Airport Land Use Plan Recommended

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt-Greenville Airport is one of the few remaining "in-city" airports in North Carolina and should be protected for the future, members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the Greenville City Council were told Monday night at a joint meeting with members of the airport authority.

And although no formal action was taken, members of the city and county governing boards seemed to agree that a land use plan should be developed for the area surrounding the airport and proper zoning be approved.

Jack Duffus, chairman of the airport authority, opened the discussion of the airport by saying "we do have a wonderful airport," served now by two commuter airlines which provide a total of 16 departures a day.

But Duffus said problems may arise in the future as the use of the airport grows and the area around the flight facility develops, unless "we do something about that now."

Pitt-Greenville Airport Manager Jim Turcotte, who characterized the airport as "a major economic and social influence in the community," said "more than 7,000 people enplaned and deplaned" at the airport during the month of July. And citing the growth that has taken place, Turcotte said that in 1974 four people worked at Pitt-Greenville while, today, 60 people — including employees of the two airlines, rental car agents, fixed-base workers and authority personnel — have jobs at the airfield.

But Turcotte said that future development at the airport would be "hampered unless an adequate land use plan" is developed.

Pitt-Greenville is "one of the few remaining in-city airports in North Carolina. Being an in-city airport has its advantages," such as being quickly accessible to city residents and industry officials.

But it "also has its drawbacks," Turcotte said, such as housing developments being built in the area.

Suggesting that "Pitt-Greenville Airport wishes to be a good neighbor to those around us," Turcotte said the question is "what are we going to do to insure that the airport remains viable for the next 50 years?"

The answer, he said, is "land use planning."

Bill Maslyk, an official of the N.C. Department of Transportation's Aviation Division, said the best protection for the airport would come from land zoning and airspace zoning.

"You need to look into that now to protect yourself for the future," Maslyk said.

Turcotte then suggested that now is the time to consider land use and zoning around the airport, before the northwest bypass — part of the U.S. 264 project — is built "1½- to 2-miles from the end of the primary runway," and development in the area increases.

"We need your direction," Turcotte said to the two governing boards. "We do have on the drawing board plans to extend the runway. We want your involvement. This is an effort we can all work together for.

"I want very much to see the city planning department undertake a comprehensive land use plan ... for consideration," Turcotte said.

Several members of the two boards then voiced support for the proposal.

But even though the airport is owned jointly by the city and county governments, it would be the city's responsibility to do the planning and zoning because the area adjacent to the airport is within the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction area.

Mines Found In Coastal Waters Of Gulf Of Oman

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Four mines were discovered today in the Gulf of Oman, fueling fears that mine attacks may spread beyond the Persian Gulf. The United States agreed to join an urgent search for the explosives, sources said.

A diplomatic source said the Sultanate of Oman had appealed for Washington's help in clearing the coastal waters just south of the Strait of Hormuz.

The Americans "have agreed, and are already helping," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. He offered no details of what actions were being taken.

In a related development, a convoy of three Kuwaiti tankers escorted by U.S. Navy warships resumed its voyage through the Persian Gulf following a 24-hour delay to allow mine-search teams to check its intended route. Barring any new delays, the convoy was expected to reach Kuwait later today, shipping sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Reagan administration sources and published reports said a U.S. Navy jet in the Persian Gulf area fired two missiles at a suspected Iranian jet fighter that appeared to be threatening a U.S. surveillance plane last weekend. The missiles did not strike anything, they said. Iran did not comment on the incident.

A ship anchored offshore near the United Arab Emirates port of Fujairah reported sighting a mine in the water today, according to gulf-based shipping sources. Hours earlier, an Oman navy scout helicopter had spotted three other mines nearby.

The 274,347-ton supertanker Texaco Caribbean struck a mine on Monday near Fujairah, the first mining of a ship in the Gulf of Oman.

The discovery of mines in the busy waters leading to the Persian Gulf indicated a new peril for shipping companies. It also appeared to raise the stakes for Washington's reflagging operation, since the U.S. Navy assembles its convoys of Kuwaiti tankers in the Gulf of Oman.

The origin of the mines was not clear. Some shipping experts said they may have been planted by Iran, or drifted from the Strait of Hormuz, where Iran conducted military exercises last week.

However, a shipping official based in Kuwait said coastal currents move from the Gulf of Oman toward Hormuz in this season.

About 50 tankers and several warships were in the anchorage off the United Arab Emirates Monday.

Council Appropriates $50,000 For 14th Street Improvements

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council has appropriated $50,000 to a N.C. Department of Transportation project which will widen 14th Street from Greenville Boulevard to Red Banks Road.

The council unanimously approved the appropriation at a workshop Monday night.

"As you know, we have just completed a three-lane widening project on East 14th Street extension from Red Banks Road to the south city limits," NCDOT Board member Randy Doub said in a letter to the council.

"We are presently in the process of developing and looking for funding sources for further improvements to East 14th Street extension."

Doub said the proposed improvements include widening the present three-lane section to a 52-foot curb and gutter section with paint striping for four lanes with pedestrian and bicycle lanes on each side near the curbs.

"I believe that with the proposed annexation of the Brook Valley area, this will be a very important project in order to relieve congestion," Doub said. "The bicycle and pedestrian lanes will contribute to the quality of life of those many persons that live in and around the East 14th Street extension."

The $126,467 improvement project will be paid for with small urban funds and contract resurfacing funds with the NCDOT, according to Doub, who said the city's money will be needed to continue widening with curb and gutter from Greenville Boulevard to Red Banks Road.

"I have received a preliminary cost estimate on this project of $242,890," he said. "I am prepared to request our Board of Transportation to approve funding from various sources for this project."

Doub said he would request $30,000 from DOT's contract resurfacing, $70,000 from Division II urban allocation, and $92,890 from statewide discretionary funds.

Acting City Manager Mayo Allen said the money would come from the city's $63,583 fund balance.

"The Office of Revenue Sharing in Washington, D.C., has asked all cities to earmark remaining Revenue Sharing funds by September 30, 1987."

In other business, the council reviewed collection difficulties connected with the $75 rescue fees.

Since the rescue fees were implemented on Oct. 1, 1986, the city has collected $33,024 of the $125,625 owed for the service, according to Ron Kimble, finance director.

Kimble said most of the collection delays were caused by difficulties in setting up the billing system.

"The first nine months of the program are not indicative of expected future performance," he said. "Though we have not been as successful as we anticipated, we have now moved this billing system under the auspices of the tax collection office where their collection expertise and manpower can assist to increase the percentage of collections.

"There was a tremendous learning curve and implementation curve to overcome in the initial stages. We are now beyond that startup period, and are streamlinging our collection efforts."

Council member Janice Buck, who requested that rescue fees be discussed, said the council should reconsider the fees based on the cost of collection and lack of success.

"We have collected such a small portion of it, and we did do away with the garbage fees," she said. "I feel that certainly we should do away with this. It's my suggestion that we drop it."

Council member Lorraine Shinn said the city should eliminate the fees if it is just breaking even.

Total costs for operating the rescue fee program range from $15,000 and $18,000 annually, according to Kimble.

Other council members said the staff should be given more time to improve collection figures.

"It seems to me that it's a new program and any new program is going to have a certain number of kinks in it you're going to have to get straightened out," Council member Nancy Jenkins said. "It seems we haven't given it enough time."

"A budget was adopted based on this as a source of income," Council

ECU To Get $12.5 Million In Proposed State Budget

Related Story On A-5

RALEIGH — State-funded institutions in Pitt County stand to gain more than $13.2 million for capital improvement projects if measures now before the General Assembly are approved.

East Carolina University would receive the bulk of the money — $12.5 million — over the next two years, state Rep. Ed Warren and Sen. Tom Taft said this morning.

The bulk of the allocations are part of a capital improvements bill scheduled for a vote today.

Warren and Taft — who said the measures had the full support of the rest of the Pitt County Delegation, including Sen. Bob Martin of Bethel and Reps. Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville and Eugene Rogers of Williamston — said the bill includes just over $4.4 million for a new sports medicine facility at ECU ($2.2 million the first year and $2.225 million the second year), as well as $4.2 million to complete the Brody Medical Science building for ECU's School of Medicine ($2.1 million for each year of the bienium).

Pitt Community College would receive $711,000 ($510,170 the first year and $200,830 the second year) for a new building if the measure passes.

In addition, Warren said the capital improvement bill includes $350,000 for ECU to begin planning for a regional center, "like the Ramsey Center at Western Carolina University."

"That's a tremendously important item because that commits the state to the construction of a major regional center," Taft said.

Warren said the regional center — estimated to cost $15 million — would "accommodate conferences and

Boulder Hits Sightseers' Bus

WINTER PARK, Colo. (AP) — Gov. Roy Romer says the state accepts responsibility for the deaths of seven sightseers after a two-ton boulder dislodged by a state highway crew tumbled out of the Rockies and smashed into their bus, crushing its right side.

"It's a terrible accident. Quite frankly, it's our responsibility to make it right," the governor said.

The tour bus was carrying 28 people along a Rocky Mountain road.

"It looked like an explosion ripped the side of the bus apart," said Sgt. Larry Tolar of the Colorado State Patrol. He said the boulder "came out of a treeline and bang, there it was."

Six people died at the scene and a seventh person died at a Denver hospital Monday evening. Fifteen others on the bus were injured in the accident 60 miles northwest of Denver. Eight remained hospitalized today, two in critical condition.

"It was just dead eerie, no sound," said Ken Aicardi, a retired Boston policeman visiting Colorado who was the first on the scene. "People who were seriously injured ... were sitting there calmly in a state of shock."

"The passengers were still in the bus and staring straight ahead. No crying or screaming," said Grand County sheriff's deputy Bob Bodermann. One woman kept asking him to find her camera so she could take a picture of her husband, who was dead, he said.

A highway crew using a front-end loader dislodged the six-foot boulder while clearing rock above U.S. Highway 40, which runs near the bottom of the 11,314-foot Berthoud Pass, officials said.

The boulder was pushed onto a large flat area, and "the crew was operating under the plan that the rock would hit and stay there," said Dan Hopkins, spokesman for the Colorado Highway Department.

Instead, the boulder tumbled through trees into the side of the bus, which carried American and foreign tourists on a one-day sightseeing tour. The driver had no chance to avoid the rock, Tolar said.

John Schmidt, a dispatcher for Gray Lines bus tours in Denver, said the bus had left Denver at 8:30 a.m. for a 250-mile trip that winds over Berthoud Pass and through Rocky Mountain National Park.

LOU CILLA MOORE

Former Resident Honored

Lou Cilla Monroe Moore, a former Greenville resident, has been named North Carolina's Home Economics Teacher of the Year.

The state program honors teachers who have developed innovative programs and techniques to motivate home economics students and teachers.

Mrs. Moore teaches at Northwest Middle School in Winston-Salem. Her winning program was Exploratory Experiences in Family Life, an 18-week program designed to afford each student aged 11-13 an opportunity to explore family life in the classroom and make application in the home and community. Personal talents, interests and aptitudes are appraised during the process, she said.

The designation of Mrs. Moore for this honor was announced during the 1987 summer workshop held in Greensboro by the Home Economics Education division of the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction.

Mrs. Moore, who grew up in Greenville, is a graduate of C.M. Eppes High School in Greenville. She has a bachelor's degree from North Carolina A&T University and a master's degree from the University of North Carolina-Greensboro.

She is the sister of Lillie Reid and Willa Monroe, both of Greenville.

Storm Damage

Thunderstorms in Pitt County Monday kept Greenville Utilities Commission crews busy until early this morning, said Roger Jones, director of GUC's Electric Systems.

"We had considerable problems starting about 4 p.m. (Monday) with scattered circuit operations," he said. At about 5:30 p.m., "there were a number of breaker operations reported."

Three transformers were damaged, and there were blown fuses and underground cable problems that kept crews and supervisors working, Jones said.

"It was pretty much scattered throughout the system."

There were 1.17 inches of rain recorded in south Greenville Monday while .62 inches were recorded in north Greenville. The Tar River level this morning was recorded at 4.1 feet above sea level.

Scattered showers are forecast tonight and Wednesday.

Ayden Board Appropriates Block Grant Housing Funds

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners amended its 1987-88 fiscal year budget by appropriating $6,700 to complete three houses under the 1983 Community Development Block Grant.

During its regular monthly meeting Monday night, the board noted the money stems from program income paid by property owners, and it must be used to complete houses under the 1983 program.

The board also agreed to assign CDBG contracts from Talbert Cox & Associates Inc. to Dale Holland for completion to allow Melinda Wall, who changed employers, to continue handling the contracts.

In other matters, Town Clerk Ralph Ford was directed to certify land owners of property located on West Third Street before a public hearing may be set for annexation. There are plans for Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, First Federal and Edwards Pharmacy to build on this property.

The Housing Authority was directed to apply for modernization funds for repairs to the housing projects, while it was agreed that Ford will collect taxes for the 1987-88 year.

A sum of $313,096 was approved as taxes released for 1987, while $1,918 was released since the last regular meeting.

The board also agreed to proceed with Phase II of the System Betterment Program as recommended by Public Works Director Mitchell Keel.

Edith Lang of the Pleasant Plain Church Road community asked the board to consider extending water lines to that area as the new town well is constructed, because residents receive insufficient water supply and pressure from their own wells.

Even though that area is not in the town limits, "the way Ayden is growing it will be eventually," Mrs. Lang said. "When you're putting in this new well ... please give consideration to providing water in our area."

Town Manager Donald Russell said "unless we annex the territory we cannot extend our planning territory more than 1 mile," but studies are being conducted for connecting common water supplies.

Russell said Mrs. Lang and neighboring residents soon may be notified of studies in their area.

