GUC Holds $1 Million Increase In Power Rates

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission will absorb a 2 percent wholesale power cost increase rather than pass the $1 million-a-year charge on to customers, the GUC board decided Tuesday night.

Months ago officials had predicted that the Sept. 1 increase, caused by including a portion of the cost of the Shearon Harris nuclear plant into the rate base, could be as much as 8 percent. But the increase by North Carolina Eastern Municipal Power Agency, GUC's wholesale supplier of electricity and part owner (along with Carolina Power & Light Co.) of the Harris plant, was only 2 percent.

So Tuesday, GUC General Manager Malcolm Green said "our customers help us through their participation in Beat-the-Peak" and other load management operations and recommended that the board not pass the increase along to customers.

But Green suggested that the utility will not be able to absorb a predicted 7 percent rake hike expected next August.

The last electric rate increase passed on to GUC customers was in November 1984. And by absorbing the most recent increase, GUC electric rates will probably remain the same for another year.

Beat-the-Peak — which involves the installation of radio controlled switch on water heaters and central air conditioning units — is part of GUC's load management program. The program, designed to shave peak electric system demands and thereby reduce the wholesale power demand charge, also involves voltage adjustments and joint generation projects.

Since January 1985, the load management program has resulted in a savings of some $4.05 million.

Roger Jones, director of electric systems for GUC, reported Tuesday that load management operations during August resulted in a savings of $153,630.

The savings included $23,735 from operation of Beat-the-Peak switches on water heaters, $44,814 through Beat-the-Peak switches on air conditioners, $78,309 through voltage adjustments, and $6,772 through operation of generators at GUC's water plant and Procter & Gamble Paper Products Co.

Green said that because the GUC is absorbing the rate increase, while CP&L passed its rate hike on to residential customers, GUC's residential customers will pay as much as 7.3 percent less for electricity, depending on the amount of current they use.

Manager Coming

Greenville's new city manager, Gregory Knowles of Inkster, Mich., says he will begin organizing his office next Wednesday and expects to be settled in the following day.

Knowles, who was named to his new post by the Greenville City Council Aug. 31, has been released from a 30-day notice contractual requirement by the Inkster City Council.

"At the request of the Greenville City Council, the city of Inkster has allowed me to get out of my contract this Friday," Knowles said today.

Knowles was selected from a field of 177 applicants during a five-month search by the Greenville City Council.

Philippines' Cabinet Resigns

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino's entire Cabinet resigned today to allow her to reorganize a government widely assailed since last month's bloody coup attempt.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno said 28 officials, including the 25 Cabinet members and three others from the Presidential Commission on Good Government, submitted their resignations during a 15-minute emergency Cabinet meeting.

Mrs. Aquino curtly declined to comment on possible personnel changes. Asked by reporters when she would announce the new Cabinet, Mrs. Aquino snapped: "You will know."

Palace sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said she went straight from the meeting to a studio to record an announcement.

"The Cabinet felt it was appropriate for everyone to tender their resignation so that the president can have a totally free hand if she feels a need for a revamp," said Finance Secretary Jaime Ongpin.

Benigno said Vice President Salvador Laurel, who is on a tour of Mindanao, submitted his resignation as foreign affairs secretary by telephone. Laurel remains vice president.

Among those who resigned was Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo, considered the second most powerful person in the government.

The resignations followed growing calls for a government reorganization after the Aug. 28 coup attempt, the most serious challenge to the 18-month Aquino administration. The government has since been widely criticized for lack of leadership.

Arroyo's ouster had been demanded by business and military groups and members of Congress who have urged the government to toughen its stand against Communist rebels and halt a cycle of right-wing coup attempts.

During meetings conducted by Laurel this week, thousands of soldiers cheered calls for the ouster of Arroyo, who the military accuses of anti-military views and Communist sympathies.

Arroyo, a former human rights lawyer, told reporters the resignations have "nothing to do with the military."

But Defense Secretary Rafael Iletto said the armed forces will be watching to see which officials are reappointed.

Asked if the development could help pacify the troops, Iletto said, "In a way, yes, because there is a chance that what we are asking for may be given or may happen," Iletto said. "In the military viewpoint, it will depend on whose resignation will be accepted or would not be accepted."

Airport Land Use Study Under Way

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council should receive the first phase of an airport land use study before the end of the year, according to Bobby Roberson, director of Planning and Community Development.

"The anticipated deadline for us is to have a report to the council by the end of December," Roberson told council members at a workshop Tuesday night.

"It will be the first part of a two-phase program. The first part will identify the needs (of the airport and surrounding area) and the second part will be identifying the implementation portion of the program."

A subcommittee has been formed to examine the problems discussed during joint meetings of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority, the Greenville City Council and Pitt County Commissioners, Roberson said.

"I think the joint meetings that the members of the council had with the County Commissioners certainly helped our position," he said. "It appears the majority of the work will be involving data collection in terms of who owns the property in the approach zones."

Members of the Airport Land Use subcommittee include Roberson; Mayo Allen, acting city manager; Phil Dickerson, county engineer; Jeff Ulma, county planner; Jack Duftus, chairman of the airport authority; Tom Tysinger, city engineer; Mac McCarley, city attorney; City Council member Nancy Jenkins; County Commissioner Charles McLawhorn; John E. Fern, assistant general manager of the Greenville Utilities Commission; James G. Turcotte, airport manager utilities, and city planners Lynne James and Andy Harris.

Roberson told council members representatives of the committee were to visit Fayetteville today where a similar study was recently completed.

During an executive session, council members discussed land acquisition, appointments to the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Cable Television and negotiations with the Eastern Pines Fire & Rescue Department regarding the proposed annexation of the Brook Valley area.

Following the executive session, council members said no action had been taken.

Representatives of the Greenville Community Life Center met with the council during the closed session.

The council appropriated $40,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds to the group for the proposed purchase of the former Agnes Fullilove School building for use as a shelter for the homeless.

At a meeting Tuesday, Pitt County Commissioners delayed a vote on a request by the center for matching funds for the project.

Dr. David Ames, a representative of the group which is seeking funding for the purchase of the property that could be used for a homeless shelter, said the council had asked for a progress report.

"We're going to wait and see what happens," Ames said.

Reflector Staff Writer

Many activities of the 13th annual Ayden Collard Festival will be held on a new, permanent stage near the Ayden Town Hall, said Glenn Bowen, chairman of the event.

"We used to have temporary stages up every year," he said. "Now we have a permanent, outdoor stage."

The stage measures 30 feet by 16 feet and will cost the festival about $600.

Festival events began Tuesday night with a street dance, Bowen said. Music was provided through a live radio broadcast from Kingston.

Today, rides will be open on West Avenue, and "we have a talent contest on the stage in front of Town Hall." Sign-up begins at 6 p.m., and the show begins at 8 p.m.

The beauty pageant will be Thursday in the Ayden Recreation Center auditorium. The nine contestants are Angela Wilson, Angie McLawhorn.

County OKs PCMH Projects, Sewer Work

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners gave their approval to two building projects at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and earmarked money for design work for a sewer to serve an industrial plant location between Ayden and Grifton at a meeting Tuesday.

The board approved contracts totaling $1,303,483 for construction of a birthing center at PCMH after Ralph Hall, vice president for facilities management at the hospital, said $1,248,000 of the cost of the building is coming from a state grant.

Hall said PCMH trustees have appropriated $200,000 toward the project and the East Carolina University medical school is expected to fund the rest of the cost of the project.

Commissioners also approved contracts totaling $875,616 for an addition to the rehabilitation center at the hospital after Hall said the total cost of the addition will be funded by the hospital.

Hall reported that there is "now about $9 million worth of construction work going on" at the hospital and said that, "by the end of the year," an estimated $14 million worth of construction will be under way.

Commissioners also approved $15,000 for design of a sanitary sewer to serve a new $40 million Weyerhaeuser state-of-the-art lumber mill to be built near Hanrahan.

County Engineer Phil Dickerson said the design of the sewer line is needed so installation can begin "on a timely basis" after plant construction is started.

Dickerson told commissioners that the total cost of the sewer service, including engineering, is estimated at $180,000, while the cost of providing water to the site, from Ayden, is estimated at $265,000.

Saying the money for the installation of water and sewer to serve the plant could be appropriated in the county's 1988-1989 budget, Dickerson told the board that the water line will have the potential to serve future residential and other industrial customers and moves closer toward the interconnection of Ayden's and Grifton's water systems.

Commissioners also approved a request from the town of Winterville to allow the county's building inspec-

Jordan Stresses N.C. Ties To National Constitution

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

North Carolinians played a key role in the ratification of the U.S. Constitution, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan told those attending a Constitutional bicentennial luncheon in Greenville Tuesday.

He said that about one-fourth of the men involved in state conventions to ratify the Constitution were North Carolinians — 436 of 1,813.

He said North Carolinians, with him as chairman, are also having a major role in the national celebration of the bicentennial of the Constitution. He said he has been gratified at how well the counties in North Carolina have participated in the observance which will continue for several years. He acknowledged the Pitt Counties gathered for the luncheon for their high level of participation.

The celebration, he said, is meant to be educational for children and adults alike. Earlier in the day, he appeared at local schools to talk about the Constitution and other issues.

During the luncheon, it was noted that Joe Cullipher automobile sales company is giving 2,500 copies of the Constitution to Pitt County school children. Framed copies were presented to Eddie West, superintendent of the Pitt County schools, and Richard Eakin, chancellor of East Carolina University.

Jordan reminded the audience that the North Carolina Constitution predated the federal one by 11 years — in 1776 — and even the chartering of the federal government by five years. He said the federal Constitution in many ways emulated the state one — that North Carolinians had developed a three-branch government first.

One of the major reservations that many North Carolinians had about the Constitution as it was first drawn up, he said, was that it had no Bill of Rights. They were afraid that this document, if ratified, would create a distant centralized power that could — like Great Britain had done — oppress the individuals states and their citizens.

Pay Plan Approved

The Greenville Housing Authority has approved an Arthur Young pay plan study effective Nov. 1 which will adjust the salaries of 27 full-time employees, GHA Executive Director Kenneth E. Noland said.

"The pay plan will be in effect in the first pay period following November 1, 1987," Noland said.

At their monthly meeting Tuesday night, GHA commissioners also approved a guide for preparing the fiscal year 1988 pay plan included in the Arthur Young study.

Commissioners voted to amend GHA bylaws to change the starting times of annual meetings to 6:45 p.m. and monthly meetings to 7 p.m. Noland said the board had been meeting at 7 p.m. for several months and the amendment was necessary to clarify the bylaws.

The panel also authorized the purchase of a sedan for the housing program. Noland said the vehicle would be purchased for general use.

Meanwhile, James E. Barnhill, GHA director of operations, told commissioners a 147-unit painting project is about 56 percent completed.

Barnhill said one unit in Newtown remains to be painted along with units in Hopkins Park.

Director of Resident Affairs Sallye Streeter reported average rent at authority developments in July totaled $125.33. Rent at Meadowbrook was $107.86; Kearney Park, $126.40; Moyewood I, $131.07; Moyewood II, $128.43; Hopkins Park, $131.62; Newtown, $116.00, and West Meadowbrook, $119.49.

Presidential AIDS Panel Launches Work By Defending Reagan Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of President Reagan's AIDS commission today defended the administration's record on battling the deadly disease, saying the government has done an outstanding job.

Dr. William Eugene Mayberry, who was named to head the panel June 25, also said he was not surprised by the furor that has erupted over the president's appointments to the commission.

"I think no matter who had been appointed to the commission, there would be controversy," Mayberry said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America." "There are a lot of issues at stake here and a lot of important concerns that people have, and certainly people want to have their concerns addressed in the way they want them addressed."

The commission plans today to ask four federal officials to outline what the government is already doing to fight the disease.

The panel has arranged to get overviews at the start of two days of public hearings from Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen; Robert E. Windom, who heads the Public Health Service; Surgeon General C. Everett Koop; and William L. Roper, overseer of the federal Medicaid and Medicare programs.

After hearing from those four, all physicians, the commission was to be briefed by government research scientists and then take testimony from a range of private organizations active on AIDS issues.

Mayberry praised efforts to date by government officials, despite criticism from a number of groups.

"I think the federal government to this point in time has done an outstanding job on dealing with the AIDS crisis," he said.

"Look at the record over the last five years. Never over the course of history has a disease entity had as much progress made in a short period of time... I think it's a remarkable achievement."

Controversy surrounding the makeup of the 13-member commission, many of whose members acknowledge they have no particular expertise on acquired immune deficiency syndrome, was underscored Tuesday when two public interest groups called for an expansion of the panel to ensure a balanced report to the president. Officials involved in logistical planning for the hearing said Washington police have been alerted to expect demonstrations outside the hearing.

During the International AIDS Conference here in June, District of Columbia police donned yellow rubber gloves to arrest demonstrators on a street outside the White House.

Reagan appointed Mayberry, chairman of the board of governors of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., as chairman of the panel in June. The other 12 members were designated just over a month ago.

In calling for Reagan to expand the commission, the American Civil Liberties Union and the Public Citizen Health Research Group on Tuesday asserted that its present makeup fails to meet requirements of the Federal Advisory Committee Act.

AIDS is a contagious disease that attacks the body's immune system, rendering it incapable of resisting other diseases and infections. The virus is spread through contact with blood, semen and other bodily fluids from infected persons.

PTL Seeks Damages From Contractor

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The PTL television ministry has accused Kansas construction magnate Roe Messner of conspiring to skim millions of dollars from ministry donors and divert funds to defrocked PTL founder Jim Bakker.

The ministry is seeking $50 million in compensatory and punitive damages from Messner, whose company, Messner Enterprises of Wichita, Kan., was PTL's chief building contractor.

A PTL complaint filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court late Tuesday accused Messner of submitting more than $5.3 million in inflated or phony billings to PTL.

"We held off as long as we could," Norman Roy Grutman, PTL's lead attorney, said today. "We need to know our real obligations."

Messner has not cooperated with PTL officials and has demanded, in essence, "Pay us what we want or you will fail," Grutman said. "He has been intransigent and absolutely obdurate."

"He has showed us nothing. We have not seen any original documents," Grutman said.

What Arthur Andersen, PTL's accounting firm, did see when it reviewed Messner's claims were "millions of dollars of expensive and bogus charges," Grutman said.

Donald Stubbs, Messner's lawyer, was quoted by The Washington Post today as calling the charges "hogwash."

"What they're doing here is ludicrous," he told the Post.

One PTL official described the complaint as a "declaration of war" against Messner, according to the newspaper report.

The ministry, now headed by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, is embroiled in a battle with a group of Bakker loyalists, including Messner.

In June, PTL filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code. The $172 million organization includes a nationwide satellite TV network and the Heritage USA religious retreat in Fort Mill with a luxury hotel and amusement park.

Messner is PTL's largest creditor, with an outstanding claim of more than $14 million.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

Notable Week

Last week was obviously set aside for good news from the research people in medicine. The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration enthusiastically reported on a new drug that, teamed with diet and exercise, may lower risk of heart disease in millions of Americans by reducing cholesterol levels. And from another source, we're told applying a cell stimulant may be helpful in treating such disorders as Alzheimer's, Parkinson's and Lou Gehrig's diseases.

The cholesterol-fighting drug (lovastatin) received FDA approval and may be on the market by the end of September. Clinical trials of lovastatin began in 1984. The drug has special meaning for the half-million Americans who suffer a genetic defect that renders their bodies incapable of maintaining a proper level of cholesterol no matter how healthy their lifestyles.

The director of a Cardiovascular Research Institute in California says lovastatin is more effective than a good diet; and this is regarded as a source for most potential misuse. There is concern the risk lies in doctors who turn to it before being certain that diet and exercise are not working for a particular patient.

The cell-stimulating treatment of certain age-related nerve disorders still has questions hovering in the background. Anders Bjorklund of the University of Lund in Sweden stressed that while experiments with aged rats were highly successful, application of the nerve growth factor to human disease was still in the future. He cautioned that the rats did not have Alzheimer's disease and the link is only be analogy.

Still, scientists in the field find it all fascinating as well as promising. "It's really important to show you can do something in a mildly interventive way to improve brain function, particularly in the elderly", said one.

Cholesterol is the bane of fitness-and-longevity seekers all over the world and few are more avid in the search than Americans. The ongoing war with cholesterol levels makes a readymade cheering section for any easier means of cholesterol control.

Mental frailties among the elderly are dreaded by families all over the land, and presumably even more so among those who are looking ahead to rewards earned in a lifetime of labor.

The treatment involves injections of a cell stimulant which enlarges shrunken brain cells and (among aged rats) eased a memory problem. It was the first time that "nerve growth factor" has been shown to help age-related disorders.

As previously observed, it was a big week for medical researchers.

Federal Dollars

When one considers all the sources, it is not surprising that federal dollars are a mainstay of our state's economy and particularly of certain counties.

North Carolina received $19.9 billion for the period beginning October 1985 and ending September 1986. While the state was last in per capita receipt of federal funds — at $3,225 — it ranked 16th in overall receipt of funds.

The dollar amounts include military, individual benefits, salaries, procurement contracts, grants, loans and loan guarantees.

Onslow and Craven, with their large military installations, ranked at the top of the list in per capital receipts. Onslow got $918.7 million or $7,746 per capita. Craven received $541 million or $7,073 per capita. Cumberland receipts were the largest at $1.5 billion. On a per capita basis, however the county where Ft. Bragg is located received $6,098.

Guilford and Wake were major recipients. Guilford received $1.06 billion which reduced to a per capita basis was $3,270. Wake's receipts were $1.06 billion and on a per capita basis that came to $3,154.

According to the Data Center's analysis, 42.4 percent of North Carolina's federal funds — $8.4 billion — came as payments to individuals. That was primarily retirement benefits including Social Security, Medicare and federal employee retirement benefits.

Federal funds play a huge role in all our lives. Particularly have they impacted some counties of North Carolina. Onslow has Camp Lejeune and Craven has Cherry Point. The payrolls are large at these military installations and it plays an overwhelming part in the economies of the counties where they are located.

