School Task Force Begins Study

By CHERIE EVANS

In spite of gains made toward equality in the United States in recent years, it is still an uphill battle for minorities — especially blacks — to be successful, and "there's plenty of blame to go around," says Dr. Santee Ruffin, director of urban education for the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Ruffin was speaking to a 26-member minority-ethnic task force comprised of teachers, principals, central office personnel and local citizens Thursday night in Wahl-Coates School. It was formed by the Pitt County school system to address perceptions school personnel, students and the community have about black students.

He was the first in a series of scheduled speakers who will address the task force through mid-November. The task force then will deliberate on the information presented and make recommendations to the Pitt County Board of Education in February to be used in long-range planning for the schools.

Ruffin began his presentation on understanding and motivating black students with a brief history lesson.

"It was not too long ago ... when it was against the master's law for a slave to even attempt to learn to read," he said. And, after emancipation and integration, blacks still were treated and made to feel like lower-class people, he said.

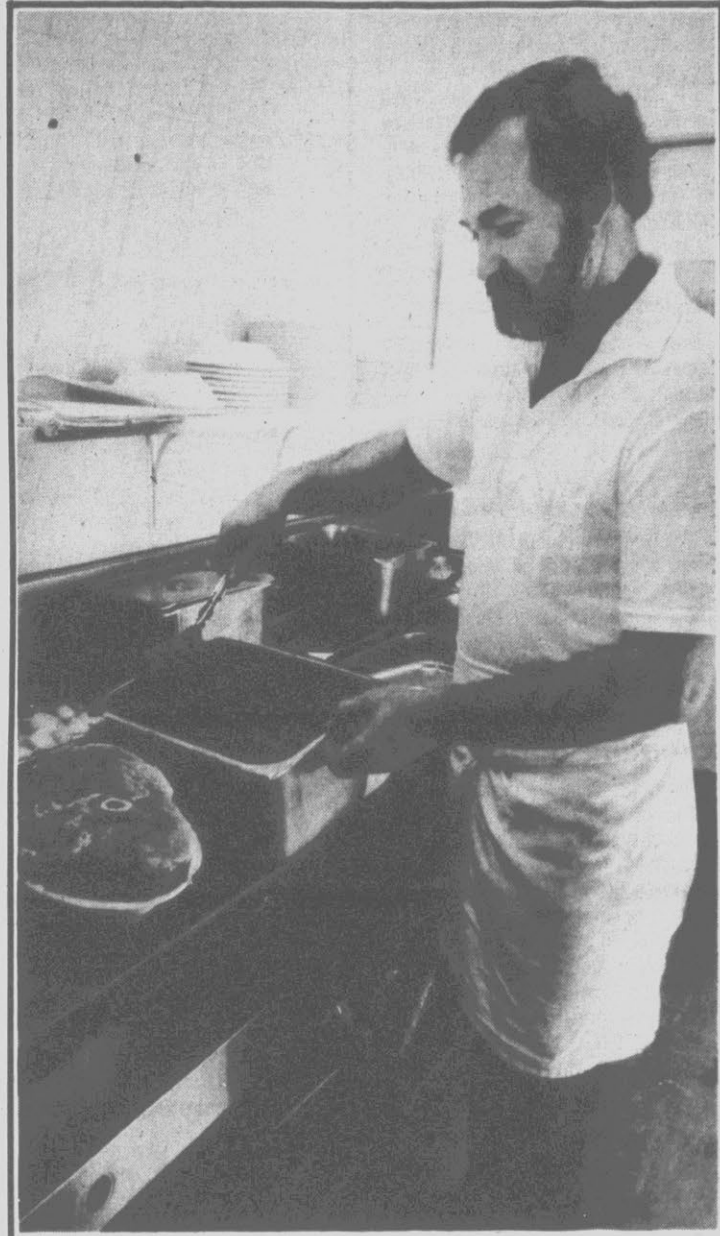

A pattern of inferiority and inadequateness was established in the black community so that black parents began telling their children, "don't get uppity," and "know your place," Ruffin said.

Even today, "Look how many times black kids change direction when they get close to a group of white kids in the mall," he said.

"In spite of all that, people were able to succeed," Ruffin said. But, "I'm not talking about the exceptions, but more the rule."

Council Annexes Four Areas

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council has approved four annexations which will add approximately 51 acres to the city's jurisdiction with total estimated revenues of $44,289 at full development.

The annexations, unanimously approved by the City Council at its monthly meeting Thursday night, require $11,204 in total estimated annual expenses, according to Bobby Roberson, director of planning and community development.

Roberson said the annexations are expected to increase the city's population by about 272 people when fully developed.

The council approved a request to annex Westhaven subdivision, Section 8, located south of Whichport development and east of Woodhaven Road. The annexation of the 26.74-acre tract includes an estimated revenue of $3,814 at full development.

Council members approved the annexation of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church, 4.53 acres located off the northeast intersection of state roads 1200 and 1203. Roberson said the property is expected to require $440 in estimated annual expenses.

Requests to annex .18-acres in Rabbit Run subdivision located off Tuckahoe Drive and Tucker Estates, Section 4, a 20.047-acre tract located off Cadenza Street and Tucker Drive, were also approved.

The additional Rabbit Run lot is expected to provide $474 in estimated revenues, while Tucker Estates, Section 4, includes $20,003 in estimated revenue.

The annexation of the Tucker Estates' property links the city with satellite annexations outside the city limits, according to Roberson.

"It makes two subdivisions known as Windy Ridge and Scarborough subdivisions, which are now currently satellite annexations, contiguous to the city limits," Roberson told council members. "It reduces the satellite percentage."

In other business, the council unanimously approved requests by Procter & Gamble Paper Products Co. to rezone three tracts located east of Greene Street and north of state road 1529 from high-density residential to highway commercial, residential-agricultural to industrial and residential-agricultural to unoffensive industry.

Council members also approved a request by Derek Dunn to rezone property located south of Westhaven subdivision, Section 8, from residential-agricultural to medium density single family residential will be considered.

Meanwhile, the board approved four ordinances amending the 1987-88 city of Greenville Budget Ordinance.

The first amendment coincides with the implementation of the recently approved pay and classification study, with distribution of the $300,000 budget figure to the appropriate line items in the General Fund.

Finance Director Ron Kimble said $160,410 is to be distributed to each department for initial implementation and $109,733 is to be added to the merit line item bringing it to its approved total of $214,733. He said the remaining $29,857 will be added to the city manager's budget for future anticipated expenses.

The second amendment reallocates $27,150 budgeted for the police and fire-rescue cleaning allowance. The money designated for uniform cleaning was included in pay raises granted to police and fire-rescue upon implementation of the pay study, Kimble said.

The amendments also appropriates $50,000 for widening of 14th Street south of Greenville Boulevard and reappropriates unspent money included in the 1986-87 budget for the computer system to the 1987-88 budget.

Council members also approved an ordinance amending the 1983-84 Small Cities-South Evans Project Fund Budget.

"This is what we consider to be the final closeout budget preparation," Roberson said. "We're in the process of closing out the South Evans Redevelopment project area. It is best summarized the two major program activities that will be undertaken is acquisition which is close to $200,000 and relocation assistance at about $46,000.

"We're in the process of going through the right-of-way in terms of

Farm EXPO Draws Sparse Crowd To Opening Events

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

GRIMESLAND — In spite of a sunny sky and a free performance by the Super Grit Cowboy Band, the Carolina Farmer EXPO began Thursday with a sparse crowd.

The exposition, which will conclude a three-day stand at Oakland Farm off N.C. 33 just east of Grimesland on Saturday, opened Thursday with an agricultural career show attended by several hundred vocational agriculture and Future Farmers of America students — mostly from Gates and Beaufort counties.

The students and others visiting Oakland Farm had the opportunity to view between 40 and 50 exhibits where various equipment and technology was being displayed.

Visitors could also view more than 450 acres of demonstration crops, including 12 varieties of cotton on 418 acres, 100 varieties of corn, 53 varieties of soybeans and several varieties of peanuts.

The 20 varieties of tobacco on 33 acres have already been cut. But they were viewed during a field day held in July.

Two members of the House Agriculture Committee are scheduled to attend the expo — Rep. Charles Rose of Fayetteville at 1 p.m. today and Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville at 11 a.m. Saturday.

And a sky diving team is scheduled to put on a demonstration at 2 p.m. today, while the Silver Wings band will perform at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The Super Grit Cowboy Band, scheduled to play at 2 p.m., began its concert about 1:30, after most of the students had gone. And only a dozen or so non-exhibitors gathered at any one time to listen.

Super Grit's sound man, Wayne Sorrell, said the band had "never played for a smaller crowd since I've been with them ... about two years."

But Clyde Mattocks, a co-founder of Super Grit in 1975, said the band was scheduled to play at a club in Rocky Mount several years ago, when a snow storm hit and only one person showed up. "We gave him his money back and everybody went home," Mattocks said.

Oakland Farm secretary Lori Riggan said at mid-morning today that other than exhibitors there were very few people at the expo. But she said this morning had been predicted as the slowest time at the show.

Clifton Dixon, the coordinator for Oakland Farm, said today that "with the career day (Thursday) we did very well," and that exhibitors and expo officials were "satisfied with the turnout."

Dixon said that because of the dry weather early in the season and recent rains, "the tobacco crop is so late ... tobacco is still in the field. Farmers are still tied up in the field with their crops (and) can't get away during the week."

Trent Released

Dr. Lee Trent was released from the North Carolina prison system Thursday after a bond of $40,000 was posted in Pitt County Superior Court.

Trent's conviction for first-degree rape and two counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor were overturned by a North Carolina Supreme Court decision last week.

According to the Supreme Court directive, the Pitt County district attorney has the option of calling for a new trial concerning the indecent liberties charges.

Trent was convicted in 1985 of having sexually abused his daughter.

Pope Meets With Jewish Leaders

MIAMI (AP) — Pope John Paul II, in a long-awaited meeting with Jewish leaders, today defended his predecessor popes against accusations that they were silent about the Holocaust, and proclaimed that such horrors must happen "never again."

The pope said Jews have a right to a homeland "as does any civil nation." But that right "also applies to the Palestinian people, so many of whom remain homeless and refugees."

The pope made his remarks after a tour of a traveling exhibit of Judaica from the Vatican collection.

Rabbi Mordecai Waxman, former head of the Synagogue Council of America, stressed in his remarks that difference remained.

"However, this opportunity for us to express the pain and anger of the Jewish community in face-to-face meetings and for you and leaders of your church to listen with respect and openness, represents an important confirmation of the progress our communities have made in recent decades," Waxman said.

The meeting, on the first full day of John Paul's nine-city tour of the United States, had nearly been canceled after the pontiff's meeting in June with Austrian President Kurt Waldheim, who has been accused of complicity with Nazi war crimes against Jews and partisans in the Balkans. Waldheim has denied the allegations.

Following a Mass in Tamiami Park, the pope was head for Columbia, S.C., for a meeting with 27 Protestant leaders and then on to New Orleans.

He received a rousing welcome to South Florida on Thursday, with an airport greeting by President Reagan and a public motorcade that followed the Orange Bowl Parade route. If the crowds were smaller than had been expected — and they were — the promised protests were microscopic.

"I come as a friend — a friend of America and of all Americans: Catholics, Orthodox, Protestants and Jews, people of every religion, and all men and women of good will," the pope said at his arrival.

In his speech today, the pope dealt head on with accusations that the church did little to stop the Nazis from murdering 6 million Jews.

The popes' efforts were "strong, unequivocal," he said. Pope Pius XI, who reigned from 1922 to 1939, said the swastika was "an enemy of the Cross of Christ," and history will show "how hard and effectively" he worked to assist Jews during World War II, John Paul said.

Spangler Says Ban On Football Proper

North Carolina State University officials made an appropriate decision when they called for a one-year moratorium on the football series between the Wolfpack and East Carolina, according to the president of the University of North Carolina.

"The people who made that decision are familiar with how important athletics are to not only the two universities involved but all the people who enjoy athletic contests," C.D. Spangler said in an interview Thursday.

"They are also well aware of the importance of maintaining the integrity in any activity undertaken by the universities."

More than 50 people were injured in a post-game celebration Saturday night when nearly 2,000 fans, most of them ECU supporters, crashed through a restraining fence in the end zone of the stadium and mangled two goal posts on the field.

Damages to the field and stadium were estimated at $7,200, N.C. State Athletic Director Jim Valvano said.

The North Carolina State Athletic Council recommended the suspension after meeting Tuesday night to discuss the melee. NCSU Chancellor then approved the measure Wednesday.

"They made what I think is an understandable decision to not play that game next year," Spangler said. "Naturally, it is a disappointment to a great number of people that a few people who acted irresponsibly have caused this cooling down period to be necessary."

"Nobody wants to stifle university spirit, nobody wants to take away the fun of athletic contests, but neither one of these campuses can afford to be a part of any encouragement to a group of people who cannot maintain their sanity. I regret the necessity for the decision, but I think it is the correct decision."

Chad OKs Cease-Fire With Libya

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — Chad has accepted a cease-fire in its territorial war with Libya, according to a statement released today by the Organization of African Unity.

The OAU said it arranged the truce and Chad's Cabinet agreed to it Thursday night in an emergency session. The cease-fire was to begin at 11 a.m. today.

Libyan radio, monitored in Nicosia, announced that Tripoli had also accepted the cease-fire. The radio said Libya hoped the truce would "put an end to Chadian suffering and would help in finding a solution (to the conflict) under the aegis of the OAU."

The Chadian government said in a statement today that the cease-fire did not necessarily indicate a settlement in the conflict over the disputed 43,000-square-mile Aouzou region.

According to the OAU statement, Zambian President Kenneth Kuanda, who leads the OAU, began negotiating the truce on Wednesday.

The OAU, composed of 50 African countries, aims at improving African solidarity.

Chad called for an "immediate meeting" of the OAU committee charged with mediating an end to the dispute over ownership of the mineral-rich frontier region.

Libya annexed the Aouzou in 1973 under a never ratified pre-World War II treaty between France and Italy, then the colonial powers.

The government statement also called on Chadians to remain vigilant and mobilized during the cease-fire.

Attempts to reach the Chadian Embassy in Paris to confirm the cease-fire were unsuccessful.

On Thursday, Libyan warplanes bombed the town of Fada and the base of Ouadi Doum in northern Chad, Chad radio reported. The radio did not provide any details of damage or casualties from the bombings, the latest in a series of almost daily attacks by the Libyans, who have been on the defensive in ground fighting.

Chadian troops, after pushing Libyan soldiers out of northern Chad, thrust into southern Libya last Saturday and reportedly destroyed an air base.

The base is about 60 miles north of the disputed Aouzou strip. It was the first foray by Chad into undisputed Libyan territory.

JANA reported Thursday that Libyan television had shown U.S.-made Stinger anti-aircraft missiles left behind by Chadian troops in the weekend attack.

American officials had said this week that Chad's request for Stingers was under consideration, but there had been no previous indication that such missiles were already in use.

Trade Deficit Dips Again As Home Prices Hold Even

By BILL MENEZES
AP Business Writer

A plunge in U.S. exports helped propel the nation's trade deficit to a record $16.5 billion in July, the fourth monthly increase in a row, while domestic wholesale prices remained flat in August for the first time in nine months, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the widening of the gap between exports and imports followed a $15.7 billion deficit in June. For the first seven months of 1987, the trading shortfall has been accumulating at an annual rate of $168.7 billion — above the record $156.2 deficit for all of 1986.

Lower food costs and early end-of-the-model-year auto discounts offset slightly higher energy prices to keep the Labor Department's Producer Price Index unchanged in August for the first time in nine months.

The news of the widening trade shortfall pushed the dollar lower in foreign-exchange trading today, dealers said.

Earlier, speculation that the trade report would not be as bad as previously expected had helped the financial markets regain ground lost because of last month's negative trade news.

The dollar edged higher Thursday as currency traders awaited the Commerce Department's report.

In New York, the dollar rose to 142.42 Japanese yen from 141.82 yen late Wednesday.

