Poindexter: Military Chief Not Consulted

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter testified today that the Reagan administration decided to sell arms secretly to Iran beginning in 1985 without consulting the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the nation's top military officer.

Poindexter told the congressional Iran-Contra investigative panels that even so, officials were "very careful to adjust" the quality and quantity of weapons shipments to avoid having a "decisive impact" on the outcome of the Iran-Iraq war. "Other kinds of weapons were requested" that administration officials refused to provide, he said.

Poindexter also said former White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan knew "everything the president was aware of" concerning the Iran-Contra affair, but never sought further information from the national security adviser.

Poindexter was asked about the military implications of the weapons sales as he began his fifth and final day of testimony at the nationally televised hearings.

Regan, Attorney General Edwin Meese, Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger are expected to testify before the hearings conclude early next month.

In other testimony, Poindexter:

— Said the National Security Council staff was the driving force behind efforts to win the release of the American hostages in Lebanon. He said he does not recall "a single recommendation" from the State or Defense departments "to accomplish those objectives."

— Said he never asked Meese to hold up any FBI or Justice Department investigations into alleged drug smuggling by Nicaraguan insurgents, or Contras.

— Said he does not specifically recall ever discussing the secret arms sales with Meese before November 1986, when the Iran-Contra affair became public. Meese has said that he did not learn about 1985 arms sales to Iran until November 1986.

— Said he does not recall that Cmdr. Paul Thompson, an aide on the National Security staff, ever relayed concerns of another, unnamed NSC aide that Lt. Col. Oliver North's actions might be illegal.

Gen. John Vessey was chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff when President Reagan gave his assent for Israel to sell U.S. arms to Iran in the summer of 1985. Vessey was succeeded in October of that year by Adm. William Crowe, who served in the post during the direct U.S. sale of weapons to the Iranians.

Poindexter said Reagan consulted Weinberger before deciding to go ahead with the sales, and said it was "up to the secretary of defense" to make the decision about consulting Crowe on the military implications of the sale.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said Crowe found out "by accident" in late June

City Council Accepts FAA Airport Grant

By DON REUTER

The Greenville City Council voted unanimously to accept a $136,202 Federal Aviation Administration grant for the purchase and installation of taxi lights at Pitt-Greenville Airport.

The grant, which was approved by the council at a special call meeting Monday night, will be used along with an $8,500 grant from the N.C. Department of Transportation Division of Aviation and $8,500 in previously appropriated local monies, according to James G. Turcotte, airport manager.

Turcotte said the grant is the result of two years work.

"Right now, we're at the culmination of a two-year request to the FAA," he said. "We had strenuous negotiations with them in order to fund this."

Council approval of the grant is routine procedure, according to Turcotte.

"As with all federal grants we receive, these must be approved and accepted by Pitt County, the city of Greenville and the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority," Turcotte said.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners approved the grant at its meeting Monday, and the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority approved the grant Monday night.

In other business, the council officially appointed five members to the Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority. The authority was created to promote and market the area's travel and tourism industry by using revenues generated by a 3 percent occupancy tax.

The council appointed Art Thompson, manager of the Greenville Hilton, and Jonathon M. Yuhas, manager of the Holiday Inn, as the two industry representatives to the board. Thompson was appointed to a two-year term, while Yuhas was appointed to a three-year term.

Mary W. Harvey, owner and manager of Greenville Travel Center, was appointed as representative from a tourist or convention related business. She was appointed to a one-year term.

The council also appointed Donald Leggett, assistant to the East Carolina University vice chancellor for institutional advancement, and De De Carney, a sales broker for Century 21 Tipton Associates, as representatives not involved in the tourism, convention or related industries. De De Carney will serve a two-year term, while Leggett will serve a three-year term.

Ground Is Broken For Catfish Plant

AYDEN — State and local leaders participated in groundbreaking ceremonies this morning for the state's first catfish processing facility, to be located on a 2.4-acre site just south of Ayden on N.C. 11.

Mid-Atlantic Fish Farms — which grows catfish on a farm near Helens Crossroads — is building the plant, which will be equipped to process up to 2 million pounds of catfish a year.

Costing about $250,000, the plant will employ around six people initially, and about 15 within 18 months.

"We have plenty of room for expansion and hope to have 250 (water) acres in production by 1990," Rob Mayo, founder and president of Mid-Atlantic said.

N.C. Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham, who participated in the groundbreaking, said "it's a lot easier for farmers to see a market when a processing plant is in place."

"When a company like Mid Atlantic Fish Farms is willing to commit to building a plant, they mean business (and) I applaud their efforts."

"It's got to be a plus for our farmers," Graham said. "I think the industry has a great future in eastern North Carolina."

Charles McLawhorn, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and an active supporter of Mid-Atlantic since its inception in 1985, said "this is a great day for the farmers and people of Pitt County."

"This plant will provide new income for area farmers and new jobs for county residents. We're getting the benefit of both barrels," McLawhorn suggested.

"I've tried their catfish and it tastes great," McLawhorn said. "Who knows, maybe in a few years catfish will rival shad at Grifton's Shad Festival or barbecue at Ayden's Collard Festival."

Mid-Atlantic now supplies catfish to restaurants throughout eastern North Carolina and as far west as Raleigh. And efforts are underway to expand deliveries to restaurants and retailers throughout the Carolinas and Virginia.

"Our biggest problem to date," Mayo said, "has been our inability to meet demand for the product. We've had to turn down business because we couldn't guarantee delivery of fish."

But according to Mayo, "this processing plant will eliminate much of that problem."

The company will have about 100 acres in catfish ponds in production in Pitt County by the end of the year to support the plant. And Mayo said a number of area farmers have shown an interest in growing catfish "under contract where we provide the technology in building the ponds and growing the fish, as well as co-oping on fingerlings and feed purchases."

The new plant is designed to handle production from over 1,000 water acres and can service growers within a 120-mile radius of Ayden.

Mayo said Pitt County was selected for the catfish growing-processing operation because of its location mid-way up the East Coast and

Nursing Center Losing Health Care Payments

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Medicare and Medicaid payments to University Nursing Center will end July 31, because the facility failed to meet federal standards, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The department's division of health standards and quality in Atlanta said a June inspection of the facility found University Nursing Center not in compliance with federal regulations for nursing services and infection control.

As a result, the nursing home will be dropped from federal health care programs after July 31, according to Clarence J. Boone, the division's associate regional administrator.

University Nursing Center is located on N.C. 43 north.

Center administrator William T. McConnell, however, said some of the federal agency's findings were based on erroneous information supplied to inspectors and that nursing home officials were fighting the federal action.

The nursing home has been the subject of three lawsuits in the past two years alleging deficiencies in patient care. The center was downgraded to provisional licensure status by the state's division of facility services last October as a result of deficiencies found during a September 1986 survey.

The suits and licensure downgrade resulted from incidents that occurred when the nursing center was owned by a family from western North Carolina.

Hillhaven Corp., which has patient care facilities in 34 states, purchased University Nursing Center in late-December 1986, after supplying an administrator for the nursing home since 1983.

And McConnell said full North Carolina licensure was restored following a June state inspection.

But the federal inspection — June 15-17 — came "four days after the inspection by the state" and "the federal survey and licensure inspection were absolute opposites in terms of what they found," McConnell said.

Facility Purchase Funded

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council appropriated $40,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds to the Greenville Community Life Center for the purchase of the former Agnes Fullilove School building for use as a shelter for the homeless.

The 21,000-square-foot building, also known as the West Greenville Grammar School, located on Chestnut Street, would be purchased by the group of concerned citizens from the Grace Baptist Church for $75,000.

The total cost of the building, including repairs and renovations, would be between $250,000 and $300,000, David Ames, a member of the Greenville Community Life Center, told council members at a workshop Monday night.

"For two years, there has been an attempt to develop in Greenville a shelter for homeless people similar to the ones in Washington and Rocky Mount," Ames said. "Most recently, a task force created by a coalition of churches has been spearheading this effort."

"After extensive inquiries, it was determined by the task force that the cafeteria building at the school was the best, if not the only, choice for this purpose."

Ames said the structure would be used to provide overnight shelter, sleeping space, bathroom and toilet facilities for homeless men and women and a separate area for use of an overnight manager.

The property, which is surrounded by single family homes on three sides, could be shared with other non-profit organizations looking for space, according to Ames.

"The Pitt County Mental Health Center has been searching for a facility in which to locate a 'psychological rehabilitation program' for persons disabled by mental illnesses," Ames said. "This program has found a temporary location elsewhere but continues to look for a more permanent and appropriate home."

"A group home of supervised apartments could be developed on the second floor of the main school building. This would provide transitional housing, complement the rehabilitation program and provide a step-up for persons wishing to leave the shelter."

Ames also said a soup kitchen could be developed in the cafeteria/shelter area.

The Community Life Center, which is comprised of several area ministers and concerned citizens, has the support of local health officials, the Salvation Army-Greenville, the Department of Social Services and city officials, according to Ames, who said the group planned to seek additional funding from a variety of federal and state grants and philanthropic foundations.

Meanwhile, the council unanimously approved a letter addressed to State Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, chairman of the Senate Judiciary I Committee, opposing proposed legislation requiring compensation for sign removal.

"The members of the Greenville City Council are unanimously opposed to House Bill 1145 and ask that you and the members of the Senate Judiciary I Committee give this bill an unfavorable report," the letter said.

"The bill, if enacted, would require local governments to pay monetary compensation to owners of billboards when the billboards are removed pursuant to the provisions of a valid and locally adopted zoning ordinance."

The effectiveness of Greenville's sign ordinance would be curtailed by the legislation, according to the letter.

"This bill is especially important to the city of Greenville because we adopted a major revision to our sign regulations last November," the letter said.

ter said. "This major revision was adopted after long months of public debate, involvement by the business community and several public hearings."

"These regulations do include an amortization period provision for some billboards, but not for all."

According to the letter, Greenville officials believe the regulations should remain a local issue.

"We believe that zoning is a local government matter and one that is most properly left in the hands of the elected representatives closest to the people," the letter said.

"Zoning decisions can best be made by those elected officials who know the community which will be affected by the decisions. We urge you not to mandate a specific zoning treatment for one preferred industry."

If the Senate is inclined to vote for House Bill 1145, the letter urges the committee to include a "grandfather" amendment added before House approval.

"As a City Council which has already spent countless hours debating this issue with affected industries and with the public, we are especially disturbed that there may be efforts to delete the House amendment to House Bill 1145 which 'grandfathers' existing ordinances," the letter said.

