County Considers Sale Of Old Office Building

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners, in an effort to plan for future office space needs, will investigate selling the county office building on West Fifth Street and building new facilities in downtown Greenville.

Potential buyers for the West Fifth Street facility include Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University Medical School.

At a workshop meeting Wednesday, board members, as part of a planning process, called for a meeting with PCMH and medical school officials to determine interest in the present county office building. Commissioners also agreed to discuss a timetable for finalizing the sale.

The board has been looking at space needs, especially at the courthouse in downtown Greenville. Earlier this year commissioners approved the purchase of a block of property bounded by First, Evans, Second and Washington streets — including three buildings — to ease overcrowding at the courthouse.

But Wednesday County Manager Kramer Jackson said the purchase of the three buildings doesn't address the "bigger problem" of future growth. "Do we go back downtown? Do we stay here?" he said.

"I'm not pushing anything ... just looking for direction from the board," Jackson said. "We need some discussion ... need some direction."

And to give the board a starting point, Jackson suggested three options:

"Stay here (West Fifth Street)," he said, and tell the hospital and medical school the county office building is not for sale, then build whatever facility is needed.

"Keep the county office building and suggest the board of education sell the school bus garage property at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Mall Drive. Money from that sale could be used to build a school administration building and garage. With this arrangement, part of the county office building could be rented to the hospital. "By rearranging occupants, a complete wing of the building could be utilized by the hospital," Jackson said.

"Finally, commissioners could agree to sell the county office building for a fair appraisal value, Jackson said. The revenue could be used to build a new building on the block with the courthouse, build a social services building next to the health department (keeping human service and health-related agencies — health, social services, mental health — near the hospital and medical school). Schools could build new offices and a garage at another site.

If the third option were chosen, Jackson suggested a new county office building could house finance, planning, engineering, tax collections, tax assessment, inspections, fire marshal, elections, communications, data processing, print shop,

Tennessee County Under Curfew

Murder Trial Acquittal Sets Off Courtroom Riot

DECATUR, Tenn. (AP) — A county-wide curfew was in effect and jurors were under guard today after more than 200 people rioted in a courtroom when the panel declared a man innocent of murder, authorities said.

The former defendant, Jerry Allen, and his family were in hiding, authorities said.

About 200 people went on the rampage in the Meigs County Courthouse late Wednesday when the verdict was announced following five hours of deliberations.

Another 200 people milled outside the courthouse to await the verdict, but were sent home once order was restored, authorities said.

The disturbance, quelled by scores of police officers, left at least two people seeking hospital treatment for minor injuries, authorities said.

Allen, 27, of Fairview, had been charged in the March shooting death of a 25-year-old man and the wounding of two others at a tavern.

"It's just been high tension. There's been trouble before. We didn't realize that it would come to this," said Sheriff R.L. McKenzie.

McKenzie said the case had aroused emotions in the county and the spectators gathered in the courtroom to hear the verdict. Authorities said most of those involved in the melee were friends or relatives of the dead man.

The mob overturned benches, hurled chairs and shattered windows as some tried to grab Allen and break into the jury room, said McKenzie.

"When the verdict was not guilty, all hell broke loose," he said. "People tried to attack the jury. People tried to attack the defendant, tried to attack the family of the defendant."

"It escalated and got into a full-blown riot in the courtroom," he said, pointing to a broken door and shards of glass on the floor outside the courtroom.

County Executive Garland Lankford ordered a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew in effect until Sunday to help avoid further disturbances. The sheriff's department and the Tennessee Highway Patrol also will be conducting round-the-clock street patrols, McKenzie said.

"I'm looking for trouble for quite a while on this," he said. "I dread the next month and a half to two months. I just dread it. We're going to try every way in the world to protect the people."

After Allen was acquitted on one count of first-degree murder and two counts of assault, he was rushed from the courtroom into a nearby office.

Thousands Flee Wildfires In Four States

By PETE BROWN
Associated Press Writer

Wildfires racing toward rural communities today forced thousands to flee as National Guardsmen and inmates mobilized to help battle blazes that have blackened 270,000 acres of brush and timber in four Western states.

The fires in tinder-dry northern California, Washington, Idaho and Oregon have destroyed at least 34 homes and other buildings and injured at least 58 people while consuming nearly 369 square miles, an area a third the size of Rhode Island.

One firefighter was struck and killed by a motorcycle in California.

Jack Wilson, director of the Boise Interagency Fire Control Center, called the situation "extremely critical, primarily in California and southwest Oregon," this morning after high winds whipped the flames.

"In the national park situation, we're very fearful that they might get into the giant sequoias, which are an irreplaceable resource," he said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

More winds were forecast, he said. "We're really scratching for crews," Ray Naddy, fire coordination spokesman in Oregon, said Wednesday. "We've been getting dozens of volunteer calls. But we can't take just anybody off the street without organized training."

Prison inmates joined firefighters called in from as far away as New York and Maine, and in Oregon, nearly 350 Guardsmen were to report today in Eugene and Medford, said Naddy of the Oregon Unified Coordination Group.

In California, 11,500 firefighters fought to contain more than 1,000 fires that have burned more than 202,000 acres of timber and brushland.

"Winds of up to 25 miles an hour are forecast in areas where the fires are burning up and down the Sierra," fire spokesman Earl Clayton said today in a status report at the state and federal fire information center in Sacramento.

Clayton said firefighters were battling 1,016 fires covering 202,652 acres with 80,000 acres added in the last 24 hours.

"It's rather frightening because a U-2 overflight showed hot fires throughout the area," Dale Wierman of the California Department of Forestry said of the fires in the Tuolumne City region.

The acreage amounts to the biggest loss to wildfire in California since the summer of 1977, when a blaze in the Los Padres National Forest blackened nearly 200,000 acres, officials said.

The fires, sparked mostly by lightning, stretched from the foothills of Mount Palomar to Klamath National Forest near the Oregon border in a giant arc through the Mojave Desert and across the Sierra Nevadas and Cascades.

California's biggest fire was a 22,000-acre blaze in brush and timber in Lassen County, about 200 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Nearly 5,000 people were evacuated from their homes Wednesday as fires swept from Sierra foothills toward five communities near the northern gateway to Yosemite National Park. A 50-foot wall of flames advanced on Tuolumne City.

Don Mercurio of Tuolumne City said the fire "burned right up to the house. ... It was like a war zone. I never realized trees just blew up into the sky."

Iraqi Attack Kills Two Seamen

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — U.S. warships today began escorting a convoy of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers through the Persian Gulf, where the first deaths were reported since Iran and Iraq's war on shipping escalated sharply.

Owners of a small supply vessel confirmed today that two seamen had been killed in an Iraqi attack that sank the ship Tuesday. They were the first fatalities in this week's flare-up of the 3-year-old "tanker war."

Officials of the Kuwait Oil Tanker

Co., speaking on condition they not be identified, confirmed the departure of three loaded tankers for the 550-mile southbound voyage through the gulf.

The convoy's departure came as Iranian speedboats carried out two more attacks, against a Japanese tanker and an Italian motor vessel, and Iraq claimed to have hit another large tanker.

Italian shipping sources confirmed that the 17,172-ton vessel Jolly Rubino was raked by machine gun fire that wounded the captain and a crewman at about 1:45 a.m. local time today.

Meanwhile, the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council expressed support for a peace mission to the warring countries by Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, the New York Times reported today. The Times, quoting senior U.N. officials, said the secretary-general still needed the approval of the other 10 council members.

Iran accused the United States,

Some 3,200 firefighters were battling Oregon's blazes, with 1,000 more en route from other parts of the nation, Ron DeHart of the Oregon Unified Coordination Group. He said so many fires were merging that he stopped counting at 700.

"We're in a real tough situation because California has got some huge fires and their personnel demands are greater than ours," DeHart said.

In Southern California, firefighters controlled or contained most of 30 blazes. Many of the fires were sparked by lightning; at least three were believed to be arson.

Home Loan Rates May Go Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The jump in interest rates in credit markets to levels not seen since early 1986 is expected to show up soon in home mortgages. Already, mortgage rates are climbing.

Bond interest rates have rocketed on fears that a weaker dollar will mean higher inflation and waning foreign demand for U.S. securities.

The yield on the bellwether 30-year Treasury bond, considered the most sensitive to interest rate speculation, rose to more than 9.4 percent late Wednesday from 9.27 percent late Tuesday and 9.16 percent late Monday.

The yield was about a half-point higher than in mid-August and more than two points higher than in January, when the 30-year bond yielded an average 7.39 percent.

Because billions of dollars in mortgages are traded like government and corporate bonds, mortgage rates in recent years have become increasingly tied to the bond market.

Fixed-rate mortgages averaged 10.33 percent at the end of last week, up from 10.3 percent the previous week and a low of 9.1 percent in late March, according to a weekly survey by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

Rates are expected to rise more sharply in coming days as lenders complete adjustments based on the recent changes in the credit markets.

"The potential is not that bond rates will just jump up, but that they will continue to rise over a longer period of time. That's going to be a real problem for housing," said John Tuccillo, chief economist for the Washington-based National Association of Realtors.

The interest rate scenario is similar to what happened this spring when inflation worries caused the dollar to decline in foreign exchange, leading to a bond market slump that pushed interest rates sharply higher.

That pushed mortgage rates to a peak of 10.8 percent in May, causing new home sales to slump 12.3 percent lower during the month.

But Tuccillo said the rate hikes now could be longer lasting because they are tied to worries about the dollar and the nation's trade performance, which will not fade as quickly as inflation fears based on volatile commodity prices.

Larceny Arrest

Greenville police said Shalotte Janice Mayes, 29, of 503 Contentnea St. was arrested on a larceny charge Wednesday.

According to Officer Alexander Batts, Ms. Mayes was charged in connection with a 5:42 p.m. incident at Rose's at Stanton Square Shopping Center where a radio was reported taken.

Wednesday Thefts

A case of rings valued at $1,349 was among four thefts reported to Greenville police Wednesday.

Officer J.W. Corbett said the rings were taken from Memorial Coin and Pawn Shop at 655 Memorial Drive in an incident reported at 1:43 p.m., while Officer L.E. White said two tickets to a David Bowie concert valued at $50 were taken from a purse at Joe Cullipher Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 9:45 a.m.

Officer T.W. Nevelle said $400 in cash was taken from Acheson's Buffet by a woman who reached across the counter and took the money from the cash register in an incident reported at 2:21 p.m., while Officer J.W. Isenhour said a 1987 model car was taken from Brown-Wood Pontiac-Cadillac on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 8:18 p.m.

Residence Entered

Greenville police said a break-in at 509 Sheppard St. was reported at 3:54 a.m. today.

Officer M.E. Hayes said two stereo systems and a red comforter, with a combined value of $749, were reported taken from the home.

Rape Charge

Reginal Peterson, 28, of 304 Church St. was arrested on a rape charge by Greenville police about 5:20 p.m. Wednesday.

Officer R.G. Mendenhall said Peterson was charged in connection with the rape of a 15-year-old in a house in the Meadowbrook section of north Greenville that was reported about 1:25 a.m. Wednesday.

Robbery-Assault

Donald Leigh Lindsey, 24, of 2118 W. Village Drive was arrested on robbery, assault and larceny by employee charges by Greenville police Tuesday.

Detective J.E. Nichols said Lindsey was charged with robbery and assault in connection with an April 22 incident in the parking lot of the Fast Fare on Hooker Road. In the incident a woman reported that a man opened the door of her car, hit her several times in the face and took her purse, which contained $20 worth of postage stamps, a checkbook and several credit cards.

Nichols said the larceny by employee charge against Lindsey was made in connection with the theft of $100 in cash from Smithfield Barbecue on Memorial Drive on April 16.

Student Enrollment

East Carolina University says that 55 percent of the nearly 15,000 students at the university this fall come from the counties of eastern North Carolina lying east of Interstate 95.

In-state enrollment of 12,445 at ECU, the state's third largest institution of higher learning, is almost two-thirds, 66.67 percent, of the record student body of 14,882, according to Registrar J. Gilbert Moore.

Moore said 97 of North Carolina's 100 counties are represented in the ECU student body. Only the state's westernmost counties — Cherokee, Clay and Graham — are not represented.

He said 2,359 ECU students come from 43 of the 50 states and from 35 foreign countries.

New Bern Regatta

The city of New Bern is again presenting the annual Michelob Cup Regatta through the sponsorship of the two New Bern Rotary clubs.

The event will take place during the Labor Day weekend with preliminary activities on Friday and the race on Saturday.

In downtown New Bern, a prerace shrimp-a-roo and dance, with music by the Embers, will take place Friday night in the area between the Sheraton Hotel and the Farmers Market.

The regatta will be held Saturday, with participating sailboats to gather at the conclusion of the race at the dock of the Sheraton Marina. A display of fireworks over the river will be held following sundown.

Principal Welcomed

The staff of Belvoir Elementary School recently welcomed its new principal, Bruce Gray, with a reception in the cafeteria. The reception followed the final session of the Effective Teacher Training workshop.

Ann Moore and Jasa Allen presented Gray with some hats he will wear as principal. Faye Little and Marie Carraway prepared refreshments and decorated the table, while Sheila Jacobs, Ruth Stokes and Cynthia Perry assisted with planning and serving.

Charleston Desegregation Suit Set For Trial Oct. 6

By BRUCE SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — After 6½ years of legal wrangling, the federal desegregation suit against the Charleston County School District is finally set for trial next month.

During a pretrial hearing Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Sol Blatt Jr. set Oct. 6 as the day for opening arguments in the case. The trial is expected to last about eight weeks and as many as 70 witnesses may be called to testify.

The case is one of four desegregation suits filed by the U.S. Justice Department in the waning days of the Carter administration in 1981.

It charges that a 1967 law creating a countywide school district to oversee operation of eight smaller constituent districts was unconstitutional and discriminatory in intent. It's the only one of the four cases that haven't either been settled or have gone to court.

Both sides have tried unsuccessfully for years to reach an out-of-court resolution of the case.

The complaint alleges that while 54 percent of the estimated 44,000 students in the district are black, 41 percent of the black students attend classes in local districts that are 90 percent black.

The countywide district has control over finances while student and Candidate?

RALEIGH (AP) — State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Wednesday he was considering a bid for governor in 1988 but likely would seek re-election instead.

"People keep coming to me and saying 'why don't you run for governor,'" Graham said. "If they want to put down $2 million or $3 million I'll probably get into it, but I don't anticipate that."

Graham, 65, is a six-term agriculture commissioner who led the statewide Democratic ticket in 1984. He said he had enjoyed the post and wanted to remain in it, but that a gubernatorial candidacy was appealing because "it's hard work, it's a challenge and I'm a fierce competitor."

Appointments

RALEIGH (AP) — Five people were appointed Wednesday to the newly created North Carolina Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Authority, Gov. Jim Martin said.

The new appointees are Dr. Merrill Eisenbud of Chapel Hill, John W. McAlister of Charlotte, Constance Kalbach Walker of Durham, Harry E. LeGrand of Raleigh and Elizabeth Drury of Charlotte.

Post Office Schedule

Labor Day will be observed Monday by the Greenville Main Post Office and the 10th Street Station. No deliveries will be made by rural and city carriers, and no window service will be provided.

Mail will be delivered to post office boxes. There will be collections at 3 p.m., and mail will be dispatched at 5:30 p.m. The self-service postal unit at the main office will be available.

Quarterly Event

Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will observe quarterly meeting Friday through Sunday.

Quarterly conferences will be Friday at 7:30 p.m. Holy Communion will be held on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Sunday school will begin Sunday at 9:45 a.m., followed at 11 a.m. by morning worship. At 3 p.m. Bishop T.H. Davis and Progressive FWB Church will be guests.

County Offices Close

All Pitt County government offices will be closed Monday for the Labor Day holiday and will reopen at their regular times on Tuesday.

Because of the holiday, the Board of County Commissioners will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the county office building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

Eight-Year Prison Sentence Sought

MOSCOW (AP) — The prosecutor in the case against Mathias Rust today called for a sentence that would send the West German teen-ager to prison for eight years for landing a plane in Red Square.

In closing remarks during the second day of Rust's trial, Prosecutor Vladimir Andreyev asked the court to sentence Rust to eight years for breaking international flight rules, four years for malicious hooliganism and two years for violating the Soviet border. The sentences would run concurrently.

Rust and his defense lawyer were to have a final chance to speak on Friday morning, before the judge and two lay assistants consider a verdict.

Prosecution witnesses testified today that the 19-year-old pilot frightened pedestrians when he swooped over the Kremlin and landed his small plane in Red Square on May 28.

Rust testified Wednesday that he made the flight in a bid to meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and advocate world peace.

"My first reaction was to duck," policeman Andrei Molokoyedov told the court. He was on duty and standing about 100 yards from the broad bridge where Rust set down the single-engine Cessna and taxied onto Red Square.

Rust's feat drew international headlines and made him a pop hero at home.

But the incident embarrassed the Kremlin and led to the firing of the air defense chief and the resignation of Defense Minister Sergei L. Sokolov.

"People were afraid," said witness Yuri Talyzin, who was on the famed cobblestone square when the teen-ager landed.

Andreyev called to the stand six witnesses to the landing, as well as Molokoyedov and a Soviet aviation safety expert, in the first 2½ hours of testimony today, the second day of the three-day trial. They described the scene the evening Rust, from suburban Hamburg, landed his single-engine Cessna 172b on Red Square before hundreds of astonished strollers.

Anatoly Bryulov, described as an international aviation expert, told the court that 10 passenger airliners were descending to Sheremetyevo airport when Rust flew through at about 2,000 feet. That is the altitude the airliners fly at after crossing into the international airport's 26-mile exclusion zone.

Rust arrived in Moscow from Helsinki, Finland, traveling unhindered over more than 500 miles of heavily protected Soviet territory. After buzzing Lenin's mausoleum and other Kremlin landmarks, he set the four-seater down between the Kremlin Wall and St. Basil's Cathedral.

Yuri Vdovin, another young Muscovite, told the court that "the plane ... flew between Spassky Tower and the cathedral ... at a high speed."

Hart Will Appear On 'Nightline' Show

L.A. Times-Washington Post

Former Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart will appear on ABC-TV's "Nightline" Tuesday night in what a show spokeswoman described as an interview with "absolutely no conditions."

Hart was the front-runner in the Democratic race when he quit on May 8 after reports that he spent a weekend in Washington with Miami model Donna Rice while his wife was out of town.

He has made no major public appearances since then and refused in a

June interview with the Los Angeles Times to discuss the Rice affair, dwelling instead on his desire to "contribute to the debate" as the remaining Democratic candidates seek the 1988 presidential nomination.

Hart adviser William Shore said Wednesday that "Gary will use the ('Nightline') opportunity to talk about his reflections on the last four months."

But he said he did not know whether Hart would answer "Nightline" host Ted Koppel's questions about the events that led to Hart's withdrawal.

Hart's former campaign manager, William Dixon, said two weeks ago that it was "likely" Hart would get back into the presidential race. But Shore would not speculate on that, saying only that Hart will discuss his political plans on "Nightline."

Sources close to Hart said friends and advisers have debated for weeks which course he should take in an effort to rehabilitate his public career. Some have urged him to get back into the presidential race because polls still show him ranking higher than the eight other Democratic candidates.

Re-entering the race would also allow Hart to qualify for federal campaign funds. He left the race with a debt of more than $1 million.

But other Hart friends have told him that if he gets back into the 1988 race he will hurt himself and the Democratic Party. These friends have urged him to apologize publicly to his supporters for letting them down and then start a long-term rehabilitation built around his considerable experience in national and international policy-making.

Tough Task

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — The craftsmen have designed a silver star for actor Gregory Peck and a world map for singer John Denver, but neither compares to their latest endeavor — communion vessels for Pope John Paul II.

"No project is of this importance or prestige," said Norman Taylor, a designer of vessels the pope will use at Mass in San Antonio on Sept. 13.

The chalice; the ciborium, which holds the communion wafers; the flagon, which holds the wine, and the paten, a plate from which the bread is offered during Mass, were commissioned by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Antonio.

Shaped from silver and gold, the vessels also include Hill Country limestone from the Guadalupe River near Kerrville.

Cost to the archdiocese will be about $7,000, Avery said. With the 200 to 300 hours put into the project, Avery valued the vessels at $20,000 to $25,000.

Class Of 2000

For the kindergarten class of 1987, Wednesday's school opening marked the genesis of a journey which will end in a new beginning.

These students will be the graduating class of the year 2000 — the leaders of the 21st century. And although all the youngsters that stepped away from play and into the classroom this week will play a role in this new century, these kindergarteners are the first to tangibly represent a time of change.

The steps this class's members take, the course they choose and the stimulus they receive will significantly define the future. The kind of education they get is perhaps the largest factor in this impact.

Steep challenges will face these youngsters when they conclude their educational trek. As world leaders, they must respond to grave environmental concerns, economic complexities and ideological conflicts that constantly threaten peace. As community and state leaders they will face a drastically changing economic climate in eastern North Carolina. Shifts will be fueled by an aging population, dwindling agriculture base and pressured natural resources.

How well-educated they are will determine how astutely they react to these factors. That influence begins now, begins here, in classrooms in Pitt County. Our educators must set high standards for the class of 2000. They must assess the needs ahead and articulate them into curricula.

Technology alone will account for a large portion of this challenge. More and more, computerization affects decision-making. Educators must anticipate the influence of escalating scientific knowledge, understand it, interpret it and be prepared to teach its utilization.