Interest rates declined in the bond market in response to the strengthening dollar, with yields on the bellwether 30-year Treasury bond falling to 9.57 percent from 9.62 percent late Wednesday.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 26.78 points to 2,576.05 and broader market indexes advanced. Analysts credited the improvement to the stronger dollar, lower interest rates and buying opportunities created by the market's recent decline.

Early support for the dollar Thursday came from Japan's announcement that its trade surplus narrowed in August for the fourth consecutive month.

The dollar has slumped since last month's report that the United States had a record $15.7 billion trade deficit in June, on sentiment that the currency would have to weaken further to make U.S. products competitive enough to shrink the imbalance.

Interest rates have soared since then because of the sentiment that a falling dollar would mean higher inflation and declining foreign investment in U.S. securities, and the stock market weakened in turn.

Separately, the Commerce Department on Thursday estimated business investment spending would grow by a modest 1.4 percent this year, curbed by rising interest rates and the new tax law.

Spending by businesses for expansion and modernization will total an inflation-adjusted $387.9 billion for all of 1987, the department estimated.

The new estimate, based on an industry survey completed in August, represents a downward revision from a May survey which showed businesses planning to boost investment by 2.8 percent this year.

Spending fell by 2.6 percent last year.

Attacks Ebb On Eve Of U.N. Peace Trip

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Neither Iraq nor Iran reported attacks on Persian Gulf shipping or fresh combat as of late afternoon today, indicating they may observe a cease-fire during U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's peace mission to the region.

Perez de Cuellar was due to arrive in Tehran tonight.

The two sides on Thursday had reported attacks on shipping and bombardments of each other's factories, raising questions about whether they would observe a truce, as Perez de Cuellar had demanded.

Several senior U.N. diplomats expressed doubt the trip would succeed in halting the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. But Perez de Cuellar, leaving New York Thursday, told reporters he was hopeful and had "plenty of ideas, plenty of suggestions for both parties." He made an overnight stop in Paris.

In Tehran and other Iranian cities today, millions of Iranians vowing revenge against Saudi Arabia and a worldwide onslaught against the United States paraded through the streets.

The marches were called to mark the end of the mourning period for 275 Iranian pilgrims who died in Mecca on July 31. Iran claims the pilgrims were slain by Saudi security forces. Saudi Arabia denies the charge, saying they and scores of others died in a stampede after a riot.

An Arabic language report by the state-run Iran Television, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, showed demonstrators shouting: "We shall avenge the innocent and pure blood shed in the House of God in Mecca."

Tehran Radio, also monitored in Cyprus, broadcast a resolution in which Iran pledged "a relentless onslaught against American interests throughout the world."

Also today, Navy Secretary James Webb, on an inspection tour of the Navy's escort squadron in the Persian Gulf, visited the flagship USS LaSalle and the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal, according to a Navy source.

The source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Webb would give a "pep talk" to the 1,200-man crew of the Guadalcanal.

Webb is the highest ranking civilian official to visit the U.S. forces in the gulf since the convoy operations

Report Says Ransom Paid For Hostage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Pro-Iranian kidnapers received $2 million to free a West German hostage this week, and plan to release another West German for a similar ransom soon, the magazine Ash-Shiraa reported today.

Also today, the Lebanese wife of U.S. hostage Joseph James Cicippio appealed for the release of all foreign hostages. She spoke one day before the first anniversary of her husband's abduction.

The Holy Warriors for Freedom, a Shiite Moslem group, released Alfred Schmidt on Monday but still holds Rudolf Cordes. Both West Germans were abducted in January.

Ash-Shiraa quoted anonymous security sources for its information on the ransom payments.

Ash-Shiraa gained fame when it broke the story of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran in exchange for U.S. hostages last November. But its more recent reports on the foreign hostages held in Lebanon have not been borne out.

The magazine also said the kidnapers received "indications" from the West German government that Mohammed Ali Hamadi would be treated leniently. Hamadi, a Lebanese Shiite Moslem, is awaiting trial in West Germany for hijacking an American TWA jet to Lebanon in June 1985 and murdering an American passenger.

The West German government denied that any deal was made to free Schmidt. Schmidt's employers, the Munich-based Siemens electrical concern, denied paying ransom to obtain his release.

'Truth In Preference To Fiction'

An Opportunity For Rebuilding

Saturday's football game against Florida State University is an opportunity for East Carolina University and its supporters to begin making amends for the deplorable incident at Carter-Finley Stadium.

FSU is the highest-ranked team ever to play in Ficklen Stadium, and the game is an important one to the football program. Fans should consider the fact they are hosting a high-ranked, big-time football power Saturday, and behave in an appropriate manner. The FSU game, for ECU fans, should be a start toward more mature, responsible football enthusiasm.

In addition, it is time for ECU Chancellor Richard Eakin to take a more hard-line approach with students concerning the incident. It will take a substantial stance by the chancellor to restore the esteem the University has lost.

Now is an opportune time for Eakin to issue a strong statement to students condemning the behavior of fans at the N.C. State game. In addition, it is also time for him to propose meetings with the Student Government Association, as well as other student leaders and athletic officials, to discuss possible punitive measures if riotous behavior recurs.

It is important to ECU's credibility to have strong, concrete leadership on this deplorable issue. A low-key approach won't work. Clear ground rules on fan behavior — based on standards which become a quality educational institution — should be proposed quickly.

Similarly, organized fan support groups such as the Pirate Club share some responsibility for the behavior of fans outside the student body. Leaders of these organizations should now be at the forefront of a campaign to encourage creative, constructive support activities, and to deplore Saturday's shenanigans.

It sends the wrong signal to rationalize, as some have, that previous riotous activities by N.C. State supporters could justify ECU's fans escaping the repercussions of their own behavior. Instead, some specific suggestions for eliminating negative involvement should emanate from that leadership.

If ECU is to continue to build a respected football tradition, the excitement that prompted Saturday's malicious antics must be channeled into positive behaviors. Students must know rioting will not be tolerated — or else privileges will be lost.

Ultimately the burden of repolishing the image of ECU's football support rests with the individual fans themselves. Students, alumni and supporters at large must channel zeal into positive avenues and insist their fellows do the same.

On Saturday ECU fans must prove they deserve the privileges of being associated with a major university. Good behavior and a hard-line approach against unacceptable behavior by ECU officials and supporters can help the school begin to rebuild the respect shattered by the revelry in Raleigh.

Survivor

Teenagers and young adults once went into soulful introspection over Woody Herman just as they do today over rock stars.

That is all in the past for the celebrated clarinetist now.

He is desperately ill and until recently was in danger of being put out of his home. The house, where Herman had lived for 41 years, was sold at tax auction and, while Herman continued to live there, he had fallen behind in the rent.

The sad story made the news and a jazz radio station agreed to pay the back rent. In the future his daughter will pay the rent at the rate of $1,150 a month. There have been offers of financial help from the great of the entertainment world. It will all be needed. Not only is the monthly rent an obligation, but the ailing performer has a nursing service bill of $18,000. There are also doctor and hospital bills.

As with a number of famous people who find themselves in financial trouble late in life, Herman traces his problems to nonpayment of payroll taxes for three years in the 1960s. While he was still active, most of what he made went toward the $1.6 million in tax liens. Now it is virtually a certainty that it will never be paid off.

Anyone who remembers Woody Herman's works can only be pleased that he does not have to leave his home. He won three Grammy awards and his hits include "Woodchoppers Ball," "Apple Honey" and "Northwest Passage."

Jazz has survived and even thrived in this era of rock 'n' roll. Woody Herman played a large part in making it happen. May his final days be spent in contentment.

Contras' Fate Rests With Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is taking steps to ensure that if the Nicaraguan Contras lose their war with the Sandinista government and are forced to disband, the blame will rest with the Congress.

It hopes that a majority of the lawmakers will approve the administration's request for more aid for the Contras rather than accept responsibility for the consequences of their defeat.

That was the unstated message Thursday when Secretary of State George P. Shultz went before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and said the administration will formally request $270 million for the rebels over 18 months.

President Reagan had two basic options to choose from following the approval of a Central American peace plan a month ago.

He could have refrained from seeking a new aid request for the Contras in hopes that this would reinforce the peace process. Alternatively, he could have sought a large new aid package, believing that history would not be kind to him if he allowed the Contras to disappear because their cause was unpopular.

Reagan emphatically opted for the latter course, seeking not only more aid but at a substantially increased level.

The proposal was made against the background of the Aug. 7 Central America peace agreement, the so-called Guatemala City plan, under which the Sandinista government is pledged to arrange a cease-fire and move toward democratic reform by Nov. 7. The agreement also demands a U.S. aid cutoff by that date.

The administration's concern is that the Contras will die on the vine by the end of the year when faced with Sandinista military might and with no assurances of continued U.S. backing once existing aid expires on Sept. 30.

Reagan, speaking to reporters Thursday in Miami before meeting with Pope John Paul II, said of the new Contra aid proposal, "Just because an agreement has been signed that calls for some waiting, you can't let them starve."

Shultz, alluding to the five-week gap between the expiration of current Contra aid and the implementation of the peace agreement, said "the Guatemala calendar will play out entirely in favor of the communists. At some point, the resistance will be facing advanced Soviet weaponry and Cuban advisers with rapidly dwindling resources and no further help from us."

"And as their resources disappear, the helicopter gunships and armored personnel carriers and rocket launchers that the Soviet Union is continuing to supply will guarantee a communist victory," he said.

Presumably, Congress will take up the administration's request in a few weeks. If Congress rejects the proposal, administration supporters will argue, the Contras will be finished as a fighting force, Nicaragua's civil war will end and the future of Nicaragua, and Central America, will depend largely on Sandinista good will.

The administration's critics will contend that approval of more Contra aid will scuttle the peace process, giving Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega just the excuse he needs to ignore the democratic commitments he made in Guatemala City.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, summed up the latter argument Thursday when he said the aid request "anticipates the failure of the peace process. I don't anticipate the failure of the peace process. I anticipate success."

Shultz insists more Contra aid is Nicaragua's best hope for peace and democracy. His critics maintain that more Contra aid will sabotage the best hope for peace and democracy Nicaragua has ever had. Both sides can't be right.

Gulf Peace Mission Tough Task For U.N.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran and Iraq appear ready to escalate their fighting if United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar fails in his mission to bring peace to the oil-rich region.

Perez de Cuellar planned to arrive in Tehran tonight for two days of talks with Iranian leaders, then fly to Baghdad, seeking an end to a war that has dragged on longer than World War II.

If he does not persuade Iran to accept the U.N. Security Council's July 20 cease-fire resolution, the region faces the threat of a widening conflict in which the United States and other foreign powers could become embroiled.

Iraq, which has failed to exploit its air superiority in the past against Iran's economy, now appears to be more prepared to use its most potent offensive weapon to hammer Tehran's oil lifeline.

The air force has been pounding Iranian industrial centers almost daily since Aug. 10, and Baghdad has vowed to sustain the offensive until Tehran agrees to a permanent cease-fire in the 7-year-old war.

For its part, Iran is keeping up the pressure on the battlefield, where it has the advantage.

The Iranians claim to have killed or wounded nearly 15,000 Iraqis since the cease-fire resolution was passed.

A Western military analyst in Baghdad, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Iraqis are "increasingly dissatisfied with the Soviet Union's reluctance to let the Security Council impose an arms embargo on Iran" for not complying with the cease-fire resolution.

The Soviets are Iraq's main arms suppliers but have recently been courted by Tehran in an apparent effort to mediate an end to the war. The Iraqis, the analyst said, "believe that Soviet policy on Iraq is unstable."

After meeting several senior Iraqi officials Thursday, the Western analyst said: "They're ready to cooperate with Perez de Cuellar and give him the chance to talk the Iraqis around."

"But they say they can't let Iran go on exporting as much oil as it could if Iraq halts its air raids on their terminals and tankers."

Iraq has said it will observe a cease-fire if the Iraqis will. Tehran has neither rejected nor accepted the resolution.

The Iraqis have said they will talk to Perez de Cuellar but insist there can be no breakthrough unless the United Nations brands Iraq as the aggressor.

Iran says Iraq started the war when it invaded on Sept. 22, 1980.

The Iraqis claim the conflict began nearly three weeks earlier when Iranian artillery shelled border villages in a dispute over the Shatt al-Arab waterway that forms the southern border between the countries.

The analyst said the Iraqis believe the Iraqis will not accept the Security Council resolution and are playing for time until the U.N. General Assembly reconvenes in October.

"The Iraqis think they can muster more support in the assembly against what they consider a U.S.-inspired resolution and bypass the Security Council," he said.

Iran's Parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said Thursday night after a war council meeting in Tehran that the U.N. resolution contained some "positive points," but that "we don't accept other articles."

He stressed there would be no cease-fire until the Security Council brands Iraq the aggressor and "prohibits other countries from interfering in the imposed war," a clear reference to U.S. and Western intervention.

The danger of a sharp escalation in fighting has been heightened by the naval buildup in the gulf by the United States and its European allies.

Strength For Today

The word "sympathy" comes from a Greek word which means "to suffer with." Therefore, sympathy is sharing in suffering.

Some people regard sympathy as only an emotion.

But this is a superficial interpretation of the word. We can be sorry about a neighbor's trouble, and perhaps even shed tears over it, but we really sympathize only when we take some of the neighbor's suffering upon ourselves, carry it, and try to use best of our ability to relieve it.

General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, once said that a woolen coat given to a cold man was worth a lake of tears shed over his misery. In the same way, the person who actively tries to alleviate sorrows and suffering in this world is giving real meaning to the quality of sympathy. The person who only wrings his hands and says how sorry he is might better save his breath.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Several weeks ago I wrote a Public Forum letter that the editors chose not to use in print. During the middle of the night, a person sprayed painted figures over most of a permanent Greenville resident's home on East Fourth Street.

I write again to bring to the attention of all ECU students (You are guests of the city of Greenville), Greenville residents and the "management team" of the consolidated system of higher education in North Carolina.

Many people of the state, including students at NCSU and ECU really enjoy the athletic events played between the two universities. But the action of 200-400 ECU students at 402 Biltmore St. Aug. 29 was inexcusable and will not be tolerated.

Then the irresponsible action of 1,500-2,000 ECU fans at the ECU-NCSU football game Sept. 5 in Raleigh jeopardizes the future of interschool athletic competition.

To all of Greenville's visiting university students: It is a shame that a few of our "adults of tomorrow," the same few who will be managing our great country and university in a few years, are so petty, destructive and costly to long-time Greenville residents.

We welcome these non-taxpaying students to get university-level education. But a few students willfully and maliciously damage other people's time and property. You desirable students are in a position to build on your future, but you should not and cannot sit idly by and do nothing. I suggest that the ECU students take a hard and long look at these culprits — is this really what we accept "as us"? Please, please do not force those in authority to further restrictions and limitations on your recreational time and to do away with ECU-State football.

Reagan Needs Moscow's Help To Secure Place In History

Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's into the home stretch for Ronald Reagan, the critical last leg of his race for a hallowed place in presidential history.

Back from a long and leisurely summer vacation in California, he is entering the final phase of his White House years, strangely dependent on Mikhail S. Gorbachev and George P. Shultz for what future generations will say about him.

Reagan, of course, already has made a mark. His fiscal policies broke with tradition. His Pentagon spending program broke all records.

But in the nuclear age, much as he might have had it otherwise, the key to an overall appraisal of any American president is how he manages the arms race.

As William G. Hyland, editor of Foreign Affairs magazine, recently pointed out, Reagan did not set out that way.

"It was certainly not the aim of the Reagan administration on taking office in 1981 to return arms control to the focal point of East-West relations," wrote Hyland, who is a former White House National Security Council specialist on Soviet affairs.

"At that time, the prevailing attitude was that arms control negotiations held little promise unless and until American power had been rebuilt and Soviet behavior had changed," Hyland said.

But pressured by the Western allies, and then by the advent of Gorbachev in March 1985, the Reagan administration has brought arms control to the forefront of its foreign policy.

Supporters would argue the president wisely waited until he had made great strides in building up U.S. forces before pursuing arms control. Others might note Jimmy Carter, his predecessor, actually started the rebuilding process — and pursued arms control agreements simultaneously.

