Quality Tobacco Crop Expected For '87 Sales

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Despite weather and disease misfortunes in this year's growing season in Pitt County, a quality tobacco crop is expected when markets open Wednesday morning, and it may attract foreign markets, said local tobacco officials.

"The story this year has been to overcome a number of obstacles to provide a quality leaf," said Mitch Smith, tobacco agent for the Pitt County Agriculture Extension Service. "I think there'll be some out there."

A clean, quality leaf is the key to a thriving market in Pitt County, he said. "Our tobacco has a history of being clean" of illegal chemicals such as Dicamba and 2,4-D, both of which prematurely speed the ripening process.

Because of this, it is "strong speculation" the Japanese "are going to start looking here now to accommodate and satisfy their needs," he said.

Georgia and Florida tobacco market areas have received negative publicity surrounding use of illegal chemicals in their past crops, Smith said. Japan bought about 7 percent of last year's crop.

The use of the chemicals in Pitt County "would really send terrible shock waves about the buying potential" here.

"The issue is the use of only-labeled chemicals," such as Ethrel, he said. "Illegal pesticides could jeopardize the integrity of our markets elsewhere and especially here locally."

Tobacco will be sampled for illegal chemicals by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Smith said.

"I just don't believe anyone would deliberately put it (illegal chemicals) on tobacco this year," said Kenneth Allen, sales supervisor for the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Penalties for that include losing federal crop supports and a $10,000 fine, five years in prison or both.

This year's first crops are better than what was expected, Allen said. "What's on the floor appears to be better than last year."

About 757,000 pounds of tobacco were sold at an average of $125.85 a hundred pounds in Greenville on opening day last year, he said. "We had 42 sale days last year."

This year's opening day average is expected at about $1.30 per pound. Georgia markets opened with an average of $1.25 per pound, Smith said. "We want that and more."

James Mills of Planter's Warehouse on South Greene Street was optimistic about this year's tobacco crop. "Looks like we're getting a good quality — much better than last year," he said.

Mills said about 100 farmers will sell in Planter's Warehouse.

"We just started unloading yesterday, and so far, the quality looks above average," said Sonny Belcher of New Independent Warehouse on North Pitt Street.

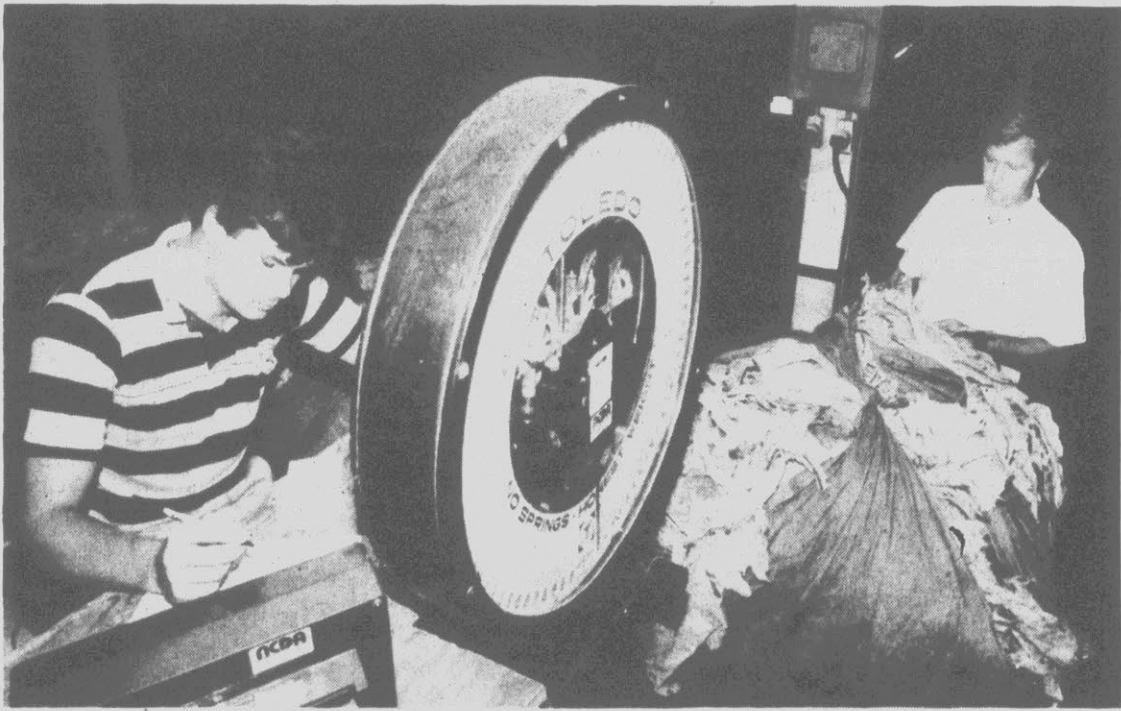

"We're expecting a good market this year," he said. "So far, the government has not had to go into the (Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative) Stabilization (Corp. program to support auction prices). (It has not had to buy much tobacco" in markets that already have opened. The co-op administers the price-support program for flue-cured tobacco.

"What we got coming in is fair," said W.H. Mills of Cannon's Warehouse on Dickinson Avenue. he said most of the leaf is "coming from those who have had rain. I know we'll have some tobacco in the dry section that won't be as good."

W.H. Mills said about 60 farmers had unloaded their tobacco in Cannon's Warehouse.

Sales are scheduled Wednesday in the Farmers Warehouse and New Independent Warehouse.

Philip Morris Increasing Purchases As Marts Open

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

FAIRMONT, N.C. (AP) — Philip Morris USA will buy 30 million more pounds of domestic tobacco, the company's president said today as sales opened to generally higher prices at North Carolina-South Carolina border belt markets.

"What this does is make tobacco farmers more stable," Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., told a news conference here during opening ceremonies at the Gold Leaf Warehouse. "And it makes us in Washington work harder for the tobacco companies."

Opening prices at the Gold Leaf Warehouse here were about 10 cents a pound higher than last year, said warehouse co-owner Tom Spivey. Opening prices averaged about $1.43 a pound, Spivey said.

"It was a good sale," he said. "I think everybody was pleased. If the prices continue to hold, we'll be in good shape."

Philip Morris President Frank Resnik said the 30 million additional pounds were "over and above" his company's commitments to increase its purchases of American tobacco.

The good news came in the traditional tobacco market setting — an auctioneer leading rows of buyers along a warehouse floor stacked with piles, or sheets, or golden cured tobacco. Tobacco dust filled shafts of light that shot through skylights to the market floor.

Rose said the tobacco industry faces threats from efforts to impose bans on smoking and advertising of tobacco and efforts to increase the federal excise tax on tobacco.

"This is our best shot," Rose said. "You build what you can to get the American companies to buy more domestic tobacco. If farmers take the time to grow a quality leaf, they'll find that the American companies will buy it."

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said the 1987 crop appeared to be of good quality.

"The first showing of the fruits of labor look very good," Jordan said. "Some of us in state government are frustrated that we can't do more to help tobacco farmers. That's why we root for Charlie Rose and his efforts in Congress."

Several growers said the prices seemed to be a bit higher than last year.

Iranian Navy Drills As Tankers Keep Moving

By JOHN RICE

Associated Press Writer

KUWAIT (AP) — The Kuwaiti tanker Gas Prince headed for Japan on its own today after its U.S.-escorted trip through the Persian Gulf, and Iran announced completion of the first stage of its naval maneuvers in the Strait of Hormuz.

The Gas Prince cleared the gateway to the Persian Gulf on Monday, a few hours before the Iranian exercises began, after a 550-mile journey from Kuwait. Another Kuwaiti tanker, the Bridgeton, and its U.S. escorts reportedly will depart Kuwait soon for the strait.

Tehran radio, monitored in Bahrain, blared anti-U.S. slogans and threatened that Iran will undermine American and Saudi Arabian interests throughout the world. The threats came as Moslem pilgrims celebrated the end of their annual pilgrimage to Mecca, Saudi Arabia. On Friday, hundreds of the pilgrims were killed in violent clashes with Saudi police.

Iran blames the United States and Saudi Arabia for the deaths.

"They're going on down the Gulf (of Oman). It's over," Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, commander of the U.S. naval force in the Persian Gulf, said today as the Gas Prince steamed toward its final destination of Imari, Japan.

The Strait of Hormuz connects the Persian Gulf with the Gulf of Oman and the Arabian Sea.

Pentagon officials in Washington on Monday hailed the successful passage of the Gas Prince as a "textbook" operation.

A Pentagon source also said eight mine-sweeping helicopters had arrived at the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia for use in the gulf.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, said its exercises along a 875-mile stretch of its coastline and in the 44-mile-wide strait would show the readiness of the volunteers for suicide attacks on the U.S. Navy, which Iran says helps Iraq in the 7-year-old gulf war.

On Monday, Iran warned all ships and aircraft to stay out of Iranian territorial waters in the gulf, the Strait of Hormuz and the Sea of Oman.

Although Iranian waters are difficult to define, gulf shipping executives note that international law puts the territorial line 12 miles off a nation's coast. However, that limit may also apply to each offshore Iranian island, extending it considerably.

The reflagged 46,732-ton Gas Prince, whose cargo of liquefied petroleum gas makes it a floating bomb, negotiated the strait with two Navy ships on guard. Once in the Gulf of Oman, the two U.S. warships left the Gas Prince.

Tankers passing through the strait face the threat the Chinese-built Silkorm missiles that Iran keeps on its side of Hormuz. They have a range of about 50 miles, a Defense Department official in Washington said.

Last month, the supertanker Bridgeton, also flying the American flag, sailed north through the Persian Gulf with the Gas Prince in the first Navy-escorted convoy. The Bridgeton hit a mine July 24 off Iran's Farsi Island about 120 miles south of Kuwait.

The tanker limped into a Kuwaiti port with a hole in its hull. But it was later loaded with a partial shipment of oil and is waiting to make the return voyage south through the Persian Gulf with U.S. Navy escorts.

Tehran radio broadcast a communique Monday that said Iran's naval exercises would prepare the country for "possible aggressions by the arch-Satan, the world-devouring United States, and her hireling servants, in the southern blue waters of Islamic Iran."

Monitored in Cyprus, the radio said the exercises also would honor the hundreds of Iranian pilgrims killed during an Iranian anti-American rally.

"The Saudi killers and their instigators America, the great satan, will not escape Islamic punishment," the radio threatened today. "Today, the hajjis (pilgrims) stone the devil at Arafat...and the Moslems must know that the real devil to be stoned or burned is America and its lackeys."

The statement was referring to the end of the annual pilgrimage on the Plain of Arafat outside Mecca.

School Board Alters Exam Plan

By JANE WELBORN

The first draft of an examination exemption policy for the Pitt County school system was amended by the Pitt County Board of Education Monday to allow A, B and C students with good attendance to be able to bypass final exams.

The policy proposal must remain untouched for 30 days under board rules and will be considered at the September board meeting.

According to the amended policy, all students in grades nine through 12 will take an examination at the end of the first semester. Exemptions for the second semester are based on cumulative grade averages and absences for the entire school year.

For students enrolled the full year, exams may be exempt if the student has an A average and three or fewer absences; a B and two absences, or a C and one absence. Students with a D average are required to take the final examination; the score may count if it results in a higher grade than would otherwise be the case.

The policy was formed by a committee of the board and had included that a student with a D average may be exempt from final exams if he has not missed a single day of school for the year. The policy was amended so that D students must take the exams.

Board member Steve Tripp asked that a task force be set up to investigate absences in the schools.

The board approved a contract for Construction Management Associates for 3.5 percent of the construction costs for the 14 school projects they will supervise. In addition, CMA will receive payment for incidental expenses estimated at $172,000 and including the salaries of site superintendents and the project manager, onsite office expenses and liability insurance.

According to the administration, "A high level of cost control, time and project management will accrue to the school system through the utilization of CMA services."

The company will oversee every facet of the construction operations for the school projects — from letting the bids to overseeing the site work.

Criteria for naming school facilities suggested by the board include naming schools for only for inanimate objects. However, the boards agreed, if a benefactor donates at least 50 percent of the funds for constructing a new school facility, the school may be named for the donor.

The board approved the Free and Reduced Price Meals policy for the school system as it was submitted to and approved by the state. Free and

County Board Backs PCMH Rate Hikes Ranging Up To 100 Percent

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

County Commissioners Monday gave approval to Pitt County Memorial Hospital's $144.54 million budget for fiscal 1987-1988, paving the way for implementation of the spending and revenue package on Oct. 1.

Commissioners also approved the purchase of a landfill compactor and roll off truck and instructed County Manager Kramer Jackson to implement a plan he outlined for allocation of space at the courthouse.

Adopted by PCMH trustees last month, the hospital budget — including an average 16.2 percent or $30-a-day room rate increase expected to bring in $19.3 million — projects gross revenues of $144.54 million for the new fiscal year and operating expenses of $114.9 million and $5.2 million for capital outlay.

Those figures compare to projected revenues in this year's budget of $117.17 million and operating expenses of $95 million.

But deductions of $27.79 million (19.2 percent compared with 16.9 percent or $17.4 million this year) for uncollectables (including care for indigent patients, bad debts, Medicare and Medicaid discounts) will yield a projected net operating revenue of $122.8 million in the coming fiscal year ($100.01 million this year).

Roy Clark, chief financial officer at PCMH, told commissioners that the new budget, which provides $63.77 million for salary and fringe benefits for 2,632 full-time equivalent employees ($57.17 million for 2,563 employees in this year's budget), includes $1.6 million for 89 new employees in the coming year.

Clark explained that the new room rate increases, the first in three

One-Of-A-Kind Pontoon Bridge Spans Waterway

SUNSET BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The Sunset Beach pontoon bridge, a one-lane span that is the last of its kind in North Carolina, has become a symbol of patience — a landmark some people love, and others love to hate.

"Fifty say they want a new one and 50 say they don't," says Tom Hewett, operator of the bridge. "Pontoons require a lot of upkeep, mostly keeping the cables from wearing out, but it would be a shame to take this one away."

A local landowner built the bridge over the Intracoastal Waterway in 1958 to link quiet Sunset Beach with the rest of Brunswick County. State crews took over maintenance 26 years ago.

