Secretary Says Minesweeping Will Improve

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press Writer

KUWAIT (AP) — U.S. Coast Guard officials have flown to Kuwait to determine if a Kuwaiti supertanker damaged by a mine while under American escort can be partly loaded with oil, maritime sources said today.

Asked today when a decision would be made about the seaworthiness of the 401,386-ton Bridgeton for a return journey through the Persian Gulf, one source said, "We hope today."

Shipping and maritime sources said Sunday that the Bridgeton sustained more damage than originally thought.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday that the Navy would improve minesweeping in the gulf following Friday's blast that tore a hole in the Bridgeton. He did not say how.

The battleship Missouri left Long Beach, Calif., reportedly to join the Navy contingent in the Persian Gulf. Meanwhile, the French notified crews of an aircraft carrier and three support ships Sunday that they might sail for the Middle East with 24 hours because of events in Lebanon and the gulf.

Iran's Parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, was quoted today as saying that if Iraq attacked Iranian shipping or offshore oil facilities, his nation

Improved Service Key Feature Of New Fire-Rescue Facility

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Fire/Rescue Department will be able to provide citizens with better and quicker service from it's new $500,000 fire/rescue station which opened today, Fire Chief Jenness Allen said.

Allen said the new location on the southwest corner of Red Banks Road and Charles Boulevard, should alleviate response delays connected with railroad crossings.

"For one thing, we can get on other side of railroad tracks to some of the areas we're serving," he said. "We'll be able to get in with better service to the areas in the back of the Lynndale subdivision.

"We're just in a better overall central location than we were."

The new station will serve the area protected by the Gardner station on Brownlea Drive it replaces, according to fire officials, who said personnel and equipment was to be moved from the Brownlea Drive station to the new facility today.

Fire/rescue personnel will also be able to serve areas projected for annexation by the city of Greenville and the nearby mall, Allen said.

"We anticipate taking in Brook Valley and Azalea Mobile Homes, and we'll be on the right side of tracks for that also," he said. "We'll also have better access to The Plaza to protect that area."

The new Greenville Fire/Rescue Station No. 3 is equipped with three truck bays and one bay for a rescue vehicle.

Other features of the new station include a meeting room, a kitchen and an employee's lounge area. Sleeping facilities will be available for 10 fire/rescue shift personnel.

Emergency vehicles will exit from the station onto Charles Street and will re-enter the station property via an entrance on Red Banks Road.

The cost of construction was estimated at $480,000. Work on the new facility began in September 1986.

Fire officials said the new facility provides better road access and more room for equipment and personnel.

Soviets Execute Fedor Fedorenko

MOSCOW (AP) — Fedor Fedorenko, the first suspected Nazi war criminal extradited to the Soviet Union by the United States, has been executed, the official news agency Tass announced today.

Fedorenko, 80, was found guilty in June of treason, voluntarily joining the Nazi side in World War II, and participating in the mass murder of foreign citizens.

"The death sentence passed in June 1986 by the Crimean Regional Court on the Nazi war criminal, SS-man Fedor Fedorenko, who was deported to the U.S.S.R. from the United States in 1984, has been carried out," Tass said.

Tass did not say when Fedorenko, who had served as a guard at the Treblinka death camp in Poland in 1942 and 1943, had been executed. Execution in the Soviet Union is by firing squad.

Fedorenko was deported from the United States to the Soviet Union in December 1984 after losing a seven-year battle to remain in the United States.

He emigrated to the United States in 1949, and was a factory worker in Connecticut for many years. He had received U.S. citizenship in 1970.

Tass said his name was one of 150 on a list of suspected war criminals provided to the United States in the past 10 years.

The United States stripped him of citizenship in 1981 after the lengthy legal battle, and he was deported three years later.

"Fedorenko personally took part in executions, drove people into gas chambers," Tass said. "This command with Fedorenko's participation destroyed at least 800,000 people."

At his trial, Fedorenko did not deny he had worked at Treblinka, but said he did not participate in any killings.

The Soviet Union said Fedorenko went over to the Nazis within two weeks of the start of their assault on the Soviet Union in June 1941, and that he received special training to become a guard at Treblinka.

He received two promotions while he served at Treblinka, and the Soviet judge at his trial said he took that to mean that he had willingly served the Nazis.

Thunderstorms Help Ease Oppresive Heat In East

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

A cold front breezing down the East Coast today brought punishing storms but relief from 90-degree temperatures in the Northeast, while the heat wave entered its second week in the South and the Midwest.

At least 12 deaths in five states have been blamed on the heat.

Where the heat broke, the effect was fierce, with thunderstorms assaulting areas from Cincinnati to northern New Jersey, destroying the roofs of a motel and a supermarket, downing trees and power lines and capsizing more than a dozen boats in the Atlantic Ocean.

In New York City, after 10 days in the 90s, the temperature plummeted from 86 degrees at noon Sunday to 69 at 1 p.m. during a thunderstorm, then rose to 79.

Relief came from a cold front moving south from Canada. Areas north of the front, which could extend as far south as Virginia today, enjoyed cooler air and clear skies.

Highs were forecast in the 70s and 80s from New England across the Great Lakes to northern Minnesota.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast today from southern Minnesota across parts of the Ohio Valley into the Carolinas and Georgia, but the rain was only expected to cut into the heat slightly. A high of 95 degrees was forecast today in Columbia, S.C., down from 100 Sunday.

"It's still going to be hot for a few days in the middle of the country," Lyle Alexander, a meterologist at the National Weather Service, said today.

On Sunday, more than a dozen states had 100-dgree readings.

Palm Springs, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz., had 111 degrees. It was 104 in Boise, Idaho, and 100 in Chattanooga, Tenn. Peoria, Ill., had its first 100-degree day since 1983 after 24 days this month with highs in the 90s.

Denver's high of 95 Sunday was the ninth consecutive 90-degree day. Beckley, W.Va., had its sixth day in a row of record highs, with a reading of 88.

"They are at a high elevation," Alexander said. "For them that's pretty warm."

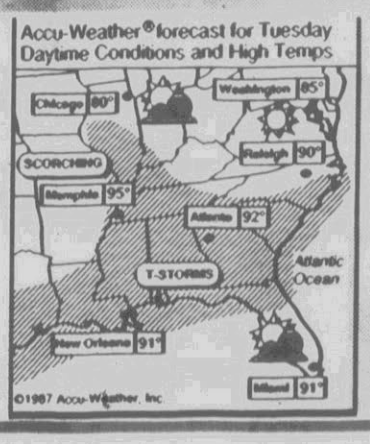

In Louisville, Ky., where the high was 85, an 85-year-old woman was found dead inside her home, and Jefferson County Deputy Coroner Sue Wurst said the death appeared heat-related.

The cold front's leading edge clashed with high pressure over the Southeast to cause Sunday's storms.

General Strike Under Way In Panama City

By ALINA GUERRERO
Associated Press Writer

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Nearly all business, commerce and transportation shut down today in the capital at the outset of a 48-hour genral strike to protest military control of the government.

Extra police patrols were visible throughout the city.

Three opposition newspapers were prevented from publishing after soldiers carrying submachine guns burst into their offices Sunday night and ordered them closed.

An attack also was reported shortly after dawn on the house of the retired colonel whose accusations against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, the military strongman here, first triggered the unrest seven weeks ago.

Ricardo Arias Calderon, head of the opposition Christian Democratic Party, and a neighbor of retired Col. Roberto Diaz Herrera, said government troops fired on the walled in compound in a siege that lasted for more than an hour.

Arias Calderon said neighbors first heard shots from submachine guns, then two or three helicopters dropped tear gas bombs. No further details were available and troops blocked access to the neighborhood.

Soldiers carrying submachine guns burst into the offices of three opposition newspapers on the eve of a planned general, strike and ordered the publications closed, employees of two of the papers said.

Antics Draw TV Guest Spots

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Teachers who spell words alphabetically, dogs that climb trees and hollerin' champions are just some of the residents of North Carolina and South Carolina who have been popular guests on television talk and news shows.

"They probably think we're a little backward, but they like it," said David Godbold, a Darlington, S.C., promoter guiding Barney Odom's newfound stardom of having his pit bull terrier climb a tree. "They get intrigued by the language — a rural language — and their humor, their honesty. A stockbroker in a gray suit won't appeal and is not going to make it. These people do; they are real and down-home."

Not only are they down home, but Southerners aren't embarrassed by doing odd things, says the talent coordinator for "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson."

Over the past year, Carolinians with zany television antics have appeared on Carson's NBC show, CBS's "West 57th," ABC's "Good Morning America" and NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman."

"I find that the Southern tier has more folklore and a more richness for these kinds of people and they're not embarrassed by what they do, even though they think it may be odd," Darcy Hettrich, "Tonight Show" talent coordinator, told The Charlotte Observer.

YORK MEMORIAL HISTORY?

Dennison Garrett is appealing for information about the history of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church. He is especially interested in talking to older people who remember things about the church's role in the community since its founding well before the turn of the century.

The church was located on Albemarle Avenue for many years. Garrett and others are interested in restoring that building. Prior to the 1920's it was reportedly located on First Street in a building that has since been demolished, he said.

Anyone who can help is asked to call Garrett, 551-4554 or 830-1411.

State Coming Up Short On Beach Access Points

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin has asked the General Assembly to provide $2 million over the next two years for a state beach program that includes public access points, but officials say that's not nearly enough to do the job.

The state usually gets applications asking for two to three times the amount of money available, said David Owens, director of the N.C. Coastal Management Division, which administers the program. Noting that beachfront property prices can drive up the costs of major projects to $500,000, he said, "We could spend our entire $2 million on Bogue Banks and only make a dent."

Since the program began in 1981, the state has spent $1.7 million of its own and $575,000 in federal grants labeling 560 dune crosswalks, constructing 100 small parking areas and a dozen larger parking areas with showers and restrooms.

"We're well behind," Owens told The News and Observer of Raleigh. "We started considerably behind and we've caught up a great deal, but we've got a long way to go."

The request from Martin, who had previously recommended that the program's funding be drastically reduced, is pending in the General Assembly. But even if the money were available, some towns, usually wealthy retirement communities with little use for tourist dollars, do not want to cooperate.

One of those towns is Pine Knoll Shores, on Bogue Banks near Atlantic Beach. It has 4½ miles of coastline, but no public access points.

"The general will of the people is that they don't want it," said Mayor Kenneth A. Hanan, who retired to Pine Knoll Shores from Chatham, N.J. "This is a planned community, a retirement area. A lot of people worked hard for their lives to have a year-round home here."

Thus, although North Carolina's 320-mile coastline belongs in theory to all of its residents, in reality there are long stretches of beaches that stay virtually empty because they are inaccessible.

Last week, the Coastal Resources Commission, a state board that oversees beach access, held a public hearing to consider making its goals for beach access more ambitious. It wants dune crossovers in the middle of every developed beach, a 10-space parking lot between blocks and a 40-to-80-car lot every four miles.

But Owens said the state won't reach those goals for a long time.

"It would take us 10 to 20 years, under most optimistic projections, to reach those levels," he said.

Under the state program, coastal towns apply for grants administered by the Coastal Management Division. The money, often matched by a lesser contribution from the town or county seeking the grant, is then spent on dune crosswalks. parking lots or bathhouses with restrooms and showers.

Residents Fear Herbicides

PITTSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The director of an environmental group says it's not unusual that a dangerous herbicide was sprayed five years ago on a small community south of Pittsboro in Chatham County. What is unusual, he says, is that the residents fought back.

"The Gargus case is typical of the way pesticides are misused and misadministered in the country and in North Carolina," Allen Spalt, director of the Agricultural Resources Center, a non-profit environmental organization in Carrboro that lobbies for changes in the use of pesticides and herbicides, told the Greensboro News & Record.

"What's extraordinary about the Gargus incident is not that people were damaged, but that there is a group of people that have persisted in trying to find answers to their situation," he added.

In January, the incident was a focal point of hearings before a legislative committee studying transfer control of the state Pesticide Board from the Agriculture Department.

Earlier this month, the Chatham County commissioners adopted a resolution calling for outlawing some pesticides and tightening spraying regulations in North Carolina. And later this summer, General Assembly action is expected on a bill — partially inspired by the incident — that would establish a state committee to study pest controls.

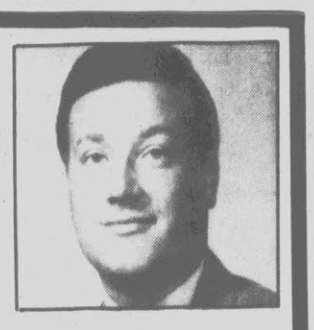

It was June 20, 1982, when residents of Gargus, a low-income, black community of about 60 people, say a herbicide spray intended for a nearby pine-tree plantation killed their gardens. Residents say the spray was poisonous Agent White, a defoliant used in Vietnam and made by combining picloram and 2,4-D.

Results of a study by a graduate student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill showed an apparent correlation between the Gargus health problems and the herbicide exposure.

Paige Tolbert, working for the Division of Health Services, interviewed 85 Gargus residents and 159 residents of a neighboring community that was not exposed to the chemicals.

The study found eight symptoms — coughs, breathing difficulty, sinus congestion, runny nose, swollen glands, wheezing, dizziness and scaling, peeling skin — were "highly elevated" among the Gargus group, in some cases 13 times more common than in the unaffected group.