In any event, unless hostilities in the Persian Gulf get out of control and drag the United States into conflict, the Reagan presidency is winding up in a flurry of nuclear issues.

On Thursday, Reagan said he and visiting Pope Paul II discussed the nearness of an agreement to eliminate all American and Soviet intermediate missiles. "Of course, all this depends upon Soviet willingness to get down to the hard work of completing an agreement," he said.

Ironically, in order to succeed, the president needs a helping hand from Gorbachev, head of the communist state Reagan denounced only four years ago as an "evil empire," and from Shultz, whose advice on selling arms to Iran and on some other issues he shunned.

After two summit meetings and protracted U.S.-Soviet negotiations in Geneva, the two sides finally are on the brink of a treaty to eliminate intermediate-range ballistic missiles as well as cruise missiles in Europe and the Soviet Union.

Reagan, as a presidential aspirant, campaigned against every arms control agreement already on the books. But he will argue that this one is different. It has verification procedures that arguably are stricter than those in past treaties.

And, as Shultz pointed out in a Voice of America interview Wednesday, "it is the first time ever the two sides have agreed to cut sharply, and in fact eliminate, a whole class of nuclear weapons."

Because of the verification procedures alone, it "is undoubtedly the strongest of any arms control agreement we ever had," Shultz said in an interview Tuesday with The Associated Press and United Press International.

The treaty still is being drafted, however. There still are disputes over how fast the Soviets will reduce their larger nuclear arsenal and whether they will drop their demand to include U.S. Pershing 1A warheads designed for West German missiles.

Hyland even raises the possibility that no arms control agreement will be reached; that the Soviets will make the treaty conditional on a solution to the dispute over the American "Star Wars" program to develop a defense in space against missiles.

Shultz does not plan to negotiate those issues with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze during their three days of talks in Washington next week. But they might be able to reach a political understanding that completing the treaty is worth more than haggling over secondary issues.

Shultz, who told Congress during this summer's Iran-Contra hearings that he came close to quitting several times, is also back from a long vacation. He is tanned, rested and primed to fight for Reagan's place in history.

He is pushing the Soviets to change their emigration procedures and to adopt a "more humane and understandable" system than abruptly granting exit permits to a handful of Jewish dissidents after years of disappointment while keeping all the others on hold.

Shultz would like to move from the near-agreement on medium-range missiles to a much more meaningful pact on the globe-girdling strategic weapons that are infinitely more dangerous. His talks with Shevardnadze might provide clues whether the Soviets will keep demanding curbs on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative as the price for progress.

Reagan and Gorbachev reached a basic understanding last October, in their second summit meeting in Reykjavik, Iceland, that strategic arsenals should be cut in half. But U.S. and Soviet negotiators have been unable to translate the principle into an accord.

Presidential adviser Edward L. Rowny, in a speech Wednesday in Philadelphia, complained that the Soviets were holding cuts in strategic forces "hostage to demands that we abort our hope for protection against a ballistic missile threat."

But the same Soviets walked out of the arms control talks in Geneva in November 1983, only to return in January 1985. Three months later, Gorbachev ascended to power in the Kremlin and began soon thereafter to unveil a series of sweeping arms control overtures.

Who is to say he will not find a way to sidestep the "Star Wars" dispute and help Reagan make a run for the roses with a really significant arms control agreement?

Opening Radar Site Preservation Move

When an American delegation is invited to visit a top-secret Soviet facility, one that has been the focus of acrimony for four years, there must be a reason. If the tour was in fact approved "at the highest level," it was intended to influence U.S. policy. In this case it appears to have been designed to assist in solving at least one serious outstanding problem in strategic arms control.

For almost four hours last week three congressmen and staff members, including a physicist and an engineer, toured the Krasnoyarsk early-warning radar site — the existence of which, it is generally agreed, violates the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The treaty forbids the deployment of large phased-array radars for the early warning of missile attack — except on a nation's borders, where they must be oriented outward. The Krasnoyarsk radar meets neither specification.

The Reagan administration has consistently used the radar as justification for its accusations of Soviet plans to break out of the ABM Treaty. In some quarters Krasnoyarsk is even seen as a reason to abandon the treaty.

The United States has its own new large phased-array radar at Thule, Greenland. It is almost surely a violation of the ABM Treaty, and is a subject of deep Soviet concern. The administration contends, however, that because an early-warning radar of a different type existed at Thule when the ABM treaty was negotiated, the facility may be upgraded without limit. Additionally, the United States plans another such radar at Fylingdales Moor in Yorkshire, England — near, but not at, the site of an older radar station. The administration claims that Fylingdales is also "grandfathered."

At Krasnoyarsk the U.S. delegation saw a facility that is a fragile, hollow shell. For a facility that has reportedly been externally complete for some time, the Krasnoyarsk radar is astoundingly empty inside. No equipment to send or receive radar signals was present — not even antennas.

On examination, the wealth of photographs and videotape returned from Krasnoyarsk raises more questions than it answers. Is the site being built or is it being dismantled, salvaged or mothballed? The Soviets said that it was still under construction, albeit more slowly than before.

The receiving-antenna complex is now covered with corrugated metal, which totally blocks radar signals from equipment mounted within. A photo taken in late 1986 by a French satellite seems to show both the transmitting and receiving buildings covered with material that protects against weather but is transparent to radar waves.

By allowing a delegation from Washington to visit this particular facility, the Soviets were sending an important diplomatic message: They still want to preserve the ABM Treaty, even in the face of Thule, Fylingdales and the Strategic Defense Initiative program. After seeing Krasnoyarsk, we now have tangible as well as diplomatic evidence of that desire.

Early this summer the Soviets suggested, in an "official informal" proposal floated in the Danish press, that they would limit the electric power supplied to Krasnoyarsk and permit periodic on-site inspections to assure the United States that the radar could only track satellites, which is permitted. The United States did not respond.

The Soviets seem to have offered their visitors a moratorium on construction at Krasnoyarsk in return for halting work at Fylingdales — but not Thule, which is operational.

Construction at Krasnoyarsk has slowed, or possibly stopped. It may now be an electronic Potemkin Village, invested with great political value. The Soviets are telling us plainly that the time to settle the issue has arrived, and that a reasonable trade, from our vantage point, might be arranged. They seem to be saying that if given a face-saving fig-leaf they will make Krasnoyarsk permanently inoperable.

At what price? The United States should propose to trade Krasnoyarsk for the planned radar upgrade at Fylingdales and agree to reinforce the treaty. That would be cheap indeed, for the first bulldozer has yet to turn the first load of Yorkshire earth, and a large phased-array radar at Fylingdales is not critical to American defense.

Peter D. Zimmerman, a physicist, is a senior associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Washington, and the director of its program on SDI technology and policy.

Parkway's Final Section Opens

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer
It took exactly 52 years, but the 470 mile Blue Ridge Parkway was officially completed today as state and federal officials cut the ribbon on a $10 million viaduct on Grandfather Mountain.
The 1,243-foot Linn Cove Viaduct, the crown jewel of the federal parkway, is part of the final 7.5 mile segment that has been the road's "missing link" for 20 years.
Motorists now can drive through the Southern Appalachian Mountains from Rockfish Gap, Va., to the Oconaluftee Visitor Center near Cherokee, N.C., without having to stop or take detours.

"Some of the best views and foliage can be seen from this 7.5 mile stretch," said parkway spokeswoman Deborah Morgenthal.
"It also will help a number of communities such as Boone, Banner Elk and Blowing Rock. More people will come to enjoy their natural and cultural resources."
Suspended around Grandfather

Mountain in a giant S-shaped pattern, the viaduct is a unique engineering marvel that took four years and $10 million to build. It is one of 12 bridges in the 7.5-mile stretch, which had been delayed numerous times over the past three decades by environmental concerns and money shortages.
About 8,000 people were expected for the ribbon-cutting ceremonies for the two-lane road that has changed the face of western North Carolina and Virginia.

The list of dignitaries included National Park Service Director William Mott, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin, Virginia House of Delegates Speaker A.L. Philpott and Blue Ridge Parkway Superintendent Gary Everhardt.
President Reagan and Virginia Gov. Gerald Baliles were invited to the ribbon-cutting, but they were unable to attend.
The celebrations began Wednesday and Thursday with an international conference on "Parkways: Past, Present and Future" in Roanoke, Va.
A Festival of Mountain Music will be held at the Rocky Knob Recreation Area in Virginia, just north of the North Carolina state line, on Saturday and Sunday.

Survey Shows Most Tar Heels Expect To Attend Area Colleges

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Most North Carolina residents think they eventually will attend a community college, a new statewide survey indicates.
Sixteen percent of 574 people questioned about their impressions of the community college system said there was an excellent chance they would attend a community college, and another 58 percent said their chances of attending were very good.
"More and more people have the need or desire to come to a community college class and get the training they need," state Department of Community Colleges spokesman Mark Van Sciver said.
The survey conducted by the Statistical Analysis Center in Tarboro was presented Thursday to the N.C. Board of Community Colleges, meeting at Carteret Technical College in Morehead City.
The survey also revealed that 18 percent rated the community college system excellent; 53 percent rated it very good and 3 percent rated it below average or poor.
In rating courses, respondents from Mecklenburg County and the state's south-central region gave more positive ratings, while respondents from the southeastern region and Wake County rated courses lower.

Course material requested most often was business, 27 percent; followed by continuing education, 9 percent; and electronics, 9 percent.
Eighty percent of the respondents could correctly identify the community college closest to them.
In a separate but related poll, surveyors questioned representatives of 50 of the state's largest employers.
Eighty-eight percent of them said their companies encouraged attendance at community colleges, 98 percent said their companies offered incentives and 55 percent said their companies actively recruit community college graduates.
The survey also indicated that awareness was low of recent problems at some community colleges. More than a dozen people were indicted last spring in a $1.34 million bogus class scam at Cape Fear Technical Institute in Wilmington. Auditors later reported enrollment padding in classes at five other community colleges.
Of those who said they had read news accounts concerning the colleges, only 13 percent had read about the bogus classes. Twenty-nine percent of the business officials said they had read such accounts.

Incentives Suggested

GREENSBORO (AP) — State officials hunting a site for a proposed new hazardous-waste treatment plant have sent letters to 12 counties, suggesting the possibility of state-paid benefits if they accept the facility.
"It is uncertain what incentives, if any, the commission has the authority to offer," the letter says. "Nevertheless, the commission feels strongly that working closely with counties will result in a solution to the difficult problem of managing our state's hazardous waste."
With less than a month to go before its self-imposed Oct. 1 deadline to select a site for the plant, the North Carolina Hazardous Waste Treatment Commission has spent this week hearing public response — most of it hostile — about sites proposed in seven counties around the state.
Kathy Neal, a spokeswoman for the commission, said the letter had been sent to Alamance, Caldwell, Caswell, Catawba, Chatham, Forsyth, Gaston, Union, Orange, Person, Randolph and Stokes counties.

Jordan Cites GOP Record On Jobs

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says Republican Gov. Jim Martin has given ammunition to critics of state government employees through his use of nepotism and cronyism, but Martin aides say he has cut the effects of political influence on state workers.
Jordan, a Democrat who is expected to challenge Martin in 1988, told the fourth annual convention of the State Employees Association of North Carolina Thursday the Martin administration "promise to keep state employees free from politics is a promise this administration has not kept."
"It is one thing for a governor's political associates to be rewarded with high-ranking, high-paying jobs," he said. "It is another thing altogether for them not to do any work ... or never set foot in the office."
But Tim Pittman, Martin's press secretary, said the Republican administration has cut in half the number of state employees subject to politically motivated firing.
"That just freed up a lot of people from political worries," Pittman said in response to Jordan's comments. "It brought a more professional aura to career state employees."

Pittman said previous administrations, both Democratic and Republican, have rewarded political allies with jobs.
"That's part of the way politics operates across the country and in North Carolina," he said. "Those people the governor has brought in he believes are very qualified."
Jordan told the state employees they are benefiting from an improved working relationship with the General Assembly, but they should be wary of "sideline snipers" who undermine their efforts.
"This legislature had a lot of what I'd call sideline snipers," Jordan said in a prepared speech. "They're like the guy who sits up in the Dean Dome, or at Reynolds Coliseum, and tells his girlfriend how bad Dean Smith or Jim Valvano are coaching, or how bad J.R. Reid and Vinny Del Negro are playing."

Literate

1 in 5 Americans aren't.

It's hard to believe but it's true, over twenty-seven million adult Americans can't read or write. It's also hard to accept that another forty million are functionally illiterate.
We are the Literacy Volunteers of America-Pitt County and we're frightened by these facts. Our goal is to help these people to whom reading is a mystery as well as a block to jobs, knowledge and personal satisfaction.

In conjunction with The Daily Reflector, we are sponsoring a Read-A-Thon this Saturday at The Plaza in order to promote literacy. For more information contact: Literacy Volunteers of America-Pitt County, 752-4039 or 752-1702 or Pitt Community College Adult Basic Education, 756-3130 ext. 318.

Remember, an illiterate adult feels fear, isolation, embarrassment and frustration. Please help us eliminate the confusion.

CP&L Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. has filed a request for a 13.86 percent rate increase a month after being awarded a 7 percent rate hike.

In a request filed with the North Carolina Utilities Commission Thursday, CP&L said it sought the increase to cover the remaining part of its investment in the Shearon Harris nuclear plant and to cover increases in the company's cost of providing services.

The request would boost CP&L's income by $205 million a year, the company said.

The percentage increase for different types of customers would vary, the company said, but an average residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours a month would see rates rise by about 14.96 percent. That would be an increase of $11.58 a month, from $77.39 to $88.97, the company said.

Cocaine Ring

WILMINGTON (AP) — Five men who recruited soldiers from Army Special Forces to help import illegal drugs via an abandoned military airfield in Holly Ridge have been sentenced in Wilmington federal court.

U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree imposed a 12-year prison sentence on Chester A. Scarborough Jr., a 40-year-old Massachusetts native who pleaded guilty to directing much of the ring's activity in 1985 and 1986 from a Wrightsville Beach condominium.

Woman Shot

RALEIGH (AP) — A Cary woman shot in the face during a restaurant robbery says she did some desperate acting so the thief would not shoot her again.

"I pretended like I was dead," Nancy Jo Everette, 24, said Thursday. "I just lay there on the floor. I thought he was going to shoot me in the back then."

Mrs. Everette was shot once with a small-caliber handgun at the Beef Barn in Cary shortly after midnight. Mrs. Everette, the assistant manager of the restaurant, was working alone after the restaurant closed at 10:30 p.m. when she was approached by an armed man who demanded money and then shot her.

Hospital

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Forsyth Memorial Hospital has told employees they will share in the hospital's profits with a bonus of up to 5 percent.

The bonuses will be in the form of cash payments and contributions to a personal income fund, said Paul M. Wiles, president of Carolina Medicorp Inc., and Greg J. Beier, executive vice president of the holding company. The hospital had said this year it was committed to giving employees a percentage of its excess revenues once they had surpassed a target of $1.8 million. Unaudited figures released by the hospital put the actual excess revenues at $6.7 million.

Clerk Killed

RALEIGH (AP) — A convenience store clerk shot during a holdup died early Thursday at Rex Hospital.

Matthew McClure, 24, who had worked at the store less than a month, was shot several times, possibly with a .45-caliber handgun, about 9:10 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

Police Capt. E.O. Lassiter said McClure was able to call police and give a description of the man who shot him.

Murder Charge

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — An 18-year-old Randleman man charged with first-degree murder in connection with the stabbing death of his aunt, escaped from the Randolph County Courthouse, authorities said.

Randolph County Sheriff Robert Mason said Alonzo Dale Baines escaped from custody Wednesday while awaiting a hearing on an unrelated drunken driving charge at the county courthouse.

Baines had been held without bond since he was charged in June with the stabbing death of his 74-year-old aunt, Mason said. A bailiff was putting leg irons on Baines when he knocked the bailiff down and ran out of the courthouse, Mason said.

