Western Leaders Back Reagan's Gulf Plan

By TERENCE HUNT

AP White House Correspondent
VENICE, Italy (AP) — Western leaders, at the midpoint of their 13th annual summit, declared today that the free flow of oil "must continue unimpeded" through the Persian Gulf, and embraced a superpower plan to eliminate hundreds of nuclear missiles in Europe and Asia.

Besides giving President Reagan diplomatic support on the troublesome Persian Gulf, the leaders underscored concern about the threat of terrorism — even as summit serenity gave way before dawn as military frogmen scurried to retrieve a suspicious-looking metal box — rendered harmless — from a nearby Venetian lagoon.

In Rome, 340 miles away, small explosives rocked the American and British embassies shortly before Reagan sat down to breakfast with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Before the debris was cleared the leaders had signed off on their annual condemnation of terrorism, this time emphasizing a determination not to make concessions to terrorists or their sponsors.

A caller to The Associated Press in London claimed the attacks were the work of the Anti-Imperialist International Brigade. Callers last year using the same group name claimed responsibility for the assassination of the French military attache in east Beirut and for bomb and rocket attacks on the U.S., Japanese and Canadian embassies in Jakarta, Indonesia.

The anonymous caller, who spoke English with a slight accent, said today's bombings proved "that the revolutionary will is stronger than the high security measures taken for the protection of the so-called seven giants of the world."

In Venice, military frogmen found a suspicious-looking device in a lagoon not far from the summit site and blew it up. An Italian official called it a mine from World War II and said it was not connected with terrorists. The U.S. Secret Service said it was merely a harmless metal box.

Statements of East-West relations, terrorism, the Persian Gulf and other matters were issued in the name of the leaders of the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

Before resuming talks today, the leaders posed for a "class picture" in the courtyard of the 17th century Benedictine monastery that is the site of the summit.

The communiques did not commit the allies to any military role in the Gulf, where U.S. warships soon are to begin escorting Kuwaiti oil tankers to protect them from attack.

However, it urged the adoption of a U.N. Security Council resolution sought by the United States that would impose an arms embargo against Iran unless it agreed to peace talks with Iraq, its enemy in nearly seven years of bitter war.

"We reaffirm the principle of freedom of navigation in the Gulf is (See WEST, A-3)

BOMB DAMAGE — A car bomb left several cars burned and destroyed outside the U.S. embassy in Rome today in what an anonymous telephone caller said was an attack triggered by the Western economic summit under way in Venice, Italy. Other bombs were thrown onto the grounds of the U.S. and British embassies in Rome. One person was treated for shock. (AP Laserphoto)

Bombs Explode Near Embassies

By SARAH DELANEY
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — A car bomb shattered windows and set fire to parked cars near the U.S. Embassy today and bombs exploded on the grounds of the U.S. and British embassies. An anonymous caller linked the attacks to the seven-power summit in Venice.

A woman who was near the car that blew up was hospitalized for shock, police said. There were no other reported injuries.

A caller to The Associated Press in London claimed the attacks were the work of the Anti-Imperialist International Brigade. Callers last year using the same group name claimed responsibility for the assassination of the French military attache in east Beirut and for bomb and rocket attacks on the U.S., Japanese and Canadian embassies in Jakarta, Indonesia.

The anonymous caller, who spoke English with a slight accent, said today's bombings proved "that the revolutionary will is stronger than the high security measures taken for the protection of the so-called seven giants of the world."

Two hours before the bombings, frogmen retrieved what police initially said was a mine from a lagoon in Venice. However, the U.S. Secret Service said the object was a harmless metal box, and the Italian news agency AGI quoted police as saying it was a water heater.

The Italian news agency ANSA quoted unidentified sources as saying police suspected the bombings had a Mideast connection.

The three explosions in the Italian capital occurred within a half-hour of each other, starting shortly after 7 a.m. The car bomb exploded about 7:45 a.m., turning a parked, unoccupied silver gray Ford Sierra into twisted mass of metal.

A police bomb expert said four "crude but well-made" explosive devices were launched from a hotel across the street from the U.S. Embassy on Via Veneto.

Police spokesman Riccardo Infelisi said two of the devices landed inside the embassy gates but only one of them exploded. The other two did not blow up and landed just outside the Hotel Ambasciatori, from which they apparently were launched, officers said.

Later, however, police said it was possible that there were only two rockets and that what appeared to be the third and fourth devices were ac-

Election Ruling Expected

RALEIGH — A representative of the state attorney general's office is scheduled to meet with an N.C. Senate subcommittee at 11 a.m. Wednesday to give a legal ruling on a bill changing Pitt County's method of election.

The attorney general's office is also expected to give a legal opinion on a "six-three" method of election supported by the Pitt County Commissioners that drew objections from minorities and questions of legality.

The subcommittee asked for legal guidance on the bill — which is a compromise between the original six-three recommended by the commissioners and a straight six-district plan supported by minorities — June 2 after Pitt County's Commissioners withdrew support of the compromise and asked legislators to instead back that board's election proposal.

At legislative hearings on the bill, lawyers for the NAACP and the Concerned Citizens for Justice questioned whether the original six-three proposal was in compliance with the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and whether it would pass U.S. Department of Justice scrutiny.

Court Says Funds Due For Zoning Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a case of enormous importance to local zoning officials, ruled today that property owners must be compensated when new restrictions are placed, even temporarily, on the use of their land.

By a 6-3 vote, the court said the "just compensation" required by the Constitution's Fifth Amendment for any "taking" of private property for public use applies to zoning laws or other regulations that impose new limits on an owner's use of land.

"Temporary takings which ... deny a landowner all use of his property are not different in kind from permanent takings, for which the Constitution clearly requires compensation," Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote for the court.

Four other times since 1981 the high court has tried to resolve the important property-rights issue. Each time, the justices backed away from cases granted review after finding procedural problems.

The decision was sparked by a California dispute in which the First English Evangelical Lutheran Church is seeking compensation from Los Angeles County.

But the ruling did not resolve that particular dispute, sending it back to the California state courts.

The Glendale church used to operate a camp, called Luther Glen, on 21 acres it owns in the mountains north of Los Angeles.

Forest fires in the summer of 1977 burned off much of the vegetation at the camp, and heavy rains the following year caused flooding that leveled the camp's buildings.

Los Angeles County subsequently enacted an ordinance that effectively prohibited reconstruction of the buildings destroyed.

State courts threw out the church's lawsuit against the county after seemingly assuming that the flood plain regulation was a "taking" and ruling that California law denies any compensation.

In the court's opinion today, Rehnquist said, "We must assume that the Los Angeles County ordinances have denied (the church) all use of its property for a considerable period of years.

"We hold that invalidation of the ordinance without payment of fair value for use of the property during this period of time would be a constitutionally insufficient remedy," he added.

The court sent the California case back to the state courts.

City Asked To Ax Residential Fees

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The city of Greenville should eliminate the $4 residential refuse collection fees in the 1987-88 budget and work to abolish commercial fees in the following year, according to a recommendation by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

"We would discontinue the residential fees," Bob Griffin, chairman of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Local Concerns Committee, told the City Council at a public hearing on the proposed 1987-88 budget Monday night.

"It is not felt to be equitable by a lot of the residents. We think the commercial fee of paying $15 a month should be continued at this point with all refuse being picked up by the Greenville Public Works Department."

The $4 per month charge for residential pickup and $15 per container per month charge for businesses were implemented in the 1986-87 budget to offset the loss of revenue sharing funds from the federal government.

Acting City Manager Mayo Allen has provided the City Council five options to meet revenue needs in the proposed $19,568,574 budget for fiscal year 1987-88.

The Mayor's Ad Hoc Budget Advisory Committee recommended that the city discontinue commercial gar-

Council Agrees To Provide Funds For Airport Parking

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council unanimously agreed to appropriate an additional $37,500 this year to pay for parking lot improvements at Pitt-Greenville Airport, matching a similar appropriation by Pitt County Commissioners.

The airport's traffic increased to about 65,000 passengers in the past year, and about 80,000 are expected next year, airport manager Jim Turcotte told City Council members at a workshop Monday night.

"We would be trying to handle 80,000 passengers in 56 paved parking spaces, and its just not cutting it,"

Turcotte said. "We have designed a parking facility which we think behoves the community."

"It is designed in such a way that it affects both our operations, our general aviation, which we consider our corporate lines, separating them from commercial passengers."

The number of passengers at Pitt-Greenville Airport has increased more than 10-fold from 5,500 passengers in 1984, Turcotte said.

Money for the expansion will come from $60,000 set aside in the General Fund for airport operations.

The emergency operating funds will not be needed for airport performance, according to Turcotte, who said the facility ran self-sustaining this year for the first time in its 49-year history.

Plans for the lot, which includes an access road, allow for paid parking in the future, Turcotte said.

"This particular lot has been designed with paid parking in mind," he said. "It is designed in such a way that when it is economically feasible for us to do it, we can implement paid parking."

Turcotte said $40,000 in funds included in the 1986-87 city of Greenville and Pitt County budgets will be used along with the $75,000 recently

Police Launching Crime Fight

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville police have invited residents of an area centered around the intersections of Fifth and Ford streets and Fifth and Tyson streets to a meeting Wednesday night to discuss a new problem-oriented policing program initiated by the department.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the St. Gabriel Catholic Church school hall at 1120 Ward St.

"It's really one of the most innovative and progressive police techniques that exists in the country today," Chief Ted Holmes said this morning.

"Typically, we look at crimes by very limited definitions ... burglary, prostitution, drugs, stolen property," Holmes said.

But "problem-oriented policing takes an area and looks at all of these things together as one problem (and) considers it a community problem, a neighborhood problem, not just a police concern."

And to "effectively deal with the problem," Holmes said, the problem-oriented policing technique "needs a high level of community support and community involvement."

That's why Wednesday night's meeting has been scheduled.

"We're meeting with the people in that neighborhood to describe the program and hopefully get input from the people in the community in terms of their expectations for police services," Holmes said.

While the meeting is primarily for the people living in the area of West Fifth Street surrounding the Ford and Tyson Street intersections, "others are certainly invited to come (and) we'll have other meetings for other neighborhoods and apply the same concept to other neighborhoods" in the future, Holmes said.

Sgt. C.J. Hardy, who has been assigned to coordinate the problem-oriented policing program in the area, said the area was selected for the pilot program because of the large number of complaints received from area residents about drugs and other illegal activity.

Built To Last

A four-month celebration marking the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution is in progress and the occasion calls for special mention.

The Constitution of the United States is the basic law of the land. As such it provides for the form of government, for limits on that government's powers, and for assurance of the rights and liberty of the citizens.