Educators must be equally prepared to defend the basic skills of reading, writing and math, for the class of 2000 has no more need for illiteracy than those before it. To function, its numbers must be well-versed in basics, as well as skillful in manipulating technology.

For those who began their educational careers last week, the year 2000 has consequential significance. For those who will guide them and lay the ground work for a successful journey, it has equal impact.

This century's leaders have the responsibility to shape the class of 2000 to face the future this benchmark year promises.

Expensive Ruling

The end may be ahead for student bus drivers.

Pitt County is looking at needing as many as 80 adult school bus drivers by the end of 1987 in accordance with a United States Department of Labor ruling that 16- and 17-year-olds cannot drive after Jan. 1.

This situation is one which could improve safety records, but is one that inevitably will cost taxpayers more. If competent adult drivers are to be found and retained, it's likely their pay and benefits may have to be increased.

As always the obstacle to an adult driver system is low pay — that fact plus a schedule which requires drivers to be on the road early in the mornings and in the afternoon. All drivers, adult and student, receive $4.81 to $4.91 per hour. There is no vacation, sick leave, retirement or health insurance. A parent cannot take his or her preschool child along on the bus because state law says only board of education personnel and students may ride.

The shift to adult drivers may not be all that necessary in Pitt County. Officials say there is no difference in the safety records of drivers under 18 and those over 18.

There may be an out, however. If the state can show by Nov. 30 that safety records of 16-to-17-year-old drivers has improved, the deadline for going to adult drivers could be extended.

The state has received exemptions since 1967 which allow teenage drivers.

Pitt County has begun to search for adult drivers but the hope is that an extension will be granted. There is some question among local bus officials concerning the effectiveness of and need for an all-adult driver system.

The under 18 drivers feel they are being judged unfairly. Teen-agers have, after all, been driving school buses since the 1920s.

There are responsible teenage drivers. Yet, it appears certain that school bus driving is eventually going to become an adult occupation in North Carolina. Whether the system will be safer remains to be seen. To be successful, it will have to be more expensive.

Public Forum

Easily Sunk

To the editor:

In the spring of 1986, I wrote a letter to the Daily Reflector wondering how our tax dollars could support a facility which discriminates against our female children.

The Boys Club is certainly a nice addition to our community, but I cannot imagine why in this day and age it could completely exclude one half of the children in Pitt County.

In March of 1986, I was advised by letter that an announcement regarding a Girls Club would be forthcoming in June, 1986. I have been watching for such an announcement for a year and a half.

A recent television news report showed the Goldsboro Boys Club now admitting girls, without any apparent problems. This seems like a fair solution for a tax-supported club until such time as a separate but equal facility could be established.

In this era of latchkey children, the concept of the Boys Club fills a very real need, but surely our daughters deserve as much consideration as our sons.

Katherine W. "Tommie" Pratt

To the editor:

The Boys Club of Pitt County welcomes informed and constructive comments on its programs and plans for future expansion of those programs. Contrary to the understanding of the inquirer, our club is a private, non-profit corporation, dependent totally on contributions from the community for our operation. As a United Way agency, a major portion of that support comes from United Way. We take pride that no federal, state or local taxes support our operations.

Our board of directors consists of 30 men and women from the Pitt County community who have volunteered their time and services. This board long has recognized the need to extend our services to girls, and this extension of services is a top priority in our future plans. However, because we are so dependent on community support, the need also must be recognized community-wide. We feel that recognition is rapidly growing, as this inquiry indicates. Our board also recognizes that any extension of services to girls must be preceded by careful, long-range planning so as not to sacrifice the quality of services presently being offered. One aspect of this planning is evaluating our building's ability to accommodate additional programs.

Unlike the Goldsboro club, which was below capacity, our facility was at full capacity from the time it was opened at the present site in 1981. Currently, we have a waiting list of 300 young people. Presently, we are investigating a possible alternative to our space problem which may remove this obstacle to expansion in the near future. However, the investigation has just begun and to share details at this time would be premature. Beyond the building issue, our plans must include a means of supporting the additional programs and services, since we depend solely on community contributions.

I hope this response illustrates that we are eager and willing to extend our services to girls, but only after a careful, responsible planning process, which is under way. We invite anyone to stop by our facility and talk with our executive director, Chet Emerson, or obtain a list of our board members, any one of whom will be happy to share suggestions on how we might extend our services to more young people, including girls.

E. Cordell Avery, president
Board of Directors
Boys Club of Pitt County Inc.

The Living 'Gender Gap'

WASHINGTON — Every presidential election seems to produce a great, new strategic theory on how candidates can woo and win the hearts of vital elements of the electorate. If only they can reach the "forgotten American," the "silent majority," the "alienated voter," the "young voter," even the "nonvoter," candidates dream, they will sweep to victory.

Nearly all of these strategems prove illusory. Invariably, the electorate fails to perform as anticipated; targeted blocs of voters do not vote as blocs. First-time 18-year-old voters, supposedly more liberal, either don't participate or wind up voting for such conservative candidates as Richard M. Nixon and Ronald Reagan.

Probably the best example of the foolhardiness of banking on voting blocs came in the last presidential election after much talk about the so-called "gender gap." According to this theory, women were more inclined toward Democratic candidates. Thus, putting a woman on the ticket supposedly would benefit the Democrats.

Geraldine A. Ferraro turned out to be no help to Walter F. Mondale as greater percentages of women voted for Reagan that time than four years earlier. So much for the gender gap.

With these considerable caveats in mind, one approaches a new study again suggesting that the "women's vote" might help Democrats in the 1988 election. This work by the Washington-based Democratic polling firm of Hamilton, Frederick & Schneiders (HFS) seems worthy of consideration and might even be important.

"The gender gap is alive and well but not widely recognized," the pollsters report. "Women differ from men in their orientation toward the political world. Women certainly vote differently than men; nine Senate races in 1986 went to the Democratic candidate because of support from women (CBS News exit polls). In fact, if women voted the same way men did in 1986, the U.S. Senate would still be firmly in Republican hands.

"Recent HFS research on the subject of why the gender gap exists shows stark differences in perceptions of the economy, of the parties and the fundamental role of government. While the subject is complex, in simple terms, women tend to be more Democratic because they want a compassionate government that directly helps people improve their lives. Key issue areas are family finances, education and the elderly."

These conclusions are based on random sampling of 1,500 voters in July for the American Medical Political Action Committee (AMPAC) and a focus-group study of middle-class women under 50 with family incomes of less than $35,000. No female executives were included. This was conducted in Seattle, Nashville and Philadelphia.

Some of the findings about voter opinions on the direction of the country are intriguing, especially in the wake of the Iran-contra affair and scandals involving Wall Street and electronic preachers. They appear to reflect concerns expressed during earlier grass-roots reporting by Washington Post reporters and show a marked difference in attitudes among men and women voters.

For instance, asked for opinions on the direction of the country, 47 percent of women under 50 said it is going in the right direction while 60 percent of men in the same age group agreed. Only 36 percent of men thought the country was headed in the wrong direction, compared with 46 percent of women. Among voters over 50, both sexes held more strongly pessimistic views on that general question, but women's responses again differed from those of men.

Feelings about Reagan reflected the same pattern.

"Two major factors appear to be driving the gender differences in perception of the country's direction—the economy and trust in politicians," the pollsters concluded. "Focus groups with middle-class women under 50 reveal a strong level of 'disappointment' with players and events in the political world. Scandals with the Iran-contra dealings, Gary Hart, defense-contractor abuse and PTL drove these perceptions."

The pollsters offer more gender differences of political significance. They said women are more worried about the economy, more opposed to contra aid and funding the Strategic Defense Initiative and more supportive of education and "help" programs.

This might make a difference next year, but don't bet on it. In the end, the quality of the candidate counts more than the demographic composition of the electorate.

Strength For Today

Some of the most brilliant episodes in the history of England during the 16th century are the freebooting expeditions of Sir Francis Drake against the Spaniards in the New World.

On one occasion, after capturing several Spanish galleons, Drake's one remaining ship was so overburdened with gold and silver that it threatened to sink. Drake and his men desparately jettisoned everything non-essential,

In his forward to the 1987-88 edition of "Jane's Fighting Ships," the retiring editor, Capt. John Moore, criticizes Western navies on several grounds. From the United States' point of view, Moore's most important criticism is that, by its technological arrogance and complacency, the U.S. Navy has allowed itself to fall far behind in submarine design and construction.

The reality may be much less terrifying. Both the United States and the Soviet Union have tended to adopt standard designs, which they improve over the course of their production runs and which they ultimately replace with new standards.

In the case of the Soviets, the last standard nuclear attack submarine, the Victor, first appeared in 1968, and three new prototypes — the Mike, Akula and Sierra — appeared in 1984-86. It is by no means clear just how successful they have been, since the Soviets have not yet produced many submarines in any of the three new classes. The production of the last major new Soviet attack-submarine design, the much-discussed Alfa, ended some years ago, and at least one (possibly two) of the seven built had to be broken up.

Given the character of the Soviet economy, it is likely that the new standard attack submarine, whichever design is chosen, will be in production for the better part of the next two decades. If the next standard U.S. submarine represents (as it does) a technological advance of about four to six years (not to count any other superiority), its designs should retain that superiority for a very long time.

The picture is somewhat obscured because the Soviets tend to produce specialized submarines, like cruise-missile carriers, whereas the U.S. practice is to develop a wide variety of weapons to fit the standard torpedo tube. That is possible partly because the United States enjoys a lead in electronics, and partly because U.S. submarines tend to carry substantially more weapons than their Soviet counterparts.

Moore charges that Soviet submarines are better armed, but that really means that they have more torpedo tubes, not a greater total number of weapons aboard. The difference is significant.

Norman C. Friedman, a naval analyst, is the author of 11 military books including "Submarine Design and Development" (Naval Institute Press, 1984).

Throughout history, many peoples and nations have tried to carry too great a cargo of cannons and silver. As with Francis Drake, our survival may depend on jettisoning treasures to which we have assigned an exaggerated value.

Tar Heel Collider Bid Filed

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina officials say the state's bid for a massive superconducting super collider includes lower estimated building costs and state assistance that amounts to a $1 billion incentive package.

Among the sales pitches in the North Carolina report is that the state could reduce the project's $4.4 billion price tag to $3.9 billion because its labor and utility costs are lower than in California, the state on which the $4.4 billion estimate was based.

Construction of the super collider would cost about $330 million in North Carolina, 42 percent less than in California, said Paul H. Frampton, a physics professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the project director. Meanwhile, the SSC would be charged 4 cents per kilowatt-hour for electricity, far less than in California.

Additionally, North Carolina has pledged nearly $500 million in incentives, including additional faculty positions for physicists at area universities, 16,107 acres of land worth some $25 million and road improvements.

"What it all comes to is a billion-dollar incentive package — very attractive," Frampton said Wednesday after the state's bid was submitted to the federal Department of Energy. "And the proposal itself is very impressive."

"We feel terrific," project manager Bill Dunn said in a telephone interview from North Carolina's office in Washington, D.C., where state officials met with reporters after their visit to the U.S. Department of Energy. "We think the proposal represents the site very well and the site represents the state very well."

States were required to submit their bids by 2 p.m. Wednesday. The four-person North Carolina delegation drove its package, contained in 50 cardboard boxes, to Washington on Tuesday.

The proposal consists of nine volumes and 61 computer-designed maps that Frampton called "a work of art."

"Some of the most modern mapping facilities in the country are in Raleigh," he said. "I doubt if any other proposal will be able to match our maps."

Frampton said he planned to meet with Washington lobbyist Edward Forgotson, hired by North Carolina to build support for the state's proposal in Congress and the Reagan administration.

"He has very good contacts with people on the Washington scene," Frampton said.

Dunn, meanwhile, said he and the other North Carolina officials will be able to work at a more relaxed pace for a few months.

Their next task, he said, is preparing additional information federal officials will want if North Carolina is chosen as a finalist. The "best qualified list" will be released by the National Academy of Sciences in December. President Reagan is expected to choose the winner in December 1988.

Lighthouse Plan Studied

By The Associated Press

An 11-member panel studying proposals to save the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse should be ready to make recommendations to the National Park Service next month, a park service scientist said.

The group toured the lighthouse last weekend and spent three days at Hatteras discussing various proposals for preserving the historic structure, said F. Dominic Dottavio, chief scientist for the Southeastern Region of the National Park Service.

"The committee is supposed to publish a short report, what they call a 'letter report' in October," Dottavio said in an interview with The News and Observer of Raleigh. That report should contain the committee's recommendation for protecting the lighthouse from the ocean, he said.

A longer, more detailed report probably will be out in March, Dottavio said. It will concern other issues, including a review of National Park Service policies regarding cultural resources such as the lighthouse.

The committee is made up of scientists, engineers, and historians from across the nation and includes two North Carolina residents. The group spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Hatteras. Dottavio said they toured the inside of the lighthouse, flew over it and met with local residents and consultants who have argued over the best way to keep the lighthouse from being claimed by the advancing surf.

One proposal would have the lighthouse lifted onto jacks and moved back about 2,800 feet from the shoreline. Another solution would have the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers build an octagonal seawall between the structure and the surf. There are about 150 feet of beachfront between the lighthouse and the ocean.

Helms' Campaign Unit Gives Top Priority To Kemp Presidential Bid

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The organization that raised $18 million for Sen. Jesse Helms' 1984 campaign has endorsed Rep. Jack Kemp for president, a coup for a New Yorker relying on a strong Republican primary showing in the South.

The National Congressional Club, an arch-conservative political action committee co-founded by Helms, will make Kemp's campaign its top priority in 1988, Executive Director Carter Wrenn said.

He said Club Chairman Tom Ellis, a Raleigh lawyer and Helms' closest political adviser, had been named national co-chairman of the Kemp organization. Wrenn will be a special consultant to Charlie Black, Kemp's campaign manager and a native North Carolinian.

"I think Kemp is in the process of becoming the conservative movement candidate for president," Wrenn said in an interview.

For his part, Helms says he's staying neutral in the primary. Some of his supporters, including Wrenn, have urged Helms to seek the presidency himself — at least a favorite-son bid in his home state. He says he's not interested.

Black says the support of the Helms brain trust is "a tremendous boost" for Kemp.

"Jack is an underdog, so we're running a lean, mean campaign without a big budget or a lot of high-priced talent," Black said this week.

Despite the Congressional Club's fund-raising prowess, its leaders' primary mission will be developing strategy for Kemp's campaign in the South and border area, where 14 states including North Carolina have scheduled primaries for March 8, Black said.

Kemp hopes to gain momentum for "Super Tuesday" by winning three days earlier in South Carolina.

Black and Wrenn agree the key to success in the South, where Vice President George Bush and Sen. Robert Dole have strong support, is framing the campaign in ideological terms.

Kemp must force his opponents to address such issues as the economy, defense and "traditional values," keeping them from focusing on "personality" matters such as their government experience and Republican pedigrees, Wrenn said.

Secondly, he said, Kemp must set himself apart from Bush and Dole, establishing himself as ideological heir to Ronald Reagan and the most conservative of the Republican contenders with a chance to win.

"Bush and Dole represent the minority of the Republican Party now — moderate Republicanism or pragmatic Republicanism or Northeastern Republicanism," Wrenn said. "But they're both powerful incumbents."

"Kemp philosophically represents the majority of the Republican Party, but starts from a much weaker position because he does not have the national name recognition or fund-raising base," Wrenn said. "He's got to raise that money by saying 'here I am, here's what I believe, where do you stand?'"

The Congressional Club has used such tactics in North Carolina, and Black says they have strong appeal to conservative Southern Democrats who are among Helms' strongest supporters. Those voters could help Kemp in Southern primaries because about half the region's states allow crossover voting, he said.

"Look at the history of Southern primaries," Black said. "When there's a clear contrast on the issues, when there's a conservative and a more moderate Republican in the race, the conservative almost always wins."

He pointed to the 1976 GOP primary in North Carolina, a turning point in that year's presidential campaign and one of the National Congressional Club's earliest success stories.

The Club, founded by Helms and his supporters in 1973 to retire the debt from his first Senate campaign the previous year, backed Ronald Reagan for the presidency although the state's Republican governor supported Gerald Ford. Reagan carried North Carolina for his first primary victory, reviving his flagging campaign.

"The Congressional Club just took over and ran his campaign in this state," said Ted Arrington, a Republican activist and political scientist at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. "I think if he'd lost here, he wouldn't have been able to challenge Ford all the way to the convention."

The Club went on to become one of the nation's most successful PACs — a pioneer in direct-mail fund-raising from a nationwide network of donors. Its trademark is campaigns built around hard-hitting television commercials that portray races as showdowns between conservatives and liberals.

The Club's finest hour came in 1984, when it engineered Helms' reelection victory over former two-term Gov. Jim Hunt after what observers called the year's nastiest and costliest Senate race.

In 1980, the Club plucked the late John East, a Helms protege, from obscurity and engineered his upset of Democratic Sen. Robert Morgan.

But the Club hasn't always won. In 1982 it backed several House candidates, all of whom lost.

Last year, the Club handpicked David Funderburk, former U.S. ambassador to Romania, to run for East's seat.

AIDS Class Plan Is Being Prepared

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — The proposed AIDS curriculum for North Carolina's public schools includes information about condoms as a protection against the fatal disease, a committee of the state Board of Education has been told.

The Program Committee, meeting during a retreat at a golf resort near Southern Pines Wednesday, will receive a final draft of the AIDS curriculum in November. The full board is slated to approve an AIDS curriculum in December.

If that schedule holds, AIDS-prevention classes will be offered in public schools by January.

Current sketches of the curriculum, which the General Assembly in July directed the state Department of Public Instruction to develop, include advising students to abstain from sexual intercourse and intravenous drug use, to maintain a monogamous relationship with an uninfected partner or to use condoms with sexual partners whose AIDS status is unknown.

The AIDS curriculum is targeted for the seventh grade, where courses about communicable diseases are taught. The first year, however, students in grades eight through 12 also will be offered AIDS-education classes so the program reaches all students.

Tar Heels To Launch POW-MIA Balloons

By The Associated Press
Three North Carolina residents, including a former Republican congressman, will go to Thailand in two weeks to float messages of humanity and appeals to greed across the Mekong River into Laos.

Former Rep. Bill Hendon of Asheville, Robin Bell of Fuquay-Varina and Bobby Bischoff of Wilson hope that posters promising a $2.4 million reward will entice some Asian to defect with a live American prisoner of war.

"We've been negotiating with Vietnam for two years and nothing's happened," Bischoff, the son of a serviceman missing in Laos, said. "We've got a bunch of bones we can't even identify."

"Every time we march, I get in front of the White House and I lose it," said Mrs. Bell, the daughter of a Green Beret missing in action in Laos since 1968. "This is supposed to be the greatest country in the world, yet I look down at my (POW-MIA) bracelets and I think about the people who still pay for our freedom."

The balloon launch and simultaneous advertisements of the reward in Southeast Asian publications will occur on Sept. 18, national Prisoner of War-Missing in Action Remembrance Day here.

Heading up the project is the American Defense Institute, a conservative organization in Washington that persuaded 21 members of Congress to pledge $100,000 each toward the reward fund.

A Case Of 'And' And 'Or'

GREENSBORO (AP) — The judge called it the case of the "catastrophic conjuncture."

What started out as a simple foreclosure on a house and 6.88 acres straddling the Randolph-Davidson County line has produced a six-year legal battle between property owners, bankers and lawyers and, as the judge put it, "utter chaos."

During the confusion, the occupants of the house lived there free.

And it all happened, U.S. District Court Judge Frank W. Bullock said, because someone typed the conjunction "and" instead of "or" on a mortgage document.

In a ruling this week, Bullock found that the property's rightful owner was Fleet Real Estate Funding Corp. of Columbia, S.C., the successor of the bank that issued a Veterans Administration mortgage eight years ago.

"I'm relieved we are finally going to be able to complete the foreclosure and get our money back," Jim Dodd, Fleet's general counsel, said.

The VA, which guaranteed the $45,900 mortgage, will decide whether to buy the property from Fleet, or let Fleet sell it, said John Whitley, the Charlotte attorney who represented Fleet in the lawsuit.

But even though Fleet won, "we lost," Whitley said. "We haven't had any interest payments for six years."

If there are winners, Whitley said, they are Charles Wayne and Deloris Rollins. They have lived in the house without making payments during much of the dispute, he said.

In his ruling, Bullock blamed the whole dispute on documents typed at the time the Rollinses bought the property in 1979. Since the tract lay in Davidson and Randolph counties, the person who typed the documents said that any foreclosure sale should be held in Davidson and Randolph counties.

Under state law, however, a foreclosure sale could be held in either county, Whitley said.

When the Rollinses stopped making mortgage payments in August 1980, Fayetteville attorney J. William Anderson arranged for the foreclosure sale to be held in Randolph County. But when Fleet tried to assign its $51,920 bid to the VA, the VA refused. It said the sale was faulty because it should have occurred in Randolph and Davidson counties.

Fleet found another attorney, W.J. Kellam Jr. of Charlotte, who tried to foreclose on the property in Davidson County in 1983. But the Clerk of Court there refused, saying the Randolph County sale was valid.

The dispute went to the N.C. Court of Appeals. A year later, it ruled that the mortgage had been paid off with the first foreclosure. But it didn't say who held title to the property.

The lawsuits started. Fleet sued the Rollinses, Anderson, Kellam and the VA. The Rollinses filed claims against Fleet, Anderson, Kellam and the VA.