In addition Social Security, Medicare and other federal benefits go everywhere. It is all a part of our state's economy which is essential to our stability.

Public Forum

To the editor:

There are thousands of East Carolina University graduates who do not condone the behavior of the ECU students at the N.C. State-ECU football game.

This particular group not only presented the University in a bad light, they also brought disgrace to their parents who I am sure thought they were rearing children and not animals.

The day is long past when chancellors of universities can dismiss such behavior as youthful energy.

I felt for Coach Baker, his staff and fine football team. It was an embarrassing time for them. To represent the university in the outstanding manner in which they did, only to have the victory spoiled by a group of ill-mannered brats is a disgrace those in authority can not permit to happen again.

As an ECU graduate, I would like to apologize to the N.C. State folks and general public and ask them not to judge our great university by the behavior of an ignorant few.

To the editor:

We are indeed fortunate if we can eat our cornflakes with bananas (from Central America) freely and indulge ourselves in the delicious aroma of freshly roasted coffee (likewise). We can breathe happily that school has begun for our children and that there are schools to go to (unlike those destroyed in Central America) and we can be glad that our teachers will be on time in school (not slain at the school site) and that our clinics are ready to receive patients (and have not been burned to the ground). We can be grateful, if not thoughtful, that we are so fortunate.

And we can help others who may not be so lucky. We could start with a stop on Contra Aid. Let us exchange bricks for schools and clinics instead of blood. Let us send school supplies and seeds instead of guns. Let us grow in learning, instead of prejudice. Prejudice is merely to pre-judge. We are all empowered to change. We are fortunate that, in this country, we are permitted to change our opinion. Let's.

Hart Wants To Remain Part Of Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Gary Hart, the unprecedented admissions, before an audience of millions, of sin and bad judgment were clearly a painful moment but a price he was willing to pay for a chance to play a role in shaping the presidential campaign debate in 1988 — or later.

Hart insisted during an interview Tuesday night on ABC-TV's "Nightline" that he had no plans to revive his 1988 presidential candidacy.

"I have no plans to run for president. I want to be part of this debate," Hart said.

For an hour, the former Colorado senator answered questions on late night television, apologizing for the behavior that drove him from the race and admitting he had been unfaithful to his wife, a statement he called "about as painful" as any a public official could make.

Those who hoped the Hart interview would interject some high drama into the campaign were not disappointed.

But the odds remained lengthy that the fallen front-runner's admissions would end public curiosity about his personal life and enable him to contribute to development of the campaign agenda.

Even if the public appetite for further details of Hart's relationship with Miami model Donna Rice were to subside in the weeks ahead, it would be unprecedented for a former candidate to succeed in shaping the agenda for those who remain in the race.

"The system does not absorb ideas in the abstract," former Hart campaign adviser John Holum said. "Ideas must be linked to political possibilities."

"What Gary Hart is saying essentially is 'my new ideas should be part of the agenda,'" said Peter Hart, who was Walter F. Mondale's pollster in 1984. "That may be, but it's pretty hard for the American voters to rally around that kind of a cause.

"There's no touchstone for Gary Hart. How are they supposed to relate to him?"

There was no moving forward for Hart without first confronting the past. That he did, though not as completely as some would have liked.

He recalled that he had refused last spring to answer the question of whether he had ever committed adultery.

"If the question is in the 29 years of my marriage, including two public separations, have I been absolutely and totally faithful to my wife, I regret to say the answer is no," Hart said on "Nightline."

But the question of whether he had committed adultery with Miss Rice remained unanswered.

Hart said he was "never going to answer any specific questions about any individuals. I have no privacy. My wife has privacy; other innocent people have privacy. And I don't care what questions are asked me, I'm not going to answer them on any specific instance.

"I've been forced to make a declaration here that I think is unprecedented in American political history, and I regret it. That question should never have been asked, and I shouldn't have to answer it."

Later, Hart said to interviewer Ted Koppel, "We've been talking about sin here tonight, not crime, but sin and bad judgment."

Time and again he referred to sin.

"The Bible says that being unfaithful is a sin," he said. "It also says we are all sinners. ... And it says further that one of the greatest sins is to waste God-given talent. I've been given some talents. And what I've realized in the last three months is that I cannot waste those talents."

"And I've got to figure out a way to contribute."

Primaries Eliminate Potential Deadlock

Pundits and politicians have been predicting the first deadlocked, multi-ballot presidential conventions in decades. Favorite sons are pondering whether to leap into the fray and dark horses like New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo are urged to keep their stirrups in place.

Those projections are wrong. Democrats have not had a convention that went beyond the first ballot since 1952 and Republicans have not had one since 1948. That is more than coincidence. The death of the long convention is because of fundamental changes in the nature of the presidential nominating process.

The number of serious candidates in each party for 1988 is typical of the age. There were seven Republicans in 1980; seven Democrats in 1972, nine in 1976 and eight in 1984. All of those races ended in first-ballot victories. Moreover, the absence of a Democratic or Republican leader is not unusual.

gates were pawns to be moved around the board by the leaders who controlled them through the astute use of patronage. "In plain vernacular," a friend told Harding in 1920, "you are to be nominated by 15 or 20 bosses."

In order to facilitate bargaining and hold one's delegates for the critical moment, state leaders would rally behind favorite sons and dark horses until the timing was right.

Today, all that has changed. The changes are in part because of the proliferation of primaries, which rid prospective delegates of the necessity of being acceptable to party leaders. In part, too, the changes are because of the waning of patronage, which deprives party leaders of the ability to threaten a recalcitrant delegate with the loss of a job for defying the organization. Delegates are no longer pawns.

When a couple of strong candidates emerge from the Iowa caucuses and New Hampshire primary, there is no way to stop delegates from moving onto their bandwagons. The state party leader in Oklahoma has no way to prevent the Oklahoma delegates from moving to the front-runners of their choice. By the time of the convention, one candidate is able to amass a solid majority.

The multiplicity of primaries destroys the chances of favorite sons and daughters, because most voters in the primaries would rather cast their ballot for a candidate with a real chance at the nomination than for a home-grown politician on an ego trip. As long ago as 1960, John F. Kennedy defeated Oregon Sen.

Wayne Morse in his own state and talked the governor of Ohio, Michael DiSalle, out of a primary that DiSalle would have lost.

Strength For Today

This famous English slave trader of the 16th century had three ships in which he carried his pathetic cargo from Africa to the West Indies. The names of these ships were, The Jesus, The Angel and The Grace of God.

The fact that back in Africa the slave traders hunted these slaves like wild beasts, tore members of families from each other, put them in ships reeking with filth, and then cast the carcasses of nearly a third overboard when they perished on the journey, never seemed to disturb Hawkins.

What Hawkins did with his conscience we are not told, but he must have hogtied it pretty effectively and put it in the hold of his ship. It is well that he did. Had he not, he might have heard a voice on the good ship Jesus saying, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Duke Interest

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Duke Power Co. is considering buying or operating an idle California nuclear power plant that hasn't operated since an emergency shutdown in December 1985.

"A proposal is several weeks away," said William Grigg, Duke Power's executive vice president for finance and administration, referring to the Rancho Seco nuclear plant 25 miles southwest of Sacramento. "We're looking at operating the plant to potentially acquire an interest in it."

Grigg said Tuesday the Charlotte-based utility is "looking at the market for power, the condition of the plant, and whether the reward is worth the risk."

But a possible challenge to any move by Duke surfaced last week when Pacific Gas & Electric Co. sent an unsolicited letter to the Sacramento Municipal Utility District, proposing a consolidation with PG&E. The municipal utility operates the Rancho Seco plant.

Spilled Drink

KANNAPOLIS (AP) — A Kannapolis car dealer is doing a lot of crying over a spilled drink.

Police Monday said Derix Fitzgerald Bell, 16, of Kannapolis had turned out of a driveway when he reached for a drink that was spilling. He lost control of the vehicle and then stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake when he realized the car was heading for Capitol Imports Ltd., police said.

Officers said Bell's car struck two new cars and set off a chain reaction that damaged four more. The damages totaled $23,950.

Damage to Bell's car was $500. Neither he nor his mother, a passenger in his car, were injured.

Lightning

DANBURY, N.C. (AP) — Four visitors to Hanging Rock State Park were injured Monday when lightning struck near the trail on which they were walking.

Park Ranger Tommy Wagoner said the four Greensboro residents were taking shelter from a thunderstorm near a larger boulder when a bolt of lightning struck.

Three of the hikers walked out unassisted and one was carried out by rescue squad members who were in the park answering an earlier call, Wagoner said. All four were taken to Stokes Reynolds Hospital in Danbury for observation.

Inmate Returns

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Graham prison unit inmate who escaped in July has been returned from California, where he turned himself in, prison officials say.

Douglas Fennell, 31, was arrested Monday by the Alamance County Sheriff's Department and charged with escape from a state prison unit. Fennell, who is serving a five-year term for 13 counts of forgery and felonious breaking and entering of a motor vehicle, escaped from his work-release job in Durham on July 17.

Capt. Larry Tingen, the prison unit superintendent, said Fennell had been in custody in California for about two weeks, Tingen said. He was returned to Alamance County Monday.

Murder Charge

GIBSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Guilford County woman has been charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the Aug. 6 shooting death of her husband, police say.

Angela Suits, 25, was charged Tuesday in the slaying of Dickie Ray Suits, 38.

Suits' body was discovered in his heating and air conditioning shop about two miles west of Gibsonville. The body was discovered by one of Suits' employees.

Officers say Suits had been killed by .22-caliber wounds to the chest and the back of the head.

The couple had two children, ages 1 and 2.

Bingo Pleas

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Two Virginia Beach businessmen who admitted bilking investors in a high-stakes bingo game in North Carolina each face up to 10 years in prison and $500,000 in fines.

Sherman Lichty and Leonard Morrison, who also have operated bingo games in Hampton Roads, each pleaded guilty to mail fraud and income tax evasion Tuesday. U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr. set their sentencing for Oct. 22 and released them on $25,000 personal recognizance bonds.

Convictions of mail fraud and income tax evasion each carry maximum sentences of five years in prison and fines of $250,000.

Morrison and Lichty ran Cherokee Bingo Associates, a limited partnership that operated $1 million bingo games at the Cherokee Indian Reservation in North Carolina.

Two Killed As Bus, Trucks Ram Together

POLLOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two people were killed and 12 others were injured Tuesday when a Trailways bus, a tractor-trailer truck and pickup truck collided on U.S. 17 four miles south of here, authorities said.

The victims, both in the pickup truck, were Johnny Franklin Johnson of Rt. 1, Pink Hill, and Randy D. Lee of Rt. 3, Whiteville, the Highway Patrol said.

Ten people on the bus, including the driver, and the driver of the tractor-trailer truck were treated and released at Craven County Hospital.

Trooper P.A. Coombs said the pickup truck collided head-on with a tractor-trailer rig driven by Billy Ray Murrell of Kinston, then collided with the bus. Coombs said the pickup overturned, and the bus landed on top of the pickup truck.

Six More Counties Request Aid

GREENSBORO (AP) — Six more counties have filed for federal drought relief, bringing to 28 the number of North Carolina counties seeking assistance.

Applying for relief Tuesday were Guilford, Alexander, Franklin, Warren, Camden and Cleveland counties. All six counties cited losses in corn, pasture, soybeans, tobacco and sorghum. There is evidence, however, that recent rains might have improved yields of some crops.

On Monday, Burlington withdrew the voluntary conservation measures it had imposed last week. Heavy rains over the weekend filled the city's main reservoir.

The rains caused damage as well. In Lexington, for example, heavy rain apparently caused part of the roof at the Dixie Furniture Co. plant to collapse about 2 a.m. Tuesday, idling 900 workers while repairs were made.

Between Monday night and Tuesday morning, heavy storms dumped 5½ inches of rain at Burlington's main reservoir, filling it to overflowing.

"It came up about 40 inches," said a euphoric William R. Baker, Burlington city manager. "Evidently we had a gully washer. I plan to ride out. I just want to see it going over the dam."

Sri Lanka formerly was called Ceylon. The island nation is slightly larger than West Virginia. It became independent in 1948. Population is 16.3 million.

Hundreds Attend Waste Hearing

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — If any one of the 2,000 people packed into a steamy gymnasium for a public hearing on a possible hazardous waste treatment facility in their county favored the idea, they kept a low profile.

"We don't want it here," Gibsonville Fire Chief James Thomas told members of the state Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission Tuesday night. "Why? It's hazardous. We're not equipped or trained to do this kind of work. We just don't think it should be here."

Later, Rep. Sam Hunt, D-Alamance, brought the crowd to its feet when he asked for a collective expression of opposition.

"Let's hear you roar," he said. The crowd packed into the hot gymnasium was happy to comply.

Kathy Neal, a spokeswoman for the commission, told the Greensboro News & Record the emotional, sometimes heated, responses by residents and local governments has been predictable.

"This is a fairly typical response when people are confronted with something that is frightening to them and about which they don't have much information," she said before the hearings.

The hearings were the first in a series over the next two weeks in counties with sites remaining on the commission's list of finalists. Fourteen sites in five counties still are being considered to host the facility, and the commission is scheduled to select the site by Oct. 1.

"I'm hoping that people will at least give us a chance to tell them what the commission is trying to do," Ms. Neal said.

The roster of speakers at the hearing in the gymnasium at Elon College echoed variations on the theme that the proximity of schools, senior citizens centers, residential areas and businesses make the proposed 56-acre site unsuitable for such a facility.

Meanwhile, in Reidsville, more than 1,000 people crowded the hearing at Reidsville Senior High School, including a woman dressed in white with a gas mask and children who carried hand-painted signs protesting a site beside an industrial park south of the city.

"We're concerned about the selection process that has gone on," said A.P. "Sandy" Sands, a Democratic state senator from Reidsville. "You've taken prime, industrial sites."

The General Assembly created the commission in 1984 to find a site for hazardous waste treatment plant and, if no private operator steps forward, to build and operate a facility.

Plans for the treatment facility include an incinerator and chemical treatment plant with 35 storage tanks ranging in capacity from 1,000 to 50,000 gallons. The facility is expected to treat 90 million pounds of waste a year.

Like many others faced with the prospect of a plant as a neighbor, Louise Noah of Gibsonville said she doesn't want one in her backyard.

"I live within a half-mile of the site. I'm concerned for our health," she said before the hearing, gesturing toward her granddaughter Denise Sipe. "Everybody's against it."

"We think when everything is known we will be eliminated," Gibsonville Town Manager John Bain said. "But we want to make sure the commission gets the message."

Meanwhile Tuesday, Davidson County was tentatively removed from the list of possible locations for the hazardous-waste plant because the land has been sold for a flavoring plant.

Debra Parker, chairwoman of the commission, announced the decision after a Japanese company made plans to build a plant on the site to manufacture artificial flavoring.

"We don't want to interfere with North Carolina's ongoing (industrial) recruitment efforts," Mrs. Parker said.

A formal vote on her decision will be made during a Sept. 17 commission meeting in Raleigh. A public hearing scheduled for Thursday in Lexington was canceled, she said.

KAO, a Japanese food products company, bought the 50-acre site near Lexington from High Point Chemical Corp. Friday.

Davidson County has been trying to recruit new industries, and KAO's location was seen as a major victory for economic development, officials said, adding that the selection of the hazardous waste treatment site threatened to overshadow it.

When the firm pledged to build a large facility in Davidson, the state Department of Commerce convinced the commission to take the tract out of consideration.

Schroeder Testing Status As Candidate

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., says her reputation as a fiscally conservative liberal should not hurt her if she decides to run for the Democratic nomination for president.

"I am standing for what traditional Americans believe in," Mrs. Schroeder said during a stop in Raleigh Tuesday. "For example, traditional Americans believe America is big enough for more than one religion. Traditional Americans believe this is the land of opportunity and people are individuals, and the government should not be your nanny, telling what to do, when to do it, how to do it, what to believe, when to believe it."

Mrs. Schroeder, who was first elected to Congress in 1972 and has been re-elected seven times, has visited 27 states as she tries to decide whether to run for president.

"The energy and enthusiasm have been positively phenomenal," she said, adding that those mean nothing without the organization to channel them.

During a news conference at state Democratic Headquarters, Mrs.

Schroeder said that if the nation wants another seven years of "happy talk," she's not the right candidate.

"If people are ready for a rendezvous with reality, fine, I'll take it on," she said. "If they want Tinkerbell again, I'm not it."

Mrs. Schroeder said she would know more about her fund-raising efforts today when she talks with her campaign manager. She has said she would not run for president without enough financial backing and set a goal of raising $2 million by the end of September.

"I have said I will not run a debt and I'm basically cheap," she said. "... No dough, no go' has been very serious."

Mrs. Schroeder said she discussed education with former Gov. Jim Hunt in a meeting Tuesday before the news conference. She said Hunt told her North Carolina was an open state that has not committed to any one presidential candidate.

Mrs. Schroeder said she understood that some North Carolinians might oppose her because of her votes against the federal tobacco program. But she said she had also voted against programs in Colorado that she did not think were cost efficient.

"I think tobacco farmers really need the federal government working much more for them to get markets," she said. "... All farmers, we've tried to make subsidy junkies out of them during the whole Reagan administration. ... The bottom line problem across the board in all areas of agriculture is we've lost the markets."

Suits Force Prison Changes

RALEIGH (AP) — The Department of Correction has announced 24 personnel changes, including new wardens for Central Prison and the state women's prison in Raleigh.

Correction Secretary Aaron Johnson said Tuesday the shakeup had been forced, in part, by successful inmate lawsuits.

"Because of these lawsuits, we're having to do business differently," Johnson said. "When I say 'business differently,' I mean according to the Constitution. In another year, less than a year now, we're going to go in to court in a class action suit on the 48 field units. Ultimately, what we're trying to do is devise a system that we believe will be constitutional and accepted by a federal court."

