'You Have Something To Do'

Pitt County students surrendered summer days of biking, swimming and play to begin or continue their education as schools opened doors for the 1987-88 academic year this morning.

Some second graders at Third Street School said they were glad to hear the sound of the bell that signaled the start of classes.

"When you're in school, you have something to do," said Roshanda Wilkes. She said her summer included playing with friends and a trip to the beach.

Bobby Whichard, also a second grade student, said he is ready to finish his education so he can get a car and go to the beach. "I'll be glad to get out of high school."

After a summer full of activities, Michelle Stewart said it's nice to be back in school. "I went to the beach, and I went to stay with my aunt in Washington (D.C.)."

School principals said the first morning of classes was typical, but things went smoothly.

"We're real pleased" with the first day, said Gaston Monk, principal at Ayden Middle School. "It's a typical first day. We have about 10 in the hall right now, and we're getting them placed. Some are registering for the first time, but the teachers are ready and prepared."

"Everything is quiet" at A.G. Cox Grammar School, Principal Johnny Pinner said. "We had a lot of parents out for the first day to make sure their little darlings got to class."

With a recent Pitt County Board of Education change in district lines, "I had 1,025 (students) last year and about 750 this year, but I couldn't tell the difference," he said. But, "everything went real smooth."

About 20 new students registered this morning at E.B. Aycock Junior High School, Principal J.B. Smith

Cargo Ship, 5 Tankers Hit As War Escalates

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iranian gunboats attacked a cargo ship and an oil tanker today and Iraq said its jets hit two tankers in a dramatic escalation of the three-year-old Persian Gulf "tanker war."

Three other tankers were hit by Iranian ships Tuesday night, gulf shipping sources and Lloyd's of London insurers said. A Cypriot tanker was struck by Iraqi jets Tuesday night, Baghdad Radio reported.

In Paris today, Defense Minister Andre Giraud said France has ordered three warships into the gulf area to help search for mines. The minesweepers were ordered into the region of Khor al-Fakkan, an anchorage used by ships going to and from the gulf and the scene of recent mine scares.

U.S. warships have been escorting Kuwaiti tankers, reflagged with the Stars and Stripes, through the gulf since July 20.

In the latest Iranian attack, at least three Iranian speedboats opened fire on the 97,286-ton Greek tanker Dafni off the northern Saudi Arabian coast near Farsi island, marine salvage executives said. Casualties and damage were not known, they said.

It was the fifth such attack reported in the gulf in less than 24 hours as Iran continued its apparent reprisals for Iraq's weekend resumption of hostilities after a six-week lull in the waterway.

The Iranian attacks today followed Iraqi strikes Tuesday on South Korean, Japanese and Spanish tankers, gulf shipping sources and Lloyd's of London insurers said.

The five strikes were the most by Iran in a 24-hour period since the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war spilled over into the gulf in February 1984. Iran attacks third-country ships on the theory that they may be carrying cargoes to Iraq or states that allegedly support it.

Iraq's official news agency, also monitored in Cyprus, said Iraqi jets today hit two "large maritime targets," an Iraqi expression for a supertanker, near the Iranian coast. The first hit was at 7.30 a.m. and the second at 2.15 p.m., the report said.

Today's attacks and the overnight strike against the 99,011-ton Cypriot tanker Star Ray raised to 11 the number of ships claimed hit by Iraq since Saturday.

INA reported that "scores of Iraqi air force jets" also raided the Iranian oil fields of Barkhan and Agha Jari, as well as power stations and an armament factory in Arak.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Prime Minister Hussein Musavi as vowing today that Iran's policy of "blow for blow will be pursued in a calculated fashion."

The escalation of the so-called tanker war increases the threat to U.S. warships escorting reflagged Kuwaiti tankers through the gulf.

Aquino Says Former Army Leader Involved In Coup

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government said today that a former army commander was involved in plots leading to last week's coup attempt and that conspirators discussed killing U.S. officials and burning a CIA office.

President Corazon Aquino, in the first complete official account of casualties from Friday's coup bid, said 53 people were killed in the fighting. The dead included 12 government troops, 19 rebels and 22 civilians. Hundreds were wounded, including Mrs. Aquino's son, Benigno III.

In a nationally televised speech, Mrs. Aquino said 1,350 troops took part in the mutiny, although it was unclear whether the figure included those who joined in Cebu City, San Fernando and in southeastern Luzon.

Officials in Cebu City, the nation's second largest urban center, said today they bolstered security after hearing of plans for a possible military rebellion there.

Mrs. Aquino said 1,033 mutineers were in custody. The military announced today that a third general had been relieved in connection with the mutiny.

Coup attempt leader Col. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan remained at large, and the military intensified air and ground searches for him today in Manila and provinces immediately north and east of the capital.

Mrs. Aquino said Honasan "wanted to kill me and run our government."

"I grieve for the dead on both sides," she said. "When I ordered the attack I knew that there would be violence. But it was necessary because I had to prevent greater violence."

An "after battle" report, prepared by presidential security and released by the palace press office, said intelligence agents received reports that former army commander Maj. Gen. Josephus Ramas and Honasan planned a "blitzkrieg attack" in June but the operation was postponed.

The report also claimed that followers of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos met July 14 at a Manila

STATION DAMAGED — A deluge pump spews out water as firefighters work nearby during a fire that heavily damaged Buck's Amoco service station at the intersection of 10th and Evans streets Tuesday night. Fire officials said the flames apparently started in a small office-storeroom area and spread to the space between the ceiling and roof of the building. Heavy fire damage resulted to the office-storeroom and the showroom at the front of the building, while heavy smoke damage resulted to the service bay area. Fires Scorching Western Forests

By The Associated Press

Overwhelmed firefighters let smaller hotspots burn and awaited reinforcements from as far as the Northeast today as they battled hundreds of fires that had blackened more than 111,000 acres in the West.

The fires in tinder-dry Oregon, California and Idaho forced scattered evacuations, destroyed or damaged dozens of homes and threatened rural communities. One fire in Washington forced evacuation of a state park.

Lightning-spawned fires scorched 68,000 acres in northern California. The biggest fire, in the central Idaho mountains, was a blaze that flared up and doubled in size in one day to 15,000 acres after being left to burn itself out. Arson was believed to be the cause of at least three of the more than 30 fires in Southern California.

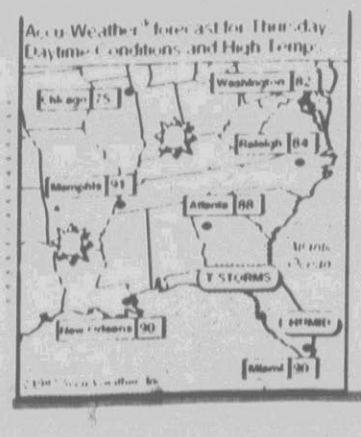

Nearly 9,000 firefighters battled major blazes in California's Stanislaus, Klamath, Tahoe and Shasta-Trinity national forests and nearly 300 smaller fires, Mike Milosch of the U.S. Forest Service said Tuesday.

He said firefighters controlled about 700 other blazes started by lightning since Saturday.

Federal and state firefighters used at least 48 air tankers, 296 fire engines, 31 helicopters, and scores of bulldozers.

Scores of residents were evacuated in Tuolumne City, Harding Flats and Smith Station.

Pilot Enters Guilty Plea

MOSCOW (AP) — The West German teen-ager whose daring flight to Red Square shook up the Soviet defense establishment told a Soviet court today, "I am aware of my guilt," but testified he was on a mission of peace.

Mathias Rust, a 19-year-old amateur pilot, faces up to 10 years in prison on charges of violating Soviet airspace and flight rules and "malicious hooliganism."

An attorney with Soviet Association of Lawyers in Moscow, who is not connected with the trial, said Rust's statement was tantamount to a guilty plea under Soviet law. The attorney spoke on condition of anonymity.

The youth, wearing a blue suit coat over a blue sweater and light blue shirt, was escorted into the courtroom by two uniformed soldiers as the trial opened.

As he gave his first public account of the May 28 flight, Rust said he did not acknowledge guilt on the charge of "malicious hooliganism" because, he said, he never intended to harm anyone.

Rust said repeatedly that he had acted alone when he took off in a small plane from Helsinki, Finland, and made the audacious, low-level flight through some of the world's most tightly guarded airspace to the seat of Soviet power.

"My flight did not have any aggressive intentions," he said.

Rust, who had not been seen in public since his arrest following the surprise flight, looked pale but spoke in a firm voice when questioned.

Rust began his journey with a flight in mid-May from Hamburg, West Germany, to Iceland, the site of last fall's summit meeting between Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and President Reagan.

"I was very concerned that the summit meeting did not have any positive results," he testified.

He said he chose to fly to Moscow because of the impact the publicity would have on world public opinion, but did not think about what he would do upon reaching the Soviet capital.

Farmville Sets Hearing On Proposed Annexation

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners Tuesday night set a public hearing for consideration of the annexation of Brightleaf Shopping Center now under construction just south of Farmville.

The developers of the shopping center, Bailey and Associates Inc., have requested the annexation and a clerk's certificate of sufficiency has been finalized. The public hearing will be held Oct. 6 during the board's regular meeting time.

Following separate public hearings, a 2.03-acre parcel and a 1.06-acre parcel of the Brightleaf Shopping Center property was rezoned from R-5 residential to highway business. These parcels are located in the northeast and northwest corners of the shopping center tract and were acquired by Bailey and Associates Inc., developers of the shopping center, after the original shopping center site was rezoned.

Following a public hearing, a parcel on the west side of U.S. 258 South was rezoned from heavy industrial to Industrial District classification, in keeping with the town's new policy of having one industrial district.

The town's subdivision regulations were amended so that minimum street right-of-way widths for streets outside the municipal limits will be 50 feet instead of 60 feet. This width exceeds the state minimum construction standards by five feet.

It was announced that Town Planner Dillon Watson has established by tax map and other planning documents the square footage of every residential lot in Farmville. He has coded the lots according to how each would qualify within existing zoning. The results of this study is that some changes need to be made in the town's zoning ordinance. The town board has approved going along with the following planning board recommendations:

•That multifamily house be a permitted use or a special exception be removed from R-5 and R-8 districts.

•That R-5 disticts allow duplexes (two-family dwellings)

•That the board establish a district which will allow only residential multifamily units.

•That the board establish by amending the ordinance, a residential manufactured housing district.

Approval was given for the purchase of 52 Christmas tree decorations and 52 15-foot pole wraps for the town. The Carpenter company of Raeligh quoted the town the best price — $5,343 — and was considered by the committee researching the project to have the best product and the advantage of being nearby and offering good follow-up service. The town administrator was authorized to advertise thw town's old Christmas decorations for sale in a newsletter sent to most muncipalities.

The board approved Mayor Edna Earle Baker's appointment of Charles Rice to the Farmville Housing Authority board of commissioners to fill the unexpired term of Robert Wheless, who died recently.

Ralph Cash reported to the board on a successful Babe Ruth League district tournament held in Farmville recently. He said the event generated much good will and netted $5.011.96 for future youth league activities.

Bradham said the Pitt County building inspection department is doing a good job of filling Farmville citizens' building inspection needs while Farmville Building Inspector H.P. Norman is recuperating from surgery.

It was announced that the ground preparation work for the new town hall is under way.

Foundation work has been completed on the May House that the town is restoring for a museum.

It was announced that Gov. Jim Martin will be at Tucker's Warehouse in Farmville Sept. 9 from 2:35 p.m. to 3:15 p.m. Commissioners were encouraged to attend.

N.C. Among Early Entrants In Race For Atom Smasher

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several entries in the super collider sweepstakes believe the winning state may be determined by which offers the most attractive way of life to world-class scientists.

Eleven states submitted proposals on Tuesday, in advance of today's deadline. At least four more were expected today to try to snare the $4.4 billion atom smasher. Another 10 are believed to have turned in their documents early, and the Energy Department says it won't release a list of contestant states until Thursday.

Whoever wins the right to the massive project will have 3,000 jobs, 500 of them for visiting scientists, practically no added pollution and an annual operating budget of $270 million.

There hasn't been such a competition since the late 1960s and early 1970s, when states tried to land what became Fermilab near Chicago, currently the world's most powerful particle accelerator and an installation that Illinois is counting on incorporating into its proposal for the new machine.

Everybody's list of leading candidates includes New York, Ohio, North Carolina, Colorado, Illinois, and Texas.

Another leading contender has been California, but late Tuesday, the state legislature, split by a partisan dispute over minority hiring practices, killed an attempt to keep the state in contention. Lawmakers were trying to work out a compromise.

State Sen. John Garamendi said killing the bid would make California "the laughing stock of the nation."

In soliciting proposals for the 53-miles-around machine, the Energy Department laid down some requirements, and the competing states say they are meeting them.

It seems that almost all the states are using adjectives like "perfect" and "unsurpassed" and "best" to describe their soil and geology.

Every participant believes it has a major airport close enough. Every state is offering site improvements — roads, sewers, power lines and the like, frequently undertaking large bond issues to raise the necessary cash, sometimes to buy the land the federal government expects as a gift.

Several states are stressing low construction costs. Idaho says its offer will save $750 million. Illinois says its offer of the existing Fermilab at Batavia as an injecting accelerator will save $430 million.

It's commonly conceded that world-class physicists — the kind that win Nobel Prizes and can live anywhere — want major urban areas nearby, especially those with world-class universities. Many physicists are musicians and treasure the orchestras and chamber music groups in major cities. Like other sought-after people, they simply won't move to communities without good schools.

So many states are doing something to upgrade the desirability of living there. And all are stressing their desirability. For example:

—A special legislative session in Mississippi authorized $27.5 million in spending for university libraries and scientific equipment.

—Tennessee is promising 20 new faculty positions in particle physics at three universities. North Carolina is also offering to add faculty.

—New Mexico officials are stressing two years' worth of legislation to improve the schools of that state.

—Utah's $230 million package includes a planned residential community and new schools.

—Washington State's proposal includes $18 million for a day-care center.

—Louisiana officials conceded they have a "perception problem," and Rep. Richard Baker, R-La., at a news conference Tuesday brought up the New Orleans Superdome and the cajun delicacy of blackened redfish as inducements to scientists to locate there.

—Alaska, with perhaps an even bigger image problem, is sending along a brief videotape to try to counter what officials believe is a common view of the state as a barren wilderness. The tape talks of summertime temperatures reaching 75 degrees at the proposed site near Nenana, population 475, some 60 miles from Fairbanks. It doesn't mention that the normal January temperature is 13 below.

Finally, when a state is goaded into sniping at a competing state, the weapon is quality of life. One of Texas' proposals is near Amarillo. Gov. Roy Romer of Colorado asked, rhetorically, in an interview, "Do you know any scientists who want to spend a year in the Texas Panhandle?"

The Panhandle has its charms. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Texas, said at a news conference he thought its "clean air and clear skies" would prove an attraction for an Amarillo site.

It isn't known if Boulter had Colorado in mind, but Romer admitted that wide publicity about Denver's air pollution problems wouldn't help his state's entry.

Romer said Colorado will win because it will be everybody's second choice — many scientists already "have second homes" in the state.

What few opponents there are also are stressing what they see as a downgrading of the quality of life brought on by the accelerator. "This is the richest farming land in America," said Craig McNamara, leader of opponents trying to keep the machine from being located near Davis, Calif.

McNamara, who would lose 120 acres of the 520 acres he uses to farm walnuts, presented a petition to the Energy Department arguing that state officials had not considered seismic faults in the area.

The super collider proposals are being screened for completeness by the department, then turned over to the National Academy of Sciences later this month. An academy committee will select finalists in December.

Energy Secretary John Herrington will select a tentative winner next July, making it final in January 1989 if it passes its environmental impact statement — assuming that the final go-ahead is given by Congress, where the project has wide support.

There is very little environmental impact. The 30 feet or so of earth above the tunnel stops radiation from the counterrotating beams of protons. The installation will generate about as much low-level radioactive waste as a major hospital.

Los Angeles Opens Special 'Canine' Court

By BRUCE V. BIGELOW
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City officials, hounded by a backlog of barking dog complaints from angry neighbors, created a "canine court" to settle disputes, save money and let sleeping dogs lie.

"We just want to smooth community relations," said Judith Levin, acting supervisor of the city attorney's West Los Angeles office. "A lot of people get very angry over this sort of issue. ...

"Have you ever had to stay up all night because a dog is barking and then have to go to work the next day?"

The money-saving model program began Tuesday on orders of City Attorney James K. Hahn, who said the goal was to alleviate the burden of nuisance complaints that "continue to dog the court system."

"We call it a canine court, but it's really about relationships between people," Hahn said.

About 10 percent of the city's 1,200 to 1,700 animal nuisance complaints go to trial each year, at an estimated cost of $3,500 a day, Hahn said. He said the city could save as much as $100,000 annually by arbitrating such cases.

People who let their pets bark at all hours are not criminals, Levin said. "They are just people who love their pets and who are discourteous to their neighbors."

Matthew Margolis, a 45-year-old dog trainer and president of the National Institute of Dog Training in Monterey Park, volunteered to serve as a hearings officer.

His approach to problem dogs is to correct the problem, not eliminate the dog, he said.

"I can ask questions that a judge does not have the knowledge to ask," said Margolis. "I speak 'dog-ese,' and I also speak English. And I like to think of myself as bridging the communication gap between dogs and people."

Margolis said he asks detailed questions about the complaint, usually a barking dog, to get a sense of the dispute, the people involved, the neighborhood and the pet itself.

Margolis also said he would follow up personally to be sure that the problem is remedied.

Six cases, involving huskies, German shepherds and other breeds were scheduled for hearings Tuesday, with complainants and defendants both requested to appear.

In four of the cases, Margolis demonstrated how dogs could be trained not to bark, and he pledged to work with both sides to resolve the problem.

But in two cases, the offending dogs had been destroyed by their owners, who apparently preferred that solution to attending the hearing, said Connie Seim, a hearings officer with the city attorney's office.

"It does not happen often, but it does occasionally happen — unfortunately," said Ms. Seim, who declined to identify the dog owners involved, citing privacy rights.

She said that the complainants in one case, unaware that the dog had been killed, appeared for the hearing.

"They were there, even though they admitted that they hadn't heard the dog for a week," she said.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — A touring company of the Broadway show "Cats" helped raise more than $100,000 for AIDS Vancouver.

"We took in $102,000 and that is exactly AIDS Vancouver's shortfall this year," said benefit chairman Michael Harding. The event attracted 2,000 people.

The cast of "Cats," backstage personnel and other staff at the Queen Elizabeth theater gave up their day off to do the show in support of the non-profit community organization, which assists those stricken with the disease.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Back On Track

Is the American space program about to get back on track?

Perhaps. The space shuttle booster rocket was tested Sunday. The rocket has been redesigned following the disastrous Jan. 28, 1986 explosion which killed a seven-person crew on a challenger mission.

The first in-flight fatalities were devastating to the space program and manned flights were suspended in order to determine the flaws and redesign the rocket. Thus, for more than a year no progress has been made toward sending people into space on behalf of the United States.

Considerable engineering and design work have been under way, however, and it is easy to understand the jubilation on the part of spectators and workers when the successful test was done.

"This is a major step on the way to return of the shuttle to flight," said Richard Truly, NASA associate administrator for space flight. He said the test looked good based on data. There will be three more tests before the shuttle flights are resumed, with the next scheduled for late November.

The redesign of the rocket cost $400 million and corrected a faulty seal which a presidential commission said was responsible for causing the 1986 disaster.

Space program planners are proceeding cautiously in correcting the faults which led to the explosion that halted manned space voyages for the United States. That certainly is proper, for we should not take chances with human lives in our efforts to expand our reach into space.

The reality, however, is that there are risks in space travel, some beyond human control and there may be dangers which we cannot foresee. Our mission now is the build the safest vehicles that can be designed for our astronauts. It is obvious that, despite risks, we will continue manned flights into space.

Renovations

Manmade structures throughout the ages have grown ever larger, ever more complex and ever costlier. This last is conjecture, but we suspect human nature has not changed over the years.

An epitome of sorts must have been reached with that colossus on the banks of the Potomac River known as the Pentagon Building. It is so overwhelming that even its name has become synonomous with defense department for whom it was built to serve.

The Pentagon was built in 16 months, beginning in 1941, and cost $83 million to construct. Construction and renovation projects inside the building over the past two years have cost near $23 million — not counting $4 million being spent this year to remove old asbestos insulation.

Hallways are torn up at the moment for installation of a modern $4 million fire alarm system. A planned top-to-bottom renovation might cost as much as $500 million.

It seems we keep looking for that old ideal of getting more bang for fewer bucks, but that principle has only limited application.

Every work day 24,000 military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense report for duty inside its walls. We're told the pace slows after normal working hours but the building remains in use 24 hours a day every day.

The workforce has 6.5 million-plus square feet of gross floor space in which to perform the chores with 17.5 miles of corridors, plus 685 drinking fountains.

Any and all of its statistics would boggle the mind of a Tar Heel. Not even clockwatchers are overlooked: the building has 4,200 clocks. If each of the 24,000 Pentagon workers wears a watch, it requires true creativity to alibi being late for anything.