The structure, technically called a steel barge swing span, is 13½ feet wide with a bridgetender's station in the middle. When most drawbridges are either raised or pivoted laterally on a support, the movable section of this bridge rests on a pontoon, a barge that rises and falls with the tide.

To open, an engine-driven cable pulls one end of the barge upstream. To close, the engine pulls a cable back.

Traffic increased over the years as Sunset Beach drew more people. In 1983, an average of 1,950 cars drove the span daily. The figure jumped to 4,200 last year.

The bridge didn't change as a result. But the time spent waiting to cross did.

"When I trained here in '79, there'd be at most 16 cars stopped — even in the busiest time of the day," says Hewett, 56. "Here it is eight years later and we must average 60 to 100 cars stopped at one time on busy weekends."

As operator of the Sunset Beach pontoon bridge, Hewett is a master at letting people simmer.

"They'll just have to wait," he says as cars and boats wait their turns. "The road traffic cusses us and the boat traffic cusses us. One way or another, they're mad. I don't pay them one bit of mind."

In the early 1980s, the state proposed a controversial solution: Tear down the old bridge and build a replacement. Construction, which will take at least two years, is to start in 1989.

"There was opposition to the idea," says George Phillips, an assistant N.C. bridge maintenance engineer. "A lot of the people out there don't mind a little congestion if it keeps Sunset Beach from growing."

"But the pontoon is too expensive to maintain and takes a tremendous amount of time to open for boats."

Hewett and four other operators work eight-hour shifts to keep the bridge running 24 hours a day. Stoplights automatically close it to one lane of traffic at a time, but operators must open the bridge for boats. An average of 50 a day may sail through in busy spring and fall months.

"If other boats are on the way, I wait until they can all go through," Hewett says, looking through binoculars at the Nilza III, a 50-foot yacht from Florida. "Small boats can slip under the road and between the pilings. But if they don't want to, we have to open up for them, too."

He climbs down a spiral staircase and cranks the noisy motor. The bridge creeps across the water, leaving a 90-foot gap for boats.

GHA Seeks Federal Modernization Funds

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Housing Authority has approved a final application for $1.6 million in modernization funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Money from the Comprehensive Improvement Assistance Program is designated for modernization efforts in the 118-unit Moyewood I project and the 40-unit Moyewood II development, according to James E. Barnhill, GHA director of operations.

"I'm glad to say we received a letter inviting us to submit a final application for $1.6 million on our modernization programs," Barnhill told commissioners at their monthly meeting Monday night.

"We originally requested $2.7 million for our projects in Moyewood, but we discussed that the large sum of money could come in a two-year phasing process. As anticipated, we've been asked to submit a final application for $1.6 million, leaving a balance of $1.1 million to be in a second phase next fiscal year."

The funds are earmarked for gas, electrical and water distribution systems, storm sewers, security lighting and landscaping, according to Barnhill, who said the application is due Aug. 11 and a decision on the application is expected Sept. 11.

In other business, commissioners approved several revisions to the University Towers' budget.

"It has come to our attention that some of the residents are having a hard time hearing the alarm system we have in the hall," Barnhill said. "We would like to put an additional two horns on each floor. We're concerned that we're possibly not getting enough noise down at the very end of the corridors."

Nurses' Registry

Grace Turner and Helen McArthur, registered nurses, are taking calls throughout the month for the Pitt County Private Duty Nurses' Registry.

The registry is closed weekends; for emergencies call either nurse. Mrs. Turner can be reached at 756-0375 and Mrs. McArthur's number is 756-1854.

MASONIC NOTICE

William Pitt Lodge No. 734 AF&AM will hold a stated communication Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Correction

Some copies of Monday's Daily Reflector listed an incorrect name in the "Ayden Native's Son Is In Superman IV" article. The correct name is Evelyn Finch.

Barnhill said the revisions will not affect total GHA operating expenses.

"We've taken the budget and we've done a little reorganizing of the money values on different line items. This is not going to entail any increase or decrease in total operating expenditures. It all equals out."

The revisions include a $5,900 reduction in salaries, administrative expenses, labor costs and employment benefits and a $5,900 increase in utilities, general expenses, insurance and exterior maintenance, according to Barnhill.

"Certain revisions become necessary as you go through your budget year," he said. "We have certain things unexpected come up and then have some things you expected that didn't come up."

"It's just a little reshuffling of the figures to facilitate the installation of, among other things, the 10 fire horns."

Meanwhile, a 147-unit painting project is about 35 percent completed, Barnhill said.

"We're through with 35 units in Meadowbrook," he said. "We all know when you're painting occupied apartments you have to move people's belongings. It's going at a pretty slow pace, but we have around 150 days for this project and we are operating on schedule."

"When school takes back in a couple of weeks, we anticipate speeding our progress up a little bit."

Barnhill also told commissioners a house at 401 Roundtree Dr., which was damaged in a fire, is ready for occupancy.

"We were hoping we could complete that by the end of July, but we ran into a slight problem with materials," he said. "I did the final inspection today (Monday). We'll be soon re-renting that unit."

Director of Resident Affairs Sallye Streeter reported average rent at authority developments in July totaled $124.04. Rent at Meadowbrook was 108.30; Kearney Park, $125.18; Moyewood I, $128.66; Moyewood II, $124.90; Hopkins Park, $131.81; Newtown, $118.58 and West Meadowbrook, $111.10.

Storms Fail To Crack Heat Wave Crippling Midwest

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer
Thunderstorms dropped temperatures a degree a minute in the Midwest but failed today to crack the heat wave gripping the eastern two-thirds of the nation. The heat, now in its 18th day, has been blamed for 83 deaths.

"We've already had a summer's worth of 90-degree temperatures," said state climatologist Paul Waite in Iowa, where temperatures cooled to the 80s Monday after the hottest May through July since 1936.

Hospitals in Evansville, Ind., and Indianapolis were treating people for heat-related ailments, and Alabama's Department of Public Health extended a heat alert through today, warning people to take precautions.

Storms spawned by the hot and humid air have downed power lines, straining utilities already struggling to meet record-setting demand for power. The heat also kept police busy.

"Roads buckle, cars break down, people's tempers are frayed because of it," said Bob Fletcher, a spokesman for the Illinois State Police. "We find it as stressful as everyone else."

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast today from the Atlantic Coast states across much of the Great Lakes region and middle Mississippi Valley and into the southern Plains.

But highs in the 90s or above were forecast from southern New England to Florida and west into the Ohio Valley, the lower Mississippi Valley and the Southern Plains.

Highs in triple digits were expected in parts of Arkansas and northeastern Texas, as well as the Southwest desert.

Relief from the heat in the eastern two-thirds of the nation is expected by Wednesday over all but the central Atlantic Coast and Southeast, according to the National Weather Service.

On Monday, temperatures dropped into the 80s in Kansas and Missouri from 100-plus on Sunday as afternoon thunderstorms rolled in. The temperature in Kansas City, Mo., dropped from 103 to 81 in 30 minutes.

Storms brought Indiana heavy rain and Illinois high winds, lightning and hail. More than an inch of rain fell in a few hours in Kentucky but provided only a brief respite from the heat, which blistered Paducah with a record 102 degrees.

However, forecasters said the storm heralded a cold front that will push into the state Wednesday, dropping temperatures at least 5 to 10 degrees.

The front Monday was over the upper Plains, causing highs in the 70s in Montana and North Dakota. The cooler air chased a high-pressure system lingering over the nation's midsection into the Northeast, causing a resumption of steamy weather there.

Eleven cities east of the Mississippi River reported record high temperatures Monday. The highs in Michigan included 85 at Marquette, 94 at Alpena and 91 at Sault Ste. Marie, on the Canadian border.

Mountainous Beckley, W.Va., had its hottest day in the 25 years records have been kept — 93 degrees, breaking a record of 91 set nine days ago.

In Illinois, the heat may have damaged corn and soybean harvests, said Ruth Hambleton, agricultural adviser in Washington County in southern Illinois.

The Union Rescue Mission at Little Rock, Ark., said it was having to turn away elderly people requesting fans. It ran out after giving away 166 since Friday.

Athletes competing in the International Special Olympics in South Bend, Ind., and others preparing for the Pan American Games in Indianapolis also suffered in the heat.

Marie Donnelly, a volunteer at the Hoosier Horse Park near Edinburgh, Ind., said South American horses preparing to compete in the Pan Am Games had to have their winter coats shaved.

The economic ripple from the heat has spread beyond the expected surge in air-conditioning and fan sales to many other sectors. Business was reported down at golf courses and up at hotels with air conditioning and at take-out restaurants.

"A lot of people right now aren't so interested in going out, but they are interested in not cooking. Our carry-out business is swamped," said Charlie Hart, manager of the Pawn Shop Restaurant in Indianapolis.

Iran-Contra Panel May Not Give Final Answers

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Iran-Contra committees said today the American people should not expect definite answers from the congressional report on the diversion of Iranian arms sales profits to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., vice chairman of the House committee, said he didn't believe the committees' final analysis would satisfy a public looking for answers.

"No, it probably won't," he said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "But, again, I think it's important to remember that the process we've been through is to look at sort of a snapshot in time ... a series of decisions. What we're really interested in, what Congress ought to be interested in, is how we improve the process overall, how do we do a better job of conducting U.S. foreign policy."

He added that the process of public hearings followed by a report "is one more attempt to adjust the mechanism, but it will get out of whack again at some time and then will have to do it in the future."

With the public hearings completed, the committees went behind closed doors today to question high-level Central Intelligence Agency officials about their roles in the affair.

The first witnesses was Duane Clarridge, the CIA's counterterrorism chief. He was to be followed by Clair George, the agency's official in charge of covert operations, and Alan Fiers, director of the CIA's Central American task force. All were being quizzed about their involvement in the Iran arms sales and the clandestine resupply network for Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

The public portion of the three-month series of hearings ended Monday, with panel leaders condemning administration secrecy and deceit that permitted the covert scheme to thrive over the objections of President Reagan's top advisers.

"I see it as a chilling story, a story of deceit and duplicity and the arrogant disregard of the rule of law," said Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate investigating committee. "It is also a story of a flawed policy kept alive by a secret White House junta despite repeated warnings and signs of failure."

All three CIA officials being questioned this week were in frequent contact with Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, the White House aide who coordinated both the Iran and Contra aid projects from his office at the National Security Council. Investigators are interested in learning the extent of CIA participation in Contra aid when it was banned by Congress.

The agency's new director, William H. Webster, has launched his own review of the involvement of those officials and others and says he will decide whether disciplinary action is in order after receiving a report in two to three months, about the same time the congressional panels issue their final assessment.

Conflicts have arisen in connection with earlier statements by Clarridge, who has sworn to Congress that he did not know that a November 1985 shipment from Israel to Iran contained Hawk anti-aircraft missiles.

Clarridge said under oath that he believed the shipment was oil drilling equipment. But later testimony, including that of former White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, showed that the oil equipment story was merely a cover used to hide the shipment's true nature.

In other developments: —A committee source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the cost of the hearings, excluding such expenses as security, utilities and remodeling of office space in the Capitol complex, probably will reach $3 million to $4 million by the time the panels' work is completed.

—President Reagan will give "general views" about the hearings in a speech next week.

Shootings Reported

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Motorists deluged authorities with reports of real and imagined gunfire on Southern California's highways as police added three shootings to the list of violence blamed mostly on angry drivers.

Four people have been killed and 11 others injured in nearly three dozen incidents reported since June 18.

Eleven people have been arrested.

Calls are coming in about "every 10 minutes" to a special California Highway Patrol hotline set up last week to take tips on freeway violence, CHP Officer Cleo Green said Monday. Many reports could not be confirmed, he said.

"You just name it, they've been shooting out there, so people claim," he said. "Every little thing people hear hit their car, they think it's gunfire."

Police said there were at least three shootings Monday, including one in which a motorcyclist who was fired on chased the alleged gunman and had him arrested.

"You know something is terribly wrong if people are calling up from other states wondering if it's safe to travel to Disneyland," CHP Chief Edward Gomez said. "People are simply freaking out."

Blind Sailor Sets Sail Across Ocean

PORTSMOUTH, R.I. (AP) — A blind man who has never spent more than an afternoon sailing alone shoved off for Plymouth, England, today on what he hopes will be the first solo crossing of the Atlantic for a sightless person.

After a last-minute delay to say goodbye to his family and make some equipment repairs, Jim Dickson shouted, "I'm going to have fun," gave a thumbs-up salute and set sail from Bend Boat Basin.

Before leaving, Dickson, 41, said he was a little anxious but expected that once the voyage was under way, things would be fine.

"I'm nervous," Dickson said. "I expect to be nervous for the next three or four days. After that, I expect to have the time of my life."

Dickson will be using a $12,000 talking computer on his trip, which, if successful, should last about a month. Three separate electronic systems are on board the 36-foot sloop Eye Opener in case of an emergency.

"All I have to do is pull a little Velcro tab and two people in a control room will know exactly where I am and that I need assistance," he said.

Under bright sunny skies, Dickson greeted relatives and well-wishers as a small band played old English folk songs.

The white yacht with a handicapped symbol on its stern appeared immaculate. In the small uncluttered cabin, everything was in place, charts were neatly stowed in wall slots and a bag of oranges was suspended from the ceiling in a small hammock.

Dickson, legally blind since age 7 with retinitis pigmentosa, said he would keep busy by "reading" some of the 25 talking books he brought along and will also be working on a book about the trip.

Exciting Day

Tomorrow is an exciting day for those who grow, sell and buy tobacco.

The Greenville Tobacco Market will open its 98th sales season with North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham and Gov. Jim Martin on hand to view the initial sales.

Other markets on the huge Bright Leaf Belt will also be opening and sales should be in full swing in a few days.

Because times have changed, tomorrow's opening day won't be quite the holiday festivities that once prevailed here. There was a time when everyone in a much smaller Greenville turned out for the opening day sales. The same was true in Farmville, Washington, Williamston, Robersonville and all the other markets of the Eastern Belt.

To say that how tobacco sold was of great importance to the community is an understatement. Everything depended on a good sales season. Tobacco growers paid back their bank loans from the proceeds and what was left was spent with the merchants of the county. A poor selling season meant that retail sales would be down. There was no money for a new car, or perhaps even for new school clothes.

