Three Tankers Await Escort

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Three Kuwaiti tankers awaiting reflagging by the United States were refueled overnight and appeared "ready to go" up the Persian Gulf, shipping sources said today.

Also today, Iran announced that it test-fired an anti-ship missile into gulf waters as it wrapped up naval maneuvers code-named "Martyrdom."

And a West German Defense Ministry spokesman said his government may send a naval detachment to the North Atlantic or Mediterranean to free up U.S. ships for Persian Gulf duty.

The Kuwaiti tankers have been moored outside the gulf awaiting the raising of the Stars and Stripes and the go-ahead for the second U.S. Navy-escorted convoy through the waterway.

Shipping sources in the United Arab Emirates said the three vessels were refueled overnight, then moved to a "more isolated" anchorage some 17 miles off the Arabian Sea coastal ports of Khor Fakkan and Fujaira.

Moored nearby, they said, were several of the U.S. warships that will serve as escorts on the tankers' voyage from the anchorage, through the narrow Strait of Hormuz and up the gulf to Kuwait's oil loading terminal.

Already bearing new names, port of registry — Philadelphia — and the funnel insignia of the Chesapeake Shipping Co., their technical new owner, the ships apparently needed only to raise the U.S. flag before they could sail, the sources said.

"The American captains are aboard and it looks like they're ready to go," said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The three tankers, the 46,723-ton Gas King and the petroleum products tankers Sea Isle City and Ocean City, of 81,283 and 79,999 tons respectively, are among 11 Kuwaiti tankers to be re-registered under the American flag and sailed with naval escort. Two others were reflagged earlier.

U.S. officials have refused to say when the second operation will begin, but shipping sources have predicted the reflagging could take place today, with the convoy leaving for Kuwait in a few days.

Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, commander of the Navy's Gulf-based Middle East Force, has said only that the next convoy will leave within a month.

An executive based in Kuwait said Thursday the program was proceeding "full speed."

Two Fires Being Investigated

Two fires — one that gutted the unoccupied Mid-Eastern Brokers building at 117 W. 10th St. Thursday night and one that damaged the office at Kings Arms Apartments on Charles Boulevard early this morning — are being investigated by Greenville police and fire officials.

Assistant Fire-Rescue Chief Raymond Carney said this morning the fire on 10th Street was reported at 9:28 p.m. and said the rear portion of the building was "fully involved" when fire units arrived from the city's main fire station five blocks away.

Carney, who said the building was gutted by the flames, said the fire was under control within 45 minutes. Fire units remained at the scene all night as a precaution, he said.

The front showroom-office portion of the building, once the home of Folger Buick Co., was heavily damaged by a fire in September 1985, and never repaired, Carney said. Although the rear shop area of the building had been used since the 1985 fire, the building has been vacant for some time.

Records at the Pitt County Tax

Assessor's office set the depreciated tax value of the building at $28,030.

Police detective C.E. Weatherington, who said the fire started in the "garage area," said a witness "heard glass breaking," then saw a man standing in an alleyway between the old car dealership and an adjoining building. The witness then saw flames and saw the man "turn and run," Weatherington said.

Weatherington said the Kings Arms office fire "appears to be a break-in and whoever broke in started the fire."

The investigator, who said one fire was started in a couch and another in a pile of paper beside a desk, said the office had been ransacked but apparently nothing was taken.

Carney said the Kings Arms fire was reported at 2:58 a.m. and said the flames were brought under control "in a matter of five minutes," after fire units arrived.

But Carney said "medium fire damage" resulted to the room where the fire started. The other two rooms of the office apartment received "heavy smoke damage and light water damage," he said.

Earlier story on B-14

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright said today he had received word that leaders of five Central American countries meeting in Guatemala had reached verbal agreement on a regional peace plan that includes a cease-fire.

Wright told reporters at his regular daily news conference that he had received a telephone call at 4:30 a.m. from Ambassador Guido Fernandez of Costa Rica, who told him that the "five countries have accepted the Arias plan for peace in Central America, with certain modifications."

The heads of state of the five countries met to discuss a peace proposal put forward by President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica, which calls for an end to regional hostilities and steps toward democratic liberties.

ASU Cracking Down On Party Violence

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Officials at Appalachian State University are attacking the problem of violence at student parties after incidents this summer in which one student was shot to death and two others were stabbed.

And Boone police moved this week to put into effect a new alcohol control program and increase enforcement of the town's noise ordinance.

"There is concern from the students in regards to what can be done to insure safety," Dick DiBernardi, an adviser to fraternities at ASU, told the Winston-Salem Journal.

DiBernardi said that fraternities and other student groups are learning that, "when they have a social function, they've got to have control. They can't put a keg (of beer) on the porch and say, 'Come one, come all.'"

On July 11, Jabe Vernon Hardee III, a student from Wilmington, was shot to death after a fight at the Pi Kappa Psi fraternity house. Two Gastonia men, who came to a party there uninvited, have been charged with murder.

Last Saturday, two students and a Boone resident suffered minor stab wounds during a brawl at a house where several Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity members are living this summer.

Another Boone man, the brother of one of the victims, was arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon. Police say that the man with the knife and his brother came uninvited to the party, which grew to 250 people.

DiBernardi said that alumni of Tau Kappa Epsilon were to meet this week to discuss the latest incident. They want to determine if the party was an official fraternity function, he said.

Barbara Daye, an assistant vice chancellor, said that ASU counselors and parents discussed Hardee's death during orientation last week. About 2,000 freshmen and 1,700 parents attended the orientation.

"We felt it important to talk about it, for the parents to think about their children's safety," Ms. Daye said. "It was important for us to say that Boone is a small town and some of our folks feel like it's a safe haven. But, we want our students and parents to know that violence can happen here."

In filing as a candidate, Mrs. Council, who served on the West Greenville Development Corp. from 1984 to 1985, said "As a member of the City Council my concerns relate to the orderly growth of Greenville and Pitt County for all citizens.

"Therefore, I support the redevelopment of downtown Greenville and the central business district involving coalitions between private and public sectors including all adjoining neighborhoods."

Mrs. Council said she also supported "the expansion of the industrial park to increase employment opportunities for all citizens in Pitt County and the Pitt County Medical Park concept encouraging an effective and efficient medical delivery system.

"I support the continuation of eradicating crime in our neighborhoods and equal opportunities of employment on all levels from entry to management and administrative city government, a balanced budget that is cost effective, the continuation and improvement of all city services, city contracts being assessable to black and other culture ethnics," she said.

He has been the licentiate minister at Mount Zion Baptist Church in Winston-Salem and the pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church in Mocksville. He has led his Greenville congregation since October of 1981.

"I believe one of the greatest evils in the world is ignorance," Parker said, "and that every child should have the opportunity to receive training at the tender ages for his or her mind and have positive role models through each stage of their education."

Parker said that, if elected, "I would work for the best possible school system that Greenville and Pitt County can have."

He is a former president of the Youth Department of Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention, U.S.A., and has served on the executive board of the Mental Health Association of Pitt County. In the past he served as church work chairman of the Pitt County NAACP, ordination chairman and executive board member of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Association, and executive committee member and benefit commission member of the General Baptist State Convention in North Carolina.

He is married to the former R. LaVerna Grantham of Goldsboro. They have a daughter, Kelly.

Gulf

before the next convoy sets out, shipping sources say.

One shipping executive, speaking Thursday on condition of anonymity, said the number of vessels passing through the Strait of Hormuz in the past 24 hours exceeded the normal average of 20 per day.

Some ship owners have said they are avoiding the U.S. escort convoys for fear of Iranian fire. During the first convoy to Kuwait, in July, the supertanker Bridgeton was damaged by a mine believed planted by Iran.

Another reason for the increase was the anticipated end today of Iran's military exercises in the gulf, which began Tuesday. Few ships braved the Strait of Hormuz early in the exercises, which originally were scheduled to end Thursday but were extended for a day.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said today that Iranian President Ali Khamenei visited the port of Bandar Abbas, on the Strait of Hormuz, and ordered the test-firing of the shore-based missile.

Jobless Levels Hit Decade-Low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment dropped to a decade-low 6.0 percent last month, the government said today, and President Reagan hailed the figures as "pointing to a solid start for the economy" in the months ahead.

Appearing before White House reporters about two hours after the Labor Department reported a July employment gain of 470,000 jobs, Reagan hailed the report, which recorded a 0.1 percentage point drop in the jobless rate.

The job gains were spurred by an unusual, seasonally adjusted growth in manufacturing payrolls that more than offset a decline of 190,000 in the previous month.

Two million more Americans now have jobs than was the case at the beginning of the year, the Labor Department's monthly household survey showed. Over the last 12 months, the nation's jobless rate has fallen a full percentage point.

A separate business survey showed a seasonally adjusted non-farm payroll growth of 300,000 new jobs in July, including a jump of 70,000 factory positions despite a loss of 40,000 auto industry jobs.

Of today's report, which recorded the lowest unemployment rate since December 1979, Reagan said:

"This breakthrough does not occur in a hyper-inflated economy but is based instead on strong growth and steady job creation."

He called the unemployment report "remarkable news."

Flawed Policy

The exam exemption policy under consideration by the Pitt County Board of Education is a flawed approach that should be rejected because it rewards mediocrity and diminishes quality education.

By allowing high school students with C averages to bypass final exams — as long as they have good attendance — the policy promotes average academic performance. It prioritizes attendance over achievement and does students a disservice — especially college bound students — by not adequately preparing them to take tests.

If the board adopts this faulty approach, it will be dodging a responsibility to set standards for quality education. The board's job is to make policy that helps students, not hinders them. This permissive plan damages the student's education.

A no-fault clause for students who do take the exam further weakens the policy. Any student with good attendance and a passing grade can waive the score of a final if it lowers his or her final grade — a fact that renders the final exam meaningless.

The proposal is not consistent with the goal of excellence in education. Students should be rewarded for good performance and effort, not for simply being in class — something they are required to do anyway.

Basing exam exemption on attendance is aimed at getting kids in school, proponents of the plan say. But that philosophy is not the correct approach to attendance or exams. Attendance is required to attain knowledge and exams are required to test cumulative knowledge and ability. Besides, increased attendance means more state dollars for a school system, since funding is based on average daily membership — how many students are in school regularly. Advocates of exemption likely see a means of utilizing exam policy to manipulate attendance and increase revenues.

Exams are required in college and are part of the preparation for that environment. A policy with no exemptions would be preferable but if a compromise is made it should be for seniors only — and only if they have a strong A average.

If Pitt County intends to maintain a quality education system, as its goals state, it must have a more stringent exam policy than the one proposed. The plan being studied is a questionable one that should be shelved in favor of an approach that rewards kids for quality performance, not merely going to school.

Cruising Blues

Officials in a number of North Carolina communities are reacting to excesses they've endured at hands (or wheels) of their cruising practitioners. Some have adopted ordinances to curb the practice and there's reason to think more will follow. A pattern may have been set.

Cruising isn't what it used to be.

In the past it was an occasion for tooling around town trying to impress the opposite sex with the shine of chrome and roar of mufflers. Since then, the scene has deteriorated and you never read of a welcome mat out for cruisers in North Carolina — but we are reading of worn welcome mats being jerked out from under them.

In the past four months Salisbury, Mount Airy and Concord have passed ordinances trying to stem or end the practice. In Lexington four police officers are paid overtime to patrol the traffic jam each weekend night along a 10-block stretch where during peak hours as many as 2,000 cars cruise at a snail's pace through downtown.

If they're anything like those in other communities they leave in their wakes a lot of broken bottles, throwaway drink cans, waste paper and other litter for cleanup crews.

Salisbury's city manager says that town had to crack down after a shooting last fall involved a cruiser and incidents that "are too distasteful to mention." License checks revealed many of the cruisers did not live in the city and though the crowd consisted mostly of high schoolers there were also adults involved.

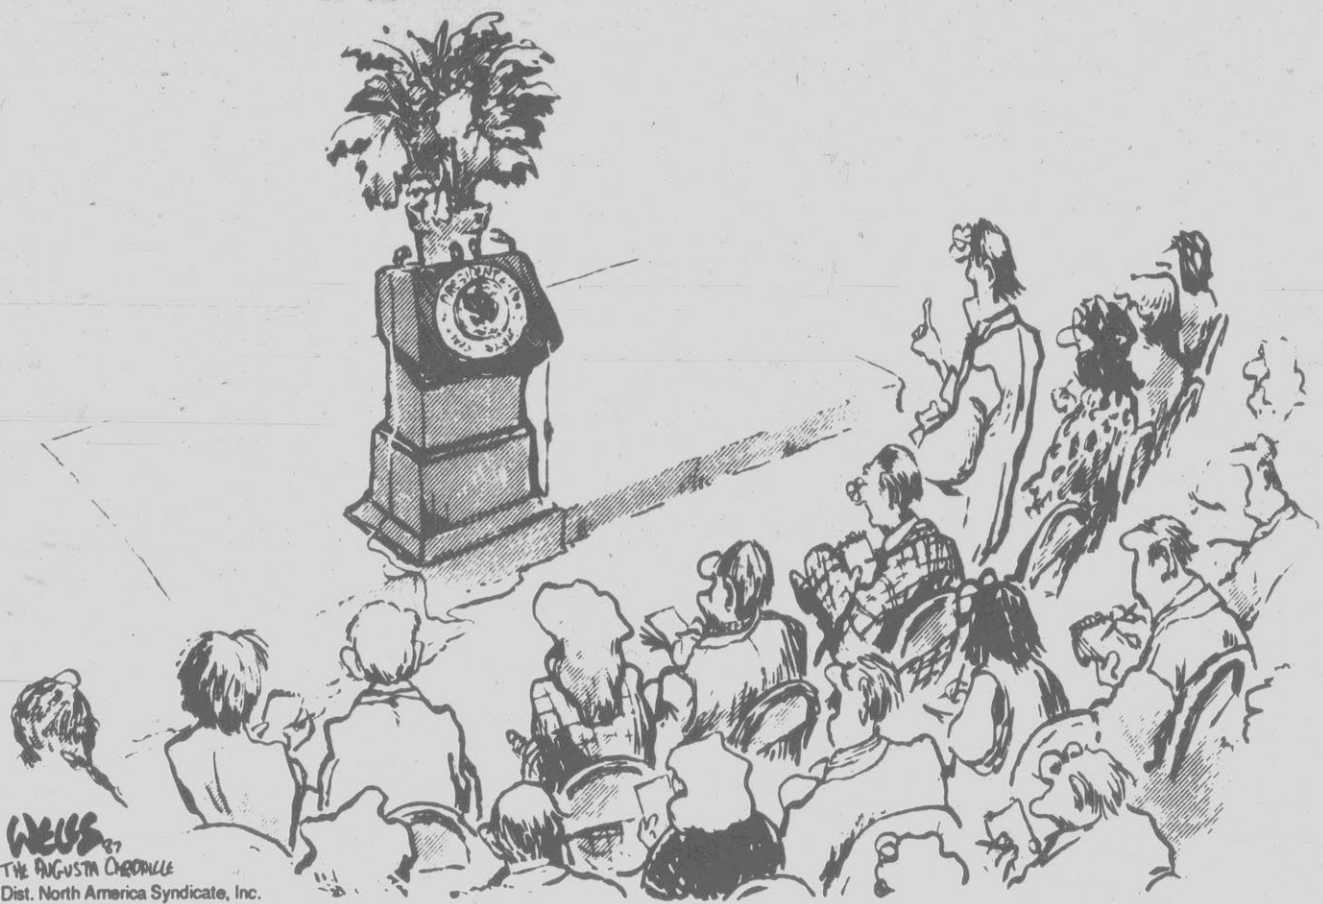

In Concord, about 65 teen-agers showed up at a meeting to criticize a new no-parking ordinance. Most who met with city officials were said to seem sincere about trying to end problems of litter, fights and drinking. They wanted another chance but as one aldermen said, "we had all the good kids down at our meeting. The bad kids weren't there."