It is widely regarded as the work of geniuses, and, broadly speaking, that is true — though the authors would be the first to ridicule the thought.

A remarkable group of men assembled in 1787 to revise the Articles of Confederation which governed the country for six years after the Revolutionary War. The delegates wrote the Constitution, which remains to this day the nation's supreme law.

It was not perfect then — there have been amendments — and may not be perfect now, but on the whole Americans see it as the best to be had.

Many of those who gathered in Philadelphia were familiar with writings of contemporary revolutionaries in Europe as well as students of the experiments in representative government by ancient Greece and Rome. An important part of their heritage was the fruit of Runymede — an unwritten constitution whose basic rules include traditions of freedom, justice and human rights of Englishmen.

The constitution which was shaped and eventually adopted became one of the most important documents in history, serving as a model for nearly every country that has adopted a constitutional form of government.

The writers made a point of making the process of changing rules of the constitution relatively difficult. To amend it, both the Senate and House of Representatives must agree to the amendment by a two-thirds vote. The legislatures or specifically chosen conventions in three-fourths of the states must also agree to any change.

It was intended to last, and it has.

Barrels Roll

As the Legislature approaches major financial decisions it comes time for that annual carving known as "pork barrel."

More formally it is called local appropriations bills. This year there have been over 700 such bills filed and the Associated Press reports that the desire for the money is bipartisan. It has been traditional for the Democratic dominated Legislature to withhold pork barrel funds from Republicans. This year, however of the 46 Republicans in the Legislature, 21 have introduced bill for pork barrel appropriations. Seven other Republicans have co-sponsored bills for local projects.

Regardless of who introduces such bills, there is certain to be considerable disappointment. The requests so far total over $100 million, three times what was requested last year and likely ten times what will be funded.

The process was supposedly improved this year with the requirement that bills be introduced for funding of local projects rather than simply communicating the requests to legislative leaders.

It remains to be seen whether this process will open the way for Republican sponsored bills to find their way into the magic circle of approved pork barrel expenditures.

Legislative leaders, when they talk off the record, will tell you that pork barrel appropriations are a necessary tool to keep legislators in line and the whole process working. That may be, but the criteria for any appropriation should be that it is for the public good and it is a necessary expenditure of state funds. If these criteria are applied to local appropriations measures that will cease to be a partisan issue.

RALEIGH — Anyone entering the education world these days must meet all kinds of new standards. Teachers, librarians, counselors, principals and their assistants all face a basic job description that has been toughened by the education reform movement of the 1980s.

All but one, that is. The boss can be any Joe Politician off the street who can talk the public into voting for him. There are no written qualifications for the job of superintendent of public instruction.

Rep. Paul Tyndall, D-Onslow, a lifelong educator, tried to correct this situation this year. But the House Constitutional Amendments Committee had other ideas, and sent his bill to detention hall. Tyndall argued that this would be an ideal time to add qualifications to the job because the current superintendent, Craig Phillips, will retire in 1989. Qualifications could be added without disturbing either a sitting superintendent or any announced candidates for the job.

Tyndall proposed that the superintendent be required to have experience at every step on the education ladder: teacher, principal and local superintendent, and hold a doctorate.

But House members were dubious. "How many people (in North Carolina) meet these qualifications?" asked Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe. When Tyndall said that several hundred people probably would, Nesbitt replied, "Isn't the net effect that you must have been a superintendent to be the big man (superintendent) in this state?"

Rep. Mickey Michaux, D-Durham, argued that "you could have a super dooper human being" interested in the top job who would not qualify under Tyndall's standards. Michaux noted that the best state superintendent might be someone with a master's in education who was an extremely gifted administrator. The Tyndall bill would rule this person out.

Then Michaux turned his argument around. Someone with a doctorate, maybe the chairman of a university education department, might make an excellent state superintendent. But, Michaux said, that person probably would not have been a local superintendent.

Tyndall lashed back. The superintendent "has no business" being in that job unless he's done other jobs. Don't talk about good administrators, Tyndall said, there are deputies and controllers to help with the administration. A superintendent sets policies and leads the state. He must have a realistic idea of what goes on in the schools, Tyndall said.

But the legislators repeated their concerns of eliminating good people right off the bat. It was noted, for example, that Dick Spangler, president of the University of North Carolina, would not be qualified under the Tyndall bill. Nor would any of North Carolina's 20th century governors including Sen. Terry Sanford, Gov. Jim Martin, former Gov. Jim Hunt, former Gov. Bob Scott — now president of the community colleges — or Rep. Dave Diamond, D-Surry, a teacher, veteran legislator, and probable 1988 candidate for the job.

Tyndall argued that the state limits the candidate pool for judges and attorney general by requiring that they be lawyers. (Also noteworthy is that the agriculture commissioner must be a farmer.) But Rep. Foyle Hightower, D-Anson, summed up the committee's sentiments when he said, "The people should decide who they want as their superintendent."

The committee sent the bill to a respectful resting place over the objections of just one voter — Tyndall.

Foggy Bottom's Foggy Testimony

'Foggy Bottom continued, "I think I found the trick of testifying in front of the committee. You give an answer which is neither the truth nor a lie — but something in between. Like if they ask me if I had any dealings with Col. North, I reply I went to school with his cousin and that is why I didn't know he was running an illegal taxi company in Iran."

I walked into Foggy Bottom's office and found him sitting at a table saying, "I had the money, but I didn't have it. That is to say, it was promised to me but it wasn't ever delivered because I got the wrong Swiss bank account number, and somehow the funds disappeared into someone else's hip pocket — and the Sultan jumped over the moon." "What are you doing?" I asked him.

"I'm practicing to be a witness at the Irangate hearings. I hear Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams' job is up for grabs, and if I can testify well there is a chance I could get it."

"Why would anyone want to call you as a witness in the hearings? You don't know anything about contramuck."

"Neither does anybody else. I'm ready to blow the whistle on the whole thing because I was just following instructions and assumed all the orders were coming from higher up, which means I can say no crimes were committed."

Foggy Bottom continued, "I think I found the trick of testifying in front of the committee. You give an answer which is neither the truth nor a lie — but something in between. Like if they ask me if I had any dealings with Col. North, I reply I went to school with his cousin and that is why I didn't know he was running an illegal taxi company in Iran. Ask me a tough question," Foggy Bottom begged.

"All right. In your estimation was Col. North a loose cannon?"

"He had to be a loose cannon or he wouldn't have paid all his laundry bills with traveler's checks. By the same token, how could he be a loose cannon and still have direct access to the President? My answer to the question is that North was loose when he had to be loose, and tight when he had to be tight, in that he never picked up a luncheon check in his life. Did you understand any of that?" Foggy Bottom asked.

"Not much."

"Then it proves I would make a good witness for the committee. Did I tell you I know for a fact that we solicited money from Bangladesh, and this money was sent to Canada with a man named Raoul to fight acid rain in the tundra?"

"You know that for a fact?"

"No, Elliott Abrams told me about it after the Secretary of State said he was no longer sworn to secrecy."

I said to Foggy Bottom, "What if I asked about your relationship with Secretary Shultz?"

"I would reply that although we know each other slightly, we park our cars in separate garages. This is not to say we don't work together, because we both were constantly trying to raise funds from private sources to finance American foreign policy in Central America since Congress wouldn't give us any money. For example, I was the one who asked South Korea to buy Girl Scout cookies from Gen. Secord."

"Would you say North knew George Bush?"

"I'm not sure of it, but I heard through the grapevine they danced with each other at last year's U.S. Marine Corps ball. This does not mean Bush knew any more about Nicaragua than he did about Iran. My job was to keep everyone in the dark on anything having to do with American foreign policy."

Strength For Today

Fourteen centuries ago St. Benedict, founder of the Benedictine Order, established a monastery at Monte Cassino in Italy. A later abbot, in Benedict's honor, carved over the door the words "Inspexit et Despexit" — He saw it and he scorned it.

The inscription refers to an incident which happened one night just before Benedict started building the monastery. He had a vision of the whole world spread out before him, and while he looked at it a ghostly voice said to him that all this would be his if he abandoned the monastic life. But Benedict turned away from the vision and began his work on the monastery. He saw the world, and he scorned it.

The only way to deal with temptation is resolutely to turn away from it.

Armed With Facts And Ready To Move On Poverty

WASHINGTON — The key word on the poverty and welfare front these days is "consensus." We've never had better information on what makes people poor, how long they stay that way, and how the experience differs for various groups. And not in 20 years has there been such widespread agreement that our society can do better for the disadvantaged.

Without doubt, political differences over specific proposals remain. But in the words of Sen. Daniel P.

Moynihan (D-N.Y.), who has spent a quarter-century at the center of the poverty debate, "We may just have one of those rare alignments that bring about genuine social change."

The move toward consensus is quite recent. Just three years ago, the publication of Charles Murray's "Losing Ground" ignited a sometimes bitter controversy between liberals and conservatives over the effects of welfare on the poor. Murray's eloquent book blamed government programs themselves for encouraging school dropouts, crime and illegitimate births.

For months, through early 1985, newspaper editorial pages, journals of opinion, and talk shows were abuzz with what was called the Murray Thesis, that welfare is a self-reinforcing trap. Those who advocated increased federal spending on social programs seemed out of touch; when their arguments failed, they were said to have been "Charles Murrayed."

But detailed data on poverty have of late told us quite a different story from the one Murray suggested. In fact, only a fraction of those who become poor or go on welfare do so for more than two years. Even those who grow up poor are not usually "trapped" on the dole.

Most of those who become poor — and fully a third of us do each decade, for at least a year — do not match the common stereotypes. Most of the poor are white, in two-parent families, and do not live in inner cities. Temporary unemployment or disability usually explains the loss of income. There are also millions of working poor, who in many states are ineligible for support.

Yet at the same time, certain groups are uniquely at risk. Forty-five percent of female-headed families are poor, and this is the fastest-growing poverty group. Accordingly, poverty rates for children are appalling: one in five children is poor each year, and fully 70 percent of kids in minority, female-headed families are in poverty.

In addition, poverty in certain areas and for certain groups is indeed beginning to appear self-reinforcing. The "underclass," mostly black and Hispanic, primarily urban, and plagued by joblessness and illegitimate births, deserves particular attention. The average poor black child, for instance, is poor for a stretch of 20 years.

There are, then, at least two general types of poverty. One is widespread, but short-term. The other is concentrated but long-lived. And while the underclass is less than one-seventh of the total poor population over time, the persistence of underclass poverty means that in any given year it constitutes most of the people on public assistance.

In response to these facts, both liberals and conservatives have given some ground. While conservatives have mostly stopped saying that welfare is bad for recipients, liberals admit certain groups may need special help to obtain self-sufficiency.