Pitt County's economy is far more diversified in 1987. There are industrial and government payrolls to help keep the local economy rolling. Nevertheless it would be a mistake to think that tobacco sales are no longer important to our local economy. They are very important in maintaining a strong farm economy and one that has its effects in the economic well being of Pitt County.

Despite erratic weather this year the feeling is that there is a good quality tobacco crop moving to market. The hope is for slightly higher averages than last year.

The tobacco auctioneering system may be the most colorful event in agriculture. Unlike other farm products which are brought to market, tobacco is sold under the auctioneer's chant with buyers signaling bids on each pile. Under the system, an exceptional crop can bring an exceptional price.

The event will begin tomorrow and the financial hopes of the tobacco producers will ride on the prices which are paid on the warehouse floors.

Structural Marvel

There has been much written about the Lynn Cove Viaduct on the Blue Ridge Parkway and soon this engineering marvel will be a reality. It may become one of the wonders of the modern world.

The structure was designed to approach the problem of extending the Blue Ridge Parkway around Grandfather Mountain. With modern road building methods, the road could have been extended by conventional methods — that is to blast away the rock surface to form a road bed. The parkway, however, is designed to bring the beauty of the mountains that extend into North Carolina to the public without disturbing the natural scenery.

James C. Ryan, management assistant for the Blue Ridge Parkway headquarters in Asheville, said dynamiting one of the ancient rock formations would have been unforgivable. "It would have left such a big scar you could see it from miles away," Ryan said. Thus the decision was made to take the park way around the mountain. Since this has been done only in the Alps it was an innovative approach in this country.

The Lynn Cove Viaduct is a 1,243-foot S-shaped bridge which winds around Grandfather Mountain. It is built upon the granite incline but the surface of the granite is undamaged.

Construction has been under way on the 7.5 miles of road, including the viaduct, since 1979. It will be dedicated and opened next month and will complete the Blue Ridge Parkway which connects the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, a distance of 470 miles.

Ryan calls the bridge "truly an engineering marvel." It includes 53 concrete segments which weigh 50 tons each. Each curved segment was shaped to fit its part of the mountain.

In this age the automobile couldn't be kept out of the mountain national forests. A parkway could be designed, however, which detracted as little as possible from the magnificent view. The Lynn Cove Viaduct is the ultimate in this design. It will provide a breathtaking trip for visitors who will number in the millions and the bridge itself will undoubtedly take its place as one of the modern world's engineering marvels.

Iran-Contra Affair Remains Mystery

WASHINGTON — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, closed 41 days of Iran-Contra hearings by observing that after three months of hearing 250 hours of testimony from 29 witnesses, examining a quarter of a million pages of documents and releasing 1,059 official exhibits, many dealing with some of the most sensitive secrets of the U.S. government, the Iran-Contra "story has now been told."

At the same time, Inouye acknowledged, "We may never know, with precision and truth, why it ever happened." More bluntly, despite fascinating hearings that produced extraordinary information, the Iran-Contra committees were unable to crack the case. Inouye Monday described a "chilling" tale of "deceit, duplicity and arrogant disregard of the rule of law"; the tale is also still a mystery.

Ironically, the Democratic and Republican leaders of the two panels who gave closing remarks Monday all seemed to embrace, with varying enthusiasm, the "fall guy" story which, according to Lt. Col. Oliver L. North's testimony, was planned in advance: that North and his former boss, Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter, were alone responsible for the worst of the transgressions.

The committee leaders also absolved President Reagan of direct responsibility for diversion of funds from arms sales to Iran to benefit the Nicaraguan Contras. The president has repeatedly denied knowing of the diversion, but he did not testify to the committees. The one admittedly knowledgeable witness who did testify on that question was Poindexter. The public, according to polls, and many members of the committees, according to their public and private statements, found Poindexter an incredible witness, yet this most critical aspect of his testimony was embraced by the committees' leaders Monday.

How well these committees conducted their inquiry remains to be seen. In the end, the hearings were as untidy and as inconclusive — if also as essential — as the democratic process itself. The questioning was often sloppy, and many leads were never pursued. By allowing North to dictate the terms of his appearance, the panels opened themselves to second-guessing that will undoubtedly continue for years.

But the committees worked at a considerable disadvantage. Their inability to resolve major conflicts in evidence and sworn testimony was due largely to the fact that so many critical documents bearing on the affair were destroyed, altered or lost.

The man whose testimony was most beneficial to Reagan, Poindexter, was one of the officials who acknowledged destroying key documents. Ultimately, he may prove the most significant of all the witnesses.

Poindexter is a career naval officer with a reputation as a meticulous staff officer trained to follow the chain of command and possessed of a superior intellect and almost "photographic memory," according to his fitness reports. Monday the committees released statistics showing that Poindexter set the hearing record for lapse of memory. During his five days on the stand, committee records showed, Poindexter responded 184 times to specific questions by saying, "I can't recall" and "I don't recall."

Poindexter's testimony is vital in another sense. If the story stops with Poindexter, North and the late CIA Director William J. Casey, as the committees seem willing to accept absent conclusive contrary proof, then the judgment can be reached that the Iran-Contra affair represented a White House junta, or coup, led by subordinates who seized control of policy apparatus and froze out other U.S. government leaders, including the president. But if this is just the preplanned cover story, then some important people have been engaged in a conspiracy to cover up knowledge of the secret operations. Casey could have been a critical player in such a conspiracy — by North's account, he was. But Casey died before he had to answer a single question.

But if many critical questions remain unresolved, the Iran-Contra investigations produced a wealth of information about the inner workings of the White House during Reagan's second term. Historians will be reaping this harvest for years. Indeed, this material clearly will affect the ultimate judgment on Reagan's presidency. Meanwhile, it provides the public with probably the most intimate and documented look at the inner workings of policy-making at the highest levels of government ever to emerge from a congressional hearing.

And what can be said after the hearings in answer to Inouye's question on "why it ever happened?"

The evidence points strongly to Reagan's reaction to one fact — the taking of U.S. hostages — and why and how he chose to deal with it in the way he did.

Foreign Aid Can Help Trade Deficit

NEW YORK — Two years of a falling dollar did not bring American trade back into balance; economists and politicians have now begun looking beyond the decimal points of exchange rates to understand the larger dynamics of foreign trade.

Increasingly, attention shifts to the size of the market where Americans are being offered and to policies that can expand the markets for American goods. The final result may be a re-evaluation of American foreign-aid programs, with U.S. foreign assistance seen less as a political and military tool than as "seed money" for Third World economies trying to achieve balanced growth.

The most revealing case is Latin America. From 1950 to 1981, the developing countries of the Western Hemisphere steadily increased their imports at an average annual rate of almost 10 percent. At their peak, in 1981, these countries imported more than $128 billion worth of goods. The United States had by far the largest share of this large and growing market, exporting $41 billion to our neighbors, a 33 percent market share and three times the 11 percent share of U.S. goods in the worldwide market.

In 1981 something unhappy happened: The Latin American market began to shrink. A continental recession, in part caused by the debt crisis, reversed a 30-year trend. From 1981 to 1985, imports to Latin America fell by one-third, to $80 billion. Although the United States actually increased its share of the Latin market to 38 percent, total exports fell 26 percent. American companies had increased their competitiveness but economic decline made the victory hollow.

If the developing countries of the Western Hemisphere had continued to grow at their 1950-1981 rates through the 1980s, the U.S. trade picture would be much less dismal to day. Instead of exporting $31 billion to Latin America, we would have exported more than $70 billion in 1985. A change for the better of $39 billion would not solve America's trade problem completely, but it would do much to defuse the situation. It would also save thousands of American jobs.

These figures strongly suggest that America's trade problem has as much to do with the poverty of our trading partners as with the competitiveness of our goods. Restoring the prosperity of our Latin American neighbors through aid and credit programs should be a priority for American foreign aid programs. Unfortunately, this is far from the case.

While four of the five countries receiving the highest per capita amounts of American aid are in this hemisphere, the aid is not flowing to the most important economies. In 1985, the five largest recipients of net American aid, per capita, were the following:

Israel 29 percent, $922; Grenada 0.2 percent, $221; El Salvador 3 percent, $90; Costa Rica 2 percent, $81; Honduras 2 percent, $54.

By contrast, of the three most important economies in Latin America, Mexico actually paid the United States $42 million more than it received in assistance, Brazil received $2.48 per capita — and less total aid than El Salvador — and Argentina got $.45 per head.

One need not be cynical to recognize that military and political concerns influence decisions about American aid, but the right economic assistance can strengthen the American economy while improving the living standards of our neighbors. Surely economic strength is the key to the political stability and orderly evolution of Latin America; if civil wars like the one in El Salvador were to break out in Brazil and Mexico, the United States would spend billions and suffer grave political and economic consequences.

Foreign-aid programs have gone through several stages based on several premises and priorities since end of World War II, supposedly reflecting an improved understanding of the processes of economic development. In the early stages, aid donors gave money for specific large projects such as steel mills and dams. In some cases these "prestige" projects were successful; in others, they became expensive white elephants, monuments to bad planning.

Current foreign aid strategies stress "export-led growth" — encouraging Third World countries to produce goods for markets in the developed world while restraining non-essential imports. These projects, proponents hoped, would help Third World countries earn the foreign exchange needed to expand their factories and service their burdensome debts.

During the 1980s Latin American countries adhered more and more closely to the expert led growth medal. Brazil cut its imports from almost $25 billion in 1980 to $13 billion in 1985 while increasing its exports from $20 to $25 billion. Despite falling oil prices Mexico managed to increase its exports slightly while slashing imports from $24 billion in 1981 to $6 billion just two years later.

These trends, encouraged by the United States, have had a disastrous effect on the U.S. balance of trade and unleashed a torrent of protectionist feeling here and in the other advanced countries. The path to long-term, sustained growth for developing countries lies in a strategy of balanced growth: growth in exports balanced by growth in imports for domestic consumption.

Strength For Today

One often hears the smug phrase, "Virtue is its own reward." The statement carries the implication that those who do virtuous deeds should be indifferent to the question of reward.

But the Bible teaches that virtue does bring tangible rewards, and nowhere implies that it is wrong for individuals to seek these rewards. For example, Jesus made plain that God who rules the universe pays the laborers in his vineyard.

Paul said that the wages of sin is death. To good men and evil, God pays appropriate wages.

Let us never think, therefore, that we are upholding a higher variety of virtue when we spurn the thought of reward in the field of goodness. As the Empress Ann of Austria once remarked, "God may not settle accounts every day, but He settles them all at the last."

Legislators May Make Martin Highest Paid Governor In U.S.

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Republican Gov. Jim Martin has criticized many of the Democratic leadership's legislative initiatives, but he'll have a hard time quarreling with a decision that could make him the nation's highest-paid governor.

A salary and benefits package unveiled Monday by legislative leaders would extend to Martin the 5 percent across-the-board pay raise granted most state employees and public school teachers in fiscal 1987-88.

"He's an extremely important person to the state of North Carolina and we felt like he deserves every dime he's paid," Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Aaron Plyler, D-Union, said.

Until recently, Martin and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo got the biggest salaries of any of the nation's governors — $100,000. The New York Legislature recently voted to boost its governor's pay to $130,000. But Cuomo has said he will return the extra $30,000, considering it excessive.

If Cuomo keeps his pledge, Martin will become the nation's highest-paid governor.

Martin was on vacation and could not be reached for comment. His communications director, Karen H. Rotterman, said Martin had not asked to be the nation's best-paid governor.

But Martin "is obviously a state employee, and we are pleased the General Assembly feels the governor is doing such a good job and deserves this raise," Mrs. Rotterman said.

The salary package is to be included in an omnibus spending bill — the first of three that will comprise the fiscal 1987-89 state budget — on which the Joint Appropriations Committee was expected to vote today.

Senate budget subcommittee chairmen discussed the package Monday but took no vote. Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said he supported it.

The 5 percent raise would boost the pay of Council of State members, including the lieutenant governor and eight other elected officials, to $64,092. Cabinet officers, who are gubernatorial appointees, would receive the same pay.

All salary increases would be retroactive to July 1, the first day of the 1987-88 fiscal year, except those for members of the Legislature, which take effect with the 1989 General Assembly.

Rank-and-file lawmakers would receive $10,644 per year and an expense allowance of $265 per month under the plan. The House speaker would receive $29,880 plus $975 per month for expenses; the Senate president pro tem, $18,276 plus $633 per month for expenses; the House speaker pro tem and the Senate deputy president pro tem, $15,384 plus $354 per month for expenses; and the House minority leader and the Senate minority and majority leaders, $13,080 and $354 per month for expenses.

The only exception to the 5 percent raise would be made for District Court judges and the director of the Office of Administrative Hearings, who would get 10 percent increases.

Jim Exum, chief justice of the state Supreme Court, has lobbied for better judicial pay, saying many top lawyers must take substantial pay cuts to serve on the bench.

Jordan Decries 'Secret' State Payoff To Disgruntled Workers

RALEIGH (AP) — State officials will investigate laws that allow the North Carolina Department of Correction to make secret payments to employees who have filed grievances, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said.

Jordan said he was surprised by a published report that the state Correction Department had spent thousands of dollars in secret payments to employees or former employees to settle complaints that they had been wrongfully dismissed or disciplined.

The report said the Correction Department had released a partial list of negotiated settlements Friday showing $48,576 in payments during the past two years to 10 employees and their lawyers. The department on Monday disclosed three more payments, totaling $188,300.

"It just doesn't conform to ... the way state government ought to operate," Jordan said Monday. "I'm surprised it's legal. But certainly, whatever allows them to do that needs to be changed, and we're going to look at it."

One of Gov. Jim Martin's top assistants also said state law may need to be changed. Phillip J. Kirk Jr., the governor's chief of staff, said the private cash settlements by the correction department had violated no law.

But Kirk said, "I do have a concern about public money and the reporting of that. And I am willing to give some consideration to seeing what parts of the law need to be change that would ultimately allow the disclosure of the spending of public money ..."

"Our attorneys in the Attorney General's Office say that we have done nothing wrong or illegal," he said. "In fact, this has been standard operating procedure under past administrations."

But State Auditor Edward Renfrow said he still had not been shown anything in writing indicating that a department had authority to enter into a secret agreement to "pay off" a disgruntled employee and terminate him or her.

"I'm talking about agreements that nobody else knows about but the agency and the employee, and they pay them money, and entered into a secret contract that is not a public record, and they decline to discuss that in any shape, form or fashion," Renfrow said.

