BB&T Study Paints Grim Outlook For Eastern N.C.

By The Associated Press
Government leaders and business executives in the eastern half of North Carolina have been given a grim look at their region's future in an analysis which indicates trouble on virtually every front.

Among the problems the region's 2 million residents must cope with during the next two decades are declining farm income, migration out of the region, a drop in the region's already low per-capita income and a lack of industrial plant expansions or openings, said Joseph C. Jeffcoat, consumer products manager and head of research for the Branch Banking and Trust Co. of Wilson.

Jeffcoat and other BB&T staff members spent about three months drawing a statistical picture of the 43-county region for the Eastern North Carolina Chamber of Commerce, projecting changes during the next 20 to 30 years. Chamber officers and BB&T staffers presented the analysis to more than 100 government officials and business leaders Thursday at the chamber's Special Economic Development Conference.

L. Vincent Lowe, BB&T's chief executive officer, likened the region's situation to that of a four-engine plane that had lost two engines to fire and had a third engine burning.

The pilot emerged from the cockpit and walked into the passenger compartment wearing a parachute. "As he opened the door of the plane, he said, 'Don't anyone panic. I'm going for help,'" Lowe said.

"Eastern North Carolina, today, is very much the same as that plane with two engines in trouble," Lowe said. "I think you'll all agree that (the) presentation presents a pretty grim view of the future of eastern North Carolina."

Eight work groups discussed potential solutions to the a litany of pressing problems ranging from the decline of farm income to outward migration from the region.

Historically, eastern North Carolina has been a farm-rich region, but within the past 15 years, 34 percent of the region's farmers have had to supplement their livelihood with non-farm jobs. The analysis said half of the North Carolina counties designated as economically "distressed" by the state — a determination made by comparing unemployment rates and per-capita income — are in the region. They include Bladen, Brunswick, Columbus, Halifax, Hyde, Northampton, Pender, Robeson, Sampson and Warren counties.

Jeffcoat said the region also is hampered by the large numbers of adults without high school diplomas. He said 44.5 percent of the region's residents 25 or older do not have high school diplomas.

And the statistical analysis shows that some counties in the region will actually lose population in coming years. Jeffcoat said those counties will end up with a smaller tax base and little to offer new industries or businesses.

Jeffcoat and his staff assigned the 43 counties a numerical ranking from 1 to 6, with 6 the highest rating, by comparing county figures with state averages in six categories — population growth, number of high school graduates, number of new employees, new investments, unemployment rates and per-capita income. Only one county scored a 6 — Wake.

Inflation Eases As Retail Prices Hit Best '87 Level

By The Associated Press
Consumer prices eased last month, bringing the annual inflation rate for the year down to 5.0 percent. But the economy's spring-quarter growth, at 2.3 percent, was slightly lower than previously thought, the government said in two reports today.

In a separate report, it also said after-tax corporate profits increased 4.2 percent in the second quarter, a sharp turn-around after the first quarter, when profits fell by 3.7 percent. It was the fastest increase since a 6.5 percent rise in the third quarter last year.

Posting their best performance this year, retail prices grew by a modest 0.2 percent over those of June, as food prices fell and energy price gains moderated, the government said.

Food prices fell 0.2 percent, after a 0.7 percent rise in the preceding month, while energy prices rose 0.1 percent, down dramatically from June's 1.5 percent increase. Gasoline prices were up a sharp 1.1 percent, but natural gas prices plunged 3.1 percent.

The Commerce Department blamed a disappointing spurt in the trade deficit in June — to $15.7 billion — for its revision of the moderate annual rate of 2.3 percent in the April-June quarter.

The gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, grew at about half the 4.4 percent rate turned in during the first three months of the year, it said.

The new estimate of GNP growth was revised down from an initial report a month ago which put GNP growth at a 2.6 percent annual rate.

Today's reports came in the wake of another big day on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 40.97 points Thursday to 2,706.79, surpassing the previous record close of 2,700.57 reached on Monday.

Arlene Becomes Hurricane

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Arlene barely became the first hurricane of the season when its winds reached 74 mph en route to the cold waters of the mid-Atlantic, said forecasters at the National Hurricane Center.

"Arlene is heading toward the hurricane graveyard," forecaster Noel Risnychok said of the 10-day-old storm that has lumbered across the eastern Atlantic to a position between the United States and Europe.

Early today, the new hurricane was near latitude 33.5 north, longitude 42.0 west, or about 700 miles southwest of the westernmost Azores. It was drifting eastward at 5 mph, forecasters said.

Arlene, which qualified for hurricane status Thursday, was expected to decrease in strength and slow its movement slightly, forecaster Gil Clark said.

"From the looks of it, Arlene will start moving north in the next couple of days and then accelerate and move over cold water. That's what we've been waiting for. That should be the demise of it," said hurricane expert Bob Case.

Meanwhile, tropical storm Bret was heading west over the Atlantic, about midway between Africa and the Caribbean.

At 6 a.m., Bret was centered near latitude 16.0 north and longitude 42.5 west, or about 1,250 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands. It was moving west at 17 mph, with maximum sustained winds of 45 mph.

Case said the physics of circulating storm systems prevent them from combining should they approach one another.

A weather trough is expected to dip south over the Atlantic and move Arlene north, he said. The same winds could also steer Bret over the cold waters that kill tropical storm systems.

"The big question with Bret is not how long it will take to get (from the coast of Africa) to the islands or the (North American) mainland, but if it ever will," he said.

Lonetree Trial Going To Jury

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Lawyers for Marine Sgt. Clayton Lonetree rested their case today without calling a single witness in the former Moscow embassy guard's espionage court-martial.

Their move came after the judge rejected a mistrial motion and two other last-minute requests.

The case, the first of a Marine charged with spying, will go to the eight jurors after they hear closing arguments and receive instructions from the judge, Navy Capt. Philip F. Roberts. Lonetree, 25, of St. Paul, Minn., could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted.

Civilian defense lawyer Michael Stuhff asked Roberts to declare a mistrial on grounds that the defense was prevented from presenting its case.

"This court has handcuffed us," Stuhff said.

He said the defense had been crippled by rulings that limited questioning of Naval Investigative Service agents who obtained two confessions from Lonetree last December in Europe.

Roberts said Stuhff was resurrecting arguments that had already been rejected. The judge also rejected motions by Lonetree's military defense lawyers, Marine Maj. David H. Henderson and Marine Capt. Andrew O. Strotman, to reduce the charges against Lonetree.

The defense then objected to a wall-sized red and gold chart placed behind the defense table and containing what the prosecution said was a visual aid for jurors.

Stuhff called the display an attempt to prejudice the jury and suggested that prosecutors should bring in television game show hostess Vanna White to move the labels on the display.

Bus Wreck Kills 20 Mineworkers

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A bus carrying black mineworkers crashed into a wall of rock today, killing 20 people and injuring 49, the South African Broadcasting Corp. said.

The driver apparently swerved to avoid a boulder in the road before crashing into a cliff face, a rescue worker told the South African Press Association. The news agency said about 100 people were aboard.

In its first report, the South African Broadcasting Corp. said 60 people had been killed. It later revised the toll downward twice, citing early confusion in the rescue operation that involved at least 24 ambulances.

The broadcast report said nine of the injured were in critical condition at an East London hospital.

The bus was carrying the miners from Odendaalsrus, a mining town in the Orange Free State, to Port Elizabeth on the southern coast, the report said. Many miners who work in the Orange Free State are from Ciskei, a black homeland near the site of the accident.

The accident occurred between the towns of Queenstown and Fort Beaufort.

More than 200,000 black miners are engaged in a 12-day-old strike against major gold and coal mines and have been leaving their hostels at mine compounds and heading for their homes in distant areas, including Ciskei.

However, the National Union of Mineworkers said it had no information indicating that strikers were aboard the bus that crashed.

N.Y. Board Plans AZT Price Study

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
 Associated Press Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Though most pharmacies modestly mark up the price of AZT, the experimental AIDS drug, the state Consumer Protection Board says it will conduct public hearings to find out if any are engaged in price gouging.

The board reported Thursday that a survey of 176 pharmacies showed that a vast majority of them charged between $700 and $900 for a month's supply.

The board said it was given prices over the telephone that ranged from $200 to $3,384 for a month's supply of 360 capsules.

However, Richard Kessel, the board's executive director, said that the sole pharmacist who gave the $200 quote may have been referring to a week's supply. Board officials said the actual price range for 360 capsules would be from about $700 to $1,500.

AZT is the only drug approved for treating AIDS.

A random national survey by The Associated Press also found that most prices fell into the $700 to $900 range, or from about $190 to $250 for a bottle of 100 capsules.

Kessel said public hearings next month would also be aimed at determining if wholesale prices are appropriate.

"To me, it sounds like a lot of money," Kessel said.

Burroughs Wellcome Co. of North Carolina, the only company that makes AZT, charges $188 per 100 capsules to wholesalers, according to spokesman Thack Brown. The medicine is produced at Burroughs Wellcome's Greenville, N.C., plant.

A survey by the American Pharmaceutical Association showed that pharmacies pay wholesalers about $220 for the drug, according to a spokesman for the organization, Ron Williams. A majority of the pharmacies surveyed charged between $209 and $245 to their customers, he said.

"I think the charges that pharmacies are exploiting AIDS patients are just not true," said Williams. "It's unfortunate that the drug is so expensive, but I think pharmacists are doing their best to deal with that."

Lori Berhman, a spokeswoman for the Gay Men's Health Crisis in Manhattan, said the organization had not received any complaints from AIDS patients of price-gouging for AZT.

Two People Die In Crash On Potomac

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two people were killed and two were critically injured today when a helicopter plunged into the Potomac River.

The five-seat Bell Ranger helicopter, on a flight to photograph the nation's capital, crashed just south of the 14th Street Bridge near the city's waterfront about 7:30 a.m., said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar.

Assistant city police chief Isaac Fulwood said the craft was carrying a pilot and three passengers. Fulwood said the pilot survived the crash.

One witness said the copter was "standing and hovering" at treetop level. "I thought he was leaving and then it hit the water. There was no indication of any sputtering or engine trouble before he went down."

Radio station WTOP reported that the helicopter had been circling the area for 15 minutes when it plunged into the water.

Fulwood said several other witnesses told police the helicopter had been "apparently having mechanical difficulties."

One victim, a man, was taken by helicopter to the Washington Hospital Center and was pronounced dead at 8:42 a.m., said hospital spokeswoman Barbara Oliver.

Another, a 45-year-old Washington man, died at George Washington University Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Katherine Baker.

A third man and a woman were also taken to George Washington and were listed in critical condition.

The helicopter crashed in the Washington Channel, a section of the Potomac River between the Hains Point peninsula and the city's waterfront.

U.S. Cutting Off Payments To Witness

By RONALD J. OSTROW
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — The Department of Justice is cutting off financial support for Aladena "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratianno, the highest-paid participant in the history of the federal witness protection program, ending 10 years of subsistence that totaled nearly $1 million, officials announced Thursday.

Noting that Fratianno's value as a witness "is diminishing," department spokesman John Russell said that "it's just time to terminate" payments for the self-described hit man and one-time acting boss of a Los Angeles Mafia family.

During its decade of support for Fratianno, who testified as a government witness in several organized-crime trials, the Department of Justice paid $951,326 for his rent, utilities, and other subsistence for him and his wife, as well as auto and household insurance and real estate taxes for two homes and a condominium in which he held interests, Russell said.

At one point, according to a government source, Fratianno even sought federal reimbursement for the cleaning and glazing of his wife's mink jackets and the cost of her nicotine withdrawal treatments. Those requests were turned down.

The government is ending Fratianno's subsidies, effective Friday so that the witness protection program "can't be construed as a pension fund for aging mobsters," Russell said.

"We think he can live as any other 74-year-old man," Russell said. He noted Fratianno is eligible for Social Security payments and just had his second book published.

Russell emphasized that Fratianno is still covered by the witness protection program, saying that he has recently been relocated for at least the second time and has been given another new identity.

Although "he was never under 24-hour protection," Fratianno is covered by the U.S. Marshals Service whenever he enters "danger areas," Russell said.

Fratianno's cutoff was first disclosed by States News Service, which quoted him as saying that the government's action left him "a dead man. They just threw me out on the ... street. I put 30 guys away, six of them bosses, and now the whole world's looking for me. They just get finished using you and they throw you on the street," he was quoted as saying.

"We weren't going to announce it," Russell said, noting that the department does not ordinarily disclose actions involving the sensitive witness program.

Gerald Shur, who heads the department's witness protection program, said about 10 individuals who had been in the program had been killed, all after they left under their own volition. He said the program has lost no one who adhered to the rules.

Russell said that the government had been trying since 1983 to end Fratianno's subsistence but that Associate Attorney General Stephen S. Trott agreed to a two-year extension in 1985. That extension has expired.

"He has given great service to the country and law enforcement," Russell said, "but the program exists to protect witnesses, not as a vehicle for reward."

In 1980, Fratianno testified in Los Angeles at the trial of five reputed Mafia figures that he decided to become a government witness when he became convinced that Southern California mob figures had marked him for death. During the trial, Fratianno casually admitted that he had directly committed five murders and taken part in six others.

Fratianno became one of the most frequently used witnesses at mob-related trials throughout the country, testifying in 1983 at the bribery conspiracy trial of former Teamster President Roy L. Williams and, most recently, at the racketeering trial of Anthony (Fat Tony) Salerno, reputed boss of the Genovese crime family.

At the Salerno trial in May, Fratianno said Teamsters President Jackie Presser had told him in the 1970s that "he was not going to make a move unless James Licavoli gave him the OK." Licavoli at that time was a Mafia boss in Cleveland.

Jury Gets Trial

Lonetree's lawyers decided against putting the Marine on the stand, although he was willing to testify. They feared he could be too easily manipulated by government lawyers.

Lonetree's civilian lawyers, Stuhff and William Kunstler, said Thursday that questions by the military jurors had encouraged them. They said that in seven days of testimony the panel seemed more open-minded than the judge.

The eight Marine officers on the jury were allowed to ask questions of witnesses on the stand.

"Unlike the judge, maybe they're a different kettle of fish," Kunstler said Thursday as the defense spent a day in recess preparing closing arguments. Roberts ruled that the defense could not call most of the witnesses it wanted, just before the prosecutors, Marine Maj. David L. Beck and Marine Maj. Frank R. Short, rested the government's case late Wednesday.

Lonetree, the first Marine to be court-martialed for espionage, was accused of aiding the Soviet Union by turning over CIA identities and Moscow and Vienna, Austria, embassy floor plans.

The defense was prohibited from calling witnesses who would say that publicly available materials can allow one to pick out which U.S. Embassy officials are CIA agents.

Lonetree wanted to take the stand to dispute the allegations that he betrayed his country for the love of a Soviet woman, but the defense decided that would be too risky.

"I think he's too passive a guy, too easily manipulated," Kunstler said.

Roberts Apologizes For Bakker Remarks

By The Associated Press

Evangelist Oral Roberts of Tulsa, Okla., has publicly apologized to the Assemblies of God and evangelist Jimmy Swaggart because of remarks Roberts made early in the scandal involving Jim and Tammy Bakker.

Roberts said in a live appearance on a nationally televised talk show Thursday night that he made his comments before he found out about the salaries the Bakkers received with the PTL network.

Bakker quit his lavish PTL network in March after admitting an extramarital sexual episode. The denomination later ousted Bakker from its clergy for adultery and alleged homosexual acts.

Roberts came to the Bakkers' defense in March when allegations against them were revealed.

Roberts said March 24 that a "very prominent and beloved minister" and "one of the nation's great religious denominations" had formed an "unholy alliance" to destroy Bakker.

Prices

The rally, which built on a late afternoon surge in Wednesday's session, erased the losses sustained in Tuesday's big sell-off.

Elsewhere in the financial markets, the dollar rose slightly against most major currencies, stemming a slide that had heightened investors' concern about inflation.

The dollar's strength infused the bond market with a rare burst of confidence, buoying prices and reducing interest rates on long-term government issues.

Oil futures prices continued to slide, and gold also turned lower, further easing inflation worries.

In other economic news Thursday: —The Federal Reserve Board said the nation's basic money supply fell by $2.5 billion in early August.

—The Investment Company Institute said assets of the nation's 393 money market mutual funds rose $1.86 billion in the latest week to $244.49 billion. The seven-day average yield on money-market mutual funds was unchanged in the week ended Tuesday at 6.00 percent, according to Donoghue's Money Fund Report.

—A government report confirmed that regions of the United States have been growing apart economically in this decade as income growth in booming coastal states has outstripped the rest of the country.

States dependent on farming, energy production and traditional smokestack industries have lagged behind New England and California with their fast-growing service and high-technology industries.

—Officials said economic growth in the 12-nation European Economic Community will be "no more than slight" for the remainder of 1987. Results of recent surveys show economic growth will be too small to prevent a further increase in unemployment, which is already in double digits in most EEC member states, the trading bloc said.

New Sentence

RALEIGH (AP) — A Central Prison inmate who says he is dying of cancer has been sentenced to 105 years in prison — a term added to the 50 years that he had been serving for his escape in March from Rex Hospital.

A jury of seven men and five women found James Lee Ellis, 27, guilty of first-degree kidnapping, second-degree kidnapping, assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury, felonious larceny of an auto, possession of a handgun by a felon and common-law robbery.

"It's too bad I won't get to do it all, sir," Ellis said after Superior Court Judge Wiley F. Bowen issued the sentence Thursday.

Ellis could be 90 years old before he is eligible for parole, according to an estimate by a Wake County assistant district attorney. During the trial, Ellis said he tried to escape from the Raleigh hospital because he did not want to die in prison. Ellis was at Rex for chemotherapy treatment.