Cancer Treatment

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun has an excellent chance of recovering after treatment at the Mayo Clinic for prostate cancer, a clinic spokesman says.

Blackmun, author of the landmark 1973 ruling legalizing abortion, underwent surgery for prostate cancer in November 1977. He has experienced "a small and localized recurrence," clinic spokesman Michael O'Hara said Monday.

"The justice is undergoing treatment which is not incapacitating and is short-term," O'Hara said. "The prognosis is excellent."

Blackmun, 78, was staying at a Rochester hotel near the clinic, a switchboard operator said. He did not return phone messages.

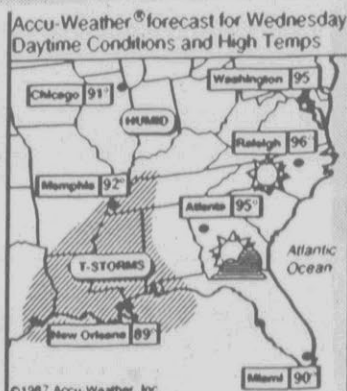

The cancer, in the same area where the earlier malignancy occurred, was detected during a routine examination earlier this month, O'Hara said.

The recurrence was disclosed three days after reporters began inquiring Friday about Blackmun's health after he canceled a scheduled speech at a judges' conference.

Blackmun's Washington office said in a statement Friday that he had undergone minor hernia surgery earlier this month and was recuperating at his vacation home in Wisconsin. The statement did not mention cancer.

Both before and after the clinic's announcement Monday, the Supreme Court's public information office in Washington depicted Blackmun as maintaining an active regimen of work and recreation.

Dies in Fire

A Greensboro man whose parents live in Greenville was killed in an apartment fire Sunday morning.

Jerry Cox, assistant chief of the Greensboro Fire Department said Sampson Zadock Parker Jr., 24, died in a bedroom at 2304-B Apache St., Greensboro. The fire was confined mostly to the bedroom, he said. The cause of the fire has not been determined. Firemen were called to the scene at 2:52 a.m.

Parker, originally from Pitt County, worked in Greensboro. An autopsy is being performed in Chapel Hill.

He was the son of Zadock "Snap" Parker of Greenville and Marjorie Parker of near Greenville.

Theft Charges

Three people — one of them a 13-year-old — were taken into custody by Greenville police on theft charges Monday.

Officer T.E. Nevelle said Johnnie Leigh Bradshaw, 43, of Route 3, Greenville, was charged with shoplifting in connection with the theft of a carton of cigarettes and a pair of socks from Harris Supermarket on North Memorial Drive about 12:40 p.m.

Officer J.G. Jenkins said a juvenile was turned over to the department's juvenile division after being taken into custody in connection with the theft of a ring valued at $5.99 from J.C. Penney's at The Plaza mall about 4:25 p.m.

Officer R.J. Brewington said Stanley C. Daniels, 30, of 900 Bancroft Ave., was charged with shoplifting, giving false information, assault with a deadly weapon (a knife), and three counts of assault in connection with the theft of $45 worth of meats from the Farm Fresh store on Greenville Boulevard about 11:15 p.m.

Officer K.L. Jones said Daniels was also charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a law enforcement officer in connection with the same incident.

Armed Robbery

Police arrested a suspect in connection with an armed robbery of a Farmville convenience store early today, according to law enforcement authorities.

Farmville police have charged Jerome Moye, 24, of Route 1, Farmville, with armed robbery and attempted first-degree sexual offense. Moye was taken into custody at his home in Greene County about 5:15 a.m. by Farmville Police and Greene and Pitt County sheriff's deputies.

Moye was identified from a police file photo as the man who allegedly took money from the Expressway

Store in the Marlboro section of Farmville just before 1 a.m. The suspect reportedly told the store clerk a pipe he was holding to her back was a gun.

Moye is in Pitt County Jail under $25,000 bond.

Construction Begins

Construction began today on a new office development for medical and professional offices located on Stantonsburg Road.

The development, which will consist of two buildings constructed in stages, will total approximately 24,000 square feet of leasable space when completed.

The first two-story structure, consisting of 13,500 square feet, has been substantially leased with the principal tenant being Taft, Taft & Haigler Attorneys at Law.

A medical tenant will also occupy the structure located near the intersection of Stantonsburg Road and Moye Boulevard.

The two-story building will be in the neo-Georgian style and will be constructed by J.H. Hudson Construction Co. of Greenville at a cost of $2 million. The first phase will be ready for occupancy in March of 1988 for medical and professional purposes.

The developers are Thomas F. Taft, Hoover Taft and Kenneth E. Haigler.

The ground breaking ceremonies were attended by Greenville Mayor Les Garner, State Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr., D-Pitt, and Ed Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

The tape shows a segment of a workshop conducted by Shakti Gawn, author of the book, "Creative Visualization."

Mixed Reviews

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The demise of the inventory tax will help attract manufacturers to North Carolina, but service businesses may feel less welcome since they'll pay more under the tax changes, experts say.

The law will wipe out the local property tax on business inventories. It will increase the corporate income tax from 6 percent to 7 percent. In addition, merchants will no longer keep 3 cents of every dollar in sales taxes they collect.

Legislative fiscal analyst David Crotts estimates that in 1989-90, when the tax law is fully in effect, the changes will cost businesses $45 million a year.

"We've got members affected in every conceivable manner," Tom Graves, a lobbyist for N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry, told The Charlotte Observer.

Bill Millett, senior vice president and industrial recruiter for the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, said manufacturers should be more willing to move to a state where they won't have to pay tax on their inventories. But he said service businesses such as banks and insurance will pay more under the tax changes.

Bullock Named Head Of Uniform Division

Acting Greenville Police Chief Randy M. Nichols has appointed Lt. David Bullock as acting captain of the department's uniform division.

Bullock, a 23-year veteran of the Greenville Police Department, will serve in the position during the interim period until the city hires a new police chief to replace Floyd H. "Ted" Holmes, who resigned Friday, Nichols said.

Bullock served in a similar capacity prior to becoming the department's court liaison officer.

"I'm looking forward to taking up my old position," Bullock said of his appointment.

Bullock also served over four years as a military police officer in the U.S. Marine Corps before joining the force.

A member of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church, Bullock and his wife, Rose, have a daughter.

Commissioners OK Paving Bids; Approve Application

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners Monday accepted bids for paving a lot on Greene Street between Second and Third streets and approved an application for Governor's Highway Safety Program grant money to pay 70 percent of the cost of road name signs at non-municipal intersections throughout the county.

Low bidder for the parking lot paving was Greenville Paving & Contracting, which submitted a bid of $58,105, according to County Engineer Phil Dickerson.

Other bids included a $69,372 proposal from Barrus Construction Co. and a $73,200 bid from Shackelford Paving Co.

The 23,000 square foot lot, bought in 1983, provides parking for courthouse employees and visitors.

The board approved the application for state funds to help pay for the road name signs after County Manager John Bulow said the cost of material is estimated to total between $15,000 and $20,000.

Commissioners last year gave approval for the project, but had been told that it would be about three years before grant funds to help with the project would be available.

But Bulow said he was notified last week that county road sign program money will be available this year.

Commissioners also approved the acceptance of a $136,202 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration, and the gift of a planned birthing center at Pitt County Memorial Hospital from the state.

The federal money, plus a state grant of $8,500 and $8,500 in local funds budgeted last year, will be used to install taxiway lights at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

The board agreed to accept the birthing center at the request of Ralph Hall, vice president for facilities management at PCMH.

Hall told commissioners that the state had planned to build the birthing center — a $1.248 million project — through the East Carolina University School of Medicine. But he said the state now wants to give the project — including the money to build it — to the county.

Hall said the state contracted for the preliminary and final architect drawings for the building — $90,000 of work — and that bids have been taken for construction.

However, Hall said the bids were higher than expected and that the hospital and medical school are in the process of trying to raise additional money to complete the project as planned.

The birthing center will be located on the south side of the hospital, between the present labor and delivery area and Stantonsburg Road, Hall said.

In other business Monday, commissioners approved — in concept — a planning board proposal to provide perpetual maintenance of drainage in subdivisions. But the board said further study is needed before any formal action to implement the proposal is taken.

County Engineer Phil Dickerson said "12 to 15 ways to do it" were considered. But he said it was decided that the best way to ensure that drainage ditches would be maintained is to create a county service district and levy a special tax for ditch maintenance.

The next regular meeting of the board is scheduled for Aug. 3.

Local Police Probe Monday Larcenies

Investigators said nine thefts were reported to Greenville police on Monday.

Officer J.W. Corbett said a stereo system and two speakers valued at about $385 and a tool box and tools worth $215 were taken from a vehicle parked at H5 Cannon Court Apartments in an incident reported at 8:30 a.m., while Officer D.R. Wyrick said a letter opener, a small amount of money and several keys were taken from a car parked at 2111 Southview Drive in an incident reported at 9:44 a.m.

Officer W.C. Widener said a radio valued at $345 was taken from a truck parked at Joe Pecheval Volkswagen on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 11 a.m. and said a diamond and sapphire ring valued at $750 was taken from 1986E Quail Ridge Road in an incident reported at 2 p.m., while Officer T.E. Nevelle said two fog lamps were taken from a car parked at 203 N. Oak St. in an incident reported at 11:39 a.m.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said three statues (one of a bulldog and two of angels), a trash can and several tools were taken from the yard of 900 W. Third St. in an incident reported at 12:53 p.m., while Officer E.M. Hadcock said a tool box and tools valued at $500 were taken from a vehicle parked at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 2:47 p.m.

Officer H.D. Hines said a bicycle was taken from The Plaza mall in an incident reported at 4:03 p.m., while Officer W.S. Heath said a video cassette recorder valued at $569, a 35mm camera valued at $289, a flash unit valued at $135, a $199 compact disc player and a $150 turntable were taken from apartment C Village East Apartments in a break-in reported at 4:20 p.m.

Pier Safety Concerns Raised After Collapse

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The time might be right to institute schedules of official inspections of piers to find trouble that might not be obvious to owners or casual observers, says the building inspector of the town where a pier collapsed during a Fourth of July fireworks display.

"I had been out on that pier many times," James G. Patterson told the News and Observer of Raleigh. "But I had no idea anything was amiss. I just didn't look."

The Topsail Sound Pier collapsed July 4, injuring 16 people and sparking concern about the safety of all North Carolina piers.

Owners say the structures are carefully maintained, but authorities have conceded that regulations requiring owners to maintain their piers are obscure and often shift responsibility from one agency to the next.

When the structures are built, approval of their design falls under the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Coastal Area Management Act — administered by the Coastal Management Division — and the local building inspector. Once the piers are built, inspections are left solely to the local authorities.

