Tobacco Sales Open On Sign Of Hope

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The 98th sales season on the Greenville tobacco market began today with state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham saying tobacco is still a viable and important part of the state's economy.

Hopes for a good sales season were bolstered by the fact that the leaf on the sales floor today looked good and prices were expected to be above last year's opening day average of $125.85 a hundred pounds.

At Farmers Warehouse on North Greene Street, prices for the first 44 piles sold — many of them going to the house — ranged from $1.45 per pound to a high of $1.60, with 28 piles bringing $1.48.

Of the first 44 piles in the second row, where prices ranged from $1.35 a pound to $1.45, 28 piles went for $1.35 a pound.

At the New Independent Warehouse on North Pitt Street, prices for 55 piles on the third row sold ranged from a low of $1.21 per pound to a high of $1.47.

Those prices compare to prices ranging from 85 cents per pound to a high of $1.82 cents a pound for the first 128 piles of leaf bought by companies at Farmers on opening day last year.

While no average was available this morning, Kenneth Allen, sales supervisor for the Greenville market, said this year's opening day average is expected to be $1.30 to $1.35 a pound.

Historically, opening day prices are lower than averages paid later in the season because opening sales consist mainly of lugs and primings — the lowest-quality leaf from the tobacco plant.

South Carolina-Border North

Carolina Belt markets opened Tuesday with an average price for the day of $138.71 a hundred, up $14.07 from opening day last year.

But some officials have predicted that the quality of leaf on the Eastern Belt — the hub of which is Greenville — won't be as good as that on the Border Belt that serves southeastern North Carolina because of the generally dry weather in the Eastern Belt area.

At a breakfast sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce before the opening sales, Graham told a group of about 50 farm and business leaders that the state "has got to keep a strong agriculture" and tobacco plays an important part in the economy of the state.

"People casting damnation against tobacco don't know what they're doing," Graham said. "Come the year

2,000 and tobacco will still be important."

The agriculture commissioner said the state produced 440 million pounds of tobacco in 1987 and said "475 million pounds are projected this year."

On the sales floor at Farmers Warehouse, Graham again stressed the importance of tobacco to the state's economy and said, "I feel good about tobacco in North Carolina."

Mitch Smith, tobacco specialist with the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, said this year's crop and last year's are "very similar," with "some good, quality tobacco available this year."

Although growers were faced with "wetness" during spring transplanting and "dryness" more recently, Smith said farmers "have done a good job" of producing a good quality crop. And Smith said, "I'm optimistic about the market this year."

Fenner Allen, president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, said at the breakfast that "we hope to sell 34 million pounds of tobacco," on the local market this year "for a gross income of $55 million."

Bill Clark, chairman of the chamber board, told the guests at the breakfast that "Pitt County produces more tobacco than any other place in the world."

In Wilson, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan told growers and buyers at a pre-market breakfast that the strong sales Tuesday on the Border Belt were cheering.

"It was nice to pick up a newspaper this morning and see prices were up..." Jordan said. "It feels good. ... It's very evident that this is the time when we can say we've turned the corner."

But Jordan also warned of problems ahead for the tobacco industry, including efforts in Washington to ban advertising of tobacco products and to increase the federal excise tax on tobacco.

Jordan said he had no quarrel with politicians and experts who expressed concerns about the health problems and tobacco.

"The people who are concerned about health have a right to tell their story," he said. "But they don't have a right to engage in censorship. We have the right to say that tobacco supports thousands of people and tobacco is vital to the economy of North Carolina."

Pentagon Guard Shoots Gunman

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An armed man who bolted past two Pentagon security guards in an apparent dash toward the National Command Center was shot today and died later, authorities said.

A Pentagon spokesman said the man, identified by CBS News as Duane Wallace, 30, of Youngstown, Ohio, pulled a gun outside a Pentagon entrance and tried to bolt toward the center.

A spokeswoman for the General Services Administration, the agency that provides Federal Protective Service guards to government buildings, said the man was stopped by a guard at the building's River Entrance shortly after 8 a.m. and asked for identification.

The spokeswoman, Susanne Murphy, said the man "could not produce ID. He bolted past the officer and he bolted past the second ... officer. At that point, he was asked to stop several times. He turned to the officers and produced a handgun. ... One of the Federal Protective Service officers fired two shots, one striking the man."

The man died less than two hours later at the National Orthopedic Hospital in Arlington, Va., said spokeswoman Beth Ellington.

Just beyond the River Entrance is a main corridor leading to the National Command Center, the heavily secured area of the building where the Joint Chiefs of Staff meet. The office of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger is one floor above the entrance.

The Pentagon and GSA declined to identify the guards.

A spokesman said Weinberger was in the building at the time of the shooting, but he didn't know if the defense secretary was in his office. The spokesman said there were no reports of any verbal threats or statements by the intruder before the shooting.

House Panel Says No To ECU Tags

RALEIGH (AP) — A House committee scuttled a Pirate vessel Tuesday, voting down special license tags for East Carolina University amid objections the plates might raid the state treasury.

Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, said the bill sponsored by Rep. Larry Etheridge, R-Wilson, would plow new ground by shifting $10 per tag to an ECU scholarship fund.

"Isn't this diverting from the practice that revenues from license plates go to the highway fund?" Wicker asked.

Etheridge said the state still would get a $10 share of the extra $20 required to get the ECU tags. He called the bill a "creative new way of financing to generate additional income."

But Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, committee chairman, said he was concerned that "East Carolina Pirates" would supplant "First in Flight" on the special tags. And Rep. John Church, D-Vance, quipped, "I wouldn't even do this for UNC."

Church noted that ECU supporters already could ask for personalized tags with ECU followed by a number.

Wicker said as much as he loves East Carolina and its alumni he had to move for an unfavorable vote. His motion carried with most committee Republicans supporting Etheridge.

Tar Heel Firemen To Meet Thursday

An estimated 700 people from across the state are expected to attend the North Carolina Firemen's Association's annual conference which will begin here Thursday.

Bobby Joyner, Pitt County's emergency services coordinator, who was president of the state firemen's group in 1975, said the conference will get under way at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Hilton on Greenville Boulevard and end following a banquet at the Wright Building on the East Carolina University campus Saturday night at which the officers for the coming year will be installed, scholarships will be awarded and the fireman of the year award presented.

As part of the three-day conference, Joyner said 30 pieces of fire equipment will be on display and 30 venders will operate booths featuring the latest in protective clothing and other firefighting and rescue tools.

A North Carolina Forest Service helicopter will be on display at the Hilton during the conference, and Joyner said the EastCare helicopter will be on display from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. each day.

Joyner also said that the Pitt County Firemen's Association, which is hosting the state conference, will have a pig-picking behind the Hilton Friday night.

Other activities Friday will include talks by representatives of the National Fire Protection Association, the N.C. Attorney General's office and state emergency management officials.

Break-In Charges

Pitt County deputies have recovered more than $9,000 in stolen property following the arrest of a 23-year-old Ayden man in connection with three break-ins, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said.

Tyson said Richard Irving Smyer of Route 3, Box 161-A, Ayden, was charged Tuesday with possession of stolen property, attempted safe robbery and breaking and entering.

The charges were made in connection with incidents reported at the Kash & Karry on N.C. 11 south near Ayden-Grifton High School on Friday, the Ayden-Grifton Convenient Mart, Route 3, Box 151, Ayden, on July 1, and the Stokes and Lane Store at Gardenersville on Thursday, Tyson said.

Smyer was arrested by Pitt County deputies on related charges Friday.

Thefts Reported

Three thefts were reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer J.G. Bridges said $320 worth of building materials, including insulation, sheetrock and plywood, were taken from 3116 Lori Drive in an incident reported at 7:34 a.m.

Bridges said 100 company checks were taken from 104 Kings Arms Apartments in an incident reported at 10:27 a.m. He said two of the checks, totaling $1,806, were cashed Friday.

Officer E.M. Haddock said a television set was taken from 623 Albemarle Ave. in an incident reported at 8:18 a.m.

Deputy Charged In Assault Case

A Pitt County deputy who has been charged with simple assault will be suspended without pay, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said today.

Deputy Tyrone Austin, a three-year veteran of the force, has been charged in connection with an off-duty incident at the Pitt County Courthouse reported in July involving a maid, according to Tyson.

Austin's suspension will begin when he returns from vacation, Tyson said.

Tyson said the suspension, which is expected to continue pending the outcome of the case, is a routine procedure.

Farmville Lands Electrical Plant

Sag Harbor Industries Inc., a 40-year-old electrical-electronics components manufacturer founded by Charles Edison, son of Thomas A. Edison, has announced it will open a facility in Farmville.

The company, headquartered in Sag Harbor, Long Island, N.Y., now employs 125 people in a 50,000-square-foot plant.

Present plans call for a projected start-up work force of approximately 20 people before yearend, according to a company spokesman, who said all future company expansions will occur at the Farmville facility.

Product lines include coils, inductors and transformers for application in such fields as aerospace, industrial control, elevator maintenance and automobile fuel injection and ignition systems, said Paul Sheerer, company president.

The new operation will be located in a 12,000-square-foot factory building previously occupied by Electrical Utilities Co. and located on Mandarin Drive, Sheerer said.

"A minimal headquarters staff will be relocated to supervise setup and training of locally recruited employees," Sheerer said. "Positions for office workers, winding machine operators, wiremen and solderers, assemblers, machinists, inspectors and maintenance workers will become available as the factory start-up progresses."

Sheerer said the company plans to recruit locally to fill work force requirements. Applications for employment will be taken at the Employment Security Commission office on Bismarck Street in Greenville.

"The Farmville operation will permit expansion of production capacity to meet increased demand for the company's present products as well as new product directions now under consideration," Sheerer said.

"The site for this expansion plant was selected following a study of its promising labor market, proximity to Greenville, availability of trucking routes and ready access, by air, from the company's headquarters at the eastern end of Long Island."

Marijuana Count

Vernon Ray Harding, 29, of Route 15, Greenville, was charged with possession of marijuana by Greenville police Tuesday.

Larceny Charges

Five people, including four juveniles, were charged in connection with two separate theft incidents reported to Greenville police Tuesday.

Officer R.J. Brewington said the four juveniles were taken into custody and turned over to juvenile officers in connection with a 5:10 p.m. incident at Nichols Discount City on Greenville Boulevard.

Farmville Board Accepts Bids On New City Hall

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners Tuesday night awarded bids on construction of a new town hall.

A local firm, Farrior and Sons, will be the general contractors. Their bid was $699,000. General Heating Inc. of Greenville will be the mechanical contractor with a bid of $64,997; J.H. Barnes Electrical Co. of Fremont, the electrical contractor with a bid of $77,770, and Pemberton Inc. of Rocky Mount will be the plumbing contractor with a bid of $35,954. The overall project is expected to cost $877,721, considerably less than the $1 million that had been set aside for the project.

A new incentive pay system for town employees was adopted. Included in it is a seven-step incentive increase in salary, bonuses for exceptional employees at grade 7, extraordinary bonuses for suggestions which save the town money and for saving life or property through heroics.

A proposal to allocate $10,000 for a Farmville Dogwood Festival of the Arts was delayed until after a committee of the board could meet. The board will reconvene Thursday at 5 p.m. to consider the proposal. The Farmville Arts Council is proposing to conduct a three-day festival in April.

A public hearing time was set to consider establishing a new industrial zone in Farmville and the elimination of heavy and light industrial zones.

It was agreed that the board will consider a petition of Bailey and Associates of Jacksonville requesting voluntary annexation of the Brightleaf Shopping Center under construction near Farmville.

The board tabled a request to buy radios and related equipment for the town. Bids have been received, but they questioned how some were stated and wondered if they could get better prices by having them restated. A proposal that had been expected to be approved was Motorola's bid of $32,868. The annual certification of the town's volunteer firemen was approved, so as to qualify the volunteers for participation in the Firemen's Pension Fund.

The board confirmed Mayor Edna Earle Baker's appointment of Dr. Dan Heizer to the planning board. He will fill the unexpired term of Dan Thomas.

OBJECTING

I would like to publicly object to a practice of some banks in our area. This is charging an individual who runs a bad check from one of the bank's customers through the bank a fee for getting a cashier's check making the bad check good.

I feel the person having to deal with someone else's bad check shouldn't be penalized — especially knowing that the bank is also charging $15 or so to the customer who had insufficient funds. It may be legal, but it's certainly poor public relations. L.B.

Nursing Center Cleared For Federal Programs

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Residents of the University Nursing Center in Greenville will continue to receive Medicaid and Medicare reimbursements under an agreement reached recently with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and announced this morning.

Jeff McKain, regional vice president for operations of Hillhaven Corp., owners and operators of the Greenville facility, said that, as part of the agreement, a program for monitoring the Greenville facility by the Health Care Financing Administration has been set up. He added that the nursing home will continue its moratorium on admitting new patients indefinitely, and has established "an aggressive nurse recruitment program."

The agreement came during a July 23 meeting, McKain said. He said that during that meeting, nursing home officials protested proposals from the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) to decertify the facility, which would have cut off Medicaid-Medicare payments. McKain said he led the delegation of Hillhaven officers in meeting with Clarence J. Boone, associate regional administrator of HCFA in Atlanta.

"We are pleased to have been able to save our residents the unnecessary trauma of having to look elsewhere for care and this community the loss of this much-needed facility," McKain said.

He said that in June a North Carolina state inspection had given center personnel high marks for improving the level of patient services and had restored full licensure. Four days later, HCFA inspectors examined the same building and services and reported failure to meet federal standards. HCFA ordered decertification of the facility, which would have discontinued payments for patients admitted after July 31 and stopped all Medicare-Medicaid payments after Aug. 31.

William McConnell, University Nursing Home administrator, said he believes the surveyors drew their conclusion based on "limited information and certain erroneous statistics."

"During the Atlanta meeting, we corrected that patient service information and demonstrated our consistent progress in provision of patient care services. On the basis of that information, HCFA decided to rescind its decertification," McConnell said.

McConnell said a specially appointed monitor will make weekly inspections and reports to the HCFA on University Nursing Center progress in patient care programs. He said the center has agreed to continue its self-imposed moratorium on admitting new patients "until all parties are assured of University Nursing Home's ability to meet or exceed all patient requirements on an individual basis."

Under the agreement, the monitoring program may continue for up to 11 months. However, HCFA may lift the sanction at any point during that period when its monitors are satisfied that the nursing center has achieved a level of full compliance with all conditions of participation.

McConnell also said that the nursing center has launched "an aggressive campaign to attract new nurses to the area by offering improved benefits and salary, and by working through the media to increase public awareness of the need for more nurses."

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Aging Problem

No one knows the implications of a rapidly-aging population. It is impossible to predict the effects that a large elderly contingent could have on public services, economics and quality of life.

There is, however, one certainty. To glimpse the future, look at the impact the current senior population has on society and multiply that by the baby boomers.

Economically, aging is often a two-sided issue. There are those caught up in financial stress, bound to poverty by illness, inadequate retirement, social security. These seniors are often the ones requiring the most of public services and they are a group communities must plan to assist effectively.

Although a large number of elderly citizens must deal with the reality of a fixed income, there is a rapidly-growing number that live moderate-to-well during retirement. They have money to spend on care and luxuries. This number will likely increase as the post World War II generation takes its place in the senior ranks.

Seniors play an important role in today's world. They require specialized medical care. They have enough buying power to prompt advertisers to pander to them. Many industries — specifically health and travel — find them profitable sources of income.

North Carolina is quickly becoming a state that draws retirees. Its natural resources, recognized medical centers and high standard of living coupled with relatively low cost of living make it attractive to seniors. Pitt County, with its proximity to the Pamlico Sound and North Carolina's beaches and East Carolina University's medical school, is a logical choice for retirees.

A speaker for a gerontology conference at the medical school suggested this trend, and its implications on the community are worth exploring. If this supposition is accurate, Pitt County had better plan for it and capitalize on it.

Already, medicine is moving in that direction. ECU's medical school offers a Summer School of Gerontology in response to the need for resource study on the topic of aging.

The opening of Cypress Glen, the county's largest retirement and nursing facility, is another indication that Pitt County may actively participate in the retirement-aging boom.

Those doubting the impact of a rapidly-aging population are likely the ones caught in the crunch of an era when the majority of the population is considered elderly. The community should explore the effects of both caring for a growing older population and reaping the economic benefits of an affluent retirement group.

Two Bridges

There are 172 state-maintained bridges in Pitt County and authorities say they are "safe if you obey the signs."

Bobby Spence of Williamston, who supervises bridge maintenance for the Department of Transportation, says that Pitt County bridges are safe although some can carry more weight than others.

The bridges are carefully inspected every two years by a team from Raleigh and they are visually inspected at least once a year by area bridge maintenance crews. If there are problems, a specific bridge is looked at more frequently.

Four bridges are scheduled for replacement in the Transportation Improvement Plan. The Grindle Creek bridge on N.C. 903 is due for replacement in 1988-89. The Tranters Creek overflow bridge on U.S. 264 and the Grindle Creek bridge on U.S. 264 east of Greenville are due for replacement in 1990. The Parkers Creek Bridge on Mumford Road could be replaced in 1991-92.

And what will be the fate of perhaps the county's best known bridge — the Greene Street bridge which was built in 1927? The bridge is now undergoing a feasibility study. No decisions have been made about this bridge. However, a possibility might be to replace the Greene Street bridge with two spans — one at Pitt Street and another at Greene. Traffic would then be one way on each of those streets.

If a Pitt Street span were constructed it would restore the river crossing at Greenville to a previous site. Prior to the construction of the Greene Street Bridge the river was spanned at Pitt Street. The old bridge was demolished following the opening of the new one.

The paired bridges would follow the original planning when that area was redeveloped. The thinking then was that a second bridge would be constructed at Pitt Street to provide one-way crossings on Greene and Pitt streets.

It was a sound plan then and even more sound now.

Summaries, Like Testimony, Contradictory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tale had been told and the time had come for summing up.

And most of the summarizers in the Senate Caucus Room on Monday sounded almost like people who had lifted the cover of a refuse can and discovered something most unpleasant.

Except for those who said the cover shouldn't have been lifted in the first place. Or those who said the nature of the discoveries about the Iran-Contra affair had been vastly overblown.

There were four official summaries — those of the chairmen and ranking members of the House and Senate investigating committees — and a cluster of unofficial ones.

For Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, chairman of the Senate panel, the testimony that has flowed from the marble-walled Caucus Room to the nation's television sets was, simply put, "a chilling story."