Stabbing

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina Memorial Hospital employee was stabbed during an incident near the hospital's hand rehabilitation center, authorities said.

Maj. Robert Porreca of the University of North Carolina at Chapel

Hill Public Safety Department said the employee, who was not identified, was stabbed once with a knife in the upper left chest around 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Porreca said the male employee was listed in stable condition at the hospital.

No arrest had been made, Porreca said.

Child Death

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — A 2-year-old Clinton girl, left alone in a child restraining seat in a parked car, died from heat stroke as temperatures in the area climbed into the 90s, authorities said.

Brittany Marie New, the daughter of David Wayne New and Kathy Sue New of Clinton, died Wednesday afternoon, according to Dr. Carl Barr, a Sampson County medical examiner.

The child was found about 4 p.m. in the back seat of her grandmother's car in the parking lot of West Point Pepperell Inc. on U.S. 421 at Clinton where the grandmother works, Barr said. The grandmother, Joyce Hatcher of Clinton, found the girl and carried her inside the textile plant where a company nurse administered first aid, Barr said.

Clinton police Lt. A.R. Hunter said Thursday no charges had been filed. Authorities said they had not determined who left the child in the car or why she was unattended.

DOT Board Approves Road Contracts

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — More than 400 miles of the state's highway contracts at an estimated cost of almost $2.1 billion were approved by the North Carolina Department of Transportation at its monthly meeting Thursday.

The largest single project approved was the I-40 bypass around Winston-Salem at an estimated cost of almost $7.4 billion, officials said. The bypass is scheduled for completion in May 1991. This is just one section of the bypass that has been under construction for a number of years.

Joe Byrd, chairman of the Wilkes County Commissioners, appealed to the board to appropriate funds to widen the remaining 32 miles of U.S. 421 between Spear Bridge Road in Yadkin County to Boone. Seventy miles of that highway has already been widened or slated for widening. U.S. 421 is the only highway that bisects I-77 and I-40. The board also adopted a policy that will make it more difficult for cities to have roads built by the state unless the cities use their zoning powers to keep road construction corridors free of heavy development.

Under the policy, 15 of 67 existing projects in cities throughout the state — most of which are slated for construction — will have to be redrawn or canceled, said Transportation

Secretary James Harrington. He would not identify the projects since local officials have not been notified.

The policy is in response to a new state law limiting cities' ability to help pay for state highway projects within their boundaries.

The policy essentially warns cities to hold down land acquisition costs by controlling development if they want their road projects to receive a high priority.

and "extended buffer zones." But Chatham County Manager Marvin Hoffman told the Pesticide Board that a 1,000-foot buffer should replace the state-required 100-foot limit.

The Pesticide Board's vote is only the first step toward changing spraying laws.

Changes Proposed In State Spraying Law

RALEIGH (AP) — In response to an aerial-spraying incident that some Chatham County residents say has left them with severe health problems, the N.C. Pesticide Board has voted to consider changes in North Carolina's herbicide laws.

The changes, proposed last month by the Chatham County commissioners, would increase tenfold the distance from houses aerial spraying is permitted and require sprayers to notify area residents in advance of an application.

"I guess we did as well as we could expect," commissioners' Chairman

Henry Dunlap said Thursday after addressing the board. "By giving them a lot of latitude, we've gained a step. They seemed very interested and very concerned. But it's just hard to say."

The commissioners' resolution asked only for the prior notification and "extended buffer zones." But Chatham County Manager Marvin Hoffman told the Pesticide Board that a 1,000-foot buffer should replace the state-required 100-foot limit.

The Pesticide Board's vote is only the first step toward changing spraying laws.

Ethics Panel Sets Guidelines For Termination Of Treatment

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of medical ethics specialists today released guidelines for halting life-sustaining treatment and allowing patients to die, but it said care must be taken to guard against "mercy killing."

The report by The Hastings Center, a New York research institute specializing in medical ethics, said patients or their designated decision-makers should be able to refuse life-sustaining treatment when there is no reasonable prospect for recovery.

Susan Wolf, an attorney who directed the privately funded, two-year study by a 20-member panel, said the report picks up where a 1983 study by a presidential biomedical ethics commission left off.

The 150-page report offers detailed guidelines to assist patients, health care workers, hospitals and nursing homes make decisions leading up to termination of treatment, Wolf said in an interview.

"No one has issued a comprehensive guide like this and we thought the time was right for such a thing," she said. "We give an ethical decision-making process that people can follow and examine larger issues, such as economics in health care, as well."

The panel, drawn from the fields of medicine, law, ethics, nursing and health care administration, defined life-sustaining treatment as any medical practice intended to forestall death, such as use of blood dialysis, breathing machines, transfusions and feeding tubes.

The group concluded that there is no significant ethical distinction between withholding treatment to begin with and withdrawing it at a later date. It is often preferable to try a life-sustaining treatment to see if it has desired effects than not to use it at all, but this is not a commitment to continue, it said.

The guidelines also say designated surrogates for incapacitated patients should follow the patient's directives on ending care. If there are no directives, such as "living wills," the representative should apply the patient's values and preferences in trying to decide as the patient would.

A refusal of treatment even when the result will be death is different from mercy killing or assisting in suicide, practices the committee said are rightfully forbidden.

Suicide and mercy killing involve doing something to cause an earlier death, while refusing treatment is making a choice not to delay death with unhelpful treatments that don't promise a better outcome, the report said.

Leslie S. Rothenberg, an attorney who is a fellow at the Hastings Center and a clinical ethicist in Los Angeles, said in a dissent attached to the report that he was concerned that unscrupulous people preoccupied with containing health care costs might use the report to deny treatment to certain people.

Rothenberg said in a telephone interview that he endorsed most of the report's recommendations, including offering the option of treatment termination to terminally ill and incurable patients. But he said he disagreed with including patients with "disability that is severe and irreversible" and those who "suffered an irreversible loss of consciousness."

"There are a lot of people who have severe disabilities who are perfectly happy to be living," he said. "I am concerned that people will read into the text that these people can be approached and asked to make decisions on termination of care."

Study Shows U.S. Students Trailing England, Japan In Science Ability

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. students have slipped in science achievement since 1970, and even advanced students compare poorly to English and Japanese youngsters, according to a new international study.

The study, the first in 17 years to compare students in 24 nations in science performance, found, for example, that in 1970 over 80 percent of U.S. 5th graders and 90 percent of 9th graders correctly answered how long it takes to travel to the moon ("a few days"). By 1986, only 47 percent of 5th graders and 55 percent of 9th graders could do so.

One reason for the slippage: U.S. youngsters were found to be doing one to two hours less homework per week than their 1970 counterparts.

Preliminary findings from "Second IEA Science Study" by the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement were made available to The Associated Press.

The U.S. segment of the study was conducted in 1983 and 1986, and involved some 20,000 students in over 1,000 public and private schools. The research cost over $1 million, and primary funding came from the National Science Foundation, said Columbia University natural sciences professor Willard J. Jacobson, who coordinated the study.

"We thought advanced American students would do well. But compared to Japanese and English students that is not so," Jacobson said in an interview.

Preliminary findings, contained in a 55-page booklet to be released Wednesday include test scores only from the United States, England, Japan, and partial data comparing male and female students in Israel and Sweden.

Students were given multiple-choice and laboratory tests designed to be difficult enough that an average student would be expected to get only about 50 percent correct.

Among the findings:

— U.S. students, even those taking advanced courses, scored below average in every category. First-year biology and physics students averaged 34 percent, and first-year chemistry students 27 percent. Second-year students improved to 44 percent in biology and physics and 41 percent in chemistry.

— English secondary school pupils were above average in all categories: 73 percent in chemistry, 71 percent in biology, and 58 percent in physics.

— Japanese secondary school students averaged 62 percent correct in chemistry, 59 percent in physics, and 48 percent in biology.

— 5th grade American students tested in 1983 outscored their counterparts in 1970, but those tested in 1986 slipped back to being about the same as 1970 students. Ninth graders tested in 1986 scored lower than youngsters 16 years earlier.

— American boys outperformed girls in every subject at every grade level tested. Fifth grade boys scored 5.2 percent better than girls, and 6.2 percent better in 9th grade.

The gender gap was smallest, 3.1 percent, in first-year biology, and greatest in advanced physics, 7.4 percent.

While sex disparities showed up in other countries, English and Japanese youngsters showed little difference in physics performance, and in Israel there was little difference in biology and chemistry. In Sweden, girls outperformed boys by 2.9 percent in biology.

The report concluded that girls are sometimes subtly discouraged from pursuing science and find it hard to compete with boys in getting lab time.

It recommended that school labs be restructured to allow students to do more individual lab work, where they could be "freer to indulge in risk-taking when no one else is ready to pounce on their mistakes," and tested individually "so no boy can take over the experiment or tell them they are doing something wrong."

The report recommended that U.S. schools "do more science and do it better," and allow students to specialize in science at an earlier age. It cited England, where 15- or 16-year-olds can start concentrating heavily in math and science. Such students often reach levels comparable to American college students.

Countries besides the United States taking part in the second IEA study included: Australia, People's Republic of China, Canada, England, Finland, Ghana, Hong Kong, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Japan, South Korea, The Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Papua-New Guinea, Philippines, Poland, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Sweden, Tanzania, and Zimbabwe.

Copies of the preliminary report are available at cost, for $7, from Second International Science Study, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, N.Y. 10027.

All States Send Rocks To Fountain

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Chips off old blocks from all 50 states are arriving for a "Fountain of Freedom" envisioned as a lasting monument to the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Delaware sent granite from a historic quarry, Arizona sent petrified wood and Nevada sent a 10-ton silver ore boulder.

The multi-hued rocks are to be blended into the as-yet undesigned fountain that planners hope will reflect the unity of diverse elements under the Constitution's framework.

The bicentennial celebration has revolved around special programs and will culminate Thursday with a $3.5 million parade, a star-studded gala and black-tie dinner, a picnic for 800,000 people and a fireworks display.

But no lasting structure has been built. By contrast, about $30 million was spent to develop Independence National Historical Park for the 200th birthday of the Declaration of Independence in 1976, said the park's superintendent, Hobart Cawood.

"We felt we needed some lasting memorial after the celebration (of the Constitution) was over," Cawood said.

Besides the monument, planners envision a center for the study of the Constitution to provide exhibits and information about the document, he said.

Reagan Says U.S. Ready To Accept Weapons Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the United States stands ready to reach another sweeping arms accord with the Soviet Union, one that would slash the superpower arsenals of long-range strategic weapons in half.

The president's spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, bolstered Reagan's assessment, saying a strategic missile pact could be reached by the end of next year.

Reagan on Thursday also said a pact to eliminate medium-range nuclear missiles now depends on "Soviet willingness to get down to ... hard work."

The president's upbeat comments on the status of the superpower arms control talks followed his nearly hour-long meeting with Pope John Paul II at a lavish villa in Miami. Reagan and his wife, Nancy, traveled to Florida to greet the pontiff at the outset of the pope's coast-to-coast U.S. pilgrimage.

Noting that the two men had discussed prospects for improved U.S.-Soviet relations, Reagan said he told the pope: "The United States is unshakably committed to the establishment of an enduring world peace and to the expansion of human freedom around the globe. Indeed, without freedom there can be no peace."

On arms control, Reagan said, "His Holiness and I discussed the nearness of an agreement that would eliminate all American and Soviet INF (intermediate nuclear force) missiles. ... Of course, all this depends upon Soviet willingness to get down to the hard work of completing an agreement."

The president said the United States also stands ready "for another historic agreement — one that would reduce strategic arms on both sides by half."

On Wednesday, the president told reporters at a state dinner in Washington that he believed "there are grounds for great optimism" for an INF accord. The president also said that while several issues remain unresolved, he believes a November summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev is possible.

Fitzwater, who accompanied the president on his journey aboard Air Force One, cautioned reporters Thursday about expecting a summit date to be fixed during next week's visit to Washington by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Fitzwater confirmed that Reagan plans to meet at the White House with Shevardnadze prior to the Soviet minister's talks with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

"November has always been the general timetable we have always looked at, ... so that is the most likely time," Fitzwater said. "But we have not had any indication of any specific date from them. ... It's presumptuous to expect an announcement" next week.

However, the spokesman added when pressed further about a possible November summit, "We think it's the best time and the most likely time, assuming the kind of progress we are now seeing."

Pope: 'I'm A Deacon'

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — When an ecumenical committee suggested that Pope John Paul II read the gospel text before his sermon at a big Protestant-style worship service tonight, a Vatican adviser responded, "But a deacon must do that."

Such is the practice in Roman Catholic services, although not in Protestant ones. But the pope, according to committee members, agreed to handle it in Protestant fashion, saying, "I'm also a deacon."

A deacon is a helper, or servant, in the church, and John Paul II calls himself a "servant of the servants" of Christ.

The huge service tonight in the University of South Carolina sports stadium was planned with advice from aides of the stadium-preaching master, Billy Graham.

It's in the Bible Belt, in an overwhelmingly Protestant state, and will be the first, large-scale, mainly Protestant worship service the pope has led.

"We leaned heavily on how Billy Graham runs a crusade," said the Rev. Horace Allen, a Presbyterian liturgical scholar at Boston University and a member of the planning committee.

This Fire Department Draws Entire Family

By CINDY L. DAVIS
Williamsport Sunday Grit
WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Volunteer service to the Montoursville Volunteer Fire Department runs in the veins of all five members of the Konkle family.

The entire family — Donald Sr., Faye, Donald Jr., Scott and Craig Konkle — say volunteer work with the fire department is an important part of their lives and, because of this common interest, their family bond is tightened.

The Konkle men perform volunteer work with both the firefighting and the ambulance crews, while Mrs. Konkle focuses her volunteer time strictly on ambulance duty.

Donald Sr., a customer-service representative for the Schnadig Corp., Montoursville, first became a volunteer fireman at Pennsdale. Later, when the family moved from that Lycoming County community to nearby Montoursville, he joined the borough's fire department. The senior Konkle has served as a firefighter for 20 years and has attained his Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) certification.

Konkle says he volunteers his spare time to the fire department, "to help other people ... somebody has to do it!"

Other members of the Konkle crew have followed in his footsteps.

Mrs. Konkle, an office manager and insurance agent at Cooper-Everett Insurance Agency, Montoursville, was the second woman to join the Montoursville Volunteer Fire Department about seven years ago.

Since then she, too, has attained her EMT certification.

"At that time, the Emergency Medical Technician program was not that old. I could see a need for women, especially in the ambulance crews," she explains. "I was pleased with the male members of the department and their acceptance of the woman members. That was quite a change when you have a 100-year old company, but I felt they accepted and helped us as much as they could."

Mrs. Konkle notes that other crucial support she and her family receive in their volunteer work comes from their employers in Montoursville. She, her husband and son Craig, a press operator from Paulhamus Litho Inc., Montoursville, are employed within the borough and their employers allow them to leave work in case of an emergency call.

Regarding her work with the borough's ambulance unit, she says, "The biggest reward to me is to help not only people I don't know, but so many people I do know. It's nice to see the look of relief on their faces when they see someone they know walk in the door."

Although the age requirement to join the Montoursville Volunteer Fire Department is 21, Craig was able to join when he was 18 because he had achieved EMT certification in high school.

Craig is now 22 and is the ambulance crew captain.

"I grew up in a fire house and enjoyed it. I can remember being a little kid over at the Pennsdale Fire Hall, pulling on the chains to open up the doors."

Craig admits the department work takes up a big amount of his time, but believes helping people in trouble is well worth it.

"There's great satisfaction when you look back after putting out a fire. If someone happens to die in a fire, there's times when you wished you could've done something but it was impossible. Working on the ambulance is rewarding too. People thank you and really appreciate what you're doing."

Scott, 23, is a telecommunicator for the Lycoming County Department of Emergency Services, Williamsport. If someone calls the Emergency 911 telephone number in Lycoming County, Scott might be one of the helpful people answering the call.

He has also attained his EMT certification. Scott says family members are often called out on the same emergency. Because they're working together and have the same interest, it helps bring the group closer, he says.

