Treasure Hunters Say They Have Titanic's Safe

By SYDNEY RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Treasure hunters have found the Titanic's legendary safe and plan to open it during a live television broadcast, an expedition spokesman said today.

The safe was found Wednesday on the ocean floor 2½ miles below the surface at the Titanic site, 350 miles southwest of Newfoundland, spokesman Daniel Puget said.

He said the safe is locked and refused to speculate on its contents.

Legend and rumor have surrounded the treasure that may have gone down with the 1,513 passengers and crew who drowned when the luxury liner hit an iceberg and sank April 15, 1912.

Tales of a fortune in diamonds and other jewels from the millionaire passengers on board have circulated, despite the opinion of experts who say most of the treasure was taken out of the safe in the hours before the ship sank.

The safe will be brought to the surface "one or two days from now" and will then be transported to a special laboratory in Paris operated by the national utility, Electricite de France, Puget said.

In October it will be taken to Monte Carlo, Monaco, to be opened during the live television broadcast Oct. 28, he said.

Undersea photographs taken of the safe are scheduled to arrive in Paris within the next few days, he said.

Puget said that after so many years of speculation, he found it hard to believe the safe had been found.

"The crew who saw it are sure, but for me I will believe it when the safe has been brought on board," he said.

He said daily salvage of other artifacts would begin today and continue each day, weather permitting, until Sept. 10.

The $2.5-million salvage project is funded by an international group of investors registered in Britain as Ocean Research Exploration, which includes the Swiss watch heir Carlos Piaget.

Objects are being scooped up by a high-tech submarine, the Nautile, owned by the French Institute for Research and Exploitation of the Sea.

The Nautile, which holds a crew of three, has two arms capable of retrieving objects as small as tea cups which are placed in a retractable basket.

Tethered to the sub is a small robot, named Robin, which is shooting videotape and still photographs that will be shown during the broadcast, produced by The Westgate Group production company of Hollywood.

Puget said the safe was found in the so-called "debris field" that surrounds the broken Titanic hull. The mud around the vessel is littered with silver, bottles, dishes and other artifacts.

The Nautile returns daily to the research vessel Nadir, floating above the wreckage.

Reagan Says Thoughts Of Hostages Ruled Him

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, having told the nation he regrets the "lies, leaks, divisions and mistakes" of the Iran-Contra affair, left today on a 25-day vacation with a promise to return to an energetic agenda in the autumn of his presidency.

Before leaving, he gave the nation a long-promised accounting that suggested his former national security adviser, John M. Poindexter, had usurped presidential power by making decisions that rightfully belonged to Reagan alone.

Leaders from both parties agreed with Reagan that the nation cannot allow itself to become bogged down in the administration's foreign policy debacle, but the Democrats said they want evidence that lessons have been learned.

Nevertheless, White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker said today he doubted that the president's speech will put the Iran-Contra affair behind him and was sure it would not be Reagan's last word on the subject.

"Did it put Iran-Contra behind him? I guess not," Baker said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Reagan, who left the White House with only a thumbs-up sign to waiting reporters, arranged for two quick appearances today in the nation's heartland — stopping for speeches at North Platte, Neb. — before starting a vacation on his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

In the speech broadcast live to the American people, Reagan coupled a message of contrition on Iran-Contra with a hopeful-sounding enunciation of goals he wants to pursue during his last 17 months in office. These include nuclear arms reduction, budget-balancing and winning Bork's confirmation.

"The fact of the matter is that there's nothing I can say that will make the situation right," he said of the arms-to-Iran furor that has bedeviled his presidency over the last nine months. "I was stubborn in my pursuit of a policy that went astray."

Reagan repeated that he had wanted to use whatever means possible to win the freedom of Americans held hostage by pro-Iranian elements in Lebanon, but confessed that "I let my preoccupation with the hostages intrude into areas where it didn't belong."

The president went further than ever before, in two previous nationwide addresses, in accepting blame for the Iran-Contra mistakes. But at the same time, Reagan broke very little new ground.

He did corroborate Poindexter's congressional testimony that Poindexter — not Reagan — made the decision to use a portion of Iranian arms sales proceeds to benefit the Nicaraguan rebels known as Contras.

Reagan declined to say whether he would have approved the diversion if given a say, but he castigated Poindexter's behavior.

He said "the buck does not stop with Admiral Poindexter, as he stated in his testimony. It stops with me."

Reagan said, "I am the one who is ultimately accountable to the American people. ... I had the right, the obligation, to make my own decision."

President's Speech Leaves Questions Hanging

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is seeking to move beyond the Iran-Contra affair without addressing the unanswered questions, declaring that "there's nothing I can say that will make the situation right."

Reagan's televised address to the nation Wednesday night was his third major speech aimed at dislodging his administration from the Iran-Contra mire.

His look to the future and acceptance of ultimate accountability was delivered without mention of his own past conflicting statements or the potential illegality of his aides' acts. It provided no new answers.

Reagan, for instance, didn't address what may be the biggest questions remaining for him:

How can a president propelled into office by frustration over hostages in Iran seven years ago fail to remember approving the sale of weapons to that country?

And if he did forget, what else has he forgotten? What else was kept from him?

Reagan has maintained he cannot recall signing the December 1985 document authorizing the sale of U.S. arms to Iran — a document that flies in the face of his long-stated insistence that there was no swap for hostages.

Both former national security adviser John Poindexter and fired aide Oliver North testified that Reagan did sign it, and Poindexter said he destroyed the paper to save Reagan from political embarrassment.

Reagan did not say whether he would offer pardons to North or Poindexter, should they face charges. Nor did he even mention the possibility that current or former administration officials could face prosecution.

None has been indicted, but Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh is conducting a broad criminal probe and a grand jury has been questioning witnesses.

Legislature Ending

Earlier Story On A-6

RALEIGH (AP) — House and Senate leaders this morning resolved a squabble over the state budget that had threatened to delay today's planned adjournment of the legislative session, a senator said.

Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, who was involved in the feud, said an agreement had been reached between Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville. Hipps said the "meeting of the minds" could clear the way for ending the session sometime today.

"I really think everybody was trying to find a solution and lower the rhetoric," Hipps told reporters.

A simmering feud between Jordan and Watkins, possible contenders for the 1988 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, boiled over Wednesday when the Senate deleted from a spending bill a provision that would exempt employees of the Office of Administrative Hearings from the State Personnel Act.

Part Of Oman Anchorage Closed As 6th Mine Found

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Officials today closed part of an offshore tanker anchorage in the Gulf of Oman following the discovery of a sixth mine in the area, shipping sources said.

The five mines found earlier off the United Arab Emirate's port of Fujairah were destroyed or defused in a search operation begun after an American-operated supertanker hit a mine Monday and was damaged.

A source said Fujairah officials decided to bar ships from an area extending up to 35 square miles offshore. The port itself remained open, said shipping sources who spoke on condition of anonymity. Ships presumably could still enter port by going around the danger zone.

The restricted area includes a danger zone about four miles in diameter where sources earlier reported that clusters of floating mines were discovered.

The dangerous anchorage is in the Gulf of Oman just south of the Persian Gulf. The two bodies of water are connected by the Strait of Hormuz.

A United Arab Emirates newspaper said today that discovery of the mines had forced a one-week postponement of the next U.S. Navy-escorted convoy of American-flagged Kuwaiti tankers.

The paper Al-Ittihad, based in Abu Dhabi, quoted unidentified sources as saying three more Kuwaiti tankers had been scheduled to arrive in the area Friday. Washington has not given a date for the next convoy up the Persian Gulf to Kuwait.

So far, the United States has reflagged five Kuwaiti vessels and escorted them in two convoys up the gulf. The three vessels escorted in the second convoy remain in Kuwait to take on cargo. Altogether, 11 vessels are to be reflagged.

Sources said teams from the United Arab Emirates, the Sultanate of Oman and the U.S. Navy were deploying boats and helicopters to scan the Gulf of Oman.

The sources, asking not to be named, said the search teams were working in different areas. Diplomats said this week that Washington agreed to a request from Oman to help with minesweeping.

The source of the mines has not been established, but Iran is widely believed to be responsible. Shipping sources speculate the mines were secretly laid in an attempt to disrupt the U.S. escort convoys, which are organized and depart from the area.

Iran has accused the United States of sowing the mines and offered its own navy to help clear them.

A shipping source close to Kuwait today expressed skepticism of reports that the United States had chartered a special, sonar-equipped ship to detect mines in front of the latest convoy of U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tankers.

"Why should we do that? The Americans had helicopters," said the source, insisting on anonymity.

British television correspondent Brent Sadler, who observed part of the convoy's journey from a chartered vessel, said in a telephone interview, "I did not see any such ship."

Sources said earlier that a U.S. warship, identified as the cruiser Reeves, was "exploring" and helicopters were dragging sonar buoys in the water several miles ahead of the six-ship convoy.

In Washington, the Reagan administration on Wednesday accused Iran of obstructing U.N. efforts to end the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war, and urged the U.N. Security Council to move toward an arms embargo of Iran.

Iran, in return, charged that Washington was increasing tension in the gulf with its call on the Security Council. On July 20, the 15-member council unanimously passed a cease-fire measure, which Iran has said it neither accepts nor rejects. The measure had no enforcement provision.

Democrats Accept Olive Branch But Call On Reagan To Cooperate

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats say President Reagan was right to blame himself for the Iran-Contra affair, but they also strongly condemn those who carried out the policies.

Reacting to the president's speech Wednesday night, congressional opponents accepted the olive branch Reagan tossed them for a new spirit of cooperation.

But they threw back an offering of their own, asking Reagan to support Democratic policies on trade, deficit reduction, education, civil rights, clean water and overhaul of the welfare system.

At least two Republican lawmakers said they wanted to hear more from Reagan about aid to the Nicaraguan rebels they support.

Conservative activist and fund-raiser Richard Viguerie reacted with the most bitterness to Reagan, saying, "The president has run up the white flag and surrendered the last of his presidency to the liberal establishment. He should have had Ollie North write his speech, but instead, he's on the defensive and his supporters are discouraged and losing heart. It was bland, bland, bland — boring, boring, boring."

Reagan did not condemn North, the former National Security Council aide who managed the Iran and Contra operations. He did criticize former National Security Adviser John Poindexter for not telling him about the diversion of Iran arms-sale money to the Contras.

But that criticism didn't go far enough for Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a presidential candidate. He noted that Reagan "did not condemn the breaking of laws, the destruction of evidence or the undermining of the Constitution."

It was left to Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, to write that part of the script in the televised Democratic response.

In cool, measured tones, Mitchell said the affair "reminds us of the continuing need to reaffirm our commitment to the rule of law, the need for our leaders to say, clearly and unequivocally, that we condemn any violation of law, we condemn lying to the American people or to Congress, we condemn the destruction of important documents."

Mitchell, a member of the Senate Iran-Contra committee, said the president was right to acknowledge "that the buck stops with him."

But he said the policies of selling arms to Iran and trading weapons to that nation for U.S. hostages held in Lebanon were mistakes so grave that they place Americans in the Middle East today under greater risk than ever before.

American servicemen now in the Persian Gulf, he said, "face the terrible possibility of attack by a nation we've helped to arm."

Attempting to sum up a failed policy, Mitchell noted, "There are just as many Americans now held hostage in Lebanon as there were when this effort began."

"These were serious mistakes," Mitchell said. "But once recognized and corrected they should be put behind us. For there's much to be done together."

House Democratic whip Tony Coelho of California said he found "a very contrite president, one who seemed to be subdued, who wanted desperately to move on. What hurts is a majority of Americans think he's lying."

Speech Leaves Questions Hanging

Americans don't believe Reagan on the Iran-Contra affair. Although he has rebounded a bit in the latest surveys, the affair has left his credibility tattered, brought a near-complete overhaul of his staff and left the administration distracted.

Reagan said he had become preoccupied with the American hostages held in Lebanon, and the arms sale to Iran and diplomatic goals became tangled. "This was a mistake," he said.

"I have thought long and often about how to explain to you what I intended to accomplish, but I respect you too much to make excuses," Reagan said. "The fact of the matter is that there's nothing I can say that will make the situation right."

Reagan said he wanted it put "in capital letters" that he didn't know of the diversion of Iranian arms-sale profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Yet he stopped short of saying what he would have done if he had known.

Poindexter, testifying before Congress, said he didn't tell Reagan of the diversion so the president could deny it later. But he also insisted that Reagan would have approved of the diversion, had he known.

In his address, Reagan suggested that he'd been shielded by aides from what was happening within his own presidency. As a defense, it's hardly one that answers critics who say he's been confused or detached.

"I am the one who is ultimately accountable to the American people," Reagan said. "No president should ever be protected from the truth ... I had the right, the obligation, to make my own decision."

Reagan didn't deal with the conflicting statements he has made over the past nine months.

When the story about the Iran arms deal first emerged, Reagan dismissed it as having "no foundation." As evidence accumulated, he was forced to acknowledge it was true.

Subsequently, the president changed his story several times, rejecting and later accepting the notion that he traded arms for American hostages held in Lebanon.

He largely has been silent on the subject since a March 4 address responding to the Tower board's investigation of the affair. That board's report concluded that Reagan "did not seem to be aware of ... the full consequences" of his orders.

Reagan also didn't address the role of the late CIA Director William Casey, a close friend and former campaign manager. Casey, who carried his story untold to the grave last May, has been depicted by North as the architect and overseer of the Iran-Contra diversion and planner of a larger off-the-books covert network.

Reagan

Reaction from Capitol Hill was mixed.

Sen. George Mitchell of Maine, a member of the joint congressional Iran-Contra investigative committee and a former federal judge, said in the Democratic Party response that Reagan was right to acknowledge "that the buck stops with him."

But Mitchell said that cannot erase the consequences of Reagan-approved weapons sales to Iran, which have left American servicemen in the Persian Gulf facing "the terrible possibility of attack by a nation we've helped to arm."

Looking ahead, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said, "Congress welcomes the president's offer of cooperation" during the remainder of his term.

But Reagan was criticized by conservatives including Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, a Republican presidential hopeful, who said he was "gravely disappointed" that the president did not express stronger support for the Contras.

House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said on NBC today that Reagan "dealt with the Iran-Contra affair in a rather sketchy way, and in some degree avoided answering some of the questions."

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif, told National Public Radio that with the affair now in the hands of the independent counsel, "the whole issue is going to stay there through the judicial process instead of through the congressional or political process."

Going Too Far

Overt efforts to coax Cuban athletes at the Pan-Am Games to defect should be condemned by American hosts as well as by the visiting Cubans.

The thought of politicizing international goodwill events carries with it a self-defeating aura. One can almost visualize development of a system for score-keeping: ten points if you get a world class writer, musician, dancer, actor or political figure to "cross over"; nine points for a secret agent accompanying the guests; eight for a champion athlete or trainer ... and so on.

Add to that, it's just plain bad manners.

It would take very little monkey business of that kind to erase the original reasons for the gatherings and replace them with intensified rivalries.

Damage to the games would not stop there. Visitors who are not targeted for defecting by misguided zealots might wonder why they weren't wanted and, like others, regard the whole proceedings as a bit uncouth and a better image of the United States than other gestures of hospitality and sportsmanship.

We're all in favor of rooting for our teams and the homefolks sometimes get carried away by their enthusiasm. But reducing an athletic event to a contest for minds is going too far.

The Indianapolis festival can be a goodwill coup for the U.S. or it can be a victim in which the hosts have to live with egg on their faces. Participants presumably came together as a gesture of goodwill and making the simple statement that sportsmanship is not a quality owned by any one country or people or political viewpoint.

We're sure many Americans have their own reasons for building their lives in other lands; but it is a personal option. People of other nationalities come to these shores as a matter of personal choice, and they're entitled to any privacy they wish.

Earlier this month a talented Soviet musician (Vladimir Feltsman) and his family emigrated to the West; they plan to make their home in New York.

Feltsman says his decision was not a political statement. "I was born to play the piano, not to make a political statement", he says.

It makes a lot of sense to us, and obviously to others as well.

Slow Progress

Creation of North Carolina's Community College system was one of the state's major steps to raise levels of wealth and health among Tar Heels. Visionaries have long recognized education as the prime source for raising standards of living among the people.

Meeting that need has helped many individuals reach new plateaus of skill and knowledge during the 25 years the college system has been in place.

After all, the system has grown from 50,000 students at 24 campuses to almost 700,000 students at 58 campuses. Today, ours is one of the largest community college systems in the nation.

Former Governor Robert W. Scott, now president of the sprawling network, has been preaching the gospel of devoting still more funds toward enriching its resources, and legislators are proving to be good listeners. Like everybody else, they have been acutely aware available revenues just cannot match "available" wants.

This year the approved budget for the colleges is an 11 percent increase from last year's budget of $300 million, but fails to provide as much of a faculty pay increase as had been sought from the General Assembly.

Scott is reluctantly resigned to waiting. He's been down that road before but he recognizes a commitment to the Basic Education Plan and the Career Ladder program. Still, his arsenal for the future includes a survey report sponsored by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation that determined the N.C. Community College System "grossly underfunded" and its teachers underpaid.

According to that report, N.C. community college teachers received the third-lowest wages in the southeastern states. Scott is not likely to let that go unused.

Of the $25.5 million sought to give faculty members 16 percent raises, the legislature provided $3.9 million ... or about 3 percent, in addition to the 5 percent raise all state employees will get.

We make progress slowly, but still it is progress. Our first quarter of a century in the community college business has seen tremendous strides; we expect to see as much in the next 25 years.

Budget-Writing Considerably Improved

RALEIGH — The General Assembly may have kicked, screamed and protested, but in the end, it considerably improved its method of writing a state budget.

The assembly last week approved a two-year general operating budget worth $18.4 billion. This week it was scheduled to budget more funds for capital projects and legislators' local projects.

The 1987 session opened with grand promises from the legislative leadership that the budgeting process, this year, would be much more open than in the past years. But that promise appeared to have been broken last month. The super subcommittee — which pulls together the separate budgets of five budget subcommittees — tried a cynical ploy. It held its meetings in public, all right, but it did not announce meeting times and its members spoke in incomprehensible code while working.

During a week in which press-legislative relations fell to a point as low as at any time during this reporter's eight years on the job, pressure built for the super subcommittee to play it straight. The press pounded the committee and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan argued, behind closed doors, against the supersub's behavior. Eventually, the game ended.