U.S. Will Study Plight Of Vietnam's Injured

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will send representatives to Vietnam to examine the plight of war orphans and cripples, in return for that nation's pledge to accelerate efforts to locate missing Americans or their remains, officials say.

"We agreed that we would address these as humanitarian concerns and not link them to broader political issues, such as normalization of diplomatic relations, resumption of trade or economic aid," presidential envoy John W. Vessey said Monday.

Vessey, who recently completed three days of talks with the Vietnamese, briefed President Reagan on Monday and later discussed his trip with reporters. He said Vietnam insists it does not have any Americans missing in action from the war but suggests it is possible there are some elsewhere in Southeast Asia.

Vessey, a four-star general and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he would not speculate on whether there are Americans being held against their will in Vietnam.

"I don't know whether there are any there. There are certainly all sorts of evidence to show that some might be there, but yet it has been a long time since the end of the war," Vessey said.

He said that in return for Vietnam's promise to make greater efforts to locate missing Americans, the United States will send experts to Hanoi to look into "humanitarian concerns that the Vietnamese have" such as war orphans and people crippled by the fighting.

More meetings will be held in Hanoi at the end of the month on the POW-MIA issue and the humanitarian issues, he said.

Vessey said the Vietnamese insisted that "there are no live American prisoners under the control of the Vietnamese government."

However, he said "the Vietnamese have acknowledged that there are some wild parts of their country."

"The suggestion is that it is possible for there to be live Americans in Southeast Asia, not under the control of the Vietnamese government," he said. "That is the inference that I draw. They did not say that."

There are 2,413 Americans listed as missing in action in Indochina, 1,776 of them in Vietnam.

Vessey, who was a U.S. officer in Vietnam during the war, said Vietnam had agreed to pursue 220 "discrepancy cases" of MIAs, including 70 cases on which the United States has compelling evidence showing that an American was alive.

"We have people who were seen parachuting close to their forces, most probably captured. Those men did not return, nor have their remains been returned," he said. In another case, a picture of a wounded American was published during the war in a Vietnamese newspaper, yet he did not return and his remains have not been recovered.

"Those sorts of questions have to be answered. The Vietnamese have acknowledged the importance of answering those questions," Vessey said.

However, the general said Vietnam has agreed to do things before and has not followed through. "We have an agreement to act," he said. "We'll see what the actions are."

Reagan Speech Will Cover Arms Deal In General Terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's speech on the Iran-Contra affair will address the "overall questions that are on people's minds" after 11 weeks of often conflicting testimony in congressional hearings, his spokesman says.

Reagan will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday from the Oval Office in a nationally broadcast address.

Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, said Reagan worked on the speech Sunday and Monday, writing on a yellow legal pad.

"He produced some original language yesterday, and I think will again today, so the speech is changing all the time, and I suspect will change right up until Wednesday," Fitzwater said.

There have been conflicting reports, based on anonymous sources, about whether Reagan will say he would have rejected the diversion of Iran arms-sale profits if he had known about it in advance.

Fitzwater said "it's a 50-50 chance that he won't say either one of those things."

A White House source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said "there has to be some reference to the diversion" because it was an important element of the story. However, the source said Reagan would not declare that he would have vetoed the idea. The source refused to elaborate.

Fitzwater said Reagan would talk about the Iran-Contra affair "in a personal sense" and that "he'll deal in a general sense with all the questions" that emerged from the hearings.

Indicating that Reagan would not give a detailed response to individual points, Fitzwater said, "I'm sure one can come up with thousands of questions ... but I think he wants to respond to the overall questions that are on people's minds."

However, Fitzwater would not say which questions would be covered. The hearings produced an account of bickering and deceit among Cabinet membrs, White House coverup stories, the shredding of documents and the withholding of information from Reagan by his aides.

California Revokes Suspects' Licenses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California Department of Motor Vehicles is revoking the driver's licenses of people arrested for investigation of highway violence and has grabbed eight licenses so far.

Meanwhile, freeway violence that has left four people dead and 16 injured in roadway attacks in California spread to New York on Monday.

A bare-chested man, described by police as a "psycho," allegedly fired nine shots after a traffic accident on a New York City bridge and told authorities he was going to California to get a highway killer.

And in Chicago, a motorist, described by prosecutors as a "road warrior," was found innocent of all charges linked to a traffic dispute that ended when a man was shot and paralyzed.

Edward Petit, 43, was cleared of attempted murder charges Monday after he said he shot Bennie Thompson, 26, in self-defense on July 3, 1986.

California police said they cracked another case Monday after a man who allegedly stabbed a motorist during a weekend highway confrontation surrendered to authorities in Orange County.

On Monday afternoon, Chris Lee Kozaites, 33, of Long Beach, was booked for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon in the stabbing of Douglas Robert Speth during a highway confrontation Sunday.

Speth, 25, was in critical but stable condition Monday at Western Medical Center in Newport Beach.

Speth was a passenger on a motorscooter that was cut off by a red Corvette Sunday, police said. When the two vehicles stopped alongside one another at a traffic light, Speth reportedly got off the scooter and complained to the Corvette driver.

"Apparently the victim said something like, 'That's real smart,' and it went downhill from there," Officer Kent Stoddard of the Newport Beach Police Department said.

California Department of Motor Vehicles Director Del Pierce said that since August 4 his department has canceled the licenses of eight Southern Californians suspected in freeway shootings.

Officials said they are acting under a section of the Vehicle Code that authorizes license revocations of both drivers and passengers when "it is required for the safety of the driver or other persons upon the highways."

Since mid-June, there have been 50 verified attacks on California's roadways.

other programs to enhance the area. It's essential for our part of the state and will let state conferences come to eastern North Carolina."

Warren also said the building might include facilities for sports events.

Another measure expected to benefit the medical school, Warren said, is a "special provision to allow the medical school to keep all reimbursement from Medicare and Medicaid payments." In the past, half the reimbursements have gone to the state's General Fund and half to the school.

Warren said the passage of the bill could mean an additional $200,000 to $500,000 a year to be used for nonrecurring expense items, such as equipment and facilities.

A bill approved by the Joint Appropriations Committee today and expected to be introduced Wednesday would provide $3.9 million for a microelectronics center at ECU, according to Taft and Warren.

"This is an important step in making East Carolina a modern research institution," Taft said. "That is particularly important in light of the further commitment of the state to fund the purchase ($18 million) of a super computer to be located in the Research Triangle Park."

The microelectronics hookup gives East Carolina a tool that "few major research universities in the country have access to," Taft noted.

Warren said the first-year appropriation of $3.1 million would provide the funds needed to link ECU with the rest of the University of North Carolina computer network and $750,000 for the second year for operating the connection.

"This is a tool we need if North Carolina is going to become one of the top three or four centers for technology" in the nation, Taft said.

"We've had a good year," Warren suggested. "Support from all the Pitt County delegation ... that enhanced what we're doing."

According to Taft, "the bottom line is, it appears that East Carolina is coming out with some major accomplishments.

Fragile Waters

News of a fish kill on the Pamlico River is yet another reminder that the state's estuarine resources are fragile and must be protected.

Whether the kill of menhaden — a prime catch and source of income for Pamlico fishermen — was caused by heat or man-made irregularities, the incident points out the pressure the fragile waterway is under.

The Pamlico is a valuable economic resource. In 1986, 60 percent of North Carolina's seafood catch came from the Pamlico Sound and its estuaries — the nation's second largest. It is also a valuable aesthetic resource. But threats to water quality continue to muddy the future of this source of income.

Documented changes have taken place in the Pamlico basin. Nitrogen, phosphorus, sediment and fresh water are present in alarming quantities in the river and sound — large enough amounts to kill fish, reduce marine catches, send oyster beds retreating downstream and produce slimy, destructive algae.

Development along the banks of the river and sound has added pollution of its own — runoff and seepage from septic systems. The river cannot take any more pressure from agricultural, industrial and residential sources.

The Pamlico is an important asset to eastern North Carolina, a beautiful and bountiful playground and workspace beleagured by mistreatment. The promise and potential it holds must not be allowed to diminish beyond recovery, or else the waterway will find itself flowing along the same course as the abused Chesapeake Bay.

If the Pamlico is to retain its place as a centerpiece of productivity and profitability for eastern North Carolina, incidents such as a fish kill must be redflagged. They must be utilized to attract attention to the trouble the waterway is in, and create public cognizance about water quality concerns.

The natural beauty and recreation value of the Pamlico are sufficient reason to preserve it. But dollars — both income for fishermen and taxes — is another sound one.

Fish kills must be recognized for what they are — a distress signal for water quality. State officials and watchdogs for the Pamlico should view these incidents as a call for help in protecting this important waterway. If the signs are heeded, the effort to perpetuate its life will succeed.

Saudis Shape Up To The Task

WASHINGTON — The nature of Iran's threat and how to deal with it showed clear when parliamentarians came to Mecca as terrorists to orchestrate the state-sponsored riots there and Saudi Arabia quietly faced up to its powerful neighbor.

Tehran's control over that act of terror at the Muslim holy place went so far that the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini sent eight to 10 members of the Majlis (parliament). They included at least two known to have tortured prisoners in Tehran's jails. Viewing this and the arrest of Saudi diplomats in Tehran as naked intimidation, the Saudis arrested the entire Iranian diplomatic community in Jeddah as well as a deputy foreign minister sent to "investigate" the riots.

Iran's revolutionary regime backed down, which sends a message to the United States. For nearly a decade Washington has bowed under humiliation by the ayatollahs. But the Saudis showed that though the Iranians are not "moderate," they are not suicidal when confronting implacable resolution.

This evidence confounds panicky congressional efforts to turn tail and pull the augmented U.S. naval presence out of the Gulf. And it also stamps with utmost folly the effort by the CIA to cover up Iranian terrorism to facilitate the "initiative" built around illicit arms sales to Tehran.

The riots in Mecca, far from a last-minute affair, were planned weeks in advance with scrupulous attention to public relations. Less than a day after the bloodshed, the Kuwaiti embassy in Tehran was under siege by fanatics described by the government as "relatives of the martyrs of Mecca." That was before the names of any of the victims in Mecca could have been known.

Surprised but not intimidated, the Saudis restored order with heavy loss of life. When four Saudi diplomats in Tehran were arrested, there was this steely reponse: the entire Iranian diplomatic community, 14 men and their families, was taken into custody. Tehran was promised biblical reciprocation: one Saudi beaten, one Iranian beaten; one Saudi killed, one Iranian killed; one Saudi released, one Iranian released.

After the riots, a deputy foreign minister was dispatched to Jeddah uninvited. His Saudi counterpart asked him at the airport whether he had come to "negotiate" or "apologize." "To investigate," said the Iranian. The official was arrested and shipped back home on the next plane.

Within 24 hours, three of the four Saudi diplomats in Tehran were released, the fourth a few days later. That is a salutary lesson on overcoming bluster from a rich, powerful country with a fanatically oriented population of 50 million, nearly 10 times the size of the Saudi kingdom.

To the Saudis, the U.S. attempt to downplay Iranian terror during the illicit arms sales was self-delusion for political ends. A devastating example of concealing Khomeini's tactics came during last year's Moslem pilgrimage to Mecca. Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani — then being courted by U.S. arms-sellers — is believed to have approved sending 175 high-level terrorists to Mecca. They carried cases of explosives destined for Western and Persian Gulf states. But that information was suppressed with the help of the CIA.

Most of those terrorists were arrested, just as they were last week. But when Saudi officials in 1986 consulted the U.S. about putting the Iranians on trial, they were advised not to. The Saudi government went along with Washington and Rafsanjani's personal appeal got the terrorists back home.

The terminal point of U.S. pretense that Iranian terror was no problem came several months ago. Not long after the Iran-arms scandal was exposed, intelligence specialists uncovered evidence that implicated Rafsanjani himself as a control officer in Tehran for extremist Hezbollah terrorists in Lebanon. That made him a suspect in the June 17 capture of former ABC reporter Charles Glass in Beirut.

Rafsanjani's implication convinced Reagan advisers that further diplomacy is futile. "It's back to square one," one official told us. "Our original premise was right that as long as Khomeini is alive there is no way to appease or disarm his movement."

French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac reached that same conclusion six weeks ago after he failed to soften up Iran with a $330 million partial payment for a billion-dollar loan from the Shah. The attempt to buy good will was soon followed by the most serious diplomatic confrontation France has ever had with Khomeini over cleaning out a terrorist network inside the Iranian embassy.

In Le Monde last month, Chirac spelled out the lesson: in dealing with Iran, the correct policy is toughness; against Iranian terrorism, supertoughness. The Saudis long have understood this. On the Persian Gulf front, President Reagan finally is showing he understands, even if much of Congress does not.

Social Security

A reminder of Social Security impact came last week with the observance of the 25th anniversary of the Greenville Social Security office's establishment.

When it opened in August 1962 the office served Beaufort, Bertie, Chowan, Hyde, Tyrell, Washington and Martin, along with Pitt County. Now there are offices in Washington and Elizabeth City. The local office serves only Pitt and Martin Counties.

It was a major occasion when the local office was opened in 1962 with Reps. Herbert Bonner, L.H. Fountain and Greenville Mayor Charles H. King on hand for the ceremonies.

The program has grown during that time with the addition of student benefits and Supplemental Security Income. The major change has been the addition of Medicare benefits which provide health services for the retired and the disabled. And Social Security continues to change.

The expansion of the payments offered and the numbers of people serviced are obvious from statistics. In August 1962, 6,099 Pitt citizens were eligible and their monthly Social Security benefits totaled $304,271. In August 1987 over 14,000 county citizens will receive in excess of $5 million.

