Iraq Stepping Up Attacks

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said today its warplanes raided two industrial cities deep inside Iran and attacked three vessels in the Persian Gulf. Shipping sources said at least one Iranian-flagged vessel was on fire.

Iran said it downed three Iraqi jets and warned Iraqi civilians to stay away from economic and industrial sites across Iraq to elude retaliatory attacks.

Meanwhile, two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers escorted by American warships were cruising northward in the gulf a day after Iranian commandos in a speedboat raked a Kuwaiti vessel with machine gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades. That attack followed three days of Iraqi raids on Iranian oil installations.

In Washington, the White House on Monday termed the timing of Iraq's attacks "deplorable," but called on Iran to comply with a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

The Iraqi announcement brought to eight the number of raids it has claimed on Iranian oil targets since breaking an informal cease-fire in the gulf.

Gulf shipping executives said an Iranian-flagged vessel was on fire near Iran's Larak island oil terminal in the Strait of Hormuz.

The executives, who requested anonymity, said they have been unable to identify the burning vessel or establish if it had been struck in one of the raids reported by Baghdad's military communiques.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, reported that three Iraqi jets were downed by interceptors and ground-fire in today's raids, although Iraq said all its planes returned safely. IRNA said two of the planes were shot down over the gulf and the third was downed by ground fire over Khuzistan province. Ahvaz, one of the cities Iraq said it attack today, is the capital of Khuzistan.

Tehran Radio quoted a spokesman for the War Information Headquarters as saying Iran will "shell and bomb military, industrial and economic centers in Iraq."

The radio quoted the unidentified spokesman as calling on "The Iraqi people who live near these centers or work at industrial and economic centers to evacuate immediately to evade Iran's retaliatory fire."

Iran has vowed to hit shipping in the gulf in retaliation for the attacks, and said it would not hesitate to fire on the U.S.-escorted ships. On Monday, Iranian commandos in a speedboat raked a Kuwaiti vessel with machine gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades. Iran accuses Kuwait of aiding Iraq.

The Iraqi News Agency said Iraqi warplanes attacked vessels in the gulf in three separate raids today, one at midnight, a second two hours later and a third at midday.

The Iraqi report did not identify the

Bork's Choice Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union, calling the nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court a threat to individual rights, is breaking with its tradition and urging the Senate to defeat the appointment.

Bork is not qualified to be a justice because "he believes the role of the court is to defer to local majorities in almost all situations," the ACLU said.

The organization on Monday departed from its customary neutrality in the selection of judges for only the second time in calling for the Senate to block Bork's confirmation.

The only previous time the ACLU took a position on a Supreme Court nominee was when it opposed President Nixon's appointment of William H. Rehnquist in 1971. The ACLU did not take a position last year when the Senate confirmed Rehnquist as President Reagan's nominee to be chief justice.

"Judge Bork is, in fact, more radical than conservative," ACLU President Norman Dorsen told a news conference. "He is certainly well outside the maintstream of conservative judicial philosophy."

Dorsen drew a distinction between Bork and Antonin Scalia, another conservative judge named to the high court last year by Reagan.

U.S. Ready To Propose U.N. Arms Ban On Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Iraqi attacks on Iranian oil shipments make the Persian Gulf more dangerous, the United States is moving to propose an arms embargo against Iran in the U.N. Security Council.

State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said Monday that renewed Iraqi attacks last weekend after a 45-day self-imposed cease-fire have increased danger in the gulf. The United States has urged Iraq to stop the attacks.

"Clearly, this is a time for restraint on all sides," she said, reading from a prepared statement.

Mrs. Oakley said Iraq's renewed atacks were "not helpful" and that Iran should accept the U.N. cease-fire resolution "as quickly as possible."

She said the Security Council should be asked "very soon" to consider the embargo but declined to say when the United States would propose such a resolution.

She acknowledged, however, that getting an embargo resolution through the council will be more difficult than the cease-fire passed July 20 with the support of permanent council members China and the Soviet Union.

China, which sold Silkworm anti-ship missiles to Iran, or the Soviet Union, whose allies in Eastern Europe provided other arms, can block a sanctions resolution with the veto available to the five permament members of the Security Council. The three others are the United States, Britain and France.

Twice earlier, U.S. diplomats managed to persuade Iraq to hold its fire. But on Saturday, a U.S. official said, Iraqi Ambassador Nizar Hamdoon turned down an appeal for further delay.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., President Reagan's chief spokesman decried Iraq's bombing of Iranian oil facilities and insisted that the administration is pursuing an even-handed policy toward the warring Persian Gulf nations.

Class Of 2000 Begins Its Trek

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

When Pitt County schools open Wednesday, a generation of kindergarten children will begin an educational trek toward the year 2000 for their high school graduation and the turn of the century.

"It's going to be a lot of technological changes they will have to go through in their 13 years of education, and we have to lay the ground work for them," said Bruce Gray, the new principal at Belvoir Elementary School.

"It's going to be a big transition to be able to keep up with these events and prepare them for it," he said. Gray said educators are equipped to meet the challenge.

Echoing his comments, Dr. Clarence Gray, principal of the new Wintergreen Elementary School, said, "In as much as we have high goals and high expectations set for all of our children, we feel we are going to have some of the most qualified citizens of this United States by the year 2000.

"Our kindergarten (children) will be very productive citizens and will certainly have a lot to offer society" as many students will venture away from Pitt County into other parts of the United States and the world, he said.

"We are particularly excited about the beginning of the school year," said Superintendent Eddie West.

"We anticipate an excellent one. Our faculties are excited and eager to begin teaching. Our support staff has worked diligently to make sure that all facilities are ready.

"We also are pleased that we will be beginning the educational careers of the kindergarten students as they will become the graduating class of the year 2000.

"We feel confident that through their years with us it will be a gratifying and enriching experience for them," he said.

Rebecca Oats, the new principal at South Greenville School, said she also is excited about beginning the school year.

"It's a good staff and I'm looking forward to a good year. I've heard positive things about the staff and parent support."

White's Stores May Be Sold

White's Stores Inc., founded here 68 years ago, is expected to be sold to Greenville resident Carlton Taylor by mid-September.

Taylor, owner of Coastal Leasing, said this morning that "we have a contract to purchase" the 12-store chain and said the sale should be final in two weeks.

In addition to the Greenville stores — a 10,000-square-foot store on Dickinson Avenue which now serves as the chain's executive office and a 17,000 square foot store at 2808 E. 10th St. which opened about a year ago — the company operates White's in Ahoskie, Windsor, Washington, Kinston and Mount Olive and Worthington's in Ayden.

Carolina Mills Fabrics stores in Clinton, Morehead City, Jacksonville and Wilson are also a part of the chain.

Taylor, who would not say what the purchase price will be, said "we will be doing some innovative changes ... new marketing ideas. We will be talking about them later."

The stores are presently owned by corporations held by a small group of stockholders, Taylor said, "almost all of them members of the White family ... descendents of Sam White, who founded the business."

Soviets Surprise Arms Negotiators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surprised U.S. officials are reacting cautiously to an apparent Soviet move that would allow the unprecedented detonation of a U.S. bomb on Soviet soil as one means of implementing a verifiable nuclear test-ban treaty.

Col. Gen. Nikolai Chervov, an official of the Soviet defense ministry, said Monday in Washington that if an American weapon were exploded in the Soviet Union in order to fine tune U.S. monitoring devices, the Kremlin would expect to be permitted to explode a Soviet nuclear device at the U.S. test site in Nevada.

Chervov, in a luncheon speech on Capitol Hill, said Soviet willingness to accommodate U.S. efforts to verify a test-ban treaty also might include adoption of the U.S. proposal to implant the Cortex monitoring system at Soviet nuclear test ranges.

The Cortex system includes a monitoring device placed in a hole bored near the site of an atomic explosion to gauge the size and nature of the blast.

The Soviets traditionally have resisted on-site inspection of nuclear weapons facilities and have made no official response to the Cortex proposal.

But Chervov said: "If you want to deploy the Cortex system, we would be prepared to consider that proposal on a mutually acceptable basis."

And he added: "If you want to calibrate the instruments, feel free to come to our test ranges with a nuclear device of your own, and explode it there to make sure that everything is all right."

Max Kampelman, the chief U.S. negotiator to arms reduction talks in Geneva, heard Chervov's remarks, took notes and told reporters the idea is worth pursuing.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., aides to vacationing President Reagan reacted with caution.

"As we have seen so many times in the past, they (the Soviets) say something and then subsequently attach conditions, and that may well be the case this time," said one U.S. official, speaking only on condition he not be identified.

The official said a formal response might wait until the Soviet proposal is presented formally at negotiations in Geneva.

Chervov, a member of the Soviet delegation to last week's conference on U.S.-Soviet relations held at Chautauqua, N.Y., said through an interpreter that "the Soviet Union is prepared to accept any type of verification" on a test-ban agreement.

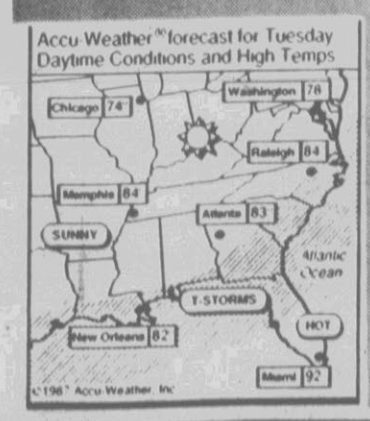

"There is no problem on verification," Chervov said.

He also said he believes there is "no barrier" to prevent the early signing of an agreement eliminating medium-range nuclear missies in Europe but that problems remain on negotiations for deep reductions in strategic missiles.

Kampelman said he agrees with that assessment but still hopes progress can be made in the strategic arms reduction talks.

He added that the broad hint that the Soviets might be able to accept the Cortex system is "a new thought."

Social Services To Rent Building

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Social Services has approved the renting of a building and the hiring of additional staff to man the 1987 Low Income Energy Assistance Program, which is scheduled from Oct. 1 to Feb. 1.

During the board's monthly meeting Monday, director Edward Garrison projected the building would cost about $650 each month for rent and about $135 for utilities. The program assists low-income families in paying heating bills.

In other matters, the board was briefed on changes in the AFDC Emergency Assistance Program, which now has a maximum of $300 available in emergency funds instead of $500. Also a $300 liquid reserve limit (assets) has been added to the $2,200 liquefied resource limit.

Take-home income will be budgeted instead of gross income, and all incomes in a single-unit household will be evaluated.

About $7.1 million have been spent through the program in seven months, Garrison said. The changes are attempts by the state General Assembly to reduce costs.

"This program has served tremendous purposes in Pitt County," especially through the Pitt County Family Violence victims, he said. About 107 of 185 applications were approved for emergency assistance from May through July.

Garrison also reported on several legislative actions in the General Assembly that affect social services.

A Social Services Commission will conduct a six-month study of Social Service Departments in the state to be reported to the General Assembly during the next session.

Social Service Departments will receive $1.5 million to defray costs of implementing Medicaid expansion programs, which includes qualified 19 to 21-year-olds, pregnant women and children under 2-year-olds.

About 3,236 households and 9,551 people were assisted through the Commodities Distribution Program in August with items distributed valuing about $61,664.

Board member Lillian Bradley was appointed to the Long Term Screening Advisory Committee, while Garrison noted their are two positions available for social workers.

The board also approved action on reviews and applications processed by Agency's Income Maintenance Staff July 15 through Aug. 15.

In The Area

Driver Injured

A Tarboro man was seriously injured when his pickup truck went down a 40-foot embankment near Belvoir Sunday about 2:15 a.m.

Trooper C.S. Raines said Tommy James Clemmons, 20, was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital following the accident. He said Clemmons, alone in the vehicle, apparently went to sleep at the wheel while traveling west on N.C. 33, crossed the center line, hit a bridge rail and overturned down the embankment. The accident occurred 12.1 miles west of Greenville near the intersection of N.C. 33 and state road 1409.

Auxiliary Guests

Girls State representatives from Pitt County will be special guests of the American Legion Auxiliary, Pitt County Unit No. 39, which meets Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion Building on St. Andrews Street.

The girls will share with the auxiliary, which sponsored their attendance at Girls State, their experiences at the citizenship school. They are Malana D. Harris of North Pitt High School, Jennifer King and Julie Parks of Rose High School and Sonya Lee of D.H. Conley High School.

A presentation of nursing scholarships and education scholarships will be made.

Assistant Professor

Dr. Barbara A. Murphy has joined the faculty at the East Carolina University School of Medicine as an assistant professor of emergency medicine. She will also be an attending physician in the emergency department at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Before joining the ECU faculty, Dr. Murphy had been medical director of the emergency department at Durham County General Hospital in Durham. Prior to her appointment there, she had been emergency department physician at Albemarle Hospital in Elizabeth City.

She received her undergraduate degree with honors from Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, and later graduated magna cum laude from the Medical College of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

The Dayton, Ohio, native completed a yearlong internship in internal medicine at Geisinger Medical Center in Danville, Pa., prior to a two-year residency in emergency medicine, also at Geisinger.

She is a diplomate of the American Board of Emergency Medicine and is a fellow of the American College of Emergency Physicians.

Murder Charge

A 39-year-old Farmville woman has been charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of her boyfriend, Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said.

Mary Louise Edwards of Route 2, Box 321, Farmville, was charged in connection with the death of Lee Wilbert Draughn, 32, of the same address, who died Sunday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital from injuries sustained two days earlier, Tyson said.

Tyson said Draughn suffered gunshot wounds to his right side in an incident at the residence that was reported at 10 a.m. Friday.

Tyson said Ms. Edwards was originally charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill inflicting serious injury but was later charged with murder after Draughn died.

Tyson said the shooting occurred following a domestic dispute.

USDA Soil Report

The United States will be able to meet food production needs into the next century despite erosion of topsoil that eventually may threaten farmland productivity, according to a report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The report, "The Second Resources Conservation Act Appraisal," is a draft version released for a public comment and is the second appraisal of the nation's soil and water resources conducted in response to the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977. The act requires the USDA to monitor the status of resources on non-federal lands, and to develop programs on conditions that deplete or damage those resources. The comment period ends Sept. 11.

Copies of the report are available for review at the local Soil Conservation Service office in the Federal Building, 215 S. Evans St.

Condition Upgraded

The condition of the woman who had a pancreas transplant at Pitt County Memorial Hospital Aug. 17 has been upgraded to "good" and her name has been released.

Dr. Frank Thomas, the surgeon who performed the transplant surgery, said this morning that Pat Pleasant, 28, of Greenville is making "absolutely splendid progress." He said she is off all insulin and her blood sugar is normal.

A lifelong resident of Pitt County, Ms. Pleasant has been a part-time employee of Sears.

Thomas did not estimate how soon Ms. Pleasant can expect to go home from the hospital. He said she has been moved from an intensive care bed to a general care area.

Japanese ... For Just $5

ECU News Bureau

The $5 college course in conversational Japanese has taken hold — and is gaining some measure of fame — at East Carolina University.

It will be offered again this fall, as a non-credit evening course beginning Sept. 3, through the ECU Division of Continuing Education and Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures at a total cost of $5 to cover registration.

Professor Luis Acevez, instructor in Spanish and Latin and holder of two first-class certificates for teaching Japanese from the Japanese Ministry of Education, will again waive his fee for instructing the course.

It will continue for 12 weeks, through Nov. 19, from 6:30 p.m. until 8 p.m. on Thursdays in Brewster Building, D-112, on the ECU campus.

Some area industries with Japanese connections have indicated they plan to send students to the $5 course, Acevez said.

Abbott Grant Given

Susan Overton, a student at Pitt Community College, has been awarded a Clara Abbott Foundation award.

She is one of 1,048 students in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico to receive one of the grants for the 1987-88 academic year.

Since 1953, the foundation has awarded more than 12,000 one-year grants valued at more than $10 million to sons and daughters of Abbott Laboratories employees.

New Park Hours

A change in the operating schedule at River Park North goes into effect today.

The park will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. The pedal boats will operate weekends only. The park will be open Labor Day Monday, with the pedal boats available from 1 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. on that date. The park is normally closed on Mondays.

The Nature Science Center is still closed due to construction under way and is expected to be open later in September.

Theft Arrests

Greenville police arrested three people in connection with two thefts reported to the department on Monday.

Officer J.M. Jones said Derrick M. Jackson, 17, of 1005 W. Fifth St. was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of three cassette tapes from Rose's at Stanton Square Shopping Center in an incident reported at 10:26 a.m.

Jones said Gwendolyn Louise Whitehurst, 18, of Route 1, Grimesland, was charged with possession of stolen goods in connection with the incident.

Officer K.M. Smeltzer said Muye Akinkuotu, 37, of 1161 Mulberry Lane was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of a compact disc from the Record Bar in an incident reported at 5:30 p.m.

ECU Summer Camps

Approximately 285 elementary and high school students were enrolled in two residential summer camp programs sponsored by East Carolina University this summer.

The camps, directed by Dr. Floyd Mattheis of ECU's Summer Science Programs office, were the ECU Summer Science Camp for children in grades four through eight at Camp Caroline near Arapahoe, and the ECU Science Camp for Academically Gifted Students in grades seven through 10, held on the ECU campus.

Each camp was offered in weekly sessions, with students in particular age and grade groups attending specified sessions.

Both camp programs are offered each summer by ECU.

Program For PCHSC

Kathy Wahl will present the program for the Pitt County Health and Safety Council when the organization resumes its regular monthly meetings Thursday at noon at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Ms. Wahl, who is associated with the Rehabilitation Center of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, will present a program on "Rehabilitation of the Injured Worker."