Once the supersub began deliberating in a truly public fashion, word of budget developments were available daily. Then the full Appropriations Committee met last week and had the full budget presented to it.

Budget chairmen Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, and Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Vance, pushed for committee approval of the budget that very day. But, unlike previous years, the budget was not then sent immediately to the floor. Legislators were given several days to read it. Thus time was provided for public input on the budget.

The budget chairmen deserve credit for improvements to the very way the budget documents were prepared. There were plenty of copies for all legislators and reporters, and they were printed on time — a first for the 1980s. The documents were easy to read and contained more information than ever provided before.

The budget's special provisions appear to have been cleaned up. They are a form of footnote to the budget and they direct how budgeted funds will be spent. In the past they've been abused. Legislators slipped changes to state law into the budget this way and thus gave their proposals a free ride through the legislative process.

This year, it appears that the substantive special provisions are absent. Further study of the bill may prove that optimism wrong, but blatant examples of substantive law changes are not in this bill.

To the further credit of the budget chairmen, they list the sponsors of each special provision. In the past, things ended up in state law and no one could ever really be sure who was behind the move.

Having so opened the budgeting process, the rank-and-file should have been fairly familiar with the budget when it arrived on the floors of the House and Senate. That may explain the unusual swiftness with which the budget got full chamber approval.

There is no doubt that the openness of the budgeting process is partly to blame for the unusual length of the 1987 session. Part of the idea of opening the process was to also slow it down so that legislators and the public would have more time to read the document before it was made law.

A few extra days of the session was a small price to pay for an open budget process. We can only hope that a tradition of openness has been started.

North & Neikro, That's The Ticket

WASHINGTON — Having spent the last three months isolated in the unreal world of the Iran-contra hearings, a study in unaccountable freelance political entrepreneurship populated by incredible characters, it is refreshing to re-enter the world of accountable American enterprise this summer and to find that more familiar American hero types still abound.

Two in particular come to mind.

The first is an aging athlete whose career had been distinguished more by longevity than great achievement, until one recent glorious moment, that is.

He's Joe Niekro, a Minnesota Twins pitcher now toiling in his 21st big-league season. Niekro achieved a form of immortality the other day for the courageous, candid way in which he responded to great adversity.

Said Joe, after being caught apparently scuffing baseballs with an emery board and piece of sandpaper, making them do what the home-plate umpire called "odd things:"

"Being a knuckleball pitcher, I sometimes have to file my nails between innings, so I carry an emery board with me to the mound."

That charming explanation is so American, so guileless, so endearing that it qualifies him for nomination as Man of the Season. Not since the tear-stained boy pleaded, "Say it ain't so, Joe," to Shoeless Joe Jackson after the great hitter and his Chicago "Black Sox" were implicated in throwing the 1919 World Series has so innocent a cry been heard throughout the land.

In a second category, Best Summer Sourpuss, an overwhelming favorite is George Steinbrenner. He owns the New York Yankees, a club that used to have class and now has, well, Steinbrenner.

Just 16 hours after the Yankees slipped out of first place, gracious George responded to comments by several of his players that he should let the manager manage the team and them play the game by saying:

"That's okay with me. We'll just try it that way, and we'll see how well they do. ... They can put up or shut up. Maybe it's about time for it."

Coming after the depressing revelations of the Iran-contra hearings, this is reassuring. It's proof conclusive that the country has its values straight and raises the intriguing thought: As we approach the next presidential selection period, how about an Ollie North-Joe Niekro ticket? With George Steinbrenner as campaign manager, of course.

Unbeatable.

To the editor:

The League of Women Voters opposes any aid to the contras, in any form, in any amount, in any legislative vehicle.

We believe that U.S. military assistance to the contras, including nonlethal aid, is not a good means to promote U.S. interests in Central America. Contra aid is a policy that undermines the ongoing regional negotiating process, that contributes to the increasing militarization of the region, and that jeopardizes our relations with the people and governments of the region.

It is in the interest of the United States to promote peace and regional security in Central America through diplomatic and peaceful means. The legitimate interests of our country are best served by addressing the long-term social and economic needs of the region and by vigorously supporting and reinforcing the ongoing process of regional dispute settlement.

To the editor:

Overlooked in a recent Reflector article on cable television in Greenville are profound changes happening in the cable TV industry which will likely affect service options in Greenville and Pitt County in the future.

Already, the Federal Communications Commission has granted two new "wireless" cable television permits for Pitt County. With this technology, these new systems can offer over 60 channels of cable TV within a 15-to-20-mile radius of Greenville with the same or better quality as the present monopoly Greenville and Pitt County cable TV companies. Since the investment to activate these franchises is about one-third the cost of building a competing "wired" cable system (city-owned or otherwise), the probability of these new cable-type services starting up in the next several years is high. Already such systems are beginning operation in larger urban areas.

Neither Greenville nor Pitt County will be permitted to exercise any control whatsoever over rates, programs, quality of service or any other aspect of these two new "cable" companies. They can be expected to compete directly for subscribers with all cable TV companies in the area, with no franchise fees payable to the city or county.

Many new things are happening in cable television. Change in technology is only one such complex issue that must be considered in development of a future cable policy for Greenville. Surely, the cable TV committee and the city will avail themselves of expert technical and legal counsel to assist in resolving these issues?

Strength For Today

Many people are unaware of the New Testament teaching that there are two kinds of sins — sins of the lower nature and sins of the higher nature. The former are such things as dishonesty, violence, impurity and blasphemy. But the sins of the higher nature are pride, avarice, complacency, indifference.

Our Lord left no doubt in people's minds as to how He evaluated these two categories of sins. He made plain that the most dangerous type of sin is subtle sin. He believed that love of money ruined more people than did the gross passions of the flesh. He taught that pride destroyed the soul just as vice destroys the flesh.

Let us not boast if we have escaped the sins of the lower nature. That is good, but not good enough. How do we stand in relation to the sins of the higher nature?

Despite The Rhetoric, Iran May Be Ready For Peace

Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran has confounded diplomats by saying neither 'yes' nor 'no' to a United Nations resolution calling for a cease-fire in the war with Iraq.

Some analysts believe that pragmatic leaders in Iran want to end the war but are hampered by internal problems arising from their purchase of arms from their declared enemies, the United States and Israel.

But ending attacks on Persian Gulf oil shipments without ending the stalemated ground war would deprive Iraq of a key weapon against Iran and would represent an Iranian victory over the United States, other experts say.

In either case, winding down the conflict will require more diplomatic finesse than the Reagan administration has shown to date.

Iranian diplomats raised some eyebrows by saying they were neither accepting nor rejecting a Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the seven-year war with Iraq.

The resolution was adopted July 20, largely as the result of U.S. initiative, and was embraced quickly by Iraq. But Iran was expected to reject the proposal, as it has similar overtures in the past.

"As far as we are concerned, the end of the war will come after the aggressor is punished," Iranian spokesman Amir Zamani said in a telelphone interview Wednesday from New York. He repeated his nation's demand that the United Nations condemn Iraq, which began the war in 1980 and expanded it to include attacks on oil tankers in 1984.

"Iran is fully prepared for talks leading to greater safety and security in the gulf" including Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain and other Arab states, Zamani said.

But State Department spokesman Charles Redman criticized Iran for what he called its "negative" response to the U.N. resolution. He said the administration will push for a second Security Council resolution to embargo the sale of arms to Iran or Iraq.

"The Iranian response seems to be essentially a denunciation of the resolution and a diatribe against the Security Council and the United States," said Redman.

Others, however, read hints of accommodation between the lines of the Iranian response.

Gary Sick, an aide to President Carter during the 1979-81 hostage crisis, detected signals that "many Iranian leaders are tired of the war, and really want a cease-fire."

"But they have political problems saying that," because they have been so vehement against Iraq and because radicals are trying to undercut the pragmatists who bought U.S. arms, he said.

"They have turned up the revolutionary rhetoric and are thumbing their noses at the rest of the world, as they are prone to do, but that is largely for domestic consumption," said Sick, now at the Ford Foundation in New York.

Yahya Sadowski, a fellow at the Brookings Institution in Washington, said Iran appears eager to end the attacks on Persian Gulf shipping. But he said it would be difficult for Tehran's revolutionary leadership to back away from its demand that Iraqi leader Saddam Hossein step down as a condition for ending the ground war.

Another Brookings scholar, Thomas McNaugher, said, "If Iran could secure an end to the tanker war, it would be a clear victory over the United States," which has been providing Navy escorts to tankers owned by Kuwait, an Iraqi ally.

Simple economics explains why Iran wants to stop attacks on tankers.

Iran pumps about 2.2 million barrels of oil a day, and its economy depends on oil exports that are projected to earn $9 billion this year, according to State Department statistics. Iranian oil exports move by tanker through the gulf, whereas Iraq exports through overland pipelines.

The Reagan administration has maintained official neutrality in the Persian Gulf War but clandestinely favored Iran in 1985-86 by selling it weapons. It now is tilting toward Iraq by protecting Kuwaiti vessels.

Hatred for Iran, a residue of the 1979-81 hostage crisis and embarrassment over the secret arms sales are confusing U.S. policy in the gulf, while making it easier for Washington to direct all blame for the war against Tehran.

U.S. officials have accused Iran of laying mines which damaged the reflagged Kuwaiti tanker Bridgeton on July 24 and the Texaco Caribbean on Monday.

Iran, however, has neither acknowledged responsibility for the mine attacks nor launched any naval or air attacks against gulf shipping since the adoption of the Security Council resolution.

Budget Fight Fuels Jordan-Watkins Feud

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The simmering feud between Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, Rep. Billy Watkins and their legislative allies has boiled over, delaying completion of the 1987-89 budget and jeopardizing today's hoped-for adjournment.

"We are again being delayed" in concluding the session, Jordan conceded Wednesday after the Senate infuriated Watkins, D-Granville, by deleting from a spending bill a provision that would exempt employees of the Office of Administrative Hearings from the State Personnel Act.

The rejection of the provision, which Watkins sponsored, came just before the Senate approved the $724.6 million bill 41-2. It includes $7.9 million for local "pork barrel" projects in the districts of a few Republicans and all 124 of the Legislature's Democrats.

The Senate returned the bill to the House, which had approved it earlier, 79-18. At Watkins' request, the House promptly refused to accept the Senate amendment, launching a test of wills between the two chambers.

Watkins upped the ante by getting his colleagues to take several retaliatory swings, including pulling several Senate bills from the House floor and returning them to the House Appropriations Committee, of which he is the chairman.

Later, before the House passed a bill to change rules governing the state employee health plan, Watkins had it amended to put the lieutenant governor in charge of the program, a political hot potato. Watkins said the state's second-ranking official needed more to do.

Watkins told reporters Jordan and other Senate leaders broke a promise to keep the bill intact once it gained approval of the Joint Appropriations Committee. The panel endorsed it Wednesday morning.

Watkins charged that the Senate's action, proposed by Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, was a personal attack on Watkins, who has hinted he might challenge Jordan for the 1988 Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

"It's a cheap shot, that's what it is," Watkins told reporters. "It's a low blow, personal and intentional."

"This was not done to get at Billy Watkins," Jordan responded. "It was done to concur with Senate rules."

Hipps denied personal motivation. He said he offered the amendment because the disputed provision violated a Senate rule against passing laws by attaching them to budget bills when they do not directly affect the budget.

"I love Billy. I had a dog named Billy," Hipps told reporters. "My middle name is Billy. I have a cousin named Billy."

Hipps and Watkins were at the center of a similar controversy last year. Hipps persuaded the Senate to delete from a budget bill a Watkins-inspired provision that would have given a Department of Public Instruction official a bigger pay raise than other state employees.

The fight delayed adjournment of the 1986 short session, and it appears the same thing might happen this year. Lawmakers had hoped to adjourn by noon today.

Jordan declined to predict when adjournment would come, but vowed to continue Senate business as usual. "If he (Watkins) can disrupt the House to the extent that he can delay us ... that's his burden," Jordan said.

The disputed provision involves the Administrative Procedures Act, a sore point between Watkins and Jordan even before Jordan's 1984 election as lieutenant governor.

Jordan, a former senator, fought Watkins' efforts to update the APA, which defines the executive branch's regulatory authority. A version enacted in 1985 established the Office of Administrative Hearings to hear appeals of executive agency rulings.

In seeking to exempt OAH employees from the State Personnel Act, Watkins is trying to put the office directly under the Legislature's jurisdiction. Workers covered by the SPA are subject to the State Personnel Commission, which sets salaries and decides how many employees some agencies can have.

The spat erupted hours after the joint appropriations panel overwhelmingly endorsed the budget bill, one of the final components of the 1987-89 budget.

Aside from pork-barrel money, the bill includes funds for new and continuing spending by non-state agencies such as state ports and a "supercomputer" for the Research Triangle Park.

In recent years, "pork-barrel" spending has drawn sharp criticism from Gov. Jim Martin and Republican legislators. They have said Democratic leaders use the threat of a cutoff of pork-barrel funding to keep the rank-and-file in line and have withheld money from districts represented by Republicans.

But Watkins and Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Aaron Plyler, D-Union, said nearly every Republican who requested pork-barrel money this year received it.

Plyler said 44 of the 50 senators, including four Republicans, requested and received the funding. Each of the senators got $70,000 for his district.

Watkins estimated that 93 House members — including all 84 Democrats — sought local funding. He said he rejected the requests of three Republicans — Reps. Edgar Starnes, R-Caldwell; Jim Hughes, R-Avery; and Robert Grady, R-Onslow — because they had criticized pork barrel spending in their 1986 election campaigns.

"They are people who had publicly disclaimed discretionary funds, and I did not want to embarrass them," Watkins deadpanned.

The pork-barrel funds went to dozens of local museums, volunteer fire and rescue departments, courthouses, cultural groups, scholarship funds and other organizations.

IN THE STATE

Harrier Crash

HOBUCKEN, N.C. (AP) — Two Marine airmen were killed when their TAV-8A Harrier aircraft crashed in an open field in Pamlico County, an official at Cherry Point Naval Air Station said today.

The plane crashed about 5 p.m. Wednesday, said Master Gunnery Sgt. Frank Segreto. Identities of the crew could not be released until next of kin were notified.

Segreto said the crash is under military investigation. The plane belonged to Marine Air Group 32, he said.

John Collins, who was driving home with his wife, said he saw a big puff of smoke over the trees.

"Yeah, I saw the smoke that came up from it," Collins said. "I told my wife it was an explosion, but then I heard a plane had crashed.

Segreto said it wasn't officially known whether the crew tried to eject before the crash, but said a witness saw a parachute.

Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — A Wake County District Court judge has declared unconstitutional the state's standards for involuntary commitment of minors, ruling in the case of a 16-year-old whose parents tried to have her committed to a mental hospital because she was sexually promiscuous and smoked marijuana.

Judge Jerry Leonard said the law's definition of mental illness as applied to minors was too vague to be constitutional.

The law allowing the commitment of a mentally ill adult or minor has differing definitions of mental illness depending on age. Also, a judge who involuntarily commits an adult must determine that he is a danger to himself or others. But there is no such requirement for the involuntary commitment of minors, who are 18 and younger.

Acceptances

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., and former Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., have accepted invitations to participate in a Spet. 11 presidential candidates forum on national education issues at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, officials announced Wednesday.

With Biden's acceptance, all seven of the Democratic presidential contenders have agreed to participate in "Education '88: A Presidential Candidates Forum." Laxalt is the third Republican to accept.

The public event, sponsored by the 16-campus UNC System, will be held in two sessions at the Dean Smith Center. The Democratic session is scheduled from 9:30-11:30 a.m., while the Republican session will be from 1:30-3:30 p.m.

The sessions will be moderated by former Gov. Jim Hunt and Gov. Jim Martin.

Merger Talks

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP) — Directors of the North Carolina Railroad Company and the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad Company have authorized their executive committees to continue merger discussions.

The talks will focus on a share exchange ratio to be submitted to the boards of directors on September 30.

The State of North Carolina owns about 75 percent of the stock of each railroad, with the balance held by over 1,000 private shareholders.

The North Carolina Railroad has 221 miles of track from Charlotte to Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh and Goldsboro. The Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad owns 97 miles from Goldsboro to New Bern and the North Carolina State Port in Morehead City.

Interest

RALEIGH (AP) — State Treasurer Harlan Boyles said Wednesday the rate of interest charged to banks and savings institutions for state funds invested in six-month certificates of deposit and savings certificates was raised from 6¾ percent to 7 percent effective August 12.

Development

DURHAM (AP) — W. Clay Hamner and Terry Sanford Jr. announced Wednesday the purchase of the 37-acre Burlington Mills property on West Main St. in Durham.

Hamner, chief executive officer of Montrose Capital Corp. and Sanford, president of the SEHED Development Corp., said plans for the site will include offices, retail businesses, residences and eventually a hotel.

The plans include an expansion of the Erwin Square center.

King Holiday

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday will be a paid holiday for Reidsville's municipal workers starting in 1988, officials said.

The City Council, by a 3-2 vote Wednesday, joined other governments across the state in declaring the third Monday in January as a paid holiday. The federal government also observes King's birthday as a paid holiday.

SBI Agent Wounded In Shootout

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A State Bureau of Investigation agent killed a Wilkes County man after the man wounded him with a shotgun blast, Wilkes County Sheriff Fred Myers said.

Myers said that Jim Littlejohn was shot to death Wednesday after firing the shotgun at Robert Risen, an SBI agent who had gone to Littlejohn's home with a Wilkes County sheriff's detective.

"They were going up there on (department) business," he said. "I can't say what it was."

Other officers said Risen and Sheriff's Detective John Summers had been sent on a call, but would not say what they were investigating.

Littlejohn, who had been sitting on the porch of his house in Hays, apparently recognized Risen and Summers when they approached, Myers said.

He went went inside the house and returned to the porch with a shotgun, which he fired at the two men, Myers said. Risen was sprayed with buckshot from his thighs to the lower part of his face, Myers said.

Despite being wounded, Risen returned fire, hitting Littlejohn twice — once in the head and once in the chest, Myers said.

"It happened in a matter of seconds," Myers said. He said a witness had confirmed that Littlejohn fired first, but declined to name the witness.

Authorities said that Risen was wounded in the upper leg and arm. He was in stable condition Wednesday night at Forsyth Memorial Hospital in Winston-Salem, a spokesman for the hospital said.

A spokesman for Wilkes General Hospital in Wilkesboro confirmed that Littlejohn was pronounced dead of gunshot wounds Wednesday night.