Joseph Hamilton, the new director of the Division of Prisons, said he had asked seven people to take demotions "for the good of the organization."

Only one person, D.P. O'Dea was fired. O'Dea was superintendent at Piedmont Correctional Center in Salisbury. Hamilton said the department needed "a change of leadership" at the Piedmont unit.

Nathan Rice, the warden at Central Prison, will be promoted to head the division's Specialized Institutions. He will be replaced by deputy warden Gary Dixon.

Jennie Lancaster, superintendent of the Correction Center for Women, will become statewide chief of program services. She will be replaced by Faye Lassiter, assistant superintendent for programs at the women's prison.

Toxic Chemicals Found In Creek

RALEIGH (AP) — Toxic chemicals in concentrations as high as 330 times above state water-quality standards have been found in a swamp and creek north of Wilson, preliminary tests indicate.

The threat to human health or the environment remained unclear, Paul Wilms, director of the state Division of Environmental Management, said Tuesday. But he said the levels of chemicals like lead and mercury appeared "very serious."

"They are sufficiently high to warrant action — first of all, assessment of the damage, and secondly, enforcement," Wilms told the News and Observer of Raleigh. "All of them concern me. They can all be toxic in certain situations."

Wilms said the state must determine the source of the chemicals.

The tests followed the state's discovery Aug. 3 of an illegal waste discharge from the Foster-Forbes Glass Division of American national Can Co. The company was cited for pumping industrial waste into a swamp, but is contesting the charge.

The drainage area around the plant flows away from Wilson's two drinking water reservoirs. But county officials said that a few private wells could be affected if the chemicals got into the groundwater.

U.S. Officials Delighted Ortega Planning Another Trip To Moscow

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are delighted by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega's planned trip to Moscow, believing it will give a boost to the White House's troubled campaign to aid the Contra rebels.

"Whoever is planning Danny Ortega's schedule is obviously on our side," one White House official said Tuesday. "We love it."

"It's hard to believe he would do it," said another official, who like the first, spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Publicly, the administration declined comment about the trip.

Two years ago, Ortega made his first official visit to Moscow, after the Democratic-controlled House had voted down an aid package for the Contras. Angered by Ortega's trip, the House quickly reversed itself and approved Contra funds.

Central American peace plan is to go into effect.

The only comment from presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was to question whether Ortega was "visiting the homeland."

The Washington Times today quoted White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker as saying it was "as bad a political maneuver as Ortega could think up."

State Department spokesman Charles Redman noted that the Soviet Union and Nicaragua have been close friends since the start of the Sandinista revolution.

President Reagan, in a speech, said the United States should resolve to help the Contras if the new peace accord fails to produce democracy in Nicaragua.

"Let's be clear about one thing," Reagan said. "We will not abandon our friends in Nicaragua. We share their desire for peace, prosperity and democracy. And we will support them in that quest, just as we've supported them in the past."

The president said "if the recent peace agreement does not work, let's resolve that they will be able to count on our continuing assistance until Nicaragua is a genuine democracy."

Speaking in the East Room to political appointees in his administration, Reagan acknowledged that, "In recent weeks the issue in Central America seems at times to have become confused — who is proposing what, how many likely votes are there on Capitol Hill for this or that."

"But the real issue has never changed: the real issue is peace and democracy in Central America and the national security of the United States," he said.

To have democracy, he said, the Nicaraguan government must declare an immediate cease-fire and a general amnesty, accompanied by "the negotiated release of the thousands of political prisoners now held in Sandinista jails, a firm date for free, contested and internationally supervised national elections and the immediate recognition of fundamental human rights."

In the view of many administration officials, proposals to aid the Contras in Nicaragua have been seriously jeopardized by the Central American peace agreement signed a month ago. The accord, signed by five Central American presidents, demands an end to U.S. aid to the Contras and gives the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua until Nov. 7 to arrange a cease-fire and undertake democratic reforms.

The current allocation of $100 million in U.S. military aid to the Contras expires Sept. 30. Administration officials have said the peace process will tilt the balance in Congress against any renewal of military aid.

The best the Contras can hope for over the short term is for humanitarian aid, the officials said. They expressed fears that the Contras will become demoralized and cease to become an effective fighting force, leaving the way open for the Sandinistas to renege on their democratic promises.

However, Fitzwater termed the pessimistic analysis "unfortunate and not characteristic of top government officials, certainly at least the president and the White House staff" and Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

Hoping Ortega's plan will have the same impact again, the administration adopted a low-key stand about the announcement that the Nicaraguan leader will be in Moscow to celebrate the Russian Revolution on Nov. 7, the day a newly signed

Best In Five Years

Shultz Praises Soviet Relations

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the United States and the Soviet Union are better able to deal with the problems that afflict their relationship than at any time in his more than five years on the job.

Shultz, in an interview Tuesday, also said the ban on intermediate-range nuclear weapons nearing completion in Geneva would be "the strongest of any arms control agreement we've ever had."

While the schedule for dismantling the weapons still must be determined, Shultz said the decision to eliminate all U.S. and Soviet weapons of that type makes anti-cheating arrangements "much simpler."

Shultz told reporters from The Associated Press and United Press International that, despite some strains, U.S.-Soviet relations now are "on the whole, businesslike and straightforward."

"There certainly is a great contrast between now and what I observed when I became secretary of state" in July 1982, Shultz said. "There has been a great growth in the amount of things we are discussing in a businesslike and straightforward manner, and so in a sense, the relationship is a better relationship."

His first full year, 1983, was marked, for instance, by a Soviet walkout from arms control negotiations in Geneva, the Soviets' downing of a South Korean KAL airliner with 269 people aboard and a speech by President Reagan denouncing the Soviet Union as an "evil empire."

Shultz meets in Washington next week with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, and an administration source who requested anonymity said the two will sign an agreement reached previously to enhance communication between the superpowers.

Under the agreement, announced in May, the nations are to establish "nuclear risk reduction centers" in their capitals to increase communication and reduce the chance of nuclear conflict resulting from misinterpretation of each other's actions.

Shultz said that during the talks themselves, he and Shevardnadze will discuss human rights, arms control and a number of regional and bilateral issues. Shultz steered clear of predicting the talks would lead to a summit meeting between Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"I don't know about that," Shultz said. "This is to be seen as a regular, businesslike meeting."

However, Marlin Fitzwater, the presidential spokesman, said at the White House that Shultz and Shevardnadze "no doubt will discuss a summit possibility" and "presumably iron out any final details of the arms control negotiations."

Among the unresolved issues, Shultz said, is the schedule for dismantling U.S. and Soviet missiles. The Soviets have 462 deployed in Europe and 221 in their Asian territories. There are 332 U.S. missiles in West Germany, Britain, Italy and Belgium.

"We certainly don't want to get down to zero before they do," Shultz said. "And one can well argue that they should get to where we are before we start reducing so that we have equality."

Italians Break Up Major Arms Ring

ROME (AP) — Investigating magistrates say they have broken up an illegal international arms ring that delivered Italian mines to Iran and involved Middle East terrorists, Syrian agents, Sicilian Mafiosi and European middlemen.

At least 34 people, including Italian industrialist Ferdinando Borletti, have been arrested in the past few days in what Italian news media dubbed "Italy's Irangate scandal."

No government officials were implicated.

In the latest arrest, Aldo Anghessa, a mysterious arms trader who left a briefcase full of incriminating documents in a hotel room, turned himself into police Tuesday. Eleven people are still being sought.

Rome's La Repubblica newspaper said Monday the dealings involved a plot to assassinate President Reagan in Venice last June by shooting down his helicopter.

There was no official confirmation of that, but authorities say the case will have wide repercussions throughout Europe.

Italy bans military sales to Iran, Iraq, Syria and Libya.

Coal Royalties Skipped

GAO Cites Loss Of $187 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bureau of Land Management has taken steps to correct mistakes that cost taxpayers an estimated $187 million in lost coal royalty and rental revenues, a new congressional study says.

The study by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, said the BLM failed to collect the money from companies mining coal on federal land from 1976 through 1984.

But the study said the BLM greatly improved its collections performance from January 1985 through last September in the five states the GAO surveyed: Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

The study, released Tuesday by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., focused on the Interior Department's implementation of the law requiring reviews every 10 years of the terms of coal leases between BLM and mining companies.

GAO said the bulk of the money was lost because the bureau was from one to four years late in reviewing 119 of the 241 leases coming due for readjustment from 1976 through 1984.

For another 30 leases, BLM's attempts to readjust them to increase royalty and rental charges were denied by an Interior appeals board because the bureau was late in telling coal companies of the pending 10-year reviews, GAO said.

The study said BLM greatly improved its performance by carrying out timely reviews on 87 of 88 leases between January 1985 and September 1986, losing only $1,038 because it was two months late readjusting a lease in Utah.

GAO also said the Treasury could lose another $11.9 million because of problems with bonds that coal companies are required to have in order to ensure that royalties and rents are paid.

The study said the money is at risk because BLM did not increase the bond amounts for 30 companies while they appealed higher lease rates ordered by the bureau following a 10-year review.

The report said BLM is in the process of revising its regulations to ensure that its district offices increase required bond amounts when royalty and rental charges are raised, even if a company appeals.

Synar, chairman of the House Government Operations environment, energy and natural resources subcommittee and a frequent critic of BLM, said he hopes the problems cited by GAO are coming to an end.

"With billion-dollar deficits, we simply cannot afford multimillion dollar mistakes," he said in a prepared statement accompanying the study.

GIANT ROSARY — Miami Archbishop Edward A. McCarthy on Tuesday blessed a giant rosary dangling from an apartment building just north of the route Pope John Paul II will take on Thursday. The rosary consists of 50 Styrofoam beads, each 2 feet by 8 inches, extending 80 feet across the building and hanging over a 12-foot by 8-foot wooden cross. (AP Laserphoto)

Preparations Rushed For Visits By Pope

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer
Carpenters pounded nails into place on outdoor altars, security teams welded manhole covers and church officials scrambled to meet budgets today as cities from coast to coast prepared for the pope's second U.S. tour.

In Miami, the first of nine cities John Paul II will visit in 10 days beginning Thursday, Archbishop Edward A. McCarthy set a tone of public celebration Tuesday by blessing a giant rosary dangling from a downtown apartment building. The rosary consisted of 50 Styrofoam beads, each 2 feet by 8 inches, extending 80 feet across the building and hanging over a 12-foot-by-8-foot wooden cross.

From Miami, the pope will fly to Columbia, S.C., then New Orleans; San Antonio, Texas; Phoenix, Ariz.; Los Angeles; Monterey, Calif.; and San Francisco. His final U.S. stop is in Detroit, but before heading back to Rome, he will visit Fort Simpson in Canada's Northwest Territories on Sept. 20.

Most of the stops are in the Sunbelt, where the Hispanic population plays an increasingly vital role among the nation's 53 million Roman Catholics, and where the pope's visit is sure to produce huge crowds.

In Phoenix, for instance, so many people are expected to throng the streets Monday that the U.S. Postal Service said mail delivery might be postponed a day.

Aside from that possible complication, Phoenix Bishop Thomas J. O'Brien said "every 'i' has been dotted and every 't' has been crossed" in the way of preparations. "I'm sure that some little things will come up that we haven't anticipated, but we believe all of the major areas have been covered."

Not quite all the money, however. O'Brien said a special collection would be taken up in churches Sunday in hopes of raising the last $150,000 of the $1.5 million budgeted for the visit.

In San Antonio, the Rev. Larry Stuebben, chairman of the Texas Papal Visit Committee, said a $2.5 million goal was still $600,000 short, but he remained optimistic.

In each city along his route, the pope, who survived a May 1981 assassination attempt in St. Peter's Square in Rome, will ride in an enclosed, bulletproof car known as the "Popemobile." Police, National Guardsmen and Secret Service agents plan to divert rush-hour traffic, weld manholes shut, station sharpshooters on roofs and even make airliners change course.

During his first stop, in Miami, the pope will be protected by 2,000 Dade police officers, 1,000 Miami officers, 2,400 National Guardsmen, 900 state troopers, scores of Secret Service agents and a contingent from the Vatican's own Swiss Guard. They'll be equipped with rifles, bomb-sniffing dogs, 9mm automatics and pistol-grip grenade launchers.

"This will certainly be the biggest combined law enforcement effort in South Florida's history," said Jack Kippenberger, special agent in charge of Miami's Secret Service office.

Falwell To Pay Off By Taking A 'Dive'

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — In a moment both supporters and detractors will watch with relish, the Rev. Jerry Falwell said he will plunge down PTL's 52-foot water slide here Thursday to fulfill a fund-raising promise.

Even if it means breaking his "fool neck."

Falwell announced Tuesday that the television ministry and Christian theme park had met two fund-raising goals for Labor Day.

PTL raised $20 million by Labor Day — money he said the ministry needed to survive. Falwell also said that as of Monday, more than 1,000 people joined the Resurrection Committee by pledging at $1,000 apiece.

Falwell said in May that he would go down the theme park's water slide in Fort Mill if 1,000 people joined the Resurrection Committee by Labor Day.

Falwell on that day cajoled the jolly co-host of PTL, Doug Oldham, to take the slippery slide with him. But Falwell spokesman Mark DeMoss said Tuesday Oldham was "off the hook."

Falwell, PTL's husky, 6-foot-4, board chairman, said he will be wearing "my navy blue suit, necktie, shoes and all" and said he would say a few words at the top of the slide. "I realize it may be my last sermon."

"I may break my fool neck but I'm going down that water slide," Falwell told viewers of the "PTL Club" television show, with a shake of his head and a grip. "I invite you to watch this idiot do it."

Hart Will Stay Out Of '88 Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Democratic presidential front-runner Gary Hart, grappling with the issue that drove him from the 1988 campaign, admits he has committed adultery and says he doesn't plan to re-enter the race even though he still wants to be "part of this debate" over the country's future.

"I'm not running for president," Hart said in a 60-minute appearance on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program Tuesday night. "I have no plans to run for president."

The former Colorado senator was contrite and defiant by turns during the question and answer session, which he concluded with an emotional apology to his children, Andrea and John.

"I just want to say to one very special young woman and young man how sorry I am for letting them down for many others like them. Have courage, we are not defeated and we will not be. I will find some way, I promise you, to continue on," he said.

Thus ended an extraordinary late-night television session in which Hart took full responsibility for the "serious mistake" of keeping company with Miami model Donna Rice. Questions about his relationship with Miss Rice led to Hart's withdrawal last May 8, at a time when he was the prohibitive front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I made a serious mistake. I should not have been in the company of any woman who was not a friend of mine or my wife," Hart said. "I should not have been with Miss Rice."

"I am totally and fully responsible for my own actions and I want to say to everyone how sorry I am. I want to apologize to you for those actions," Hart said.

Hart has stayed out of the public spotlight since his withdrawal from the race, and his appearance on the television program marked the beginning of his re-emergence as a public figure. He said he plans to meet later today with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, and has scheduled a speech in Philadelphia on Thursday that marks the start of a series of such addresses.

Asked by interviewer Ted Koppel whether he had an affair with Miss Rice, Hart refused to answer directly.

"If the question is in the 29 years of my marriage, including two public separations, have I been absolutely and totally faithful to my wife, I regret to say the answer is no."

"But I also am never going to answer any specific questions about any individuals," he said.

"I am entitled, Mr. Koppel, since I have made a confession tonight ... to have my judgment put in some legitimate perspective. I have exercised bad judgment, but as I have indicated, not as bad as some others," he said.

Computer Helps Students

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer
GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — When a Mesa College student first turns in a writing assignment for Richard Berkey's English composition class, Berkey never sees it.

Instead, a computer produces a critique, complete with flagged misspellings and grammatical errors, and advises the student how to shape it up.

"It not only helps with English class assignments, but we've found that students are running their papers through on all of their classes, and most of them will raise their grade by at least one letter just by doing this," Berkey said.

The program was developed by AT&T and fine-tuned at Colorado State University and again at Mesa by Berkey and Jerry Nolan of the college's computer services staff.

The Mesa College program demands less from the students, "not necessarily dumbing down, but setting goals our students can reach," Berkey said.

"You could program a computer for any type of writing — academic, technical or news," Nolan said. "It would depend on what you wanted it to do."

Berkey said most freshmen writers used the passive voice too often, relied on slang too much and reached for vocabulary that was too advanced for what they were trying to say.

"We try to get them to use active language, and the computer will point out specific sentences," he said. "We like less than one preposition per sentence, and this will point out the 'wooly' words that you shouldn't use, like prioritize and plausible deniability."

When students rewrite an assignment based on the computer's pointers, their grades rise, almost without exception, he said.

What hasn't been mastered yet, Nolan said, is directing a computer to analyze punctuation.

"It's tough for computers to deal with commas. They have a hard time with any internal punctuation and we haven't figured it out yet," he said.

The computer isn't always right, a fact Berkey says he constantly stresses to his students.

Since it has a dictionary limited to 100,000 words, the computer will point out correctly spelled words as wrongly spelled if that particular word is not in the program.

Berkey says he's lucky if most of his freshmen students can write at the sixth- or seventh-grade level.

"I really have to work with them to write complex sentences and longer sentences," he said. "What we're seeing with this program is students are expanding the use of it. They're putting in research papers from all their classes."

"With this, professors are getting second and third drafts instead of just the rough one."

Nolan said the computer's big advantage was the students' acceptance of it.

"A computer is impartial and not intimidating at all to these kids," he said. "An actual professor can be very scary."

Daughter-In-Law Is Slack In Writing Thank-You Notes

DEAR ABBY: My very good friend "Wanda" is also my neighbor. Our children grew up together. Wanda's son got married about five months ago. Wanda didn't care very much for the girl. She didn't think she was good enough for her son, but now that they are married, she's trying to accept it.

My wedding gift to this couple was selected with much care, and because I am so close to the family I spent more than I usually do for a wedding gift.

I have not had any kind of thank-you for my gift. Wanda would flip if she knew her daughter-in-law had not written her thank-you notes. (At least, I didn't get one.)