Council chaplain H.P. Norman will install officers for the coming year.

Convention Speaker

Dr. Thomas G. Irons, associate professor of pediatrics at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has been selected to deliver an address at the national convention of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the nation's largest medical specialty organization.

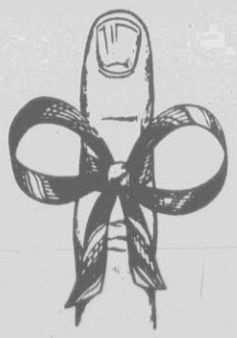

The gathering will convene in mid-September in San Francisco.

Irons, three-time recipient of the Clinical Sciences Faculty Award at the School of Medicine, was selected as the outstanding speaker at last year's AAFP national meeting.

His topic for this year's session will be "Office Management of Asthma." Following the convention, Irons has been invited by the organization to participate in a follow-up meeting in Hawaii. He is one of three academic physicians nationwide invited to conduct educational sessions at the meeting.

Don't Forget

Silver Worth $6,000 Is Reported Stolen

Greenville police said the theft of $6,000 worth of silver flatware was among eight thefts reported to the department monday.

According to Officer L.E. White, the 45 pieces of silver were taken from a chest at 1953F Quail Ridge in an incident reported at 10:15 a.m.

Officer L.R. Kepler said radios and speakers were taken from several different cars parked at Auto World at 1600 N. Greene St. in an incident reported at 8:04 a.m. But Kepler said the property taken from the vehicle was recovered at the scene.

Officer J.W. Corbett said a .38 caliber pistol was taken from The Outdoor Shop at 3194A E. 10th St. in an incident reported at 9:45 a.m., while Officer M.J. Nobles said a wallet containing $35 in cash was taken from a purse in a classroom at Sadie Saulter School on Howell St. in an incident reported at 4:16 p.m. and a bicycle taken from the West Greenville gym in an incident reported at 6:24 p.m.

Officer M.T. Scheid said a car bra was taken from a vehicle parked on Washington Street near the Third Street intersection in an incident reported at 4:19 p.m. and a three-foot tall plant taken from 402 S. Library St. in an incident reported at 4:50 p.m., while Officer W.S. Heath said a spare tire, air filter and breather cap were taken from a car parked at A3 Oakmont Square in an incident reported at 4:49 p.m.

Hospital May Be Wrong For Some

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Many children and adolescents with minor psychiatric problems are needlessly hospitalized when they could be treated more quickly, more inexpensively and at least as effectively outside the hospital, researchers have concluded.

In the past five years there has been a four-fold increase in the number of children and adolescents admitted to private, profit-making psychiatric hospitals, even though there is no evidence that hospital care is superior to outside care, says Rodney Lowman, a psychologist at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C.

Indeed, hospitalization can be harmful, leading patients and their families to become dependent upon the hospital's artificial support network rather than resolving difficulties in the family, Lowman said at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association on Monday.

Adolescents are admitted to private psychiatric hospitals too frequently and they are staying in the hospital longer, he said.

Steven Gutstein, a psychologist and the director of the Houston Child Guidance Center, estimated that the average cost of a single episode of hospitalization in a private psychiatric hospital in Houston is $40,000.

Equivalent care given through his center, which does not require hospitalization, costs an average of $3,200, less than one-tenth of the cost of hospital care, Gutstein said.

In response to those charges, Robert Thomas, executive director of the National Association of Private Psychiatric Hospitals, said, "Each hospital has admission criteria, and a patient must meet these criteria before the hospital is considered as the appropriate setting."

He said in a telephone interview that the increase in the hospitalization of children and adolescents "has been the major growth of the hospital industry over the past five years," but he said the incidence of mental disorders has increased, too.

"There's been an increase in the use of drugs and alcohol," he said. "Suicide is way up, too."

Lowman and Gutstein said some seriously disturbed children and adolescents do need to be hospitalized. But most children and adolescents sent to psychiatric hospitals are diagnosed either with adjustment disorder or conduct disorder, both relatively mild ailments, they said.

Adjustment disorders include family problems, poor performance in school and mild depression, Lowman said. Conduct disorders include running away from home, disobeying curfews and mild drug abuse.

Lowman criticized aggressive advertising by private psychiatric hospitals in the pursuit of patients, "often using what we regard as scare tactics." Such advertising is prompted by competition in areas where there are more psychiatric hospital beds than there are patients, he said

Military Finds 4,801 With AIDS Virus

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With more than 3 million individuals tested, the Pentagon now has identified 3,035 military personnel and 1,766 recruit applicants as carriers of the deadly AIDS virus, new statistics show.

The statistics, which update totals that were last compiled in March, were obtained Monday by The Associated Press. The U.S. military is conducting by far the largest testing program of its type in the world.

Under Pentagon regulations, personnel with the virus are allowed to remain in the service as long as they show no signs of the actual disease. However, applicants with the AIDS virus are refused entry into the military.

Of the 3.05 million tested, 4,801 "positives" have been discovered for an overall rate of almost 1.6 cases per 1,000.

As has been the case with previous testing results, the rate for recruit applicants — generally younger men and women — continues to run at roughly 1.5 cases per 1,000, while the rate for active-duty personnel is holding steady at slightly more than 1.6 per 1,000.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, attacks the body's immune system and its ability to resist infection. No cure has been found for the disease, which can be spread through sexual contact and tainted blood.

The Defense Department decided in the fall of 1985 to begin testing all recruit applicants as well as all active-duty personnel, citing the need to protect military blood supplies. No other government agency or private concern has launched such a massive screening program.

Military regulations restrict personnel who test positive from taking any overseas duty assignments and require that their condition be closely monitored.

According to the latest statistics for recruit applicants, the Pentagon has now tested 1.18 million individuals who wanted to join the military, in the process identifying 1,766 men and women who tested positively. Those figures, covering the period from October 1985 through July, produce an infection rate of 1.49 cases per 1,000 tested.

On the active-duty side, figures compiled by each of the four services show the Pentagon is steadily making headway in the drive to test every man and woman already in the service. There are about 2.1 million individuals on active duty, and 1.87 million have now been tested.

Combining all four services, 3,035 individuals have tested positive for the disease, producing a rate of 1.63 cases per 1,000 tested. But the infection rate varies for each service.

For example, the Navy said Monday it had tested 531,262 active-duty personnel as of the end of June, finding 1,320 "positives" for a rate of 2.48 cases per 1,000.

The Army said that as of Aug 1, it had tested 709,056 men and women and discovered 1,031 cases for a rate of 1.45 per 1,000.

The Air Force said that as of the end of August, it had tested 441,119 of its active-duty personnel and found 497 cases of infection for a rate of 1.13 per 1,000.

And the Marine Corps said that as of the end of June, it had tested 185,591 individuals and found 187 cases for a rate of 1.0 per 1,000.

In June, military researchers told the Third International Conference on AIDS they thought the Navy's infection rate exceeded those of the other services because Navy bases were located in those parts of the country where the disease is most common.

"Our bases are coastal," Dr. Robert Redfield of the Walter Reed Army Institute told the conference. "And the East Coast and West Coast is where the heart of the epidemic is."

New Definition Will Increase Total Of AIDS-Infected Patients

ATLANTA (AP) — Beginning today, the number of Americans with AIDS will increase by as much as 15 percent because of a new definition for the deadly disease.

The national Centers for Disease Control will begin listing in its AIDS statistics patients whose physicians may have presumed they had the deadly disease, but whose cases did not meet the agency's official definition.

As a result, more Americans than ever before will be deemed AIDS patients — now more than 40,000 — and AIDS fatalities, which now number more than 23,000.

"I expect there will be a jump over the course of a month or two," said Dr. Tim Dondero, chief of the surveillance and evaluation branch for the CDC's AIDS program, adding that the case count could jump 10 percent to 15 percent.

"We know that a number of states have a backlog of cases initially picked up and labeled 'suspect' cases, or 'AIDS-like disease,' that will now qualify as AIDS under the new definition."

The goal is to give state and federal health officials a more accurate picture of how widespread AIDS is.

Dondero said researchers, since the disease was first reported in 1981, have been careful not to be too quick to pronounce a case AIDS.

The new definition, approved by state epidemiologists earlier this year, adds a number of cases that previously were diagnosed only "presumptively" — in a clinic setting, but without laboratory confirmation. Also added will be certain cases of AIDS-related emaciation, tuberculosis infection or dementia.

The advent of a test that signals infection with the virus that causes AIDS has enabled doctors and researchers to better confirm cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. There is no known cure for the disease, which destroys the immune system.

"The bottom line," Dondero said, "is that there are a limited number of conditions that are so ... clinically characteristic that, in combination with antibody evidence (the test) — that's AIDS."

Reporting AIDS cases to state and federal health officials takes time and paperwork. New York, with 11,656 cases, ranks first; California, at 9,419, is second. Those states probably will see the addition of hundreds of cases.

In states with few AIDS cases, the new definition may make little difference.

"We've only had a couple of (suspected) cases that didn't meet the old definition," said Martha Tenuz, surveillance coordinator for the state Office of Epidemiology in New Mexico, which has reported 66 AIDS cases.

Florida Family Seeks Home For Brothers

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — The Ray family said today they are looking for a new home in Florida where people understand their three AIDS-exposed hemophiliac sons are not dangerous — unlike Arcadia, where they were shunned and their house burned.

"We've had a few offers, but nothing's come through yet. We're just going to wait and see were it leads to from there," Clifford Ray said today on NBC-TV's "Today Show."

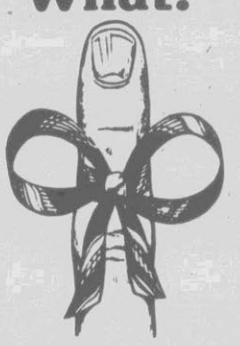

Ray, his wife, Louise, and attorney Bill Earl did not specify where the family might move, following the suspicious fire that gutted their house Friday. But Earl said Dade and Sarasota counties had "enlightened" school systems.

Wherever they go, the Rays said they are not sure they can escape the fear and threats that drove them into seclusion and out of Arcadia.

Mrs. Ray said she could tolerate the threats the family received when her children returned to DeSoto County public school under a federal court order, but she could not take the chance a member of her family might be hurt.

Ricky, 10, Robert, 9 and Randy, 8, remained in seclusion Monday along with their 6-year-old sister, Candy.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Good And Bad

There was good news and bad on the East Carolina University campus last week.

The good news was that a record enrollment has been set with the fall semester. The university announced that 14,882 students were registered for the new term.

The bad news involved the charges brought against three former and one present basketball players in connection with the theft of property from dormitory rooms. The guilt or innocence of these young men will be properly established in the courts. Nevertheless this and other such incidents at ECU and elsewhere are doing nothing for the reputation of college athletics.

ECU will need to study its entire athletic program to determine the effectiveness of its orientation and counseling programs for student athletes. The word student is important and is the operative phrase. All colleges and universities must admit their athletes based first on their ability to maintain college level work. For some there will be almost instant fame due to their athletic endeavors. Mature guidance is important to help them maintain their perspectives.

It is easy to place blame when something goes wrong. That is not the issue here, however. With a group as large as the athletes at a major university there will never be absolute control over every individual's actions. At this point ECU must do what it can to help athletes cope with the unique problems that they face on campus.

Beyond that, the university administration is quite proud of the fact that a record enrollment was set and that enrollment is now nearing 15,000. In a time when ECU could have been facing a declining enrollment situation its student population is thriving.

That fact tells us that the university is popular as a place to obtain a higher education and certainly a large part of that is due to development of courses of study which are relevant to the careers which involve young people into the next century.

No one is pleased with the problems which arise on a campus as large as ECU's. The record enrollment, nevetheless, tells us that the positive things under way on campus far offset the negatives.

Unfit Children

Seeing adults faithfully follow a regimen of walking, jogging or running to maintain a degree of physical fitness is part of everyday people-watching. A former chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics warns, however, youngsters appear reluctant to follow the example.

In fact, Dr. Joseph Zanga, former head of the Academy's Committee on School Health, says a whole generation of children largely avoids the fitness effort. He says recent studies show the proportion of overweight American children has increased more than 50 percent over two decades and reminds trim children are less apt to develop heart disease as adults, and that fat children have a better chance if the entire family diets and exercises.

Zanga claims that while parents are rearing overweight children, physical education programs in the schools are dwindling and the result is flabby youngsters. He has something to say about increased television-watching as one villain in the scenario. He suggests it's often too much of a good thing.

The cumulative impact is showing up in statistics.

Recent data from the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports makes for bad reading. Forty percent of boys age 6 through 12 cannot do more than one pull-up, we're told. The same is true for 70 percent of girls ages 6 through 17.

One-third of boys ages 6 through 12 and 50 percent of girls cannot run a mile in less than 10 minutes — and only 2 percent of the 18 million children who took the "President's Challenge", a series of exercises that measure strength, flexibility and endurance, performed well enough to qualify for the award.

He has a suggestion for parents or educators who have been aware of a growing need and wondered how to meet it: simple classes — with an eye toward aerobic or cardiovascular exercises. Try activities that can be done to music and made fun — these are the most effective.

Summer's heat wave cannot last much longer, and when it relaxes perhaps our most important asset — children — can be given a push in the right direction. It's a push deserving attention.

Making Bipartisan Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON — Finally President Reagan has pointed the way to every president's goal of a bipartisan foreign policy. It's not that his own policy has achieved that sublime status, but he will leave the country a policy that is considerably less off-center and divisive than both the one he ran against in 1980 and the one he himself then installed.

This result has come gradually, but its progress has been greatly accelerated by three events of the summer. The first was Reagan's decision to take Democratic House Speaker Jim Wright as a partner in Central America. The choice did not give the president a fully wrought bipartisan stand, let alone one assured of success. But it did put him in tentatively bipartisan company on the single most contentious issue of the postwar period: the issue of intervening in a foreign country in order to block a communist opportunity or to advance an American one. He decided to give some extra space to a new diplomatic approach.

Just this week, Reagan moved on to consolidate bipartisanship in arms control, the arena of high policy in which the strategic relationship with the Soviet Union is most vividly acted out. He adjusted the American position on verification in a proposed treaty limiting intermediate-range nuclear weapons. His earlier position had been based on the ideologically congenial premise of total distrust of the Soviets. The new one is designed to ensure the kind of verification consistent with achieving an agreement otherwise in the American interest.

But not all the movement toward bipartisanship has been by the president. This summer the Democrats in Congress, more or less despite themselves, have gone that way on what is, after Third World intervention and strategic arms control, the third-great issue of American policy: use of force in hot spots.

Jimmy Carter had begun by formally raising the official valuation of the American stake in the Persian Gulf to the level of "vital": vital means it's worth defending. The current Congress confirmed the movement by endorsing in its fashion — with many misgivings — the president's naval policy in the gulf. Even those Democrats who favor invoking the Vietnam-era War Powers Act, the law designed to check presidential initiative, make clear that most of them seek not so much to confront the president as to support him.

Suddenly, then, the United States has the makings of a bipartisan foreign policy. The president and Congress got to it inadvertently and by different routes. It has mattered to the White House, for instance, that the Iran-contra affair has taken its toll on the president's standing and that Mikhail Gorbachev is coming on strong. It has mattered to the Democrats that they tend to lose presidential elections.

Who's In Charge Of The Buck?

When President Reagan told the country that the buck stops in his office, he wasn't kidding.

"Mr. President, the five countries in Central America have just signed a peace plan to make the Nicaraguans and the contras stop fighting."

"Did I know anything about it?"

"No, sir, you didn't."

"Well, that's where you are wrong. Everything that happens winds up here on this desk."

"Yes, sir. I almost forgot."

"Can we still supply the contras under the plan?"

"No, sir, and the Soviets and Cubans can't supply the Sandinistas. The five countries want everybody out of Central America."

"What kind of peace treaty is that?"

"It's a terrible one. That's why I brought it to you – because the buck on this one stops with you."

"Of course, it does. This is a presidential decision that only the elected leader of all the people can deal with."

"You're right as rain, sir. What do you want to do now?"

"Think it through. When the buck stops on my desk I don't just throw it back without thinking about it. I want to know how we can abide by the terms of the treaty and also supply the contras with weapons and non-military support."

"We can always sell snowmobiles to Iran."

"We did that once and it didn't work. Do you know why? Because the buck stopped with Admiral Poindexter instead of with me. Had I been in charge of the buck I would have never let Colonel North do so many good, bad and ugly things. I didn't know what was going on, but I should have because that's what Presidents are for."

"Yes, sir, Mr. President. Do you want to send our people to Central America to find out what is going on there?"

"I do if it's clearly understood that it is my decision to do so. If there is anything I hate it's people thinking I don't know what is going on. What's this buck doing on my desk?"

"It's the trillion-dollar budget you're offering the country."

"That isn't my budget. I won't take the blame for it."

"You're going to have to, sir. You've insisted that the buck halts here and that includes the finances of the country."

"The free-spending Democrats are responsible for this budget. How many times have I said fiscal matters don't stop with me?"

"If you insist, sir, you can say that, but it looks bad after announcing that you make all the decisions in the White House."

"Couldn't we arrange to have the budget presented as a covert operation through a bank in Switzerland with a presidential finding?"

"I don't think so, sir. There are too many people who know about it."

"How much of the buck will have to stop with me?"

"The whole thing, Mr. President."

"That's an awful lot to get stuck with. Doesn't the CIA have a solution to this problem?"

"The only answer they came up with, sir, is to put the budget in your wife's name."

Looking For A Winner

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Everybody loves a winner. The trick is finding someone to love.