Williamston got into the act too. That community ordered no parking in its parking lots after 8 p.m.

Mount Airy's Police Chief estimates as many as 3,000 cars cruised a town with 7,200 people before an anti-cruising ordinance was adopted. "It's a universal problem", he added.

We agree.

LIVE PRESIDENTIAL PRESS CONFERENCE

WEEK
THE AUGUSTA CHRONICLE
Dist. North America Syndicate, Inc.

— Haynes Johnson —

What The Hearings Accomplished

WASHINGTON — James "Scotty" Reston, who stands with Walter Lippmann as American journalism's most influential commentator of the last 50 years, once promulgated what should be characterized as Reston's Rule for Reporters. Beware, he warned, of making the deadline but missing the point.

For the last three months, many reporters have been making the Iran-contra deadline but, now that the public hearings have ended, how well did we grasp the point?

There is, of course, no agreement on the main significance of the congressional hearings, nor can there be, given the contradictory nature of the voluminous record before the public and the highly partisan political atmosphere surrounding it. That record is open to numerous interpretations and will be analyzed and debated for years. But, before memory of the experience fades, here's one view of what the hearings accomplished.

The most important aspect of the hearings is a negative, that is, what would the consequences have been for the democratic system if the hearings had not been held?

Indisputably documented these last three months was a we-know-best, above-the-law brand of zealotry that flourished in Ronald Reagan's second term. This mentality, coupled with an obsessive penchant for secrecy, led Reagan's administration deeper and deeper into the world of covert operations and extralegal actions. These actions were unaccountable to normal processes of government and unknown to elected officials in Congress, to senior Cabinet officers, according to their testimony, and to the American people.

Despite all that has been revealed about the secret arms deals, multiple covert Swiss bank accounts and clandestine military resupply efforts for the Nicaraguan contras, the hearings ended with the disturbing notion that these were only a part of other, secret worldwide operations formed to carry out what testimony vaguely described at several points as "other projects." What these were for, who authorized them and what damage they could cause are unknown. It also isn't known whether these projects were being planned or being carried out, leaving the public with many major, unanswered questions about them.

Beyond dispute is another fact brought out in the hearings. It involves the kinds of attitudes that produced and sanctioned the secret operations. The evidence is unmistakable that the more the Reagan administration embarked on secret activities, the greater the appetite for them increased inside the White House, especially considering the apparent success in keeping them secret and beyond political and perhaps legal accountability.

Left unchecked, such secret and perhaps illegal activities operating out of the White House were a threat to the American governmental system. The hearings did not end this kind of threat nor offer guarantees that such problems will not recur.

Depending on their personal and political views, critics of the hearings complained that they were boring, a waste of time and money, an unwarranted intrusion into the president's powers to set the nation's foreign policy agenda and unfair to Reagan.

All of these were demonstrably untrue. Even if they were dull, which they certainly were not, and even with reporters' fabled one-day-wonder mentality and the public's lack of attention span, the hearings served a significant purpose: They provided an open forum for examination of fundamental constitutional questions.

Most emphatically, the hearings gave Reagan and the causes he espouses — from contra aid to necessity for covert operations — the best possible defense he will receive. The president, courtesy of his many backers on the investigating committees, was given every break and every conceivable chance to offer justification or rationalization for his actions and inaction.

Also aired most favorably were his pursuit of wrongheaded, if not disastrous, policies. Lest there be any question about those policies, doubters need only refer to the latest television pictures of screaming Iranian mobs and of U.S. ships shepherding reflagged Kuwaiti tankers in the Persian Gulf.

Keeping in mind Reston's Rule, the most important fact about the Iran-contra hearings was that they were held. They provided a necessary check on abuses of power and, by educating the public however imperfectly, served to alert the people to the dangers of such abuses.

Peace Plan Ambiguous Compromise

WASHINGTON — The Central American initiative primarily drafted by House Speaker Jim Wright and announced by President Reagan Wednesday was issued on blank stationery without any sign that it was an official document.

The language on key questions was ambiguous and contorted, evidence more of a political compromise between Reagan and Wright, a Texas Democrat, than of a shift in policy.

No top official was dispatched to discuss it with the leaders of Central America, who begin a summit Thursday in Guatemala; copies were sent by cable. Wright, not the secretary of state, briefed the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican governments in advance.

Reagan left little doubt he was uncomfortable with the contents. He spoke only of a "general agreement among us to go forward with a renewed diplomatic initiative in Central America along the lines" of the six-point plan.

Yet, however halting the presidential commitment, the plan, in combination with the current Central American summit, could usher in an intensive round of negotiations, perhaps the most serious since Reagan took office in 1981.

There is a possibility of the first direct U.S. negotiations with the Sandinistas since the administration broke off talks in January 1985. Also possible is that after years of scarcely veiled hostility, the administration may decide to cooperate closely with various regional peace initiatives, including the Contadora process led by eight Latin countries, and more recent plans sponsored by Guatemala and Costa Rica.

Whether any of this comes to pass depends in part on how the administration handles two key issues: how to negotiate a cease-fire between the Managua government and the U.S.-backed Contras, and whether Reagan will modify his goal of installing a "genuine democracy" to replace the Sandinistas.

If he chooses to negotiate a cease-fire directly or through intermediaries, but over the heads of the Contras, it implies that the Sandinistas will be allowed to retain their grip on power. If he insists on a process that would lead to their removal, negotiations are unlikely even to take place.

The document is ambiguous on both points, and the tenuous, bipartisan political backing the plan now has could dissipate once the issues are clarified.

So many players are involved in the process, both in Washington and in the region itself, that the results are anything but predictable.

Although many aspects are unattractive to the Sandinistas, Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega did not reject it in a speech broadcast Wednesday night. Instead, in line with his oft-repeated position, he called for immediate, direct talks with the United States to guarantee

"the legitimate interests of Nicaragua and the United States."

Honduran military officials fear that if there is a signed agreement upwards of 15,000 armed Contras will return from Nicaragua to their old bases in Honduras. They have warned that, if any final deal is struck, they will send the Contras packing to the United States, diplomatic sources said.

The document called for an immediate cease-fire "on terms acceptable to the parties involved." The last phrase was added Tuesday by Reagan, but its meaning is unclear. What is significant is that the document avoided stating who would negotiate the cease-fire. Contra civilian leaders told reporters after seeing Reagan Wednesday that they must be involved. But this was not in the plan, nor did Reagan offer any such assurances, White House officials said.

The wording with regard to U.S. political goals was the subject of a tug-of-war between Wright and Reagan, apparently until the last minute.

Strength For Today

A noted composer tells in his autobiography how one night there suddenly came to him the melody and structure of a symphony. Its different parts sang through his mind. For some reason he was too busy at the time to make notes. The next day the symphony returned with not quite the vividness of the night before, but nevertheless with sufficient clarity that he might well have captured it. The third day, when he was ready to work on the symphony, all recollection of it had departed.

Parables without number have been written about the necessity of taking advantage of opportunity when it arises. Not enough has been written, however, on the persistent tendency of human nature to procrastinate.

Every time we neglect the doing of a right thing, we increase the difficulty of right and wholesome action.

Marine Jury Says 'Death'

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A jury recommended the death penalty Thursday for a Marine convicted of a double murder.

The sentencing portion of the trial of Lance Cpl. Ronnie A. Curtis, 21, began Wednesday afternoon. Jurors deliberated for 1½ hours Thursday before recommending the death penalty.

Curtis showed no emotion as the sentence was read.

Curtis was convicted in the April 14 murders of 1st Lt. James F. Lotz and his wife, Joan.

Curtis, from Wichita, Kan., was convicted late Tuesday in the stabbing deaths of the Lotzes in their base home. Marine authorities said he used a K-bar knife he had stolen from a warehouse in his unit, stabbing the lieutenant twice and his wife eight times.

The Lotzes, both 28, were from Scranton, Pa.

The defense contended during the trial that Lotz was racially prejudiced and that the slayings occurred during a time of extreme stress.

Public Schools Will Get Major Portion Of $18.4 Billion Budget

RALEIGH (AP) — Public schools will receive the lion's share of an $18.4 billion state budget, the bulk of which becomes law today after drawing unanimous, bipartisan support in the state Senate.

"It's a good budget, a well-rounded budget," House Speaker Liston Ramsey said. "In recent years, the main thrust has been in the field of education. That's true with this budget. About two-thirds of the money goes into the field of education."

The Senate approved the omnibus spending bill 49-0 Thursday after about 15 minutes of debate and the quick defeat of an amendment to reduce the abortion fund, a proposal rejected by the House the previous day.

The bill, which increases spending on public education by some $440.7 million over two years, will comprise all but about $231 million of the state budget for fiscal 1987-89, including some $2 billion in anticipated federal funds.

Two spending bills will be considered next week as the Legislature prepares to end the 1987 session. One will allocate funds for capital spending and the other for spending by non-state agencies and local "pork barrel" projects.

The 163-page omnibus bill, which passed the House 95-3 Wednesday, will boost the salaries of state employees and teachers by 5 percent; fund the third- and fourth-year installments of the Basic Education Program; reduce a shortfall in the state employee health program; and keep the experimental Career Ladder Program for teachers intact in 16 counties without expanding it as Gov. Jim Martin recommended.

Among the spending increases in the budget:

— $125.1 million in fiscal 1987-88 and $260.5 million in 1988-89 to continue implementing the Basic Education Program, an eight-year, $800 million blueprint for upgrading public schools in North Carolina.

The BEP appropriations will reduce class sizes in grades 10-12; hire teachers in all grades; relieve local governments of paying vocational education teachers; fund remedial summer schools and in-school suspension programs; and hire additional assistant principals and clerical employees.

— $48.1 million over both years for continuation of the experimental Career Ladder Program for teachers in 16 counties.

Scott Says Funding For Public Schools Cuts Into Community Colleges' Budget

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1987-88 budget approved by the state Board of Community Colleges does not provide as much of a faculty pay increase as had been sought with the General Assembly because public schools received so much money, the system president said.

"With the commitment by the General Assembly to the Basic Education Plan and Career Ladder, they're pouring a lot of resources into those programs, which is fine," Robert Scott, president of the system, said Thursday in an interview.

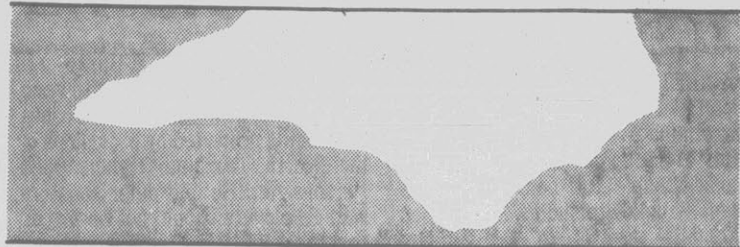

The Basic Education Plan and Career Ladder programs are designed to equalize school programs and facilities and to increase pay for the best teachers.

"But it means the university and the community colleges have to wait in the wings," Scott said. "And we've been waiting for awhile."

Along with the $333.3 million budget that was approved Thursday, the board took steps to remedy faulty management practices under which $1.4 million was paid for "phantom classes" at a branch of Cape Fear Technical College.

IN THE STATE

Minister Arrested

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — An East Spencer Baptist minister was arrested on a murder charge after police found a name on the sheets in which a girl's body was wrapped and traced it to the minister's house, authorities said.

The Rev. Simon Douglas Jr., 42, was charged with murder in the death of Tonya Ann Gibson, 13, of East Spencer, Rowan County Sheriff Bob Martin said.

A name written on the sheets wrapped around the body led investigators to Douglas. Martin said the name was that of a man who had lived at Douglas's address a few years ago. The man died in the last year of natural causes, Martin said.

Douglas resigned Thursday as minister of Jerusalem Baptist Church in East Spencer.

May Run

RALEIGH (AP) — House GOP Whip Raymond A. Warren says he is considering a race for North Carolina secretary of state next year, and that he thinks longtime incumbent Thad Eure, 87, is vulnerable politically because of his age.

"I am seriously considering it," Warren said. "We haven't done anything to truly organize it."

