Justice Approves School Board Elections

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The election plan for the Pitt County Board of Education has received preclearance by the U.S. Justice Department, according to a letter received by the Pitt County Board of Elections.

With the acceptance of the new plan, the Pitt County Board of Elections, in a special meeting Monday, extended the filing date for candidates for the school board by three weeks, until noon Aug. 28.

Elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee said she received a letter from the Justice Department dated July 23 verifying the acceptance of the plan.

The election plan, which was unanimously approved by the consolidated school board in late January, was sent to the N.C. General Assembly Feb. 9. After state approval, the plan was sent to the Justice Department for acceptance.

"We are pleased that the issue is finally legally resolved and that we can maintain a focus of running a quality, instructional-oriented school system," school Superintendent Eddie West said.

The new election plan for board members consists of six districts with two members elected from each district. The boundaries of the six districts are the same as the election districts that have been set up by the Pitt County Commissioners.

The plan calls for the two seats in each district to be labeled "Seat A" and "Seat B." In the first election on Nov. 3, the person from Seat A will be elected to serve until 1992 and the person elected from Seat B would serve until 1990. Their successors and all future board members would be elected for six-year terms. There will be no at-large seats on the board.

In this first election under the approved plan, the candidates must select which seat they seek to fill. In subsequent elections, one board member will be elected from each district due to the staggered terms.

The six districts, each with an ideal population of 15,024 people, are made up of the western edge and central part of Greenville and East Carolina University; the northwest part of Greenville, Belvoir, Bethel, Carolina Township and part of Pactolus; Fountain, Falkland, Arthur and Farmville townships; Ayden, Grifton, Swift Creek, Chicod and part of Winterville Township; Pactolus, Grimesland and the eastern part of Greenville, and Winterville and the southern part of Greenville.

Greenville is divided into five different districts under the election plan.

The board of elections mailed maps to Pitt County citizens to be marked with the registered voter's address and returned to the board of elections. The maps will enable the elections board to place the citizens in the proper district for the school board election.

Coast Guard Holds Up OK For Tanker To Resume Trip

By JOHN RICE

Associated Press Writer

KUWAIT (AP) — The supertanker Bridgeton, its side torn open by a mine, prepared today to take on a load of oil even though the U.S. Coast Guard has not yet ruled on its seaworthiness, officials said.

In Washington, Coast Guard spokesman James Kosch said the 401,382-ton tanker has not been granted permission to sail on its return trip south through the Persian Gulf. Coast Guard permission is needed because the Bridgeton is registered in the United States.

But a government shipping source here said the Bridgeton would take on — probably today — about 240,000 tons of crude oil, or two-thirds the tanker's capacity.

In Bahrain, marine salvage officials said today that Saudi Arabian minesweepers have found several mines and detonated at least two of them in the gulf, a major theater in the nearly 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

"The Americans have located many more. The gulf has become a virtual minefield with its lanes too perilous to navigate," said one executive, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Bridgeton docked at Kuwait's Sea Island loading terminal today after four days at anchor several miles offshore. It hit the mine Friday 120 miles to the south.

The shipping sources said the Kuwait Oil Tanker Co. hopes that the Bridgeton, its convoy companion, Gas Prince, and their U.S. warship escorts will begin the 500-mile trip back toward the mouth of the gulf by the weekend.

After passing through the Strait of Hormuz, the Bridgeton is expected to transfer its cargo to smaller vessels and go to Dubai or Bahrain for repairs.

The Reagan administration has agreed to reflag 11 Kuwaiti vessels and provide them with U.S. protection to protect the flow of oil through the gulf.

Iran's revolutionary patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, warned the United States on Tuesday that it would suffer more "shame and disgrace" if it continued escorting Kuwaiti tankers. His remarks were carried by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government said today it is prepared to consider sending minesweepers to the Persian Gulf if asked. Spokesmen at the Defense Ministry and Foreign Office said they could not confirm news reports from Washington saying U.S. allies might be asked to send minesweepers to the gulf.

French Defense Minister Andre

Giraud today ordered the aircraft carrier Clemenceau and three support ships to sail for the Middle East "to protect our interests in the Mediterranean and in the Indian Ocean." The Indian Ocean encompasses the Arabian Sea and the Gulf of Oman — the entrance to the Persian Gulf.

A spokesman for the Defense Ministry's marine press office said the ships would sail today. France has maintained at least three warships in the Arabian Sea since the Iran-Iraq war broke out.

Soviets Convict Six In Chernobyl Blast

CHERNOBYL, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Six former officials and technicians at the Chernobyl power plant were convicted today of causing history's worst nuclear accident and sentenced to terms of up to 10 years in labor camp.

Judge Raimond Brize, who issued the verdict, cited "an atmosphere of lack of control and lack of responsibility at the station. ... People played cards and dominoes and wrote letters while they were on shift."

He said that in the past several years, there were 71 violations of safety regulations at the plant, 27 of which went unreported.

Thirty-one people were killed when an explosion and fire tore through Chernobyl's No. 4 reactor on April 26, 1986.

The blast triggered a huge leak of radiation that eventually spread around the world. Soviet officials blamed the accident on human error, saying it was due to an unauthorized experiment performed by workers who flouted safety regulations.

Tens of thousands of people were evacuated from the region around the plant, 80 miles north of Kiev, and more than 200 Soviets suffered acute radiation sickness.

The verdict against the six was believed to mark the first time nuclear power plant officials in any country were held criminally responsible for failing to ensure safety at their installations.

Among those convicted of repeatedly violating rules designed to ensure security at the power station were former plant director Viktor P. Bryukhanov, former chief engineer Nikolai M. Fomin and Fomin's assistant, Anatoly S. Dyatlov.

All three were fired after the accident and jailed while the charges against them were investigated.

Also accused were Yuri A. Laushkin, a senior engineer and atomic energy inspector at reactor No. 4, shift director Boris V. Rogozhkin and the chief of reactor No. 4, Alexander P. Kovalenko.

All the defendants but Laushkin were charged under Article 220 of the Ukrainian criminal code with violations of security measures in enterprises where explosions may result. That charge carries a maximum 10-year prison sentence.

All were found guilty of all the charges against them except Fomin, who was found not guilty of a charge of abusing power.

Alexander P. Kovalenko, the information director of the enterprise that took charge at Chernobyl following the disaster, told reporters there would be additional court hearings to determine responsibility for technical flaws in the design and building of reactor No. 4.

Kovalenko, who is not related to the defendant of the same name, also said hearings would be held to determine whether officials and plant employees had failed in their responsibilities during the evacuation after the accident or in furnishing medical care.

Brize said experts concluded Bryukhanov, the top official at Chernobyl, was the man most responsible for the accident and had done nothing to make the danger of the reactor blast and fire known.

City Planners Will Study High-Potential Properties

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

Strategic properties south of Greenville Boulevard will be the first regions reviewed as the city begins updating its Comprehensive Plan for the first time since 1981, members of the planning staff say.

"We're looking at all the districts that are south of Greenville Boulevard which we consider to be high potential property for commercial development, residential properties and office and institutional," Bobby Roberson, director of planning and community development, told the city's Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night.

"What we are interested in doing is taking a look at the Comprehensive Plan update in those districts and project the kinds of land uses that we think ought to be there and then complement it with the Zoning Ordinance."

The commission, which met to discuss long-range planning issues, received reports on the status of updates to the Comprehensive Plan and the Zoning Ordinance. Commissioners agreed to schedule long-range planning meetings for the fourth Tuesday of every month.

The planning department has already initiated research in the areas south of Greenville Boulevard, planner Lynne James said.

"Our inventory has been basically existing land uses, existing zoning, a developed land summary, and we've looked at social indicators such as age composition, race composition, income and housing value," she said.

"No final recommendation or projection has been done. We are just trying to gather inventory in order to compare what's out there with the way things were in 1981 when the original Comprehensive Plan was done."

Ms. James said the staff intends to include information about the Thoroughfare Plan and traffic circulation in the updated Comprehensive Plan.

Officials from other agencies should be included in certain long-range planning discussions, according to Dr. Wallace Woolees, chairman

UNC-TV is searching for photographs of residents of and scenes from the Albemarle Street area of Greenville known as "The Block."

These will be included in an hour-long documentary on "Pitch A Boogie Woogie," a musical feature film made in 1947 in that area.

Particularly needed are photos showing clothing and buildings of the 1940s and early 1950s. Clothing pictures need not be from "The Block," as long as they're from the time period.

These photos can be filmed while the UNC-TV crew is here in about two weeks. They will not need to leave the possession of the owner. Owners will be credited on the program of the film which will be distributed nationally.

Anyone who can help is asked to call Alex Albright, writer and co-producer, 752-7974.

NOTICE: SCHOOL LUNCH POLICY

The Pitt County School Systems announce their policy for free and reduced price meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals served under the National School Lunch, and/or School Breakfast Programs. Each school and the central office has a copy of the policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Eligibility will be determined on the following household size and income:

FAMILY SIZE	FREE MEALS			REDUCED PRICE MEALS
	YEARLY	MONTHLY	WEEKLY	YEARLY	MONTHLY	WEEKLY
1	$ 7,150	$ 596	$ 138	$10,175	$ 848	$ 196
2	9,620	802	185	13,690	1,141	264
3	12,090	1,008	233	17,205	1,434	331
4	14,560	1,214	280	20,720	1,727	399
5	17,030	1,420	328	24,235	2,020	467
6	19,500	1,625	375	27,750	2,313	534
7	21,970	1,831	423	31,265	2,606	602
8	24,440	2,037	470	34,780	2,899	669
For each additional household member, add:	+2,470	+206	+48	+3,515	+293	+68

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms have been mailed to parents who were receiving free or reduced meal benefits last year. Those families wishing to apply that did not receive an application may do so by requesting an application from the child's school or by calling 830-4226. The completed application should be filled out and returned to the Child Nutrition Department, 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina 27834 or to the child's school. The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility. Household income may be verified at any time during the school year by school or other program officials.

For the school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: names of all household members, social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one; total household income; and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. Households are required to report increases in household income of over $50 per month or $600 per year and decreases in household size. Households receiving food stamps may provide their food stamp program case number instead of income information.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. Under the provisions of the free and reduced price policy, officials will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Mr. Thomas L. Craft, Jr., Associate Superintendent, Pitt County Schools, 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina 27834; phone 830-4226.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, the household should do so on a separate application, noting that the child is a foster child.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data.

In the operation of child feeding programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.

Search Called Off For Boaters

WASHINGTON, N.C. — A search has been called off for two boaters reported missing off Wade's Point near Pamlico Beach this morning.

Sheriff Nelson R. Sheppard said Michael E. Rakauskas of Route 8, Greenville, a project engineer for Masonite, and Brent Even, whose address was not known, were reported missing at 8:30 a.m. today after they did not return from a boating trip Tuesday afternoon.

The search for the two men was called off after the men called their workplace to say they would be late coming in to work, Sheppard said. He said he did not know where the men were when they telephoned or what happened to them during the night.

The two men were in a 16-foot outboard motorboat, the sheriff said. The men had not returned to their car and trailer, which this morning were still parked near the place they launched the boat.

ECU Divers Use Shipwreck As Workshop

ECU News Bureau
YORKTOWN, Va. — A shipwreck from the Revolutionary War and an unusual diving pool built for underwater archaeology are serving as a summer classroom and workshop for divers from East Carolina University.

The students and their instructors in the ECU Maritime History and Underwater Research field school have spent July in Yorktown. They are spending to excavate a British merchant ship that was deliberately sunk in the York River at the close of the Revolutionary War.

In 1781 the British army under Lord Cornwallis had retreated to Yorktown to meet the British fleet off-shore. But a blockade of French and American ships blocked the movement of the British fleet. Cornwallis, surrounded and under siege, ordered the sinking of dozens of ships in the harbor to serve as obstructions to a rear attack by the French vessels.

Following the surrender of Cornwallis, the scuttled ships were turned over to the French who refloated many of them. Of those left on the bottom, nine ships were found in a 1978 survey and one of them was selected for one of the most unusual archaeological excavations ever made.

The excavation project is unusual because the site of the shipwreck, some 100 yards offshore from Yorktown and its historic battlefield, is completely enclosed by a cofferdam. Large pumps and a water filtration system keep the water inside the cofferdam relatively clear. It's an almost perfect environment for shipwreck study.

"It is a very unique opportunity for the students," said Gordon Watts, an underwater archaeologist and the director of the field school.

"Most archaeology projects are surveys done in finding ships and just looking at them enough to identify them," Watts said. "Few people have the opportunity to get experience in excavating a shipwreck because there are so few shipwreck excavations being done."

The ship is a two-masted brig, 75 feet long with a 23-foot beam. It rests upright in about 25 feet of water. When the water in the cofferdam is at its best it is possible to see the divers and the outline of the ship from the surface. About eight to 10 feet of visibility is average. In the sunlight the 97-by-45 foot cofferdam resembles a bright green pool in a muddy brown river.

Working in teams of five the students and archaeologist wear either scuba cylinders of compressed air on their backs or they use hookah masks which are connected to surface air pumps by long yellow hoses. In excavating the wreck they carefully remove the mud that has covered the hull of the vessel for the past 200 years. This mud has helped keep the vessel in relatively good shape.

Loose pieces of planking are carefully removed and hauled to the surface where they are photographed and sketched. The pieces are then returned to a pile of wood at the bottom in a corner of the dam. These wood artifacts must be kept submerged or they will quickly dry and crumble into dust.

Other artifacts such as metal and ceramics are also recovered from the ship and catalogued. Some of the artifacts that have been recovered include parts of the ship's rigging, eating utensils, an intact wine bottle and fragments of other bottles. A wooden box and pieces of leather have also been recovered.

Atypical of most artifacts at the site, an unbroken drinking glass was retrieved from about two feet down in the mud that covers a portion of the wreck. Inscribed on the glass is the name and figure of Elvis Presley.

More in keeping with the 1781 time period is an unusual small piece of lead shaped like a bottle cork and covered with inscription and symbols. Identification of this artifact has not been made.

Aside from the artifacts, the real value in the excavation is learning about the ship itself.

"These were merchant ships and very little is known about them," said Watts. "We know about warships of the period but the documentation just doesn't exist on the merchant vessels. That makes these ships more valuable historically."

"In terms of what we know about ships, a vessel such as this is extremely important," he said.

Clues to the vessel's origin and type have become known almost as slowly as the mud is cleared from the ship's interior.

"We've excavated enough to know that it had a very boxy shaped hull with unusual bow and stern construction," said John Broadwater, Virginia underwater archaeologist and the director of the Yorktown Shipwreck Project.

He said the evidence so far indicates the ship was intended for the east coast coal trade. This type of vessel was called a collier.

Broadwater said that in the stern of the vessel they found enough furniture and furniture items to know that the captain had a fairly comfortable place to live. There was raised paneling on the walls and there were

Appointments Made

Several administrative appointments have been made at East Carolina University, according to Eugene Ryan, dean of the college of arts and sciences.

Dr. Moses M. Sheppard, a member of the ECU faculty for 24 years, has been named chairman of the science education department. Sheppard has served as acting chairman of science education for the past two years and will succeed the retiring chairman, Dr. Floyd E. Mattheis, at the start of the 1987-88 academic year.

Lt. Col. William Patton of the U.S. Air Force has assumed chairmanship of the department of aerospace studies, succeeding Lt. Col. Paul D. Knoke. Knoke, who was aerospace studies chairman for three years, is retiring from the Air Force and will join the faculty of the English department.

Dr. Katherine Hodgkin of the mathematics department has been named chairman of the Science and Math Education Center, also succeeding Mattheis. Dr. Hodgkin served as acting chairman of the center during the spring semester.

Dr. W. Keats Sparrow, professor of English, will serve as acting chairman of the English department while the chairman, Dr. William Bloodworth, serves an interim appointment as vice chancellor for academic affairs.

"Truth In Preference To Fiction"

Not Reasonable

In a year when inflation is running four percent, hospital room rate increases averaging 16 percent at Pitt County Memorial Hospital are not reasonable.

The increases are inconsistent with the concept that patient care — specifically charges for rooms — should be kept as affordable as possible. The large increases appear to be out of line. The hospital administration, when faced with financial ends that didn't meet, apparently took the most facilitative option — upping room charges.

Consider these examples: One group of surgical and obstetrical beds will increase from $168 to $200 per day — a 19 percent increase. Even the lowest increase — seven percent in medical and surgical beds — is nearly double the inflation rate.

Administrators' arguments the sharp increase is needed to compensate for three years of operation with no fee increase are weak. If costs were rising these three years, why wasn't a long range plan to deal effectively with this trend considered sooner?

By implementing these higher fees, the hospital administration seems to be falsely assuming patients' room rates will be absorbed by insurance. This may or may not be true. Not every individual who has cardiac surgery or obstetric complications has a good insurance policy to protect them from rising costs. Even if insurance companies do absorb the costs, the percentage of the bill not paid by insurance — and consequently paid out of the patient's pocket — increases concurrently with room rates. It is likely insurance rates — also paid by consumers — will increase.

Besides, PCMH has a distinct obligation to keep medical care affordable to eastern North Carolina. Skyrocketing room rates may be the easy way out of dealing with rising costs. There is no doubt medical costs are escalating, but room rates paid by patients should only absorb their fair share of that rise. Tight management practices should also be applied to problem. Room rates shouldn't be the scapegoat.

The board's decision to sharply increase room charges appears to be an effort to solve a financial dilemma by squeezing the most easily manipulated item of revenue — patient costs. It is likely, however, patient care is not the only culprit of rising costs. Loose management could easily contribute to the predicament, and blaming increased expenses entirely on care cost is not fair.

PCMH's administration should look within its operation with a sharp pencil in hand before it further raises room rates.

AZT Helping

As the medical experts ponder the spread of Acquired Immune Deficiency (AIDS) there seems little to halt it.

The fact that the only stop gap measure is manufactured locally is of considerable interest.

The disease could be of epidemic proportions and there is no way to determine how extensive its effects on the world population will be. It is known that it is deadly and the end result for those who contract it is predictable.

With such a morose assessment of the AIDS spread, there is one ray of hope with the development of the drug AZT (azidothymidine) by Burroughs Wellcome. The drug, which is manufactured at the Greenville plant, has been shown to be effective against AIDS. A study published last week showed that AIDS patients on AZT had a death rate about four to six times lower than usual during their first nine months on AZT.