Robert Morgan, the director of the SBI, and Charles Dunn, the deputy director, were on their way to Wilkesboro Wednesday night, Myers said.

McLean Dies

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Clyde "Cloudy" McLean, called "the master communicator" for his three decades of broadcasting work in North Carolina, died Wednesday at Charlotte Memorial Hospital of respiratory illness and complications from diabetes. He was 61.

McLean went on the air in Gastonia in the 1940s and joined WBT radio in Charlotte in 1947.

His broadcasting career lasted until failing health forced his retirement three decades later — September 1982.

Ethics Committee Drops Probe Of Avery Lawmaker

RALEIGH (AP) — The Legislative Ethics Committee has dismissed charges of unethical conduct against Rep. Jim Hughes, R-Avery, but the state Attorney General's Office says files on the case will be turned over to the district attorney.

Attorney General Lacy Thornburg said Wednesday he would turn over files on the Hughes case, including a classified SBI report, to District Attorney Thomas Rusher in Boone.

"Our investigative file will be turned over to the district attorney, who will make a determination as to whether any further action is necessary," Thornburg said.

Thornburg's announcement came after Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, announced that the ethics committee had found no evidence that Hughes acted unethically in his handling of a local ABC bill.

"The general public should assume that there is no evidence the committee could determine that there was a violation of (state law) ... or of our previous ethical rulings," Winner, chairman of the ethics committee, said at a news conference.

Winner declined to say whether all nine members of the bipartisan committee agreed with the decision, which the panel reached Wednesday morning.

John Simmons, a spokesman for Thornburg, said Rusher's options include continuing the investigation and prosecuting if necessary, dropping the matter entirely or asking Thornburg to appoint a special prosecutor.

Foreign Language Tests Discontinued

RALEIGH (AP) — The Division of Motor Vehicles has revoked the foreign language versions of its driver's license test, angering some people who say the move discriminates against foreigners.

"They don't have a very good chance at all," said Chris Weedy, a former social worker who's been trying to help migrants get licenses.

"Speaking English is difficult enough, and most of them are able to get the basics down in terms of understanding directions and doing what their farmer asks them to do," he told The Raleigh Times. "However, reading a written language is much more difficult than speaking it."

DMV officials said they rescinded the Spanish and Korean versions of the test July 23 after the legislature passed a law making English the state's official language. Drivers who have trouble reading the English test themselves can ask that it be read to them.

"I think that would definitely be one of the intentions of the bill, that it would prevent North Carolina from having to do tests and put out publications for other languages," DMV Commissioner William Hiatt said Tuesday.

"My assumption would be that sponsors of the bill would intend that those people who are here and enjoying the benefits of North Carolina would be able to communicate in the official language," he said. "The road signs and directions signs and all this are in the English language."

Sen. Frank Block, D-New Hanover, the sponsor of the bill approved in June, would not comment Tuesday on Hiatt's interpretation.

Legislators Remove Urban Bans On Mobile Housing

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly has barred cities and counties from outlawing mobile homes within their borders and encouraged local governments to consider opening more residential areas to manufactured housing.

The new law approved by the state Senate Wednesday represents a compromise between the manufactured home industry and local governments.

Industry representatives originally sought legislation that could have opened virtually any neighborhood to mobile homes. They charged that many city governments were discriminating against manufactured housing by banishing it to out-of-the-way trailer parks.

Spokesmen for the North Carolina League of Municipalities acknowledged some cities needed to change their attitude toward mobile homes but insisted zoning was a local issue.

The compromise bill, in addition to urging cities and counties to be more open-minded toward manufactured housing, authorizes them to designate individual lots rather than entire zoning districts for the houses.

Additionally, it lets cities adopt appearance and size criteria for manufactured homes.

A final provision directs counties to list and appraise a multi-section, or "double-wide," manufactured home as real property when the home is placed on land owned by the home owner.

In other legislative action:

Victim's Compensation

The Senate approved a bill to provide the vehicle for the funding of a crime victims' compensation program, which Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, said was passed in the 1983 session but never funded.

The bill, tentatively approved 41-0 and given final approval on a voice vote, does not guarantee victims a right to compensation from the fund, supporters said.

It establishes a five-member commission whose director would take applications from crime victims, study their cases and award compensation of up to $20,000 per person.

The bill was returned to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

The way for funding of the program was cleared with enactment of a bill to boost the monthly fee assessed to criminals on probation and parole, which will generate $1.3 million per year.

Superconducting Super Collider

The Senate passed a bill to give the state and federal governments right to acquire land for the proposed "superconducting super collider," should North Carolina receive it.

The bill passed second reading 43-0 and third reading on a voice vote.

Rejected Teachers Appealing

WILMINGTON (AP) — The New Hanover County school board next month will hear appeals from 11 teachers rejected for promotion, including two teachers who were their schools' teacher of the year when they were deemed not good enough to climb the Career Development Ladder.

One of the teachers, Nell Ostby, is president of the local chapter of the North Carolina Association of Educators. Another, Bob Warren, is her predecessor in the post. Both were selected teacher of the year for their schools in 1986-87, when they were denied promotion to Status II on the career ladder and a 5 percent merit pay increase.

A lawyer representing them says the rejections are arbitrary and capricious and, in at least one case, might have hinged on the teacher's involvement in the NCAE.

"In general the notion is that the decisions not to promote are contrary to the demonstrated abilities of the teachers, but there may be one or more cases where the question of bias or NCAE involvement may come up," said Tom Stern, a Chapel Hill lawyer being paid by the NCAE to represent Mrs. Ostby, Warren and four other NCAE members arguing their cases before the board.

He declined to discuss specifics of any of the cases. The NCAE is a voluntary group that includes about 80 percent of New Hanover County's estimated 1,000 teachers.

School Superintendent Richard Flynn, a staunch advocate of the career ladder, said the rejections, for whatever reasons, were based on classroom performance — not leadership roles in a teachers' organization.

"There's no connection between any office held with a teachers' organization and career development," he said. "I don't find any red flag at all."

In Brazil, the fifth-largest country in the world, the distance from the northern Amazon basin to Uruguay is equal to the distance from London to Tehran, says National Geographic.

PTL Attempting To Rebuild Image

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — In the face of adverse publicity, officials at PTL's Christian theme park have abandoned their passive advertising habits and are pushing full speed ahead in repairing the image of Heritage USA.

Heritage officials have launched a publicity campaign that focuses on the positive aspects of the Fort Mill retreat rather than on "who did what."

Bruce French, director of sales and marketing for the Heritage Grand Hotel, said in a telephone interview Tuesday that public knowledge of the park has increased recently, but "for reasons that we would have preferred otherwise."

"In the past, we've had a passive role in public relations," French said. "We would answer questions and provide information if it was requested. Now we're taking the initiative ourselves."

"We feel it's important for people to know that this place is still viable," French said. "They need to hear some more background other than who did what."

French said he did not know how much money had been allocated to the campaign, but said, "It's not a huge amount of money."

Two feature stories about Heritage USA's water park were released on a national business wire this week. One of them noted that "Everyone is welcome at Heritage Island, regardless of religious preference," but added that patrons are asked to "be considerate of others in their selection of bathing attire and T-shirts," and notes that, "We don't allow foul language, smoking or the use of alcoholic beverages."

In related developments, PTL began Tuesday packing up a merry-go-round, a tram and a miniature train that the ministry was leasing from Chance Amusement Rides in Wichita, Kan.

Chief Operating Officer Harry Hargrave said the move was to save money. He did not know the monthly cost of the train or the tram, but the merry-go-round cost $10,000 a month and was only earning about $1,000 a month.

He said the ministry still has two miniature trains and several trams offering rides through the theme park.

Emergency Air Rules Ordered For Los Angeles

By DENNIS ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal officials issued an emergency order imposing new rules for flying the crowded skies above Los Angeles International Airport, prompting a private pilots' association to protest and issue a plan of its own.

The Federal Aviation Administration's order Wednesday raising the ceiling of the Terminal Control Area over the airport from 7,000 to 12,500 feet followed the near collision of a Boeing 737 and a small plane flying under visual flight rules (VFR).

"I have taken this action to lessen the risk posed to the traveling public by VFR aircraft in and around the Los Angeles basin," FAA Administrator T. Allan McArtor said in a statement released in Washington.

The FAA originally announced the restrictions on Tuesday, hours before the small plane passed within 100 feet of the jetliner. But implementation would not have taken place for two years because of hearings.

Following Tuesday night's close call, the agency acted to impose the new rules next week at the airport, one of the world busiest, through which more than 34 million passengers pass annually.

At least five near collisions have been reported since Sunday in the United States, and McArtor said the FAA is considering increasing the terminal control areas of other busy airports in the country.

The small plane that nearly collided with the American Airlines jetliner, which had 83 people aboard, may have flown into a radar system "hole" and gone unnoticed by air traffic controllers, said Richard Cox, the chief controller at Los Angeles International Airport.

The Los Angeles basin, which has one of the nation's largest concentrations of small and large aircraft, has been plagued by close encounters between small aircraft and commercial airliners.

In the year that ended Aug. 1, the area had 51 near collisions in the air, up from 14 such the previous year, authorities reported.

The announcement of new restrictions, to take effect Aug. 19, prompted immediate protest from general aviation interests.

Jay White, president of the California Aviation Council, an organization representing about 10,000 pilots statewide, said the rule changes would not make the skies over Los Angeles any safer.

"The proposed enlargements of terminal control areas ... do not solve the basic problems of capacity management, air traffic control manpower and essential air safety," White said.

The council proposed that air carriers have their own "sterile" corridors at minimum altitudes of 10,000 feet before beginning approach and takeoff operations at major airports.

"By keeping, heavy, fast-flying commerical aircraft at higher altitudes than the slower, lighter general aviation aircraft, the entire air traffic environment will be safer for commerical passengers and general aviation passengers," White said.

Several blind spots affect the radar system surrounding the Los Angeles airport, and planes can disappear off radar screens for several seconds, said Cox, manager of the Los Angeles Terminal Control Facility.

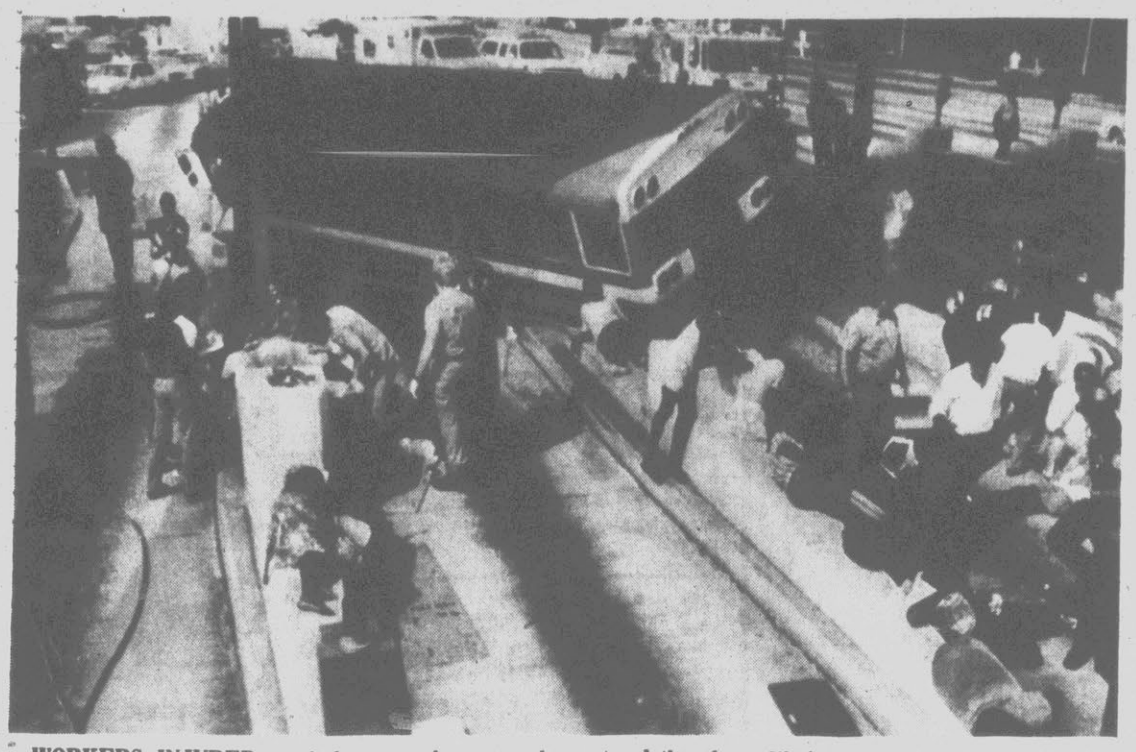
He said the holes are caused by buildings, including airport hangars, that obscure radar signals.

On Aug. 19, aircraft in the enlarged zone must have an altitude reporting transponder, which lets radar controllers identify a plane's altitude as well as its position. Many small aircraft do not have transponders.

McArtor also closed a north-south corridor directly over the airport that was free of the aircraft equipment requirements imposed by the TCA.

Controllers may never know the identity of the small plane in Tuesday's near-collision, and it appeared the pilots violated no rules, Cox said.

Under the new regulations, with higher altitude restriction, the plane that passed near the airliner Tuesday would have been required to contact controllers, Cox said.



WORKERS INJURED — A bus carrying several migrant farmworkers plowed through a toll plaza in Miami Wednesday, injuring 28 people. # Migrants' Bus Strikes Toll Plaza, Injuring 28 People

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — An old school bus transporting migrant farm workers careened through a toll plaza Wednesday, injuring 28 people, after its brakes reportedly failed.

No one was critically injured, said Metro-Dade Fire-Rescue spokesman John Carroll. The most serious cases were broken bones and concussions, he said.

"The bus came flying across the lanes," said Rita Callahan, a toll booth operator. "I saw it hit the pole. I looked and the driver was underneath the steering wheel like he was pinned in."

Fuel from ruptured gasoline tanks spilled over the highway, but firefighters quickly covered it with foam.

The yellow school bus was carrying about 50 Haitian farm workers to pick lemons in southern Dade County when it approached the toll plaza on State Road 874, also known as the Don Shula Expressway.

The driver, whose name was not immediately released, told Florida Highway Patrol trooper Sonja Roesch that his brakes failed, she said. The bus swerved to avoid a car, then ripped through the toll plaza. At one point it became airborne, soaring over a car.

It crossed concrete dividers, smashed an automatic toll machine, hit a northbound car and ended up leaning against a support column only a few feet from an occupied change booth.

The toll machine was thrown 20 feet, and the axle and wheels were ripped off the bus, coming to rest on top of a car the bus had soared over.

Two cars were struck either by the bus or its debris but no one in those vehicles sustained serious injuries, said Carroll.

Exina Charles, 67, a passenger on the bus, said few of the farm workers on the bus knew what had happened.

Fred Saint Armand, who was driving northbound when he saw the crash, said he got out of his car to pull screaming people out of the bus.

"Some were really in bad shape. I told them not to talk. Most had back and a neck pain," he said. "A pregnant woman was screaming, 'My baby! My baby!' I pulled her out of the back door."

Carroll said four seriously injured people were flown by helicopter to Jackson Memorial Hospital. Others were transported to that and other hospitals by ambulance and a bus supplied by the transit district.

SR 874 was closed northbound for an hour after the accident, creating a major tieup on both the expressway and Florida's Turnpike.

The accident is still under investigation, officials said.

Defense Says Accused Marine Was Set Up To Protect Agent

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Intelligence cables concerning Sgt. Clayton Lonetree may bolster the contention that the government set him up to protect a double agent, said defense attorneys in the Marine's espionage court-martial.

The State Department cables are believed to contain information about contacts that a department official in Moscow, Shaun Byrnes, and possibly two of his predecessors had with a Soviet spy identified as "Uncle Sasha."

The prosecution alleges Lonetree betrayed his country by turning over CIA identities and embassy floor plans to Sasha.

Lonetree, 25, of St. Paul, Minn., is charged with 13 counts that could put him in prison for life.

Today's testimony was expected to go behind closed doors as prosecutors recalled two CIA officers, including the CIA's Vienna station chief, whom Lonetree approached in December to mention his involvement with the Soviets.

The two are identified in open court only as "Big John" and "Little John."

Defense attorneys Michael Stuhff and William Kunstler said an intelligence cable they were given shows that Byrnes had numerous contacts with Sasha, and the two had discussed Lonetree.

Storm Arlene Nears Bermuda

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Arlene slogged through the mid-Atlantic toward Bermuda today, where it is expected to hit full-force with 50 mph winds and heavy rain.

Islanders boarded up windows to prepare for the storm's arrival as squalls on the leading edge of the storm struck Wednesday.

"As with any tropical storm, they should have some windows boarded. There will be flying debris," said National Hurricane Center specialist Bob Ebaugh. He said the storm should move over Bermuda by noon today.

Early today Arlene was centered 100 miles west-northwest of Bermuda, with 50 mph winds stretching 100 miles to the east. The center was near latitude 32.8 north and longitude 66.5 west, and was moving east at 15 mph.

Arlene, the first tropical storm of the 1987 Atlantic hurricane season, slowed its approach toward the island overnight and was not expected gain further strength by tonight.

The storm also is not expected to hit the United States.

Arlene became a tropical storm Tuesday when its maximum sustained wind reached 39 mph. It is not expected to strengthen to hurricane force, meaning sustained wind of 74 mph or higher, said Ebaugh.

Ebaugh said forecasters also were monitoring a tropical disturbance about 1,000 miles southwest of the Cape Verde Islands off Africa, a region that has spawned some of the most violent hurricanes.

Arlene and a tropical depression that brought heavy rain to Texas and Louisiana early this week ended a two-month lull in the hurricane season, which began June 1 and runs through Nov. 30.

Arlene greg out of a weak low pressure system that developed last week off the Carolina coast and moved south.

Explosives Found On Pay Phones

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Every pay phone in Bibb County is being checked for explosives after an anonymous caller tipped police about three bombs that were found on public telephones and disarmed, police said.

Macon Police warned residents Wednesday to avoid using the pay phones, and Chief Jim Brooks said officers and volunteers would check more than 1,050 public phones throughout the county by this morning.

Macon police and the Bibb County Sheriff's Office received anonymous calls to say bombs were hooked to the pay phones.

A bomb expert disarmed explosive devices from public phones at a dry cleaners shop, a store and the Georgia Farm Bureau, all in Macon. There were no injuries.