"Truth In Preference To Fiction"

No Easy Goals
For ECU's Future

East Carolina University has seen several identifiable "eras" since it opened its doors as East Carolina Teacher Training School. It was at first generally equivalent to today's community colleges with the primary mission of training teachers for the state's rapidly growing public school system.

A new era opened when the school gave its first four-year degree and became East Carolina Teachers' College. There was another era when, during the administration of Dr. John D. Messick, its name was changed to East Carolina College to reflect its broadening educational scope.

The era of Dr. Leo W. Jenkins when the institution launched out in new directions is quite distinct. The name became East Carolina University, the medical school was established and doctorates were authorized for the first time.

Now Chancellor Richard R. Eakin is signaling the beginning of another era — one in which the university develops new doctorates and strives for academic excellence through the establishment of a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. It will be a time when outstanding minority students and faculty will be recruited and new private financial support will be sought.

Eakin said in his talk to the faculty convocation Wednesday that a full time planner will be retained to develop an overall strategic plan for the university's development.

"ECU has gained the respect and good will of the people of North Carolina. Many people beyond the narrow confines of our campus depend upon us for assistance," the chancellor said.

"Let us dedicate ourselves anew to service to the people of North Carolina, whether it be to reduce illiteracy, foster economic development, combat social problems, preserve coastal marine resources, or help with any number of issues that can benefit from our considerable resources."

Eakin sees new masters and doctorate programs developing on the campus. "It is a bold undertaking and contains some risk," Eakin said, "but I believe the risk is well worth taking. It is a risk worth taking because East Carolina University represents the only opportunity for doctoral study for many who would need to commute from eastern North Carolina to complete their studies. It is a risk worth taking because East Carolina University, as the third largest university in North Carolina, possesses the wherewithal to support such programs with a minimum of additional institutional support."

Improving the university will extend to campus beautification with a committee formed to make recommendations.

The chancellor is not proposing easy goals for the university. To build a truly great university will require considerable public and private financial support and indeed involve risks. Already efforts are beginning to obtain planning money for campus library expansion. The library is the heart of any great university and is essential if ECU is to become a venerable research institution. This project alone will involve huge expenditures.

East Carolina University could take the easy road to the future and everyone would be comfortable. But it is not in the institution's history to take the easy road, just as it is not in its history to give up in the face of adversity — a fact the existence of the medical school attests to.

To build something worthwhile — and the University's new goals can be considered consequential — will require much effort from the administration, faculty, students and supporters of the University. We must be prepared to give that effort.

Back To School

It's the time of year school kids dread, whether they're age 5 or age 21.

Back to school is suddenly splattered across every TV screen, every newspaper page, and is plastered in every store window — places that, for the last two months, have meant fun and games for kids, not the impending doom of classrooms.

For college students, back to school time is often a relief, a chance to get away from home again or say goodbye to the hard work of summer.

To teenagers, it's the time to show off new clothes ... or new developments.

But for those whose age is still one digit, it's often a time of horror. Yes, we adults know back-to-school is not really that way, but tell that to an 8-year-old.

That kid won't believe it.

Senate Must Question Bork On Business

What are Robert H. Bork's views on business? That question has been drowned out by the talk about the Supreme Court nominee's positions on abortion, capital punishment and the like. Next month when the Senate examines President Reagan's choice for the high court, however, it also should press Bork for his thoughts on property rights, deregulation, antitrust and on commercial rights in general.

Since at least 1954, the talk about the Supreme Court has focused on individual rights. Little wonder then that nearly everything presented to the public about Bork zeroes in on his opinions on the Bill of Rights and the 14th Amendment. This focus assumes that tomorrow's banner issues will mirror today's. If history teaches anything, it counsels against such parochial thinking.

Look for a future Supreme Court docket to include major political power issues such as conflicts among the three branches of government as well as between the federal government and the states. But disputes concerning Congress' power to regulate commerce also are likely to come up. Thus, the Senate should put a number of business-related questions to Bork, including:

—How broad a reading should the court assign to the Fifth Amendment's "taking" clause?

In principle, when the government takes your property for public use, it is obligated by the Fifth Amendment to compensate you. Except for a handful of cases, during the past several decades that principle has been narrowly applied to allow local officials, state administrators and federal regulators broad powers to promote the general welfare.

In two just-decided California land-use cases, however, the Rehnquist Court has prepared itself to change the Fifth Amendment's course. Thus, the Court, possibly backed by Bork, could revive the long-dashed hopes of those who scream "taking" when a rent control commissioner refuses a rent hike or when a federal agency denies an electric utility a rate increase.

—What are your constitutional views concerning the existence of independent administrative agencies and what responsibility should the federal courts have in overseeing them?

Try as it may, the Reagan administration has been unable to win a total and lasting victory over the regulatory armies. In the future, however, deregulators may find a new ally in the Supreme Court.

The most likely first targets of the deregulators would be the so-called "anti-business" agency, also known as the Federal Trade Commission, followed by the Federal Communications Commission. Both agencies are, some say, "independent" in that they are in certain respects neither answerable to the President nor to Congress. That, at least, is the argument of the deregulators who argue that such agencies are unconstitutional because they stand outside of the executive and legislative structures of government.

Would Bork, the one-time Franklin Delano Roosevelt supporter, join with Justice Antonin Scalia (who has already raised the constitutional argument) and others in junking independent agencies such as the FTC, the FCC and perhaps the Federal Reserve Board?

If the federal judiciary were to pull back somewhat from the regulatory arena, a pro-business administration could significantly weaken the remaining controls over the food, airline, mining and manufacturing industries as well as government control over worker safety.

By one method or another, Bork might let that happen. For example, in a 1987 case, Bork set aside a Federal Energy Regulatory Commission decision denying a rate increase to an electric utility.

Are there grounds other than economic efficiency to justify enforcement of antitrust laws?

When it comes to regulatory issues, economic efficiency is the Bork gospel.

Bork's Chances Looking Better

WASHINGTON — Prospects for Judge Robert Bork are looking up. Before the first of November, barring some bombshell disclosure, the Senate will confirm his nomination to succeed Lewis Powell on the U.S. Supreme Court.

That prediction rests upon two observations. The first is that senators, as individuals, are political animals. The second is that the Senate, as an institution, reverses tradition. In the matter of Bork's nomination, both considerations are coming into play.

When President Reagan sent Bork's name to the Senate early in July, conservatives momentarily were stunned by the sheer ferocity of the attack upon him. Sen. Edward Kennedy, who suffers occasionally from hallucinations, erupted with a wild-eyed statement of opposition. The usual crazies, thus inflamed, roared into action. Overnight Bork became a monster. Set loose to prey upon the high court, he would feed like a bearded Minotaur upon the most virtuous precedents. He would unleash the cops from the restraints of an exclusionary rule. This Grendel of jurisprudence would restore racial segregation and put an end to affirmative action. He would drive pregnant women into back alleys where butchers would perform bloody abortions upon their fair and swollen bodies. And he would do this all by himself. Overnight he would do this.

To this indescribable hooey the far-outs responded with whoops and hollers. The National Organization for Women, which represents very few women but represents them very loudly, leaped to the forefront. Then came People for the American Way, proclaiming by implication that Judge Bork is un-American. Next in the line of march were the wobbles of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Litigation Group joined the motley throng. Common Cause enlisted. A gaggle of liberal law professors, flapping their togas, foresaw the death of stare decisis.

Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware, chairman of the Senate's Judiciary Committee, saw an opportunity and seized it: He announced that he will lead the opposition to Judge Bork. He will function as master of the revels, grand marshal of this harebrained parade.

In the ensuing weeks, a couple of things have happened. Sycophancy carries a price, and Sen. Biden is paying it. His presidential ambitions, if I am not sorely mistaken, are gurgling down the drain. Demonstrating irresponsibility, he put off confirmation hearings until Sept. 15. Demonstrating inconsistency, he repudiated his promise of a year ago to vote for Bork's confirmation if the opportunity should arise. The senator is now widely perceived as a lickspittle lapdog of the lunatic left. He is panting to have his belly scratched, the better to soothe the presidential itch. It has not been the gentleman's finest hour.

Biden's smarmy political performance attracts the attention of his Democratic colleagues. Viewing the parade, they are asking themselves if they truly want to be identified with apostles of hysteria. Does their party wish to be so identified? Is it good politics, now and for the future, to oppose a jurist as eminently qualified as Robert Bork?

During the August recess, sober and thoughtful Democrats in the Senate — there are 25 or 30 of them — are thinking ahead. Suppose a Democrat wins the White House in 1988. And suppose that a Democratic president in 1989 nominates certifiable liberals to succeed such justices as Brennan, Marshall and Blackmun. What precedent are the Democrats setting in attacking Bob Bork? Those who sow the wind tend to reap hurricanes. If Bork should be defeated by a Democratic filibuster, Republicans will remember the episode. They will not remember it kindly.

These are political considerations. Senators also are deeply conscious of the traditions of their venerable institution. In this century the Senate has confirmed 46 Supreme Court nominations. Only nine of the 46 have been held in abeyance for more than 30 days. Taft, Sutherland, Byrnes and Burton were confirmed on the very day their nominations were received. Twenty-five were confirmed in less than three weeks. In times past the Senate has grumbled at controversial nominations — the names of Cardozo, Brandeis, Stone and Thurgood Marshall come at once to mind — but the Senate has confirmed them.

This is the way the system is supposed to work. Presidents are expected to name judges of their own philosophy. Barring proof of manifest lack of qualifications, the Senate is expected to confirm. This is why Bork will make it. He will win by a larger margin than Joe Biden fears.

Strength For Today

Genuine goodness is rather rare in the world. Think for a moment of how many genuinely good people you know. You will doubtless discover the number is small.

"It is true, is it not," some people may enquire, "that a man can be good without being religious." To which the answer is that the good man who is not religious probably got his goodness from people who were religious. The difference between a good man avowedly religious and a good man apparently indifferent to religion is that in the first man's life the source of goodness is revealed, while in the second man's life it is hidden. Goodness is not something which we pull out of the air. We "catch it," as it were, from others. Somewhere in this latter man's life is the unconscious influence of religious forebears, associates or tradition.

Coast Guard Calls Off Pamlico Search

OCRA COKE, N.C. (AP) — Searchers have found part of the wreckage of a single-engine plane in Pamlico Sound, but called off efforts to find the missing pilot, authorities say.

Two women who survived the Tuesday night crash apparently drifted in the Pamlico Sound for 15 hours before being rescued about two miles west of Ocracoke by crewmen and passengers aboard a passing ferry Wednesday afternoon, the Coast Guard said.

Elbert Matthew Prescott, 55, the pilot of the Cherokee 182, remained missing late Thursday and the search for the Grantsboro man was called off, the Coast Guard said.

"If the man had been in the water, we feel confident we would have found him," Coast Guard Lt. Greg Shelton said, noting that searchers had found a cap thought to belong to Prescott. "We feel that we've done everything we can do at this point."

Martha Gaskill, 26, and Anna Gaskill, 15, both of Pamlico County, were in satisfactory condition Thursday at Albemarle Hospital in Elizabeth City.

Jean Wilson, nursing director at the hospital, said the women were tired and exhausted from their ordeal. They were admitted for observation.

Relatives said the Gaskills and Prescott were related by marriage.

The crash occurred during a flight to New Bern from Accomac, Va. Prescott is a former military pilot and business teacher at Craven Community College.

Harry F. O'Neal, captain of the ferry Gov. Edward Hyde, said the ferry spotted the two women Wednesday on its regular run to Swan Quarter. A Greenville man, Chet Emerson, pulled Martha Gaskill to safety aboard the ferry while a Coast Guard boat picked up the teen-ager.

O'Neal said the women told crew members they had been clinging to a portion of the aircraft wreckage during the night. He said no sign of wreckage was seen when the ferry arrived.

"The fact that they (the ferry) came upon them is a godsend," said Lt. Stephen D. Austin, duty officer at the Coast Guard Rescue Coordination center in Portsmouth, Va.

State Must Replace Younger Bus Drivers Before Jan. 1 Deadline

By SUSAN PRICE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina schools will have to replace about 4,500 teen-age school bus drivers — nearly a third of its workforce — by January because the U.S. Department of Labor has refused to renew an exemption allowing the teen-agers to drive.

"Regrettably, the accident experience of school bus drivers under 18 years of age in North Carolina does not compare favorably with that of adult school bus drivers, and there were several fatalities attributed to the student driver program during the 1985-86 school year," Secretary of Labor William Brock said in a letter to Gov. Jim Martin explaining his department's decision.

If the state can show by Nov. 30 that the safety record of 16- and 17-year-old drivers has improved in 1986-87, the Jan. 1 deadline could be extended, Bennett's letter said.

State officials Thursday defended the younger drivers and vowed to continue pressing to have the deadline extended.

"We feel that our 16-year-old drivers that have been certified to drive have a solid driving record," said Martin spokeswoman Karen Rotterman. She said Martin "would be the last person to jeopardize the students."

"We feel like we're in pretty good shape to start school, but our next critical stage is going to be December 31 unless we can replace these 17-year-olds with (drivers) 18 and above," said Norfleet Gardner, state school bus transportation director.

Since 1967, North Carolina has applied for and received annual exemptions from the Fair Labor Standards Act to allow drivers under age 18, Gardner said. But the Labor Department notified the state this week that it would issue an exemption only through Dec. 31, 1987 and with a restriction allowing the use only of drivers who had been employed last year.

On Thursday, the department agreed verbally to ease that restriction to allow the state to hire 16- and 17-year-old drivers who were trained and hired before Aug. 31, 1987, said Ms. Rotterman.

The waiver also bars the hiring of teen-age drivers with traffic citations or those who have been involved in an accident in which they were at fault.

Because of the short notice, Brock agreed to grant the state an exemption until Dec. 31.

Rural school systems said they will have difficulty replacing teen-age drivers with adults.

Jim McCanless, transportation director for Buncombe County schools, said his county will face a major problem in January if it has to replace all 65 of the teen-agers who drive high school buses in the county. He said he hadn't read the ruling.

"Replacing 65 drivers would be a major major problem. We have a difficult time finding enough adult drivers to drive our elementary buses," McCanless said. "Trying to find 65 adults to drive at our high schools where the length of work time is approximately 2-2½ hours and our starting salary is $4.23 an hour, you can see ... You're not going to go out and hire adult drivers for that. It's just not going to happen."

Rodney Bullock, transportation director for Pitt County schools in Greenville, said he would have to hire 60 to 80 new bus drivers. And he doesn't think it's going to be easy.

"It's hard to recruit drivers when you're not offering any kind of benefit at all other than hourly wage," Bullock said. "You're asking them to get up at inconvenient times ... they're not qualified for any benefits."

"In addition, buses must be parked at schools during the day, so the adult drivers must use their own cars to drive from home to schools, then drive back home, then come back in the afternoons ... I just see a lot of problems with it," Bullock said.

"We'll have our work cut out for us the next four months," he said. "You talk about offering somebody $200 or $300 a month to drive a vehicle, it's going to be a challenge."

North Carolina was put on notice last year that it might lose its exemption, Gardner said.

The action taken by the state included a law enacted by the General Assembly to require a person to be 17 years old before they could be hired as a school bus driver.

UNC Forum To Attract 10 Hopefuls

By The Associated Press

At least 10 presidential hopefuls are expected in Chapel Hill next month for the first forum of the 1988 presidential campaign devoted to a single issue, a University of North Carolina official says.

The Sept. 11 forum will focus on education issues, Donald J. Stedman, vice president for academic affairs of the 16-campus UNC system, said Thursday. Gov. Jim Martin and former Gov. Jim Hunt will be moderators.

The governors of 15 Southern states and other leaders from across the region have been invited.

"Education has always been a high-agenda item, particularly in the South where some governors have made their careers on it," Stedman said. "So we thought it would be good to see what the candidates for president think about it."

By focusing on a single topic for an extended period, the forum will require the candidates to do more than make general statements of support for education, he said.

"We've read some position papers from the candidates, and there are some starkly different points of view among them ... not only on the federal role in education, but how they would go about financing schools, student aid, minority access, changing demographics, non-English-speaking students," he said. "There's just a whole raft of things."

Aside from the voters' growing interest in education, the importance of Super Tuesday is one reason why so many candidates have agreed to participate in the forum, Stedman said. Fourteen Southern states will hold primaries on the same day in March 1988.

The forum will be broadcast live by the UNC Center for Public Television network and made available to other public broadcasting stations networks across the nation.

Stations in Iowa and New Hampshire, where the first delegates to the Republican and Democratic conventions will be chosen next winter, will rebroadcast the forum, Stedman said.

Democrats who have agreed to participate include former Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Paul Simon, both of Illinois.

Republican hopefuls expected to attend are former Gov. Pete du Pont of Delaware, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and former Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada.

Martin and Hunt invited the candidates. Vice President George Bush, who generally has avoided forums and debates this year, declined to attend, as did Republican Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas and the Rev. Pat Robertson, a Republican. Another GOP hopeful, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, has not decided, Stedman said.

The forum, in the Dean Smith Center on the UNC-Chapel Hill campus, will be open to the public and free of charge.

Stedman said the presidential hopefuls and about 450 Southern politicians, educators and business leaders had been invited to a banquet the night of Sept. 10 at the Morehead Planetarium at UNC, where Education Secretary William Bennett and Ernest Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, will speak.

The next day's activities will get under way at 9:30 a.m. with the 90-minute Democratic forum, moderated by Hunt. The Republican session will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The first hour of both parts will consist of questions from Hunt or Martin.

Lung Screening

RALEIGH (AP) — Screening people older than 65 for lung cancer might be a worthwhile way to save lives, a Duke University study suggests.

The study, reported in today's issue of the weekly Journal of the American Medical Association, urged doctors to take a closer look at whether the elderly would benefit more from screening than other groups in the general population. The American Cancer Society does not recommend lung cancer screening for any group.