An attorney from Charlotte, Warren said he had been meeting with party leaders about launching a bid for the post. He said his decision would depend partly on whether he could raise enough money and whether there would be a Republican primary, which is was hoping to avoid.

Eure has been secretary of state since 1936 and had been in office 21 years when Warren was born 30 years ago. If he doesn't run for secretary of state, Warren said, he probably will seek re-election to the state House of Representatives.

NCAE Official

RALEIGH (AP) — Frances McArthur Cummings, a former president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, has been named associate executive director of the 45,000-member organization, the organization announced Thursday.

The post is the second most powerful administrative post in the NCAE.

Ms. Cummings, who was president of the NCAE in 1983-84 and who is just completing seven years on the NCAE Board of Directors as an NEA director, is expected to be on the staff Sept. 1, said NCAE President Gladys Graves.

Gas Leak

AVON, N.C. (AP) — A leaking 250-gallon propane gas tank caused law enforcement officials to evacuate Kona Kai Hotel Wednesday and delayed traffic for four hours along a busy stretch of N.C. 12 along Outer Banks.

The delay which backed up hundreds of cars for three miles on either side of the road started about 1:45 p.m. when a valve ruptured a tank being loaded onto a gas company truck at a shopping center, authorities said.

Peace Coalition

RALEIGH (AP) — Eighteen North Carolina groups have come together to form a coalition to work for deployment of President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative.

The group is known as "North Carolinians for a Secure Peace," said group member Bill Peaslee.

The announcement of the formation of the group came Thursday in front of the Legislative Building. Peaslee said one of the group's major efforts will be public education.

Convention

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh will host the biennial convention of the Rev. Jesse Jackson's Rainbow Coalition for three days in October, a local organizer said Thursday.

The event, last held two years ago in Washington, is scheduled for Oct. 9-11 at the Raleigh Civic and Convention Center and is expected to attract about 2,200 delegates, said organizer Bruce E. Lightner.

Masked Rapist

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A Fort Bragg sergeant, originally charged with the rapes of five women in Cumberland and Harnett counties, was charged a day later with sexual attacks on eight other women in Cumberland County, authorities said.

Bail for Staff Sgt. James Henry Woodard, 31, is now $2.3 million, authorities said. He is being held in Cumberland County Jail.

Woodard was arrested about dawn Wednesday in a car by members of a Cumberland County sheriff's task force formed to catch an assailant wanted in sexual attacks on at least 15 women in Cumberland, Harnett and Lee counties in the past year.

13 Counties Seek Disaster Aid For Crop Damage

By The Associated Press
Although the heat and dry weather have not caused the damage they did during last year's record drought, that's little consolation to the 13 counties that have asked for disaster relief, agricultural agents said.

"In the big picture, something that seems very small, to me seems very large," said Kenneth R. Bateman, Johnston County director of the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service. "We've got some producers who are going to really suffer. They've done everything they can, and still Lady Luck deals them a bad hand."

Thirteen counties have asked Gov. Jim Martin to declare them disaster areas so they can become eligible for federal assistance. Leading state and federal agriculture officials will meet today to discuss the requests and make recommendations to Martin and U.S. Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng.

Nevertheless, the state's agricultural picture is not nearly as bleak as last year, said John J. Cooper, state director of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Even in those counties requesting disaster assistance, he said, there are some areas that are well-watered.

"I can take you to one area of Cumberland County that's as bad as last year," he said. "(But) last year I could take you to 60 counties where it was a disaster all over."

The counties asking for relief this year are Johnston, Harnett, Cumberland, Sampson, Duplin, Wayne, Greene, Perquimans, Cur-rituck, Wilson, Chowan, Gates and Nash.

Last year, Martin declared 69 counties disaster areas, opening the way for federal low-interest loans and other programs that benefited livestock farmers. In addition, Congress passed special drought-relief legislation that added up to $45 million in direct payments to N.C. the state's growers.

Cooper, chairman of the group that meets today, said that such widespread action was premature. He said the group, the disaster subcommittee of the Food and Agriculture Council, would probably would act on only a few counties.

"It may be a major story later on, depending on the weather, but at this point I don't see it," Cooper said.

"Our main purpose is to plan what we're going to do and how quickly we'll react."

But some county officials — citing crop losses that they said might be as high as 95 percent — maintained that six weeks of hot and humid weather with no rain have put them in worse shape than during last year's record-breaking drought.

"Nineteen eighty-six was called the year of the drought, but we have areas in Johnston County that are much worse than in some of the areas we had in 1986," said Bateman said. "There's been no rain, and it's been hot."

Johnston County — the state's No. 1 farm county in terms of cash receipts — has lost 60 percent of its corn crop and 75 percent of its cucumber crop, Bateman said. In Wilson County, more than half of the county's highly profitable tobacco crop has been lost.

"You're talking about $28 million to $30 million in gross income cut in half — as far as I'm concerned you've got a disaster on your hands," said Connie H. Jernigan, Wilson County extension chairman. "We've heard all about the drought last year, but we weren't in the drought."

"This year, we are in the drought," Jernigan said. "We've had some neighborhoods here that have gone 10 to 12 weeks without a drop of rain. Every evening the clouds come over, but they just rumble once or twice, and all you get is a few drops."

The disaster subcommittee comprises leading state and federal farm officials and makes recommendations to the governor and the USDA secretary.

Before the USDA secretary acts, Martin must declare a county a disaster area. At that point, county farmers are eligible for low-interest loans from the Farmers Home Administration, additional federal funds to make more pastureland available and an expanded federal program to open up more grazing land for livestock.

Cooper said that if it didn't rain in the next week, 15 to 20 more counties could apply for disaster relief, primarily for the corn crop, which has been hardest hit.

Jernigan said some farmers were so desperate that they were no longer praying for rain, but for hail, which would make them eligible for direct disaster payments.

"A big hailstorm right now would make a lot of folks happy," he said.

Panel Backs New Tax On Liquor

RALEIGH (AP) — Local governments were two-for-three before the House Finance Committee, getting a double helping of money for law-officer pensions but failing on a bid to double deed fees for real-estate transactions.

The panel agreed Thursday to levy all sales taxes on a statewide basis and to put a new 5 percent sales tax on liquor.

Consolidating local sales taxes into a single statewide levy would save about $22 million a year by closing loopholes in collection and improving efficiency, said Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, who added that provision to the liquor tax bill. The liquor tax would bring local governments $7.2 million in 1987-88 and $10.8 million in 1988-89, partly by shifting funding for alcohol law enforcement from local ABC boards to the general fund.

Local governments also would have gained $12.6 million from a bill to double the deed tax on real estate transactions from $1 per $1,000 to $2 per $1,000. But that bill failed to win approval by the House Finance Committee even after Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, agreed to drop a proposed new tax of $1 per $1,000 on mortgages in excess of $100,000.

Miller said the bill would help prevent a "hodgepodge" of land transfer taxes across the state. But Gordon Allen of the North Carolina League of Savings Institutions said local governments had gotten enough money already.

"In our view it's bad public policy — any type of transfer tax is bad public policy," he said.

During debate on the liquor tax, most parties agreed to closing a loophole by making it clear sales taxes must be paid at the point of sale. But local government officials fought the statewide application of what are now local taxes, even though the change would save $4.5 million in administrative costs.

"It's OK for us to absorb those administrative costs to maintain local government vitality," said Ron Aycock of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

But the committee disagreed, voting instead to adopt an amendment saying local governments would receive the same amount of money but the state would administer it. Aycock and others representing local governments grudgingly went along.

"I'm still uncomfortable about changing a local tax to a state tax," said Aycock.

"While this intent language is strong, in my view, it clearly will not bind a future legislature," said David Reynolds of the N.C. League of Municipalities.

None of the amendments drew backing from the liquor industry, represented by William Potter.

"You'll see sales are lost to our neighboring states," said Potter, who said the liquor tax would increase prices by about 50 cents a bottle.

Fired U.S. Attorney Says PTL Query Cost Him Job

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer says he was only told once not to launch an investigation, but he says his push for a federal probe into alleged mismanagement at the PTL ministry cost him his job.

"I first made the department aware of my interest in the PTL allegations that were coming out in the Charlotte area very heavily," Brewer, the former U.S. attorney for the western district of North Carolina, said in an interview. "I was told not to take any action in regard to the investigation until I could have conversations with top-level department officials."

"During my nearly six years in office, that was the only time I've ever been told not to investigate anything," he said.

Brewer cleaned out his office last week when told by the U.S. Justice Department that a technical vacancy was being declared by the Attorney General. On Monday, Tom Ashcraft was sworn in as Brewer's interim replacement.

"I believe that the PTL investigation is what caused my early removal from office," Brewer said in an interview with WSOC-TV.

Brewer said the use of a technical vacancy was unusual unless a federal attorney dies or resigns.

Meanwhile, Brewer said he learned that PTL had given $50,000 to a New York church that also had received contributions from the Wedtech Corp.

Wedtech, a defense contractor, already was under investigation by federal officials. Attorney General Edwin Meese had been linked to Wedtech through his investments, Brewer said.

"All I really know is that Wedtech was contributing to the church and PTL was contributing to the church and ... as the Attorney General was being investigated in his relationship with Wedtech, I felt it appropriate to inform the Department of Justice (of) that and suggest to them the Attorney General not be consulted in regard to the PTL case until such time that all that was resolved," Brewer said.

Brewer said he thought he was moved out of the way because he made waves and pushed the investigation into PTL and perhaps because he asked that the Attorney General not be involved until the Wedtech link was investigated.

Senate Votes To Let Employers Reject Workers With AIDS

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate provision to let North Carolina employers discriminate in hiring against people with communicable disease could cause trouble for new regulations over maladies including AIDS when the bill returns to the House, lawmakers say.

The Senate voted 46-0 Thursday to approve a bill to widen state health officials' authority over communicable diseases after adopting an amendment to say employers may dismiss disease carriers.

The question of discrimination in employment for disease carriers prompted most of the debate on the bill, which would be enacted if the House goes along with Senate amendments.

That concurrence, however, remained in question.

"The House concern is this is just a back-door way to have discrimination," said Rep. George Brannan, D-Johnston, chairman of the Health Committee. "Employers find somebody they don't like, the first thing they're gonna do is ask them to prove they don't have a disease."

Sen. Dan Simpson, R-Burke, offered the Senate amendment to keep people with communicable diseases from being protected by provisions of the North Carolina Handicapped Persons Act. He and other senators said employers should not be forced to keep employees who might endanger customers or other workers.

But Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, opposed the amendment.

"I am just as much afraid of AIDS as you are," she said. "Everybody is afraid of it. But I would submit that would should not let our fears prevent us from acting responsibly in this case."

Ms. Marvin said the handicapped protection act already would allow dismissals if the public health were at risk.

"If we allow ourselves because of this fear to relegate thousands of people in North Carolina to what could be little more than leper type isolation colonies, then we are doing ourselves ... and these thousands of people a great injustice," she said.

Roads Bill Enacted

RALEIGH (AP) — Strict limits on the contributions cities can make to state highway projects take effect today with enactment of a bill that sparked fierce debate between urban and rural legislators.

But the final version, which cleared its last hurdle Thursday when the House voted to approve several technical Senate amendments, won the backing of groups that led the opposition when it was proposed.

"We can live with the highway bill," Ellis Hankins, lobbyist for the North Carolina League of Municipalities, said. "There are some important items for future right-of-way acquisition, which are badly needed."

The league and the North Carolina Department of Transportation accepted the bill's cost-sharing limits in exchange for such provisions as one allowing cities to delay development in areas where future highways are envisioned.

The bill also allows most cities to make limited payments toward right-of-way acquisition — 5 percent to 25 percent, depending on their population.

ANTI-NUCLEAR PROTESTS — Masked students demonstrate outside the U.S. embassy in Manila Thursday to commemorate the World War II atomic bombings

Americans Mark Hiroshima Bombing With Street Protests

By The Associated Press

Glowing paper lanterns were set afloat in Philadelphia and Texas, as Americans marked the 42nd anniversary of the Hiroshima bombing with peaceful protests against nuclear weapons in which more than 200 people were arrested.

The lanterns, each bearing a single candle, echoed Japanese ceremonies Thursday commemorating Aug. 6, 1945, when the United States dropped a 12.5 kiloton bomb on Hiroshima, killing an estimated 120,000 people.

In Texas, the lanterns were launched on a lake as more than 30 demonstrators gathered for a fourth annual protest at the Pantex Nuclear Weapons Assembly Plant about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo.

About 50 demonstrators in Philadelphia marched peacefully on a General Electric Re-Entry Systems division plant before heading to the Schuylkill River to launch lanterns bearing a single candle and honor the souls of the dead.

Farm labor organizer Cesar Chavez was among 103 people arrested in Mercury, Nev., outside the Nevada Test Site, where more than 200 protesters were jeered by two dozen counter-demonstrators who chanted "Remember Pearl Harbor."

"I'm not out here proving anything," Chavez said. "I just believe in the moral issue and believe in the method. Civil disobedience does help."

Two dozen people were arrested Thursday morning while protesting the Department of Energy's plutonium-production operations at the Hanford nuclear reservation in Washington, authorities said.

Ten who penetrated a sensitive area at Hanford refused to identify themselves and were taken before a U.S. magistrate in Seattle on charges of trespassing.

In lobbying for the Patowmack Canal, a waterway that linked the Atlantic seaboard to the West via the Potomac River, George Washington started a chain of events that led to the writing of the U.S. Constitution in 1787, says National Geographic.

Fourteen others were arrested in the lobby of a federal building at Richland, Wash., which serves the Hanford plant. Six pleaded guilty to criminal trespass and were fined $25 and sentenced to a day in jail, while eight others were jailed after the refused to identify themselves.

In Oscoda, Mich., 84 people were taken into custody and released after walking through the main gate of Wurtsmith Air Force Base, a Strategic Air Command base in northern Michigan.

Those who entered the base for the first time were given a letter barring them from returning, while second-time violators were cited for unlawful entry and ordered to appear before a magistrate, Babbel said.

