million for in-home services for frail elderly people who otherwise would have to live in institutions; $20 million for a separate and expanded ombudsman program for residents of long-term care facilities; and $25 million for states with special needs to shore up services in those areas.

In addition, the reauthorization bill contains a one-time $25 million outreach program in 1989 to identify low-income senior citizens who are eligible for food stamps and other federal benefits.

The House budget, which has not yet been reconciled with its Senate counterpart, contains money for the frail elderly program and the 5 percent annual inflation adjustment. But it does not specifically provide for the special needs or outreach programs authorized Thursday.

Among the amendments adopted before the final vote:

- States receiving money under the act must set up elderly abuse protection and prevention programs, with $5 million authorized to help them get started.
- Demonstration projects designed to help and protect senior citizens who receive home care would get $2 million in 1989 and 1990.
- Money under the act must not be used for lobbying or political purposes.

Leading Index Falls

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today its main forecasting gauge of future economic activity plunged 0.6 percent in April, the biggest decline in two years.

The weakness in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators was the first decline since a 0.5 percent drop in January and the largest downturn since a 0.8 percent decrease in April 1985.

The index had been up 0.8 percent in March.

Analysts caution against reading too much into one month's change in the index, but they said the April performance was a warning signal that economic growth is slowing.

The weakness in the index was heavily influenced by a huge drop in the average number of hours worked at manufacturing plants. Economists said this number overstated the weakness last month because the survey on which it was based was taken during a week that included two religious holidays, Good Friday and Passover.

Without the decline in manufacturing hours, the index would have fallen 0.1 percent.

Still, economists said five of the nine indicators available declined during the month, reflecting a widespread slowdown in economic activity.

Economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, spurred ahead at a rapid 4.4 percent rate in the first three months of 1987, the fastest economic growth in almost three years.

But economists are predicting the economy will slow dramatically during the April-June quarter, with some even forecasting a decline in the GNP, something that hasn't occurred since the end of the 1981-82 recession.

Another Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is rethinking its call for international controls on chemicals that destroy the Earth's ozone layer, and considering promoting the use of sunglasses and skin lotion as an alternative way to prevent skin cancers, according to a published report.

The Washington Post reported in its Friday editions that the White House review casts doubt on a tentative 31-nation agreement, announced last month, to limit the use of chlorofluorocarbons that harm the ozone layer, which screens out the sun's cancer-causing ultraviolet rays. U.S. negotiators went into the talks seeking an almost complete ban on the chemicals.

The administration's review has been prompted largely by Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, who was concerned President Reagan could be locked into seeking increased government regulation, the newspaper said.

Jarvis Choir

The chancel choir of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, 510 S. Washington St., will present "Alleluia" by Gaither Sunday at 3 p.m. in the church sanctuary accompanied.

The performance is open to the public.

Church Donations Get More Results Than TV Ministries

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Recently spotlighted moral-financial hanky-panky in some TV ministries have raised questions about what all the money given to them accomplishes, compared to results from other religious giving.

Just what specific work is sustained by the donated TV millions in comparison to that resulting from similar contributions to other churches?

One denominational official has come up with figures that offer some striking contrasts, showing that church dollars do far more in a tangible way than the TV-given dollars.

The situation can be likened to that in other major religious denominations generally in view of the similarities of their methods and operations.

Robert F. Polk of Dallas, director of Cooperative Program Promotion for the Baptist General Convention of Texas, brought out the broadly applicable picture in the nation's biggest Protestant body — the 14.6 million Southern Baptists.

He noted that they gave about $635 million in 1986 to support the denomination's worldwide missions and humanitarian programs, a sum in the same range as the reported combined giving of $684 million to six leading TV ministries.

From the roughly equal amounts, what tasks were carried out in each of the two arenas?

As for the TV money, Polk cites reports that besides paying for the TV shows, it supported four schools, one hospital, three churches, two ministries to needy children, one to others in need and one home for unwed mothers.

Extent of those services, Polk pointed out, are scant compared to the immense tasks carried on from a similar amount of money given to the cooperative program of a single denomination, Southern Baptists.

Among other things, the Baptist donations supported 52 children's homes, 48 hospitals, including 23 overseas, 33 nursing homes or homes for the aged, and 67 colleges and universities enrolling 200,000 students.

The denominational money also supported 3,756 foreign missionaries in more than 100 nations, 3,637 home missionaries in the United States, and ministries to students on 1,100 campuses.

Also, the Southern Baptist funds supported six seminaries, enrolling a fifth of the seminarians in the country, and also a TV network, the American Christian Television System (ACTS), carried on cable in many cities.

Polk called the operations from the denominational funds "the greatest outreach ministry in the world," sustained by an amount similar to the total of the six TV ministries, yet hugely overshadowing them in results.

Another striking difference, he said, is the accountability in church operations, with state and national conventions deciding how the money is spent and regular audited reports made at state and national levels.

"From the local church to the missionary on the foreign field, every penny given is accounted for," he said.

Similar decision-making on programs and spending is made by representatives of other Protestant denominations, which also provide audited financial reports, as do Roman Catholic dioceses.

Polk noted that none of the top money-getting TV ministers belong to the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability in Washington, D.C., whose member agencies must meet various standards, including audited financial reports.

Among its members, however, are evangelist Billy Graham, who only periodically televises parts of crusades in different cities, and Chuck Colson's Prison Fellowship, which carries on an extensive prison ministry.

Polk, in comparing Southern Baptist work done with a sum similar to the total of six TV ministers, cited 1986 gross incomes reported in U.S. News and World Report of the following religious broadcasters:

Show Hosts Cut Officials

NEW YORK (AP) — Linda Ellerbee and Ray Gandolf, whose nostalgic news program "Our World" was canceled by ABC, signed off their last show with a swipe at the decision-makers who took the low-rated show off the air.

"Our World," which used commentary and film clips to examine various years in recent history, was put up against NBC's blockbuster comedy "The Cosby Show" on Thursday night.

"Our World" has not been renewed for next fall," Gandolf said at the conclusion of the final show, a look back at the year 1953.

"We apparently fell down and broke our crown on the bottom line. You have been faithful and eloquent supporters of 'Our World.' Thank you. You deserve better. I hope you get it."

"When Paddy Chayefsky wrote 'Marty' in 1953, he believed television would be the center ring of 20th-century culture, but he changed his mind, and so, in 1976, he wrote 'Network,'" Ms. Ellerbee said.

"It's a satire on television, in which the anchorman asks the viewer to get up out of his chair, to the window, open it and yell: 'I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take this anymore!'"

Ms. Ellerbee, author of the best-selling biography "And So It Goes," co-anchored the off-beat NBC news show "Overnight" until it was canceled in 1983.

"By the way," she said, "if you wonder whether this sort of thing gets easier with practice, it doesn't."

Joey's Future Looks Bright: Story To Be Told

Nearly 11 years ago when Joey Bissette was born, doctors told his mother he would not live through infancy.

It appeared likely that Joey would bleed to death because of a disease called hemophilia.

"When I brought him home from the hospital, I told my husband, Johnny, 'This baby won't die. I'll make sure my baby won't die,'" Sheri Bissette said.

Hemophilia, a hereditary disease affecting only males, was familiar to Mrs. Bissette. A cousin had the disease and her 35-year-old brother, who also has hemophilia, is unable to work because of joint damage caused by internal bleeding.

Now, with the help of medical technology and the determination and support of his family, Joey's future looks bright.

Joey's story will be told this weekend during the Children's Miracle Network Telethon. The telethon is a celebration of the accomplishments of the Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina, the region's pediatric referral center which is a division of Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Hours are from 9 p.m. Saturday until 6 p.m. Sunday. The last 20 minutes of each hour will be devoted to local programming.

People with hemophilia have a shortage of a protein called Factor VIII, the major clotting agent in blood, explains Dr. Dorothy Ganick, pediatric hematologist at the Children's Hospital.

Because the blood of a person with the disease does not clot normally, a simple cut or bruise can bleed excessively. Internal bleeding caused by falls or other blows can result in large, deep bruises, which may make a limb or joint swollen and painful for days. Repeated bleeding into joints can leave them permanently stiff and swollen.

Bleeding can be treated by infusing a concentrated form of Factor VIII into the vein. Depending on the severity of the bleeding, repeated infusions may be needed.

To prevent joint disease and long-term disability, prompt treatment of hemorrhage is important, according to Ganick. Before home therapy was available, a hemophiliac had to be rushed to the hospital for an infusion. Now his mother is able to treat Joey as soon as a hemorrhage is identified, she said.

Identifying a hemorrhage is not always easy, since many hemophiliacs have a high threshold of pain and may not feel a bruise or cut. That's why it's wise for the patient to take responsibility for his treatment, Ganick said.

"Joey has had to become attuned to his body," Ganick said. "The smartest person about the disease, even when the patient is a child, is the patient. He can tell you before you see anything that his knee feels funny and that's the time to treat."

Ganick said she's observed that hemophilia patients, who have to take major responsibility for their disease, usually grow up to be very responsible adults. Joey, who will one day administer the Factor VIII himself, says he wants to be a lawyer.

Ganick said coping with the disease places enormous pressure on parents who tend to worry about their children's safety.

Mrs. Bissette said, when Joey started to walk, she watched him constantly to make sure he did not fall or bump into anything. The Bissettes went so far as to pad the floor and walls in their son's room. The day after this work was completed, Joey fell on the padding and cut his upper lip with his teeth.

Mrs. Bissette said she has gradually learned to back off and let her son learn for himself that he can get hurt and how to best avoid it.

At school at G.R. Whitfield in Grimesland, he is not allowed to take part in outdoor games like football and kickball. During recess, he goes to the library or helps out in the school office.