Two Duke medical doctors, Mark A. O'Rourke and John R. Feussner, looked at the records of 22,874 lung cancer patients from 22 hospitals designated as comprehensive cancer centers by the National Cancer Institute. The researchers found that three-quarters of the lung cancer cases occurred in patients 55 or older and about half occurred in those over 65.

Overdoses

DURHAM (AP) — A particularly potent supply of heroin — possibly twice as strong as that typically found in Durham — led to a rash of overdoses and prompted police to issue warnings to drug users throughout the city.

At least a dozen people became sick from the heroin, although no one was killed, authorities said.

"We have heroin on the street that is of a high quality, or high grade, and they need to be careful," said Sgt. Grant M. Christy of the Durham Police Department's organized crime division. "We think we could be seeing more cases. We're trying to prevent death."

Bernard Kingsley, marketing director of Durham County General Hospital, said ambulance crews treated 12 people between 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Thursday. Some went to Durham County General, others went to Duke and at least one refused to go to hospital, he said.

Explosion

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-one people, including several children, were treated at a hospital for respiratory problems after an explosion in the cooling system at Coble Dairy Products sent ammonia gas drifting into the air.

Three company workers were admitted to Lexington Memorial Hospital Thursday and were listed in stable condition. Eighteen other people who had inhaled the gas were treated at the hospital and released, a spokesman for the hospital said.

The spokesman said that the gas can cause shortness of breath and a burning sensation in the upper respiratory area. The spokesman did not know how many of the people released were Coble employees.

Jack L. Power, a spokesman for the company, said that an explosion blew the cap off a compressor, allowing liquid ammonia to leak and vaporize. The compressor is one of several used to refrigerate milk and ice cream at the plant, Power said.

Eagle Saved

RALEIGH (AP) — A bald eagle found by a fisherman on Jordan Lake Sunday was starving, but it probably will survive its ordeal, its caretaker said.

"It was very weak and debilitated when it came into the hospital," said Keven Flammer, the director of the avian program at North Carolina State University's veterinary school. "We don't know exactly why the bird ended up in a state of starvation, which is why he ended up in Jordan Lake."

The bird is now in stable condition and expected to live, Flammer said. It had not been shot, X-rays showed no broken bones, and tests for pesticide and other poisoning were negative, he said. Tests for bacterial infection, although inconclusive, have so far been negative.

The eagle was found by David W. Stanley, a technician at Duke Medical Center, who was fishing on the lake's north side when he found the young eagle struggling in the water.

Dead Puppies

DANBURY, N.C. (AP) — Stokes County animal shelter attendant Charles Fulk has been fired and his supervisor demoted following charges by a couple that Fulk killed seven sick puppies by hitting them on the head with a hoe handle, officials said Thursday.

Fulk said last week he was putting the animals out of their misery.

Veteran supervisor Roscoe Young was demoted Thursday to animal control officer, said Stokes County Manager Jerry Rothrock.

Rothrock said the new animal control supervisor will draw up a written standard operating procedure for euthanasia which will prevent a repeat of such an incident.

Arson Charge

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Charlotte fire investigators have charged the manager of an uptown shoe store with setting fire to the store last Saturday.

Gregory Alan Holder, 40, was charged with burning a building used for trade and faces a maximum 30-year prison sentence if convicted, said Terry Lacy of the Charlotte Fire Investigation Task Force. The two-alarm blaze caused an estimated $40,000 damage to two stores, including Butler's shoes, fire officials said.

Waste Compact May Accept Deadline

RALEIGH (AP) — Seven Southeastern states that want North Carolina to host a regional waste facility for low-level radioactive waste probably will accept a new North Carolina-imposed deadline for deciding whether to stay in the compact, one of the state's compact representatives says.

"I don't anticipate any major problem" persuading the other states to decide within 30 days after a North Carolina facility opens in 1993, "but you never know," William H. Briner told the Governor's Waste Management Board Thursday.

"If we can't get this through by the appointed time and North Carolina withdraws, it will be back to the drawing board for the whole Southeast Compact," said Briner, one of North Carolina's two representatives on the Southeast Compact Commission. "It's not a very attractive alternative that they would be faced with."

In one of its last actions before adjourning last week, the General Assembly approved the 30-day deadline, and gave the other states until the end of 1988 to adopt the provision.

The compact states, including

North Carolina, previously had agreed to give the other seven members up to five years after the opening of the North Carolina facility to back out.

That provision enraged compact foes. Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, who sponsored the amendment to move up the deadline, said North Carolina was "being had."

Southeastern Textile Employment Climbs

ATLANTA (AP) — The U.S. Labor Department said textile employment in the Southeast continued to climb in the second quarter, with an average of 505,600 employed in the eight-state region.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics in Atlanta said Thursday the employment was up 5,400 from the first quarter and 14,200 from the same quarter last year.

The agency said Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina had increases, and that textile employment remained stable in Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee.

States, second quarter employment, and increase were: Alabama, 38,500, up 400; Florida, 2,700, up 100; Georgia, 106,100, up 1,100; Kentucky, 5,800, unchanged; Mississippi, 6,200, up 100; North Carolina, 218,400; up

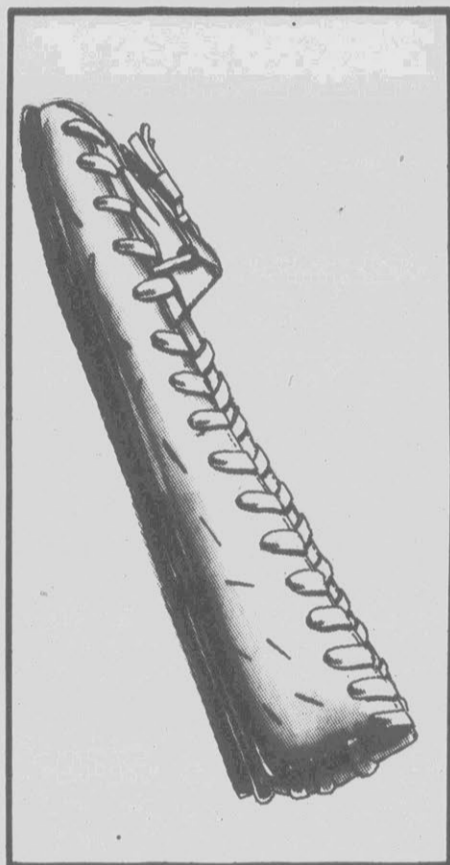

3,100; South Carolina, 104,200, up 600; and Tennessee, 23,800, up 100.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said textile production workers averaged 42.1 hours of work per week for the quarter, an increase of .1 hour from the first quarter and 1.1 hours from the second quarter last year.

Tobacco Lobbyists Feuding

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A simmering feud between the nation's cigarette manufacturers has led Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. to threaten that it will pull out of the Tobacco Institute, the industry's national lobbying group, the Winston-Salem Journal reported today.

The newspaper said three unnamed sources close to the industry confirmed independently that the company, which is based in Louisville, Ky., has expressed its intention to withdraw support from the institute.

The sources said that the threat of a pullout was prompted by recent strains between Brown & Williamson and its larger rivals, Philip Morris USA and the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., the newspaper said.

Officials of Brown & Williamson declined to discuss the company's relations with the Tobacco Institute. And a spokesman for the institute, Jim Goss, said only, "We have no word of a pullout by Brown & Williamson."

The institute, which is based in Washington, relies on tobacco-company subsidies roughly in proportion to the companies' share of the domestic market. According to the Maxwell Report on the market share for cigarette companies, Brown & Williamson had an 11.3 percent share of the domestic market in the second quarter of 1987, trailing Philip Morris's 37.2 percent and R.J. Reynolds' 32.2 percent.

Blacks Challenge Judicial Selections

RALEIGH (AP) — The leader of a black lawyers' group says Gov. Jim Martin is using a closed system for judicial appointments that keeps blacks off the bench, but Martin aides say the governor has encouraged his staff to include blacks and women in lists of possible appointees.

"There are many black attorneys who would have been excellent judges, but they were either overlooked or not considered at all," Irving Joyner, president of the North Carolina Association of Black Lawyers, said in a letter to Martin this week. "This is a sad reminder that black attorneys continue to be held in low esteem by our elected officials." Joyner wrote his letter after Martin announced Monday he was appointing Sam Currin and Marvin Gray, both whites, to special Superior Court judgeships created this year by the Legislature. Their terms will expire in 1990.

But Joyner said his complaints went beyond the two new special judgeships.

"I'm not aware of him considering any blacks for any Superior Court judgeships," Joyner said. "Part of the problem is nobody knew he was considering anybody. He has utilized a closed-mouth process and hasn't advertised candidacies or sought recommendations of people outside his office. ... It's the old-boy network at work." Jim Trotter, Martin's general counsel, disputed Joyner's contention, saying the governor always urged his staff to include blacks and women in the lists of prospective judicial appointees.

But Trotter acknowledged Martin had not appointed a black Superior Court judge, though he said a black attorney from Durham was being considered for an appointment.

"My feeling about Irving Joyner is maybe he hasn't been aware of everything in the detail that one would have expected when he made his statements," Trotter said. "I wish he had called me on the phone and discussed it first ... but it's a free country."

Special judges are appointed by the governor and serve wherever needed, unlike regular judges, who are elected. When a regular Superior Court judgeship becomes vacant, the governor chooses someone to serve until the seat is up for election. Trotter said to his knowledge, Martin has not filled more than one of those judgeships.

Currently, there are eight special Superior Court judges. Their terms were to expire June 30, but the Legislature continued them until Dec. 31, 1988, when the positions will be abolished under a law passed this year. Martin has reappointed three of the incumbents.

The law also created nine regular Superior Court judgeships in predominantly black areas in hopes of increasing the number of elected black judges.

AIDS-Conscious Dentists Turn To Gloves, Face Masks

WILMINGTON (AP) — Dr. Chris Blake, a Wilmington dentist, isn't looking forward to the day an AIDS victim asks to sit in his chair, but he knows how he'll answer.

"It's too big a risk when you have a family at home to think about," he said. "If they told me they had AIDS I think I would most likely refer them to a hospital clinic like Chapel Hill's — not only for my safety but for theirs."

In the meantime, Blake isn't taking any chances. He wears rubber gloves and protective glasses when he's with any patient and a face mask when he thinks it's necessary.

Most other local dentists say they are taking the same precautions, hoping to shield themselves from blood and saliva that could contain the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus. And while few say they would refuse to treat an AIDS victim, most admit they're taking a harder look at some patients.

Dr. Clifford Horton, for one, is wearing rubber gloves more often, "but I only do it when I have someone who appears suspicious."

Homosexual and bisexual men, hemophiliacs and intravenous drug users are the groups most often associated with AIDS.

Dr. Jerry Partrick, an oral surgeon, said he, too, instinctively sizes up patients when they come into his office, more consciously than he did prior to the era of AIDS and severe forms of hepatitis.

"Being a doctor is a little like being a gambler," he said of the risk. "We react to the literature like everybody else."

Several dentists, including Partrick, said their concern stems in part from the case of a Manhattan dentist who contracted AIDS, supposedly through his work. By his own admission, the stricken dentist often worked without gloves, sometimes with open wounds on his hands.

Dr. C.Q. Cherry III, an oral surgeon and the immediate past president of the Wilmington Tri-County Dental Society, said that in the past year every dentist he knows has started wearing gloves. Cherry himself has treated three AIDS victims.

"What everybody is doing nowadays is pretending like everybody has AIDS," he said. "They're not trying to guess who has it and who doesn't."

But wearing gloves is not as simple as it sounds, some dentists note. Certain procedures, especially crown-and-bridge restorations, are very difficult to perform in gloves because of the loss of feeling at the tips of each finger. Several dentists said it's not unusual for an instrument to tangle with a glove and puncture it.

"I find it very difficult to get acclimated to gloves," said Dr. Laris Milligan, who wears them on a case-by-case basis.

Dr. Ralph Barden, a dentist for 36 years, now wears gloves during all procedures, but admits, "It's a matter of cussing and getting used to it."

While dentists and other health care workers have been getting used to gloves, rubber-glove salesmen say they've been stretched to the limit by the demand.

Orders from dentists alone have more than tripled in the last month or two, said Ray Stephenson, a salesman for Thompson Dental Co. in Raleigh. "There are gloves we cannot even get, the orders are so backlogged," he said.

Bill Lane, a vice president for Wilmington-based Tar Heel Physician's Supply, said a "phenomenal" increase in orders for all types of rubber gloves is being fueled by first-time buyers like dentists and by greater usage at hospitals.

"Where they'd once buy a box a year, now, in some cases, it's a box a week," he said.

Emergency

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A Piedmont Airlines flight from Norfolk, Va., had to make an emergency landing at Syracuse Hancock International Airport after a light came on in the ship's cockpit indicating problems with the landing gear.

The Volker jet carrying 44 passengers landed without problem Thursday after circling the airport four times, said Syracuse Aviation Commissioner Ralph Napolitano.

Napolitano said fire and emergency crews were on standby as the plane landed shortly before 3 p.m.

Napolitano said the flight was headed to Rochester. Those passengers who needed to continue on were bused there, he said.

Pilot Says Jet's Flaps Were Down

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — A pilot's eyewitness account contradicts indications from the "black box" recorders aboard Northwest Flight 255 that the wing flaps had not been set for takeoff before the crash, investigators said.

The co-pilot of another Northwest plane awaiting takeoff and watching Flight 255 "was very positive" that the flaps were down, or in the proper position, John Lauber, a National Transportation Safety Board member, said Thursday.

The board said earlier that preliminary information from the flight data recorder indicates that the flaps and slats, which give an aircraft crucial lift, were not in position when the plane crashed Sunday, killing up to 158 people.

In addition, investigators said cockpit voice recorder tapes of the pilot and co-pilot conducting a pre-takeoff check contain no mention of the wing flaps and slats.

The tapes also show no sign of a warning that should have sounded if the flaps and slats were out of position, officials said.

Lauber said the warning should have occurred when the pilot accelerated for takeoff and would have given the crew time to abort the flight.

He said transcripts of conversations between the control tower and the cockpit showed that controllers interrupted the crew's mandatory oral check of flight systems.

The eyewitness account came from one of four pilots watching the McDonnell-Douglas MD-80 take off, Lauber said. All four "were in a good vantage point to see the aircraft," although he noted it occurred at dusk.

The three other pilots either didn't notice that the flaps were extended for takeoff or didn't see anything that looked unusual, Lauber said.

Lauber did not name the witness who contradicted the black box evidence.

NTSB officials stressed that no final determination has been made about the cause of the crash, and that weather conditions, aircraft weight, cargo distribution and other factors could have contributed.

Court Backs Walsh Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court has given the independent counsel investigating the Iran-Contra affair a green light to proceed, ruling that he is operating under a valid Justice Department regulation.

In its ruling Thursday, the U.S. Court of Appeals rejected an argument by Lt. Col. Oliver L. North that the March 5 regulation authorizing independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh's work was invalid.

However, the court did not rule on the claim by the fired National Security Council aide that the independent counsel provision of the Ethics in Government Act is unconstitutional, saying that question needn't be decided in this case.

In a 31-page opinion, the court said Walsh and his associate counsel derive "the necessary legal authority from the attorney general's regulation of March 5, 1987, regardless of whether they also have this authority pursuant to their appointments under the Ethics Act."

The ruling upholds a decision last month by U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson, who also did not rule on the constitutionality of the independent counsel provision.

It also upholds the district court's order holding North in contempt for failing to comply with a subpoena issued by the grand jury. The subpoena reportedly concerns a sample of North's handwriting, which he has refused to provide.

Swiss Accounts Will Be Opened

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Switzerland's supreme court Thursday ruled that records of Swiss bank accounts used by participants in the Iran-contra affair may be handed over to U.S. investigators.

The decision, reached after a two-hour hearing, meant that accounts controlled by former lieutenant general Richard V. Secord; his business partner, Iranian-born businessman Albert A. Hakim; and arms dealer Manucher Ghorbanifar, could be opened for inspection by U.S. Justice Department authorities. The three had been named in requests made by the Justice Department to Swiss authorities late last year and early in 1987, but opening of their accounts was delayed when they initiated the appeals procedure, which ended Thursday.

Independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh said in a statement in Washington that he was "pleased" that the Swiss court had "reaffirmed our right ... to receive the evidence located in Switzerland."

Rich Get Richer, Poor Get Poorer

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The poor regions of the United States became poorer in the 1980s while the rich regions got richer, a reversal of a 50-year trend of narrowing income differences, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

The decline in the manufacturing, farm and energy sectors of the economy was generally blamed for lower-than-average increases in personal income in the Great Lakes, Southwestern, Rocky Mountain and Far Western regions from 1979 to 1986.

In New England and the Mideast, on the other hand, such fast-growing service industries as banking and health, along with an upturn in defense and high technology, led to a sharp rise in personal income.

New England ranked as the highest-income part of the nation last year, rising from fourth place seven years ago. The Southeast remained the poorest of the eight regions studied by the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis.

The District of Columbia had the second-highest income levels of any jurisdiction in the nation after Connecticut, with per capita personal income at 132 percent of the national average, the report said. In 1986, average per capita income for District residents was $19,397, compared with the national average of $14,641. Incomes in the District rose at an 8 percent annual rate from 1979 to 1986.

"It is mainly the fact that the District does not have the typical industrial base," said Rudolph E. DePass, a regional economist with the BEA. "Manufacturing and durables are almost nil. It is a tourist area, and that brings in a lot of income. Government is very heavily represented (along with) business services. Many are indirectly related to government, and there are a lot of lawyers."

Regionally, the Commerce figures showed that income differences between parts of the country narrowed steadily from 1929 to 1979. In 1929, per capita income in the richest region, the Mideast, was 138 percent of the national average. Income in the poorest, the Southeast, was 53 percent of the national average.