North Carolina legislators came to the Southern Legislative Conference here in Little Rock looking for a presidential candidate they can support in the 1988 southern presidential primary — and those legislators made it clear that an ability to win the presidential race was as important as any other characteristic that a candidate could display.

"I'm looking for someone who can beat the Republican candidate," Rep. John Church, D-Vance, said bluntly. Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, said, "I'm looking for someone with common sense who can win in the south."

In more than a dozen interviews with Democratic legislators at the conference, only a few said they had decided on a presidential candidate. Most said they found most of the eight major candidates to be fairly similar in their views. (Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, was the only Republican legislator to attend. He is a statewide chairman for George Bush.)

"Are not most of them repetitive?" Church asked. "If you read about one of them (on the issues) you seem to have read about all of them." Hackney said, "Most of them are moderate fellas." Most of the legislators questioned said no one candidate's stand on any one issue appeared to be decisive, at this point.

So if legislators don't expect to choose their candidates based on issue differences, how will they pick a horse.

"I'll be making an assessment of the candidate's electability," Hackney said. "Is he a John Glenn who is going to bomb out or a Jimmy Carter who can go on to win the presidency?"

Rep. David Redwine, D-Brunswick, said he was looking for a candidate with "intelligence and charisma." Sen. Bill Staton, D-Lee, said he wanted a candidate "who can communicate and project himself."

In short, the legislators were saying that they looked for a candidate who had that magic which Ronald Reagan has spun for the last eight years.

But that is not to say that these legislators were promising to jump on the bandwagon of anyone who looked good and sounded good. Jesse Jackson is clearly the most compelling speaker the Democrats have this year, but only Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, of the dozen or so legislators questioned for this column, mentioned Jackson's name. After Jackson gave a stirring speech that brough the audience to its feet, several legislators, including Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham, still said they couldn't support his liberal positions.

Sen. Bill Goldston, D-Rockingham, summed up a point made by several legislators. Any Democratic presidential candidate has "got to be a conservative." Sen. David Parnell, D-Robeson, said any Democrat who hoped to be president "must have a philosophy that can carry the South because whoever wins the South will win."

The SLC has been pushing the Southern Regional Primary since 1985. On Tuesday, March 8, 1988, North Carolina and 13 other Southern states will vote for presidential nominees. Six Democrats and two Republican presidential candidates attended the SLC meeting in search of support for that primary.

Most Democratic legislators said they'd hold back on an endorsement until Georgia Sen. Sam Nunn makes clear his presidential ambitions.

Two female legislators, Rep. Anne Barnes, D-Orange, and Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, wher sporting Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis campaign buttons by the end of the conference.

Strength For Today

A very rare fossil of a fish which lived millions of years ago was recently acquired by one our largest museums. The striking fact about this fossil is that the fish died trying to swallow another fish which was too big to go down his gullet. So for millions of years the fish and his half-swallowed prey have been preserved for us in the hard clay of the ocean floor.

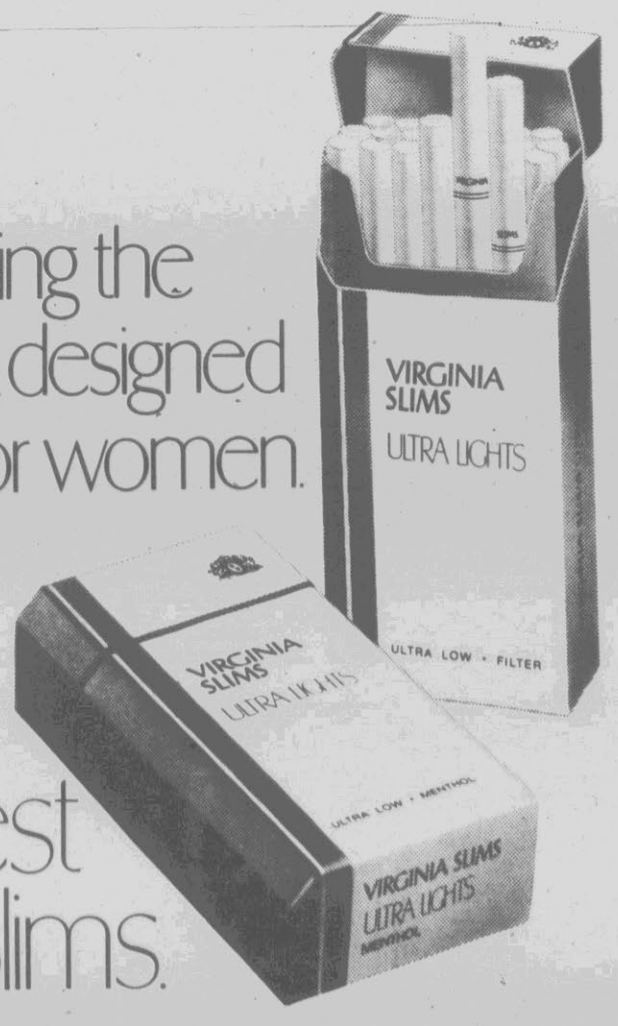

This ancient fish is symbolic of a persistent human tendency. Millions of people all over the world are desparately trying to swallow more wealth, sensation or indulgence than they can get down their throats. Many seek fame or power over other people.

Often these people have pleasant epitaphs on their tombstones. Actually, the symbol of the fish dying in its attempt to swallow another fish would be more fitting.

$3 Million Malpractice Settlement Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — A Johnston County hospital and doctor have offered $3 million to settle a malpractice suit by a couple whose son was severely brain-damaged at birth — one of the largest out-of-court settlements in state history, lawyers say.

The proposed settlement was announced Monday in Johnston County Superior Court. The announcement came just before the scheduled start of a jury trial in which lawyers for Charles and Tammie Anderson were planning to contend that Johnston Memorial Hospital, a Johnston County obstetrician and a private hospital management corporation were liable for brain damage suffered by the couple's infant son, born in May 1983. The suit was filed in 1985.

The hospital and the management corporation, HCA Management Co. Inc. of Nashville, Tenn., offered to pay $1.75 million for medical costs for 4-year-old Brian Anderson, who is blind and deaf and has a form of cerebral palsy. The doctor, L.S. Woodall, offered to pay $1.25 million.

The Andersons plan to accept the $1.75 million from the hospital but still are negotiating the $1.25 million offer from the doctor, said John R. Edwards of Raleigh, one of the Andersons' lawyers.

"We anticipate making a counterproposal that will result in a (complete) settlement," he said.

The Andersons declined to comment.

Edwards said the settlement would include no money for punitive damages and that all the money — except for an undisclosed lawyers' fee — would go to medical expenses for the child. Lawyers typically receive a third of the settlement in such cases, said David M. Blackwell, executive vice president of the North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers.

In the lawsuit, the Andersons alleged that the birth had been a "high-risk" delivery for several reasons, including the fact that Mrs. Anderson was more than two weeks past her estimated due date. Because of the risk, the suit said, the doctor and the hospital should have used a special monitor that would have indicated the child was not getting enough oxygen during birth.

A lack of oxygen, the suit said, caused "severe, permanent and disabling" brain damage in the child.

But Robert M. Clay of Raleigh, Woodall's attorney, said at the time of the birth the usefulness of the device, called a fetal heart-rate monitor, was a matter of debate in the medical community.

Defense lawyers said the settlement was not a concession of negligence. Although they had expert witnesses to support their case, they said the Andersons had expert witnesses plus a "sympathy factor" for the child and family.

"I have seen the child, and I've seen the videotapes of a day in (his) life," said Samuel Southern of Raleigh, a lawyer for the hospital and county. "There is an enormous sympathy factor that I think everybody recognizes plays a role in these cases, no matter what the other evidence happens to indicate."

But Blackwell said North Carolina juries are conservative in awarding large sums in malpractice suits.

"There must have been some pretty compelling evidence to cause those defendants to make those kind of offers," he said. "That's a good sum of money, and it's not the amount of money you're accustomed to being offered just because the case has nuisance value."

State Prepares To Bid On Collider

By The Associated Press

State officials today made their way to Washington in two state cars loaded down with 30 eight-volume sets of documents and 20 sets of maps — North Carolina's bid for the $4.4 billion superconducting super collider.

The bid is to be hand-delivered to the Department of Energy Wednesday, but Earl Mac Cormac, Gov. Jim Martin's science adviser, said officials left one day early just to be sure they got to Washington on time.

"I just don't want to slip up at the end," said Mac Cormac, the chairman of the state's super collider task force.

Locks were changed on offices in Raleigh to prevent leaks or theft. And two vehicles were lined up for the drive to Washington, in case one breaks down, officials said.

Officials canceled plans to fly the load to Washington when they realized how big it would be.

The super collider would be the world's largest machine, a 53-mile-long underground tunnel where protons will collide at staggering speeds. North Carolina is one of about 23 states hoping to land the giant facility.

Physicists think the accelerator will give them new insights into the fundamental nature of matter and energy and thus the universe. Others are interested in the economic benefits — thousands of construction and scientific jobs.

The state's proposal would put the project on a site covering parts of Durham, Person and Granville counties.

North Carolina will not make its entire proposal public until Martin's news conference Thursday. But the state is expected to pledge as much as $537 million for the project, including $20 million to $25 million for land purchases. The money has not yet been appropriated.

The bid includes an offer of millions of dollars on faculty positions, road construction and water and sewer line installation if North Carolina is chosen as the host site.

State officials, including the governor, are optimistic that North Carolina will make the Department of Energy's short list of best-qualified states, to be released in January.

"I'd be deeply disappointed if we don't," said Mac Cormac. "It's an excellent piece of work. The maps are not only gorgeous, they're insightful. The computer graphics are first class."

Selection of a preferred site is expected in mid-1988, he said.

Long Rejects Auto Rate Increase, Schedules Public Hearing Jan. 11

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Insurance Commissioner Jim Long has rejected an overall 3.5 percent rate increase for automobile insurance and scheduled a public hearing next January for the industry to justify the rate proposal.

By issuing the hearing order, Long indicated "an opinion ... that the requested increase would produce excessive and unjustified automobile insurance rates for North Carolina drivers," deputy insurance commissioner Roger Langley said Monday in a prepared statement.

The industry proposal includes a 15.8 percent boost for compulsory liability coverage that would cost North Carolina drivers about $45 million more — an average increase of $25.80 per vehicle.

The second part of the proposal is an 11.6 percent decrease in collision and comprehensive coverage, which is not mandatory. Langley said the proposed reduction was inadequate.

Because more people have liability coverage than collision coverage, the plan would amount to a 3.5 percent rate increase for the average vehicle.

Long did not appear at a news conference at which his decision was announced. Langley said Long could not comment further because he will preside over the hearing, at which industry representatives will make their case for their rate proposals.

The Insurance Department will fight the proposed increase and has retained Raleigh attorney Dan Nelson to represent the department. The hearing will begin Jan. 11 and is expected to last a week, after which Long will have 45 days to make a ruling.

If the industry disagrees with Long's decision, it can appeal to the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

The hearing will delay the proposed increase that was to take effect early next year, according to John Watkins, general manager of the North Carolina Rate Bureau, which represents 390 companies licensed to provide insurance in the state.

"The rate bureau feels that the filing is fully justified, and we certainly intend to vigorously support the filing at the public hearing," Watkins said.

He voiced surprise that the hearing would not begin until Jan. 11, since the industry had hoped the rate increase would take effect Jan. 1. The hearing could have started as early as Oct. 1, Watkins said.

Ed Bristol, spokesman for Long, said the hearing date was designed to give both sides time to prepare.

Nelson said Long should reject any rate increase "as a minimum" and that an order to reduce rates "would be nice." But Nelson said he did not know how big a decrease would be appropriate because the rate bureau had not supplied all the information the department wants.

"They've answered 30 out of about 62 questions," he said.

For example, he said, the rate bureau said it studied "exhibits and documents" in arriving at its proposed rate increase. "We asked for copies of the exhibits that they've studied ... and they haven't supplied them yet," Nelson said.

Langley said Long agrees with his staff's finding that the rate bureau's suggested increase was based partly on outdated information regarding insurance industry profits. "Most recent data — that is through year end 1986 — should have been used."

But Watkins said the data was the latest available when the industry filed for the increase July 1, and that much of it was for 1986.

Langley said the industry estimated future losses and expenses with data that "do not accurately reflect the conditions which can reasonably be expected in the future."

The industry also has not given due consideration to "questions concerning investment income, a reasonable margin for underwriting profit, and adequate return on net worth," Langley said.

"What we had in the filing is consistent with procedures we've used in the past," Watkins responded.

Langley also said the industry did not give enough attention to factors specifically applicable to North Carolina, such as increased premium collections.

State Will Use Ads To Recruit Teachers

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Within the next two months, North Carolina high school and college students still trying to choose a career will be asked on billboards and television to consider becoming a teacher.

The ads will try to show that "not just anybody can be a teacher," said Gail Dionne, director of teacher recruitment for the state Department of Public Instruction. "It's a very special kind of person. We're trying to get the public to see that not just anybody can be a teacher. If you can't be a teacher, then maybe you can be an engineer. It's a grand profession and it does have intrinsic as well as extrinsic rewards."

The billboards will go up Oct. 15 and the television ads should begin about the same time, she said. The billboards will feature Donna Oliver, the national teacher of the year from North Carolina. They will read "Teach" at the top and underneath say "And Build a North Carolina Career," Ms. Dionne said.

One television ad will feature Ms. Oliver and her daughter, Rachel Lynn Oliver, the reigning Miss Black America. Two versions of that ad have been produced, one for local use and one for national use, Ms. Dionne said.

Others use three teachers in various situations "to show that teaching is a wonderful life," she said. "Teachers do have a fairly comfortable life." Those feature an older female teacher; a young, married, black teacher; and a young male teacher who's just beginning his career, she said.

"What I hope we gain (through the ads) is basically an awareness that teaching is a tremendous profession," she said. "... Too long, becoming a teacher is not something that has been pushed. ... Too many times, the profession has settled for less than what it should settle for. If society wants to be more than mediocre, it's got to have more than mediocre teachers."

In addition, the state also will distribute folders with information about teaching to high school students this fall. The folders include information about teachers' salaries and summer vacations and have a card that asks a student why he or she wants to be a teacher. The card is returned to a teacher recruiter.

The $120,000 contract for the billboards and folders went to Sally Johns Design, a Raleigh advertising firm. Ms. Dionne said she produced the television ads in-house.

Although the ads are meant to bring more people into teaching, Ms. Dionne said she believed North Carolina has not seen a real teaching shortage yet.

Two More Counties Seek Aid

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite this week's rainfall, Wake and Chatham counties on Monday joined 20 other eastern North Carolina counties in asking for federal aid to compensate for crops lost to dry weather.

"Corn is almost a total loss," said Wake County extension chairman Victor Lynn. "There's some hay crop loss. People normally get three cuttings of hay. Thisyear they got one good one."

But Lynn said that Monday's showers, which doused Raleigh-Durham Airport with 3.16 inches of rain, could help Wake County's soybean crop, which is in its late blooming stage.

The rain also helped pasture land, said Bruno Mangum, a program specialist with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the federal department in charge of crop-disaster relief. He said this week's rain could be a last-minute fix for soybeans, cotton and peanuts — all late-season crops.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will meet with state agriculture officials Sept. 11 to review disaster-relief requests from 22 counties: Durham, Orange, Caswell, Edgecombe, Pasquotank, Chowan, Cumberland, Duplin, Gates, Greene, Harnett, Halifax, Johnston, Nash, Sampson, Wayne, Wilson, Currituck, Perquimans, Alamance, Wake and Chatham.

Those counties must show a total crop loss for a given crop of 40 percent or more to qualify for disaster-relief assistance for that crop, which can come in the form of funding, surplus grain and silage, and help in re-establishing pastures and trees.

IN THE STATE

Tax Suit

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — The town of Beech Mountain says it will lose 93.5 percent of its share in sales taxes because of a change in the distribution of those funds by Watauga County.

The town, with 239 permanent residents and a tourist season population of 15,000, filed suit Monday against the county and the state revenue secretary. The suit claims the switch from ad valorem distribution to per capita distribution is unconstitutional because of the severe reduction in its share.

According to the suit, which was joined by 13 town property owners, 67 percent of Beech Mountain property owners have their primary residence outside North Carolina and 98 percent of state residents who own property in the town live outside Watauga County.

Lobster Catch

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Raymond H. Key of Winston-Salem usually sticks to shore when he goes fishing at the ocean, but Saturday, he let some friends talk him into going deep-sea fishing off the coast of Carolina Beach.

By the time he got back to shore, Key had what might be the largest spiny lobster now on display in the United States. He donated his prize to the North Carolina Aquarium at Fort Fisher.

The lobster weighs 12 pounds and is 20 inches long, said Paul R. Barrington, the curator of aquariums at the North Carolina Aquarium. Different records list the largest spiny lobster ever caught from 18 to 24 inches.

Gypsy Moths

RALEIGH (AP) — About six leaf-munching gypsy moths have been captured in Wake County traps in the past month, but there are no signs of an infestation in the area, state officials said Monday.

Later this year, agriculture officials will check trees for infestations statewide by looking for egg masses.

Several hundred traps were placed in the county and the moths trapped last month were in oak and sweet gum trees.

Falls Short

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A three-year effort by bankers to finance a political action campaign in North Carolina has generated less interest than expected, officials say.

With less than $10,000 raised each year in pitches to the state's 69 banks, the BankPAC of the North Carolina Bankers' Association ranks as one of the smallest in the state.