Evidence of the growing consensus is that the following sentence appears in nearly identical form in two recent influential poverty reports, prepared by New York Gov. Mario Cuomo's liberal poverty task force, and the neoconservative working group of the American Enterprise Institute in Washington D.C.: "While welfare has not caused current poverty problems," the report states, "the system is not doing enough to encourage individuals to become self-sufficient."

The upshot of the new consensus is a three-pronged approach: economic growth, child support, and welfare," where in the long-term poor people would gain job experience and training. While some, like Professor Francis Fox Piven of City College of New York still suspect that a jobs-based approach would be stigmatizing and unproductive, most experts believe that participation in the workforce is one key to uplifting the underclass.

In addition to the Cuomo and AEI reports, a number of other studies, including one commissioned by former Arizona governor Bruce Babbitt, concur on the work and family approach. One disappointment was the December 1986 poverty report by the president's Domestic Policy Council, which shied away for new recommendations. Now that the intellectual climate is right, real progress against poverty will have to wait until after 1988.

IN THE STATE

Methodists

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A motion to include more minorities and women in higher positions on Methodist church committees has raised questions about the church's power structure at its annual meeting.

The Rev. James Coile, chairman of a task force that studied the issue, said he had not expected as much discussion on the motion, which passed overwhelmingly Monday during the opening day of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church. The conference is expected to last through Thursday.

"I was surprised it brought that much discussion," Coile said. "We were directed to make recommendations as to how top leadership positions could be more inclusive of minorities and women."

The conference also heard reports from the church's women, men and youth on progress made during the year.

School Books

RALEIGH (AP) — The nation's two biggest textbook buyers — California and Texas — are influencing what students in North Carolina study, the director of the state Department of Public Instruction Social Studies Division says.

Students do not read much about evolution in most science books, for instance, because until 1983 Texas officials demanded equal time for creationism in any textbook discussion of evolution, said John Ellington. But new books are likely to contain more about evolution because California has demanded that publishers quit sidestepping the subject and give it more weight.

Besides California and Texas, publishers also watch North Carolina, which spends more than $42 million on textbooks each year and vies with Florida as the third biggest buyer among 22 states that adopt schoolbooks statewide.

Jury Award

GREENSBORO (AP) — A jury has awarded $419,000 to the survivors of a Rockingham County man who was killed in 1985 when his car was hit head-on by a car being chased by Greensboro police 18 miles outside the city limits.

The nine-woman, three-man, jury deliberated about 3½ hours Monday before finding that the Greensboro Police Department and two of its officers were negligent in failing to end a high-speed chase for a man accused of driving while impaired, a misdemeanor.

Despite the fact that Maxie Lee Bullins, 39, of Madison had a .20 percent blood-alcohol level at the time of the crash, the jury did not find that he contributed to his death through his own negligence. Luther Melvin McMillian of Summerfield, who was being chased by police north on U.S. 220, had a .26 percent blood-alcohol level. McMillian also was killed in the crash.

Bullins' wife, Tilda Bullins, filed the suit in 1986 against the City of Greensboro and officers C.R. Schmidt and R.J. Blakely Jr.

Gilmore

GREENSBORO (AP) — Guilford County Democrat Tom Gilmore said Monday he would seek the 6th Congressional District seat in 1988, ending an official bid for the lieutenant governor's post.

"Because I want to help build a more secure future for our people and businesses, because I want to fight for the needs of the 6th District, and because I have a special obligation to my home, I am personally committed to a race for Congress next year," Gilmore read from a prepared statement.

Although Gilmore, 50, had not declared his candidacy for lieutenant governor, he began campaigning for that position last December. He resigned his position as Guilford County Democratic Party chairman and campaigned in more than 40 counties.

Emergency

FRANKLIN, N.C. (AP) — Two men escaped injury Monday when their single-engine aircraft lost part of one blade of its propeller at an altitude of 7,500 feet, forcing them to make a landing in a small pasture in Franklin.

Bill Haney of Hiawasse, Ga., the pilot, was taking his brother-in-law, Dr. James F. Smith of West Palm Beach, Fla., from Blairsville, Ga., to Asheville to catch a commercial flight.

When the propeller on the Piper Cherokee 180 broke, the engine began vibrating violently, Haney said. He said he managed to shut the engine down, but then had to stall the aircraft to stop the propeller from windmilling.

The vibration was so bad that one of the aircraft's radios was shaken out of the control panel before the engine could be stopped, he said.

Infant Shot

CHARLOTTE (AP) — An 11-month-old northeast Charlotte boy died of an apparent accidental gunshot wound Monday, authorities said. Police were withholding details of their investigation.

Charlotte police identified the youngster as Jonathon Douglas Grinnell. They said he was shot once in the head and died less than 45 minutes later at Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

Police said the infant's first birthday would have been June 24.

Largest Firm

RALEIGH (AP) — A Charlotte construction company is the largest privately held company among North Carolina's 100 largest firms, according to a survey released today.

McDevitt & Street, with annual revenues of more than $500 million, topped the 1987 list of companies in the fourth annual survey by Arthur Andersen & Co., the international accounting and consulting firm, and "Business: North Carolina" magazine. McDevitt & Street was second on the list last year.

Cone Mills Corp., a Greensboro textile fabric manufacturer, was second, and Stowe-Pharr Mills of McAdenville in Gaston County was third.

Marches Cost City $40,000

GREENSBORO (AP) — The price for Greensboro taxpayers is approximately $40,000 in overtime salaries for police protection during this past weekend's Ku Klux Klan downtown parade and peace festival sponsored by opponents of the march, officials said.

"We were figuring roughly $20,000 per day," for the Klan march and peace rally Sunday and the counter-march Saturday, Greensboro Police Chief Sylvester Daughtry said Monday. "We don't know if we're going over that, or slightly under that."

Police Capt. A.F. Cannady, who headed planning efforts by the department, declined to give the number of officers who worked the weekend events. However, he said a majority of the department's force, including reserves, put in time.

"We tried to not disrupt normal service to our citizens," he said. "When you take that into account, as well as the special events, most of the department's manpower was involved."

The police presence and strategy were markedly different than on Nov. 3, 1979, when five communists were killed at a Greensboro housing project. Then, police kept a low profile during the anti-Klan rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party.

Greensboro police were visible on rooftops and on every downtown street corner during the Klan's march Sunday.

Greensboro police were assisted over the weekend by Guilford County Sheriff's deputies and detectives.

"We used 56 officers each day who worked 44½ hours of overtime," said Sheriff's Maj. Ed Pons, who is in charge of administration. "We estimate the cost to be about $7,500."

Saturday's march downtown was sponsored by the Greensboro Coalition for Unity and Justice, which was organized after city officials approved a parade permit for the Klan. The group planned the march to show that Greensboro citizens oppose racism and the Klan.

About 140 Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klans marched 10 blocks Sunday afternoon to recruit new members. Five spectators were arrested on misdemeanor charges. Two remained in jail Monday.

Man Questioned In Pool Death

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The shooting death of a 16-year-old girl in an amusement park wave pool over the weekend was apparently accidental, and police say they have questioned a man who called them saying he could have fired the fatal bullet.

Police Monday questioned a Mecklenburg County man who told them he was target shooting about a half-mile from Carowinds theme park where the teen-ager was shot and killed while floating on a raft in the crowded pool.

County Police Capt. Chris Owens said the man had not been arrested, Owens said.

Monitor Underwater Study Ends, Declared 'Success'

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — After taking America's closest look ever at the wreck of the Civil War ironclad USS Monitor the past two weeks, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration officials are labeling the historic $1.8 million expedition a huge success.

Researchers off the coast of North Carolina finished a series of studies of the Monitor Monday, saying an "overly ambitious project ... really came off well."

"This is probably one of the major historical documents of the wreck," said expedition leader Dail Brown. "It will be extremely valuable to historians and when we get around to considering retrieval options."

Researchers filmed 86 20-minute videotapes of the wreck site in an attempt to determine the Monitor's condition and do an archaeological survey of the ship's artifacts, Brown said.

Scientists hope to examine the information by the end of the year to help officials decide how to protect the wreck, Brown said.

"The key thing is that we've come up with a set of data to let us evaluate the options we have," he said.

Rather than raising the entire ship, officials could decide to retrieve only portions of the vessel, such as the turret and engine, Brown said. Raising the Monitor would be difficult because the boat is iron and has been underwater for 120 years, Brown said.

"It would essentially crumble into rust in no time at all," he said.

Jordan School Stand Brings GOP Criticism

RALEIGH (AP) — Republicans have pounced on Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan for abandoning a $1 billion bond issue for school construction, saying the move demonstrates weakness and indecision.

"He can't even stand behind the positions he takes ... long enough to get them through the Legislature," State GOP Chairman Jack Hawke said Monday. "He deserts it the minute some in his party start opposing it. Now, what kind of governor would that be?"

Jordan, who is expected to challenge Republican Gov. Jim Martin in the 1988 gubernatorial race, issued a one-sentence statement saying it was "evident that Jack Hawke is more interested in politics than in education." He declined to elaborate after Monday's Senate session, saying, "I don't have any comment on anything Jack would say."

Jordan last week withdrew his support for the bond bill, which he and Martin had supported along with another $1 billion bond issue for public-works projects such as water and sewer systems.

Hinting that it probably would die in the House, which has passed a temporary 1-cent sales tax increase to pay for school facilities, Jordan offered another plan to raise $2.9 billion over 10 years from a variety of sources, most of which already are in place.

Jordan depicted his move as an effort to ward off a stalemate and prevent the Legislature from going home with no plan for school construction.

"Somebody had to step forward and break the impasse," said Ken Eudy, the executive director of the state Democratic Party, "just like he did last June. When the sitting governor's highway package was dead in the water, the lieutenant governor stepped forward to provide the leadership."

Hawke, however, 8th graf.

Sheriff Indicted

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Columbus County Sheriff William Rhodes was indicted Monday on one charge of obstruction of justice after he allegedly tipped off officials of a country club that it was about to be raided for illegal liquor sales.

The expedition at the Monitor, which is located 16 miles off Cape Hatteras, was co-sponsored by NOAA and the U.S. Navy. Unlike previous trips to the Monitor site, no divers visited the ship during the expedition, which began May 25.

Instead, researchers on the deck of the USS Navy Apache used an underwater robot named "Deep Drone" to take video and still pictures of the wreck 220 feet below the surface of the Atlantic Ocean.

The Monitor sunk off of Hatteras while being towed to Beaufort on New Year's Eve 1862.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House secretary Fawn Hall, her mood growing somber, described to congressional investigators how she shredded pounds of key documents in the Iran-Contra affair, altered other papers and smuggled still others to her boss, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

"I felt a little bit of uneasiness when he was asking me to do this," Miss Hall testified Monday at the hearings on Capitol Hill, speaking of North's order that she retype four memos to obscure references to his activities on behalf of Nicaragua's Contra rebels. "I felt there must have been a good reason. ... I did as I was told."