Authorities said they were not sure of the caller's motive, but speculated whoever was responsible was knowledgeable about explosives.

"There was no extortion," Mayor George Israel said at a news conference. The bombs were "not that crude, not exactly homemade stuff," he said.

The first bomb, largest of the three found Wednesday was at the cleaners, said police Sgt. Bob Garza. It had the explosive potential of about one-half pound of TNT, he said.

The caller told a police dispatcher he didn't want to give his name, but wanted to let officers know about a bomb at the cleaners, Brooks said.

The sheriff's office received two other calls in which the caller, believed by dispatchers to be the same man, gave the locations of two other bombs.

Pentagon Encouraging Organ Donations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of vital organs could become available for transplants each year under a new program the Pentagon is about to initiate.

Under the policy, the Pentagon will encourage military personnel and their families to sign and carry organ-donor cards. In addition, workers at military hospitals will ask patients' survivors if donations can be made.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger is likely to give final approval to the plan in the next few days, a Pentagon official who requested anonymity said Wednesday.

Donated organs will be made available to the two Defense Department hospitals where transplants are conducted: Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington and the Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas.

If the military facilities cannot use the organs, they will be offered to local civilian hospitals.

Sen. Carl Levin, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has been pushing for such a policy for more than a year. Levin, D-Mich., said the plan reflects concern equally for those in need of transplants, potential donors and their survivors.

Levin said he did not know how many organs the program will produce for transplants, but he noted that 7,500 people died in military hospitals in 1984, the most recent year for which figures are available.

The new policy "could mean the difference between life and death for hundreds, if not thousands, of Americans," Levin said.

The policy would apply to active duty personnel, retired servicemen and women and their families, a total of 9 million people. It would not apply to veterans who served only brief military stints.

The plan calls for hospital officials to ask the families of patients who die if they would like to make an organ donation. By rejecting the request, survivors could withhold the organs even if a donor card had been signed.

Military hospitals will have access to computerized records of donors, and will be able to match them with lists of patients waiting for transplants, Levin said.

Last year, more than 11,000 Americans received heart, kidney, lung, liver and pancreas transplants, and 10,000 others are on waiting lists, according to the Department of Health and Human Services.

The military performs about 100 transplants per year, all involving kidneys, a procedure that is simpler than those for most other organs.

Sailor Detours

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — A blind yachtsman trying to be the first sightless sailor to make a solo crossing of the Atlantic headed for safety in a Bermuda harbor today as tropical storm Arlene approached the island.

Jim Dickson, 41, decided not to ride out the storm on his 36-foot sloop Eye Opener, said Richard Parks, spokesman for Bermuda's rescue coordination center Harbor Radio, which monitors sea traffic. Dickson was 70 miles north of Bermuda Wednesday.

Dickson left Portsmouth, R.I., on Aug. 4 for Plymouth, England, but was forced to head for Bermuda, 200 miles out of his way, when the autopilot and satellite navigation system aboard his vessel broke down.

Paul Petronello, the Eye Opener's designer who arrived in Bermuda on Wednesday, planned to board a rescue boat today and bring it in through Bermuda's reef line, Parks said.

Typhoon Kills Seven In Philippine Sweep

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Typhoon Betty lashed the northern Philippines today with 115 mph winds, killing at least seven people and leaving thousands homeless, officials said.

Weather officials said the typhoon, the strongest to hit the Philippines in three years, was headed into the South China Sea toward Vietnam.

According to figures provided by the Philippine Red Cross and Office of Civil Defense, four people died in Batangas City and three in San Pablo on the main island of Luzon due to the storm. Among the dead were four children and a mother of eight.

Officials also said two people were in comas after trees uprooted by the storm fell on their home in Luzon's Laguna province.

Quezon Gov. Jhalmar Quintana said two people were missing after a fishing boat capsized late Wednesday in heavy seas. Fifteen others aboard the vessel were rescued, he said.

Early reports said the storm caused widespread damage, especially on the islands of Marinduque and Masbate. Detailed reports were unavailable because the storm slowed communication from outlying provinces.

There was little disruption in the capital, but air service at Manila International Airport was affected and trading was suspended for the day on the Manila and Makati stock exchanges.

FDIC Says It's Able To Survive Major Increase In Bank Failures

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More banks are failing this year than at any time since the Great Depression, but the agency that insures their deposits says it can manage the burden.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which guarantees deposits of up to $100,000 in almost all of the nation's 14,000 banks, announced Wednesday that it posted a modest gain of $164 million in the first six months of this year, bringing its reserves to $18.4 billion.

The increase came even though 96 banks failed during the period, compared with 66 during the first half of 1986.

FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman said that even though bank failures are up nearly 50 percent, the fund's condition shows that "we can handle this kind of difficulty."

As of last Friday, 109 banks had failed during 1987 and the agency had assisted 16 others. Nearly half of the 109 failures are in Texas and Oklahoma, states beset by ailing oil and farm economies. Seidman is predicting about 200 failures by year's end.

The number so far this year represents the worst failure rate since the board began keeping track. About 4,000 banks failed at the peak of the Depression in 1933, the year before the insurance fund began operating.

Last year, a record 138 FDIC-insured banks failed, compared with 120 in 1985, 79 in 1984, 48 in 1983, 42 in 1982 and 10 in 1981.

Most of the failures this year have been among smaller banks, in the $30 million to $40 million asset range.

However, a problem has developed with a much larger bank, the $12.5 billion First City Bancorp of Texas. A government official who spoke on condition of anonymity confirmed a report in The Wall Street Journal this week that the FDIC is negotiating a buyout of the bank. Hit by losses from real estate and oil loans, it lost $563 million in 1986 and the first half of this year.

Among the options being considered by the FDIC is an assistance package of $1 billion to the bank's new owners, the official said.

Even so, Stanley J. Poling, the FDIC's accounting chief, predicts that the agency will finish 1987 by breaking even or posting a modest gain.

"I would not be suprised if our results mirror those of last year," he said. The fund had a net income of $296 million in 1986.

Poling attributed the fund's first-half performance to aggressive collection efforts on bad loans and a greater use of "whole bank" transactions, in which the FDIC subsidizes the sale of failing banks. A more traditional approach had been for the FDIC to sell off a failed bank's performing loans and saddle itself with the bad loans.

The FDIC's assurance about the condition of its fund follows the recapitalization of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which insures 3,200 savings and loan institutions.

President Reagan signed legislation Monday that allows the FSLIC to raise $10.8 billion over three years. Prior to the infusion, the FSLIC had a deficit of $6 billion and regulators were forced to keep failing S&Ls open because they lacked the money to pay off depositors.

Here is the state-by-state breakdown of the 109 FDIC-insured banks that have failed so far this year:

Alabama, 2; California, 5; Colorado, 8; Florida, 2; Illinois, 2; Indiana, 3; Iowa, 5; Kansas, 3; Louisiana, 6; Massachusets, 1; Minnesota, 6; Mississippi, 1; Missouri, 4; Montana, 3; North Dakota, 1; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 19; South Dakota, 1; Texas, 34, and Utah, 2.

Retail Sales Climb Slightly In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales climbed 0.8 percent in July, helped along by improvements in sales by auto dealers and at furniture and department stores, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that retail establishments sold $127.6 billion worth of goods in July, following an even stronger 1.4 percent increase in June sales.

The June performance represented a sharp upward revision from the government's initial estimate a month ago that sales had risen only 0.4 percent in June.

The June and July increases were the strongest gains since February, when sales had jumped 4.8 percent.

After that improvement, sales had remained basically flat for the next three months. Analysts said that consumers, burdened by high debt levels and income growth that was not keeping up with inflation, cut back on their purchases.

The July strength was widespread.

Auto sales, which have been weak for much of the year, rose 1.9 percent following a 4.5 percent June increase.

Excluding autos, retail sales would have still risen by 0.4 percent as stores selling both durable goods and non-durable goods showed gains.

Sales of durable goods, items built to last three or more years, rose 1.4 percent in July. In addition to the strength in car sales, purchases of furniture were up 0.7 percent.

Teens Waving Toy Guns At Motorists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police on alert for freeway gunfire say they have encountered a related problem — teen-agers waving toy guns at motorists.

Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies drew their guns on a mother and her three children, ages 10 to 16, after the 16-year-old pointed what looked like a .45-caliber pistol at a detective on a Pomona freeway off-ramp, police said Wednesday.

The four were ordered out of the car and questioned on their knees late Tuesday with their hands behind their heads, then were released with a stern warning, said Sgt. Lauona Shea, who added the boy was "lucky no one was hurt."

"I'm sure the family was freaked out, but just think how the officer felt when he looked over and sag the gun," Shea said. "The kid really got off easy."

On Monday, an 18-year-old in a car on a freeway was detained after police caught him pointing a toy submachine gun at passing motorists, police said.

The young man was released because the state has no law against carrying toy weapons, police said.

In Riverside, Deputy District Attorney John Chessell said that a California Highway Patrol officer has pleaded guilty to pointing a gun at another motorist last month who he said tried to run him off the road.

Officer Peter Derek Atchley, 43, was given a 90-day suspended sentence and two years probation. Atchley, who was off duty, smelled of alcohol when deputies arrived, according to the sheriff's repobt.

Since mid-June, four people have been killed and 17 injured in more than 50 confirmed shootings and other attacks on California streets and highways. Many of the attacks followed traffic disputes, but some apparently were random.

On Wedneht home from Disneyland on the Santa Ana Freeway, the California Highway Patrol said.

Also on Wednesday, a slug fired from the side of an interstate highway in suburban Cerritos went through the cab of a pickup truck, said sheriff's Sgt. Bryan Williams.

No one was injured in either incident.

In Ogden, Utah, a youth whose identity was not released told police he braked hard to a stop after another car trailed him for several blocks Tuesday. As the other car drove by, a passenger fired twice with a pistol.

And Michael D. Anderson, 33, was arraigned Tuesdai on misdemeanor charges of reckless driving, disorderly conduct, brandishing a weapon and a moving violation following a Friday two-car collision at the mouth of Ogden Canyon.

Officer David Weloth said Anderson was arrested after a man driving a van swerved into a pickup truck, then got out and attacked the truck driver with a claw hammer while brandishing a .357-caliber pistol in the other hand.

In other action, Acting Police Chief Robert Vernon told a Los Angeles City Council panel that in the first six months of 1987 there were 26 confirmed reports of gunfire on freeways within the city limits, up from 15 in the last six months of 1986.

Graham Will Make First Visit To China

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham will make his first trip to mainland China next month, speaking at churches and universities in Shanghai, Nanjing and Beijing, a spokesman for the preacher said.

Roger Flessing, who helps produce Graham's television specials, said Wednesday that the visit will include a series of speeches and official meetings built around a trip to the birthplace of Graham's wife in Jiangsu Province.

Ruth Graham, daughter of American missionaries to China, spent the first 17 years of her life there. Her father, Dr. L. Nelson Bell, was chief surgeon at one of the largest Presbyterian mission hospitals in the world.

The Grahams will be accompanied by their eldest son, the Rev. Franklin Graham of Boone, who heads World Medical Mission, a Christian relief agency.

Graham, 68, has preached in more than 60 countries around the world, including the Soviet Union and most of Eastern Europe. He said he was looking forward to meeting Chinese Christians.

The two-week visit to China will begin Sept. 18 in Shanghai.

Many retirees take their initial step toward a second career with the H&R Block Income Tax Course. The course offers ideal training for men and women who want to supplement their retirement income and learn about the 1987 tax reform changes. It offers enrollees a profitable way to use their spare time, and to make new friends. Graduates of the course learn a practical skill they can put to immediate use.

H&R Block, the nation's largest income tax preparation firm, has offered the course for more than 30 years. This year's course starts on September 9. Students may choose from morning, afternoon, and evening classes held for a 13-week period at 2 area locations.

Experienced Block instructors guide students through various aspects of income tax preparation. Classwork includes discussion, practice problems, and hands-on experience preparing individual tax returns. This year's course will also cover the new tax law rules and regulations for 1987.

Qualified tax course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Many Block employees find the flexible hours a plus. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with Block.

'Harmonic Convergence' Idea Prompts Plans For Celebrations

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Will a "harmonic convergence" bathe the planet in good vibrations Sunday? Will the Earth slip out of its time beam? Or will pop philosophers simply be heard a little more loudly than usual?

A new book says Sunday and Monday will bring the "harmonic convergence," cleansing the planet and ushering in a new age leading to eventual contact with alien life forms.

The theory draws from pop philosophy, Mayan lore, Buddhism and 1960s-style radicalism.

Scientists have called it nonsense.

Adherents said Wednesday they are hoping hundreds of thousands of people will hold hands, chant and meditate in places of scenic beauty at dawn Sunday to mark the event.

"The massive, grass-roots groundswell really says something," said Jose Arguelles, the originator of harmonic convergence. "It's way beyond anything I could have dreamed of," he said in a telephone interview from his home in Boulder, Colo.

In his book "The Mayan Factor: Path Beyond Technology," Arguelles explains that the harmonic convergence is the start of a new phase in the Earth's evolution.

It is an entry point for the return of the Mayans, "at which time their presence will be perceived by some as an inner light and by others as feathered serpent rainbow wheels turning in the air," he writes.

In the last few days, the ideas of Arguelles have indirectly reached a much broader audience, in part because of "Doonesbury." On Monday, a character in Garry Trudeau's comic strip warned that Earth will "slip out of its time beam."

"Next Sunday is the harmonic convergence," the strip said. "Be there."

In today's strip, Trudeau calls harmonic convergence the "gateway to a new age ... an age where Earth-plane souls merge with higher selves ... where Sean Penn is in jail."

Paul Kurtz, a philosopher at the State University of New York at Buffalo and chairman of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal, said, "The harmonic convergence is a non-event."

"It's based on a hodgepodge of astrology, UFOlogy, the Mayan calendar, Aztec gods and a dash of the so-called New-Age philosophy," he said. "It's like the ancient Hopi rain dance. The only thing that will bring on rain is if enough Hopis sweat, the water will condense."

"I suppose there's something charming about it if people want to get together and hold hands and talk about peace, but what's disturbing about it is it's an escape from reason," Kurtz said. "In our view, the best way to solve problems is through the use of critical intelligence and reason."

Michael Coe of Yale University, an authority on Mayan culture, said Arguelles' predictions are "totally crackpot."

Harmonic convergence has been seized upon most enthusiastically by that loose confederation of meditators, mystics, assertiveness trainees and post-'60s counter-culturists sometimes called the New Age network.

"It's an event that represents a transition from one — if you'll pardon the phrase — vibrational rate to another vibrational rate," said Paul Andrews, publisher of Whole Life Monthly and and owner of the Whole Life Expo in Los Angeles.

Arguelles, 48, works in Boulder as program coordinator for creative arts at the Union Graduate School of Cincinnati. He was born in the United States but spent his early childhood in Mexico and has traveled frequently between the two countries. It was in Mexico that he became interested in the Mayans and their calendar.

Arguelles said that Mayan and other Native American prophecies have led him to conclude that the period we are living in began in 3113 B.C. and will climax in 2012, at which time we will be in contact with alien beings.

The Global Family, a Boulder organization established to advance Arguelles' philosophy, maintains a computerized list of some 200 sites in the United States and 50 around the world where celebrations are planned.

Tar Heel Believers Awaiting Weekend

GREENSBORO (AP) — At sunrise Sunday, astrologers will celebrate the dawning of the Age of Aquarius while followers of Mayan and Aztec prophecies believe the heart of an ancient Aztec god will explode, bringing a massive surge of love to the planet.

Across North Carolina and the rest of the country, believers will observe the "harmonic convergence," an alignment of Venus, Mercury, Mars and the new moon which begins Sunday morning.

The 36-hour event, during which the planets will move almost into a line, is being heralded by believers as the start of a new age of peace.

Sharon Harmon, a Chapel Hill computer programmer and massage therapist, said an average of 30 people have been attending sunrise services in Umstead Park every weekend since July 5 in preparation for this weekend.

In Greensboro, about 30 people will gather at 5:45 a.m. Sunday and Monday at a park for silent meditation. A sunrise service is also scheduled at Umstead Park in Chapel Hill and Shelley Lake in Raleigh. Other observances are planned for Durham, Asheville, Black Mountain, Highlands and Arden, organizers say.

During the meditation in Greensboro, participants will sit on blankets in a semicircle facing east. In the center of the semicircle will be 30 pounds of crystals, "positioned to help align the energy" produced by the convergence, said Peter Seiler, a Greensboro holistic health consultant.

Astronomers say the planetary alignment is nothing special.

"It's kind of a neat, curious little thing, but there's nothing significant astronomically speaking," said Roger Joyner, curator of the planetarium at the Natural Science Center in Greensboro.

As a part of the celebration, 17 Greensboro residents have gone to El Tule Tree. The lord of the dawn, the Aztec god whose heart is supposed to explode, reportedly is buried there.

At the Amalgama Center in Greensboro, there will be a meditation vigil from midnight Saturday to Monday evening.

That's longer than the convergence is expected to last, but, "We want to be sure we have encompassed the whole period," said M. Carroll Owen, who operates the center, "so someone will be on constant alert, anchoring that energy as it comes in."

Germans Carry Out Spy Swap

BONN, West Germany (AP) — East Germany and West Germany staged the first major East-West spy swap in 16 months, and a television station speculated the exchange was tied to next month's visit by East German leader Erich Honecker.

West Germany traded three convicted Soviet bloc agents for two people convicted of spying for Bonn.

West German television suggested Wednesday's exchange was an attempt to improve relations between the two nations before Honecker's Sept. 5 visit, the first to West Germany by an East German leader.

"It is clear that this act of mercy and cooperation is connected with the visit of Erich Honecker," a television announcer said in an editorial comment.

Government sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said those handed back to the East included master spy Manfred Rotsch.

Rotsch, 63, was sentenced to 8½ years in prison in September 1984 after a West German court convicted him of spying for the Soviet Union for 17 years.

The court found Rotsch was an agent for the KGB and passed on secrets about the sophisticated Tornado jet fighter while working for West Germany's Messerschmitt-Boelkow-Blohm aerospace firm.

Sources described the two other Communist agents as "small fish."

Soviets Propose Launch Inspectors

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union today proposed establishment without delay of a system to ensure that weapons are not sent into space, including posting permanent international inspectors at launch sites.

Yuri Nazarkin, chief Soviet delegate to the 40-nation Conference on Dicarmament, said such measures "should be started right away" without waiting for nations to conclude an agreement banning space weapons.