Donald Jr., 26, a press operator for Interform Corp. of Lock Haven, has also been a fireman since he turned 21. He's the only member of the family who does not have his EMT certification.

There are about 70 active members in the Montoursville Volunteer Fire Department. Mrs. Konkle says there are 12 women members, at least four husband-wife teams, and one father-son team.

Tantrums Trip Up Weekend Plans

DEAR ABBY: We have two daughters, 12 and 14. The 14-year-old hates to go anywhere with us — even to the corner store. I usually let her stay home, but we're planning a long weekend trip, and she's begging me not to make her go. Frankly, I would just as soon stay home than have her with us complaining about the long drive and whining all the time because she's bored. She says she can stay with her girlfriend if I let her stay home. It would make a more pleasant trip for me. I'm torn both ways. I keep telling myself: "Why should I give in and let her stay with her friend? I don't know the friend's parents that well, and she's only 14. I'd worry about her."

On the other hand I say to myself: "If she is forced to go with us and sulks, whines and complains, I could ignore her. But why should I have to suffer and have my trip ruined?"

Please help me, Abby. — GOING CRAZY IN SANTA ANA

DEAR GOING: Your daughter is manipulating you. She whines and complains so you will not want her around. Lay down the law. Insist that she go with us and refuse to put up with her childish tantrums. When she knows her scheme is not working, she'll make the best of it and lighten up. If you let her win, you will be sending her the message that all she has to do to get her way is be obnoxious and you'll knuckle under.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 33-year-old woman who has been married four times. None of my marriages lasted over a year (two divorces and two annulments). I'm beautiful, intelligent, rich (Daddy's money) and miserable. I've experienced both alcohol and dope addiction, been hospitalized twice, but I'm clean now. So why am I writing to you?

I've kept a daily diary for 17 years, and I'd like to send you my diaries so you can tell me if you think my life's story would make a good television series. (My psychiatrist thinks it would.) I don't expect you to read the entire 17 years' worth, but how about if I sent you the last 10 years?

Before I send these diaries, I need to be sure you will return them - registered mail, of course, at my expense. Thank you. — MY SIGN IS LEO

DEAR LEO: Please don't send me your diaries. I'm sure they would make fascinating reading, but I am not qualified to evaluate material for possible use as a television series. You need a literary agent.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning a one-week vacation to San Francisco and already have my airline tickets (they are non-refundable). My son, 18, is insisting that I have an AIDS test when I return from my vacation. He says you can pick up AIDS from saliva, and since I will be eating in lots of restaurants and am also staying in the home of a gay friend, I am taking a large risk.

What do you say about this, Abby? Although I pretended to my son not to be worried, now I am becoming concerned. I think the medical world is trying to downplay the AIDS epidemic to avoid panic in the general population. Can it be that it is really worse than they are letting on? Please tell me if you think the risk is really great. Naturally I don't plan on having sex with anyone, or kissing

anyone while I am there. — FLORIDA ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: Your son is mistaken. You cannot pick up AIDS from eating in a restaurant, or staying in the home of a gay friend - unless, of course, you engage in unprotected sex with the gay friend and he is infected with the virus. Call "information" for your local AIDS hot-line, then call and ask any questions concerning AIDS that come to mind. A trained, knowledgeable person will answer your questions.

(For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Mona Myths

The Mona Lisa is probably the world's most famous painting. People who travel hundreds or thousands of miles to see it are often surprised to discover that it measures less than 3 feet by 2 feet. The painting's real name is also a surprise. Leonardo called it "La Gioconda." The "Mona Lisa" has no eyebrows, since fashionable Renaissance women shaved them off. X-rays show that Leonardo painted two other versions of "Mona" underneath the final portrait.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY Sept. 12

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There will be some very confusing conditions which will require you to use considerable charm and thoughtfulness in order to be at all productive. If you aren't considerate, you'll be misled.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Cut down on tensions at work by getting your work done efficiently and pleasing associates. Later, finish some simplistic, and also quite pleasurable, task.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Pursue your wishes this afternoon, but find some amusements with friends this evening. Watch your weight—it could really affect your health. Drive carefully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You have several options for gaining a personal wish, so consider your choice carefully. Be more independent and try not to ask favors of your friends today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Avoid any "flighty" company this evening. Be with people who are more practical minded and know what they are doing. Plan how to gain personal goals.

LEO (July 22 to August 21): Get to the core of any work you have to handle which is important to your welfare. A smile will go a long way if you deal with a superior today. Relax and enjoy tonight.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22): New contacts should be greeted nicely today since they can be of big help to you in the future. Listen carefully to their views. Try to cut down pre-judgments to a minimum.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22): Give some thought to notices which need to be sent out, and be sure they are accurate. Be careful of little annoyances when dealing with your mate. Be neat at home.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21): Be sure you know what you will say before having a discussion with someone whose ideas are radically different from your own. Take along a friend for support.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21): If you're confused about the direction to take, consult an expert. Settle matters with a co-worker in a friendly way. If you two put your heads together, you'll win.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20): Don't let some unimportant person or matter distract you from seeking out an entertainment you enjoy. Be very careful while driving today and tonight.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19): If you handle your duties wisely, your kin will be most pleased and feel more secure about you in the future. This is not a good day to entertain at home.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20): You can benefit greatly from a new acquaintance who is quite popular, so be affable. Handle any routines carefully, and avoid doing any damage while driving.

The bidding:

 2 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
 6 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥

To get the most out of this column, cover the East and South hands with your thumbs and decide how you, as West, would defend against six clubs. The auction has told you little other than that South has a very strong hand with good clubs.

You lead the king of hearts, and you already have collected your book. Because another heart might prove costly, you shift to a trump at trick two. Declarer wins and rattles off five more trump tricks. Which five cards do you give up?

From the bidding, you can assume that South started with a singleton heart—he would not leap to six clubs with two fast losers in a suit. Because there is now no entry to dummy, you can safely let go all three of your hearts.

The fourth discard is also easy. Even if declarer has a side five-card diamond suit—hardly likely, for with that holding he would have bid the hand as a two-suiter—your jack will still stop the suit, so you can afford to part with a diamond. But what about your last discard?

You should know that declarer cannot have a losing diamond. If he did, he would certainly have ruffed it in dummy. Therefore, you can afford to sluff another diamond

The one card you cannot spare at any time is a spade. If you don't believe us, it's time for you to look at the full diagram. If you parted with a spade anywhere along the line, the slam will roll home when declarer's ace-king of spades picks up all your side's cards in the suit, and his low spade becomes the fulfilling trick.

Isn't defense easy if you just use the knowledge available to you?

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today, continuing the rally of the past two sessions despite adverse news on the trade deficit and interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 14.67 to 2,590.72 in the first half hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by nearly 5 to 2 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 776 up, 326 down and 434 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 25.25 million shares as of 10 a.m. on Wall Street.

Before the market opened, the Commerce Department reported that the nation's trade deficit stood at a record in July, with imports exceeding exports by $16.47 billion.

The news sent the dollar and bond prices slumping. Prices of long-term Treasury bonds dropped about $5 for every $1,000 in face value, lifting their yields to the neighborhood of 9.6-9.7 percent.

Eastman Kodak rose 1 1/2 to 101 1/4 in active trading. The company declared a 50 percent stock dividend, the equivalent of a 3-for-2 split, and raised its quarterly cash payout.

Other gainers among the blue chips included General Electric, up 3/4 at 61 1/2; International Business Machines, up 1/4 at 158; and RJR Nabisco, up 2 1/8 at 67.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added 1.13 to 178.59. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .94 at 352.42.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 26.78 points to 2,576.05.

High-Scoring Seminoles Invading

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The eight-ranked Florida State Seminoles are the highest ranked team ever to invade Ficklen Stadium, and East Carolina's Pirates would love to stick their feathers in their own war bonnets.

But it won't be easy when the Seminoles come to town for Saturday night's 7 p.m. kickoff in Ficklen. Both teams come in with 1-0 records after having recorded wins in their openers.

The Pirates put down their only in-state rival, N.C. State, 32-14, while Florida State bombed Texas Tech, 40-16, in Tallahassee.

The meeting between the two will be the fifth with the Pirates still looking for a win. It's also the first game in Greenville.

The closest the Pirates came to victory was in 1983 when they finished the season 8-3, losing only to FSU, Florida and national champion Miami, all on the road. ECU finished the season ranked in the top 20 for the only time in its history, but was overlooked in the bowl selections. That year, FSU nipped the Pirates, 47-46, when the Pirates fumbled on the way to the end zone.

Florida State has been a high scoring team against the Pirates, too, scoring 213 points, an average of 52.3 per game, while holding ECU to 87, an average of 21.8.

Except for the 1983 affair, the other three games were lopsided in favor of the Seminoles. They won 63-7 in the first game in 1980, and recorded a 47-17 win in 1984, the last time they met. The other game, in 1982, saw a 56-17 margin.

Ironically, Art Baker was on the sidelines in both of the last two games — but Saturday night will be his first as a head coach. In 1983, he was the offensive coordinator for the Pirates and in 1984, he was assistant head coach at Florida State, a post he left to return to ECU as head coach.

And for the second straight week in a row, Baker will be facing a personal friend in Bobby Bowden, the Seminole coach.

"I felt like I had been in a clinic for a year when I was on his staff," Baker said. "I learned a lot about the passing game from him. Bobby epitomizes what you would call 'The Coach.' And he will always have something unusual for each game. One thing for sure, his teams will put on a show."

Baker is hopeful, however, that the Pirates will be able to counter some of those tricks.

Baker praised FSU quarterback Danny McManus as "a fine young man with a strong, quick arm. He can throw from anywhere on the field and has excellent receivers."

The Pirate coach also noted that both Sammy Smith and Victor Floyd are outstanding running backs — although neither of them played against Texas Tech in the Seminoles' opener due to injuries. Smith, however, is expected back for Saturday's game and is listed as the starter at tailback.

"They will move the ball, that's for sure. They are a solid Top 10 team, and I'm surprised they are not in the top five," Baker said. "I think they may have a shot at the national championship this year and a top bowl game. Bowden has said that this may be his best team at Florida State."

The Pirates must also be wary of the FSU kicking game. They have an outstanding placekicker, but also are known for their punt rush. They blocked a kick against Texas Tech. "Their punt returner, Deion Sanders, is one of the best in the country," Baker added.

Sanders returned only one this past week, for 20 yards. Last year, he averaged 9.4 yards a return for 31 returns.

"There's no doubt that we are going up against one of the great football teams in the country and we have a long way to go to be ready for them. A great crowd would certainly be a big factor for us."

"The key to winning is going to be keeping pressure on McManus and not to be taken by the draw," Baker said.

The Pirates will be led by the passing and running of quarterback Travis Hunter and the running of a host of backs. Hunter hit on five of nine passes against N.C. State for 53 yards and added another 53 yards rushing.

Anthony Simpson, the starting fullback, is the top rusher with 67 against State while Jarrod Moody, a slotback, and George Franklin, fullback reserve, both had 57 yards. Reggie McKinney, also a slotback, has 49 yards.

The Pirates rushed for 295 yards and passed for 68 against State, while allowing 153 rushing and 94 passing.

FSU rushed for 187 against Texas Tech and passed for 320. The Seminoles allowed 182 yards rushing and 162 passing.

East Carolina will take to the road again on Sept. 19, traveling to face the University of Illinois, the first Big Ten opponent for the Pirates.

White's Homer Powers Angels By Rangers, 8-7

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Devon White found what he was looking for, and gave the California Angels a victory in a game that went into extra innings after nine runs were scored in the ninth.

With one out in the bottom of the 10th inning Thursday night, the California rookie outfielder went to the plate to face Steve Howe.

"I just went up there looking for a good pitch to hit. It was a fastball, and I swung," White said of Howe's first pitch.

The towering home run over the center field fence, his 23rd of the season, gave the Angels an 8-7 victory over the Texas Rangers.

In other American League games, it was Oakland 3, Kansas City 2; Boston 5, Baltimore 4; and Milwaukee 4, Detroit 3.

White had been a prolonged slump, getting only one hit in his last 16 at-bats and 11 in his previous 100 going into Thursday night's game. The home run was his third hit of the game and the first home run allowed by Howe in 21 innings since he joined the Rangers.

"Right now, Devon White is a very frustrated player," White said, overlooking his first-year accomplishments, which include 93 runs scored and 82 RBI.

California led 3-2 going into the ninth inning before Texas erupted for five runs and a 7-3 lead. But the Angels knotted the game in the bottom of the inning when Mark Ryal hit a pinch-hit grand slam, setting the stage for White's game-winning homer.

"That's a lousy way to lose a game," said Texas Manager Bobby Valentine, citing the two infield hits and a walk that preceded Ryal's homer off Dale Mohorcic. "I didn't think much of that inning at all."

Bob Brower hit a two-run homer for Texas in the second inning.

Brewers 4, Tigers 3
Paul Molitor broke out of his hitting slump with two doubles, a single, a walk and three stolen bases as Milwaukee defeated visiting Detroit. Glenn Braggs drove in two runs for the Brewers.

Molitor, who had only nine hits in 57 at-bats since his 39-game hitting streak was snapped Aug. 26, singled in the first, stole second and scored on Braggs' single.

Molitor doubled to begin a three-run Milwaukee third off Detroit starter Frank Tanana, 13-10, then stole third and scored on Braggs' infield single.

Tom Brookens homered off winner Juan Nieves, 12-6, for Detroit, whose lead in the AL East was cut to one game over Toronto.

Red Sox 5, Orioles 4
Spike Owen tripled in the tying run in the bottom of the eighth inning and scored the winner on John Marzano's single as Boston beat visiting Baltimore.

The victory was the third in a row for the Red Sox and seventh without a defeat this season against the Orioles. The Orioles have lost four straight.

Todd Benzinger walked with one out and, after reliever Tom Niedenfuer, 3-4, got Pat Dodson to pop out, scored as Owen tripled to center. Marzano followed with a single that brought home Barrett.

Joe Sambito, 2-4, got the victory. Wes Gardner pitched the ninth inning for his 10th save.

Athletics 3, Royals 2

Jose Canseco walked with the bases loaded and two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning to force in the winning run as Oakland edged visiting Kansas City. The Athletics, second in the AL West, pulled within 2½ games of Minnesota.

Gene Garber, Kansas City's fourth pitcher, came on to face Canseco, got ahead of the count 0-2 and walked him.

Losing pitcher John Davis, 3-2, left after giving up a one-out, infield single to Mickey Tettleton. Terry Steinbach hit a pinch single off Jerry Don Gleaton and, after a fly out, Luis Polonia beat out an infield single to load the bases and bring on Garber.

Reliever Eric Plunk, 3-4, got the victory with two hitless innings.

Steve Balboni's pinch-hit, two-run homer in the seventh had given the Royals a 2-1 lead, but Mark McGwire's eighth-inning single tied the game.

Caught In Rundown

Kansas City Royal Kevin Seitzer (33) tries to get away, but is caught by Oakland A's short-stop Mike Gallego in a sixth inning rundown between second and third Thursday at Oakland. Seitzer was trapped when teammate Danny Tartabull grounded to third and went to second during the rundown. (AP Laserphoto)

Owners To Play With What's Left

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. (AP) — The NFL players union says it will strike on Sept. 22. The owners say they will play games with whatever players they can find.

Having established those positions, they'll now get down to the business of trying to prevent that from happening.

"We're going to work around the clock to try to get an agreement," Jack Donlan, the chief management negotiator, said Thursday after the owners voted to play with free agents they have already released and those players who choose not to walk out.

A war of rhetoric has replaced bargaining since the players' contract expired Aug. 31. After 17 sessions that accomplished little between April 20 and Aug. 14, the two sides have met only once since then, a 4½-hour meeting on Sept. 2 that broke off the next day over the issue of security for player representatives.

The Associated Press was unable to reach the NFLPA Thursday night as phone calls were not returned after a staff meeting.

However, Doug Allen, the assistant executive director of the union, told the Washington Post that the owners' plan was a "dumb idea."