DON'T HIDE SMILE -- BOND IT

If you find yourself automatically suppressing your smile to hide a chipped front tooth or a space between your teeth, you'll be delighted to know that help is readily available, less expensive, and often faster than it was in the past. When your considerations are aesthetic, your dentist can do more than clean your teeth.

Indeed, improving your smile no longer automatically means extensive dental treatment with crowns or caps placed on your front teeth.

The smile-saving developments in aesthetic dentistry rely on modern plastics or "composite resin materials" and a technique popularly known as "bonding." Teeth that are chipped, cracked or severely discolored can be filled in or painted over with a color-matched material that makes teeth look as good as new.

Today, acid-etching, as "bonding" is scientifically known, is quick, painless, reversible, and rarely requires anesthesia. Four front teeth could normally be treated in a single visit. Less chair-time means less cost for you.

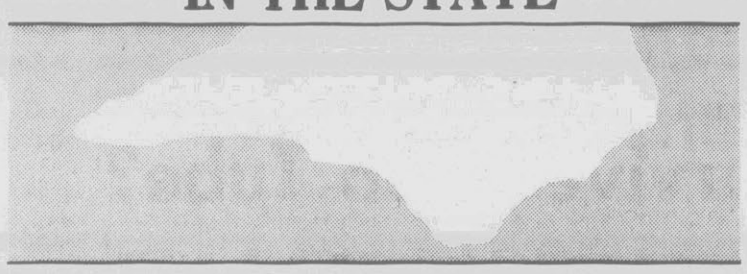

Call our office today for an appointment. Bonding can really improve your smile.

Note: We invite all participants of the Blue Cross/Blue Shield personal care plan to come by our office. We are a member of Cost Care.

IN THE STATE

Prominent Role

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Blacks could ultimately decide the Democratic Party's next presidential ticket even if they aren't on the ballot themselves, said former U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm.

"In other words, the blacks in America now have gotten to the point that even if they can't achieve an office because of racism, at least they can decide which whites will get the office. It's become a very important swing political vote in this country, particularly in the South," she said.

But she said women or blacks, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who expect to win the presidency are being unrealistic

"No candidacy in the United States, I'd dare say, is realistic unless it's a white male," Chisholm said. "But ... the fact of the matter is that, although the country is not yet ready for a woman for president or a black for president for that matter, the fact is that Jesse Jackson could possibly become the most important power-broker at the Democratic convention. I can see that happening."

Important Aide

RALEIGH (AP) — Republicans give him rave reviews, while some Democrats charge he was put on the public payroll to run Gov. Jim Martin's re-election campaign. But no one disputes Phil Kirk's importance to Martin.

Cabinet members, legislators and GOP activists who want action or the governor's ear telephone Kirk. He gets about 50 such calls a day.

"He's a good conduit to the governor," says Rep. Johnathan Rhyne, R-Lincoln. "When he listens to you, you know your message will get back to the governor."

"He has a way of handling the hot potatoes for the governor," Sen. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus, told The Charlotte Observer. "The governor knows he can leave town, and, whatever comes up, Phil can handle it."

'Save Lives'

CHARLOTTE (AP) — With the incidence of cancer up 27 percent among blacks in the last two decades, a North Carolina service organization plans to launch a statewide "Save Lives" education program in conjunction with the American Cancer Society, its leader said.

Cancer incidence among whites has risen 12 percent during the 20 years, but among blacks it is up nearly three times, statistics show.

"We will train volunteers at the district level in each of our 26 districts in North Carolina," said William Clement of Durham, the leader of the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Masonic Grand Lodge of North Carolina.

Clement said the "Save Lives" program will train Prince Hall members to give presentations to the public on cancer prevention and early detection by self-examination. The presentations also will promote regular examinations by medical professionals.

Lightning Strikes

HIGH POINT (AP) — Although North Carolina traditionally ranks among the top states in the number of people struck by lightning each year, the father of one of three teen-agers struck last week said hospital officials told him it is unusual in Davidson County.

Chad Carrick, 16, was one of three Davidson County teen-agers struck by lightning about 6:30 p.m. Thursday. The other two, Scotty Tester, 19, and Nicky Tester, 14, were killed on an island in High Rock Lake, where they and their parents had sought shelter from a severe thunderstorm.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Out In Space

Astronaut Sally Ride is obviously one to whom goals are important. Especially so, when it comes to initiatives for keeping the national space program alive and well. The astrophysicist is leaving the National Aeronautics and Space Administration soon to return to Stanford University and one of her final roles for NASA was to head an 11-month study of goals the United States might pursue in space after it gets the space station operating in the mid-1990s.

She unveiled results of the study last week before a House space science subcommittee. Next month she will present the study to NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher.

It is not just coincidental her study rather closely follows a "vision" put forward by the National Commission on Space. That commission last year laid out an ambitious future in space for U.S. in the next 50 years, including exploration of the solar system and establishing a colony on Mars. The study Ms. Ride headed up is more modestly designed, with exploration of the planet as the final option.

The Ride design involves first a study of planet Earth to determine how different forces affect and shape its environment. It would involve five platforms high above Earth. Three would be supplied by the United States, one by the European Space Agency, one by Japan; all would be assembled aboard the space station.

That would be followed by a robotic exploration of the solar system and an outpost on the moon with facilities to determine possible extraction of oxygen from lunar soil. The next step might involve exploration of Mars in the early 21st century with the possibility of establishing a human outpost there.

By involving Japan and the European agency one can visualize erasing of a competitive element which holds risks of runaway spending and rivalries.

If mankind is destined to reach outward in the solar system it seems logical to build on the foundation of experience, knowledge and hardware developed in the years since Sputnik 1 startled the world.

Ms. Ride did not indicate which goals she favored in her testimony before the House group; cost estimates, too, were omitted. As for the latter, it's just as well. Most cost estimates usually fall far short of reality and reality is part of her business.

Other generations may chart other desired steps; meanwhile the country has yet to recover from the enervating shock that came with the Challenger tragedy. We have been mostly marking time ever since.

Continuing Slide

We've wondered about the United States' somewhat spotty record in the field of agricultural exports.

Over the recent years it has become pretty plain we can export a lot of grain and other farm commodities if it's a giveaway or the pricing system favors the recipient; but not even well-subsidized sales appear to make a lot of difference.

U.S. trade figures with Eastern Europe last year included large subsidized wheat sales. Those sales have simply continued to dwindle to a fraction of what they were a decade ago.

Last year U.S. farm exports to Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia totaled $432.7 million, down from $479.1 million the year before.

That left a U.S. agricultural trade balance of $128.1 million last year ... down from $215.8 million in 1985.

Last year's 10 percent drop in the value of agricultural exports to Eastern Europe would have been even greater if it hadn't been for subsidized wheat sales.

The Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service says recent lifting of sanctions against Poland is not going to have an early impact. The poor quality of Polish goods and Poland's financial difficulties are expected to prevent any significant increase in trade; and Western lenders do not regard Poland as a very good credit risk at present.

American imports of agricultural products from those countries in 1986 stood at $304.6 million, the highest value since 1980. Canned meat imports alone rose 17 percent last year to $186 million; tobacco, rose to $46 million from $44 million; canned vegetables, 14 million from $7 million; and fresh and canned fruit, $11 million from $7 million.

Those communist-ruled countries seem to display an inordinate amount of marketing talent when compared with our free enterprise people.

It comes as no surprise that a continuing slide in our exports to the east European countries is expected.

Can Body Politic Survive Boob Tube?

Once again in the Iran-Contra hearings, as in those of Watergate, we are witnessing the power of television to turn important current events into an enthralling immediate experience for scores of millions of Americans.

We see the medium's power to inform in vividly impactive ways the individual minds that become, collectively, the American public mind, and to arouse strong emotions pro and con the actors in public affairs.

But surely this demonstration is also a test of the capacity of individual American minds, hence of the general public mind, to deal in rationally judgmental ways with information obtained in this wayv — obtained, that is, through dramatic audio-visual experience. And in my opinion, confirmed for me by the current popular adulation of Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, this test is not being met in ways auspicious for our democracy.

Indeed, the popular response to these hearings in general thus far seems to me further evidence that today's average American woefully lacks the factual information needed for thinking in context about public affairs — is woefully ignorant of history, geography, economics, elementary science, ethical theory, the Constitution and the operations of our government.

Truly, to understand these Iran-Contra hearings one must have at least a modicum of relevant general information. How and why the Shah of Iran ascended to the throne and the circumstances of his fall; the rebellion led by Augustin Sandino against a Nicaraguan government sustained by U.S. Marines; the long, cruel, corrupt and U.S.-supported rule of dictator Anastasio Somoza in Nicaragua; the U.S. support of a series of right-wing dictatorships in Cuba until the last of them, Fulgencio Batista's, was overthrown by Fidel Castro; the spread of Marxism and Soviet influence in Central America and the nature of the threat that this poses to our national security; how the Contras came to be, who they are and the kind of war they wage; the nature of the Sandinista government; the decisive role of a profit-motivated military-industrial complex in the making and implementation of foreign policy.

Of these things one must have at least some knowledge in order to judge accurately, in the interests of democracy, the patriotic deeds and lectures to Congress of Col. North.

Alas, practically none of it seems possessed by my good friends in my New England village — and they are considerably better educated than most of us.

Even about the factual information that we Americans do have in mind, most of us seem unable to think very well. We as a people seem not to recognize that truth-telling by public officials is absolutely indispensable to the functioning of free societies, for we give it a lower priority than "national security" as defined (or asserted) by North and company — a subordination of the essential to the adventitious that defies all logic.

If aware that consistency is the test of the truth of ideas (including under "idea" statements of alleged fact), we give few signs of applying the test to the hearings testimony.

Ronald Reagan is passionately committed to the Contras. Is it consistent with this known fact that he manifest no curiosity about the source and amount of money going to the Contras?

William J. Casey was one of Reagan's closest friends. Is it consistent with this known fact that he never told of his Contra-aiding enterprise during his frequent intimate conversations with the president?

Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter has long been famous in Washington for his "photographic memory." Is it consistent with this known fact that he would forget key memoranda submitted to him by North for the approval of the president? Like North, Poindexter is very much a chain-of-command operator whose primary loyalty is to his commander-in-chief. Is it consistent with this known fact that he would take it upon himself to divert Iran-sale funds to the Contras without informing his commander-in-chief? Is it not more likely, in view of the known facts about him and Reagan, that he conspired with the president to ensure the latter's "deniability" in the matter?

These are the kinds of questions that must be asked, I think, in order to judge the validity of the hearings testimony. Indeed, Secretary of State George P. Shultz in his appearance before the committee has probably awakened many to the possibility that something serious was going on. But most of us will still be inclined to simply react to the "favorable" or "unfavorable" look and sound of those who sit before the TV cameras. We thus become suckers for the con men, the insubstantial image-makers who, skilled in the making of "good impressions" on TV, abound on the current political scene. Especially are we suckers for such as Ollie North, a man who by his own self-protective and glorifying testimony is a remarkably proficient liar but who, disarmingly boyish in appearance and with a husky voice that throbs with patriotic passion, looks and sounds oh so sincere.

Which brings me to a general question, long disturbing to me but given added urgency by these hearings — the question of TV's overall effect on the quality of America's mental life, and especially on the portion of this life that is devoted to public affairs.

Do we Americans now make better choices of public officials and wiser decisions about public affairs than we did before TV became the dominant mass-communications medium? I think the contrary is true.

The medium itself, in sharp difference from the print media, seems to me far more conducive of fast emotional reactions than it is of reflective thought or logical analysis — and in the hands of businessmen whose overriding concern is the selling of material things for their own private profit.

Of course, if this enormously powerful communications technology were exclusively in the hands of dedicated professional communicators — men and women committed to their profession as a painter is to art, a good teacher to teaching, a scientist to science — the story would be different. TV's effect on our society might then become wholly beneficent. But at the moment there is no sign that this will ever happen.

Popular Doesn't Always Mean Wise

RALEIGH — On its face, a bill to help veterans get state jobs would appear to be as non-controversial as motherhood.

But when that bill came before the Senate State Personnel Committee in May, it ran into anything but an apple pie reception. The bill went to a subcommittee, was rewritten four or five times, and then had to weather a full hour of questions before being approved by the committee last week.

The original bill, House bill 1133, could have been a legal and bureaucratic nightmare. As Sen. Bill Staton, D-Lee, noted, that House bill "would leave us open to a lawsuit every time a vet did, or did not, get a job." Numerical ranking systems have proven to be a boon to litigation. They also put bureaucrats to work designing separate numerical rankings for each state job.

The bill was rewritten, and the rankings removed. It accepts job-related experience earned in the military now, and allows those veterans who meet minimum qualifications for a job to count additional unrelated experience.

The first provision created little, if any, discussion. It makes sense that a vet should be credited for related experience from the military, just as a civilian is credited for related civilian experience.

But the second provision was controversial. It says that once a veteran has met the basic qualifications for a job, he or she will be credited with up to four additional years of experience, whether or not it is related to the open job.

Let's take an example. The state needs a computer repairman with two years experience. A vet who repaired Navy computers for two years applies. The first provision of the bill says his experience counts. The second provision says that he also gets credit for the four years he spent in the Navy working as a gunner. So he now has, for application purposes, six yers of computer repair experience.