This week, Bullock ruled that the first foreclosure sale was valid and that Fleet owned the property. He dismissed the rest of the claims and counterclaims.

L&M Stock

DURHAM (AP) — Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. says it wants to sell stock to the public for the first time seven years, possibly as soon as this month.

In papers filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Liggett said it wants to raise up to $69 million to pay banks debts and for other purposes. Liggett officials declined to elaborate.

The company said it would sell as many as 4.6 million shares — about 17 percent of its equity — at between $13 and $15 a share.

Liggett makes L&M, Chesterfield and generic cigarettes.

Democrats

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Seven Democratic presidential candidates plan to travel to High Point for a private state party fund-raiser following a forum in Chapel Hill next week, the party chairman says.

A dinner, scheduled for Sept. 11, will precede the party's daylong FunFair in High Point on Sept. 12. Both events will be held at the Market Square showroom complex.

The seven Democratic candidates expected Sept. 11 are former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, said party chairman Jim Van Hecke.

Simon and Biden won't be able to stay for the FunFair event on Sept. 12, Van Hecke said.

CAT Scores

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — State Board of Education officials released results Wednesday of California Achievement Tests showing that North Carolina students performed at or above the national average on the standardized exam, when it was given during the last school year.

The report, released at a meeting of the board's Program Committee, had a higher proportion of Tar Heel students scoring well above average than the national level.

In the total battery, covering all areas of the test, the state's second graders scored an average of 2.9, compared with the national average of 2.7. Each 10th of a percentage point represents a month's worth of learning. For a second grader, a score of 2.9 means the student is two months ahead of the national average in terms of learning.

Third graders in the state averaged 4.0 — or three months ahead of the national norm. Sixth graders scored 7.2, compared to a 6.7 national average. And eighth graders scored 9.0, compared with the national norm of 8.7.

Bond Reduced

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has reduced the cash bond for a Virginia woman charged in the 1984 slaying of her husband, but Donna Marie Arnold remained in the Sampson County Jail Wednesday under $300,000 bond.

Judge David E. Reid Jr. of Greenville reduced Mrs. Arnold's bond from $400,000 to $300,000 in cash. The $400,000 bond still stands for a secured, or property, bond, court officials said.

Ms. Arnold was arraigned in Sampson County Superior Court Monday on charges of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the July 18, 1984, stabbing and beating death of her husband, Dan Arnold Jr.

No Appeal

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Robert Hinton Jr. will not appeal a 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that upheld his conspiracy conviction, his attorney said.

Hinton, 38, is a former superintendent of the Piedmont Correctional Center near Salisbury. He is serving a six-year sentence at the federal prison in Big Spring, Texas, after being convicted in August 1986 of conspiring to violate an inmate's civil rights.

Prosecutors said that in 1981, Hinton ordered guards and officers at the prison to beat inmates to ensure discipline.

Leaving Board

DURHAM (AP) — L. Neil Williams, chairman of the Duke University trustees, said he would step down from his post in June.

Williams, 51, an Atlanta lawyer, has been chairman of the trustees for five years. Fitzgerald S. Hudson of Charlotte, who was elected vice chairman in May, would automatically replace Williams, but would have to be officially elected by the board in the spring.

Senate Panel Says White House Paper Distorted Profile Of Bork

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An analysis released today by the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee says the White House is conducting a "transparent effort" to make Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork appear as the ideological equivalent of retired Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr.

The report was requested by committee chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., and was written by two committee consultants. It is a broad attack on a White House position paper issued last July that glowingly extolled Bork's record as a federal appellate judge.

Biden, who has announced his opposition to Bork, called the White House account a distortion and said the committee report was attempting to "depict Judge Bork's record more fully and accurately."

Issued 12 days before the start of Bork's confirmation hearings before the Judiciary Committee, the analysis:

—Called Bork a pillar of "conservative activism" rather than "the apostle of judicial restraint and moderation described in the White House position paper."

—Said Bork rejected the right of citizens to be free from governmental interference in their private lives.

—Accused the nominee of attacking "virtually all" of the nation's basic antitrust laws.

—Accused Bork of favoring a narrowing of many First Amendment protections, favoring prior restraints on the press, limitations on release of information under the Freedom of Information Act, protection of only political speech but not artistic expression, and calling for reintroduction of some religion into public schools.

—Contended Bork opposed "virtually every major civil rights advance on which he has taken a position," including laws on public accommodations, open housing, restrictive covenants, literacy tests, poll taxes and affirmative action.

—Contended Bork would refuse to adhere to Supreme Court precedents, noting that he said the Supreme Court ruling granting a woman's right to abortion — Roe vs. Wade — was "by no means the only example of unconstitutional behavior by the Supreme Court."

At the heart of the new analysis is a rebuttal to the White House claim that Bork and Powell — the latter a respected conservative — agreed with each other in nine of 10 relevant cases that advanced from the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington to the Supreme Court.

Referring to the White House position paper, the new report said "it thus continues its transparent effort to depict Judge Bork as the ideological equivalent to the retired Lewis Powell. Such depiction has no basis in fact."

The Biden-released analysis said the White House "seriously misrepresents some of those cases," including a sexual harassment case in which the administration study portrayed the two men in agreement when they actually were on opposite sides.

"Furthermore, a careful analysis of the remaining cases cited by the (White House) position paper shows that Judge Bork and Justice Powell both wrote opinions in only two" of the cases cited.

Dust Storm Swirls Across Highway, 38 Cars Collide

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — At least 38 drivers blinded by a dust storm smashed into each other in two massive pileups on Interstate 5 that left one man dead and up to 26 people injured, authorities said.

"Motorists should have been able to see the storm before they entered it, but apparently they just went into it at 55 mph and hit cars that had stopped once inside," Highway Patrol dispatcher John Sanchez said today.

Patrol officers dispatched to a 21-car pileup Wednesday south of this Southern California city came upon the second accident involving at least 17 vehicles, including big-rig trucks, Sanchez said.

A 19-year-old Napa man was killed in the first accident and 12 people were taken to hospitals here, he said. The collision occurred in the northbound lanes of I-5 about 25 miles south of Bakersfield.

Fourteen people were hurt in the second accident, which occurred about five miles north of the first one.

The storm dissipated in about half an hour, the dispatcher said.

Teacher Strikes Idle 280,000 Students

By The Associated Press
State-mediated bargaining broke off in Detroit and school officials drafted a court order to force 11,500 striking teachers back to work as walkouts in five states affected more than 280,000 students today.

In all, 12,780 teachers were on strike in eight districts in Michigan, affecting 215,882 students, and walkouts disrupted classes in Idaho, Pennsylvania, Washington state and Ohio.

Police in North Ridgeville, Ohio, were investigating whether a teacher, Erla Brooks, 50, was intentionally struck by a car while picketing Wednesday at Lear North Elementary School. She was treated for injuries to her right leg.

Ed Progar, a spokesman for the North Ridgeville Education Association, said the car was driven by a strikebreaker.

One picket smashed a sign on top of a passing car as substitute teachers crossed picket lines on the first day of school in the 4,200-pupil district.

In Connecticut, the fourth faculty strike in 12 years at the University of Bridgeport ended after two days when a tentative settlement was reached Wednesday night.

The 220 unionized faculty members were expected to approve the three-year agreement, which calls for a raises ranging from 6 percent to 8 percent, and classes for 5,600 students were to resume today, said university spokesman Kenneth Best.

State-mediated bargaining broke off Wednesday afternoon in Detroit, where school officials were preparing a back-to-work request to be filed in Wayne County Circuit Court, district and union officials said.

By the time court closed Wednesday, the Detroit Federation of Teachers had received no notice that such a motion had been filed, said spokeswoman Lois Vagnozzi. She said talks were to resume today.

The district sought a back-to-work order when the Detroit Federation of Teachers last struck in 1982, said Ann Neydon, a lawyer for the union. But the judge instead ordered both sides to continue bargaining until they reached a settlement ending that 17-day walkout, she said.

Public employee strikes are illegal in Michigan.

Authors Say Presidents Too Often Choose 'Questionable' Physicians

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Presidents too often have chosen, on a whim, personal physicians who offered "questionable to downright incompetent" care, according to a new book that suggests upgrading the position and making it subject to Senate confirmation.

The authors, Dr. Edward B. McMahon, clinical assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at George Washington University medical school, and Washington journalist Leonard Curry, say the care President Reagan has received has "ranged from top-flight to questionable."

There have been three White House physicians since Reagan came to office: Dr. Daniel Ruge, a friend and colleague of first lady Nancy Reagan's stepfather, Dr. Loyal Davis; Dr. T. Burton Smith, a semiretired California urologist who had treated Reagan for prostate problems, and Army Col. John Hutton, a vascular surgeon.

The book, "Medical Cover-Ups in the White House," does not question their qualifications for the $72,300-a-year position, and notes that Ruge came to the post "after a distinguished career as a professor of neurosurgery."

But the authors do raise questions, which have been raised previously by cancer specialists, about why Reagan was not given a colonoscopy to check for colon cancer sooner after a small, benign, polyp was found in his colon in March 1985. The colonoscopy, which detected a larger, malignant tumor that was safely removed, took place in July 1985.

Going back in history, the authors report that Woodrow Wilson, who had high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis and may already have had a small stroke before he entered the White House, chose as his presidential physician a young Navy doctor who was attentive to his sister when she fell and cut her forehead during a post-inaugural luncheon.

The authors describe Cary Grayson as "a young physician whose social skills were far more adept than his medical ones," whose "formal medical education and experience hardly qualified him to safeguard the health of the world's most important political figure" seemed to notice his patient's serious health problems and that, when Wilson was incapacitated by a massive stroke, his wife and doctor collaborated in a cover-up that left the nation leaderless for months.

Curiously, when President Roosevelt was inaugurated in 1933, the person he turned to for advice on selecting a White House physician was the same Dr. Grayson, by now an admiral and still moving deftly through social Washington.

On Grayson's recommendation, Roosevelt chose Dr. Ross T. McIntire, who had been the admiral's assistant in the U.S. Naval Dispensary in Washington. McIntire was a lieutenant commander at the time, but he also rose swiftly to admiral.

"Unfortunately for the country, McIntire, like Grayson before him, failed to treat effectively or to report publicly on the devastating effects of the president's arteriosclerosis," the authors say.

Warren G. Harding chose as his White House physician a homeopathic practitioner, Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, who was treating his wife for a kidney problem. Homeopathy is a system of treatment that uses small doses of substances which, in massive doses, would produce symptoms like those of the disease. It was not held in high esteem in medical circles in the 1920s and is considered without merit by most authorities today. Sawyer failed to observe obvious signs of the advanced heart disease that led to Harding's death, the authors say.

The writers also say James A. Garfield probably would have survived an assassin's bullet if his doctors had bandaged him up and left him alone, but they introduced infection while probing for the bullet with their fingers.

They report that Grover Cleveland underwent major surgery aboard a yacht in New York harbor in order to conceal from the public, Congress and most of his cabinet the fact that he was ill.

They credit President Eisenhower's doctors and his press secretary, James T. Hagerty, with a dramatic move toward openness about the president's health, but say that President Kennedy's Addison's disease was consistently concealed from the public.

The book suggests legislation under which the president would nominate a qualified physician for the post. Unlike other White House officials, this physician would be subject to confirmation by the Senate.

"As presently structured, the position imposes divided loyalties on the individual filling it," the writers say of the presidential physician. "As a doctor, he is likely to feel that his first loyalty is to his patient."

"Most important, the statute governing the position would spell out clearly that the White House physician's first loyalty, like all other federal officials, is to the Constitution, an edict that we can be sure the nominee would be reminded of during confirmation hearings."

SAFETY DESIGN PAYING OFF

The safety benefits derived from the lap belts have been dramatic. It is estimated that they reduce injury to drivers by 40 to 50% and to the right seat passenger by 30 to 40%. The use of belts also decreases the probability that an occupant will sustain any injury at all during an accident. When shoulder belts are used with lap belts, incidence of injuries is 10% less than with lap belts alone.

The energy absorbing steering column, designed to dissipate energy that would have been absorbed by the driver's chest during front-end collisions has reduced serious and fatal injuries by 5 to 10%.

Head restraints have reduced the possibility of injury to front-seat occupants by 2 or 3%. Reports indicate that women derive more benefit from head restraints since they are most susceptible to neck injury. Although, it was found that 70 to 80% of head restraints were positioned incorrectly. Proper adjustment would increase the effectiveness greatly.

Minister Subpoenaed

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A California minister who helped negotiate a settlement for Jessica Hahn says he will appear as a government witness before a grand jury investigating PTL founder Jim Bakker.

John Stewart said Wednesday he has been subpoenaed to appear Sept. 21 in Charlotte before the federal grand jury investigating the television evangelist and his associates.

Paul Roper, the Anaheim, Calif., businessman who represented Hahn in the settlement negotiations, also has been subpoenaed to appear that same day, Stewart said.

The 35-year-old Orange, Calif., Christian radio talk show host and law school professor has written a book titled "Holy War" — an inside account of the events that led to Bakker's resignation and the ensuing battle over PTL.

He wrote the draft lawsuit that Roper sent to PTL on Ms. Hahn's behalf in early 1985. The document alleged that Ms. Hahn had been assaulted and emotionally damaged by Bakker.

Bakker resigned in March after acknowledging he had a sexual encounter with Ms. Hahn in 1980 and that payments were made to silence her. He has refused to answer questions about whether he, PTL or someone else paid the money.

Stewart said Wednesday he expects to testify about his knowledge of settlement negotiations and thinks investigators may use him to help chronicle the events that led to the settlement.

Stewart said IRS and postal investigators questioned him at his home for about two hours Aug. 25.

"They wanted to know what my involvement has been — how much I know and what I know," Stewart said. "They came away thinking I had been helpful in putting things in perspective."

Federal investigators are trying to find out if Bakker and his former top aides broke any laws by raising money for one purpose and using it for another.

Life Expectancy Goes Up, Birth Rate At Record Low

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer Americans are being born today, but those who are arriving can look forward to the longest lives ever, according to new government calculations.

Life expectancy climbed to a record high last year, while at the same time the nation's fertility rate fell to an all-time low, the National Center for Health Statistics reported Wednesday.

Marriages and divorces, meanwhile, fell to the lowest level in a decade.

The center reported that life expectancy for Americans born in 1986 reached a new record high of 74.9 years, up from 74.7 years reported in 1985.

The highest life expectancy was 78.9 years for white females, up from 78.7 a year earlier. White males saw an increase from 71.8 to 72.0 years, according to the center, a part of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Its annual summary of national vital statistics added that for blacks, men's life expectancy rose from 65.3 years to 65.5, but women's declined from 73.7 to 73.6.

Meanwhile, the center reported that total births were down slightly, to 3,731,000 babies nationwide, compared with 3,749,000 in 1985.

That represented 64.9 live births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44, 2 percent below last year and "the lowest rate ever recorded in the United States."

The drop follows the trend of recent years, as many young people have postponed marriage and families to pursue education and careers.

There have been some years in which total births rose, but the fertility rate fell because of the growing number of women in the age group most likely to have children.

Now, however, those women are moving into the older parts of that group and total births also have started to fall, the statistics indicate.

Sexual scientists have debated in recent years whether declining fertility rates represent merely a delay in having children or a decision not to have families, something that only time will disclose as the children of the post-World War II baby boom pass through their prime childbearing years.

Trends in the number of annual births are affected by two factors: the rate of births among women and the number of women in the childbearing ages.

The number of women aged 15 to 44 increased 1 percent between 1985 and 1986, but the bulk of that was among women aged 30 and over, where birth rates tend to be lower. The number of women aged 15 to 29 declined by 1 percent.

The Census Bureau has projected that the total number of women in the prime childbearing ages will remain substantially the same through the remainder of this decade.

But their age structure is expected to shift more toward the older segment of that group, as the smaller group of women born in the late 1960s and early 1970s matures.

Thus, declines in total births will occur unless birth rates rise among these women.

Turning to marriages, the center reported 2,400,000 in 1986, down about 25,000 from 1985.

That represents a national marriage rate of 10.0 per 1,000 people, down from 10.2 a year earlier and the lowest rate since 1977 when it was 9.9.

The all-time high marriage rate occurred in the boom immediately following the return of the soldiers after World War II, when 1946 recorded 16.4 marriages per 1,000 people. The bottom was in the Depression year of 1932, with 7.9.

There were 1,159,000 divorces last year, down from 1,187,000 a year earlier. That represented a drop from 5.0 divorces per 1,000 to 4.8 last year.

That is the lowest divorce rate since 1975 when it was also 4.8. The record high divorce rate was in 1979 at 5.3.

The study also reported a total of 2,099,000 deaths last year, the most ever recorded in a single year. With an aging population, the nation has set records for total deaths in the last several years.

However, the size of the overall population also is growing, so the rate of death declined — 870.8 deaths per 100,000 people last year, down from 874.8 the year before.

Pilot Hangs Out Door For Landing

By DENISE LAYFIELD
Associated Press Writer
PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — A commuter pilot was partially sucked out of his plane and clung to a door for about 10 minutes but was saved after the co-pilot landed the craft, an airline spokesman said.

In other incidents Wednesday, two jets carrying a total of 308 passengers made emergency landings after a bomb threat in northern California and a warning light indicated an engine fire in Florida, officials said.

A jetliner with 131 people aboard was evacuated in Chicago after an overheated air conditioner gave off smoke.

In Maine, Eastern Express pilot Henry Dempsey, 45, of Cape Elizabeth, suffered only cuts and bruises and was treated at a hospital and released, said Steven Mason, sales manager for the airline.

The accident occurred Wednesday evening during a flight without passengers from Lewiston to Boston, officials said.

The pilot hung "partially in the aircraft and partially out," for about 10 minutes before the plane, a Beechcraft 99, landed at Portland International Jetport, Mason said.

Mason said the two-man crew heard a rattling sound toward the rear of the plane, which can seat 15 people. Dempsey turned control of the plane over to the co-pilot and went to investigate, Mason said.

"While inspecting the rear airstair door, the door came ajar and the captain struggled to secure it," Mason said. "The first officer maintained control and brought the aircraft into Portland."

He said the co-pilot, whose name was not released, could not see what was happening in the rear of the plane.

"He assumed the worst. He did not know what the situation was other than the captain did not return and the door was ajar," said Mason. He said the plane is nonpressurized and typically flies at an altitude of 4,000 feet.

A jetport official who wouldn't give his name said the plane landed with Dempsey still clinging to the stairs just inches above the ground.

Mason said an inspection of the door and latch indicated no equipment failure. The plane was flown to a maintenance yard in Bangor for further inspection, he said.

The northern California incident involved an American Airlines DC-10 flying from Dallas to San Francisco, which was diverted to Stockton Metropolitan Airport after a crew member found a handwritten bomb threat in a bathroom, said airline spokesman Tom Schwartz.

All 276 passengers and 13 crew members were evacuated through emergency exits. No bomb was found, Schwartz said.

The FBI questioned passengers for about four hours, then allowed them to board buses for San Francisco, about 90 minutes away.

In Florida, an American Airlines 727-200 with 32 passengers and a crew of six made a safe emergency landing after the pilot reported an engine fire, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The passengers and crew of the flight en route to Tampa from Nashville, Tenn., and Milwaukee were evacuated by emergency chute when the plane landed at Tampa International Airport, said airline spokesman John Hotard.

Two passengers were slightly injured. A warning light in the cockpit indicated a possible fire in one engine while the plane was on approach, but controllers in the tower saw no flames or smoke, said Hotard.

"It appears at this point it was a faulty warning light," said Al Becker, another airline spokesman.

In Chicago, smoke from the overheated air conditioner forced the evacuation of 124 passengers and seven crew members from a United Airlines DC-8 at O'Hare International Airport shortly after the aircraft left the passenger terminal, said airline spokesman Matt Goring.

DOT Says New Rules Will Force Airlines To Keep Time Schedule

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Airlines with chronically late flights should be nudged into improving their service under a new rule requiring them to disclose what their performance record has been, an assistant transportation secretary said today.

The major airlines by the end of the year will begin making on-time performance information available to the government and travel agents.

If a carrier's record shows that a flight arrives on schedule 15 percent or 20 percent of the time, travelers will "vote with their ticket," Assistant Transportation Secretary Matthew Scocozza said today on CBS-TV.

"And the airlines are going to improve their on-time performance by improving their scheduling, by more accurately reflecting when they intend to arrive as opposed to just scheduling their times at the most popular times of the day, even when they don't have an expectancy of arriving on time," Scocozza said.

The Transportation Department announced the new reporting requirements Wednesday, but critics in Congress and at least one airline said the rule falls short of what consumers need.

Under the new requirements, 14 of the biggest airlines will have to provide flight delay information as well as their record on lost baggage to the department each month. The percentage of on-time arrivals for each flight also must be included in the computer reservation systems used by most travel agents.

"We believe that disclosure of this information will help reduce consumer frustration with airline delays," Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said.

The ability of customers to compare on-time records should make airlines "more responsive to consumers and give them additional incentives to compete on the basis of better performance," she said.

But the department's actions received mixed reviews in Congress, where critics of airline performance said they intend to press ahead on aviation consumer protection legislation later this month.

Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., chairman of the House aviation subcommittee, called the Transportation Department's disclosure rule a "half-hearted solution" with a "total lack of teeth" that would not force airlines to cut delays and improve service.

There also was criticism that the reporting requirements were limited to too few flights, those in and out of 27 airports with at least 1 percent of the country's total passenger traffic. Flights from such cities as Cincinnati, Baltimore or Kansas City, all hubs for major airlines, were excluded, for example.