"Our attitude is that this would be a dumb idea, that the fans wouldn't accept it, that the veteran players won't cross the picket line and that it will leave a bad taste in everybody's mouth," Allen said.

A small number of roster players have said they probably would play even if their teammates struck — among them San Francisco 49ers quarterback Joe Montana and New York Jets running back Freeman McNeil.

Donlan said talks will resume Saturday at a site yet to be determined. Management Council officials say it is likely to be outside New York and Washington and unlikely to be disclosed to the media or public.

While a chasm continues to separate the two sides on the major issue of free agency, there seemed to be a few reasons for optimism Thursday despite the vote of the owners. It was announced as unanimous despite the opposition of some football people, like New Orleans General Manager

Jim Finks, who called it "like pouring kerosene on the fire."

For one, Donlan disclosed that Gene Upshaw, the executive director of the NFL Players Union, had flown to Chicago Thursday morning to meet with the Management Council executive committee. Upshaw met Wednesday night in Washington with NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who was not present at the owners meeting.

Donlan declined to characterize his feeling about the session because he has been meeting regularly with Upshaw.

But Hugh Culverhouse, owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the chairman of the committee, termed Upshaw's presence "worthwhile" and added: "I'm the eternal optimist."

"I think the fact that Gene took the time to come here and see us is a good sign," said another committee member, Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers. "I believe that Gene doesn't want a strike."

That, in fact, seems to be the sentiment of many players.

Mike Singletary, the player representative of the Chicago Bears, said his team would do whatever it had to do as a unit in the event of a strike.

But Singletary, who didn't attend the player reps meeting Tuesday in Washington at which the strike date was set, echoed what Rozelle has been saying for weeks — that football was severely damaged by the players' 57-day, seven-game walkout in 1982.

"Neither side ever made it up," the All-Pro linebacker said of the strike. "To do it again doesn't make a whole lot of sense."

The owners also announced they have established a line of credit, believed to be about $100 million, in the event of a strike.

Donlan said the league also has a guarantee for the networks to televise the games, although he conceded there would probably be a rebate for loss of ratings when the networks and advertising agencies determine their losses. He also said fans could be refunded ticket money and that the networks might reassess their position after consulting with their advertising agencies.

Switzer Upset As Defense Gives Up Too Many Yards

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer is talking about his defense, while North Carolina Coach Dick Crum is talking about the top-ranked Sooners' high-powered offense.

Despite the top-ranked Sooners' 69-14 victory over North Texas last week, Switzer was upset because his team allowed 183 rushing yards, the most any Oklahoma team has allowed since the final game of 1985. Part of the reason is that Oklahoma played two freshmen on defense.

Against North Carolina on Saturday, linebacker Dante Jones, a senior who left last week's game with a mild ankle sprain, will be back and noseguard Dante Williams will start.

"Marcus Lowe played good, but there's a world of difference between him and Dante (Williams)," Switzer said. "We're not thick inside, and I think with Dante coming back this week, he's thick. He's strong and big, a force inside, and that'll help us."

"Dante Jones didn't play much Saturday and he's probably our best player at linebacker. He'll be back this week."

Jones showed his big-play ability last week when he stripped the ball from a North Texas player and romped 58 yards for a touchdown.

Crum, however, is more concerned about Oklahoma's offense.

"(Quarterback Jamelle) Holiway is just a great Wishbone quarterback," Crum said. "I thought J.C. Watts was a great player when we played out there in 1980, but this kid is better."

"Not only does he run the Wishbone like a magician, but he's a better passer than Watts was. Because of their great receivers and his throwing ability, you have to be concerned with their passing game as well as their great running backs."

In 1980, Oklahoma defeated North Carolina 41-7.

The 1980 game saw North Carolina come into Norman with a 7-0 record and a No. 6 national ranking. The Tar Heels, and Lawrence Taylor, also led the nation in scoring defense. Oklahoma, 4-2 and ranked 16th, rolled to a 41-7 victory.

"That 1980 team is probably the best we've ever had," said Rick Brewer, North Carolina sports information director. "We had five defensive linemen and five offensive linemen drafted by the NFL off that team and we had two 1,000-yard rushers at tailback."

"And we came out here and played an Oklahoma team that people tell me was not a great Oklahoma team."

Crum said this year's Oklahoma team is better than the 1980 version.

"We feel good about going out there to play them — it's a challenge," said Crum, whose team beat Illinois 34-14 last week. "I know we're the underdog, but so what? Someone has to be the underdog."

Saturday's top game will pit No. 3 UCLA at No. 2 Nebraska. In other games involving Top Ten teams, Kansas will be at No. 4 Auburn, West Virginia is at No. 5 Ohio State, Fullerton State is at No. 6 Louisiana State, No. 8 Florida State is at East Carolina, No. 16 Notre Dame is at No. 9 Michigan, and Virginia Tech travels to No. 10 Clemson.

In other games, No. 11 Penn State will play host to No. 19 Alabama, No. 13 Arkansas plays Mississippi at Jackson, Miss.; No. 14 Tennessee is at Mississippi State, No. 15 Arizona State is at Illinois, No. 18 Pittsburgh is at home for North Carolina State, and No. 20 Georgia plays host to Oregon State.

No. 7 Miami of Florida and No. 17 Michigan State are idle. Nebraska and UCLA have split the six games they played against each other, with the Cornhuskers winning the last three. In 1972, the Bruins' victory ended Nebraska's 32-game unbeaten streak.

Junior Steve Taylor, whose 157 yards rushing last week against Utah State set a school record, will quarterback the Cornhuskers.

Auburn's defense picked up in last week's 31-3 victory over Texas where it left off last season. But defensive coordinator Wayne Hall is not ready to heap praise on this year's Tigers just yet.

"After we play Kansas and Tennessee and North Carolina, then we'll have a better idea of how good we'll be on defense," Hall said.

However, judging from last year's team and the number of returning starters, defense shouldn't be a problem for the Tigers. Last season, Auburn led the Southeastern Conference in scoring defense by allowing only 115 points in 11 regular-season games. The Tigers finished 10-2 and defeated Southern California 16-7 in the Citrus Bowl.

Eight starters returned this year, and it showed in last week's romp over Texas. The Tigers held the Longhorns to 133 yards rushing and 116 passing.

"Probably our biggest strength is our experience," Hall said. "You can replace talent, but it's hard to replace experience."

"Some teams are easier to coach than others. This is probably one of the easiest. We've got several seniors. ... They know what to expect and that makes it a little easier to coach."

Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce will be leaning on freshmen this week.

Running backs Carlos Snow and John Spencer, linebacker Andy Gurd, tight ends Jeff Ellis and Jay Koch, and wide receivers Bernard Edwards and Bobby Olive all figure to make an appearance when Ohio State opens its season against West Virginia.

"We had to count on some freshmen backs because we were a little light in the backfield," Bruce said. "Those two backs — Carlos Snow and John Spencer — have perked us up a little."

Four Tied After First Week's Picks

Woody Peele

The first week of our picks didn't do a lot toward separating the wheat from the chaff. Well, we guess there is Joe Jenkins, who quickly has put himself into his usual position — at the rear of the pack.

Four of us, Don Reuter, Tom Morris, Vickie Spivey and this writer, posted 10-2 records last week. We were proud in that we were the only one to get the N.C. State-East Carolina game correct.

Tom Baines came through with a 9-2 mark which leaves him just one game back.

Jenkins, however, came through with a 7-5 mark and finds himself three back before we're cleared the starting gate.

Maybe he can make up a little ground this week.

A look at the area high school games first. Last week, we posted a 6-2 record bringing us to 10-4 on the season.

Ayden-Grifton, fresh off a big victory over D.H. Conley, goes way up in classification, taking on 4-A Kinston. The Vikings are suffering through the longest losing streak in the state, 19 games now, and would like to use the "step down" to snap that. The Chargers, however, could influence some of the state's poll voters with a win.

We pick the Chargers to win this one, 20-13.

Rose High School takes on Fayetteville's Terry Sanford in the game that opens its new stadium — although it's still incomplete. The Rampants, after their big win against Jacksonville, have to guard against a letdown. Too, they also lost practice time by having to wait until Monday to play the Cardinals.

Terry Sanford has lost only once a year for the past two years, and they've already lost one this year. Tough game, but the Rampants should win, 14-10.

In the other area games, it will be Roanoke over Jamesville, Williamston over Bertie, North Lenoir over Greene Central, Chocowinity over Mattamuskeet and Pamlico over Washington.

Our panel looks at the North Pitt-Conley game this week. The Vikes come in after giving Ayden-Grifton a scare in the first half while North Pitt comes off a big win over 1-A North Edgecombe. The Panthers will use their power offense and defense against the speed and finesse of the Vikings and it could turn into a good game.

The panel picks North Pitt, 6-0, and our own prediction is the Panthers by 20-8.

East Carolina takes on nationally ranked Florida State in Ficklen Stadium. This past week's off-the-field activities have taken the shine off the Pirates' victory over N.C. State last weekend and may have cut into the mental concentration of the Bucs as they prepared for the Seminoles.

Florida State, meanwhile, is looking to impress some voters and push themselves upward in the polls.

This week, the panel is unanimous, with everyone going for Florida State. Our pick is FSU by 38-17.

Our other consensus picks: Georgia Tech over The Citadel, Pittsburgh over N.C. State, Duke over Northwestern, Texas Christian and Air Force, a toss up; Penn State over Alabama, Maryland over Virginia, Clemson over Virginia Tech, Oklahoma over North Carolina, Wake Forest over Richmond, and Nebraska over UCLA.

Conley, Farmville Post Junior Varsity Victories

HOLLYWOOD — Junior Farrow returned two interceptions for scores and ran nine yards for another touchdown as D.H. Conley's JV football team rolled past North Pitt, 64-0 Thursday.

The Vikings' Kenny Haddock scored first on a 75-yard punt return. Farrow then scored on a three-yard pass interception return. Tim Allen then threw the first of his two touchdowns on the night, going 59 yards to Hal Conger. Farrow then came up with a nine-yard scoring run. Allen followed that with a 16-yard pass to Shonta Wilkes. Farrow then returned another interception 69 yards for a score. Anthony Artis returned a punt 64 yards for a score and Kenny Haddock finished up the scoring with a one-yard run.

Fred Streeter, Artis and Stuart Roach each picked up two-point conversions, Roach, twice. Bill Jenkins kicked one and Farrow, two, PATs.

Earnhardt Makes Shambles Of Race

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt is well on his way to doing something that very few champions in pro sports can manage these days: repeat as champion.

The country boy with the aggressive driving style and nerves of steel is well on his way to a second straight NASCAR stock car championship.

In fact, Earnhardt has made a shambles of what appeared to be a toss-up among at six drivers before the 29-race Winston Cup schedule got under way in February.

Earnhardt heads into Sunday's Wrangler 400 at Richmond International Raceway with a 583-point lead over second-place Bill Elliott.

The mustachioed driver from North Carolina has the opportunity to clinch the Winston Cup championship earlier than anyone since the point system was streamlined in 1975.

That first year, Richard Petty set the modern NASCAR record of 13 victories and clinched the title with four races remaining in the season.

Since then, nobody has clinched with more than two races to go.

Earnhardt's first title came in the last race of 1980. Last year, he mathematically eliminated Darrell Waltrip with one race to go.

This year, Earnhardt has won 10 of 21 races. If he continues to hold a hot hand, the clincher could come soon.

He would have to be leading by 711 points to put the title away after the race at North Wilkesboro, N.C., five races from the end.

"I'd like to put it away as early as I can so I don't have to worry about points or any of that stuff. Then I can just go deer hunting," Earnhardt said with a grin.

"The big thing is that the car has been so consistently good that I have a chance to win every race," he added. "And, if we don't win, we finish. That's what you have to do to get points."

Another impressive statistic compiled by Earnhardt so far this season is the $1,186,970 he already has accumulated.

If he goes on to win the championship, more than $700,000 will be forthcoming at the awards banquet in New York in December.

Two more victories added to that and Earnhardt could join Elliott as the only race car drivers ever to win more than $2 million in a single season.

Elliott did it in 1985 by winning 11 races and earning a $1 million bonus for winning three of NASCAR's four biggest events.

In the 1980s, nobody has won more than 12 races, a feat Waltrip accomplished both in 1981 and 1982.

"I'd like to win every race I drive," Earnhardt said. "But winning three or four more sure seems possible. Really, the schedule does seem to favor us."

Earnhardt won the spring race on Richmond's half-mile oval and now has 10 top-five finishes, including two victories, in his last 15 starts here.

Practice was to open this morning, with the first round of qualifying scheduled later in the day.

E. Wayne Tops Rose

GOLDSBORO — Eastern Wayne High School slipped past Rose in a cross country meet held Thursday.

Eastern finished the meet with a low score of 21 points while Rose finished with 37.

Eastern Wayne's Robbie Rolar took first place overall with a time of 18:55 for the course.

Rose's best finish was third, with Jason Dohm finishing in 21:20. Fourth went to David Russ in 21:40.

The next Rose finisher was Chris Richards in ninth in 23:04, followed by Dave Jolley in 23:19, Mike Jolley in 23:40, James McPherson in 23:43, and Mark Dumas in 23:47.

Tom Irons finished 15th in 24:20, while Patrick Stanforth was next in 24:26, followed by Todd Taylor in 24:33. Eric Manning took 21st in 25:37, with John Turner next in 25:53. Craig Kirkland took 23rd in 26:18, while Danny Beasley was 24th in 28:49.

Rose falls to 0-2 on the year and will return to action on Tuesday at Rocky Mount.

There was no girls' event.

Rose, Bears Play To Tie

Rose High School and New Bern battled through regulation and two overtimes without a score Thursday night in a non-conference soccer match.

The shutout was the second straight for Rose goalie Brian Wille, and Rose has allowed only one goal in its past three matches.

New Bern, however, dominated play, taking 30 shots on goal. Wille was credited with 30 saves. Rose had only nine shots on goal with Jon Anders having nine saves for the Bears.

"The defense, anchored by Wille and Dallas McPherson played very well," Coach Will Wiberg said. "Toure Claiborne, Pat Joyner, Richard Lewis and Bobby Weisenberger all contributed defensively. But the offense still hasn't settled down and there is still so much we have to improve on if we hope to compete for a playoff berth."

Rose is now 1-2-2 while New Bern is 3-1-1. The Rampants will play host to Northern Nash at Eppes Field on Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

Lady Pirates In Opening Victory

East Carolina's women's volleyball team won its opening match of the season, taking three straight games over North Carolina Wesleyan Thursday night.

ECU won the first two games, 15-8, 15-8 before winning the third game 15-7.

ECU's Kris McKay had nine kills in 21 attempts and also had a game high 12 digs and five assists. Debbie Tate added a 13-26 setting performance and four service aces. ECU had 15 service aces for the match.

The Lady Pirates' next match is Saturday at Villanova.

Howard Under Knife

ATLANTA (AP) — Frank Howard, the retired football coach with the most wins in a career at Clemson, has undergone a 2½-hour back operation at Emory University Hospital, officials said.

Duke's Butters To Go To SMU?

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University athletic director Tom Butters visited the campus of Southern Methodist University Thursday amid reports that he would be interviewed for the vacant athletic director's job there.

Dr. Kenneth Pye, the new SMU president and former chancellor at Duke, indicated last month that he'd like to interview Butters for the SMU job.

The school's five-person search committee was selected earlier this week, and Pye said he expects to fill the AD job by the end of October.

Neither Butters' office at Duke, nor the SMU athletic department would confirm his presence in Dallas.

A spokesman at Duke confirmed that Butters was out of town, but said he'd be back at his desk Friday.

The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday that Butters was on campus for an interview.

SMU has been without an athletic director since Dec. 5, 1986, when Bob Hitch resigned in the wake of a cheating scandal that earned the Mustangs a one-year suspension by the NCAA of their football program.

Stewart's Fortunes Improving

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Ray Stewart had fun playing hockey and lacrosse as a youngster growing up near Vancouver, British Columbia.

Now, at 33, he's looking for fun as a golf pro while struggling to make a living on the PGA Tour.