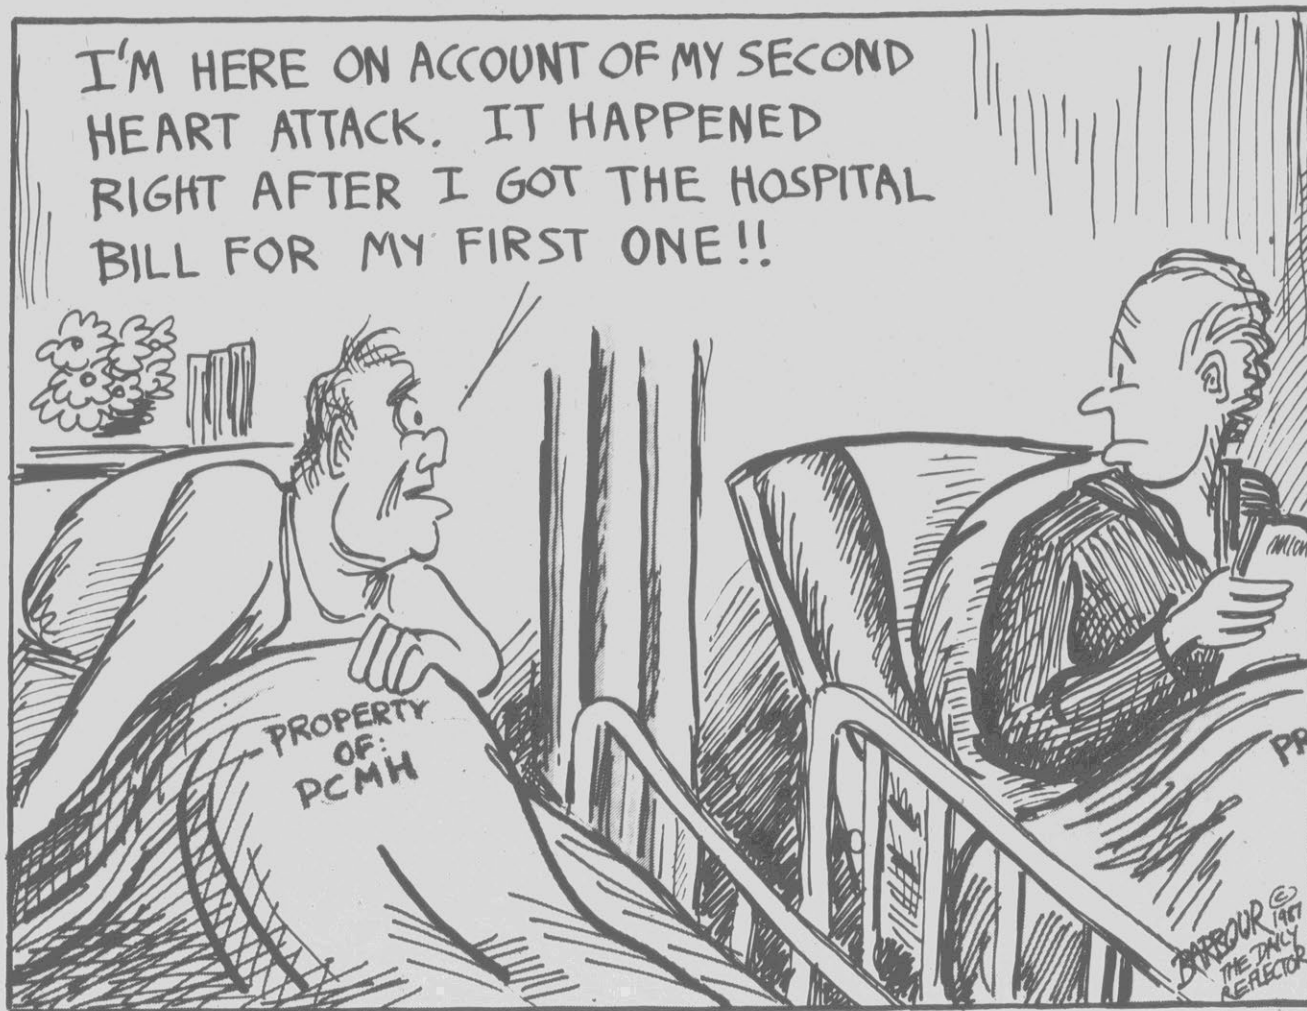

There are plenty of cautions. The drug is not a cure, it is expensive and it has side effects. Researchers cautioned: "Further studies will be needed to define the optimal dose of AZT and to understand the full range of benefit in the various stages of HIV (AIDS virus) infection."

The drug was only approved for use by patients in March and the study, which was directed by University of Miami's Dr. Margaret A. Fischl and published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, began at 12 medical centers in February 1986.

The study showed that of 145 patients who were treated with AZT, six percent died after nine months and 10 percent died after a year. Of 137 patients who took placebos, 37 percent died within nine months.

"Too few patients in that group were alive after nine months to provide meaningful one-year mortality rates, but other studies have shown that it would be in the range of 50 percent," said Dr. David Barry, vice president of research at Burroughs Wellcome.

While AZT is not a cure and the long range effects are not known, the study indicates it may be helping. It offers hope that drug developments in the future will be increasingly effective against this baffling disease that is causing worldwide concern.

Meese: A Study In Curious Incuriosity

WASHINGTON — To the attorney general of the United States, the Iran-Contra affair was a case of confusion, and during his first day on the witness stand Edwin Meese III left as many questions unanswered as answered. His testimony was a study in curious incuriosity.

It was also a study in contradictions between Meese's role as the president's longtime personal adviser, friend and political confidant and his position as the nation's chief legal officer. These, too, were left largely unreconciled by Meese's Capitol Hill appearance Tuesday.

For the congressional Iran-Contra committees, Meese added another dimension to the parade of witnesses in the hearing rooms and before the television cameras. Retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord appeared arrogant while testifying; former national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane was discursive; Lt. Col. Oliver L. North was seductive; Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter was evasive; Secretary of State George P. Shultz was wronged.

Meese was affable throughout. And the story he told was marked by singular lack of passion — and curiosity. As he described it, his inquiry for President Reagan into the origins of the Iran arms deals was casual. He seems to have experienced no sense of alarm, anger or betrayal as he learned that some of the president's closest advisers were deeply involved in what he himself belatedly recognized to be a possible criminal matter.

By his own account, he appeared reluctant to ask key officials tough questions about exactly what they knew. He did not directly ask Director of Intelligence William J. Casey, for instance, whether he knew about the diversion of arms sales profits to the Nicaraguan Contra forces. He never asked the president whether he knew about the diversion. He apparently never specifically asked Reagan to relate everything he knew about the early arms-for-hostages discussions, nor did he ask what the president had authorized, what he had been told and by whom. He didn't ask former national security adviser Poindexter whether he had received other memoranda outlining the diversion scheme sent "up the line" to him by North. He didn't ask his department's criminal division to enter the case until many official documents dealing with it had been altered or destroyed.

'To the attorney general of the United States, the Iran-Contra affair was a case of confusion, and during his first day on the witness stand Edwin Meese III left as many questions unanswered as answered.'

One moment Tuesday crystalized Meese's state of mind as he described his efforts to gather "the facts" for the president and the American people and end internal administration confusion that he said surrounded the secret U.S.-Iran arms deals. It came when he was being questioned by House chief counsel John W. Nields Jr. about a critical moment in the unraveling political drama last November. It was Nov. 20, when much of the damaging story was being publicly disclosed, much more was in jeopardy of being exposed and Meese had just been informed by Justice Department aides that high government officials had knowledge flatly contradicting stories being given by other key participants.

"Did it at least cross your mind during your conversation ... that you might be dealing with something more than just confusion?" Nields asked the attorney general.

"No sir, it did not," Meese replied. "As a matter of fact, that didn't cross my mind at any time during that day or the next several days."

The night before, Reagan had given what Meese testified he knew to have been inaccurate information about the Iran arms sales during a nationally televised press conference — a matter of Reagan's being poorly briefed, the attorney general said he believed — and Casey was preparing to give congressional intelligence committees a misleading story that "oil drilling equipment" instead of arms had been shipped to Iran by Israel a year before. Poindexter was also preparing to brief intelligence committees the next day.

In that context, Meese received two phone calls at West Point from Justice Department aides, where he was giving a speech. They warned him that Shultz had been told by McFarlane that Hawk missiles, not oil drilling equipment, had been shipped to Iran a year before — and that Shultz had contemporaneous notes to prove it. Meese was also told, according to testimony before the committee, that Shultz's State Department legal adviser, Abraham D. Sofaer, "was sufficiently alarmed about this issue" that he or others in the government were "ready to resign over it."

Meese said he canceled a planned trip to Harvard University and returned to Washington, explaining: "I felt that I owed a duty to the president to let him know that there was a great deal of confusion about this matter, and this was obviously a major issue as far as the administration was concerned."

This prompted him to tell the president the next day in an Oval Office meeting also attended by White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan "that I was concerned that there seemed to be a lot of confusion among the people who were participating or who had some knowledge of the Iranian initiative."

Out of that came his charge from the president "to develop an overview of the facts" — with a promise that it would be completed by 2 p.m. the following Monday in time for a scheduled National Security Planning Group meeting on Iran.

By Monday, Meese had learned of the now-famous North "diversion" memo. In his testimony Tuesday, he told how he informed the president and chief of staff Regan about the diversion scheme. The president was "quite surprised," he said, and indicated he had not known about it. Regan was also "quite surprised."

But none of them, according to Meese's testimony, demanded to know more. They didn't ask to have Poindexter or North summoned before them to clear things up, or ask what other potentially damaging or embarrassing events might have occurred. Like Ed Meese, the president's lawyer and friend, they all seemed to view it as a case of some confusion.

More And More, Deregulation Won't Fly

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who also happens to be the Democratic leader of the Senate, told a presidential commission the other day that he voted for airline deregulation but now believes that it was a mistake. He said that, given the chance, he would vote — "twice if I could" — to bring back federal regulation.

Reregulation is not just around the corner. But more and more complaints are being heard about delayed flights, overbooking, mishandling of baggage and deteriorating safety in the air. Some experts see evidence that the lower fares brought about by deregulation will be very temporary.

The question of whether deregulation has adversely affected air safety will be among the issues addressed by the Presidential Commission on Aviation Safety in its report next April. As the caustic comment by Byrd suggests, Congress is already beginning to stir. The advisability of reimposing regulation clearly has entered the realm of respectable discussion.

Under the regulatory system that prevailed 10 years ago, the airlines could not establish new routes, abandon old ones, raise or lower fares without the permission of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Limited competition was the norm on major routes. Fares were inflexible. Would-be entrants into the airline business found it very difficult to obtain the required certification.

The 1978 Airline Deregulation Act did not diminish federal powers and responsibility in the safety realm, but substantially eliminated economic regulation.

The goal of deregulation, opposed at the time by most major airlines, was to engender more competition, thereby helping consumers from the standpoint of both service and ticket prices.

Last year the conservative Heritage Foundation and the liberal-oriented Brookings Institution both issued reports saying that these goals had been substantially achieved.

According to their reports, deregulation has saved air travelers $6 billion a year and fares are 39 percent below what they would have been without deregulation. Last year 90 percent of all airline passengers flew at fare discounts averaging 61 percent. And there is no question that the bargain fares stimulated a huge upsurge in air travel.

Within recent months, however, it has become obvious that airline deregulation is not an unmitigated success story.

Those bargain fares are mostly on the long-distance, heavily traveled routes linking major air-travel centers. For anybody flying just a few hundred miles on a lightly traveled route, things are different.

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has charged that "it now costs more to fly 150 miles between two major cities in South Dakota than it does to fly 3,000 miles across the continent." Byrd grumbles that he sees "cross-country fares at a fraction of the cost to fly into West Virginia." Similar complaints have been voiced by Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum, R-Kan., about the fare differential between flights into Kansas City and Wichita.

The experience of recent months suggests that from now on the trend will be toward higher ticket prices, both on the routes that feature cut-rate fares and those that don't. Their evidence is disputed, but critics also charge that economic development in small towns is being retarded by the lack of adequate air service.

Air passengers, meanwhile, are discovering that all too often the flip side of cut-rate fares is lousy service.

Then there is the question of safety. In terms of actual fatalities the overall airline safety record shows no signs of deterioration. But the number of close calls has become unnerving.

As they look at all these elements on the negative side of the deregulation balance sheet, more and more critics see a common thread: the trend back toward monopoly in the airline business.

Strength For Today

It is always a refreshing experience to read the history of the early Christian Church during the first and second centuries. Hundreds of these early Christians died the death of martyrs — a sacrifice that very few people in our generation would make for any cause. Others left vivid and compelling testimony to their faith.

To cite only two of these men, Irenaeus, Bishop of Lyons, wrote about the joy and power of the Christian faith in a way which even today gladdens all who read it. Tertullian, about the year 200, commended the teaching of Christ to a pagan world in words that remind us of the crisp style of modern journalism.

One reads of these ancient saints with a grateful consciousness that from the beginning Christ has been a mysterious source of new life for those who trust him.

Moorman Will Get New Trial

RALEIGH (AP) — Percy Moorman's attorney will ask the courts to release the former North Carolina State football player on bond after the state Supreme Court ruled that Moorman received ineffective counsel during his trial and should have a new hearing.

In its decision Tuesday, the Supreme Court also ruled that the N.C. Court of Appeals wrongfully threw out Moorman's second-degree rape conviction.

"The next logical move for us is to make a motion that he be allowed to post bond and remain free while awaiting his new trial," said Roger Smith, Moorman's attorney.

Moorman told WPPT-AM he hoped he would be released on bond.

"I would hope so. I really can't say when or how long it would take, but I'm just overjoyed I would get a new trial," said Moorman, who has been held in the Harnett Youth Center.

Moorman had been convicted in 1985 of second-degree rape, second-degree sexual offense and breaking and entering. The victim, a North Carolina State coed, had testified that she awoke to find Moorman engaged in sexual relations with her and that he later forced her to engage in anal sex.

The North Carolina Court of Appeals earlier overturned the second-degree rape conviction, but upheld the other two convictions to keep his 12-year sentence in place.

In its 22-page ruling Tuesday, the Supreme Court said the second-degree rape conviction should not have been overturned and the Court of Appeals should have ordered a new trial on all three charges because of ineffective counsel.

The appeals court held that the indictment charging Moorman with rape was defective because the victim had testified she was asleep, making her a "physically helpless" victim. But the Supreme Court ruled that the state was not required to indict Moorman under the "physically helpless" statute because force was used and the victim had not given her consent.

The Supreme Court also overruled the appeals court by deciding that Moorman received ineffective counsel during his trial. Moorman and other witnesses had testified at a hearing after his conviction that defense lawyer Jerry Paul used prescription drugs during the trial, was frequently inattentive and made a sweeping opening statement that was not backed up by evidence presented during the trial.

Barrier To Youthful Executions Enacted

RALEIGH (AP) — Months of lobbying by legal and religious groups paid off with enactment of a law virtually barring capital punishment for those who kill before their 17th birthday, the measure's sponsor said.

"I think what really made a difference is the education process, the fact that a lot of people really took the time to think ... about putting minors, children, to death," Rep. Sidney Locks, D-Robeson, said Tuesday.

The House took final action on the bill after a couple of minutes of

Bob Hope Joins Building Troupe

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Jimmy Carter, who had brought his hammer and nails to Habitat for Humanity's house-raising blitz, was joined by comedian Bob Hope, who brought his one-liners, but both men praised the other for their work.

Hope, who arrived at the construction site Tuesday, was asked why he became involved.

"It's because of this fellow right here," he said, pointing to Carter. "I asked him a couple of years ago what I could do and I sent some money. I told him I'd join him this year. I'm happy to be here."

"It's a marvelous thing," he said. "It's wonderful that people can come together to build houses for the homeless."

Carter, who has taken very few breaks since work began Monday morning, saved his praise for the comedian.

"It's people like Bob Hope that make this possible," he said.

Hope, who gave a benefit concert Tuesday night in Charlotte for the non-profit organization, was presented with an unusual hammer by Carter when he reported for work shortly before noon.

"I told Jimmy I can drive a ball but I can't drive a nail too far," said Hope, as he displayed the cut-off version of a golf putter complete with colored golf tees for nails. "I'll have to stoop down to play with this one."

Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter are in Charlotte to participate in Habitat for Humanity's house-raising blitz. Work began Monday, and hundreds of volunteers from 28 states and Canada hope to complete 14 houses for the poor by Friday.

The Carters have previously worked on Habitat projects in New York and Chicago.

By noon on the second day of the project, the exteriors of the houses were nearing completion. Some workers were putting on roofs and siding. Others were inside putting up walls and interior fixtures.

Heavy rains overnight cooled things off Tuesday morning at the former baseball field just northeast of downtown Charlotte. But by the time Hope arrived with former Miss America Susan Akin, temperatures were back on the rise.

Carter put down his hammer to greet Hope and meet with the throng of television, radio and print reporters who were surrounding the house that the Carters have been assigned to work on.

Habitat for Humanity, which is based in Americus, Ga., receives no government support for its building projects. Other Habitat projects are under way this week in 16 other U.S. cities and six foreign countries.

The Christian organization's goal is to build decent houses for low-income people by selling them through no-interest, no-profit loans. Charlotte already has 16 Habitat homes in the Optimist Park area.

The 14 homes will be the most ever built at one time by Habitat for Humanity in one location.

Early Sales Stronger

Tobacco Farmers Heeding Cautions Over Chemicals

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — As North Carolina farmers prepare for next week's opening of the state's flue-cured tobacco markets, state agriculture officials say the leaf growers are taking seriously warnings against using artificial ripening agents on their crop.

A large shipment of R.J. Reynolds cigarettes to Japan had to be withdrawn after inspections showed some of the leaf was tainted with dicamba — a herbicide approved for use on grain crops, but not tobacco.

"I think that situation is under control," said T. Carlton Blalock, executive director of the Tobacco Growers Association of North Carolina. "We've been pleased with the response from growers, who recognize the potential this has for hurting our markets, especially our foreign markets."

"I have not talked to a single tobacco farmer who was not fully aware that he should not use unauthorized chemicals," said Weldon Denny, tobacco affairs specialist for the state Department of Agriculture. "And I think our companies feel like every effort is being made to make sure the rules and regulations are complied with."

The farm situation is in bad shape out there," Denny said. "Our farmers sure could use a good year."

Both Weldon and Denny said higher opening day prices on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets Tuesday bode well for market openings North Carolina, as long as enough rain falls to help the crop mature.

"We had been led to believe the market would open stronger than it did last year, but the figures we are hearing are even higher than we had hoped," Blalock said. "If we can get some rain to let the crop go ahead and develop and mature as it has the potential to do, we believe we will see that strength (in the market) continue here."

The Tobacco Market News Service reported a total of 1,299,895 pounds were sold at six Georgia markets Tuesday for an average price of $128.36 per hundred pounds. At one Florida market, 309,286 pounds were sold at an average price of $125.42 per hundred. Total sales were 1,609,181 pounds at an average price of $127.79 per hundred, up $5.83 from opening day of 1986.

Last year's opening day sales on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt averaged $124.25 per hundred.

"Overall, we've got a pretty good crop of tobacco," Denny said. "With some rain, we feel like the market season is going to be pretty good. It should equal last year or even go higher."

"I think it stands to reason our opening prices would follow the trend in Georgia," Denny said. "There have been years when it's opened a little lower in Georgia and a little higher on the Border and Eastern markets."

"Based on the figures on the Georgia market, I'd say that's a good indication North Carolina's going to have mighty good sales this year," N.C. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said. "The quality of North Carolina tobacco overall appears to be very good, with a few exceptions — those counties that haven't received as much rain as they should. But overall, tobacco looks like it's going to be good to our farmers in 1987."

IN THE STATE

Court Defines Legal Status Of Unborn Child In Suits

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — An unborn child developed to the point of being able to live outside the womb is legally "a person" for the purpose of wrongful-death lawsuits, the state Supreme Court has ruled.

In a landmark 6-1 decision issued Tuesday, North Carolina's highest court said a person whose negligence causes the death of an unborn child can be required to pay damages.

But because it cannot be proven what kind of person the child would have been or what he or she would have accomplished in life, the compensation available in such cases is more limited than in other wrongful-death cases, a narrower majority of the court ruled.

Also, the court ruled that a lawsuit alleging wrongful death of a fetus must be joined with any other suit, such as a malpractice claim, based on the same incident. Otherwise, the defendants might have to pay double compensation.

