Korean President Yields To Reformers

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Bowing to the will of the people, President Chun Doo-hwan today announced his agreement to opposition demands for direct presidential elections and sweeping democratic reform.
The changes are intended to end decades of authoritarian government.
Chun, looking tired and grim, made the announcement on national television three weeks after the opposition launched an anti-government campaign that triggered huge demonstrations for 18 straight days.
"Because social stability and national harmony were being undermined by the recent continuing demonstrations and strife... I believe that you, my fellow countrymen, not only experienced serious inconvenience and anxiety but were also worried that catastrophe might befall the nation," Chun said.

The president and former army general, who said he had "spent many sleepless nights," announced he would accept demands for direct presidential elections, electoral reform, press freedom, release of political prisoners, curbing of central government power and other measures.
"Now is a crucial moment in the destiny of the nation," he said.

Chun repeated his pledge to step down when his seven-year term expires Feb. 25 and transfer power to a president elected by direct popular vote. The electoral college system to be scrapped had virtually guaranteed victory for the governing party.
He promised an extensive amnesty for political prisoners, but did not mention specifically Kim Dae-jung, a veteran dissident under a suspended 20-year prison sentence from a 1980 sedition conviction that stripped him of his civil rights and barred him from politics.
Roh Tae-woo, the head of the governing party, on Monday cited Kim Dae-jung's case as one for amnesty.

Koreans greeted Chun's announcement with happiness, excitedly discussing the planned changes. Groups of people gathered in shops, tea houses and other places to hear the speech on televisions and radios. Extra editions of newspapers were published.
"It's sure to be such a change that the nation is at the threshold of realizing a genuine democracy," said Lee Jung-soon, a Seoul resident after hearing the speech.
Government party officials indicated today they wanted to revise the constitution by August to clear the way for November elections. They said the revisions would probably be put to the nation in an October referendum.
Chun's concessions amounted to an agreement to dismantle the tough political controls his government has exerted since he took power with military backing in 1980. He said work already had begun on releasing political prisoners and other measures.

"No matter how good a system may be, it is of no use if the people do not want it," Chun said. "I believe that the intrinsic function of politics is to carry out the public will."
Opposition leaders hailed the speech and said the government had acknowledged that the Korean people wanted democracy and an end to the authoritarian regimes that have dominated the nation since its founding in 1948.
Kim Young-sam, leader of the main opposition Reunification Democratic Party, said, "The government and the ruling party have set forth the measures for democratization, but they resulted from the persistent struggles by the people, students, religious people, intellectuals and workers."
The opposition launched a massive drive June 10 to unseat the government and force democratic elections. Hundreds of thousands of people from every segment of society poured into the streets and riot police were unable to contain the huge demonstrations, which lasted through Saturday.

Cardinal Stephen Kim, head of the Roman Catholic Church in South Korea, which has been a major proponent of reform, said today: "I hope that from now on, politicians of the ruling and opposition camps, transcending partisan interests, would make concessions and work for the nation together."
Roh, head of the governing Democratic Justice Party who had been handpicked by Chun to succeed him as president, stunned the nation Monday by demanding the president submit to opposition demands. Roh, another former general, said he would resign if Chun did not agree.
Chun said the discord that has long dominated Korean politics must give way to dialogue and compromise.
"The legacy of mistrust, antago-

Secrets Sellers Banned By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress moved to punish foreign companies for selling secret technology to help Soviet submarines evade detection, and reaction from a Japanese company involved was swift with today's resignations of its two top officers.
The Senate voted Tuesday night to ban Toshiba and Kongsberg Vaapenfabrikk from selling products in the United States for at least two years.
"The issue is crime based on greed," said Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., as the Senate voted 92-5 for the import ban.
Support for similar legislation is growing in the House, despite Reagan administration appeals not to retaliate against Toshiba, a giant Japanese electronics company, and Kongsberg, Norway's state-owned arms manufacturer.

Toshiba President Sugiichiro Watari and Chairman Shoichi Saba announced their resignations at a hastily called news conference today in Tokyo only hours after the Senate vote.
Akira Iwahashi, president of Toshiba Machine, the subsidiary involved in the technology sales, said today the divisions that export to communist countries would be eliminated for an unspecified period. Iwahashi also apologized for the

Charged

Greenville police have arrested Joni Sams White, 30, of Greenville on 28 counts of embezzlement in connection with the theft of $17,550 from Home Federal Savings & Loan, where she worked.
Detective Sgt. J.M. Simonowich said Ms. White was arrested by Detective S.B. Pass following an investigation of the incidents, which allegedly occurred between September 1986 and June 12.
According to Simonowich, Ms. White made withdrawals from customer accounts ranging from $250 to $2,250.

Plane Crashes At Bragg

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A C-130 cargo plane crashed and burned on a runway at Fort Bragg this morning during a training exercise, Col. Jim Jannett, an Air Force spokesman at the Pentagon, said today.
Jannett said he did not know if the plane was carrying troops, but it did have a crew on board. He said the plane was still burning at 11 a.m., nearly an hour after it crashed.
WRAL-TV, which had a photographer on the scene, reported that the plane was dropping a Sheridan tank during an ROTC exercise when it crashed.
An unidentified eyewitness who called The Fayetteville Observer said the plane was using a technique in which a parachute pulls a tank or other vehicle out the cargo door just a few feet above the ground.

The witness said the plane's right wing apparently dipped, hitting the ground and causing the plane to crash near a grandstand set up for spectators at the Sicily Drop Zone in Cumberland County.

Record

East Carolina University has a record enrollment of 3,960 students registered for the second session of summer school, Registrar J. Gilbert Moore announced today.
ECU's second summer session began June 25 and will continue through July 30. Enrollment is up 207 students over last year's.
Moore said 3,034 undergraduates and 926 graduate students were registered for the six-week session. The total includes 1,582 men and 2,378 women.

Andrews, Crisp, Cain Are Named To Elections Board

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer
The N.C. Board of Elections, following the recommendations of the State Republican Party chairman, has appointed Andy Andrews and Nelson Crisp to the Pitt County Board of Elections.
Myra Cain, a Democrat, also was reappointed to the board.
Mrs. Crisp, a Greenville lawyer, was reappointed to the county board Tuesday. Andrews, an assistant engineer at TRW Inc., was named to replace Alfred Brinson on the panel.
The executive committee of the Pitt County Republican Party had submitted a list in order of preference recommending Paul H. Raspberry, Andy Andrews and Martin Kilcoyne, according to Carlton Smith, chairman of the Pitt GOP.
Meanwhile, state GOP Chairman Jack Hawke presented a list to the five-member state board recommending Andrews, Mrs. Crisp and Raspberry, according to a spokesman at the Republican Party headquarters in Raleigh.
Smith said the party's executive committee in Pitt County and the state party chairman have the authority to submit recommendations to the N.C. Board of Elections.

Members of the Pitt County Board of Elections will be busy during their two-year terms, according to Mrs. Crisp, who also served on the board during the administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser Jr.
"We are now in the throes of trying to get the whole county and city remapped for the new districts coming about," she said. "We're also working on voting equipment. That is a priority. Our main effort is to make elections in Pitt County run smoothly."

"It's very time consuming, and it requires a lot of effort as well as expertise. You need a good understanding of election laws and a good ability to work with people and get people to work for you. It is a very satisfying experience."
Mrs. Cain, the only Democrat appointed to the board, said she is looking forward to her fifth term.
"I'm always interested in working with the election process, and I appreciate the confidence that the State Board of Elections has expressed by reappointing me," said Mrs. Cain, an assistant to the vice chancellor for academic affairs at East Carolina University.

Costly Campout

North Carolina's Highway Patrol is spending $7,000 a day for services connected with the gathering of the Rainbow Family near Robbinsville, and it will cost the U.S. Forest Service $118,000 by the end of the week.
A word and pictorial preview of the week-long gathering is on A-8 and A-9.

Martin Names Two To ECU Board

Craig Souza of Raleigh and Howard Rooks of Alexandria, Va. — both East Carolina University graduates — have been appointed to four-year terms on the school's board of trustees by Gov. Jim Martin.
Souza was named to replace James Dixon of Greensboro, while Rooks will replace Louis Singleton of Greenville.
Souza, who received a bachelor of arts degree from ECU in 1971 is a former deputy secretary of the Department of Human Resources and is now executive vice president of the N.C. Health Care Facility Agency. He is a member of the board of advisers of the school of public health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Rooks, a native of Turkey, N.C., received a bachelor of science degree from ECU in 1955 and attended graduate school at the University of Maryland. He is founder and president of Mount Vernon Realty and a partner in Gilliam-Rooks Motors.

Mount Vernon Realty — one of the 10 largest privately held real estate enterprises in the nation — operates 56 offices in Maryland, Virginia, Florida and West Germany and has a staff of 3,000 sales associates, with annual sales of over $2 billion.
A member of the board of directors of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, Rooks is a member of the ECU business school's advisory council and active in the school's alumni association.

Earlier this month, the UNC Board of Governors named Wayne Peterson of Tarboro and Vincent Lowe Jr. of Wilson to four-year trustee terms, replacing William Roberson III of Washington and Samuel Wornom III of Sanford.

In The Area

Tuesday Thefts

Investigators said six thefts were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer E.E. Laughinghouse said a wallet was taken from the city's community building at the intersection of Fourth and Greene streets in an incident reported at 11:32 a.m.

Officer R.W. Benton said $1,700 worth of material, including 40 square yards of vinyl, 25 square yards of carpet and seven boxes of tile, was taken from Totally Covered, 200 W. Greenville Blvd., in a theft reported at 12:49 p.m.

Officer J.M. Jones said a bicycle was taken from a garage at 1802 Drewery Lane in an incident reported at 2:36 p.m., while Officer J.K. McCarthy said a video cassette recorder was taken from 1306A E. 14th St. in a break-in reported at 4:05 p.m. McCarthy said two jeep doors were taken — and later recovered — from Bob Barbour BMW, 3300 S. Memorial Drive, in an incident reported at 11:12 p.m.

According to Officer J.E. Woolard, a bicycle was taken from a porch at 500 Winstead Road in an incident reported at 5 p.m..

the mayor of Jacksonville and Onslow County commissioners Thursday.

Jim Solomon, who will represent the chapter during the 2 p.m. presentation, said the decals will be displayed on all city and county vehicles in Onslow County as a "constant reminder to the public of the plight of our men unaccounted for in Southeast Asia." He said it is believed that there are still more than 2,400 POWs and MIAs in Southeast Asia.

Honor List Additions

The office of the registrar at East Carolina University has announced additions to the spring semester honors list announced previously.

The following names of honor students were not available at the time of the previous release. Hillary Sharon Daniel of Greenville has been added to the dean's list, while John L. Howard Jr. and Samuel Stacy Pugh of Greenville and Selma Jean Smith of Robersonville have been named to the honor roll.

TRUCK OVERTURNS — An accident on N.C. 11 south of Winterville caused about $3,500 damage Tuesday night. According to Trooper J.R. Letchworth, a truck driven by Grace Gibbs Ball of Route 1, Ayden, was headed south on N.C. 11 when it made a left turn from the right lane and collided with a southbound vehicle in the left lane driven by Edith Faye Pittman of Grifton. Letchworth said the Ball truck overturned, causing minor injuries to Ms. Ball and a passenger, Charles Ball. Ms. Pittman also received minor injuries. Letchworth said Ms. Ball was charged with reckless driving and Charles Ball was charged with not wearing a seat belt. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Co-Op Asks New Trial Over Books

WILMINGTON (AP) — A farmer who won a suit to have the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. open its books to him, says the farmer-owned co-op is trying to stall by asking for a new trial.

Keith and Horace Tart, farmers from Fuquay-Varina, filed suit last year against Stabilization. Wake County Superior Court Judge B. Craig Ellis ruled June 10 that the farmers had a right to inspect the association's records.

The judge gave Stabilization 60 days to make the records available.

Rather than directly appealing Ellis' decision, the co-op has filed a motion for a new trial or to make additional findings of fact or to make amendments to the judge's decision.

Keith said Tuesday that Stabilization is trying to "buy more time."

The farmers said they tried for about four years to inspect Stabilization's records to assess rumors of mismanagement. The farmers were "stonewalled all the way" by the co-op's directors, Tart has said.

Keith said Fred Bond, general manager, secretary and treasurer of the co-op is "trying to keep the minutes and records of Stabilization a secret."

Asking for a new trial "is somewhat a figure of speech as I understand it," Bond said. He said the motion asks "for a new trial or, alternatively, to amend and make additional findings of fact or to alter or amend the judgment."

Robbery Probed

Police were searching this morning for a man who robbed the Holiday Inn on Memorial Drive at gunpoint about 5:30 a.m.

Sgt. H.L. Conner said a man, with a bandana tied around his face and armed with a pistol, took about $200 from a clerk at the motel, then fled on foot.

He said N.C. Prison Department bloodhounds were still trying to track the robber about 8 a.m.

Program At Trinity

Trinity Free Will Baptist Church, located on the corner of U.S. 264 bypass and Golden Road, will present "America, You're Too Young to Die!" on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Employee Luncheon

Transportation and maintenance employees of the Pitt County schools will be honored Thursday at a luncheon in the A.G. Cox School cafeteria. The annual event will begin at 1 p.m.

The 1986-1987 transportation and maintenance employees of the year will be named.

Road Opening

RALEIGH (AP) — Almost eight miles of Interstate highway between Chapel Hill and Research Triangle Park was scheduled to open to motorists today, officials said.

Drivers may begin using the new portion of Interstate 40 after an afternoon ribbon-cutting ceremony, a spokesman for the N.C. Department of Transportation said.

The segment will connect with 24 miles of the interstate between N.C. 55 at Research Triangle Park and the Raleigh Beltline. An 11.9-mile section under construction between U.S. 15-501 at Chapel Hill and I-85 in Hillsborough is scheduled for completion in November 1988 while a four-mile section from Raleigh's Beltline to U.S. 70 east of Garner should be finished by November.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending June 26.

House

THE 1988 BUDGET — By a vote of 215 for and 201 against, the House gave its final approval to the Congressional Budget Resolution (H Con Res 93) setting spending, revenue and deficit goals for fiscal 1988.

The Senate followed suit (below) and the measure took effect. While President Reagan's approval of the fiscal blueprint was not required, he has veto authority over the individual bills Congress must pass to put its plan into operation.

Expressing priorities of Democrats who control both houses, the $1.01 trillion budget sets military spending at the same $289 billion level of the current fiscal year and domestic spending at $41 billion above this year's figure, and projects a $133.9 billion deficit for fiscal 1988.

Defense spending would rise by $7 billion if Reagan accepts the Democrats' call for $19.3 billion in new taxes. But the president vows to veto any tax hike sent to him by Congress.

Supporter Butler Derrick, D-S.C., said, "We were elected to govern, and let us govern. Go ahead and vote for it."

Opponent Denny Smith, R-Ore., said, "This budget is a sham document. The numbers are 'cooked' and everyone here knows it."

Members voting yes favored the fiscal 1988 budget blueprint.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Martin Lancaster, D-3; David Price, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8, and James Clarke, D-11.

Those voting no were Howard Coble, R-6; Alex McMillan, R-9, and Cass Ballenger, R-10.

SPENDING CUT — The House rejected, 143 for and 276 against, an amendment inflicting an across-the-board cut of 1.7 percent, or about $270 million, in a bill (HR 2700) appropriating $16.1 billion for water and energy projects in fiscal 1988.

This was the first of the 13 major appropriations bills to reach the House floor this year. The bill (HR 2700) later was sent to the Senate.

In part it funds Energy Department nuclear programs, upwards of 800 individual "pork barrel" projects, and the budgets of agencies such as the Tennessee Valley Authority, Bureau of Reclamation, Appalachian Regional Commission and Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Supporter of the cut Charles Stenholm, D-Tex., said members who "are really and truly concerned about deficit spending" should vote for the amendment.

Opponent Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the amendment "does a serious disservice" to members of the Appropriations Committee who developed the bill.

Members voting yes wanted to cut the bill by 1.7 percent.

Those voting no were Jones, Lancaster, Price, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

ACROSS-THE-BOARD CUT — By a vote of 189 for and 225 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut discretionary spending in the $9.6 billion fiscal 1988 Interior Department appropriations bill by 3.2 percent across the board.

The bill (HR 2712) was headed for final passage and debate in the Senate.

Members voting yes supported the spending cut.

Senate

BUDGET RESOLUTION — By a vote of 53 for and 46 against, the Senate gave final Capitol Hill approval to a fiscal 1988 Congressional Budget Resolution (H Con Res 93) that projects spending of $1.06 trillion, revenue of $921.6 billion and a deficit of $133.9 billion.

Referring to the measure's proposed $19.3 billion in new taxes, Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said, "A great nation must be willing to pay some price if it wants to remain a great nation."

Opponent Robert Dole, R-Kans., said the budget calls for "higher taxes and more domestic spending and radical cuts in defense."

Senators voting yes supported the budget resolution.

North Carolina Sen. Terry Sanford, D, voted yes. Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted no.

A REAGAN VICTORY — The Senate voted, 53 for and 45 against, to shelve its attempt to write the Federal Communications Commission's "fairness doctrine" into law.

With this vote the Senate conceded it lacks the two-thirds majority needed to override President Reagan's recent veto of a bill (S 742) to codify the doctrine. The vote referred the issue to committee.

The FCC plans to phase out the fairness doctrine, which requires broadcasters to air public affairs programs and a diversity of viewpoints on controversial issues.

Senators voting yes were mostly Democrats wanting to avert a showdown with Reagan over the veto.

Sen. Sanford voted yes and Sen. Helms voted no.

TRADE BILL — By a vote of 69 for and 27 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment making it easier for American companies to seek redress against foreign products allegedly "dumped," or sold at less than the cost of production, on the U.S. market.

Relief from dumping, customs fraud and unfair subsidies could have been sought in federal court under this amendment to omnibus trade legislation (S 1420) that remained in debate.

In part this would have substituted the U.S. judiciary for the executive branch's International Trade Commission as the primary arbiter of certain trade complaints.

Robert Packwood, R-Ore., who voted to table the amendment, said, "The business community in the United States is almost united in its opposition" to the amendment.

Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said that

Landscaping

RALEIGH (AP) — A plan to spruce up the Capitol grounds will now head to the General Assembly after the N.C. Capital Planning Commission gave unanimous approval Tuesday to a $1.4 million landscaping plan that calls for new walkways, flowers and a 2-foot high berm around the building.

The berm would surround the Capitol and be covered with English ivy, instead of an ornate cast-iron fence, which had been proposed earlier. The cast-iron fence had been considered by the N.C. Historical Commission in an effort to again fence the Capitol. A similar fence was erected in 1848 to keep away livestock.

No timetable for completion of the plan was set if approved by the Legislature.

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

CLOWN ALLEY FEEDBACK

Chet Emerson of Greenville says he is delighted to have seen the item on Clown Alley in the Monday Hotline column. He was a member of Clown Alley when it operated in Greenville years ago and is eager to get it started once again. He invites contact from anyone who would like to take part or learn more about the organization and how it assists people in learning and pursuing the art of clowning. He is director of the Boys Club of Pitt County, 355-2345.

If there is good response, he said the organizational meeting of a renewed Clown Alley for this area will be held in the fall at the Boys Club, 502 W. Arlington Blvd.

Jordan Gives Waldheim Official 21-Gun Salute

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan gave Austrian President Kurt Waldheim a 21-gun salute today when he arrived on his second official visit abroad after more than a year of denying allegations he helped deport Jews to Nazi death camps.

Waldheim, a former United Nations secretary-general, was expected to discuss Middle East peace efforts and Austrian assistance to Jordan during four days of talks with King Hussein and officials in the Arab kingdom.

Waldheim's private plane flew into Amman's military air base in the afternoon amid strict security measures.

King Hussein, Queen Noor, Prime Minister Zaid Rifai and military commanders greeted the Austrian president, who was accompanied by his wife and Foreign Minister Alois Mock. Waldheim reviewed royal guards of honor.

Despite criticism from Israel and Jewish groups around the world, Waldheim had an audience with Pope John Paul II at the Vatican last week in his first state visit since becoming president a year ago. He also has received invitations from Libya, Iran and other countries.

Jordanian newspapers praised Waldheim for what they called a balanced approach to the Arab-

Israeli conflict during his tenure at the United Nations from 1972 to 1982.

A leading Arabic-language daily, Al-Rai, referring to allegations about Waldheim's World War II service in the German army, said he was "a victim of Zionist terrorism and racism."

Waldheim has denied allegations that he was involved in the deportation of Greek Jews and Yugoslav partisans to death camps during World War II.

The U.S. Justice Department has placed him on a list of undesirable aliens banned from the country.

The only visible protest in Jordan because of Waldheim's visit came from Nazi hunter Beate Klarsfeld, who today took documents allegedly implicating Waldheim to the royal palace.

"We were served tea. I explained to them I'm here to protest," she said.

Mrs. Klarsfeld said a military officer took the documents and promised they would be given to the king.

Waldheim recently told Jordanian newspaper editors in Vienna that he hopes his neutral European country can contribute to an Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

Paper Says New York Police Unit Spying On Black Leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — Black leaders are being tape-recorded, photographed, and videotaped by a police Intelligence Division unit originally set up to monitor black radicals, New York Newsday reported today.

Newsday reported that several unidentified intelligence sources said the "black desk" unit of 17 officers was originally established in 1985 to monitor black radicals but was expanded after Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward directed the department to gather more information on the black community.

Ward, who is black, on Monday ordered the Intelligence Division to stop a seven-week old monitoring of the city's only black-oriented talk radio station, WLIB, and asked for a panel review to determine if any law or police guidelines had been violated.

Ward ordered an end to the monitoring because "it was being perceived by certain persons in the black community as overseeing their actions and a chilling of free speech," said department spokesman Capt. Michael Julian.

In the latest development, Newsday reported that the "black desk" unit uses a surveillance van and several unmarked vehicles to monitor public gatherings, demonstrations and community meetings of blacks, where young black undercover officers mingle with the crowd and record activities.

The unit has compiled files on about 200 black leaders, Newsday reported.

Police officials confirmed the unit's existence but said it was half the size reported by the sources, and refused to comment publicly on the operation, Newsday reported.

A spokesman for Mayor Edward I. Koch also refused to comment, Newsday said.

Black leaders were not so silent. "Two resignations should hit the floor tomorrow, Koch's and Ward's," said activist attorney C. Vernon Mason.

"I don't like the idea of police determining what is normal or responsible conduct," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., from Washington. "Koch and Ward cannot and should not get away with saying 'I did not know what was going on.'"

A high-ranking official who asked not to be identified told Newsday that the unit's target was a group of black radicals called "The New York Eight" who were accused by the federal government of plotting the escape of two men imprisoned for the 1981 Brink's armored car robbery in which two police officers and a security guard were killed.

Filing Time

In case you haven't noticed, another election is coming on rapidly.

This year's will be local elections with various municipalities choosing mayors, commissioners and council members.

There will also be significant elections for the Pitt County Board of Education, which has been redistricted to better reflect the population of the county. Changes, too, will be seen in Greenville where a district system has been established to better reflect minority voting.

Most of the elections will be held on Nov. 3 although there are some variations.

The more immediate business, however, is the filing by candidates for elections. For most municipal elections candidates and Pitt County Board of Education candidates the filing period begins July 3 at 12 noon. Potential candidates have until noon on Aug. 7 to file.

We trust the interest in running will be high. Pitt County needs good people on its municipal boards and board of education.

For those who win, it is often a thankless job with almost no financial reward. Sometimes board members are more villified than praised.

There is reward, however. It comes with building a better community. Frequently the satisfaction doesn't come until years later when public officials can look back on what has been accomplished with a feeling of satisfaction.

Useless Query

We're sorry the question of William Tecumseh Sherman being considered a friend of the South has come up. For the few people in our midst today, to whom William T. Sherman is an unfamiliar name, let it be said he led an army that marched through Georgia ... burning Atlanta ... and up into North Carolina where the War Between the States finally ended.

The fateful query was raised by a subsequent letter the general wrote his foster father which recently turned up in a story by a retired Army historian that appeared in the American Heritage magazine.

"If my name must go to history, I prefer it should not as the enemy to the South", the general wrote. His fight, he said, wasn't against the Southern people but against anarchy and seditionists who "have threatened and still endanger the country which our children must inherit."

In his march of destruction Sherman passed through South Carolina where some people say he burned Columbia. On the whole, we're told people in Columbia still won't talk about that.

"That had a searing effect on people's attitude", says a retired history professor at Wofford College in Spartanburg. Retiree Lewis Jones says "all they can think about is the terrible beast who did all those awful things."

That largely explains why we're sorry the question was raised. Fixed attitudes are rarely changed, especially when they have become a part of folklore.

But Jones and other historians say history might have been unfair to Sherman. He did have Southern connections before the war, having been stationed at Fort Moultrie on Sullivan's Island (in S.C.) and Augusta, Ga. as well as New Orleans. Sherman even directed a Louisiana military school from 1859 to 1861, resigning after the state seceded from the union.

Wofford's Jones says "He didn't mean for as much of the plundering to go on as did. He justified his destructive policy as a quick way of ending the war without tremendous bloodletting." Historian David Goldfield, at UNC-Charlotte, agrees. "His concept was to destroy the means of carrying on the war and to end it as quickly as possible."

After the war, he says, Sherman was a conciliator who worked to put back together a divided country.

On one point his most ardent critics can agree: the war ended soon after Sherman's march. And history confirms Robert E. Lee knew the cause was lost with surrender of Joe Johnston to Sherman.

A century later, we doubt acknowledging all this is going to make a whit of difference in opinions about Sherman. It's largely a matter of tradition and traditions are not easily set aside.

Democrats Become The New Protectionists

When the House of Representatives passed the trade bill with the so-called Gephardt amendments in April, I had a sensation of the highest historic irony. Here was a party for which free trade had been a central and consistent doctrine for more than 150 years recanting one of its fundamental tenets. The irony was compounded by the fact that the author of the punitive provisions in the bill, Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo., was closely associated with his party's last effort to stave off the embrace of protectionism — the briefly fashionable concept of industrial policy.

Industrial policy worked its way onto the political agenda after the victory of Ronald Reagan in 1980. The Reagan triumph was the occasion for an orgy of Democratic soul-searching, catharsis and political self-examination virtually without modern parallel.

One recalls the anguished or indignant articles about the Democrats being a party without ideas, a ramshackle structure of interest groups in search of a unifying purpose. The pages of the New Republic, the New York Times Sunday Magazine and other outlets for Democratic grief therapy were full of them. The Republicans had Reaganomics and the Democrats had the moldering legacy of the New Deal.

Just about that time some bright academic economists were popularizing a complex of ideas that ultimately took the rubric of "industrial policy." It was a term that was often bafflingly imprecise but as delightfully protean in its definitions as the "American dream" or "social justice" — a half-dozen ideas resting somewhat uneasily on a single assumption.

That assumption was that the economy of the United States was undergoing a process of "de-industrialization," that a decrepit and obsolete manufacturing sector was no longer competitive with the more up-to-date plant and equipment of our major trading partners, but that the service sector of the economy showed signs of great vitality. What troubled liberal Democratic economists was that the transition from an industrial economy to a service economy was unfolding chaotically and would exact a terrible social cost. Workers displaced from manufacturing jobs could not readily be redirected to the service economy or to high-technology jobs without retraining and relocation.

What to do about it? The Democratic thinkers who emphasize the need to preserve an industrial capacity argued for the creation of an industrial-development bank along the lines of the Depression-era Reconstruction Finance Corp. — a bank that would make loans for factory modernization, especially in industries that had been "targeted" by their foreign counterparts. Steel and automobiles were two areas that seemed particularly vulnerable to foreign competition.

For one group of Democrats the development bank was the very heart and soul of industrial policy. For others, the so-called neo-liberals with weaker ties to organized labor, the emphasis was on beating an orderly retreat into services and high technology with programs of job retraining and other forms of "adjustment." Many of the neo-liberals would have been happy with an economic-strategy council modeled on the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry, but without its regulatory powers.