For him, Inouye said, the story centers on a virtual "White House junta" which he said kept alive a flawed but authorized policy of selling arms to Iran and a totally secret policy of diverting part of the proceeds to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

It was done, he said, through "deceit, duplicity and an arrogant disregard for the rule of law."

To Inouye, one result of the secret arms transfers to Iran resulted in a great nation "held hostage by hostage takers."

Another, he said, was that a key U.S. foreign policy was turned over to a totally unauthorized private enterprise which threatened to become "a shadowy government with its own air force, navy... and the ability to pursue its own ideas of the national interest, free from all checks and balances and the law itself."

But Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., vice chairman of the House panel, saw it differently. In the first place, he said, no evidence has been found to connect President Reagan to either authorizing or even knowing about the diversion.

Secondly, he added, there are "extenuating circumstances" for what others had done, centering on their concerns about the threat of Soviet influence in Central America.

And thirdly, Cheney said he believes accusations that former National Security Adviser Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter and his subordinate, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, ran a "White House junta" or attempted "a secret foreign policy coup" have been overly dramatized.

"My own personal view is that there has been far too much apocalyptic rhetoric about these events, most of it unjustified," Cheney said.

"Saying that the investigators have sometimes gotten carried away in an effort to outdo one another's colorful phrase making, in no way justifies the mistakes that were made," Cheney said. "But what's required here, it seems to me, is a little calm, dispassionate analysis if we're going to learn from our study of these events."

But most of those who summed up appeared to agree with Inouye.

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., ranking GOP member on the Senate panel, said evidence is clear that North and other National Security Council staff members took part in a coverup after the initial disclosure of the diversion last November.

Rudman said this coverup included "shredding of official documents, lying to the attorney general... and withholding information from the president."

Such activities, Rudman added, "cannot be justified by passion, patriotism, appropriate concern over the expansion of communism in Central America and legitimate dismay over the policies enacted by Congress."

A Place In Space For Taxpayers

If you dream of flying in space or being a pioneer on the moon, forget it for the next 40 years. Sally Ride's plans, as described to Congress before the release of her official NASA report this month, have left you out.

Only members of the astronaut club will pioneer the moon and take that trip to Mars. In fact, with the teacher-in-space program on indefinite hold and the journalist-in-space project already well into oblivion, the shameful truth is that there are now no plans whatever for putting ordinary, non-technical Americans — the patient folks who have paid for the space program all these years — on any space flight. The message of the Constitution, summed up in the three words, "We the People," is lost in space. Ride's report may be a symptom of the mental rut that NASA is in. Space planners are victims of their own narrowness; their dreams are the straitjacketed dreams of technocrats.

You don't have to be clairvoyant to understand why these plans leave the public cold. Americans may even bridle at the outrageous assumption that career astronauts are the only bona fide risktakers in a whole nation descended from pioneers and immigrants, people who risked far more than an eight-minute rocket ride to attain their dreams. They may hate the idea that the New Frontier will become the "entitlement" of this elite group of technocrats. I propose a new initiative for NASA: Open up the New Frontier to the American people. Give "We the People" a chance to get into space. NASA can broaden direct citizen participation in the space program immediately, at little expense. It could put a reporter on the "resurrection" flight, the very next one. It could put a teacher on the following one, acknowledging the "entitlement" of our children to have access to space. NASA could make psychologists, educators, business entrepreneurs, writers, historians, inventors and artists permanent members of the astronaut corps to revitalize American culture and extend American enterprise. NASA's usual excuses for not enriching the human contingent in space — that the frontier is not "safe," shuttle flights are not "regular" or we must wait for a safer vehicle than the shuttle — are stupid and shallow. The Challenger disaster was not the first time Americans died on a frontier, pursuing a great dream. It has not turned us into a nation of chickens, nor has it altered our yearning to go forward in spite of the risks.

Strength For Today

William Turner, the famous artist whose skill was particularly apparent in depicting mighty scenes of nature, once painted a picture of a storm at sea. He decided he could not paint the storm without experiencing it, so he hired a fisherman to bind him securely to the mast of a fishing craft and then put out to sea in the teeth of a terrible gale. It was a terrible experience, but Turner caught a vivid idea of the nature of a storm. He expressed it later by saying that the storm "blew itself into him."

The storms of life can become significant experiences only if they blow themselves into us. Out of Turner's experience came a great picture. Out of the experiences of the rest of us should come a new courage, a deeper insight, a more complete trust in the God in whose hands all things rest.

Public Forum

To the editor:

As a patriotic American who is concerned about and aware of the Iran-Contra dealings, it seems to me that the essential and vital point to keep in mind is that America is a democracy, not an autocracy. Therefore, behavior by anyone whomsoever that is in any way whatsoever contrary to our democratic way of governing is a danger and menace to our nation and its citizens. It is the responsibility of government officials to always keep in mind that the United States of America is a democracy.

To the editor:

The Reagan administration's latest proposal for dealing with unfair farm programs is to do away with them altogether.

If you have two flat tires and a broken door handle on your truck or car, do you solve the problem by simply getting rid of the whole vehicle?

The Reagan administration is telling all the western nations: To help agriculture, just get rid of the farmer and everything will be okay.

If the administration has its way, the giant agribusiness corporations will control the food supply, prices will go up and quality will go down.

Policy More Flexible Analysis

MOSCOW — Soviet party leader Mikhail Gorbachev is capitalizing on his increasing political strength at home and the erosion of confidence in the Reagan administration in Washington to recast Soviet foreign policy along more flexible and conciliatory lines, Soviet officials and senior western diplomats report.

In this view, Gorbachev, who reportedly is personally involved in the details of these policy changes, appears to be looking beyond the tenure in office of the Reagan administration and is seeking to transform the psychology of Soviet-American relations as the next president comes to power.

"We are trying to deprive you of the bogeyman advantage," a Soviet official said to a recent American visitor. "We will deprive Washington of the image of the Red Devils that the Reagan administration built its policies on."

Cautiously, Soviet officials are beginning to admit in such comments to foreign officials and journalists that their leaders made serious miscalculations about the management of Soviet-U.S. relations over the past decade and bear some of the responsibility for the collapse of detente in the second half of the 1970s.

The air of Soviet-American confrontation eventually helped lead to President Reagan's election and an unprecedented peace-time American military buildup that is further straining a stagnating Soviet economy.

Soviet officials who are allowed to have contact with foreigners routinely calculate the effect of their statements for policy purposes, frequently making it difficult to distinguish between what they genuinely believe and what they would like westerners to believe.

But there is a striking concordance between what such officials are saying and how the most experienced western diplomats here portray Gorbachev's objectives and methods.

"Gorbachev has assembled a sophisticated team around him and they know that what drives defense expenditure is fear of the United States," said a senior U.S. diplomat. "They know that they miscalculated the extent of our weakness after Watergate and Vietnam, and provoked with their own actions our resurgence."

"He wants to get the West off his back for 10 to 15 years, and is prepared to adjust policies to get that," said another western envoy.

Gorbachev appears to be determined to avoid repeating the errors his predecessors made in dealing with a weakened U.S. presidency, comments from Soviet specialists on the United States suggest.

Instead of emphasizing Soviet strength and commitments to defending ideological advances abroad, as his predecessors did, he consistently seeks to persuade the United States and its allies that they can afford to cut defense spending and deal with world tension through cooperative efforts with the Soviet Union.

Those themes were present in Soviet propaganda after Watergate and Vietnam, but were overshadowed by determination to build up an overwhelming Soviet nuclear arsenal and to pursue Soviet goals in Third World conflicts unilaterally. Gorbachev is concentrating totally on the message of conciliation.

"Perhaps after the Reagan administration, neither of us will be interested so much in trying to establish hegemony in world affairs as trying to get our houses in order," said a Soviet foreign policy official. "Perhaps we are in a fortunate coincidence of cycles."

One contrast that strikes a visitor returning to Moscow after a two-year absence is the softening of the rhetoric that Soviet officials use to describe their concerns about President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI), the scheme to station ballistic missile interceptor systems in space.

Soviet officials indicate indirectly that they are aware that the Reagan administration has been able to use their sharp attacks on SDI to argue that the space system must represent a major threat if the Soviets responded so vehemently to it.

While still vigorously objecting to SDI in their comments, these officials now do not go out of their way to bring the subject up or to emphasize in bellicose-sounding statements the Soviet Union's determination and ability to overcome SDI militarily if necessary.

Shortly after placing three close allies on the ruling 14-member Politburo of the Soviet Communist Party in June and consolidating his grip on power, Gorbachev launched foreign policy initiatives in arms control, improving relations with Asian nations and positioning the Soviet Union to maintain influence with both Iraq and Iran.

In his statements on these subjects, Gorbachev has impressed diplomats here with his personal grasp of detail and his seeming deep involvement in the fashioning of policy documents.

There is mounting evidence that Gorbachev puts more emphasis on working directly with regional experts from the Foreign Ministry and official research organizations than with the full Politburo.

His recent extended interviews on foreign policy with the Italian Communist Party newspaper L'Unita and with Merdeka of Indonesia indicate that Gorbachev will play the primary role in articulating Soviet initiatives.

When The Washington Post recently requested an interview with Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, one Soviet official pointed out that Shevardnadze has not yet given an interview to the Soviet press and that there are no plans to do so.

Plane Crash

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — An A-6E intruder from Marine All-Weather Attack Squadron 533 at the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point crashed Tuesday afternoon after takeoff, a spokesman at the installation said.

The pilot and bombardier navigator both ejected successfully. Military officials were investigating the cause of the accident, he said.

Body Found

HIGH POINT (AP) — Officials were investigating the death of a man whose body was found in a motel swimming pool early Tuesday.

The body of Sam Brown, 35, of High Point, was found at the bottom of the swimming pool at the Red Carpet Inn about 12:10 a.m.

While police said the apparent cause of death was accidental drowning and an initial investigation revealed no signs of foul play, the body was sent to the state medical examiner's office in Chapel Hill for an autopsy. Brown, who had been staying at the motel, told a friend he was going swimming shortly before he was found, police said.

Demoted

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Robert J. Blakely, a member of the Kernersville Board of Aldermen and a captain in the Forsyth County Sheriff's Department, has been demoted and temporarily suspended from the department for conduct unbecoming an officer.

Blakely, a 28-year veteran, was demoted to lieutenant and suspended for 20 days without pay, said Dwight Defee, director of Forsyth County's personnel department. Blakely, who is in charge of the civil division of the sheriff's department, declined to comment Monday. Sheriff E. Preston Oldham also declined to discuss any specifics of the case.

Indian Youth

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — About 1,000 Indian children, representing more than 150 tribes from across the country, are gathering this week at Western Carolina University for the eighth National Indian Child Conference, sponsored by Save the Children Federation.

"Many Trials, Hard Choices: Indian Youth in the 1980s" is the theme of the conference. Workshops and guest speakers will stress the importance of making the right education and career decisions in the face of the major social problems Indian teens face today. Save the Children said in a release Tuesday.

AIDS Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — County health departments would get money to reduce delays in AIDS testing and counseling, but none for education programs about the deadly disease, under a budget plan moving toward committee approval.

The Joint Appropriations Committee was to vote today on the first of three omnibus spending bills that will comprise the fiscal 1987-89 budget. The panel held a daylong hearing on the package Tuesday that generally was free of controversy.

The only serious argument involved a last-minute decision to boost the funding of AIDS testing and counseling to $290,000 in each of the next two years. Critics said the provision did not go far enough.

School Plea

BURGAU, N.C. (AP) — The Pender County Board of Education has denied a request from two white Maple Hill parents who wanted their son to attend school in Duplin County rather than at the all-black Maple Hill Elementary School.

If the boy attends the Maple Hill school, he is likely to be the only white child among about 140 students.

If the parents submit a new request, however, the board will consider allowing the boy to transfer to Burgaw Elementary School, Chairman Billy O. Rivenbark said. Burgaw Elementary's enrollment last year was 61 percent white.

The school board last month granted all the student transfer requests it had from white Maple Hill parents. No white child has attended the school since 1984-85, when the school had one white student.

Rivenbark said the board denied the request it received Monday night because the parents had not given a "feasible" reason for the transfer.

Storms Hit East-Central N.C.

By The Associated Press

Heavy storms were reported across North Carolina, including a funnel cloud in Orange County that did not touch down, and weather forecasters said the hot and humid weather that spawned the storm is not expected to ease soon.

A funnel cloud reported west of Chapel Hill led the National Weather Service to issue a tornado warning Tuesday, but the twisters never materialized.

"We were quite fortunate," said Kermit Keeter, a meteorologist at the National Weather Service at Raleigh-Durham Airport. "Apparently, what happened is that the funnel cloud did not touch down."

The tornado warning was issued for southern Orange and northern Chatham counties from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. after workers at the Chapel Hill airport saw the funnel cloud six miles to the west. Keeter said the weather service radar at RDU had confirmed the sighting.

Heavy storms were reported in Harnett, Johnston, Granville, Wake, Durham, and Orange counties, he said.

Near Garner in Wake County, two men were injured and a half-finished house was damaged when heavy rains and winds swept through about 3 p.m.

"It was raining and blowing and lightning and thundering all at the same time," said David E. Jones Jr., who was working on the house. "It rocked once, and then the second time it rocked it came down."

About $20,000 in damage was done to the house. The two injured men — Cameron Caines, 21, and Rob Flade, 18 — were expected to be released from Wake Medical Center, a hospital spokesman said.

Meanwhile, the Buncombe County medical examiner said the heat and humidity were "a small factor" in the death of an Asheville High School sophomore who collapsed at the end of football practice.

Dr. Claude Steen Jr. said Tuesday that the weather contributed to the stress that apparently triggered the cardiac arrhythmia, or heartbeat irregularity, which has been tentatively identified as the cause of Monday's death of Michael Cutshaw, 16.

"This death probably would not have happened if he had been sitting at home watching TV," Steen said. "It happened under stress. Heat and humidity were just part of that stress. It was a rare event."

The National Weather Service held out little hope for a quick end to the heat wave.

"How about October?" said Bruce Cheatham, forecaster at the weather service office in Raleigh.

"We are kind of hoping that a front may get close to us, but I don't see it offering a whole lot of change," Cheatham said Tuesday. "It may get into the mountains tomorrow and maybe into extreme northern North Carolina. It might give a little more cloudiness and maybe a few afternoon thunderstorms."

The temperature at the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Regional Airport hit a record 98 degrees Tuesday, topping the 1980 record high of 94 degrees, the weather service said.

Cheatham said temperatures Wednesday and the next few days would probably be in the low to mid 90s.

"That's still running above normal. The normal high is 88," Cheatham said. "We've gotten so used to the 90s that upper 80s sounds cool. We may have to reevaluate that normal high in the next three or four years."

Utilities Secure Reactor Stations

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Electric utilities in North Carolina and South Carolina have taken Iranian threats seriously and have increased security at nuclear generating stations.

"We took measures to tighten security at appropriate facilities and notified local, state and federal authorities," Duke Power Co. spokeswoman Mary Boyd said.

The precautions are not in response to specific threats, but utility spokesmen say the possibility of sabotage is taken seriously.

A Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman said the NRC asked operators of the nation's 104 nuclear reactors to emphasize security procedures about a month ago, when the United States began planning to reflag Kuwaiti oil tankers, and again last week.

There are 12 reactors in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Iran has threatened to punish the United States for reflagging the tankers and escorting them through the Persian Gulf.

The moves by Duke, Carolina Power & Light Co. and South Carolina Electric & Gas Co. came after the North American Electric Reliability Council in Princeton, N.J., asked council members — almost all U.S. power companies and some in Canada — to increase security. The council acted at DOE's urging.

DOE and State Department spokesmen said the Iranian news agency and Iranian government officials in recent weeks have hinted at strikes in the United States, including attacks on nuclear plants.

FCC Votes To End 'Fairness Doctrine'

By Paul Houston
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission voted unanimously Tuesday to repeal the "fairness doctrine," prompting key proponents in Congress to renew vows to place into law the 38-year-old policy requiring broadcasters to air all sides of important public issues.

The commission called the doctrine unconstitutional, saying that it inhibits free speech by discouraging broadcasters from making certain documentaries or taking controversial editorial stands.

"Although its goal was to achieve fairness, it has in fact resulted in blandness and nothingness, chilling the very speech it was designed to foster," FCC General Counsel Diane S. Killory declared shortly before the 4-0 vote to end enforcement of the doctrine.

FCC Chairman Dennis R. Patrick said that "we seek to extend to the electronic press the same First Amendment guarantees that the print media have enjoyed since our country's inception."

However, proponents of the fairness doctrine, arguing that listeners and viewers needed First Amendment protection as much as broadcasters, assailed the FCC move as a limitation on citizen exposure to conflicting views.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., whose bill to codify the doctrine was vetoed by President Reagan in June after overwhelmingly passing the Senate and the House, called the FCC decision "wrongheaded, misguided and illogical."

The fairness doctrine, adopted in 1949 when there were few broadcast outlets, requires that all radio and television stations air contrasting views on controversial issues they address in broadcasts. If a station fails to provide all sides of an issue in its initial program, it is required to offer compensatory airtime later to the view that was not included.

In 1969, the Supreme Court ruled that the fairness doctrine was constitutional but the court suggested in a 1984 case that it might review the issue if presented with new information. Meanwhile, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ordered the FCC last January to respond to a complaint by a Syracuse, N.Y., broadcaster that the doctrine violated its First Amendment rights.

In its action Tuesday, the FCC determined that "the enforcement of the doctrine has actually had the net effect of reducing, rather than enhancing, the discussion of controversial issues of public importance and, therefore, violated the constitutional principles announced by the Supreme Court" in the 1969 case.

Yellow Ribbons Await Arrival Of Stark Crew

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

MAYPORT NAVAL STATION, Fla. (AP) — Homes and businesses were decorated with yellow ribbons and welcome-back signs for the homecoming of the USS Stark 2½ months after an Iraqi missile attack killed 37 crewmen in the Persian Gulf.

The Stark and its crew of 170 today was pulling into the dock from which it departed for the gulf exactly six months ago. Its sister ship, the USS Steven W. Groves, also was to return from its gulf tour, which was extended after the attack.

A brass band and dozens of relatives planned to greet the crew of the Stark, which was struck and set ablaze May 17 by two missiles fired by an Iraqi warplane off Kuwait. A memorial to the dead was unveiled here Saturday.

The emphasis today was on the those who battled the fire to save the vessel from sinking. "These kids did a magnificent job. The fact they saved that ship is just awesome," Rear Adm. Michael Kalleres said last week.

