France Breaks Off Relations With Iran

PARIS (AP) — The government today broke relations with Iran, climaxing nearly three weeks of diplomatic wrangling over France's demands to question an Iranian Embassy employee about a series of terrorist bombings.

Within hours, two anonymous telephone callers to Western news agencies in Beirut, Lebanon, said that a Shiite Moslem group would kill two kidnapped French diplomats because of France's action.

"It has been decided to carry out immediately the death sentence against Marcel Carton and Marcel Fontaine," the callers said. They claimed to be speaking for the underground group Islamic Jihad, which claimed responsibility for kidnapping the two men in 1985.

Islamic Jihad has warned several times, however, that only statements accompanied by photographs of a hostage are authentic.

The French Foreign Ministry did not announce a deadline for Iran's five diplomats and about 35 other embassy employees to leave the country. France has about 15 nationals at its embassy in Tehran, including eight diplomats.

There was no immediate reaction from Iran.

Relations between France and Iran long have been strained over France's supply of arms to Iraq, Iran's enemy in the 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

Premier Jacques Chirac has sought to improve relations with Tehran because it is believed to have influence over Shiite Moslems who kidnapped six Frenchmen in Lebanon. Iran has demanded France stop arms sales to Iraq as a condition for better relations.

Before France announced the severing of ties, Iran's powerful Parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, called Frenchmen "thieves" for not repaying a $1 billion loan made to a French nuclear consortium in 1974 by the late Shah of Iran.

French police have surrounded the Iranian Embassy and checked the identities of Iranians entering and leaving the building since June 30 in an effort to force Iran to turn over embassy translator Wahid Gordji.

French police claim Gordji has ties to at least one person arrested in connection with five bombings that killed 11 people and wounded more than 150 in Paris last September. They say that Gordji, who does not have diplomatic immunity, is the No. 2 man in the embassy and may have links to the Iranian secret service.

On Thursday, Iran said it was reducing its embassy staff in Paris to a minimum and would cut diplomatic ties in 72 hours if France did not remove the police cordon.

The Foreign Ministry said in a statement today that the conditions in Iran's ultimatum were "patently unacceptable." Late Thursday, France reinforced the police contingent around the embassy.

"For several days diplomats and members of the French Embassy personnel posted in Tehran have been arbitrarily stopped from leaving that country to return to France," the Foreign Ministry statement said.

RETIREMENT HOME — The initial phase of the Cypress Glen Retirement Community being built at 100 Hickory St. by the Methodist Retirement Homes Inc. of North Carolina will be opened formally Sunday. A consecration service

Cypress Glen Service Set Sunday

Cypress Glen Retirement Community will welcome its first residents Monday. A service of consecration and an open house will be held at the site, 100 Hickory St., Greenville, on Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Bishop C.P. Minnick Jr. of the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church will speak at the consecration service. It will be held in the auditorium of the facility.

Cypress Glen is the newest facility of the Methodist Retirement Homes Inc. of North Carolina. The 100-acre site extends from the Tar River to East Fourth Street. The facility already constructed, all under one roof, contains 105 single, double and combination residential rooms.

Seventy 1,200-square-foot villas are planned for the same site, as is a nursing home that will accommodate 125.

In the initial structure, besides residents' rooms, there are service facilities for the entire complex. Among these are an auditorium, an institutional kitchen, a dining room with eating facilities indoor and on a patio, plus a private area for special family gatherings and parties; an infirmary with nursing station and seven semi-hospital rooms; a recreation room; individual storage facilities for each resident; a gift shop; a beauty shop and a post office.

A parlor is being furnished by the Patient Circle of the International Order of Kings' Daughters and Son. Adjacent to the building, a park is planned.

A health care screening and maintenance program agreement has been executed with the East Carolina University School of Medicine's Department of Geriatrics.

The project has cost $7.2 million so far, about half of the anticipated construction cost. The operating budget will be about $750,000 a year.

Members of the North Carolina Conference of Methodists are favored for residency, but others 62 or older may apply, if they can show that they will be able to pay for cost of care for the reasonable duration of their lives. To enter the facility, one must be able to take care of one's own day-to-day, self-care needs and must be willing and able to eat meals in the dining room. Once enrolled in the continuing care trust program, however, any resident who has any physical or mental disability occurs will continue to be cared for.

Within a short time, the nursing home component will be available for those who might need at a later date to transfer there. If one's funds become exhausted, he or she will be

Camp Bus Goes Off River Bridge

COMFORT, Texas (AP) — A bus believed to be carrying about 40 children from a summer camp was washed off a bridge into the rain-swollen Guadalupe River today, and youths were clinging to trees to save themselves, authorities said.

At least nine children were rescued, with two in critical condition, said Kathy Sakach, dispatcher for the Kerr County Emergency Medical Services.

"There are some that are still missing," said David Wells, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"We have hypothermia and shock patients who are children, as they are being rescued from the river," Ms. Sakach said.

Two people were in critical condition, with "anywhere from five to seven who are in stable condition," she said.

One of those critically injured was a 14-year-old girl, and Ms. Sakach said another person in critical condition was suffering from severe shock and hypothermia.

Some of the children were clinging to trees in the high water, said Marianne Groves, a dispatcher with the Kerr County sheriff's department.

"We have three helicopters over at the bus and they are also evacuating Hermann's Sons Camp," said a dispatcher for the Kendall County sheriff's office who refused to give her name.

She said the bus was from the summer camp, about 60 miles northwest of San Antonio.

"The water is running fast and it is very cold," she said.

Most of the injured were teenagers, she said.

"We've got camps all up and down here. I think they were going across the river there. They've got little bridges and the river came up too fast," said Arthur Verona of the Kerr County Fire Department.

The Kendall County dispatcher said the accident occurred shortly after 8:30 a.m.

Supports Fixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Price support loan rates for various grades of 1987-crop flue-cured tobacco were announced today by the Agriculture Department, based on a general flue-cured support of $1.435 per pound, down slightly from $1.438 per pound for last year's crop.

Milton Hertz, executive vice president of the department's Commodity Credit Corp., said the loan rates ranged from 97 cents per pound for flue-cured grading N1GG to $1.89 for B1L grade.

The Flue-cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. will deduct one cent per pound from the grade loan rates to help pay administrative costs, Hertz said.

As in the past, loans are unavailable on tobacco graded P5L, P5F, P5G, N1Lk, N1GLk, N1XLk, N1X0a, NO-G (no grade), N2 (second quality nondescript), W (doubtful keeping order), U (unsound) or scrap, he said. However, marketings of these low grades will be charged against the quotas of the farms on which they were produced.

Hertz said loan rates will be discounted 10 percent for any grade of supported primings that contain more dirt or sand than normal.

U.N. To Get Draft On Mideast Peace

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The U.N. Security Council has agreed on the draft of a binding resolution calling for a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war, a Foreign Ministry official said today.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press the resolution likely will be approved at a Security Council meeting Monday in New York.

He said Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher will attend the session.

"It's a resolution which calls on the warring parties to end their conflict," the official said.

Approval is needed by all five permanent members of the council.

Rose Files Again

Ed Rose, who filed as a candidate for the District 4 seat on the Greenville City Council, today refiled for the at-large seat on the board in the Nov. 3 municipal elections.

Rose, an employee at Honeycutt Inc., said he made the switch after learning Council member Bill Hadden was also seeking the District 4 seat.

"Since many of my own political views match Reverend Hadden's, I endorse him for the District 4 seat on council," Rose said after retiring. "We are more likely to be allies than opponents on the City Council. This is my reason for refiled for the at-large seat."

Rose joins Council member Lorraine Shinn in the race for the at-large seat on the council.

According to the 5-1-1 election plan, five council members will be elected by district, while the mayor and one council member are to be elected at-large.

Poindexter: 'I Didn't Want Interference'

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser John Poindexter testified today that he withheld information from earlier congressional investigators because, "I simply didn't want any outside interference" in the secret program of aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

But he told the Iran-Contra committees that he had no intention of concocting a cover-up last November when he destroyed a key document or participated in the drafting of false chronologies for White House use.

The nationally televised hearing was marked by a heated complaint from Poindexter's attorney that the proceedings were unfair — and an acid rebuke from Sen. Danial Inouye, D-Hawaii. Inouye, chairman of the Senate investigating committee, said he found the rear admiral's three days of testimony "incredible, mind-boggling, chilling."

The 50-year-old naval officer, who served as national security adviser for one year until his resignation last Nov. 25, admitted, as he did on Thursday, that he withheld information from earlier congressional investigators.

He said he "didn't want any more restrictive legislation" to stop it. Congress had already voted a ban on government aid to the Contras, but Poindexter said he believed it did not apply to the National Security Council staff. His other reason, he said, was that telling Congress would have created a lot of attention to covert support being provided in Central America "which would have destroyed our ability to aid the Contras."

Answering questions for the third straight day, Poindexter also said he testified erroneously about his knowledge of secret arms sales to Iran when he appeared before a House committee in 1986.

"I simply did not remember" what he had been told previously about the sales, the rear admiral said.

"If we were trying to cover up something from the beginning we would not have gone to all the trouble of preparing all these various drafts of the chronologies," Poindexter said at nationally televised hearings. "It would have been stupid to try to find out what all the facts were...if we had

The session got off to a fiery start as Poindexter's lawyer complained bitterly that lawmakers and lawyers on the committees have treated his client unfairly by publicly questioning his truthfulness.

Thursday Thefts

Investigators said six thefts were reported to Greenville police Thursday.

Officer C.A. Elks said $14 in cash and some change were taken from apartment four, 101 David Drive, in a first degree burglary incident reported at 3:38 a.m.

Officer C.S. Candler said several items of clothing were taken from Lori's Lingerie at Carolina East Center in an incident reported at 6 p.m., while two foglight covers were taken from a car parked at Carolina East Center in an incident reported at 10:15 p.m.

Officer Alexander Batts said a telephone and several radios were taken from a display case at Lowe's on Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 6:01 p.m., while a wallet was lost or stolen at the Citgo service station at 1103 Dickinson Ave. in an incident reported at 10:10 p.m.

Officer J.E. Tripp said $858 in cash was taken from 204 Vance St. in a break-in reported at 7:39 p.m. According to Tripp, who said investigation of the incident is continuing, $617 of the money taken from the Vance Street home was recovered from a juvenile.

Two Are Charged

Police arrested one man and a warrant was issued for another in connection with separate theft incidents reported to Greenville officers Thursday.

Officer W.C. Widener said Arthur Lee Moore, 36, of Route 1, Washington, N.C., was charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of a measuring tape valued at $22 from Nichols Discount City on Greenville Boulevard about 12:10 p.m.

According to Officer R.J. Brewington, a warrant charging larceny was issued for Stacy Davidson, 19, of 1912A Norcott Circle after the theft of a change pouch, containing $4 in quarters, from a Tucker Cab Co. cab at 1706 Garland St. was reported at 9:45 p.m.

Drug Arrest

Greenville police arrested a Wilson man on charges of attempting to obtain and obtaining a controlled substance by forgery Thursday night.

Officer J.K. McCarthy said a pharmacist at Hollowell's Drug Store at the intersection of Sixth Street and Memorial Drive reported about 6:58 p.m. that a man had attempted to obtain a controlled prescription by forgery from the store.

McCarthy said an investigation by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation led to the arrest of Theodore Roosevelt Simon, 48, of Wilson about 9:30 p.m.

In addition to the charge of attempting to obtain a controlled substance by forgery that resulted from the incident at Hollowell's, McCarthy said Simon was also charged with obtaining a controlled substance from Kerr Drugs on Jarvis Street.

Assault Charge

Pitt County deputies today arrested Joe Louis Lea, 51, of 613 W. Washington St., Bethel, on an assault charge in connection with the Saturday morning stabbing of a Greenville woman, Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley said.

Oakley said Lea has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury.

Barbara Grimes of 415 Greenview St. was hospitalized with wounds to the chest, right breast and upper arm following an incident at the King & Queen Palace nightclub on state road 1538, according to Oakley.

The attack was reported to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department at 1:17 a.m. Saturday, Oakley said.

Council On Aging

The Pitt County Council on Aging board of directors will have its quarterly meeting Monday at noon in the Pitt County Senior Center, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Support Group

A support group for people whose children have died in early infancy will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Gaskins-Leslie Center at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The SHARE (Source of Help in Airing and Resolving Experiences) group is for people who have experienced the loss of a baby through miscarriage, ectopic pregnancy, stillbirth or infant death prior to discharge from the hospital.

During the meeting, a film titled "To Touch Today" will be shown. The film was produced by the national SHARE organization. The remainder of the meeting will be spent discussing personal experiences.

The group, sponsored by PCMH, meets the third Monday of each month. For information call Donna Weeks, 551-4470 or 753-3989, or Linda Roy, 756-7227.

Nell Stallings was honored for 52 years of service to the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross at a chapter awards banquet Thursday.

Ms. Stallings is chairperson of the Safety Services division of the chapter. She began her work with the Red Cross in 1935.

A chapter award named for Ms. Stallings was established. The award will be presented to the outstanding volunteer of the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross annually. The award was given to Ms. Stallings this year.

She also received a 52-year service pin from the National Red Cross organization.

"She is the very embodiment of what we look for in a Red Cross volunteer," said chapter chairman Michael Colombo.

"We have made an awful lot of progress in this town in providing for various needs of the people," Ms. Stallings said in accepting the award.

She challenged the citizens of Greenville to raise the funds for a heated therapeutic indoor pool.

The Ott Alford Achievement Award was presented to WNCT-TV for its support of the Red Cross blood program. The award was accepted by news director Roy Hardee.

Sammy Wynne received the Blood Services Committee Member Award.

Farmville Central High School Principal Charles Long accepted an award honoring the high school for its donations; the school had the highest percentage of eligible donors to donate blood at the school Bloodmobile.

Gilda Everett of Burroughs Wellcome received the Blood Hound trophy for her work with the company's Bloodmobile.

An award went to Reed National Co. in Farmville for having the highest percentage of employee participation in a Bloodmobile. The Resident Life Association at East Carolina University was honored for the most successful Bloodmobile at ECU.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to volunteers in the areas of Service to Military Families, Disaster Services, Safety Services and the Blood Program.

Past chapter chairman Don Bailey inducted the new officers and board members for the chapter.

The officers for 1987-1988 are Michael Colombo, chapter chairman; William Baggett, treasurer; Gene Briley, assistant treasurer; Ted Gartman, vice chairman, and Pauline Vincent, recording secretary. Nell Stallings will serve as Safety Services chairman and Charles Davenport will be in charge of Disaster Services. Barry Gaskins will be Blood Services chairman and Mitch Barnes will serve as personnel chairman.

The new board members are Frederick Strom, Jesse Harris, Alexandria Tripp, Chip East, Dorothy Muller and Connie Bond. Gaskins said 125 volunteers assisted with 44 Bloodmobiles this year. A total of 4,882 pints of blood was collected.

Ms. Stallings said that 39 instructors volunteered to teach 154 safety courses in the community, and 24 instructors taught 68 water safety courses.

Twenty-two families were assisted through Disaster Services, chairman Davenport said. Monies spent from the local budget totaled $2,137, while the National Red Cross funds totaled $5,083.

In the area of service to military and their families, 383 service people and their families were assisted. Staff and volunteers worked 8,336 hours on emergency calls nights and weekends.

Military Retirement

A retirement ceremony to honor Col. Harold Zallen upon his retirement after 34 years of military service will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the United States Army Reserve Center, Greenville.

Zallen will receive the Certificate of Retirement and the Meritorious Service Medal.

He began his military career during World War II when he volunteered as a preaviation cadet in the Army Air Corps. In that enlistment, he served as a B-17 Flying Fortress aerial gunner and bombardier in the 8th Air Force stationed in England, and as chief, Military Police at two air bases.

In 1955, Zallen was commissioned as a lieutenant and has served in various positions at that rank. In his civilian career, he is the principal owner and senior consultant for The Acaworld Corp., Greenville.

PCC Service Awards

Dr. Charles Russell, president of Pitt Community College, and Debra McGowan, personnel director, presented service awards to 28 PCC employees at a recent reception at the college.

Honored were: Doris Baker, Jim Fulcher, Gene Hemby and Joy Sasser, 20 years; Sylvia Corey, Earl Keel, Shirley Moore, Charles Russell, Sam Arnett, Frances Elks, Rudy Lloyd, Sid Posey, Jarvis Tripp, Lynda Wilms and Roy Boyd, 15 years; Barbara Carson, John Cayton, Jimmy McLamb and Susan Counterman, 10 years, and Lanny Brittain, David Carmon, Marvin Lewis, Jewel Lloyd, Rhonda Miller, Jack Robinson, Brenda Smith, Charissa Stroud and Carla Lewis, five years.

BUG KILLER RECALL

In cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, Lowe's Companies Inc. of North Wilkesboro is voluntarily recalling Model BK-2000-7 electric bug killers.

Lowe's Companies Inc. is taking this action because infrequent cleaning of insect accumulation in the units, in conjunction with high humidity conditions, can cause the products to catch fire. Lowe's is aware of 14 fires related to this model, four of which caused property damage.

The model affected was sold at Lowe's stores in 21 states since March 15, 1987, and retailed for $19.99. Approximately 21,000 of these bug killers have been distributed since spring.

The Model BK-2000-7 "Insect Electrocuter" is black, approximately 13 inches high and eight inches square. A label on the top of the unit shows the model number, item number 73012, and the UL listing mark. The unit has a short black cord with a three-prong plug.

Lowe's suggests immediate discontinuation of use of the product and asks that it be returned to any Lowe's store for a new unit at no charge. The company recently identified the potential problem and voluntarily reported it to the CPSC.