"He has had to learn that, even though there are a lot of things he wants to do, he just cannot do them," she said. "It is a lot for a kid to go through, but he deals with it now and does well."

Mrs. Bissette has also educated Joey's classmates and teachers about the disease and its seriousness. Once when Joey began hemorrhaging in school, his mother gave him an infusion with his classmates watching. She said that, after the experience, the other children became more protective of Joey and more sensitive to his condition.

A BICYCLIST — Joey Bissette, who has to guard carefully against injuries because he's a hemophiliac, is delighted to have been allowed by his parents to have a bicycle. His mother, Sheri Bissette (right), says so far he's had no injuries from riding the bicycle.

The Bissettes hesitated to give Joey a bicycle. However, one of his doctors indicated that bicycle riding might strengthen his weak ankles. So his parents relented and gave him his own bike, under the condition that it would be taken away the first time he hurt himself doing something careless with it.

I have never had to give him a shot pertaining to a bicycle accident," Mrs. Bissette said. And she says she can see improvement in his ankles.

For the past five summer, Joey has attended a South Carolina camp for children with hemophilia. "It's been good for Joey to be around the kids there," she said. "He learns a lot by seeing kids his own age who have not taken care of themselves and now suffer from swollen joints."

Medical treatment for hemophilia is expensive. Each bottle of Factor VIII costs about $300. At times, depending on the severity of the hemorrhage, six to 10 bottles may be used to treat one hemorrhage. There also are bills for routine visits to the doctor, needles, syringes and other supplies.

Although insurance will cover 80 percent of the expenses, bills are still steep. The Bissettes have decided to sell their home to pay off some of their medical debts. And, because a cure for hemophilia has not yet been discovered, bills will continue to build.

Nevertheless, Sheri Bissette says she feels blessed. "Joey's in such good shape," she said.

When Joey has his 11th birthday July 26, the Bissettes will celebrate his good health as they do each year — with cake, ice cream and all the trimmings.

"I like to think that people don't think of Joey as a hemophiliac," Ganick said. "I hope they think of him as the delightful 10-year-old that he is. That's a miracle."

Second Time Around For Wedding Gift

DEAR ABBY: Now that the wedding season is here again, I thought I might pass along a funny thing that happened to me when I got married five years ago. (I learned a valuable lesson from it.)

During my bridal shower, I opened a gift from a girl who (fortunately for her) could not attend the shower. The card read: "For Sue and Jim with love from Donna and Sam." As I removed a beautiful set of salad bowls from the box, another card fell out — so I picked it up to read aloud, and nearly fell over when I read: "To Donna and Sam, happy wedding and love from The Smiths." Luckily I caught myself before I read it out loud.

My husband and I think of the Smiths every time we use those lovely salad bowls. I also learned a valuable lesson before I made the same mistake.

Donna never found out that her faux pas was discovered. The names above are not the real ones, so just sign me ... NOT FOOLED

DEAR NOT FOOLED: You have passed on a valuable warning. There's nothing wrong with recycling a gift, but one should carefully examine the wrappings to make sure there is no card nestled in the tissue from the original giver.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old Minnesota male, dating a 21-year-old female from Georgia. Her folks are strict Southern Baptists, and the time has come for me to ask "Papa Daddy" for his daughter's hand in marriage. So what's the problem? Well, I've been divorced for six years and my girlfriend and her sister say, "Don't tell the folks!"

However, I love her folks, and we get along very well. I am of the same religion, and I know they like and trust me.

What do you think? To tell or not to tell? Please answer soon. — GEORGIA ON MY MIND

DEAR GEORGIA: A failed marriage is not a crime. But one question: Are there any children in your closet? I advise you to tell your future in-laws the heretofore undisclosed details of your past. And the sooner the better.

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the poor guy who took a gal out to dinner and on their first date she rubbed her shoeless foot against his leg. I've given it lots of thought and concluded that:

1. She "knee-ded" him badly.
2. She was starting a romance from scratch.
3. Her behavior was "leg-endary."
4. In confessing to her priest the next day she said, "Father, I have shinned!" — HAROLD Z., CHICAGO P.S. Abby, is this true?

DEAR HAROLD: Of course. Truth is stranger than friction.

(For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Double Ring Vows Solemnized

Joyce Ann Grimes and Gregory Barrett were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Eldress Doretha Bernard in St. Matthews Free Will Baptist Church. The couple lit the unity candle during the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Ella Grimes and George Darden of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of the late Carrie Elizabeth Barrett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chapel length gown of chantilly lace, Venise lace and English net. The Victorian neckline was trimmed in lace medallions and the illusion yoke featured sequins. The bishop sleeves were of crystal organza and the basque waistline was edged with schiffli embroidery. The full skirt flowed into a chapel length with organza gathers and satin bows edged with schiffli lace. Her fingertip length veil, pouf and blusher were trimmed with schiffli embroidery and pearls. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white and pink carnations with baby's breath tied with pink and white streamers.

Beverly Edwards of Greenville

was honor attendant and wore a ballerina length gown of daphne rose with a sweetheart neckline. The full taffeta skirt featured a lace overlay. She carried a single pink mum with baby's breath with pink and white lace streamers.

Bridesmaids included Queenie Barrett, sister of the bridegroom, Cathy Grimes, sister-in-law of the bride, Mary Edwards, Angie Hardy, Marie Jenkins, and Teresa Washington, all of Greenville. Each wore a dress similar to that of the honor attendant and carried similar bouquets.

Flower girls were Lakisha Bernard and Nibea Barrett. Each wore a daphne rose floor length gown of taffeta and carried a white wicker basket filled with rose petals.

Marvin Barrett, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were James Barrett, brother of the bridegroom, Billy Grimes, Eddie Grimes, and Lindsay Grimes, brothers of the bride, Lindsey Evans, and Daniel Ward, all of Greenville. The ring bearer was Alvin Grimes, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride and the bridegroom's sister, Vivian Edward, of Greenville were remembered with pink carnation corsages.

A reception was held in the South Greenville Recreation Center. Sylvia Whichard registered guests and Michelle Whichard received gifts. Shirley Atkinson introduced the wedding party and Debra Barrett poured punch. Assisting were Judy Gibbons, Joyce Baker, and Loretta Hodges.

The bride and bridegroom graduated from J.H. High School. She is employed by Shoney's and he works at Greenville Villa Nursing Home.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip.

Engagement Announced

REGINA KAYE JOYNER — announces her engagement to Robert Earl Hulon. Her parents are Melton Earl Joyner Jr. of Ayden and Linda Joyner of Greenville. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Hulon of Greenville. The wedding will take place July 25.

N.C. ESA Council Convention Opens

The N.C. Council of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority will hold its state convention here at the Sheraton Inn today through Sunday.

Members of the Alpha Omega Chapter will be hostesses.

Special guests in attendance will be the international president, Corinne Milburn of Elk Point, S.D., and Romanda Talley, southeastern regional council president from Pooler, Ga. Sharon Long of Raleigh, president of the state council, is also expected to attend.

The theme of the 35th convention is "ESA — A Class Act."

Registration begins today at 4 p.m. followed by a reception to honor the state representative, IC representative and SERC representative at 6:30 p.m. Registration ends at 7 p.m. followed by a 7:45 p.m. "High on the Hog" mixer party featuring the introduction of candidates for the group's "Man of the Year" Award.

Saturday's registration is from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., after which the first general assembly will be held. Other activities for the day include an introduction of the 1986 Woman of the Year, Joan Cobb, and the introduction of 1987 Woman of the Year candidates; the presentation of several awards; the presentation of scholarships; and the introduction of candidates for Pledge of the Year, all at the "High Society" luncheon at noon.

"Putting on the Ritz" is the theme for the night's dinner, at which entertainment will be provided by Barry Shank's Band. The Outstanding Pledge, Outstanding Chapter, and Man of the Year Awards will be made at this dinner. The Alpha Omega Chapter will also present the N.C. Woman of the Year Award.

Sunday's schedule includes a morning memorial service and the second general assembly meeting, "ESA — A Class Act." Recognition will be made of the 1987-88 executive officers, the 1987 Woman of the Year, the 1987 Outstanding Pledge and the 1987 Outstanding Chapter.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press
HOGS: Market steady to 50 cents lower at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, unreported; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 57.00; Wilson 57.25, Rowland, 56.00. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 45.00; Wallace 45.00; Spivey's Corner 46.00; Rowland 46.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina job dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 43.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 65 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 40.96 cents. The market is lower and the live supply is fully adequate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,869,000, compared to 2,053,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market lower. Supply burdensome for light to moderate demand. Prices paid per pound day of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 5 cents at farm with buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 2 cents lower at mostly 1.91-2.05 in East and mostly 2.20-2.22 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans steady to 2 cents lower at mostly 5.30-5.52 in East and mostly 5.50-5.51 in the Piedmont; new crop corn 1.69-2.01; new crop soybeans 5.15-5.50, new crop wheat 2.48-2.74. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady to 1/2 percent lower and ranged from 100 1/2 to 104 1/2 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today with a boost from declining interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 9.56 to 2,320.24 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 3 to 1 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 906 up, 291 down and 383 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 30.24 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Before the market opened, the Commerce Department reported that the index of leading economic indicators fell 0.6 percent last month.

That larger-than-expected drop in the index, which is designed to detect future trends in the economy, was interpreted as a signal that business activity remains sluggish.

 Murray told Daniels' family: "You have nothing to grieve for today for this has been going on since you came into the world and I came into the world. It will be going on after we leave the world."
 At the close of the service, the congregation saw a videotape of Daniels as a child. The final image showed Daniels in his Navy uniform in front of the American flag. "The Star-Spangled Banner" played in the background.