Mayport Chaplain Bill Perry said the families of the victims would not be forgotten today. Chaplains were asked to comfort them "while everybody else is celebrating," he said.

"We want those families to know they haven't been forgotten. It will be an extremely difficult day for them. We want to demonstrate the Navy is really committed to them," Perry said.

Wives of the crewmen had begun planning what they hoped would be one of the biggest homecomings ever at this north Florida port shortly after the Stark left port on a rainy February day. Many of the plans were continued despite the attack, which Iraq called an accident and contributed to a U.S. buildup in the strategic waterway.

Pat Weber, wife of a crewman, said the welcome-home festivities would include cheerleaders and a hot-air balloon.

Jacksonville Mayor Tommy Hazouri proclaimed today as Yellow Ribbon Day and urged residents to display yellow ribbons to welcome the Stark. A radio station offered $1,000 for the largest yellow-ribbon display.

Dozens of businesses put up signs welcoming home the Stark crewmen.

Changes Proposed For Food Labeling

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — After more than three years of debate, the Reagan administration proposed new rules Tuesday that would allow the nation's food companies to proclaim the health advantages of their products on labels and packaging.

The proposal would reverse a federal policy in effect since 1906 against advertising health claims for foods. Officials of the food industry, who have been eager to take advantage of America's increasing appetite for healthy foods, have pushed hard for the rule change.

Consumer groups have also sought labeling with more nutritional information, but spokesmen for the groups said the proposed change, published in Tuesday's Federal Register, would allow food companies to tell only the most favorable part of the story.

"This is an open invitation to mislead the consumer," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Public Citizen Health Research Group. "The companies get the best of all worlds. They can accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative."

The rule would prevent companies from placing unproven nutritional information or claims that a product cures a disease on any label. But it would permit packaging to link products and specific health benefits without having to refer to possible drawbacks.

Tamil Rebel Forces Turn In Weapons

JAFFNA, Sri Lanka (AP) — The most powerful Tamil rebel militia began surrendering its weapons today under an Indian-brokered peace accord to end four years of separatist fighting on this island nation.

"The war is over now," said a spokesman, codenamed Raheem, for the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam.

Some 6,000 people have been killed in the civil war between the majority Sinhalese government and minority Tamil rebels.

The surrender began as members of the Liberation Tigers delivered guns to Indian forces at the military camp at Palali, state-run radio said.

Palali, 12 miles northeast of Jaffna, is the main military airfield on the northern peninsula. It had been headquarters for the Sri Lankan army and now is the headquarters for more than 4,000 Indian peacekeeping soldiers sent here to oversee the accord, signed last week by India and Sri Lanka.

In Vavuniya, the first major town south of the peninsula, journalists contacted by telephone said Tigers were walking openly through the town with their weapons.

The fighters told reporters they would turn in the arms after the process started in Jaffna.

Raheem said earlier the rebels would send a total of about 5,000 weapons in truckloads to the Indian army to avoid the embarrassment of each fighter turning in his own gun.

Tiger leader Velupillai Prabhakaran announced Tuesday that the militia would respect the peace accord and abandon its armed struggle for a separate Tamil nation.

The other four Tamil rebel groups also have agreed to surrender their weapons.

Prabhakaran said at a huge rally in Jaffna that the Tigers would not sign any agreement with India, but would give up their guns under the accord pushed by Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi.

"If we do not hand over our weapons, there will be a confrontation between us and the Indian military," he said. "We have no choice. We have to toe the line of the Indian government."

Tamils, who are mostly Hindus, make up 18 percent of Sri Lanka's 16 million people. They maintain they are discriminated against by the majority Sinhalese Buddhists, who control the government.

Chain Gang Escapee Caught

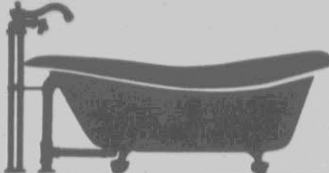

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who cut his shackles and fled a Virginia chain gang 41 years ago, then retired three months ago after 28 years as a film industry electrician, was arrested when a chance record check uncovered his escape.

Vincent Pellicio, 62, was due in court later today for an extradition hearing. He was being held at the downtown police station and wasn't being allowed to talk to outsiders, said Detective Tom O'Neil.

Pellicio, who was serving a five-year sentence for "storebreaking" when he escaped, never bothered to change his Social Security number or hide his identity. The only change he made was to change the last letter of his name from "o" to "a," the detective said.

Since coming to California in 1958, he has had a clean record. O'Neil said Pellicio had five grown children and was separated from his wife.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, author, physician and medical science pioneer, was born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1809.

Is Special Series

Guest Editor

'Peach Of A Deal'

Turns Rotten

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

Dr. Mary K. Kirkpatrick of Greenville will be guest editor for the August issue of Health Values on a special series on osteoporosis.

She is an associate professor of nursing at East Carolina University and is women's health educator for Greenville Ob-Gyn Associates. She has presented information on women's health, osteoporosis and hypertension nationally and internationally and had numerous articles published in these areas.

Dr. Kirkpatrick left last Tuesday for Edinburgh, Scotland, to make a poster presentation at the International Sigma Theta Tau Conference. The presentation was on "The Efficacy of Self-Care Measures for Perimenstrual Syndrome."

"I am interested in increasing health protected behaviors women can take to enhance, promote or maintain their health. I was interested in this particular conference because of the theme 'International Networking.' Nurse researchers shared the information they have conducted. Women are the largest number of health care providers and the largest number of health care consumers; therefore many of the health care problems discussed at the conference related to women's health problems," said Dr. Kirkpatrick.

"There are many health protected behaviors that can be taken for other women's problems such as osteoporosis, breast cancer and hypertension in the areas of nutrition, exercise and stress management. For instance, in the area of hypertension, many non-pharmalogical approaches are recommended for border-line hypertension such as decreased smoking, increased exercise and changing life style behaviors relating to nutrition — decreased salt and decreased fat in the diet," she said.

"Many of the health care problems of women relate to life style habits. For example, osteoporosis may be prevented by initiating adequate nutritional intake of calcium in the early years and then estrogen replacement following menopause. Dr. R.V. Talmage's study with women tennis players indicate a higher bone density. In addition, weight bearing exercises are significant in increasing the bone density which helps to promote a strong bone structure for later life," Dr. Kirkpatrick said.

"In the area of PMS, Vitamin B-6, exercise and natural diuretics tend to help some women to diminish the severity of the symptoms. Other health problems such as sustance abuse, obesity and incontinence are areas where preventive measures can be taken to assist women in increasing their own self-responsibility for these problems," she said.

"Nurses are becoming more involved in the health promotion and primary prevention of illness as well as the curative aspects," she said.

Sigma Theta Tau is the national honorary society for nursing. Dr. Kirkpatrick's poster presentation was funded in part by a grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, Inc. through the N.C. Council on the Status of Women, N.C. Department of Administration.

"This the first year that a women's health course will be offered to any interested student at ECU," she said.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our problem is failure. Now, in our late 60s, my husband and I have lost all of our savings in an effort to do more for our children, especially our 40-year-old son who talked us into mortgaging our farm and going into debt to purchase a nearby peach orchard in Georgia.

We desperately need to sell our peach orchard. There are so many people with so much money now; surely the prospect of expenses deductible from income tax should appeal to them. And the expense of operating a peach orchard is considerable, and it's deductible.

Abby, can you help us find a buyer? — NEEDS A BUYER

P.S. Our son is tall, blond, handsome and unmarried. Many girls have tried to land him. My only other hope is that some wealthy girl who loves horses as we all do will show up.

DEAR NEEDS: I urge you to advertise in your newspaper and contact an agent whose business it is to sell such properties. If that doesn't bear fruit, forget the orchard and advertise your son. (Only kidding.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a

Reception Given Pennie J. Dunn

Pennie J. Dunn of Greenville was honored at a reception held Saturday night given by her children, Gerald Dunn, Judy James, Sharlene Cowan and Jamie Wilson.

She was honored for more than 28 years of service with Big Star Foods.

Red and blue balloons with white streamers bordered the yard of her home. An arrangement of red roses, blue carnations and white snapdragons with balloons and streamers centered the refreshment table.

Punch was poured by Mrs. James and Mrs. Cowan. Guests received thank-you scrolls from Jamie Briley and Miriam Ann James. Goodbyes were said to Henry and Gerald Dunn.

Approximately 100 guests attended the reception.

CORNISH GAME HENS
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Roast cornish game hens are relatively easy to make and very tasty.

The proper way to carve the hen, says Better Homes and Gardens, is to remove the stuffing from the body cavity. Using a long, sharp knife, split the roasted hen straight along the center of the breast bone, making right and left halves of the hen. If desired, use a small sharp and flexible knife to cut off the legs and wings. Then slice the meat on the breast halves.

real couch potato. Now, don't get me wrong, I like TV as much as the next person, but here's my problem: He stays up until all hours watching old movies and reruns and then comes to bed late. It's not that he ignores me or is trying to avoid sex — it's just the opposite. He wakes me up at 2 or 3 a.m. wanting to be romantic.

I have asked him to come to bed first, then watch TV afterward, but he says it takes away all the spontaneity. But, Abby, once I go to sleep I would like to stay asleep.

What do you think? — MRS. COUCH POTATO, GLENDALE HEIGHTS, ILL.

DEAR MRS. POTATO: Forget spontaneity and plan ahead. Talk this out together while you're both wide awake.

DEAR ABBY: This October, my husband and I will have been married for five years, and I have never sent thank-you notes to relatives and friends who gave us wedding gifts. Needless to say, I feel terribly guilty about this.

Is there a way I can now, at this late date, send the thank-yous along with an apology? I guess what I'm hoping for is a "magic phrase" that I can incorporate into the "thank-you" note which will enable them to forgive me, and, I hope, to understand that I not only want to thank them, but also want to correct this seemingly rude omission.

Thank you in advance, Abby! — C.H.M. IN BRAINTREE, MASS.

DEAR C.H.M.: The "magic phrase" is: "We are profoundly embarrassed to be writing at this very late date to thank you for the beautiful ice bucket you gave us when we were married."

"Please forgive us for what must seem an inexcusably tardy acknowledgment. Believe us to be terribly ashamed. However, the pleasure we have received from that wonderful ice bucket would warm your heart" etc."

I hope you have kept a list of what each giver gave because if you can make an identifying comment about the gift, you may be more readily forgiven. Good luck.

(For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Sweater Has Butterfly Sleeves

Pat's Pointers
Pat Trexler

Distinctive, graceful butterfly sleeves guarantee that this quick, easy-to-knit sweater will always draw raves. A simple combination of knits and purls forms the textured pattern on the body of the sweater, while a drop stitch that will delight even the beginning knitter creates the lacy look of the sleeves. It is truly an elegant sweater classic enough to be a wardrobe favorite for years.

Double strands of a machine-washable yarn are used for a gauge of four stitches to the inch for the body. Easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 34, 37 and 40 inches respectively.

To obtain directions for making the butterfly sweater, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-080287 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-080287 by sending a check or money order for $21.95 for small and medium or $25.95 for large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn in your choice of ecru, mauve or denim.

Dear Pat: I am wondering if you know of a better way to hide ends of yarn when knitting or crocheting than threading the end into a needle and running it through the stitches on the wrong side. I find that often these ends come loose when the work is stretched or laundered. — Mrs. G.E.W., Linden, N.J.

My first thought is that you may be clipping the ends too short before weaving them through the backs of stitches. Many self-taught knitters do this and have the same problem. I recommend using at least four-inch ends.

Another trouble area for many knitters is adding on a new skein or ball of yarn when knitting or crocheting.

If you are knitting a garment with seams, or something like an afghan with a crochet border to be added, most people prefer to add a new skein by knotting it at the beginning of a row.

I make a single knot when I add the yarn and later, after knitting a row or two, go back, tighten the single knot and then knot it once more to secure it firmly. The loose ends are then woven into the seam after finishing the garment, taking an occasional back stitch. Or, if a border is to be added, just crochet over the loose ends. I usually use the same knotting technique when the join must be made in mid-row, weaving each end in a different direction.

With some types of yarn, you can simply knit a few stitches using both loose ends and then weave the remaining yarn through the back of your stitches. This is practically invisible with some yarns, but not with all. Try it on a sample swatch before using this method.

Another method for either knit or crochet avoids loose ends completely. It can be done only with yarns that have two or more strands twisted together, such as four-ply knitting worsted. With this type of yarn, untwist the separate plies, snip off one or two plies from each yarn end and twist the remaining plies together, thus splicing them.

In all but the laciest crochet patterns, you can usually just crochet over the two loose ends, working several stitches before cutting away the remaining yarn ends. Again, the approach is to test the method with your sample swatch to see how it works using your yarn and your pattern stitch.

With more open crochet stitches, you will likely have to carefully weave the loose ends through with your threaded tapestry needle. Just to be sure not to cross over the open areas of your pattern with the yarn or thread ends or you will destroy the lacy look.

BACKING IT UP

"What's the difference...the type backing my carpet has?" Let me ask you this. How long do you want your carpet to last—a few months or a few years?

Proper backing is critical to carpet investment protection. There are two materials to choose from—jute, a natural backing, and polypropylene, which is all synthetic. Each has advantages and limitations.

Jute stretches well and maintains tightness for years. However, it supports mildew in humid areas, such as basements and bath areas. Polypropylene, on the other hand, is unaffected by moisture or harsh chemicals. However, it's unable to hold its stretch over the years, which may result in ripples and buckles in traffic areas subject to constant movement. These uneven ripples produce rapid wear and, therefore, restretching is often required.

Limited Success

By changing the weave of synthetic backings, manufacturers have attempted to overcome this rippling problem. Unfortunately, their success has been limited.

At present, most manufacturers are attempting to combine "the best of both worlds". Chemical-resistant synthetics are being used predominately in primary backings, while dimensionally stable jute is used predominately as a secondary backing. Until backing technology improves further, this combination is probably the best alternative for your carpet investment.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose in early trading today after a two-day pause attributed to uncertainties in the Middle East and higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which relinquished 25.35 points over Monday and Tuesday, gained 12.11 as of 10 a.m. EDT to 2,558.83.

Among broader market barometers, the New York Stock Exchange's composite index measuring all listed issues rose 0.78 to 178.17. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 0.36 to 357.96.

Gaining issues outnumbered losers by about 2-1 on the NYSE, with 741 stocks up, 376 down and 420 unchanged. Volume on the Big Board totaled 27.54 million after the first 30 minutes of trading.

Investors had sold stocks earlier this week because of growing turbulence in the Middle East and signs of higher inflation in the United States.

But Wall Street analysts have said they expected the market to eventually dismiss these uncertainties and resume its upward climb, which led to record high advances last month.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial lost 10.36 points to 2,546.72, the indicator's second straight loss. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 166.49 million shares, compared with 207.84 million the previous session.

Saudis Say Iranians Planned Takeover

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi officials say thousands of Iranians in Mecca for the annual Moslem pilgrimage planned to seize the Grand Mosque and force pilgrims to proclaim Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini their religious leader.

In Mecca today, King Fahd vowed to defend Islam's holy shrines and Saudi Arabian territory against any conspiracy and hate.

The first plankload of Iranian pilgrims wounded in Friday's clashes in the holy city landed in Iran's capital of Tehran today, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said. The pilgrims reiterated Iranian officials' claims that Saudi authorities were to blame for the violence that left hundreds of people dead, according to the agency, monitored in Cyprus.

The plane also bore the bodies of 58 victims.

"We will never relent in the defense of our homeland and sacred shrines with souls and money," Fahd told heads of Moslem delegations making the annual hajj, or pilgrimage.

The Saudi monarch did not mention Iran directly, but his address clearly alluded to the clashes, in which Iranian pilgrims battled with Saudi riot police. Saudi officials said at least 402 people were killed, 275 of them Iranians, and hundreds were injured in a stampede.

Saudis Say Iranians Planned Takeover

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi officials say thousands of Iranians in Mecca for the annual Moslem pilgrimage planned to seize the Grand Mosque and force pilgrims to proclaim Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini their religious leader.

In Mecca today, King Fahd vowed to defend Islam's holy shrines and Saudi Arabian territory against any conspiracy and hate.

The first plankload of Iranian pilgrims wounded in Friday's clashes in the holy city landed in Iran's capital of Tehran today, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said. The pilgrims reiterated Iranian officials' claims that Saudi authorities were to blame for the violence that left hundreds of people dead, according to the agency, monitored in Cyprus.

The plane also bore the bodies of 58 victims.

"We will never relent in the defense of our homeland and sacred shrines with souls and money," Fahd told heads of Moslem delegations making the annual hajj, or pilgrimage.

The Saudi monarch did not mention Iran directly, but his address clearly alluded to the clashes, in which Iranian pilgrims battled with Saudi riot police. Saudi officials said at least 402 people were killed, 275 of them Iranians, and hundreds were injured in a stampede.

Iran claims Saudi police mowed down pilgrims with machine guns, killing at least 600 Iranians and injuring 4,500. Saudi authorities say no shots were fired.

Meanwhile, Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa headed for Tehran with a letter from President Hafez Assad to Iranian President Ali Khamenei, an official announcement in Damascus said today.

Sharaa's visit was seen as a Syrian attempt to cool down the Saudi-Iranian confrontation. Sharaa flew to the Iranian capital Tuesday night. No details were given.

According to officials in Mecca, who spoke on condition of anonymity, Iranians interrogated by authorities confessed they planned to take over the Grand Mosque in Mecca, where 2.1 million Moslems from 123 countries gathered for the pilgrimage.

An estimated 157,000 Iranians were among those making the pilgrimage, which is required at least once in the lifetime of Moslems who can afford the trip.

The Iranians planned to lock pilgrims inside the huge mosque and force them to declare Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary patriarch, the religious leader of the world's 850 million Moslems, the officials said.

California Pounds Carlton, Twins With 19 Hits; Tribe Crushes Yankees By 15-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

The California Angels' hitters stole the show in the fourth meeting of 300-game winners in this century.

They hammered out a season-high 19 hits, including home runs by Doug DeCinces and Wally Joyner, spoiling Steve Carlton's debut with Minnesota and pounding the Twins 12-3 Tuesday night.

"I don't know how hard he threw. We didn't have a gun on him," Minnesota Manager Tom Kelly said of Carlton, who was acquired last Friday from Cleveland and was battered for 11 hits and nine runs in 4 2-3 innings. "But I thought he threw pretty well."