Patterson said he had not made an official inspection of the Topsail Sound Pier in four years. He said the collapse appeared to have been caused by a broken piling, but he would not speculate on what had caused the piling to break.

Mike Robertson, owner-operator of Kure Beach Pier, said it's the pier owner who keeps the best eye on how the structure is holding up.

"I look after the pier," said Robertson. "It's in my best interest to look after the pier. I don't want people to go back upstate and say, 'I leaned on the railing and fell in the ocean at Kure Beach Pier.'"

"That's bad for business. It's stupid for me not to look after what looks after me."

And Wrightsville Beach building inspector W. Ronald Russo said most of the piers around the state are believed to be in good shape.

"You have to stay on top of maintenance all the time," Russo said.

Robertson said the greatest hazard to pier pilings — besides being side-struck by waves, high winds or storm-tossed debris — is the "ship worm." Since the pier was built in 1923, Robertson, his father and grandfather have replaced more worm-eaten pilings than they could count.

Bakkers Are Sued

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jim and Tammy Bakker have been accused of fraud and racketeering by a West Virginia couple who have filed suit in federal court against the PTL founders.

David and Sarah Combs filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Charlotte, claiming they paid $1,000 in May 1984 for a lifetime partnership in the Heritage Grand Hotel.

They were to get a free three-night stay each year for life. But they say they've never been able to get a room.

They accused the Bakkers and former PTL Executive Director Richard Dortch of overselling the partnerships and misleading the public about the benefits.

Bakker, Dortch and their attorneys could not be reached for comment.

In the lawsuit, the Combs claim the Bakkers and Dortch "asserted that the partnership would be of great value and very easy to use, and that as long as there was room available, it would be theirs with no restrictions of any kind."

The suit said they have repeatedly sought reservations, but have "always been told by Grand Hotel agents that there were no rooms available for lifetime partners."

Buy-Out Considered

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Farm Fresh Inc., which operates 116 stores in Virginia and North Carolina, said it has agreed to look into a buy-out offer from an undisclosed source, according to a company statement.

The Norfolk-based company "received an unsolicited inquiry about its willingness to consider a leveraged buy-out proposal," the company wrote Monday in a paragraph at the bottom of its second-quarter earnings report. The Farm Fresh report said the company agreed to consider such an offer but was not actively pursuing a buyer.

"I don't have any information yet," said Larry Dobrinsky, the chain's vice president and treasurer. "It's nothing but exploratory. Some people have made an inquiry, and we're going to go ahead and play around with some numbers."

The company reported a substantial decline in second-quarter earnings Monday, but investors overlooked the disappointing results and bid up the price of the company's stock in reaction to news of the buy-out offer.

Farm Fresh has approximately 13.4 million shares of stock outstanding and more than 528,000 shares traded hands Monday in response to the announcement. The stock closed at 14 1/8 bid, 14 3/8 asked, up 1 3/8 in over-the-counter trading.

Blood Test

DURHAM (AP) — Researchers studying a rare eye disease and those working on arthritis may both benefit from a blood test that detects a common element between the maladies, a Duke University scientist says.

Dr. Gordon Klintworth, research director of the Duke University Eye Center, said the blood test is being developed at Rush-Presbyterian and St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago.

Burlington Trims Work Roster

GREENSBORO (AP) — Burlington Industries Inc. will eliminate more than 500 jobs in a streamlining of its operations announced Monday, less than two months after the textile giant used a leveraged buyout to fend off a hostile takeover.

"We deeply regret that it has become necessary to eliminate these jobs," said Frank Greenberg, chairman and chief executive officer. "We are losing the services of many exceptionally talented and dedicated people."

"However, we must move quickly to restructure the company, strengthen our operating units and go forward as a strong, competitive company."

He said the restructuring would include the sale of some businesses and some assets not essential to the company's basic operations and the adoption of a more decentralized structure. He said no decisions had been made other than those announced Monday.

"Burlington may become a smaller company, but it also will be a more vital, dynamic, profitable one that is better able to respond quickly to opportunities in the marketplace," Greenberg said.

The reorganization will eliminate 525 jobs at Burlington's headquarters in Greensboro and at its research and development center in Jamestown. Some functions will be transferred to other divisions to reduce costs, said Bryant Haskins, a company spokesman.

"It's terribly unfortunate, however, that many extremely talented employees will be affected," Haskins said in a recorded statement.

The buyout of Burlington, led by Morgan Stanley Group Inc., stopped a hostile takeover by New York financier Asher Edelman and Dominion Textiles of Montreal, Canada.

Greenberg said the reorganization is part of Burlington's plan to streamline its operations, reduce costs and operate the company in a more efficient, decentralized manner.

"Burlington is in a position to take advantage of many exciting opportunities over the next several years. We are structuring the new company to meet these opportunities at the operating level where they can be capitalized on most efficiently," Greenberg said. "We will continue to emphasize new product development and process improvements in our research and development activities, but we will carry out this emphasis without our operating divisions."

Most of the jobs to be eliminated will be phased out over the next two to eight weeks, but other jobs will be transferred or eliminated over the next few months, the company said.

"We have always been proud of the quality of Burlington's employees," Greenberg said. "And we are very grateful for the outstanding service all of them have given the company. We are doing everything possible to help those affected."

Workers whose jobs are being eliminated will be eligible for severance pay, profit sharing and retirement plan benefits in line with the company's standard policies, the company said in a prepared statement.

The company said it would offer outplacement services at a Burlington training facility staffed by human resources and counseling professionals.

Update Overdue

New figures on traffic flow in Greenville are yet another reminder the city needs a flexible, long-range plan for its roadways.

Updating the city's thoroughfare plan — a project under way — is overdue. The plan addresses needs from five years ago, and current problems demand city officials examine planning priorities.

Does the city have traffic problems? Take a look at the traffic increase on major thoroughfares since 1982.

In 1982, the section of Memorial Drive south of Greenville Boulevard saw an average of 20,600 vehicles per day. In 1986, it averaged 29,400 vehicles per day — an incredible jump in a small period of time, and the largest increase in travel on any road.

The section of Memorial Drive between Greenville Boulevard and Dickinson Avenue checks in with the second most growth. Traffic along this stretch increased from 17,300 vehicles per day in 1982 to 22,200 in 1986 — a whopping 4,900 vehicles.

Other key roads had concurrent traffic increases — nearly 4,000 cars per day on N.C. 11 near Pitt Community College and 3,000 cars per day between Dickinson Avenue and Airport Road.

If figures aren't enough to prove Greenville traffic is tedious, try navigating one of these roads at peak times. It's a slow-going process.

In addition to the fact that a number of the city's arteries are inadequate for the amount of traffic that flows through them, many — Greenville Boulevard for example — have become more of a leisure stretch than a thoroughfare. There is no good, quick way to get from south to east in the city. This inadequacy is a need that must be addressed.

In addition, important roadways — those that flow through the East Carolina Medical District, for example, — must be looked at carefully for potential explosive traffic growth.

These facts are adequate proof it's time to untangle the city's traffic tie-ups. As city planners and engineers revamp Greenville's outdated thoroughfare plan, they need to identify these problem areas and consider some far-reaching solutions.

Both short-term and long-term approaches to traffic management might be feasible. City officials should both address current traffic snarls and anticipate future pitfalls as they plan.

Greenville cannot afford to have its progress stuck in a traffic jam as the city enters the next decade.

Inspirational

Fifty years ago the first performance of Paul Green's The Lost Colony was seen on Manteo Island.

It is now the nation's oldest outdoor drama and, no doubt, its success spurred on the production of other outdoor dramas of an historical nature.

The message of The Lost Colony is inspirational to those who see it at the Waterside Theatre, for it was somewhere in the area that the real life drama was acted out some 400 years ago.

In 1587 Sir Walter Raleigh sent a group of colonists to the New World in an attempt to establish a settlement. The colonists disappeared and it is a mystery which has never been solved. It is only conjecture that they were slaughtered by Indians or moved inland, and became absorbed into an Indian tribe.

Whatever happened to the colonists, their efforts led to the inevitable colonization of the Americas by the English and other European nations. A permanent colony was established at Jamestown, Va. in 1607.

Manteo island remained in isolation for centuries after the disappearance of the colonies. In modern times, however, it has become the center of a burgeoning recreational area on the Outer Banks.

Following the first presentation of The Lost Colony on July 4, 1937 its success was assured. Only the Nazi submarines off the coast interrupted its summer schedule during World War II. After the war the Outer Banks growth as a resort provided constantly changing audiences for the drama.

There are now 106 cast members in the show and a production staff of 29. Its most famous alumnus is North Carolina's beloved Andy Griffith.

The production is entertaining, the surroundings inspiring, but most important it offers for all who see it a perspective of the hardships and innovations that faced the English colony. Their sacrifice provided the expertise which made future colonies successful.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Your use of a cartoon belittling Oliver North's medals was in poor taste, at best.

Possibly the most foolish thing Colonel North ever did was performing the acts of bravery that earned his medals. He was lucky to get home alive and not be maimed. A lot of others were less fortunate and many of them received no medals.

A majority of the citizens of this country have no real appreciation for the sacrifice that many persons serving in our armed forces have made in the defense of freedom, justice and democracy.

The media's frequently trumpeted theme inferring that democracy automatically promotes freedom and justice is a hoax. The citizens of this country are presently faced with numerous unjust restrictions of their freedom alleged to be "in the public interest." These unjust restrictions were put in place through an alleged "democratic process."

Should Colonel North and others risk their lives in support of "democracy" under such circumstances?

Dr. Joseph M. Ward
Ayden

To the editor:

Your editorial of July 17, "Not a Hero," is disappointing. Who rightly makes a hero? There can be no one else than the hero. Certainly Col. North did earn heroism in battle and not merely by being wounded. And recently Col. North has earned heroism by awakening Americans to renewed patriotism as no one else has done in a generation — two generations? three? Phaw on your belittling of a real man!

You stated that Col. North thwarted and circumvented the "will of Congress." The "will of Congress" has no significance. Congress makes law nearly all of which are violated on occasion. Sometimes it is necessary for courts to delve into the intent (will?) to determine the application of a law. But the "will of Congress" has no force of obligation.

Now consider Congress and find the true villain in this whole affair. A representative, George Crocker, who has a 40-year public record of close association with known Communists, is chairman of the Subcommittee for Foreign Relations in the Western Hemisphere. This is where Communism is entrenched in one country, where a Communist government is fighting Freedom Fighters in another country, and where Communists are waging war in a dozen others. Yet Congress is being led in our relations to these Communists by the above identified George Crocker.