 "We knew him as a fine young man. We knew him by his walk and his talk. He always had time to say 'Yes sir,' and 'No sir,'" said Samuel Gibson, a deacon at Daniels' church.
 Clinefelter, the sixth member of his family to serve in the Navy, was buried at Riverside National Cemetery in California. His father and brother, in crisp white dress uniforms, watched as a Marine detail fired three quick volleys and a bugler played "Taps."
 Members of Daniels' high school class sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and Charles E. Murray, a

 MacRae said Chaplin's wife was "bearing up very well."
 The Foreign Office said it had summoned the Iranian charge d'affaires, Akhuzadeh Basti, to receive a sharp protest on Thursday and again today.
 The Foreign Office said the West German ambassador to Tehran, Armin Freitag, had observed part of the abduction, and Britain was in contact with him. In Bonn, the West German Foreign Ministry said Freitag had stopped his car to assist Chaplin but left after being threatened by a man with a large-caliber revolver.
 Asked about speculation that Iranian officials were involved in the abduction as retaliation for the arrest of the Iranian in Britain, the British spokesman said, "We do not have conclusive evidence as to who is behind the abduction."
 The official Iranian news agency IRNA said, meanwhile, that Iran had strongly protested to Britain about the "illegal arrest" of Ali Qassemi, an official at the Iranian consulate in Manchester, northern England. The agency said Qassemi was arrested two weeks ago and released without charges, and rerearrested Thursday.
 British authorities would say only that Qassemi, 29, was freed on bail late Thursday after appearing before a magistrate on charges of shoplifting, reckless driving and assaulting a police officer.
 The Foreign Office acknowledged that Iran had protested twice about Qassemi's case and had asserted he had full diplomatic immunity from prosecution. The Foreign Office said its view was that Qassemi only had immunity related to his official duties.
 The Foreign Office said it received the second Iranian protest Thursday several hours before Chaplin was abducted.

PCC Talks Budget

 A budget resolution including $322,126 in additional state funds; $50,459 in additional county funds for building projects, and $176,658 in additional institutional funds was approved by the board.
 An accountability report of the classes conducted during the spring quarter found that all 169 PCC classes were actually being held. The policy of checking on the existence of classes was made following the discovery of non-existent courses at other community colleges. The 58 classes on-campus and the 111 off-campus classes were visited at least once by a staff member, and 25 students picked at random verified that they were enrolled in the course.
 According to an enrollment report, an additional 109 students were enrolled full-time at PCC during the spring semester. There was a decrease in quarter-time and half-time students, resulting in a total of 70 more students than during the spring semester last year. Forty-five of the additional 70 students enrolled were college transfer students.
 PCC President Charles Russell announced that the dedication of the Everett building, which houses the Learning Resources Center, will be held June 28 at 2 p.m.
 Russell also told the board about a golf tournament to be held June 9 at the Farmville Country Club. The proceeds of the tournament will go to PCC sports activities.
 Gifts presented to the institution were officially accepted by the board.

Southern Durham Rallies To Down Vikings By 7-4

HOLLYWOOD — Southern Durham took advantage of an injury to help it score four runs in the last two innings and gain a 7-4 victory over hosting D.H. Conley in the second round of the 3-A State Baseball Playoffs Thursday night.

Conley catcher Robbie Nichols was injured in the bottom of the fifth inning and had to leave the game. His replacement, Butch Mills, suffered two passed balls on third strikes which allowed runners to reach — and both came around to score.

The contest between the two teams was held up over 20 minutes by an argument over whether the speed-up rules should apply to the game. Conley's Alan Wilson argued that the rules could be suspended, but the Southern Durham coach and the officials held out for the rule — which calls for the replacement of the catcher on base with two outs, and the pitcher on base at any time.

Conley scored first in the game, getting a run in the third inning. Nichols walked and scored on a double by Mills.

Southern Durham, however, tied it up with one in the top of the fourth. Brent Ward walked and with two outs, Shane Manire also walked. Both advanced on a passed ball and Tommy Retzlela's bloop single to left scored Ward.

Conley quickly regained the lead, however, as Brian Joyner hit a solo homer for a 2-1 lead.

Jaguar Duo Out In Semis

CAMERON — Farmville Central's doubles tennis team of Eric Shine and Al Hedgepeth were knocked out of the 1A/2A State High School Tennis Championships in the semifinals Thursday.

The two had advanced through three rounds of play in the first day of competition on Wednesday.

However, on Thursday, they were defeated in the semifinals by the Lexington team of Lowder and Biesecker, 6-3, 6-3.

That duo then went on to down North Rowan's Berlien-Straerner, 6-1, 6-7, 6-3, for the championship.

The semifinal placing of the Jaguars was the highest finish ever for a Farmville netter.

In the top of the fifth, Southern struck for two runs to take a 3-2 advantage in the game. Scott Phipps walked and Marshal Bryan singled. Both were sacrificed up and scored when Ward singled.

Southern picked up two more in the sixth. With two outs, Phipps struck out but reached on a passed ball. Bryan followed with a single to move him to third, then stole second. Fox followed with a single, driving in both runners to make it 5-2.

Conley closed it to 5-4 with two in the bottom of the sixth. Bronswell Patrick walked and Sherwood Wilder followed with a two run homer.

But Southern came back with two more in the seventh to put it away.

Mark Chamberlain walked and stole second, moving to third on an error. Mike Farrell reached on a third-strike passed ball and also stole up. Both scored on a double by Retzlela.

Southern's hitting was led by Chamberlain and Retzlela, each with two, while Wilder had a pair to pace Conley.

The loss ends the year for the Vikings, who close at 18-4. Southern Durham will now move into the third round of the tournament next week, carrying an 18-6 record into the next game.

Byrum Takes A Big Step Forward

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Curt Byrum was tabbed by a local newspaper as a 100-to-1 shot to win the Memorial Tournament.

But Thursday, he took a giant step toward becoming an odds-on favorite to win in his first appearance in the Memorial as he tied the course record with an 8-under-par 64.

Byrum, a 28-year-old non-winner in his five years on the PGA Tour, took a two-stroke lead over Joey Sindelar on a day of sweltering heat and humidity.

"This is as solid a round as I've probably ever played," Byrum said after matching Mark McCumber's final-round score in 1984. "In terms of ball-striking, I've never had a better round on this caliber of golf course."

He had a 32 on each nine, registering eight birdies. His 64 matched his lowest competitive score ever.

Byrum was the chief culprit on a day of low-scoring over the 7,104-yard, par-72 Muirfield Village Club course, designed by Jack Nicklaus. There were a record 49 subpar rounds, bettering the previous mark of 45, with nine more players finishing with even-par scores.

"The caliber of play is so good here that the other guys don't back up, they just keep firing at the pin," Byrum said. "If the conditions stay like this — with the fairways wet, the greens soft and no wind — you'll see more low scores."

Sindelar, who played his collegiate golf for nearby Ohio State, had a chance to tie Byrum for the lead but closed by missing a 6-foot par putt on the 18th hole for a 6-under 66.

"(Byrum) got done just as I teed off," Sindelar said. "I was aware of his great round, but rather than worry about being down eight shots before I started, I just said, 'Hey, let's just shoot a good one.'"

The course was saturated by heavy rains earlier in the week and there was little wind during the opening round.

"The course was just there waiting for you if you were driving the ball well," said Sindelar, No. 2 in PGA statistics in driving distance.

Another shot back was 1979 Memorial champion Tom Watson, along with Scott Hoch.

Olympic Festival On Target To Reach Its Ticket Goal Of $1.5 Million In Sales

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Maybe the best way to describe it is Disneyland for the sports junkie.

That's the United States Olympic Festival which will open in North Carolina on July 13.

A total of 34 Olympic sports will be contested in a two-week period which will end on July 26. Competition will take place in Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, Cary, Greensboro and at Kerr Lake.

Hill Carrow, the president and executive director of North Carolina Amateur Sports, the sponsoring organization for this year's Olympic Festival was in Greenville Thursday as part of a state-wide tour to promote the event.

And he pumps the Festival as a "state" event rather than a "city" event as it has been in the past.

"It takes two-thirds of the state to match the size of the greater Houston area," Carrow said. Houston was the site of the 1986 Olympic Festival, where a record $2.5 million in ticket sales was recorded.

Right now, the North Carolina Festival has generated slightly over $1 million in sales, and Carrow is hopeful that it will soon pass the $1.5 million mark. That, he said, would boost the state into second place among all previous ticket sales.

And while sales are going briskly, Carrow said, there are still good tickets left. "The gold medal events will be the first to sell out, so I would urge anyone wishing to see them to go ahead now and order their tickets," he said.

This year's games take on an added dimension, too, in that they are the last prior to the 1988 Korean Olympics. This will be the last chance many have to see the top U.S. candidates before the Olympics. "We are lucky to have it this year, and we will have the best athletes here. Two of the sports, ice hockey and speed skating are actually holding their Olympic trials here, and six other sports will be holding their trials for the Pan-American Games (to be held later this summer in Indianapolis)," Carrow said.

"A lot of people have heard about the festival, but they don't realize how big it is. In many respects, it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. And I would hate to see people wish they had taken advantage of it after it's too late," the director said.

Some of the events may be slightly overclouded by the World University Games, which will begin during the festival in Yugoslavia. "Most of the events don't overlap, like track and field. Basketball does, but the festival teams draw the top high school seniors, and college freshmen and sophomores only. And we're already assured of having some of the top athletes in every sport, and the biggest crowd of athletes of any previous festival," Carrow said.

Among those who have committed are Jackie Joyner-Kersey, the world record holder in the heptathlon, Willie Banks, the world record holder in the triple jump, and Greg Louganis in diving.