That is a growth which has been repeated all over the nation and as the benefits have increased so has the tax.

The Social Security program has been around since 1935 when it was created in depression-era programs proposed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was controversial when it was begun and it still is controversial. The program can be expected to become even more expensive as our population ages and their needs increase. It is a certainty, however, that Social Security is here to stay. What will have to be determined in future decades is how best to pay for the ever-growing benefits.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Some time ago I appeared before a House Committee hearing with regard to immunity from prosecution for Nursing Home Advisory Committee members while in the performance of their duties. As I sat there after I had spoken, I heard testimony with regard to another bill which would have provided stiffer penalties for gross negligence and incompetencies which might jeopardize the safety and health of nursing home residents.

The thought occurred to me: "What are you doing here? If those responsible had been doing their job, it wouldn't be necessary for you to be here."

Whose responsibility was it to see that the rules and regulations were implemented for the health and safety of these residents of these nursing homes? The Division of Facility Services of the Department of Human Resources.

The Division of Facility Services. Will they be the ones to monitor these same institutions which were excused or overlooked in the past? Who is going to see that the Division of Facility Services does its job? Must we rely again on federal inspection teams to bring to our attention areas of neglect and incompetencies in certain facilities? I hope not. I hope the North Carolina General Assembly will see that legislation which it passes will be carried out with the purpose and intent of the law.

Greenville

To the editor:

We personally think Greenville does need a shelter for the homeless, but we don't think that the Agnes Fullilove School is the best place.

The Higgs Neighborhood is a family neighborhood with a lot of good people in it. A lot of homeless people fit into the category of drunks, drug abusers and people with mental problems. If this school is used for this purpose, you're going to have these people wandering about the neighborhood. One only needs to read the local news to know that this neighborhood has problems enough as it is.

There is a problem with petty crime in this area now. There is already some problem with derelicts. If this school is made into a shelter, it's going to draw these people like a magnet.

We would suggest that one of the many empty buildings downtown would be more suitable. We would also suggest that the people who made this decision have never lived in an area where they had to deal with these people on a day-to-day basis from a non-authoritarian viewpoint. Think about the children in this neighborhood. We would suggest that the school be made into low-rent apartments, which this city sorely needs.

We urge you to contact the Pitt County Commissioners and ask them to vote against the $40,000 funding for this project.

Paul G. and Grace Ross Little,
William E. and Martha Elmore

To the editor:

A word of appreciation is in order for the City Council's generous response in helping the Greenville Community Life Center establish a shelter for the homeless. The council and its planners, Bobby Roberson and Andy Harris, demonstrated compassion and understanding in supporting this project. I and many others may have been inclined to view some actions and decisions of the past as tight-fisted and insensitive, but let us give credit where credit is due. Criticism comes easily and we should be as ready to applaud as we have been to judge.

Also Councilwoman Lorraine Shinn has already arranged a helpful meeting between state officials and local supporters. That meeting on Aug. 6 revealed potential sources of help for operating the shelter when grant proposals are developed and processed.

Finally, area media have significantly aided this project by informing the larger community of the effort. Newspaper, radio and television coverage have been excellent. Apparently "good news" is truly newsworthy in our area.

Strength For Today

A famous cartoonist once drew cartoon pictures of everyone attending a dinner party and then passed the pictures around for the guests to examine. Everybody recognized everyone else's picture, but no one recognized his own.

Here the cartoonist revealed the fact that few of us would recognize ourselves as others see us. Of course we recognize our own faces in a mirror or a photograph, but when the cartoonist sketches in our character as it comes across to others, many of us would see only a stranger.

Most of us would get a shock if we really saw ourselves as others see us. We may think we are impressive; others think we are vain. We may think ourselves intelligent; others think we are pretentious. We might have a failure of character which we consider hidden. Yet the cartoonist sees it — as plain as the nose on our face.

Legislator Proposes Public 'Draft' For Doctors

WASHINGTON – Four years ago, my friend Philip Keisling, then an editor of the neo-liberal Washington Monthly, wrote an article entitled "Radical Surgery: Draft the Doctors." Phil proposed that in return for free schooling and generous salaries, physicians might be conscripted, like firefighters and police, into practicing what and where their communities need most.

"This won't pass Congress tomorrow, obviously," Keisling admitted in a considerable understatement.

But Phil is persistent. Now a resident of Oregon and a staffer for Vera Katz, the speaker of that state's House of Representatives, Keisling has helped to demonstrate that even relatively minor impingements on the freedom of licensed professionals won't pass, either.

During the recently ended Oregon legislative session, speaker Katz, a Democrat from Portland, introduced legislation to require both doctors and lawyers with more than five years' experience to provide at least 200 hours of free service to poor clients every six years. That's an average of less than one work week per year.

Under the plan, established lawyers and physicians would participate in a lottery. The professionals' names would be drawn six months in advance of their assignments. Individuals who have already donated their time to the less privileged – in a clinic, for example, or the public defender's office – would be exempted.

The bill died after one brief hearing. Katz jokes that apart from sparking discussion of gratis professional services, she worked a real miracle – uniting doctors and lawyers around an issue of public policy.

Speed Limits Going Up On N.C. Interstates

By The Associated Press

North Carolina drivers are getting their first chance in 13 years to drive legally at 65 mph as state workers begin posting the higher speed limits on some rural sections of the state's interstate highways.

The first signs went up Monday on I-85 north of Durham and other sections will be getting the higher speeds this week.

Jim Sughrue, a state Department of Transportation spokesman, said there is no pattern for where the new limit will be posted on what days. The signs will be put up during the normal work patterns of the state's 14 highway division outposts, he said.

"The idea was that the limit go up starting (Monday), and we would get all the signs up within a few days," Sughrue said. "Now that we have two speed limits on Interstates, we wanted to get them up as soon as possible to avoid confusion."

The speed limit is going up on sections of I-77, I-40, I-26 and all of I-95 in North Carolina. The higher limit covers 528 of the 849 miles of Interstate highways in the state.

State officials say they do not know how the higher speed limit will affect the accident or casualty rates on the highways, but insurers are already expecting to see a surge in those numbers.

Insurance officials say they expect the frequency and severity of highway accidents to reach levels not seen since the nation ordered speed limits trimmed to 55 mph at the height of the gas crisis in January 1974.

But before actuaries come forward two or three years from now with hard numbers able to convince regulators to increase rates, a rash of new claims will come from insurers' bottom lines.

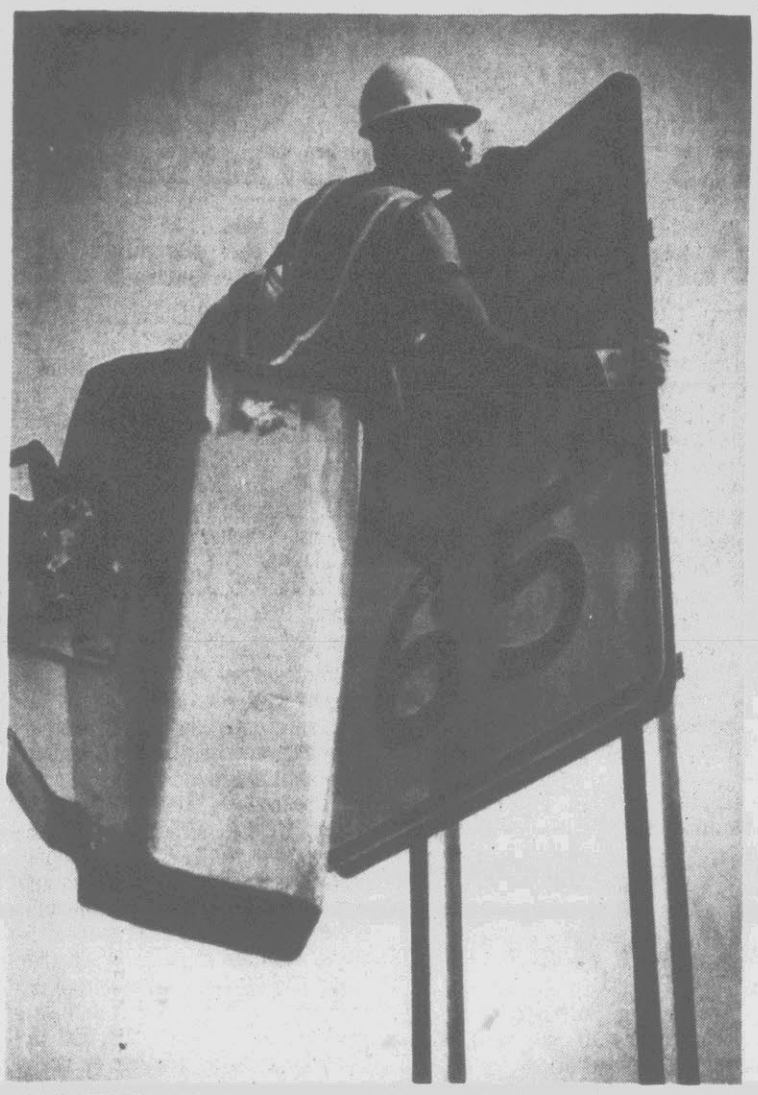
"Unfortunately, insurance companies have to react after the fact," said Joe Best, vice president in Integon Corp.'s property-casualty actuarial department.

But a few insurance companies are trying to gauge what the new costs will be, and one assigned an employee to study the same thing in reverse — what happened when speed limits were lowered in 1974.

Martin Deede, an actuarial associate for Metropolitan Property & Liability Insurance Co. of Warwick, R.I., said he thought the cost of insuring a faster nation will climb 10 percent.

Deede said the number of accidents dropped 4.6 percent in 1974, and the number of fatalities dropped 16.5 percent.

"That big drop had to be due to the 55 mph limit," he said. "If we take the speed limit back up, we'll see a reversal."



NEW SIGNS — Two Department of Transportation employees put up new speed limit signs on Interestate 85 north of Durham on Monday as North Carolina began raising the limit on selection portions of the superhighway system. DOT officials said sections of other Interstate roads in North Carolina would get higher speed limits later this month. (AP Laserphoto)

Democratic Budget Focuses On Ports, Education For Capital Improvements

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic legislative leaders have proposed that North Carolina make improvements in higher education and port facilities the centerpiece of a $306.5 million capital improvements program.

The bill was unveiled Monday at a meeting of the Joint Appropriations Committee, which was scheduled to vote today.

The package is one of the two remaining segments of the fiscal 1987-89 budget awaiting action. Last week, the Legislature enacted an $18.4 billion operating budget.

Legislative leaders said they expected to release today or Wednesday the final bill, which will authorize expenditures by non-state agencies and for local "pork barrel" projects.

"We're trying to continue the best education system in the country" by pumping funds into the University of North Carolina system and the state's community colleges and technical schools, Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, said.

And by targeting the ports at Wilmington and Morehead City for major expenditures, budget leaders hoped to make them "as accessible as possible to the shipping industry and also to people that import and export," Plyler, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said. "This is a big tool in industrial development."

In releasing their spending recommendations, Plyler and House Appropriations Committee Chairman Billy Watkins, D-Granville, turned down many funding requests. Among the losers were a new Department of Revene building and a new Judicial Complex that would house the Supreme Court, Department of Justice, Court of Appeals and Administrative Office of the Courts.

Gov. Jim Martin had proposed issuing bonds to get those projects under way.

Plyler said the Legislature had some $80 million less to spend on capital improvements in 1987-89 than in the previous biennium.

Among the big-ticket items recommended for funding:

— $62.4 million in fiscal 1987-88 and $52.6 million in 1988-89 for the University of North Carolina system including funds for construction of a business-college building at Apprlachian State; a sports medicine facility at East Carolina; a new library at N.C. A&T State; and a pulp and paper lab and textile school building at N.C. State.

Also, there is money for a business school at Fayetteville State; renovations at N.C. Central; a science building at Pembroke State; a graduate center and arboretum at UNC-Asheville; a biotechnology building, alcohol studies center, and family physicians center at UNC-Chapel Hill; an architecture class building and engineering lab at UNC-Charlotte.

IN THE STATE

Rights Of Way

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill approved by the Senate would allow North Carolina to acquire rights of way abandoned by railroads for future high-tech trains or highways.

The Senate approved the measure on a voice vote Monday night despite the sponsor's inability to answer specific questions on how it would affect property rights of adjoining landowners and complaints the bill was on too fast a track.

"I think the sunset provision in this bill (for July 1, 1989) is an acknowledgement that we are acting in haste," said Sen. Frank Block, D-New Hanover.

Block said a railroad line could be abandoned in as little as 180 days, and supporters feared that more lines would be lost if the Legislature did not act.

Cruising

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The leader of a group lobbying for the rights of cruisers says his organization will protest new parking and loitering laws in Lexington, but the group's vice president says that may not be necessary.

"We will parade this city," 46-year-old James Lloyd of Salisbury, president of Cruisers' Constitutional Rights, said after the Lexington City Council passed its new anticruising measures Monday night.

Lloyd said protest parades are scheduled for Concord Saturday and Mount Airy on Aug. 29. A similar protest parade was held Aug. 1 in Salisbury. All three cities have passed anticruising measures.

The new ordinances ban parking in the city's central business district from midnight to 6 a.m. and restrict it to two hours from 6 a.m. to midnight. Before Monday, parking had been restricted to two hours only from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Another measure allows police, after issuing a warning, to cite people for obstructing pedestrians or traffic flow or for disorderly conduct or blocking businesses' doorways.

Garbage Barge

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has approved a plan to burn and bury the ashes from 3,100 tons of trash aboard the garbage barge rejected by six states and three countries, but a Brooklyn politician says he may appeal.