Another case: A representative writes to Daniel Ortega, dictator of Communist Nicaragua, that he endorses Ortega's government, supports his policies and disagrees with the policies of the administration of his own country, the USA. That Representative, Jim Wright, is now Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Marshall Helms
Greenville

To the editor:

I am not at all surprised that you joined many members of the Iran-Contra Committee in denouncing Lt. Col. Oliver North, and I suspect you did so for much the same reasons. In your respective professions you have little opportunity to know or associate with either heroes or patriots and you find the presence of one unnerving, even on television. However, to some extent I think public sentiment has been misunderstood. I believe it has been as much against the Congress as it has been for Lt. Col. North. When the Congress convened in January its members boasted that power had been wrested from the President, order was restored, and the government was under control. Seven months later, what do we have? They passed themselves a multi-million-dollar pay increase, a $90 billion pork barrel public works bill, and they've interrogated Lt. Col. North.

But at least you are to be commended for the consistency of your editorial positions. You were among the very first to announce that Gary Hart was clearly the best qualified candidate to be the next President of the United States.

All Roads Lead To Damascus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — All roads seem to lead to Damascus these days as Syria becomes a focal point of international efforts to end two of the world's most intractable disputes, the Arab-Israeli conflict and the Iran-Iraq war.

President Reagan has sent his diplomatic troubleshooter, Gen. Vernon Walters, to the Syrian capital to enlist President Hafez Assad's help in efforts to end the conflicts and free U.S. hostages held in Lebanon.

High-ranking Soviet officials fly in and out of Damascus every week. The Soviets are prodding Assad, Moscow's main Arab ally, toward reconciliation with his Arab rivals, Iraq, Egypt and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Jordan's King Hussein and his Prime Minister, Zaid Rifai, have both visited Assad in recent weeks, trying to woo him away from his alliance with Iran and encourage him to patch up differences with President Saddam Hussein of Iraq.

Prime Minister Turgut Ozal of Turkey arrived Wednesday for a three-day visit, the first ever by a Turkish prime minister. Ozal wants to end four decades of strained relations and Syrian support for Kurdish guerrillas fighting the Ankara government.

Arab diplomats, Persian Gulf sheiks and Iranian leaders shuttle in and out of Damascus for top-level meetings that underline how central Syria and Assad have become to events in the Middle East and beyond.

This is a big change from just eight months ago when Syria was the West's bogymen because of its alleged sponsorship of international terrorism.

Britain broke off relations with Syria in October, citing "conclusive evidence" of involvement of Syrian intelligence in an abortive plot to smuggle a bomb aboard an Israeli jumbo jet in London. Two hundred of the passengers were American.

The United States withdrew its ambassador, William Eagleton, and imposed economic sanctions.

West Germany and Canada recalled their ambassadors after evidence surfaced that Syrian agents provided the explosives for bombings in West Berlin.

The 12-nation European Economic Community halted all high-level contacts with Syria and imposed economic sanctions of its own. The economic bloc recently agreed to allow the contacts to resume.

Walters' two days of talks with Assad signalled that five years of often barely veiled hostility between Washington and Damascus could be coming to an end.

Syrian officials said Walters and Assad discussed further meetings, including a visit to Syria by Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

A key figure in the international outreach toward Syria has been Rafik Hariri, the portly Lebanese-born billionaire who is a close confidant of King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

The monarch is one of the prime movers in current efforts to reunite the Arab world and convene a long-delayed Arab summit in advance of an international Middle East peace conference.

Hariri has for months shuttled between Damascus and Riyadh, the Saudi capital, chipping away at Assad's alliance with Iran. Earlier this year, Hariri told Assad that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait would provide Syria with up to 50,000 barrels of oil a day if Syria broke with Iran, informed Arab sources said.

Jordan has confirmed that Assad and Hussein met at a secret summit in Jordan in April, arranged by Saudi Arabia and Jordan. Arab sources said a second summit is being arranged.

A reconciliation between Syria and Iraq, ruled by rival wings of the Baath Arab Socialist Party, would mean the end of the Syria-Iran alliance.

That rupture would isolate Iran and have a profound impact on the nearly 7-year-old gulf war, the Middle East and Assad's relations with the superpowers.

Persian Iran has used the relationship with Syria to claim its war against Iraq is not a confrontation with the Arab world.

Strength For Today

A speaker at a recent meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous made the statement that for an alcoholic who has conquered his appetite, one drink stands between him and ruin.

This is a thin partition. But always the partitions which separate us from catastrophe are thin and fragile. At one time we walk proudly in moral triumph, and in the twinkling of an eye we are ashamed to behold ourselves in the mirror of conscience.

It is plain that we live our lives day to day by the grace of God. We have to put great reliance on that grace because there is nothing else of substance in the entire universe. Only a thin partition separates us from temptations, sorrows and discouragements which might overwhelm us. God's grace is our only protection.

Pennzoil Plan Proposes $4.1 Billion From Texaco

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Texaco Inc. officials scorned a draft plan presented by Pennzoil Co. that called for a $4.1 billion payment from Texaco Inc. to resolve the companies' ongoing legal battle.

A Pennzoil official said Monday the proposed payment was part of Pennzoil's draft of a reorganization plan for Texaco, which has filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the U.S. bankruptcy law.

The payment, plus interest, would satisfy a judgment Texaco lost to Pennzoil that now stands at about $10.3 billion, the largest civil award in U.S. history. That judgment resulted in Texaco's bankruptcy filing.

Officials for the Houston-based company say they want to file a formal reorganization plan for Texaco, including the payment, by August 11.

The proposed plan is based on an "outrageous" figure and is not in the best interest of Texaco's shareholders or creditors, said Texaco spokeswoman Anita Larsen, at the company's headquarters in White Plains, N.Y.

Texaco has until August 11 to file its own plan, but has asked for an extension. Pennzoil officials say Texaco has not come up with a reorganization strategy and is stalling in order to pursue legal appeals.

Texaco has asked the Texas Supreme Court to reverse the judgment, but Baine P. Kerr, chairman of Pennzoil's executive committee, said Texaco's request for an extension could move the date for filing a plan up to March 1988.

Kerr said Texaco is stalling on filing a plan because directors would rather wait for the case to move through the court system and hope for a reversal than face possible liability claims from their own shareholders.

"We think it's in the best interests of the people who own Texaco, the real owners, and of their creditors to not extend this period of (filing) exclusivity — not roll the dice on what finally happens in this lawsuit, and come up with some reasonable solution that is beneficial to everyone concerned," Kerr said.

Pennzoil's proposal would allow the shareholders to vote on whether they would like to accept the plan, he said.

"It's less than 40 percent of the judgment, and we think it's clearly an amount that can be paid and financed without any real harm to Texaco's financial position, its earnings or its cash flow."

"They could decide for themselves whether they want to accept a sure thing or take the risk of litigation," he said.

Texaco officials criticized the plan.

A Houston jury awarded the judgment to Pennzoil in November 1985 after finding that Texaco wrongfully interfered with a planned merger between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co.

The draft of the proposed Pennzoil settlement was filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in White Plains, N.Y. on Monday. Texaco filed there April 12 for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

Candidates Swap Party Jabs, Debate U.S. Policy

By DAGMAR OBEREIGNER
Associated Press Writer

Presidential hopefuls Jack Kemp and Richard Gephardt exchanged barbs about each other's parties while debating U.S. trade policy, Gephardt, the Democrat, calling America the "trade patsy of the world" and the GOP's Kemp warning against protectionism.

At the center of their debate Monday in politically important Iowa were Gephardt's ideas for retaliation against some U.S. trading partners.

Meanwhile, Democrat Jesse Jackson met with former Alabama Gov. George Wallace to seek his support; Vice President George Bush toured a Maryland defense plant; Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., called for strict limits on nuclear missiles and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill. urged major Medicare revisions.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., who says she will decide in September whether to run for president, said Monday she has been overwhelmed at the response she has received on recent trips to "test the waters."

In Des Moines, Iowa, Kemp, a New York congressman, and Rep. Gephardt of Missouri tried to score points with state Democratic and Republican leaders by scoring points off each other. Iowa will hold the first caucuses of the 1988 campaign next February.

"Dick says it's midnight in America," Kemp said of Gephardt. "The sky is falling — that is the gloom and doom of the Democratic Party."

Kemp said retaliation against U.S. trade partners would close down markets and lead to "mutually assured depression."

He said 13.5 million jobs had been created during Ronald Reagan's presidency, and took credit for being the author of the tax cut passed in 1981.

"The jobs that have been created in the last seven years are not middle-class jobs," Gephardt countered. "We can't press each other's clothes and flip hamburgers for each other."

Kemp accused Democratic presidential candidates of straying from their party's roots.

"Shame on you, shame on your party. This is the Democratic Party of Jimmy Carter, George McGovern and Walter Mondale," he said.

"You're dead wrong," replied Gephardt. "If our trade and farm policies are so great, why are we in such trouble today? We're the breadbasket of the world, but the problem today is we're the trade patsy of the world."

Jackson, who has not said whether he will run, said he left the meeting with Wallace at the former governor's Montgomery, Ala., home encouraged, although Wallace did no more than ask Jackson to keep in touch.

"By itself, it is a statement of us trying to get the base broadened," said Jackson, adding that he urged Wallace to remain politically involved.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, toured Westinghouse's Defense and Electronics Center in Linthicum, Md. The GOP candidate said he was impressed by the attitude of the workers and their interest in helping strengthen America.

Biden outlined his policy on arms control in a news conference in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The Democrat said that to stabilize the number of nuclear weapons, the United States should aim for negotiations with the Soviets for strict limits on missiles that carry warheads.

"The world will be brought to Armageddon not by further advances in nuclear warhead devices, which are already lethal in the extreme," said Biden. "The danger lies in the further perfection of what we euphemistically call nuclear delivery systems."

Simon endorsed testing of prison inmates and immigrants for the AIDS virus in a speech to the New Hampshire Health Care Coalition in Concord. The Democrat also called for more funds for acquired immune deficiency syndrome research, education and voluntary testing.

Simon urged major Medicare revisions within six years, including an expansion to cover eyeglasses, dentures and hearing aids.

"If we can get a man to the moon, we ought to be able to get dentures to those who built the society," he said.

Schroeder said in an Associated Press interview that her supporters are composed of an equal number of men and women.

"I think men are just as angry about the ethics (in government) as women are. There will be 10 million more women voters this year than men, so everyone will be trying to appeal to the women's vote," she said.