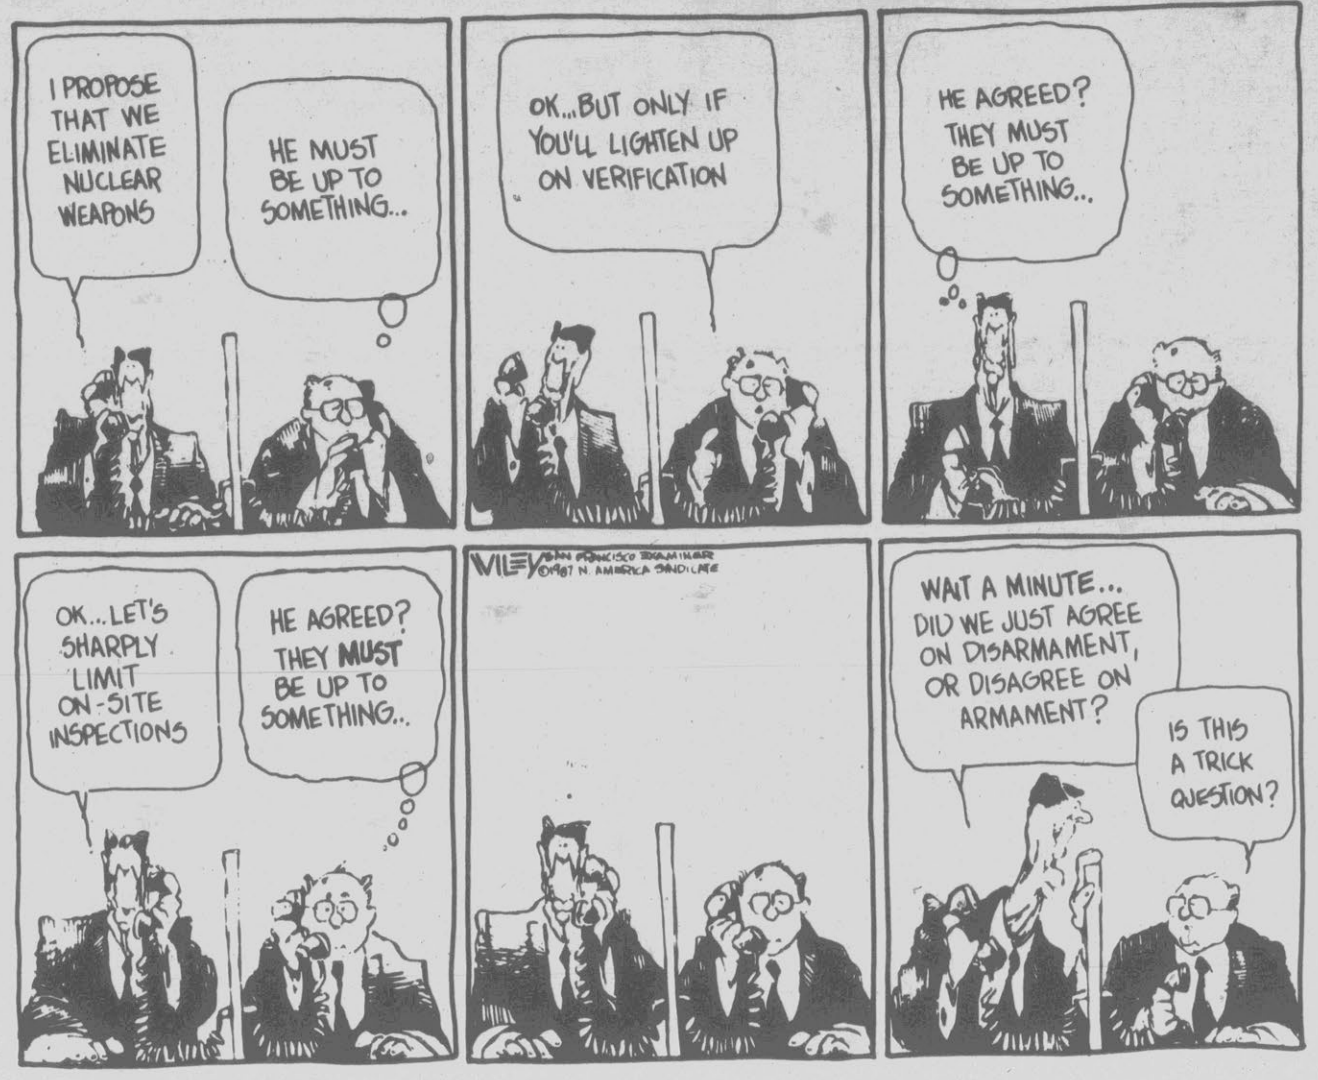

Humility

When New Zealand's Labor Party retained control of Parliament in that country's latest elections it meant return of David Lange as premier. Lange is well known to shapers of U.S. foreign policy as an Uncle Sam-baiter.

Some years ago he learned that by closing New Zealand ports to nuclear-capable ships and aircraft he was irritating some big wheels in Washington — a prized role for ambitious politicians in small countries because of the David vs. Goliath image.

Lange has since attracted attention as a role-model for other South Pacific nations as well as a political power at home.

We hope Lange's political base is offering more than that Johnny-one-note program. The concept is not conducive to good government either among small countries or among large ones. Otherwise, the New Zealand experience is a good one for us. A little humility can be a learning facet of life among the super-powers.

Political Gaffs Littering 1988 Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Dole's trip to Managua, Bruce Babbitt's media buy, Pat Robertson's libel suit and Joe Biden's quick opposition to the appointment of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court — were they good ideas or bad?

Or how about the Southern primary?

Campaigns often are best remembered by the ideas that turn sour. It's 14 months until Election Day 1988 and there already is a bumper crop of questionable decisions.

High on anyone's list of past political gaffs would be Walter F. Mondale's pronouncement that whether he or Ronald Reagan won the 1984 election, the American people would see their taxes increase in 1985.

Not that Reagan has been immune from tossing out a dramatic idea that rebounded against him. Early in his 1976 challenge to President Gerald R. Ford for the GOP presidential nomination, Reagan advocated a massive transfer of authority to the states and said it would reduce federal outlays by more than $90 billion.

For weeks after floating that idea, Reagan reeled under a bombardment of demands that he spell out how he arrived at his $90 billion figure.

Obviously, both Mondale in 1984 and Reagan in 1976 thought they had ideas that would really fly.

Dole may benefit eventually from his impromptu confrontation with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega in Managua on Monday.

After the session between Ortega and a congressional delegation that included the Kansas Republican and four other legislators, Dole complained that Ortega had used the visit for a "propoganda rally."

Later, the four Republican senators and one House Democrat issued a statement saying the meeting "was not a serious discussion; it was a staged media circus."

Maybe Dole's mini-debate with Ortega will play well with U.S. voters. But it also might give his rivals an opportunity to ask whether he really expected to have a "serious discussion" with Ortega.

Babbitt decided last spring to spend $250,000 on a massive media buy in Iowa in order to boost his name recognition in the state that holds the first caucuses of the 1988 campaign.

The former Democratic governor of Arizona certainly needed a way to get Iowans to pay more attention to him.

But he may have spent too much too early. Not even the politically acute folks in Iowa were paying that much attention that early. So the money was spent, the commercials ran and Babbitt remains an also-ran in the polls.

Truth And Trust Are Anchors

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the shadowy realm of the spy, a world where the lie can offer the protection of a cloak and the sting of a dagger, how important is truth and trust?

That question was asked earlier this month by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., as he questioned an official of the Central Intelligence Agency testifying in private before the congressional Iran-Contra investigating committees.

For a moment, a window appeared to open on the attitudes of those who inhabit a mostly secret world.

Nunn had been asking the witness, identified independently as Alan Fiers, head of the CIA's Latin America task force, about the truthfulness of the Iran-Contra affair's star witness, Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

And the witness, in a censored transcript made available by the committees, had something to say about that.

There was "a lot of truth" in what North had to say about the secret sale of U.S. weapons to Iran and the diversion of payments to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, he said.

But there were other things as well.

"I never knew Colonel North to be an absolute liar," he said. "But I never took anything he had to say at face value because I knew he was bombastic and embellished the record and threw curves, speed balls and spit balls to get what he wanted, and I knew it and knew it well."

"I have seen Colonel North play fast and loose with the facts and I think the record will substantiate that," Fiers said. "But, on the other hand, I believe that from where I sit, from the glimpse I saw of this thing as the train windows went by, there was a lot of fact in what he said, too."

Nunn then broadened the question: How important is truth in covert operations among the people who manage them?

"You can't lie," the spy replied.

"You have got to believe each other. Believe me, in the world in which I live and work, you have to have a moral compass, a moral anchor. It keeps you clearly defined on where you are going, what you are, and what is truth and what is lie.

If one loses sight of that moral compass, he said, you end up a rogue agent like Edmund Wilson, the former CIA operative sentenced to prison for his conviction on charges of selling munitions to Libya.

If, Nunn then asked, covert activity is "a lie in itself," does it follow that any lie told to further a covert operation is therefore excusable?

"I don't think covert activity is a lie," the spy replied. "I think covert activity is a range; it is an operation undertaken to influence an event.

It (a covert operation) is a deception," he said.

Nunn asked one more question.

"Is it fair to say that those who deal with covert activities in the world of deception, in the world of secrets, have to trust each other?"

"Absolutely," the spy replied. "If you can't trust each other you are dead in this world."

Lobbyists Were Waiting In Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The party had no sooner ended in Raleigh than it started up again in Little Rock. North Carolina legislators, in town for the Southern Legislative Conference, found North Carolina lobbyists ready and waiting when they arrived in the Razorback capital.

According to SLC records, 47 North Carolina lobbyists were preregistered to attend the function at which 58 North Carilina legislators were scheduled to attend.

The lobbyists kept a fairly high profile during the conference, treating legislators to a riverboat ride down the Arkansas River one night (dinner and drinks included.) Also, Phillip Morris Inc. paid for the opening night reception for the entire conference and telecommunication companies in North Carolina treated some legislators to a Sunday afternoon game of golf.

On the Saturday night before the conference opened, four lobbyists split the cost of a dinner at the Cajun Wharf restaurant for 40 to 50 North Carolinians, mostly legislators and their families. And there were hospitality suites open in various hotel rooms for the duration of the four-day conference.

"I want to stay in touch," lobbyist Zeb Alley said of his reason for being with the legislators in Little Rock the very day after the legislature ended its near-record length 1987 session. "I want to be wherever they are — just like when they are in session."

Lobbyists said they regularly attend such conferences for legislators, governors and other elected officials because they want to maintain the personal relationships they develop during the session. Paul Pulley, a Durham lobbyist, said that lobbying is a very personal business. "Much of it is intangible, not specific. The ability to see people and to explain (your position) to them is essential."

Pulley said, "The word is access." By building a rapport with legislators now, lobbyists like Pulley will have better access and more credibility with legislators when it comes time to lobby again.

Roger Bone, who represents the Tobacco Institute, said that attending a conference gives a lobbyist a chance to "spend time with these people in a totally different environment. It's more social. It's friendship."

But Bone concedes that he doesn't lose sight of the business end of the trip. "This is business. I'm representing the Tobacco Institute while I'm here." He said he'd spoken to several legislators about upcoming issues during the conference. He also spent Sunday driving the families of two legislators to Hot Springs, Ark., so the solons could play golf.

Bryan Houck, lobbyist for Southern Bell, said that there was serious business for lobbyists at these conventions. "More and more we're seeing these conferences become important for dealing with the legislative matters that will be taken up in the future." For example, he said, the telephone deregulation issues of 1987 were previewed at a conference last year.

While it might appear to cynical reporters that the lobbyists are in Little Rock solely to sweeten up what is already a state-paid junket for legislators, Alley said it is worth looking at from the other point of view. It's a bit of a junket for lobbyists, too. "You can test your stamina. If you can lay out all night with this crowd and get up in the morining and still feel good, then you're still a young Democrat — or Republican."

One lobbyist disagreed about the fun aspect. "Actually, this is not my idea of fun. This is work. I'd rather be home playing golf with my friends."

Strength For Today

When in the 16th century the suggestion was made that a canal might someday be cut across the Isthmus of Panama, a member of the Spanish court wrote indignantly: "I am of the opinion that human power should not be allowed to cut through the strong and impenetrable bounds which God has put between the two oceans. If we try to do so, we might well risk the vengeance of heaven." In the early 18th century, when vaccination was first practiced, many people condemned it as an affront to God, who had established smallpox as a part of his divine creation.

Such utterances appear to us today as fantastic. Yet some of our own opinions may be just as fantastic as the opinions cited above. Some hundreds of years hence we may appear before the bar of history to be just as ridiculous as the people whose opinions we have rejected in contempt.

Onslow Leads In Federal Revenue

RALEIGH (AP) — When it comes to getting a slice of the federal money pie, it's better to be in Onslow County than in Stokes County, figures compiled by the State Data Center indicate.

Onslow County, home of the Camp Lejeune Marine Base, tops the state in direct receipt of federal funds — $7,746 per person. Stokes County gets $1,138 per person. But while holding last place among North Carolina's 100 counties isn't much of a distinction, Stokes County has some company at the bottom of the federal funds pile.

North Carolina was last, per person, among the 50 states in getting money back from the federal government from October 1985 to September 1986.

The figures, compiled from the U.S. Census Bureau's "Consolidated Federal Funds Report," show that North Carolina received $19.9 billion — $3,225 per person.

While that placed the state at the bottom of the per-person list, said Celia Fuller of the state Data Center, the state still received more money than most other states — ranking 16th in overall receipt of federal funds.

According to the Data Center's analysis, 42.4 percent of the state's total share of federal funds, $8.4 billion, was payments to individuals — mostly retirement benefits ranging from Social Security to Medicare to federal employee retirement benefits.

Counties with the greatest concentration of people receiving those benefits included Polk County at $2,090 per person; and Moore County, popular with retired military service officers, at $2,078 per person.

The analysis shows 15.9 percent, $3.2 billion, came into the state as salaries and wages for federal employees. Counties with large military installations, received the most in this area. Those include Onslow County with Camp Lejeune; Craven County with the Cherry Point Marine Air Station; and Cumberland County with the Fort Bragg Army post and Pope Air Force Base.

About 8.5 percent, or $1.5 billion, came in procurement contracts with Swain County, which is comprised of mostly federally owned land, receiving $1,351 per person. Guilford County ranked second in the state with procurement contracts at $1,319 per person. The Department of Defense accounts for 68.4 percent of all procurement contract spending in the state.

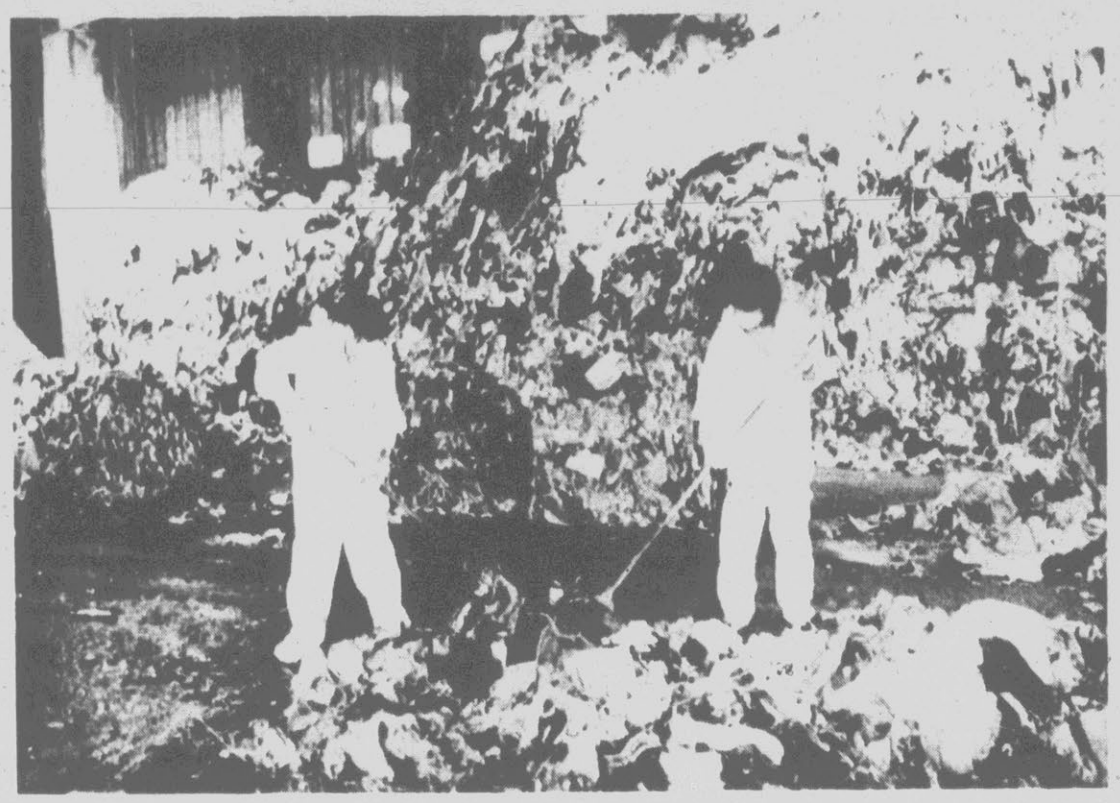

The remaining federal money came into the state as grants and so-called "non-direct" federal assistance as loans, loan guarantees or insurance.

PILE OF GARBAGE — Trash from the nation's most laughed at bargeload of garbage is burned in Brooklyn, N.Y., Tuesday after being inspected by environmental workers. The residue later was buried in Islip, N.Y., where it originated. The garbage had been baled, placed aboard a barge and shipped south for disposal on a futile, 6,000-mile odyssey in search of a dump. The barge was rejected by North Carolina and five other states and three nations before returning to New York. (AP Laserphoto)

Court Clears Path For Mother's Suit In Death Of Stillborn Child

RALEIGH (AP) — A Rockingham County woman will be able to pursue a lawsuit charging negligence in the death of her stillborn child, the N.C. Court of Appeals has ruled.

Tuesday's ruling is the first based on the state Supreme Court's recent decision that a viable fetus may be considered a "person" in wrongful death cases.

That decision was hailed by anti-abortion groups as a recognition of the rights of unborn children.

The appeals court's ruling came in the case of Lillian and John Ledford, a Reidsville couple who filed suit last year against Dr. Donion Martin, charging his negligent obstetrical care caused their baby to be stillborn. The couple sought compensation for the fetus' wrongful death and for Lillian Ledford's physical, mental and emotional injuries.

A judge in Rockingham Superior Court threw out the suit in August 1986 because it was not brought by a legally named administrator of the fetus' estate. The Rockingham County clerk of court refused to name an administrator because a fetus legally was not considered a person.

The Ledfords' suit alleges that Martin, Lillian Ledford's obstetrician, was aware that she had hypertension but did not treat her for it, advise her how to control it or warn her of the risks it posed to her baby. Furthermore, they charged, Martin on two occasions failed to diagnose Lillian Ledford's abdominal pains, misread the results of two tests that could have indicated fetal distress and did not order further, more thorough, tests.

In her thirty-fourth week of pregnancy, Lillian Ledford stopped feeling fetal movement. Tests indicated that the fetus was dead, and she underwent surgery to have it removed.

Both her husband and the obstetrician have died since the case was filed.

Citing the Supreme Court ruling, the three-judge appeals court panel held that Lillian Ledford has the right to seek recovery for the fetus' wrongful death, as well as her own pain and suffering.

Accident

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal investigation has concluded that the pilot's failure to make a proper landing approach was the main reason a Piedmont Airlines jet skidded 450 feet beyond the end of the runway at the Charlotte, N.C., airport last October, injuring 34 people.

The National Transportation Safety Board said the captain should not have attempted to land and should have flown a go-around after approaching the runway too fast and at a poor angle.

The board also criticized poor drainage on the last 1,500 feet of runway, poor coordination between the captain and his co-pilot during the approach and the captain's failure "to optimally use the airplane's deceleration devices" in an attempt to bring the aircraft to a halt on a wet runway.

Body Found

CONWAY, S.C. (AP) — The body of a young woman killed last weekend has been identified as that of a 15-year-old runaway from Raleigh, N.C.

Heidi Nicole Preston was identified Tuesday by her grandmother and a friend, Horry County Coroner Gene Johnson said. Officials also used dental records to identify the girl, he said.

Miss Preston's body was found floating in the Waccamaw River near Lee's Landing off South Carolina 90. She had run away from home, and had been in the Myrtle Beach area several times before, Johnson said.

She was struck with some type of instrument on the back of her head, Johnson said, then thrown in the river.

Evacuation

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Firefighters used a safety valve on a tank to seal a propane leak that forced the evacuation of a half-mile area surrounding a Shelby business Tuesday afternoon.

"Everybody's safe, nobody got hurt and we're tickled to death," said Roland Hamrick, head of the Cleveland County Hazardous Materials Response Team.

Firemen from five departments were dispatched to Williams Electric Co. on U.S. 74 from shortly after noon. The leak was stopped about 1:30 p.m.

Compensation

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Rate Bureau filed revised workers' compensation insurance rates that would increase premiums an average of 16.8 percent.

The rates, filed with the Department of Insurance, would become effective Jan. 1.

North Carolina law requires most employers with three or more employees to have workers' compensation insurance to help injured workers and families of those killed on the job.

Firefighters

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Forest Resource Division firefighters are heading for California to help battle fires in the northeastern corner of that state, officials said Tuesday.

A crew of 19 firefighters, most of them from eastern North Carolina, was being sent to Susanville, Calif., and were being dispatched from there to battle fires in Milford, Calif., said Rebecca Richards, a spokeswoman for the state's Forest Resources Division.

Two other North Carolina crews were expected to leave tonight or Wednesday morning, she said.

Memorial

RALEIGH (AP) — A half-size replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., will be displayed in North Carolina in October, officials say.

The traveling memorial, known as the Moving Wall, will be displayed on the Meredith College campus in Raleigh from Oct. 7-10 and on the Fayetteville Technical Institute campus from Oct. 11-13.

Burglary Charge

HIGH POINT (AP) — Davidson County officials have arrested a Lexington man who had been shot by an 85-year-old man whose house was being broken into.

Johnny Eugene Lambeth, 20, was charged with first-degree burglary. Lambeth was found in Lexington with a .22-caliber bullet in his legs, reports at the Davidson County Sheriff's Department show.

Fred Fugler said he heard several people trying to break into his house early Aug. 24. He grabbed a .22-caliber pistol and fired twice. The first time he hit someone, and the second time he missed. No charges will be filed against Fugler, detectives said.

Jon Thomas Allen, 23, of Linwood, and John Joseph Robinson, 21, of Lexington also were charged with first-degree buglary of Fugler's house. A fourth person is being sought for the crime, detectives said.

Sentence

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 20-year-old Asheboro man was sentenced to life in prison plus 20 years Tuesday after changing his plea to guilty in the March 15 kidnap and rape of an 83-year-old Randolph County woman.

Jamie Cassidy was sentenced by Randolph County Superior Court Judge James A. Beaty after he changed his original innocent plea to guilty on all counts.