Three members of a group called Transfiguration Plowshares were charged with destroying federal property and trespassing at the Naval Air Station at South Weymouth, Mass., after they allegedly splashed a plane and a helicopter with red liquid and dented a plane with a hammer.

Three people were arrested in Newington, N.H., when they tried to enter Pease Air Force Base, home of the 509th Bombardment Wing, the unit that carried out the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

In Anaconda, Mont., county commissioners under pressure from a local Veterans of Foreign Wars post group canceled permission for an anti-nuclear war display on county property.

In Augusta, Maine, a 24-hour vigil began on the steps of the state Capitol on Thursday, proclaimed "Hiroshima Day" by Gov. John R. McKernan Jr.

The outlines of 50 human bodies were sketched in whitewash on the sidewalks of Princeton, N.J., at dawn Thursday as reminders, their creators said, of Hiroshima's dead.

The American Friends Service Committee ran a "peace bell" at Honolulu Hale, the city hall, Thursday morning.

Two anti-nuclear demonstrators were charged Thursday with damaging a Minuteman 2 missile silo at Whiteman Air Force Base, 45 miles southeast of Kansas City, Mo.

Jerry Ebner, 37, of Milwaukee, and Joseph Gump, 59, of Morton Grove, Ill., whose wife is serving a prison term for a similar protest, were charged with damaging government property in the incident Wednesday.

Road Shootings Spread

By The Associated Press

Random highway violence terrorizing Southern California has cropped up elsewhere in the West, with authorities reporting shootings in Washington state and Arizona and motorists being wounded in Bakersfield and near San Francisco.

Since mid-June, four people have been killed and more than a dozen injured on Southern California streets and freeways.

"We don't wish this on anybody else, because, as you've been able to see here in Los Angeles County, people are afraid," Officer Ernie Garcia of the California Highway Patrol said Thursday.

Garcia conceded highway violence might extend beyond the region

because, as he put it, "guns are everywhere."

The Washington State Patrol said Thursday that two men were arrested after motorists on Interstate 5 in Lewis County reported that a shotgun was pointed at them from a car on the road shoulder.

In Arizona, Victor Arreola of La Puente, Calif., told police two shots were fired at his truck in Tucson by a motorist who may have been angry because his car was splashed with water. No one was injured.

Southern California recorded more incidents Thursday on the Santa Ana Freeway, the Pomona Freeway and in the Hollywood area. There were no injuries in those attacks but six arrests were made.

College Tuition To Again Outdistance Inflation Rate

By LEE MITGANG

AP Education Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — College tuitions this fall will rise faster than the inflation rate for the seventh-straight year, according to a survey that also found the annual cost at one elite school reaching more than $19,000.

The tuitions will rise an average 8 percent at four-year private schools for the third-consecutive year and 6 percent at public, four-year institutions, according to The College Board survey released Thursday.

The 6 percent figure matched last year's rise at the public schools, but was less than the 9 percent increase in 1985-86.

The overall inflation rate, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, has risen at a seasonally adjusted 5.4 percent rate in 1987 and stood at 4 percent or less every year since 1982.

"There they go again, and again, and again. When will they ever stop?" said Education Secretary William Bennett, a critic of rising college costs, when told of the findings.

College Board president Donald M. Stewart said, "The College Board does not collect data on why tuition and fees are rising, but other investigators point to the considerable increase in the price of goods and services purchased during the 1980s such as books, faculty salaries and scientific equipment."

Among the hardest hit will be out-of-state students attending public universities where surcharges will rise an average 7 percent, to $2,367 at four-year schools, and 10 percent at two-year public colleges, to an average $1,811.

The University of Michigan, for instance, will cost Michigan residents an estimated $7,526, but $13,098 for out-of-state students, including a $5,572 surcharge.

The total tab for out-of-staters at the University of California-Berkeley will reach an estimated $12,184, including a $4,284 surcharge. Total costs at the Colorado School of Mines will reach $8,274 — $13,796 for out-of-state students.

For many other students, the latest cost survey is a respite from the double-digit increases of the early 1980s. In the peak year of 1982-83, average rates rose 20 percent at public colleges and 13 percent at private schools.

Calculating average college costs under a new method that takes each school's enrollment into account, the board estimated average "fixed charges" — tuition, fees, room and board — at $10,493.

Counting expenses such as books, supplies and transportation, estimated annual costs rise to $11,982 for students living on campus, and to $10,173 for commuting students.

Students should "not be scared off by the cost," said Richard Rosser, president of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, which represents more than 800 private institutions.

Surveys of average tuitions "have to be taken with some caution because the real question is the student's interest in the college and university, and whether he can find a way to attend that school," Rosser said in a telephone interview. The bottom line, he said, depends on the aid package available at each school.

At four-year public institutions, tuition, fees, room and board will average $4,104 for in-state students. Adding incidental expenses increases the estimate to $5,789 for resident students, and $4,554 for commuters.

Fixed charges at private two-year institutions will rise by 6 percent to $6,945 but will reach $8,305 for residents, and $6,737 for commuters counting incidental estimated expenses.

At public two-year colleges, average tuition and fees will increase by 5 percent to $687, but the total annual tab hits an estimated $3,889 for commuters counting board expenses, books, transportation and other expenses. The study gave no comparable estimates for resident students because the sample was too small.

Bennington College, in Bennington, Vt., remains the nation's most expensive college, as tuition, fees, room and board will reach $17,990 in 1987-88. Counting incidental expenses, total costs for a year at Bennington will hit an estimated $19,390, according to the survey.

N.Y. Mayor Recovers

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch, his temporarily slurred speech replaced by the familiar New York accent, was listed in good condition today after a minor neurological disorder forced his hospitalization overnight.

The three-term mayor, nauseous and dizzy, was helped from his limousine into Lenox Hill Hospital on Thursday morning after suffering from an ailment known as TIA — transient ischemia attack, doctors said.

A cerebral blood vessel spasm briefly diminished the flow of oxygen to the mayor's brain, causing the nausea, dizziness and slurred speech but no permanent damage, doctors said. Koch had some work brought up from City Hall in the afternoon, a mayoral spokesman said.

Koch was "alert, awake, joking ... feeling quite good," with his speech no longer slurred, Dr. Anthony Mustalish, the hospital's chief of emergency services, said Thursday afternoon. The attack is not a "mini-stroke," and Koch was treated with a single aspirin, the doctor said.

Mustalish said a CAT scan on the 62-year-old mayor found no sign of cerebral bleeding and an electrocardiogram showed Koch's heart was normal.

ABRAM IN EGYPT

IN ORDER TO ESCAPE A VERY SEVERE FAMINE WHICH GRIPS THE LAND OF CANAAN, ABRAM TAKES HIS FLOCKS SOUTHWARD INTO EGYPT, WHERE HE SETTLES...

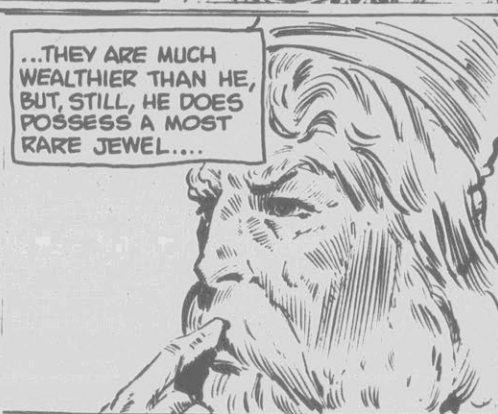

...THE PHARAOH IS ALL-POWERFUL AND RUTHLESS WHEN HE WANTS TO BE!

...NOW, AS HIS FLOCKS GRAZE, HE PONDERES OVER WHAT THE EGYPTIANS MAY WANT FROM HIM, FOR COMING UNBIDDEN INTO THEIR LAND....

...THEY ARE MUCH WEALTHIER THAN HE, BUT, STILL, HE DOES POSSESS A MOST RARE JEWEL....

IF THE EGYPTIANS SEE THEE, THEY MAY KILL ME IN ORDER TO KEEP THEE! SAY, THEN, FOR MY SAKE, THAT THOU ART MY SISTER SO THAT THEY MAY NOT KILL ME!

...SARAI, HIS BEAUTIFUL WIFE! WHAT IF THE EGYPTIANS, ON SEEING HER GREAT BEAUTY, SHOULD KILL HIM IN ORDER TO POSSESS HER! IN ABRAM'S MIND, IT IS A DISTINCT POSSIBILITY, AND SO HE HASTENS TO THE TENT OF HIS WIFE TO PLAN WHAT TO DO IN CASE TROUBLE OF THIS SORT SHOULD HAPPEN!

Endorsements

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Episcopal Bishop David B. Reed and Roman Catholic Archbishop Thomas C. Kelly of Louisville have issued a joint pastoral letter, endorsing covenants linking Catholic and Episcopal parishes.

There are nine such pairings in the area. They should develop programs of ecumenical pastoral care, family ministry and joint daily or weekly prayer, the two bishops said.

Observance Praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of three national religious organizations — Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish — have jointly hailed celebration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, urging "renewed commitment to achieve full equality and true freedom" for all.

"Only then can we fulfill the spirit and promise of the Constitution," officials of the National Council of Churches, the U.S. Catholic Conference and Synagogue Council of America said in a joint statement.

Declaring that the Constitution for 200 years has provided a "stable yet adaptable framework" for a "government based on the principles of liberty and equality," the statement added:

"The religious community especially esteems the protections of religious liberty...They have safeguarded the aspirations that brought many of our forebears to these shores and have created a continuing climate of voluntary devotion to religion which has flourished."

Parents Anonymous Is Nationwide Self-Help Group

EDITOR'S NOTE — While statistics on the incidence of child abuse are sketchy, nationwide awareness of the problem and the number of reported cases has soared in the last decade or so. Many local governments offer counseling programs for child abusers, but Parents Anonymous is a self-help group now involving about 30,000 people nationwide.

By MICHAEL HIRSH
Associated Press Writer
GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — For one mother, the years of pent-up frustration erupted on a shopping trip when her lively 4-year-old broke the lock to her car's glove compartment.

"I held the steering wheel with one hand and pounded him with my fist the whole way home," she says. "When I got home I tried to choke him. It was like I came out of a daze and my hands were around his neck. That's when I decided I needed help."

Fearful that her boy would be taken away from her if she told health authorities about her problem, she called Parents Anonymous.

"I remembered seeing an advertisement on TV. I was so desperate to talk to somebody," said "Mary," who asked that her real name not be used.

A year and a half later, the 35-year-old single mother is leader of a Parents Anonymous self-help group, one of about 1,200 nationwide. Along with a social worker, she and about 10 other parents with little more in common than a history of child abuse meet weekly to minister to their problems.

It's done in much the same way that Alcoholics Anonymous members deal with their drinking: by mutual reinforcement.

"Parents Anonymous is a program for parents who fear their anger towards their children," says Margot Fritz, the national director of the organization, which was founded 17 years ago in California by an abusive mother and her therapist, and today serves about 30,000 people nationwide.

"We're the only help resource to which an individual can refer himself. People don't have to wait for a social worker or psychologist to get them help," she said.

"They're not judging you," Mary says. "They're not saying, 'Oh how can she do that to that child.' Because they've all been there. They know that there's that thin line between doing it and controlling it."

Bob Brinker, the volunteer who leads Mary's group in this western Pennsylvania town, tries to weave lessons on parental skills into the discussion.

Parents are taught to set rules and use devices like "time out," in which misbehaving youngsters are ordered to remain in a chair as punishment. And parents are urged to walk away when they feel their rage building.

"What we try to do is encourage people to call another parent when they get to that point," says Brinker, area supervisor for Head Start, a preschool learning program.

"It's not that you resolve anything over the phone. But by the time you get done talking, you've calmed down. It stops people from impulsively acting out what they want to do."

Operating on a shoestring budget of state and local grants and donations, including $100,000 yearly from the Toy Manufacturers of America, Parents Anonymous offers its services free and most often draws lower-income mothers, many of them single, Ms. Fritz says.

Like Mary, many of the parents were themselves abused physically or emotionally as children.

"I always said I would never do to my son what was done to me," Mary says. "But I did. It was the only way I knew. That was the only example I had."

"Everything we know about learning theory indicates they've been reared in situations that have left them with no knowledge of how to raise kids," says Deborah Daro, the director of research at the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse in Chicago.

"Most cases of physical child abuse are essentially physical punishment that's gotten out of hand," says Dr. Murray Straus, director of the Family Research Project at the University of New Hampshire. "The cases that make good headlines are really rare exceptions. Ninety-five percent of the cases are children who are treated as no child should be treated, but don't require any important medical care."

"One day I thought I was going to kill my kids," said "Jane," a young woman in her 20s who had her first child at 16. "I called the children's bureau and told them, 'You'd better come and pick them up.' My son was upstairs in his diapers. I told them, 'I'm afraid to touch him. I'm afraid of what might happen.'"

When she got pregnant, Mary says, she thought "the father would marry me and we would live in a so-called white picket-fence house and live happily ever after. But it didn't turn out that way."

"It was just the pressure building up. Being a single parent, not having no one to turn to. My family was very judgmental. I could hit him (her son) and he couldn't hit me back."

While statistics on the incidence of child abuse are sketchy, nationwide awareness of the problem has soared in the last decade or so, child health authorities say.

In 1985, the last year for which data is available, 1.93 million cases of child abuse were reported, nearly three times the number reported 10 years earlier, says Patricia Campiglia, a child welfare program specialist for the Children's Bureau of the federal Department of Health and Human Services.

However, because many cases are simply not reported and the definition of what constitutes abuse varies from state to state, authorities find it difficult to track the number of actual incidents.

Dodie Livingston, commissioner of the Children's Bureau, says that while many local, county and state counseling programs for child abusers exist, Parents Anonymous is the only nationally known organization. Another, unaffiliated group, Parents United, deals with sexual abuse.

Despite the stigma of being known as a program to help "child beaters," Ms. Fritz and others authorities said Parents Anonymous is scrupulous about reporting to authorities cases of abuse they believe will threaten the child's life or health.