Butch Gunnels, lobbyist for the State Employees Association of North Carolina, questioned if it was wise to give such a tremendous advantage to any one group. The bill could lead, he said, to the rejection of many qualified state job candidates just because they aren't vets.

The bill is based on a belief that veterans have trouble getting state jobs. Although 21.3 percent of the state workforce has military experience, only 13 percent of state jobs are held by veterans.

Gunnels noted, however, that the big majority of state jobs are more attractive to women than men and that most veterans are men. But he admitted that there may be problems in some agencies. Gunnels said it made sense to him that only 12 percent of the Department of Human Resources workforce had mlitary experience. What did not make sense, he said, was that only 33 percent of the Department of Correction workforce had that experience. Military training, he said, would appear to be ideal of DOC service.

Gunnels also criticized the lack of goal-setting with the bill. "What is the target you're seeking?" he asked the committee. The bill does not set a level of veteran employment which the state seeks to attain. A new program is being established in the State Personnel Office with no specific goals.

So the state will not embark on a policy of veterans' preference in hiring, but without any goals or targets in sight, and without any clear idea of the ramifications it will have on non-veteran applicants.

Looks like another instance of the legislature being stampeded into something that is politically popular, but not necessarily wise state policy.

Strength For Today

Rudyard Kipling, the great English poet, by a narrow margin missed being nominated poet laureate of England. At the request of the court he wrote a poem for Queen Victoria's Jubilee titled "Recessional." But in it he made no reference to the Queen. So when the poet laureate was appointed, Kipling was passed over and a second rate poet was chosen instead.

The Recessional is a great poem because it proclaims that nations disintegrate when the character of the people is corrupted.

Across the pages of history is written the dismal story of how almost every generation has crucified, hanged, beheaded, burned or in some other way persecuted its deliverers.

"Lest we forget!" This is a mighty warning written on the wall.

The New 'Blame America First' Crowd' Is Going Strong

Analysis

At the 1984 Republican Convention in Dallas, Jeane Kirkpatrick elated the crowd and dazzled the television audience with her repeated references to the "San Francisco Democrats," those liberals who blamed America for everything from Vietnam to athletes' foot.

Kirkpatrick's catchy phrase and rhetorical flair struck a resonant chord, and not just among rigid ideological conservatives. To many Southern moderates and others for whom patriotism, love of country and reverence of our governing institutions are basic premises, the very notion of Americans going beyond disagreement with policies to criticize the basis of governing in America was going too far. While Kirkpatrick did not originate the charge, her speech proved a catalyst for the Republican Party, and an albatross for the Democrats.

That was 1984.

This is 1987, and now we have a new group of Blame America First-ers. Ironically, they include many of the same conservatives who crowed at the blasphemy of the San Francisco Democrats three years ago. Whether it is the deadlock over the deficit or the fallout from the Iran-Contra hearings, conservatives are attacking the basic structure and operation of the American system of government — with a particular focus of animosity on that most basic and American of our institutions, Congress — the first branch of government.

Lt. Col. Oliver North is the most recent recruit to the Blame America First Club:

"Our adversaries laugh at us and our friends recoil in horror," he told the congressional Iran-Contra committee and the America public a week ago. "The Congress of the United States left soldiers in the field unsupported and vulnerable to their communist enemies. . .you then held this investigation to blame the problem on the executive branch."

Or, here is staunch conservative economist Paul Craig Roberts:

"Instead of looking to Congress for leadership, people increasingly view it as a barrier to the success of the country;" "Reporters who don't report straight and congressmen who can't think straight are the ones who are on trial. The United States no longer stands astride the world like a colossus and cannot afford the pretense that the only enemies the country has are conservatives in the White House"; "Congress has made it all too clear that it is interested in nothing but politics... organized vote-buying"; "Contragate is a case of the Congress protecting an enemy government in order to strike at an American president."

Or consider these comments in Newsweek from Pat Buchanan, the chief spokesman of the Blame America First conservatives and the equivalent on the right of Jane Fonda in the days when she visited Hanoi and heaped the blame for the world's problems on America's doorstep:

Congress is guilty of "complicity in permitting the enemies of the United States to consolidate a military beachhead on the mainland of North America." The Boland amendment, duly passed by Congress and accepted by the president, he said in The Washington Post last week, "merited contempt" as it "was rooted in the same malevolence that motivated an earlier Congress to disarm and desert to its communist enemies a South Vietnamese army that had fought for seven years alongside our own."

Congress isn't the only all-American institution that merits Buchanan's contempt. In what passes with Buchanan as a respectful paean to the loyal opposition, he describes the liberal wing of the Democratic Party as "the silent partner — the indispensable ally — of revolutionary communism in the Third World... . It wants the other side to win."

In The Post, he elaborated on this theme, saying, "the dominant wing of the Democratic Party... has passively collaborated with Moscow and Managua."

Jeane Kirkpatrick criticized the San Francisco Democrats for blaming America for every injustice around the world, from apartheid in South Africa to poverty in Bangladesh. The new BAF conservatives don't blame America for these sad realities — instead they blame America for the spread of communism to South Vietnam and Central America and the maintenance of communism in Mozambique and Angola, among other places.

The old liberal Blame-America-First crowd had contempt for the rule of law in American society, typified perhaps by the 1971 May Day demonstration in Washington which its organizers said was intended to shut down the federal government. May Day featured violent incidents and epithets hurled at law enforcement officials.

The new crowd has equal, if different contempt for the process of government and the rule of law. Buchanan writes about the incident where "even as Justice Department lawyers were seizing documents in one room, (North) was shredding documents in the next;" Buchanan calls it not a contemptuous act of defiance against law enforcement officials but "a brave and beautiful thing."

In the Vietnam era, BAF liberals urged open defiance of the law if it didn't fit their goals. Now BAF conservative High Priest Buchanan suggests that the president should openly defy the law if Congress refuses to give him everything he wants for the Contras and dare lawmakers to impeach him.

This last suggestion by Buchanan frames the first premise of the BAF conservative critique of America: an utter disdain for Congress as the root of all evil in American politics and policy. Conservative columnist Raymond Price indignantly refers to congressional "sapper squads" who presumably infiltrate and destroy American policy from within.

A Lever In The Gulf

WASHINGTON — Two events, the new United Nations resolution on the Iran-Iraq war and the American reflagging operation, are combining unexpectedly to produce a glimmer of respite in the Persian Gulf.

The resolution had been widely seen as a lever to press Iran, which, in this stage of the war, is clearly the aggressor and poses demands — the ouster of Iraq's leader — that could be accepted only by a country on its knees. No one thinks Iran will return to reason while Ayatollah Khomeini stays in command. But sponsors of the resolution hope that, once Iran rejects it, an arms embargo can be organized that would at least dull the edge Iran now enjoys in the main arena of combat, the land war.

In the first instance, however, the resolution is becoming a lever to press Iraq indirectly to accept something approaching a cease-fire in the "tanker war," the arena of combat that is small potatoes militarily to Iran and Iraq but is of conspicuous and immediate political interest to the United States and other third parties because of the great anxieties arising from the tanker war and especially the reflagging.

Meanwhile, a little debate seems to be going on over whether the best available way to treat the war is through pursuit of a general settlement, which is what the U.N. resolution points to, or through an effort to break off smaller military or political pieces in a Gulf variant of "step by step" diplomacy, which is where a cease-fire or slowdown in the tanker war fits in.

Passage of the resolution has given the American government, its chief sponsor, the standing that it needed to push forward with the negotiating program called for by the U.N. and to look to its own Gulf political needs. These are: to follow through with its promised reflagging but at the same time to reduce its risk.

The root political fact is that any major naval incident that Iran might use to challenge the reflagging could force Reagan into a choice of up or out-escalate or retreat — that, however it was resolved in the Gulf, could put painful pressure on Reagan at home at a moment when he is already neck-deep in the Iran-contra hearings.

This is why Washington is quietly suggesting to Iraq that it back off a bit on the tanker war. It is possible that Iran's hostility will make any Iraqi restraint self-defeating and irrelevant. Still, there is some reason to expect that restraint would be met with restraint. It is to Iran's evident advantage to have a tanker truce: long ago it cut Iraq's sea link, forcing Iraq to go to pipelines for oil exports (and to Kuwait's ports for imports), while all of Iran's oil exports go out by sea. The Iranians have regularly said they would not shoot at others' shipping if Iraq stopped shooting at theirs.

At face, a lull in the tanker war would be for Iraq a costly and ironic result of an international diplomatic initiative launched to provide it essential relief. Iraq would be doing a certain political service to Ronald Reagan by easing the likelihood that reflagging will produce confrontation with Iran, but it would be yielding, without matching compensation, a weapon of war.

This face, however, is misleading. Iraq is not simply being asked to back off for the temporary political convenience of an American president flying a flag of political distress.

The Arab complaint has always been that the United States and the rest of the world were cynically leaving Iran and Iraq to bleed each other white.

Reagan Says 'It's Time To Cut Federal, Not Family Budget'

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Wis. (AP) — President Reagan, saying "I reject a potted-plant presidency," today resumed his campaign to alert the American people to what he calls reckless tax-and-spend policies of the Democratic-controlled Congress.

"Now I've got to tell you, my decision to take our case to the people has gotten some of the seers and sayers backs in Washington upset," Reagan told employees of the Broan Manufacturing Co., which makes kitchen equipment.

"They keep telling me that I'm just walking down a fruitless political path, that the people don't care, and that I'd better let Congress conduct our finances," he said. "But you know, ... I say, 'The people have a right to protect America's hard-won prosperity.'"

Reagan renewed his call for an economic "bill of rights" to guard against "government's inevitable tendency to confiscate more and more of your take-home pay. I say it's time to cut the federal budget, not the family budget."

Reagan, who has not submitted a balanced budget to the Congress in his 6½ years in office, wants a constitutional amendment requiring that the federal government make ends meet.

As part of that, Reagan also wants a constitutional change to end the ability of the House and the Senate to pass tax increases by simple majorities in each of the two chambers. Reagan wants such increases to require extra-large majorities.

"There is much to do in the next 18 months," he said. "And to borrow a phrase heard recently, I reject a potted-plant presidency."

Reagan was referring to a statement that Brendan Sullivan, an attorney for Lt. Col. Oliver North, made to the joint congressional committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair.

Sullivan made that comment during North's testimony earlier this month when the attorney thought he wasn't being given ample opportunity to speak up for his client, Reagan's fired National Security Council staff deputy.

Meanwhile, a Democratic member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee from Wisconsin derided the Reagan "road show" and called the president "a non-player as we are struggling to reduce the deficit."

While Reagan was visiting a manufacturing plant in Hartford, a Rotary Club luncheon in West Bend and a gathering in a public park at Port Washington, Democratic Rep. Jim Moody scheduled a news conference in Milwaukee.

"He's a non-player as we are struggling to reduce the deficit," Moody said beforehand. "The only thing he's doing is putting on this road show. He's playing the same old tune, but the people are no longer believing the lyrics."

"He did not lobby for his budget, nor did he propose anything else except the constitutional amendment," he said. "The only thing he has done is to say he would veto revenue bills."

The sites selected for the visit are in GOP Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner's 9th congressional district, on the outer fringes of the Milwaukee metropolitan area. It is thought to be the most heavily Republican congressional district in Wisconsin, which has non-partisan voter registration, and voted nearly 2-to-1 for Reagan's re-election in 1984.

Two weeks ago, Reagan traveled to Indiana, where he spoke at Danville in the courthouse of Hendricks County, the most Republican of Indiana counties, and addressed a national convention of county officials in Indianapolis.

He has also spoken on behalf of his economic package in Melbourne, Fla., and West Bridgeport, Conn., in recent weeks. In announcing today's trip, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said it was expected to be the last in the current series, except for a possible stopover on the way to California in mid-August for the president's annual summer vacation at his ranch.

First Relics From Titanic Recovered From Atlantic

By SYDNEY RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Working 2½ miles underwater, a French mini-submarine and robot scoured the ocean floor around the Titanic and scooped up the first objects ever recovered from the sunken luxury liner.

A brief statement said Sunday's haul included dishes used by the 1,513 passengers who died when the liner sank 75 years ago.

The statement, released by the French Institute for Research and Exploitation of the Sea, did not say if other objects were recovered. The salvage operation began Saturday and is expected to take about a month.

The Titanic, advertised as unsinkable, struck an iceberg on its maiden voyage from Southampton, England, to New York and sank April 15, 1912.

The Nautile submarine, aided by a robot named Robin, searched in a 2½-mile area around the wreck, which is littered with silver trays and wine bottles.

The submarine is equipped with two arms capable of picking up objects smaller than teacups and larger than safes.

The 176-pound robot, attached to the submarine by a 26-foot umbilical cord, has lights and three cameras encased in titanium-and-steel cases for shooting inside the Titanic. Another camera is carried by a member of the mini-sub crew.

The Nautile will not explore the inside of the wreck, because it would be too dangerous, according to expedition officials.

More than 2,200 people were aboard the Titanic, including some of the richest and most noted of the day.A fortune in jewels and other valuables were rumored to have been contained in a strongbox aboard the ship.

Marine salvage experts have said any objects recovered from the Titanic, however small, would be worth a fortune.

Highway Shootings Continue In Calif.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man in a convertible opened fire on two people when tempers flared on a busy freeway in the eighth shooting this summer on Southern California's crowded and stress-filled highways.