Cassidy was charged with first-degree rape, first-degree sexual offense, second-degree kidnapping and larceny.

Jones' Bill Produces PAC Name Changes

RALEIGH (AP) — A new truth in political labeling law has led to some wholesale name changing for the state's wholesale distributors of beer.

When the new law took effect Tuesday, several beer-wholesaler political action committees dropped words like conservation and recycling from their names.

For several years the wholesalers, through PACs with names seeming to promote recycling and conservation, opposed legislation requiring deposits and use of returnable bottles for beverages. Supporters say the bills would help reduce empty bottle litter.

The PACs — with such names as the Triangle Conservation and Recycling Association, the Sandhills Conservation Council, the Coastal Committee Promoting Recycling and the WNC Litter Control Committee — donated money to legislative candidates as part of the successful effort to stop the bills.

Now they are all N.C. Beer Wholesalers Association PACs.

"I want any group that is politically active ... to fully identify itself," Rep. Walter Jones, D-Pitt, sponsor of the new law, said in an interview.

Jones said the goal of the bill is to help voters know as much as possible about groups supporting or opposing candidates in elections.

"Any group, whether it contributes to or supports a candidate and has an affiliation, it should be known — not just to the candidate but to the voters," he said.

Jones said he is particularly concerned about PACs that spring up during the election season "and intentionally try to disguise an affiliation through their name."

Deductibles Ordered On Property Losses

RALEIGH (AP) — The Council of State has voted not to compensate some government property losses, hoping to prod state agencies to take better care of the property and avoid theft.

Members of the Council Tuesday also voiced concern over what they called a shortage of security guards for the state government complex in downtown Raleigh. They said the Capitol police force was reduced from 20 officers to 13 this year after the Legislature refused to assume funding of seven positions that had been paid for by the federal government.

"The vulnerability (to theft) is tremendous," Labor Commissioner John Brooks said in an interview. "If people realized how vulnerable we are, it could be a very bad situation."

The issue arose as members of the council — consisting of the state's 10 elected executive-branch officers presided over by the governor — approved 21 requests for compensation from the State Property Fire Insurance Fund.

The requests ranged from $268 to fix two pumps damaged by lightning at a correctional facility in Rowan County to $188,194 to repair damage from a fire in the Daniels Road Housing Operations Office at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

UNC-CH made 11 requests for compensation, including funds for six thefts of computer equipment and a video camera.

FDA Approves Drug That Reduces Cholesterol

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration today hailed a new drug that reduces cholesterol levels as a major advance that may reduce the risk of heart disease in millions of Americans.

Dr. Frank Young said combining the new drug, lovastatin, which received FDA approval Tuesday and will be on the market in two to three weeks, with diet and exercise may reduce the chance of heart disease.

"This therapy combines the best that we try to bring forward...exercise and diet and then the appropriate use of medicine when required," Young said on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

"Certainly we should all change our lifestyles first, reduce our caloric intake if we have high cholesterol problems, increase our exercise and then, under the guidance of a doctor, use the appropriate medicine," Young said.

"I'd like to emphasize that this really is a major advance. It does block the synthesis of cholesterol early and we think it's a very important drug."

The availability of such a treatment offers an alternative to physicians whose patients are at high risk of heart attack and stroke because of too much cholesterol in their blood.

"Lovastatin is more effective than a good diet," said Richard Havel, director of the Cardiovascular Research Institute at the University of California, San Francisco. "It can lower cholesterol by 30 to 40 percent, while diets currently recommended for wide use can only lower it perhaps 15 percent. But the safety of diet is well established, and it should be used first."

Havel commented in San Francisco, where his center was one of the facilities that began clinical trials of lovastatin in 1984.

The drug has special meaning for the estimated 400,000 Americans who suffer from a genetic defect that renders their bodies incapable of maintaining a proper level of cholesterol no matter how healthy their lifestyles.

Cholesterol occurs in all foods of animal origin and also is manufactured in the body by the liver. It is essential to bodily functions, but too much in the blood results in deposits along the walls of the arteries which can restrict blood flow and, if serious enough, result in heart attack or stroke.

The FDA instructions accompanying lovastatin will say it is intended only for patients whose cholesterol levels put them at significant risk of developing cardiovascular disease and who have not responded to diet and exercise.

However, doctors can prescribe any drug however they see fit once it wins FDA approval, and the decision on when to turn to lovastatin tablets for a particular patient will remain with the doctor.

"Diet will remain the cornerstone of treatment for the majority of patients," said Antonio Gotto, chairman of the Lipid Research Clinic at the Baylor College of Medicine in Texas.

But he acknowledged at a news conference sponsored by lovastatin's manufacturer, Merck Sharp & Dohme, that the "greatest risk of misuse" of the drug will come from doctors who turn to it before being certain that diet and exercise are not working for a particular patient.

Officials of the pharmaceutical company said the new drug, to be sold under the brand name Mevacor, will be available in drug stores in two or three weeks.

They said the cost to the pharmacy will be $1.25 per tablet, considered the daily dose for most patients. The actual price to the patient will vary, depending on the retail markup placed on Mevacor by the local drug store.

Mevacor works only as long as it is taken. "As soon as you stop taking it your (cholesterol) level goes back up," said Jonathan A. Tobert, director of Merck Sharp & Dohme's cardiovascular clinical research. "Normally, you would take it the rest of your life."

The FDA said lovastatin reduced total cholesterol in clinical trials from 18 percent to 34 percent, depending on dosage, and reduced the particularly dangerous low-density lipoprotein, or LDL cholesterol, from 19 percent to 39 percent.

Conversely, the agency said levels of so-called "good" cholesterol, high-density lipoproteins, increased from 3 percent to 13 percent.

Because of liver and eye changes noted in people participating in clinical trials, patients who receive lovastatin should have their blood tested for liver function every six weeks and have an eye test once a year, the FDA said.

However, the side effects are considered minimal compared to the potential benefit of the drug. Edward M. Scolnick, president of the drug company's research lab division, said the company will continue to monitor those effects but said "no one got sick taking Mevacor" during the clinical trials.

INJURED PROTESTER — A demonstrator, left, reacts in horror as others attend to S. Brian Willson of San Rafael, Calif., after he was run over and dragged by a Navy train at the Naval Weapons Station in Concord, Calif., on Tuesday. Willson, leading about 25 anti-war demonstrators, had knelt on the tracks as the train approached. (AP Laserphoto)

Munitions Train Drags Anti-War Demonstrator

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Dozens of people watched in horror as an anti-war demonstrator was run over and dragged by a munitions train as he knelt on a track while trying to stop it, leaving him critically injured today.

Bouquets of flowers and pebbles spelling "Peace" marked the spot where S. Brian Willson was struck Tuesday outside the U.S. Naval Station during a protest over weapons shipments to Central America.

Shortly before he was struck, the 47-year-old Vietnam veteran told a reporter for the Oakland Tribune, "I have to say, 'You can't move the train without moving my body,'" the newspaper reported today.

"He lunged for the train, like he was angry," said the Rev. David Duncombe, who was standing next to Willson.

Willson of San Rafael suffered a skull fracture, and one leg was severed below the knee, said Sandra Ryan, spokeswoman for John Muir Hospital. Surgeons amputated the other leg below the knee, she said. He was listed in critical condition early today.

Willson, who was about to start a 40-day fast, was leading 25 demonstrators outside the weapons station, the largest in the West.

After a news conference, he knelt on the track with others trying to stop the three-car train as it left the depot.

But the train, operated by a civilian Navy employee, hit him as about 30 people, including a contingent of Marines, demonstrators and his family watched in horror.

"They've killed my dad! They've murdered my dad!" shouted Gabriel Rauen, 14, who had to be restrained.

David Wylie of the San Francisco Nuclear Weapons Freeze campaign said Willson's wife of two weeks, Holley, and others waved for the train to stop.

"The engineers shook their heads at them," he said.

Margie Wall of Concord said she and a friend were in an automobile about to leave when they noticed the train speeding up and moving toward the protesters.

"We saw the train coming at a very fast clip, but we couldn't see the rest because of traffic," she said.

Willson and five demonstrators had stretched a banner across the tracks, said John Skerce, one of the five.

The two nearest Willson managed to jump clear, but Willson didn't, he said.

"He was on his knees, forced backward and then dragged ... about 25 feet," Skerce said.

"We thought they would stop," said Duncombe, 59. "Brian was in the middle. I jumped to one side, and Duncan (Murphy) to the other. Brian was caught in the middle.

"He lunged for the train, like he was angry."

Navy spokesman Dan Tikalsky said witnesses told military authorities the train was traveling at 5 mph, but protesters said a video tape they had taken appeared to show it moving faster.

Base Commander Lonnie Cagle said witnesses told Navy officials some protesters jumped onto the tracks a short distance before the train struck Willson.

"The engineer saw no one on the tracks as far as I am aware," Cagle said.

He added that the investigation initially was hampered by the crew refusing to be interviewed or tested for drugs or alcohol until Navy counselors arrived.

The Navy will conduct its own investigation into the incident, he added.

CIA Agents Sold Rare U.S. Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rare misprinted $1 stamps sold as regular postage to the CIA were resold to a stamp dealer for thousands of dollars by nine agency employees, published reports said today.

Stamp experts quoted by The Washington Post said the misprints, which include an inverted candlestick, eventually could be worth more than $10 million, or $115,000 each for the 95 stamps originally purchased.

One of the CIA employees told the agency the stamps were not stolen but had been replaced with regular stamps before they were sold to Jacques C. Shiff Jr. Inc., of Ridgefield Park, N.J., the Post said, quoting a CIA agent who interviewed the employees.

The report said the CIA is investigating whether the employees used their government positions for private profit when they resold 86 of the stamps, apparently for several thousand dollars.

Georgia Executes Grinning Murderer

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — A man who murdered a 14-year-old boy went to his death in the electric chair with a grin, a clenched-fist salute for his lawyers and a curse for those who denied him clemency.

William "Billy" Mitchell, 35, was executed Tuesday night in Georgia's fourth execution this year and the 11th since it resumed executions in 1983.

After the execution, the mother of the boy, who was shot four times in the 1974 attack during a holdup, said justice was slow, and she was glad it was over.

"And I will go by the cemetery and tell my son, even though he's in his grave, that it's over," said Peggy Carr, mother of Christopher Carr.

Mitchell was executed after the U.S. Supreme Court and the Georgia Board of Paroles and Pardons refused to grant clemency.

He was the 90th killer in the nation executed since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed states to restore the death penalty in 1976.

In Texas, a federal judge on Tuesday indefinitely stayed today's scheduled execution of condemned killer James Demouchette, considered by prison officials to be among the most violent men behind bars in that state.

After being strapped into the chair at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center, Mitchell declined an offer by warden Ralph Kemp to pray with a chaplain.

Mitchell, smiling, gave a clenched fist salute to his lawyers and cursed Wayne Snow, chairman of the state pardons board. Snow, at a Tuesday afternoon news conference to explain the board's denial of clemency, had said Mitchell's was "one case where it seems ... there were no redeeming qualities in this individual."

Mitchell waved a strapped-down right hand seconds before the lethal jolt of electricity was sent through his body at 7:14 p.m. He was pronounced dead at 7:21.

Six members of his family were inside the prison but did not witness the execution.

Pilot Rescued

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — U.S. sailors rescued an Iraqi air force pilot they found Monday drifting on a raft in the Persian Gulf for two days after his fighter plane was shot down by what he believes was an Iranian missile, Pentagon officials said Tuesday.

The Iraqi captain told U.S. sailors that he bailed out of his F-1 Mirage fighter jet Saturday near Iran's Farsi Island, according to Pentagon officials. Farsi Island is used as a base by Iran's Revolutionary Guards.

U.S. officials said they believe the English-speaking pilot had been participating in bombing raids against Iranian targets. Iraq ended a 45-day truce in its attacks on Iranian oil and military facilities.

U.S. Navy officials, after consulting with legal authorities, turned the pilot over to the International Red Crescent Society in Saudi Arabia, Pentagon officials said. The Red Crescent Society is the Islamic counterpart of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Because the United States is a neutral party in the seven-year-old war between Iran and Iraq, the Navy crew could not return the rescued pilot to Iraq.

Pentagon officials said that the Iraqi air force on Sunday asked the U.S. government for "humanitarian assistance in the rescue" of an Iraqi pilot.

Gadhafi Urges Soviets To Act

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, celebrating his 18th year in power, urged a quick solution to the Iran-Iraq war and called on the Soviet Union to force the U.S. military out of the Persian Gulf.

Gadhafi also said Libya was "forced to use war" against Chad, which he called a U.S. puppet. Libya on Friday recaptured the disputed desert village of Aouzou.

Gadhafi's remarks came after he reviewed a huge two-hour parade of Libyan armaments Tuesday from a canopied stand on central Green Square. The uniformed colonel was flanked by the leaders of Ghana and Uganda, and surrounded by about 7,000 spectators.

The parade featured more than 2,000 soldiers, hundreds of tanks and three Soviet-made MiG fighter jets that streaked across a cloudless sky to mark the anniversary of Gadhafi's coup that deposed King Idris on Sept. 1, 1969.

Western diplomats said the parade offset reports that the army fell into disfavor after defeats in northern Chad earlier this year.

Start Holiday Gift Projects Early

Pat's Pointers

Pat Trexler

For needlecrafters, it's time to start thinking about holiday bazaars, gifts under the tree and home decorations. This whimsical pair of country-style pot holders in holiday colors fills the bill on all three counts. Mr. and Mrs. Goose are easily appliqued by hand or machine on generously sized square pot holders made of cotton fabric and batting.

To obtain directions for making the Goose and Gander Pot Holders, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-083087 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. A-083087 by sending a check or money order for $9.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, fabric and batting to make two pot holders: one with red background, one with green background.

To receive free copies of Pat Trexler's two Christmas mini-catalogs, containing an array of exciting designs for gifts, decorations, sweaters and projects for the home, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope marked "Trexler Christmas Collection" to the Pat Trexler Crafts address.

Dear Pat: Please don't make us wait until late fall for good Christmas ideas. How about starting early this year and giving us plenty of time to get a head start on our gift list? — Early Bird From California

You'll be happy to know that my September and October column schedule is full of holiday items. In addition to the leaflet and kit offers, I'll try to add many little quickie ideas to the column itself and invite readers to share their ideas.

For starters, how about a striking but simple-to-make crochet belt? Buy a package of 5/8-inch plastic rings from any needlework or notions department, and use up leftover yarns you may have.

Single crochet around the first ring until half of it is closely covered. Next, chain 2 and single crochet around half of the next ring. Continue this way, putting a chain-2 between each ring, until the half-covered rings barely reach around the waist of the wearer. If you are not sure of the waist size, it is better to have it a little short than too long, as it will be tied at the waist.

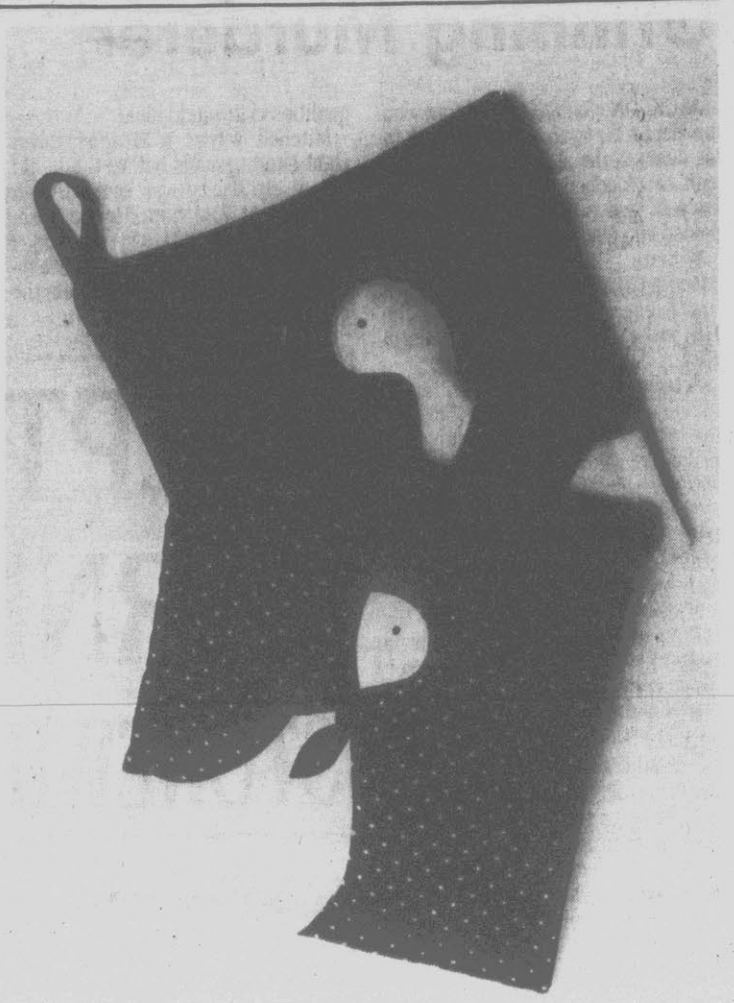

Do not cut the yarn when the last ring is done. Instead, make a chain of about 50 stitches; single crochet completely around another ring and then single crochet in each of the 50 chains, thus making a tie.

You have now crocheted your way back to the belt rings. Crochet around the bare half of each ring, working a single crochet in each chain-2 stitch between the rings. When the last belt ring is covered, again chain 50 stitches and make another tie to match the first.

You can finish one of these people-pleasing belts in and hour or less, hardly putting a dent in your gift budget.

Dear Pat: In odd moments year-round, I make little Christmas wreath lapel pins and then, as the holidays near, I always keep a couple in my purse to hand to store clerks or other people I run into in my day-to-day outings. The delighted smiles I get make it all worthwhile.

I snip apart the plastic rings that hold beverage six-packs together and crochet around these with red or green yarn. At the end of the first round, I turn the stitches so the tops all face the inside of the circle. On the second round of single crochet, I decrease 4 or 5 stitches and fasten off at the end of this round. Sometimes, if the mood strikes, I may make several popcorn stitches on this round. Either way, I usually finish off by sewing on a few small beads or sequins and add a tiny ribbon bow as the finishing touch. — Linda G., Denver.

Humorist Serious About Need To See Funny Side

By JOAN BECKER-CARY
The Peoria Journal Star

MIDDLETOWN, Ill. (AP) — James Myers shakes a salad fork across the lunch table as if he is about to force-feed some solemn words of advice.

He does, but the irony of the message makes him chuckle.

"Americans don't take their humor seriously enough," says Myers. "There would be a lot fewer divorces and business breakups if people could joke and realize how silly many of their concerns are."

The 73-year-old Myers, of Springfield in winter and Middletown (a few miles west of Lincoln) in summer, makes a serious business of delivering prairie humor — whoppers, windies and jokes from about 1850 to 1950.

The author of three books, Myers is wrapping up his fourth, a collection of tall tales to be titled "The Great American Liar." It has been in the works for two years.

In the renowned words of writers, he says, "Every time I think I have it done, I find some other gem I can't leave out." And in the words of the editor: "It's too long already."

Myers' first book was about Abraham Lincoln, a gifted storyteller and jokester. In 1963, along with his wife, Edith, and two other Springfield families, Myers restored the Abraham Lincoln Law Office building and formed a company to publish Lincoln works.

They sold the building 1½ years later, and Myers eventually took sole ownership of Lincoln-Herdon Press Inc., with a mission to publish "American humor that reveals American history."

"Americans have brought the tall tale to an art form," says Myers.

As a boy, he was "pretty humorless" but was always interested in Lincoln. The more he read about the 16th president, the more he realized what an integral part of his life humor was.

Myers likes to tell the story of how Sen. Stephen Douglas and Lincoln were traveling in the same train during the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates. Douglas' wife wanted to chat with Lincoln and left her private car to walk to his coach seat.

She failed to notice his stovepipe hat on the seat beside him and sat on it. Shocked and tongue-tied with embarrassment, she squirmed and wiggled. He let her suffer a little, then said, "Mrs. Douglas, let me advise you. No matter how hard you try, that darned thing will never fit you."

Myers laughs, though he has probably heard and told the story hundreds of times.

"He could take a seemingly tragic situation and make somthing wonderfully funny out of it so everyone could feel good about it," Myers says of Lincoln.

While others might seek retirement by his age, Myers keeps going at a feverish pace. He and his wife move back to the farm near Middletown every summer, and Myers spends the morning writing. "By night, I am too damned tired," he says.

"The trick is not to get discouraged," he says. They are too new at the business of publishing prairie humor to tell if it will be popular.

"We lose money. We gain. We need to find that segment of the population that finds this funny and at the same time are book buyers."

His next book of humor will be about hunting and fishing — the real wealth of tall tales and jokes, he says.

But retire? That is not funny.

"To be retired in Florida, California or Arizona strikes me as the absolute boredom," he says.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Ruffini's Fall Line Emphasizes Comfort

NEW YORK (AP) — Gianfranco Ruffini's fall line emphasizes comfortable, versatile clothing, reflecting what the sportswear designer sees as more relaxed styles — sweater looks and sportshirts — at the office.

Ruffini's "total look" for men features sweaters of textured ribs and jacquards, knit in soft alpaca wool blends, and bold patterns of geometric shapes.

Fit And Fabric Are Important

NEW YORK (AP) — The fit is as important as the fabric in dressing fashionably, says a New York men's clothier.

If your physique is slim, a fitted suit will probably look good, says Mortimer A. April, chairman of Eagle Clothes. On the other hand, stocky men should go for the conservatively styled suit with natural shoulder lines in subtle patterns, he says.

Pinstripes and dark colors are the "perfect solution" for the chunkier types, but a "must-pass" for tall, slender men, he says. Thin men should wear lighter colors, glen plaids and checked patterns, April suggests.

President Reagan Chosen For Style

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ronald Reagan was chosen above all others for his taste and style in a survey of Fortune 1,500 executives.

Forty-one percent of those who looked to public figures as models of taste and style singled out Reagan as their personal favorite. Lee Iacocca ran a distant second with 7 percent of the votes.