With earnings of just $35,000 since first joining the tour in 1983, Stewart found himself in strange company today as the $500,000 Bank of Boston Classic headed into the second round.

Stewart was tied for the lead with two of golf's multimillionaires, Curtis Strange ($2.886 million) and John Mahaffey ($2.363 million).

And just one stroke back was all-time great Lee Trevino, still laughing his way to the bank at 48 with PGA earnings of $3.3 million.

Stewart admitted he enjoyed his lofty standing with the super stars, but insisted "I'm not thinking of winning" after earning a share of the lead with a 6-under-par 65.

"Curtis Strange has got me by about $670,000 this year, so I don't think he's worried about me," said Stewart, who has won $27,000 and needs about $50,000 more to retain the card he earned again in the PGA qualifying school in 1986.

Strange, 32, who has already set a single-season record in winning $687,000 this year, and Mahaffey, returning from a four-week vacation with new clubs to play one of his favorite courses, set the tempo as early-morning starters at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

"I'm playing with confidence and momentum," Strange said after making six birdies without a bogey. "I'm seeing the ball go in the hole a lot. What's best is I'm playing the way I like to play and having a lot of fun."

Mahaffey, 39, recalls being given a special sponsor's exemption by Pleasant Valley Country Club in 1978. He didn't need it as he began a golf comeback by winning the PGA championship a week earlier.

"This is the first good round I've had all year," Mahaffey said after seven birdies and one bogey over the 7,110-yard layout. "Condition-wise, this is the best I've seen the course in the 17 years I've been coming here."

"This is the best round I've ever played on this course," said Trevino, playing in only his 10th tournament because of television commitments and other outside interests.

Trevino, looking forward to playing the PGA Senior Tour when he becomes eligible at 50, shot 66 with seven birdies and two bogeys in an afternoon round.

Paul Azinger, a three-time winner this season with an outside chance of catching Strange for top money honors, and former Pleasant Valley champions George Burns and Lou Graham were tied at 67 with 1985 U.S. Amateur champion Sam Randolph Wayne Grady and Jay Haas.

Defending champion Gene Sauers was tied with 14 players at 68 and there was a whopping traffic jam of another 25 players at 69.

Of the 156 starters in the field hoping to make the halfway cut to the low 70 scorers and ties, 72 broke par in the first round. Another 21 played in regulation 71.

Surprised Rosenthal Retains Confidence

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jody Rosenthal is about as confident of her golf game as can be, but she admits her rapid rise to the upper reaches of the LPGA's earnings list has left her "a little bit" surprised.

"I just think I played better to start with than I thought I might," the 24-year-old former Tulsa University player said as she prepared for this weekend's $225,000 Cellular One-Ping championship. "I only missed two cuts last year, and I think that's pretty unusual for a rookie."

Minnesota provides far from a perfect environment for an aspiring golfer. The courses are closed at least five months a year because of bad weather.

She credits her parents for getting her interested in the game.

"They got me started when I was 10," Rosenthal said. "They both play. I have a younger brother and he plays, so we had a lot of family four-some golf."

Her parents spent winter holidays in Arizona, allowing her a little golf during the Minnesota snows. Now, her parents spend their summers in Arizona, where she was a four-time all-America and NCAA runner-up in 1982 and 1985. She was the British Amateur champion in 1984.

But it was her first LPGA season that served notice that Rosenthal wasn't just another young pro.

"I think having a good year last year gave me confidence," she said. "I felt I was playing well and getting adjusted to the tour. I'd played some good rounds and I just needed to put three or four together in a row. I knew I could do it."

Winning the $60,000 first prize at the du Maurier Classic, one of the richest events on the tour, has left her wanting more.

"I think maybe I expect more of myself" as a result of that victory, she said.

People who know the LPGA are expecting a lot more, too.

"But I'm a pretty consistent golfer. I don't shoot a lot of high scores. That helps me make the cut."

Her six top-10 finishes last year won her Rookie of the Year honors and gave her the confidence she needed this year, confidence that has helped her win the United Virginia Bank Golf Classic and the du Maurier Classic.

She's won $196,300 — fourth on the earnings list — and is fifth in Player of the Year point standings.

"I can't say there are any courses on the tour that I can't do well on," she said. "My short game is the strongest part of my game. If the course is longer, I just rely on that a little more."

The Columbia-Edgewater Country Club course, site of this weekend's 54-hole tournament which was to get under way today, is relatively short at 6,233 yards.

Its tree-lined fairways make accuracy a necessity.

"I grew up in Minnesota and it's really quite similar to a lot of courses there," she said, "a lot of trees, tight, a lot of dog legs and fast greens. I like a golf course like that."

Wilander Advances By Topping Mecir

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that he has cleared his biggest personal hurdle, Mats Wilander just might sprint to his first U.S. Open title.

Playing with just enough aggression and his usual patience, Wilander whipped Miloslav Mecir 6-3, 6-7, 6-4, 7-6 Thursday night. He emphatically ended the match by taking the tiebreaker 7-0.

It was a sweet win for the third seed from Sweden, who was 2-5 lifetime against Mecir and lost here last year to the fifth-seeded Czechoslovak.

Wilander plays countryman Stefan Edberg, the No. 2 seed, in Saturday's semifinal. Edberg blitzed unseeded Ramesh Krishnan of India 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 earlier Thursday.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl and No. 6 Jimmy Connors meet in the other men's semifinal.

who is playing as well as anyone in the tournament.

"It doesn't matter if you are friends or not off the court when you get on the court," Wilander said. "I'm playing better than in '85 (when he lost to McEnroe in a five-set semifinal). My confidence might have been better then, but physically I am stronger and I feel like I'm just playing better this year."

Mecir also thought Wilander had raised his game.

"Mats is playing much better," Mecir said. "He didn't lose yet, so he has a chance, of course."

In today's women's semifinals, defending champion Martina Navratilova, the second seed, played No. 6 Helena Sukova, whom she beat for the title last year. No. 1 Steffi Graf met No. 11 Lori McNeil, an upset winner over Chris Evert in the quarterfinals.

Edberg had no trouble with Krishnan, whose smooth strokes were no match for Edberg's serve-and-volley power.

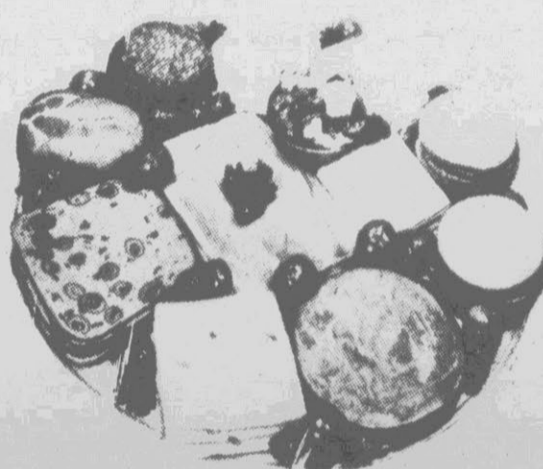

Edberg, the Australian Open champion, hasn't met a seeded player yet. His game will get its biggest test against Wilander on Saturday.

"I'm playing better this year," Edberg said. "I've learned a lot from last year."

"I played well on the important points, I felt I was getting psyched up," Wilander said. "From the first point to the last, I feel in trouble against Mecir. I think result-wise and style-wise, Mecir is the toughest guy for me to play."

But the "Swede-killer," who has a 28-18 record against the nine players from Sweden ranked in the top 50, was conquered this time. Now Wilander faces his buddy Edberg,

Nelson Is An Improbable Hero

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Manager Larry Bowa just wanted pinch-hitter Rob Nelson to be comfortable in his first National League at-bat. But Nelson's game-winning RBI single ended up making Houston more than uncomfortable.

The Astros' 8-7 loss Thursday night knocked them five games behind San Francisco in the NL West pennant race.

"This is a game we would have liked to have had because we could have gained a little ground," said Glenn Davis, who hit three homers to bring in five runs for the Astros. "At this point, you just have to take advantage, you just have to."

Nelson, who came to San Diego last week in a trade with Oakland for pitcher Storm Davis, got his first major-league RBI when he singled in Garry Templeton from third with one out in the bottom of the ninth.

"Any time you come up with the game on the line like that and you come through, it's a great feeling," said Nelson, who had logged 133 strikeouts, 24 homers and 74 RBI at Tacoma this year.

Nelson, who arrived in San Diego only hours before the game, had faced Houston relief pitcher Manny Hernandez when both were in the Pacific Coast League early this year.

Asked why he sent Nelson to pinch-hit when veteran Tim Flannery was on the bench, Padres Manager Larry Bowa said, "Nelson had faced this guy (Hernandez) before. I was trying to make it comfortable for him. That was all."

Davis had a chance to even the score with a fourth homer in the eighth with the Padres ahead 7-6, but he grounded out with the count 3-0.

"It looked like the bottom just dropped out of it," said Davis of reliever Lance McCullers' last pitch, "but whatever it was, it was a nasty pitch."

With his 25th homer this year, Davis became the third Houston player and first since Lee May on June 21, 1973 to hit three homers in a game.

Davis hit a solo homer in the second inning and a two-run shot in the fourth, both off Padres starter Mark Grant, and added a two-run homer off Mark Davis in the sixth, giving Houston a 6-4 lead.

"He got off to a slow start, got hot again, then all of a sudden he went down," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said of Davis. "He's a free swinger and either he's really hot or really cold. There's no in between."

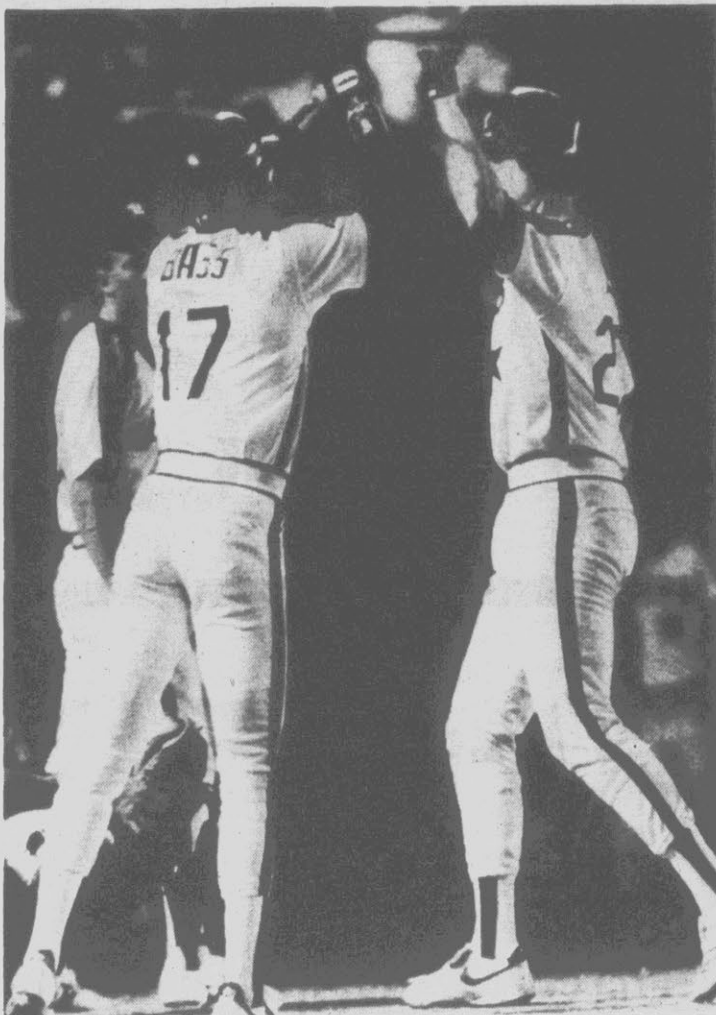

The Padres rallied in the bottom of the sixth when Tony Gwynn hit his seventh homer, off reliever Larry Andersen, cutting Houston's lead to 6-5.

In the seventh, Gwynn and Randy Ready hit consecutive RBI singles. The winning rally started when Templeton singled off Hernandez, 0-3, the last of six Houston pitchers. After a sacrifice bunt by Marvell Wynne, Templeton went to third on a wild pitch.

Nelson then bounced a single down the right field line.

Rich Gossage, 5-3, who entered the game in the ninth inning, when the Astros tied the score 7-7, got the win in the Padres' ninth victory in 13 meetings with Houston this year.

"We made two many bad pitches. When you score seven runs you should win the ballgame," Lanier said, adding, "With every loss you put yourself with your back against the wall."

Bengals Re-Sign Schonert

By The Associated Press
The Cincinnati Bengals picked up an experienced quarterback, while the New York Giants finally signed veteran linebacker Gary Reasons as NFL teams made final preparations for their season openers this weekend.

Guerrero Injured

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indy-car driver Roberto Guerrero was on the last lap on the last day of tire testing at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway when his car careened into the wall, leaving him with a critical head injury.

Guerrero, 29, was unconscious and in critical but stable condition at Methodist Hospital Thursday with moderate to severe head injuries, said Dr. Stephen Olvey, medical director for CART, the Indy-car sanctioning body.

"His vital signs are stable and he's unconscious," Olvey said. "We don't expect that to change in the next 24 hours."

The right side of Guerrero's March-Cosworth hit the second-turn wall about 4:15 p.m. on the second day of testing at the speedway. Car owner Vince Granatelli speculated that the right front wheel may have come off at impact and hit Guerrero in the head.

"We've been testing at the Speedway for two days and everything was perfect," Granatelli said. "We were all finished for the day. He was on the main straightaway and we called him in. He said, 'OK.'"

Granatelli said he assumed Guerrero had slowed down before the accident.

The Bengals signed former Cincinnati quarterback Turk Schonert, who had been released by the Atlanta Falcons earlier in the week.

"He knows the system and he'll pick it back up again quickly," Cincinnati General Manager Paul Brown said of Schonert, who was the Bengals' backup quarterback from 1980 through 1985. Now he'll be No. 2 to starter Boomer Esiason.

The Bengals waived Doug Gaynor, their No. 2 quarterback throughout the preseason, to make room on their 45-man roster for Schonert.

"The coaches felt that the future wasn't there," Brown said of Gaynor. "It's too dangerous a thing to go into the season with a No. 2 quarterback you're not sure of."

Reasons ended a long and sometimes bitter holdout when he signed with the Super Bowl champion Giants.

"I'm satisfied," Reasons said. "I'm here and I'm ready to contribute and play. I couldn't see myself being out a long period of time."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Giants Coach Bill Parcells said the team will ask the NFL for a two-game roster exemption so Reasons will not be counted on its 45-man roster. Parcells said it is possible Reasons could be activated for Monday night's season-opener against the Chicago Bears, but said Reasons would not start.

Last week, Reasons accused the Giants of treating him as a second-class citizen. He sought a three-year contract that would pay him $1.5 million, but reportedly dropped his demand to $1.2 million for three years. The Giants had countered with a $900,000 three-year offer.

A starter since his rookie year in 1984, the 25-year-old Reasons has been the overshadowed linebacker of the Giants' 3-4 defense, playing with Lawrence Taylor, Carl Banks and Harry Carson. He also made a lot less money than they did.

The Green Bay Packers got a jolt Thursday when defensive end Ezra Johnson appeared to twist his left knee during practice and was taken from the field on a motorized cart.

Johnson, 32, is an 11-year veteran with a history of back problems, including two back operations. Although he was used only part-time last year, this year he has been healthy, regained his starting role and led the team in sacks during the exhibition season.

The San Francisco 49ers will have defensive end Jeff Stover available for Sunday's opener against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Stover ended his 46-day holdout Wednesday, signing a one-year contract for a reported $325,000, and participated in his first full workout Thursday.

"We knew he would be in good shape, and he responded well," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said of Stover. "He'll start in the nickel defense this Sunday. How much, I don't know. But if we find ourselves playing very much nickel, he will be substituted."

Brian Bosworth, the Seattle Seahawks' $11 million rookie linebacker, will wear No. 55 this season instead of 44, the number he wore at the University of Oklahoma.