For all its vagueness and the fact that it was subject to different interpretation, industrial policy was an essentially positive doctrine. There was a recognition that American management had become languid and shortsighted, that our workers had become complacent and indifferent to quality, and that the solution to the aggressiveness of international competition lay in mending our own ways, not in punishing our economic rivals.

Goodbye To The Powell Court

WASHINGTON — Col. Lewis F. Powell, USAF, returned from the war in the spring of 1946, bearing a bronze star and the Croix de Guerre. He had been 33 months abroad; he was 39 years old; he was ready to get on with the business of rearing a family and resuming his practice with Richmond's most prominent law firm.

I was then a young reporter for The Richmond News Leader. As part of my beat I covered the State Corporation Commission. It was there that I met this soft-spoken Virginia gentleman and learned from his high example the meaning of integrity. The two of us have kept in touch for 40 years. In this period he headed Virginia's board of education; in a tumultuous time he served as chairman of Richmond's school board; he became president of the American Bar Association. Finally he became an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. Now, nearing 80, he has retired, and an opportunity for affectionate tribute is at hand.

Forgive me if I do not write with dispassionate objectivity about Lewis Powell. He brought with him to the high court almost every credential one might ask of an appellate judge — a clean, uncluttered mind, a sense of history, a love of legal scholarship, a cheerful and collegial personality, a dedication to the ideals of justice. He was never much of a phrasemaker. As a writer he was more careful than quotable. His opinions were lucid, orderly, unembellished by decorative trimmings. Professor A.E. Dick Howard of the University of Virginia once said of Powell that he put "reason ahead of emotion, and reflection ahead of impulse." He could quiet a crowd without raising his voice.

The custom is to speak of the Supreme Court in the name of its current chief justice: the Warren Court, the Burger Court, now the Rehnquist Court. Over most of the past 15 years we might more accurately have spoken of the Powell Court. In case after important case, when his colleagues went their predictable ways, Powell cast the deciding vote. In most criminal cases he sided with the conservatives; in most social cases he went with the liberals; but he despised those terms of classification and spurned such facile analyses as "nonsense." Case by case, that was Powell's way. If he had a judicial philosophy, it was simply to apply the law to the facts. He was never an "activist," but he never stayed stuck in the mud of precedent either.

In frail health in recent years, skinny as a string bean, Powell nonetheless was a draft horse for work. By my inexact count, over his 15 1/2 years on the court he wrote 250 majority opinions, 153 concurring opinions, 126 dissenting opinions, and 40 or 50 other opinions. In the term that ended on Friday he surpassed himself. He wrote 19 full-blown majority opinions, more than any other justice, and he missed only one argued case all year.

To those who did not know him well, Powell may have seemed dusty dry. A contemplative man, he seldom harried counsel from the bench. He exhibited none of the flamboyance of a Bill Douglas; writing in dissent, he was incapable of the serrated scorn of John Paul Stevens or the searing wrath of William Brennan. Powell's idea of strong disagreement was to say that a majority decision "is inconsistent with both precedent and fundamental fairness." Not very strong stuff.

This mildness belied a robust strength of conviction and a compassionate understanding of a truism that often is ignored: The law does not deal with abstract interpretations; in the end the law deals with humans and human problems. In April, by way of example, Powell worried in dissent that a majority opinion "may work a substantial hardship on needy families." This past Friday, when the court recessed for the summer, Powell devoted his final dissenting opinion to the case of a simple-minded soldier who had participated in a brutal murder in Georgia. Powell was troubled at the majority's willingness to execute someone with an IQ of 82 who had become involved in the crime at the age of 17. The majority saw a legal problem under the Sixth Amendment. Powell saw the boy.

Someone will be nominated, probably this week, to succeed Lewis Powell. (I remark in passing that President Reagan might well consider Professor Howard, whom I was quoting a moment ago; like Powell, he is a Southern Democrat, a gifted scholar, a moderate conservative and a believer in ordered liberty.) But "succeeding" is one thing, and "replacing" is something else. No one will replace Powell any time soon. He leaves big shoes to fill.

Strength For Today

The world's great souls have seldom been contented. All reformers, almost by definition, must be dissatisfied with conditions as they find them in order to gain the incentive to mount reform campaigns. In religion this is particularly true. The saints always agonized over their sinful lives. It was this agony, plus striving for the good, that drove them on to sainthood.

Contentment is sometimes a curse. If it arises from a complete satisfaction with the world as it is, then it is an evil thing and every power of the soul atrophies under such a condition.

When contentment arises from faith, love for one's fellows, and an untroubled conscience, it is a blessing. But it is the opposite when it is an emotion stemming from the lack of a sense of responsibility and the satisfaction of all the appetites.

To the editor:

Will it take a fatality at the railroad crossing on Brownlea before the need for a warning device is seen?

Visibility at this location is next to nothing. In order to see down the track, it is necessary to almost drive on the track.

Even though the train is supposed to blow before reaching the crossing, I hardly believe a 100-foot warning is adequate. This has happened several times to my knowledge.

Please help us before death at a railroad crossing strikes again. It could be one of your loved ones.

Analysis

The Sole Southerner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Albert Gore Jr. entered the Democratic presidential campaign as the bright new kid on the block, the youngest man in the 1988 race for the White House. But how well he does may depend on something he can't control — whether he is still the only Southerner in the race when the first votes are cast.

Now the 39-year-old senator from Tennessee resolutely insists he is not a southern candidate, that he is a national candidate from the South. But time and the primary calendar combine to insist that he do well in the southern primaries on March 8, 1988, or watch his campaign come to an end.

Complicating Gore's calculations is that two more Southerners who would be president are waiting in the wings. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton are trying to decide whether or not they can win next year.

The problem for Gore is that either man can slice away a chunk of the South on Super Tuesday 1988, leaving Gore with a part of a part of a victory — which is to say no victory at all.

Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is the favorite of a segment of the Democratic Party leadership. He is strong on defense, moderate on some issues and conservative on others.

Nunn has been called a perfect candidate for the party to win back the conservative Southern voters who have been supporting Republican candidates in presidential elections for 20 years. And that, some argue, is the key to a Democratic victory in 1988.

In fact, at least some of the major Democratic financiers behind Gore's campaign actually preferred Nunn. But they signed on with Gore when it was not clear what Nunn would do. It still isn't clear what the Georgia senator will decide.

Then there is Clinton. Ever since he won the governorship in 1976, he has been seen as one of the promising new stars of the Democratic Party.

He is young, smart and now tested by the fire of defeat — he lost a re-election bid in 1980. He returned to the statehouse in the next balloting, easily defeating the Republican who had taken his job two years earlier.

Clinton and Nunn are mulling their individual decisions and may have something to say later this summer about their plans.

If either man or both enter the race, the 1988 primary season will take on a different pace.

At the moment, most of the Democrats are scrambling for an edge in Iowa — with its kick-off caucuses Feb. 8.

The theory — based in part on Gary Hart's 1984 campaign — is that, with no front-runner, a good showing there will give a candidate the momentum to race out ahead of the pack and do well in the New Hampshire primary eight days later.

Then the battle would be among the two or three surviving candidates, a fight that could stretch on for months. Everyone else becomes an also-ran whose campaign is on a death march.

But the Southerners' strategies would have to be different — in essence, each man would have to win in the South.

Gore's late start puts him way behind in Iowa, where organization is the key to the complicated caucus system and where Gore has no natural constituency.

Nunn already has said he would skip Iowa. Clinton would have an even tougher time in the state than Gore if he gets in the race even later.

Each man could try to recover in New Hampshire. But neighboring Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis has a big edge there in the polls and there may be another candidate riding the wave out of Iowa as well.

None of the other early states — Minnesota, South Dakota, Maine and the rest — seem to be hospitable territory for the southern candidates to win a surprising victory.

That means the only place Gore, Nunn and Clinton could look for a victory is March 8, when all the southern states, except one, will vote.

And there is always the Rev. Jesse Jackson, with tremendous black support, as yet another candidate who could be tough to beat in the South.

A splintered result on March 8 — an easily foreseen outcome — could be big trouble for any of the Southerners who counted on a win to make them a major player.

Thus, the key question for one and all — Gore, Nunn and Clinton — is whether a strategy of betting it all on the southern primary can work or whether someone else will have already rigged the game by then.

Roh: The Cause

SEOUL, South Korea — It was ruling party chairman Roh Tae Woo who sparked the political crisis that swept through the streets of South Korean cities for three weeks. Now, it is Roh who miraculously seems to have solved it.

The protests began June 10, hours after Roh appeared on a convention stage with President Chun Doo Hwan and accepted the ruling party's nomination for president. In the first days of the escalating street violence, Roh's future seemed bleak.

But after a bold political stroke that startled many Koreans, Roh is being hailed as a sort of democratic hero, the man who brought the country through the greatest political storm it has faced in years.

Monday morning Roh made a dramatic and much welcomed television address to the nation, calling on Chun to grant virtually all the opposition's demands and saying he would resign all his posts if that did not happen.

Later, in a gesture of conciliation, Roh visited the parents of a student demonstrator who has been in a coma since being hit by a tear gas canister. Now he is waiting to work out details of a deal with the opposition.

It remains unclear how much of the past few days' events is part of a genuine move for change, and how much is clever political theatrics planned in advance by the 54-year-old former Army general and his longtime associate Chun.

What is clear, though, is that the ruling Democratic Justice Party has plucked advantage from near disaster. It now has a candidate who appears to have his own strengths, as well as distance in the public mind from the unpopular Chun.

"Until now he's been seen as weak and deferring to Chun," said a western diplomat in Seoul. "His stock has risen considerably, although it's still too soon to say whether it's enough to get him elected."

Chun and Roh have been together since the start of their careers. They attended Korean military academy together and advanced through the ranks of the South Korean Army. In December 1979, as junior generals, they staged a coup d'etat that later would put Chun in office.

After resigning from the Army, Roh served in a string of top-level cabinet and other government positions, including one overseeing preparations for the 1988 Summer Olympics. In 1985, he became ruling party chairman.

In contrast to the dour and distant Chun, Roh is open and affable. He seems at ease in the rough-and-tumble world of Korean politics, where personal contact is important.

Last year it became an open secret that Roh was being groomed to take over in February 1988 when Chun stepped down at the end of a seven-year term. Chun praised the plan as a step toward democracy that would mark the first peaceful transition of power in South Korea's 39-year history.

On June 10, members of the ruling party gathered in a Seoul gymnastics stadium for a rubber-stamp convention. The climax was Chun and Roh standing together on the platform, smiling and raising clasped hands in salute to the assembled delegates.

Hours later, the streets erupted in Seoul and other cities. To many Koreans watching on television, what had happened was simply the formal transfer of power from one military dictator to another.

That and other festering complaints against the government brought protesters out in unusual numbers, night after night. Tear gas was not effective in dispersing them.

Government officials, after a series of emergency consultations, decided to use negotiations rather than force to solve the crisis. Roh quickly emerged as the point man.

He moved around town in a sort of shuttle diplomacy, visiting opposition leaders at their offices to seek a deal. He declared he would not let his own "position" stand in the way of a negotiated settlement.

People wondered what Roh meant. On Monday morning, without warning, they found out. In a television address, Roh said he would resign all his public positions if Chun did not accept virtually all the opposition's demands.

Roh said what millions of Koreans wanted to hear — that the government had gone wrong. "The people are the masters of the country, and the people's will must come before everything else," he said solemnly. "Now that the Olympics are approaching, all of us are responsible for avoiding the national disgrace of dividing ourselves and thus causing the world to ridicule us," he said.

Chun is expected to give final approval in a national television address tomorrow at around 10 a.m.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department will impanel a grand jury in Columbia to hear allegations of tax fraud against the PTL ministry under former leader Jim Bakker, a department source said.

The Justice Department is expected to announce before Friday the specific allegations to be presented to the grand jury, the list of defendants and the dates the panel will meet.

"They (tax attorneys) are still tying up loose ends," the source said Tuesday.

Bakker's attorney, Melvin Belli, said his client would welcome any tax inquiry. "Jim Bakker is cleaner than a hound's tooth in regards to any intentional violation of God's law or man's law," Belli said Tuesday.

Federal officials decided to begin a formal criminal investigation and impanel a grand jury because of the large number of allegations about the PTL under Bakker and questions about the television ministry's tax-exempt status, the Justice Department source said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The allegations include income tax fraud, wire fraud and mail fraud, the source said.

The evidence compiled by tax attorneys with the Justice Department will be presented in Columbia. A grand jury would decide whether the defendants should be indicted.

John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman in Washington, refused to comment on the case.

The Bakkers on Tuesday said they are looking at sites for a new ministry and will make their home in Gatlinburg, Tenn., where they have been staying since last week.

Bakker, who spoke while signing a 20-foot replica of the U.S. Constitution with his wife, deflected questions about his struggle with the Rev. Jerry Falwell for control of PTL and questions about the 1980 sexual encounter that eventually cost him the television ministry.

"In order to take PTL from Jim and Tammy, you've got to make Jim and Tammy look as bad as possible. And the people who have taken it are orking day and night to destroy us," Bakkers said.

PTL, which stands for Praise The Lord or People That Love, is $72 million in debt, and recently filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law.

The criminal investigation will be conducted by the Justice Department's tax division with the assistance of U.S. Attorney Vinton Lide's office in Columbia.

Falwell, who took over PTL when Bakker stepped down, said June 10 that the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and the Postal Service had launched criminal investigations of PTL.

Falwell said then he believed the investigation involves allegations of wire fraud and mail fraud. "It appears that funds apparently were raised under false pretense," Falwell said.

Investigators are looking at actions taken before March 19, when Bakker resigned as president of PTL.

The Justice Department's preliminary investigation of possible criminal activity was announced June 1. It escalated to a criminal investigation less than two weeks later. A civil audit of PTL by the IRS has been under way for several years.

In 1985, the agency proposed lifting the ministry's tax-exempt status for 1980-83, saying the status was used for the personal benefit of Bakker and other PTL officials.

Falwell instructed his lawyers earlier this month to begin negotiating a settlement with the IRS to try to keep its tax-exempt status, which he said is essential to the ministry's survival.

The revocation would mean individuals would no longer be able to claim a charitable deduction for contributions made to PTL, and the IRS could seek millions of dollars in back taxes and penalties for the years in question.

The audit report made in late 1985 said the tax-exempt status should be revoked partly because a significant portion of PTL's earnings were used to benefit individuals. Generally, the law allows only reasonable compensation.

The IRS said Bakker's compensation from 1980-83, $1.3 million, exceeded reasonable bounds by $968,000. Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker reportedly received salary, bonuses and other payments totaling $4.8 million since 1984.

Tobacco Subject To More Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will increase the sampling of farmers' tobacco on sales floors as a part of its efforts to crack down on pesticide misuse, a department official said.

Any farmer bringing tobacco on the market this year should be prepared to have samples pulled for testing of pesticide residues, J.W. York, the deputy director for the tobacco program, told the Winston-Salem Journal on Tuesday.

The move stems from the discovery in early June of high levels of dicamba, a weedkiller, in a shipment of cigarettes. The cigarettes, made by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., were headed for Japan.

Last year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture took 147 random samples on flue-cured tobacco markets in five states and found eight cases of pesticide misuse, or 5.4 percent of those sampled.

York said that the specific amount of samples has not been determined for this year's market. "It will be increased quite a bit from last year," he said.

"It won't be by random sampling this time, but it will be a stratified, scientific sample," York said.

Plans are to take samples throughout the entire marketing season and to have the samples tested for residues of dicamba and 15 other pesticides that are specifically outlawed for use on tobacco, he said.

Tuition Increase Expected For State College System

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A 15 percent tuition boost for North Carolina residents who attend the state university system would be too steep, but an increase of around 5 percent would be justified, a legislative leader says.

Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, co-chairman of the Joint Appropriations Base Budget Committee, said a modest increase would not violate the constitutional requirement that North Carolina's public higher education system be accessible to as many people as possible.

"We haven't had an increase since 1983, and the way costs have risen I don't think it's unreasonable to make a change," Rand said in an interview Tuesday.

But he said he opposed the 15 percent in-state tuition boost for the University of North Carolina system recommended by the Appropriation Subcommittee on Education. The panel called for a 6 percent increase for non-North Carolina residents.

The Base Budget Committee, facing strong opposition to the proposed increase from UNC officials, voted to return the matter to the subcommittee for further consideration.

"The people are not in favor of that (15 percent) increase," Rand said. "Federal funds for education have been cut back, and we need to keep the availability of our state-supported institutions at the highest possible level."

But he said he expected "a fairly drastic increase" in tuition for out-of-state students, particularly in professional schools such as law and medical institutions which could see rates skyrocket by 60 to 70 percent.

"We are substantially below the national average and we don't see any reason why out-of-state students should have that kind of benefit from the (North Carolina) taxpayers," he said.

A UNC official conceded that some increase was likely.

"A small adjustment we could call acceptable," Jay Robinson, vice president for public affairs of the 16-campus system, said in an interview. He declined to say what the university could accept.

But Robinson said the university preferred no increase and strongly opposed the 15 percent boost, which would raise tuition by an average of $65 per year by 1988-89 at every UNC campus except the School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, which would be exempt from the in-state increase.

The subcommittee's proposal would generate $9.5 million in 1987-88 and $14 million in 1988-89.

Robinson acknowledged that $65 per year might seem modest "to the average person, but not to the young person who's trying to figure out where his money for the fall semester is going to come from."

The blood of a horseshoe crab is sky blue when exposed to the air, says National Geographic World.

Rainbows Come To North Carolina's Mountains

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
ROBBINSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — In the 20th anniversary of the "Summer of Love," thousands of former hippies, yuppies and other followers of the 1960s counterculture are flocking to the mountains of western North Carolina for the annual gathering of the Rainbow Family.

The loose-knit group — whose members go by names such as Golden Dove, Peter Rabbit and Black Elk — has been meeting at a remote site during the first week of July each year since 1972. This year's reunion, which is expected to draw as many as 10,000 Rainbows, is being held at the Nantahala National Forest near the Tennessee border.

"We're out here to spend the Fourth of July praying for peace," said one member, who calls himself Wandering Willie. "Now don't that sound like a whole lot of trouble?"

Despite Willie's good-humored sarcasm, the group already has had several altercations with U.S. Forest Service and other law enforcement agencies since members began arriving in mid-June. Many of the run-ins have been over access to a one-lane road that leads into the Rainbow Family's campsite.

Shortly after the first members of the family arrived, they decided to close the road to all traffic except campers and converted school buses, claiming that small children were in danger of being run over.

But after a Forest Service officer was denied access to the road, authorities took over and closed the road to all traffic. Two family members were arrested when they tried to block Forest Service officers who were making a routine check of the road.

The family also refused to apply for a state permit for an event drawing more than 5,000 people. Last week, only about 2,000 Rainbows had arrived at the site.

"Their power structure felt threatened when we didn't ask for the permit," said Dusty Rainbow. "To us it's a matter of principle. This land belongs to all of us."

As the state was seeking a permanent injunction, an attorney for the family had the case moved to federal court, where a hearing was held Tuesday.

"How are you going to stop 10,000 people from coming?" asked Hawk as he led two visitors to the campsite. "Everyone with a belly button is invited because he or she is a member of the family."

Meanwhile, Graham County has declared a state of emergency, which allows county officials to call on neighboring counties and state agencies for help in directing traffic and assisting in any medical emergencies.

While it's obvious that the two sides will never see eye to eye, they have managed to co-exist peacefully.

"There have been some incidents," said Forest Service spokeswoman Karen Hughes. "But some of their folks have been very cooperative."

She said the Rainbow Family cannot be stopped from camping on the land.

"It's public land," she said. "Any large group of people can do this. What we're trying to do is cooperate and make things run smoothly."

The road closure has forced the Rainbows to devise ways to transport newcomers and their belongings nearly four miles from the entrance to the park to the campsite. Some members volunteer to use their vans and station wagons to shuttle people back and forth.

"It gets addictive," Richard said as he waited for several members to climb on top of his beat-up van for the ride up the mountain road. "When you get 5,000 people in a circle at the end of a day, you don't need anything to alter your mind."

Family members say drugs and alcohol are discouraged during the week-long "gathering of the tribes." Money for fines, food and other needs comes from passing the "magic hat."

"You can't stop it," said Richard, who came from Austin, Texas, to attend the meeting. "The evil cannot overcome the good."

According to the Rainbow Family's literature, the purpose of the mass gathering is to "share fellowship and spiritual renewal in a natural outdoor environment for a week of work, recreation, learning, healing and sharing concern for the environment."

While some family members say they have no jobs or addresses, the ranks also includes a chiropractor, a journalist, an auto mechanic from Germany, a lifeguard — even a public relations officer.

"I thought the whole world was invited to this," said James, who works as a lifeguard in Seattle. "This is my constitutional right."

Others come for different reasons. Bowinkle lost part of his right leg in a farm accident in Wisconsin last year.

"I'm hoping to get a wooden leg carved for me so I can walk again," he said. He explained that he turned down federal assistance.

"I'd rather get one from someone who did it for love," he said.

Membership in the Rainbow Family crosses many social barriers — including age.

"No one can understand what we're doing here because they can't relate to it," said 45-year-old Rainbow Bear, a veteran of 12 meetings. "They don't want to understand how people with radical lifestyles can meet in peace."

As Rainbow Bear rested his 300-pound frame on the tailgate of a pickup truck, he put his arm around Tameron, who at 5 has been to four reunions.

Tameron was asked what he liked to do at the meetings.

"I like helping set up camp," he said. "That's what I want to do."

Despite their claim that there is no political hierarchy, the camp is run efficiently with members volunteering to build latrines, cook, control traffic and tend to cuts and bruises in a makeshift MASH unit.

hundreds who arrived at the campsite in buses, autos, bikes and on foot. (AP Laserphoto)

Family members also build stages so the dozens of musicians can play into the night. Day-care centers and schools are established in the camp's "Kiddy Village." Workshops are held on woodcarving, jewelry, tie-dying and other crafts.

"I look at it like a big old family reunion," said 19-year-old Wolf, who came from Minneapolis with a friend to attend his first meeting. "It's exciting. I hope to learn some new trades."

He was asked how long he planned to stay.

"I'll stick it out as long as I can then move on to Florida," he said.

Jerry, a former truck driver who has been to 10 previous gatherings, said the spirit of cooperation is infectious.

"There's no ego trips here," he said as he manned the pickup point for the shuttle service. "If a latrine needs to be dug, someone volunteers to do it. Sure we get some greedy people and lazy people. But when they see everyone else pitching in, they see they don't have to rip people off to get by."

Jerry said he hoped the authorities in North Carolina would understand that the Rainbow Family was a peace group. He recalled that some Forest Service officials brought their families to the July 4th celebration last year in Pennsylvania.

Jerry said it was easy to see why people kept coming back to the reunions. "The first one I went to in 1977 was the closest thing I've seen to heaven," he said.

Family members boast they have been accepted by the residents of the nearby village of Robbinsville, where they buy food and other supplies.

Family

"They love us," said Dusty Rainbow.

But several townspeople expressed reservations about the counter-culture in their midst.

Carol Crisp said members of the family were courteous when they ate at her restaurant. But she didn't like it when they asked for free supplies.

"Mountain people are loving, generous people," she said. "I didn't want to get a bad thing started. I was concerned they'd keep coming back for more."

Another shopkeeper, Christine Farley, was less enthralled with the newcomers. Several Rainbows have come into the 5-and-10 store she manages to buy headbands and other supplies.

"Love them?" she asked. "We'd love to have them out of the way. We just don't need them — period. We've got a quiet little town. No traffic lights. We want to keep it that way."

IN THE STATE

Officer Wounded

DURHAM (AP) — A Durham police officer was in stable condition early today after being shot in the leg and abdomen after he approached a man while checking on property near a new section of Interstate 40, authorities said.

"The officer began fighting with the subject ... and the assailant discharged a small-caliber weapon, striking him in the right leg just below the knee and once in the lower abdomen," said Officer I.R. Whitfield.

The shot to Officer Daniel Gilbert's abdomen was stopped by his bullet-proof vest in the incident at about 2 a.m., Whitfield said.

Gilbert was in stable condition at Durham County General Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Cat Attacks

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — Park officials say domestic cats have destroyed a third of the tern nests built in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore this year, and nests of the piping plover — an endangered species — also are being disturbed.

Rangers of the National Park Service soon will begin cuffing delinquent cats and turning them over to the Dare County animal shelter.

"They're either getting the eggs or getting the babies, depending on what's in the nest," said Robert Woody, spokesman for the park service's Cape Hatteras office.

Researchers had marked 30 nests built in the sand as part of their bird-hatching studies, Woody said. When they returned, 10 nests had been destroyed.

"They're not getting the adults," he said. "Adults leave the nest and try to lure the cats away."

Sexual Attack

SPRING LAKE, N.C. (AP) — Another sexual attack by a rubber-masked man has been reported here, increasing to 11 the number of similar assaults that authorities believe were committed by the same man.

The latest assault took place just north of Spring Lake, officials said. A 20-year-old woman reported a man entered her home Sunday night and committed a sexual assault on her under threat of death if she notified authorities.

Area police say they believe that the same man has committed assaults on women in Lee, Harnett and Cumberland counties.

Couple Arrested

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Caswell County couple has been arrested after sheriff's deputies and State Bureau of Investigation agents say they found more than $100,000 worth of marijuana around the couple's home.

William and Lydia Upchurch of Blanch were arrested Monday afternoon and charged with possession with intent to manufacture marijuana and maintaining a dwelling for controlled substances, police said. Both charges are felonies.

The couple was released on $2,000 unsecured bond each.

County law enforcement officers and SBI agents said they spotted the 10-to 12-foot-high plants growing in a field behind the Upchurchs' residence from the air during a search and eradication operation.

Officials found 29 plants, valued at about $46,400, in the field and another 26 male plants drying on the ground. The 26 male plants were worth $1,600 apiece, or $41,600 total, said officials, who also found 137.5 ounces of bagged marijuana worth a total of $13,750 inside the residence.

File Reopened

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A felony assault charge in April led New Bern police to reopen a file on a suspicious 1978 fire in which one man was killed, and that investigation has brought two indictments by the Craven County grand jury for first-degree murder and first-degree arson.

Investigator J.A. Fink said Monday that Jesse Lee Best Jr., 38, of New Bern, was indicted on the two charges. According to the indictments, Best set the Jan. 28, 1978, fire that killed Reginald Cox and damaged the apartment house where the two men resided.

Best has been in Craven County jail since April 24 on a charge of felony assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury on his father, Jesse Lee Best Sr., police said.

Fink said that when the younger Best was arrested in April a background check was completed and it was discovered he had been the main suspect in the 1978 fire, where Cox died of asphyxiation.

Legal Fees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Money raised at a barbecue supper in Washington Tuesday night will be used to help Rep. Howard Coble, R-N.C., pay off legal fees incurred by the dispute over his election last November, a spokesman for the congressman said.

"Our legal expenses were in the tens of thousands of dollars — close to $100,000 — because of the recount question," Coble's press secretary, Ed McDonald, said.

Coble emerged from the Nov. 4 General Election as the victor by 79 votes, but his Democratic challenger, Robin Britt of Greensboro, repeatedly challenged the outcome of the election before the Guilford County and State boards of election, as well as in Wake County Superior Court and the state Court of Appeals.

Rock Quarry

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — After a 10-month battle with state officials and Salem Stone Co., residents of Abbotts Creek and Union Cross will apparently have to live with another rock quarry.

The state has issued a draft permit that would allow Salem Stone Co. to build a 188-acre rock quarry near new U.S. 311, said Thomas Carroll, director of land quality at the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The new quarry will be about two miles from a 175-acre rock quarry that Vulcan Materials Co. has just build, also near new U.S. 311.

Gas Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Utilities Commission has allowed Public Service Co. of North Carolina to reduce its retail natural gas rates by about 1.58 percent.