The Angels loved the way Carlton threw. Bill Buckner had RBI singles in the first and third innings and DeCinces led off the third with his first homer since July 7. Gary Pettis capped the Angels' three-run third with a run-scoring double, his first RBI since the All-Star break.

The Angels chased Carlton during a five-run fifth, capped by DeCinces' two-run single off Roy Smith. They made it 10-3 in the sixth on Pettis'

RBI single and continued their assault in the seventh on Wally Joyner's two-run homer, his 23rd. Joyner hit 22 last season.

The setback cut Minnesota's lead in the American League West to one game over Oakland, a 9-3 winner over Seattle, and 1½ over California. In the AL East, Cleveland crushed New York 15-3 and sliced the Yankees' lead to one-half game over Toronto, which defeated Chicago 4-1.

Elsewhere, it was Kansas City 8, Detroit 4; Boston 8, Texas 6, and Milwaukee 9, Baltimore 8 in 12 innings.

Don Sutton allowed four hits over six innings, including Steve Lombardozzi's three-run homer in the fourth, for his 318th career victory, tying Phil Niekro for 11th place on the all-time list.

"All I had to do was not screw up and get off the field to let our guys hit," said Sutton, who won his third straight decision, but still has an 8-9 record. "Obviously it'd be nicer if I'd never have been 5-9. But I figure to have 10 more starts, and if the team wins all 10 and I finish 8-9 it'd be fine with me. At this stage of the season there's one of two things I like to do — win, or at least not cause us to lose."

Athletics 9, Mariners 3

Jose Canseco and Terry Steinbach hit two-run singles in a five-run fifth-inning rally aided by Seattle's sloppy fielding. Winner Steve Ontiveros gave up three runs in seven innings to snap his four-game losing streak. Seattle's Gary Matthews got his 2,000th career hit, a single in the third.

Loser Lee Guetterman retired the first 10 Oakland batters but fell behind 2-0 in the fourth after Carney Lansford beat out a bunt that extended his hitting streak to 13 games.

Canseco singled and Mark McGwire hit a 400-foot sacrifice fly. Canseco took second on McGwire's drive, stole third and scored when Seattle third baseman Jim Presley booted Steve Henderson's grounder.

Oakland broke open a 2-1 game with five unearned runs in the fifth with the help of two errors, three walks and a wild pitch.

Azinger Thinks He's Ready To Claim Major Championship

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — The trend that has developed in golf's major championships in the last 4½ years may bode well for a player like Paul Azinger when the 69th PGA Championship gets underway on Thursday.

There have been 18 different players to capture the last 18 majors. Azinger, a positive thinker, says he is ready to make it 19 for 19.

Azinger, a winner of three tournaments who sits atop the PGA Tour money list this season, came within an eyelash of being the 18th different major winner three weeks ago.

He carried the lead into the 71st hole of the British Open, but went bogey-bogey on the final two holes to finish in a second-place tie, one shot behind Britain's Nick Faldo.

Azinger said that nightmarish experience doesn't bother him at all.

"It feels like a long time ago to me," he said on Tuesday. "I thought about that golf tournament for two nights — the night of and the night after. It's not something that's obsessed me in any way."

There is no clear-cut favorite in the field of 150 that will tackle the PGA National Golf Club course, a 7,002-yard layout.

Greg Norman, Tom Watson and Masters champion Larry Mize said the players could have difficulty putting all week. The greens lack a full cover of grass because of a recent problem with a fungus, making the speed of the greens inconsistent.

"I'm glad they're complaining about it," Azinger said. "It's a typical Florida golf course, like the ones I was raised on. I'll probably be more likely to cope with them than those guys from up north."

All of the players know the heat will be a problem — temperatures in the mid 90s with humidity to match, and the ever-present threat of afternoon thundershowers.

Because of Florida's history of afternoon showers, threesomes will go off from both the first and 10th tees during the first two rounds.

Azinger says his game has improved tremendously in the last 2½ years, since he discovered the benefit of thinking positive thoughts.

"It's become obvious to me you're as good as you feel inside," he said. "Complaining's just going to run you in the ground."

The tournament purse will be at least $800,000, with $140,000 going to the winner.

The field includes the season's other three major winners — Mize from the Masters, Scott Simpson from the U.S. Open and Faldo from the British Open.

The international group is headed by Spain's Seve Ballesteros and Norman, the Australian who claimed 10 worldwide titles last year but has won only the Australian Masters this year.

"I've been very unhappy with the year," said Norman, who has played only twice in the last seven weeks. He tied for 51st in the U.S. Open and tied for 35th in the British Open.

"Now I'm very keen and eager to get back to playing again," he said.

Likewise, Watson is anxious to add a PGA title to his list of accomplishments.

"It's my No. 1 goal," he said. "It will be my prime goal until I win it."

A victory would enable Watson to join Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen as the only players to win all four majors during their careers.

A Watson victory would also end his three-year winless drought and would also provide him with his first career triumph in Florida.

Watson undoubtedly will be in the most watched threesome of the first two rounds. He is playing with Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, two of the most popular players in the history of the game.

Among other Americans who could claim this crown are Ben Crenshaw, who has tied for fourth in each of the first three majors this season; Canadian Open champion Curtis Strange, who won last week's St. Jude Classic at Memphis; Hal Sutton, Payne Stewart, Tom Kite and Craig Stadler.

Besides Norman, Ballesteros and Faldo, the foreign contingent includes Bernhard Langer of West Germany and South Africa's Nick Price and David Frost. TPC champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland is bypassing the PGA.

Portions of the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised on ABC.

Hough, Candiotti Defend Their Use Of Emery Board

By The Associated Press

In defense of fellow knuckleball pitcher Joe Niekro, Charlie Hough of the Texas Rangers says he carries an emery board with him all the time.

"It's a common practice for knuckleball pitchers to carry them (emery boards)," Hough said Tuesday night. "I carry one all the time. But I carry it in my cap, not in my pocket where it might get wet."

In the fourth inning of the Twins' game against California on Monday night, home-plate umpire Tim Tschida and second-base umpire Dave Palermo ordered Niekro to empty his pockets and an emery board and sandpaper were found. Niekro was immediately ejected.

Hough said the emery board is necessary to file the fingernails down to the proper length and to smooth any rough spots on the skin of the fingertips.

"You can't cut up a ball with an emery board," said Hough, who then took a board out of his cap and vigorously worked over a baseball with it. "It doesn't do anything to the ball at all."

"Now this," Hough said, bending down and rubbing the ball on the cinders of the warning track, "is a different matter altogether."

Hough said that when he does get a ball with cuts on it, he throws it out.

"A cut would create another unknown factor in how the ball breaks," he said, "and I have enough trouble controlling it as it is."

Cleveland knuckleballer Tom Candiotti understood why Niekro had the emery board, but he wasn't so sure why he needed sandpaper.

"Hough carries it with him (an emery board). But sandpaper is a little fishy. What are you going to do with an emery board — take it out and file the ball? With sandpaper, maybe you could hide it in the palm of your hand. Sandpaper ... that's a legitimate beef there," Candiotti said Tuesday.

Candiotti had trouble with his fingernails cracking last season and said he kept an emery board in the dugout, not in his pocket.

"I always had it in the dugout in case I had a problem."

He's keeping his nails shorter this year and so hasn't had the cracking problem or a need for an emery board.

On Tuesday, Niekro had an explanation for the sandpaper.

"Sometimes I sweat a lot and the emery board gets wet," Niekro said. "I use the other (sandpaper) as a backup."

Some pitchers in the past have been accused of doctoring the baseball to give it erratic movement and make it harder to hit. In 1980, Rick Honeycutt was suspended for 10 days when a thumbtack was discovered taped to a finger.

Niekro now faces the prospect of a 10-day suspension and a fine.

The umpires confiscated the baseball that was in play at the time, plus five others that had been used earlier in the game, and are shipping them to American League President Bobby Brown.

Bob Fishel, the league's executive vice president, said Tuesday that it would be a couple of days until the balls are examined and any action taken.

California Manager Gene Mauch predictably suggested that Niekro was using the emery board and sandpaper on more than his fingernails.

"Those balls weren't roughed up," Mauch said. "Those balls were borderline mutilated. He did a job on a couple of 'em. I mean, those balls were hurting."

Niekro's brother, Phil, also a knuckleball specialist said, "I talked with Joe and he was pretty upset."

I've never known him to cheat, and we talk all the time. Of course, he doesn't tell me everything."

"I've been doing it for 15 years (carrying the emery board and sandpaper in his hip pocket) and I've never been questioned," Joe Niekro said.

"If I was wrong, I'm sorry. I don't feel I did anything wrong. I guess I found out I can't carry it out there with me."

Babe Ruth Stars Head For Florida

Greenville's Babe Ruth All-Stars, the Eastern North Carolina champions, will return to action on Friday in the Southeastern Regionals in Sarasota, Fla., aiming for a trip to the national tournament, later this month.

Four games are scheduled for the first day's competition in the double elimination event, with Greenville facing Fort Pierce, Fla., in the opening round at 1 p.m.

Other opening day games pit Georgia against Southern Alabama at 10:30 a.m., while South Carolina takes on Northern Alabama at 3:30 p.m. The first day's play winds up with Tennessee facing the host team, Sarasota, at 7:15 p.m.

Mississippi, Virginia and Western North Carolina all have first round byes in the 11-team event.

Should Greenville win its opening round game, it will face Western North Carolina, Iredell County, at 1 p.m. Saturday, while a loss would send it into a 6 p.m. game against the South Carolina-Northern Alabama loser on Saturday.

The tournament is scheduled to wind up on Wednesday of next week, unless weather conditions extend it.

Jamie Brewington will lead the Greenville team into the regionals with a hefty .551 batting average for the state and district tournaments. Brewington has collected 13 hits in 22 at bats for the all-stars.

Seven other members of the team are hitting .400 or better. They include Timmy Moore, .483; Heath Clark, .487; Walter Gatlin, .465; Maurice Hines, .490; J. Cox, .440; Grant Harmon, .425; and Chris Christopher, .470.

Rounding out the regulars is Abram Lang, hitting .385.

Kernersville In Second Victory

Favored Kernersville defeated Ashe County, 3-0, in the second round of the state Little League tournament, now being played at Elm Street Park in Greenville.

The other two games of the day, however, were washed away by a late afternoon thunderstorm, and will be played today. Myers Park- Trinity will meet Forest City at 2 p.m. while Sylva takes on Fort Bragg at 4 p.m. The remainder of the tournament will move back one day.

The double elimination event, which sends its winner to the Southern Regionals in St. Petersburg, Fla., is now scheduled to end on Sunday or Monday, depending on the need for a sudden-death game.

Kernersville's Greg Payne went the distance for his team on the mound, scattering five hits. He struck out nine, walked three and hit one.

Ashe County threatened twice, loading the bases in the third and fourth innings, but each time Kernersville got the outs to retire the side. Three runners were thrown out at the plate on infield grounders in the third and Payne struck out the side after loading the bases in the fourth.

Kernersville got all it needed in the first, scoring twice. Chad Faircloth led off with a walk and stole second. He took third on a wild pitch and Brad Roberts also walked. The two worked a double steal, with Faircloth scoring. Roberts took third on an error and after Payne was hit by a pitch and Bruce Berry walked, Brooks Emerson singled to drive in Roberts.

The other run came in the fifth. Kirby Keene singled, stole both second and third and scored on an infield out.

Kernersville got only two hits on the day, but took advantage of five walks and two hit batsmen.

Raines Sparks Expos By Cards

By The Associated Press
It was do or die time for Tim Raines and the Montreal Expos, and both came out alive and kicking against the St. Louis Cardinals. Raines singled to spark a four-run fifth inning and hit a two-run homer in the sixth as Montreal rallied from a five-run deficit to beat St. Louis 10-5 at Olympic Stadium Tuesday night. The loss reduced the Cardinals' lead to 5½ games over second-place New York in the National League

East. The Expos are third, six games back. "It was a very important game for us because we would have been eight games out if we lost," Raines said. "And it would have left us with no chance to win this series, which we felt we had to."

The Montreal bullpen turned in an excellent performance with Bob McClure, 5-1, pitching three innings of one-hit ball and Jeff Parrett tossing four perfect innings for his fourth save.

"The key thing is for your bullpen to shut down the other team and give you a chance. That's what happened tonight. Our relievers were great," Raines said.

Elsewhere, New York beat Philadelphia 5-3, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 3-2 in 11 innings, Cincinnati pounded Los Angeles 10-4, Houston defeated San Francisco 5-4 and Atlanta outlasted San Diego 12-7.

The Expos, who snapped a three-game losing streak, were trailing 5-2 when Raines opened the fifth with a single. Mitch Webster and Hubie Brooks walked to load the bases and Tim Wallach drove in Raines with an infield out.

Andres Galarraga singled in Webster and Vance Law drove home Brooks with a base hit off starter Lee Tunnell, 4-3. Galarraga also scored on the play as third baseman Terry Pendleton made a wild throw trying to get Law going into second.

The Expos added three runs in the sixth, two on Raines' 11th home run and one on Law's sacrifice fly.

"A game like this shows the kind of character we have," Raines said. "A lot of people are expecting us to fold up, but we don't quit."

Ozzie Smith, Willie McGee, and Jose Quintero hit RBI singles and Jim Lindeman hit a sacrifice fly as the Cardinals took a 4-0 lead in the first inning against Neal Heaton.

"I told them that wouldn't be enough," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said.

Mets 5, Phillies 3

Dwight Gooden pitched six-hit ball for eight innings and struck out a season-high 11 as New York defeated visiting Philadelphia for the ninth time in 11 games this season.

It was the Mets' seventh victory in their last eight games and the Phillies' fourth straight loss.

Gooden, 9-3, walked three and the strikeouts marked the 33rd time he has been in double figures in his career, but only the second time in 13 starts this year.

Howard Johnson hit a two-run double in the eighth to give the Mets a 5-1 lead.

Cubs 3, Pirates 2

Andre Dawson hit his 32nd home run of the season in the 11th inning to lift Chicago over host Pittsburgh. It was only the third victory in 11 games for the Cubs against the last-place Pirates.

Dawson's homer equaled his career high set in 1983 with Montreal. Leading off the 11th, he hit an 0-1 pitch from reliever Brett Gideon, 1-2, deep into the lower right-field seats.

Mike Mason, called up earlier in the day from Class AAA Iowa, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory to improve to 3-1.

Reds 10, Dodgers 4

Bo Diaz continued his hot hitting against Los Angeles, driving in four runs with a pair of homers to pace Cincinnati.

Diaz hit a solo homer in the second inning off Tim Leary and a three-run homer in the fifth off Rick Honeycutt to help left-hander Guy Hoffman, 8-6, secure his first victory since July 3. Hoffman had lost his four previous decisions and was 1-5 in his last eight starts.

Diaz is hitting .429 with four homers and 11 doubles against the Dodgers this season.

Astros 5, Giants 4

Glenn Davis' two-out infield single in the eighth inning scored pinch-runner Buddy Biancalana as Houston defeated visiting San Francisco for its third straight victory.

With Biancalana at third and Alan Ashby at first and the score tied 4-4, Davis hit a grounder that was fielded behind second base by Robbie Thompson. Thompson's throw to shortstop Randy Kutcher was too late to force Ashby, and Biancalana scored.

Jeff Heathcock, 1-1, was the winner, with one inning of scoreless relief, and Dave Smith recorded his 19th save.

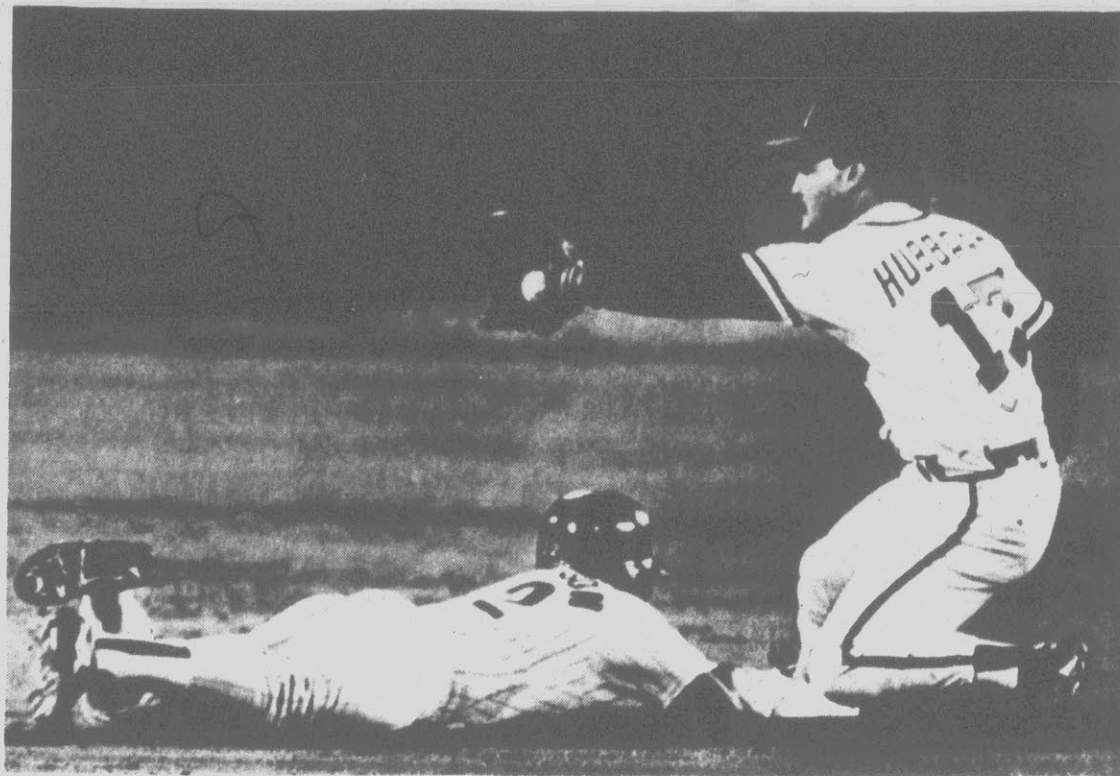

Braves 12, Padres 7

Ken Oberkfell drove in four runs and Dale Murphy added a three-run homer, leading host Atlanta over San Diego despite seven runs batted in by John Kruk.

Kruk had three-run homers in the first and ninth innings and a run-scoring single in the fifth.

"I'd take an 0-for-5 for a win," Kruk said. "It would have been nice to have a game like that and win. It doesn't mean a thing when you lose."