Two people have been killed and one critically injured in the highway violence, including a 17-year-old boy shot to death on Friday.

The latest shooting Sunday occurred after the driver of a pickup truck on the Pacific Coast Highway exchanged words with a man in a sports car who cut in front of him, police said.

The man stepped out of his convertible, pulled a handgun from the trunk and fired at the pickup, then drove off, police said.

The driver of the pickup was cut by broken glass and his passenger suffered a powder burn from the gunshot, said police Sgt. Russ Martin of suburban Santa Monica.

A bullet also hit the helmet of a motorcyclist, but he escaped injury, Martin said.

The California Highway Patrol is asking motorists to report belligerent drivers and stay clear of trouble.

"The message we're trying to get across is that if somebody is flashing his lights and honking his horn, signaling he wants to pass, don't hold your ground," said patrol spokesman Mike Maas.

Meanwhile, the Guardian Angels crime-fighting organization announced it will begin patrolling the freeways today. It said it will hand out information on reporting crimes and offer yellow ribbons for motorists to put on auto antennas as "a symbol of caution."

A Guardian Angels spokesman likened the violence to the futuristic "Mad Max" films that feature actor Mel Gibson in the role of a highway vigilante.

"You can get the most timid librarian behind the wheel of a car or the most timid bookworm, and they put on their sunglasses and maybe their racing gloves and all of a sudden you've got the 'Mad Max' syndrome," said Paul Barrera, a regional coordinator for the Guardian Angels.

While there are no statistics on freeway violence, authorities agree it seems to be increasing.

"In the past we had snipers, people throwing rocks at cars, dropping things from freeway passes and running people off the road," said the Police Department's chief psychiatrist, Martin Reiser.

The recent shooting rash, he said, "represents an escalation."

Fidel Castro Denounces 'Traitors'

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro told Cubans a new revolutionary spirit has returned to their country, contrary to the claims of "traitors" who wish to impose a capitalist tyranny on the island again.

In one of his most upbeat accounts in recent memory, Castro said "extraordinary" advances have been made since he instituted a reform program last year aimed at overcoming lack of worker discipline, corruption and other problems.

The speech was an apparent attempt at countering the impact of the May 28 defection to the United States of Brig. Gen. Rafael del Pino Diaz. The hero of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion has strongly denounced the Cuban leader.

Castro said Cubans should not be discouraged by the "repugnant slander" of traitors, whom he compared with "rats who abandon the ship."

Although he did not mention del Pino by name, Castro seemed disturbed by the extensive interviews the one-time revolutionary loyalist has conducted with Radio Marti, the Voice of America station which broadcasts to Cuba.

"Why so much propaganda?" Castro asked in a speech marking the 34th anniversary of his debut as a guerrilla fighter. "Traitors there will always be ... Who are they going to deceive? ... For every traitor there will be a thousand sailors and captains who will carry forward with the revolution in the middle of any storm."

He said people who flee Cuba want to return the country to the time when it was afflicted by prostitution, misery, illiteracy, repression and poverty.

Castro spoke before an estimated 100,000 people on the 34th anniversary of an attack he led on a military barracks, which marked the start of Cuba's revolution. The anniversary of the July 26, 1953 attack coincides with the annual carnival, and Cubans have a three-day holiday.

Castro frequently was interrupted by applause during his 2¼ hour speech in Artemisa, 35 miles west of Havana. The 60-year-old leader frequently jabbed the air for emphasis.

Castro ousted former dictator Fulgencio Batista and took power on Jan. 1, 1959.

During much of 1986, Castro scolded Cubans for revolutionary shortcomings, claiming there were too many workers swho were interested mainly in personal gain.

He said Sunday that the moood has changed, with many citizens eager to perform volunteer work in housing, construction and other activities.

"The perspectives are good on this July 26th," Castro said.

He said cubans have learned to develop their country in spite of the U.S. economic blockade, which has been in place for 26 years.

His talk was almost uniformly optimistic. He made only a brief reference to the country's continuing shortage of foreign exchange.

Del Pino, who flew combat missions against the 1961 Bay of Pigs invaders, has portrayed the revolution as a failure, contending Cubans suffer from abysmal living standards, a corrupt leadership and an unpopular war in Angola.

Castro made no reference to allegations made Friday night by a group of cuban agents who claimed that while they posed as CIA operatives, the agency sought to use them to arrange assassination plots against Castro.

Midwives Are Catering To Middle Class Women

By NANCY ATKINS
Spartanburg Herald Journal

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — Fifty years ago, midwives traveled from farm to farm helping deliver babies to poor families in rural South Carolina who often could not afford medical care. "Now, more middle-class, educated families are turning to home births for the experience rather than financial reasons," said Sara Woolbert, director of the division of maternal health for the state Department of Health and Environmental Control.

The mother electing to have a home birth today may turn to one of three registered lay midwives in the state who are helping in more than 80 births a year. Certified midwives also help with births.

A lay midwife assists in childbirth and is not a licensed medical professional. A certified nurse-midwife in South Carolina is a registered nurse who completes her certification as a midwife and functions under direction of a physician in a hospital or birthing center.

Marsha Lawson, who gave birth to an 8 pound, 3 ounce boy on Jan. 4, is one of those mothers who chose home birth.

"I thought a home birth would be healthier for me and my baby," Mrs. Lawson said. "I had known about home births for about 10 years. I had friends who had them, so having a home birth was just a natural process for me."

Stefania Bachorska in Spartanburg is the midwife who assisted Mrs. Lawson with the birth of her son.

Mrs. Bachorska has been a certified lay midwife for almost a year. She has delivered five babies on her own and has assisted Lisa Hines of Easley, also a certified lay midwife, on 10 deliveries. Mrs. Hines began working as a midwife about three years ago while living in Austin, Texas. She has been involved in about 125 home births. Mrs. Bachorska and Mrs. Hines serve as backups for each other and consult with various clients.

Tavish Binton of the Columbia area is the state's other certified lay midwife and is the chairwoman of DHEC's Lay Midwifery Advisory Board. She said costs may be a factor when a family chooses a home over a hospital birth.

Ms. Binton said her fee is $750, plus an additional $50 in supplies. "That compares to $1,000 in a physician's fee and at least another $1,000 in costs for a vaginal delivery in a hospital," she said.

Costs for midwifery services in the Upstate are considerably less. Mrs. Bachorska and Mrs. Hines charge $400 per birth, plus another $100 of an assisting mdiwife. She said many insurance plans cover the cost of a midwife.

Ms. Binton said many mothers choose midwives because "they want the comfort in knowing who their care-givers are going to be. The doctor is not the main person to attend labor. The doctor does not show up until just before the baby arrives. Also, the doctor the mother likes best is not going to show up at the hospital just because the mother likes him best," she said.

She also said most of these mothers "want to have the best chance for a natural delivery" and feel they will not get that chance in a hospital.

Parents are taking a risk when planning a home birth, said Dr. Harold Rubel, a Spartanburg obstetrician-gynecologist and professor with the Medical University of South Carolina.

He said many unknown things can occur during a planned home birth, whether a physician, nurse-midwife or lay midwife is in attendance. Often those factors can lead to maternal and fetal deaths, or damage to mother and infant.

"About one out of every five women encounter unexplained problems in the intrapartum period hduring labor and delivery)," Rubel said.

Rubel said statistics show that maternal deaths and infant deaths have decreased since 1950 because of hospital births. He said federal statistics show that maternal deaths dropped from 2,960 in every 100,000 births in 1950 to about seven for every 100,000 in 1982; and perinatal mortality has decreased from a rate of 39.7 per 1,000 live births in 1950 to 18 per 1,000 live births currently.

Rubel said that for some people, having a baby at home without medical backup is fine, but for others the result can be traumatic.

"Sure, have a baby in a normal, comfortable setting, but do it with everything available for the unusual situation," he said.

Mrs. Bachorska, a Polish refugee, agrees.

"Home births are not for everyone. You have to really want to do it, and you have to be prepared," she said.

Mrs. Bachorska, who worked as a registered nurse-midwife in hospitals in Poland, said she and Mrs. Hines choose clients carefully.

High-risk mothers — those with diabetes, heart conditions or high blood pressure — are not candidates for home births, Mrs. Bachorska said.

"They have to be low-risk, healthy mothers, with no problems in the past. For instance, I couldn't take a person who had a miscarriage before," she said.

Examples Taken From Letters

DEAR ABBY: Having just read your column about how some people murder the English language, here are some examples taken from actual letters received by the local welfare department in applications for support:

1. "I am forwarding my marriage certificate and six children. I had seven, but one died which was baptized on a half sheet of paper."
2. "Mrs. Jones has not had any clothes for a year and a half and has been visited regularly by the clergy."
3. "I am glad to report that my husband who is missing, is dead."
4. "I am very annoyed to find that you brand my son illeterate (sic). This is a dirty lie, as I was married a week before he was born."
5. "Please find out for certain if my husband is dead? The man I am living with can't eat or do anything until he knows."
6. "I am forwarding my marriage certificate and three children, one of which is a mistake as you can see."
7. "My husband got his project cut off two weeks ago, and I haven't had any relief since."
8. "Unless I get my husband's money pretty soon, I will be forced to live an immortal life."

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

9. "You have changed my little boy to a girl, will this make a difference?"
10. "I have no children as yet as my husband is a truck driver and works day and night."
11. "I want money quick as I can get it. I have been in bed with the doctor for two weeks, and he doesn't do me any good."

— LILLIAN ARMET (AGE 80), FAR ROCKAWAY, N.Y.

DEAR LILLIAN: Thanks for a delightful day-brightener.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a letter from a man for a change: I never know what to do when my wife and I are in a restaurant and a lady comes to our table.

I stand up, then she says, "Please sit down." Abby, I'm not about to sit down while a lady is standing by our table talking with my wife.

If I say, "I'll get you a chair," she says, "No thanks. I'm only going to stay a minute," then she keeps talking and talking and talking. Meanwhile I'm standing there while my dinner gets cold.

What's correct here? — GARDEN GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR GARDEN: Offer the lady a chair. If she refuses, remain standing. Once you sit down, you'll never get rid of her.

DEAR READERS: One of the great journalists of our time, George Seldes, age 96, who interviewed, argued and broke bread with Isadora Duncan, Albert Einstein, Freud, Trotsky, Lenin, Mussolini, Col. McCormick, Eleanor Roosevelt, Errol Flynn, Hemingway and hundreds of other notables, has written a fascinating book titled "Witness to a Century" (Ballantine). It's the perfect gift for a friend whose intelligence you respect. Treat that friend to this delicious literary smorgasbord, and buy one for yourself so you two can discuss it. But don't lend your copy to anyone. You'll never get it back.

HAITIAN COTTON CATASTROPHE!

Haitian cotton describes an upholstery fabric displaying the "natural look" of cotton. It consists of a weave of thick, irregular yarns with lots of impurities (twigs, leaves, seed fragments). Haitian cottons produce an off-white, casual look which blends with many color schemes and even serves as the central decorating theme.

That's the good news!

The bad news is that any off-white upholstery receiving normal use from an average family (heaven forbid they should have a dog) gets quite soiled, and in short order! "But that's not the problem", you say, "I'll just clean it myself with a sponge and a detergent safe for delicate fabrics". Would that it were that simple! Read on....

Here's the problem: The impurities I mentioned, which give Haitian cotton its "natural look", contain vegetable dye. When exposed to moisture and detergency, almost immediately this dye begins to bleed. Upon drying, reddish or brownish circles appear all over the fabric—truly a Haitian cotton catastrophe!

So the solution to the problem is to call your friendly professional cleaner—right? I only wish it were that simple. Many professionals have struggled with Haitian cottons, achieving little better results than the homeowner. In fact, the 1980's will probably go down in the annals of upholstery-cleaning history as the decade of the "Haitian cotton catastrophe"!

Now the question is, "What can you do to maintain your Haitian cotton, and is there hope for cleaning it?" First, you can greatly postpone the need for cleaning by regular and thorough vacuuming. Second, true professionals have received training in cleaning sensitive fabrics such as Haitian cottons. They're the ones with years of experience, formal training and, above all, the ability to explain cleaning procedures with ease. So, ask!

Your final hope involves manufacturers who are aware of the Haitian cotton catastrophe and are developing synthetic substitutes. The mere suggestion that a synthetic substitute be used, "because of my five children and two dogs", may elicit a gasp from a decorator who's a devout naturalist; but remember, ultimately it's a decision with which you alone must live. ©GFC 1987

Gulf Minesweeping

would attack the tankers or gulf oil installations of Baghdad's Arab allies. It appeared to be the first time Iran has made such a threat unconditionally.

Rafsanjani spoke in a radio interview today on state-run Tehran radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. and made available to The Associated Press in Nicosia.

Rafsanjani said Tehran had abandoned the "principle of not attacking the installations of Iraq's partners."

"If it (Iraq) hits oil tankers, we will also retaliate against tankers," the Parliament speaker said. "It it hits oil terminals and oil wells, we will retaliate in the same way."

Pentagon sources have said Iran almost certainly planted the mine that hit the Bridgeton near Farsiyah island, a base for Revolutionary Guards loyal to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. But Iran, which threatened in recent weeks to strike at U.S. forces, has not claimed responsibility for the explosive.

Iran and Iraq, at war since 1980, have both attacked vessels in the gulf in an effort to cripple one another's economies. The Reagan administration agreed to reflag and guard 11 Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from Iran, which accuses Kuwait of being a transfer point for Iraqi arms.