Medical Scholarships

Three Greenville men — Alan Dickens, Quentin Eaton and Scott Waguespack — have been selected to receive University of North Carolina Board of Governors Medical Scholarships for 1987-1988.

Established by the General Assembly in 1974, the scholarship program is designed to improve opportunities in medical education for minorities and needy students. Twenty students have been chosen to receive scholarships this year.

Dickens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Dickens of Greenville, will attend the Bowman Gray School of Medicine of Wake Forest University. He was an undergraduate student at Wake Forest.

Eaton, a graduate of Fayetteville State University, and Waguespack, an East Carolina University graduate, will attend the ECU School of Medicine. Eaton is the son of Mattie Eaton and Ernest Eaton, both of Greenville. Waguespack and his wife, Renae, have three children and reside in Greenville.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York has joined five other states in a lawsuit to force federal regulators to deal with the "regional haze" caused by factory emissions in the Midwest, Attorney General Robert Abrams said.

The suit, filed Thursday in federal district court in Portland, Maine, would compel the federal Environmental Protection Agency to enforce a provision of the 1977 Clean Air Act that seeks to protect views in national parks.

The lawsuit, which also was joined by several environmental groups, is the fourth relating to Midwest pollution that the state has undertaken.

"The EPA, which is supposed to protect us, is not doing nearly enough," Abrams said.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

No Hero

If public opinion is what it is all about, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North seems to have come off best in his appearance before a Congressional committee last week.

Appearance doesn't change the facts, however. North is no hero. His actions, regardless of who orchestrated them, thwarted the will of Congress.

Phone calls to the White House and Capitol Hill came in large numbers as the proceedings were under way. Generally the callers saw North as a persecuted hero in the Iran-Contra hearings and those asking the questions as the villains.

North is perfect for the televised role. He is the consummate U.S. Marine, who readily admitted to subterfuge and even some personal mistakes in the Iran-Contra affair. But, while he did not implicate the president, he said there were plenty of administration officials who knew what was going on.

He candidly said what most people suspected ... that he was supposed to fill the role of fall guy if anything went wrong. As a good marine he was prepared to do that, and would have until the specter of criminal charges was raised.

North tackled the question of his beautiful secretary by saying that he had always been loyal to his wife. He acknowledged a mistake in taking a security system for his home, but pointed out that one of the world's most deadly assassins was possibly on his trail.

North made it clear that CIA Director William Casey was well acquainted with what he was doing. We will never hear that side of the story since Casey is now dead.

And he made it clear that North was not making the decisions.

"This Marine lieutenant colonel was not making those decisions on his own. I thought I had approval for everything I did," North said.

It was mind boggling from the beginning that a lieutenant colonel would have the power on his own to conduct such activities as selling arms to Iran ... and it is also obvious that the whole affair was not very well operated from beginning to end.

Now, however, Congress has Lt. Col. North's own words that his orders came from higher authority, and also it was in the plan that he was to take the heat if anything went amiss. Even if carrying out orders, by no means is Col. North a hero. He was circumventing the will of Congress. Regardless of how candid he was in his testimony before the Senate Iran-Contra Committee, what has been done cannot be erased.

Unchanged

The supersub continues undaunted.

The supersub — short for supersubcommittee — is the group of powerful legislators which decides the basics of the appropriations bill that will ultimately be approved by the North Carolina General Assembly.

The group of eight legislators has in the past met behind closed doors to make momentous decisions about what would be included in the budget. It was a target of criticism from GOP Gov. Jim Martin.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who likely will run against Martin for governor in 1988, pledged open meetings of the supersub this year. Nevertheless the supersub is huddling as it always did. While the meetings are not closed they are not announced and reporters complain that they are not given the material to follow the proceedings.

Jordan, however, says he is not participating in the meetings on that basis.

"I don't plan to attend any of those meetings," he said this week. "I grow as I get older. I learn. I don't think it's necessary for me to be in there."

To do anything else would not have been a proper stance for a serious candidate for governor who had said the meetings would be open this year.

It is obvious, however, that the supersub proceedings will go on without the lieutenant governor. It is also likely that the budget-making process will continue as it has in the past. Once the supersub makes its decisions the final budget will sail through committees and the two houses of the Legislature. There will be no time for challenges and within a few days the General Assembly will go home.

After all the whoop-to-do over changing the way the budget process is handled, with open meetings and larger numbers on the committee, it comes down to business as usual. Everyone will agree that the open and democratic process is the only way to do things in government, but at times it doesn't work out as planned. Sometimes government just doesn't follow the plotted course. The best laid plans go astray.

The North Carolina Legislature is difficult to change.

Worst Appears Over For Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has overcome the worst damage in the Iran-Contra hearings but faces troubling new questions about his grip on the presidency, his memory lapses and White House plotting to keep information secret from Congress.

The administration breathed a collective sigh of relief Wednesday when John M. Poindexter, the former national security adviser, corroborated Reagan's account that he was never told about the diversion of Iran arms-sale money to Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

That was the central question of the Iran-Contra hearings, the potential "smoking gun" that could have devastated Reagan's already wounded presidency.

Poindexter said he shielded Reagan from the information because "I wanted the president to be protected" if the diversion ever became public.

Informed that Poindexter testified he had not told the president, Reagan said, "What's new about that? I've been saying it for seven months."

Yet, while offering Reagan support on one question, Poindexter undercut the president on the administration's public justification for secretly selling arms to Iran.

Poindexter testified that Reagan signed a secret memo Dec. 5, 1985, authorizing the arms sale as a straight swap of arms for hostages. That flies in the face of Reagan's dogged insistence that he did not try to trade arms for Americans in captivity.

Reagan did not rebut Poindexter's claim.

Instead, he said he couldn't remember. That's the same explanation he offered earlier this year on the question of whether he had approved Israel's shipment of U.S. weapons to Iran.

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater, after asking Reagan about the 1985 memo, told reporters, "He doesn't recall seeing it or signing it or reading it but he doesn't disagree with the contention that he did, and he doesn't have any problem with the content of it, as he sees it today."

How could it be that a president propelled into office by U.S. frustration over hostages in Iran could have forgotten whether he signed a memo approving selling weapons to Tehran?

It wasn't so strange, Fitzwater said, because Reagan has to deal with thousands of documents on different subjects. Other officials stressed that Reagan really could not remember the memo.

If Reagan could forget the memo and the Israeli shipment, what else has slipped from his memory? How close was he paying attention to key decisions?

Focusing on the question of the diversion, Fitzwater said Poindexter's testimony cleared up "an important piece of the puzzle."

But Democrats are not ready to let Reagan off so easily.

House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., questioned how it could be that "honorable people can conceive it within their mandate and authority to make such decisions without the president's knowledge?"

Poindexter said that as far as the diversion plan was involved, "The buck stops here with me. I made the decision. I thought I had the authority to do it. I thought it was a good idea ... but I did not want to associate him (Reagan) with the decision."

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, commented, "The buck is supposed to stop at the top, not with a subordinate. I don't simply conclude because the president didn't know that it doesn't carry equally serious consequences."

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., called Poindexter's testimony "astounding" and said Reagan "should have been allowed to make his own mistakes."

Raising new questions about Reagan's leadership style, Poindexter testified that, "The president ... is not a man for great detail. I don't mean that in any sort of funny way. I don't think a president ought to get involved in details. ... He's got enough to worry about."

While expressing happiness over parts of Poindexter's testimony, the White House was reluctant to proclaim that all the trouble has passed. "It ain't over 'til it's over," said one official, noting that several Cabinet members have yet to testify.

Poindexter, as well as fired White House aide Oliver L. North, made clear they went to great lengths to keep information from Congress and the public. Fitzwater acknowledged that "there still are key issues to be resolved. The hearings in their totality raise serious questions about how intelligence information is handled and how we relate to Congress, and the answers to these issues will have to be taken up at a later point."

Ignoring North's Israeli Charges

WASHINGTON — Ignored by controlling Democrats in Lt. Col. Oliver North's testimony was his explicit, repeated charge that "secret Israeli agent" Manucher Ghorbanifar — with a push from government officials in Israel — originated the scheme to divert profits from Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan contras.

That Iran-contra committees Democrats would turn their heads from this explosive testimony suggests the bond between the pro-Israeli lobby and such powerful figures in the party as Sen. Daniel Inouye, the Senate chairman. This link may also explain the committee's tilt, predicted at the White House and reported by us in December, to concentrate on the contras and ignore Iran.

While exploring Reagan administration support of the anti-communist Nicaraguan resistance in excruciating detail, the committee lightly brushed over the reversal of U.S. policy against arms for Iran. As the select committees near an end to otherwise informative hearings, the Israeli file is incomplete. That costs a chance to put Israel's influence over U.S. policy on record just when the two countries again are working at cross-purposes, this time over President Reagan's Persian Gulf reflagging plan.

Part of the committee's protective cloak over Israel is its reluctance to summon Michael Ledeen, who as a part-time National Security Council consultant appears to be the first American to discuss selling arms to Iran with Israel. Then national security adviser Robert McFarlane has told us that when Ledeen informed him about an early 1985 trip to Israel, he replied: OK, Mike, but you are on your own hook. That trip triggered the Iran "initiative" that has brought obloquy to Ronald Reagan.

Although Ledeen visited the prime minister Shimon Peres' office to discuss the "initiative," Inouye appears to feel the public interest would not be served by putting him on the stand to learn what the Israelis said. Ledeen twice has given secret depositions, but committee staffers told us the "on-again, off-again" plan to bring him before the committee is now "off."

That typifies the congressional investigation's intensity in pursuing North's tantalizing testimony about Ghorbanifar. Invariably called "an Iranian middleman" by the news media, Ghorbanifar was described by North quite differently: a "secret Israeli agent," words North directly attributed to the late CIA director, William J. Casey.

Republican Sen. James McClure, an administration supporter, was the only committee member at this writing to risk political problems with the pro-Israeli lobby by asking direct questions about Ghorbanifar's role. A gripping exchange between the senator and North was ignored by McClure's colleagues on the committees and the national media in general.

"I believed then and I believe now," North told McClure, that Ghorbanifar was an Israeli agent whose apparent task was to find some way to sell North — and through him the Reagan administration — on continuing the dying Iran-arms scheme. How? By the inducement of diverting profits to the contras.

"And that was the genesis of the connection between Iran and the contras," asked McClure. Yes, replied North, who went on to reveal that Israel pushed hard to send Iran anti-aircraft Hawk missiles, though anti-aircraft Hawk missiles were requested by Tehran. Was it Israel's rationale, McClure asked, to give Iran enough money to destroy Iraq's tank force Israelis had with Iraqi armor." Yes, North replied.

McClure noted that Al Schwimmer, usually described as a private Israeli arms dealer and a key player in the early dealings with Ledeen, holds both U.S. and Israeli citizenship and has served in this country "as a registered foreign agent for the Israeli government." The senator did not say so, but the implication was: Why not subpoena Schwimmer, who may not have diplomatic immunity?

All this passed with little show of interest by the committee or Chairman Inouye, an important and respected Democratic figure nationally and in the Senate. He received $40,825 during the 1985-1986 election cycle from fund-raising PACs found in a Wall Street Journal survey last month to be linked to the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC). His re-election in Hawaii last November was never in doubt, and he won with 74 percent.

Inouye voted against Reagan's appeal to sell AWACS aircraft to Saudi Arabia in 1982 and voted to override Reagan's veto of the AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia in 1986. He signed a letter to Reagan demanding withdrawal of the president's plan to sell Stinger missiles to Jordan in 1984 and originated a losing effort to give Israel special concessions against budget damage from Gramm-Rudman spending limits. That record is not unusual with members of Congress who feel committed to supporting Israel, however unselfish their reasons.

But as chairman of the most important congressional investigation since Watergate, Inouye has failed to stock the Israeli file with all the facts and threatens to leave a distressingly-incomplete record. The tough, World War II hero who has intrepidly insisted on uncovering every embarrassing detail of the contra support operation so far has flinched when Israel was mentioned.

Strength For Today

Ambrose Channel runs from the center of New York harbor out through the Narrows into the Atlantic Ocean. In the old days it was always hard for pilots to keep the center of the channel, and often they veered to the right or left and went aground.

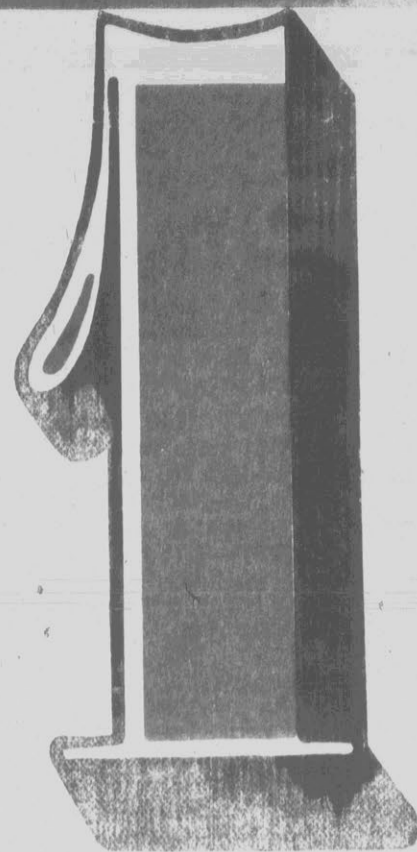

Then in recent times a cable was laid down the center of the channel which broadcast electronic impulses. The special receiving equipments aboard ships picked up these impulses and so enabled the pilots to keep the ships on the correct course.

The Bible performs much the same functions in our lives as does this cable in the navigation of ships. It is constantly sending signals to us indicating what we must do to keep going in the direction God wills for us.

Smith Burial

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Negotiations to bury Kate Smith must wind up quickly if the late singer is to be buried this year in the Lake Placid, N.Y., cemetery she chose as the site for her mausoleum, her executor and others said.

Construction must begin soon to inter Miss Smith this year, said a Buffalo contractor designated to build the tomb, because the ground at Lake Placid freezes in November and St. Agnes Catholic Church closes its cemetery until April.

Miss Smith died in June, 1986 in Raleigh, N.C. In her will, she asked to be buried at St. Agnes Catholic Church in Lake Placid, N.Y., a community where she often spent summers.

For months, officials at the church, a beneficiary of Miss Smith's will, have opposed mausoleums proposed by family members, including a $90,000 pink granite one with a stained glass window. They say the proposed structures are too elaborate.

Rival Companies

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — Burroughs Wellcome Co. is preparing for direct competition from its own former president, who will head a small drug research and development firm in New York.

William M. Sullivan, 52, who resigned last year as president and chairman of Burroughs Wellcome, will be president and chief executive officer of Exovir Inc., a company testing products to treat genital and oral herpes.

The product, when used with a condom, may also prove helpful against the transmission of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, an analyst said.

Burroughs makes the herpes drug Zovirax, as well as AZT, which the Food and Drug Administration approved March 20 for the treatment of AIDS. Exovir's product is awaiting FDA approval before it can be marketed.

Sullivan resigned from Burroughs in January 1986 after heading the company for five years.

Airline Facility

RALEIGH (AP) — American Airlines considered a number of locations for its $30 million flight reservation center but kept coming back to the Raleigh-Durham area because of its favorable business climate, a company official said.

American announced Thursday that the Wake County town of Cary would be the site for the new center.

American, which opened a regional hub at Raleigh-Durham Airport June 15, will be one of the area's biggest employers when the hub and reservation center become fully operational, said Donald J. Carty, senior vice president for airline planning.

The reservations center will employ 1,800 people, officials said. Together, the facilities will provide some 4,500 jobs.

The 116,000-square-foot reservation center will be developed at a 33-acre site at an office complex about 14 miles south of the Raleigh-Durham Airport, Carty said.

Death Penalty

BEDFORD, Va. (AP) — David Lee Fisher should die in the electric chair for hiring a man to commit murder, a jury has decided.

A Bedford Circuit Court jury deliberated six hours Thursday before opting for the death penalty instead of life imprisonment, the only two sentences a person convicted of capital murder can receive.

The jury on Wednesday had found Fisher guilty of hiring Bobby Brice Mulligan to kill David William Wilkey on a 1983 hunting trip in Bedford County. All three men were from Charlotte, N.C.

Mulligan, who has pleaded guilty to capital murder but has not been sentenced, testified that Fisher paid him $6,000 to shoot Wilkey in the back.

School Plans

GREENSBORO (AP) — Educators preparing for the future will need to include the three C's — communication, conceptualizing and coping — along with the three R's, an education planning specialist told about 60 Guilford County teachers, staff, board members and volunteers Thursday.

Gordon Cawelti, executive director of the Alexandria, Va.-based Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, talked of planning in four areas: school organization, curriculum, teaching and technology.

Cawelti, a former teacher, principal and superintendent, said planning in any of the areas cannot outrun parental interest and participation, but he said educators "must not be afraid to dream a little."

School organization must be based on solid research into economic, social, political and demographic trends, he said. Planners must figure how the increase in single-parent homes, for instance, will affect what school systems must offer.

Rates Increase

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Room rates at Baptist Hospital are up an average of 12 percent this month to make up for a decrease in reimbursements from federal health insurance plans, officials of the hospital said Thursday.

The daily rate for a semi-private room on a general nursing or surgical floor increased to $198 from $178. The rate for a private room on the same type of floor has gone from $189 a day to $213.

The rates went into effect July 1.

Permit Upheld

PITTSBORO, N.C. (AP) — An administrative law judge has upheld an exploratory permit for Chatham Coal Co., allowing the company to go ahead with plans to mine coal near the southern Chatham community of Gulf.