In 1979, the richest region, the Far West, was only 114 percent above the national average while the poorest, the Southeast, was 85 percent of the average.

Hart To Run?

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gary Hart may re-enter the race for the presidency, said his former campaign manager, and the Colorado Democrat refused today to confirm or deny that he is considering renewing his bid for the White House.

"I think he's likely to get back in the presidential race in the next 30 to 60 days," former campaign manager William Dixon said in an interview Thursday.

Hart, who was vacationing in Ireland, told Irish Radio today he was cutting his holiday short and flying home because of the reports, the network said.

"I will not confirm or deny the claim," Hart said.

ABRAM-IN-EGYPT

AS A STRANGER IN EGYPT, ABRAM'S GREATEST FEAR HAS BEEN THAT THE EGYPTIANS WILL SEE SARAI'S GREAT BEAUTY AND DESIRE TO KEEP HER, EVEN IF IT MAY MEAN KILLING HIM, NOW....

...AS THE EGYPTIAN MERCHANTS LEAVE HIS CAMP, HAVING SEEN SARAI....

...HE HOPES THAT HIS SUBTERFUGE OF CALLING SARAI HIS SISTER WILL AT LEAST SAVE HIS LIFE!

...THE EGYPTIAN MERCHANTS, AFTER LEAVING ABRAM'S ENCAMPMENT, COME UPON SOME PRINCES RETURNING FROM A HUNT....

O SHINING PRINCES, LOOK UPON OUR WARES!

WE HAVE NO TIME TO VIEW CHEAP BAUBLES!

THAT IS NOT WHAT THE GREAT BEAUTY FROM THE EAST CALLED THEM!

I THINK WE SHOULD GO AND SEE THIS EASTERN BEAUTY WITH OUR OWN EYES!

MAY THE GOD'S WITHER MY TONGUE IF ALL I SAY IS NOT TRUE!

GREAT BEAUTY FROM THE EAST?! THESE WORDS GIVE PAUSE TO THE PRINCES! AND FURTHER WORDS NOW EXCITE THEIR CURIOSITY— ONLY A SHORT RIDE FROM WHERE THEY NOW STAND AVER THE MERCHANTS— SUCH BEAUTY THE EYE HAS NEVER BEFORE BEHELD, IN THE ENTIRE LAND....

Next Week
THE EYE OF A BEHOLDER!

Roberts Case

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The United Methodist judicial council will consider this fall a case bearing on the status of TV evangelist Oral Roberts in the denomination.

The denomination's Oklahoma conference asked the council to rule on the standing of a "local elder," a category of ministry no longer in existence, but in which the Tulsa, Okla., evangelist was recognized in 1968.

Roberts has never had full United Methodist clergy status.

Scholarships Keep Them Together

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Procter & Gamble Co. played a part in the introduction of two Greenville students, and through scholarships, the company will keep the two together through college.

Larisa Marie Perry and Mary Jett Parsley have been awarded P&G Scholarships, worth a combined $22,000, to attend Duke University. However, the two girls have been attending the same school since nursery school, thanks in part to their fathers' employment with P&G.

"Jett and I have been friends since our fathers both worked at the Procter & Gamble plant in Jackson, Tenn.," Miss Perry said. "We went to nursery school together in Tennessee, and our families both moved to Greenville within months of each other."

"Jett is one of my dearest and closest friends," she added. "We have gone to school together, run on the Rose cross country team together and taken dancing lessons together."

"I find it interesting that we are both recipients of the P&G Scholarships and that we will both be freshmen at Duke University," Miss Perry said.

The Procter & Gamble Fund sponsors 100 college scholarships each year for eligible children of employees of the Procter & Gamble Company and its U.S. subsidiaries. Scholarships are awarded through an annual competition administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Winners are chosen on the basis of test scores, academic record, leadership and significant extracurricular accomplishments. Each Procter & Gamble Scholarship is a renewable award, covering up to four years of full-time undergraduate study.

Miss Parsley is the daughter of James M.A. Parsley and Carolyn Cutchin Parsley. She hopes to major in English at Duke, leading to a career as a teacher or writer.

Miss Perry, the daughter of John and Beverly Perry, was accepted into Duke University's School of Engineering under the school's early decision plan. "I am considering a career in biomedical, architectural or mechanical engineering," she said.

The two girls began their education in nursery school together and attended the same kindergarten. After both of their fathers were transferred to Greenville, they attended different elementary schools, but took dancing lessons from Ramona VanNortwick together. They were reunited at Greenville Middle School and have stayed together since.

"Lara used to get me in trouble in nursery school all the time," Miss Parsley said. "She used to make me stay up during nap time to talk. I got in trouble and she didn't."

"I also remember drawing pictures of rainbows and we would have people sliding down them and gold at the end," she said.

"We used to have contests about who could grow their hair the longest," Miss Perry said. "We have been jealous of each other off and on."

Like when Miss Perry won third place in the kindergarten Science Fair. "Her project was on bread molds," Miss Parsley said. "I was so jealous."

Miss Parsley was editor of Insights, Rose High's literary magazine, and has had her poetry published in The Daily Reflector, Pitt Pens and Insights. She attended the University of Virginia's Young Writer's Workshop and received first place in the literary category in the Rose History Day competition.

She was a member of the Rose track and cross country teams.

At Rose, Miss Parsley was vice president of the Haskett chapter of the National Honor Society and of the Spanish Honor Society and was a marshal. She was secretary of the Science Club and president of the Council for Christ. Her other memberships at Rose included the Science Club, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Spanish Club, International Club, Latin Club, and Students Against Drunk Driving.

She was a Morehead Scholarship nominee and attended Governor's School in natural science. She also participated in Pitt County CloseUp and attended the East Carolina University Gifted and Talented Science Camp. She participated in the Pitt County Junior Miss Scholarship Program and won the Scholastic Achievement Award for group B. She is listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

A member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, she is an acolyte, a Bible School and Sunday School teacher and a member of a Bible study group.

Miss Perry has a strong interest in drama. She was a member of the International Thespian Society and the Rose High Thespians and the Rose Show Choir. During her high school years, she participated in six productions, acted in four and directed one production. She served as clerk and vice president of the Rose High Drama Club.

She was a member of the Rose Academic Decathlon team which won the state competition and participated in the national event.

She was president of the International Club and was a member of the Latin Club. She participated in Summer Ventures in Science and Mathematics.

Her hobbies are sailing, tap and jazz dancing and astrology.

Miss Perry attributed the long friendship to "some kind of magic." She said she is looking forward to doing things with Miss Parsley at Duke.

"I am just grateful that we both got the scholarship," she said.

Fad Fashion Buying Can Prove Costly

By The Associated Press

A "fad" is a style that many people are interested in — for a short time.

It's a passing fashion and among the men's fashions that have passed that way are the Nehru jacket and bell bottom trousers.

Fad fashion buying, says a clothing executive, can prove costly and result in a closet full of outdated clothing.

"The Nehru suit was a one-year fad and the leisure suit lasted a bit longer," says Marvin A. Blumenfeld, president of April-Marcus, a retailing consulting firm, "but men who wanted to be 'in' were stuck with them when they fell out of favor."

Blumenfeld recommends the conservative, traditional approach.

For business, for example, he advises men to wear cuts like the Ivy League suit with natural, unpadding jackets. He also advises single-breasted instead of double-breasted suits.

Conservative clothes, Blumenfeld says, can be used on more occasions than "flashy" garments.

"If you buy a navy blue or gray pair of trousers," he says, "you can wear it for both formal and informal occasions. However, if you buy a plaid or loud color pair, your choices will be limited to some informal occasions."

Many fad items, he says, are gifts from the female in a male's life. Women are more daring in their dress, wear brighter colors, and usually are less conservative than men are, he says.

"However, when they're buying for a man," says Blumenfeld, "they should consider clothing that makes him comfortable and will last longer than a season or two."

Largest 'Ear' Is Listening To Outer Space

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — The world's largest "ear" is listening for signs of life in outer space.

Operating 24 hours a day near Arecibo, Puerto Rico, the 25-acre large radio telescope reflector dish receives data from outer space at the rate of 600 book pages per second. The Harris system of super minicomputers, which help map galaxies, stars and pulsars and our own galaxy, is on the alert for, among other things, extraterrestrial life.

Observation of celestial radio sources is very difficult because they are so faint. The earth intercepts only a few watts of power from these sources. The Harris system, using specially designed super-microchips, takes 5 to 10 millionths of a second to respond to any incoming data.

Women Still Do Housecleaning

The "woman of the 80's" may not be as liberated as we might think. The Johnson Wax Survey on the State of the American Home reveals women spend nearly three times as many hours caring for the home as anyone else in the household.

Although 60 percent of American women are employed outside the home, the survey results show the female head-of-household spends an average of 11.2 hours per week attending to household tasks. By comparison, male heads-of-household spend an average of 3.9 hours, daughters under age 18 spend 2.7 hours and sons under 18 spend two hours per week on home care.

"Traditional gender roles are intact in most homes," said Harald A. Suess, vice-president and general manager — home care for Johnson Wax, presenting survey results. "Women still perform most household tasks ... men still take out the trash, make home repairs and do yardwork."

The survey shows that non-working women spend about seven more hours on home care each week than do their working counterparts. Single female heads-of-household, more than two-thirds of whom work outside the home, spend less time caring for the home than their married counterparts.

Sons and daughters are only minimally involved in home care. Those under 18 are responsible for less than a third of total hours spent on household tasks. Daughters, on the average, do more home chores than sons. Like their fathers, sons are most often responsible for outdoor work.

"Despite the women's movement, gender roles have been slow to change in the home," says Dr. Janice Hogan, chair of the Family Economics and Home Management Section of the American Home Economics Association. She believes gender roles that are established earlier in life linger. "When sons aren't exposed to home care tasks, I think it's going to be more difficult for them to see that it's the grown man's role to be a partner and shareholder in household work."

Homemaker's Haven

Of the 1,400 households polled, 39 percent say that they spend less time cleaning than they did two years ago. Nearly half say they spend less time now than five years ago.

The survey indicates that Americans want their homes to be clean for the comfort factor. But, Suess points out, they don't want to spend leisure time taking care of it. 87 percent of those polled say that if a product makes cleaning easier, it is worth the extra cost."

Almost 20 percent of those surveyed have used outside cleaning help in the past year. Of those who use outside help, 22 percent to once a week or more and 60 percent employ help once a month or less. People 55 and older are more likely to employ outside cleaning help than are younger people.

Children should spend time with family, be encouraged to save money and help out around the home, hundreds of parents said when polled about their families.

Seventy-nine percent of survey respondents said they believe strongly that having children perform chores increases their sense of responsibility. But, in reality, sons and daughters under age 17 spend between two and three hours per week on housework, compared to 11 hours spent by their mothers.

Sons and daughters may be assuming less responsibility because their parents, particularly their mothers, have less time to teach them about home care, says Dr. Hogan. "If you ask children to perform home chores, it takes support, coaching and reward," she says. "Many women who work outside the home think it is simply more efficient to do it all themselves."

An overwhelming 90 percent of respondents strongly agree that it is important for children to spend time with their family. The survey reveals that family time is most frequently spent eating together, discussing the child's day and talking about friends. Only one-third of those polled say they help their children with schoolwork and read with their child at least once a day.

"I would suggest that, since families feel strongly that children should spend time with their family, some of that time should be spent together working together in the home," says

Dr. Hogan. "That could be a time for sharing a time for talking, as well as a time for teaching children the importance of assuming responsibility for home care."

According to the survey, parents are most concerned about children acquiring a strong sense of morals, spending quality time with children, the quality of a child's education, and good behavior/not getting into trouble.

They are least concerned about sexual preferences, nuclear war/world security and paying for college education.

Mother Frowns On Groom Short Of Height, Funds

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The man I love has asked me to marry him and I accepted because I love him with all my heart and want to spend the rest of my life with him. I am 22 and "Sammy" is 24.

My problem is my mother. She hates him for three reasons: He's short, he's poor and he's Jewish. My mother said she would rather see me stay an old maid all my life than married to Sammy. I know it's only natural for a mother to think that no man is good enough for her daughter, but I think she's being unreasonable. I am an only child and all my mother has. My father, who was short and poor, but not Jewish, left her when I was a child.

Abby, Sammy is a good person, but his family is dirt poor. He is working two jobs and putting himself through trade school. I have a good job and know we can make it together. What should I do? — SAMMY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: If you love him, marry him. When your mother sees how happy you are, perhaps she'll mellow. And if she doesn't, it will be her loss, not yours.

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago I was in an automobile accident and spent six days in the hospital. I suffered a broken jaw and everything I ate had to be liquified, so I lost 18 pounds. I was also in a lot of pain.

My greatest pain, however, was the mental anguish caused by the failure of my two dearest friends (husband and wife) to respond in any way. They never came to see me in the hospital — or at home — never sent flowers, a card, not even a phone call. I am deeply hurt. We've been close friends for 12 years and I always considered them "family." He was the only one in my wedding party who wasn't a blood relative.

I want to write to them and tell them how hurt and disappointed in them I am. My wife says I will lose two friends if I do. But if I don't, I'm afraid I will always secretly carry a grudge.

What do you think I should do? — DEBATING INN.J.

DEAR DEBATING: Write a long letter, expressing your feelings of anger, disappointment and hurt — and don't pull any punches. Then, tear it up. The relief of getting it out of your system will do wonders for you. And the next time you see these friends, at the appropriate time, calmly tell them that following your accident you kept wondering why you hadn't heard from them. Then, sit back and listen.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for your letter in The Arizona Republic stating the number of people who are paralyzed from diving into shallow water. Many such tragedies could be prevented if more people knew how important it is to check the depth of the water in lakes, rivers and swimming pools before diving in.

An organization here in Arizona started a campaign to prevent such accidents. Its slogan is: "Feet First, First Time."

I have a 14-year-old son, and from the time he was very small, we told him that if his clothing should ever catch fire, he should "Stop, drop and roll!" He's heard it so often, I am sure he will remember it and act on it should his clothing catch fire.

Please print "Feet First, First Time" for all people to remember before they dive. Thank you. — HOLLY WHITWORTH, RIVIERA, ARIZ.

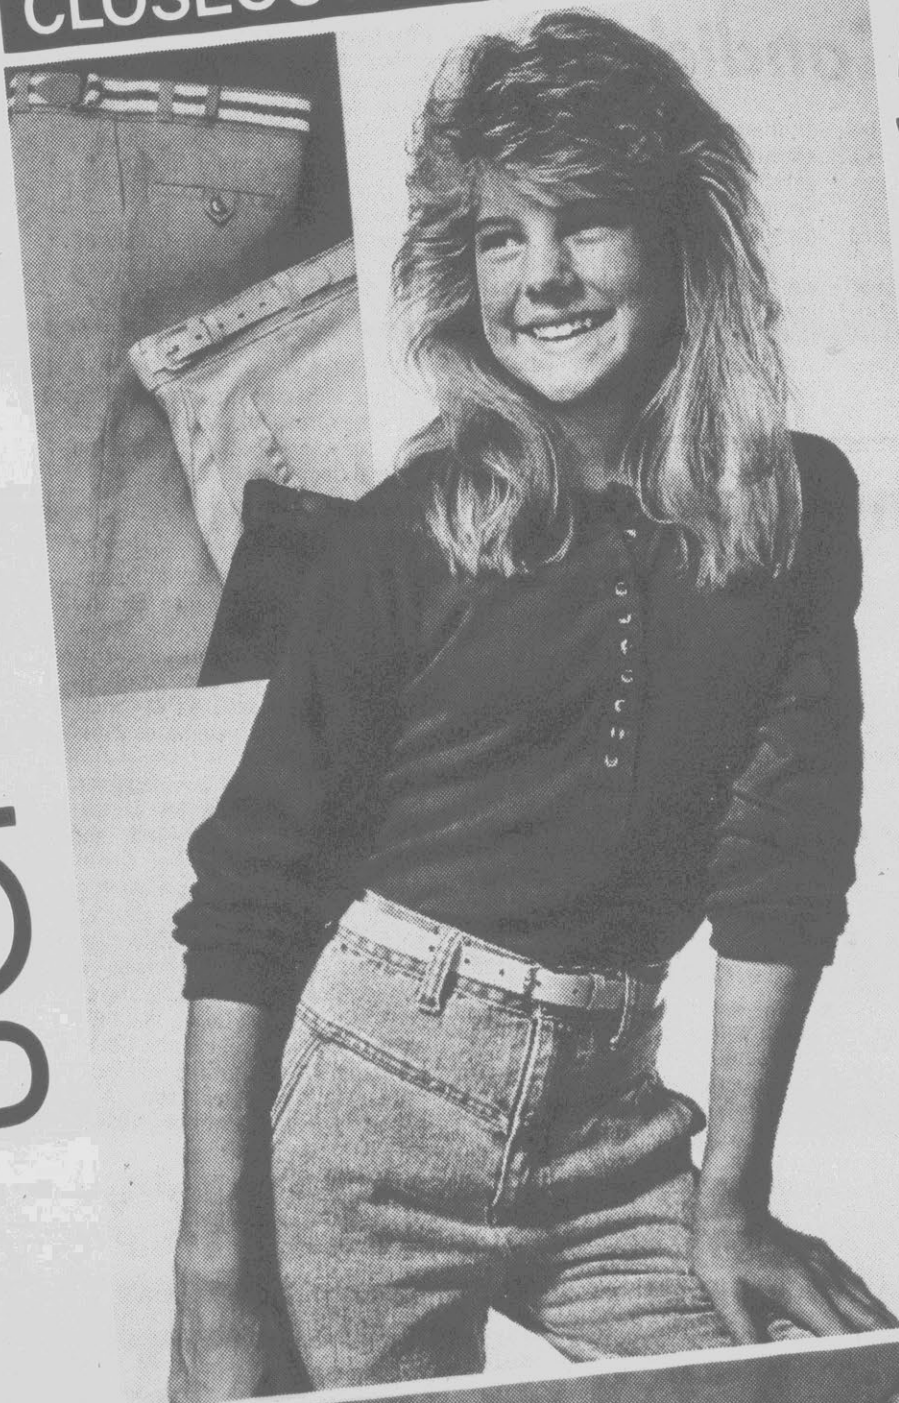

DEAR HOLLY: Your message is well worth space in this column. Readers (of all ages), before diving, remember: Feet First, First Time!