A recent meeting of Mary's group in a church schoolroom began with cheery small talk and anecdotes of parents' newly acquired forbearance. Two hours later it ended in tears and embraces, across a table littered with brimming ashtrays and empty foam coffee cups.

"I have to live with the guilt of what I did to an innocent child. I hit my kids. I gave one of them a bloody nose," says "Marcia," 26, who broke down sobbing when asked by Brinker how she was coping.

"I don't know how to live with the guilt...Are they going to remember?" she asked the others.

"Kids are resilient," says the soft-spoken Brinker, who firmly pushed the discussion forward, making each point universal. "You're focusing on the negative and ignoring the positive...Become the best parent you can possibly be, but don't expect to be perfect."

These days, Mary says, if she feels the urge to hit her son "he goes to his room and I go to my room if it's that bad. We put that wall between us."

"We're very close now," she adds. "The other night we were talking on the couch. I asked him if he remembered when I used to beat him with the egg turner. That was what I used to spank him with. He said he doesn't remember."

No Time On Your Hands?

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Never have a spare minute to get organized at work?

Perhaps you need to polish up on time management skills.

"Time management is common sense, but not common practice," says Bill Milburn, who conducts management workshops for R.J. Reynolds.

Milburn says the most common time wasters are telephone interruptions, visitors dropping in, meetings, a cluttered desk and a lack of objectives and priorities.

He has some tips for avoiding time wasters, such as preparing a list of musts that have to be accomplished each day, delegating more tasks, and preparing meetings agendas and sticking to them.

Wait, Get Tattooed When Older

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl. I graduated from high school with a B average, have been accepted to the university of my choice, and have a good, steady job. I do not smoke, drink, take drugs or associate with people who do.

My problem? Three or four months ago I became interested in getting a small (about 3 inches high) purple rosebud tattooed on the outside of my ankle. I looked around, and found what I believe to be the safest, most sanitary place to have it done, and I discussed it with the owner. However, being only 17, I need a parental consent form signed first.

My father refuses to sign it. He says, "Tattoos are bad news." He still believes the old stereotype that only drunken sailors, dirty bikers and other "undesirables" have tattoos.

I tried to explain that every day I have seen many people driving Mercedes and BMWs and dressed in business suits with tattoos. I also tried to explain that a tattoo will not change who I am, and that it will be virtually harmless and will not hurt anyone, excluding myself momentarily.

What do you think? — TO TATTOO OR NOT TO TATTOO

DEAR TO TATTOO: I think you should quit trying to sell your father on the "harmlessness" of a tattoo, and wait until you are old enough to get one without parental consent.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Over the years I have had numerous letters from tattooed readers requesting information on how to remove tattoos. Please reconsider.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 and getting married in September to a wonderful young lady named Julie. She and I are nudists, as is her whole family. We have always wanted an outdoor wedding, and want to have the ceremonies at the nudist camp where we met three years ago.

So far, all our invitations have been accepted — except one. You guessed it — the reluctant one is my mother. The non-nudists understand that they will not be required to be nude. My 23-year-old sister and I have tried unsuccessfully to persuade Mother to attend. She refuses to budge, saying if we want her to attend, we will have to change our plans.

Shall we give her an ultimatum and stick with what we want? At this point, I feel like telling my mother we will miss her. What do you say? — BOBBY IN NASHVILLE

DEAR BOBBY: It appears that your mother has already given you an ultimatum — either have a conventional wedding or count her out. Knowing how your mother feels about nudity, if you stick with your plans, it will clearly show her that you don't give a fig (leaf) about whether she attends or not.

P.S. Where will your best man carry the ring? I hope this covers everything.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently employed by a hardware company that brought in some hotshots who have made some recommendations that cost a lot of good, faithful people their jobs.

The last straw was a bulletin that looked like a shopping list:

"Company picnic at such and such park on July 4th. Invite your friends and family. Bring your own food and beverage. The park has barbecue facilities, but bring your own charcoal. Those who want to participate in the egg toss, don't forget to bring your eggs. We are having a balloon-breaking game, so if you're bringing the kids, bring your own balloons."

On the lunchroom bulletin board was a sign depicting a tree with the following message: "Pruning the tree enhances growth." Pencilled in at the bottom was: "Too much pruning can kill the tree!"

I hope management enjoyed their picnic. — REAL PERSON IN LA HABRA HEIGHTS, CALIF.

DEAR REAL PERSON: I think the "company" was barking up the wrong tree when it labeled the "do-it-yourself picnic" a company function.

The sign should have said, "Careful pruning can enhance the growth of a tree." Right now, the company tree appears to have gone into shock, and the company spirit is noticeably wilted.

I hope things improve by Christmas. Good luck.

Women's Health Advice Countries Have 'Gossip' Race

By DOROTHY GAST
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Women are bombarded with health care information in newspapers and popular magazines, but some officials at the University of Virginia Medical Center fear such articles are not reaching the people who need them most.

So Dr. Rebecca Tominack and Marjorie Siegel are hoping to publish "Just Between Us," a quarterly newsletter written at a sixth-grade reading level to reach rural and city women who cannot grasp or do not have access to articles in magazines such as Redbook and Good Housekeeping.

The pair picked women because women seek medical help more often than men and make most of the health decisions in the United States.

"All health issues are women's issues," said Ms. Tominack, medical editor of the newsletter. "We would like to hit on one or two topics per issue almost superficially. It's hard to explain something in great depth without losing interest. We're trying to walk a fine line."

Ms. Siegel, editor of "Just Between Us," said the first issue will focus on premenstrual syndrome in an elementary way. Future issues could be about osteoporosis, over-the-counter pregnancy tests, migraine headaches, douching, allergic reactions to makeup, arthritis or any other health problems women might have.

Ms. Siegel and Ms. Tominack still are seeking a sponsor for their newsletter, which they expect to cost about $18,000 a year to produce, including distribution expenses.

Barbara Giloth, manager of patient education at the American Hospital Association in Chicago, said there is increasing evidence that many Americans — men and women — either cannot read or read at very low levels. Many of these people cannot grasp much of the educational material that is available to them, she said.

"Nationally, there's an increasing concern about making sure materials are written at a number of different reading levels," she said. "We have people who need a lot more information at very high reading levels and also a good population where that would be way over their heads."

Ms. Giloth said women visit doctors more often than men do, and women deliver much of the nation's health care, particularly to children and elderly people. Women live longer than men and often suffer from chronic illnesses, such as arthritis, that need repeated attention, she said.

Barbara Parker, acting director of the division of family planning at the Virginia Health Department, said articles now being written on health do not reach low-income women or those who do not read much.

She said a women's health newsletter written at a sixth-grade reading level needs to be distributed at Health Department offices and places where people go for other government services.

"We devise all sorts of pamphlets on our own at the Health Department," she said. "There's been very much interest in the past few years in trying to make them readable for people with fifth- and sixth-grade reading levels because we know many of the people we serve are in this category."

Many women do not understand how they get pregnant or how they can contract sexual diseases, Parker said. Some will ask doctors questions if they do not understand what they are saying, she said, but others will not.

Ms. Tominack recently started doing a medical call-in program on radio station WXCF in Clifton Forge. She said people in rural areas are craving health-care information that she hopes the newsletter will help provide.

"The rural areas are underserved as far as health care information goes," she said. "They have voodoo, witchcraft and old wives' tales. They're hungry for more information."

Nations' speak of the arms race openly.

But for years everyone knows the real competition has been the "gossip" race between Great Britain and the United States. Both have impressive stockpiles of "dirty laundry" ... both have a free press to launch an attack whenever they feel like it. Both agree efforts should be made to limit their output. Yet, both seem to be stepping up their indiscretions.

For years, Great Britain has had a secret weapon that has kept the English in the gossip lead: the Royal Family. The price tag is exorbitant for the commonwealth in terms of salaries, hats, polo ponies and perks, but it pays off.

In 1936, Britain sent shock waves throughout the world with the news that King Edward VIII was renouncing the throne in favor of marrying an American divorcee. What a humiliating blow that was.

It has taken the United States 51 years to come close to that morsel with Gary Hart giving up a possible nomination for the Presidency on the strength of a tacky little snapshot with Donna Rice aboard a yacht. You can't expect to attack Buckingham Palace with Bimini and win!

I hate to say it, but the United States is dragging its feet. For every American church secretary who had a tryst with an evangelist, Great Britain had a prince dating a soft-porn queen named Koo. For every sleazy nude picture resurrected of a newly crowned Miss America, the Royal Family retaliated with "Fast Lane Fergie" and her sister-in-law Princess Di poking gentlemen in the bottom with their umbrellas at the Royal Ascot races. You can't pit Nancy Reagan buying a new set of White House china against a princess married to the future king of England who spends a weekend with an escort who looks like Superman.

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

The United States has always been bemused by royalty. It has never seen what purpose they really serve. Naive little fools. It's the mother lode of gossip ... all aimed at the United States to remind us we may be able to put a man on the moon, but the world looks up to a nation over its head in sex scandals.

This country has no vision. It's been a long time since a congressman went skinny-dipping in the Washington Basin or one of the children of the President wrote a "Father Dearest" book. Zeroing in on every dead President we've ever had to report he was fooling around doesn't count. We want someone we can see being interviewed by Barbara Walters. The United States has been a world leader for 200 years. We didn't get there by having Presidents who lusted in their hearts. We need a program that can get us on the move again.

The current story from London reads, "Princess Di appeared in a skin-tight purple satin suit, munched sugary popcorn, clicked her fingers and drummed on her knees at a Genesis concert."

The time to strike is now ... while they're asleep.

Use Precautions In Microwave Cooking

Appliance industry researchers estimate that microwave oven sales will top the 11 million-unit mark this year. That means a lot of first-time owners will be learning how to use a new appliance.

Most new microwave oven owners have cooking questions, such as: What utensils work best? Can I really use paper and plastic containers? How about foil? What safety precautions are necessary?

To answer these questions, the industry offers these tips:

DO:

•Use ovenproof glass and glass ceramic dishes.

•Use pottery, earthenware, stoneware and china without metal trim.

•Use utensils designated as "safe for microwave oven use."

•Use paper cups, plates, napkins and white paper towels (limit to cooking times of four minutes or less for unfrozen food, up to 10 minutes for frozen food).

Use waxed paper, plastic wrap or white paper towels for covering foods.

Puncture plastic wrap covering, boil-in-the-bag pouches or oven cooking bags to allow steam to escape safely. Remove lids or coverings carefully. Remember that steaming food in any cooking utensil can burn.

DON'T:

•Use metal pans and containers, standard meat or candy thermometers or foil dinner trays more than three-quarters inch thick.

Homemaker's Haven

Evelyn Spangler
Pitt County Extension Agent

•Use plastic utensils for cooking foods high in sugar or fat. Those foods reach very high temperatures and may cause some plastics to soften, distort or melt.

•Use metal twist-ties.

•Can foods in microwave ovens; jars may explode and food may not be processed properly.

•Pop popcorn in any container except a microwave-approved popcorn popper.

•Over cook foods. Follow recipe cooking times. If more time is needed, add it in small increments and check carefully. Remember that food continues to cook after it is removed from the oven and allowed to stand.

•Wrap food in foil to cook. Use it only to shield thin protruding parts (legs, wings) of foods such as whole poultry. Keep foil from touching oven walls to prevent arcing.

And, finally:

DO:

•Follow oven manufacturer's directions, these hints and safety precautions, and enjoy time-waving microwave cooking.

Bases-Loaded Walk In 9th Allows Pitt County To Slip By Hamlet, Tie Series

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It was a game of give and take when Hamlet and Pitt County met in game two of their best-of-seven series for the Eastern North Carolina American Legion baseball title.

Both teams gave the other opportunity after opportunity. Both teams took advantage of it, but it was Pitt County that finally took the victory, a 4-3 margin that knotted the series at 1-1.

Meanwhile, Stanley defeated Haw River, 9-7, in game two of the western series, evening that playoff at one game each also. The two survivors meet starting Aug. 15 for the state championship.

Pitt County's Tom Moye pitched a fine baseball game. He allowed only four hits, and two of them were less than stunning. He struck out two and walked four. None of the runs against him were earned, and Hamlet did not record a single run batted in.

But behind him, play was less than adequate. Pitt's defense yielded seven errors which helped Hamlet account for all of its runs.

Hamlet meanwhile, also made mistakes, but not quite as many. Pitt banged six hits off starter Bobby Hunt, along with four walks, to hand him his first loss of the year against six wins.

Hunt did record six strikeouts. There were four Hamlet errors, including one by relief pitcher Eric Tillman that set the stage for Pitt to score the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Pitt, which struggled back from a 2-0 deficit to lead 3-2, lost that in the top of the ninth when Moye walked two batters with two away, then saw another error allow the run to score.

But in the bottom of the inning, Shane Adams led off with an infield hit to deep short. Hamlet had a conference on the mound, then tried to work a trick play to get Adams. Both the third baseman and first baseman charged the plate as Tillman went in to his stretch. Second baseman Sandy Baldwin moved over to cover first on what appeared to be a play against the sacrifice bunt.

But Tillman instead, threw to Baldwin at first, in the hopes of picking Adams off. His throw, however, was off-target and went all the way to the fence in foul territory down the right field line.

Adams ended up on third, taking two bases on the misplay.

Both Jason Galloway and Eric Jarman were intentionally walked after that to set up a play at any base, but after a popup got the first out, Axel Smith drew a fourth ball on a 3-1 count to force in Adams with the game-ending run.

"They finally made some mistakes and we were able to take advantage of them, but we had them right where we wanted them (in the ninth) and let them out again," said Pitt coach Toby Holliday. "But that was a gutsy move they made in walking the bases full."

"But we just didn't play well. We made mistakes and it seemed like every time we made a mistake they scored."

Hamlet scored first, getting a run in the top of the second. With one out, Alvin Mormon walked and stole second. Tom Outen's grounder to short was then errored, and with two away, Gary Dunn also reached on an error, allowing Mormon to come all the way from second for the 1-0 lead.