Continental Airlines said in a statement that it plans to file a petition asking that the requirement be expanded to include the entire air travel system. The airline said it would include system-wide information in its filings with the government.

Under the rule, a delay would be counted if a flight's departure or arrival is at least 15 minutes later than scheduled. Delays caused by mechanical problems would not have to be reported. Mrs. Dole said such delays were exempted out of concern that pressure to report them might cause maintenance to be postponed and raise safety concerns.

While the rule requires that travel agents and airline ticket clerks have the information available, they are not required to provide it to customers except upon request.

The rules require that airlines provide for each flight a single-digit code in the computerized reservation system that shows the flight's on-time record. For example, a number "8" next to the flight would indicate that the flight had arrived within 15 minutes of its scheduled arrival time between 80 percent and 89.9 percent of the time, officials said.

The Transportation Department also will distribute to the news media and anyone else that makes a request monthly summaries of the airlines' on-time performance as well as record on lost baggage.

The airlines agreed to cooperate.

Protesters Storm Campus After Train Hits Activist

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — A mob of 400 people, angered about an antiwar demonstrator's maiming by a munitions train, stormed a ROTC building, smashing windows and defacing walls, police said.

No arrests were made in the demonstration by chanting protesters Wednesday night at the University of California at Berkeley, said Tom Debley, university spokesman. The crowd dispersed after about two hours.

The activist — who lost his legs protesting U.S. arms shipments to Central America at a Navy weapons depot — got a phone call in the hospital from Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega expressing sympathy, his wife said.

Demonstrators smashed two windows and damaged the front door of Callaghan Hall, headquarters of the University of California ROTC, said Berkeley police Lt. D. Butler.

Several protesters ran through the halls; others surrounded the building, police said. Slogans protesting U.S. support of Nicaragua's Contra rebels also were spray-painted inside and out, authorities said.

"They are angry at over what was done" to the activist, 46-year-old Vietnam veteran S. Brian Willson, said Tanya Brannan, a spokeswoman for the protesters.

Leaflets were distributed throughout Berkeley earlier in the day urging people to gather about a half-mile from Callaghan Hall to march against Contra aid and Willson's maiming, which they alleged was intentional.

The Reagan administration is supporting Contra rebels who are trying to overthrow Nicaragua's Sandinista government, which Ortega heads. Willson was struck and dragged 25 feet by a train at the U.S. Naval Weapons Station here Tuesday as his wife and stepson looked on in horror.

U.S. Rep. George Miller said the station commander told him Wednesday that a security worker had determined that there were no protesters on the track and that it was safe to send a train through.

Earlier Wednesday, somber demonstrators returned to the blood-spattered tracks where Willson was injured. Witnesses denounced the Navy and law enforcement authorities for not stopping the locomotive and two cars.

Willson's wife of 11 days, Holly Rauen, said that Ortega called Wednesday morning at John Muir Hospital. There was no immediate confirmation from Nicaragua.

Willson was listed in serious but stable condition today at John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek, Calif., where one leg was amputated below the knee and a skull fracture was repaired. Willson's other leg was severed by the train.

"He has no memory whatever of the train hitting him or of even being there," said Michael Kroll, a friend who was standing behind Willson when he was hit.

"There was a crack in his skull that you could see," said Kroll.

Ms. Rauen said Ortega, whose leftist government is fighting the U.S.-supported Contra rebels, talked to someone in Willson's room who speaks Spanish.

Willson, a Vietnam veteran who last year participated in a 47-day fast on the Capitol steps, had been at the base to begin a 40-day fast.

HAITIANS INTERCEPTED — About 230 Haitian refugees found jammed aboard a 45-foot sailboat, at left, gather on an island about 30 miles west of Great Exuma Island in the Bahamas Wednesday. The U.S. Coast Guard moved the refugees to the island, and then sent food and a doctor to assist them. A Coast Guard cutter was en route to the island today to pick up the refugees, who were expected to be sent back to Haiti. (AP Laser-photo)

Korean Strikers Take Over Largest Shipyard

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Thousands of striking workers today occupied the nation's largest shipyard, set fire to cars and battled riot police following the death of a fellow striker.

In eastern South Korea, meanwhile, authorities said today that 105 striking coal miners were arrested in Jungnam after a clash Wednesday with riot police. Police fired tear gas to disperse the strikers, who had occupied a mine.

In Seoul, a leader of striking taxi drivers was reported to occupy a nearby hotel owned by Hyundai but were driven back by riot police firing tear gas. Riot police units surrounded the hotel, where a number of foreign business executives were staying.

Angry workers set fire to two cars and a bus and blocked the six-lane highway in front of the shipyard. "Raise our pay," the workers chanted.

One Hyundai striker was killed and four injured Wednesday night when they were hit by a truck while trying to block traffic outside the stadium, police said. The driver was arrested, police said. The striker was the second reported killed in two months of labor unrest.

The prosecutor general's office in Seoul today ordered police to find and arrest strikers who attacked Ulsan's city hall and set fire to a government garage and cars Wednesday night.

A special unit of 40 detectives was rushed from the capital to Ulsan to hunt for strikers who staged the attack, officials said.

About 15,000 Hyundai shipyard workers marched through the city Wednesday behind 80 bulldozers, trucks and forklifts after walking off the job. The workers staged a sit-down strike outside the city hall for about four hours before withdrawing to the sports stadium.

Workers struck the Hyundai shipyard after wage talks collapsed early Wednesday morning. The walkout was a major blow to government mediation efforts. Last month, officials persuaded Hyundai workers and management to end a strike and lockout and return to work while talks continued.

The giant conglomerate has 11 plants in Ulsan, but only the shipyard workers are on strike. Strikes at seven of the Hyundai facilities have been settled and work is continuing at three others while talks are under way.

Hundreds of striking auto workers at Daewoo Motor's assembly plant outside Seoul continued to occupy the facility after clashing with riot police the night before. The workers have been on strike since Aug. 26.

Seoul city officials said the number of striking taxi drivers had risen to 15,300, an increase of about 5,000 drivers since the strike began Tuesday. The strikers account for about 37 percent of the capital's 41,225 taxi drivers.

A city official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the number of strikers had increased because militant drivers were forcing others to stop work.

Police said two drivers had been charged for assaulting non-striking workers. They said there had been dozens of reports of strikers attacking non-striking drivers and their passengers.

Most workers involved in labor disputes in South Korea are seeking pay raises, shorter working hours and more rights. Before President Chun Doo-hwan agreed to democratic reforms in June, following weeks of protests, the government had strictly controlled labor and strikes were virtually outlawed.

The leaders of the governing Democratic Justice Party and the main opposition Reunification Democratic Party agreed during talks in Seoul on Wednesday that management and labor should resolve the strikes without government intervention.

Democratic Justice Party President Roh Tae-woo and Reunification Democratic Party leader Kim Young-sam also agreed to sponsor legislation to increase workers' rights.

Filipino Rebels Kill 30 Police, Soldiers In Raids

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist rebels killed 30 police and soldiers following a guerrilla call to exploit disarray caused by last week's failed coup attempt against President Corason Aquino.

A spokesman for the nation's largest Moslem rebel group, meanwhile, said he supported the renegade soldiers who organized the coup bid, and praised them for trying to "defeat a common enemy ... the Philippine government."

Dissatisfaction within the military over the continuing Communist insurgency and Mrs. Aquino's peace overtures to Moslem rebels were cited by some of the renegades as motives for the coup attempt.

In another development, Mrs. Aquino said in a speech today that the mutiny Friday was not unusual in a country that had gone "from dictatorship to a democracy," and she vowed to unite the nation.

Mrs. Aquino was swept to power in a civilian-military uprising in February 1986. Then-President Ferdinand Marcos, who had ruled 20 years, fled to Hawaii.

The president said she was convinced she survived the bloody coup attempt, in which at least 53 people were killed, because of God and the power of prayer. Last week, she said mutineers aimed to kill her and her family.

Loyal troops, backed by helicopters, are searching for coup leader Col. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan and remnants of his rebel force in provinces immediately north and west of the capital.

The military today said at least 46 people have been killed in attacks by Communist guerrillas since the mutiny, including 30 soldiers and police slain in the previous 24 hours.

It said 21 soldiers were killed and five wounded Wednesday when Communist New Peoples Army rebels ambushed a patrol in Quezon province, 40 miles east of Manila. Also Wednesday, six police and four rebels were killed when guerrillas raided the town hall at Gonzaga in Cagayan province 260 miles north of Manila. Rebels shot and killed three police officers in Pampanga province north of the capital.

The other 16 deaths were reported earlier following Communist raids in the provinces of Isabela and Negros Occidental.

Habib Hashim, spokesman for the Moro National Liberation Front, the largest Moslem rebel group, said by telephone from Islamabad, Pakistan, that soldiers should back the mutineers "to restore freedom and justice for all."

Spanish Newspaper Reports Waite Dead

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A Spanish newspaper said hostage negotiator Terry Waite had a heart attack and died in an Iranian prison camp last week, but Anglican Church spokesmen said they believed the report was not true.

In a Madrid-dated story, El Pais, Spain's leading daily, quoted Iranian military sources as saying the Anglican Church envoy had been sent to Salehabad camp near Qom after disappearing in Beirut January 20.

There have been dozens of conflicting and unconfirmed reports about Waite's whereabouts and fate since he disappeared in Beirut in January.

El Pais quoted the sources as saying the 47-year-old Waite died in the camp of a heart attack and his body was flown back to Beirut in a coffin aboard an Iranian aircraft. Anglican Church spokesmen in England said Wednesday they are convinced Waite is alive.

Waite, the official envoy of Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, vanished from sight while on his fifth mission seeking freedom for foreign hostages held by pro-Iranian Lebanese groups. There has been no word from him since January.

The British Broadcasting Corp. reported from Iran a week ago that a high Iranian official had said Waite was alive and well in captivity in Lebanon.

The Kuwait News Agency reported Tuesday that Waite was expected to be freed by mid-September. A Foreign Office spokesman in London discounted the report as "unsubstantiated."

U.S. Congressmen See Soviet Test Of Detection Procedures

MOSCOW (AP) — In an exercise designed to show modern technology can detect small nuclear blasts, Soviet scientists and U.S. congressmen witnessed a chemical explosion and planned to check machines that measured it miles away.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said the 10-ton non-nuclear explosion occurred Wednesday in a remote area of the southeast republic of Kazakhstan.

The international group that observed the underground test planned to travel today to seismic stations located up to 390 miles away to check how well the instruments picked up the explosion.

Tass, which did not say what time the blast occurred, reported: "The soil shuddered and one had the sensation of losing one's balance." It said the three congressmen and 20 Soviet and foreign journalists stood 1,000 feet away.

The demonstration blast follows a recent Kremlin offer to let the United States detonate its own underground nuclear device beneath Soviet soil and to accept a U.S. method of monitoring such tests.

Although the Kremlin has been campaigning for a total ban on nuclear testing, President Reagan has refused, saying the United States needs to catch up with Soviet nuclear weapons technology.

The Americans who traveled to the test range near Semipalatinsk to witness the first of three planned explosions included Democratic U.S. Reps. Thomas Downey of New York, Robert Carr of Michigan and James Moody of Wisconsin.

The witnesses also included four congressional staff members and a technical expert from the Natural Resources Defense Council, a private environmental group.

In June, council scientists established three joint Soviet-U.S. seismic stations near the test range in a private project aimed at showing that compliance with a testing moratorium could be verified.

Parents, Teachers Survey Says

Children Would Do Better If Not Left Alone After School

By PHYLLIS MESSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A parent-teacher survey says a majority believe students would do better in the classroom if adults did not leave the youngsters alone so much after school.

The parents and teachers also agreed in the survey by Louis Harris and Associates Inc. that parents should discipline children more and work harder to motivate them to learn in school.

Parents and teachers offered similar suggestions for improving education, such as parental limits on television watching until homework is finished and increased parental efforts to back up the work of the schools. A majority of parents said they also favor after-school programs.

The survey of 1,000 teachers and 2,000 parents, sponsored by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was released Wednesday. It was conducted last May and June.

"There's no way to conclude that this survey will cause a big movement of women back to the home," Harris told reporters. "That battle has been lost."

Harris said the survey showed there is a need for "not just day care, but a whole support system," and that some type of non-required, after-school activity should be made available. The schools, he said, seem to be the logical place for that.

The survey found 41 percent of the parents surveyed said they leave their children on their own between the end of school and 5:30 p.m. at least once a week. Almost a quarter left them alone during the period every day.

The poll found that the situation occurs at all economic levels and in all parts of the country.

Asked to rank seven possible causes of student difficulties in school, 51 percent of the teachers picked "children who are left on their own after school." Poverty at home was cited by 47 percent; automatic promotion of teachers, 44 percent; teachers' failure to adapt to individual student needs, 43 percent; single-parent families, 42 percent; "boring" curriculum, 34 percent; and families where both parents work full-time, 25 percent.

Both parents and teachers were asked about some common criticisms of parents.

Sixty-two percent of the teachers and 59 percent of the parents agreed that parents leave their children alone too much after school; 51 percent of teachers and 58 percent of parents said mothers and fathers fail to discipline their children. About half of each group faulted parents for neglecting to make sure homework was done and for not showing enough interest in their children's education.

In addition, the poll showed that morale is up among the teachers surveyed, with younger instructors saying they are less tempted to defect to other careers.

The percentage of teachers saying they were satisfied with their jobs rose in the past year from 81 percent to 85 percent, while the proportion indicating they were likely to leave the profession within five years fell from 27 percent to 22 percent.

Only 20 percent of those with less than five years experience said they expected to switch careers, down from 39 percent in a 1986 Harris survey.

"I suspect the improvement comes from teachers' optimism about reform measures in the states," Harris said. "Education is the front and center business of state government these days."

Harris surveyed teachers and parents at random by telephone. The poll has a margin of error of between two and three percentage points.

Asked what might improve education, 88 percent of the parents and 77 percent of the teachers said the schools should notify parents immediately about any problems involving their children. Seventy-nine percent of the parents and 80 percent of the teachers said parents should limit television until all work is done, while 70 percent of the parents and 84 percent of the teachers said parents should spend more time with their children in support of the school and teachers.

Sixty-two percent of the parents said they would take advantage of an educational after-school program for their children, and 75 percent said they would use a non-educational program.

Fifty-five percent of teachers said at times they have felt uneasy or reluctant to approach a parent to talk about a student.

Of course, the music should be pleasant, at a reasonable volume, and most important, the call should be handled as quickly as possible. — ED MILLER, EDMONDS, WASH.

DEAR ED: My mail is running 2-to-1 in favor of music instead of dead air when the caller is put on hold — and for precisely the reasons you mentioned.

DEAR ABBY: If you can stand one more letter about snakes, hear this: I used to be terrified of snakes. If I saw one out of its cage, I'd get hysterical.

Then one day while shopping in a gift shop on Maui, I saw some life-sized stuffed "cobras" in a basket. After recovering from my phobic reaction, I realized that here was an opportunity to conquer my irrational fear of snakes, so I bought a stuffed cobra, took it home and placed it right next to my computer station where I sit for eight hours a day.

Abby, after a few days, I actually began to like that snake! I put a bonnet on it and he looked kind of cute. A

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Troubled," whose mother made her take piano lessons, but she saw no point to it: Don't give up! I'm 14, and I've been taking piano lessons since I was 7. There were plenty of times when I thought it was stupid and wanted to quit, but my parents made me stick to it.

Because I knew music, I joined band (clarinet) four years ago, and it came easy to me. Band also helped my piano a lot. Also, whenever they need someone to play the xylophone, chimes or bells in band, they can count on me.

My friends are always asking me to play piano for them and I love doing it. And you wouldn't believe how many of them say they wish they hadn't quit piano.

I would have quit, too, if I didn't have caring parents who wouldn't let me. Thanks, guys! — LUCKY IN PONTIAC, MICH.

DEAR LUCKY: I've said this before, and it bears repeating: Many have written to say they're sorry they quit taking music lessons, but not one person ever wrote to say that he or she was glad they quit.

concealed lights in the ceiling that bathe paintings with a specific kind of illumination, or the up-lighting hidden behind a plant to cast lacy shadows on the ceiling and walls. Candles on the dining room table fit into this category.

"Think about lighting as three zones within a room: above your head, at eye level and below the knees," Saladino said, and added of ambient light, "Lighting should never confront you; it should be hidden and beautifully orchestrated. The first task in designing a lighting plan is to conceal the source of light."

He says those whose taste is modern can rely on ceiling down-lights, or they can conceal lighting in coves and behind moldings.

Finally there is art light — built-in Lighting a living room does not mean just buying a few lamps — it is the complex orchestration of levels and kinds of light.

There are three spheres of light in a room, according to an article by designer John F. Saladino in the current issue of House Beautiful, and lamps provide only one of them.

The first of the three spheres of lighting is ambient light that illuminates the interior — the architecture — of a room and makes you aware of the shape and dimensions of a space.

Work light is the second kind — the light you read and sew by. This is what lamps supply.

Caller Hears Music Instead Of Nothing

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "No Music, Please" complained about hearing music when his telephone calls were put on hold. We've tried it both ways in our small business with three lines, and found that music — at least lets the caller know that he has not been disconnected when all the lines are busy. Before we added music, we got a number of callbacks from angry customers claiming we'd hung up on them.

DEAR ED: My mail is running 2-to-1 in favor of music instead of dead air when the caller is put on hold — and for precisely the reasons you mentioned.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Troubled," whose mother made her take piano lessons, but she saw no point to it: Don't give up! I'm 14, and I've been taking piano lessons since I was 7. There were plenty of times when I thought it was stupid and wanted to quit, but my parents made me stick to it.

STRONG BONES

ATLANTA (AP) — There are things people can do to slow down or prevent osteoporosis, a disease that causes bones to weaken and break more easily with age, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

It recommends the following measures to help people under the age of 40 build strong bones and slow down the rate of eventual bone loss:

- Include four servings from the dairy food group in your diet each day.
- Avoid smoking.
- Avoid heavy alcohol use.
- Get regular, weight-bearing exercise, such as walking.

The rate of bone loss increases rapidly after menopause for women and, depending on the circumstances, doctors may recommend estrogen to slow down such loss.

Short Men Are Today's Sexiest

At Wits End
Erma Bombeck

One of the great social problems of our times, that could change the course of our society as we know it, came to television this year.

Remember when someone tried to set you up with a blind date and the first words were, "How tall is he (she)?"

The guy could have been a barn burner, had one tooth and the brain of a food processor, but if he was tall, hey, he was worth a shot.

Well, this year on "L.A. Law," a man actually has a relationship with a woman 1 1/2 inches taller than he is. And it's NOT a comedy. Is history being made here or what!

Maybe we have come some distance since Alan Ladd (5-foot-4) made love to Sophia Loren (5-foot-8) while he was balancing on a crate and she was standing in a trench.

We all got caught up in the myth that tallness was crucial. I'm short. I could have worn heels with Toulouse-Lautrec, but do you think I'd be caught dead with someone my size?

Tall meant sexy, athletic, and someone who wore clothes well. Short meant stocky, impish, and someone with a nice personality you fixed up your friend with.

I can remember a good friend of mine who was considering marrying a guy who was an inch or so shorter than she was. A group of us who cared deeply for her took her aside and pleaded, "For God's sake, Carol, do you want to go through the rest of your life wearing ballet slippers that make your ankles look thick?"

In Ralph Keyes' book, "The Height of Your Life," he wrote that a study of men's annual salaries actually found an apparent $500-per-inch height bonus in the range between 5-foot-6 and 6-foot-3. Face it, women were programmed to look up to men. If they looked up and saw blue sky, they'd never respect him in the morning.

Male shortness has never been an easy road. It has been paved with ignorance, prejudice, myth and stereotypes. I doubt if there's a person alive today who cannot recall where he was and what he was doing the day he found out Paul Newman was short.

Oh, there were a few breakthroughs when the late Grace Kelly towered over Prince Rainier and Lisa Halaby topped King Hussein, but everyone rationalized royalty didn't have to live by society's rules.

The irony of it all is that short men are today's sexiest men. No woman stands so tall as when she leans over to kiss Michael J. Fox. There are no "lifts" in Woody Allen's tennis shoes. And if Robert Redford is a troll, I couldn't care less.

Jill Eikenberry and Michael Tucker of "L.A. Law," who are husband and wife in real life, have given new meaning to role reversals.

As for me, Dudley Moore can slow dance with his head on my shoulder for as long as he wants ... or until my husband cuts in.

WHO ME? — Two-year-old Amy Harris is not exactly thrilled about her mother's suggestion of sliding down a sliding board at Cleveland Park in Spartanburg, S.C. (AP Laserphoto)

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

LANDSCAPE ART

BOSTON (AP) — The first major international loan show in more than 35 years to review the full achievement of 17th-century Dutch landscape painting is scheduled to open at the Museum of Fine Arts here Feb. 3, 1988.

Presenting 100 masterpieces by more than 40 artists, the exhibition will include all of the key figures. These include Hendrick Avercamp, Jan van Goyen, Rembrandt, Jacob van Ruisdael, Aelbert Cuyp and Meindert Hobbema.

"Masters of 17th Century Dutch Landscape Painting" will remain on view through May 1.

Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 57.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson closed; Wilson 56.75. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 49.00; Wallace 49.00; Spivey's Corner 49.00; Rowland 49.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. Too few loads offered have been confirmed. The market is steady and the live supply is barely adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 2,095,000, compared to 1,977,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 2 cents higher at mostly 1.55-1.68 in East and mostly 1.78-1.92 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly 3 cents to 7 cents higher at mostly 5.11-5.35 in East and mostly 4.91-5.10 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 2.45-2.60; new crop soybeans 4.71-5.11. Exchange rates for P.I.K. certificates were steady to 1 percent higher and ranged from 105 to 110 percent of face value.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rallied today as interest rates steadied after Wednesday's sharp rise.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, down 120 points in the past five sessions, recovered 15.15 to 2,617.19 in the first half hour of trading today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by nearly 3 to 1 in the overall count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 836 up, 289 down and 424 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 23.37 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Interest rates on long-term Treasury bonds, which hit their highest levels since early 1986 in Wednesday's session, dropped back a bit today.

Analysts said that provided the spark for renewed buying interest in the stock market.

America actively traded blue chips, American Express rose 3/8 to 36 1/2; General Electric 3/8 to 60 1/2; American Telephone & Telegraph 3/8 to 33 1/2, and Philip Morris 1 to 11 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained .95 to 181.07. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .84 at 358.55.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average closed with an 8.93 loss at 2,602.04.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by nearly 3 to 1 on the NYSE, with 422 up, 1,210 down and 372 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 199.94 million shares, against 193.45 million in the previous session.

Sale Investigated

The courthouse would house the register of deeds, clerk of court, district attorney, courts and judicial facilities, and the trial court administrator, while the Shore Drive building at the intersection of Evans and Second streets could house community service, probation and parole, the public defender and juvenile court counselors.

The Internal Revenue Service building at the intersection of First and Evans streets could house agricultural extension, while the Barclays Bank building at the intersection of Second and Washington streets could house the development commission offices.

Commissioner Gene James suggested that the second option — keeping the present county office building and asking the board of education to move — would be the least expensive.

"The school are taking up about 50 percent of the usable space in this building," Jackson said.

"We need to make contact with the appropriate agencies — the schools, the hospital and medical school — before we make a decision," Commissioner Charles Gaskins suggested.

Jackson agreed. "The next step" is to arrange a meeting with hospital and medical school officials to "see if there is interest, find out their wishes, plans (and) set some date (for a purchase) ... just for the sake of county planning."

And Gaskins suggested that the sale of the school bus garage property should "be done for the public good."

Pack QB Decision Still Not Made

From Staff and Wire Reports

RALEIGH — Shane Montgomery and Preston Poag will probably share the quarterback duties when North Carolina State meets East Carolina in their college football opener Saturday night. But it remains a mystery which of the two will take the field first.

Second-year coach Dick Sheridan tells reporters he knows who would start if the game were tonight. He's not saying anything beyond that, however.

"They know that, together, they've got to get the job done there, and I really believe in them," Sheridan said. "I've got a lot of confidence in them."

East Carolina coach Art Baker said he had seen both quarterbacks, Montgomery and Poag, on film from the spring and that he was impressed.

"I noticed on his depth chart, that either Montgomery or Poag may start," Baker said. "I think they can both do the things that Dick Sheridan likes to do on offense."

Quarterback isn't the only gap Sheridan needs to fill as he tries to duplicate last year's 8-2-1 regular season record. Because it is the so-called glamour position, it has gained the most attention.

Sheridan is trying to replace all-Atlantic Coast Conference performer Erik Kramer, who set 11 passing records in two seasons and was the catalyst for helping to reverse three straight 3-8 seasons.

Montgomery, once fifth on the depth chart, has been rated as a consistent passer by Sheridan.

Poag, who was the top-rated quarterback at the end of spring practice, is considered to have the stronger arm and is the faster of the two in the Wolfpack's option offense.

While the Wolfpack lost quite a bit of talent off last year's team they do return a number of quality players.

On offense, tailback Bobby Crumpler, lineman Joey Page and wide receiver Danny Peebles lead the list of returnees. Defensively, lineman Ray Agnew, linebacker Fred Stone and safeties Chris Johnson and Michael Brooks are the returning leaders.

"We're all aware that they are a talented football team," Baker said. "They beat three of the best teams in the ACC last year (Clemson, Maryland and UNC). We're well aware that they carry that momentum into 1987."

N.C. State is at least a 10-point favorite to take its second straight season opener under Sheridan, but he is not convinced it will be that easy.

"We know we're going to have to be a better team this year than we were in the first game last year," Sheridan said. "There's no doubt in my mind that ECU is better than they were last year."

There is no denying the rivalry between the two schools. The game has drawn the two largest crowds ever to see a college football game in the state, including last year's number one crowd of 58,650.

"They are the only Division I school in the state that will play us," Baker said. "It's our big game. We were embarrassed last year in the fourth quarter and our players are anxious to go back and prove that was a mistake. It would be a big enhancement for us to win our first football game."

Sheridan too, leaves no doubt about the importance of this game.

"This is a very important, emotional game for both teams," he said. "There is no doubt that we're facing an ECU team that is vastly improved from a year ago. Not only do they have a lot of people returning, but they have been strengthened by the addition of some new talent."

Vikes Open; Rose Seeks 2nd Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For 3-A D.H. Conley, it is a beginning. For 4-A Rose High School, it is a hoped-for continuation.

The Vikings will be playing their opening game of the 1987 football season Friday night at 8 p.m. when they entertain Ayden-Grifton.

The Rampants will travel to Jacksonville to face the Cardinals in what will be the second game of the year for both teams.

Rose won its opener last week against Eastern Wayne, 47-12, and dominated the Saints in the contest. But at the same time, Jacksonville was thrashing 2-A White Oak, 41-0, also getting off to a fine start.

That game will be watched by state-wide observers and the winner could turn up as one of the state's top teams when the Associated Press begins its poll next week.

For Conley, it will be the debut of his new head coach, Steve Craft, who came to the school from North Johnston.

"Things have been going fair," Craft said. "We've had some good things going and some things not so good. But the kids are ready to open, they're tired of looking at their own faces and ready to see someone else's across the line. They and the staff is glad that the season is here."

Craft concedes that there are some problems that the Vikings will have to overcome. "Strengths? I don't know if we have any in the first week. With Ayden-Grifton having already played a game, it puts us at a great disadvantage. They've had a chance to work out the kinks in their game where we haven't."

Craft said he was very impressed with the Chargers, who bowed to strong Wallace-Rose Hill last weekend, 26-20. "I was impressed with everything they did. They have a veteran club and a lot of players. I was not so impressed with any one individual but with the team as a whole. If not for one or two plays, they could have won the ball game. That says a lot about your team if you can come that close to beating a team like Wallace-Rose Hill. They have a strong program."

"We are a very inexperienced and untested team and they are experienced and tried and tested. We're at the bottom fighting our way up and we'll be that way all year," Craft said.

"Seeing them hasn't helped. If it had been any other time but for the opening game, it might have. But we just have to be concerned with getting Conley ready to play the first game. We can't put too many nuts in one shell at this point of the season."

Rose
Chip Williams expressed a great deal of pleasure in the play of his team in its rout of Eastern Wayne. The Warriors were held almost totally in check by the first unit, doing most of their damage against the reserves. Even so, Eastern was held to minus four yards rushing and Rose picked off five interceptions, returning them for 139 yards and one touchdown. Eastern completed only six of 21 for 137 yards.

"I thought our offensive line executed as well as I've ever seen it. In the films, we knocked them (the Warrior defense) back off the line on every play. Those guys (Jay Mattox at center, Barry Murry and Gerald

JHR's Jay Mattox

DHC's Chuckie Gardner

JHR's Dave Daniels

DHC's Kevin Moye

O'Koth at guards and Tom Baker and Raleigh Fuller at tackles) did an outstanding job," Williams said.

Williams also said he was happy with the way the backs ran the ball, especially tailback Axel Smith, who carried eight times for 104 yards and one touchdown. "Buddy Barnhill blocked well (at fullback) and I thought Dave Daniels had an outstanding night. He ran well on offense and had eight hits and an interception which he returned for a touchdown on defense," Williams said.

"I thought our defense did a fine job, especially against their running offense. The front four, Tim Hines, McKinley Simmons, Chubby Baker and probably our most improved man there, Shelton Northern, all did well. The linebackers were fairly solid and I was pleased with the play of Daniels and Carlester Crumpler," Williams added.

As far as the secondary is concerned, the play of Rexter Williams, who intercepted two passes, was pleasing, Williams said.

The coach was also happy with the kicking game, especially punt returns. One punt was blocked for a touchdown, another partially blocked, and good returns resulted on a couple of occasions. "Too, Kevin Goodrich did an outstanding job on extra points considering it was the first time he'd kicked in a varsity game." The sophomore transfer hit on five of six actual attempts. "We had a substitute holder in there on the last one, and didn't get a good set-down on the tee," Williams said.

The Rampants came out of the game healthy, and that, Williams said, gives them a chance to get better this week. "If the state championship were being played this week, I think we would be in there battling with the best of them for it," he said. "But it's still 15 weeks down the road. So we've got to get better every week if we are going to have any chance of getting there."

If there was anything in last week's game that disappointed Williams, it was the lack of a passing attack, three lost fumbles and nine penalties. Two of the fumbles killed scoring opportunities but none of the penalties really hurt the Rampants.

Rose put the ball in the air only once, incomplete, and Williams said that the pace of the game dictated that "we shouldn't pass," indicating that it was already out of hand.

This week, however, Williams expects a sterner test against the Jacksonville Cardinals. "They had an easy time against White Oak, handling them probably easier than they ever had. They are as solid a team from top to bottom as they've had in a while, so we expect a very tough game," the Rose coach said.

"These next two games (against Terry Sanford on Sept. 11) will let us know a whole lot about what kind of team that we have. I hope that we can play with them, and keep getting better."

"But I'm sure that Jacksonville is pointing hard for this one. We were one of only two teams to beat them last year and the only team during regular season," Williams pointed out.

Rampants Win First

NEW BERN — Rose High School's soccer team captured its first win after three unsuccessful tries Wednesday, downing West Carteret, 1-0, in the consolation game of the New Bern Invitational Tournament.

The Rampants, who had tied in one of three previous outings, got their lone goal in the final minute of regulation time. Bobby Weisenberger scored off a direct kick from 30 yards out with 79:30 showing.

The Rampants took 13 shots on goal in the game as compared to just four for the Patriots. Rose goalie Brian Wille recorded four saves for his first shutout of the year, while Pat goalie John King had 10 saves.

"We had many good scoring opportunities," Coach Will Wiberg said, "but failed to capitalize on them. If it was a great way to end the game — Bobby Weisenberger hit a fine shot."

Wiberg used a total of 25 players in the game and cited the work on Richard Lewis and Mike Kasperek.

Fullback Pat Joyner and forward Lloyd May were both named to the all-tournament team from Rose.

Rose is now 1-2-1, and will play host to Garner on Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. at Eppes Field. West Carteret falls to 0-2 on the year.

Even At The Peak, Dale Looks Warily At Darlington

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Winston Cup points leader Dale Earnhardt has won nine of 20 races on the NASCAR circuit this year, but that does not keep the 34-year-old driver from giving Darlington Raceway its due.

"We're peaking just right," Earnhardt said. "Everything about our team is going smoothly."

"Still, it's Darlington Raceway coming up," he said. "You've got to make yourself remember that; remember how tough the place is."

Earnhardt and defending champ Tim Richmond will be among the NASCAR drivers who will try to qualify today for this weekend's 38th Southern 500 at Darlington Raceway.

More than 100 NASCAR stock cars are expected to take to the tricky

1.366-mile oval to try to qualify for the Gatorade 200 on Saturday and the Southern 500 on Sunday. Both races are scheduled to begin at 1 p.m.

A total of 49 entries have been received for the Southern 500's 40-car field. Along with Richmond and Earnhardt, other drivers who'll be trying to win the pole for the Southern 500 are former winners Bill Elliott, Harry Gant, Bobby Allison, Cale Yarborough, Neil Bonnett, Richard Petty, Buddy Baker and Terry Labonte.

For the Gatorade 200, 56 entries have been submitted, including cars for Earnhardt, the defending champion; Larry Pearson, defending Busch Series champion and present point leader; and Winston Cup drivers Darrell Waltrip, Neil Bonnett, Geoff Bodine, Rusty Wallace, Bill Elliott, Harry Gant and Morgan Shepherd.

Qualifying for the Southern 500 is scheduled to begin Thursday at 3 p.m. to determine the top 20 starting positions. Following that, the Grand National cars will qualify for their top 20 starting spots in the Gatorade 200.

The drivers will return to the track Friday for more practice and second-day qualifying in the afternoon to fill the 40-car fields in both races.

Elliott, Davey Allison or Kyle Petty have all captured one of the so-called "Big Four" races. A victory in the Southern 500 by any of the three means a $100,000 bonus for winning two of the four events.

Elliott won the Daytona 500, Allison captured the Winston 500 and Petty claimed the Coca-Cola 600.

Had one driver won three of the four he could have collected a $1 million bonus, as Elliott did in 1985 when he swept the Daytona and Winston 500s and then captured the Southern 500.

But this year the victories in the major races have been spread around more. Earnhardt's nine victories are far and away the most on the circuit, giving him a 545-point lead in the Winston Cup points race.

And Earnhardt isn't about to take it easy as he gets ready for Darlington.

"We're going to Darlington intent on winning the Southern 500 and sweeping the track for the year," said Earnhardt, who won the Trans-South 500 in March. "For our Richard Childress team, nothing else is good enough. We want this race especially bad 'cause we're in excellent position to win it."

Earnhardt has dominated the circuit, having led in all but two of the 20 races and winning nine events. His average finish is 4.25. If he can maintain that pace, he will supplant Yarborough's 1977 average finish of 4.50. Yarborough won nine races in 1977 and captured the points title.

Genilla Paces Pitt To Victory

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Sal Genilla passed for two touchdowns and tailback Craig Heyward threw for another and rushed for 132 yards as Pittsburgh defeated Brigham Young 27-17 in nonconference college football Wednesday night.

The independent Panthers spotted Brigham Young seven points — a 73-yard scoring pass from quarterback Bob Jensen to Rich Zayas on the game's first play from scrimmage — then reeled off three straight scores to take a 21-7 lead at halftime.

Genilla, used sparingly in 1986 when he was intercepted three times and passed for 105 yards, threw scoring passes of 47 and 30 yards to Hosea Heard and Reggie Williams, giving the Panthers the lead for good early in the second quarter.

Genilla, a senior, completed 6 of 12 passes for 166 yards.

Heyward, who made Pitt history by starting in the backfield with his brother Nate, took a pitch from Genilla late in the first half and threw a 17-yard scoring pass to Bill Osborn to help Pitt to its halftime lead.

Jeff VanHorn kicked second-half field goals of 27 and 38 yards and Pittsburgh gave BYU a safety in the fourth quarter so the Panthers would not have to punt out of their end zone.

Craig Heyward carried the ball 32 times for his 132 yards. The Cougars had the ball inside the Panther 40 twice in the third quarter after fumbles by Craig and Nate Heyward, but both those drives died.

The Cougars had the ball at midfield again in the fourth quarter, but Quinton Jones intercepted Jensen's pass deep in Pitt territory.

Finally, Jeff Frandsen caught a 3-yard touchdown pass from Jensen with 20 seconds left and Chuck Cutler caught the two-point conversion to make it 27-17.

Spuds Bresnahan Has Hot Potato

By RONALD BLUM
Associated Press Writer
Dave Bresnahan is going home. He's pulled his last potato out of his glove as a ballplayer, but he may have opened a career in politics.

"I could run for governor of Idaho," Bresnahan said, referring to America's top potato-producing state.

Cecil Andrus, the former Interior Secretary who was elected to a third term as Idaho governor last November, thinks Bresnahan's stunt was just chippy.

"The skin of a potato is better than a baseball," Andrus said by telephone Wednesday evening. "You don't need a resin bag or anything. You can make those little hummers curve on a moment's notice."

Why all this fuss about an oblong, brown vegetable? Williamsport, Cleveland's Class AA affiliate, was eliminated from playoff contention two weeks ago. With the Bills trailing Reading 1-0 in the first game of an Eastern League doubleheader Monday night, Bresnahan had an opportunity to try an idea he had thought about for several days. Rick Lundblade of Reading was on third and catcher Bresnahan called time.

He told plate umpire Scott Potter that he had broken his mitt and he went to the bench and got a glove with a peeled potato in it. His teammates knew of his half-baked scheme and they struggled to keep straight faces.

"I gave a sign for a slider away," Bresnahan said Wednesday from Williamsport, Pa., site of the caper. "I caught the ball and threw the potato into left field."

Lundblade trotted home and Bresnahan tagged him out with the baseball. Or so he thought. Potter called the runner safe, the official scorer gave Bresnahan an error, Reading led 2-0 and Williamsport Manager Orlando Gomez came out to argue in vain.

"There's nothing in the rules that says you can't use a potato," Bresnahan said. "But the umpire said he was safe. He said you can't get another ball and I said, 'That wasn't a ball, that was a potato.' Then he was even more upset."

Gomez fined Bresnahan $50.

"My teammates said they would pay it for me," said Bresnahan, a fourth-year professional with a .150 average this season in 147 at-bats.

Instead, he left 50 potatoes on his manager's desk Wednesday night and one in each player's locker.

But the next morning, Jeff Scott, Cleveland's director of player development and scouting, gave Bresnahan his unconditional release.

"You can't fool around with the integrity of the game," said Scott, who also released Bresnahan two seasons ago when both were with the Seattle Mariners' organization. "The integrity is too important to the game. You can't have a group of players pulling stunts like that."

Bresnahan, an 18th-round draft pick in 1984 after he was graduated from Grand Valley Junior College in Phoenix, Ariz., with a business degree, said he read in a book that someone pulled a potato caper in the low minor leagues just after the turn of the century.

"I wondered what would happen if I did it. Well, I found out, didn't I?" His great-uncle Roger also was a catcher, the first to wear shinguards. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1945 with a .279 career average in 17 seasons, primarily with the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants.

But Dave Bresnahan's potato won't follow his great-uncle's shinguards to Cooperstown. He doesn't have it.

"They picked it up in the outfield," he said. "I remember Joe Lefebvre (Reading's third-base coach) had it. After that, I don't know what happened to it. I sure hope I get it back. I'll give whoever has it two autographed potatoes."

He spent Wednesday night, Williamsport's final game of the season, autographing potatoes at Bowman Field. The Bills, who charge $2.75 for admission, allowed all fans with potatoes to get in for $1. Just over 100 of the 1,518 in attendance came with vegetables in hand.

Bresnahan sat in the stands and signed the potatoes: "This spud's for you."

"I've pitched some spuds," recalled Andrus, who last month started a new advertising campaign for the Idaho Potato Commission. "When I was young, we pitched potatoes like we were major leaguers, throwing them to one another. But you have to be able to toss a potato better than I do. Once a bat meets a potato with a solid thud, that's it, the game's over."

His dreams of a big-league career mashed, Bresnahan began the trip home to Arizona Wednesday night in the true minor-league tradition, driving along with teammate Riley Polk in Polk's automobile.

In the year of scuffed ball and corked bat, Dave Bresnahan came up with a new twist. His batting average may have dipped below his weight, but Dave Bresnahan's hopes for fame haven't been mashed.

Rozelle Says He's Ready To Help In Strike Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who remained on the sidelines during the 1982 NFL strike, says he's ready to try to settle the current labor dispute if both sides will have him.

Three representatives each for the players and owners met for 4½ hours Wednesday at an undisclosed site in the Washington area. It was the first meeting since Aug. 14 to discuss the contract which expired at midnight last Monday.

John Jones, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, said Jack Donlan, executive director of the Council, and Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, were to meet again at 9 a.m. today.

Jones said that Donlan didn't want to characterize the talks in any way. Asked, however, if any progress had been made, Jones replied:

"I'd say he (Donlan) would be on a plane out of here if there wasn't."

Negotiations on the new contract began April 20, but little progress has been made since on either minor issues or the players' principal demand — free agency without compensation.

Rozelle, who said he was less optimistic about avoiding a strike than he had been, said in an interview that he was willing to get involved "at the right time" to help avoid one.

"But to do it," he added, "I would have to be accepted by both sides."

Negotiations on the new contract began April 20, but little progress has been made since on either minor issues or the players' principal demand — for free agency without compensation.

The union's executive board voted Monday to set a strike date to be recommended to the board of player representatives on Sept. 8. The strike date was undisclosed, but sources said Wednesday that it is after the second week of the season, which begins Sept. 13, with the fourth week as an alternate date.

Rozelle has remained uninvolved in past NFL labor disputes. In the 1982 strike, which lasted 57 days and reduced the 16-game season to nine, the union objected to his participation, regarding him as a representative of the owners. Rozelle said, however, that his relationship with Upshaw is much better than it was with Ed Garvey, who held that position during the '82 strike. He said he hoped to be able to stay in contact with both Upshaw and Donlan.

"I wouldn't preclude getting involved but it would have to be at the right time," Rozelle said. "The problem is you have to be accepted by both sides. If you come in, the players want you to get everything they want from the owners and the owners want to give you everything that they want."

Rozelle also said he could see disadvantages for both sides if the owners were to go ahead with the season in the event of a strike. Some teams have been offering players they cut $1,000 to return in the event the union players walk out.

"It would create pressure on players since the games would count toward the Super Bowl and the playoffs," he said. "But from the owners' standpoint, there would have to be refunds on tickets and television if the product is greatly affected by such a move. And I feel it would be."