Judge David Torbett of Knoxville, Tenn., made the ruling Thursday in response to an appeal by a group of Chatham County residents opposed to the mining operation. The group had asked that the company's exploratory permit, which allowed it to mine 2,000 tons of coal for testing, be suspended until a final ruling was made on the permit's validity. That ruling will be made by Torbett in a July 30 hearing in Pittsboro.

In his ruling, Torbett upheld the validity of the permit. He also ruled that the mine was not in the flood plain of a nearby unnamed stream.

Nabisco Moving Planters, Life Savers Headquarters To Winston-Salem Area

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Between 250 and 300 employees will be hired for R.J. Nabisco's Planters nuts and Life Savers candy division headquarters, which will move to Winston-Salem from Parsippany, N.J., later this year, the company announced.

Some of the employees will be hired locally. A staffing study is being conducted to determine how many employees will be transferred from New Jersey, the company said.

The move, which was announced Thursday, came as good news for Winston-Salem. R.J. Nabisco will take about 300 jobs away from Winston-Salem when it moves its corporate headquarters to Atlanta later this year. The company says it will relocate 250 of its corporate employees and eliminate the jobs now filled by an additional 50 workers.

"The move of the Planters and Life Savers headquarters ... will greatly strengthen the operating efficiency of both the Planters organization and the tobacco company," said Edward A. Horrigan Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Gov. Jim Martin said the move of the $1.2 billion unit would enhance North Carolina's efforts to recruit new businesses to the state.

"Planters + Life Savers sells some of the most respected and best known products made in the world today — including $28 million worth of peanuts grown and purchased in North Carolina," Martin said. "I am excited about the news of the move and all the employees who will be moving to North Carolina."

The division will be located in the former R.J. Nabisco Corporate Headquarters Building now owned by Wake Forest University. The company expects to lease about one-third of the building.

Horrigan said the decision "reaffirms our faith in North Carolina and Winston-Salem as an excellent environment for our various businesses and for our employees to work and live."

Horrigan said Mayor Wayne Corpening and Winston-Salem city officials have been "extremely supportive of this decision and have pledged their support to continue to make Winston-Salem an attractive community for companies and their employees."

Last month, R.J. Nabisco transferred the candy and nuts division from Nabisco Brands USA to R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

At that time, F. Ross Johnson, R.J. Nabisco's president and chief executive, said that combining the candy, nuts and tobacco lines would "capitalize on the mutual sales and distribution strengths" of the two operations. Tobacco and candy products are often sold through the same wholesalers.

The Planters and Life Savers division had revenues of $1.2 billion in 1986 and employs about 5,000 people across the United States.

Planters + Life Savers has brands including Planters Nuts, Life Savers Roll Candy, Butterfinger and Baby Ruth candy bars, Care Free sugarless gum, Bubble Yum bubble gum, Breath Savers Roll Candy, Bonkers! fruit candy, Planters Cheese Balls, Planters Corn Chips and Beech-Nut Chewing Gum.

Its eight manufacturing plants are in Suffolk, Va.; Fort Smith, Ark.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Canajoharie, N.Y.; Cambridge, Mass.; Holland, Mich.; Franklin Park, Ill.; and Las Piedras, P.R.

Martin Vs. Democrats: Whose Policy Helped?

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Republicans and Democrats are squabbling over whose policies should be credited for R.J. Nabisco's decision to move its $1.2 billion Planters-Life Savers unit to Winston-Salem.

Phil Kirk, Republican Gov. Jim Martin's chief of staff, said Thursday that Martin's refusal to criticize R.J. Nabisco for moving its corporate headquarters from Winston-Salem to Atlanta was partially responsible for the company's Planters-Life Savers move.

"Governor Martin's calm and rational approach has been vindicated," Kirk said. "The Democrats who persist in attacking the most successful economic development governor we have ever had have proven how little they know about recruiting jobs for our citizens."

But the state senator who represents Winston-Salem said it was Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and other Democrats who should take credit for R.J. Nabisco's decision, which Martin announced Thursday.

Sen. Ted Kaplan, D-Forsyth, said in a Senate floor speech that a school construction plan enacted this week and other Democratic programs had created the favorable business climate that attracted R.J. Nabisco.

Ken Eudy, executive director of the state Democratic Party, said Martin "had not one thing to do with recruiting this business. The truth is that Governor Martin didn't even know about this announcement until Monday. If he were honest, he'd admit that."

Economic development has emerged as a major issue as Martin and Jordan prepare to face off in the 1988 gubernatorial race.

Jordan and his supporters say Martin has been lax in his industrial recruitment efforts. They say Martin is too cozy with industry and too willing to accept business decisions such as R.J. Nabisco's corporate headquarters shift.

Eudy said then that former Govs. Jim Hunt and Terry Sanford would have "prostrated themselves in front of the moving van and said 'over my dead body'" to prevent the move.

In his statement, Kirk said Martin had been proven right "despite constant barbs and demagoguery" of his critics.

"The governor's statesmanlike position on these issues was not as dramatic nor possibly as newsworthy as (lying) down in the road to block the moving van" Kirk said.

"What would this grandstanding have accomplished?"

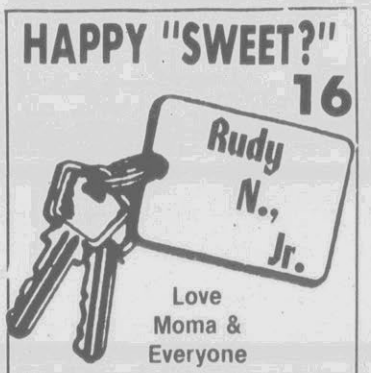

"It certainly would have offended business leaders to see a new, vindictive attitude in a state that is highly regarded as a good place to do business."

Kirk said he and Martin were told of the R.J. Nabisco decision Monday by R.J. Nabisco executives who "gave Governor Martin major credit for the decision to move to North Carolina. They said the governor refused to use the (earlier) 'bad news' for Winston-Salem as a political issue while others tried to use it against him." Eudy said Kirk "ought to stop stamping his feet and whining like a little child."

"Because of the leadership of Democrats in the General Assembly, North Carolina has the schools, the kind of environment, and the kind of business climate that would attract this kind of industry," Eudy said.

He said he did not know who should get credit for the Planters-Life Savers decision, "but I know who should not take credit: Jim Martin. He is the sitting governor. He sits and twiddles his thumbs while the other Southeastern states pass us by."

EPA Says It May Begin Supervising N.C. Waste Control

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal threat to strip North Carolina's authority to regulate hazardous waste because of a new law aimed at a proposed Scotland County facility doesn't appear to have impressed lawmakers who backed the legislation.

Gov. Jim Martin announced Thursday that the Environmental Protection Agency had requested information about the law as a prelude to possibly seizing control of hazardous waste regulation in North Carolina.

In a letter to Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty, EPA Regional Administrator Jack E. Ravan said the law enacted June 16 was designed to "prohibit waste management in the state (and) also appears to constitute an unreasonable impediment, restriction or ban on the free movement of hazardous waste into North Carolina for treatment, storage or disposal."

The letter requests a copy of the law and other information, including a list of locations in the state where a commercial hazardous waste management facility could be located under the law.

Rep. Dan DeVane, D-Hoke, whose Water and Air Resources Committee approved the bill, said it was not an arbitrary attempt to prevent GSX Corp. from putting a waste plant in Scotland County.

"This bill was designed to protect the drinking water not just of the city of Lumberton, but throughout the state," he said.

DeVane said he was not convinced the EPA would follow through on its threat. But he said if it did, the state probably could sue successfully to block the agency's seizure of environmental regulation in North Carolina.

Sen. J. Richard Conder, D-Richmond, agreed, noting that the law contains a severability clause that voids any or all sections found to violate federal standards.

"They haven't seen a final copy of the bill, they haven't seen the severability clause," Conder said. "All they're doing is going by what some bureaucrat in Raleigh says."

The law requires that every gallon of hazardous waste treated in the state be diluted in 1,000 gallons of water before being discharged. GSX officials testified that it would keep them from building a facility large enough to profitably handle waste from a large area.

The Department of Human Resources is considering GSX's request for a permit to construct and operate the facility.

Martin said he was taking EPA's warning seriously.

"It would be a very serious matter if North Carolina were to lose its responsibility for issuing permits for these kinds of sites," Martin said at a news conference.

"They (EPA officials) see this as an effort on the part of the Legislature to selectively block first this and later any other facility that might come along," he added. When a state refuses to deal with its wastes responsibly, "you're not protecting the environment, you're threatening it."

Meanwhile, representatives of Sen. Terry Sanford and U.S. Reps. Charles Rose and Bill Hefner were scheduled to meet July 20 with EPA officials in Atlanta to try to defuse the controversy.

Legislator Welcomes Ethics Probe

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. James F. Hughes, R-Avery, said he welcomes a probe by the Legislative Ethics Committee into charges that he sought favors from Sugar Mountain officials in return for a referendum bill on liquor sales.

"I welcome the investigation to clear up the misconception of what I was trying to do, and what was done and not done," Hughes said Thursday. "It's public business and it would be better for the public to know first-hand what happened."

Hughes said Thursday that he has hired Raleigh lawyer and former legislator Howard Twiggs to represent him. Twiggs was the attorney for former Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who was indicted and later acquitted of bribery charges in 1984.

Meanwhile, Rep. Charles F. Buchanan, R-Mitchell, told The Asheville Citizen he and Rep. Edgar V. Starnes, R-Caldwell, were ordered to testify at the hearings centering on Rep. James F. Hughes, R-Avery. The hearings are set for July 28 in Raleigh and Aug. 1 in Boone.

Sugar Mountain officials have claimed that

Hughes, a Linville motel owner, sought the favors from them and that he let the bill die when they refused to yield to his demands.

Sen. Dennis J. Winner, D-Buncombe, ethics chairman, said he signed several subpoenas Thursday for service by the State Bureau of Investigation. He declined to name the witnesses that will be asked to appear.

"It's very important for me that if I'm supposed to keep something confidential, it's kept confidential," Winner said. "The committee has subpoena power and has desires to have witnesses examined."

"The committee is not trying to prosecute anybody. We're just trying to find out what the facts are."

Hearings of the ethics panel normally would be closed, as have their deliberations so far. But Hughes asked for open hearings, which is his choice under state law.

The ethics committee hearings will center around complaints by Richard Unrath, a member of the Sugar Mountain planning board; Richard Barnes, a lobbyist for the alcoholic beverage bill; and B. Dale Stencil, owner of Sugar Mountain Resort.

Unrath said Hughes sought to have the village annex property where a friend would run one of only two package stores allowed under the bill and for the town to give the license on the package store to Serenity Farm, an alcoholic rehabilitation center in Watauga County.

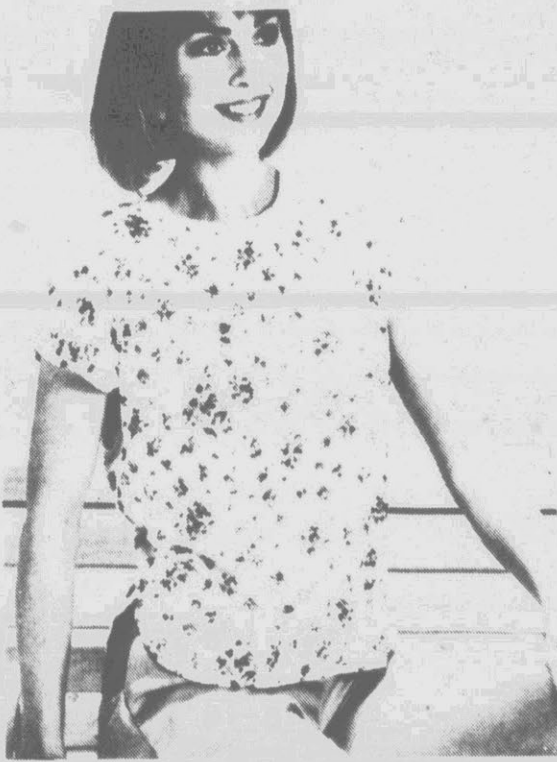

Operated by New River Mental Health in Boone, Serenity Farm leases property from a non-profit corporation of which Hughes is president.

Barnes told The Asheville Citizen Hughes allowed the alcohol bill to die in the House Alcoholic Beverage Control Committee when the town wouldn't agree to his terms.

Stencil said Hughes mentioned introduction of a bill to impose taxes on ski lift tickets to get Stencil to offer him a more agreeable property lease for the package store.

Paupers' Court Status Clarified

HIGH POINT (AP) — North Carolina residents do not have to be destitute to claim indigency in court, the state Supreme Court has ruled in the case of a High Point woman.

Supreme Court Justice Harry C. Martin wrote, "The courts of North Carolina are not going to require a litigant to become absolutely destitute before being granted permission to appear as a pauper. Such would destroy the dignity of our people."

The decision means that the woman, who lives on a $340 Social Security check each month, won't have to mortgage her house to go to court.

"The whole concept behind this is everyone should have a right to get into court," said Stan Sprague, an attorney representing Ida Mae Davidson. "In a case like this, where the lady just doesn't have the money, she didn't have access to court."

The July 7 Supreme Court decision began with a disagreement between Ms. Davidson and an insurance company over a $47 fire insurance premium. Small Claims Court in High Point ruled against her.

She enlisted Sprague's help and took the case to Guilford District Court in High Point. Sprague works for Central Carolina Legal Services Inc. in Greensboro, a federally funded program that provides free civil court help for people with low incomes.

Listing Ms. Davidson's cash assets at $10 and explaining she was unable to work due to medical problems, Sprague filed a petition to have her proceed as a pauper.

But Judge Robert Bencini, noting that Ms. Davidson had a house valued at $27,150 and unencumbered property worth $250, refused to accept the petition, according to Sprague.

Sprague appealed Bencini's ruling to the N.C. Court of Appeals. That court upheld his refusal. But last week the Supreme Court reversed the appellate court decision.

Deaver's Hearing Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial of former White House aide Michael K. Deaver will begin anew in October, now that a federal judge has dismissed 94 prospective jurors an appeals court wouldn't let the judge interview behind closed doors.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson tentatively set Oct. 19 as a new trial date, pending a possible Supreme Court review of Wednesday's decision by the Court of Appeals that interviews of the prospective jurors be conducted in public.

An attorney for Deaver, who was President Reagan's former aide and longtime confidant, said he would appeal the appeals court ruling to the high court, even though his client is "anxious to get this case over with and behind him."

The attorney, Herbert J. Miller, said of Deaver, "He doesn't like my decision, but he respects it."

If the Supreme Court decides to hear the case, the trial could be delayed even further, possibly up to a year.

Deaver, now a lobbyist, served as deputy White House chief of staff during Reagan's first term and is a longtime friend of the president and his wife Nancy.

He is accused of lying to a grand jury and a House subcommittee about his lobbying activities.

Under the appellate ruling, based on protests from news organizations about the judge's closed-door methods, Jackson still could have proceeded with the jury pool assembled Monday by conducting the remaining interviews in public.

But the judge said, "I am no longer confident of my ability to obtain from this panel a fair and impartial jury who would be willing and able to trust my rulings and to follow my instructions, making a mistrial a distinct likelihood later on."

Jackson, a Reagan appointee, has been reversed many times since taking the bench in 1982. As a private attorney, he specialized in civil litigation. Even in civil cases, according to the June 1 ABA Journal, his reversal rate is the second worst among the 13 federal trial judges in Washington.

Jackson had suspended the jury interviews for one day, while the Court of Appeals heard and affirmed the First Amendment plea of the ABC, CBS, NBC and CNN broadcast networks, The Washington Post and The New York Times.

Bond Sales Are Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is halting sales of U.S. Savings Bonds at midnight tonight and will cancel Monday's Treasury bill auction because Congress has not approved an increase in the national debt limit.

The current $2.32 trillion borrowing limit expires at midnight, reverting to $2.111 trillion. Because the lower level already has been exceeded, the government cannot issue any new debt.

The government, which spends more than it takes in, can operate through the end of the month by using the $31 billion in cash currently in the Treasury, officials say. But failure to approve a new debt limit by then could cause a default.

The House has approved a new debt limit of $2.565 trillion. However, the bill has been delayed in the Senate, where lawmakers are crafting an amendment to revive the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law.

The Senate had been scheduled to take up the debt issue this week, but it was delayed as lawmakers went to Philadelphia to celebrate the bicentennial of the Constitution on Thursday.

Trade legislation is expected to dominate Senate debate until Tuesday evening, after which the debt bill will be considered.

Through the Federal Reserve, the government will be notifying 44,000 outlets, mostly banks, to stop selling savings bonds. The cancellation of the $13.2 billion Treasury auction scheduled for Monday, although inevitable, won't officially be announced until then.

LYN NOFZIGER

Nofziger Indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House political director Lyn Nofziger is under indictment for alleged illegal lobbying activities on behalf of Wedtech Corp., a government source says, in a scandal that also has touched Attorney General Edwin Meese III and Rep. Mario Biaggi.

Nofziger, one of the many public figures pulled into the criminal investigations surrounding Wedtech, was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday for violation of federal conflict-of-interest laws, according to the government source, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The indictment was to be disclosed today by independent counsel James McKay, who also is investigating the attorney general. Meese has acknowledged interceding in 1982 on behalf of the New York City defense contractor, four of whose top business executives have pleaded guilty to bribing public officials in exchange for help in winning no-bid Pentagon contracts and other favors.

Nofziger's lawyers said Thursday they would hold a news conference today, but refused to make any immediate comment.

Nofziger began lobbying for Wedtech shortly after leaving the White House in January 1982 and received thousands of shares of stock in the company.

The indictment concerns Wedtech's efforts to obtain a $32 million contract to build small engines for the Army, the source said.