"It's not going to raise enough money to be a major force in state politics," said John McNair, president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. and chairman of the government relations council for the bankers' group.

Drowning

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A 25-year-old Sims man drowned early Saturday morning in the Kenwood Court swimming pool.

Wilson County Sheriff's Department reports show Juan Guevara drowned while swimming with two friends in the motel pool about 4 a.m. Saturday.

Bond Set

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has set bail at $400,000 for Donna Marie Arnold, who is charged with first-degree murder in the 1984 stabbing death of her husband, a Sampson County minister of music.

Bail was set Monday after nearly three hours of hearings in which witnesses testified to Mrs. Arnold's character and said she would return to court for trial in the death of her husband, Dan.

Mrs. Arnold remained late Monday night in the Sampson County Jail, where co-defendant Carl Edward Stuffel is awaiting sentencing, authorities said.

Authorities have said that Mrs. Arnold was home with her children and a friend when her husband was killed on the night of July 18, 1984, but they allege that she conspired in his murder.

Among those who testified for Mrs. Arnold were her parents-in-law and members of Clinton's Immanuel Baptist Church, where Arnold was minister of music and his wife was the organist at the time of the murder.

Arnold, 33, was beaten and stabbed to death outside the church after he returned to retrieve his wife's pocketbook, which had been left by the organ following Wednesday evening worship services, according to authorities.

Stuffel, 24, pleaded guilty in March to second-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

'Candyscam'

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Labor Commissioner John Brooks announced Monday that his department has fined the operator of a Charlotte-area "candyscam" scheme $22,025.

"We are taking this action against Robert D. Osborne, 30, of Charlotte because of his violations of our state child-labor laws in his candy-selling operation," Brooks said.

The Labor Department investigation has centered around for-profit companies that use children illegally to sell candy door-to-door or in shopping centers. Their sales pitch typically states or implies that proceeds from the sale will go to a charitable cause or educational program.

Those running the operation usually recruit youngsters from underprivileged economic groups and from low-income housing developments, Brooks said.

Blue Crabs

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A newly identified disease has infected large numbers of blue crabs in the Pamlico River, and state fisheries officials say they have found smaller outbreaks in other parts of the North Carolina coast.

The disease, apparently caused by bacteria, begins as a brown spot and eventually disfigures or eats through the shells of infected crabs, said Sean McKenna, a marine biologist with the North Carolina Division of Marine Fisheries.

Fishermen say the disease first showed up in the Pamlico in early June and has infected nearly half of the crabs taken in certain areas some days. Some fishermen also have reported similar infections on shrimp.

Officials don't know whether eating the crabs would be a health hazard, but crabbers say the diseased shellfish are not being sold.

Falwell Says PTL Board Must Stay

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell says he and PTL board members who came to the ministry after Jim Bakker stepped down must stay with the ministry if it is to overcome the management problems that sent it to bankruptcy court.

After a three-hour private PTL board meeting Monday, Falwell said he didn't mean to boast, but "if I or the board were to walk away, there'd be nothing left but an auctioneer."

Falwell said the board members prayed during their meeting. "If the ministry survives, it will be because God wants it to, and God will provide," he said.

"We are God's choice, ever so limited for the task at hand," he said.

The Baptist minister said his work with PTL has cost him donations to his own Lynchburg, Va.-based ministry, the Old Time Gospel Hour.

He said some of the people who have been donating money to the PTL would have given money to the Lynchburg ministry. "The greatest profit Jerry Falwell could get from this (PTL ministry) is to go back home," he said.

However, Falwell said he will stay with PTL until the ministry is "solid, solvent, and operating properly" and until people whose "hearts were right and motives were right" are leading it.

Falwell said the ministry is in financial crisis and has been that way every day since he took over March 19, when Bakker stepped down amid reports of a sex scandal.

Falwell said solving that crisis might take long-term financing to repay PTL's $68 million debt. "It is quite likely we will have substantial financing available within 60 days," Falwell said.

He said he hopes the ministry will be able to borrow enough money not only to pay its debts but to finish construction at the theme park, including the Towers Hotel. The projects were boarded up when Bakker stepped down and the ministry lacked money to pay builders.

Utility, Insurance Firm In Line For Windfall Farm Payments

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two big non-agriculture companies are expected to reap six-figure sums from the federal farm payments program this year, far in excess of a congressionally imposed ceiling, a government report shows.

One of the nation's largest electrical utilities should collect more than $500,000 in federal farm payments, 10 times a cap imposed to prevent such windfall gains, according to a recent Department of Agriculture report.

The same program, which many lawmakers say was designed to provide income supports to middle-class farmers, also is expected to generate more than $300,000 in payments for a major insurance company with $46 billion in assets.

Chicago-based Commonwealth Edison Co. is expected to receive an estimated $530,771, and the Travelers Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., should get $340,122, according to the report.

They are the only major corporations not primarily involved in agriculture or agribusiness listed in the report as receiving such large amounts under the $8.5 billion-a-year "direct payments" portion of the farm program.

The program pays agricultural producers the difference between the prices they get for their crops and congressionally set target prices.

Others who received six-figure payments include Indian tribal groups, agribusiness companies such as large farms and ranches and state and local governments. Texas, for example, will receive an estimated $311,701 related to cotton and other crops produced on state prison farms.

"Those horror stories of the $200,000-plus payments are damaging to all of the farm programs and legitimately so," Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said in a telephone interview last week.

"If they are finding it necessary to pay Commonwealth Edison $500,000 and certain other companies $300,000, then something is haywire," said Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

Leahy and a number of other lawmakers said the purpose of the program was to supplement the income of family farmers. But some, including House Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, said the actual purpose is induce growers to idle acreage and thus reduce surpluses that depress farm prices and raise warehouse expenses paid by the taxpayers.

De la Garza said massive payments represent "one thousandth of one percent — but they get all the publicity."

Asked about the payments, Richard W. Goldberg, deputy undersecretary of agriculture, said the "administration has sent to the (Capitol) Hill a rather detailed proposal for correcting what has become a loophole in the current payment limitations situation."

He said he was unfamiliar with the Commonwealth Edison and Travelers payments and could not say how they would be affected by the new plan. But he said it would roll back a number of payments to the $50,000 cap.

Reps. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., and Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., are weighing a move to attach a limiting measure to a House budget bill. And both the House and Senate agriculture committees say they plan to take up the issue.

Most direct payments represent the difference between target prices set by Congress and market prices or basic price supports, whichever is higher.

Farmers are assured of income because target prices are kept well above price supports and expected market prices. The producers themselves must idle acreage under the program. For the most part, the payments are subject to a $50,000 limitation, which often is cited as a safeguard that protects the taxpayer from excessive gains by program participants.

But the secretary of agriculture also may adjust price supports downward to lower crop prices and boost exports. As a result, some wheat and feed grain producers are entitled to additional payments.

These "Findley payments," named for former Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., represent the difference between basic and adjusted price supports. They are capped at $250,000 for each producer for the 1987 crop year but subject to no ceiling in the case of 1986 commodities.

Findley payments are due Oct. 1 to Travelers for wheat produced on company property and to Commonwealth Edison for corn grown on farms surrounding its power plants and elsewhere in rural Illinois.

Tom Gould, Commonwealth Edison real estate director, said farmers raise the corn under rental and sharecropping agreements. The company contributes land plus 50 percent of the fertilizer and seed.

Seafood Is No-No

WOODBURY, N.J. (AP) — Many people are chomping on pork chops these days rather than taking a risk on seafood from the New Jersey shore, struck recently by a wave of beach closings, garbage slicks and dead dolphins.

But state officials said Monday there's nothing wrong with New Jersey's shellfish and salt-water fish harvest.

"There are no problems. It really does not affect them. That's something that's got to get out to the public," said Bruce Halgren, acting chief of the Bureau of Marine Fisheries.

And Gale Critchlow, chief of the Bureau of Shellfisheries, said the clams and crabs being scooped out of the New Jersey bays are perfectly safe to eat despite this summer's beach problems.

"The pollution has been a terrible thing, but it's not done anything that we're concerned about," Ms. Chitchlow said. "But it's made people think twice about what they're eating or breathing or sitting in."

But some seafood restaurants and retailers say their business is in a slump because of last month's problems.

"We're doing half the business. Everybody's spooked. Nobody's buying fish because they see everything washing up," said John DelloBuono, owner of the Fisherman's Hook fish store in West Deptford, five miles from this South Jersey town.

DelloBuono said his sales dropped off sharply about three weeks ago, when hospital wastes such as used syringes, and tampon applicators and used condoms floated ashore.

A week later, high fecal coliform bacteria counts closed Atlantic City beaches for about three days.

Employers Upset Over Form Required For Alien Workers

By RICK GLADSTONE
AP Business Writer

A sweeping law designed to curb illegal immigration requires the nation's 7 million employers today to begin documenting the status of employees with a special form, and many business people griped about the new responsibility.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act, which makes it a crime to knowingly employ illegal aliens, employers generally must have the new I-9 forms completed for all workers who were hired since the measure was signed into law Nov. 6.

The forms must be signed by employers after they review supporting documents that attest to the employee's eligibility to work, such as birth certificates, passports and permanent-residence cards.

A nationwide sample of businesses checked by The Associated Press indicated a high degree of compliance with the Sept. 1 enforcement deadline, with no evidence of mass confusion or widespread dismissals that some critics had predicted.

Many employers expressed irritation, however, with the Immigration and Naturalization Service because of the additional paperwork, while others said they have been forced to fire some workers who couldn't provide supporting documents with the forms.

"We're having to let people go because they can't comply with the letter of the law," said David Staton, owner of the Staton Hills winery outside Yakima, Wash. "You're continually having to turn over people who cannot come up with documentation and who for every reasonable appearance are Americans."

In California, where half the nation's estimated 6 million illegal aliens are believed to reside, farmers criticized the INS for subjecting them to today's deadline. Growers, contending another provision of the law defers sanctions against them until December 1988, threatened legal action if the agency tries to fine them.

At the Los Angeles-based Merchants & Manufacturers Association, which represents 3,300 California companies, spokesman Louis Custrini said many employers fear they won't be able to find replacements for undocumented workers.

"We have received calls from a number of employers, especially in labor-intensive industries, who say the immigration law is creating a vacuum that is hard to fill," he said.

Many employers said their main objection to the new law was the bureaucratic burden of the I-9, a one-page form that must be made available to agency inspectors.

"It is a lot of extra paperwork we're not too pleased with, but it's something we're able to handle," said John Pennington, spokesman for Genesco Inc., a Nashville, Tenn.-based maker and marketer of footwear and men's apparel with 7,000 employees.

"It has complicated administrative procedures and caused an inconvenience to the applicant and us," said Laura Barbara, spokeswoman for Floating Point Systems Inc., a computer software maker based in Beaverton, Ore., that employs 890 people.

Others complained about the difficulty in getting employees to complete the form, partly because of misconceptions that only foreign-born workers are subject to the law. At the Kelly Services Inc. temporary employment agency office in El Paso, Texas, branch manager Rosa Navarro said it took two months to document the 600 people hired after the law was signed.

"We've had people who've gotten very upset," she said. "We had one lady who looks Anglo and she was pretty upset we had to ask for documentation."

At Michael's Restaurant in Des Moines, Iowa, owner John Huss said, "I have some of my own children working here and they say 'Dad, you know I was born here. Why do I have to do this?,'" he said. "And then I don't have to fill one out. So if I was an illegal, I guess they wouldn't know."

Fines for failure to have the forms on file after today can range from $100 to $1,000. But in Washington, agency spokesman Verne Jervis said it was unlikely that inspectors would cite errant employers for paperwork violations unless it was clear they were hiring illegal aliens.

Teacher Strikes Delaying Classes

By The Associated Press

Teacher strikes in Detroit and six other Michigan districts stretched summer vacation for more than 200,000 students today, and thousands of other students were idled by walkouts in Pennsylvania and Washington state.

In New York City, however, negotiators settled on a contract Monday that will eventually pay top-level teachers $50,000 a year.

Classes would have started today in Detroit for 193,000 public school students. But nearly 7,000 members of the Detroit Federation of Teachers took a voice vote Monday night to follow the union's recommendation and reject the school board's contract offer for the district's 11,500 teachers.

The two-year contract would have frozen wages in its first year and provided a 2 percent raise for 1988-89 if voters approved a tax levy and state aid increased, said union spokeswoman Lois Vagnozzi.

She said the union would continue seeking a one-year contract with a 14 percent pay increase, matching city salaries with those in the 10 highest-paying suburban districts. Annual pay for teachers in Detroit ranges from $19,963 to $36,222.

"We have granted wage increses in the past three years totaling 23 percent," Superintendent Arthur Jefferson said Monday. "The board cannot offer an increase to our teachers this year because of the district's precarious financial situation," a $27 million deficit.

The New York schools and the United Federation of Teachers, representing 62,000 teachers, reached agreement on a three-year contract that union president Sandra Feldman called "a major breakthrough that makes us competitive with the salaries paid in nearby school districts."

Beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree will earn $21,650 this fall and new teachers in the third year will earn $25,000. Teachers with 20 years' experience and 30 college credits beyond a master's degree will earn $50,000 a year by 1989-90.

Nearly 6,900 students in Pittsburgh's northern suburbs missed their first day of class Monday after contract negotiations stalled. About 430 members of the North Allegheny Federation of Teachers went on strike Thursday, seeking a $9,300 pay increase during the three-year pact. Officials have offered $6,300.

Some schools in Edmonds, Wash., were dismissed early on the first day of classes Monday because of a strike and picketing by teachers. Today's classes were canceled and contract negotiations resumed for the 900 teachers in the 17,500-student district between Seattle and Everett.

Highway Marker Unveiling Set For Sept. 18

FALKLAND — A North Carolina highway historical marker will be unveiled and dedicated at Falkland Elementary School Sept. 18 at 2 p.m. The marker honors Sallie Southall Cotten, who lived at Cottendale, located near Falkland.

The marker will be installed after the dedication at Bruce, the intersection of N.C. 121 and N.C. 43. Mrs. Lewis E. Boroughs of Greensboro, president of the N.C. Federation of Women's Clubs, will conduct the ceremony.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners has proclaimed Sept. 18 as "Sallie Southall Cotten Day."

Mrs. Cotten was a founder of the N.C. Federation of Women's Clubs as well as a founder of the Woman's Club of Greenville. She served as NCFWC president from 1911 to 1913. During this time a loan fund for the benefit of N.C. girls seeking high education was begun. The fund now rewards 16 district winners and awards a $2,000 renewable scholarship to the state winner each year. A one-time award of $300 is given to the state runner-up. Some 282 clubs presented local scholarships last year.

Women could not serve in public office in 1912. Mrs. Cotten, a plantation wife and mother of six, worked with the State Teacher's Assembly and succeeded in getting the legislature to pass a statute permitting women to serve on school boards.

Dormitories at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and East Carolina University are named for Mrs. Cotten. The U.S. Maritime Commission named a ship the "Sallie S. Cotten."

The Sallie S. Cotten highway historical marker was approved by the N.C. Highway Historical Marker Advisory Committee in April. The N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, Division of Archives and History, asked the NCFWC to plan the ceremony for its unveiling in view of the close ties with Mrs. Cotten.

Members of the federation executive board will attend the ceremony. Members of the N.C. Legislature will be special guests as well as mayors from throughout Pitt County. Descendants of Mrs. Cotten have also been invited. Representatives from

SALLIE S. COTTEN

UNC-Greensboro, East Carolina University, the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources and the N.C. Department of Highways plan to attend.

Dr. William Stephenson, professor in the department of English at ECU, has written Mrs. Cotten's biography "Sallie Southall Cotten, A Woman's Life In N.C." The publication date of Pamlico Press is Oct. 1.

Members of the Woman's Club of Greenville and the Junior Woman's Clubs of Farmville, Greenville and Winterville will host a reception following the unveiling and dedication.

Past Entanglement Prevents Couple From Tying The Knot

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter signed "Brokenhearted in N.J.," who called her wedding off, then expected her fiance ("Joe") to reimburse her parents for the "thousands of dollars" they had spent on wedding plans. "Brokenhearted" wrote: "When Joe proposed to me, he eveal-ed that he had lived with a girl before I knew him. She became pregnant, he didn't want to marry her, she didn't want an abortion, so she had the baby. Joe convinced me and my parents that he had no obligation whatsoever to this woman or the child – that his attorney had settled it with her and her attorney. Two weeks before our wedding date, Joe told me that he had been suddenly served with papers for child support, had decided to support the child and was asking for visitation rights. Because our lives would be drastically changed, and because I think Joe lied to me about his obligation to the child, I called the wedding off."

Abby, I am very disappointed that you encouraged this woman's pompous, spoiled-brat actions. Joe has a parental obligation to the child he helped to bring into this world, whether intentional or not, and he should help support it and be an active father presence in this child's life.

I work in a law office, and see people change their minds, deals fall apart and agreements unravel daily.

Actually, this woman has done her fiance a valuable favor by showing him what she is really made of. If she had really loved him, she would have accepted and loved his child as well. I hope you print this because others in this woman's circumstances might be led to believe, by your response, that her feelings and actions were justifiable.

You have permission to use my name. – NANCY ENGLAND, PALM BAY, FLA.

DEAR NANCY ENGLAND: When "Brokenhearted" said yes to Joe's proposal, she was assured that his financial obligations to his child were fulfilled and he would have no further contact with either mother or child.

I agree, this was not the manly course to take, but his financial and emotional obligations to this woman were not the issue. Joe had presented himself as a man free from all past entanglements; then after she agreed to marry him, she learned that she would not be getting the kind of marriage she expected. (Some women prefer a husband who comes with no "baggage" – just as some men prefer a wife without an ex-husband and children.)