In a majority opinion written by Chief Justice James Exum, the court said the General Assembly did not appear to have considered the question of the unborn when enacting the state's wrongful-death law. It allows the estate of a deceased person to sue when the death was caused by a "wrongful act, neglect or default."

"A viable fetus, whatever its legal status might be, is undeniably alive and undeniably human," Exum wrote. "It is, by definition, capable of life independent of its mother."

The ruling was hailed by Richard Hartney, executive director of North Carolina Right-To-Life, who said it was "one more in a long line of decisions which shows that unborn children are inherently valuable and that they deserve protection."

The court's ruling came in the case of Anthony Michael DiDonato and Norma DiDonato, who sued two doctors in Mecklenburg County Superior Court alleging their negligence resulted in the stillbirth of the couple's child in 1982.

According to Exum's opinion, Mrs. DiDonato's doctors, William J. Wortman and John T. Hart, estimated the child would be born Oct. 10. On Oct. 26, the child had not been born, but an examination revealed a healthy heartbeat.

Four days later, the heartbeat had stopped and Mrs. DiDonato delivered a stillborn baby by cesarean section.

A Superior Court judge in 1985 threw out the suit, ruling that a fetus — even one capable of sustaining life on its own — legally is not a person. The North Carolina Court of Appeals upheld the ruling.

The Supreme Court overruled the lower courts.

Exum's opinion says suits seeking damages for fetal injuries are allowed by virtually every state including North Carolina, and that Minnesota permitted them as early as 1949.

Laws Upheld

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court has upheld the constitutionality of the state's obscenity laws, but the justices said the statutes could go beyond constitutional bounds if improperly applied.

"Fact situations are readily conceivable in which the statutes at issue, if improperly applied, would be unconstitutional," Associate Justice Willis Whichard wrote in the Supreme Court ruling handed down Tuesday. "Circumspect application is thus advisable."

The ruling affirmed an earlier decision by the N.C. Court of Appeals. It came in a case in which four different groups of video stores had challenged amendments to the state's obscenity laws, saying the changes would make them targets for prosecution and would violate both their rights and the rights of their customers.

Arrests

DENVER, N.C. (AP) — Three men have been arrested in connection with the June 15 shooting and stabbing murder and robbery of a Denver woman, police said.

Arrested were J.B. "Babe" Colvard Jr., 31, of Lincolnton; Bryan Maurice "B.A." Adams, 18, of Lincolnton; and Lamar Dean "Cherokee" Hensley, 18, of Maiden, according to Maj. Richard Cannon of the Catawba County Sheriff's Department.

Adams and Hensley each have been charged with one count of murder and one count of armed robbery, Cannon said. Colvard has been charged with one count of conspiracy to commit robbery.

The three men were arrested in connection with the murder and robbery of Debra Foster Keever, 33. Mrs. Keever was killed deputies said, when she left Phillips General Store in Maiden, where she was employed.

Prisoner Suits

WILMINGTON (AP) — A federal jury has rejected a prison inmate's lawsuit in which he claimed that a Sampson County sheriff's detective and other officers beat him the night he was arrested.

The jury deliberated about 30 minutes Tuesday before deciding that Detective Landis Lee did not use excessive force the night of Aug. 6, 1986, when sheriff's deputies and Clinton police officers arrested Luther Nance.

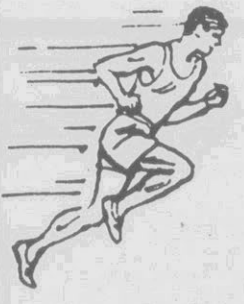

Nance, 36, is serving a 14-year sentence for a second-degree burglary at the Columbus County prison unit near Whiteville. He asked for $500,000 in damages in his suit against Lee. Nance represented himself in the trial of the lawsuit.

Baryshnikov

ASHEVILLE (AP) — International dance superstar Mikhail Baryshnikov dazzled a standing-room-only audience Tuesday night during a return engagement at Asheville's Thomas Wolfe Auditorium.

Baryshnikov was joined by 10 members of the American Ballet Theater. The concert was divided into three acts and Baryshnikov appeared in each — "Don Quixote," George Balanchine's "Apollo" and Balanchine's "Who Cares," featuring music by George Gershwin.

The Asheville visit was Baryshnikov's only North Carolina stop on a 27-city United States tour.

ON THE MOVE — Evangelist Jim Bakker gives a wave as he joins his wife, Tammy Faye, in leaving their California home Tuesday. The Bakkers, followed by a rental moving van, set off for their new $148,000 chalet in Gatlinburg, Tenn. (AP Laserphoto)

Bakkers Give Up California Home For Tennessee Resort

By LOUIS SAHAGUNC
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — Pulling out of the driveway of their sprawling hacienda here in a white Cadillac convertible followed by a yellow moving van, fallen televangelists Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker left California Tuesday for their new home in Tennessee.

"Bye bye! We love you!" Tammy Faye shouted to reporters and on-lookers from the back seat as the car drove away. A silent Jim Bakker simply waved.

Well-wishers, television camera crews and news reporters waited most of the day in 100-degree heat for the expected departure of the Bakkers, who have been packing their belongings for days. The couple retreated to their resort home here four months ago when Jim Bakker was forced to resign as head of the multimillion dollar PTL television ministry in Fort Mill, S.C. The resignation stemmed from Bakker's revelation that he had an extramarital sexual encounter with a former church secretary and then arranged for payment of $265,000 in PTL funds to keep it quiet.

In the months since, the Bakkers have emerged for periodic media appearances and have vowed to re-establish their ministry. Meanwhile, PTL, which stands for "Praise The Lord" and "People That Love," has filed for bankruptcy under its new leader, the Rev. Jerry Falwell. Federal investigators are also probing Bakker's operation of the PTL.

Some of the believers were on hand when the couple motored off into the desert Tuesday.

Charles Clark, a slim 15-year-old with sandy brown hair and tinted glasses, said he waited five days for a meeting with the Bakkers. Earlier that day he was invited into the house and got his wish.

"Jim shook my hand. Tammy hugged me," Clark said. "Together, they said, 'God bless you.'"

Earlier, Tammy Faye Bakker talked briefly with two reporters who followed her into a bank.

Wearing a brown pants suit with a plunging neckline, a jewel-encrusted gold watch and far less make-up than usual, she withdrew $500 in cash for gasoline and food on the road to their new home in Gatlinburg, Tenn.

"We are having to be very careful (about money)," Tammy Faye said.

"We're driving back. ... It's a long haul," she added, misty-eyed.

What lies ahead is a new life in an 1,800 square-foot, $150,000 home on a heavily wooded hill overlooking a valley in Tennessee.

"Of course, we have fallen in love with Palm Springs," said Tammy Faye. "But it's always sad to change. Ladies don't make changes well. Ladies like things to stay the same."

Bakker, who was well-known here for her frequent shopping sprees in the resort's posh clothing and jewelry stores, insisted that the prospects of having to live in more modest environs was not a problem.

"Things don't make a difference to us," she said. "We've lived in small houses and big houses and we were just as happy."

The Bakkers have said they decided to put their desert home up for sale when PTL officials recently moved to cut off their annual salary of $1.6 million.

Real estate agent and family friend Emma Howard said at least 30 potential buyers have toured their home here in recent weeks. Thus far, there have been no takers, she said. The asking tag was reduced from $700,000 to $650,000 on Friday.

'Bill Of Rights'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 198-year-old document that is the only known surviving handwritten draft of the Bill of Rights has been discovered in "fine condition" within the walls of the Library of Congress.

James C. Hutson, chief of the library's manuscript division, said Tuesday he came across the document while doing research in the oft-used volumes of the papers of James Madison, who led efforts to adopt the amendments that became the Bill of Rights.

"People obviously had seen it before, but probably hadn't realized what it was," Hutson said. "This is the only handwritten copy of the Bill of Rights that exists."

The four-page document, dated July 1789, was written by Connecticut delegate Roger Sherman, but not signed. The authorship was established by reviewing other handwriting samples at the Library of Congress, Hutson said.

Displaced Homemakers

Study Shows Sharp Increase In Women Without Incomes

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of homemakers who have lost their main source of income through divorce, death of a husband or other means has more than doubled in 10 years, says a study released today.

There are now 11.5 million displaced homemakers in the United States compared to only 4.1 million in 1976, according to an analysis of Census data commissioned by the Displaced Homemakers Network.

"Skyrocketing divorce rates, persistent age discrimination and increased longevity have joined forces to create a virtual war of circumstances against the American homemaker," DHN president Donna LeClair said in a statement.

A displaced homemaker is defined as one who has lost most of her income due to divorce, separation, widowhood, a disabled or long-term unemployed spouse, or loss of welfare benefits. If she is employed, she works part-time or for part of the year.

LeClair said displaced homemakers spend their lives raising children, cleaning house, driving car pools and leading PTA meetings, and then must suddenly make ends meet without unemployment insurance and often without health insurance or jobs.

"These women are paying a very high price for their unpaid careers as homemakers," she said.

DHN officers said their study indicates that many American women still are "only a man away from poverty." They said government officials at all levels should pay more attention to their needs.

The network represents nearly 1,000 local programs that help displaced homemakers find jobs, training, child care, literacy classes and other services. There were only about 400 such programs two years ago, the group said.

Among the findings of the DHN analysis:

- Two-thirds of displaced homemakers are unemployed.
- Two in five displaced homemakers live below the federal poverty level; 21 percent have incomes of no more than 150 percent of the poverty level, an amount the Labor Department says is adequate to meet day-to-day expenses.
- Two-thirds are widows and 30 percent are divorced or separated.
- Nearly one in four displaced homemaker has minor children at home.
- Fifty-six percent of displaced homemakers lack a high school diploma, and 22 percent of those between 25 and 65 did not complete sixth grade.
- Black women comprise 16 percent of displaced homemakers; Hispanic women, 5 percent.

Florida Judge, Two Others Killed In Courtroom Shooting Rampage

PORT ST. JOE, Fla. (AP) — A man charged with fatally shooting a judge and two other people during a courthouse rampage had written numerous letters to newspapers that showed he was "angry at the world," an editor says.

Clyde Melvin, who authorities said opened fire with two guns Tuesday during a court conference about alimony payments, had fretted in his letters about "warmongers in Washington," and Zionist and communist conspiracies.

The 62-year-old security guard from Appalachicola also shot his ex-wife, Eleanor Inez Huckleba, whom he accused of infidelity, before he was shot by a sheriff, authorities said.

Melvin was treated at Gulf Pines Hospital and was ordered held without bail at the Gulf County Jail on three counts of murder in the slayings of Ms. Huckleba's lawyer, his ex-wife's sister and Circuit Judge Wilson Lamar Bailey, 64.

Ms. Huckleba, 58, was in stable condition with a head wound described as minor by State Attorney James Appleman.

The shootings began in Bailey's conference room.

Appleman said Melvin, a 30-year employee of St. Joe Forests Products' paper mill, fired seven or eight shots from two handguns, first killing Ms. Huckleba's attorney, Thomas E. Ingles, 43, of Panama City.

Ingles may have tried to disarm Melvin in the conference room, authorities said.

Melvin then chased down the judge and killed him with a blast through a bathroom door; gunned down Ms. Huckleba's sister, Peggy White Paulk, 55, of Sumatra, on a stairway, and shot his wife as she fled to a roof, authorities said.

"It was horrid," said Sheriff Al Harrison, who ended the rampage by wounding Melvin on the roof. He said he found Melvin and his former wife, both shot, bleeding and arguing.

"I've showed you for running around on me," the sheriff quoted Melvin as saying. The sheriff said Ms. Huckleba responded, "I've never run around on you in my life."

Authorities said Melvin had never been in trouble with the law.

"It's obvious the guy cracked, the pressure got to him," said Public Defender Virgil Q. Mayo, who was assigned to represent Melvin. "And whether you call that temporary insanity, that's up to the experts in the field."

The Melvins, who were divorced in November, were in court for a hearing on a complaint that he was behind on his $350-a-month alimony payments, authorities said.

Harrison said he saw Melvin shoot his former wife. The sheriff said he then fired two shots and yelled at Melvin to drop his gun, and fired when Melvin turned and aimed at him.

The courthouse in this city of about 4,000 on the Gulf of Mexico 125 miles southwest of Tallahassee has no metal detector at the entrance, Appleman said.

Melvin had a permit to carry a gun during working hours, according to St. Joe personnel director John Howard, who said that Melvin's work record was good and that he had never shown any violent behavior.

He was "not violent, just kind of different — the kind of person who always has an opinion," said Shirley Ramsey, a typesetter at the local weekly newspaper, The Star.

Conspiracies and criticism of the U.S. government and Israel were common themes of Melvin's letters to The Panama City News-Herald.

"The warmongers in Washington claim that all this terrorism has (Moammar) Gadhafi's fingerprints all over it," Melvin wrote in a letter published Feb. 23, 1986. "But they haven't proven anything."

"He was kind of on the fringe area," said Bill Mansfield, editorial page editor of the Tallahassee Democrat, where Melvin also sent letters.

Mansfield said Melvin called Franklin D. Roosevelt "a communist traitor" and blamed criticism of President Reagan's visit to West

Germany's Bitburg cemetery on the "Zionist press."

"They were kind of confused," Mansfield said. "He put a lot of things together, but he obviously was angry at the world."

Bailey, a grandfather of two who had earlier announced plans to retire next July was remembered by townspeople as a firm but fair jurist with a ready smile.

"He was like an Andy of Mayberry," said bookkeeper Elna Adams, a business associate of Bailey's, referring to the folksy sheriff in television's "The Andy Griffith Show." "His eyes actually sparkled when he smiled at you."

Area Debutantes To Make Bows In September

Seven debutantes from Martin and Pitt counties will make their formal bows to society Sept. 11 at the annual North Carolina Debutante Ball which will be held in Raleigh's Civic Center.

Luther D. Moore of Greenville will be the chief escort for his debutante granddaughter, Amanda Moore Johnson of Greenville. Her assisting marshal will be Clay Young, also of Greenville. He is a rising sophomore student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Miss Johnson's mother, Ann Moore Johnson, and sister, Jamie, also made their debuts. Following tradition, Miss Johnson will be wearing the presentation gown which was worn by her mother and sister.

Miss Johnson is working this summer as a teller at First Citizen's Bank. "I think working as a teller will be an invaluable experience since I am considering a possible future career incorporating business and finance. The job requires a lot of responsibility and I feel it has helped me to become a more disciplined and responsible person," she said.

A student at UNC-CH, Miss Johnson is a business administration major. "I think business will be a demanding job field when I complete college," she said. Miss Johnson devoted a lot of time last year to studying. "I am looking forward to the beginning of school in the fall, trying something new — living in an apartment off campus. My roommate of last year, Paige Latham, and I are both anticipating a lot of hard work and new experiences. Paige is also a debutante," said Miss Johnson.

"This has been a different type of summer — since I am working and having to follow a work schedule and being in town during the week instead of having free time," she said.

Miss Johnson enjoys swimming and deep sea fishing with friends.

AMANDA MOORE JOHNSON

Judith Paige Latham is interested in a pharmacy major at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, where she is a rising sophomore.

"I receive a lot of encouragement from my sister-in-law and uncle, who are pharmacists. Both of my parents were very supportive especially after I had a chemistry exam. Chemistry is not one of my favorite subjects, but I'm going to learn to like it," said Miss Latham.

Miss Latham is a member of Kappa Delta sorority at the University, which "has been a lot of fun." In a large university system, the sorority has enabled me to be a part of a smaller group and meet a lot of new people," she said.

She attended the first summer school session there and took a required course in psychology. She also worked at Four Corners as a waitress. "It's a lot of fun to work in a neat place and meet so many different people. Four Corners was voted in the last month one of the top places in the Triangle Area to have a casual business lunch," she said.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Bonner Latham of Bethel, her father will be chief marshal while Donald Morris Wilkerson of Greenville will assist. He is a business administration major at East Carolina University.

Water skiing, playing tennis occasionally, needlework and cross stitch are some of the things Miss Latham enjoys, along with babysitting, when time allows.

ELIZABETH ASHLEY LAYNE

Attending summer school at Meredith College in Raleigh has filled most of the summer months for Greenville deb Elizabeth Ashley Layne. She took courses in calculus and biology for extra credit.

"I enjoyed being in Raleigh — there is never a dull moment. The Summer Olympic Festival was thrilling. Some of the athletes stayed on the Meredith campus and we were able to chat with a few of them and saw a few more. There was a real atmosphere of excitement around," she said.

Frank Broadhurst Layne will be chief marshal for his sister. She is the daughter of Elizabeth Holland Layne of Greenville and the late Frank Dow Layne. For one of the debutante activities, she has selected a tea length cocktail dress made of taffeta and knit in black and royal blue. It has a V-neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and full skirt. The skirt front has a large bow accented with rhinestones.

Two aunts in Miss Layne's family have made their debuts and have shared their experiences. "I also have a cousin, Ginny Smithwick from near Atlanta, who is making her debut. They have two balls there, one of which I attended. Ginny will attend some of the N.C. deb parties and will also be attending the presentation ball in Raleigh. It's nice being able to share similar experiences — it makes it special," said Miss Layne.

A rising sophomore at Meredith, Miss Layne is majoring in psychology. "I am interested in a career of either working in a children's hospital or in social work because I enjoy working with people," she said.

TRACIE TAYLOR O'BANNON

Tracie Taylor O'Bannon, Greenville debutante, will be escorted by her father, John N. O'Bannon of Marshall, Va. Her assisting marshal will be Scott Kirkland of Aulander, who is a rising junior at ECU.

A student at St. Mary's College in Raleigh, she is primarily interested in history and English. "I would like to possibly plan a career in the area of communications after graduation," she said.

tion," she said. She wanted to attend St. Mary's because her mother and sister also attended there.

In addition to attending the first session of summer school at ECU, Miss O'Bannon is working as a telephone solicitor in the home improvement area. "It has been really interesting hearing people's comments such as 'Are we selling Bibles' or 'I tried that product once and became addicted to it,'" she said.

She has completed planning her wardrobe for the debutante weekend. One of her favorite ensembles is a black cocktail dress styled criss-cross in back with shocking pink bows with a round neckline in front and a dropped waistline. The shoulders are accented with rhinestone buttons and the skirt featured three ruffles.

Her mother, Suzanne Turcotte, and sister, LuAnne O'Bannon, both of Greenville, also made their respective debuts.

AMANDA FRANCES PRINCE

WILLIAMSTON — Amanda Frances Prince will be leaving home Aug. 19 for St. Mary's College in Raleigh and a new experience — serving as a hall counselor in Cruikshank Dormitory.

As a counselor, she will keep the girls informed of campus activities throughout the year and will be available to talk to them whenever necessary. She is interested in child psychology. "I enjoy working with children and doing things with them," she said.

This summer she is working as a lifeguard at Roanoke County Club and taught swimming lessons for three weeks. "I enjoy the job and am especially watchful of the children. The kids often ask me to come in play. Lately the job has been hard because it has been so hot," she said.

During the earlier part of the summer she traveled to California for about 10 days on a combined business trip for her father and a family outing. They stayed in

MARTHA MOYE CHERRY TAYLOR

Monterey for about a week and spent some time in San Francisco and Carmel. "This was my first trip there and everywhere we went was just beautiful. We also went to Yosemite Park, which is quite pretty," said Miss Prince.

"I am excited about making my debut. It has provided an opportunity to meet a lot of new people and I have seen a lot of my friends from St. Mary's. The presentation weekend should be a lot of fun," she said.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Brian Prince and her father will be her chief marshal. John Peele of Williamston and Atlanta will be her assisting marshal.