Hamlet added another unearned run in the third. Glenn Ross reached on still another error and Corey Taylor's slow roller down the first base line was allowed to go and stayed fair. Both runners advanced on an infield out and a passed ball scored Ross.

It remained that way until the sixth when Pitt pushed over two runs to tie it up. Galloway opened the inning with a walk and with one down, David Daniels also walked. A walk to Smith loaded the bases and Moye hit a sacrifice fly to deep center that scored Galloway and moved Daniels to third. Bronswell Patrick then grounded back to the mound, but the pitcher, apparently forgetting that there were two away, threw home to try and get Daniels, who then retreated to third, getting in a run-down.

After several passes of the ball, third baseman Tommy Lill, covering home, missed the ball as Daniels slide safely over with the tying run.

Pitt then took the lead in the seventh. Hunter Clark opened with a single to left and Adams beat out a bunt single. Both were sacrificed up and Clark scored on Daniels' infield hit to third.

Hamlet, held in check since the third — only one runner advanced to second from the third to the ninth — finally got back in in the ninth.

With one down, Hunt singled but pinchrunner Jesse McDonald was thrown out trying to steal, putting Pitt on the brink of the win.

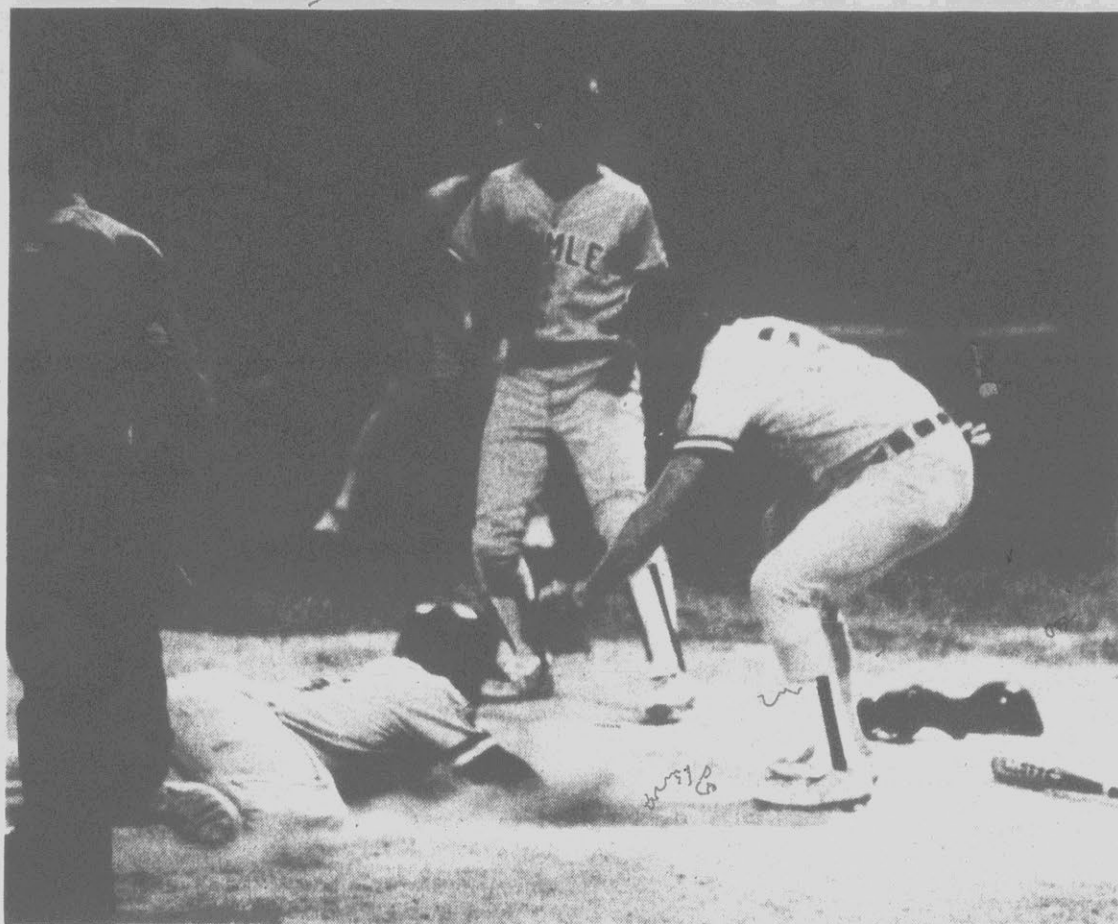

But Roger Hailey drew a walk and moved to second when a pickoff attempt was errored. A wild pitch moved him to third and Baldwin then drew a walk.

Ross, however, hit a high popup to the infield which Clark camped under, but then — stunningly — dropped the ball, with Hailey scoring to knot it at 3-3.

That set the stage for Pitt's win in the bottom of the frame.

And it left Holliday drained. "Tom pitched a good game, but we didn't play one," he said. "We just got by, that's all."

(See LEGION, B-3)

Got Him! Don't I?

Hamlet third baseman Tommy Lill (8) appears to put the tag on Pitt County's sliding baserunner David Daniels during sixth inning action Thursday night. The ball, however, got away from Lill, as his teammate watches it. Daniels' run tied the game and Pitt later won, 4-3. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Floyd Thinks First Round Got Him Ready For Rest

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Raymond Floyd didn't like the setup when he saw it, but he believes it may have worked out for the better.

"Now I can take a disadvantage and turn it into an advantage tomorrow," Floyd said Thursday after posting a 2-under-par 70 that left him two strokes off Bobby Wadkins' pace in the opening round of the 69th PGA Championship.

"I feel confident now after playing a good round," Floyd said. "I've put myself in a good position."

Floyd, 44, knows what it takes to win golf's major events. He already owns four titles in the Grand Slam tournaments — the 1969 and 1982 PGAs, the 1976 Masters and the 1986 U.S. Open.

Floyd, who had an afternoon starting time on Thursday, said the morning players in the first round of a tournament always have an advantage because the course is well prepared for the opening round.

Officials don't have the time to prepare the course again after the first day of play, so Floyd doesn't expect the conditions to match Thursday's when he has his morning starting time today.

Wadkins, a non-winner in his 13 seasons on the PGA Tour, had a good driving round in building his lead, generally avoiding the severe rough on the 7,002-yard, par-72 Champion course of the PGA National Golf Club.

Wadkins had six birdies to offset the two bogeys he recorded on the only holes on which he caught the rough — Nos. 1 and 14.

His longest birdie putt was a 12-footer on the eighth, and he got his others from six feet or less, once two-putting from 20 feet and then closing his round with a birdie-3 on the final hole when he two-putted from 45 feet.

"The fairways are perfect, rough unplayable and the greens are so-so," Wadkins said.

"They made it tough enough that it may be a driving tournament," he said, adding that the rough was "more than severe. It's brutal."

Wadkins posted a one-shot lead over journeyman Dave Edwards and Fred Funk, the golf coach at the University of Maryland.

There was a much more imposing list of challengers another shot back.

Floyd was the only one of the six at 70 who played in the afternoon.

The others who finished two shots behind the lead were Tom Watson, West Germany's Bernhard Langer, Curtis Strange, 1981 PGA champion Larry Nelson and Lanny Wadkins, Bobby's brother.

"I know Bobby's playing well and I've only played fair lately," Lanny Wadkins, the 1977 PGA winner, said.

Langer, the 1985 Masters champion, dropped out of a share of the lead when he bogeyed his last two holes of the day, Nos. 8 and 9.

"Finishing with two bogeys is very disappointing, but I'm happy with the 70," Langer said.

"I think I got out with kind of a steal," said Watson, who owns eight major titles but needs a PGA crown to become the fifth player in history to win each of the Grand Slam events.

"I played solid," said Strange, the Canadian Open winner who also won at Memphis last week.

"My confidence and my game has carried over ... physically and mentally," Strange said.

Watson was in the most popular threesome of the day, being paired with two of the greatest players the game has ever known — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer. Neither Nicklaus, a five-time PGA winner, nor Palmer, who has never won this event, could get anything going. Both shot 76.

None of the winners of this season's earlier majors was in a strong position.

Great Britain's Nick Faldo, who won the British Open three weeks ago, shot 73. Master champion Larry Mize had a 75 and U.S. Open winner Scott Simpson 78.

Myers Park-Trinity Ousts Tar Heels From State Field

Myers Park-Trinity knocked Greenville out of the Little League State baseball tournament with a 10-9 win in eight innings Thursday.

In other action, Fort Bragg eliminated Ashe County with a 5-2 win while Kernersville remained undefeated with a 7-3 win.

Scott Livingston drew a bases loaded walk that brought home Justin Swartz with the winning run in the bottom of the eighth breaking a 9-9 tie and giving Myers Park the win.

Greenville had taken 9-6 lead with a two runs in the top of the eighth.

Richie Grimsley opened Greenville's rally in the eighth with a single. After one out, Will MacKenzie doubled home Grimsley to make it 8-6.

Montez Barrett then drew a walk and moved up on Michael Howard's fielder's choice, which got MacKenzie at third, before scoring on Jason Krause's ground out.

Barrett had a two-run homer to key a three-run fourth that gave Greenville an early 3-0 lead.

Will Ricard and Andy Rowland combined for the win, scattering seven hits. MacKenzie took the loss, giving up only four hits.

MacKenzie had two hits to lead Greenville.

Fort Bragg went ahead early, withstood an Ashe County rally and went on to take a 5-2 win to advance to play Myers Park-Trinity in the losers' bracket.

Fort Bragg went ahead early with three runs in the bottom of the first. Dave McQuigg had a two-run double and Corey Finch also had an RBI single to key the first.

Ashe County came back to score two runs in the top of the second on Chris Stanley's two-run homer.

Fort Bragg added a run in both the second and third to complete the scoring. Jonathan Layne doubled to start the second and scored on a fielder's choice. Jermaine Bryant had a solo home run in the fourth.

Fort Bragg will now meet Myers Park-Trinity today at 4 p.m., with the winner set to go up against Forest City Saturday at 11 a.m. The winner of that game will meet Kernersville Sunday at 2:00 and a final game, if needed will be played Monday at 4 p.m.

Kernersville broke open a 3-3 tie with a four-run fourth keyed by a two-run double by Greg Payne to take a 7-3 win over Forest City.

Kernersville scored its first three runs in the third. Brooks Emerson singled in Kerby Keene. Payne and Emerson both scored on errors.

Forest City came back with three runs in the top of the fourth as Tracy Earp had an RBI single and John Hill had a two-run homer.

In the fourth, Kernersville took control as Keene and Payne combined to drive in three of the four runs.

Keene had three hits to lead Kernersville, which is undefeated in the tournament.

Safely In At Second

Greenville's Buddy Foley (3) slides safely into second base during the third inning, advancing on a wild pitch. The action came against Myers Park-Trinity which won the game, 10-9, in eight innings and eliminated Greenville from the State Tournament. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

Brewers Picking On Orioles

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers are in the midst of another streak, but this time they're picking on the Baltimore Orioles instead of the entire American League.

By defeating Baltimore 11-8 Thursday, the Brewers ran their record against the Orioles to 9-0. But they still have a way to go to match their season-opening 13-game winning streak and a subsequent 12-game losing streak.

"I can recall a long period of time when the Orioles had our number, but times change and teams change," Paul Molitor said after stretching his hitting streak to 20 games with two hits and two RBI. "But a lot of our players don't remember when we used to get whacked around by the Orioles."

Although the fourth-place Brewers have been out of the pennant race for a while, they are still within range, 8½ games out in the AL East, especially if the leaders keep stumbling.

Thursday night, third-place Detroit trounced division-leading New York 12-5 and last-place Cleveland flattened runner-up Toronto 14-5. In the AL West, the lead changed hands for the second night in a row when Minnesota defeated Oakland 9-4 and vaulted back over the Athletics into first place by one game. California is 1½ out after losing to Seattle 15-4.

Robin Yount hit a two-run triple to cap a five-run fourth inning, and B.J. Surhoff drove in three runs to pace Milwaukee to its fourth consecutive victory.

Fred Lynn's three-run homer powered the Orioles to a 6-3 lead. But in the bottom of the fourth, Milwaukee's Steve Kiefer doubled and scored on Surhoff's second RBI single, knocking out Baltimore starter Mike Flanagan. Mike Griffin gave up a two-out RBI triple to Dale Sveum to cut the lead to 6-5 and Molitor extended the second-longest hitting in the majors this season with a run-scoring single.

Mike Felder beat out an infield hit before Yount tripled, giving the Brewers an 8-6 lead. Yount has 13 game-winning RBI, best in the league. Jay Aldrich won his first major-league game after replacing starter Bill Wegman in the fourth. He allowed three hits in 2 2-3 scoreless innings. Cal Ripken also homered for Baltimore.

"We swung the bats from top to bottom," Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "But I would hate to play every game like this and have to outslug a ball club like that. Once again, for some reason against Baltimore, we got the breaks. We outlasted them in a slugfest. The ball was really jumping. They've got some explosive bats, nobody in the lineup who can't hit it out any time."

Molitor called his streak "the most productive stretch I've had. But even if it wasn't a 20-game hitting streak and I had a couple of zero-fors along the way, I feel the important thing is that I've had good run production — driving in runs and scoring runs."

With Molitor in the lineup, the Brewers are 40-22. He was on the disabled list twice this season and without him Milwaukee is 14-29.

Tigers 12, Yankees 5

Darrell Evans' two-run double keyed Detroit's four-run first inning and Frank Tanana held New York to one run and five hits through seven. The Tigers also had a six-run third, including Bill Madlock's two-run double and Kirk Gibson's two-run single, during which they chased Ron Guidry.

Guidry walked Lou Whitaker and Kirk Gibson in the first inning. Whitaker scored on a single by Alan Trammell and Gibson and Trammell scored on Evans' two-out double. Chet Lemon doubled Evans home for a 4-0 lead.

Larry Herndon doubled in the Detroit third, advanced on a single by Evans and scored on a single by Lemon to make it 5-1. Steve Trout relieved Guidry and walked Mike Heath to load the bases, threw a wild pitch that allowed Evans to score and then walked Jim Walewander. Heath hit a two-run homer in the sixth for a 12-1 lead.