Sen. Robert Dole and Vice President George Bush each got 5 percent.

One thousand chairmen of the top Fortune 1,500 companies were polled by Howard-Sloan, Inc., an executive recruiting firm, on their attitudes toward dress, grooming and personal style.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please think twice before advising your readers to stop their newspaper deliveries when they leave town for vacations. Friends of ours were robbed that way. Someone at the newspaper office passed that information along to a thief who broke into their home and picked them clean during "Do Not Deliver" dates.

Whenever we leave town, we ask a trusted neighbor to pick up our newspapers, and we do the same for them when they go on vacation. — BEING CAREFUL

DEAR CAREFUL: Thanks for writing. Many others wrote to suggest that I warn readers against telling strangers the exact dates of their departure and return.

One reader wrote that several burglaries were traced to a post office employee who had been selling the names of families who had requested that their mail be held during specific dates.

Far better to enlist the cooperation of a friend, relative or trusted neighbor to pick up all newspapers, packages and mail delivered daily during your absence.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this as a service to all abandoned pets. Two days ago a mother beagle and her pup arrived on our doorstep in 96-degree weather, starved and almost dead from thirst. We had heard that these two dogs were in the neighborhood. My husband got his gun and quickly put them both out of their misery. This isn't the first time he's had to do this sort of thing.

Many people think we farmers are thrilled to take in all the dogs and cats you city people don't want. We have as many pets as we can care for and do not need yours. So, please take them to the Humane Society rather than condemn them to a miserable death from starvation and/or thirst. Use your heads, and have compassion for the helpless! — PET SYMPATHIZER, HOLLANDALE, WIS.

DEAR SYMPATHIZER: You, who allowed your husband to kill the mother and pup without even trying to save them, call yourself "Pet Sympathizer"? Starving, thirsty animals have been nursed back to health, you know. A truly "compassionate" person would have made some effort to save them.

Please call your local Humane Society, or a veterinarian in your area for a pet rescue group referral, should an abandoned animal again find its way to your door.

DEAR ABBY: About the couple who saw a woman put a package of cigarettes in her purse: This shoplifting pro did not "forget" to pay for them. To suggest that a reminder from a bystander is a solution to this type of petty crime is like spitting on a potential forest fire. There are security personnel in the store to handle such situations.

It is naive to suggest that petty theft on the grand style practiced in this day and age will be deterred in the slightest by a very unsubtle "reminder" from a bystander in a supermarket. Such a solution only produces a more proficient thief the next time around.

The person who saw the woman slip the cigarettes in her purse should have gone immediately to a store employee and reported the incident. Then the matter would be in the hands of the proper officials where it belongs. — FREDERICK HOP, GREENWOOD, ARK.

DEAR MR. HOP: Thanks for writing. Your answer was better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reply to a letter from "Counting by 19s Now," who spent thousands of dollars and weeks of pain following a tragic accident with a power lawn mower. To address the problem of 60,000 mowing accidents a year, the American Red Cross developed a two-hour lawn mower safety course titled "Knowing Mowing." It includes the safety features of a power lawn mower, maintenance, emergency first aid, and an obstacle course to practice new skills.

Too many people who have used a power mower for years think it can never happen to them. "Counting by 19s Now" pointed out how easily such an accident can happen to an experienced and careful mower.

Abby, please advise men, women and children to contact their local chapter of the American Red Cross to sign up for a class. Or better yet, volunteer to learn how to teach this simple, fun course that can save needless pain and tragedy. — DIANE LANDIS, DIRECTOR OF VOLUNTEERS, YAKIMA VALLEY CHAPTER, AMERICAN RED CROSS

DEAR DIANE: Thanks for a timely item that may save countless toes, feet, and possibly lives.

CONFIDENTIAL TO READERS AGE 50 AND OVER: You're never too old to start an exercise program at home, according to legendary movie star Alice Faye, the ambassador of good health for Pfizer Pharmaceuticals.

Alice invites her fellow "young elders" to send for her free "Wake Up and Exercise With Alice Faye" poster. It comes with easy instructions on how to exercise without pain or strain just 15 minutes a day. There are tips on how to breathe, stretch and walk for better health. With your exercise poster comes a daily chart (you fill it in) if you are taking medication daily. Even if you have a disability or a chronic illness, you can still benefit from daily exercise, but check with your doctor first. Exercise will give you more energy, make you feel happier and reduce the risk of heart disease and stroke.

You can obtain your free exercise poster by writing to: Alice Faye's Exercises, c/o Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, P.O. Box 3852AFP, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10163.

(To get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, showing signs of steadying after the decline that set in late Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 14 points in the first few minutes of trading, was up 7.49 at 2,618.46 a half hour into the session.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 4 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 416 up, 746 down and 439 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 30.78 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

As the market opened, analysts said the market was still faced with the set of problems that touched off a wave of selling in the last hour of Tuesday's session.

However, buyers moved into the blue-chip sector in force when the Dow Jones industrial average dipped briefly below the 2,600 level.

Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines rose 3/8 to 163 1/4; American Express added 3/8 to 36 3/8; General Motors was unchanged at 88 3/4, and General Electric dropped 1/2 to 60.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained .26 to 181.47. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .11 at 359.65.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 51.98 to 2,610.97.

Declines outpaced advances by about 2 to 1 on the NYSE, with 1,071 down, 520 up and 373 unchanged.

Big Board volume totaled 193.45 million shares, against 165.81 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index fell 3.23 to 181.22.

Brunswick Clerk

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — Brunswick County Clerk of Court Greg Bellamy pleaded guilty to a charge of cocaine possession and resigned at a hearing in Brunswick County Superior Court.

Judge Henry Hight Jr. gave Bellamy a two-year suspended sentence Monday, two years supervised probation, 50 hours of community service, a $250 fine and ordered him to undergo substance abuse evaluation and rehabilitation.

Appointment

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. James G. Martin has appointed a Caldwell County lawyer to a position representing fish and wildlife activities on the state Environmental Management Commission.

Charles A. Brady III, 32, of Lenoir, will fill the position vacated by Richard T. Barber, a Duke University marine biology professor who is leaving the state to accept a job in California.

Chemicals

RALEIGH (AP) — State environmental officials are investigating whether toxic chemicals were pumped by a glass manufacturer into a swamp just outside Wilson.

The manufacturer, the Foster-Forbes Glass Division of the American National Can Co., was cited Aug. 3 by the state Division of Environmental Management for willfully pumping industrial sludge and wastewater into the swamp. The company also was cited for building and operating a wastewater treatment plant without a state permit.

The charges came on the same day that a DEM investigator found Foster-Forbes employees pumping a mixture of oil and water into the swamp. On Tuesday, DEM spokesman James Sheppard Jr. confirmed that the division was investigating whether toxic chemicals were present in the mixture that was pumped.

Sheppard said there was no immediate threat to public health or the environment.

Coup Report Issued

restaurant to discuss "CIA support for destabilization," bombing campaigns, the assassination of three unidentified Americans and "burning of (local) CIA headquarters" on Ramon Magsaysay Boulevard.

There was no elaboration on the alleged CIA support for destabilization. Several Philippine senators have called for an investigation of possible links between the mutineers and right-wing groups in the United States.

The allegations were part of the "background" portion of the report, and it was unclear whether the alleged plots mentioned were part of the same conspiracy. Maj. Gen. Eduardo Ermita, deputy chief of staff, said he was unaware of the report and could not comment.

Honasan, a former aide of Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, was the main organizer of attacks Friday on the presidential palace, broadcast stations and key military installations.

Ramas was army commander under Marcos. He was dismissed after Mrs. Aquino took power in February 1986. The report also said a coup was planned for July 27 by a military fraternity, the Guardians of Democracy, which it said received some $250,000 from Marcos to finance anti-government campaigns.

The report gave no reason why the planned coups were postponed.

Mrs. Aquino summoned top military officials to today's regular weekly Cabinet meeting to discuss the mutiny. Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno described discussions as "spirited, candid and sometimes blunt" but gave no details.

Armed forces Chief of Staff Fidel V. Ramos said the Cabinet would sponsor legislation to increase soldiers' pay and improve their ability to fight.

He had said earlier the military needed greater support from civilian authorities at all levels. During the coup attempt, mutiny leaders claimed the government had shortchanged the armed forces.

In Cebu City, 350 miles south of Manila, provincial Gov. Osmundo Rama said he had received intelligence reports that mutineers were regrouping for an attack despite the failure of Friday's coup.

There was no fighting in Cebu City during the attempted overthrow, but some military officials supported it, briefly placing top civilian authorities under house arrest and ordering local radio and television stations off the air.

Rama said by telephone that the regional military command sent extra troops to guard the city hall today, and said he was asking for more soldiers to defend the provincial government building.

Brig. Gen. Dominico Casas, commander of the 220th Airlift Wing in Cebu City, was relieved of his command today for allegedly supporting the rebels.

Earlier this week, the military said Cebu area constabulary commander Brig. Gen. Edgardo Abenina, and the deputy air force commander in Manila, Brig. Gen. Federico Pasion Jr., were under investigation in connection with the mutiny.

The government-run Philippines News Agency said a battalion commander and three other army officers were dismissed for leaving their unit in southeastern Luzon to join the mutiny.

The cadets, who staged what they called a "passive strike" at the academy Monday and Tuesday, said they opposed the government's use of force against the mutineers while it offered amnesty to Communist rebels. They issued a similar manifesto Sunday.

Honasan is a graduate of the academy.

said. And, "it went fine without a hitch."

Students at G.R. Whitfield also made a smooth transition from summer vacation to school, said Principal Beth Ward.

"I just walked throughout the whole school and it looks like we've been in session a few weeks. It's been a very, very smooth beginning," she said.

"Things are going well" at Agnes Fullilove School, said Principal Johann Bleicher. "We're seeing a lot of new faces and a lot old faces, (and) we're working at getting people where they're suppose to go and starting that contracting process" that helps motivate students, he said.

There are about 12 new students at Ayden-Grifton High School who are going through an orientation process along with the other students, Principal Bill Wiggins said. "We had a good turn out."

Benefit

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Della Reese will perform Oct. 7 to raise funds for Fisk University and its art collections, officials announced.

Some questions about the new attendance lines were asked at D.H. Conley High School, Principal Nelson Baldree said. Also the usual first-day events of aiding bus drivers on new routes, and guiding transfer students and freshmen were all part of opening school.

With a new classroom wing complete with new numbers on the doors, "even some of the veterans are looking at the handbook to make sure they have the right class," he said.

Students at Elmhurst Elemetary School not only were welcomed by ambitious teachers, but they also were greeted with school grounds groomed by parents and students, said Principal Stella Chambliss.

A crew of about eight families edged shrubs, trimmed curbs and removed weeds near the building Monday and Tuesday in preparation for the students' return. "They have amassed about 30 hours of yard work," she said.

"Our parents have done this for the last several years," Mrs. Chambliss said. School maintenance crews often "don't have the manpower to do it" before school opens.

"I think this is the best year," she said.

Hatcher Is Ejected After Bat Proves Corked; Lanier Worried About Flag Race

HOUSTON (AP) — A corked bat that Billy Hatcher claims he merely grabbed off the bat rack may play a key role in the National League West race if the Houston Astros' leading hitter is suspended for using it.

Hatcher was ejected from Tuesday night's game against the Chicago Cubs after he was discovered using the a bat that contained cork.

Hatcher had singled when the bat cracked. He was then ruled out and ejected from the game.

Houston Manager Hal Lanier is concerned about the punishment that might be assessed and the effect it might have on his team's chances in the pennant race.

"I'm sure there will be some type of punishment," Lanier said. "We're in a pennant race, and to lose a player the caliber of Hatcher could lose you the pennant."

It was the first such ejection since 1974, when Graig Nettles of the New York Yankees was ejected from a game for using an altered bat.

The 3-2 loss to the Chicago Cubs gave the Astros a seven-game losing streak and put them 5½ games behind the San Francisco Giants in the National League West.

Hatcher disclaimed any knowlege of the cork in the bat and said that the bat was not his.

"I just grabbed a bat off the rack because all of my bats were broken," Hatcher said. "It was one of the pitchers' bats. I don't even know who it belonged to and I didn't know it was corked. You can check any of my bats if you want to."

With Gerald Young on first and no one out in the fourth inning, Hatcher hit a ground ball to shortstop Shawon Dunstan when his bat cracked. Chicago third baseman Keith Moreland retrieved the bat and showed it to home plate umpire Dana DeMuth. DeMuth then took the remnants to umpire crew chief John McSherry.

McSherry examined the bat, and after conferring with Lanier, called Hatcher out and ejected him from the game.

"We've been hearing a lot about (corked) bats lately, but this is the first one we have seen," McSherry said. "It was hollowed out with a groove and about three or four inches of cork was inside it."

Houston relief pitcher Dave Smith later admitted the bat belonged to him but denied any knowlege of how the cork got inside the bat.

Lanier defended Hatcher.

"Billy was really innocent," Lanier said. "He didn't know what he had in his hands. That is one of the bats our pitchers use to play their silly little games to see how far they can hit the ball in batting practice. It just happened to be the same model of bat Billy uses and he was out of bats, so he picked it up."

Chicago Manager Gene Michael believes a severe penalty is appropriate for anyone who is caught cheating.

"Isn't it something. We always seem to be involved. They have to do something about it," Michael said. "There's more cheating going on now and we've got to have some rules to stop it.

"I think they'll have some real tough rules if it takes lawyers to do it. We've got to have tough penalties — three months' suspension."

Defeat May Be Helpful To Chargers; Hunter Out

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Despite a 26-20 loss in the season opener to Wallace-Rose Hill, Ayden-Grifton coach B.T. Chappell said the defeat may have helped the Chargers rediscover their work ethic.

"They have been real successful and they pretty much sat around and got satisfied," he said. "The intensity level is not there right now. They're satisfied with what they've done in the past.

"The game last Friday night didn't hurt our confidence. It's got our players eyes open a little bit. I think the game is going to help us."

It had better. Next up for the Chargers is cross-county rival 3-A D.H. Conley. Last season, Ayden-Grifton battered the Vikings, 40-12. This season, Conley has a new coach in Steve Craft and hope springs eternal.

The Chargers will have to contend with Conley quarterback Bronswell Patrick (6-1, 180, Jr.) which is no easy task, according to Chappell.

"They try to run powers and leads through the line," Chappell said. "They run a flanker with play action passes to take advantage of Bronswell Patrick. It puts a lot of pressure on your outside people and your defensive backs. It puts a lot of pressure on your defense to do a good job."

Luckily, Chappell said he saw some positive things from his team in the loss to Wallace-Rose Hill, a tradition 2-A state power.

"We did a lot of good things defensively," he said. "We made them turn the ball over. They had five turnovers. Our defense made them turn it over three times inside the 20-yard line. You think about the number of times they did rise to the occasion. They were giving up yardage in the middle of the field but they were stopping them down there."

Offensively, things did not fare as well for the Chargers. Only one of their touchdowns came as a result of sustained drive while the other two came on defensive plays, specifically an interception return and a blocked kick that was recovered for a score.

"Looking at the stats, we didn't move the ball well," Chappell said. "We were getting beat in the offensive line and we had poor execution. I think our players realize from what we gathered in the film, that we had a good opportunity to win last Friday night.

"We realize that even though we didn't feel real good about how we were moving the ball, we were doing some good things in the kicking game and on defense.

"One thing I was disappointed about was when we got down to the clutch, we had an opportunity to win the game. In the last four minutes, they were driving and all we had to do was stop them and we didn't."

The game, which is the Vikings' season opener, is set for 8 p.m. Friday.

North Pitt

At North Pitt, the Panthers played 3-A West Craven to a 8-8 tie Friday night and return to action this Friday against North Edgecombe, a 20-0 loser to Farmville last Friday.

The Panthers, however, were handed a heavy blow this week when it was learned quarterback Calvin Hunter would be out five to six weeks with a foot injury suffered in the first quarter of the West Craven game.

Director Pessimistic On New Contract Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The executive director of the NFL Players Association says recent actions by the league's management have left him pessimistic that a contract agreement between the sides can be reached without a strike.

NFLPA executive director Gene Upshaw charged management Tuesday with "trying to break up the union" after the New England Patriots informed NFLPA vice president Brian Holloway that he could either retire or be traded.

Later Tuesday, the Patriots sent Holloway to the Los Angeles Raiders for an undisclosed draft choice next year.

Holloway, an offensive tackle, had appeared on national television Monday night, where he firmly stated the union's side of the issues hours after the NFLPA executive committee set a secret strike deadline. Tuesday morning the Patriots told the three-time Pro Bowler that his services were no longer needed.

Patriots Coach Raymond Berry claimed the move was strictly football-related, saying he was "convinced" he had to "make a change" at the left tackle position.

"I think it is necessary, because of the timing, to make a clear point. This decision has absolutely nothing to do with (Holloway's) union activities," Berry said in a prepared statement released by the Patriots.

Upshaw was furious.

"Four years ago I was certain we could settle on a new contract without a strike," he said. "I still think that's possible, but every time management takes action like this, my optimism turns more toward pessimism."

Upshaw said he also resented the fact that management is offering $1,000 to players they cut on the condition they will return if there is a strike.

"What type of signal does this send?" Upshaw asked. "First they come up with the 'yellow dog' contracts, paying guys they cut $1,000 to agree to play in case of a strike. Then they do this to Brian. I knew things would get rough, but this is worse than I expected."

Despite what Upshaw called "bad blood" between the parties, the first round of negotiations since Aug. 14 was set to resume today or Thursday. John Jones, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, said only a few people from each side would be involved in the talks, the location of which was not disclosed.

In the wake of the Holloway incident, the union is expected to put special emphasis on its longstanding request that the owners ensure protection for player representatives.

Holloway, New England's player representative, was given an ultimatum even though he had been the Patriots' starting left tackle throughout the preseason.

Upshaw said the Patriots' action "had nothing to do with Brian's talent" and claimed the NFLPA was considering taking legal action to protect Holloway's rights.

"If this isn't an obvious attempt to break up the union, what is?" Upshaw said. "It's one of the most arrogant acts I've ever seen."

Upshaw said the action against Holloway backs up his contention that the job of a player representative is "a risky business."

"Every player representative out there is scared to death," he said. "They know they can be cut at any time, and that it's tough to prove that they've been discriminated against."

Upshaw said player representatives Marvin Powell, Carl Weathers and Johnny Lynn have all been affected by their union ties.

Powell, the NFLPA president, was released by the New York Jets last year because of his affiliation with the union, Upshaw said. Powell is now a member of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

According to the Jets, Lynn was released last spring when he failed a physical. The Cleveland Browns said Weathers, a linebacker, was cut this summer following a mutual agreement between him and the club on the assumption that he could get more playing time elsewhere.

Jones said the management council is viewing Holloway's dismissal from the Patriots as a "coaching decision." He pointed out that player representatives average 6.5 years of playing time compared to the 4.3-year overall average.

Haywood Is Sidelined

Brian Haywood, slated to start at strong safety for East Carolina University in Saturday's opener against N.C. State, suffered a broken bone in his hand Monday in practice.

A 6-0, 185-pound junior from Fayetteville, Haywood had transferred to ECU from Arizona Western Junior College, where he was considered a top prospect in the defensive backfield. ECU coaches had been impressed with his preseason work and tabbed him as the starter in a backfield which has been picked on over the past few years.

Bob Roller, ECU sports information director, said that a determination would be made today on Haywood's status, and that surgery was a possibility. He is listed as doubtful for both this week's game at State and next week's home opener against Florida State.

Roller said it had not yet been decided who would move up into Haywood's place in the starting lineup.

Offensive Line Is Untested

By TOM MORRIS
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina head football coach Art Baker will send a young, untested offensive line into the season opener against N.C. State, and a good indication of its progress over the preseason will come with the first snap of the ball.

"Probably the biggest area of concern is the offensive line and that's because of inexperience," the coach said. "I think the offensive line has matured quite a bit. The biggest test remains to be seen — what they do when the whistle blows Saturday night."

The only starters who have any real experience are guards Billy Michel and Joe "Mo" Molineaux and tackle Grant Lowe. Michel's playing experience was mostly on defense at linebacker though, and Lowe was a center last season. In addition, their position coach, Steve Shankweiler, is also new.

"We haven't had much time to mature," Molineaux said. "You talk about a maturing front line, it's something that happens during the game.

"Last year, I started five games as a sophomore. We've got Grant Lowe and Billy Michel and myself (and) we've got pretty much the most experience out of the line. That's not enough. You have to get all four guys (experienced)."

Starting offensive tackle John O'Driscoll said the addition of a new coach and new starters at the same time has made for a unique situation.

"That really worked well with the personnel we have," he said. "We had a brand new offensive line and also a new line coach. So we're starting together and we're like a separate team in ourselves. I think we've worked well. I think that we've really progressed a lot. I think the way he's coached us has helped a lot."

The Pirates lost five offensive linemen from last year's team that had started at one time or another. In their stead are Molineaux (6-3, 255, Jr.), O'Driscoll (6-4, 285, Sr.), and Lowe (6-5, 262, So.), along with center Kyle Condrey (6-2, 263, Jr.) and Michel (6-5, 270, Jr.).

Both Molineaux and O'Driscoll agree there is only one way to overcome that inexperience.

"Banging heads with the defense here isn't quite enough," Molineaux said. "I think it's going going to take the first few hits at (N.C.) State to wake our eyes up and realize what the heck is going on out there."

For O'Driscoll, it's a matter of execution. "If we do what we're coached to do, we should be successful," he said. "It will come down to who makes the fewest mistakes.

"If we don't move the people on the defensive line, it doesn't matter how good your backs are. Anthony Simpson can only run over so many people."

While the progress of the offensive line may be a big factor in how successful the Pirates are this year, it is not the only determinant, according to Molineaux.

"It's important, but it's not the only thing," he said. "If you don't have a mature line in there, you are not going to (necessarily) lose the game. (But) it (maturity) makes it a lot better because a mature line is going to mesh and become the heart of the team."

How quick that meshing takes place could be a key to the Pirates' offensive performance. ECU returns experienced players at every other position, led by Simpson at fullback and Travis Hunter and Charlie Libretto at quarterback.