Involvement by the U.S. Coast Guard in the damaged tanker's case is unusual, a maritime source said. Decisions on ship conditions are normally made by the vessel's registration agency, in this case the American Bureau of Shipping.

Salvage sources in Dubai said Sunday that the tanker should be repaired before being loaded, and one said a decision to do otherwise would be "a political rather than technical decision."

But shipping sources in Kuwait said a patch might allow the Bridgeton to sail partly loaded and avoid a drydock repair job for several months. It normally takes three days to a week to patch holes from mines, said a Kuwait-based marine surveyor.

Maritime salvage experts in Dubai, a major center for ship repair work, said divers found four flooded compartments in the Bridgeton rather than one, as first reported. The 1,200-foot ship has 31 separate compartments.

"It's damaged a couple of the compartments, which have taken on water," confirmed Anthony Quainton, the U.S. ambassador to Kuwait, in an interview today on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

One source said that if it could be partly loaded, the Bridgeton would make the 500-mile trip through the gulf, transfer its oil to another tanker and head to repair yards in Dubai or Bahrain.

"It can either go down to Dubai empty or it can go just outside the gulf with some crude and back to Dubai for repairs," said Quainton.

The Bridgeton and the 46,730-ton Gas Prince docked off Kuwait Saturday, completing a three-day voyage through the gulf with three U.S. Navy escorts.

The two U.S.-flagged tankers were due to return with the warships this week, and a second convoy was scheduled to leave for the gulf Aug. 6. But U.S. officials indicated they were reassessing their anti-mine efforts before resuming convoy acitivies.

"We're going to have to review the whole program ... We're going to do some mine-sweeping, I'm sure," said Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, the top U.S. official in the gulf, on Saturdasy.

Weinberger said Sunday that the Navy's minesweeping capability in the gulf "can be increased and will be increased." He spoke on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley."

On May 17, an Iraqi pilot fired two missiles at the USS Stark, killing 37 U.S. sailors. Iraq apologized for the attack, which it said was a mistake.

General Strike Begins

Editorial employees at the newspapers La Prensa and Extra were at work in their buildings when about 30 armed men entered the newsrooms shortly before 11 p.m. Sunday and ordered everyone out, employees and publishers said.

Winston Robles, publisher of La Prensa, said he was told a third opposition paper, El Siglo, had been closed the same way. Telephone calls to that paper were not answered late Sunday.

The closings occurred several hours before the start of a 48-hour national strike called by Civic Crusade, a loose coalition of 107 opposition parties, labor and student unions and business and civic groups. Dozens of business organizations pledged to take part.

Civic Crusade is demanding the ouster of Noriega, who as chief of the Panama Defense Force controls the army and police and is widely seen as the power behind President Eric Arturo Delvalle. The opposition wants an independent investigation of charges linking him to corruption, election fraud and political killings.

Soldiers and police have worked closely to control protests, some violent, that have flared in the capital since early June.

The publisher of Extra, Cristobal Sarmiento, told The Associated Press that about 30 men, some in uniform and some in civilian clothes, ordered all employees to leave the building. Sarmiento said two police patrol cars were in front of the building and officers guarded the front door.

Robles and some of his employees said the editorial staff of La Prensa was ordered to leave the building but that the editorial chief, Alfredo Jimenez, was told to stay behind.

Robles said one of the soldiers gave newspaper officials an order closing the newspaper. He said it was signed by the governor of Panama City, Alberto Velazquez.

Four calls to the editorial department of La Prensa within 90 minutes of the closing were answered by a man who refused to identify himself and said the caller had the wrong number. Calls to Extra were not answered.

All three newspapers had problems with the government last month when, during a June 10-29 state of emergency, they were ordered to submit articles to censors before publication. The three papers suspended publication for about 10 days rather than agree to the censorship.

Storms Offer Relief

dozens of power lines in Mountainside and Westfield, N.J. Storms knocked out power for more than 60,000 customers.

Seven people were rescued and one man was presumed drowned after waves capsized a cabin cruiser off New Jersey.

About 15,000 Delaware households lost power and 15 small airplanes were damaged at Greater Wilmington Airport.

Storms also battered parts of Ohio and Kentucky, and at least 10 people were injured in Florence, Ky., when the roof of a grocery store collapsed under the force of wind and hail Sunday evening.

Winds clocked at 60 mph Sunday tore part of the roof off a motel in Rockford, Ill., and dropped it in an indoor pool. No guests were injured, and night manager Paula Schwartz was able to joke, "Everybody has a skylight now."

Labor Camp Raided

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Police raided a forced-labor camp Sunday and freed 12 kidnapped boys, the national news agency said.

The official APP, reporting from the eastern city of Lahore, said police arrested two men they identified only as Ashraf and Nazir.

It said the two forced the boys to work during the day and kept them chained at night.

Police learned of the operation after one of the boys escaped early Sunday and alerted them, the report said.

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?

Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere between 70% and 80%. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and your representative will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

If you have a hearing requested or scheduled before an Administrative Law Judge, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

Festival Called Most Successful

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The smiles of the athletes at closing ceremonies for the most successful U.S. Olympic Festival matched those of the organizers and the spectators.

The eighth festival set records for attendance and ticket sales and, according to a U.S. Olympic Committee executive, "has come of age."

Held on a regional basis for the first time, with events in Durham, Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Greensboro and Cary, the festival drew 460,884 people, more than 113,000 over the record set in Houston last year. It also took in over $3 million in ticket sales, although official figures won't be available until later this week. Original estimates were for 300,000 in attendance and $1.5 million in ticket sales.

"I think this went beyond even my expectations, and I expect ... a lot," Hill Carrow, executive director of North Carolina Amateur Sports, said. "It's the kind of thing where our numbers were based on previous festivals and what we thought we could do. Obviously, we smashed those."

Sheila Walker, the USOC's director of festivals and competitions, called the event "sensational." She was particularly impressed by the camraderie between athletes and fans.

"The spirit of the people is something the athletes will remember for a long time," she said.

The closing ceremonies further reinforced those feelings.

"You are what it is all about," U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame inductee Dr. LeRoy Walker said to the 3,000 athletes who gathered for the closing party. "And we are so grateful for all the fans who brought out the best in you."

The best was what gymnast Joyce Wilborn was Sunday. Before 20,393 in the Dean Smith Center at Chapel Hill — the largest crowd ever for a gymnastics competition in the United States — Wilborn had three perfect 10s as she won three gold medals in individual events.

Her scores were the first 10s ever awarded in the festival. Two came in the vault, although only one was needed, and the other in floor exercise, which she also won.

Wilborn, 16, of Paterson, N.J., tied for the gold with Danna Lister of Tulsa, Okla., on the balance beam. She did not qualify for the uneven bars final after falling off in the all-around event Friday night.

Megan Fenton of Sandy, Utah, won the uneven bars.

Some of the nation's best track and field athletes were on display Sunday, when the overall attendance was 61,421, another festival mark.

Greg Foster, the world's top-ranked hurdler, matched the fastest time in the world this year in the 110-meter high hurdles with a 13.19. That tied Tonie Campbell's time, set in May.

Valerie Brisco, who won three Olympic golds in 1984, equaled that performance here. Brisco, winner of the women's 200 meters Friday night and the 400 Saturday night, ran the third leg on the West team that won the 1,600-meter relay Sunday night.

The team of Gervaise McCraw of Pomona, Calif., Janeene Vickers of Pomona, Brisco and Denean Howard, both of Los Angeles, was timed in 3:24.89, the fastest by an American squad this year. Brisco ran the fastest 400 leg by any runner on the four teams, unofficially clocking 49.7.

"I'm not surprised with the record," said Brisco, who was a late entry for the meet. "I knew if everyone ran well we were capable of this."

The men's 1,600 relay produced the two fastest times in the world this year. The South team of Walter McCoy of Tallahassee, Fla., Kevin Robinzine of Everman, Texas, Raymond Pierre of Houston, and Roddie Haley of Fayetteville, Ark., edged the North by .02 seconds in 2:59.84.

Lee McRae, the gold medalist in the recent World University Games, matched his career best, set at that meet, in the men's 100-meter dash in 10.07. McRae's mother, Dorothy, saw him race for the first time.

Also putting on good shows were Lynda Tolbert of Tempe, Ariz., in the women's 100 hurdles in a career-best 13.06; UCLA's Gail Devers in the women's 100 in 11.06; Lee Balkin of Glendale, Calif., in the high jump at 7-7¾, a career best; Diana Richburg of Troy, N.Y., in the women's 1,500 in 4:09.86, a festival mark; Larry Myricks of Ontario, Calif., in the long jump at 27-1¼; Chuck Aragon of Albuquerque, N.M., in the men's 1,500 in 3:39.66; Keith Brantly of Gainesville, Fla., in the 5,000 in 13:47.72; Ron Backes of Minneapolis in the shot put at 63-7¾; Mike Gonzales of Redondo Beach, Calif., in the decathlon with 7,956 points; Donna Mayhew of La Crescenta, Calif., the 1986 women's national champion in the javelin, with a toss of 191-2, her personal best; Maryanne Torrellas of Clinton, Conn., in the women's 10-kilometer walk in a record 47:54.3; and Gary Morgan of Clarkston, Mich., in the men's 20-kilometer walk in 1:31:11.1.

Foster took the gold medal, turning in a time of 13.19 seconds. That ties the fastest time ever in a festival and is the best in the world this year. All that from a man who was quite displeased for the first 109 meters.

"I fell back in the blocks a little bit. I don't know why," said Foster of Long Beach, Calif., a TAC champion this year and silver medalist at the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

"I held back a little bit. I shouldn't have. I eased up a little bit coming off the last hurdle, which is stupid," Foster lamented. "But I feel pretty good. Felt real good."

Foster was left behind at the start, in part because there was a false start which made him a bit timid.

Six of the 29 players selected to the 1988 Olympic hockey team's training camp were from the University of Minnesota — goalie John Blue, defenseman Todd Richards, center Corey Millen, left wing Dave Snuggerud and right wings Tom Chorske and Todd Okerlund. The North beat the South 6-4 for the gold medal, rallying from a 3-0 first-period deficit.

When the competition was over and the record numbers had been counted, the athletes and spectators at the closing ceremonies got down to some serious partying. A performance by The Four Tops turned the field into a large dance floor as staff members formed impromptu chorus lines and mini-parties.

"The real success story to this festival," Carrow said, "lies in the people."

The Big Winner

Sixteen-year-old Joyce Wilboro of Patterson, N.J., acknowledges applause from spectators after she was awarded the gold medal for her performance on the vaulting horse Sunday at the U.S. Olympic Festival. Joyce set a U.S. festival record with her perfect score in that event and also took first in the floor exercise and tied for first on the balance beam. (AP Laserphoto)

McRae Tops Smith, McNeill In 100-Meter Dash Final

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Lee McRae, of Pembroke, N.C., the gold medalist in the recent World University Games, matched his career best — set at that meet — in winning the men's 100-meter dash in 10.07 while East Carolina's Lee Vernon McNeill finished third at 10.15.

McRae burst out of the blocks quickly and led all the way, breaking the stadium mark of 10.11, set by Jim Green of the United States in 1971.

McRae's mother, Dorothy, who lives in Pembroke, N.C., where he grew up, saw her son race for the first time.

"She's so hyper that me and my dad didn't want to take a chance" on letting her watch McRae compete in the past.

This was McRae's first return to the Duke track since he set a national record as a junior Olympian in 1983.

Calvin Smith, the world record-holder from Tampa, Fla., finished a close second in 10.09, followed by McNeill in 10.15 and Harvey Glance of Phoenix, Ariz., a seven-time festival medalist, in 10.20.

On Saturday night, McNeill was part of the South's gold-medal winning 400-meter relay team which recorded the fastest time in the world in that event this year.

McNeill, along with James Butler, of Tallahassee, Fla., Dennis Mitchell of Sicklerville, N.J., and Harvey McSwain of Shelby, N.C., was timed in 38.37 seconds, .01 seconds under the previous 1987 world best by a team from the Soviet Union.

The clocking also broke the track record of 38.56 at Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium, set by the U.S. national team in 1982.

Mitchell was the key to the race. He got the baton in third place on the third leg, but quickly raced into first, before giving the stick to McSwain.

McSwain wasn't challenged on the final leg.

"Everyone was talking about the West team," said Mitchell. "They wouldn't give us a chance.

"But they didn't realize that all of us have run 10.1 in open 100 meters. All we had to do is get the baton around the track, which we did."

It was a trio of North Carolinians that brought home the gold for the South team.

With New Bern-born Mitchell taking over on the third leg, he held control until passing the baton to Shelby's McSwain. Together, the quartet turned in a stadium record time of 38.37 seconds and the best time in the world this year, vanquishing the reputation of the West team in the process.

The West team had three former Olympians, Thomas Jefferson, Calvin Smith and Harvey Glance.

Butler of Tallahassee, Fla., trailed Lee McRae of the East team, but the second exchange reversed the order and McNeill put the South in control. For Mitchell and McSwain, it was mop up.

It was, finally, time to show off the South and its athletes.

"The sprinters really don't get the recognition. They look out in Texas and California," Mitchell said. "We can run just as fast as those guys can."

McSwain said Saturday night's winner "gets bragging rights until next year."