Should I tell Wanda I haven't received a thank-you note yet? If it were my son, I would want to know. Maybe the note got lost in the mail. What should I do? — NOT THANK-ED

DEAR NOT: For heaven's sake, don't tell Wanda. Why give her further reason to dislike a daughter-in-law she's already having trouble accepting? If you believe the note could have been lost in the mail — or was misaddressed — get in touch with the couple. And don't "blame" the bride. A wedding gift is intended for both husband and wife, and the responsibility for acknowledging wedding gifts is now frequently shared.

DEAR ABBY: My husband travels for his business about three or four days a month. We've been married for four years, and I really do love him. One of my friends (she's divorced) invited me to her place for a party, and she had a lot of unattached guys and girls there. Anyway, I got very drunk and went to bed with a guy I had never seen before. I couldn't believe it until he showed me the evidence; he had some guy take pictures of us "in the act."

Now I am being blackmailed. The guy I went to bed with is a big coke user and he is hitting me up for money. I don't have a whole lot, but I'm not about to help him support his habit. I've given him $100 twice, then $50 another time, with a promise to give him more when I get it.

What should I do? If my husband finds out about this, it will be the end of our marriage. He's such a sweet, trusting man. I am not a tramp. I know this is blackmail, but I can't go to the police. Help me, please! — IN A MESS

DEAR IN: You must go straight to the police and short-circuit this blackmailer, then tell your husband exactly what happened. It won't be easy, but it's the most intelligent way to resolve this mess. (Did it ever occur to you that you were set up? I think you were.)

DEAR ABBY: "Missing Calls" complained because people would hang up instead of leaving a message on the answering machine provided for that purpose.

You said, "Don't sweat it — they'll call back."

You're so right. And when they do call back, it's with scoldings: "I've been calling you for days — you're the hardest person to get hold of!" They also ask nosy questions such as: "Where have you been?" And, "How long does it take you to get home from work, anyhow?" Some tell outright lies: "I let the phone ring 20 times!"

Please tell "Missing Calls" she ain't missing much. — WAIT FOR THE BEEP

Mohair-Blend Vest Ready For The Fall

Here's just the sweater you've been looking for to get you in the mood for fall and winter. It is knitted with a soft, brushed acrylic and mohair yarn with the feel of angora. This flattering vest lets you create a pattern stitch the easy way — with one size needle used for the garter stitch rows and a larger size used for the stockinette rows. Nothing could be simpler — or more effective.

The vest is made in two straight pieces with a minimum of finishing needed. The gauge is three stitches to the inch, and easy-to-follow directions are given for small, medium and large sizes with finished bust measurements of 36, 40 and 44 inches respectively.

To obtain directions for making the Fall Preview vest, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-090687 with $2 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-090687 by sending a check or money order for $10.95 for small or medium or $13.95 for large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, and yarn in your choice of dusty rose, teal or sand.

Dear Pat: I am one of those "social outcasts" who still smokes, and — much to my horror — recently burned a hole in an expensive cashmere sweater. Happily, a friend made a great suggestion that I would like to share with others.

She told me to embroider a daisy over the hole, and it worked like a charm. I made the center of the daisy over the hole using satin stitch, and worked a stem and leaves with the outline stitch.

Then I had my own inspiration. I added two more — totally unnecessary — daisies and had a lovely floral spray design. Not only is no one the wiser, I now get more compliments than I did before the embroidery was added. — Nancy From Nebraska

Dear Pat: I saw a raglan cardigan that had a miniature cable in the middle of each raglan seam line and would like to create the same effect. Can you tell me how this could be done? — Alice M., Providence, R.I.

Dear Alice: I can see how it could be done with a yoke worked in one piece on circular needles. Use any basic knit-from-the-neck-down raglan pattern, perhaps adding a couple of extra stitches at each raglan seam line.

On the foundation row, place the marker 3 stitches before and 3 stitches after each seam line. On the 6 stitches between each marker, work the Mock Cable Pattern described below. At the same time, on every right-side row, increase 1 stitch before and 1 stitch after each cable pattern.

For the Mock Cable Pattern, starting with a wrong-side row, work as follows: Row 1: Knit 2, purl 2, knit 2. Row 2: Purl 2, knit 2, purl 2. Row 3: Knit 2, purl 2, knit 2. Row 4: Purl 2; knit 2 together, leave both stitches on the needle and then knit 1 in the first of these 2 stitches, slipping both stitches off the needle at this point; purl 2. Repeat these 4 rows over and over for pattern.

If you were working in rounds on your circular needle, as you would for a pullover sweater, all rounds would be worked on the right side, so you would have a slight difference in the pattern row.

In this case, Rows 1 and 3 would be worked exactly the same as Row 2 above, and, of course, Row 4 would be worked the same as Row 4 above. Also, your increases would be worked on Rows 2 and 4.

As I always do when testing a new idea, I worked a sample swatch to see how I liked the effect. I liked it so

Pat's Pointers

well that I am eager to work a sweater using this idea. When I will do so is another matter, as I currently have four projects in the works and have promised myself not to start another until at least a couple of them are finished.

Dare Zoning

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Dare County's board of commissioners has adopted minimal zoning for Hatteras and Colington islands, following years of fierce opposition by developers and other residents.

The board's action Tuesday followed several public hearings on the county's zoning plans late last month, where residents strongly supported the action. No one objected to the board's action Tuesday.

Past attempts at zoning the county's unincorporated areas — particularly Hatteras Island — had met with strong resistance when islanders fought off what they perceived as government meddling and unwanted land control. The last such proposal was defeated in 1983.

The new zoning permits nearly any type of development, with controls only on height and setback limits.

State Calls For 1-Year Hiatus

From Staff and Wire Reports

RALEIGH — North Carolina State University has decided to call a one-year moratorium on the football series between the Wolfpack and East Carolina, N.C. State Athletic Director Jim Valvano said today.

North Carolina State Athletic Council gave its recommendation to Valvano last night after meeting to discuss the melee at the end of Saturday's game between the two teams. The Athletic Council would not announce its decision Tuesday, but council members said it was unanimous.

Valvano, in a prepared statement, said the recommendation was forwarded this morning to Chancellor Bruce Poulton. Poulton was in a meeting, but his office said the statement would not have been released without his approval.

ECU officials have been notified of the decision, Valvano said.

The Athletic Council also recommended that the two schools meet to discuss the future status of the series.

"Top priorities of the dialogue are that, if the series should continue, future games be conducted with safety, sportsmanship and integrity," Valvano said.

Valvano said the discussions would begin shortly and should conclude by Jan. 1, 1988. He said a statement would be issued then about the future of the series.

Meanwhile, Dr. Richard Eakin, chancellor of East Carolina, said he had not been informed of the decision as of 11:30 a.m. "Until I hear personally from North Carolina State and have an opportunity to learn from (Poulton), I will not have any statement."

Head football coach Art Baker was out of town and unavailable for comment this morning. Athletic Director Ken Karr was in Greenville, but could not be reached.

Dr. Eakin, in a press conference on Monday, said he hoped to be able to sit down with the Poulton and members of the N.C. State athletic council and talk about solutions to the problem in the next few weeks.

The ECU chancellor apologized for the fans' behavior while attending the game in the company of Poulton. He also sent a formal written apology to State officials on Tuesday, asking for the meeting with them.

"I believe it would be a mistake (to end the series)," Dr. Eakin said on Monday. "The majority of our fans did not participate in this misconduct and were very upset by it. But let's not throw the baby out with the bathwater."

Poulton asked the council, which serves as an advisory group, to call a special session to discuss the series following Saturday night's 32-14 ECU victory over N.C. State at Carter-Finley Stadium in Raleigh.

More than 50 people were injured in a post-game celebration when nearly 2,000 fans, most of them ECU supporters, crashed through a restraining fence in the south end zone of the stadium and mangled two goal posts on the field. Damages to the field and stadium were estimated at $7,200, Valvano said Tuesday.

An N.C. State University public safety officer was injured in the post-game brawl. Robert W. Malason's right eye was injured when he tried to pull an ECU fan from a goal post at the north end of the stadium. The officer has reportedly identified his assailant.

Maj. Larry Liles of the NCSU Public Safety Department said the young man accused in the attack was picked out from a videotape of the game made by WRAL-TV. The accused, who was wearing a purple pullover shirt, was singled out by the injured officer, Robert W. Malason, a life safety inspector with the public safety department.

Malason went by the station Monday, viewed the video and "definitely could pick out the person who assaulted him," Liles said.

Liles said the department's investigative unit is in charge of tracking down the man, who is believed to be an ECU student. Liles said investigators will review the video, possibly make a copy of it, then ask for assistance from ECU's campus police.

North Pitt, Conley Set To Clash

By TOM MORRIS

Reflector Sports Writer

As far as North Pitt coach Larry Bolger is concerned, the outcome of the Panthers' game against D.H. Conley Friday night could well be decided in the pits.

"It's going to come down to who can control the line of scrimmage," he said. "They (the Vikings) moved the ball real well against a very good Ayden-Grifton defense."

North Pitt is coming off a 26-8 win over North Edgecombe while Conley fell to Ayden-Grifton, 33-6.

For North Pitt, the game was the second without the services of quarterback Calvin Hunter, who injured his foot early in the opening game.

In his stead the Panthers have used David Sawyer and with the change, the offense has become more power oriented.

"We were very pleased with the offensive and defensive lines," Bolger said. "I think both lines did a excellent job of controlling the line of scrimmage."

"We had over 200 yards on ground and it was all power oriented. When you can do that, you can grind out yardage and you can take time off the clock."

Hunter's status is still up in the air, according to Bolger.

"It's still hard to say," he said. "He's still in a cast. He's trying to put some weight on the foot. We're just trying to nurse him along slowly. We hope we'll have him for four or five conference games."

Bolger, however, has been happy with Sawyer's play.

"He's come along very well," he said. "We're a little more confident in his passing ability. We're going to run the power at people (but) people have to remember that we can throw it. And we're not going to do it when they don't expect it."

The Conley game will be a good test of the Panthers' progress, according to Bolger.

"This will be a good measure," he said. "We had to run the power game against West Craven and we came out with a tie. I think Conley is going to be prepared for it. We'll probably see a six-man front. This is going to be a good test of how we'll do in our conference games with the power game."

The Panthers will also have to contend with the Viking quarterback Bronswell Patrick.

"We know that Bronswell Patrick is a very good quarterback and we're going to have to keep pressure on him all night. We can't let him throw 17 times and not put any pressure on him."

Ayden-Grifton

A second-half turnaround against D.H. Conley that resulted in a 33-6 victory has things looking up at Ayden-Grifton, according to Charger coach B.T. Chappell.

"The best thing that I could see was the second half when we turned things around and had some positive things happen offensively," Chappell said. "I think it was the type of thing our boys needed to have happen."

The Chargers struggled offensively in their opener against Wallace-Rose Hill, losing 26-20. The struggle continued into the first half against Conley but a change in the blocking schemes solved the problem and allowed Ayden-Grifton to stretch a 7-6 lead into the 33-6 final margin.

Eric Blount provided the spark for the Chargers, returning the second-half kickoff 85 yards for one score. He then had two more scores on the ground, covering 39 and seven yards respectively.

"It let us see two things," Chappell said. "If we can go out and block successfully and do a good job on the offensive line, then our offense will work. (Also), they did play us a good ball game and they helped us find some weaknesses."

"It was the type of game where we made some adjustments and found some people who could do the job."

Chappell said it would be easy for the Chargers to return to the I formation and just give Blount the ball all game, but that would keep halfback Tony Reeves on the bench and relegating fullback Aaron Harper to only blocking chores.

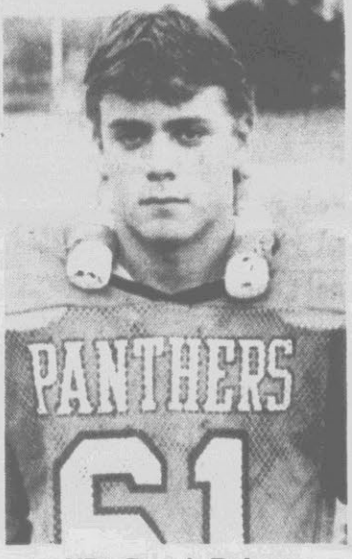

"Aaron has a lot of potential,"

Chappell said. "He had a terrible game (against Wallace-Rose Hill) then he came down and had a good game (against Conley). His running on the inside opened up some of our misdirection."

Next up for the Chargers is 4-A Kinston, a 22-0 loser to New Bern last Friday night.

"I think their program is on the turnaround," Chappell said. "I realize if I was in their shoes, looking at their schedule, this would seem to be a good opportunity for them to break their string of losses. I think they are going to be fired up (and) ready to play us. I would hope it would be the same for us."

Farmville Central
The Jaguars have an open date this week, giving them a chance to savor their 20-14 win over Roanoke a little longer.

In that game, Farmville took advantage of a Redskin turnover to score the winning touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

"We did some things well," said coach Dixon Sauls. "I'm very pleased with the way we handled some situations at the end of the ballgame. I think we did some good things the last four minutes of the ballgame. We held together as a team."

Farmville is now 2-0 on the year and that early success has helped what Sauls stresses is a very young team.

"I think having success gives you confidence," Sauls said. "Teams that win close games have a tendency to find a way to win."

"The strength appears to be our running game on offense. We must become sounder fundamentally and execute our blocking scheme with more perfection. We're just making too many mental errors (on the offensive line)."

Halfback Gary Moore has led the way for the Jaguars, rushing for over a 100 yards in each of the first two games for a total of 263 yards and two touchdowns.

On defense, an attitude adjustment seems to be in order, according to the coach.

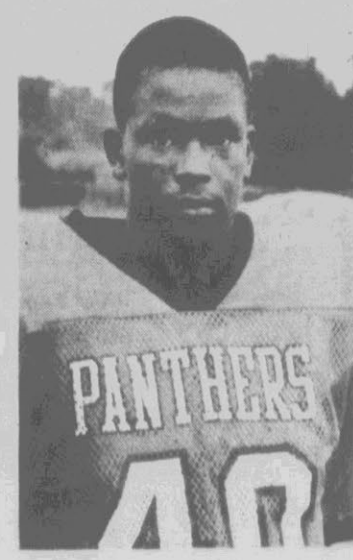

"Defensively, we must establish a tougher mental and physical attitude. We did not play as well defensively as we would have liked," he said. "But again, we're inexperienced at almost every position."

Following the week off, the Jaguars face off against cross-county rival D.H. Conley. How the Jaguars react to the layoff is an unknown, according to Sauls.

"It is not an ideal time for us to have an open date," he said. "From that standpoint, you never know until you play again."

Sooners Near Unanimous

By The Associated Press

It's just about unanimous for Oklahoma as the nation's top college football team this week.

Following a 69-14 rout of North Texas State, the Sooners were named No. 1 on 54 of 58 ballots cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The Sooners received 1,154 points to 1,054 for Nebraska and 947 for UCLA — who all remained 1-2-3 Tuesday in The Associated Press' second college football poll of the year and first during the season.

Those three teams occupied the same spots in The AP's preseason poll.

The Cornhuskers solidified their No. 2 position with a 56-12 victory over Utah State, while UCLA remained No. 3 after its 47-14 drubbing of San Diego State. Nebraska received three first-place ballots and UCLA got the other one.

The only movement in the Top Five took place when Auburn, a 31-3 victor over Texas, flip-flopped with Ohio State. The Tigers collected 937 points for fourth place while Ohio State, which has not opened its season yet, had 857 for fifth.

The remainder of the Top Ten included: No. 6 Louisiana State, 821; No. 7 Miami, Fla., 792; No. 8 Florida State, 744; No. 9 Michigan, 723, and No. 10 Clemson, 674. Last week, it was LSU, Michigan, Florida State, Clemson and Miami, Fla.

The Second Ten consisted of No. 11 Penn State, No. 12 Washington, No. 13 Arkansas, No. 14 Tennessee, No. 15 Arizona State, No. 16 Notre Dame, No. 17 Michigan State, No. 18 Pittsburgh, No. 19 Alabama and No. 20 Georgia.

Last week's Second Ten was Penn State, Arkansas, Washington, Arizona State, Texas A&M, Iowa, Tennessee, Notre Dame, Southern Cal and a tie between Florida and Georgia for 20th.

Michigan State, Pitt and Alabama were the newcomers to the poll, while Texas A&M, Iowa, Southern Cal and Florida fell out.

Michigan State moved into 17th with a 27-13 victory over Southern Cal. Pitt beat Brigham Young 27-17, and Alabama defeated Southern Mississippi 38-6.

Texas A&M fell out after a 17-3 loss to Louisiana State, and Florida lost 31-4 to Miami, Fla. Iowa was idle last week, but the Hawkeyes lost their kickoff classic opener to Tennessee, 23-22, the week before.

By DAVID DROSCHAK

Associated Press Writer

Murphy, the defending 1-A state football champs and out of the gate quick this season with two straight victories, was picked as the top-ranked high school team in the state in the first Associated Press prep poll of the season.

The Bulldogs, holders of the state's longest winning streak at 17 games, received 12 of a possible 13 first-place votes Tuesday from a panel of North Carolina sportswriters for 129 points. Swain County, the 1985 1-A state champion, received the other first-place vote and 114 points.

In the 4-A ranks, Greensboro Page, a team that lost out in the championship hunt last season after winning three in a row, is back on top. The Pirates, 2-0, received three first-place votes and 116 points to edge defending champ Fayetteville 71st. The Falcons, 1-0, got eight first-place votes and 112 points.

Gastonia Ashbrook, with star runner Junior Hall, and Garner, which has outscored its opponents 96-0 in its first two victories, received the other two first-place votes and are No. 3 and No. 4.

The remainder of the 4-A poll includes New Hanover, West Charlotte, Rocky Mount, Richmond County, Lumberton and Waynesville Tuscola. Shelby, the defending 3-A titleholder, edged Brevard for top honors. The Golden Lions garnered 10 top votes for 114 points, while Brevard received two and 106.