Miss Hall, a 27-year-old part-time model with cascading blond hair, kept the Iran-Contra committees

Louisiana Executes 2nd Inmate

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — A man who raped and killed a woman during a robbery that netted a stereo and a jar of pennies became the second Louisiana inmate executed in two days when he was put to death early today.

Three other executions are scheduled during the next two weeks in Louisiana, which until Sunday had not executed anyone in 2½ years.

Alvin Moore Jr., who made no statement before he was strapped into the electric chair, was pronounced dead at 12:16 a.m.

Moore's attorney, Wellborn Jack Jr., quoted him shortly before the execution as saying, "They can kill my body, but not my soul."

Moore, 27, entered the death chamber, bound with leg irons and handcuffs, at 12:03 a.m. and briefly looked toward the row of witnesses separated from the chair by a glass window. He appeared calm, but dazed as five guards strapped him in to the chair and attached electrodes to his left leg and the top of his shaved head.

He was the ninth inmate executed in the United States this year, and Louisiana's ninth since it resumed executions in 1983.

Delaware Senator Enters Race For White House As Democrat

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination today, saying his generation is ready to "pay any price, bear any burden, accept any challenge, meet any hardship to secure the blessings of prosperity and promise of America for our children."

The 44-year-old chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee painted a picture of America at risk in the late 1980s, describing "the bitter truth" of a nation he said is marked by unrestrained individualism, discontent over the failure of the political system and economic policies promising "a quick and false prosperity by consuming our children's future."

But Biden, the fifth Democrat to formally announce he is seeking his party's nomination, also offered himself as the candidate who can help "rekindle the fire of idealism in our society."

"It is in this gathering of discontent that my candidacy intends to find its voice," he said in remarks prepared for delivery at a midday kick-off. "For I believe that our citizenry contains untapped legions, whose success in other fields prepares them ... to transfuse the tired blood of our politics with new ideas, new approaches and new energy."

"I fervently believe that our people are ready and anxious, and that they will rise to this challenge and opportunity like a mighty river surging through the public life of America."

Disdaining those who say the nation must be "competitive" in the world market, Biden declared:

"To say that we want to be 'competitive' acknowledges that we are already losing. I am not interested in losing. I want America to win — flat-out win."

Over and over, the Delaware Democrat, who hopes his sizable war chest and sparkling speaking style will propel him out of the crowd of long-shot candidates, referred to his generation and its readiness to lead America.

That is part of the appeal he has been making around the country to Baby Boom voters, who now make up nearly half of the electorate.

"Our generation is eager and ready to reclaim its special legacy and redeem the promise of America for ourselves and our children," he said.

Biden echoed the words of John F. Kennedy, whom he often refers to in stump speeches.

"In the spirit of another time, let us pledge that our generation of Americans pay any price, bear any burden, accept any challenge, meet any hardship to secure the blessings of prosperity and promise of America for our children," he said.

Biden made his announcement at a rally at the restored Wilmington train station, a familiar site to the Delaware politician who has daily traveled round-trip to Washington as a senator.

In fact, he was taking a train to Washington for a rally on Capitol Hill following his announcement here. Then he was heading off on the traditional swing through Iowa and New Hampshire.

Bush Still Has Falwell Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell, founder of the conservative political group Moral Majority, is telling Democrats to think Republican in 1988.

"If they're real smart they'll abandon anybody that even leans left" the Lynchburg, Va., television pastor and temporary head of the beleaguered PTL ministry said Monday at the National Press Club.

Falwell said Democrats should look for someone with views similar to those of GOP candidates. He suggested former Virginia Gov. Chuck Robb or Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

But personally, said Falwell, his heart still belongs to Vice President George Bush — or failing that, Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

"My support of George Bush has not waned," Falwell said, adding with a laugh: "If I can do him more good by condemning him publicly, I'll do that."

Falwell: 'Forgive' Jim

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Jerry Falwell expressed hope Monday that no criminal charges would be filed against defrocked television evangelist Jim Bakker, whose PTL ministry is being investigated for alleged financial wrongdoing.

Falwell, who took over PTL operations in March after Bakker resigned in a sex scandal, likened Bakker's situation to one involving President Nixon, who resigned in 1974 while facing potential criminal charges during the Watergate scandal.

"I was glad when (then-President)

Testimony Ends In Goetz Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Testimony has ended in subway gunman Bernhard Goetz's attempted murder trial, and the judge said he would consider a defense request to drop most of the charges.

A medical examiner completed the prosecution's case Monday by poking a sharp stick into a dressmaker's dummy to show that one of the four young men Goetz shot could have been sitting down when he was shot and paralyzed.

The defense called no more witnesses and the judge, State Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane, scheduled closing arguments for Wednesday.

Goetz, a 39-year-old electronics technician, is charged with attempted murder, assault, reckless endangerment and weapons violations for shooting the four, all 19 at the time, on Dec. 22, 1984.

Goetz has said he fired in self-defense, thinking he was about to be robbed, after one of the four asked him for $5. One of the men said they were merely panhandling to play video games, which they intended to break into.

After testimony ended Monday, the jury left the courtroom and Crane and the lawyers began discussing how the judge would instruct the jurors on the law.

Defense lawyers, who did not call Goetz to testify, asked Crane to remind the jury that nothing can be inferred by that. The prosecution asked the judge to tell jurors that the government did not have to prove a motive.

Earlier, Mark Baker, one of Goetz's attorneys, asked the judge to dismiss all charges against his client because of the "non-existent" case.

Baker said Goetz was rational when he fired the first shot. Between the first and last shot, the attorney said, Goetz did not have a chance to reflect on his actions.

Top Earner

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street's 10 highest-paid professionals earned an average of $68 million last year, with investment banker Michel David-Weill leading the pack at $125 million, a financial magazine says.

Financial World said Monday the average salary of the top 10 rose by about $17 million over 1985, when the stock market engaged in a record rally and corporate mergers and acquisitions took place at a hefty pace.

The magazine, in a story for its July 14 edition, compiled a list of what it believes to be the 100 highest-paid Wall Streeters, including executives, investment bankers, money managers and traders.

Warren-Boyd Vows Said

BATH — Cindy Kay Boyd and Steven Murray Warren were united in marriage on Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Bath Christian Church. Dr. Ronald Davis performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dalmon Edison Boyd of Bath. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Nunn Warren of Farmville.

Organist Nancy Swindell with vocalists Pam Carson and Jay Brumbelee presented a program of wedding music.

The bride was escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal-length gown of white tulle with a high collar and an open sweetheart neckline featuring a sheer yoke and collar of embroidered organza in a floral motif. The elongated torso bodice was styled in the satin fabric embellished with appliques of the embroidered organza lace and beaded in pearls and iridescent sequins. The beaded lace extended over the waistline to emphasize the basque effect. The Renaissance sleeves were fashioned in satin with open cutwork of sheer organza with lace at the shoulder. Appliques of beaded lace extended over the fitted sleeve to form calla points at the wrist. The full skirt extended to an attached chapel-length train. Open cutwork overlaid by sheer embroidered lace adorned the skirt front, with a scalloped patterned lace border edging the hemline and train.

She selected a tiered illusion veil edged in pearls. It was held in place by a tiara headpiece of pearl filaments interspersed with tiny white silk flowers. She carried a cascade of cymbidium orchids, white and pink roses, and variegated ivy.

Melinda Reid of Pinetown, maid of honor, wore a tea-length dress of turquoise satin designed with a fitted bodice with rolled fabric straps. An inset panel of gathered satin encircled the dropped waistline, with a Dior bow off-centering the gathered skirt. The dress was complemented by a bolero jacket with short, French puffed sleeves in matching satin. She carried an arm bouquet of cymbidium orchids, white and pink roses, and baby's breath tied with white streamers.

Bridesmaids were Selena Howell of Lee's Summit, Mo., cousin of the bride, Teresa Bullock of Wilson, Lynn Warren of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Cathy White of Wilmington, sister of the bridegroom, Becky Willis of Garner and Rexanne Davis of Farmville. They were attired like the honor attendant and carried identical bouquets.

Honorary bridesmaids were Debbie Leigh, Carolyn Paszt, Sharon Paszt, all cousins of the bride, Marsha Sullivan and Teresa Tetterton.

Attending as flower girl was Courtney Cartwright of Bath. She was attired in a full-length sleeveless gown of white tulle with a laced hemline. Her sash and overbust was of turquoise satin. She carried a basket of summer flowers.

Brian Casto of Pasadena, Md., cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer.

The bridegroom chose his father as his best man.

Ushers were Craig Boyd and Dal Boyd Jr., both of Bath, brothers of the bride, Sidney Davis of Farmville, Randy Willis of Garner, Jay Brumbelee of Farmville, Kelly Patterson of Raleigh, and Eddie Pate and Ricky Shreve, both of Charleston, S.C.

Serving as mistresses of ceremony were Claudia Alligood and Brenda Godley, both of Bath.

The mother of the bride chose a tea-length gown of peach-colored chiffon over taffeta. The bridegroom's mother wore an ankle-length gown of lavender lace over taffeta. Each wore an orchid corsage.

Grandparents of the couple were special guests and were remembered with flowers.

The bride is a graduate of Bath High School and attended East Carolina University and Pitt Community College. She is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and attended East Carolina University. He is employed by Thorpe-Greenville Export Tobacco Company.

After a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Glenda Boyd and Carolyn Biggs, both aunts of the bride, served the guests cake and punch. Sara, Becky, and Nancy Mercer distributed the birdseed, and Sandra Dupree, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register. Assisting with the reception were Marie Brinn and Lola Paszt, aunts of the bride.

The parents of the bridegroom hosted an after-rehearsal dinner at their home, and Lois Boyd, the bride's mother, hosted a bridesmaid brunch at the Golden Corral Restaurant in Washington on Saturday.

Sittersons Married In Windsor

WINDSOR — Jan Marie Brown of Windsor and Thaddius Berkley Sitterson III of Fayetteville, Tenn., spoke their vows at the Cashie Baptist Church on Sunday at 3 p.m.