Lauren, Eliza and Adelia Taylor made their debuts and shared their experiences with their sister, Martha Moye Cherry Taylor.

"Their sharing has made it more enjoyable for me and hopefully I will be able to share the same experiences with my younger sister, Susan," said Miss Taylor.

The young ladies are daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Allen Taylor of Greenville. Dr. Taylor will be his daughter's chief marshal while Mike Herrin, also of Greenville, will be her assistant marshal. He is a student at UNC-CH.

Miss Taylor attends Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Va. She is now planning to major in business economics and then go on to graduate school. "Both of my paternal great-grandfathers attended Randolph-Macon. I visited the campus and liked the school academically. It has advantages because it is a small school," she said in reference to her choice of colleges.

This summer Miss Taylor is living at Atlantic Beach and working at Fairfield Resorts. She helps promote advertising. "I like meeting the variety of people," she said.

Playing tennis, reading, swimming and water skiing are some of the favorite pastimes of Miss Taylor.

Tacky Friend Has Sales Promotion

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have a wealthy friend who didn't have any luck getting his book published, so he is now in the process of publishing it himself. He announced that he is going to give each of his friends an autographed copy as a gift, and at the same time ask each friend to purchase five copies to give away as gifts!

Some of us think it's tacky of him to impose such a purchase on his friends, and when the time comes, I feel that for his sake, I should tell him so. Some of our mutual friends do not want to embarrass him, and think it's best to go along with the scheme. We are in a dilemma and will abide by your judgment. — PUT UPON IN L.A.

DEAR PUT: I agree, it is indeed tacky, but I think each of you "friends" should act independently. If this self-published author were a close friend of mine, I would tell him candidly what I thought of his "sales promotion."

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Dancing has always been a big focus in the life of Nancy Battle VanNortwick of Greenville. Her grandmother, Ramona VanNortwick, retired this year after teaching dancing for many years.

Miss VanNortwick had dancing lessons taught by her grandmother since she was three. "My favorites are tap and jazz because I had more training in these fields and they are more exciting," she said.

She had a class in jazz at East Carolina University spring semester and will be taking additional classes in tap and jazz during the fall. She assisted her grandmother in teaching dance for three years.

She is a rising sophomore at ECU. She attended St. Mary's in Raleigh for her junior and senior years of high school.

This summer Miss Van Norwick is a sales person at Annie's Brides Beautiful. "It's a lot of fun working with brides, the girls are so excited," she said. Next summer she would like to live near a resort area and work.

Miss VanNortwick is the daughter of N.O. VanNortwick III of Fountain and Kay VanNortwick of Greenville. Her father will be serving as her chief marshal. Kevin O'Neal of Atlanta, a student at the University of Georgia, will be her assistant.

Hodges-Dail Vows Exchanged July 18

Sharon Ann Dail and Jimmy Lee Hodges were united in marriage July 18 in a double-ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. D.M. Tyson.

The ceremony took place at the home of Robert and Hilda Barrow of near Vanceboro.

Parents of the bride are William Preston and Mattie W. Dail of Route 2, Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Edna Baker of Farmville and Ly-mond Hodges of Route 14, Greenville.

Sharon Hudson of Black Jack was matron of honor. Becky Nelms of Greenville was bridesmaid. Christy Dail of Route 2, Ayden, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The best man was Gary Hudson of Black Jack.

Organist Linda M. Thomas and vocal-ist Peggie Mills presented a program of wedding music.

The bride wore a formal gown with a chapel train of organza and chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured a split V-neckline and bishop sleeves. Lace scallops adorned the tiers of the skirt and train. Her chapel-length mantilla was edged in lace with an illusion blusher. It was attached to a lace cap with seed pearl accents. She carried a formal silk cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, pink lilac and gypsophilia tied with white satin streamers. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lewis Preston Dail.

A reception followed the ceremony and was given by relatives and friends. Diane Dail, sister-in-law of the bride, served wedding cake. Torri Hair poured punch. Music was provided by Ms. Thomas.

Or you may order Kit No. C-072687 by sending a check or money order for $15.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of: off-white with rose, navy with colonial blue or nutmeg with bone.

Dear Pat: I always read your weekly column, and I hope you can tell me how to make a crochet stich called a Solomon Knot. Years ago, my mother made me a green lace collar using this knot pattern. Since lace collars are so fashionable now, I would like to make one with white crochet cotton. I am enclosing a sketch to try to show you what the pattern looks like. — Helen Svenson, Pittsburgh.

While I have never heard of a Solomon Knot, your sketch looks just like the lover's knot pattern, which I do know. This is not unusual, as many crochet and knit stitches are known by more than one name. So try the Lover's Knot and see if it is what you are looking for. If other readers know of a different pattern called Solomon Knot, let me know and I will print those instructions at a later date.

Lover's Knot directions: To begin, chain a multiple of four stitches plus two. To practice, try it on a chain of 22 stitches. Work a single crochet in the 2nd chain from hook and in each remaining chain. This will give you 21 single crochets on foundation row. I used a 2 millimeter (Size B) crochet hook and medium-weight crochet cotton. To get the effect you want, you should experiment using various hook sizes with the yarn you choose.

Row 1: Turn your work. (A) Draw up the loop on the hook to 1/2 inch;

Not all recipes can safely be doubled, but most recipes for casseroles double well.

(B) yarnover and draw hook through the back strand, thus completing a knot stitch. Repeat steps A through C once more and you have now completed a double knot stitch.

(D) Skip 3 single crochets of previous row and (E) work a single crochet in the next stitch. (F) Work a double knot stitch as described above. Repeat steps D through F across row, ending with a single crochet in the last stitch of the row. This will give you five double not stitches.

Row 2: Turn your work. Make a double knot stitch; then (A) in the center knot of each double knot stitch of the previous row, work a single crochet and (B) follow this with a double knot stitch. Repeat steps A and B across row, ending with a single crochet in the final double knot stitch of previous row. Repeat Row 2 over and over for desired depth of the collar. Probably four or five rows will be sufficient.

On Row 2 and all following rows, be sure that you work the single crochet in the center knot stitch and NOT into the single crochets worked between double knot stitches. Also, the first double knot stitch in each row turns the corner, so when you reach it as the last stitch on the return row, you might overlook it. Be sure to work in this final central knot or you will lose a double knot stitch on each row.

To make a detachable collar, you might want to work two or more rows of single crochet, or you might want to eliminate any single crochet rows and start your pattern right on the chained edge. Also, for a permanently attached collar, you could work the single crochet row right on the neck edge. Just be sure to have a multiple of four plus one single crochets.

Democratic Governors Get Private Meeting With Presidential Hopefuls

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — Democratic governors looked over all eight Democratic presidential hopefuls today in a private meeting set up by governors who want to have a greater say in selecting their party's presidential nominee than they did four years ago.

All the announced and likely Democratic contenders and most of the 26 Democratic governors flew in to this Great Lakes island resort and spent Tuesday evening socializing before beginning morning-long private meeting.

None with presidential aspirations, however, said they expected to walk away with governors' endorsements on the strength of this meeting alone.

"I don't think there's going to be any lightning bolts," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder of Colorado, who is weighing a decision on entering the race.

"This is one of those events that attains critical mass, and one must attend," said Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore, who announced his presidential bid last month.

"I don't expect to come out of there with political support — that comes later," said Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri. "This is just to meet people."

Jesse Jackson, who has not yet formally announced a candidacy, said it was a get-together session that he would use to urge greater equity in the state delegate selection process.

"You look for relationships, you look for the comfort level, you look for how you share the delegates," Jackson said. "We need to form some good relationships now."

Other presidential hopefuls meeting with the governors were former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, Delaware Sen. Joseph Biden, Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, and one governor, Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts.

Most of the governors flew by helicopter from Traverse City after Tuesday afternoon's conclusion of the four-day National Governors' Association annual meeting. Republican governors don't meet with their party's presidential hopefuls until November.

Today's meetings were planned as private. Gore said the candidates had been told to expect to draw lots to select the order in which they would make remarks and answer questions from the governors.

The host, Michigan Gov. James Blanchard, organized the meeting in an effort to get Democrats involved early in the nominating process so their concerns would be addressed.

Some governors believe they were not brought into the 1984 campaign until too late.

Blanchard said the aim is to let the presidential hopefuls know what the governors think it takes to win in 1988. "My goal is to energize the process," he said.

of the commission, who said the plans will facilitate development.

"There is no question that this commission can come up with some long-range plans that can be dovetailed with the Greenville Utilities Commission, the state highway department, and any other group that's involved," Woolees said.

"That way, anybody that wants to develop a piece of property knows exactly what he can and can't do. If this commission hangs tight, then we won't be in there looking at all these exceptions constantly. That would be a lot clearer to the developers, to the city, to the people of this city and to us."

Woolees said he would meet with Ms. James to establish an agenda for the future meetings. He said the proposed agenda would then be sent to commission members for revisions or additions.

In other business, Jack Simoneau, a city planner, told commissioners a zoning ordinance review conducted by Robinson & Cole should be concluded in January 1988.

According to a proposed agenda for the review, the city staff will forward lists of problems and expected results to Robinson & Cole which will return ordinance proposals for review by the staff and the planning commission.

"We identify the problems that we have and they help us work through them," Simoneau said. "They have a national network of people that they deal with and can give us a national perspective on certain issues that we don't quite have. They're going to be bringing into us ... new ideas that we can sit down and talk about and discuss."

The agenda includes a five-step process involving a variety of planning and zoning issues ranging from home occupations to multi-family development.

Commissioners asked for executive summaries of the information sent to Robinson & Cole.

brass coat hooks. Parts to a unique china cabinet were also found. It had scalloped shelves with cutouts for the dishes to fit into so that they would be displayed but wouldn't fall out when the ship rolled about in the sea.

He said most of the artifacts are in conservation treatment or in storage. "We are trying to find a way to get an exhibit set up," he said. "We hope to have a fairly significant exhibit on the materials."

Broadwater said the five-year excavation of the ship's interior is scheduled to be completed next fall and he is unsure of what will happen to the site once the work there is ended. He said the vessel may be raised and placed in a museum.

He said that the hull of the ship, the part that is deeply buried, is in good, solid shape and could be raised with conventional means.

Child Abuse

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — A state investigation has absolved the Bladen County Department of Social Services of responsibility in the death of a child under the foster care of a local couple, DSS attorney Tommy Johnson said Monday.

The county DSS requested an internal audit of its procedures following the death of Tameka Lehman, 11, on June 15. The child was living with Sylvester Phillips, 56, and his wife Anne, 64, who lived near Bladenboro.

The Phillipses are in jail awaiting a probable cause hearing Aug. 11 for first-degree murder and felony child abuse. An affidavit filed with a search warrant alleged that Tameka and her 10-year-old brother were physically and sexually abused by the Phillipses prior to her death.

This is the way most people look at funeral prearrangement.

Granted, it isn't the cheeriest of subjects. But, considering the benefits it offers, funeral prearrangement does merit just a little attention.

The puzzling thing is why so many people carefully avoid even thinking about it. The fact is, prearrangement takes very little time. Moreover, funeral prearrangement makes matters infinitely more simple for family and friends in the long run. And ultimately, it's your responsibility — yours alone.

Moye Blasts Two Homers, Two Doubles As Pitt Rips Raleigh, 14-6, For Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Tom Moye unleashed a heavy bat Tuesday night and paced Pitt County's American Legion baseball team to the Area I championship in a 14-6 pounding of Raleigh's Post 1.

Moye hit two home runs and a pair of doubles to drive in six of the 14 Pitt runs in game four of the best-of-seven series. Pitt swept the four to win the area title and advance to the Eastern Championships, which are scheduled to get underway on Wednesday in Greenville.

Babe Ruth Takes Title

BENSON — Greenville 14-15 year-old Babe Ruth League All-Stars captured the North Carolina state championship Tuesday night with a pair of victories over previously unbeaten North Wake.

Greenville, which had come through the losers' bracket to the finals of the double elimination tournament, romped to a 17-1 victory over North Wake to place both teams in a sudden-death situation.

Greenville then came back to romp to a 15-3 win in the second game to clinch the championship.

The state champions will now advance to the Southeastern Regionals, to be held in Sarasota, Fla., beginning August 7. Greenville will face the Florida champions in the opening round in a 1 p.m. game that day.

Details of the game were not available as the Greenville scorebook could not be found Wednesday morning.

Tar Heels Romp Past Havelock

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Somehow, it was quite fitting. Greenville's Tar Heel Little League All-Stars romped to a 19-5 victory over Havelock Tuesday evening to earn a place in the state championships.

Those championships will be played in Greenville, starting Monday at 2 p.m. Greenville's victory will allow the city to have one of its own in the field.

Will MacKenzie went the distance against Havelock for the Tar Heels, allowing only four hits. He struck out 11.

Greenville unloaded 18 hits in the meanwhile, including five home runs, two of them by MacKenzie.

Greenville took the lead in the top of the first, scoring four times.

Then, in the second, the Tar Heels put it away with five more runs. With two away, MacKenzie got things underway with his first homer of the game. Montez Barrett followed by walking and Michael Howard singled. An error on the play allowed Barrett to score and put Howard on second. He moved to third on a passed ball. Jimmie Rouse then walked and Jason Krause hit the inning's second home run, a three-run shot that made it 9-0.

Greenville added three more in the third on a two-run homer by Omar Jordan and a second solo shot by MacKenzie.

Three more crossed in the fifth on a three-run homer by Barrett. The sixth saw the final four cross.

Havelock scored three in the third on a homer by Charles Justice with two more crossing in the fourth.

MacKenzie went 5-5 in the game

Pitt County will face the winner of the Hamlet-Whiteville series, currently led 3-2 by Hamlet. Hamlet took a 15-7 victory over Whiteville last night and will be attempting to wrap it up tonight in Whiteville. Should a seventh game be needed, it would be played Thursday night, also in Whiteville.

"I'm hoping that we might get the series underway by Saturday," Pitt Coach Toby Holiday said. "Wednesday is the day we have to start, but we can start early if we want to. I would prefer to go ahead and play while we're on a roll. I think it's to our advantage to keep going."

Tim Clark picked up the victory on the mound, going the distance in a sometimes shaky performance. He allowed only one hit the first five innings of play, but two hit batsmen and a quartet of walks in the first three innings help provide Raleigh with its first two runs. He was tagged four five hits and four runs in the sixth, as Raleigh closed to 8-6, but settled down the rest of the way and allowed only two more hits.

"He was close to coming out several times," Holliday admitted. "After he got two out in the sixth and then they came up with those hits and runs ... well, if he hadn't gotten the next man out, he was gone. But he bore down and got the rest of them without any more damage. It's been a while since he's pitched and he needed the work and he needed the confidence."

And when it came to Moye, Holliday was almost speechless. "What a night! A tremendous night! He had great concentration at the plate."

Pitt jumped on Raleigh early, scoring three runs in the first — thanks to Moye. With one down, Jason Galloway singled to right and Eric Jarman beat out a slow roller to short. Moye then followed with a drive that easily cleared the fence in right for a 3-0 lead.

Pitt picked up two more in the second. Ty Little walked and moved up on a passed ball. Hunter Clark singled to center. Then, as Clark broke for second on a steal, a wild pitch was unleashed by Raleigh pitcher Ray Osborne. That allowed Little to score while Clark raced all the way to third. He then scored on Shane Adams' sacrifice fly.

Raleigh cut the lead back to 5-2 with a pair in the top of the third. With one out, Jeff Austin got the first hit off Tim Clark and Chris Robbins walked. James Capps was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. A walk to Mike Rigsbee and a ground out by Mike Whitten brought in Austin and Robbins.

Pitt countered with one in the bottom of the inning. Jarman reached on another infield hit, stole second and moved up on an out. He scored on a wild pitch.

Pitt added two more in the fifth for an 8-2 lead. Jarman and Moye hit back-to-back doubles, and Axel Smith's sacrifice fly scored Jarman. Moye scored on a hit by Little.

With two out in the sixth, Raleigh erupted for four runs to trim the lead to 8-6. Osborne doubled to left center and scored on Austin's single to center. Robbins also got a hit and Capps singled off Clark's foot to load the bases. Then, on a 3-2 count, the runners took off and Rigsbee delivered a single to center that scored all three baserunners.

Pitt pulled away again with three in the seventh. Jarman walked and Moye delivered his second homer, this to left field. Then, with one away, Bronswell Patrick reached on an error, stole second and moved to third on an error on the play. He scored on Little's ground out.

The final three came in the eighth. Tim Clark doubled and moved around on outs by Adams and Galloway, scoring on the latter.

Smith Claims Ueberroth Is Not Stopping Drugs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Lonnie Smith says he has seen players smoke marijuana and use amphetamines in the minor leagues this season and contends Commissioner Peter Ueberroth is not fulfilling his commitment to rid baseball of drugs.

Smith testified in the 1985 drug trial of Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse caterer Curtis Strong. Strong was convicted of selling cocaine to players and sentenced to 12 years in federal prison.

On Feb. 28, 1986, Joaquin Andujar, Dale Berra, Enos Cabell, Keith Hernandez, Jeffrey Leonard, Dave Parker and Smith were suspended for one year by Ueberroth with the provision that they could play if they donated 10 percent of their 1986 base salaries to drug-prevention programs, submit to random drug testing and contribute 100 hours of drug-related community service in 1986 and 1987.

"In order to prove myself, I was supposed to be tested on a regular basis. I didn't care if it was twice a week. But twice in one year? It's a joke," Smith said in Tuesday's editions of The Kansas City Times.

Smith said he was supposed to be tested six to eight times a year under the penalty imposed by Ueberroth. But Smith claims he has not been tested once in 1987.

Smith, 32, said in an interview Monday he had paid $42,000 of his $85,000 fine, but no one has talked to him about paying the balance. Smith says he performed 100 hours of community service that he doesn't think was verified by the commissioner's office.

"I don't see where he's (Ueberroth) doing his part. What has he done? He's done nothing except go to the Little League World Series and say, 'Baseball is free of drugs.'"

Smith started the season with the Kansas City Royals' Class AAA Omaha team of the American Association and told the Times he witnessed players using drugs.

"I know there's no drug agreement at the major-league level, but there's supposed to be constant testing at the minor-league level. Well, I'll tell you right now there's a couple of guys I played against that were taking greenies and smoking pot," said Smith, who was recently called up by the Royals.

"So how can he (Ueberroth) say baseball is free of drugs?" Smith asked. "I thought Bowie (Kuhn, former commissioner) was doing a terrible job, but this guy makes him look great."

Omaha Manager John Wathan said Tuesday he didn't have any knowledge of players in his league using illegal drugs, as Smith claims.

"It would really surprise me if they did, with all that's happened in baseball," Wathan said.

Rich Levin, a spokesman for Ueberroth's office, said, "We are not concerned with what he (Smith) says, only that he stays off drugs." Levin also said the number of drug tests is irrelevant because "random testing is the thing."

Levin also said the commissioner's office has monitored Smith's community service work.

"All I can do is speak for myself. The commissioner's office has made sure that I'm putting in my (100) service hours (annually)," said Hernandez, the New York Mets first baseman. "I can't speak for (Smith) him. I'm tested three times a year. I can't believe that he (Smith) said what he did. I have no way of being able to comment on what he says he observed."

Speaking in Pittsburgh last year, Ueberroth said, "I believe baseball is going to be the first sport to be free of drugs."

"The players have had enough of it (the drug problem). I could sense this in spring training. I didn't talk to all 700 players, but I talked to a lot of them and they're tired of being asked questions about it."