You say "Brokenhearted" behaved like a pompous, spoiled brat to declare that since Joe changed the rules, she didn't want to marry him. I disagree.

I think she is entitled to change her mind since he changed the rules. And let us not overlook the fact that she thinks Joe lied to her from the beginning. Solid marriages are not built on foundations of misrepresentation, anger and mistrust.

I stick with my original answer: "Rejoice; you could have married this man. I think you and your parents got off cheap."

Historic Glass-Making Continued By 'The Boys'

By DALE MOSS
Louisville Courier-Journal

CORYDON, Ind. (AP) — Gene and Jenny Love had been in Salem on business and were about to return home to Indianapolis.

Spurred more by curiosity than homesickness, they headed south instead, to the small but nationally known factory and shop in Corydon where they'd bought about 30 prized pieces of handmade glassware over the years.

They wondered if the place was still standing, still open, still unique and still fascinating.

"We wondered," Gene Love said, "if the boys had kept it going."

They found the doors open, the old 1,800-degree gas furnace roaring and the constantly running kiln churning glass mixture. They found a glass basket to buy and a set of goblets to order and yet another tour group oohing and aahing over the meticulous process being demonstrated.

They found "the boys" — Bart and Kerry Zimmerman — holding firm to the craftsmanship and legacy they'd inherited.

They found what they thought might have been lost when, a year ago, 63-year-old Joe Zimmerman was shot and killed in the factory by a former partner who then killed himself.

"Once you lose something like this," Gene Love said of the shop, "it's just lost."

The Loves and the many other devotees of Zimmerman Art Glass Co. had nothing to fear, Kerry and Bart Zimmerman said.

"I feel lucky to be able to come in and do it," said Bart, 28.

"Even if I didn't enjoy this — and I do love it — it was important for me to come in and try it out of respect," Kerry, 26, said as he rounded and molded a piece of hot orange glass. "Respect for my grandfather and father."

Actually, Kerry's great-grandfather made glass too, though it was his grandfather, Victor Zimmerman, who established the custom glassware factory in Corydon and built the business with son Joe, who plied the trade for 45 years, bringing his two boys in a few years ago.

The sons had chances to make other lives for themselves. A drugstore chain wanted Bart to manage a store in another town. Kerry won a national championship in the decathlon while at Indiana University and has served on occasion as coach of the Corydon Central High School girls' track and field teams.

Instead, they chose to stand in the shadow, to be "the boys."

"Eventually, our work will be out of the shadow," Kerry said. "But as far as Bart and I are concerned, maybe when we're 50 we'll stop being the boys. Maybe then our boys will come into the business and they'll be the boys." Each has an infant son.

Still, Kerry said of the shadow, "It's pretty good company."

One spots changes at Zimmerman Art Glass, albeit subtle ones. Joe Zimmerman closed only on Tuesdays, so he could fish. Bart and Kerry Zimmerman take off on Sundays and Mondays to be with their families.

The place seems cleaner and less cluttered, though old coffee cans and jars full of glass chips still are stacked around, and dozens of rods, hammers and other tools are strewn about.

The sons make all of their dad's old favorite pieces, though they can't quite get the handle on a large paperweight.

"Kerry's close, though," brother Bart said.

"As far as the tools and the way we make things and the way we deal with customers, that'll never change," Kerry said. "But we're willing to make different things and try different ideas."

Start Dieting Next Monday

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

It is Tuesday. There is one large piece of pepperoni pizza (with extra cheese) staring at you from the box. Everyone else at the table pats his stomach like the Fuller family on an Alka-Seltzer commercial and gasps, "One more bite and I'll burst."

I went on a diet on Monday. I promised myself one piece and I've stuck to it. Everyone looks to me to kill it off.

I hear myself saying, "I'm not really hungry. Besides, I read where one should always eat slowly because it takes 20 minutes for food to get to the point of making you feel satisfied." They look at me with a reverence usually reserved for Mother Teresa when she enters a room.

Privately, I wonder who came up with that stupid theory. If "satisfied" doesn't kick in soon, I am going to lick the box.

The hostess gives a sigh and says, "Well, since no one is going to eat it, I guess I'll have to throw it away."

My mind races. I'm old. Do I need this? What have I got left in life to look forward to, really! I get up in the morning, shower, eat two sunflower seeds, write all day, someone throws me a fish without salt, I needlepoint and fall into bed. So much for hats and horns. Is that the kind of life I want for myself?

Just think of all those women on the Titanic who said, "No, thank you," to dessert that night. And for what! Besides, assuming I took that last piece of pizza, I could step up my exercise program and burn it off. Or I could borrow calories from tomorrow's intake.

What's such a big deal about a lousy piece of pizza? Are they going to put on my tombstone, "WIFE, MOTHER, WRITER, GARBAGE BARGE"? Besides, I can set an example on waste. Do I want to go through life seeing Sally Struthers' eyes? I can help. I can make a social statement here by not allowing that piece of pizza to be thrown away.

I grab the pizza out of the box and snap it between my jaws, chewing vigorously until it is gone.

Immediately, I realize what I have done. I am worthless slime. I have lost my self-esteem and the respect of those around me. I had a chance to stand up to gravity and temptation and I failed.

I deserve to wear elastic waistbands the rest of my life. I have sealed my own fate as one of those people that everyone says, "What a shame. She has such a nice face."

I'll never run off the extra calories. Who am I kidding? I'd have to run down to the Baja and back before I'd burn off all that crust. As for borrowing calories from tomorrow, I've already borrowed calories through Christmas week.

Oh well, next Monday I'm REALLY going on a diet.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was higher in slow trading early today, extending Monday's advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had risen 15.14 points to 2,678.09 by 10 a.m. EDT.

Advancing issues edged out declines by about 6-to-5 on the NYSE, with 595 issues gaining, 464 losing and 510 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 22.32 million shares.

Analysts said today's report that the government's main economic forecasting gauge climbed for the sixth straight month in July had little impact on the sluggish, end-of-summer market. The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators posted a 0.5 percent increase in July which signaled continued moderate growth in the economy.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks had gained 0.61 at 185.06.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index had advanced 0.36 to 361.71.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 23.60 to 2,662.95.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 5-to-3 on the NYSE, with 1,005 up, 588 down and 406 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 165.81 million shares, against 156.33 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index rose 1.46 to 184.45.

vessels, calling each one a "large naval target," a phrase the Iraqis generally use to refer to oil tankers.

Iraq also announced a series of morning air strikes on industrial targets in Ahvaz in southern Iran and Isfahan, in the central part of the country.

Baghdad Radio, monitored in Cyprus, quoted an unidentified military spokesman today as saying: "Iraq will cut off Iranian oil exports so the revenues can no longer be used for aggressive purposes against Iraq."

He said Iraq "will keep pounding Iranian oil resources until the Iranian regime bows to the international community's calls for a cease-fire." That was a reference to the U.S.-backed U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire.

A communique issued by Iraq's air force command and carried by the Iraqi News Agency said several formations bombed Isfahan and Ahvaz at 11 a.m. It said the jets accurately hit their targets and returned safely to base.

On Monday, Iraq threatened to escalate attacks following two days of Iranian raids on Iraqi land targets Iran shelled Basra in southern Iraq and other border towns Monday. Iraq's Baghdad Radio, monitored in Nicosia, said several civilians were killed or wounded.

Witnesses said two U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti vessels and their warship escorts were sailing toward Kuwait's Al-Ahmadi oil terminal after anchoring off Bahrain Monday. Bahrain is halfway along the 550-mile voyage.

The helicopter carrier Guadalcanal was believed to have sailed ahead so its eight RH-53D Sea Stallion mine-hunting helicopters could clear a path through suspected danger areas.

The United States agreed to protect half of Kuwait's 22 tankers from attack from Iran, which claims the emirate aids Iraq.

Despite the latest attacks, two Iranian leaders hinted Monday that their country had not completely rejected the July 20 U.N. cease-fire call.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, quoted Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying Tehran was prepared for "all-out cooperation with the Security Council" if it condemned Iraq for starting the war.

"But if the Security Council submits to the United States and tries to pressure Iran, the Islamic Republic will resist with all its might," Rafsanjani was quoted as telling a news conference.

Mohammed Jawad Larijani, Iran's deputy foreign minister, also said the United Nations should name Iraq as the aggressor, saying that "such a step by the Security Council will pave the way for further cooperation between Iran and the United Nations."

Iraq invaded Iran on Sept. 23, 1980, after weeks of border skirmishes.

The U.N. resolution specifies that an impartial body be established to determine who started the war.

No Politics

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Former talk show host David Hartman says, contrary to rumors, he has no plans to enter politics, at least not this year.

Draughn

FARMVILLE — A funeral for Mr. Wilbert Draughn Jr. of Lot 51, Mathews Trailer Park, will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. at Bethlehem Baptist Church near Leggett by the Rev. Wayne Hines. Burial will follow in Dancey Memorial Cemetery in Princeville.

A native of Edgecome County, Mr. Draughn lived in the Farmville community for the last several years and was employed at Sterling Radiator Co. in Farmville. He was a member of the Bethlehem Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma Ruth Draughn of the home; two daughters, Vickie Draughn and Pamela Draughn, both of Farmville; two sons, Larry Williams and Michael Powell, both of Tarboro; a stepson, Gregory Powell of Tarboro; a stepdaughter, Daisy Speight of Farmville; his parents, Callie Draughn and Wilbert Draughn Sr. of Tarboro; three sisters, Earlene Gilliam of Newport News, Va., Linda Staton and Carolyn Draughn, both of Tarboro; five brothers, Richard Smith of Queens Village, N.Y., Otis Ray Draughn of Rocky Mount, Alfred Draughn, James Marshal Draughn and William Draughn, all of Tarboro, and three grandchildren.

The family will receive friends Wednesday from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Hemby-Willoughby Mortuary in Tarboro, and at other times will be at the home.

Jones

Mr. Wallace "Deacon" Jones, 67, of Route 2, Ayden, died Monday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Theodore Bradshaw. Burial will be in Parkers Chapel Church Cemetery near Greenville.

Mr. Jones, a lifelong resident of Pitt County, was a former employee of Carolina Dairies Inc.

He is survived by two sons, Phillip Lee Jones of Raleigh and Jimmy Jones of Greenville; one daughter, Marjorie Boggs of Greenville; two brothers, George Jones and Louis Jones, both of Greenville; four sisters, Annie Mae Beachum of Tarboro, Madalene O'Mary, Fannie Lee Eakes and Barbara Ann Jones, all of Greenville, and his stepmother, Victoria Jones of Greenville.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today.

Roberson

FOUNTAIN — A funeral for Mrs. Annie Barnes Roberson, 75, of the Bullock community at Route 1, Fountain, will be conducted Thursday at 3 p.m. at Anderson Chapel Missionary Baptist Church near Falkland by the Rev. Walter Cherry. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

A native of Edgecombe County, Mrs. Roberson was a member of Anderson Chapel Church for the past 57 years where she served on the Usher Board and Mother Board for several years.

She is survived by her husband, Willie Roberson of the home; three daughters, Willie Mae Bullock of Mount Rainor, Md., and Martha Maye and Shirley Williams, both of Greenville; a son, Jessie Roberson of Newport News, Va.; a sister, Hattie Wooten of Rocky Mount, and 30 grandchildren.

The body will be taken from Hemby Funeral Home to the church at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The family will receive friends Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the church, and at other times will be at the home.

Robinson

AYDEN — Mrs. Annie Mae Robinson, 77, died Monday at her home, 809-C Fawn Court in Ayden.

Her funeral will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Revs. Leon Harris and N.D. Beaman. Burial will be in the Jackson Cemetery near Ayden.

Mrs. Robinson, a native of Pitt County, spent most of her life in the Ayden community. She was a member of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are two sons, M.C. Robinson Jr. of Ayden and James Robinson of Route 2, Ayden; a brother, Thomas Earl Robinson of Route 2, Winterville; a sister, Mrs. Amos Buck of Route 2, Winterville, and five grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today, and at other times will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, Route 2, Ayden.

Roebuck

STOKES — Mrs. Laurie White Roebuck, 89, died Tuesday in the Beaufort County Nursing Home in Washington, N.C.

Her graveside funeral will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in Pinewood Memorial Park by the Rev. Willis Wilson.

A native of Halifax County, she was assistant postmaster at the Stokes Post Office for 45 years, retiring in 1961. A 1915 graduate of East Carolina Teachers College, she taught public school in Stokes for one year prior to her marriage in 1916. Following her retirement, she lived in Leesburg, Fla., until 1975 when she moved to Jacksonville, Fla., and lived there until 1986. For the past nine months she had lived in the Beaufort County Nrusing Home. She helped start the Parent-Teacher Association in the Stokes School and the Jane Austen Book Club.

Surviving are four sons, Williams Franklin Roebuck and Don Roebuck, both of Stokes, Capt. George H. Roebuck of Swansboro, and James W. Roebuck of Virginia Beach, Va.; a brother, John S. White of Charlotte; a sister, Sally W. Dollan of Staunton, Va.; five grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

The fmaily will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.F. Roebuck in Stokes.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Stokes Volunteer Fire Department, Stokes.

Arrangements are being handled by Wilkerson Funeral Home.

Alumni Gathering

The Pitt County chapter of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University Alumni Association will meet Wednesday a 7:30 p.m. in the educational department of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

Plans for the year's program will be discussed.

Program Participants

Four Pitt County students were among the 102 high school juniors and seniors from North Carolina who took part in the 1987 Summer Ventures in Science and Mathematics Program at the University of North Carolina, Wilmington.

The four from Pitt County and the area of research each focused on are: Scott Claybrook, D.H. Conley High School, heat properties of elements; William Stephen Cobb, Farmville Central High School, stimulation of a poker game through the use of a micro-computer; Rob Joyner, Rose High School, acidic and dissolved oxygen studies, and Michael W. Little, Ayden-Griton High School, specialty not given.

The program, administered by the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics, is funded by the state with an appropriation of about $2,000 per student. Room, board, tuition, evening programs and field trips are provided at no charge to the students.

Resident Honored

Napoleon Cortez Green, an 88-year-old Bear Grass native and for many years a resident of Williamston involved in area politics, was honored Saturday in ceremonies observing the day as N.C. Green Day.

Green was the featured guest in a parade in downtown Williamston which was part of the Sudan Temple Cold Sands ceremonial. A life Shriner, he was honored by the Shriners for his service to the community.

Green was mayor of Williamston from 1955 to 1975. In 1929 he was elected to the Williamston Board of Commissioners. Over the years, he served on various civic and business boards.

Green maintains an office at Williamston Motors and holds farming and real estate interests, in additon to the oil company which bears his name.

Fellows Program

Four colleges and universities have been invited to join the North Carolina Teaching Fellows Program in 1988-89.

Elon College, Meredith College, the University of North Carolina at Asheville and the University of North Carolin at Chapel Hill were selected recently by the Teaching Fellows Commission in Greensboro.

The four institutions will join nine universities piloting the program this fall. Funded by the General Assembly, it grants $5,000 awards each year to 400 high school seniors who agree to enter a teacher training program and to teach for at least four years following their graduation from college.

The nine universities currently piloting the program are UNC-Wilmington, UNC-Charlotte, North Carolina Central University, A&T State University, UNC-Greensboro, North Carolina State, Appalachian University, East Carolina University and Western Carolina University.

Long Jumper

Joyner-Kersee Close To Record

ROME (AP) — American Jackie Joyner-Kersee moved closer to shattering her world heptathlon record at the World Track and Field Championships today with her second-best long jump ever in the event.

The next heptathlon event is the javelin, Joyner-Kersee's weakest, followed by the 800. Both are scheduled for later in the day.

Her score after five events left her within reach of becoming the first haptathlete to surpass 7,200 points.

Earlier, Greg Foster of the United States set a meet record of 13.20 seconds in a first-round heat of the men's 110-meter hurdles.

Foster, the defending champion, shaved .02 seconds off the old mark he set in the semifinals of the inaugural World Championships four years ago.

The American was quick out of the blocks and clipped several hurdles on his way to the mark to pace the way into the semifinals set for later in the day.

Other heats were won by Mark McCoy of Canada in 13.50, Jon Ridgeon of Britain in 13.46, Jack Pierce of the United States in 13.61 and Stephane Caristan of France in 13.44.

Calvin Smith of the United States, the defending champion who lost his world record in the 100 meters to Canada's Ben Johnson on Sunday, cruised into the second round of the men's 200 meters, winning his heat in 20.62.

Other qualifiers included Robson da Silva of Brazil in 20.56, John Regis of Britain at 20.76, Pierfrancesco Pavoni of Italy at 20.80, Wallace Spearmon of the United States at 20.82, Floyd Heard of the United States at 20.37 — the fastest qualifying time — Attila Kovacs of Hungary at 20.77 and Bruno Marie Rose of France at 20.82.

Linford Christie of Britain, the European indoor 200 champion, failed to show up for the start of the race with an official explanation that he had pulled a muscle. But the Briton has been arguing with team officials and his coach.

The hurdle heats started a busy fourth day of the championships, with Joyner-Kersee aiming at her own world record on the final day of the heptathlon and 400-meter hurdler Edwin Moses defending his title.

Following Monday's 100-meter hurdles, high jump, shot put and the 200-meters, Joyner-Kersee led the heptathlon with 4,256 points, 111 more than she had after the first day when she set the world record of 7,158 last summer in Houston.