Indians 14, Blue Jays 5

Pinch hitter Casey Parsons hit a grand slam and Cory Snyder and Jay Bell also homered in Cleveland's 16-hit attack. Parsons' homer, his first this season and only the second of his career, came on the second pitch from reliever Mark Eichhorn in the sixth inning and gave the Indians their third four-run inning of the game.

"It's a couple years between home runs, isn't it?" said Parsons, a 33-year-old veteran of 12 minor-league seasons whose other major-league homer came for Seattle in 1981. "I think this one means more because it was a grand slam and because I was pinch hitting."

Cleveland starter Scott Bailes gave up three runs on five hits in five innings. Loser Jim Clancy retired only one of the six batters he faced in Cleveland's four-run first inning.

Twins 9, Athletics 4

Home runs by Kent Hrbek and Tim Laudner plus Kirby Puckett's three-run double helped Frank Viola win for the 10th time in his last 12 decisions although he walked six in seven innings. Loser Dave Stewart walked five and allowed seven runs — five earned — and four hits in 3 1-3 innings as his personal seven-game winning streak was snapped.

Hrbek hit his 25th home run leading off the Twins' third for a 3-1 lead and they increased it to 7-1 in the fourth, with Puckett's three-run double chasing Stewart. Oakland got solo homers from Mike Gallego and Steve Henderson.

"I'm starting to become a complete pitcher," Viola said. "Now I'm not just a thrower. I didn't have my best stuff, my windup was out of sync and I was rushing tonight. Basically, I had nothing and I got by. It makes me feel good."

Mariners 15, Angels 4

Mike Moore won at home for the first time this season, breaking a personal six-game losing streak, and Jim Presley and Alvin Davis hit two-run homers. Moore, who hadn't won since June 22, scattered 11 hits. Loser Willie Fraser allowed four runs in 2-2-3 innings.

Seattle scored five runs in the sixth, highlighted by Davis' 15th homer, Phelps' RBI triple and Mike Kingery's run-scoring double. Rey Quinones had a two-run single in the eighth.

The series now moves to Hamlet for the next three games. "We had to have this one," Holliday said of the second contest. "If we had lost two here, I don't think we would have a chance."

Adams and Clark each had two hits to pace the Pitt attack. No one had more than one for Hamlet.

The series resumes tonight at 8 p.m. in Hamlet, with games also set there for Saturday and Sunday. Should they be needed, the sixth and seventh games would be played back in Greenville, starting Monday.

Tudor Getting Comfortable

By The Associated Press
After three months on the disabled list, John Tudor is starting to feel comfortable on the mound again. He may want to avoid a seat in the dug-out, though.

Tudor pitched four-hit ball over 5 2-3 innings Thursday night for his first victory since April 17 as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia, 5-2.

Tudor, 3-1, suffered a broken bone in his right knee April 19 in a freak dugout collision with New York Mets' catcher Barry Lyons. Lyons was trying to make a play on a foul ball when he charged into the Cardinals' dugout and slammed into Tudor, sitting on the bench.

He came off the disabled list July 30, pitched two games in the minors, and on Aug. 1 went four innings against Pittsburgh.

"I don't know if my knee is 100 percent, but it's good enough to play on," Tudor said.

Tudor struck out four and walked none. Bill Dawley pitched one inning, Ricky Horton 1-2-3, and Todd Worrell got the final two outs for his 23rd save.

"I'm just happy to be pitching," Tudor said. "This was a smooth stepping stone back."

Willie McGee and Terry Pendleton drove in two runs each to help snap a two-game losing streak and extend the Phillies' losing streak to six. The victory kept the first-place Cardinals 4½ games in front of the New York Mets in the National League East.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York edged Chicago 7-6, San Diego beat Atlanta 7-4 and Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 6-3.

Tudor, who went 21-8 in 1985 to help St. Louis win the pennant, relies on pinpoint control and changing speeds to win.

"My location was good," Tudor said. "I hit the inside and outside corners. I got a lot of outs on the change-up. The key to my success was my control."

Mets 7, Cubs 6
Kevin McReynolds scored Lee Mazzilli with a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning and Howard Johnson had his bat confiscated again as host New York won its sixth straight game.

Mazzilli led off the ninth inning with a walk off reliever Lee Smith and moved to second on Tim Teufel's sacrifice. The Cubs intentionally walked Keith Hernandez and Darryl Strawberry's infield hit off the leg of Smith loaded the bases. With the infield and outfield playing in, McReynolds hit a long fly to left that fell in for a hit and scored Mazzilli with one out.

Strawberry hit two homers, his 26th and 27th, for the Mets and Andre Dawson hit his 33rd and 34th for the Cubs.

Johnson hit his 27th home run in the second inning and for the second time in a week the Mets' third baseman had his bat confiscated by the umpires. Last Thursday in St. Louis, the Cardinals asked for Johnson's bat to be checked after he homered.

"To me, this is silly," Johnson said. "If they're trying to catch me they are wasting their time."

Expos 6, Pirates 3

Tim Wallach tied the score with a single and Andres Galarraga's run-scoring fielder's choice put visiting Montreal ahead, as the Expos rallied in the eighth inning to beat Pittsburgh.

With Pittsburgh leading 3-2, reliever Jim Gott walked Tim Raines to start the eighth and Raines stole second. Mitch Webster was credited with a single when shortstop Al Pedrique's shoe caught in the turf and he was unable to make a throw, allowing Raines to take third.

One out later, Wallach singled to center to score Raines and send Webster to third. Webster scored the go-ahead run when Galarraga just beat second baseman Johnny Ray's relay throw to first on an attempted double play, allowing Webster to score.

Padres 7, Braves 4

Benito Santiago snapped a ninth-inning tie with a two-out infield single and Garry Templeton added a two-run single, leading San Diego past host Atlanta.

With the score tied 4-4, Shane Mack led off the ninth and reached on third baseman Ken Oberkfell's error. Mack moved to second on a single by Tony Gwynn, his fourth hit of the game and 21st in 39 at-bats against Atlanta this season. After a sacrifice moved the runners up, Chris Brown grounded to third and the runners held. Santiago followed with a hit to deep short off reliever Gene Garber, 8-8, scoring Mack, and Templeton followed with a single to score two more runs.

Dale Murphy hit his 30th home run for the Braves, the sixth time in his career he has hit 30 or more.

Pack's Worthen Suspended

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State football coach Dick Sheridan suspended All-ACC flanker Nasrallah Worthen for the season but said the public had a wrong impression of Worthen and his scuffle with three other people in April.

Sheridan called Worthen "a great example," and added, "It hurts us to see a young man like Naz be considered in the public eye as someone entirely different."

Worthen, a 5-foot-9, 168-pound rising senior from Jacksonville, Fla., will be able to practice with the team and be on the sidelines during games, but won't be allowed to play, Sheridan said at a news conference after Worthen pleaded innocent in Wake County District Court to assaulting two females last April.

"In my opinion, Naz is not guilty of assaulting any females," Sheridan said. "He is guilty of getting involved in the charges but agreed not to contest a verdict of guilty. In our program we ask our players to remove themselves from a situation where it is potentially harmful. In that regard, because he was involved in a scuffle with a male and consistent with our program's discipline policies, he is being suspended for one year."

Judge Joyce A. Hamilton delayed entering judgment until June 1, 1988, on two misdemeanor assault-on-female charges against Worthen after he agreed to perform 50 hours of community service and pay restitution to the two female students who brought the charges.

Worthen, through his attorney, W. Robert Casey Jr., pleaded innocent to the charges but agreed not to contest a verdict of guilty.

Meanwhile, the case will not count as a conviction against Worthen. Casey said he hoped the case never would result in a conviction if Hamilton decides June 1 to give Worthen a prayer for judgment continued, under which judgment would be withheld indefinitely.

"The manner in which I finally dispose of this case will depend on what happens between now and then," Hamilton told Worthen.

Before June 1, Worthen must pay $300 restitution and have made arrangements to pay an additional $850 to Andre-Michelle Baker of Burlington and LaShurya M. Wise of Vanceboro, who said they lost gold necklaces in the altercation. Worthen was accused of hitting and choking Ms. Baker and of shoving Ms. Wise against a brick wall during an April 8 argument over $10 that Ms. Baker owed Worthen.

In addition to the community service, he must remain on good behavior and not harass Ms. Baker, who graduated this year, or Ms. Wise, who will graduate in May, Hamilton said.

"It hurts everyone in our program to see Naz's character misperceived in the public eye," Sheridan said. "It is urgent ... that you see this young man as he is."

Sheridan said Worthen will be free to return to the team next season if he chooses.

Worthen, who caught 41 passes for 686 yards and scored four touchdowns during N.C. State's Peach Bowl season, was disappointed with Sheridan's decision, but said he understands why he had to be punished.

"The more I talk to Coach Sheridan and his staff, the more I respect their decision on this matter," Worthen said. "When he first came here he laid down the rules, including those that could get you suspended from the team. My action in public is not in character of what we're trying to accomplish at N.C. State. That is not the type of program we want here."

Sheridan led the Wolfpack to an 8-3-1 mark in his first season as the school's head coach, but lost to Virginia Tech 25-24 in the Peach Bowl.

Commissioner's Office To Investigate Illegal Bats

NEW YORK (AP) — When the umpires took Howard Johnson's bat out of the game for the second time in a week, New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson tried invoking Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's new edict just a little early.

Ueberroth said Thursday that baseball has found "indications" that some players are using illegal bats.

"The time has come to inspect the bats in addition to the baseballs," the commissioner said in a written statement. "Our office and the league offices have received indications that bats have been tampered with and there is no room for that kind of conduct in our game."

Under the policy, which goes into effect today, the manager of each club can ask the crew chief of the umpiring crew to impound one bat from the opposing team during a game.

If a player's bat is found to be illegal, the player and his manager will be punished by their league president. The punishment could include fines and suspensions.

Batters are sometimes accused of inserting cork or metal into a bat in order to increase their power and bat speed.

Johnson hit his 27th home run of the season in the second inning of the New York Mets' 7-6 victory over Chicago on Thursday night, and his bat confiscated by the umpires. Last Thursday in St. Louis, the Cardinals asked for his bat to be checked after he homered.

At the time St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said: "He looks like Babe Ruth up there and I know he ain't that good."

Prior to this year, the Mets' third baseman's career high was 12 homers in 1984 for Detroit.

"To me, this is silly," Howard Johnson said. "If they're trying to catch me they are wasting their time."

Crew chief John Kibler inspected Johnson's bat after it was given to him by home-plate umpire Charlie Williams. Kibler ordered it taken to the umpires' dressing room and Johnson did not use the bat in his next plate appearance.

"Kibler said they were giving it to the National League office to be X-rayed. If it's all right, which it is, I'll get it back tomorrow (Friday)," Johnson said.

Cubs Manager Gene Michael claimed he had nothing to do with the confiscation.

"That came from the league to the umpire," he said. "I heard that they're going to do some random checking, and I think we need some more of that. This stuff has been going on for a long time."

When Chicago slugger Andre Dawson batted in the fourth, Davey Johnson asked for the bat to be checked but Williams refused. Dawson then hit a home run, his second of the game.

"The rule states if an umpire sees anything wrong with the bat, or suspects anything wrong, he can take it out of the game," Davey Johnson said. "There's another directive, any bat can be taken out of the game. He (the umpire) doesn't have to think it's suspicious, you can just take it out of the game."

"I asked him (Williams) does anything look suspicious and he said no. I said I want to check some of their bats.

"I said I want one of Dawson's bats checked out. He (Williams) said no and I said was playing the game under protest."

If he wants, Davey Johnson can ask for Dawson's — or any other player's — bat to be checked tonight and the crew chief will have to do it.

"I don't think Dawson corks his bat or anything like that," Davey Johnson said. "I just thought that if my guy has his favorite bat taken away without reason, then I want one of their guys to lose his favorite bat, too. To me, the umpires showed preferential treatment."

Umpires also recently confiscated the bat of Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Pedro Guerrero. After sawing off the end of the bat, the umpires ruled that it was legal.

Last Thursday, National League President A. Bartlett Giamatti issued a bulletin to all NL teams reminding them that the use of an illegal bat could result in fines and suspensions to the offending players and managers.

"I certainly wouldn't condone any of my hitters doctoring up a bat. And, as far as I know, none of them are doing it," Mets batting coach Bill Robinson said.

"I'd be very disappointed in them if they were. The cork is in their hands, and forearms, and wrists."

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't expect friends to pull you through today. Use your own abilities, and you'll accomplish much more than you thought.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Don't be overly enthusiastic today, but go along with the ideas of a superior. Be careful driving.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You may want a change of scenery and people, but now is the time to finish up projects which have been waiting.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Patience will be necessary in dealing with your mate, who is in a troubled mood. Show your devotion.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): An exceptionally odd individual may try to involve you in a plan which would be detrimental to your best interests.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Although you may be in a mood to procrastinate, set your jaw and muddle through with your daily routines.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Someone in your circle of associates has an eye on your assets. Be careful not to give them the edge they need.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Home matters can become unpleasant if you go off on a tangent or try to force your opinions on anyone.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Don't overreact to constructive criticism. Be cautious in all communications, and also while in motion.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Don't postpone making important payments. Get necessary advice from those who have been successful in the past.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Keep a tight reign on your temper. Don't act strangely due to the instigation of others who have foolish attitudes.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Try not to needle your mate today. It would not go over well. Tend only to the work which is immediately necessary.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be very well adjusted to contemporary issues and would do well in computer technology, but will have a strong interest in the humanities as well. Don't be stifling; you should encourage your progeny's abilities. Teach him or her the basics as a base for new ideas.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Four hearts is a perfectly normal contract to reach on the North-South hands. It was bid quickly, and lost just as fast.

West led a low club, East took two high clubs and then shifted to the queen of diamonds. Our friend, the declarer, won in hand, led a trump to the ace and eventually conceded two trump tricks for down one.