This past April, however, baseball was shocked when New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden tested positive for cocaine and underwent a month of rehabilitation. San Francisco outfielder Eddie Milner also needed drug rehabilitation earlier this year.

Smith says it's unfair they were not penalized and he was.

"It's not fair. Look at Gooden. He doesn't have to pay nothing. Where's the justice? Is it OK just because he's a Cy Young winner?" Smith said.

"They say they'll suspend him (Gooden) if they catch him one more time. But I never got a second chance. We got guys in this game that have been caught two or three times, and nothing's ever happened."

Smith, who was in New York on Tuesday as the Royals played the Yankees, says the temptation to use cocaine does not end.

"You think about it all the time, especially when you're by yourself," he said. "You've got to find things to do. So I hop on the phone. Play with my kids. Watch TV. And I've seen more movies than I've ever seen in my life."

Laura Davies' Practice For Winning Pays Off

EDISON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Long before winning the U.S. Women's Open, Laura Davies practiced doing just that.

It was back in England with her brother, Tony, the man who caddied for her Tuesday when Davies won a three-way playoff to become the fourth foreigner to win the American championship.

"As kids we used to simulate (championship) conditions," Davies, 23, said. "I was always JoAnne Carner or Nancy Lopez standing on the 18th green putting to win the U.S. Women's Open."

Tuesday, the dream came true as Davies rolled in three long birdie putts en route to a 1-under-par 71 and the victory in an 18-hole playoff with Ayako Okamoto of Japan and her childhood idol, Carner.

"When I looked over the putt at 18 I said to myself, 'My God, it's actually happening,'" said Davies, who finished two shots ahead of Okamoto and three in front of Carner. "To walk up 18 was a marvelous feeling. It's everything I've dreamed of. I hope it happens again, but nothing will beat the first time."

The victory continued a recent British streak in Open tournaments. Nick Faldo won the British Open on July 19 and Neil Coles won the British Senior Open on Sunday. Davies was to begin defense of her British Open title today.

The 42nd Women's Open began last Thursday, was extended an extra day when Sunday's round was rained out and was forced into the playoff when the 48-year-old Carner bogeyed the 18th hole. Davies, Okamoto and Carner finished at 3-under-par 285, the only competitors in the field of 153 to break par over 72 holes at the 6,284-yard Plainfield Country Club course.

"I would have to say my putting was it for me this week," Davies said. "This week has been my best for holding out putts."

The three parred the first three holes then Davies hit a 9-iron within 20 feet and sank the putt to take the lead at

No. 4 and she never trailed although Carner managed to tie when Davies bogeyed the par-4 10th hole.

When Carner, who had problems with her driver all day, bogeyed the 11th, Davies had the lead for good. A 20-foot birdie putt at the par-5 14th hole later stretched the lead to two shots and a 30-foot birdie putt at the par-3 15th made the bulge three shots. Davies parred the final three holes, never once playing any safe shots.

"You can't let up with two of the best golfers in the world in your group," Davies, the first foreign winner since Jan Stephenson in 1983, said. "I was shaking on the 18th tee. I had struggled there all week long."

Davies claimed the title by knocking in a 4-footer and seconds later she walked over and kissed her brother.

"I reckon I am the happiest person in the world right now," she said. "I don't know what it means yet. I was just out there having fun and this turned out to be one of the greatest rounds of golf in my life."

Davies actually had five good rounds at Plainfield, and was the only player in the field not to go over par during the tournament.

"I never got the driver going today," Carner said. "It got steadily worse the last three days. I had some opportunities, but didn't make any putts."

Okamoto, 36, never got her game into gear as she saw a second women's major slip through her hands. She lost the du Maurier Classic in Canada three weeks ago, squandering a six-shot lead in the final round.

"I didn't feel nervous today and maybe that's why I didn't win," Okamoto said through an interpreter. "I might have been too relaxed."

Davies earned $55,000 for the victory — her first in the United States — and said she hoped to play on the LPGA Tour next year. She was the leading money winner on the European women's tour the past two years.

The LPGA also said it was considering giving Davies an exemption to play on the tour because of her victory. Okamoto and Carner each earned $23,824.

Rhoden, Robinson Hurl Wins

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

In a division where hitting dominates, veteran Rick Rhoden and rookie Jeff Robinson put pitching into the American League East race.

Rhoden scattered eight hits Tuesday night and led the New York Yankees past the Kansas City Royals 2-1.

"If you're a good pitcher, you win games like that," said Rhoden, 13-6.

Robinson threw a five-hitter as the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 3-1 for their fifth straight victory.

"I've been getting the reputation as a five-inning pitcher and that spurred me on a little," Robinson said. Robinson, 7-4, struck out 10 in his first major-league complete game.

The Yankees remained a half-game ahead of Detroit in the AL East, while Toronto beat Boston 5-4 and stayed one game behind New York.

In other games, Seattle defeated Minnesota 6-1, California downed Oakland 9-2, Milwaukee beat Texas 9-2 and Cleveland got past Baltimore 4-3 in 10 innings.

Yankees 2, Royals 1

Rhoden pitched his first complete game at Yankee Stadium. He struck out three, walked two and retired the last nine batters.

"Every time I go out to pitch, I don't worry about how many runs our team scores, I worry about the other team," he said. "I figure if I pitch a good game we have a chance to win," he said.

Rhoden was toughest when he faced his biggest jam, following a leadoff triple by Willie Wilson in the fifth inning with the Royals trailing 2-1. After Kevin Seitzer struck out, George Brett hit a fly ball to medium right field, but Wilson chose not to challenge the arm of Dave Winfield.

"Most guys wouldn't try and couldn't score," Winfield said.

The Yankees scored in the first when Gary Ward drew Mark Gubicza's only walk, took third on Don Mattingly's single and came home as Winfield grounded into a double play.

Jim Eisenreich hit a sacrifice fly in the third that lifted the Royals into a 1-1 tie.

Juan Bonilla led off New York's third with a single, moved up on Wayne Tolleson's sacrifice and took third on Ward's single. With Mattingly at the plate, Gubicza threw a wild pitch and Bonilla scored for a 2-1 lead.

"When you have (Don) Mattingly up there, he's a great RBI man and I wanted to go after him as hard as I could," said Gubicza, 8-10. Gubicza then struck out Mattingly and Winfield.

"I got him out eventually, which makes it even more frustrating. I was trying to bust him down and in," said Gubicza said of his eighth wild pitch this season.

Tigers 3, White Sox 1

In Detroit, Darrell Evans' 21st home run helped Robinson defeat Chicago. The Tigers, who have won 10 of their last 12 games, beat the White Sox despite a three-hitter by Bill Long, 5-6.

Errors by Long and second baseman Fred Manrique enabled the Tigers take a 2-0 lead in the third. Evans hit a solo homer in the fourth.

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 4

Jesse Barfield, recently dropped from the third spot in the batting order to sixth because of a slump, hit an RBI single that broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning as Toronto beat Boston.

Lloyd Moseby drew a leadoff walk from Joe Sambito, 1-3, and Charlie Moore sacrificed. With two outs, Barfield singled off Bob Stanley.

Jeff Musselman, 9-4, got the victory for the second straight day. Tom Henke earned his 23rd save and second in two games.

George Bell, leading the AL with 83 RBI, hit a two-run single in the third that gave the host Blue Jays a 4-4 tie.

Angels 9, Athletics 2

Bill Buckner went 3-for-5 in his California debut and Mike Witt pitched a strong six-hitter to lead the Angels in Oakland.

Buckner, signed as a free agent shortly before the game started, hit a double that keyed a two-run second inning. He had a two-run single with the bases loaded in the fifth against Joaquin Andujar, 3-4.

Witt, 13-6, struck out 11 and walked none. He lost his shutout bid with two outs in the ninth when Reggie Jackson hit a two-run homer, his 14th of the season and 562nd of his career.

Devon White drove in three runs for the Angels. He had an RBI single in the fifth and a two-run double in the eighth.

Mariners 6, Twins 1

Mike Morgan pitched a four-hitter, Gary Matthews hit a two-run homer and Phil Bradley went 4-for-4 as Seattle beat Minnesota.

Morgan, 8-11, pitched his sixth complete game. Joe Niekro, 5-8, lost his fourth straight decision.

Matthews put the host Mariners ahead 3-1 with his third-inning homer. He is batting .394 with two homers and eight RBI in nine games since being acquired in a trade with the Chicago Cubs. Bradley scored two runs and drove in two.

Brewers 9, Rangers 2

Paul Molitor and Robin Yount homered as Milwaukee won at Texas.

Molitor's three-run homer, his seventh, gave the Brewers a 5-1 lead in the fifth. Yount hit a two-run homer, his 14th, in the seventh. Yount also had an RBI single.

Chris Bosio, 7-2, won his fourth straight decision. He allowed one run on five hits in six innings and Mark Clear got his fourth save.

Jose Guzman, 8-10, took the loss as the Rangers had their four-game winning streak halted.

Indians 4, Orioles 3

Pat Tabler singled home the winning run in the 10th inning to lift Cleveland over Baltimore.

Tommy Hinzo singled with two outs in the 10th, stole second base and scored on Tabler's hit off Tom Niedenfuer, 2-3. The Indians tied it in the ninth against Niedenfuer on Brook Jacoby's triple and a sacrifice fly by Carmen Castillo.

Sammy Stewart, 3-1, pitched two innings for the victory. Baltimore had won seven straight on the road.

Castillo hit a solo homer in the second and Jim Dwyer tied it with a home run in the third. Cal Ripken Jr. hit a two-run homer, his 19th, in the fifth to put Baltimore ahead 3-2.

Wilmington Is State Champ

HOLLYWOOD — Wilmington defeated Durham, 9-3, to win the 13-year-old Babe Ruth North Carolina State championships Tuesday at D.H. Conley High School.

Wilmington will now advance to the regional tournament, to be held in early August.

Jerry Bridgers got the win for Wilmington on the mound. Wilmington scored twice in the fifth inning to break a 2-2 tie and never trailed again. The first run scored on an error and Joey Purtle drove in the second, which proved to be the difference in the game.

Jarman walked and stole second. Moye hit one off the fence in deep center for a run-scoring double and trotted home on Smith's single to left.

Moye's four hits led Pitt while Jarman had three and Little had two. Austin and Robbins each had two for Raleigh.

"These kids are tough," Holliday said. "They battled through the season and have really put on a show during the tournament. They really want it, and it was mighty big to win four in a row in the area championships."

Lasorda Finds His Place In Sun

By The Associated Press
Tommy Lasorda is on a roll and his stage has been the third-base coaching box at Dodger Stadium.

Los Angeles had lost six straight games and was playing its worst baseball of the season when the Dodgers manager decided to shake things up by moving in as the third-base coach.

Since that move, the Dodgers have not lost and won their fourth straight game Tuesday night, beating San Francisco 4-2 behind Orel Hershiser's four-hit pitching over eight innings.

Lasorda said he'll stay in there as long as the Dodgers keep winning.

"Why shouldn't I? My players want me to stay out there," Losorda said. "I'm having a lot of fun and we've got a good thing going for us."

The Dodgers, perennial pennant contenders, have struggled the last two seasons and currently stand fourth in the National League West, eight games behind first-place Cincinnati.

"Lasorda's out there trying to make things happen," second baseman Steve Sax said. "I think he's just doing something different to shake the players up."

Elsewhere, New York beat St. Louis 6-4, Chicago tripped Montreal 8-3, Cincinnati edged San Diego 8-7, Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 5-2 and Atlanta beat Houston 6-1.

The loss dropped second-place San Francisco 2½ games behind Cincinnati in the NL West.

Hershiser, 11-9, struck out six and walked two. Ken Howell came on to pitch the ninth and gave up singles to Jeffrey Leonard and Harry Spilman, his fourth hit of the game, leading off. Howell then got Bob Brenly on a pop foul and induced Chili Davis to hit into a 6-4-3 double play to end the game and earn his first save.

"We look at him (Lasorda) like he's the 10th man out there and it's good to see him out there running up and down the line and jumping around," Howell said. "That's a sign of joy and excitement. And to see your manager do that, those things really inspire you and make you play harder."

John Shelby's two runs batted in helped Los Angeles take a 3-0 lead in the first two innings against Atlee Hammaker, 6-8.

The Dodgers made a change on the other side of the field too as Bill Russell coached at first.

"I'm out there permanently now, whether we win or lose," Russell said. "Tommy told me that yesterday (Monday). He hasn't changed a bit. He has the same enthusiasm, the same signs, everything's the same. Maybe his belly's a little larger, but other than that, he hasn't changed. If he wants you to slide, he lies down."

Lasorda coached third base for Dodgers Manager Walter Alston in the mid-1970s.

"We've won four in a row and we're on a roll. You can't say it hasn't worked," Russell said.

Mets 6, Cardinals 4

Tim Lincecum singled with the bases loaded and none out in the eighth inning to put New York in the lead and send St. Louis to its fifth straight defeat.

With St. Louis leading 4-3, pinch-hitter Len Dykstra walked leading off the Mets' eighth against reliever Todd Worrell, 4-6. Lee Mazzilli, pinch hitting for starter Ron Darling, followed with a high fly to left that Vince Coleman misplayed for a two-base error. Mookie Wilson was then intentionally walked to load the bases and Teufel followed with a ground single to center to score Dykstra and Mazzilli.

Roger McDowell pitched the final two innings for the Mets and got his 14th save. Darling, 6-7, was the winner as the third-place Mets moved within 7½ games of the Cardinals in the East.

Cubs 8, Expos 3

Rick Sutcliffe became the NL's first 15-game winner and Andre Dawson hit a seventh-inning, tie-breaking single as host Chicago ended Montreal's three-game winning streak.

Dawson's single off Andy McGaffigan scored Ryne Sandberg to give Chicago a 4-3 lead. Dawson later scored on a wild pickoff throw to third by catcher Jeff Reed.

Leon Durham hit a three-run homer, his 17th, with one out in the eighth inning. Sutcliffe, 15-4, allowed three runs, two of them earned, and eight hits in seven innings. Lee Smith pitched the final two innings for his 25th save.

Reed tied a modern major-league record when he made three errors in the seventh inning.

Phillies 5, Pirates 2

Shane Rawley won his fifth straight game and Von Hayes hit a two-run homer as Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh for the ninth time in 10 games this season.

Rawley, 13-5, allowed five hits and benefited from double plays in the first and fifth innings.

The Phillies took a 2-0 lead in the first against Rick Reuschel, 8-5, who lost for the first time in his last four decisions. Reuschel left after allowing five runs on seven hits in five innings.

Braves 6, Astros 1

Zane Smith pitched a seven-hitter and Dion James had four hits and drove in two runs as Atlanta beat Mike Scott and visiting Houston.

Scott, 11-7, gave up nine hits in four innings as he suffered his sixth straight loss to the Braves. Scott has won only two games in 11 career decisions against the Braves.

James had two run-scoring singles, a double and a triple in an 11-hit attack by the Braves.

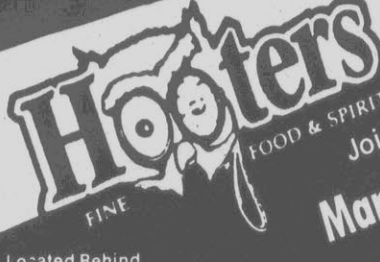

Reds 8, Padres 7

Rich Gossage walked pinch-hitter Lloyd McClendon with the bases loaded and two outs in the bottom of the ninth to force in the winning run at Cincinnati.

The walk by Gossage spoiled a three-run comeback in the top of the inning by the Padres that tied the score 7-7 against left-hander John Franco.

The Reds loaded the bases in the bottom of the inning against Mark Davis, 5-6. With two outs, Davis hit Bo Diaz with a pitch, walked Nick Esasky and gave up an infield single to Kurt Stillwell.

Gossage came on to face McClendon, who worked the right-hander to a 3-2 count before drawing the walk, ending the Reds' three-game losing streak.

Young To Leave State

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State quarterback Cam Young has decided to leave the Wolfpack football program and transfer to Virginia Tech, Coach Dick Sheridan said.

"I had heard that Cam might want to transfer, and he called me last week and said he was leaving," Sheridan said Tuesday. "We hate to lose him. He's a super young man, a very fine person."

The 6-foot-4, 184-pounder from Salem, Va., played in eight games last season as a redshirt freshman, completing eight to 21 passes for 91 yards. He also was intercepted twice.

Young started the Wolfpack's ninth game at Virginia, after starter Erik Kramer suffered a foot injury against South Carolina the week before.

Infants Sample The Water At Early Age

PRONE POSITION — Jamie Eason demonstrates the prone or straight position in swimming as he prepares to wade from his mother, Linda, to his father.

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Drills of "one, two, three — go!" can be heard over half the pool during a class for children at Raynez Swim School in Greenville as parents coax, beg and nudge their children into an introduction with the water.

Children, some as young as 5 months old, have been taking lessons at the school since 1965, said Inez Martinez, who teaches the class and owns the school with her husband, Ray.

In beginning classes for children, the main goals are to "get their face in the water and getting them stretched in a prone position so they can do what's natural," she said. "Most of the time the child will kick."

Teaching them to breathe can be done a couple of ways, Mrs. Martinez said. "Watch when they're breathing and put them under momentarily. Usually in about two to three days time, even the very young ones learn to put their face in the water."

Another technique parents may try is to blow in the child's face and while he holds his breath, pull him under the water briefly, she said.

"They learn faster at about 9 to 10 months from my experience," Mrs. Martinez said.

Children are more difficult to teach around age 2 "because they're so resistant. They start to become independent."

Five-month-old Heather Lynn Rulifson wasn't being fussy about her lessons as she waded in the pool when led by her parents, Roger and Gayle.

During one class, "she kept trying to turn her head and lay down," Rulifson said. "She was kind of pooped out."

Heather has plenty of time to learn to swim, Rulifson said, who was a lifeguard in high school and conducted private lessons for toddlers in college. "Our objective was just to familiarize her with the water."

Jamie Eason, 7 months old, paddled momentarily under water from his parents, James and Linda, during class.

"He's been getting the shower since he was 2 weeks old," Eason said. "If you put him in the bathtub, he wants to get in there to play."

Three-year-old Amanda Barnes is a veteran of the school. She has been taking lessons each summer since she was 6 months old, said her mother, Joyce.

"At 3 1/2, she can hold her breath and tread water. It's amazing. They (children) have no fear of the water while they're so young. But, they still respect the water," she said.

WHO'S NEXT? — Inez Martinez holds 2 1/2-year-old Nathan James as he points to the parent he wants to swim to next. Nathan is the son of Dean and Karen James.

ing to experience in the shower since he was 2 weeks old. (Reflector Photos by Cliff Hollis)

Ayden Man Joins In Church Building

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Ernest Grigsby of Ayden recently was among eight North Carolina men who spent 22 days in Poland helping their Baptist associates build a church for the future.

Grigsby and the other Tar Heels are members of the North Carolina Baptist Men, which is affiliated with the State Baptist Convention. The trip was part of the convention's foreign missions ministry, he said.

"This Poland trip came up as a result of one of our North Carolina Baptist Men in agriculture" who met members of the congregation through his work and learned about their efforts to construct a church building, Grigsby said.

It was arranged through the convention, but "each person was responsible for his own expenses," he said. His congregation at Winterville Baptist Church sponsored him for the $1,500 trip, and friends also donated money. The men lived with families of the congregation.