Four months after his departure from government, Nofziger wrote a letter to James Jenkins, deputy to then-White House counselor Meese. Nofziger asked his help in obtaining the Army contract for Wedtech, the Justice Department said in court documents filed early this year seeking an independent counsel.

Federal ethics law prohibits high-level public officials from lobbying their former agencies for one year after leaving the government.

NASA Expands Shuttle Testing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — NASA officials are hoping to squeeze in three more full-scale test firings of a redesigned rocket engine before U.S. space shuttle flights resume next June.

John Thomas, manager of the NASA team redesigning the flawed rocket engines that caused the Challenger accident, said Thursday that the three tests were added to the shuttle recovery program after astronauts and a National Research Council committee recommended more firings for the new engines.

NASA plans seven full-scale firings of the new rocket before space shuttle flights resume next June, and one test firing after they resume, officials said.

Thomas said the test schedule is "exceptionally tight," however, and could be disrupted if even one section of one rocket engine is damaged during assembly.

"The three extra tests are not mandatory before the next flight," he said. "We expect to get at least two of the three, but hopefully we get all three."

Challenger exploded, killing its seven-member crew, after one of two solid rocket boosters leaked flame and caused a fuel tank to burst shortly after launch on Jan. 28, 1986.

House Unit Plans Probe Of Television Ministries

By MICHAEL ISIKOFF
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee has launched a broad-ranging investigation into the financial practices of television ministries and has asked some of its leading practitioners — including Jim and Tammy Bakker, Jerry Falwell, Oral Roberts and Jimmy Swaggart — to appear at a proposed public hearing on the matter within the next few weeks.

At least one of those televangelists, Falwell, said Thursday he is "very much in favor" of the probe and will be more than willing to testify. But two others, Billy Graham and Republican presidential hopeful Marion G. "Pat" Robertson, have sent word that they would not be able to attend because of prior commitments, although the panel conducting the probe hasn't scheduled a date yet.

The investigation by the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee was triggered by recent disclosures surrounding the Bakkers' scandal-ridden PTL ministry, subcommittee staffers said Thursday. But the scope of the probe will extend well beyond the PTL affair, exploring such issues as the tax-exempt status of all TV ministries, their use of charitable donations and their financial accountability, congressional staffers say.

Another apparent goal of the probe, according to a recent letter by subcommittee chairman Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Tex., is to examine the ticklish area of personal compensation or, as Pickle put it, what policies exist "for protecting against private inurement of ministry funds."

"Recent events surrounding the PTL... have cast shadows on television evangelical ministries which I feel need to be explored more fully in public," said Pickle in a recent letter to 11 of the leading televangelists.

Pickle added in the letter that "many members of Congress and individuals" have contacted him with questions about the activities of television ministries. "Frankly, I have not been able to answer their questions," added Pickle, a reference, according to subcommittee staffers, to the lack of scrutiny that has been accorded such ministries in the past.

Indeed, the investigation was described by some observers Thursday as unprecedented: the first in-depth congressional look inside the televised pulpit, a big-time and politically potent "industry" that generates hundreds of millions of dollars in tax-exempt revenues every year.

Staffers acknowledge they are treading on sensitive terrain. Even if the panel documents abuses at some ministries, there is no guarantee that Congress will be willing to do something about them, they say.

"Politically, it's dangerous getting into the whole church-federal government area," said a staffer, who asked not to be identified. "This is not something you can do without being sensitive to the First Amendment problems. I don't think anybody is dying to jump in and take on all the churches."

Nevertheless, Falwell, who took over PTL after the Bakkers resigned last March, said he believes that the television ministries should welcome the probe — if only to rid themselves of the stigma attached to PTL, which stands for Praise the Lord or People That Love. "I would personally object to a great deal of government interference," said Falwell, who added that he plans to discuss the subject with Pickle at a private meeting in Washington Monday.

"But I think PTL graphically proves that we in the media ministry need a greater sense of accountability and openness... The point is made that we do need to police ourselves far more carefully. And we are open to listening to advice."

Falwell agreed that particular scrutiny is needed in the area of tax-exempt income. At PTL, for example, the tax-exempt ministry operates a Christian amusement park, Heritage USA, that includes features — such as a giant water slide and a luxury hotel — that appear indistinguishable from those at purely commercial enterprises, such as Disney World.

As part of a reorganization plan to be submitted shortly to a federal bankruptcy judge, PTL will be "breaking out" such activities into for-profit corporations, Falwell said. "When we compete with free enterprise, we should be listed as for profit and should pay taxes," he said.

It remains unclear how much cooperation the panel will get from the other high priests of televangelism. Subcommittee staffers said Robertson promised to send a representative and that Graham expected to be abroad for much of the summer.

But Graham was also quoted Thursday by newspaper columnist Cal Thomas, a former official of Falwell's Moral Majority, as saying he was "not too happy" about the hearing and that he is "always a little nervous about government interference in religious matters..."

Subcommittee staffers say California preacher Robert Schuller has agreed "to cooperate" but that they have heard nothing so far from the other recipients of the Pickle letter, including Swaggart, Roberts, John Ankerberg, Ernest Angley and, perhaps not surprisingly, the Bakkers, who are currently the subject of a Justice Department criminal investigation into allegations of tax fraud, mail fraud and other wrongdoing. The letter was mailed just before the July 4th holiday.

What of the possibility that the Bakkers, like Lt. Col. Oliver North, could take over the hearings from Congress and use the forum to generate public sympathy?

Falwell conceded that he finds the prospect more than a little frightening.

If the Bakkers agree to testify, Falwell said with a laugh, "I think I'll ask to come two days later."

Democrats Map House-Senate Compromise On Spending Bill

By HELEN DEWAR
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Democrats, in an attempt to sidestep an expected Republican filibuster in the Senate, have mapped out a possible House-Senate compromise on military spending even before the Senate begins formal consideration of the huge defense authorization bill.

For two months, Republicans have been holding the $300 billion defense measure hostage in a dispute over a Democratic proposal to require specific congressional approval for any testing in the president's space-based antimissile Strategic Defense Initiative that goes beyond the traditional, narrow interpretation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) treaty.

But, in the meantime, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairmen of the Senate and House armed services committees, are nearing agreement on most aspects of the measure in an informal conference that is unusual if not unprecedented in the annals of Capitol Hill struggles over defense policy.

According to Aspin, Democratic committee members, working with Republicans from the House but not the Senate, have reached tentative agreement on almost all but the most contentious big-ticket items such as the MX and Midgetman missiles and other arms control-related issues.

There is enough agreement on basic features of the bill to give guidance to appropriations committees if they must draft a spending measure for next year without benefit of a formally approved authorization bill, Aspin said. "I wouldn't say we've got it all done, but it's pretty close," he said.

While House and Senate negotiators often have begun dicker-ing over details of bills before they have passed both houses, lawmakers cannot remember going this far on such a major bill when it has passed only one house. But Democrats, frustrated by Senate Republican stalling tactics on issues ranging from arms control to campaign financing reform, contend that this may be the only way to legislate for the Pentagon under the circumstances. Moreover, some suggest, it puts pressure on Senate Republicans to end their stall, let the bill pass and come to the bargaining table.

Normal congressional procedure calls for passage of authorization bills to set policy, followed by appropriations bills to allocate money based on those policy decisions. But budget pressures, coupled with major policy disputes such as the fight over the ABM treaty in the Senate, have clogged the authorization process, forcing more and more policy decisions to be made in appropriations bills. The Pentagon generally prefers to have critical policy decisions determined by the relatively conservative armed services committees rather than in the more hectic atmosphere of the appropriations process — especially when the appropriations process breaks down and everything gets thrown into a huge catchall "continuing resolution" to fund all government operations.

Sen. John W. Warner, R-Va., ranking Republican on the Senate panel, is caught in the middle and clearly uncomfortable, pushing for a way to resolve the Senate impasse without retreating on the ABM issue. Asked last week about the Nunn-Aspin negotiations, he said the Democrats are "depriving the Senate of a chance to work its will." Asked if the same cannot be said of the filibustering Republicans, he laughed and said, "I don't exactly come to this with clean hands."

Survey Backs Sweetener's Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration followed proper procedures in approving the artificial sweetener aspartame and is conducting adequate follow-up studies to monitor its safety, the General Accounting Office says.

The report was released Thursday by Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a persistent critic of the FDA's approval of the food additive, marketed under the brand name NutraSweet.

Metzenbaum, who requested the report two years ago, said in a statement that more than half the researchers surveyed by the GAO "said they had some concerns over safety."

However, only 12 of the 67 researchers who responded to the safety question said they had "major concerns" and "little, if any, confidence in the safety of aspartame."

Of the remaining respondents, 29 said they had "few, if any, concerns" and were "very confident of the safety of aspartame" and 26 said they were "somewhat concerned" but "generally confident" about its safety.

Aspartame first was approved by the FDA in 1974. But questions about the reliability of animal tests conducted by G.D. Searle Co., parent of The NutraSweet Co., led to a stay of that decision while a task force conducted a review. After further studies, aspartame was approved for use in 1981 and is now a popular ingredient in soft drinks.

"Throughout aspartame's approval history, GAO found that FDA addressed safety issues raised internally and by outside scientists and concerned citizens," the GAO said.

Complaints to the federal government about the sweetener have included charges that it may cause brain damage, headaches, mood swings, seizures and tumors.

Warrants Nullified

ROME (AP) — The nation's highest court today nullified Italian arrest warrants for U.S.-born Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus and two other Vatican bank officials, Italian news agencies reported.

Italian authorities had charged Marcinkus, president of the bank, and Luigi Mennini and Pellegrino De Strobel with being accessories to fraudulent bankruptcy in Italy's worst postwar banking scandal, the 1982 collapse of Banco Ambrosiano.

Marcinkus, a native of Cicero, Ill., told The Associated Press that he had not been informed officially of the Court of Cassation's decision.

"All I've heard is the (news) report. If true, my faith in Italian justice has been restored," he said in a telephone interview from his Vatican office.

Vatican lawyers had appealed the Italian charges to the Court of Cassation and said the warrants were invalid because the three were members of a "central entity" of the Vatican. They argued that under a Vatican-Italy treaty, the Vatican is not subject to interference from any Italian authority.

The court upheld the Vatican position and ruled that the arrest warrants, issued by Milan magistrates on Feb. 20, were null and void, according to news agencies who quoted unidentified judicial sources.

The decision by the Court of Cassation was final, meaning Italian authorities cannot appeal it.

All three Vatican bank officials had maintained their innocence.

Relations between the government and the Roman Catholic Church had been strained by the government's unprecedented attempt to extradite the Vatican officials.

In early April, a special court in Milan upheld the validity of the arrest warrants issued by the magistrates investigating the Banco Ambrosiano scandal. It said the criminal action against the Vatican officials was legitimate since the bank failure occurred in Italy.

The collapse of the Milan-based bank followed its failure to collect $1.3 billion in loans made to 10 dummy companies in Latin America controlled by the Vatican bank, officially known as the Institute for Religious Works.

The bank had loaned the money to the companies during the presidency of Roberto Calvi, popularly known as "God's banker" because of his close ties with the Vatican. Calvi was found hanging from a London bridge in June 1982.

The Vatican bank, which was a major shareholder of Banco Ambrosiano, agreed in 1984 to pay $250 million as part of Banco Ambrosiano's bankruptcy settlement but said its payment was not an admission of responsibility.

Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Scheduling of an "American Indian Week" at the same time as the long-established "National Bible Week" has drawn objections from the Laymen's National Bible Association.

Its executive director, the Rev. Reuben H. Gum, protested to the Rev. Arie Brouwer, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, which had set Nov. 22 to 29 for churches to emphasize Indian problems.

That's the same week, Sunday before Thanksgiving to the following Sunday, that churches for 47 years have observed as "National Bible Week." Gum said one good cause should not be obscured by another.

"We are saddened that the thousands of churches and synagogues" which observe Bible week "will be expected to choose between the American Indian cause and the Bible cause," he said, urging the council to correct the conflict.

Peace Award

NEW YORK (AP) — A Catholic peace organization, PAX Christi USA, has announced its 1987 "Teacher of Peace" award to Seattle Archbishop Raymond G. Hunthausen, whose Vatican-curtailed authority recently was restored.

The president of the organization's U.S. branch, Auxiliary Bishop Thomas Gumbleton of Detroit, said Hunthausen "has been a firm, steady voice for peace, compassion and non-violence."

"Though the center of controversy in recent months, he continues to be a prophetic and reconciling model to the universal church."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

RABSHAKEH, A TITLE—NOT A NAME

RABSHAKEH WAS A TITLE THAT WAS GIVEN TO A HEAD OFFICER OF THE KING'S COURT, LIKE THE CHIEF CUPBEARER OR, YET AGAIN, A HEAD GENERAL IN THE ARMIES. ITS USE IS NOTED IN II KINGS CHAPTER 18, WHERE THE ASSYRIAN GENERAL IS NOT NAMED THROUGHOUT THE ACCOUNT BUT IS ONLY CALLED "RABSHAKEH" THAT THIS PARTICULAR GENERAL WAS OF HIGH STANDING IN THE ASSYRIAN KING'S COURT IS TAKEN FOR GRANTED, BECAUSE HE WAS SENT TO JERUSALEM TO TELL THE CITY AND KING HEZEKIAH THAT THEY HAD TO SURRENDER TO THE ASSYRIAN FORCES OR BE COMPLETELY DESTROYED. THIS PARTICULAR "RABSHAKEH" SEEMED TO HAVE SOME DIPLOMATIC QUALITIES IN THAT, BEFORE ISSUING HIS ULTIMATUM ON THE ENTIRE DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM, HE PROMISED A GIFT OF TWO THOUSAND HORSES IF KING HEZEKIAH WOULD COME AND SIDE WITH THE ASSYRIANS AGAINST EGYPT (II KINGS 18:23)—IT WAS NOT ACCEPTED AND SO THE "RABSHAKEH" PASSED ON TO HIS USUAL THREATS AND DIRE PREDICTIONS OF THE AWFUL THINGS THAT LAY IN WAIT FOR THOSE WHO DID NOT ACQUIESCE TO ASSYRIA'S WILL!

Pollster Says U.S. Experiencing Moral, Ethical Breakdown

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States faces a "moral and ethical crisis of the first dimension," says pollster George Gallup Jr., and it demands a resurgence of faith. By the indications, TV evangelists aren't improving the situation.

Instead, a survey finds confidence in them has plunged sharply. Most Americans consider the electronic preachers dishonest, insincere, without any special relationship to God, and especially untrustworthy with money.

Among the big-name figures, only Billy Graham still holds predominant esteem. Meanwhile, the Rev. Ben Armstrong, executive director of the National Religious Broadcasters, said religious broadcasting has suffered its "worst public disaster" from the sex scandal involving former PTL star Jim Bakker.

"The credibility crisis for religious broadcasting is real and wishful thinking will not make it simply go away," Armstrong editorializes in the NRB's journal.

"The general public is now demanding greater accountability for their donations," he says, adding that his organization is developing new standards for implementation Aug. 1. "We must set our own house in order."

Gallup, whose surveys keeps extensive tab on the nation's spiritual health, told a recent Minnesota Prayer Breakfast of 1,100 people in St. Paul that a "deep spiritual malaise" was abroad in the land.

"At all levels of society we are seeing the corrupting power of money and material success."

He cited widespread cheating on taxes, extramarital affairs of "epidemic proportions," fraudulent telephone charges, pilferage costing department stores $4 billion a year and defaulting on education loans by many students.

Gallup, an Episcopal layman, said people need to learn how to bring biblical principles into their lives, to pray and to speak out about the values of faith to others.

He said the most "hopeful trend in America today" is the growth of interest in Bible study and prayer fellowship groups. "People are discovering that faith grows best in the presence of faith," he said. In some other developments, such as increased interest of college students in religion courses, he also saw signs of "renewed search for depth in our spiritual lives arising out of the frustration with the material world."

A report of the recent survey on TV evangelists appeared in "Emerging Trends," a newsletter published by the Gallup organization's Religion Research Center in Princeton, N.J.

Comparing 1987 results with a similar survey conducted in 1980, the new poll showed a steep decline in trust of leading TV evangelists (except for Graham) and of TV preachers generally.

Sixty-three percent consider them "not trustworthy with money," compared to 36 percent in 1980; 53 percent consider them dishonest, compared with 26 percent before.

Fifty-six percent think they have "no special relationship with God," compared to 33 percent before; 51 percent consider them insincere, compared with 25 percent before.

The figures show that the "sexual and financial scandals that have rocked the electronic church in recent months ... have cast a long shadow over many of the nation's most popular TV evangelists and the evangelical movement in general," the report says.

Among individual ratings, the steepest drop was suffered by Bakker, who drew "unfavorable" responses from 77 percent, compared to only 33 percent in 1980.

He and his wife, a former co-performer on the PTL network, turned the operation over to the Rev. Jerry Falwell, another TV preacher, after revelations last March of Bakker's liaison with a female fan.

Others found to have lost in popular support since 1980 were The Revs. Jimmy Swaggart, Oral Roberts, M.G. "Pat" Robertson, Robert Schuller and Rex Humbard.

Falwell, who was not included in the earlier survey, got a "favorable" rating this time only from 38 percent of respondents.

Grant To Aid Church Elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) The Loyola Foundation has made a grant of $500,000 to help provide for retirement needs of elderly members of Roman Catholic religious orders, critically lacking funds for pensions.

Recent surveys found a shortfall of $2.5 billion to meet such needs among religious orders, particularly of women, with some aged nuns in severe straits or on welfare.

The grant was made to a national organization called Support Our Aging Religious (SOAR), formed last fall by lay Catholics to help respond to the crisis among older religious order members.