State Supreme Court Justice Dominic J. Lodato on Monday said the garbage could be gone within a month. The wandering barge has been anchored off Brooklyn since June 17 after a search for a dumpsite that took it to the Caribbean and back.

Under the plan approved by Lodato, the garbage would be incinerated in Brooklyn and the ashes dumped in Islip on Long Island, which had rejected the load because its dump was full and sent the barge on its odyssey March 22.

The barge had left Islip for North Carolina, where the garbage was to be turned into methane gas, but the plan fell through. The barge was then rejected by Alabama, Mississippi, Louisana, Texas, Florida and Mexico, Belize and the Bahamas.

Their uniforms, by the New Hanover County Sheriff's Department, were recently judged to be the best-looking of any law enforcement agency in the United States.

The department's garb bested more than 30 county sheriff's departments nationwide, said Marsha Hecht, director of public relations for the National Association of Uniform Manufacturers and Distributors. Her organization represents about 150 uniform makers and sponsored the contest.

Woman's Home Sold To Pay For Ex-Husband's Debts

WADESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hilda Jarman's friends tried to raise enough money to save her home, but their $1,000 bid just wasn't enough to satisfy the loans made by the Farmer's Home Administration to her ex-husband — loans that had used the house as collateral.

"I do have some friends, I'll tell you," Mrs. Jarman said Monday before her home was auctioned on the steps of the Anson County Courthouse. "I know I have as many as anybody in the world."

Mrs. Jarman's friends got together last week to raise money so she could make a token offer. On Friday, they sold cakes and cookies and homemade ice cream on the square in Wadesboro.

"I don't think it's fair at all," 13-year-old Mary Kay Jarman said a half-hour before the auction. "It's not our fault."

Mrs. Jarman's former husband, Tom, borrowed $300,000 from the Farmers' Home Administration in 1978 to buy a 300-acre farm. He got out of farming a few years later and in 1984, he moved to Kinston and quit paying on the loans. The Jarmans were divorced in 1985.

Mrs. Jarman cosigned for the loans, and the house was put up for collateral. The house was put in Mrs. Jarman's name after her husband left — but it was still on the books as collateral for the farm loans. She said she should have known that, but didn't read all the fine print in the legal documents.

A federal judge ordered the auction after another creditor went to court.

About a dozen of Mrs. Jarman's friends and supporters gathered for the auction. Another two dozen had come to bid on the farmland.

Mrs. Jarman removed her sunglasses and dabbed at tears when attorney Henry Drake read the legal description of her property.

Leaning on the shoulders of two friends, Mrs. Jarman made her bid on the home where she has raised five children over the last 18 years.

"My friends had a bake sale," she said. "They raised more than $1,000, so that's what I'll bid."

The house, a few blocks from downtown Wadesboro, is valued for tax purposes at $35,700.

None of the veteran land traders who'd gathered for the auction said a word. Finally there was a nod, and a bid of $40,000 by FmHA was announced. It was the only bid besides Mrs. Jarman's.

There's a 10-day period for additional offers. A lawyer involved in the sale said Mrs. Jarman might be able to negotiate with FmHA.

But she said she doubted she could pay for the home on her salary as a receptionist for the county Board of Education.

She and the two teen-age daughters still at home have been looking at mobile homes. They might buy one and move it to the 5-acre plot in Ansonville where Mrs. Jarman grew up.

After the auction, on the edge of the hot asphalt across the street from the courthouse, Mrs. Jarman's friends consoled her.

"I hope somebody learns a lesson from all this," Mrs. Jarman said quietly before inviting her friends to come by the house for tomato sandwiches.

Democrats Decry Martin Vacation

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin is sailing in the Virgin Islands when he should be monitoring the General Assembly and helping dought-stricken farmers seek aid, a Democratic spokesman says.

"Our state deserves leadership that is on the job, not on a pleaure boat," Ken Eudy, executive director of the North Carolina Democratic Party, said at a news conference Monday.

Tim Pittman, Martin's press secretary, said Eudy's criticism was unfair and that the governor's office was functioning in Martin's absence. "His presence is still being felt over there" at the Legislature, Pittman said.

Martin, a Republican, and his family left Aug. 1 for the vacation trip, scheduled to last through Sunday. Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, a Democrat, is acting governor while Martin is out of the country.

At a news conference before his trip, Martin said he had scheduled his trip for a time when he expected the Legislature to have adjourned. The latest that any previous session had ended was July 22.

Legislative leaders are pushing for adjournment late this week.

Pittman said Martin's son and daughter could not have accompanied him if he had postponed his vacation, and that Martin had been prepared to fly back last week if an emergency had arisen.

But Eudy said many legislators had put off their vacations and that Martin should have done likewise.

House Turns Back Proposal To Leave Area Waste Pact

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Opponents of a regional compact for low-level radioactive waste disposal vowed to continue their fight despite the House's two-to-one rejection of a call for North Carolina to withdraw.

"You bet," Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, said Monday when asked whether he would try to resurrect a withdrawal amendment defeated 66-32. The vote came during a two-hour debate that lasted until nearly midnight over a bill to establish a commission to choose a site for a North Carolina waste disposal facility.

Mavretic hinted he would push his amendment again today before the House takes a final vote on the bill, which it tentatively approved 70-31 Monday.

But the amendment's chances appeared slim, since its defeat came on a tabling motion that under House rules would take a two-thirds majority to overturn.

The vote on Mavretic's amendment climaxed an impassioned debate on an issue that has polarized the Legislature and could have a major impact nationally as states belonging to other waste disposal compacts ponder whether to stay in.

"You should know that the country is looking at North Carolina," Mavretic told his colleagues.

The eight-state Southeast Compact on Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal, through its governing commission, has voted for North Carolina to host a waste facility for 20 years, starting in 1992.

Mavretic argued that North Carolina had been unfairly and arbitrarily selected. He said the state would be better off "going it alone," operating its own facility for wastes generated in North Carolina.

"If you vote to take North Carolina out of the Southeast Compact, (it) is going to cause that Southeast Compact to come unglued, and it's going to cause at least four others to come unglued," Mavretic said. That would force Congress to re-examine the issue, he said.

"You're not going to get another chance (to vote on compact membership) until 1989, and by 1989 ... it's going to be too late," Mavretic warned.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, one of two North Carolina representatives on the compact commission and floor leader for the bill, countered that the bill did not deal directly with the question of whether North Carolina should remain in the compact. Rather, it would establish a commission to open a site that the state must have, whether or not it stays in, he said.

Miller insisted membership in the compact was in North Carolina's best interest.

"The best scholars that we've been able to talk to tell us you're treading on very dangerous ground if you believe you can set up in your own state a go-it-alone site and exclude waste from any other state," he said.

Withdrawal would tarnish North Carolina's credibility, Miller added. The Legislature voted in 1983 to have North Carolina join the Southeast Compact.

Burlington Laying Off 350 More Workers

GREENSBORO (AP) — Burlington Industries Inc. says it will dismiss 350 more workers in about 50 plant and division offices in its continuing effort to reduce expenses in the wake of an unsuccessful takeover attempt.

The firings announced Monday bring to 935 the total number of jobs eliminated since Burlington averted a takeover by New York financier Asher Edelman and Dominion Textile Inc. of Montreal.

Burlington spokesman Bryant Haskins said the latest terminations probably be the last major round of firings.

"What you see here essentially completes our divisions' review of their staffing needs in our manufacturing areas," Haskins said. "There might be a very minor adjustment here or there."

The jobs, which range from clerical to management positions, will be phased out over the next several months. Dismissed employees will receive severance pay and their portions of the company's profit-sharing and retirement plans and may make use of job placement services provided by the company.

Burlington, the nation's largest textile company, employs about 43,000 people in 10 states, including about 20,000 in North Carolina.

"We regret that hard working, dedicated and valuable Burlington employees will lose their jobs," Burlington's chairman and chief executive officer, Frank Greenberg, said. "But we believe these changes will strengthen divisional operations and enable us to take full advantage of the opportunities that lie ahead.

Edelman and Dominion's attempt to take over the company was thwarted when Burlington agreed to a $2.4 billion leveraged buyout by an investor group organized by the New York investment firm of Morgan Stanley Group Inc.

The company on July 20 dismissed 525 employees from its corporate headquarters in Greensboro and its research and development center in Jamestown.

A week later, Burlington dismissed 60 corporate staff jobs or division-level jobs in New York.

Haskins said he could not provide a breakdown of Monday's 350 terminations by division or by state.

Families Praise Stays In Ronald McDonald House

SHARING HOUSEHOLD DUTIES — Participation in daily activity at the Ronald McDonald House is expected of guests. Arnetta Sessoms (right) is shown assisting Jan King, house assistant manager, in unloading the dishwasher in the house's double kitchen. While the Ronald McDonald House was being dedicated Father's Day afternoon, June 15, a frightened couple from Kenansville were entering their 2-week-old son in Pitt County Memorial Hospital's Children's Hospital.

Before the day was over Eddie and Chris Bass would be told that their baby was in imminent danger of dying. His doctors were trying one last method to slow tiny Matthew Bass' heartbeat.

That method did work and Matthew is now at home, being meticulously given medication every four hours to keep his heartbeat regulated.

From June 23 to July 2 and again from July 4 to July 11, while Matthew was hospitalized, Eddie and Chris Bass and their 4-year-old daughter, Ashley, were residents of the Ronald McDonald House in Greenville.

"We stayed at the hospital the first two days," Mrs. Bass said. "We were so worried, so afraid of losing our baby. We were scared to get any farther away from him than the hall. But after his condition stabilized somewhat, it was wonderful to have the house right across the street. We were assured that we could be quickly summoned at any time of the night or day and it wasn't far to go."

The second time Matthew was brought back to Pitt Memorial, after only a two-day stay at home in Kenansville, he underwent surgery for pyloric stenosis, a closing of the passageway from the stomach to the intestines.

Both times the Basses were pleased with his care. They praise Dr. Peter Harris for his skill, for his devotion to their baby and for his honesty with them. And they were thrilled with the opportunity that staying at the Ronald McDonald House provided them. "If we hadn't had the house, we couldn't have had Ashley with us the whole time and the experience would have been much harder for her and much harder for us," Mrs. Bass said. "The playroom at the house is wonderful. There are so many toys. I don't think she ever got around to playing with them all."

Mrs. Bass is a vocational rehabilitation counselor; her husband is a teacher. She was on maternity leave at the time and her husband had the summer off, so the whole family stayed in Greenville during the entirety of Matthew's hospitalization.

"But we wouldn't have been able to if accomodations at the house had not been so reasonable," Mrs. Bass said.

She said Tony Price, the house manager, and his wife, Laura, a pediatric nurse, were "so nice, so easy to talk to."

"I really believe they are concerned about every single child and every single family that comes through the house."

Mrs. Bass said the presence of other families in the house also was a comfort. "Some of them had children worse off than ours, some better. It was wonderful to have them to talk to and to focus on them sometimes instead of ourselves."

Eula Sessoms and her daughter, Arnetta Sessoms, both of Nashville, have lived in the house for about a month. They take turns — mother in the daytime, grandmother at night — staying at the Children's Hospital with Jermaine Sessoms, Arnetta's 17-month-old son. He has been hospitalized since he swallowed some lye-based drain cleaner.

Eula Sessoms says of the house, "It's beautiful. I have really enjoyed being here. The people here are like one big family. We help each other the best we can. Tony and Laura are as nice as they can be. They do everything in the world to make it comfortable for us while we're here."

She said she expects her grandson to be able to go home soon.

Patricia Tyler, who lives in western Massachusetts, has been at the Ronald McDonald House since before her granddaughter, Rachel, was born. She and her daughter, Laura Tyler, came to Richlands to be with her daughter, Susan Arnspiger, during her difficult pregnancy. They were to stay while her son-in-law, Miles, a Camp Lejeune Marine, was to be away on maneuvers. But when they arrived, Susan was in labor and was being sent to Pitt Memorial for high-risk pregnancy care.

Every attempt was made to delay the baby's delivery, but she was born at seven months, one week, and is in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit of Pitt Memorial. She is larger than many premature babies, weighing more than 4 pounds. But some underdevelopment of her lungs and airway passage has kept her at the hospital. Within the last few days, her mother has been released from the hospital and now she and her husband, mother and sister all are staying at the Ronald McDonald House. Susan goes to the hospital at regular intervals to feed her baby and all of them go to visit her.

Mrs. Tyler said she cannot say enough positive things about the House. "I know whereof I speak, too," she said. "Susan had to have a lot of hospital care when she was a child and I remember the times that my husband and I had to be with her. I remember the cold feeling I had when I had to go to a hotel I couldn't afford when I left my child at the hospital at night. Here everything is provided at a minimal price." (Each family is charged $10 a day or whatever each can afford to pay.)

"The most important thing provided is the warm, loving concern of Tony and Laura and all the people here. I think it's amazing how both of them and all the volunteers here remember every family and their child and what's wrong with each child. They ask, 'Has your grandchild been born yet? How is your little boy's throat?' It's just wonderful."

Mrs. Tyler commented, as had Mrs. Bass and Mrs. Sessoms, on the good rapport among the guests. "Just being here means we have a lot in common and we get to know each other instantly," she said.

She said she has been particularly impressed with how Tony Price has made it a point to make her daughter, Laura, 13, feel at ease. That was an extra mile he didn't have to go, she said. "He'll never know how much I appreciate his and Laura's puzzle contests."

Both Mrs. Tyler and Mrs. Bass related that they had in the past taken part in fund-raisers for the Ronald McDonald House, never dreaming that they'd be using it so soon after its opening.