The rates approved Tuesday will reduce the annual bill for a year-round residential customer using 100 dekatherms by $10.70 from $645.37 to $634.67. The annual bill for heat-only residential customers using 100 dekatherms will drop by $11.71 from $683.70 to $671.99.

The commission said the rate reductions, which take effect Wednesday, reflect federal income tax savings generated by the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Right-Of-Way Bill Advances

RALEIGH (AP) — The state House is a step away from passing a bill that would put strict limits on municipal participation in state highway projects, which critics say gives cities an unfair advantage over rural areas.

"When you let (cities) go ahead and buy a right-of-way, what you're doing is giving them a leg up," Rep. Bob Hunter, D-McDowell, said Tuesday after the House tentatively approved the bill 89-17. A final vote was scheduled for today.

"There's only so much money to go around and it is now the turn of other parts of this state to have interstate-quality roads, which in today's society are prerequisite to development," Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, said.

But Rep. Ruth Easterling, D-

Mecklenburg, said the bill was the product of a rural vendetta against urban areas that ultimately would hurt both in equal measure.

"It is ... an anti-city bill, which in my opinion makes it in the long run against the best interest of the state as a whole," Ms. Easterling said.

The bill originally would have barred cities from making virtually any contribution to projects in the state highway system.

Eventually, however, enough sweeteners were added to persuade the North Carolina League of Municipalities and the state Department of Transportation to drop their opposition, along with most House members who represent urban areas.

The only Democrat to vote against the bill was Rep. Annie Kennedy, D-

Forsyth. Sixteen Republicans opposed it while 14 favored it.

The bill allows municipalities to pay from 5 percent to 25 percent of a project's right-of-way cost, depending on their population. The bigger the city, the more money it could contribute.

In another concession to urban areas, the bill allows cities to pay the entire cost of any state road project with the proceeds of a bond issue approved for the purpose in a local referendum.

But the measure bars municipalities from using money from their budgets to share costs of state road projects with the state.

Nominees Chosen

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate committee Tuesday chose nominees for four seats on the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, but a House committee postponed action on nominees until Wednesday.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, raised a confusing issue when he asked whether the House panel should put four nominees for two at-large seats in order of preference. Usually, nominees are reported out of committee in no particularly order.

Earlier, the Senate University Board of Governors Committee nominated Charlotte attorney Irvin Boyle and Raleigh developer Robert Jones for re-election. Also nominated for the Senate seats were Shelby businessman Clint Newton Jr., Durham lawyer Travis Porter, and former Sen. Joe Thomas of Craven County.

Former Gov. Jim Holshouser and George Little of Southern Pines were nominated to fill a Republican seat on the 32-member board. Also expected to be nominated on the floor today was Ed Tenney of Chapel Hill.

Before the controversy arose, the House committee nominated Betty McCain of Wilson and Ellen Newbold of Rose Hill for a woman's seat.

Howard Clement of Durham and Joy Johnson of Fairmont were recommended by the committee for a minority seat, while E.B. Turner of Lumberton was running without recommendation.

Oprah Bests Phil As TV Day Host

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Upstart Oprah Winfrey credits her Emmy Award as best daytime talk-show host to the man she defeated, veteran Phil Donahue.

"I would like to thank Phil Donahue, because 20 years ago when Phil Donahue started, people who were managers in television thought women were only interested in mascara tips and how to stuff a cabbage," Winfrey said on Tuesday's nationally televised award program. "Phil Donahue showed them women (are) interested ... in living the best possible lives."

Donahue, in the audience, smiled and nodded in response.

CBS, the leader in daytime ratings, continued a tradition of raking in the most awards, 26 this year, including 17 in craft categories, compared with ABC's total of eight and NBC's five. PBS shows won seven and syndicated shows, four.

Except for Big Bird and Bob Barker, the Daytime Emmy Awards program broadcast on ABC weren't too kind to veterans.

In addition to Donahue's loss, soap opera star Susan Lucci failed to win best actress in a drama series for the eighth time, losing this time to Kim Zimmer of "Guiding Light."

But the Muppet creatures of PBS' "Sesame Street," going into its 19th season, fended off a challenge in the children's series category by innovative newcomer Pee-Wee Herman and his "Pee-Wee's Playhouse" on CBS.

"Pee-Wee's Playhouse" had been nominated for 14 awards, the most nominations ever for a children's show. Its six craft awards equaled the record held by "Captain Kangaroo" for most wins.

And Barker got an Emmy as best game-show host for "The Price Is Right." "The $25,000 Pyramid" won as best game show.

The award for outstanding drama series went to CBS' "As the World Turns," which had the most nominations of any show, 20.

The only award presented to an NBC show during the live broadcast was John Wesley Shipp's award for best guest performer on "Santa Barbara." Shipp had won last year as best supporting actor.

The presenters were mostly actors who play romantically involved couples on soaps, but also included Dick Clark and Pee-Wee Herman, who presented the award to "Jim Henson's Muppet Babies" as outstanding animated program.

Kathleen Noone, who plays Ellen Chandler on "All My Children," was so excited about winning the Emmy for outstanding supporting actress in a drama, she tripped on the way to the stage and lost a shoe.

Gregg Marx, who plays Tom Hughes on "As the World Turns," won best supporting actor.

Michael E. Knight, whose character Tad Martin has been written out of "All My Children," was outstanding younger leading man. Martha Byrne who plays Lilly Walsh on "As the World Turns," was outstanding ingenue.

Winfrey said after the awards that she was genuinely surprised by her win in the talk-show category.

"I never expected to win," she said in a telephone interview. "Because if you think you're going to lose, and you have your Phil-Donahue-it's-OK-if-you-win-face on, and then you win, it's just great!"

In the few markets where they are head-to-head, Winfrey beats Donahue in the ratings, and her overall ratings have been consistently higher than Donahue's.

"I really don't compare them," Winfrey said. "I'm grateful to Donahue. I don't watch him, because I don't want to be accused of mimicking him. (But) for the first two years I was doing talk, I used to tape him."

Gasoline Spill

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Fumes from a gasoline spill at a storage depot overcame four residents and forced up to 100 people from their homes today, authorities said.

The four, members of one family, were released after being treated at St. Mary Hospital, authorities said.

The tank overflowed at the Fina tank farm late Tuesday, said Fire Chief Clifford Barbay.

Officials monitored the spill, and civil defense director Dick Nugent ordered the evacuation early today as 10 mph winds carried the fumes toward a neighborhood.

Monthly Farm Price Index Rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rise last month in the overall price index for farm commodities is supporting assessments by the Agriculture Department that farmers are seeing some improvement in their financial condition.

But department economists caution that the monthly farm price index can be volatile and does not necessarily indicate what will happen to farm income. As most farmers might wryly observe, however, higher prices are a step in the right direction.

The USDA said Tuesday that prices farmers got for raw products in June rose 1.6 percent from May and averaged 8.3 percent more than a year ago.

Higher prices for hogs, cotton, oranges, apples and soybeans more than offset lower prices in June for wheat, hay, onions, broilers and milk, the department's Agricultural Statistics Board said in its preliminary report.

"Cotton prices were up sharply from a month earlier and were the highest since May 1984," the report said. "The strong upward movement of June hog prices continued the trend of recent months, placing the average hog price at the highest level since August 1986."

Calf prices were up from May, but cattle prices were unchanged. June prices for both were the highest since 1980.

Prices for livestock and livestock products as a group were up 1.4 percent from May, and averaged 12 percent more than in June 1986.

The preliminary June figures were based mostly on mid-month averages and will be subject to revision.

No new figures were reported to show what happened to prices paid by farmers to meet expenses. The most recent average computed in April showed farm expenses running 1.9 percent higher than last January and also 1.9 percent above a year earlier.

Crop prices overall rose 2.8 percent from May and also 2.8 percent from a year ago, the report said. However, all of the increase was due to higher prices for fruit, up 17 percent from May and 16 percent from a year ago; cotton, up 11 percent from May and 23 percent from a year ago, and oilseeds, up 3.8 percent from May and 3.8 percent from June 1986.

The price index for food grains dropped 8.6 percent from May, and averaged 2 percent below a year ago. Declines were reported for both wheat and rice during the month.

Lower prices were reported for poultry and eggs, which averaged 2.8 percent lower than in May. The index was down 14 percent from a year ago.

Net farm income is estimated by USDA at around $33 billion last year, up from $30.5 billion in calendar 1985 according to the most recent figures. Economists are forecasting an increase ranging between $33 billion and $37 billion in 1987.

Pilots Shut Jets On Delta Plane

CINCINNATI (AP) — The crew of a Delta Airlines jet carrying 202 people inadvertently turned off both engines after takeoff, an airline official said, and passengers said they were told to prepare to crash.

"We had our life jackets on and all I could do was hold Brandon," an unidentified passenger holding a child told WCPO-TV.

No one was injured in the incident and the Boeing 767, which took off from Los Angeles International Airport, landed safely here Tuesday evening, said Dave James, Delta marketing director at Greater Cincinnati International Airport.

Flight 810, carrying 194 passengers and eight crew members, was ascending after takeoff at 12:35 p.m. PDT when it lost power in both engines, James said. However, the crew was able to restore power and continued on to Cincinnati. The plane arrived at 7:55 p.m. EDT, 20 minutes late.

Company officials questioned the pilot and co-pilot about the incident after their arrival at the Cincinnati airport. "The pilots acknowledged that they inadvertently caused the engines to lose power," James said.

Passengers told the television station that when the engines went off they were instructed to put on life jackets.

"The captain said get ready to crash, that's all," said passenger Mimi Geller. "I just felt I never want to fly on a plane again."

Passengers said the jet was heading west over the Pacific Ocean when the engines came back on and the flight resumed.

Spending Bill May Free Farm Subsidy Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm subsidy payments delayed for two months soon may be on their way as Congress struggles to finish work on a $9.4 billion emergency spending bill.

The House on Tuesday ratified the compromise legislation but rejected a Senate plan to tear down the new U.S. Embassy in Moscow because it has too many bugging devices to be used.

The House instead adopted language to put the project on hold until November while officials study their options. If the Senate goes along, that would remove the last major impediment to the long-delayed bill.

Most of the fiscal 1987 supplemental appropriations bill is the $5.6 billion in payments to farmers. But it also includes spending additions for the Pentagon, foreign aid, the space program and the homeless for the current fiscal year.

The bill adds on to a fiscal 1987 deficit running $30 billion in excess of the $144 billion limit set by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

The House on Tuesday ratified the compromise with the Senate, 309-114, but then disagreed on the Moscow embassy language.

The House by voice vote approved an amendment freezing work on the embassy and restating a long-standing agreement with the Soviets that they won't occupy their new chancery building in Washington until the United States can move into its new structure in Moscow.

Former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, appointed by President Reagan to study the embassy problem, told Congress this week that the building was so full of surveillance devices that its top three floors will have to be dismantled and the rest of the compound significantly altered.

The Senate could insist on tearing down the embassy when the legislation returns to that chamber, but that would delay sending the bill to Reagan. Farm state lawmakers were hoping for final action this week before they head home for the July 4th recess.

The bill would expand Pentagon programs by $748 million in the next few months, and increase foreign aid by $459 million, including money for democracies in Central America.

More than $1.5 billion of the package would help government agencies cover the pay raises and retirement improvements granted to federal workers earlier this year.

The bill approves $355 million in spending on programs for the homeless, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would get $303 million more this year to help get the space shuttle back into orbit.

Lawmakers expanded the battle against AIDS, including $20 million for mailing information on the disease to every household, $27 million for testing, counseling and education, and $30 million for providing life-lengthening drugs to low-income AIDS victims.

The bill also was chock full of smaller provisions, ranging from police protection during the Pope John Paul II's U.S. visit later this year to a center for research on weeds in North Dakota.

The House rejected, by voice vote, a Senate move to lift the $250,000-per-farmer cap on subsidies to honey producers.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., said the Senate's move was the "sweetest" of all the items in the bill, giving a small handful of corporate beekeepers a windfall. "It's time that we in the House tell them to buzz off," he said.

The Reagan administration backed away from its threats to veto the measure after House leaders agreed to drop a pair of arms control amendments. Democratic leaders said they would pursue that issue on other legislation.

Lugar Says U.S., Soviets Reaching Accord On Medium Range Missiles

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have reached an agreement in principle to eliminate all Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe and Asia, but a senator said today that verification procedures have yet to be determined.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said he is encouraged by reports that an arms pact could be sealed when Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets in mid-July with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

"But the protocol for that destruction and the verification of how that is to be done, the phasing of how rapidly and how we are to know, are the major points of negotiation," Lugar said on NBC-TV's "Today" program.

The Shultz-Shevardnadze meeting is intended to remove major obstacles to an accord and could set the stage for a third superpower summit meeting later this year.

A Reagan administration official, who spoke Tuesday night only on condition of anonymity, said Col. Gen. Nikolai Chervov, a senior adviser to the Soviet general staff, had proposed the compromise two weeks ago in Geneva to U.S. negotiator Maynard Glitman.

It was designed to overcome obstacles to a treaty on medium-range missiles and subsequently was approved by the Reagan administration, the official said.

A key provision calls for the Soviets to dismantle their 462 missiles in Europe with a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles and 221 additional missiles in their Asian territory.

In return, the United States would remove 316 missiles from Europe, agree not to deploy shorter-range rockets and accept two basic restraints. The 208 ground-launched cruise missiles to be withdrawn could not be converted into sea-launched missiles, and the 108 Pershing II rockets could not be modified into shorter-range Pershing 1B weapons.

Until now, the Soviets had insisted on retaining 33 SS-20 launchers, with a range of up to 3,125 miles that are targeted on China and Japan, and were ambiguous about giving up some 40 shorter-range missiles also in Asia with a range of 565 miles.

President Reagan had set as a goal the elimination of the two types of Soviet rockets. It is known in arms control parlance as the "zero-zero option."

In another development, a senior administration official said the Soviets were expected to present shortly to U.S. negotiators in Geneva their version of a proposed treaty to reduce the superpowers' strategic nuclear weapons arsenals by about 50 percent.

The official, who also demanded anonymity, said the Soviets had engaged in some lively discussion on a proposed U.S. text but had not been as forthcoming yet as they were on medium-range weapons.

The two sides seem close to agreement on a date for Shultz and Shevardnadze to meet in Washington. Moscow has not given its final approval to July 14-15 or other suggested dates, U.S. officials said.

When they agree, U.S. negotiators Glitman and Ronald Lehman, who deals with strategic weapons, will be brought home from Geneva to join chief U.S. negotiator Max M. Kampelman in helping Shultz prepare for the session.

North To Face Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators, poring over seven notebooks of subpoenaed documents, prepared today for private questioning of the keystone witness of the Iran-Contra affair, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

At the same time, North is pressing his challenge to the authority of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh to investigate his actions before he was fired last fall as an official on the staff of the National Security Council.

North was formally granted limited immunity from prosecution on Tuesday after initially invoking his Fifth Amendment protection against self incrimination eight times.

The immunity grant provides that nothing North says or provides to the congressional investigators can be used against him in criminal proceedings unless the same information is obtained independently.

The Marine officer, wearing his uniform and six rows of decorations, was brought into the meeting room in the basement of the Rayburn House Office Building under tight police security.

The questioning will center on what North knows about any knowledge President Reagan has about the diversion of Iran arms-sale proceeds to aid Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Reagan has declared he knew nothing of such a diversion before it was disclosed by Attorney General Edwin Meese III in his news conference last Nov. 25.

Under the terms of an understanding reached last week by the committees and North's lawyer, Brendan Sullivan, North also is being given copies of relevant documents held by the two committees.

North's public testimony is expected to begin on July 7.

North, who is believed to be a primary target of a criminal investigation being conducted by Walsh, contends the Ethics in Government Act, under which Walsh was appointed by a special panel of judges, is unconstitutional.

EEC Fails To Agree On Funds

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Economic Community has agreed on a stopgap measure to hold off bankruptcy, but Britain blocked a proposal to create new funds for the group.

The 12 nations also shelved a proposed tax on imported vegetable oils and fats. Several nations said they feared the levy would cause a trade war with the United States, whose oil-producing soybean industry does $2 billion worth of business in the EEC each year.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, insisting on tougher budgetary discipline, on Tuesday rejected a 5-year funding plan proposed by Belgium. EEC budget decisions must be unanimous.

"The 11 others were totally unable to convince me that we should agree to an entire document without closely examining it," Mrs. Thatcher told reporters.

"I am not prepared to accept things without discussing them through ... That is not the way I do things, especially where money is concerned."

Lower-level officials will now work on the compromise in the hope of finding a solution in time for December's EEC summit in Copenhagen, Denmark.

The document sought to base EEC member dues on gross national product instead of the less lucrative sales tax revenues that now make up most of the bloc's income.

Mrs. Thatcher insisted the proposal was not strict enough on curbing farm spending, which takes up the lion's share of the annual EEC budget, while it committed the trade bloc to tap new resources to pay its bills.

"It is a shame we weren't able to get a unanimous consensus ... but we have managed some success," said Wilfried Martens, the Belgian prime minister and summit chairman.

The EEC members decided to cover an anticipated shortfall of $6 billion this year by delaying payments to farmers and transferring some of the deficit to 1988. Total EEC spending this year will amount to $47 billion, including the deficit.

After the summit of EEC leaders, the trade bloc's agriculture ministers agreed on a watered-down package of reforms designed to curb growing farm subsidies and surpluses.

The measures include a freeze of guaranteed prices for farmers' produce, plus reforms to curb overproduction. The package had been in dispute for more than three months, creating political tensions among some EEC members.

Soviet Lawmakers Accept Gorbachev's Reform Effort

By GARY LEE
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

MOSCOW — In a major victory for proponents of glasnost, or greater openness in government, the Supreme Soviet voted Tuesday to permit popular referendums on regional political and social issues and to let citizens appeal to the courts from decisions made by Communist Party officials.

The Soviet legislature also passed a law loosening Moscow's grip on enterprises throughout the Soviet Union. The measure is designed to encourage local decision-making and greater public involvement in Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev's economic reforms.

The three laws provide the legal underpinning for Gorbachev's key political and economic measures. They put the imprimatur of the highest Soviet legislative body, composed of 1,500 deputies from across the country, on the Kremlin leader's bid to loosen central control over the domestic economy and to broaden democracy.

The measures were passed on the second day of a two-day session in which the legislators underscored the action taken by the powerful Communist Party Central Committee last week when it showed its support of Gorbachev by adopting his economic reform program and promoting three of his allies to the ruling Politburo.

When the Supreme Soviet session closed, two deputies from distant provincial cities used a press conference here to drive home a point: that a Soviet-style "sagebrush rebellion" is brewing across the country, marked by a movement for less control by the Moscow-based party organs and greater initiative by local officials and citizens.

One of the deputies, Fyodor Morgun, a local party leader from the heart of the Ukrainian breadbasket, decried the hindrance of central control on agricultural production and gave a rousing cheer for laws that get central Communist Party organizations off the backs of the people.

"Unfortunately, we have had unprofitable collective farms," Morgun said, "and the reason for this is — too many instructions, wrong planning, poor management."

Morgun praised the legislation aimed at decentralizing state enterprises. Referring to his home city of Poltava in the Ukraine, he said, "The eyes of the people light up at the news that the role of Gosplan (the Moscow-based state planning commission) will be less and that local enterprises have the right to expand their view."

Gorbachev criticized Gosplan in a major speech in Moscow Thursday.

The new law on state enterprises reduces the role of Moscow-based ministries in the operation of local industries or businesses. It requires all enterprises to be self-supporting, and links wage scales to profits in order to provide worker incentives.

In his speech Thursday, Gorbachev made it clear that this decentralization law is the centerpiece of his array of economic reforms. It will become effective Jan. 1.

According to a description Tuesday by Tass, the official news agency, the law on public discussion "seals people's right to take part in the management and administration of state and public affairs and in the discussion and adoption of laws and measures."

France Requests Death For Barbie

By EDWARD CODY
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

LYON, France — The government Tuesday asked that Klaus Barbie be given the maximum punishment in France — life in prison — for crimes against humanity, saying the former Gestapo lieutenant "is still faithful to his Nazi ideals."

Chief Prosecutor Pierre Truche, summing up his case in the eighth and final week of a long-delayed trial, depicted the 73-year-old Barbie, called the "Butcher of Lyon," as an unrepentant torturer who went beyond orders to kill, maim and deport Jews and resistance activists as chief of the Lyon branch of the Nazi secret police, or Gestapo, from 1942 to 1944.

Truche's harsh portrait and request for a life sentence constituted the finale to a crescendo of agonizing testimony from victims of Nazi horrors who described Barbie's role in arrests, interrogations, torture and deportations to Hitler's death camps. It marked a dramatic end to four years of hesitation and preparation since Barbie was flown to France from his hideout in Bolivia in 1983, 32 years after the United States helped him flee Europe.

Barbie, who has denied responsibility for most of the atrocities attributed to him, was absent for Truche's appeal to the Lyon Assizes Court here on the bank of the Saone River. He walked out of his trial the third day, declaring he was extradited illegally from Bolivia and calling himself "a hostage, not a prisoner" and "a victim of a kidnapping." Since then he has made only two brief reappearances for identification by witnesses on orders from Presiding Judge Andre Cerdini.

Barbie's chief lawyer, Jacques Verges, was scheduled to sum up his defense arguments Wednesday and Thursday with help from two assistant defense lawyers, Jean-Martin M'Bemba and Nabil Bouaita. A verdict is expected Friday, according to a court announcement.

The midtrial addition to the defense team of M'Bemba, a Congolese, and Bouaita, an Algerian, seemed designed as an attempt to underline Verges' contention that the French government is unqualified to put Barbie on trial since it also has committed inhuman crimes in France's colonial past.

Before the trial began May 11, Verges repeatedly warned that he would put France on trial outside the courtroom, bringing out embarrassing revelations about French collaboration with Nazi occupation authorities and French abuses during the Algerian war.

Fire Put Out On Ship Carrying Explosives

BREST, France (AP) — Fire broke out this morning on an Indian cargo ship laden with explosives, but the crew extinguished the blaze and no one was injured, French maritime authorities reported.

The 13,482-ton Indian Grace sent out a distress call at dawn about 112 miles off Penmarch, in Brittany's South Finistere region, Brest maritime authorities said.

"The Indian Grace announced a fire in one of its holds, containing among other things explosives," the Brest Maritime Prefecture said.

The prefecture sent out a tug and a patrol plane, which confirmed that the fire had been extinguished "by submersion of the hold."

A radio station in northern Spain, Onda Pesquera or Fishermen's Airwaves, reported that an explosion rocked the ship, but French authorities said they did not know what caused the fire.

The Indian Grace was headed toward the port of Brest, but the prefecture said a French Marine team would board the boat and evaluate damages before allowing it to enter French territorial waters.

According to Lloyd's of London insurers' Register of Ships, the Indian Grace is owned by the India Steamship Co. Ltd. with its port of registry at Calcutta.

It was not immediately known where the ship was heading at the time of the accident, nor how large the crew was. Onda Pesquera said the ship normally would carry 30 to 50 crew members.

Wedding Vows Spoken Sunday

WILLIAMSTON — The wedding ceremony of Hazel Jo Johnson and Michael Stanley Walker took place Sunday at 3 p.m. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. James E. Drake in Piney Grove Baptist Church.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Johnson Jr. of Route 1, Williamston, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham L. Walker of Alton, Va.

The bride graduated from East Carolina University with a degree in community health and health education. She is attending graduate school at ECU and is employed by Manpower. The bridegroom is a graduate of ECU with a degree in urban planning and is employed by Fast Fare.

The honor attendant was the bride's sister, Cindy Hill of Daytona Beach, Fla. Bridesmaids included Patricia Shotwell of Alton, Va., sister of the bridegroom, Mary Jo Manning of Williamston and Joy Manning of Greenville, both cousins of the bride, Tammy Powell of Morehead City and Lynn Sullivan of Greenville.

Laura Ann Peele of Williamston, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Bobby Shotwell, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Kevin Shotwell, nephew of the bridegroom, both of Alton, Va., Stephen Holster of Greenville and Rodney Corey of Williamston, Neil Johnson of Greenville and Todd Taylor of Williamston, all cousins of the bride.

Danny Griffin of Williamston and June Moore of Alton, Va., aunt of the bridegroom, presented wedding music.

The bride wore a formal gown of white bridal satin accented with re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls. The gown had a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, elbow length puffed sleeves and a full skirt which extended into a cathedral length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a crown of silk flowers and pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and ivy with white ribbons.

The honor attendant wore an off-shoulder gown of coral satin styled with a sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves and a fitted bodice ending in a vented A-line skirt. She carried a cascade bouquet of sonja roses, carnations and day lilies with matching ribbons.

Bridesmaids wore peach gowns identical to that of the matron of honor and carried nosegays of daisies, sonja roses and carnations interspersed with baby's breath.

The flower girl wore a white dotted swiss gown with short puffed sleeves and full gathered skirt accented with a ruffle and a peach cummerbund. She carried a basket of mixed summer flowers.

Cecelia Horton of New Bern and Kim Wilder of Halifax, Va., niece of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register. Wedding programs were passed out by Melissa Reason of Jamesville, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Bruce Peele of Williamston, aunt of the bride, directed the ceremony.

The bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. E.T. Taylor greeted guests, who were directed to the refreshment table by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wynne. Susie White presided at the guest register and goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Reason.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Key Largo, Fla.

A wedding day brunch was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Peele for the wedding party and out-of-town guests. A rehearsal dinner and pig picking was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the church fellowship hall.

Several showers and parties were held for the couple, including a social hour and kitchen gadget party.

Words Can Also Hurt Children

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Have you ever abused your child? Perhaps without realizing it, you have. Words can hit as hard as a fist. For example:

"You disgust me. Just shut up!"

"Get out of here. I'm sick of looking at your face!"

"You're pathetic. Can't you do anything right?"

"You're more trouble than you're worth."

"Why don't you go and find some other place to live?"

"I wish you were never born."

Children believe whatever their parents tell them. Next time you lose your temper, stop for a moment, and listen to what you're saying. You might not believe your words.

Take time out. Don't take it out on your kid.

Here are 12 alternatives to lashing out at your kid:

1. Put your hands over your mouth. Count to 10. Or better yet, 20.

2. Stop in your tracks. Press your lips together and breathe deeply.

3. Phone a friend.

4. Phone the prerecorded weather information number.

5. Say the alphabet out loud.

6. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a leisurely walk.

7. Splash cold water on your face, or take a warm bath.

8. Pick up a pencil and write down your thoughts.

9. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child hears.

10. Turn on the radio or TV.

11. Hug a pillow.

12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866, Chicago, Ill. 60690. You'll be glad you did.

This is a non-profit organization. The information is free for the asking, but if you are able to send even a small donation, it will be greatly appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced many years ago and I was left to raise our two children with no help from him. They are now 11 and 13 years old. My mom took care of my kids all the years I worked.

I am going with a gentleman who loves me. He is 49, divorced and has two teen-age children who live with his wife, but he supports them in style. He is well-off financially and just came into some inherited money.

He has offered to marry me and buy me a home — on one condition: My children cannot live with us. My mother practically raised my kids, so he thinks they should live with her. Abby, my mother is 72 and she has worked her butt off looking after my kids, and I just can't lay that on her after all she's done for me.

I love this man and he treats me very well, but we fight about this all the time. My kids are good kids, and they come first with me. Please tell me what to do. He has given me an Aug. 15 deadline. — ALL TORN UP

DEAR TORN: Tell the gentleman if he wants to marry you, it's a package deal — triple or nothing. If he says, "Nothing," don't eat your heart out. Would you really want a man who asked you to abandon your children?

(For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Smallest Church Gets Many Visitors

By JANE M. ANDERSON

Associated Press Writer

SILVER LAKE, W. Va. — Elizabeth Milkint concedes that what is billed as the "Smallest Church in 48 States" really isn't, but the chapel and adjoining wishing well, picnic area and duck pond remain a big tourist attraction.

The nation has added two states since 1957, when Mrs. Milkint and her husband Peter built the 24- by 12-foot "Our Lady of the Pines" church off U.S. 219 just across the border from Red House, Md.