In one of the three payments disclosed Monday, the Correction Department paid $114,300 last year to settle a personnel grievance filed by a Charlotte woman who had been fired in 1981 from her post as director of a halfway house for former prison inmates.

Ben G. Irons II, the department's attorney, also confirmed Monday that payments of $50,000 and $24,000 had been made this year to two employees who had been fired from their jobs at Harnett Youth Center.

The Office of State Personnel was not notified of any of those settlements, Irons said.

"Why would you carry it to State Personnel?" Irons asked. "Settlements are reached between the parties, what they think is fair and right. In these cases that we settled, we thought it was in the best interest of the employee, the department and the taxpayer."

Kirk and Correction Secretary Aaron Johnson said that, in every instance, the secrecy clauses in the agreements accompanying some of the payoffs had been added at the request of the employee or former employee involved.

"Wait a minute, wait a minute, let me get you straightened out about

'secret' now," Johnson said. "There are no secret settlements. We haven't done any secret settlements. The only thing we have done was maintain the confidentiality that is required of us by law."

As your responsibilities change, so do ours.

There's a lot more to raising a family than adding a new place at the table. For most families, it's a whole new way of thinking. And one that BB&T understands. It involves sorting out the best ways to borrow for current expenses. And the best ways to save for future ones. It also means a little extra sensitivity to the credit needs almost all growing families undergo.

So, if it seems your current bank isn't what it used to be, perhaps it's you who's done the changing. See BB&T. A different sort of attitude. A different sort of bank.

Drug Trial

WILMINGTON (AP) — An alternate senator in the Colombian National Congress was the "godfather" of a South American crime family and personally supervised a Wilmington-based cocaine smuggling ring, a prosecutor in the senator's trial said.

"Ladies and gentlemen, this is an organized crime case," Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Swaim told the federal jury during his opening statements Monday in U.S. District Court in Wilmington.

Alternate Sen. Samuel Alberto Escruceria-Delgado, a 24-year member of the Colombian National Congress, is accused of heading a cocaine crime family that was the primary source of drugs to a Wilmington-based cocaine ring known as the "Gutiérrez drug organization" between May 1983 and October 1984.

Also charged are the senator's son, Samuel Alberto Escruceria-Manzi, a Colombian congressman, and Maria E. Lorza-Escruceria, the congressman's wife. Each is accused of participating in the organized crime family's drug-trafficking conspiracy. The congressman and his wife are in Colombia, where the government has not extradited them.

Center

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The operators of a retirement center in Edgecombe County that owes creditors almost $10 million have declared bankruptcy and are struggling to reorganize the operation.

The Presbyterian Retirement Corp., which filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Wilson in June, owes about 250 creditors about $9.7 million, according to court records. One creditor — Retirement Properties of Tarboro — is owed more than $7 million.

The center, a 150-apartment complex called The Albemarle, was built in 1983. Presbyterian Retirement Corp. is a non-profit, non-sectarian group that sprang from efforts of the congregation of Tarboro's Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church to provide life-care services for elderly citizens.

Teen Death

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The State Bureau of Investigation has been called in to investigate the death of a Forsyth County teen-ager whose parents say they don't believe their son committed suicide.

Larry and Katherine McGee, who live just outside Winston-Salem, say their son had always been very careful around firearms and was anything but suicidal.

Lanny McGee, 16, died about 4:15 p.m. April 14 at his home in eastern Forsyth County. Present were two classmates — a 16-year-old boy and a 15-year-old girl.

McGee was found with a bullet hole between his eyes. The weapon, a .22-caliber pistol, had been pressed against his forehead, a little off center toward the left eye brow. One shot had been fired. Investigators told McGee's father that the gun had been fully loaded.

When police arrived, the gun was found in a drawer and McGee's body had been moved from the spot where he was shot.

Ashcraft Sworn

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Tom Ashcraft, former chief legislative assistant to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was sworn in Monday as U.S. attorney for North Carolina's Western District and vowed to continue the federal government's fight against drugs.

Carl Horn III, who has denounced Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools' sex education curriculum and opposed funding for Planned Parenthood of Greater Charlotte and abortions, was sworn in as an assistant federal prosecutor. Horn, 36, is founder and leader of the N.C. Policy Council, a conservative coalition. He said he will be Ashcraft's first assistant.

Ashcraft, 35, replaces Charles Brewer of Lenoir as the chief federal prosecutor in a 34-county district. Ashcraft was recommended to the post by Helms, the state's senior senator.

Ashcraft, whose interim appointment is for no more than 120 days, must now be nominated by President Reagan and confirmed by the Senate.

Suspended

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The head of Mecklenburg County's hot meals outreach program was suspended without pay amid a county police investigation of her handling of the program.

Melba Von Sprecken, 60, who directs the $2.5 million-a-year senior citizens nutrition program, has been under investigation since July 17. A county police report shows that officers that day found $1,031 in bank bags in a locked desk drawer in the program office.

County Manager Jerry Fox refused to comment on the reason for Monday's suspension. He said Ms. Von Sprecken, who has worked for the county since August 1971, was first suspended July 20.

Textile Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has sent a measure to the full House designed to protect the nation's textile industry, a toned-down version of a measure President Reagan vetoed two years ago.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Butler Derrick, D-S.C., would set a global limit on imports of textiles, apparel and non-rubber footwear, based on 1986 levels. It would allow textile and apparel imports to increase 1 percent a year, but would freeze footwear imports at 1986 levels.

The committee sent the bill to the House on Monday.

Industry officials contend the surge of textile and apparel imports since 1980 have resulted in the loss of more than 200,000 American jobs. They also say that without some restrictions on import growth, their industry will become extinct.

Judgeship

WILSON (AP) — District Court Judge Quentin Sumner of Rocky Mount said Monday he has decided not to seek one of 10 new Superior Court judgeships created this year to increase black representation on the bench.

Sumner, who was appointed to the bench in 1983, said he has decided to concentrate on keeping his District Court seat.

Teen Sentenced

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — David Wayne Long pleaded guilty Monday to breaking into Southwest Guilford High School in December 1986.

Long, 19, was shot in the neck by a deputy who caught him in the school, leaving him paralyzed from the neck down. Judge Robert A. Collier Jr. accepted Long's guilty plea to felonious breaking and entering, gave him an 18-month suspended sentence and placed him on five years of unsupervised probation.

No date has been set for Long's civil suit against the deputy who fired the crippling shot, Bruce Donnell Knight, and Guilford County.

Candidate

RALEIGH (AP) — Robert Hannon announced Monday that he would run for lieutenant governor in 1988.

Hannon, of Greensboro, did not specify his party affiliation in a news release. But in 1984, he ran as a Democrat in the gubernatorial primaries. This marks his fourth campaign for a statewide public office, Hannon said.

Hannon said he advocated a $20,000 starting salary for beginning teachers, a program to help farmers with in-state marketing of crops and livestock, an expanded effort to recruit industries, an expanded system of day-care centers and adequate funds for improving the "black image" of North Carolina's predominantly black public colleges.

State Putting Up $750,000 In Bid To Land Sara Lee Plant At Tarboro

By The Associated Press
Sara Lee, the baked goods giant, has narrowed its choices for an East Coast baking and distribution center to three states, and the company says $750,000 to help pay for electrical costs could make it lean toward North Carolina.

Sara Lee has bought a 125-acre site south of Tarboro in Edgecombe County, said Pat Ransome, a company spokeswoman in Deerfield, Ill. As Sara Lee narrowed its choice to North Carolina, Virginia or South Carolina, a key consideration was the cost of electricity, Ms. Ransome said.

The Greensboro News & Record reported that the Legislature is being asked to spend $750,000 for a piece of equipment to control utility costs at the proposed plant. The newspaper said few state government leaders would talk publicly about the proposal.

Without the electrical generating equipment, Sara Lee could find lower utility costs in other states, sources told the newspaper.

Ms. Ransome would not discuss specifics about the center. There probably will be a more detailed announcement in two weeks, she said.

No one willing to be quoted by name will say what the $750,000 is to be used for. Several sources familiar with the development told the newspaper it is going to buy peak load electrical generating equipment so the plant can keep electric costs down.

Such equipment is used to generate power during peak use times, so the user can avoid buying electric power from a utility company or other electric provider at a premium cost.

Commerce Secretary Claude Pope said his department, and Gov. Jim Martin, have been involved in trying to bring the Sara Lee operation to North Carolina.

But he said he doesn't know what the $750,000 is for, even though it is in his department's budget.

"I really don't know anything about that equipment or what it is intended to do," Pope said. "If we had been involved in it, I'd hope I'd know more details. But it's not one we're handling."

"It was a request from the local people in the Tarboro community direct to the legislators," Pope said.

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, a legislator representing the district where the plant will be, refused to discuss the deal.

The State Constitution says tax dollars can be spent "for public purposes only."

The generating equipment will be owned by Edgecombe County, which doesn't have an electric department. The city of Tarboro does have a municipal electric utility.

Edgecombe County Manager Ellis Williford was asked how he'd respond to an inquiry from a legislator who wanted to know more about the project.

"If a legislator called me, I'd certainly assure him that the money was for a public purpose," he said. "(If it will) be used for incentives for an industrial prospect, it would be used for a public purpose." The state Commerce Department traditionally uses indirect incentives to lure industries to North Carolina. The state regularly offers indirect incentives, such as providing worker training through community colleges, preferred borrowing rates through industrial revenue bonds and extending water and sewer services to sites.

Last week, for example, top lawmakers informally agreed to spend about $6.5 million to expand an Eastman Kodak subsidiary and bring 100 jobs to the Charlotte area. Some of the money goes to purchasing high tech equipment, but it will be owned initially by the state and used for training workers.

Previously the state has provided money for training employees for such companies as American Express, which has offices near Regional Airport in Greensboro, and Konishiroku Manufacturing, which is opening a plant in eastern Guilford County.

One In Five Homes Has Excessive Radon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fifth of all homes checked in a 10-state survey contained more radioactive radon gas than the level recommended by the Environmental Protection Agency, the agency said today.

"Levels exceeding our guideline were found in each of the states participating in our survey, and in most states we are able to identify radon hot spots," said EPA's deputy administrator, A. James Barnes.

EPA cautioned that the results do not necessarily apply nationwide because the amount of radon depends in part on soil types, because some of the state surveys did not cover enough homes and because the states were not randomly selected.

However, Barnes said radon, which can cause lung cancer, "may be a problem in virtually every state."

Radon is an inert, colorless, odorless gas formed in the radioactive decay of uranium and thorium naturally occurring in the soil. It decays quickly into other radioactive compounds.

Most radon is breathed in and out without effect, but the successor atoms that are formed by decay in the lungs can remain there forever, irradiating the tissues. Those successor atoms also can be carried into the lungs on dust and smoke particles.

The EPA previously had estimated that up to 12 percent of the 75 million homes nationwide contain more radon than the guideline, 4 picocuries per liter.

In the new survey, the highest percentage of homes exceeding that level was found in Colorado, 39 percent, although the agency said that could not be used as a statewide estimate because the 900 measurements were not enough. The lowest percentage was in Alabama, 6 percent.

The other states and their percentages above the guideline: Connecticut, 21; Kansas, 21; Kentucky, 17; Michigan, 9; Rhode Island, 19; Tennessee, 16; Wisconsin, 27; and Wyoming, 26. Overall, the percentage was 21.

Even the low-radon states had some measurements well above the guideline, the agency said.

Speaker Of House, Wife Betty Are Sweethearts

By Lois Romano

L.A. Times-Washington Post
WASHINGTON — "It's a myth," Jim Wright mumbles, as he tries to duck out of his office for more coffee.

The subject is the Wright temper, notoriously quick and mean. The new speaker of the House made headlines a few years back by threatening to punch out Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif., on the House floor, and he once asked Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., to step outside because the congressman had cursed at him. Another time he hurled a book at writer Larry L. King, then on his staff. And Betty Wright, his wife of 14 years, tells the story of how, shortly after they were married, her husband flung the contents of the freezer across the room because he couldn't get the door shut.

The flying food did no damage, however — and these days, Wright's mate has a reputation as the one person who can rein in the speaker's runaway rage.

"What's myth?" she demands from across the room, eyes locked on her man, fingers tip-to-tip. "Your temper? Or that I'm a calming influence?"

"Well," he says like a little kid caught fibbing, "I'm working on it."

My very dearest Betty,
For 13 years we've shared this life
I the husband, you the wife;
I hope your life is richer than
The day on which this all began.
— Jim Wright, November 1985

Millie O'Neill she is definitely not. The wife of the former House leader barely tolerated the capital. She never got involved in Tip O'Neill's job, didn't move here until he was in the leadership, and then eschewed the congressional dash and dazzle, refusing interviews.

Betty Wright is happily defining her own Washington: choosing which boards to sit on (Ford's Theatre and the National Theatre), picking her projects and her friends. Her husband's office is quick to hand out her biography, and she's the one keeping a diary these days.

Still, it would be too easy to paint the House's first lady as just another ambitious Power Spouse. Like Nancy Reagan, she has certainly made her husband's career her crusade. But she also — like Mrs. Reagan — seems motivated more by fierce loyalty than by the needs of her own ego.

On this morning, before his wife joins him in his office for an interview, the speaker seems a little antsy. To pass the time, he shows off a portrait of Betty that hangs next to his desk. In the painting, she wears a lavender dress; soft curls hug her face.

At 62, she looks 42. "Tell her that, will ya?" Wright, 64, implores his guest. "She really takes good care of herself — dieting, exercise, no drinking. ... It's not a religious thing or anything. She just doesn't drink."

When she comes in 30 minutes late, looking poised and stylish, he jumps up and brushes her cheek with his lips. She's wearing an Eleanor Brenner suit, trendy but elegant, royal blue with broad padded shoulders. On her left forefinger is a huge topaz ring he had made for her; she wears no wedding band. Her chocolate-brown hair is cropped close and her makeup is perfect.

She seems at home in his office and spends a lot of time there. He calls her "darlin'," and friends say he dotes on her. The two are often seen together around town, holding hands like lovers 40 years their junior.

Indeed, Betty Wright's young-mindedness may prove one of her husband's greatest assets. Reviews on the new speaker have been mixed so far.