She widened the difference to 149 after leaping 23 feet, 5¼ inches to take the heptathlon event. Joyner-Kersee did it in her first attempt and decided to skip the other two jumps.

The long jump is Joyner-Kersee's strongest event, in which she shares the world record at 24-5½. In the heptathlon, her longest leap is 23-9½ and the one Tuesday was her second-best ever in the seven-discipline event.

Joyner-Kersee is attempting to give the United States its first gold medal of the championships, where world or meet records have been set by 10 of the first 12 gold-medal winners.

Joyner-Kersee, who twice shattered the world heptathlon record last year, scored career bests in the high jump and shot put.

She was not as concerned about the world record as she was about securing the gold medal.

"I have to come out winning first," she said. "Whatever else comes. ... I'm going to concentrate on winning."

Joyner-Kersee was first in all the heptatlon events on the first day except the shot put, including a personal best in the high jump of 6-2¾.

Edwin Moses cruised into today's final of the 400 hurdles, but so did the only men to beat the American in the past 11 years — Harald Schmid of West Germany, American Danny Harris and Amadou Dia Ba of Senegal.

But that didn't worry Moses, who celebrated his 32nd birthday Monday.

"I am very confident going into the final," he said.

Markov had a remarkable series, breaking the meet record with his first leap and improving with each following, except for two fouls.

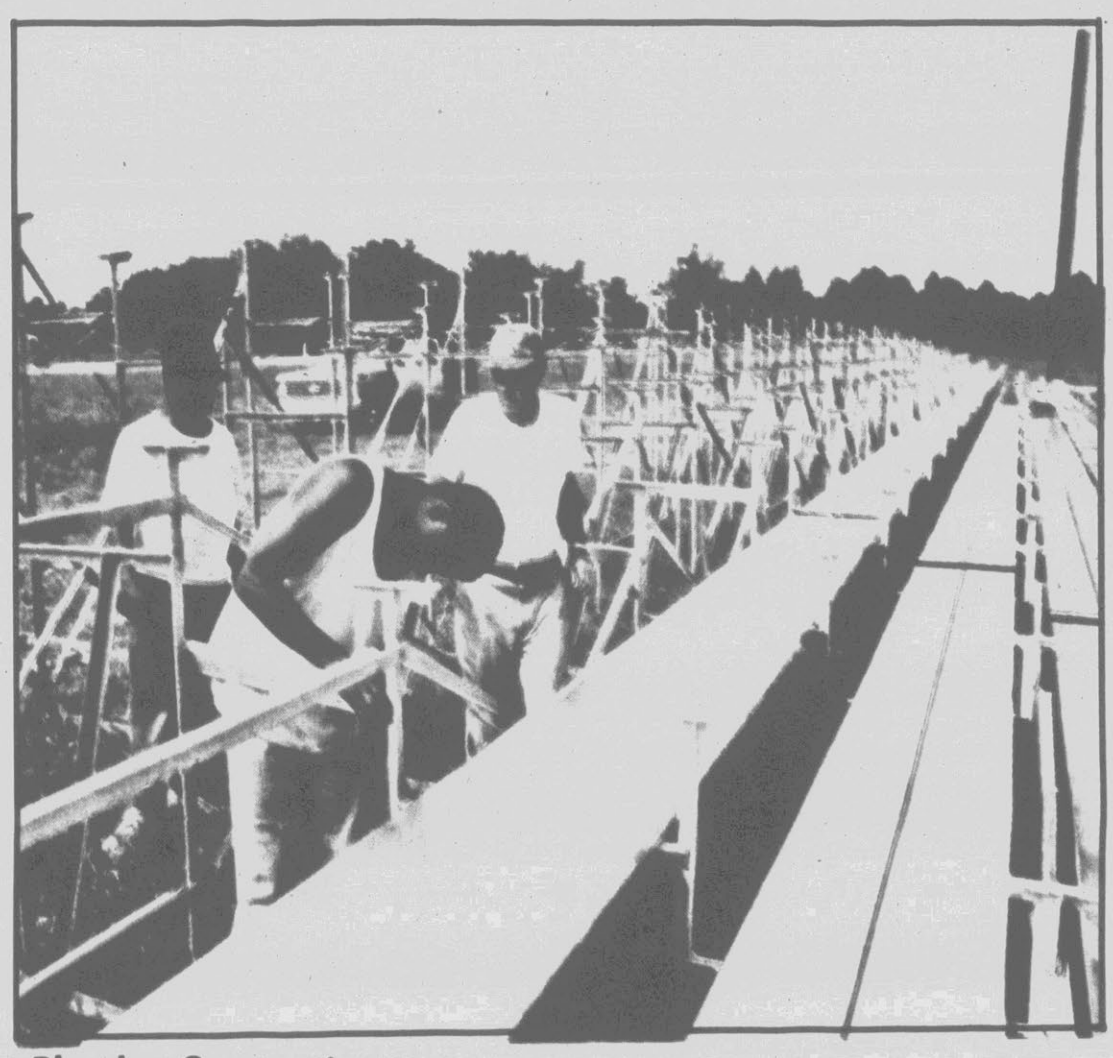

The 22-year-old Bulgarian took the lead with his first jump, 58-1, and never looked back.

His winning jump came in the fourth series and also broke hi own European record of 58-5¼, set three months ago in Sofia. American Willie Banks holds the world record of 58-11½.

Banks, however, failed to qualify for the final, but another American, Mike Conley, was second at 57-11¾. Oleg Sakirin of the Soviet Union was third at 57-2¼.

Markov led a sweep of gold medals by East Europeans on the third day of the championships.

Martin Hellmann of East Germany defended her title in the discus with a meet-record throw of 235-0, ahead of compatriot Diana Gansky at 230-1.

Turnovers, Hail Mary Key Cards Past Bears, 20-16

CHICAGO (AP) — Somehow, someway, the Cardinals always get those Bears.

St. Louis, benefiting from three turnovers and a "Hail Mary" pass that landed in the hands of Don Holmes, defeated the Chicago Bears 20-16 Monday night in an exhibition game.

"We've got a lot of work to do before we meet the world champions," said Bears Coach Mike Ditka, whose team won Super Bowl XX and will open the regular season Sept. 14 against the New York Giants, winners of Super Bowl XXI.

"We kept our record intact; we can't beat the Cardinals," said Ditka, who has never coached a victory against St. Louis in his six years with Chicago.

His record stands at 0-6 in exhibition play and 0-2 in regular season competition against the Cardinals.

A couple of fumbles by Matt Suhey kept the Bears from scoring nothing more than a safety in the first half.

Neil Lomax' 13-yard touchdown pass to Troy Johnson in the first quarter gave the Cardinals a 6-0 lead. Late in the first half, quarterback Mike Tomczak drove the Bears to a first down on the Cardinal one-yard line.

But Suhey fumbled on the next play and the Cardinals, unable to move, gave up a safety in order to get a free kick.

The Bears came right back and attempted a 36-yard field goal, but it was blocked by Lenny Smith and recovered by Niko Noga on the Chicago 38 with three seconds left in the half.

Instead of going for a field goal, the Cardinals tried a "Hail Mary" pass by Lomax. The ball bounded off Bear defenders Reggie Phillips and Otis Wilson and into the hands of Holmes for a touchdown.

"The defensive back bobbled the ball right into my hands," said Holmes, who also caught a 31-yard touchdown pass from Cliff Stoudt on St. Louis' first series of the second half.

"That's a big opportunity for me to make the club," Holmes said. "Beating the Bears is a dream come true for me. They're a Super Bowl team and maybe now we can become a Super Bowl team."

Ditka wasn't excited.

"The play at the end of the first half was a joke," he said.

St. Louis Coach Gene Stallings said he called for the desperation pass because "We thought we had a better chance of making the catch than a long field goal."

The outcome left both teams with 2-1 exhibition records with one game left before the start of the regular season.

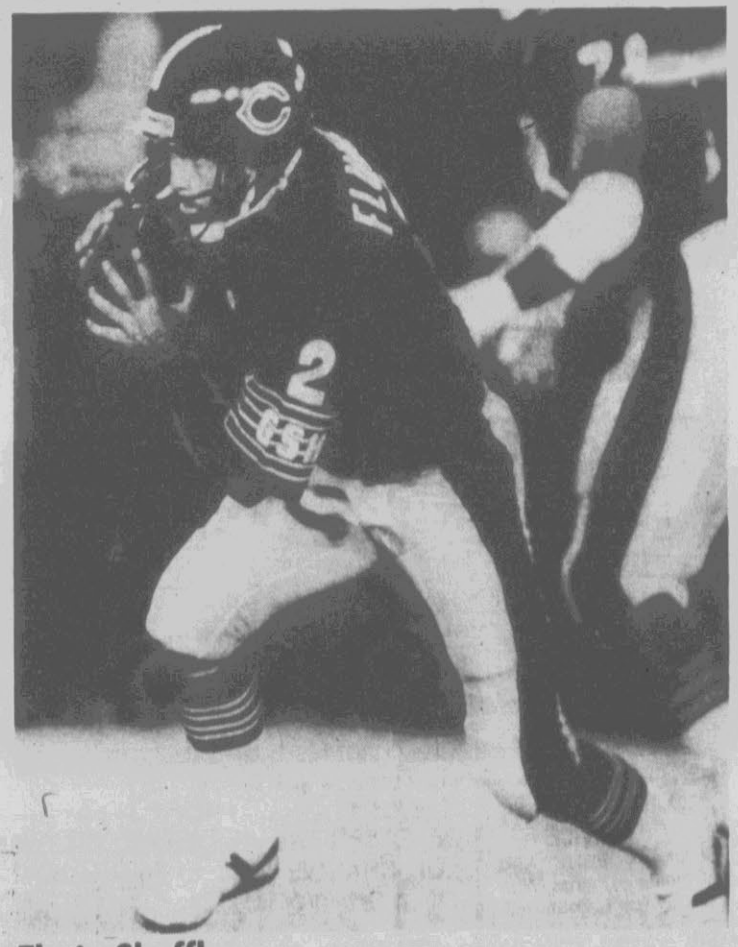

Lomax completed 12 of 21 passes for 128 yards and two touchdowns. He now has completed 31 of 48 passes for 332 yards and five touchdowns in preseason play.

Tomczak played the first half for the Bears and completed 15 of 23 passes for 132 yards, but couldn't get the Bears into the end zone.

"I thought Mike did well," Ditka said. "He moved the ball. We just couldn't get it in the end zone. We'll do well if we don't turn the ball over."

Doug Flutie took over in the second half and directed the Bears to their two touchdowns on drives of 68 and 69 yards. Tom Sanders went 13 yards for one score and Flutie passed five yards to Riley Walton for the other touchdown.

Flutie completed 5 of 10 passes for 75 yards and rushed for 18 yards on two scrambles.

Owners, Players Set To Negotiate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The NFL Players Association and the league's owners have agreed to finally resume negotiations for a new collective bargaining agreement, spurred on by the NFLPA announcement of a confidential strike deadline.

Hours before the current five-year contract expired at midnight, the union's nine-man executive committee on Monday set a deadline for a strike but would not reveal the date.

"I wish I could say that we have made a lot of progress," NFLPA executive director Gene Upshaw said. "Over four years ago I started down this road hoping to reach an agreement short of a work stoppage. Today I'm not so optimistic that will occur because of a lack of progress in negotiations."

Upshaw said the committee would recommend the strike deadline date to the full board of player representatives Sept. 8 in Washington, adding that he wanted the players to consider the date before revealing it to the public.

"I think the board has to know first," he said.

Hours after the news conference, Jack Donlan, the chief negotiator for the owners, said the parties have agreed to meet later this week. He would not reveal the date or site of the first meeting between the two sides since Aug. 14-15.

The earliest the players could strike is Sept. 15, because the union on July 15 gave its mandatory 60 days' notice of a possible strike to the National Labor Relations Board and the league's 28 teams. Donlan, however, said he figures the union would likely not call a strike until shortly after the third game of the season, at which point they would have accumulated the minimum amount of time required to qualify for a year's pension.

"I'm hoping that's the date they have in mind," Donlan said. "We've got a lot of issues to get through. I don't think we could get through them in a week or two."

The NFLPA, discouraged over the lack of progress in negotiations, saw the setting of a strike deadline as its only weapon to get the owners to listen to their demands.

"We really feel the way you get people to talk and to communicate at the table is to threaten them with something like a work stoppage," said Brian Holloway, a tackle on the New England Patriots and a member of the executive committee. "We decided that the action we must take is dramatic, urgent and immediate. Something must be done and done quickly."

The union is seeking improvements in several areas, including guaranteed contracts, increased pension benefits and, most importantly, a free-agent system that does not involve compensation.

Donlan has said free agency is the main obstacle to an agreement. The owners are also seeking a salary scale for rookies and mandatory drug testing.

Upshaw, responding to reports that owners have talked about using free agents in the event of a strike, said: "We predicted things that management would do, and they're doing that."

Donlan confirmed that the signing of cut free agents was part of a memo sent to the teams four months ago and again as a reminder last week.

"What we're saying to the player is 'You're being cut now. If you can find your way to another team God bless you. If you want to stay around we'll pay you $1,000 and we'll honor the contract you originally signed with us,'" Donlan said.

Donlan said using free agents is "just one of the options we have. We wouldn't try that without a full meeting of all the owners."

In 1982, a 57-day player walkout eliminated seven games from the schedule. Commissioner Pete Rozelle has said that strike cost owners around $150 million.

The NFLPA also called strikes in 1970 and 1974.

"We're talking about a union that has never negotiated an agreement without a strike," Donlan said. "The only thing that surprised me about today is that they didn't announce when the (strike) deadline would be."

Hampered By Knee, Andrews Retires

ATLANTA (AP) — William Andrews, never the same after a shattering knee injury during a routine practice sweep three years ago, has ended his comeback bid in the National Football League.

Andrews, 31, the leading rusher in Atlanta Falcons history, announced his retirement Monday, saying he was ready to do a little fishing and thankful that his knee was rehabilitated enough to let him toss the football with his three children in his front yard.

"I came on the premise of competing as hard as I could, and, I think I did that," Andrews said of his training camp bid to make the active roster for the second year in a row. "I knew also it was under the realization that this time would come and this moment would come, so I was well aware of it."

His career was put in jeopardy three years ago when he hurt his left knee running a routine sweep around the left side in practice. He missed two full seasons because of the injury that shredded the major ligaments, damaged the cartilage and stretched the peroneal nerve that controls the upward movement of the foot.

Andrews made the 1986 team, but saw limited duty, rushing only 52 times for 214 yards and catching five passes for 35 yards.

His six-year career, that began in 1979, ended with 5,986 yards rushing and 2,645 yards receiving. He twice had seasons of 2,000 yards in combined rushing and receiving yardage.

"I think it's time now that I step aside and let the youngsters have it," Andrews said at a news conference. "I fulfilled everything I wanted to do in the game, except longevity, which was just not a part of it."

Wiggins Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore infielder Alan Wiggins has been suspended indefinitely by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth for what the commissioner's office called "improper behavior."

Neither the commissioner's office nor the players association would comment Monday on what "improper behavior" might be involved.

Two newspapers reported today that sources said the suspension, without pay, came after Wiggins had failed at least one drug test.

The Washington Post reported that "a knowledgeable source ... close to both sides ... said Ueberroth would not allow Wiggins to play until he underwent a rehabilitation program of 60 to 90 days."

In its Tuesday editions, The Baltimore Sun said Wiggins tested "positive for illegal drugs, according to persons with knowledge of the major-league baseball suspension process."

The Orioles released a statement at Memorial Stadium prior to their game with Seattle Monday saying Wiggins was suspended for "actions detrimental to the best interests of baseball."

Top Twenty forecasts abound on every bookstand as the 1987 college football season prepares to open.

Generally speaking, the Oklahoma Sooners are in the top spot on everyone lists.

Crossing our desk the other day was a release from Penthouse magazine, which listed not the Top Twenty, but the bottom 20 — the teams it calls the worst in the country.

Presumably, being number one on the list means that you are the worst of the worst. That honor this year goes to Columbia University, which has lost 31 games in a row. (Larry Linderman, who compiles the list, apparently makes no distinction between Division I-AA and Division I-A.)

Fifth place on the list goes to our own East Carolina University Pirates.

Here's what Linderman has to say about the Bucs, in part:

"If the Pirates were pugilists, by now they'd be punch-drunk. East Carolina, 2-9 last year, has become a professional opponent—no matter how overmatched they might be, the Pirates will show up anywhere for a fat payday."

Other teams included in the Bottom Twenty include Utah, Navy, Colorado State, VMI, Memphis State, Missouri, Vanderbilt, Wisconsin, Rice, Tulane, Purdue and Texas.

Texas? Yep, the mighty Longhorns are seen as "in a shambles," by the magazine.

The ranking of the Pirates is not all that surprising. After three straight 2-9 years, picking on the Bucs is easy.

Hopefully, this year's finish will be brighter, but with an untested offensive line, it may be hard to improve against the schedule East Carolina has to face.

East Carolina badly needs a victory against N.C. State. It's not a make-or-break situation, but a win would certainly go a long ways toward getting everything on a proper keel.

Then it becomes a question of having to face Florida State, one of the top ten teams in the country. Surviving that game, the Pirates must then face a

Cards Tuning Up For Fall

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals have been very good this year. And after John Tudor's latest effort, it appears they will be even better in September.

Tudor pitched eight shutout innings as St. Louis beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-0 Monday night for the Cardinals' sixth straight victory. The Reds, third in the National League West, have dropped nine of their last 10 games and trail San Francisco by six games.