"Basketball hasn't been announced yet, but I think the fans will be pleased with those who are going to be named," Carrow said. "Kristi Phillips is a possibility in gymnastics and Debbie Thomas in figure skating. We do know that Jill Trenary (women's national champion) is a definite in figure skating," he added.

At least one local will also be participating — if a proposed exhibition comes about. Lenora "Sam" Jones, a former East Carolina basketball star, will appear as a member of the national team handball team in an international exhibition match that is now tentatively set.

After the festival, Carrow is hopeful that his organization will continue to sponsor national and possibly international events. "We will not be able to get another festival back before the turn of the century," he said. "But we've already been approached about hosting the canoe-kayaking championships in 1988, and we feel we have a good chance of getting some other national championships."

"It's doubtful that we might get another Pan-American Games. The Indianapolis games are only the second ever in this country. But the World University Games have never been held in this country, so maybe that's a possibility."

For now, however, it's on to the opening ceremonies in Raleigh's Carter-Finley Stadium on July 17, although the first competitions begin on the 13th.

Dupree, Lee Honored As Top Rose High Athletes

Kim Dupree and David Lee were honored as the top Rose High School athletes Thursday night at the annual Rose Sports Banquet.

Dupree, who was presented the H.L. Hodges Award as the top female athlete in the school, also won awards in volleyball, basketball and track.

Lee, winner of the Dixon Cup as the top male athlete, a golf award and participated in both soccer and basketball in addition to the golf team.

Kim Bridges was the recipient of a new award given by the Greenville Industrial Eppes Alumni Association, the Percy L. Daniels Memorial Award. The award will be presented annually to the female athlete selected by her peers as the best example of sportsmanship and scholastics. It serves as a companion for the Kiwanis Cup, which is presented to a male athlete for the same traits. This year's Kiwanis winner was Scott Davis.

Rose principal Pat Austin announced that Rose has, for the second straight year, won the Wachovia Cup, emblematic of having the best overall sports program in the Big East Conference. He also pointed out that of the 18 sanctioned sports sponsored by the school, the teams, or members of them, qualified for state playoff berths in all but two events.

Following are the awards presented at this year's banquet:

- Cheerleading — Most Valuable, Kimberly Davis.

□ Special Awards — Percy L. Daniels Memorial Award, Kim Bridges; Kiwanis Cup, Scott Davis; H.L. Hodges Award, Kim Dupree; Dixon Cup, David Lee.

Three Sign In Baseball

East Carolina University baseball coach Gary Overton has announced the signing of three student-athletes to letters-of-intent to join the Pirates this fall.

The signees — Steve Godin of Warrenton, Va., Scott Stevens of Vineland, N.J., and Jay Mills of Virginia Beach, Va. — are Overton's first signees of the year. Overton also indicated that other signings could come as early as next week.

"In Godin, Stevens and Mills we feel we have the nucleus of what could be a talented freshman class," Overton said. "All three young men have the potential to contribute to the East Carolina program in the near future."

Godin, a power-hitting outfielder, is listed as one of the top 20 high school players in the eastern United States by Collegiate Baseball. Godin, who batted .580 this season at Fauquier High School in Warrenton was named all-district, all-state, all-metro as well as being selected to play in Virginia's East-West All-Star game.

Stevens, a right-handed pitcher, will come to ECU after a brilliant career at Vineland High School. This year, Stevens struck out 118 batters in 73 innings, collecting an 0.62 earned run average and a 9-3 won-loss record. He was picked to play in the Carpenter Cup Invitational, which pits the best of New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania in an all-star game.

Mills, a strong catcher from Green Run High School in Virginia Beach, batted .540 this season with a team-leading 26 runs batted in helping Green Run to an 18-3 record. A three-year starter, Mills will play in the state all-star game.

Rose Honorees

Rose High School honored its 1986-87 athletes with its annual awards banquet last night. The top awards were presented to these four athletes. They are, left to right: Kim Bridges, Perkins Memorial Award (female sportmanship); Kim Dupree, Hodges Award (female outstanding athlete); David Lee, Dixon Cup (male outstanding athlete), and Scott Davis, Kiwanis Cup (male sportsmanship). (Reflector Photo)

Pistons Spoil Boston's Trip West

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Boston forward Larry Bird feels like he's heading for the wrong coast. Bird and the Celtics wanted to travel to the West Coast, where the Los Angeles Lakers are awaiting an opponent for the NBA final. Instead, the Detroit Pistons got 24 points each from Adrian Dantley and Vinnie Johnson and 21 from Isiah Thomas and beat the Celtics 113-105 Thursday night to send both teams back to Boston for Game 7 of the Eastern Conference final series. The series, tied 3-3, will be decided Saturday afternoon in Boston Garden with the winner opening the final series in Los Angeles on Tuesday. "I just wish we could have gotten out of here tonight," said Bird, who had a game-high 35 points for Boston. "I wanted to play the Lakers on Sunday, but we have to play Saturday. We're going back home. "Game 7, that's it, for all the marbles. Saturday is a big game for us. We're ready for it." Kevin McHale scored 23 points for Boston, despite a touch of flu, while Danny Ainge and Darren Daye scored 16 apiece. The game was close through the first three quarters with the Pistons leading 84-83 as the final period began. Then Johnson, who thrives in his reserve role, scored 10 of his 12 fourth-quarter points during a run in which Detroit rolled to a 104-91 lead that all but decided the outcome with 5:04 remaining. "We didn't want to go to Game 7," Bird said. "We were trying to hang with them until there were four minutes left in the game. If we had stuck with them until four minutes, you wouldn't believe how small those rims would have gotten." The Pistons, who have lost 17 consecutive games in Boston, seemed confident they could break the spell Saturday. If they do, they'll make it to the NBA final for the first time in the team's history. "One game left. It will be a shootout," said Detroit center Bill Laimbeer, who scored 12 points. "I'm looking forward to it. It's going to be a lot of fun. We have a good team with a lot of character and I think it showed tonight." The Pistons, who let an apparent victory slip away in Game 5 when Bird stole an inbound pass from Thomas and fed it to Dennis Johnson for the winning basket with one second remaining, seemed tentative at first — as if haunted by the memory of that heartbreaking defeat. "I knew we would bounce back, because I would bounce back and the team follows my lead," Thomas said. "At the start of the fourth quarter I knew Bird had it going. So when he took a breather, we took over." Dantley scored 14 of his 19 first-half points in the first quarter, bringing Detroit back from an early 14-4 deficit — the Celtics' largest lead. Boston led 33-31 at the end of the first quarter, but Detroit led after each of the remaining periods. "All of a sudden, the Chinese water torture broke loose and we took off in the fourth quarter," Dantley said. "Anything can happen now." The Celtics expect to have both center Robert Parish and Coach K.C. Jones back for Game 7. Parish was suspended for one game for slugging Laimbeer in Game 5. Jones was attending his mother's funeral in California.

"They played a very courageous game under the circumstances," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "Neither team could break away tonight. "Game 7 will be five against five and 12 against 12. It will take a supreme effort, maybe our best game of the year. I'm sure our guys will come out determined. We have 48 minutes to go and I say let it all hang out." Clark Sparks Card Win

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer
At least until an early pattern starts to shift, Jack Clark is content taking what National League pitchers are willing to give him. "They don't want to give me anything in," Clark said after hitting two more homers and driving in three runs to lead the St. Louis Cardinals past the Atlanta Braves 11-5 in the only National League game Thursday.

Clark picked on a 1-2 fastball and hit a two-run homer in the first inning that gave St. Louis a 2-1 lead. His second homer, off a 2-2 curve as the leadoff hitter in the fifth, ignited a three-run St. Louis inning. "It didn't seem like it should carry," Mahler said. "But it did." Clark's claim of feeling uncomfortable during his hitting groove brought a wink from St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog. "It reminds me of Darrell Porter," Herzog said of his former catcher. "One time we were in New York. Darrell had a home run, a single and a double. I looked up the next day, and he was taking extra batting practice. I said, 'Darrell, what's going on?' He said, 'I'm not feeling right.'" Clark also had a single as St. Louis rapped a season-high 18 hits. "It was too much Jack Clark today," Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner said. "He's a superstar. He's one of the top five players in the game, in my opinion."

Atlanta, despite Clark's slugging, led 4-3 in the third after Rafael Ramirez's RBI single was followed by Gary Roenicke's two-run double. St. Louis tied it in the bottom of the third on Willie McGee's RBI single. The Cardinals moved ahead to stay on first baseman Ted Simmons' first of two errors in the fourth. They began pulling away when Clark's second homer and McGee's second single chased Mahler. Bill Dawley, 1-4, relieved St. Louis starter Tim Conroy in Atlanta's third and worked 4 2-3 innings for his first victory in 12 decisions since Oct. 2, 1985. The only run he allowed was Dale Murphy's 14th home run. Clark said his misgivings with the way he feels while hitting stem from "the way the ball is coming off the bat." "One time I'm on, the next time I'm not. I need to be more consistent. Once I popped up with a runner at third," he said. "I'm still learning. I just can't quarrel with the results." Clark's binge has given him an NL-leading .465 on-base percentage and .728 slugging percentage that ranks second in the league. "When he hits them, they stay hit," Tanner said of Clark's 12th career two-homer game. "When he hits them the way he does, there isn't a ballpark that's big enough to hold them." "This is the hottest he's been," Herzog said of Clark. "Even in '85 (22 home runs, 87 RBI), when we won (the NL), he never really turned it on. He was steady, but he never really had it."

Richard Ray collected two hits as Sportsworld gained a 7-2 victory over Coca-Cola in the North State Little League Thursday. Sportsworld pushed in all it would need in the first, scoring three times. Joel Ficking led off by reaching on an error. A pair of wild pitches moved him to third and he scored on an error on Scott Ray's fielder's choice. Ray stole up and Russell Oats singled. Shae Harper singled, and an error allowed both Ray and Oats to score. Sportsworld added one in the second and three more in the sixth. Coke picked up one in the first and one in the sixth. James Ebron and Robert Barnes each had two hits for Coke.