Forest Hills, ranked fourth, received the two remaining first-place votes.

Burlington Cummings, 2-0, is ranked third. Havelock is fifth, followed by Central Cabarrus, East Wake, Swanannoa Owen and High Point Andrews. Kings Mountain, Asheboro and SouthWest Edgecombe tied for the 10th spot.

Two-time defending 2-A champ Lexington is 2-0 and looks strong. The Yellow Jackets received eight top votes for 108 points, easily outdistancing No. 2 Whiteville, which got 76 points.

Maiden, 2-0 and ranked fourth, got two first-place votes, while No. 8 Edenton Holmes and No. 10 Randleman each got a top vote.

The remaining 2-A poll includes No. 3 Ahsokie, Thomasville, Wallace-Rose Hill, Fuquay-Varina and Newton-Conover. Behind Murphy and Swain in the 1-A ranks were Bath, Northampton West, Hendersonville, Cherokee, Manteo, Bladenboro, Robbinsville, Tabor City, East Montgomery.

Astros second baseman Bill Doran, who keyed the Houston rally in the seventh with a two-run double, said a loss in tonight's game would probably kill the Astros' chances.

"If we lose, the Giants pretty much have to collapse and with their pitching staff, you can't expect them to do that," Doran said.

In other games, it was Pittsburgh 4, Chicago 1; Los Angeles 5, Cincinnati 3; Montreal 4, St. Louis 1; New York 5, Philadelphia 2; and Atlanta 4, San Diego 2.

Kevin Mitchell had a two-run homer and scored another run with a walk, two stolen bases and a throwing error, helping the Giants take their 4-0 lead.

San Francisco starter Mike Krukow took a three-hit shutout into the seventh. But Doran's two-run double and RBI singles by Gerald Young and Alan Ashby, tied the score and buoyed Houston's hopes for a series sweep that would put the Astros back into the race.

Don Robinson, 10-6, who pitched 2 1-3 innings of shutout relief, opened the ninth with a double off Larry Andersen, 8-5. Two groundouts wiped out the lead runner, but the Giants loaded the bases on a walk to Bob Brenly and a single by Candy Maldonado.

Aldrete then doubled down the left field line on a slider that was up in the strike zone.

"It wasn't exactly a hitter's pitch, but I guess someone, somewhere said today was going to be my day and I would hit a pitch that I would swing through other times," Aldrete said. "It was a great feeling to come through in a situation like that, but I'll have to do it a couple more years before I consider myself a money player."

Expos 4, Cardinals 1
Third-place Montreal moved within three games of St. Louis as Bryn Smith and Andy McGaffigan combined on a four-hitter.

The Cardinals, 4-9 against the Expos this season, scored their only run on a double play after loading the bases with no outs in the second inning against Smith, 9-6, who allowed three hits in six innings. McGaffigan pitched the last three innings for his 10th save.

Bob Forsch, 10-5, who has not won since Aug. 10, allowed seven hits and four runs in six innings. The runs scored on a wild pitch and a groundout in the first, an RBI single by Hubie Brooks in the third and Jeff Reed's sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Mets 5, Phillies 2
New York, which trails St. Louis by 2½ games, survived two rain delays totaling nearly two hours as Rafael Santana snapped a 2-2 tie with a two-run single in the sixth inning against Philadelphia.

The Mets got a strong performance from Bob Ojeda, who pitched two innings of one-hit relief in his first appearance since May 9 following surgery on his left elbow. Ojeda left the game in the fifth inning, leading 2-1 on a two-run homer by Kevin McReynolds off Bruce Ruffin, 10-12.

Terry Leach, 11-1, was the winner despite giving up a game-tying homer to Mike Schmidt, his 29th, in the sixth. Doug Sisk pitched three innings of one-hit relief for his third save.

Dodgers 5, Reds 3

Franklin Stubbs broke out of a long slump with two hits and three RBI as Los Angeles beat Cincinnati for its second victory in 12 games.

Stubbs, with no hits in his 33 previous at-bats, keyed a four-run third inning with a two-run triple. He singled home another run in the sixth.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first as Kal Daniels hit a two-run homer, his 23rd of the season, off Orel Hershiser, 14-13.

Hershiser allowed seven hits in seven-plus innings. Alejandro Pena, who relieved Hershiser in the eighth and stopped a Cincinnati rally, struck out four in the last two innings for his third save.

Braves 4, Padres 2

Dale Murphy knocked in all four

Atlanta runs with a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly and Pete Smith held San Diego to three hits in the first eight innings of his first major-league appearance.

Smith did not allow a baserunner until John Kruk beat out a bouncer to short for a single with two outs in the fourth. Smith tired in the ninth, giving up three more hits, including an RBI single to Chris Brown, before Jim Acker got the last out for his ninth save.

Murphy's homer off Ed Whitson, 10-11, in the first inning, was his 38th of the season, one more than his previous high in 1985.

FSU's Schedule Could Foil Success

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's chances of putting together an outstanding football season may have decreased a little bit last week even while the Seminoles were winning big.

The Seminoles' next four opponents — East Carolina, Memphis State, Michigan State and Miami — also posted impressive victories last weekend. The Seminoles apparently won't have any easy games for awhile, and that worries Coach Bobby Bowden.

"You can't get up every Saturday," Bowden said Tuesday. "You have to hope the weeks you're down that you're playing somebody you are superior to or that the other team is down too. If you're playing somebody great every Saturday, you're going to look great losing."

Bowden had hoped his team could cruise to victory against traditionally weaker teams such as East Carolina or Memphis State. Now, he's not so sure.

"The one that really shocked me was Memphis State beating Ole Miss," he said. "I pictured Ole Miss about like us this year. They had about the same record we did and they had everybody coming back."

Florida State, ranked eighth in this week's AP poll, clobbered Texas Tech 40-16 in its opener. This week's opponent, East Carolina, routed North Carolina State 32-14 in front of the Wolfpack's home crowd, and Florida State's Sept. 19 opponent, Memphis State, shocked Ole Miss 16-10.

Michigan State's 27-13 victory Monday night over Southern Cal could help set up a rankings battle when the Seminoles travel to East Lansing on Sept. 26.

"You have to think Michigan State is in contention in the Big Ten this year," Bowden said. "The team they have back is the very one they had last year and they might have been in the top 10 last year except Lorenzo (White) got hurt."

But Bowden said he doesn't want to start thinking ahead. East Carolina comes next for the Seminoles.

"East Carolina runs the option and you don't see as many option teams as you used to," Bowden said. "They have a dangerous quarterback and are capable of scoring a lot of points."

Florida State makes its first visit to Greenville, N.C., for Saturday's 7 p.m. game against the Pirates.

The Seminoles knew that Miami would be good again, but the Hurricanes looked awesome in their 31-4 rout of Florida. The Seminoles and Hurricanes duel in Tallahassee, Oct. 3.

The second half of the Seminole schedule includes road games at Auburn and Florida along with Southern Miss and home dates against Louisville, Tulane and Furman.

In another matter involving the Seminoles, tailback Sammie Smith returned to practice Tuesday after his wife Angie gave birth to a baby girl Monday night.

Janay Chantelle Smith, 6 pounds, four ounces, was born at 7:52 p.m. Smith was called to the hospital before Monday afternoon's practice.

Bowden said he would wait until later in the week to name the starter at tailback against East Carolina. Last week, sophomore Dexter Carter started because Smith and Victor Floyd were nursing injuries.

The Seminoles reported only minor physical problems during Tuesday's practice with guards Tony Yeoman (sprained knee) and Mike Morris (shoulder) aggravating previous injuries.

NFLPA Sets Strike Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The upcoming NFL season will be halted after just two games if the league's union and management do not make significant progress in contract negotiations over the next two weeks.

there, but everything is negotiable."

The current deadline is the same as it was five years ago, when the players struck after the second week of the regular season. The walkout lasted 57 days, eliminating seven games of the 16-game regular season.

takeback on part of the clubs."

There was speculation that the union would wait until after the third week of the season to strike, thus enabling the players to reach the minimum amount of time needed to qualify for a full year of pension.

Rozelle restated his willingness to join the talks in a telephone news conference Tuesday. But he said, "I'm not a knight on a white horse," adding, "I don't think anyone can go in and wave a magic wand and have it settled."

The NFL Players Association on Tuesday set a strike deadline for Sept. 22, one day after the conclusion of the second week of the regular season. Gene Upshaw, executive director of the union, said the walkout date was set to get the Management Council to the bargaining table.

The last four negotiations with the union have resulted in strikes, a fact that has not gone unnoticed by Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council.

"We feel that's not really an issue," Murphy said. "We assessed it and we felt we had our maximum leverage striking after the second week."

"Management left us no choice but to set a strike date," Upshaw said. "By setting a deadline we hope to get management to talk to us."

"The history of this union is to put negotiations in crisis," Donlan said in a prepared statement. "They've never had a negotiation without a strike. Now that we know what their strike agenda is, what is their bargaining agenda?"

Upshaw said the players could not have profited from delaying the strike until after the third week.

"If we delayed any longer, that would just delay the talks longer," he said. "We have to bring this thing to a conclusion, and that's what we plan on doing by setting a deadline."

The announcement came after a meeting between the union executive board and most of the league's 28 player representatives. Upshaw said the vote to set a strike date was unanimous and it was 24-4 on the Sept. 22 date.

The owners are scheduled to meet Thursday in the Chicago area to discuss the progress of the talks with Donlan. Both sides said they hoped negotiations could resume as soon as Friday.

"Right now we know what that deadline is," Upshaw said. "Jack and I have to work against that deadline, and if we don't meet that deadline the next step will be taken, which is a strike."

The two sides have met for just 4½ hours since Aug. 14 and the contract expired Aug. 31. Regardless of which side is at fault, if there isn't movement soon toward a settlement there will be a strike, the union said.

The union, which had set the strike deadline Aug. 31 but kept the date secret until it could poll its player representatives, made the date public one day after management delivered its "proposal for settlement" to the NFLPA.

Upshaw has said he plans to talk to Commissioner Pete Rozelle later this week to discuss the negotiations. Upshaw indicated that he would not mind having Rozelle join the talks, but he said the union perceives the commissioner as a representative of management.

"Unless there is significant progress I just can't see us moving the date," NFLPA assistant executive director Mark Murphy said. "Management would have to show they would be willing to negotiate. They haven't so far."

"It's not a proposal, it's a position, and that position in no way is a framework for settlement," Upshaw said. "It's quite the opposite. What it is, in all honesty, is a $45 million Upshaw, asked if the date could be moved, said, "At this point the date is

Hough Tough For A's, Catcher

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

When Charlie Hough is on the mound, the Oakland batters have trouble hitting him and Geno Petralli has trouble catching him.

The Texas knuckleball pitcher held the Athletics to just three hits Tuesday night as the Rangers clubbed Oakland 12-1. The A's lone run scored on one of the four passed balls charged to Petralli, who now has 31 passed balls this season, two short of the modern major league record.

"I would say I've got a good chance to break the record," Petralli said. "I'm not going to be able to catch all his pitches."

"He's feeling stronger late in the season and throwing a knuckleball that's harder to catch, and it's harder for him to control, too."

The Rangers set a major league record for passed balls several weeks ago and now have a total of 66, with 58 coming while Hough was pitching. Petralli's total is two less than the record set by J.C. Martin of the Chicago White Sox in 1965.

In other American League games, it was Boston 8, New York 6; Seattle 7, Cleveland 0; Chicago 4, Minnesota 3; Milwaukee 6, Toronto 4; and Kansas City 4, California 2. Detroit at Baltimore was rained out.

Hough, 15-11, struck out nine and walked four in the victory, breaking a personal three-game losing streak. Against the A's this season, he's 3-0 and has allowed just one earned run in 25 1-3 innings.

"I feel embarrassed about that game," Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said. "Before anyone points fingers at the defense, you've got to remember that we only got three hits."

The A's only had two baserunners over the last six innings.

Oakland took the lead in the third inning when Luis Polonia led off with a walk and went to second when Hough tossed the ball underhand between his legs and wildly past first on an attempted pickoff. Polonia eventually scored on a passed ball, one of three charged to Petralli in the inning.

The catcher made up for it in the Texas fourth when the Rangers scored five times to take the lead for good. When Petralli hit a high fly to right-center, outfielders Dwayne Murphy and Mike Davis, who were injured in a collision early this season, stopped and looked at each other as the ball fell between them.

"When we get ahead, the other team has to get aggressive and swing earlier," Hough said.

Larry Parrish then added two homers, his 28th and 29th of the season, to drive in five runs.

Gene Nelson, 6-5, took the loss.

Red Sox 8, Yankees 6

Todd Benzing's three-run homer after a two-out error broke a 1-1 tie and led the Red Sox over New York in a rain-delayed game at Boston. The game was held up for two hours, 24 minutes with no outs in the bottom of the fourth. After play resumed, Benzing connected with two outs in the inning. Rain again halted play in the top of the seventh for another 30 minutes.

Boston starter Al Nipper, 9-11, got the victory and is 3-0 against the Yankees this season. Bill Gullikson, 2-1, was the loser.

Following the first rain delay and with a runner on first, Pete Filson replaced Gullikson and got the next two batters on forceouts at second. But third baseman Mike Pagliarulo booted Jim Rice's hard grounder and Ridgcroft defeated Greenville Christian Academy 11-0 in a high school soccer match Tuesday.

Ridgcroft jumped out to a 7-0 first half lead and then added four more goals in the second half for the final margin.

Dane Evans had six goals to lead Ridgcroft. Chris Hawkins had three goals and Heath Holloman had two goals. Ridgcroft goalie Charlton Godwin had six saves while GCA's Brad Dixon had 32 saves.

GCA took a total of 13 shots on goal while Ridgcroft had 41 shots.

GCA falls to 0-1 and plays at Wilmington Christian Friday.

Rose-Garner

Rose High School's soccer match with Garner was not played Tuesday because of a mix-up in the schedule.

Garner officials told Rose that they did not have the game on its schedule, while Rose said that it had been agreed to.

Coach Will Wiberg said that efforts would be made to play the game at a later date, but said that it looked doubtful.

Benzinger followed with his second homer of the season.

Boston scored three more runs after two were out in the fifth and added a single run in the seventh.

Pagliarulo homered, his 32nd, in the fourth and drove in a run in the eighth on a fielder's-choice grounder. In the Yankee ninth, Dan Pasqua had an RBI single and pinch-hitter Claudell Washington hit a three-run homer, his ninth.

White Sox 4, Twins 3

Gary Redus broke out of a three-game slump with three hits, including a two-run homer, to back the combined eight-hit pitching of Floyd Bannister and Bobby Thigpen as visiting Chicago topped Minnesota. It was only the Twins' 23rd loss in 71 home games.

Bannister, 12-10, won his fourth straight game as he fanned five and walked one in seven innings. Thigpen pitched shutout ball over the final two innings to earn his ninth save of the season. Bert Blyleven, 13-11, went the distance for Minnesota, giving up eight hits.

In the ninth, the Twins loaded the bases with one out. Pinch-hitter Roy Smalley's fly was caught by center fielder Ken Williams, who threw out pinch-runner Al Newman at the plate to end the game.

Mariners 7, Indians 0

Homers by Domingo Ramos and Jim Presley backed Mike Morgan's seven-hit pitching as visiting Seattle blanked Cleveland. Ramos had four of Seattle's 15 hits, including a two-run homer, to help Morgan lift his record to 11-15.

Morgan struck out two and walked three while pitching his seventh complete game and second shutout of the season. Rich Yett, 3-7, was the loser.

Presley hit his 22nd home run in the second inning. It was his first homer since Aug. 17. After Rey Quinones singled, Ramos hit his second homer for a 4-0 Seattle lead. Ramos' first homer this season was an inside-the-park drive in the Kingdom.

Brewers 6, Blue Jays 4

In Milwaukee, Chris Bosio, 10-5, won his third straight game and Juan Castillo, Robin Yount and B.J. Surhoff drove in two runs each as the Brewers snapped Toronto's six-game winning streak. Toronto starter Dave Steib, 13-8, worked only 1 2-3 innings, his shortest stint in 28 starts, and is 0-3 against Milwaukee this season.

Castillo doubled home two runs in the second, bringing on reliever Jose Nunez, who gave up single runs in the fifth and sixth innings. The Brewers scored their final two runs in the seventh.

Ernie Whitt hit his 12th homer of the year for the Blue Jays.

Royals 4, Angels 2

George Brett's two-run homer and run-scoring single helped Mark Gubicza win his first game in over a month as Kansas City defeated California at Anaheim.

Brett's 19th homer gave the Royals a 2-0 lead in the first. He singled in the seventh to score Willie Wilson from third base to snap a 2-2 tie.

Brett sat out most of the first half of the season with a pulled hamstring and then a knee injury.

"I felt there was enough of the season left to put some numbers on the board and help the club," Brett said.

Gubicza, 10-16, pitched four-hit ball for 6 2-3 innings and overcame seven walks to post his first victory since Aug. 2, snapping a six-game losing streak.

Americans Defy The Dollar To Take In Europe

By ELAINE GANLEY
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Undaunted by the weak dollar, Americans crossed the Atlantic in droves this summer, boosting tourism in Western Europe and contributing to the British tourist industry's best year ever.

From Athens to Oslo, countries are reporting improved tourism over last year, when the Chernobyl nuclear accident and fears of terrorism cast a cloud over the 1986 European summer, costing nations millions of dollars in revenue.

However, France, which launched a welcome campaign this year to soften its image, reported more tourists but less income.

"We saw fewer very rich Americans and more less rich ones," notably youth, Tourism Minister Jean-Jacques Descamps said last week, adding that the summer season was "average."

In Britain, the news was bright.

"We are well on target for a full-year result which will make 1987 the best year ever in the history of British tourism," Duncan Bluck, chairman of the British Tourist Authority, announced last Wednesday.