"The problem remains grave," said Rita Hofbauer, SOAR's executive director. "More contributions are needed if we are to adequately respond to this critical reality."

FARRIDA LYNETTE BULLOCK — is the daughter of Jean Bullock of Macclesfield and James Bullock of Pinetops, who announce her engagement to Kenneth N. Ellis Jr., son of Frances Ellis and Kenneth Ellis Sr., both of Macclesfield. An Aug. 8 wedding date is planned.

Beauty Runner-Up Will Try Again, At Age 101

By Charles Hillinger
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

VALLEJO, Calif. — "This has been so much fun, I think I will give it another shot next year," exclaimed Maude Burton, runner-up this week in the My Fair Lady Pageant Beauty Contest at the Solano County Fair. Burton, who will be 101 years old on Sept. 29, lost out to a much younger woman. Teresa Segura, an 80-year-old blind woman confined to a wheelchair, won the first annual beauty contest for residents of Vallejo-area convalescent homes. In the best tradition of beauty contests, Segura was beside herself when she was named the winner. She blurted out: "Oh my God. I can't walk. I can't see. And now, I've won a beauty contest. Unbelievable! Babalu, bombs away!"

Judging was based on poise, personality and appearance. Segura was born in the village of Montellano, Spain, and moved to Hawaii with her parents when she was five. It was a three-month voyage by ship, she recalled. By the time she was nine she was working in sugar cane fields on the island of Kauai. "We were poor. I never spent a day in school. I taught myself to read and write," said the beauty queen. The family moved to San Francisco when she was 12. She said she worked all her life, for many years as a waitress in Vallejo. She speaks Japanese, Spanish, Portuguese and English fluently. Surviving two husbands, Segura said now that she's a beauty queen "another man will probably come along and sweep me off my feet."

"I suppose Hollywood will be the next stop, the White House after that. I wouldn't mind sharing some jellybeans with the president," she laughed. The 1987 My Fair Lady was presented with a bouquet of roses as well as a crown and a doll that sings "My Funny Valentine." Maude Burton, the 100 year old runner-up, is a San Francisco Giants baseball fan and was presented a Giant baseball cap and a framed picture of the team. Centenarian Burton vividly recalls the 1906 San Francisco earthquake as "a big shock." She was living at a raisin farm near Fresno at the time. Each contestant was asked several questions on stage in front of more than 500 residents of the local rest homes who cheered them on. When her turn came Burton asked the judges to hold it a minute as she turned up her hearing aid. The 10-piece Just For Fun band led by Harold Anderson, 84, who wears a red tam-o'-shanter and plays violin, entertained. One of the contestants Lily Finke, 76, a lead singer in her husband's band for 30 years, serenaded the contestants and crowd singing a 1920s hit "Two Heartbeats With Love Complete." "Play it three quarters time," she advised band leader Anderson. Contestant Mary Cudahy, 84, played the drums and accompanied the musicians. "They're also beautiful. Just being on stage is so special for them. It was the most difficult beauty contest I have ever judged," said veteran beauty contest judge Lori Border, echoing the sentiments of all five judges.

Woman Wears Pants So She Can Hide Her Legs

Dear Abby

surgeon in her own community for an examination and evaluation."

DEAR ABBY: Another girl and I have shared an apartment for three years and have a great relationship. Her boyfriend slept here occasionally, but for the past year or so he has been living with us 98 percent of the time. He has a key to the apartment, washes his clothes here, eats and sleeps here. There are times when my roommate has been out of town on business, but the boyfriend sleeps here anyway. I really don't mind because he's a nice guy, but I think he should pay rent, or a third of the utilities.

I've mentioned this to my roommate and her boyfriend, but they think I'm being petty. Am I? If you think I am, I'll back off. If you think I have a valid complaint, I'll mention it again. What do you think? — USED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR USED: I think Mr. Nice Guy should pay a third of the rent — and a third of the utilities. As things stand, he's a very expensive house pet. Mention it again. This time, with more conviction.

DEAR ABBY: I had an appointment with a doctor I had not seen before. My appointment was for 11:15, and I arrived 10 minutes early. At 12:10 I had been moved to one of the inner examining rooms, but still had not seen the doctor. I had other obligations for the afternoon and was getting nervous, so I went to the receptionist and told her to reschedule another appointment for me.

I realize that doctors are sometimes unavoidably delayed, but no one relayed this information to me. My question: How long should one wait? Doctors are notorious for this, and I feel we have let them get away with this sort of thing too long. My time is important, too. — IMPATIENT PATIENT

DEAR IMPATIENT: How long one "should" wait depends on how much time one has, and how urgent the problem. Personally, I would rather wait, see the doctor, and get it over with than schedule another appointment and start again from "square one."

Renovation Hides Old Prague

By IVA DRAPALOVA
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Scaffolding, cranes and excavators have swallowed up Prague's old town square, one of this ancient city's gems, in an unparalleled restoration and cleanup effort. It's not money, but skilled workers that are in short supply.

Much of the restoration in the old town is linked with the reconstruction of the Royal Route, the road taken by Bohemia's kings from their downtown palace over the Charles Bridge spanning the Vltava River, to the Hradcany Castle.

Tourists wait in vain for the apostles on the famous astronomical clock, built in 1410, to pass, marking the hour. No cock crows, the figure of death does not shake its scythe, nor the miser his moneybag.

The clock's figures are all being painstakingly cleaned and repaired. Scaffolding hides the historic Kinsky Palace and St. Nicolas church, and huge posters invite passers-by to "come and help us restore Prague."

Work began a little over a year ago. About 600 people are kept busy with the Royal Route alone, and officials estimate that 240 million crowns — $10 million — will be spent by the time the project ends next February.

While the money is there, officials complain of a scarcity of workers skilled in the medieval crafts who can restore buildings to as near their original state as possible.

Visitors to the old town will not find the crosses in the pavement that mark the 1621 execution of leading Czech nobles, in a feud between Protestants and Catholics that marked the start of the 30 Years War.

The square has been ripped up, as huge underground electricity collectors and gas and water mains — some of them more than 150 years old — are being replaced.

The restoration of the Tyn Church, which dominates the north end of the square, has been going on since the early 1970s and is not due for completion until 2004.

More than two million slates were hand cut for the towers, and 20 stonemasons are at work on sandstone blocks intended to refurbish the Gothic structure of the church, founded in 1365.

It was from the balcony of Prague's most beautiful rococo palace, the Goltz-Kinsky, that Czechoslovakia's first Communist president, Klement Gottwald, led the 1948 revolution. The Goltz-Kinsky also is being restored, as is the baroque St. Nicolas Church.

Plans are underway to replace the neo-Gothic wing of the old town hall, destroyed on the last day of World War II.

Some letter-writers to the Prague daily Vecerni Praha have called for a Gothic-style building to fill the site, in keeping with the historical character of the square. Others, however, would like to see a modern building.

Restoration along the Royal Route largely has been completed in the Celetna pedestrian zone. But major reconstruction of the interior continues at the nearby Tyl Theater, where Mozart's comic opera Don Giovanni premiered in 1787.

FOCUS

Desert Data

Desert sand dunes have a life of their own. Shifting sands may form dune lines up to 250 miles long. And desert sand can travel on the wind to other continents. Experts say dust from the Sahara Desert has been observed in England. Some deserts are among the hottest places on Earth, but others are frigid. Mountains are actually more prevalent in deserts than the wind-swept sand dunes, and many desert mountains, some more than 10,000 feet high, are covered with snow.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the only continent that has no deserts?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Unripened bananas are green.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY July 18

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Arguments are quite possible today, so be prepared to keep your cool. After you resolve these mishaps, there's a fine chance of finding yourself in a much improved situation.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): If you don't look at the matter objectively, an argument over finances can bring harsh words. Don't be stubborn.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Try not to make demands of others, even if you feel you have the right to do so. Avoid arguments thusly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A personal anxiety could make you act in an unusual manner, so guard against this.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You may be irked with a good friend, but do not react until you know exactly what is going on.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Be tactful in handling your activities today. Keep a promise you have made. Your benefits will abound thusly.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): One who feels upset needs pacification, and you can provide it. It's not the right time to take that desired trip.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): You have assumed an obligation that now seems difficult for you, but study it carefully and it will seem easy.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): A partner may be angry today. A situation seems to be very mixed up, but it soon will clear.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Your work duties have you confused, but maintain your poise. If a co-worker grumbles, leave his one alone.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You are so eager for a good time and are not thinking wisely, so watch your wallet.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If you are provoked at home, maintain your cool and don't flare up. Have some friends over tonight.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Care is needed in any kind of motion today. Make no snide remarks which you may regret later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will have the ability to comprehend anything that has to do with money, business and other practical matters. The eagerness in this one to make money will cause your progeny to act too hastily, so teach this child to be more cooperative for better understanding.

 It might seem strange for declarer to complain that he held too many trumps. That plaint falls on deaf ears if he could have done something about it.
 East went up with the ace at the first trick and shifted to the queen of diamonds to dummy's ace. A trump to the king revealed the bad break, and declarer tried to recover by cashing the king of hearts and then ruffing the queen. A diamond ruff was followed by a club to the ace and another diamond ruff, but declarer eventually had to concede two club tricks and a trump for down one.

As is often the case where declarer has long trumps, a wise precaution is to shorten his trumps as soon as possible. Thus, after winning the ace of diamonds at trick two, declarer should have ruffed a diamond at once. When he next cashes the king of trumps to find out about the break, he still has time to apply countermeasures.

He continues as above, using the two entries to dummy (ace of clubs and a heart ruff) to ruff two more diamonds. Then he simply exits with a club and sits back to score his last two trumps. In all, he will have collected seven (!) trump tricks (three high trumps, three ruffs in hand and one in dummy) and one in each side suit for a total of 10.

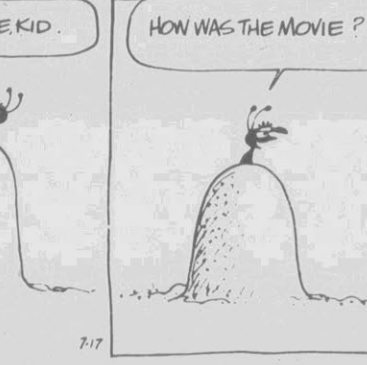

We have described this type of situation often. It can seldom do harm, and often a lot of good, to prepare to score your trumps singly if, by so doing, you do not risk losing control of the hand.

Thatcher Confident 'Strong' Reagan Can Obtain Nuclear Arms Cutbacks

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said today that President Reagan has not let the revelations of the Iran-Contra hearings dim his role as a world leader and expressed confidence he would negotiate a verifiable nuclear arms reduction agreement with the Soviet Union.

"I believe he's a great leader," Mrs. Thatcher said hours after arriving here for a one-day visit. "Even during this difficult period, he has not let go his leadership role in any way," she said on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

She pointed to the administration's handling of the internal unrest in South Korea and its vigorous efforts to recruit support for a U.N. Security Council resolution for a ceasefire in the Iran-Iraq war as examples of Reagan's recent leadership.

Mrs. Thatcher, who last month entered her third term in office, was having lunch with Reagan and then meeting with Senate leaders before leaving Washington.

She urged Reagan to move forward with foreign policy initiatives, saying that, "if America does not take the leadership role, ... she injures the interests of the free world." She added that "America is the flagship of freedom ... she must sail into the sunrise and not look back at things that may or may not have happened."

Mrs. Thatcher rejected U.S. assessments that the Soviet Union was dragging its feet on the negotiations to eliminate medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe.

"Verification is tricky and that's what's taking the time," she said. The conservative premier, who took a tough line with the Kremlin leadership when she visited Moscow in May, said she believed Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev wanted an agreement as much as Reagan.

Gorbachev needs an arms control pact if he's to continue doing the "remarkable things" he's doing in liberalizing and reconstructing Soviet economic policies, she said.

Mrs. Thatcher rejected suggestions that the Soviets were seeking to take advantage of Reagan's troubles at home. "I don't think they'll find a politically weakened president," she said.

Britain supports Reagan's plan to reflag 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers and grant them U.S. Navy protection through the Persian Gulf, she said.

But Mrs. Thatcher said her country could not do more than it's already doing to escort British-owned and flagged ships in the gulf. She noted that the British navy had this year escorted about 150 vessels in those troubled waters.

She expressed support for a U.N. ceasefire resolution to end the seven-year Iran-Iraq war.

Early next week, Secretary of State George Shultz is expected to participate in U.N. Security Council adoption of such a resolution. Britain is a member of the Security Council and has endorsed the proposed U.S. wording on the resolution.

On the Middle East peace process, Mrs. Thatcher said she would urge Reagan to push for an international peace conference as a framework for direct talks between Israel and the Arabs. Reagan has been cautious on the international conference, partly out of reluctance to allow the Soviet Union a role in Mideast peacemaking.

Mrs. Thatcher said it was too soon for the United States or her government to resume ties with Syria, which were broken off last fall over signs of Syrian involvement in an attempt to blow up an Israeli airliner flying from London.

But she accepted Reagan's decision to send U.N. Ambassador Vernon Walters to Damascus for talks with President Hafez Assad earlier this month, and said she believed Syria was doing what it could to obtain freedom for Western hostages held in Lebanon.

Unlike previous visits, when Mrs. Thatcher voiced disagreements on particular U.S. policies, she headed into today's session with general support for American moves.

Ford Recalling Its Ambulances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. announced the safety recall today of up to 20,000 ambulances to correct problems that have resulted in at least two dozen of the vehicles catching fire.

Ford officials said the recall, which had been sought for months by auto safety advocates and officials in a number of states, is expected to take up to two months to complete and affects ambulances that have been converted using the chassis of 1983-87 Ford E-350 vans.

The action follows the filing of a petition with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration on behalf of the attorneys general of six states, including Virginia and North Carolina, asking for a formal safety recall of the ambulances.

Ford provides chassis for about 90 percent of the ambulances used in the country, company officials said.

The problem with the converted vans stems from overheating and overpressurization of fuel in the gasoline tank, which has caused fuel to spurt from the tank, resulting in at least 24 fires and five injuries.

The recall does not cover the thousands of similar Ford vans used for purposes other than ambulances.

Helen Petruskas, Ford's vice president for safety engineering, said there is no evidence that the fuel overheating problem is significant among vehicles other than ambulances, although she said Ford engineers are "looking very vigorously" at the performance of the vans.

Last month the company asked ambulance users to bring their vehicles in to dealers to make the needed changes, but critics including the American Ambulance Association said a formal recall was needed to get widespread compliance.

France Cuts Ties

"France takes notice of this situation and considers that, the process of breaking diplomatic relations being already under way, the consequences must be drawn," it said.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said France still expected Gordji to present himself for questioning despite the break in ties.

Christian Bourgeois, the lawyer handling Iranian interests in France, said that France now ran the risk of having its embassy in Tehran taken hostage. Iranian militants overran the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979 and held about 50 Americans hostage for 444 days.

"What risks happening now is that people in Iran, the crowds, learning about the rupture in diplomatic relations, do something of the type that happened to the Americans," he told Radio Monte Carlo, monitored in Paris.

Former Iranian President Abolhassan Baji-Sadr, living in exile in France, told The Associated Press that a takeover of the French Embassy in Tehran "could happen if the French don't let Gordji go."

Earlier today, the Interior Ministry confirmed that Iranian envoys have been forbidden to leave French territory since Saturday, and that four Iranian diplomats were prevented from crossing into Switzerland.

Iran has stopped two non-diplomatic French Embassy employees in Tehran from leaving that city.

In Tehran today, Rafsanjani told worshippers at a prayer service that "Frenchmen are thieves."

"They not only refuse to give the money back, but also use it to help our enemies and give them weapons," he said. His comments were carried on Tehran Radio, monitored in Cyprus.

Paris agreed earlier this year to repay one third of the $1 billion Iranian loan, but negotiations were deadlocked when the Iranians claimed nearly $1 billion more in interest.

Iran's relations with Britain were reduced to a caretaker status after a dispute over the arrest of an Iranian official in Manchester, England, on shoplifting charges and the subsequent beating and brief abduction of a British diplomat in Tehran.

One British diplomat remains in Tehran, operating from the Swedish Embassy. Iran has one diplomat stationed at its embassy in London.

an individual if it wishes to, unless it shows some restraint," attorney Richard Beckler said.

Poindexter registered a complaint about news coverage, as well, saying that news reports had twisted his own words out of context.

But Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, head of the Senate committee, told Beckler he thought committee members had a right to question elements of the admiral's testimony, which Inouye characterized as "incredible, mind-boggling, chilling."

He said that neither he nor President Reagan considered the president's initial approval of secret arms sales to be a straight arms-for-hostage arrangement.

On Wednesday, Poindexter said Reagan signed a document authorizing arms sales. That document, an unsigned copy of which has been made available, made no mention of a broader diplomatic initiative to Iran. The paper that authorized the sales listed its scope as "Hostage rescue — Middle East."

In today's testimony, Poindexter again described that he had carried the paper into Reagan and watched him sign it.

He said, as he had on Wednesday, that he was dissatisfied with the paper and that it was prepared by CIA officials who were anxious to have retroactive approval for covert actions already taken.

Faldo Splashes To Open Lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Nick Faldo of England celebrated his birthday one day ahead of schedule today, splashing into the early second-round lead at the British Open as the weather on Scotland's east coast took a dreadful turn.

Faldo, winner of this year's Spanish Open and a consistent British Open performer, shot 2-under par 69 for a two-round total of 5-under 137.

Nick Price of South Africa, who also started the day 3-under, bogeyed twice in the front nine around an eagle-3 on the eighth hole and barely missed a birdie putt at 17, then bogeyed the 18th for an even-par 70 and 36-hole total of 139.