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Auction Prices Drop On Eastern Markets

By The Associated Press
Prices dropped Thursday on the Eastern and Old and Middle belt flue cured tobacco markets, with prices holding steady on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina belt, the Federal-State Tobacco Market News Service said.
Volume was light at Old and Middle belt flue-cured tobacco markets Thursday, as the third week of auctions ended. Grade averages showed fairly consistent losses of $2 to $4 for most priming grades while other grades held fairly steady. Top bid was around $175 paid for selected sheets of leaf tobacco with lows of about $85 per hundred for some nondescript.
Sales at the markets Wednesday totaled only 2,204,901 pounds or about half of Monday's volume. The general average of $137.24 was down 85 cents from the previous day. Season sales stand at 21,283,254 pounds averaging $139.38 per hundred. Loan receipts accounted for 4.2 percent of sales Wednesday, raising the season figure to 1.9 percent.
Grade prices held firm on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina tobacco markets as the third week of auctions ended. Prices varied on heavy volume grades $1 to $4 with gains and losses about equal. The top bid of $181 was good orange leaf with nondescript the low at $110.

Quality was better as more of the offerings graded good and fair tobacco with less low, poor and nondescript. Also more leaf and cutters were on the floors.
Sales Wednesday grossed 4,412,076 pounds and averaged $150.49 per hundred - up $2.12 from Tuesday. Season sales totaled 45,839,918 pounds returning $146.33 per hundred.
The Stabilization Corp. received 6.5 percent of gross sales Wednesday and 2.5 percent for the season.
Demand was not quite as strong for tobacco auctioned in the Eastern North Carolina flue-cured area Thursday as the third week of sales ended. A majority of grade averages declined from levels set the previous day. Losses were generally $1 to $4 per hundred and seemed more consistent for priming marketings.
The percentage of good and fair quality eased downward while an increase was noted in low and nondescript.
Gross sales in the belt Wednesday totaled 4,261,791 pounds and averaged $142.22 per hundred, up $1.64 from the previous day. For the season, 47,081,598 pounds have been auctioned for an average of $140.55.
Loan receipts increased to 5.5 percent of sales Wednesday raising the season percentage to 2.1.

Scrimmage Pleases Baker

East Carolina held its first intrasquad scrimmage Thursday morning in Ficklen Stadium as the Pirates prepare for their Sept. 5 season opener at N.C. State. ECU head coach Art Baker was pleased overall with the first scrimmage, citing an improved first-team offense and several individual standouts on defense.

"We're a long way from where we need to be on Sept. 5, but there were enough good things seen on the field today to continue our optimism about this season," Baker said. "Our offense is becoming more comfortable with the run-and-shoot each day and that will only improve with more repetitions."

Defensively (senior outside linebacker) John Williamson and (senior cornerback) Ellis Dillahunt had fine workouts but we have too many nagging injuries on defense to please me. No one is hurt to the point that they would miss the opener, but they are missing on key practice sessions."

Babe Ruth All-Stars Open World Series Play Sunday

Greenville's all-stars will open play Sunday in the Babe Ruth League World Series in Jamestown, N.Y., and Coach Blanks Walker is hoping that experience will tell for the North Carolina team.

in that sort of situation. Everyone is a little older, a little more mature, a little stronger. And I'm glad that we've been there before, so it shouldn't be anything new."

Greenville, which represented Eastern North Carolina in the Southeastern Regionals, captured that championship in the final game of the playoffs, downing hosting Sarasota, Fla., on a 10th inning two-run homer by Timmy Moore. That earned Greenville a trip to the nationals.

Walker said he knew nothing about the team Greenville would face in the opening round. "I just know that they will be tough. Everyone there (except Jamestown) got that the same way we did, so they should be the best in the country."

Teams representing eight regions will join the hosting Jamestown team to form a nine-team field. The tournament will be decided by double elimination.

Pitching was somewhat of a problem at times for the Greenville team, and Walker admitted that it could be at the World Series. "We really don't have the deep bench as far as pitching is concerned. We have seven or eight who can pitch, but only about two who are really good pitchers."

The Greenville team left Thursday to fly to Buffalo, and then bussed to Jamestown, some 60 miles southwest near the Pennsylvania line.

Jamie Brewington is expected to start on the mound for the opening While tournament play gets underway on Saturday, Greenville is not scheduled to play until Sunday at 1 p.m. when it meets the Pacific Southwest Champion out of Van Neys-Sherman Oaks, a suburb of Los Angeles.

A victory would give the local team a day off on Monday, as they would resume action on Tuesday at 8 p.m.

A loss, however, would send them into the losers' bracket and a game Monday at 6 p.m.

The tournament is scheduled to wind up on Saturday, Aug. 29.

"We have 10 players on the team who went to the 13-year-old World Series two years ago," Walker said. "I think that's beneficial for us to be

"For $800,000 we ought to be tickled to death to play 1-45 with the trucks going by," Green said.

Sunday's Sports

"Look," Bob Murphy said, "let's keep our priorities straight. They had rain so heavy the animals were pairing off two by two."

"We're lucky to be playing at all. We've got to be happy to go along with anything they want to do." Hubert Green agreed.

"It's not easy on the players, but it's a lot tougher on the officials," said David Graham. "They're the men who have to decide what we're going to do. And I don't envy them."

The once-delayed first round was scheduled today at the flood-ravaged Butler National Golf Club.

There was a realistic chance that the course, under five feet of water early in the week, wouldn't be fit for play, Tournament Director Mike Shea of the PGA Tour said Thursday.

He also noted a weather forecast calling for showers overnight and today.

"We'll just wait until bright and early Friday morning to see how Mother Nature treats us," he said.

He and Western Open Tournament Director Peter De Young did establish some contingency plans in the event further delays occur.

"If we are not able to play Friday, we have two options," Shea said. "One is to play 18 holes here (at Butler) on Saturday. If all 18 holes aren't ready Saturday, we'll play nine here and nine at Oak Brook Golf Club, a course adjacent to Butler National."

In the event of another delay, the tournament would be trimmed from 72 holes to 54. The 156-man field would be cut to the low 60 scorers after one round, with a double round of 36 holes scheduled for Sunday.

Toliver Gets Win Before Shipping Down; Roenicke Makes His Chances Count

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

For Fred Toliver, it was a last chance, at least until September. For Gary Roenicke, it was a rare chance. Both made the most of their opportunities.

After being told Philadelphia was demoting him to Maine of the AAA International League, Toliver posted his first major league victory Thursday night as the Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres 10-2.

"I understand," Toliver said of the roster move. "I'll just go down and keep my same approach, try to get better. I'll keep learning, do the best I can."

"I'll come back Sept. 1 and try to help some more."

Roenicke is a part-time player for the Atlanta Braves, having appeared in only 48 of Atlanta's 121 games this season. But he has made his appearances count.

On Thursday, he two home runs and drove in five runs to lead the Braves over the Chicago Cubs 13-4.

"I knew what my job was when I came to Atlanta," Roenicke said. "You just have to hope the hot streaks stay with you longer than the cold streaks."

Phillies 10, Padres 2

Toliver's wife left Philadelphia, heading for Maine with their personal belongings, before the pitcher even took the mound. He was being sent down to make room for Mike Jackson, who comes off the disabled list today.

Phillies Manager Lee Elia promised the rookie he would be back Sept. 1 when the major-league rosters are expanded.

"I congratulated him, told him I was glad to see him win his first major league game," Elia said. "He thanked me and said he hoped to get more when he comes back Sept. 1."

Chris James hit a solo home run and Juan Samuel drove in three runs with two doubles as the Phillies moved within seven games of NL East-leading St. Louis. It was the ninth victory in the last 11 games for Philadelphia.

Braves 13, Cubs 4

Roenicke hit a two-run homer in the first inning, capped a five-run sixth with a three-run homer and walked and scored the tiebreaking run when he Dale Murphy followed with his 33rd homer in the fifth.

In the sixth, with the Cubs at bat, Roenicke sat down in left field and did some stretching exercises while umpire crew chief Dick Stello twice checked reliever Jim Acker's glove. Both times, Chicago Manager Gene Michael had complained that Acker was rubbing the ball in his glove, and the Cubs lodged a protest.

Stello said he told Michael that "pitchers have been doing that since the game was invented. They all do that."

"I'm protesting that they allowed him to go ahead and rub the ball," Michael said. "He says he's not doing it, but he is."

Acker said he had no idea what the complaint was about. "They checked my glove. They didn't find nothing."

"It riled us up," Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner said. "It didn't overshadow what Roenicke did, though."

Acker, 1-5, ended a personal 11-game losing streak with the victory.

Chicago's Andre Dawson also hit two homers, a two-run shot in the fifth and his 38th of the season to lead off the ninth.

Mets 7, Giants 4

Barry Lyons hit his first major league grand slam in the sixth inning as New York rallied to down San Francisco. Kevin McReynolds hit a solo home run in the fourth as the Mets set a team record with 149 homers for the season, bettering the old mark of 148 last year.

David Cone, 3-2, pitched four innings of two-hit relief after starter Terry Leach failed to last the third inning. Cone struck out six and didn't walk a batter, and Randy Myers struck out five more while pitching three innings of hitless relief for his third save.

Astros 5, Cardinals 4

Glenn Davis' sacrifice fly and an error by St. Louis third baseman Jose Oquendo helped Houston score two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning as the Astros rallied to sweep their three-game series with the Cardinals.

The victory extended Houston's winning streak to seven games. The Astros have won their last 11 home games.

The Cardinals had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the seventh on pinch-hitter Terry Pendleton's two-run triple and Jack Clark's 33rd homer.

Reds 5, Pirates 3

Dave Parker hit a home run into the upper deck of Riverfront Stadium, snapping a tie and leading Cincinnati. The victory moved the Reds back into a tie for the NL West lead with San Francisco.

Ted Power, 10-7, went 5 2-3 innings to gain the victory, with John Franco posting his 24th save. Mike Dunne, 7-5, took the loss, Pittsburgh's first in six games at Cincinnati this season.

Dodgers 7, Expos 2

Although he walked seven, Fernando Valenzuela pitched four-hit ball for seven innings to break a personal three-game losing streak for Los Angeles. Ken Landreaux hit a two-run homer in the ninth for the Dodgers.

Rose Dominates Scrimmage; Williams Pleased With Work

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School went through its second football scrimmage Thursday afternoon as it continued preparations for the 1987 season.

Rose will open the season at Eastern Wayne on Aug. 28.

Against Raleigh's Broughton High School, Rose was dominate with the first team on the field. While it held Broughton in check on defense all through the workout, Rose used its second unit much of the time on offense.

Quarterback Tom Moye guided the Rampants to two touchdowns on the afternoon, one on the opening drive of the first "half" and the other on the opening drive of the second.

Aside from that, the backup group got most of the work.

"We know what Tom and his unit can do," Coach Chip Williams said.

"We wanted the rest to get in more work."

Williams said that it appears obvious that the Rampants are four — maybe five — deep in running backs. "I was pleased with the way they ran today — David Daniels, Adrian Barnhill, Alex Smith. Rexter Williams is capable of running better than he did. Then, too, we'll have Timmy (Moore) when he returns (from Babe Ruth baseball World Series play)," Williams said.

"I was impressed with Tom Moye's leadership although he didn't get much time and didn't throw that much," the coach added. "I thought our offensive line did a good job today, but we're not very deep and that worries me. Most of the people on our second unit are starting on defense for us. Our line is not very big, but they come off the ball well and communicate well."

He singled out Barry Murry,

Tommy Baker, Jay Mattocks, Gerald O'Koth and Raleigh Fuller for their play in the line.

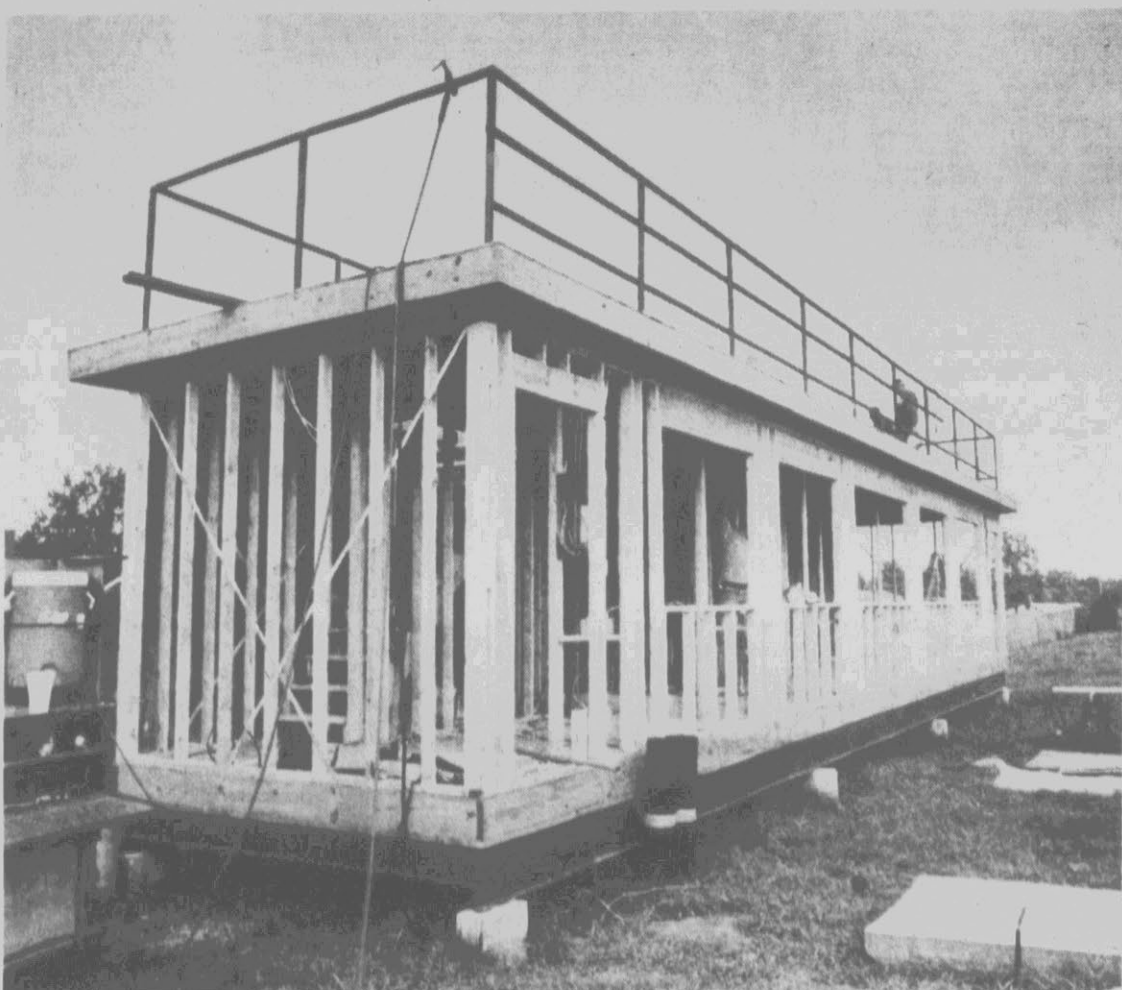

Williams said he was also impressed with the way Eric Morris and Jeff Mahoney caught the ball at the receiver positions.

"But we do have to improve our downfield blocking," Williams said.

"Defensively, I was pleased with our effort. We stopped their option exactly as it should be done according to our design of the defense. But again, we're not deep."

Williams singled out the play of Carlester Crumpler on defense, but noted that he took a "lick to the knee and we won't know what that entails as yet."

Trainer Dennis Gibson, however, said that it appeared to be only a minor sprain and that Crumpler should be ready to go at the next practice.

Stadium Coming Along

Work on the new Rose High School athletic facility off Arlington Boulevard is progressing on schedule for the Sept. 11 opening game, according to school officials. The lights have been installed and work on the press box is underway, as shown here. The stands, scoreboard and goal posts are expected to be in place in the next two to three weeks. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

High-10 'Key' To Molitor Streak

By The Associated Press
If Paul Molitor breaks Joe DiMaggio's record 56-game hitting streak, he will have to credit teammate Rob Deer for a helping hand.

Molitor extended his hitting streak to 35 games Thursday night with two doubles and a single, tying Ty Cobb for the sixth-longest streak in modern major-league history, as the Brewers routed Cleveland 14-2.

After lining out hard to center field to start the game against Ken Schrom, 5-10, Molitor doubled to left with the bases loaded to drive in two runs in the second inning.

"At the All-Star break, I told Rob (Deer) I had noticed (St. Louis') Jack Clark and Ozzie Smith had originated a 'high-10' and so we started doing this on my first day back (off the disabled list)," Molitor said.

"We've been doing this little handshake. I don't talk to anyone about it and I'm surprised Paul told you guys," Deer said. "He knows we've got to do it and I know we've got to do it."

"It was funny in Chicago (Aug. 7). It was quarter after one and I'm dressing. The game's at 1:30. By the time I'm out there, he's on deck and I couldn't shake his hand. His first at-bat, he almost sprains his ankle. Then, they make a couple nice plays on him and before you know it he's 0-for-4. I'm thinking about this and he's kind of mad. I said, 'Paulie, let's shake.' We did it, and he doubled."