The wedding was conducted by the Rev. Jack Byrd, with Mrs. Thomas A. Brooks at the organ. Soloists were Mrs. Jack Cooper and Andy Lee.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Neal Brown of Lynchburg, Va. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Thaddius Berkley Sitterson Jr. of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal gown of chiffon, venise lace and silk floss cluny embroidery. The embroidered ball gown bodice was medallion trimmed and featured an off-shoulder sweetheart neck accented with venise lace. The banded capped sleeves were overlaid with embroidery medallion trim. The soft flowing A-line skirt featured a basque waistline with overlays of chiffon flowing into a chapel train. Her headpiece was a camelot cap with cathedral length bustle veil with a rolled edge and re-embroidered domestic chantilly lace lace accented by pearls and sequins. The illusion veil was adorned with lace appliques. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and freesia with baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a tea-length gown of imported aqua French lattice work lace bordered in a floral patterned chantilly lace motif over matching satin. The gown was fashioned with a sheer yoke with the scalloped lace defining the sabrina neckline. The short caplet sleeve was also enhanced with the patterned lace. The waistline of the softly gathered skirt was accented with a cummerbund and bow of satin. The scalloped border of lace edged the hemline. She carried a bouquet of three long-stemmed yellow roses with baby's breath and greenery. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns and carried a single long-stemmed yellow rose.

Amy Jean Baker of Windsor was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susanne Sitterson Avery of Greenville, sister of the groom, Susan Rose Toney of Wake Forest, Amy Gay Hamilton of Plymouth, Elaine Webster Frick from Greenville, S.C., and Megan Anne Sweeney of Marblehead, Mass.

The bridegroom chose his father as his best man. The groomsmen were Larry Ray Avery of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Harry Clayton Roberson Jr. of Robersonville, Richard Neil Cargile of Robersonville, Steven James Landreth of Concord, cousins of the bride, and Michael Anson Teachey of Raleigh.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Cashie Country Club with Mr. and Mrs. Brown as hosts.

The bride graduated in May from Salem College in Winston-Salem with a bachelor's degree in sociology and history. The bridegroom attended Elon College in Greensboro and is employed as production and distribution manager for Eagle Snacks in Fayetteville, Tenn.

After a wedding trip to Wrightsville Beach and Charleston, S.C., the couple will reside in Fayetteville, Tenn.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Joseph Rhea and Mrs. Joseph Roberson, both of Windsor.

Several affairs were held in honor of the couple, including showers, a picnic dinner, a bridal luncheon, a rehearsal dinner and after-rehearsal dance, and a pool party, all given by friends and relatives.

Dail-Harris Wedding Held Sunday

Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church was the scene Sunday of the wedding of Mary Ann Harris and Jimmy Ray Dail, both of Greenville.

The Rev. Larry Stevens conducted the 3 p.m. double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Maurice Harris of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Ray Dail of Greenville.

The bridegroom's father was the best man. Ushers were James Dail and Joseph Dail, brothers of the bridegroom, Maury Harris, brother of the bride, and Billy Stancill, all of Greenville. Justin Brinkley, also of Greenville, was the ring bearer.

The bride's gown was organza over taffeta with a Queen Anne collar. The back had pearl buttons, and the train was of taffeta with lace. She carried silk white roses with little rose buds and wore a cap with beaded lace.

The bride's attendants wore pink organza over taffeta gowns and carried pink silk roses. The maid of honor was Rhonda Harris, sister of the bride, and the matron of honor was Janet Jones, also a sister of the bride. Both are from Greenville. Lisa Mercer, Kim James, and Lora Bunting, the bride's cousin, all of Greenville, were bridesmaids.

Ashley Jones of Greenville was the flower girl.

The Rev. Donnie Miles presented a program of organ music, and he and Trudy Miles performed vocals.

The bride is a graduate of Trinity Christian School, currently working for Greenville Ob-Gyn. The bridegroom is employed by Cox Armature Works and is a graduate of J.H. Rose High.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a long dress of lavender taffeta and wore lavender silk roses.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a long royal blue knit dress with a chiffon tiered bodice. She also wore blue silk roses. The grandmothers wore silk rose corsages.

Mother Was Steered Wrong

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: I recently published a letter from a reader who was emotionally torn over whether she should allow "John," her grieving homosexual son whose lover of 10 years had just died of AIDS, to return home for a family reunion and come out of the closet to his entire family. John had told his mother that he was not about to sit down with his family and pretend that life is "beautiful" after having been through the most painful and tragic year of his life — and unless he could be open and honest with his family, he refused to come home.

His mother said, "We love our son, but don't want the embarrassment and hysteria that this situation could bring."

I told the mother that the decision should be John's, but for him to insist that the entire family be informed that he is gay, though it might cause embarrassment and hysteria, would be insensitive and inconsiderate, but to welcome him anyway.

Did I get letters! Some excerpts:

"... Your response to the mother of John, whose lover and partner had just died of AIDS, was both incredibly insensitive and ignorant. You (and John's mother) have conveniently overlooked two facts: (1) John is almost certain to die of AIDS as well; how are they going to deal with the 'hysteria and embarrassment' of that situation? (2) If he's been living with a male lover for 10 years, the relatives all know he's gay anyway — they just don't discuss it with his parents."

"You missed an opportunity to do some educating about AIDS, homophobia and common decency." — GARY IN HOUSTON

"... I still have a column of yours in which you say: 'One thing is certain, God made gays just as surely as he made straights. And all his children are entitled to live and love in dignity, without shame or guilt.' I can't believe anyone who would make that statement would advise a gay person to stay in the closet at a time when he needs all the support and understanding he can get. If his family can't stand the 'embarrassment and hysteria,' that's their problem, not his." — BI IN CHICAGO

"... Many doctors have concluded that self-esteem plays a crucial role in the condition of the immune system. If John is forced to suppress who he is because his family finds it embarrassing, it could very well push his immune system over the edge. And what will his parents do if he does develop AIDS? Tell him to pretend he has an extended case of the flu? Abby, this is the time when John needs his family the most. Shame on you for encouraging them to stifle him." — KRISTIE IN MILL VALLEY

"... The man is in pain. To ask him to be dishonest about a loving relationship is asking him, once again, to subordinate his feelings to those of heterosexuals at a time when he needs to be honest. His parents need to face their own 'shame' concerning their son's sexuality. ('We've never wanted to let the rest of the family know that John is gay.')

"You blew it, Abby." — MIKE V. INLA

DEAR MIKE, KRISTIE, BI, GARY, ET AL: I certainly did, and I apologize for my own insensitivity. I should have known better. And the sad fact is, I really do.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press
HOGS: Market $1.50 higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robertsonville, 61.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 61.00; Wilson 61.00, Rowland, 60.00. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 43.00; Wallace 45.00; Spivey's Corner 45.00; Rowland no quote.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 41.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The final weighted average was 42.17 cents. The market tone for next week's trading is firm and the live supply is adequate for a good to very good demand. Average weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Tuesday was 1,932,000, compared to 1,944,000 last Tuesday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply very heavy for a light demand. Prices paid per pound day of negotiation generally for slaughter the following week, heavy types, 7 pounds and up, 5 cents at farm with buyer loading.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent lower at mostly 1.88-2.00 in East and mostly 2.19-2.26 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 8 to 10 cents lower at mostly 5.45-5.62 in East and mostly 5.47-5.57 in the Piedmont; new crop corn 1.72-2.07; new crop soybeans 5.27-5.62, new crop wheat 2.40-2.50. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady and ranged from 101 to 105 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was unchanged to mostly higher in moderate trading early, extending Monday's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was unchanged at 10 a.m. EDT at 2,351.64. Advancing issues slightly outnumbered decliners on the New York Stock Exchange, with 589 issues gaining, 537 declining and 449 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board toaled 23.63 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 0.94 at 331.30.

"We got off to another one of those nice, steady slow starts," said Hildegard Zagorski, an analyst for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. "I think that this market has seen its lows and we're going to continue to move ahead through the month of June."

The expectation that company profits will generally show substantial improvement and the dollar will gain should lift stock prices higher in the coming weeks, Zagorski suggested.

Market participants are watching for news from the economic summit meeting of seven major industrial countries in Venice, Italy, although many traders don't expect significant economic developments to emerge from the conference.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks had slipped 0.01 to 167.12.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 25.49 to 2,351.64, its highest close since it stood at 2,372.16 on April 8.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 2 to 1 on the NYSE, with 1,018 up, 513 down and 448 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 136.37 million shares, up from 129.11 million Friday.

Marine With AIDS Sues Government

By DANA KENNEDY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A Marine is suing the federal government for $55 million, saying he expects his 3 1/2-year-old daughter to become an orphan because he has AIDS and the same disease killed his wife and son.

Martin Gaffney, 38, a chief warrant officer in the U.S. Marine Corps, blames U.S. Navy hospitals for the deaths last week of his wife, Mut-suko, 38, and last summer of his son, John, age 13 months.

Gaffney's suit alleges Navy doctors botched his wife's first pregnancy and caused her to receive a transfusion of blood contaminated with the virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The claim is under review by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy,

Schools Close

Schools in the J.H. Rose attendance area closed at 1 p.m. today due to heat, according to county school officials.

No decision concerning Wednesday's school hours had been made by mid-morning.

The mercury was expected to soar into the mid-90s today but for Wednesday weather forecasters are predicting more moderate temperatures.

John Paul Sees Death Camp Site

LUBLIN, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II today condemned political oppression during an emotional visit to the site of a former Nazi death camp and later praised the example of a pro-Solidarity priest slain by secret police agents.

"You must serve the dignity of man, his liberation," the pontiff told a group of newly ordained priests, citing the sacrifice of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, who was beaten to death in 1984.

At the site of the Majdanek Nazi concentration camp, the Polish-born pope buried his head in his hands as he knelt in silent prayer for the 1.5 million people who died there.

As a band played a solemn dirge and a drum rolled slowly, he knelt on a white-draped stand under a large mausoleum inscribed with the words "Your fate is a warning to us" and containing the ashes of tens of thousands of the camp's victims.

Evidence presented at the Nuremberg War Crimes trials said 1.5 million people perished at Majdanek during the World War II German occupation of Poland, although there have been lower estimates.

The Roman Catholic leader prayed alone for nearly 10 minutes, sometimes resting his chin on his folded hands and sometimes covering his face.

Around him were wooden buildings remaining from the Nazi era, when Poles from all over the country were brought to the camp to be killed.

Player Pleads In Assault Case

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A University of North Carolina football player has pleaded no contest to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with a fraternity fight April 15.

Dennis Wayne Tripp of Farmville was given a prayer for judgment by Orange County District Court Judge Patricia Hunt. The rising sophomore linebacker will not have a criminal record if he completes 25 hours of community service, pays $9 restitution to the victim by May 1, 1988, and violates no laws during the next year. Tripp was also ordered to pay $40 in court costs.

According to court documents, Tripp was charged with striking Derek U. Ezzell of Whiteville, a rising junior, with a rock during a fraternity party fight. Ezzell required five stitches to close his wounds, according to court documents.