"There are a lot of items to go through and it's going to take a lot of work," he said. "But I don't see why it should happen. It doesn't help either side. We're still getting over the effects of the 1982 strike and I see no reason why we need a repeat."

Meanwhile, some San Francisco 49ers, a less-than-solid union team in the past, indicated that they might continue to play in the event of a strike.

"I guess I'd want to hear what the rest of my teammates say," quarterback Joe Montana said. "But personally I would want to play."

Montana, a two-time Super Bowl MVP, is not a member of the NFLPA. However, some of his teammates who are union members also say they may play even if there is a walkout.

"If the owners opened the doors, I'd want to come in and play," safety Ronnie Lott said. "I still belong to the union, but my attorney has been telling me to get out."

Placekicker Ray Wersching, also a non-member, said he has not made up his mind.

"I don't know yet ... it might depend on what the team does," he said. "But after the last strike, I just hope we don't even have to think seriously about making that choice. I hope we are smart enough to avoid a strike."

Pack Girls Take Opening Win

WASHINGTON — Washington High School's girls opened their cross country season with a 16-48 victory over New Bern Wednesday, while New Bern's boys downed the Pam Pack, 25-34.

In the boys' meet, New Bern's Anthony Patterson took first place with a time of 17:33. Washington Kerry Hindsley was second in 17:46, setting a new Pam Pack school record. Teammate Gene Wozny took third in 18:07.

New Bern, however, took the next two places, with S. Johnson finishing fourth in 18:29 and K. Gaskins taking fifth in 18:44. Washington's Jeremy Hill was sixth in 19:08, but New Bern took the next four places to round out the top 10. They included T. Priestly in 19:15; A. Jenkins in 19:35; C. Landis in 19:36 and N. Norman in 19:58.

Washington's next finishers were Scott Baker, 14th in 22:43, followed by Elliott Blake, 15th in 23:57.

Washington's girls swept the first six spots to whitewash New Bern in their meet. Deanna Davis took first in 20:52, followed by Marsha Wells in 22:15.

Rachael Williams was third in 22:44, followed by Missie Purgason in 23:07. Denise Werhndberg in fifth at 23:31 and Stephanie Pittman, sixth in 24:15. New Bern's best finish was seventh, where A. Kafer finished in 25:16, followed by T. Baker in 25:38. Washington's Ashley Jones was ninth in 25:38, with S. Wilkins of New Bern rounding out the top 10 in 26:08.

Other Washington finishers included Michelle Hylton, 11th in 26:29; Jennifer Smith, 12th in 26:36; Katherine Occhipinti, 14th in 27:14; Christy Moller, 17th in 28:03; and Jennette Boyette, 21st in 31:34.

Washington returns to action on Wednesday, hosting Manteo, White Oak and Currituck.

Valkyries Take Win

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley rolled to victory in a volleyball match with Raleigh's Millbrook High School Wednesday.

The Valkyries scored a 15-5, 15-0 victory in the varsity match, which followed at 15-11, 15-7 junior varsity match.

Dee Barbee served up nine straight points in the first game of the varsity match while Rhonda Mills led the second game with five straight.

Hannah Hill had three kills and one effective hit while Tracy Surrrell had two kills and three effective hits. Miriam Fulford, who led assists with 17, added two effective hits.

"By far, it was our best showing of the year," Coach Martha McCaskill said. "Our attack was very balanced."

In the junior varsity match, Irene Evans had two aces, while Nikki Adams had five straight service points in the second game. Bardee and Adams each had three consecutive hits while Eileen and Leasa Evans each had two.

The Valkyries are now 4-1 on the year and will travel to SouthWest Edgecombe today.

Bass, HoJo Aiming For Record Books

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

By hitting home runs from both sides of the plate, Kevin Bass blasted out a spot for himself in the baseball record books. Howard Johnson is about to do the same, also because of his switching-hitting home run proficiency.

Bass became the first National League player ever to hit home runs from both sides of the plate in a game twice in the same season as the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 10-1 Wednesday night.

Johnson, meanwhile, hit a two-run homer to help the New York Mets beat the San Diego Padres 4-3. The homer was Johnson's 34th, moving him within one of the National League record for most homers in a season by a switch-hitter, set by Jimmy Collins of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1934.

"It's nothing I've ever sat home and thought about," Bass said of his record-making achievement. "I guess I became an answer to a trivia question."

In other National League action Wednesday, it was Pittsburgh 2, Atlanta 0; Cincinnati 3, St. Louis 1; Montreal 7, San Francisco 3, and Philadelphia 6, Los Angeles 2.

Bass went 4-for-4 with two homers, a double and a single, and also drew an intentional walk as the Astros cracked out 13 hits to break a seven-game losing streak.

Mike Scott, 14-10, scattered nine hits in seven innings, struck out four and walked none. Rick Sutcliffe, 15-7, lost his third straight.

Bass hit a solo homer in the fourth inning from the left side of the plate and then hit a two-run shot from the right side in a four-run sixth inning, his 15th.

"This is a tough game when things are going wrong. We broke a string of seven straight and I'm glad we came out of it," Bass said. "Mentally, you can say you came out of it, but we'll have to wait and see if we have turned things around."

"Kevin was very aggressive at the plate left-handed tonight," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said. "We need him to drive the ball more left-handed and he's made up mind to do it."

Mets 4, Padres 3

The Mets trailed 3-2 in the seventh before Johnson connected for his 34th home run. Keith Hernandez also hit a two-run homer for the Mets and Dwight Gooden scattered 10 hits.

With the win, which marked their 34th comeback victory of the season, the Mets moved within 3½ games of front-running St. Louis in the NL East. It also gave the Mets a 5-1 mark on their current nine-game West Coast trip.

Gooden, 13-4, extended his personal winning streak to four in pitching his fifth complete game of the season. The loss went to San Diego starter Ed Whitson, 10-10, who struck out a career-high 10.

"I've always had the power," Johnson said. "Now I'm maturing to becoming a smarter hitter. The single most important thing is being in there every day."

Until this season, Johnson had no more than 389 at-bats in any one year.

Pirates 2, Braves 0

Mike LaValliere hit a two-run double and Bob Walk and Jim Gott combined on a five-hitter as Pittsburgh beat Atlanta, the Pirates' eighth victory in nine games.

The Pirates had only one hit in the first six innings against Braves rookie Tom Glavine, 1-2, and merely three overall. With two outs in the seventh, Darnell Coles walked and went to second on a single by Sid Bream. LaValliere doubled to score both.

"I was trying to get a fastball in on him and it wasn't in as far as I wanted it to be," Glavine said of LaValliere's hit. "In that situation I'm probably better off trying a curve ball or changeup."

Walk, 7-2, won for the fifth time in his last six decisions. The Braves lost for the sixth time in seven games.

Reds 3, Cardinals 1

Bo Diaz hit a two-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning, leading Cincinnati over St. Louis.

Diaz's homer, his 14th of the season and the fifth by a Cincinnati batter in two games, snapped a 1-1 tie. The hit followed a walk to Buddy Bell by Danny Cox, 9-5, who had retired the first two batters in the inning.

Frank Williams, 3-0, got the victory in relief of Ron Robinson, and John Franco hurled the final inning to gain his 25th save.

Cincinnati jumped ahead in the first on Kal Daniels' 21st homer of the season. St. Louis got the run back in the bottom of the first on an RBI double by Ozzie Smith.

Expos 7, Giants 3

Herm Winningham drove in four runs with a home run and a double as Montreal defeated San Francisco.

With the Expos trailing 3-0 after six innings, Winningham hit a three-run homer to cap a four-run seventh and added an RBI double in the ninth.

Pascual Perez, 1-0, won his first major-league game since July 14, 1985. Perez, the former Atlanta pitcher who was out of baseball last year, allowed six hits and three runs in six-plus innings. Tim Burke, the third Montreal pitcher, posted his 13th save.

San Francisco starter Mike LaCoss, 11-9, was the loser.

Candy Maldonado drove in all the Giants' runs, with a sacrifice fly in the first and a two-run homer, his 17th, in the fourth.

"We're the type of team that bounces back," Winningham said. "We won one out of three. That's a lot better than being swept. It was a big win for us."

Phillies 6, Dodgers 2

Don Carman pitched six-hit ball over seven innings and Von Hayes and Keith Hughes each had a pair of run-scoring singles as Philadelphia completed a three-game sweep of Los Angeles.

The Dodgers have lost seven in a row and eight of their last nine meetings with the Phillies. The only sock they displayed all night — except for a pre-game fight between Mike Marshall and teammate Phil Garner in the tunnel leading to the clubhouse — came on Pedro Guerrero's 24th home run in the sixth inning.

Carman, 9-9, struck out five and walked one before getting relief help from Kent Tekulve, who appeared in his 74th game to tie Toronto's Mark Eichorn for the major league high.

Orel Hershiser, 13-13, was the loser.

Baker Wants Point Heard At Other Three Schools

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

East Carolina football coach Art Baker wants the point to be heard again, especially in Durham, Chapel Hill and Winston-Salem.

The Pirates open the 1987 football season Saturday against North Carolina State, the only one of the four Atlantic Coast Conference schools in the state which has scheduled them.

"I just simply want to play the best," Baker said. "It is our big game. It's the only I-A team in the state that sees fit to play us."

There was a time when East Carolina had Duke, North Carolina and Wake Forest on its schedule, although not all at the same time. In 1977, the Pirates, led by current Auburn coach Pat Dye, started the year with victories over North Carolina State and Duke.

In 1979, East Carolina lost to N.C. State, Duke and Wake Forest on successive weekends and gained a 24-24 tie with North Carolina. And in 1980, ECU whipped Duke in the season opener, lost to North Carolina in the middle of the season and closed the year with a loss to the Wolfpack.

It was after the 1981 season that the Big Four and East Carolina virtually parted company. The Tar Heels were 56-0 winners that year, N.C. State followed with a 31-10 victory and Duke collected a 24-14 victory.

Only N.C. State remained, and former Pirate coach Ed Emory started pushing for legislation that would end the refusal of the Big Four schools to meet ECU. Indeed, Rep. David Redwine, D-Brunswick, introduced such a measure in the recent session of the General Assembly, but it died an unceremonious death. It didn't even emerge from committee.

N.C. State football coach Dick Sheridan said the reason for not scheduling ECU is simple — it's a tough team that could result in a loss, and that makes playing them on opening night tough.

"It's the biggest game they play. It's their bowl game," Sheridan said Wednesday. "It's got to be that kind of game for us."

Neither North Carolina athletic director John Swofford nor Wake Forest athletic director Gene Hooks was available for comment. But Duke athletic director Tom Butters said in a telephone interview that the Blue Devils wouldn't mind playing the Pirates — that's if they can wait until 1996, the next opening on the Duke football schedule.

"I don't want to speak for the other institutions, but there is nothing wrong with East Carolina," Butters said in reference to the idea that the Big Four is avoiding the Pirates.

"There was a dissipating interest in that ball game. From that standpoint, it wasn't encouraging to continue that contract..." Butters said.

Butters said he must look at his alumni base, which is strongest in the Northeast and in Florida, when setting priorities for the schedule. With four non-ACC openings, the emphasis is on drawing fans.

"Most of our alumni do not reside in the state of North Carolina. We try to schedule those four games to accommodate our alumni," he said.

This year, Rutgers is on the schedule, giving the Blue Devils exposure in New Jersey. The other three non-league games are in Durham against Colgate, Northwestern and Vanderbilt.

East Carolina's quest to bring the Big Four back onto their schedule — and even to Greenville — continues. But Butters says Baker and the Pirates shouldn't take it personally. "We're not trying to shun ECU," he said. "There's no hidden message there."

Turmoil Hitting Giants' Camp

By the Associated Press

Turmoil began in the New York Mets' clubhouse less than six months after winning the World Series when key players asked to be traded.

Seven months after winning the Super Bowl, the New York Giants lockerroom is beginning to sound the same.

Linebacker Gary Reasons, who started at inside linebacker for the Giants last season, asked Wednesday to be traded, released or to have his contract dispute submitted to arbitration.

Reasons said the team treated him "like a third-class citizen."

"It's just demeaning and takes me back to the point of no return. There is no end in sight," Reasons said. "They are not willing to sit down and discuss this like gentlemen."

He is the only unsigned Giant and wants a three-year contract for approximately $1.2 million. The Giants are offering about $300,000 less.

"People look at the Giants and say collectively we have the best linebackers in football," Reasons said. "I'm not saying I'm the best, but I certainly do deserve some respect."

Reasons made about $180,000 last year, his third with the team. Lawrence Taylor will be paid about $800,000 this season, Carl Banks will get about $650,000 and Harry Carson's salary is in the $450,000 range.

Pepper Johnson, who shared the job with Reasons last season and has replaced him this year, makes about $325,000.

"We'll be able to play (without him)," Coach Bill Parcells said.

"Don't get me wrong. I'm not diminishing anyone. I think he's a good player. He's played well for us and I'd love to have him. But I can only coach the guys we have here."

"We have put in three years contributing to his development, just as he has put in three years," Giants General Manager George Young said. "We're not in the business of developing players for other teams. We do have an investment."

NO PROGRESS II

Jason Buck's agent failed to convince Cincinnati to agree to a four-year, $1.525 million contract, but will try again today.

Leigh Steinberg, the agent for the Cincinnati Bengals' unsigned No. 1 draft choice, said negotiations for the 6-foot-5, 260-pound defensive end from Brigham Young remain at a standstill.

Cincinnati had offered Buck $1.425 million over four years, but last week said it had withdrawn the offer because Buck had missed so much of training camp.

"We're not going to move from our position that we will not reward a player for missing training camp," Mike Brown, the Bengals' assistant general manager, said.

"There was absolutely nothing changed," Steinberg said. "Not one extra penny was offered. It's very frustrating."

Steinberg compared Buck with defensive end John Bosa of Boston College, who Tuesday signed a four-year, $1.5 million contract with the Miami Dolphins with the potential to earn more than $200,000 in additional performance incentives.

Tigers Squeeze By Indians, 2-1

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Down the stretch, every little bit counts. For the Detroit Tigers, one hit was enough to win.

"You've got to tip your cap to the Tigers. They're in first place and deserve to be. They're tough," Cleveland knuckleballer Tom Candiotti said Wednesday night after he pitched a one-hitter, yet lost 2-1.

Candiotti pitched his second one-hitter of the season, having held New York without a hit for seven innings Aug. 1.

He held Detroit hitless until Matt Nokes lined a clean single with two outs in the eighth. But the host Tigers took advantage of seven walks and an error to remain one game ahead of Toronto in the American League East.

On Sunday, the Tigers managed only four hits against Texas knuckleballer Charlie Hough, but won 7-0.

"You win them any way you can," Detroit's Dave Bergman said.

Jack Morris, 16-7, won with a five-hitter. Brett Butler had a leadoff homer in the ninth inning for the Indians' run.

"I've been on his end, losing a close, well-pitched game," said Morris, who pitched a no-hitter against Chicago in 1984. "Two months from now, that won't help. It will still be a loss."

In other AL games Wednesday,

Toronto beat California 7-6, Minnesota held off Boston 5-4, New York downed Oakland 3-2, Milwaukee edged Kansas City 3-2, Seattle defeated Baltimore 8-6 and Chicago topped Texas 5-0.

Candiotti, 7-14, came close to becoming the first pitcher in 22 years to lose a no-hitter. With Cleveland trailing, Candiotti only had to pitch eight innings against Detroit.

There have been 12 no-hitters lost since 1900. The last pitcher to lose one was Cincinnati's Jim Maloney, who on June 14, 1965, gave up Johnny Lewis' home run in the 11th inning and fell to the New York Mets 1-0. On April 30, 1967, Baltimore's Steve Barber and Stu Miller combined to no-hit Detroit but lost 2-1.

"This one didn't seem so special," Candiotti said. "The last time, I wanted to win the game. It was against the Yankees and we wanted to win. This one we were behind from the fifth inning on, so it's really wasn't the same."

The Tigers scored in the fifth when Chet Lemon drew a leadoff walk and Pat Sheridan reached on first baseman Joe Carter's error. Bergman sacrificed the runners into scoring position and Tom Brookens hit an RBI grounder.

In the eighth, Darrell Evans got a leadoff walk and Jim Walewander entered as a pinch-runner. Walewander took third on Chris Ban-do's passed ball and scored when Nokes lined a 3-1 knuckleball over second baseman Tommy Hinzo.

"It was a foot-and-a-half over my head," Hinzo said. "That ball was hit too hard for me. If it was straight at me, I might have had a chance. But it was a step or two to the right."

Nokes said he hit the right pitch. "His first knuckleball, when it came in, was spiraling, almost looping," Nokes said. "Fortunately I took that one. I thought, 'Oh, oh.' I really didn't think about the no-hitter until I got on first base. Then I said, 'All right.' It was nicer to know that we had another run. As it turned out, we needed it."

Blue Jays 7, Angels 6
George Bell's AL-leading 42nd homer, a two-run drive, broke a 5-5 tie in the eighth inning and lifted Toronto over California.

Bell connected on a 3-0 pitch from DeWayne Buice, 5-6. The Angels had tied the score in the top of the eighth on George Hendrick's two-run homer.

David Wells, 1-2, won his first major-league game. He relieved Tom Henke, the third Blue Jays pitcher, after Hendrick's homer.

Cecil Fielder homered for Toronto and Devon White connected for California.

Twins 5, Red Sox 4
Les Straker pitched six strong innings and Jeff Reardon got his 26th save as Minnesota beat visiting Boston.

Straker, 7-9, gave up four hits, including Mike Greenwell's two-run homer. Reardon, the third Twins pitcher, retired all five batters.

Randy Bush hit a solo home run in the first inning off Al Nipper, 8-11, and had a sacrifice fly during a three-run second. Nipper left the game in that inning when he tried to cut off a throw to the plate and the ball hit him in the right knee.

Brewers 3, Royals 2
Bill Wegman and two relievers combined on a three-hitter and Bill Schroeder hit a three-run homer as Milwaukee won in Kansas City.

Wegman, 9-10, pitched six innings and allowed three hits, including Steve Balboni's two-run homer in the second. Chuck Crim went two hitless innings and Dan Plesac finished for his 23rd save.

Schroeder hit his 11th home run in the first off Charlie Leibrandt, 13-10, who lost despite a four-hitter. Earlier this season, Leibrandt pitched a one-hitter against Milwaukee with Schroeder's bunt single the only hit.

The Brewers won for the seventh time in nine games. On Tuesday night, Ted Higuera pitched a one-hitter against the Royals.

Yankees 3, Athletics 2
Jerry Royster singled home the winning run in the 10th inning after Mickey Tettleton's passed ball and error, lifting New York over Oakland.

Don Mattingly, who singled in his first four at-bats, led off the 10th by striking out but reached first base when Tettleton could not handle Rick Honeycutt's pitch. Dan Pasqua followed with a sacrifice that Tettleton threw wildly, allowing Mattingly to reach third, and Royster singled.

Dave Righetti, 7-3, pitched one inning for the victory and Honeycutt lost his debut for the Athletics.

Oakland's Reggie Jackson, possibly making his final regular-season appearance at Yankee Stadium, did not play in the three-game series. Jackson, who played five seasons with the Yankees and led them to World Series victories in 1977 and 1978, has been slowed by a hamstring pull. He presented the lineup card before the game and got an ovation as the stadium organist played "Thanks For The Memories."

Mariners 8, Orioles 6
Mickey Brantley doubled twice and drove in three runs and Dave Valle hit a pair of RBI singles as Seattle won in Baltimore.

Mark Langston, 16-10, gave up six runs, four of them in the first inning, in 7 1-3 innings. Jerry Reed, the fourth Mariners pitcher, got his seventh save.

Valle, 18-for-38 against the Orioles this season, singled home a run in the first against Jeff Ballard, 2-4. The Mariners scored five times in the third, with Brantley's two-run double putting them ahead 5-4.

White Sox 5, Rangers 0
Dave LaPoint and Bobby Thigpen combined on a five-hitter and Greg Walker hit a three-run homer, leading host Chicago over Texas.

LaPoint, 3-2, gave up four hits in seven innings. Thigpen allowed a single to Ruben Sierra, who had three hits.

Walker's 24th homer, which tied a career high, capped a four-run sixth against Paul Kilgus, 2-6.

Thompson Trails Early In Decathlon

ROME (AP) — World record-holder and defending champion Daley Thompson of Britain trailed the leaders after the first three events of the decathlon at the World Track and Field Championships today.

Thompson, competing in his first decathlon in more than a year, was in third place after the shot put with 2,670 points.

Torsten Voss of East Germany held the lead, at 2,749. Christian Plaziat of France was second at 2,677.

Voss was second to Thompson in the 100-meter dash and first in his group in the long jump to take the lead. Thompson's two-event total of 1,875 points was his worst start in a decathlon in 10 years. His world record is 8,847.

Voss' edge over Thompson slipped a bit in the shot, where the Briton had a throw of 49 feet, 6 1/4 inches, compared with the East German's 49-1 3/4.

Plaziat, best in the long jump, threw 48-2 3/4. The best performance in the decathlon shot was 54-7 1/4 by American Rob Muzzio, who was far behind the leaders.

Steve Cram, another defending champion from Britain, easily advanced to the semifinals of the men's 1,500 meters, although he did not win his heat.

Cram, the world mile record-holder, had only the 21st-fastest time from the three heats. He finished second in his portion, which was won by Omar Khalifa of the Sudan in 3:41.93.

You may have more than one reason to buy a Mercedes-Benz.