Both Hunter and Libretto are in their second year of guiding the Pirates' run-and-shoot offense and Molineaux said they have progressed well.

"Charlie and Travis, every day they go out there, they get better," he said. "I'm not a quarterback coach and I can't tell you who is playing better, but I know one thing. They're both doing great. The run and shoot is a fairly new offense in college football. Teams have a tough time defending it. If we can execute it just right, it is going to work for us."

Reuschel's Rebound Lifts Giants

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

They really put the wood to Rick Reuschel in his second start with the San Francisco Giants last Sunday. But Tuesday night he was back on the beam.

"I could tell tonight that Rick had his good stuff again," outfielder Kevin Mitchell said after watching Reuschel pitch the streaking Giants to a 14-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

On Sunday, in his home debut with the Giants, the pitcher retired just one New York Mets batter and gave up five runs. He threw only 19 pitches, so Manager Roger Craig decided to bring him back with just one day of rest.

Against the Expos, Reuschel pitched seven strong innings.

"I feel a lot better than after that last start on Sunday. I turned things around and we scored a lot of runs," said Reuschel, who drove in the Giants' first two runs, scored to send them ahead and made two good fielding plays as well.

In other National League games, it was Cincinnati 7, St. Louis 4; Chicago 3, Houston 2; New York 9, San Diego 1; Philadelphia 7, Los Angeles 5, and Atlanta 4, Pittsburgh 0.

Reuschel, 10-7, allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked none, retiring the last 11 batters he faced in his third start since being acquired from Pittsburgh in an Aug. 21 trade. The veteran right-hander has walked only three batters in his last 10 starts.

The Expos took a 2-0 lead with two unearned runs in the third. But the Giants scored six runs in the bottom of the inning, with the first five charged to Floyd Youmans, 8-7. The Giants later sewed things up with a six-run eighth, highlighted by a three-run homer by Mitchell.

The Giants increased their lead in the National League West to 5½ games, as the second-place Houston Astros lost a seventh straight game. The Giants, who were five games out of first place on Aug. 6, have gone 18-7 since then and now have the biggest lead in the major leagues.

"We're putting it all together now," Giants outfielder Eddie Milner said. "We're not looking over our shoulders. We want to win, and we want to badly. The pitching and hitting is jelling. That's obvious."

Reds 7, Cardinals 4

Dave Concepcion broke a tie with an RBI double and Buddy Bell followed with a three-run homer one out later in the seventh inning as Cincinnati beat St. Louis and snapped the Cardinals' six-game winning streak.

Concepcion's double, his second hit in as many innings, and Bell's homer, his 11th, came off Bill Dawley, the third St. Louis pitcher. The two hits pinned the loss on Rick Horton, 6-3, and gave Cincinnati only its second victory in its last 11 games.

Reds left-hander Guy Hoffman, 9-9, survived Jack Clark's two-run double in a three-run Cardinal first to get the victory with relief help from Rob Murphy and John Franco over the final three innings.

Cincinnati, trailing 3-0 through five innings, gained a 3-3 tie on a two-run homer by Eric Davis, his 36th, and a solo shot by Nick Esasky, his 19th, off Horton in the sixth.

"It's a big win for us. We came from behind earlier in the year quite a bit," said Bell, whose Reds remained in third place in the NL West, six games behind the Giants. "Hopefully this will get us going. Davey (Concepcion) got the big hit."

Cubs 3, Astros 2

Andre Dawson and Shawon Dunston each hit RBI doubles as Chicago beat Houston in a game that featured the ejection of Houston's leading hitter, Billy Hatcher, for using an illegal bat.

With Gerald Young on first and no one out in the fourth, Hatcher broke his bat when he beat out an infield hit to Dunston at short. The barrel of the bat was split into two parts. Home plate umpire Dana DeMuth recovered the remnants of the bat and after they were examined by crew chief John McSherry and Houston Manager Hal Lanier, Hatcher was called out and ejected for using an illegal bat.

Jaime Moyer, 11-11, was the winner, giving up one run on seven hits while striking out eight and walking one in 6 2-3 innings.

Manny Hernandez, 0-1, was the loser in his first game since being called up from the Astros' Class AAA Tuscon affiliate.

Mets 9, Padres 1

Keith Hernandez knocked in four runs, three with a homer, and David Cone pitched a three-hitter for 7 1-3 innings as New York beat San Diego.

The victory pulled the second-place Mets within 4½ games of the East-leading St. Louis Cardinals, who lost to Cincinnati.

Cone, 4-3, struck out a career-high seven and walked two before needing relief help in the eighth from Randy Myers, who gained his fourth save. The two combined on a five-hitter.

Phillies 7, Dodgers 5

Lance Parrish hit a two-run homer and Von Hayes singled twice and scored twice as Philadelphia defeated Los Angeles.

The loss, before a season-low Dodger Stadium crowd of 23,074, was the Dodgers' sixth in a row and kept them only two games ahead of the last-place San Diego Padres in the NL West.

Braves 4, Pirates 0

Zane Smith pitched a four-hitter for his seventh win in his last eight starts and Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer, powering Atlanta over Pittsburgh and ending the Pirates' seven-game winning streak.

Smith, 15-7, improved to 3-0 against the Pirates this season by striking out eight and walking none. The Braves ended a five-game losing streak.

replaces Hunter as the starter.

"Basically, with the loss of Calvin and the insertion of Dave Sawyer, our offense is somewhat limited," Bolger said. "We can't option or throw as efficiently as before."

FC's Chris Ross

Bolger added that he thought Sawyer, who had not expected to play much in the season opener, did a good job in relief of Hunter.

"I'm anxious to see him going into a game completely mentally prepared," he said. "Friday night, he wasn't expected to see much playing time. This week, I expect to see a much better performance even though I though he did an excellent job against West Craven."

With Hunter out of the picture temporarily, Bolger said the Panthers' offensive attack would become more power oriented as they showed against West Craven Friday night.

"The one thing that we can tell about our offense that we were unsure of is the power game," Bolger said. "I think we have the people to do that."

Indeed, the Panthers boast some size for a 2-A team. The ends are Ashley Sheppard (6-3, 210) and Reggie Daniels (6-2, 185) while the tackles are Tony Hopkins (5-10, 260) and Jesse Frank (6-2, 278).

"We've been trying to be a finesse team and now we're going to have to be a power team," Bolger said. "You have to have all of it to be successful. We're still a good football team."

The Panthers went into the West Craven game with unproven running backs but Michael Blow and Billy Hardison rushed for 90 and 65 yards, respectively, against West Craven.

"Michael Blow had a good game," Bolger said. "He was a big horse for our JV team last year and he came right in and picked up where he left off."

Farmville Central

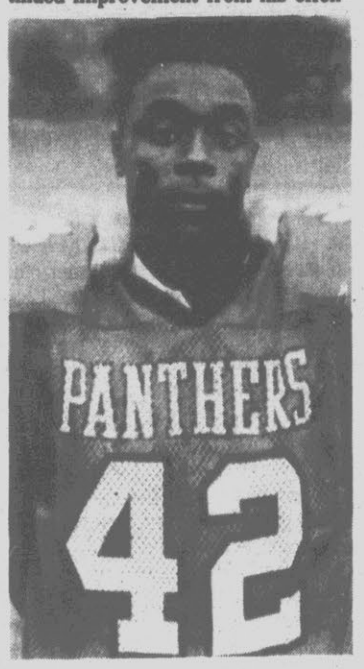

For Farmville coach Dixon Sauls, the Jaguars' 20-0 opening win over North Edgecombe was a big help to his young team.

"We played a very strong team in our scrimmage (against Edenton) and lost our confidence and so a victory in our opener was very important," Sauls said. "We played well together as a team and our offense was able to control the football."

Sauls said he was happy with the performance of quarterback Mack Davis.

"He ran the team extremely well," Sauls said. "He's an excellent field general and we would like to take advantage of his running and passing abilities in the course of the season. For his first start, I thought he handled things extremely well."

Sauls said he would like to see continued improvement from his offensive line, which returned only one healthy starter from last season in guard Devonne Vines. The other guard, Michael Pickett, has been sick and is just returning to practice.

NP's Michael Blow

"We'd certainly like to improve weekly," the coach said. "We certainly would like to improve our effort and technique."

The Jaguars will face on of the top running backs in the area this week in the Redskins' Marvin Earl Morning.

"Roanoke is a team with 16 seniors and an excellent running back in Marvin Earl Morning and an experienced quarterback in Paul Council," Sauls said. "It will be a challenge for our athletes. We certainly look to improve and have to (in order) to be victorious."

Last year, Roanoke handed Farmville a 18-6 loss.

The game against North Edgecombe was dedicated to former teammate Jamie Cowan who was killed in an automobile accident this summer. There will be a memorial service before this week's game at home against Roanoke and the Jaguars will wear Cowan's #83 on their helmets all season. Cowan would have been a junior.

Higuera Tops Saberhagen In Tight Pitching Duel

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Pitching decides pennant races, and Ted Higuera and Bret Saberhagen put on a great show as baseball moved into September.

Higuera held Kansas City hitless for 7 2-3 innings and finished with a one-hitter Tuesday night as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Royals 2-0.

Saberhagen allowed just three hits for the first eight innings before visiting Milwaukee scored twice in the ninth.

"I was not feeling very good today. Had a headache and fever," the Mexican-born Higuera said through his interpreter, teammate Juan Nieves, who threw a no-hitter himself earlier this year. "I just wanted to win the game tonight, that's all."

Higuera, 14-9, did more in pitching his second straight shutout. He retired the first 15 Kansas City batters, and the only hit he allowed came with two outs in the eighth when Ross Jones' drive down the left field line barely eluded Rob Deer's glove.

"You've got to have an awful lot of luck to pitch a no-hitter," Jones said. "He threw a fanstatic game. I have no ill feelings about messing up his no-hitter. I'd love to see him throw one, but against somebody else."

In other AL games, Detroit beat Cleveland 6-5 in 12 innings, Toronto defeated California 4-3 in 10 innings, Boston routed Minnesota 9-0, Oakland downed New York 8-3, Texas stopped Chicago 6-4 and Seattle topped Baltimore 5-0.

Detroit stayed one game ahead of Toronto in the AL East. Milwaukee is fourth, 7½ games behind. Minnesota leads Oakland by one-half game in the AL West. Kansas City is fourth, 3½ behind.

The Royals were shut out for the 16th time this season, most in the majors. Saberhagen, 16-8, gave up a leadoff single to Robin Yount in the ninth. After a sacrifice, Greg Brock walked and B.J. Surhoff grounded into a forceout. Deer and Ernest Riles followed with RBI singles.

Higuera struck out nine and walked two. He has a 5-0 lifetime record against Kansas City.

Tigers 6, Indians 5

Pat Sheridan ended an 0-for-25 skid by doubling home the winning run with two outs in the 12th inning as Detroit defeated visiting Cleveland.

Darrell Evans, who homered in the fourth and hit a game-tying single in the ninth, opened the 12th with a single off Don Gordon, 0-2. Two outs later, Sheridan hit a liner that got past left fielder Cory Snyder and Evans scored standing up.

Willie Hernandez, 3-2, got two outs in the 12th for the victory.

With the score 5-4 in the bottom of the ninth and the bases loaded, Evans hit a single that drove in pinch-runner Scott Lusader. Kirk Gibson, who was on second base, also tried to score but fell down between third base and home and was tagged out.

Tommy Hinzo hit a three-run triple in the fifth as the Indians scored four times for a 4-3 lead. Mel Hall homered in the Cleveland sixth.

Evans and Matt Nokes hit consecutive home runs, the 26th for each, in the Detroit fourth.

Blue Jays 4, Angels 3

Jesse Barfield hit an RBI double with one out in the 10th inning that lifted host Toronto over California.

Tony Fernandez, whose play at shortstop in the ninth prevented the Angels from scoring the go-ahead run, led off the 10th with a single against Mike Witt, 15-10. Rob Ducey followed with a single and Barfield doubled to the right field fence.

Jeff Musselman, 11-4, got the victory, ending the Angels' three-game winning streak. Barfield hit a two-run double in the first.

Red Sox 9, Twins 0

Jeff Sellers pitched a five-hitter and Wade Boggs and Mike Greenwell homered, leading Boston past Minnesota at the Metrodome.

Boggs, Greenwell and Marty Barrett each went 3-for-4 in a 17-hit attack by the Red Sox. Greenwell drove in four runs and Boggs, who also doubled, had three RBI.

Sellers, 6-6, struck out seven and walked two. Joe Niekro, 6-11, gave up five runs in four-plus innings.

Kirby Puckett of the Twins singled in his first at-bat, giving him seven straight hits. Puckett went 2-for-4 and wound up one hit short of the major-league record of 13 hits in three straight nine-inning games.

Athletics 8, Yankees 3

Dwayne Murphy, Jose Canseco and Terry Steinbach hit home runs as Oakland won at Yankee Stadium.

Murphy's two-run homer capped a three-run third inning that made it 5-0 against Charles Hudson, 9-5. It was Murphy's third home run this season and first since April 20.

Canseco hit his 29th home run and Steinbach got his 13th.

Mariners 5, Orioles 0

Scott Bankhead pitched two-hit ball for seven innings and Ken Phelps hit a two-run homer as Seattle won in Baltimore.

Bankhead, 8-8, combined with Bill Wilkinson on a three-hitter. Bankhead, who had lost his spot as a starter, won for the first time in five decisions and earned another shot in the starting rotation.

Phelps homered in the sixth for a 4-0 lead off John Habyan, 4-4. Phelps has 22 home runs in 272 at-bats this season.

Rangers 6, White Sox 4

Pete Incaviglia hit a two-run homer, single and an RBI double that broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning, leading Texas over host Chicago.

ECU Tops Mt. Olive

MOUNT OLIVE — East Carolina University's soccer team rolled up a 4-0 victory over Mount Olive College in a scrimmage Tuesday.

East Carolina took 26 shots on goal and recorded three saves along the way.

Robert Larrison scored two goals to lead the Pirates. The first game at the 17 minute mark of the first half and the second closed out the scoring with 10 minutes left in the game. T.J. Aspden assisted on both goals.

Mark Gibson scored the second goal 42 minutes into the first half, assisted by J.L. Marsh while Jeff Kime scored seven minutes into the second half, assisted by Matt Richter.

"I was real impressed with the performance of our players off the bench," first year coach Charlie Harvey said. "I feel really good about the scrimmage. I know now what we will need to work on during the regular season."

East Carolina opens the regular season on Sunday at Francis Marion.

NFL Clock Experiment Over

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL's experiment with the continuous-play 40-second clock appears to be over.

The league's owners were to vote today whether to keep the experiment for the regular season. But even its most ardent proponents concede that the antipathy for it by the league's coaches seems to have doomed it.

"I think it's dead," Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell said Tuesday. "I like it, but the coaches are running the league when it comes to things like that."

Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the rule-making competition committee, said that while most owners seemed to favor the 40-second clock, most coaches seemed to be opposed.

"Coaches are traditionally opposed to change, and there are too many clubs that won't vote against their coach," he said.

Under the rule, in use for the first three exhibition weekends, the clock is recycled immediately after the previous play and teams have 40 seconds to put the ball in play — 25 seconds after timeouts.

Under the previous rule — and the one almost sure to be in use during the regular season — the officials restart the 30-second clock only when the players are deemed ready for play.

According to NFL figures, the 44 exhibition games played with the 40-second clock this season have averaged 3 hours, 5 minutes, 42 seconds compared to 3:09.05 for the first 44 exhibitions last year. Regular-season games last year averaged 3:11.40.

Both Schramm and Modell noted that the pace of the game is faster with fewer interruptions between plays.

"Forget the few minutes we're saving," Modell said. "The fact remains that it's a better paced game."

But coaches have complained from the onset that the speedup makes it difficult to make situation subsititutions. They also say it makes it almost impossible for quarterbacks to call automatics at the line of scrimmage.

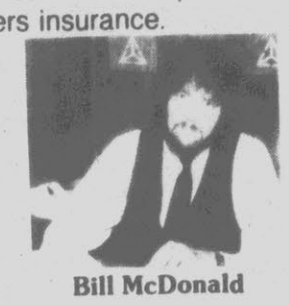

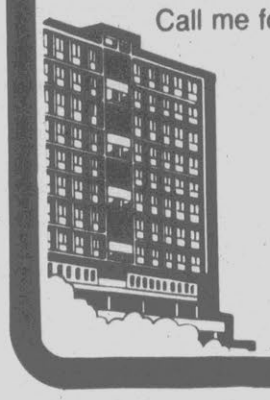

"It's a disaster, one of the worst things I've ever seen," said Joe Gibbs of Washington, the most vocal of the anti-speedup coaches. "There's no time to do anything. It's a circus. You're leery about subs. You don't even want to send a man in motion. It takes a lot of things out that you work so hard to put in."

Schramm said he suggested to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle that the time could be increased to 45 seconds but the concept kept the same. He and other proponents argue that it makes the time factor more consistent — league experiments have shown a variation of from 12 to 18 seconds between the time different officiating crews mark a ball ready for play.

But he conceded that it's likely that the new rule will be tabled until the general meetings next March in Phoenix.

"We're doing this by telephone," he said. "When you have everyone present and you can argue your points, it's a lot easier to get something across."

The only gold medal for the host country, Greece, in the first modern Olympics in 1896 was in the marathon. The winner was Spyridon Louis, a messenger by trade.

Teachers On Strike In 6 States

By The Associated Press

Detroit's school superintendent hinted at the possibility of a back-to-work order against 11,500 striking teachers as walkouts in six states extended the summer vacation today for more than 270,000 students.

In addition to Michigan, public school teachers were on strike in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington state and Idaho.

In addition, a 220-member faculty union at the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut struck Tuesday, and teachers in Chicago's 431,000-student district filed an intent-to-strike notice in case talks fail to produce a contract.

Contract talks late Tuesday failed to resolve a dispute over salary and class-size in the strike that canceled Tuesday's start of classes in Detroit, Michigan's biggest school district with 193,000 students.

The walkout was one of eight teacher strikes involving 12,600 teachers and 212,500 students in Michigan.

Detroit Schools Superintendent Arthur Jefferson said district officials would "remind" the teachers' union that public-employee strikes are illegal under state law.

Mighty Mississippi Is Just A Trickle At Its Beginning

By CHARLES HILLINGER
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

ITASCA STATE PARK, Minn. — All summer long, several hundred people have been coming here every day to take off their shoes and socks and wade across the Mississippi River.

The mighty Mississippi is but a mere trickle — 18 inches deep, 15 feet wide — in this state park 240 miles north of Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Many who come have lived all or part of their lives close to this longest river in North America.

Others come from across the United States, from throughout the world, to make pilgrimages to the headwaters of one of the world's widest, longest, busiest commercial waterways.

Tom Erwin, 62, and wife, Nancy, 55, drove from their New Orleans home all along the river. Now, they were walking across the Mississippi barefooted.

"We love the river. At home we watch the big ships sail up and down the Mississippi. This is something we always wanted to do," Erwin said.

Glenda Campbell, 33, was born and reared in Rock Island, Ill. "I have lived most of my life beside the Mississippi. I can really relate to this river," she said as she removed her shoes and socks.

Clark Riley, 28, a civil engineer from San Bernardino, Calif., was wading through the shallow water with 32 relatives. They had come to Itasca State Park for a Clark family reunion.

John Drdla, 38, wife, Zdenka, 37, and their children, Margaret, 13, and Dominic, 14, were here from Lincoln, Neb. Drdla is a truck driver and has driven hundreds of times across the Mississippi. He and his family emigrated five years ago from Hradec Kralove, Czechoslovakia, where he was postmaster.

"We knew about the Mississippi River in Czechoslovakia," Drdla said.

The little stream that is the Mississippi at its source emanates from Y-shaped, four-mile-long, half-mile-wide Lake Itasca. It flows 40 miles north to, and through, Lake Bemidji, then east 50 miles through Cass Lake and Lake Winnibigoshish before continuing its long journey south to New Oreleans and the Gulf of Mexico.

On a tree stump a few feet from a path of rocks that separates Lake Itasca from the river is a sign that reads:

"Here 1,475 feet above the ocean the mighty Mississippi begins to flow on its winding way 2,552 miles to the Gulf of Mexico."

Some drop twigs in the headwaters and imagine the tiny sticks floating to New Orleans. Some fill bottles with water from the source and pour it in the Delta near the river's end. Every summer several canoeists leave from Itasca State Park intending to paddle the length of the Mississippi. Few succeed.

"We are always asked how long it takes for water to get from the headwaters to the Gulf of Mexico," said John Herhusky, 60, longtime superintendent of Itasca State Park. "We don't know the answer."

The Mississippi is America's most storied river. Around it, Mark Twain wrote Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn adventures. Abraham Lincoln was a Mississippi flatboat man. Oscar Hammerstein's "Ol' Man River" is one of the nation's most popular songs.

In 1541, the Spanish explorer Hernando De Soto was the first non-Indian to see the river. Louis Jolliet, Jacques Marquette and Robert de la Salle were famous Mississippi River explorers. A romantic quest for the source of America's greatest river involved many, including Zebulon Pike, after whom Pike's peak is named, and a colorful Italian political exile and dilettante named Giacomo Costantino Beltrami.

But it was not until July 13, 1832, that Henry Rowe Schoolcraft and Oza Windib, an Ojibway Indian guide, found the source of the Mississippi at Lake Itasca.

The headwaters of the Mississippi are in a vast pine forest and wilderness sanctuary set aside in 1891 as Minnesota's first state park. The 32,000-acre park is the most popular of the state's 64 parks.

A wooded area called Preacher's Grove has been a favorite place for weddings since the park opened 96 years ago. And Douglas Lodge, a rustic log cabin inn, has been a cherished honeymoon spot for Minnesotans since 1905.

The park contains 157 lakes, miles of hiking and cycling trails and groomed cross-country paths for winter skiing. Some of the oldest and largest stands of giant red Norway pine trees are here. The heavily wooded forest is home to black bear, deer, moose, blue heron and bald eagles, and the many lakes are populated by Minnesota's state bird, the loon.