Mrs. Bass said she was a hot dog and doughnut seller in raising money to go into the Ashley Quinn Trust Fund. The money was raised for the care of a Kenansville child who died. The money was later donated to the Ronald McDonald House in her name.

Mrs. Tyler said during a visit to her daughter and her then-fiance, Miles, two years ago, they attended a fund-raiser for the Ronald McDonald House.

"I wish every community in the country that has a hospital could have a place like this," Mrs. Tyler said. "It's the most wonderful thing I've ever seen."

Woman Ponders Giving Gift Without Receiving Invitation

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: One week before a scheduled wedding and reception, my husband received a telephone call from the father of the bride who apologized for neglecting to include us on the guest list. He said he was mailing an invitation to us immediately with the information we would need — time, place, etc.

My husband decided that we should attend, so he accepted verbally. As luck would have it, a foot injury prevented my going and my husband did not want to go without me, so we had to regret after all. However, because we had accepted verbally, I thought we should send a gift. My husband disagreed. We had never met the bride or groom and knew nothing about their likes and dislikes, which would make buying a wedding gift rather difficult. By the way, we never did receive the invitation.

Personally, I would have had more respect for the parents of the bride had we not been invited at all.

Please comment on their behavior — and ours. — FRUSTRATED IN THE EAST

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Before commenting, I would need to know the relationship between the parents of the bride and you. It appears that you were overlooked, then they reconsidered and hastily invited you with a telephone call, whereupon your husband felt obligated to accept.

Inasmuch as you never did receive the promised invitation, and had never met the couple, a congratulatory card would be appropriate — but not a gift.

You said a "foot injury" prevented you from attending the wedding? Freud, who theorized, "There are no accidents," would have had a field day with this case.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the lady who asked if she should marry a widower who had been married for 40 years and had revolting table manners. (She thought maybe she could "teach" him.) She should run from him! His manners were learned at his mother's knee, and he will not improve. I know.

I've been fighting this for 44 years. I fell in love with a man who was very crude when it came to manners and behavior, but I thought I could change him. Of course, I couldn't. I didn't meet his family until after we were married, and when I did, I nearly dropped dead. His mother was a short, heavyset woman with atrocious manners. If you were in her way, she'd give you a shove! She never closed a door or a drawer — she either kicked or slammed it shut. She interrupted people and shouted them down, and was never wrong about anything.

My husband turned out to be just like her, but when you're in love you either don't notice, or they're on their best behavior. My husband's table manners are gross. He curls his left arm around his plate as if someone were going to steal it. He stabs at his food with his fork and chews with his mouth open. Yes, I've tried to correct him, but he's too lazy and stubborn to learn. Also, he's nearly illiterate and has never read a book. How this man held a job all these years, I'll never know. (This may account for his early retirement.) It's amazing how clever a person can be when he needs to bluff his way through.

He's a good man in other ways, but I never would have married him if I had known then what I learned later. — STUCK IN ST. LOUIS member Ed Carter said. "I am certainly not in favor of user fees as you well know, but I'm not sure of the impact it would have if we were to discontinue."

Mrs. Shinn and Mrs. Buck asked Kimble to supply additional information on postage, stationary and other costs associated with the collection. Acting City Manager Mayo Allen said Kimble could also provide the council with quarterly reports on the rescue fee collection progress.

Council member Bill Hadden said the council should seek input on the matter from the new city manager when he is appointed.

The rescue fees have had a positive impact in one area, Greenville Fire Chief Jenness Allen told council members.

"We have found that we've cut down on a lot of unnecessary calls that we've been transporting," he said.

Meanwhile, members of the Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 272 presented an application to maintain and use the city fire station on 14th Street after it is no longer used by the city.

"We are very interested in entering into a lease agreement with the city so that we can maintain and use that property to benefit the city and our local organization," said Hugh D. Cox, a Greenville lawyer and member of the Vietnam Veterans of America.

"We have approximately 150 members locally all of whom are middle-aged. Several of our members engaged in professional construction along with city officials can guide us in the use and appreciation of the building," Cox said.

"We will use the building for meeting and office space. There will be no game room nor consumption on the property. We are deeply committed to public service projects and enhancing the image of Vietnam veterans."

Acting City Manager Mayo Allen suggested the council wait for input from the new city manager since space at City Hall is limited. The council agreed to schedule an executive session to discuss the use of city property by the VVA.

The council also voted to send a request by R. Guy Mayo Jr. and Janice R. White to rezone 7.16 acres located off the eastern right-of-way of Memorial Drive, south of Fifth Street, from shopping center to highway commercial back to the city's Planning and Zoning Commission. The commission had recommended denial of the request.

The council conducted an executive session following the meeting to discuss personnel but took no action.

In 1976, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter defeated President Gerald R. Ford in their race for the White House.

Gross' Glove Examined

Umps Find Sandpaper On Glove

Gross Ejected For Scuffing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kevin Gross, who had said he wouldn't hesitate to use a baseball scuffed by another pitcher, stands accused of having the paraphernalia to do his own handywork.

National League umpire John Kibler said Gross had an illegal substance glued to his glove and ejected the Philadelphia Phillies' right-hander from Monday night's 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"I don't know what's going on," Gross said. "I don't need anything in my glove. He (Kibler) just told me I was out of the game."

Gross is the second pitcher to be thrown out of a game in the last 10 days. Joe Niekro of the Minnesota Twins was ejected against the California Angels for carrying an emery board and sandpaper in his pocket in a game Aug. 3.

American League president Bobby Brown suspended Niekro for 10 days without pay. Niekro appealed but was turned down.

Ironically, it was after a July 5 game against Houston in which Gross worked against Mike Scott, that Phillies Manager Lee Elia had six so-called scuffed balls on his desk.

"I used one of the balls (Scott allegedly scuffed)," Gross said at the time. "It made the ball dive away from left-handers and come in on right-handers. I threw some great pitches with it.

"Heck, he's been getting away with it for two years. If I pitch against him again, I'll let him scuff for me and I'll use it, too."

In the fifth inning Monday night, Cubs' Manager Gene Michael asked home plate umpire Charley Williams to inspect Gross' glove.

Williams consulted with Kibler, the crew chief. They went to the mound, examined both glove and ball and confiscated them.

"There was a piece of emery paper or sandpaper glued to the heel of the glove," Kibler said. "We'll sent the glove and ball to Mr. Giamatti (National League president Bartlett Giamatti)."

Kibler said the Cubs, trailing 4-2 and with runners at first and second bases at the time of the inspection, did not protest the game. He said the Cubs had been complaining throughout that the ball was being scuffed.

Kibler said that the ball was clean when they inspected it. He said Gross was ejected because of the substance in the glove.

"It's hard for me to respond," Elia said. " ... I did see discoloration in the glove. It might sound funny, but without my glasses I can't see."

Michael also accused Gross of scuffing the ball the last time the Phillies were in Chicago.

On the pitch preceding the inspection, Rafael Palmeiro had grounded slowly to second baseman Juan Samuel, who booted the ball for an error.

That brought up Andre Dawson and Michael said he didn't want Gross throwing scuffed balls to his best hitter.

"We were waiting for the right time. I thought he'd have one scuffed for Andre (Dawson)," Michael said. "Maybe if we had waited for a pitch or two he'd have scuffed one."

Michael agreed that the ball was clean.

"I think he was trying to get rid of the thing before Andre came up," Michael said of Gross. "We already had a couple of scuffed balls. And we knew he was doing it. In Chicago we turned in 12 that were scuffed."

Gross, who has lost his last seven decisions, was not involved in this one because he didn't go the required five innings.

If Gross has been using a substance to doctor the ball it hasn't been doing him much good. He's having a poor season, 6-10 with a 4.79 earned run average. In his major league career, he is 45-46. with a 3.85 ERA.

Before leaving, Gross allowed six hits and two runs in 4 13 innings, including home runs by Jerry Mumphrey and Jody Davis.

Todd Frohwirth, recalled Monday from Maine of the International League, relieved Gross, pitched out of the jam and earned the victory in his major league debut. He pitched 1 2-3 innings.

Davis said the balls the Cubs checked were scuffed in the same spot.

"I think the umpires have been looking for it the last month or so. It's just a matter of catching guys. There is too much of this going on.

"After what happened to Niekro the other day, it's kind of obvious they're going to get caught," Davis said.

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt was a little puzzled.

"They sure were pounding those scuffed balls around," he said.

Aide Says Hoop Recruiting OK

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Despite getting a late start in recruiting, new East Carolina assistant basketball coach Dan Bell feels the Pirates were very fortunate in landing the five prospects they did.

New ECU coach Mike Steele, assistant Chris Bennetti and Bell didn't enter the recruiting wars until April after Steele was hired to replace Charlie Harrison. For most schools, that date marks the end of the college recruiting year, but for ECU, it was just the beginning.

"We feel very fortunate," Bell said. "What people don't realize is we only had six visits to bring kids in on. You are only allowed 18 total visits to bring kids on campus.

"The previous staff had used up 12 of them. We had only six visits and we promptly used them up and didn't sign a single player that we brought in on campus. We ended up having to sign every one of those six players without a campus visit, which these days is totally unheard of. So we feel really lucky and we are really happy with all of them."

Leading the list of Pirate recruits is 5-7 point guard Jimmy Hinton, a point guard from Little Rock, Ark. He was ranked among the top 50 recruits by the BC scouting report, a national recruiting service.

He is the only player ECU signed that the previous coaching staff had recruited. Despite his height, Hinton was a major college prospect, attracting offers from a number of other schools, among them Kansas. Some schools, however, were scared off by his lack of height.

"He can do it," Bell said. "He is as fine a passer as you will see anywhere. He is very creative. We'll have to tone him down a bit, (but) he is really going to add excitement to the program."

ECU's first recruit to sign was Stanley Love, a 6-5 forward-guard from Decatur, Ala. Love, who led his high school team to a 27-7 mark, was also heavily recruited but didn't do well in his first attempt on the ACTs (a college entrance exam), which caused some schools to lose interest. He took them again in May and scored high enough to gain eligibility.

"He's really talented," Bell said. "He's a good jumper. He can go outside and shoot the 18-footer. He's a real good player, comes from a winning program."

Tehern Harvey, a 6-2 guard, is a defensive specialist, according to Bell.

"He is a strong kid," he said. "We feel he can guard the other team's point guard, big guard or small forward. We really feel like Tehern is going to be excellent defensively."

Mark Lacey, 6-5 forward from Huntsville, Ala., is a player that Bell says has a lot of potential.

"Huntsville is the third largest city in Alabama and they really play good competition there," he said. "He went from his ninth grade year where he only scored eight total points to his senior year where he averaged 18 points and seven or eight rebounds a game and was the most valuable player in the city."

ECU's lone junior college recruit is 6-6 Dominique Martin, who is from Leesburg Junior College in Florida. Martin originally attended Indiana State but left after his freshman year to enroll at Leesburg.

"We feel like we're going to need him for rebounding, for putting his body on people," Bell said. "We feel like he is good 15 feet and in and he is going to bring in some needed experience."

The Pirate's final recruit is Roney Gibbs, a 6-2 guard from Atlanta. "If there is a true sleeper that we got involved with, Roney Gibbs is that person. He is such a good athlete," Bell said.

Gibbs averaged 20.4 points a game last season and has a 39-inch vertical jump.

While it would have been nice to bring taller kids, it wasn't really realistic, according to Bell.

"Who in the world would be left on April 6 who was 6-6 or bigger that could really play," he said. "It's going to be some guy who is a head problem or it is going to be some guys with academic problems because there are so many schools and people recruit all year long.

"We didn't need any problems and we felt like we wanted to make a statement about the people that we wanted to bring in and the kind of athlete we wanted. We feel like we've done that, we just got a smaller version of what we wanted."

Those six recruits join the five returning players from last year's 12-16 club that lost four starters. The Pirates will field a team with no player taller than 6-6 next season.

Moore Leads 9-3 Win Over Virginia

SARASOTA, Fla. — Timmy Moore slapped two home runs to pace Greenville's Babe Ruth All-Stars to a 9-3 victory over North Augusta, Va., in the third round of the Southeastern Regional Baseball Tournament Monday.

Greenville is now one of two teams remaining in the winners' bracket, and will face the other, Georgia, today at 1 p.m. The winner goes into Wednesday's championship game, while the loser must play a second game this evening against the Florida-Sarasota winner in the losers' bracket.

Mike Cox went the first four-plus innings for Greenville on the mound, earning the win, but needed help from Walter Gatlin in the fifth. Gatlin earned a save to go with a win he had in the opening game of the tournament. The two scattered five hits to the Virginia entry, two of them picked up by clean-up batter Gary Breeden.

Greenville banged out 12 hits, led by Moore, who had four in four trips. His other two hits were both doubles and he drove in six runs. Maurice Hines added two hits, one of them a double.

Greenville took the lead in the top of the first inning, scoring a run. Moore doubled and moved to third on an infield out. He scored on Gatlin's sacrifice fly.

Greenville added three more in the second for a 4-0 lead. Abram Lang singled, stole second with with two away, Chris Christopher walked. Moore then double din Lang and Heath Clark's single plated both Christopher and Moore.

The fourth saw two score on Moore's first homer, hit from the left side of the plate. Christopher had singled just before the blow.

One scored in the fifth. Gatlin singled, moved to third on a pair of infield outs, and scored on a passed ball.

The final two Greenville runs scored in the sixth. Alphonso Freeman singled but was forced on Grant Harmon's infield grounder. With two away, Moore stepped up on the right side of the plate and again sent the ball out of the park to finish up the Greenville scoring.

North Augusta scored single runs in the third, fifth and seventh innings to account for their runs, never a threat to the Eastern North Carolina champions.

The winner of the tournament will advance to the national tournament, to be played later this month.