Tudor, 5-2, allowed five hits, walked one and struck out four in his seventh start since coming off the disabled list. Todd Worrell got the final three outs for the first-place Cardinals, allowing one hit.

"I've still got a little ways to go," Tudor said. "I'm still not getting the outside part of the plate the way I'd like to, but I am making better pitches."

The Cardinals at 79-51 lead the second-place New York Mets by 5½ games and Montreal by six games heading into the final six weeks of the season. The Cardinals' last three games of the year (Oct. 2-4) are at home against the Mets.

Tudor sustained a broken bone in his right knee in a freak accident when New York catcher Barry Lyons crashed into him in the St. Louis dugout during a game April 19. The pitcher was sidelined until July 30. In his six previous starts since coming off the DL, Tudor had not pitched more than 6 2-3 innings.

Tudor didn't have a chance for his first complete game of the season because his arm stiffened.

"He made 109 pitches and he said he was getting tired," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said. "Tonight, he (Tudor) probably threw the ball better than he did last year.

Vince Coleman led off the St. Louis first against Ted Power, 10-9, with a single and stole second, his league-leading 90th steal. Ozzie Smith singled, scoring Coleman, and Tommy Herr followed with a single, sending Smith to third.

After Jack Clark walked to load the bases, Smith came home on McGee's fielder's choice groundout and Lance Johnson made it 3-0 with a single. The Cards made it 4-0 in the third inning as Herr opened with a double and, one out later, McGee hit an RBI single.

Mets 6, Padres 5

Howard Johnson led off the top of the 10th inning with his 33rd home run to lift New York over San Diego. Johnson homered on a 1-1 pitch from reliever Keith Comstock, 2-1.

Jesse Orosco, 3-7, worked 2 2-3 of hitless relief for the victory and Roger McDowell got the last out for his 22nd save, equaling his total of last season.

The Mets trailed 5-1 after seven innings, but rallied for four unearned runs in the eighth on consecutive triples by Rafael Santana and Mookie Wilson and a pair of errors.

Giants 5, Expos 0

Dave Dravecky pitched a five-hitter for his third shutout of the season and Kevin Mitchell and Candy Maldonado hit home runs as San Francisco beat Montreal at Candlestick Park. By winning for the 17th time in their last 24 games, the Giants increased their lead in the NL West to 4½ games over Houston.

Dravecky, 8-9, tied five other pitchers for the league lead in shutouts by blanking the Expos, who had won five straight games. All of his shutouts have been with the Giants since being acquired from San Diego in early July.

Cubs 4, Astros 3

Ryne Sandberg's first-inning home run established a single-season Chicago record for homers and the Cubs defeated host Houston, sending the Astros to their season-high sixth straight loss.

Sandberg's home run, his 15th, gave the Cubs 183 for the season. Chicago's previous record of 182 was set in 1958. The NL record for a 162-game season is 207 set in 1966 by Atlanta.

Chicago rookie Les Lancater, 5-1, allowed two runs and six hits in 7 1-3 innings. Lee Smith pitched the final 1 2-3 for his 32nd save. It was Smith's 449th appearance for the Cubs, tying Don Elston's club record for pitchers.

Phillies 4, Dodgers 2

Shane Rawley improved his lifetime record against Los Angeles to 9-0 and Mike Schmidt hit his 523rd home run as visiting Philadelphia defeated Los Angeles, the Dodgers' fifth straight loss.

Rawley, 17-6, has won all four of his starts this year against Los Angeles and leads the NL in victories. He allowed seven hits in 8 1-3 innings.

Pirates 7, Braves 3

Mike Dunne pitched a six-hitter and rookie Jose Lind hit a two-run triple as Pittsburgh beat visiting Atlanta for the Pirates' seventh straight victory.

The winning streak is the Pirates' longest since they won seven in a row July 8-16, 1984. The Braves have lost five straight.

Young Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Young, a columnist for the New York Post and a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, is dead at the age of 69.

A New York sports writer since the 1940s and a nationally syndicated columnist for more than 20 years, Young died Monday night at Montefiore Hospital, where he had been transferred in July after undergoing intestinal surgery at St. John's Episcopal Hospital. The cause of death wasn't immediately released.

A past president of the Baseball Writers Association of America, Young was elected to the writers wing of the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1978.

Young was a sports writer, columnist and sports editor for the New York Daily News for 45 years until he moved to the rival Post in 1982.

Johnson Wins

Ben Johnson successfully defended his men's singles title for the third straight yer in the 10th Annual Closed Tennis Classic Sunday at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Johnson topped the number-three seed, Marvin Hardy in the finals for the win.

Edie Snider topped Velma Pope for the ladies' title.

Summary:

Men's Singles: Johnson d. Hardy, 7-6, 2-6, 6-4

Men's Doubles: Marvin Hardy-Nelson Staton d. Johnson-Joe Peszko 7-6, 1-6, 7-6

Guidry Pitches Yanks By A's

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

On a rare night for Ron Guidry, he did two significant things he hasn't done all season: balk and win a game at Yankee Stadium.

The veteran left-hander overcame a rare balk that handed Oakland an early run and went on to pitch the New York Yankees to a 4-1 victory over the Athletics Monday night, his first at the Stadium this year.

"I was upset for a second," he said of the bases-loaded balk he committed in the fourth inning that gave the Athletics a temporary 1-0 lead. "But I had to shrug it off. You don't want to let that bother you. You still have a job to do. You want to make the next pitch count."

The balk was only the sixth of Guidry's career. Meanwhile, the victory was his first at the Stadium since Sept. 14 of last season, even though he has pitched well at home. In 52 2-3 innings at Yankee Stadium this year, Guidry has allowed only 13 earned runs for a 2.22 ERA.

Guidry, 4-8, allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings and got offensive support from Ron Kittle and Don Mattingly, who each hit two-run homers.

Athletics Manager Tony LaRussa requested that the umpires confiscate Kittle's bat after the Yankees' designated hitter homered off Curt Young, 11-7, in the fourth inning. Kittle's homer, his 12th, followed a throwing error by shortstop Alfredo Griffin that enabled Gary Ward to reach first base with one out.

Mattingly gave the Yankees two insurance runs with his 24th homer in the eighth inning.

Guidry, who entered the game with an 0-4 record at home, scattered three singles and a double while striking out 10 and walking three.

Orioles 4, Mariners 3

Mike Hart's home run touched off Baltimore's three-run rally in the fifth inning as the Orioles defeated Seattle. Hart's homer, which snapped a 1-1 tie, came off Mike Morgan, 10-15, who was trying to equal his career-high victory total.

Jim Dwyer and Bill Ripken followed with singles, and both scored on a throwing error by catcher Dave Valle after Dwyer was trapped in a rundown on Cal Ripken Jr.'s grounder to second baseman Harold Reynolds.

Indians 7, Tigers 2

Tommy Hinzo had four hits, drove in two runs and scored twice as Cleveland beat Detroit.

John Farrell, 3-0, making his third start and fourth major league appearance since being called up Aug. 18, pitched six-hit ball before needing relief help in the ninth from Ed Vande Berg.

Farrell gave up Matt Nokes' 25th home run in the sixth inning and was also charged with a Tiger run in the ninth on Bill Madlock's sacrifice fly.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

Carlton Fisk went 3-for-3, including a three-run homer, and knocked in all five runs as Chicago beat Kansas City.

Jose DeLeon, 8-11, gained his third consecutive victory with 11 strikeouts in seven-plus innings, the most strikeouts by a White Sox pitcher since Britt Burns struck out the same number on July 23, 1985. DeLeon needed relief help in the eighth from Bobby Thigpen, who recorded his seventh save.

Fisk's 18th homer and 299th of his career put the White Sox up 3-0 in the first. In the fifth, Fisk singled to center and Ivan Calderon, who had singled, kept on running and beat the throw to the plate to make it 4-2. Fisk also had a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Angels 8, Blue Jays 7

Jack Howell scored on a passed ball in the 11th inning to spoil Toronto's seven-run comeback as California defeated the Blue Jays.

Howell singled for his third hit of the game, moved to third on a walk and a sacrifice, and scored when Tom Henke, 0-5, threw a high fastball that catcher Ernie Whitt could not handle.

Willie Fraser, 9-8, struck out two batters in one inning of work for the win. Gary Lucas picked up his third save by pitching the 11th.

Carter To NFL Again

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Wide receiver Cris Carter will be available for an NFL supplemental draft just as he was going to be last week.

Carter declared himself available Monday after Ohio State officials declined to appeal to the NCAA for restoration of the eligibility of the All-America, who was suspended six weeks ago for his dealings with an agent.

Carter, the leading career receiver at Ohio State in just three seasons, said he was disappointed at the decision by university officials.

"I wanted to play football for OSU this fall, and I thought I was going to get the chance," Carter said in a statement through Boston attorney Mitchell Frankel, who said he will handle Carter's contract negotiations with the NFL. "I still don't understand why they didn't appeal.

"Now I've got to go back and think about the NFL supplemental draft. That won't be easy, since I thought I would regain my eligibility. But it has to be done, and it looks like I have no other choice but to go into the draft."

The NFL has scheduled a supplemental draft for Friday.

Carter and Pittsburgh running back Charles Gladman were to be made available to NFL teams in a supplemental draft last week but the league postponed the draft and encouraged the players to attempt to rejoin their college teams.

The NFL's decision came after the NCAA reinstated former Pittsburgh defensive back Teryl Austin, who was suspended after allegations he took money from an agent. The NCAA granted the reinstatement on condition that Austin repay any money he may have received, sever ties to the agents and sit out the season's first two games.

Carter was declared ineligible July 15 after admitting he accepted a $5,000 interest-free loan and $1,800 in monthly payments from agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom.

In order for Carter to regain his eligibility, the first step would have been for Ohio State to appeal to the NCAA on his behalf.

Ohio State President Edward H. Jennings, Athletic Director Rick Bay and head football Coach Earle Bruce met early Monday morning to discuss a possible appeal.

"There was a full-fledged discussion this morning between Earle, the president and me," said Bay, who said he never considered appealing Carter's status. "I think all sides were aired. I might add that none of us, including me despite my strong viewpoint in this situation, see this as a black-and-white issue. There is a gray area in there. ...

DUNKEL INDEX
COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Dole Clashes With Ortega In 'Staged Circus'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega and Senate Republican leader Bob Dole repeatedly clashed during an unusual public debate over U.S. and Soviet involvement in Nicaragua.

The Kansas senator and five other congressmen on a fact-finding trip to the region later criticized the meeting as "a staged media circus."

During the nearly hour-long debate Monday, Dole asked Ortega to agree to three-way negotiations among the Sandinista government, the Reagan administration and the Nicaraguan Contra rebels to bring about a cease-fire.

The rebels, backed by the United States, are fighting to oust Ortega's leftist government. The U.S. Congress last year approved $100 million in military and non-lethal aid to the Contras.

Ortega rejected the three-way talks and repeated his call for negotiations between the United States and Nicaragua.

"The boss of the Contras is the government of the United States," he said.

Dole replied, "Then maybe we should negotiate with Cuba, since they are your bosses."

At another point, the two debated about freedom in the Central American nation.

"When are you going to give the people of Nicaragua some freedom?" Dole asked Ortega.

"We hope that the U.S. government gives the Nicaraguan people freedom to do what they want," Ortega replied.

"What about the Communists in Nicaragua? The Soviets, the Bulgarians and the Cubans? Are they going to leave?" the senator asked, referring to advisers and teachers from the Soviet bloc.

"There are only Nicaraguans here and the Bulgarians and Cubans who are here are aiding the Nicaraguans," Ortega replied.

"You're getting more than $300 million a year from the Soviets," Dole said.

Answered Ortega: "Then send us $300 million because we need more than a billion. We receive aid from the Soviet Union, from Spain, from Latin American countries, but we only receive shots from the United States and you want to dictate to us the policy that we should follow."

At one point Dole asked Ortega if he was interested in talking about the Aug. 7 peace plan signed by the five Central American presidents "or do you just want to have this pep rally here?"

Dole later said, "It's a propaganda rally."

Ortega usually meets with visiting American congressmen in private. But the Dole meeting was held in a convention center before reporters and broadcast on the government-run Voice of Nicaragua.

After arriving in San Jose, Costa Rica, the congressmen released a statement saying, "We have met with the presidents of three of the Central American countries."

"Our meeting with two of those presidents — President (Jose) Azcona of Honduras and, here, President (Oscar) Arias — were very useful, open, candid, serious discussions among people seriously interested in exploring all possible avenues to peace," said the statement, although it was released before the Arias meeting.

"Sadly our encounter with President Ortega in Nicaragua was different entirely," the statement continued.

"It was not a serious discussion; it was a staged media circus."

Dole told reporters that he continued to have reservations about the peace agreement.

"The basic reservation is that we are asked to cut off aid to the Contras, but there is no similar provision that applies to the Soviet Union and its aid to the Sandinista government," Dole said.

In the peace accord, the Central American countries agree to bar military or logistical support and the use of their territory to rebels.

The plan also calls for cease-fires, democratic reforms and amnesties.

Accompanying Dole were Republican Sens. Thad Cochran of Mississippi, Steven Symms of Idaho, John McCain of Arizona and David Karnes of Nebraska. Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., also attended.

The delegation arrived Sunday in Honduras and was scheduled to return today to the United States.

Searchers Find Airliner's Black Box, Several Bodies

PHUKET, Thailand (AP) — Frogmen today located the black box and recovered several bodies from the wreckage of a Thai airliner that plunged into the sea off the resort island of Phuket, apparently killing all 83 people aboard.

Eighteen bodies have been found since the Thai Airways Boeing 737 crashed Monday about 540 miles southwest of Bangkok, Lt. Plodtai Pirathan, deputy commander of the provincial marine police, said today.

The cause of the crash remained unclear today.

Thai Airway's Phuket manager, Narong Yantaragorn, said, "We have established the location of the black box, but believe it to be lodged in some crevice." The black box records cockpit conversations and could contain important clues about why the jet crashed.

The 37 foreign passengers on domestic Flight TH365 included two Americans, two Japanese, three Europeans and 30 Malaysians, said the managing director of the state-run airline, Air Marshal Narong Dithipeng.

A partial passenger list from the airline identified the Americans as William N. Ward and his Thai-born wife Jantree Ward. No further information about them was available.

No survivors have been found despite an intensive search by 280 workers, a half dozen marine and navy frogmen, 25 fishing vessels and two marine patrol boats, authorities said.

Narong Dithipeng, Thai Airway's managing director, said the jet plunged into the Andaman Sea eight miles short of Phuket International Airport after nearly colliding with a Boeing 737 owned by Hong Kong-based Dragonair that also was descending on the airport.

But Dragon Airlines Ltd. denied the claim in a statement issued in Hong Kong today, saying the Thai jet was "at a considerable distance" from the Dragonair jetliner "and at a different flight path at a different altitude."

"Dragonair is satisfied that no 'near miss' occurred," the statement said, adding that the flight recorder of its plane was being processed so the incident could be clarified.

The manager of Phuket airport, Prayoon Thavisang, also said he doubted a near-collision was responsible for the crash, which took place when skies were clear.

He said transportation, air force and aviation officials were to arrive in Phuket later today to try to determine the cause of the crash.

Prayoon said that in a routine landing procedure, both 737s contacted the control tower when approaching the airport at an altitude of 4,500-5,000 feet.

The Dragonair jet landed on schedule at 3:36 p.m. and the Thai airliner was to have touched down four minutes later, he said.

Prayoon speculated that the Thai pilot may have decided not to land immediately and had started to circle when the plane plunged into the sea.

He quoted the Dragonair co-pilot as saying the Thai aircraft nose-dived into the water. Other officials reached in Phuket quoted witnesses as saying there was a burst of fire on impact.

The doomed Flight TH365 had departed the city of Hat Yai, 155 miles east of Phuket, and was to continue to Bangkok.

Reporters on a marine police boat today saw a body in the rough waters near the crash site but few signs of wreckage. A ship equipped with a crane steamed into the area to haul debris from the 45-feet-deep water.

Hundreds of the victims' weeping relatives watched on shore as search teams brought life vests, torn flotation cushions and other debris from the crash site. There were no signs of burns on the wreckage.

Workers planned to retrieve the black box after senior police officials from Bangkok arrived later today.

The airline said navy and marine authorities would search for another day, then the airline would hire fishermen to search for remains.

Larb Hemlarb, who said he watched the crash from his fishing boat a mile away, said: "I saw the plane nose-dive after an explosion in the front of the plane. It then entered the water and exploded again.

"The water sprayed up to 200 meters (yards) and flames quickly engulfed the body (of the jet). It went straight down after the second explosion."

The disaster was the worst crash of a Thai Airways jet since April 27, 1980, when 41 people died after a jet was struck by lightning and plunged to earth north of Bangkok airport.

Pope Begins 'Watershed' Talks With Jewish Leaders

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Jewish leaders began talks today with John Paul II to mend relations following a papal audience with Kurt Waldheim that threatened to disrupt the pontiff's visit to the United States next week.

The closed door talks began at noon at the pope's summer residence in this town in the Alban Hills 15 miles south of Rome.

Delegation members said they planned to discuss the audience with Waldheim, the Vatican's lack of diplomatic relations with Israel, anti-Semitism and Roman Catholic Church statements on the Holocaust and Jews.

"It's a watershed in our relationships, a historic and unique event," another delegate, Rabbi Gilbert Klaperman, president of the Synagogue Council of America, said last week.

The delegates, who prepared for today's meeting by holding day-long talks Monday with Vatican officials, dismissed the suggestion they were seeking an apology from the pontiff for the audience with Waldheim.