Wright's detractors say he lacks warmth, and portray him as out of step with today's Congress — an old-style pol at heart, a pale imitation of his all-powerful Texas predecessor, Sam Rayburn. His flowery oratory seems more suited to stump campaigning than to television, and many Democrats cringed when Wright decided to deliver the response to this year's State of the Union address himself.

The speaker draws praise for being more action-oriented than the man he succeeded, Tip O'Neill. Yet he annoyed many colleagues when he stepped out front with a tax hike proposal the same day he got elected to the job.

So Jim Wright frets, concerned that "the young people" don't understand him, worried that the talk about his temper has gotten out of hand. Betty Wright is here to help with these nagging misperceptions. Together, they're out to soften Wright's hard edges, to reposition the man David Stockman called "a snake-oil vendor par excellence."

"Jim has another side," she says, settling into a chair. "They keep bringing that silly thing out, that he was a Golden Glove boxer. Now, that doesn't mean you're a fighter by profession."

"I was a scoutmaster and I was a boxing coach," he explains. "In a town like Weatherford (Texas), they give you all these free jobs."

In a later interview, she shows off the poetry he's written for her, and talks about the landscapes he's painted: "He is a romantic, very artistic." He even shops for her himself, she says. For Valentine's Day, he gave her a little gold heart and a crystal teddy bear.

She buys his clothes, and has toned down the one trademark of his physical appearance — his eyebrows, naturally thick and upright, not unlike the coat of a porcupine. "Lately, his face seems more relaxed — it's the haircut, the eyebrows," says good friend Phyllis Coelho, wife of Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif. "I know she's responsible for it."

The speaker's two-pack-a-day smoking was also on her agenda, and she needed him into quitting ("I prayed that he would get just sick enough to quit," she says, "but not sick enough to be really ill — so help me, I did!").

She's the doctor, he's the patient — and she takes his political temperature whenever she can.

"I encountered it at the Greenbrier," says Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., referring to an annual Democratic retreat held at the posh West Virginia resort. "After he had spoken she came up to several members and asked what we thought of his speech in both delivery and content. She was very interested in how he had done."

It was Betty who first broke it to Wright a few years ago that he was having a problem with the younger, more reform-minded members of Congress. Around that time it was rumored that a Dick Gephardt-type might challenge him for speaker.

"I heard that people thought he was of a different generation," that there was "a generation gap," she says. "So I might say to him, 'Why don't we try to get closer to younger people? It's a good idea (to have) a closer relationship with younger members' ..."

"I don't know that he was focusing on it. Now he does."

In a surprise move, for example, Wright appointed a far more liberal young Michigan congressman, David Bonior, as chief deputy whip. Naming Bonior, says former O'Neill aide Christopher Matthews, "showed dash" and gives Wright an ally "very well positioned on the other end of the spectrum."

It's good, Wright says, that his wife points out his weaknesses as well as his strengths. "One time I came home fulminating in frustration after a Budget Committee hearing," he recalls, "and I was saying, 'I explained it to them, I told them exactly what's involved, and they can't see it, they're not moving fast enough!' Betty said, 'Jim, do you think they elected you leader or do you think they elected you dictator?'"

The photo album is titled "The Many Moods of Betty." "This book is the property of Jim Wright," the inscription reads, "and deals with his favorite subject: Mrs. Jim Wright." In it are 50 pictures — Betty in bathing suits, Betty in shorts, Betty in dresses, Betty in evening gowns — all labeled in his hand.

Sitting in the study of their home, flipping through the album, pulling out the poetry addressed to "Dearest Betty," husband and wife joke and coo like the high school sweethearts they never were. They didn't have their first date, in fact, until both were in their mid-forties.

So what was the origin of this romantic union? Did Mr. Wright chase the Fair Maiden around town until she acceded? Was it love at first sight, Prince Charming of the House, smitten by the Cinderella on his staff?

Not quite.

Jim Wright met Betty Hay in 1965, when she came to work in his office as a secretary; she later became the administrative assistant for the House Public Works Committee, where he served as a senior member. Five years later, after he separated from his first wife, they started going out.

"It went slow," she says. "I didn't want to get married again," Jim Wright says. "I was in debt, for one thing. I had a very costly experience when I ran for the Senate in the early '60s and it took a long, long while to get out. I just didn't think I was a very good catch."

"Men feel like a failure, too," she says.

"That's true," he agrees. "I had financial obligations to my former wife ... I thought I was doing a lady no favor."

"I finally had to talk him into it," she says. "I said, 'We can get out of debt. We can make it.' And we did."

Jim Wright's first wife was his college sweetheart, Mary Ethelyn (Mab) Lemons, who bore their five children and helped him realize his early political ambitions. They met at Weatherford College and married in 1942, while Wright was in the service.

When Wright landed in Congress in 1955, in a way, the beginning of the end of his marriage.

"Mab just didn't like Washington very much," says Larry L. King. "It was difficult for her to change with the times ... and Jim was working all the time in those days."

When Betty Hay and Jim Wright eventually began dating, Betty's friends believe, she had a hard time with congressional wives. "There was this impression that she stole him from Mab, which just wasn't true," says one friend.

Love Son, Accept His Choice And Share With Others

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are beside ourselves with grief and frustration. Our 18-year-old son has just told us that he is gay. This doesn't seem possible. He is an honor student, excelled in athletics and has even had girlfriends all through school. Abby, he is so masculine looking, no one would ever guess it.

He didn't express any great sorrow about it. He just stated the fact that he has "known" how he felt ever since he was 7 or 8 years old. He swore he has never been molested by a man at any time in his life and was not introduced into this kind of sex by anyone. He says he just "feels" a sexual desire for men that he has never felt for a woman.

Abby, his father is an elder in the church, and our son loves the Lord and knows what the Scriptures say about man lying with man.

It breaks our hearts to know that our only son will never marry and have children. How do other parents handle this problem?

What can we do apart from praying for him? — GRIEVING PARENTS IN L.A.

DEAR PARENTS: You can accept him and love him. You can also learn more about homosexuality and meet with other parents who have lived through this experience and are now supportive of their gay children. Many parents in PARENTS FLAG are also religious and some are members of the clergy.

Please send a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: PARENTS FLAG (Federation of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays Inc.), P.O. Box 24565, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024. It is a non-profit organization, and will provide you with enlightening literature at no cost.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the beautiful poem "In Memory of Beau" with "author unknown," I knew I had to write. Abby, the author is not unknown. That poem was written by Jimmy Stewart, the famous actor. I heard him read it on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show." If Mr. Stewart did indeed pen those moving words, I feel he should be given credit for touching so many of us with that beautiful tribute to a beloved pet. — BERNICE COGGAN, DENVER

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR BERNICE: Many readers wrote to tell me that they had heard Jimmy Stewart recite his beautiful tribute to Beau, so I wrote to Mr. Stewart and asked him if he was indeed the author. His response:

DEAR ABBY: I have your letter and the copy of the piece from your column titled "In Memory of Beau."

This one was not composed by me. I once wrote a poem about my dog, Beau, but it's completely different than "In Memory of Beau." Very sincerely, JAMES STEWART
DEAR MR. STEWART: Thanks for settling this bone of contention and getting me out of the doghouse.

DEAR ABBY: I am a R.N. in the intensive care unit, so I know how "The Doctor's Wife" feels when people telephone her husband at home (or drop in) expecting free medical advice or prescriptions. I am neither qualified nor licensed to give medical advice, yet when people I meet casually find out I'm a nurse, they ask me medical questions.

Doctors could stem those rude interruptions from people who are not their regular patients by saying something like this when people call or drop in for free professional advice: "I'm sorry, but I can't give you proper medical advice without first giving you a complete physical examination, studying your medical history, plus knowing about any current and recently prescribed medications. Anything less than that would be not only a disservice to you, but also to my professional ethics. If you wish, please call my office for an appointment." — DENNIS L. OEHLER, R.N., GALT, CALIF.

DEAR DENNIS: Beautiful. That little speech was just what the doctor (or nurse) ordered.
(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say?)

Legumes like dried beans, peas and lentils are low in fat and high in fiber and protein.

Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Wright

"I think part of it was that everyone loved Mab," says Craig Raupe, a former Wright aide and longtime friend. "I was a little bit slow to warm. I was friendly on the surface; it just took me longer to really accept her. Here she was, this knockout...
"Then in getting to know her, I came to realize she was really tough, there was a lot there... Jim had his first tough race in 1974, and there she was right on the front lines... She was a rock."
Betty and Jim were married in 1972, shortly after his divorce became final, "in a kind of old-fashioned wedding," Wright says. "Betty wrote the script and I wore a Rhett Butler kind of tux. She chose to have strawberries and champagne at the reception."
She eventually resigned her $24,000-a-year job at the Public Works Committee, but not until he became majority leader. Wright calls her resignation "more or less a matter of public gesture," made necessary by conflict-of-interest questions raised at the time. Now she works as a customer rep for a firm that organizes management seminars, and is vice president of an investment firm she and Wright started with a Texas developer.
In recent years she has made the effort to keep the Wright family together; before Mab died last year, Betty insisted on her spending a number of holidays with them and the four Wright children (a fifth child, born with Down's syndrome, died before reaching his second birthday).

trading, with 397 up, 387 down and 417 unchanged. Big Board volume exceeded 24.13 million shares.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrials fell 14.99 to 2,557.08, breaking eight consecutive days of gains. Volume on the NYSE totaled 207.84 million shares, compared with 181.87 million the previous session.

years, are based on the cost of providing care and range from 7 percent (from $168 per day to $180 a day) for medical and surgical beds providing community hospital services, to 100 percent for cardiac surgery critical care unit beds (from $550 a day to $1,100 a day).

Another group of surgical, medical and obstetrical beds will be increased from $168 to $200 a day, or 19 percent, while psychiatric room rates will go from $185 to $235 a day, or 27 percent. Rehabilitation rates will go from $205 to $300 a day, for a 46 percent increase.

Clark assured the board that, even with the rate increase, charges for community hospital services at PCMH will be competitive with the cost of the services at other hospitals in eastern North Carolina. And he said the cost of other services will be competitive with charges at other major medical centers.

Commissioners approved the purchase of a compactor for the landfill from E.F. Craven Co. for $150,435 and a roll-off truck, to haul solid waste containers, from F and D Motor Co. for $59,222.

The board also told Jackson to implement a plan he recommended for allocation of space at the courthouse.

The tax collector's office has moved from the courthouse to the Shore Drive Plaza building at the intersection of Evans and Second Streets, which the county has purchased. And the tax assessor's office — formerly the tax supervisor's office — and other offices now located in the courthouse will move to new quarters in the near future.

Jackson proposed that the clerk of court be given the tax collector's old office and two-thirds of the tax assessor's office, while the sheriff be given about one-third of the present tax assessor's office and five offices on the fourth floor of the courthouse.

Also as part of the plan, a new courtroom will be created on the fourth floor of the courthouse and a new hearing room will be created in the building housing the magistrates'

Bullock
Mrs. Olivia S. Bullock, 88, died Monday in Grifton Rest Home.

Her funeral will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Al Davis. Burial will be in Robersonville Cemetery.

Mrs. Bullock was a native of Pitt County and was a resident of the offices across Washington Street from the courthouse.

Jackson also reported that changes in the county's method of electing commissioners — a "six-three" plan enacted by the General Assembly which calls for six members of the board to be elected from districts and three to be elected by countywide vote — has been submitted to the U.S. Justice Department for preclearance.

Commissioners took no action on a request from representatives of the Greenville Community Life Center which asked for $40,000 to help fund the purchase of the old Agnes Fullilove School building on Chestnut Street.

But the board asked County Attorney W.H. Watson to call a meeting of the Pitt-Greenville Convention and Visitors Authority and asked the authority for recommendations for chairman.

Under a bill passed by the General Assembly earlier this year — which created the 11-member authority and a 3 percent motel room occupancy tax to be used to promote tourism — the Board of County Commissioners must appoint the authority's chairman.

Commissioners also named: Gary Sutton as an alternate member of the sedimentation and erosion control board; Dwight Whitlock as an alternate member of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission; and Dorothy Hudson, a former alternate member, as a member of the Greenville Board of Adjustment.

A slide presentation on the Affirmative Action program this year was presented, showing that the school system has increased its minority employment from 18 percent to 23.5 percent. Promotion of minorities in administrative positions was 44.5 percent.

According to the Affirmative Action plan adopted last summer, the school system was to increase its minority employment by 3 percent a year until 30 percent. The school system exceeded its goal of 21 percent this year. Minority recruitment also has been expanded, according to the report.

The school system's child abuse and neglect policy and pregnant school girls policy was approved as presented at the July board meeting.

Two local citizens, Blake Honeycutt and T.R. Jones, discussed with the board a new sex education program, Sex Respect, which teaches sexual abstinence as a form of birth control.

Jones said that with the AIDS epidemic, premarital sex is "no longer a moral issue but a serious national problem."

West said that the administration will study the program to be considered as part of the curriculum for the Comprehensive Health Act recently passed by the state legislature. The new law requires developing a health plan for students and submitting the plan for review, West said.

Management plans prepared by the administration were presented to the board. At the request of Grooms, a formal presentation of the information will be presented to the board at a later date.

According to information presented to the board, 36 additional positions have been allotted to the school system for the 1987-1988 school year, including six guidance and counseling positions, three assistant principalships and six accelerated math and science teachers. Other positions, which will be filled by the end of the month, include foreign language and theater arts, orchestra, Triad Enrichment Programs and media.

An update of state legislation affecting the administration of the school systems was presented for the board's information.

Personnel recommendations and a budget amendment were approved, as were deposits for the school treasuries. A sanitary sewer easement was approved for the board's property across from Mall Drive on U.S. 264. Other informational items included a community school report.

A facilities update was presented to the board. According to the report, the new athletic complex for Rose High School is proceeding on schedule and should be completed by the opening football game. Schematics for the construction projects at Belvoir, Ayden Elementary, Grifton, A.G. Cix, W.H. Robinson, G.R. Whitfield, Farmville Central, H.B. Sugg, Sam Bundy, Greenville Middle, Bethel Elementary, Pactolus and Wellcome Middle schools have been completed.

Other informational items included transportation, text books and fine and forfeitures.

Prior to the meeting, board members toured the recently completed addition to D.H. Conley High School and the new Wintergreen Elementary School on the old County Home property near Bell's Fork.