"Our team is the type team where we don't say much," McSwain said. "We just let the actions speak for us. It feels so good when you beat someone who's been talking all this time. It just makes it that much better."

Asked if he realized the time was the best in the world in 1987, Butler was quick to answer, "Yes we do!"

"I've been really psyched since I got here," McRae, who attends Pitt but is from Pembrook, N.C., said. "Coming home and running in front of the home crowd made me want to put on a good show."

Wrenn Rolls To Buick Open Win

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — There never was any doubt that Robert Wrenn would win the golf tournament, only whether he might rewrite the record books.

Sunday, two weeks after swearing off sweets, Wrenn had a near-brush with history while winning his first PGA Tour event, the $600,000 Buick Open.

After jumping to 21-under-par after three rounds, taking a six-stroke lead into the final round, Wrenn was a virtual lock to win the tournament. The suspense was in whether Wrenn could shatter the 72-hole Tour record.

He just missed.

"Everybody was telling me the same thing: 'Take a shot at a time and play your own game,'" Wrenn said. "Every day it was like some outer force was going to lead me around. It really came together.

Patrick Shuts Down Raleigh

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Bronswell Patrick tossed a three-hit shutout as Pitt County took a 10-0 win over Raleigh Sunday to move out to a 2-0 advantage in their best-of-seven Area I American Legion Championship baseball series.

"He pitched a very good game," said Pitt County pitcher Toby Holliday. "He was ahead (in the count) most of the night."

Patrick had a no-hitter going through five innings and finished with 11 strikeouts and two walks while raising his record to 5-1 in American Legion play this summer.

"He threw the ball real well," said Raleigh coach Ronnie Peoples. "He got ahead in the count. He kept us off balance."

Pitt had put men in scoring position in each of the first three innings but didn't push across a run until the fourth when Patrick reached on an error, went to second on another error before finally scoring on a sacrifice fly by Shane Adams.

Post 39 got things rolling in the fifth, scoring nine runs on four hits and taking advantage of two Raleigh errors.

"We waited around the first few innings and didn't capitalize on our opportunities," Holliday said. "Then we finally got in that inning (the fifth) and took advantage."

In the fifth, Pitt loaded the bases against Raleigh starter Mike Whitten. Eric Jarman started things off with a reach off an error by the shortstop. Jarman was then caught off base but got to second safely due to an errant throw by the first baseman. David Daniels then singled and Axel Smith followed with a reach on a walk.

Tom Moye then hit a two-run single to score Jarman and Daniels. After one out, Ty Little walked to load the bases again. Hunter Clark followed with another walk to push home Smith and make it 4-0.

Adams followed that with an RBI single that the shortstop fielded but could not make a play on, allowing Moye to score.

Jason Galloway then hit into a fielder's choice to score Little. An error on the second baseman allowed Clark to score and make it 6-0. Daniels then came up and smashed a 1-1 pitch over the left field fence to drive in Adams and Galloway and complete the scoring.

Raleigh suffered through seven errors on the night, most coming at critical times.

"We're not playing good defense," Peoples said. "We didn't play good defense last night (a 9-8 loss to Pitt in the opening game of the series). We didn't play good defense tonight. I thought our pitchers threw well. If we make a few plays, we'll be all right.

"We were hoping for at least a split. (Now) our backs are too the wall. We definitely need to win tomorrow."

Moye had three hits to lead Pitt, with Daniels and Adams chipping in two apiece.

Patrick gave up his first two hits in succession in the sixth and one more in the seventh before tossing hitless ball over the final two frames.

The series returns to Raleigh tonight with game time 7:30 p.m. at Optimist Park. Barring rain, the next game will be Tuesday in Greenville at Harrington Field.

"We're in the driver's seat," Holliday said. "We're going to have to dig down, keep scoring runs, not making mistakes and put the pressure on them."

□ □ □

In Saturday night's game, Pitt came from behind to tie it up in the seventh and win it in the ninth.

Trailing 6-2, Moye opened the seventh with a single. Patrick followed with another single. After one out, Hunter Clark hit into a fielder's choice which put out Patrick.

Adams and Galloway followed by ripping consecutive singles, scoring Moye and Clark, repsectively. Jarman then doubled home Adams and Galloway to tie the game.

Pitt went ahead in the top of the ninth, scoring three runs.

Clark opened with a single and went to second on a ground out by Adams. Galloway then drew a walk, followed by Jarman's reach on a fielder'c choice, which scored Clark. An error on the second baseman allowed Galloway to come around and score and put Jarman at second. Smith then singled in Jarman.

Raleigh tried to rally in the bottom of the inning.

Baseball Hall Of Fame Inducts 3

By WILLIAM KATES
Associated Press Writer

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — After reaching the pinnacle of his major-league career, Billy Williams would like to see baseball reach a higher level, too.

Williams, Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Negro League star Ray Dandridge were inducted into the Hall of Fame Sunday in a two-hour ceremony witnessed by some of the game's legends, family and friends, and thousands of baseball fans

Williams, known for his consistency and durability in 16 seasons with the Chicago Cubs and two years with the Oakland Athletics, was named on 354 of the 413 ballots cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. It was his sixth time on the ballot.

Williams, 49, hit 20 or more home runs for 12 consecutive seasons and finished his career with 426 homers and a .290 lifetime average. He hit over .300 five times, including a league-leading .333 in 1972, and was the National League Rookie of the Year in 1961. The Alabama-born Williams also held the NL record for consecutive games with 1,117 until Steve Garvey eclipsed the mark in 1983.

"After six years of waiting, anxiety and hoping, I'm really in the Hall of Fame, and that's all that matters to me," Williams said.

Williams also used his 20-minute acceptance speech as an opportunity to rekindle the memory of Jackie Robinson, baseball's first black player in 1946, and call on baseball's owners to address the lack of minorities in executive positions in the game today.

"This ceremony today is reason to celebrate, but it is also a time for reflection — a time to examine the game's strengths and weaknesses by improving what is good and correcting what is bad," said Williams, who is black.

"We minorities for the past four decades have demonstrated our talents as players," Williams said. "Now we deserve the chance and consideration to demonstrate similar talents as third-base coaches, as managers on the field, as general managers and executives in the front office, and, yes as owners of major-league ball clubs.

"Baseball has been considered America's favorite pastime. Now, let's make it the sport that reflects the true spirit of our great country, a nation that more than 200 years ago was dedicated to the proposition that all men — all men — are created equal. Yes, plans and words must be transformed into the action and deeds. We ask for nothing less, but we seek what is just."

For Williams, being voted into the Hall of Fame was compensation for all the times he heard "Wait Until Next Year" during his long career with the pennant-less Cubs, who have not won a National League crown since 1945.

"The pinnacle of baseball is to be in the Hall of Fame," said Williams, now the batting coach of the Cubs. "Now I can say I'm one of the best."

Longtime Negro leagues star Ray Dandridge never realized his dream of playing in the major leagues.

"If I had to do it all over again, I think I'd do it the same way," the 73-year-old Dandridge said as he took his place among baseball's honored in the hall.

"I love the game of baseball. Today, it looks like baseball loves me," said Dandridge, who was in the twilight of his career when Robinson broke the color barrier in baseball.

Thousands of fans gathered to witness the festivities and catch glimpses of 25 of the 57 living Hall of Fame members, including Ted Williams, Stan Musial and Willie Mays.

Dandridge, who hit over .340 during his years in the Negro, Mexican and minor leagues, recalled how it was when the New York Giants bypassed him and called up Mays, then 20, from their Minneapolis Class AAA farm club in 1951. "I figured I'd be next. The only thing I ever wanted to do was get one foot in the major leagues. Even if it was only to stay a week," he said in an emotional acceptance speech that triggered a standing ovation at its conclusion. "I thought the Giants would bring me up, but they never did."

Dandridge was the first black to win the most valuable player award in the American Association while playing with the Minneapolis Millers, in 1950. He was selected for induction by the veterans committee, becoming the 12th player so honored from the Negro leagues.

Dotson's Perfect Game Ruined By The Yankees

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

What started out as a perfect game for Richard Dotson turned into a perfect ending for the New York Yankees.

Dotson retired the first 22 batters Sunday before the Yankees jolted him on home runs by Dan Pasqua, Gary Ward and Dave Winfield for a 5-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Mike Pagliarulo's one-out single in the eighth broke up Dotson's bid for perfection. Mike Easler followed with a double and Pasqua hit a three-run homer with two outs for a 3-2 lead. Ward and Winfield hit solo homers in the ninth off Dotson.

"Pagliarulo's hit was the big one. That took the pressure off," Winfield said. "It took a tremendous weight off our shoulders. Hey, we're not going to be embarrassed. Then Easler gets a hit. Suddenly, we're ahead and we knew we were going to win the game."

Ron Guidry, 3-4, pitched 7 1-3 innings for the victory. Dave Righetti relieved for his 18th save, escaping a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the ninth.

Royals 4, Orioles 0

Charlie Leibrandt pitched a two-hitter as Kansas City stopped Baltimore's 11-game winning streak.

Leibrandt, 10-8, retired the first 13 batters and did not allow a hit until Ken Gerhart's single with one out in the sixth. He struck out seven and walked three.

Red Sox 11, Mariners 1

Roger Clemens struck out a season-high 14 and scattered eight hits, leading Boston over Seattle at Fenway Park.

Clemens, 10-7, pitched his 11th complete game and did not allow an earned run.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 2

George Bell went 4-for-4 and doubled and scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning on a wild pitch as host Toronto beat Minnesota.

With the score 2-2, Bell opened the eighth with a double. He took third on a fly ball and scored on Bert Blyleven's third wild pitch of the game.

Brewers 7, Athletics 4

Paul Molitor became the first AL player to steal second base, third base and home in the same inning since 1974 and led Milwaukee past visiting Oakland.

Molitor led off the first inning with a single, stole second and then stole third with one out. After Robin Yount walked, Molitor stole home as part of a double steal. Texas' Dave Nelson in 1974 was the last AL player to accomplish the feat, while San Francisco's Dusty Baker did it in 1984.

Rangers 11, Indians 3

Bob Brower and Pete Incaviglia each hit two home runs as Texas pounded host Cleveland.

Ruben Sierra also homered for the visiting Rangers, who had 14 hits. Brower led off the game with a home run and finished with four hits and four RBI.

Tigers 6, Angels 2

Jim Walewander hit his first major-league home run and Walt Terrell continued his success at Tiger Stadium as Detroit beat California.

Terrell, 8-8, gave up seven singles and struck out seven in his fourth complete game. He is 26-7 lifetime in Detroit.

Elliott Takes A Chance, Ends Up In Winner's Circle

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — After 15 straight races without a trip to the winner's circle, Bill Elliott took a chance.

Elliott drove to his 19th career NASCAR victory Sunday in the Talladega 500 after he and his crew decided to go with only two fresh tires on the final pit stop of the day.

"We just changed two tires and everybody else changed four," Elliott said. "It was just something we decided to do.

"The (stock) car was good enough to stay out front. That's where I really wanted to be," added the red-haired driver from Dawsonville, Ga.

The final stop came on lap 151, moments after a crash on the backstretch of the 2.66-mile, high-speed Alabama International Motor Speedway oval brought out the last of four caution flags.

Elliott was running seventh in a tight lead draft prior to pitting, but came out in the lead. He was able to stay there after the green flag waved with 33 laps remaining in the 188-lap race, beating Davey Allison to the finish line by .15-second.

"Tires were not that critical," Elliott said. "If you don't wear them out, why change them? Usually in that situation, we just change all four of them as a precautionary thing, just so we're not taking a chance on one of the more worn tires going flat. This time, we just took a little chance."

It was the first victory for Elliott since the season-opening Daytona 500 in February, and it came in one of the most competitive races of the season, with nine cars battling up front through the final 30 laps.

Cincinnati Losing Ground To Charging San Francisco

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Suddenly, second wasn't quite so distant.

Cincinnati lost for the third time in its four-game weekend series at Montreal, and the Reds saw their lead in the National League West shrink to one game over the San Francisco Giants.

Reds Manager Pete Rose saw something funny in his club's 6-0 loss to the Expos Sunday, but he wasn't laughing. The Reds led the division by four games last Wednesday.

"I really don't think half of these players realize the situation we're in," Rose said. "If they do, they have a funny way of showing it.

At the same time, the Giants swept a pair from St. Louis, winning 6-3 in a 10-inning opener and 5-2 in the nightcap.

Expos 6, Reds 0

Floyd Youmans pitched his third shut out of the season, allowing just six Cincinnati hits. Youmans struck out seven and walked none. In their three losses in the series at Montreal, Cincinnati scored just five runs.

Youmans has won four of five starts since a back injury put him on the disabled list June 10-30. The club said Youmans' problem was caused by weight gain.

Giants 6, Cards 3
Giants 5, Cards 2

Will Clark hit home runs to win each game. His three-run homer won the first game in the 10th inning, and his leadoff homer in the fifth, No. 18 on the season, broke a 2-2 tie in the second game.

The sweep of the four-game set was only the second against the Cards this season, both by San Francisco. The Giants took both games of a two-game series in May at St. Louis.

After Clark's tie-breaking homer in the nightcap, Jose Uribe singled and scored on a two-out double by Kevin Mitchell. Reliever Craig Lefferts doubled in the fifth run in the seventh.