"One does not ask for an apology from someone of the stature of the pope," delegation spokesman Gunther Lawrence of the Synagogue Council of America told reporters.

Waldheim, the president of Austria and a former U.N. secretary-general, has been accused of aiding in the deportation of Jews and Yugoslav and Greek partisans to Nazi concentration cmps while he was serving as a lieutenant in the German army in the Balkans in World War II. He has denied the allegations.

The meeting with John Paul was requested by American Jewish groups to "clear the air" following the June 25 audience with Waldheim.

Jewish groups had threatened to boycott a papal ceremony in Miami on Sept. 11 at the start of the pope's 10-day U.S. tour as a protest against the Waldheim meeting.

Italian Inmates Release Hostages

ROME (AP) — Rebel inmates who held 28 hostages for a week in a prison on Elba Island surrendered today, Italian news media reported.

The Italian news agency ANSA said the six rebel inmates released their hostages and gave up to authorities at 11:35 a.m. local time (5:35 a.m. EDT).

The state-run RAI-TV, in a report from Elba, said the hostages were all in good condition.

The reported release came after lawyers for the rebels met with them in the presence of a representative of the human rights group Amnesty International, officials reported.

Italian news reports said the inmates were demanding various guarantees but that the government had insisted that the first priority was the release of the hostages.

The reports said the rebels were seeking transfers to other prisons, better treatment and a review of their trials.

The government refused to provide an escape helicopter as initially demanded by the rebels but said it could consider concessions in prison conditions.

Five of the six inmates are serving life terms for murder or kidnapping.

They had been holded up with their captives since Aug. 25 in the prison infirmary. Officials say they had guns, knives and gasoline.

The convicts were holding 16 guards, the prison director; four civilian prison workers and seven inmates who were being treated in the infirmary when the revolt began.

50 Miners Feared Dead After Blast

WELKOM, South Africa (AP) — A mining company said today that a total of 50 miners were believed dead following an underground explosion that sent tons of rubble and an elevator full of men plunging down a gold mine shaft.

Gary Maude, manager of the St. Helena mine 140 miles southwest of Johannesburg, said "most if not all" of the 42 missing miners were believed trapped in the elevator.

He said the metal cage had probably fallen to the bottom of the 4,500-foot shaft, beneath 130 feet of debris, and "I can't imagine anybody surviving that type of fall."

Five injured miners and eight bodies were found late Monday on a platform 2,300 feet down the shaft. Rescuers placed the injured one by one in a wooden chair and hauled them by rope 100 feet up to a rescue elevator. Recovery of the bodies was scheduled for today.

Maude told a dawn news conference at the mine that there was a chance that the elevator containing the missing men had stopped at about 3,000 feet down the shaft.

"If the lift (elevator) is stuck in the shaft, there is a chance that the men in it survived," he said.

Maude said it would take hours to determine the location of the elevator by lowering a television camera another 650 feet past obstructions in the damaged shaft.

More than 400 men were underground in the General Mining Union Corp. mine when the explosion occurred Monday morning. Most escaped through connecting tunnels to another vertical shaft.

The accident occurred as tens of thousands of men were returning to work in South African mines after a three-week strike that was the longest and costliest in the industry's history. Most of the workers at the St. Helena mine had stayed on the job and the No. 10 shaft, where the accident occurred Monday, had continued to operate.

"We're fairly certain there was an explosion, but the cause and location has not yet been determined," Maude said, citing a loud noise reported by miners in the shaft and burn injuries to the five rescued.

"There is no evidence of sabotage, not even any suspicion of sabotage."

Marcel Golding, assistant general secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers, said Monday night that "Gencor mines are deathtraps" and, "It is becoming patently clear that Gencor's safety practices are atrocious."

Golding said methane gas — colorless, odorless and explosive — is known to be present in the St. Helena mine.

Maude said it was "not very helpful" for Golding, who was not at the scene, to assume the cause of the accident before an investigation was carried out.

A fire killed 177 men at Gencor's Kinross mine in September in South Africa's worst gold mining accident. Methane gas exploded in April at Gencor's Ermelo coal mine, killing 34.

Two of the five injured at St. Helena Monday were taken to a Joshannesburg hospital for treatment of burns. The other three were admitted to the mine hospital.

Mine officials said the eight bodies found in the shaft were black. At least four of the miners believed trapped in the elevator were reported to be white.

Police, Students Battle In Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Waves of students hurling firebombs and rocks battled riot police on the first day of the new semester today, while the government said it would try to defuse nationwide labor unrest by protecting workers' rights.

On the political front, officials said leaders of the governing and opposition parties will meet Wednesday to discuss the nation's transition to full democracy.

About 4,000 students from three Seoul colleges battled police for almost three hours at Seoul National University on the outskirts of the capital after holding a rally to denounce the government and demand the release of political prisoners.

"Down with the military dictatorship!" students chanted as they clashed with police on the sprawling campus. "Down with the murder regime!" was another rallying cry.

Hundreds of riot police in padded green combat fatigues and black visored helmets and shields fired volley after volley of tear gas to drive students back at Seoul National University after they tried to march into the street.

Yonhap, the Korean news agency, said 9,100 students took part in protests at 20 schools nationwide, but did not say how many of the demonstrations were violent.

Several injured police officers were seen being taken away after being hit by rocks and other missiles at Seoul National University. Police declined to give any figures on injuries of officers or students.

The government said about 600 labor disputes remained unresolved today. New actions included a strike by thousands of Seoul taxi drivers seeking a guaranteed salary, and a slowdown threat by workers at the nation's No. 1 shipyard.

Strikes began in early July after President Chun Doo-hwan agreed to democratic reforms, including more labor freedom. Workers are seeking higher pay, shorter hours and better benefits. The labor problems resulted in a nearly fourfold drop in the nation's monthly trade surplus for August, the government announced today.

Prime Minister Kim Chung-yul told the opening session of the 11th Conference of Asian and Pacific Labor Ministers today that South Korean workers' wages and benefits had not kept pace with the enormous economic growth in which they have played a key role.

"In contrast to the astounding economic growth and industrialization, it is true that the treatment of workers has fallen short of their expectations," he told the gathering of labor ministers and officials from 28 nations.

Kim said the hundreds of strikes that have hit South Korea since July have strained the economy but should be regarded as part of the normal development of an industrial economy.

The prime minister said the government was working to end the labor unrest by ensuring the benefits of economic growth were shared by all segments of society.

In the history of the telephone, one person is often forgotten — Emma Nutt of Boston. On this day in 1878, she became the first female telephone operator. The very first operators were all male. Emma held her job for 33 years. In that time, automatic exchanges replaced manual exchanges. In the first automatic exchanges, a caller pushed buttons to get a number and then turned a crank to ring the phone. The first rotary dials did not appear until 1923.

DO YOU KNOW — What inventor filed for a telephone patent just hours after Alexander Graham Bell?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Cocker Spaniels have more American Kennel Club registrations than any other breed.

Horoscope

From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY Sept. 2

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This afternoon would be an excellent time to decide which changes and new arrangements would benefit your business interests. This evening is the time to implement these ideas.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): A new contact can be very helpful to you today. Arrange a meeting with a superior who can also help your career.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You'll have a good idea this morning about how to please your mate. Follow through with it this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Start up a new public project which will improve your community status considerably. Take no risks today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Your income can be increased considerably through more productive activities with business associates.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Arrange some entertainments for the next few days this morning. Handle routine duties in the evening.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): This morning is a fine time for making those changes at hoem which you have been thinking about lately.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Take care of your important correspondence early today. Do whatever will make your home life more harmonious.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Get an early start on handling monetary matters. Be prepared to make some home repairs which you've overlooked.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Make some plans for recreation with friends this afternoon. Handle your money wisely--a new budget would help.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Find a better way to be successful in your routine activities. Try to be more cheerful and endearing to your loved one.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Show new acquaintances that you want them as firm friends. This evening can be a very happy one with your mate.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Your present position can be improved considerably if you study it and use some resourcefulness and intelligence.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have excellent intuitive perceptions and a brilliant mind. A desire to travel exists here, so a knowledge of foreign languages would be helpful. Your progeny could be quite famous in nearly any profession. If he or she is involved in any sports, they should be gentle.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♣ Any chance is better than no chance at all, even at the cost of an undertrick or two. The odds of declarer making his spade game were long indeed, but he deserves highest praise for finding the only line that offered some chance.

With eight sure tricks in hand, South's jump to four spades gets the nod of approval from this department. West correctly refrained from doubling, because nothing in his hand suggested the opponents were out of their depth.

West led a low club and declarer was dismayed with his dummy—clubs was the last suit in which he had hoped to find values. However, declarer worked out a combination that would permit him to establish two tricks in the suit—West had to be leading from specifically 10-third.

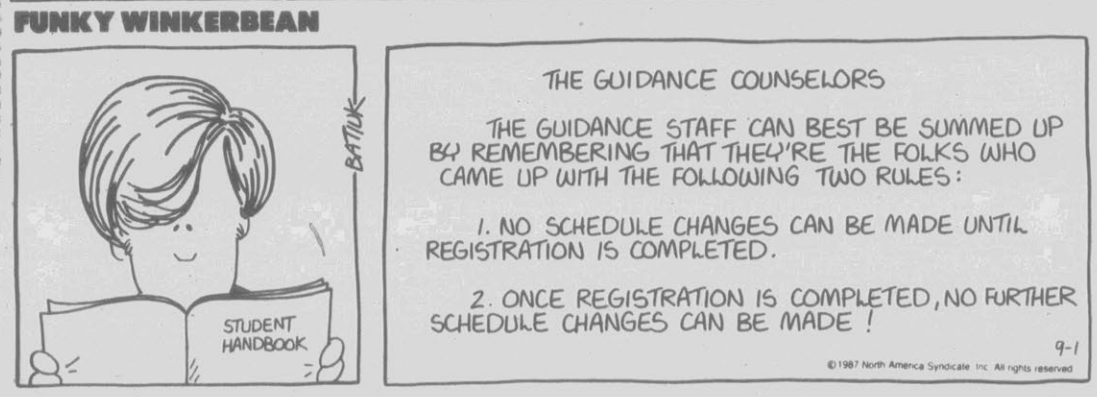

For South's plan to succeed, he would need two entries to dummy, and the trump spots were just good enough to offer that possibility. At trick one declarer played the eight of clubs from the table, and his chances brightened when that fetched the king from East. Declarer ruffed, led a low trump and boldly finessed the eight. The finesse's success provided the needed extra entry. The jack of clubs was covered by the ace and ruffed high, and a trump to the ten was doubly successful—it provided the necessary entry while drawing both outstanding trumps.

One little problem still remained. Declarer cashed the queen of clubs for a heart discard and, when the ten dropped, all was well. The nine of clubs was established as the game-going trick. (Since this line might have converted eight tricks to seven, we wonder whether declarer would have been quite so brave had he been doubled!)

Fox Executives Seeking Public

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A political candidate might feel at home barnstorming across the country, but Fox Broadcasting Co. president Jamie Kellner admits it leaves him exhausted.

At the end of the first week of the "Great Fox Tune-In Tour," Kellner flew back to Los Angeles and slept most of the weekend. He visited Philadelphia and New Orleans, while colleagues went to San Antonio and Oklahoma City.

Nevertheless, he was anxious to get out again and sell Fox and its new lineup of Saturday and Sunday night shows to the public. Initially, they are screening "21 Jump Street" and "Werewolf" and getting reactions.

"We're going to the cities between New York and Los Angeles," he said. "We're going to the heartland. There the people are friendly and very sweet. They take time out to talk to you and to hear what you have to say.

"People watch a lot of television and they're very sophisticated about what they like and what they don't like. No one is in the middle on anything."

The "Tune-In Tour," which includes stars from the Fox shows, is unprecedented in the history of network broadcasting. Technically, Fox calls itself a national programming service, but that's as close to being a network as you can get.

Individual shows have taken to the husting to drum up support, but never a network.

"It's incredibly time consuming," said Kellner. "It's a real grind, but I think we've learned a lot from it and I think the people we've come in contact with know more about us and had a good time.

"The shows that we've done that are the most different are the ones people like the most. The closer they are to what the networks are already doing, the more people are indifferent. But if a show is unique, they rave about it.

"We're a young company," he added. "We're in a position where we can be wrong and make mistakes. Now is the time for us to learn and correct our mistakes."

Fox has nowhere to go but up. Its Saturday and Sunday prime-time lineup of nine shows are at rock bottom in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings. Its talk show, "The Late Show," has dented Johnny Carson's dominance of the field.

Fox's initial research showed that many people were not aware of the company, an ignorance the tour is intended to correct. Kellner said by the time they complete the tour nearly 100,000 people will have seen at least one show and participated in a survey.

Chuck Connors of Fox's "Werewolf" and Jonathan Depp of "21 Jump Street" have been on the road, too. So have Chris Lemmon of "Duet" and Jonathan Ward of "The New Adventures of Beans Baxter." Katey Sagal and Ed O'Neil of "Married ... With Children" took off for Buffalo, N.Y. and Orlando, Fla.

The executives and stars meet with local civic leaders, appear on radio and television talk shows, talk to the local newspapers and meet people at shopping centers. Research screen some of the shows and sample opinion.

Over five weeks, the Fox brigade will visit 21 cities. Prizes are being given away, and two people from each city will win tickets and free trips to Los Angeles for the Emmy Awards show on Sunday, Sept. 20, and the Governors Ball following the telecast.

"We've been getting a lot of positive response," said Kellner. "We screen the shows, then ask people if they would watch them on television. In Buffalo 80 percent of the people gave '21 Jump Street' good marks. In Phoenix, two-thirds gave 'Werewolf' a strong rating. In Kansas City, three-quarters liked 'Werewolf.'"

The tour stops are being filmed for local television promotion spots and possibly for national promotion, he said.

Kellner said he hoped to take the tour to smaller markets.

"Someone suggested we ought to do this tour in motor homes," he said. "After flying back and forth across the country and seeing how big it is, no way."

Private Funeral Held For Huston

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie great John Huston has been laid to rest in the cemetery containing the graves of Hollywood legends Cecil B. DeMille, Rudolph Valentino, Peter Lorre and Douglas Fairbanks Sr.

Huston's daughter, actress Anjelica Huston, and her friend Jack Nicholson were among the 20 mourners who attended Monday's private 45-minute service at Chapel of the Psalms at Hollywood Memorial Park.

About 40 reporters, photographers and television camera crews as well as a curious onlookers were kept away from the chapel.

Nicholson and Miss Huston stood quietly outside the chapel after the ceremony for several minutes, embracing mourners.

Details about the service were not disclosed.

"The family was absolutely adamant that we give out no details, and I wouldn't do anything to hurt that family for the world. They've been just wonderful," said cemetery spokeswoman Jeannie Kidd.

A public memorial service for the Academy Award-winning director, under the auspices of the Directors Guild of America, is planned within two weeks.

Huston's body was returned to California shortly after his death on Friday in Rhode Island at age 81.

The director of such classics as "The Maltese Falcon" and "The African Queen" was remembered by fellow actors and friends as a giant in the motion picture industry, and a romantic whose own life matched that of his diverse and colorful films.

Huston's 40 films also included Tennessee Williams' play "Night of the Iguana," the musical "Annie," and "Prizzi's Honor."

Greene Improves

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Lorne Greene was in serious condition today but responding to treatment for pneumonia he developed following ulcer surgery, a hospital official said.

Greene, 72, has been at Saint John's Hospital since Aug. 19, when he underwent abdominal surgery for a perforated ulcer. His condition deteriorated during the weekend and he was hooked to oxygen tanks to help him breathe, hospital officials said.

"According to his physician, patient Lorne Greene has been showing some improved response to treatment," hospital spokesman Armen Markarian said Monday. "His condition continues to be listed as serious, and he remains under close observation."

A statement released earlier by the hospital said the actor "is experiencing post-operative respiratory complications caused by the onset of pneumonia."

Greene starred as patriarch Ben Cartwright in television's "Bonanza," which ran from 1959 to 1973.

'Stakeout' Is No. 1 In Box Office Sales

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The detective love story "Stakeout" and the spy thriller "No Way Out" are making box office money managers happy as the summertime movie season draws to a close.

"Stakeout," with Richard Dreyfuss as a detective who falls in love with a woman he's watching, was No. 1 last weekend with $4.7 million in receipts.

"No Way Out," the double-cross thriller starring Kevin Costner as a Navy officer trapped in intrigue after the murder of the mistress of the Secretary of Defense, was second with $3.8 million in revenue.

The steamy romance "Dirty Dancing" was third in the weekly box office derby with a $3.6 million turnstile take, but had the highest per-screen average.

"Dirty Dancing," the story of a summertime Catskills romance featuring Patrick Swayze, averaged $3,760 per screen while "Stakeout" had a $3,526 per-screen average and "No Way Out" $3,401 per screen.

The top 10 had four new movies: "Fourth Protocol" which finished fourth, "Hamburger Hill" fifth, "House II" ninth and "The Big Easy," expanded to wide release, in sixth place.

"Fourth Protocol" earned $3.6 million for independent Lorimar, "Hamburger Hill" brought in $3.3 million for Paramount and Columbia's "The Big Easy" took a $3 million box office bite.

"Can't Buy Me Love," Buena Vista's teen flick, was in seventh position with a $2.7 million take, while in eighth was the summer sleeper hit "La Bamba," with $3.3 million.

The summer box office season, which ends Labor Day, is expected gross $1.6 billion, slightly ahead of the record $1.58 billion for the period in 1984.