Jones Released

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Country music star George Jones has been released from a hospital after five days and told to slow down.

Jones, 55, had been treated for exhaustion, a kidney infection, bronchitis and prostate complications.

It's as inevitable as taxes, but don't ask your CPA about it.

The two inevitabilities. When it comes to questions about taxes most people don't hesitate to make plans and arrangements with their accountant. But when it comes to the other inevitability, it's amazing how few people make any arrangements at all.

And that's a mystery, considering the benefits to family and friends that funeral prearrangement offers. It makes things simple. It offers peace of mind. Reassurance to loved ones. And it takes very little time.

So if you're tax planning, ask your CPA or tax lawyer. The other inevitability? Ask us.

Kernersville Tops Tar Heels; Myers Park, Forest City Win

Kernersville, deemed by insiders as the team to beat in the North Carolina Little League state tournament, got off to a strong start Monday with a 10-2 victory over Greenville's Tar Heel All-Stars.

Myers Park-Trinity ripped Sylva, 11-1, and Forest City nipped Fort Bragg, 4-3, in the other two games of the opening day of competition.

Today, Kernersville takes on Asheville in the second round of the double elimination tournament's winners' bracket. Asheville had a first-round bye. That game is set for 2 p.m. Myers Park-Trinity and Forest City meet in a 4 p.m. game while Sylva and Fort Bragg collide in the losers' bracket at 6 p.m. The loser in that contest will be the first to head homeward.

Greenville, moving into the losers' bracket also, has a bye until Wednesday's play when it will meet the loser of the Forest City-Myers Park Trinity game.

The tournament is scheduled to wind up either Saturday or Sunday.

Greenville got off to a good start in its game, pushing over two runs in the bottom of the first inning. Richie Grimsley opened by reaching on an error, as did Omar Jordan. Will MacKenzie followed with a walk, loading the bases. Montez Barrett then singled, driving in both Grimsley and Jordan for the 2-0 lead.

But it was the be the final runs on the day for the Greenville team. Only three more runners reached base the rest of the afternoon as Kernersville's Kirby Keene settled down and allowed only two hits in going the distance. He struck out 14 and walked three.

Barrett, pitching for Greenville, enjoyed good fortune until the fourth inning when his wildness helped Kernersville score three runs and take the lead for good. Up to that time, he had allowed but one hit, fanned eight and walked four.

But after striking out the first batter in the fourth, Shawn Money singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Jay Flynn walked and another wild pitch moved both runners up. Chad Faircloth also walked, and a wild pitch plated Money. A passed ball then allowed Flynn to score, and still another wild pitch scored Faircloth with what proved to be the game winning run.

Kernersville then exploded for seven runs in the fifth inning. Faircloth had a two-run double and Keene finished it off with a two-run homer.

Greg Payne and Money led the Kernersville hitting with two while no one had more than one for Greenville.

Myers Park-Trinity's Corey Cauthren banged out three hits and scored two runs to lead his team to an 11-1 win over Sylva in the second game of the day.

MPT jumped out into the lead in the first inning, scoring six times to put the game away. Cauthren led off with a single and Zach Lee reached on an error. Justin Schartz singled to load the bases. Jacob Goldberg singled in both Cauthren and Lee and Vernon Knight reached on an error, scoring Schartz. Travis Pearsall singled and Gray Moore singled in both Goldberg and Knight. Cauthren followed with a double, driving in Pearsall.

The Charlotte team added one in the second, and four more in the fifth while Sylva's only run crossed in the second.

Schartz, Goldberg and Knight each picked up two hits to pace Myers Park-Trinity. No one had more than one hit for Sylva.

Lewis Miller hit a home run to allow Forest City to slip past Fort Bragg in game three, 4-3.

Forest City scored three times in the first inning to take the lead in the game. David Hutchins and Tracy Earo both hit solo home runs to account for the second and third runs.

Fort Bragg came back in the top of the third to push over three and tie it up. All three of those came on a homer by Jalacy Hawkins.

In the bottom of the fifth inning, Miller led off with a solo homer that gave Forest City the victory.

Miller and Hutchins each had two hits to pace Forest City, while Chris Diaz had two for Fort Bragg.

Heat Stunning Pam Am Teams

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jerry Morales played professional baseball in the Midwest so the oppressive heat and humidity of August is no surprise to him.

But it stunned many of the athletes and coaches arriving in Indianapolis for the Pan Am Games.

"I'm used to this. It was like this in St. Louis and Chicago," said Morales, a former major-league player who finished his career with the Cubs in 1983.

Morales is the hitting coach for the Puerto Rican baseball team, a crew that was greeted on Monday by temperatures in the mid-90s and oppressive humidity. Already tired from a long day of travel, the Puerto Rican team was content to leave sight-seeing for another day, deciding instead to seek relief inside the athletes' village at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

More than 400 of the anticipated 4,000 competitors from 38 Western Hemisphere nations had arrived by Monday, but the heat and humidity kept daytime activity to a minimum at the village, located about 10 miles northeast of downtown Indianapolis.

"We are getting used to the weather," Margrita Nava, a member of the Mexican equestrian team, said. "It is hard for us and hard for the horses."

"The heat is so intense that you could have to change your race strategy," said Norman Bellingham of Rockville, Md., a member of the United States canoe and kayak team. "We've been practicing early in the morning and late in the evening just to avoid the heat."

Bellingham said the combination of the heat and the security precautions plotted by organizers served to keep the athletes close to their temporary homes.

"We can leave if we want to, but it's such an ordeal that you tend to sleep, watch television and visit with the other guys," Bellingham said after venturing out to buy a box of crackers at a convenience store in the athletes' village.

The National Weather Service said Monday's high in Indianapolis was 94 degrees. The temperature, and the 47 percent relative humidity, pushed the heat index to 100, the weather service said. The heat index combines temperature and humidity to indicate the relative discomfort caused by weather extremes.

The heat wave which has gripped the Midwest is expected to last through Wednesday and then abate on Thursday, when temperatures are forecast in the 80s, the weather service said.

The athletes will wait out the weather in their dormitories on the eastern end of the sprawling, tree-lined facility, which is home to the Army Finance Center.

Near the dormitories, Pan Am organizers have set up a tent city of shops, food stands, a barber shop and dry cleaners. A drugstore, bank and post office are nearby.

"Only a few of the athletes are in, but we're expecting things to pick up between now and the (opening) ceremonies Saturday," Donald Bilal, who operates a popcorn stand on Main Street of the village, said.

"The athletes who are here are just milling around — some on skates, some on bicycles, some jogging," he said. "I'm just waiting for the rush to begin."

Jennifer Phillips, a Ball State University student working in an athletic clothing shop at the village, said business picks up when the sun sets and athletes return from late afternoon training sessions.

"We're just waiting for them to come in," she said. "It always picks up in the evening."

The village is surrounded by two rows of chain link fence, each topped by barbed wire. Incoming vehicles are stopped in a fenced-in area where policemen search the wheel wells and underside of vehicles. They also walk through the buses that transport volunteers, workers and the media into the village.

Pitt Co., Hamlet Collide In Eastern Legion Series

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

It will be a flashback to 1982 when Pitt County and Hamlet open the Eastern North Carolina American Legion baseball championship series Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field.

The last time these two teams met was in 1982 when Hamlet took a 4-1 series win and went on to win the state championship. Hamlet also won it the next year but has failed to return to the state championship since then.

Back in 1982, Hamlet won the first game of the series, 5-3, but Pitt came back to even the series with a 4-3 victory.

Hamlet then won the next three games, 6-5, 11-9 and 5-4, to advance to the state finals.

The teams will play a best of seven series beginning with two games in Greenville, followed by three in Hamlet and, if needed, two more back in Greenville.

Pitt, following a third-place regular season finish, swept Kinston in a three-game series and then bested regular season co-champ Snow Hill in a best of three set, 2-1.

Post 39 followed that by topping Rocky Mount in the Area I East finals, 4-1, to advance to the Area I finals. Raleigh's Post 1 was next and Pitt took four straight to sweep the series and advance to the Eastern finals.

Hamlet comes into the title series boasting a 29-3 mark and two undefeated pitchers in Roger Hailey and Bobby Hunt.

Hailey is 6-0 with a 2.29 earned run average while Hunt is also 6-0 with a 2.68 ERA. Hailey has 95 strikeouts in 55 innings. The remainder of the Hamlet rotation include Alvin Moorman (5-2, 3.33 ERA) and Jeff Hoopaugh (4-1, 3.12 ERA). Hoopaugh is the lone righthander of the group.

So far in the playoffs, Hamlet has gone with Hunt, Hailey and Hoopaugh in its rotation, followed by Moorman.

Hamlet's leading hitter is third baseman Tommy Lill who is hitting .417 with four homers and 35 RBI. Catcher Corey Short chips in with a .368 average with 13 home runs and 49 RBI. Other Hamlet leaders are leftfielder Tom Outen (.469, 6 hr, 23 RBI) and outfielder-pitcher Moorman (.343, 5 hr, 21 rbi).

Pitt, 22-9, will counter with a staff led by Tom Moyer, who has gone 5-0 in the playoffs, and Bronswell Patrick, who sports a 3-0 playoff mark.

Moyer has a 8-2 overall record with a 3.17 ERA while Patrick is 5-1 with a 2.28 ERA along with 96 strikeouts in 78 innings. Pitt's third starter is Robbie McDonald (3-1, 9.00 ERA) while the rest of the rotation includes Eric Jarman (2-2, 6.11 ERA) and Tim Clark (3-2, 5.86 ERA).

Offensively, Pitt is led by leftfielder Shane Adams, who has a .364 average with four homers and 30 RBI. Jarman, the centerfielder, is close behind at .363 with three home runs and 38 RBI. First baseman David Daniels is Pitt's power hitter, with a .360 average with nine home runs and 28 RBI. Other Post 39 leaders include catcher Axel Smith (.315, 2 hr, 19 RBI), pitcher-rightfielder Moyer (.314, 6 hr, 31 RBI), shortstop Ty Little (.313, 1 hr, 17 RBI) and Hunter Clark (.303, 11 RBI).

The winner of the series will advance to play the winner of the Haw River-Stanley series in the west.

Candiotti Just Misses In No-Hit Bid Against Yanks

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Tom Candiotti unknuckled, and it cost him.

It cost him a no-hitter against the New York Yankees, but the Cleveland Indians won 2-0 as Candiotti settled for a one-hitter Monday night.

Candiotti, a right-handed knuckleball pitcher, gave up just a soft, line single to Mike Easler leading off the eighth inning of his third complete game and second shutout of the season.

"It was a 3-2 count, and I didn't want to throw the knuckleball in that situation," Candiotti said. "I threw him an inside fastball, and he just got enough of it."

The ball fell between second baseman Tommy Hinzo and center fielder Brett Butler.

"You've got to respect Easler," Butler said. "I'm playing him deep. I wanted to have a legitimate shot at him, coming in or going back. The ball hung, but not long enough for me to get a good dive in."

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota beat California 11-3, Kansas City defeated Detroit 4-2 in 10 innings, Toronto beat Chicago 14-5, Boston beat Texas 11-2 and Seattle beat Oakland 4-3. Pitcher Joe Niekro was ejected from the Twins-Angels game for allegedly doctoring baseballs.

The only other baserunner allowed by Candiotti was Dave Winfield, who walked to lead off the second. The victory gave Candiotti a 4-11 mark and lowered his ERA to 4.93.

"If I had 10 or 15 wins right now, maybe I'd have been shook up," Candiotti said of losing the no-hitter. "But I only had three wins. I just needed the win."

Twins 11, Angels 3
Gary Gaetti hit a three-run homer and drove in five runs as Minnesota scored seven times in the last two innings to beat California, despite the ejection of Niekro. He was thrown out of the game in the fourth inning after umpires found an emery board and small piece of sandpaper in his back pocket.

"I've had those things in my pocket ever since I've been throwing knuckleballs," the 42-year-old Niekro said. "Sometimes, when the emery board gets wet, you can't use it to file fingernails. That's why I have the sandpaper."

Niekro faces an automatic 10-day suspension subject to review by American League President Bobby Brown, who will inspect several of the balls from the game.

"The umpires did what they had to do," Niekro said.

Dan Schatzeder replaced Niekro and held the Angels to two hits the rest of the way as the Twins moved two games ahead of Oakland in the AL West.

Brian Downing homered for the Angels.

Royals 4, Tigers 2

Kansas City hit three homers off Jack Morris, including Danny Tartabull's 10th-inning, two-run shot, to beat the Tigers. Morris now has given up a league-leading 29 homers this year.

Steve Balboni and Frank White hit solo homers off Morris, and Detroit got both its runs on Kirk Gibson's two-run homer, No. 16, in the eighth off Bud Black.

Morris, who hasn't won since the All-Star Game, also threw five wild pitches, tying the AL record by Charles Wheatley of Detroit in 1912. The major league record is six.

Blue Jays 14, White Sox 5

Toronto scored 10 runs in the sixth inning, and Kelly Gruber drove in four runs in the Blue Jays' romp over Chicago. The 10-run inning was one short of the Blue Jays' record. They scored 11 in the ninth inning of a 12-7 victory over Seattle on July 20, 1984.

Gruber hit a two-run homer in the fourth, then had two run-scoring hits — a single and double — in the sixth. George Bell also had a single and double in the sixth, driving in two runs.

Cecil Fielder hit a two-run homer for Toronto, which cut New York's lead in the AL East to 1½ games.

Red Sox 11, Rangers 2

Rookies Sam Horn and John Marzano homered, and Bruce Hurst pitched a three-hitter as Boston beat Texas. The homer was the first hit of Marzano's major-league career and came in his third game since being called up from Class AAA Pawtucket.

Horn added a double and two singles to his homer and also scored three runs.

Hurst, 12-6, pitched his 12th complete game, walking three and striking out eight.

Mariners 4, Athletics 3

Jim Presley's three-run homer in the first inning carried the Seattle Mariners over Oakland, despite a ninth-inning run by the Athletics off reliever Mike Trujillo.

Seattle led 4-2 after scoring an unearned run in the seventh on first baseman Mark McGwire's error.

Mike Morgan allowed six hits over the first 5 2-3 innings for Seattle, and Dennis Powell got two outs before Trujillo relieved. Carney Lansford had an RBI single off Trujillo in the ninth before Edwin Nunez came on to get the final out and his 11th save.