After his second-inning double Thursday night, Molitor doubled in another run with a shot to the gap in right-center during the Brewers' five-run third, and he singled and scored to start the six-run sixth. In the ninth, Molitor grounded out to third.

He finished the game 3-for-5 and is 63-for-149 (.423) during the streak with seven homers and 32 RBI. For the season, Molitor's batting .372.

"Even when you're swinging the bat well, it's very easy to take an O-for," Molitor said. "I've always respected that (DiMaggio's) record. To have a streak that seems to have gone on a long time and then realize that (Joe) DiMaggio's was 21 games longer makes me realize what an accomplishment that was."

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit blanked Minnesota 8-0, Toronto edged Oakland 7-6, Texas tripped Chicago 5-1, Baltimore defeated California 4-2 in 12 innings and Seattle beat New York 4-3 in 12 innings.

Deer capped the Brewers' sixth with his second grand slam in two nights. He was the first major leaguer with grand slams on consecutive nights since Greg Luzinski did it for the Chicago White Sox in June 1984.

Molitor's streak is the longest in the majors since Pete Rose had hits in 44 straight games for Cincinnati in 1978. It's the longest in the AL since DiMaggio's 56-game streak for the New York Yankees in 1941.

Cobb had a 35-game streak for Detroit in 1917 and also a 40-game streak in 1911. George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns hit in 41 straight games in 1922. In 1945, Tommy Holmes had a 37-game streak for the Boston Braves, Molitor's next target.

"When you start a streak like this, you're preparing for the end, anyway," Molitor said. "Initially, I'll be disappointed. It's a unique opportunity to have a streak go on like this. But it shouldn't take me long to get over it. It won't be like the world came out from under me."

Winning Margin
Toronto catcher Charlie Moore comes up to see umpire Al Clark call him safe with the winning run in the ninth inning Thursday at Oakland. A's catcher Mickey Tettleton has his glove in the air. The Blue Jays won the game, 7-6. (AP Laserphoto)

Tigers 8, Twins 0
Doyle Alexander pitched a five-hitter over eight innings and Chet Lemon's two-run double highlighted a four-run fourth inning, leading host Detroit over Minnesota and a sweep of the three-game series.

It was Alexander's first victory since coming to the Tigers from Atlanta last week in a trade for a minor-league pitcher. Mike Hennessey allowed one hit in the final inning.

The Tigers' 71-47 record is the best in baseball after shaking off an 11-19 start. Detroit has won five consecutive games and 23 of 33 since the All-Star break.

Blue Jays 7, Athletics 6
Juan Beniquez drove in his third run of the game with a fielder's choice grounder in Toronto's two-run ninth inning, lifting the visiting Blue Jays over Oakland.

Charlie Moore drove in the tying run, then scored the game-winner from third base, beating shortstop Alfredo Griffin's throw to the plate on the grounder by Beniquez, who had a two-run double in the fifth.

Garth Iorg led off the ninth with a single off Greg Cadaret and went to second on a sacrifice by Rance Mulliniks. Moore's run-scoring double tied the score 6-6 and chased Cadaret in favor of Dave Leiper. Moore moved to third when Lloyd Moseby's hard grounder went through second baseman Tony Bernazard for an error.

Rangers 5, White Sox 1
Jose Guzman pitched a three-hitter and Texas took advantage of Chicago's sloppy defense to beat the White Sox at Arlington.

Guzman, 10-11, walked two and struck out five. He took a two-hit shutout into the eighth, when Greg Walker drew a walk leading off, moved to third on Steve Lyons' single, and scored on Fred Manrique's sacrifice fly.

The Rangers scored three unearned runs in the third against starter Richard Dotson, 10-9.

Orioles 4, Angels 2
Ron Washington's two-run double with one out in the 12th inning lifted Baltimore over host California, completing a three-game sweep of the Angels.

Cal Ripken led off the 12th with a bloop single to center off reliever DeWayne Buice, 5-5, and took second on Eddie Murray's infield grounder before Fred Lynn was intentionally walked to get to Washington, who had entered the game as a pinch runner in the 10th inning. Washington hit a line drive into the left-field corner to score Ripken and Lynn.

Mariners 4, Yankees 3
Harold Reynolds' bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 12th inning gave Seattle its victory over New York at the Kingdome, snapping the Mariners' six-game losing streak.

With one out in the bottom of the 12th, Dave Valle singled, Mickey Brantley walked and Rey Quinones singled to load the bases off reliever Brad Arnsberg. Reynolds followed with a long fly to center that was caught by Claudell Washington but Valle jogged home.

Mike Pagliarulo hit his 27th and 28th homers for the Yankees.

Bonnett Sets Sights On Second

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt is practically out of sight, so Neil Bonnett won't let it bother him.

Earnhardt, with a runaway lead in the Winston Cup point standings, has won eight of 19 races this season and has finished in the top 10 in most of the others.

Bonnett, who is fourth in the driver standings, has yet to win his first race of 1987 heading in Saturday night's Busch 500 at Bristol International Raceway.

"Dale's kind of set the gauge where you race at," Bonnett said Thursday prior to taking part in a charity golf tournament. "It's kind of hard to make that leap, but to finish second (in the Winston Cup standings), you're going to have to do it."

and the rest of the top 20 spots for Saturday's race, the only night event on the 29-event NASCAR schedule.

"I like racing at night," Bonnett said. "It gives everything a different look and feel. And on this track, it's real exciting."

"But I don't care if it's night or day as long as we win a race," added Bonnett, who came back to the Rahmoc Team of Butch Mock and Bob Rahilly this season.

"We have good enough equipment to run good and win," the 41-year-old Alabama driver said. "I'm not disappointed with the effort. My guys are gaining on it. I feel like we haven't reached our full potential yet."

A victory would be particularly satisfying to Bonnett because he has run well on Bristol's .533-mile, high-banked oval, but never won.

"Really, I've had good luck and bad luck here," he said. "I've been real good and not finished and I've been mediocre and run good."

"You have to be aware that you can get in trouble in a hurry. The thing is this track is so fast, if something happens in front of you, you're going to be in it. You've got to get your equipment ready and just create your own luck."

"I was second in the points for quite a while and still didn't feel real satisfied because we didn't win any races," Bonnett said. "Now we're fourth and we still haven't won. I personally want to win a race."

"You have to think that way and let the points take care of themselves. If we can win this race, it would really set us up for the rest of the season."

Bonnett and the rest of the NASCAR drivers will attempt to qualify tonight for the pole position

George Says Lou Will Continue; But How Long

By The Associated Press
Owner George Steinbrenner told USA Today Thursday that Lou Piniella will be allowed to continue as New York Yankees manager, prompting an angry response from Piniella.

"Lou Piniella will stay," Steinbrenner told the newspaper. "He's in no danger of losing his job."

Piniella, who has guided the third-place Yankees to a 69-52 record in the American League East, wasn't soothed by the vote of confidence. Upset by his club's 4-3, 12th-inning loss in Seattle Thursday night and to the constant doubt surrounding his position, Piniella launched into an angry defense of his performance.

"What am I safe for, a month, a year?" Piniella told the newspaper.

"I'm tired of having to defend myself every day. I've done a damn good job with what I've had to work with. Print it, because it's the truth. Just take a look around and see what I've got to work with."

Piniella apparently was referring to the unending string of injuries that have hit the Yankees. They have had players miss 293 games to injury.

"One thing I do know is I'm a good manager," Piniella told USA Today. "No one can take that away from me. I do my job thoroughly."

The Yankees manager upset Steinbrenner's failing to be in his hotel room at an appointed time on Aug. 4 to receive a phone call from the owner.

To make matters worse, the injury-plagued Yankees had lost six of their last seven games before heading for the West Coast Monday to begin an eight-game trip. They began by defeating Seattle in the first two games of a three-game series that concluded with Thursday night's loss.

Steinbrenner has not been speaking to his manager and said he might have made a mistake by hiring Piniella before the 1986 season because he had never worked in the minor leagues.

He had refused to comment on Piniella's status until ending his silence Thursday.

If Piniella survives the season, he would be the first Yankees manager to last two consecutive full seasons since Billy Martin in 1976 and 1977.

Morrison Suit Settled Weeks Ago, Report Says

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A paternity suit filed against University of South Carolina football coach Joe Morrison was settled about three weeks ago, but both parties retain the right of appeal through next week, The State newspaper reported today.

The suit filed by Barbara Button was settled three weeks ago in Richland County Family Court, the newspaper reported. The State quoted athletic department sources as saying that under the terms of the settlement, Morrison agreed to provide regular payments to support his daughter. The sources did not reveal the amount of the payments, the newspaper said.

All terms of the suit and settlement have been withheld by order of Richland County Family Court Judge Carol Conner.

Morrison fathered the child while he was head football coach at the University of New Mexico, and the mother and child followed Morrison to Columbia after he was hired in 1982 to head the South Carolina football program, The State reported.

Morrison and his wife of 13 years, JeVena, have no children.

Ms. Button filed the suit to ensure that child support payments would be made directly to her after Morrison began to pay the child's bills himself rather than give the money to Ms. Button, the sources told the newspaper.

The sources declined to provide details of Morrison's affair with the New Mexico woman, but they said the coach did what he thought was best for his daughter when she arrived in South Carolina: He provided financial support and a place for the mother and daughter to live in Columbia.

"If anything, Joe got caught up trying to do the right thing," one athletic department official told The State. "He supported the child, but it got to be a question of how much money was actually getting to the child."

Ms. Button, 29, lives in a $30,000 condominium owned by television production company MO-JO Inc., of which Morrison is president, records show. She lives in a Lakewood Village condominium in Lexington County.

Ms. Button, the mother of two children, would not discuss the lawsuit and said her attorney couldn't, either. Her attorney, Brian Dumas, on Thursday refused to discuss the case.

The sources told The State some members of the USC athletic community were aware of the child.

"It's not like he was trying to hide the child," one athletic department official told The State. "Most of the people around here knew of the girl."

Heading To A Gold

Things Are Normal, Bears Are Arguing

By The Associated Press
The Chicago Bears are rounding into midseason form — off the field, that is — considerably earlier than anticipated with Coach Mike Ditka and quarterback Jim McMahon at odds.

Ditka, who has clashed with McMahon in the past, plans to fine his outspoken quarterback for missing practice Thursday. How much he wouldn't say.

"He didn't come out today," Ditka said after practice at Platteville, Wis. "He must have had a bad night."

Ditka said he had no idea where McMahon was at practice time.

"I didn't check his room, the bathroom or the closet," he said. "I don't intend to. I checked the field and he wasn't there."

McMahon was seen walking across the field in sweat clothes shortly before practice started. Later in the day, he said he had been getting treatment for a sore muscle in his throwing arm.

"If he (Ditka) wants to fine us all, he can go ahead," McMahon said.

Around The Camps
Ohio State wide receiver Cris Carter won't be taken by Tampa Bay even if the Bucs get the first pick in the Aug. 28 supplemental draft.

"We're not in a position from a team standpoint to spend a No. 1 draft choice on a wide receiver," Coach Ray Perkins said. "We have more pressing needs... unless he was an absolute great one."

A weighted draft will be held to determine the rights to Carter and other players who have lost their college eligibility. A team that takes a player forfeits that round's pick in the next regular draft.

Tampa Bay, because its had the worst record in the NFL last year, will have the most chances to get the first pick in the supplemental draft.

Wide receiver Jerry Rice is the latest addition to the San Francisco 49ers ever-expanding injured list.

Rice suffered a hairline fracture in his right ring finger during Thursday's practice and won't play in Saturday night's exhibition game against Dallas.

Coach Bill Walsh said Rice, who injured the finger while making a block in practice, would play if it were a regular-season game.

"He can catch without trouble," Walsh said.

Among the others who won't play Saturday because of injuries are defensive back Ronnie Lott, running back Joe Cribbs.

Signing Up
The dispute between kicker Tony Franklin and the New England Patriots ended with Franklin signing an agreement that would protect the team if he is hurt.

Franklin will receive $340,000 this year. But if he's hurt in training camp and can't play at all this season

Men's Hoops Gets Scare

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — U.S. men's basketball got a scare, women's softball and gymnastics got a gold, and U.S. boxers are getting routed by Cubans at the Pan American Games.

With just the weekend left for these 16-day games, Americans had a medal stash of 339, including 158 gold, 108 silver and 73 bronze.

They can still give away half their loot and be comfortably ahead of Canada, next with 157, 30 gold. Cuba is in third place with 153 medals, 60 gold.

Puerto Rico almost got in the way of the basketball team's drive for gold.

Thursday's game had a different twist because the United States won by only five points — 80-75 — instead of its usual 30-point walkovers.

Coach Denny Crum said he knew there was trouble out there. His team found it in Jose Ortiz.

"I told them I had seen two teams good enough to beat us," Crum said, meaning Puerto Rico and Brazil. "I don't know if they believed me, but now I'm sure they believe me if they didn't before."

The United States led 72-59 with six minutes left when Puerto Rico, 4-2, ran off an 11-0 streak to pull within two with 3:05 to play.

David Robinson, who finished with 20 points, finally broke a 3:45 scoreless period with a driving layup and Danny Manning, who also had 20, scored the final six points, four on free throws, to seal the victory.

Ortiz, the Utah Jazz' first-round draft pick, scored 22 points in the first half and finished with 31. Robinson was the reason for Ortiz' measly nine points in the second half.

Crum sent in Navy's 7-foot-1 center to guard Ortiz, who was a pain in the lane. Robinson cured it.

Next up, Brazil. The two teams will play for the gold medal Sunday, as will the U.S. and Brazilian women's teams.

There were no struggles at the softball field where the U.S. women, who have overwhelmed everyone since the games began, won the gold with a 4-1 victory over Puerto Rico. U.S. men had to settle for a silver after being beaten by Canada 2-1.

In gymnastics, the outcome was expected — a U.S. team gold. The hero was not.

Instead of national champion Kristie Phillips leading the charge, it was Sabrina Mar, whose consistency made up for her teammates' mistakes on the balance beam and floor exercise.

Moving On
Bobby Johnson, the New York Giants' most productive wide receiver last season, was dealt to the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Johnson, 26, who joined the Giants as a free agent from Kansas in 1984 and became an immediate starter, led all Giants wide receivers with 31 catches last season. He had 112 receptions for 1,862 yards and 20 touchdowns in three seasons with the team.

The Giants had six receivers on their roster last season and took three more in the first four rounds of the 1987 draft.

Resolution Set For Football Playoffs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two of the nation's top college football teams would meet in a playoff game to determine the national champion if a resolution recommended by an NCAA committee is approved by the full membership.

The committee which has studied the controversial question for several years recommended Thursday that the NCAA Council put a resolution on the agenda of the 1988 NCAA Convention scheduled for January, said DeLoss Dodds, athletic director at Texas and chairman of the committee.

If member schools vote in favor of the resolution, the specifics of how the playoff would be played would be developed and put to a vote at the 1989 convention, Dodds said. The first playoff game could be held in 1990, he said.

The committee envisions a one-game playoff between two teams chosen by a football committee.

Dodds said he would not predict if the NCAA Council would put the resolution on the agenda. He said the issue would be taken up by the Council in October.

"I find the Council to be very independent," he said. "I think they might talk about it, I think they might discuss it. They have the ability to test the water and see what it is."

Dodds stressed the committee's vision of the playoff, which would have it played the Sunday before the Super Bowl in a domed stadium or a stadium seating more than 70,000 people in a warm-weather site, could be changed later.

The committee settled on a one-game playoff in part for academic reasons — so that athletes would not miss much school — and in part to protect the bowl games, Dodds said.

"We want to try not to impact the bowls," Dodds said. "The bowls have been very good to college football."

"The bowls put $46 million into college football last year. The committee would like to see the bowl structure intact."

Interest has been building for a football playoff, Dodds said.

hitters. "The team was great to work with. We had hitting, defense and scored runs — it was a team effort. This was not any one-person team."

For the tournament, the three pitchers combined to allow only one run in 60 innings. They gave up 10 hits while striking out 105 and walking 10. Opposing batters had an .052 batting average against them.

Said U.S. Coach Carol Spinks: "This team has worked as hard together as any team I've ever been associated with. You take 18 girls and they are compatible and supportive and they all came together to do the job they did all week here."

The Canadian men won the gold behind the pitching of Rob Scheller and Glen Jevne.

GYMNASTICS

Even with mistakes, the unchallenged U.S. team broke its own 24-year-old Pan Am record with a score of 385.95. The old record is 384.21.

Cuba won the silver and Canada took the bronze.

Mar, of Monterey Park, Calif., scored a 9.85 in the floor exercise and a 9.825 on the vault. She led the individual standings with 77.55, followed by Phillips at 77.475.

Phillips, 15, of Baton Rouge, La., fell off the balance beam while trying to make a simple turn, but climbed back on and did her famous back-bending headstand for a 9.30.

"It was kind of a stupid mistake on my part," she said. "I really wasn't concentrating for the full turn. It wasn't that hard of a skill and I shouldn't have fallen off."

Now that the team has the gold, Mar said she wants the all-around for herself. She'll try to get it Saturday.

BOXING

Michael Collins, a 119-pounder, and Todd Foster, at 139 pounds, were the lone bright spots for the U.S. team, winning easy decisions to move into the finals.

"I think I just won the title," said Collins, of LaPorte, Texas, who beat Rafael Delvalle of Puerto Rico to earn a shot at Manuel Martinez of Cuba. "I'm really not worried about the Cuban. He didn't really impress me."

Foster, on the other hand, probably will have his hands full with Candelario Duvergel, the defending Pan Am champion, who stopped Daneil Gueto of Panama at 2:58 of the first round.

"He's a good boxer, it should be a good fight," said Foster, of Great Falls, Mont.

Bent lost his shot at a gold medal match by taking a pounding for three rounds from Cuban Felix Savon, the reigning world amateur heavyweight champion.