Today, Mrs. Milkint says she's certain there are smaller churches — she knows of at least two. But she says "Our Lady of the Pines" is the smallest "serviceable" church in the country. It seats 12 worshipers, just enough for a tiny wedding party.

"We've had quite a few marriages there, with people from Michigan, Ohio, Maryland, Virginia ..." Mrs. Milkint says. "They came by the church, saw it and fell in love with it."

The Preston County church also has had hundreds of thousands of visitors, from every state and at least 17 foreign countries.

In 1972, the only year the Milkints kept track, more than 37,000 people — enough to pack the church 3,083 times — stopped by. Since then, Mrs. Milkint says, the numbers have grown every year.

"We have 1,000 a week in the good months," she says.

The Milkints built the church as a monument to their parents and it costs about $1,100 a year to maintain.

The cost is defrayed somewhat by selling postcards and other souvenirs. Since there is no full-time attendant at the site, visitors are on their honor to leave the requested 25 or 50 cents for each purchase.

Mrs. Milkint, whose husband died in 1979, lived in a house partly hidden by trees just a few hundred yards behind the church.

"Our Lady of the Pines" is a Roman Catholic church, but most of the weddings have been Protestant, she says.

The visitors hear about the church by word-of-mouth or see one of the signs proclaiming "The Smallest Church in 48 States" along the road. Some even come by tour bus, U.S. 219 is on the route to Canaan Valley ski resort and Blackwater Falls State Park and many people stop along the way.

When visitors arrive, they find a steeped church just slightly larger than a child's playhouse, directly in front of another small building with a sign that says "Mailing Office."

Inside the church, six miniature pews line the walls, under the stained glass windows. All the fixtures are handmade, including the cross above the altar, the tabernacle and the 14 stations of the cross.

The mailing office is even smaller than the church. There are postcards for sale and signs proclaiming, "Outgoing Mail Daily; Window Service Every Friday the 13th; Parcel Post on Feb. 29."

"A lot of people wanted to know if there were pictures or cards of the church," Mrs. Milkint says. "That gave us the idea of having cards in there, and then we built the post office."

Even though the mail center is not a real post office, Mrs. Milkint says the mail goes out every day. "I pick it up and put it in my mailbox."

Kids Learning Table Manners Say Unusual Things

By TERI CAPSHAW
High Point Enterprise
An AP Member Exchange Feature
HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Teaching table manners to 40 fifth-graders in one hour might cause palpitations in Miss Manners, but not in Sandy Dillard.

"All I can do is alert them that there are certain rules that govern eating and etiquette," Ms. Dillard said calmly after the session. "It's a beginning. They're still innocent enough that you can lead them."

Each year, Ms. Dillard, the child nutrition director for High Point Public Schools, leads lessons on proper etiquette and a history of food to fifth-graders in five elementary schools. The piece de resistance is a special luncheon at each school where the students practice what they've learned.

Oak Hill Elementary's fifth-graders minded their p's and q's at the luncheon, but the scene was quite different a few weeks earlier during the etiquette lesson.

Several napkins remained on the table and not in laps where they were supposed to be; elbows were propped on the table; forks were held backwards; knives were inserted in prongs to practice cutting (you cut to the side of your fork); and some knives rested half on the table and half on the plate (they're supposed to be across the top of the plate when not in use).

Those habits and others, such as sitting too close to the table and tipping a glass so high that a "moustache" forms, were discouraged by Ms. Dillard.

"Don't tip the glass so liquid comes over your lip," she said. "That's what little babies do. Keep it at a lower level.

"Any time you're going to take a drink, you need to blot your lips so you don't get any crumbs from your mouth on your glass," she added.

Ms. Dillard started the session by explaining what a fork, knife and spoon are used for and where they're located in a place setting, along with the napkin, glass and dessert and salad plates.

"We try to leave about 1 inch from the edge of the table to where the utensils start," she said. "There's a special way the napkin is folded: It's folded once, twice and then again. That's very important."

That point became obvious when she demonstrated how the napkin opens when the corner closest to the plate is picked up. "And then you put it right across your lap," she said.

How to sit down properly at a table required a more detailed explanation: "When you come to the table and approach the chair, take a little step to the left of your chair," she said. "Put your hand on the back of the chair and pull it out. Now, you've got to put your weight on your left and swing that (right) foot in and let yourself down and the other in. Now keep your shoulders straight..."

"Now sit up. Don't slouch. Chin up. You might as well learn that now," she added.

The lesson also included some frank talk on troublesome topics, such as how to remove gristle from your mouth and what to do if you have to burp, cough or sneeze at the table. "If we get mind over matter, we don't have to burp," Ms. Dillard said.

"If you have to cough, you bend your head a little to the left and cough into your napkin."

No sooner were the words out of her mouth than the cafeteria reverberated as students practiced the maneuver.

Got to sneeze? "You do exactly as you would do for a cough." What about blowing your nose? "This is horrible. What would we do?" Ms. Dillard asked the group.

Though several students thought their napkin would do the trick, Ms. Dillard disagreed. "You would not blow your nose at the table and you would not use your napkin," she said.

"You just quietly get away from the table and use a tissue to blow your nose. Then you quietly take your seat."

Removing gristle, or food that can't be chewed, prompted the most amusing responses from the students.

"Spit it into your napkin," one boy volunteered.

"No, no, no," Ms. Dillard replied. "We never spit into our napkin."

Another boy recommended spitting the object into his spoon. And a girl said she'd go to the nearest garbage can and spit it out. Wrong on both counts.

You put the piece of food by your front teeth, raise your hand as if to cover a cough and at the same time use the tip of your tongue to push the food into your hand. The article is then discreetly laced on the side of your plate, Ms. Dillard said.

"That's essentially the rules we have," she told the students. "They won't become a part of you until you use them. You have to force yourself and say, 'I'm going to do it the proper way.'"

Miss Manners couldn't have said it better.

Cotton Candy Colors Add To Cardigan

Frothy and sweet, this yummy sweater is sure to be a welcome treat for your summer-into-fall wardrobe. Its cool, airy look is achieved with a beautifully textured cotton fashion yarn that creates random pastel patches on a solid color background.

Alternating bands of long stitches are easily achieved by using two different needle sizes — an effective, but beginner-easy way of creating a lacy look. Short, roomy sleeves and a drop shoulder add to the simple styling of this soft, high cardigan. Six rows of garter stitch alternate with 14 rows of stockinette — what could be more simple?

Easy-to-follow directions are given for petite, small, medium, large and extra-large sizes to fit actual bust measurements of 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches respectively. The stitch gauge is a 4-1/2 stitches to the inch.

To obtain directions for making the Cotton Candy Cardigan, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-062887 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-062887 by sending a check or money order for $19.95 for petite or small, $23.95 for medium, large or extra large, to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and white yarn with cotton candy pink and lavender patches of color. Buttons are not included.

Dear Pat: I was intrigued by a sweater I saw recently. It had a single floral design on the left front that appeared to have been worked in needlepoint. I came home and experimented, but could find no way to duplicate this needlepoint look on my knitting. Do you know how this is done? — Nancy H., Pittsburgh

This is a truly fascinating technique, Nancy, that is surprisingly easy for anyone familiar with counted cross stitch or with needlepoint.

Back in the mid-1960s, I had been invited to judge a needlework exhibit at the Florida State Fair in Tampa. There were examples of almost every conceivable needle art on display, but I could not keep my eyes off an elegant velvet skirt embellished with a single needlepoint rose.

Being a judge, I could examine this entry closely, but this only increased my curiosity for I could not tell how the needlepoint stitches had been so perfectly worked on this velvet fabric. It was obvious that it had not been attached to the fabric after being worked on separately.

I interviewed the creator and learned that she has used "waste canvas" to work this seeming miracle.

The waste canvas that is available today is a double-thread, 10-to-the-inch white canvas with blue lines on it. When you see canvas fitting this description, you know that it is to be used as a grid (or guide) for working cross-stitch on any knitted, crocheted or woven fabric that would not usually be practical as a cross stitch or needlepoint base.

Any chart designed for needlepoint or cross stitch may be used. When you have selected your chart design, count the number of chart squares in each direction and cut your piece of waste canvas to correspond, allowing at least a half-inch margin all around. You can determine the width and depth of your finished design by dividing the number of chart squares in each direction by 10 (the number of stitches per inch of canvas).

Baste the canvas to the fabric to be decorated, carefully positioning it exactly where you want the design to appear. Using embroidery floss or Persian wool, work the design in cross stitch being careful to cover the double threads with every stitch. Do not work between these double threads.

When your design is completed, dampen the canvas area thoroughly.

This will dissolve the sizing that was used to make the canvas stiff. It now becomes limp and slightly sticky.

At this point you can pull out the canvas threads, one at a time, from under your stitches, using eyebrow tweezers. When this is done, lay the piece flat to dry and you have a design masterpiece.

You might wonder why I specify cross stitch, yet call it needlepoint.

Actually the two crafts are interchangeable, with cross stitch being just one of many needlepoint stitches. You might try one of the needlepoint tent stitches, but the cross stitch seems to be the best choice for this technique.

Delegates Attend Meet

Patrice Alexander, Terry Coltrain, Debbie Darling, Kelly Dickens, Freda Lee and Pam Parrott were Greenville delegates to the N.C. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs state convention in Charlotte recently.

Patrice Alexander was recognized during the convention as District X Director.

Terry Coltrain was installed as the Greenville chapter's president.

Ms. Coltrain has been active in BPW/NC since 1985. She has served as corresponding secretary and foundation chairman of the Greenville chapter. She is employed as an administrator in separations and cost allocations by Carolina Telephone in Tarboro.

Ms. Alexander has been active in BPW/NC since 1980. She has served as president, second vice-president, first vice-president and as chairman of several committees. At the state level, she has served as the 1986-87

Spotlight on Women Conference chairman. She is employed as an occupational program consultant in the Division of Consultation, Prevention and Education of the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

The Greenville BPW is one of more than 80 BPW groups in North Carolina. The purpose of the organization is to speak up for the concerns of working women.

ESA Officers Installed

New officers were installed Tuesday evening for the Alpha Omega chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha. The candlelight "Ceremony of the Roses" installation was conducted by Barbara Woods.

Officers installed for 1987-88 were president, Jean Carson; vice president, Ann Davenport; secretary, Hilda Barwick; treasurer, Carolyn Hatcher; parliamentarian, Judy Baker; education director, Ginny Cooper; and junior past president, Betty Williams.

The meeting was held at the Beef Barn with husbands as special guests.

Award and achievement certificates awarded at the recent state convention were presented. Special gifts were presented to Rosemary Smith who will be leaving the Greenville chapter and will be affiliated with the Raleigh chapter, and to outgoing president Ms. Williams. Special recognition was given to Nellie Taylor, Woman of the Year for the chapter and to Jim Woods who is the 1987 N.C. State Council Man of ESA.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices hovered in a narrow range today, getting off to an uncertain start on the second half of 1987.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped 1.92 to 2,416.61 in the first half hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 6 to 5 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 508 up, 603 down and 459 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 27.21 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Santa Fe Southern Pacific rose 3/4 to 50 1/2 in active trading. As expected, the Interstate Commerce Commission on Tuesday voted for the second time to reject the proposed merger of the Southern Pacific and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroads.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .25 to 170.82. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .18 at 338.31.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 28.38 points to 2,418.53.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 165.48 million shares, against 142.49 million in the previous session.

Korea

nism, arbitrary rule and extreme confrontation that persisted over the past four decades must now be consigned to the dust bin of history," he said. "I thus decided to fully accept Mr. Roh's recommendations and take measures to promote epochal democratic development and national harmony," he said.

"I clearly recognize the fact that ... the general public has an ardent desire to choose the president directly," he said.

The president infuriated many Koreans by announcing April 13 he was suspending debate with the opposition on democratic reforms until after the Seoul 1988 Summer Olympics.

Chun today criticized the opposition for being inflexible.

"There are no prospects for even an iota of concession from the opposition," he said.

According to Roh's eight-point plan, politics would not be regulated, people would have the right to express their views freely and the government would respect local government.

A key demand is an end to controls on press freedom, such as a ban on newspapers having correspondents in the provinces and regulations requiring journalists to have official credentials.

Freedom Bell

RALEIGH (AP) — The new Freedom Bell arrived in Raleigh Tuesday for a ceremony on the steps of the state Capitol — one of the many stops on the bell's 10,000-mile cross country tour.

Escorted by state and local police out of Georgia after a celebration in Atlanta on Monday, the bell was expected to draw thousands of people in North Carolina, officials said.

When the Liberty Bell replica stopped in Stone Mountain, Ga., on Sunday, hundreds of tourists were able to hear the fresh sounds of freedom before the bell arrives in Philadelphia for a formal presentation to the mayor and the people of Philadelphia by Nichiren Shoshu Soka Gakkai of America.

The Buddhist lay group is underwriting the cross country travels of the bell, which started from Concord, Mass., on April 28 and continued to Southern California, stopping at several major cities along the way.

Town Manager

WILMINGTON (AP) — Chadbourne's Town Council has decided it can do without a full-time town manager — at least until the current money crunch eases.

The council's budget for fiscal 1987-88, adopted by a unanimous vote, cuts the town manager's salary from $23,500 to $10,600 with the understanding that the position will no longer be full time, as it has been since the mid-1970s.

The savings will be used to boost the pay of other town employees by 2 percent and to fund the Recreation Commission, the town council said. The commission is slated to get $4,000 — not the $11,500 originally requested, but a far cry from the $250 recommended by former Town Manager Steve Wyatt.

Wyatt, who resigned June 1 to become manager of Polk County in western North Carolina, denounced the reduction of his old job as "penny wise but pound foolish."

Fish Kill

FALLON, Nev. (AP) — Ten thousand fish have died within the last week at the Stillwater Wildlife Management Area, not far from where an estimated 7 million small fish died earlier in the year, officials said.

Refuge manager Ron Anglin said Monday he had no explanation for the deaths at Lead Lake of carp, Sacramento black fish and catfish. Anglin said the earlier die-off was a result of water that became increasingly brackish as it evaporated after a dry winter.

Rose Still Inspires Reds' Hustle

By The Associated Press

For 24 seasons, Pete Rose used hustle to amass 4,256 hits. Kurt Stillwell and Tracy Jones used it to give their manager an important victory.

Stillwell scored from second base on Jones' infield single in the 10th inning Tuesday night as Cincinnati beat Houston 5-4 in a showdown for first place in the National League West.

Jones beat out a grounder to shortstop Dickie Thon and Stillwell kept running, easily beating the relay home with a head-first slide, lifting Cincinnati 1½ games ahead of second-place Houston.

"We stole the game," Rose said. "You don't see many games end that way. It's a great way to win a game — two walks and an infield hit. It was just good, aggressive play."

Stillwell and Kal Daniels drew one-out walks from Larry Andersen, 5-4. Terry Francona fouled out before Jones hit his high-hop grounder to Thon.

"That's the name of the game," Stillwell said. "When you're slumping like he (Jones) is and like I am, you've just got to keep running and see what happens."

Umpire Dutch Rennert called Jones safe at first on a close play, and first baseman Glenn Davis didn't have a chance to make a good throw home to get Stillwell.

"If you can't get any hits, at least you can hustle," Jones said. "We've both been in little slumps. If you hustle, something might happen — and it did."

Astros Manager Hal Lanier angrily disputed the call at first with Rennert.

"He said he got the play (called) right," Lanier said. "That's all he said. Of course, I disagreed with it."

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal beat Chicago 5-4; New York edged St. Louis 3-2; Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 6-4; Los Angeles blanked San Diego 4-0; and San Francisco beat Atlanta 5-2.

Reds 5, Astros 4

The Reds took a 4-1 lead as right-hander Mike Scott struggled in the first four innings. But the Astros used Billy Hatcher's single and consecutive sixth-inning homers by Jose Cruz and Alan Ashby off Bill Gullickson to tie the score 4-4.

"How can I say we played well?" Rose said of his team's performance. "We had six hits and two errors."

We had one-third as many errors as hits. (But) we'll see that last play on the highlight films."

Mets 3, Cardinals 2

Gary Carter led off the ninth by drawing starter Greg Mathews' second walk of the game. Kevin McReynolds sacrificed against reliever Bill Dawley, moving Dykstra to second. After Ricky Horton intentionally walked Lee Mazzilli, Johnson lined a single into the left-field corner.

The host Mets won for just the second time in eight games with St. Louis this season to move within 6½ games of the first-place Cardinals in the NL East.

Gooden, 5-1, allowed eight hits, struck out nine and walked two. He has won five straight decisions against the Cardinals since April 24, 1985.

Expos 5, Cubs 4

Dennis Martinez continued his successful return to the majors with a seven-hitter for 8 1/3 innings to help host Montreal snap a three-game losing streak. Martinez won his third straight decision without a loss since being called up from Class AAA Indianapolis on June 8.

Chicago reliever Dickie Noles hit Andres Galarraga with a pitch in the eighth. Galarraga charged the mound and took a swing at Noles and players from both benches charged onto the field. Both Noles and Galarraga were ejected.

The Expos snapped a 1-1 tie when they scored four runs in the third off starter Steve Trout, 4-3.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

Steve Bedrosian extended his major-league record with his 13th save in 13 straight appearances by getting pinch-hitter Sid Bream to hit into a double play and end the game.

The visiting Pirates scored two runs in the ninth on R.J. Reynolds' RBI double and a run-scoring single by Mike LaValliere off reliever Kent Tekulve. Bedrosian came on to get his 20th save.

Juan Samuel's leadoff home run and Von Hayes' RBI triple keyed a three-run first inning.

Dodgers 4, Padres 0

Orel Hershiser pitched a seven-hitter and ended the month of June with a record of 4-0 and a 0.90 earned run average.

Hershiser, 9-7, struck out seven and walked one in winning for the fifth time in his last six decisions. The right-hander's 11th career shutout tied him with teammate Fernando Valenzuela and Pittsburgh's Rick Reuschel for the National League lead in complete games with six.

"All my wins this month have been on grass," Hershiser said. "Tonight I kept the ball down, changed speeds with my curve and my change is coming around. And when you're getting all your pitches over the plate, you're going to be tough to beat."

Tony Gwynn extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a third-inning double for visiting San Diego.

Giants 5, Braves 2

Eddie Milner and Joel Youngblood homered at Candlestick Park.

Right-hander Jeff Robinson, 5-6, pitched two innings in relief of starter Mike Krukow and Scott Garrelts got his ninth save. Krukow, who has been hampered by arm problems this year after winning 20 games in 1986, left after five innings, with a "tired shoulder."

Pitt's Early Lead Vanishes As Edenton Rolls, 26-11

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

EDENTON — Pitt County moved out to an early 7-1 lead against Edenton Tuesday night in American Legion baseball action only to find that not only did the bottom drop out, the roof also caved in.

By the time Edenton finished pounding Post 39 into the ground the rest of the way, Post 40 had come up with a 26-11 drubbing of Pitt County, just about ending any hopes Pitt had of finishing in first place in the regular season standings.

The loss drops Pitt to 9-7 overall with two games left — both with Edenton, one of them tonight in Greenville at Harrington Field at 8 p.m. The other is back in Edenton on Monday.

Eric Jarman took the loss, giving up 10 runs and 11 hits in three-plus innings. He somewhat made up for his problems on the mound with two three-run homers.

But even those were overshadowed by the Edenton hitting. Post 40 banged out 26 hits, including grand slam homers by Todd Hunter and Guy Spruill.

Spruill, who had three hits, drove in seven runs. Woody Stetson led the Edenton campaign with five hits, while Nash Long and Derrick Rogers each picked up four. Spruill and Mark Stanton each garner three hits while Brad Hurdle, Hunter and Brent Askew each had two.

Ty Little led Pitt with four hits while Shane Adams, Jarman and Robbie McDonald each had two. Edenton took the initial lead with a run in the bottom of the first. Hurdle opened up with a single and advanced on a wild pitch and a passed ball. He scored when Stetson singled.

Pitt came back to score seven times in the top of the second. David Daniels led off with a walk and McDonald reached on an error. Tom Moye grounded out to score Daniels. Bronswell Patrick doubled in McDonald and Little singled. Hunter Clark walked to load the bases and Adams singled in Patrick. Jason Galloway's sacrifice fly brought in Little and both Clark and Adams scored on Jarman's first homer, that to center.

Edenton, however, rallied for four runs in the bottom of the inning to close to within 7-5. Spruill and Robert James each hit two-run doubles to highlight the inning.

Then, in the fourth, Edenton charged ahead with six more runs. Spruill led off with a solo shot and Post 40 took advantage of three Pitt errors in the frame to move out to an 11-7 lead.

Four more crossed in the sixth on Hunter's grand slam. Rogers had opened the inning with a single and Hurdle and Spruill had both walked, loading the bases.

Nine more poured in during the eighth, which was highlighted by Spruill's second homer, this one a grand slam. The other two runs crossed in the eighth, both scoring on a single by Long.

Snow Hill Bombs Kinston, 18-1

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team got outstanding pitching from Mike Vandiford and stormed past Kinston, 18-1, Tuesday night.

Vandiford, who was not even expected to be able to play, coming off a virus infection, pitched six strong innings, allowing no hits, walking two and striking out eight. He faced only 21 batters in the six frames he worked.

"He was just too tired to go on," Coach Jim Fulghum said. "We had to take him out."

Barry Ginn came on for the final three innings, scattering three hits.

Snow Hill got all the runs it would need in the first inning. T.J. Johnson led off with a single and Barry Ginn walked. Gary Ginn then doubled to drive in Johnson. Barry Ginn scored on Shay Beamon's ground out and Tommy Eason singled in Gary Ginn.

Snow Hill went on to score 10 big runs in the third inning, which was highlighted by Eason hitting two three-run homers, giving him seven RBI for the evening. Two each crossed in the fifth and seventh, with one final run in the eighth.

The long Kinston run came in the seventh inning.

Eason, Johnson and Gary Ginn each had four hits for Snow Hill while Beamon added three.

The victory boosts the Snow Hill record to 7-6. Snow Hill plays at Rocky Mount on Thursday.

Connors, Shriver Score Brilliant Comeback Wins

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — They were two of Wimbledon's great comebacks.

First, there was Pam Shriver, down 1-4 in the final set to Sylvia Hanika of West Germany and facing two match points.

Then, even more remarkably, there was 34-year-old Jimmy Connors, down two sets and 1-4 in the third to Mikael Pernfors of Sweden, his hopes of a quarterfinal berth all but dashed.

But with America's chances in the 101st Wimbledon championships fading badly Tuesday, Shriver and Connors dug deep into their reserves of strength and stamina and somehow pulled out both matches to reach the round of eight.

Both were eliminated last year in the first round. Both brought their victories Tuesday down to one thing: Guts.

"For a change, when the chips were on the table, I came up with some good stuff," Shriver said after her 6-7, 7-5, 10-8 defeat of Hanika. "It was as tough as heck."

Connors, who has failed to reach the quarterfinals here only three times in 17 attempts, said after his 1-6, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Pernfors: "The best thing I did out there was grind and fight."

Connors and Shriver were to try to continue their advance today on Court No. 1. Shriver, the No. 5 seed, was to play No. 4 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia in a women's quarterfinal, while Connors, No. 7 in the men's draw, was to meet unseeded Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslavia.

To make up for last week's backlog of matches caused by the rain, organizers scheduled the entire quarterfinal round for this afternoon.

Defending women's champion Martina Navratilova was to open on Court No. 1 against Diane Balestrat of Australia.

Ivan Lendl, the world's No. 1 men's player, continued his bid for a first Wimbledon crown against Henri Leconte of France in the opening match on Centre Court. They were to be followed by Steffi Graf against Gabriela Sabatini, the game's two leading teen-agers, in a repeat of the French Open semifinal last month, which Graf won in three sets.

Then Mats Wilander of Sweden, the No. 3 seed, was to go against No. 11 Pat Cash of Australia.

The match-ups were being completed on Court No. 2 where Stefan Edberg was to play Anders Jarryd in an all-Swedish match and Chris Evert took on Claudia Kohde-Kilsch.

Lendl, who struggled in earlier rounds on a surface he says never makes him feel entirely comfortable, won in straight sets for the first time, beating Johan Kriek of the United States, 6-3, 7-6, 6-2.

Leconte also won in straight sets over Andres Gomez of Ecuador, as did Cash over another Frenchman, Guy Forget, and Zivojinovic over Australia's Peter Doohan, the second-round conqueror of two-time defending champion Boris Becker.

Doohan's Wimbledon dream ended abruptly as he was wiped out 6-2, 6-4, 7-6.

He managed to save three match points in a 13-11 third-set tiebreaker but succumbed to Zivojinovic's superior serving.

"If I had won that third set, he would have had a real dogfight on his hands," said Doohan, who rallied from two sets down in his previous match against Leif Shiras.

"Bobo served better than Becker," Doohan said. "He got more out of them. I haven't seen a serve like that in a long time."

The three Swedes left in the men's draw each dropped a set in their fourth-round matches, Wilander against Emilio Sanchez of Spain, Edberg against Jacob Hlasek of Switzerland and Jarryd against Soviet qualifier Alexandr Volkov.

Navratilova, looking invincible on her favorite grass surface, had another quick victory, 6-3, 6-1 over Gigi Fernandez of Puerto Rico.

Evert, still struggling to find her best form, wasted three match points on her serve before reaching the quarterfinals for the 15th time in 16 appearances, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5 over Ros Fairbank of South Africa.

Other winners were the second-seeded Graf over Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia, No. 4 Sukova over Raffaella Reggi of Italy without losing a game, No. 6 Sabatini of Argentina over Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union, No. 8 Kohde-Kilsch over Sweden's Catarina Lindqvist and Australia's Balestrat over America's Mary Joe Fernandez.

But after all the thrilling tennis in the afternoon, the most excitement came under an early-evening sun with Connors' spectacular recovery.

"I don't think I've been that far down and won before," Connors, renowned for his fighting spirit, said.

Connors was outplayed for 2½ sets, spraying unforced errors into the net and moving poorly.

Defeat looked a certainty. But suddenly, the tiger in Connors roared.

Taking the ball earlier, he began to hit deep, accurate groundstrokes and sharp, well-angled volleys. He broke Pernfors and won the third set but the Swede moved up 3-0 in the fourth and Connors looked in trouble again.

With his confidence restored, however, Connors went back on the attack, ripped off the next five games and pulled even at two sets all.

Now, it was Pernfors who was back-pedaling as Connors went in for the kill. A stretched muscle on his thigh did not trouble the American and he put together another four-game string, squeezing the last resistance out of his opponent.

Connors was asked whether he was embarrassed by his performance early in the first two sets.

"I didn't have to be embarrassed. I was out there being kicked," he said. "But believe me, my ego was hurt. Six-one, 6-1 is a pretty good spanking."

Winning the third set, he said, lifted his confidence and possibly discouraged Pernfors.

"Once I broke back (in the fourth set), I felt I should just stay in there and dig and grind, and do what it takes," Connors said. "Once I won the fourth set, I was kind of rolling. I was not fighting uphill any more."

"Now I'm in the hunt," Pernfors said Connors just raised his game at the critical time.

"Jimmy is known for that," Pernfors said. "He is such a great hustler that you know if he has the opportunity to come back, he'll take it."

"That's what he did today."

Happy Winner!

Jimmy Connors throws up his arms in jubilation as he defeats Mikael Pernfors in their men's singles fourth round match on Centre Court at Wimbledon Thursday. Connors battled back from two sets down to win 1-6, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 to reach the quarterfinals. (AP Laserphoto)

Fenner Will Plead Not Guilty

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — An attorney for Derrick Fenner says the North Carolina football star will plead not guilty to murder and all the other charges against him.

"There won't be any plea bargain, not that there won't be an offer from the state," said attorney Joel Worshil. "The only way we will not have a trial is if they dismiss the charges."

Worshil said Tuesday that Fenner was not at the apartment complex the night that a 19-year-old man was killed in what police said was part of a drug "turf war." He maintained that witness identifications were erroneous.