First-round leader Roger Davis of Australia, whose 7-under par 64 was fashioned before the winds picked up late Thursday, was starting Round 2 early in the afternoon.

Making a strong run at the lead was American Tom Watson. Aiming for a record-tying sixth Open title, Watson was 3-under for the round and 5-under for the tournament through 13 holes, despite a pair of bogeys on the front nine.

Raymond Floyd of the United States, playing in the same threesome as Faldo and Price, had the best round of the early starters, putting together four birdies for a 3-under 68 to go with an opening-day 72 for a 140 total.

Floyd, who needs the Open to complete the set of Grand Slam championships, plays best when the weather is worst, and he could find himself in the right place at the right time.

After a first day played primarily in dry, calm conditions, the Muirfield course was raked by rain as the golfers teed off for the second round.

Clouds hung heavy over the Firth of Forth and the forecast was for the conditions to get even worse by the end of the day and remain that way through Saturday.

The weather did nothing to dampen Faldo's game, though. The ninth-leading money-winner on this year's European PGA Tour was in the fifth group off the tee and promptly cut a stroke off Davis' lead with birdie-2 on the fourth hole.

The fifth-place finisher in the Open last year and a top-eight finisher in four of the last five summers, Faldo moved to the turn at 2-under 34 with a birdie-3 on No. 8 and birdied the par-3 13th with a 10-foot putt.

Faldo, who turns 30 on Saturday, lost two strokes with bogey-5s on 14 and 15 before a birdie-4 on the 17th.

"To get it under par on a day like today was hard work," Faldo said. "You just had to be patient."

Among other early starters, American Ken Green, who started the round tied for second at 67, was having trouble, dropping four strokes on four bogeys to stand even after 13.

Defending champion Greg Norman was plagued by bunker trouble for the second day in a row and remained even-par through 34 holes. And two-time Open winner Seve Ballesteros of Spain had even worse problems.

Starting the day 2-over after a double bogey on the 18th, he made his first birdie of the tournament but still dropped two more strokes to stand 4-over through 32 holes.

As the second day started, Davis was well clear of an American-dominated pack.

A return to the American tour is the goal for Davis, who more than tripled his prize money last year, when he won the European PGA Championship.

"Since then, I guess I've won half a million dollars," he said. "This year, I am trying to get my playing card in the States. It wasn't really with that in mind that I came to the Open."

But with his top performance this year being a second in Monte Carlo a month ago, Davis knew a standout effort here would only help his chances.

"Why do I want to play in the U.S.?" Davis said, repeating the question. "One of the main reasons is that the competition is stronger per player, and the money is also a lot bigger. It's an incentive."

Davis used strong iron play and steady putting to build a round just one stroke off the Open record and the best at Muirfield since the course was changed in 1980.

He birdied the second and third holes with long putts, the fifth with the help of a sand wedge, the seventh with a 10-foot putt and the ninth after pitching within two feet.

The 10th hole was his lone bogey, and he got it back with a birdie on the 13th, where he hit a 6-iron from the tee within eight feet. Long putts that ended inches short helped save pars on the next three holes, and Davis capped the round with two birdies, the final one finished with a 12-foot putt.

As good as the round was, Davis said it could have been better. "You don't want to say you're unlucky shooting seven under, but this could have been anything," Davis said.

He said he owed his successful return to golf to a bad business venture back home.

"I was struggling with my game at one stage, so I decided to play just in Australia, do corporate work and go into a motel venture in Queensland," Davis, then a part-time U.S. circuit player, said. "It didn't work out too well and I was forced back on the tour."

Playing primarily in Europe, Japan and Australia, Davis nursed his game back to life, winning three tournaments last year and moving to the 10th spot in the European money-winning list this season.

Craig Stadler, too, could have been closer to the lead but his offense was a shot be made, not a shot he missed.

On the par-5 fifth hole, Stadler mistakenly thought that the rule allowing a drop of an embedded ball was in force. He lifted his ball in the rough and went on to birdie the hole. However, a spectator brought it to the attention of officials and Stadler was penalized two strokes, changing a 67 into a 69.

Pitt Tops Snow Hill, Wins Series

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — Pitt County American Legion Post 39 used its powers of concentration to take a 10-6 win over Snow Hill to wrap up a best-of-three second round Area I baseball playoffs Thursday.

"I think tonight was one of the nights that we had the best concentration we've had," said Pitt coach Toby Holliday. "I think we may have played better games but I don't think we played with more concentration. The guys buckled down. We just have to make sure we don't break down."

"The key was concentration. Just make routine plays and you don't have to do anything else."

Part of that routine was a strong pitching performance from starter Tom Moyer and reliever Bronswell Patrick.

Both pitchers benefited from an extra day of rest due to a rain out on Wednesday night. Moyer went six and two-thirds innings, giving up four runs off four hits, with three earned runs. He walked six and struck out six.

"I think that was a big factor," Holliday said. "Tom came in and pitched a good game. He needed the extra day's rest. It helped Bronswell too."

When Moyer faltered in the seventh, Patrick came on and went the rest of the way, holding off a semi-rally by Snow Hill in the ninth.

With the win, Pitt advances to the League Championship series to play Rocky Mount. The first game is at home Saturday at Harrington Field.

"When you get in the playoffs, the team that is usually playing better wins," said Snow Hill coach Jim Fulghum. "Personnel wise, they were a little more talented. Their kids battled back and we didn't have a stick in our lineup like they did."

Pitt opened the game with a two-run first as Eric Jarman drew a walk and went to second on a base hit by David Daniels. Moyer then singled both runners in to give Post 39 the lead.

Snow Hill came back to make it 2-1 when Tommy Eason drew a walk and went to second on a walk to Uly Russo before scoring on a ground out by Greg Patterson.

Pitt expanded its lead to 4-1 with two more runs in the second. With one out, Ty Little opened with a walk. Hunter Clark followed with a double. Little then scored on a ground out by Jason Galloway before Clark scored on Jarman's single. Pitt scored three of its first four runs with two outs.

Eason knocked in Roger Smith with a run in the third to make it 4-2 but that was as close as Snow Hill would get.

Pitt added a run in the fourth, two more in the fifth and a final score in the eighth for its 10 runs.

"If we could have mixed some hits with those walks, we might have been able to do it," Fulghum said. "They got some good two out hits."

Clark was a key to the Pitt attack. The number nine hitter, he turned in a 3-4 performance at the plate and also scored three runs. Holliday said the last two scores by Clark were important because they helped maintain the lead when Snow Hill was threatening.

Clark had a double in the fourth and later scored on a wild pitch. He also scored one of two of the Pitt runs in the eighth inning when he tagged up and scored from third on a sacrifice fly by Jarman. Then in the ninth, he singled with two outs, stole third and beat a throw to score on an infield single by Shane Adams.

"Probably the biggest hit of the night after we got behind was that double by Clark," Fulghum said.

Snow Hill tried to rally in the ninth when T.J. Johnson opened with a walk, followed by a single by Smith. Johnson later came home on a wild pitch. Gary Ginn then drew a walk. Two outs later, Jamie Southerland singled in Smith to make it 10-6. But Patrick then got Russo out on a grounder to end the threat and the game.

As it was in a 9-6 win over Snow Hill on Tuesday, Holliday said it was important for Pitt to go ahead early to put the pressure on Snow Hill.

"We had to," he said. "You saw how they came back. They've got a scrappy ball club. You get a few runs up and you can't relax."

Pitt improves to 15-8 while Snow Hill ends up 15-9.

Legion Notes:
Pitt faces Rocky Mount in the third round of the playoffs. Rocky Mount took a three game series from regular season co-champ Wayne County, two games to one. Rocky Mount takes a 13-10 mark into the series against Pitt while Wayne County finishes up 13-8.

Rocky Mount topped Rocky Mount 10-3 Wednesday night, keyed by a three-run homer from Clint Rouse in the seventh inning. Game time will be 8 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Holliday said he hopes to have Patrick, with a 4-1 record in legion play, available to start Saturday in the first round of the best-of-five series.

Pitt lost the first game of the series against Snow Hill, 17-1, but came back to win the next to games 9-4 and 10-6. For the season, Post 39 holds a 5-1 edge over Snow Hill.

Neyer Is Top Diving Qualifier

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Megan Neyer, who was undefeated in NCAA springboard diving championships for four consecutive years, was the top qualifier Thursday in the 3-meter diving competition at the U.S. Olympic Festival.

But Neyer, 25, said it didn't matter if she finished first or 12th in preliminary competition.

"Diving consistently, that's the most important thing to me," Neyer said after scoring 515.52 points to lead 12 qualifiers from a field of 22. "I don't pay attention to the scores. I can't control the numbers and how people dive."

Neyer took the lead in the eighth round, scoring 55.44 points on a forward 2½ somersault in the pike position, moving ahead of 1984 Olympic silver medalist Michele Mitchell.

Neyer followed that dive with high scores on a reverse 2½, also in the pike position. Her 64.80 points gave her a 10-point cushion over Wendy Lucero, who had moved into second place on a backward 2½ somersault in the ninth round.

Neyer, a Florida graduate who lives in Boca Raton, Fla., completed the competition with a twisting backward 1½ somersault.

"I accomplished the goal I set for the day — to dive consistently. But I think my first five dives could have been better."

"Generally my optional dives are stronger than my required dives," Lucero, also of Boca Raton, and Neyer's roommate, finished with 507 points and said it had been her best qualifying day.

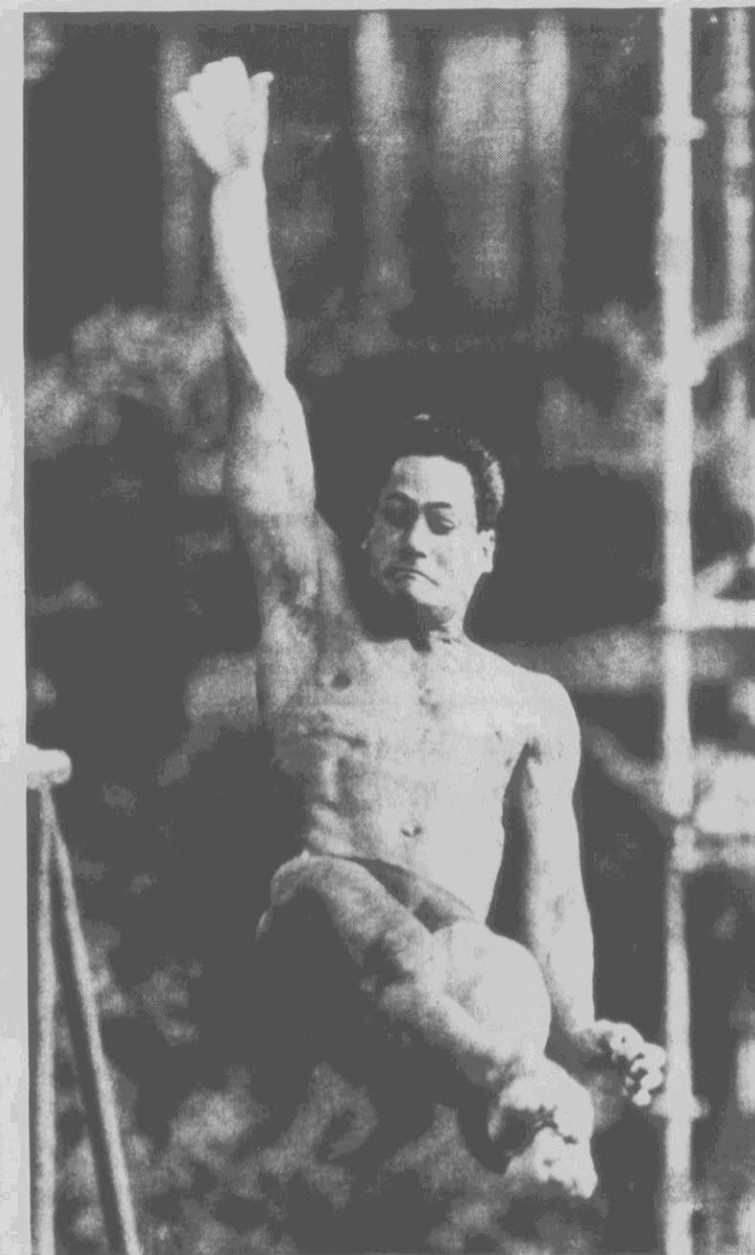

"I did not receive this many high scores in a competition before," Lucero said. "You have to feel really, really confident. If you get the right board and everything, it makes it easier."

Lucero led after the sixth round but over-rotated on a reverse 2½ somersault in the seventh round. She came back with strong dives, however, in the next two rounds.

"You get frustrated, and you have to put it behind you," she said. "I know I'm capable of doing that dive, but I just didn't do it that time."

Mitchell, who won her medal in platform competition in 1984, finished third with 479.61 points. She has won the last two Festival springboard and platform competitions.

Kelly Jenkins of Houston was fourth with 461.82 points, and Mary Ellen Clark of Newtown Square, Pa., was fifth with 457.74 points.

Anderson Gains Golden Benefits

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Sarah Anderson got six times as many gold medals as she hoped for and one more than anyone ever has won in one U.S. Olympic Festival.

Anderson, a 17-year-old swimmer from Moreno Valley, Calif., became the first athlete to take home six gold medals from one Festival when she won the 400-meter freestyle and anchored the North to victory in the 400 medley relay Thursday night.

Two other swimmers — Jeff Olsen in 1985 and Cynthia "Sippy" Woodhead in 1979 — each won six events, but didn't get the sixth gold because they swam in one non-Olympic event.

Anderson's other victories came in the 200 and 800-meter freestyles and the 400 and 800 freestyle relays.

"When I first came here, all I wanted to do was win the 800 free," Anderson said after the conclusion of Festival swimming at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. "That was it."

"I was hurting a little bit after the 400 free, but I got a rubdown before the relay and that really helped."

In the medley relay, Anderson began the final leg more than a second behind Marilyn Peck of the South 'A' team. But she swept past Peck in the final 50 meters, winning handily.

"I knew we were behind when I went into the water, so I just concentrated. I said to myself that I was going to swim as fast as I could for as long as I could and it just worked out. This is really special."

Three other swimmers also leave the Festival with a special feeling — Jon Olsen, 18, of Jonesboro, Ark., finished with five golds and one silver; Mike "Magic" Johnson, 17, of Ankeny, Iowa, and Mary Petry, 13, of Annapolis, Md., took four golds.

Swimming was the only sport to conclude before tonight's opening ceremonies. In early action today, preliminaries in platform diving and the second round of Greco-Roman wrestling were scheduled.

Olympic champion freestyle wrestlers Dave and Mark Schultz and Bruce Baumgartner qualified for the World Championships and the Pan American Games with Festival victories Thursday. But Jeff Blatnick, the heavyweight gold medalist at the 1984 Los Angeles Games, wasn't as fortunate.

Baumgartner, of Cambridge Springs, Pa., took the easy route with a walkover in the superheavyweight class when Tom Erikson of Chicago defaulted due to an injury. Dave Schultz was forced to a third match at 163.5 pounds before beating Kenny Monday of Tulsa, Okla. Mark Schultz of Rosemont, Pa., downed Rico Chiapparelli, an NCAA champion from Iowa, at 180.5 pounds.

Dave Schultz lost 6-2 to Monday in their second bout after winning the opener 3-2. In their deciding match, Schultz, of Madison, Wis., won 10-3.

"I'm glad I wrestled like that in the best-of-three series," Dave Schultz said, "and not in an international tournament. I feel awful about the way I wrestled. I'm a perfectionist."

John Smith of Stillwater, Okla., who has been perfect in his last 54 matches, took the 136.5-pound class with an 8-3 win over Steve DePetro of Wayne, N.J. And two other brothers, twins Jim and Bill Scherr, won at 196 and 220 pounds, respectively.

But Blatnick, who thrilled the nation with his gold medal at the Los Angeles Olympics after a much-publicized battle with Hodgkin's

Mattingly's Bat Remains Red Hot

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It was another grand night for Don Mattingly.

"I just found a swing five or six days ago," said Mattingly, who continued to swing one of the hottest bats in the major leagues with two home runs Thursday to lead the New York Yankees to a 12-3 victory over the Texas Rangers. "Something just clicked. I haven't hit a home run that I was trying to hit."

Mattingly tied an American League record by homering in his sixth consecutive game and equaled a Yankee record with his fourth grand slam of the season. Lou Gehrig set the record in 1934 and Tommy Henrich matched it in 1948.

The homers were Mattingly's eighth in the last six games, two shy of the six-game record of 10 set by Frank Howard of the Washington Senators in 1968. Dale Long of the Pittsburgh Pirates holds the major league record for homering in consecutive games, with eight in 1956.

Since coming back from the disabled list late in June because of a back injury, Mattingly has batted .423 and collected 10 homers to bring his season's total to 16.

In other games, it was Cleveland 4, Chicago 3; Toronto 5, Minnesota 2; Milwaukee 6, California 4; Detroit 3, Seattle 2; Oakland 6, Boston 3, and Baltimore 5, Kansas City 4.

Mattingly drove in a career-high seven runs, as he hit a bases-loaded homer in the second inning and a two-run shot in the eighth. He also drove in a run with a first-inning groundout.

Charlie Hough, 10-5, was the victim of Mattingly's slam, which made the Yankee first baseman the seventh American League player to hit home runs in six consecutive games.

Winner Ron Guidry, 2-4, pitched 5 2/3 innings, allowed two runs on seven hits, walked four and struck out four in a game that was delayed one hour, 43 minutes at the start because of rain. Three relievers finished up.