North Carolina head football coach Dick Crum was out of town Monday and could not be reached for comment about Tripp's status with the football team. Assistant coach Dennis Marcin said he could not comment about the case.

Police said officers who entered a fifth-floor room of the hotel found a rifle equipped to fire small bombs. Infelisi said the room had been rented to a man of Asian origin with a Canadian passport. The man was not in the room when police entered.

The Italian news agency AGI said the man arrived in Rome on May 6 and was reported to have fled the hotel shortly after the explosions.

The explosions in Rome occurred about three hours before the first summit session in Venice, about 340 miles northeast of the Italian capital. Meeting in Venice are the leaders of the United States, France, Britain, Italy, Canada, Japan and West Germany.

A Rome police official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it ap-

Six-Run Deficit? Hasn't Meant Thing To Rallying Reds Who Top Giants, 7-6

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds have been one of the most exciting and successful teams in the major leagues this season. But put them in a six-run hole and what happens?

They win. And win. And win. And win.

The Reds won for the fourth time this season after trailing by six runs as they rallied past the San Francisco Giants 7-6 Monday night. The victory, secured on Dave Parker's two-run single in the bottom of the ninth, moved the Reds three games ahead of the second-place Giants in the National League West.

Gary Hobgood All-Academic

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A former Farmville Central High School golfer was among those named to the NCAA Division I Academic All-America team Monday.

The Golf Coaches Association of America named 29 college players to the team including 10 named for the second consecutive year.

Gary Hobgood, who played as a prepster at Farmville Central, was named to the team from Campbell University, one of four North Carolina athletes placed on the team. The other three, Art Roberson, named for the second year, and Joe Gay and Uly Grissette, all attend N.C. State University.

In addition, Richmond's Robert Brian Gai was named to the team. Repeaters on the 1987 team included David Duffy, U.S. Military Academy; Dennis Harrington, Ohio State University; Tom Hearn, Miami, Fla.; Terry Hertzog, Penn State; Kevin Kozlowski, Ball State; Bertil Marje, Pan American; Houston Martin, Rice; Eric Rebmann, Tennessee; Roberson, North Carolina State; and Grant Waite, Oklahoma.

To be nominated, a player must have an overall grade-point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale, be a junior or senior academically, have played in 75 percent of the college's regularly scheduled competitive rounds and have a stroke average under 78.

Other members of the squad include Matt Ball, Virginia Commonwealth; Fred Benton, Georgia Southern; Jon Christian, Rice; Richard Connelly, Notre Dame; Charles Crawford, Kent State; Peter Dannenbaum, Temple; Donald Edwards, Illinois; Gai, University of Richmond; Gay, North Carolina State; Kevin Giancola, Central Connecticut; Timothy Giger, Northern Illinois; Grissette, North Carolina State; Jeff Hellman, University of the Pacific; Gary Hicks, Iowa State; Hobgood, Campbell University; Jim Knoesel, Missouri; Bill Lundeen, Kentucky; John O'Bryan, Jacksonville; Ken Seibold, Bucknell.

"After I got to first base, I kind of started cheering for Eric," Parker said. "He was three steps behind Kal. I turned into a spectator, too."

But Parker was in the middle of the victory celebration.

"I got beat to death," said Parker, who was mobbed by his teammates. "It was like running off the field after the seventh game of the Series."

One Barrier Left For Rams

By TOM MORRIS

Reflector Sports Writer

Greene Central's baseball team has overcome every obstacle it has faced this season, but one barrier remains between the Rams and the state 2-A title — West Wilkes.

The two teams square off in a three-game series starting Wednesday to decide the state champion. Greene Central boasts a 22-4 mark while West Wilkes comes in with a 21-4 record.

"They are well coached," said Ram coach Jim Fulghum. "They have a lot of experience on the field, a lot of seniors. They really go about things in the right manner."

Greene Central advanced to the finals by defeating Whiteville, 4-3, in the Eastern finals last Thursday while West Wilkes edged Cherryville, 5-4.

Whiteville, which has advanced to the state finals in 1983 and 1985, was a tough test, according to Fulghum.

"We probably faced better hitters in the Whiteville game than we've faced this year," Fulghum said.

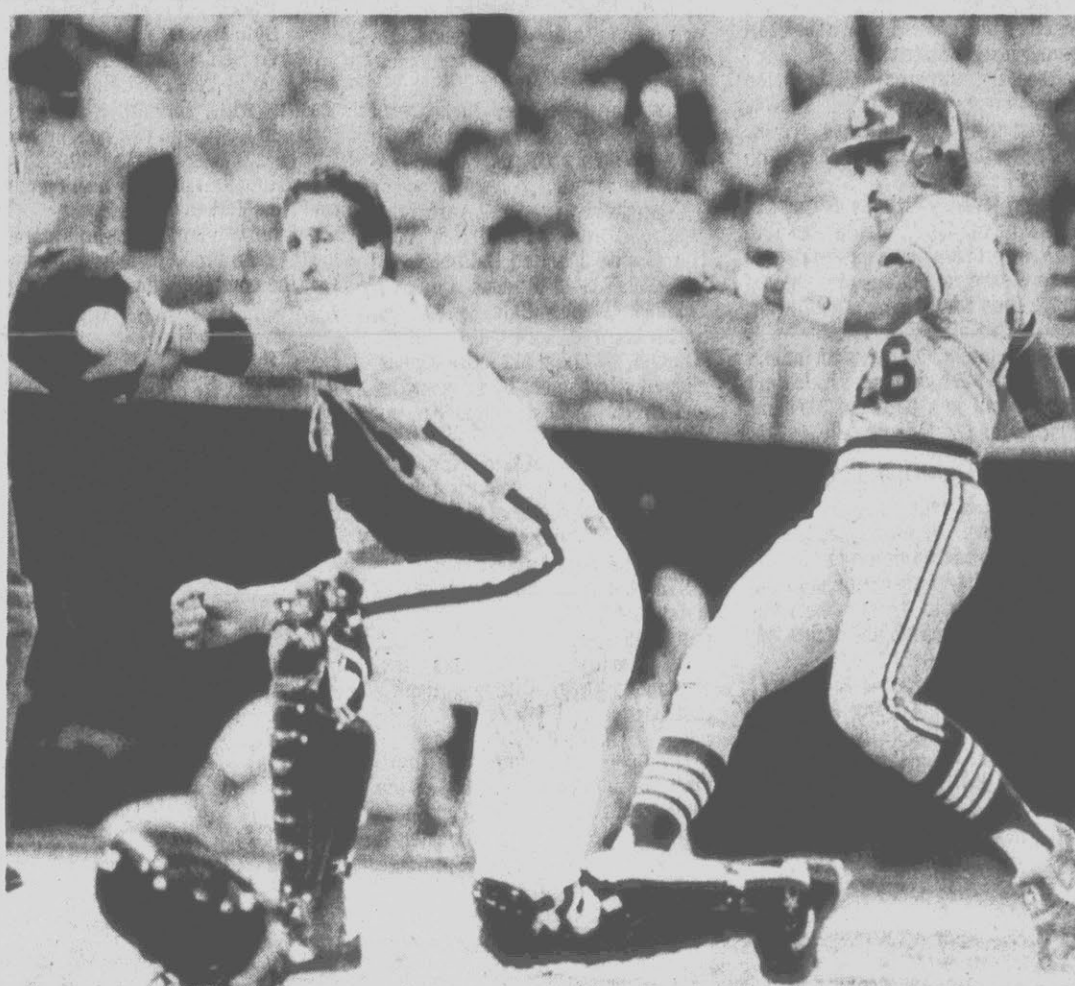

Luckily, the Rams had Anthony Jones on the mound and the junior right-hander responded in a big way.

"The other night, Jones pitched the best game he's pitched," Fulghum said. "Jones just took them (the Whiteville batters) on as a challenge. I'd have to say he's one of the best pitchers in the area. He showed me a lot of determination the other night."

Jones scattered three hits over seven innings and effectively frustrated the Whiteville batters throughout the game. He struck out seven and walked only three, a heady performance for a junior. Fulghum, though, said he's grown to expect such performances.

"He did that last year as a sophomore and he did that last year in (American) Legion ball," he said. "We wouldn't be making these plans if he had not pitched this well."

Jones has an 8-1 mark on the year. He went 5-1 in the Eastern Plains Conference, which the Rams swept with an 11-1 record. During the regu-

Mattingly Denies Injury Came In Wrestling Match

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly, who has two injured discs and will be sidelined for about two weeks, denies the injury occurred during a friendly wrestling match with former teammate Bob Shirley.

Mattingly has spent the past few days in traction at New York University Medical Center and it had been feared he might require surgery and would miss the rest of the season.

"His symptoms are diminishing, and the plan is conservative treatment, not surgical care," team physician John Bonomo said in a written statement issued by the Yankees on Monday.

"The treatment includes rest and mild exercise," Bonomo said. He will be able to start working out in one week and should be able to play in two weeks if he continues to improve at the present rate."

The Yankees are expected to put Mattingly on the 15-day disabled list today.

Mattingly said he injured the back while fielding grounders before last Thursday's game against the Brewers in Milwaukee.

He denied a published report that said he injured himself while roughhousing with Shirley before the game. Shirley was released by the Yankees over the weekend.

"There never was any clubhouse incident," Mattingly said Monday in a statement. "I work hard all year to get in shape and stay healthy so I can contribute as much as possible to the team, and I certainly wouldn't jeopardize all that by fooling around in the clubhouse."

Shirley also denied the alleged incident occurred.

"I didn't know anything about it until (Yankee reliever Tim) Stoddard called me last night," the New York Times in its Tuesday editions quoted Shirley as saying.

New York Manager Lou Piniella agreed.

"He took extra batting practice early that day," Piniella said of Mattingly. "I was there. We talked. He didn't say anything about pain. Then, he went inside (to the clubhouse), came back and took infield (practice). That's when he hurt it. I don't think anything funny happened. I asked some of the players."

Mattingly, who got off to a slow start, is hitting .311 with six home runs and 36 runs batted in.