He said his remarks were aimed at clarifying a Soviet proposal originally put forth in March that was less specific and did not give a time frame for developing an inspection system.

Nazarkin said the suggested verification system would "envisage the permanent presence of inspection groups at all sites for launching space objects."

The goal would be to ensure that objects launched into space "are not weapons or are not equipped with weapons," said Nazarkin. He said parties to such an agreement would agree on a list of systems and devices to be banned in space.

The proposal would cover weapons designed for stationing in space — not ballistic missiles, which enter and leave space during flight, Nazarkin said.

He said that if a future international agreement banned weapons in space, the Soviet Union would be willing to extend inspections to storage facilities, industrial plants, laboratories, testing centers and other sites.

The Soviet Union repeatedly has called for a ban on space weapons. At bilateral U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva, the Soviets have made such a ban a precondition for agreement on reducing strategic, or intercontinental, missile forces.

The Soviet focus on space weapons is aimed at restricting the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, popularly known as "Star Wars," which aims to develop a defense against incoming missiles. The Soviets argue that such a program would be destabilizing and could be used for offensive purposes.

The United States refuses to restrict Star Wars research and says the Soviets are conducting similar work.

Nazarkin also renewed criticism of U.S. resistance to negotiating a ban on nuclear testing. He said the U.S. position that testing is necessary as long as nuclear weapons exist, in order to ensure their reliability, "could hardly be considered positive."

He reiterated a Soviet proposal to set up an international committee of experts to examine ways to prevent against cheating on any nuclear test ban.

That proposal first was made last week in a speech to the conference by Soviet Foriegn Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Nazarkin proposed such a committee be set up when next year's session of the conference begins in February.

He said this was aimed at shifting "as soon as possible the work on a nuclear test ban to a practical plane."

Clashes Between Striking Miners, Police Injure 19

By LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Striking black miners clashed overnight with security guards and workers defying the widespread walkout, and 19 people were injured, mine owners said today.

Police said they arrested five strikers in connection with the death of a man Tuesday who wouldn't strike.

The 4-day-old work stoppage, the nation's largest legal strike ever, was reported to have spread to South Africa's largest gold processing plant.

Officials of the National Union of Mineworkers say 340,000 workers are on strike at 44 gold and coal mines. Their demands include a 30 percent pay raise and improved benefits.

The Chamber of Mines, which has unilaterally implemented pay raises ranging from 15 to 23 percent, says about 230,000 of the nation's 600,000 black miners are striking at 31 mines.

Anglo American Corp., whose mines produced 39.2 percent of South Africa's 638 tons of gold in 1986, said 15 people were wounded when mine security guards fired rubber bullets at stonethrowers Wednesday night at President Steyn gold mine in the Orange Free State.

The company said the the violence broke out when security officers entered a company dormitory to protect miners who wanted to work. It said eight of the injured required hospitalization.

Another four strikers were injured overnight in fights with miners trying to go to work at the Saaiplas mine, also in the Orange Free State, Anglo American said.

With the latest injuries, at least 52 people have been injured in strike-related clashes.

Buses sent to evacuate striking miners from their dormitories at the Western Areas Gold Mining Co., 15 miles outside Johannesburg, were refused access, so strikers packed their belongings together and marched out en masse, union spokesman Marcel Golding said.

Mine owner Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Co. had no comment on the incident.

Hundreds of workers were reported to have returned to their jobs on the night shift at several mines.

Anglovaal Ltd., one of the country's six major mining companies, said about 2,400 men returned to work today at the Lorraine gold mine in the Orange Free State, and there were about 100 "absentees." It had threatened to fire workers who didn't show up today.

The 5-year-old miners' union is not recognized officially by Anglovaal.

A second Orange Free State mine, the Harmony gold mine, also threatened to fire striking miners today, but no one at the company could immediately be reached for comment.

The union had no immediate comment on the overnight developments.

The Chamber of Mines, which represents the top six mining houses targeted by the 300,000-member union, said about 150 union members went on strike today at the Rand Refinery, the main processor of the country's export gold. It said 210 workers remained on the job and the refinery would continue functioning.

Union general secretary Cyril Ramaphosa said lawyers today were trying to get a court order for the release of 78 union officials arrested Wednesday in a raid at union offices in Klerksdorp, southwest of Johannesburg.

He accused mine owners and the government of conspiring to crush the strike by arresting the union leaders.

Haitian Strike Winding Down

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Many businesses were operating as usual today as a general strike and student boycott against the military-dominated government entered its last day.

The group Student Affairs organized the boycott, which began Monday, to protest the government's use of violence to quell dissent. At least 33 people have been killed and 200 injured by the army in a wave of unrest that began six weeks ago.

The boycott and strike, scheduled to end today, had the backing of a coalition of 57 opposition groups that has called general strikes that have intermittently shut down much of the country for about a dozen days since June 29.

The students say they won't take their exams until the three-man provisional government led by Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy steps down.

After a two-day absence, some buses were back on the streets of this capital Wednesday. Government offices and about a quarter of the city's businesses were open Wednesday, and more opened today.

Factory owners at Port-au-Prince's industrial park said they were operating at 80 percent capacity. Army trucks offered free rides for people going to work.

In the suburbs, about 60 percent of business was operating and public transportation had almost returned to normal.

In the northern city of Cap Haitien, commerce and public transportation were operating as usual. In Gonaives, 90 miles north of the capital, public transportation and the open air market were functioning although many businesses remained closed.

In two other major towns, Les Cayes and Hinche, most businesses remained closed and transportation halted.

The government said on Monday and Tuesday only 18 percent of the capital's 19,000 students reported for exams, required for graduation to determine college eligibility. The turnout was much lower in most other towns, and in some no students showed up.

No violence was reported Wednesday.

Korean Protests Trigger Clashes

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Labor and political protests, sometimes overlapping, triggered violent clashes in several South Korean cities today and dozens of new strikes began in a drive for higher wages and freer unions.

Hundreds of small companies cloed their doors as the effects of strikes at major industries trickled down. The Labor Ministry said strikes were underwai at aboet 240 workplaces.

At Seoul National University, about 300 students hurled firebombs today at police who fired tear gas to prevent them from marching off campus. Witnesses said the protest was prompted by the arrest Wednesday of student association president Lee Nam-ju, who was detained when he tried to attend an opposition rally.

About 140 high school girls and relatives started a sit-in today in Seoul to press demands that the government dismiss teachers who allegedly beat students.

The labor and political turmoil blended in the southern city of Kwangju when pro-strike students clashed with police. The students were intercepting buses operated by non-striking drivers and writing, "We support strikes" on the sides in red paint.

On Wednesday night, students seized police who tried to stop them from halting the buses. Riot police stormed a university campus to rescue the captured police officers, and six people were injured.

Also Wednesday, about 2,000 anti-government protesters and supporters of the striking workers fought riot police in downtown Seoul after a rally at the Roman Catholic Myundong cathedral. The rally was largely political, but organizers said it also was in support of the strikers.

In Kwangwon province in the east, about 1,500 striking coal miners occupied a section of highway, stoned a company office building and burned a car parked in front of the company's guest house during an overnight rampage, news repobts said.

The Labor Ministry said 90 new strikes began Wednesday and today, while 29 were settled by negotiations between the workers and management. The ministry did not provide a figure for the number of strikers.

The surge in walkouts began last month after the government agreed to widespread democratic reforms, including relaxation of restrictions that had virtually banned strikes.

Study Group Decries Military Influence

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Argentine judicial system suffered a major setback with the passage of a law granting immunity to soldiers accused of human rights abuses during the military rule of 1976-83, a watchdog group says.

The Americas Watch group, in a special report released Wednesday, said the biggest obstacle to maintaining democracy in Argentina is the military's "resistance to the rule of law."

"The officers who are gaining influence in the armed forces today are, if anything, more totalitarian and fanatic than the generation that took over the country in 1976," said the report, titled "Truth and Partial Justice in Argentina."

"Argentina was pushed last June into adopting what amounts to an amnesty for the vast majority of culprits of the 'dirty war' era," it said, referring to the legislature's adoption of the so-called "due obedience law."

The law, which states that soldiers who committed atrocities under orders of superiors shouldn't be held responsible, was a severe setback to the judicial progress achieved by President Raul Alfonsin, said the report.

Alfonsin's 1983 election ended a seven-year military dictatorship.

The Argentine government says at least 9,000 suspected leftists vanished in the "dirty war," the military's 1976-83 campaign to wipe out subversion. Human rights groups put the number at closer to 30,000.

"These developments in Argentina have spotlighted problems faced by democratic governments in many countries in dealing with violations of human rights committed by predecessor military regimes," wrote Juan Mendez, the group's Washington-based director.

Since democracy was restored to Argentina, five former junta leaders, including two ex-presidents, have been convicted of crimes against humanity. Each is serving a term of up to life in prison.

Two years after Alfonsin's inauguration, "only a handful of officers were in prison, though literally hundreds were facing prosecution ... and in most cases (were) still on active duty."

The military went so far as to intimidate witnesses, the report says. And military tribunals charged with trying soldiers delayed investigations for years, it adds.

Silent Salespersons Enter New Era Of Retailing

By CARRIE BROWN
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Store dummies are not the stiffs they used to be. Instead, mannequins have evolved into a refined marketing tool as retailers have moved steadily away from the traditional rigid figures of the past to the lifelike and abstract forms that their manufacturers now sell for $800 to $1,200 apiece.

"The mannequin business is relatively small," said Norman Glazer, president of Greneker-Wolf & Vine, a manufacturer of the figures in Commerce, Calif. "However, the competition is keen, if not keener, than big business."

Only half a dozen companies compete for the mannequin business of the big department store chains, Glazer said. They tend to be tight-lipped, private companies that guard their statistics closely.

The mannequins used 15 years ago "didn't add much to the clothing," said Laurel Harper, managing editor of the trade magazine Visual Merchandising & Store Design. "In fact, in a lot of instances, the clothes looked better without them."

Today, mannequins are anatomically detailed and come in widely varied designs, from realistic to abstract. But most important, they have gained a new responsibility as the "silent salesperson" by displaying a store's goods in innovative ways.

When merchandise in all stores is similar, chains need to cultivate their own image and mannequins help do that, experts say. "(Stores) basically carry the same merchandise," said Patty Dismukes, owner of Workshop West in Sacramento, Calif. "They need to show it differently. Stores like Macy's and I. Magnin will use (mannequins) in a very visual way to show off the individual fashion look of the store."

What's more, the appearance of mannequins has changed to reflect broader changes in society.

For instance, the women's movement changed the face of mannequins. That is, the molded faces on the female figures went from docile to confident, said Leslie Bott, president of the New York-based mannequin company Hindsgual and president of the National Association of Display Industries. It is easier for working women to identify with a mannequin that appears self-assured, she said.

And, while some stores may prefer realistic-looking mannequins, others are moving to more abstract designs — with molded hair, no makeup and fewer detachable parts. Glazer believes that the growing popularity of abstract mannequins is due in part to the fact that they require less care.

"At one time, all the stores had display staff .... The trend is going toward abstract (mannequins) because stores don't have the staff to maintain realistic mannequins," he said.

Although some stores may be taking advantage of no-frills, easy-care models, mannequin companies say it is not affecting overall sales. Glazer said his company has had a 12 percent to 20 percent increase in production each year for the past four years. At its 85,000-square-foot factory, the company produces 400 to 500 mannequins a week.

Bott said her business has been increasing every year but acknowledged that a slowdown occurred late last year as a result of consolidations in the retail industry.

"All these mergers and buyouts made changes in the retail industry. This means fewer people in visual directors' positions .... Everything came to a standstill for a couple of months," Bott said, followed by "a tremendous amount of orders," beginning in March.

Feeding the fierce competition among mannequin makers is a constant need for fresh, innovative, even alienlike models. Some of the latest designs from Vogue International, a Whittier, Calif.-based company, include a Southwestern theme with human figures sprouting antlers. Another line features models leaning forward, head in hands — but each head is a glass bowl filled with everything from fish to light bulbs.

Glazer said Greneker comes up with 20 new poses and faces every six months and six new lines of mannequins each year. Each mannequin, he said, is handmade of glass fiber in about an hour and a half and then painted.

"We have to be right there with the (clothes) designers or a little bit ahead of them," said Bott, whose company produces "several thousand" mannequins a year.

When a store's mannequins become too old or outdated, usually after five years, it is not necessarily the end for them. At Workshop West, one of only a handful of companies in California that refurbishes the figures, owner Dismukes is finding that mannequins are the latest thing in home decoration.

How is the second-hand mannequin business doing? "It's been growing like wildfire," Dismukes says. "In my first year, I tripled the volume of my sales." In 1983, a year before she bought Workshop West, she said the previous owners grossed $40,000. In 1984, Dismukes said she grossed $120,000.

For $95 to $150, a used mannequin is sanded and painted or a limb is replaced, but the more entertaining side of Dismukes' business comes from renting and selling the figures.

MANNEQUINS ARE CHANGING — Stores are attempting to find store dummies that will show off individual fashion styles of a manufacturer or store as mannequins are changing, in some cases from the lifelike to the abstract. (Los Angeles Times Photos by Jayne Kamin-Oncea)

Mom Suspects Daughter's Pen Pal

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, age 16, is corresponding with a "pen pal" who, I believe, is writing from the state prison near here.

What are the dangers from this, and how can I find out if this person is at the prison and what the nature of his crime might be? Please do not use my name or city.

Sign me, CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR CONCERNED: Your daughter is a minor, so I think it is entirely appropriate for you to look into this matter. Ask her directly if she is corresponding with a man who is in prison. Also, ask her if she knows why he is there and for how long.

If you can't get this information from your daughter, you are within your parental rights to write to the warden, explaining your interest in this inmate, and asking for information about him.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding surprise visits by pastors and other people: I resent such visits.

One time, my gums were killing me and I had my dentures out. I looked horrible. Another time, I had a migraine headache and was still in my nightgown at 10:30 a.m. My hair had not even been combed when my pastor made a social call.

On another occasion it didn't bother this same pastor that he interrupted my three-table bridge club. He came in, sat down and made himself right at home.

Some visits are an invasion of privacy. Thanks, Abby, for letting me blow off steam. — LITTLE G IN GARLAND, TEXAS

DEAR LITTLE G: The meek shall inherit a lot of drop-in company. It isn't wrong, nor is it rude, to politely tell an unexpected visitor that you're unable to invite him or her in because you're not feeling well.

DEAR ABBY: As you no doubt are aware, few men will admit that they ever read "Dear Abby."

The day your story about the wife of 40 years who had found $10,000 and three ears of corn locked in the trunk of her husband's car appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle, I had lunch, as usual, at a large seafood restaurant patronized almost exclusively by men. One sees many of the same faces there — "macho" men who stop in at lunchtime for a drink or two, who discuss football, women and swap a few stories.

This day I started to tell your story about the "ears of corn" when the bartender interrupted, saying, "Yes, I read that in 'Dear Abby' this morning," adding quickly, "I never read 'Dear Abby,' but the paper came early this morning, and I had more time than usual."

Then the customer to my right, a young fellow about my age (77), said he seldom reads "Dear Abby," but he had also read it that morning.

The gentleman to my left, a much younger man, then volunteered that he had already repeated that story twice that morning!

Thus four men of quite varying ages, none of whom ever read "Dear Abby," just happened to read it that morning. Ha! — "MAC" McCURDY, WALNUT CREEK

Company Uses Buttonholes

By LINDA ASHTON
Associated Press Writer

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The guys at Petroleum Helicopters, Inc., have a special reverence for button holes.

The holes are actually tiny disks punched out of buttons to make room for the thread to attach the buttons to shirts, pants or dresses.

Although extremely small in size, the disks have been a big help to PHI. They have averted the watchful eyes of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, saved money and filled the need for an effective way to strip paint from aircraft, said Harold Summers, PHI vice president for maintenance.

The recycling coup is the work of U.S. Technology in Putnam, Conn.

The product's been used by the U.S. Army Depot in Corpus Christi, Texas, Republic Airlines in Atlanta and Martin Marietta in suburban New Orleans, UST President George Duhnkrack said in a telephone interview.

"Our company was embroiled in a problem with the EPA for waste disposal. We had a problem disposing of used paint strippers," Summers said.

About that time, a representative of Pauli-Griffin in Vacaville, Calif., showed up to promote the company's paint-stripping system which used U.S. Technology's sharp, irregularly shaped particles. Summers said he was impressed.

"The equipment has been very, very cost effective. We no longer use any paint strippers at Petroleum Helicopters at all, and we strip and paint over 100 aircraft a year," Summers said.

The button hole remnant business started in 1980, when Hill Air Force Base contacted U.S. Technology about using the plastic products for stripping its jets, Duhnkrack said. The punched-out particles were being used in the electronics industry to clean circuit boards.

The traditional alternatives to chemical peelers — walnuts, peach pits and corn cobs — were too soft for use by the Air Force and so, really, were the unsaturated polyester resin button holes, Duhnkrack said.

U.S. Technology developed two harder plastics from amino thermoset resins, he said. It is those which are predominantly used in the aerospace industry.

"The labor saving (aspect) is tremendous, something like a ratio of 5-to-1," Summer said.

The stripper is applied with air pressure, using something like sandblasting equipment, Summers said. With proper adjustment of pressure, angle and distances, layers of paint can be removed while the primer coat is left intact.

"In Vacaville, (employees) are trained by stripping Corvettes a layer at a time," Summers said.

The colorful particles can be reused after they're sucked up in a vacuum and the paint chips and dust separated in a centrifuge, Summers said. The particle recovery rate is more than 90 percent, he said.

"There's some cost involved, but not near what the chemicals were," he said. A $1,000 drum cost more to dispose of in an approved dumpsite than to buy, he said.

Petroleum Helicopters has had the system for about 1½ years.

With an initial investment of more than $20,000, "it paid for itself in less than 60 days," Summers said.

Hosting Families Tire Of 'Sights'

At Wits End

Erma Bombeck

"No matter how many times you see the Grand Canyon, you are still emotionally moved to tears." False. Of course it depends on how many children the out-of-towners brought with them who kicked the back of your seat from Phoenix to Flagstaff and got their gum caught in your hair.

"Cecil and Lucille would be insulted if you took off and went to downtown Chicago to watch the drawbridge go up and down without them." False. Cecil and Lucille rebound fast.