Oberkfell's second home run of the season and Ozzie Virgil's triple to right center keyed a five-run Atlanta second inning off Padres' starter Eric Show, 5-12.

since May 24. The Indians scored five times in the third and fifth innings in piling up their highest run total of the season.

Losers Tommy John gave up seven runs, five of them earned, on six hits and three walks in 2 1-3 innings. The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on a two-out error by Yankee left fielder Dan Pasqua, who dropped Jay Bell's fly ball with runners on first and second and two out.

Tabler's two-run single highlighted a five-run third inning and Tabler and Tommy Hinz each drove in two runs in the fifth. Butler and Cory Snyder homered for Cleveland. The Yankees didn't score until Dave Winfield hit a two-run homer with two out in the sixth.

Blue Jays 4, White Sox 1
Rookie Fred McGriff had two tape-measure home runs and John Cerutti held Chicago to six hits and an unearned run in 7 2-3 innings. Despite an 18-mph wind blowing in, McGriff led off the fourth inning with a home run into the upper deck in right field at Comiskey Park.

In the sixth, his 15th home run hit high against the back wall of the center-field bullpen, a drive of some 450 feet. Both homers came off Neil Allen, winless since July 20, 1986.

Royals 8, Tigers 4
Kansas City used home runs by Lonnie Smith and Steve Balboni, plus a five-run fifth inning, and Danny Jackson broke a personal three-game losing streak with a seven-hit as the Royals beat Detroit for the sixth time in seven meetings this season. Dan Petry, whose record dropped to 0-7 against the Royals in Tiger Stadium, gave up nine hits and seven runs in 4 1-3 innings.

The Royals tied the game 2-2 on Smith's third-inning homer and went ahead 3-2 on Balboni's homer in the fourth. They made it 8-2 in the fifth, including consecutive singles by Smith, George Brett, Danny Tartabull and Bo Jackson.

Jackson, 5-13, returned after a three-game suspension for his role in a July 8 brawl in Cleveland.

"I used the suspension a little bit to get away from the game," Jackson said. "There's no doubt I was throwing the ball good and not getting anything for it. I tried not to think about baseball, what's been happening to me or anything else negative. I think it helped a lot."

Red Sox 8, Rangers 6
Dwight Evans' second home run of the game, a two-run shot off Dale Mohoric in the ninth inning, rallied Boston. With Texas leading 6-5 after Geno Petralli's two-run single in the eighth, pinch hitter Don Baylor opened the Boston ninth with a single and Evans, who hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning, hit his 25th of the season and fifth in the last three games. Mike Greenwell also homered for Boston.

Brewers 9, Orioles 8

Pinch hitter B.J. Surhoff singled with the bases loaded and one out in the 12th inning to break a tie. Glenn Braggs and Rob Deer singled off Mark Williamson to begin the 12th, Greg Brock sacrificed and Williamson intentionally walked pinch hitter Ernest Riles to load the bases. Surhoff then slapped a pitch on the ground to right field to end the game.

The Orioles tied the game in the top of the ninth when Ray Knight hit a three-run homer off Brewers relief ace Dan Plesac. Eddie Murray and Ken Gerhart also homered for Baltimore, while Steve Kiefer hit a grand slam for Milwaukee and Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 18 games with three hits, including a homer, and three RBI.

London Trip No Vacation For Dickerson

LONDON (AP) — As Eric Dickerson makes his way around London, seeing the sights and playing a little football, he is a reluctant Los Angeles Ram.

His $1 million-a-year contract is among the biggest in the National Football League, but he says it's not big enough.

Money is not the only problem for Dickerson, though. The NFL season record-holder for rushing yards is far from thrilled about starting the exhibition season so far away from home.

Travel in general, and stories about terrorism in Europe in particular, upset him, he said.

"It's fear about coming over here," Dickerson said Tuesday as the Rams and the Denver Broncos opened training for the second American Bowl NFL exhibition game at Wembley Stadium.

"There's a lot of things going on in a lot of these countries," Dickerson said. "I don't want to be in the middle of a bombing or a shooting. I'm not saying it's going to happen, but it could happen."

"It's not like playing in Beirut, but it's not like home, either."

Dickerson was the lone dissenting voice heard on the first of six days of what Denver quarterback John Elway said would be "like a vacation."

Coaches Dan Reeves of the Broncos and John Robinson of the Rams said they were cutting back practice to a single session each day, rather than the two-a-day schedule followed in early training camps back home.

The players will be given plenty of time for sightseeing on what for many is their first trip abroad, and Reeves and Robinson said that was the best way to approach Sunday's game.

"From 7:30 to 2:30 each day, we're going to be strictly football," Reeves said. "But we're not going to be installing any new plays, so the players won't have to concentrate on that. And they'll be out seeing things around the city."

"We won't have a curfew for at least the first three nights," Robinson said. "We're like any firm that comes over here, like IBM, where we say, 'Work starts at 7:30; be ready.'"

Some of the players had already sampled London nightlife on Monday, their first day in town.

"We went to the Hard Rock Cafe and a couple of pubs," Rams quarterback Jim Everett said. "We tried to get in early so we wouldn't be hit too bad by jet lag."

"It was fun. The beer was a little warmer than we're used to. The people were friendly. They looked at us because we're big and tall, but that's OK."

Elway also went on a pub crawl

Monday, with his tour taking in the Covent Garden area of boutiques and restaurants.

"The first place we went was a Mexican restaurant. That threw me a little," Elway said.

Even Dickerson said he planned to take advantage of the trip.

"I didn't want to come, but as long as I'm here, I want to make the best of it," he said.

In late 1985, a year after rushing for a record 2,105 yards, Dickerson agreed to a three-year extension of a contract that would pay him $683,000 annually through 1989. His salary ranks him 12th among NFL running backs.

Last month, Bo Jackson, a Heisman Trophy winner as a running back at Auburn who turned to pro baseball after college, agreed to terms with the Los Angeles Raiders on a contract that reportedly makes him the highest-paid NFL player outside of a handful of quarterbacks.

Dickerson said he is worth more than Jackson.

"I won't say I'm happy. I'm content," Dickerson said. "I'll say that, and leave it at that."

Asked if he was getting everything he wanted from the Rams, Dickerson replied: "Money, no. Everything else, yes. We'll talk about it."

The teams will practice through Friday at the Crystal Palace National Sports Center, where about 50 fans turned up to watch the opening workouts. Saturday is a day off before Sunday's game at Wembley Stadium, where a few unsold tickets returned by the two teams were the only seats available. The rest of the 80,000 tickets at England's national soccer stadium were sold long ago.

Knucklers Drawing Notice After Niekro-Scuff Incident

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Those American League umpires think they're so smart. They find a few scuffed baseballs and right away, they get suspicious. They jump to conclusions, ready to believe the worst of a pitcher instead of listening to simple, rational explanations.

The other night in California, when a half-dozen baseballs showed up looking like they were ready to bleed, the umps searched Minnesota pitcher Joe Niekro. Imagine their surprise when first an emery board and then some sandpaper came tumbling out of the pitcher's pockets.

Now what ever would he be doing with those things?

One and one, the umpires reasoned, make two, and Niekro was thrown out of the game. This, however, can be interpreted as nothing less than a flagrant attack on personal hygiene.

Here is a guy standing on the mound with time to kill between outs. His teammates are chasing after fly balls or busy with grounders, and he's standing out there with nothing to do. So, rather than waste valuable time, he whips out the old emery board and works on ... his nails.

Hey, the guy is a knuckleball pitcher. He needs neat nails. Do you have any idea how long a fingernail can grow while you're standing around on the mound during an inning?

But the sandpaper, Joe. What about the sandpaper?

"Sometimes," Niekro explained with appropriate nonchalance, "the emery board gets wet and you can't file your fingernails with it. That's why I have the sandpaper."

Why, of course.

Umpire Davey Phillips, one of the best in the business, used nasty words like "foreign substance" and "evidence" to describe the episode. He shipped the supply of wounded baseballs, as well as Niekro's manicuring equipment, to the American League office.

The umps, it should be noted, have been especially vigilant this season about pitchers monkeying around with baseballs. Rick Rhoden of the New York Yankees, often the subject of some curious looks from batters, has spent much of the summer under the microscope. In fact, before Rhoden threw a pitch in his last start Sunday, home plate umpire Drew Coble visited the mound for a little heart-to-heart talk. It was, apparently, a reminder about the ethics of the game. It was also the day before Niekro got nailed.

Now why in the name of Rick Honeycutt would umps be so suspicious?

Just because Hall of Famer Whitey Ford confessed in his autobiography to occasionally caressing the baseball with the ragged edge of a ring in the latter stages of his career?

Just because 300-game winner Gaylord Perry applied everything but a hammer and chisel to the ball and dared them to catch him doing it?

Just because it has been cruelly suggested that some pitchers like Don Sutton, another 300-game winner, ought to wear a utility belt to the mound?

Are those reasons to question Joe Niekro's innocence over entirely explainable equipment like an emery board and some sandpaper?

"Ever since I've been throwing the knuckleball, I've kept those things in my pocket," Niekro said.

Doesn't everybody?

Niekro is the first pitcher to be charged with funny business since Honeycutt got caught in 1980 with a thumbtack taped to his finger. You know, just in case he had to scrape some dirt out of his spikes. Honeycutt was suspended 10 days for that misdemeanor.

Now Dr. Bobby Brown, the AL president, must study the beat-up balls, the emery board and sandpaper, and make a diagnosis. Niekro may be in trouble in this particular forum. Dr. Brown is a heart specialist. What does he know about fingernails?

Pan Am Schedules Set To Be Altered

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Some competition schedules will be adjusted now that officials have a clearer idea of the number of athletes who will be taking part in the Pan Am Games.

Jack Swarbrick, competition director for the games which open Saturday, said that final registration forms hadn't been received from Netherland Antilles, the Bahamas, Bolivia, Ecuador and El Salvador.

Bolivia, Swarbrick said, had been all but counted out since organizers hadn't even received preliminary registration forms from that country. He said teams were expected from the other four nations.

Further adjustments are required because some competing countries didn't bring all of their teams. For example, Colombia and Ecuador won't have baseball teams, Cuba left its men's basketball team at home, and the Dominican Republic is without its women's basketball team.

The baseball round-robin was cut from 10 teams to eight and the women's basketball tournament will have seven teams instead of eight. Cuba's spot in the men's tournament will be taken by the U.S. Virgin Islands, which had been designated as an alternate.

Schedules for women's field hockey and men's and women's volleyball also are being affected because of scratched teams.

Pan American X-Indianapolis, the organizing body, had been estimating that some 4,000 athletes would attend the games, but that figure has now been adjusted to about 3,900. Organizers didn't have firm figures available when making their initial estimates because the deadline for registration forms was only 10 days before the opening ceremonies.

"There are going to be some changes in sessions ... but I would be surprised if there were cancellations in sports or events," said Mark Miles, president of Pan American X-Indianapolis, the games' organizing committee. "Where one team has decided not to come, another team may decide to come."

Miles said schedule changes would be announced Thursday.

Meanwhile, officials said Tuesday that, while tickets are available for nearly all sessions, they are only about $300,000 shy of their sales target of $7 million.

Among the 16 sessions that are sold out are finals in the so-called glamour sports — men's and women's basketball, track and field, platform diving and swimming. Of the games' 27 sports, the only one sold out for every session is taekwondo, scheduled Aug. 14-16.

Tickets for Saturday's opening ceremonies at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway were expected to be sold out by today, Miles said.

An additional 23 sessions out of the total of 394 — including the gold-medal baseball game and some roller skating, swimming and wrestling finals — are considered likely sell-outs.

Although seating remained available for most events, there was no worry expressed about attendance figures.

"The last thing on anybody's mind is panic. We're extremely delighted with our ticket sales," Pan Am spokeswoman Teresa Napier said.

"Our goal was to break even," she said, noting that PAX-I's target was about $7 million in sales and they were already up to almost $6.7 million.

Michael G. Browning of PAX-I's executive committee said 509,759 tickets had been sold. He didn't have figures on how many tickets remained.

Connors Falls, Top Seeds Win

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Jimmy Connors didn't blame the wind, his equipment, or much of anything else for his first-round loss at the Volvo International tennis tournament.

"I didn't do one thing out there to do anybody any good, let alone myself," the tournament's No. 2 seed said after losing 7-5, 7-5 to Greg Holmes on Tuesday.

The other top three seeds — Ivan Lendl, Pat Cash and John McEnroe — all advanced to today's second round after winning Tuesday at the $315,000 tournament.

Lendl, the No. 1 seed, plays Jim Pugh today after defeating Marc Flur 6-4, 6-3. McEnroe, seeded fourth, plays Peter Lundgren following a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Jonathan Canter.

Cash, seeded third, will play the winner of a match between Andre Agassi and Luke Jensen. The match was postponed Tuesday with each player taking one set.

On Tuesday, Cash lost a first-set tiebreaker but rebounded to beat Kelly Evernden, 6-7, 6-2, 6-4.

Connors and Holmes, the 1983 NCAA champion, each held serve in the second set until the 12th and last game. Holmes went up three points with Connors serving.

Connors survived one match point with a shot out of Holmes' reach. Holmes hit the next two shots into the net, allowing Connors to survive two more match points.

Holmes took the advantage when Connors hit the next shot into the net. He tried to recover with an overhand stroke, but hit the shot long and lost the match.

Connors, who turns 35 in a month, blamed his loss on the difficulty adjusting to the 1,900-foot altitude, and to just being "flat."

"What I did was just try to keep the ball in play, to try to get a little feel ... zip on my shots, but also to try to get to a point where I would feel I was in there," Connors said. "I just didn't feel I was in the meat of the match at all."

Holmes, who lives in Salt Lake City, said he may have had an advantage because he is used to higher altitudes.

"It's about the same as here, and I was there before I came here," he said.

McEnroe broke serve once in the first set and twice in the second to handily defeat Canter.

"I did what I had to do," said the tournament's No. 4 seed, who won the 1985 Volvo and caused a stir at Stratton last year, where he made his return to tennis after an eight-month sabbatical, his marriage to actress Tatum O'Neal and the birth of their first child.

The family will join McEnroe later in the week. The couple is expecting a second child the week of the U.S. Open.

Other matches scheduled for today include Tim Mayotte, seeded fifth, against Joey Rive, No. 6 seed Brad Gilbert against Shelby Cannon, No. 7 David Pate against Dan Goldie and No. 14 Peter Doohan against Ben Testerman.

Gilbert won nine straight games to defeat Larry Scott 6-4, 6-0.

Also, Doohan defeated Bill Scanlon 7-5, 6-0; No. 8 seed Scott Davis beat Dan Goldberg 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, while No. 13 seed Paul Annacone defeated Gary Donnelly 6-2, 7-5; Pate took Patrick McEnroe 7-6, 7-5; Rive took Mel Purcell 7-6, 6-3, and Testerman defeated John Fitzgerald of Australia 6-2, 4-6, 7-6.

On Monday, Cannon advanced by defeating Michael Kures 3-6, 6-1, 6-2; Pugh ousted Philip Johnson 7-6, 4-6, 6-3, and Lundgren, a Swede, beat Christo Steyn of South Africa 6-2, 6-2.

Only three players in the history of baseball were league leaders, not necessarily in the same season, in batting average, home runs and stolen bases. They were Ty Cobb, Chuck Klein and Willie Mays.

'Labor Of Love' Holds As Old Yacht Is Restored

BY ANGUS PHILLIPS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

NEWPORT, R.I. — When Bob Tiedemann found the 12-meter yacht Northern Light two years ago, she lay dead on the bottom of Lake Michigan with a dock piling through her belly.

Her varnished wooden deck hatches were gone, the interior was carpeted in waterlogged shag from ceiling to floor, the bottom was soft as grapes and the mast was rotted through.

"She looked," said Tiedemann, "like an old Chevy van."

Northern Light, meticulously built in 1938 of mahogany and cedar planking over oak frames, was the second 12-meter ever drawn by yachting guru Olin Stephens, who went on to design every defender of the America's Cup from 1958 to 1980.

A fitting grave for a thoroughbred? Tiedemann thought not.

So he bought her and had her raised and hauled to Holland, Mich., and that winter he and a small crew of helpers stripped her to the ribs. "We spent that winter putting on a new bottom with snow swirling around our feet," he said.

By spring, Northern Light was afloat and halfway presentable. Tiedemann sailed her down the St. Lawrence River to the ocean and on to New York for the Statue of Liberty celebration.

There she met up with her old running-mate, Gleam, the 1937 Clinton Crane-designed 12 that Tiedemann had bought and restored in 1975.

It was some reunion. Perhaps the most famous American yachting photograph ever taken is Stanley Rosenfeld's black-and-white shot of Northern Light in hot pursuit of Gleam, spinnakers billowing on a brilliant day off New York nearly a half-century ago. Reunited, the two old 12s bounded along together, pretty as ever.

Now snow-white Gleam and gleaming blue Northern Light lie side by side off the Ida Lewis Yacht Club in Newport Harbor, resurrected by Tiedemann and his yachting obsession.

Almost every day one or both will slip the mooring lines, round the point at Fort Adams and knife past Castle Hill into Rhode Island Sound to sail the ocean.

In the evenings they return, bearing their cargoes of wide-eyed day-charters. It is a sight, anyone in New Port will tell you, to see the sort of yachts the Vanderbilts once raced sweeping into harbor again under sail.

And no one appreciates it better than Tiedemann, who steers Gleam, the faster of the two, every day she goes out, which is almost every day, every summer.

"They're sensual, graceful-looking boats," he said. "They're long and lean, and they have a certain majesty and dignity. I look at them as art — each one unique, like sculpture."

And what does it take to keep them alive?

"Mostly my own blood, sweat and tears."

Of Northern Light, Tiedemann, 37, says, "They said it couldn't be done. Everyone looked at me like I was nuts. Then, when it was finished, there must have been 200 of them that came by and said, 'You know, I almost bought this boat myself.'"

But they didn't, knowing, as any sensible person would, that a commitment to reconstruct and sustain a sunken, 47-year-old, 67-foot wooden racing yacht would be like buying a sick elephant — signing your life away.

It's a never-ending project," agreed Tiedemann. "If I'm not sailing them, I'm working on them."

So why was he smiling? Why would a guy with a list of things to do that never ends wear a perpetual smile?

"Simple," he said, grinning through a cold New England rain as he steered Gleam to her mooring one day in early July. "It's a labor of love."