The 250-member Baptist congregation in Wroclaw, Poland, is constructing a $100,000 church building that will take them about eight years to complete, Grigsby said.

"They've been working on this church for six years," he said. "Their main problem is getting materials," which are distributed through the government. "The first two years, they did nothing but collect materials."

The North Carolina men big city, Grigsby said, working there, "you get to see a side of the country that you wouldn't see as a tourist."

layers in our group, carpenters ... and an electrical engineer," said Grigsby who works in that position at Procter & Gamble. "And the only electrical engineering I did — an element went out in the stove and I fixed it."

In addition to the sanctuary, the building will include apartments for the pastor, the caretaker and visitors, he said. It also will have a soup kitchen, a bookstore and fellowship facilities.

"When they went to build, they're building for the future," Grigsby said.

The Baptist church there began in 1940 when the Germans occupied Poland, he said. After World War II, the Germans left, and "for 40 years, they've been asking (the government) to build a new building."

Permission and the site for the building were granted in 1981, Grigsby said.

In addition to building materials, other items also were rationed in Poland "like chocolate and paper products," he said. "I carried toilet paper and napkins" to Poland. "One of the guys took a whole case of M&Ms" and gave them to children in the congregation.

Grigsby said he hopes to participate in the foreign ministry of the convention every two years.

Two years ago, "I helped build a house for a missionary" in Ecuador, he said. "We went right to the jungle. We were right out on the edge of no help."

Laura Branigan Launches Album With New 'Shattered Glass' Single

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Laura Branigan's first single off her new "Touch" album is "Shattered Glass." She says, "It's a real dance song — emotional. I thought it was important to come out with a dance song. It has been a while since I had a song — one and a half years. "It's a summer dance song. It should get that club excitement going."

"Shattered Glass" was No. 80 and climbing the pop chart on July 11. "Touch" is Miss Branigan's fifth album for Atlantic Records. She recalls when she was trying to get a record deal, after having sung backup on a Leonard Cohen tour in Europe. "I started auditioning for record companies. I had this big voice that didn't fit in anywhere. No one would sign me. I didn't sound like anyone.

"Ahmet Ertegun heard about me. I sang one song for him, a Rickie Lee Jones song, 'Never, Never Going To Let You Go.' He said, 'The audition is over.' I thought, 'Oh, well.' He said, 'I'd love you to be with Atlantic.' I couldn't believe it."

The reason it has been so long since her last album is that Miss Branigan made a movie in Australia. And she worked a long time on "Touch."

"I changed producers and I was involved in every aspect of the production of it. It felt good to be. It takes time to come into your own in this business. People are always pulling at you, telling you to be something else. It is hard to put your finger on what they wanted me to be.

"I didn't have the confidence to go forth with my own instincts of what I was. This album, I think, is the most representative of me. I looked for a haunting quality on the ballads. I wanted it fresh sounding but without losing that real emotional thrust."

The singer believes she is best singing ballads. "There's a song on this album, 'Power of Love,' that to me is the ultimate in singing," she says. "It's a real emotional tear-your-heart-out kind of song. It's a classic torch song with today's feeling. I think those are the ones that live on forever.

"It has a range that keeps going on and on. It is really challenging vocally and yet it is very emotional. Emotion is the most important thing for me.

"I love the dance songs, too. That's the celebration side. You have to cry and you have to celebrate."

"Gloria," which was on her debut album, "Branigan," in 1982, "was the longest for a female in the top 40 since Debbie Reynolds' 'Tammy,' I was told," she says.

"Self Control," in 1984, has been her best-selling album so far. The title song's video was considered controversial.

"It was directed by Billy Friedkin, who directed 'The Exorcist' and 'The French Connection.' It was a real experience. He's a great film director. We worked very hard on it.

"The song was about losing your self-control to the night or to someone. We had a man representing the night, wearing a mask. There were all these great dancers wearing masks by Willa Shalit. There's a shot where the man comes into my bedroom, taking me into the night. He appears and disappears.

"MTV didn't play it. They said it was risqué. It was played in Europe and everywhere else. I didn't think it was bad at all."

She toured through 1985, then made a movie, "Backstage," not yet released, in Australia last year. The movie producers had seen two of her videos.

"I play an American girl who goes to Australia to be a serious actress. Critics rip me apart. It becomes a love story with a critic. All he does is tear things down. I try to get him to really write and he gets me to act. It has a broad acting range. I do comedy and at the end I do a scene as Nina from 'The Sea Gull.'

"I did 'Mugsy's Girls' with Ruth Gordon. It was a really bad, silly film. It was great to be with her. We became friends. She lived and breathed and ate acting. She didn't have a lot of energy. As soon as that camera rolled, she was like a different person."

Miss Branigan went to acting school in the mid-1970s, after she moved to New York City from upstate. She says, "I was so shy then. I used to dread getting up and doing a scene in front of a class. I did 'The Three Penny Opera' there. As long as I was singing, it felt great.

"I started auditioning for Broadway. I'd call the producer, 'I've got a great voice and you've got to see me.' Always he'd see me. I never went on an open call. I got a lot of callbacks."

But she didn't get hired. Her first job was singing backup behind Leonard Cohen. "About 600 girls auditioned. Myself and my best friend got it. I thought I'd died and went to heaven."

When she was preparing for her latest album, Miss Branigan says, "We went through hundreds of songs. 'Cry Wolf' is from a guy who sent a cassette to my producer. You'd be surprised how many great undiscovered writers there are. When they hear an artist is recording, they start sending songs.

"Jack White, who has produced past albums, is German. There's a wealth of songs in Europe that have been hits there and Americans never heard them. 'Solitaire' was French."

Miss Branigan usually closes her show with "Gloria" and sings "Solitaire," which is from "Branigan 2." She says, "I have to hold a high D for eight bars then I have to go up to E flat. The song starts out very low so I can't go to a lower key. But my voice got a lot stronger this year; it seems to have grown."

She'll tour starting at the end of August. She says, "My show is about 23 songs. A lot of them have a very broad range. For me to go much longer would probably kill me."

Her husband of almost five years handles her business affairs and sometimes travels with her. She says, "It is not great for him to leave the office all the time. He has his own firm. He's good, very thorough and comes from a corporate background, so he knows what to do for me."

Miss Deans won an honor award for her photograph, and Miss Seykora won a Kodak Medallion Award.

Their work will be displayed in the national show in Columbus, Ohio, in conjunction with photography from the School for Visual Arts and the Columbus College of Art and Design.

Bowie Tour

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — British rock star David Bowie arrived to kick off the North American leg of his $10 million "Glass Spider" tour, which opens here Thursday and Friday at Veterans Stadium.

"It's the most extraordinarily expensive tour that I've ever done," Bowie, 40, said Monday. "The logistics of it are horrendous and it's something like a three- or four-day setup for each day."

A monstrous spider will be suspended over the stage between two towers flanked by video screens. In European shows, Bowie was lowered to the stage from the spider's stomach.

By the time the tour ends this fall, he will have performed more than 100 shows in 15 countries.

The Quebec Bridge on the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City collapsed in 1907 and carried 75 workmen to their deaths. The bridge was started in 1900 and was then the world's largest cantilever bridge. After the accident, construction work was continued and both cantilever sections had been completed when the center span fell into the river, taking the lives of another 13 workmen.

'Painting Churches' Brings Delight With Story Of Couple Growing Old

A full current of warmth flowed back and forth between the stage and the full-house audience at Monday night's opening of Tina Howe's drama, "Painting Churches," now playing at McGinnis Theater on the East Carolina University campus.

And no wonder. The play's three characters, mother Fanny Church, daddy Gardner Church and daughter Margaret Church are performed with wonderful perception and near perfection respectively by Kim Hunter, Orson Bean and Tracy Donohue. Director Terence LaMude has impressively guided the talented trio.

If most of the delighted audience was like myself, it was their first exposure to "Painting Churches." Miss Howe's play, tightly focused and structured, encompasses realistic, comic and witty dialogue — beneath which runs the poignant, often frustrating theme of what happens when people grow old, when the younger generation fails to understand this pathos, the cry for understanding and love needed to face life's waning days.

The theme of the loss of energy, the inability of a talented writer to any longer achieve success and the consequent loss of a dependable source of income, is strikingly paralleled scene by scene through changes in the lavish living room set as it is gradually stripped for the elder Church's move to a smaller place.

The play opens with Miss Hunter, garbed in a fantastic red designer hat and non-descript bathrobe, packing pieces from her life's treasures, musing on the possible monetary value of heavy old heirloom silver silver ("it's so heavy, it must be made of lead...").

Her role as the stronger of the two is immediately established by the entry of Orson Bean, shuffling, murmuring vague concerns for the progress of his latest literary effort. He is even physically incapable of keeping the manuscript pages together, keeps dropping them. The dropping of manuscript pages is a continuing symbolic thread in the action, culminating in a touching, make-fun-of-it-all scene near the end of the play.

When daughter Margaret (Miss Donohue), a talented painter agog about a forthcoming show of her work at a prominent New York gallery, arrives, she is initially unable to fathom the despair suffered by her mother about the impending move, the heartache task she must face of being the guardian of her husband's deteriorating mental and physical faculties. Mother Church covers her true feelings in nervous conversational trifles — repeated references to her daughter's "shaggy" appearance, blue jeans and "that awful red hair" — in truth not red — and the most deep-seated of all motherly fears, that an off-spring seems not interested or not capable of acquiring a mate.

Daughter Margaret is a living evocation of the vigor and energy of the young, who often are so unintentionally selfishly living for themselves they have little time left to give to those older than themselves they love.

The undertones of sadness are painfully accentuated — and at the same time joyfully relieved — with moments of truly befuddled comic intensity — daddy Church retrieving jackets and overcoats mother Church is sorting out. He puts them on one over the other, then solemnly declares "it's awfully hot in here ..."; or the hilarious moments when the two, trying to strike a pose for the portrait their daughter wants to paint of them, gleefully flit from pose to pose as characters from famous paintings — Grant Wood's "American Gothic," the God and Adam finger-pointing scene from Michelangelo's "The Creation," etc.

For anyone often around older people, there's the familiar, true-to-life stumbling roll call of friends, of matching up names with those who suffers this or that disease.

In direct contrast in halting efforts to recall events of the present is the ability of papa Church to recite memorable passages of poetry from Yeats, Wallace Stevens, Robert Frost memorized in earlier years. (An evening of poetry reading by Bean would in itself be a most welcome performance).

•And some minor disappointments — both in the play's script and in performance. Miss Howe's script contains the repeated use of two objectional expletives. These strike a sour note, certainly not in keeping with the tone of the play. The lyrical dialogue in essence reflects a lifetime of two people who have been nurtured in music, art and literature, who have much in common to share with each other and with us. To hear them depart from these nostalgic reminiscences and to mouth these vulgar words is abrasive, gratuitous.

PBS Concert Showcases The Music Of Cole Porter

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who wrote the words for his own music and the music for his own words is praised tonight, as the third concert of "In Performance at the White House, a Tribute to American Music" showcases the songs of Cole Porter.

The concert, on public television at 9 p.m. EDT, presents songs that, while familiar to many listeners, are a treat to hear again.

After a brief "show biz" conversation between host Marvin Hamlisch and singer Mel Torme about Torme's need to sing a hurtful Porter song instead of only light-hearted ones, Torme sings "Miss Otis Regrets."

That very light spoof, in which the superpolite Miss Otis sends regrets for having to miss a luncheon date because she's being hanged for shooting a faithless beau, was written for Porter friend Monty Woolley to sing at a chic party.

Porter was one of the most thoroughly trained pop composers of the 20th century. His lyrics are witty, urbane, sophisticated, sometimes cynical, seldom tender or sentimental.

Alec Wilder, in "The American Popular Song," wrote, "I find it surprising that the general public found them as attractive as they did." Wilder decided it was because Porter's lyrics were softened and warmed by his music.

Besides the music, the White House show also boasts a couple of not-to-be-missed singers. Anyone who hasn't tuned in yet to Patti Austin, or hasn't recently heard Torme, will be amazed. Austin started as a singer of advertising jingles and a backup singer on other people's recordings. In 1981 Quincy Jones produced an album for her.

She has a simply ravishing vocal tone and an unforced delivery, getting a big effect without belting.

Torme, long acclaimed by jazz fans, is singing better than ever. He does "Just One of Those Things" with masterful smoothness then, after one chorus of "Easy To Love" as Porter wrote it, he moves into melodic improvisations, also smooth.

Austin sings "From This Moment On," follows that with "In the Still of the Night," the one time the concert stirs a listener's emotions deeply.

She doesn't push; she doesn't overpower the song; she's quiet about it.

A listener thinks, "Now how are they going to follow that?" Torme does it, with "Begin the Beguine."

Introducing Kaye Ballard's first number, "The Tale of an Oyster," Hamlisch says, "It captures what I think Porter did best, have fun and put people on." Ballard sings another punchy Porter novelty, "Down in the Depths on the 90th Floor," though she seems a little more subdued than usual. Maybe it was the East Room, the chandeliers and President Reagan in the front row.

June Allyson tells a charming story about Cole Porter hiring her for her first job then sang "It's De-Lovely." Her pitch slid a bit in the beginning, which she put right. Her charm and looks are still right on.

Hamlisch is a considerate, supportive accompanist on piano. When more instruments were needed, the Marine Band was there.

The finale at the taped June 28 concert was "You're the Top," delivered toward Reagan. Mrs. Reagan joined the performers for the finale.

Ameritech, parent of Bell companies in the Midwest, underwrites the four-concert "In Performance at the White House" series. The first two concerts offered the songs of George and Ira Gershwin and of Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. The fourth, in November, will salute the music of Jerome Kern.

After some opening vintage film, including a girl drinking from a slipper while "Anything Goes" plays, Mrs. Reagan made a gracious welcoming speech.

daughter Margaret when she was banished because of bad eating habits, and while in exile the creation of a melted wax crayon masterpiece on the radiator of her bedroom, is much too long, a deviation from the compactness of the rest of the play.

In the area of performance, on three or four occasions, the performers did not wait until laughter had died down to continue their dialogue, with the result some lines were missed or muffled.

These quibbles aside, and they are minor, playgoers of all generations will find "Painting Churches" a remarkably fresh and honest play. It reveals the specter of fear in aging, the courage needed by young and old to deal with this twilight phase of life — succinctly summed up by mother Church when she says "you can't always do what you want to do."

And it does have that cherished ingredient - a happy ending. Daughter Margaret finally corners her parents long enough to complete their portrait.

At first baffled by the purple skin and orange hair given mother Church, she and daddy Church decide it's really a quite striking portrait. It reminds them of a Renoir painting of a Paris riverside scene, with a couple dancing, and the lights dim as the two dance slowly together, reaffirming their love, their closeness in all their years together.

The final of the ECU Summer Theater offerings for this season, "Painting Churches" is a totally appealing choice, beautifully staged, perceptively directed, and acted with love and inspiration. Don't miss it if you can get a seat.

THE REST IS UP TO YOU.

At the new Hilton Greenville, it's not whether you'll relax, but how you'll relax. Because we have every possible amenity to make a weekend get-away more enjoyable.

You can swim in our pool, soak in the whirlpool spa, or work out on our fitness equipment. You can enjoy mesquite grilled Americana favorites in CharleyO's, our moderately priced restaurant. Or you can dance the night away in East Carolina's most celebrated nightclub, Rio!

Of course, you can always lie back and rest in your designer decorated room. But that's up to you.

"THE GREAT ESCAPE WEEKEND"

- Early check-in on Saturday. Late check-out on Sunday.
- Free dinner with one purchase in CharleyO's Restaurant.
- Priority, free entrance to Rio!

French Subways Feature Videos

BY MARILYN AUGUST
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Riders of Paris subways are being entertained these days by culture videos while they wait for their trains in the station.

Some people became so engrossed recently at a station on the Champs Elysees that they let several trains come and go as they watched television monitors showing Mona Lisa's smile, bicycles and airplanes.

Split-second images of flying machines and military tanks are in "Da Vinci 21st Century," a video made from the Italian master's drawings set to a virtually unknown musical score composed by him and played on a synthesizer.

Paid for by private and corporate sponsors, the videos are shown on hundreds of screens scattered in 120 stations on the Paris Metro, as the subway system is called.

Culture videos, or "clips" as they are known, are the brainchild of Gonzague Saint Bris, one of France's most dashing multimedia personalities.

"Recent surveys show that 30 percent of France's television audience wants more cultural programs," Saint Bris said in an interview. "Culture clips are geared to satisfy that need."

Saint Bris adapted his format to the monitors that were installed in Metro stops throughout Paris beginning last year.

The three to six-minute format is familiar to French television viewers. The clips are styled after short word games and documentaries on flowers and animals that filled time between programs on state-run TV channels before the days of commercials.

"Culture doesn't have to be synonymous with boredom, and brevity is the sister of genius," Saint Bris said.

"If culture is not communicated properly, it's bound for an early death. If communication has no culture, it's barbaric."

The Da Vinci clip is the second in a series that began with a video on French artist Jean Cocteau. Contemporary graphic artist Jean-Michel Folon has signed to make a video on Henri Matisse, the painter; moviemaker Roman Polanski will handle the one on composer Frederique Chopin.

Saint Bris said the videos on artists and writers are not supposed to simplify the complexity of their work.

"A clip on Marcel Proust doesn't pretend to summarize his genius," he said. "But it should encourage people to go out and read 'Remembrance of Things Past'."

But the videos are not only for bored subway riders.

Saint Bris, a 38-year-old former radio host, filmmaker and writer, said videos are an ideal way of exporting French culture worldwide. They have already caught on in Japan and are being shown on French, European and Japanese television.

He also said he hopes the videos, which cost the equivalent of $50,000 to $80,000, will catch on with corporations, which can put their names on the screen at the beginning and at the end of each video.

Club Mediterranee is behind Da Vinci, and Saint Bris said he would look for a U.S. company to back a video on the American Revolution hero the Marquis de Lafayette.

Israel Bans Teen Viewers

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Film and Theater Censorship Board has barred high school teen-agers from viewing a frank play about Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

It said they are not old enough to deal with it.

The decision has drawn sharp criticism from the play's author, the director of the theater that is staging it and liberal Israelis who maintain the age limit is politically motivated.

The play, "The Yellow Time," is based on a new book of personal impressions and interviews with Israelis and Palestinians living in the occupied territories. It was written by David Grossman, one of Israel's leading authors.

Miriam Etzioni, head of the independent Yuval Theatre, said she appealed the decision to the censorship board and if necessary would take the matter to the Supreme Court.

"The only possible reason for such a restriction is political," Ms. Etzioni said. The board has restricted the play to audiences 18 and over.

Yehoshua Justman, head of the censorship board, said he did not believe teen-agers could "deal with the problem of the occupied territories when it is presented in dramatic form."

Israel captured the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

FOCUS

Honeymooners
Clarista Opia, second from the left, considers herself a good Christian. But she has been told by her parish priest that she is in fact living in sin. She is seen here with her four co-wives in front of her mud-and-wattle hut in Kenya. One custom contributing to polygamy in some African societies is levirate, according to which a man must marry the widow of a brother. The offspring of such a marriage are sometimes considered the children of the dead brother.
DO YOU KNOW — What is polyandry?