I know some people who live near famous caves, seaquariums and museums where they don't even have to push the buttons on the recordings at the exhibits anymore ... just push in their navels and they'll tell you all you want to know.

It's not that these people aren't proud of their state or its world-famous attractions. They are. It's just that visiting the same historic site every six months wears a little thin, and the next thing you know they're nodding at the top of the Matterhorn or leaving a shoot-out early.

It makes one wonder if people who live near historic sites always had this problem. Somehow I'd feel better knowing there was a suburban Egyptian family who said, "Look, why don't you and Marcus and the kids go see the pyramids by yourselves. Take our chariot, go to the corner, make a hard left. You can't miss 'em."

Before people buy a home they should read carefully the "buyer beware" clause. Somewhere in the print so small you have to view it through the telescope at Kitt Peak Observatory must be a warning that reads, "Be advised your property is located in the area of a popular tourist attraction and will seduce untold hordes of uninvited guests to your home. These visitors will expect to be housed, fed, transported, amused, entertained and guided through said attraction."

This is no small problem. There are scores of these tourist hostels dotted throughout the United States. They are somewhere in the neighborhood of Universal City, Mt. Rushmore, Elvis Presley's home, Mt. Vernon, Betsy Ross' house, Monticello, Disney's Land and World, the Indy 500 racetrack, Radio City Music Hall, Grand Ole Opry, the St. Louis arch and the river winding through downtown San Antonio. Did I say "in the neighborhood"? Some of these homes are as much as a hundred miles from the attraction, but it doesn't matter to a vacationer as long as you can get there and back on the same day.

Throughout the years, there have been myths circulated that need clarification.

"Everyone in California lives on a white, sandy beach." False. The only people who live on California beaches are vacationers from Arizona, Utah and Nevada who own condos. Everyone else must face certain gridlock to get there.

Miss USA To Visit Saturday

Miss USA 1987 Michelle Royer of Keller, Texas, will be in Greenville Saturday signing autographs. She will be visiting J.C. Penney Store, located at The Plaza, from 12 noon to 1 p.m.

The 21-year-old model is also a part-time substitute school teacher. She has worked with the elderly and enjoys jazz dancing and choreography, and reading and writing poetry. She collects teddy bears and makes "cottentail fudge" from a secret family recipe.

She is a graduate of Keller, Texas High School and attended Tarrant County Junior College for two years where she majored in business.

"Determination is the key to success. A positive self-image comes from emphasizing one's assets, not from getting caught up in your weaknesses. It's so much more productive (and difficult) to spend your energy on seeking the ways to achieve something we want, instead of making excuses for what we don't have," she said.

Becoming Miss USA was the fulfillment of only one dream. When her reign is over, she has set her sights on working towards the realization of another — to become a pediatrician.

ROCKWELL EXHIBIT

NEW YORK (AP) — The first exhibition of decorative arts by the late American artist and book illustrator Rockwell Kent, including designs of china, silverware, fabric and paper, is on view at Columbia University through July 31.

Kent is best known for his stark and powerful book art. But during his prolific 60-year career, Kent also produced a wide variety of other decorative works, such as fabrics, postage stamps, beer and milk bottle labels and designs for jewelry.

The exhibition traces these lesser known efforts.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Pageant Defense

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Miss America Kellye Cash is defending the pageant's swimsuit competition, saying the contest is designed to show self-discipline in diet and exercise, not to display skin.

"The swimsuits worn in the pageant are very conservative. I'd never wear one on the beach," she told a news conference Thursday.

The "difficult lifestyle" of her great-uncle, singer Johnny Cash, has persuaded her to stay out of show business in favor of a broadcasting career, said Miss Cash, who sang and played piano in the Miss America talent competition.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today, bouncing back from Wednesday's round of profit-taking.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.58 to 2,674.90 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by nearly 3 to 2 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 712 up, 477 down and 503 unchanged.

After surging ahead to record highs on Monday and Tuesday, stock prices backed off a bit in Wednesday's session.

In the economic news, the Commerce Department reported that retail sales rose 0.8 percent in July, on top of an upward-revised increase of 1.4 percent the month before. Homes sales in the latest quarter were up 5.6 percent nationally, despite sharp increases in mortgage rates which contributed to sales declines in 15 states, according to a trade group.

Perkins-Williams said. "Redistricting has occurred. It is time to place as much interest on quality education for our youth as shown in the past for 'drawing lines.'

"School board members should have some direct contact with the schools and always remember that the priority is education — quality education for the youth.

"Furthermore, I feel that it is time for more parents of the enrolled students to be a part of the administration of the schools," she added. "Parents should be in the majority of board members. Hopefully, these board members will not lose sight of the priority — quality public education for our youth."

Mrs. Perkins-Williams is a member of the American Society for Information Science, the American Library Association, the Professional Association of Library Students and the N.C. Library Association, where she has served on the executive board.

Shock Wave

NEW YORK (AP) — The atmospheric shock wave from a meteor over Canada set off seismic waves in the Earth, scientists reported today.

Seismic wave detectors picked up signals that "cannot be explained by any earthquake, explosion or impact-generating mechanism," F.M. Anglin and R.A.W. Haddon of the Geological Survey of Canada wrote in the British journal Nature.

But the signals are consistent with seismic waves triggered by atmospheric shock wave, they wrote.

Indictment

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Two more Ku Klux Klansmen have been indicted by a grand jury in the investigation into the 1981 beating death of a black teen-ager.

Bennie Jack Hays and son-in-law Frank Cox were indicted on murder charges Wednesday for their alleged participation in the slaying of 19-year-old Michael Donald.

Hays, 70, and Cox, in his late 20s, agreed to surrender today, said District Attorney Chris Galanos. Bond was set at $20,000.

Piedmont President Resigns

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Piedmont Aviation President William Howard resigned today, the company announced, and former executive vice president William McGee was named to replace Howard as chairman, president and chief executive officer.

Howard, 65, said he was leaving Piedmont to pursue other opportunities in aviation, but didn't say what he planned to do. Piedmont spokesman Don McGuire said Howard's new employer would make an announcement.

"My years at Piedmont were the most exciting, rewarding years of my life," Howard said.

"The growth of Piedmont to its rank among the nation's largest and most successful airlines has been a shared project. The 20,000 people of Piedmont have been fully supportive and have responded to each challenge we faced together."

Howard joined Piedmont in 1978 and developed the company's strategies for transition from government regulation to the less certain arena of deregulation.

McGee, 61, is a 40-year career employee of Piedmont and was director of flight services when Piedmont made its first flight in 1948.

He was elected executive vice president in December 1986.

Howard was at the helm of Piedmont as it discussed merging with USAir, a proposed combination that still is before the U.S. Transportation Department.

Magazine Calls Rice 'Action Girl'

NEW YORK (AP) — Donna Rice, whose relationship with Gary Hart ended Hart's presidential campaign, was an "action girl" who drifted from one party to another in search of rich or famous men, according to a profile in the latest edition of Vanity Fair magazine.

The article said Miss Rice lived for two years with James Bradley Parks, a Florida drug trafficker sentenced to 10 years in prison in 1984.

Author Gail Sheehy writes that Hart, in addition to seeing Miss Rice, frequently spent time in Hollywood "hang(ing) out at Warren Beatty's house, sitting by the pool, which was often populated with topless starlets."

The article describes Miss Rice, 29, as having been flat-chested and a "spindle-legged and buck-toothed" girl from Irmo, S.C., who blossomed at age 21. It quotes a friend of Miss Rice as saying that the model underwent breast implants at age 28 because "smaller-chested women just didn't make it."

Miss Rice "is a character with no center, no concrete goal, the kind known to 'knockabout guys' as an 'action girl,' just drifting from party to party in a perpetual state of expectation that the next introduction will lead to the next connection, which she can then parlay into a meeting with the next rich or famous man," Sheehy said.

An effort to reach Miss Rice today was unsuccessful. Dori Marder, spokeswoman for New Retail Concepts Inc. in New York, for whom Miss Rice filmed a commercial Tuesday, said she could not give out a number for a representative for Miss Rice.

The article said that after winning a beauty contest, Miss Rice went to New York in the early 1980s and moved into the East Side apartment of a New York businessman for two years.

Back in Florida, she took up residence with Parks in an oceanfront condo, it said. She attended his sentencing on a 1979 charge of picking up 1,000 pounds of marijuana flown in from Colombia.

The Dutch and Indians concluded a peace treaty at New Amsterdam in 1645.

To Southeastern Championship

Moore's Homer Powers Stars

SARASOTA, Fla. — Timmy Moore once more proved the hero for Greenville's Babe Ruth League All-Stars, slapping a two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th inning to give his team a 5-3 victory and the championship of the Southeastern Regional baseball tournament Wednesday.

Sarasota, the host team for the tournament, proved the toughest nut the Greenville team had to crack, handing the Eastern North Carolina champions their only loss of the tournament in the first game of the championship series, 7-1.

But Greenville rallied from a 3-0 deficit in the second game to pull out the win and earn a spot in the Babe Ruth World Series, to be held in Jamestown, N.Y., starting Aug. 22.

Moore, along with Walter Gatlin and Maurice Hines were named to the All-Tournament team following the conclusion of the tournament.

In the opening game, Sarasota, which had to win to keep its hopes alive, came up with single runs in the first, second and fifth innings to take a 3-0 lead. Then, in the sixth, Sarasota jumped on Greenville for four more runs to open up a 7-0 advantage.

Greenville avoided a shutout by scoring a run in the top of the seventh. Jamie Brewington walked, moved up on a fielder's choice, stole third and scored on Grant Harmon's sacrifice fly.

Mike Cox took the loss, with relief in the seventh by Heath Clark.

Greenville got only two hits off Sarasota pitching, one each by Brewington and Alphonso Freeman.

Sarasota jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning of the second game, threatening to sweep Greenville and take the championship.

But the North Carolina team responded, scoring one in the bottom of the fourth. Moore scored on Clark's sacrifice fly after hitting a triple.

Then, in the fifth, Greenville tied it up, scoring twice. Brewington reached on an error and Cox walked. Both advanced on a wild pitch and Chris Christopher singled to drive both runners across and knot the game at 3-3.

And it stayed a 3-3 over the next four and a half innings. Greenville had its chances, putting runners on third base in the seventh, eighth and ninth frames but leaving them stranded there. Sarasota also had a chance in the 10th, putting a runner on third before a ground out ended the threat.

Finally, in the bottom of the 10th, Moore proved the hero. Travis Williamson walked as a pinch hitter, and Grant Harmon re-entered the game, stealing second.

That left it up to Moore, who drilled a 2-2 pitch over the fence in dead center field, some 360 feet from home. The elated Moore rounded third and did a front-flip before crossing home plate to officially end the game.

Brewington got the win, having relieved Gatlin in the top of the eighth inning.

Moore led the Greenville hitting, picking up three in five trips, a single, a triple and a homer.

Greenville will join seven other regional champions and the host team Jamestown, in the World Series field. Jamestown is located in western New York, approximately 60 miles southwest of Buffalo.

Steib Boosts Jay Hitting

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Having Dave Stieb on the mound brings out the best in the Toronto Blue Jays' batters.

Every starter had at least one hit Wednesday night and the Blue Jays finished with 17 in a 10-4 victory over Boston that kept them 1½ games in front of Detroit in the American League East.

It was another case of overkill for Stieb, 12-5, who won his sixth straight decision with seven innings of six-hit pitching. The Blue Jays have scored a total of 36 runs in his last three wins and they have 114 runs in his 12 victories, an average of 9.5 per game.

Toronto scored four runs in the first inning and two more in the fourth before Jesse Barfield hit a three-run homer over the screen in left-center field at Fenway Park in the fifth, giving the Blue Jays a 9-2 lead.

"Any time you get four runs at the start it gives you a little leeway," Stieb said. "That's been a big key to how well we've been doing lately. Our batters have been helping out our starting pitchers by scoring early. That gives us a chance to pitch longer and gives our bullpen a little more rest."

In other games, it was Texas 12, Milwaukee 3; Detroit 8, Chicago 7; Seattle 4, Oakland 3; Cleveland 8, Baltimore 6; California 8, Minnesota 2, and Kansas City 2, New York 1.

Rance Mulliniks, who joined Tony Fernandez and rookie Fred McGriff with three hits for the Blue Jays, said Stieb has pitched well enough to win regardless of his run support.

"Stieb is back to his old form," Mulliniks said. 'He struggled a little early in the season, but he came around and has given us a big lift the last couple of months. He's a big reason for our being where we are."

"I feel like I'm in top form again," Stieb said. "My confidence is at its highest ever. I've never won this many games in a row. I feel like I'm at the top of my game."

George Bell and McGriff had RBI singles and Mulliniks hit a two-run double in the first. The Blue Jays jumped on Boston starter Jeff Sellers, 4-5, for 10 hits before he was replaced in the fifth by Steve Crawford, who was greeted by Barfield's 25th homer.

The Blue Jays added another run on an RBI single by Mulliniks in the seventh, and Dwight Evans hit his 26th homer for Boston in the eighth.

Tigers 8, White Sox 7

Detroit, which rallied from a 5-0 deficit, stayed closed to Toronto as Matt Nokes singled home the gmae-winning run in the top of the ninth inning.

Tom Brookens and Pat Sheridan led off the ninth with singles against Bob Thigpen, 3-4. After Tim Tolman struck out attempting to bunt, Nokes lined a single to center to score pinch-runner Jim Walewander with the go-ahead run.

Willie Hernandez, 2-2, the fourth Detroit pitcher, pitched a hitless 1 2-3 innings for the victory.

The White Sox led 5-0 before the Tigers scored twice in the fifth, four times in the sixth and once in the eighth, on Alan Trammell's 19th homer.

Chicago tied it 7-7 in the bottom of the eighth on a bases-loaded walk to Jerry Hairston and an infield out.

Angels 8, Twins 2

California snapped Minnesota's five-game winning streak and seven-game home winning streak as Kirk McCaskill pitched a four-hitter for 7 1-3 innings for his first victory since April 15.

"I hadn't made a contribution since April and I thought this was a pretty big game," McCaskill said. "I'm a lot happier now than I'm probably showing."

A 17-game winner last season, McCaskill, 3-4, was 0-4 with an 8.10 earned run average since returning from an elbow injury on July 11.

McCaskill allowed homers to Kent Hrbek and Roy Smalley, but California pounded Twins starter Les Straker, 5-7, and two relievers for 12 hits, including a two-run homer by Ruppert Jones and a two-run single and RBI double by Gus Polidor.

Royals 2, Yankees 1

Steve Balboni hit his 16th homer with two outs in the eighth inning, then Kansas City preserved its victory over New York when Wayne Tolleson was thrown out at home plate for the final out.

With the Royals leading 2-1 in the ninth, Charlie Leibrandt walked Juan Bonilla, then fanned Bobby Meacham for the second out.

Roberto Kelly doubled to left-center and Tolleson, running for Bonilla, was thrown out at the plate to end the game. Left fielder Lonnie Smith relayed to shortstop Ross Jones, who threw to catcher Jamie Quirk for the final out.

Leibrandt, 12-9, scattered eight hits en route to his seventh complete game. Rick Rhoden, 14-8, gave up Balboni's homer as the Yankees lost their sixth game in seven outings.

New York's only run came in the fifth on Kelly's sacrifice fly.

Indians 8, Orioles 6

Cleveland hit five solo homers, including two each by Cory Snyder and Joe Carter, to subdue Baltimore.

Brett Butler hit the other homer, making a winner of starter Darrell Akerfelds, 1-3, who won his first major-league game with relief help from Doug Jones, who pitched two innings for his third save.

Eddie Murray had four RBI, including a three-run homer, for the Orioles, and Cal Ripken Jr. added a two-run homer.

Mariners 4, Athletics 3

Ken Phelps hit his 18th home run and Mickey Brantley hit a two-run, inside-the-park homer, leading Seattle over Oakland.

Mark Langston, 13-9, gave up three runs on seven hits in 6 1-3 innings, and Bill Wilkinson pitched the final 2 2-3 for his sixth save. Langston struck out six, giving him a major league-leading total of 188.

Phelps homered in the second inning off Gene Nelson, 5-3, and the Mariners scored their final three runs in the third.

Harold Reynolds singled and Brantley hit a line drive up the middle that rolled past center fielder Dwayne Murphy, giving Brantley an easy homer. Alvin Davis doubled home another run later in the inning.

Rangers 12, Brewers 3

Texas, which lost nine of its first 10 to Milwaukee this season, won its second straight against the Brewers as Pete Incaviglia drove in three runs, and Darrell Porter and Pete O'Brien added two RBI apiece.

Porter had three hits, including his fifth homer, to pace the Rangers' 16-hit attack. They had two runs in the first and two in the third before scoring six times in the sixth for a 10-0 lead.

Pirates On Drill Field

East Carolina University's football Pirates began practice for the 1987 season this morning in the first of several days of three-a-day drills.

Over 130 candidates for the team went through their opening workouts before Coach Art Baker and his staff, leading to the opening game of the year on Sept. 5 at N.C. State.

Wednesday evening, the team went through cardio-vascular tests and had their pro timing in the 40-yard dash.

"It was a very successful test," Baker said. "The football team generally came back in great shape, perhaps the best shape we've been in in a number of years."

The Pirates will practice again Friday before taking Saturday for its annual media day. They will go into full pads on Sunday for the first time and their first controlled scrimmage is scheduled for Wednesday night.

Nicklaus Making Noises In First Round Of Play

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — He stands a feeble 106th on the money list, but the Golden Bear was starting to make ominous noises along the tree-lined fairways he designed at Castle Pines Golf Club.

Jack Nicklaus emerged from a season of hibernation to shoot "probably my best round of the year" Wednesday and advance through first-round play in the International golf tournament.

Nicklaus had 12 points under the modified Stableford scoring system being used in this unique event.

Under the format, an eagle is worth five points, a birdie two points, par zero, bogey minus-1 and double bogey or worse minus-three.

"I haven't had many good rounds this year," Nicklaus said. "It's nice to have one. I don't know if it was my best round score-wise, but it was the way I played. I played confidently."

It was his best score-wise, too — a 5-under-par 67. He ran off five birdies on the back nine and easily made it to Friday's second round.

Half of the field of 162 teed off Wednesday, and the other half was scheduled to start play today. The top 39 players from both days will move on to Friday.