Nervous Wallace Wins Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Smoke rose from his coughing engine as Rusty Wallace choked back tears of frustration and pumped his gas pedal.

Wallace was a little over one lap away from victory in the Budweiser at the Glen NASCAR stock car race on Monday when the fuel warning light of his Pontiac blinked on.

He drove into the pits and, as he stopped, so did the engine.

"The doggone car just ran out of gas and stopped dead," Wallace said. "I saw the guys put the gas can up to the car and I flipped the (starter) switch and the engine started smoking and popping and coughing. I thought I'd blown the engine. I thought it wasn't going to catch. I was nearly in tears at that point."

But the powerful engine did restart and Wallace, who held a lead of about 22 seconds over Terry Labonte before the final stop, roared back onto the Watkins Glen International track and off to a solid 11.57-second victory in the race that had been postponed from Sunday by rain.

His crew chief, Barry Dodson, said there was only "about a pint" of gas left in the car when the light came on.

"With only that one lap to run, we just put in a little less than one gallon," Dodson said. "We knew he could finish with that."

The stop, which Wallace said seemed to take "forever," actually took just 3.6 seconds.

"I was running real hard out there all day," said the 30-year-old Wallace, who picked up the third victory of his career and first of the season. "I like driving on road courses. I slide the car through the turns, run over curbs. I just kind of go hog wild. I don't drive road courses conservative like I do on ovals."

Asked whether he considered slowing in order to save the brakes and conserve gas after building a big lead, Wallace said, "Barry kept telling me on the radio, 'Run hard, run hard, don't back off. Keep the lead in case we have to come in for gas.' It paid off."

Wallace, who became the eighth different winner in 18 Winston Cup races this season, added Monday's victory to a pair of 1986 oval triumphs at Bristol, Tenn., and Martinsville, Va.

He took the lead for the third and final time on lap 63 of the 90-lap, 219-mile race. He led 63 laps overall.

Labonte, who started from the pole after setting a qualifying record on the 2.428-mile circuit on Friday, came back from a tangle with Morgan Shepherd on lap 37 to hold off Dave Marcis for second place.

"The ironic thing about this race is that myself, Terry Labonte and Dave Marcis were the only guys that came up here and tested," Wallace said. "I think the testing really paid off.

"If you want to win races and run up front in Winston Cup racing, you have to test. We all shared the track together (on July 15) and it worked out well."

Labonte said Wallace "could beat me off the corners all day. He had a different transmission or different gears. By the end, he was so far ahead of me, I didn't have any idea what he was doing. I could tell from the start he was stronger."

Wallace, who won $52,925, set a race record of 90.693 mph despite being slowed by five cautions for a total of 15 laps. He broke the mark of 90.463 set last year by Tim Richmond in the first NASCAR race here since 1965.

Richmond ran strongly and led briefly before Wallace regained control for the final time. The defending champion still was running second when he spun on lap 68. He was able to recover and place 10th.

Ricky Rudd finished fourth, followed by Benny Parsons, Alan Kulwicki, Phil Parsons and Dale Earnhardt, the defending Winston Cup champion who holds a 478-point lead over Labonte in the season standings.

"We were running good, but we had a third- or fourth-place car," Earnhardt said. "I just couldn't get any more out of it. Then I needed a shot of gas at the finish, and that put us behind."

Earnhardt pitted on lap 83 and fell from third to 10th.

A crowd estimated at between 30,000 and 40,000 — about half the size of the crowd which turned out in the rain on Sunday — returned Monday.

They stayed dry despite occasionally threatening skies, and saw a race punctuated by crashes and spins on the narrow, winding course. There were no injuries reported.

Louganis' Preparation Keys Win

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Greg Louganis hasn't forgotten what it's like to be well prepared for a final exam. He had the same kind of feeling heading into the 3-meter springboard championships at the Pan American Games and passed the test with style.

"Coming to the pool I felt good, strong. I felt things could go well," Louganis said Monday night after becoming the first three-time winner of a diving event in Pan Am history and coming with 1.35 points of his world record.

"When you feel like that, it's like taking a final exam in college," he added. "You know you're prepared, but you don't know what questions the professor will ask. You'll do all right if you're prepared. I felt I'd done my homework."

The 27-year-old American won easily, amassing 754.14 points, just short of the record he set in 1983. U.S. teammate Doug Shaffer finished second with 684.39 and Jose Rocha of Mexico was third.

"I was just pleased with my performance, period," Louganis, of Boca Raton, Fla., said. "You can go back and analyze it and say it could have been a half-a-point here or half-a-point there (to break the world mark), but I don't generally look back. I look ahead."

What Louganis has to look forward to now is this weekend's platform competition. He won both the 3-meter and platform dives at the 1979 and 1983 Pan Am Games and will try for a six-medal sweep on Sunday.

Louganis' performance highlighted a day in which the Americans continued to excel in track and field, swimming and basketball, while Cuba extended its domination of weightlifting and won another baseball game in pursuit of its fifth straight Pan Am title.

TRACK AND FIELD

The U.S. won five gold medals in track and field, with Lee McRae of the University of Pittsburgh taking the men's 100-meter dash in the absence of injured American champion Mark Witherspoon; Gail Devers of UCLA winning the women's 100; and Mike Conley of Fayetteville, Ark., capturing the triple jump over world record holder Willie Banks.

Jud Logan won the hammer throw with a Pan Am-record heave of 253 feet, 5 inches, and Cindy Greiner of Eugene, Ore., set a meet record of 6,184 points in the heptathlon.

"If I had lost the gold medal, I wouldn't have forgiven myself," said Logan, a three-time national champion from North Canton, Ohio. "I wanted the gold medal. I expected it."

SWIMMING

Sixteen-year-old Silvia Poll of Costa Rica and John Witchel of the U.S. became the first double-winners in swimming. Americans Jerry Frentsos and Dorsey Tierney also won gold medals.

Poll, who won the women's 100-freestyle to give her country its first-ever Pan Am gold medal on Sunday, took the 200-freestyle Monday in a personal best 2:00.02.

Witchel, of New York, won his first gold medal Sunday in the 200-freestyle. He got his second on Monday, anchoring the Americans' winning 800-freestyle relay team.

Frentsos, of Cincinnati, won the men's 400-individual medley, beating U.S. teammate Jeff Prior of Philadelphia. Tierney, of Louisville, won the women's 200-breaststroke.

At day's end, the U.S. had extended its lead in total medals to 72-38 over Cuba, including 34 gold to Cuba's 20. Canada was third with 31 medals, only three of them gold.

BASKETBALL

Danny Manning, Rex Chapman and Willie Anderson each scored 11 points as the U.S. pounded Argentina 85-58 to extend its winning streak to 31 games in Pan Am competition.

David Robinson added 10 points for the Americans, who broke the game open with a 12-2 spurt early in the second half.

Argentina defeated the U.S. 74-70 in the 1986 World Championships but played without four players from that team because of a monetary dispute.

Brazil crsuhed Uruguay 110-79, Panama edged Mexico 86-80 and Canada defeated the U.S. Virgin Islands 92-78 in other men's games.

BASEBALL

Cuba, which has won the last four Pan Am baseball titles, improved its record to 2-0 with a 1-0 shutout of Puerto Rico. Left-hander Pablo Abreu pitched a one-hitter and Antonio Pacheco hit a first-inning home run.

Nicaragua beat the Netherlands Antilles 5-0 and Canada defeated Venezuela 8-4 in other games.

WEIGHTLIFTING

Cuba continued its domination of weightlifting as featherweights Gabriel Ensenat and Julio Loscos each won three gold medals, sharing first-place in the 60-kilogram class because they lifted the same totals and had identical body weights before the competition began.

"I did not mind sharing the golds with someone from my country," said Ensenat. "The important thing is to win for your country."

Raul Mora also won three gold medals in the lightweght classification to hike Cuba's medal harvest in weightlifting to 16 gold, one silver and one bronze.

RHYTHMIC GYMNASTICS

The first gold medal in rhythmic gymnastics, a sport featuring athletes dancing and tumbling while handling small hand equipment, went to Lourdes Medina of Cuba. Medina scored 9.60 on ribbon, her final apparatus, to defeat Diane Simpson of Evanston, Ill.

Mary Fusezi of Canada won the bronze medal.

Pirates Name New Assistant

Kevin Gilbride, offensive coordinator for the Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League for the past three seasons has been named as an assistant football coach at East Carolina.

The announcement of Gilbride's hiring was made by ECU head coach Art Baker today. He will replace Jeff Farrington, who resigned last week to become defensive coordinator at Lenoir-Ryne College.

Gilbride had been the quarterback and receivers coach for the Rough Riders of the CFL in 1985, and he was promoted to offensive coordinator for the 1986 season. He had just accepted the position of offensive coordinator at Montreal when the team folded just before the 1987 season.

Gilbride will be the special teams coordinator and will work closely with the Pirate offense for the 1987 season. He was instrumental in adding the run-and-shoot offense at Ottawa and should add greatly to ECU's implementation of the same offensive scheme.

"To say that we were fortunate to hire Kevin at this time of the year is quite an understatement," Baker said. "He's exactly what we needed with his expertise in the passing game and the run-and-shoot. This will also be the first time in my three years that we have had a special teams coordinator.

"Anytime you can add someone to your coaching staff who has professional experience as well as experience on the college level as both a head coach and assistant is quite a coup."

Gilbride was head coach at Southern Connecticut State University in New Haven, Conn., from 1980-84. During that time, the Owls posted a 35-14 record and were nationally ranked on the NCAA Division II level for two of his last three seasons.

Gilbride's other collegiate coaching experience includes stints at Idaho State, Rhode Island and American International.

George Unimpressed By Players Support

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner says he isn't impressed with the players' support of Manager Lou Piniella.

After Steinbrenner issued a press release Saturday that was severely critical of Piniella, several Yankees came to the besieged manager's defense.

But Steinbrenner didn't think he saw that support on the field. The Yankees lost to the Tigers 15-4 Sunday and 10-1 to the Kansas City Royals on Monday night.

"Who needs that kind of support or backing if it means going out and losing 15-4 and 10-1?" Yankees spokesman Harvey Greene said reading from notes dictated by Steinbrenner after the game Monday night. "They (the players) say they're behind him, if that's the kind of support your given I'd rather do without it."

After releasing the statement on Saturday, Steinbrenner said he would have nothing more to say.

When told of Steinbrenner's latest comments, Piniella shook his head and said his players were giving the effort.

"We'll turn it around and start scoring runs," Piniella said. "It's not like were 10 or 12 games out of first place, were a half-game out. Coming out of spring training, if somebody had told us we'd be a half-game out on August 10th I think everybody would be very happy."

In attendance at Monday night's game were Billy Martin and Clyde King — two former Yankee managers hired and fired by Steinbrenner.

Martin was there as a TV commentator, King as an "observer."

"I've never been a quitter and I think everybody knows that," Piniella said. "I couldn't do that to these players, who played so hard for me all season.

"I've always been an organization man and I've approached this job with integrity and good work ethics. But this ... this has taken a piece of my heart away."

Before the loss to Kansas City, the Yankees announced catcher Mark Salas, who was acquired from Minnesota last month for pitcher Joe Niekro, was optioned to Class AAA Columbus.

To take Salas' spot on the roster, the Yankees purchased the contract of Joel Skinner from Columbus of the International League. Skinner was New York's everyday catcher when the season started, but had only 14 hits in 103 at-bats (.136) when he was demoted. Salas was hitting .259 with six home runs and 20 RBI.

In his statement Saturday, Steinbrenner said Piniella called Salas "a bum" in an attempt to get Skinner recalled from Columbus.

Steinbrenner said the move was not made last week because Piniella did not wait for a phone call from the owner on Aug. 4.

"Lou told me that 'bum' isn't even in his vocabulary and I believe him," Salas said. "I'll just go down to Columbus and do the best I can down there and hope to be back up soon.

Steinbrenner also said Piniella had accused outfielder Rickey Henderson of "jaking it" and asked to have the outfielder traded.

"I don't want to say anything about that until I talk to Rickey," Piniella said.

The Yankees also placed relief pitcher Al Holland on the 30-day special disabled list and recalled left-hander Pat Clements from Columbus. Holland pulled a groin muscle while pitching in Detroit on Sunday.

Since being recalled from Columbus, Holland had allowed nine hits and 10 runs in 6 1-3 innings.

While pitching for the Yankees, Clements was 2-2 with a 4.35 ERA.

Baseball Season Is A Real Corker

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

So far, it's been some long-ball, scuffed-ball, grease-ball, cut-ball, baseball season. A real corker.

And it promises to get better, what with four pennant races that could go right into the final week of the season.

It almost makes one wish football started in November instead of September. Yes, the training camps are open, and they're playing games, but the games don't count.

So, while Bronko and Sure-Hands and Swivel-Hips train to commit mayhem, the Summer Boys battle with balls and bats and various foreign substances. And with their fists.

Now we know why umpires wear blue. They're cops on the beat.

A lot of their time is spent breaking up fights caused because a batter, dug in to his knees, takes exception to being brushed back from the plate. Is there a rule that states the plate belongs more to the batter than to the pitcher?

Umpires also spend a lot of time looking for sandpaper, emery boards, salves and hard-edged objects pitchers use to increase the movement of a thrown ball. Or they're taking away a bat to have it X-rayed for the insertion of cork or, perhaps, dynamite. It couldn't be dynamite. That would kill the rabbit in the ball.

One of the memorable scenes of this, or any, baseball season occurred when umpires tried to find out if knuckleballer Joe Neikro was pitching with more than skill.

Niekro, asked to empty his pockets, suddenly flicked away an emery board. He looked like a schoolboy trying to flip away a cigarette in the presence of a teacher. He got caught and suspended.