GRIFTON — The Bethel Mets rolled up an 18-6 victory over Grifton Homecare in the Southern Pitt Little League Thursday night. The Mets were paced by Jeff Wilson with five hits, including three doubles. William Perkins added four with two triples and a double. Perkins also pitched the win, striking out seven and allowing three hits. The Mets are now 10-0 on the year.

"That's why I'm in the closed stance," Clark said. "I'm not feeling comfortable, but I'm hitting more balls to right and center field. As long as it (style) works, why fix it?" Atlanta pitcher Rick Mahler, 2-6, who gave up Clark's 14th and 15th homers this season, saw no reason to disagree.

"He's paid to hit home runs, and that's what he's doing. You've got to give a lot of credit to Jack Clark," Mahler said. "This is not the easiest of ballparks to hit home runs in." Clark, who is off to the best start in his major-league career, leads the majors with 48 RBI. He has driven home 35 runs in 23 games this month and raised his average to .344, third-best in the NL.

It was a little bit more fun shooting a 67. The way things were going this morning, I thought maybe the cut was going to be 3- or 4-under." Grouped at 68 were David Frost, Kenny Knox, Masters champion Larry Mize, David Graham, Scott Simpson and Fred Wadsworth. Wadsworth's round was highlighted by a hole-in-one on the 186-yard, par-3 fourth hole. Buddy Gardner, Jodie Mudd, Tom Kite, Sandy Lyle, Ken Green, John Mahaffey, Dan Forsman, Gene Sauers, Mark Hayes, Hubert Green, Larry Nelson and another former Ohio State player, John Cook, were at 69. Nicklaus, a two-time winner of the tournament he created, finished at 73. Defending champion Hal Sutton struggled to a 74, while reigning British Open champion Greg Norman was at 70. The winner collects $140,000 of the $900,000 purse. The final two rounds will be televised nationally by CBS Sports.

Kyle Petty Looking For Another Victory Sunday

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Kyle Petty, fresh from victory in the Coca-Cola 600, thinks he can win again in Sunday's Budweiser 500 stock car race at Dover Downs International Speedway.

"Coming off a win, you feel like you can do it again. Coming off a bad finish, you feel like you have to come back and prove yourself again. But you always come back," Petty said Thursday.

Petty, sixth in the Winston Cup point standings, predicted the competition on the "Monster Mile" will come down to an "endurance race of 500 miles or five hours, whichever comes first."

An estimated 55,000 fans are expected for the race that will be broadcast live for the first time on ESPN.

Petty, who is in his third year with the Wood Brothers racing team, said sticking together has been the key to success.

"We've been knocking together for a couple years, and it paid off last Sunday."

After 10 Winston Cup races, Petty has six top-10 finishes, including the win and two finishes in the top five. Those three top-five finishes are just one shy of his total for all of last season.

"When we first started, the Wood

Brothers were going from a limited schedule to all the races and that would be tough on any team," Petty said. "It's tough to get any consistency at the start.

"We never really did well two weeks in a row. Last year, we'd run good one race and bad the next. Then we'd have two more bad ones. This year, we seem to be finding some consistency."

"The last five or six races we've been consistently in the top five," Petty said.

Geoff Bodine, the defending race champion, and Bill Elliott and Dale Earnhardt are coming into the race after being fined last week by NASCAR officials for altercations during the running of The Winston, two weeks ago at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Al Robinson, Dover Downs spokesman, said he expects Bodine will be cautious during Sunday's race, especially in light of a $15,000 fine and probation for a bumping incident during last Saturday's Winn-Dixie 300 at Charlotte.

Harry Gant, who was leading at lap 470 of the 500-lap race last year, said he plans to run a little easier this year.

"I think the 500 will be comparable to the 600 at Charlotte. We're just going to try to finish the race this year," Gant said.

Many drivers say that despite the grueling race on a one-mile oval, resurfacing at Dover Downs makes the track one of the best.

"Dover is one of my favorite tracks and I feel we have as good a shot here as (on) the rest of the circuit," said Ken Schrader, who said the resurfacing has made a much smoother track.

Terry Labonte said the race is draining and requires the patience to conserve energy.

"The heat in the car, the four hours-plus time required to cover 500 miles and the high degree of competition on this circuit are very fatiguing on your body and your mind," Labonte said.

"You can't win here in the first 100 miles or even the first 300 miles," he said.

"You have to conserve your car and your stamina during the early portions of the race. You have to cool it, but cool it as quickly as necessary to stay in the lead pack and be ready to make your move later," Labonte said.

Carter's Homer Parade Not Enough For Indians

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Baltimore's Memorial Stadium may be the place to hit home runs this season, but Joe Carter seems more comfortable at Boston's Fenway Park.

Carter became the first player to twice hit three homers in a game at Fenway, and drove in five runs Thursday night for the Cleveland Indians in a 12-8 loss to Boston. Dwight Evans homered and drove in six runs for the Red Sox.

In Baltimore, Mike Young, who had not homered this season, hit a game-tying solo homer in the 10th inning and added a two-run shot in the 12th that lifted the Orioles over the California Angels 8-7. Baltimore has won six games in a row and California has lost six straight.

Larry Sheets homered twice and Cal Ripken Jr. and Rick Burleson also homered for Baltimore, which set a major-league record for homers in a month with 56. That broke the previous record of 55 set by the New York Giants in July 1947 and tied by the Minnesota Twins in May 1964.

The Orioles lead the majors with 76 home runs, including 48 in their last 19 games. Baltimore set its single-game home record for homers in a game and, combined with home runs by California's Wally Joyner and Ruppert Jones, established a mark of eight for two teams.

In other AL games, New York beat Seattle 5-2, Oakland defeated Toronto 4-3 and Minnesota routed Milwaukee 13-1.

Orioles 8, Angels 7
There have been an average of nearly 3½ homers per game this season at Memorial Stadium, the highest rate in the majors.

"Baseball's getting ridiculous," Angels Manager Gene Mauch said. "I've never seen such semi-, semi-, semi-swings, and the ball going out, in my life."

The Orioles trailed 7-6 in the bottom of the 12th when Lee Lacy drew a leadoff walk from DeWayne Buice, 2-3. Young fouled off two sacrifice bunt attempts, then fouled off another pitch before homering to right field.

Young began the season on the disabled list and has started only five times, all as a designated hitter.

Young hit a solo home run in the 10th off Buice that made it 6-6. The Angels had taken the lead in the top of the 10th on Gary Pettis' RBI single.

California took a 7-6 lead in the 12th against Mark Williamson, 2-3, when Darrell Miller raced home from third base when the Orioles misplayed a rundown.

Joyner's solo homer had made it 5-5 in the ninth.

Red Sox 12, Indians 8
Carter's homers hardly mattered because Boston completed a four-game sweep behind the production of Evans.

Evans matched his career-high for RBI in a game, hitting a home run and two singles.

Carter, who homered three times at Fenway last Aug. 29, hit a three-run homer in the first inning and connected for solo shots in the fifth in the ninth. Carter and Julio Franco each had four of the Indians' 15 hits and Pat Tabler hit a three-run homer.

The Red Sox overcame a 6-1 lead in the second inning.

Jim Rice had three of Boston's 15 hits, including a go-ahead single in a four-run sixth.

Steve Crawford, 2-1, got the victory in relief of John Leister, who was making his major-league debut. Rich Yett, 1-3, was the loser in relief of Steve Carlton.

Yankees 5, Mariners 2
Gary Ward hit a two-run homer and Rickey Henderson and Dave Winfield hit solo shots for New York. Ward connected for his seventh home run of the season in the first inning off Mike Moore, 2-6. Henderson hit his 10th in the fifth inning and Winfield hit No. 11 in the eighth. Seattle pitchers have allowed 25 homers in 12 games.

Rick Rhoden, 6-3, gave up 10 hits and lost his shutout in the ninth when Ken Phelps hit a two-run homer. Dave Righetti got the final three outs for his 12th save.

The Yankees raised their home record to 15-3, the best in the major leagues.

Twins 13, Brewers 1
Tom Brunansky homered during a controversial six-run first inning and Juan Berenguer pitched seven shutout innings as Minnesota beat visiting Milwaukee.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Brewers, who have dropped 17 of their last 19.

Brunansky also had an RBI single along with his two-run homer. The Twins had 14 hits, with Gene Larkin, Kirby Puckett, Tim Laudner and Mark Davidson driving in two runs each.

With one out in the first and Minnesota ahead 1-0, Gary Gaetti hit an RBI double that sparked an argument. Television replays indicated right fielder Rob Deer caught the ball, but second base umpire John Shulock ruled he trapped it against the fence. Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn got his first major-league ejection for arguing.

Larkin then singled and Brunansky capped the outburst with a home run off Mike Birkbeck, 1-4.

Berenguer, 3-0, allowed four hits, struck out five and walked none. Greg Brock hit an RBI double with two outs in the ninth off reliever Mark Portugal.

Athletics 4, Blue Jays 3
Sluggo Jose Canseco squeezed home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning and for Oakland.

Dave Stewart, 6-4, struck out a career-high 10 and walked one in eight-plus innings. He retired 17 straight batters before Tony Fernandez doubled leading off the ninth, bringing in Jay Howell.

Howell gave up a two-out, RBI double to George Bell and a walk before Dave Leiper relieved and got the final out for his first save.

The visiting Athletics overcame a 2-1 deficit in the seventh against Jim Clancy, 7-3, ending his six-game winning streak. Mike Davis hit a tying RBI double and took third on a passed ball. Canseco bunted down the third-base line and easily beat the throw as Davis scored.