As a boy in Greenwich, Conn., Tiedemann said, he slipped off evenings to the nearby boat yards. Winters he liked especially, when the great yachts of rich New Yorkers were laid up, and he could poke around under their canvas skirts.

When Northern Light turned up in the boat yard 30 years ago, it fired a RESTORATION — Yacht restorer Bill Tiedemann sits at the helm of Gleam, one of his historic 12-meter craft, off the coast of Newport, R.I. Tiedemann says there are a number of the half-century old wooden crafts available. He hopes to eventually hold a regatta for the yachts. (L.A. Times-Washington Post Photo) boy's devotion to 12 meters. He would walk around her and think how it would be to own such a boat.

Years later, when he found Gleam languishing, unused and decaying, at a dock on the Morris River off Delaware Bay in 1975, he took the plunge.

He put Gleam right, in time for the 1976 bicentennial parade in New York Harbor, then began chartering her in Newport. A few years later he inherited Mariner, his family's 54-foot wooden Alden yawl, which joined the charter fleet.

When word of Northern Light's plight reached him in 1985, the fleet grew to three.

Recently Tiedemann agreed to buy an antique, 48-foot Huckins powerboat. He said he couldn't help himself. Back in the 1930s, 12-meter owners always had a tender like the Huckins, where a gentleman could enjoy a drink after racing while the sailing yacht was towed back to port.

"Those were the days," Tiedemann said with a sigh.

So he was born 50 years too late, maybe?

"No," Tiedemann said with that smile. "I was born to do exactly what I'm doing."

As president of the Antique Twelve-Meter Association (P.O. Box 119, Newport, R.I. 02840), Tiedemann is encouraging other boaters to get into the business of salvaging old, wooden 12s.

He said a number — including Vim, Mitena, Columbia, Anitra, Onawa, Weatherly, Constellation and Neferiti — are around and in need of help.

Some day he hopes to hold a big regatta of old 12s off Newport and make it an annual thing. Rhode Island has "lost the American's Cup," he said, "and may never get it back. But we can still have our own 12-meter fleet right here."

Only trouble is, if you ask him where the needy 12s are, he's reluctant to say. Tiedemann might want those boats for himself.

CABLE AND YOU — Deregulation of the cable television industry has created uncertainties so far as control by local governments is concerned. But cable operators say you, the viewer, are exercising the best means of control — by paying, or not paying, the monthly fees. (Reflector Illustration by Marty Hardin)

City Has Little Control Over Cable TV Industry

By SUE HINSON

Reflector Staff Writer

Deregulation of cable television rates in 1984 was not the catastrophe many perceived it to be. Instead, deregulation then, and now, should be viewed as an exercise in free enterprise, according to local cable representative Tommy Edwards.

"Although city government no longer determines rates, we are in fact being regulated by our subscribers, who each month decide whether the prices we charge are too high," Edwards said.

Likewise, he said subscribers, by virtue of choice, also help regulate the type and quality of programs offered in Pitt County.

The manager of Greenville Cable TV, Edwards over the past six months has shared the above views and others concerning the future of cable with members of a council-appointed ad hoc committee charged in December 1986 with developing recommendations to be used in a 1991 renegotiation of the city-GCTV franchise.

Despite Edward's assurances and "welcomed cooperation" in the study, the committee isn't totally sure deregulation was as good for consumers as it was for cable.

According to committee chairman Andy Chused, while the 1984 Cable Act gave the cable industry rate deregulation and some assurance of predictability in the franchise renewal process, it also took away a lot of options, in effect stripping cities involved in traditional cable franchises of most of their powers — "Except the right to control quality of services. And that, is a pretty hard thing to document," Chused said.

Therefore, when the city enters the required 36-month renegotiation period in August 1988, it will have little if anything to use as leverage. "Really the only thing we do have is the franchise fee, which is negotiable," he said.

GCTV now pays the city 3 percent of gross subscriber revenues in exchange for use of public thoroughfares, utility poles and right-of-ways which the company uses to get its service to customers. In 1986, the city received $62,767 from GCTV in fees and in 1987 expects to receive approximately $65,000, according to city Finance Director Ron Kimble.

However, increasing the franchise fee could be likened to waving around a loaded gun, Chused said. "If we raise rates, then the company could raise its (rates) and the consumer would be the one who would end up paying."

In other options, money is again the bottom line, Chused said. "We could go into the cable business ourselves, but that's costly as Morganton is finding out." The city of Morganton is now involved in a legal battle over cable company control that could end up costing an estimated $10 million to $25 million, Chused said.

Too, the city could deregulate the franchise, making way for a second company. "But so far we can't find anybody interested because of the initial cost of going into the business and because of the requirement that

Plowshares Gets Action By Showing The Facts

By ANNE McGRATH

SIMSBURY, Conn. (AP) — Plans to spend a relaxing year teaching ethics in Uganda and visiting African game farms were quickly scuttled when Robert Evans and his family stumbled into the bloody reign of Gen. Idi Amin in 1972.

"So a month after I was there, the head of the supreme court, the president of the university, five of my colleagues and 25 of my students had been murdered," Evans recalled. "And within the next two or three months, somewhere between 50,000 and 100,000 Ugandans died. And I suddenly realized it was not the kind of year I had anticipated."

In Uganda, Evans said, he learned from the church and the university, the two voices that held out in opposition to Amin, what it means "to bear witness with courage."

Now Evans, as executive director of the Plowshares Institute, is urging Americans to bear witness to what's happening around the world and in their own country.

Operating out of a Simsbury church basement with a staff of four, the institute runs educational and travel programs aimed at illustrating Third World problems to business executives, homemakers, teachers, government and religious leaders.

The purpose is to motivate people to do something about poverty, militarism, apartheid and other global problems.

But Plowshares doesn't tell people what to do. It promises only to expose its students to "the most articulate voices on each side of those critical issues with the conviction that the truth emerges out of those encounters," he said.

Plowshares visitors to South Africa dine with Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu and meet members of the white-controlled government. In Nicaragua, they meet President Daniel Ortega and leaders of the Contra rebels trying to overthrow the Marxist government.

The institute's name comes from Isaiah and Micah in the Bible: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore."

STORY TIME — "Why Mosquitoes Buzz in People's Ears" will be among the animated African folktales shown during the Festival of Africa at the North Carolina Museum of Art on Saturday. N.C. Museum Plans Free African Festival

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Museum of Art will present the Festival of Africa, a day of free activities for all ages, on Saturday. The event is scheduled in conjunction with the recently opened gallery of African art.

The festival will feature workshops and performances by the Chuck Davis African-American Dance Ensemble, the Georgia Sea Island Singers, musician Beverly Botsford and storyteller Louise Anderson, along with a slide talk by Dr. Jayne Owen Parker of the North Carolina Zoological Park.

The program will begin at 10:15 a.m. with a variety of free drop-in workshops in which children can make African masks, headdresses and accessories to wear during the festival. They can also construct finger puppets, have their faces painted and make African musical instruments. Young participants are encouraged to bring these instruments to the music workshop for all ages at 12:30 p.m., to be conducted by Beverly Botsford of the Chuck Davis company.

A 20-minute program of animated African folktales will be screened at 10:10 a.m., including "Anansi the Spider," a tale of the Ashanti people of Ghana, and "Why Mosquitoes Buzz in People's Ears." At 1:10 p.m., the Congo folktale "The Magic Tree" will be shown.

Workshop sessions at 10:35 a.m. and 11:05 a.m. will provide children with an opportunity to explore the Afro-American cultural heritage with the Georgia Sea Island Singers, comprising Doug and Frankie Quimby. The two will share songs, games, dances handed down for over two centuries in the isolated communities off the Georgia coast.

Frankie Quimby has traced her ancestry back through slavery times to African Foulah people who lived along the Niger River. Whether teaching a traditional game or singing a spiritual, the Quimbys demonstrate how each activity offers specific insights into the lives of black people under slavery. Their program will continue into the afternoon with outdoor concerts for all ages at 1 p.m. and 3:15 p.m.

Special tours of the museum's African collection will be presented each half-hour from 11 a.m. through 1 p.m.

Storyteller Louise Anderson will relate tales from Africa, in sessions at 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. Ms. Anderson will recount creation stories from Africa as well as the Nigerian folktales "Cow Tail Switch" and "Why Women Wear Their Hair in Braids."

A highlight of the day will be an outdoor performance by the Chuck Davis African-American Dance Ensemble at 2:10 p.m. Noted for their dynamic combinations of innovative movement and traditional dance forms, the ensemble presents the cultural richness of West African music and dance.

The festival will conclude with a screening of the film "Born Free," from 3:10 p.m. to 4:50 p.m.

For information on the Festival of Africa call the museum at 833-1935.

Music Industry Girds For War Over New Digital Audio Tapes

By MARK POTTS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

About the only thing that's clear about digital audio tape is the sound it produces.

DAT is the latest innovation in home audio, combining the crispness and clarity of compact disks with the convenience of tape cassettes. Like the compact disk player and the videocassette recorder before it, DAT has the potential to change the way Americans are entertained and take a major share of the $30 billion U.S. consumer-electronics business.

At least that's the way the makers of DAT machines tell the story. But the record industry has a much different version.

"It's a cloning machine" for copying compact disks, said Patricia Heimers, a spokeswoman for the Recording Industry Association of America, the record-makers' trade association. The RIAA has called DAT "the most significant technological threat that the American music industry has ever faced."

"The purpose of these machines is to make copies, and there're no controls to prevent people from doing that," said Robert Altschuler, a vice president at CBS Inc.'s record division. "You can clone away endlessly. That means that all those copies that are made deprive the composer, the performer, the music-publishing company, the record company — everybody down the line — of royalties from those copies."

In a heated battle that recalls the famous Betamax war of a few years ago, when movie and television producers squared off against videocassette-recorder manufacturers over the legality of home taping of movies and TV shows, the record industry is claiming that DAT's ability to make virtually perfect copies of whatever it records could all but dry up record sales. The record companies fear that rampant home taping by owners of DAT machines could exacerbate a problem that the industry says already costs it between $500 million and $1.5 billion a year — tapes made by consumers that then are given to friends who thus don't have to buy the record. Because of the high quality of DAT, the record industry argues, home tapers will be able to make copies of compact disks that sound as good as the original studio master tape.

But the DAT makers say the claims of a home-taping problem are exaggerated, and argue that record companies want to nip DAT in the bud to protect the companies' investments in compact-disk manufacturing and marketing facilities.

It took the Supreme Court to decide Betamax — in favor of the videocassette-recorder makers. This time around, Congress is being asked to determine the fate of DAT.

The two sides have squared off in a classic Washington battle, each claiming grass-roots support and complaining about the size and tactics of the opposition, even as both sides employ high-priced lobbyists and lawyers to press their case. The DAT makers have revived the Home Recording Rights Coalition, consisting of the Electronics Industries Association, large electronics manufacturers and some big consumer groups, to fight the battle just as the HRRC was in the vanguard in the videocassette-recorder fight. The record industry has gathered major music publishing and licensing organizations, record companies and musicians' unions into the Coalition to Save American Music.

The battle is raging fiercely on Capitol Hill. Both sides have mustered studies and expert witnesses — including recording stars Stevie Wonder and Emmylou Harris — to argue their case before several congressional committees. "I would like to make tapes for my personal use with the DAT machine," Wonder told a Senate subcommittee in written testimony in June. But Harris, speaking for the other side, told a House subcommittee: "Maybe people think they're flattering us by copying our music. But the simple truth is that they're choking off our livelihoods."

Bills introduced in the Senate and House and backed by the Reagan administration and the record industry would require that when DAT recorders go on sale in this country in a few months, they carry a "copycode" chip that would prevent the machines from recording specially encoded compact disks.

The makers of DAT machines vehemently oppose this proposal, claiming that the encoding process distorts sound quality — a point that Congress has asked the National Bureau of Standards to settle. The DAT makers also are opposed to another suggestion, that a royalty be charged on the sale of DAT tape and machines to cover the record industry's home-taping losses.

Many in Congress are troubled by the idea of regulating DAT technology. It is highly unusual, if not unprecedented, for Congress to pass legislation controlling a technology for other than health or environmental reasons, and many representatives worry that by regulating DAT, they may be bowing to the commercial considerations of the record industry.

There also are concerns about underlying currents of Japan-bashing in the DAT argument. All makers of DAT are Japanese companies — most of them were involved in the earlier videocassette fracas — and virtually all of the major record companies are American-owned.

"Just as most of the premium blank tape and recording machines now used for the home taping of music originate in Japan, so will DAT tape and machines come from Japan," RIAA President Jason Berman testified before a House subcommittee in May. "It will therefore be these foreign hardware manufacturers who will increase their profits at the expense of the American music industry."

The record industry tried unsuccessfully to tack DAT legislation onto the trade bill this spring before deciding to pursue the issue as a copyright problem — where many in Congress think it belongs. "It is a very interesting and fascinating intellectual-property issue," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on patents, copyrights and trademarks, one of the key battlefields of the DAT forces.

The debate over DAT is being played out against a ticking clock — the impending American release of the first DAT machine.

Louis Armstrong Tribute To Open

By JOE BROWN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Satch is back and blowing our way in "Satchmo: America's Musical Legend," a musical biography of the late, great, gravel-voiced jazz institution Louis Armstrong.

And Jerry Bilik, the author-composer-director of the show that opens tonight at the Kennedy Center Opera House, seems remarkably unflustered about the $3 million production with 31 scenes, 42 performers "and all sorts of mechanical stuff."

Perhaps that is because Bilik has emerged not from Broadway and its disciplines but rather from the Big Top tradition, having worked for "Satchmo" producer Kenneth J. Feld and his Washington-based Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus and all its attendant ice shows, animal acts and what-have-you.

"People have asked how I appear so calm, with a show this big," Bilik says. "But let me tell you, after 22 elephants, Bulgarian and Moroccan acrobats and everyone else running amok, the size of this show doesn't seem nearly as awesome as it might to other people."

Bilik says he hopes "Satchmo," with a cast of unknowns and amateurs choreographed by Maurice Hines, will do much more than just rehash the myths about the Man. And they are many:

Born on the Fourth of July. In New Orleans. In 1900, at the very bottom of the social heap. Reported first words "Oh, yeah!" First band: the Colored Waifs' Home quartet. Rose from the blossoming of jazz in the honky-tonks and perfumed brothels of Storyville to become the beloved bandleader-singer-clown-movie star-unofficial ambassador. "Doc, you don't understand-my whole life, my whole soul, my whole spirit is to blow that horn," he said not long before he died on July 6, 1971.

But the music lives on-Armstrong is, perhaps above all, one of the most important figures of 20th-century music, who remodeled and popularized jazz, and in so doing, influenced many other musical forms. And his impact as a spokesman for civil rights has yet to be recognized. For all this he remained a simple fellow who never demanded stardom.

"Ideally, that's what I want this show to say," Bilik says. "Here was a generous, happy, uncomplicated man who communicated with great music."

A semi-staged reading of the first draft of "Satchmo" was held in the fall of 1985 at Howard University here, in cooperation with the University of Maryland.

"We didn't use any musicians, just actors, and just read it, talked it over, made lots of conceptual changes," Bilik says. "Like a lot of biographers will do, I wanted to get everything in. I couldn't leave anything out. Then I realized you wouldn't want to sit and listen to a three-hour lecture about Louis Armstrong."

New James Bond Brings Thrill Back

Bond is back, and it's about time. "The Living Daylights," the latest James Bond spy-thriller, opened Friday at the Plaza Cinema and it should be in for a good run.

Timothy Dalton is the new James Bond, and he breathes fresh air into the role, bringing excitement to the movie series that's been missing for the last several years. Instead of relying on fancy gadgets and wild special effects, "Daylights" depends on the acting of Dalton, and focuses more on Bond the person than Bond the user of gadgets.

It's a wonderful return to the original 007 movies, and to the intent of the Ian Fleming novels that spawned the long-running movie serial. Dalton has said he researched his role by reading Fleming's works, and it shows.

Don't be mistaken, though. While the story line and action scenes in "Daylights" are more like those of the Sean Connery, early-Roger Moore era, Dalton makes this Bond his own.

He brings to the part a sensitive and a vulnerable side that work well with the character. He has taken Connery's ruthlessness, added a very little bit (thank goodness) of Moore's meekness and brought to the screen what very well may be the closest thing to Fleming's intended character yet.

The gadgets are there, too. It's just that now they play second fiddle to the character instead of the other way around. There's a souped up Aston-Martin that is classic Bond material, and Q, as always, has come up with a new destructive toy for the spy to play with. This time it's an exploding key ring, whistle controlled, of course.

No Hope

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Eagles convention is hoping Bob Hope will appear but the cards seem to have been stacked against them.

The fraternal organization's five-day international convention has been plagued by big name no-shows.

First Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., canceled his keynote address. Then Danny Thomas dropped out. And finally, the McGuire Sisters also bowed out citing a family tragedy.

Hope is scheduled to headline a banquet Tuesday night.

Some 10,000 delegates and their guests are expected at the convention, the largest ever hosted by Spokane.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles started as a social club for six Seattle taverns in 1898 and has grown into a social and charitable organization with more than one million members in the U.S. and Canada.

TIMOTHY DALTON

The thing that makes this movie, though, and that may have saved the series from extinction, is a return to action, plot involvement and script-writing that keeps the audience on the edge of its seat.

There are more twists in this movie than on the Loch Ness Monster at Busch Gardens.

Basic premise: Bond is assigned to help with the defection of a top Russian agent to Britain. The agent tells the British that the head of the KGB, Comrade Pushkin, has constructed a plan to kill all the spies from all the other countries. The agent then is kidnapped, apparently by the Russians.

Bond has to trace him down, and try to stop Pushkin. In the midst he unravels a conspiracy that involves Afghan rebels, arms dealers, opium, diamonds and the original Russian agent.

And he falls in love.

That's right, Bond is in love. He has a monogamous relationship throughout the movie. The flirting is still there, but believe it or not he is a one-woman man — at least for this film.

Producer Albert R. "Cubby" Broccoli, who has made all of the Bond films to date, seems to have stumbled upon a winning combination again. "Daylights" still isn't quite as thrilling as classics like "Goldfinger," but with Dalton in the forefront and a reliance on action instead of gadgets, future 007 movies may be the best yet.

Dalton might even be able to make the role his own instead of living in the shadow of Connery — something Moore was never able to do.

"The Living Daylights" is rated PG-13 for the usual dose of violence, mild language and brief nudity.

Royal Shakespeare Opens First All-American Season

By MATT WOLF

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — American accents are the order of the day in one of the Royal Shakespeare Company's three London theaters, as the acclaimed classical troupe launches its first-ever American season.