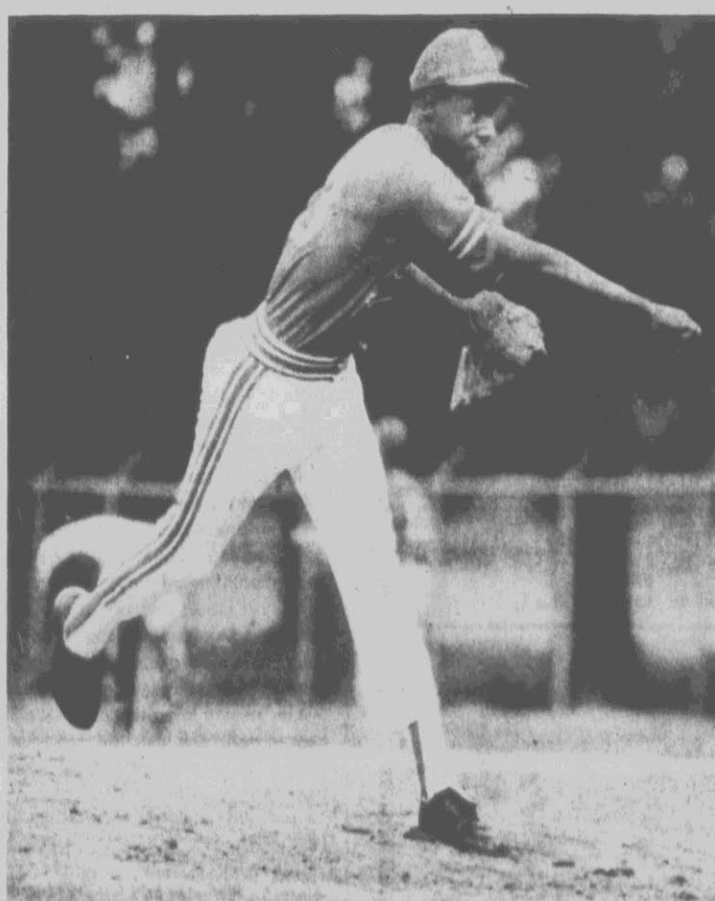

The Yankees also are without star outfielder Rickey Henderson, who is on the 15-day disabled list with a pulled hamstring.

Delivery Man

Greene Central pitcher Anthony Jones delivers a pitch during last Thursday's playoff 4-3 playoff victory over Whiteville. Jones will start the first game of the Rams' three-game state 2-A Championship series against West Wilkes Wednesday. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Barry Ginn at .322 and second baseman T.J. Johnson at .302. Ginn has nine home runs this season to lead the Rams, with three of them coming in the playoffs.

The Rams were picked as state title contenders before the season began and that has put added pressure on the team all season.

"It makes it tough, because you have to fuss and grumble," Fulghum said. "They got tired of me sometimes, (but) it's a good bunch to work with. We have a good working relationship."

After winning their first two playoff games in romps over Wake Forest-Rolesville, 16-8, and Bunn, 11-4, things tightened up for the Rams. They edged Williamston, 7-6, with a strong pitching performance from Britt and then edged Whiteville for the Eastern Title.

"The competition has gotten better," Fulghum said. "When it is a one-game series, you have to be ready when you hit the field."

West Wilkes boasts two strong right-handed pitchers in Ricky Brooks, who Fulghum said is the best athlete on the team, and Scott Waddell. When not pitching, Brooks plays shortstop and Waddell plays second.

Brooks was co-player of the year in the Northwest Conference. Waddell will be playing for Western Carolina next season while Brooks is headed to Lenoir-Rhyne.

Fulghum said he is not sure what type of game to expect but feels both teams will have to make adjustments as the game goes on.

"I hope we are prepared for whatever the occasion," he said. "Game one could be low scoring. After that, the boys will get more relaxed."

Old Guys Show How It's Done

By The Associated Press
Phil Niekro and Don Sutton got together and showed how a baseball game should be pitched.

Recently, there haven't been too many well-pitched games. Take a look at some of Sunday's scores. There were numbers like 18-3, 13-12, 13-9, 13-7 and 10-9.

So, on Monday under a setting sun at Anaheim, Calif., 48-year-old Phil Niekro of Cleveland and 42-year-old Don Sutton of California showed 23,752 fans why they are headed for baseball's Hall of Fame.

Niekro pitched 7 1/3 shutout innings to win the 315th victory of his career and prevail in a battle of 300-game winners as the Indians defeated the Angels 2-0.

Niekro, 4-5, moved into sole possession of 11th place on the all-time victory list ahead of Gaylord Perry, who has 314 victories.

"I had a lot tougher time than Don did," Niekro said. "I was very fortunate. I made some bad pitches and got away with them."

"I worked out of a couple of jams. I don't think Don got in any. He just got the ball up a couple of times. We lucked out. We got two more runs than they did."

Cleveland catcher Chris Bando said Niekro's knuckleball was at its best.

"His knuckleball was really moving," Bando said. "He threw it for strikes and moved it around. He didn't give up any runs, so you know he was throwing well."

Scott Bailes relieved Niekro with one out in eighth and earned his fifth save. He struck out four of the five batters he faced.

Elsewhere in the American League, Toronto routed New York 11-0, Boston defeated Baltimore 6-2, Minnesota beat Kansas City 5-3, Oakland tripped Chicago 9-3 and Seattle blanked Texas 6-0.

Sutton, 2-7 and a 312-game winner, allowed solo homers by Cory Snyder and Brook Jacoby. Sutton has not won since May 5.

"We've got to get him (Niekro) to retire and give a younger man a job," Sutton said. "That old goat and Scott Bailes pitched exceptionally well. I wasn't quite good enough."

"There is no consolation. Maybe in a day or two I can find some, but I can't right now."

On Sunday, the Indians beat Oakland 12-2 to give Steve Carlton his 327th victory.

*The only other time there have been two 300-game winners on the same staff was 1891 when Tim Keefe (344) and Mickey Welch (311) pitched for the New York Giants. But Keefe only appeared in eight games before he was traded.

Blue Jays 11, Yankees 0
George Bell, who had never hit a home run at Yankee Stadium in five seasons with Toronto, started to make up for it with two homers and four runs batted in as the Blue Jays moved into first place by a half game over New York in the AL East.

Bell hit two home runs in a game for the fifth time this season to support the combined three-hit pitching of Dave Stieb and Mark Eichhorn. Bell's first homer was a three-run shot during a seven-run fifth inning. It came off starter Rick Rhoden, 6-4, and gave the Blue Jays a 7-0 lead.

Bell hit his second homer — and 20th of the season — with one out in the ninth to give him 50 RBI for the year.

"The way George (Bell) is going, he's awesome," said Fred McGriff, who had a two-run homer in the fifth inning.

Twins 5, Royals 3
Rookie Gene Larkin hit a pinch triple with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to move Minnesota to within one game of first-place Kansas City in the AL West.

Dan Quisenberry relieved starter Mark Gubicza, 3-7, with the bases loaded and got a force play at home. Larkin then cleared the bases with a shot down the right field line.

"Roy Smalley just told me to wait until Quisenberry gets the ball up in the strike zone because if he keeps it down, he's tough," Larkin said. "I just wanted to be smart and not swing at bad pitches. He threw me one I liked, so I swung at the first pitch."

"With as good a hitting club as they are, you can't give them first base and second base (by walks), especially with guys that can run that fast," Giants Manager Roger Craig said. "We gave it to them. A 6-0 lead and we blew it."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was St. Louis 12, Philadelphia 8; Chicago 4, New York 2; Los Angeles 6, Atlanta 3; Montreal 7, Pittsburgh 2; and San Diego 5, Houston 4.

Cardinals 12, Phillies 8

At 34-20, the Cardinals have the best record in the majors and are off to their best start in 20 years. Speed and power were the keys at Philadelphia, with Vince Coleman stealing four bases and scoring three times, and Jack Clark homering.

Tommy Herr knocked in three runs without getting a hit for St. Louis, which leads the NL East by three games.

More Sports On B-5

Coleman has reached base in 38 straight games and he is perfect in 37 lifetime steal attempts against Philadelphia.

"If I can help it, I'll never let them throw me out," Coleman said.

Phillies pitchers allowed nine walks, and a throwing error by third baseman Rick Schu gave the Cardinals two unearned runs.

Cubs 4, Mets 2

At Chicago, Manny Trillo was the hero, homering on the first pitch he saw in the ninth inning from Doug Sisk. Dave Martinez had singled prior to Trillo's hit.

The Mets had tied it in the ninth on a two-run double by Barry Lyons. But poor baserunning stopped New York from taking the lead.

With Howard Johnson on third and Lyons on second with one out, Bill Almon bunted, but the runners held as Almon was thrown out at first base. Lyons then was picked off second by catcher Jody Davis during an intentional walk to Mookie Wilson.

"Somewhere down the road I can recall a similar play," Lyons said. "But it never happened to me. I've been picked off before, but never in such a crucial situation or in such an embarrassing way."

Dodgers 6, Braves 3

It was the Orel Hershiser show in Atlanta. The Dodgers pitcher allowed three hits in 6 1-3 innings, singled in a run in the third inning, stole second and scored, and beat out a bases-loaded bunt single on a 2-2 count to drive in another run with two outs in the sixth.

It was the 50th career victory for Hershiser, 6-6, now in his fourth full season in the major leagues.

"If you know how well I hit, you'd find," he said. "I have more confidence in my bunting than my hitting. I'm not going to go around claiming I can hit big league pitching."

The bad news for Los Angeles came in the seventh inning when shortstop Mariano Duncan was taken from the field on a stretcher with an apparent lower back injury. It happened as he fell on his back trying to avoid Gerald Perry, who was sliding into second attempting to break up a double play.

Andre Thomas hit a two-run homer in the ninth for Atlanta.

Expos 7, Pirates 2

At Montreal, Neal Heaton won his fifth straight game with a seven-hitter and helped himself with pair of singles and two RBI.

Heaton, 8-2, was acquired from Minnesota for relief ace Jeff Reardon in a much-criticized move during the winter. But Heaton steadily has moved from Montreal's No. 3 starter to the stopper.

"He comes in and gives us a big game when we need it," Manager Buck Rodgers said.

"I made a couple of mistakes, but I got away with them," Heaton said. "But I feel I can do that, because the way the guys play behind me makes me think I'm going to win every time I go out."

Hubie Brooks and Tim Wallach homered in support of Heaton.

Padres 5, Astros 4

The visiting Padres rallied from a 4-1 hole with a four-run eighth. Luis Salazar, who homered in the second inning, got the game-winning single.

Randy Ready and Shane Mack opened the eighth with singles and both scored on a grounder by Carmelo Martinez that shortstop Carle Reynolds threw past first base. Benito Santiago doubled, scoring pinch-runner James Steels, and Santiago stole third and scored on Salazar's single to right field.