Schroeder said donations and pledges she has received for a presidential campaign may total $500,000. Last weekend, delegates to the annual convention of the National Organization for Women promised $351,344.

Personal Income Dips In 5 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income for the first three months of the year declined in five states, hurt by a drop in government subsidies to wheat farmers, the Commerce Department reports.

By contrast, the four states with the fastest increase in incomes were farm states as well, but states where government payments to farmers on other crops made up for a fall-off in wheat subsidies.

Nationwide, incomes rose a seasonally adjusted 1.7 percent from January through March, compared with an increase of 0.9 percent in the October-December quarter last year.

Iowa led the country with an increase of 9.7 percent, followed by Nebraska, where incomes rose 4.5 percent. Both increases came from advance government subsidy payments to farmers on their 1987 corn crops.

These increases were followed by a 4.3 percent income rise in Arkansas and a 3.8 percent jump in Mississippi, two states helped out by subsidy payments on 1986 cotton and rice crops.

Incomes fell 4.6 percent in North Dakota and by smaller amounts in Montana, Idaho, Kansas and Oklahoma. The declines were blamed on a drop in farm income from January through March following large fourth-quarter payments on the 1986 wheat crop.

The big swings in these 10 states provided prime examples, analysts said, of how much impact farm subsidy payments have on the economies of farm states. The report said the effects of government subsidies vary from state to state and quarter to quarter because the assistance is not paid out evenly over the year, and each eligible crop is under a different payment schedule.

The only other state which suffered a drop in income during the first quarter was Alaska, where a 2.0 percent fall was blamed on the continuing problems of energy producing states.

The biggest rise by payroll category was a 2.1 percent increase in payrolls for government workers, followed by an increase of 1.9 percent in payrolls in the service sector.

Poindexter Says Pardon Was Not Offered To Him

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter says he never was offered a presidential pardon, although the White House says such a step was considered as a means of getting the former national security adviser and his aide, Lt. Col. Oliver M. North, to testify in the Iran-Contra affair.

However, the administration now is not discussing the possibility of a pardon for either Poindexter, who resigned last November when the secret sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contras was revealed, or North, who was fired.

The pardon issue came up in the House-Senate Iran-Contra hearings Monday, when Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, asked Poindexter if anyone ever talked to him about a pardon or if he knew of a Dec. 16 White House meeting last year at which one was discussed.

Poindexter said he had "certainly not" been approached about a pardon and knew nothing about any such meeting.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the White House could find no record of the meeting, which Stokes said was attended by the president, Attorney General Edwin Meese III and then-White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan.

However, Fitzwater said Dec. 16 was the day the White House issued a statement calling for a grant of immunity for Poindexter and North as an inducement for them to testify before the House and Senate investigating committees.

"The White House was considering any number of options for getting the story out and getting North and Poindexter to testify, and among these were granting of immunity and a pardon and ordering them to testify and anything else they could think of," he said.

Fitzwater said the then-House majority leader, Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, who now is speaker, "called for a full pardon at that point and made it a part of the public debate ... and so it was considered in that context."

However, the spokesman added, "The feeling was that granting of immunity was the right way, and the president recommended that in an effort to get the story out."

Terry Eastland, a Justice Department spokesman, said Meese had "no recollection about any discussion of a pardon," but didn't rule out the possibility.

Asked about more recent suggestions by former presidential aide Patrick J. Buchanan and others for a presidential pardon, Fitzwater said, "We have not discussed a pardon and don't think it is appropriate to do so."

The exchange Monday before the congressional committees was as follows:

Stokes: "Admiral, let me ask you this. Either before you resigned or subsequent to your resignation has anyone in the administration at any time discussed with you the question of congressional immunity or presidential pardon?"

Poindexter: "Certainly not a presidential pardon. We never did request congressional immunity. Other people discussed that. I — I haven't discussed it personally with anybody."

Stokes: "Admiral, are you aware of or have you ever been told of a meeting which occurred on the 16th December in the White House before the independent prosecutor was appointed, where a discussion took place between Attorney General Meese, Don Regan and the President regarding giving you and Colonel North either congressional immunity or a presidential pardon?"

Poindexter: "I — I don't know anything about that, Mr. Stokes."

TOPIC: DRUG ABUSE: CRACK

*Drug abuse affects everyone in today's society. Drugs can be abused accidentally or purposely. In both cases, they are bad news.

*PARENTS: You worry whether drugs are behind the recent sullen, withdrawn behavior of your usually happy and sociable child.

*SPOUSE: You wonder if your spouse's sneaky drinking in the morning and fighting at night mean there is a problem.

*PREGNANT: You're afraid of the possible effects of your past use of drugs on your unborn baby.

*TEENS: Have you experienced pressure by your peers to experiment with alcohol and drugs?

*TEACHERS: You're concerned that your usually bright, motivated student's grades are dropping.

*In each case your doctor can help. To learn more about Drug Abuse, (especially CRACK), please come and bring a friend!

or early July of 1986 about the sales, after several transactions already had been made.

Poindexter's statement that the weapons sales did not affect the balance of power in the prolonged Iran-Iraq war is consistent with the administration's longstanding position about the weapons shipments.

Poindexter did not say what other weapons the Iranians sought that the administration refused to provide.

because the climate of eastern North Carolina is ideal for growing farm-raised catfish.

"Most farm-raised catfish is produced along the Gulf Coast, primarily in Mississippi," Mayo said. "We wanted to position our operations as far north as climate would permit to gain an advantage over our competition in serving the northeast."

The popularity of farm-raised catfish caught on in the 1970s and has become the rage in restaurants all over the country, particularly in the Deep South and more recently in the northeast, Mayo said, and over 200 million pounds of catfish was consumed in 1986.

Farm-raised catfish are specially bred and are grain-fed from the top of the water.

Following the groundbreaking, guests toured Mid-Atlantic's fish farm and were treated to a "catfish fry."

"The elected officials and citizens of Greenville have a right to expect that our lawful and proper decisions will not be overturned by legislative action. We urge you not to destroy the work already done by our council and others. Please resist any efforts to delete the 'grandfathering' provision of this bill."

In other business, the council continued to review a pay and classification study conducted by Arthur Young, a Charlotte consulting firm.

The study includes a recommendation that the city spend an additional $170,000 to realign the salaries of some city employees.

Vito Kuraitis, a consultant with Arthur Young, told council members the six cities included in the study spent between 27 percent and 32 percent of salaries on benefits, including vacations. He said Greenville spend about 27 percent of the salary on similar benefits.

The six cities studied were Chapel Hill, Fayetteville, Raleigh, Cary, Rocky Mount, Greensboro and Goldsboro.

The council also asked Council member Ed Carter, the board liaison to the Greenville Utilities Commission, to ask the GUC to delay a decision on its pay and classification study until both panels could meet.

Payments Stopped

"The state told us we were not perfect but had made substantial progress in addressing the concerns they voiced and in their opinion were in substantial compliance.

"We are baffled and confused ... at a loss to understand the federal survey being so completely different," McConnell said.

McConnell said that normally licensure is for one year and that state inspections occur one or two times a year. But he said University Nursing Center has undergone "state inspection no less than once a month for the last year" and that the state inspection reports provide "a documented pattern of improvement."

Boone, the division of health standards and quality associate regional administrator, said in a June 26 letter to the nursing center said that nursing services were not in compliance with federal regulations because the nursing department "lacked direction, organization and leadership to ensure that nursing care was provided in a uniform manner, which resulted in poor patient care management."

The letter also said observations, assessments and interventions by the nursing staff were inadequate.

Infection control standards were not met, Boone's letter said, because of poor isolation techniques for infections, a high infection rate and a lack of adequate monitoring and intervention by the center's infection control committee.

In a 37-page report, the federal review said 13 residents had bedsores for a 33 percent infection rate from January to March.

The report also said, "A review of the staffing pattern for the past three weeks reflected either: (1) an inadequate number of nursing staff, (2) poorly supervised staff, (3) poor utilization of staff or (4) untrained staff to meet the needs of residents."

But University Nursing Center's McConnell said nursing center officials disagree with the conclusions about the nursing staff and said "there are many factual errors in the report from the federal survey team."

The 33 percent infection rate is "frankly a mathematical error on their part," McConnell said. The infection rate, he said, was "more in the neighborhood of 10 percent," with only six patients with bedsores rather than the 13 cited in the federal survey.

"I'm not sure where they got their information (but) there are some blatant errors," McConnell said. "We very adamantly disagree with the action that is being taken and at this point are appealing the actions at the state and federal levels."

McConnell said Hillhaven has "invested approximately a quarter-million dollars in capital improvements" including a new commercial laundry and new nursing stations, and "substantially increased nursing wages and available new benefits for our employees" since purchasing the nursing home — all in an effort to provide better care for patients.

And the nursing center plans to continue operating during the appeal process, McConnell said.

What if the center loses the appeal and Medicaid and Medicare funds are permanently cut off?

"We've really not even addressed that eventuality," McConnell said. "We feel we have a very strong case for appealing the decision."

Vintage Lefty Can't Stop J.R.

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

AP Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — It was vintage Lefty Driesell in a classic basketball game.

Leading his East team against the favored South at the U.S. Olympic Festival, Driesell devised a perfect defense for the opponent's No. 1 weapon, J.R. Reid of North Carolina. When it worked, he thrust his fist in the air in triumph, reminiscent of many of his days when he coached at Maryland.

When the defense didn't work, or if he thought the referees weren't allowing it to work, Driesell would stomp down on the wooden floor at the Smith Center, just like his days in College Park, Md., and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

That particular Leftyism sparked many in the crowd into a foot-stomping response.

"The officials made bad calls, I made bad calls," he drawled. "That was just part of my act."

And when it was over, Reid had hit five free throws in nearly four minutes, including the second of a two-shot foul with 22 seconds left to give the South a 77-76 victory and a berth in Wednesday's gold medal game.

Despite a 109-103 loss to the West, the North got into the gold medal contest by winning out in a tiebreaker system used when three teams finished at 1-2.

"I thought we did a great job of stopping them from getting the ball inside, and did a good job on J.R.," Driesell said.

Driesell conceded that he had faced the best team in the tournament, but not that he shouldn't get a second chance to face it.

"I think we played the South better than anyone else. I think our ball club has done a super job," Driesell said, noting that it was the tiebreaker system that ousted his team from the championship game.

"We lose by one-hundredth of a point, whatever that is. It's disappointing," Driesell said. "But like I told our players, if that's a rule, that's a rule."

Reid was bounced around on the inside thanks to a smothering defense. But the forwards and the guards took over and held off the East until Reid's free throws.