Fenner was indicted Tuesday by a Prince George's County grand jury on murder and other charges connected to a killing believed to be part of a drug "turf war."

The grand jury charged Fenner with murder, two counts of use of a handgun, attempted first degree murder, assault with attempt to disable and malicious shooting in connection with the death of Marcellus Leach.

Leach, 19, was shot to death May 23 in the courtyard of a Hyattsville, Md. apartment complex, Prince George's County police said. A second teenager was wounded.

Worshil said he would file court papers next week asking for bond on the grounds that Fenner is no threat to flee the area and should be deemed trustworthy because he turned himself in to police.

But Mary Lanni Scherstrom, the Maryland assistant state's attorney who will prosecute both cases against Fenner, said she would oppose bond on the basis that Fenner is a risk to the community.

No trial dates have been set.

Fenner, 20, also was indicted Tuesday on charges of transporting a handgun and possessing cocaine.

Those charges stem from an incident April 9 when Fenner was arrested by police who found a revolver and vials of white powder in a truck he was driving.

Fenner, who lives in Oxon Hill, Md., has been in jail since he was arrested on murder charges June 3.

The University of North Carolina tailback led the Atlantic Coast Conference last season in rushing with a 328-yard effort against the University of Virginia.

In Leach's death, Fenner was indicted on charges of murder and using a handgun in the commission of a crime. In Robinson's shooting, Fenner was indicted on charges of attempted murder, use of a handgun in a crime, assault with intent to disable and malicious shooting.

The murder and attempted murder charges each carry a maximum sentence of life in prison; the other charges could possibly yield a total of 40 years in prison.

In the drug and weapon charges from April, where Fenner was found in possession of 25 vials of cocaine and a .38-caliber revolver with ammunition, the athlete faces a maximum of seven years in prison and up to $27,500 in fines.

Evans Realty.....13
Sunnyside Eggs.....8

WINTERVILLE — Steve Evans Realty downed Sunnyside Eggs, 13-8, in the Winterville Pee-Wee League Tuesday.

Evans was led by Jet Harrell and Katy Rexford. Sunnyside was led by Chris Scott and Carter Davis.

Garris-Evans.....1

Ben Edwards banged out three hits and Mark Taylor pitched a three-hitter as Hendrix & Dail romped to a 12-1 victory over Garris-Evans in the first round of the Prep League's post-season tournament Tuesday night.

Hendrix & Dail advances into the winners' bracket of the double elimination event, and will face regular season champ First Citizens on Thursday at 6 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium. Garris-Evans, in the losers' bracket, will meet the loser of that game on Tuesday at 6 p.m. at Guy Smith.

Hendrix & Dail broke open a scoreless tie in the third inning, scoring seven times. Jeffrey Freeman led off with a single, moving up on a wild pitch. Edwards then brought him in with a single. Taylor reached on an error and Eric Smith singled to score Edwards. Marty Whichard grounded out, scoring Taylor. Richard Brittle singled in Smith, then moved to third on two wild pitches. Chuck Williams grounded out, scoring Brittle. Chris Haddock walked and Jay Kuykendall doubled. Both runners scored when Freeman reached on an error.

H&D added one in the fourth and four more in the fifth. The lone Garris-Evans run came in the fourth inning.

Kuykendall and Freeman each added two hits for H&D while Josh Potter had two hits to lead Garris-Evans.

Little League

Coca-Cola.....15
Lions.....5

Coca-Cola, the regular season champ in the North State Little League, romped to a 15-5 win over the Lions in the league tournament semifinals Tuesday.

Coke will now face runner-up Sportsworld in the finals of the tournament today at 6 p.m. at Elm Street Park. The winner advances to face the Tar Heel League winner in the best-of-three City Championship series.

Coke got all it needed in the first inning, scoring seven times. Adam Charlton reached on a fielder's choice and Hays Lambert was safe on an error. Alex Darden singled in Charlton and James Ebron was hit by a pitch, loading the bases.

Robert Barnes reached on a fielder's choice that scored Lambert. Darden came over on a wild pitch and Jacob Zonn walked. Ron Clemons singled to drive in Ebron and Barnes and Ken Coward's double scored Zonn and Clemons.

Coke added two in the second, five in the third and one in the fifth. The Lions got one in the bottom of the first, two in the second and two more in the fifth.

Coward, Lambert and Darden each collected two hits for Coke, while Carlton Holder had three and Deke Herrin and Dean Barrett each had two for the Lions.

Eveready.....0

Shae Harper picked up four hits and pitched a five-hit shutout as Sportsworld crushed Eveready, 25-0, in the semifinals of the North State Little League tournament Tuesday.

Sportsworld, which was the runner-up in regular season, will face top-seeded Coca-Cola today at 6 p.m. at Elm Street Park for the championship of the league. The winner advances into the City Championship best-of-three series with the Tar Heel winner.

Sportsworld got all it would need in the first, scoring three times. Joel Fickling reached on an error and moved up on a wild pitch. Russell Oats also was safe on an error. Dante Daniels' sacrifice fly scored Fickling and Harper singled in Oats. Harper advanced on a fielder's choice, took third on a passed ball and scored on Shep Skinner's single.

Sportsworld then added 15 runs in the second inning, three more in the third and four in the fourth.

Daniels also had four hits while Skinner added three and Richard Ray and Oats each had two. No one had more than one for Eveready.

Moose.....7
Wellcome.....6

Todd Mitchum and Jason Krause each had two hits as the Moose slipped past Wellcome, 7-6, in the semifinals of the Tar Heel Little League tournament Tuesday.

All seven runs scored in the second inning for the Moose. Jimmy Rouse opened with a walk and stole second. He scored on Buddy Foley's single. Krause then followed with a two-run homer. Mitchum got it going again after two outs with a single and Mark Clark walked. Michael Howard also walked, loading the bases. Montez Barrett also walked, forcing in Mitchum. Rouse followed with a double, driving in all three runners for a 7-0 lead.

Wellcome rallied, however, coming up with five in the fourth and one in the fifth, falling short by just one.

Jason Tetterton had two hits to lead Wellcome.

The Moose now face Pepsi-Cola today in the league finals at 4 p.m. at Elm St. Park, with the winner advancing to the City Championship against the North State winner.

Pepsi-Cola.....2
Jarman's Auto.....0

Will MacKenzie pitched a one-hit shutout as Pepsi-Cola downed Jarman's Auto, 2-0, in the Tar Heel Little League tournament Tuesday.

The lone hit came in the sixth inning when Omar Jordan banged a triple to open the inning. MacKenzie, however, was able to strike out the next two batters, then get a grounder to end the game. MacKenzie struck out 10 in the game, and allowed four walks.

Pepsi scored both of its runs in the first inning. Richie Grimsley reached on a fielder's choice and advanced on an error. MacKenzie reached on a fielder's choice that was errored, scoring Grimsley and Josh Burns' fielder's choice got MacKenzie at second. Burns moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Jon Gavigan's single.

Todd MacKenzie and Gavigan led Pepsi with two hits each.

Pepsi will face the Moose in the finals of the Tar Heel tourney today at 4 p.m. at Elm St. Park. The winner moves on to the City Championship against the North State League's winner.

Senior Babe Ruth

Winterville.....11
Robersonville.....4

HOLLYWOOD — Winterville Machine took an 11-4 victory over Robersonville in the Coastal Plains Senior Babe Ruth League Tuesday night.

The game wound up Winterville's regular season, finishing them in second place in the league standings.

Brian Bullock went the first three innings, allowing two hits, three walks, while striking out five and allowed one run. Gray Mills finished up the game, allowing one hit, two walks, one strikeout and three runs.

Derrick Credle led Winterville at the plate with three hits while Wesley McLawhorn had two and Bullock had four RBI.

Robersonville got only three hits and no one had more than one.

Washington took the Eastern Division title with a 7-1 record while Winterville ends at 6-2. Winterville will host Greene County in a non-division game on Thursday.

S. Pitt League

The Southern Pitt Little League will begin its age 9-10 all-star play on July 18 in Winterville in area play.

Winterville will serve as the host team, while other teams will include Southern Pitt and Ayden. Southern Pitt will open play against Ayden in the first round of the double elimination tournament.

Members of the Southern Pitt 9-10 All-Star team are: David Bell, Jamie Brown, Mark Carson, Russ Carson, Chad Corey, Perry Gray, Derico Hines, Thomas Howard, Robert Moore, Eric Mosley, Jody Paramore, Jason Rick, Derrick Dawson, Jamie Vincent, and Jamie Worthington.

Two Take New Jobs

Corrigan Said Pick

ATLANTA (AP) — Notre Dame Athletic Director Gene Corrigan has been offered the post as commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Atlanta Journal has reported.

The newspaper, in its Tuesday's editions, quoted an unnamed source with the ACC saying, "The job is Gene's if he wants it."

The ACC has been without a commissioner since May when Bob James, who had served for 16 years, died. An eight-member conference committee said it would accept applications for the job until next week.

Corrigan, 59, who is at the NCAA special convention in Dallas, would not confirm or deny that he has been offered the job.

"I don't know about the ball being in my court," he said.

"They have talked to me, but I assume they have talked to others," Corrigan added.

Corrigan, a 1952 graduate of Duke, has been athletic director at Notre Dame since 1981. He also held similar positions at Virginia and Washington & Lee.

Two East Carolina graduates, Caren Truske and Byron Wyche Schulken, have taken athletic jobs with the University of Minnesota and St. Andrews, respectively.

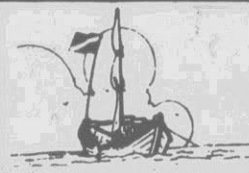

Truske, 25, was a four-year player under former coach Cathy Andruzzi with the ECU Lady Pirate basketball team. She taught and coached basketball and softball at East Lee Junior High School in Sanford prior to accepting a job on the basketball staff at Northern Illinois. After two years with that program, she served as an assistant at Notre Dame.

Truske will serve as an assistant on the Lady Gopher staff starting this fall.

Schulken, former head athletic trainer at Alabama-Birmingham and at Jacksonville University, has been named to a similar position at St. Andrews.

Schulken holds a bachelor's degree from East Carolina with a master's from Jacksonville.

Most recently Schulken served as branch operations manager for Foster Medical Corp. in Myrtle Beach, S.C. At St. Andrews, he will be in charge of all sports medicine for the Division III program.

Guidry Records First Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

At the age of 36, Ron Guidry still is trying to make lightning strike twice. "One good game doesn't make a season, but I feel good," Guidry said Tuesday night after winning his first game of the year in the New York Yankees' 4-0 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Guidry signed late with the Yankees after failing to attract any offers as a free agent during the offseason. So far, he hasn't been close to the pitcher who won the Cy Young Award in 1978, when he was known as "Louisiana Lightning."

However, Tuesday night seemed like old times for Guidry as the slim left-hander allowed the Blue Jays just six singles in 7 2-3 innings before handing the ball to reliever Tim Lincecum.

"That was a Guidry-type performance, no question," Manager Lou Piniella said after Guidry's first victory in four decisions. "After five starts, this is just about where he'd be coming out of spring training."

In other AL action, it was Cleveland 2, California 1; Boston 13, Baltimore 9; Chicago 12, Oakland 3; Seattle 5, Texas 2; Minnesota 3, Kansas City 1, and Detroit 8, Milwaukee 5.

Yankees 4, Blue Jays 0

In his previous four starts, Guidry had not lasted more than six innings and his last victory was Sept. 20, 1986. In Guidry's Cy Young-winning year, he was 25-3. He also won 22 games in 1985 before his career took a down turn.

"My arm has had to get over the inactivity. The more I throw, the better I feel," said Guidry, who didn't have the benefit of a training camp this season. The veteran of 12 major league seasons had a total of 11 innings with minor-league affiliates after signing in May and, entering Tuesday night's game, had pitched 28 1-3 innings with the Yankees.

Guidry threw 109 pitches Tuesday night, "which is about what I had in mind for him tonight, somewhere in that 110-115 range," Piniella said.

While Guidry was doing the lion's share of the pitching for the Yankees, Willie Randolph and Gary Ward led the hitting attack with two RBI apiece.

The Yankees' victory spoiled the major-league debut of left-hander David Wells and ran Toronto's winless streak to three, its longest of the season. It also dropped the Blue Jays two games behind the front-running Yankees in the East Division.

Indians 2, Angels 1

Phil Niekro gained his 317th career victory as the Indians ended an eight-game losing streak for themselves and an eight-game winning streak for California.

Niekro, 6-7, allowed seven hits, struck out four and walked one before needing last-out relief help from Scott Bailes. Bailes gave up an infield single to George Hendrick with the bases loaded before gaining his sixth save.

Niekro passed Gaylord Perry and went into fourth place on the all-time innings pitched list with 5,356 2-3.

The Indians, who had been outscored 71-22 in their previous eight games, scored both runs in the sixth inning. Pat Tabler singled home one run and another scored in the process of a rundown.

Red Sox 13 Orioles 9

Dwight Evans, Wade Boggs and Mike Greenwell keyed a 17-hit attack with home runs as Boston rallied to beat Baltimore.

Evans hit a three-run homer, his 13th, off starter Mark Williamson, 2-6, in the first inning. Then, after Bill Buckner put Boston ahead 8-7 with a two-run single in the fifth, Boggs hit a two-run homer, his 13th, and Greenwell followed with his ninth homer off reliever Dave Schmidt in the sixth.

Boggs and Greenwell also had two singles apiece. Boggs, who drove in seven runs against Baltimore Monday, boosted his major league leading average to .391 with his 29th multi-hit game of the season.

Steve Crawford, 4-2, the third Boston pitcher, was the winner, with relief help from Calvin Schiraldi.

While the Red Sox won for the eighth time in the last 10 starts, Baltimore's record dropped to 5-26 since May 29. The Orioles were 5-23 in June, the worst month in the club's history.

White Sox 12, A's 3

Ivan Calderon's two-run single capped a five-run fourth inning for Chicago. It was the White Sox' second straight victory over the A's and marked the first time since May 29-30 they have won two games in a row.

Scott Nielsen, 1-2, in his third start for the White Sox, allowed six hits in eight innings. Jim Winn pitched the ninth.

Mark McGwire had a two-run homer for the A's in the first inning. It was McGwire's sixth homer in the last four games and 28th of the season, breaking a tie with Toronto's George Bell for the major league lead.

Mariners 5, Rangers 2

Mark Langston threw a six-hitter while striking out 11 and John Moses drove in three runs as Seattle snapped a five-game Rangers winning streak.

Langston, 10-6, went the distance for the eighth time in 17 starts and increased his AL-leading strikeout total to 137.

Texas starter Mike Loynd, 1-4, gave up a second-inning home run to Alvin Davis, his sixth, then was chased when Seattle scored three times in the fifth.

Twins 3, Royals 1

Bert Blyleven pitched a six-hitter for 8 2-3 innings and Kirby Puckett hit his 14th home run, ending the Twins' five-game losing streak.

Blyleven, 7-6, allowed one run, six singles, struck out two and walked one.

An error by shortstop Greg Gagne allowed the Royals their only run in the ninth, preventing Blyleven from getting his 56th career shutout. Jeff Reardon got the final out for his 16th save.

Royals starter Charlie Liebrandt, 8-6, gave up all three runs and was relieved by Steve Farr after giving up a walk and a single with two outs in the sixth. Puckett's solo homer gave the Twins a 3-0 lead in the third inning.

Tigers 8, Brewers 5

Darrell Evans capped a four-run third inning with a bases-loaded double and Bill Madlock and Matt Nokes homered as Detroit got its 30th victory in the last 43 games.

Madlock hit his sixth homer of the season in the first off Mark Clear, 5-3, who was making his first major league start after 425 relief appearances since 1979.

Lou Whitaker, Madlock and Kirk Gibson singled in succession to begin the third and make it 2-0. Clear then walked Alan Trammell to load the bases and one out later, walked Pat Sheridan to force in the third run. Evans then doubled to give the Tigers a 5-0 lead for starter Dan Petry, 5-4.

Milwaukee stranded 12 runners through the first seven innings. The Brewers loaded the bases three times in that span, but managed only one run from those opportunities.

Knight May Be Extradited

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Puerto Rico's Justice Department is studying the possibility of extraditing Indiana basketball Coach Bobby Knight for a case which dates back to the Pan American Games in Puerto Rico in 1979.

"I don't know how long it will take," said Danny Velez, press secretary of Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon. "It all depends on the workload."

Once the study is completed, Velez said Tuesday, Hernandez Colon will make a decision about Knight, who was sentenced in San Juan District Court to serve a six-month jail sentence for striking a policeman during the Games.

Velez said the study was requested by Hernandez Colon after a U.S. Supreme Court decision on June 23 overturned a 126-year-old ruling and allowed federal courts to force states to extradite fugitives to other states.

Attorneys from this U.S. Commonwealth started the process that reached the U.S. Supreme Court after Ronald Calder, 47, an air traffic controller from Sioux City, Iowa, was arrested in Puerto Rico and charged with murder in 1981. He jumped bail and returned to Iowa.

Last week, Acting Justice Secretary Guillermo Mojica Maldonado said he would recommend that Knight be extradited. Apparently the governor did not wait for the suggestion.

"He (the governor) asked the Justice Department for the study on his own initiative," the governor's press spokesman said.

Velez said the study will attempt to determine if similar circumstances exist between the Calder case and the Knight case for extradition.

At the time of the incident, Knight was coaching the U.S. men's basketball team which won a gold medal.

The incident occurred when Knight unsuccessfully ordered a Puerto Rican policeman to escort a visitor out of a San Juan gymnasium at the start of a practice session for the U.S. team. A heated discussion followed and the policeman told authorities Knight hit him.

Knight, while in Puerto Rico, was not taken into custody and refused to discuss the matter with authorities. He left San Juan at the end of the Pan American Games and returned to Indiana.

Former Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, who was in office when the incident occurred, opposed the move to extradite Knight. "The case is dead and finished," he said.

Another official felt that an extradition of Knight could have negative repercussions. German Rieckhoff Sampayo, Puerto Rico's Olympic Committee president and a member of the International Olympic Committee, said he feared a negative reception in Indiana of the more than 200 island athletes planning to participate in the Pan American Games set to start in Indianapolis Aug. 8.

Two Sites Are Chosen

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Minneapolis-St. Paul and Los Angeles have been selected as sites for the 1990 and 1991 U.S. Olympic Festivals, it was announced Tuesday.

U.S. Olympic Committee president Robert H. Helmick said the cities were overwhelmingly approved in a recent mail vote by the USOC Executive Board, acting on a recommendation by the USOC's Games Site Selection Committee.

This year's Festival is scheduled for July 13-26 in North Carolina. Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill and Greensboro are each hosting some of the 34 sports that will involve more than 3,000 athletes.

In 1990, events will be staged in both Minneapolis and St. Paul, using municipal and college facilities as well as the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

Los Angeles, which hosted the 1984 Summer Olympics, will again use facilities from those Games.

Presidents Lose In Power Show

DALLAS (AP) — It was a showdown in Dallas, and the clear loser was the once-powerful NCAA Presidents Commission.

Not only did the commission fail in its stated purpose to cut the costs of intercollegiate athletics at its special convention, it left town without some of its prestige. There also was a sense that the NCAA's athletic directors were becoming impatient with the commission's "ivory tower" approach to sports.

"The way it turned out, it was evidently very poorly orchestrated and definitely a waste of time, money and effort," Texas A&M Athletic Director and head football Coach Jackie Sherrill said. "There ought to have been more out of it after you spend six months writing tons of legislative proposals."

The Presidents Commission had never lost a big fight. The 3-year-old commission ushered in Proposition 48, establishing minimum academic requirements for the eligibility of incoming freshmen, and instituted the so-called death penalty, which allowed the NCAA to abolish athletic programs at schools that cheated repeatedly.

This time, the commission called a special convention for two purposes.

One was to launch its national forum on the role of athletics in American colleges. That happened Monday and was an apparent success with ideas exchanged ranging from status quo to total abolition of revenue sports.

The next purpose was to push through cost-cutting legislation at Tuesday's business meetings. That was a total failure. In fact, the convention passed one piece of legislation over the commission's objections to restore basketball scholarships that were cut last January.

"I think what the members are saying is we want change, but let's make sure it's the right change," said incoming NCAA executive director Dick Schultz. "You always win some and lose some."

Maryland Chancellor John Slaughter, chairman of the commission, admitted disappointment that some of the legislation failed. "We didn't do a good job" of preparation, he admitted. "I agree with that."

Rev. L. Edward Glynn, president of St. Peter's College and a commission member, said: "I don't think it was a smashing defeat. The reason we called for the national forum was because we knew there was significant disagreement about the proper direction of intercollegiate athletics."

The commission failed on its two primary pieces of cost-cutting legislation: one that would have cut scholarships in almost every sport except football and basketball, and another to trim football coaching staffs.

The scholarship cuts, opposed by women's groups as sexist, were tabled. Another measure, sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference, to cut football scholarships also was defeated.

The convention also voted to table discussion of a measure to cut an assistant coach from football staffs in Division I-A until further study could be completed.

Another proposal, to restore basketball scholarships to 15 from 13, was passed after it was twice ruled out of order by the chair. The Presidents Commission tried to keep the proposal off the floor since it said it was not in line with the purpose of the convention, to cut costs.

In a morning session, the convention failed to override the ruling of the chair, but in the afternoon, the convention first voted 159-132 to overrule, then 164-124 to restore the scholarships, which were cut at the January convention.

"We all share a concern for cost-cutting," North Carolina State athletic director and basketball Coach Jim Valvano said. "But I don't think it's our desire to limit opportunity for the student-athlete."

After a motion to reconsider, Division I-AA schools voted in the afternoon to eliminate one assistant football coach after voting in the morning against the measure. Although they voted to cut yearly scholarship limits from 30 to 25, I-AA schools rejected a total scholarship reduction from 70-65.

"I haven't run the tape, but I don't think you could argue that the resolutions adopted today will affect any budgets in a major way," the NCAA's outgoing executive director, Walter Byers, said at a news conference. "I don't think you can say though that the ideas put forward won't save money sometime in the future."

"You can't say that money was saved today ... but I don't believe the issue has been put to rest."

The NCAA did pass one major piece of legislation, but it was heavily amended to avoid the opposition of the U.S. Olympic Committee and other amateur athletics groups. The convention voted 284-23 to limit practice and playing seasons to 26 weeks, but attached an amendment that it would only affect team sports.

The Olympic community had been concerned that aspiring international competitors in sports such as gymnastics and swimming would be left without coaching or facilities for much of the year under this proposal.

The proposal barely escaped a motion to defer it until further study, prompting Vanderbilt Athletic Director Roy Kramer to remark: "We should change our name to the National Collegiate Study Association because it seems we'll never vote on anything."

Neither football nor basketball opposed the measure because their seasons fall generally into that time period anyway.

Other athletic directors and sports officials also were critical of the convention.

"Our people figure it cost us $1.8 million to put on this cost-cutting convention," Big East Commissioner Dave Gavitt said. "How many baseball scholarships would that pay for?"

One athletic director, who asked not to be identified, said the Presidents Commission "tells us they're idea men. So when are they going to come down from their ivory towers and recognize that they don't know what they're doing."

Schultz said he didn't feel there was any schism developing between the commission and other NCAA members. In fact, he said, "I think what you'll see is the two sides working more closely together."

Asked, however, if the Presidents Commission as idea men with a broad-scope approach, might be better off to leave individual pieces of legislation to the athletic departments, Schultz said: "I'm sure they'll take a look at that and evaluate it."

While there was criticism of the legislative session, most NCAA members seemed satisfied with the forum. One resolution passed Tuesday authorizes the commission to continue the forum for another 18 months, looking ahead to possible major reform at the 1989 convention.

Field Is Still The Best Ever

RALEIGH (AP) — The field for this month's U.S. Olympic Festival is the best ever assembled for a festival, the executive director of the event says.

"I think it's great," Hill Cargow said Tuesday. "It's very, very good."

Although the event has landed only one of the top 10 men's and women's finishers in the recent U.S. gymnastics championships and has failed to attract either Carl Lewis, Edwin Moses or Jackie Joyner-Kersey in track and field, Cargow said, "Many sports have upgraded their level of competition and will be sending their best people."

"Even in track and field, that is a very good field," Cargow said. "There is a very good potential that some records will be broken. And compared to all the festivals, this is the best field assembled over the course of all 34 sports."

Little Accomplished By Forum

DALLAS (AP) — Spend now, save later.

"I think all the schools together spent over a million dollars for a cost-containment session," Jim Garner, athletic director at Appalachian State University, said Tuesday as the NCAA's sixth special convention broke up with all the existing diverse problems still in place.

There was general agreement that Monday's 3½-hour forum, the start of an 18-month series of discussions on the proper balance between intercollegiate athletics and academics, was worthwhile but that little, if anything, was accomplished in containing costs, which was the original purpose of the convention.

"I don't think we did anything except have a lot of rhetoric bouncing around off the walls," Garner said. "Any of this stuff could be handled in January (at the next regular convention)."

"The Presidents Commission tried to exert its authority trying to prove that they had something to offer when really they didn't. I think the forum was just a matter of trying to stretch it into two days."

There was no lack of critics of the special session, which mainly succeeded in reinstating the two basketball scholarships that were cut last January and in defeating a proposal to cut major-college football grants from 95 to 90.

"Most of the measures involving cost-cutting were either defeated or were referred for further study," said A. Kenneth Pye, faculty representative from Duke University and president-designate at Southern Methodist.

"In my judgment, the forum served a useful purpose in discussing some matters of very basic philosophy. In terms of actual results, I don't think significant steps forward were achieved. I would have preferred that we were able to do more in cost-cutting."

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers conceded there was no important cost-cutting.

"I think it's a fair conclusion that we didn't alter any budgets," Byers said. "I can't say any money was saved, but the issue was certainly not put to rest."

However, Byers insisted that it wasn't a defeat for the Presidents Commission.

"They might have jumped the gun on some cuts. In retrospect, all participants came to the conclusion that it might have been better for a total re-examination first before we made any cuts," he said.

"I don't think the need for reductions in the long-term will be postponed. It will come; it's just a question of how."

There don't seem to be many areas left which can stand much further trimming.

"There's only a limited area that you can really address and have significant impact," said Roy Kramer, athletic director at Vanderbilt University. "One is scholarships, one is personnel, one certainly is recruiting, but we took that step far greater than most people realize in January."

"We're down now to the tough things because it affects individual programs and individual coaches. Those are tough decisions and they always have the greatest opposition and it may take us quite a while to address those, if we do ever do address them."

Carl James, commissioner of the Big Eight Conference, thought the forum was a good idea.

"One of the primary reasons to have this sort of dialogue was because the Presidents Commission said let's have a forum for the next 18 months," he said.

"The forum was enlightening. Obviously, the people worked at what they wanted to say, felt good about what they wanted to say."

But James said that holding the forum on Monday and voting on the legislation on Tuesday "was a difficult assignment. I hate to see people get up, even though they did a good job, and talk about something prior to the studies."

"We passed limitations on (campus) visits and at the same time while we were considering 'A' and 'B' of it and before we got to 'C' we passed a resolution to form a committee to study it. To me, that's not very sound. Today (Tuesday) we wasted a lot of time with issues that we've deferred until the next convention."

James said very little cost-cutting was accomplished, adding, "We've got a lot of homework to do between now and January."

Brain Implants Seem To Help Parkinson's Patients

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Eleven Parkinson's disease sufferers in Mexico and two in Tennessee showed improvement after gland tissue was grafted onto their brains, but the U.S. researchers say their patients need more study.

"It is too early to conclude whether the cause of the change is a placebo (psychological) effect, the natural fluctuations of the disease or a result of the transplant," said Dr. George Allen of Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville, Tenn.

The Mexican patients showed easing of tremor, rigidity and other symptoms following the experimental treatment, said Dr. Rene Drucker-Colin of the National Autonomous University of Mexico in Mexico City.