A's right-hander Joaquin Andujar left after Presley's homer, and the club later said Andujar had tendinitis in his right elbow.

Grand Slam Keys Marshall's Turnaround

By The Associated Press
Mike Marshall, who has had his share of troubles for Los Angeles, finally had something grand to talk about this season.
Marshall hit his fifth career grand slam and drove in five runs Monday night to support Orel Hershiser's six-hit pitching and give the Dodgers a very important 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds at Riverfront Stadium.

The fourth-place Dodgers trail first-place Cincinnati by 7½ games in the National League West and play tonight and Wednesday.

The grand slam tied Marshall with Ron Cey for the all-time Los Angeles mark for career grand slams. The all-time Dodger record is 14 grand slams by Gil Hodges, who played for most of his career in Brooklyn.

"I must have had 30 chances (to hit a grand slam) the last few years," Marshall said. "I haven't been swinging real well with the bases loaded. I don't know what the problem is."

For much of Marshall's career the problem has been injuries. Since May 17, 1984, the 27-year-old outfielder has been on the disabled list four times.

Marshall spent 15 days on the disabled list this May with a strained back and an ingrown wart on his hand.

On Monday, he singled home a run in the first inning and hit a grand slam into the second deck in center field in the third off Ted Power, 8-6, who had won his seven previous decisions against the Dodgers.

"It's been a long time," Marshall said. "My mom keeps bugging me about the grand slam (record). She looked in the media guide. It's been going on for about three years. So that one's for her."

The grand slam mark is the only one Marshall's mom has singled out.

"I think it's because in the media guide there's only one category where I'm close to the top," Marshall said. "I think she's excited about that. I'm down on the list in the other categories, but in that one I'm up there."

In 4½ seasons with Dodgers, Marshall has 102 home runs and 339 runs batted in. His best season was 1985, when he had 28 homers and 95 RBI in 135 games.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York edged Philadelphia 3-2 in 11 innings; St. Louis defeated Montreal 5-2; Pittsburgh tripped Chicago 6-4; and Houston beat San Francisco 5-3 in 13 innings.

Hershiser, 12-9, pitched his seventh complete game, struck out eight and walked two. He lost his shutout when Bo Diaz hit a two-run homer with two out in the ninth.

"It's important to get Orel runs early," Marshall said. "Anytime you get a quality pitcher like Orel runs early, he's going to win the game."

Cardinals 5, Expos 2

Tony Pena and Jim Lindeman hit two-run homers and St. Louis defeated host Montreal for its fourth consecutive victory. Pena has 13 career homers at Olympic Stadium.

The loss was the third straight for the Montreal, and left the Expos in third place seven games behind the first-place Cardinals in the NL East.

Ricky Horton, 6-1, pitched a seven-hit ball over seven innings and Todd Worrell pitched two innings for his 22nd save.

Mets 3, Phillies 2

Keith Hernandez homered with two out in the 11th inning off reliever Kent Tekulve to lift New York over Philadelphia before 50,297 at Shea Stadium.

Hernandez hit his 11th homer of the season to extend his hitting streak to 12 games. The game-winning homer off Tekulve, 5-4, just cleared the right-field wall.

It was the Mets' sixth victory in their last seven games and moved New York into second place in the East, 6½ games behind St. Louis.

Reliever Roger McDowell, 6-3, pitched two innings for the victory. In his last seven relief appearances, McDowell has two wins and five saves.

New York's scheduled starter, Sid Fernandez, left the game before throwing a pitch when he felt a pain in his left shoulder while warming up. The injury was diagnosed as a tendon irritation.

Astros 5, Giants 3

Kevin Bass hit his second home run of the game with two out in the 13th inning to lift Houston over San Francisco at the Astrodome. The Giants remained three games behind Cincinnati in the NL West, while the Astros moved to within 3½.

Bass, who hit home runs both left and right-handed, drove in Alan Ashby, who had walked against reliever Joe Price, 1-2. Bass had tied the score 3-3 in the fourth with his 11th home run of the season.

"I've been waiting to do this for a long time, ever since I started playing ball," Bass said. "It's one of those personal things."

Pirates 6, Cubs 4

Doug Drabek pitched four-hit ball over eight-plus innings for only his second victory since April 19 and Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run homer as host Pittsburgh ended a seven-game losing streak.

Drabek, 3-10, didn't allow a hit until Ryne Sandberg singled to right field with two outs in the sixth inning.

He took a two-hit shutout into the ninth, but Sandberg led off with a single and Leon Durham followed with his 18th homer. Brett Gideon relieved Drabek, got two outs but also allowed a home run to Rafael Palmeiro. Jim Gott, acquired earlier in the day from San Francisco, came on and allowed an RBI single before getting the final out for his first save.

Redskins Building To Top Giants

By The Associated Press

The Washington Redskins figure they need more strength up front to better contend with the Super Bowl champion New York Giants, to whom they lost three times last season.

The Redskins, 12-4 during the regular season and 14-5 overall, including a loss to the Giants in the NFC championship game, have moved All-Pro left guard Russ Grimm to center. Grimm is replacing Jeff Bostic, the starting center since 1981.

Offensive line coach Joe Bugel said the move was prompted by the strength of the Giants' offensive line.

"The Giants opened our eyes last year," Bugel said from the Redskins training camp at Carlisle, Pa. "We're probably as strong as any team, except them. We thought it was time to make some adjustments and look for bigger matchups." Grimm has 275 pounds on his 6-foot-3 frame. Bostic is 6-2, 263.

Grimm's shift is only part of the scheme. The Redskins are also happy with the progress of 6-2, 270-pounder Raleigh McKenzie, who will take over for Grimm at left guard.

Holdouts Dave Butz and Keith Griffin drew fire from the Redskins front office. Butz, at 37 the oldest defensive lineman in the NFL, and Griffin, a veteran running back and special-teams player, failed to report.

General Manager Bobby Beathard said he's through calling them.

"If they want to play, they can call me," he said.

Newest Bear On Hand

Jim Harbaugh officially joined the Chicago Bears' quarterback platoon at their Platteville, Wis., camp. The former Michigan star, who holds several career passing marks for the Wolverines, signed what both the team and his agent, Leigh Steinberg, said is a four-year contract worth more than $1.3 million.

With Harbaugh in the fold, the Bears now have four players — Mike

Tomczak, Doug Flutie and Steve Fuller are the others — trying for the backup job behind starter Jim McMahon. Fuller was the lone member of the group not to practice Monday. The Bears list his status as day-to-day because of a sore shoulder he injured last week.

Big Yards, Big Bucks

Los Angeles Rams All-Pro running back Eric Dickerson says words cannot express his unhappiness with what he considers a low $683,000 per year salary and repeated his desire to be traded.

"I feel like a stallion who once upon a time had spirit. But once you break a horse's spirit, the horse is no good," he said in an interview with the Los Angeles Times.

The NFL's leading rusher for three of the last four seasons said he soon will ask the Rams for a contract renegotiation.

"If they can't afford to pay me ... I'd tell them to trade me," he said.

James Brooks, who owns Cincinnati's single-season rushing record, also owns the top salary on the Bengals, according to an Ohio newspaper. The Cincinnati Enquirer said the running back signed for $500,000 a season for the next two years when he reported to the Bengals' Wilmington, Ohio camp last Thursday.

The newspaper, which said it based the story on figures supplied by the NFL Players' Association, reported Brooks now earns more than wide receiver Cris Collinsworth, who makes $450,000, and quarterback Boomer Esiason and defensive end Eddie Edwards, each of whom earns $400,000.

Brooks made $325,000 a year ago while setting club records with 1,087 rushing yards and 1,773 offensive yards from scrimmage.

The Detroit Lions signed Leonard Thompson to a new contract as the 13-year veteran wide receiver heads into what could be a record-breaking season. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

Dooley Facing Big Task In Rebuilding Deacons

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

AP Sports Writer
FOXFIRE VILLAGE (AP) — Bill Dooley knew he was in for a challenge in trying to bring Wake Forest football up a notch. When he looked at the Demon Deacon depth chart, he got an idea of how big that challenge would be.

"You've got to have big strong people," Dooley told sportswriters and broadcasters at the Atlantic Coast Conference's football kickoff. "Our offensive and defensive people look more like the people in this room."

That line drew chuckles from everyone but Dooley, who is one of three new ACC coaches entering the 1987 season.

After 11 years at North Carolina and nine at Virginia Tech, Dooley is returning to his old ACC surroundings.

"I've had some big challenges, but every new challenge is the biggest challenge you have," Dooley added.

"But I go back to this. It doesn't matter if it's North Carolina, Virginia Tech, there's no secret to it," he said. "You have got to recruit good student-athletes, you have to provide for them the facilities and the support system. If you don't, you're not going to have a good program. If you do, you're going to be competitive."

Dooley never mentioned the Wake Forest athletic department by name, but it was apparent that he was not pleased with the state of the football program in Winston-Salem.

On offense, four linemen return from last year, but only one is a letterman.

"We graduated seven people across the line on offense. Those that didn't graduate ... there were two who can't play," Dooley said. "The offensive line is almost non-existent."

Dooley said Mike Rice, in his final year of eligibility, has a bad back and is doubtful for the year. Paul Mann has a shoulder injury and Dooley doesn't think he will be available either.

Two starters and three lettermen are back on defense for Wake Forest, but again the problem is on the line.

"There weren't many people on defense to start with, so that's a real problem," he said.

Dooley said he thought recruiting at Wake Forest had suffered in the past two seasons, compared to the early 1980s, when he thought the school had kept pace in drawing top high school seniors.

"We've got to shore that back up and we think we can do it," he said.

Asked if Wake Forest athletic officials were committed to such improvements, Dooley replied, "We're working on it."

The other two new coaches were more optimistic about 1987.

Steve Spurrier was an assistant at Duke from 1980 through 1982 before returning to Durham from the USFL to succeed Steve Sloan, now athletic director at Alabama. Joe Krivak was a quarterback and receiver coach for Bobby Ross at Maryland before he took over for Ross last December.

The Blue Devils return 10 defensive players as well as an experienced offense. But last year's team went 4-7 and, like Wake Forest, was 2-5 in the conference, making Spurrier's goal in the first year easy to determine.

"We're approaching the season with cautious optimism," said Spurrier, who has installed a new offense. "This is the year we have the opportunity to turn the corner, hopefully have a winning season and try to get some momentum going for us."

Krivak has six defensive starters coming back as well as nine starters on offense, including quarterback Dan Henning. But wide receiver Azizuddin Abdur Ra'ooof is trying to recover from an Achilles' tendon injury that forced him to miss seven games last year.

"Where he's going to be, I don't know," Krivak said. "We're going to see how he can function ... we won't know until he gets on the field and does it again."

Georgia Tech was 5-5-1 last season, but Ross is relying on the veterans to make the transition from Bill Curry's tenure a smooth one.

"If there's one thing that this team does have, it's good senior leadership," Ross said. "I'm counting on that as being a big part of our football team."

Clemson is the favorite to win the conference championship and is considered a contender for the national championship.

"It just depends on who's picking and what part of the country you're in," Ford said. "Our biggest fear is playing Western Carolina our first football game."

North Carolina, which is expected to challenge Clemson for the title, has lost quarterback Jonathan Hall for 1987. Hall suffered a shoulder injury last season and was operated on by Dr. Frank Jobe, the same surgeon who treated Tar Heel quarterback Mark Maye.

To the Sports Editor:

Last fall Post 39 of the American Legion here in Greenville had to cancel the 1987 American Legion Baseball Program. It was done reluctantly but costs had risen and ticket sales had fallen off the previous year to the point where we could no longer continue supporting our other programs. Mr. Woody Peele in a black-bordered editorial on the sports page of The Daily Reflector noted the loss of the program and then:

Post 39 was approached by Mr. Grant Jarman, Mr. John Clark and Coach Toby Holliday all wishing to preserve the program. The Legion reopened the program provided that sufficient funds could be obtained. The gentleman named above made a tremendous effort in a short time and presented the American Legion with enough ticket sales to exceed the required budget.

The American Legion Post 39 wishes to congratulate these three persons and all of the citizens of this area for their support of American Legion Baseball. The enthusiasm which is shown in the sports pages seems to be not reflected in our ball team and they are doing very well indeed. Citizens come to the playoff games this Wednesday and Thursday.

You Say Tatar

These Crimean Tatars recently demonstrated outside the Kremlin in Moscow's Red Square, demanding to be returned to the homeland that Joseph Stalin forced them to leave during World War II. "Tatar" is a Manchu word meaning "archer" or "nomad." In Europe, the tatars who built the Mongolian Empire became known as Tartars, after the Greek word Tartarus, a mythical place as far below Hades as earth is from heaven. A falling stone would take nine days to reach Tartarus.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Aug. 5

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After a somewhat slow and trying day, you will be imbued with vitality and ambition. Use this energy to make up for lost time and catch up on your work.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Newcomers may present you with some fine ideas. Jot them down, as your memory is crowded and you may forget.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): A practical, but progressive attitude can show you new ways to add to your assets. Get plenty of rest tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't hesitate to ask your friends for assistance in attaining your goals. Handle neglected correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Even if you're busy, take care of that important property matter. Be cooperative with co-workers.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): A winning smile today will help you out more than you can imagine. Keep a positive outlook, since success is mostly mental.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Dream up a new way to make your family happy and content. Don't neglect your social obligations.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): A group activity with some friends at any time today would help your mood, but don't discuss politics or religion.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Any public work you can do would be great for your self-esteem and would also impress the community.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Some newcomers can help you grow. A journey may reveal a desirable living alternative. Drive carefully.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Listen to your mate's suggestions; they could make you both more happy. The time is right for business success.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If you've been putting off important correspondence, handle it now. The right words could bring great results.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): An inspired idea of yours should be brought to the attention of superiors. Their backing can make it a great success.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will have the "wanderlust," a wonderful imagination and the ability to make friends easily. Foreign languages, useful for traveling, are a must for your progeny. He or she will attract many important and dynamic personalities during his or her life.

Some days you will be dealt hands which can be played only one way. On others you will be given a choice and, reluctantly, you will have to rely on your native intelligence.

The final contract, reached after both players took a rosy view of their assets, will not rank as the world's greatest. It was unfortunate that the 5 points North-South held in the minor suits were completely wasted.