South Coach Eddie Sutton was unsure who would start the gold-medal struggle.

"We might start anybody Wednesday night," Sutton said. "We've got 12 wonderful people and we want to win the gold. I do not think we will be complacent."

The North-West men's game should have begun with a starter's gun instead of a jump ball. There were 17 ties and 12 lead changes in the contest, and the last change came at 82-80 when Karl James, who will play at Nevada-Las Vegas, hit a 3-point field goal and a layup midway through the second half.

"We ran some offense and scored a lot of points off the fast break," said West Coach Andy Russo, whose team shot 55.7 percent from the field on 44-for-79. "Defensively, we were not picture-perfect. We are a better re-bouncing team and we better be with the way we have been shooting."

Tom Lewis scored 22 points and James added 17 to lead five West players in double figures. Mark Macon led the North with 23 points.

In women's action, the West took a 64-50 victory over the North behind 13 points and 12 rebounds from Pauline Jordan and will face the South, which used Carla Green's 14 points to take an 85-66 victory over the East.

"We didn't put our best game forth yesterday," West Coach Debbie Ryan said of Sunday's 68-55 loss to the East. "Adversity brings out leadership, and that's what we needed. So we performed better today and won."

Ryan said getting to the gold medal game was great because "the West doesn't have a great reputation in the festival, so we're real proud of it."

The South also got 12 points from Tracey Rutledge and 10 points apiece from Tari Phillips and Evelyn Thompson.

South Coach Jorja Hoehn also mentioned the homecourt edge, pointing to the support of the crowd.

"I think what you saw today was what you call Southern pride," Hoehn said. "Playing in front of the home crowd was super."

Hit The Dirt

Rocky Mount's Clint Rouse prepares to slide into third base as Pitt County's Shane Adams awaits the throw during third inning action from their Area I American Legion Championship Series Monday night. Pitt slammed Rocky Mount, 22-5 to take a 2-1 advantage in the best of five series. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Pitt Uses Heavy Hitting To Roll Past Rocky Mount

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

To say Pitt County hit the ball well in its 23-5 win over Rocky Mount would be an understatement. The Post 39 players took hitting to a new plane against Post 58 in the Area I American Legion baseball playoffs.

Post 39 banged out 23 hits, 20 of them over the first six innings, en route to a 22-5 win that put Pitt up 2-1 in the best of five series.

"We just hit the ball," said Pitt coach Toby Holliday. "That was probably one of our best nights at the plate."

One of the best nights? That hitting total was a season for some teams. It was a scorer's nightmare.

The game was routine until the sixth inning, when Pitt scored 12 runs to turn a 9-3 game into a 21-3 romp.

"It was just one of those innings where we couldn't throw anything they couldn't hit," said Rocky Mount coach Jerry Carter. "Greenville just hit the ball."

Indeed, Eric Jarman led the inning off with a solo homer. David Daniels and Tom Moye followed with singles. Bronswell Patrick then singled and an error on the play allowed Daniels to score. Moye then scored on Robbie McDonald's single.

Ty Little followed with another single, this one scoring Patrick. Hunter Clark then added yet another single to load the bases. Shane Adams drew a walk to force home McDonald. Jason Galloway singled home Little and Clark. Jarman came up again and drove in Adams with a sacrifice fly that mercifully provided the first out of the inning.

Pitt, though, was far from through. Daniels added another base hit. Moye singled again. Patrick came up and had a two-run single scoring Galloway and Daniels. After McDonald flew out, Ty Little drove in Moye and Patrick for the final two runs of the inning.

"That comes from just concentrating at the plate," Holliday said. "We were patient and waited for the pitch that we knew we could hit."

Moye got the win for Pitt, with relief help from Jarman over the final three innings. Moye gave up seven hits and two earned runs while striking out nine.

Rocky Mount actually drew first blood, pushing across two runs in the top of the second. Eddie Sherrod and Paul Strickland led the way with RBI singles.

Pitt came back to score five runs in the bottom of the inning to take the lead for good.

Clark, the number nine hitter, led the way with a three-run triple that scored Patrick, McDonald and Little. Clark later scored on Galloway's single. Pitt took advantage of two Post 58 errors in the inning.

"We jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second inning and we (then) gave them four outs and they came back and went ahead 5-2," Carter said. "Greenville is a tough team to give three or four outs to. Hopefully, we can come back tomorrow, get a little better pitching."

Pitt went through three Rocky Mount hurlers. Kevin Pierce went the first five innings, giving up 15 runs on 14 hits. John Seagroves followed, got one out in the sixth while giving up six runs and five hits. Paul Strickland then got the final two outs of the inning and went the rest of the way for Post 58, giving up no runs on four hits.

Holliday said it was very important to get a win at home before heading back to Rocky Mount for tonight's fourth game.

■ We go back there two games down, they've got a big advantage," he said. "It's (still) going to be tough to beat them there. We stressed that we have to come out tomorrow and pick up where we left off. We can't come out here and relax. I think the guys are mature enough."

Eight of the nine Post 39 players got hits, with six of them getting at least two. Patrick was tops, going 4-6 with three RBI and four runs scored. Clark also had four hits and four RBI while scoring two runs. Jarman and Moye added three hits apiece while Little and Daniels had two hits apiece. Axel Smith, working back in to the lineup after an ankle injury, got a hit in his only at-bat.

After tonight's game, the teams return to action Wednesday if a fifth game is necessary in Greenville at Harrington Field.

Muse Ignores Pressure, Wins His 5th Gold Medal

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dante Muse and J.R. Reid didn't let the pressure bother them as they continued their U.S. Olympic Festival heroics.

Muse, a 20-year-old roller speed-skater from Des Moines, Iowa, won three gold medals Monday, bringing his festival haul this year to five, the same number he won in 1986. Reid, the 6-foot-9 sophomore center from the University of North Carolina, hit five free throws down the stretch, including the decisive point, as the South moved into Wednesday's gold medal basketball game with a 77-76 victory over the East.

Reid's team will meet the North, even though that team lost a 109-103 shootout to the West in the other game. In women's play, the South and West will tangle. The West won 64-50 over the North behind 13 points and 12 rebounds from Pauline Jordan. The South got 14 points from Carla Green in an 85-66 victory over the East.

The hockey competition begins today in Greensboro. Approximately 30 players will be selected from the tournament for the U.S. Olympic team's training camp at Lake Placid, N.Y. Tennis and boxing finals also were on the schedule.

Ticket sales were on a record pace, organizers said, having reached $2.35 million with a week to go.

"I would never have expected us to be at this point," Hill Carrow, president and executive director of the festival, said. "We have gone beyond all expectations."

The record for ticket sales was set in Houston last year. This year's event was only $50,000 shy of the mark with one week remaining.

Muse completed his performances at Dorton Arena in Raleigh with a sizzling show. He won the 500 in the afternoon, the 3,000 at night and then helped the East win the 4,000 relay in a record time of 7 minutes, 9.44 seconds.

On Sunday, he won the 1,000- and 1,500-meter races.

"I really did feel the pressure," Muse said. "People kept asking me if I could win five golds again this year and that causes some pressure."

Reid is accustomed to pressure, having started as a freshman at North Carolina, which was ranked No. 1 for much of the season. But he calmly made his free throws in the final 3:52 and finished with 14 points and eight rebounds.

"I had to make those shots," Reid said. "I wasn't thinking about the pressure."

The East, using a collapsing defense around Reid, stayed close to the unbeaten South. But, despite the coaching and sideline antics of Lefty Driesell, it wasn't enough.

"I thought we did a great job of stopping them from getting the ball to J.R., and did a good job on J.R.," the former coach at Maryland said.

Buchan Is Named

Dean Buchan has been named assistant sports information director at East Carolina University's Dr. Ken Karr announced Monday.

Buchan, 22, replaces Rob Wilson, who resigned last month to accept a similar position at Florida State University.

Buchan has served as a graduate intern in the Pirate Sports Information Office for the past year. He will assist in all areas of media relations and publications pertaining to ECU's intercollegiate athletic programs.

The Southern Pines, N.C. native is a 1986 graduate of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, where he worked for four years as a student assistant in the Sports Information Office.

Greenville Wins East Swim Title

The Greenville Swim Club won the East Carolina Swim League Championships this past weekend in Wilson.

Greenville totaled 705 points, followed by Wilson with 630. Goldsboro was third with 592, followed by Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Roanoke Valley, Wilmington and Kinston for the title.

Marc Moore and John Carstarphen each won five gold medals while David Kelly had four. Won Kim chipped in three first place finishes while Christy Goodman led the girls with two gold medals.

The win marks the first time in 10 years that Greenville has won the Eastern championship and only the second time in history.

Castoff Lifts Mets Past Braves

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

When the New York Mets were rolling through the National League East with 108 victories last year, there was no room on the roster for a pitcher like Don Schulze.

Schulze, with an 11-21 record in parts of four seasons with the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland Indians, is getting a chance this season because injuries have taken their toll on a pitching staff that led the majors in earned run average in 1986.

Schulze was called up from Tidewater after compiling a 9-1 record, and he took advantage of the opportunity by allowing three hits in 6 1-3 innings Monday night as the Mets defeated the Atlanta Braves 9-2.

"I knew the Mets had an exceptional staff when I was traded from the Cleveland organization (last May) and I wondered if I'd ever get a chance to move up," Schulze said. "The injuries (to pitchers Bob Ojeda, Rick Aguilera, David Cone and Terry Letch) helped get me here quicker than I expected and now I want to stay."

Schulze started poorly, allowing Ken Oberkfell's first homer of the season in the first inning, but he got plenty of offensive support from Len Dykstra, who had the first four-RBI game of his career.

"Maybe tonight is the start of something that will keep me here," Schulze said.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Montreal 4, Houston 1; Cincinnati 10, Philadelphia 6 in 11 innings; San Diego 7, Chicago 4, and Pittsburgh 7, San Francisco 6.

"I got more than I wanted from him," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said of Schulze. "He pitched an exceptional game ... lots of strikes, good breaking ball, nasty sinker. When I went to the mound in the seventh and asked, 'How are you doing?', he replied, 'I'm not going to lie to you,' so I took him out."

"He was spent even though he threw only 68 pitches. The temperature on the field was brutal. Plus he threw on the sidelines for the last three days and he had to run the bases, too. If he keeps pitching like that, there won't be any return trip to Tidewater."

Schulze, whose last major-league victory was June 21, 1986, was relieved with one out in the seventh by Roger McDowell, who allowed three hits, including Ozzie Virgil's 21st homer, in the final 2-3 innings.