Now the 4-0 split was indeed unlucky, but the heart combination was old news for anyone familiar with safety plays. It can be found in any standard book on play.

Once the defenders had taken their club tricks, the contract was safe as long as declarer could hold his losers in the trump suit to one. If trumps were no worse than 3-1, declarer could not lose more than one trick. Only a 4-0 trump break could present a threat.

Since the only missing high cards in the suit were the Q-10, that distribution could be neutralized no matter which defender held the length. All declarer had to do at trick four was to lay down the king of trumps!

Suppose West had shown out. Declarer would then continue with a trump to his ace and another back to his jack, and East would get only one trick. And as the cards lie, East shows out on the first heart, so declarer continues with a low heart toward dummy. Whether or not West goes in with a honor, he will be held to one trick. Try it.

Worm-Oriented Animators Build Television Empire

By LISA PERLMAN
Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After eight years of 18-hour days in a cramped studio behind a Dairy Queen, Jerry Reynolds and Russ Harris have built a small empire from a bunch of worms.

They're Mirthworms, stars of a critically acclaimed series of half-hour, family oriented cartoons being seen worldwide.

"A Merry Mirthworm Christmas" and "A Mirthworm Masquerade" have been seen on television stations in several major markets in 14 other countries. The cartoons have been released on pay-TV and recently on videocassette.

Two more animated specials are in the works — and in demand.

"At a time when the Japanese are flooding the market with cheaply made animation ... and a lot of American animation is too violent, it's really refreshing to see such high-quality animation that also has an uplifting moral message," says Vincent Petrillo, director of ancillary sales for Family Home Entertainment of Newbury Park, Calif. The company has acquired the cartoons for both foreign and domestic home-video distribution.

"I was shocked that this was being done in Indianapolis, which isn't exactly known for its animation. In fact, I didn't think anyone was doing that Disney-type animation anymore," Petrillo said.

"They can't afford to do what we're doing in California or New York," said Harris, who does most of the technical work. "In fact, we can't really afford it, but we're committed to making better quality films with full animation and characters who really release themselves, instead of the stiff animation that you see so often on Saturday morning."

"People told us over and over again, 'There's no way you can do it — especially in Indiana.' Finally we just stopped listening and we did it."

Harris believes part of the Mirthworms' appeal may be attributable to their creators' Midwestern upbringing.

"There's such a glut of that he-man, high-tech robot stuff that a good story with interesting characters and a little message, like 'follow your own heart,' or 'goodness always prevails,' really is refreshing," said Harris, 33.

Peggy Charren, president of the Massachusetts-based Action for Children's Television, agrees.

"There's so much cheap and cheesy stuff out on television and video that's designed just to sell a toy, that's it's wonderful to see something that's done well," says Mrs. Charren. "And when it's terrific for kids, adults are going to enjoy it too."

In its first week on the home video market, "A Mirthworm Masquerade" was No. 13 on Billboard Magazine's chart of Top Kid Video Sales. The inventory sold out in two weeks and it fell off the chart.

"The neat thing is we don't write for kids. We write to entertain ourselves," says Reynolds, of Bloomington. "We're really looking for the family audience — something everybody can sit down and watch. The best kind of cartoons were the ones — like Bullwinkle — that operated on a number of levels."

Reynolds and Harris met in the late 1970s while working at WTTV in Indianapolis. After making a few home movies, they decided to open a business.

"Animation seemed like the logical choice since it was something affordable for two people who had no capital at all," said Reynolds, who does all the animation, music and many of the voices for the Mirthworms.

tal at all," said Reynolds, who does all the animation, music and many of the voices for the Mirthworms.

Max Headroom Is Cause Of Concern For Stutterers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Max Headroom, television's computer-generated cartoon character known for his one-liners and fractured speech, has joined Porky Pig on a list of fictional characters offensive to stutterers.

"Children are susceptible to authoritative figures," says Theodore E. Emery of Florida, who's among the speech therapists here for this weekend's fourth annual convention of the National Stuttering Project.

"When they start imitating Max by saying, 'I'm J-J-Johnny,' the act of talking consciously has begun and confusion about how to talk will set in," Emery said Thursday. "When this becomes a habit, you have a full-blown stutterer."

"Max Headroom" has had a limited run on ABC-TV. The network has renewed the series for the fall. The character, produced by Lorimar Telepictures Co., also appears on other shows, including a Max Headroom talk show on the Cinemax cable television station and in Coca-Cola commercials.

Not all of the approximately 200 people expected at the convention agree with Emery.

"I'm not concerned about Max causing stuttering," said John Ahlback, executive director of the San Francisco-based project and organizer of the conference at San Francisco State University. "Max's speech is broken but he is not a stammerer. It is a voice broken up by the computer, not a silent block where the air flow is cut off."

A more realistic fear is children mocking stutterers, he said.

"People are concerned because they foresee young people watching the show and then using Max Headroom to tease friends who stutter."

The cartoon character Porky Pig, a lovable but dim-witted, stuttering pig, perpetuates the myth that people who are stutterers are less intelligent or are slow and dumb and unassertive, said Ahlback, who stutters.

"Many stutterers want to get him off the air."

Jim Brochu, an ABC publicist, also said Max is not a stutterer.

"The speech is a computer glitch," said Brochu. "It's not my interpretation that he is a stutterer."

Emery's complaint is based on a theory he acknowledges is not shared by all speech pathologists.

"I firmly believe that stuttering is nothing more than a result of talking consciously rather than unconsciously," he said.

Kennedy Is 'Gentleman'

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A judge considering a community service sentence for actor George Kennedy for drunken and careless driving charges found the actor a real gentleman.

"He's gonna come back at his own expense," Judge Tom Fiorina said Wednesday, when he deferred sentencing to review the case. "Kennedy says he'll come back whenever we want him."

"The one thing I can say is that he's a hell of a guy. He's just a gentleman."

Kennedy, 63, was arrested July 14 while he was in Santa Fe filming a made-for-television movie, "The Gambler III," with Kenny Rogers.

Kennedy refused to take a blood-alcohol test when he was pulled over that night while driving a car without headlights, authorities said. Nine days later, he entered a no contest plea to drunken driving and a guilty plea to careless driving.

Improving

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Archie Campbell, a regular on the "Hee Haw" television show, has been moved from the coronary care unit and into a regular hospital room, officials said.

Campbell, 72, is recovering from a June 15 heart attack and was listed in serious condition Thursday at the University of Tennessee's medical center, said spokeswoman Lisa McNeal.

Campbell's family has asked that there be no visitors or flowers, but said that the country musician-comedian appreciates the cards he has received, Ms. McNeal said.

Shultz May Promote Peace Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz may visit Central America next month to promote President Reagan's peace initiative, according to administration officials, even though he turned aside Nicaragua's request for bilateral talks.

The officials, speaking on condition they not be named, said Thursday that Shultz has made no firm commitment to make the visit and will not go before a planned vacation ends in early September.

The administration has been hit with criticism that the president's initiative is merely a ploy to create an environment on Capitol Hill favorable to renewed aid to the Contras.

A Shultz visit to the region would underscore the seriousness of the administration's purpose, the officials said.

The possibility of a Shultz trip was disclosed as the peace plan hit a snag Thursday over a procedural question just 24 hours after it was launched. Shultz all but ruled out a proposal by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega for bilateral talks on the plan.

"I think it is critical to establish that there is no way the United States would want to sit down with Nicaragua to decide what is right for Central America. That has to be done by all the Central American countries," Shultz said.

Ortega, arriving Thursday in Guatemala City for a meeting of Central American presidents, said, "If the United States rejects direct talks with us, the whole thing is a sham, a publicity stunt designed to impress whoever they think is gullible enough."

The United States and Nicaragua held a series of peace talks in the latter half of 1984 but that process was suspended by the Reagan administration in January 1985. There have been no substantive negotiations since.

Peace Plan Eludes Latin Presidents

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The presidents of five Central American nations adjourned 10 hours of talks early today without approving any part of a 10-point plan aimed at bringing peace to the region.

"We hope more will come out of this (summit) than was expected," Foreign Minister Mario Quinones of Guatemala said during a break in the talks Thursday night. But he acknowledged, "There are some points of difference."

Quinones said the presidents hadn't formally approved any part of the multifaceted regional peace plan offered by Costa Rica.

Another diplomat said the presidents were especially divided over timing of proposed cease-fires in the region's domestic insurgencies.

Presidents Vinicio Cerezo of Guatemala, Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua, Oscar Arias of Costa Rica, Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador and Jose Azcona Hoyo of Honduras went into a closed-door meeting at about 3 p.m. Thursday and did not adjourn until 1 a.m. today.

They were scheduled to meet again today to discuss competing proposals from Costa Rica and Honduras for bringing peace to the region.

The presidents agreed before the summit not to formally consider a proposal by President Reagan for ending Nicaragua's civil war, although Cerezo said he and his colleagues would discuss the plan.

Ortega said Thursday that the Reagan proposal will amount to no more than a "publicity stunt" if Washington shuns direct peace negotiations with his leftist Sandinista government. The Sandinistas demand such talks because the United States backs the Nicaraguan rebels, called Contras.

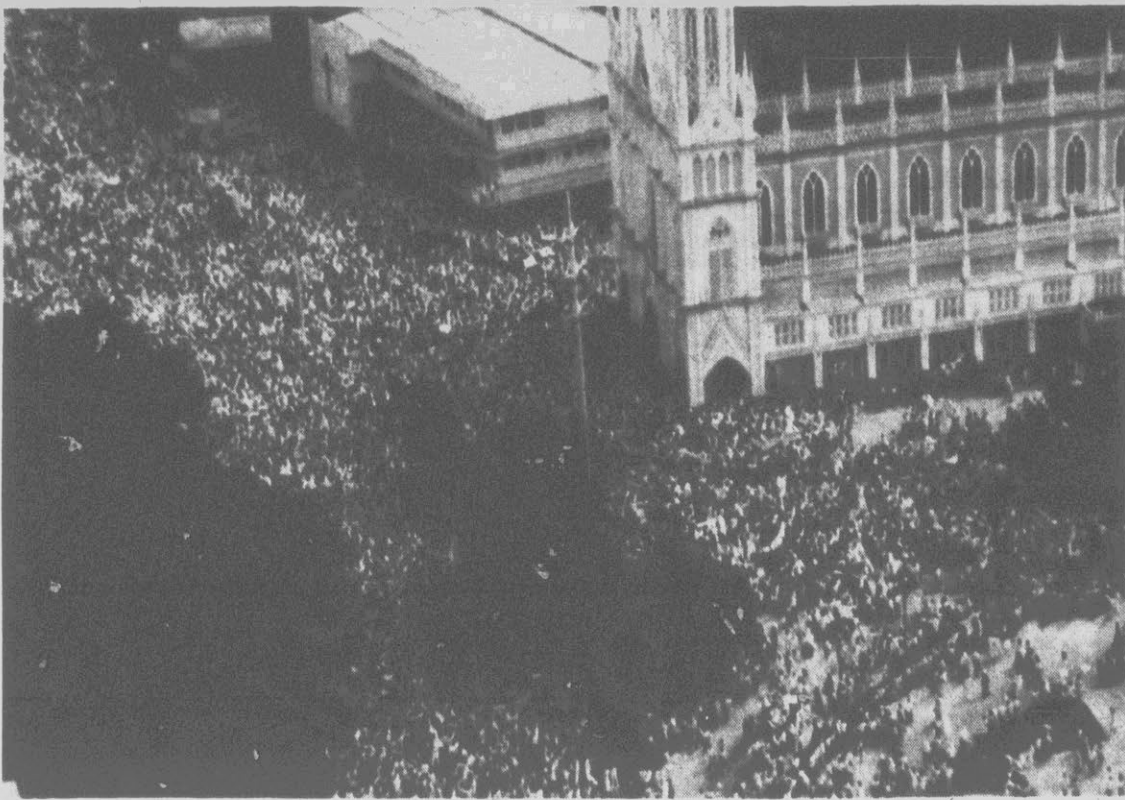

But in Washington, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said: "I think it is critical to establish that there is no way the United States would want to sit down with Nicaragua to decide what is right for Central America. That has to be done by all the Central American countries."

The main agenda item for the two-day summit was a regional peace plan put forward Feb. 15 by the Costa Rican president, Arias. It attempts to address not only the civil war in Nicaragua, but the leftist insurgency in El Salvador.

It calls for the simultaneous start of cease-fire negotiations between the warring governments and their internal oppositions and steps toward democracy.

A diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity said late Thursday that one of the main sticking points in the presidents' talks was the timing of the cease-fires.

A Honduran proposal would require Nicaragua to take steps toward democracy before a cease-fire would take effect, but it would place no such conditions upon a cease-fire in El Salvador.

STREET PROTEST — Thousands of demonstrators gather in the streets around the El Carmen church in downtown Panama City on Thursday. The protesters, in

Panama Leader Prompts Protest

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Tens of thousands of protesters screaming for democracy forced the capital's financial district to close down as they marched through the streets in an anti-government demonstration said to be the largest yet.

"Long live Panama! Down with Noriega!" they yelled in unison Thursday while waving white handkerchiefs and flags, a traditional form of protest in Panama.

There was a party-like atmosphere as the protesters, who included both rich and poor, covered eight blocks of the Via Espana thoroughfare and surrounding streets. White rolls of paper and white confetti fluttered in the air, thrown from terraces of apartment buildings, banks and hotels.

"We want justice!" they cried. "This is to show we don't want the communists," said one woman who did not want to give her name. "We want the gringos and the dollars."

An elderly man standing nearby added, "And the democracy."

Many of the marchers carried posters reading "paz," Spanish for peace, and wore white clothes as a symbol of the opposition National Civic Crusade, which has led the fight for the ouster of military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Five business leaders, all members of the crusade, remained in hiding because of arrest warrants issued by the government.

Observers said the protest appeared to be the largest since opposition groups began an anti-government campaign two months ago following accusations by a former deputy that Noriega rigged elections and conspired to murder political opponents.

Noriega is head of the military and the real power behind the civilian government of President Eric Arturo Delvalle.