Luis Polonia homered on Clancy's first pitch of the game, extending his hitting streak to 14 games. Jesse Barfield homered for Toronto.

Black Jack In Tourney Win

Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church's softball team won the 231 Recreation USSA Tourney for Class C church teams recently at Wendell.

Black Jack, by virtue of the win, earned a bid to the Church Class C World Tourney to be held at Fairfax, Va.

Black Jack won six games and lost one in the tournament. Billy Kittrell hit a three-run inside-the-park homer in the bottom of the seventh inning of the championship game to give Black Jack the win.

Shane Adams of the team was named the most valuable player of the tournament.

FOCUS Love And Marriage May is one of the most popular months for weddings. In colonial New England, few couples were wed in churches. The Puritans were usually married at home by a magistrate. One ancient English law stated that a husband was responsible for his bride's previous debts unless he married her in her shift or chemise. For the sake of modesty, one indebted bride apparently followed this rule from the inside of a closet, extending her hand to her groom through a hole in the door. DO YOU KNOW - What is a bigamist? THURSDAY'S ANSWER - A haircut in which all but a center strip is shaved is called a "Mohawk."

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

other. Therefore, if he plays one card, he is unlikely to hold the other. In simple terms, mathematically a player is more apt to hold one specific card than two specific cards. Declarer put that principle to work to make his game. Note South's choice of four spades at his second turn. Since he had originally responded one spade, he was now showing a game-going hand with a self-sufficient spade suit, and his partner was free to bid on if his hand warranted. West attacked with the top of his heart sequence. Declarer won with dummy's ace and led a trump to the ten, and West's nine caused declarer to reflect. If it was a falsecard from 9-8, declarer could simply continue with a trump to hold his losers to two trumps and the ace of diamonds. But if the nine was a singleton, declarer was in danger of losing three trump tricks. Applying the Rule of Restricted Choice, declarer felt to believe the nine to be a singleton. He cashed four rounds of clubs, discarding two diamonds from hand, then continued with the table's last club. East was faced with a Hobson's Choice. He either could refuse to ruff, in which case declarer would sluff his last diamond to hold his losers to three trump tricks, or else East could ruff and allow declarer to overruff, permitting declarer to limit his losses to two trump tricks and a diamond. Either way, South was home. Available for a limited time as a special offer is a two-for-one package of DOUBLES booklets. London Plays Are Closing After Suffering Gate Woes

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Five London plays will close in the next two weeks, causing a psychological blow to a theatrical capital where, as the pundits like to put it, shows "run and run."

Of the quintet, only one — a revival of Federico Garcia Lorca's 1945 "The House of Bernarda Alba," with Glenda Jackson — has been financially successful.

The other four, ranging from Frederick Lonsdale's English comedy of manners "Canaries Sometime Sing," to James Baldwin's "The Amen Corner," are closing at a loss of roughly $250,000 each.

As of June 1, all four of the adjoining theaters on Shaftesbury Avenue — the Lyric, the Apollo, the Globe and the Queen's — will be dark. It's a sight one associates more with Broadway than with London's equivalent, the commercial West End.

Is it a function of the time of year, or simply a case of poor material? London producers varied in their explanations.

"May is always a dreadful month," said Andre Ptaszynski, producer of "Arturo Ui," Bertolt Brecht's 1958 play which ends a flop 10-week revival May 30 at the Queen's.

"If you're opening a show in the spring, it has to be very, very strong to get through May. This year, more of us than usual have been crucified."

Brief runs this season have been the rule, not the exception.

In April, two musicals, "Spin of the Wheel" and "March of the Falsettos," survived a scant nine weeks between them and lost their entire investments.

On June 6, a third musical will close — "Lady Day," with American jazz singer Dee Dee Bridgewater — after a six-week stint at the Piccadilly Theater.

"Nobody ever knows why a season goes one way or another; you can blame it on a product not being good enough," said Stephen Waley-Cohen, an executive with the Maybox group, which owns six West End theaters. "Standards have to be high."

Of the shows closing, "Arturo Ui" and "Canaries Sometime Sing" received poor reviews. The others got mixed to favorable notices.

Peter Wilkins, deputy managing director of Triumph Theater Productions, said he saw signs of a more general "malaise in the West End."

"Over 20 years ago, the chances of nursing a play through a lean period were good. Now, they're pretty remote," said Wilkins. His company has Peter Nichols's new play, "A Piece of My Mind," closing May 23 and "Canaries Sometime Sing" one week later.

An additional Triumph venture, "Court in the Act," adapted from a French farce, is running on a week-by-week basis at the Phoenix Theater hoping to find a surge in business.

Wilkins said he thought audiences, especially overseas tourists, were becoming more resistant to straight plays.

"Tourists look at the musical as their first form of entertainment. That's been a problem developing over the past few years, as we've seen on Broadway," he said.

As in New York, where four English musical imports are dominating Broadway, London's hottest tickets remain the big-budget musicals: "Phantom of the Opera," "Les Miserables," "Cats."

Unlike New York, London has no summertime event comparable to the Tony awards to buoy up business at the end of May and June. London's awards-giving season is in November and December.

Stephen Waley-Cohen joked that one unusual element could explain the theater's current drought: a noticeable lack of good old English rain. Through the end of April and part of early May, Britain enjoyed the sunniest and warmest weather in almost 40 years.

That, he said, could have meant an even smaller theater attendance, with people preferring to remain outdoors.

Rock Singer Target Of Suit

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Four people injured during a Billy Idol concert have sued the rock singer and the concert promoters, alleging Idol tried to cause a riot.

The lawsuit filed Wednesday in Multnomah County Circuit Court says the four were hurt May 13 when Idol invited the crowd of 6,600 at Portland Memorial Coliseum to fill empty seats near the stage.

Tonja Steelman, Diane Petersen, April Steelman and her 3-year-old son, Matthew, seek a total of $165,000 for physical and mental damages from the defendants, and $600,000 in punitive damages from Idol.

The three women are sisters, according to their attorney, David N. Hobson of Portland.

The lawsuit says Tonja Steelman was 22 weeks pregnant and suffered bruises on her arms, legs and abdomen. Ms. Petersen alleges she suffered a strained knee and a puncture wound in her right foot, while April Steelman alleges she and her son suffered bruises on their arms and legs.

Defendants include Aucoin Management Inc.; Chrysalis Records Inc.; Larry Ahern, doing business as PacificConcerts; Portland-area radio station KGON; and the city, which owns and operates the coliseum.

The lawsuit says Idol was negligent in inviting the crowd to come forward when he knew people in the front rows could be injured.

Idol's publicist, Ellen Golden of Howard Bloom Agency in New York City, said Idol would have no comment. Dan Hern, vice president and general manager of KGON, also declined comment.

Chrysalis Records in Los Angeles referred all calls to Ms. Golden.

Portland officials said city policy prevents them from commenting on personal injury lawsuits against the city.

Ahern was unavailable for comment Thursday. No phone number was listed for Aucoin Management Inc.

Celebrities Gather At Forbes Bash

By ART DANIELS
Associated Press Writer
FAR HILLS, N.J. (AP) — More than 1,000 of America's most powerful and celebrated people joined publisher Malcolm Forbes at his estate for a mammoth gala celebrating the 70th anniversary of Forbes magazine.

Forbes converted his 75-acre estate, Timberfield, into a storybook Scottish village, with bagpipers and simulated mist and moonlight, to set the mood for Thursday's bash.

The all-star list of guests included Elizabeth Taylor, White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker, new CIA Director William Webster and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Two 180-foot-long tents were pitched on Forbes' secluded northern New Jersey estate for the occasion.

Guests arrived in scores of limousines. A huge lawn served as a landing pad for some 20 private helicopters, whose passengers were then carried by golf carts flying the Forbes flag.

Other guests included fashion designer Oscar de la Renta, Penthouse Publisher Bob Guccione and television's Barbara Walters and Tom Brokaw.

In the cocktail tent, paparazzi worked feverishly to catch images of the famous faces. As dusk descended, an army of 130 bagpipers, clad like Forbes in kilts, marched down a hill and into a tent. Their medley of Scottish tunes concluded with Forbes' favorite, "Amazing Grace."

The guests were greeted by two reception lines.

In one stood Forbes and Miss Taylor, wearing a white linen gown over a black halter top, along with Baker and Forbes' eldest son, Malcolm Jr. In the other were Forbes' other sons — Robert, Christopher and Timothy — and James J. Dunn, vice president and publisher of the magazine.

Real estate magnate Donald Trump arrived in a black helicopter emblazoned with his name.

Model Jerry Hal arrived without her companion, rock star Mick Jagger, who she said had a recording obligation.

Guests strolled to a second tent across a drawbridge and under a covered walkway twinkling with electric stars before taking their carefully chosen seats at one of 106 tables.

The tent was designed to look like the interior of a Scottish Castle courtyard, with the entrance guarded by two armored knights standing beneath a magnificent flower arrangement and the Forbes family crest.

The dinner of baked Scottish salmon, potatoes and baby vegetables was highlighted by Forbes' giving Miss Taylor a $1 million check to promote AIDS research.

The guests were attended by 400 chauffeurs, 302 waiters and 35 chefs.

The high point of the celebration was a pyrotechnics display that, in addition to bombs bursting in air, featured a laser and search light extravaganza choreographed to music by Beethoven, Wagner, Gershwin and Sousa.

It took hundreds of workers eight weeks to install the party's infrastructure, including 48,156 square-feet of carpeting, 8,240 square-feet of curved-topped canopies and a 1,782-foot dance floor.

"Mr. Forbes is just like a little boy, and he loves to have fun and he wants his guests to have fun," Ruth Schwartz, whose public relations firm coordinated the event, said Thursday afternoon. "As we planned this, he wanted his dance floor to be big, big, bigger."