Dykstra drove in two runs in the seventh inning with his eighth homer after driving in a pair of runs with a bases-loaded double in the second off Randy O'Neal, 4-2, who allowed five runs on four hits in 1-2-3 innings.

Schulze also was credited with the game-winning RBI when he walked with the bases loaded, breaking a 1-1 tie in the second. Dykstra followed with his two-run double, and a sacrifice fly by Wally Backman made it 5-1.

After Dykstra's homer made it 7-1 in the seventh, Gary Carter and Backman added RBI singles in the seventh and eighth.

Reds 10, Phillies 6
Cincinnati rallied from a 6-0 deficit for the fifth time this season and beat Philadelphia with four runs in the 11th inning.

Kurt Stillwell's double and a throwing error by right fielder Glenn Wilson allowed Nick Esasky to score from first base for the go-ahead run against Mike Jackson, 3-8. Eric Davis had a two-run double and Dave Concepcion an RBI single to complete the four-run inning.

Trailing 6-0 after six innings, the Reds got a two-run homer from Bo Diaz in the seventh and four more runs in the eighth to force extra innings. Davis, Dave Parker and Esasky had RBI singles in the eighth for the Reds, who were helped by a passed ball and a wild pitch in the inning.

Chris James, Juan Samuel and Mike Schmidt homered for the Phillies.

John Franco, 6-3, the fifth Reds' pitcher, worked two innings of hitless relief for the victory.

Expos 4, Astros 1
Montreal won its eighth straight game and handed Houston its ninth loss in 11 games as Dennis Martinez pitched a five-hitter and Mitch Webster hit a two-run homer. Martinez, 5-1, struck out four and walked two as he pitched his second complete game of the season. It was the eighth time in the last 11 games that the Astros failed to score more than two runs.

Jim Deshaies, 8-4, gave up eight hits in six innings as Houston lost its fourth straight game and for the ninth time in 11 outings.

Alan Ashby gave Houston a 1-0 lead with an RBI single in the fourth inning, but Martinez allowed only two hits in the last five innings.

The Expos took a 2-1 lead in their half of the fourth on RBI singles by Vance Law and Mike Fitzgerald and they added two more runs on Webster's homer in the fifth.

Pirates 7, Giants 6
Pittsburgh got three-run homers from Al Pedrique and Andy Van Slyke, offsetting three San Francisco homers and a two-run double in the ninth inning by Robby Thompson.

Mike LaValliere's RBI single off Mike LaCoss, 7-6, gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the first and Pedrique, who had five homers in nine minor-league seasons, hit his first major-league homer in the fourth. Van Slyke's homer made it 7-3 in the seventh.

Winning pitcher Brian Fisher, 5-6, allowed four hits, including homers by Will Clark and Jose Uribe, in seven innings.

Kevin Mitchell made it 7-4 with a homer for the Giants in the eighth and Thompson's double off Don Robinson with no outs in the ninth cut the deficit to one. A sacrifice by Uribe moved Thompson to third, but Robinson earned his 12th save when he struck out pinch-hitter Harry Spilman and retired Jeffrey Leonard on a groundout.

Padres 7, Cubs 4
Carmelo Martinez knocked in two runs and keyed a four-run seventh inning with an RBI single for San Diego against Chicago.

Bob Tewksbury was the loser in his first NL start after being traded by the New York Yankees to the Cubs. He allowed eight hits and five runs in six innings.

With Chicago leading 4-3, Frank DiPino relieved Tewksbury with two on and no outs in the seventh. DiPino tried to get Tim Flannery at third when Stan Jefferson bunted, but the throw was late, loading the bases.

Tony Gwynn's grounder scored Flannery, tying the score 4-4, and Martinez followed with his RBI single. John Kruk's suicide squeeze brought in another run and Randy Ready singled to make it 7-4.

The Cubs scored three runs in the sixth on a two-run homer by Rafael Palmeiro and an RBI single by Jerry Humphrey.

Andre Dawson of the Cubs, visiting the Padres for the first time since the two teams brawled and Dawson was hit in the face by a pitch in Chicago on July 7, was taunted by San Diego fans, who also hurled litter at him in the outfield.

Mattingly Ties Another Record

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

As soon as Don Mattingly stopped tying records with his bat, he started matching major-league marks with his glove.

Mattingly tied the record for putouts by a first baseman with 22 Monday night as Tommy John and the New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 7-1.

"Another record. Just what I need," Mattingly joked. "With two outs in the ninth, I saw it on the board and I couldn't believe it."

"I'm really not doing anything on those, just catching the ball," he said. "The credit goes to Tommy."

Mattingly's night, however, was not all good. He went 0-for-4 and ended his American League streak of extra-base hits in 10 straight games. Moreover, he aggravated an injury to his right wrist and "may have to miss a few games," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said.

On Saturday night, Mattingly tied a major-league record with a home run in his eighth straight game.

John, 9-3, pitched a seven-hitter in the matchup of AL division leaders at the Metrodome. It was his first complete-game victory since July 8, 1984.

In other AL games, Cleveland took Kansas City 9-5, Toronto beat Texas 5-3, Baltimore defeated Chicago 4-1, Detroit edged Oakland 5-4, Milwaukee bruised Seattle 13-11 and California got past Boston 3-2.

John walked one, struck out one and had Minnesota hitting groundballs, the way he usually wins. John won his 273rd major-league game and tied Red Ruffing for 24th place on the all-time list.

The Yankees are 15-3 in games that John has started this season and the left-handed pitcher is not amazed by his continued success as age 44.

"Not as surprised as you guys," he said. "I work hard at what I do. I've worked for 25 years to get here."

Minnesota's Kent Hrbek said John "just throws the ball over the plate for strikes. It's his game. He plays for the groundball." Mattingly got all three putouts in the ninth inning to tie the record that has been accomplished three times, the last by Ernie Banks in 1963.

"It was a total surprise to me," Mattingly said.

Mike Pagliarulo broke open a scoreless game with a two-run homer in the fifth off Les Straker, 5-6. Mark Salas, traded by Minnesota to the Yankees this season, hit a three-run homer in the seventh.

The Yankees maintained their three-game lead over Toronto while Minnesota stayed one game ahead of Oakland.

Indians 9, Royals 5
Brook Jacoby went 4-for-4 and Cleveland beat Bret Saberhagen and slumping Kansas City.

Saberhagen, 15-4, was tagged for six runs on 10 hits in 3 1-3 innings in his shortest outing of the season. The Royals have lost six straight games and 11 of their last 12.

Orioles 4, White Sox 1
Ken Gerhart hit a two-run single during a four-run fifth inning and Baltimore won its sixth straight game by winning in rainy Chicago.

The game was called in the top of the sixth. It had been delayed twice in the fifth for a total of 77 minutes.

Brewers 13, Mariners 11
Robin Yount and Glenn Braggs each drove home three runs as Milwaukee won a wild one against visiting Seattle.

The start of the game was delayed two hours, 38 minutes by rain, and it took 3:20 to play.

Tigers 5, Athletics 4
Pinch-runner Jim Walewander scored from first base during a collision in the Oakland outfield in the eighth inning, giving Detroit its victory at Tiger Stadium.

Bill Madlock opened the eighth with a single and was replaced by Walewander. With two outs, Darrell Evans hit a routine fly ball that either right fielder Mike Davis or center fielder Luis Polonia could have caught. But they bumped and the ball went off Davis' glove for an error that enabled Walewander to score easily.

Blue Jays 5, Rangers 3
Garth Iorg homered twice and doubled as Toronto beat Texas for the ninth time in 10 games this season.

Eyeing His Target

Kansas City Royal catcher Larry Owens keeps his eye on Cleveland Indian baserunner Cory Snyder as they run down the first base line together after Snyder hit a chopper in front of the plate that Owens fielded and threw to first for the put out. (AP Laserphoto)

Iorg's solo shots his were first home runs of the season. He led off the second inning with a homer and connected again in the fourth following a two-run homer by Fred McGriff.

John Cerutti, 6-2, gave up three runs on five hits in 6 2-3 innings. Tom Henke pitched the final two innings for his 19th save.

Charlie Hough, 10-6, took the loss. Larry Parrish homered for the host Rangers.

Angels 3, Red Sox 2
Devon White's infield single scored Brian Downing with the tiebreaking run in the eighth inning, leading California over Boston.

Downing led off the eighth with his third single and was sacrificed to second base. White hit a line drive that second baseman Ed Romero gloved but could not hold, and Downing scored.

Greg Minton, 3-0, got the victory and DeWayne Buice went the final two innings for his 10th save. Jeff Sellers, 3-3, was the loser.

Ruppert Jones hit a two-run double in the fifth that put the visiting Angels ahead. The Red Sox tied it in the sixth on a run-scoring grounder by Ed Romero and Wade Boggs' RBI triple.

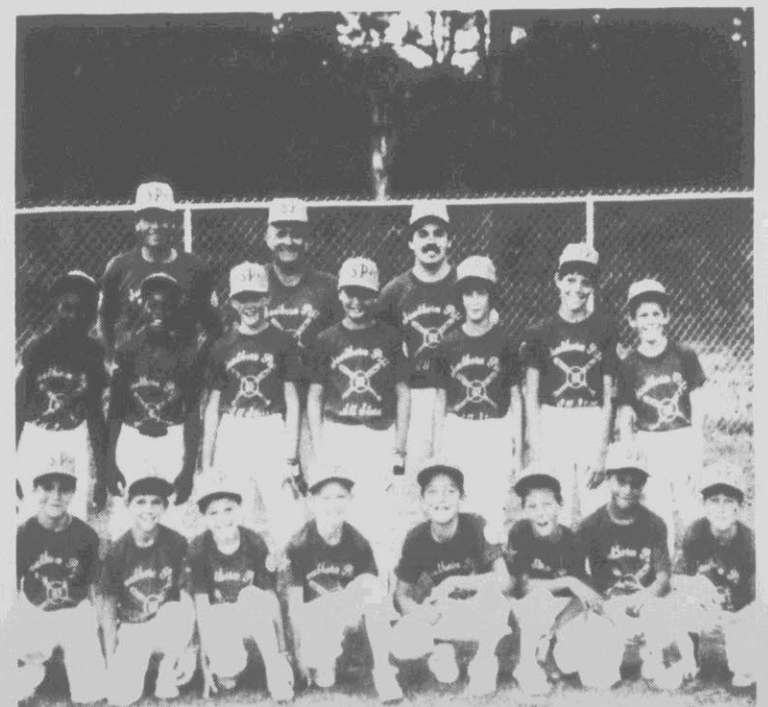

California starter Willie Fraser was forced from the game in the fourth when he was hit in the right hand by Boggs' line drive. Fraser suffered a bad bruise.