Man has lived beside the headwaters of the Mississippi for at least 8,000 years, according to scientific dating of bison bones and debris from prehistoric refuse dumps. Within the park are Indian burial mounds dating back 900 years.

Visitors come to Itasca State Park for many reasons: to camp beside a lake, to fish, to swim, to hike, to bicycle, to ski or just to stay put at the quaint rustic lodge in the woods, but mostly to dip their feet in shallow water and step across the mighty Mississippi.

A MERE TRICKLE — The sign at the left marks the beginning of the mighty Mississippi River at Itasca State Park, 240 miles north of Minneapolis-St. Paul. It's only a trickle at this point, about 18 inches deep and 15 feet wide. The river beginning has become a mecca for many who come to the park to look at the river and to wade its waters. (L.A. New Amazon Road Stirs Concern Among Ecologists

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer

RIO BRANCO, Brazil (AP) — A highway is being paved through the remote jungle of far western Brazil, despite protests abroad that it will cause serious damage in the Amazon rain forest and uproot native Indians.

Brazilians in the area say the road is vital to their development and they are determined to complete it.

International ecologists have expressed concern that uncontrolled land clearing in the Amazon jungle, the world's largest tropical forest, will expose the deceptively fragile topsoil to storm erosion and that widespread environmental destruction could result.

Another theory of foreign ecologists is that massive deforestation in the Amazon would reduce the world's oxygen supply and affect the world's weather.

Two U.S. senators are pressuring the Inter-American Development Bank to reconsider, and if necessary cancel, its partial financing of the asphalting of the highway.

A recent conference on the Amazon in Vienna, Austria, said the road could destroy part of the "gene pool" of primitive Amazonian tribes. Brazil's Indian population has dwindled to 220,000 from 5 million to 6 million at the time of Portuguese colonization beginning in the 16th century; large numbers died of illnesses brought by white men.

Here in the sweltering, long-abandoned backwater of Brazil's Acre state, BR 364 is seen as a salvation from generations of isolation and economic stagnation.

Brazil says it will attempt to convince its critics abroad that it intends to look out for the environment and the Indians in the region. However, all indications here are that the highway will be completed, with or without outside financing.

"A paved BR 364 is the dream of the people of Acre," Gov. Flaviano Melo of Acre said in an interview in Rio Branco, the state capital. "It will finally connect us to the rest of Brazil. We will cease being an island in the middle of the jungle."

Acre, which borders on Peru and Bolivia, is 3,100 miles, two time zones and decades of development away from the bright lights of Rio de Janeiro on the Atlantic Ocean to the southeast. With just 400,000 of the nation's 141 million people and with no industry or organized agriculture, Acre is the poorest and most backward of Brazil's 23 states.

BR 364 is the only way in or out by land. In its present dirt-track, rutted state, torrential rains make it impassable for up to eight months a year. When supply trucks can't get through, Acre has food shortages and even power blackouts due to the lack of fuel oil for its electricity generators.

In 1985 the Inter-American Development Bank granted Brazil a

Golden Agers Find New Roles

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Florida, one of the country's most popular retirement havens, has for decades wooed golden agers with sunny days, slowed pace and challenging golf links.

But today, seniors are being lured by an alternative lifestyle that gives new meaning to retirement.

It's school.

A good example is the Academy of Senior Professionals at Eckerd College, or ASPEC, an innovative living-learning community tucked in the corner of a small, private liberal arts college.

The academy is a gathering place for retired men and women who find it hard to mark time after demanding careers; achievers not dissuaded by aches and pains that betray their years.

They're assuming roles of part-time teacher, part-time student, lecturer and adviser. They're hosting public forums and serving as adjunct faculty members, team teachers, career counselors, role models and mentors to undergraduates the age of their grandchildren.

And they're hitting the books again to keep in step.

Among the 115 academy members are a retired major general who helped liberate Dachau and later served as a strategist to the Joint Chiefs of Staff; a former anesthesiologist who spent 2½ years with the French underground; an ex-ambassador to the Soviet Union, a one-time surgeon and six-term congressman; an academician who served as overseas director for a university; a Rhodes scholar, and a woman Presbyterian minister who at age 60 was arrested during a civil rights march in the South.

Others come from law, business, arts, humanities, science, government, economics, mental health and engineering.

They range in age from 48 to 93 and have lived and worked all over the world: the rice paddies of Asia; the classrooms of India, Lebanon, and Nigeria; the embassies of Iron Curtain satellites; the medical facilities of Cambodia and Iran; the education ministries of Sudan and Pakistan, and the exhibition halls of Europe and Tokyo.

"I'm 77 years old and most of the time I feel like I did when I was 25," says retired surgeon Francis L. Browning, a grandfather of 13 who also admits: "Of course, there are

U.S. Choreographer To Join Soviet Singer For TV Opera

By DON BEMAN
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two rising stars — one an American choreographer, the other a Soviet singer — are teaming up for a television production of Boito's rarely performed opera "Mifistofele."

Choreographer Judith Jamison, a former star of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, has never choreographed an opera before, but the work is sure to be "one of those very special moments," said Margaret Anne Everitt, general director of the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

Soviet bass Paata Burchuladze will be featured in the performance, scheduled to air in January on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Dancer-turned-choreographer Jamison has already started work on the opera, said Ms. Everitt, who favorably compared the work-in-progress to two other Philadelphia-taped productions worthy of Emmy awards in 1982 and 1986.

The production calls for "extensive segments of dance in the interpretation of the opera" and needed the "very considerable talents" of someone like Miss Jamison, Ms. Everitt said.

"We're very excited to have engaged one of America's leading choreographers," she said.

The dance sequences are very important "because we are taping it for television and because we are bringing to Philadelphia once again one of the truly magnificant young talents," in Burchuladze, Ms. Everitt said.

Miss Jamison gained international fame as an extraordinary dancer with the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and also danced with the Harkness Ballet, the San Francisco Ballet, and Maurice Bejart's Ballet XXth Century.

Her choreography credits include works for Alvin Ailey and Maurice Bejart's companies as well as the Washington Ballet, Ballet Nuevo Mundo de Caracas, and Jennifer Muller and the Works.

She will be joined on the production team by director Bernard Uzan and conductor Thomas Fulton.

The title role will call on the talents of the young Soviet Georgian bass Burchuladze, acclaimed by European critics as the rising superstar of opera.

The singer was a 1986 winner of the Opera Company of Philadelphia-Luciano Pavarotti International Voice Competition. He made his U.S. debut in a concert performance of Verdi's "Requiem" at Philadelphia's Spectrum sports arena in 1986 just after the Soviet Union and the United States resumed cultural exchanges. His U.S. operatic debut came last season at Philadelphia's Academy of Music in the title role of Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunov."

Italian tenor Bruno Beccaria, also a Philadelphia-Pavarotti competition winner, will portray Faust. The role of his love, Marguerite, will be sung by American soprano Dianna Soviero.

The opera will be performed twice at Philadelphia's Academy of Music on Jan. 18 and 22. Both will be taped and the better one will be selected for a special Easter Sunday telecast.

The opera is the third segment of the Philadelphia company's series of productions based on the legend of Faust, a man who sells his soul to the devil in return for fame and fortune. But in the end, Faust always has to pay for his gains with tragedy and finally death.

Although the production is the third in the Faust television series, it does represent a break from the tradition begun in 1983 with Gounod's "Faust" and 1985's "La Damnation de Faust" by Berlioz.

Those two both featured bass James Morris as the devil.

The third in the series had originally been scheduled for the 1985-86 season, but was postponed to May 1987. A conflict meant another postponment until this year. Morris, however, could not make the dates set aside and Ms. Everitt said the decision was made to go ahead with another singer.

"Our production is designed, our conductor and director and singers are engaged, and the television producers are committed to the January dates. We felt it important to continue with out cycle," she said.

She said she called Burchuladze in early July to see if he could fit the performances into a schedule filling quickly following last season's memorable successes.

Nashville Firm Arranges Songs For Marching Bands

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A company is selling new music arrangements — from "Bye Bye Blues" to "The Tennessee Waltz" — to marching bands to help add sparkle to halftime at football games.

Arrangers' Publishing Co. has sold arrangements to 10,000 high school and college bands covering every state and Canada, promoting the music as an intriguing interlude before the second-half kickoff.

"You hit the audience in the face," Jay Dawson says about some of his arrangements.

"You pin 'em to the wall," says W.C. Gore, president of the company.

The 4-year-old firm has done updated arrangements of 125 songs, most of them standards.

"We breathe new life into them by being up-to-date," says Gore, who was a high school band director in Nashville for 15 years. "The band directors recognize this and buy the arrangement."

One of the top-selling arrangements is the 1948 classic "Tennessee Waltz." A new version of "The Star-Spangled Banner" also has sold well.

"We kept the majesty of it and did chord substitutions and did more than the usual content," Gore said.

His firm offers these descriptions of the arrangements of other well-known songs:

— "The Stars and Stripes Forever": "Rearranging Sousa's greatest march is kind of like spray painting a Stradivarius: You better be able to pull it off. We think this 'Stars and Stripes' IS forever."

— "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee": "This is one clever arrangement, as sophisticated as it is outrageous. A Dixieland combo is briefly spotlighted."

— "Rockin' Robin": "This clever chart takes us back to the sock hop. Nostalgia is not a thing of the past."

— "Give My Regards to Broadway": "If you're low on trombones and can't scare up a French horn to save your life, you need this arrangement."

Dawson is past assistant conductor of the Nashville Symphony. He is a former high school band director and is now a partner in the company. One of his goals is stimulating a distracted crowd while the football players listen to their coaches' halftime pep talk.

"The audience often is running to the bathroom or talking or going to the concession stand," he said. "You don't have their undivided attention and you have to get it.

"Band directors are aware of this and they are looking for something to get the crowd excited."

Arrangements tend to be more sassy for college bands where the crowds are larger and farther away from the music. "You come out smokin'," Dawson said.

Gore says Dawson is especially adept at spotlighting all the band members, not just the best ones.

On "Bye Bye Blues," Dawson said the song is basically one melody played throughout.

"I tried to do as many twists as I could," he said. "One part sounds like big band jazz, one part sounds like ragtime piano and one part has a Dixieland feel."

On his arrangement of "I Can't Stop Loving You," he worked up a two-minute version and made it within the playing ability of most bands.

"You want it so it sounds good without having to practice it for five weeks," Dawson said.

He also did an arrangement on the old Edgar Winter rock 'n' roll hit, "Frankenstein."

"I thought the 35-year-old band directors would relate to this song," he said.

The firm's clients, 80 percent of them high schools, pay $35 to $50 per arrangement. Each arrangement is explained in a 120-page book listing the music for the various instruments.

To get band directors interested, they are sent a double album free of charge so they can hear how the various arrangements sound. The firm spends $150,000 a year to mail the album to schools throughout the country.

Band directors get a "menu" which lists the arrangements and the degree of expertise needed to play them.

Dance Theater Schedules Events For New Season

Atlantic Dance Theater will present works during the 1987-88 season by several guest choreographers, including Sarah Wisdom Maresca of Ballet West, Phoenix, Ariz., and Charles Anderson of the New York City Ballet. Specialized workshop programs for children and for the eastern North Carolina community are part of the season calendar.

•Nov. 8 — Children's dance theater, a specialized program focusing on performance energy and methods for the young dancers in grades four through seven.

•Nov. 21 — A senior company performance at D.H. Conley High School at 8:15 p.m. A full evening of dance.

•Dec. 10-19 — The Atlantic Dance Theater troupe will perform a series of 18th century dances during the annual Tryon Palace candlelight tours.

•Dec. 31 — Beaux Arts Ball, a masquerade, black tie gala at O'Marks Building, New Bern, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The event will feature performances by the company as well as entertainment by a live beach music band.

•Jan. 23 — Senior company performance at New Bern High School at 8:15 p.m.

•Feb. 28 — The junior company of younger dancers will perform in a full evening of dance.

The schedule throughout the year includes numerous lecture-demonstration performances in area schools.

In preparation for the dances by guest choreographers to be presented at a later date, David Anderson of New York was the first of several to be working with the company in a week of sketching out a dance at the company's studio on the Downtown Mall in Greenville. He was here several weeks ago.

Last week, the guest choreographer working with the dancers was Charles Anderson of New York City. This week Ms. Maresca is in Greenville creating the dance she is contributing to the company's repertoire.

Two additional dance instructors have recently joined the ranks of the Atlantic Dance Theater. Terri Leggette of Rocky Mount holds a bachelor's degree from East Carolina University and a master of fine arts degree from Southern Methodist University, Texas. The second member, Jerilyn Sackler has previously worked with the children's dance theater in New York public schools and has an extensive background in ethnic dances.

For more information on the company and its programs, call 637-3941.

Artist Keeps Busy At 102

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The only difficulty David Kane recalls about reaching 100 is that he couldn't get his driver's license renewed.

Nothing else seems to bother Kane, a prolific artist so busy he has no time for an afternoon nap or television in the evening.

And he's adjusting to the loss of his driver's license.

"Now I have to take buses or walk," said Kane, the epitome of health at 102. "It's one of my hardships."

Kane lives alone, cleans his apartment, cooks his meals, shops, paints over 60 canvases a year and is described by the American Heart Association as its best volunteer campaigner.

"Work. That's the only thing that will keep you young," explained Kane, whose working life was spent as a photographer and portrait artist in New York City.

The walls of his living room and bedroom studio are neatly filled with community awards and his favorite paintings.

'These are my personal treasures. I live with them," Kane said.

Prominently displayed above the piano she once played is his portrait of Wilhelmina, his wife of 66 years, who died in 1971.

Kane moved here in 1967 and during his wife's lengthy illness became associated with the American Heart Association. He now spends much of his time painting and donates his canvases to the charity.

Each February, Kane participates in an annual door-to-door drive for funds.

Golden Agers Find Their Alternative Lifestyles In Classrooms

certain times I feel like I'm 90."

Charles Smith, a retired economics teacher and investment banking consultant from Philadelphia joined in search of "a full and meaningful life, an association with people interested in keeping the mind alive. Golf? I could care less. Chasing a little ball around is someone else's game," says Smith who's nearly 70.

Mason Daly, a recently retired educator, was eager for carefree days but somewhat apprehensive. "I was moving into a community where I knew nobody."

He met a mix of people, developed a circle of friends, and says "it's a delight ... to walk across campus and have young people wave or walk into a cafeteria with them and sit down at ease."

Seniors pair with faculty to teach a freshman course on Western Heritage, which traces man from ancient times through the 20th century. They do the same for a senior requirement, Judaeo-Christian Perspectives, which sorts the ethical values of society.

Despite a slow start and a leery faculty, the program ballooned from three senior participants to 30 in four years.

To cover a broad range of views, the elders deliberately are coupled with professors from an opposite bent: a pacifist with a general; a scientist with a language and literature specialist.

Students say the format gives them new perspectives.

"We were talking about a moment in the past and here we had a lecturer who lived through that moment," said Tachaka Ray, 20, of Santa Monica, Calif.

The academy was founded in October 1982 by Peter Armacost, president of Eckerd. The conservative church-related school, formerly Florida Presbyterian College, sits on 281 acres. It has an enrollment of 1,200 students from 40 states and 45 countries who pay an average of $8,220 annually and $3,000 more for room and board.

Armacost housed the academy at Lewis House, a waterfront building that once served as the president's quarters and has an atrium big enough to seat 100.

His goal for APSEC was twofold: to provide a stimulating environment for seniors and to enrich the learning experience of undergraduates.

He envisioned a total living-learning community with campus housing for retirees on 78 acres overlooking Boca Ciega Bay. His blueprint for College Harbor, a progressive care retirement center, included 290 congregate care apartments and 60 skilled nursing beds. He also planned 480 condominium units.

However, ASPEC's early growth didn't match the lofty predictions. Today, the health care center is partially opened but not restricted to academy members. The condos haven't been built yet.

Five years ago, Armacost tapped Leo Nussbaum, retired president of Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to get the academy off the ground.

Organizers formed think tanks and made plans quietly, not wanting to unleash the ire of a guarded faculty that felt threatened.

Nussbaum picked timely topics — biomedical ethics, the environment, the bicentennial of the Constitution. Public events began to draw.

Retirees found themselves back at the books. Joe Pezdirtz, a 66-year-old retired Amry major general, took part in the 12-series bicentennial program. His topic was powers of the presidency. "I spent seven months preparing for a 45-minute lecture," he says.

Nussbaum installed a series of meetings for a person, say from a financial background, to brief peers on how to read and interpret bonds, the advantages of stocks, how to research a company. The sessions caught on, pulling audiences from eight to 35 depending on the subject.

Finally, Nussbaum turned his efforts toward bridging the generation gap to find ways retirees could share their experiences in the classroom.

"One big problem was some of the faculty looked at academy members as an enemy or invader," he says. "They didn't see the enrichment and interaction it could provide."

Nussbaum asked three faculty members to try a modest experiment using a retired professional to assist in teaching Western Heritage, a freshman requirement taught by all the faculty members.

The teachers themselves propagated the concept through word-of-mouth. Colleagues listened. And gradually they began lining up for ASPEC members to become part of their discussion groups.

ASPEC members may skip the classroom to concentrate on writing projects, research, or study. Or they may want the socializing which includes dinners or parties with colleagues, faculty and students. Participation can be year-round or seasonal. There are no obligations to take part in specific activities.

"That's what makes it work," says Frank Palmer, an ASPEC organizing committee chairman and a psychologist who served as provost at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. "It's a group of individuals whose needs vary enormously. Some might be interested in the undergraduate experiment; others the social end. The academy attempts to satisfy those needs."

An ASPEC member pays a $1,000 initiation fee and $600 in annual dues.

Fees go toward the academy's annual operating budget of $150,000. The college supplies the rest.

"Dr. Armacost is a smart man," Palmer quips. "He probably saw somewhere down the road some of these old codgers would have money and leave it to the college."

Browning, a former director of a Wellfleet, Mass., medical center, has been with ASPEC since the beginning. He thought about retirement but didn't know what he would do. "It's hard to find anyone to play tennis. I'm too good for people my own age and the young are too fast for me," he says.

He found his niche in the undergraduate program. It differed immensely from his scientific background. "I'm still getting an education and making lasting friendships," says the Grafton, W.Va., native.

When he first started working with freshmen, Browning was astounded at their grammar, punctuation and spelling. "It was awful." Under an agreement with the teacher he read and commented on student papers. "It was gratifying. By the third paper they had improved."

Pezdirtz spent 33 years in the military and was part of the unit that helped liberate Dachau and resettle displaced persons in Austria.

"I've been to many of the places we talk about in class. I know the people, the cultures," says the Omaha-born retired major general.

For one course, Pezdirtz teamed with a sociology professor. "He was a pacifist and we were on the opposite ends of everything. This gave the students a marvelous trip through time and space. I was not a threat. I didn't grade. I was there to bait, needle and present a whole different concept."

Marie Dubalen, an 81-year-old retired anesthesiologist, got trapped in Paris during World War II and joined the French underground. She worked alone, meeting couriers, passing papers, running phony identification. "I led two lives and nobody ever knew," she says.

When an agent who knew her identity was picked up she had to stay on the move to avoid arrest. She was never caught and made it out on the last train from Geneva before the border was closed.

Road

$48.5-million, 20-year loan toward the estimated $138-million cost of paving the road 310 miles from Rio Branco to Porto Velho, the capital of neighboring Rondonia state.

At first it seemed to be an oscure development project. But then U.S. groups such as the National Wildlife Federation, the Sierra Club and the Environmental Defense Fund sounded alarms. They discovered that when the World Bank paid part of the cost of paving the eastern end of BR 364 to link Rondonia to central and southern Brazil, a destructive migration of people occurred in 1982-86.

Hundreds of thousands of impoverished, land-starved peasant farmers and loggers, gold prospectors and assorted fortune seekers swarmed into Rondonia, chopping down trees, burning off fragile topsoil and trampling through areas supposedly reserved for native Indians.

U.S. space satellite photographs showed the invasion resulted in the removal of about 20 percent of the protective forest cover of Rondonia, which is about the size of Oregon.

Sens. Robert W. Kasten Jr., R-Wisconsin, and Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, recently told the Inter-American Development Bank that unless there were guarantees the same thing would not happen in Acre, an area as large as Florida, they would seek congressional action to cut off all the bank's U.S. financial support.

The bank told Brazil that it must prove by Sept. 14 that it will protect the jungle along the western part of BR 364 as well as the area's 16,000 Indians. Otherwise, the bank said, it might withhold the rest of the money.

By mid-1987, only $12 million of the contracted Acre loan actually had been sent to Brazil.

In 1986, Brazil outlined an elaborate conservation project for the region, as a mandatory part of the BR 364 loan deal. Earlier this year, however, it acknowledged that nothing had been done to put the project into action. In August, Acre officials drew up an environment and Indian protection plan for the central government in Brasilia to submit to the bank.

Meanwhile, work on BR 364 moves ahead.

By mid-August crews had paved 19 miles of the highway west from Porto Velho, and bulldozers, scrapers and rollers were widening and leveling the roadbed on the Rio Branco city limits.

"This project is irreversible," said Acre's liaison chief with the federal government, Marco Antonio Mendes. "If Brazil has to pay the whole cost itself, the paving will just take longer. But it will be done."

Mauro Miguel Bittar, Acre's planning secretary, said, "Acre is like the American West in the 1800s. We must head into the future. No one is going to put a fence around us."

Gov. Melo said, "Of course we are concerned about protecting our own state's environment, but Acre has suffered too long from underdevelopment. We cannot, nor do we intend to, stop anyone who wants to from coming here."

The word has spread.

Even without the asphalt, homesteaders are moving up BR 364 into Acre and clearing jungle land for farms and ranches. Haze from land-clearing fires forms daily on the horizon. Ash fragments drift from miles away into a hotel's swimming pool in the capital.

"Things are rough, but at least here in Acre I have my own farm," said Joao Elpidio da Silva, 55, an ex-field hand who trekked with his wife and six children from far-off central Brazil to BR 364.

His home now is a wood-slat, dirt-floor house in a jungle clearing.

Silva pointed to an area where he and his oldest sons had cut down trees, with chain saws and machetes, on a 136-acre plot, to grow rice, corn and black beans.