Rangers catcher Mike Stanley, meanwhile, tied the American League record for passed balls in a game with five. Additionally, Stanley had a throwing error.

"We're finding some runs," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said. "This is a good way to get started after the All-Star break."

Indians 4, White Sox 3
Cory Snyder hit a three-run homer and Sammy Stewart provided clutch relief pitching as Cleveland made Doc Edwards' debut as manager a successful one with a victory over Chicago.

"I never had any doubt that Snyder and the other players were good hitters and while I know we can hit, I've got to get the players to respect themselves again," Edwards said. "I want us to play to win more than we lose. We've got to get our pride back to last year's level."

Edwards, the Indians' bullpen coach, took over when Pat Corrales was fired earlier in the day.

Snyder's homer in the first and a solo shot by Mel Hall in the sixth gave the Indians their first win in four decisions against Richard Dotson, 7-6.

Scott Bailes, 3-2, got the win with relief help from Stewart, who got the last five outs for his first save. Stewart pitched out of trouble after Bailes left the game in the eighth with one out and runners on first and third.

Blue Jays 5, Twins 2
Jesse Barfield's four hits and Jimmy Key's pitching led Toronto over Minnesota. Barfield had a double, three singles and one RBI.

Key, 10-6, allowed six hits and two earned runs in six innings. Tom Henke, who struck out pinch-hitter Randy Bush with two outs and the bases loaded in the ninth, picked up his 18th save.

Loser Bert Blyleven, 8-7, allowed five runs in 10 hits in 7 2/3 innings. The Blue Jays have won all five games against the Twins this season by a combined score of 41-8.

Brewers 6, Angels 4
Ernest Riles capped a four-run second inning with a two-run single, and Rob Deer hit his 21st homer as Milwaukee beat California.

Teddy Higuera, 8-7, won for the third time in his last four starts, but needed relief help from Mark Clear and Dan Plesac.

Clear pitched out of a two-on, one-out jam in the seventh after the Angels had scored twice, and Plesac pitched the final two innings for his 19th save.

Deer hit his fifth homer in seven games to spark the second-inning rally that gave the Brewers a 4-1 lead they never lost.

Tigers 3, Mariners 2
Kirk Gibson broke a 2-2 tie with his 12th home run leading off the seventh inning to lift Detroit over Seattle behind Walt Terrell's nine-hitter.

Gibson's homer at Tiger Stadium was off Seattle starter Mike Moore, 3-11.

Terrell, 7-8, survived four doubles, walked three and struck out two in his third complete game of the season.

Seattle took a 2-0 lead in the fourth on an RBI single by Gary Matthews and sacrifice fly by David Valle. But the Tigers tied it in their half, one run scoring on a single by Tom Brookens and another on an error by Seattle second baseman Harold Reynolds.

Athletics 6, Red Sox 3
Alfredo Griffin had three hits and Luis Polonia had two and both figured in a tie-breaking, three-run seventh inning to lead Oakland over Boston.

Dave Stewart, 12-7, earned his fifth consecutive victory, scattering five hits before needing seventh-inning relief help from Dennis Eckersley, who picked up his seventh save.

Boston right-hander Roger Clemens, 8-7, last year's Cy Young winner in the American League, was 4-0 in six previous starts.

The victory enabled Oakland to move to within one game of AL West leader Minnesota.

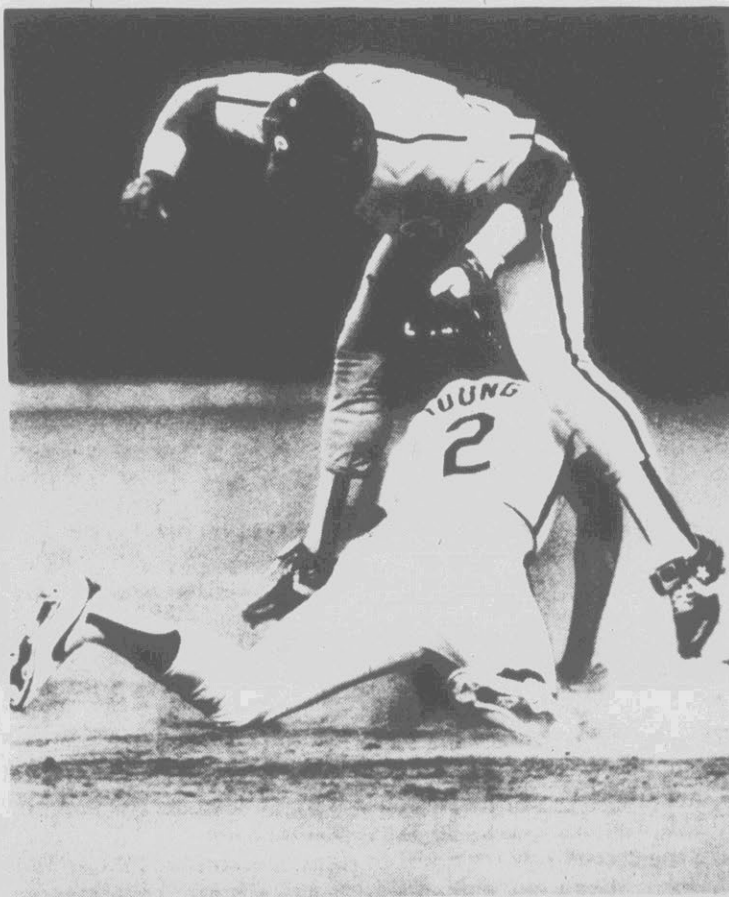

Orioles 5, Royals 4
Billy Ripken singled Ken Gerhart into scoring position and Cal Ripken Jr., drove him in with the go-ahead run, leading Baltimore over Kansas City.

Mike Boddicker, 7-4, picked up the victory, while Tom Niedenfuer gained his third save by getting the final out. The loser was Charlie Leibrandt, 8-8.

Caminiti Makes A Big Splash

By The Associated Press

Houston's Ken Caminiti felt as high as the roof in the Astrodome after hitting a home run, a triple and scoring the winning run in his first major-league game.

Gerald Young, playing center field in the absence of injured Billy Hatcher, singled to right with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to score Caminiti from third base, giving the Astros a 2-1 victory Thursday night over Philadelphia.

Caminiti, called up from Class AA Columbus of the Southern League on Wednesday, walked with one out in the ninth, went to second on a single by Craig Reynolds, and took third when reliever Mike Jackson intentionally walked pinch-hitter Jose Cruz to load the bases. Young then lined the first pitch from Jackson, 3-7, into right field to end the game.

Caminiti, a third baseman, also tripled in the fifth for his first major-league hit and hit a solo homer in the seventh to tie the score 1-1.

"When they called me I thought I was going to Tucson (AAA)," Caminiti said. "This might be the highest high I've had. I knew it could happen. I just didn't know it would be this fast."

Manager Hal Lanier's new lineup means Cruz, the veteran left fielder, will be benched.

"It doesn't mean that Jose isn't going to play again," Lanier said. "I'm just trying to go now with the players who are hitting."

The victory moved Houston to within 1 1/2 games of first-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

Elsewhere, New York blanked Cincinnati 9-0, Montreal shut out Atlanta 2-0, Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 7-0, Chicago beat San Francisco 4-1 and San Diego edged St. Louis 9-8 in 10 innings.

Caminiti started the game with a diving catch of Juan Samuel's grounder on the first play and added several other fielding gems before breaking up Kevin Gross' no-hitter with a triple for his first major-league hit to start the fifth inning.

After Caminiti tied the score 1-1 with his homer, Houston fans demanded an encore bow and Caminiti obligingly tipped his hat to the appreciative crowd.

"I'd never done that before either," Caminiti said.

"Ken saved the game for us defensively in the first two innings," Lanier said. "It gave (Danny) Darwin a chance to get going."

Darwin, 6-6, matched Gross with four hitless innings to start the game.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the sixth when Von Hayes hit into a double play to score Samuel from third base.

Darwin started the game in place of Nolan Ryan, who suffered a sprained ankle when he stepped into a hole in the ground at his ranch in nearby Alvin, Texas.

Mets 9, Reds 0
Dwight Gooden pitched a seven-hitter for his 14th career shutout and Gary Carter drove in four runs as New York routed Cincinnati at Shea Stadium.

Gooden, 7-2, struck out two and walked one en route to the 38th complete game of his career and third this season.

The Reds, who scored six runs in three innings against Gooden on July 5 at Cincinnati, have lost four straight and seven of their last eight games.

"I thought about that loss (July 5) and the mistakes I made," Gooden said. "The Reds were guessing fastball on my first pitch. Tonight, I went for location instead of throwing the ball right down the middle."

New York sent nine men to the plate in the third inning, scoring four times, with Kevin McReynolds' bases-loaded misjudged double to center clearing the bases. Cartr had a run-scoring single in the third and hit a three-run homer in the sixth, his 12th of the season.

Expos 2, Braves 0
Floyd Youmans pitched a three-hitter for his second consecutive shutout and Hubie Brooks drove in two runs with a home run and sacrifice fly as Montreal beat Atlanta for the Expos' fourth straight victory.

Youmans, 7-3, struck out five and walked five en route to his sixth straight winning decision. In his last game, Youmans pitched a one-hitter to beat Houston, 1-0.

Doyle Alexander, 4-6, retired the first 12 Montreal batters before Tim Wallach opened the bottom of the fifth with a triple. Brooks followed with a long fly to center, scoring Wallach. Brooks led off the Expos' seventh with his eighth homer.

Dodgers 7, Pirates 0
Fernando Valenzuela pitched a seven-hitter for his first shutout of the season and the first against Pittsburgh this year.

Valenzuela, 8-7, struck out eight, walked four and induced four double plays. It was the left-hander's 27th career shutout and his first since May 24, 1986. The complete game was his seventh of the year, tying him with the Pirates' Rick Yuschel for the NL lead.

Mike Marshall walked leading off the Dodgers' second against Bob Kipper, 5-7, and Mickey Hatcher followed with his fifth homer of the season. Hatcher has hit in 11 of his last 12 games, including 12 runs batted in. Mariano Duncan also homered for the host Dodgers.

Cubs 4, Giants 1
Jamie Moyer pitched four-hit ball for 6 2/3 innings and Andre Dawson hit a two-run double as Chicago beat San Francisco at Candlestick Park.

All the hits off Moyer, 9-6, were singles. The left-hander, who walked two and struck out four, was relieved by Scott Sanderson in the seventh after Chris Speier ended the shutout bid with a run-scoring, pinch-hit single. Sanderson finished the game for his second save.

Ryne Sandberg had a sacrifice fly and Leon Durham hit his 16th homer for the Cubs' other runs.

Padres 9, Cardinals 8
Benito Santiago homered off reliever Todd Worrell with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning to lift San Diego over St. Louis.

Worrell, 4-4, entered the game in the 10th and struck out Chris Brown leading off. But Santiago ended the game with his eighth home run of the season, a drive over the right-field wall.

"I knew it was gone as soon as I hit it," Santiago said.

Indians Get Rid Of Corrales

CHICAGO (AP) — The firing of Pat Corrales has again brought to the forefront the hiring of minorities in baseball.

Corrales was fired Thursday as manager of the Cleveland Indians, the team with the worst record in the American League after being tabbed as one of the preseason favorites for the East Division title.

Doc Edwards, the Indians' bullpen coach, was named to replace Corrales and Cleveland won its first game under the former major-league catcher, 4-3 over the Chicago White Sox.

Corrales, 31-56 this year, is the second manager to be fired this season and like Philadelphia's John Felske, who was let go on June 18, his replacement was white.

Democratic presidential contender Rev. Jesse Jackson criticized the Indians for the hiring procedure.

"It's not wrong for a black to not have been hired," Jackson said from Detroit in an interview with Cleveland television station WEWS. "It's a sin for no black nor Hispanic to have been considered."

Jackson said he was sending a letter of protest to the baseball commissioner's office.

"It's just another situation where the faith has been broken with the commitment to open up the doors and make room for people who have been locked out," Jackson said.

He said if negotiations with major-league baseball do not produce results in the hiring of minorities in managerial jobs soon, he may consider court action.

"We didn't consider anyone else but Doc," Indians Senior Vice President Dan O'Brien said. "Obviously

Landry To Go 3 Years

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry says he has decided to stay put for three more seasons and hopes to rebuild the Cowboys following one of the most frustrating years in the club's history.

"We're pessimistic. We're below where we should have been last year, but we'll be working hard and we'll be a factor in the eastern race," Landry said Thursday after ending speculation that he would coach for only one more season.

The Cowboys finished 7-9 last season, their first losing record in 21 years. Landry described it as one of the most frustrating years in football.

As the only coach in the National Football League team's 27-year history, Landry led the Cowboys to two Super Bowl victories in five appearances, but the team hasn't played in one for the past eight years.

"After having 20 years of winning, we're trying to get back on track, and it's going to take us a little while to turn it around," he said.

Cowboys President Tex Schramm said Landry, whose contract expired at the end of the 1986 season, told him of his decision Wednesday.

Olympic Festival ...

Disease, was a first-round loser to Morris Johnson of San Francisco. A wrist throw by Johnson as Blatnick slipped out of a headlock was the beginning of the end for the Olympic champ.

Blatnick never caught up after Johnson's early three-point move, losing the first match 7-4 and the second 3-0, surrendering two points in the final minute when a rally would have forced a third bout.

"I'm still trying to find the hunger and rekindle it," said Blatnick, 29, of Schenectady, N.Y. "I feel I want to be a part of it and I'm not part of it. I planned on coming back because I want to compete against a full (Olympic) field. Nobody wants an asterisk next to their name."

Another '84 gold medalist, diver Greg Louganis, surged to the lead in the preliminaries of 3-meter spr ingboard competition. Louganis, who has won all but two of the Festival diving gold medals since 1979 and owns 41 national titles, received four perfect marks in 11 dives.

Louganis got one 10 on a backward 2 1/2 somersault in the pike position on his sixth dive, two perfect marks on a reverse 2 1/2 somersault in the pike position on his seventh dive, and one for a forward 2 1/2 somersault on the eighth dive.

Megan Neyer, who went through four years of collegiate competition while at Florida without losing on the springboard, took the lead after the women's preliminaries.

The Olympic Hall of Fame received four inductees Thursday — swimmers Donna de Varona and Shirley Babashoff, former heavyweight champion boxer Floyd Patterson and track and field coach Dr. LeRoy Walker.

Old Vets Attack Muirfield Like Rookies

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — The rain lashed down and a chilling wind blew in from the sea, but Arnold Palmer and Gary Player attacked the golf course as if they were rookies playing in their first major tournament.

Palmer, a graying 57 and holder of two British Open championships, and Player, six years younger but with one more title, each drew large crowds as they joined 151 other golfers Thursday in the first round of the 116th Open.

It was part of what Palmer described as "the nostalgia, the romance, getting back the feel and tradition" of the world's oldest golf tournament.

Both had the misfortune of going out in the day's worst conditions. But neither disgraced himself, Player shooting a 1-over-par 72 and Palmer a 75.

"Everything was great except for my putting," Palmer, who won the title in 1961 and 1962, said. "I three-putted three times. I guess I still have to learn how to putt."

Palmer, one of the game's folk heroes, was back at the British Open for the first time since 1984, when his appearance at St. Andrew's was widely expected to be his last in the tournament.

As he stepped to the first tee at Muirfield, the crowd cheered and whistled. Palmer, looking relaxed and tanned, smiled back, waved, bowed, then got on with the job.

He first drive was a monster and landed in the middle of the fairway. It set up a birdie chance but the 25-foot putt curved around the lip of the hole and the ball stayed out.

Then came a series of bad drives, poor approach shots into the rough and fluffed putts. After six holes, Palmer was four over and looked in danger of missing the cut.

But backed by support from pockets of fans lining the course, Palmer held his game together for the rest of the round and received prolonged applause when he walked the 18th fairway. The atmosphere, even with the stands half full in the evening haze, got to Palmer and he raised a hand in acknowledgment.

Such is the respect with which Palmer is treated that he received a traditional Scottish bagpipers welcome when he arrived at Edinburgh airport at the weekend.

But why, he was asked, did he need to endure a soaking in the rain by coming back to the Open, three months after undergoing knee surgery.

"The nostalgia, the romance, getting back the feel and tradition, it's all part of it," Palmer said. "Also the fact that they went out their way to get me. That, to some degree, is also why I came."

"I don't have to come. There's nothing in my life that makes me

I'm here for my own satisfaction.

Missing so many putts affects the fun, for sure, but the challenge of playing is still great."

Palmer said he still regards the British Open as the world's most prestigious tournament. He has won the U.S. Open once and the Masters four times, including 1984, his last success at a major.

"You have to acknowledge this as the tournament that is most recognized by golfers and non-golfers," Palmer said. "I don't know how many more years I'll be playing in it now. Maybe if I start consistently shooting high scores, I'll call it a day."

Tip Anderson, who has caddied for Palmer since he first came to the British Open, said it still gave him a thrill to walk the course with the golfer.

"He's still a wonderful player," Anderson, a Scotsman, said. "But his putting is not so steady these days."

Patterson Feels He Was Denied Proper Recognition

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson says he was denied the recognition he deserved because of his association with boxing manager Cus D'Amato.

"All of the press disliked my manager," Patterson said Thursday before his induction into the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame with swimmers Shirley Babashoff and Donna de Varona and 1976 Olympic men's track and field coach Dr. LeRoy Walker. "So, when they had a chance to say something derogatory about me, they did."

"When I fought Archie Moore (for the world title in 1956), I wasn't the favorite. But I knocked him out (in the fifth round). The next day, the papers said I beat an old man."