Britain welcomed 6.8 million overseas visitors in the first six months of 1987, 16 percent more than in the first half of 1986, Bluck told a news conference.

The number of North American tourists was up 60 percent this year over last year, he said.

The United States is Britain's biggest single tourist source, and Americans' money represents about one-quarter of all spending by foreign tourists. Elsewhere, too, Americans are a major factor in tourist receipts.

Bluck said Britain now ranks fifth in the world in international tourism earnings, behind the United States, Italy, Spain and France.

However, Spanish officials expect a record $15 billion in tourism revenue this year, moving Spain past the United States as the top earner in the industry worldwide.

Spain took in more than $6 billion in the first six months of 1987, a nearly 40 percent increase over last year. It reported a 9.2 percent increase from January through July, much of it due to rising numbers of Nordic visitors, according to the government tourism department.

In Italy, tourism is expected to increase this year by about 20 percent over 1986, with the number of American travelers there more than doubling, according to the Italian National Tourism Office.

Italy is boasting a new form of holiday, "agrotourism," a retreat to unspoiled green areas, which took off in popularity this year.

Americans returned to the Greek isles after shunning them in 1986, when a 70 percent drop in U.S. visitors was recorded as well as a $300-million drop in revenue. This year, there were 15 percent more Americans, said Panayiotis Martakis of the Greek National Tourist Organization.

It estimates a 25 percent increase in overall tourism this year over 1986.

"Last year, the Americans were shy because of the dollar and terror threats," said Rudiger Emerich of West Germany's Reisedienst der Wirtschaft travel agency. "Some U.S. travel agencies practically took Europe out of their advertising. But this year, that's all been forgotten."

Not quite.

France, duly noting the "better performance" of its Spanish and Italian neighbors, predicts just slight progress this year over last but a 2.8-billion franc ($466-million) drop in the balance of overseas spending.

American visitors did not reach their "exceptional level" of 1985 and "Americans with dollars from New York automatically spent less than before," said Minister Descamps.

In addition, visa requirements are proving "discouraging" for some tourists, he said.

France ordered visas last September for all countries except Switzerland and those in the European Community following a wave of bombings in Paris.

The Swiss Tourism Office reported a surge of Americans this summer and a 7 percent increase over the 10-year average for the first six months.

In the colder climates tourism was also on the increase — up in Sweden an estimated 11 percent this year and up about 7 percent in Norway, with the Japanese the most avid visitors.

While the 1987 trend was upbeat, some people noted that countries were recovering from what a Dutch official called "an exceptionally bad year."

The Dutch capital greeted 15 percent more Americans than last year, but because of the less valuable dollar they tended to lodge in cheaper hotels, said Herman ter Balkt of the Amsterdam Tourist Office.

"This is only a recovery from a disastrous period last year," he said, predicting that a complete recovery will come with a healthier dollar.

In New York, Japanese Are The Most Common Tourists

By JOHN POMFRET
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With a new black miniskirt from Bloomingdale's and a tie-dyed T-shirt from SoHo, Minami Aruku didn't look like a statistic.

The young tourist had just finished a week's trip to New York — trendy clubs and restaurants, flea markets and the Empire State Building.

"This city is sooooo crazy," enthused Ms. Aruku. "I'm exhausted and there's no money. But I'm coming back again."

Ms. Aruku, 20, is one of more than 300,000 Japanese expected to come to New York this year, a record. Last year, 282,000 ventured across the Pacific, replacing the British for the first time as New York's No. 1 overseas guest.

Spending an average of $700 per stay, Japanese tourists and business people pumped about $210 million into the local economy, said Charles Gillett, president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"They're good spenders and we like that," he said, adding that most come from May through October.

In all, 1.7 million Japanese came to the United States last year and spent about $1.6 billion, giving the nation a $1 billion surplus with Japan in travel and tourism, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

"When you think of it in terms of the deficit, the travel industry is the only industry where the Japanese are in the red," said Mary Testa, spokeswoman for the Japan National Tourist Organization.

The most popular locations were Guam and Hawaii, the West Coast and then Washington, D.C., and New York.

"They're here for the Big Apple. And what the Big Apple says is that New York is a good time. The city's got zip and that's what the Japanese like," Gillett said.

At the New York Hilton, manager John F. Power hails Japanese tourists as that hotel's "most important international guest."

"Do they buy? You betcha," said Miraed Smith, a spokeswoman at Bloomingdale's department store.

Furniture and art objects top the list of purchases, at Bloomingdale's, said Joan Cuomo, who runs the international shopping service there. "They zero in on items they can't find in Japan."

At 47th Street Photo electronics store, manager Tzvi Sternberg said Japanese tourists are always looking for a deal because their electronic products are generally cheaper here than in Japan.

"Their currency is strong so it goes farther here," he said. "Also, American stores have better sales. They compete less over there."

The money the Japanese bring with them has caused merchants here to study them to increase their profits.

"We've focused on little things," said Annmarie Moelders, spokeswoman for the Waldorf-Astoria. "They like pastels in their rooms and double beds. We have a Japanese restaurant and many of our staff members speak their language."

Lunching in Chinatown, an elderly Japanese gentleman pointed to his watch and smiled.

"Name brands only, watches and leather goods," said Yukimichi Kesuki, of Nagasaki. "That's why I came here, to shop."

According to a recent Commerce Department study, the average Japanese tourist does not fit the stereotype of a camera-clicking, bespectacled traveler with a penchant for Mickey Mouse.

The tourist is generally under 35, college educated and well off. And he or she prefers sightseeing in cities, shopping and dining out to taking pictures, amusement parks and frolicking on the beach.

"You're talking about a very upscale type of person," said Ron Erdmann, a market research analyst at the department. "These people know a lot about America and know what they want to see."

So much so that when they come to New York, as they have in droves since the 1960s, their knowledge has caused local travel guides some embarrassment.

"They get new information about new discos and new restaurants faster than anyone," said Shinji Nakazone, assistant general manager of Japan Travel Bureau International.

For America, Foreigners Boost Tourism Business

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

Foreigners attracted by the cheaper dollar are contributing to the strongest year on record for the U.S. travel and tourism business.

Up to Labor Day, record foreign attendance was reported at attractions from Independence Hall in Philadelphia to Universal Studios in Los Angeles.

The U.S. Travel Data Center predicts spending on travel and tourism in 1987 will set a record, exceeding last year's $260 billion by about 5 percent.

Foreigners account for about 6 percent of the spending, the U.S. Travel & Tourism Administration estimates.

The number of foreigners visiting the United States is running far ahead of projections and appears likely to break the record set in 1982, said Harvey Shields, a market researcher for the Travel & Tourism Administration.

The dollar's 2½-year decline has made the United States a bargain for many foreign tourists and business travelers.

"At these exchange rates, it's not the right time to go to Europe. You shouldn't go to Japan. We have no choice," said Juan Manuel Ortiz, a Mexican bank economist seeing the sights in Manhattan.

"It's easy to go out and spend the money here," said Michael Andersen, a Danish airline steward who has frequent layovers in the United States.

Andersen used to pocket his dollars until he got back to Denmark. Now that those dollars buy less at home, he spends them here, to the tune of $325 for three tennis rackets on his last shopping spree.

Travel and tourism is one of the few areas in which the nation runs a trade surplus with Japan — about $1 billion last year. But the United States runs a travel and tourism deficit of $8.6 billion with the world as a whole.

At Universal Studios, 44 percent more foreign visitors came to ogle King Kong, Jaws and Miami Vice stunts so far this year, contributing to an overall 8 percent increase in attendance over 1986.

"The dollar's weakness is one element. The other element is increased international sales efforts," said Randy Garfield, the sales director.

Record numbers of foreigners are also joining crowds of Americans at the Statue of Liberty and Philadelphia's Independence Hall, birthplace of the 200-year-old Constitution.

At Elvis Presley's Graceland mansion in Memphis, Tenn., foreigners are contributing to record attendance.

"This is the 10th anniversary of Elvis's death and the worldwide publicity has never been better," said Todd Morgan, the Graceland communications manager. "Throw a dart at the world map and that's where they come from."

Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., is drawing record crowds, including an increase in French citizens who want a preview of the Euro Disneyland that will open near Paris in the early 1990s, spokesman Tom Brinkmoeller said.

Canada leads all nations in sending citizens to the United States, followed by Japan, Britain, West Germany, Mexico, France, Italy, Brazil, BOOM TO BUSINESS — Yim Tsui Ying, left, Cheung Wai Kugn and Mak Yuk Yin, right, all of Hong Kong, seem lost amid the crush of visitors to Universal Studios near Los Angeles. Island Now Wants Credits In Movies

AVALON, Calif. (AP) — Dozens of movies, including the original "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "MacArthur," have been shot on rugged, picturesque Santa Catalina Island, 26 miles off Southern California. And now the island wants its own name up in lights, in the movie credits.

"They'll make a picture here, but when it comes out it's supposed to be Mexico or New Mexico," says City Councilman George Scott. "I think the picture should say that it was made in Avalon, Santa Catalina Island."

Scott and three others on the five-member City Council voted last week to require filmmakers who use their port to make a $5,000 deposit, refundable when Avalon is assured of mention in a movie.

A final vote on the measure is set for Sept. 15. If approved, it would take effect 30 days later.

"We are not getting any credit on any of the films, and it's about time we do," said Mayor Irene Strobel.

Film and TV production companies have taken advantage of the island's rugged coastline, primitive interior and photogenic city ever since buffalo were brought here for the making of the 1925 Western "The Vanishing American."

'Magnum' Gets New Life, But 'Valerie' Goes Away

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For many a network series returning this fall, a new season means new moms, wives, husbands, girlfriends, jobs, relationships and bosses.

Popular network characters this season die, revive, move, get hired, get married and return from the dead.

No dream sequences or miraculous recoveries, however, for "Valerie," who was terminated by the producers with extreme prejudice when star Valerie Harper left in a contract dispute a few weeks ago.

The revamped series, renamed "Valerie's Family," will take up a few months after Val's death as sis-in-law, played by Sandy Duncan, comes to help with the family. NBC is banking on the appeal of the rest of the characters, especially teen heart-throb Jason Bateman, to keep the show high in the Nielsen rankings where it had been most of the summer.

It looked like "Magnum, P.I." was a goner, having been last seen strolling off into fluffy clouds that looked suspiciously like heaven in what was to have been the last show of the series. But star Tom Selleck decided once more would be enough, and his character will turn out to be not-so-dead after all.

Another revival story is "Crime Story," a critically praised period cop show that debuted last season to misdemeanor ratings. In what was to have been the stylish end to the best villains on network TV, Ray Luca and his sidekick Paulie were apparently atomized in a mushroom cloud in the Nevada desert. But "Crime Story" got a surprise reprieve, and you can be sure so will Ray and Paulie.

The producers knew last season that NBC's "Cheers" would be back, but star Shelley Long wouldn't, so they had plenty of time to pick a new romantic sparring partner for bartender Sam Malone (Ted Danson). Kirstie Alley arrives as a tough corporate mama to run the bar after Sam is forced to sell out. With the Alley-Danson chemistry and the popularity of the other characters on "Cheers," it may be a case of "Shelley who?" by midseason.

Those other sexual tensionists, David and Maddie on ABC's "Moonlighting," will find new avenues of friction after a long-awaited "between-the-sheets" tussle at the end of last season. Fans will wait with bated breath to see how producer Glenn Gordon Caron will handle the aftermath, not to mention star Cybill Shepherd's real-life pregnancy.

It would hardly seem chivalrous for a husband not to notice his wife has turned into a different woman, but Prince Charming won't bat an eye as Carol Huston turns into Snow White on ABC's "The Charmings," replacing ??????????

ABC gave the boys' mean, old boss the boot on "Perfect Strangers," and so Cousin Larry and Balki can go work for a newspaper and get in lots more interesting sitcom scraps than they could at the discount store. They also get a new apartment.

On "Spenser: For Hire," Spenser gets his old girlfriend back. Susan Silverman, played by Barbara Stock, returns after a year in San Francisco.

PCC Names New Visiting Artist

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Ken Marsh, a native of Davis County, Ky. now living in Durham, has been chosen as the visiting artist at Pitt Community College for the 1987-88 academic year.

"My ancestry is a mixture of two Indian tribes and Caucasians," Marsh said in a recent interview. "I have both Cherokee and Shawnee blood, so I'm more Indian than Caucasian."

Marsh, painter, sculptor and lecturer, retired from the U.S. Air Force in 1971 with the rank of master sergeant. "My service was mostly Far Eastern oriented," he said, naming Korea and Japan as the principal countries of his overseas assignments, "with temporary duty periods served in the Philippines, Okinawa, Nationalist China and Vietnam."

He first entered service in the U.S. Army in 1951 and later "switched over to the Air Force. I loved the idea of flying." In his 20 years of service, he was awarded a number of military decorations and medals.

He and his wife, Marty Williams, a native of Phillipsburg, Pa., have three grown children "Kathy, Mary and Ken Jr. plus a fourth daughter, our youngest, Akemiko, whom we adopted in Japan. We also have six grandchildren."

The new visiting artist's love for Indian art and traditions goes back to his early years. "For several years, I lived with an Indian grandfather. When I was 6 years old, he gave me a knife and taught me how to carve things in wood. He also told me many Indian stories and legends, so I was fortunate to have this knowledge of things relating to Native Americans instilled in me at an early age.

"In all the years that have followed, I have always pursued drawing, carving and sculpting as an avocation, and have broadened my activities in these fields since the time of my Air Force retirement."

His work of recent years encompasses stone carving and sculpture, pen and pencil sketches, and craft work in wood and leather. His wife, Marty, works with him in his Durham studio designing jewelry and beadwork.

Marsh's art has been exhibited at sites throughout North Carolina, including Duke University, the Museum of Natural History, Raleigh, at the Indian Heritage Festival, Town Creek, and in numerous Indian art festivals and celebrations.

Marsh also likes to try his skill at writing. A recent result of this effort has been the publication of a booklet, "Feather and Flint."

"The booklet," Marsh said, "is a compilation of legends and tales my grandfather told me, along with some how-to articles on creating Indian objects, how to observe certain ceremonies."

The longest of the articles deal with a typical Indian sweat lodge. "One thing that surprised me following the publication is that a number of psychiatrists, psychologists and others working in similar fields were the most avid buyers of the little booklet. They also are the people who have bought a substantial portion of my sculpture."

As Pitt Community College's Visiting Artist, Marsh will give lectures and demonstrations in schools, at civic clubs and to other agencies or organizations who wish to have him appear.

"I'm looking forward to the challenge and to the opportunities this will give me to serve the Greenville area in this manner," he said. "I like dealing with people and enjoy explaining to them the customs and ceremonies that are part of the Native American traditions and heritage. I hope people here will call on me during my year's assignment."

Any group, agency or organization in the Pitt County area interested in having Marsh to lecture or give lecture/demonstrations are to make arrangements by calling Pitt Community College at 756-3130.

Historic Shops Offer Train Rides

By PEGGY HOWE
N.C. Department of Cultural Resources

For the first time ever, regularly scheduled train rides for the public began at Spencer Shops Sept. 4.

Volunteer retirees from the Southern Railway Co. will operate the trains five times daily, beginning at 10 a.m. weekdays and Saturdays. Three trips on Sundays will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The half-hour ride travels over 1.5 miles of recently rehabilitated track. Visitors will be able to see historic buildings and features which have not previously been open to the public, according to Mike Wells, project director. The two engines in use, rehabilitated by Spencer volunteers, include a Southern Railway passenger diesel FP-7, built in 1950 and used in passenger service on the railroad until it was retired in the late 1970s.

The other engine is a 1926 Baldwin 2-8-0 consolidation steam engine built for the Buffalo Creek and Gauley Railroad in West Virginia. After a long career of coal hauling there and in Pennsylvania, it was sold to a tourist railroad in southwest Virginia. N.C. Transportation History Corp. acquired it in 1980. The 1926 Baldwin engine was renovated by volunteers who had worked for years in the days of steam at Spencer Shops. They repainted and renumbered the engine as Southern Engine No. 604 in honor of the thousands of men who had worked their entire lives on Southern Railway steam locomotives at Spencer Shops.

There was an engine No. 604 which ran for many years as the "Thomasville Switcher" and was operated by men on the present Spencer volunteer force.

For details, call the site at 704-636-2889 or the Historic Sites Section at 733-7862 in Raleigh.

Spencer Shops State Historic Site, an agency of the Department of Cultural Resources, is located at Spencer, 411 South Salisbury Ave. (U.S. 29-70).

ALL ABOARD! — Restored to look like Southern Engine No. 604, this 1926 Baldwin railroad engine is one of two now taking passengers at Spencer Shops State Historic Site in Spencer, N.C.

Uncommon Scents

This may look like just another factory, but the scent wafting from it — perfume — is a delight to the nose. The first perfume factory was built in 1863 just outside of Paris. (Where else?) Still, an Italian family is credited with the invention of "modern" perfume. In 1709, the Farina family created a lemon-orange scented cologne. Today, perfume technicians have the ability to distinguish between 19,000 different odors at varying degrees of intensity.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY Sept. 10

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today is fine for putting into motion any new ideas or courses of action you've been champing at the bit to begin. Maintain your courage, confidence and conviction. Schedule your time carefully.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Come to an understanding with partners and co-workers about your respective duties, and this can become a very productive day. Eliminate stumbling blocks first.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You may disagree with a co-worker today, but otherwise it's a very productive time. If you ask a superior for a favor, express yourself clearly and give an honest reason.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Stop bending your elbow so much and eliminate other expensive pleasures which are bad for you—physically or financially. Get up early in the morning.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): If you need assistance from an expert, get it early. Don't run off on any tangents this evening. Become a more romantic person and all will be ideal.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Don't permit a strange person to force you into doing something you do not approve of or keep you from doing what you had planned. Be cautious all day.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): Be sure to keep any promises you have made to others, and gain good will and favors owed. Your mate has a plan you should go along with—you'll both have fun.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Forget that worry and get out to public affairs which can bring you prestige and knowledge. Be sure of the facts and figures in an agreement with an associate.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Don't permit an overly talkative person to hold up your planned activities, or you'll miss out on a great opportunity. Don't let a personal wish slow you down.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): Some amusements you desire for after work can be easily enjoyed if you handle your responsibilities first. A good friend can help you show your talent.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): You are enthused about getting your home in better condition. Keep at it and get fine results; don't run off to other matters. Home is the place for you tonight.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): Don't take too much time mulling things over in your mind, or you could lose out on important business matters. If your mate acts silly, pay no attention.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): Concentrate on bringing in more benefits, and avoid a critical person. Forget any public work, and focus on being practical. Fix fences, but don't build them.