Mercedes-Benz takes its commitment to safety extremely seriously. In fact, every time you and your family get into the car, a whole network of reassuring technology rides with you.

Consider the Mercedes-Benz Anti-lock Braking System (ABS), for example. Pioneered by Mercedes-Benz and standard on most current models, this ingenious computerized system helps prevent wheel lockup and skidding in sudden braking on slippery road surfaces and in sudden stops.

The Supplemental Restraint System (SRS), another Mercedes-Benz first, includes a driver's side air bag, knee bolster and emergency tensioning retractors on both front 3-point seat belts. As standard equipment in every new Mercedes-Benz.

Mercedes-Benz safety design isn't simply tacked on; it's an integral part of the automobile's basic design. From a rigid passenger compartment, with impact-absorbing "crumple zones" fore and aft. To a steering column designed to resist rearward displacement in major frontal impact.

These and myriad other features exemplify the safety-conscious Mercedes-Benz engineering philosophy. Come in and talk to us, your authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer. And test-drive one of this philosophy's finest expressions.

Cash Falls At U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Wimbledon was wonderful. The rest of the summer has been a bummer for Pat Cash.

All of 1987 has been strange for Cash. He lost in the final at the Australian Open, was beaten in the first round at the French Open, then won Wimbledon. On Wednesday night, the No. 7 seed was beaten in the first round of the U.S. Open by Sweden's Peter Lundgren 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Lundgren, who won his first Nabisco Grand Prix tournament last weekend in Rye, N.Y., also beat Cash at the Canadian Open three weeks ago. Ranked 47th in the world, Lundgren has the quickness to deal with Cash's serve-and-volley style.

But Cash, who has not gotten past the third round of a tournament since Wimbledon, felt he was to blame for the loss more than Lundgren deserved credit.

"I played all right, but I lost concentration and lost the points that counted," said Cash, who won 116 points, just four fewer than Lundgren. "I thought it was 50-50. I think I had more chances than he did, but I ended up losing the games.

"That's been the whole situation for me this summer. I've lost concentration. Since Wimbledon, I've had four days off. It's very tiring.

"I'll go home for a nice break and try to freshen up. I'm a bit stale."

Few of the other seeds looked stale Wednesday.

Steffi Graf, the top-seeded woman, blitzed Bettina Fulco of Argentina 6-0, 6-3. Third-seeded Chris Evert downed Susan Sloane 6-1, 6-0.

Jimmy Connors, who has celebrated his birthday at the Open for each of the past 18 years, turned 35 Wednesday. He looked in his prime with a 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Joey Rive.

Graf and Connors were in action again today. Graf had a night match against Petra Huber of Austria. Connors played Wayne Hearn in the afternoon.

Martina Navratilova, the second-seeded woman, took on Robin White; No. 4 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia played Jo Durie of Britain, and No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina met Sara Gomer of Britain.

Among the men, top-seeded Ivan Lendl met Jean Fleuriat of France and No. 4 Boris Becker of West Germany played Jonathan Canter.

Lundgren said he gained confidence from his first victory over Cash.

"I knew what I needed to do, which was serve well and return well," Lundgren, 22, said. "My baseline game was working very well."

The upsets of Cash were not the biggest wins for Lundgren.

"Beating Mats (Wilander) was the biggest because Wilander is Wilander," Lundgren said of his win in Cincinnati two weeks ago. "He does not give you any points. Against Cash, he gives you a lot of easy points."

Graf, playing her first Grand Slam event as the No. 1 seed, gave Fulco nothing. She lost only six points in the first set and had only a little more trouble in the second set.

"I did not play for six days," Graf said of her recovery period after root canal surgery. "The last couple of days I was not really nervous but anxious to play."

Graf isn't spending any extra time thinking about being ranked No. 1.

"It surprised me when I got it so early," she said. "But I don't think it makes any difference for the tournament."

The only other seeded loser Wednesday was No. 15 Martin Jaite of Argentina, who fell to Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 7-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Among the winning men seeds were No. 2 Stefan Edberg, No. 3 Mats Wilander and No. 10 Joakim Nystrom, all of Sweden; No. 5 Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia; ninth-rated Andres Gomez of Ecuador, and No. 12 Tim Mayotte.

Two of Graf's seeded countrywomen moved on — No. 12 Bettina Bunge and No. 13 Sylvia Hanika. Pam Shriver, seeded fifth; No. 10 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria; Lori McNeil, seeded 11th; and Wendy Turnbull of Australia, the 16th seed, also won.

Connors was asked what has kept him going for so long.

"I really didn't want to play past 27 or 28," the five-time Open champion said. "I thought I'd just get in and get out. I'm playing for the love of the game; that's the reason I'm still playing."

He routed Rive despite a sore right foot, which he injured in Cincinnati last month.

"There is no treatment because they don't know what it is," he said. "I've been using ice and soaking it in warm salt water. There's tension through whole foot. Above the ankles, I'm fine; below, I'm not."

Evert, whose career has been intertwined with Connors' — in addition to once being engaged to each other, they have been dominant performers for nearly two decades — looked fine in her easy victory over Sloane.

"Jimmy and I have a lot of similarities," Evert said. "We started young, we both were winners at early ages. It's been a part of us to have goals, to try to be champions. Competition is in our blood."

Edberg beat Derrick Rostagno 6-3, 7-6, 6-2 and said he liked the way he is playing. Wilander said the same thing after eliminating John Ross 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

"I won the last tournament I played," Edberg said of the ATP Championships. "I played well this summer, I think. It has worked out pretty much the way I want it to."

"I've gotten to the semis here, so I know I can play well," Wilander said.

Chris Evert, third seed in the U.S. Open, follows through on a shot in her first round match Wednesday. Evert defeated Susan Sloane 6-1, 6-0 at the National Tennis Center. (AP Laserphoto)

Pre-Season Favorite Clemson Kicks Off ACC Football Action

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion Clemson, ranked ninth in the national preseason poll and a favorite to claim the title again in 1987, helps open the league's 35th season this weekend at home against Western Carolina.

The Tigers, 7-2-2 last year, are meeting the Catamounts for the fourth time, but with a lack of talent at some positions that leaves Coach Danny Ford a little worried. Most notably, Ford is looking for help at tailback, where he lost Terrence Flagler and Kenny Flowers after 1986.

"(Wesley) McFadden and (Terry) Allen have never carried the ball in a football game for us," Ford says. "They've been watching a lot of old film of Flagler and Flowers to see how it's done. We just don't know what they'll do in a game."

Despite three victories in the series, Ford said he doesn't intend to rest on history. "I have to convince a hundred guys down on that field," he said. "I hope our team is mature enough to realize they have to be mentally and physically into the game."

Several preseason football publications have put Clemson among those teams capable of winning a national championship. Ford has tried to downplay such speculation, but he says it is now the time for his team to prove the forecasters right or wrong.

"I'm anxious to ... see if we're a deserving team to have all those things said about us, or if we're just another slow-starting Clemson football team," he said.

North Carolina, picked by preseason pollsters to repeat at second place in the conference, hosts Illinois, and Virginia is at Georgia in the three afternoon games involving league teams.

Two of the ACC's new head coaches make their debuts Saturday night. Duke's Steve Spurrier starts his quest toward a winning season against Colgate and Joe Krivak, formerly an assistant to Bobby Ross at Maryland, assumes the controls as the Terrapins travel north to Syracuse.

North Carolina State, with second-year coach Dick Sheridan, faces East Carolina.

The Tar Heels and the Fighting Illini are meeting for the second time. In the first clash in 1971, North Carolina took a 27-0 victory.

The Illinois game is the first of three contests which could determine how good the Tar Heels are. Quarterback Mark Maye is the catalyst Coach Dick Crum needs to rise above last year's 7-3-1 mark.

"Any time you can win your opener, you feel a little more confident," Crum said.

Illinois was 4-7 last year, but Crum says not to take the Fighting Illini lightly because they have a new offensive and defensive coordinator.

"When you open with an opponent that has had a major shift in the staff, you're really flying blind going in there," Crum said.

Virginia is still trying to solidify the starting lineup as it prepares to play Georgia, which is tied for 20th in the pre-season Associated Press football poll.

"We have more athletes now and there's more competition for all the spots," Coach George Welsh said. "Nobody has their job locked up."

That insecurity extends to quarterback Scott Secules, who started three games last season and completed 51 percent of his passes for 956 yards.

Both Virginia and Georgia have won six games in the series with three ties. The Bulldogs have won four of the last six games.

Spurrier is trying to gain a winning season at Durham, which would be Duke's first since 1982. It is expected that the Blue Devils will get three victories in their first three games, all at home.

"We'll get beat some, but when we do, it'll just be because we didn't play well enough to win," Spurrier said. "There are no reasons for any excuses anymore."

As an assistant, Krivak spent most of his time in the coaching booth above the field. This season, he'll watch the game from a different perspective.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't have butterflies and anxiety," Krivak said. "Last evening (Monday), I didn't sleep too well."

Maryland has beaten Syracuse in nine of the last 11 games between the schools. They last met in the 1985 Cherry Bowl, and Maryland won 35-18.

For the third straight year and fourth time in five seasons, the Pirates and the Wolfpack square off in the season opener. The game is a sellout, which means the attendance record of 58,650 could fall.

Sheridan is looking for a starting quarterback, and is to choose between Preston Poag and Shane Montgomery, neither of whom has played in varsity competition.

"The quarterback situation is still undecided. The competition has been very strong ...," assistant head coach Steve Robertson said. "We'll see Saturday night who is going to be our quarterback starting the season."

 Fireflies are big business. Some medical research companies pay up to a penny for each insect. The bioluminescent chemicals in fireflies are used to study cancer, multiple sclerosis and heart disease. But insects aren't the only creatures who have the glowing chemicals. Certain species of bacteria, fungi, worms, fish, mollusks and sponges also light up in yellow, green, blue, or even red. However, mammals, birds, reptiles, amphibians and leafy plants never glow.

Horoscope From The Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY Sept. 4
GENERAL TENDENCIES: There may be some setbacks or difficulties which could delay your routines, so be prepared to handle them. Be tactful and diplomatic in your associations with others.
ARIES (March 21 to April 19): This is not a good day to ask favors of others or to try to force your ambitions. Avoid a friend who has a chip on the shoulder.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You want to get started on a new course of action, but this should be put off. Avoid an official who is angry.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Steer clear of an altercation with your mate today. You are not sure how to handle a duty, so shelve it for a while.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Try to soothe the feelings of an associate, but be sure not to do anything to make the matter worse.
LEO (July 22 to August 21): Use more than usual care to avoid doing any damage to your home or office. Try to regain your lately-lost composure.
VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Don't allow yourself to be talked into a too-expensive entertainment this morning. Protect your health tonight.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Try to help your family with their problems instead of harping on your own. Avoid a friend who is too noisy.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Be wary of reckless drivers on the highway, and use caution in your own driving as well. Use tact in communications.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Forget the financial advice given to you by others who are not experts. Taking such would lead you astray.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Taking on your mate's worries would not be wise at this time. Postpone seeing friends until a later evening.
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Listen to the complaints of others, but don't get personally involved. Be helpful to a friend in trouble.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Give your full attention to civic and credit matters. Be sure to avoid a friend who is acting strangely tonight.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be of a serious nature and very precise in keeping promises and dealing with schoolwork. You progeny would do quite well in business or finances and should have the education slanted along those lines. Teach him or her while young not to be too pushy.

 "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury:
 "Mr. East's contention that my client, West, is guilty of a heinous bridge crime is utterly without merit. He held a useless hand and twice tried frantically to find a playable spot after his partner had reopened the bidding. Thereafter, all he had to do was make the opening lead and follow suit. He tried to score a trick with a ruff by leading his partner's suit, but it was not to be.
 "We fail to see how anything my client did could have injured East. Indeed, we could claim it was his vigorous competitive bidding that permitted the opponents to reach game. But are we suing? Of course not!"
 "I can understand learned counsel trying to distort the facts by accusing East—after all, at the bridge table attack is often the only means of defense.

"As a matter of fact, it is precisely with Mr. West's attack that we take exception. A famous writer once said: 'There is no such thing as a blind opening lead; only deaf opening leaders.' West must have an acute hearing problem.
 "North did not have the six points necessary to keep the bidding open at his first turn. He did not compete at his second or third turns. Only at his fourth opportunity did he raise his partner's suit. Obviously, he was going to produce little in the way of high cards, so the only asset he was likely to have to risk a bid at this vulnerability was the possibility of a ruff.
 "Had West realized that and led a trump, my client would have cleared trumps and declarer would have gone down two tricks!"
 "Guilty as charged. Defendant is sentenced to obtain a good hearing aid immediately."

Glitter Days Of Hollywood's Premieres Disappearing

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hollywood scene was brightened recently by a packed movie premiere of "Dirty Dancing," followed by a boisterous party at Los Angeles' latest "in" spot — Ed Debevic's 1950s diner on LaCienega.

Waitresses in foot-high wigs danced to the wild music on the diner's bar, while such guests as Cher, Rebecca DeMornay, Judge Reinhold, Lea Thompson and the stars of "Dirty Dancing" — Patrick Swayze and Jennifer Gray — submitted to TV interviews between workouts on the dance floor.

It was a well-organized but wild event, part of a campaign to draw attention to the independent Vestron Picture's movie, which has drawn rave reviews as a potential sleeper.

But in a broader sense, the party emphasized the change that has happened to one of Hollywood's hoariest traditions — the movie premiere.

Sid Grauman, the showman who put stars' hands and feet in cement, is generally credited with perfecting the fine art of the premiere. His openings at his Million Dollar, Chinese and Egyptian theaters were extravaganzas, with searchlights scanning the heavens and spotlights on movie stars in their finery.

From the 1930s to the '60s, the studios staged premieres for nearly every major film. The institution hasn't disappeared. Paramount Pictures threw a spectacular for its favorite star, Eddie Murphy, and "Beverly Hills Cop II." Guests saw the movie at Grauman's Chinese, then walked a block on a red carpet to the parking structure roof of the Holiday Inn, which had been converted to a Beverly Hills scene with palm trees, flower gardens and vintage cars.

Universal also tossed a premiere for "Dragnet" and Columbia Pictures for "Ishtar," but such big blasts are rare.

No one regrets the trend more than Army Archerd, who has emceed more premieres than anyone.

"There used to be a premiere every night in December, when the studios brought out their big films," the Daily Variety columnist recalled. "The premieres were up and down Hollywood Boulevard — at the Chinese, the Egyptian, Hollywood Paramount, Pantages. Nowadays it's hard to get people to come to Hollywood except for the Chinese."

"The premiere started to decline with the disappearance of the six major studios, which could turn out their contract players for the openings. Also many of the theaters are gone. ... 'Ishtar' was premiered at the Pliitt in Century City. It's now a multiplex."

Most of today's premieres in Hollywood are benefits for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, American Film Institute and other causes, and they're followed by lavish dinners at hotels or tented parking lots. The same happens in New York, as well, where sometimes grand and imaginative events have been held in subways, Central Park, on boats, in clubs and restaurants as well as hotels and theaters.

Affluent patrons attend, but few stars.

"Where are the big names today?" Archerd said. "Stars like Jack Nicholson, Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman and Richard Dreyfuss won't attend premieres, except maybe for their own films."

That leaves the up and coming actors and those who don't tend to attract the press.

"Nowadays you have to ask some of the 'top' stars how to spell their names," said Nate Cutler, a freelance photographer who has been shooting premieres since 1950. Because of the lack of important names and the proliferation of paparazzi, he rarely covers openings.

"But boy, they used to have some great ones," he recalled. "The most memorable was Mike Todd's for 'Around the World in 80 Days.' He had the premiere at the Carthay Circle and the party at the Beverly Hilton, where he had food flown in from all the countries depicted in the film."

Even though they're not what they used to be, premieres remain a Hollywood fixture. Major companies will spend from $25,000 to $250,000 on a single night's event and not complain. Often a premiere is given to show the stars and filmmakers that the studio is supporting them — even though the movie may be a bomb, such as "Ishtar."

The premiere turns out to be worth the money because the movie can get free advertising on national television from coverage of the event. TV coverage also usually includes a clip from the film.

That's the principal aim of today's premieres: television coverage. The "Dirty Dancing" party attracted Entertainment Tonight, Cable News Network and other camera crews; the local CBS channel even broadcast a live report. Premieres were staged here and in New York, which had a party at Birdland. The local event reportedly cost less than $30,000.

Archerd observes that most of today's premieres are gimmicky and he regrets the decline of the traditional premiere.

"I think it's a great loss of publicity for the film industry," he said. "It also means a loss of income for the tangential industries — dress designers, tux rentals, caterers, limo operators and so forth."

Douglas Edwards: 45 Years As Reporter For CBS News

By PAUL D. COLFORD
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

The car radio was a constant companion during a solo drive to Los Angeles years ago. The sounds changed with the landscape — from big-city rock to Midwest farm reports to talk shows from Denver — but a fixture of the trip was "The World Tonight," anchored by Douglas Edwards out of New York. There was always a CBS affiliate that carried Edwards.

After 45 years with CBS, many of them doing "The World Tonight," the distinguished newsmen says he still thinks of his vast audience in terms suggested by a boss from long ago.

"That was at the Atlanta Journal station, when I was about 18," he recalled the other day. "He told me that there may be a million people tuned in, but to try not to think of them en masse. He said, 'Think of them as groups of two or three, and talk to them, don't shout at them.' That's some of the best advice I ever had."

For his "long-term involvement and continuing contribution to the radio industry," Edwards will receive the National Association of Broadcasters' prestigious Radio Award Sept. 11 at the group's convention in Anaheim, Calif. It sounds like an honor bestowed on one making his way to the door.

However, Edwards, who turned 70 in July, finds himself busy as ever between his afternoon radio reports, midday news feed on television and Sunday TV program, "For Our Times." He has no plans to retire.

"My wife urges it from time to time," he said. "She's a little edgy about my commute each night back to Connecticut. ... But I'm in the third year of a five-year contract. At this juncture, I have the right to pull back and do less if I want. CBS also has the right to pull back and let me do less, down to a consultancy. But it seems that, as I go along, I'm doing more work than I ever did — and enjoying it."

"I've never known anything else really. It's such a great part of my life that I suppose one day I'll say, well, that's it. But I don't know when that's going to be."

He's a white-haired gentleman, crisply attired this day in blue blazer and gray slacks, and his imposing delivery gives way, off microphone, to the manner of a kindly headmaster. Longevity entitles him to strong opinions about the news business.

One concern is the power of affiliate stations to influence network decisions. Another is the brevity of network broadcasts.

"I think it's just too bad that we here at CBS News, where the thrust is all-news and has been for years, don't have at least a 30-minute (radio) news program from 6 to 6:30," he added. "I say that, hearing as I do from time to time the excellent work done by public broadcasting's 'All Things Considered.' I'm impressed by that and I feel that if we're not doing the same thing (90 minutes), then we should do at least a half-hour."

Meantime, Edwards distills the news into six- and 15-minute doses. Asked to describe his news-writing style, he laughed, "I'll be darned if I know what it is."

ABC Scores In First Battle With Nielsen People Meters

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC, which hasn't signed up with the A.C. Nielsen Co. yet to get its TV ratings this season, was the first to release data from the new people-meter system. For obvious reasons.

Results of the new rating method, which Monday, were from big-city markets for that night. ABC got a 7 percent boost under the people-meter system, while CBS and NBC were down 11 and 4 percent, respectively.

ABC and CBS have declined to sign new contracts with Nielsen, complaining that the new, computerized method of measuring audience numbers isn't as accurate as it should be.

The networks buy ratings and release them to the news media. But NBC, the only one of the big three to sign with Nielsen so far, says it won't release the people-meter data until the new season starts later this month.

Nielsen is continuing to provide its numbers to the other two networks, both of which are still negotiating with the company, which has been measuring television audiences for 30 years.

NBC analyst Bill Rubens briefed reporters last week and compared ratings between Nielsen's former system and the people meters that were being tested last season. Those results showed ABC up 1 percent, CBS down 7 percent and NBC down 3 percent.

Program rankings under people meters were about the same. "The Cosby Show" was still No. 1 as of the end of the season, followed by "Family Ties" and "Cheers." But mirroring what ABC said this week, "Monday Night Football" would have ranked ninth under people meters, instead of 13th under the old system.

NBC's "L.A. Law" would have been in the top 20, as would ABC's "Dynasty."

The comparison also showed ABC's "Good Morning America" No. 1 under people meters instead of almost a rating point behind NBC's "Today."

CBS has signed with a rival ratings company, AGB Television Research, which also began using people meters Monday. CBS did about the same under AGB as it did under Nielsen, but the other two networks didn't fare as well under AGB.

CBS and ABC are concerned about people tiring of pushing the buttons on the people meter. CBS also said the system does not accurately measure young viewers who might not be as conscientious as adults about punching in.

Next Tuesday, when the networks normally release the week's Nielsen ratings, there could be mass confusion for the news media. CBS, for instance, plans to release the regular Nielsen ratings, the Nielsen people-meter ratings and AGB people-meter ratings. There could be a lot of argument about who's No. 1.