Patterson recalled another time when he fought Willie Troy, and the agreement was that neither would weigh more than 165 pounds. Patterson, who was 170 when the contract was signed, came in at 163½, while Troy weighed 165.

Again Patterson won.

"The next day, the press said it was a light heavyweight knocking out a middleweight — and I weighed 1½ pounds less than he did," Patterson said.

Tired Of The Basebrawls, Brown Suspends Three

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Dr. Bobby Brown, president of the American League, decided this week that he was tired of seeing players trying out for Wrestlemania and suspended Willie Wilson, Danny Jackson and Brett Butler for five games for their involvement in a couple of beanball brawls.

The doctor's prescription seems appropriate. Whether it will serve as a cure is questionable, though. A player who has just felt the breeze of a baseball passing by, often reacts emotionally.

This has been open season on batters who have the audacity to hit home runs and then, a couple of innings later, compound the misdemeanor by returning to the scene of the crime, ostensibly with the same thing in mind.

Andre Dawson, an ordinarily placid fellow, recalled lying in the dirt at Wrigley Field last week after taking a pitch from Eric Show in the face.

"The guy's a sinkerball pitcher," said Dawson, who played in the All-Star game despite 24 stitches inside and outside his mouth. "I heard somebody say, 'That's pathetic. Look at his face.' That's when I lost it."

After remaining on the ground for several minutes, Dawson chased Show, suspecting that a home run in his previous at-bat and seven for the season against San Diego might have had something to do with the incident. Show sensibly beat a hasty retreat to safer precincts, protesting all the while that throwing at the hitter had never crossed his mind.

There was a time, though, when pitchers didn't bother to plead innocence. Longtime major-league manager Ralph Houk fondly remembers Hall of Famer Early Wynn, who never concerned himself with the necessity of placating a plunked hitter.

"One time, when Wynn was with the White Sox, Hector Lopez got a couple of hits off him," Houk said. "The next time he faced us was in Comiskey Park. Both teams used to come out of the same dugout there. We're coming out for batting practice and Wynn comes over, kicks Hector right in the shins and says to him, 'You're going down tonight.'"

And he did. "I think there's not as much throwing at guys today as there was years ago," Houk said. "You took it for granted. If the guy in front of you hit a home run, you were going down. It was as simple as that. Some guys crowd the plate a lot. You try to pitch a guy inside, miss and it looks like you're throwing at him."

Houk, now a vice president with the Minnesota Twins, is a spokesman for the Equitable Oldtimer Games Series, which contributes funds to help indigent players.

He said his funniest baseball fight came when he was managing Denver in the American Association against St. Paul, managed by Max Macon.

"We had a third baseman named Rance Pless," Houk said. "He had been hit in the head early in his career, in the days before helmets. Now here's Macon yelling, 'Hit him, hit him.'"

Pless was not amused and made a detour for the St. Paul dugout. Both teams poured on the field when somebody had the clever idea to let the managers settle the matter.

"I'm not dumb," Houk said. "I charged him and got him down. He was on his back and I was all over him. We wound up near the stands, where they had a chicken wire fence."

Jordan Involved In Auto Wreck

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — NBA scoring champion Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls escaped injury but was ticketed when his car was involved in a collision at a Kenosha County intersection Thursday, authorities said.

Sgt. Tom Johnson of the Kenosha County Sheriff's Department said Jordan's car collided with one driven by Shawn McCarville, 24, of Kenosha at the intersection of an Interstate 94 frontage road and County K about 4 p.m.

The accident report showed there were no injuries in the mishap, but Jordan was ticketed for failure to yield from a stop sign.

He told authorities he stopped at the sign and saw the other car, but, thinking it had to stop, he proceeded into the intersection, the report said.

The ticket required payment of a $44.50 appearance bond. Jordan, who used a credit card to post the bond, can either appear in court or forfeit the $44.50.

Both Jordan's 1987 Chevrolet Corvete, with a license number of "Jump 23," and the other vehicle, a 1979 AMC Spirit, had to be towed away.

WAITING FOR JOAN — Peter Holm, estranged husband of actress Joan Collins, awaits her return to her Beverly Hills home Thursday. He's carrying signs that

Lawyer To Seek Order Barring Holm From Picketing Mansion

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Joan Collins should stay in Europe because her estranged husband Peter Holm, who picketed the mansion they shared, may threaten her safety, her attorney says.

"Frankly, she is concerned somewhat for her safety," celebrity divorce lawyer Marvin Mitchelson said Thursday. "In view of his behavior, I'm afraid to put her in his presence."

The lawyer said he would seek a court order today barring Holm from picketing the mansion the couple shared during a 13-month marriage.

Miss Collins, who plays the conniving Alexis Carrington Colby on ABC-TV's "Dynasty," had been due to return from London on Thursday.

The same day, Holm, 40, and a friend drew swarms of reporters and camera crews with a protest at the Hollywood Hills home, from which he was evicted last week after it was sold to producer Freddie Fields.

Holm, who eventually left the mansion peacefully, had threatened last week to shoot anyone who tried to evict him. "I take it as a danger when someone acts like that," Mitchelson said.

"There already is a standard court order enjoining him from harassing, molesting and annoying her, but we want an order specifically to stop this picketing," he said.

Holm and Miss Collins are engaged in a bitter divorce. Holm is seeking a property settlement for half the value of the mansion he estimates is worth $2.5 million. He also seeks $80,000 a month in temporary support while the property settlement is negotiated.

On Thursday, the former Swedish rock musician and a friend demonstrated at the corner of Coldwater Canyon Boulevard and Cabrillo Drive, near the secluded, gated mansion at the end of a cul-de-sac.

"I'm completely homeless. It's our home, and I want my share of it," said Holm.

At a court hearing Monday, Holm will seek the $80,000 a month in temporary support from Miss Collins, said Frank Steinschreiber, Holm's attorney.

Hope Heading Anti-Drug Drive

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A new foundation headed by entertainer Bob Hope will act as a clearinghouse for donations to programs battling drug abuse, organizers said.

Hope on Thursday announced the creation of Hope for a Drug-Free America, aimed at encouraging large corporate and private donations.

"Drugs have infiltrated every level of our society," said Hope. "American society might not survive as we know it unless the drug problem is solved."

Earlier in the day, Hope was honored for his entertainment accomplishments at the national convention of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Phyllis Turns 70

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Phyllis Diller, who turns 70 today, says she doesn't mind, but "my body is pretty steamed about it."
Miss Diller ushered in her birthday Thursday night with a raspberry cake, a roomful of friends and a male stripper who gyrated out of a policeman's uniform.
"It's really fun to be this age," said Miss Diller, emitting her famous laugh and rolling her eyes as the strip-a-gram was delivered. Asked the secret of her youthful appearance, she replied, "I think loving on new material. And I bathe daily."
Miss Diller, whose routines ridicule her appearance, has had a face lift, tummy tuck and other cosmetic operations over the years, earning an award from the American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery for helping bring plastic surgery "out of the closet."
"I still go to them a lot," she said of cosmetic surgeons. "But my last operation was to have cobwebs taken out of me. Actually, after years of having things taken out, I'm at the point now where they're starting to put things back in."

Teen Dance Show Grabs Attention Of TV Public

By ALAN ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Contrary to Chuck Berry's lyrics, they're no longer dancin' on "Bandstand" in Philadelphia, P.A.
But 30 years after millions of hobby soxers rushed home after school to watch their favorite dancers on "American Bandstand," a new generation of Philadelphia teen-agers is influencing coast-to-coast dress and dance styles with a daily cable TV show, "Dance Party USA."
These urban teens dress like Madonna or Tom Cruise rather than Annette Funicello or Frankie Avalon, and they listen to Walkmans and compact discs rather than hot-wax 45s. Their funky do-your-own-things dances bear little resemblance to the Jerk, the Twist and the Pony of their parents.
But while your 1987 American teen is supposed to be more worldly, sophisticated and less impressionable than that of a generation ago, these TV dancers have attracted the same kind of national following, even idolation, that Dick Clark's hand-picked high schoolers did in the 1950s.

"Our show is just like the old Bandstand used to be. We feature the kids," said Michael Nise, executive producer of "Dance Party USA." "Our kids usually get 3,000 to 5,000 letters a week, and one of our dancers, Bob Catalano, averages 700 letters a week."
The 18-month-old "Dance Party USA" is carried six afternoons a week on the USA Network and is a spinoff from "Dancing on Air," a live Monday-through-Friday show that has aired for six years on WPHL-TV in Philadelphia.
The 75-odd dancers, most aged 15-18, travel directly from school to the studio to perform first on the live local show, then tape one or two shows for cable.
Each show features the kids dancing to three or four hits, a video clip and often a lip synd by one of the regulars. There are also old "Bandstand" standbys such as ladies' choice dances, spotlight dances and a Dear Abby-like advice feature for lovelorn teens.

The host, disc jockey Andy Gury, regularly quizzes the dancers about the status of their love lives and the problems of modern-day teens, such as parental divorce, drug use and peer pressure.
"We let the kids be kids," Nise said. "Kids may be more sophisticated than they used to be, but you can't take the basics out of being a kid, and that is he is just becoming attracted to the opposite sex. We don't discourage that. We assure the teens that it's all right."
"Dance Party" regulars were deluged with dozens of prom invitations this spring. Others receive gifts of food, clothing, flowers and money.
A full-time staffer handles fan mail.
"Many of the regulars have been offered plane tickets to fly somewhere just to dance," said Paula Beal, the show's promotion director.

Innocent Plea

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Belushi has pleaded innocent to charges he attacked a man who spat on a car the actor was driving.
Belushi, the 34-year-old brother of the late comedian John Belushi, entered the plea Thursday through his lawyer. A preliminary hearing was set for July 31.
Belushi, charged with misdemeanor assault and battery, is accused of attacking Bobby Ray Henson, 43, a Santa Monica accountant, after Henson reportedly spat on Belushi's vehicle.
The 125-pound Henson suffered scratches and damaged teeth when the 195-pound Belushi tackled him, said Deputy City Attorney Peter Corvette.
Belushi, who has appeared in such films as "Trading Places," "Salvador," "The Man With One Red Shoe," and "About Last Night," could receive up to a year in jail and a $12,000 fine if convicted.

Oldest NASA Center Looks To Future

By JEAN McNAIR
Associated Press Writer

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — It was 70 years ago, 14 years after the Wright brothers pioneered manned flight, that ground was broken for an aeronautics research center that today is planning a manned space station.

Langley Research Center, which marks its 70th anniversary today, is NASA's oldest center, authorized by Congress in 1917 out of fears that U.S. aeronautic development was lagging behind that of Europe during World War I.

The Langley Memorial Aeronautical Laboratory was named for Samuel P. Langley, an aeronautics pioneer who directed the Smithsonian Institution.

Langley began with airplane design but its researchers engineered most of the developments in the American space program: the Mercury capsules that put humans into space, the Apollo lunar flights and the space shuttles.

Still, about 60 percent of its research today deals with how to make conventional airplanes fly more efficiently. Langley engineers test new materials for airplane construction and wing shapes that reduce drag.

"We concentrate on research that's five to 15 years in the future," said Richard H. Petersen, who as Langley's director oversees nearly 3,000 civil service employees and a $369 million annual budget.

Langley receives little public recognition because its ideas are turned over to other National Aeronautics and Space Administration centers, which develop the space vehicles and put them in use.

"I think sometimes we complain about that, but it's not a serious problem," Petersen said. "Most scientists and engineers get their kicks just knowing that they contributed."

Today, while much of NASA works on reviving the space shuttle program that halted with last year's explosion of the shuttle Challenger, Langley researchers are developing a new type of space shuttle, a manned space station and an aerospace plane for the 21st century.

In its early years, Langley built wind tunnels and tested airplane models to determine how to reduce drag and improve speed. Its annual conference on aeronautical developments attracted such famous aviators as Howard Hughes and Charles Lindbergh.

During World War II, Langley designed 115 military planes. Employment swelled from 524 to more than 3,000, and long workdays were common.

In October 1947, Air Force test pilot Chuck Yeager broke the sound barrier in the Bell X-1, which was developed through research done at Langley.

Ten years later, the Soviet Union launched Sputnik I, the first man-made satellite, and the United States entered the space race.

Remains Of Ancient Turtles Discovered

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have found the 185 million-year-old remains of the oldest known ancestor to most modern turtles, a foot-long creature they say once walked and swam in what is now the Arizona desert.

The find, the oldest turtle fossil known in North America, shows that the reptiles have evolved considerably despite an outward appearance similar to that of their modern descendants, scientists said Thursday.

The nearly complete fossil and parts of several other turtles are the oldest found anywhere in the world of cryptodires, one of two major groups that comprise all modern turtles, said scientists from the American Museum of Natural History in New York and other institutions.

The fossils, found on Navajo tribal lands in Coconino County, Ariz., during several years of field work, push back the known record of cryptodires by 45 million years and illustrate a very early evolutionary stage of modern turtles, they said.

Evidence at the site indicates it was aquatic at the time the turtle lived and that the creature probably was a swimmer, they said.

The main fossil, consisting of a complete shell and skull, is of a new species of turtle scientists named Kayentachelys aprix, according to a report published today in the July 17 issue of the journal Science.

Eugene Gaffney and Lorraine Meeker of the New York museum, along with J. Howard Hutchison of the University of California, Berkeley, and Farish Jenkins Jr. of Harvard University, said the fossils illustrate progressive turtle evolution.

"Turtles have often been cited as examples of 'living fossils,' a group that is structurally conservative throughout its history," the scientists said. "In fact, however, this viewpoint is erroneous."

On the surface, all turtles appear similar because of their shells, but this does not take into account fundamental changes in the skulls and other structures during the evolutionary history of the reptiles, they said.

For example, modern turtles are toothless, but the Arizona fossil had evidence of small teeth along the roof of its mouth, a feature previously found only in the most primitive of turtle fossil ancestors, they reported.

Peter Meylan, an associate of Gaffney and Meeker at New York museum, said in a telephone interview that cryptodires and pleurodires are the two groups of modern turtles, both of which evolved from a common ancestor.

The great majority of living turtles, including the familiar box turtles, snapping turtles, land tortoises and sea turtles, belong to the cryptodire group, also known as hidden-necked turtles, he said.

Pleurodires, or side-necked turtles, are found only in Africa, South America and Australia. The oldest known pleurodire fossil is an incomplete sample more than 200 million years old, Meylan said.

The groups are distinguished by the different way each closes its jaw and how they retract their necks, he said. Cryptodires pull their necks straight back into their shells, while pleurodires turn their necks sideways and back under the lip of the shell instead of inside, he added.

Meylan said the oldest turtle fossil known is 210 million years old, belonging to a creature called Proganochelys quenstedti. This reptile belonged to a sister species to the one that led to modern turtles and is not a direct ancestor to cryptodires and pleurodires, he said.

Plant Opposed

HIGH POINT (AP) — Mayor Judy Mendenhall says the city will oppose plans to build a chemical distribution plant in High Point's watershed.

"It's obviously not something High Point would want to happen," Ms. Mendenhall said Thursday. "We would not be at all happy about it."

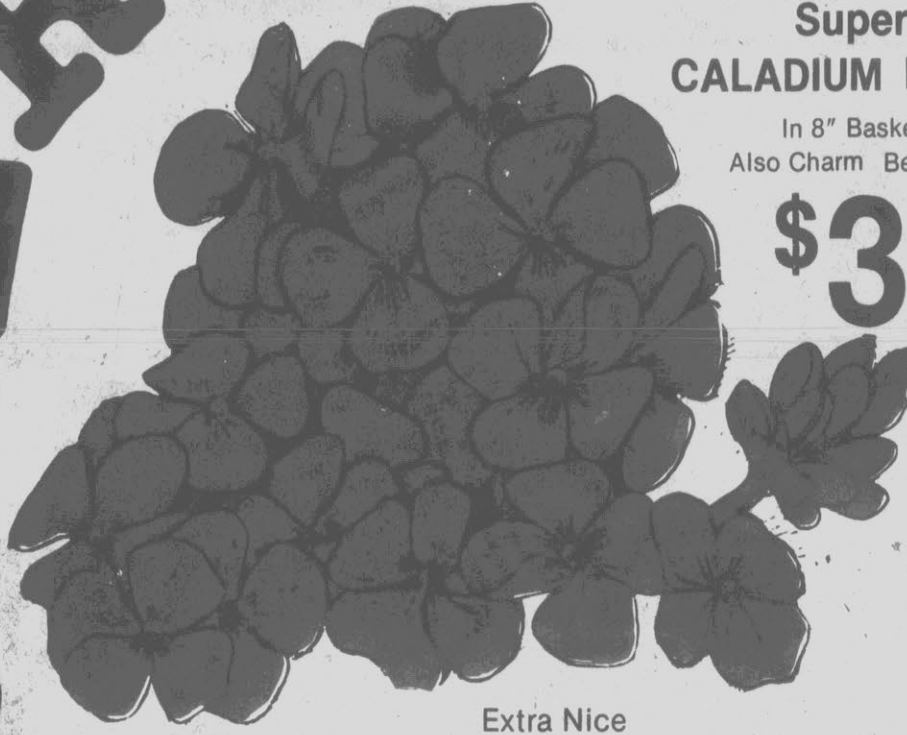

Ashland Chemical Co. of Greensboro has proposed to relocate its chemical distribution and storage facility on a 4.6-acre site between Regional Airport and Interstate 40.

The proposed site is in the watershed of City Lake, High Point's primary source for drinking water.

"I don't know a lot about it yet," Ms. Mendenhall said. "But I'll certainly talk about it with our staff and contact them (Greensboro officials) to stress how very dangerous that would be. And I hope they would understand our concerns."