 Opening lead: Ten of ♥
 For more than three decades, players have acknowledged the mercurial brilliance of Sidney Lazard of New Orleans. Many will disagree with his choice of actions at the table, but few will feel comfortable in a duel of bridge wits with him.

This hand from the recent Summer North American Championships is vintage Lazard. Looking at an enormous hand opposite a partner who could make a takeout double at the three-level, vulnerable, he wasted no time in getting where he wanted to be. West's double was intended to tell his partner that he wanted to score a ruff, but it turned out to be the clue declarer needed to bring home his contract.

After winning the opening lead in hand, Lazard decided that, because West probably had no more than three cards in the major suits, he was likely to have some club length. So at trick two he ran the ten of clubs! After cashing the ace of clubs, declarer came to hand with the ace of diamonds to draw the remaining trumps. He was careful to discard two spades from dummy.

Next came three more rounds of hearts, reducing all hands to four cards as declarer pitched his losing diamond.

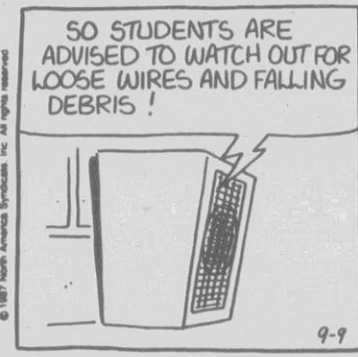

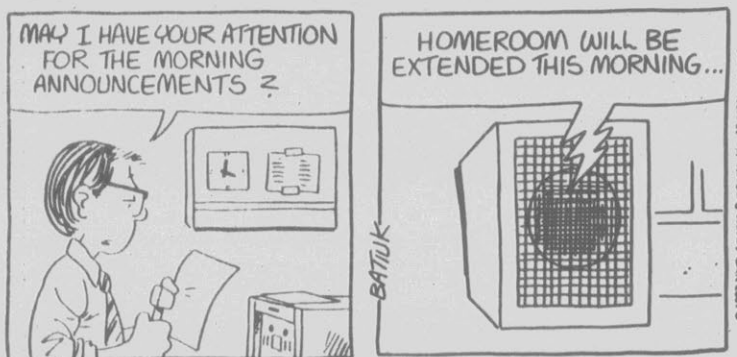

East had to keep three spade—otherwise ace and another spade would give declarer his slam—so he was forced down to one diamond. Now dummy's carefully preserved nine of diamonds played its part. Declarer returned to hand with a diamond ruff, reducing East to nothing but spades. A spade to the ten then end played that worthy, who could win with the jack but then was forced to lead away from his king into dummy's ace-queen ten-ace.

The Cookie Monster

By Ann Dixon

Once upon a time there lived a cookie monster. He was from outer space. He only ate cookies. Every cookie he could find he would eat it. One day the monster found the Keebler elves cookie tree. That's where all the elves make delicious Keebler cookies. The elves were away at the time. The monster came and ate most of their cookies. The monster had eaten so many cookies that he passed out. Then the elves returned. They didn't know what to do with the monster but they knew they had to do it before the monster came around. So they poured chocolate syrup all over him and turned him into a giant cookie. So when you go to the supermarket to buy cookies, don't buy a giant cookie with chocolate syrup. You could be buying the cookie monster.

Ann Dixon, 8, a student at Grifton Elementary School receives special mention.

Education Pays

By Vikki Mercer

Linda Cordigan and Rita McEntire are both up for a secretarial job with a major corporation. Both can type 80 plus words per minute and have bookkeeping skills. However, Rita had majored in business administration in college and received her degree, and had a very impressive resume going for her. The only thing Linda had going for her were a few small secretarial jobs under her belt. Who do you think would get the job and why?

David Phillistine and Larry Craven were both college graduates who were thriving journalists. Both were up for a promotion in the company they worked for and had the same skills. However, David had attended college four additional years and received a second degree. Who do you think would get promoted and why?

In both cases, education played an important role. In both examples, Rita McEntire and David Phillistine would get the jobs because they had attended college and earned degrees. In today's world, college is a must for a job of economic value. But getting a good education does not start at the age of 18. As a matter of fact, it probably starts at the age of 3.

At the age of 3, children begin to become curious about what they see but do not understand. They start to familiarize themselves with road signs and things of the like. It builds from that. By the time a child starts school, at the age of 5, they know simple words and are well on their way to reading and writing in the next few years. By age 9, the normal child should be reading, writing, and starting to write cursively.

To me, the most important years of our school education are between the ages of 12 and 18, grades 6-12. During this time, a child is able to develop socially as well as educationally. To develop socially is important, for a person who can associate with another rationally, plus get the job done, will land the promotion promptly. During grades 6-12, children are able to become leaders of school functions and get first-hand experience through several various educational programs and camps. Though the years of ages 12-18 are socially benefitting, getting the right education prepares us for institutions of higher learning such as technical and vocational school and universities. The education between these years should be handled with care, the right courses taken and, of course, passed.

The next rung on the ladder of education is college. Either by scholarship, student loan, or your own pocket, college is financially demanding, particularly if you are an out-of-state student, which could nearly double tuition costs.

Not only is college money-consuming, but time-consuming, also. You must be willing to divide your time between work and fun, reality and the surreal. The key word is adjustment.

After college, there's job hunting. Job hunting can be very tough, but with the right attributes, can be very successful and you will be in the work force in no time at all. Then, the approximately 17-21 years of education you will have consumed will pay off.

Vikki Mercer, 14, a student at Farmville Central High School receives special mention.

The Prince And The Ant

By Ashe Creech

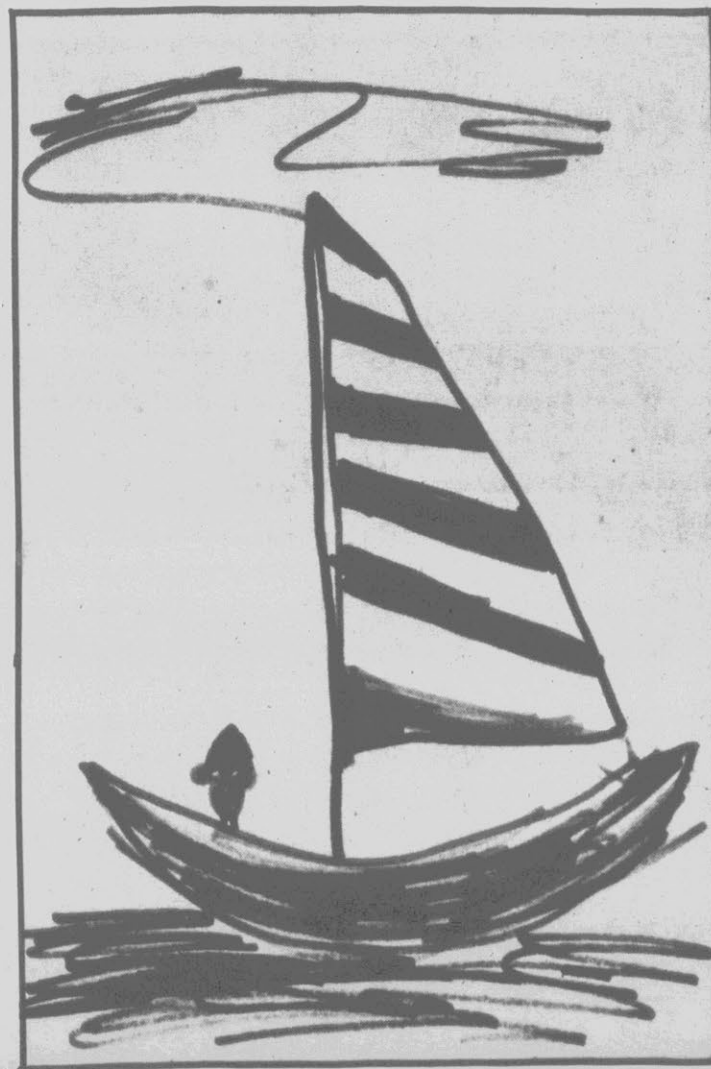

Once upon a time there was a prince who lived in a castle. One day the prince went for a ride on a horse. He came upon a very, very tiny ant so he stopped. The ant said, "My name is Sir Antcelot."

The prince said, "Won't you bow to me?"

"I am," said the ant. "You will have to come a little closer and you will see." The prince did. The prince started to pick on him. The ant knew the prince would pick on him so he put super glue on the road and the prince got stuck. MORAL: Don't pick on someone smaller than you!

Ashe Creech, 9, a student at H.B. Sugg School receives special mention.

Amy Spruill, 7, a student at Eastern Elementary School receives special mention.

Tar Heel Trivia

Declaration of Independence

Three men representing the state of North Carolina signed the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia in 1776. None were native born to the state.

William Hooper was born in Boston but moved to Wilmington as a young man. Hooper graduated from Harvard and was a lawyer. He served in royal Gov. Tryon's military, but later was part of the Continental Congress.

Even though the British destroyed his property during the Revolutionary War, Hooper did not desire harsh treatment for Americans who avored rule by a king

Joseph Hewes was born in New Jersey and moved to N.C. as a young adult. He served as a member of the Continental Congress and was considered the first director of the U.S. Navy even though the title was never official. It was Hewes who appointed John Paul Jones as an officer in the Navy.

Virginia was the birthplace of John Penn who moved to N.C. as a youngster. Penn was an attorney and a member of the Continental Congress.

Fruits And Juices Provide Natural Beverage Ideas

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

Surprise your children with a cool, afterschool treat, or have friends over for some tantalizing beverage ideas with fruits and juices.

The Lipton Kitchens in Englewood Cliffs, N.J., suggests using some of nature's candies for enticing children into the kitchen or for entertaining guests at a dinner party.

For example, make a watermelon boat by drawing a horizontal line 2 1/2 inches from the top of a medium watermelon. With a sharp knife, cut along the line to remove the top. Scoop out the pulp and carve as desired.

Dress up and chill party punches with a decorative ring of juice, sherbert or a colorful arrangement of fruits frozen in a ring mold, or pre-chill glasses before serving a frosty blender drink.

Try other beverage ideas by using the accompanying recipes.

FANTASIA FRUIT PUNCH

2/3 cup lemon-flavored iced tea mix
1 quart water
1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate 1 can (6 ounces) frozen pineapple juice concentrate 5 cups sliced fresh fruit

1 bottle (28 ounces) club soda, chilled
In punch bowl, combine lemon-flavored ice tea mix with water, concentrates and fresh fruits. Just before serving, add club soda. Serve with ice. Makes about 20 (5-ounce) servings.

Variations:
Graduation Fruit Punch: Substitute 1 bottle (28 ounces) chilled ginger ale for club soda.
Bridal Fruit Punch: Substitute 1 bottle (4/5 quart) chilled champagne for club soda.
Anniversary Fruit Punch: Substitute 1 bottle (4/5 quart) chilled sparkling Burgundy wine for club soda.

PEACHY ICED TEA PUNCH

1 quart lemon sherbet, softened
1 can (16 ounces) peach halves in heavy syrup, drained
1/2 cup lemon-flavored ice tea mix
1 can (46 ounces) peach nectar, chilled
1 bottle (23 ounces) club soda, chilled
In bottom of 5 1/2 cup ring mold, arrange peach halves. Fold in sherbet; freeze until firm.

Carrot Pie: Tasty Dessert That Everyone Will Enjoy

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Everyone likes carrot cake, so why not try carrot pie? The result of our test kitchen trials is this luscious orange-and-cream marbled dessert. The carrot and lemonade mixture tastes like a tangy orange sherbet. Wrap the pie in moisture- and vapor-proof material and store it in your freezer up to three months.

CARROT ICE-CREAM PIE

2 1/4 cups sliced carrots of one 16-ounce can sliced carrots
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 of a 6-ounce can (1/3 cup) frozen lemonade concentrate, thawed

1 quart vanilla ice cream
9-inch graham cracker pie shell
In a medium saucepan cook fresh carrots, covered, in a small amount of boiling salted water for 30 minutes or until very tender; drain. (Or drain canned carrots.)

In blender container or food processor bowl blend carrots until pureed (you should have 1 cup). In a small mixing bowl stir together carrot puree, sugar and lemonade concentrate. Cover and partially freeze.

Place ice cream in a chilled mixing bowl. Using a wooden spoon, soften ice cream by stirring and pressing it against the side of the bowl. Add the partially frozen carrot mixture, quickly folding just to marble.

Spoon mixture into graham cracker pie shell. Cover with foil and freeze 6 hours or overnight or until firm. Let pie stand at room temperature 10 minutes before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Ph.D., ECU Dept. Family Medicine

Dear Readers: If you travel around North Carolina next week you may find volunteers of the American Heart Association cooperating with grocers in their area for this year's Food Fest.

This is the third year that grocery store tours are being given around North Carolina. This year a small group of volunteers are getting into the act in Greenville.

Nancy Harris, Beverly Nesbit, Sue Taylor and Linda Koscianski, all nutritionists at Pitt Internal and Renal Medicine Associates; Cindy Mayo and Judy Brooks, specialized nurses at Pitt County Memorial Hospital; some ECU nutrition students and other volunteers will host an educational display at Farm Fresh Super Saving Center. They will be there Sept. 18-19 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. and will have recipes, booklets, balloons and great enthusiasm for answering your questions.

I, too, am going to stop by and visit them. Why don't you? If there is a good response from you, perhaps next year we can plan an expanded event in Greenville. If you would like more nutrition information in your stores in Greenville, tell the manager at your favorite food store.

Probably the biggest misconception I hear from patients is that a heart healthy diet avoids all red meat. It's not so if you select lean meats, eat small portions and use heart healthy cooking methods. Two of the things you want to do on a heart healthy diet are cut down on saturated fats and cholesterol. There will be some materials at the booth that show you that cutting down on saturated fat and cholesterol doesn't mean cutting out all pork, lamb and beef. Ask the butcher which are the leanest cuts or to trim away as much fat as possible. Some lean beef cuts are flank, round, sirloin, extra lean ground beef, tenderloin, leg and ham of the pork are lean.

The serving size also is important. A 3-ounce serving of beef or pork can easily fit in the healthy diet. Most of us who have eaten larger portions do learn to enjoy and be satisfied with smaller servings. It might be important to eat a meatless meal weekly and to eat more fish as a part of a heart healthy eating pattern.

Remember, the major dietary goal for eastern North Carolinians is to reduce the total fat content of the diet, along with the cholesterol content of the diet. The cooking method can make a big difference. Cutting down on fat will help weight control, reduce risks of heart disease and some cancers.

Check our local Agricultural Extension office (752-2934) for booklets about fat and your health and lite cooking. Also, the North Carolina Pork Producers Association, P.O. Box 25725, 201 New Bern Ave., Raleigh, N.C., 27611 has free recipes on cooking lite with pork. The N.C. Beef Industry Council, 221 W. Martin St., Raleigh, N.C., 27611 has free recipes on cooking lite with beef. If you're going to the State Fair, cholesterol screening will be sponsored by the N.C. Egg Association from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the Kerr-Scott Building.

Remember to stop by and visit the volunteers.

Wholesome After-School Snacks A Key Part Of Youngsters' Diets

After school, refrigerators undergo top-to-bottom inspection by youngsters searching for snacks. Between-meal snacks are an important part of children's daily food intake. Their smaller stomachs need frequent refilling and kids need an energy boost from after-school fuel.

This fall, fill the refrigerator and freezer with wholesome sure-to-please homemade snack treats that won't spoil mealtime appetites. The Kraft Kitchens have created two satisfying, kid-pleasing yogurt-based treats that are easy enough for youngsters to make themselves with just a minimum of adult supervision. They key to their streamlined preparation is marshmallow creme, the "secret ingredient" that ensures a pleasantly smooth texture and sweetly complements the tanginess of yogurt.

Strawberry Banana Creme Pops are deliciously smooth, lightly sweet freezer pleasers youngsters will have fun preparing. Cool fruit smoothies, they feature frozen strawberries and fresh banana in a creamy blend of yogurt and marshmallow creme. Made in minutes and frozen in disposable paper cups, these sure-to-be-popular pops are as easy to prepare as they are to enjoy.

After-school appetites will also be pleased with Peanut Butter Pudding, a tangy-sweet, creamy blend starring kids' all-time favorite spread. This wholesome snack combines just four ingredients — peanut butter, marshmallow creme, milk and plain yogurt — with the junior cook's choice of chocolate chips or raisins as a garnish. This smooth and satisfying pudding will keep for two days in the refrigerator, but don't be surprised if it disappears even more quickly.

Apples Offer A Delicious Way To Meet Fiber Needs, Eat Light

It's widely held the apples have been around since the days of Adam and Eve. September is the time of year when temptation reaches its peak for this widely enjoyed fruit. But this is one temptation it's safe to indulge. Apples are a fine source of dietary fiber. A large apple contains only about 80 calories, a single gram of fat and less than 2 grams of sodium.

The selection of apples is at its best now too, so make sure you are picking the right apple for your needs. If you're baking, choose firm varieties: Rome Beauty, Northern Spy, Greening, Winesap, Granny Smith or York Imperial. Preparing a snack or packing a lunch? Try crisp Cortland, Red and Golden Delicious, Empire, McIntosh, Newtown Pippin or Winesap. For the best flavor in your homemade applesauce, use Beacon, Empire, Newton Pippin, Fenton or Granny Smith.