By the end of the summer, the company will have two American works in its repertoire at the Mermaid Theater: "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" adapted from Horace McCoy's 1935 novel, which opened July 16; and "The Great White Hope," a revival of Howard Sackler's 1968 Broadway success, which opens Aug. 20.

A production of Ben Jonson's rarely seen 1598 English classic, "Every Man in His Humour," roends out the Mermaid lineup of three plays.

American plays are nothing new at the RSC, which has slotted them in fairly regularly since Jules Feiffer's "Little Murders" in 1967. Last season, the company had back-to-back critical successes with two political American dramas, Arthur Miller's "The Archbishop's Ceiling," and Richard Nelson's "Principia Scriptoriae."

However, the current productions mark the first time the company has jointly marketed and promoted two American plays as being American, and the creative team hopes audiences will find that the two shows link up.

"They are panoramas of American life which focus on misfits, have-nots, underdogs, fighters — people who are struggling to be successful," said Ron Daniels, artistic director of the Mermaid and the director of "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?"

"The Great White Hope" tells a story of racial injustice across three continents. Its lead character is modeled after Jack Johnson, the Texas-born fighter who became the world's first black heavyweight champion in 1911.

"Horses," which was made into Sydney Pollack's acclaimed 1969 film, depicts the tragedy of a dance marathon in 1936. There is a commuGreenwood as Gloria and Robert, the central couple played in the film by Jane Fonda and Michael Sarrazin. Henry Goodman, in a star-making performance, plays the fevered emcee, Rocky Gravo — the same role that brought an Academy Award for supporting actor to the late Gig Young.

Neither Daniels nor the play's London-born adaptor, Ray Herman, thought nationality posed a problem for the actors. "American characters and parts always attract English actors," said Daniels, who last year directed Trevor Griffiths' "Real Dreams," a British play set in Cleveland, Ohio.

"Their adaptability, both vocally and mentally, is so professional. We all have made the play very much our own, although we hope it retains its American psyche."

Initial reviews of "They Shoot Horses Don't They?" were mixed. Jack Tinker in The Daily Mail found it "thoughtful but ultimately unsatisfying."

Milton Shulman in The Standard praised the "controlled and sympathetic energy" of Daniels' direction and predicted that the show will have a long run.

"The Great White Hope" opens as a result of the favorable response it received during a previous revival at the "fringe" Tricycle Theater in November 1985.

That production starred Hugh Quarshie, a Ghana-born, Oxford-educated actor who is now at the RSC playing Tybalt in "Romeo and Juliet." Daniels said Quarshie's presence within the company meant "Great White Hope" should have a further life.

For American co-producers Frank and Woji Gero, both plays impress by their sheer size.

"Great White Hope" has 21 in the cast and five or six in the orchestra; "They Shoot Horses" has 22 in the cast and seven in the orchestra," Gero said. "What we're offering in both instances is spectacle. These are large plays that people can't see on TV."

Gero would like to take "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" to New York next year, where the RSC currently has two Broadway hits, "Les Miserables" and "Les Liaisons Dangereuses."

However, he noted that Broadway economics can be prohibitive: "It's going to be so expensive."

Casting Call Set For New
N.C. Movie

RALEIGH — The Raleigh-Durham area will be the film site for a feature length motion picture, and the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina will be putting out the casting call.

Faye McArthur of the Raleigh ESC office will work closely with Tony Brown Productions to fill both on-camera and behind the scenes positions of the movie.

The film, "The White Girl," will be filmed in part on the N.C. State Central University campus. Ms. McArthur said at this time there is an urgent need for persons to fill behind the scenes positions listed below:

These are: script supervisor; set decorator; set dresser, prop master; third grip; wardrobe master; make-up artists; electricians 3 and 4; assistant camera operator; second assistant operator; sound recorder; transportation captain and five production technicians.

The producers will visit McArthur Aug. 13 to review applications for these positions. Because of the short time before application review, interested persons need to take prompt action to contact Ms. McArthur at 733-3941 or Lisa De Maio Brewer at 733-4329.

Locally, the Greenville Employment Security Commission office will assist persons in reviewing the criteria for each of the positions to be filled and to receive assistance for application where necessary.

Anyone wanting to review such information is to visit the local ESC office at 3101 Bismarck Street, telephone 756-2686.

Man Finds
New Hobby
With Kites

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Among kite-flying enthusiasts, H.J. Taylor, "Hod" to his many friends, is as well known as Mickey Mantle is to baseball fans.

When Taylor, 90, of Austin, builds a kite, it was a big deal. The largest kite he has ever made has a wingspan of 34 feet, and most of his kites span about 8 feet.

Taylor, who has lived at Sacred Heart Hospice for the past three years, had to give up kite-making about a year ago because of declining health. But he hasn't forgotten the hobby he took up at the age of 69.

The hobby began when Taylor was staying at his summer residence about 20 miles south of Palm Beach, Fla. He happened to comment to a friend that because of his very poor eyesight, about the only thing he could do would be to go fly a kite.

The friend, who was a kite enthusiast, thought that was a wonderful idea, and gave him some kite magazines. Taylor got hooked on making kites.

"I used to make every kite I could get a picture of," Taylor said. "Then I'd start using part of one kite and part of another to see if I could come up with something different."

Through experimentation, Taylor developed a reputation for himself within kite builders' clubs.

In 1971, Taylor wanted to make a kite for a friend and neighbor, Walter Scott, who at the time held the duration record for keeping a kite aloft. As a result, the Taylor box delta was born.

The kite is made with a three-cornered box and a triangular wing.

"It's known all over the world, and has won first prizes all over the world, mostly for stabilized flight," said Taylor. The prizes included first-place awards at a kite meet in London and at a meet sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution.

If he'd patented the box delta design, Taylor probably would be a much wealthier man today. But he never patented any of the kite designs he created.

"I've always said that anything I've ever designed anybody was entitled to," he said.

Over the years, Taylor has made more than 2,000 kites and given away at least 1,300 — mostly to children.

"I don't store them. I give most of them away," he said. "I try to give anything I can to the different (kite) clubs around the country."

Taylor has made smaller kites out of ripstop nylon — the same material used to make hot air balloons — with wooden hickory dowel frames. The bigger kites were made of plastic, with bamboo frames.

Anyone who's ever tried to launch a kite might think getting a 20- or 30-footer into the air would be a chore. Not so, said Taylor. He would use a special frame he designed to hold the kite in place, then the kite's nose would be pointed into the wind and up it would go.

For the most part, Taylor used 600-pound test line on a reel to tether his kites.

Taylor's name has appeared in various books on kite building, making him famous worldwide among kite-flying enthusiasts.

Although the Taylor box delta design is his most famous kite, Taylor's favorite is a bird delta kite.

Schools Join To Produce Magazine

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — A Mississippi university known for its blues archives is joining forces with a Texas school heralded for its hymn-book collection to produce a new gospel music magazine.

The first issue of Rejoice, a joint publication of the University of Mississippi and Baylor University, is scheduled to be available in late September or October. Its editors hope the bimonthly magazine will entertain and educate long-time gospel music fans and entice new ones.

"We're hoping to acquaint a broader segment of society with gospel music. It is a very important part of our culture that is often overlooked," said David Stricklin, a lecturer for the Oral History Institute at Baylor, in Waco, Texas.

"You can't understand the South without understanding religion, and it's awful hard to understand religion without gospel music," Stricklin, assistant editor of Rejoice, added.

Stricklin will work with Cheryl Evans, a Ph.D. candidate in American history at the University of Mississippi. She has been involved in projects at the school's Center for the Study of Southern Culture, and she is completing a dissertation on the cultural history of the song "Dixie."

"We have actually been talking about this since 1983," Evans said in an interview at the center's headquarters, a restored antebellum home on campus. "We wanted a magazine that would have a broad appeal but also concentrate on a specific audience: gospel music fans."

Current gospel music magazines, particularly Singing News and Gospelrama, focus on specific readers — researchers or fans of black gospel music, Evans and Stricklin said. They hope to merge those with other audiences.

"We're not going to deal with one single style," Evans said. "So much of music has been looked at in categories apart from each other. ... We're hoping that Rejoice will fill a gap that nothing covers now."

Personality profiles of gospel music stars and historical articles will be regular features in the magazine. A special insert in each issue will reprint the score of a gospel song and trace its history, Evans said.

Bob Dardin, a free-lance writer for Billboard magazine, will write regularly about contemporary Christian music, and other articles will be contributed by free-lancers and scholars.

Dardin's article for the first issue of Rejoice will examine the impact Grammy Award-winner Amy Grant has had on religious music, Evans said.

Baylor and Ole Miss have worked together on Southern history and music for several years. Evans said the schools combined efforts on the magazine because each has certain strengths.

Living Museum Offers Unique Look At Nature

By JEAN McNAIR
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Before undergoing a $3.1 million renovation last year, the Virginia Living Museum was just another science museum with a few dusty displays of stuffed animals and plastic plants.

"We didn't have a focus," said Peter A. Money, the museum's director of education and interpretation.

"The trend now is museum facilities are looking at their strengths," Money said. "They're concentrating on doing one thing very well."

At the Virginia Living Museum that one thing is the flora and fauna of the Eastern coastal plain, particularly the Virginia-North Carolina region.

The Virginia Living Museum is not a zoo, even though it is filled with animals. It's not exactly a science museum, either, or a planetarium, although it does have one among its exhibits.

"It's really a combination of all those things," said Patricia A. Gordon, curatorial director for the museum, which reopened in May. "Animals and plants in natural environments, all living."

The Virginia Living Museum combines many of the animals one would find in a zoo, aviary or aquarium with the educational exhibits offered by a science museum.

Exhibits explain local habitats from the James River to the Dismal Swamp to the Chesapeake Bay amid displays of living creatures from all of those areas.

Catfish and wood turtles live in a simulated, pollution-free James River. A black snake and painted turtles share space in a tiny replica of the Dismal Swamp. Bay creatures such as horseshoe crabs, starfish and sea urchins are available for children to touch.

One darkened museum room contains nocturnal animals including flying squirrels, owls and bats.

The aviary houses blue jays, mourning doves and other birds commonly seen in Virginia. The outdoor exhibits are home to white-tailed deer, bobcats, foxes, beaver and two bald eagles.

Only the most common of creatures, the squirrel, has no display of its own but lives freely on museum grounds.

The museum also has a planetarium, a holdover from the its days as the Peninsula Nature and Science Center, but the equipment has been updated with state-of-the-art computers, video screens and slide projectors.

Robert P. Sullivan, the museum's executive director, says, "The concept of trying to exhibit living things and doing it in all of our exhibits is one thing that distinguishes living museums."

Sullivan said he has received about a dozen calls from other museums interested in duplicating the work done in Newport News and at living museums in Arizona, California, Oregon and Oklahoma.

Jet Set

A Concorde jet recently landed at the Duluth International Airport to take part in a two-day airshow. This was the first time the airliner has visited Minnesota. The Concorde travels at twice the speed of sound — or Mach 2 — which is about 1,320 mph. The plane's nose hinges down to improve the pilot's ability to see during landing. Special gold-coated glass is used in the flight deck windows, which must withstand temperatures ranging from -58° F to 248° F.

DO YOU KNOW — What two nations agreed in 1962 to build the Concorde?

Players hate to squander the trick-taking ability of a high card.

Once in a while, however, it has a more important function to fulfill.

South's jump to game on his ratty suit was somewhat optimistic. However, he had no convenient invitational bid available, and he was afraid three spades would sound merely competitive. The auction made it obvious that the high cards would be well situated, so we feel he made the best of an awkward situation, and he justified his bidding in the play of what turned out to be an excellent contract.

The opening lead of the jack of hearts was ducked all around and West continued the suit for declarer to ruff. Since declarer did not wish to spend a high trump unnecessarily, it was important to lead the first round of spades from dummy. So declarer crossed to the table by overtaking the queen of clubs with the king.

A trump fetched the ace from East. That worthy continued with a third round of hearts, but declarer was ready. He ruffed with the king and boldly finessed the ten of trumps. When that held, it was a simple matter to draw the last trump, force out the ace of diamonds and claim his contract.

It was possible that East held a doubleton ace-jack of trumps, and that the finesse would fail. However, the odds were on declarer's side—East was more likely to have a bare ace of spades than specifically the ace-jack.

An ordained Presbyterian minister and theological educator, Evans has been a consultant to corporations and to the military, helping redesign the curriculum for the Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala.

Evans and his wife, Alice Frazer Evans, the institute's director of writing and research, have co-authored a number of articles and books.

"The myth that floats around is, 'You can't do anything about the world,'" Evans said.

"A lot of what is happening in global education is simply to make people feel guilty. ... They feel badly and they stand holding hands across the nation," he said.

"But they don't fundamentally attack or transform the systemic structures that cause that poverty. We're really about that process of systemic change."

The institute was started more than five years ago by about 15 professors in ethics, theology and international relations. Evans said he and his fellow educators had examined their work in churches, universities and other forums, only to conclude they hadn't really made a difference in the world order.

They wanted to develop programs that were "genuinely transforming" and that would have an impact in 15 to 20 years, Evans said.

One such program consists of the "Third World immersion experiences" that are the key to Plowshares' work.

Participants agree to do preparatory reading in advance, live simply among their hosts so they experience the culture firsthand, and share what they encounter and learn with others upon returning home.

Evans, who has led about 20 such trips, said a study showed that the 20 to 25 members of one immersion seminar touched 55,000 people with their words and writings after returning.

Another dimension of Plowshares is conducting research on topics such as the roots of hunger, and leading workshops in Third World countries. Delegations from overseas occasionally come to the United States under the auspices of Plowshares.

An experimental program called "Citizens of the World" is in its second year. The 39 fellows include business, religious, government and education leaders from across Connecticut.

They meet every few months for discussion. Over four years, they will each make several trips abroad. In the last year the focus will be on applying the experience to bridging the gap between the haves and have-nots in Connecticut.

any service has to cover the entire city," Chused said.

There could be other "economically feasible" solutions for the city, Pitt citizens and the cable company. However, more study will be needed to identify those possibilities, Chused said.

"Up until this point, the committee has been engaged mostly in education, but we plan to continue looking at the matter, hopefully coming up with enough information to make sound recommendations to council in the spring of next year."

In addition to Chused, committee members include Carson W. Bays, Johann Bleicher, Harry Cain, Otto Dykstra, Carolyn Fulghum, Jake Postma and James L. Rees. The ninth committee position, previously held by Donna Clark, has been vacated and will be filled by the council in coming weeks.

Beginner

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Courtney Ann Gibbs, the new Miss Texas, hopes she doesn't have a case of beginners' luck.

Miss Gibbs, who had never entered a beauty pageant before, was modeling at a charity fashion show in Fort Worth earlier this year when Joe Rinelli discovered her.

After winning the Miss Metroplex pageant, Miss Gibbs entered the Miss Texas-USA 1988 contest.

Monday night she won, taking the title from a field of 108 contestants.

Big Family

NEW YORK (AP) — Madonna says in an interview on NBC's "Today" show this week that being from a big family helped make her competitive.

The pop star said that having eight brothers and sisters made her "want to stand out. You wanted to be treated special."

In the interview, to be broadcast Wednesday through Friday, Madonna said also that she's unjustly accused of being popular more because of good publicity than for talent.

"Like a good hook gets you in the door, but something has to keep you in the room," Madonna said.

Catfish Gains Prominence As Delicious Table Fare

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Catfish deserve festive recognition as a prominent resident of Pitt County. The state's first catfish processing facility to be located near Ayden has created this new delicacy to explore.

Barry Fast, author of "The Catfish Cookbook," says the catfish is one of the mainstays of cajun cooking. "It really is a delicious, sweet-tasting fish. And it's the freshest fish you can buy, because the farmers deliver them live to the processing plant, where they're killed and instantly frozen or refrigerated."

Catfish were named for their long barbels, which surround their mouths like the sensitive whiskers of a cat. They live in water with poor visibility, and the barbels help them find food and avoid enemies.

Their scaleless, naked skins have an armor-plated appearance with heavy scutes and plates. Some have adipose or fatty fins, while others have saw-toothed spines in back and breast fins.

Male catfish are oral incubators for their young. When eggs are laid, the male carries them around in their mouths until they hatch. He fasts during this time, which could be as long as six weeks.

There are varying types of catfish, such as the wels found in Europe, the Clariidae family of catfish of Africa and the glass catfish of Asia.

Some types may be very dangerous, such as those in the plotosidae family found in corral reefs and in-shore waters. They may cause intense pain and sometimes serious wounds to fishermen and others with the venom found in their back and breast fins.

Electric catfish of Africa and the Nile Valley may weigh as much as 50 pounds, and their fins can deliver a paralyzing shock of 100 volts or more.

And, the candiru of South America may enter urogenital openings of human bathers and erect its spines, which makes it impossible to remove without surgery. It also enters the gill chambers of larger fish and feed on their gills.

But, North American catfish are in the Ictaluridae family and are known as the American bullheads and mad-toms — delicious for frying, baking, broiling and stewing.

Try the catfish recipes listed below, including Yankees pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter's favorite catfish dish.

CATFISH HUNTER'S FAVORITE

CATFISH DISH

1 whole catfish
3 or 4 potatoes, sliced
3 or 4 onions, chopped

Bacon grease

Salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Baste catfish with bacon grease and place in baking dish, adding a splash of water to prevent burning or sticking. Surround with potatoes and onions, dusting lightly with salt and pepper to taste. Bake in oven for about an hour or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

HOOSIER FRIED CATFISH

16 catfish, 7 to 9 ounces
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 gallon buttermilk
3 1/2 cups corn meal
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon and 1 teaspoon red pepper
2 tablespoons salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon onion salt
2 tablespoons thyme

1 tablespoon chili powder

2 teaspoons paprika

Wash, dry and score catfish. Mix buttermilk and soy sauce. Soak catfish overnight in this mixture.

Mix rest of ingredients with buttermilk and soy sauce. Roll catfish in this mixture and fry for 10 to 15 minutes in deep fryer or electric skillet using half shortening and half vegetable oil at 350 degrees. — Sue Hess, Martinsville, Ind.

CATFISH STEW

Freeze Fruits, Vegetables For Enjoyment All Year Long

Luscious peaches, plums, strawberries, corn and sweet peas are favorite parts of warm weather meals. All too soon though, they'll be gone. Now is the time to plan ahead so that during those grey winter days you can enjoy all those wonderful fresh fruits and vegetables. Whether it's corn-on-the-cob or strawberry shortcake you crave, you can have it whenever you want when you've stocked your freezer.