Nobody would disclose how much the party cost, although some guessed privately it would go into the six digits.

He is famous for his fast-paced lifestyle and exciting parties. Forbes has survived balloon and motorcycle crashes, and has amassed enough wealth to put himself on his eagerly awaited, annual list of America's 400 richest people.

Forbes, who took over Forbes magazine in 1954 after the death of his father, has an estimated worth of $400 million to $600 million.

His business magazine has a circulation of 720,000 and sells $100 million a year in advertising.

LAUGHING IT UP — Publisher Malcolm Forbes and one of his guests, actress Elizabeth Taylor, share a laugh during Forbes' party for the 70th anniversary of his magazine Thursday night on his 75-acre estate in Far

Hills, N.J. The estate was converted to a Scottish village complete with simulated mist for the occasion. (AP Laserphoto)

Rice In 'Vice'

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — NBC will rebroadcast on June 12 a "Miami Vice" episode in which Donna Rice, the Miami actress and model linked to former Sen. Gary Hart, has a bit part.

Ms. Rice appears in the teaser, the portion before the show's opening credits, and plays the wife of a police officer, said NBC spokesman Brian Robinette.

Ms. Rice "speaks a couple of lines and screams when she witnesses the slaying of her husband."

"Tune in early," Robinette said. Ms. Rice came to national attention earlier this month when The Miami Herald reported she spent part of a weekend in Washington with Hart while his wife was away.

Hart subsequently withdrew from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Shy Playwright

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Pulitzer prize-winning playwright August Wilson says he was pleased when the state designated a day in his honor, but the creator of "Fences" admits he's more comfortable behind the scenes.

"I'm a very shy, low-key person," the 38-year-old playwright said after Gov. Rudy Perpich and Mayor George Latimer proclaimed Wednesday August Wilson Day.

Pa. Eighth-Grader Is Spelling Champ

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Girls ruled the 60th National Spelling Bee with a 13-year-old junior wordsmith capturing the coveted title in a contest that in the end was all female.

The trend became obvious in the seventh round when girls outnumbered the boys nine to six. After that fray, in which "meerscham" and "polysemous" did some of the boys in, only four female spellers remained.

The new national spelling champion is Stephanie Petit, a dark-haired, eighth-grader from Bethel Park, Pa., who successfully spelled "dyscalculia" and "staphylococci."

The runner-up, Rachel E. Nussbaum, 14, of Ithaca, N.Y., credited the female success to a theory that girls are more adept than boys in certain fields.

"Some people say girls are just smarter, but I think that's not true," said the daughter of two college professors. "Maybe girls are a little smarter at things that have to do with languages, like spelling."

For her victory, Stephanie earned a gold trophy cup, $1,500 plus prizes and a national television appearance.

She and the other 184 spellers were meeting today with President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, following a White House tour.

"I can't believe this is me," Stephanie told reporters as they mobbed the stage to get her reaction to the triumph.

Stephanie, a straight-A student who enjoys tennis and plays violin and piano, said she studied spelling every day, including six hours each Saturday and Sunday. But after the win, she said: "This is it. I'm done with spelling."

The championship came down to the correct spelling of two medical terms.

Rachel incorrectly spelled "dyscalculia," meaning an impairment of mathematical ability due to an organic brain condition. She began the word with the letters "di."

Stephanie corrected Rachel's error, prompting shrieks from the dozens of spellers sitting cross-leg-ed on the hotel ballroom floor. She then spelled the winning word, which is the name of a bacterium infecting the skin and mucous membranes. It was the 877th word of the contest.

Stephanie, who represented The Pittsburgh Press, said she knew she had won when Dr. Alex J. Cameron, an associate professor of English at the University of Dayton in Ohio and the official word pronouncer, intoned the final word.

"I did a science project in microbiology this year, so I knew it," she said.

To earn the cup she also had to spell "sheepishly," "parrotlet," a small South American parrot; "chogset," a striped or spotted fish of North America; "epinephrine," a drug used to treat bronchial asthma; "chatoyant," having a changeable luster or color; "postcibal," occurring after a meal; "oentotherapy," use of wine for therapeutic purposes; and "guilloche," an architectural ornament. She missed on "tjale," a Swedish word for frozen ground, in the last round, but so did Rachel.

All but the last round were on a miss-and-out basis. In the final round, the champion must correct the word missed by the runner-up and then successfully spell another word.

Pennsylvania fielded the largest delegation this year, 15 youngsters. The winner last year also was from Pennsylvania — Jon Pennington of Shiremanstown.

Material for the first four rounds was taken from the practice book "Words of the Champions" and from regional spelling lists available to the contestants. From the fifth round on, any entry in the 2,662-page Webster's Third New International Dictionary was fair game.

Nelson Crash Said Linked To Heater

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1985 plane crash that killed singer Rick Nelson and six others most likely was caused by a faulty cabin heater or electrical short near the heater, not drug use, federal investigators say.

The National Transportation Safety Board said Thursday it could find no conclusive evidence pinpointing the exact source of the fire, although "there is no doubt (it) ... did originate in the area of the heater."

The safety board's final report on the fire and crash of the privately owned DC-3, which was carrying Nelson, his fiancée and five members of his band, said the seven passengers died from flames and smoke and not the crash impact. The pilot and co-pilot escaped through a cabin window after the crash.

Shortly after the New Year's Eve accident, there was speculation that the fire might have been caused by passengers free-basing cocaine. The NTSB report, however, made no such conclusion and, according to a source familiar with the probe, investigators ruled out drug use as being involved in the accident.

Several of the band members and Nelson had measurable amounts of cocaine in their systems, tests showed, but the source, who spoke on condition he not be named, said there was no evidence indicating drug use during the flight and no drug-related paraphernalia was found in the wreckage.

Reagan Advisers Urge Him To Push For AIDS Testing

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's domestic policy advisers are urging him to press states to start routinely giving AIDS tests to hospital patients, prisoners, marriage license applicants and others, sources say.

The Cabinet-level Domestic Policy Council, at a meeting Thursday that Reagan attended, also recommended that the federal government take steps to make AIDS blood tests routine at Veteran's Administration hospitals, federal clinics and federal prisons, said administration sources who insisted on anonymity.

The Domestic Policy Council reached a consensus on the issue by saying the expanded AIDS testing should be "routine," but not mandatory, the sources said.

U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop and the Public Health Service had vigorously opposed mandatory AIDS tests, except for immigrants.

Under the blueprint presented to the president, state and local authorities would be strongly urged to make AIDS tests a routine part of hospital admissions and marriage license applications, but a person could refuse to undergo the test if he or she wished.

AIDS tests also would be recommended for patients at clinics treating sexually transmitted diseases, and for those in state prisons and local jails.

The president is expected to approve the recommendations.

Reagan may outline his AIDS policy and the testing recommendations in a speech Sunday at a fund-raising dinner for the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said last week that Reagan "would probably look favorably" on mandatory testing for marriage license applicants and immigrants.

Reagan called AIDS "one of the most serious health problems facing the world" when he approved a national commission to suggest ways to cope with it earlier this month.

Koop has argued that mandatory tests would discourage carriers of the deadly AIDS virus from coming forward.

Koop had voiced concerns at a Domestic Policy Council meeting Wednesday that the blood tests are not 100 percent accurate and that false positive results could cause serious harm to the persons involved.

Secretary of Education William J. Bennett called in April for widespread mandatory tests. He subsequently softened that stance by calling for routine testing of hospital patients and others, with the understanding that a person could refuse to undergo the test if he or she wished.

That switch — from mandatory to routine — was sufficient to allow the Domestic Policy Council to reach a consensus on the AIDS recommendations, and Koop and Bennett shook hands conspicuously at the end of the meeting, the sources said.

Gary Bauer, the head of Reagan's Office of Policy Development and a stalwart conservative, also argued strongly that the administration should encourage routine AIDS testing to help check the spread of the disease.

The Domestic Policy Council decided, the sources said, that the Justice Department should develop a plan for routine testing of federal prisoners; the Department of Health and Human Services a plan for routine testing of immigrants; and the White House Office of Policy Development a plan for routine tests at VA hospitals and other federal clinics.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, attacks the body's immune system, rendering it incapable of resisting other diseases and infections.

Some 35,000 Americans have been stricken by AIDS since 1981, and more than 20,000 have died. There is no known cure for the contagious disease, which is transmitted primarily through semen, blood and other bodily fluids. Most victims have been homosexual or bisexual males or intravenous drug abusers who shared needles.

'Curative Effect' Noted In Pancreas Transplants

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Pancreas transplants been found to stabilize and even reverse some complications in insulin-dependent diabetics, doctors say.

"There is a curative effect," said Dr. Walter Land, president of the European Society of Transplantation.

Surgeons at the University of Minnesota, in a paper to be presented today at the annual meeting of the American Society of Transplant Surgeons, say pancreas transplants are halting the progression of nerve disorders among insulin-dependent diabetics.

Such disorders include impaired sensation and reflexes, shooting pains and weakness. More serious complications include blindness, gangrene and heart and kidney disease.

"Our results get a little better every year," said Dr. John Najarian, who took part in the study.

"When you look at a bunch of patients who have thrown away their syringes and a bunch of patients who were going blind and now can see, who couldn't walk and now can walk, it's probably the most dramatic thing in the world," he said Thursday.

"There's every reason to believe ... some of the secondary complications of diabetes will be stabilized if not prevented," said Dr. Robert J. Corry, president of the American Society of Transplant Surgeons.

An estimated 11 million Americans suffer from diabetes, a disease caused by the body's inability to produce or properly use insulin, said John A. Colwell, president-elect of the American Diabetes Association. Insulin, a hormone produced by the pancreas, is needed to convert sugar, starches and other food into energy.