West led the king of clubs and continued with the ace in response to his partner's echo. Before continuing with a third club, West cashed the ace of diamonds to complete the defensive book. When his partner signalled encouragement with the eight, he continued with a diamond. Declarer ruffed and the problem was easy: he had to bring in the heart suit without loss.

Since a singleton king in either hand would not help, there was only one holding that would allow that—a bare jack of hearts with West. So declarer overtook the queen of trumps with dummy's king and led the queen of hearts. When that pinned the jack, the contract was home whether or not East covered. At the table he did, so declarer cashed one high spade, then crossed back to the board with the ten of trumps to take a finesse for the nine of hearts.

Now let's switch the nine and eight of hearts. That additional spot gives declarer a choice of plays: either a singleton jack with West or a blank king with East, in which case declarer would play a low heart to the ace and run the ten through West after drawing trumps. Which should he choose?

Since West is marked with six clubs and some diamonds, he is more likely to have a singleton heart than East. Therefore, declarer should play the suit as above.

Senate Bans U.S. Sales From Titanic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, scolding a French expedition retrieving artifacts from the Titanic, has approved legislation banning sale or for-profit display of the items in the United States.

"Obviously, the plunderers will be able to vend their wares in other parts of the world, but not in the United States," said Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn. The Titanic lies in international waters off the Newfoundland coast.

Survivors, relatives of victims and some U.S. scientists have said the remains of the Titanic should be left undisturbed as a memorial to the more than 1,500 passengers and crew members killed when the "unsinkable" flagship of the White Star Line went down April 15, 1912, after striking an iceberg. Weicker introduced the bill Monday, and the Senate swiftly accepted it on a voice vote with bipartisan support.

The French team, which joined U.S. explorers in September 1985 to find the sunken luxury liner, has returned to the site with a mini-submarine to pick up cups, dishes, bottles and other items strewn on the ocean floor.

A team from the Woods Hole (Mass.) Oceanographic Institution, which along with the French explorers found the Titanic in 1985, took detailed photographs and videotape last summer, but made a point of not removing items.

Weicker said the current expedition is "the crassest of commercial ventures" and he called the ban a "well-tempered response to an ill-advised venture."

The French government team, which is financed by private investors, has said it has no plans to sell the items, only to display them.

Weicker said his legislation would not bar exhibition of Titanic artifacts by not-for-profit ventures.

The ban would be removed if the United States secured an international agreement covering salvage of the ship.

Soybean Support Put At $4.77

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soybean producers can count on a price-support level for the 1987 crop of at least $4.77 a bushel.

The floor level announced Monday by Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng represented a 5 percent reduction from the basic level of $5.02 a bushel set by the 1985 farm law.

The law authorizes the secretary to reduce price supports 5 percent a year to keep U.S. soybeans competitive in world markets but specifies that they may not sink below $4.50 a bushel.

Lyng said the level contained in his preliminary announcement of Commodity Credit Corp. loan and purchase rates was designed to maintain U.S. competitiveness.

The final price-support level must be announced no later than Oct. 1 and under the law it can be no lower than the figure in the preliminary announcement.

Lyng told the American Soybean Association over the weekend he was well aware of concerns that high price supports may be hurting the competitiveness of U.S. soybeans in world markets.

However, he expressed skepticism about that theory.

"When one examines the market fundamentals over the last few months it is difficult to reach a conclusion that clearly substantiates those concerns," Lyng said.

Lyng noted that favorable supply and demand have permitted selloff of

Greenspan Wins Confirmation As Federal Reserve Chairman

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Senate Monday confirmed the nomination of conservative economist Alan Greenspan as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, clearing the way for him to take the key monetary policy post from outgoing chairman Paul A. Volcker next week.

The vote was 91-2, with only Democratic senators Bill Bradley of New Jersey and Kent Conrad of North Dakota voting against Greenspan.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., complained that there was "nothing in Greenspan's experience ... that shows independence. And if there is one quality the Federal Reserve should have, it is independence."

But Proxmire voted to confirm Greenspan anyway, citing the nominee's firm anti-inflation stance and arguing that Greenspan, 61, was a better choice than any of the other people President Reagan might have chosen to serve a four-year term as head of the nation's central bank.

Volcker, whose term officially ends Thursday after an eight-year tenure as probably the toughest inflation fighter in U.S. history, will remain at the helm of the Fed until Greenspan takes over.

Greenspan, head of a New York-based economic consulting firm, has vowed to follow in Volcker's footsteps in trying to keep inflation under control. And like Volcker, Greenspan is expected to practice an eclectic brand of policy-making that conforms to no specific school of economic thought.

"He isn't a Keynesian. He isn't a monetarist. He isn't a supply-sider," one economist commented in early June when Reagan announced Greenspan's nomination. "If he's anything, he's a pragmatist, and as such, he is somewhat unpredictable."

Greenspan differs from Volcker on one key question facing the Fed, which oversees the nation's banking system and has strong influence on interest rates and the money supply.

Greenspan favors removing most of the barriers that have prevented commercial banks from entering new businesses, particularly underwriting securities and investing directly in other businesses like investment banks. By contrast, Volcker fought to slow the pace of banking deregulation despite strong objections from the Reagan administration.

Greenspan, an advocate of laissez-faire capitalism who nonetheless has sometimes tempered his strong free market views to help forge a political consensus, has experience as a high-level economic adviser to Republican Presidents Nixon and Ford.

He headed the 1983 commission on Social Security, which reached agreement on a bailout for the politically sensitive retirement system.

Shuttle Gets Power

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Workers cheered and the launch director asserted NASA still has the will to put men in space as electrical power flowed into space shuttle Discovery to start the long preparation for the first post-Challenger flight.

Discovery is scheduled for launch on June 2, 1988. "It's a great boost for morale, and gives us confidence that the road map we have laid out for return to launch is makeable," said John Talone, the Discovery flight director.

"The morale increase is noticeable as people get back to doing what they do best — preparing a vehicle for launch," Talone said. As a sign in Discovery's hangar flashed "Vehicle Powered," engineers and technicians clapped and cheered.

"The charge that we have lost our will to fly men in space is wrong," said launch director Bob Sieck, countering an assertion made last week by Reginald Turnill, editor of the Jane's Spaceflight Directory.

Discovery and the two other remaining shuttles, Columbia and Atlantis, have been grounded since Challenger exploded 73 seconds after launch on Jan. 28, 1986, killing all seven crew members.

Some NASA officials privately question whether the June launch date is realistic and think the flight may be postponed two or three months.

Once Discovery's power was on, workers turned on cooling systems and began a check of the shuttle's instrumentation, communications, radar and other systems.

For the next five weeks, the main job will be to check scores of modifications made to the shuttle, many as a result of the Challenger accident.

LATE NIGHT DRAMA — The CBS-TV late night series "Night Heat" will move to prime time temporarily starting Thursday. It will hold the 10 p.m. slot in CBS's schedule for six weeks. The show stars Jeff Wincott, left, as young detective Frank Giambone, and veteran Scott Hylands, right, as detective Kevin O'Brien. (AP Laser-photo)

CBS Giving Late Night TV Drama Slot In Prime Time

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The late night series "Night Heat" has yet to see the light of day, but beginning this week CBS gives it a six-week run a little earlier in the evening, along with its late-night colleague, "Adderly."

"Night Heat," a film-noir cop show set on the dusk-to-dawn shift, was the first of CBS' original late night series. It started in January 1985.

Beginning Tuesday, "Night Heat" will air at 10 p.m. EDT. "Adderly," a tongue-in-cheek spy thriller, will run six weeks at 10 p.m. EDT Fridays.

Larry Jacobsen, executive producer of "Night Heat," appreciates the opportunity to visit prime time, but wouldn't want to live there.

"When we started out the thing, it was almost a 'Naked City'-type show brought up to date," Jacobsen said. "If we had gone the prime-time route, it never would have gone on the air. That kind of thing doesn't work in prime time. It isn't slick enough."

Jacobsen says prime-time viewers will sample his show in all its late, gritty glory. He said the producers even rejected the idea of shooting the prime-time episodes on slicker-35mm film instead of the 16mm they usually use to give the show a "semi-documentary" look.

There will be a couple of "name" guest stars, however, like Jason Miller and David Carradine.

CBS "didn't want us to change the show. They said if it didn't work the way it was, we wouldn't want to put it in prime time," Jacobsen said.

"Everybody said, maybe if it works well, maybe it'll go in prime time. I would just as soon leave it where it is."

Jacobsen is co-executive producer of the show with Sonny Grosso, an ex-New York cop best known as Eddie Egan's partner in the real-life "French Connection" bust.

"Night Heat" is shot in Toronto on a modest budget — barely more than $500,000 an episode. Jacobsen said it would likely cost more than $1 million an episode if produced in the United States.

The show is shot almost entirely at night partly for budgetary reasons — it's easier to close a city street, for instance, when there's no traffic — but also because that's the feel the producers want.

"Since it was on late night, we wanted to make it look almost like it was happening while you were watching it," Jacobsen said. Plus the later hour allows them to get away with slightly more adult dialogue and stories.

"There's very little pressure," he said. "The language, you're allowed a little tougher language in late night, you can go a little further into issues and stuff."

The show stars Scott Hylands as detective Kevin O'Brien, kind of an Irish Frank Furillo. Jeff Wincott plays O'Brien's younger partner, Frank Giambone. Allan Royal plays crime reporter Tom Kirkwood, the narrator. From Kirkwood's fictional newspaper column "Night Heat" comes the show's title.

The actors are Canadian, although they were working in the United States when they were cast.

Jacobsen notes proudly that "Night Heat" has never had a car chase in 66 episodes — again, partially a function of the low budget, but also because the style of the show is embodied in crisp, spare dialogue, not overdirected action sequences.

"Night Heat" is a prime-time show in Canada where it is the highest-rated Canadian-produced original series, Jacobsen said.

Keeshan 'Feels Great'

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Keeshan, television's Captain Kangaroo, says he feels great after triple heart-bypass surgery and will spend some time with his grandson before returning to work.

"I feel better than I've felt ever. I've probably been given another 20 years of life," said the six-time Emmy winner who was host of CBS' "Captain Kangaroo," television's longest-running children's show, for nearly 30 years.

Keeshan suffered a heart attack in 1981 and said doctors recommended the July 23 operation because blood flow in three of his heart arteries was greatly restricted. "Almost any coronary event could have been fatal," he said.

"Captain Kangaroo" premiered on CBS in 1955 and went off the air on the network in 1984, but half-hour shows from the original run on public television.

Keeshan said he will take about two months off from working on the series.

Sean Penn Serving His Time In Jail On Nevada Border

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

BRIDGEPORT, Calif. (AP) — No one came to see Sean Penn on visitors' day at Mono County Jail in this bucolic mountain hamlet described by one resident as the kind of place that should help the "Bad Boys" actor get "mellow."

Sheriff Marty Strelneck insisted Monday the 26-year-old Penn will be treated "the same as any other prisoners are in here. We're not running a hotel here."

The sheriff refused to give much detail about his celebrity inmate's activities in the dormitory-style cell he shares with four inmates, saying, "We're not going to make a spectacle of him."

The attention drawn to this town of 500 people since Penn surrendered Friday night to begin serving a 60-day sentence for violating probation has annoyed some residents.

"Everyone's going a little crazy with the whole thing. I mean, people are taking pictures of the jail for crying out loud," said Shannon Nolan, 19.

She said the star of "Fast Times at Ridgemont High" and "The Falcon and the Snowman" is being coddled, since authorities let him pay about $50 a night to serve time in an out-of-the-way jail rather than in Los Angeles, where he was sentenced.

"It's kind of dumb. I think he could have stayed down there," she said.

Officials have said such an arrangement is not uncommon for prominent people and makes it easier to maintain security.

One businessman suggested that after a stay in Bridgeport, with its clear, unpolluted vistas at the 6,400-foot level of the eastern Sierra Nevada, Penn will leave "with a nice mellow attitude."

"This is like a vacation resort. If you're going to be in jail, you might as well do it here," said Rick Rockel, owner of a sporting-goods store.

Visits and telephone calls at the jail are permitted on Sundays and Wednesdays. No one came to see Penn on Sunday, but he made two calls, said Sgt. Terry Padilla.

Penn is among 10 prisoners in the 24-inmate capacity jail 300 miles north of Los Angeles near the Nevada border.

Prisoners can volunteer to wash county cars or work in the jail kitchen, but Penn hasn't shown an interest in either activity, the sheriff said. There is also an exercise yard and TV area, and books are available.

Jailer Al Fry said it appeared Penn had been reading a script.

Penn was jailed after being charged with reckless driving and with punching an extra on the set of his film "Colors." He was on probation at the time for hitting a man he thought tried to kiss his wife, singer Madonna.

With time off for good behavior, he could serve only 32 days of the 60-day sentence, said Los Angeles Municipal Court Commissioner Juelann Cathey.

ABC Plans Rice Film

L.A. Times-Washington Post

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. — In a TV movie for ABC, Donna Rice will disclose whether she slept with former presidential candidate Gary Hart, network officials said Monday.

"Yes, she will reveal in the movie what she did with Gary Hart," Ted Harbert, vice president of motion pictures, said at a news conference in this Los Angeles suburb during ABC's portion of the annual summer gathering of TV reporters and critics from newspapers throughout the country.

Although Rice refused to tell ABC's Barbara Walters in a televised interview whether she had slept with Hart, her agreement to tell the network the truth was requisite to ABC's committing to broadcast the movie, Harbert said.

She has not yet provided the answer to the sensitive question of the extent of her involvement with Hart, he said. Disclosures about the time they spent together earlier this year — in particular a weekend in Washington when Hart's wife was out of town — forced the former Colorado senator to withdraw from the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Regardless of what Rice says, however, Harbert said that the movie "will not go behind closed doors" with any graphic depictions. "That's their business," he said.

ABC's agreement with Rice is oral at the moment, but Harbert said that the appropriate legal papers will be signed within the next several days. The movie will be produced by New World Television.

Harbert said that the question of Rice, an aspiring actress, playing herself in the film had not been discussed, but the "likelihood is small," he said. He expressed doubt that Rice had the acting skills to carry the film herself. He added that an actor would portray Hart, but the role has not yet been cast.