ECU Signee Wins Event

San Diego, Calif. — East Carolina golf recruit Francis Vaughn, from Hershey, Pa., won the Optimist Junior World Open last Friday by carding a three-under par 285 during the four day tourney.

The event, which is for boys 17 and under and attracts some of the best junior golfers in the world, was held at Torrie Pines in San Diego, the site of the San Diego-Andy Williams Open.

Going into the final round, Vaughn trailed Manuel Zerman of South Africa by one stroke but came back to shoot a 74 in adverse conditions and win over Zerman by two strokes. Past winners of the tourney are present PGA touring pros Craig Stadler and Jack Renner. Vaughn chose ECU over Clemson.

Making Do

Irwin "Mike" Cohen, a Los Angeles Secret Service official, displays some of the $16 million in bogus bills collected last year in California. Most counterfeiters are greedy souls who manufacture large amounts of money in large denominations. In the 1940s, however, widower Ed Mueller baffled the Secret Service by printing and passing only a few one-dollar bills a week for years. He wasn't greedy, he was just getting by on the 10 to 12 phony dollars he printed each week.

DO YOU KNOW — Whose face appears on the twenty-dollar bill?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Kudzu does not grow naturally in New England.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY July 21

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day of opportunities. Be ingenious in studying every possible angle of new projects before beginning. Gain support for these matters from an important person.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Consult experts and check all available data before making career decisions. Keep busy today—idle hands...

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Seek out ways of making your possessions more valuable. A little repair can go a long way. Be careful driving.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get together with a social group with evening and enjoy yourself, but be cautious of sips of the tongue.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): For best results, start at the top and get some action. Take a trip with your mate to an interesting place.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Make contact with a person whose lifestyle you admire. This person can be of immense assistance to you.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): More modern methods will be required to succeed in new interests. Leave entertainment decisions to your mate.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Plan that trip with an associate immediately. Delaying here could cause you much frustration and anger.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Be innovative at your job today. Don't accept your routines as unchangeable. Be creative and use your talents.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be very frugal and cautious in spending money today. An outing with your mate could be beneficial.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): A fine day to invite an individual to your home who is important to you. Your kin have much respect for this person.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Consult with an expert to make a talent of yours more successful. Be extremely cautious driving today.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): If you're entertaining this evening, spend more time attending to your guests. Consider the results of your actions.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, is in need of a fine academic education to be successful. An ability to combine speed with manual efficiency should be encouraged, but teach him or her to finish projects one at a time, since there is a tendency to jump from one thing to another.

Opening lead: Jack of ♦ Bridge can be a frustrating game. Imagine being dummy, spotting the winning line and knowing in your bones that partner will not! That was the recent experience of our Chairman of the Board, Richard L. Frey.

There are not many who would agree with South's choice of opening bid, and some who would think that Frey was a trifle pessimistic in venturing only to game. However, results were to prove that he would have been wiser to pass!

West led the jack of diamonds, won by the king as East dropped the queen. Frey saw the correct line immediately, and knew his partner did not have the skill to do so. His fears were quickly realized as declarer drew four rounds of trumps and then tried a diamond to the ace. When East showed out, declarer had no way to set up and run the diamonds, so he was held to 10 tricks.

Had declarer been in a slam, his play would have been correct. With only 11 tricks required, however, there was a safety play available.

Frey could see the winning line was to have ducked a diamond at trick two! True, that gives up all play for an overtrick, but it guarantees the contract against any distribution.

Suppose West wins, cashes the ace of spades and continues with a diamond. Declarer simply plays low from dummy, ruffs in his hand and draws the trumps. He can then get back to the table with the ace of hearts to cash the ace of diamonds, which establishes dummy's long cards in the suit to take care of any losers declarer might have. Indeed, the defenders must take their spade trick immediately to stop an overtrick.

Dee Wallace Stone Stars In CBS Show About AIDS

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dee Wallace Stone says of her AIDS special: "Everyone did it for the right reasons and you can tell it."
She portrays the mother of a 16-year-old high school student who learns he has been exposed to AIDS through a blood transfusion received after an accident three years before. "An Enemy Among Us" was originally made as a CBS Schoolbreak Special, to be shown in the afternoon, but CBS decided it deserved a wider audience.
The one-hour drama will be broadcast Tuesday night prior to "Miss Teen U.S.A." B. Donald Grant, president of CBS Entertainment, said he saw an opportunity to reach more people on a night with special appeal to teen-agers and their families.
"It was something we could do to help others rather than just sending money in," Stone said. "I was also attracted by the director, Arthur Allen Seidelman. He directed me in 'Sin of Innocence.' He directed Elizabeth Taylor in 'Poker Alice.' He didn't need to direct a Schoolbreak Special. He did it for the right reasons."
"It's a well-balanced piece about how AIDS affects people physically, emotionally, mentally. How it affects everyone — everyone — who has any connection to this boy who could develop AIDS. His parents, who feel helpless and angry. Angry toward the man who donated the blood, and angry toward their best friends who now shun their family. It deals with the boy's fears, his loss of his girlfriend."

"An Enemy Among Us" features Danny Nucci as Scott and Stephen Macht as the boy's father. Gladys Knight, in a rare television appearance, plays an immunologist who tells Scott's classmates how AIDS can and cannot be transmitted. The screenplay was written by Joseph Maurer, who was also the executive producer.
"I thought this was such a complete look at AIDS," Stone said. "I thought I knew a lot about the subject. But when I started coming from the character's point of view it became frightening. You look for hope, but there is no hope. She breaks down in fear and anger."
"Working on it gave you that joyous feeling you get when you know you've touched something real. In a way, it was like 'E.T.' That was to be just a little film. You don't know what it's going to be like until it takes form."
Stone, who also played the mother in "E.T. — The Extraterrestrial," recently completed a season on her first TV series. The first half of the season it was called "Together We Stand" and co-starred Elliott Gould. Gould left the show and it was retitled "Nothing Is Easy." CBS pulled the plug at the end of the season.

Stone was just back from Australia, where she starred in a movie for Walt Disney Productions called "Bushfire Moon." She was the only American in the movie, which was made for the Disney Channel.
"It's a Christmas picture. It's about a family living through a drought and difficult times in the 1890s. I play an American woman who met and married an Australian sheep farmer who came to San Francisco for the gold rush. My son in the film mistakes a villain for Santa Claus, and because of the child's faith the man turns around and becomes a better person."
She got the call to do the movie in Australia just as she and her husband, actor Christopher Stone, were planning a vacation in Hawaii with his family.
"I was hoping I wouldn't like the script," she said. "But the director was George Miller, who had done 'The Man From Snowy River' and 'All the Rivers Run,' both of which I loved. Fortunately, we were able to make a compromise. I went to Australia for 4½ weeks, then to Hawaii for 10 days, then back to Australia for four more days of work."
Stone, who grew up in Kansas, was named after her mother's favorite actress, Deanna Durbin. She went to the University of Kansas and taught school briefly before becoming an actress.
She and her husband met when they did guest roles on "CHiPs."
"We'd both turned down the roles three times," she said. "But it was meant to be. I walked on the set, saw Christopher and said, 'Oh, another Hollywood macho type.' But when I started working with him I found out how sensitive he is. That night when I got home I found two dozen roses waiting for me."

U.S. Citizenship

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Paul Anka was on hand as his daughter renounced her British citizenship and became a U.S. citizen, but he says he's keeping his Canadian citizenship.
"I'm very sensitive to the fact that my people are proud of me," Anka said Monday as his daughter Alicia, 16, swore allegiance to the United States in a ceremony before U.S. Magistrate Philip Pro. Anka attended with his wife, Anne.
Alicia Anka said she took U.S. citizenship because the United States is a "better" country.

Divorce Case Set For Trial

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Efforts to resolve the bitter divorce battle between "Dynasty" star Joan Collins and Peter Holm have broken down, and the financial tug-of-war is headed for trial, attorneys say.
Holm described the settlement offered by Miss Collins as "shoddy and disgusting."
"My input to Joan's life has been substantial. They seem to have the attitude I should be out on the street and be happy that I was with Joan for 13 months," he said Monday after 2½ hours of unsuccessful negotiations in a judge's chambers.
Holm, a former Swedish rock star, said he did not talk to Miss Collins, who portrays vixen Alexis Carrington on the prime-time TV soap opera, during the private session.
The case then was bound over for trial, to determine whether a prenuptial agreement was valid and to decide the issue of temporary spousal support. Holm is seeking $80,000 per month in payments from Miss Collins.
The meeting culminated recent events including Miss Collins, 54, retreating to Europe and Holm, 40, being evicted from one of the couple's former homes and picketing in protest at another.

Neither attorney would discuss a disputed prenuptial agreement that allegedly limited Holm to receiving 20 percent of the money Miss Collins made during their 13-month marriage, nor the $80,000 per month that Holm says he needs to sustain his accustomed style of life pending final settlement.
Miss Collins' attorney, celebrity divorce lawyer Marvin Mitchelson, has said that Holm received $1.3 million and up to $800,000 in expenses during the marriage.
Mitchelson said that Miss Collins repeatedly told Holm she would never marry him unless he first agreed to limit the amount he could claim if the couple divorced.
"Yes, he got some money, but he doesn't have it any more," replied Holm's attorney, Frank Steinschreiber, who maintains the prenuptial agreement is invalid. "I think the facts indicate he is entitled to a fair property settlement in the state of California, and she is denying that."
Holm and Miss Collins were married in Las Vegas, Nev., in November 1985. Miss Collins filed for divorce in December 1986. It was her fourth marriage and Holm's first.

'H' Is Back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City crews put the "H" back in "HOLLYWOOD" after pranksters changed the famed sign to read "OLLYWOOD" in deference to Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North of Iran-Contra fame.
The pranksters, who called themselves "environmental sculptors," altered the sign Monday by placing a piece of black plastic over the "H." Several hours later, city crews restored it to its original condition.
The group described its alterations in a telephone call to The Associated Press. The caller refused to identify himself or fellow "artists."
"We are not condoning Oliver North's actions. What he did was in direct opposition to Congress," said a statement from the group. "The American public has embraced him as a hero, and as environmental sculptors, we are simply reflecting the public's sentiment."
North gained national prominence during his testimony before Congress in which he told House and Senate lawmakers and investigators how profits from arms sales to Iran were diverted to Nicaraguan rebels known as Contras.
The pranksters claimed they were also responsible for changing the sign in recent years to read "HOLLYWOOD" on Easter Sunday and to "HOLLYWEED" after marijuana possession laws were reduced.