Two patients at Vanderbilt "have shown changes in the direction of improvement," especially in gait and facial animation, Allen said, while no judgment can be made about four other Vanderbilt patients because their medication dosages were changed in the course of the study.

The two researchers were interviewed by telephone before speaking

Tuesday at a meeting sponsored by the University of Rochester on transplants to the central nervous system.

Parkinson's disease, often characterized by tremors, rigidity or loss of balance, afflicts 350,000 or more Americans. Drugs can control symptoms, but their effect can be sporadic and side effects can include psychological disturbances and impairment of movement.

The disease is caused by the death of brain cells that produce dopamine, which brain cells use to communicate.

Dopamine is also produced by the adrenal glands, which lie above the kidneys, so Drucker-Colin and others have tried transplanting tissue from a patient's adrenal glands to the brain.

Other researchers have reported success in transplanting dopamine-producing brain cells from human or animal fetuses into animal brains. Surgeons now hope to transplant human fetal brain tissue into the brain of a Parkinson's patient within 18 months, a British researcher said in an interview.

Alan Fine, a fellow of the medical research council at the University of Cambridge in England, said he plans to oversee research at Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia. The institution's research ethics committee is reviewing the proposal, he said.

He also said he believes Swedish researchers will do such experiments even sooner.

Drucker-Colin's experiments with gland tissue got widespread attention in April when he and colleagues reported that two patients showed marked recovery after surgery.

In the interview, Drucker-Colin said that his team has done 18 transplants but only 11 were done long enough ago to provide meaningful data by now. The last of the 11 was done April 15.

Patients ranged in age from 35 to 59, which he acknowledged was a relatively young group for the disease. Most sufferers are diagnosed between ages 60 and 70. However, some 10 percent of sufferers are around ages 35 to 50, Drucker-Colin said.

Before surgery, the patients showed severe rigidity, tremor, slowness of movement and only sporadic help from drug treatment, he said.

It is not known how long improvements will last, he said. Two patients have died of causes unrelated to the treatment, Drucker-Colin said.

He also said the treatment may not be appropriate for elderly patients. Apart from the rigors of surgery, tissue taken from the adrenal glands of older patients may work less well when transplanted to the brain, he said.

Allen said his team's preliminary studies show that dopamine from the implants does not spread to both sides of the brain, suggesting that something other than dopamine may be important if transplants cause improvement.

Youngster Receives First Heart Transplanted In South Carolina

By BRUCE SMITH
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who received a new heart in the first heart transplant performed in South Carolina is in good spirits in the intensive care unit at the Medical University of South Carolina Hospital, hospital officials said.

The boy, whose identity was not released at the request of his family, was listed in serious condition late Tuesday following the four-hour operation earlier in the day. He was reported alert and talking to his nurses Tuesday afternoon.

The youngster is "a light for all of us," Dr. Henry Wiles, a pediatric cardiologist at the hospital told reporters Tuesday. "He had the obvious reactions anyone would to a serious illness and the prospect of a serious operation ... but even the day before was in very good spirits and actually had all of us laughing."

A 20-member surgical team headed by Dr. A. Jackson Crumbley, MUSC's chief of cardiac transplantation, began the operation about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday. They finished about four hours later.

The youngster, who suffered a degenerative heart ailment that reduced the ability of his own heart to pump blood, had been waiting for a donor heart for about three weeks.

Doctors did not identify the donor except to say that the donor heart needed to be about the same size as the recipient's and a donor heart became available late Monday.

"I'm very pleased our first transplant went so smoothly," said Crumbley, who added there were no glitches in the operation.

During the surgery, one surgical team removes the donor heart while in an adjoining operating room, the recipient is prepared for the transplant. The implantation itself takes about an hour.

"There were several sighs of relief" among the surgical team, when the patient's donated heart began beating, said Dr. Fred Crawford, the chief of the hospital's division of cardiothoracic surgery.

The next few days will be critical for the youth, said Crumbley. He noted the youngster will be treated with drugs to prevent his heart from rejecting the donated organ.

Crumbley, who has performed about 20 transplants at the University of Minnesota, said the boy's hospital stay could last anywhere from 10 days to several months.

Nationally, he said, up to 90 percent of heart recipients survive a year while 60 to 75 percent survive for three years. If all goes well, the youngster will be able to lead a normal life but won't be allowed to play contact sports, he added.

"I'm delighted we've accomplished this milestone," said Dr. James B. Edwards, the president of MUSC.

Crumbley had told the MUSC Board of Trustees in April that the transplant program at the hospital hopes to conduct 10 to 15 heart transplants a year once the program is operating.

"But the need will direct whether we do them or not," Edwards said. "We're not going to go out there and start hustling patients to have heart transplants."

Progress Reported In Restoring Bone

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers have been able to restore some lost bone in osteoporosis patients by stimulating the body's own mechanisms for manufacturing bony tissue, scientists say.

The experimental therapies hold the promise of going beyond current drugs that can only retard bone loss, the experts say.

But in recent interviews, they also cautioned that the new approaches are a long ways away from general use among the 24 million Americans with osteoporosis.

"All of these programs should be viewed as investigational," said Dr. B. Lawrence Riggs, consultant in endocrinology metabolism at the Mayo Clinic.

In osteoporosis, also known as brittle bones, loss of bone tissue weakens the skeleton. That makes it prone to fractures. Compression fractures of the spine can produce a hump in the back.

Women are at particular risk after menopause because of loss of the bone-protecting hormone estrogen. Doctors recommend adequate calcium intake and weight-bearing exercise to avoid osteoporosis.

Women at high risk can be given estrogen soon after menopause begins, and a hormone called calcitonin can also reduce bone loss.

"But we don't have good ways to rebuild the skeleton," said Dr.

William Peck of Jewish Hospital at the Washington University Medical Center in St. Louis.

One new line of research involves parathyroid hormone, which indirectly triggers the body's bone-building cells and has shown promise in early human studies, Peck said.

More extensively studied is fluoride. Tests in several hundred people have shown that maybe half get dramatic gains of mass in their backbones, with up to a doubling over three or four years, said Riggs.

Twenty-five percent show slower increases over a longer span, while the rest do not respond, said Riggs.

But fluoride has side effects: 20 percent to 30 percent of patients get nausea and a burning sensation in their stomachs, and an equal number may feel acute pain in their hands and feet, he said.

Because of that, he said, fluoride probably would be used only in severe cases of osteoporosis. A study of 200 women is under way to document side effects and see if fluoride reduces bone fractures, he said.

Another experimental bone-rebuilding therapy, called A.D.F.R., "is a potentially promising approach," although it is far from being proven effective, said Peck.

A.D.F.R. focuses on millions of microscopic sites throughout the skeleton, where bone is constantly being broken down and replaced. The breakdown process automatically triggers the replacement process.

WIN A Major League Baseball Player For A Day

OFFICIAL RULES

1. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.
2. To enter, print your complete name, address and telephone number on the official entry form on a 3" x 5" piece of paper and attach one proof of purchase seal from any package of KRAFT Macaroni and Cheese Dinner or KRAFT Spiral Macaroni and Cheese Dinner or the words KRAFT Macaroni and Cheese Dinner.
3. Mail entry to "Player For A Day Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 3576, Libertyville, IL 60198." Enter as often as you wish but each entry must be mailed in a separate envelope. No mechanical reproductions will be accepted.
4. Entries must be received by September 10, 1987. Odds of winning are dependent upon the number of entries received. KRAFT is not responsible for lost, misdirected mail or insufficient postage. Entries are KRAFT property, none will be returned.
5. Winners will be drawn at random no later than September 17, 1987 from all valid entries received by H. Olsen & Co., an independent judging firm whose decisions are final on all matters relating to the sweepstakes. Winners will be notified by mail within 30 days after drawing. By entering, winners give consent to KRAFT, Inc. or any subsidiary thereof to use winners' names, addresses, likeness and prize information for promotional purposes without additional compensation. Winners may be asked to sign and return affidavit of eligibility and harmless release within 10 days of receipt of prize winning notification. 1st prize winners also assume any applicable federal, state and local income tax on the total prize value. In the event of non-compliance within this time period, an alternate winner will be selected.
6. Prizes: 10 1st Prizes: A visit to winner's home or other mutually agreeable location by a Major League Baseball Player plus $200 cash spending money. Baseball player will spend up to 8 hours with winner and companions to engage in activity requested by winner e.g., attend school function or sports function. KRAFT will have final approval of activity. Winner may submit a list of 10 Major League baseball players in the order of preference. KRAFT will attempt to secure winner's choice of player. Final selection of baseball player shall be determined by KRAFT in conjunction with the Major League Baseball Players Association based on player's availability and proximity to winner's residence and player will not necessarily be among those on winner's preference list. Visit must take place between October 31, 1987 and February 15, 1988. Liability to comply with this requirement will forfeit prize to an alternate winner. Average prize value $2,700/90. 10 2nd Prizes: Autographed baseball. Suggested Retail value $5.95. All prizes will be awarded provided a sufficient number of entries are received. In the event winner is a minor, prize will be awarded in the name of parent or guardian. Limit one prize per household. No cash substitutions and no prize transfers.
7. Sweepstakes is open to residents of the USA, except employees of KRAFT, Inc., its affiliates, advertising and promotion agencies, judges and their immediate families living in the same household. Sweepstakes void where prohibited or restricted by law. All Federal, State and local laws and regulations apply.
8. For 1st prize winners list, send a #10 stamped, self-addressed envelope to Baseball Player For A Day, Box CC, Libertyville, IL 60198. List available after October 30, 1987.

Children Respond Differently When Mother's Depressed

By SANDY ROVNER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Behind one-way glass looking out on a small apartment — colorful and toy-filled, but essentially characterless — video cameras have been whirring for more than a decade, recording several thousand hours of parent and child interactions: partings and reunions, affection and discipline, playtime, feeding time and naptime.

Psychologists and psychiatrists have spent hundreds of hours going over the films, sometimes minute by minute, teasing apart the things a mother says and does that influence the baby, analyzing the things a baby says and does that affect the parent.

In the process, they are beginning to understand how a child is affected when its mother is suffering from depression. And these findings are fueling the debate over the extent to which depression is inherited.

The childrearing project of the National Institute of Mental Health is designed to examine the development of the child in terms of his relationships to his parents, brothers and sisters, playmates and in the context of his family and his family's place in society. For children of the clinically depressed, says Dr. Marian Radke-Yarrow, that world may be "harsh and unpredictable."

Over the years, the project has found that there are differences in the way depressed mothers relate to their children. Studies of subsets of the families have shown that depressed mothers are more likely to be critical of their children and less likely to talk to them, except under mildly stressful conditions, when the depressed mothers tend to overreact. Depressed mothers are more likely to interact with their children because of something within themselves, rather than in response to something the child does or says, and as a result the child has little sense of what to expect. Some depressed mothers envelop their children in their own misery. The children of some, but not all, of the depressed mothers were harder to direct and harder to comfort.

Nevertheless, many children appear to do well, even under the most chaotic and harsh family conditions. Radke-Yarrow, director of the NMH Laboratory of Developmental Psychology, and her associates are beginning to see how that is possible.

Part of the explanation lies in the fact that not all depressed mothers are alike. Radke-Yarrow emphasizes that the common stereotypes portraying depressed mothers as hostile, uninvolved with the children and lacking in affection are poor generalizations.

Dr. Tracy Sherman has participated with Radke-Yarrow and other members of the NMH group in several studies involving subsets of the 123 families now under study, 70 of which have a depressed parent or parents. Sherman, a developmental psychologist, has been trying to identify factors that permit many of the children to survive even the hardest family circumstances, and to determine if these characteristics will lend themselves to future life adjustments.

In addition, she has been studying a subset of mothers whose extremes of behavior pose special difficulties for their children.

The psychologists found that from the 123 families, there were 16 children whose behavior suggested they were at unusually high risk for subsequent psychological problems because of the mother's own difficulties.

Halt of these children had mothers who fell into a special classification of behavior deemed extreme by professional observers. They were called "outliers," accounting for only 10 percent of the mothers.

These mothers, Sherman said, were those "who expressed extreme amounts of either anger or sadness in the research apartment with their younger child, mothers who made excessive numbers of critical statements to the child, mothers who backed off from confronting the child (over some misbehavior)" and mothers who reacted to minor stresses "by dramatic changes" in their level of involvement with their child. To be classified as an outlier, a mother needed to show at least two areas of extreme behavior.

Three-quarters of these mothers had a psychiatric diagnosis of a major depressive illness, and by the time of the first follow-up assessment, 71 percent of their children did, too. Of the entire sample, however, 40 percent of the children of depressed mothers had comparable psychiatric problems, compared to 10 percent of healthy mothers.

The findings suggest that it is not necessarily a mother's depression alone but those particular "outlier" behaviors within the depression that may cause a child to have psychological problems.

Some of these mothers — even the most sad and anxious, who were expected to offer "the least in the way of a secure base for the child" — still often achieved good, secure relationships. Their children were survivors. What makes a survivor? Part of it, says Sherman, is better-than-average intelligence. "One child knew how to change her mother's mood from sadness to a more controllable and understandable anger by kicking her mother's ankle or stomping on her purse."

Another characteristic in the child is having qualities that elicit positive responses for others. During her doctorate training in Israel, one of Sherman's mentors was a woman with five adopted children and five natural ones. It was explained to Sherman that when the professor was a graduate student herself, she was contributing to a study on founding children. She was asked to sit by one child's crib and stare at her impassively, blank faced. "But," said Sherman, "she just couldn't do it. The baby would beam her a smile and she couldn't ignore her."

"So she adopted her." And then adopted a few more, all from founding homes. "I met this child when she was a 16 year old. And still, when she smiles at you, you smile back."

But in addition to intelligence and this type of innate charisma, the NMH group found that a key feature of the relatively well child of an outlier mother was that the child seemed to match the needs of the mother or the family. Sometimes the mother expressed affection to feed her own emotional needs, making the child no more than a "Teddy bear." But the child would dolefully allow herself to be petted. Somehow, says Sherman, by dint of intelligence or charm or chance, "we see the children doing better than the odds" by making the most of whatever little emotional support is available from the family.

Even so, the researchers worry that the adjustments at an early age, although they provide the children with security now, may not provide future protection — when the parents' and child's needs diverge. "The straightjackets they have been forced to adopt," Sherman and Radke-Yarrow have written, "will become increasingly difficult to wear as they continue to develop."

Explanation

L.A. Times-Washington Post

Starting Wednesday, all Maryland physicians who treat breast cancer will be required to offer their patients detailed and understandable explanations of treatment options before actual surgery is performed or treatment undertaken.

Maryland thus becomes the 15th state to protect women from a once-common nightmare: being sedated for a biopsy and waking up to find that a breast has been removed.

The law was passed in 1986 and signed by then-Gov. Harry Hughes.

LEGAL NOTICE

The Certificate of Need Section, Division of Facility Services, North Carolina Department of Human Resources, announces that there are 24 additional psychiatric beds available in Eastern Carolina Health Systems Area (VI) due to the return of a Certificate of Need by Community Hospital of Rocky Mount. This number is in addition to the 2 beds projected as needed in the 1987 State Medical Facilities Plan, 1547-P1.

This brings the total needed for Eastern Carolina HSA (VI) to 30 psychiatric beds.

The next review cycle for psychiatric beds begins November 1, 1987. Letters of intent must be received by October 1, 1987 in the Certificate of Need Section, Division of Facility Services, 701 Barbour Drive, Raleigh, NC 27601.

On July 1, 1987, Certificate of Need review is scheduled to begin in North Carolina Health Services Area VI. For an application to be included in this review cycle, it must be determined complete prior to July 1, 1987. Applications for the following projects have been received and are expected to be reviewed during this cycle: 2,503-87-291, General Memorial Hospital, addition of 16 psychiatric beds to existing facility.

The review is expected to take approximately 90 days. During the review period, an affected person may request a public hearing on the project proposals delineated above. # Astronomers Upset Over Plan To Orbit Reflecting 'Light Ring'

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — A plan to celebrate the Eiffel Tower's 100th birthday by putting a "light ring" into Earth orbit is drawing angry complaints from astronomers around the world. They claim the giant reflecting satellite could damage their sensitive telescopes.

But the project's backers say launching what would be the biggest satellite in the heavens is a fitting way to commemorate the building of what was then the world's tallest structure.

The light ring, which would be launched in three years if the plan goes through, would consist of 100 reflectors linked by plastic tubes, each 780 feet long. Orbiting 500 miles above the Earth, it would reflect sunlight and be visible at night.

With a circumference of 15 miles, it would appear to the naked eye to be slightly larger than a full moon. It would orbit for about two years before burning up in the atmosphere.

"It's a pointless piece of egotism," said Paul Murdin, head of the astronomy division of the Royal Greenwich Observatory in Britain. "What we're talking about is space junk."

"The sky is not the property of astronomers," retorted Philippe Gillieron, a spokesman for the Societe Nouvelle d'Exploitation de la Tour Eiffel, the company backing the plan, which was the result of an international competition.

Gillieron compared the astronomers' complaints with the outcry over the Eiffel Tower's construction nearly a century ago.

The "space necklace," he said, would be a symbol of the technical aspirations of the 21st century, just as the tower symbolized those of the 20th century.

Murdin said astronomical observations would be ruined when the light ring passed, because its brightness would far outshine natural starlight.

The ring could also destroy delicate equipment such as image photon counters, which are so sensitive they discern individual particles of light, he said.

"These detectors have huge amplification — to 10 million times — for light sources at the distant reaches of the universe," he said in a telephone interview from the international observatory in the Canary Islands.

"It's like looking at a candle on the moon. When a bright light passes, that's amplified 10 million times too. The apparatus simply can't cope."

Gillieron maintained that scientists could easily plot the course of the satellite and avoid aiming sensitive telescopes at it. But Murdin said the orbit of so large an object would be erratic.

"It's unpredictable to a degree, due to the structure of it," he said. "It would be blown off course by the solar wind, but we can't say how much. Sooner or later there would be an accident. Or accidents."

Gillieron said the company itself had not received complaints from astronomers since the plan was unveiled in November. But Jean-Pierre Swings, head of the Paris-based International Astronomical Union, said that when his 6,000-member group asked stargazers for comments on the plan it received an overwhelming negative response.

"Individual astronomers, amateur associations, professional groups, whole staffs of observatories wrote to say they are violently against it," he said in a telephone interview from Liege, Belgium. "No one is happy about this idea."

The company says so far it is just an idea. The expected launch date is now 1990, a year later than originally planned. The satellite would be carried into space by France's Ariane rocket, the schedule of which has been disrupted by launch failures.

The estimated $50 million needed has yet to be raised. The company is seeking to raise a subscription supported by 21 major European corporations.

Both Swings and Murdin said they feared a project like the light ring would open the door to "billboards in space" — giant satellites for advertising.

"Soft drinks, hamburgers, say," Swings said. "It's crazy."

Gillieron said the space necklace's purpose is not advertising, but symbolism.

"It is about the future," he said. "The Eiffel Tower does not need promoting."

NASA Says It Still Couldn't Save Shuttle Crew During An Emergency

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seventeen months after the Challenger accident, NASA says it still has not found a safe way for astronauts to bail out if a space shuttle has to ditch in the ocean.

James C. Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said in a report to President Reagan that the first post-Challenger shuttle will have an escape hatch that can be blown away.

But Fletcher said no decision has been made on the rocket assist necessary to eject the crew safely out of that hatch.

The space agency's studies have shown that a rocket-powered ejection system is necessary to hurl an astronaut clear of the shuttle's wings during controlled gliding flight — such as when the shuttle has to abort a liftoff and ditch in water.

Fletcher said in the report that manual systems to move ejecting astronauts away from the ship, such as a deployable tunnel and an extendable rod, were considered and rejected.

So were systems that would use ejection seats like those in fighter aircraft, a rocket device that would extract as many as six seated crew members, and a panel that would open on the bottom of the orbiter to deploy a guide chute through which the astronauts would leave.

The most promising concept — and one being pursued — is the report said, is a system using the side hatch.

"Once the hatch is jettisoned, the crew moves to the hatch area and climbs onto a guide ramp," Reagan was told. "Each crew member attaches a tractor rocket pendant to their parachute-survival pack." The crew member fires the rocket, then parachutes to the ocean.

As many as eight astronauts could get out that way in two minutes if the shuttle were in controlled gliding flight at 20,000 feet and a speed of 200 mph.

NASA says it plans to test the concept in aircraft tests using dummies.

Such a system would not have saved the seven Challenger crew members who died Jan. 28, 1986, when a leaking booster rocket caused a massive explosion that destroyed the shuttle shortly after liftoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

NASA said it has a study under way to evaluate whether it is worthwhile to pursue an escape method to use in the first two minutes of flight while the solid rockets are thrusting. It has asked for help from industry and government escape system engineers to study concepts that would use rocket powered ejection seats.

The shuttle Discovery, which is scheduled to make the first flight in June 1988, will be changed significantly from the orbiters that flew before the Challenger explosion, Fletcher's report said.

Twenty major changes have been made in the shuttles' main engines to increase their operating life, safety and reliability; the ship will have a new re-entry heat protection system in the area where the wing joins the fuselage; the external fuel tank lines will be strengthened; and the solid fuel rocket boosters will be radically redesigned.

The 191-page document sent to the White House was NASA's report on how it implemented the changes recommended by the presidentially appointed Rogers commission, which investigated the Challenger tragedy.

One of the commission's nine recommendations was that NASA provide a crew escape system for level controlled flight. Astronauts always feared that if they had to ditch in the ocean during an emergency return, the ship would break up on impact.

Voodoo Rituals Hold Forth In Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Uneducated peasants working sugar cane fields and vegetable patches on Haiti's dusty hills and deep valleys chant songs to voodoo gods asking for bountiful harvests.

Sophisticated city dwellers flush away or burn nail and hair clippings and old clothes for fear sorcerers will use them to cast spells. And they are as likely as peasants to consult a houngan — a voodoo priest — for headaches, stomach pains and other ailments.

"In probably most homes in Haiti, if a visitor is offered a glass of water, he won't drink it all," says Jim Uttley, a Protestant lay person. "He'll always save a little and throw it out a window as an offering to the spirits, though not all people know that's the reason."

"The reality is all Haitians are affected by voodoo in one way or another," Uttley adds.

Voodoo is as much a part of Haiti today as it was 400 years ago when it was developed by African slaves to nurture their cultural identity and inspire revolts against Spanish and then French planters.

The slave rebellion of 1790, led by a houngan named Boukman, ignited the island-wide war that led to independence in 1804.

Long suppressed and in some ways still secretive, voodoo has an aura of mystery and spookiness, though the religion bears little resemblance to the Hollywood image of zombies and look-alike dolls stuck with pins.

Legislation passed in 1935 outlawed voodoo, but an indication of how little that law was enforced is that former dictator Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier in the 1960s fashioned himself as Baron Samedi, the voodoo keeper of the tombs, to strengthen his hold on the rural population.

The 1935 law was revoked last March by Haiti's new constitution, which allows Haitians for the first time in at least 50 years to practice voodoo openly.

Voodoo blends African religions, Roman Catholicism and Indian mysticism. Herard Simon, the leader of Haiti's 100 houngans, says voodoo basically is comprised of laws, or spirits, that correspond to gods, reincarnated souls and nature's main elements — fire, earth, water and air.

Voodooists believe in a "consciousness" that can be manipulated for good or evil. Simon says, "Evil is important, too, because man is a result of good and evil," he says. "That's where these Protestants (missionaries) get the idea that we're devil worshippers."

Peasants believed that natural catastrophes such as droughts and famine are caused by angry gods.

Educators Decry 'Curricular Silence' On Religion

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of educators today called for an end to "the curricular silence on religion," that has permeated public school classrooms since the Supreme Court banished organized prayer a quarter-century ago.

In a report commissioned by the 80,000-member Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, the educators decried schools' "benign neglect" of the role religion has played in shaping both U.S. and world history.

It attacked "bland" textbooks that "virtually ignore religion," and said educators must get over the mistaken notion "that matters of religion are simply too hot to handle in public schools."

The Alexandria, Va.-based association is a non-partisan professional organization of school principals, teachers, office personnel and college professors involved in deciding what is taught in public schools.

The report was released by O.L. Davis, a University of Texas at Austin education professor who chaired the panel. It is the latest in a series of critiques from liberals and conservatives alike criticizing public schools and their textbooks for downplaying the significance of religion.

People for the American Way, the liberal anti-censorship lobby, as well as Americans United for Separation of Church and State have issued reports recently faulting history texts for slighting religion. U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett also has criticized schools on that score.

The report by the Davis panel says:

"The quest for religious freedom that fueled the establishment of this nation receives scant treatment at best in many textbooks. ... (They) have even less to say about the profound part religious belief has played in more recent U.S. history," from the abolitionist and temperance movements of the 19th century to the civil rights movement of the 20th.

The problem rests not just with texts on American history. The impact of religion on world history and culture is "slighted in texts on political science, sociology, literature and world history," the report said.

"An elementary student can come away from a textbook account of the Crusades, for example, with the notion that these wars to win the Holy Land for Christendom were little more than exotic shopping expeditions," it said. In current events, the religious roots of the conflicts in Lebanon and Northern Ireland, and the war between Iran and Iraq, often go unexplained.

The report blamed this in part on educators' worries "that the constitutional wall separating church and state might be breached" and their "exaggerated fear of controversy."

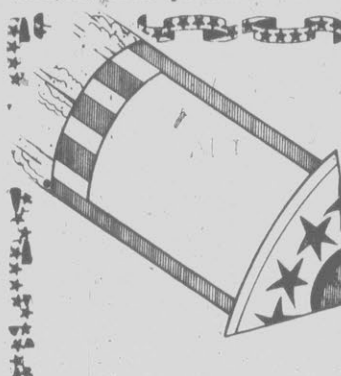

It said students should know "the basic tenets of the world's major religions."

The report said textbooks "contain few, if any, references to Christmas and Easter, or even to Thanksgiving, St. Patrick's Day or Columbus Day, to say nothing of Jewish holidays or those of other religions."

It quoted approvingly from the late Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark's majority opinion in a 1963 school prayer case, Abington School District v. Schempp:

"It might well be said that one's education is not complete without a study of comparative religion. ... (and) that the Bible is worthy of study for its literary and historic qualities. Nothing we have said here indicates that such study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education, may not be effected consistently with the First Amendment."

But on a different note, the report said that while the written curriculum ignores religion, a "hidden curriculum" may subtly foster certain religious assumptions and practices, including the school calendar, "which generally follows the Christian liturgical calendar by tying vacations to Christmas and Easter."

You Don't Base Your Activities On How You Feel, You Just Get Out And Do Things

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

How many 71-year-olds do you know who shoot basketball in their leisure hours?

That's what Greenville resident Anne Lee Hardee does when she cannot find anyone else with whom she can spend her recreation time. She goes to the Greenville Aquatics and Fitness Center and, right by herself, spends an hour or so practicing shots from various positions on the basketball court.

And several times a week, she either goes swimming in the Fitness Center pool or practices her football or softball throw at the Elm Street Gymnasium. When she can find a partner, she plays table tennis at the Fitness Center.

She's so seemingly in top physical condition. Does she feel as fit as she did when she was 20 or 30 years old? She gives you a look of amazement for having asked such a silly question. "No, but that's beside the point. When you're my age and you want to keep going until you drop in your boots, you don't base your activities on how you feel. You just get out and do things whether you feel like it or not."

Mrs. Hardee enjoyed athletics in her youth, but had very little physical activity during her adult years prior to her retirement. A Greenville native, she remembers being a forward on the basketball team of Greenville High School, from which she graduated in 1932. She also remembers three happy summers spent at Camp Toxaway near the Tennessee border. The private children's camp, run by her cousin, was where she learned to swim and to play tennis.

After high school, she attended Peace College in Raleigh, then a two-year women's college, and spent two years in Boston, where she graduated from Katharine Gibbs Secretarial School. From 1937 until 1946, she worked in the General Accounting Office in Washington, D.C.

In 1943, she was married to David Hardee, also of Greenville. After their marriage, she stayed in Washington working, while he served out the war in the South Pacific. They returned to Greenville not long after the war.