Ninety percent of all diabetics can control the disease through diet, exercise and oral medication, Colwell said. The rest need daily injections of insulin.

Despite such controls, about 300,000 diabetics die each year as a result of complications, according to Colwell.

So far, more than 1,000 pancreas transplants have been performed around the world, said the University of Minnesota's Dr. David Sutherland, who keeps a world registry. More than 300 were done last year, about half in the United States.

Up to 50 percent of all transplanted pancreases are functioning after a year. That is better than ever but still far behind the success rates of other transplants, Sutherland said.

Eighty percent of the patients, some of them back on insulin because of failed transplants, are alive.

Side effects caused by the anti-rejection drugs needed by transplant patients the rest of their lives include reduced kidney and liver function, doctors said.

"You can choose if you're a diabetic," compared to those waiting for livers and hearts, Sutherland said. "Do you want to be diabetic or immuno-deficient? Take your choice."

In the University of Minnesota study reported today, Sutherland helped track 28 insulin-dependent diabetics whose transplanted pancreases were functioning after a year.

He found improvements in patients who previously had suffered sensory loss and impaired strength and reflexes.

"We haven't seen as dramatic an effect in the eyes as the nerves. It may be longer for the effect on the eyes to be apparent," he said.

People with their lives ahead of them are finding it's good to have Planters behind them.

And it's easy to understand why.

Planters Bank offers families many ways to save. And to plan for the future.

For instance, when a young family is just getting started, we're ready to help it start saving with a variety of savings and investment accounts—each with a low minimum deposit.

Then, as a family grows, we can meet its growing needs.

This could mean discount brokerage services. An interest-bearing checking account. An IRA. Or trust services.

Of course, meeting a family's needs also includes home loans and personal loans. As well as personal lines of credit.

All of these services, and more, come with another service everyone wants from a bank. But not every bank provides.

Service that's personal.

You see at Planters, being attentive to customer needs has always been a guiding principle of ours. As has community involvement.

And providing customers with the benefits of the latest banking technology.

Adhering to such principles gives us a reputation for excellence. And as more people discover this, it's a reputation that's growing too.

Planters Bank. We're behind growing families because they know we put them ahead.

Planters Bank.

Our reputation is growing.

816 Peed Drive - Summerfield Subdivision

This charming 1500 square foot home will delight you with its stunning features and convenient location. You will immediately be impressed with the dramatic effect captured in the formal dining room. The kitchen combines function with pleasure. There's hand-crafted cabinets in the work area and sunny breakfast nook amassed with windows for backyard viewing.

The massive great room features fireplace, ceiling fan, and leads to an extra-size deck perfect for these beautiful spring nights.

One of the most attractive qualities of this home is the master bedroom being on the first floor. A large walk-in closet enhances this room.

The upstairs contains two over-sized bedrooms and extra large bath. Add lots of storage and huge walk-in closets and you'll see what a great buy this is at $79,900 AND of course it's BOWSER BUILT!

Peed Drive - Summerfield Subdivision

In response to many inquires from house shoppers, Jimmy has built this stunning two story contemporary to incorporate the comforts of today with pure classical charm. You will find the interior of the house as charming as its exterior. Compact in arrangement, yet with a generous kitchen/dining area that surpasses all with its handsome oak cabinets and center island. This house also features master bedroom downstairs with extra large bath which has a whirlpool and corner glass shower, family room with cathedral ceiling and double french doors leading to a large two layered deck. Up the stained wood stairs, you will find two bedrooms with extra storage and a large bath. Most of the interior is decorated in shades of peach aqua.*

QUALITY, STYLE and COMFORTABLE living was what we had in mind when building this lovely home, so we decided it had to have a large living room and an all brick fireplace. We used an open stairwell with a balcony to give it dramatic style. We felt that the master bedroom should be extra roomy and on the first floor for comfort. Quality is all over from the six panel wood doors, the two-piece chair rail moulding, the custom cabinetry to the choice of the Appollo gas heating system. It is quality backed by the 10-year warranty by a HOW builder.

Entry #7 - Jeff Mathis Construction Co.

500 WINSTEAD ROAD - WESTHAVEN

The concept in housing must be more than just a pretty picture. Windows aren't just windows; doors just doors; or even walls, walls. Homes need to perform more functions than impress the friends and shed rain.

Homes can and should reflect a personality, be pretty, and function in the environment to a high degree. They need to exist to support the family, not to have the family to support them.

Despite "good times" and lower gas prices, the point in paying ever-increasing and burdensome utility bills is simply no point at all.

The home at 500 Winstead Road is designed with the best energy conservation techniques currently in use without sacrificing a maximum of amenities. There are two focal points to this home: The south facing solarium to collect and store winter's warming sun, and the Master bedroom suite which is destined to please anyone. Would you think a window in a closet is silly?

Starts Down, Sales Up!
Last year housing starts totaled 1.8 million. The consensus forecast for 1987 is 1.6-1.65 million, or about 10% decline. Does this mean there will be a corresponding 10% decline in retail sales of building materials? Fortunately, the answer is no. The level of residential construction is an important factor in the sale of building materials, but it's not the only one. Take remodeling for example. Our analysis indicates that remodeling projects generate about 66% of retail sales of building materials. Remodeling continues to be a growing market. We estimate that expenditures (materials & labor) will increase 7.5% this year.

A NEW WAY TO CUT THE COST OF SELLING YOUR HOUSE.

An Independently Owned and Operated Member of Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates, Inc.

INTRODUCING THE BEST SELLER PLAN.

Some 80 years ago, Coldwell Banker wrote the book on real estate.

Today, we're adding a new chapter that'll help you save money while preparing your house for sale.

We call it The Best Seller Plan — a comprehensive home-selling guide filled with valuable benefits and savings.

And it's all yours when you list with a Coldwell Banker Sales Associate.

SHARPEN YOUR SCISSORS.

The Best Seller Plan includes 20 coupons from Sears, each offering savings of 10-30% off regular prices. These coupons were carefully selected to help you save on the products and services you'll need most when selling your house.

30% Off House Paint
30% off the purchase of any Sears interior or exterior paint.

Paint, for example, will go a long way toward making your house look its best — both inside and out. Use neutral colors for a bigger, brighter effect. And don't forget the cabinets, trim and baseboards.

10% Off Sears Carpet and Upholstery Cleaning
10% off the purchase of any Sears carpet and upholstery cleaning.

Professional cleaning can make your carpets look new, eliminating tracks in halls, entries and other frequently used areas. Have your upholstered chairs and couches cleaned, as well, to make your house look especially bright and well-cared for — a big plus when it's being shown.

20% Off Installed Roofing
20% off the purchase of Sears professionally installed roofing.

The roof over your head is of utmost importance. Check for missing shingles and tiles, as well as termites and signs of decay. If the repairs are minor, you can probably do them yourself. But if the roof leaks badly, or is more than 15 years old, you might consider having it replaced.

30% Off Nursery Stock, Houseplants and Planters
30% off the purchase of any nursery stock, Sears houseplants and planters.

A buyer's first impression comes from the street. So take a good look at your house from that angle. Your landscaping should be complete, well-manicured and healthy. If it looks a little barren, plant some new shrubs or flowering plants. They can add tremendous curb appeal — even increase your final selling price.

In addition to the Sears coupons, you'll find savings on a variety of moving services.

American Airlines Special Saver Fare
Save 30% Roundtrip Airfare when you relocate.

American Airlines, for example, offers reduced airfares when you travel between your current city and your new hometown for the purpose of relocation.

United Van Lines, Inc.
20% Discount

United Van Lines offers you a discount on interstate moves within the continental United States. Hilton Hotels offers reduced weekend rates. And UHAUL offers discounts on packing materials, storage rooms, garden equipment and more.

EXCLUSIVELY FROM COLDWELL BANKER.

Only The Best Seller Plan offers home sellers all these savings, plus a variety of additional services — home-search and relocation assistance from Coldwell Banker, equity investment opportunities from Dean Witter Reynolds and on-the-spot homeowners insurance from Allstate.

It's all there to help you sell your house for the best possible price in the shortest possible time. With the least inconvenience and worry.

So call your local Coldwell Banker office, today. And get more out of your house. For less.

The Best Seller Plan is available when you list your house with a Coldwell Banker Sales Associate on a 90-day minimum, exclusive-right-to-sell listing.

Buying or Selling a Home? Here's How a REALTOR® Helps You!

REALTORS®, members of a local board of REALTORS®, subscribe to a Code of Ethics that pledges them to the fair treatment of homebuyers and sellers. They do the legwork, the paper work and the hard work to help find the right home for the buyer...and to speed the sale of the home for all it's worth on behalf of the seller.

Here are some of the ways they work hard with you:

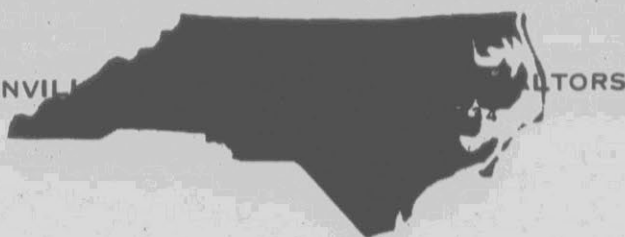

- Knowledge of the area's housing market and local home loan and seller-financing options.
- Access to a pool of serious homebuying prospects...and often a Multiple Listing Service that can offer buyers the affordable home of their choice.
- Objectivity in responding on behalf of the seller to homebuyers' objections...presenting offers and counter-offers...and pointing out advantages of a home to the buyer.

Buying or selling a home, look for the block "R" symbol. It's the mark of a real estate professional well prepared to serve you.