Liles had a slugfest with Orestes Solano of Cuba, but was the loser in a 5-0 decision.

TENNIS

Al Parker, of Claxton, Ga., beat Miguel Nido of Puerto Rico 6-2, 6-2 to reach the semifinals in men's singles. The U.S. mixed doubles team of Patrick McEnroe and Jane Holdren lost to Juan Pinto and Belkis Rodriguez of Cuba 6-4, 4-6, 7-6.

"They came up with some good shots and unfortunately on the match point I double faulted," said McEnroe, John's younger brother. "I don't feel good about that."

TEAMS SPORTS

The United States crushed Puerto Rico 17-3 to clinch a berth in the gold medal game against Cuba in water polo. The Americans hit on eight of their first 12 possessions with Peter Campbell scoring four times.

Cuba, seeking its fifth straight gold medal in women's volleyball, defeated the United States 15-9, 15-11, 15-6. Cuba plays Peru for the championship; America plays Brazil for third place.

Wolfpack's Yow Undergoes Surgery To Remove Cancer

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Kay Yow, North Carolina State women's basketball coach and the U.S. Olympic coach for 1988, has undergone surgery for breast cancer, but a school spokesman said Thursday that she should return to her duties soon.

It was reported Tuesday that Yow was in the hospital, but school officials would not elaborate. Sports Information Director Mark Bockelman said Yow underwent surgery on Tuesday after entering a Raleigh hospital for what was called a routine physical examination prior to the 1987-88 basketball season.

"These examinations disclosed a tissue growth in her right breast," Bockelman said in a statement. "A surgical biopsy was performed that verified a malignant tissue. A modified-radical mastectomy was performed Tuesday morning that removed all of the malignant tissues."

Bockelman also said Yow would not receive radiation therapy or chemotherapy. He said lab work on her lymphatic and circulatory systems indicated no trace of malignant cells following the surgery.

"Laboratory reports indicated Thursday an excellent prognosis for long term health and no life-threatening concern nor anxiety for impaired health," Bockelman said. "Yow retained all of her muscle and should return to coaching and athletic activity in the very near future."

Bockelman added that Yow could be back at coaching "as soon as she feels rested enough."

She will be released from the hospital Friday, he said.

"I'm particularly thankful to the Lord for his abundant blessing in my life," Yow said in the statement.

"I'm very thankful for the early detection and for the fact that the tissue was removeable. I want to extend my thanks to my friends across the nation who have prayed for my recovery. I'm eager to return to my home and N.C. state to get back to my normal routine."

At the Pan American Games in Indianapolis, a national basketball official said the surgery shouldn't affect Yow's Olympic coaching ability.

"We have been in touch with Kay over the past 10 days," said Bill Wall, executive director of the Amateur Basketball Association of the USA.

"This caused her to postpone her trip to South Korea to view the facilities and go over last week's games with the select team that won a silver medal.

"There is a possibility of a delay in her scouting trip to Spain in the second week of September. We are aware of the situation and have talked to her. As far as we are concerned we don't expect this to interfere with Kay's duties for the Olympics which will begin with the trials in May."

Yow was N.C. State's first women's basketball coach after leading Elon College to a 57-19 mark in five seasons. Her Wolfpack teams have never suffered a losing season, starting with an 11-4 mark in 1974-75 and climbing to a 29-5 mark and the regional finals of the now-defunct AIAW tournament in the 1977-78 season.

The 1983-84 Wolfpack went 23-9 and reached the semifinals of the NCAA East Regionals, losing to Old Dominion in overtime 73-71.

She gained international recognition last summer, when her U.S. team defeated the Soviet Union for the gold medal in the Goodwill Games. Last August, she coached the U.S. to the women's World Basketball Championships.

Entering the 1987-88 season, Yow has a career record of 338-107, including a 281-88 mark with three Atlantic Coast Conference championships at N.C. State.

Skinner Listened, Improved Game

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The little voice inside Val Skinner started screaming after she missed the cut in the U.S. Women's Open a month ago.

"Stop it! Stop it! Stop it! You're not going to start playing well again until you relax."

Skinner has listened, and the champagne once again is flowing in the press tent. It flowed for the first time in almost 19 months at White Plains, N.Y., last week and Skinner wouldn't mind picking up the tab this weekend after the $225,000 Atlantic City Classic golf tournament.

"If you don't enjoy and celebrate what you've accomplished then something is passing you by," Skinner said. "The first tournament I won, in San Jose (in 1985), I knew a lot of people in the press and I decided to give them champagne. I won the first event the following year and the tradition continued."

Actually, after winning the Mazda Classic in January 1986, the tradition came to a halt until Skinner captured the MasterCard International Pro-

Am last weekend despite shooting a final-round 75.

"A lot of the players have been kidding me, saying they wish they could shoot 75 on Sunday and win," said Skinner. "I guess the key is getting a big enough lead going into the final round."

Skinner hasn't been suffering in the months between victories. Last year, she ranked 11th on the money list with $165,243, and this year is 14th with earnings of $111,619 in 20 events, including five top-10 finishes.

There was a major problem, though. Golf was no longer fun for Skinner.

"It was frustrating," she said. "I wasn't hitting the ball well and I had a lot of injuries. My back was bothering me a lot and it affected my swing."

Arkansas Top Choice In SWC

DALLAS (AP) — Arkansas will be the favorite to make its first visit to the Cotton Bowl in 11 years when the scandal-scarred Southwest Conference begins its 73rd year of football on Sept. 5.

The Hogs were the consensus pick of writers, broadcasters and coaches to win the title because of returning experience and overall depth and speed.

"Arkansas returns a lot of talent and experience while Baylor and A&M lost enough players to fill an NFL roster," Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said. "You have to give Arkansas the nod because of the quality coaching job Ken Hatfield does."

Texas A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill, who has won the SWC title the past two years, agrees.

"Arkansas will be very, very good," Sherrill says. "We have too much inexperience, especially on defense."

There will only be eight teams in the SWC this year as Southern Methodist University begins serving the stiffest football penalty ever assessed by the NCAA. The Mustangs received the NCAA's "death penalty" for repeated violations that included cash payments to players from a booster slush fund.

SMU won't field a team until at least 1989. Although the NCAA penalty was only for a year, the Mustangs decided to sit out another season to examine their athletic program.

New SMU President A. Kenneth Pye said the school will stay in the SWC and Division 1-A.

Three new head coaches will be on the SWC scene.

Jack Pardee, who has coached in both the NFL and USFL, replaces Bill Yeoman at Houston. Yeoman had been there the last 25 years.

Pardee, an All-American linebacker at Texas A&M and an All-Pro with the Washington Redskins, has installed a run-and-shoot offense to replace the run-oriented Veer.

David McWilliams got Texas Tech into a bowl game for the first time this decade then decided to jump to his alma mater, Texas, after Fred Akers was fired.

McWilliams, a former Texas player and later an assistant under Akers, inherits a 5-6 team that is shy on depth.

Spike Dykes, an assistant under McWilliams at Tech, coached the Red Raiders' 20-17 Independence Bowl loss to Mississippi. He was a defensive coordinator during the Red Raiders' 7-4 season.

Arkansas, second to A&M the last two seasons, was blown out 42-8 by Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

"Our offense should be more explosive than it has been because we have so much more speed," Hatfield said. "It should be a great race. Texas A&M probably should be the favorite even without (quarterback) Kevin Murray (who opted for the NFL draft)."

The return of running back James Rouse, the SWC Newcomer of the Year in 1985, gives Arkansas hope. Rouse was injured in 1986. Halfbacks Joe Johnson and Aaron Jackson also have good speed as does quarterback Greg Horne.

The Razorback defense is led by noseguard Tony Cherico, a leader and maker of big plays.

"We have fine speed on defense and are developing a little more size on our defensive line," Hatfield said. "Outstanding defense is a large part of the Razorback tradition and Cherico is the key."

The Aggies have uncertainty at quarterback although Craig Stump has some experience as a backup to Murray.

"We have the chance to be good offensively this year but it will take some time," Sherrill said. "We hope our running game can take some heat off Stump and Lance Pavlas at quarterback."

Sherrill says Pavlas could be another Dan Marino some day with the proper development.

"Pavlas has all the equipment but lacks experience," Sherrill said.

The Aggies suffered a blow when Randy Simmons, one of the most sought-after high school running backs in the country, was injured in the Texas High School All-Star Game. It wasn't certain when he would recover from arthroscopic knee surgery.

The Aggies will be tested early in consecutive home games against Louisiana State and Washington.

The Aggies were beaten 28-12 by Ohio State in the Cotton Bowl.

Baylor is in a rebuilding year although that's when Teaff is his most dangerous. The Bears come off a 9-3 season, including a 21-9 Bluebonnet Bowl victory over Colorado.

"We only return three starters on offense so we have a big job ahead," Teaff said. "There has been concern at quaternack but Ed Lovell did a good job in the spring. If you can believe it, we return fewer starters on defense than offense—two."

Texas is not without firepower despite winning only five games a year ago.

Quarterback Bret Stafford and shifty Eric Metcalf, an excellent runner and receiver, can cause a defense anxious moments.

"Attitude is one of our biggest pluses," McWilliams said. "Many of the distractions of last year have been eliminated."

TCU Coach Jim Wacker could have his best team.

"For the first time we have quality athletes two and three deep at practically every position," Wacker said. "It's time to put all the garbage from the last couple of years behind us."

TCU wasn't eligible for the SWC title last year because of NCAA probation and had a 3-8 season, including a 74-10 loss to Texas A&M in the last game of the season.

TCU recently cleared running back Tony Jeffery of any wrongdoing arising from involvement with an Atlanta-based agent. Teammates made Jeffery one of their captains.

"All the dark clouds have been lifted," Wacker said.

Texas Tech could have an outstanding offense behind quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver, who has 2,465 career passing yards.

Depth-shy Rice and Houston hold no realistic title hopes. The Owls were 4-7 and Houston 1-10 last season.

Paterno Says No Repeat In 87

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — "I doubt it. I don't see how," Coach Joe Paterno said when asked about the possibility that Penn State could win the national collegiate football champion for the second straight year.

No team has accomplished consecutive national titles since Alabama in 1978 and 1979.

Penn State capped a 12-0 season on Jan. 2 with a 14-10 victory over Miami, Fla., in the Fiesta Bowl.

"We are losing so many fine football players. These are the guys who made the big plays," Paterno said. "We've got to replace leadership. It's not just the tangible things we have to address. It's the intangibles as well."

Paterno, whose team opens defense of its title on Sept. 5 against Bowling Green, lost 15 Fiesta Bowl starters. Among them were All-American linebacker Shane Conlan, defensive tackle Tim Johnson, safety Ray Isom, tackle Chris Conlin and running back D.J. Dozier.

The kicking game and the defense are major concerns for Paterno, who comes to his 22nd season looking to add to a record that includes two national titles, four coach of the year awards, 15 Top 10 rankings, six undefeated seasons, 18 bowl appearances and 199 victories.

"I'm probably as worried as much as anything about the kicking game. I have no punter, no long snapper, no kicker (placekicker)," Ray Tarasi is the heir apparent to Massimo Manca's placekicking job, and the sophomore's collegiate experience is three extra-point kicks.

Seniors Chris Clauss and Brennan Gaertner are attempting to replace John Bruno, who averaged 41 yards a punt and put 16 of 35 inside the 20-yard line.

Paterno says he has two excellent inside linebackers in Trey Bauer and Pete Giffopoulos, the latter recalled for his pass interception inside the 5-yard line that thwarted Miami's last-second scoring threat in the Fiesta Bowl.

Paterno can also start two of college football's better defensive backs in Eddie Johnson and Marques Henderson.

"Other than that, I don't know what we have (on defense)," Paterno said.

"I don't know what we'll do about down linemen" after losing three of four starters. Only Pete Curkendall, described by Paterno as one of the nation's best, returns.

Paterno said he isn't worried about offense, even though the absentees include Dozier, quarterback John Shaffer and fullbacks Steve Smith and Tim Manoa.

"We should be OK offensively. We have a fine quarterback in (Matt) Kinzner. Blair Thomas (running back) is a very key guy in our offense. Our wideouts are our strongest position. We should have a fine offensive line although we could use some depth."

Kinzner, a fifth-year senior, was Shaffer's backup for two years and is considered a better pure passer. He completed 31 of 69 passes last year for 415 yards and four touchdowns, one on an 82-yard play.

As a sophomore last season behind Dozier, Thomas ran for 502 yards and returned 12 kickoffs for an average of 31.9 yards, including a 91-yard scoring return.

Paterno, whose basic offense hinges on a punishing running game, admits the Lions may have a different look because of defensive concerns and such talented receivers as Ray Roundtree, Jim Coates, Michael Timpson and Mike Alexander.

"We're probably going to have to be different," Paterno said. "Without taking away from the great job our defense did (last year), everything was predicated on putting the burden on the defense. I made the offensive coaches play with one hand behind their backs. We did little passing over the middle, little throwing over the middle on late downs, because I thought we could kick so well and had good people with a lot of experience on defense."

"We may have to throw more. I don't know. I'm still trying to get a feel for this team."

Raiders May Be Moving

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — They were once the Oakland Raiders. Now, they are the Los Angeles Raiders. Next, could it be the Irwindale Raiders?

Raiders owner Al Davis signed an agreement Thursday to build a 65,000-seat stadium in the tiny, industrial city of Irwindale, 25 miles east of Los Angeles.

Davis was given a $10 million non-refundable check by representatives of Irwindale as part of a $115 million loan to build the stadium on an 80-acre, 160-foot-deep gravel and rock pit.

The agreement was signed by Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner, and three negotiators for Irwindale, after a day of meetings. Representing the city were Charles Martin, city manager; Fred Light, development consultant, and Xavier Hermosilla, chief negotiator.

Raiders spokesman John Herrera confirmed the signing and said the team would hold a press conference at noon, PDT, Friday at team headquarters in El Segundo, Calif.

Krivac's Hiring Positive Move For Him, University

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The hiring of Joe Krivac came at an opportune time for both the University of Maryland and the new head football coach of the Terps.

"It was one of those cases of being in the right place at the right time," Krivac said Thursday, recalling his elevation from assistant coach last Dec. 10.

He took over after Bobby Ross, finally confirmed years of speculation that he wanted to move on, soon after the Terps posted an uncharacteristic 5-5 record.

The 52-year-old Krivac, happy in the area where he has lived 13 years while serving two stints as assistant at Maryland and one at Navy, offered the stability the Terps needed.

"He wants to be here," offensive John Sorna told reporters on the Atlantic Coast Conference's Operation Football tour. "He's the kind of coach the program needs ... one the fans can get to know, and get behind."

Krivac had not actively sought a head coaching job for years, and was happy as an assistant when the Maryland job opened. Within 24 hours after being interviewed, he had the job.

"I always thought this was a good place to be," Krivac said. "The pluses far outweigh the disadvantages. This can be one of the top 25 jobs in the country. There are a lot of places you can go where you don't have as good a chance of winning as at Maryland."

Krivac acknowledged improvements were needed at Maryland — something that Ross harped on frequently — but added: "I'd much prefer to have good players, and not as good a facility."

Although the Terps are coming off only their second non-winning season in 14 years, Krivac still has a nucleus of good players.

While he seeks more depth at running back and tight end as the season opener at Syracuse on Sept. 5 approaches, he has 43 lettermen back.

"We have a chance to be a pretty good team if we stay healthy and get help at running back," he said.

The Terps were already thin at running back, with sophomore Bren Lowery the most experienced returnee, when junior Mike Anderson was diagnosed as having leukemia just before fall practice opened.

Otherwise, nine starters return from an offense which averaged 384 yards a game in 1986.

They include senior quarterback Dan Henning, who set eight school records in his first year at quarterback, the entire line, and a raft of top receivers.

Ferrell Edmunds, rated one of the best tight ends in the nation, and wide receivers James Milling, Vernon Joines and John Bonato are back. They combined for 104 receptions a year ago.

They will be joined by graduate student Azizuddin Abdur-Ra'of, who caught 35 passes in 1985 and then sat out most of 1986 with a torn Achilles tendon.

The defense, which yielded 379 yards a game last season, will have a new look under Krivac.

He has junked the wide-tackle-6, a defense geared to stop the running game, in favor of a multiple defense featuring three down linemen and four defensive backs.

"The key," said Krivac, "is whether we're going to be good enough to play it," jokingly adding that fans may wind up clamoring for the old defense that Maryland has employed since 1972.

The defense will be headed by nose guard Bob Arnold and linebackers Kevin Walker and Richie Petitbon, all seniors.

Junior J.B. Brown is the only returning starter in the deep secondary, and junior is the lone cornerback with game experience.

HESS TRIBUTE — About 80 Nazi supporters gathered at a memorial for German war dead in Pretoria, South Africa, Thursday to pay tribute to Rudolph Hess, the former deputy of Adolf Hitler. Hess, 93, died in Spandau prison earlier this week from what British authorities said was self-inflicted strangulation. A photograph of Hess and a wreath were placed at the base of the memorial. The ceremony ended with Nazi salutes. (AP Laser-photo)

Toll In British Rampage Climbs

HUNGERFORD, England (AP) — Townspeople consoled each other today as the death toll in a horrifying shooting spree rose to 15 and more information emerged about the gunman who cheerfully took target practice a day before his rampage.

Myrtle Gibbs, a 63-year-old woman shot while she sat in her wheelchair enjoying the sun, died late Thursday of multiple gunshot wounds, said a statement from Princess Margaret's Hospital in nearby Swindon. She died without knowing that her husband, Victor, was killed trying to save her.

Fourteen others wounded in Wednesday's massacre were hospitalized today. One of them, Ian Playle, 34, was in critical condition.

Local residents started a fund to help the bereaved, and phone calls from people offering contributions poured into radio stations.