"Here I can make a better life," he said.

Brazil's federal land and colonization agency has announced a program for the orderly settling of the countless thousands of migrants expected to come to Acre after BR 364 is paved. The agency says it is working with the federal forest service and the federal environmental-protection office and will guard Acre's jungles against excessive deforestation.

The Brazilian federal Indian agency says that despite a serious shortage of personnel, money and equipment, it will try to keep the new settlers away from the 51 known tribal areas between Porto Velho and Rio Branco.

"Indians are not prepared for the paving of BR 364," he told a visitor. "If farms and ranches are started near Indian reservations, the Indians' culture will wind up being swallowed up."

"The money involved with BR 364 is not much in international terms," said Dagoberto Koehntopp, the federal official in charge of Brazil's end of the Acre loan. "What's more important is Brazil's reputation and good name on the world scene."

"We certainly don't want to be cut off from future Inter-American Development Bank and World Bank loans," he added in a telephone interview from Brasilia.

Michael Jackson Appears To Have Another Hit In 'Bad'

By RICHARD CROMELIN
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Pressure. Tension. Creative block. Cold feet.

Rumor had it that the world's favorite frail man-child was in a state of panic as he struggled to make an album to follow 1982's "Thriller," the biggest-selling LP in the history of the universe and a cultural phenomenon of the first order.

So what does Michael Jackson do? He turns in two supremely relaxed performances: the gospel anthem "Man in the Mirror" and the classic Motown update "Just Good Friends."

Those are the two cuts that immediately jump out from "Bad," an album whose consistency, sureness and scaled-down intentions make it a respectable successor to "Thriller."

The fact that the LP's key tracks are rooted in established traditions is a clue to "Bad's" relatively modest aims. "Thriller's" hallmark was the vaulting ambition and hair-raising power of two startling songs "Billie Jean" and "Wanna Be Startin' Somethin' " (and, to a slightly lesser degree, "Beat It"). "Bad's" retreat from that kind of ambition is a letdown, but it is understandable: It would have been hard to out-thrill "Thriller" without the strain showing.

Beyond those two standout songs, "Bad" is a fair-to-strong array of soul and rock blends. If the aims are modest, there is nothing low-key about the way producer Quincy Jones assembles a track, and his sound is typically forceful, vivid, rich and deep. It also tends to be a little mechanical — especially the way he splices in Jackson's tightly woven multitracked backing vocals.

And there is one crashing dud — the single "I Just Can't Stop Loving You." As if the lightweight ballad's lack of substance were not enough, the album version opens with Jackson cooing a tremulous spoken intro that goes, in part, "I just want to lay next to you for awhile. You look so beautiful tonight .... A lot of people misunderstand me. That's because they don't know me at all. I just want to touch you and hold you ...."

The rest of the cuts are upbeat: the driving title song, the loping shuffle "The Way You Make Me Feel," the high-tech rocker "Speed Demon" (audiophiles will zero in on the "race car intro-Dimensional recording ...."), the heavy R&B riffer "Another Part of Me" (a timely salute to harmonic convergence).

"Dirty Diana" is trying to be this year's "Beat It" — a hard-rock song about a tenacious groupie that is sent into orbit by a Steve Stevens guitar solo. "Smooth Criminal" ends the album on an odd note (the CD has an extra track, the Stevie Wonderlike shuffle "Leave Me Alone"). This stuttering rocker is a grim, cryptic account of a woman being killed by an intruder, and there is not much point to it beyond giving Jackson a chance to sing "Annie-are-you-OK?" over and over.

"Criminal" also has the only sample of the high, double-track vocal sound that made "Billie Jean" so chilling. On most of the album Jackson sings in a clean, straightforward style, though he also tries a gruff, whispery approach that is not especially appealing. Another encouraging sign is that Jackson wrote nine of the songs on "Bad," as opposed to just four on "Thriller."

He did not write either of those two standout songs, but his performances really spark them. Terry Britten and Graham Lyle's "Just Good Friends" pairs him with Stevie Wonder — quite a step up from Paul McCartney as a vocal sparring partner. The song has an early Jackson 5 charge and a lot of Motown history in its blood, and the spirited vocal exchanges generate a charming, no-pressure vibe.

Siedah Garrett and Glen Ballard's "Man in the Mirror" is the anthem, the centerpiece. A message song about changing the world by changing the individual, it is more than a little sentimental, but there is a toughness to the lyric and plenty of force in the music.

It builds gradually from a subdued start, stepping up in intensity until a full choir enters. From there it is all gloriously free solo and choral vocal interplay, marked by what is certainly Jackson's most fiery, churchy singing ever.

All in all, "Bad's" not bad — more reminiscent of "Off the Wall's" uniform strength than "Thriller's" peaks and valleys

JACKSON STYLE — Singer Michael Jackson, shown during a recording session in May, released his first LP since "Thriller" on Monday. The album, titled "Bad," used Hugo Zuccarelli's Holophonics sound system on everal tracks. Jacksn chose to record the pillow-talk sequence for "The Way You Make Me Feel," while lying in a bed with Zuccarelli's head-shaped robotic recorder. (AP Laserphoto)

Release Of Album Clears Way For Ad

By DANIEL KAHN
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Michael Jackson's long-awaited release, "Bad," may not make it as album of the year, but his commercial for Pepsi-Cola certainly wins hands-down as best teaser of 1987.

Back in February, on the Grammy awards show, Pepsi ran a teaser ad for a new campaign featuring Jackson. The singer is under a $10 million, multiyear contract with Pepsi-Cola. Jackson wasn't seen on screen, except for his back as he walked out on stage to face an audience at some concert. The tagline said, "this spring, the magic returns."

There was just one hitch: The commercial, by agreement between Jackson and Pepsi, couldn't be shown until after the new album — the first since "Thriller" — was released. But what with one thing and another, it took Jackson months to finish tinkering with the "Bad" tracks.

Monday, "Bad" finally appeared in the stores. Monday night, CBS-TV devoted a half hour to the album and the Jackson story. And Pepsi reran the 45-second teaser ad on the show, this time without the tagline. But the company says it's not sure when the real thing will appear on television screens.

"We want to recreate the 1984 experience of riding the crest of his popularity," said Ken Ross, a Pepsi spokesman. "We want to let the album get some legs, let the public refamiliarize itself with Michael. We want his music to be on people's lips."

Jackson kicks off his world tour, sponsored primarily by Pepsi, in Tokyo Sept. 12 and then moves on to Australia and New Zealand before coming to the United States early next year. If the public responds as anticipated, Ross said, the Jackson commercials should air before the end of the year.

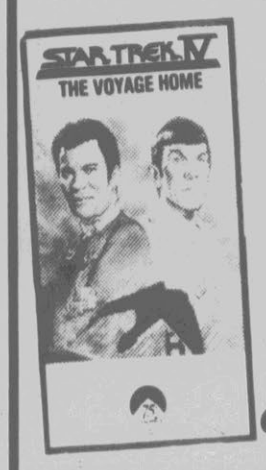

Don't worry about missing the exact date; Pepsi believes in big-event promotions. "We'll look to break the commercials in a big way," Ross said.

A Chip Off The Block

For many people, nothing is quite as delicious as a warm, homemade chocolate chip cookie. In the 1940s, the Toll House Inn in Massachusetts became famous by serving cookies laced with pieces of chocolate. Noting the popularity of the cookies, the Nestle Company — already a major chocolate producer — soon introduced its first package of semi-sweet chocolate "morsels." In doing so, Nestle quickly cornered a large part of the market on chocolate chips.

If we were to ask players to submit their favorite hands, we are sure we would get myriads of squeezes, coups, end plays, etc. High among those we admire most is a hand played by the late Howard Schenken more than 40 years ago, which involved no more than conceding a trick at trick two!

It was played in a rubber bridge game at New York's famed Cavendish Club. Schenken, who was vulnerable with 60 on score, bought the hand at two no trump.

West led his fourth-best diamond and, if declarer could have scored four spade tricks, he would have had just enough to fulfill his contract. However, East's opening bid marked him with all four missing spades, and Schenken knew that if he led spades, East would have no trouble holding off the ace of spades until the fourth round and limiting declarer to three tricks in the suit, since West's void would be revealed right away. What could he do?

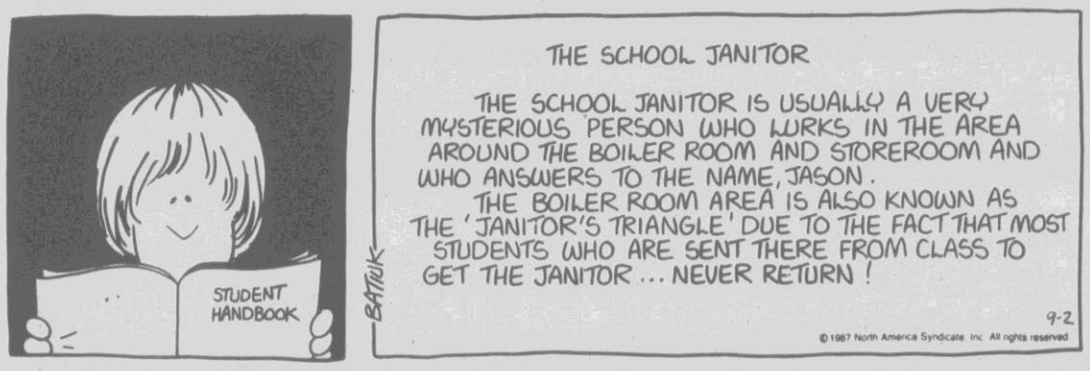

Schenken found the solution with hardly any thought. He won the first trick with the queen of diamonds and immediately returned the suit. West won and, not unnaturally, continued diamonds to set up two long cards in his hand. And equally naturally, East discarded what seemed to be the most useless card in his hand—the two of spades, something Schenken had foreseen!

It was a simple matter for Schenken to win the ace of diamonds and force out the ace of spades. He rose with the ace on East's club return and took the rest of the table's spades and ace of hearts to claim eight tricks and the rubber.

We know there are many greater technical triumphs than this one; indeed, Schenken himself was the author of many. But we know of few plays that show a deeper insight into the game.

Summertime

By Will Brown

In the summer I like to eat,
Fresh homemade ice-cream,
And walk around with bare feet.

I like to wear my short pants,
Sit down in the grass,
And destroy the homes of the ants.

When I sell some Kool-Aid,

Will Brown 11, a student at South Greenville School receives special mention.

Musical Summer

By Heather Nobles

Winds
Whistling wistfully through tall, majestic evergreens
Stripping away old faithful memories
While leaves explode with gold, crimson, and bright green melodies

Birds
With colorful, rainbow fingers
Soaring gracefully through magical, musical sunsets full of blues and sorrows
Tears and fears
Joys and ecstasy

Flowers
Tall and proud
Short and stumpy
Laughing in yellow fields
Lolling over rounded hills that dance over the jovial grounds

Water
Cascading over slippery gray rocks into a foamy white, which catches every drumming beat and droplet
Water
Streaking blue within rocky brooks
Bringing the news of moisture,

This is a musical summer

God's Love

By Paul Alexander

Though we may fall and stumble, He picks us up willingly.

And when Satan tries to tear it apart, he can never tear it asunder.

Our State Seal

The North Carolina state seal, printed above, was designed to be placed on official papers and documents. The seal has been redesigned several times with the last official one being made in 1971.

The two figures represent Liberty (standing, holding the constitution in her right hand and pole with cap on top in her left) and Plenty (sitting down, holding three heads of grain in her right hand and with her left hand on the cornucopia). To the left of Liberty in the background are the mountains and behind Plenty is the ocean with a three-masted ship.

The date at the top is May 20, 1775, which marks the Mecklenburg Declaration in which the people of the western county declared themselves free and independent from England. At the bottom of the seal is the state motto which translates from the Latin to "to be rather than to seem".

Potatoes Right Choice For Variety Of Recipes

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Popular attraction to the wholesome, penny-wise potato may lie in its versatility in types and preparation.

According to "Reader's Digest Creative Cooking" cookbook, potatoes usually are divided into three groups — new potatoes, general purpose, and baking — though the distinctions are not well defined.

New potatoes are those harvested in late winter or early spring as well as those freshly dug but not fully matured. These are best for creaming and boiling and should be firm, well-shaped and free from blemishes.

General purpose potatoes are available all year and are used for boiling, mashing and baking. Varieties include the Katahdin, Kennebec, Norgold Russet, Norland, Red Pontiac and White Rose.

The quality of baking potatoes is affected by growing conditions and its variety. The best-known and most widely grown is the Russet Burbank or Idaho potato.

The general-purpose and baking potato should be firm, clean and free from blemishes. Avoid any potatoes with green areas from light burn or those that have sprouted or shriveled.

Potatoes may be prepared in countless ways, the most common of which are boiling, steaming, mashing, baking and creaming. Other ways are outlined below.

Duchesse potatoes: Beat an egg, mix it into creamed potatoes, and put the mixture in a pastry bag. Pipe into mounds, about 2 inches high, on a lightly greased baking sheet. Or pipe the potatoes into a border around a shallow baking dish. Bake near the top of the oven at 400 degrees for about 25 minutes, or until the potatoes are golden.

Potato croquettes: Prepare creamed potatoes. Roll the mixture into small balls and coat thickly with egg and bread crumbs. In a skillet, heat the fat to 375 degrees. Fry the croquettes for 2 to 3 minutes, drain thoroughly, and fry again at the same temperature for 2 to 3 minutes.

Sauteing: Boil potatoes until they are almost cooked and cut them into slices about 1/4-inch thick. Saute in hot fat, turning them until crisp and golden brown on both sides.

French-frying: Peel old potatoes and cut them into 1/4 to 1/2-inch slices. Cut these slices into strips 1/4 to 1/4-inch wide. Saak in cold water. Drain well and dry thoroughly before using. Place a layer of potato strips in a wire basket and lower into fryer; cook for 4 to 6 minutes or until golden. Drain well on paper towels. Just before serving, fry the potatoes again for 1 to 2 minutes. Drain the potatoes on paper towels, salt lightly and serve.

Shoestring potatoes: Peel old potatoes and cut them into very small, thin strips, about the size of matchsticks. Cook in the same way as French fries, allowing a shorter cooking time, about 3 minutes for the first frying.

Saratoga Chips: Peel and wash the potatoes. Cut into thin rounds. Soak in cold water, dry, and fry in hot fat in the same way as French fries. For the first frying, allow only 3 minutes.

Anna potatoes: Peel old or new potatoes and slice them thinly. Arrange slices in layers in a well-greased baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with salt, pepper and melted butter. Cover the dish lightly with buttered wax paper or foil and bake for 1 hour in the center of the oven at 375 degrees. Serve at once.

Oranges Add Nutrition To Lunch Boxes, Snacks

An estimated three billion lunches will be toted back to school this upcoming year by American school children. One significant nutrition addition to these lunchboxes will be a fresh orange.

According to a recent study by the NPD Group's National Eating Trend (NET), about 40 percent of total fresh orange consumption is in the form of snacks (30 percent), carried lunches (18 percent). Fortunately, there will be a nice fall selection of high-quality fresh citrus fruits to meet the needs of all school lunches, autumn meals and snacks.

"Valencia oranges from Central and Southern California will be in good supply this fall," states Denny Myers, field department director, Sunkist Growers, Inc. "Forty percent of the valencia crop is still remaining. Even though the fruit is small sized, it is exceptionally sweet and juicy. The green tinge on the stem end of the fruit means the fruit is fully tree-ripened. Chlorophyll has returned to the peel of the oranges after they were bright orange in color — inside the oranges are fully ripe, sweet and flavorful." These "kid-sized" fruit are perfect for lunchboxes or after school snacks.

Myers also discussed the fall supply of lemons and grapefruit. "There will be good supplies of fresh lemons available through August from Southern California with relatively light supplies anticipated for September. Choice grade lemons will be more readily available. The fruit condition and vitality are good and juice content is excellent. In addition, supplies of fresh grapefruit from Southern California are of nice eating quality and available at reasonable prices."

Check your markets for the colorful displays of fresh citrus offered to you this fall — they really are the fruits for all seasons.

Cornbread Puts Finishing Touch On Backyard Barbecue Dinners

As traditional as fresh garden vegetables and homemade ice cream are during the summer months, nothing compares to an outdoor barbecue for a favorite summer activity.

The tantalizing aroma of juicy steaks, barbecued chicken or moist, flaky fish grilling somewhere in the neighborhood will leave you with the urge to get out the grill and fire up your own backyard treat.

The perfect bread to accompany a dinner from the grill is Tex Mex Cornbread, a spicy cornbread with south-of-the-border influences. The corn adds moistness, but the jalapeno peppers add the kick.

TEX-MEX CORNBREAD

1 cup self-rising corn meal mix
1 can (8 1/2 ounces) cream-style corn
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup (4 ounces) grated sharp Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chopped jalapeno peppers

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Grease an 8-inch square baking pan. Lightly beat egg in bowl. Add remaining ingredients; stir until blended. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 20 to 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes about 8 servings.

Note: For milder cornbread, substitute 2 tablespoons chopped green chilies for jalapeno peppers.

Grilling doesn't have to be a chore, especially if you take note of these hints:

•Use water as a last resort for dousing large flare-ups; start with soda or salt or try lifting the meat off the grill for a brief time.

Grilling out is a fun social activity for family and friends that cuts down on heat in the kitchen. Enjoy the best tastes of the season today!

It's difficult to think of a fun-filled summer day that isn't capped off with a bowl of fresh homemade ice cream. It's as American as apple pie and baseball.

Q. I saw a newspaper article about "the 35-Plus Diet for Women." Is it good? Mrs. P.W., Greenville, and others who sent us the clipping.

A. We looked for the research study that the article noted without luck, so we finally called Ms. Spodnik, author of the diet. The diet is 34 percent calories from protein, 28 percent calories from fat and 38 percent calories from carbohydrate. It is, therefore, a high protein, low fat diet.

The diet is about 1,000 calories but also allows unlimited vegetables. It would be a safe diet, although it is a bit higher in protein and a bit lower in carbohydrate than we usually recommend. You may remember that we've written that one of the problems of the eastern North Carolina diet is that it is high in fat (more than 45 percent calories). Reducing the fat will help almost everyone lose some weight, and you probably don't need to buy the book to reduce your fat intake. Ms. Spodnik reported a pilot study of 10 dieters. Those that stuck with the diet for seven weeks did lose 1 to 2 pounds per week, a safe weight loss.

Q. I am a 32-year-old female and I run 4 to 6 miles five days a week. This summer I also spend 25 minutes at floor exercises and then 25 minutes of aerobics. On days when I both run and do aerobics, I don't have energy for the aerobics part of class. Also, when I run the following morning, it is usually a harder and slower run than normal. Am I doing too much? Will my body adjust to the extra work in time? Would I be just as well off to run and do the exercises and not the aerobics? Ms. D.H., Greenville.

A. Many nutritionists help with exercise plans, but your questions would be best answered by a specialist in fitness. Locally, the Human Performance Laboratory at East Carolina University offers comprehensive fitness evaluations. You may want to contact them for more information and their charges. You did not mention your dietary habits in your letter, so we can't tell if you're getting enough fuel for all your activity. Muscles get their energy from carbohydrates and fats. Muscles use carbohydrates in the form of blood glucose, and muscle and liver glycogen. Glycogen is stored glucose in the muscles.

During moderate activity, muscles use glucose and fatty acids (part of fat molecules) as fuel. The more conditioned a muscle is, the more likely it will burn fat and conserve glycogen. During intensive exercise, oxygen cannot be supplied fast enough to use both glucose and fat as fuel, so only glucose or glycogen is used.

Frequent, intensive exercise will use up blood glucose and glycogen stores, leaving the muscles without adequate energy. Muscles must rest to allow them to build up their glycogen stores. It takes 48 hours rest to restore muscle carbohydrate to the levels they were before exercise if you used it all up. Complex carbohydrates or starches such as those from whole grain breads and cereals, pasta and potatoes are the best sources to replace glycogen. So, look at your diet and see if you have enough carbohydrate in it.

Vitamins and minerals also are needed to break down the nutrients that provide energy. They are needed to make red blood cells and hemoglobin which carry oxygen to exercising muscles. Your need for vitamins and minerals can be supplied by a well-balanced diet. Remember to analyze your diet before you take any supplements. I hope this helps some.

Chocolate Plays Role In Good Health

If you ask chocolate enthusiasts why they eat chocolate, they'll probably tell you it's because they love the taste. What they won't tell you is that chocolate plays a role in providing the body with many of the nutrients necessary to maintain good health.

It's true. Chocolate provides carbohydrates and significant amounts of other nutrients. A 1.65-ounce milk chocolate bar, for example, provides six percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) for protein, eight percent of the RDA for both riboflavin and calcium, two percent of the RDA for iron, and two percent of the RDA for thiamine.

The quantity of some nutrients increases with the addition of nuts. A 1.85-ounce chocolate bar (peanuts in milk chocolate), for instance, contains approximately 10 percent of the RDA for protein. A 1.65-ounce chocolate bar with almonds contains 10 percent of the RDA for calcium.

Carbohydrates are necessary to a balanced diet and are the body's main source of energy. All carbohydrates must be reduced to simple sugars before they can be used by the body for energy. Nutritionists point out that it doesn't matter whether the carbohydrates are in the form of starch or sugar. Furthermore, the body cannot distinguish between the sugars in fruits, vegetables, milk and honey from those in chocolate and confectionery products.

The picture keeps getting brighter when you consider the fact that chocolate is a low-sodium food. A 1.65-ounce milk chocolate bar contains only 45 milligrams of sodium which, according to Food and Drug Administration guidelines, qualifies as a low sodium food. A 1.85-ounce chocolate bar has just 20 milligrams of sodium which qualifies as a very low sodium food. The amount of sodium in chocolate is actually significantly lower than in many common foods. One cup of whole milk has 122 milligrams; one ounce of Swiss cheese contains 440 milligrams.

A common belief is that chocolate contains high levels of caffeine. Not so. One ounce of milk chocolate contains just 6 milligrams of caffeine compared to a five-ounce cup of brewed coffee (drip method) with 115 milligrams. Symptoms of caffeine excitation and sleep disturbance occur when 450 to 900 milligrams of caffeine have been consumed. In order to reach the lowest level of caffeine response, a person would have to eat 50 chocolate bars.