National Fishing Week ended a couple of days ago. But for millions of happy anglers, the season has just begun. Approximately 60 million Americans will have "gone fishin'" by the time the summer is over. Writings from as far back as 200 A.D. comment on the use of artificial lures by anglers in the know. A book written in 1496 mentions twelve different kinds of imitation flies. The lures were made with wire, wax, feathers, fur, silk or thread.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the author of "The Compleat Angler," written in 1653?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The eaves are the projecting overhang at the edge of a roof.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY June 10

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Continue looking into the true facts of any situation that confronts you. Do something constructive with your situation and think about where you can expand.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You want to make some big changes around you, but sleep on it before you take any action.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Carry through with anything you have agreed to do for others. Plan some time for your mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You have a partner whose ideas and opinions are better than yours, so be more supportive of this person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You have much to do, so stop procrastinating. Get together with co-workers for some brainstorming.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be careful before you get into some new form of recreation. Put some effort into some special talent you possess.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be careful you do not disturb a family tie in some way. Don't have guests into your home tonight.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Go over any correspondence or reports for possible errors before you send them out.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): See how you can improve your monetary status. Don't let any money run through your fingers.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Don't be impulsive in your eagerness to gain a personal aim. Make sure you see loyal friends.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You are not certain how to handle a private matter but are anxious for action, so use wisdom.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): See as many friends as you can, but don't bother those who are terribly busy at work.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Handle your career affairs wisely. Some credit matter should be handled very carefully.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will always want to be talking or acting and should be taught early to study a subject before making any comments. The educational curriculum should include foreign languages since your progeny will love to travel and make changes.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Opening lead: Two of ♣

We don't like an opening lead of a singleton unless we have good reason to suspect that partner has the ace in the suit or a quick entry. Neither of these conditions applied here, but there is no denying that West's attack presented declarer with a very difficult problem.

East's preempt served only to speed up the auction. We like South's decision to make a takeout double—his hand could play in any one of three suits. North wasted no time in committing the hand to slam once he discovered in which suit he wanted to play.

Had West unimaginatively led a heart, declarer would surely have made the slam. The sure-trick line is to draw trumps and eliminate the red suits from both hands. Then declarer takes a club finesse. East wins, but he must either return a club into declarer's major tenace or else yield a ruff-sluff.

With such a weak hand opposite a partner who had preempted, West's club lead was a desperate stroke. It was obvious to declarer that that had to be a singleton, so he rose with the ace. Although it now appeared that South was saddled with two unavoidable club losers, he unearthed a line that allowed him to scramble home.

After drawing two rounds of trumps, declarer cashed the ace-king of hearts and ruffed a heart. The distribution declarer was seeking now became a reality, because East surely held one spade, seven hearts and three clubs. Therefore, he had only two diamonds. Declarer cashed the ace and king of that suit, discarding a club from dummy, then continued with a third round. West was given a gift of that trick as declarer sluffed another club from the table.

Down to nothing but diamonds, West was forced to concede a ruff-sluff to declarer. On the diamond return the board's last club vanished as declarer ruffed in hand, and the table's three trumps took the last three tricks.

Schultz, describing himself as "very honored, very humbled," noted he will simply be another member of the staff until Byers officially steps down, no later than Schultz has been a highly paid management consultant for business and industry and in his younger days coached baseball and basketball at Iowa. He won the NCAA job over three other finalists, Indiana President John Ryan, former NCAA President Jack Davis and Southeastern Conference Commissioner Harvey Schiller.

A year before Byers became executive director, Schultz graduated from Central College in Pella, Iowa, where he earned all-conference honors in football, basketball and baseball. Before going to Virginia in 1981, he was director of athletics at Cornell. He spent 1960-74 at the University of Iowa in a variety of capacities, including assistant to the president as well as his coaching duties. In addition, he played baseball in the St. Louis Cardinals minor-league system in 1953-56.

The commission will make several recommendations to the NCHSAA membership to be voted upon at regional meetings in September. One of the proposals to be voted upon would require a student-athlete to pass four courses for the first semester and five courses for the academic year; or pass five courses for the first semester and five courses for the academic year.

"Walter has installed a management style at the NCAA which is very close to my heart," Schultz said.

A Reflector Review

'Untouchables' Gory At Times But Overall Is Good Cop Story

Robert DeNiro should probably win an Oscar everytime he makes a movie.

As Al Capone in Brian DePalma's movie version of "The Untouchables," now playing at The Buccaneer, DeNiro is excellent: chilling, humorous, witty, sophisticated and deadly, everything Al Capone was and should be in a film version of his life.

The movie opens with great promise. From the first camera shot, made from the ceiling, looking down on Capone as he gets a shave, the audience is hooked by the approach that DePalma uses so well. That shot, and the rest of the movie, attacks your visual senses with a fury.

The untouchables are a group of four police-Treasury agents sworn to put Capone away — any way they can. Led by Elliot Ness (Kevin Costner), the group goes after Capone the only way they can, with a vengeance.

Until that assignment, Ness is a by-the-book Treasury agent with pure morals and more than a little naivete when it comes to dealing with killers. Costner gives the role a full scope of characterizations. The change in Ness from crystal-pure crusader to street-smart (and sometimes a little ruthless) cop is believable. Costner shines in the role of Ness, and as a disillusioned man he carries the inner-struggle between good and evil to the audience with great intensity.

Of course, every young cop has to have a hardened veteran of the street as a mentor. In this case it's Malone, played convincingly by Sean Connery. Malone is tough, and he does what it takes to get the job done, but Connery adds to the role a sense of fear and tenderness that makes Malone more than just a two-dimensional character.

The action in the film moves quickly. As always, DePalma builds scenes of tremendous tension throughout the film using interesting and rapidly changing camera angles.

DePalma, though, also has a reputation for occasional hokeyness in his films, and this one is no exception. It's full of audience hooks, fake camera shots and cliches, but the audience seemed to enjoy it. For the most part, the old cliches work, and in a sense add something to a movie which is, after all, a remake of an old television show. DePalma stays true to the "Untouchable" style, and the movie is better for it.

There is also an element of black humor throughout the film that helps keep the pacing even and prevents the movie from getting bogged down in violence and depression.

Ness has come to Chicago in 1930 as an outsider. He has sworn to get Capone and stop the violence on the street by any legal way possible, but soon discovers that there is no totally legal way to get it done: he declares war. Enlisting the aid of Malone and two other men, Ness goes after Capone where it hurts, in the pocket book. He raids Capone's liquor supplies and stops truckloads of whiskey coming in from Canada.

Naturally, Capone doesn't think much of this, so he comes back at Ness with everything he's got, namely a ruthless killer who wears lipstick and mascara and is colder than a dead fish. The ensuing battles get people on both sides killed, and create a transformation in Ness from innocence to experience that's interesting to watch.

This movie is bloody and contains some rather graphic violence. Then again, the 1930s were bloody years. This movie is not for children, or for people with a dislike for blood and violence.

However, if you like to see a good cop story, and some really fine acting, then don't miss "The Untouchables."

Sampson Funeral Attracts Hundreds

OKMULGEE, Okla. (AP) — Hundreds of Indians sang funeral dirges in the Creek language for actor Will Sampson, who won an Oscar nomination for his portrayal of a towering, silent mental patient in "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest."

"He made us proud that we are who we are," the Rev. Jimmy Anderson said Monday at First Baptist Church in the eastern Oklahoma town where the actor grew up.

Sampson, a member of the Muscogee tribe, died Wednesday in a Houston hospital six weeks after undergoing a heart-lung transplant. He was 53.

Sermons were delivered in English and Creek, and mourners sang two traditional songs in the rhythmic Indian language. The Rev. Harley Bar-noski delivered the eulogy in Creek, which is no longer spoken routinely by Muscogees.

An estimated 750 mourners, some in dark suits and others wearing traditional ribbon shirts or other Indian garb, filled the building and grounds.

Sampson's favorite horse was led riderless at the head of the funeral procession.

A blanket in bands of yellow, red, blue and purple draped the coffin. A folded American flag, symbolizing Sampson's Naval service, lay on his chest. Actor Max Gail, best known as a detective on television's "Barney Miller," remembered his longtime friend as "a real unusual human being."

"He was a great artist. He had a great sense of humor," said Gail, who knew Sampson through their work in Indian affairs.

Sampson became an accomplished rodeo rider and a locally prominent artist before entering films.

The 6-foot-7 actor's first and best-known role was as Jack Nicholson's silent friend in "Cuckoo's Nest," the Academy Award-winning movie based on Ken Kesey's acclaimed novel.

Randy Travis, Statlers Top Country Music Lists

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Catfish cook-turned-singer Randy Travis captured four awards, and the Statler Brothers won three, including entertainer of the year, at the fan-voted Music City News country awards show.

Travis, a million-selling singer after less than two years as a recording artist, was honored as male vocalist of the year during Monday night's syndicated television awards program.

Travis, 27, also won album of year for "Storms of Life," was named the "Star of Tomorrow" and his "On the Other Hand" was chosen single record of the year.

"I still am overwhelmed that in just over a year all these things have happened," he said afterward at the Grand Ole Opry House.

"Not everything I do is great," he said. "My biggest asset is the good people around me."

The Statlers, a veteran quartet discovered in 1963 by country king Johnny Cash, shared the spotlight at the awards show they have dominated for a decade.

Their other awards were for group of the year and country music television special of the year for "The Statlers' Christmas Present."

Their honor as best entertainer was their third straight. They have been voted No. 1 vocal group every year since 1972, except 1983, when Alabama won the honor.

The Statlers now have won 36 of these awards, which were first pre-

Gillespie Heads Newport Festival

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Dizzy Gillespie is the grand master among a lineup of artists scheduled for the Newport JVC Jazz Festival in August.

Younger artists performing at the Aug. 15-16 event will include Wynton and Branford Marsalis, with each brother leading his own group, Dick Upson, a spokesman for the Rhode Island State Council on the Arts, told a news conference Monday.

The straight-ahead jazz style of Gillespie and the Marsalis brothers harkens back to the music's classical forms, but pop-jazz and jazz-rock fusion also will be in the lineup, Upson said.

Gillespie will bring an 18-piece big band to Newport as part of a year-long series of appearances he is making to celebrate his 70th birthday, on Oct. 21.

sented in 1967. Their big hit during the past year was "Count on Me."

"We have been here before and it always gets sweeter and sweeter," said Don Reid, a member of the group.

Travis, a catfish cook until 1½ years ago, sold 1 million copies of his "Storms of Life." His single, "Forever and Ever, Amen," is currently No. 1 on the country music charts.

"This is a big night for me," he said. "I hope I'm around 50 years from now, picking and singing."

Reba McEntire was named top female vocalist for the third straight year and her "Whoever's in New England" was voted top country music video.

"I've always said that fans mean friends, and fans are dear friends to me," she said.

George Jones, a 30-year veteran, was chosen for the "Living Legend" award.

Other winners were the Judds, duet of the year; Ray Stevens, comedian of the year; the "Hee Haw" Gospel Quartet, gospel act of the year; and "Nashville Now," top country music television series.

Cash, Marie Osmond and Hank Williams Jr. were hosts for the show.