National banks set up accounts in branches around the country. Millionaire Peter de Savary, whose nearby estate draws many tourists and employs townspeople, donated 10,000 pounds ($16,000).

A wreath was placed on the steps of the town hall bearing the inscription: "To all those who fell on August 19, 1987."

In this close-knit community of 5,000 people, 60 miles west of London, most people knew at least one of the victims of 27-year-old Michael Ryan's indiscriminate rampage, which ended when he shot himself in the head in an empty school.

More information was emerging about the gun-loving man whom neighbors described as a loner with a doting mother. She was one of his victims.

Ryan's aunt, Connie Ryan, recalled in an interview with Independent Television News today that Ryan once told her he had gone hunting rabbits and pulled a gun on a man he encountered in a field.

This man was "much bigger than himself," she said, "so Michael took a gun out of his pocket and held it at him and the chap ran away, he said, which just goes to prove the power of the gun."

Andrew White, a staff member at the Tunnel Shooting Club where

Ryan was a member, said the gunman spent an hour practicing shooting there Tuesday afternoon, then called out cheerfully as he left the range, "See you about, cheerio!"

In a television interview Thursday with the British Broadcasting Corp., White described Ryan as an "average shot" and very safety-conscious on the range.

"He phoned in the morning and said could he come and shoot at 2 in the afternoon," White said. "He used two targets, no problems, and he just left the range. He was a very polite man, very articulate, smartly dressed in casual clothes. He gave us no concern at all."

Thames Valley police were still at a loss to explain the reason for the shooting.

One of Ryan's first victims was his 60-year-old widowed mother, Dorothy. He shot her, set fire to the house they shared, and walked through the town firing a semi-automatic Kalashnikov assault rifle at his neighbors and anyone else who crossed his path.

At a news conference Thursday, police said Ryan was "lucid and reasonable" in talking with officers who cornered him in the school where he committed suicide.

Iran Admits It Mined Gulf Area To Protest U.S. Ships

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iran admitted planting mines in the Persian Gulf region "to defend our coastlines" against foreign fleets as wind-whipped sand delayed a convoy of American-escorted Kuwaiti tankers heading up the waterway.

The acknowledgment, made Thursday night in a Tehran Radio dispatch, was Iran's first about the mines, which the Pentagon says have delayed commercial shipping from the gulf's northern reaches to an anchorage outside its mouth.

The third convoy of American warships and Kuwaiti tankers was stopped near the spot where the super-tanker Bridgeton hit a mine July 24 and where concerns over mines delayed the second convoy for about 12 hours.

The Tehran Radio dispatch said stepped-up U.S. military presence in the region had justified Iran's placing of mines.

Iran is capable of clearing of the mines, but it cannot agree to the presence of foreign fleets in the region, the state-run radio quoted Kamal Kharrazi, the supervisor of Iran's war publicity headquarters, as saying.

Kharrazi told a news conference Thursday night that Iran is using mines for defense, not to threaten the security of shipping in the gulf, the radio said.

"Given the present situation, the fundamental question today is why the United States does not leave the region," he was quoted as saying in the broadcast.

On Wednesday, Iranian commandos firing from a motorized dinghy attacked the Bribir, a Yugoslav freighter, shipping sources said. No injuries were reported.

Kharrazi said such actions as that attack and the mining of waters in the Gulf of Oman, just south of the Persian Gulf, were "in line with justifications provided by the United States for its presence in the region," Tehran Radio reported.

An American-operated super-tanker carrying Iranian oil was damaged by a mine Aug. 11 in an anchorage off the port of Fujairah, in the Gulf of Oman. Before the incident, the port had been considered a safe haven from the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. More than 330 ships have been attacked by Iran or Iraq since the war broke out.

"We are stressing that Iran is making efforts to use its fleet and clear mines in international waters and that by using mines, Iran is not refusing security to shipping in the gulf."

Corazon Heads Rite

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino led 2,000 people today in services marking the fourth anniversary of the assassination of her husband, without whom she said her country would be "sitting in darkness."

After the ceremony, thousands of people marched through Manila shouting "Down with Cory!" and demanding she roll back fuel prices and increase workers' wages.

Mrs. Aquino joined Cardinal Jaime L. Sin, the archbishop of Manila, and other dignitaries for memorial services in Santo Domingo Church, where Sen. Benigno Aquino Jr. lay in state after his assassination Aug. 21, 1983, at Manila International Airport.

Aquino's murder, moments after returning to the Philippines from three years exile in the United States, unleashed a wave of public outrage that most commentators believe paved the way for the ouster of President Ferdinand Marcos in February 1986.

Mrs. Aquino was swept to power in a civilian-military uprising that toppled Marcos, who fled to Hawaii with his wife, Imelda.

"Without Ninoy, I wouldn't be the president of this great and proud country, respected by the world," Mrs. Aquino said, referring to her husband by his nickname. "Without him, we would still be sitting in darkness."

HBO Schedules Trilogy Depicting Vietnam War

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Platoon," "Full Metal Jacket," "Goodnight, Saigon," and now the network series "Tour of Duty."

The Vietnam War is popular film fare right now. A bad time, perhaps, for executive producer Georg Stanford Brown to launch his "Vietnam War Story" on HBO. The trilogy deserves a spotlight, not just a spot in the crowd.

Brown is a former actor ("The Rookies") who has become a successful director of such television shows as "Hill Street Blues," "Miami Vice" and "Cagney & Lacey," which stars his wife, Tyne Daly. Brown, Daly and Edward Gold formed Nexus Productions, and "Vietnam War Story" is the company's first project.

The three half-hour stories inspired by real-life accounts from veterans make their debut as a 90-minute special Aug. 29 on HBO. The three segments will be repeated individually throughout September.

"The Pass" is set in a Vietnamese brothel that caters to U.S. soldiers by evening, the Viet Cong after hours.

We meet three American soldiers on passes. Two are hardened veterans of the bush. The third is a behind-the-lines clerk who hungers for action — and he gets it unexpectedly when one of his war-weary new buddies announces he's not going back to the fighting and hides in a storage room.

After the speakeasy has closed, the two remaining Americans are trapped as the enemy unknowingly surrounds them.

In "The Mine," a squad of grunts is assigned a new man, K.C. They think he's a fresh recruit, until they see his scars. He has been returned to the front after being wounded. He shuns their attempts at friendship and refuses to talk about himself. The rest of the squad soon distrusts him.

Out on patrol, K.C. steps on a weight-sensitive mine. If he steps off, it will explode, so he must stand there for hours, under a blazing sun, watched over by two fellow grunts who don't like him but have been assigned to keep him company until a promised explosives team shows up. They all know it never will.

As the day wears on, K.C. wears down and finally confesses his biggest fear and the horror behind it.

"Home" is set in a military hospital stateside. Zadig, an irreverent amputee, is self-appointed cheerleader for the rest of the disabled vets in his ward, chiding them to overcome their lost limbs, lives and spirits while repressing his own pain.

"From now on, we gotta rely on our brains, charm and dynamic personalities," he tells the depressed Olson, who responds, "You mean we're in that much trouble?"

When the Marines announce Zadig will be awarded a Silver Star, the others don't think he should accept it.

"What I did, what they're giving me that medal for, I didn't do it for the president, I didn't do it for no Silver Star," Zadig counters. "I was doing it for my buddies. I didn't trade my leg for a medal. I lost it helping my buddies."

The three pieces are very different, free-standing films.

"The Pass," directed by Kevin Hooks, never leaves the brothel, compressing the war and its effects on three very different kinds of men into a few claustrophobic rooms.

Brown directed "The Mine." Its outdoor action grinds to a standstill on the rim of the mine-studded rice patty. The sun rises and the tension builds to a cathartic ending.

Ray Danton directed "Home," an inspirational tear-jerker that teeters on the brink of corniness but doesn't go over the edge. Zadig speaks for the Everyman who went to Vietnam honorably and wound up just struggling to survive.

Both "The Pass" and "The Mine" were written by Patrick S. Duncan, a Vietnam veteran who serves as co-producer of the trilogy. "Home" was written by Ronald Rubin.

The actors are mostly unknowns, the performances all standouts. Nicholas Cascone is Zadig in "Home." Eriq La Salle plays K.C. in "The Mine." Tony Becker, Wendell Pierce and Merritt Buttrick are the three soldiers in "The Pass."

HBO says it has been negotiating with Brown, who is executive producer, to develop the trilogy into a series.

As evidenced by "Vietnam War Story," he would have more freedom on less-censored cable to portray the war realistically than the producers of CBS' "Tour of Duty" will have on network prime time.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pop star Madonna, whose tour of the nation this summer drew sell-out crowds, said she ate out of trash cans and begged for a place to stay when she first came to New York.

Rather Sets Off Exchange With Remark About Hostage

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a joyful time for ABC News when former correspondent Charles Glass escaped his captors in Lebanon 62 days after he was kidnapped in Beirut.

But that big story triggered bickering among the networks over ABC's exclusive first interview with Glass and CBS anchor Dan Rather's suggestion of doubt Glass was really a hostage.

In his "CBS Evening News" broadcast Tuesday night, Rather described Glass as "a young American who says he was a hostage."

"I actually jumped when I heard that and looked around the room to see if anybody else heard," said Jeanee von Essen, CNN vice president of foreign news. "Several other people were staring at the monitor. They had the same reaction I did."

ABC's Ted Koppel, who conducted the lengthy interview with Glass for ABC's "World News Tonight" and "Nightline," called Rather's remark "beneath contempt."

Glass said he escaped, though some officials thought his captors might have allowed him to go free. But no one had questioned that he was kidnapped, along with the son of the Lebanese defense minister, who was later released.

Glass had left ABC News to write a book about the Middle East.

"If Rather is saying Glass in some way concocted his kidnapping, I find that to be an outrage," Koppel told Newsday. "Either Rather did not write that himself and did not read the script before he went on the air, or he has lost all sense of proportions."

Rather went on vacation Wednesday and was not available for comment, but "CBS Evening News" executive producer Tom Bettag told Newsday the circumstances of Glass' abduction were "murky" and Rather's remarks were a "qualification" of the story.

Bettag called Koppel Thursday and, according to Koppel, said Rather did not intend to imply that Glass was not kidnapped.

words, I'm preped to leave it at that."

On the other side of the controversy, CBS, NBC and CNN complained that ABC bought up all the satellite time from Damascus, preventing them from feeding tape of Glass in time for newscasts.

Too Much Television?

NEW YORK (AP) — Kirk Douglas says that when he looks at Wall Street executives implicated in insider trading, he wonders if their minds have been muddled from watching "too much lousy television."

"When these fellows in famous brokerage houses give themselves code names and go to secret rendezvous to exchange bags of cash, do they know who they are?" Douglas writes in this Sunday's Parade magazine. "Or have they just been watching too much lousy television?"

The problem, Douglas says, is people become confused about the line between make-believe and reality.

"What made Dennis Levine or Ivan Boesky choose to do what they did?" Douglas asks. "Do they want all this money just so they can live like characters on 'Dynasty'?"

"Prague Spring"
 Nineteen years ago today, 500,000 Soviet and other Warsaw Pact troops invaded Czechoslovakia to stop Czech communist leaders from liberalizing their society and ending the absolute domination of the Communist Party. Czech premier Oldrich Cernik had expressed the liberals' goals this way: "We have resolved...to put an end to the system that has discredited the ideas of socialism in the eyes of the people...and to build a profoundly democratic, humane, socialist society."

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the head of the Czech Communist Party in August of 1968?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Pluto's orbit takes it further from the Sun than Neptune.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Aug. 22
GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning confusion gives way to a remarkable insight into just what can be done to improve your situation. Focus your attention on the cultural side of life.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): You can enjoy an amusement this evening which you had little hope would materialize earlier today. TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may be at a loss as to how a family situation should be handled, but later you see clearly what the best course is.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Get in touch with those individuals who you've been wanting to get to know better. Be sure to budget your time.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Try to follow the methods which have proven effective for those who are very successful in business.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Concentrate on improving your contacts in the business world today, and a lot of headway can be made. Be positive.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Do not abandon a relationship which means much to you over a trivial matter. Try to repair it instead.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Get an early start on handling matters which have been put off for too long. Any further delays could mean trouble.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Your income can increase considerably if you simply follow orders to the letter at work. Opportunities abound.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Study your present situation carefully before making any desired changes in your lifestyle.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Try not to take on too many projects at one time and concentrate on one at a time, with one angle on each.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Don't try to force yourself to behave in an ultra-modern fashion. Sometimes older methods work better.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Consider what changes at home would make your environment more efficient and comfortable. Be cautious driving.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she may need some specialized training early in life, but will develop quickly, reason very well and do very well in academics. Your son or daughter will respond best to encouragement, praise and other rewards when something especially fine is accomplished.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

 One of the fascinations of duplicate bridge is that it is a perpetual challenge. In light of the importance of overtricks and undertricks, you can never afford to relax.

 Today's hand would have been a bore at rubber bridge. With the help of a spade ruff declarer can make 11 tricks, so the play would be over in less than a minute. However, it turned up in a duplicate event, and declarer found a clever way to make an extra overtrick.
 There was nothing remarkable about the auction. Declarer could reasonably expect that his partner held at least two hearts, so he closed out the auction with a jump to game in his long suit.
 The queen of diamonds was a natural opening lead. Declarer won in dummy and made a clever psychological play—he immediately ruffed a diamond. He then crossed back to the table with a high trump and led the jack of clubs.

Imagine East's situation. He had just learned that South had started with but one diamond, and it never dawned on him that declarer's distribution could be 4-7-1-1. Thinking declarer was taking a club finesse, he not unnaturally played low.
 Declarer had no problem about what to play from hand. He was not really surprised when the king won, and this second overtrick was good for an absolute top on the board.
 We are not going to speculate what club East would have played had declarer simply drawn trumps and then led a club from dummy. But we have no doubt whatsoever that South's clever play in revealing his diamond distribution convinced East that if he followed with a low club when the jack was led, declarer would have to guess.

THE TURBO THAT'S GOING TO MAKE SAABS AND VOLVOS MOVE SLOWER.

PRESENTING THE PEUGEOT 505 TURBOS.
Car and Driver recently described the 150-hp Peugeot 505 Turbo S as a car with "instant launch capabilities."
And now, these cars are about to rocket out of the showroom. Because until September 30th, you'll get as much as $3000* in cash when you buy a Peugeot 505 Turbo S sedan or wagon. You can take the money and run, or use it as a down payment. You can even use it as a down payment on a lease or financing.

But besides $3000, you'll also get a car with standard features and amenities (like ABS) only available from Saab and Volvo at extra cost, if at all.

So stop in for a test drive. You'll see what Saab and Volvo are worried about.

*See us for details. Manufacturer's suggested retail prices do not include destination, taxes and title charges.

HOW

Talks Set On Missing Americans

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Two U.S. government teams will travel to Vietnam next week to discuss the fate of Americans missing in action in the Vietnam war, sources said today.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the three days of meetings will begin Tuesday. They will follow a high-level exchange between the two sides in Hanoi early this month.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman declined to comment on the talks. Officials in Washington had said earlier the two sides would meet again in late August.

The United States hopes the Vietnamese will help resolve questions about 1,776 Americans still listed as MIAs. The Vietnamese have expressed a desire for U.S. aid to help alleviate social problems, some of which are the legacies of the long, bloody war with the United States.

The sources said the two teams would hold simultaneous talks with Vietnamese counterparts.

Earlier this month, U.S. envoy John W. Vessey, the highest American official to travel to Vietnam in the past decade, met with Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach.

The two agreed Hanoi would help with the MIA effort while Washington would address Vietnam's request for aid. But details of the agreement were not spelled out at that meeting.

Reagan Will Meet Contra Leaders

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — While reaffirming support for a cease-fire in Nicaragua, the White House announced Thursday that President Reagan would meet next week with Contra leaders to highlight the U.S. commitment to the rebels fighting to topple the leftist Managua government.

Announcement of the meeting Aug. 27 in Los Angeles came as concern grew among conservative supporters of the Contras in and out of the administration that the Central American peace plan could end U.S. military aid to the American-backed rebels.

"The purpose of the meeting is to demonstrate the president's continuing commitment to the Nicaraguan freedom fighters and review developments in the peace process," said Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman. "The president has said from the beginning he will not desert the Contras."

Fitzwater said the administration wanted to demonstrate "to conservative leaders," to the Contras and to the nation its commitment to the rebels.

In addition to six political leaders of the rebels, Reagan will meet with Enrique Bermudez, military commander of the Northern Front of the Nicaraguan resistance. Reagan wanted to get the best update on the military situation, Fitzwater said in explaining the session with Bermudez.

Blind Sailor Bowing Out

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who tried to become the first blind person to sail solo across the Atlantic said today that he won't make a second attempt this year.

"It's late in the (sailing) season and frankly, money problems, getting the necessary backup equipment means that I don't think I should try for it in what's left of the summer," said Jim Dickson in an interview on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Dickson left Portsmouth, R.I., for Plymouth, England on Aug. 4, but was forced to make a detour south to Bermuda when his 36-foot sloop's satellite navigation system and autopilot broke down on the trip's fifth day.

The journey was further delayed when Dickson had to ride out rough seas and heavy winds from Tropical Storm Arlene in the yacht, the Eye Opener. He said last week the Freedom 36-type yacht needed about $12,000 in repairs following the storm.

Dickson said today that although he was calling off his trans-Atlantic sail, he was not disappointed with the outcome of his effort.

"I set out to get the country talking about the appalling conditions and lack of opportunity facing the country's disabled, and I think I did that far beyond my wildest dreams. And I've also had a terrific time on the Freedom 36, which is a wonderfully fast, safe, and dry boat," he said.

The yachtsman has said a solo crossing aided by a talking computer is a vital part of his efforts to challenge prejudice against the handicapped. He had said last week that the onset of the height of the hurricane season might prevent him from completing the sail.