Astros 5, Mets 2

Billy Hatcher hit a three-run homer to cap Houston's two-out, four-run rally in the ninth and enable the Astros to split their four games with New York after losing a series-opening doubleheader.

The homer came off Jesse Orosco, who relieved Dwight Gooden to start the top of the ninth.

Phillies 7, Braves 3

Philadelphia got consecutive eighth-inning homers from Milt Thompson, Von Hayes and Mike Schmidt to break a 3-3 tie and beat visiting Atlanta. All the homers were off Doyle Alexander. Steve Jeltz added an RBI single later in the inning.

Atlanta scored three runs in the sixth to tie the score 3-3. One run scored on a wild pickoff throw by Kevin Gross, and another came home on Gross' balk.

Padres 7, Pirates 4

Luis Salazar's two-run homer was one of only three hits that host San Diego used in scoring five runs in the fourth inning against Bob Kipper en route to victory over the Pirates.

Ed Whitson, 9-7, allowed just seven hits, including consecutive second-inning homers by Bobby Bonilla and Bobby Bonds, to win for the first time in his last six starts.

Dodgers 7, Cubs 6

Steve Sax, who already had scored twice, erased a 6-5 Chicago lead with a two-run double in the sixth inning, leading the Dodgers over the visiting Cubs. Brian Holton was the winner with two-thirds of an inning in relief of Fernando Valenzuela. Matt Young pitched the final three innings for his eighth save.

The Cubs at one time held a 4-0 lead against Valenzuela, who gave up six runs on nine hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Legion ...

With one away, James Capps singled. Mike Riggsbee followed with a reach on an error. Mike Whitten then singled in Capps. Riggsbee followed by scoring on a ground out by pinch-hitter Ray Osborne to pull Post 1 within 9-8 with two outs. Moye then struck out Donald Wilder to end the game.

Moye went the distance for the win, giving up 13 hits and six earned runs. Andy Reich of Raleigh had a one-hitter going through five innings but was rapped for 10 hits over the final four innings.

Jarman went 3-5 with four RBI to lead Pitt. Capps had three hits for Raleigh.

Six Killed As Israelis Stage Raid In Lebanon

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli troops, in their deepest ground penetration into Lebanon in two years, attacked a jeep and killed at least six Moslem leftist militiamen near the southern port of Sidon, police and Israeli officials said today.

Lebanese police said the raiding party landed on a beach south of Sidon shortly before midnight (7 p.m. EDT Sunday) and ambushed a jeep carrying a patrol of the Syrian-backed Popular Liberation Army. Six militiamen were killed and four were wounded, police said.

In Jerusalem, the army command and state-owned Israel radio said troops encountered a guerrilla vehicle near Sidon and opened fire, killing at least seven people and wounding others.

The operation, the deepest penetration by land forces of Lebanon since Israel withdrew the bulk of its troops in June 1985, occurred about 25 miles north of the Israeli border, according to an Israeli army official in Jerusalem who asked for anonymity.

He said, without elaboration, that the operation was part of a series of actions taken by the army to prevent terrorist attacks in south Lebanon.

The 30 to 40 Israeli commandos fired four rocket-propelled grenades and raked the patrol's two jeeps with machine-gun fire before boarding their rubber dinghies to return to waiting gunboats, Lebanese police said.

The boats shelled the coast as the soldiers made their escape under parachute flares dropped by Israeli helicopter gunships, the police said.

The attack occurred at the Siniq highway bridge on the city's southern outskirts, police said.

An Israeli army spokesman said soldiers encountered a guerrilla troop-carrying vehicle and opened fire, killing and wounding several men. It did not say what organization they belonged to.

Israel radio reported seven guerrillas were killed and several others wounded in the clash.

Independent sources in south Lebanon who demanded anonymity said the clash with the guerrilla vehicle, a Landrover, occurred at the southern outskirts of Sidon near an outpost manned by the Nasserite Popular Organization, a Sunni leftist militia headed by Mustafa Saad which has been supported by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The outpost is near the Ein Hilweh Palestinian refugee camp.

The Popular Liberation Army is the paramilitary arm of the Nasserite Popular Organization, which has ruled Sidon, Lebanon's third largest city, since the outbreak of the Moslem-Christian civil war in 1975.

Israeli army units have periodically launched ground raids against Shiite positions north of the security zone, a self-declared buffer area north of Israel's border that is controlled by Israeli-backed Christian militiamen and Israeli troops.

The last major Israeli strike north of the security zone was on Dec. 24, 1986, when ground forces pushed about 2 miles north of the narrow buffer zone.

Israel's air force has also launched 19 air raids against guerrilla targets in Lebanon so far this year, most directed against Palestinian refugee camps near Sidon.

Papers Say Terrorists Pose Threat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A previously unknown group has threatened to attack Swiss interests in the Middle East if Switzerland extradites a Lebanese hijacker to France, newspapers said.

The Swiss Foreign Ministry in Bern said new security measures would be put in place at the embassy in Beirut.

France has not requested the extradition of Hussein Hariri, who hijacked the DC-10 Air Afrique jet Friday, singled out the 64 French passengers aboard and killed one of them before he was overpowered and arrested at the Geneva airport.

Several Beirut newspapers said Sunday that a man claiming to speak for the "Green Cells" made the threats in telephone calls to local newspaper offices and the Voice of National Resistance radio station.

"We shall strike at Swiss interests in the (Middle East) region if Switzerland hands over Mujahed (Holy Warrior) Hussein Hariri to French authorities," the caller was quoted as saying Saturday. The newspapers said he hung up after delivering the threat in Arabic, leaving no chance for questions about himself or his group.

Swiss Foreign Minister Pierre Aubert said Saturday that Hariri will be tried on charges of murder and hostage-taking despite what it may mean to Swiss citizens abroad.

Hariri, 21, hijacked the jet as it was traveling from Brazzaville, Congo, to Paris, and demanded it be flown to Beirut.

Hariri is a Shiite from south Lebanon. Relatives say he belongs to the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, Lebanon's most militant Shiite faction.

Hezbollah is believed to be an umbrella group for militants holding 25 foreigners missing and feared kidnapped in Lebanon. The captives include nine Americans and six Frenchmen. The longest-held hostage is Terry Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was seized in March 1985.

Few Swiss properties are left in Moslem west Beirut or elsewhere in Moslem-controlled areas of war-torn Lebanon.

In Bern, Swiss Foreign Ministry spokesman Franz Hunkeler gave no details of the new security measures at the Swiss Embassy, which was moved to the Lebanese capital's Christian sector earlier this year after a wave of kidnapping of foreigners in west Beirut.

Hunkeler said the government has issued precautions to about 100 Swiss nationals living in Lebanon. He declined to elaborate. Many of them serve with the Geneva-based International Committee of the Red Cross.

Billy Joel Has Soviets Dancing In The Aisles

By William J. Eaton
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

MOSCOW — Hundreds of Soviet spectators danced in the aisles Sunday night when Billy Joel performed his first concert in the Soviet Union.

Departing from the restraint usually seen in Soviet concertgoers, the fans accepted Joel's invitation to leave their seats in the Olympic Arena and come closer to the stage where he and eight backup musicians had been performing for nearly an hour to only mild applause.

While police and security officers looked on nervously, an exuberant Joel stepped up the tempo and, at one point, left the stage to sing in the midst of the astonished crowd.

Even so, it appeared that a majority of the 20,000 people who got the coveted tickets for Joel's opening night show were less than enthusiastic about the top American recording star.

Alexander Belofsky, a 23-year-old law student at Moscow State University, said of the audience: "Most people are here out of curiosity and because they could get tickets. Young people — the real fans of Billy Joel — aren't here because they are outside trying to get a ticket."

Those who did get inside saw a remarkable display of American technology in the elaborate lighting and the booming sound system that Joel transported from the United States for his Soviet tour. At least 16 lighting technicians, some climbing rope ladders to get to their high perches, contributed to the show.

At first, Joel clearly was unhappy with the response, ad libbing, "I have got an oil painting on this side of the room," in an apparent reference to the passive spectators.

Later, when his version of "Stiletto" received more than usual applause and cheers, he called for a pencil and said: "I want to make a note — crowd likes 'Stiletto,' so keep it in."

The concert began about 25 minutes late — almost unthinkable for a Soviet performance — and there was impatient hand-clapping and shrill whistles as technicians completed a sound check.

Then, with Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" blasting over the speakers, Joel and his backup musicians came on stage under blue lights and began to play.

Joel said a few words in Russian and got a big hand for dedicating one of his first songs to the late Vladimir Vysottsky, a folk singer who still is immensely popular seven years after his death.

"I went to see his grave and was very moved by the love and devotion people have for him," he said in dedicating his song "Honesty" to Vysottsky. "I asked why. They said he spoke the truth."

At one point, Joel referred to the vast distances separating the spectators in the second and third tiers from the stage, saying, "Think about the people up there in China."

Joel also told the audience that the first music he ever heard as a beginning piano student was Russian music — and he played a few bars of a Rachmaninoff prelude to instant applause.

Then, speaking through an interpreter, he added, "I made up my own music after awhile, and that's why I am here today."

Two of his songs had a special appeal to the Soviet audience. One of them, "Goodnight, Saigon," about American involvement in the Vietnam War, was accompanied by searchlights playing around the hall and the sound effects of hovering helicopters.

Perhaps the most popular number, however, was the Beatles' "Back in the U.S.S.R." which became a hit in the Soviet Union even though the British group never performed in this country and its records were, until recently, not available in the government stores.

Joel's wife, model Christie Brinkley, was busy with a video camera taking pictures of the event from her seat in the audience. She got a round of applause when Joel introduced her during the concert, and some of her fans began chanting "Chris-tie! Chris-tie!" but she remained in her seat.

Many members of the audience presented Joel with flowers — a traditional tribute to performers here. At one point, he quipped, "I am going to open a flower shop." Toward the end of the concert, bouquets were tossed onto the stage by admirers.

Joel and his band will play Monday and Wednesday in Moscow and Aug. 2, 3 and 5 in Leningrad. Spokesmen for his tour said expenses amounted to $2 million and he will be lucky to break even.

Actors Share Strong Bond

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Scolari and Tom Hanks had a surprise reunion when they crossed paths at a publicist's office recently.

There was some fast catching up and a promise to get together later. Then the two actors went off to respective interviews.

Scolari, sitting down with a reporter a few minutes later, said the two formed a powerful bond as rookie co-stars of the ABC sitcom "Bosom Buddies" in the early 1980s. They were near tears, having not seen each other for six months, he said.

"Tom and I had a real genuine, personal friendship that I think we took for granted," he said. "We feel like what we did on that show was based on secrets that he and I shared as friends, things we were going through at that time in our lives in the television industry — but as people, not as these slick professionals — and I'll never forget it.

"So that's what the bond was and remains. So, yeah, we were just fighting back tears, believe it or not, seeing each other."

After "Bosom Buddies" was canceled — it had a brief summer run on NBC — Hanks went on to movie stardom in "Splash." He was in town plugging his new movie, "Dragnet."

Scolari, an accomplished stage actor, tried an ABC sitcom of his own, "And Baby Makes Five," that lasted only a month. He did small television roles and honed his juggling and acrobatic talents on "Circus of the Stars," a network special he calls "Circus of the Unemployed Actors."

In 1984, he was added to the cast of the CBS sitcom "Newhart," playing preppy Michael Harris, worshipful boyfriend of overprivileged Stephanie Vanderkellen, played by Julia Duffy.

With the addition of Scolari, the cast jelled after two seasons of juggling supporting characters, and "Newhart" is now one of CBS' most successful series.

A facile comedian, Scolari is also thoughtful and articulate in conversation. He said he had just come from North Carolina where he delivered the commencement address at the high school graduation of a cousin's son, a duty he took quite seriously.

"I talked about inspiration, as all light comedians do," he said. "I mean, I did take a good five minutes to loosen myself and the crowd up and be clever and draw parallels between my writing my speech on the back of pages of 'Newhart' scripts and Abe Lincoln writing his on the back of a brown paper bag on a Pennsylvania train ride more than 100 years ago.

"I said I wasn't sure what the parallel was, but that I believed a commencement speaker's legs should be long enough to reach the ground. And they thought, 'He's a Yankee, isn't he? I think he's a Yankee. What's he mentioning that Lincoln for, anyway?' And then I said, at a staggering 5-foot-6½ inches, I barely met the qualification. And they said, 'OK, it's a comedy. It's a comedy speech.' But it wasn't. I got real serious, because I owe that to my family, particularly this branch of my family (his late father's).

"We've taken a lot of inspiration from my father. He was the one from the Italian ghetto in Paterson (N.J.) who got to college, made his way through law school, made his way through life, left a real legacy of work and work ethic. So I come from very cornball, sentimental roots."

Scolari has blended well into the "Newhart" family. He expects to stay with the show as long as star Bob Newhart wants to keep doing it. After that, Scolari has a deal with MTM Productions for his own TV series.

Despite his stated satisfaction with his career, in talk show appearances Scolari has made wry references to his relatively low-profile supporting role on television versus Hanks' huge box-office success.

"How could I not want to be involved in films?" Scolari said. "But I feel there's been something extraordinarily special about the opportunity I've had, my own personal experience in TV. And while I wouldn't have wished for it, I wouldn't now trade it, either."