Here are comparative ratings for Monday's programs — the first number being the old Nielsen rating, the second the Nielsen people-meter rating and the third AGB's people-meter rating:

"Michael Jackson Special," CBS. 17.6; 16.5; 13.9.
"ALF," NBC. 14.9; 13.5; 12.0.
"NFL Monday Night Football," ABC. 14.5; 15.5; 11.6.
"Valerie," NBC. 14.6; 13.2; 13.2.
"Kate & Allie," CBS. 14.1; 12.5; 11.3.
"A Year in the Life" Part II (Monday Night Movie), NBC. 12.1; 12.0; 9.4.
"Newhart," CBS. 17.3; 14.4; 15.5.
"Designing Women," CBS. 16.2; 14.8; 14.8.
"Cagney & Lacey," CBS. 12.3; 11.0; 11.1.

Joyce Brothers To Comment On Psychology Behind News

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — You know what Oliver North said, but Dr. Joyce Brothers will tell you why he said it in a news segment that looks at the psychological issues behind current events.

The segments, called "The Psychology Behind the News," are being offered by USTV and will feature a two-way satellite link that will allow each station news anchor to question Miss Brothers.

"I've really been doing this kind of thing for years on an informal basis," said Miss Brothers. "News-papers and broadcast people call me all the time to ask about the psychological why behind a story."

"About Gary Hart, about Elvis Presley memorabilia and why collectors of the expensive stuff are men and not women. About Col. North and the Contra hearings. I got one call asking me why people were upset about (Supreme Court nominee) Robert Bork's beard. Studies have shown that people generally associate a man with a beard with wisdom."

"But if it's an unruly beard, as Bork's, it signals indecision. The surgeon general, Dr. Koop, has that kind of beard, too, but as a scientist he can be unpredictable. The last thing you want in a judge is indecision."

No starting date has been set for the new program, which she plans to do in one-minute segments on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Then the anchor from each participating station will have one minute to ask a question.

In the pilot, she talks about North and why he was seen as a hero.

The series is the brainchild of George Merlis, who developed "Good Morning America" into a hit and also produced "The CBS Morning News."

DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

"The Dick Cavett Show" and "Entertainment Tonight."

Miss Brothers was in Los Angeles to film a cameo appearance for the first fall season episode of ABC's "Moonlighting."

She played herself on "Mike Hammer" last season. She's also been on "Mr. Belvedere," "Mama's Family" and "Taxi."

"Once a long time ago I played a murderer on 'Ellery Queen.' That was great fun," she said. "Being on the shows often gives me a chance to say something people pick up on. Or it can just be fun. I think psychologists are allowed to have fun."

She was wearing a black and white tweed skirt and short jacket and a dotted blouse which had been made for her for the show.

"I love this suit," she said. "I wear it all the time. It's my lucky outfit." She paused. "Can a psychologist have a lucky outfit?"

She laughed and added: "When people have the least control over fate you have the most superstitions. When they sent the first man to the moon many of the scientists at the space center wore lucky shoes or lucky shirts."

Miss Brothers is no longer a practicing psychologist. "I think now that I don't have a practice I have a much better idea of what interests people and what disturbs people," she said. "In practice you only see five or six people a day. Now, I see and hear from thousands of people all over the country."

She still gives out a lot of advice to people who call her on the telephone or stop her in public.

She writes a monthly column for Good Housekeeping magazine, does a daily radio show for NBC, writes a daily column for King Features Syndicate and does psychologically oriented news features for WABC-TV in New York.

She is married to a physician and has a daughter who is a physician. Although she travels frequently, she said she loves to stay home and cook on weekends.

She carries a tape recorder with her and is constantly seeking information from people. She also sends psychology students to medical meetings to help her keep up on developments.

What is it that interests people the most?

"The most important thing everyone is looking for is 'What's in it for me?'" she said. "After that, 'What's in it for my husband or my children?' People want to know: 'How can I make myself healthier, wealthier, more famous?' Then, and only then, do they think of their family. On the periphery, they want to know how to deal with the people around them."

Conductor Popper Dies

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Music conductor Jan Popper, who fled Hitler's takeover of his native Czechoslovakia and went on to establish opera workshops at leading California universities, has died. He was 79.

Popper, who died of bone cancer Wednesday at Stanford Medical Center, made his last public appearance in January when he conducted the West Bay Opera Company of Palo Alto.

He came to California in 1939 and established an opera workshop at Stanford University, the first of its kind on the West Coast. He established a second workshop at the University of California at Los Angeles, where he started teaching in 1949. He set up a third at the University of California at Berkeley when he spent a year there in 1959.

Popper taught for 26 years at UCLA and retired in June 1975.

He received a Peabody Award in 1955 for a series of public-broadcasting television shows called "Spotlight on Opera."

Sri Lanka formerly was called Ceylon. The island nation is slightly larger than West Virginia. It became independent in 1948. Population is 16.3 million.

Composer-Lyricist Charlie Smalls Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Charlie Smalls, the Tony Award-winning composer and lyricist of the hit musical "The Wiz," died in Belgium during surgery for a burst appendix. He was 43.

Smalls died Aug. 27, said Robert Cranford of Cranford Funeral Home.

The New York native gave his first piano concert at 5 and enrolled at the famed Juilliard music school at 11. During a stint in the Air Force, he wrote a Christmas carol for President John F. Kennedy's daughter, Caroline.

In 1970 he was asked by producer Ken Harper to help turn "The Wizard of Oz" into a contemporary black musical. The show won seven Tonys, including best musical.

Dentist Sues Carson Over Gestapo Joke

NEW YORK (AP) — A dentist who says Johnny Carson hit a nerve with a joke likening dentists to the Gestapo wants to extract $5 million from the comedian's wallet.

Dr. Michael Mendelson of Huntington filed the defamation lawsuit last month in state Supreme Court over a joke told in April 1986 on Carson's "Tonight" show. "According to a recent business report," Carson said, "dentists in the United States are going out of business due to improvements in dental techniques and in the use of fluoride. Imagine dentists going out of business. I haven't been so happy about a group disbanding since the Gestapo."

Cell Stimulant Shows Sign Of Restoring Memory

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Injections of a cell stimulant enlarged shrunken brain cells and eased a memory problem in aged rats, a result that may hold promise for age-related disorders like Alzheimer's disease, researchers reported today.

It is the first time that "nerve growth factor" has been shown to help age-related deficiencies, suggesting a possible application to treatment of such disorders as Alzheimer's, Parkinson's and Lou Gehrig's diseases, said Anders Bjorklund of the University of Lund in Sweden.

In a telephone interview, Bjorklund cautioned that the rats did not have Alzheimer's disease and that the link is "only by analogy."

Another scientist called the results exciting but said major questions remain about application to human disease.

The nerve growth factor was infused continuously into the rats' brains, Bjorklund, professor of neurobiology in the university's department of medical cell research, reports the results in the British journal Nature with Swedish colleagues and scientists at the University of California at San Diego.

Nerve growth factor stimulates nerve cells and helps them survive after injury. It appears to be one of a family of substances produced in the body, Bjorklund said.

Some shriveling of brain cells with age may be related to reduced production of such substances or lessened response to them, but the evidence is unclear, Bjorklund said.

For the study, scientists focused on cells in the rat forebrain that communicate by using a substance called acetylcholine.

The amount of atrophy seen among those cells is related to the rat's degree of impairment in learning and memory, Bjorklund said. A similar relationship has been observed for acetylcholine-using cells and mental performance in Alzheimer's disease, but Alzheimer patients also have other brain abnormalities, he said.

The study focused on 24 rats that had an age-related impairment in learning and memory. A tube was implanted in the brains of 11 rats and connected to a pump that gave a continuous supply of nerve growth factor for four weeks.

Some of the remaining rats were infused instead with an inert substance. All the rats went through two sessions of a test in which they search for a platform submerged in opaque liquid. Normal rats quickly learn its location and memorize it.

In the first test sessions, which began about a week after infusion started, the rats getting the growth factor performed no better than the other impaired rats. But in a test 12 days later they scored significantly better than the others, and equal to aged but non-impaired rats, researchers reported.

Analysis showed the difference came from an improvement in memory, but their deficient learning ability was not improved, the researchers wrote.

Brain cells near the infusion tube recovered partially from shrinkage, while those on the other side of the brain did not, examinations showed.

The findings are "an exciting observation," said Carl Cotman, professor of psychobiology at the University of California at Irvine.

"It's really important to show that you can do something in a mildly interventive way to improve brain function, particularly in the elderly," he said.

But the implication for degenerative human disease is an open-ended question. "We don't know what causes the degeneration in the first place. Maybe we can make healthy cells a little healthier, but can we really take and make unhealthy cells healthy? You just don't know," he said.

The supply of nerve growth factor has been shown to be normal in the brains of Alzheimer's patients, but adding more may still help, he said.

Alzheimer's disease afflicts some 2.5 million Americans, mostly elderly, with losses in memory, learning skills, judgment, and ability to perform routine tasks. No cause or cure is known.

In Canada, They're Up In Arms To Curb Insects That Bite

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

GUELPH, Ontario (AP) — Canada's biting insects are a hardy breed, like the rugged vacationers who endure them every summer in the wilderness, but scientific swat teams keep looking for ways to do them in or at least get them to buzz off.

Canadians spend 200 million of their dollars ($150 million) a year fighting bugs.

From bacterial insecticides to pink pantsuits, new remedies keep coming forward, including some 13,000 commercial repellants evaluated each year and sold by the caseload to hunters and fishermen.

Some species of mosquitoes and blackflies in the arctic north ingeniously produce their own antifreeze to survive the long winter under an insulating blanket of snow, making life miserable for humans when the ice melts.

Experts estimate mosquito populations as high as 5 million an acre in parts of the north, where one researcher recently put his arm into a cloud of hungry insects and got 289 bites in one minute.

A French canoeist trekked six days through the northern wilderness in July after an accident and said she survived only by moving at night when the mosquitoes were quiet and by wrapping herself in a nylon bag to sleep.

"It would have been a horror without that bag," said Lydia Marie Baragan, 24.

In the prairie provinces, insect bites cost livestock farmers 1.5 million Canadian dollars ($1.1 million) a year due to disrupted grazing and calf feeding.

At the University of Guelph, entomologists study dosages and formulations of a new generation of organic pesticides, safe to the environment but deadly to bloodthirsty pests.

Aware that traditional chemicals also harm birds, fish and beneficial insects such as dragonflies, which eat mosquitoes and blackflies, scientists have found a way of using bacteria to destroy biting flies without affecting the rest of the food chain.

"You can put it in a pool and kill all the mosquitoes in 24 hours, but it doesn't harm other insects," said Guelph's leading researcher, Dr. Gord Surgeoner.

The bacterial spore contain a toxin that ruptures the intestines of the mosquitoes and blackflies. The formula is spread over breeding pools in the spring and eaten by insect larvae.

The insecticide is already in use protecting towns, military bases, lumber camps and other isolated sites.

Canada has 74 species of mosquitoes, 110 different blackflies, 180 midges and 132 kinds of horseflies and deerflies, according to the Dr. Mary Galloway of the Biting Fly Center at the University of Manitoba, an information clearing house and research center.

Not all species feed on blood and only females bite. Males feed on plants, their wings beating 300 times a second as they descend. Females need the protein in blood to develop eggs. Most require two to four blood meals in their one year of life and can get it from birds or reptiles as well as mammals.

Ms. Galloway came up with the pink pantsuit theory after discovering that biting flies are attracted by the colors most often worn by outdoorsmen or soldiers: dark green, brown and denim blue.

"They don't land so readily on pastel shades such as pink or yellow," she said.

Surgeoner confirmed her finding on colors but said: "I wouldn't be caught dead in a pink pantsuit in the woods."

Biting flies are attracted from afar by the carbon dioxide mammals exhale, and more closely by body heat, moisture and amino acid content on the skin.

Researchers dismiss most homespun remedies, such as bear grease, not washing, smothering yourself in garlic or consuming lots of vitamin B12.

But they do see merit in the perfume of marigolds, mugwort extract, oil of citronella and eating oranges.

The most common repellant is the chemical formula known as DEET, for diethyl-m-toluamide.

Many Indians and Eskimos claim immunity to bites, but researchers dispute them. They say that natives, who spend more time outdoors, stop reacting to the saliva insects inject to briefly anesthetize victims as they suck out double their body weight in blood.

The worst mosquitoes in Canada are the aedes vexans and aedes hexodontus, but Surgeoner said he was concerned that a new disease-transmitting species called the Asian Tiger Mosquito would soon arrive from the United States.

The Tiger mosquito reached this continent on used tires imported from Asia. The tires were melted down and reprocessed but the mosquitoes hatched and spread out.

"The war against mosquitoes will never be won," Surgeoner said. "We win individual battles for a while, and then they adapt."

WASHINGTON — Fairfax County, Va., high-school science teacher Larry Gaudreault held up a thumb-sized plastic vial, hoping its contents would tell him he was about to duplicate the experiments of Nobel Prize-winning scientists in altering the genetic code of life.

Triumph. "We got some," Gaudreault, science department chairman at Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology, told his lab partner, Mount Vernon (Va.) High School teacher David Givens. "You see that little white spot at the bottom? That's plasmid."

Plasmid is a fragment of deoxyribonucleic acid, or DNA, the building block of life. Gaudreault's experiment was aimed at cutting and pasting that fragment with others and introducing them into bacterial cells, thus altering the bacteria's characteristics.

It is leading-edge biotechnology, the likes of which rarely makes its way into a public school. Gaudreault, Givens and 19 other high-school science teachers in the Washington area spent a week ending in July in the biotechnology laboratory at Thomas Jefferson High in Fairfax County learning the basics of the fermenting field of what is called recombinant DNA research.

Recombinant DNA technology has enabled scientists to make insulin for diabetics, manufacture human growth hormone, isolate the genetic causes of some inherited diseases and create products to help crops resist drought and frost.

Those sophisticated discoveries are not possible at the high-school level, but spokesmen for the workshop's sponsor, Long Island's Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, said the intention is to bring science education up to date with recent discoveries.

The laboratory is sending a van around the country for a three-month project to educate more than 250 biology teachers. Twice as many apply for the workshop as can be accepted.

The $10,000 cost of the visit here was underwritten by the National Science Foundation and Life Technologies Inc.

"There's a revolution going on in biology, but the way biology is being taught in most high schools is like history," said Mark Bloom, the laboratory's DNA Literacy Program manager.

"You need a public who is aware of this technology so they don't have a blind trust in scientists or believe that it's voodoo."

Bloom, who taught the week-long workshop, brought with him a high-priced arsenal of equipment, including $1,000 centrifuges the size of toaster ovens that spin at 12,000 times the force of gravity, and $180 digital pipets that enable scientists to measure an amount of liquid equal to 1 percent of a teardrop.

He also carted along a few tips from the front, including the advice that 1,250-watt blow dryers are more effective in quickly evaporating liquid from a vial than the traditional method of waving one's hands over the vial to create a breeze.

"The best-dressed biologist carries one of these wherever he goes," joked a white-coated teacher, holding a shocking-pink hair dryer over a tube of liquid.

The high-school teachers who came in during their vacation to attend the workshop said it would help them speak with more authority to their students on recent discoveries in biology.

"They ask questions all the time about the new technology, and now I can answer them competently," said West Springfield (Va.) High School teacher Felicia Perdue.

Perdue is lucky; her school has enough equipment to perform some limited DNA experiments, and she plans to introduce the subject to her advanced students.

Perdue carefully inserted a pipet into a vial of liquid as her lab partner, teacher Kathy Turner of Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring, Md., watched.

"This is fun," Turner said. "Isn't it fun?"

"Yeah," replied Perdue, cautiously drawing up a few drops of liquid. She smiled. "It's fun."

FEELS NO PAIN — Dr. Gord Surgeoner, the entomologist at the University of Guelph in Ontario, Canada, smiles while mosquitoes suck his blood during a study conducted to curb the biting insects. Researchers say that people who are frequently bitten stop reacting to the saliva insects inject to briefly anesthetize victims. The experts in Guelph are studying dosages and formulations of a new organic pesticide that would be safe to the environment but deadly to bloodthirsty pests. (AP Laserphoto)

Drug Can Shrink Swollen Prostate Without Surgery

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Prostate trouble, an almost inevitable misery for aging men, is at last yielding to drugs that for many victims will offer an alternative to surgery, researchers reported today.

For now, drugs probably will be used only for those who are too sick to undergo surgery, since the medicine causes impotence. But doctors are already testing other drugs they hope will relieve prostate woes without diminishing sexual ability.

Dr. Patrick Walsh of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore cautioned that even if the medicines work, they are unlikely to replace the routine prostate operation that's performed on 350,000 Americans annually. The operation is simple and safe and provides long-lasting relief. "On the other hand," Walsh said, "there are many men who either are unwilling to have operations, who do not have symptoms severe enough for an operation or who are not well enough for an operation. If and when medical therapy comes along, it will be an option."

A report on drug testing by Walsh and Dr. Craig A. Peters was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine. They found that a medicine that blocks the production of male sex hormones will also shrink enlarged prostate glands. Two-thirds of the men treated with the drug were helped by it.

"We can now see into the future a little bit through this paper," said Dr. Lester Klein of Boston's Beth Israel Hospital. "I think that medical treatment for prostatic hypertrophy is the goal, and it's coming."

An enlarged prostate, what doctors call benign prostatic hypertrophy or hyperplasia, is one of the most common problems of aging in men. When the prostate gets big, it squeezes the urethra, making urination difficult.

About three-quarters of all men over age 50 have some symptoms of prostate enlargement. President Reagan underwent surgery for the condition in January.

The latest study demonstrates that the ailment is caused by male sex hormones. Doctors have long suspected this, and castration was a common treatment during the 1800s.

However, Dr. Richard Babayan of Boston University Medical Center said Walsh's research has helped reveal the role of hormones in the disorder.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain deed of trust executed by Michael R. Lyons and Sam Tabor, to Milton C. Williamson, Trustee, dated July 26, 1985, securing a note in the original principal amount of $130,000.00, and recorded in Book R-54, Page 250, of the Pitt County Registry of Deeds, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by deed of trust and the deed of trust by its terms, being subject to foreclosure; and the holder of the indebtedness having demand a foreclosure for the purposes of satisfying the indebtedness, the undersigned trustee offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Pitt County Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, at 12:00 o'clock Noon, on the 4th day of September, 1987, the lots or parcels of land conveyed in said deed of trust, the same lying and being in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, more particularly described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point on the South bank of the Tar River where once stood a Cypress and which point is further identified as point of intersection of the Eastern property line of Reade Street extended, as it existed in 1946, with the water's edge of the South bank of the Tar River, and runs South 12.5 degrees West 215 feet; thence South 77.5 degrees East 132 feet; thence South 12.5 degrees West 82.5 feet; thence South 77.5 degrees East 132 feet; and thence North 12.5 degrees West 78.5 feet to Tar River and thence up the river with its various courses about 268 feet to the point or place of BEGINNING. It being the same property conveyed to John A. Mayo by deed dated January 8, 1946, recorded in Deed Book 8-54, Page 176, of the Pitt County Registry, and hereby referred to and made a part of this description. Also being the identical property conveyed by deed dated September 1, 1965, from WOOV, Inc., to Charles E. Springer and wife, Rosa Mae Springer, of record in Book L-35, page 331, of the Pitt County Registry.

THERE IS EXCEPTED FROM THE FOREGOING the northern portion thereof set out and described in that certain deed dated March 28, 1968, to the Redevelopment Commission of the City of Greenville which appears of record in Book R-37, Page 89, of the Pitt County Registry, reference to which is hereby directed.

There is also conveyed by this instrument an Easement in certain lands adjoining the above property for a "ground system" of the existing radio tower located on the conveyed premises, which Deed of Easement is dated March 24, 1966, which appears of record in Book K-36, Page 179, of the Pitt County Registry, reference to which is hereby directed.

The sale will be subject to all prior encumbrances, if any, and all ad valorem taxes or other assessments now due or which constitute a lien on the above described lots or parcels of land, and the highest bidder at the sale will be required to deposit with the undersigned trustee ten percent (10%) of the bid.

A LOT OF PEOPLE WANT ISUZUS OFF THE ROAD.

$8,910* To see an Isuzu 4x4 at its best, drive it where conditions are the worst. In the dirt. The snow. And the mud. Even the toughest conditions turn into a joyride. Thanks to features like a 2.3-liter engine. Triple skid plate protection. And, auto-locking front hubs, for easy conversion into four-wheel drive.

The Isuzu 4x4's. After driving one, you may never want to hit the roads again.

Invest in 18th century heirlooms by Henkel-Harris

Henkel-Harris dining furniture is masterfully crafted for generations of elegant dining. Dedicated artisans select only the finest hardwoods for the impeccable interpretation of ageless English and American period designs. Time proven cabinetry and much hand workmanship are employed in the creation of this investment quality collection of 18th century heirloom and reproduction furniture...made to become a valued and beloved family tradition. Large shipment of Dining Room, Bedroom and Occasional Pieces just received! Special Labor Day Weekend Prices on all pieces.

Cherry Towne
... a very special bedroom

Cherry Towne is one of the finest expressions today of a time when furniture was crafted to perfection. Just as their Colonial ancestors had done 200 years before, Mobel craftsmen use only the finest solid Alder hardwoods—no veneers—and apply a rich Cherry finish that's hand rubbed to a special glow. But the quality doesn't stop with all the beauty and elegance. It extends deep—to every construction detail. Like solid unique brass hardware. Or drawer bottoms, dust proofing and backs that are made from genuine wood. There's so much more, but you'll see the inherent beauty from first glance. For this is Mobel's Cherry Towne—the finest.

Shop our special Labor Day Weekend Specials on open stock Cherry Towne Bedroom Grouping. Double or triple dresser with your choice of either tall or low poster bed. Also larger chest on chest or 5 drawer chest with commode night stands.