In 1958, when their three children were in the third and fifth grade — their daughters are twins — her husband died as the result of an automobile accident. Mrs. Hardee was working as a secretary at Elmhurst School at the time. Rearing children alone wasn't easy, she said.

There was little time for physical activity on her own during that time, but she does remember happy times camping and swimming with her family.

Besides her work and family life, her activities were limited mostly to church work. She is a charter member and a past trustee of St. James United Methodist Church.

After Elmhurst, she worked for Sam Underwood, a Greenville lawyer; for Judge Robert Rouse, and, until her retirement for District Attorney Eli Bloom.

Her children are Barbara Hardee, a Greenville dental hygienist; Ann Hardee McMurray, a Salisbury cytologist, and David W. Hardee III, a tax lawyer in Washington, D.C. She has four grandchildren.

Retirement in June of 1981 opened a whole new world for her. A large part of that world is the Senior Games. She is an avid participant and invites others to take part.

The way into participation in Senior Games was paved as soon as she retired. She started swimming at Memorial Gymnasium in the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department's Senior Swimming Program.

(See SENIOR, C-4)

Pam Pack's Band Has Weekend Tour

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The Washington High School Pam Pack Varsity Marching Band will leave between 7:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. on Thursday for a weekend performance trip to Norfolk, Va., Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and Richmond, Va.

On Thursday the band will perform at noon at Waterside, the renovated Norfolk waterfront. It will go from there to march in the Philadelphia Freedom Parade celebrating the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution at 6 p.m. on Friday.

Then, as part of the July Fourth celebrations in Washington, the Pam Pack band will march in the Independence Day Parade down Pennsylvania Avenue. The group will take a break on Sunday to do some sightseeing in the Washington, D.C., area, and then will perform at Kings Dominion near Richmond on Sunday at 1 p.m. in another parade.

The band, made up of 80 students and directed by Joe Sizemore, will return to North Carolina early Tuesday morning.

Southeastern Playwrights Merge Their Thoughts To Promote Talent

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Neither eastern North Carolina weather in full summer ripeness nor the limitation of space at the Robert Lee Humber House on West Fifth Street stayed the journeying of playwrights into Greenville for the Playwrights Fund of North Carolina's 1987 Southeastern Playwrights' Conference.

A contingent of 19 playwrights arrived on Friday for the two full days and half-day Sunday rounds of discussion, interchange of ideas, reading of excerpts from play scripts, and the reading performances of plays in progress — one on Friday night, the other on Saturday night. Discussions continued Sunday until noon.

"We are so pleased that so many made the effort to travel long distances to be part of the conference," said Christine Rusch, founder and executive director of PFNC. Now in its sixth year, PFNC provides a forum for playwrights, young and old, experienced and inexperienced, to have an audience for plays in progress. "It is so important that playwrights have an audience, can feel the response to their efforts, and receive thoughtful criticism, good and bad," Mrs. Rusch said.

The continuing efforts of PFNC to foster playwriting talent is primarily centered on the monthly reading of works in progress play scripts. Traditionally, these reading performances are presented twice on the third Wednesday of each month — at noon at the Greenville Museum of Art and at night in the Humber House. (Due to renovations at the museum, the presentations there have been temporarily discontinued.)

The annual conference has become a highlight of playwriting activity in the Southeastern area of the United States and each year draws an increasingly larger roster of practicing playwrights.

The conference is structured on a series of informal panel discussions, with time devoted to each playwright to have a 10-page excerpt of his or her work read and critiqued by other playwrights and interested persons in attendance.

Playwright Marcia Savin, now living in New York but a native of the South, expressed the degree of what such a conference means to her. Saying she is involved in similar audience-playwright conferences and seminars in New York, she said "the work being done here far surpasses in quality and effectiveness similar efforts in New York City. Here we have a marvelous diversity in subject matter and diversity. The writers are not writing the same glitzy stuff aimed at television audiences, but instead we have here people writing about life as they perceive it where they live."

One of Ms. Savin's one-act plays, "Ain't We Got Fun?" was the PFNC choice for the Friday evening

New York's 1987 JVC Jazz Festival Ranks As The Most Successful Ever

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This year's 10-day JVC Jazz Festival has been the most successful ever, says George Wein, who organizes America's biggest jazz gala.

"We've had fewer concerts that didn't attract on this festival," he said of the concert series, which ended Sunday. "I think there is just more focus with young people on music in general. Jazz is part of music and a very important part of it."

"The entertainment dollar is there. We've had the biggest gross we've ever had. JVC is very happy; they're ready to go ahead for the next three years."

Wein has been a part of the operation since it first began in Newport, R.I., in 1954. After the festival moved from Newport to New York in 1972, it changed its name as it changed sponsors, from Kool cigarettes to the Japanese Victor Company, an electronics firm.

This year's audience was thrilled by Ella Fitzgerald, her high notes clear and right on pitch, bent wherever she wanted them. She still had her unmistakable girlish inflection. Last summer she had a heart attack. She said she was very glad to be singing again and the audience was equally as happy, giving her several standing ovations.

Another high-point in the concert series was "Wynton Marsalis Salutes Dizzy Gillespie on his 70th Birthday," in which both Marsalis and a stellar ensemble of other trumpeters reprised some of Gillespie's virtuoso solos.

On opening night, two Miles Davis concerts sold out and so did Sarah Vaughan. Others that also were sold out included Ella Fitzgerald, the Dizzy Gillespie tribute, two shows by Ray Charles and Grover Washington, Joe Williams with the Count Basie Band, Mel Torme with the Mel Lewis Band, the first show by Spyro Gyra and salsa singer Reuben Blades.

Oscar Peterson did well, Wein said, while the first concert of two by both Chick Corea and Herbie Hancock and Spyro Gyra's second concert almost sold out. He said attendance at Carnegie Hall, Avery Fisher Hall and Town Hall averaged 80 percent of capacity.

"The concerts at Town Hall did better this year than anything we've ever done at Town Hall — the World Saxophone Quartet with Branford Marsalis, Ornette Coleman (with his 1958 acoustic quartet and present electric group, Prime Time) and George Shearing and Friends," Wein said. "We've had some wonderful concerts at Town Hall in the past but never had much box office."

A "Rock 'n' Roll Forever" evening, starring Chuck Berry and Wilson Pickett, didn't turn on jazz fans so it was canceled before the festival started.

"The only concert that didn't draw in people was Charlie Watts' big band from England. Maybe we should have packaged him with something instead of leaving him out there by himself," Wein said.

"The nine solo piano concerts did very well." Those were held in the late afternoons at Weill Hall in Carnegie Hall. Last year, with Carnegie closed for renovation and neither the main hall nor the recital hall available, the number of festival concerts was much smaller.

The first weekend's events at Waterloo Village in New Jersey drew 2,500 to 3,000 people on a rainy Sunday. "We usually do 3,000 to 4,000," Wein said. The second weekend, with concerts at Saratoga Springs and Finger Lakes, N.Y., was running ahead of last year's advance ticket sales, he said.

From Saratoga, Wein will go to the Montreal Jazz Festival where he will play piano with his seven-piece band, then to Nice, France, where he has a festival.

He's also already working on next year's festival in New York. "We've made some plans already," Wein said. "Just keep going, that's all. We try to make it as interesting as possible."

Walters' Style Draws Comment

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Actor Patrick Duffy praised Barbara Walters for being considerate in her interview of him, but Angela Lansbury said her session with the ABC interviewer was "shattering."

Walters' interview with Duffy was broadcast in February, less than four months after the "Dallas" star's parents were murdered in Boulder, Mont.

She knows "how to get the information she wants while being considerate of a person's feelings," he said in an interview for the July 4 issue of TV Guide.

Lansbury said she didn't want to discuss certain periods in her family's life, including her children's involvement with drugs. When Walters led her into that, Lansbury broke into tears.

"It was shattering for me and for my family," she said.

Walters said Lansbury's feeling were "absolutely valid" but that "I didn't milk it. We did stop the cameras." She said also that Lansbury had already talked about the subject in several magazine articles.

TV Guide asked a number of people about being quizzed by Walters. Many, including Richard Pryor, President Reagan and Michael J. Fox, declined to respond.

Banyan trees usually sprout from seeds that animals have dropped into cracks in the branches of other trees, and their roots grow down from the host branches and into the ground, says National Geographic World.

NBC Report On West Bank Sympathetic Toward Arabs

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC News tonight wades into the deeply divisive issue of Israel's occupation of the West Bank, and anchor Tom Brokaw is bracing for complaints about the show's sympathetic bent toward the Arabs.

"The one enduring thing in American journalism is if you do anything about Israel you're going to get reaction," Brokaw said in a telephone interview. "I think we're going to get a lot of reaction from pro-Israeli groups."

The documentary, "Six Days Plus Twenty Years: A Dream Is Dying," is pegged to the 20th anniversary of Israel's victory over Egypt, Syria and Jordan in the Six-Day War, when Israel took control of the West Bank area surrounding Jerusalem. And it refers to the dream of peace that many Jews in the documentary believe is eroding as they face the prospect of becoming minority rulers over a hostile majority because of the high Arab birth rate.

"In Israel these days you're beginning to hear the phrase 'apartheid,' apartheid as it applies to Israel, and not to South Africa," Brokaw says at one point. "For many people believe that the government of Israel is now beginning to consciously invoke racial policies in an effort to control the Palestinians."

One scene was cut, a melodramatic, slow-motion replay of Israeli soldiers blowing up part of a house belonging to the mother of a suspected Palestinian terrorist. Otherwise, the documentary is a thoughtful examination of a tense situation.

Israeli soldiers in Hebron are seen roughing up Palestinian youths after one of the frequent stabbings of an Israeli in the crowded marketplace. Terrorist attacks have made the Israelis suspicious of all Palestinians, who are required to carry identification and put special license plates on their vehicles and are stopped and searched randomly.

The documentary avoids politicians and includes conversations with moderates on both sides. Brokaw said he and the producers wanted to avoid stereotypes that equate all Palestinians with Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and all Israelis with Golda Meir, the late former prime minister.

In an effective segment late in the hour, Brokaw introduces two philosophers and "reasonable men," Rabbi David Hartman and Sari Nusseibeh, a Palestinian educated at Harvard and Oxford. Although both are lifelong residents of Jerusalem, they had never met.

"Where you see yourself as the victim," says Hartman at one point, "I'm saying you have the greatest power to liberate the Jew from the trauma of 2,000 years of wandering. He's come home. He wants to hear from you, 'Yes, you are home.'"

"Well, if you tell him that in his cell, the Palestinian is also in his own home, perhaps he will tell you you are home," responds Nusseibeh.

"And I could tell you that unless you feel at home, I'm not at home," says Hartman.

"Your words sound very sweet," says Nusseibeh, "but the reality of the matter in the West Bank is bitter."

The documentary was put together over several months. Brokaw taped his segments on a five-day visit after anchoring "NBC Nightly News" from the Venice economic summit.

"Israel is more fractious than I'd seen it in a long time," he said. "This time, I really was struck by the angst, the anxiety of so many people."

He said his interest in the West Bank situation was piqued when he heard former President Carter express concern after returning from a trip there.

"It was interesting to me that Carter said it was his understanding that a lot of the Israeli leaders didn't know what's going on (in the West Bank)," Brokaw said. "It is not a place where people go easily. And some would rather not know about it in some instances. And it's dividing up the rest of the country in a lot of ways."

Correspondent Lucky Severson interviews Danny and Vicky Angel. Danny lived in Jerusalem before the Holocaust that brought so many more Jews seeking security in the homeland.

Vicky is a Lebanese Jew. Together, the couple has survived five wars. Their eldest son did not survive the 1970 campaign in the Sinai.

They are asked if there is anything that has made it all worthwhile.

"Of course. We have a country," Danny says. Vicky adds, "But we still don't have peace."

CBS Runs 3rd Again

NEW YORK (AP) — "CBS Evening News" finished third in the ratings for a fifth week in a row, but the network's floundering newsmagazine "West 57th" drew a 16 share, the "magic number" that is supposed to keep it on the air next fall.

NBC Scores On 'Ladies,' Wins Weekly Ratings War

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A Monday-night movie strategy aimed at women viewers continues to work for NBC, which added another show to the top 10 and won the week in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings.

"The Ladies" ran against ABC's Monday-night baseball and landed in seventh place.

CBS added to the female-oriented half of the top 10 with a repeat of the movie "The Lady from Yesterday" in eighth. NBC's summer-run series "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd" was tied for ninth with "Golden Girls," and they were followed by "Valerie."

For the prime-time week ending June 28, NBC had an average rating of 12.5 for its 22nd win in a row. CBS had a 10.8 and ABC 9.8.

The rating is a percentage of the nation's estimated 87.4 million households with television.

A rerun of NBC's "The Cosby Show" was the top-rated program, followed by reruns of NBC's "Family Ties" and "Cheers," then ABC's "Growing Pains," "Moonlighting" and "Who's the Boss?"

Except for "Ladies" and "Molly Dodd," all the top-10 shows were reruns. Other series performing in the top 20 in reruns, were "ALF," "Murder, She Wrote," "Hunter," "Miami Vice," "Designing Women" and "Matlock."

ABC's delayed broadcast of the Spinks-Cooney fight got the lowest rating ever for a prime-time boxing match, with a 6.8. Previously, the lowest-rated fight was an NBC matchup between Curtis Parker and Dwight Davidson in August 1980 that got a rating of 8.8.

Otherwise, news shows were virtually the only first-run shows in the rankings. "20-20" ranked 16th with a 13.9, down from the 18.2 high for the season it earned last week with the Donna Rice interview.

"60 Minutes," normally a top-10 show during the regular season, was 22nd with a 12.9. The CBS documentary "The Soviet Union: Seven Days in May" ranked 24th with a 12.7.

ABC's documentary on the plight of the mentally ill, "They Have Souls, winning streak among the nightly network newscasts to 11 weeks, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed. ABC's "World News Tonight" was in second place for a fifth week.

"NBC Nightly News" finished the week ending June 26 with an 11.1 rating and a 24 share. ABC had a 9.6 and a 21, and CBS a 9.1 and a 20 share.

Too," was down at 59th with a rating of 5.9.

CBS' "West 57th," penciled in on the fall schedule, depending on how well it does this summer, got its best rating in the three weeks in its new Saturday time period, a 7.7.

The lowest-rated shows of the week were "Heavyweight Showdowns" (the Spinks-Cooney fight), "Our House," "Starman," "They Have Souls, Too," "Wizard," "Webster," "Sidekicks," "Our World," "Dads" and "Gung Ho."

Playwrights Hold Conference

reading performance presented at the Humber House. Don Roebuck directed the six-member cast — Muriel Lieberman, Richie Lieberman, Tappy Donahue, Hazel Stapleton, Jeffrey Scott Jones and Greg Ange.

For that performance, the discussion leader in critiquing the play was Dr. Stephen Creech, with the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

A special guest taking part in discussion sessions on Friday was George Parides, director of theater arts, North Carolina Arts Council. "He gave us some very helpful suggestions and comments on our efforts," Mrs. Rusch said. "I'm happy to say he had some very complimentary remarks about our work, our goals and what we are achieving."

The Saturday evening presentation was of Asheville playwright David Brendan Hopes' "Phantom of the Blue Letters." A long one-act play, it won the 1987 PFCN Best North Carolina Script Award under an earlier title, "Waiters."

Heath Gill directed. Actors in the 11-member cast included veterans of East Carolina University and area production performers Hazel Stapleton and Anita Brehm and younger university and community performers Robin Bolande, Ann Coatney, Pamela Harris, Glenn P. Hendricks, Brett Hursey, Brendan S. Medlin, Lisa S. Solick, Mary Thaxton and Sidney Horton.

Dr. F. David Sanders, director, English honors program at ECU, was the discussion moderator for the play.

Among playwrights attending the three-day conference, in addition to Ms. Savin and Hopes, were: Gary Carden of Sylva; Shelby Stephenson, Southern Pines; Deborah La Porte, a Kentucky native now living in Las Cruces, N.M.; Roy De Lamotte, Augusta, Ga.; Charlene Reddick, Montgomery, Ala.; John Welton, Jefferson City, Tenn.; David Muschell, Walkinsville, Ga.; Mary E. Dana, Prosperity, S.C.; Terri Collins, Charlotte; Jacqueline Luke, Waycross, Ga.; Catherine Jones, Columbia, S.C.; John Engell, Davidson, and a Greenville playwright, Robert Bell.

At the opening of Saturday's performance of "Phantom of the Blue Letters," Nancy Distefano, 1987 chairman of the PFNC Southeastern Playwrights' Conference, presented the first Golden Script Award to this year's recipient, and after the performance, Dr. Richard Laing, president of PFNC's board of directors, presented certificates of appreciation and achievement to several persons active in the playwrights' group.

PFNC, now in its sixth year, is funded by an annual grant from the Theater Arts Division of the North Carolina Arts Council, by local corporate and business support and through membership fees.

Man Elected NOW Leader

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Clint Eastwood may be a man's man, but Ed Lesen is a woman's man — the first of his gender elected president of the Westchester chapter of the National Organization for Women, the group announced Tuesday.

Lesen, 49, general manager of the Rockland Review, an independent weekly in Nanuet, has been active in NOW for 11 years as a vice president, state council delegate, member of the steering committee and fundraiser.

"There is no issue that is only a woman's issue," Lesen said.

Lesen said he was inspired by the independence of his 77-year-old mother, Nita, who volunteers at an old-age home.

"At a time when women were supposed to go back into the home, my mother continued working and carved out a career," Lesen said. "She fought a quiet battle."

Archie Campbell Said Recovering

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "Haw" comedian Archie Campbell remained in serious but stable condition Tuesday after being transferred from a coronary care unit to a regular room, a hospital spokeswoman said.

"His vital signs are stable and he's improving daily," said Lisa McNeal, a spokeswoman for the University of Tennessee Memorial Research Center and Hospital.

Campbell, 72, suffered a heart attack June 15. He was moved to a regular room Sunday, said Ms. McNeal, but he cannot yet have visitors, other than family, or telephone calls.

Campbell joined the country-flavored television show in 1969, the year it first aired, and has continued to appear on the program. He also has appeared on the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville.

Senior Fitness

In 1983, Lesley Ball, director of that program, suggested to the participants that they go to Wilmington and take part in the Senior Games program there. Mrs. Hardee was among those who agreed, and she won a medal, bronze she thinks, in the 50-yard backstroke competition. "All of our people came home with some medal," she said. "We were very proud and very eager to get our own program going here."

In 1984, Greenville had its own Senior Games and Mrs. Hardee became a member of its steering committee. She now serves as secretary. She competed that year, too, at the local and state levels.

In 1985, she first competed at the North Carolina Senior Games in Raleigh. In all, since 1983 she has earned four bronze, 29 gold and one silver medals in various Senior Game events. She was one of the platform speakers at the 1985 state games.

In her talk there, she told people how glad she was to be a part of Senior Games and how thankful she is that North Carolina has been a pioneer in the Senior Games endeavor nationwide. She cited the things Senior Games has added to her life. Among them she said are fun, fellowship, discipline and a way to contribute to other people's lives.

Taking care of her health is one way Mrs. Hardee feels she contributes to herself, her family and the community. "I strongly believe that it is each person's responsibility to take care of his health," she said. "I am committed to doing all I can so I'll be an asset to my family and my community, not a liability, for as long as possible."

Having learned three years ago that she has an irregular heart beat, she takes prescribed medication, follows a low-fat and low-salt diet, and exercises regularly. She also belongs to the local chapter of the Mended Hearts organization. She is one of the few members who has not had a heart attack nor open heart surgery. She says she believes the knowledge and support she gains through the organization will decrease the likelihood of her having either.

Another community activity that has had her full loyalty and support is Hospice of East Carolina. She has been active since the program began in the fall of 1981 and is now serving her 16th patient. She sometimes speaks to groups about the value of Hospice to the patient, the patient's family and the volunteer.

An enthusiastic reader, she is a member of the Siera Book Club, which meets twice a month October through May.

She also takes part in virtually every activity of her church, especially those for senior members of the church.

This week she is in St. Louis, Mo., where she and others from North Carolina and Greenville are attending the National Senior Olympics. This is the first time national games have been held. There are no competitions for the categories she won in at the state level, so she is not participating competitively. She is there to support those from North Carolina who are taking part. Among these are Pitt Countyans Reba Cannon in the horseshoe throwing event and Eleanor Ford in the one-mile walk competition.

She and her fellow Pitt County Senior Olympians hope that in the near future North Carolina will host the national games. They plan to play a major part in both the hosting and the competition.

Caterer Knows Way To Celebrity's Heart

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Hans Gerber knows the way to celebrities' hearts — their appetites — and the walls of his catering office are lined with signed photographs from celebrities who have played in the region.

"Thanks for the eats," wrote rock star David Lee Roth.

"Hans, thanks a lot, my friend," wrote country singer Earl Thomas Conley.

And from Neil Diamond: "To Hans, thank you for feeding our group so well."

During the past four years, the owner of Creative Catering has prepared meals for about 150 bands, and says most of them want just basic food, "something mama would cook for them at home."

Carolina Events

Opera And Concerts Scheduled At Brevard

BREVARD — Opera, a pops concert and a guest pianist performance are on the schedule for the Brevard Music Center's series of summer programs that began in June and continue until Aug. 9. The Friday and Saturday programs will begin at 8:15 p.m. The Sunday program is at 3 p.m. All will be held in Whittington-Pfohl Auditorium at the center.

On Friday, Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "Pirates of Penzance" will be directed by Barbara Ferguson with music conducted by Mary Nell Saunders. The Saturday program is a Fourth of July Pops concert with Henry Janiec and Mary Nell Saunders conducting the BMC Orchestra, and on Sunday, David Becker will conduct the Transylvania Symphony with guest performer Eduardo Delgado, pianist.

For information on tickets, call 704/884-2019 between noon and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

N.C. Symphony's Fourth Of July Concert

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Symphony will present its second annual "Salute to America" concert and fireworks extravaganza Saturday at Regency Park in Cary. The concert will feature a program of all-American music, selected and conducted by Gerhardt Zimmerman, chief conductor and musical director of the orchestra. The fireworks display is being presented by the Town of Cary and radio station WTRG-FM.

The concert is to begin in the park at 7:30 p.m. It is open to the public. A $1 contribution to the symphony is suggested. There is no charge for the fireworks display.

Old Threshers' Reunion At Denton Airport

DENTON — The Girls Next Door, Razy Bailey, Bill and Rosi Caswell, and Wendy Bagwell will be featured musical attractions at the 17th annual Southeast Old Thresher's Reunion at Denton Airport.

Denton is 25 miles south of High Point. The reunion will begin Thursday and continue through Sunday.

TARBORO LINEUP — July 4th events in Tarboro include an appearance by the group "Runner" in performance from 4:45 to 6 p.m. at the Courthouse Square in downtown Tarboro. Other events at that site include the "Breeze Band" from 3 to 4:15 p.m. At the Parkhill Mall on U.S. 64 bypass, other activities will be held from 7 to 11 p.m., including a 9 p.m. fireworks display. All events are free and open to the public.

Belhaven Planning Fourth Celebration

BELHAVEN — The Belhaven Chamber of Commerce has announced the schedule of events celebrating the Fourth of July that will take place in the city this week.

The events begin with the judging of businesses and residences for the most patriotic decorations on July 2. Then on July 3 at 7 p.m., 12 girls from the surrounding area will compete for the title of "Miss Independence." EEIis will host the Twilight Hour that evening beginning at 9 p.m.

The day of the Fourth will begin with a bike race in Belhaven at 7:30 a.m., followed by an exhibition of radio-controlled model powerboats, a little miss pageant and a Marine helicopter flyover. The mornings events will culminate with a parade at 11 a.m.

The afternoon's festivities begin at noon with a Shrine fish fry and a church cookout. Also included in the afternoon are an awards ceremony, a Washington Community Band concert, a bluegrass concert featuring the "Shady Grove Band," a mud run, a chamber of commerce office ribbon-cutting, a bag pipe concert by Dr. Henry Hood, a crab derby and a gospel sing by the "Singing Ambassadors."

Also kids and toddlers games, the "Shady Grove Band" again, trick bicycle riders, tennis tournament finals, and exotic bird demonstration, the Calico Band and Square dancers, a water ski show and a street dance featuring DJ Bill Lester beginning at 7 p.m. Fireworks will culminate the day's festivities at 9 p.m.

Also scheduled for the entire day are a softball tournament, a boat show by "Carolina Wind Yacht Sales," a Jaycees dunking booth, pony rides and a petting barnyard.

For more information contact the Belhaven Chamber of Commerce.

A steam locomotive with passenger cars runs continuously on a standard-gauge railroad around the perimeter of the 90-acre theme park. Local and regional singers, musicians and cloggers will provide supporting acts. Last year, an audience of more than 30,000 from 27 states and three foreign countries attended the event.

For more details, call Hank Schoolfield or Don Wilson at 724-7932.

Wildlife Stamps Available At N.C. Zoo

ASHEBORO — Fourth of July weekend visitors to the North Carolina Zoological Park can purchase the new series of American wildlife stamps representing flora and fauna of North America. The sheets of 50 stamps, also available at post offices, are $11 each.

The Postal Service will operate a mobile post office from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The stamps will be available along with a special book that contains full-color reproductions of each stamp, an explanation of each illustration and the sheet of 50 stamps, with the package to sell for $16.95.

Artist Don Balke, who created the zoo's new official poster, will be at the zoo

Saturday and Sunday to autograph copies of his poster artwork. He designed first-day covers for the wildlife stamps. Letters mailed from the zoo Friday, Saturday and Sunday will carry a special zoo cancellation designed by the N.C. Zoo's design division.

The zoo is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends and holidays. For more details, call 879-5606.

'Sword Of Peace' Celebration

SNOW CAMP — Arts and crafts, musical entertainment and an Independence Day parade are to be featured events at the "Sword of Peace" drama site in Snow Camp on Saturday. Activities begin at 9 a.m.

More than 40 craftspersons and artists will demonstrate and sell their work. Among those scheduled to have work on view are woodwork artist T.C. Allen and doll maker Ann Thompson.

Entertainment will include the Original Sand Band, bluegrass and gospel musicians, and cloggers. Two plays will be presented by members of the Children's Theater. The outdoor drama, "Sword of Peace," will be presented in the evening. For more details call 376-6948.

Mourning Gifts

Funeral customs and memorial ceremonies differ drastically from one era to the next. In the 17th and 18th centuries, it was customary to provide guests at funerals with such gifts as a black scarf, a pair of black gloves, and a mourning ring. Ministers often accumulated hundreds of these items. Later, only pallbearers and clergy were allowed to receive these gifts. During the Revolution, the custom was abandoned altogether because the gifts could no longer be imported.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY July 2

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Necessary changes concerning your usual duties should be accepted gracefully. Maintain a cheerful attitude despite some annoying conditions in your surroundings.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): A person or situation at a distance from you may interrupt your plans. Avoid an argument with someone you're fond of.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Your plans for a good time may need revision, but don't let this bother you. One of your talents may cause problems.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Due to a confusing situation at home, you should not do any entertaining. Maintain a good attitude.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Be cautious in driving and dealing with others. Recklessness in either could cause costly trouble.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You could lose a bundle if you're not clever in handling finances. Beware of wrong advice from a trusted adviser.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): You may have a good reason, but don't argue at home. If you do, some serious problems will result.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Scheduling your time more carefully will reduce tension in your life. Be more thoughtful of your mate and other relatives.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): All may seem to be going well, but there's an obstacle ahead—take it in stride. Watch out for angry friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be cautious and tactful when in public. Doing something foolish would bother you later. Conditions are bad.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Make a friend of a new acquaintance—the brush-off would be a mistake. Don't let worries distract you.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Follow through on some plans you have made with your mate. Don't let an outsider distract you.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Something turns up which will dissatisfy you with an associate. Ignore this and try to remain objective.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will have an easy life, so don't hesitate to give your child duties to perform which will teach him or her to work. Teach your progeny not to be too critical of others, so that he or she will learn to be more cooperative and gentle. A well-rounded diet is a must.

shifted to a heart, declarer allowing both the king and queen to win. A spade was taken by the king and the ace-queen of diamonds were led. East held up, to no avail. Declarer had two entries to the table to force out and run the diamonds, so he had no trouble collecting nine tricks.