Apples need a cool storage place (best around 32 degrees) with good air circulation to maintain crispness. Your refrigerator is a good place, but try to keep apples in a separate storage area since they give off a "ripening hormone" that can cause other fruits and vegetables around them to overripen.

Here are some delicious ways to enjoy the apple harvest:

APPLE SPICE MUFFINS

A special ingredient makes these muffins deliciously sweet and spicy: Oriental Five Spice Powder, a blend of such spices as star anise, fennel and cinnamon. (You can find it in the Oriental food section of most grocery stores, or you can substitute cinnamon or a blend of cinnamon and other sweet spices if you prefer.) For good nutrition, these muffins feature whole wheat and a limited amount of fat. They're moist enough that you don't need to add butter or margarine when serving.

1/2 cup packed dark brown sugar
1/4 cup oil
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup skim milk
1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon Oriental Five Spice Powder
1 cup apple, peeled and chopped
Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

Frozen Treats Are Kid Pleasers

There are many delicious frozen treats on a stick available at the supermarket these days, but they tend to be rather expensive.

If you are looking for a low-cost frozen snack to serve on a hot September day, you may want to try this recipe for Yogurt Frozen Treats. In addition to being relatively low in cost, Yogurt Frozen Treats are nutritious, says Shirley Usry, extension foods and nutrition specialist at North Carolina State University.

YOGURT FROZEN TREATS

1 6-ounce frozen orange juice concentrate

4 tablespoons gelatin (any fruit flavor)
1 16-ounce container plain yogurt
12 3-ounce paper cups
12 wooden or plastic sticks

Place the frozen orange juice concentrate in a saucepan and sprinkle with the gelatin. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until the gelatin dissolves. Cool. Pour yogurt into gelatin mixture and stir until smooth. Place cups together on a baking pan. Pour yogurt mixture into paper cups and cover the cups with a sheet of aluminum foil.

Insert a stick for each treat by making a slit in the foil over the center of each cup. Freeze until firm. Loosen each treat by running warm water on the outside of the cup. Sticks may be purchased at a hobby store. Reusable plastic forms of homemade frozen treats also are available.

The small size of these treats may make them unsafe for very young children who might inhale and choke on the stick or the partially eaten treat.

Apples

Lightly oil muffin pans (enough for a dozen muffins), or line with paper cupcake liners.

In a medium bowl, blend the sugar, oil, egg, vanilla and milk. Sift the flour, baking soda and spice powder into a large bowl, and stir in any bran particles left remaining in the sifter.

Add the liquid ingredients and stir just until blended. The batter does not have to be free of lumps. Stir in the apple pieces. Spoon into the pans, filling each just slightly more than halfway. Sprinkle the top of each with a bit more spice powder or cinnamon. Bake at 375 degrees until done, about 20 to 25 minutes.

This recipe will yield 12 muffins, each containing 5 grams of fat and about 145 calories.

POACHED APPLES WITH CRANBERRY-CINNAMON SAUCE
Another tasty way to make use of fall apples. The cranberry-cinnamon sauce adds beautiful color, as well as a complex tart, sweet and spicy flavor.

4 medium baking apples
1/2 cup plus 1/3 cup sugar
2 1/2 cups water
1 cup fresh cranberries (about 4 ounces)
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
Wash and core the apples (peeling is optional). In a large saucepan, mix the sugar and water and add the apples. Over high heat, bring to a boil, then reduce heat to low, cover and simmer for 10 minutes, or until the apples are just tender. Baste with syrup in pan occasionally while cooking.

Meanwhile, in a medium saucepan heat the cranberries, cinnamon, 2/3 cup of water and 1/2 cup of sugar. Heat over medium heat to a boil, and boil gently for 10 minutes. Cool slightly, then place mixture in a food processor or blender and puree until smooth.

To serve, pour the sauce over the apples and into the cored centers. This will yield 4 servings, each with 0 grams of fat and about 200 calories.

POACHED PEARS WITH TANGERINE SAUCE

4 small ripe seckel or comice pears
Juice of 4 tangerines
Sauterne
2 cups sugar
1 vanilla bean, split lengthwise
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Long thin strips tangerine peel or grated peel
Whipped cream
Peel pears, leaving stems intact. Carefully remove core, working from blossom end and not cutting through stem end. Set aside.
Measure tangerine juice and add enough sauterne to equal 4 cups. Mix liquid in large saucepan with sugar, vanilla and nutmeg. Bring to boil. Add pears and poach 20 minutes.
Remove pears from liquid. Reduce liquid to 2 cups. Chill pears and syrup.

To serve, place 1 pear in each of 4 dessert dishes or bowls. Pour some sauce over. Drape with tangerine peel strips or sprinkle with grated peel. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 4 servings.

Microwave Perfect For Sauce Cooking

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Cook sauces in your microwave oven and you may never go back to the conventional way again. You can measure, mix and cook many sauces all in the same 2- or 4-cup glass measure. For sauces containing lots of chopped vegetables or other solids, a microwave-safe casserole works the best. If you use a wooden spoon for stirring, you can leave it in the sauce during cooking.

LINGUINE WITH WHITE CLAM SAUCE

- 4 ounces linguine
- Two 6½- or 7½-ounce cans minced clams
- ¼ cup thinly sliced green onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- Dash white pepper
- ¾ cup milk
- ½ cup sliced pitted ripe olives

2 tablespoons snipped parsley
Cook linguine following package directions. Drain; keep warm. Drain clams, reserving ¼ cup juice.

In a microwave-safe 1-quart casserole, micro-cook onion, garlic and margarine, covered, on 100 percent power (high) 1 to 2 minutes or until onion is tender. Stir in flour and pepper. Add milk. Cook, uncovered, on high 3 to 5 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring after each minute.

Add clams, reserved juice, olives and parsley. Cook, uncovered, on high for 1 to 2 minutes more or until mixture is heated through. Toss with linguine until coated. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 535 cal., 27 g pro., 62 g carbo., 20 g fat, 70 mg chol., 1,509 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 22 percent vit. A, 40 percent thiamine, 35 percent riboflavin, 29 percent niacin, 28 percent calcium, 58 percent iron, 46 percent phosphorus.

Excess Is OK In Preparing That Special Birthday Cake

By Peggy Katalinich
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

I think that a homemade chocolate cake is the only way to celebrate a birthday. Not angel food. Not carrot. Not Carvel.

I suspect my son, recently turned 2, isn't as stuck on the notion. Like most kids, he likes anything sweet that is easily negotiated with a fork or, preferably, fingers.

Last year I baked four different chocolate cakes, but none worked out quite right: On one the frosting was perfect, the cake was dry; another was altogether too sweet.

This year I do believe I have it, a dense, chocolatey three-layer cake made with sour cream frosted with chocolate buttercream. I think the computer would short out if we calculated the calories per serving; suffice it to say, it's a lot.

But birthdays are worth the special excess — made even more outrageous with a dollop of whipped cream or a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

Serve this with the only possible beverage — an ice-cold glass of milk. Both the cake and the frosting are adaptations of recipes by Maida Heatter, the dessert maven and cookbook author.

CHOCOLATE SOUR-CREAM THREE-LAYER CAKE

- 6 ounces semisweet chocolate
- 2 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons cocoa
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 3/4 cup sweet butter (1 1/2 sticks), room temperature
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/3 cups sugar
- 3 large eggs
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup water

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Prepare three 9-inch cake pans, grease the bottoms and sides generously with butter and coat with flour, shaking off excess.

2. Break chocolate into pieces. In the top of a double boiler or in a microwave oven, melt chocolate. Allow to cool slightly.

3. Sift together flour, cocoa, salt, baking soda and powder.

4. In a separate bowl, cream butter with a mixer until light and fluffy, beat in vanilla, then add sugar slowly and beat to combine thoroughly. Add the eggs one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Beat in chocolate.

5. Combine sour cream and water and stir together until mixed. Add alternately with the dry ingredients, beating well after each addition. Pour batter into prepared pans.

6. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean and the layer pulls away from the sides. Let cool a few minutes before turning out onto a wire rack. Let cool completely before frosting.

CHOCOLATE-BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

- 6 ounces semisweet chocolate
- 1 1/2 cups sweet butter (3 sticks), at room temperature
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 cup milk
- 2 egg yolks

1. Break chocolate into pieces and melt in the top of a double boiler or in a microwave oven. Let cool before proceeding with recipe.

2. Beat butter with a mixer until creamy. Add vanilla, milk and chocolate and beat until thoroughly combined. Beat in egg yolks one at a time. If mixture is too soft to spread, refrigerate a few minutes to harden. Use to frost a three-layer cake. Cake is best used on the same day it is baked. If temperature is warm, store cake in refrigerator.

RISOTTO WITH FENNEL

- 1 bulb fennel
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 shallots, minced
- 2 1/2 to 3 cups chicken broth
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup Arborio rice
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese salt and freshly ground pepper

1. Trim fennel. Cut bulb in quarters and remove hard core. Slice fennel and cut slices in half. In saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter and saute shallots and fennel until tender over low heat. Remove and coarsely chop in food processor.

2. Place chicken broth in a saucepan; set it on burner and bring liquid to a simmer.

3. Melt 2 tablespoons butter and stir in uncooked rice. Stirring constantly, cook rice about 5 minutes or until it becomes opaque. Add 1/2 cup hot chicken broth to rice. Stir constantly until the broth is almost absorbed. Continue to add chicken broth, 1/2 cup at a time, stirring constantly, until rice is tender and creamy. Use as much broth as necessary. Remove rice from heat and stir in fennel mixture and Parmesan cheese. Add salt and pepper to taste. Makes 4 servings.

Be Creative In Packing Lunch Boxes

School's open for less than a month, but already the lunch box menus may start to seem a trifle boring. Tuna fish sandwich again? More peanut butter and jelly? Some kids, it seems, could eat the same meal 365 days a year, but it's a good idea to introduce a little variety to give them balanced nutrition and to keep them interested in eating well.

There's absolutely nothing wrong with tuna fish or peanut butter and jelly sandwiches — they can be wholesome sources of protein and other important nutrients. Since 60 percent of the sandwich is the bread, however, it's best to use a whole grain bread for added vitamins, minerals and fiber. For variety, try mixing carrots and raisins into the peanut butter spread or prepare the peanut butter stuffed into an apple or celery sticks.

Other non-sandwich ideas include cottage cheese or cheese spread in celery sticks or cucumber boats, tuna salad wrapped in a lettuce leaf, or chicken drumsticks. As the weather cools, send along a thermos full of vegetable soup or stew.

Every lunch should include a fruit or vegetable: pickles, carrot sticks, green pepper strips, cucumber slices and cherry tomatoes are good vegetable choices. Apples, oranges and bananas are fine, but add variety with seedless grapes, peaches, cubed watermelon, pineapple chunks and dried fruit.

For a treat, pack raisins, popcorn, yogurt, cheese and crackers, sunflower seeds, graham crackers or fig bars.

Here some additional lunch box ideas:

SANDWICH BEAN SPREAD

A bean sandwich may sound a little strange at first, but this delicious spread is nutritious and low in fat. Its mild flavor goes well with tomatoes in a sandwich.

- 1 cup pinto beans (uncooked)
- 1 dry red pepper
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 4 cups water
- 1/4 cup celery, chopped
- 2 tablespoons taco sauce (or chili sauce)
- 2 tablespoons ketchup
- Dash Worcestershire sauce
- Hot pepper sauce to taste (optional)

Rinse the beans and remove any stones or foreign matter. Place the beans, red pepper, garlic and onion in the water and bring to a boil. Remove from heat, cover and let sit for one hour. Then return to the stove and simmer for 1 to 2 hours, until the beans are tender.

Drain off the excess moisture and place the cooked ingredients in a food processor or blender with the remaining ingredients. Blend just until smooth. Add hot pepper sauce or extra ketchup if desired. Serve on whole wheat bread with alfalfa sprouts or lettuce and tomatoes.

This will yield about eight 1/2-cup servings, each containing about 98 calories and no fat.

RAISIN OATMEAL BARS

This economical bar cookie has a moist raisin filling between two crunchy oatmeal layers. The flavor is even better if you wait a day before serving.

- 2 cups raisins, chopped
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 1/2 cups quick-cooking oats
- 3/4 cup butter or margarine

To prepare the filling, in a saucepan combine the chopped raisins, 6 tablespoons of sugar and the cornstarch. Gradually stir in the water and lemon juice. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to medium and cook and stir until mixture is thick and bubbly. Remove from heat.

In a mixing bowl, combine the flour, brown sugar and oats. Cut in the butter, and mix to a crumbly consistency.

Pat half of the mixture into an ungreased 9x13-inch baking pan. Spread the filling mixture, while still warm, over this base. Then sprinkle the remainder of the crumb mixture on top and pat gently.

Bake in 375-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes, or until the edges begin to brown and the top is golden. Cool and cut into bars.

This will yield about 3 dozen, 1x3-inch bars, each providing about 130 calories and 5 grams of fat.

The Quebec Bridge on the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City collapsed in 1907 and carried 75 workmen to their deaths. The bridge was started in 1900 and was then the world's largest cantilever bridge. After the accident, construction work was continued and both cantilever sections had been completed when the center span fell into the river, taking the lives of another 13 workmen.

Decrease Fat Intake For Good Health

By Nina Killham
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

Every 15 minutes a woman dies of breast cancer. What is especially frightening is that more than 60 percent of those diagnosed with the disease had no risk factors.

According to National Women's Health Network (NWHN), changing to a low-fat diet could be an effective way to curb this widespread disease.

Victoria Leonard, executive director of NWHN, said that while dietary fat doesn't cause breast cancer, studies have shown that fat promotes it.

Studies on rats conducted by Dr. Peter Greenwald of the National Cancer Institute and Drs. Ernst Wynder and John Weisbruger of the American Health Foundation have confirmed a study first done almost 40 years ago, which indicated that the lower the fat intake in a diet, the fewer and smaller the breast tumors.

Unfortunately, according to Leonard, there is a bias among many doctors against regulating nutrition to prevent breast cancer. "They think women won't follow a low-fat diet." But, she said, after a widespread campaign about the detrimental effects of cholesterol, the level of cholesterol in the population at large dropped.

She suggests that women need counseling to change their high-fat intake. "We are saying, give us the information and let us make the choice. Tell us what the risks are and let us decide."

Leonard is calling for more studies conducted on humans to explore fully the effect of diet on breast cancer. Of a Harvard Medical School study on 90,000 nurses that showed there was no association between dietary fat and breast cancer, NWHN says that the study was based on a 30 percent fat intake figure and that other studies based on a 20 percent fat intake showed a decrease in the growth of breast cancer. The average American diet is 40 percent fat.

The National Cancer Institute is conducting a long term low-fat study to determine whether diets containing 20 percent or less of total calories from fat will reduce the incidence of breast cancer in women who are at increased risk of the disease.

In the meantime, the NWHN has developed a pamphlet on low-fat nutrition to help women change their diet. To stick to a 20 percent-fat diet, it suggests cutting down on the fat in meat, dairy products and vegetable oils. Leonard notes that there are studies now investigating the possibility of olive oil being exempt from this list because Mediterranean women who consume just as much dietary fat have a lower incidence of breast cancer. Omega 3 oils found in some fish are also considered exempt.

Since NWHN developed the pamphlet, said Leonard, a number of physicians have begun to order it to give their patients.

According to the NWHN, prevention through diet might eventually be seen as the only hope, for despite treatments, the actual mortality rate from breast cancer has not declined over the past 40 years.

The best procedure to fight breast cancer, suggests NWHN, is to change your diet in combination with regular breast self-examination.

For $1 you can send away for "The Diet Your Doctor Won't Give You." Prepared originally for Ms. magazine's April 1987 issue, it tells you how to calculate your fat allowance. Also included are sample menus, a few sample low-fat recipes and an explanation of the different fats. Write: National Women's Health Network, 1325 G St. NW, Lower Level B, Washington, D.C. 20005.

There is no better time than tonight to begin a low-fat diet with the recipe below provided by the NWHN.

Express lane list: chicken, onion, thyme, marjoram, lemon, paprika and parsley.

CRISPY OVEN-FRIED LEMON CHICKEN

(3 to 4 servings)
1 fryer, cut into serving pieces and skinned

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 small onion, finely diced
1/2 teaspoon thyme, crushed
1/2 teaspoon marjoram, crushed
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
1/3 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup water
Lemon quarters
Paprika
Snipped parsley

Sprinkle chicken pieces with salt, rubbing well into flesh. Place in shallow baking pan. Combine onion, seasonings, lemon peel and juice, and water; pour over chicken. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees about 30 minutes. Turn chicken and continue to bake, basting with pan drippings once or twice until chicken is done, about 30 minutes.

Arrange chicken on serving platter. Dust one side of each lemon quarter with paprika and garnish the platter.

Per serving: 215 calories, 7 grams fat.

But now there's a charge account for most major purchases totaling $700 and up—with two big pluses. First, your monthly payments for these purchases will be up to 25% lower than with your SearsCharge. Second, you have more months to pay your balance. Plus, with your SearsCharge PLUS credit plan, there's no down payment, no annual membership fee and no hidden credit charges, just like SearsCharge.

WHAT'S INCLUDED

Even when it's not convenient for you to pay cash, you can still take advantage of Sears sensational sales... and charge what you need for your home when you need it. SearsCharge PLUS is perfect when you're shopping for Kenmore washers, dryers, microwaves or other appliances... or choose today's electronics, including TVs, VCRs and stereos from famous names like Sony, RCA and Magnavox. Plus you can use it to buy furniture, lawn and garden needs and more!

HOW TO APPLY

Visit your nearby Sears retail store. Select the item or items you love from the categories listed above. Then ask your salesperson how to open a SearsCharge PLUS plan. If your total purchase price is at least $700, it may apply. Don't wait... use your boosted buying power today at Sears!