Nicklaus, architect of the demanding Castle Pines layout, insisted it is no advantage to play on a course he designed. "It's probably a negative," he said. "I know too much. I know where everything is. I put some things in that I'll be thinking about and shouldn't be. Other guys probably don't even notice them.

"My courses don't favor me. I try to have a blend of holes going both directions, not just left-to-right, which is the way I tend to hit the ball."

Also advancing to the second round were Greg Norman, Tom Watson, Craig Stadler, Peter Jacobsen, defending champion Ken Green and U.S. Open champion Scott Simpson. Norman, facing elimination, birdied five of his last six holes and finished with seven points.

Chip Beck led Wednesday's players with 13 points on a medal score of 66. He won $10,000 in "day money."

Nicklaus and Dick Mast, who tied at 12 points, earned $6,250 apiece, and Tim Simpson collected $2,500 for 11 points.

Tournament officials installed daily payoffs to avoid a repetition of last year, when Raymond Floyd, who had safely qualified, skipped his last hole and took the mandatory double bogey.

Conley Cagers In S.C. Tourney

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley High School's basketball team will take part in the Pepsi-Cola Carolina Classic basketball tournament, to be played in Florence, S.C., on Dec. 28-30.

The Viking team will join three other North Carolina teams in play against four teams from South Carolina on the Francis Marion College campus. The tournament is being played for the second consecutive year.

The Vikings, led by All-American candidate Phil Medlin, a 6-9 senior, will join Charlotte Garinger, Chapel Hill, and Charlotte Independence. Conley is a 3-A school while the others are all 4-A.

Chapel Hill, the defending 4-A state champions with a 31-1 record, won the tournament last year, while Garinger, 22-7 in 1986-87, finished third.

Garinger is led by 6-8 senior Juan Mason, who averaged 16 points and 10 rebounds a game. Independence is led by guard Rodney Farrington.

The South Carolina entries include Wilson High School of Florence, the host school and last year's runner-up; Darlington St. John's; Greer Riverside, and Orangeburg-Wilkinson.

Wilson is paced by 6-8 Roderick Sellers, all-tournament last year, while St. John's features 5-11 point guard Derrick McQueen, considered one of the country's top five guards. Riverside is led by point guard Shawn Golden and was 25-4 last year, finishing second in the state in the 3-A ranks. Orangeburg-Wilkinson is led by 6-11 Roosevelt Gardner.

Proceeds from the tournament go to the Florence Boys' Club.

Aurora Drops Football Team

AURORA — Aurora High School, a member of the Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference, announced Wednesday that it is dropping football as a varsity sport.

Ted Overton, head coach and athletic director at the school, said the sport was dropped because of a lack of support at the school. Only 14 candidates for the team attended a recent practice session, the coach said.

The loss of Aurora means the loss of a game to eight other members of the league, along with non-conference foe Jones Senior. Aurora had only nine of the ten allowed games scheduled.

Officials at the other schools in the league were left to scramble at this late date to fill those gaps — if they can. Aurora was scheduled to open against Jones on Aug. 28, just two weeks away.

Aurora will join Bear Grass as a non-football member of the 10-member Tobacco Belt Conference.

Reds Lose; Giants Tie For First

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The National League West is getting more tangled because the Cincinnati Reds kept getting strangled on the West Coast.

Tim Leary and a pair of relievers teamed on a five-hitter Wednesday night and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Reds 1-0.

Cincinnati slipped into a first-place tie with San Francisco, which defeated Houston 8-1. The Reds had been all alone in first place since June 12, when they shared it with San Francisco.

The Reds, who had been among the most offensive teams in baseball, have been in a hitting drought. They were swept in four games in San Francisco and have lost two of three in Los Angeles, scoring just 13 runs in those seven games.

Houston is only three games behind the co-leaders while Los Angeles is seven back, Atlanta trails by eight and San Diego — which began the season 14-42 — is just 12½ behind.

"At this point, I'll do whatever I can to help the team, because we're still in the race," Leary said after pitching seven strong innings and singling home the game's only run.

In other games, Atlanta beat San Diego 2-1, Pittsburgh routed St. Louis 11-0, New York defeated Montreal 4-2 and Philadelphia downed Chicago 13-7.

Leary, 3-7, had been a starter for almost his entire career before the Dodgers acquired him in an off-season trade with Milwaukee. He has made only nine starts for Los Angeles and been used more in relief.

Leary took a four-hitter into the eighth against Cincinnati but left after a leadoff walk to Nick Esasky and Kurt Stillwell's single.

Tim Crews, who was acquired with Leary in the deal that sent Greg Brock to the Brewers, relieved and Dave Collins sacrificed the runners into scoring position. Crews then retired Barry Larkin and Buddy Bell on grounders.

In the ninth, Eric Davis opened with a walk and Matt Young replaced Crews. Young got the final three outs for his 10th save.

Leary also got two hits. In the fifth, Mike Scioscia singled with one out, took second on a two-out passed ball by Bo Diaz and scored when Leary swung at a 2-2 pitch up at his eyes and singled to center.

Leary is 6-for-16 with three runs batted in this season.

"I've always been able to swing the bat pretty well," Leary said.

Bill Gullickson, 10-10, took the hard-luck loss. He gave up four hits in seven innings and the lone unearned run. Gullickson has lost four straight decisions since July 21.

Giants 8, Astros 1

Bob Brenly hit a grand slam that capped a six-run seventh inning as San Francisco routed Mike Scott and beat Houston.

Scott, 12-9, was tagged for eight runs on 12 hits in 6 2-3 innings during one of his worst outings of the season. His earned run average rose from 2.68 to 2.99.

Candy Maldonado hit his 14th homer in the second off Scott. The host Giants, who have won six of seven games, broke it open in the seventh. Jeffrey Leonard hit an RBI single, Maldonado had a sacrifice fly and Brenly hit his 13th homer and second career slam. Astros pitchers have allowed eight grand slams this year, tying an NL record and one behind the major league mark.

Atlee Hammaker, 8-8, gave up two hits in six innings before leaving with tightness in his left bicep. Don Robinson finished with one-hit relief for his 14th save.

Pirates 11, Cardinals 0

Pittsburgh's Bob Walk pitched a four-hitter and gave St. Louis its first shutout of the season in 113 games. The Cardinals had been the only team in the majors not to be shut out.

Walk, 4-1, pitched his first shutout and complete game since July 5, 1986. The host Pirates ended a six-game losing streak to St. Louis.

Walk also capped an eight-run fourth inning with a bases-loaded single, and when the ball rolled through center fielder Willie McGee for an error, Walk scored on the play.

Joe Magrane, 6-4, took the loss. Sid Bream and Bobby Bonilla hit two-run doubles and Johnny Ray went 3-for-3 with an RBI single.

Braves 2, Padres 1

Zane Smith pitched a six-hitter and Gerald Perry hit a solo home run as Atlanta won in San Diego and ended the Padres' seven-game winning streak.

San Diego's winning streak was its longest in two years. The Braves had lost three in a row.

Smith, 12-6, struck out five and walked four in his sixth complete game.

Perry hit his ninth homer in the first inning against Eric Nolte, 1-1. Murphy hit a sacrifice fly in the third. Nolte gave up three hits in six innings.

Mets 4, Expos 2

Ron Darling won his fifth straight decision and New York scored two runs in the fourth inning on a pair of Montreal misplays.

Darling, 9-7, gave up six hits in 7 1-3 innings. Roger McDowell finished for his 17th save.

The Mets snapped a 1-1 tie in the fourth with two unearned runs. Darryl Strawberry reached on second baseman Casey Candaele's error and scored when Mookie Wilson singled and the ball was misplayed by center fielder Herm Winningham. Wilson later scored on Rafael Santana's sacrifice fly.

Bob Sebra, 6-13, lost his fourth straight decision.

Phillies 13, Cubs 7

Juan Samuel's grand slam broke a 7-7 tie in the seventh inning and sent Philadelphia over Chicago.

Samuel, who also tripled, drove in five runs. He became the first player ever to reach double figures in doubles, triples, home runs and stolen bases in each of his first four seasons.

Samuel's slam off Ed Lynch, 1-7, was his 22nd home run of the season, breaking the Phillies' record for home runs by a second baseman set by Granny Hamner in 1953.

Von Hayes hit his 19th homer for Philadelphia, which won its fourth straight game. Jeff Calhoun, 1-1, got the victory.

Andre Dawson hit a three-run homer and Bob Dernier also homered for the visiting Cubs.

New Record

VIAREGGIO, Italy (AP) — Alessandro Andrei of Italy set a new world record in the shotput with a throw of 75 feet, 2 inches at an international track and field meet.

Andrei, who won the Olympic gold medal in the shotput in 1984, broke the previous world mark of 74-3½, set by Udo Bayer of East Germany in East Berlin on Aug. 20, 1986.

U.S. Teams Romp To Wins In Team Competitions

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — On the softball and baseball fields and the basketball courts, U.S. teams romped at the Pan American Games.

On the volleyball court, it was another story Wednesday as Brazil stunned the defending world and Olympic champion American squad 3-2, dealing the U.S. its first team loss of any kind at the games.

"Brazil just beat us," U.S. volleyball Coach Marv Dunphy said. "We were both tired and it was an emotional match that could have gone either way."

The loss took a bit of the luster off an otherwise marvelous day for U.S. teams, who cruised to big victories in men's and women's basketball, men's and women's softball and baseball.

"You don't want to lose a ballgame," said U.S. baseball Coach Ron Fraser, whose team crushed Nicaragua 18-0. "You can't let up. When you're up by 12, you can't take it easy."

The women's softball team got its second no-hitter in three games as Ella Vilche struck out 15 in beating Venezuela 6-0. Steve Padilla pitched a one-hitter as the men downed Cuba 4-0.

Basketball was just as one-sided, with the U.S. women opening play with a 110-41 rout of Peru and the men topping Mexico 105-73.

"Anybody we play will play better than they usually do because they're jacked up to face us," said men's basketball Coach Denny Crum, whose team struggled early before pulling away.

In track, Judi Brown-King, whose uncle won a gold medal in the first Pan Am Games, smashed the U.S. and meet records in the women's 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a 54.23, beating the record of 54.38 she set at Rome in 1985.

"I was so incredibly nervous before the race. I almost threw up," said Brown-King, who had many relatives watching in the stands. "But after that gun went off, there were no more nerves and I felt in control the whole time."

Cuban weightlifters finished their total domination, with Omar Semanat sweeping the middle heavyweight class to give his country a record 25 golds. Cuba won all the gold medals in each of the seven weight classes it entered.

The U.S. continued to hold a big lead in medals. At the end of Wednesday's competition, Americans had won 158 medals, including 64 golds and 48 silvers. Cuba was second with 88 medals, including 45 golds and 25 silvers. Canada held third place at 73 medals, 10 gold and 24 silver.

VOLLEYBALL

Brazil, which lost to the United States in the 1984 Olympic gold medal game and almost every rematch since, scored some revenge in a 3-2 win. The U.S. team blew an early lead in the third game of the match, which both coaches said was critical.

"We weren't worried," said Mario Oliveira Neto, who had 25 kills for the Brazilians in a match that lasted nearly three hours. "We felt it was the U.S. that had the responsibility to win because they were favorites and playing at home."

For most of the match, the Americans played without their top player, Karch Kiraly, who broke a bone in his left hand last month and made only three brief appearances. Dunphy, however, said that wasn't a factor.

"We play about 70 matches a year. We win most of them, but we just came up short this time," he said.

TRACK AND FIELD

Brazil's Joaquim Cruz, the 1984 Olympic 800-meter champion, outkicked Jim Spivey of the United States and won the men's 1,500-meters in 3 minutes 47.34 seconds, the slowest winning time in the Pan Am Games since 1959.

The day was not without controversy. It came in the women's 10-kilometer race, which was won by the daughter of one of the judges after the first-place finisher was disqualified for not keeping both her feet on the ground.

A sobbing Maria Colin of Mexico was declared the winner when fellow Mexican Graciela Mendoza was disqualified by three judges, one of them Colin's father, Pablo.

"They stole the medal from me," an angry Mendoza said. "It is his daughter. He wants her to win always."

In a major surprise, Ramona Pagel, the three-time U.S. champion, won the women's shot put at 60 feet, 10¾ inches, thwarting the bid of Cuba's Maria Sarria to become the first four-time gold medalist in the same track event in Pan Am history. Sarria finished second at 59-5½.

BASKETBALL

The U.S. women, eager to get off to a good start, ripped Peru with Teresa Edwards of Georgia, Alisa Scott of Mississippi, Clarissa Davis of Texas and Cynthia Cooper of Southern Cal scoring 14 points each.

"It was our first time out and we couldn't be content," Coach Jody Conradt of Texas said. "Everyone needed to play with intensity and at our speed."

The men's team is 3-0 after the win over Mexico. Rex Chapman of Kentucky scored 18 points, leading five players in double figures for the U.S. team, which trailed 26-24 in the first half.

BASEBALL

Nicaragua was no match for the U.S. team, despite the presence of Nicaraguan native Bianca Jagger, who cheered on her countrymen.

The U.S. team, 3-0, scored 10 runs in the first inning and never looked back.

"That was the first time we've played a whole ballgame," Fraser said. "We usually play two or three innings and then slop around a bit."

Cuba also moved to 3-0 in the seven-game round-robin by trouncing Aruba 13-2.

SOFTBALL

In three games, the U.S. women's team has allowed only one hit and a walk and no runs.

"I don't expect any team to get more than two or three hits," catcher Suzy Brazney of Long Beach, Calif said. "I think this is the best team ever put together. It's complete — pitching, fielding, running and hitting."

Vilche, of Fresno, Calif., allowed one baserunner, who reached first on an error.

"I'm just proud to be on the team," said Vilche. "We are all pulling together and it's an honor to represent the U.S."

Canada's Tracy Hucklak also pitched a perfect game for her team, leading the Canadians to a 6-0 win over Peru.

In men'splay, the Americans raised their record to 4-0 as Padilla, of Modesto, Calif., was in complete control.

BOXING

American Kelcie Banks, the world champion at 125 pounds, fights tonight as the 10-day boxing competition begins. Banks, of Chicago, and light heavyweight Andrew Maynard of Fort Carson, Colo., both meet Argentine fighters in first round action.

WEIGHTLIFTING

The Cubans got their 25 golds because they won four extra golds when two of their lifters tied in all three disciplines in 60 kilograms and in the clean-and-jerk at 67.5 kilograms.

Tony Calandro of Baton Rouge, La., won three bronze medals in the middle heavyweight division.

"I'm not making excuses," Calandro, a 1984 Olympian, said. "But we don't have near the incentives they have. I have to work full time and train in the evening. ... I have to pay the bills."

Canadian Denis Garon set two Pan Am records in the 100-kilogram class, in which the Cubans were not entered.

CYCLING

The heavily favored U.S. men's team, which won six gold medals at the 1983 Pan Am Games, was without a first-place finish after two of seven cycling events. Canada's Curt Harnett won the men's 1-kilometer time trial, beating Gene Samuel of Trinidad and Leonard Harvey Nitz of the United States.

WRESTLING

Americans Chris Catalfo, Duane Koslowski and David Butler won gold medals in Greco-Roman wrestling, but the U.S. came away short of the five golds it had hoped to win.

Cuba won seven gold medals, losing only the 163 pounds, 180½ pounds and super heavyweight.

Puerto Rico's Jose Betancourt, facing an empty flagpole at the ceremonies after his nation's banner was misplaced, accepted the bronze medal at 163 pounds.

FOCUS

Body Heat

Polar bears are warm-blooded animals; their normal body temperature of 99.1° F is only half a degree higher than ours. But they love cold weather, and their fur protects them from the icy polar waters. Antarctic ice fish, on the other hand, have a kind of anti-freeze that helps them survive in water that would turn ordinary blood to ice. The dormouse has a normal body temperature exactly equal to our 98.6° F. But when it hibernates, its temperature drops to 35.6° F.

DO YOU KNOW — In general, do birds or mammals have higher body temperatures?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — In Britain, the German Shepherd is known as the Alsatian.

In yesterday's column we featured an elimination play which was guaranteed to land the contract. Sometimes you cannot eliminate all suits completely, but have to rely on a partial elimination and hope the distribution is favorable.

East-West tried valiantly to use the vulnerability to preempt the opponents out of the auction, but South's hand was too strong distributionally to be silenced. On the theory that the five-level belongs to the opponents, East-West elected to defend.

West led a spade and East's ace felled the king. Since a spade continuation was obviously futile, East shifted to his singleton diamond. Prospects were not bright—a loser in each red suit seemed inevitable. The only hope was to find that the player with the long trump was short in diamonds.

Declarer cashed the ace of trumps and was pleased to learn he had only one loser in that suit. Next came three rounds of clubs, and declarer breathed a bit easier when West showed out on the third round but could not ruff. Now the partial elimination was almost sure to succeed.

The table's last spade was ruffed in hand. Just in case East had started with only three spades and, therefore, two diamonds, South led the king of diamonds. East did not ruff and end play himself, but he was only postponing the inevitable. Declarer exited with a trump, and an unhappy East was faced with the choice of which black suit he wished to return to present declarer with his ruff-sluff. No matter which he selected, declarer would ruff in hand while discarding the last diamond from the table, and the defense would score no more than a trick in each major suit.

Actress-Mothers Find Hollywood Easier Now

By JUDY FARAH
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actresses Shelley Long and Rhea Perlman hid behind the "Cheers" bar when they were pregnant, but Tyne Daly and Meredith Baxter Birney boasted big bellies on their TV shows.

Actresses today are enjoying tremendous freedom in combining work and mothering, but that wasn't always the case. Just six years ago Lynn Redgrave was fired because she wanted to breast-feed her 3-week-old daughter, Annabel, while she was shooting "House Calls" for CBS.

"It was ghastly," said the actress, who unsuccessfully sued MCA and Universal Television for $10.5 million. "I was told I could not come back to work with my child. I was appalled. When it was suggested that was an impossible choice, I was fired."

Today, Miss Redgrave would have an easier time being a working mom since pregnancies are often woven into scripts, and some studios provide day-care facilities and nurseries and give actresses time out on shoots to feed their babies.

Working pregnant actresses are nothing new. Thirty-four years ago, millions watched as Lucille Ball, through advance filming, gave birth to Little Ricky on "I Love Lucy" while in real life, she delivered her son, Desi Arnaz IV.

However, actress pregnancies became less public after that. Some either put off having children or decided not to have any at all because they feared they would be denied roles.