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY July 30
GENERAL TENDENCIES: Some matters of importance with considerable scope may draw your attention, but be sure of your facts and figures before getting in over your head. Consider the possibilities.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Your mate has an idea for an enjoyable time, so go along with this idea. Schedule your time wisely today.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Make plans for the future so that you can handle some home problems intelligently. Keep your temper.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): If you're considering an amusement for this evening, make it inexpensive. You'll enjoy yourself much more.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Focus on establishing harmony at home. Retire early and get some rest after a rather hectic day.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Cleaning up around the house will yield some long lost articles. This is a good day for quiet discussions and serious planning.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Try to be more cooperative with others, as you'll probably need their help later. Be sure to drive carefully.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Some special attention toward your mate will be repaid ten-fold. Plan some amusement, but be sure to watch the cost.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Work on removing obstacles in the path of your progress. Ignoring them would cause much stumbling.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Be very courteous to anyone you come in contact with today. Try to get your schedule running smoothly.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Think about how you can please a friend at a distance from you. Handle small tasks this evening.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If you demonstrate your happiness in the association, a partner will be much more willing to cooperate with you.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): A business contact can become a good and valuable friend with a little effort. Be more kind and thoughtful at home.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be quite attractive and affectionate, and, as a result, will be very popular and pleasing. Your child would be well suited to a creative profession which requires precision such as entertainment or design. Teach him or her to make decisions more quickly.
"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♥
One difference between an expert and an average player is that the expert...

...because of his experience, makes some plays automatically while the average player resorts to guesswork. Safety plays is a case in point.
Note South's rebid of three spades. Since no one can tell that a contract will make exactly nine tricks in spades and not eight in no trump, everyone considers the bid to be forcing. When North then supported spades, South bid what he expected to make.
West led the top of his heart sequence, and it was obvious the fate of the contract hinged on how many trump tricks declarer would have to lose. If West held K-Jx, declarer would have to lose two tricks regardless of how he tackled trumps. What is the best way to insure no more than one loser.
The average player would win the first trick in dummy and finesse the queen. When that lost and another heart put him back on the board, he would lead another trump and agonize after East again produced a low trump. It is more than likely he would go up-with the ace and blow the contract.

The inconsistency in the play is that a second finesse is right because West is much less likely to hold two specific cards, the king-jack, than just one, the king. The second finesse loses only if West started specifically with both missing honors.

But neither play is right. The safe line is to lead a trump to the ace at trick two. If an honor drops from West, the contract is safe; indeed, if the singleton is the king, as here, declarer can make an overtrick by next finessing for the jack. If no honor drops, declarer simply gets back to dummy in a plain suit and leads a trump, covering any card produced by East. This works even if East holds all the missing trumps. Try it.

The Egg Is A Natural For Quick, Easy Meals

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Nature has prepared for quick, easy meals of the '80s by providing its own convenience food — the egg.

The egg is prepackaged, portion-controlled, ready to heat and ready to eat. And, egg main dishes take little more effort than hauling the kids to a fast food restaurant or opening a frozen dinner.

Check the refrigerator or kitchen cabinets for filling ideas in omelets or frittatas, or eggs can be scrambled, poached and fried for other quick skillet suppers.

Hard-cooked eggs also may be the base for quick meals. It takes only about 15 minutes for them to cook, and they may be prepared ahead of time to speed meal preparation.

Baked dishes, such as quiches, also may be time-savers as other tasks are done while they bake. Preparation time is minimal when using a frozen deep-dish pie shell.

Eggs also have the wonderful ability to blend with other foods as they may be served with herbs, spices, fruits, vegetables, cheese, bread and pasta. They are economical and provide protein, vitamins and minerals.

Try the egg recipes distributed by the American Egg Board, Park Ridge, Ill., that are listed below.

SUNSHINE APPLE SLAW

1/2 cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon celery seed
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups shredded green cabbage (about 8 ounces)
2 cups coarsely chopped, cored, unpeeled red eating apple
1/2 cup chopped green-onions with tops
Slice 1 of the eggs. Reserve 4 center slices for garnish. Chop remaining eggs. Set aside. In large bowl, blend together mayonnaise, vinegar, celery seed and salt. Add reserved chopped eggs, cabbage, apple and onions. Toss gently until well combined. Cover and chill to blend flavors. Garnish with reserved egg slices. Makes 4 main-dish or 8 side servings.

NATURALLY LIGHT OMELET

1 tablespoon butter, divided
1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms (about 2 ounces)
1 thin slice red onion, halved
2 eggs
2 tablespoons water
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1/4 cup (1 ounce) shredded Monterey Jack cheese

1/3 cup alfalfa sprouts

In 7 to 8-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook mushrooms and onion in 1 1/2 teaspoons of butter until tender but not brown, about 3 minutes. Drain and remove from pan. Keep warm while preparing omelet.

Mix eggs, water and seasonings until blended. Over medium-high heat, heat remaining butter in pan until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. (Mixture should set immediately at edges).

With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface, tilting pan and moving cooked portions as necessary.

While top is still moist and creamy-looking, reserving some of each for garnish, fill with reserved vegetables, cheese and sprouts. With pancake turner, fold omelet in half or roll, and invert onto plate with a quick flip of the wrist or slide from the pan onto plate. Garnish with reserved vegetables, cheese and sprouts. Makes 1 serving.

GARDEN-FRESH SCRAMBLE

1 cup fresh sliced cauliflowerets (about 6 ounces)
1/2 cup 1/4-inch thick carrot slices (about 1 medium)
1/2 cup water
3/4 cup julienne-cut zucchini (about 1/2 medium)
4 eggs
1/4 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon rosemary leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1/4 cup (1 ounce) shredded Muenster cheese
Fresh rosemary leaves, optional
In medium saucepan, bring cauliflower, carrots and water to boiling.

Tasty Recipes Win Egg Cooking Event

Most recipes include an egg — just think about it. From cookies, cakes and ice cream to meat loaf, potato salad and corn bread, we enjoy eggs all the time.

At this year's North Carolina Egg Cooking Contest, held in Raleigh, five adults and four youth competed with recipes of casseroles, sandwiches and poached eggs. Depending on what time of day you enjoy your eggs, these recipes can be served morning, noon or night.

In the adult division, Janet Irwin's recipe for Cheesy Ham and Egg Spoonbread won her first place and $500. Mrs. Irwin is from Sparta. Second place honors in this division went to Bill Braddy of Raleigh for his Hogan's Hero Sandwich.

In the youth division, Liana Bertoli of Concord won first place with her father's recipe of Peruvian Poached Eggs with Seafood Sauce. Second place was awarded to Ronnie Plyler for his Sausage and Egg Casserole.

These recipes were judged on their nutritional quality, easy of preparation, taste, appearance and creativity. Why not enjoy one of these recipes soon.

CHEESY HAM AND EGG SPOON-BREAD

1 cup cornmeal
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
3 tablespoons butter
7 eggs
1/4 cup Parmesan cheese
3/4 teaspoon baking powder
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) corn, drained
1 cup chopped red or green pepper
1 cup cubed smoked ham
2 green onions, thinly sliced
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese, divided

In heavy saucepan, mix cornmeal, sugar and salt. Slowly add milk and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add butter and stir until melted. Remove from heat. In separate bowl, thoroughly beat eggs. Gradually add

Q. Can you tell me the differences between white and black pepper and between ground pepper and whole peppercorns. Mr. P.H., Greenville.

A. Pete Hagans had me stumped for awhile, so I did a little searching. Even though we use more pepper than all other spices together in the United States, we have not studied the use of spices. The labels on the pepper cans don't give much information.

The white pepper can say to use it in light colored foods like creamed sauces, chowders, and egg and cheese dishes. That is a clue to the difference between black and white pepper.

The white pepper, which comes from the same plant (piper nigrum) as black pepper, was developed for the Europeans who did not want black specks in their light food. Our pepper comes from India where the peppercorns, picked early and sun dried, become black pepper. The same peppercorns, picked fully ripe and stripped of their skin, become white pepper.

Spiceologists say that black pepper is stronger than white pepper although many find no differences. Food history buffs say that black pepper has been an aphrodisiac at various times.

The only nutritional difference I can find is that ground pepper has 5 calories in a teaspoon, while white pepper has 7 calories. The black pepper has slightly more crude fiber, which causes the difference in calories.

Ground pepper comes from whole peppercorns. Generally, 2 to 3 peppercorns give the flavor strength of about 1/8 teaspoon of ground pepper. Some folks prefer to use pepper mills with peppercorns since you get a burst of aroma when you grind the corns. The volatile oils are more quickly lost in ground pepper.

Peppercorns also are useful in stews, soups and marinades when you cook at low temperatures for flavors to develop. Remember, all spices lose their flavor over time. Store in airtight containers in the coolest and driest part of the kitchen (not over the stove). Expiration dates on spices are not for safety but for flavor freshness. When spices lose their flavors, replace them.

Dear Readers: I get many questions about herbs and spices — especially from folks trying to cut down on salt. It's a great idea. Experiment!

Spice lightly to bring out the natural flavors of food. Use a combination of spices in a recipe. On cabbage, try caraway seed, celery seed, dill, mint, mustard seed, nutmeg, savory or tarragon. When corn arrives, try cayenne, or chili powder. On cooked greens, try basil, mace, marjoram, nutmeg or oregano. On tomatoes, try basil, bay leaves, celery seed, marjoram, oregano, sage, sesame seed, tarragon or thyme.

Weekend Outings Call For Quick Meals

By JOAN DRAKE

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Starry nights, crisp cool air with the scent of pine, sitting around an open fire enjoying a delicious meal and glass of wine — those are just a few of the pleasures of a high-country camping weekend. If that does not come as a surprise, you are probably one of millions of Americans that enjoy camping.

A decade ago, this writer laugh-ly said her idea of a weekend "roughing it" was staying at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. That was before a friend introduced me to camping. It did not take long before I was hooked, and have been ever since.

Admittedly, this friend knew what she was doing. She made it look effortless and took things in gradual stages so as not to scare off the novice. Before I knew it, we were progressing from campgrounds with all the amenities to some considerably more primitive.

Since then, I have developed a style that another friend labels "yuppie camping." A van is used for travel and sleeping, and campgrounds with running water are usually chosen over dry camps. A two-burner camp stove and grill over the fire pit are the means for cooking, and a good-size ice chest provides refrigeration.

Although I enjoy all aspects of camping, it is cooking that offers the biggest challenge and the most fun. Figuring out meals that are not too time-consuming and can be cooked with limited equipment may take a little thinking ahead, but today's weekend camping menu shows it can be done.

The food is cooked in a skillet, Dutch oven or griddle on a camp stove; or in heavy-duty foil or a pie iron over an open fire. In the case of

Coleslaw Is Always A Picnic Favorite

Take a peek in most picnic baskets and chances are that you'll find a container of homemade coleslaw. Along with other seasonal favorites, such as potato and fruit salads, coleslaw is popular picnic fare this time of year ... and for good reason.

Coleslaw is easy to prepare, travels well and is enjoyed by just about everyone. Best of all, there are an almost infinite number of tasty variations to please every palate.

To make a picnic coleslaw, you only need finely shredded cabbage — red or green — and a tangy dressing. For the creative cook who wants to add something extra, these picnic coleslaws have the special flavor tang that only salad dressings brings to the mix.

The basic recipe from Kraft Kitchens calls for just four ingredients — shredded cabbage and carrot, salad dressing and celery seed. For variety, an apple-accented slaw can be made by substituting chopped apples for carrots, adding some shredded red cabbage for color, and flavoring the salad dressing with a touch of honey and cinnamon in place of the celery seed.

Adding mustard and honey in place of celery seed and mixing in chopped, toasted walnuts just before serving offers another flavor option for coleslaw makers.

Reduced-calorie salad dressing can be used in any of the following recipes. It has the same flavor, yet fewer calories. A tablespoon of the light dressing has 40 calories, while the regular dressing counts 70 calories. The choice is up to the cook.

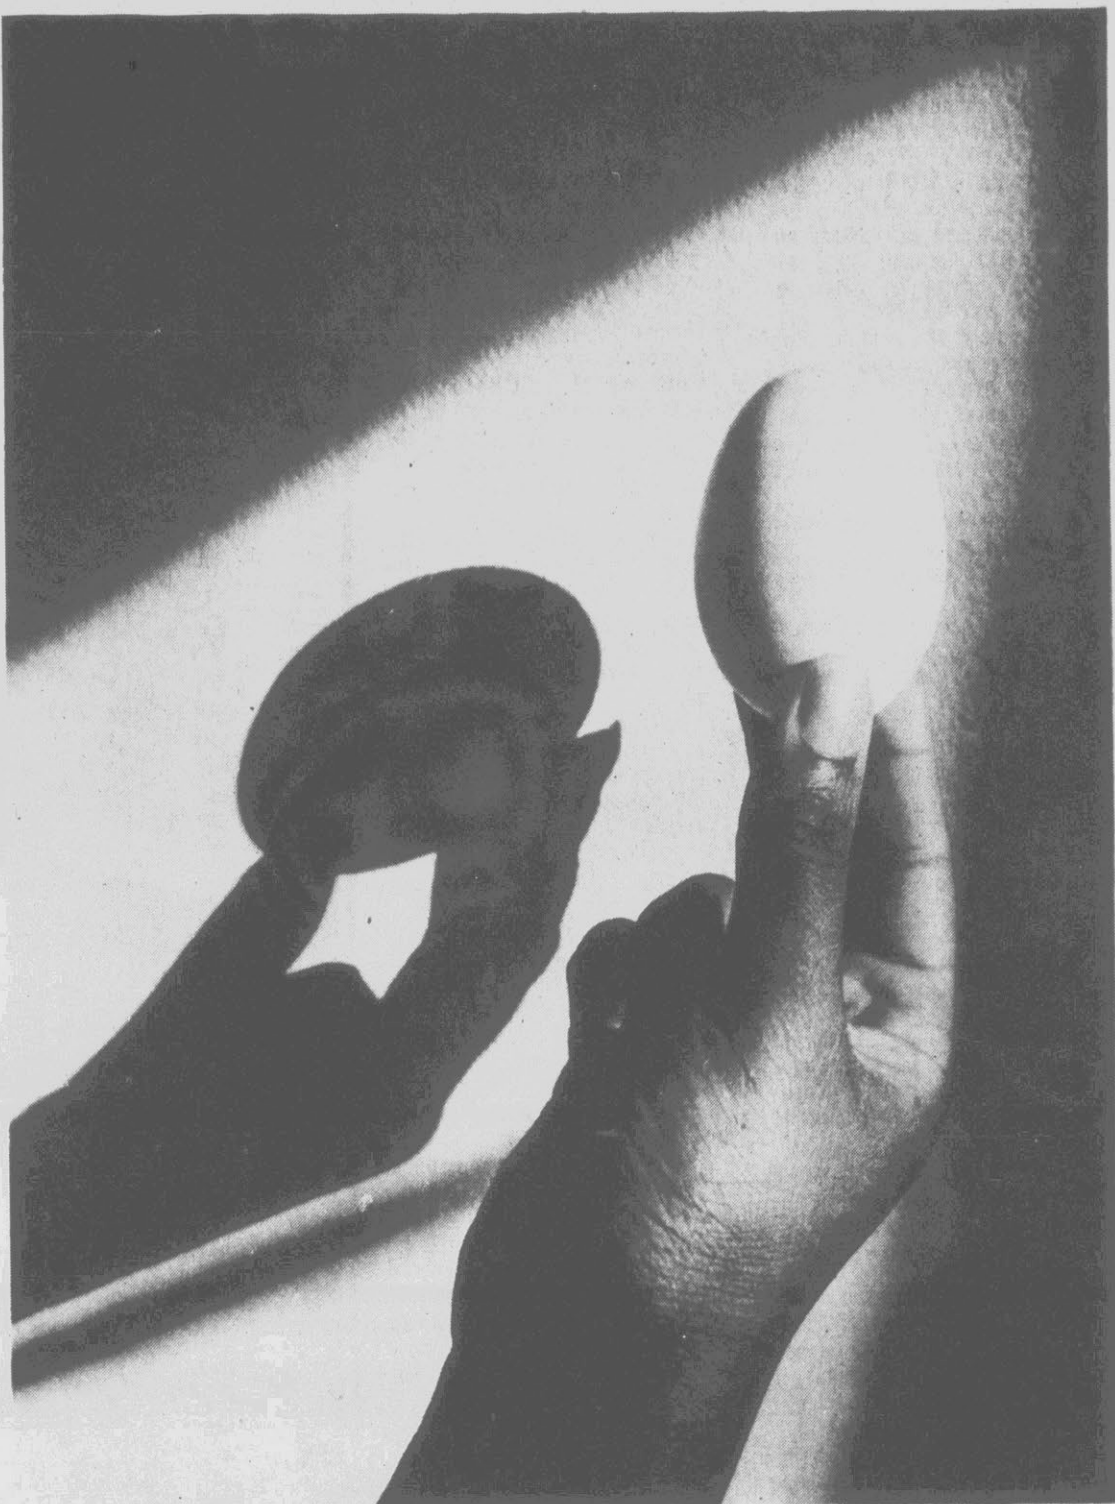

When preparing coleslaw for the road, be sure to make it several hours in advance so the salad is well

These coleslaw recipes dressed with salad dressing are perfect for summer picnics.

THE EGG — The egg is nature's prepackaged convenience food as it may provide the main course of any meal in a matter of minutes. Try the egg recipes in the accompanying article for the next family meal. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis).

Weekend Outings Call For Quick And Satisfying Camp Meals

dinners, the entree uses one heat source, the dessert another. That way it is not necessary to wash a pan between courses.

Many convenience items — heavy-duty foil, disposable foil pans, plastic bags — are suggested in the recipes. Some may want to adapt other non-disposable items.

Remember, though, the first rule of camping is to leave the campground either in the condition you found it or improved. That includes disposing of trash in proper containers or carrying it out if no containers are available. Also, when cleaning up after cooking, be certain not to use any dish-washing soap within 100 feet of lakes or streams. The same goes for disposing of the used wash and rinse water.

It is impossible to cover all the camping basics, but novices will find a cooking equipment checklist below. Camping supply stores have books with more general information.

These recipes were tested on a camp stove and charcoal fire, so cooking times may need to be adjusted for other types of fuel and high altitudes. There should be no need for ingredient adjustments at higher elevations.

Those with more elaborate campers, recreational vehicles and boats will probably find most of the recipes applicable to their equipment. Even people with limited kitchens and outdoor grills can utilize many of the ideas. The heartier foods chosen for chilly nights may not be appropriate for warmer weather conditions, but the same cooking concepts can be used.

GRILLED NACHOS

- 1 (11-ounce) bag tortilla chips
- 1 (4-ounce) package finely shredded Cheddar and Jack cheese
- 2 to 3 tablespoons chopped green chiles

Place half of tortilla chips in each of 2 (12 1/4 x 8 1/4-inch) disposable aluminum pans. Sprinkle each pan with half of cheese and chiles. Loosely cover pans with foil. Grill about 5 inches above medium coals until cheese melts, 4 to 5 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note: Refried beans or bean dip and sliced black olives may also be added before grilling. Serve with guacamole, sour cream and salsa, if desired.

CALIFORNIA CHILI

- 2 pounds chopped beef
- 1 onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon ground oregano
- 1 teaspoon cumin seeds
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- or to taste 1 (14 1/2-ounce) can ready-cut, peeled tomatoes
- 1 cup water
- Salt

Brown beef, onion and garlic in Dutch oven. Add oregano, cumin seeds, chili powder, tomatoes, water and salt to taste. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes to 1 hour. Spoon off any excess fat. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note: For thicker chili, combine 1 tablespoon flour with enough water to make paste. Stir into chili and

SPECIAL CORN BREAD

- 2 cups buttermilk baking mix
- 4 to 6 tablespoons cornmeal
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted

Combine baking mix, cornmeal and sugar in mixing bowl. Add eggs and milk and beat until well blended. Mix in melted butter.