Another great scene had to be that of several members of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's office taking the bat of Howard Johnson of the New York Mets to an X-ray facility in Manhattan. It was confiscated after Johnson hit a home run against the Chicago Cubs

The X-rays proved negative.

Johnson then wondered how X-rays would affect the wood.

Perhaps new bat styles — thinner handles, bigger barrels and lighter weights — are behind the homer barrage. Perhaps the overall quality of pitching is not has high as it has been in the past.

Whatever the reason, balls keep rocketing over fences at a record clip.

One long-ball feat that got particular attention and allowed a glimpse into the keen baseball mind of George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the New York Yankees, was performed by Don Mattingly.

Mattingly hit home runs in eight consecutive games to equal the record of Dale Long of the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1956. During that spree, Mattingly hit 10 homers and drove in 21 runs.

Steinbrenner saw the attention heaped on this feat as being disruptive to the Yankees. What was disrupted by Mattingly, who is hitting .330 with 19 home runs and 73 RBI, was Steinbrenner's sense of authority. Mattingly took Steinbrenner to salary arbirtration before the season, and beat him.

If you're a Yankee, you're supposed to beat a Red Sock, a Blue Jay, a Tiger, but not The Boss.

Now that Mattingly, generally considered a fine team player, has been shown the errors of his ways, perhaps he'll bunt more often.

Finish Helps Daniel

HIGH POINT (AP) — Beth Daniel says her $21,250 check for second place in the LPGA Henredon Classic was a nice financial lift, but the emotional benefits of the finish were worth more.

"It only proves to me that I'm a fighter," Daniel said. "I've known that all along ... so I'm going to stick in there and fight.

"Maybe this is the light at the end of the tunnel," she said. "For a long time, it seemed like the light wasn't on. Now I think the light's on."

The Charleston, S.C., native was one of four players tied for the lead after three rounds at 5-under-par.

She increased that total by two shots in Sunday's final round at High Point, but Mary Beth Zimmerman got hot and won the tournament at 10-under par 206.

Daniel was one of four golfers tied for second at 7-under-par 209.

"All in all, I'm pleased. I played for two days under a lot of pressure. I felt the pressure ... and my golf game responded," said Daniel, an eight-year tour veteran. "That's something that has not happened to me lately."

Before High Point, Daniel had been in the top 10 only once this year. Although she has won 14 tournament Daniel hadn't won since 1985, sparking rumors that the career which blossomed at Furman was near its end.

Recruits...

"We are going to be in a position our first year where I don't know if we are going to have any positions," Bell said. "We feel like we don't have the luxury of having a small forward and a power forward because we're not going to have anybody in the program over 6-6.

"It is a situation where we are going to be very flexible and play a lot of people. I think that is the good thing about all the people we signed. All of them can pretty much do everything. They can all pass it, catch it and shoot it."

Of the returning players, Bell said he has been happy with the progress of Blue Edwards, the lone returning starter, and Jeff Kelly.

"If I had to pick out two people for sure who that are definitely going to help us it would be those two," he said. "Blue Edwards is going to be the guy who is going to have to step forward and be maybe more than he thought he was going to be. He is going to have to do a lot of things for us."

"I think that Jeff has a really good background. He has won before in high school. As talented as Jimmy Hinton is, (and) those two would be logical point guard-type people because they are so small, Jeff Kelly is not going to give up anything easy."

Despite the lack of height, Bell is not ready to write off the season.

"My first year at Marshall, our tallest player was 6-6," he said. "We were 25-6 and beat teams like Clemson and Marquette. Naturally we want as good and as big players as we can get but there are teams all over the place that can win without big guys."

Clark's Homer Makes Giants' Day

By The Associated Press

After learning he had been named the player of the week, San Francisco first baseman Will Clark went out and hit a ninth-inning home run to make the Giants' day.

Trailing 5-4, Candy Maldonado and Clark hit consecutive home runs leading off the bottom of the ninth Monday night to lift San Francisco over Houston 6-5 for the Giants' fifth straight victory.

The Astros had taken the lead in the eighth when Billy Hatcher doubled off the legs of reliever Scott Garrelts and scored on Bill Doran's single.

"We owed those guys something," San Francisco Manger Roger Craig said. "Every game we've played with them has been like this. So far, they've won most of them."

Last week in Houston, the Astros swept the Giants in a three-game series, getting the winning runs in their last at-bat in each game.

The Astros, who suffered a fourth straight loss, had a 7-2 record against the Giants this season before Monday night's defeat. The Giants won their ninth straight at home, staying one game behind first-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

"I can't say enough about this club. We've got guys who just never give up," Clark said. "I share this one with a lot of guys. We had eight, 10 or 12 people who did great jobs for us."

Earlier in the day, Clark was named the NL's Player of the Week. For the period Aug. 3-9, Clark had had 11 hits in 25 at-bats and had two doubles, five homers and 10 runs batted in.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia beat Chicago 4-2, St. Louis blanked Pittsburgh 6-0, Montreal edged New York 2-1, San Diego blanked Atlanta 2-0 and Cincinnati nipped Los Angeles 4-3.

Maldonado, who came off the disabled list last Friday, opened the Giants' ninth with his 13th homer off reliever Dave Meads, 5-3, and Clark followed with his 25th homer and sixth in eight games.

"We just needed three outs," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "(Relievers) Dave Smith and Larry Andersen were unavailable. But somebody besides Smith and Andersen has to be able to get three outs."

Smith, the reliever with 19 saves and a 1.17 earned run average, and Andersen have sore arms.

Phillies 4, Cubs 2

Lance Parrish hit a two-run homer and Von Hayes added a solo home run and Philadelphia went on to defeat Chicago after starting pitcher Kevin Gross was ejected for allegedly tampering with the baseball.

In the fifth inning with one out and runners at first and second, Gross was ejected for what crew chief John Kibler said was an illegal sandpaper substance glued to his glove.

Kibler acted after Chicago Manager Gene Michael protested to plate umpire Charlie Williams. The umpires checked Gross' glove and the ball, confiscating both and throwing the pitcher out of the game.

"There was a piece of emery paper or sandpaper glued to the heel of the glove," Kibler said. "We'll sent the glove and ball to Mr. Giamatti (National League president Bartlett Giamatti)."

Todd Frohwirth, recalled Monday from Maine of the International League, relieved Gross, pitched out of the fifth-inning jam and earned the victory in his major-league debut.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 0

Jim Lindeman hit a three-run homer and Bob Forsch pitched a seven-hitter for his first shutout in nearly two seasons as St. Louis beat host Pittsburgh.

Forsch's shutout, the 18th of his 14-year major-league career, improved his record to 10-3 and marked the 10th season he has reached double figures in victories. It was the right-hander's first shutout since he beat Philadelphia 7-0 on Sept. 18, 1985.

Lindeman has six homers this season, five against the Pirates.

The victory increased the Cardinals' lead to 5½ games ahead of second-place New York in the NL East.

Expos 2, Mets 1

Dennis Martinez pitched seven-hit ball for seven innings and beat New York for the third time this season.

Martinez, 7-1, has yielded only four runs — two earned — to the Mets in 23 innings this year. Montreal is 11-1 in the 12 games started by Martinez since he was recalled from Indianapolis. Tim Burke pitched 1 1-3 innings for his 11th save.

The visiting Expos, who snapped a three-game losing streak, made it 2-1 in the third inning against John Mitchell, 3-4. Tim Raines and Mitch Webster had consecutive doubles to tie the score. One out later, Hubie Brooks singled to left sending Webster to third, and Tim Wallach followed with a sacrifice fly.

Padres 2, Braves 0

Rookie Jimmy Jones pitched a two-hitter and Benito Santiago hit two-run homer in the seventh inning as San Diego defeated visiting Atlanta for the Padres' sixth straight victory. The streak is the Padres' longest of the season.

Jones, 5-4, walked one and struck out four en route to his first complete game this season.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

Eric Davis set up the tie-breaking run by stealing second and third base in the seventh inning and then scored on Dave Parker's single, helping Cincinnati end a four-game losing streak.

Dodgers starter Fernando Valenzuela, 9-10, walked Davis with one out and the Cincinnati center fielder stole his 41st and 42nd bases of the season.

The victory went to Frank Williams, 2-0, who pitched two innings of three-hit ball after failing to protect a 3-2 lead for starter Ron Robinson. John Franco finished up for his 20th save.

Extra-Inning Effort

Match Is Rained Out

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl will have to wait for another time to renew their angry rivalry after both lost to the rain in the Volvo International tennis tournament final.

Tournament officials waited 3½ hours Sunday when rain began to fall with McEnroe leading 7-6, 1-4. They waited another 5½ hours Monday before calling it an incomplete day and match.

Lendl hit the only balls Monday, practicing his golf on the putting green in the rain.

"I hope to finish the final sometime, somewhere," said Lendl, who is no stranger to strange delayed finishes. In the 1982 Volvo in North Conway, N.H., he and Jose Higueras returned 57 days later to play seven minutes in a final Lendl won 6-3, 6-2.

Lendl also was involved the last time a Grand Prix tournament was not completed when a bomb scare in Rotterdam in March 1984 forced him and Jimmy Connors off the court with Lendl leading 6-0, 1-0.

McEnroe, too, indicated he is ready to complete the final if tournament officials can work out an agreeable time and place.

"I'm open to suggestions," he said in a statement. "But I really don't know enough at this point.

"I just wish the match had been completed yesterday. I felt I was doing some good things out there."

Beside their rivalry that has led to angry words on and off the court, both players are trying to prepare for the U.S. Open starting Sept. 1.

The final took on added importance for McEnroe. He hoped to use the clash as a barometer of whether he's ready to challenge Lendl as the top player in the world.

McEnroe was No. 1 for four years until Lendl replaced him by beating him in the U.S. Open final in 1985, their last meeting.

Horn's Message Loud And Clear

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Sam Horn is using his bat to trumpet his arrival in the American League.

"I just try to wait and see the ball, then explode," the 6-foot-5 slugger said after knocking in five runs with a grand slam and two doubles Monday night, powering the Boston Red Sox to a 9-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Since his recall from Pawtucket of the International League on July 23, Horn has six homers, five doubles, 16 RBI and 16 runs scored in 47 at-bats.

The Blue Jays, who maintained their half-game lead over New York in the AL East despite the loss, trailed only 2-1 in the sixth inning when Horn's double to the right-center field wall set up a run-scoring wild pitch by Jim Clancy, 10-9.

Horn's grand slam and second double, which nearly cleared the Green Monster in left-center, did most of the damage as Boston turned the game into a rout in the seventh and eighth innings. Roger Clemens, 12-7, scattered eight hits for his 13th complete game, tops in the majors.

"Roger pitched great, but it was a pitching duel for a while until we broke out," Horn said.

In other AL games, it was Baltimore 4, Cleveland 3; Chicago 8, Detroit 4; Kansas City 10, New York 1; Milwaukee 4, Texas 3 in 12 innings, and Oakland 15, Seattle 4.

"I had a good fast ball," said Clemens, who struck out eight and didn't issue a walk. 'You have to be more aggressive against certain teams like Toronto. There's some great hitters on that team. I broke some bats tonight."

Horn's late heroics overshadowed two gift runs for the Red Sox in the first.

With two runners on, Dwight Evans hit a high popup behind second base for what appeared to be the third out of the inning. But the ball dropped safely for an RBI double, eluding shortstop Tony Fernandez' frantic diving attempt. Mike Greenwell followed with a run-scoring single, his first of two in the game.

Royals 10, Yankees 1

New York, which has been outscored 64-25 on its road trip, saw its pitching woes continue as George Brett homered twice and Danny Tartabull and Kevin Seitzer hit one each for Kansas City.

Seitzer and Brett hit conecutive homers in the third inning off rookie Brad Arnsberg, 1-1, who was making his second major-league start. Tartabull had a three-run homer in the fourth, after Brett was intentionally walked, and Brett connected again in the eighth.

"Our pitching's got to improve. And it will," said New York Manager Lou Piniella, who has been under fire from owner George Steinbrenner. "We're just going through a rough time right now. It's the same staff that was pitching well two weeks ago. They have the capability. It's just a matter of getting it out of them."

Danny Jackson, 6-13, pitched a six-hitter for the victory. The only run he allowed scored on a groundout by Dave Winfield in the first.

Willie Wilson reached base four times with three singles and a walk and he stole three bases in a game for the seventh time in his career.

White Sox 8, Tigers 4

Detroit stayed 1½ games behind Toronto as Harold Baines drove in three runs with a two-run double and a sacrifice fly for Chicago.

Baines and Fred Manrique hit sacrifice flies, Steve Lyons hit a two-run double and Ivan Calderon had an RBI single as the White Sox scored six runs in the first inning off loser Walt Terrell, 9-9.

Richard Dotson, 9-8, who allowed nine hits in seven innings, gave up four runs in the fifth to make it 6-4, but Baines clinched the victory with his two-run double in the sixth.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3

Milwaukee beat Texas for the ninth time in 10 meetings this season when Juan Castillo singled in Glenn Braggs with two outs in the bottom of the 12th inning.

With one out in the 12th, Braggs singled off loser Jeff Russell, 4-2, moved to second on an infield out and scored when Castillo grounded a single to right.

Jay Aldrich, 2-1, was the winner in relief of Teddy Higuera, who pitched the first 11 innings for the Brewers, allowing five hits and striking out eight.

Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to a club-record 25 games with a single in the third inning when the Brewers scored three runs, two of them coming on a double by Ernest Riles. Molitor matched Wade Boggs for the longest hitting streak in the majors this season.

Bob Brower homered for Texas.