Patty Duke, president of the Screen Actors Guild, said she was unaware of any such problems with actresses today.

"Many producers have been more than willing to accommodate actresses who are expecting. Producers, in several instances, have been able to work it into the storyline," said Carol Akiyama, spokeswoman for the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

They must, or they risk losing a major star. Five of the top 10 television shows have had to use clever storylines or camera trickery to weave star pregnancies into the script.

Susan Saint James, a divorced mother on "Kate & Allie," was placed in bubble baths and hospital beds to disguise her pregnancy. Priscilla Presley's pregnancy coincided with her carrying Bobby Ewing's child on "Dallas." Constance McCashin was pregnant both off and on the screen in "Knots Landing."

"We are happy to have that in our lives. That's what life's about," said Gary Goldberg, creator and producer of NBC's "Family Ties."

"The work place should be an extension of our roles as mother and father. We love having babies and kids around. We think you don't have to give up anything to work."

When Miss Baxter Birney was pregnant with twins, Goldberg built a nursery across the stage. "Our whole schedule had to be adjusted to her feeding, but that's a happy adjustment," he said.

That concept was extended onto the lot of Paramount Studios, where a day-care facility was established for the cast and crew of movies and such TV shows as "Family Ties," "Cheers" and "McGyver." Fifty families have signed up.

A special dressing room was set up for Miss Daly's daughter, Alyxandra, on the set of "Cagney & Lacey."

"One little goo-goo and they would stop (shooting). They had a method. Tyne breast-fed in the room," said Miss Daly's spokeswoman, Marilyn Reiss.

Phylicia Rashad, the mother of five children on "The Cosby Show," hid her pregnancy last season behind briefcases, grocery bags and pillows. She also breast-fed Condola Phylea on the set.

"Usually my daughter's with me everywhere I go. I take her to work with me," Miss Rashad said.

The writers at "Moonlighting," though, will have to be more creative now that Cybill Shepherd (Maddie Hayes) is pregnant with twins and Alyce Beasley (Ms. DiPesto) is also expecting. Ms. DiPesto can hide behind her receptionist desk. But Maddie Hayes the detective will obviously be unable to slide down rails, jump out of windows and do belly flops as she has in the past.

Miss Shepherd, who won't be returning until after she gives birth in early October, filmed special scenes in June that will later be inserted into stories.

Television isn't the only medium affected by pregnancies. Production on the sequel to "Romancing the Stone" and "Jewel of the Nile" was postponed by 20th Century Fox because Kathleen Turner is pregnant. Two-time Academy Award winner Sally Field will take a hiatus from films after the birth of her third child later this year.

However, Jessica Lange went right to work on "Crimes of the Heart" after giving birth to her daughter, Hannah. The baby was on the set with her for feedings.

Buckingham Quits Band

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lindsey Buckingham has sung his last song for the Fleetwood Mac rock band after 12 years, he said in a statement.

And two new members will join the 20-year-old band before it embarks on a fall concert tour, the group's publicist said.

Buckingham, who plays guitar and sings, is regarded by some as being the band's guiding influence over the past decade.

He joined Fleetwood Mac along with then-girlfriend Stevie Nicks in 1975 and led it to its remarkable 1977 LP, "Rumours," which won an album of the year Grammy.

Fleetwood Mac has had several personnel changes since it was formed in July 1967 by former members of John Mayall's Blues Breakers, bassist John McVie and drummer Mick Fleetwood.

The group's current LP, "Tango" is No. 20 on the Billboard charts. The album is their first in five years as members have split off for solo work.

Publicist Mitch Schneider said he would not disclose the names of the two new band members, but said Tuesday "they will add very excitingly to the Fleetwood Mac sound."

HOLLYWOOD MOM — Actress Lynn Redgrave and her 5-year-old daughter, Annabel, are shown in a recent play session. Miss Redgrave is one of many working actresses who combine work and mothering. ## Sean Penn Wants To Learn Boxing

NEW YORK (AP) — Sean Penn, whose fists have gotten him a 60-day jail sentence, is upset that they didn't get him onto a magazine's list of the 10 best actors who also pack a punch, it was reported today.

To rectify the situation. Penn plans to hire a boxing instructor, according to the Daily News.

Penn, actor Danny Aiello and character actor Frankie Gio were in a Manhattan restaurant Wednesday when Penn complained about not making Ring Magazine's list, which had Ryan O'Neal as top actor-boxer.

After sparring with Gio, a former heavyweight boxer who stands 6-foot-4, the 5-foot-8 Penn admitted he needed lessons.

"You should learn to box," Gio told Penn. "It'll give you confidence and you won't throw punches carelessly. If you know how to handle yourself, you get a self-assurance."

"Will you teach me?" Penn asked. "I'm serious."

"Sure, I'll take you to the gym," Gio said.

Of course, he'll have to wait for Penn to finish his movie in Europe and complete his jail sentence for violating parole in California.

Penn was released last week after serving less than a week of his sentence. He must report back by the end of the month to complete the sentence, which was ordered for reckless driving and for violating probation by punching a movie extra who tried to take his picture.

The probation stemmed from a case in which he slugged a man he thought tried to kiss his wife, Madonna.

School For Deaf Actors Expects Booming Season

By DAVID A. DISHNEAU
Associated Press Writer

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — The drama school for the deaf where Oscar-winner Marlee Matlin got her start is preparing for a boom season as more hearing-impaired people seek careers in theater, the school's president says.

"I think our stock went way up, so to speak," with Ms. Matlin's Academy Award for best actress in the 1986 film, "Children of a Lesser God," said atricia Scherer of the Center on Deafness in this Chicago suburb.

"I also have parents calling me saying they want their child to be in the Marlee Matlin school," she said. "They are seeing us as a successful theater program."

Ms. Scherer said she expects 30 to 40 people to try out in September for about 20 parts in "Fiddler on the Roof." Last year, she said, 15 to 20 people tried out for a similar number of parts in another musical production.

Ms. Scherer, who formerly headed the deafness program at Northwestern University, said a successful theater program was one of her dreams when she founded the center in 1973.

Deaf people "have such an innate ability to act out their feelings and their ideas. I thought it would be a very positive experience for them to do this and get a reward for doing it," she said Tuesday.

The center, in a residential neighborhood, also has a school for emotionally disturbed deaf children and offers training in creative writing, art and photography. It holds an annual arts festival for the hearing impaired.

At least three of the center's students have landed parts in local or regional television commercials since Ms. Matlin won her Oscar and several have won roles in local theater productions, Ms. Scherer said.

"It's about time," said Liz Tannebaum, who studied at the center with Ms. Matlin and is an assistant director at the school and a part-time actress.

"The people just don't know how much expression and intensity of feelings we have inside," Ms. Tannebaum, 23, said Wednesday through a sign-language interpreter.

"We've been waiting patiently and been frustrated for so long and finally Marlee got it," the Academy Award, she said.

Ms. Tannebaum, who like Ms. Matlin is profoundly deaf, said they have been best friends since they started performing in plays at the center during elementary school.

Ms. Matlin began acting in center productions in 1973 at age 7, then quit after seven years "because there was no place for her to go" with her talent, Ms. Scherer said.

She said Ms. Matlin finished high school and enrolled in a local junior college, then got her first big acting break in 1985 when she landed a supporting role in a Chicago production of "Children of a Lesser God."

Ms. Tannebaum recently starred in a Kansas City production of "Doing the Reality Rag," a collection of skits that uses humor to examine the challenges of living with a handicap.

Fifteen-year-old Melani Kaplan of suburban Park Ridge, who appeared with Ms. Tannebaum in a local TV commercial, said Wednesday her training at the center has made her confident she can succeed as a professional actress.

Versatile Torme Will Host Dorsey Tribute For PBS

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For years Mel Torme has been the subject of a running gag on NBC's "Night Court" — he is idolized by Judge Harry Stone, played by Harry Anderson, but on the momentous occasions when Torme is in the courthouse, Stone never gets to see him.

This Saturday, even Stone can catch Torme. He is host of the PBS special, "Sentimental Swing: The Music of Tommy Dorsey," a nostalgic trip back to the days of the big bands.

Torme is best-known as a jazz vocalist, nicknamed "The Velvet Fog." He is also a composer, author and actor. He has written more than 300 songs and in recent weeks has been sitting down at his piano in the early morning to write arrangements for a national concert tour starting Oct. 16.

He's just completed his autobiography and is now at work on a biography of his old friend, drummer Buddy Rich, who died earlier this year.

Rich made his last appearance in a spectacular drum solo that can be seen on the PBS special, which also features Jack Jones, Maureen McGovern and the L.A. Voices. Trombonist Buddy Morrow conducts the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra.

The special was taped last January at the Palladium, where Dorsey and his orchestra were the star attractions for the grand opening on Halloween Eve in 1940.

"I first met Buddy Rich face-to-face at the Palladium in 1944," Torme said. "He was still in his Marine uniform. The Charlie Spivak Orchestra was playing. Buddy and I became best friends. The last performance I saw him give was at the Palladium.

"I don't think the big bands ever went away. I think the audience went away. You still have great bands today. The Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Count Basie bands are still going. Remember, Glenn Miller died in 1945 and his band is still going on. That shows you the staying power. The big band era, from 1935 to 1945, was the greatest period of music this country ever knew."

Torme also wrote an article for TV Guide about Dorsey and did the orchestration for a "Tribute To a King," a 17-minute salute to the late Benny Goodman given at the Hollywood Bowl.

He will start the "Great Gershwin Concert" tour in October with Leslie Uggams, Peter Nero and a 16-piece band.

Torme talked in the living room of his Beverly Hills home. The book cases around the room were filled with volumes reflecting his various interests: The Old West, Gen. George A. Custer, Old England, the mutiny on the Bounty, the French Revolution, espionage, the great detective classics, comic strips, guns and music.

His first book was a Western called "Dollarhide," published under the name of Wesley Butler Wyatt. He later rewrote it as an episode of "The Virginian" and played the lead role.

He also wrote episodes of "Run For Your Life," "Mannix" and other shows. His other books were a novel called "Winner" and a book about his years with Judy Garland, called "The Other Side of the Rainbow." He was nominated for an Emmy for a role on "Playhouse 90."

Torme said he was unaware that he had become a running gag on "Night Court" until a friend told him. Since then he has made several appearances on the show and will probably return again this season.

"I learned that Harry Anderson and Reinhold Weege (the executive producer) both like my work," said Torme. "They were looking for a running gag and decided on making the judge a fan."

Torme has been on the show twice, but Judge Stone always misses seeing him. Once, only his voice was on the show.

"I've gotten quite a kick out of being on the show," he said. "I don't do many TV guest appearances because there isn't much time. The special was planned six months ahead of time so I could work it in."

TRIBUTE HOST — Mel Torme, the vocalist known as "The Velvet Fog," will host "Sentimental Song: The Music of Tommy Dorsey," on PBS. The 90-minute musical tribute will be broadcast on PBS Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

Fonda Involved In New Movie

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda began production work this week on a Columbia Pictures film version of "The Old Gringo," a novel by Mexican author Carlos Fuentes, an actors' union spokesman said.

It had not been confirmed yet if Miss Fonda also would act in the movie, Ernesto Gomez Cruz said Wednesday.

There have been reports that Miss Fonda will play the part of the teacher who becomes involved in the meeting of Ambrose Bierce and Pancho Villa during the Mexican revolution.

"We don't know yet who will play the leading roles in the movie," Gomez Cruz said in a phone interview.

The director will be Luis Puenzo of Argentina, whose "The Official Story" won an Academy Award two years ago as the best foreign language film, Gomez Cruz said.

Sandy Duncan Gets 'Valerie' TV Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Sandy Duncan will replace Valerie Harper in television's "Valerie," but the show will keep its name, says Lorimar-Telepictures, which dropped Miss Harper in a salary dispute.

"She's off the show," Lorimar spokesman Barry Stagg said Wednesday of Miss Harper. "We thought we had resolved our differences, but we were unable to work things out."

Also gone from the NBC-TV show is Miss Harper's husband, co-executive producer Tony Cacciotti, said Stagg.

Miss Harper has refused comment during the dispute.

Stagg earlier had characterized her pay as one of the highest in television. That would indicate it was in excess of $100,000 a week.

The revised show will feature Miss Duncan portraying Sandy Hogan, the sister of pilot Mike Hogan, who moves into the Hogan household to take over the care of her three nephews. The other characters will remain the same, with Mike Hogan played by Josh Taylor and the boys by Jason Bateman, Danny Ponce, and Jeremy Licht.

Shooting will resume Aug. 31, said Stagg.

Miss Duncan has starred in motion pictures, on television and Broadway, including Tony-nominated performances in "The Boy Friend," "Peter Pan" and "The Canterbury Tales."

She received Emmy nominations for her TV work in "Funny Face" and "Roots."

'Our Rascals' Spud Buried

L.A. Times-Washington Post

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. — Services were held Wednesday for Sherwood V. Bailey Jr., who played the freckle-faced, tattletale Little Rascal known as Spud in the vintage "Our Gang" comedies. He died of cancer on his 64th birthday.

Bailey's wife, former Huntington Beach Mayor Ruth Bailey, said her husband died last Thursday night at Hoag Memorial Hospital Presbyterian in Newport Beach, Calif., after a five-month illness.

Sherwood Bailey appeared in the popular Depression-era comedy films in the early 1930s, his wife said. According to the authors of "Our Gang: The Life and Times of the Little Rascals," Bailey was a "latter-day star of the series." But the authors said they were unable to locate Bailey while writing the book.

"He played the character Spud," his wife said. "He was in 'The Little Rascals' when it was still called 'The Little Rascals.' It was called 'Our Gang' later on. ... He was in about a dozen episodes, including some of the silent ones. He was actually in the gang one episode before Spanky."

Farmers Hope Oil Prices Will Boost Demand For Corn

By ROBERT LEE ZIMMER
Associated Press Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — U.S. corn growers say they have something better than oil wells — about two trillion little green machines that can feed the nation and free it from petroleum dependence.

There is a never-ending domestic supply of corn, and with new technology, farmers say, a bushel of corn can produce anything a barrel of oil can make — and more.

But some analysts say petroleum may have a price edge over corn in many products for years.

"It's the American farmer growing corn vs. the Arabs pumping oil out of the ground," said Robert Busche of Wilmington, Del., a chemical engineer and biotechnology consultant. "We don't know what the Arabs are going to do, so it would be nice to have this technology waiting."

Used traditionally as a livestock feed, the versatile corn kernel now also is yielding sweeteners for soft drinks, ethanol for fuel, oil for cooking and starch for paper products.

And there could be much more. Corn growers say their product could replace petroleum in the manufacture of synthetic fabrics for shirts and dresses, automobile body parts, boxes and cups for fast-food restaurants, high-volume industrial chemicals, and non-corrosive highway deicers.

"They say this is their goal, but how close are they?" said Earl Ross, a spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute. "The easy part is the technology, but the question is whether you can produce a specific product that is economically viable. You can't compete with cheap crude oil."

Farmers say it is not likely to remain cheap. Still, they say there are other factors that could help corn bump petroleum out of some markets.

"The petroleum situation could become so bad that it wouldn't matter what it cost," said Dan Ragsdale, research director for the National Corn Growers Association in St. Louis. "We need to be able to substitute corn for petroleum at the wink of an eye because that's all it would take to upset the oil supply in the world."

In addition, state or federal regulations could boost the sale of corn for ethanol to clean automobile exhausts, for a highway de-icer that would not damage roads and cars like salt, and for biodegradable plastic trash bags and hamburger boxes that would disappear after use.

"We use 600,000 trash bags a day and they go into landfills and stay there forever," said Purdue University's James BeMiller, who directs its center on carbohydrate research. "If we make them with corn, they will slowly degrade."

In order to break into many new markets, experts say corn refining techniques will have to be more efficient and the product slate wider to minimize costs and maximize income.

"Use all of the chemical fractions of the corn, then you will have a winner," said Charles Scott of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee. "We also will have to convince people in the chemical industry that corn is useful as a raw material and abundant. It's a promotion job."

Proponents see high-tech corn refineries eventually using every part of the crop — kernels, cobs and stalks — to produce a wide range of products.

"It's sort of like the pig — you use everything but the squeal," said BeMiller. "Corn is environmentally safe and renewable, and we need to help our farmers and replace the petrochemicals we now use."

Mike Schaible, a spokesman for Marathon Petroleum Co., said if the corn growers develop efficient ways to make some of these products they should succeed.

"If the market is so important we can't afford to lose it, we'll have to find a way to do it cheaper and better," said Schaible. "We're a pretty competitive bunch. This is America — we wih them luck."

Engineer Busche said it will take time.

"I think we're talking decades rather than days," said Busche. "And, those guys over there can drop their oil price overnight, force the competition out, then raise the price again. They have plenty of margin."

Many participants in the recent National Corn Utilization Conference in St. Louis said more research should be done because so much is at stake. There is a huge grain surplus and market prices are depressed.

Don McGillivray, president of Funk Seeds International of Bloomington, Ill., estimated nontraditional uses for corn could mean a market for seven billion bushels of grain — nearly a year's current production.

"A certain amount of patience is required," said Larry Hudson of the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority. "If we insist that everything has to pay off by the next quarter, we'll never make any of these important changes."

USDA Combatting Screwworm Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — International jet travelers apparently have picked up some hitchhiking screwworms from Latin America lately, prompting the Agriculture Department to hurl millions of sexually sterile screwworm flies against the suspected invaders.

Later this week the first of a new wave of sterile flies will be released in two Southern cities in a biological campaign against screwworms that might have entered the United States from Honduras.

Bert W. Hawkins, head of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said Wednesday that approximately two million sterilized flies will be released twice weekly for about six weeks in areas 20 miles around Panama City, Fla., and New Orleans, La.

The agency will conduct surveillance and public awareness programs in the two areas and along Interstate 10 between the two cities.

If screwworms become established in the Southeastern states, it could cost up to $100 million to eradicate them, Hawkins said.

Screwworms are the parasitic larvae or maggots of a blowfly species that feed on the flesh of warmblooded animals. The female fly — about twice the size of an ordinary housefly — lays eggs in an open wound, in which the larvae hatch and grow to about a half-inch long in five to seven days of feeding.

If not treated, the animal can die. Humans also have been known to be infested by the maggots.

Adult female screwworm flies usually mate only once in their lifetime. Thus, when a natural, fertile female mates with a sterile male, she lays eggs that don't hatch — and no screwworms are produced.