Pour into greased 9-inch square pan. Bake at 350 degrees 35 to 40 minutes or until wood pick inserted near center comes out clean. Makes 9 (3-inch) squares.

FREEZER SLAW

- 1 medium head cabbage, shredded
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup vinegar
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 teaspoon celery seeds
- 1 teaspoon mustard seeds
- 1 medium carrot, peeled and grated
- 1 medium green pepper, chopped

Combine cabbage and salt and let stand about 1 hour. Combine sugar, vinegar, water, celery seeds and mustard seeds in small saucepan. Bring to boil and boil 1 minute. Cool to lukewarm.

Squeeze any moisture from cabbage-salt mixture, then mix in carrot and green pepper. Pour dressing over mixture and mix well.

Place in freezer containers, leaving about 1/2-inch head space, then freeze. Slaw will stay crisp and fresh-tasting when thawed. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RAISIN FRENCH TOAST

- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- Butter or margarine
- 8 slices raisin or raisin-nut bread
- Powdered sugar, optional Maple syrup

Combine eggs, milk, cinnamon and vanilla in shallow dish or pie pan. Melt 1 tablespoon butter on griddle.

Dip 4 bread slices, 1 slice at a time, briefly into egg mixture, coating on both sides. Grill over medium-low heat until browned on both sides. Repeat procedure, using remaining bread slices.

Cut bread diagonally in halves and place 4 triangles, overlapping, on each serving plate. Dust with powdered sugar and serve with butter and maple syrup. Makes 4 servings.

PITA-WICHES

- 1 cup finely chopped lettuce
- 1 small tomato, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup alfalfa sprouts
- 2 tablespoons sliced green onions
- 2 tablespoons bottled Italian salad dressing
- 1 small ripe avocado
- 2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
- 2 to 3 drops hot pepper sauce
- 3 whole-wheat pita breads
- 6 slices Swiss or Jack cheese
- 6 slices boiled ham
- Combine lettuce, tomato, alfalfa sprouts, green onions and salad dressing. Set aside.

Mash avocado pulp with fork. Blend in cream cheese and hot pepper sauce. Cut pita breads in halves. Spread inside of each pocket with avocado-cream cheese mixture.

Line pockets with cheese and ham. Spoon heaping tablespoon reserved vegetable mixture into each pocket. Makes 3 to 6 servings.

PESTO APPETIZERS

- 16 (1/8-inch) slices firm white bread
- 1/2 cup prepared pesto
- 1/2 cup chopped sun-dried tomatoes in oil
- 8 slices provolone cheese

Remove crusts from bread slices. Spread 1 tablespoon pesto on each of 8 slices. Sprinkle with chopped tomatoes. Add cheese and top with remaining bread slices.

Brush outside of sandwiches lightly with oil from tomatoes. Place in sandwich iron and heat over medium coals until toasted, 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown.

Repeat with remaining sandwiches. Sandwiches tend to cook more quickly as sandwich iron gets hotter. Cut into quarters for serving. Makes 32 appetizers.

Note: Cream bread, available at many Japanese bakeries, is excellent to use in this recipe.

DINNER IN A PACKET

- 2 large potatoes, thinly sliced
- 2 zucchini, sliced
- 1 medium onion, sliced and separated into rings
- 8 mushrooms, sliced
- 4 large boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 (14 1/2-ounce) can ready-cut, peeled tomatoes
- or 2 medium tomatoes, chopped
- Salt, pepper
- Crushed oregano
- Crushed basil
- White wine
- 1/4 cup to 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Tear off 4 (18-inch) sheets heavy-duty foil. Using about half of ingredients, layer a few potato slices, zucchini slices, onions rings and mushroom slices on each sheet. Top each with boneless chicken half breast, 1 tablespoon butter, then remaining potato and zucchini slices, onion rings and mushroom slices.

Drain canned tomatoes. Divide evenly among packets. Sprinkle each with salt, pepper, oregano and basil to taste, then about 1 tablespoon wine.

Bring sides of foil up over ingredients to meet in middle and turn down in series of folds. Seal ends well. Place directly on medium-hot coals and cook 30 minutes, turning every 5 minutes. Open packets and sprinkle each with 1 to 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese. Makes 4 servings.

BANANA S'MORES

- 2 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1/4 cup butter, melted
- 4 small bananas, sliced
- 1/2 cup semisweet chocolate pieces
- 1/4 cup milk chocolate pieces

1 1/3 cups miniature marshmallows

Whipping cream or half and half, optional

Tear off 4 (14-inch) sheets heavy-duty foil. Combine graham cracker crumbs and melted butter.

In center of each foil square, spread about 1-3 cup graham cracker crumbs into 4- to 5-inch circle. Place slices of 1 banana, 2 tablespoons semisweet chocolate pieces, 1 tablespoon milk chocolate pieces and 1-3 cup miniature marshmallows over each circle of crumbs. Top with another 1-3 cup graham cracker crumbs.

Bring sides of foil up over ingredients to meet in middle and turn down in series of folds. Seal ends well. Place on low coals about 5 minutes, turning often. Open and serve in foil with whipping cream. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Packets may also be cooked on rack over coals about 10 minutes or in 350-degree oven 15 to 20 minutes.

ANYTHING GOES BREAKFAST

SANDWICHES

- 8 slices bread
- Butter or margarine
- Non-stick vegetable spray
- 4 eggs
- Salt, pepper
- Leftover cooked meats, chopped or crumbled
- Shredded cheese

Remove crusts from bread if necessary to fit pie iron. Cut or tear 2 1/2-inch hole in center of 4 bread slices. Spread 1 side of all bread slices with butter.

Coat inside of pie iron with non-stick vegetable spray. Place 1 bread slice with hole, buttered side down, in 1 side of pie iron. Break egg into hole. Sprinkle salt and pepper to taste, meat and cheese over bread and egg.

Place bread slice without hole over top, buttered side up.

Close pie iron and cook over moderate coals until bread is toasted and egg cooked, 3 to 4 minutes. Remove sandwich and repeat procedure with remaining ingredients. Sandwiches tend to cook more quickly as sandwich iron gets hotter. Makes 4 servings.

Try Change Of Taste For Summer Barbecues

Heat the coals and chill the wine ... it's time for a barbecue!

To make this season's cookouts the most memorable and convivial ever, plan for a lively change of taste. Put old standards on the back burner and look instead to easy entrees with the spicy-hot, tongue-tingling flavors favored today.

Cool the "fire" and the heat of the day with well-chilled, light and fruity White Zinfandel, such as the 1986 Napa Valley White Zinfandel from The Christian Brothers. The grill-tenders beverage of choice, it boasts a delicate berry tint, a fresh, fragrant aroma and a hint of a sweetness that refreshes the palate and brings out the best in a barbecue.

Spicy-hot foods are notoriously hard to pair with wine because their assertiveness tends to destroy most wine's nuances of flavor. Spicy food fans find that the lively, fruity flavor contrast White Zinfandel provides is ideal with Mexican, Indian, Szechuan and Cajun/Creole foods. Aficionados tote it to Thai, Korean and Oriental restaurants of all kinds, and they serve it at home with popular smoked turkey and chicken.

When less spicy fare is featured, the fruity flavor of White Zinfandel makes a perfect match for fruit salads, green salads with light dressings and quiche. It stars at brunches and picnics, and with the holiday turkey it harmonizes with the hard-to-pair flavors of turkey and dressing with "all the trimmings."

To celebrate this year's cookout season, home economists representing The Christian Brothers have created two spicy new grill-top specials to enjoy with a refreshing

The Thriller In Vanilla

By Marie Bianco
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

When my son, Jim, was 7 years old, he talked about the new ice-cream store that was to open in our village with the same anticipation he reserved for Christmas Eve.

When the store finally opened, he spent a lot of time walking back and forth in front of the freezer case reading off the names of ice creams he had never imagined in his wildest dreams — pink bubble gum, banana-chocolate-mocha-pecan, mango-cashew-papaya. How could he possibly choose one?

To aid in his decision-making, he even tried five varieties on small, pink, plastic spoons. Finally, he made his selection: "I'll take vanilla in a cone, please."

Wise decision. Despite ice-cream manufacturers' attempts to come up with the ultimate, way-out ice-cream flavors, vanilla remains this country's favorite, accounting for 30 percent of ice-cream production.

Ice cream is exactly that — cream turned into ice. And hot summer days were made for homemade ice cream — especially homemade vanilla.

Some folks like to eat ice cream right from the canister when it is still light and fluffy. Others like to wait until it "ripens" for an hour or two in the freezer.

The first recipe is a rich version of vanilla ice cream, requiring a custard base and calling for heavy cream before freezing. The second one couldn't be simpler: combine ingredients and freeze. For best results, do not use ultra-pasteurized cream.

FRENCH VANILLA ICE CREAM

1 vanilla bean or 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1/3 cup granulated sugar
5 egg yolks
2 teaspoons all-purpose flour
4 cups half-and-half
2 cups heavy cream

1. If using a vanilla bean, cut it lengthwise and scrape out the small seeds. Place seeds in a blender or food processor with the sugar and process 1 minute. Add the egg yolks and flour and process for 1 minute. (If not using vanilla bean, simply add sugar to egg yolks and flour and process for 1 minute.) Add the half-and-half and process 1 minute. Pour into a heavy saucepan.

3. Place over low heat and cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens and coats a spoon. Do not allow mixture to boil. Remove from heat.

4. Place pan in a larger pan of cold water to cool. If using vanilla extract, stir it in now. Chill until very cold. Stir in heavy cream. Transfer mixture to an ice-cream maker and freeze according to manufacturer's instructions. Makes about 2 quarts.

EASY-DOES-IT VANILLA ICE CREAM

3/4 cup granulated sugar
2 cups heavy cream
2 cups half-and-half
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Combine egg, sugar, heavy cream, half-and-half and vanilla. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Place mixture in refrigerator until well chilled. Pour mixture into ice-cream machine and freeze according to manufacturer's direction. Makes about 1 1/2 quarts.

glass of chilled White Zinfandel. Full-flavored and easy to prepare, both recipes begin with boneless skinned chicken breast for quick convenience.

Ginger Kabobs with Three Peppers teams fresh ginger with garlic, soy sauce, ground red pepper and a hint of honey for lively East-meets-west flavor. Grilled Chicken Diable takes its spicy flavor from Dijon-style mustard, rosemary, and ground black and white pepper. Cool the peppery flavor punch with a chilled glass of White Zinfandel for a cookout meal that's far from ho-hum.

GINGER KABOBS WITH 3 PEPPERS

1 pound boned and skinned chicken breast
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup water
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger
4 teaspoons honey
2 garlic cloves, minced
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper, as desired
1 small red bell pepper
1 small yellow bell pepper
1 small green bell pepper
Pound chicken to 1/2-inch thickness; cut into 3/4-inch strips. Place in plastic bag. Combine soy sauce, water, oil, ginger, honey, garlic and ground pepper. Pour into bag with chicken; press out air and fasten securely.

Refrigerate at least 30 minutes or up to 2 hours, turning bag frequently. Cut peppers into 1 1/2-inch pieces. Drain chicken, reserving marinade. Alternately thread chicken, accordeon style, with peppers onto skewers. Place on grill over hot coals or on rack of broiler pan about 6 inches from heat. Brush generously with marinade. Grill or broil 6 to 8 minutes or until chicken is cooked through, turning and basting occasionally with marinade. Heat remaining marinade; serve with kabobs. Makes 4 servings.

Variations: Substitute 1 pound beef sirloin steak, cut 3/4-inch thick, for chicken. Cut steak into 1/4-inch strips. Grill to desired doneness. Substitute 1 pound large shrimp, peeled and deveined, tails intact, for chicken.

GRILLED CHICKEN DIABLE
2 whole chicken breasts, split, boned and skinned

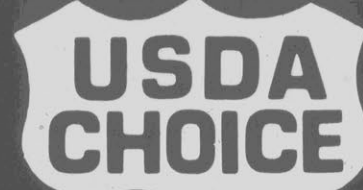

1/3 cup Dijon-style mustard
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/2 teaspoon rosemary, crushed
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper
Pound chicken to 1/2-inch thickness. Combine mustard, oil, rosemary and pepper; mix well. Spread mixture evenly over both sides of chicken. Place chicken on grill over hot coals or on rack of broiler pan about 6 inches from heat. Grill or broil 6 to 8 minutes or until chicken is cooked through, turning once. Makes 4 servings.

Recipes

1/2 cup of hot cornmeal mixture, mix well. Add another 1/2 cup of hot cornmeal mixture, mix well.

Add remainder of hot mixture, mix well. Stir in baking powder. Stir in next 4 ingredients and 1 1/4 cups of cheese. Pour into greased 9-inch baking dish. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Garnish with cheese. Serves 6.

HOGAN'S HERO SANDWICH

3 eggs
1 tablespoon oil
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 cup sliced Italian sausages
1 medium onion, sliced
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
4 ounces cream cheese, cubed
1/3 cup grated Cheddar cheese
2 Hoagie rolls, split and insides scooped out

Beat eggs and set aside. In non-stick pan, heat oil and garlic and brown sausages. Remove and drain. In remaining oil, saute onions and peppers until onions are translucent. Add eggs, sausages and cheeses to onions and peppers.

Scramble mixture until firm but moist. Spoon into hoagie rolls. Wrap in aluminum foil and place in preheated 300-degree oven for 10 minutes. Serves 2.

PERUVIAN POACHED EGGS

WITH SEAFOOD SAUCE

1 pound cod fish fillets, fresh or thawed, if frozen (or other white fish)

1 cup milk or light cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash black pepper
1/2 pound cooked, peeled shrimp
1 1/2 cups grated Swiss cheese
6 poached eggs
3 cups steamed rice or 6 pastry shells

Snipped parsley, pimento strips

In top of double boiler, simmer cod in milk or cream seasoned with salt and pepper for 15 minutes uncovered. When fish is cooked, stir in shrimp and cheese. The sauce should be hot enough to melt cheese and thicken the milk, but not hot enough to harden the cheese. Keep warm while poaching eggs.

Spoon 1/2 cup of rice or 1 pastry shell with seafood sauce. Arrange poached eggs on top of sauce. Garnish with snipped parsley or strips of pimento if desired. Serves 6.

SAUSAGE AND EGG CASSEROLE

3 cups milk
1 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
3 slices bread, cut in 1/4-inch cubes
1 1/2 pounds sausage (regular or hot), browned and drained
1 1/2 cups grated sharp cheese

Combine first 4 ingredients and mix well. Add bread, sausage and cheese. Pour into greased 9x13-inch pan. Refrigerate overnight. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour or until firm and golden brown. Serves 9.

Coleslaw

chilled. Also pack and store it in a cooler until ready to eat.

Salad dressing is an ideal ingredient in a summertime picnic recipe because its high acidity level actually slows the bacterial growth that causes food to spoil. However, good basic food handling practices are always essential.

COLESLAW

5 cups shredded cabbage
1 cup shredded carrot
1 cup salad dressing
3/4 teaspoon celery seed

Combine ingredients; mix lightly. Chill several hours. Makes 6 servings.

Variations:

Cinnamon Apple: Omit carrots and celery seed. Decrease cabbage to 3 cups. Add 2 cups shredded red cabbage, 1 1/2 cups chopped apples, 1 tablespoon honey and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.

Honey Mustard: Omit celery seed. Decrease cabbage to 3 cups. Add 2 cups shredded red cabbage, 1 tablespoon honey and 2 teaspoons pure prepared mustard. Stir in 1/2 cup chopped toasted walnuts just before serving.

BAVARIAN DINNER

1 pound pork spareribs
1 to 2 tablespoons oil
4 slices bacon
1 medium onion, chopped
1 (12-ounce) can beer
1 bay leaf
4 to 6 small red potatoes, halved
1 (1-pound) can sauerkraut
1 (8-ounce) can sliced carrots
1 teaspoon caraway seeds
Salt, pepper
3 to 4 small fully cooked pork chops
3 to 4 knackwurst

Cut ribs between bones into about 1-inch pieces. Brown in oil in Dutch oven. Remove ribs. Chop bacon into small pieces and saute with onion in Dutch oven until bacon is almost crisp.

Drain fat. Add beer, bay leaf, potatoes and ribs. Simmer, covered, 20 minutes.

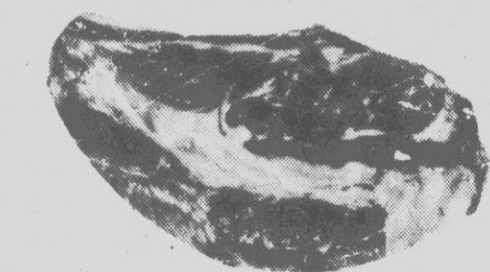

Mix in sauerkraut, carrots, caraway seeds and salt and pepper to taste. Top with smoked pork chops and knackwurst. Cover and simmer 20 minutes.

"Train Up A Child In The Way That He Should Go . . ."

Proverbs 22:6

WHERE CAN A PARENT GET HELP ON A DAILY BASIS TO CARRY OUT THIS ENORMOUS RESPONSIBILITY?

The chief responsibility to train a child lies with the parents. Parents are given the task of molding and shaping the lives of their children so that the child will never depart from the right way. It is important to realize, however, that there are institutions outside the home which influence the child in tremendous ways—the church, the school, and society in general. Of all the institutions outside the home which directly and indirectly influence the child, the school is in contact with him the greatest amount of time during the formative years. Therefore, it is imperative that the school be committed to excellence in order to educate the total child—body, soul, and intellect. At T.C.S. we have set ourselves to that task.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

Excelling will be the key word for every class and activity. No student will have the excuse to present only his average effort.

Our kindergartens and primary grades will build on a strong phonetical reading and mathematics program, while the major emphasis and focus of high school will be on college preparation. All students graduating from T.C.S. must meet North Carolina requirements as well as those established by our program.

SPIRITUAL EXCELLENCE

Trinity Christian School gives as much attention to the student's heart as to his mind. We will strive to train the heart and the mind through academic excellence with a Christian emphasis.

Specifically, we will seek to develop within each child a keen understanding of the fundamentals of God's creation including all of the academic studies; to cause within his thinking an understanding that Jesus Christ is central in all of these areas; and to instruct him thoroughly in the arts and sciences that he might develop to the glory of God spiritually, socially, mentally, and physically, not in his own natural energy, but through new life in Christ.

FACULTY EXCELLENCE

The teacher is the single most important factor in quality education. Our teachers are selected on the basis of their spiritual and academic qualifications. Trinity Christian School teachers view their opportunities as more than a job; it is a commitment to spiritual, mental, and physical excellence.

DISCIPLINE EXCELLENCE

We believe it is impossible to teach without discipline and equally as impossible to learn without self-discipline. Therefore, our goal is to utilize discipline as another tool of instruction for the student in his pursuit of excellence.

ADMISSIONS

Trinity Christian School admits students of any race, color, and national and ethnic origin to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at school. T.C.S. does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, and national and ethnic origin in administration of its educational policies, admission policy, athletic, and other school-administered programs.

A student is admitted to T.C.S. on the basis of former achievement, placement testing, and interview with the principal, and the personal desire of each student to attend a Christian school. It is understood that if a student does not cooperate in maintaining high ideals of academic work and Christian conduct, he may be asked to withdraw whenever the general welfare demands it. No one has the right to attend; it is a privilege that must be earned and respected.