There are lots of advantages to home freezing. By purchasing abundant in-season produce you avoid paying twice as much for the same fruit a few months later. Freezing is also a great way to use home or farmstand crops of zucchini, green beans, peaches, berries and other fruits or vegetables that are available in summer but scarce in winter. Home freezing allows you to control ingredient content and portion amount. Special low-calorie diets are easily met and can be prepared in easy-to-use single portions.

Freezing takes very little equipment, in most cases all you need are freezer bags and your freezer. The heavy-duty plastic helps to lock in flavor, seal out freezer odor and also helps prevent freezer burn. The recloseable zipper-seal also allows you to remove small amounts of produce then safely return the remaining contents to the freezer. The flexible plastic accommodates irregular shapes and allows packages to be stacked for most efficient use of your freezer.

There are different methods for freezing fruits and vegetables. Some of the methods are easier than you think. Most vegetables need to be blanched to destroy enzymes that can affect flavor, color and texture of vegetables. For fruit, there are several different preparation methods. Tray freezing (dry-pack) works well with small berries and enables you to remove small quantities of fruit as needed. Other methods are sugar and syrup-pack. Consult your cookbook or the booklets offered below for the best method. Which ever method you use for freezing the fruits and vegetables, there are certain basic steps of preparation.

•Start with the best produce you can buy. Don't think of freezing as a great way to preserve all the less

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Q. Is there a diet that gives relief for multiple sclerosis? Mrs. S.K., Greenville.

A. Multiple sclerosis patients usually have lower energy expenditures than other people. We often find that the MS patient is overweight. A diet low in fat and low in calories, but with all the needed nutrients, generally is in order.

Multiple sclerosis is a degenerative disease of the central nervous system. Patients often experience some paralysis, tremor, and/or disturbance of speech. There are researchers working to see if diet can be manipulated to provide relief.

In the United Kingdom, for example, some patients studied benefited from reducing fat intake to 10 percent of the calories. That's an extreme change from the typical eastern North Carolina diet, which approaches 50 percent fat calories.

Some patients in another study benefited from a gluten-free diet that also was low in saturated fat, low in sugar and supplemented with vitamins and minerals. A gluten-free diet eliminates all foods with wheat, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat and malt. This is an extremely difficult diet to plan and requires the expertise of a nutritionist.

In another study, some patients reported benefits from increasing linoleic acid to their diets. Linoleic acid is an essential fatty acid that everybody needs daily and is usually found in oils. At this time, though, no one diet approach seems best.

Patients with any disease, such as MS, diabetes, hypertension, high cholesterol or cancer that require dietary modification, need to be under the supervision of their family physician. Physicians will often have a patient receive counseling from a registered dietitian. Dietitians can assist patients with the details of their diet plan. We are fortunate in our area to have an increasing number of well qualified registered dietitians.

A. I am a new diabetic and my neighbor told me to drink six to seven cups of peach leaf tea every day to make my blood less sweet. Is this OK?

A. I hope you will talk with your family physician, since it is important that you receive help in planning your diet, exercise and, if necessary, medications for controlling your diabetes.

Dr. Holly Matthews in East Carolina University's Sociology, Anthropology and Economics Department, tells me peach leaf tea is a common home remedy in the Carolinas. She has studied how eastern North Carolinians manage their diabetes.

While some teas and herbal remedies may be safe and perhaps helpful, others can be dangerous. One reference book shows peach leaves to have hydrogen cyanide in it (66 milligrams per 100 milligrams in the leaves). Hydrogen cyanide is an extremely poisonous compound. It is difficult to determine how much hydrogen cyanide might be in your tea.

You can write for a free article about herb safety. Ask for HHS Publication No. (FDA) 84-1105, Publication Office, Public Health Service, FDA, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20857.

Dear Readers: Several people have asked me if I make up the questions for this column. The answer is nope. I do shorten or rephrase some of the letters we get to save space. Keep your letters and calls coming.

Dave Robinson, 17, of Mt. Gilead, won first place in the senior turkey barbecue contest with his recipe and demonstration entitled "Turkey Packs the Winning Punch." He won a trip to the national turkey barbecue contest in Louisville, Ky., from the North Carolina Turkey Federation.

TURKEY PACKS THE WINNING PUNCH
3/4 cup ketchup
3/4 cup vinegar
1/2 stick butter
3/4 cup brown sugar
1/8 cup Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon pepper
1 tablespoon salt
Dash of garlic salt
Dash of seasoning salt (such as Lowery's)
1 tablespoon chili powder

Mix first three ingredients together and bring to a boil. Take off the heat and mix in other ingredients. Marinate deboned, sliced turkey breast pieces overnight in the refrigerator. Cook slices 10 to 15 minutes, or until done.

Robert Furr, 16, of Harrisburg, prepared a simple, very nutritious low-calorie main dish called Vegetable Pasta with Chicken. He won $150 toward expenses to attend the National Junior Horticulture Association's Convention in Indianapolis in late October. The prize was from Southern States Cooperative Inc.

VEGETABLE PASTA WITH CHICKEN
1 cup yellow squash, stripped 1 cup zucchini, stripped
1 cup carrots, stripped
1 tablespoon peanut oil
2 cups chicken, diced
2 tablespoons peanut oil Sauce:
1/3 cup water
1/2 tablespoon corn starch
1/2 teaspoon sesame oil
1 tablespoon soy sauce

To make vegetable strips, use a vegetable peeler and peel off stripes all around the vegetable. Do not use the seeds. Saute the vegetables in 1 tablespoon of peanut oil for 2 minutes.

To make the sauce, mix the cornstarch with the water. Then add the sesame oil and the soy sauce. Pour the sauce over the cooked chicken. Heat the chicken mixture until the sauce thickens. Spoon the chicken mixture over the vegetables. This recipe serves four, and one serving has only 127 calories.

Freeze Your Produce

desirable fruits and vegetables. While freezing will stop deterioration, it will not improve the produce.

•Buy at the peak of ripeness and choose pieces that are bruised — and cut — free.

•Freeze as soon as possible after picking or buying.

•Make sure produce is cool before packing and freezing to ensure quick freezing. Slow freezing causes large, less desirable ice crystals, while fast freezing produces smaller crystals which thaw to form a firmer product.

•For fastest freezing, place bags directly on freezer shelves, not on other frozen food. Once frozen, bags can be stacked.

BLACK RUSSIAN BREAD
4 cups rye flour
3 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups whole-bran cereal, crushed
2 tablespoons caraway seeds, crushed
2 teaspoons instant coffee powder
2 teaspoons onion powder
1/2 teaspoon fennel seeds, crushed
2 packages dry yeast
3 cups water
1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 cup dark molasses
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon cornstarch

Combine rye and all-purpose flours. In large bowl, thoroughly mix 2 1/3 cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, cereal, caraway seeds, coffee and onion powders, fennel seeds and yeast.

Combine 2 1/2 cups water, vinegar, molasses, chocolate and butter in saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Butter and chocolate do not need to melt.

Gradually add liquid to flour-herb-yeast mixture and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1/2 cup remaining flour mixture. Beat at high speed 2 minutes.

Stir in enough remaining flour mixture to make soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Cover and let rest 15 minutes.

Knead dough until smooth and elastic, about 10 to 15 minutes. Dough may be sticky. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm place free from drafts until doubled, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down and turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half. Shape each half into ball about 5 inches in diameter. Place each ball in center of greased 8-inch round cake pan. Cover and let rise in warm place free from drafts until doubled, about 1 hour.

Bake at 350 degrees 45 to 50 minutes. Combine cornstarch with remaining 1/2 cup cold water and brush mixture over top of loaves. Return bread to oven and bake 2 to 3 minutes longer until glaze is set. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 round loaves.

Simple Menus Are Tops For Relaxed Party Mood

Why wait for an excuse to throw a party? Some of the very best party menus require little advance preparation. What makes them so memorable outside of the sheer spontaneity of it all is their reliance on simple foods, with lots of flavor, beautifully presented.

Whether you're in the mood for a barbecue or sit-down dinner under the stars, a well-stocked pantry and freezer supplemented by a quick stop at the supermarket make it possible to put together menus for both in under an hour.

Veal rib chops stuffed with a robust trio of Gorgonzola cheese, toasted walnuts and fresh chives make an impressive yet nearly effortless entree for a sophisticated barbecue. Purchase chops that are 1-inch thick, then use a sharp, thin-bladed knife to form the pockets. Veal is naturally lean, so grill or broil the chops to medium for best results.

While the coals heat, start the pasta for the salad and assemble the eye-catching first course. A purchased dressing streamlines the preparation of colorful marinated Mushrooms and Peppers Dijon, while crispy, crunchy California Iceberg Lettuce cut into rafts makes for a spectacular presentation. When selecting Iceberg Lettuce, look for a "springy-firm" head that gives slightly to gentle pressure.

Pronto Pasta 'n Olive Salad goes together as fast as its name suggests. Quickly cool the pasta under cold running water, drain well and toss with a medley of fresh-from-the-garden vegetables, California ripe olives and an easy herb vinaigrette. Ripe olives add a rich color and subtle flavor to all kinds of salads, main dishes and snacks. And large pitted ripe olives have just six calories apiece, making them perfect for guilt-free, pre-dinner nibbling.

For the after-five cook who has the luxury of a day's advance notice, the Summer Vegetable Veal Ragout featured in the second menu will be remembered long after the last glorious bite. Like most stews, a ragout actually benefits from being cooked ahead and reheated. Veal cubes can be cut from the shoulder, shank or round. Their delicate flavor is the perfect match for seasonal vegetables, and a gentle hand with the seasonings and flour produces a light, richly flavored sauce.

Serve Pesto-Olive Pita Pizzas at the table or out on the deck while the ragout reheats. Packaged pita bread is topped with prepared pesto sauce, sun-dried tomatoes, California ripe olive slices and freshly grated Parmesan cheese, then baked just long enough to crisp the crust.

Complementing the ragout is a melange of summer-fresh fruits tossed with bite-sized chunks of crisp California Iceberg Lettuce. Use the large outer leaves to shape the edible bowl.

For a sweet, stylish finale that works with both menus, scoop several flavors of sorbet into stemmed glasses and garnish with fresh mint.

MUSHROOMS AND PEPPERS DIJON ON ICEBERG LETTUCE RAFTS

- 2 cups sliced mushrooms
- 3/4 cup each: red, green and yellow bell pepper strips
- 1/3 cup dijon-style vinaigrette dressing*
- 1 head lettuce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons minced parsley

Combine mushrooms, peppers and dressing in a bowl. Let stand 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, or cover and refrigerate overnight. Just before serving, cut lettuce into 6 slices or rafts. Arrange on individual plates. Stir parsley into vegetable mixture and divide evenly between lettuce rafts. Makes 6 servings.

*Prepared or homemade Italian vinaigrette dressing blended with 1 1/2 teaspoons dijon-style mustard may be substituted.

VEAL CHOPS STUFFED WITH GORGONZOLA AND WALNUTS

- 6 veal rib chops (8 ounces each), 1-inch thick
- 4 ounces Gorgonzola cheese*
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, softened
- 2 tablespoons chopped toasted walnuts
- 1 tablespoon snipped chives

Trim excess fat from veal rib chops. Cut 2 1/2-inch horizontal pocket through center of large muscle in each chop. Combine cheese and butter. Add walnuts and chives; mix well. Divide mixture into six portions, stuffing one portion into each pocket. Close pockets with small skewers or wooden picks. Place chops on grid over medium coals, and grill 12 to 14 minutes, turning once. Or, broil 3 to 5 inches from heat, 5 to 6 minutes per side to desired doneness. Makes 6 servings.

*Domestic or other imported blue cheese may be substituted.

PRONTO PASTA 'N OLIVE SALAD

- 4 cups cooked, drained and cooled pasta bow-ties
- 1 cup small broccoli florets
- 1 cup diced tomato
- 1 cup pitted ripe olives, halved
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced yellow summer squash

Tangy Dressing
Toss pasta, broccoli, tomato, olives and squash with 1/3 cup dressing. Mound on platter or spoon into bowl. Serve at room temperature or chilled. Pass remaining dressing. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Tangy Dressing: In jar, combine 1/2 cup vegetable oil, 6 tablespoons red wine vinegar, 1/4 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon each — thyme, rosemary, marjoram and pepper — 1 medium garlic clove, minced. Shake well to combine.

PESTO-OLIVE PITA PIZZAS

- 1/3 cup pesto sauce
- 4 (6 to 7-inch diameter) pita breads
- 1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
- 2 tablespoons slivered sun-dried tomatoes (packed in oil) or sliced pimiento
- 1/3 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Divide pesto sauce evenly between pita breads, spreading to edges. Arrange olives and tomatoes on top. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake until edges of bread are crisp and browned, 8 to 10 minutes. Cut each pizza into 6 wedges to serve. Makes 6 first-course servings.

ICEBERG LETTUCE FRUIT SALAD

- 1 head lettuce, cored, rinsed, drained and chilled
- 4 1/2 cups assorted fresh fruits, chilled
- 1 carton (8 ounces) plain low-fat yogurt
- 1 to 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 teaspoon fresh lime juice
- 3/4 teaspoon finely shredded lime peel

Remove outer leaves of lettuce to line large shallow salad bowl. Cut enough remaining lettuce into bite-size chunks to measure 1 1/2 cups. Gently toss lettuce and fruit; spoon into bowl. Combine remaining ingredients for dressing. Drizzle 1/2 cup over fruit mixture. Pass remaining dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Microwave Savvy Can Make Life Much Easier

When the microwave oven was first introduced, some claimed it would replace the conventional oven. Because of that claim, numerous food aficionados disdained the microwave, while many of the consumers who did purchase microwaves were intimidated by the heretofore unexplored mysteries of microwave cooking.

Since good reference materials and cookbooks were not available in the early days, those new owners often turned to themselves with very expensive coffee warmers instead of the time-saving miracle workers they had expected.

The microwave oven will never replace the conventional oven. It is, however, a convenient appliance that can make life much easier.

The microwave is great for reheating not only coffee, but all types of leftovers because when foods are reheated in the microwave they retain more of their original nutrients and color.

But if that's all you're using your microwave for, you're missing a wonderful world of cooking. Microwave cooking doesn't have to be intimidating; all it takes is a little microwave savvy.

One thing to remember, though, is don't be overly ambitious in the beginning. Select a cookbook that has recipes for the beginner, intermediate and advanced microwave cook. Begin with something as simple as scrambled eggs with cheese to complement your microwaved morning coffee. You also might try microwaving vegetables — you won't believe how great they can taste.

As you become more comfortable with the microwave, you'll find many recipes that look like you've spent hours on them can be easily prepared in minutes. An elegant dinner entree such as "Stuffed Chicken Breasts with Hollandaise Sauce" can be prepared and placed on the table in less than 20 minutes.

The chicken breast is pounded flat and coated with a piquant layer of Dijon mustard and shallots. Breasts are then stuffed with asparagus spears and rolled in a bread crumb mixture. Simply place chicken rolls in a shallow glass dish, cover with microwave safe plastic wrap, vent and follow the microwave instructions.

Micro-wave safe plastic film provides even cooking and retention of maximum moisture and flavor. Always remember to vent plastic wrap to allow steam to escape. To vent, fold back a small edge of the wrap.

Microwaveable plastic film is also important for the standing time called for in many recipe instructions. Standing time is necessary for the completion of many dishes. After removing the dish from the microwave, leave the plastic wrap on and let the dish set for the required time.

The hollandaise sauce gives the finishing touch and is easily prepared in the microwave, too. You'll want to make this classic sauce for vegetables and meats often.

To top off this elegant entree, serve a special dessert. "Rum-Raisin Sauce" is delicious served over ice cream and pound cake. For an extra-special touch, the sauce can be flamed before serving.

Both of these recipes are from a new microwave cookbook, "Microwave Savvy." The booklet includes beginning, intermediate and advanced recipes in five categories. To obtain a copy, send $1 to Microwave Savvy, P.O. Box 4290, Young America, MN 55399.

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS WITH HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts, split (about 3/4 pound)
- 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
- 1 teaspoon minced shallot or onion
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus spears, defrosted
- 1/4 cup buttered cracker crumbs
- 1/3 cup butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup sliced almonds, toasted

Cover chicken breasts with plastic wrap and pound lightly with meat mallet. Combine mustard and shallots; spread evenly one side of each chicken breast. Place 1/4 of asparagus spears on each mustard-coated side of chicken breast and roll-up. Coat roll-ups with crumbs. Place, seam side down, in 8-inch square glass baking dish. Cover with plastic wrap.

Microwave at high (100 percent power) 6 to 7 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Let stand covered 3 minutes.

For hollandaise sauce, place butter in a 2-cup glass measuring container. Microwave at high (100 percent power) 45 to 60 seconds or until melted. Whisk in lemon juice, egg yolks and salt.

Microwave at medium-high (70 percent power) 15 to 30 seconds or until melted. Stir in 1/4 cup sliced almonds. Microwave at high (100 percent power) 5 to 6 minutes or until toasted; stir every 30 seconds.

RUM-RAISIN SAUCE

- 2 tablespoons light rum
- 1/2 cup golden raisins
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg, beaten

Stir rum into raisins; set aside. Place butter in heatproof and microwavable 1-quart casserole. Microwave at high (100 percent power) 45 to 60 seconds, or until melted. Stir in sugar. Microwave at high 2 to 3 minutes or until bubbling; stir twice. Stir small amount of hot butter-sugar mixture into beaten egg. Stir egg mixture back into remaining butter-sugar mixture. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave at medium (50 percent power) 2 to 3 minutes or until thickened; stir twice. Stir in rum-raisin mixture.

For dessert, pour sauce over ice cream and/or pound cake. Sauce can also be served over ham.

Makes 1 1/4 cups sauce. For flaming dessert, place 2 additional tablespoons light rum in 1-cup glass measuring container. Microwave at high 15 seconds. Stir into sauce in heatproof dish. Ignite and spoon over dessert.

The electric blender is a versatile appliance. It can be used to grate nuts, chocolate or hard cheeses; crumb bread and crackers; puree fruits, vegetables, meats, fish and poultry; mince parsley; chop vegetables; and make Hollandaise sauce and mayonnaise.

MICROWAVE MAGIC — Prepare asparagus stuffed chicken breasts smothered with hollandaise sauce in the microwave? It's easy if you follow directions given in today's story on microwave cooking.