"People eat chocolate mainly for the sheer pleasure of its flavor," says Joseph P. Viviano, president of the Hershey Chocolate Company. "Considering the fact that the American per capita consumption exceeds 18 pounds a year, it's a good idea to look at chocolate's contribution to the overall diet. People are usually pleasantly surprised."

Start Each New Day With A Tasty, Hearty Breakfast

By Toni Tipton
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

The return of September signals the return of more organized times: The days shorten, children return to school and schedules become more firm.

Another sign of the changing season is a mass migration back to the kitchen. For months now, cooks have looked to main dish salads, grilled specialties and one-dish menus to satisfy hungry appetites and beat the heat of summer. But as the chill returns to the air, we dust off the stock pots and baking pans and begin to look for heartier meals.

Breakfast is certain to return to favor. Nutritionists encourage a nutritional morning meal for everyone to replenish nutrients lost during the nighttime fast. But particular attention is focused on children and the morning meal.

According to "Parents' Guide to Nutrition" by Boston Children's Hospital, Dr. Susan Baker and Roberta R. Henry, registered dietitian (Addison-Wesley; $9.95), "A good breakfast should be a regular part of every morning, especially for children. Unfortunately, it is the meal most often skipped by people of all ages. Breakfast supplies the nourishment and energy necessary to carry children through an active morning.

"A study by the University of Iowa Medical College found that children who skipped breakfast had trouble concentrating at school and became inattentive and restless by late morning. Another study of schoolchildren conducted by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology found that problem-solving abilities decreased when no breakfast was eaten."

The types of foods chosen should be based on family preferences. Although bacon, eggs and some form of bread are typical, they are by no means mandatory. Cereal is another breakfast staple. In the recipes that follow, these ingredients are used in

Get Back In Touch — Invite Friends To Dinner

You're working (most of us are) ... you can't find time to socialize ... you've lost touch with friends you're fond of. Take heart — just invite them to dinner!

Yes, it's now entirely possible to come home from the office, create an informal yet sophisticated dinner, and sit down with guests, all within an hour.

Two dishes illustrate the point: Pissaladiere, a pizza with French flair, and Chicken with Apples and Snow Peas in Patty Shells. Each uses ingredients grandma couldn't find on her market shelf; neither, no doubt, could her children.

Once exotic ingredients are now standard items at most food markets; boneless chicken breasts, snow peas, dijon mustard, to name a few. And another marvel — frozen puff pastry — which is available in sheets, or as patties to easily finish in the oven. Today's cook can take full advantage of the ease and creativity they allow.

So, if you're entertaining after work, remember to shop the night before. Put out the ingredients and set the table in the morning — and relax.

Both of these dishes lend themselves to "group participation" if your kitchen is big enough. And they're simple enough so that conversation can continue while you create the meal. Pissaladiere, a French version of traditional pizza, is a savory Nicoise specialty topped with onions, anchovies and black olives. It sits on a light, flakey round of puff pastry. One package of Pepperidge Farm Frozen Puff Pastry makes two 10-inch pizzas, which is enough for four people.

Do not be alarmed at what seems like a large amount of onions. Sauteed, the onion takes on a full, sweet flavor — far removed from its raw state.

A simple salad (argula or endive are good choices) rounds out the main course. Add a pot of coffee or espresso, some cheddar cheese and fruit or takeout tarts, and turn an ordinary evening into a chance to see old friends or develop new ones.

The Chicken with Apples and Snow Peas in Patty Shells is another good candidate for a light, after-work meal for guests. Here, the chicken is combined wih apples and snow peas, and is highlighted with mustard and wine, all a fresh and delicious blend of flavors. Spoon it into flakey patty shells, garnish and serve. Again, a salad, a simple dessert and coffee, sparked by good conversation, make a social occasion out of dinner. Working or not, this is a good recipe whenever a lighter meal is in order, be it a luncheon, brunch or Sunday supper.

PISSALADIERE

6 cups onion, very thinly sliced
2 teaspoons minced garlic
2 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and pepper
1 package (17 1/4 ounces) frozen puff pastry sheets
4 Italian plum tomatoes, sliced
1/3 cup ripe olives, pitted and sliced
6 anchovy filets, rinsed to remove salt and oil
1 tablespoon olive oil
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano or basil leaves

In a large pan, saute onion and garlic in 2 teaspoons olive oil for 15 minutes over moderately high heat until very soft and browned. Season to taste with salt and pepper; set aside to cool. Thaw puff pastry 20 minutes; unfold and cut into two 10-inch circles. Spread onion mixture evenly over each piece of pastry to within 1/2-inch of edges. Top with tomato slices, olives and anchovy filets. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon oil and oregano. Place on baking sheet and bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until pastry is puffed and browned. Serve immediately with Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes two 10-inch pizzas.

CHICKEN WITH APPLES AND SNOW PEAS IN PATTY SHELLS

1 apple, peeled, cored and cut into wedges
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup minced onion
1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast, cut into 1-inch pieces
2/3 cup vermouth or dry white wine
1/3 cup dijon-style mustard
2/3 cup heavy cream or dairy half-and-half cream
1/2 pound snow peas, trimmed, cut in half and blanched until tender crisp*
1 package (10 ounces) frozen patty shells, baked according to package directions

Saute apple in 2 tablespoons butter over high heat. Sprinkle with sugar and cook until apple is browned and drippings are caramelized. Remove from skillet and set aside. Saute onion in 2 tablespoons butter until tender; add chicken and cook until just done and browned. Remove from skillet with slotted spoon. Add vermouth to skillet and cook over high heat until reduced to two-thirds. Reduce heat and stir in mustard and cream. Simmer 15 minutes or until thickened. Add chicken, snow peas and apples; heat. Spoon into warm patty shells and serve. Makes 6 servings.

*Note: To blanch snow peas, drop in boiling water and cook until crisp.

Cornbread Hits Spot

Although the results will vary depending on the type of ice cream freezer used and ingredients in the recipe, there are a few basic points to keep in mind while creating a treat that will put a smile on every face.

•Cool the ice cream mixture before churning.

•It is OK to prepare an ice cream mixture for churning a day or two ahead of time — but wait to add fruit until ready to freeze.

•Ice cream too hard? Too much rock salt was added. Be sure and measure for best results (about 20 pounds of ice to 3 or 4 cups of rock salt is best for a 1-gallon freezer).

For an easy, delicious accompaniment to cool homemade ice cream, try Easy Pound Cake. The use of a pound cake mix is a convenience bonus, but sour cream adds that richness that seems to say you spent hours in the kitchen.

EASY POUND CAKE

1 cup (8 ounces) dairy sour cream
1/4 cup milk
2 packages (8 1/2 ounces each) pound cake mix

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease a 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. In medium bowl, combine eggs, sour cream and milk. Add cake mix. Beat two minutes on low speed until blended, scraping bowl constantly. Beat additional 2 minutes on medium speed. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 1 hour 20 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes; turn out onto wire rack and cool completely.

Whether harvested from the field or the garden, fresh corn is a favorite summer vegetable.

Everyone knows the good taste of tender corn on the cob, but many people don't realize the nutritional value of corn. Corn is high in fiber, and is a good source of vitamin B-6 and potassium.

For the most flavorful corn possible, follow these suggestions that will take corn from the field or garden to the table in the freshest way.

•Season: Supplies are best from May through September.

•Look for: Husks that are green, not dry or yellowish; golden brown silks that don't look wet and matted; tender kernels that are juicy and puncture easily.

•To store: In a word, don't store. If possible, cook and serve immediately. Store very briefly in the refrigerator. Do not strip off husks and silks until just before cooking.

A favorite recipe in which to use corn cut from the cob is Fresh Corn Fritters. These moist fried puffs of corn are the perfect accompaniment to a Southern vegetable dinner. Hint: Pancake mix makes these fritters easy and quick to prepare.

FRESH CORN FRITTERS

1 cup corn cut from cob
2 tablespoons water
1 egg, lightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 package (5 1/2 ounces) flapstax

Combine corn and water in small saucepan. Bring to a boil; cover, reduce heat and simmer about 7 minutes or just until corn is tender; drain. In medium bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Fold in corn. Drop by teaspoonsfuls into hot deep fat. Fry until deep brown. Drain; serve warm. Makes about 24 fritters.

If the thought of making pastry drives you to the store to purchase a ready-made pie shell, why not create a homemade crust that you can press and bake?

A press'n bake crust involves preparing a buttery crust mixture and pressing it into a pie pan — no need to lightly handle delicate pastry or determine just how much cold water to add.

COOL LEMON PIE WITH BUTTER PECAN CRUST

1 package (7 ounces) muffin mix
1 cup chopped pecans
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
Lemon filling (recipe below)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine all ingredients except filling until well blended. Reserve 1/2 cup of mixture and crumble into an 8 or 9-inch square cake pan. Press remaining mixture into one 9-inch pie pan. Bake both the crumbs and crust 10 to 12 minutes. Remove both from oven; stir baked crumb mixture to break into fine crumbs. Cool both completely. Fill with Lemon Filling, sprinkle with crumbs and chill several hours.

Lemon Filling: Combine 1 can (14 ounces) sweetened condensed milk and 1 can (6 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate, thawed. Fold in 1 carton (4 ounces) frozen whipped topping (softened).

Soft Colors Hide Acres Of Chives

By ROBERT LEE ZIMMER
Associated Press Writer

MOMENCE, Ill. (AP) — A blanket of pale purple blossoms covers one of the most unusual fields in the Midwest, and a delicate yet onion-like scent fills the air.

Beneath the flowers are 80 acres of tender, green chives — the main crop at the Van Drunen farm, nestled along the scenic Kankakee River about an hour south of Chicago's Loop.

"It's unique. People don't know what all those flowering things are," said Jeff Van Drunen, whose family has been in the chive business for more than 20 years. "There are always people stopping by to see what we are doing."

The chives, which resemble very thin green onion tops, are freeze-dried on the farm and shipped to food processors, restaurants and spice bottlers.

The Van Drunens, one of the nation's few commercial chive producers, marketed about 500,000 pounds last year.

"That's a lot of chives — they hardly weigh anything," said Van Drunen, demonstrating with a huge plastic bag of chives. "Demand has grown and each year we've grown a few more."

A custom-made harvesting machine mows the chives, and they are taken to a building and placed on a conveyor belt. Workers pick out the brown ones. The green chives are chopped by spinning blades and put into the freezer.

Rock-hard chives, along with other frozen herbs and vegetables the Van Drunens process, are placed in four large vacuum chambers where the temperature is 300 degrees.

Ice is vaporized without becoming liquid. The chives and other products are thus preserved "dry and intact, retaining their shape, flavor and color," said Van Drunen.

Van Drunen, 23, studied food processing and horticulture at Purdue University and helped design and build the freeze-drying units.

An elaborate irrigation system guarantees the necessary 2 inches of water a week. Workers constantly battle weeds, and the crop is heavily fertilized.

"Chives are high in value so you can't afford to plant them and have them die," said Van Drunen.

A pound of freeze-dried chives will bring from $10 to $15, he said.

Van Drunen, who also raises about 35 acres of herbs such as basil and thyme, said there is little information about growing these specialty crops.

"It takes years of practice, trial and error, but you get better at it."

The intense beauty of the chives when they are blooming is followed by the intense odor when they are cut. But Van Drunen said residents of this Kankakee County community don't complain.

"When we're harvesting, it's strong — a real onion smell. But you get used to it."

Fast-Food Chains Lead Way In Hiring Seniors

By David Larsen
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — One of the more memorable television commercials of the year, titled "The New Kid," chronicles the experiences of an old-timer during his first day on the job at a McDonald's restaurant.

He ends the day telling his wife: "I don't know how they ever got along without me."

More "Now Hiring" signs are in evidence at some businesses, and more near- and past-retirement-age men and women are responding. And as the television commercial reveals, fast-food outlets are among the businesses interested in hiring them.

Historically, most fast-food chains have offered entry-level employment, usually at minimum wage, and most recruitment programs have been directed to teen-agers.

Times have changed — so have demographics.

"The basic fact of life in America is that the teen-age labor pool is decreasing," said Jo Hutcherson, spokeswoman for the Burger King Corp. in Miami. "We have been using seniors for several years now, and the emphasis is increasing."

Hutcherson also pointed out that seniors offer such advantages as not having conflicts with school schedules and probably no longer have growing children to keep in mind.

Another advantage, according to Robert Reid, professor of hotel management at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Va., is that the accident rate for workers older than 65 is "virtually half" that for workers in their early 20s.

"We are finding that older employees bring a lot of advantages with them," said Paul Raab, manager of communications with Wendy's International Inc., in Dublin, Ohio. "They have experience in dealing with people, patience and reliability. We find they have a steadying influence on our younger workers."

Cyril F. Brickfield, executive director of the American Association of Retired Persons in Washington, said:

"We are working hard in cooperation with the business community to eliminate stereotypes about older workers.

"... Companies realize that their attrition rate and sick days are no worse than those of younger workers."

In July, a two-day "Experience at Work" conference was held in Washington, sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp. and presented by the American Association of Retired Persons and National Restaurant Association.

A survey of 140 executives of fast-food and full-service industries in attendance concluded that companies that hire seniors are happy they did so.

Donald E. Doyle, president of Kentucky Fried Chicken, said: "There is definitely a supply-demand crunch coming" because of past reliance by the fast-food industry on younger workers.

Compounding the problem, Burger King's Hutcherson said, is the fact that the number of such outlets is increasing.

In agreement was Ann Connolly, media relations supervisor at McDonald's headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill. She reported McDonald's opens a new restaurant about every 17 hours, somewhere in the world — "a lot of job opportunities."

And some older folks are interested in working only a few hours a day, Connally said, and can be hired for specific tasks — making biscuits in the morning, for instance.

"The demographics say the population continues to move westward, and we have benefited from the continuing influx of young people," said Robert L. Jones, vice president for human resources of the San Diego-based company. "We aren't, however, turning our back on the possibility of seeking seniors."

So far, though, the work force of Jack-in-the-Box has been stabilizing.

"Our work force among hourly workers had been running at an annual turnover rate as high as 250 percent per position, but of late it has gotten down to 220 percent," Jones said.

In discussing seniors in the work force — particularly in fast-food outlets — Jones said: "Our business is fast-paced, a lot of hours standing on the feet, and usually, for beginners, to earn the minimum wage. Experienced workers make more."

A bigger problem than coping with what some have found to be a lower labor pool of teens, he said, has been finding workers in affluent suburban areas.

"In places such as, say, Marin County (an affluent area north of San Francisco), a lot of people won't work for the minimum wage," he said. "In some places we have to actively recruit, knocking on doors, putting bag-stuffers in takeout orders, and even bringing in workers from outlying areas."

Since last year, Wells Fargo Bank, has been engaged in a program to actively seek out older citizens as hourly, part-time tellers.

"They are reliable, flexible and prefer not to work full-time," said Larry Crabtree, vice president and manager of the 14 Wells Fargo banks in the Los Angeles district.

Crabtree said they are paid about $7 an hour during the two-week training cycle, then can make as much as $10 an hour.

In 1981, according to Steve Haugen, economist with the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington, the labor force in the 16-19 age range totaled almost 9 million. By last year — five years later — the total for that same group had dropped to 7.9 million.

Good Cooks Look For Cooking Ease

Despite time pressures, many cooks haven't given up on "scratch cooking," they've simply learned new strategies, updating recipes with speed and convenience in mind.

The time-consuming meal consisting of complex ingredients and sauces is disappearing from the repertoire of contemporary cooks. Today, the trend is toward creative recipes using quality convenience products and fresh ingredients to produce great tasting meals in a hurry.

This fast and convenient cooking strategy is equally successful with weekday or special meal occasions. Dill Chicken with Stuffing, for example, features flavors for spring dining, elegant enough for company, but quick enough to prepare at the end of a hectic work day.

Boneless chicken breasts, lightly dusted with dill and a squeeze of lemon juice, cook in minutes. The delicious long grain and wild rice side accompaniment makes the chicken interesting and intriguing. Uncle Ben's has eliminated tedious preparation so that in just 10 minutes Long Grain & Wild Rice Stuffing Blend with natural Chicken Flavor is ready to serve. The superbly seasoned combination of luxurious wild rice, long grain rice and toasted breadcrumbs boasts colorful garden vegetable including corn, bell pepper, celery and carrot. Premeasured packets of rice, seasonings and breadcrumbs assure perfect flavor balance. Cherry tomato halves stirred into the stuffing blend add a bit of color to this springtime presentation.

DILL CHICKEN WITH STUFFING

1 1/4 cups water
5 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 package (4.4 ounces) long grain and wild rice stuffing blend with natural chicken flavor
4 chicken breast halves, boned and skinned
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon dill weed
8 cherry tomatoes, cut in half
2 tablespoons chopped green onion

Combine water, 3 tablespoons of the butter and contents of rice and seasoning packets in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in contents of crumb packet. Cover and let stand 5 minutes or until water is absorbed. Meanwhile, saute chicken in remaining 2 tablespoons butter in medium skillet over medium heat until cooked through. Sprinkle with lemon juice and dill. Stir tomatoes into stuffing. Fluff stuffing with fork. Sprinkle green onion over stuffing and chicken. Makes 4 servings.

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOM STUFFING

1 1/4 cups water
5 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 package (4.4 ounces) long grain and wild rice stuffing blend with natural chicken flavor
1/2 cup zucchini strips (cut 1x1/4x1/4-inch)
4 chicken breast halves, boned and skinned, cut into 2-inch pieces
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion

Combine water, 3 tablespoons of the butter and contents of rice and seasoning packets in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in zucchini and contents of crumb packet. Cover and let stand 5 minutes, or until water is absorbed.

Meanwhile, cook chicken with garlic in remaining 2 tablespoons butter until no longer pink, about 3 minutes; stir frequently. Add mushrooms; cook and stir until mushrooms are crisp-tender. Fluff stuffing with fork. Serve chicken over stuffing. Sprinkle with green onion. Makes 4 servings.

1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped walnuts
Grated lemon peel of 1/2 fresh lemon
1 teaspoon fresh squeezed lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 (6-inch) loaves pocket bread, cut in half

In bowl, combine all ingredients except pocket bread. Spoon 1/4 chicken mixture into pocket of each bread half. Makes 2 sandwiches.

PACK 'N' GO

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Grated peel of 1/2 fresh orange
4 slices raisin bread
4 slices (about 4 ounces) cooked ham
2 slices (about 2 ounces) Swiss or Monterey Jack cheese

In small bowl, combine butter and orange peel. Lightly spread one side of each slice of bread with butter mixture. Assemble sandwiches with layers of ham and cheese. Serve with orange wedges, if desired. Makes 2 sandwiches.

KRISPIE ORANGE PEANUT BUTTER SQUARES

1/4 cup butter or margarine
40 large marshmallows
6 cups oven-toasted rice cereal
1 cup peanut butter flavored chips
Grated peel of 2 fresh oranges

In large saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Add marshmallows, stirring until completely melted. Remove from heat; add cereal, tossing until evenly coated. Stir in peanut butter chips and orange peel. Press mixture into buttered 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Cool and cut into squares. Makes 24 squares.

FRESH FRUIT 'N' NUT CUP

2 oranges, peeled, cut in bite-size pieces
1 red apple, unpeeled, cut in bite-size pieces
1/2 cup sliced celery
1/4 cup raisins
2 tablespoons brown sugar
Grated peel and juice of 1/2 fresh lemon
1/4 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

In bowl, combine all ingredients except nuts; chill. To serve, stir in nuts. Makes 4 servings (about 3 cups).

ORANGE PEANUT BUTTER MUFFINS

1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup honey
1/2 cup crunchy style peanut butter
2 eggs
Grated peel of 1 fresh orange
1/2 cup fresh squeezed orange juice
1/2 cup raisins

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. In large bowl, with electric mixer, beat honey and peanut butter well. Beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in dry ingredients alternately with orange juice just until blended. Add orange peel and raisins. Spoon batter into 12 paper-lined 2 1/2x1 1/4-inch muffin cups, filling about three-quarters full. Bake at 400 degrees for 17 to 20 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Meats Can Turn Out Well In Microwave

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

Microwave-cooked meats can be timesaving, attractive and flavorful.

Just match the right cut of meat with the right micro-cooking technique to get tender, juicy results every time, says Better Homes and Gardens Step-by-Step Microwave Cook Book.

The best meats to micro-cook are the less tender beef cuts, such as chuck pot roasts, stew meat or rolled rump roasts. Small cuts of lamb, pork and ham also work well, as do some sausages, ground meats and bacon. Large pieces over 3 pounds) and cuts that are usually broiled cook best conventionally.

When selecting meat to cook in the microwave, choose pieces that are even in shape, size and thickness. When pieces are not the same thickness, the thinner, less dense parts cook faster. Trim off thick areas or tuck under thin portions.

It's a good idea to trim off any fat, because it attracts microwaves and may cause meat near it to overcook. Bones have the opposite effect; they shield microwaves. Meat near large bones may cook slower. Prevent the meat from undercooking by removing large bones or turning the meat over.

In meat micro-cooking, the highest power setting isn't necessarily the best. High power works well for ground meats, bacon, sausages and small cuts of ham and lamb. Other cuts of beef and pork, though, are more tender and evenly done if cooked on lower power levels.

Lower power levels also come in handy for thawing meats. The medium-low or defrost settings will defrost meats quickly.

When it comes to covering up meats, follow these guidelines. Cover most meats loosely with waxed paper during cooking to prevent spattering. One exception to this rule is pork. It should be tightly covered with plastic wrap or a lid so it cooks evenly to the well-done stage. Cover high-fat meats, such as bacon or sausages with microwave-safe paper towels to absorb grease. If cooking a high-fat meat for longer than five minutes, choose a baking dish that can withstand the high temperature of the fat.

Microwve-cooked meats don't brown as well as conventionally cooked meats. A special microwave browning dish can be used to brown meats. Larger cuts can be brushed with soy sauce or Kitchen Bouquet for a rich brown color.