At the other table the contract was a mere one no trump, and West made an old-fashioned lead of the jack of spades. Declarer won the king, but he had no idea who held the ace. After winning the ace-queen of diamonds, he continued with king-ace and another club.

East sluffed a diamond as West won.

Back came the ten of spades and declarer, faced with a guess, went wrong by going in with the queen. East's ace won, and after cashing the king of diamonds, he returned a heart. As a result, declarer ended up going down a trick!

Apple Pie Has Lasted As A Dessert Favorite

BY CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Fourth of July may be the perfect time to reflect on an American favorite — apple pie.

According to the 1987 Menu Census published in the February 1987 issue of "Restaurants and Institutions," apple pie is America's No. 1 selling dessert. It may be served warm, cold, a la mode, topped with nuts, sprinkled with cheese or criss-cross crusted.

The history of apple pie dates to New England homes in the colonial days, when apples were cored, peeled and dried during the harvest for winter and spring storage. They were used as breakfast food in apple pie, which continues to be part of the breakfast menu in some rural New England towns.

One of the best things about apple pie is its diversity. Add a favorite spice, choose the type of apple to use or shape the pie to enhance its flavor and appeal.

The International Apple Institute in McLean, Va., offers several innovative ways to serve the pie.

•Apple Alaska pie: Prepare a one-crust apple pie. When completely cool, cover the entire top with butter pecan ice cream, then with stiffly beaten meringue (egg white and sugar). Bake in a 500-degree oven for 2 minutes and serve immediately.

•Savory crumb top pie: Bake deep-dish apple pie; cover with crumb mixture made of buttered crumbs, grated cheese and walnuts; broil until bubbly.

•High-fiber, low-fat pie: Prepare a crust with 1 1/2 cups all-bran cereal, 1/4 cup flour, 2 tablespoons melted butter and 1/2 cup apple juice. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 minutes. In a saucepan, simmer apples, sugar, lemon juice, 2 tablespoons flour and spices to taste, until apples are tender. Pour filling into cooled crust and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar, if desired.

Other tips for the best apple pie include choosing apples that mature late in the season, September, for baking. They hold their shape better during the cooking process.

A tablespoon of lemon juice and 1/2 teaspoon of grated lemon rind before added to apples in hot recipes accents the flavor. A teaspoon of vanilla also may be added.

It also may be helpful to know that a 9-inch apple pie needs about 4 cups of fresh apple slices or 3 cups of cooked apple slices. When juice spills over onto the oven when baking the pie, sprinkle the spill with salt.

Store apples in the refrigerator to slow the ripening process. The best pies are made with crisp, fresh apples. Overripe apples tend to mush when cooked.

Try the apple recipe listed below from "Homemade Good News," a culinary publication from Dixie Crystals Sugar.

New Twists Add Spice To Popular Side Dishes

By BETSY BALSLEY

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

The Fourth of July weekend is one during which most of us go back to our roots. It is a time for backyard picnics, bunting-filled nostalgia and parade-watching.

Whether your holiday picnic is built around a batch of hot dogs and hamburgers tossed onto the backyard grill, a big platter of home-fried chicken or even a good thick steak, it is what goes with it that counts. Change the meat course at will ... but a genuine nostalgic Fourth of July celebration just won't count unless there is at least one big bowl of crisp coleslaw and a steaming pot of baked beans. Other accompaniments also are standard at most friendly gatherings of this sort. Potato salad, fruit salad, deviled eggs — all are foods that, in name at least, are standard American picnic fare.

Standard as they may be, however, there is no need for the flavors to be ho-hum. So if you are in a rut when it comes to whipping out some slaws and beans and salads, the following suggestions will add a touch of the unexpected to an otherwise simple and prosaic alfresco menu.

The nicest part about most of these popular side dishes is that they can — and usually should — be made ahead ... some to chill, and others, such as the beans, to mellow.

So what is new about today's suggestions? Well, for one thing we have updated a slaw or two by combining the flavors of several different cuisines with the basic ingredients found in classic slaws. We added shiitake mushrooms, Chinese peas and water chestnuts to red and green cabbage and then tossed the mixture with an elegant rice vinegar and ginger-flavored dressing for one slaw that was beautiful to both see and sample. The result was a big hit with our tasters.

Candied walnuts, apricots and oranges were used to flavor still another slaw that also drew a favorable reception. A baked bean recipe that earned kudos from our tasters combined the beans with apples and onions, producing a sweetness that was greatly enhanced by a spicy touch provided by horseradish and chili powder.

Even deviled eggs were given a special treatment in honor of the holiday when we began making plans for a celebration. Avocado and green onions were mixed with the egg yolk, and a bit of pickle juice added flavor

Research Suggests Moderation In Outdoor Cooking Activities

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Outdoor cooking is a summer tradition for many Americans, especially around the Fourth of July. But, research shows that even the family barbecue may be a health hazard if not done in moderation.

The National Academy of Sciences' Committee on Diet, Nutrition and Cancer has linked foods prepared over hot coals with increased cancer risk, according to "Facts You Should Know About Outdoor Cooking" prepared by the American Institute for Cancer Research.

Researchers believe that the charring of foods creates compounds that cause cancer (carcinogens), which is formed in various ways.

Cooking meat on the grill at a low temperature may change some proteins into products that damage the genetic material, DNA. Those DNA changes may be involved in cancer development, according to the committee.

Also, as fats from meat drip onto hot coals, they form the carcinogen, benzopyrene. The smoke then rises from the fire and carries the substance to the meat, depositing it on the surface.

But, most of the risk linked with charcoal broiling is found in countries where this method of cooking is the primary way to prepare a meal.

In parts of the world where heavily smoked, charred, salted and pickled foods are consumed on a daily basis as a major item, the death rates from certain cancers, especially stomach and esophageal, are very high. Cancer of the esophagus is very rare in the United States, and the death rate from stomach cancer has been declining steadily over the past 50 years.

To lower the risk of cancer and still cook out, select meats that are low in fat. Research shows the higher the level of fat in charcoal-broiled meats, the greater the production of carcinogens.

Cover the grill with aluminum foil before cooking out. Holes may be punched between grids to let fat drip out. Foil will protect food from the smoke and the fire.

When grilling, select a leaner fish. It has less fat and will hold its shape better during cooking.

Cook meat until done and without charring, and discourage flare ups. Burning juice or fat adds nothing to the charcoal flavor of foods, but can produce harmful smoke. Keep a squirt bottle of water handy for dampening coals that become too hot or flare up.

Some foods, especially fish and vegetables, can be cooked on a grill in foil to protect them from smoke and to preserve more of their natural flavor.

Use a drip pan to catch dripping fat, when possible. Make sure the pan does not rest on burning coals.

Many foods may be boiled or partially precooked to reduce the cooking time on grills.

Q. My teen-age son wants to build his muscles. What should he eat? Mr. R.B., Kinston.

A. I'll assume that your son's coach has him in an appropriate training program for body building. The training program is critical since muscle mass increases only after a sufficient period of progressive weight training. I double checked my diet recommendations with my friend Ann Grandjean. Ann is a registered dietitian and the nutrition consultant to the U.S. Olympic Committee and other athletic teams. She agrees that your son needs a high protein diet and probably increased calorie intake. But remember, eating more protein or calories, alone, will not increase muscles. The exercise is critical.

An athlete's meal must meet all nutrient needs. For most teens, that means abandoning the junk food style diet. Eating meals and snacks that follow a good diet plan for the whole family with larger portions and more snacks will probably do the trick. I like the diet plan outlined in the book, "Eat Well, Be Well Cookbook" by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. (Simon & Schuster, $8.95). I got my copy at the bookstore in the mall.

It's hard to determine exactly how many calories a young athlete can and needs to eat to build muscle. We recommend that your son slightly increase his food at meals and include two to four snacks a day. Start slowly and monitor gains by weighing and taking skinfold measurements at the triceps. Your son's coach probably knows how to take this measurement. If your son gains weight and his tricep fatfold either stays the same or goes down, it means the weight gain is muscle.

There are a number of expensive dietary supplement products for sale that claim to aid the muscle-building process. Most researchers are unable to find any physiological benefit from taking amino acids, if the athlete is exercising and following a good diet. Some researchers say there might be a physiological benefit.

Instead, we recommend high protein drinks for snacks like milk shakes, instant breakfast products and smoothies. Use low-fat milk products to make them, if your family has a history of heart disease. The Fruit Smoothie recipe that follows is well liked by Dr. Grandjean's athletes.

1 cup fruit flavored yogurt
1/4 cup fruit juice
1/2 cup sliced fruit
1 tablespoon honey
2 to 4 ice cubes

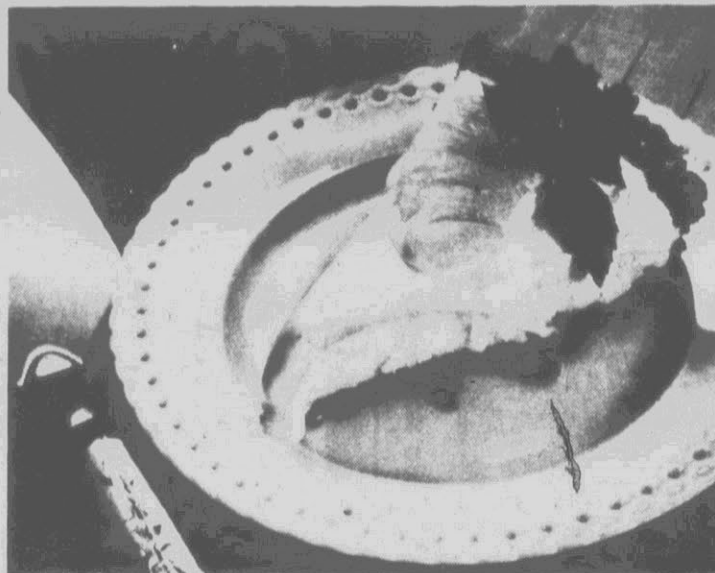

Put ingredients in blender and blend until smooth. This recipe gives about 400 calories and 12 grams protein. Add 1/4 cup non-fat dry milk powder for extra protein.

Q. Is there caffeine in tonic water? Mrs. C.L., Raleigh

A. Nope. You can read the ingredient label on your soda to see if caffeine is added. Write the National Soft Drink Association, 1101 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036 for a free pamphlet "Questions and Answers on Caffeine."

Celebrate The Fourth With Tasty, Casual Menu

SUMMER COOLER — Slice up a summer treat with grapefruit cooler pie. Garnish the pie with fresh mint leaves and grapefruit sections.

Roll out the barbecue for the Fourth of July! For family or company it's the most friendly and casual way to have a good time ... and the easiest on the cook.

The sauce for the North Carolina Grilled Chicken is yummy used for grilling or baking in the oven, so don't fret if it rains and prevents you from cooking outdoors! Just pour the sauce over the chickens when baking them in the oven.

The vegetables and dessert may be prepared ahead of time. The Irish Potato Casserole is removed from the refrigerator and baked for 30 minutes. The Marinated Slaw and German Chocolate Cake are ready for the keen appetites.

Why not celebrate the Fourth of July by using this delectable kitchen tested menu prepared by Emmie S. Whitley, marketing home economist for the North Carolina Poultry Federation.

No-Bake Pie Beats That Summer Heat

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

To take the simmer out of summer cooking, here's a delectable pie that needs no baking. The tangy flavor is as cool and refreshing as its temperature.

GRAPEFRUIT COOLER PIE

crushed oatmeal cookies
(ten 2 1/2-inch cookies)
3 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup margarine or butter
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup frozen grapefruit juice concentrate 1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened

Combine cookies and 3 tablespoons sugar. Stir in melted margarine. Press mixture onto bottom and up sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Freeze. In a small mixer bowl beat milk and 1/2 cup sugar with an electric mixer on medium-low speed about 2 minutes to dissolve sugar. Add grapefruit juice concentrate; mix well. Add ice cream by spoonfuls. Beat on low speed until blended. Pour into prepared crust. Freeze at least 4 hours or until firm. Peel, section, and seed grapefruit. Garnish pie with grapefruit sections and fresh mint leaves, if desired. To serve, let stand 5 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

New Twists Add Spice To Popular Side Dishes For July Fourth

to one version of this popular picnic item.
All of these recipes are simply variations on old favorites, but we think they are variations well worth trying over the Fourth. With these suggestions, your annual picnic may look the same, but it certainly will have a different flavor.

MIDWESTERN BAKED BEANS
1 pound small dry white beans
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon horseradish
1/2 pound ham, cubed
1 (15-ounce) can tomato sauce
1 cup catsup
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 tablespoons oil
3 onions, sliced
2 cups sliced apples
Soak beans overnight in water to cover. Drain. Add 10 cups fresh water and salt. Bring to boil. Simmer until tender about 1 hour. Add additional water, if needed.
Drain, reserving 2 cups liquid. Add reserved liquid to beans along with brown sugar, garlic, horseradish, ham, tomato sauce, catsup, mustard and chili powder.
Heat oil in skillet and saute onions and apples until tender. Stir into beans. Pour into 3-quart baking dish or bean pot. Bake at 325 degrees about 1 hour or until hot and bubbly. Makes about 8 servings.

Note: Beans may be made a day or two ahead and reheated before serving.

SPINACH SLAW
8 cups shredded spinach leaves
2 cups mixed alfalfa and bean sprouts
3 yellow squash, cut into crinkle-cut slices
1 cup small pitted black olives
1/2 red onion, cut julienne
10 slices bacon, crisply fried and cut into 1-inch pieces
2 cloves garlic, crushed
5 tablespoons Champagne vinegar
2 teaspoons sugar
1/4 cup olive oil
Salt, pepper
Combine spinach, sprouts, squash, olives, red onion and bacon in large bowl. Heat garlic, vinegar, sugar and olive oil in small saucepan. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Toss into spinach mixture. Serve immediately. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

APRICOT-ORANGE-WALNUT SLAW
6 apricots, halved and seeded
1/2 cup sugar
10 to 12 walnut halves
6 cups shredded cabbage
4 oranges, peeled and cubed
Dressing
Salt
2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds

Poach apricot halves 3 minutes in small amount of water. Drain and cool.
Heat sugar over low heat in skillet, without stirring, until caramelized. Remove from heat and quickly dip each walnut half into caramel to coat. Set walnuts aside to cool.
Combine cabbage, oranges and apricots in bowl. Toss with Dressing. Season to taste with salt. Sprinkle with sesame seeds and candied walnut halves. Makes 6 servings.
Dressing
1/4 cup oil
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
Dash black pepper
Combine oil, salt, sugar, vinegar and pepper to blend. Chill, if desired.

ORIENTAL SLAW
4 cups shredded green cabbage
1 cup shredded red cabbage
1 cup sliced fresh shiitake mushrooms
1 cup diagonally sliced Chinese pea pods
1 (8-ounce) can water chestnuts, drained and sliced
1/2 cup diagonally sliced green onions
1 cup whole almonds, toasted
Dressing
Toss together green and red cabbages, mushrooms, Chinese pea pods, water chestnuts, green onions and almonds. Toss with Dressing.

Chill well. Makes 8 to 10 servings.
Dressing
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 cup oil
6 tablespoons rice vinegar
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 to 3 teaspoons minced ginger root
2 to 3 teaspoons sesame oil
Salt
Combine sugar, pepper, oil, vinegar, garlic, ginger and sesame oil. Season to taste with salt. Makes 1 1/2 cups.
GREEN DEVILED EGGS
8 hard-cooked eggs
1 ripe medium-size avocado

4 small green onions, finely chopped
Seasoned salt
Sweet pickle juice
Shell eggs and halve lengthwise. Remove yolks and mash. Peel and mash avocado. Add to yolks with green onions. Season to taste with seasoned salt. Add small amount of sweet pickle juice to moisten. Fill egg white halves with mixture. Makes 16 servings.
DILLY POTATO SALAD
6 cups cubed potatoes
1 cup buttermilk
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chopped green onions

1 teaspoon dill seeds
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons seasoned salt
1 cup shredded carrots
1 unpeeled cucumber, scored, seeded and sliced
Spinach or lettuce leaves
Cook potatoes just until tender. Drain and keep warm. Combine buttermilk, mayonnaise, green onions, dill seeds, pepper and seasoned salt. Add to warm potatoes, carrots and cucumber. Toss lightly. Chill and serve on spinach leaves. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Apple Pie Is A Favorite Dessert

1/2 teaspoon granulated sugar
7 tablespoons chilled unsalted butter, cut into pieces
7 tablespoons chilled vegetable shortening, cut into pieces
3 to 4 tablespoons ice water
Filling:
2 1/2 pounds (6 to 7) apples, peeled, quartered, cored and cut into 1/2-inch thick slices
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 tablespoons Amaretto
2 to 4 tablespoons flour (depending on how juicy you like the pie)
1 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 cup toasted slivered almonds
1 1/2 tablespoons butter
Pastry: Combine flour, salt and sugar in a bowl and mix well. Cut the chilled butter and vegetable shortening into the flour mixture until it looks like a coarse meal. Sprinkle the ice water over the mixture a tablespoon at a time, tossing with a fork until you can gather the dough into a ball. Divide into two parts, one slightly larger than the other, and shape each into a flattened 6-inch disk. Wrap each separately in waxed paper. Chill for one hour.
Filling: Combine apple slices, lemon juice, Amaretto, flour, 1 cup sugar, cinnamon and toasted almonds in a large bowl and blend well. Let stand at room temperature for 30 to 45 minutes to allow flavors to marry.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly coat a 9-inch glass pie plate with vegetable cooking spray. Roll one of the chilled dough rounds out into a 11 to 12-inch circle. Fit into the prepared pie plate. Trim the edges of the shell, leaving a 1/4-inch overhang. Put the shell in the refrigerator to chill.
Roll the dough for the top crust out into a 12-inch circle. Slide a sideless cookie sheet under it and transfer to the refrigerator and spoon the apple mixture into it, making the surface as even as possible. Dot the apples with 1 1/2 tablespoon butter (cut into small pieces).
Carefully slide the top pastry from the cookie sheet on to the pie, lining it up evenly with the bottom crust. Trim the edges of the top pastry to extend 1/2-inch beyond the edges of the bottom shell. Fold the top edge over the bottom one and tuck it down under the rim (of pastry, not the plate). Crimp the edge decoratively to seal.
Cut four seams vents in the top, spacing them equal distance apart and one inch away from the center of the pie. Bake in the top third of the preheated oven for 10 minutes, then reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees and bake 35 to 40 minutes, or until the crust is golden brown and juice bubbles up through the steam vents. Cool on a rack completely before serving. 8 servings.

GRILLED HERBED CORN
10 to 12 ears corn in shucks
1 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 shallot, minced
1/4 cup packed fresh tarragon or basil leaves

1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 drops hot pepper sauce
Rinse corn in shucks well. Pull shucks away from corn, but leave attached at bottom. Strip silk away from corn and shucks and discard. Pull shucks back over corn and place corn in large pot cold salted water. Let stand at least 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine butter and shallot, blending well. Mince tarragon leaves and stir into butter with lemon juice and hot pepper sauce.

When ready to grill corn, drain well. Pull shucks away from corn and brush kernels with herb butter. Pull shucks back around buttered corn and fasten at top with strip of corn husk or water-soaked string. Place corn on grill about 5 inches from coals and grill, turning frequently, about 20 minutes or until corn kernel pierces easily with fork. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

DAISY HOT POTATO SALAD
Instant mashed potato for 5 to 6 servings

1/3 cup diced carrot
1/3 cup creamy salad dressing or mayonnaise

1/4 cup minced onion
1/4 cup diced green pepper
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
Salt, pepper

Prepare mashed potatoes according to package directions. Stir in carrot, dressing, onion, green pepper and mustard and season to taste with salt and pepper. Mix well and reheat, if necessary. Serve piping hot. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

DELUXE DEVILED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 cup flaked canned salmon
1/8 teaspoon curry powder
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

Salt, pepper
Paprika

Shell eggs, then cut in halves lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash yolks and mix with sour cream, salmon, curry powder, mustard, lemon juice and Worcestershire and season to taste with salt and pepper. Pile mixture into whites and garnish with paprika. Makes 12 halves.

MOLDED POTATO SALAD

1/4 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons Italian-style dressing
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
1 cup cottage cheese
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/3 cup diced black olives
1/3 cup sliced radishes
1/3 cup chopped green onions
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 (6-ounce) package lemon gelatin
3 cups boiling water
1/4 cup vinegar
Green pepper rings, halved
Pimiento strips
Lettuce leaves

Mix sour cream and dressing. Add potatoes and eggs and let stand about 15 minutes. Stir in cottage cheese, celery, olives, radishes, onions and salt.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add vinegar. To 2-3 cup mixture add 3 tablespoons additional water and pour into 1 1/2- to 2-quart mold. Chill until slightly thickened. Arrange halved green pepper rings and pimiento strips in thickened gelatin and chill until set but not firm.

Chill remaining gelatin until very thick. Whip until fluffy, then fold in potato salad. Turn into mold and chill until firm. Unmold onto lettuce. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

FRIJOLES BORRACHOS
(Drunken Beans)

4 cups pinto beans
1 tablespoon baking soda
2 onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, chopped
4 slices bacon, chopped
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 (12-ounce) can beer
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 tablespoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon ground oregano
Salt

Cover beans with water and soak overnight in large Dutch oven. Drain, then add enough water to cover beans by 1 inch. Bring to boil and boil 15 minutes. Reduce heat and slowly add baking soda. Stir until mixture foams to top of pot, about 1 minute.

Quickly drain beans and rinse in colander. Return beans to rinsed pot. Add onions, garlic, bacon and enough water to cover beans by 2 inches. Cover pot and cook over low heat 2 to 4 hours or until beans are very tender.

Add sugar, beer, chili powder, cumin and oregano during last 30 minutes cooking time. Season to taste with salt. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

Note: Beans may be cooked and refrigerated 1 or 2 days ahead. Reheat to serve.

The safest way to thaw foods is to transfer the package to the refrigerator compartment one to three days, depending on size, before it is needed.

Play It Cool This Summer The Delicious Way

By BEA LEWIS

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

If you like it hot, cool it. This summer, trade in the broiled chicken from the winter days for a cooling, main-dish chicken salad.

To beat the heat, try poached spicy chicken salad with marinated crunchy raw jicama, water chestnuts and thin strips of red bell pepper.

If grilled beef left you steaming, cool it off with a little elegance — marinated caper vinaigrette and plenty of crunchy vegetables.

ORIENTAL CHICKEN SALAD

4 whole boneless, skinless chicken breasts (8 halves)
1 sweet red pepper, cored, seeded and cut into julienne strips
1 cup peeled and julienned jicama
1 (5-ounce) can water chestnuts, drained and halved
5 scallions (white part and 2 inches green), cut into julienne strips
4 dozen snow peas, blanched and stringed

3/4 cup toasted cashews
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cup teriyaki sauce
1/4 cup sesame oil
1/4 cup corn oil
1/4 cup sesame paste (tahini)
2 tablespoons rice vinegar
2 tablespoons dry sherry
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 teaspoons ground coriander
3 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds

1. To prepare chicken: In 8 cups of boiling water or chicken broth, add breasts, reduce heat to simmer and cook gently for 12 to 15 minutes or until cooked through. Remove with a slotted spoon and allow to cool. Chill. Cut into 1/4-inch-wide strips.

2. Combine chicken, red pepper, jicama, water chestnuts and scallions in a large mixing bowl. Add snow peas and cashews.

3. Process parsley and garlic in a food processor fitted with a steel blade. Add teriyaki sauce, sesame oil, corn oil, sesame paste, vinegar, sherry, brown sugar, coriander. Process dressing until smooth. Either toss thoroughly with salad or arrange salad ingredients on plate and pour over dressing. Sprinkle with sesame seeds. Makes 8 servings.

BEEF WITH CAPER

VINAIGRETTE

1 1/2-pound boneless sirloin steak, 1 inch thick, grilled to medium-rare
3 tablespoons fresh lemon or lime juice
1/2 cup red-wine vinegar

4 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
3/4 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup olive oil
Salt to taste
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
4 teaspoons capers
1 pound string beans, ends trimmed
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, cleaned and thinly sliced
2 to 3 roasted red peppers, sliced
1/2 cup red onion, cut into slivers

1 bunch watercress, bottom stems removed

1. Allow meat to cool. Cut into thin slices, about 1/2 inch by 2 1/2 inches.

2. Whisk together lemon juice, vinegar, mustard, vegetable and olive oils, salt if desired and pepper. Add capers. Marinate the sliced beef for 1 hour.

3. In the meantime, cook the string beans in a pot of boiling water for 3 to 5 minutes. Blanch immediately under cold running water. Add to marinating beef; add mushrooms and onions.

4. To serve, cover a large serving platter with watercress. Add red peppers strips to marinade; toss. Remove meat and vegetables from the marinade with a slotted spoon and place on watercress. Mix vinaigrette; pour over salad, using as much as desired. Serve at room temperature. Makes 6 servings.

Menu

1/4 teaspoon bottled red pepper sauce

Combine all ingredients (except fryers) and bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes for sauce. Place chicken on prepared grill, skin side down. Grill 10 minutes or until browned. Turn chicken and grill about 10 minutes more. Brush chicken liberally with sauce and continue to grill, turning and adding more sauce, about 20 minutes longer, or until fork can be inserted with ease. Serves 8.

CREAMY POTATO CASSEROLE

8 to 10 medium potatoes, peeled and cut in half
8-ounce package cream cheese, softened

8-ounce carton sour cream
1/2 cup margarine, melted
1/4 cup chopped chives, parsley or green onions

1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Paprika

Cook potatoes in boiling water about 30 minutes or until tender. Drain potatoes and mash. Beat cream cheese with an electric mixer until smooth. Add potatoes and remaining ingredients except paprika. Beat until just combined. Spoon mixture into a lightly buttered 2-quart glass casserole; sprinkle with paprika. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Remove from refrigerator 15 minutes before baking. Uncover and bake in 350-degree preheated oven for 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

MARINATED SLAW

1 small head cabbage, chopped coarsely

1 green pepper, chopped

1 red pepper or pimento, chopped

1 cup vinegar

1 cup sugar

1 cup water

1 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon mustard or celery seed

Combine cabbage and peppers. In a saucepan, place vinegar, sugar, water, salt and mustard or celery seed. Over medium temperature, bring to a boil, just until sugar dissolves. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Pour liquid over cabbage mixture. Refrigerate and marinate for at least 24 hours. Slaw will keep in refrigerator at least three weeks.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE CAKE

Follow directions on cake mix package of Duncan Hines "Pudding Recipe German Chocolate" or Pillsbury "German Chocolate Cake Mix."

Split cake layers for a four layer cake. Spread topping on cake.

Coconut pecan topping:

1 1/3 cup sugar

1 1/3 cup evaporated milk

4 egg yolks

2/3 cup vegetable shortening

1 teaspoon vanilla

2 2/3 cup flaked coconut, or 2 3 1/2-ounce cans

1 cup pecans, chopped

In a medium saucepan, combine evaporated milk, sugar, egg yolks and shortening. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla, coconut and pecans. Cool 15 minutes. Spread between layers, on top of cake and put around edges if there is enough frosting. Cake is better if made two days prior to serving.

A black and white illustration of a group of people at a beachside restaurant. A man in an apron is cooking on a large grill, while others stand around him, some holding plates. The background shows a beach, the ocean, and a sailboat.

When you get people together for good times and good foods, what you serve is important. That's why the quality of WINN-DIXIE'S W-D Brand Beef is important. It's always U.S. Choice and it's closer trimmed of excess bone and fat, so you get less waste and more beef.