Athletics 15, Mariners 4

Oakland snapped a four-game losing streak, beating Seattle behind Tony Bernazard's four RBI and Dave Stewart's 15th victory.

Bernazard, who singled in a run in the Athletics' four-run second inning, hit reliever Steve Shields' 2-0 pitch into the second deck in right field for a three-run homer, making it 12-4 in the fifth.

Stewart, 15-8, allowed four runs on seven hits in seven innings to tie Rick Sutcliffe and Bret Saberhagen for the most victories in the majors.

Mickey Tettleton also hit a three-run homer for the Athletics, while Luis Polonia and Alfredo Griffin added three RBI apiece.

Scott Bradley drove in all four Seattle runs with a pair of two-run homers.

Orioles 4, Indians 3

Baltimore rallied for two runs in the eighth inning when Cleveland reliever Ed Vande Berg put two runners in scoring position with a wild pitch and Larry Sheets followed with a bloop single.

FOCUS

Take Two Frogs...

A "lucky" observation during a routine experiment enabled Dr. Michael Zasloff to discover a new type of antibiotic that kills germs faster than many drugs now in use. Dr. Zasloff had observed that incisions on frogs healed quickly without infection, despite the high bacteria content of aquarium water. He isolated from the frog skin two related protein-like molecules that deprive bacteria and protozoa of the ability to expell fluid, causing the organisms to swell and die.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Aug. 12

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning confusion over which course of action is best will give way to an exceptional clarity of view. If you choose correctly, great success can be achieved today.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Don't let the needling of a higher-up distract your morning routine. A valuable new contact should be encouraged.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Put aside new ideas for the time being and attend to work which has been left on the "back burner" for far too long.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): A close friend has some good ideas which can help you advance in the business world, if they're recognized.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Cooperation with co-workers will make a great impression on those higher ups who can give you success.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): A change of attitude and a kind and thoughtful demeanor toward your mate will bring some truly fine results.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): An older family friend can be most helpful in any problematical affairs. If entertaining, invite only trustworthy friends.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Jot down notes this morning concerning your wishes and ideas, as your memory may be less than perfect later today.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Give special attention to your financial situation. You may find that advice from an expert is in order.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Recruit some good friends for a pleasurable outing. Give some attention to your appearance tonight.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Think less about pleasing yourself and more about helping those around you, especially your relatives.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): A short trip with a good friend would be very good for your attitude, and would also be a boon to business.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Some old friends who you haven't seen for some time would brighten up the mood around your home, so invite them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to easily combine modern advances with the tried and true methods of the past, but may not think very clearly at a young age. Be patient with your child and he or she will be very happy with life and well prepared to start his or her own family.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Distribution can play strange tricks with seemingly ironclad contracts. However, sometimes even a bad break can be turned to your advantage.

While the auction might not receive the approval of super-scientists, who prefer six rounds of bidding to reach any contract, there is no questioning its effectiveness. Under normal circumstances, declarer's only concern would be one of a possible overtrick.

That matters were not normal became apparent when declarer won the opening spade lead, led a trump to the ace and West showed out. With a certain trump loser, the contract hinged on bringing in the club suit without loss, a task that was considerably against the odds. For a start, East would have to hold the king of clubs. Even then, declarer would have to find the ten.

Since there was no point in delaying, declarer led the queen of clubs from dummy and was relieved when East contributed the king (playing low would lead to a similar end position). Declarer cashed the king of spades and ruffed a spade, cleared the ace-king of diamonds and the king-queen of trumps, and led the queen of diamonds.

East couldn't gain by ruffing, so he discarded his last spade as declarer parted with a club; but that only postponed the moment of truth. Reading the hand perfectly, declarer threw East in with his trump trick. Down to nothing but clubs, the defender had no choice but to concede the contract by leading into dummy's J-9.

Ad Agency Expects Only Three TV Hits From Fall Lineup

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The three major television networks are throwing 22 new series at viewers this fall, but a leading advertising agency predicts only three will be hits.

Two NBC comedies, "My Two Dads" and "A Different World," and ABC's "Hooperman" were top-rated in the survey by Saatchi & Saatchi DFS Compton of New York. The agency, the nation's third largest, ranked the shows on a scale of 1 to 10 in analyzing the new season for clients who want to buy commercial time.

Three other shows, ABC's "Slap Maxwell," CBS' "Frank's Place" and NBC's "Private Eye," were given a "very good" shot at staying on the air.

Two fantasy-adventure shows, ABC's "Once a Hero" and CBS' "Beauty and the Beast," were listed as long shots with little chance for success.

The ad agency said it was clear that the 1987-88 season would be a transitional one for the networks.

Although comedy will continue as the dominant programming form, the shows will feature more male leading characters and more non-traditional family units. Dramas, especially police-detective shows, have increased, while the number of hours for movies has gone down. In addition, ABC has Dolly Parton in the first network variety show since 1982.

The wild card in this season's shuffle is the push-button Peoplemeter being introduced by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

The networks have resisted the Peoplemeter, which allows members of a Nielsen family to individually record their viewing. The meter is linked to a computer, eliminating the need for passive set meters and diaries.

Results from the Peoplemeter generally indicate lower ratings for the networks and tend to favor programs for younger, more urban and male audiences. The networks have argued that older and less sophisticated viewers would tend not to use the meters.

The S&S DFSC ratings were based on such factors as quality, audience appeal, time slot, and competition. The agency report was prepared by Betsy Frank and Debbie Myers.

The three shows forecast as hits are:

— "My Two Dads," an NBC comedy about a 12-year-old orphan girl placed in custody of two young men her mother had known in college. Stars Paul Reiser, Greg Evigan and Stacie Keanan. Slotted behind "Family Ties" at 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

— "A Different World," NBC, a spinoff from "The Cosby Show" that takes Lisa Bonet to college. It follows Cosby at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

— "Hooperman," ABC, brings "Three's Company" star John Ritter back as a San Francisco police officer who inherits an apartment house in a comedy-drama created by Steven Bochco and Terry Louise Fisher of "L.A. Law." Its Wednesday competition are CBS' "Magnum, P.I." and a new NBC drama, "A Year in the Life."

Three shows rated "very good" with an 8 were:

— "Slap Maxwell," ABC, a comedy about a short-tempered, arrogant and opinionated sports writer, which reunites Dabney Coleman and writer-producer Jay Tarses of "Buffalo Bill." Follows "Hooperman" on Wednesday.

— "Frank's Place," CBS, Tim Reid is a rather stiff professor from Massachusetts who inherits a Creole restaurant in New Orleans. Hugh Wilson ("WKRP in Cincinnati") is the creator. Opens Saturday night for CBS.

— "Private Eye," a 1950s detective drama from the creator of "Miami Vice," Tony Yerkovich. Michael Woods is the private eye and Josh Brolin is his rock 'n' roll partner. Up against ABC's "20-20" and CBS' "Falcon Crest" at 10 p.m. Friday.

The agency predicts ABC will inch ahead of CBS and move into second place behind frontrunner NBC.

Two series that rate only a 1 are ABC's "Once a Hero," a fantasy in which a comic book superhero and his private eye sidekick move into the real world and lose all their super powers, and CBS' "Beauty and the Beast," in which a man-beast who lives beneath New York City forms an attachment to a beautiful lawyer and becomes her protector.

One of the most unlikely shows on the schedule is CBS' "Tour of Duty," a drama that in the manner of the Oscar-winning film "Platoon" follows a group of Army recruits to Vietnam in 1967. It's a grunt's-eye-view of the war and the pilot was superbly done. Nevertheless, it's up against "The Cosby Show" and the agency rates it as a "long shot" with a 2.

The new season also sees the return of some old faces. Besides Ritter and Reid, William Conrad (CBS' "Jake and the Fatman"), Dale Robertson (NBC's "J.J. Starbuck") and Dennis Weaver (ABC's "Buck James") will be back.

Special 'Chorus Line' Cast Celebrates 5,001st Show

By MICHAEL KUCHWARA
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Chorus Line," the longest running show in Broadway history, celebrated its 5,001st performance with a double line of dancers selected from the New York cast and stock and amateur productions around the country.

The glittery finale Monday night brought a capacity audience at the Shubert Theater to its feet. The cheers lasted for several minutes.

"It was an opening night tonight," said Joseph Papp, head of the New York Shakespeare Festival, which produced the Tony award-winning musical. "'Chorus Line' will run as long as Broadway exists."

The musical tells the story of a group of dancers auditioning for roles in a big Broadway show.

To celebrate the show's 5,000th performance, which took place Saturday night, the Shakespeare Festival held a contest open to anyone who had appeared in a licensed stock or amateur production of "A Chorus Line" in the United States. The festival received nearly 800 entries from 40 states.

Nineteen winners — one for each role in the show — were flown to New York and appeared with the New York cast in the show's final dance number Monday.

After the performance, the stage went black and when the lights came back on, a large cake covered with chocolate icing was center stage.

Papp cut the cake and thanked everyone associated with the show, from the composer to the set designer to the musicians. His warmest tribute was saved for the show's creator, Michael Bennett, and the audience roared its approval.

"The applause represents appreciation, admiration and joy for one of the great choreographers and directors that Broadway has ever seen," Papp said of Bennett, who died last month of AIDS.

"A Chorus Line," which opened at the Shubert on July 25, 1975, won nine Tony awards as well as the Pulitzer Prize.

It became the longest running show in Broadway history on Sept. 29, 1983 with its 3,389th performance, a gala evening in which Bennett had on stage more than 300 performers who had appeared in various professional companies of the show.

"A Chorus Line" was born when Bennett asked 24 dancers to record their thoughts about being in the theater and what it meant to perform in a Broadway musical. The result was 40 hours of taped conversation.

Marvin Hamlisch and Ed Kleban were hired by Bennett to write the score. James Kirkwood and Nicholas Dante distilled the hours of tape into a manageable book.

Bennett directed the show and created the choreography along with Bob Avian. Papp financed the workshop production, which had a 10-week run at the Shakespeare Festival in the spring of 1975.

The statistics on "A Chorus Line" have been staggering. Its profit from the New York and national companies stands at more than $30.5 million. Some 16.7 million people have seen the show in New York alone. And there have been more than 300 productions including college, community and dinner theater editions.

Mark Harmon Seeks Custody Of Nephew

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Mark Harmon and his wife, Pam Dawber of television's "My Sister Sam," are suing for custody of Harmon's nephew, a son of the late rock star Rick Nelson.

Harmon alleges that Kristin Nelson, Harmon's sister and Nelson's former wife, is unable to take care of 13-year-old Sam Nelson.

Mrs. Nelson's attorney, Carl Osborne, said his client has completed a hospital program to end an addiction to prescription drugs.

The custody trial was scheduled to begin today in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Sam is the youngest of four children born to Kristin during her marriage to Nelson. The other children are daughter Tracy, 23, and twins Matthew and Gunnar, 19.

Mrs. Nelson, 42, was divorced from Rick Nelson in 1982. In 1985, he was killed with six others in a New Year's Eve plane crash in Texas.

Osborne said the twins, who live with Mrs. Nelson, will testify for their mother.

Harriet Nelson, the mother in the long-running "Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" TV series that also starred Rick Nelson and brother David, is on the side of her former daughter-in-law but will probably not testify, Osborne said. Harmon, 35, who gained fame as a plastic surgeon on television's "St. Elsewhere," stars in the hit movie "Summer School." He and Kristin Nelson are the children of football hero Tom Harmon and former actress Elyse Knox.

Before landing the leading role in CBS' "My Sister Sam," Miss Dawber co-starred with Robin Williams in "Mork and Mindy."

Tar Heel Wins Elvis Trivia Competiton

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The name of the doctor who delivered the king of rock 'n' roll was good for a first-round victory in a trivia contest held by Elvis Presley fans gathered by the thousands to mark the 10th anniversary of his death.

"I just read everything I can about him," said first-round winner Jimmy Prince, who was awarded a silver belt buckle shaped like the front gates at Graceland, the white-columned mansion here where Presley lived.

"I'm just delighted to have it. It's beautiful," said the textile mill worker from Lexington, N.C.

The week-long trivia contest is part of Elvis International Tribute Week, a nine-day event expected to draw up to 50,000 fans to Graceland.

Elvis impersonators will square off in competition later in the week. So will Priscilla Presley look-alikes. Miss Presley, an actress on the TV series "Dallas," is the singer's former wife.

The celebration, which began Saturday, also includes concerts, dances, memorial services, a footrace and a karate tournament.

Prince and four other trivia buffs had no trouble naming the first song on Presley's first album ("Blue Suede Shoes") and the number of movies he made before going in the Army (four).

But only Prince knew the doctor's name, William Robert Hunt.

Winners of the preliminary contests will meet for the championship Friday, vying for hundreds of dollars' worth of Elvis memorabilia, including a 10th anniversary satin jacket and a framed replica of Presley's first gold record, "Heartbreak Hotel."

Prince said that he has been an Elvis fan since 1956 and that his house is full of Elvis posters, records and other Presley souvenirs.

"I'm really into autograph collecting from people who were associated with Elvis, everywhere from Tupelo right on through his movie career, his music career, his backup singers, right on to the funeral home," ge said.

He said he planned to look over an Elvis biography or two while awaiting the final round. "I'm going to relax for a few days and let my mind be calm and clear," he said.

Presley was born in Tupelo, Miss., on Jan. 8, 1935. He died in a bathroom at Graceland on Aug. 16, 1977, of heart disease. According to court testimony, traces of 14 prescription stimulants and depressants were found in his body.

Graceland, with its 36,000-square foot supermarket of Elvis memorabilia and trinkets, draws more than a half-million visitors a year and brings in $9 million annually to Presley's estate.