Bosworth wanted to wear his old college number for superstitious reasons, he said, but NFL officials said he had to wear a number in the 50s or the 90s because he is a linebacker.

"I'm superstitious about a lot of things, not just my number," Bosworth said. "Fifty-five was Coach (Chuck) Knox's suggestion."

Bosworth will start at inside linebacker in the Seahawks' regular-season opener against the Broncos Sunday in Denver.

The Seahawks have been picked as a possible Super Bowl winner this year, a prediction that puts Knox on the hot seat.

"I can't really see why people would pick us," Knox said. "We were 10-6 last year and didn't even make the playoffs. I think those people are overestimating our ability as a football team."

Seattle won its last five games of 1986 by an average margin of 33-15, including a 41-16 defeat of the Broncos, who went on to play in the Super Bowl.

"It was very satisfying to come off the floor the way we did," Knox said, "but this is a new season. What we did last year has absolutely no bearing on this year. Momentum is not a tangible. It's like trying to grab at air."

Besides the San Francisco-Pittsburgh and Seattle-Denver games, other Sunday openers will have the New York Jets at Buffalo, Cleveland at New Orleans, the Los Angeles Rams at Houston, Cincinnati at Indianapolis, Miami at New England, San Diego at Kansas City, Atlanta at Tampa Bay, Dallas at St. Louis, Philadelphia at Washington, Detroit at Minnesota, and the Los Angeles Raiders at Green Bay.

ABC Plans 30-Hour 'Winds Of War' Sequel

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Inspirational tear-jerkers, biographies of famous people and reunions of defunct television shows make up the bulk of this season's network made-for-TV movies and miniseries.

"War and Remembrance," the sequel to "The Winds of War" is the biggie at 30 hours. It's on ABC, scene of last season's miniseries debacle, "Amerika." The trend is to shorter miniseries. The next-longest is "James Clavell's Noble House" on NBC at only eight hours.

Bios are big. Movies and minis will chronicle the lives of, among others, Elvis Presley, Ann Jillian, Richard Nixon, Barbara Hutton, Aristotle Onassis, Mercury Morris, Napoleon Bonaparte, Abraham Lincoln and Sydney Biddle Barrows.

Break out of the hanks. In NBC's "The Fierce Dreams of Jackie Watson," Emmy winner Alfre Woodard is as an advertising executive uncharacteristically touched by the plight of a child drug-runner. NBC also offers "The Father Clements Story," with Oscar winner Louis Gossett Jr. and Malcolm Jamal Warner of "The Cosby Show" in a fact-based story about a black Chicago priest who defied the church to adopt a son, and "Eye on the Sparrow," in which Mare Winningham and Keith Carradine play a blind couple defying secular law to adopt a child.

Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn recreate their Broadway roles "Foxfire" on CBS, the saga of an Appalachian family, co-starring John Denver. On NBC, Raquel Welch is a psychologist who wants the "Right to Die" with dignity rather than continue degenerating with a fatal disease. In CBS' "After the Promise" Mark Harmon is a widower trying to regain custody of his four sons. Coincidentally, Harmon was recently in a real-life custody fight over his nephew, son of the late Rick Nelson.

Where are they now? ABC's "Family" gets back together in "Family Reunion," as does the cast of "Eight Is Enough" for "Eight Is Enough: A Family Reunion" on NBC. ABC has "Roots Christmas," CBS is reuniting most of the "Gunsmoke" cast, and re-teaming Dwayne Hickman and Bob Denver in "Bring Me the Head of Dobie Gillis." There's also another of the popular "Perry Mason" movies on NBC.

Big-name authors get small-screen treatment. Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein's "The Final Days" is turned into television fare. Other writers represented in TV movies this season include Joseph Wambaugh, Sidney Sheldon, Gore Vidal, Mario Puzo, Clavell and the ubiquitous Judith Krantz.

Stories of courage and conscience also abound. Jack Lemmon makes a rare appearance on television in the miniseries "The Ballad of Mary Phagan" on NBC, playing a 1920s Georgia governor forced to make an impolitic but just decision. NBC's "To Heal a Nation" is the story of Jan Scruggs, the Vietnam veteran who got the Vietnam Veterans Memorial built in Washington, D.C.

"The Baby M Story" on ABC is a dramatization of the custody battle between Mary Beth Whitehead and the couple for whom she contracted to bear a child. ABC also plans "The Donna Rice Story," about the actress-model whose relationship with presidential candidate Gary Hart led him to withdraw from the race.

Other notable TV movies include "The Girl Next Door" on ABC, with Christie Brinkley as a va-va-voom neighbor who has a bunch of suburban wives up in arms, then joins forces with them. "The King of Love" on ABC a thinly veiled story of a Hugh Hefner-like publishing tycoon. ABC is putting together a deal to star John Ritter and Henry Winkler in "The Sob Sisters," about hard-nosed reporters who ghost-write an advice column.

Here are the miniseries — TV movies airing more than one night — scheduled for this season:

—"War and Remembrance," with

Robert Mitchum, et al. 30 hours. —ABC.

—"James Clavell's Noble House," with Pierce Brosnan amid the intrigue of Hong Kong. Eight hours. NBC.

—"Napoleon and Josephine," with Armand Assante and Jacqueline Bisset as the legendary lovers. Six hours. ABC.

—"Poor Little Rich Girl: The Barbara Hutton Story," with Farrah Fawcett as the famous heiress. Five hours. NBC.

—"Joseph Wambaugh's Echoes in the Darkness," a mystery based on a real-life 1979 murder, starring Peter Boyle and Stockard Channing. Five hours. CBS.

—"Ari: The Private Life of Aristotle Onassis," bio of the Greek shipping magnate who married Jackie Kennedy. No cast list. Five hours. ABC.

—"Elvis and Me," based on the book by Priscilla Presley. No cast list. Four hours. ABC.

—"Bluegrass," with Cheryl Ladd as a Kentucky woman struggling to break into hoity-toity society. Four hours. CBS.

—"The Ballad of Mary Phagan." Four hours. NBC.

—"Billionaire Boys Club," starring Judd Nelson and based on a true story of a group of deadly get-rich-quick kids. Four hours. NBC.

—"Kenny Rogers as 'The Gambler' — Part III," this time set in the Indian war-torn Dakota territories in the 1880s. Four hours. CBS.

—"Mario Puzo's The Fortunate Pilgrim," with Sophia Loren as an immigrant struggling to keep her family together. Four hours. NBC.

—"Sidney Sheldon's Windmills of the Gods," with Jaclyn Smith as a small-town teacher who becomes ambassador behind the Iron Curtain. Four hours. CBS.

—"Gore Vidal's Lincoln," following the president's personal and political life from before the Civil War to his assassination. No cast list. Four hours. NBC.

Television's 'Old Guard' Ready With New Shows

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dennis Weaver is back on television this season for his seventh series, as a self-assured Texas trauma surgeon in an ABC show called "Buck James."

Dale Robertson, best known for his Westerns, is back in boots and a 10-gallon hat as a Texas billionaire who likes to play detective in NBC's "J.J. Starbuck."

William Conrad returns with a new show for CBS in which he is no longer a fat detective but a fat district attorney. It's "Jake and the Fatman."

These three veterans from television's Old Guard, hard on the heels of Andy Griffith's success in NBC's "Matlock," are waiting in the wings with new shows.

Weaver's portrayal of the bigger-than-life surgeon is far removed from his first role in 1955 on "Gunsmoke" as loyal but rather dim-witted Deputy Chester Goode. It's also some distance from his "Aw, shucks" good ol' boy marshal on "McCloud."

His other series were "Kentucky Jones," "Gentle Ben," "Stone" and "Emerald Point N.A.S."

Robertson is a big-hearted Texan with deep pockets who is unable to resist sniffing out a mystery or helping somebody in trouble. "J.J. Starbuck" is not only up against ABC's "Moonlighting," but Conrad's new show as well. However, it could get a friendly boost on Tuesday nights from another folksy performer. It follows Griffith's "Matlock."

Robertson's best-known for his Western series: "Tales of Wells Fargo," "The Iron Horse" and "Death Valley Days." But he was also the buccaneer wildcatter on the first year of "Dynasty."

The guest star in the premiere episode of "J.J. Starbuck" is Robert Conrad, a charter member of the Old Guard. A guest in a later show is Bill Bixby, another member.

William Conrad starred in two shows, "Cannon" and "Nero Wolfe." But he was also Marshal Matt Dillon in the radio version of "Gunsmoke" and has been the narrator on more series than you can shake a microphone at.

The new season holds more tried-and-true trends. For instance, three popular comic actors are back with new shows.

John Ritter ("Three's Company") stars in ABC's "Hooperman" as a San Francisco detective who'd rather talk a bad guy into being better than use his gun. He must also cope with the tenants of the apartment house he's inherited. The show was created by Steven Bochco and Terry Louise Fisher of "L.A. Law."

Dabney Coleman is an opinionated sports writer in ABC's "Slap Maxwell," which immediately follows "Hooperman" on Wednesday. Coleman was the bull-headed, arrogant, self-centered talk show host on "Buffalo Bill," Jay Tarses ("Buffalo Bill") and "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd" is the man behind the show.

Tim Reid has renewed his association with Hugh Wilson ("WKRP in Cincinnati") for CBS' "Frank's Place." Reid plays a Yankee professor who inherits a down-home Creole restaurant in New Orleans.

Television is also getting some well-known performers who have made their mark elsewhere. Dolly Parton is testing the waters with "Dolly," a new variety show on ABC. Paul Sorvino stars in CBS' "The Oldest Rookie." Richard Kiley makes his series debut in "A Year in the Life."

Cronkite Will Anchor CBS TV Special On U.S. Constitution

By ERICH SMITH
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Who could play host for a television special on such a heavyweight topic as the U.S. Constitution? Who has the reputation? The clout?
At CBS, the answer was veteran newscaster Walter Cronkite, who will anchor a two-hour, prime-time "Constitution Gala" on Sept. 17, the 200th anniversary of the signing of the document that governs our government and so much of our lives.
ABC is throwing its efforts into Wednesday, the day before the big celebration, with a 1-hour show, "Celebration of Citizenship," at 1 p.m. EDT, and the prime-time, 3-hour program, "The Blessings of Liberty."
All three commercial networks expect to give the Constitution strong billing on their morning programs and on the nightly news. NBC will present a half-hour special at 11:30 a.m. EDT Thursday on President Reagan's address and the Philadelphia parade.

CBS' all-star special is produced by Gary Smith and Dwight Hemion, producers of the "Opening Ceremonies — Liberty Weekend 1986" spectacular built around the unveiling of the restored Statue of Liberty.
The Constitution Day extravaganza begins with live coverage of the 18,000-strong "We the People 200" parade in Philadelphia. The march duplicates the Grand Federal Procession held in 1787 to celebrate the new Constitution and celebrates the people and institutions of America today.
"This will not be a typical variety show," Smith said in an interview at Philadelphia's Convention Hall, where more than 800 people will put on the program before a live audience of thousands.
"This is meant to be a meaningful, artistic representation of what the Constitution means to us — not as some dusty document, but as a constantly changing, flexible set of guidelines for human behavior and rights in a democratic society.
"It's a celebration, but it'll be pretty serious. I hope it will be entertaining, as well."
The gala will showcase entertainers such as Gregory Peck, Barry Manilow, Patti LaBelle, Robert Guillaume, John Schneider, Tom Wopat, Marilyn McCoo, Lloyd Bridges, Walter Matthau, Stephanie Powers and Eli Wallach.
In addition, it will have music by members of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Peter Nero and the Philly Pops and performers of "West Side Story."
Along with the singing and dancing, the show will feature impressionist Rich Little quoting some great Americans on the Constitution and dramatizations of important decisions by the Supreme Court introduced by Walter Matthau.
The gala is up against some tough competition from NFL football on ABC, and the top-rated "The Cosby Show" on NBC, so Smith is not expecting huge ratings. He is sure about the show's importance, however.

"If people skip this show to watch the football game, they will tape us. People are going to want to have this show," he said.
ABC's afternoon show, "Celebration," is built around a mass recital of the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag and Preamble to the Constitution.
Reagan, former Chief Justice Warren Burger and other national leaders will gather on the west steps of the Capitol to lead schoolchildren around the nation.
The program, sponsored by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution, the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation and several education associations, is to be seen in 110,000 schools where the well-known words will also be recited.
ABC's prime-time "The Blessings of Liberty" is an in-depth look at six historic periods in the development of the Constitution and America over two centuries. The network brings out its heavy hitters for this one — David Brinkley, Peter Jennings and Ted Koppel.
Brinkley serves as historian to explain what the nation was like as significant changes were made in the government of America.
"If you understand how people were living in America in those periods, we think you'll have a better understanding of how the Constitution developed," said Maurice Perl, an ABC spokeswoman.
Jennings, the story-teller of the broadcast, talks about the watershed court cases and events that brought about changes in the Constitution and its interpretation. Koppel follows up with how those developments are important in modern times.
ABC has put together a repertory company to evoke the moods of those times — Richard Kyle as George Washington, Louis Gosset Jr. as Frederick Douglass, Martin Sheen as James Madison.

Jackson's Special Hits Top Rankings

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Jackson might be looking to make his album "Bad" No. 1, but his CBS-TV special, "The Magic Returns," didn't do too badly. It was No. 6 in last week's ratings.
Sandy Duncan was the only other interloper in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s top 10. "Act II," a one-time showing of an NBC pilot she starred in, ranked fifth.
Instead of taking that sitcom on the air, Duncan will be the lead in NBC's "Valerie's Family" this season, in a new character replacing the one played by Valerie Harper, who departed in a contract dispute.
"Night Court" moved into the No. 2 slot behind "The Cosby Show" with the absence of "Family Ties" from the top-10 list.
NBC has moved "Family Ties" to Sundays this season. Two weeks ago, in its first outing in the new time period, it ranked 27th with a rating of 12.7. But last week, due to the Lewis telethon, it rated only a 10.9 and was 36th.

Here are the top 10 shows for last week: "The Cosby Show," with a rating of 22.5, "Night Court," "Cheers," "Growing Pains," "Act II," "The Magic Returns," "Newhart," "Golden Girls," "Moonlighting" and tied for 10th, "Designing Women" and "Who's the Boss?"
NBC won its 32nd week in a row — but a day late, because the Nielsen computer miscalculated the ABC ratings for Sunday and had to be refigured on Wednesday.
NBC asked for the recount because Nielsen showed NBC and CBS with much lower ratings on Sunday night against the syndicated Jerry Lewis telethon that pre-empted network programming in many areas. The recount showed ABC's average dropping a tenth of a rating point.
ABC had released new Nielsen people-meter ratings on Wednesday that showed it in first place, with NBC second.

CEMENTED — Actress Angie Dickinson, probably best known as feisty Sgt. Pepper Anderson of television's "Police Woman," reacts as fans applauded Thursday when she received the 1,853rd star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame. The 54-year-old actress, who was working in a factory to finance acting lessons when a talent scout spotted her in a beauty contest, got her first big break in 1959 when director Howard Hawks cast her opposite John Wayne in "Rio Bravo." ## Rogers Will Donate Funds to Bus Victims

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Country singer Kenny Rogers plans to donate part of the ticket proceeds from his Sept. 19 concert to benefit victims of the Levy County school bus accident two weeks ago.
"I have a 6-year-old myself, so when you hear of 5-, 6-, 8-, 11- and 12-year-old lives being snuffed out like that it touches everybody," Rogers told WKTK radio employees, according to program director Nick Allen.
The accident occurred Aug. 28 when a truck driver apparently ran a stop sign at a rural Levy County crossroads. The truck smashed into the bus, killing six people and injuring 17.
Three children and one school employee remain hospitalized, said Will Irby, the Levy County superintendent of schools.
Rogers will donate $1 from each $16.50 ticket to the Levy County Tragedy Fund, said Gerald Roy, who represents Rogers.
The fund to help the victims and families is being managed by the Civitan Club in Chiefland, said club treasurer Wellie Cowart. Cowart said there was more than $18,000 in the fund on Wednesday.
The money will not be used to pay any medical bills, because it would not go far enough, he said.