Going Home

On July 27, 1953, these U.S. soldiers celebrated after learning that an armistice had been signed, ending the shooting phase of the Korean War. Truce negotiations had lasted two years and 17 days. The biggest obstacle to a settlement was over the handling of POWs. The UN wanted to let these prisoners choose whether or not to go home — something the communists opposed vigorously. A compromise allowed POWs to make a choice under supervision by a neutral commission.

Horoscope — From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 28

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A great deal can be accomplished by being analytical and considering every detail of projects before undertaking them. Be sure your plans are thought out well in advance.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't be careless in your routine activities. You may notice peculiarities in a co-worker, but take them in stride.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Attend to your appearance before that social engagement. Make collections to help pay the bills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be cautious when purchasing any new furniture or artwork; there may be a ripoff in store for you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you're not very cuatious in motion today, it's entirely possible that you will have a regrettable accident.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): You may have an urge to make some big purchases, but be wise and improve your present possessions. Watch your budget.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): This would be a perfect time to get your environment organized, since you're a bit of a perfectionist today.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Attending to personal duties may not be as dull as expected. In fact, it may prove rather pleasurable and exciting.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Contact some friends who have a very "precise" lifestyle. They can give you some great ideas for your home.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): If you need backing for a new project, you can find it easily, but be sure you have your facts and figures straight.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Check every possible angle before drawing friends into a financial arrangement. Get advice from experts.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Organize your time and responsibilities this morning, and stick to this schedule without fail.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Don't accept a public task unless you truly have the time. Give more attention to your home and family.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will have a real talent for architectural or engineering professions, so slant the education along those lines. An understnading of psychology could help your son or daughter avoid getting caught up in details which would leave little time for anything else.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8653 ♡952 ♢A7 ♣QJ93
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—Even if partner is maximum, it is unlikely that your combined holding will stretch to game. And if he is any weaker, you certainly don't want to be above the one-level. Pass.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q852 ♡952 ♢K6 ♣QJ93
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—Since partner could have 18 HCP, game is possible. Employ Stayman to check on a possible spade fit. If he does not show four spades, convert to two no trump. If partner is maximum and goes on to game, you should have enough to give him a shot at it.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A95 ♡A103 ♢AK5 ♣Q762
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You don't know whether partner is angling for game or slam. While you have a hand rich in controls, you have only moderate three-card support for partner and no ruffing value. Bid a quiet four hearts.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A95 ♡AK5 ♢A103 ♣Q762
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass

A.—Despite an identical hand pattern and point count, here your trump support is better, so your hand is worth more than the 17 points it counts. If you simply bid four hearts, partner might bail out because of his lack of trump quality. We suggest a cue-bid of three spades to advise him of our solid trump holding.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J3 ♡AQ873 ♢Q102 ♣KJ6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Whether you play four or five-card majors, your rebid should be the same—one no trump, to show a balanced minimum opening bid. A rebid of two hearts would show an unbalanced hand with a six-card heart suit.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠93 ♡84 ♢AKQJ42 ♣AQJ
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♢	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your club fit has improved your hand considerably. Still, it is the quality of your diamond suit which will determine how many tricks your side can take. Therefore, we like to emphasize that asset by jumping to three diamonds rather than raising clubs—you can do that later.

Death Toll From Eight-Day Heat Wave In Greece Now Up To 607

By KERIN HOPE
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The death toll rose to 607 today in an eight-day heat wave that has shut down scores of businesses in the capital and sent thousands of Athenians fleeing to the beaches and islands.

The Health Ministry ordered cemeteries to stay open over the weekend to cope with the rush of extra burials.

Most of the dead reportedly were elderly people from poorer areas of the city who suffered from heart or respiratory complaints.

The National Weather Bureau said that temperatures today would reach 104 degrees for the eighth straight day.

But a bureau spokesman predicted that the sweltering temperatures would ease off tonight and drop to around 97 degrees by Tuesday as cooler weather moves in from northern Greece.

Michael Tsangarakis, head of the state-run First Aid Agency, said 607 people had died of heat-related causes over the past six days.

Greek newspapers have reported more than 900 heat wave deaths. Tsangarakis said the discrepancy arose because not all reported deaths from strokes and respiratory ailments could be directly linked with the heat.

"On Saturday we transferred 1,170 people to hospitals and on Sunday 1,219 people — that was a record for the week," Tsanearakis said.

Although the 104-degree temperatures fall well below the record of 118 degrees recorded in Athens 10 years ago, the city has never stayed so hot for so long, Weather Bureau officials said.

Most homes and offices don't have air conditioning, while the city's chronic air pollution problem worsens in hot weather as a sulphurous layer of pollution thickens over the mountain-ringed Athens area.

The Health Ministry advised people to take frequent showers, drink lots of liquids and avoid exercise.

Scores of stores and offices shut down because of the heat.

"The sales are on but nobody's coming into town to buy, so we're simply shutting down till it gets cooler," said Nikolaos Panagiotopoulos, who runs a central menswear store.

Ships and planes to the islands were packed over the weekend with Greeks and foreign tourists fleeing the heat.

"We felt we were choking on the tour of Athens. It was like being in the tropics. We had to get out fast," said Louise Anderson, a tourist from Los Angeles who took a plane to the Aegean island of Mykonos.

Although the sun can be fierce on the islands, strong north winds that blow in July and August make temperatures cooler.

Athens tour operators said that so far they haven't received any cancellations because of the heat wave.

"Most people only stay a day or so in Athens and then take off. They aren't staying long enough to get too affected by the heat," said Nick Demertzis, an Athens travel agent.

HEAT WAVE — A beach near Athens, Greece, is crowded with thousands of people Sunday as they rushed to escape a heat wave which has struck Greece. Temperatures hit 106 degrees Sunday as Greece sizzled for a seventh straight day. The heat has been blamed for hundreds of deaths. (AP Laserphoto)

Bicameral Session Opens With Military On Alert

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The first bicameral Congress in 15 years convened today under strict security, ending President Corazon Aquino's sole law-making powers.

More than 1,000 protesters, mostly leftists, gathered near the suburban Manila complex where Mrs. Aquino was to give a State of the Nation address before a joint session of Congress.

Protesters carried banners demanding actions ranging from an end to "U.S. intervention" to the dismissal of certain government officials. Police did not appear to be using force, and no arrests or violence were reported.

The Philippine military was put on full alert in the capital and 12 nearby provinces to prevent extremists from disrupting the Congress.

Earlier today, members of the Senate and House of Representatives, elected last May, began separate sessions to formalize selection of Sen. Jovito Salonga as upper chamber president and Rep. Ramon Mitra as Speaker of the House.

"This morning, we open this session to proclaim to the world that the forces of freedom and democracy have reclaimed this sanctuary of freedom," Salonga told the Senate.

In his acceptance speech, Mitra promised an "ethical, activist and high-minded" House.

U.S. Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y., invited as an observer, hailed the restoration of the bicameral legislature as "an event of singularly important significance" not only for the Philippines but also "in the global struggle for democracy."

Deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos abolished the two houses when he declared eight years of martial law in 1972. He later created a largely rubber-stamp unicameral assembly.

There was no sign of pro-Marcos protesters, who had theatened to march on Congress. About 300 leftists from the League of Filipino Students tried to march to the Executive Building, where the Senate met. They were turned back by police without incident.

Mrs. Aquino was swept to power in a civilian-military uprising in February 1986. Marcos fled to Hawaii with his wife, Imelda.

The opening of Congress marks the end of Mrs. Aquino's sole law-making powers, which she assumed when she abolished Marcos' unicameral assembly in March 1986 and scrapped the 1973 constitution.

On Sunday, the last day she held sole powers, Mrs. Aquino decreed 42 new laws, one of which raised the maximum penalty for rebellion from 12 years' imprisonment to life. The armed forces had pressed for the tougher penalties to combat communist and Moslem rebels.

Mrs. Aquino's "People Power" ticket won overwhelming majorities in the 24-seat Senate and 200-member House in the May 11 election. But most political observers expected divisions to emerge in pro-administration ranks because of wide regional and philosophical differences.

One Senate seat and about 10 from the House remain unfilled due to close contests and slow counting procedures.

Congress' agenda includes such controversial issues as land reform, autonomy for the Moslem minority and the future of American military bases. The Philippines is troubled by an extensive communist rebellion and widespread poverty.

"With the re-establishment of Congress, millions of Filipinos now expect the full development of democracy to proceed at a faster pace," wrote the Philippine Daily Inquirer in an editorial. "Yet there are also those who believe that the legislature is flawed by its class composition, that its members are predominately elitist in both origin and outlook."

Philippine commentators believe land reform will emerge as an early test of the Congress' ability to deal with complex issues.

Mrs. Aquino last week ordered all agricultural land subject to redistribution. However, she left it to Congress to decide details such as how much property landlords may retain.

Japan Sets Fast Pace In World Bank Orders

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan is outpacing the United States in capturing billions of dollars worth of orders placed by the World Bank, the biggest source of aid to Third World countries, according to figures compiled from the bank's records.

The World Bank and other intergovernmental banks buy huge quanties of goods and services for schools, roads, harbors, hospitals, farms and industries.

Their orders mean fat contracts for business and good jobs for workers in the United States and other industrial countries. Poor countries, though often hard up for funds, are the world's fastest growing market.

It was predicted last week that $11 billion will be lent to 90 countries over the next five years for road building alone.

"U.S. exporters looking for ways to boost sales to the Third World need look no further than... the World Bank," says a new pamphlet issued by the Bretton Woods Committee.

The committee is a private group sponsored by prominent figures in both major U.S. political parties, including former presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter. It tries to build support in this country for the bank and its sister organization, the International Monetary Fund, founded at a conference in Bretton Woods, N.H. in 1944.

The U.S. government is the biggest shareholder in both organizations.

In the year ending June 30, 1986, Japanese companies and individuals got $1,15 billion worth of contracts, compared with $1.02 billion captured by Americans. Altogether, the bank spent $6.64 billion outside the borrowing countries that year.

A year earlier, Japanese contractors also beat out Americans, but by only $25 million, $967.1 million versus $941.8 million. In 1984, Americans got more in contracts than Japanese did, $1.17 billion to $989 million.

The U.S. share dropped despite the drop in the price of the dollar since early 1985, which should have made U.S. goods and services cheaper and more competitive.

These figures were put together by Nicholas H. Ludlow, managing director of Development Bank Associates, Inc., a private consulting group which has worked for the commitee.

Precise figures for the period have not yet been calculated.

Floods, Landslides Blamed For Deaths In Seoul Area

By C.W. LIM
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Torrential rains fell on Seoul late Sunday and early today, triggering floods and landslides that killed at least 61 people in the third weather tragedy to strike the country in three weeks.

The Counter Disaster Center said casualty figures were expected to rise since many people were believed to have been buried in ruined homes and buildings. The center said 10 people were missing and 50 were injured.

KBS, the state-run broadcasting network, said 83 people were reported dead or missing. The Seoul-based Kyunghyang Daily News said 73 people were killed.

The weather service said 14 inches of rain fell in the capital city and nearby Kyonggi and Kwangwon provinces.

About 60,000 people were driven from their homes by flooding, but many of them returned home after floodwaters drained.

The new downpours began Sunday as South Koreans were still trying to recover from last week's downpours, which inundated central South Korea and killed at least 136 people. Twenty people were still missing today from those rains.

In addition, 124 people died and 200 are missing as a result of Typhoon Thelma, which hit the southern coast earlier this month.

President Chun Doo-hwan, in a special Cabinet meeting today, put all government workers on a renewed flood alert. "The government should take all necessary measures to restore the damage from floods," Chun said.

Pedestrians waded through waist-deep water in many shopping and residential areas, while buses and other vehicles attempted to move through swirling, muddy roads.

In the Sihung section of Seoul, 18 people were killed and 16 others injured when a landslide crushed about 30 small hillside homes.

Floodwaters inundated part of a huge industrial complex in Seoul, disrupting operations at about 200 factories.

Authorities said tens of thousands of people had been evacuated from low-lying parts of the capital.

In Inchon, 20 miles west of Seoul, authorities said six people had been reported killed or missing in landslides and floods that also left about 3,000 people homeless. Waters surged waist-deep through some areas.

Weather forecasters said rain had eased in most affected areas, but they alerted fishermen operating off southern and western coasts for another possible typhoon.

Typhoon Alex, now moving in the China Sea with winds of 110 mph, hit Taiwan Sunday, leaving one person dead and air and train services disrupted.

Weathermen said the new typhoon was expected to affect South Korea's southern and westhern coasts before dissipating Tuesday night.

Last week, South Korea's armed forces were mobilized to help deal with the floods in central portions of the country.

The government estimated property losses in last week's rainstorms in central regions at $198 million. Losses from Typhoon Thelma in southern regions were put at $272 million.

HASTINGS FORD
Corner of 10th Street and 264 Bypass E.

We'll make sure you're happy with your mortgage loan because we've got to live with you.

Since all First Federal offices are in and around Pitt County, we've got to deliver the best rates and the most efficient service. You're our only customers.

If we don't make home loans in and around Pitt County, we don't make home loans at all. That's because First Federal offices aren't located all around the state and the country like other mortgage firms. We have to make an extra effort to get you the best rates, the best programs and the most efficient service on your mortgage loan. That's why more people in this area come to us for home loans than any other bank, mortgage company or savings institution.

So, if you're in the market for a home, drop by and see one of our friendly mortgage loan officers. We're conveniently located, probably right around the corner. And we'll make an extra effort to help you get settled.
